NEWS IN BRIEF

Copter crashes

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — A U.S. Marine helicopter crashed Friday while on a rescue mission in this hurricane-devastated island nation, killing one crewman and two Dominicans, the U.S. Navy reported.

Lt. Steve Chesser said in Puerto Rico that five other crew members of the CH-53 helicopter and one Dominican were injured when the craft crashed during a severe rainstorm. A seventh person was reported missing. Three of the injured were in critical condition.

Identifications were withheld pending notification of relatives.

Hostage released

ADAMSVILLE, Quebec (AP) — Two gunmen trapped during an attempted robbery of a credit-union office released a woman hostage Friday night, apparently in exchange for a case of soft drinks, but held six other persons captive, officials reported.

They said negotiations continued with the two armed men who have been holed in the one-story building in this township 60 miles east of Montreal since Thursday morning.

The gunmen, described as a 19-year-old English-speaking ex-convict and his 28-year-old French-speaking companion, had seized nine hostages when they were surprised by police during the holdup.

Five hospitalized

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Five people remained hospitalized Friday after pops and sparks from a snapped electric subway cable sent rush-hour passengers into a scramble that left 178 persons injured.

A loud explosion followed by a series of quieter ones, a grease fire and smoke Thursday caused terrified afternoon commuters to panic, many of them breaking windows to escape the smoke-filled cars.

Warning issued

HAVANA (AP) — Vietnamese Prime Minister Phan Van Dong warned China Friday against making any new attempts to invade his country, declaring it is prepared to deal the Chinese a greater setback than it did in the February invasion.

"We are alert. We are vigilant, we will give greater blows than before," he said.

Auto talks slow

DETROIT (AP) — With a little more than a week to go, bargainers in the auto-labor talks again omitted a full-scale negotiating session Friday.

It was the third day in a week in which the discussions were in subcommittees made up of representatives from the General Motors Corp. and United Auto Workers union bargaining teams.

Contracts for 780,000 auto workers, 460,000 of them from GM, expire Sept. 14.

Hijacked plane departs for Iran

Demands include freedom for Moslem leader

ROME (AP) — Three men seeking freedom for a Moslem leader they claim is imprisoned in Libya used guns they smuggled aboard in a candy box to hijack an Italian jetliner carrying 186 persons, then freed all the passengers here, then left aboard the craft early today for Iran.

With the hijackers on the Alitalia DC-8 were 11 airline crew members, including two fresh pilots who agreed to fly the craft to Tehran, Iran, airline president Umberto Nordio said. The plane, hijacked on a flight from Tehran to Rome after a scheduled stop in Beirut, Lebanon, had been on the ground here for 12½ hours.

The hijackers, believed to be Lebanese, freed most of the passengers shortly after landing here and demanded a flight to Cuba to plead their case before the conference of non-aligned nations meeting in Havana. When they were told Cuba was having stormy weather and Iran said it would accept them, they agreed to go to Tehran instead, authorities reported.

They said the gunmen promised to surrender to government officials upon arrival in Iran.

The hijackers had held 36 passengers and nine crew members as hostage.

Nordio said that under the agreement reached with the aid of a Rome-based representative of the Arab League, two fresh pilots joined the original crew of nine for the flight to Iran and the remaining passengers were allowed to disembark when the plane's engines were running and it was ready to take off.

Although initial accounts said the hijackers were Kurdish nationalists, all later reports said they were Lebanese Moslems of the Shiite sect that is predominant in Iran. According to the reports, the hijackers boarded the plane in Beirut, and after seizing control ordered the plane to refuel in Nice, France. French authorities refused to let it land and it went to Rome.

Airport officials said the gunmen demanded they be flown to Havana to present a statement to delegates from 95 countries attending the non-aligned conference.

They were told a Caribbean storm, Frederic, was threatening Cuba and they then agreed to accept a flight to Iran if their statement was read at the Havana conference, the officials said.

The statement calls on world leaders to determine the fate of Imam Musa Sadr, the leader of Lebanon's 900,000 Shiite Moslems who disappeared in August 1978 while visiting Libya.

The Italian ambassador in Havana, Salvatore Porcari Lidestri, had announced that Fidel Castro's government authorized a plane carrying the hijackers to land in Cuba "for humanitarian reasons."

An hour later, Italian officials said Iran also had agreed to accept the hijackers.

A statement given to police by the gunmen and made available to The Associated Press questioned why the world "remains quiet" on the missing, 54-year-old Imam Sadr, and said:

"Does this happen because Mr. Kaddafi (Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafy), governor of Libya, bought the conscience of the world with a few dollars and some barrels of petrol?"

The imam flew to Libya at the invitation of Khadafy's government on Aug. 25, 1978, and disappeared six days later. Libya claimed he boarded an Alitalia flight that day and departed for Rome, but Italian investigators said there was no evidence the imam arrived in Italy or had left Libya.

Some Shiite Moslems accused Khadafy of kidnapping Imam Sadr, saying Khadafy hopes to become an international Islamic leader and saw the imam as an obstacle.

The Beirut newspaper As Safir named the hijackers as Haidar Aasad Jamal-Eddine, 27 and Khodor Jaafar Jamal-Eddine and Sami Mohammed Jabaq, both 23.

White: 'We're watching WIPP'

By BILL MODISETT
Staff Writer

Texas Atty. Gen. Mark White, on a press conference tour through parts of Texas Friday, stopped in Midland and told reporters his office is "monitoring" developments in the federal government's plan to locate a nuclear waste disposal site near Carlsbad, N.M.

Purpose of the monitoring, he said, is to insure that the interests of Texans are protected.

The U.S. Department of Energy is proposing to build an underground facility which would hold militarily-produced nuclear wastes and spent fuel canisters from commercial nuclear reactors at a site about 35 miles southeast of Carlsbad.

That plan, tabbed the Waste Isolation Pilot Project, has sparked opposition from New Mexico residents as well as drawn the attention of the League of Women Voters in Odessa.

In addition, funding in Congress has been held up pending delineation of the project's scope.

Nuclear wastes stored at the site would be transported through the Midland-Odessa area, according to the project's environmental impact statement.

The city of Odessa draws about 40 percent of its water from wells in the area near the proposed site, while the city of Midland also holds water rights in the general area.

White is serving his first term as Texas' chief law enforcement officer.

White not disclosing the state's possible action in regard to the WIPP proposal, White said, "We're very concerned about the efforts to dispose of nuclear wastes at Carlsbad."

The DOE currently is conducting final hearings on a draft environmental impact statement before announcing a final decision on the Carlsbad proposal.

A hearing on the draft statement has been scheduled for 9 a.m. Oct. 1 in the auditorium of the Founders Building at The University of Texas of the Permian Basin in Odessa.

On another topic, commenting on a widely-publicized difference of opinion between himself and Gov. Bill Clements, White said the state will "exhaust all alternatives" with Mexico prior to filing suit in connection with the runaway Mexican oil well that has been pouring oil into the Gulf of Mexico since June.

That spill resulted in pollution along Padre Island in South Texas. Friday, the state attorney general did not rule out the possibility of filing a suit against Mexico if some agreement cannot be reached on payment of damages caused by the runaway well.

Earlier, Gov. Clements had said Texas would not sue Mexico over the oil damage. White indicated Texas would file suit if it is felt the situation cannot be remedied in another way.

White repeated that pledge, and added that he felt the governor was sending out "false signals" by making such a statement.

White noted that it was his responsibility, not Clements', to determine in what instance the state would file a lawsuit.

He also said the state will seek help from the federal government in minimizing damages resulting from the runaway well.

White touched on several involvements by his office, including the Howard Hughes will case, other lawsuits for the state, energy and a suit against the Texas Department of Corrections.

"I'm very pleased with the progress we've made in the office over the past eight months," White said Friday.

"I have brought into the state between Jan. 1, 1979, and June 30, 1979, $10,034,748.73, which is more than during the six months immediately prior to my administration," a press release from White stated.

It continued: "In only six months, this office has brought in an amount which is 50 percent of the total 24 months biennium's funding to this office."

White's news conference was conducted at 1:30 p.m. Friday at Rich Air Terminal at Midland Regional Airport.

Standby rationing bill studied

WASHINGTON (AP) — House and Senate conferees began piecing together a compromise standby gasoline rationing bill Friday, with the chairman of the Senate Energy Committee saying the plan may soon see use.

"I think that what we do here in the rationing area may be implemented," Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said as House and Senate energy conferees met for the first time to reconcile their differences over the legislation.

He said the plan should not be viewed as just a standby measure to be left forgotten on the administration's shelf.

Unrest in the Middle East could escalate any day into a conflict that could cut off vital Persian Gulf oil supplies to the United States, Jackson said.

"I think the lid can blow off any minute," Jackson said, telling colleagues they should not be lulled by the disappearance of the long gasoline lines of early summer.

As the congressional negotiators got down to work, the White House scored an early victory.

The conferees voted unanimously to drop from the legislation amendments added in the House that would have required establishment of special reserves of tractor fuel for farmers and home heating oil for homeowners.

The administration had argued that the amendments were unrelated to rationing and did not belong in the bill.

The ease with which the set-aside amendments were shucked suggested that other similar weakening riders added during House floor debate and opposed by the White House might meet a similar fate — including a measure that would ease thermostat restrictions for commercial buildings.

"We're going to have a rationing bill, I have no doubt about it," said Sen. Bennett Johnston, D-La., acting chairman of the conference panel. "The differences can be worked out."

One major difference is a provision in the House bill that would prohibit rationing from being imposed unless there were a 20 percent drop in fuel supplies over a 30-day period.

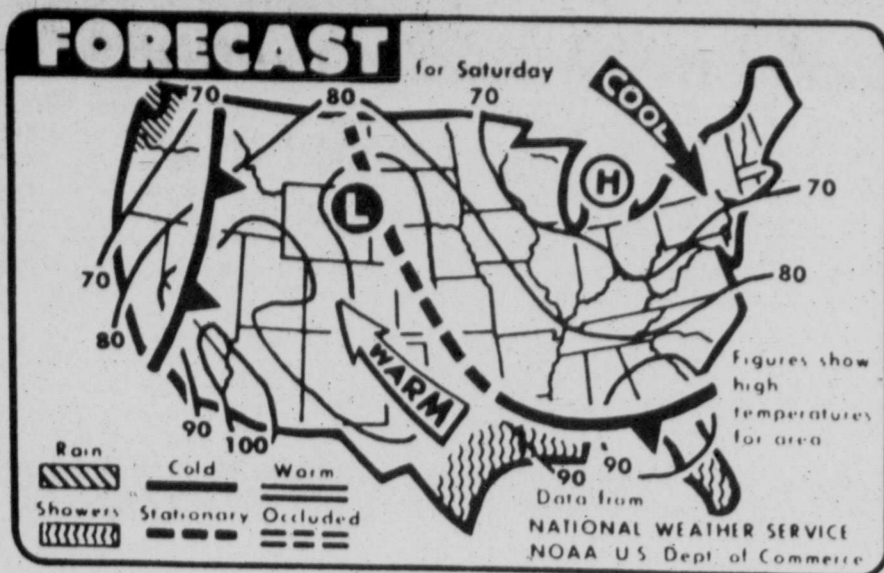

Senate conferees tentatively proposed on Friday that the measure be amended to permit the president to impose rationing if the shortage were only 10 percent.

It was part of a package deal the Senate negotiators offered their House counterparts. The other part would give Congress the right to veto a rationing plan when it is developed, not just when it is put into effect by the president as proposed in the House-passed bill.

Carter approves MX missile plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter announced approval Friday of a $33 billion deployment plan for the MX mobile missile force, saying it would do "the best job" of meeting a Soviet threat to current U.S. fixed-base missiles.

Under the plan, 200 MX mobile missiles, each carrying 10 nuclear warheads, would be mounted on giant transporters and shuffled among some 4,600 blast-proof underground shelters built in racetrack-like patterns in some 40 Utah and Nevada valleys.

It is a variation of the "shell game" idea of deterring a Soviet surprise attack by preventing the Russians from knowing where the missiles are at any given time.

Carter said "it's a system we need" because of the looming threat increasingly accurate Soviet missiles will pose in the 1980s to the present force of 1,000 U.S. Minuteman missiles.

THE MX MISSILE ITSELF will be test-fired for the first time in 1983 and the system will become partially combat-ready in 1986, with full readiness planned by 1989.

The president said the new system is compatible with the U.S.-Soviet strategic arms limitation treaty and would help point the way to negotiating reduced forces on both sides.

But, the president said, "it's not a bargaining chip." At the same time, Carter said he hopes the 190,000-pound MX missile, the biggest ever built by the United States, will be "the last missile system of enormous destructive power that we will ever have to build."

DEFENSE OFFICIALS SAID the $33 billion estimated cost would include $15 billion for procuring the missiles and transporters, $10 billion on construction and $8 billion on research and development.

Carter and Defense Secretary Harold Brown stressed that the "racetrack" deployment will minimize the impact on the environment in the Western states, where it will be deployed on government-owned land.

Carter's approval of the "racetrack" deployment plan was expected after most of his top security advisers had recommended it last month.

The president last June authorized development of the MX missile, this country's first land-based ICBM in over 10 years, but left a final decision on how it should be deployed while costs, environmental impact and other considerations were studied.

Despite the huge $33 billion cost, the president described the system as "affordable" and said it meets all the key tests, including the critical one of "survivability."

SOME SENATORS CRITICAL of the SALT II treaty have indicated that approval of the MX missile and other actions to strengthen the U.S. nuclear strike force would weigh heavily in their decision on whether to vote for ratification of the treaty. The Joint Chiefs of Staff also conditioned their support of the SALT treaty on the MX deployment.

The transporters would move the missiles along surface roadways, shifting them from shelter to shelter about once a month. Each transporter vehicle, which would weigh about 670,000 pounds, would be covered by a shield that would prevent Soviet spy satellites from telling whether or not it was loaded with missiles.

For verification purposes, Brown said, each shelter would be fitted with "removable plugs" to allow the Russians an occasional glimpse inside, reassuring them that the United States was not hiding missiles above the limits set in the SALT treaty.

EACH MISSILE WOULD be moved among 23 shelters located on spur roads off the main "racetrack" pattern. There would be about five such patterns, or clusters, in each of about 40 valleys. The plan also includes two assembly bases, one each in Utah and Nevada.

Brown said the governors and legislatures of the two states have expressed support for the "racetrack" deployment.

And while Brown conceded that there are many in Congress "who will raise questions," he noted that in every case where money requests for the MX system work so far have reached the Senate and House floors, they have been approved. Congress also will have to approve yearly appropriations for the MX system in the future.

Asked how he thought the Russians would respond to the plan, Brown replied: "Negatively."

He said the Russians can build more and more weapons in an attempt to overwhelm the MX, which he said would be a "fruitless" and costly effort, proceed in the direction of reductions in missiles on both sides, or build a mobile system of their own.

ACCORDING TO BROWN, the number of MX missiles and shelters could be adjusted upward or downward over the years to come depending on whether the Soviet threat rises or falls.

He said it is uncertain yet how many of the present Minuteman missiles would be replaced in the total strategic force by MX weapons.

Brown acknowledged that a previously favored mobile system involving vertical missile shelters, rather than the horizontal ones now contemplated, would have been "somewhat less expensive."

But he said it was found that it would take "hours or days to move from one vertical shelter to another," while the racetrack system would enable transporters to shift missiles between shelters within 30 minutes, or in time to escape incoming Soviet missiles after they have been launched.

He said the MX missiles could be fired either from the 100-foot-long transporters in the open or from inside the shelters, which he said would be built so they could be broken through at the top to permit a missile launching from inside.

'Blobs' defy scientific analysis

FRISCO, Texas (AP) — Two purple blobs that Sibil Christian found on her front lawn have defied analysis by space scientists, who say they haven't ruled out the possibility they could be a rare form of meteorite.

"It's kind of like plum pudding," according to geochemist Doug Blanchard of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration near Houston. "It has round, solid chunks in it that remain after the goo goes away. We don't know what it is," said Friday.

M.B. Christian said that on Aug. 11 his wife noticed three blobs "about the size" of an old box telephone on their front yard in this farming town north of Dallas, "but one of them disappeared. It just faded away."

A spokesman for the Dallas planetarium said that Aug. 11 is the day that a recent meteor shower reached its peak.

Blanchard said the two remaining blobs have been placed in deep freezers at NASA headquarters to keep them from evaporating while exhaustive tests are conducted.

"That may take a month or a month and a half," he said. Sibil Christian said that when she found the blobs they "looked like smooth whipped cream, purple."

"I stuck this stick into the object. It went in easily, very easily. I punctured it. On the inside it was the same thing — just like real whipped cream, and it looked like it was melting, but it was a deep rose."

She said she called the police, and officer Jaime Davila decided to try to pick up one of the blobs.

"It was pretty warm," Davila said. He used a newspaper to nudge the blobs into a box, and later the blobs were taken to the Heard Natural Science Museum in nearby McKinney. Curator Ken Steigman said the blobs emit an acidic liquid, attract water, contain uranium and a strange pattern of small specks of lead that look like "nothing here on earth."

Steigman said he was sure the blobs were a form of meteorite, but NASA scientists are less certain.

"They don't appear to have been produced by any animal," said Blanchard. "We have not ruled out something from outer space, but I feel that is a small chance. We are pursuing an explanation systematically."

He said nothing from outer space has ever landed on Earth in a jelly-like goo but said there was a possible explanation how it could have occurred.

"I could theorize they may have come in in a much larger piece from space and 99.9 percent may have burned off" by air friction when the substance entered Earth's atmosphere.

Selection of jury for murder trial expected to start soon

By RICHARD MASON Staff Writer

Jury selection in the murder trial of Raymond Wesley Mathis, 20, 1408 S. Dallas St., is expected to begin Monday in District Judge Vann Culp's 238th District Court, Midland County District Attorney Vern Martin said Friday.

Mathis was indicted by a Midland County grand jury July 18 in connection with the shooting death the previous day of U.S. Army Sgt. J.B. England, 39, of Marion, N.C.

Monday's scheduled jury selection follows an earlier ruling this week on a change of venue motion filed on behalf of Mathis by his attorney, Rudy Wall.

Judge Culp overruled the request, Martin said. The motion, filed Aug. 31, contended that pretrial publicity would prevent the defendant from obtaining a fair trial in Midland County.

Most pretrial motions have been ruled on in the case, and Martin said Friday he expected to begin the trial phase Monday.

Jurors are due to report in court at 9 a.m. Monday. Mathis was arrested July 18 at a roadblock west of Monahans following an informant's tip to the Midland County Sheriff's Department, officials said at the time.

He was indicted that same date for murder. According to news accounts, England was found fatally wounded near a van along Interstate 20, about 10 miles east of Midland, July 17.

Only slim chance for rain forecast

Forget your coat — but don't lose sight of your umbrella — if you're planning to be out and around town today.

Weathermen for the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport are predicting a "slim" 20 percent chance of thundershowers today, tonight and Sunday.

Otherwise, it should be warm and partly cloudy through Sunday. The high temperature today and Sunday is expected to be near 90. Overnight low is projected for the mid-60s.

Winds are expected to meander out of the southeast at 10-15 mph, the weatherman says.

The high Friday was 92. The overnight low Thursday was 65.

Record high temperature for this date is 99 in 1930 while the record low is a chilly 55 in 1957.

There was no precipitation recorded in the 24 hours ending Friday midnight. Total precipitation so far this month is .01 inch. Total precipitation so far this year is 12.21 inches.

He had been shot twice in the head with what law enforcement officials said at the time was a .22-caliber weapon.

England, who reportedly had completed a tour of duty in Korea, died later that day in Midland Memorial Hospital.

The Army sergeant reportedly was driving a friend's van from North Carolina to Fort Bliss near El Paso, where he was stationed, when the incident occurred.

Law enforcement officials also arrested a 17-year-old Midlander for questioning following the incident.

District Attorney Martin said Friday the last change of venue granted in Midland County that he could recall occurred about 15 years ago in the trial of a man convicted of murdering a wealthy Midland woman.

Carter calls for 'firm diplomacy'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter said Friday that "firm diplomacy, not panic and not exaggeration" is the way to deal with the presence of a Soviet combat unit in Cuba.

His national security adviser, Zbigniew Brzezinski, called Fidel Castro a Soviet puppet and said Russian military support "goes far beyond Cuba's defensive needs."

In a statement he read personally before reporters and television cameras, Carter said that if Moscow expects the United States to be concerned about its sensibilities, the administration has a right to insist that the Russians respect American interests and concerns.

Carter said the troops don't pose a military threat to the United States. He said the real issue is "the stationing of Soviet troops in the Western Hemisphere in a country which acts as a Soviet proxy" in Africa and elsewhere.

But he did not specifically demand immediate withdrawal of the troops, which he said may have been in Cuba for "quite a few years."

Carter said "intensified intelligence efforts" confirmed that the 2,000 to 3,000 troops are there.

He did not mention the pending strategic arms limitation treaty with the Soviet Union, which faces new trouble in the Senate because of the troops in Cuba.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, who publicly disclosed their presence, has said there is no prospect that the Senate will ratify the treaty while the Russian forces remain in Cuba.

Repeating the words of Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, Carter said, "We consider the presence of a Soviet combat brigade in Cuba to be a very serious matter...this status quo is not acceptable."

Carter said the purpose of the Soviet unit is not clear. "It is not an assault force," he said. "It does not have airlift or seagoing capabilities and does not have weapons capable of attacking the United States."

He said the unit includes about 40 tanks and some field artillery pieces. Carter said the administration is pursuing the issue with the Soviet Union. "Let me emphasize that this is a sensitive issue that faces our nation, all of us," he said. "And our nation as a whole must respond, not only with firmness and strength, but also with calm and a sense of proportion. This is a time for firm diplomacy, not panic and not exaggeration."

Brzezinski, in remarks delivered to a group of news editors earlier in the day, did not specifically mention the Soviet troop presence in Cuba. But he called Castro's contention that Cuba is not aligned with the Soviet Union "fundamentally ridiculous."

"Castro is a puppet of the Soviet Union and we view him as such," Brzezinski said. "Militarily, Cuba is entirely dependent on the Soviet Union. Soviet military support for Cuba goes far beyond Cuba's defensive needs, as witnessed by the fact that the large proportion of the military equipment supplied to Cuba is used by Cubans in combat abroad and far from Cuba."

Meanwhile, sources in the Soviet embassy in Washington said they are puzzled at the official response to the troop issue. The Soviet sources, who asked that they not be named, said the troops are advisers, not combat forces, and that they have been in Cuba for 10 years.

But Vance has said U.S. intelligence officials have only recently concluded that the troops are not a part of a contingent of 1,500 to 2,000 Soviet advisers or technical personnel known to be in Cuba.

Carter called Senate leaders to the White House for discussions of the Cuban situation before he presented his statement. Among those who met with the president were Church, Senate Democratic Leader Robert Byrd, Republican Leader Howard Baker and Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., ranking GOP member of the Foreign Relations Committee.

Several senators have proposed putting off the Senate's consideration of the arms control treaty with the Soviet Union until the troop issue is resolved.

Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., plans to seek a vote next week on a resolution to block Senate consideration of the treaty until all Soviet combat forces are removed from Cuba or the president certifies that any remaining troops "pose no threat to the security or foreign policy interests of the United States or of our allies."

Dissidents support book fair

MOSCOW (AP) - Soviet dissidents and underground writers jammed into a small reception room in a Moscow restaurant Friday night to swap toys and jokes with American publishers.

Physicist Andrei Sakharov presented Alexander Hoffman, board chairman of the Association of American Publishers Inc., with a book wrapped in brown paper.

"I know that my book has disappeared," Sakharov said, referring to its confiscation by Soviet censors. The book, "My Country and the World," was one of 44 U.S.-published titles seized by authorities before the second annual Moscow International Book Fair opened Wednesday.

Sakharov asked Hoffman to pass the autographed copy to Robert I. Bernstein, chairman of Random House, which published the book. Soviet authorities refused to grant Bernstein a visa to attend the fair.

"I hope the road back will be safer...and that it will reach him safely," Sakharov said.

All major Soviet writers who contributed to "Metropol," an underground collection of uncensored poems and stories circulated in Moscow earlier this year, were invited to the reception organized by the publishers.

Andrei Voznesensky, a state prize-winning poet, said: "We have been told (by Hoffman) that publishers cannot live without writers. But here in Moscow, we know there are many publishers who live perfectly well without writers."

The Americans told the guests their appearance was an "extraordinary outpouring of friendship" and an "act of courage."

Hoffman said that he would recommend his board "weigh heavily" any future American participation in Soviet book fairs because of the censorship and visa denial.

Historian Roy Medvedev said the American publishers should continue to attend and be tough in demanding open exhibitions. "It is better to participate and be strong," he said.

Speaking to a crowd gathered around a table littered with snacks and vodka and beer bottles, the historian said the American presence at the fair and support for Soviet writers makes the censor here "hold back a little."

American publishers said their exhibit, which will continue through Monday, is a total success. They said they were not prepared for the curiosity the Soviets have shown for the exhibit, which depicts American life as viewed by American authors.

Hoffman said he was "torn apart" when "a young man, he was Jewish, came up to me holding a book about Old Testament philosophy and asked if he could keep it."

Hoffman said that was not possible because it would deny other fairgoers a chance to view the book.

"He told me he was sorry for asking, but that he teaches Bible classes to friends at night and can't get such books," Hoffman said.

In an unusual dispatch, the Soviet news agency Tass reported the reception just 29 minutes before it began.

Tass said, "It is supposed that the supper will be attended by prominent book publishers of the U.S.A., representatives of American news agencies, as well as Soviet men of letters."

"It is surprising that among others, invitations were extended to people who have long compromised themselves by improper behavior. They include the recidivist and criminal A. Marchenko with his wife," Tass said.

Anatoly Marchenko, 42, an engineer who renounced his Soviet citizenship in an attempt to emigrate to the United States, attended with his wife.

Marchenko was sentenced to three years in labor camps in 1969 after publication in the West of his book, "My Testimony," about his years in post-Stalin labor camps. He had been banned from Moscow until last year.

U.S. to let Rhodesia send 'one or two' representatives

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Carter administration announced late Friday it will allow the government of Zimbabwe Rhodesia to send "one or two" representatives to Washington on an unofficial basis.

The announcement by the State Department was the closest step to diplomatic recognition for the government of Bishop Abel Muzorewa that the Carter administration has yet taken.

But State Department spokesman David Nall said that it had been made clear to the Muzorewa government that "these officials would have no diplomatic or official status and their presence would not constitute official or de facto recognition."

Nall said officials of the Muzorewa government had requested permission to send representatives to Washington "to insure that the U.S. public is adequately informed" about the new black-majority government.

"In response, we recently indicated that we would pose no objection to the presence of one or two individuals in Washington for that purpose," Nall said in a statement.

Nall said that the State Department "would not rule out" contacts between the Zimbabwe Rhodesians and the State Department.

The representation would be more direct than the current American presence in Salisbury, the capital of Zimbabwe Rhodesia. A U.S. diplomat stationed in Pretoria, South Africa, visits Salisbury periodically and operates from a hotel.

The plan drew immediate criticism from the director of TransAfrica, an organization of American blacks.

Ireland studies terrorist units

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) - Prime Minister Jack Lynch's government is considering setting up special anti-terrorist police units along the border with Northern Ireland to combat Irish Republican Army guerrillas, official sources reported Friday.

The Fianna Fail (Soldiers of Destiny) government also is expected to step up communications between Irish security forces and British military and police units along the rugged 300-mile frontier.

The moves followed a five-hour summit meeting between Lynch and British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher in London Wednesday after the funeral of Earl Mountbatten of Burma, a cousin of Queen Elizabeth II assassinated by IRA bombers aboard his yacht off the Republic Aug. 27.

The plans will be discussed by Lynch's cabinet later Friday, but are expected to be approved amid mounting tension in British-ruled Northern Ireland in the wake of the Mountbatten assassination and 18 British soldiers the same day.

The almost exclusively Roman Catholic IRA is fighting to end British rule in the Protestant-dominated province and reunite it with the overwhelmingly Catholic Irish republic.

Lynch's government has been increasingly criticized by Britain for not doing enough to combat the IRA in the republic, where British army commanders and militant Protestants opposed to reunification claim the guerrillas find sanctuary. Lynch hotly denies this.

But another key factor behind the Dublin administration's move is to try to head off threatened revenge raids into the Republic by so-called Protestant "Loyalist" terrorists.

However, Lynch's plans fall far short of the security measures Mrs. Thatcher sought to curb IRA raids launched from the republic and block gun-running routes into Northern Ireland.

Informed sources said that the Dublin effort apparently came out of some bargaining on security when the two premiers met. Mrs. Thatcher dropped her demand British troops be allowed to chase guerrillas into the republic in return for a bigger Irish security effort along the border.

The Irish government currently has some 2,500 troops—about one-third of its regular army—and about 2,000 police officers on the frontier. Irish officials say they would 10 times that number of men to effectively seal the frontier against guerrilla raids.

Lynch has long maintained that Britain should concentrate on finding a political solution to the Northern Ireland problem rather than push for tougher security.

Britain says a political initiative now is futile and that nothing can be achieved until the IRA, and their Protestant rivals, have been smashed.

Approval of grants advised

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN - The Criminal Justice Division Advisory Board Friday recommended Gov. Bill Clements approve grants totaling nearly $90,000 to West Texas planning agencies and Upton County.

The board recommended approval of a $43,711 grant for West Texas Council of Governments and a $44,637 grant for Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission.

Both grants would fund continued local criminal justice planning during fiscal 1980.

The Upton County grant would provide $975 for a jail monitor system.

Former Miss America remembers her reign

PITTSBURGH (AP) — "There she is, your ideal," Bert Parks will croon as the new Miss America beams from the runway Saturday night. But Jacquelyn Townshend wants you to know the lucky girl will be a fallible human being too.

Mrs. Townshend is entitled to her opinion. In 1963 the former Miss Ohio was the girl in Parks' famous song. "No, I don't feel like the ideal woman," she laughed during an interview Friday. "I feel like a busy housewife with two children, one of them taller than she is. Everyone has flaws; everyone has their own values."

But Mrs. Townshend, who reigned as Jacquelyn Mayer 16 years ago, still believes in the value of the pageant and in the young women who compete in it.

"I don't think anything has changed much," she said. "I think 'A' still has to represent the ideal. We see so many bad things around us that we need to see something that represents the good things about America."

Americans need a heroine to look up to, Mrs. Townshend said, but at the same time they need to know that the ideal is attainable by real people.

"I think people need to know we are human beings also," she said. "They need to know that we have failures, faults and problems. That's one reason I go around speaking."

A standard feature of her talks is her experience during and after her 1970 stroke, which left her paralyzed on her right side and unable to speak. She shows no signs of it today.

"I talk about what this was like, and many people come up to me afterward and tell me they're amazed," she said. "They say, 'Gee, you were Miss America and this could happen to you.'"

In all other visible respects, however, Mrs. Townshend has lived a storybook existence entirely in keeping with the ideal she portrayed.

In 1964 she married John Townshend, whom she had dated during her reign, used her Miss America scholarship to finish college at the University of Pittsburgh and settled down to a comfortable life in Meadow Lands-south of here.

Jennings, group honor Holly

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Twenty years ago Waylon Jennings was playing bass for Buddy Holly. Friday night, Jennings sang for Holly's memory.

Jennings, now a country music superstar, and members of Holly's original band, the Crickets, were the featured performers at a memorial concert to raise money for a statue of Holly and a "Walk of Fame" honoring West Texans who have made their mark in the music world.

Six thousand tickets were sold in advance of the concert, and promoters expected to sell the remaining 200 at the door.

Promoter Larry Corbin said the big advance ticket sale did not surprise him, despite local competition from season-opening high school football games, a Texas Tech street dance and a pep rally before Saturday's Tech-Southern California football game.

Corbin has commissioned Grant Speed of Linden, Utah, to do the sculpture. Speed was at the concert to show sketches and a clay model of the eight-foot, six-inch tall statue.

SHEINWOLD ON BRIDGE

Deceptive Defense

By Alfred Sheinwold

"You can fool most of the people most of the time," said P. T. Barnum. All the bridge table it's quite enough.

South took the clubs to discard a spade from dummy, cashed the ace of spades and ruffed a spade in dummy. He next led the ace of hearts, planning to crossruff hearts and spades.

It was a fine idea, but when South ruffed the second round of hearts West dropped the king. West, New York expert Phil Feldesman, could see that South was going to make the slam if allowed to carry out his plan.

RUFFS HIGH

South ruffed another spade in dummy and then ruffed a heart with the jack of diamonds. A foolish play, to be sure, but it took West's deceptive defense to lure South into this foolishness.

South ruffed his last spade with dummy's last trump and ruffed a heart with the king.

All would still be well if West overruffed, but Feldesman discarded a low trump, saving the A-8 to win the last two tricks behind South's Q-6 of diamonds.

There should be a fine play for game no matter how weak a hand partner has. Since you have only one ace, slam is unlikely unless partner can make the first move.

Unemployment rises sharply

WASHINGTON (AP)

The nation's unemployment rate rose sharply in August to 6 percent, the highest in more than a year as job layoffs spread through the economy in the face of the new recession, the government said Friday.

And in another report with bad news for consumers, the government said wholesale prices rose another 1.2 percent in August, with higher prices for food and fuel largely to blame.

of food," said one food industry expert who declined to be named.

IN ANOTHER development, four of the nation's largest banks raised their prime lending rates to a record 12 1/2 percent, in a direct response to actions by the Federal Reserve Board to drive up interest rates to help slow inflation.

The government reports showed that the recession is finally putting people out of work in sizeable numbers, while inflation continues out of control.

UNEMPLOYMENT was 5.7 percent in July. The bulk of the increased joblessness was among adult white males, said Janet Norwood, commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics. She said the latest jobs reports "reinforce the signals of weakening economic performance."

The government's Producer Price Index showed that food prices rose 1.2 percent at the wholesale level, reversing a four-month period when food prices had either declined or showed no change.

"It's certainly going to drive up the retail price it said.

Mrs. Norwood told the Joint Economic Committee of Congress that unemployment has increased 400,000 in the past two months, and that most of the job losers were adult men, especially whites.

The unemployment rate for whites increased to 5.3 percent in August, up from 4.9 percent in July. The unemployment rate for blacks and other minorities rose to 11 percent from 10.8 percent. The jobless rate for adult women increased to 5.9 percent from 5.5 percent.

THE FIGURES are adjusted for seasonal variations, so the statistics don't always accurately reflect the employment developments at any one point in time.

A separate survey based on actual employment data showed that 125,000 manufacturing jobs were lost in August, with cutbacks in electrical equipment, machinery, food processing, apparel and rubber and plastics industries.

While there is also "substantial evidence" of employment cutbacks in the auto industry, these layoffs have not yet shown up conclusively in the employment data, the department said, indicating they will show up in later months.

The rise in joblessness to 6 percent of the labor force was the highest since unemployment was 6.1 percent in July of last year. For the past year, the rate had fluctuated around 5.8 percent.

THE LABOR Department said unemployment increased by 300,000 to 6.2 million in August. "Much of this increase was due to a sharp jump in the number of persons on layoff,"

The administration had been predicting that its policies to slow the economy would push unemployment to 6.6 percent this year and 6.9 percent next year. However, an unofficial administration forecast said the jobless rate could hit 8.2 percent in 1980.

TOTAL employment in August was 96.9 million, a decline of 310,000 from July.

In its report on wholesale prices, the Labor Department said its index for so-called producer prices, formerly known as wholesale prices, stood in August at 217.3 of the 1967 average of 100. This means the goods had increased in price from $100 to $217.30 during the period. Wholesale prices were up 11.1 percent for the 12-month period ending in August. The 1.2 percent increase in food prices was led by higher prices for dried fruits and vegetables, rice, bakery products, dairy products, coffee, sugar and pork and poultry.

However, the price of beef and veal declined for the fourth consecutive month and egg prices also dropped significantly.

GRAMLEY SAID the increase in food prices surprised him because food prices had dropped sharply from April through June at the wholesale level and were unchanged in July. Higher food prices at wholesale usually find their way into increased retail prices in a matter of a few weeks at the most.

House votes postal subsidies

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House of Representatives voted overwhelmingly Friday to give the Postal Service billions of dollars in increased federal subsidies the agency says it doesn't want.

On a vote of 350-14, the House adopted a measure that also would abolish the postal service's board of governors set up in "reform legislation" Congress passed in 1970. Under the bill, the president would once again have authority to appoint the postmaster general.

Despite the ease with which it passed the House, the bill is expected to face a much more difficult time in the Senate.

The measure calls for increases in the current $920 million annual federal subsidy that goes to the Postal Service to $1.1 billion in the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1, $1.2 billion the following year and $1.3 billion in each succeeding year.

Under current law, the $920 million subsidy is scheduled to be trimmed by 10 percent annually, falling to $828 million next year and $460 million in 1984 and each year thereafter.

The measure approved by the House would amount to an increase in the subsidy — a direct appropriation from the U.S. Treasury to the Postal Service — of $2.98 billion over the next five years beyond what is currently planned.

An attempt by Rep. James Courter, R-N.J., to freeze the subsidy at the current level of $920 million annually was rejected on a vote of 242-125.

Backers of the increased funds said the money was necessary to avoid financial problems in the future as well as help slow the rise in postal rates.

Opponents said it was unwise to give the agency money it wasn't seeking.

A Postal Service spokesman declined comment on the House vote. But Postmaster General William F. Bolger told Congress earlier this year the increased subsidies are not needed.

Bolger revealed last week that the Postal Service expects to record a surplus for the fiscal year ending Sept. 30 that could exceed $400 million, a figure that includes the $920 million surplus. It would be the first such surplus since 1945.

Bolger predicted a return to red ink next year, however.

Until nine years ago, the postmaster general was appointed by the president. But Congress approved legislation in 1970 to create an 11-member board of governors, with responsibilities similar to those of a board of directors of a private company.

The board was given authority to appoint the postmaster general, one of several changes designed to remove politics from the operations of the Postal Service.

Odessa College names veteran's coordinator

ODESSA — Arthur Leal has been named veteran's coordinator at Odessa College.

Leal has served as director of the Veteran's Outreach Program with the American G.I. Forum in Odessa for the past three years.

He is a graduate of Lamesa High School and Sul Ross State University and has done post-graduate study at Texas Tech University.

Veterans interested in making application to go to school this fall should apply in Leal's office on the second floor of the Student Union Building at OC.

AAUW seeks names of 'Outstanding Girls'

The American Association of University Women will honor outstanding young women in both Midland high schools periodically this year.

Any girl attending a Midland high school is eligible to receive the award.

AAUW members, high school counselors and other members of the community who work with young people are urged to make nominations to the AAUW Outstanding Girl Committee.

Nomination forms may be obtained from Mrs. Jack Beshears, 2413 Culpepper, 683-2244.

WEST TEXAS HUNTING AND FISHING

Hunters mistaking Whitewings for Mourning Doves

Mourning dove season arrived last weekend and not only did the hunters show up in droves, but the doves arrived in numbers to furnish plenty of good shooting. Only trouble in Bexar County was that some of the nimrod had trouble distinguishing between doves and whitewings. Wardens confiscated about 50 to 60 whitewings.

Whitewings will be legal targets in designated Rio Grande Valley counties and along the border this Saturday and Sunday. Shooting in the north zone will continue through Oct. 21 and the South Zone will get under way for its fall run Sept. 22. Both zones will have winter seasons on mourning doves Jan. 5-13 in the north and Jan. 5-20 in the south.

FISHERMEN were on the move last week, which indicates the fishing was slow in favorite haunts. Most didn't find it much better at Oak Creek Lake. According to Ike Pate of Sportsman's Lodge, the "lake may be about ready for the full turnover, although it's a little early, but the unusual weather this summer could change the normal pattern."

The fish attracter reefs are scheduled to be constructed and placed in the lake this weekend. The project is under the supervision of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, and will be one of the first in a West Texas lake.

These reefs are common in East Texas where most lakes have an abundance of cover, yet the reefs still attract large numbers of fish. In WT, lakes that are almost void of cover due to changing water levels, the reefs should be of even more value to the fishermen. The reefs will be marked for easy identification, and will give newcomers and people who can't fish often enough to know the lake more fishing and less hunting time.

STRIPED BASS introductions have already revitalized freshwater fishing in many Texas lakes and streams, and recent biological surveys indicate the best may be yet to come. Dozens of the state's reservoirs have been stocked by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, and although growth rates vary from lake-to-lake and from year to year, no introduction so far has failed to have a positive impact on the fishery.

MEET THE MINISTER

Minister safe from the devil, no idle hands here

By ROGER SOUTHALL Staff Writer

Owen Cosgrove holds two degrees from Abilene Christian University, but he's never spent a Sunday in Abilene.

Why? Because during his student days he preached regularly at churches outside the city, thus was always away from Abilene on Sundays.

Cosgrove is pulpit minister of Midland's Westside Church of Christ, a post he has held for the last three years.

The Westside congregation formerly occupied a structure at the corner of West Illinois avenue and Midkiff Drive, but last year moved into a spacious new church home at 4410 W. Illinois Ave. The congregation has grown to the point where planning is now underway for a major expansion to the new building.

Cosgrove, a native of Oklahoma City, received a B.A. degree in Bible and Greek from Abilene Christian College (now Abilene Christian University), graduating with high honors.

As a college freshman, he began preaching at Robert Lee. Later, he earned his M.S. degree from the Abilene school and continued to preach at churches outside that city.

Cosgrove earned another master's degree, this one in administrative education and English, in 1964 from Sul Ross State University, Alpine.

He received his Ph.D. degree, with his major field of study being the teaching of English at the college level, from North Texas State University, Denton.

In addition to preaching, Cosgrove's ministry also involves the printing and publication of numerous religious tracts and booklets.

He has written TV scripts for the nationally-televised Herald of Truth series.

The minister held the Church of Christ Bible Chair at Sul Ross State University for several years, and he has taught Bible courses by extension for both Lubbock Christian College and Fort Worth Christian College.

Cosgrove has been preaching regularly for almost 30 years. During this time span, he also has directed numerous Bible camps and dozens of Bible schools, has spoken on numerous lecture programs and has conducted many gospel meetings in a number of different states.

He lists the three main areas of a minister's work as public preaching and teaching, visitation and counseling of troubled people.

"In our busy world," he says, "we often do not take the time to be patient and understanding with others. We should treat every person we meet with kindness, because everyone is bearing a burden of some kind."

As might be expected, he has profound respect for the Bible, stating that "in my doctoral studies, I read extensively from the great literature of the Western world. From the masterpieces of the Greeks, to the most popular literature of the present day, there is, in my judgment, no book that lifts the human spirit or causes man to want to be good, more than the holy scriptures. They are literature in a class all by themselves."

Cosgrove's wife, Sue, is a native of Robert Lee and ranked first in her graduating class at Sul Ross State University.

Later, she earned a master's degree in early childhood education and since that time has received post-graduate certification in that field.

Currently, she is supervisor of the pre-school and kindergarten department at Midland Christian School.

The Cosgroves are the parents of four children: Stephen and Tana are both senior students at The University of Texas at the Permian Basin, Linda is a freshman at Midland College, and Carl is a seventh grader at San Jacinto Junior High School.

The family residence is at 3214 Lockheed Ave.

Dr. Owen Cosgrove is the minister of Midland's Westside Church of Christ. The congregation first occupied its spacious new home at 4410 W. Illinois Ave. in 1978, and now is making plans to add a large Bible school wing to the structure. Cosgrove has been the church's minister for the last three years. (Staff Photo)

RELIGION IN THE NEWS

Hollowell United Methodist to hold revival

A revival is scheduled next week at Hollowell United Methodist Church, 400 S. Marshall St.

The ecumenical services will have pastors of several other churches as speakers, said the Rev. C. M. Minor, host pastor.

The revival series will begin Tuesday night and continue through Sept. 16. Services Tuesday through Friday nights will begin at 8 p.m., Minor said, preceded by congregational singing between 7:30 and 8. There will be no service on Sept. 15, and the concluding service on Sept. 16 will begin at 3 p.m.

The public has an invitation from the pastor and congregation of Hollowell Church to attend the special services.

The featured speaker at the opening service next Tuesday will be the Rev. Johnny Mitchell. On Wednesday night, the speaker is to be the Rev. Dan Johnson. Thursday's service will have the Rev. Robert Latham as guest speaker, while the Friday night event will have the Rev. Jerrell H. Sharp as speaker. Sharp is Seymour District superintendent of the United Methodist denomination.

The concluding service on the afternoon of Sept. 16 will have the host pastor, Minor, as the preacher. That service will be followed by a meal at the church.

Rev. Williams is new minister

The Rev. Mitchell Williams is the new minister-in-training at Midland's First United Methodist Church.

Williams and his wife, Jodi, arrived in town earlier this month and will be in the city until late next spring, when he completes his training period here. Williams will then return to Perkins School of Theology at Southern Methodist University to begin his fourth and final year of seminary training.

Williams will be officially installed as minister-in-training at the Midland church during the Sunday morning worship service.

Taylor to hold special revival

The Rev. Clayton Taylor of San Benito, formerly of Midland, will hold special revival services this weekend at Northside Church of the Nazarene, 424 Neely Ave.

The public is invited to attend the special services.

Baptists hold regional meeting

ODESSA — Representatives of Southern Baptist churches throughout this area will attend a regional Sunday school convention in Odessa

Sept. 18.

Members and staff from more than 135 churches in this region will be involved in the conference, to be held at Odessa's First Baptist Church, 709 N. Lee St.

Featured speaker at the general sessions of the conference will be Dan G. Kent, professor of religion at Wayland Baptist College, Plainview.

The convention will offer conferences on adult, youth, children and pre-school Sunday school classes. A special conference will be conducted for pastors, ministers of education, general directors and general officers of church Sunday schools.

Adult conference held at Glorieta

GLORIETA, N.M. — A conference for single adults held over the Labor Day weekend at Glorieta Baptist Assembly was attended by numerous Midland residents.

Vocalist Linda Flynt, teacher of a single adults Sunday school class at Midland's First Baptist Church, was featured soloist at the concluding service of the conference. The Atlantic Richfield employee was given a standing ovation by the 2,500 conference participants in attendance at the service.

Dr. Bill Hinson of New Orleans was keynote speaker for the conference, the theme of which was "Celebrate." The talented Christian actress Jeanette Clift George, who starred in the motion picture "The Hidden Place," presented the theme interpretation for each service.

The conference is held annually over the Labor Day holiday and is attended by single adults from throughout the Southwest and other sectors of the nation. Some three dozen persons were in attendance at the conclave from Midland.

Church initiates an early service

St. Paul United Methodist Church, 4501 Thomason Drive, is initiating an early morning worship service each Sunday.

The first of the early events will be held at 8:30 a.m. this Sunday, said the Rev. James C. Holman, pastor.

The early service will be in addition to the regular Sunday morning worship service beginning at 10:50 a.m. weekly, Holman said. He said the only difference between the two services is that the early morning event will have more congregational singing and the order of service will be slightly abbreviated.

The public will be welcomed at either service, Holman said.

Carter's church jumps into the political arena

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — President Carter's church has jumped into the political arena for the first time, but he won't be getting an endorsement from the Southern Baptist Convention's new political arm.

William Elder, director of the Christian Citizenship Development for the Southern Baptists' Christian Life Commission, says political involvement will be limited to social and economic issues.

The denomination's new political arm, the Nashville-based Christian Citizenship Corps, will not endorse or contribute to political candidates, he said Thursday.

"Political power can be used wrongfully," he said. "We want to be catalysts, not power brokers."

Elder, 36, has been putting together the organization since joining the Baptist staff last year.

Rev. Monsignor Fiorenza new San Angelo bishop

SAN ANGELO — The appointment of the Rev. Monsignor Joseph A. Fiorenza as bishop of the Roman Catholic Diocese of San Angelo has been announced from Rome.

The diocese encompasses 34 counties in a wide area of West Texas and includes within its boundaries such cities as Midland, Stanton, Big Spring, Odessa, Crane, Abilene, Fort Stockton, McCamey and Big Lake. The new church official, who will be consecrated and installed in ceremonies scheduled Oct. 25 in San Angelo's Sacred Heart Cathedral, fills the vacancy created by the Most Rev. Stephen A. Leven when he resigned last April because of ill health.

Announcement of the new appointment was made through the office of Archbishop Jean Jadot, apostolic delegate of the Vatican to the United States. Bishop-elect Fiorenza is a native of Beaumont and currently chancellor of the Diocese of Galveston-Houston, a post he has held since March, 1973. The 48-year-old bishop-elect has served in the Galveston-Houston diocese for 25 years.

Ordained to the priesthood in the spring of 1954 at LaPorte, the bishop-elect was named assistant pastor of Queen of Peace Church in Houston, serving from 1954 to 1957, after which he was named chaplain of St. Joseph's Hospital in Houston as well as professor of medical ethics at Dominican College in Houston. He held these dual posts until 1959.

He was administrator of Sacred Heart Co-Cathedral in Houston from 1959 to 1967, then served as pastor of St. Augustine Church in Houston from 1967 to 1969. From 1969 to 1972, he was pastor of St. Benedict Church in Houston.

He became pastor at Assumption Church in 1972 and also served as vice chancellor of the Galveston-Houston diocese before being named diocesan chancellor in March, 1973. In the diocesan administrative post, he fills many duties and serves as director of many functions within the diocese. These responsibilities include being diocesan director of social action, diocesan director of the Society for the Propagation of the Faith and director of the Campaign for Human Development, among others.

He is a member of the board of trustees of St. Mary Seminary and serves as treasurer of the Catholic Clerical Student Fund. He is a pro-synodal judge on the Diocesan Tribunal and serves as a member of the advisory board of Catholic Charities. He is on the board of trustees of St. Elizabeth's Hospital Foundation and a board member of the St. Mary's Orphanage. He is a member of the diocesan pension board and a member of the advisory board of the Sisters of the Incarnate Word.
