None injured when tornado hits Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — A tornado aimed its scatter gun fury at an affluent, heavily populated residential area on Houston's west side, destroying 10 homes and damaging 40 others but causing only minor injuries and no deaths, authorities said.

"There was this terrific noise and all the windows blew out at one time," said Susan Whitworth, 27. "The front doors blew off their hinges and the brick living room wall was completely blown in."

The twister dipped down in the Country Village subdivision late Tuesday afternoon, wrecked a house on one block, then skipped to another area to continue its destruction.

There was no immediate estimate of damage to the approximately 50 homes in the stricken area off the Katy Freeway. But John Caswell, the Harris County assistant Civil Defense director, said 10 of the houses were destroyed.

He said about 20 families were left homeless by the twister, but found shelter with friends and relatives.

Another tornado touched down

Tuesday in Brazoria County, south of Houston, causing $15,000 damage to a business office and slightly damaging several homes, a sheriff's department spokesman said.

A third tornado ripped roofs off of mobile homes, overturned a car and blew out windows and doors in several houses northwest of Houston in Harris County Tuesday afternoon.

There were no reports of injuries. The twisters were spawned in clouds that soaked the Houston area with a day long rain that caused street flooding in some areas. Emergency vehicles en route to the scene also were hampered by the snarled rush-hour traffic.

Police closed the area to all but residents Tuesday night in a security measure to prevent looting.

But for some residents, there was little left to guard.

"It only lasted a couple of minutes, but now everything is gone, all my china, all my furniture, all gone," said Nancy Weisler, 24, who had moved into her home three weeks ago.

Houstonite Joe Termina takes comfort in briefly hugging his 6-year-old son Joey after a tornado heavily damaged their home in west Houston. The twister did major damage to about 20 homes and apartments in the fashionable neighborhood, but no one was injured. (AP Laserphoto)

U.S. military due build-up, but gradually

WASHINGTON (AP) — Administration planners intend to build a new "rapid deployment" military force to face the possibility of aggressive moves by a new generation of Soviet leaders.

"We mean to build up slowly to be ready for the problems of the 1980s and 1990s," said one administration official. "I don't see it as a crash program."

This official, who asked to remain anonymous, said the United States should have the capability to send "significant forces" swiftly into areas where the United States does not maintain a continuing military presence.

Looking beyond aging Soviet Premier Leonid Brezhnev and his generation of Russian leaders, administration planners say they are concerned that Brezhnev's successors may be inclined to follow a bolder policy in projecting Soviet influence and power around the world.

One of the strongest supporters of the "rapid deployment" concept is Zbigniew Brzezinski, President Carter's national security adviser.

Brzezinski told reporters Tuesday that "we need to compete with the Soviets assertively in those parts of the world wherever the Soviets impose on us such a competition either directly or indirectly."

Brzezinski is concerned by what he perceives to be an increasing tendency by the Soviets to exert their power in the Middle East, Africa, and the Caribbean area, using Cubans as proxies.

Acting on Carter's orders, Pentagon staff officers have been developing plans for a force of up to 100,000 troops which could, in emergencies, be airlifted from the United States to regions such as the oil-producing Persian Gulf.

Administration officials stressed they are contemplating a broader scope for such a force than the Persian Gulf or Middle East. They said they anticipate a great deal of turbulence and violence in coming decades in the Third World, including Africa, Latin America and Southeast Asia.

Army chiefs are planning a force of about three divisions that can sustain itself without reinforcement for 60 days in a remote area. The Army would deploy smaller units if a particular crisis situation warranted a lesser force.

Gen. Edward C. Meyer, Army chief of staff, said Monday a headquarters and planning staff for a rapid deployment force will be "well on the way to reality" early next year.

Administration officials suggested the possibility of limited exercises and the "pre-positioning" of some equipment for the force overseas while it is taking shape.

One of the problems which must be solved is a shortage of strategic airlift capable of hauling large shipments of heavy weapons, ammunition, equipment and supplies over long distances.

This is a high priority Pentagon program, but experts say it will take years and hundreds of millions of dollars to complete.

U.S. personnel will be sent to Sinai desert as observers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States reached apparent agreement Wednesday with Egypt and Israel on a Sinai peacekeeping force that involves the use of American observers, U.S. officials said.

In addition to using U.S. observers, the arrangement calls for reconnaissance flights to monitor Israel's return of the desert to Egyptian control.

The State Department has begun consultations with Congress to seek approval of the U.S. presence in the region. The officials, who asked not to be identified, said the ground forces would be composed primarily of Egyptians and Israelis.

The breakthrough came in the second day of talks involving Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, Israel's Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan and Defense Minister Ezer Weizman and Egyptian Defense Minister Kemal Hassan Ali.

$10.2 million school bond issue set for Oct. 23

By SUSAN TOTH
Staff Writer

Midlanders will be asked to approve $10.2 million in school bonds Oct. 23 for items school trustees call "the bare necessities."

Passage of the bond issue, officially called at a special meeting of the school board Tuesday, will cost Midlanders an extra 6.6 cents on their tax rate next year, with the average tax increase over the 15-year life of the bonds about five cents.

About half the $10.2 million will be earmarked for Midland High School expansion and renovation.

Lee High School will get another $1.27 million, while an elementary school in the growing northwest section of Midland will account for $2.1 million.

Vocational facilities will require $431,000, and $844,600 will go for other capital improvements in the bond plan outlined by the board Tuesday.

A million dollars of the $5.5 million going to Midland High School will be used for land acquisition next to the campus.

The board plans to purchase the 13 remaining pieces of property next to the campus to expand the athletic practice fields and build a $2.4 million athletic facility.

Another half-million dollars will be used to remodel the current Midland High gym into a library-learning center, one of the more essential elements of the expansion, trustees said.

District officials plan to spend $300,000 on a Midland High boiler house and the remainder of the $5.5 million for such items as reroofing, auditorium refurbishing, swimming pool renovations and an overhaul of the air conditioning system.

Almost half the $1.27 million set aside for Lee High School will be used for a $500,000 vocational agriculture farm project area.

Lee students now have to drive to the Midland High facility for their farm projects, trustees have noted, and travel time takes most of the class period.

Other major items on tap for Lee include $313,000 for air conditioner and boiler replacements, $122,000 for acquiring the vacant strip of land across Neely Avenue from the school and paving it for a parking lot and $110,000 for reroofing.

Other vocational facilities included in the bond election are a $148,500 CVAE facility at Goddard Junior High School, a $108,000 addition to the CVAE and industrial arts shop at San Jacinto, $26,000 for a CVAE horticulture greenhouse at Midland Freshman School and $148,500 for a building trades facility to be shared by both high schools.

The $844,600 planned for other capital improvements will be spent on basics such as reroofing four schools for $210,500, replacing incandescent lights with fluorescent fixtures in 16 elementary schools for $145,000 and replacing heaters in 11 elementary schools for $160,000.

Other major capital expenditures include $134,700 worth of lockers for five schools, $36,200 to recover 6,580 seats at the stadium, $44,000 to pave or sealcoat parking lots and $30,000 for resurfacing tennis courts at four schools.

Trustees said they were optimistic the all-or-nothing, one-item bond package would appeal to voters, despite the recent defeat of two-thirds of the city's $16.83 million bond request.

The tax increase needed to fund the bond package is modest, trustees said Tuesday, even based on a steady rather than growing tax base.

The 4 percent average increase over the 15-year life of the bonds is projected on the current value of property in Midland, Trustee Joe Dominey noted.

"If we assume an increase in the tax base from increasing residential and industrial growth, the increase will actually be less," said Dominey.

"I think we've done our homework and the need is there," Trustee Johnny Warren said. "I'm optimistic (about the chance of the bonds passing) because Midland is a progressive town. I think we can show the citizens there is a real need and they will go along with us."

Americans undecided about wage, price controls

But they are clear in criticizing Carter's guidelines as inefficient

NEW YORK (AP) — Americans are split on the wisdom of mandatory wage and price controls, mainly because they doubt such measures would control inflation, an Associated Press-NBC News poll says.

But the public clearly doesn't think the Carter administration's voluntary wage and price guidelines are succeeding in slowing the inflationary spiral as evidenced by the fact that a majority expects more inflation in the future.

Those voluntary guidelines are now undergoing a major restructuring, with an announcement of the new rules expected about the end of the month.

Questioned directly on wage and price controls, 46 percent favored such measures, while 44 percent opposed them. Ten percent of the 1,599 adults interviewed nationwide by telephone Sept. 10 and 11 were not sure.

Because of the error margin inherent in any sample survey, the 46-44 finding can only be called an even split in public opinion. It is not possible to say with assurance that the public favors wage price controls.

The latest finding shows a very slight weakening of support for mandatory controls. In the April AP-NBC News survey, the public split 49-43 in favor of controls, with 8 percent undecided.

A major reason Americans aren't too hot for controls is that they don't think such measures would work.

Only 33 percent of those questioned said wage and price controls would succeed in controlling inflation while 53 percent said such measures would fail and 14 percent were not sure.

The responses to these questions are directly related.

Facts about the poll

NEW YORK (AP) — Interviews with 1,599 adults across the country Sept. 10-11 were the basis for the Associated Press-NBC News poll on mandatory wage and price controls.

Telephone numbers for interviews were chosen at random in a manner that assures every household in the country with a telephone a roughly equal chance of being selected.

A procedure was used in the interviewing to assure the proper balance of male and female respondents.

Green monster seeds to sell for just $100 a dozen

HOPE, Ark. (AP) — Seems like you can't buy anything cheap anymore. Ivan Bright and his son Lloyd plan to sell their watermelon seeds for $8.33 each, or eight for $50, or a dozen for $100.

But these aren't just any old seeds. They come from the Bright's 200-pound melon that eclipsed the 197-pounder listed in the 1979 Guinness Book of World Records. Hope city officials certified the melon's weight after it was picked late last month.

The Brights are preserving the monster melon in a cool room until the Arkansas State Fair at Little Rock later this month. Ivan says he will cut the melon at the end of the fair. With an estimated 600 to 700 seeds inside his beauty and people reportedly lining for a share, he hopes to make more than $5,000.

But that won't necessarily make Ivan Bright a happy man.

The Hope Advertising and Promotion Commission had offered a $10,000 prize for a 200-pound melon at the Hope Watermelon Festival. Bright's melon didn't reach 200 pounds until 33 hours after the contest deadline elapsed.

Those who think controls will work favor such measures by a 77-18 margin. Those who don't think controls will work are opposed to mandatory government actions by a 64-29 edge.

As September opened, the public didn't think much of the voluntary guidelines.

Sixty-one percent said they expect inflation to get worse in the next year, while only 9 percent expect the pace of rising prices to slacken. Twenty-eight percent expect inflation to remain at current levels and 2 percent were not sure.

Thus, more than three out of five Americans continued to believe inflation is still out of control.

For polls with about 1,600 interviews, the results should vary no more than 3 percentage points either way simply because of sample error. That is, if one could talk to all adults in the country, there is only one chance out of 20 that the results would vary from the findings of this poll by more than 3 percentage points.

United Way schedules Kick-off Fair Saturday

Midlanders will have the opportunity Saturday to find out how their United Way of Midland contributions work in the community.

The United Way Kick-off Fair will be held from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. in Dellwood Mall.

Staff members and volunteers from the 19 United Way agencies in Midland will be on hand to inform Midlanders about the work of each agency and to help kick off the general campaign for 1980.

Formal ceremonies will begin at 11 a.m. This will be followed with short presentations by the agencies and a performance by the rock group "Thunderhead."

Kick-off of the general campaign also signals the end of the pilot campaign of 15 Midland firms which agreed to be pacesetters for the general campaign.

The pilot firms this year include Adobe Oil and Gas Corp.; Atlantic Richfield; Elcor-Orloff Corp.; The First National Bank; Fox, Westheimer & Co.; Getty Oil Co. and Lynch, Chappell, Allday & Aldridge.

Other pilot firms included Midland National Bank; The Midland Reporter-Telegram; Schlumberger; Sears, Roebuck & Co.; Frank See Chevrolet; Texas Electric Service Co.; Texas Instruments Inc. and Tom Brown, Inc.

Heroin offered, attorney claims

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — An FBI agent offered heroin to three persons in exchange for their cooperation in his investigation of a 1977 slaying in the Bexar County Jail, the defense attorney for a federal jail captain has claimed in federal court.

Attorney Oscar Gonzalez said in a pretrial hearing Tuesday that the agent, Joe Davis, made the offers to three persons subsequently charged with criminal civil rights violations in the case.

Julian de la Rosa, assistant agent in charge in the San Antonio FBI office, declined Tuesday night to comment on the allegation. Davis has also declined comment.

Eight persons are charged with civil rights violations in the September 1977 death of Hugo Ellis Saenz. Saenz, who was awaiting trial on charges of killing the sister of Robert Riojas, was slain in his jail cell.

Four of Saenz' fellow inmates — Johnny Rodriguez Salinas, Eddie Rivera, Martin Reyes and Felix Ricondo — have been convicted of state charges in the slaying and another, Jose Luis Maldonado, still faces trial.

The federal civil rights indictment charges Saenz was killed in a revenge plot masterminded by Riojas.

receiving money from Riojas to move the inmates into the same cell with Saenz.

Ricondo is an unindicted co-conspirator and is expected to be an important government witness in the case.

Meanwhile, Rivera pleaded guilty Tuesday to conspiracy charges that carry a maximum sentence of 10 years in prison.

Report examines effects of SALT II rejection

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressional report says Senate rejection of the SALT II treaty could add billions of dollars to U.S. defense budgets by exposing the new mobile MX missile system to the threat of a potentially successful Soviet attack.

The Congressional Budget Office report issued Tuesday also said a Soviet buildup after rejection of SALT II could require additional spending to protect the U.S. bomber fleet from attack.

The report requested by the Senate Foreign Relations and Budget committees said it is not possible to pinpoint exactly how much might have to be spent if the treaty is rejected because the Soviet reaction cannot be predicted with any certainty.

But it said the pact does limit what Soviet military planners would otherwise be able to achieve.

"If SALT II were not in effect, and the Soviets chose to employ their demonstrated capacity to expand their strategic forces beyond the limits permitted by the treaty, such a buildup could measurably complicate the problem of maintaining survivable U.S. forces," the report said.

For example, it said the Soviets might choose to deploy independently targetable warheads on the intercontinental ballistic missiles in all of their 1,398 silos instead of stopping at the SALT II limit of 820.

If that were to happen, the United States would have to spend up to $13 billion to achieve the same level of survivability for its new landbased MX missile system as would be afforded under the limits of SALT II at no additional cost, the budget office said.

The MX is designed to replace in large part the present Minuteman missile force, based in fixed silos, which is threatened by the development of accurate and powerful Soviet missiles.

The vulnerability of the Minuteman is to be offset by basing the mobile MX missile in a network of hardened shelters. The objective is to build more shelters than could be destroyed by available Soviet warheads, although not each shelter would contain a missile. The Soviets would not know which shelters contained missiles at any one time and which did not.

The budget office said without SALT II, the Soviets could threaten MX by deploying substantially more warheads.

It said the only countermove available to the United States would be to build more shelters.

Consequently, the report said it is clear the SALT II treaty and the extension of its limits into the 1990's could enhance the survivability of the planned U.S. missile force.

The report noted that under SALT II, the United States is permitted to replace aging nuclear strategic systems and modernize its strategic forces.

It estimated that Carter administration proposals would increase spending on strategic systems from $10.9 billion in fiscal 1980 to $19.3 billion in fiscal 1984.

Laid-off workers 'save' plant

By JIM MCKAY

JEANNETTE, Pa. (AP) — When ASG Industries closed its glass factory in this southwestern Pennsylvania town last December, its laid-off workers decided to buy the place.

"It's really exciting," said Clara Mangieri, an employee for 34 years. "Everybody will be looking at us. But I know we can do it. It means all working together."

Mrs. Mangieri and about 350 other former ASG workers begin today filing applications for their old jobs with the new Jeannette Sheet Glass Corp. Some could begin work next month.

"As far as I know it's the first wholly-owned employee stock ownership plan in Pennsylvania — the first plant being purchased and operated by its workers," said Ron Makoski, a lawyer who helped organize the purchase.

Makoski said the federal Economic Development Administration has indicated it will guarantee a $2.8 million loan from Pittsburgh National Bank for purchasing the plant from ASG, a Tennessee-based firm controlled by the Fourco Co. of West Virginia.

Other funds promised for the purchase and operation of the 32-acre plant site include $720,000 from the Pennsylvania Industrial Development Authority and $680,000 from the workers — about $2,000 apiece, Makoski said.

"It's going to be operated by the employees. They all have to invest to get back to work, but we're all going to have shares," said Mrs. Mangieri, whose husband was also an ASG employee.

The employees hope to close the deal in mid-October. Then they have to clean up the plant and prepare its brick furnace, which now holds 12 feet of hardened glass.

The plant will be non-union when it reopens, but

Ron Herman, local president of the American Federation of the Glass and Ceramic Workers, said the workers are eager and serious. "They know there's no tomorrow," he said. "They can't play around. You can't strike yourself."

Jeannette, a closely knit Westmoreland County community of about 15,000, was founded nearly a century ago by glassmakers who valued the area's clean sand and abundant natural gas.

Before it closed, the ASG plant was the only U.S. factory producing micro-glass, a paper-thin product often used in hospital laboratories. But its main product was window glass.

"Historically speaking, we can gross 255 tons of glass a day," said Mrs. Mangieri. "We cut it to size. We make the containers for it. We pack it and we ship it."

But ASG apparently felt the plant's 50-year-old method of glass manufacturing was obsolete, and repeatedly laid off workers before finally closing down.

Even then, Makoski believes ASG made a profit and predicts Jeannette Sheet Glass will do well. A distributor has already promised to buy 85 percent of its production.

"Most of our people ran out of unemployment compensation from four to eight weeks ago," Makoski said. "The mood is very high. Everyone's anxious to get back."

Davis' fingerprints not found on items

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — An arresting officer says FBI lab technicians did not find Cullen Davis' fingerprints on any of the crucial evidence rounded up after the millionaire's arrest last summer.

Justice of the Peace Morris Howeth, who was a district attorney's investigator at the time, testified he took the evidence to Washington after arresting Davis Aug. 20, 1978.

The evidence included a .22-caliber pistol and silencer, a faked photograph of Judge Joe Eidsion's "body" and the jurist's identification cards.

The testimony came Tuesday during Davis' murder-for-hire trial. The 45-year-old millionaire is charged with soliciting the murder of Eidsion, his divorce judge, and others.

Howeth told jurors the silencer-equipped pistol was found wrapped in a towel in the trunk of Davis' Cadillac shortly after the arrest.

Davis and informant David McCrory are seen looking over the gun in a secretly recorded videotape of the meeting that preceded Davis' arrest.

A two-inch-thick stack of 250 $100 bills which McCrory says Davis gave him to pay off a phantom "hit man" also was introduced into evidence.

Davis maintains the money belonged to McCrory. The defendant says he held the money for safekeeping and returned it to McCrory during the meeting.

Howeth also said a crime scene search inspector found no traces of a fluorescent powder in Davis' car. FBI agents treated the staged photograph with the powder, which should rub off and appear under an ultraviolet light.

McCrory has testified that Davis held the photo only by the edges. Davis contends he never saw the picture.

Senate panel says it found 'no evidence' that John Connally misused his influence

WASHINGTON (AP)— A Senate committee has found "no evidence" indicating John Connally used his influence as treasury secretary to obtain national bank charters for Texas associates, says a committee spokesman.

10,000 Texans may not get spring scholarships

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — An estimated 10,000 Texas college students could miss out on scholarships next spring as a result of the federal government's decision to withhold $4.1 million in funds, says the state commissioner of higher education.

"At this time the (U.S.) Office of Education is waiting for us to throw in the towel and accept their conditions," Kenneth Ashworth said Tuesday. "Frankly, I think we're going to lose the money."

Bible colleges and hospitals offering one-year allied health programs dominate the list of 34, Ashworth said in a statement, and none is accredited by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools.

The Dallas Morning News had reported in a copyright story that the Senate Banking Committee was checking an "unusual pattern" of national bank charters granted to Connally's friends and associates during his tenure in the Nixon administration.

Connally, now a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, was treasury secretary from 1971 to 1972.

When the former Texas governor was in Dallas on Monday he dismissed an article that singled out the charter for that city's Love Field National Bank. Connally called the article a "vicious smear piece" that was "political from end to end."

McLean said the committee's study was not an investigation of Connally but a broader look at procedures for granting national bank charters.

The seven banks mentioned by the Dallas newspaper in connection with Connally were among more than 1,000 cases the staff looked at around the nation, he said.

McLean said the staff was presently compiling the information for a report to the committee later this year, with hearings on national bank charters to be scheduled possibly next year.

National bank charters are granted by the U.S. comptroller of the currency.

PUC recommends giving Ma Bell rate she wants

AUSTIN (AP) — For the first time since the state began regulating telephone rates in 1976, Texas Public Utility Commission staffers have recommended giving Southwestern Bell as big a rate increase as Ma Bell wants.

Correction of a computation error caused the staff to change its recommendation in the Bell case from $136.4 million to $145.2 million in higher rates — the same as Bell requested. The three-member commission usually follows staff recommendations in rate cases.

One result of the changed recommendation could be higher residential telephone bills than the staff previously suggested. A week ago, staff economist Julie Parsons proposed across-the-board increases within a range of 80 cents to $1.10 a month.

"She (Ms. Parsons) is taking a look at everything else before she says the additional money has got to come out of local exchange (basic monthly telephone rates)," said PUC general counsel John Bell.

But if other Bell services can absorb no further increases, the extra money will have to come from basic monthly charges, he said.

"I hope it won't be over $1.10," John Bell said.

The staff said Bell actually was entitled to revenue increases totaling $156.4 million over a 12-month period. But state law says a utility can get no more than it has requested, and Bell's request was for $145.2 million.

Bell, in turn, says it really needs $242.9 million but trimmed its request to stay within President Carter's 7 percent guideline for price increases.

"If this were a normal rate case, they (Bell) would have asked $243 million and we would have come in at $156 million and we would have fought it out," said John Bell.

He said the change in the staff recommendation has at least the potential of shortening the hearing, which began its third week Tuesday and could go as long as four weeks.

"It seems rather moot to continue to fight, as far as the revenue requests," Bell said. But, he added, if the change could provoke longer cross-examination of PUC staffers by opponents of the increase.

John Wilson, a Washington, D.C., economic consultant, was cross-examined at length Tuesday on his testimony that Bell was trying to over-charge answering services.

Wilson said Bell's proposed $600,000-a-year increase in revenue from answering services was "predatory and ruinous." He said Bell had documentary proof that "severe price increases for telephone answering services would threaten the industry's very existence."

Wilson said Bell also has an "interest in obtaining a competitive pricing advantage for its own call forwarding and other special customer service options."

But federal agency orders inquiry into ATT profits

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission has ordered an inquiry into whether the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. is making higher profits than authorized and whether a refund is in order.

At the same time, the commission turned down the telephone company's request for temporary permission to earn a rate of return of 10.38 percent — higher than the maximum 10 percent rate now permitted.

If the inquiry finds the 10 percent maximum has been exceeded since January 1978, refunds of up to $160 million could be ordered for the Bell System's customers of long distance and other interstate services.

AT&T says it is "naturally disappointed" in the FCC's action but confident that at hearings it will prove the need for a higher rate of return.

The telephone company said the higher profit margin would have been earned "through our own efficiencies and productivity — not through rate increases."

"There have been no general increases in interstate rates since February 1976 and we have pledged that we will not seek such an increase this year," AT&T said.

Last spring, when the matter first rose, Esther Peterson, President Carter's consumer affairs adviser, asked the FCC to order a refund.

She calculated the extra profits at $200 million and called them "excessive and apparently unlawful."

The possibility that AT&T has been making unauthorized profits came to light in March when the FCC staff studied the firm's request for an interim increase in its permissible rate of return.

A rate of return for a regulated utility is a profit margin — a percentage of a firm's total investment it is permitted to recapture as profits each year.

The FCC fixes the Bell System's rate of return for its interstate operations and private lines. State utility commissions fix the rate for local and intrastate service.

Papers filed by the company showed it had been exceeding the authorized profit rate ceiling. By some calculations, the rate of return was 10.02 percent.

H-bomb letter writer surprised his work subject of orders, threats

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Charles Hansen says he's baffled by the storm swirling around his H-bomb letter, the target of court orders and Justice Department threats.

At a news conference, the self-described amateur hydrogen bomb expert told reporters Tuesday that the letter he sent to several newspapers, with details on the construction of a hydrogen bomb, didn't contain enough information for an individual to build one. Hansen said he couldn't build one himself.

Furthermore, said the bearded, short-haired computer programmer from Mountain View, building a nuclear weapon could cost "billions of dollars" since it would require an "extensive, expensive industrial base."

The information in the letter, gleaned from public documents and other publicly accessible data, was more "conceptual than how-to," he said.

In an appearance today on ABC's "Good Morning America" program, Hansen, 32, said, "I wanted to show that they were nothing more than pieces of hardware, how they're produced and how they work."

He asserted that private citizens were called on the carpet by the government for using information made public by scientists.

"If they want to be concerned about something, they should be concerned with the people who have authority over the bomb," he said.

As for his possible criminal prosecution by the Justice Department, Hansen said Tuesday, "I don't believe I've broken any laws."

Mark Topel, Hansen's attorney, called the thought of prosecution under the Atomic Energy Act "foolhardy."

The Justice Department said earlier it would begin a "preliminary inquiry" to determine whether criminal prosecution would be pursued for violation of the act.

Conviction of violating the act carries a prison sentence of up to 10 years and a $10,000 fine.

So far, the letter has been published in part by the Madison, Wis., Press Connection and Berkeley's student-run Daily Californian. The Chicago Tribune published the entire text. A court order blocking publication of the letter in the Daily Californian was tossed out by a San Francisco judge after the Wisconsin paper printed the article in a special Sunday edition.

Hansen, who studies nuclear information as a hobby, told reporters the letter evolved from a request by Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., for information in connection with Howard Morland's article on "The H-Bomb Secret" for the Progressive magazine. He said the letters were sent to the newspapers "as an afterthought."

"I had no idea the material was as sensitive as it was," he said.

Although Hansen said he wouldn't favor publication of an article describing in detail how to make a hydrogen bomb, he said newspapers should have the final word on what articles to print in their own publications.

Smith named in Big Spring as new city councilman

BIG SPRING — Jack Smith, one of five Big Spring residents considered to succeed former City Council John Massey, on Tuesday was named to the post by the Big Spring City Council.

Massey, who beat out incumbent Polly Mays in a close election earlier this year, resigned last week and also quit his post as an instructor in law enforcement at Howard College.

"There was not one issue" which led to his dual resignations to enter into an undisclosed business venture outside Big Spring, Massey said.

However, Massey had devoted much of his time as a councilman to "the city's poor financial condition" and pushed for a federal audit of equipment on the former Webb Air Force Base after controversies arose over possible misuse of the equipment.

The base and most of the buildings, facilities and leftover equipment were deemed to the city after the base was shut down two years ago in a peace-time economy move by the Pentagon.

After demanding an audit, Massey was the apparent target of a shotgun blast at his home; he was not injured.

Massey has put his house up for sale, but has declined to say where in Texas he is moving and the type of business he is entering. He said his wife and children already are in East Texas.

Prior to coming to Big Spring, Massey was on the Lubbock police force and later taught at Wayland College at Plainview.

Smith is to serve out the remainder of Massey's unexpired term, which ends in April 1981.

HEW to discontinue review in Ector County school case

ODESSA — The Office of Civil Rights of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare has decided to discontinue a review of findings of racial discrimination against the Ector County school district and has forwarded the federal investigators' report and the school district's rebuttal directly to the Justice Department.

The decision was made, according to Dr. John Bell, director of the OCR in Dallas, because the office has no jurisdiction in the review of its findings compared with the findings of an investigation conducted by the school district.

Ector school officials had not been able to reach Bell this morning to get a clarification on the issue, Ector Schools Superintendent Bill Holm said, and questioned the OCR's original jurisdiction in investigating the matter.

"They referred the rest of the complaints that were in basically the same area directly to the Justice Department" without making an initial investigation and report, Holm said.

Airport document public information

AUSTIN (AP) — The documents a county airport lessee submits to the county on income and expenses are public information, Attorney General Mark White said Tuesday.

White's official opinion was sought by Mike Atkins, Ector County attorney.

White said Atkins had contended the information submitted to the county under terms of the lease agreement is excluded from the Open Records Act.

The attorney general added that previous opinions had stated a governmental body "may not deny public inspection of financial information concerning the performance of a governmental function. We do not believe that the fact that that governmental function is performed by another on behalf of the county ... changes this rule."

Names in the News

NEW YORK (AP) — Mary Tyler Moore, whose last Broadway effort pooped before its premiere, is trying Broadway again — for at least two months on her back, in bed and in a role originally written for a man.

The Emmy-winning CBS star will appear next February in "Whose Life Is It Anyway," which author Brian Clark will extensively rewrite, a spokesman for the hit British comedy said Tuesday.

The play is about a young British sculptor — now played by England's Tom Conti — who, after a car crash, lies totally paralyzed in a London hospital bed, pleading for the right to die.

The new version has Miss Moore as an American woman in the same plight. She'll appear in the show here for eight to 10 weeks, then possibly reprise the role in Los Angeles and San Francisco, the spokesman said.

Miss Moore hasn't appeared on Broadway since 1966, when she was in a musical version of Truman Capote's "Breakfast at Tiffany's." It never officially opened, closing after four preview performances.

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt (AP) — Some 17 years ago, Elizabeth Taylor was barred from filming the movie "Cleopatra" here. But this time she came back as a diplomat. And the shouts that echoed through this ancient city 2,000 years ago for the beloved queen were heard again.

Miss Taylor, wife of Sen. John Warner, R-Va., was the center of attention during a VIP tour Tuesday. She arrived on President Anwar Sadat's private jet for a four-day visit.

The actress was blacklisted by Egypt for her strong support of Israel, but the ban was dropped with the signing of the peace treaty earlier this year.

During her tour, tourists gawked, clicked cameras, and a school boy ran up and kissed her on the cheek as she sat gazing out at the harbor. Later, Miss Taylor was the honored guest at Cairo's fourth annual film festival before flying on to Tel Aviv, Israel, to meet Prime Minister Menachem Begin.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rosalynn Carter found out the hard way that when you greet a visitor in an unfamiliar language the first thing you do is tell him to speak slowly.

Mrs. Carter received a book with five Mexican children Tuesday. An exhibition of paintings and text from the book, "Mexico as Seen by Her Children," opened at the Organization of American States building here earlier in the day.

The first lady, who studies Spanish, greeted the youngsters in their own language and gave them a book about the Executive mansion. But when Gerardo Francisco Lopez, 12, launched into a conversation, Mrs. Carter had to ask him to slow down because she couldn't understand him.

Senate panel considers power to veto FTC ruling

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate panel is considering whether a single house of Congress should be able to veto regulations by the Federal Trade Commission.

In the second day of a series of hearings on the FTC, testimony was scheduled today on a proposal that would make possible a one-house veto over the regulations.

Sentiment for the veto appears to have grown in recent years as the FTC has proposed or approved numerous regulations to protect consumers. The rules — in such diverse areas as television advertising to children, sales practices of funeral homes and advertising of eyeglass prices — have been criticized widely by the regulated industries.

During Tuesday's hearing of the Senate Commerce subcommittee on consumer protection, senators sparred over the legislative veto issue, although the session was supposed to be confined to FTC regulation-writing procedures.

Sen. Harrison Schmitt, D-N.M., arguing for the veto, said, "The elected representatives of the people whose constitutional mandate it is to create the law of the land must have access to a systematic procedure by which we can review and, if warranted, disapprove regulations before they become law."

Schmitt is the most vocal of 34 senators who have endorsed the one-house veto proposal. It has passed the House several times, but has never gotten Senate approval or even been the subject of any previous hearing.

"The FTC's rules...are broad legislative restrictions which Congress has an obligation to study and review before they are imposed on the people," he said.

Subcommittee chairman Wendell H. Ford, D-Ky., opposed this view, saying Congress should exercise its authority over the FTC through oversight hearings.

"I stress oversight of laws already on the books," Ford said. "Unfortunately, I don't think Congress has done this in many cases. Too often, Congress has made broad grants of authority, and it has then been left to the various agencies to carry out the laws as they deemed proper."

As chairman of the panel with oversight power over the FTC, Ford said there would be no lack of vigilance over the FTC.

"We intend to see whether the FTC has been carrying out its authority properly. If it hasn't been, then Congress has the authority to step in," Ford said. This could be done by both houses of Congress passing a bill to nullify an FTC regulation.

While opposing the one-house veto, Ford made clear he is not necessarily a friend of the FTC. "I know of no other agency that has aroused the concern of my constituents as has the FTC," he said.

One witness, Washington attorney Bruce Terris, attributed this to a 1975 law giving the FTC authority to write regulations for entire industries.

"Entire industries have come to Congress asking Congress to wipe out particular regulations or even the FTC's basic authority," said Terris, who has represented consumer groups in FTC proceedings.

Mayors win re-nomination, re-election in Tuesday voting

By The Associated Press

The mayor of San Diego, Calif., won re-election and the mayor of Tucson, Ariz., won re-nomination as a property tax cutting proposal went down to defeat in Dade County, Fla.

San Diego Mayor Pete Wilson gained 61 percent of the vote in a seven-candidate race, downing his nearest rival, former newspaper executive Si Casady, 88,191 to 45,470.

Tucson Mayor Lewis C. Murphy won his third Republican nomination, swamping bar owner Jim Anderson 9,999 to 2,309. City Councilman Ruben Romero won the Democratic nomination.

Residents of the Miami-area voted down the property tax cutting proposal 165,140 to 89,200. Through a mistake supporters made it drafting the proposal, it would have cut county taxes by 99.5 percent. City and other levies would not have been affected, so the total property tax savings would have been from 25 to 43 percent.

King County, Wash., residents voted overwhelmingly in favor of a $50 million bond issue intended to help preserve the county's farmlands, but the measure failed to pass because of low turnout.

Voters gave the issue a better than three-to-one yes vote. But the turnout — probably less than 20 percent — left the measure with too few votes. It requires a 22 percent turnout.

Under the proposal, $50 million from bond sales would have been used to buy development rights for farmlands. The land then would remain in private ownership but could be used only for farming or open space.

New defense budget draws fire

WASHINGTON (AP) — Backers of increased military spending are hailing a Senate vote for 3 percent "real" growth in the 1980 defense budget as a sign of a new U.S. willingness to challenge Soviet military might.

However, critics of higher Pentagon spending say the Senate-approved increase will boost the federal deficit, contribute to inflation and leave less money for social programs.

"I think it means that the U.S. Senate, reflecting the view of the American people, has declared that we are moving out of the post-Vietnam era," declared Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., one of the Pentagon's leading allies on Capitol Hill.

"We're sending strong signals to our allies and our adversaries around the world that while we don't want an arms race, we're not willing to allow a unilateral, one-sided arms race to continue with the Soviet Union being the one that's racing," Nunn added.

The Senate approved the 3 percent increase in 1980 defense spending, after inflation is deducted, on a 78-19 vote Tuesday, only hours after deciding to force $3.6 billion in savings, mostly from social programs.

The increased defense spending would cost $3.2 billion in fiscal 1980, which starts Oct. 1.

The Senate also voted to increase defense spending by 5 percent above inflation in 1981 and 1982, although that $21.7 billion hike would not be binding on the next two Congresses.

President Carter has supported a 3 percent increase in real defense spending and has pledged a hike of that size to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. He has objected, however, to a 5 percent spending hike in 1981 and 1982.

The Senate was set to complete work on its proposed 1980 budget today with the House slated to begin voting on its proposed 1980 spending limits, including a figure for defense.

Differences between the two chambers will be resolved in a conference committee.

The defense spending boost increased the Senate's proposed 1980 budget to $545.3 billion with a projected deficit of $31.6 billion. The Budget Committee had hoped to hold the deficit under $30 billion.

Defense spending has also become a key factor in the SALT II debate with some senators, including Nunn, suggesting their votes might hinge on whether the military budget is increased by 5 percent to 7 percent.

The defense vote, however, was a setback to Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, chairman of the Budget Committee, who had argued that both defense and social programs should absorb some losses due to inflation.

"The greatest threat to our national security is inflation," Muskie said.

Earlier, the Senate voted 90-6 for "reconciliation," an unprecedented attempt to force seven committees to achieve $3.6 billion in savings included in last May's target budget but so far not enacted.

The Budget Committee had originally sought $4 billion in savings. However, Muskie agreed to reduce the amount in a compromise with Democratic leaders last week. All but $100 million of the cuts would come from social programs.

Sen. Ernest F. Hollings, D-S.C., sponsor of the defense spending amendments, said the additional money was needed to upgrade U.S. conventional forces, including NATO infantry equipment, tactical aircraft and attack submarines. "These are not strategic, SALT II items," Hollings said.

After the vote, Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., said many senators were amazed to hear about Soviet military superiority in some areas. "What is it for but to stir up mischief?" Jackson asked.

The House Budget Committee has recommended $548.7 billion in 1980 spending with $128.6 billion for defense and a $29.2 billion deficit.

The House Republican leadership, however, has recommended higher Pentagon spending, a $20 billion tax cut effective Jan. 1, a $19.8 billion deficit and an overall budget trimmed to $529.8 billion.

The Republicans proposed spending cuts across the board, except for defense, but did not specify what programs would be reduced or eliminated.

favoring or disapproving the raise.

Two pay raise opponents said Tuesday House Democratic leaders had worked out a plan to make a recorded vote more difficult.

Reps. Robert Dornan, R-Calif., and Charles E. Grassley, R-Iowa, said the purported plan called for:

- Bringing the legislation directly to the House floor instead of using the traditional route of having it considered by the whole House sitting as a committee.
- Ordering a quorum call to get as many members as possible on the floor.
- If this occurs, they said, opponents would need 44 votes to force a recorded vote, instead of the 25 needed when the House sits as a committee of the whole. And it could be difficult to get that many votes on such a politically sensitive issue.
- The pay proposal is structured so that the House must kill an attempt to raise its pay by 7 percent — or nearly $4,000 — before it can vote on killing the raise entirely.
- If the 7 percent proposal is rejected, the raise drops to 5 percent and a new vote is taken.
- The pay proposal is attached to legislation that will provide emergency operating money to some of the biggest federal departments after this month.

As of Oct. 1, congressmen and bureaucrats making more than $47,500 a year are due a 12.9 percent pay raise because a 1975 law included them in cost-of-living hikes given other federal workers. Last year, Congress deferred the increases.

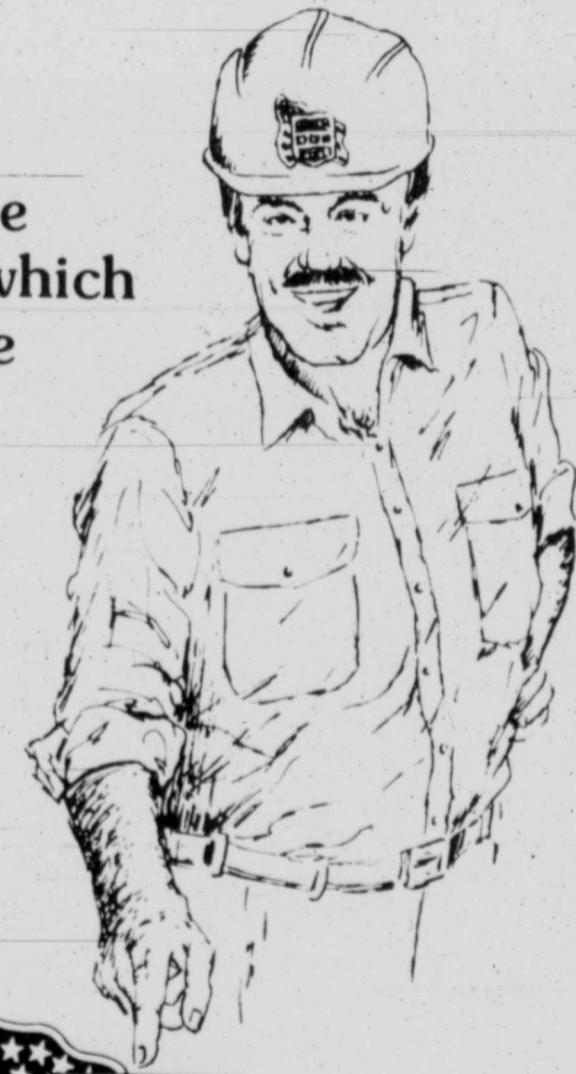

Meanwhile, the AP-NBC News poll found only about 13 percent of the American public gave Congress a good or excellent rating, the lowest figure in three years.

Forty-seven percent of the 1,600 adults polled nationwide by telephone said Congress' work has been "only fair"; 36 percent said it has been poor; and 4 percent were not sure.

The House also faces a divisive battle over a second amendment to the emergency legislation. That amendment would put the House on record as allowing the federal government to pay for poor women's abortions only when the life of the mother is directly threatened.

Valentina and Leonid Kozlov are shown at a party at Paramount Studios in Hollywood last week. On Sunday, the couple, part of the Soviet Union's Bolshoi Ballet, defected, seeking asylum in the United States. They are shown with a record album of the motion picture, "Saturday Night Fever." (AP Laserphoto)

Bolshoi returns to Russia, embittered by loss of three

MOSCOW (AP) — Embittered by the loss of three soloists seeking Western careers, Russia's Bolshoi Ballet troupe returned to a quiet welcome, and one dancer labeled the two latest defectors "scum" who had been given roles beyond their talents.

One tall blond colleague said dancer Leonid Kozlov and his wife Valentina, who defected after taking final bows in the Bolshoi's month-long U.S. tour, had done the unforgivable: "Left the ir parents and homeland."

Kozlov danced the lead in "Swan Lake" Sunday night in Los Angeles, replacing Alexander Gudonov, one of Russia's finest dancers who defected in New York Aug. 22. The Kozlovs slipped away from the company after the final curtain call and sought U.S. asylum Monday morning.

"We couldn't believe it," a female dancer told Western reporters while the 125-member troupe filed through customs at Moscow's Sheremetyevo airport Tuesday.

Other dancers said the Kozlovs' defection upset them, at least in part because they were not considered among the company's most talented performers, despite their solo roles.

Black leader poses with headdress, toy gun, but not for very long

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — An American black leader donned an Arab headdress during a tour of a Palestinian refugee camp and posed for a picture with a toy gun given him by a boy, but another leader confiscated the film.

Lowery said a solution to the Middle East fighting requires "both the Israelis and the Palestinians to be secure in their homelands."

The group was visiting Lebanon as the guest of Yasser Arafat, chairman of the Palestine Liberation Organization. The trip grew out of the resignation last month of U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young, after a flap involving his unauthorized meeting with the PLO's U.N. observer.

Lowery said earlier he expected a mixed reaction from Americans about the visit to Lebanon, which was scheduled to include a meeting with Arafat.

'The pope obeys the law,' says spokesman about dispute

By The Associated Press

A dispute in Boston over who would pay for an altar for the visit of Pope John Paul II has been settled, and in Washington where plans for a papal Mass have been challenged in court a church spokesman says "the pope obeys the law."

"It would be a great pity if the public discussion of financial matters relating to the pope's visit were to distract us from this unique opportunity," said the Rev. William Helmick, the archdiocese's coordinator for the pope's Boston visit.

Helmick said the archdiocese would pay for a $150,000 platform and altar to be used in an open-air Mass on Boston Common on Oct. 1, the first day of the pope's six-day trip to the United States.

The visit should not be an occasion of acrimony or contention among our citizens," he said.

Calling the pope's visit an event meant "to bring us together," the Boston Archdiocese said Tuesday it will pick up the tab for building an altar on the Boston Common.

Still in dispute is whether the pope should be allowed to say Mass on the public Common. A hearing is set for Thursday on a suit filed Tuesday by birth control and abortion advocate William Baird.

The city had proposed paying for the platform, but the Civil Liberties Union of Massachusetts and others objected to the use of public funds for the visit.

In Washington, where the pope concludes his visit Oct. 7, atheist Madalyn Murray O'Hair and her son John Garth Murray have filed suit challenging use of the Mall between the Washington monument and the Capitol for a Mass before possibly 4 million people on Oct. 7.

Wife died because of God's will, says Jehovah's Witness

FALMOUTH, Mass. (AP) — A Jehovah's Witness says he was carrying out God's will when he refused to let doctors give his wife a transfusion as she bled to death during childbirth.

The man said his wife, Eleanor L. Maurer, 31, of Falmouth gave two winks to doctors who asked her if she would permit a transfusion. Two winks was her code for "No," he said.

Mrs. Maurer died Monday after she hemorrhaged while giving birth to her third child, a girl. The baby lived and is being cared for today in Falmouth Hospital.

"We have great respect for life and want to try to keep living and healthy as long as possible," said the husband, John Maurer. "The only restriction we have to abide by is that, as God told all of us in the Bible, to abstain from blood."

Maurer said that before she died, his wife agreed that she should not go against her religion's teaching and accept a transfusion.

Maurer was in the delivery room when his wife began to bleed uncontrollably, but he left while doctors tried to stop the flow.

As he waited, he said, doctors asked him four times to allow them to administer blood, but he refused.

"I understood how serious it was every time, but God is serious, too," Maurer said.

Dr. Raymond Gagnon, who said he provided pre-natal care for Mrs. Maurer, said his patient started bleeding shortly after the child was delivered about 11:30 a.m. He said she died at around 4 p.m.

"I have never seen anyone die in these circumstances," Dr. Gagnon said, "and I hope never to see it again."

"Her husband...was present during labor and in the delivery room. She was conscious. There was no way we could do anything. He was there until the end. He was rather reserved."

"They had signed papers before entering the hospital stating that there was to be no blood transfusion. But there was nothing to foresee this."

"There were several doctors there. People coming in and out, all trying to persuade him. What can you do?"

"It is possible to seek a court order in a life-and-death situation, but there was no time," said hospital Administrator Gerald Flynn.

Inmates take over prison

TERMINI IMERESE, Sicily (AP) — More than 90 inmates, including 50 suspected Red Brigade terrorists, took over the maximum security prison here early today in what a police spokesman called "a lightning revolt."

The prisoners attacked prison guards, took their weapons and uniforms, destroyed furniture and cut power lines to their cells, the spokesman said, adding that they took one guard hostage.

There were no reports of injuries. No other details were immediately available.

Huffman watch the coloring efforts of Jason Chapman, Jason Michael Lewis, Jason Michael Lewis, Jason Davis and Jason Wayne

Lewis. The pair of Jasons on the left attend the morning session, while the other three attend the afternoons.

Truth is stranger than fiction

By MIKE KARDOS
News Staff

"We're about to get them straight, but it was confusing that first week," teacher Dannie Huffman said of the coincidences that left her and co-teacher Annette Bradley with five boys in their kindergarten classes named Jason, three with the same last name.

"I thought there was a mistake in the office because there were three Jason Lewises. I didn't even make extra name tags," Ms. Bradley said of her initial reaction to the Jason Syndrome.

"We thought there was a mistake on the Jason Lewis for sure," Ms. Huffman added.

The convenient answer that some or all of these Jasons are related does not apply in this case.

Morning roll call almost gets redundant as Jason Davis, Jason Michael Lewis and Jason Wayne Lewis answer.

"The main problem I've had this week has been if you have one absent," Ms. Huffman said.

Both teachers must keep alert when other students are referring to one of the Jasons. "They just call them Jason. They don't make the distinction" as to which Jason, Ms. Bradley said.

The number of Jasons eases up a bit in the afternoon session when Jason Chapman and Jason Michael Lewis (not the same one as in the morning) arrive.

"In order to keep the right Jason with the right person, Ms. Huffman said they call them "Jason C., Jason D., Jason Michael, Jason Wayne and we just call the other one Jason."

Fortunately for the teachers the boys "realize it's a confusing situation and they are patient with us," Ms. Bradley said.

Politician dies in bid for sympathy

TOKYO (AP)—A Japanese politician stabbed himself in the thigh in an assassination hoax to get sympathy from voters but he drove the knife in too deeply and bled to death, police said today.

An official of the prefectural police in Japan's second largest city said Jintaro Itoh, 41-year old restaurant owner and former head of a right-wing splinter group, died from his self-inflicted wound Monday night.

Police said Itoh's associates told them he planned to declare himself a candidate for Japan's Oct. 7 general election from a hospital bed where he hoped to be recovering from his wounds. Monday was the first day of the campaign for the 511-seat lower house.

Police said Itoh's plan failed when he stabbed himself too deeply and died from loss of blood before he could walk from his car to his house. Police became suspicious because Itoh walked more than 20 yards without summoning help from neighbors.

MC trustees OK $30,000 agreement to lengthen ramp

Midland College trustees approved a $30,000 agreement with Area Builders to lengthen the ramp into Chaparral Center, but turned down the only bid they received for black-out curtains on the facility.

No bids for the ramp improvement were received, trustees were told, but Area Builders agreed to do the work, designed to allow large trucks to drive into the facility, for the $30,000 estimated cost.

The only bid received for black out curtains for the windows around the center was rejected by trustees as too high, and college officials will look into other ways to block out the light during early evening shows in the 5,000-seat auditorium.

The only bid of $47,640 did not include an additional $10,000 to $12,000 in electrical work needed to operate the motors to open and close the drapes. Traffic problems created by increased enrollment led trustees to agree to ask city officials to open the gates to the access road from Wadley Avenue to Chaparral Circle at least during the operating hours of the college.

College officials also have requested the city planning department consider extending

The gates normally are opened only for a show at Chaparral Center, but congestion at the college's only entrance on Garfield Street led to the request for more entrances and exits.

DEATHS

Christine Henry

LUBBOCK—Services for Christine Sides Henry, 72, of Lubbock, mother of Ben C. Sides of Midland, were Tuesday in Resthaven Funeral Home chapel here with burial in Resthaven Memorial Park.

Mrs. Henry died Sunday in a Lubbock nursing home after a short illness.

She was a Lubbock resident most of her life. She was a member of the Oakwood Baptist Church and the Idalou chapter of Eastern Star.

Other survivors include her husband, a son, a daughter, two brothers, a sister, 11 grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren.

Jean Acher

Services for Mrs. Ross M. (Jean) Acher, 59, #5 Marinor Court, were to be at 10 a.m. today in Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home chapel with Dr. Robert Boynton Smith of the First Presbyterian Church officiating. Burial was to be in Resthaven Memorial Park.

Mrs. Acher died Monday in a Midland hospital after a brief illness. She was born March 14, 1920, in Ninnekah, Okla. She spent her early life in Elk City, Okla., attending schools there. She attended Oklahoma State University in Stillwater. She was married to Ross M. Acher in Elk City, Okla. on Feb. 25, 1940.

Mrs. Acher had lived in a number of places, including Illinois, Kansas and Oklahoma. She had lived in Tulsa for 18 years. She moved in 1975 to Midland. She was a member of the First Presbyterian Church here.

Survivors include her husband; a daughter, Martha Ann Mont of Seminole, Fla., her mother, Mrs. A.M. Keeth of Midland, and three grandchildren.

Pallbearers were to be Sid Buller, Earl Davis, Milton Kihneman, Buddy Redden, Morris Todd and Dale Whisnant.

Agnes K. Finley

Agnes Kastner Finley, 2438 Whitmire Blvd., died Monday in a Midland hospital after a long illness.

Services will be at 11 a.m. Thursday in the Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home chapel with the Rev. J.B. Stewart, a retired Methodist minister, officiating. Burial will be in Resthaven Memorial Park.

Mrs. Finley was born in Pueblo, Colo., where she spent her early life. She moved to Los Angeles in 1915 and spent the next 60 years in that area. She moved to Midland in 1978.

Survivors include her husband, R.E. Finley; two daughters, Eila Kay Noel of Midland and Elma Hillard of Forestville, Calif., seven grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Pallbearers will be grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

Naomi Sanders

Private services for Naomi Sanders Moore, 89, will be Friday at Resthaven Mausoleum with Dr. O.A. McBrayer, pastor of St. Luke's United Methodist Church, officiating. Services will be directed by Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home.

Mrs. Moore died today in a Midland nursing home.

Mrs. Moore was born Nov. 21, 1889, in Covington, Ky. She moved to Midland in May 1979 from Dallas where she had lived for many years.

Survivors include a son, Percy Moore of Midland, a grandchild and three great-grandchildren.

Speir announces resignation

DALLAS (AP) — Col. Wilson E. Speir has announced he will resign as head of the Texas Department of Public Safety Dec. 31, after 38 years with the state's police force.

"I had a stomach hemorrhage in August," Speir said at a news conference Tuesday. "After 43 years of public service including 38 with the DPS I felt the time had come to retire."

Speir, 62, called the conference during a convention of the International Association of Chiefs of Police, which he is outgoing president.

He said no one had asked him to resign or to retire. He said he would not be involved in the selection of a new director, but added assistant directors have succeeded their bosses in the past.

Speir called his assistant, Leo Gossett, 54, "a very capable man. I wish him well. But I don't know who the Public Safety Commission will choose."

Another candidate for the job is former FBI official James B. Adams, who heads Gov. Bill Clements' criminal justice division. Adams was formerly the No. 2 man in the FBI.

Speir took over as DPS director in 1968 when his boss, Homer B. Garrison Jr., died. He was the fourth DPS director since the agency was created in 1935.

Speir said Tuesday the DPS was in the best shape in its history. He said the No. 1 crime problem remained illegal drugs.

"I feel half of all the burglaries are committed by addicts needing a buck for that next shot," he said.

"Speir weathered a few scandals and controversies during his reign, including a Travis County grand jury report last year that accused the DPS narcotics division of a "disturbing lack of moral leadership."

Critics said Speir failed to run the department with the iron hand the charismatic Garrison was known for, but Speir was effective in dealing with legislators and seldom ranked politicians or co-workers.

Speir was a teacher and principal of Harmony High School in Upshur County before he joined the DPS as a highway patrolman in 1941. He ascended through the ranks quickly, becoming assistant director in 1962.

McCarthy-era

writer, critic dies

GLEN ELLEN, CALIF. (AP) — Albert E. Kahn, writer, publisher and critic of government activities during the McCarthy era, has died at the age of 67.

Kahn died of a heart attack Saturday while driving a car near his home here.

In 1953, he and Angus Cameron established the firm, Cameron & Kahn, to publish writers blacklisted during the U.S. Senate's anti-communist hearings.

The firm published "False Witness," by Harvey Matusow, a book once described by writer John Steinbeck as "the straw that broke (U.S. Sen. Joseph) McCarthy's back."

Kahn wrote about a dozen books, including the best sellers: "Sabotage" (1942); "The Great Conspiracy" (1946); and "High Treason" (1950).

He took more than 5,000 pictures of the Soviet ballerina Galina Ulanova, which are currently housed at the Library and Museum of the Performing Arts at Lincoln Center, and in 1962, wrote a book, "Days with Ulanova," about the artist.

Col. Wilson Speir announced Tuesday he will retire as director of the DPS on Dec. 31, and Adams' name immediately arose as a possible successor in the $47,500-a-year post.

Adams, 52, is executive director of Gov. Bill Clements' Criminal Justice Division, and there was speculation here that Clements would push hard to get him the DPS job.

The director is chosen by the Texas Public Safety Commission, and Clements will appoint one of the three commissioners when chairman Robert Shelton's term expires Dec. 31. Some reports mentioned Dallas electronics millionaire H. Ross Perot as a possibility.

Asked whether anyone in authority had discussed the DPS director's job with him, Adams said in a telephone interview, "I don't think it would be appropriate for me to make any comments in that regard."

"I am aware of the rumors. I am honored that people would think I would make a good replacement (for Speir). Anybody would be proud to work with the men and women of the DPS," Adams said.

As for the director's job, he said, "I would be interested in it. It would be a challenge."

Adams said he misses day-to-day responsibility for law enforcement operations.

"Law enforcement has been my career. The operational end is more challenging than the administrative end."

Device turns body into speaker enabling deaf to hear music

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Charles Lowe took a firm grip on a bookcase. He apparently had decided not to have any part of a disc-shaped device being demonstrated for 48 hearing-impaired youngsters.

Then someone put one of the discs on the 12-year-old boy's chest. His face twisted up, his body shivered and he started laughing out loud.

He was hearing music. To be more exact, he was feeling it.

When someone puts his hands over his ears and the discs, known as audio transducers, are placed on his elbows or back or chest, Charles' entire body becomes a speaker.

"It makes your body play the music," said David Thompson of Atlanta, who demonstrated the device Monday at the Southside Estates Elementary School Center of the Hearing Impaired.

When two of the devices were placed against a bookcase where Chris Cantrell was sitting, his head bobbed up and down to the rhythm and his face broke into a grin.

Some of the deaf or nearly deaf youngsters began disco dancing on a table relaying the music. When the music stopped, they stopped.

Audio transducers capable of turning most surfaces into speakers have been around more than 10 years. They have been used to make windows "talk" and produce muted background music.

"The sound and quality are different from those of regular speakers," Thompson said. "It's relaxing, mystifying."

Sold in similar form as Hydro-Sonic Hull Tenders, the devices are supposed to keep ships free of barnacles, he said.

Only recently did someone discover the discs may help the deaf feel music and maybe even learn to speak.

Their use as a teaching tool for the deaf hasn't been proven, but Thompson hopes enough people take an interest to initiate serious research.

Therapist Marcia Huggins at the hearing-impaired school said the effect on the children there was tremendous.

"I'm really excited about it," she said. "Anything that makes the kids aware of music is good, but I want to see what it can do with speech sounds."

The transducers cost $160 a set.

Bank officials announce negotiations

Negotiations are in progress for the possible acquisition of First Savings and Loan Association of Midland by Southern Union Financial Corp., a subsidiary of Southern Union Co. of Dallas, officials of the two institutions announced today.

Southern Union Financial has entered into a letter of intent with shareholders holding 54 percent of the common stock of First Savings and Loan, according to J.O. Carnes, president and chief executive officer of SUF, and Tom Brown, chairman of the board of directors of First Savings and Loan.

The letter of intent provides for negotiating a definitive acquisition agreement to be followed by a tender offer for the capital stock of First Savings and Loan at a price of $50 per share payable in cash at the closing, Carnes said.

Consummation of the transaction will require approval of the boards of directors of both companies, as well as approval by various state and federal regulatory agencies, Carnes said.

Based on the 176,000 shares of First Savings and Loan outstanding, the aggregate purchase price would be $8.8 million if all shares are tendered.

No changes in the management or employees of First Savings are anticipated if the sale goes through, Brown said.

First Savings and Loan, which reported total assets of $99 million Dec. 31, 1978, has been in business in Midland since 1955.

It has two offices in Midland — one downtown at 500 W. Wall St. and the other at Midkiff and Wadley avenues.

AT WIT'S END

School volunteers a brave bunch

September...the season when schools open their doors...school janitors become sex symbols...and little children wander around the halls muttering, "My Mom can drive."

Throughout the years, I thought I had heard just about every horror story of volunteer mothers you could think of. But I hadn't heard the one about the busload of Head Start children which my friend in California volunteered to help transport.

That memorable Monday, 75 three- and four-year-olds boarded a bus to be transported to the Jewish temple a couple of miles away. A pastor was in charge of driving and my friend sat in the front seat and was in charge of "tranquility."

The children were dropped off and picked up again without a hitch. Now all that was left was to drop children off in the arms of their waiting mothers at 15 street corners in Venice, California. It would have worked out perfectly had someone remembered to tell the mothers.

They took the children back to the temple to check their records for addresses, only to find the doors locked. They threw themselves on the mercy of the children. It seemed all 75 of them lived in a white house with a fence around it and two trees in the front yard.

They put plan B into operation, which was to stop at every street corner while the reverend led them in prayer. Occasionally, at these stops they dragged strangers in off the street to see if they recognized anyone on the bus. (By this time the children were into their third afternoon nap.)

After four hours, the children were all safely at home. Not to be daunted on the next trip, our school volunteer decided to remedy this situation by hanging a colored bird around the neck of each child. The pink birds would get off at the pink corner, the green birds on the green corner, etc. Her only problem was that she ran out of colors and one group had blackbirds around their necks. When a mother heard her call out to a group of black children, "All blackbirds off the bus," she called her a bigot and demanded her resignation.

The life of a school volunteer is not an easy road. It takes stamina, time and personal sacrifice. In your infinite mercy, take a school volunteer to lunch this week.

Not in the school cafeteria, for crying out loud!

Film on cancer shown to auxiliary

One out of fifteen females will develop cancer, according to Ron Rosignol, president of the board of directors of the Midland branch of the American Cancer Society.

Scene was the Women's Auxiliary Inc. of Midland Memorial Hospital. The group met in the hospital cafeteria recently to see a film produced by the Cancer Society and to hear a presentation by Rosignol.

Patty Rosignol assisted in the program and film presentation, which showed the importance of early detection of breast cancer and illustrated breast self-examination.

Mammography and thermography as detection aids were explained in the film which related statistics that 85 percent of persons who get cancer can be cured if discovered in time.

In other business, Janet Foster of the Junior League of Midland described a league-sponsored Volunteer Career Development Workshop to take place November 27-29 at Midland College and encouraged hospital auxiliarians to attend.

Ludean Peyton, volunteer director, reported that 132 auxiliarians had worked 1,649 hours during August. Volunteers and their hours include Le Rae Aaron, 22; Martha Lou Birchum, 32; Charlene Bridgman, 24; Barbara Cartwright, 26; Mary Cox, 28; Thelma Deppe, 24; Em Haight, 64; Carole Hobbs, 22; Jimmie Hollis, 24; Betty Reimers, 20; Evelyn Roach, 27; and Alyce Swann, 34.

Anelle Mack reported that nine junior auxiliarians worked 174 hours during August with Sharon Crawford winning the candy stripe award, followed by Chris Taubman.

Several Midland members made plans to attend the District II, Area B meeting of the TAHA in Andrews on Sept. 28. They will meet some of the state officers, hear reports of area presidents and visit the Permian General Hospital.

The auxiliary will assist with the distribution of new Gideon Bibles as the refurbishing of hospital rooms is completed.

Paddling school principal back on job after nine years

MIAMI (AP) — A school principal whose spanking of two 14-year-old boys led to a U.S. Supreme Court decision upholding physical punishment in schools is back on the job.

Willie J. Wright has been named principal of Gulfstream Elementary School nine years after a suit charging him with inflicting cruel and unusual punishment went to the high court.

In his new job at a school in a middle-class, predominantly white neighborhood, Wright, 49, said he doesn't need a paddle. But he believes paddles have their place in secondary schools.

He also stands by the paddling that resulted in the 1977 Supreme Court ruling.

The controversial paddling happened at Drew Junior High, an all-black school where students and at least one teacher had been shot in the halls. Wright is black, a Baptist deacon and the son of a sharecropper.

Johnny Jones, Dade County superintendent of schools, said the paddling case didn't influence his choice of Jones for the Gulfstream job.

"That man has a doctorate in education," Jones said. "I don't know how many more degrees you need to qualify. Drew was a tough school. He did a good job there."

Wright left Drew for a job in the school system's central administrative office. Four years ago, he became president of financially troubled Florida Memorial College in northwest Dade County, resigning in 1976.

Wright then moved to Washington to become national executive secretary of Omega Psi Phi, an international fraternity. He said he returned to school work because he missed the students.

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Income should go up, but economy will make it difficult to save. Some special hopes may be realized. Health grows stronger if you use common sense. Your desire to make all the decisions could cause problems for you in year ahead. Do not resist change; it could help you. Hard work, patience, understanding will be necessary to preserve marriage, long-term relationships.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Mystery, intrigue may slow you down. Get to the bottom of what is happening around you. Deal with facts, not rumors. Friend or acquaintance may give you confusing answer, which will be clarified later.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Regulate workload and production will increase. Profits and salary could also rise. Work with those who are dedicated. Some associates may talk a lot but achieve little. Be more aware of details.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Celebrate a professional victory with someone who appreciates what you have achieved. Obstacles may be removed. Show your appreciation to old friend who gave you a lift when you needed it.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Defer asking favors from influential people. Eye-opening situations can occur in business and employment areas. Things which have been withheld from you will become known. Conserve monetary resources.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Seek pleasurable pursuits with platonic friend. You may have to deal with difficult financial problems. Information you need is available but you may not know where to look. Small child may hold the key.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Use conventional approach around conservative associates. Bring paperwork up to date. Extravagance may be your undoing. Use positive approach in discussing volatile issues with your mate, romantic partner.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Expand your horizons and you will gain much. A perfect evening for you in romance or marriage. Dine out in a small but inexpensive restaurant.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A good day for beginning new projects. Get organized. Others may be slow in keeping up with you. Friend may provide entree to exciting new relationship and will enjoy playing Cupid.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Moderate approach to finances favored. Decline invitation of friend to join in get-rich-quick venture; risk too great for you. Simple disagreement could be blown out of proportion unless you resolve things now.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Someone may point an accusing finger; ignore them—the facts are on your side. Do not become involved in petty dispute. Be familiar with basic information before recommending course of action.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Think more carefully before developing a final plan of action. Emotions could be interfering with intellectual process. Go off alone and figure things out quietly; your future security may depend on it.

Outward Bound sued in deaths

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Outward Bound, a rugged outdoor program, has been sued for $2 million in the deaths of two men who drowned on a kayak trip into Mexico's Sea of Cortez.

The suit was filed by parents of David Schwimmer, 18, and Tim Breidegam, 21, who drowned while taking the school's ocean-going kayaking course.

There are 200 types of cancer

HOUSTON (AP) — A Chicago surgeon says doctors must keep telling people there are more than 200 types of cancer.

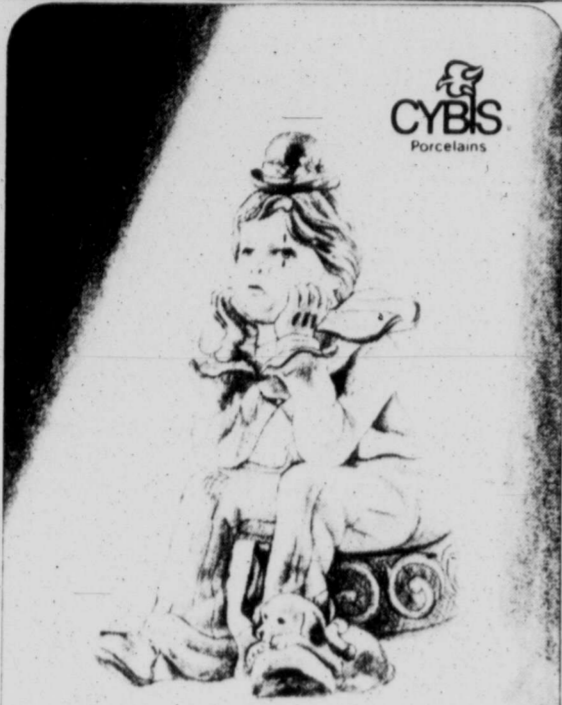

"And no one technique today is right for each one," Dr. Philip Thorek said, adding he has never seen a real "breakthrough" in cancer research.

The University of Illinois clinical professor spoke Tuesday before the Texas Academy of Family Physicians.

Thorek said nothing bothers him more than seeing big headlines proclaiming another cancer "breakthrough."

"Undoubtedly the scientists quoted in some of those stories did say they hoped such and such would be a breakthrough in a particular kind of cancer but we must keep telling people there are more than 200 types of cancers," he said.

Thorek said cancer-phobia afflicts millions of Americans and rumors about tumors probably worry all the rest. Part of the blame for the fear and the myths about malignant diseases must be, he said, shared by the medical profession and the media.

Jaycees attempt to kick out Washington chapter

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Jaycees can't revoke the charter of the District of Columbia chapter until a city judge decides on the constitutional issues of whether the organization can exclude women. Judge Norma Johnson of the Superior Court of the District of Columbia issued a preliminary injunction Monday prohibiting the national organization from taking any further action on its attempt to kick out the Washington chapter. The five women plaintiffs filed suit in January after local Jaycee chapters were told they must have male-only membership to remain in good standing. The national Jaycees had allowed women to join during the last three years as part of a pilot project. But when the project ended, the individual chapters were told to return to a male-only membership.

DEAR ABBY

Language needs unisex pronoun

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Don't back down! You were NOT wrong when you advised your readers to "consult a lawyer, and pay HIM for what he knows." HE and HIM become personal pronouns when referring to BOTH sexes.

Please inform Mandy Stellman of Milwaukee and Ms. Perlman of St. Paul, who should not object to being known as Mandy Stell—and Ms. Perl—after removing the "man" from their names, that the old rule still holds.

So don't apologize, Abby. We appreciate the fine lawyers, doctors, clergy and those in other vocations who are of the fairer sex, but let's not bend over backwards to distinguish whether HE has acquired a 5 o'clock shadow, or a shiny nose just before dinner. It is HIS vocational performance that counts. — GEORGE WASHINGTON BOWEN.

DEAR GEORGE: I cannot tell a lie. I find it a nuisance to write "he/she" and "him/her." And I abhor that new style journalism that refers to women by their last names. I find myself backing up to re-read entire paragraphs in order to find out if the "Fonda" is JANE or HENRY!

DEAR ABBY: I am being married in six weeks, and everything would be perfect if it weren't for the way my mother feels about my fiance. She keeps telling me it's still not too late to change my mind even though she knows how much I love Ron. (He's 26 and I'm 24.) He's a wonderful person and I have never loved anyone the way I love him, but Mom thinks I deserve a better-looking man. Can you believe it, Abby? I've gone with some gorgeous men, but they were all so in love with themselves that they couldn't love anyone else.

True, Ron is short and he doesn't have a very good complexion, but he has the most beautiful, honest eyes I've ever seen, and to me he is handsome!

I am no beauty, but my mother thinks I am. I am happy with what I have but my mother is making me miserable. I can't take much more of her hassling. What should I do? — UNHAPPY BRIDE.

DEAR UNHAPPY: Tune mother out when she puts down Ron. She's wrong, of course. Handsome is as handsome does. CONFIDENTIAL TO B. IN BEACON HILL: Tell your friend that giving birth to a child does not make a woman a "mother" in the truest sense of the word. But taking a motherless child into one's home (and heart) and raising that child with love, patience and understanding spells out the real meaning of motherhood.

Wedding bells in your future? Whether your lifestyle is bridal gown or blue jeans, Abby lays it all out for you in her booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send $1 and a long, stamped self-addressed envelope to Abby in care of this newspaper.

Cincinnati city manager quits powerful position to become zookeeper

William Donaldson relished his weekends. He would leave behind his worries as city manager of Cincinnati for a few hours and visit his favorite place — the zoo.

A few months back, the head of Cincinnati's zoo told Donaldson — just as a joke — that Philadelphia's zoo was having some money problems and was looking for someone to head it up.

If Donaldson had the conventional ambitions of most political animals, he would have laughed and forgotten the idea.

Instead, he left Cincinnati's most powerful government job which he had held for four years and in July took a big pay cut to become president of the zoo in Philadelphia.

The decision by one of the nation's ablest city managers to turn zookeeper was not all that surprising to those who know him. He told a reporter two years ago, "I only came to Cincinnati because I heard they had a great zoo."

In fact, he numbered among his accomplishments as city manager bringing an aardvark to Cincinnati's zoo.

In a more recent interview, Donaldson said he faces the same kinds of problems at the Philadelphia zoo that he grappled with in Cincinnati.

"The zoo had been unduly optimistic about its annual revenues since 1974. They were running a deficit which was the product of declining attendance. So we immediately reduced the payroll by 12 people," Donaldson said.

City deficits are an old story to Donaldson, who was city manager of Montclair, Calif., Scottsdale, Ariz., and Tacoma, Wash., before taking the top post in Cincinnati.

When he arrived in Cincinnati in 1975, he found a bloated bureaucracy, a deficit of more than $10 million, and city administrators who weren't facing up to the city's dire straits. He quickly cut the city's labor force by 20 percent, but still left Cincinnati more satisfied with local government than before.

He also went a step beyond a policy of having the doors of his city hall office wide open to all. He removed the doors.

And now, according to the city's latest financial report, Cincinnati enters fiscal year 1980 with a $9 million surplus.

Besides trimming the staff at the Philadelphia zoo, Donaldson said, "We're now looking at what we ought to charge. Sort of like what the airlines do, some days we should charge more, some days less."

He also wants to find ways to expose inner city youngsters "to our roots in the wilds."

Murder solicitation charge heart of McInnis case

EDINBURG, Texas (AP) — The meaty issue in the civil disbarment suit against Hidalgo County District Attorney Oscar McInnis is whether he masterminded an alleged scheme to kill a friend's ex-husband, admits one of McInnis' lawyers.

"The heart of the matter is the solicitation of murder. That is what is really involved in this case," lawyer John Lewis said Monday as the trial opened on whether to strip McInnis of his law license.

Judge Joe B. Evins postponed jury selection until Tuesday after McInnis' attorneys asked to eliminate certain issues from the disbarment case.

McInnis' 16-month-long legal problems developed in his 12th year as a district attorney in this border county. He had built a reputation as a top-notch prosecutor, winning two murder convictions over Houston defense attorney Percy Foreman.

McInnis and Patricia Parada had faced criminal charges of conspiring to murder her ex-husband, but both federal and state versions of those accusations were either dismissed or thrown out.

The State Bar of Texas says the longtime South Texas prosecutor is unfit to practice law because of the same allegations and others of "professional misconduct."

The bar's official complaint against the 63-year-old McInnis alleges he tried to have Noe Villanueva killed and enlisted the help of Hidalgo County jail inmate Dan Rodriguez to contact a hit man in Mexico. Villanueva was not killed and was among the 34 witnesses subpoenaed and sworn in on Monday.

The state bar also alleges McInnis lied to a grand jury about the scheme, and used his official authority to harass Villanueva by charging him with marijuana possession without sufficient evidence.

If a jury of McInnis' constituents finds he violated a professional standard, the final decision of whether to reprimand him, suspend him or permanently disbar him rests with Evins.

Although the federal murder-conspiracy charges have been thrown out, McInnis and Miss Parada face a trial later this year on charges they lied to a grand jury about the alleged scheme.

The district attorney is on paid leave from his $36,000-a-year job pending a separate suit to remove him from office by the Texas Prosecutors Coordinating Council. An interim district attorney has been appointed.

McInnis' lawyers argued their client's right to a fair trial on the criminal charges would be abridged if a grand jury agrees he had lied to a grand jury and stripped away his law license.

"This (perjury charge) is a burden we should leave for other authorities," said lawyer Jack Skaggs. "We're all going to be better off and his legal rights will be much better off if we chop off these five counts."

The perjury matters should be considered at a separate disbarment proceeding, he added.

"We may lose witnesses. We may lose evidence," countered State Bar attorney Davis Grant. "It would be expensive for the State Bar as well as the county to have two trials."

Witnesses expected to testify in the disbarment case include an assistant U.S. attorney, FBI agents, state and local law enforcement officers and several of McInnis' fellow elected officials — Sheriff Brig Marmolejo, County Judge Ramiro Guerra and County Commissioner Joe Ponce.

Seven gold and red circus wagons leave Sarasota museum for good

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — The circus wagons were rolling again in Sarasota for the first time in years, but 71-year-old circus historian Joseph McKennon found no cause to celebrate.

"Take it on out," McKennon hollered Monday as workers strained at the hitch of the ornate gold and red "Gladiator and Lion Bandwagon."

"Don't let it hit any other wagons."

The wagons were leaving Sarasota's circus museum for good, ending a bitter dispute over who owns them.

The Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey Circus Monday carted off seven horse-drawn wagons once used to haul circus performers, animals and equipment from town to town.

The circus, based in Washington, D.C., claimed the wagons more than 20 years after officials of the state-run museum rescued them from destruction.

"They were going to burn them up," said McKennon, recalling when the circus moved its winter headquarters from Sarasota to Venice, Fla.

McKennon and other volunteers painstakingly restored the weather-beaten wagons, built at the turn of the century, and put them on display.

Monday, McKennon would not talk about the loss.

In 1972, Ringling Brothers decided they wanted them back, saying the wagons had never been given to the museum, but had been only a long-term loan. The museum had no title to dispute the claim.

The two sides decided to negotiate rather than go to court.

Also on hand Monday was Chapie Fox, the man who negotiated for Ringling Brothers to reach the settlement. He also refused comment.

In Washington, Jerry Solawsky, a lawyer for the circus, declined to reveal where the wagons would go. But he confirmed that circus officials have talked about using at least some of the wagons at Circus World, a tourist attraction near Orlando. Matiel Inc., the toy maker, owns both the circus and Circus World.

Solawsky denied that Ringling Brothers were being unfair in claiming seven wagons among 15 at the museum.

"There was some right on both sides of this understanding," he said. "The settlement reflected that. Everybody felt it was a fair compromise."

There was a misunderstanding that developed over that period with respect to who owned the wagons.

Part of the settlement gives the museum title to the remaining wagons on display. And McKennon said Ringling Brothers will replace some of the recovered wagons with others similar in appearance.

Museum Director Dick Carroll said he expected the loss to have minimal impact on the popularity of the exhibit.

McKennon, the museum's negotiator, said he had the first turn when he and Fox divided up the list of wagons.

Because of that, he added, the museum was able to keep its prize exhibit, the "Five Graces Bandwagon." The large wagon, designed for use with 40 horses, was built in 1871.

Madison Avenue men's outfitters goes to Japan

By RICHARD BILL

TOKYO (AP) — Always conservatively dressed but never a fashion plate, the Japanese gentleman now has Brooks Brothers.

The big names of European fashion like Pierre Cardin, Yves St. Laurent and Oscar de la Renta have been here for years, aiming their sales pitches for dresses, perfumes and other products at Japanese women. And Tokyo streets are thronged with young people wearing American-style blue jeans and T-shirts.

Now comes Madison Avenue's Brooks Brothers, outfitters for generations of Ivy Leaguers and other American gentlemen who regard the three-button, natural-shoulder suit in banker's gray as the sartorial standard of the world.

Brooks Brothers recently opened its first store outside the United States in Tokyo's fashionable Aoyama district. With its marble facade and spacious ground floor salesroom, it is a virtual copy of the firm's Madison Avenue headquarters in New York.

Claiming there already are "thousands" of Brooks Brothers devotees in Japan, firm manager Saburo Kobayashi declared that by 1985, the Tokyo store and nine other planned branches will be selling $45 million worth of clothes a year.

The sales appeal is broad, Kobayashi said in an interview — toward young, fashion conscious Japanese males who comprise about 60 percent of the market, but also toward the "salaryman," that familiar figure who never goes anywhere without a coat and tie.

"We are trying to attract Japanese business executives who want a bit more flair in their attire," he said.

Kobayashi said he did not see a clothing revolution happening in Japan overnight because "the Japanese are much too conservative for that."

"But their tastes are changing just a bit," he said.

Prices for the Brooks Brothers label here are about 50 percent higher than in the United States, but the idea of paying the equivalent of $570 for a suit off the rack and $35 for a button-down shirt does not seem to faze affluent Japanese.

"If I go to a Japanese department store I would have to pay at least 150,000 yen ($715), probably double that, for a suit of the best English textiles," explained Ken Kawakami, interviewed as he debated whether to buy a pair of slacks for the equivalent of $110 at Brooks Brothers.

Kawakami, a 43-year-old junior executive in a medium-size trading firm, said Japanese businessmen are conservative in their appearance "because we have to meet all sorts of people during our working hours."

What encourages firms like Brooks Brothers to jump into the Japanese market is its sheer size. The government estimates that the Japanese spend $8.7 billion a year for wearing apparel and $3.3 billion for cosmetics.

Renown Inc., one of the biggest names in Japan's fashion world — a company that uses French movie star Alain Delon in its advertising, estimates that 10 million suits are sold to Japanese men each year.

Although most Japanese men have less money to spend than the women, "they will save up for a particular idea," said Kaoru Mochizuki, a Renown Inc. spokesman.

He said his company aims for the 25-30 age bracket "because they're the ones most interested in fashion. They follow fashion and find the money to keep in style, whereas the older people prefer to remain conservative."

Brooks Brothers' clothes sold here will be designed to accommodate the Japanese, who generally are smaller and more slightly built than Americans. Suits will start at size 34. Even so, Kobayashi said, a lot of foreigners are certain to shop at his store "because they're Brooks Brothers people."

Midland High School senior Laura Wettstein was named Outstanding Girl for September by the American Association of University Women. Daughter of Patricia Wettstein and the late William C. Wettstein, she is a member of the golf team, German Club, Junior Council, JETS, Photo Club, the Wildcat and Bullfrog newspaper staffs and the annual staff. She has gone to Girls State, won first in the Tall City Speech Tournament, is secretary of the varsity basketball team and student council and counselor for Washington Workshops.

Homosexuals will not be ordained

DENVER (AP) — A recommendation that no practicing homosexual be ordained in the Episcopal Church has been made an official policy of the 3-million member denomination.

After hours of debate, parliamentary maneuvering and vote counting, the church's 66th General Convention completed passage of the controversial resolution Tuesday, clearing the way for conclusion of the triennial policy-setting meeting.

The 904-member House of Deputies approved the resolution Tuesday containing a sentence saying it is "not appropriate" for the church to ordain a homosexual "or any person who is engaged in heterosexual relations outside of marriage."

That sentence was in the resolution when the bicameral convention's other chamber, the House of Bishops, passed it Monday, but was removed by a committee of deputies at a closed meeting Monday night. The House of Deputies restored the controversial language before passing the resolution.

The Rev. Charles Winters, deputy from Tennessee and committee chairman, said the panel concurred with the bishops — except for the last sentence, which he termed "negative." The convention, which started work on Sept. 9, faces a Thursday adjournment deadline. In other action Tuesday, delegates rejected moves to withdraw the 1982 meeting from New Orleans.

Several members of the House of Deputies, most of them women, claimed that Louisiana church leaders have been apathetic about placing women in clerical positions, and noted the state has not ratified the Equal Rights Amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

But the argument on that issue was limited, and came between the debate and the vote on the homosexual resolution.

Among lay delegations in the House of Deputies, 77 dioceses favored concurring with the House of Bishops, 18 were opposed and 13 dioceses were split on the question. Among the clerics the vote was 70-29, with 11 divided.

Earlier Tuesday, 21 bishops issued a strong "statement of conscience" saying they would not accept nor implement the resolution passed by the bishops. The dissenters' statement characterized passage of the resolution as a "cruel denial of the sexual beings of homosexual persons."

John Rettger of Minnesota also opposed the anti-homosexual language. "It is not a resolution we can enforce," he said. "Who is to inquire into an ordinand's sex life? To inquire ... is to recognize our own frailty."

George Bates of the Eastern Oregon Diocese said whether he, or any other individual is a homosexual or a heterosexual, "is none of your business." But positions against ordination of homosexuals were more strident.

"Homosexual activity is an abomination," said Frances Swinfor of Lexington, Ky. "If we trust Holy Scriptures ... there's no way we can soft-peddle it. The priest is the icon of Christ in matters sacramental. How can we in the name of the Lord, ordain someone who is an abomination to God?"

Voting irregularities revealed in Southern Baptist elections

DALLAS (AP) — The registration secretary of the Southern Baptist Convention has revealed voting irregularities in the elections of top Baptist executives.

Lee Porter said Tuesday that an investigation has revealed 284 churches were caught "with blood on their hands" and that the five top offenders were from Texas.

Porter said while there were no "mass irregularities," 1,000 messengers, or delegates, registered and voted without being elected by their churches. He said 69 children were illegally elected, 31 denomination workers and five foreign missionaries illegally voted, 107 registered more than once and people voted for others not attending the meeting.

Although churches are allowed to elect only 10 messengers each, Porter said, 47 churches registered more than 10. The top five were Texas churches that registered 22, 20, 16, 14 and 13 messengers. He declined to reveal the names of the churches.

Porter said 200 churches with congregations of 150 to 1,000 registered from six to 10 messengers, far more than churches of that size are allowed.

At the convention in Houston in June, Baptists elected Memphis pastor Adrian Rogers as president of the 13 million-member denomination. He drew 51.3 percent of the vote on the first ballot.

Rogers was the selection of an ultra-conservative coalition led by Dr. Paige Patterson of the First Baptist Church of Dallas and Houston attorney Paul Pressler.

Rogers was still the top vote getter for president, Porter said, but his margin was 168 votes.

Porter said the investigation underlined a need to change bylaws and tighten registration procedures.

Rev. William Maguire of San Diego, at podium, speaks against the ordination of homosexuals during debate in the House of Deputies at the 66th General Convention of the Episcopal Church in Denver on Tuesday. Waiting to speak in favor of the issue is Warren C. Ramshaw of the Central New York Diocese, standing right. (AP Laserphoto)

Broyles still says playoff inevitable

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

A major college postseason football playoff seems to be a dead issue...
But Frank Broyles, Arkansas' athletic director and former football coach, still says such a playoff is "inevitable."
Broyles was one of an outspoken minority whose playoff proposal was beaten down by the bowls.
"We didn't foresee this much organized opposition. We didn't foresee the bowls taking such a strong stand, banding together and rallying support," he says. "It was their asserted opinion that the bowls would be ruined if we had even a four-team playoff."

THE NCAA's Extra Events Committee, of which Broyles is a member and former chairman, had recommended that such a playoff proposal be brought before next January's NCAA convention. But the Division I Steering Committee recommended to the all-powerful NCAA Council that the issue not even come up for a vote. The Council went along with that suggestion.

"It's somewhat of a dead issue at this particular time," says Dave Strack, athletic director at the University of Arizona and current chairman of the Extra Events Committee. "Who can tell what the future might hold, but we've decided it would be beating a dead horse to pursue it as a committee at this time."
"The bowls feel they have served college football very well and they feel they're the best thing for college football," says Broyles. "They've convinced many coaches that the structure we have now is better than a playoff. They cite the financial aspects, the good times, no pressure...things like that."

"MAYBE OUR feeling supporting a playoff is ahead of its time, like solar energy. But it's inevitable that we need a playoff, not for the 20 or 25 schools who will succeed with soccer or anything else. But what about the other schools who are in financial straits? The economic factor will be felt down the line."
"For a playoff to happen now we need something dramatic, but I don't know what. The public wants it. The public is probably at 98 percent and I think their influence will be felt down the line."

Because Michigan's Bo Schembecher once coached under Woody Hayes and adopted many of Hayes' peculiar attitudes toward the media, he became known as "Little Woody." Now he has Wake Forest's John Mackovic, who once coached under Schembecher as a graduate assistant at Miami of Ohio, hails from Schembecher's hometown of Barberton, Ohio, and may become known as "Little Bo."

ORDINARILY ONE of the most cordial and pleasant members of the coaching fraternity, Mackovic blew his cork at the Georgia media following Wake Forest's stunning 22-21 upset of the University of Georgia.

"Some magazine picked us as one of the 20 worst teams in the country and we were in that Los Angeles guy's Bottom Ten," Mackovic said. "And the first thing when we got to Athens, some guy wanted to know if I could explain why Georgia was so worried about us."
"When you come in as a three- or four-touchdown underdog people make up cute things to say. I don't mind that. But it was too much when somebody wrote that Dooley's Bulldogs would make mincemeat out of Mackovic's Meatballs. No 18-year-old deserves to be called a meatball. I've never read more disgusting stuff in my life."

Dooley's Bulldogs turned out to be the cream puffs. Wake Forest erupted for 287 yards on the ground and 283 through the air in pulling off one of the season's major upsets.
AND WHEN it was over, Mackovic said he would talk to the North Carolina media "but the Georgia press could leave our lockerroom, as far as I was concerned." Some did, some didn't, but it appears that the Demon Deacons may be more demon than deacon, for a change.

Joe Restic coached in the Canadian Football League before coming to Harvard but he hadn't been associated with the NFL since playing with the Philadelphia Eagles in the early 1950s. Until this summer, that is.
Restic, whose wild and crazy Multi-flex offense has sent opposing coaches into shock, spent five weeks working with the Los Angeles Rams' quarterbacks.
"They were talking about doing some things with motion and shifting," says Restic, who has been known to put his quarterback in motion, on occasion.

Restic found that the pros are "a different world. One thing that stands out is the intensity of the people. Football is still football, but that's where they're separated. The way they worked and the help they looked for... they really wanted to improve. You always get the impression that pros don't work hard and just go through the motions, but that's not true."
THE GARDEN State Bowl, which drew 33,000 and change to its inaugural game at Giants Stadium in New Jersey's Meadowlands between Arizona State and Rutgers last December, already has sold all my tickets for this year's contest on Dec. 15.
"We may have to shut off ticket sales in four or five weeks because we're obligated to hold a third of the tickets (Giants Stadium seats 76,800) for the competing teams," says bowl official Les Unger.

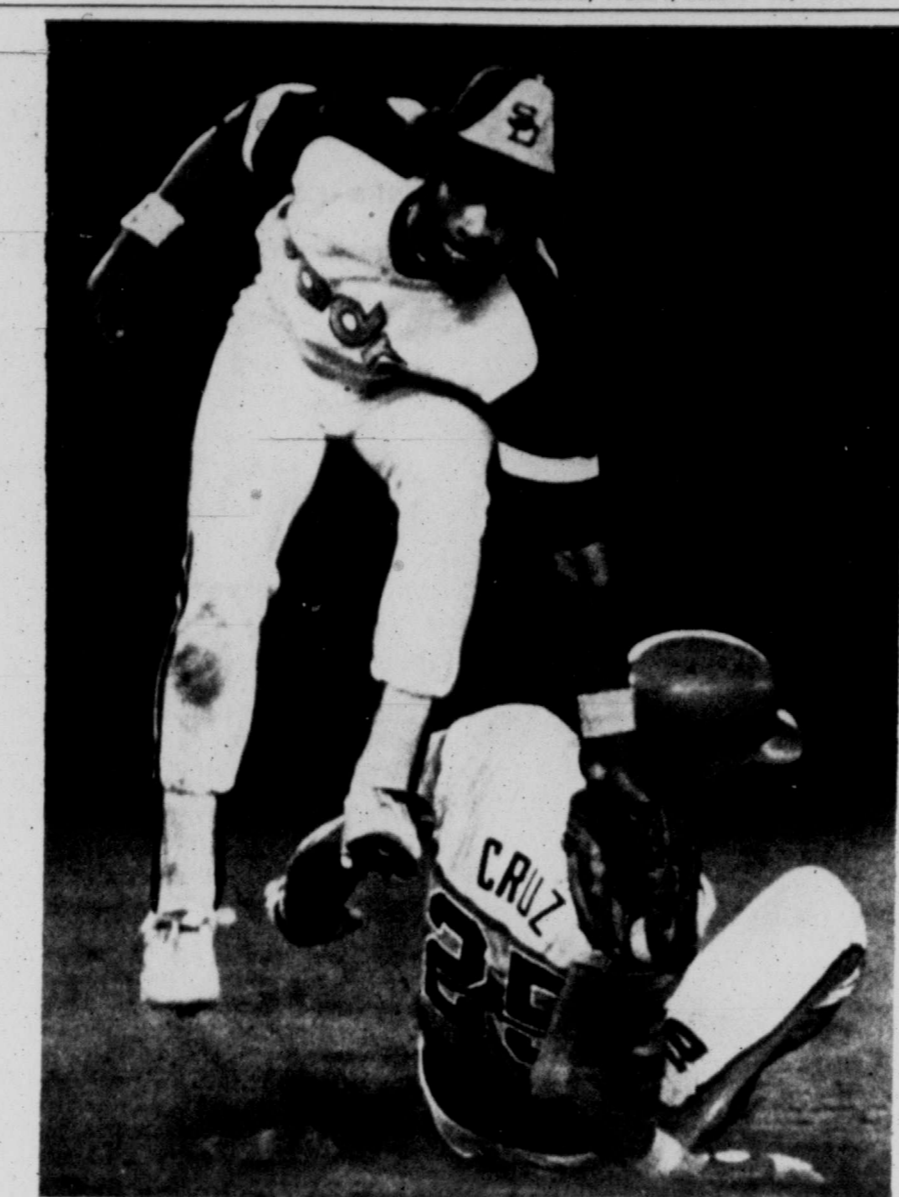

Many of the tickets have been purchased in large blocks by the New Jersey business community.
The Garden State Bowl guaranteed each team $150,000 a year ago and paid them $166,000. This year's guarantee is $165,000.

The bottom four teams in AAAA were losers last week and were banished from the top 10 this week. Houston Kashmere, San Antonio Roosevelt, Odessa Permian and Fort Worth Richland all vanished following losses. The Mojo magic didn't hold for Permian in a 9-0 loss to Amarillo.
Newcomers in AAAA are No. 7 Conroe followed by Tyler, 1-0, Killen, 2-0, and Temple, 2-0.

Jackson's days may be numbered

NEW YORK (AP) — Reggie Jackson's days as a New York Yankee may be numbered depending on who you are listening to at the moment.

According to published reports, New York Manager Billy Martin has twice urged General Manager Cedric Tallis to make a trade for the hard-hitting right fielder. However, Martin angrily denied ever going to Tallis and in fact said that "Reggie has played hard for me this year."
"That thing between us is over," said Martin referring to the constant differences the two encountered in Martin's previous tenure as Yankee manager.
Martin said in Cleveland Tuesday night that Jackson's name has come up "like any other player's" in trade talks "because we're always discussing possible trades."
However, Jackson has a trade-approval clause in the five-year $2.7 million contract he signed as a free agent in November 1976.
Because of the clause, the Yankees are unable to trade or sell Jackson without his consent.
"The Yankee management and I have talked about trades, not just of Jackson but of a number of players," Martin said. "That's routine."

Martin, whose return in mid-season as manager reportedly upset Jackson, also said he is "tired of picking up the paper every day and seeing a headline about this player saying something about that player or the owner."
"It's not the Yankee way," said Martin, a former Yankee second baseman. "It's disruptive. I don't like it."
The latest controversy erupted Sunday when Jackson gave his longtime teammate, Catfish Hunter, a specially engraved gift at "Catfish Appreciation Day" at Yankee Stadium. Hunter received the golden replica of the World Series trophy in the locker room.
"George wouldn't let me present it on the field," Jackson told Dick Young of the New York Daily News.
It later was reported that Mickey Morabito, the team's public relations director, had made the decision because he felt it wouldn't be right to single out one player's gift.
Earlier this month, Jackson, according to a Florida newspaper, accused Steinbrenner of making a racial remark when the outfielder had objected to Martin's return as manager.

Payton expects record to be broken

CHICAGO (AP) — Walter Payton is off to the greatest start of an already great career, but the 25-year-old, fifth-year veteran of the Chicago Bears is anything but satisfied.

Payton said he is making mistakes and finding it difficult to improve in the highly competitive National Football League.
He is also in somewhat of a quandry over the changes taking place in his backfield, where Vince Evans is now the No. 1 quarterback and Roland Harper is still sidelined with a knee injury.
Payton last Sunday became the greatest rusher in team history when he eclipsed Rick Casares' career record of 5,657 rushing yards.
So far this season, Payton has rushed for 441 yards in three games to lead the league and has 5,757 yards behind him.
"I broke Casares' record and somebody will break mine," said Payton. "It's a never ending cycle. The players keep getting better and the goals become higher."
Payton appeared disillusioned over the Bears' 24-20 loss to Dallas last Sunday and said, "Until the game with Dallas I was satisfied with the play of the team as a whole, but we made some mistakes and I made some mistakes."
Payton couldn't have made many since he gained 134 yards against the Cowboys, but he said, "I missed a play and Vince took a lick he shouldn't have had to take."
Payton also can be baffling when he assesses the Bears' quarterbacking situation.
"To a professional athlete it shouldn't make any difference who plays at quarterback, you have to do your job," said Payton. "We didn't do our job when Mike (Phipps) and Bob (Avellini) were in there. Vince is a terrific personality who also has ability. It doesn't matter who is in there now, and I'm not saying that Vince doesn't give us a new dimension."
Payton is quick to give credit to substitute Dave Williams, a halfback who has had to play fullback in place of the injured Harper.
"Dave Williams had to make a big change from halfback to fullback and has done a great job," said Payton. "But I'm always happier when Roland is in there."
Payton never has liked being compared to former Bear great Gale

Sayers but has learned to live with it.
"No matter how long you play, people will compare you," said Payton. "You can't do it realistically. Actions and physical makeup are totally different. You can compare numbers but you can't compare people."
Last year Payton talked about retiring in about three years but apparently has changed his mind, somewhat.
"You can't maintain a peak in this game for 10 or 12 years," said Payton. "I'm preparing myself but right now I don't feel like retiring. If I reach my peak and perform at the same level, I'll continue to play."

BOWLING BEAT

Lacy dominates bowling scene

By RANDY ISENBERG

Charles Lacy was the dominating figure in Midland bowling this past week, scorching the lanes with a 673 series in the Petroleum American League with three consistent games of 211, 236 and 226.

entry fee for each tournament is $20. Dues may be bowled to Charlie Lacy, 4303-B W. Dengar, Midland. For information call 697-2318 or 694-9521.

That's now down the drain, along with a lucrative payday.

Grooms resigns as Spinks' trainer

He heads the Kalamazoo Boxing Academy amateur program and Professional Management Enterprises' professional stable.

regained the title in a return bout. "I want to wish Leon all the luck in the world and I hope he wins his championship back," Grooms said.

Lacy added a fifth 600 when he smashed a 230 game for a 615 series in the five-man Oil Star League.

Qualifying for the Miller Doubles National Tournament kicks off this weekend at Air Park Lanes and other BPAAs houses across the nation.

Rossman was an easy target for the lumbering Ranquello, 26, who improved his record to 14-5-1.

Braves plan to make hard rejuvenation effort

ATLANTA (AP) — The Atlanta Braves' reluctant trade policy has coincided in the last three years with a finish in the National League West basement.

But with the Braves facing a fourth year in the cellar, General Manager John Mullen says that policy — and a few players — are being thrown out the door to rejuvenate the ailing club.

"I'm certain we'll make some moves," Mullen said Tuesday in an interview with The Atlanta Journal.

Soviet cagers to visit U.S.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — The Soviet Union's men's Olympic basketball team plans to visit the United States in November for a coast-to-coast tour against 14 U.S. collegiate teams.

The tour schedule, released Tuesday by the Amateur Basketball Association of the United States of America, is as follows:

University of San Francisco, Nov. 2; Texas-El Paso, Nov. 2; Southern Methodist, Nov. 6; Colorado, Nov. 8; Brigham Young, Nov. 10; Southwestern Louisiana, Nov. 13; Iowa, Nov. 14.

Kohlberg to turn pro

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Andy Kohlberg, the nation's top-ranked collegiate tennis player last spring, is passing up his final two years of eligibility at the University of Tennessee to turn professional.

"He is signed for next year, and I fully expect he'll return," Mullen said.

"I feel there is enough talent on this ballclub that it won't take many moves," he said. "But help is going to have to come in key areas."

Fort Worth Strangers give Cowtown a winner

Editors Note: "Disgusting...unamusing...garbage," says one reader. "Love 'em," laughs another. The target of this scorn and scintillation? The Fort Worth Strangers, currently baseball's wackiest and winningest team. But are they for real? FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — The 1979 season began inauspiciously for the Fort Worth Strangers. "First, there was the tragic loss of the Strangers' owner, 92-year-old Randolph Banks-Smythe Sr., on opening day. "Throwing out the first ball from his luxurious skybox high above home plate in Cowtown Stadium, Mr. Banks-Smythe forgot to let go, thus becoming the third person in stadium history to topple from the skyboxes into the sumptuous mezzanine seats. "Mr. Banks-Smythe, to his credit, tumbled to a new club record of 71 feet 7 3/4 inches."

SO BEGAN the saga 10 days ago of the mythical Strangers, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram's remedy for the summer doldrums. "The whole idea was to provide entertainment in an unusual form," insists Executive Editor Jack Tinsley. "... something the readers would be interested in." The fictitious account of baseball's wackiest and winningest team in some ways parallels the trials and tribulations of the Texas Rangers. "It was not designed to be a direct parody of the Rangers. I was very concerned at the outset that we be very particular about writing anything that would be a direct parody of Brad Corbett (the Ranger's principal owner). The similarities are obvious," said Tinsley. "I would say it's kind of a spoof at baseball in general and a spoof at the media, including our newspaper ... but it's not intended to offend," the editor said.

"Silly, stupid, dumb and degrading," commented one irate reader. "Bravo, bravo!" wrote another.

IT WAS on Sept. 9 that Star-Telegram readers learned they'd acquired a new baseball team, the Strangers, "dogs on and off the field."

Tinsley said the idea percolated in the brain of Southern Methodist University journalism professor David McHam during an editors' retreat in the piney woods of East Texas. "It was designed as a fun project for the staff ... and secondly as an entertainment device to bridge the dead days of summer," said Tinsley. The hottest in-house rumor is that publisher Amos Carter Jr., a minority owner of the Texas Rangers, is decidedly not a Stranger fan. "I don't understand it and I don't like it," he was quoted as saying. "I think it's a waste of newsprint. I rather devote the space to high school football."

Corbett said Tuesday he could not comment on the Strangers because he had not seen the series.

COVERING THE Strangers daily

was, and is, Jerry Flemmons, a master satirist whose only baseball exposure was marred by a beer spill at Arlington Stadium.

When introduced, the Strangers trailed the California Angels by four games and Kansas City by 1 1/2 in the American League West.

The Strangers seemed a dubious group early on, traceable in part to General Manager Junior Banks-Smythe II, 40, only son of the later owner.

He traded away heavy-hitting Emil "Emil" Haas and Pete "Rat" Haddix for the Angels' cheerleaders.

"Morale was low, especially with shortstop Larrupin' Lou Merkle, who lost in the finals of the Pillsbury Cook-off when his oysters rockefeller attacked a judge."

BY SEPT. 11, the Stranger plight had become ominous. Junior Banks-Smythe had disappeared after the team absorbed a 10-6 loss to the White Sox in Chicago.

The Sept. 12 Star-Telegram told how the Strangers survived their darkest hour:

Lance "Dude" Adami, who has centerfold poses in "Playgirl" and "Cosmo" to his credit, hurled a four-hit, 3-2 victory over the White Sox, ending the Strangers' 11-game losing streak.

Junior Banks-Smythe feared kidnapped, emerged in Los Angeles and announced the signing of Leonard L. Leonard, the baseball immortal to manage the Strangers. Leonard had all but vanished five years earlier.

"At 73, Leonard is an anhydrous little man with chicken neck, banded legs and a skin-sac of wrinkles. Brown as an old penny. From nude sunbathing at his California mountaintop temple..." the newspaper reported.

THE LEGENDARY Leonard's career dated back to 1919, when, lying about his age, he broke into organized baseball as a 13-year-old shortstop for Cincinnati.

The rest is, as they say, in history. The Strangers won the series final at Chicago, swept a four-game stand at Kansas City and returned home to beat the Boston Red Sox Monday night.

The stunning winning streak was attributed to the leadership of Leonard L. Leonard.

Tinsley admits he's in an unusual position.

"I've been telling people the reader reaction has been 50-50. Privately, I don't think it's that good. And the negatives are a hell of a lot more intense."

But the Strangers are catching on, not only with the Dallas-Fort Worth broadcast media but nationally as well.

THE NEW YORK Times and Philadelphia Inquirer have reported on the Strangers, and a CBS television crew was in Fort Worth Tuesday gathering a filmed account of their escapades. "We got local sporting good stores bidding for T-shirt rights," laughed Flemmons. "And we got a Stranger fan club formed."

Flemmons said he was once prepared if the Strangers bombed to send the team plane plunging into Pike's Peak, or at least get it hijacked to South America.

"I don't know what's going to happen. I want to let them win the pennant, although the first idea was to let them lose in an honorable way."

But whatever, Dallas radio station WFAA says it intends to broadcast the Sept. 25 final championship game against California — live.

Fregosi isn't too worried

By The Associated Press

Jim Fregosi doesn't think he has anything to be nervous about. With a few more performances like the one his California Angels turned in Tuesday night, whatever worries Fregosi have should disappear.

After losing five of their last six and being bombed 16-4 in the opener of the four-game series with Kansas City Monday night, dropping their American League West lead to two games over the Royals, the Angels seemed ripe for a fall. Instead they erupted for four runs in the first inning off Royals starter Rich Gale, who lasted all of 24 pitches, and held on for a 6-4 victory. With Minnesota losing 1-0 in 10 innings to Chicago and dropping four games back, it was a profitable night for Fregosi.

"I have a great deal of confidence in my players," said the California manager. "They have battled their tails off all year. At the end of the year, no matter what, I'm going to be proud of them."

"I'm not going to hang myself if we lose. I've said all along we're going to win it because we have the best club. Professional players are going to go out there and do their jobs."

It was a balanced effort for the Angels, who got solid pitching from Dave Frost, 15-9. Rod Carew and Carney Lansford each walked leading off the first. Dan Ford singled in Carew, Don Baylor hit a sacrifice fly, Willie Aikens doubled in Ford and Bobby Grich singled in the fourth run off reliever Marty Pattin.

In the sixth, Baylor tripled and scored on a single by Willie Davis, who eventually scored on a sacrifice fly by Jimmy Anderson.

fly by Jimmy Anderson.

Aikens was carried off the field on a stretcher after his first-inning double with an apparent left knee injury.

Kansas City, which stole five bases, got its first run when George Brett singled, stole second and came all the way around when Brian Downing's throw trying to nail him on the steal deflected into shallow right field off Anderson's glove. Darrell Porter doubled in Amos Otis in the seventh and added a two-run single in the ninth, knocking out Frost. John Montague finished up.

"After the way they whacked us around Monday, this is just what we needed," said Frost.

The Baltimore Orioles didn't get what they needed Tuesday, dropping a 2-1 decision to Detroit and leaving their magic number at three. Milwaukee, the only team still with a chance to catch Baltimore, nipped Seattle 7-6.

White Sox 1, Twins 0 Ken Kravec pitched seven innings of no-hit ball and wound up with a three-hitter. The lone run scored when Kevin Bell, Mike Squires and Thad Bosley hit consecutive singles with none out in the 10th for Chicago.

Ron Jackson's leadoff double in the eighth broke up Kravec's no-hit bid.

Tigers 2, Orioles 1 Dan Petry and Aurelio Lopez combined on a four-hitter and Ron LeFlore had a solo homer and an RBI grounder for the Detroit runs. Doug DeCinces homered for Baltimore.

Brewers 7, Mariners 6

Paul Molitor's single scored Sixto Lezcano, who had doubled, for the Brewers' decisive run in the eighth. Milwaukee overcame a 6-2 Seattle lead built mostly with a five-run second that included Bruce Bochte's two-run homer. Jim Gantner had a two-run shot for Milwaukee.

Red Sox 8, Blue Jays 3

Mike Torrez, who broke a personal three-game losing slide, threw a seven-hitter and Dwight Evans contributed a home run for the Red Sox.

Indians 16, Yankees 3

Former Yankee Cliff Johnson had two homers and five RBI and Toby Harrah slammed a pair of home runs and four RBI in a 16-hit attack. Ted Cox added a solo shot for Cleveland and Oscar Gamble homered for the Yankees, who lost their fifth game in a row.

Rangers 9, A's 5

Al Oliver had four hits and knocked in three runs, raising his batting average to .330 in a game played before only 750 fans, the second smallest crowd at Oakland this season. A game with Seattle on April 17 drew 653.

HOUSTON (AP) — Rice University football fans may have noticed a change this season in the appearance of Sammy the Owl.

Give the credit to new Rice sports promotions director Joe Castiglione.

Castiglione gave Sammy a shot of Jekyll-Hyde vaccine, changing the once docile, sleepy-eyed owl into a snarling war bird, talons flashing and a malevolent glint in his eye.

A similar transformation took place with the Rice football team last Saturday when the Owls uncharacteristically overcame their mistakes and rallied from a 17-7 deficit to a 21-17 victory over Tulane.

Give the credit to quarterback Randy Hertel. Hertel was stung by a pair of third-quarter interceptions, one in the Green Wave end zone. Instead of allowing the Owls to crater, he came back with two fourth-quarter touchdown passes.

The Owl junior completed 24 of 36 passes for 285 yards and the two touchdowns to earn The Associated Press Southwest Conference Offensive Player of the Week award.

"That to me is nothing more than a case of a kid that grew up," Rice Coach Ray Alborn said. "His leadership was unshakable. He threw those two interceptions and still came back and took us down the field when we had to have it."

Rice led Southern Methodist 17-7 in its season opener before eventually losing 35-17. Tulane wasn't as lucky and the Owls' get-though fourth quarter pleased Alborn.

"The thing that was most impressive to me was that we were down at the half and we came back," Alborn said. "When we HAD to do it, Randy took us 78 yards to the winning touchdown."

Castiglione also came up with a bumper sticker that says "Give a Hoot" and when Hertel hit tight end Robert Hubble with 2:15 left in the game for the winning touchdown, all 15,000 fans in Rice Stadium were hooting their loudest.

"We just weren't going to let adversity affect us this time," said Hertel, who has known his share during his tenure on the Rice campus. "We had those interceptions but we still knew that we could come back."

Hertel has been coming back ever since he came to Rice. He was thrown into a starting position too early as a freshman and last year had to adjust to a new coach after Homer Rice, who recruited him, departed for the pros.

"It's been two hard years," Hertel admitted. "The first year was not very good, the second year was better and now we are much improved. We've just got to win some early so we can get to know what it feels like to win."

Gold dealers bid Tuesday at Commodities Exchange Inc. in New York. The price of an ounce of gold in the London market closed at $372 following Tuesday's trading. (AP Laserphoto)

Gold hovers near $375 mark

LONDON (AP) — A bout of nervousness hit the European gold markets today as dealers quoted a wide range of prices on either side of $375 an ounce. The dollar was little changed. London's five major bullion houses fixed the price for this morning's trading session at $376, up from $371 at the opening and $372 at Tuesday's close. In Zurich, the metal was quoted at a median price of $373, with a wide range of bids on either side. Gold closed in Zurich Tuesday at $373.50.

IN THE CURRENT

Union negotiators wish they had foreseen the climb in gold prices

LEAD, S.D. (AP) — The price of gold is surging to record highs, and union members at the Homestake Mine wish they had seen its dizzying ascent coming. Employees at the 103-year-old gold mine, the largest in the Northern Hemisphere, receive a wage bonus based on the price of gold. In June, the union agreed to a three-year contract that based the bonus ceiling on a price of $330 an ounce. But gold closed in New York on Tuesday at $376 an ounce, yet another record in its climb, and union leaders were shaking their heads. They were surprised that gold had ever reached the $330-an-ounce level, let alone such higher record levels less than four months after the contract was signed. "Hindsight's always better..." said Gordon Renner, spokesman for the 1,250-member United Steelworkers of America union local. "Homestake will get fat and we'll get skinny."

Newspaper goes gold

PARIS (AP) — The leftist newspaper Liberation tweaked the nose of the gold-crazed financial world today by coming out with a gold-colored masthead and urging readers to buy as many copies as they could. It claimed each gold-hued "Liberation" contained 0.4 grams of the precious metal, and that every copy bought at the street price of 59 cents was actually worth $4.80.

Kennedy's image could hurt him, Connally says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two leading Republicans say Sen. Edward M. Kennedy probably will attempt to unseat President Carter, but that Kennedy's liberal image will hurt him if he succeeds. "I think he's going to be the candidate, probably," Republican presidential hopeful John Connally said Tuesday. "I think he is going to be an eloquent spokesman for the liberal left." But Connally told a news conference in Las Vegas that Kennedy spokesmen and speechwriters already are saying Kennedy is "not all that liberal" in an attempt to gain support from moderates. "Well, you know he's been saying that, he's been voting that, he's been espousing that, he's been speaking that," Connally said. "And I'm sure he'll try to climb off that liberal limb."

Reagan out in front in Florida, poll says

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan apparently had a slight lead over ex-Texas Gov. John Connally in maneuvering for delegates being selected for the Florida Republican convention. Recent surveys by several newspapers around the state showed Reagan leading the delegate count in the three largest Republican counties — Dade and Broward in South Florida and Pinellas on the state's Gulf Coast.

GOP's Pressler pledges 'unusual' presidential bid

WASHINGTON (AP) — The latest candidate poised to seek the 1980 Republican presidential nomination says he's "going to run an unusual campaign." Sen. Larry Pressler of South Dakota, a freshman senator who previously served two terms in the House, said Tuesday he's ready to seek the GOP nomination. He said he'll make his formal announcement next Tuesday in Washington and then again in South Dakota. "We're going to run an unusual campaign," Pressler said. "We're going to focus on gasohol, on agricultural issues, on rural and small town issues." "Gasohol will be a key issue," he said of the fuel mixture of 90 percent gasoline and 10 percent alcohol. "It will be a key energy issue and a key agricultural issue," he said. He said there have been "too many platitudes in the Republican campaign so far" and he will run on issues that other candidates for the GOP nomination are ignoring. Pressler, a former Rhodes scholar and Vietnam veteran, said he would enter every primary.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON Calories required

Dear Dr. Solomon: As is true of so many people, I have a problem with my weight. But my problem is that I am underweight. Any suggestions? — Donna

Dear Donna: Overweight or underweight, the crucial factor is the relationship between the calories consumed and the number expended. The fact that you are underweight indicates that your body has had to rely excessively on its own store of fat. Your goal, then, is to consume more calories than are required by your body for energy.

Although many overweight people may envy you, I find that even a mild degree of underweight in my patients results in lack of physical endurance, fatigue, inability to concentrate, susceptibility to digestive disturbances, or frequent infections. In its severe form, underweight can contribute to the development of serious diseases such as tuberculosis.

Try to increase your food intake gradually. Be sure to have three regular, relaxed meals each day, in addition to a substantial snack before going to bed. Extras in between your regular meals also would be helpful, provided they are not eaten too close to mealtime so as not to dull your appetite for the next meal. Rich foods that are full of concentrated calories (the kind that most weight-watchers must avoid) should help you put on the desired weight.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I saw you on television the other day. You said that even if you were dieting you could eat all you want from a group of vegetables, raw or cooked if you were hungry. What was that list? — Mrs. A.H.

Dear Mrs. H.: You are quite right. It is better to eat vegetables than high calorie food. You may have the following vegetables raw or cooked (providing you aren't allergic to them), without added fat, sauces, or oil dressings. Any of them may be eaten between meals if you are hungry:

Asparagus, beet greens, broccoli, cabbage, cauliflower, celery, chard, Chinese cabbage, collards, cucumber, dandelion greens, eggplant, endive, escarole, kale, leeks, lettuce, mung bean sprouts, mushrooms, mustard greens, parsley, peppers, pickles (sour or dill), pimientos, radishes, sauerkraut, spinach, squash (summer), string beans (yront), tomatoes, turnip green, watercress and wax beans.

RINGING THE BELL

From a blackside point of view

With BOB TIEUEL

After almost 50 years of thumping out this column in some form or other, we think that sometimes we need a good, long rest; but look at all the fun we would miss. For many years this piece appeared only in black newspapers and periodicals. Segregation and oppression were at their heights in the early days of this column's history, and we blasted away. We made a lot of folks mad, but that's the way it was. People don't write you until you "make 'em mad," one bellringer pointed out.

Even in the days of the "black curtain" we continued to do the thing that we believed God had called us to do: "to preach the gospel to the poor," to bring hope in the midst of despair and to tell all who would listen that God is no respecter of persons. Didn't the Word say so? Even so, newspapering was an avocation for us, a hobby, and we never laid claim to being a professional journalist. We simply had a larger audience to which to voice one man's opinions.

ONE DAY WE were in Memphis, Tenn. (May 1954) attending a national conference of the Christian Methodist Episcopal Church, and newsboys began screaming from newspaper headlines: "U.S. Supreme Court declares separate but equal doctrine void in schools." The thousands of blacks assembled that day in the huge church auditorium broke out in shouting, singing, and prayer was offered to Him "who doeth all things well in His own time."

We called shortly afterward in the offices of the daily Memphis Press Scimitar with a story of the reaction of our General Conference, and the publisher said to me: "Preacher, surely this is the day that your people have been waiting for, isn't it?" I felt like answering in the tone of the character Uncle Tom, "Yes sir, Massa, it is." But I didn't. I simply said, "God be praised."

That was more than 25 years ago, and in the words of the late Martin Luther King, we are not yet fully free; but one day surely we shall be. And as one voice in the black experience, we can surely say that we might not be where we would like to be but we have come a long way from where we used to be.

THROUGH THE years the one purpose of this column has been to encourage and inspire black people to hold on, to keep the faith and to realize that "weeping may endure for a night but joy cometh in the morning." And too, we write to inform and to teach people of all ethnic groups that racial understanding and goodwill are possible and God expects nothing less.

And as we draw to the sunset of this column, we are happy to learn that the white press of the nation and the Southwest in many areas is working with us in this noble endeavor. Black staff men and reporters and columns from professionals are joining in airing the blackside. We are gradually becoming one people; for after all, there is one Lord, one faith, one baptism.

Our constant prayer is that our young, black and beautiful high school and college youngsters will consider the profession of journalism and not make it a hobby, as we have. For who can tell the "Black Story" as well as you can? We are the "Black Story."

AS WE LAUNCH out at the beginning of another half-century, we remain ever mindful that an effective newspaper column must be forthright and honest in its opinions. Ray Zauber, fighting publisher of the Oak Cliff Tribune, one of the few remaining strong independent newspapers of the Southwest, puts it:

"The years ahead are filled with promise and fraught with dangers. The energy crisis, the permissive age, the uncertain economy, international politics, excessive crime, and unscrupulous officeholders are just some of the agonizing problems of our era." What a challenge! Who knows? Perhaps we will be around a little while to help in solution.

BULLETIN: The Texas Conference of NAACP Branches will meet in Abilene Oct. 11-12. The New Mexico meeting is scheduled Oct. 19-20.

billion on national advertising in 1978, an increase of 17 percent over 1977.

If you read the fine print, you'll find some interesting corporate bedfellows. The bacon on your table and the bus you take to town, for example. The toys for your kids and the food for your dog.

Here, in alphabetical order, is a random selection of companies and some of the things they produce:

—The Campbell Soup Co. of Camden, N.J., goes from soup to, er, pickles. Vlasic pickles in particular.

—Chesebrough-Pond's of Greenwich, Conn., maker of Pond's cold cream, also has Vaseline petroleum jelly and Ragu spaghetti sauce.

—Consolidated Foods Corp. of Chicago tempts your tastebuds with Sara Lee bakery products. If you drop some crumbs, call the company's Fuller Brush man. Consolidated Foods also markets hosiery, L'eggs.

—General Foods of White Plains, N.Y., tells you to stretch your at-home food dollar with Shake 'n Bake coating mix and urges you out of the kitchen and into a Burger Chef.

—Greyhound Corp. of Phoenix, Ariz., takes you places with its buses and feeds you Armour Star bacon when you get there.

—Gulf & Western Industries of New York offers fantasy with television shows like "Laverne & Shirley," but its view of party hose is Nonsense, which it also owns.

—International Telephone & Telegraph Corp. of New York brings you Wonder bread, Sheraton hotels and the stag from the Hartford Insurance Group.

—The Liggett Group Inc. of Montvale, N.J., provides L&M cigarettes, Alpo dog food and Izmir, a Turkish vodka made from white beets.

—Norton Simon Inc. of New York may be the champion. While its name is not necessarily a household word, you probably know the names of its divisions: Hunts tomato products,

Avis rental cars, Max Factor cosmetics, Canada Dry beverages, Johnnie Walker scotch, Halston Enterprises and McCall Patterns, to name a few.

—Pepsi Co. Inc. of Purchase, N.Y., makes you work up a thirst with golf clubs from Wilson Sporting Goods and snacks from Frito-Lay.

—Procter & Gamble Co. of Cincinnati, the biggest national advertiser, keeps you clean — not only with Ivory, but with Tide and Cheer as well. P&G also includes ants, Folgers coffee, Duncan Hines cake mixes and squeezable Charmin.

Sure and Secret deodor-

—R.J. Reynolds Industries of Winston-Salem, N.C., has the No. 2 cigarette in the nation — Winston — and the No. 1 brand of canned Chinese food, Chun King.

Last on this abbreviated list — and 25th among advertisers — is the U.S. government. What does the government have to advertise?

Arson suspected in Houston fires

HOUSTON (AP) — A fire that arson investigators believe was set deliberately broke out Monday in the Woodway Square apartments complex where a July 31 fire caused an estimated $34 million in damage.

The second fire was extinguished after about 45 minutes during a driving rain.

Investigators said the blaze began in the same building as the July 31 fire but all utilities in the structure had been disconnected.

District Fire Chief B.F. Godbey said the fire threatened briefly to spread to adjoining apartments undamaged in the first fire. Without the rain, he said, the adjoining buildings possibly could have been lost.

Wood shingles drew much of the blame for the rapidly spreading July 31 fire that damaged or destroyed 350 apartments. One day after the fire, the City Council approved an ordinance tightening regulations on the use of wood shingles.

Arson investigators originally said the fire had been set deliberately but later said they had found no evidence to support such a theory.

NEW YORK (AP) — On the dotted line these days, Voltaire is worth a good deal more than Queen Victoria, and Warren G. Harding is valued at $50 more than Harry S. Truman.

For $1,350, a Fifth Avenue department store that traffics in original autographs, besides those it collects in its credit department, will let you have an 11-line letter from Voltaire in French, signed Nov. 27, 1763 at Ferney, a French enclave near the Swiss border where the irascible thinker went to live when he fell out with Frederick the Great of Prussia.

But you can get Queen Victoria, also writing in French, for only $500, probably because her French

I still have his signature with those middle initial on an I.O.U. from a poker game, but doubt it is worth any more today than it was then.

President James A. Garfield, who signed in as J.A. Garfield, is worth only $100, which is still better than British Prime Minister Arthur James Balfour, marked down to $37.50, despite the 10 Downing Street letter-head and crested envelope that are included in the deal.

Topping the store's latest list at $1,850 are Sigmund Freud, writing a rare letter in English to the editor of the Birth Control Review in appreciation of Havelock Ellis, and John Adams of Revolutionary war fame signing the ship's papers for the Brig Edmund out of Newburyport, Mass.

Lanoir's signature, without a painting attached, goes for a flat $1,000, but for a mere $350 you can have a fiery, scrappy letter from Daniel O'Connell, the great Irish commoner whose name adorns the main street of almost every Irish town. Writing about his political activities to J.V. Fitzpatrick on Sept. 11, 1835, O'Connell says the "prospect for Ireland brightens. I think I shall be a cabinet minister next session with the rule of matters in Ireland committed to me. It is time they should act honestly by Ireland... If the Orange faction were put down, the combination in Ireland would be too strong to permit misgovernment.

The last time I wrote about a public sale of famous autographs, a couple of hundred readers wrote in trying to unload the signatures of everyone from Franklin D. Roosevelt (on a draft notice) and Babe Ruth (on a baseball or chewing gum card) to Lee Harvey Oswald's Marine Corps drill instructor and no-hands Nolan, the legendary Brownsville bookie who was de-digited by the mob for having sticky fingers in the numbers pie.

To avoid having to answer a similar avalanche from ready-to-sell autograph hounds, I can only advise them to look for reputable autograph dealers in their local classified phone books or call in at the local museum for help in finding one.

Like most people who proliferate their thoughts in public print, I occasionally reap a harvest of mail, often acrimonious, from the rich and famous and otherwise.

I have a rather petulant note from Crazy Joe Gallo suggesting that I brought some dishonor on the good name of his family in a piece I did on crime in the New York garment district. He particularly disliked the passage where his grandmother was hard put to explain to the police how those 200 stolen suits ended up in the family closet. This particular missive, a postcard actually, I wish had been marked "occupant." Ever since receiving it, I have made a point of never sitting with my back to the door or window of an Italian restaurant and avoiding the garden in the back.

Agatha Christie also sent a tart note when I requested an interview on the occasion of her 80th birthday. "At 80, one does what one wants to do and one doesn't do what one doesn't want to do," she wrote in a spidery handwriting. "And what this octogenarian doesn't want to do is to be interviewed by another American reporter."

If anyone is interested, I also have a $2 win ticket on Spectacular Bid in this year's Belmont and a laundry ticket for some shirts I left at a Chinese wet-wash on To Do street in Saigon before it became Ho Chi Minh City.

Walking catfish wins reprieve from Miami wife's frying pan

MIAMI (AP) — Helen Corbett brought home a mess of catfish and dumped them in her sink. They looked much alike.

But when she turned to get a knife, one catfish jumped out and walked across the kitchen.

"I couldn't figure out what he was," Mrs. Corbett says. "The rest of the catfish were just fluttering around in the water. But I saw this one just hop out of the sink and he walked about five or six steps over by the refrigerator."

Mrs. Corbett finally picked it up and took it back to the canal where she caught it.

"No, I sure didn't eat it," she said.

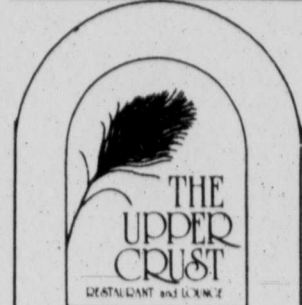

Wildlife authorities say Mrs. Corbett isn't telling a fish story. In fact, since recent heavy rains, they've been deluged with calls from people unnerved by the sight of catfish creeping across their backyards. "After these heavy rains, a lot have come out of the canals and become visible to people," said Frank Morello, a biologist with the state Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission.

The catfish, he said, haven't presented any problems, but they have stirred curiosity.

The walking catfish, native to Southeast Asia, is one of 23 exotic species of fish thriving in Florida waters, Morello said, and the walkers can be found from Homestead, south of here, to Lakeland, in Central Florida.

One gill has a special air bladder that enables the fish to stay out of the water as long as they stay wet and cool, Shafland said.

New Englanders to get energy tips from DOE

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Department of Energy said Tuesday it plans to send energy-saving tips to New England householders this winter, testing an idea that might be applied nationwide next year.

Department spokesman Don Creed said in an interview that the program was prompted by the shortages and price increases of heating oil which plagued home owners last winter.

Contrary to a report by the Wall Street Journal linking the program with President Carter's reelection campaign, Creed said the fuel-saving program originated in the Energy Department and the White House had no involvement with it.

Creed said the Buildings and Community Systems Office, which has operated a number of programs to encourage energy conservation by the public, decided to mail New Englanders a pamphlet of fuel-saving tips, along with a plastic snap-on regulator to reduce the water flow of a shower.

He said the department would pay $1.5 million of the program costs, and would seek a matching $1.5 million more in voluntary contributions from New England businesses and industries.

Program officials were scheduling meetings to seek these contributions, he said.

The effort will serve as a pilot program, Creed said. If successful, it may be expanded nationwide next winter.

Heartless Play Wins

By Alfred Sheinwold

A kind heart is of little value when you're taking a finesse. No heart at all may be much better.

South took the queen of hearts, drew trumps, cashed the ace of clubs and got to dummy with the ace of diamonds to lead another club. South then lost two clubs and sneered at his partner's bidding to divert attention from his own play.

SHOULD MAKE SLAM

South can make the contract against any club break if he is heartless enough. After drawing trumps and cashing the ace of clubs South must get rid of the hearts by leading the ace and king.

South then takes the ace of diamonds, ruffs a diamond and leads his low club. If both opponents follow suit, South can pick up the only missing club with the king when he regains the lead. If only one opponent follows suit, he must either return a club to give declarer a free finesse or must lead a red card, letting dummy ruff while South discards the jack of clubs.

Willow mats work

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) — A new method of firming the banks of local rivers has been developed in the town of Ostrava.

Willow rods are bound by a machine into long mats which are then unrolled on the river banks and covered with soil. The willow branches quickly sprout and send out roots which help prevent the erosion of the river banks.

Little progress in strikes by 34,000 teachers

By the Associated Press

Special police picket patrols rounded up Indianapolis teachers who violated a judge's order, while a mediator in the strike-bound Detroit system reports "a classic stalemate."

In the Jefferson Parish district in suburban New Orleans, a citizen group wants Louisiana Gov. Edwin Edwards to step in and try to settle a four-week dispute.

Generally, little progress was reported Tuesday in strikes by more than 34,000 teachers in 11 states. The walkouts affect more than 672,000 public school pupils.

The National Education Association in Washington said there have been 134 teacher strikes in 18 states so far this year and predicted the number will top last year's total of 176.

Striking teachers have been jailed in Paterson and Woodbridge, N.J., and Anchorage, Alaska, and fired and rehired in Robinson, Ill., the NEA reported.

In Indianapolis, the ranks of striking teachers dwindled Tuesday as Circuit Court Judge Frank P. Huse kept negotiators at work behind locked doors and fined 28 teachers for defying his ban against picketing. Huse, who had said earlier he would not jail teachers, fined the picketers $25 each but postponed collection until after the next payday on Friday.

Officials reported that about 2,400 of the system's 3,400 teachers reported for class Tuesday. That left about 28 percent of the teachers on strike, the lowest figure since the walkout in the 70,000-pupil system began Sept. 4.

Talks broke off Tuesday between bargainers for 12,000 striking Detroit teachers and the school board, sending a strike that has idled 189,000 pupils into its ninth day.

State mediator Robert Blackwell offered both sides a proposal Monday night. By Tuesday morning, the Detroit Federation of Teachers had accepted the plan, but the board turned it down and offered a counterproposal, which the teachers rejected.

"It's a classic stalemate," Blackwell said.

Wayne County Circuit Judge Patrick Duggan ordered the bargaining but refused to issue a back-to-work order. Chief stumbling block is a teacher demand that a new contract contain an automatic cost-of-living wage increase clause.

In Louisiana, leaders of the Concerned Parent's Organization turned to the governor after virtually no progress has been reported in the teacher strike that began Aug. 24.

Less than half of the district's 64,000 pupils have attended class during the strike.

In the latest walkouts, 315 teachers in the Upper Merion Area district in suburban Philadelphia voted Tuesday night to strike, and 70 teachers in a district near the Southern Illinois town of Mounds set up picket lines.

A strike by 400 teachers in Elmwood Park, a suburb of Chicago, ended Tuesday, and in Robinson, Ill., 85 teachers fired by the school board last week were reinstated and back in classes.

Meanwhile, 65,000 pupils in San Francisco remained out of school and 1,400 teachers in Spokane, Wash., stayed on picket lines. Strikes also continued in Alabama, New Jersey, New York and Ohio.

Labor officials oppose Clements appointee

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas AFL-CIO officers oppose Gov. Bill Clements' appointment of Lias "Bubba" Steen as commissioner of labor and standards, claiming Clements considers membership in a country club the most important qualification for an appointed job.

"Mr. Steen fits the mold," said labor President Harry Hubbard and Secretary-Treasurer Joe Gunn. "His other qualifications for the job ... appear to be negligible. He has no experience in any of the areas which are regulated by the Labor Department."

Remarks by the two labor leaders were in a letter mailed to Texas senators, who will vote next session on whether to accept the governor's appointees.

Steen's appointment, Hubbard and Gunn said, was "one more in a series of irresponsible actions by the governor who has little or no concern or interest in the welfare of the state. It appears that he plans to return the state to the 'spoils system' where only his friends and political associates have any role in government."

The labor officers said they were "bitterly disappointed" Clements had not reappointed Lynn Tate—who "came from the ranks of organized labor"—as labor commissioner.

UAW expects approval of new contract with GM

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers union expects approval by local unions of the new contract with General Motors Corp., now that local leaders have endorsed it.

The contract is being signed today, subject to ratification.

Members of the union's GM Council — officers of the 151 locals — recommended ratification in a closed meeting Tuesday by what UAW President Douglas A. Fraser called an "overwhelming" majority.

Some 3,000 shop stewards, committeemen and officers will hear an explanation of the contract in Dallas on Friday and Saturday. Voting should begin Sunday and be finished by Oct. 1, the union has said.

The contract provides large increases in pensions, more than 10 percent a year for some, extends automatic recognition to the union in future new plants, continues the traditional 3 percent annual wage increase and makes the current cost-of-living formula more generous in the third year.

The UAW said in a contract summary distributed at the meeting that an assembler's wage, now $8.67 an hour including cost-of-living increases, would rise to $11.32 an hour in June, 1982, if the Consumer Price Index rose at 8 percent per year between now and then. The index has recently been rising at an annual rate of more than 13 percent.

A total of 14 cents an hour of future cost-of-living increases will be withheld to help finance the pension increases.

That, said Fraser, prompted what opposition there was because "Anytime you have an offset, that causes dissension." But, he said, "the arguments really weren't articulated."

UAW Vice President Irving Blues-ton said "perhaps 10 or 12" delegates stood in opposition when the vote was taken at the end of the all-day meeting. Many of the delegates had left.

Earlier, delegate George Nanno of Local 1364 in Fremont, Calif., said some opposed to the contract because "it doesn't look like we, the guys in the shop, got too much — the retirees got a lot, but it's coming out of COLA (cost-of-living allowance)."

He said he had wanted to see the more-generous COLA formula applied immediately instead of after a two-year wait. "People are concerned about the economy. Anything can happen in three years."

Striking nurses still out

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — National Guardsmen and volunteers are caring for 1,500 chronically and mentally ill patients today as a Superior Court judge decides whether to hold striking state nurses in contempt of court.

Judge Anthony A. Giannini said he would rule today on the state's request for a contempt order against 225 Medical Center nurses who have defied the back-to-work order he issued Friday.

He said after a day-long hearing Tuesday that he wants to speak personally with the four officers of the nurses' local and a national union representative named by the state.

The nurses' strike is an offshoot of a long-simmering dispute with the state over staffing at the Cranston complex, which has 700 mental patients at the Institute of Mental Health and 800 long-term care patients at the General Hospital.

A representative of the nurses' union who appeared in court was jailed for about 30 minutes Tuesday for refusing to answer questions about a meeting where nurses voted to continue the strike.

However, Sharon Galipeau was recalled to the stand, refused again to answer questions and was released. Strikes by state employees are illegal in Rhode Island.

Both sides say an oral agreement on the dispute has been reached. However, the state refused to put the contract in writing unless the nurses returned to the job. The nurses refuse to return to work without a written agreement.

Some buses running in LA

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Service was irregular but officials of the Los Angeles-area Rapid Transit District said some buses were running on all lines after striking mechanics voted to approve a three-week moratorium in their 23-day strike.

The entire fleet of RTD buses was expected to be back on streets and highways in four counties today, transportation officials said.

About 70 percent of the district's 2,100 buses were back in service Tuesday, officials said.

About 600,000 people rode the RTD buses daily before the strike began Aug. 26. Some buses normally full in rush hours had only a handful of riders Tuesday, and an RTD spokesman said it was too soon to say how many people had returned to using the buses in Los Angeles, Orange, Riverside and San Bernardino counties.

The district's 5,000 drivers, 500 clerks and the mechanics walked off their jobs Aug. 26, in the RTD's fourth strike in seven years. They vowed to continue the strike until all three unions settled.

The drivers and clerks have reached agreement on new contracts, and the only issue left on the bargaining table with the mechanics is whether the RTD should be able to subcontract mechanical work.

Jerome Long, leader of the Amalgamated Transportation Union which represents the 1,200 mechanics, warned that the strike would resume in three weeks if the RTD doesn't drop its demand for subcontracting.

RR officials reach agreement

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Pickets hit the Missouri-Kansas-Texas railroad yards briefly here Tuesday night, but were withdrawn after just five hours when officials of the striking United Transportation Union reached an agreement with railroad officials.

The union said it set up the pickets in Kansas City and at Katy yards in Dallas and Fort Worth because the line had been helping the strikebound Rock Island Railroad by shipping its rail cars.

Howard Kenyon, international vice president of the union, said the company denied any such action, but agreed not to assist Rock Island in any way in the future.

A Katy general superintendent, Chris Putsche, had said earlier at his Denison, Texas, office that the picketing was due to "some misunderstanding. We have done nothing to bring this about. They had the idea that we were shipping and receiving cars for the Rock in Dallas when it just wasn't so."

Tentative accord reached

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The second of eight struck Duluth-Superior elevator firms reached a tentative contract agreement with Local 118 of the American Federation of Grain Millers today.

Wayne Horvitz, head of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, said the tentative agreement was reached with Cargill Inc. at 2 a.m. after more than 15 hours of continuous negotiations.

Union officials said they would unanimously recommend the agreement to members, Horvitz said. No details of the proposal were released.

Horvitz said bargaining would resume at 10 a.m. today with ConAgra and Continental Grain Co. Representatives of the other four struck elevators — owned by ADM Corp., Globe Elevator Co., General Mills and International Multifoods — will remain on call, he said.

Most Texas House members support registration bill

WASHINGTON — Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes Sept. 6-12.

HOUSE
DRAFT REGISTRATION: The House defeated, 163 for and 252 against, a move requiring 18-year-old males to register for possible draft into the military. The effect of the vote was to remove draft-registration

Jake Pickle, D-10, Mickey Leland, D-18, Henry Gonzalez, D-20, and Ron Paul, R-22, voted "nay."
 Rep. Kika de la Garza, D-15, did not vote.

POST OFFICE: The House rejected, 125 for and 242 against, an amendment to freeze the taxpayer subsidy of the U.S. Postal Service at its current $920 million level for the next five years. The vote left standing language to gradually hike the subsidy to $1.3 billion in fiscal 1982. It came during debate on a post office bill (HR 79), passed and sent to the Senate. Although the Postal Service expects a profit of $180 million in the current fiscal year, it says it may return to the red ink in subsequent years.

Members voting "nay" wanted to hike the taxpayer subsidy of the U.S. Postal Service.

Collins, Archer, Brooks, de la Garza, Loeffler and Paul voted "yea."
 Hall, Wilson, Mattox, Gramm, Eckhardt, Pickle, Leath, Hightower, Wyatt, White, Stenholm, Hance, Gonzalez, Kazen and Frost voted "nay."
 Roberts, Wright and Leland did not vote.

EXPORT LICENSING: The House rejected, 201 for and 206 against, an amendment to curb the sale of "sensitive" U.S. goods and technologies abroad. The amendment was supported by national security advocates. It was opposed by business interests which claimed that Commerce Department red tape often deprives them of foreign sales of products no longer sensitive from a national security standpoint. The vote came during debate on the Export Administration Act (HR 4034), later passed and sent to the Senate. Members voting "yea" supported the national security argument.

Hall, Wilson, Collins, Roberts, Gramm,

Archer, Brooks, Pickle, Leath, Hightower, de la Garza, White, Stenholm, Hance, Gonzalez, Loeffler and Paul voted "yea."
 Mattox, Eckhardt, Wright and Leland voted "nay."
 Wyatt did not vote.

SENATE

STRIP MINING: The Senate passed, 60 for and 26 against, a bill (S. 2403) softening the landmark strip-mining law enacted in 1977. The bill gives states more time to comply with the law and more autonomy in developing environmental and reclamation standards within the federal framework. The bill, which was sent to the House, puts in abeyance proposed Interior Department regulations for implementing the law.

Senators voting "yea" wanted to soften the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act of 1977. Sens. John Tower, R, and Lloyd Bentsen, D, voted "yea."

REGULATIONS: The Senate refused to kill, 27 for and 51 against, language to curb the power of federal regulation writers. The vote upheld a provision that would make the multitude of regulations issued by federal agencies more vulnerable to court challenges. The language is considered of landmark potential, for if it becomes law it will put the burden of proof on the regulators to show that a given regulation is valid. Now the burden is on the regulated to prove a regulation invalid. The vote came during debate on a courts bill (S1477), later passed and sent to the House.

Senators voting "nay" want executive branch agencies to be required to prove the validity of their regulations when challenged in court. Bentsen and Tower voted "nay."

CROP INSURANCE: The Senate passed, 64 for and 27 against, a bill establishing a broad federal insurance program to protect producers of all major crops against losses from natural disaster. After crop year 1980, the insurance set up will replace the existing program under which the government awards after-the-disaster relief grants to farmers suffering losses. The bill (S 1125) was sent to the House. Senators voting "yea" favor the bill. Bentsen and Tower voted "yea."

ROLL CALL REPORT

language from a Defense Department authorization bill (HR 4040), later passed and sent to the Senate.

Members voting "yea" wanted 18-year-old males to be required to register with their local draft boards, beginning in 1981.

Reps. Samuel Hall, D-1, Charles Wilson, D-2, James Collins, R-3, Ray Roberts, D-4, Bill Archer, R-7, Jack Brooks, D-9, J. Marvin Leach, D-11, James Wright, D-12, Jack Hightower, D-13, Joe Wyatt, D-14, Richard White, D-16, Charles Stenholm, D-17, Kent Hance, D-19, Tom Loeffler, R-21, Abraham Kazen, D-23, and Martin Frost, D-24, voted "yea."
 Repr. Jim Mattox, D-5, Bob Eckhardt, D-8,

Kennedy may turn to leadership issue

By WALTER R. MEARS
 AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a presidential campaign, the political center is like a magnet, drawing candidates from the left and from the right toward the middle, where the votes are.

That's why most candidates — at least the successful ones — resist the labels of conservative or liberal, and insist that they look for solutions to fit the problem, not some preconceived ideology.

And that is what Sen. Edward M. Kennedy is doing now. It is not a matter of shifting positions, but of emphasis. Kennedy says he is no big-spending liberal, wedded to the solutions of the 1960s. Nor, he says, is he less concerned than the Carter administration about deficits and inflation.

That doesn't undo his past criticism of a federal budget he said shortchanged social spending. But he is not stressing that theme these days, as he considers a challenge to President Carter for the 1980 Democratic presidential nomination.

An analysis

"We cannot accept a policy that cuts spending to the bone in areas like jobs and health, but allows billions of dollars in wasteful spending for tax subsidies and adds even greater fat and waste through inflationary spending for defense," he told Democrats at their mid-term convention last Dec. 9.

Kennedy still doesn't agree with the administration's spending priorities. But curiously, as he comes closer to presidential candidacy, he seems more cautious in his criticism of the man from whom he would have to wrest the nomination.

"I'm generally reluctant to get into critical positions on the administration," he said the other day. He didn't seem so reluctant when he was denouncing Carter's budget priorities, or accusing the administration of surrender to the oil lobby, or calling the proposed windfall profits tax "a transparent fig leaf."

He says he wants to cooperate with the Democratic White House. "I would like to work with them, as I indicated to the president, shaping the energy program, also in coming to grips with some of these issues of the economy," he said.

Kennedy said he is doing so now, as chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee and in other areas as well. He said "we have strong workings now" with the administration on a new FBI charter and an overhaul of the criminal code.

"We're still working with HEW on most of the legislation..." he said. "I think we're linked up in the energy area, on energy productivity and conservation."

He also mentioned his support of the Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty with the Soviet Union.

"I think those lines are continuing and on-going, and I want to keep those efforts moving," he said.

That points to a campaign in which Kennedy's side of the Democratic debate would center less on specific program differences than on the broader question of leadership. That's the point on which he faults Carter most harshly, questioning whether the people have confidence that the president can deal with national problems.

Like many a candidate before, Kennedy says the problems defy ideology and labels. He clearly is the leader of the Democratic Party's liberal wing, but he seeks a broader constituency.

"I think the problems will demand practical solutions... that defy sort of an ideological solution, solutions that fit into labels, the cliches of the past," he said.

With that, he points to his Senate alliances on the right, to his partnership with former Sen. James L. Buckley of New York, "the most conservative member of the Senate," in sponsoring an airline deregulation bill; to the support of Republican Sen. Strom Thurmond for his bill to overhaul the criminal code.

"I think it's this pattern of being able, hopefully, to broaden the constituencies that I think is the hope for coming to grips with a number of these problems," Kennedy said.

Kennedy has indeed found Senate issues on which he could work in tandem with Republicans and conservatives. Coalitions are a way of life in the Senate.

Bicycle safety and inspection clinic scheduled for youngsters

A bicycle safety and inspection clinic will be conducted from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday in the east parking lot of Memorial Stadium.

The safety clinic, sponsored by the Westside Optimists Club, is open to all youngsters in grades kindergarten through six, according to club president Danny Storch.

Storch said members of the Midland Police Department will be on hand to assist Optimists in teaching bicycle safety and to help mark bicycles for identification purposes.

Optimists are asking that bicycles be marked with the driver's license number of a child's parents.

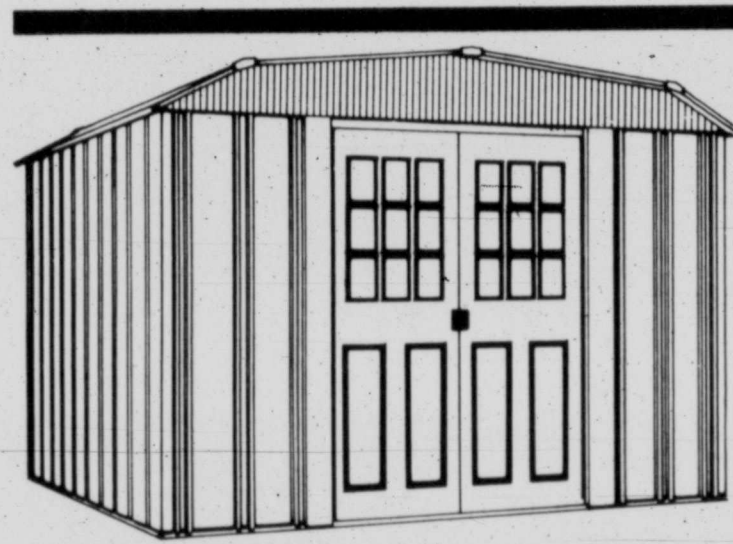

Youngsters participating in the annual clinic will receive a bicycle safety emblem for their bikes, said Storch.

Free soft drinks will be given and fire trucks will be on display, Storch said.

According to Storch, the bicycle safety program is only one of the club's numerous youth projects.
