Professional shoplifters account for most of retail stores' loss

By MIKE SLATON
Staff Writer

The woman has been bitten, hit, knocked down, kicked and nearly run over by a car — all in the performance of her job.

She is not a stunt woman or a lady wrestler — she's the manager of one of Midland's finer womens' clothing stores.

But, at times, her job has resembled a roller-derby competition more than it has retail sales.

Shoplifting is the catalyst which brings physical violence into a store filled with $500 pantsuits and luxuriously expensive furs — between $10,000 and $14,000 worth of shoplifting in a six-month period, estimated the Midland store manager, who prefers to remain unidentified.

Only 20 percent of that loss can be blamed on the occasional or first-time shoplifter, the manager said.

"WE'RE BEING HIT by professionals... no doubt about it," she claimed.

"They come to the store take what they want and run," she said recently.

Frustration and anger was evident in her voice as she recounted some of her experiences with shoplifters.

There are several women who frequent the shopping center where the woman manages her store, she said.

"I think they are sisters, or related anyway," she said.

"The four women came into the store one day," the manager recalled, "and after a while, one of them took a fur coat off the rack, put it on and walked out the door."

ALARMS SOUNDED as the shoplifter walked through the security devices on either side of the door, but that didn't stop her, the manager recounted.

"She just ran," the manager said.

The manager ran around to the entrance of the shopping center and intercepted the shoplifter, she said.

But when she stopped the shoplifter, the woman became indignant and turned to walk away, the manager said.

Grabbing the coat the shoplifter was wearing turned out to be a mistake because the woman turned and bit her on the hand, she said.

A scuffle ensued and the manager was knocked to the ground and kicked, she said.

The shoplifter escaped only to return the stolen coat, torn in the scuffle, to the Odessa branch store where the price of the coat was refunded, the manager said.

A FEW WEEKS LATER, the same group of women, minus the woman who had taken the coat, returned to the store.

"When I asked them to leave they said I could not force them to, and if I bothered them I would get the same as last time only worse," the manager recalled.

"We know who they are, but what can we do," the manager said. "They know if they can get out of the store, the police will have a hard time unless they are caught with the stuff (stolen merchandise)."

The manager had more tales of shoplifters.

"Some of the people who come in here and shoplift are smartly dressed women with diamonds and everything," she said.

"Once I chased a shoplifter out of the store and she jumped into her Cadillac and drove off," the businesswoman said.

TRYING TO WRITE DOWN the license number of the car nearly ended with her being run down, she said.

"I'm not trying to be a hero — I'm just trying to make the store work," she said.

"I hate it so much — I work hard to make the store a success but when they steal, we lose not only the merchandise but the chance to sell it and make a profit."

"Shoplifting is the only problem we are having with the store," she said.

The store is not without protection. All clothing is tagged with a special magnetic tag that must be removed with a special tool before the item is taken from the store.

If the tag is not removed, special sensors set near the doors sound the alarm.

ACCORDING TO BILL Richards, president of the Pennsylvania company that manufactures the security system, the purpose of the alarm is to remove temptation.

The system is designed to stop the teen-ager with sticky fingers or the housewife tempted to help stretch the family budget, Richards explained.

As for the professional shoplifter, "they will either have the tools (to remove the tag) or will go elsewhere," he said.

The Midland store manager has been exposed to another type of professional — the professional that couldn't care less about alarms, the professional who takes and runs.

Mirrors have been bought to make corners of the store visible to sales personnel, the manager said.

And, at the suggestion of the Midland Police Department's crime prevention unit, she is considering installing closed-circuit television cameras to monitor the store.

INSTALLING MIRRORS in hidden corners, removing counters that block a sales clerk's view of the store, installing monitoring cameras, even the hiring of a security guard were discussed with the crime prevention unit.

At a future date the crime prevention unit will talk with the store employees to show them ways to spot and help prevent shoplifting.

Cost for all the anti-shoplifting equipment will add about three cents on the dollar to everything sold in

Officials meet on Cuba issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration plotted its next move in the issue of Soviet troops in Cuba at a high-level White House meeting this morning.

White House spokesman said Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski, Defense Secretary Harold Brown and CIA Director Stansfield Turner met for an hour to discuss Monday's two-hour discussion between Vance and Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin.

At the conclusion of this morning's meeting, Brzezinski reported to President Carter, but White House officials would offer no details, in keeping with the administration decision to keep the substance of the negotiations as secret as possible.

Dobrynin came and left through the State Department basement Monday, avoiding reporters waiting on the street. The Soviet embassy had nothing to say.

Dobrynin and Vance were to meet at least once more, perhaps as early as this afternoon but more likely on Wednesday.

On the propaganda front, a front-page editorial in Pravda, the Soviet communist party organ, denied the U.S. assertion that a Russian combat unit is in Cuba.

The editorial charged that the entire troops issue was a propaganda campaign cooked up by the Carter administration to embarrass Cuba during the Havana summit meeting of non-aligned nations, which ended over the weekend.

Pravda also said American opponents of the strategic arms limitation treaty, now before the Senate, have seized on the issue in hopes of defeating the pact.

Two of those opponents said in television interviews today that ratification of the treaty could be held up until the Soviets withdraw the brigade and other military presence from Cuba.

Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, said on NBC's "Today" show that the Senate vote should be postponed, "even if it takes up to a year."

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., saying "the Soviets are building a fortress Cuba," told an interviewer on CBS's "Tuesday Morning" program that the United States could change its relationships with the Soviets in response and "it means SALT is down the tube."

The editorial insisted that the Soviet troops had been in Cuba for 17 years as advisers to the Cuban army, training it in the use of Soviet weapons. "Neither the number nor the functions of the said Soviet personnel have changed throughout all these years," the editorial said.

"All contentions about the arrival in Cuba of 'organized Soviet combat units' are groundless."

Furthermore, the editorial insisted, the troop presence was "an inalienable right of two sovereign states. Attempts to restrict this right are in crying contradiction with accepted norms of international intercourse and are absolutely unfounded."

Deputies found three sizes of bullets in suspect's car

By BILL MODISETT
Staff Writer

An inventory of a vehicle allegedly related to the shooting death of 39-year-old Army Sgt. J.B. England July 18 revealed the presence of three different calibers of bullets, a Midland County deputy testified today.

Raymond Wesley Mathis, 20, of Midland is on trial in Midland's 238th District Court on a charge of murder in connection with England's death. Testimony got under way Monday and resumed about 10 a.m. today.

Several spent .22-caliber cartridges were found in the vehicle, Sgt. Pat Fuller testified today.

He said that on July 20 he conducted an inventory of the vehicle impounded July 18, when Mathis was arrested in Ward County, and also found .22-caliber, .25-caliber and .38-caliber live rounds. Some of the bullets were solid points, he said, and some were hollow points.

Fuller said he did not inventory the car immediately following the arrest of Mathis because of further investigation he had to do in the case and because of the weather — heavy rain — on July 19.

THE DEPUTY ALSO testified that he learned the vehicle driven by Mathis actually was owned by the defendant's father, Sterling Mathis.

Earlier this morning, out of the presence of the jury, Judge Vann Culp ruled that the arrest of Mathis July 18 in Ward County was a legal arrest.

Testimony had indicated Mathis was arrested at a roadblock, but that he was not arrested on a warrant.

Mathis was taken to Monahans, where a peace justice informed him of his rights. Fuller testified, and he was again informed of his rights by Midland Peace Justice Robert Pine after officers returned Mathis to Midland. Midland County sheriff's deputies Monday detailed the investigation of England's death and the subsequent arrest the same day of Mathis.

England, an Army sergeant on his way to Fort Bliss from Marion, N.C., was shot in the early morning hours July 18 on Interstate 20 about 10 miles east of Midland. He died shortly before 6 a.m. that day at Midland Memorial Hospital.

Mathis, indicted in connection with the case, has pleaded innocent to the charge.

DEPUTIES BENNY Fishback and Jim Phipps testified Monday afternoon they went to the scene of the shooting about 4:30 a.m. that morning and located the van driven by England.

England, his face and shirt front splattered with blood, was lying beside the driver's side of the van, and he was still alive, they testified.

A citizen's band radio microphone dangled from the cord on the driver's side, indicating England had tried to get help for himself after being shot. But England could only talk to the officers by means of sign language. He signaled to them, they testified, that he had been shot 20 minutes earlier.

Testimony Monday also centered on evidence found at the scene. Deputy Fishback said he found what he believed to be a slug from a bullet in the floor of the driver's seat of the van.

The deputies said a hole in the driver's side window of the van appeared to have been created by a bullet.

SGT. FULLER TESTIFIED that he and Lt. John Kleinbans arrested Mathis about 10:30 a.m. July 18 on Interstate 20 near Monahans after following him at high speeds in their vehicle. The deputies had gone there, Fuller indicated, looking for a vehicle matching the description of the one Mathis was driving.

After stopping Mathis' car with a roadblock, Fuller said, they placed him under arrest and found a loaded

I have a friend in another city who has to have blood transfusions periodically. Is it possible for me to donate blood here and have it credited to her account in another hospital? — F.M.

ANSWER: Ann Shaunessy, donor room secretary of the Blood Bank at Midland Memorial Hospital, says this is possible in some cases.

When you donate blood and ask that it be credited to another hospital, Ms. Shaunessy writes a letter to the hospital and informs them of the availability of the blood.

The other hospital will notify Midland if the blood can be accepted. Sometimes, the blood used has already been replaced and is not needed, and will not be credited.

Blood transactions are handled through a "clearing house" of the American Association of Blood Banks, of which the MMH Blood Bank is a member.

The city has put an unwanted Dumpster in my front yard. Can you do anything about it? — Barbara

ANSWER: Minutes after we checked with the city of Midland's Operations Department, the Dumpster was removed from your yard. It had been placed there by mistake. A quick radio message solved the problem.

For general information, Mike Butler with the Operations Department said that some blocks, such as the 4600 block of Princeton Street, do not have alleys. In situations such as this, the smaller Dumpsters are placed on the city's right of way in the front, with the length occupied by the Dumpster divided between the two houses involved.

Suspect arrested in connection with death of local woman

By MIKE SLATON
Staff Writer

A 29-year-old unemployed laborer was charged with capital murder today in connection with the weekend death of an elderly Midland woman, according to Midland Police Chief Wayne Gideon.

Herbert Lee Minor, no address available, was charged about 10:15 a.m. today before Peace Justice Robert Pine, who set bond at $150,000.

The body of Ardesha Wortham, 73, 303 S. Calhoun St., was found inside her home Sunday about 9:55 a.m. after police were summoned to the scene by her son.

The son told police he became concerned when Mrs. Wortham did not answer her door or phone. He called police after finding all doors to the house locked and a side window broken, officials said.

Gideon said today Mrs. Wortham's home in southeast Midland appeared to have been "forcefully entered and pilfered."

Preliminary autopsy reports indicate death resulted from blows to the head, said Gideon, adding that Mrs. Wortham also had suffered broken ribs.

There were no other visible signs of injury, and the preliminary reports indicated she had not been sexually molested, said Gideon.

Burglary is being considered as the motive that led to the death of Mrs.

Valiant Norway

By WILLIAM RANDOLPH

OSLO — This 900-year-old capital of Norway was the final stop on our Scandinavian trip, about which I hope you have been reading in yesterday's and Sunday's Midland Reporter-Telegram.

This valiant little nation in the Land of the Midnight Sun, which was occupied by Hitler's army in 1940 and abandoned its traditional neutrality after the war to join the NATO alliance, is America's strongest ally in Scandinavia.

IT IS SAID THAT DENMARK FEARS GERMANY, FINLAND FEARS RUSSIA, SWEDEN CANNOT DECIDE WHOM IT FEARS THE MOST, AND NORWAY FEARS NOBODY.

Prime Minister Olav Nordli, in an hour-long interview, stressed the importance of the West in maintaining a balance of military power with the Soviet Union. He warned that without this balance, there will be no hope of ending the arms races or having "real detente."

"However," he added, "I urge the superpower leaders to find this balance on a lower, and not a higher level."

The prime minister told us he would be willing to allow the United States to establish electronic listening posts in Norway to verify Soviet compliance with the SALT II treaty if Moscow agreed to it. This is the same position our NATO ally Turkey took, but — as expected — Moscow did not agree. Nor is it likely to in the case of Norway.

However, the prime minister clearly indicated Norway will make any information it gets from its own highly sophisticated listening system available to the U.S. through NATO. I don't think we have the same understanding with Turkey. "Everyone knows this technology is a part of the NATO defense," he said. "I am sure these listening posts mean very much for the maintenance of the military balance and low tension between the United States and the Soviet Union."

In discussing the economic outlook for the free world in the 'Eighties, the Norwegian leader said he foresees a very difficult period for the United States and the other western industrialized nations during the early years of the next decade. He believes it will be difficult to maintain economic growth because of the high cost of oil and the possibility of lower production. He doubts the development of alternative energy sources, such as nuclear power, will have much impact before the end of the '80s.

"THE MOST IMPORTANT question is whether it will be possible to achieve closer international cooperation in the field of energy, trade and economic growth," he added.

"About 20 million people in the western industrialized countries are unemployed. We cannot wait ten years to provide jobs for them. This is one of the greatest social problems facing us. Failure to solve it will create a most serious threat to our democratic societies."

With only four million people, Norway has one of the smallest populations of any European country. The self-discipline and will to work hard of the Norwegian people is considered largely responsible for its remarkable economic and social achievements since it gained its independence from Sweden at the turn of the century. It was then the poorest country in western Europe. Even before the discovery of its vast North Sea oil and gas reserves in the early 'Seventies, Norway had developed one of the world's highest living standards with industrialization powered by abundant hydroelectric energy.

Although Norway's growth is expected to be slowed by the recession now beginning to affect the western industrialized world, its future economic stability should be assured for many years to come by its oil resources.

The welfare system operates in Norway just about the same as it does in Denmark, with similarly high taxation to pay for it and with little opportunity for the average individual to become wealthy.

ALTHOUGH THE POLITICAL system is basically socialistic — or "egalitarian," as they call it — the management of the economy is conservative. While the government controls large scale investments and owns 40-50 percent of the shares of Norwegian industries, there has been little direct nationalization. These socialist-ruled countries have learned you have to have some capitalistic free enterprise to make the economy prosper.

High taxes make individual saving and investment difficult. The minimum income tax is 30 percent, and the average worker's tax is over 40 percent. People resort to a good deal of bartering to evade taxes. You can get your house painted in return for goods or services rather than cash.

The minimum salary of a young worker is the equivalent of about $10,000. The cheapest tiny car costs $7,000. A Volvo cost $15,000 and gas is $2.20 a gallon. A wage and price freeze in effect since last fall is credited with keeping inflation under 5 percent, one of the lowest levels in Europe.

Because of the high taxes, workers are more interested in fringe benefits than higher wages. They are now demanding five weeks' vacation.

In explaining the reasons for the Norwegian welfare state system, Prime Minister Nordli said:

"WHEN I WAS YOUNG I lived in a country where taxation was not as high as it is today, but under the then existing system it was impossible for my generation to get a good education. Nor was it possible for people without work and old people to be properly taken care of."

"When, after World War II, we resorted to high taxation to provide free education, free health and old age care, we were told we would ruin the chances for economic development. But we were able to build up Norway from one of the poorest countries in Europe to an industrialized nation with one of the world's highest standards of living."

"It is not just a question of high taxes. It is a question of the way in which you mobilize your resources to build up your community. One of our most important resources is skilled labor, which we developed by providing free education. By developing and strengthening the welfare system in Norway, we have strengthened the economy."

Since Norway has done so well under the welfare state system, and its people seem so satisfied with it, I asked why workers from poorer countries don't flock there. The answer, I discovered, was that Norway is virtually closed to foreign emigration.

While there appears no doubt the socialist welfare state system had provided a better, easier and more secure life for Scandinavia's lower working classes, the price has been a limitation of the kind of individual freedom and enterprise that developed the U.S.A. into the world's greatest and most affluent power.

We were told by our own diplomatic observers in the Scandinavian capitals that socialism has led to a conformity, complacency and reliance on the government running your life that has tended to make young people less ambitious, weakening the instinctive drive that throughout history has inspired the advancement of mankind. I don't want to see that happen in our country.

Herbert Lee Minor

Suspect charged with murder

Wortham, Gideon said. "At this point in the investigation we have not determined whether anything was taken from the home," the police chief added.

Minor was arrested about 7:57 p.m. Sunday by Midland police officer Terry Lowe in connection with an alleged traffic violation, officials said.

According to police records, Lowe stopped Minor while he was operating a vehicle and found the man didn't have a valid operator's license.

Minor was in City Jail at the time of his arrest in connection with Mrs. Wortham's death, Gideon said.

Gideon said his department became aware of Minor's possible connection with the case Monday.

Sgt. Ed Ward and Detective Jerry Compton, the police officers investigating the case, today received praise from Gideon.

The police chief said both men had been "working night and day" since Mrs. Wortham's body was found. "I'm very pleased — they did a marvelous job," said Gideon.

was jammed. Is there any way a person can sell food on the school grounds during the noon hour? — Mrs. M. O.

ANSWER: The principal's office at Lee High School says the only two times during the year when groups or persons other than authorized personnel of the Midland Independent School District are permitted to sell food on the school grounds is for the Choir Boosters and Band Boosters fundraising events.

I have lived in other cities where I could get television reception with "rabbit ears" without having to have an antenna on the roof of my house. Can I get any stations in Midland with "rabbit ears."

ANSWER: According to a Midland television service center, you can receive Channel 2 with rabbit ears, possibly Channel 7, but not Channel 9. There is an antenna on the Wilco Building, but that's for Channel 6, only.

Several friends of mine have told me about a book on the subject of law and the rights of individuals written so that it could be understood by the average person. Do you know the name of the book? — D.W.

ANSWER: No, I don't believe we have the exact title to the book to which you are referring.

However, a Midland book store has such simplified books on the subject of law as "Texas Law in Layman's Language," "How to Live and Die with Texas Probate" and "The How in Parliamentary Procedure."

If you are unable to obtain the title of the book from "friends," it might be beneficial to visit the Midland County Public Library to check on such books.

Trial under way in GI's death

.22-caliber magnum rifle in the driver's seat.

A hitchhiker named Robert Crane also was present in the car when Mathis was stopped, Fuller testified.

Fuller also testified he was at the hospital prior to and at the time of Sgt. England's death.

A piece of a bullet was recovered from the sergeant's left arm, he said, and England had three wounds in his face, two in the chin area and one above the mouth and to the left of the nose.

Judge Pine ordered an autopsy in the case, Fuller testified.

Deputy Fishback had testified under questioning by Assistant District Attorney Charles Seltzer that a search of England's body revealed no firearms. Only weapon present in the van was a pocketknife and carrying case, he said.

QUESTIONED BY defense attorney Rusty Wall, Fishback also said a search of England's body revealed a wallet containing his driver's license and $214 in cash.

A search of the immediate area of the van revealed no spent cartridge casings, deputies testified, but glass from the broken van windows stretched 130 to 180 feet along Interstate 20.

When deputies arrived at the scene, the engine of the van was still running, they testified, and the flashers were blinking.

Midland stores battle shoplifting the store, the manager said.

"Everyone pays for it," she said. The store she manages is not alone in its fight against shoplifters.

A Midland discount store employs one full-time as well as two part-time security persons. The store is searching for a third part-time security person, according to the manager.

Walking the floor, acting like a customer, the security people watch for shoplifters.

There is no profile for a shoplifter, the security people said. The shoplifter seems to come from all walks of life, they said.

Some shoplifters don't seem to hide what they are doing, they said.

"Others are so obvious in their attempt to hide it that they are caught," a security guard said.

There were 378 people caught in a one-year period at the discount store, one of the security guards said.

"This month, I've caught nine," added another security guard.

"An interesting thing," one of security people said, "almost everyone has the money in their pocket to pay for the item stolen."

Cooler morning weather forecast

Autumn seems to be settling over the Midland area in a gradual way.

Cool early mornings and milder afternoons are on tap for the Permian Basin through Wednesday, according to the weathermen at the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport.

The weathermen are calling it fair through Wednesday with no important temperature changes.

A high temperature near 90 has been projected for Wednesday, while the overnight low should dip near 60, according to the weather bureau.

Winds are expected to blow from the southeast at 5 to 10 mph tonight. The high Monday was 90 degrees, well below the record 100 set in 1964. Overnight low Monday night was 60, much warmer than the 50 mark recorded in 1935.

There was no recorded precipitation during the last 24 hours. Total precipitation this month is .01 inch, total for the year is 12.21 inches.

Housing Finance Corp. is now official

By LANA CUNNINGHAM Staff Writer

Midland Housing Finance Corp. tied up loose ends Monday afternoon in becoming an official non-profit corporation.

The group's charter was approved Wednesday by the Secretary of State's office. During Monday's session bylaws were approved by the five-member panel and officers were selected.

Harry Clark, who also serves as chairman of the Housing Authority of the City of Midland, was selected as chairman and president of MHFC. Don Hellinghausen of the Midland Housing Association was selected vice president; Fred Kester, secretary, and Gene Abbott, treasurer. Arden Grover, the fifth member, will serve as a director on the board.

Term of office, as listed in the bylaws, will be for two years, with the maximum length to serve being six years.

According to an interpretation by City Attorney Joe Nuessle, the corporation doesn't come under the jurisdiction of the Texas Open Meetings Law.

Home office will be listed as 700 W. Scharbauer Drive, location of Hillcrest Manor which is administered by the Housing Authority.

The non-profit corporation is being established to administer a Single Family Mortgage Revenue Financing Program. Bills passed by the 1979 State Legislature forbid a housing authority from conducting the program, but would allow a non-profit financing group to carry out the plan.

The Housing Authority, which initiated the program for Midland, requested the Midland City Council approve the MHFC. Three members — Abbott, Clark and Kester — and two from Midland Housing Association — Grover and Hellinghausen — were appointed to this board.

The program calls for the corporation to sell revenue bonds in the name of the city. The money would be administered to low and moderate income families for home loans at an interest rate less than 8 percent. A feasibility study on Midland shows the maximum household income is $33,400 and the top number of bonds that could be sold is $39 million. Director Gene Abbott at Monday's session suggested the maximum household income be dropped, and the board discussed setting it at $27,500. This would still allow the city to receive an AA rating on the bonds — which the City Council said is one stipulation for the program to be started.

Clark noted that 17 Texas cities are working on getting this loan program started, but Midland appears to be ahead of the rest with Odessa a close second.

With the organizational details of MHFC finalized, the next move is to obtain participation from the city's mortgage firms and savings and loan associations.

Clark said sales and service agreements are being prepared for the financiers to consider in making their decisions about participation.

DPS man testifies in trial

COLORADO CITY, Texas (AP) — A Department of Public Safety trooper Monday described the grisly scene he encountered at the scene of a school bus-oil field servicing truck collision to jurors hearing the involuntary manslaughter trial of William Clarence Dixon Jr., who was a truck driver for Cardinal Surveys Co. in Odessa at the time of the accident.

Allen Arnwine, the first witness to testify at the trial, said Monday bodies and debris were strewn through the intersection near Roby. Five students died and 20 persons were injured in the Dec. 8 accident.

Dixon faces three counts of involuntary manslaughter. If convicted, he could be sentenced to 10 years in jail and a $5,000 fine.

Arnwine told the six-man, six-woman jury a flashing warning signal suspended above the intersection "was working when I got there."

But defense attorney Malcolm Shulz of Abilene objected when Arnwine testified the school bus was traveling west on U.S. 180 and that Dixon's truck was traveling south on Farm-to-Market Road 611.

Shulz said Arnwine was not a witness to the accident. District Judge Weldon Kirk sustained the objection.

Earlier, Shulz objected when Assistant District Attorney Rusty Carroll told prospective jurors they "should not show sympathy toward the defendant simply because he is charged in the deaths of four or five kiddos."

Kirk advised jurors to disregard the remark but refused to declare a mistrial.

The trial has been postponed four times, and was moved to Colorado City from Roby on a change of venue.

The bus carried the McCatley High School girls' and boys' basketball teams, and since the crash 16 civil lawsuits totaling $14 million have been filed by families of the victims.

State traffic records show Dixon was convicted of 13 traffic violations in the four years before the collision.

After the trooper's testimony, Kirk recessed the trial until 9 a.m. today. He ordered jurors not to read or listen to news accounts of the trial and instructed attorneys not to discuss the case.

Terrorists arrested

MADRID (AP) — Police in Barcelona and Zaragoza arrested 13 members, including top leaders, of Grapo, a Maoist terrorist organization blamed for more than a dozen assassinations this year, the Interior Ministry announced.

Ector County decides on appraisal district

ODESSA — Ector County Commissioners Monday voted to join with other local taxing districts in a countywide appraisal district.

A new state law which becomes effective Jan. 1 requires all taxing districts other than the county to join in a single appraisal district to assure uniform assessment.

The district is to be managed by a five-member board selected by city, county and school officials.

Appraisals will be required to be at 100 percent of current market value as of Jan. 1, but those appraisals won't be used until Jan. 1, 1982.

Joining the taxing appraisal district was approved by all commissioners with County Judge Gary Watkins abstaining.

As we do every year at this time, Exxon is building heating oil inventories to help meet winter needs. At the same time, we are trying to provide an adequate supply of gasoline for our customers.

Crude oil, from which both heating oil and gasoline are refined, remains in tight supply. This limits our ability to make more heating oil unless we make less gasoline.

Drivers are using less gasoline now than they were last year. That has helped us bring our heating oil inventories to about the same level as a year ago. But both continued restraint in driving and careful use of heating oil this winter remain important.

HE STILL SEES BUNNIES

Distributed by L.A. Times Syndicate

The right to life

United Nations and International Red Cross officials returning from visits to Cambodia are providing new evidence of the famine spreading across the tormented land. Their reports underscore the urgent need for an international effort without which half of Cambodia's remaining population of five million persons may starve.
Residents of the capital city of Phnom Penh display the unmistakable physical symptoms of prolonged malnutrition and hunger. Children have the vacant, staring eyes and distended stomachs last brought to world attention in starving Biafra a decade ago. Hospitals are crammed with emaciated Cambodians whose ills are plainly exacerbated by hunger.
The best available estimates are that at least 80 percent of Cambodia's once-rich rice lands lie uncultivated — the cumulative result of a civil war, the revolution imposed by the ousted Pol Pot government, and most recently, the destruction which attended the Vietnamese invasion. Unless a massive relief operation is begun very soon, even these horrors will be eclipsed by famine.
The keys to averting this new tragedy lie in Hanoi and Moscow. The client regime installed in Phnom Penh by the invading Vietnamese army last December takes its orders from Hanoi which, in turn, is increasingly dependent on the Soviet Union. At the moment, Red Cross and U.S. officials in Hanoi and Phnom Penh are pleading for permission to start a famine relief operation. The Vietnamese and their Cambodian clients seem to be holding out for complete control of the relief program, partly because it would imply de facto recognition of the Phnom Penh government.

But based on what they have seen in Cambodia and what they sense in Hanoi, U.N. and Red Cross representatives are understandably convinced that only a relief program administered by political neutrals will provide assistance to those Cambodians in need and not simply to those in power. After all, Hanoi and the Phnom Penh regime have already demonstrated their cynicism by rebuffing international efforts to feed starving Cambodians in areas controlled by the remnants of the ousted Pol Pot government.
By some estimates, three million Cambodians have perished since the country's fall to Communist forces in 1975. If perhaps two million more are to escape starvation, Vietnam and the Soviet Union must be subjected to irresistible political pressure from every government which recognizes the most basic human right of all — the right to life itself.

The system is target

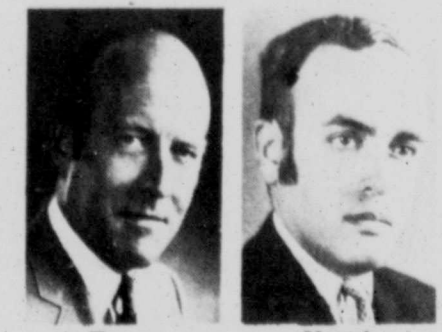

Two FBI agents were shot to death at El Centro, Calif., by a political activist who seemed to have chosen that irrational means of protesting his grievances against society.
Across the nation, in Cleveland, Ohio, another FBI man was killed on the same day by an escaping robber and rapist.
The two events were unrelated except as they demonstrate the deadly hazards in a lawman's life.
J. Robert Porter and Charles W. Elmore, federal agents with exemplary records and promising careers, were shot without warning in their El Centro office by a young man whose political activities had brought him to FBI attention in the past. A suicide note left by the killer, who also took his own life, indicated that the system rather than the two FBI agents was the target at which he had aimed. The note said, in effect, that there was nothing personal in his terrible act.

But to the agents' colleagues and other law enforcement people everywhere, the message was clear enough, and very personal — you are a target, not for what you do, but for what you are.
The tension engendered by the knowledge that lawmen are in perpetual jeopardy as representatives of society becomes a lamentable but inevitable presence in every confrontation with an armed citizen. And one may only ponder the extent to which this tension shapes the outcome.
As the killings contribute to a rising cadence of senseless violence, society is the ultimate victim.

INSIDE REPORT:

U.S. permits Soviets to violate test-ban without protest

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Behind the lurid drama of the SALT II debate, the Soviet Union has been engaged in intensive underground weapons testing with indications of repeated violations of two test-ban treaties, one limiting the size of weapons tested, the other prohibiting "venting" of radioactive fallout into the atmosphere.
This hyperactive Soviet testing, the most intensive in years, has been overlooked in the vigorous Carter administration effort to ratify the new Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty (SALT II). But there are growing indications that the Kremlin may be systematically cheating in the rush to complete a vast "data base" for building new and better nuclear explosives before U.S.-Soviet agreement on the comprehensive test-ban treaty (CTB) now being negotiated.
A key issue here is U.S. trust of its Russian negotiating partner, a trust that President Carter's administration had seemed particularly inclined to accept.
Lack of healthy suspicion was the crux of the tragic failure of the U.S. to talk privately to Ludmila Vlasova, the Soviet ballerina whose husband defected and who might have done so herself if she had had the chance. Alerting Soviet diplomats here in advance to the fact that the U.S. wanted that private talk made it impossible. She was spirited off to an Aeroflot IL-62 by Soviet secret police.
The Soviet's record of actual and attempted cheating is unambiguous, and their most active underground test program in 15 years, a June explosion is believed to have had the force of 400 kilotons. The U.S. has never announced the July test.

Soviet refusal to permit on-site inspection by seismic sensor — and the imprecision of distant seismographs — make it virtually impossible to prove violations. This is true despite sensitive Swedish seismic instruments that pick up and record most Soviet tests. But Soviet violations of the 1963 treaty can be proved by the empirical evidence of dust particles collected in the atmosphere over Japan, Korea and other areas.
"It is intolerable that the U.S. should permit the Soviets to cheat at the margin without even raising a protest," one specialist told us privately. Yet, no violation has yet been charged under either the 1974 treaty (which sets the ceiling on explosive power) or the 1963 Limited Test-Ban Treaty (which prohibits venting).
The farthest the Carter administration has ventured is to "raise a question" with Moscow about one of the tests this summer and three of the 1978 tests. The predictable Soviet response: nyet, and you can't prove we did. Furthermore, Moscow is armed with a strange concession it got from the U.S.: two tests a year may "slightly" exceed the limit.
What makes this produce sleepless nights for some U.S. officials is its implication in the nightmarish world of atomic weaponry. The data base now being accumulated by the Soviets, with a test program perhaps probably be used to perfect warheads for the new crop of post-SALT II long-range missiles.

Thus, if the comprehensive test-ban — a near-total ban on all tests for a period of perhaps five years — is agreed on anytime soon, the Soviets could leapfrog U.S. technology by transplanting its test data into new types of higher-yield, lower-weight weapons with the U.S. powerless to catch up.
The Soviets have not pyramided their testing program to today's awesome level just for fun. The testing of warheads that violate treaties has its grim purpose: to surpass U.S. weapons technology. Refusal of the U.S. to challenge Moscow out loud on its presumed violations thus becomes dangerously counterproductive.
Worse, it assures the very gains in Soviet weaponry that the president insists will be curbed by SALT II — thus undermining what he regards as his most important mission.

fact joined Arab extremists in denouncing the Israeli-Egyptian peace treaty.
The United States has declared its official neutrality in the Moroccan conflict. And a still-secret accord dating to 1960 stipulates that Morocco may not use U.S.-supplied arms outside its own borders.
But it's no secret that Hassan has used American aircraft and other weapons in his war with the Polisario guerrillas. For their part, the rebels get much of their arms from the Soviet Union, by way of Libya and Algeria. So a classic Cold War confrontation of power and prestige is shaping up in the western Sahara.
The two-fold danger in this situation was spelled out for a congressional committee recently by William Quandt, a fellow at the Brookings Institution. Because of its role as an arms conduit to the rebels, he explained, Algeria's dependence on the Soviet Union for arms may increase. And if the United States lifts its over-stretched restrictions on Morocco's use of weapons we supply and offers all-out aid to Hassan, the stage may be set for a major East-West confrontation.
Complicating matters, the Polisario guerrillas this summer carried the war into undisputed Moroccan territory, giving Hassan technical justification for using his American arms against the guerrillas. But American analysts agree that a military solution is unlikely, because both sides are backed by powerful outside governments.
Each day the western Sahara war drains about $1 million from Morocco's treasury, and threatens the sta-

ORLANDO, Fla. — Some liberals have urged universities and religious organizations which own stock in companies doing business in South Africa to sell the stock.
They think it is immoral to support a corporation which deals with a government that practices a form of racial segregation. I have never heard of these liberals, however, urging anyone to sell stock of corporations which deal with the Soviet Union and Red China or with the communist dictatorships in eastern Europe.
The communist nations do not commit the sin of racial segregation. They merely practice human segregation, segregating their non-free victims from the rest of the world and executing and imprisoning people who dare dissent as nonchalantly as you step on an ant.
One Spanish newspaper recently estimated that the Soviet regime has murdered 66.7 million people since 1917 and that the Red Chinese have killed 64 million in the much shorter time they've been in power. I can't vouch for the newspaper's figures, but I don't know of any responsible student of communism who questions the fact that both regimes number their victims in the millions.
Yet American corporations do business with the butchers, even to the point of selling them high technology items which clearly have a military value. Their standard excuse is that the U.S. government approves of the transaction and that is true. I just happen to think the U.S. government is wrong.

Some of their stockholders have begun to protest and offer resolutions at the annual meetings, but as you know, stockholder resolutions, except those supported by the directors, are an exercise in empty rhetoric.
It just strikes me as strange that we as taxpayers are spending over $100 billion annually for defense against the same communist governments with whom we are trading and lending money. It's like Mohammed Ali agreeing to pay half the training expenses of Leon Spinks.
BankAmerica, bless its heart, has provided over three-quarters of a billion dollars to communist governments. The Chase-Manhattan has financed many of the Soviet grain purchases. These loans are apparently guaranteed by the U.S. taxpayers since banks don't lend without collateral and quite obviously no bank can repossess a country.
This also strikes me as strange because I constantly hear talk about capital shortages in the U.S. If we have a capital shortage, then why are we providing capital to our enemies?
The political justification for trade with an enemy is that he becomes accustomed to the good life and therefore less of a threat. This is so obviously contradicted by history that I find it hard to believe that the people who say it actually believe it themselves.
We have been trading and aiding the Soviet Union since its inception and Soviet ideology has not changed one whit. What has changed is Soviet military strength, thanks in part to Western credit and technology.
I think we should make this an issue and lay it all out in the open. I don't know about you, but I'm getting tired of supporting a huge defense establishment — and the enemy at the same time. Communist soldiers have killed over 100,000 American boys since 1945 and yet the West has lent communist governments during the same period over $40 billion.
What kind of game is this? Are we being played for suckers? I think these are legitimate questions the people and the Congress should address.
It's absurd for an American automobile manufacturer, Chrysler, to be facing bankruptcy while American banks are lending billions to communist governments and while American industry is building the world's largest truck factory in the Soviet Union.
I think Chrysler had better talk to BankAmerica and the Chase-Manhattan, instead of to the taxpayers. If these banks can finance Soviet grain purchases and communist hydroelectric projects, they can damn sure finance a few Chrysler cars.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

New mistakes for Carter and U.S.?

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Jimmy Carter and his foreign policy advisers may be setting the United States up for another embarrassing international pratfall — this time in the northwestern hump of Africa.
At stake is the future of the mineral-rich western Sahara, a Colorado-size desert on the Atlantic Ocean, bounded on the north by Morocco and on the south and east by Mauritania. But the Carter administration insists on linking the situation there to its hopes for a peaceful settlement in the Middle East, and that's where the trouble lies.
Until four years ago, the western Sahara was known as Spanish Morocco. When Spain abruptly ended its 400-year rule, both Mauritania and the Kingdom of Morocco saw an opportunity to divide up their neighbor's territory. But the 100,000 inhabitants of the area saw it as a chance for self-determination, and formed a national liberation army, the Polisario Front.
Mauritania eventually pulled out and now supports the Polisario in its guerrilla war against King Hassan of Morocco. In a disturbing echo of our fruitless attempts to help "friendly" dictators in Iran and Nicaragua, the president and Congress are permitting Hassan to use American weapons illegally to crush a popular uprising.
The reason is that Hassan is regarded as a moderate Arab leader, one of our few friends in the Arab world. The hope is that he will respond to our military aid by throwing Morocco's weight on the side of an Arab-Israeli detente, though he has inability of Hassan's government. A negotiated settlement, with U.S. help would give our ally Hassan a face-saving way out of his difficulty, and defuse an explosive situation in Africa.

But just as in Iran and Nicaragua, top-level American officials have refused to deal with the rebels — except for two informal contacts with a Polisario leader by United National Ambassador Andrew Young nearly two years ago.
Even lower-echelon State Department personnel told our reporter Abbe Fletman that they steer clear of the Polisario representatives — and indeed of the entire western Sahara.
So the United States continues its ill-concealed military backing for a not-so-reliable ruler engaged in an attempt to suppress a popular uprising, thus courting a diplomatic disaster if Hassan fails and reinforced suspicion of American motives if he wins. Once again, Jimmy Carter's advisers have put the United States on the wrong side of a nation's struggle for freedom, boxing the president firmly into a no-win predicament.
WASHINGTON WHIRL: One congressman — and a teetotaler at that — is openly passing the bottle around Capitol Hill. Rep. George Hansen, R-Idaho, a leader in the unsuccessful fight against the Panama Canal treaties, is handing out little vials of genuine canal water to friends and anti-treaty associates. The label reads: "This is a special congressional issue in honor of those courageous Members of Congress who opposed turning the Panama Canal over to a pro-communist dictatorship." The water is shipped up from Panama and bottled by the "Campaign Team to Enlighten American Minds," one conservative group based in Oak Ridge, Tenn.
Richard Helms, who as CIA director engineered many a personnel purge before getting shipped off to Tehran as ambassador during the Watergate mess, has himself been purged by the once-timorous cookie-pushers at Foggy Bottom. His name has been dropped from the State Department's biographic files. As one department official put it: "Helms is no longer biographically available."
One of the Agriculture Department's most aggressive officials has been chastised by the poobahs in Washington for "misconduct" — but it's not what you might think. What John Coplin, chief meat-grader for the Chicago region, did was tell a New York official that Nebraska Beef Packers Inc. had been barred from the National School Lunch Program because it had shipped contaminated meat across state lines. Giving this pertinent information to a state official was deemed "embarrassing and prejudicial" to the Agriculture Department by Coplin's superiors.

Better safe than sorry is best rule

Dear Dr. Solomon: My father is making a slow recovery from a heart attack he suffered several months ago. What troubles me is that although he was surrounded by family members at the time, we did not at first recognize his symptoms as those of a heart attack; and, consequently, delayed in getting medical assistance. Do most patients and their families realize what is happening when they begin to experience the symptoms of an attack? — Mrs. B.F.K.

Dear Mrs. K.: It is not at all unusual for the symptoms of a myocardial infarction (or heart attack) to be unrecognized or misinterpreted, both by family members and by the patient. Part of the reason is the difficulty in distinguishing these symptoms from those of minor ailments, such as indigestion. But there are also psychological reasons that often blind people to the true significance of what is occurring, and physicians are as susceptible to these as are lay persons.

Dr. Thomas B. Hackett, professor of psychiatry at Harvard Medical School and chief of psychiatry at Massachusetts General Hospital, says that the phenomena of denial and displacement often cause a delay in seeking medical help, even when at least some suspicion of a heart attack should be raised. Many people simply refuse to face the fact that they may be undergoing a medical crisis of such severity. Instead, they tend to attribute their symptoms to something they ate or to some emotional upset. Such a reaction is not uncommon even among people who are well educated and familiar with the symptoms of a heart attack, and who should be aware of the need to get help quickly. Too often the first tendency is to deny the significance of the chest pain.

The same is true of family or friends who may be with the patient at the time the attack occurs. "Better safe than sorry" — acting first and asking questions later — is a good motto to follow. Escorting a patient to the nearest emergency room may turn out to be a waste of time if, in fact, the problem actually is mild indigestion; but not taking the patient to the hospital may have much more serious consequences. A good rule of thumb to follow is that any chest pain that lasts over two minutes should be suspected of signaling a heart attack, calling for prompt action.

I should also emphasize that having a heart attack does not rule out a productive, satisfying future. After a period of recovery, many survivors go on to lead full lives, often with very few restrictions on their activities. Perhaps if people feared a heart attack less, they might tend to be more attentive to its signals and seek prompt medical attention.

Where the person suffering the symptoms denies their significance, it is up to those around him to take appropriate action.

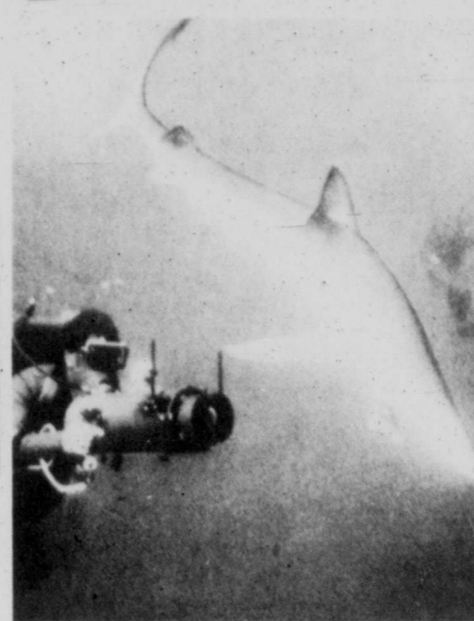

(If you have a medical problem, see your doctor. If you have a medical question, write to Neil Solomon, M.D., 1726 Reisterstown Road, Blatimore, MD. 21208. Dr. Solomon cannot give personal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.)

Rebeland follows the team's lead and gets things rolling

By KAREN FIDLER
GINA BARD
and LEIGH ANNE JONES

Rebeland was the place to be last week as things got rolling with the Rebel Express winning its first victory of the season. The mighty Express early left those Snyder Tigers in tears when they rolled over them 13-0 Friday night. Not only did the varsity show Snyder who is No. 1 but our junior varsity also rolled over its opposition by the same 13-0 score. Way to go, guys!

Don't miss the next exciting game when the Rebels will punch, pound and pulverize the Panthers of Austin High all the way back to El Paso! So come on out and show your might Rebel spirit. Also our Stonewall Brigade will take on those Pups Thursday night at Midland Memorial Stadium. Come on Rebs, and attack that Purple Pack.

Hey Rebs, if you didn't show up at the summer band concert last Thursday night you really missed a spectacular showing. Alamo Junior High Band kicked things off with Goddard Austin paying the way for the mighty Rebel Band. All the bands were really super and the ice cream was great. Keep up the good work, Bands!

Hey, Sophomores, last Thursday afternoon in the Y.C. There was a meeting to sign up for 100 Club; however, if you missed it you still have an opportunity to sign up by getting in touch with B.C. It's a worthwhile organization and worth your time to get involved.

At this meeting officers for the coming year were elected. Kathy Olsen was elected president. Susan Gilles was elected vice-president. Secretaries are Laura McCarty, Robin Baily, Wendy Purvis and Valerie Hicks. CONGRATULATIONS, GIRLS. Also, Joe Morrow was elected 100 Club Sweetheart for the month of September. Way to go Joe Baby! Attention Junior Council: There will be a very important meeting at 6 p.m. Thursday in the Y.C. Congratulations go to Senior Larry Linne and Junior Jay Steele for being chosen Junior Council Sweethearts for the month of September. Be sweet, guys, and maybe it will be your time next.

REBELETTES: you better make it to the squad meetings Wednesday morning at 7:30 to get your points and instructions for the lockers this week. Don't miss it. Ya'll did a really fantastic job at the Pep Rally Friday morning, so keep up the good work.

A great big Rebel welcome goes out to Marianne Roth from Denmark and Tom Hove from Finland. We hope you really enjoy your stay with us this year at Lee.

Don't forget this Friday, we want all of you at the Pep Rally to show your enthusiasm as we prepare to roll over our mighty Rebel Express to roll over El Paso Austin! Also, don't forget the victory dance in the Y.C. after the game. Come see our dynamic D.J.'s do their stuff again. See you there. Junior Council and 100 club members will set up for the dance at 3 p.m. Friday. Clean up will be at 2 p.m. Saturday.

Until next week,

TRC approves natural gas rate hikes

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Railroad Commission approved higher natural gas rates Monday for eight Southeast Texas cities — Bellville, Brenham, Columbus, Eagle Lake, Hempstead, Navasota, Sealy and Waller — and for customers near Alpine in far West Texas. The commission suspended for 120 days higher gas rates sought by High Plains Natural Gas Co. for six Panhandle towns — Spearman, Perryton, Booker, Canadian, Higgins and Mobeetie.

Temporary authority was granted to Texas Southeastern Gas Co. to raise residential and commercial rates by 15 percent in the Southeast Texas cities.

With little discussion, county commissioners set tax rate

With no input from the public and virtually no discussion by commissioners, Midland County's tax rate Monday was set at the same level as last year's.

The tax rate approved is 95 cents per $100 assessed valuation. The assessed valuation is based on 32 percent of the full value of property.

Additionally, 10 cents is collected for state taxes, bringing the total tax measure to $1.05 per $100.

The tax rate has been at that level for a number of years, County Judge Bill Ahders said.

The motion to approve the tax rate was approved on a unanimous vote by the commissioners.

Approval of the tax rate was the final step in the process of approving the 1980 county budget. At their last meeting, commissioners had approved budget figures calling for total expenditures in the 1980 fiscal year of $5,693,160.50.

The 1979 budget, which includes ending balances from the 1978 fiscal year, is in excess of $9.5 million. Ending balances are expected to add nearly $3.9 million to the total county budget figure.

Commissioners also voted to enter a single appraisal district along with the city of Midland, Midland Independent School District and Greenwood School District.

But the commissioners agreed to enter the district only under the "three-quarters" rule which gives each taxing entity a voting member on the appraisal district board.

A new state law requires the city and school district to be part of the appraisal district, but the county did not have to join at this time.

The new law, which goes into effect Jan. 1, requires that property be appraised at 100 percent of current market value to assure a uniform assessment.

The Midland County Hospital District and the Midland Junior College District also will be invited to join in the appraisal district, Ahders said today.

Commissioners also voted to join the city of Midland, Midland Independent School District and the Midland Junior College District in the appeal of a lawsuit ruling involving Midland National Bank Tower.

According to County Attorney Leslie Acker, the suit involves the question of whether the bank tower is owned by Midland National or Houston building contractor Gerald Hines.

The lawsuit, Acker said, also involves a question of whether the bank is entitled to subtract the value of the bank tower from the value of bank shares for ad valorem taxation purposes.

An adverse ruling was returned against the county and the other three taxing entities Aug. 14, and the suit is being appealed to the 8th Court of Civil Appeals in El Paso.

In other action at Monday's meeting, commissioners were introduced to Sharon Jones Hillis, who has

SHEINWOLD ON BRIDGE

Nothing Comes Easy

By Alfred Sheinwold

Playing bridge well is like riding a bicycle: it's always uphill and against the wind. Nobody made anything easy for declarer on today's hand, played in a team match.

The first declarer took the ace of clubs, led a spade to the king and returned a spade. West discarded the ten of clubs, and South let East win with the queen of spades.

East returned the deuce of hearts, and South tried a finesse with the jack. West took the queen and returned a diamond to the ace. East returned his low heart.

MISGUESSES AGAIN

South misguessed again, and West won with the ten of hearts. A heart to the ace then gave the defenders the setting trick.

At the second table of the match North played at four spades. He took the opening club lead with the king and lost a diamond to the ace.

Back came a low heart, and declarer had to guess. He tried the jack of hearts, and the defenders promptly took two hearts, defeating the contract.

Lamesans keep museum of sorts in form of rummage, collectibles

LAMESA — L.A. Thurman and his wife Louise live in the weathered ruins of an antique house, which is packed with and surrounded by junk and stuff.

It's a situation some would call squalor. To them, it's home, and it's their type of museum, included among old cars, an olive drab Red Cross ambulance and a combine is a 1914 chain-driven Metz automobile. A rusting breaking plow is at rest at the car's left side.

A sign, lettered on the backside of the old Cotton Center garage and facing the highway, cautions any intruder:

Beware Of Large Dog Roaming Premises

The dog is nowhere to be seen, but a whole lot of barking can be heard.

"The dog ain't here no longer," said Thurman, who was sporting a thin, graying moustache, a greasy engineer's cap and a dark, canvas-like jump suit littered with cat hair. "He had a foot half as big as a cow's."

But there were about six other mutts — all barking — and jumping around in their cages. It was a backyard kennel, but seemed more similar to a benevolent concentration camp.

Like the 75 feline cats in the house, in about 10 littered cages and in one large pen grown up with weeds, they aren't allowed to roam. They are well fed, however.

Many of the pets just dropped by the Thurman place; they were strays.

"(I) didn't have the heart to shoot them," said Mrs. Thurman. "Nobody has made it to the front yard in 10 years."

"They keep the dogs and cats locked up for their own survival."

"This highway out here would just mow them down," said Thurman, a 63-year-old former farmer and mechanic. "I don't think I could raise them as fast as they would be killed."

His wife agreed. "If we put them out on the street, they would be flattened."

The caged felines were listless, as they sat or reclined on or near mounds of their waste; flies abounded.

By comparison, the cats behind the wire live in a haven.

"Every now and then, they (the cats) get out through the wire and go visiting," said Mrs. Thurman. But those in the smaller cages have no hope of getting out; some cats are bred, born, grow up, age and die in the confines of the cages.

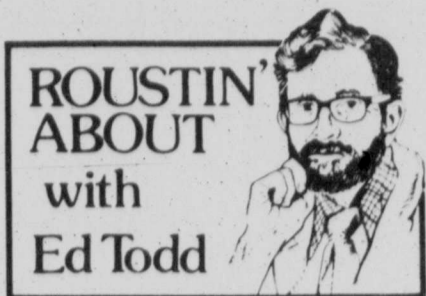

At least one cat, a healthy-looking calico feline, was free to roam.

THE THURMAN PLACE is just off a dog-leg curve off Texas 349 and is several miles south of Lamesa. The Thurmans live on a quarter-section of the land he used to farm until he rented it out to a young cotton farmer, Charlie King.

Near the house are two towers, but no windmills; they have gone the way of time.

And an old wooden water tank, too, is gone.

"The tank blew down in one of our famous sandstorms," noted Mrs. Thurman, who was wearing an old straw hat — covered with a plastic bread bag to keep it dry in case of rain — and a comfortable summer dress. Along a dusty trail leading up to the house is a corrugated metal shack. Inside the shed are old clothes, books, magazines, assorted odds-and-ends, and a couple of paintings. "The Dead Bouquet" and "The Protester," by Mrs. Thurman.

"I have everything from cow-lot fertilizer to clothes; we have the regular stuff," said Mrs. Thurman. She also sells quilts, which she pieces together on "rainy days."

She calls the little shed her "country-craft and rummage shop."

"It's a self-propelled project to earn some money," Mrs. Thurman noted.

Beyond the rummage shop sits the old house, formerly the First Christian Church parsonage in Lamesa, which Thurman figures was built in the 1910s. He had it moved out here in 1961.

"IT'S A GOOD OLD HOUSE," the missus allowed. "I would like to spend $15,000 restoring it like it was in the old days, but it's a faint dream."

The back of the house and the porch are stacked with old boxes, which Thurman said he picked up at the grocery store. They plan to use them to ship off rummage. Now, they're just stacking up like weeds.

"The place is grown up. We never bothered with the weeds; we use them as cover," said Mrs. Thurman, a self-proclaimed conservationist. About 10 years ago, she was publishing and distributing to area farmers her "Thoughts-on-Conservation Newsletter."

Back of the house is a stack of baled hay and beyond that is an old cow lot, where Brownie, the Thurmans' 18-year-old cow, is living out her days.

"That's our antique cow," said Mrs. Thurman. "She's 18 years old; she's retired like Mr. Thurman and myself."

Old Brownie looks like the product of a drought; she's thin, but has all the hay she wants to eat.

Nearby sprawls a patch of weeds surrounded by a larger field of weeds.

"Oh, this used to be my garden until the price of gasoline went up," she said.

Also bordered by weeds is the hog pen, where Gertrude and Ermintrude grunt and wallow.

The tall weeds out back keep the dozen or so cars halfway camouflaged.

THE JUNK CARS make up the "grand tour" of the Thurman place. Thurman stopped by a 1938 Massey-Harris combine.

"I could fire the darn thing up and start thrashing with it." The old thrasher was pulled by a 1936 Massey-Harris four-wheel drive tractor, which could be unruly in its working days.

Thurman's collection of cars, which are "not for sale," include the old Metz, which his rancher-father, Harlon Thurman, owned; a 1937 Ford 85 V8; 1936 Oldsmobile; 1940 Packard; a Jeep, and a 1940 Ford convertible, which Thurman calls a "mesquite feed trough."

Mrs. Thurman looked at it differently. "You were sure in high cotton if you could take your girl out in that thing," she said.

The sedan the Thurmans drive into town is a 1952 Lincoln Cosmopolitan. "It's really first class," she said.

"It needs some upholstery," he figured. The Thurmans live close to the soil.

He and a hired hand used to work half a section; that was after Thurman moved here in 1929 from Abilene.

"I always said that sorts out the men from the boys and still does," Mrs. Thurman said of the farming.

The Thurmans, who read a lot, have no television set, pump their own water and run their radio and lights off direct-current batteries.

"We're a great curiosity," said Mrs. Thurman.

Some teachers' strikes continue

By The Associated Press

Picket lines have left nearly 300 schools empty in Detroit and teachers in San Francisco voted to strike today as walkouts in 12 states left nearly 800,000 pupils still awaiting their regular teachers for the start of fall classes.

Strike-ending settlements were reached in smaller districts in Connecticut, Washington and Illinois, and a Superior Court judge Monday ordered 1,900 Anchorage, Alaska, teachers to end their 6-day walkout.

Los Angeles school officials faced a possible picket today by the 26,000-member United Teachers of Los Angeles, but said substitute teachers were adequate to cover absences.

Classes for 550,000 Los Angeles pupils begin today, and negotiations continued Monday in a dispute over pay.

Nationwide, strikes by more than 39,000 teachers continued in Alaska, California, Illinois, Indiana, Louisiana, Michigan, New Jersey, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island and Washington.

Detroit officials ordered school doors closed indefinitely when a headcount Monday showed only about 11,800 of the district's 213,000 pupils crossed picket lines to attend class. They said 394 of 12,000 teachers in the district showed up.

"Detroit teachers do no work without a contract," said Mary Ellen Riordan, president of the Detroit Federation of Teachers. "We're hoping this will be a short strike."

The dispute centers on a cost-of-living clause the teachers want included in the board's contract offer.

San Francisco teachers voted by a two-to-one margin Monday night to boycott the first day of duty today. Classes for 60,000 pupils are to begin Wednesday.

The union is demanding a 15.7 percent wage increase and the rehiring of 1,200 teachers laid off last spring in a budget trim. The length of the contract is negotiable.

In Southington, Conn., the 470-member teacher union voted overwhelmingly to go back to work and submit a wage dispute to binding arbitration.

Teacher strikes in Connecticut are illegal, and the teachers faced contempt of court fines.

Some 650 Renton, Wash., teachers will be back in class today after ratifying a new two-year contract Monday calling for a 6.2 percent salary increase this year. Highland Park, Ill., teachers ratified a new contract Monday with a 6.6 percent increase, ending their 11-day walkout.

A group of parents in Indianapolis filed suit Monday seeking an end to a strike of about half of the city's 3,300 teachers. One of the plaintiffs, former school board member Walter F. Ratcliff, said the group was not taking sides but wanted to get teachers back in the classroom if it's at all possible.

Meanwhile, a strike by about 2,000 Jefferson Parish teachers in suburban New Orleans ground into its 12th day, and an all-night bargaining session failed to resolve a walkout by 1,200 teachers in Eugene, Ore.

Four new strikes in Pennsylvania brought to 15 the number of districts where walkouts delayed or interrupted classes for nearly 65,000 pupils in that state. Some 1,500 teachers walked picket lines in six Ohio districts and 3,200 pupils in Portsmouth, R.I., were without teachers due to a dispute over several issues.

Last ditch Falcons burn Eagles in final period

William Andrews, center, of the Atlanta Falcons pays the NFL price for a draw play Monday night when Philadelphia's Frank LeMaster, bottom, and Reggie Wilkes make the emphatic stop. Atlanta, however, won, 14-10. (AP Laserphoto)

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Atlanta Falcons always seem to find a way.

Last year, the Falcons won six games in the last two minutes en route to their first appearance in the National Football League playoffs.

This season is only two games old and Atlanta has pulled two games out on plays manufactured in fantasy-land.

In the opener against New Orleans the game went into overtime tied at 34. Then a center snap sailed over the Saints' punter's head. The punter tried to pass the ball. It was intercepted for a six-yard touchdown.

Monday night, the Falcons played the Philadelphia Eagles on the NFL's weekly national television game. They showed their supernatural powers again. Atlanta trailed 10-7 in the final period. Tom Pridemore intercepted a pass and returned it 20-yards to the Eagles' 17.

the Atlanta seven to try for a first down on fourth down and one. They didn't make it.

That decision came back to haunt Eagles' coach Dick Vermeil as his team reached the Atlanta 38 in the final seconds. If they had taken the earlier field goal, Franklin, a thunderbolt kicker might have won it with a field goal.

Atlanta Coach Leeman Bennett said his team went into the game with the idea of establishing the running game. He said they accomplished their goal. He expressed pride in the offensive line, which opened the way to 145 net yards rushing. Rookie William Andrews, who gained 167 yards last week, added 121 against the Eagles. And he was a blocking back at Auburn last year.

VERMEIL SAID he went for that fourth and 1 because his scouts in the press box said the Eagles needed only two feet.

"I had confidence we could make two feet," Vermeil said. "If we went for the field goal, we would have gone up 13-7, and they still could have made a touchdown and beat us 14-13. I didn't think this was the turning point."

Vermeil said the key play was Pridemore's interception.

"I was disappointed in our running game," said Vermeil, noting that his team gained only 57 yards on the ground. "We were not physical enough and they blocked our people. My observation is that we got beat by a better team."

Travelers win TL title

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Arkansas Travelers held on to an early two run lead Monday night to capture the Texas League crown with a 2-1 win over San Antonio.

The win gave the Travelers a three-game sweep of the championship series.

Traveler Ty Waller gave Arkansas the needed two-run advantage when he scored on a single by Dan Winslow in the fourth inning.

The Travelers got their first run in the second inning when Gene Dodson scored on a wild pitch by losing pitcher Doug Harrison.

San Antonio began a shortlived comeback in the ninth inning when leftfielder Ed Santos tripled to centerfield and scored on an infield out.

Arkansas won games in San Antonio Friday and Saturday.

Mauch speechless after marathon

By The Associated Press

It will happen every so often: a player or manager will sit and stew after a game, say "I don't have anything to say," then vent his frustrations for five minutes or so.

Minnesota Manager Gene Mauch did it Monday night, after his Twins spent six hours, 52 minutes splitting a two-night double-header with the Kansas City Royals and staying in third place — 6½ games behind the American League West-leading California Angels.

"I don't have anything to say," his speech began, "except that we played all night for California."

"We have to win every game the rest of the season. You're darn right we had to win two. But to do that we have to play a lot better than we did in the first game. We played all night for the Angels. That's exactly what they want to happen."

Like the man said, nothing to say. The Twins lost the 4½-hour, 14-inning opener 6-5 when Hal McKae blasted a Mike Marshall pitch over the fence. They salvaged the nightcap 5-2 with the help of Roy Smalley's two-run homer in a four-run Minnesota sixth.

The nightcap left the Royals second, four games behind California — exactly where they started the evening — leaving Kansas City Manager Whitey Herzog to offer these comments:

"We're definitely in a situation where we need help. We needed help from Milwaukee this weekend. The Angels are hot."

Smalley's homer wiped out a 2-1 lead the Royals had built on consecutive fourth-inning homers by George Brett and Darrell Porter.

"I hate double-headers, anyway," offered Smalley. "You hardly ever win double-headers. This was our ninth double-header. That's 18 ball games that you figure to go 500."

That's what they did Monday night.

Red Sox 3, Orioles 2
Jim Rice drove in two runs and Bob Stanley pitched eight innings of four-hit ball to help Boston beat Baltimore. But the Fenway Park crowd of 30,618 — which sent the Red Sox' total attendance past the 4-million mark this season — missed seeing Yastrzemski become the first American Leaguer to amass 3,000 hits and 400 homers.

Mariners 5, Rangers 2

Fifth-inning home runs by Willie Horton and Leon Roberts — the first Seattle hits — carried the Mariners past the Rangers. The homers were the 34th and 35th given up this season by Texas right-hander Ferguson Jenkins.

Reds, Astros face important series

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds, who trail by half a game in the National League West, battle head-to-head tonight and Wednesday night with the division-leading Houston Astros, but none of the Reds wants to put too much importance on the series.

"We know one series isn't going to win it," said Dave Collins, the Reds' hot-hitting supersub. "We've got to take it like any other series."

Collins, who leads Cincinnati batters with a .318 average, said the Reds know what to expect from Houston.

"You're going to get good pitching, and they execute well," he said. "They do the little things well; that's why they're where they are. And everybody in the lineup can run."

Both games of the series will be televised in Midland on Cable channel 4 with starting times for both games at 7 p.m.

Both Houston and Cincinnati had a day off Monday, and first baseman Dan Driessen said that might help the Reds.

"Both sides know they can't take anything for granted," Driessen said. "Everybody will be up for the series, everybody on both sides."

But Driessen also thought the division title wouldn't be determined this week, even if Houston were to sweep the series.

"As long as we're real close, anything could happen," he said. "I believe it could go to the very end."

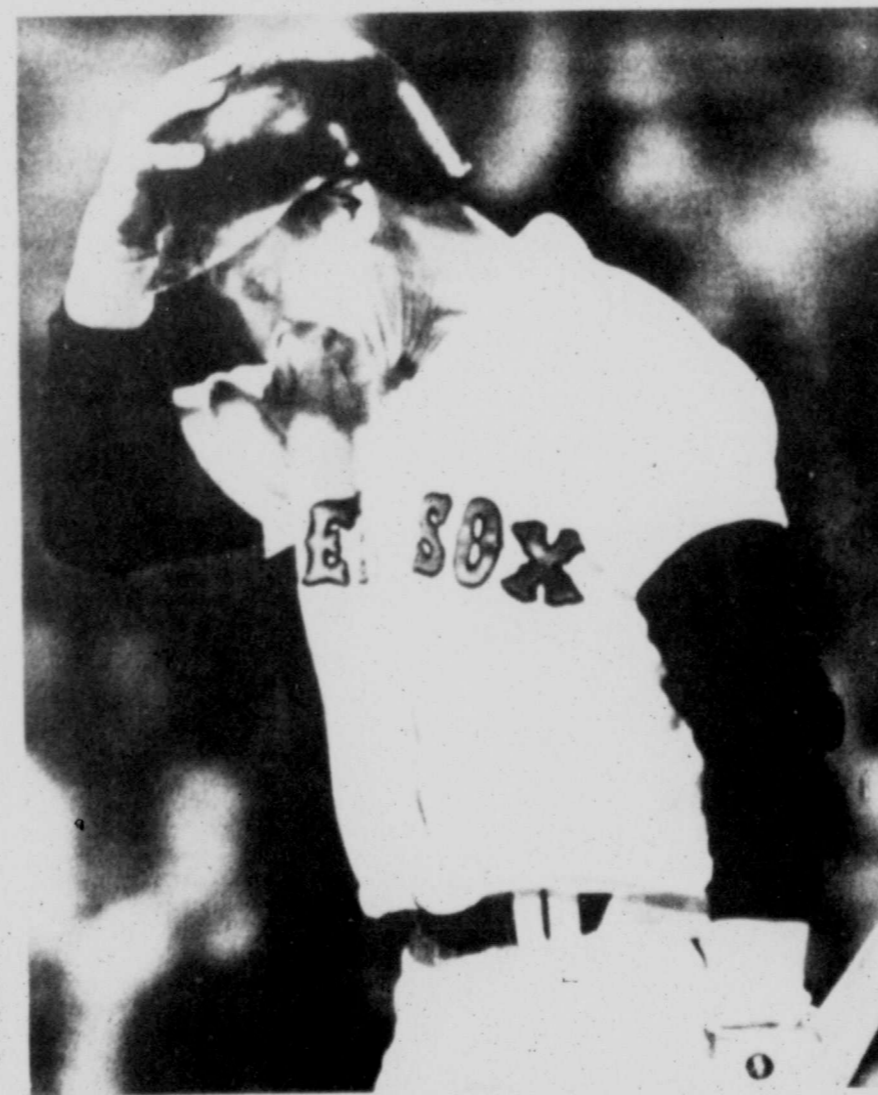

First night pitchers were scheduled to be Tom Seaver, 14-6, for the Reds, and J. R. Richard, 16-12, for Houston. Each has been hot lately. Seaver winning 12 of his last 13 decisions and Richard leading the league in strikeouts and possessing a string of 37 innings without an earned run.

Tomorrow night, the Reds' Mike LaCoss, 14-6, will face Joe Niekro, who leads the National League in victories with an 18-9 record.

Each team has a winning record against the other team at home this season. The Reds are 4-3 against Houston in Riverfront Stadium but have won just one of six games in the Astrodome.

Seven of the 13 games have been decided by one run.

"The series is crucial, but whatever happens in these two games is not the end of the season," said Cincinnati Manager John McNamara.

Carl Yastrzemski of the Boston Red Sox reacts Monday night after failing to make a hit in four at bats against Baltimore. Yaz is one hit away from being the first man in the American League to have 400 homers and 3,000 hits. (AP Laserphoto)

Trojans maintain grip on ratings

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON AP Sports Writer

Southern California, Alabama, Oklahoma and Texas held onto the top four places in The Associated Press' first regular-season college football poll today while Stanford, Texas A&M and Arizona State were casualties of the year's first upsets.

Southern Cal, a 21-7 winner over Texas Tech in its opening game, received 47 first-place votes and 1,222 of a possible 1,240 points from a nationwide panel of 62 sports writers and broadcasters.

However, second-ranked Alabama closed the gap from the preseason poll. The Crimson Tide, which opened by thrashing Georgia Tech 30-6, received 14 first-place ballots and 1,172 points. The margin of difference in the preseason poll was 1,242-1,141.

Neither Oklahoma nor Texas has played yet. The Sooners received two first-place votes and 1,068 points while the other No. 1 ballot went to Texas, which accumulated 962 points.

Penn State, fifth in the preseason poll, also was idle and slipped to seventh place behind Purdue and Michigan, which posted impressive triumphs. Purdue trounced Wisconsin 41-20 and climbed from sixth to fifth with 931 points while Michigan swamped Northwestern 42-7 and jumped from seventh to sixth with 898 points.

Then came Penn State with 823 points, idle Nebraska with 742 and idle Notre Dame with 644. Michigan State defeated Illinois 33-16 and held onto 10th place with 594 points.

The Second Ten consists of Missouri, Georgia, Houston, Washington, Ohio State, Pitt, Arkansas, Florida State, North Carolina State and Southern Methodist.

The preseason Second Ten was Georgia, Missouri, Stanford, Texas A&M, Washington, Houston, Pitt, Arizona State, Florida State and Arkansas.

Greenwood battles for Class B membership

By RICHARD VINCENT Sports Writer

To say the least, it hasn't been an easy three-year existence for the Greenwood football program.

But slowly and surely, the tiny school continues to take steps toward their ultimate goal — membership in a Class B district.

And, if things work out as expected, the Rangers should attain their dream next year, according to head coach Bobby Harrison.

This year, their first in varsity competition, the Rangers are 1-0. Last Friday night they defeated Buena Vista, 14-12.

Playing a varsity schedule is much different than the junior varsity

Greenwood played the last two years.

"It's a lot better competition," said Harrison Monday during a Ranger workout. "It's a lot more physical. There's a better quality of players than you see in junior varsity."

Harrison seemed pleased but not completely satisfied with the victory.

"We were fortunate to win," he said. "We had two real big plays (that went for scores). Our defense wasn't too bad but we didn't jell on offense."

Still, a victory is a victory, and right now, that's all the Rangers have to shoot for.

"I guess our goal would be to win as many games as we can," said Harrison.

"That's always your goal but we can't compete for a district championship."

There's some talent out in the green farmlands although lack of numbers is an omnipresent problem.

"We don't have a whole lot of size," said Harrison. "We've got pretty good people at the specialty positions. The line is thin and real young."

Asked to name his team's strength, Harrison said, "Passing game. We've got a good quarterback."

The Ranger field general is Tommy Somers, one of six seniors on the squad. And, as Harrison said, Somers can throw the football. Somers transferred here from Midland High last fall where he started a few games for the Bulldogs when Michael Feldt was injured. The back-up is Larry Dickerson.

Tailback Joe Mobley, fullback Rex Evans, wingback Vondell Woolfolk and ends Kent Harris, Gary Rogers, Kit Foshee and Tommy Pyle are solid skill position operatives. Mobley, Woolfolk and Harris are seniors.

Senior center Chip Stewart and senior tackle Russ Padgett lend experience to an otherwise untested forward wall. Tackle Philip Higgins, guards Oscar Lopez, Gary Ratliff and Todd Brooks and reserve-center Clay Caston are looked to for development.

Harrison said there were 35 players on his squad, up significantly from the 17 of the first year and 22 of last season. There's a good chance, said Harrison, that the Rangers would field a junior varsity squad this year. And there's a junior high program underway.

Those are signs football is beginning to gain momentum as is the school's membership in the University Interscholastic League. Yet it hasn't been easy.

"When you're trying to start from scratch, you've got to get the kids interested in the game and they have to learn about it," said Harrison. "Most of them had never played football."

Hence, a lot of hard work was involved, much of it, said Harrison, on the people of Greenwood's part. "The community helped build the light standards and goalposts," said Harrison.

pointing out the well-constructed facilities. "We're very proud of the community support."

Greenwood's grid program was started by Bill Jordan, who was the head man the first two years of its existence.

Now, after two years as an assistant, it's Bobby Harrison's turn. "We've made a lot of progress since we started," he said, a trace of a smile forming on his face. "We've come quite a ways."

District 2-AAA powers stage impressive wins

By RICHARD VINCENT Sports Writer

If the fine season-opening performances by teams from several area football districts are any indication of what's ahead when league play rolls around, look out.

District 2-AAA teams won four of five non-conference assignments last Friday with Andrews, Ft. Stockton, Pecos and Odessa Ector notching victories. The lone loser was Monahans, a 13-7 victim of Seminole. Three of the triumphs were whitewashes and that could mean the loop will be as competitive as ever.

MEANWHILE, District 6-A teams nearly repeated their 1978 sweep of nonconference openers, winning four of five. The only casualty was Rankin, stunned 14-6 by Eldorado.

Andrews was awesome in their 40-6 rout of Big Spring while Pecos was equally impressive in stomping Lamesa 26-0. Also posting shutouts were Ft. Stockton, 20-0 over Canutillo and Ector, 20-0 over Amarillo Caprock.

In 6-A, McCamey gave first-year coach Larry Nabors a happy debut with a 21-8 nod over Menard while always-tough Iraan was just that with a 27-2 spanking of Snaderson.

Also, Clint throttled Ft. Davis, 30-7, and Marfa tripped Van Horn, 13-6.

YOU COULD also say that District 9-A looks to be a bit nasty. Four of six schools fashioned non-league wins including Eldorado's upset of Rankin. Reagan County took a big 15-8 decision over Ozona while Mason bombed Llano 26-0 and Junction made things rough for Comfort, 26-8. Menard, which lost to McCamey and Wall, which fell 20-14 to Coahoma, were the losers.

Among District 3-AAA teams, only Area Standings District 2-AAA

First week's results: Andrews 40, Big Spring 6, Ft. Stockton 20, Canutillo 0, Pecos 26, Lamesa 0, Odessa Ector 20, Amarillo Caprock 0, Seminole 13, Monahans 7.

Standings: Andrews 1-0, Ft. Stockton 1-0, Pecos 1-0, Ector 1-0, Monahans 0-1.

Abilene Cooper keeps lofty image

By The Associated Press

Abilene Cooper, the preseason choice in The Associated Press Schoolboy Football poll to win the state Class AAAA title, did nothing to tarnish its image in the first week of play last week although the Cougars defeated "only" a Class AAA school. Cooper's stock remained high because the team they humbled was defending state Class AAA champion Brownwood, which went into the game ranked No. 1 in its classification.

Abilene Cooper, which lost to Brownwood last year when the Lions went unbeaten in 15 games, blasted Brownwood 50-14 in one of the worst defeats ever for veteran Coach Gordon Wood.

Jasper, which defeated Henderson 27-7 last week, moved up from third place to assume the No. 1 position in AAA, while Pittsburg in AA and China Spring in A, retained their leadership roles. The loss toppled Brownwood to seventh place among the AAA ranks this week. McKinney dropped from second to eighth place after a 15-14 loss to Paris, which jumped from 10th to sixth.

Two other AAA teams, Tulso Midway and Snyder dropped from the rankings after losses and No. 9 Huntsville and No. 10 Gainesville moved in as replacements. Snyder lost to Midland Lee, a AAAA school, 13-0.

LaPorte kept the No. 2 position in Class AAAA while Lake Highlands leapfrogged over Seguin into third place and Seguin dropped to fourth.

Dallas White, rated fourth last week, dropped from the top 10 after a 19-7 loss to Lake Highlands. Also disappearing were Plainview and San Antonio Jay.

The newcomers in AAAA are No. 8 San Antonio Roosevelt, which beat Jay 54-21, No. 9 Odessa Permian, a winner over El Paso Coronado, and No. 40 Fort Worth Richland.

Bridgeport and Tahoka, ranked sixth and ninth last week, disappeared from the Class AA list after losses and were replaced by Breckenridge and Comanche.

Three teams lost and another was tied from last week's Class A list.

San Saba, the No. 2 team a week ago, dropped into a 10th place tie with Dilley after it was beaten by Burnet 14-12. Celina fell from third to eighth following a 21-14 loss to Prosper and New Deal dropped out after a loss to Idalou, which assumed the No. 9 position.

Dilley was ninth last week before playing to a scoreless tie with Cotulla.

Pen mightier than sword?

By The Associated Press

The ground rules are very simple. First the athlete goes out and does his job as well as he can.

Then the sports writer asks the athlete why he did what he did, how he felt when he did it, whether he might have done it differently.

Simple, right? Wrong.

Too often, the athlete alters the rules. He sulks, snarls, throws things, stomps off, hides in the trainer's room or menaces the sports writer.

It isn't the typical post-game interview, but it is edging its way in that direction.

Athletes sometimes forget they are blessed, fortunate to have the skills they display, to have people idolize them and to have other people pay them enormous sums of money for their lives.

For every dozen pro football players who see the writer as an extension of the fan who comes out each weekend to cheer him, one sees the writer as an adversary, an invader.

For every dozen open, friendly, courteous and cooperative players, there's one close-minded, embittered, frustrated, hard-head.

For every dozen Steve Grogans, there's one Raymond Clayborn.

The National Football League has rules governing these situations. But some players believe rules, like records, are made to be broken. And someday, more than just a rule is going to be broken. Someday somebody's really going to get hurt.

It came perilously close to that last Sunday, after the New England Patriots had finished demolishing the New York Jets 56-3.

While a number of writers were interviewing Harold Jackson, the recipient of three of Grogan's five touchdown passes, Clayborn stood about 10 feet away, bellowing to nobody in particular that anyone who tried to ask him any questions would be "buried."

Nobody asked — but moments later, Clayborn (24 years old, 6-foot-1, 190 pounds) was elbowing Jackson's audience. One of the writers, Will McDonough of the Boston Globe (41, 6-0, 207) told Clayborn to take it easy. Clayborn grabbed McDonough's shirt, cursed and poked him in the eye. In the scuffle that ensued, Clayborn was decked and team president Billy Sullivan was sent sprawling as well.

McDonough was told later by a physician that Clayborn's finger had come within an eighth of an inch of costing him his sight in one eye.

Other writers have been threatened by players and coaches. The pen may be mightier than the sword, but a fist, helmet or cleats can do plenty of damage, too.

Interestingly, the National Football League and the players' union both acknowledge that the players' responsibilities don't end with the game's final gun.

Paragraph 4 of the standard players contract says, in part: "(The) player will cooperate with the news media, and will participate upon request in reasonable promotional activities of the club and the league."

Further, the Bargaining Agreement approved by the union and the NFL Management Council, Article 34, Section 3, under the heading, "Promotion," states, in part: "The NFLPA will use its best efforts to see that the players cooperate with the clubs and the news media in reasonable promotional activities on behalf of the clubs and the NFL."

Sidney Moncrief becomes a millionaire

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Sidney Moncrief's attorney declined to say Monday how much the Milwaukee Bucks paid for the best scorer and rebounder in the history of the University of Arkansas.

But the contract negotiations between the National Basketball Association club and its No. 1 draft choice were assumed to have produced a pact worth more than $1 million.

"Our contract is better than most people who have been chosen as high as fourth or fifth," attorney Jack Manton said. "The pivotal thing was that we backed off on insisting on a five-year contract. We got some concessions for that that were very, very attractive."

The six-year contract, he said, compares favorably with those the Bucks have with center Kent Benson and forward Marques Johnson, reportedly getting $1.5 million and $1 million respectively under six-year pacts.

Fish surge can be bad

By JON CHASE

Fish biologists have learned over the years that too many fish in a body of water can be just as bad as too few.

Many small lakes, streams and ponds are believed to be "fished out" when in actuality they have not had enough fishing pressure. Some species can cause over population in even the largest lakes.

When I was growing up in Midland, I frequently fished J. B. Thomas Lake. I saw this lake in a period of ten years go from one of the finest crappie lakes in the state to a producer of very small grappie with virtually no fish being taken in the one to two pound class.

During the heydays of Lake Thomas, there was a limit of 15 fish per day and this was the rule in most Texas lakes. The 15 a day limit just wasn't sufficient to control the prolific crappie and lack of food caused major stunting with a resultant race of midgits.

The Lake Thomas story was the same in many other Texas lakes at the time and led to our present no limit policy on crappie. This no limit rule has returned many lakes to big crappie producers and has helped to restore the crappie to a major game fish in Texas. The stunted crappie is a rule in most small ponds, and is no longer recommended by the state as a suitable stock fish for small bodies of water.

I don't know why the crappie can't be controlled in small ponds, but it seems that no amount of fishing pressure will keep them under control. A good rule is to leave them out of your farm pond when stocking. The stockfish, most often recommended, are large mouth bass, channel catfish and bluegills.

One of the hardest things for a fisherman to do (myself included) is to throw a stunted bluegill, bream or any other variety of sunfish out on the bank to die. Most of us will catch them and return them to the water, whether fishing a lake or a small pond.

All we are doing is contributing to the imbalance of most bodies of water. The sunfishes are even more prolific than the crappie and compete for food to such an extent that they rapidly become overly numerous.

In most ponds, the process takes only a few years and a fish that is only two or three inches long may be five or six years old. One of the best methods of returning a pond to a producer of large fish is to keep or destroy every sunfish taken. If this policy is followed and heavy fishing pressure is put on a pond, there will eventually be a good number of eating size bluegills cruising around. A few kids with cane toles and bream hooks can take an astonishing number of fish out of a pond.

As a general rule, bass will not become stunted in large lakes, but they too can over populate smaller bodies of water. Small ponds can take, and need, a surprising amount of fishing pressure. Bass are effective predators and help to keep down the sunfish numbers, but they need the help of the fisherman to keep their own numbers under control.

This is a good point to make when trying to get permission to fish from some local farmer. It is a fact that you are probably making the fishing better by taking bass from his pond.

Don't get upset by the multitudes of fishermen you see on the lakes these days. The crappie, bass and bluegills that other fishermen take, usually make your fishing that much better.

This year's dove season opener was one of the best in a long time. I have talked to several hunters, who hit the field last weekend, and most of them got into some good shooting.

The best hunting was over cut maize and sunflower fields with a few limits taken shooting over stock tanks. Quite a few birds were also killed by hunting known flyways, such as fence rows and power lines.

This week should see more and more birds coming into the stock tanks as the past week has been a dry one and most of the puddles are drying up.

second half and directed the Chiefs on four scoring marches. He hit 14 of 25 passes for 148 yards and one touchdown after the Chiefs could only squeeze out less than 60 behind Livingston.

Livingston has long been unpopular with Kansas City fans but retained the loyalty of most of the players. But Levy said he was not concerned that morale would be harmed.

"Emotionally, I think they'll adjust to it without much difficulty. What the players want to do is win.

Fuller to start against Oilers

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Steve Fuller, the Kansas City Chiefs rookie quarterback who almost pulled off a miracle comeback Sunday against Cleveland, will start for the Chiefs against Houston this week.

Coach Marv Levy said Monday that Fuller's performance in the second-half comeback attempt merits a starting berth.

Lewis takes verbal blast at Thomas Henderson

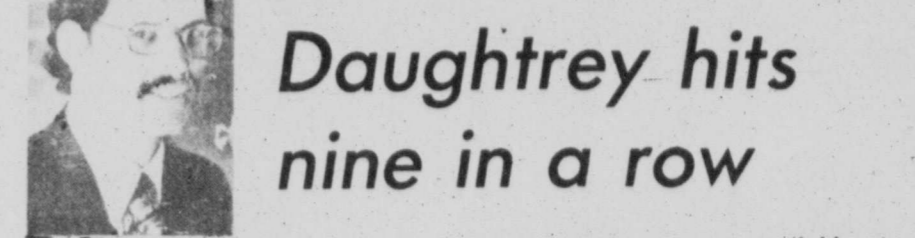

DALLAS (AP) - Dallas linebacker D.D. Lewis said Monday the Cowboys have a defensive leadership gap caused by the departures of injured strong safety Charlie Waters and retired end Ed "Too Tall" Jones.

"Our defense is in a confused state," Lewis told the Dallas-Fort Worth media meeting. "We need someone to step forward in a leadership role."

Asked if linebacker Henderson could fulfill such a role, Lewis shot back "He missed his leading role in 'North Dallas Forty.' I've had enough of him."

The Cowboys staggered to a 21-13 National Football League victory Sunday over San Francisco with Lewis' fourth-quarter interception helping prevent a 49ers' upset.

BOWLING BEAT

Daughtrey hits nine in a row

By RANDY ISENBERG
Rick Daughtrey dominated scoring in organized bowling activity during the past week in Midland. Rick's highlight came in the Thursday evening Teacher's League when he slammed nine strikes in a row for a 267 game enroute to a 736 series.

Among Rick's other fine efforts during the week began on Labor Day in the Air Park Lanes Labor Day Classic Doubles Double-Elimination tournament that he and Vern Williams took top honors in. They shared the $121.50 first place money.

Williams carried the team in the early going, contributing 202-226 in the first set, 256 and 225 in the second set and 227 and 179 in the finals. Daughtrey contributed 224 and 188 in the first and 211 and 189 in the finals. Second were Kenny Hostetter and Joe Tidwell while Tommy Gammage and Guy Conley were third. Tidwell's 270 earned him top game while Choya Young's 500 two-game set earned top series honors.

Bowling in the Labor Day 175-under singles classic, Tom White won his second title, earning the right as a top qualifier with an 856 four-game handicap total. Lucy Williams was second with 814 qualifying while Jackie Brookshire was third with 829 but was defeated by Bill Crawford in the elimination. Gary Nokes edged Richard Daily for the final spot.

News from around the region and nation: The Bowler's Journal named their forty-first men's All-America and eighteenth women's All-America teams. Men's first team included Earl Anthony, Marshall Holman, Larry Laub, George Pappas and Mark Roth. The women's team was Donna Adamek, Pat Costello, Vesma Grinfelds, Betty Morris and Virginia Norton.

Upcoming tournaments: The eighth annual Oil Capital Open kicks off Oct. 27-28 in Tulsa. Entries close midnight Oct. 1. The event is open to men's teams, doubles and singles and women's teams, doubles and singles. The tournament is hosted by Ted Seiler at Sheridan Lanes and Crystal

Players welcome Meyers to Pacers' workouts

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - Ann Meyers, the pioneer, was on defense as John Kuester drove for the basket. Suddenly she went crashing to the floor.

Welcome to the National Basketball Association. Kuester, a veteran of two seasons in the NBA, wasn't trying to hurt Meyers, who is trying to become the first woman to play in the league.

"Everyone's going for a job," he said. "She understands that. I bumped her down low. She's used to contact. My first impression was she wants to play."

Meyers, a 5-foot-9, 140-pounder who earned All-America honors at UCLA, went through her first day of workouts at the Indiana Pacers rookie-free agent training camp on Monday.

"It was a little tough defensively for her, and a little tough for her to get her shots off," said Pacers Coach Bobby Leonard.

The workout at Hinkle Fieldhouse on the Butler University campus was closed to the general public. But Meyers drew television coverage from all three major networks, and ABC plans to feature the story of the 24-year-old's tryout on its "Wide World of Sports" program this Saturday.

The other eight players on the court were from four to 13 inches taller and from 35 to 80 pounds heavier. But that didn't upset Meyers, the sister of Dave Meyers of the Milwaukee Bucks.

"I'm a lot slower than the other guys," Meyers said after her first two-hour workout Monday. "They're a lot more physical than the women I've played against. And I can't do a lot of the things against the men that I've done against women."

It was hard for Leonard to treat Meyers as just another player with some 10 television cameramen following her every move. When trainer David Craig taped Meyers' ankles before the workout, the moment was recorded by six still photographers and two television cameramen.

"I was able to block all that out," Meyers said. "I was glad to get away from it for a few days after all the hoopla following my signing last week."

Meyers admitted her size will be a problem. "I know I have to concentrate a little bit more on my shooting," she said. "And on defense they're a little bit quicker and faster than I am. I just have to go out there and contain them, do the best I can."

Reporting methods erode credibility, says Gulf official

DALLAS — The president of Gulf Oil Corp. said that changing methods of financial reporting are part of the reason for eroding credibility and lack of public confidence in the oil industry.

James E. Lee told the 15th Annual Institute of Oil and Gas Accounting, sponsored by the Southwest Legal Foundation, that much of the financial information required to be disclosed today is not only useless to company management, but "a lot of it gives misleading signals about our economic strengths and weaknesses to our shareholders and the general public."

It provides ammunition for some of our most demagogic critics; and, perhaps most troubling of all, it doesn't seem to provide the regulators who requested the information any better grip on energy policy."

Lee said that Gulf has no quarrel with the concept of full and fair disclosure. But increasingly new disclosures in published statements are being prefaced with caveats which state, in effect, that management itself doesn't place credibility in such numbers. "Is it any wonder that, that the public at large has grown so skeptical of all the figures we release?" he said.

For example, Lee cited the SEC's new requirement that the industry disclose estimates of net future revenues and related present values which might be expected from proven reserves. He said that because of the inherent unreliability of reserve estimates, Gulf feels compelled in disclosing this information to state that "the amounts shown are not indicative of the amount of net revenue which the company expects, or may expect, to receive in future periods."

Lee said, "The economic variables are difficult enough to forecast, but what could very well be the most significant variable of all is being ignored—that is the political actions or events which impact the oil industry today."

"The integrity of the industry's financial reporting is essential if we are to win public support for the broader energy issues confronting the nation," Lee told the group of accountants, lawyers, regulators and academicians.

In commenting on the SEC's current drive for reserve recognition accounting, Lee noted, "To report 'income' long before we have received a penny of revenue is meaningless; worse, it's absurd. I know of no way that unrealized earnings can be used to finance additional exploration or pay dividends or taxes."

Lee said he has heard of no well-reasoned argument supporting the allegation that the industry's current accounting practices—successful efforts and full cost—are deficient. "So why tinker with systems that work?"

"Rather than failing the American investor and the American public, or the regulators, our basic accounting systems have played an important role in the growth of one of the strongest industries in the world," Lee said. He called upon financial regulators and professional organizations associated with the industry to provide leadership and stability in developing responsible financial reporting practices.

Outpost pair scheduled

A pair of outposts have been staked to fields in southwest Crosby County, and additional field work has been announced in other West Texas counties.

United Enegy Corp. of San Antonio No. 1 Donald Aycock is to be drilled as a 4,400-foot test one mile north of production in the Ridge (Clear Fork) field, 12 miles south of Lorenzo.

Drillsite is 467 feet from south and east lines of section 1043, block 1, H&B survey.

Threshold Development Co. of Midland No. 3 T. C. James Jr. will be drilled one mile north of production in the Hoopie (Clear Fork) field.

The 4,300-foot test is three miles southwest of Robertson and 1,980 feet from north and west lines of section 1044, block 1, H&B survey.

Texaco Inc. No. 10 March Ranch is to be drilled as an east offset to its No. 9 March Ranch, assured producer one location southwest of production in the Higgins Rancy (Canon oil) pool of Coke County, nine miles northeast of Carlsbad.

The new test is 467 feet from north and 4,182 feet from west lines of Alex E. Patton survey No. 642.5. Contract depth is 6,500 feet.

The No. 9 March Ranch is testing through perforations from 6,034 to 6,046 feet. During the last 24 hours of testing reported, the well flowed 391 barrels of oil, no water, through a 17/64-inch choke.

Amoco Production Co. of Andrews No. 3 Midland Farms Operating Area has been recompleted from the Devonian 1/2 mile southeast of one of the 11 Devonian gas wells in the Midland Farms multipay area of Andrews County.

The operator reported a calculated absolute open flow potential of 900,000 cubic feet of gas per day, through perforations from 10,949 to 11,143 feet. The gas-oil ratio is 48,333-1. The pay was acidized with 4,500 gallons and fractured with 20,400 gallons.

Total depth is 12,542 feet, seven-inch casing is set at 12,538 feet and the plugged back depth is 12,435 feet.

Pan American Petroleum Corp. originally completed the well from the Atoka, then completed it from the Devonian through perforations from 10,949 to 11,130 feet, and then the Ellenburger.

Location is 660 feet from south and 1,835 feet from west lines of section 40, block 41, T-1-N, G&MB&A survey and 15 miles southeast of Andrews.

Fork oil) pool which produces at 3,857 feet.

The project originally was drilled by Humble Oil & Refining Co. as No. 1 George T. Abell. It was plugged in 1962 at 5,450 feet.

The location is 1,980 feet from south and 660 feet from east lines of section 39, block 9, H&GN survey.

Mobil Oil Corp. No. 3 Irvy B. Weatherly was completed from the Wolfcamp to reopen the Roja Caballos (Wolfcamp) pool of Pecos County, 20 miles northwest of Fort Stockton.

The operator reported a 24-hour pumping potential of 106 barrels of oil and 35 barrels of water, through perforations from 10,896 to 11,010 feet. The gravity of the oil is 38.2 degrees and the gas-oil ratio is 1,207-1.

Currents to help with crude spill

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Texas beaches will be in the clear and probably safe from more washups of a Mexican oil spill by mid-October, says a federal scientist.

"We're not out of the woods quite for another three or four weeks," Dr. John Robinson of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration said Monday at a daily news briefing.

Robinson and others in the federal team monitoring the world's largest oil spill are counting on autumn southerly currents to continue pushing oil away from the Texas coast. The southerly direction will not be permanently established for three to four weeks.

Since the Ixtoc 1 well off the Yucatan Peninsula blew out June 3, the Texas coast from Matagorda Island south has been stained with thick brown goo. An estimated 3 percent of the well's gush has reached Texas — 500 miles from the blowout.

Mexican officials report the well's daily flow has been reduced from 30,000 barrels to between 10,000 to 20,000 barrels.

American officials are keeping close watch on Hurricane Frederic, said Coast Guard Capt. Theotis Wood, on-scene coordinator of the spill response team.

The storm should keep offshore currents flowing to the south, Robinson said. If Frederic turns west and hits the Texas coast, which no one now predicts, it could churn up oil lying underwater and throw it on the beaches.

"But that's where we'd rather have it," Robinson said. Oiled beaches are considered easier to clean than water with suspended particles of oil.

Wood said reconnaissance flights show no large concentrations of thick oil in Texas waters out to 20 miles.

Surveys of the well site showed large patches of heavy oil, Wood said. More inspection flights were scheduled to check the northern Mexican coast.

"We hope this will tell us if there's a flow coming up the coast," Wood said. "We don't think there is."

Wood said work crews will continue removing oil and debris from beaches until scientists say the beaches are clean.

Some witnesses before Congressional hearings on the spill this weekend said a lot of oil is buried 8 to 12 inches below the surface.

Robinson agreed that much oil is hidden by the sand. "It's not clear what should be done about the part that's buried," he said.

Monday's briefing was the last daily session scheduled as the Coast Guard and scientists anticipate few, if any, large washups as occurred in August.

High Plains Oil & Gas, Inc., spotted two 3,000-foot wildcats in Crockett County, and Tejas Resources, Inc., also of Midland, will re-enter a project for tests as a wildcat.

High Plains Oil & Gas No. 1 B. K. Baggett, is one mile south of Clear Fork B and C oil production in the Baggett field and two miles south of the pool's Clear Fork gas production.

The drillsite is 467 feet from south and east lines of section 4, block NG, GC&SF survey and 14 miles southwest of Ozona. It will test for production in the Clear Fork.

High Plains No. 2 B. K. Baggett, another Clear Fork test, is one and one-eighth miles southwest of a dual B and C oil producer in the Baggett pool and two and one-eighth miles southwest of gas production.

The drillsite is 467 feet from north and 1,667 feet from east lines of section 4, block NG, GC&SF survey.

Negotiators big stumbling block to oil rationing plan

By TOM RAUM

WASHINGTON (AP) — A disagreement between House and Senate negotiators over a formula for gasoline rationing is emerging as the biggest obstacle to a compromise standby rationing bill.

Congressional conferees were to meet today for the second time to try to reconcile their differences on legislation that would give President Carter authority to ration gasoline in a grave emergency.

The president has said repeatedly he has no plans to use this power, but wants it on the shelf in case the nation is hit with a potentially disruptive shortage — like another Arab oil embargo.

Rationing coupons have already been printed and are being held in reserve. But the president must get the power from Congress before he can order their use.

House-Senate negotiators are having a hard time deciding how severe the shortage must be before the president could act and to what extent Congress should share in any final rationing decision.

The House-passed bill would prohibit rationing from even being considered unless there was at least a 20 percent drop in petroleum supplies over a 30-day period, or if a shortage of that magnitude and duration was imminent.

Congress then would have 15 days in which either chamber could veto the plan.

Senate members of the conference committee rejected this House-written formula Friday.

In its place they offered a more complex one of their own that — while permitting rationing to be imposed in a 10 percent shortage — would give Congress greater say over the entire process.

Sources among House conferees said the Senate proposal would be rejected by House conferees who feel it gives Congress too much authority and the president too little.

"The survival of New England's oil businessmen is becoming an urgent dilemma," warned Russ Berry of the Small Business Administration's Boston office. "Rising prices and restricted credit have resulted in an increasing number of bankruptcies."

The House Small Business subcommittee on anti-trust activities was told Monday that dealer profit margins have dropped sharply as retail prices for home heating oil have soared to 83 cents a gallon.

BANGOR, Maine (AP) — Small oil dealers, facing restricted credit, will be struggling for survival this winter, witnesses have told a congressional subcommittee.

"The commission said its order allows the company a 6.03 percent return on adjusted value of invested capital.

The higher rates are retroactive to May 22, 1978, when Lone Star filed its last appeal after the city had rejected its proposed increase. The commission said Lone Star could add a surcharge to bills to collect the additional money.

Affected by the increase will be the communities of Forest Hill, Haltom City, Lake Worth, Richland Hills, Sansom Park Village, Everman, North Richland Hills, River Oaks, Westworth Village, White Settlement, Crowley, Westover Hills, Lakeside, Benbrook, Kennedale and Edgecliff.

The action announced Monday means that all of the Eastern states that adopted the plan when supplies became short and gas lines long earlier this year will be back to normal service.

But Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., the chief House negotiator, said it's still too early in the negotiating process to declare a deadlock. "I'm confident our negotiations will result in a bill that will have adequate standby rationing provisions," he said.

The Senate proposal now on the bargaining table would allow the president to invoke rationing — subject to a one-house veto — if the shortage were as small as 10 percent. And if the shortage exceeded 20 percent, the president could bypass Congress entirely and put the plan into effect directly.

Under the Senate "offer," Congress also would have a chance to block any rationing scheme the president devises — in advance of an emergency that might require its use.

This prior-review provision is not in the House bill and is being fought by the White House and by House leaders.

House conferees, who must now either accept the Senate proposal or come forward with a counter-proposal of their own, are trying to devise a formula that falls somewhere between the original House bill with its 20 percent trigger and the complex Senate proposal.

In other congressional energy action, the House Commerce Committee is continuing its work on President Carter's proposal for an Energy Mobilization Board capable of cutting through bureaucratic red tape and speeding approval of major energy projects. And the Senate Finance Committee is considering amendments to President Carter's proposal to tax the "windfall" revenues oil companies will collect as a result of oil-price deregulation.

Adults desiring to learn the newest disco dances might try calling the Midland Parks and Recreation Department.

The department is sponsoring adult disco classes from 7 to 9 p.m. beginning Sept. 24 and continuing for eight weeks.

Instructor will be Jenice Miller, who began teaching dance in 1970 in New Orleans, La. Since the recent disco craze, Ms. Miller has been specializing in working with adults who would like to feel more comfortable on the dance floor. She also teaches aerobics and is a fifth degree black belt student in Tae-Kwon-Do karate.

"Both of these activities are a great way for couples to have fun together and stay in shape at the same time," she points out, "so grab your mate and come on down to the Y."

Interested persons can obtain more information by stopping by the Y at 800 N. Big Spring St. or telephoning 683-2551.

AT WIT'S END

Jeans

By ERMA BOMBECK

In a recent issue of Saturday Review, John Mariani wrote an intriguing article on American products.

The consensus was startling. It seems we are noted throughout the world for only three products that we make better than anyone else: washing machines, toilet paper and jeans.

That is the most depressing thing I have ever read. It means jeans are as good as they're ever going to get.

Ever since they appeared on the fashion scene nearly a decade ago, I have had a wish. Just once I'd like to wear a pair of jeans with the shirt tucked INSIDE.

I have never seen proportions so inconsistent. When the leg fits, the seat blouses. When the seat fits, the waistband gaps. When the waistband fits, the zipper won't meet. When all of the above fits, you have to have an 18-inch hem in them.

Jeans are possibly the only secret weapon that the Russians refused to invent after it was produced. In fact, they can't even copy them and I think I know why. Russians are too practical. I can just see a garment industry in Odessa where the tables are laid with blue denim and the tailors are poised over it with chalk, while on the wall for easy reference is the form of a female.

She is built like a parking meter. He chalks and he cuts. He pieces and he pins.

Finally, in exasperation, he throws down his chalk and removes his glasses. "It can't be done," he says.

"Who can wear pants that have only three inches between the crotch and the waistband? Who would buy something that stands up long after you've sat down? Who can wear legs so small they should have a message strapped to them? I tell you the Americans have beat us. It's impossible."

A few years ago, my husband and I visited Russia and their infatuation with jeans is not just propaganda. It's true. We heard stories of how Russians approached Americans and offered them valuable icons, medals and even rubles for their jeans.

I even heard where one visitor was thrown to the ground and the jeans pulled right off her body.

I wasn't shocked. It seemed like a humane way to get out of jeans to me.

Miss Fyffe, J. Gunn wed

Seating the guests were Scott Gunn, brother of the bridegroom from Midland; Todd Gunn, brother of the bridegroom from Rio de Janeiro, Brazil; Ron Anderson of Midland and Bill Rawls of Midland.

Groomsmen were Ron Anderson and Bill Rawls.

The couple has planned a wedding trip to Rio de Janeiro, Brazil. They are residing at Rt. 3, Box 383B, in Midland.

Bridge group meets

Hostesses were Teddie Stickney and Frances Highsmith.

Parents want to teach kids

NEW YORK (AP) — A great majority — 84 percent — of parents still want to be the main source of birth-control information for their teen-age children. This is among the findings of The General Mills American Family Report 1978-79: Family Health in an Era of Stress.

The study, conducted by the research firm of Yankelovich, Skelly and White, showed that only a small minority — 7 percent — are ready to see the schools take over the responsibility, while 6 percent were willing to have teen-agers receive the information from doctors.

Efforts to fight illiteracy are lagging in U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government efforts to overcome illiteracy in the United States have lagged because of the limited funds available for adult education, a federal official says.

Shirley A. Jackson, director of the Right to Read program in the U.S. Office of Education, said Monday a Ford Foundation report criticizing the effectiveness of government programs against illiteracy was accurate in many respects.

But she said the report is an indictment "of the levels of commitment for adult literacy in this country," not of the programs themselves.

Federal studies have estimated at least 22 million Americans are functionally illiterate, and that millions more have trouble in their everyday lives caused by limited reading and writing abilities.

The Ford Foundation study noted that only 1.7 million people are served by adult basic education programs, which began in 1964 and now receive more than $200 million a year in federal, local and state aid.

The Right to Read program was launched in 1971 with a goal of overcoming adult illiteracy in a decade.

But last year the $26 million program reached only 44,000 people, which Ms. Jackson said is "one-tenth of 1 percent of the target."

The Ford report said, "Publicly proclaimed goals and actual achievements are far apart." It recommended setting up community-based development projects in poor communities on the premise that the poor would seek to improve their communication skills as they organized.

Ms. Jackson said Americans seem to be "more amenable to providing services to the children of these people" than to adult illiterates themselves.

She said some of the Right to Read program's academies are organized along community lines in dire poverty areas.

Beginning swim classes for women only began yesterday and will continue through Dec. 21 at Alamo YMCA, 901 N. Midland Drive. Instructor Helen Cumbie, left, is with a student, Vera Stanley. The classes will be held from 11:30 to 12:30 p.m. Monday, Tuesday and Thursday. Registration can be made at Alamo Y and the fee is $5 for Y members and $15 for non-members.

DEAR ABBY
Making it right with the Lord
By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
DEAR ABBY: Some years ago I helped one of my tenants cheat the electric company by installing a special outlet wired ahead of the meter so she could use electricity free. I did it because I felt the electric company had treated her unfairly by cutting off her service before giving her enough of a chance to pay the money she owed them, then charging her an unjust amount to turn it back on.
She's a poor widow on Social Security. I'm charging her about half the rent someone else would be willing to pay.
This lady got away with about $150 worth of electricity before deciding she was even with them, then she asked me to restore her meter to its original state, which I did. Now she's paying for her electricity like everybody else.
Her health has been failing lately, and she told me she wants to make things right with the Lord before she dies. I feel sorry for her and hate to spoil her chances for getting into heaven. Also, I don't want to make my own chances any worse, which aren't too good to start with.
Abby, which one of us will be held accountable for the stolen electricity come judgement day? And how can we both make things right with the Lord? — OMIT THE TOWN IN IOWA
DEAR OMIT: Come judgement day, you BOTH will be held accountable for the stolen electricity. And to make things right with the Lord, first you'd better make things right with the electric company!
DEAR ABBY: We have a family problem. Our mother, an intelligent woman in all other respects, is married to a man who does not work. He lives off her money.
Our mother's husband has made all her children (grown) feel unwelcome in their home. Nothing we can say will make mother see the light.
How do you suggest we cope with this? — JUST PLAIN ANGRY
DEAR ANGRY: Philosophically. Ask the Lord to grant you the serenity to accept the things you cannot change, the courage to change the things you can. And the wisdom to know the difference.

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: This could be period for long range readjustment. You begin questioning some career goals and work habits may be subject to change. Financial picture brightens. Health improves. Mate, partner exerts more influence. Romance can be happy and exciting, but marriage may not be in this year's plan.
ARIES (March 21-April 19): Accept invitation you previously rejected. Social affairs may lead to useful business contacts. Some concepts, ideas need time to develop. Express yourself so loved one understands.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Your personality wins you new friends, of both sexes. Project will get approval sooner if you refine details. Balance is key to success now. Be reasonable and mate will come around.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Experiment. Ask questions and insist on answers. You could find solution to problems if you do. Money may be cause of dispute with spouse. Spend more time reading.
CANCER (June 21-July 22): Avoid secret ventures. Profits improve through team effort. Intelligence and/or communication is highlighted.
Powerful attraction may be your undoing. Use common sense to provide balance.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Smaller goals may be more important now than larger ones. Discussion with member of opposite sex is stimulating. Try to defer domestic problems until a more opportune time.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Finish project already under way to increase profits. Foreign contacts can be key to success; use them judiciously. Clarify ideas and plans. Provide guidance to someone in need.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Be thorough in all that you undertake. Group connections may be disruptive, preventing you from protecting your own best interests. Trust intuition. Accomplish something that has been weighing on your mind.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Hobbies, avocations take on new meaning, even may add to family income. Financial affairs may pose problems. An old resentment may flare up due to something beyond your control; remain calm.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): What has been hidden may be brought into open. Associate or friend may help you put plans to work. Profits due to rise. Be confident and firm in proposing new project.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Grasp overall concept and you may be able to speed up progress. Your morale is boosted when member of opposite sex pays compliment. Keep feet on ground or financial condition could endanger savings.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Expand horizons. Mate supports your plan. Older associate may also lend a helping hand. Show gratitude in meaningful way. One who recently was difficult, stubborn now supports you.
PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Get out and meet new people; you could learn from experience and it could lead to romance as well. However, grass is not necessarily greener elsewhere. Take inventory before proposing new project. Check budget too.
