Brown campaigning in Dallas and Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — California Gov. Edmund G. Brown says he is surprised by the political openness of Texas.

In bringing his unofficial campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination to the state, Brown said he has not found a profound level of commitment in Texas for either President Carter or another potential contender, Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass. Brown was to speak today at the University of Houston and at a $6 per person reception at a lawyers club.

Brown said at a news conference he believes he made a respectable showing Monday while in Dallas. Recognizing that Texas is the home of Robert Strauss, the Middle East ambassador and former Democratic chairman, and John White, the current national chairman, he acknowledged, however, he does not expect much "establishment" support in Texas.

"Obviously, we're going to have to crush some ice, but I'm surprised by the openness of Texas," he said. He suggested the establishment

He also repeated his support for the nuclear arms limitation treaty with Russia.

"I take a strong position against nuclear power because I think it leads to a dead end," he said as several hundred students broke into applause.

Planning agency OKs cancer center

The application for the Allison Permian Basin Cancer Treatment Center will go to Austin with a favorable, though not unanimous, recommendation from the local Health Systems Agency.

The governing body of the regional health planning group approved a favorable report from its project review committee by a 12-6 vote, with two members abstaining at the 7:30 p.m. meeting of the HSA Monday.

The project review committee, which met at 5 p.m. to develop its findings from information gathered at a Thursday public hearing, voted unanimously for a favorable recommendation on the Midland center.

The report from the HSA will be forwarded to the Texas Health Facilities Commission which will hold its own hearing on the application Nov. 26. The state agency must issue a certificate of need before the $3.4 million regional cancer treatment facility can be built.

Sam Glenney, administrator of Odessa's Medical Center Hospital, withdrew his opposition to the application at the Thursday hearing. Medical Center's objection had been a major obstacle to a favorable ruling from the HSA.

Despite the withdrawal of formal opposition, Odessa officials still seemed less than enthusiastic about their support of the proposed Midland facility, which is designed to treat cancer patients with megavoltage radiation equipment and chemotherapy.

Medical Center offers cobalt treatment for cancer patients.

Dr. Robert Lewis, an Odessa radiologist and a member of the HSA board, told the group that, despite projections and estimates of patient loads, the number of cancer patients he treats has remained almost static since 1974.

However, he noted, "no physician, and particularly one treating large numbers of cancer patients can oppose any improvement in treatment capability — whether it is cost-effective or not."

Lewis noted he would refer appropriate patients to the Midland facility if it is created, but "what none of us will or can afford to do is to agree to send all cancer patients to any regional facility to justify its creation and expense of operation."

"My Ector County colleagues and I cannot in good conscience agree to force Ector County patients — 75 percent of our cancer load—who bought and paid for a local facility when no other existed to travel any distance for radiation therapy."

Lewis abstained from voting on the Midland application.

Main purpose of the HSA, he said, is to determine cost effectiveness.

"The problem I am concerned with comes later, should low patient loads in both facilities necessitate a recommendation from this board under provisions of (federal guidelines) regarding continuation of one and closing of the other facility."

Federal law sets minimum patient loads for health care facilities. When a facility treats fewer than the mini-

Man eludes police chase But then surrenders at headquarters

Midland Police Department officers chased an armed robbery suspect through town Monday at high rates of speed before the subject escaped on foot into a field of weeds.

The man subsequently turned himself in at police headquarters.

Johnny Ray Williams, 22, who told officers he lives at 501 S. Carver St., surrendered to Midland police Monday evening.

Police were seeking Williams in connection with an armed robbery which took place at 9:45 p.m. Saturday at E Z Way Grocery, 1101 Scharbauer Drive.

According to police reports, two men entered the store Saturday, brandished a pistol and took an undetermined amount of cash.

Midland police detectives showed store owners a series of pictures following the robbery and Williams was identified by owners as one of the men allegedly involved in the incident, according to a police spokesman. A warrant for the man's arrest was issued Monday. But when police approached Williams at the service station where he works, Williams reportedly drove off in a customer's van, the police spokesman said.

Police said they followed Williams through the south part of town until he abandoned the vehicle across from Travis Elementary School at 600 S. Adams St., and escaped into an adjoining field on foot.

Five Midland police units and several unmarked cars arrived at the scene. The police department's canine unit was involved in the search for the man.

Police later searched Williams' reported residence at 501 S. Carver St., but were unable to find the suspect.

Williams, however, surrendered to law enforcement officials Monday evening at the police station.

A second man allegedly involved in the incident remained at large today, a police spokesman said.

Mamie suffers apparent stroke

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mamie Eisenhower was rushed by ambulance to Walter Reed Army Medical Center today from her home in Gettysburg, Pa. An aide to her personal physician said the 82-year-old former first lady apparently had suffered a stroke.

Susan Bean, an assistant to Dr. W.N. Sterrett, said the physician rode in a fire department ambulance with Mrs. Eisenhower.

After arriving at the hospital, Mrs. Eisenhower was taken immediately to its Eisenhower Nursing Suite, a VIP facility named for her late husband, President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Hospital officials said there was no immediate word on her condition.

The Gettysburg Volunteer Fire Department said it received a call for an ambulance at the Eisenhower farm before 10 a.m.

Why do the drivers of the ready-mix concrete trucks after a delivery dump their waste in the alleys?

My husband spent most of Saturday morning digging up rocks and concrete.

This is the second time this has happened this year. — B.K.M.

ANSWER: According to a Midland ready-mix concrete company, this situation is not supposed to happen; it is against city ordinances. What happens at times is that drivers of the trucks rinse out the chute after a delivery.

I would like to know what can be done about the draping of bathroom tissue on trees and shrubs at homes of high school football players. I understand this is done at the homes of football players, but they made a mistake and draped the yard of an elderly neighbor of mine.

We hear all this talk about ecology and then this act is done. The paper blows off the trees and shrubs and goes all over the neighborhood. I do like the idea of the signs for the players, but the paper creates a nuisance in the neighborhoods, causing Midland to have the appearance of an unclean city.

How can we stop this draping? — Mrs. H. B.

ANSWER: A Midland high school principal's office reports this recognition of football players is just part of the activities of the school. The school apologizes for the inadvertent drap-

DC-10, DC-9 engine failures reported over Spain, U.S.

By The Associated Press

An engine of an Iberia Airlines DC-9 jetliner exploded in flight today over Spain, and a DC-10 trailed sparks visible for miles after a tail engine failed over Washington state.

The Iberian plane carried 56 passengers and crew of five, a spokesman for the Spanish airline said.

The engine blew up as the Madrid-Barcelona flight passed over Zaragoza, about half way along the route.

Three Midlanders remained in area hospitals today following injuries each received in two separate incidents this past weekend.

George Navarro, 8, was scheduled to be removed from the intensive care unit at Midland Memorial Hospital today, a hospital spokeswoman said.

He was admitted Sunday with injuries he received after the bicycle he and his brother were riding was involved in a collision with an automobile.

The youth was listed in stable condition.

His brother Francisco, 10, remained in stable condition, the spokesperson said.

The two boys live at 501 E. Estes Ave., according to police reports.

In the other injury-related incident, Curtis Moore, 27, was listed in stable condition in the intensive care unit of Odessa's Medical Center Hospital today.

Moore was shot in the shoulder late Saturday during an argument at a Midland nightclub, according to police reports.

Commissioners lower speed limits

By RICHARD MASON Staff Writer

Residents along county roads 1224 South and 118 can expect a reprieve from speeding vehicles following approval Monday of an ordinance that would drop the speed limit on those roads to 35 mph.

Midland County Commissioners voted to enact the change along the roadways which "are heavily populated with children," according to Commissioner Jack Leonard.

Lowering the speed limits on the highways had been under consideration for several months. The new speed limits will take effect immediately, County Judge William Ahders said.

Commissioners also voted to table an application for a pipeline right of way on the south side of County Road 90 and to inform Pittsburgh Paint and Glass about construction of an access road that would benefit industrial development west of town.

Commissioners took no action on a request from R.E. McDaniel of Houston, a vice president with Gulf Interstate Engineering Company, for right of way access south of the county road. A number of pipelines run along the north side of the road.

Commissioner Charley Welch voiced his opposition to the plan because the county intends to widen the roadway eventually.

"To improve that road and make it bigger and better, we've got to have some room," Welch told the engineer.

McDaniel, who said he was representing Southern Union Refining Co., noted the right of way was part of a project which involved linking a 100 mile pipeline between Midland and Lovington, N.M. That pipeline would carry 30,000 barrels of oil each day, McDaniel said.

Commissioner Win Brown suggested the company contact property owners north of the roadway and explore installing the pipeline there.

Action on the proposal was postponed pending additional research. Welch said he "feels certain" the county eventually will widen the highway to provide for growth in the area south of roadway. Several oil firms have storage facilities north of the roadway.

Commissioners decided to inform Pittsburgh Paint and Glass about extending CR 1250 to accommodate the firm's proposed Midland plant.

Commissioner Win Brown said paving on the access road was scheduled to be under way by May 1980.

Brown said the road already connects the access road along Interstate 20 and U.S. Highway 80, but new construction would extend it an additional 7 mile.

Commissioners heard a presentation from a representative of Western Data Systems Inc. of Waxahachie to upgrade county tax records through computerization.

About 25 counties in the state have already switched to the program, the representative said.

More laying hens killed in PCB probe

THREE FORKS, Mont. (AP) — The trail of a toxic chemical accidentally mixed into animal meal at a Montana packing plant has led to a second Western poultry producer, and the owners have slaughtered nearly 53,000 laying hens.

Cherry Lane Farms of Montana killed the birds over the weekend because of the high levels of PCB, a suspected cancer-causing agent, in their feed, Jerry Bookey, president of Cherry Lane's parent company, National Food Corp. of Seattle, said Monday.

Federal authorities say the tainted feed was sold from early June through early September to Cherry Lane and other producers in at least six states by Pierce Packing Co. of Billings, Mont.

Pierce officials say some of their feed was contaminated by PCB, polychlorinated biphenyl, in June when an electrical transformer ruptured. The chemical was used as coolant in the transformer, which since has been removed. Pierce officials say up to 200 gallons may have leaked into meat meal used in poultry and livestock feed.

Laboratory tests have shown PCB can cause cancer in animals. It was banned in April by the federal Environmental Protection Agency. The U.S. Food and Drug Administration said 1.9 million pounds of possibly contaminated meat meal was shipped during the last 3 1/2 months to Montana, Utah, Idaho, Washington, Minnesota and North Dakota.

Health planners OK cancer center

The radiation treatment facility in Odessa has not treated the minimum number of patients since it was established in 1971 and has been kept open because of distance to another treatment center.

Projections done by H.O. McKenzie, a nationally known cancer treatment consultant hired by Midland officials to revamp the proposed center, estimate there will be more than enough cancer patients within two years to justify both facilities.

McKenzie was optimistic in his report to the project review committee that properly trained personnel could be recruited to staff the Midland center, another problem Lewis addressed in his remarks to the board Monday.

Midland officials said they hope the certificate of need can be issued this year to allow construction to begin and concrete work to be done during the cool weather and to allow Midlander Helon Y. Allison, who donated $2 million for construction of the project, to receive a sizable tax advantage.

Why, after repeatedly asking, do we not have a detailed map of the proposed "North Loop"? It could make a lot of difference in layman's voting, voicing and/or paying for the proposed route.

The technical highways, as such, are still a mystery to those of us not understanding the legal jargon we are forced to read.

As a concerned Midland County taxpayer, I am very interested, as others, to have an ungarbled answer. — Mrs. D.L.R.

Senate to consider savings bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill to gradually eliminate federal interest ceilings on savings accounts is awaiting Senate action after winning the endorsement of its Banking Committee.

Aimed at encouraging Americans to save more, the measure also would reduce from $10,000 to $1,000 the minimum deposit necessary for a high-earning money-market certificate and would authorize interest-bearing checking accounts nationwide.

The passbook interest ceiling has, by one estimate, cost savers $42 billion they would have otherwise collected on such accounts over the last decade.

Vance, Gromyko offer no comment on troops

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko are withholding comment on their discussion of Russian troops in Cuba, but key senators say removal of the troops is key to ratification of the SALT II treaty.

"We will be reporting the results to our respective governments," Vance said Monday after meeting with Gromyko for 90 minutes at the Soviet U.N. mission.

Gromyko said he and Vance "discussed substance" and planned to meet again Thursday, but refused to say whether he was encouraged.

During a speech to the General Assembly Monday, Vance appeared to take a hard line on the presence of Soviet troops 90-miles off the Florida coast.

"The East-West relationship can deteriorate dangerously whenever one side fails to respect the security interests of the other," Vance told the assembly.

State Department spokesman Hodding Carter later avoided a specific answer when asked if Vance was referring to a combat brigade of between 2,000 and 3,000 troops the United States says the Soviet Union has stationed in Cuba.

"We have always said the troops are not a threat to the United States. But that doesn't mean they are not a threat to U.S. interests," Carter said.

Vance has tried to soft-pedal the garrison of Soviet troops, stressing they should not be linked to SALT II ratification. National Security Adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski, on the other hand, over the weekend called the troops "a serious problem in Soviet-American relations."

The Carter Administration's hopes for Senate ratification of the SALT II pact have dimmed over the past three weeks during cautious negotiations between Vance and Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin about the brigade, which the Soviet Union says has been there for years as a training force.

But pressure from the Senate intensified Monday, as Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, proposed an "immediate and total blockade of Cuba" until the force is removed. He told a news conference the brigade was training insurgents from other Latin American countries.

Hatch said he received his information from sources that had been reliable in the past, but refused to specify which nations were targets of Soviet-trained guerrillas.

Another conservative senator, Jake than 5 1/2 percent, on passbook accounts. The measure is backed by the Carter administration and the Federal Reserve Board. Senate action is expected next month.

The provision on checking accounts, similar to a measure the House passed last week, would overturn a federal court finding that such interest-bearing accounts are not legal.

The bill was approved by the committee Monday on a voice vote, with only Sen. William Armstrong, R-Colo., opposing it. However, Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., said he probably will attempt on the Senate floor to retain for another 18 months the passbook interest ceiling, known as Regulation Q.

Key provisions of the bill would: —Raise the ceiling on deposits by half a percentage point a year, starting in 1982. By 1989, today's passbook rate of 5 1/2 percent for banks (5 1/2 percent for savings and loan associations) would rise to 9 1/2 percent, and all controls would expire. They could be reimposed in phases, however, if federal regulators agree that it is necessary to protect the economy.

—Eventually allow a saver to buy a money-market deposit certificate, whose earnings are tied to the interest the federal government pays on treasury bills, with a minimum of $1,000, rather than $10,000 as under current law.

Garn, R-Utah, said Hatch's proposed blockade was "premature and dangerous," and should be considered only as a last resort because it might force the U.S. Navy into conflict with Soviet ships.

Moderate and liberal senators, including Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, chairman of the foreign relations committee, have said the continued presence of a Soviet combat brigade in Cuba would jeopardize SALT II ratification.

The committee's chairman, Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., called that regulation a disincentive to savers and said it is "particularly outrageous at a time when interest rates (paid by borrowers) approach the rate of inflation."

He agreed with Cranston, however, that eliminating the ceiling would impose a hardship on many savers and loan associations, although adding that the 10-year phase-out favored by the committee would negate most of the problem.

Savings and loans favor Regulation Q, which allows them to pay interest one-quarter of a percentage point above that paid by commercial banks. Savings and loans have much of their assets tied up in long-term mortgages with fixed interest rates and thus would be hard put to pay higher rates to depositors, Cranston reasoned.

Kidnapped U.S. executives alive, in hands of guerrillas

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Two kidnapped executives of a U.S. electronics firm are alive and in the hands of a previously unknown guerrilla organization, a spokesman who claimed to represent the abductors said.

The man called The Associated Press Monday, identified himself as a member of the Revolutionary Central American Workers' Party, and said Dennis McDonald, 37, and co-worker Fausto Bucheli were in good health.

But the organization has made no ransom demands for the men, kidnapped Friday in an ambush that claimed the life of their Salvadorean driver and bodyguard, Luiz Paz.

McDonald, of Whittier, Calif., managed a Salvadorean subsidiary of Beckman Instruments, a California-based electronics company. Bucheli, a Beckman engineer, is a Puerto Rican resident whose family is from Quito, Ecuador.

The group which claims responsibility for the abduction joins about six other leftist organizations seeking to overthrow the military government of President Carlos Humberto Romero and the tiny elite that controls this nation of 3.5 million.

Guerrilla groups have previously held kidnap victims for months, demanding high ransoms to enrich their war chests.

Another organization, the 28th of February Popular League, has taken over the Labor Ministry demanding better working conditions and the release of three of its members from jail.

In an attempt to end the takeover, which began Friday, some 40 well-armed police approached the building Sunday night and lobbed tear gas inside. The group refused to leave, and the occupation continued through Monday.

At least half Soviets employed by U.N. are spies, defector says

LONDON (AP) — At least half the 300 Soviets employed by the United Nations are spies and one is a special assistant to Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim, said former Soviet U.N. official Arkady Shevchenko, who defected last year.

"There is a saying that they consider the U.N. the tallest observation tower in the Western World for intelligence activity," said Shevchenko, who left his post as under-secretary-general for political and security affairs in April 1978 for U.S. asylum.

A special assistant to Waldheim is an officer of the KGB, the Soviet Committee for State Security, a secret police domestic and overseas surveillance, Shevchenko said Monday on the British Broadcasting Corp. morning television show "Panorama."

BBC said it could identify only one Soviet special assistant to Waldheim, Victor Lessivski. He was not available for comment at U.N. headquarters in New York.

"They consider it as the best place for the propaganda, and later discovered that it's one of the best places for their intelligence activities, and actually the U.N. has become one of the most important bases for the KGB or GRU," he added. GRU is Soviet Military Intelligence.

Another top-ranking Soviet agent fingered by Shevchenko was Geli Dneprovsky, the new chief of personnel at the U.N.'s Geneva headquarters. Waldheim, acting on allegations by Britain and other Western powers, last year ordered a probe into charges Dneprovsky was a KGB agent, and "Panorama" reported he was appointed under heavy Soviet pressure.

Some 300 Soviet citizens work as U.N. professionals and interpreters, said Shevchenko. The organization has 10,595 employees.

"I would say it would be a fair guess it would be the minimum that half are KGB or GRU officers," he said. The GRU is Soviet military intelligence.

"I do not say they have very many posts at a very high level," he said. "Most of the post which they have is a medium level post or junior post."

Shevchenko said that Soviet agents disregard the oath of allegiance the United Nations requires of its professionals, and that they report regularly to Soviet missions.

Shevchenko, 47, left his $76,000 a year job as one of 11 U.N. under-secretaries after refusing an order from his government to return to Moscow. His wife Leonina, 49, and children were rushed home under Soviet guard.

Less than a month later, Soviet sources said Mrs. Shevchenko died from an overdose of sleeping pills, and suggested she was distraught over reports her husband had worked as a double agent for the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency.

Published reports last year said Shevchenko had cooperated with the CIA and FBI before his defection. In October 1978, a CIA spokesman said the agency was paying the defector a living expense, but declined to say how much.

Other U.N. observers have said many nations operate spy networks at the United Nations. Unverified reports published after the resignation of Andrew Young last month said Israeli agents supplied the State Department with a transcript of his unauthorized meeting with the Palestinian U.N. observer. The director of the U.N. Human Rights Office in Geneva acknowledged his telephone was tapped and asked for an investigation three weeks ago.

GM expected to announce battery leading to practical electric cars

WASHINGTON (AP) — General Motors President Elliot M. Estes called a news conference here today amid expectations the giant automaker would announce an advance in storage battery technology that may make electric cars more practical within the next few years.

Although GM refused to comment on what Estes would say in advance of his afternoon news conference, speculation was that it would deal with the company's research into zinc-nickel oxide batteries.

Both the Chicago Tribune and the Chicago Sun-Times said over the weekend that the company would announce an advance in battery design and plans to market electric-powered cars by the mid 1980s.

The Tribune, in a copyrighted story, quoted an unnamed GM executive saying the company has come up with a smaller, lighter and more powerful zinc-nickel oxide battery to replace the conventional lead-acid battery.

The Sun-Times quoted company sources as saying the new batteries will have a life of 20,000 to 30,000 miles, although needing to be recharged every 100 miles or so — a point which the newspaper said GM is not satisfied with.

Estes has said previously that the company plans to sell electric cars by the late 1980s. The company has been supporting a large zinc-nickel oxide research program and is known to have several test vehicles running on this battery power.

An Energy Department spokesman, who requested anonymity, said the government is co-sponsoring zinc-nickel battery research with several firms, but that GM's research is being done on its own.

One serious shortcoming of zinc-nickel batteries has been their inability to hold a charge more than about one-third the number of times a lead-acid battery can be recharged.

Heavy-duty lead-acid batteries are good for 700 to 800 charge-discharge cycles, and previous zinc-nickel batteries have had a cycle life between 200 and 300.

Yet the low power output and heavy weight of conventional batteries have made them less than ideal for propelling electric cars.

The attractions of electric cars are that they are quiet, relatively simple to operate and maintain, and don't pollute the air.

Disadvantages are that electric cars until now have not had the acceleration, speed and cruising range of gasoline-powered vehicles, and take hours to recharge between uses.

The government is spending tens of millions of dollars yearly on battery research and plans to subsidize putting 10,000 electric cars on the road by 1986.

Anti-Mafia judge is slain in car

PALERMO, Sicily (AP) — A 59-year-old judge who presided at a number of trials of Mafia chieftains was shot and killed along with his police bodyguard on a Palermo street today, police said. The attackers fled in three cars.

Police said Cesare Terranova, an instructing magistrate on Mafia activities in Sicily, was slain inside his car near his apartment house as he was about to drive to work. Terranova also served on an anti-Mafia committee when he was a Communist deputy in Parliament.

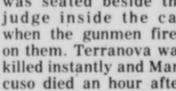

Police said Lenin Mancuso, a policeman serving for many years as Terranova's bodyguard, was seated beside the judge inside the car when the gunmen fired on them. Terranova was killed instantly and Mancuso died an hour after being taken to a hospital.

Just two months ago, Boris Giuliano, head of Palermo's anti-crime squad, was shot and killed as he was sipping coffee in a bar a few blocks from the street where Terranova was ambushed.

Back to fundamentals

Adm. George Anderson, U.S.N. (Ret.), delivered a stirring address at last Thursday's meeting of the Midland Rotary Club. It is unfortunate that all residents of the Tall City were not privileged to hear him. In fact, we wish that all citizens of this great land could hear and would then heed his forthright message.

Adm. Anderson has served his country nobly and well in war and in peace from young manhood until retirement age, and it is fortunate that he yet is willing to crisscross the nation, preaching the gospel of patriotism, calling for a return to fundamental American values, and stressing the urgent need for adequate national security.

The admiral, who also has served as this nation's ambassador to Portugal, knows whereof he speaks, and although his message isn't overly optimistic, it is one which should arouse all who hear him as to the urgency of taking certain recommended steps in order to stem the critical times facing the United States of America today.

He said it is a tragedy that a situation has developed in the nation where too few people in the United States "recognize the enduring objectives of United States government."

These objectives, he said, are "to provide for a common defense, promote the general welfare and ensure the blessings of liberty for ourselves and our posterity."

"We've got to come back to the fundamentals established by our forefathers," the speaker added.

The admiral's address most certainly was appropriate for and in keeping with the observance of Constitution Week, then under way.

Anderson said the best way to get back to the fundamentals is to elect leaders who will represent the wishes of the American people. He pictures the ideal representative as one who would be resistant to "ethnic and foreign policy pressures dominated by sources abroad."

The speaker compared the present position of the United States to that of Great Britain following the tragic Dunkirk happening of World War II. He said the U.S. has been placed there by a series of foreign policy mistakes made by civilian officials in control of the nation's military forces.

"While I endorse control of civilians over our military, I abhor the mistakes of our civilian leadership," the former military executive declared.

He pointed out that those mistakes could be traced from prior to World War II on up and through the Carter administration and the SALT II treaty. He said the overall record of foreign policy is not good. "The record is not good in my opinion with reference to SALT," he added.

The admiral went into some detail in explaining the reasoning behind some of his remarks, all of which were practical, reasonable and well received by his listeners. It is likely that a vast majority of Midlanders and other West Texans share his views.

Anderson placed considerable stress on the military and security situations, but he also lamented the decline in what he termed American values and emphasized the urgent need to elect leaders who "would take measures to see that our ideals are preserved for posterity." He also stressed the need for maintaining and strengthening America's cherished free enterprise system.

Although the overall word picture he painted for his listeners was somewhat dark in spots, he nevertheless made it clear that the United States of America yet is the greatest and best nation in the world and that many of its major problems at home and abroad yet may be solved if the vast majority of freedom-loving Americans will rally to the cause by assuming a more active, responsible role in the affairs of government, striving for a return to the fundamental American values.

THE BIBLE CAN YOU QUOTE IT?

By LAVINA ROSS FOWLER AND ELIZABETH ROSS WIERSEMA

1. Martin Luther wrote the well-known hymn, "A Mighty Fortress is our God," which was published in 1529. The beautiful words are taken from Psalm 46, which was evidently written to the chief musician for the sons of Korah, perhaps, who sang in the chorus of the Tabernacle. Complete "God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in time of trouble." — 46:1
 2. "There is a river, the streams whereof shall make glad the city of David." — 46:3-4
 3. What was the Sadducees idea of "after life?" Mark 12:18
 4. In which of his parables did Jesus use building and building costs to demonstrate a point? Luke 14:27-33
 5. In the chapter on faith in Hebrews, Gideon, Barak, Samson, Jephtha, David and Samuel all had something in common. What? Hebrews 11:32-33

A conservative swing in academia noted across nation

WASHINGTON — Gradually, it is becoming respectable, almost chic, to be a conservative in academia these days. Indeed, conservative academics now dominate most of the nation's think tanks, once the province of liberals. The seeds being planted across the intellectual landscape will inevitably bear fruit in the form of policy and programs in the public and private sectors.

Studies, based in San Francisco, is one of the more interesting of these organizations. According to its president, H. Monroe Browne, it was started in 1974 by "four or five Reagan types" who were "greatly disturbed" by the Ford Foundation's Energy Policy Project.

"We decided to counter that Ford project with the work of some first-rate scholars," Browne says. "We got people like Morris A. Adelman of MIT, Herman Kahn of the Hudson Institute and James C. DeHaven of Rand, among others, and they wound up charging the Ford report with ignoring the economic market and favoring government control. The study, titled 'No Time to Confuse,' cost $50,000 and was well worth it."

Since then, the Institute for Contemporary Studies has expanded ideologically to include a spectrum of thinkers ranging from Milton Friedman to Tom Hayden (Jane Fonda's husband) who wrote a chapter on "The Left-Progressive Coalition" for an institute book on American politics. Nearly all the institute's work is in publishing. Twenty institute books are now in print and are used mostly as texts on campuses, including Ivy League schools.

"We have about 300 academics we call on to contribute chapters," Browne says, "and most of them are under 40 years of age. We want to publish young scholars on the way up. They write in timely and enthusiastic fashion. We regard ourselves as a broker for expertise. I insist that they write so I can understand it."

Among the titles are: "Bureaucrats and Brainpower: Government Regulation of Universities," with Caspar Weinberger, former HEW secretary, and Nathan Glazer of Harvard as contributors; "The Crisis in Social Security," with Brookings' Joseph A. Pechman and Harvard's Martin S. Feldstein doing chapters; "Defending America," praised by Sen. Henry M. Jackson, and including chapters by James R. Schlesinger and Eugene V. Rostow; "No Land Is An Island," with Rep. Morris K. Udall arguing for federal legislation, as expected, and A. Lawrence Chickering doing a chapter intriguingly titled, "Land Use Controls and Low Income Groups: Why Are There No Poor People in the Sierra Club?"

The institute's $800,000 annual budget is funded by eight foundations (contributing two-thirds) and 70 corporations. "The books go to campuses, legislators and the media," Browne says. "There are few freebies. If a reviewer wants one, he must write and ask."

Browne says the Naderism of the Sixties and Seventies "is on a negative swing on campuses," and that it is being replaced with a calmer, cooler approach, laying out the consequences of government actions.

"It's a myth that academics who haven't met a payroll can't think in common sense terms," Browne says. "There are brains and abilities on campuses galore. They are an absolute delight for me to discover. Business made a grave error in assuming they had nothing in common with these young scholars."

"The pendulum is swinging. Young academics have little faith left in the Keynesian ideal. The younger generation today is looking into different areas."

CARIBBEAN BASE:

Soviet Union building fortress in Cuba

By L. EDGAR PRINA
Copley News Service

WASHINGTON — The Soviet Union is helping Fidel Castro build a "Fortress Cubana," a powerful central Caribbean base for use by master and client.

There is little, it appears, that the United States is in a position, or is disposed, to do about it.

The military forces of the USSR already are substantially represented on the island.

The Soviet army has at least one combat brigade of 2,000 to 3,000 armor, infantry and artillery personnel stationed in Cuba, a fact the Carter administration reluctantly admitted. Soviet air force pilots are flying defense missions from the island airfields and Soviet construction engineers are expanding the Cuban naval base at Cienfuegos, a popular port of call for Soviet submarines and surface warships.

Meanwhile, the Kremlin is continuing its abundant weapons deliveries that are making Cuba one of the strongest military states in Latin America.

In the early 1970s, the USSR was sending about 10,000 tons of arms to Castro each year. Beginning in 1975, when the Soviet Union decided to transform the Cuban military from a home defense force into a modern military power, with formidable offensive capabilities, it has nearly doubled the annual delivery of arms to the island.

Today, thanks to the Russians, Cuba has 200 jet fighters and attack aircraft, including a dozen or more sophisticated MIG-23 Floggers, 600 tanks, among them the T-62 — AN-26 and AN-24 troop-carrying planes, two diesel attack submarines, nine OSA class and 18 Komar class high-speed cruise missile boats, two Turya class missile-firing hydrofoils, surface-to-air missiles like the SA-3 GOA, and multiple rocket launchers, such as the 45 Frogs.

There have been reports, unsubstantiated so far, that the Soviets may have introduced SS-20 medium range ballistic missiles in Cuba.

With its 160,000-man army, including ready reserves, Cuba has the largest ground force in Latin America except for Brazil.

Although the Central Intelligence Agency says that there is a Soviet combat brigade in Cuba of between 2,000 and 3,000 men — a spread of 1,000 — it does not assert they are the only combat Soviet troops on the island.

If the U.S. intelligence community's experience during and shortly after the Cuban missile crisis in the autumn of 1962 is any guide, the estimates today by the CIA and other federal intelligence agencies may be considerably wide of the mark and on the low side.

A largely overlooked report by the Senate Armed Services Committee's preparedness subcommittee of May 9, 1963, on the "Cuban Military Buildup" is instructive in this connection. After questioning the directors of the CIA and Defense Intelligence Agency and the heads of Army, Navy and Air Force intelligence, it noted:

"The number of Soviet troops in Cuba was substantially underestimated during the crisis. On Oct. 22 (1962), our intelligence people estimated that there were 8,000 to 10,000 Soviets in Cuba. They now say that, at the height of the buildup, there were at least 22,000 Soviet personnel on the island."

According to the subcommittee, which was chaired by Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., now the chairman of the full Armed Services Committee, the intelligence community estimated that about 5,000 Soviet personnel withdrew with the strategic nuclear missiles following the October confrontation.

Another 4,000 to 5,000 Soviet troops were believed to have departed by January, but the official intelligence estimate remained at 17,500 for

CHARLEY REESE

Sen. Kennedy has tossed ringer at Carter's hopes

By CHARLEY REESE

ORLANDO, Fla. — Senator Edward Kennedy has not exactly tossed his hat into the ring, but he has surely tossed a ringer at the hopes of President Carter for re-election.

The prince of Poucha Pond has, in the words of one wag, shifted from a man who is considering the possibility of running to a man who is considering the possibility of not running.

I hope he runs. The Democrats have not had a really rousing good fight since Sen. George McGovern scooped up the rioters at the 1968 convention and made them delegates to the 1972 convention. Later, President Carter moved them off the streets and into the executive branch of the government.

Actually, I feel sorry (just a little bit) for the President. He has become the nation's Sad Sack. Like Rodney Dangerfield, "...he don't get no respect." Rabbits attack him; Iranians mock him; Puerto Rican communists free from prison insult him; ditto, the president of Mexico. Even most of the draft dodgers he pardoned chose to remain in Canada.

And now this: the leftwing of the party he connived with to betray the center and right wings are stabbing him in the back. No doubt the McGovernites he rescued from the unemployment line will flock to the banners of either Sen. Kennedy or Gov. Jerry Brown.

Future historians, by the way, will develop ulcers trying to figure out how this trio emerged as the leadership of the nation's majority party. It makes you wonder who ran second and third to Nero.

Carter's best hope remains the Republican Party which has historically taken extraordinary steps to avoid victory. No doubt they will find a candidate who is identical to the Democrat.

Carter and Brown's single biggest disadvantage is that people know them this time. In 1976, both were unknowns and so many people were willing to gamble on their acting ability. Now, Brown is well-known as a complete fake and Carter as a complete bungler.

Kennedy's strong points are name, looks and personality. His weak points are character, record and beliefs. As H.L. Mencken once said, however, nobody ever went broke underestimating the intelligence of the American public.

It is certain, though, that with these three men competing, we shall see one of the raunchiest nomination battles in history. Kennedy is a rounder; Carter has a mean streak; and Brown flies, with or without airplanes.

It will be fun to count the number of ways the Carterites will refer to Chappaquiddick; it will be fun to hear the Brownies call two of America's most far-to-the-left politicians fascist pigs (even Lenin is to the right of the Jane Fonda crowd). It will be fun to sit in the gas lines while Brown talks about windmills and sunshine.

Sensible, non-flake, non-ideological Americans will naturally go crazy, if not Republican. I expect to see any day now a bumper strip which says, "Calvin Coolidge Come Back — We Need You."

Obviously, while the circus is playing on the tubes and sheets, the world may collapse. Still and all, the coming political season promises to follow the recent trend in motion pictures and provide a real blockbuster of a gory, poor-taste, unintelligent extravaganza.

The only thing I have to do to prepare for it is to make one public apology to the Arab world. I thought their politics and governments were byzantine and bizarre.

There's boastful beauty in 'painting by numbers'

BIG SPRING — Opal Jones doesn't flinch when she boasts about painting by numbers.

She calls it "embroidering." It's decorative painting without needles and yarn.

Her many colorful and happy works reflect talent, though she claims liquid color embroidery by the tube — not brush — takes no talent. The requisite is just time, a steady hand and eye and desire.

"Yeah, we're good, too," she says, as she doodles with one of dozens of tubes of color embroidery.

"Just look at the great pictures I've made with that mess (of tubes of paint). Yeah, we just have lots of fun."

Painting — rather, embroidery — is done on fabric by the ball-point-like tip of full-hand-size tubes of ink-like paint.

It stays. "The fact of the business," she cautions any tube wielders, "you put it on your clothes, and it'll out wear your clothes. It withstands washing, bleaching, dry cleaning — the whole bit."

"You can bleach it. I don't care how much bleach you use, it'll still be there. It'll out wear any of your clothes."

Ms. Jones, who has been painting since 1951, embroideries for fun, therapy, satisfaction, praises, awards...and money. She sells the tools of the medium.

"The beauty part of it (is) it lasts on and on," says Ms. Jones, who's "60 and proud of it." And the liquid stuff of 48 colors permeates wood and "any fabric" and adheres to glass and metal. She also has colors called "tutti-frutti," colors with "precious metals" and scented colors called "garden scents."

And from her viewpoint, embroidery has an edge on freehand painting.

"Oh, it's much more better; it's so much more fascinating," she asserts.

Why? "I have just accomplished something on my own," she explains.

But there are other reasons. "With freehand, you have to have lessons, and anybody can do this."

Her paintings, though certainly no Leonardo da Vinci or Norman Rockwell, are of flowers and children and other uplifting scenes and things that lean toward poster-size greeting cards.

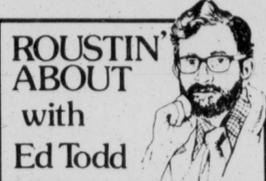

"In freehand and oil, you have to have a God-given talent, and with this you don't. You have to have desire."

The tube-painting attracts people of all ages.

"I work with senior citizens, and they do beautifully," she says. And even pre-schoolers take the coloring seriously: some just doodle, too.

Ms. Jones' friend, Mary Lancaster, also is sold on the liquid color embroidery.

"It's a poor man's tranquilizer," she says.

'Ambassador-at-large' may become official duty

WASHINGTON (AP)—An ambassador-at-large for Mexico, confirmed by the Senate, may be on official duty by the time Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo arrives at the end of the week for talks with President Carter.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee cleared the way Monday by voting 9-6 in favor of Bob Krueger's nomination for the new position.

The last hurdle remaining for the former Texas congressman is confirmation by the full Senate, with a vote expected to be scheduled as quickly as possible.

Most opposition came from Republican committee members. Krueger lost a tight, bitter Senate race last year to incumbent Sen. John Tower, R-Texas.

Carter nominated Krueger as ambassador-at-large and coordinator of U.S.-Mexican relations in June, but word of the choice first circulated in the spring.

Krueger moved into State Department quarters in July while waiting for Senate action. The nominee took an active part in the natural gas negotiations that led to an agreement announced Friday.

He received an angry response from Lopez Portillo by suggesting that the U.S. was interested in discussing liability for the oil soiling Texas beaches from a runaway Mexican offshore well.

Krueger testified on his own behalf last week before the committee, but some senators skeptical of the need for a precedent setting title requested an additional meeting with Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher before the vote.

The title "ambassador-at-large" apparently never has been given to an official responsible for U.S. relations with only one nation.

Christopher told the committee that the appointment of a second ambassador for Mexico would not push the U.S. toward creating equivalent posts for other nations.

He said relations with Mexico are different because more agencies in the Washington bureaucracy have a say in issues affecting them.

"More issues span the dividing line between foreign and domestic concerns, more domestic departments and agencies are involved and more issues directly involve domestic concerns," Christopher said.

One of Krueger's main responsibilities would be to supervise U.S.-Mexican groups that discuss problems involving energy, trade, finance, industry and development, migration, border issues, law enforcement and tourism.

Christopher said the title "ambassador-at-large" would make Krueger's position more effective and would not interfere with the status of the ambassador in Mexico City.

"Rather, the coordinator's function would be to develop a coherent and coordinated U.S. policy toward Mexico," the deputy secretary of state said. "He would be responsible for working closely with a high-ranking Mexican official of equal rank and would serve as chairman of a special interagency group of cabinet and sub-cabinet level officials here in Washington."

Education department still faces tough 'final exam'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's proposed education department faces only one more test before becoming the 13th Cabinet-level agency. But that final exam won't be any breeze.

After the Senate gave his proposal easy 69-22 approval Monday, Carter issued an enthusiastic statement saying the action was "a major step" toward cutting educational red tape and saving money.

But the compromise bill passed by the Senate was stripped of controversial amendments dear to the hearts of some House members. And the House gave the proposal only 210-206 approval this summer with the amendments intact.

Several House members vowed a floor fight after a House-Senate conference committee removed the amendments, and Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Texas, chief House sponsor of the bill, has acknowledged, "There probably will be some difficulty."

There was no indication when the bill would come up for a final vote.

But Sen. Harrison Schmitt, R-N.M., said he was disappointed the Senate "insists on increasing the potential of federal control of education when the wave of opinion is against federal control of our lives, at least more control."

"It is clear we are on the road to a major new bureaucracy," Schmitt said.

Another critic, Sen. S.I. Hayakawa, R-Calif., said the bill would create "a pantheon of doctors of education, but not a smidgen of good for the average student in high school or grade school."

Pressler to become eighth candidate

By MIKE SHANAHAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Larry Pressler was elected to his first term in the U.S. Senate less than a year ago. Now he's ready to try for the presidency.

The 37-year-old South Dakotan called a 1:30 p.m. EDT news conference today to announce plans to enter his name in all the Republican presidential primaries. The announcement makes him the eighth formally declared GOP candidate.

Of his relative youth, Pressler says, "I don't think there is any age at which anybody is qualified to be president."

"Maybe it is time to stop electing people to government who are in the twilight of their careers."

Pressler conceded he has little chance of upsetting Ronald Reagan and other, more established Republicans in the race. "I am not harboring any illusions... I am a realist," he said.

In an interview, Pressler said initially he hopes to appeal to voters in their 20s and 30s, mainly Republicans, who are disillusioned with the more traditional, well-known candidates.

The campaign organization so far is composed mainly of a group of Pressler's friends — some fellow graduates of Harvard Law School who have spent the last few months trying to drum up support in primary states.

Most of the effort has been focused on Florida, where Pressler hopes to make a substantial showing in the presidential preference convention among Republicans on Nov. 17.

Between $5,000 and $10,000 has been raised so far, Pressler said.

Pressler, a native of Humboldt, S.D., where he grew up on a farm, was first elected to the House in 1974. Subsequent races, re-election to the House in 1976 and to the Senate last November, were won with strong majorities in the face of advice from many who said Pressler had no chance.

Before running for the House, Pressler earned a string of academic degrees from the University of South Dakota, Oxford University in England, the Kennedy School for Government in Boston and Harvard.

He is the only member of the Senate to have served in Vietnam, where he was an Army lieutenant. Later, he worked as a State Department lawyer.

Asked if it was not presumptuous for a person of such limited political experience to run for the presidency, Pressler replied, "Some people will look on it as an ego-centered thing, but we will just have to let the chips fall where they may."

Pressler said the campaign will focus on specific issues, which he thinks will be ignored in the general questions raised next year.

Specifically, he intends to propose a strong federal program to encourage the production of gasoline from farm products, improved housing for the elderly, a tax incentive program to create jobs for Indians living on reservations, and better benefits for Vietnam veterans, especially for those with physical or emotional problems.

The other formally declared Republican candidates are Rep. Phil Crane of Illinois, former Texas Gov. John Connally, former U.N. Ambassador George Bush, Sen. Bob Dole of Kansas, Rep. John Anderson of Illinois, Los Angeles businessman Benjamin Fernandez and perennial candidate Harold Stassen.

Senate Minority Leader Howard Baker and Reagan, the former California governor, are expected to formally announce their candidacies in the next few months.

Judge waits for report on juror

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — District Judge Gordon Gray today waited for a medical report on an injured juror in the Cullen Davis murder solicitation trial before deciding whether to delay the trial or continue with only 11 jurors.

Juror Kathryn Holman, 53, a housewife, broke her leg during a weekend shopping trip and underwent surgery Monday.

The seventh week of testimony was interrupted until Gray could determine how long Mrs. Holman would need to recuperate.

"If it's going to be too long, we will go on," Gray told the remaining jurors. "But if it's a short-time thing, say a week or 10 days, you can be excused until she can be back with you."

Gray excused the jurors at midmorning and said they would be notified by phone as to whether the trial would proceed or be delayed.

The judge said the trial could continue with 11 jurors if the attorneys on both sides wanted to proceed.

Houston to vote on bond issue

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston residents were voting today on $395 million in general improvement bonds proposals.

Actions by the Justice Department and a coalition of black organizations cleared the way for the city's first bond election in three years.

On Friday, the Justice Department approved a 9-5 plan to enlarge the City Council, having earlier ruled 1977 and 1978 annexations had diluted minority voting strength. All eight councilmen have been elected on a city-wide basis. Under the new plan, nine will be elected by single districts.

Reservation's 'second chief' asked to resign

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The "second chief" of the financially strapped Alabama-Coushatta Reservation — a former Rusk football coach who served as superintendent at the East Texas reservation since 1972 — has been asked to resign his $19,600 post.

The Texas Indian Commission told Emmett Battise Monday that the reservation's financial losses forced them to make a change.

Commissioner Jack Stallings predicted that Battise would not understand the decision.

He was right.

"The commission, all they look for is the bottom line, not the feeling of the people. I talk about warm bodies. They talk about cold cash," Battise told reporters.

Stallings said tribal enterprises at the 540-resident reservation are expected to lose $95,000 this fiscal year. He said residents of the reservation — including Battise's brother, the housing administrator — are $78,000 behind in their rent.

"This is a management problem the commission was forced into facing. This doesn't mean you are a failure," Stallings told Battise.

Battise, 57, was named second chief of the tribe in 1970. His 1972 appointment as superintendent was endorsed by the tribe. But Stallings said the tribe was not consulted about the resignation request.

"We would have never got a concurrence. They just would not have understood," Stallings said. He added he did not think the council would take action against the commission.

"They've received about $10 million since the inception of this commission. I don't believe they would cut that off. But if that's their decision we'll have to abide by it," he said.

Battise charged that the commission and its staff do not understand Texas Indians.

"I have been attacked by different ones. I wish I knew how much they know about Indians.... Only blacks know blacks and only Indians know Indians," he told the commission.

After the meeting Battise said Walter Broemer, commission executive director, is "trying to get complete control of both reservations (the Alabama-Coushatta and Tigua)."

"They told me to write a letter (of resignation), but I'm not going to write a letter yet," he said. He added he might go to court.

The commission approved a resolution accepting Battise's resignation as of Oct. 15.

The squabble between Battise and the commissioners expanded when he refused to fire his brother Gemar as housing administrator. Commissioner Frank Heldenbrand said Gemar Battise is about $1,500 behind in his rent.

Heldenbrand, a Cherokee, said Battise's brother was setting a "bad example for my people."

"We've been trying to tell you we're going to have to straighten this thing up. Now we have to set our foot down and tell the people how it's going to be," Heldenbrand said.

Stallings said the superintendent of the Tigua Reservation in El Paso was fired last year because of financial losses. He said the reservation is still losing money — but the losses have leveled off.

A 310-ton steel cone is lowered into Campache Bay in the Gulf of Mexico in an attempt to cap the Ixtec 1 runaway oil well. Overcast weather and strong ocean currents have hampered "operation sombrero" for three days, but Mexico's national oil company authorities are optimistic the cone will cap the well and control the flow of gas and crude oil into the Gulf. (AP Laserphoto)

West Texas counties gain gas field openers

Midland operators have completed discoveries in Pecos and Schleicher counties, wildcats have been spotted in Nolan and Runnels counties, and other West Texas areas have gained new wells and new projects.

PECOS STRIKE

C. F. Lawrence & Associates of Midland No. 1-F University was completed as a Queen gas discovery in Pecos County, four miles east of Bakersfield.

The operator reported a calculated absolute open flow potential of 880,000 cubic feet of gas per day, through perforations from 1,691 to 1,706 feet.

Total depth is 2,055 feet, 5.5-inch pipe is set on bottom, and hole is plugged back to 1,842 feet.

Well site is 660 feet from south and 990 feet from west lines of section 2, block 17, University Lands survey and one location east of the Cardinal, West (Queen gas 1578) field.

SCHLEICHER OPENER

An unidentified gas discovery was completed in Schleicher County by Discovery Operating, Inc., of Midland.

The strike, No. 1 Lin, finalized for a calculated absolute open flow potential of 2,400,000 cubic feet of gas per day, through perforations from 6,755 to 6,788 feet.

Total depth is 7,100 feet, 4.5-inch pipe is set at 7,080 feet, and hole is plugged back to 7,049 feet.

The canyon was topped at 5,734 feet on Kelly bushing elevation of 2,419 feet.

Well site is 25 miles northwest of Eldorado and 960 feet from south and 517 feet from east lines of section 21, block A, GC&SF survey. It is one and seven-eighths miles southwest of the P-W (Canyon gas) field and 3.5 miles west of the Velox, Southwest multipay oil and gas pool.

NOLAN WILDCATS

Texel Petroleum Corp. of Abilene and Hack Drilling Co., also of Abilene, each announced location for a wildcat in Nolan County.

Texel Petroleum will drill No. 1 R. H. Gibson, 7,100 feet, 5.5 miles northeast of Maryne and one location southwest of the depleted Featherston (Strawn) field. It also is two and one-eighth miles east of the Lake Trammell, South (multipay Strawn) area.

Location is 990 feet from north and east lines of section 49, block X, T&P survey.

Hack Drilling No. 1 Carl W. Moore is a 5,400-foot wildcat four miles northeast of Hylton.

It is 2,027 feet from south and 2,450 feet from west lines of section 218, block 64, H&TC survey and one location east of a 6,339-foot failure. It also is one and three-quarter miles northeast of the Arriba Libra (Caddo oil and Jennings oil and gas) field.

RUNNELS WILDCAT

E. B. Fletcher of Dallas No. 4-425 Wayne Roberts is to be dug as a 4,900-foot wildcat in Runnels County, seven miles southwest of Winters.

Drill site is 1,487 feet from north and 1,453 feet from east lines of section 54, block 63, HT&B survey and one location southeast of the Howerton (Goen) field and one location southeast of a 4,612-foot dry hole.

The project is one location south east of Fletcher No. 3-425 Wayne Roberts, a recently staked wildcat.

ANDREWS OILER

Exxon Corp. No. 4 Elizabeth Armstrong, project four miles northeast of Andrews in Andrews County, has been completed in the Means, South (Wolfcamp) field.

On 24-hour potential test it pumped 313 barrels of oil and 51 barrels of water through perforations from 8,932 to 9,437 feet. The pay was acidized with 6,100 gallons.

The gravity and gas-oil ratio were not reported.

Total depth is 9,500 feet and 5.5-inch pipe was landed at 9,498 feet.

Location is 990 feet from south and 660 feet from west lines of section 11, block A-45, psi survey. The field has five other Wolfcamp producers.

MIDLAND WELL

Mobil Oil Corp. No. 8 Reynolds-Parks has been completed in south west Midland County, approximately 14 miles southeast of Midland.

Assigned to the Dora Roberts (Devonian) field, it completed for a daily pumping potential of nine barrels of 49.1-gravity oil and 58 barrels of water, with a gas-oil ratio of 5,556-1.

Completion was through perforations from 11,426 to 11,660 feet after a 14,500-gallon acid treatment.

A re-entry project, it formerly produced from the Ellenburger and Strawn in the Virey multipay field.

Location is 1,980 feet from north and 2,080 feet from west lines of section 26, block 41, T-3-S, T&P survey.

CRANE PRODUCER

Bass Enterprises Production Co. No. 1 L. D. Moss and others is a new well in the Troporo, North (Devonian) field of Crane County, seven miles south of Grandfalls.

It completed for a 24-hour flowing potential of 208 barrels of 37.8-gravity oil, no water, through a 24/64-inch choke and perforations from 5,450 to 5,547 feet. The gas-oil ratio is 1,870-1.

Total depth is 5,645 feet, 4.5-inch pipe is set on bottom, and hole is plugged back to 5,591 feet.

The well site is one location south of the discovery well of the two-well field and 9,050 feet from northeast and 1,153 feet from southeast lines of section 29, block 1, H&TC survey.

PECOS GASSER

C. F. Lawrence & Associates, Inc., of Midland No. 1-D Timber has been finalized in the Brooklaw (Tubb gas) field of Pecos County, 14 miles west of Girvin.

The operator reported a calculated absolute open flow potential of 2,000 cubic feet of gas per day, through perforations from 3,194 to 3,238 feet. The pay was acidized with 2,500 gallons.

Total depth is 3,480 feet and 5.5-inch casing is set at 3,400 feet. The plugged back depth is 3,390 feet.

It is a northwest of set to one of the field's 10 other Tubb gas producers and 860 feet from northwest and 467 feet from southwest lines of section 124, block 10, H&GN survey. A re-entry project, it formerly produced in the Brooklaw (Clear Fork lower oil) pool.

DUAL WINKLER WELL

Enserch Exploration, Inc., of Midland No. 1 Pat Howell has been completed as a dual producer in the Cheyenne (Atoka and Fusselman) field of Winkler County, 12 miles northwest of Kermit.

From the Atoka, it finalized for a calculated absolute open flow potential of 3,158,000 cubic feet of gas per day, through perforations from 14,635 to 14,644 feet.

From the Fusselman, it completed for a calculated absolute open flow potential of 4,997,550 cubic feet of gas per day, through perforations from 19,616 to 19,641 feet after a 2,700-gallon acid treatment.

Total depth is 22,420 feet and plugged-back depth is 19,700 feet. Five-inch liner is set at 22,420 feet.

The site is 5/8 mile northeast of other Fusselman production and 7/8 mile southeast of a dual Atoka and Ellenburger producer.

The above Fusselman potential is a repetition on that zone. The original Fusselman potential was 10.1 million cubic feet of gas per day when the well was completed as the discovery of the Cheyenne (Fusselman) field in 1975. That potential was through perforations from 19,616 to 19,650 feet.

Well site is 829 feet from south and 467 feet from east lines of section 6, block 74, psi survey.

Total depth is 11,472 feet and seven-inch pipe is set on bottom. Plugged back depth is 10,640 feet.

Location is 2,001 feet from south and 1,947 feet from west lines of section 15, block 46, T-11-S, T&P survey.

Merger to proceed

NEW YORK (AP) — Exxon Corp. announced Monday that despite opposition from the Federal Trade Commission, it is going ahead with its $1.17 billion merger with Reliance Electric Corp.

The world's largest oil company said it began mailing out checks today to the electric motor manufacturer's stockholders to pay for the 14.7 million common and 142,000 preferred shares it had been offered.

Exxon is paying $72 a share for the 93 percent of the Reliance common, and $201.60 a share for the 75 percent of the preferred stock it had been offered in one of the largest corporate mergers in history.

Exxon announced in May that it wanted to buy the Cleveland-based Reliance in order to hasten development of an energy-saving electric motor speed control the oil company had developed. The invention could save as much as 1 million barrels of oil a day by 1990 by improving motor efficiency, Exxon claimed.

The FTC went to federal court in Washington to block the merger on antitrust grounds, however, claiming the oil giant considered entering the motor industry itself before attempting to purchase Reliance.

U.S. District Judge John H. Pratt has ruled that the acquisition could proceed only if Exxon operates Reliance's motor and drive operation as a separate entity that could be sold at a later date.

Exxon spokesman James Morakis said the merger would proceed under the ground rules set by the judge, although the oil company is seeking to have Pratt's order amended.

Exxon spokesman James Morakis said the merger would proceed under the ground rules set by the judge, although the oil company is seeking to have Pratt's order amended.

The FTC went to federal court in Washington to block the merger on antitrust grounds, however, claiming the oil giant considered entering the motor industry itself before attempting to purchase Reliance.

U.S. District Judge John H. Pratt has ruled that the acquisition could proceed only if Exxon operates Reliance's motor and drive operation as a separate entity that could be sold at a later date.

Willingness offsets TV report

NEW YORK (AP) — "Serious overreachings" in a Pittsburgh television report on the qualifications of a candidate for the federal bench were offset by the station's initiative and willingness to allow time for rebuttal, says the National News Council.

The council, an independent media watchdog which opened two days of deliberations here Thursday, agreed with Roslyn M. Litman that KDKA-TV erred in placing her photograph "with various mug shots of convicted felons."

But the council said other information in the televised report, and the fact she was granted a total of 21 minutes on television to rebut KDKA's work, outweighed negative aspects of the story.

And it praised KDKA for the story, calling it "the kind of investigation undertaken too infrequently by American news organizations" and said the story was "valid" and "provided pertinent information."

In its report, KDKA raised questions about Mrs. Litman's association with a company specializing in loans to persons interested in opening bars in Pennsylvania. It also said her law firm may have engaged in unethical practice and that her business relationship with her brother-in-law may have led to associations with persons of notoriety.

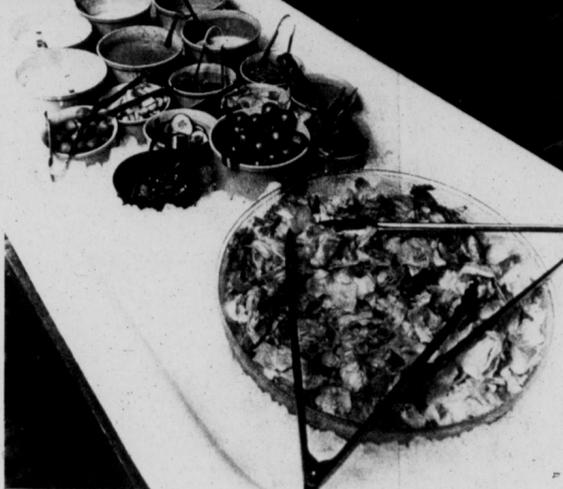

The council, despite its praise of KDKA's enterprise in reporting, said it had some complaints about the story, including concern about the station's vague identification of its sources of information.

"The council is pledged to respect the confidentiality of sources, but believes...some better identification than 'my investigation has turned up' or 'we're told' could have been employed to indicate the type of source," it said.

The council said "it is fair to question the business practices" of the firm because Mrs. Litman and her husband own 30 percent of the company. However, it said questions about her business relationship with her brother-in-law "could be an instance of extreme overreaching on KDKA's part."

Roundabout is the San Miguel rendezvous spot

The Roundabout, in San Miguel Square, is THE place to meet a friend for coffee, have lunch, or a pre-game supper, or a good evening meal when the day has been a tiring one.

Good, old-fashioned bean soup in a black kettle which you ladle out for yourself into a generous-sized mug. Frosty-fresh salad ingredients and dressings, complete with toppings of your choice. Serve yourself from the red-painted, old-fashioned bathtub filled with crushed ice.

The sandwiches are generously large, made with your choice of onion, sesame, or black rye bun. There are a number of varieties, including turkey, reuben, pastrami, roast beef. Roundabout also serves chili, nachos, bean nachos, hot dogs. A good snack is tostitos and hot sauce.

For dessert, try the Roundabout "Cutie Pie." It is a succulent, hot, little apple pie served with vanilla ice cream. They also have many flavors of top-grade ice cream and create many fine fantasies with it.

Mark Nelson, owner of The Roundabout, plans to announce daily specials made up of different combinations from the regular menu. Watch for these.

The decor of The Roundabout encourages light spirits and good fellowship, as well as good appetites. The red-and-black tartan carpet, the natural wood, the Tiffany-style lamp shades and healthy living plants are all entirely pleasing.

Roundabout is open Monday-Saturday from 10 a.m.-8 p.m., and Thursdays from 10-9. You may place call-in orders by phoning 694-7001.

Does ghost hover in mansion and rearrange the furniture?

SCHENECTADY, N.Y. (AP) — Does the ghost of Simon J. Schermerhorn hover in the mansion he built in suburban Rotterdam in 1857 and reach out with skeletal fingers to rearrange furniture?

Yes, says a couple in a defense against a breach-of-contract suit. That's reason enough not to honor a June 5, 1978 agreement to buy the old house for $95,000, they say.

No, says a former owner of 13-years' residence. But Florence McClenahan of Schenectady says "we did have the house blessed before we moved in."

And no, say the present owners, John and Mary Fitzsimons who moved in last Halloween after an agreement between Johanna Mokhiber and Dr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Frede fell through.

"If any ghost would like to move things around, I could use the help," says Mrs. Fitzsimons.

The Fredes, of the Albany suburb of Loudonville, say in defense to a suit filed in state Supreme Court that they backed out of the deal to buy the Schermerhorn House because they learned after signing the agreement that it was haunted.

The home occupies 2 1/2 acres of a once-sprawling farm where 12 generations of the Schermerhorns lived. Simon, who built the colonial structure, died in 1901.

Frede, chief radiologist at Albany Veterans Administration Hospital, and his wife, Johanna, contend that Mrs. Mokhiber falsely represented that the home would be "a wonderful, normal, peaceful place to live."

In court papers, the Fredes say Mrs. Mokhiber was aware of supernatural phenomena, that objects would "levitate and move about the house," and that she so feared for her safety, she sold the property.

The Mokhibers say the charge is "absolutely ridiculous."

Exercise, diet help arthritis

Dear Dr. Solomon: Lately I have been having a great deal of pain in a knee, and my doctor tells me I have osteoarthritis. Can you tell me what this means? I am 64 years old. — Mr. G.S.

Dear Mr. S.: Osteoarthritis is one of the two main forms of arthritis. (Rheumatoid arthritis is the other.) It is caused by the continuous wearing away of the cartilage in a joint, and generally affects older people. Symptoms include body stiffness and joint pain, particularly when the weather is damp, in the morning, and after vigorous physical activity. Cartilage is a smooth, soft tissue that covers the ends of the bones at the joints, thus providing a smooth surface for the bones to slide against. This permits the joints to move easily. As part of the aging process, or as the result of injury, cartilage may become thin and eventually wear away. This causes the rough surfaces of the bones to rub together, resulting in stiffness and pain. Osteoarthritis most often affects the weight-bearing joints, such as the hips and knees. Exercise can help prevent arthritis or alleviate it once it develops because joints that are not used tend to stiffen. Unevenly distributed body weight which placed undue stress on certain joints can cause unnecessary pain, so good posture is important. I put my arthritic patients on a well-balanced diet that provides all the nutrients necessary for body repair. I also find that overweight should be avoided since it adds to the stress placed on weight-bearing joints.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I am a binge eater. After I eat I feel terrible that I overate. Is there any medicine that might help? — Mrs. F.B.

Dear Mrs. F.B.: There is a drug called Phenytoin which has been reported to help people to not binge on foods. Behavior modification has also been reported to help binge eaters. Check it out with your doctor. Good luck.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I have a real difficult time improving my long-term memory. I just do not remember things that I used to know. My doctor told me that there is nothing that could be done. I just cannot buy that. Any comments? — Mrs. S.D.

Dear Mrs. S.D.: Help may be around the corner. The body needs Acetylcholine for long-term memory. Acetylcholinesterase breaks down acetylcholine and appears to decrease long-term memory. There is now a drug called Physostigmine which prevents the action of Acetylcholinesterase. Hopefully this may improve long-term memory. Check with your doctor about that possibility.

Couple, child escape East Germany in boat

LUEBECK, West Germany (AP) — A married couple and their 2½-year-old child sailed out of East Germany in an inflatable boat today in the latest of a series of dramatic escapes from the Communist country, police said. Officers said the family came from the East German port of Travemuende, just across the border from East Germany. They had mounted a small, outboard motor on their boat to make the trip, officers said.

A few days later, an East Berliner wearing scuba equipment swam across a lake into the western sector of the divided city. Such incidents are especially embarrassing for the East German government.

Billy Carter to register as agent

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's brother, Billy, who is on another visit to the Midwest, reportedly is preparing to register as an agent of a foreign government. A Justice Department official who asked to remain anonymous said Monday that Billy Carter has requested forms to apply for credentials as a foreign agent. Billy Carter has previously had ties with Libya and was in that country recently to take part in the 10th anniversary of the Libyan revolution. He then went to Kuwait. He could not be reached for comment and a lawyer who has represented him in the past declined to discuss the matter. The president's brother was the subject of a Justice Department investigation because of past dealings with Libyan officials and businessmen. Justice Department officials say that probe is still open. Billy Carter's relationship with Libya has generated controversy. He once urged more U.S. cooperation with the oil-rich North African nation, saying, "There's a hell of a lot more Arabians than there is Jews."

SHAINWOLD ON BRIDGE
No Action Needed

By Alfred Sheinwold

According to a Russian proverb, you don't need teeth to eat borscht. If you're uncertain how this will improve your game, take the East seat today.

As East, you take two high diamonds and look for the right switch. If you lead the jack of clubs you are relying on your partner to furnish a tooth or two, such as the ace of clubs.

SPADE TRICK
South takes the ace of clubs, leads a spade to the ace and ruffs a spade high. A trump to the nine, another high spade ruff, a trump to the seven, a third high spade ruff, and then a trump to the jack puts declarer in position to cash the last spade. That is declarer's tenth trick.

East needn't make an aggressive move at the third trick. He defeats the contract by leading a trump since this removes an entry from dummy before South can make effective use of it. After the trump return South cannot bring in a spade trick. He must play the clubs himself, losing two club tricks and his contract.

DAILY QUESTION
Partner bids one heart, you respond one spade, and partner raises to two spades. The opponents pass. You hold: ♠ K Q 10 6 ♥ 6 4 ♦ A K 8 4 ♣ J 10 9. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid three diamonds. You aren't sure that four spades is the best final contract. Tell partner more, and see what he has to say.

Slowdown in inflation predicted

By EILEEN ALT POWELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration is predicting a slowdown in inflation toward the end of the year as energy price increases abate.

Whether the slowdown began in August should be reflected in consumer price figures being released today by the Labor Department.

Consumer prices rose near or above 1 percent in each of the first seven months this year. If that pattern holds, the nation could end up with a 1979 inflation rate of more than 13 percent — the highest since World War II.

Yet Carter administration officials are optimistic that 1974's rate of 12.2 percent, the post-war period's worst, won't be broken this year.

Anthony M. Solomon, Treasury Department undersecretary for monetary affairs, told a news conference Monday there is a "good possibility" inflation will fall below an annual rate of 10 percent by year's end.

Solomon's prognosis echoed a recent statement by Stuart Eizenstat, the presidential domestic affairs adviser, that "we will be under double-digit rates by the end of this year."

One reason for the predictions is that much of the 60 percent increase in crude-oil prices approved by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries earlier this year has already made its way through the economy.

But economists warn that more "pass-through" effects of the oil-price hikes are likely in the future. In fact, energy prices got part of the blame for July's significant increase in wholesale prices, which generally are rapidly passed along to consumers as higher retail prices.

Solomon also predicted Monday that the United States should have a surplus in its international balance of payments of as much as $10 billion next year.

"That would be a dramatic turnaround from last year's record $14 billion deficit."

Such a development should help the U.S. dollar recover some of its recent losses on international markets, Solomon said.

"I expect the dollar to strengthen, if not in the near-term, at least later on in the year," he said.

Weakness in the trade figures, known as the current account balance, has been seen as a major cause of the plunge of the dollar's value against foreign currencies. The figures take into account such transactions as merchandise exports and imports, the sale of U.S. services overseas and direct foreign investment by individuals.

Carter administration officials had said previously that they expected the deficit to be halved this year and become a surplus next year.

Solomon said that because of rapidly increasing U.S. exports, the forecast had been revised, with this year's deficit expected to be between $3 billion and $4 billion. The nation could see a $10 billion surplus next year, he added.

Railroad may need injunction

CHICAGO (AP) — It may take a federal court injunction to force Rock Island Line employees to comply with President Carter's order to go back to work, a Justice Department spokesman says.

But Justice Department public affairs spokesman John Russell said Monday night, "We're not at that stage yet." A railroad spokesman said the Rock Island would not seek the injunction on its own.

PUC economist examines Bell's 'lifeline' telephone rate plan

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Special "lifeline" telephone rates — designed to give a price break to the poor — could cost talkative Texans more

Tellico Dam deadline near

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter was facing a deadline of late today for invoking his veto power to stop completion of the controversial Tellico Dam in Tennessee, a project that could doom the endangered three-inch fish known as the snail darter.

White House aides refused to give any advance word on what Carter's decision would be. Presidential press secretary Jody Powell said Monday that he had "not heard him give any indication of his decision."

Conservation organizations are virtually unanimous in opposing the dam, which is 90 percent complete. The Tennessee Valley Authority has spent more than $100 million on the project on the Little Tennessee River.

Construction was halted last year when the Supreme Court ruled the Endangered Species Act kept the government from allowing further construction because the project could doom the nearly extinct snail darter by flooding its spawning grounds.

Congress later created the Endangered Species Committee and gave it the power to exempt individual projects from the Endangered Species Act. The Cabinet-level committee refused earlier this year to exempt the project, arguing it was ill-conceived and would not provide sufficient benefits to justify its completion.

Congress, however, allotted $36 million to complete the dam in a $10.8 billion energy and water projects appropriations bill, which is on the president's desk. The measure exempts the dam from the restrictions of the Endangered Species Act and "any other law."

Thomas Kimball, executive vice president of the National Wildlife Federation, urged Carter to veto the appropriations measure.

than normal rates under a Public Utility Commission staff proposal.

That was the admission of staff economist Julie Parsons during cross-examination Monday at the PUC hearing on Southwestern Bell Telephone Co.'s request for $145.2 million in rate increases.

Several persons involved in the hearing, which began Sept. 14, gave it a good chance of concluding today after Bell produces five rebuttal witnesses.

Ms. Parsons drew up PUC staff recommendations for allocating the rate increases among different classes of Bell customers, with a large chunk falling on residential consumers.

Her recommendations would raise monthly household bills by from 90 cents to $1.20, depending upon how much of Bell's revenue needs are met by other customers.

She also said "lifeline" or measured rates should be based not only upon the number of calls made in a month but also on how long they last. Under the present system, a lifeline customer pays less than the normal rate but must also pay eight cents per call if he or she makes more than 25 calls a month.

If duration of the call is added to the lifeline equation, Bell has suggested allowing $2 worth of free calls each month, based on four cents for the first minute and one cent for each additional minute.

"What if somebody made 25 10-minute calls?" asked Carol Barger, attorney for the Consumers Union and the Association of Community Organizations for Reform Now.

Ms. Parsons replied the result would be to add $2.50 to the customer's bill and make it higher than if he or she obtained regular telephone service.

"If they made 25 three-hour calls, the result would be even worse," she said.

Ms. Barger later said business measured rate customers have longer "holding times" than residential users, yet Ms. Parsons limited her recommendation for duration charges to households.

"It was wholly arbitrary. She demonstrated a complete insensitivity to residential users, in my opinion," said Ms. Barger, who had urged the lifeline concept on the PUC last year.

Ms. Parsons acknowledged in her testimony that if a customer decided to drop lifeline service because of durational charges, he or she would have to pay a $24.50 changeover fee to the telephone company.

Victory in House forecast by Panama treaty backers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House is expected to reverse itself this week and approve legislation to implement the Panama Canal treaties — just days before the pacts take effect next Monday.

The legislator guiding the bill through the House predicted victory Monday while a leading opponent acknowledged that last-minute changes provide "the best deal we can get."

The bill is needed primarily to set up a U.S.-controlled commission to take over operation of the canal Monday and operate it until the treaties give the canal to Panama on Dec. 31, 1999.

However, the House rejected an earlier compromise only last Thursday on a 203-192 vote.

In approving the new compromise proposal Monday, Senate-House conferees accepted a separate statement saying the president is authorized to put the canal under U.S. military control if Soviet or Cuban combat troops move into the canal zone.

Rep. John M. Murphy, D-N.Y., floor manager of the bill, predicted he has the House votes to win approval of the new measure. "In fact, I'm certain we do," Murphy told the House-Senate conferees.

Murphy said he hopes the House will give the bill final congressional approval Wednesday.

Stitch in time saves family budget

By MARYLOU LUTHER
The Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — Women who sew have known for years that a stitch in time not only saves nine, it also saves a heck of a lot on the family clothing budget. Exactly how much is now a matter of fact.

According to research just completed by the New Home Sewing Machine company, people can save 62 percent on their annual clothing budgets if they make their own wardrobes.

To test that theory, the Los Angeles Times asked representatives of the four major pattern companies to compute the cost differential between designer ready-to-wear and the same styles made at home from designer patterns. In each instance, fabrics are either identical to those used in the designer's ready-made clothes or they are reasonable facsimiles easily available in fabric shops. Where applicable, linings, interfacing and all notions such as thread, buttons, zippers, shoulder pads and patterns also are computed.

The only cost not figured in the sew-it-yourself outfits is labor. But considering the fact that pattern simplifications and sewing machine improvements have eliminated a good portion of the time that was required for garment construction even a few years ago, pattern people say many of the outfits shown here can be started and completed in one or two evenings.

The savings on the fashions range from 41 percent of the ready-to-wear cost to a whopping 93 percent in the case of a John Anthony suit duplicated in a Dacron-acetate tweed. Because of careful fabric shopping the total savings on the selections is 84 percent of retail price. Or, $614.24 total expenditure for home-sewn fashions versus $3,839 for ready-to-wear. And this includes splurging on imported wools at $29.90 a yard, as in the case of the Krizia copy.

In these times of double-digit inflation, such savings could be compared to a steak dinner for the price of soybeans — soybeans that look and taste like steak.

Here's a breakdown of comparative prices for each ensemble:
McCall Pattern 6807 by Krizia. Ready-to-wear price: $695. Cost to make: $95. Savings: 86 percent of retail cost. Fabric: a wool from Woolens for Britain at $29.90 a yard.

McCall Pattern 6844 by Halston. Ready-to-wear price: $650. Cost to make: $70. Savings: 89 percent. Fabric is Anglo's Lana Suede at $16 a yard.

McCall Pattern 6600 by D.D. Dominick. Ready-to-wear price: $140. Cost to make: $16.80. Savings: 88 percent. Fabric is Burlington Klopman's woven Careso de Chine crepe of Qiana nylon.

Vogue Pattern 2196 by Oscar de la Renta. Ready-to-wear price: $900. Cost to make: $138.25. Savings: 85 percent. Suit is made of imported wool at $20 a yard. Blouse is silk at $20 a yard.

Vogue Pattern 2219 by John Anthony. Ready-to-wear price is $495. Cost to make: $34.50. Savings: 93 percent. Fabric is Fairtex' Tortoise Tweed of 60 percent Dacron-40 percent acetate.

Simplicity Pattern 9134 by Cathy Hardwick. Ready-to-wear price: $325. Cost to make: $81. Savings: 75 percent. Suit is made of Landau's gabardine.

dine of 70 percent wool, 10 percent camel's hair, 20 percent nylon. Camisole is Franetta Fabrics' 81 percent mohair, 19 percent nylon.

Simplicity Pattern 9110 by Charles Suppon. Ready-to-wear price: $400.

Cost to make: $79. Savings: 80 percent. Jacket is Booth Bay's 100 percent wool crepe. Pants are J.P. Fabrics' nubby gab of 50 percent polyester, 45 percent rayon, 5 percent silk. Blouse is 100 percent polyester tissue faulle by Shalimar.

Buttrick Pattern 6743 by Nancy Stolk. Available Oct. 1. Ready-to-wear price: $114. Cost to make: $67.15. Savings: 41 percent. Both T shirt and pants are made of wool jersey.

Butterick Pattern 6686 by P.J. Walsh. Ready-to-wear price $120. Cost to make: $30.80. Savings: 74 percent. Tobacco-print jacket and skirt are made of polyester-rayon blend.

AT WIT'S END

Sufficient to say

By ERMA BOMBECK

Every year I like to set goals for myself. This year is no exception. For 1979, I vowed I would (a) find inner peace, (b) study the religions of the world, (c) buy a bathing suit.

I was going to compromise the third goal when I got out my old two-piece bathing suit this year. Only one piece of it fit me. It is not important for anyone to know which piece it was. It is sufficient to say that if I appeared in it in public it would totally destroy my aura of mystery.

I don't buy a new bathing suit every year. It isn't because it represents a major purchase. It is because if I wanted that kind of pain I'd run the Boston Marathon or give birth in a Volkswagen.

To begin with, I am never psychologically ready for the styles. When I heard that this year's bathing suits were one piece, I had an entirely different concept in my mind as to what they would look like. Imagine my surprise when I picked up a one-piece suit and it caught on my ring finger.

The nymphs who appear in the ads lead me to believe the artist is sketching from memory. There hasn't been a girl with those measurements since Scarlett O'Hara trussed herself into a 16-inch corset.

To survive the summer at the pool I had to devise a list of Rules For Swimming.

1. Never frequent pools with full-length mirrors in the dressing room.
2. Do not go into the pool area until you have seen three women who look more rotten than you do in a suit.
3. If someone is wearing the same floral suit, do not stand close unless her flowers are opened at the same size as yours.
4. Make sure the chlorine foot bath is deep enough to tread water in.
5. Do not go into the water until three hours after you've eaten or your stomach goes down, whichever comes first.
6. A beach ball, a folding chair and an air mattress may seem cumbersome, but when worn cover the effects of a long winter.
7. When sunning, hold a child on your lap.

If swim suits get any more daring, I may have to learn how to swim and hug the bottom of the pool.

28 of 30 beers contain cancer chemical

WASHINGTON (AP) — All but two of 30 beers tested by the Food and Drug Administration show traces of nitrosamines, a chemical known to cause cancer in animals.

The two beers that showed no sign of the substance were Coors and Guinness Stout, the agency reported Saturday after tests of 18 domestic and 12 imported beers.

The traces found in other beers ranged up to seven parts per billion, the FDA study said. It is not known what effect those low levels may have on humans, but agency spokesman Wayne Pines said, "We don't think there is any reason for people to change their beer consuming habits or switch to other beers."

The presence of nitrosamines in beer was first reported last year in Germany. A study for the National Science Foundation has since confirmed those reports and also turned up traces of the substance in some brands of Scotch whisky.

Pines said the beer industry believes nitrosamines are formed during the drying of barley malt. German brewers already report success at eliminating nitrosamines and the U.S. Brewers Association expects positive results "within a matter of months," Pines said.

Pines said the FDA has confidence in the brewers and will give them "a full opportunity to solve the problem on their own." If elimination or drastic reduction of nitrosamines is not forthcoming, however, "we would have to consider what regulatory options are open," he said.

The FDA tests turned up traces of nitrosamines in the following domestic beers: Schaefer, Budweiser, Miller, Colt 45, Schlitz, Lowenbrau, Colt 45-Silver, Stroh's, Olympia, Old English 800, Blitz-Weinhard, Carling Black Label, National Bohemian, Old Milwaukee, Pabst, Tuborg and Ballantine.

Imported beers that showed traces of the chemical in the FDA tests were Kaiser Export, Paulaner Munchen, Stauder Spezial, Diekirch, Dortmund Union Spezial, Theakston Old Peculiar, Gosser Golden Rock, Hein-eken, San Miguel, Molson beer and Molson ale.

Nitrosamines previously were detected in bacon and other preserved meats. They are formed when the chemical nitrite, found in many foods, combines with amines. The FDA, concerned about the use of nitrite as a preservative, is seeking congressional approval to phase out its use over several years.

Making final preparations for the annual meeting Wednesday of Women of the Church, District III, Tres Rios Presbytery, are from left, Mrs. J.H. Frizell, district chairman of event; Mrs. M.F. Driscoll, president of Women of the Church of the First Presbyterian Church, and Mrs. Edwin Unger, arrangements chairman.

Coach combines basketball with work as community volunteer

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Not only is Ed Martin, head basketball coach at Tennessee State University, one of college basketball's most successful leaders, but he is also one of Nashville's most active volunteers.

His career is studded with accomplishments. Two years ago, he earned a place in the Fabulous "400" Circle, putting him among the top 10 "winningest" coaches in the country. His team, the Tigers, has won 428 games.

In 1972, he was voted the College Basketball Coach of the Year. He has coached 11 All-Americans and 12 National Basketball Association performers.

Martin's record of volunteer work is equally impressive. After serving four years on an agency budget panel for the Nashville United Way, he is now a member of the allocation committee and vice chairman of the board of trustees.

His involvement with this and other causes dates back to when he was a child, growing up in Allentown, Pa. "I was practically raised in a Boys' Club," he said. The club is a United Way-supported agency.

Between semesters at the North Carolina Agricultural and Technical University, he returned home to run the club's programs while the directors were away at summer camps.

"It was a chance for me to help other kids in the neighborhood," says Martin, who majored in physical education and minored in social work. He also played for his college basketball team.

"I never really expected to coach," he explains. "I originally planned to go into social service. I still lean in that direction."

He found he could combine the two disciplines while working on his master's degree in recreation at Temple University in Philadelphia. As part of his field assignment, he helped run a recreational program for victims of cerebral palsy.

"We taught youngsters how to play basketball and other team sports," he recalls. "We also conducted swimming classes for adults. I got carried away and started working there every free minute."

Martin says his work with handicapped and other disadvantaged people helped him grow as a person.

"I participated in the cerebral palsy program to teach these people how to play sports. Instead," he adds, "they gave me a lesson. The guts of these kids and adults makes you realize how fortunate you are and how much you have to give others."

Martin started coaching basketball at a high school in South Carolina. He joined South Carolina State College in 1955 and 13 years later came to Nashville. In between the practice sessions, tryouts and games, he has found time to reach out not only to his team and their families but to troubled, poor youth looking for direction.

"A coach is, more times than not, a guidance counselor," he says. "We have to deal with personalities, with all types of emotion and always, with success and failure."

"There are some kids I think I can reach better than others, using athletics as a focal point," says Martin, who serves on the city's Metro Recreation Board, which runs programs for underprivileged youth.

A few years ago when he was involved in basketball clinics for youngsters living in housing projects, he encouraged a boy who had just dropped out of school to go back. The youth has since graduated with top honors from TSU and is now an accountant.

The 53-year-old father of two says his family supports him in his long hours of volunteer work. "They know I'm a people-person at heart," he says. "If ever I retire from coaching, I'd like to go into some type of social work, preferably with youngsters."

"There's a lot of troubled kids out there. They need guidance, counseling and direction. And that takes compassion. It seems there is never enough of that to go around."

Braves 5-8, Astros 4-1—Jerry Royster hit a run-scoring, ninth-inning single with the bases loaded to rally the Braves to their first-game victory over the Astros.

Gary Matthews drove in four runs, including two in a five-run sixth inning, to lead Atlanta's triumph in the second game. Eddie Solomon, 7-13, scattered five hits for the Western Division's cellar-dwelling team.

Cardinals 7, Phillies 2—Ken Oberkfell singled home the tie-breaking run in the sixth inning as St. Louis beat Philadelphia in a game highlighted by Pete Rose's record-making 200th hit of the season.

The Phillies' star reached the coveted 200-hit circle for the 10th time in his career with a single in the second inning, thus becoming the first major league player to accomplish that feat.

Mets 3, Cubs 1—Richie Hebner hit three doubles, Elliott Maddox belted his first home run in over a year and Craig Swan scattered six hits to lead New York over Chicago.

The veteran quarterback ignited a 20-point, first-period explosion by capping Cleveland's first possession with a 23-yard touchdown pass to wide receiver Dave Logan.

Ryan snuffs out Royals as Angels close in on West

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — The California Angels edge closer to the American League West title, leading now by four games with just five to play.

"The Grich play under the situation was as good a play as I have ever seen. It was the ball game. Instead of having runners on first and third with none out, we had none on with two out."

us a tough time. I won't feel easy until it is over." With the "magic number" at two, the Angels could clinch the pennant tonight, since any combination of California victories and Kansas City defeats totalling four would end it.

The Angels and Royals meet again here tonight and Wednesday night, and California finishes the season with three games at Texas. The Angel victory was the only American League game Monday night.

The veteran Grich's spectacular play went well with the four runs driven home by Ford's single and two sacrifice flies after the Royals grabbed a 3-0 second-inning lead on three unearned runs.

Ford's four RBI put his season total at 101. "This was a night I'll remember for a long, long time, being a guy who helped us win," he said. "My side was hurting all during the game, so I tried each time to watch for the one pitch I wanted and really tried to hit it. I did not want to take too many swings."

Is there trouble in Paradise?

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

Baseball proudly trumpets another record-shattering season of turnstile twirling with more than 42 million paid admissions watching the game at the major league level in 1979.

Never before have so many fans been attracted by this fascinating, cerebral sport. And yet there may be trouble in paradise because despite those exciting numbers, there are indications that even though they are accurate, they also are inflated.

As the season hits its final week, 11 of the 26 clubs show declines in attendance and nine teams have dropped 100,000 or more at the gate.

The biggest loser is also, however, the biggest winner. The Los Angeles Dodgers have lost more than a half million at the gate — 500,918 through Sunday's games. And yet the Dodgers still lead the majors in attendance with 2,785,847, a shade ahead of Philadelphia's 2,722,696.

When a team draws more than 2 million fans, you can hardly say it is in trouble. But what would you say then about a team that drops a cool half million fans from one year to the next? That's trouble, even if it is the same team.

OTHER TEAMS with significant drops are San Francisco (down more than 300,000), Cincinnati (down more than 260,000), Oakland (down 220,000), the Chicago White Sox (down more than 196,000), San Diego (down 176,295), the New York Mets (down 175,772), Atlanta (down 132,976), and Toronto (down 130,934). Also suffering setbacks, although not as severe, were Seattle (down about 33,000) and Detroit (down about 86,000).

With all those declines, how does major league baseball show an overall increase? Well, the teams that have gained, have gained big.

Houston's bid for the National League West crown shot Astro attendance up 781,189. Montreal went up 623,411, thanks to the Expos' development as contenders in the NL East. California, excited by the Angels' run for the AL West championship, increased by 680,300. Baltimore's AL East title resulted in an increase of 610,881 at the gate for the Orioles. Jumps like those more than overcame the anemic numbers elsewhere.

BASEBALL would be in a much healthier state if the attendance graph did not have so many peaks and valleys. And nowhere are the valleys deeper than in Oakland, where the A's finished with 306,763, and in New York where the Mets bottomed out at 788,905.

Six years ago, those two clubs engaged in a dramatic, exciting seven-game World Series. And now they have hit rock-bottom with the lowest attendances in the history of their franchises. Ironically, both were destroyed by baseball's new order, the free-agent revolution.

The Mets ownership, resembling an ostrich with its head buried in the sand, refused to recognize the change in the game and resolutely steered clear of it, managing at the same time to destroy a franchise that once drew almost 2.7 million fans to Shea Stadium.

With their purse strings tied tight, the Mets ignored the big-money auction, preferring to hang on to the profits produced by the large attendances they once attracted instead of reinvesting them in the club. They chose instead to depend on a farm system that dried up 10 years ago.

WHILE GEORGE Steinbrenner revitalized their competition across the river with an infusion of free-agent funds, the Mets surrendered the city of New York, a town they once owned, to the Yankees. Working in the run-down South Bronx, the Yankees have drawn an all-time record 2,424,297, an increase of 212,774 over last year and more than three times as many fans as the Mets. They are working in the same market so you have to guess one of them is doing something very right and the other is doing something very wrong.

'Dump McKay in Bay', You gotta be kidding

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

"Dump McKay in Tampa Bay."

That was an exhortation blared on automobile bumper stickers and t-shirts throughout the Tampa Bay area in 1977 after John McKay's Tampa Bay Buccaneers had lost 26 straight games in the National Football League.

"Go for O," said other disparaging fliers while posters surfaced depicting a sinking pirate ship.

Florida newspapers were full of letters from disenchanted fans, urging that the coach of the NFL's expansion team be subjected to every mode of medieval torture.

It was enough to send even the strongest man scurrying back to the safe haven of college football, such as the University of Southern California where the laconic, silver-haired gridiron tactician had solidified his base as a builder of traditional national champions.

a fake nose and mustache," he quipped to two of his sports columnist cohorts, Tom McEwen of the Tampa Tribune and Hubert Mizell of the St. Petersburg Times.

He didn't mean it for a second, and it never became necessary. In fact, the onetime Trojan genius not only survived the crisis but he could easily have traded his masquerade gear for a halo.

He has emerged as the new god of the pigskin worshippers in the sunshine belt, an area now basking in heady success such as its citizens have never enjoyed before.

The once scorned Buccaneers, Tampa Bay's first major sports franchise, now have gone 4-0 in the new season with a punishing 21-6 victory over the highly rated Los Angeles Rams.

And Tampa Bay people are wildly delirious. It hasn't been an easy road for McKay. Critics lambasted him for draft choices that cost the Buccaneers the services of such stars as Tony Dorsett and Earl Campbell, now rated two of the best ball-carriers in the NFL. They said he favored his former USC players, including son Johnny, a wide receiver. Some pundits called the team "USC East."

Andrews, Reagan remain among area unbeatens first downs to five, 247 total offensive yards to 111. But a 75-yard scoring pass to Billy Ray Terry from Raul Arana early in the fourth quarter and Arana's extra point knotted things for McCamey, now 1-1-1.

The lone area victim was Lamesa — again. But the Golden Tornadoes of District 3-AAA looked much-improved in a 18-10 loss to Levelland. Coach Julian Bush's outfit, 0-3-0, found their offense against the Lobos and also had some spirited defensive play at times.

In District 2-AAA, all outfits including Andrews posted victories. Ft. Stockton stopped El Paso 21-12 while Monahans blanked Canutillo 35-0. Odessa Ector stopped Crystal City 30-7 and Pecos rolled 31-14 over El Paso Riverside.

Two District 3-AAA squads fashioned whitewash jobs as San Angelo Lake View throttled Lubbock 41-0 and Snyder bested Big Spring 28-0. The other loop winner was Brownfield, a 7-6 victor over Denver City. It was the Cubs' first triumph. The victims were Lamesa and Sweetwater, hammered 28-6 by Stamford.

Among District 7-AA units, three were winners including Crane. Kermit slammed Lovington, N. M. 35-0 while Ozona side-stepped Eldorado 14-8. Meanwhile, Sonora lost 21-6 to Mason.

For District 5-A teams, which embark upon loop play shortly, the results were mixed. Two teams, including Stanton, were tied while three lost and three won, including two shutouts.

Shallowater, one of the league favorites, was involved in a 6-6 stalemate with Springlake while Seagraves, another pre-season nod, blitzed Lorenzo 35-14 and should keep their lofty state ranking.

O'Donnell waylaid smaller Borden County 14-0 while Plains blanked Sundown 42-0. Anton, which fell 21-6 to Sudan, Forsan, which toppled 36-0 to Robert Lee, and Ropes, which was trimmed by 9-6 by Meadow, were the losers.

Including Rankin, three District 6-A teams enjoyed success. Clint shaded Animas, N. M. 14-6 while Marfa bombed Sanderson 44-6. McCamey was tied and Iraan was slaughtered 49-8 by Reagan County.

Four of five District 9-A clubs, including Reagan County, recorded triumphs. Mason dumped Sonora, Menard destroyed Eden 48-0 and Wall thumped Jim Ned 24-6. The loser was Eldorado, 14-8 to Ozona while Junction was idle.

Dissident priests are urging clerical boycott of papal service

By The Associated Press

Holidays for schoolchildren and county workers in Iowa are the targets of the latest lawsuits inspired by Pope John Paul II's upcoming visit, and in Washington, D.C., dissident priests are urging a clerical boycott of the papal Holy Communion service.
Plans for the rare papal visit have also prompted dissent in Boston, where a federal judge was to rule today in a suit brought by birth control activist Bill Baird over the archdiocese's decision to reserve for persons of its choosing 18,000 of the available seats for a papal Mass on the Boston Common.
Boston is the first stop on the Roman Catholic leader's U.S. itinerary. After his arrival from Ireland on Monday, the pope will also tour New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, Des Moines, Iowa, and Washington.

In Iowa, the state Civil Liberties Union stressed that its quarrel is with public — not church — officials in the suit it plans to file today to overturn the decision to close schools in the Lenox School District southwest of Des Moines during the pope's visit.

On Monday, the ICLU went to court to stop Polk County supervisors from giving workers a paid holiday on Oct. 4, claiming a violation of constitutional guarantees of church-state separation. A hearing was set for Thursday before U.S. Judge William C. Stuart.

Steven Brown, executive director of the ICLU, told a news conference that the group objects to the day off because some $50,000 in tax funds would be spent on holiday salaries and because it would deny county services to the four plaintiffs in the suit.

Brown said that while the pope is a head of state, he is coming primarily for religious purposes and that the four-hour visit to Des Moines will be given over almost entirely to saying Mass.

Brown said officials of the Des Moines Catholic Diocese "have been very cooperative throughout all this. They have expressed great sensitivity to church and state issues."

In Washington, the dispute centers on the role of women in the church. A group of priests known as "Priests for Equality" is urging Catholic clergy in the Washington area to refuse to hold distribute the Holy Eucharist during a papal Mass on the Mall.

The dissidents are upset over a Vatican directive forbidding lay women who regularly serve as special Eucharistic ministers from assisting at the papal Mass. Priests for Equality hope the boycott will force the pope to call on women.

Meanwhile, in New York, where police have condemned the papal visit "Operation Shepherd," officials are taking special steps to prevent imposters from attending papal events dressed as priests and nuns. The pope's two-day stay in New York includes 58 miles of motor trips through city streets, and Police Commissioner Ellen Fleysher predicted that traffic would be a "nightmare."

And church officials in Chicago say the pope's visit will cost at least six times the original estimate. Richard Rosemeyer, chancellor and vicar general of the archdiocese, told a news conference Monday that current estimates are "well over half a million dollars."

The church is using general funds and some private donations to pay for the pope's visit, except for the costs of public "support services." Meanwhile, the city of Chicago has made a "rough" estimate that the visit will cost the city about $1 million — largely for police and fire services, said Bob Saigh, city spokesman.
