NEWS IN BRIEF

Trains collide

HARVEY, Ill. (AP) — An Amtrak passenger train and an Illinois Central Gulf Railroad freight train collided in this Chicago suburb Friday, killing two persons and injuring at least 30 others, authorities said.

More than 100 passengers on the train who were not injured were taken to the Harvey Police Department. The exact number aboard the passenger train was not immediately known.

Police speculated that a switching error may have been responsible for the accident.

Talks to begin

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union and China agreed Friday to go ahead with full scale reconciliation talks next week. They have concluded three weeks of preliminary meetings, Chinese sources said.

The sources said the preliminary talks failed to yield agreement on a complete agenda but both sides decided to proceed without a full list of topics.

China reportedly is interested in discussing ideological differences that have been brewing between the countries since the late 1950s, but Moscow is said to be primarily interested in discussing confidence building measures and cultural exchanges to improve relations.

Two charged

SEGUIN, Texas (AP) — Two men charged with attempted capital murder in the wounding of a Highway patrolman were being held without bond in Seguin Friday night, police said.

Trooper Michael W. Gorrell, 29, of Seguin was listed in critical condition at Santa Rosa Hospital in San Antonio with gunshot wounds of the chest, abdomen and hand.

Doctors said Gorrell was wounded with a .25-caliber pistol and his own .357 magnum service revolver.

Depot explodes

PORDENONE, Italy (AP) — Fire at an ammunition depot touched off violent explosions Friday afternoon that killed at least one person and injured scores in Tauriano on the outskirts of this northern town 30 miles southwest of Udine, police reported. Four other persons were presumed dead.

The blasts destroyed the privately owned powder magazine and a nearby military warehouse "stacked with dynamite and firearms," an official said.

Protests continue

PEKING (AP) — New student demonstrations protesting campus occupations broke out in China's capital Friday even as one was settled.

Economics students marched down the street protesting that a tobacco factory has taken over their campus and sanitation students griped that the army was living at their school.

Castro calls nations to end 'exploitation'

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Fidel Castro, in an impassioned speech bristling with anti-U.S. barbs, called on the nations of the world Friday to end the "exploitation of the poor" build a new international order or face an apocalypse.

"I speak on behalf of the children of the world who don't even have a piece of bread!" the Cuban president thundered. A wave of applause from the packed U.N. General Assembly hall answered him.

Castro's two-hour address, highlight of his first visit to American soil in two decades, ended with a 1½-minute standing ovation from most of the Assembly's 152 members.

Shouts of "Fidel! Fidel!" rose in the packed hall, where Third World delegates sympathetic to the Cuban's cause were predominant. The bearded Castro, clad in his customary green fatigues, left through a ganlet of well-wishers in a nearby lounge and headed for a U.N. luncheon with 90 dignitaries, including American U.N. Ambassador Donald McHenry. Afterward he returned to the Cuban Mission, seven blocks from here.

Castro says he may stay in New York for much of next week, but the rest of his schedule was not publicly known.

Four Puerto Rican nationalists recently freed from U.S. prisons will fly from Puerto Rico to New York this weekend to meet with him, it was reported Friday by the wife of one of the four. They were jailed in the early 1950s in connection with attacks on the U.S. House and the Blair House residence of then-President Harry Truman.

As Castro spoke inside the General Assembly building on Manhattan's East Side, 2,000 anti-Castro protesters demonstrated on nearby Dag Hammarskjold Plaza. A smaller group of pro-Castroites demonstrated five blocks away, on the other side of the U.N. entrance.

Local police and U.S., Cuban and U.N. security agents, fearful of a possible assassination attempt against Castro, had thrown a tight security net over the U.N. area during his five-hour stay there.

Police helicopters whirred overhead; police launches plied the nearby East River, and hundreds of officers manned police lines in a five-block area around the United Nations.

As Castro spoke, too, a contingent of U.S. Marines was steaming toward Cuba, headed for a mock reinforcement landing in the U.S. naval base at Guantanamo Bay intended to dramatize President Carter's declaration of increased vigilance in the Caribbean.

In his lengthy speech Castro lashed out at the "dashing of weapons, threatening language and overbearing behavior in the international arena." And he accused the United States of "hostile acts, pressure and threats."

But he did not mention the Soviet troops whose presence on his island led to Carter's actions. In interviews this week he had described the Marine mission as a "comedy" and said he was "not interested in the quarrel" over the Soviet troops.

Castro's sister among demonstrators at U.N.

NEW YORK (AP) — Among demonstrators protesting Fidel Castro's appearance at the United Nations on Friday was his sister, Juanita, who called the Cuban president a "monster" who "must be overthrown."

"I have come up from Miami to confront this man," Juanita Castro told cheering crowds.

"I will not rest until I see my country free," she added. "The people of our country are living under the terror of a dictator and we are speaking for them against the crimes Fidel has committed against our country."

Castro's sister helped him during his struggle to overthrow dictator Juan Batista. But she turned against him in 1960 and fled to Miami, where she runs a discount store.

"You know how it is," she said, reminiscing about her decision to abandon her brother. "You overhear things that aren't meant to be overheard...and as time went on fewer and fewer promises that were made were carried out."

Armenian group claims responsibility for slaying

THE HAGUE, Netherlands (AP) — In a traffic-light ambush, a lone gunman killed the only son of the Turkish ambassador to the Netherlands on Friday in an apparent new vengeance slaying claimed by Armenian patriots.

Ahmet Benler, the 27-year-old son of ambassador Ozdemir Benler, was shot as he stopped his automobile at a red light two blocks from the Turkish embassy.

An Armenian terrorist group identifying itself as the Justice Commandos of the Armenian Genocide claimed responsibility for the killing in a call to The Associated-Press in Beirut and said it was part of a struggle for "due justice" against the Turks they accuse of genocide 50 years ago.

Benler was the 11th member of Turkey's foreign diplomatic community to be slain by suspected Armenian terrorists in the past 6 years, including a 1973 attack in Los Angeles which killed two Turkish consulate officials.

A student at a technical university in Delft, southeast of The Hague, Benler was shot at an intersection in the city center on his way to school. He was declared dead at the scene.

Witnesses said the gunman, who had a dark complexion and appeared to be waiting for Benler on the road leading to the Delft highway, pumped four to six shots through the side windows, hitting Benler directly in the chest.

They said Benler's foot apparently hit the gas pedal, causing the car to go through the intersection and hit several cars on the other side of the street. No injuries were reported and police said the gunman escaped on foot.

In Beirut, an anonymous woman caller told The Associated Press she represented the Justice Commandos group and that it claimed responsibility for the killing. The French news agency in The Hague received a similar call from an anonymous person who said he represented the same group.

Senate passes, Carter signs compromise bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — A compromise bill giving members of Congress a pay raise and restoring full salaries for 1.5 million government workers was passed Friday by the Senate and swiftly signed into law by President Carter.

Carter "was concerned about the appropriations delay and he directed that once the bill reached the White House it be brought to him immediately. It was, and the president signed the bill in the White House residence at 10 p.m." EDT, said deputy presidential press secretary Rex Granum.

Passage came after the Senate killed on a 43-42 vote an attempt by Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., to delete the 5.5 percent pay hike for lawmakers.

His amendment would have forced the House to again face the question of whether it would insist on the $3,200 a year pay raise it maintained be part of the bill.

The Senate did vote, in a separate bill, to reject the pay raise. But that action was considered more show than substance since it is a separate bill that the House likely will not even consider.

Acceptance of the compromise, on a 44-42 vote, came after the Senate earlier had rejected the measure 62-26.

The Senate's initial rejection of the compromise was greeted with hisses and boos on the House floor. And House Majority Whip John Brademas, D-Ind., told members, "I'm tempted myself to join in those reactions."

The Senate's earlier rejection of the compromise came after Weicker implored his colleagues to stand firm on their previous position of rejecting any pay raise for members of Congress.

Referring to cutbacks in government paychecks and programs, Weicker said, "Those people and those programs were held hostage so the House of Representatives could vote themselves a pay raise."

Almost all senators who spoke for the compromise said they did so reluctantly. Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., said he continued to believe the pay raise was a bad idea, but added that 50 million beneficiaries of federal programs would be affected if the stalemate were not broken.

The Senate's rejection came a few hours after House members had accepted by voice vote the compromise worked out earlier by negotiators from both chambers.

The House approved compromise had called for the Senate to accept the House-passed 5.5 percent pay raise for lawmakers. That move would add $3,200 a year to the current $57,500-a-year congressional salary. The Senate had insisted it wanted no pay raise.

The compromise also called for both the House and Senate to accept a modification in existing language limiting federal funding for abortions.

There was little debate in the House over the compromise. However, Rep. Robert K. Dornan, R-Calif., blasted the language on abortion and urged House members to remember the words of Pope John Paul II to "stand up for life."

"I don't care how many paychecks are held up," Dornan shouted in an emotional burst. "We've killed 2 million people in their mother's wombs in the past two years."

The congressional battle has held up passage of an emergency money bill needed to provide operating funds for the various departments in the fiscal year that began 12 days ago.

First comes Commerce Street

DALLAS (AP) — What it resembled more than anything else is a huge dance, with choreography by generations of football-crazed and beer-dulled Oklahomans and Texans.

It's the annual rite of fall that precedes the University of Texas-University of Oklahoma football game, played every year at the Cotton Bowl in Dallas.

It requires that thousands of supporters for each team gather in downtown Dallas the night before to consume copious amounts of alcohol, parade up and down Commerce Street, on foot or in cars, and make as much noise as possible.

It also required that the Dallas Police Department assign all off-duty officers to patrol duty on Commerce Street, to make sure things don't get too far out of hand.

As usual, police blocked Commerce to all cross-traffic and let the merry-makers take it over for the evening.

Pickup trucks, vans, cars and motorcycles were decorated with streamers, paint, signs and — in some cases — passengers hanging on for dear life as they rolled slowly eastward on Commerce.

Their parade, complete with incessant horn-honking, sounded for all the world like a huge flock of geese beginning its migration.

Again this year, police were fairly lenient, letting the celebrants have their fun — as long as nobody tried to throw a temporary enemy out of a hotel window or bash him with a piece of furniture.

It's noisy. It involves thousands of people and it's traditional, but the question remains: is it fun?

"Hell, yeah," said Oklahoma fan Jon Taylor.

"It's kinda crazy — I don't know how much fun it is," said Oklahoma fan Merlin Orr.

"Hell, no," said a Texas coed, clinging to the arm of her burly, T-shirted escort. "For 12 hours you just come up here and drink."

The pedestrians appeared to concern themselves mainly with screaming curses, largely unprintable, at anybody who had the audacity to be on the other side.

"Wait till after midnight," said one officer stationed at the Baker Hotel. "Every turkey around will be out here before the night is over."

The Baker was the center of one of this year's ironies. In the past, it was headquarters for much of the Texas carousing, but it has been closed and sold, and this year served as the police command post for the night.

Another officer said things were relatively "quiet" this year, even as hundreds of honking cars and thousands of pedestrians, many carrying air-horns, forced him to shout to be heard.

"We've only had two people arrested so far, and they came quietly," he said.

"But we do have more people this year. It was cold last year, and the year before it rained, so the weather probably had something to do with it."

After Friday night on Commerce, the football game would have to be a hum-dinger to come up to standards.

Four Ector prisoners file suit

Four former Ector County Jail prisoners have filed a civil suit against Sheriff Elton Faught and the county's four commissioners in U.S. District Court here seeking to improve conditions for prisoners in Ector County Jail.

The suit named as respondents Sheriff Faught and "all commissioners" in their official capacities. It was filed by Leonard O. Diaz Jr., now serving a robbery sentence in the Texas Department of Corrections.

The petition filed contends the four were being held in Ector County Jail in June 1979 and were being deprived of their rights under provisions of the First, Fifth, Sixth and 14th amendments to the U.S. Constitution.

The petitioners are asking to promulgate rules governing standards for literature to be permitted in the jail.

Commissioners declined comment on the suit initially. Sheriff Faught said he could do nothing until the jail is renovated.

Cubans in Miami Friday staged a downtown demonstration against Cuban President Fidel Castro as he spoke at the U.N. Many shops were closed for several hours to allow members of the Cuban community to show up en masse for the late evening demonstration.

Carter, Kennedy awaiting results of Florida's county caucuses

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — The weeks of jockeying for position are over, and now President Carter and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy must await county caucuses today to find out if they can gain a psychological edge in the Democratic Party's presidential race.

The Kennedy camp countered with letters to elderly Democrats, telling them the senator supported boosting Social Security benefits while Carter proposed cuts.

"I think we have a good shot at it," said Bendixen, who three years ago was engineering a Carter victory in Florida.

The caucuses are choosing delegates to a state convention that will include a non-binding presidential straw poll, and Carter and Kennedy forces are pushing hard to make a good showing.

Democratic national committee man Sergio Bendixen, leader of draft-Kennedy forces, predicted Friday that winning half the delegates Saturday would be enough to coax Kennedy into formally challenging Carter. "I think we have a good shot at it," said Bendixen, who three years ago was engineering a Carter victory in Florida.

Leaders of the draft Kennedy campaign expressed confidence Friday that they had a chance to win half the delegates at the caucuses, although they conceded some of their claimed supporters were actually uncommitted or supporters of Carter.

Kennedy supporters argued that even getting nearly half the delegates would be a great "victory" for the Massachusetts senator, Carter officials said they cared only about getting "one more vote than the next guy."

John El-Hawat, a prominent lawyer in Byblos, said that all 188 hostages held by the Franjehs had been accounted for.

About 50,000 Democrats are expected to take part in the 67 county caucuses that will elect 879 delegates to the Nov. 16-18 state convention. State party leaders and elected officials will select an additional 838 delegates to the state convention — most of them Carter supporters.

The straw poll will play no role in selecting Florida delegates to the 1980 Democratic National Convention. Those delegates will be chosen in a statewide primary March 11.

Emile Khoury, a taxi driver who was one of the last to be released, said in our third day of captivity, we thought we were doomed.

Nevertheless, both camps have campaigned hard, and Carter backers had one last bid for support before the voting started — a Saturday breakfast in Tampa given by Carter's mother, Miss Lillian. They promised to give hundreds of senior citizens rides to the breakfast, with a stop at the Hillsborough County caucus on the way home.

Phalange leader Pierre Gemayel earlier had ordered the release of about 35 Franjeh followers whose abduction last Monday led to Franjeh's retaliation. The orders apparently were not carried out.

Tewfik Saeed, a shopkeeper here who witnessed the abduction, said area residents had "anticipated more evil" and a heightening of tensions.

Iwo Jima survivor dies Friday

MANCHESTER, N.H. (AP) — Rene Gagnon, the only surviving Marine among those who raised the American flag on Iwo Jima in a scene made famous by one of the most memorable photographs of World War II, died Friday of an apparent heart attack.

Three of the six men in the famous photograph — five Marines and a Navy hospital corpsman — were killed during the 35 days of savage fighting for the island.

After the war, Gagnon played himself in the "Sands of Iwo Jima," starring John Wayne. He then turned down a $700 per week movie contract after his wife told him to choose between acting and marriage — leaving Hollywood to return to his native Manchester.

The 54-year-old Gagnon collapsed at his caretaker's job at an apartment complex here Friday afternoon, said Dr. Robert Duval, Hillsborough County medical referee.

More than 17,000 Marines were wounded in the attack on Iwo Jima, and nearly all the 23,000 Japanese troops on the island were killed.

Three of the six men in the famous photograph — five Marines and a Navy hospital corpsman — were killed during the 35 days of savage fighting for the island.

Gagnon lived in Hooksett, the community bordering this central New Hampshire city. The Phaneuf & Leland Funeral Home here was arranging for his funeral and burial.

The Pulitzer prize-winning photograph was taken by Associated Press photographer Joe Rosenthal while on assignment with the Wartime Still Picture Pool Feb. 23, 1945.

After the war, Gagnon played himself in the "Sands of Iwo Jima," starring John Wayne. He then turned down a $700 per week movie contract after his wife told him to choose between acting and marriage — leaving Hollywood to return to his native Manchester.

The photograph was the model for the Iwo Jima Memorial near Arlington National Cemetery in Virginia — a sculpture commemorating the 5,931 Marines who died in the conquest of Iwo Jima, one of the Bonin Islands in the Pacific. The island was needed as a base for U.S. bombers in raids of Japan.

Gagnon's part in the assault began Feb. 19, 1945, when the 19-year-old was among the ninth wave of Marines to hit the beach, finding that the previous men had not been able to penetrate the murderous gunfire from the well-hidden Japanese troops.

Area cities Friday also reported warm temperatures and no precipitation.

"At that age I never thought anything would happen to me," Gagnon said of the landing in a 1978 interview. "I knew I'd be back. It was always going to be the other guy."

That's probably why they say war's for young people. You get my age and you begin thinking about it. You see a bad accident on the highway — and it bothers you," he said.

There were no injuries, a fire department spokesman said.

Four days after the landing, Gagnon was sent to find a patrol that had been ordered up 534-foot Mount Suribachi, Iwo's highest point. The patrol had reached the summit when he found the men, and had attached an American flag to a 4-inch-thick steel pipe, part of a destroyed Japanese fortification.

Three of the six men in the famous photograph — five Marines and a Navy hospital corpsman — were killed during the 35 days of savage fighting for the island.

'Stuffed ballots' on GOP menu

By DON BEMAN

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Ballot stuffing will be on the menu when major Republican presidential candidates appear for a straw poll at a fund-raising dinner in nearby Ames on Saturday night. "We're not discouraging it. We love it," said Steve Roberts, state GOP chairman, who is still trying to recoup a $200,000 debt stemming from the 1978 election campaign. Organizers say they expect about 2,400 people for the fund-raiser, during which all major GOP contenders, except former California Gov. Ronald Reagan, are scheduled to speak. A straw poll will be taken among the audience, but it will have no legal bearing on the party's eventual choice for the 1980 nomination. Committed delegates to the GOP national convention will be selected by Iowa party precinct caucuses, scheduled to begin in January. An AP-NBC News poll, taken among Iowa Republicans on Tuesday and Wednesday, showed that nearly all the candidates have a long way to go toward becoming well-known in the state. Although the straw poll to be taken at the fund-raiser is not expected to have much influence on the January caucuses, there is open talk of packing the audience with partisans. "Yes, we're planning on between 100 and 150 high school and college students in the galleries," said George W. Wittgraf, on the campaign staff for former Rep. George Bush. "They are there to help with the hoopla when our man speaks." Roberts has said that six backers of Kansas Sen. Robert Dole had purchased $10,000 worth of the $50-a-plate tickets. Only one straw poll will be taken at the dinner, and it will be conducted by the Iowa Daily Press Association, Roberts said. "If there is any audience packing, I don't think that will make any difference," said Harrison Weber, who is in charge of the poll for the press association. "All we will be finding out is the preference of those present," he said. "I also think that this can be a test of the different campaign organizations to see how well they can organize." "They all have the same opportunity to bring people in," he added. However, Weber said, students brought in to provide some of the traditional campaign cheering for a particular candidate will not be counted unless they are in the paying audience. The party is offering $3 student tickets for seats in the galleries. Weber said he has built in safeguards designed to make sure student preferences — "assuming they would blindly vote for the person they were brought in to yell for" — are not mingled. Roberts said he had heard 20 bus-loads of students would be showing up. Backers for Senate Minority Leader Howard Baker of Tennessee and Dole said they wanted students to attend.

Little known about contenders

By EVANS WITT

NEW YORK (AP) — Iowa Republicans, who kick off the party's nominating season with precinct caucuses in January 1980, enter the final months of 1979 with little knowledge about many of the contenders for their party's presidential nomination. As might be expected, GOP party faithful do say they know a good bit about former California Gov. Ronald Reagan — the product of his previous tries for the presidency and his long experience in politics and show business. Former Treasury Secretary John Connally is also fairly well known. But such contenders as Sen. Howard Baker and former Rep. George Bush have still to make much of an impression with Iowa Republicans. Several thousand Republicans will gather in Ames, Iowa, on Saturday night to raise money for the state party and to hear speeches from many of the contenders for the GOP nomination next year. A straw ballot of presidential preferences will be taken at the dinner. The AP-NBC News poll, taken Tuesday and Wednesday, does not in any way foretell the outcome of the straw ballot, for the poll reflects only the general opinion of possible presidential candidates, not respondents' specific preference for the nomination next year. And the poll reflects the opinions of all Iowa Republicans, not just the small percentage at the dinner. Sixty-five percent of the 726 Iowa Republicans interviewed by telephone said they have a favorable impression overall of Reagan, 20 percent said they have an unfavorable impression, 15 percent said they did not know enough to make a decision or weren't sure. For Connally, 39 percent reported a favorable view, versus 22 percent who said they have unfavorable views. Another 39 percent were not sure or did not know enough about him. Sen. Robert Dole, from neighboring Kansas, is almost as well known. Thirty-three percent reported favorable views about him, 20 percent said their views were unfavorable and 47 did not know enough about him or were not sure. For others, the recognition was much lower. Sixty-six percent had no opinion on Baker, 30 percent held favorable views of him and 4 percent unfavorable. For Bush, 65 percent reported no opinion, 28 percent said their views of him were favorable and 7 percent reported unfavorable views.

Kennedy drops more hints at LULAC meeting

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., dropped more hints Friday about his possible presidential candidacy while reminding a Hispanic audience about his past support for the nation's minorities. "I hope you will come and knock on my door," he told the League of United Latin American Citizens' national board. "Maybe someday soon I'll be knocking on yours."

Kennedy said Hispanics deserve a responsible Senate, Congress and chief executive. He left the crowded banquet room to a standing ovation and scattered cries of "We want Kennedy." Ruben Bonilla, the president of LULAC, said later he considered Kennedy's comments a bid for Hispanic support in a possible battle with President Carter for the Democratic nomination.

"There is no doubt in my mind that the senator is running," Bonilla, of Corpus Christi, Texas, said. "It is a clear signal that he is looking to the Hispanics for votes and support." Vice President Walter Mondale was scheduled to appear at the same luncheon as Kennedy but was forced to cancel in the morning because of a heavy schedule, an aide said. He regrets it, but unfortunately it is not unusual with his schedule," Al Eisele said. Bonilla found the cancellation disturbing. "I think it's just another shortcoming (of the Carter administration)," Bonilla said. "It's a personal disappointment." Kennedy, regarded as a strong favorite in the Hispanic community, began his remarks with a poorly pronounced greeting in Spanish. He apologized for his accent before proceeding to mangle the names of Texas state Sen. Carlos Truan, D-Corpus Christi, and Esteban Torres, the president's adviser for Hispanic affairs and the luncheon's keynote speaker.

Tight credit policy reaffirmed

HOT SPRINGS, Va. (AP) — President Carter's chief economic advisers reaffirmed their commitment Friday to attacking the nation's inflation problem with a tight credit policy. Treasury Secretary G. William Miller and Paul A. Volcker, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, also denied that the president has weakened his support for the new tight money strategy adopted last weekend by the central bank. "The president is very supportive of these actions because he is determined to carry on the war against inflation," Miller told a news conference. Slower monetary growth and judicious use of credit in the short run "will permit lower interest rates and balanced economic growth" in the future, Volcker said. Miller and Volcker made the remarks after addressing the fall session of the Business Council, a prestigious group of corporate executives meeting at a resort in the Virginia mountains. The council has met regularly since the 1920s to critique federal policy. At a news conference earlier in the week, Carter had said he supported the credit-restriction moves and that he was willing to risk the ire of voters in the 1980 election, which could result from the tight money policies and high interest rates. But Thursday, the president appeared to waver in his endorsement of the tight credit policy, which the Federal Reserve initiated last Saturday by raising a key interest rate, increasing bank reserve requirements and changing procedures to control monetary growth. The president told a San Diego meeting of construction union leaders that "interest rates are too high." The construction industry, which relies heavily on the availability of mortgage money, is expected to be hard hit by the new policies. Miller argued that Carter's statement on interest was consistent with his earlier support for the central bank's policy. "I think the president, like all of us, looks forward to the day when we have mipped inflation in the bud and that is the day we will begin to see interest rates come down," Miller said. Volcker added, "Nobody likes high interest rates, including me... You don't aim for high interest rates per se. You aim for the control that we think will bring the answer, or part of the answer at least, to inflation over time." The higher rates are likely to result in a slowdown in business and consumer borrowing and an overall decline in economic activity. Both Miller and Volcker denied, however, that the tight credit policies would worsen the recession that many economists believe began in the second quarter this year. "To the degree that we are forceful and persuasive and effective in dampening inflationary expectations, the more likely we are to maintain a moderation of the recession and return to conditions of balanced growth," Miller said. "A failure to catch inflation and destroy inflationary forces will deepen the recession." The commitment to continue the policy was welcomed by the business leaders, who said in their economic forecast released Friday that there was "a strong case for steadiness of policy and avoidance of sudden shifts in priorities." Clifton C. Garvin Jr., board chairman of the Exxon Corp., said in his report that "a steady course, once it gains credibility, should improve economic performance by helping all of us make better decisions." Garvin said the forecast was prepared before the central bank announcement, but that "a majority of the analysts" had anticipated some sort of action from the federal reserve in their forecast.

Energy crisis 'a strong threat' to U.S. security, Clements says

DALLAS (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements said Friday the energy crisis has placed the nation in graver danger than at the time of Pearl Harbor in 1941. "The energy crisis is compacting our national security," he said. Clements told the Texas Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Association he based his views on his 1973-77 experience as deputy secretary of defense. "I guarantee you we have a vulnerability that is unacceptable and should be unacceptable to all Americans," he said. Clements repeated earlier statements that the national energy policy is a disaster and said the nation should follow a Texas policy based on production of oil and gas, coal, and nuclear power along with research and development and, secondarily, conservation. Harold E. Berg, chairman of Getty Oil Co., earlier had told the state's largest trade group the Environmental Protection Agency probably is the worst enemy of the industry and business in general. Berg said billions have been wasted by the industry abiding by environmental restrictions that have gone far beyond the limits of practicality. "It is very important we exert every effort possible in an attempt to get this bureaucracy to become more realistic, to come down out of fantasy land to the real world," he said. Berg, who succeeded the late J. Paul Getty as the head of the Los Angeles-based firm, said the EPA is completely inflexible in interpretation of its rules. "They continue to block efforts to drill for oil in the frontier areas, both offshore and onshore," he said. "They have proposed an arbitrary and unreasonable solid waste disposal program; they have prepared additional onerous controls for underground injection of both water and gas in secondary and tertiary recoveries." Berg added that the EPA has refused to consider anti-knock additives for gasoline with an attendant waste of energy. "It makes one wonder whether there might be an insidious movement from within the department itself with the goal of undermining our nation's economy," he said. He expressed doubt Congress, in enacting the Clean Air and Water Act, had any idea of the "monster" they created or any idea of the way the law would be administered.

House votes to end price, allocation controls

WASHINGTON (AP) — Going well beyond President Carter's program to phase out controls on crude oil prices, the House voted Friday to immediately lift all price and allocation controls on gasoline. A deregulation amendment was adopted by a slim 191-188 margin. If approved by the Senate and signed by Carter, it will allow oil companies or gasoline retailers to set whatever prices they wish for gasoline in a free-market environment. Gasoline is the only petroleum product that remains under price controls established in 1973. Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., chairman of the House energy and power subcommittee, predicted the move could send prices at the pump soaring towards $2 a gallon. "It guarantees massive increases in prices, especially if there is a shortage," Dingell said. "It leaves the American consuming public naked to any shutoff of supplies or a panicky market." But supporters of gasoline deregulation — and even some of its opponents — disputed that the price hike would be as severe as Dingell predicted. Approval of the Republican-sponsored amendment caught House leaders by surprise and sent them scurrying in vain to look for votes to turn the vote around. The House will get a chance to reconsider the measure next week. The gasoline deregulation amendment was attached to a bill authorizing various Energy Department programs for the 1980 fiscal year, which began Oct. 1. House leaders postponed final action on the overall bill until next week. Rep. James A. Courter, R-N.J., sponsor of the amendment, said gasoline deregulation makes sense in light of Thursday's House votes on removal of price controls on crude oil. In those votes, the House affirmed Carter's phased oil price deregulation program and voted against an effort to reimpose price lids on home heating oil and diesel fuel this winter. The Courter amendment also would discard the government's cumbersome and complex gasoline allocation system — one that critics said worsened the gasoline shortages of last spring and summer by sending fuel to places where it was not needed. "The allocation system has had a disruptive effect on gasoline supplies," Courter claimed. Supporters said a general unhappiness with the allocation system was one factor in approval of the amendment. Another, they said, was the fact that a number of lawmakers from the East who might have voted against the measure had already left town for the weekend. And some congressional sources said that lack of a clear-cut White House position on the amendment helped carry it to passage. The Carter administration had originally intended to remove controls from gasoline prices, but had held off after last year's cutoff of Iranian supplies sent prices soaring and created a tight market. During congressional testimony in July, then-Deputy Energy Secretary John F. O'Leary said immediate decontrol of gasoline could send the price of gasoline to $3 or more a gallon. The Courter amendment also inadvertently wiped out the nation's set-aside program to make sure the military, police, fire departments, hospitals and farmers have first call on gasoline during a shortage. But on a subsequent 257-119 vote, House members restored this set-aside. Existing price controls prohibit increases to consumers beyond those caused by inflation and higher crude oil acquisition costs. Recent hikes that have taken the price of gasoline to over $1 a gallon have all been within this price control framework. The House vote "is, to completely surrender to the 20 largest oil companies, those whose profits over the last year have risen by 60 percent," said Rep. Bob Eckhardt, D-Texas. Rep. Toby Moffett, D-Conn., accused Congress of becoming "a de-control Congress." After the vote, Moffett said the "same forces" that upheld Carter's decision to remove crude oil price controls led to Friday's vote — even though the president did not request Congress to remove gasoline price controls. Moffett said that while he opposed the amendment, he did see logic in the argument that it made no sense to lift controls on crude oil while retaining them for gasoline.

Heating oil prices falling

WASHINGTON (AP) — Energy Secretary Charles Duncan said Friday that swelling supplies of home heating oil have begun to bring lower prices. "In the past several weeks, the price trend has been softening, and that's very good news," Duncan told reporters at the White House. Duncan spoke after President Carter appeared personally to say the administration will meet its goal of 240 million barrels of home heating oil in reserves.

Petra Gibbons, 33, is a telephone sales agent for United Airlines in El Segundo, Calif., about 10 miles south of Los Angeles. She has never seen a computer because she is the airline's only blind reservation agent.

Who needs to see? Petra Gibbons uses computer as airline reservation sales agent

By CHARLES HILLINGER The Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES—Airline telephone reservation sales agents use computers to obtain readouts showing seat availability on specific flights.

Petra Gibbons, 33, telephone sales agent for United Airlines since May, 1978, has never seen a computer. She is believed to be the airline industry's first and so far only blind reservation agent.

"When Petra applied for the job, there was doubt in the minds of most people that a blind person was capable of handling the job," said Ed Piper, United's Manager of personnel.

For Piper, Petra's desire to get the job had special meaning. His mother and father were both blind.

"After meeting Petra and seeing her demonstrate her ability, there was no question in my mind that she would be successful," Piper said.

But special equipment had to be designed to enable Petra to "read."

And with it she has been able to perform with the same degree of speed and efficiency as her sighted coworkers.

Petra punches the computer keys for flight information like the other agents.

But instead of reading the information on the screen, she moves a small camera mounted on a metal bar tracking guide across the screen.

The camera transmits the images to an Optacon reading machine, a device resembling a cassette tape recorder.

The device converts the photographed letters and numbers appearing on the computer screen.

Thus she "reads" the information through her finger.

In an eight-hour shift she handles from 90 to 150 reservations, the same workload as her colleagues at United's reservation center here.

"Getting this job is a dream come true," Petra said. "Ever since I was a little kid I have always wanted a job with an airline so I could travel."

Her job with United entitles Petra and her seeing-eye German shepherd, Gypsy, to pass privileges on commercial airlines for trips in the United States and abroad.

What does travel mean to someone who has spent her entire life in total darkness?

"I soak up all the sounds, the smells, the atmosphere."

"Oh, I can't see Central Park, but I know what it's like riding through it in a horsedrawn carriage. Everywhere the sounds and smells are different," she explained.

"I've had a number of good jobs. But every one I've ever had I got because I am blind. I always wanted a job in spite of my blindness," Petra said.

Gypsy is always by Petra's side even during her working hours. The guide dog was issued an employee's identification card similar to those issued all reservation agents. In the space for a signature is Gypsy's paw print.

Bill's bill of fare draws railroad workers

BILL, Wyo. (AP) — Ask a hungry railroad construction worker between Douglas and Gillette, Wyo., where to go for lunch, and chances are he'll recommend dining in Bill.

Bill doesn't boast a gourmet restaurant or even a truck-stop cafe. But for years this one-store, two-gas pump, three-resident town was the only stop on the 117-mile stretch between the two larger communities in Wyoming's Powder River Basin.

Today the new town of Wright competes with Bill for the lunch trade on highway 59. However, a full third of Bill's residents — Dean Munkres — says he isn't worried about a possible decrease in market share.

side Bill's mile-wide city limits.

"I've sat here a lot of years when you might count a half dozen cars," Dean confirms as he lounges against the old picnic table on the store's front porch. "Now it ain't safe to cross the highway."

Both of the senior Munkres' fellow townspeople live in trailers within Bill city limits: Lois Tranas, who runs Day Creek School for ranchers' children and teaches grades 1 through 8, lives in a trailer supplied by the school district.

The other resident is William Roberts, project manager for the Neosho Construction Co., which specializes in roads and bridges and is helping Burlington Northern construct the rail line.

As long as the growth doesn't prevent him from pursuing a lifestyle as unique as the house specialty, jerky rounds labeled "beefaloe," Dean isn't complaining.

The senior Munkres bought the unincorporated town in 1953 and promptly appointed himself mayor, fire chief, police chief, city clerk and, last but not least, powerful, received the title of postmaster from the federal government.

Educated guessers in the area bet there isn't a smaller community in the country entrusted with handling the U.S.

SHEINWOLD ON BRIDGE Get Out of the Way

By Alfred Sheinwold

One secret of a happy marriage is the ability to get out of the way at the right time. Wilmington, Delaware, expert Evelyn Levitt sometimes teaches that secret with the hand shown today.

East takes the ace and returns a spade. South loses a finesse to the queen, and back comes a spade to the king.

South leads a heart to the ace and returns a diamond for a finesse. Since there is no way to return to dummy for another finesse, South then leads the ace and another diamond.

All would be well if East had K x or K x x, but with the actual distribution South is down.

UNLUCKY "Unlucky," you say. "What's the lesson in bad luck?"

Mrs. Levitt, celebrating forty years of marriage this week, teaches her pupils to get out of the way by dropping the king of spades at the first trick. Now South can get to dummy with a spade for one diamond finesse and with the ace of hearts for a second finesse.

DAILY QUESTION Partner bids one spade, and the next player passes. You hold ♠ Q 7 6 5 2 ♥ 10 3 3 0 9 4 ♣ Q 10 3 2. What do you say?

JIMMY'S WHITE HOUSE

President's baseball is showing

By FRANK CORMIER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jimmy Carter is renowned in Plains, Ga., as a softball pitcher, but World Series time reminds us he's the first president in decades who has not attended a single big league baseball game.

Carter has not totally neglected the "national pastime," although paying obeisance to baseball hasn't always been easy.

As an example, take his tribute to the two big leaguers, Lou Brock of the St. Louis Cardinals and Carl Yastrzemski of the Boston Red Sox, who collected their 3,000th career hits this season.

Carter was quick to send off congratulatory messages to both men. Then House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill told reporters Yastrzemski would be invited to the White House to meet the president.

Since Brock's 3,000th hit had come first, the Cardinals outfielder was hurt. When a sportswriter told him he also would be invited to meet with Carter, Brock said, "I wouldn't accept it if he asked me now."

In time, hurt feelings were mended and Brock preceded Yastrzemski to the Oval Office. What's more, Brock proclaimed the visit a "real treat" and said he was "deeply honored."

Neither man talked politics with the president, although paying tribute to baseball is an enshrined part of the nation's political rites — even if massaging the egos of ballplayers, as Carter learned, can be every bit as taxing as dealing with politicians.

O'NEILL, A PASSIONATE Red Sox fan, confided recently that Yastrzemski, a Roman Catholic of Polish descent, had his own feelings hurt last year when Carter did not name him to the official U.S. delegation that went to the Vatican for the coronation of the Polish pope, John Paul II.

When the president hosted a White House reception for the pope last Saturday, Yastrzemski was there.

So they consulted people with experience — the White House press advance staff, which is accustomed to arranging overseas trips with two press planes in tow.

Mike Pohl and other advance people schooled the churchmen in, among other things, the minute-by-minute press schedules that tell reporters where and when to board buses, where and when to deposit baggage after overnight stops and other essential information.

At the White House, these schedules are known as "bibles" but the Vatican considered the term inappropriate.

Otherwise, the pope's press schedule came close to being a carbon copy, in format, of those used by the White House — right down to listing the airport arrivals and departures of "Shepherd One."

Relief's just a tiger bone away

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

PEKING (AP) — The state-run pharmaceutical houses in the People's Republic of China are fast catching up to our pill-popping Western society in packaging the ancient herbal remedies as patent medicines available in capsule and liquid form.

A modern and always crowded drug counter in the lobby of the capacious Peking Hotel does a bustling business dispensing ginseng antler pills, swallow pear nest syrup, dog skin plaster, tiger bone liquor and similar tonics and emulsions that have brought relief to billions since the Ming dynasty.

IN THE downtown business district a much larger and far more lavish People's Drug Store, unrelated to the Washington chain of the same name, carries a full line of aphrodisiacs, emetics, expectorants, "mind refreshers" and something called "Purple Gold Cubes," which according to the label is good for "sore throat, toothache, abdominal flatulence, food and drink poisoning and diarrhea."

The downtown drug emporium is always jammed with middle-aged Peking citizens who worry constantly about heart palpitations and flatulence the way the French go on about their livers and the Americans count calories.

The lobby drug store, restricted to foreigners like the hotel itself, caters in constant chaos to the hypochondria of the overseas Chinese, mostly from Hawaii, Hong Kong and Singapore and the various Chinatowns from London and New York to Augusta, Ga., and San Francisco who can outscore the home team when it comes to worrying about intestinal gas and a fluctuating pulse rate.

THE CHINESE medicine men have learned to pander to the fevers and chills of their large pill-purchasing population with catchy slogans and portentous prose that seem to owe a lot to aspirin in commercials on American TV.

"At the first sign of a cold or abdominal flatulence take anti-pestilence Kan Mao Tao," advises an ad for an ancient herbal remedy in a slick patent medicine catalogue.

Next to a full-page color photo of a satisfied-looking Tiger, the makers of Hu-Ku Chien — "Tiger Bone Medicated Liquor" — attest that it is "most effective in relieving flatulence and assuaging pains, promoting blood circulation and relieving sinews, having won great popularity from users at home and abroad."

THOUGH ALL the nostrums are government-produced by the National Native Produce and Animals By-Products Corp., China apparently has a pure food and drug law requiring full disclosure of the ingredients on the label.

The Tiger Bone liquor, for instance, which retails for 18.6 yuan (12) a fifth, discloses in the small print that it is "refined by infusing tiger bones and various kinds of precious Chinese medicinal herbs in top grade mellow sorghum wine. Ingredients: Kaquang tite, neurasthenia and premature senility" — seemed to be the most popular palliative at 3.2 yuan ($2) a jar. "Royal Jelly," advised the literature curled around the bottle, "is produced from a secretion by worker bee salivary glands fermented (sic) with honey.

Another intriguing item on sale was "Deluxe Ass Glue," made from 91 percent asses skins in a soluble solution of sugar, water, aromatic oils and radix angelicae.

"Good for debility, emaciation, vertigo, consumptive coughs, spilling of blood and nose bleeding," attested the chemists.

THE MOST expensive nostrums were sawed-off antlers of Mongolian stag at 646 Yuan ($420) a pair, guaranteed to rejuvenate any old water buffalo into a young buck. I myself passed these up in favor of Tiger Bone Limb Strengthening Pills at 1.8 yuan ($1.17) for 60 capsules — "good for weakness in the bones and tendons, lack of strength in feet and knees, vague aching in the loins."

"Now you will walk like a tiger," exclaimed Mr. Sin, the money changer in the hotel when I parked the jar on his counter.

He was right. After taking the prescribe dose of 30 pills twice a day, washed down with a couple of mau tiais, the local 120-proof dragon repellent, I was down on all fours; howling at the moon.

pollen, etc. to be specially used as victuals for queen bees. As a result a queen bee is able to survive over 5 years, on the other hand the life of the worker bee is only 2 to 4 months because of the lack of such feed. At the height of the laying season, a single queen bee is in good ability to lay 2500 to 3000 ova within 24 hours, which in total weight is much heavier than her own body. All of the royal jelly is a sort of miraculous medicine in terms of its remarkable potent power in nutrition.

Another intriguing item on sale was "Deluxe Ass Glue," made from 91 percent asses skins in a soluble solution of sugar, water, aromatic oils and radix angelicae.

"Good for debility, emaciation, vertigo, consumptive coughs, spilling of blood and nose bleeding," attested the chemists.

THE MOST expensive nostrums were sawed-off antlers of Mongolian stag at 646 Yuan ($420) a pair, guaranteed to rejuvenate any old water buffalo into a young buck.

I myself passed these up in favor of Tiger Bone Limb Strengthening Pills at 1.8 yuan ($1.17) for 60 capsules — "good for weakness in the bones and tendons, lack of strength in feet and knees, vague aching in the loins."

"Now you will walk like a tiger," exclaimed Mr. Sin, the money changer in the hotel when I parked the jar on his counter.

He was right. After taking the prescribe dose of 30 pills twice a day, washed down with a couple of mau tiais, the local 120-proof dragon repellent, I was down on all fours; howling at the moon.

Falls City Mayor John McGee displays one of the certificates presented to proud owners of the city's numerous potholes. It is a unique way of raising street-repair funds. (AP Laserphoto)

For the person who has everything...

By BRUCE BARTLEY

FALLS CITY, Ore. (AP) — A lot of people chuckled when this small town decided to "sell" its potholes to sponsors and use the proceeds to pave its pitted streets. But it got results.

Already, a dozen people are the proud "owners" of filled-in craters, and the publicity spurred county officials to pave the main street.

Like many financially pressed communities across the country, Falls City had found itself with more potholes than money to repair them. That's when the city council came up with the idea of selling the holes. After all, what better present for the person who has everything than a filled-in pothole?

C. Roy Zehnbauer, the only surviving founder of the Jantzen clothing manufacturing concern, is the most recent sponsor. He got one of the potholes for his 93rd birthday.

For $10, a civic-minded citizen — or anyone else — receives a certificate describing the location of his or her pothole, the date the city filled it and a pledge that the money was used only for that purpose.

There is also a "deluxe" model. For another $10, the city will send you a color photograph of your patched pothole, complete with your name spray-painted across it by the mayor.

Until Polk County's road crew showed up a few weeks ago, the main street was a collage of fluorescent orange paint and fresh, black blotches.

The pothole situation is under control now, at least until winter's freeze-and-thaw cycle begins another assault on streets in this northeastern Oregon town of about 850 people.

Mayor John McGee says sponsorships have brought in $160 so far. "It costs $50 for a load of asphalt, so we wait until we raise that much, get a load and go out and fill as many as we can," he said.

McGee says the pothole sales have brought another benefit, too. People in his town struggled in the foothills of the Cascades take self-governing seriously, McGee says, and as mayor he often is the focal point of criticism.

But at least they don't complain about the potholes anymore.

Davis challenges taped remark

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Industrial czar Cullen Davis challenged Friday the state version of a tape-recorded conversation in which the murder of a judge was discussed.

For the first time, the millionaire defendant denied on cross-examination telling informant David McCrory last year to "do the judge, and then his wife."

"I didn't say that," Davis, 46, told prosecutor Jack Strickland when he quoted the passage from the state-produced transcript of the Aug. 18, 1978, conversation.

Strickland did not pursue the subject at once, but attorneys defending Davis on a murder solicitation charge said the transcript was inaccurate.

"He didn't say, 'Do the judge,'" lead defense lawyer Richard "Racehorse" Haynes told newsmen. "He said, 'He'd do the judge, and then his wife...'"

The distinction is vital to the defense contention that Davis was just "making conversation" and "playing along" with McCrory and not issuing any sinister instructions.

Prosecutors, of course, interpret the phrase, "Do the judge, and then his wife," as specific orders to kill Judge Joe Eidson, who was presiding over the defendant's divorce trial in 1978.

Eidson was not harmed. Investigators seized Davis after an Aug. 20 parking lot rendezvous with McCrory in which the state contends he handed over $25,000 earmarked for a phantom killer.

The exchange occurred, prosecutors contend, after McCrory showed Davis a counterfeit snapshot depicting the "body" of Eidson crumpled in a car trunk.

Strickland also questioned Davis about a list of telephone numbers in his possession the morning of his arrest. The prosecutor sought to show the list contained the names of several persons of questionable reputation.

Earlier, Judge Gordon Gray overruled vigorous defense arguments and said he would permit the state to demonstrate to the jury that a defense witness was once certifiably insane.

He also ruled that prosecutors could ask the defendant about a jail cell conversation he had with an attorney friend shortly after his August 1978 arrest.

They intend to show that Davis did not tell his close friend Hershel Payne of a purported FBI phone call critical to the defense theory.

Davis insists he received the call 10 days before his arrest and was instructed to "play along" with McCrory to expose an extortion scheme.

The question prosecutors hope to raise in the jurors' minds is this:

If Davis actually believed he was cooperating with the FBI, why did he not tell Payne of the purported FBI phone call when the two talked one day after the arrest?

The defense argued unsuccessfully that Davis had a constitutional right to remain silent after his arrest and questions about the Payne conversation would be unfair and improper.

Midland County on SBA disaster list

WASHINGTON, D.C. — U.S. Rep. Kent Hance of Lubbock announced Friday that 16 counties in his 19th Congressional District, including Midland County, have been officially designated as disaster areas by the Small Business Administration.

Hance said counties other than Midland included in the designation are Castro, Hockley, Hale, Martin, Lamb, Dawson, Parmer, Gaines, Cochran, Yoakum, Deaf Smith, Bailey, Terry, Lubbock and Andrews.

Declaration of the disaster counties follows similar action a few weeks ago by the Farmers Home Administration (FmHA). The declaration will allow farmers to seek low-interest loans to help offset damage done by weather-created natural disasters during July and August.

One hailstorm in late August in Hance's district caused more than $200 million in crop damage.

"I am extremely pleased to see the SBA making official this disaster status," Hance said. "There is no way to make up for the damage done to crops and the economic loss to our area."

"However, the SBA disaster status could make the difference in some farmers staying in business."

Field offices for the SBA emergency loan applications will be set up soon in Dimmitt, Brownfield, Levelland, Littlefield and Muleshoe in addition to regular offices. All eligible farmers should apply at one of these offices by April 10, 1980, for physical damage and by July 10, 1980, for economic injury, according to the SBA.

Former actress named Army aide

WASHINGTON (AP) — Army Secretary Clifford L. Alexander Jr. on Friday named one-time child movie star Margaret O'Brien Thorsen as his unpaid Civilian Aide for Southern California.

The announcement said Mrs. Thorsen "will interpret and relate Army policies to the citizens of Southern California and will keep Secretary Alexander advised as to their opinions on matters of interest to the Army."

She lives in Thousand Oaks, Calif.

Bishop, family still won't allow appeal

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — Convicted killer Jesse Bishop and his family remained adamant Friday in their decision to not fight his execution, scheduled in just 10 days, while religious groups planned a vigil in protest of his sentence.

While a family spokesman said the family didn't want a "circus," negotiations continued with two Los Angeles area film-makers who want to videotape Bishop before his Oct. 22 execution so that an actor can learn his mannerisms.

Unwanted defenders, blocked by the U.S. Supreme Court from appealing for Bishop even though he opposed their help, have not made any other appeals. But prosecutors said they weren't discounting the possibility of a last-minute move to stop the gas chamber execution.

Bishop's execution is scheduled for Oct. 22, with prison officials saying cyanide pellets will be dropped between midnight and 2 a.m. in the gas chamber not used since 1961.

Prison officials said preparations for the execution are proceeding "on schedule." The chamber will be tested next week to make sure there are no leaks and that all equipment is in working order.

Episcopal Bishop Westley Frensdorf, president of the Nevada Council of Churches, met with Eric Moon of the American Friends Committee to begin planning a vigil starting Oct. 21 and running until Bishop's death.

Frensdorf said he didn't know how many persons would attend the vigil, but "it'll be a quiet, all-night watch."

Bishop, from the East Los Angeles area, has remained silent since his resentencing last week for the gunshot slaying of David Ballard, a Baltimore, Md., newlywed, during a December 1977 casino holdup in Las Vegas.

McInnis suit decided; Judge schedules punishment hearing

EDINBURG, Texas (AP) — A civil suit by the State Bar of Texas against Hidalgo County District Attorney Oscar McInnis was decided in favor of the Bar Friday.

The state jury's vote was unanimous on four counts charging McInnis lied to a federal grand jury. On the first charge, that McInnis solicited a former county jail prisoner to murder a McAllen man, the vote was 11-1.

Actual punishment will be decided by State District Judge Joe Evins, who set a hearing for Thursday on that phase of the trial. The Bar is seeking revocation of McInnis' law license.

Attorneys for McInnis said they would appeal, regardless of what punishment Evins decided.

Defense lawyer Jack Skages said the appeal "would be based on at least 12 or 14 separate items that we would say were errors in the conduct of the case."

He added the appeal would cite the admission of nine FBI tape recorded conversations between McInnis and Daniel Rodriguez, the inmate McInnis allegedly asked to murder Noe Villanueva. Villanueva is the former husband of Patricia Parada, a friend of McInnis.

"Without the tapes, there would never have been a case," Skages said. "The case would have ended on the day Daniel Rodriguez went into the sheriff's office."

McInnis contends he was a victim of a plot to oust him from office concocted by Sheriff Brig Marmolejo.

At a press conference after the verdict, McInnis said he would run for Hidalgo County sheriff if removed from office by Evins. Reporters asked him why. "Why not? This county needs a sheriff," he responded. The last time McInnis had an opponent for district attorney, his opponent was Evins. Skages said he hoped McInnis would be reprimanded, not disbarred.

But Jerry Zunker, the Bar's general counsel, said a reprimand "would be inappropriate in view of the jury's answer to the issues. It's up to the discretion of the trial court."

Shroud's validity studied

LOS ALAMOS, N.M. (AP) — Scientists studying the Shroud of Turin said Friday that their tests do not show that the cloth is a hoax. But they said their findings do not establish the validity of the cloth — believed by some to be the 2,000-year-old burial cloth of Christ.

They say they cannot prove that the image on the cloth was made by a real body.

"We can show mathematically the image was formed by a body shape underneath the cloth, but whether it was a real body or not is unknown," said Dr. John Jackson of the U.S. Air Force Academy.

Scientists are at the Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory this weekend to meet privately to pool and organize their findings on the shroud. The Shroud of Turin Research Project members conducted tests last year in Turin, Italy, where the 14-foot-long shroud has been kept in a Roman Catholic chapel for the past 400 years.

Scientists have ruled out the possibility that the image on the shroud was created by dyes or paint. And while the researchers here say they don't know if the burgundy-colored stain was caused by blood, one scientist said it was possible.

Diane Soran, a chemist at LASL, said that if the shroud had been blood-stained, the red stain from the hemoglobin in the blood cells could last for 2,000 years.

"Every way we can think of for hoaxing it that would be credible, we can't prove," Dr. Raymond Rogers, a LASL chemist, said at a news conference.

And Dr. Robert Dinegar, also a LASL chemist, said newly developed carbon dating could help establish the age of the shroud — something the scientists said they have not been able to do.

Dinegar said the scientists have asked for permission to conduct tests that would allow the dating of the shroud with only a few threads.

He cautioned that even if the image on the cloth were made by a body, "there is no way of identifying who the body is."

He said earlier that he and his colleagues on the research team approached the testing of the shroud "from a strictly scientific standpoint."

"We are leaving the interpretation of data to others," he said.

The shroud shows the front and back images of a crucified man, his elbows flexed and his hands crossed, with the imprints of nails through the wrists and feet and the right side of the chest pierced. The bearded face of the man shows signs of bruises.

But the process that formed the image, which is similar to that of a photograph negative, has not been determined.

Researchers say the image was not painted, because it is not absorbed into the fibers of the cloth, and was not produced by ordinary heat, because such a process would have scorched the fibers.

The members of the privately financed project, which includes more than 40 scientists, were trying to determine the physical properties and chemical makeup of the shroud linen.

Previous examinations failed to determine what caused the 14-by-3-foot image on the linen. Religious authorities have barred ultraviolet, carbon and X-ray tests on grounds such tests could damage the delicate fabric.

Funds begun for couple whose home burned

Two funds have been started for Mr. and Mrs. Felix Evans, the Midland couple whose home was destroyed Tuesday in a fire.

Drilco, where Evans has been employed for about 13 years, is accepting funds for the couple, according to a company spokesman.

"He (Evans) was going to retire in January, but he said he won't be able to now," the spokesman said.

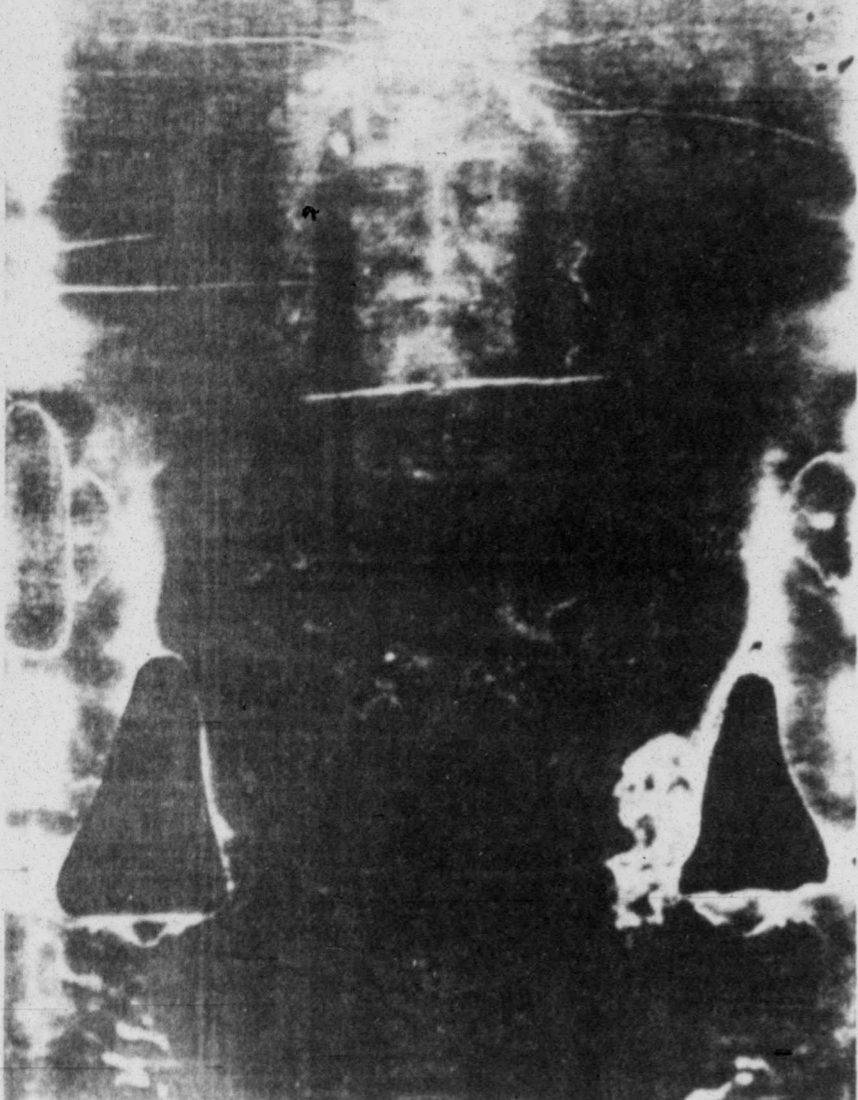

Mrs. Evans reportedly is living with her sister while Evans is staying at the homesite in camping equipment contributed by friends.

Anyone wishing to donate to that fund should call Drilco at 683-5431, extension 244.

A second fund was started Friday by friends of Mrs. Evans.

That fund, at Commercial Bank & Trust Co., was opened in the name of Lula Mae Evans, a spokeswoman said.

Anyone wishing to contribute to that fund should contact Commercial Bank & Trust Co.

Scientists in Los Alamos, N.M., this weekend are attempting to determine the authenticity of the Shroud of Turin. Some believe it to be the burial cloth of Christ, whose image they say appears miraculously on its fibers. (AP Laserphoto)

Symbol of YESTERDAY

What varied stories this ancient span could reveal if only it were capable — exciting tales of the Civil War of enchanting lovers' trysts beneath its tall arched roof. And, gloomy stories, too, like the despondent old man who snuffed out his life by plunging from its edge into the swift waters of the creek below.

Yes, this weatherbeaten structure has survived the years. It has endured. And, God willing, it will stand for perhaps another generation — a unique symbol of yesterday.

The Church and this sturdy bridge have a great deal in common. The Church has withstood the test of time because nothing has yet been discovered to supplant the profound peace and serenity it supplies. The Church will endure for all time — after the picturesque old covered bridge is only a memory.

Russian clergy seem to be eager to please atheistic government

Father Valentine, a Russian monk, walks in front of the All Sorrows Church in Suzdal, U.S.S.R., recently. The monk's congregation consists of a small flock of little old ladies. (AP Laserphoto)

SUZDAL, U.S.S.R. (AP) — "This is our time machine," the guide said, gesturing around the inside of the bus speeding east from Moscow's skyscrapers toward this 12th century museum of Russian Orthodoxy.

Father Valentine, a Russian monk, was waiting for the bus. He escorted his guests into a dining room in the All Sorrows Church, where religious services no longer take place but the table groaned with specimens of old Russian cooking.

Iced bottles of vodka appeared. Course after course disappeared only to be replaced by another. Shots of vodka, drunk in toasts, lubricated the palate.

The monk Valentine, with the girth of a Soviet weight-lifter, did all the cooking. He had trained as a chef before going to the seminary. He ate only salads, however, because he was fasting.

The next day was a high holy day, the Assumption of Mary, and the Soviet Council of Religious Affairs had arranged for Western reporters to visit the ancient Russian cities of Suzdal and nearby Vladimir to view the ceremonies and to show skeptical Westerners there really is freedom of religion in Russia.

The monk Valentine lives in a new, detached and privately owned house resplendent with rich oriental rugs, cabinets full of crystal and a pantry of food that many Russians would seldom have the chance or money to buy.

RELIGION

He ministers to a small flock of little old ladies, whose brightly colored headscarves and black coats made them look like a patchwork quilt as they stood jammed shoulder to shoulder in a small nearby church for a service on the eve of the Assumption.

Such a congregation could scarcely support the monk's lifestyle, and one of the Council of Religious Affairs officials allowed that Father Valentine had other sources of wealth. Just what they were was left unclear.

In general, the Russian clergymen seemed, too, to be eager to please Russia's avowedly atheistic government.

Orthodoxy was the official religion of Russia before the 1917 revolution. When the czar fell, Lenin carefully separated the church from his government and Soviet education.

A system of anti-religious propaganda was put in place. Later the Council of Religious Affairs was set up as the official go-between that purportedly sees to it that the church does not break the law and that the government does not infringe upon religious rights.

When the new Soviet constitution was adopted on Oct. 10, 1977, Article 52 said, "Citizens of the U.S.S.R. are guaranteed freedom of conscience, that is, the right to profess or not to profess any religion."

The new constitution also changed the theme of propaganda regarding religion. It no longer is called anti-religious. It, instead, is pro-atheistic. Soviet regulations restrict most church proselytizing.

There are 11,500 Russian Orthodox churches still operating in the Soviet Union. Ten times that number are estimated to have served the country before 1917.

On the day of the Assumption festival, a day made more special because it marked the first service in five years in the ornate 12th century Assumption Cathedral in Vladimir, the archbishop of Vladimir directed the service, attended by more old ladies.

There was only an occasional man. A small boy was being directed through the crowd by one old lady who held the tyke by the ear.

The cathedral, constructed between 1158 and 1160, has been undergoing restoration for the past five years. The archbishop said the Moscow patriarchate contributed $1.8 million to the project.

After the service marking the Virgin Mary's Assumption, reporters were invited to the archbishop's house for a feast.

There was more course after-course gorging. The lubricant this time was cognac.

The archbishop, a gracious man who shifted effortlessly from Russian to English to German, told reporters things are much better now than in the czar's time despite the church's ties to government then.

"We live in a free society," he said. "People are free to choose their faith."

The men from the Council of Religious Affairs nodded approvingly.

Later, a reporter asked the Soviet officials whether the church wouldn't simply die along with the old ladies.

The official smiled and shook his head. "Believers seem to emerge around age 35 or 40," he said. "There will always be a new crop."

RELIGION IN THE NEWS

Hare Krishna solicitations OK'd

DALLAS (AP) — For the second time in a year, the Hare Krishna religious sect has won court approval to solicit donations at the State Fair of Texas.

U.S. District Judge Patrick Higginbotham issued a preliminary injunction Tuesday ordering officials to admit members of the group to the fair. Since the fair opened Friday, the group had been soliciting outside the fair's gates.

The sect won the right a year ago after a protracted dispute with fair officials, who contended the Krishnas were harassing fair visitors and obtaining donations through deceptive practices.

After Higginbotham's ruling last year that fair officials could not exclude the Krishna solicitors or restrict them to booths, a message was recorded and played through "Big Tex" reminding fair visitors they were not obligated to give donations.

Higginbotham said evidence indicates the group's solicitations are close to being "pure commercialism" and weakens the sect's arguments they are practicing freedom of religion.

They wear wigs to cover their shaved heads and often distribute a flower, a small flag or a Big Tex button for which they seek a donation without offering any religious conversation, the judge added. But he said the group's freedom-of-religion argument still has enough substance to force a ruling in its favor.

Four-day prayer seminar slated

The Rev. Don Miller of Fort Worth will lead a four-day prayer seminar next week at Midland's Wilshire Park Baptist Church, 801 S. Bentwood St.

The seminar will begin Sunday and continue through Wednesday, said the Rev. John Riggs, pastor of Wilshire Park Church.

Sunday events are scheduled for 11 a.m. and 6 p.m., Riggs said. The seminar will continue with meetings at 7 p.m. on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

The seminar sessions will be open to all interested persons in the community. Rev. Riggs urged participants to bring their Bibles with them.

Miller, the seminar leader, is a veteran of World War II and a former actor and radio announcer.

He studied at Baylor University in Waco and at Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary, Fort Worth. He has spent the last 30 years as a pastor and evangelist as well as a conference and seminar leader.

Ingram featured revival speaker

Dr. Howard Ingram of Roswell, N.M., will be the featured speaker at revival services next week at Kelyview Heights Baptist Church.

The evangelistic emphasis will begin Sunday and continue through Tuesday, said the Rev. Frank Johnson, host pastor. Johnson announced that Sunday services will begin at 10 a.m. and 6:30 p.m., while services Monday and Tuesday will begin at 7:30 p.m. The public is invited to attend any of the services, or all of them.

The choirs of Kelyview Heights Church will be singing in each service.

Ingram is pastor of Tabernacle Baptist Church in Roswell.

Kelyview Heights Church is located west of North Big Spring street, just north of Scharbauer Drive.

Area Lutherans sponsor program

Lutheran churches in the Permian Basin area will sponsor the presentation of a special television program at 4:30 p.m. Sunday.

The program to be carried over KMD-TV, Channel 2, is the third in a series titled "We're No. 1?"

The upcoming program, titled "We're No. 1? ... Racial Relationships," will feature TV actress Esther Rolle, who is well-remembered for her role of Florida in TV comedy series, "Good Times."

The "We're No. 1?" series is produced by the American Lutheran Church. The series has been planned and is being presented as a stimulant to community study, dialogue and action regarding critical issues facing the nation and its citizens.

Church accused of matching pastors, congregations on race

OVERLAND PARK, Kan. (AP) — A meeting of the United Methodist Commission on Religion and Race has accused the church of a "common practice of matching pastors and congregations on the basis of race," and called for steps to overcome it.

The Rev. Woodie W. White, the commission's executive secretary, said the church violates its own laws on ministerial appointments by such practices, and restricts its recruitment of ministerial leadership.

New Midland congregation merger of two former churches

A service of organization and installation at 7:30 p.m. Sunday will celebrate the beginning of the ministry and life of a new Midland congregation, Grace Presbyterian Church.

The new church is a merger of the Covenant and Christ Presbyterian churches. Grace Presbyterian will be a joining of churches from two Presbyterian "branches" or denominations — the Presbyterian Church in the U.S. and the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A.

Grace will thus be a "union" congregation, with membership from both denominations.

Organizing pastors for Grace Church will be the Rev. Gordon Garlington III, formerly pastor of Covenant Church, and the Rev. Millard Murphy, formerly the interim pastor of Christ Presbyterian Church.

The Sunday evening service will be under the direction of ecclesiastical commissions representing the P.C.U.S. and U.P.C.U.S.A. and respective presbyteries of Tres Rios.

The U.P.C.U.S.A. commission is chaired by Dr. Lloyd DeLong, pastor of First Presbyterian Church of Monahans. Other ministers on the commission are the Rev. Ted Peck, pastor of the Marfa and Fort Davis Presbyterian churches, and the Rev. Rodney Peacock, pastor of the Community Church of Kermit.

Ruling Elder members of the commission are Marge Reagan of Monahans and Jack Walters, a member of the new Grace Presbyterian Church.

Heading the commission for the P.C.U.S. Presbytery is Dr. William K. Hedrick, pastor of Midland's Trinity Presbyterian Church. He is joined by Dr. Robert B. Smith, senior minister of First Presbyterian Church of Midland; the Rev. William F. Henning Jr., of First Presbyterian Church at Big Spring, and the Rev. Charles J. Hollingsworth, executive presbyter of the Presbytery of Tres Rios.

The worship and education activities of Grace Church will be housed in the former Christ Church at 2801 N. Garfield St. The weekly schedule will include Sunday school at 9:30 a.m., with the Sunday worship service beginning at 11 a.m.

Spokesmen said one of the important aspects of the new church's ministry and outreach to the community will be the child care services provided by Grace Church. The Covenant Church's Day Care Center will continue to operate at the Covenant location at 5200 W. Illinois Ave. Midland Student Care Inc., will operate at the Garfield Street address. Fellowship events will be at the Covenant location.

First Presbyterian Church of Midland, and Richard Prentice of the new Grace Church.

The Sunday evening service of worship will include a ceremony formally constituting the new church, the installation of officers, and special music presented by the Grace Church choir under direction of Vicki Guinan.

Grace Presbyterian Church will be the first union Presbyterian church to be established in Midland. The city's other Presbyterian churches, First and Trinity, are units of the P.C.U.S. denomination.

Grace Church's predecessor congregations, were both organized in 1960. Christ Presbyterian Church came into being in May, 1960, with the Rev. Ernest D. Dimaline as pastor, and Covenant Church was established in June of that year, with the Rev. Warren L. Moody as the first minister.

The worship and education activities of Grace Church will be housed in the former Christ Church at 2801 N. Garfield St. The weekly schedule will include Sunday school at 9:30 a.m., with the Sunday worship service beginning at 11 a.m.

Worship, faith classes scheduled

The Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity, 1412 W. Illinois Ave., is preparing to launch a series of special classes for persons wishing to know more about the faith and worship practices of the Episcopal denomination.

The inquirers' series will begin on Oct. 24 in the parish hall.

The classes will be led by the Rev. Sam B. Hulsey, rector of the parish, assisted by the Rev. Derk Manley, assistant rector; Mrs. Norma Marrs, director of Christian education, and the Rev. Marshall Mason.

The classes will be open to Midland newcomers as well as to anyone wishing to learn more about the life and work of the Episcopal Church.

Additional information on the class series may be obtained from the parish office, 683-4207.

Churches may 'dance together,' says official

NEW YORK (AP) — "The day is coming near when we're going to dance together," a Roman Catholic ecumenical official told a mostly Lutheran gathering.

The Rev. John Hotchkin, executive director of the Catholic Bishops' Commission on Ecumenical and Interreligious Affairs, reviewing 15 years of Lutheran-Catholic dialogue and agreements, said a new phase may be local exchanges among congregations and "the surprises that may bring."

He cited the possibility that Roman Catholicism may come to consider Lutheranism a "sister church" operating with it in a new framework of mutual correction and support, with values and insights of both traditions preserved.

This congregation wants you to know that we oppose all that is ungodly and demoralizing to the people of our community, especially our youth.

Therefore WE VIGOROUSLY PROTEST allowing the KISS rock group to USE OUR (the taxpayers) CHAPARRAL CENTER at Midland College. This group is well known as a vulgar, blasphemous, satanic group.

Who could more suitable than priest?

By JOEL STASHENKO

SCHENECTADY, N.Y. (AP) — Accidents are rare for members of "The Flying Padres," but if one of the piloting priests does have trouble at 7,500 feet, they're probably still the best ones to come in on a wing and a prayer.

"The Flying Padres" is the pet name given the National Association of Pilot Priests, a group of about 120 Roman Catholic priests who double as aviators. The organization recently held its 16th annual meeting at an airport here, with a Rensselaer priest, the Rev. Victor Schoenberger, the host.

The group was formed in 1964 in response to an ad in an aviation magazine by the Rev. Henry Haacke of Covington, Ky. Since then, the organization has become popular with priests who fly as a hobby, and those who need the airplane as part of their lives.

One of the group's members, Bishop Leo New Wewah, uses his small airplane to reach parishioners in remote areas of New Guinea.

Another member from New Mexico found it easier to visit his five remote missions by plane instead of automobile. So he built five small airstrips.

Democratic bigwigs to join Fort Worth's celebration tonight honoring Jim Wright

By SOLL SUSSMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jim Wright likes to recall the one vote that won his election by secret ballot as House majority leader in 1976.

"The vote was 148 to 147," the Fort Worth Democrat said in an interview at his Capitol office. "There are about 227 of them who have come and said how happy they were that their vote made the difference."

But he is quick to add to his story developed through innumerable appearances on the political banquet circuit, "Of course, that's a joke."

Wright's increasing clout since that tight victory will be one of the causes for celebration tonight in Fort Worth at an appreciation dinner to mark 25 years in Congress.

More than 5,000 tickets have been sold at a $25 ticket price determined by the theme.

"They had one for me after about 10 years; they had one after 15 years; and they had one after 20 years," Wright explained. "And now they're having this."

The guest list promises to make the gathering at the Tarrant County Convention Center one of the more stellar Texas attractions of recent years.

Three Cabinet members, White House aide Sarah Weddington, House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill and a good part of the Texas congressional delegation including Sen. Lloyd Bentsen have said they planned to attend.

President Carter is sending a message on film.

Wright, speaking softly and slowly, recalled that he never planned to spend a long enough time in the House to gain a top leadership position.

"I never supposed that I would have the patience," he said.

Wright was a member of the Texas Legislature when he was 23, became mayor of Weatherford at 26 and began his House tenure at the age of 33.

The House was then under the rule of the late Sam Rayburn of Texas.

"He was a splendid man who was kindly," Wright said. "He had a reverence for the spoken word; he had no tolerance at all for someone who would break his word."

Wright said the House structure has changed considerably since the days when Rayburn could steer legislation by consulting about a dozen committee leaders.

The majority leader traditionally moves on to become the speaker of the House, but Wright said he would not feel deprived if for some reason he did not succeed O'Neill.

"I don't have any hard and fast plans," he said. "That (becoming speaker) is the natural apex of one's ambition in the House."

Wright said he has no regrets about spending almost his entire adult life in public office.

"I wouldn't trade careers if I had the option. There is nothing else that can excite me or fulfill me as this has done," he said. "Of course, I'd do some things differently."

Wright said he finds no tension between the demands of a national leadership position and the requirements of his Tarrant County district.

Some measurements found his vote moved from the conservative side closer to the Democratic mainstream after his election as majority leader.

Rep. Jack Hightower, D-Texas, said Wright's upward movement in the House leadership removed fears that the state's position would be devastated by the departure of Rayburn and the late President Lyndon B. Johnson.

"We appreciate very much the caliber of leadership that Jim Wright has exhibited as majority leader," Hightower said. "The power base of our Texas delegation has been greatly enhanced."

Employee productivity restored quickly

NEW YORK (AP) — Employee productivity is restored sooner after a transfer if the corporation assists the transferee and his family throughout the relocation process, according to a survey of relocation management professionals who attended a series of seminars sponsored by Merrill Lynch Relocation Management, Inc.

About 70 percent of 250 respondents said corporate-assisted moves resulted in increased employee productivity at the new job. If a company pays more attention to the needs of the employee and his family, they said, the employee can devote more time to his job, rather than worrying about the details of the move.

The respondents, who represented more than 200 major U.S. corporations, indicated that companies can best help their employees by providing orientation or counseling, family follow-up, additional benefits incentives, and home-finding assistance in the new location.

Magnavox TV Ad Claim Survives Challenge

The following article appeared in the May 1979 issue of AudioVideo International magazine:

Advertising claims by the Magnavox Electronics Co. for its Computer Color 330 receiver were recently investigated by the National Advertising Division of the Council of Better Business Bureaus. The firm substantiated its claim: A 25% sharper, crisper, clearer, color picture than ever before.

The advertiser informed NAD that a new high-resolution filter to increase overall bandwidth had been developed for its 1979 19-inch and 25-inch chassis. This new circuit design, the company stated, extends luminance channel bandwidth beyond former industry capability, to contribute to increased resolution or picture detail.

In support of this claim, Magnavox's research department conducted comparative performance testing of the Computer Color 330 chassis with eight competing receivers to measure horizontal resolution on the reproduction of a standard test chart from a TV station. Tests for video sweep modulation frequency were also made of each receiver. According to technical references submitted, the horizontal resolution and the extent of the video-amplitude response of a TV receiver are the major determining factors in evaluating the sharpness of a television picture. The comparative test results showed the Magnavox 330 resolved a total number of lines that was in excess of 25% more than those of the nearest competitive receiver. The findings also indicated Magnavox had a greater video-amplitude response than the competitive units.

An independent research organization conducted additional research on six leading 25-inch console receivers. These results also confirmed that the Magnavox 330 chassis had a 25% better horizontal picture resolution than the competitive sets tested.

Margaret Murdock still ringing those bells at 85

By DAVID LARSEN
The Los Angeles Times

BERKELEY, Calif. — Margaret Murdock is the one for whom the bells toll.

Now 85, she has put in an appearance in the Campanile high atop the University of California Berkeley campus several times a week for 56 years, working the levers that send notes clanging out over the hills.

The white-haired Miss Murdock has free rein on what to play, and as she sits inside a glass booth beneath the 48 bells, she sometimes tailors her choice to current conditions.

"If the weather happens to be nice, I might select 'Oh, What a Beautiful Morning,'" she said. "One-time when the groundskeepers were on strike, I played 'Work, For the Night Is Coming.'"

To make the clappers smack the bronze instruments, the wispy Miss Murdock sits before a console and strikes wooden levers, mostly with her tiny fists, as her feet manipulate an array of foot pedals.

The levers are attached to wires that run up to the clappers. The smallest bell weighs 28 pounds and the largest 4,118 pounds.

"My hands do get sore at times," she said. "Some of the carillonners wear leather gloves, but I don't."

This year, by her admission, has been a case of an old dog learning new tricks.

Until recently, there were only 12 bells, but earlier this year a gift from the class of 1928 made possible the installation of 36 more.

The dozen bells in the tower had mounted technically only to a chime. Chimes have from 10 to 21 bells, and tunes can be played only one note at a time. On carillons, which the campus now has, chords can be played and the musical selections can be more-complex.

"There's so much new I've had to learn," Miss Murdock said. "Under the old arrangement I stood up and kind of pressed the levers. Now I'm seated and it's like being at an organ."

But the challenge hasn't stopped her from showing up at 7:50 a.m. on Thursday and Fridays, and again at noon Fridays, to give her 10-minute concerts. Other people play on other days.

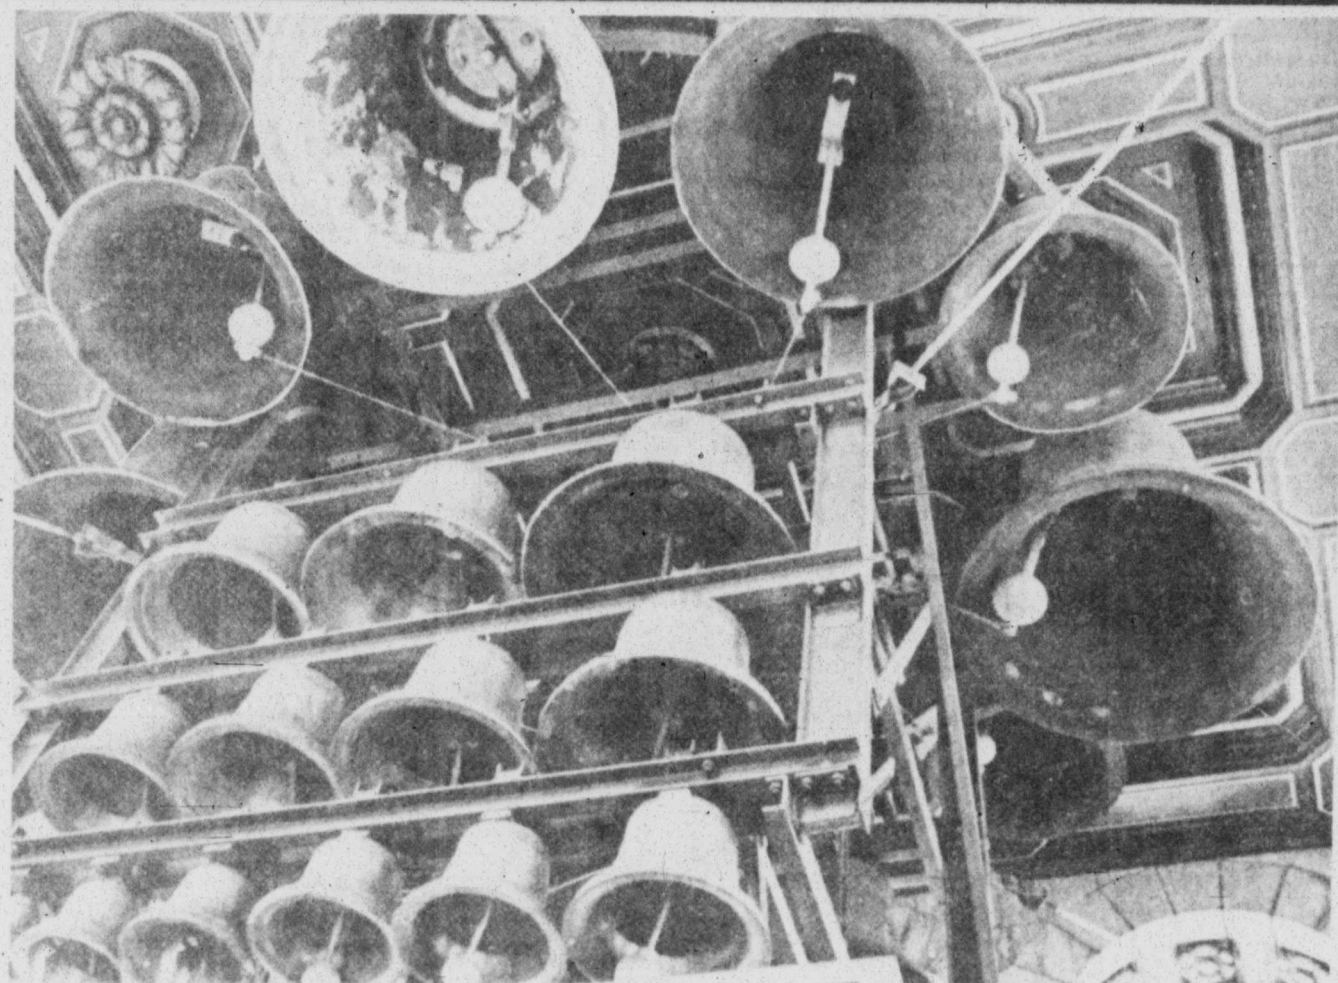

"I've always been an assistant," she said, stepping out of the elevator that takes her most of the way up the 307-foot landmark.

She gingerly made her way up three flights of concrete stairs to the booth below the bells. There she took her place, a musician under glass.

"I don't really think of it as music," she said. "Just amusing. In fact, when these were first installed in 1917 they were called Hell's Bells."

It was a year later that she received her bachelor's degree in economics on the campus. After getting a master's degree in education, she worked as a credentials counselor until retirement 20 years ago.

While getting her advanced degree in 1923, she was introduced to the bells, and her life is so involved with the devices that on Sundays, she is a bell ringer at a nearby church.

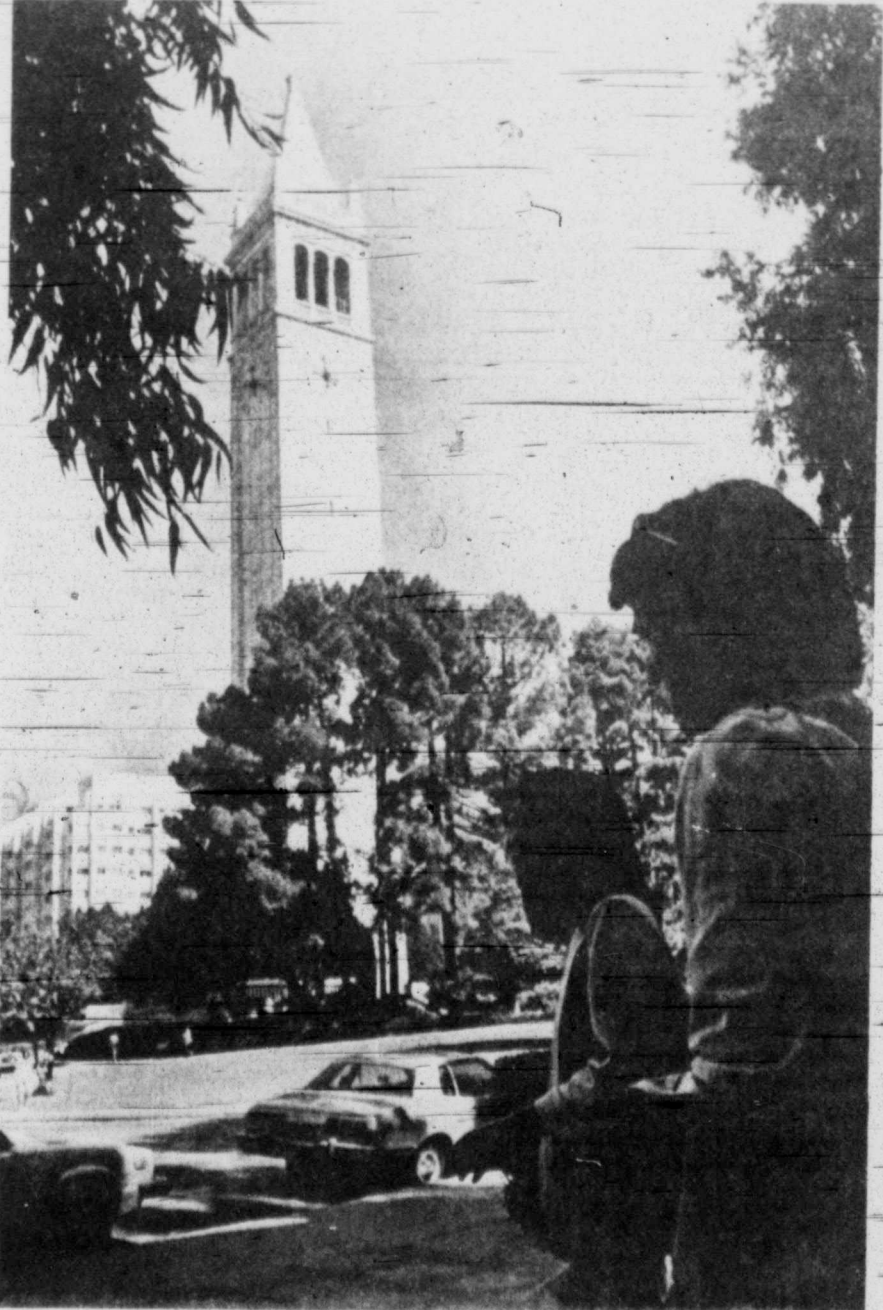

This view from below shows some of the 48 bells of the carillon in the lofty recesses of the Campanile of the University of California, Berkeley. (Los Angeles Times Photos by David Larsen)

DESIGN DRAFTING TRAINEES

The Ortloff Corporation's Midland Division will soon begin a training program geared toward preparing an individual for a satisfying and rewarding technical career in the field of process piping design drafting. If you are a highly motivated individual seeking and chance to embark upon a technical career, or if you are now in a dead end job which does not offer you a future or a challenge, now is the time to take advantage of an opportunity to "earn as you learn" in this technical career field entry level program.

Successful candidates for this training program will be a high school graduate who has good grades in math and preferably have taken trigonometry. Applicants must successfully complete a design drafting aptitude test in order to qualify for this program. It is preferred, though not mandatory, that applicants will have completed drafting courses in either high school or vocational training institutions. Basic prior drafting work experience would be a definite plus.

To arrange a personal interview, qualified candidates should contact Jane Tedford or Milt Williamson, Monday through Friday, 9 AM to noon at 697-4111.

Midland's Jeff Robnett (33) sweeps end on way to 102-yard night in victory over Big Spring in upper photo and in lower action, Robnett takes hand off from quarterback Michael Feldt (12), who gained 111 yards in Pack's 31-0 win over Big Spring. (Photos by Brian Hendershot)

Potent Pack rolls over Big Spring, 31-0

By BOB DILLON Sports Writer

What a difference a week makes. Coach Dennie Hays' Midland Bulldogs rolled past the Big Spring Steers, 31-0 here Friday night in a District 5-4A football game in Memorial Stadium.

Leading the potent attack were quarterback Michael Feldt and fullback Jeff Robnett who both rushed for more than 100 yards each as the Purple Pack was back on the winning track again and also into the 5-4A race.

It was a big victory for Midland after last week's disappointing loss to Odessa Permian and while the offense was racking up 31 points, the Bulldog defense was tough as nails, giving up only 29 yards total offense to the Steers. Midland held Big Spring to 22 yards rushing and seven passing and only three first downs.

BIG SPRING had two first downs in the first half and one in the second and that came with 52 seconds left in the game with Bulldog substitutes on the defensive unit.

Feldt, a 197-pound junior, rushed for 111 yards in 16 carries and scored one touchdown while Robnett, a 175-pound senior, picked up 102 yards in 14 cracks into the Steer line. It was Robnett's second straight 102-yard output in district play and gives Hays' eleven a 4-1 season record and 1-1 league mark. Big Spring, meanwhile, is now 1-4 and 0-2.

Midland exploded for 14 first period scores and then breezed the rest of the way over the game Steers who just couldn't stop the Pack.

The Bulldogs kicked off to Big Spring and held and then marched 55 yards in nine plays with junior fullback Jerry Zachery slicing off tackle from seven yards out for the score. Bobby Stovall boomed through the extra point for a 7-0 lead with 6:47 left in the first period.

THE BULLDOGS came right back after holding the Steers at bay and went 44 yards in seven plays with Feldt racing 19 yards on a keeper for the score. His 13-yard pass to split end Pat Hickey was the gainer that set up the score. Stovall's extra point made it 14-0 with 2:31 left in the initial period.

Midland took up where it left off in the first period by going 44 yards again in eight plays to increase its lead to 20-0—Feldt dialed Robnett's number on an 18-yard screen pass to the Steer 31 and hit Bill Young for eight more yards to the Big Spring 23. Robnett took a quick pitch from Feldt and scampered 14 yards for the TD and Stovall's kick was true for a 21-0 advantage with 8:13 left in the first half.

Stovall misfired on a 45-yard field goal attempt late in the second period after a drive stalled at the Steer 38 and Hickey picked off a David Coffey pass at the Steer 39 right before the half and then Robnett fumbled at the Big Spring 14 to turn the Pack away from another score right before intermission.

IT WAS a frustrating third period for Midland when the Pack drove all the way from its own 20 to the Steer 12 only to come up two yards short, but on the next possession, Midland only had to drive 29 yards in eight plays to score again, this time with Robnett skipping the final 10 yards for his second TD of the night. Stovall's kick made it 28-0 with 2:10 left in the third period.

Menard romps. MENARD — Rankin's Red Devils were thumped here Friday night 26-19 by Menard in a Class A football game.

Rankin jumped to a 13-0 advantage as quarterback Brant Myers hit Dennis Black with a 66-yard scoring strike and Johnny Armendarez with a 5-yard pass.

But before half, Menard managed a score as Saucedo plunged over from the 1-yard line and an extra point pass was successful.

It was all Menard in the second half as they scored three times to increase their record to 3-2.

Rankin made a last ditch run but their lone fourth quarter touchdown wasn't enough to keep from dropping to 3-2.

Statistics for Menard vs Rankin. Rankin: 10 First Downs, 10 Yards Rushing, 83 Yards Passing, 177 Total Offense, 83 Passes Completed, 177 Yards Passing, 177 Passes Int. By, 1 Punt, 1 Fumble Lost, 1 Penalties-Yds. Menard: 16 First Downs, 222 Yards Rushing, 61 Yards Passing, 95 Total Offense, 95 Passes Completed, 428 Yards Passing, 428 Passes Int. By, 1 Punt, 2 Fumbles Lost, 2 Penalties-Yds.

Midland started a drive at the offset of the final period, going from the Steer 49 to the 17 where Stovall booted a 27-yard field goal and a 31-0 lead with 7:23 left in the contest.

With Doug McLean at quarterback and Mark Hewitt running at the fullback slot, the Pack drove from the Steer 40 to the eight where McLean was thrown for a two-yard loss and the visitors took over at their own eight.

Rick Ankerholz, Jerry Dedrick, Paul Cox, Zachery, Steve Mills and the entire Bulldog defense stood out. Zachery and Hickey had one pass interception each.

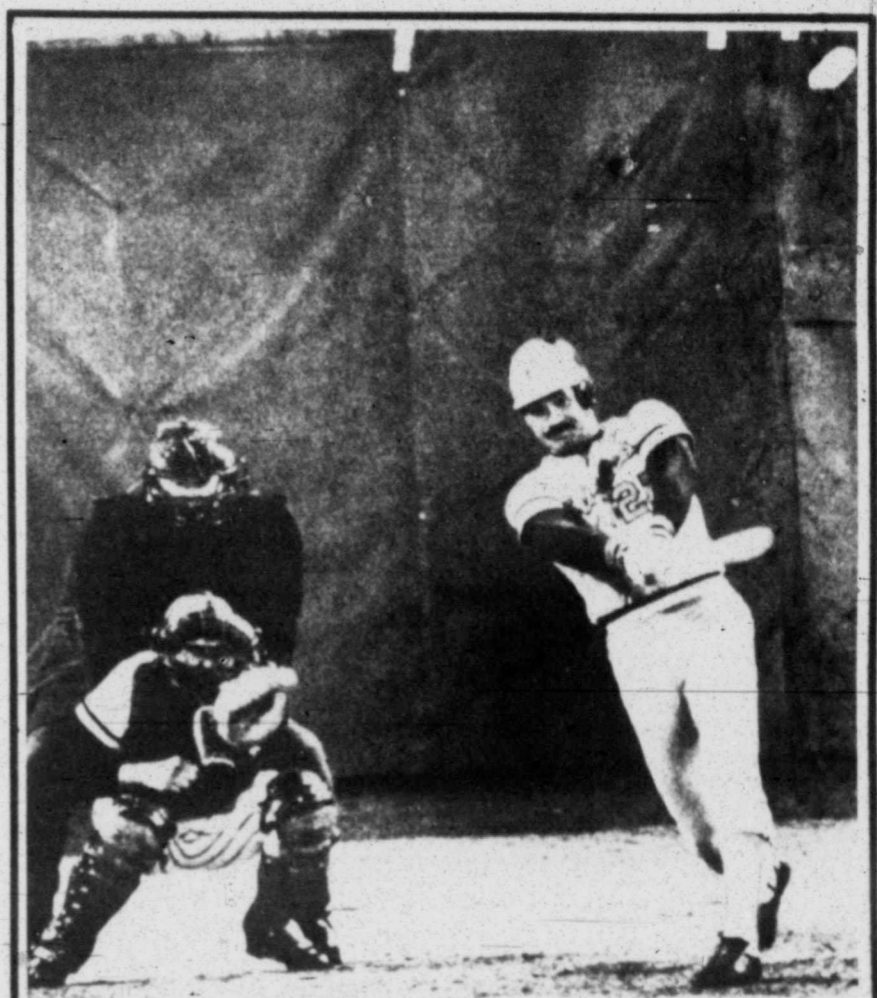

Midland travels to Abilene next week to take on the Eagles in Abilene while Big Spring faces Odessa Permian.

Table with 3 columns: Team, Statistic, Value. Rows include First Downs, Yards Rushing, Yards Passing, Total Offense, Passes Completed, Passes Int. By, Fumbles Lost, Punt Avg, Penalties-Yds.

Baltimore pounds Pittsburgh, 8-4

By HAL BOCK

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Kiko Garcia and Benny Ayala, inserted in a drastic lineup shift, woke up the slumbering Baltimore bats, and the Orioles battered the Pittsburgh Pirates 8-4 Friday in the rain-stalled third game of the 1979 World Series.

The victory gave Baltimore a 2-1 lead in the best-of-seven series, which continues Saturday afternoon — barely more than 12 hours after the completion of this weather-plagued match.

Dennis Martinez of the Orioles will face the Pirates' Jim Bibby beginning at 1 p.m. EDT. Garcia ripped four hits and drove in for runs, and Ayala smashed a two-run homer. It shook the American League champion Orioles out of a slump that had resulted in just two runs in 17 Series innings going into Game Three.

"I think this is the best offensive lineup," explained Orioles Manager Earl Weaver, who also inserted second baseman Rich Dauer and outfielder Gary Roenicke in his shaker. It worked — wonders with Ayala's homer and Garcia's bases-loaded triple that brought the Birds charging from behind on this chilly, rainy night.

The game was delayed 1 hour 7 minutes by rain in the third inning.

When it resumed, the Orioles built their second five-run inning of the Series. The Orioles scored five times in the first inning of the opener before their bats took a vacation.

The Pirates nicked Orioles left-hander Scott McGregor for a 3-0 lead in the first two innings, but Baltimore bounced back in the third.

With one out, Garcia — who had doubled in the first — drew a walk from Pittsburgh started John Candelaria on a 3-2 pitch. Ayala, who had played in just 42 games all season and had only 22 hits, followed with a home run over the left-center field fence that narrowed Pittsburgh's lead to 3-2.

Ken Singleton then singled up the middle, and Eddie Murray drew a walk as heavy rain began falling at Three Rivers Stadium. Doug DeCinces flied out, but Roenicke, another member of Weaver's offensive platoon, singled to left. Singleton tried to score, but outfielder Bill Robinson gunned him down at the plate. The Pirates' lead was safe for the moment.

By then it was raining too hard to continue, and time was called. The rain lasted 67 minutes, and the delay was devastating for Candelaria, who has been troubled by rib cage and lower back problems all season. He never made it out of the fourth inning.

Dauer led off with a double to left-center as the Pirates outfielders splashed through left-over puddles. Rick Dempsey singled to right, but Dauer — respecting Dave Parker's rifle arm — stopped at third.

McGregor then bounced to shortstop, but Tim Lincecum kicked the ball and the bases were loaded. That brought up Garcia, inserted in the lineup to replace Mark Belanger, who had been hitless in the first two games of the Series.

Candelaria got ahead with two quick strikes, but the Orioles shortstop drilled a 1-2 pitch up the gap in right-center for a triple. He had nine three-base hits in the regular season, leading Baltimore in that department.

That made the score 5-3, but the Birds weren't through yet.

Penalty-plagued Lee remains unbeaten, 14-0

BY TERRY WILLIAMSON R-T Sports Writer

SAN ANGELO—The Midland Lee Rebels are still undefeated after a 11-0 victory over the San Angelo Bobcats here Friday night, but the Rebels had to take a few deep breaths before this one was over.

Lee is now 2-0 in District 5-4A play and 5-0 on the year after posting their fourth shutout of the season. San Angelo, who was supposed to play the role of the patsy in this one, fell to 0-2 and 1-4, but not until throwing a scare into the state-ranked Rebels.

A bad snap from center in the first half by San Angelo and a big punt return by Steve Waldron in the second half staked Lee to two short TD drives. Other than that, Lee didn't do too much offensively with only 133 yards rushing and 67 passing. The Lee defense, however, was its usual stubborn self, stopping San Angelo in a goal line stand in the first half to preserve the shutout. It was the fourth time this year Lee has turned that trick. The defense also held fabled running back Glenn Payne and Doug DeWitt to 29 and 11 yards, respectively.

LEE DIDN'T breathe easily until fullback Scott Collins, who rushed for only 29 yards in 10 carries, busted into the end zone for the 14-0 lead on the first play of the fourth period.

Lee had to drive only 25 yards for the score after Waldron returned a punt 25 yards to set the drive in motion. It still took eight plays and three picture-perfect pass completions from quarterback Gary Butler to set up Collins' plunge.

Butler completed six of 10 passes for 67 yards and Waldron had 59 yards rushing, but penalties, 7 for 91 yards, killed any consistency the offense might have generated.

Lee's first touchdown came as the result of a Bobcat gift early in the first period. Lee got possession on San Angelo's 15 when a snap from center sailed Robeat Dickie Scott's head. Scott, instead of punting, tried to run out of trouble, only to be nailed at the 15.

The Rebels punched it in in three plays with Waldron gaining 14 on two carries and Butler picking up the remaining yard with some improvisation on a busted play. Larry Linne made it 7-0 with 9:10 left in the quarter with the first of two perfect extra point boots.

BUT THE Rebels didn't threaten again in the half and were lucky to be holding 7-0 lead at intermission. The Rebels did get to the Bobcat 39 on a second period drive, but San Angelo's Pedro Santellano threw Butler for a seven-yard loss on a passing down to kill the threat.

The Bobcats tried to knot the score in the second period when they marched 45 yards to Lee's one-yard line where the Rebels another of their patented goal line stands.

Bobcat Kel Crain, who had 64 yards rushing, ran a sneak for 28 yards to open the drive, reaching the 18. The Cats then were able to move to the two before linebacker Collins nailed Crain at the one on fourth down to keep the game from being a 7-7 deadlock at half.

Now Lee faces the world's No. 1 ranked team, Abilene Cooper, Friday in Memorial Stadium homecoming bash and they will have to eliminate some offensive penalties if they hope to remain in the ranks of the unbeaten.

Statistics for Lee vs SA. Lee: 10 First Downs, 10 Yards Rushing, 67 Yards Passing, 177 Total Offense, 83 Passes Completed, 177 Yards Passing, 177 Passes Int. By, 1 Punt, 2 Fumbles Lost, 2 Penalties-Yds.

Scoring Summary: Lee—Gary Butler, 1-run (Larry Linne kick). Lee—Scott Collins, 3-run (Linne kick).

Weather forecast bad for today's game

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The weather for the fourth game of the World Series between the Pittsburgh Pirates and Baltimore Orioles Saturday could be worse than the chilly, wet conditions of the first three games, forecasters predicted.

After an overnight low in the mid 30s, temperatures were not expected to break 50 degrees Saturday, and snow flurries and rain showers will be accompanied by gusting winds up to 25 mph, the National Weather Service said.

Cooper, Permian win

Abilene Cooper and Odessa Permian chalked up District 5-4A football victories Friday night.

Cooper, the No. 1-ranked Class AAA team in the Lone Star state, blanked Odessa High's Bronchos, 21-0 while Permian took a 21-7 homecoming victory over Abilene High.

OHS carried the fight to the Coopers in the first half, only trailing 7-0 at the half, but Cooper, although it only had 14 more yards total offense than the Bronchos, scored 14 points in the second half to remain unbeaten in five games to share first place in 5-4A with Permian and Midland Lee who own 2-0 records.

Mike Flores, Keith Pantalion and Alvin Jenkins scored touchdowns for Cooper in the hard-fought contest in P.E. Shotwell Stadium. OHS rushed for 220 yards and passed for an additional 42 while Cooper gained 220 yards via the infantry route and 56 through the airways in a game closer than the score indicates.

Permian exploded for 21 points in the second period and then Abilene finally got on the scoreboard with 33 seconds left in the game.

Unbeaten Stanton drubs Shallowater in 5-A tilt, 39-0

By RICHARD VINCENT Sports Writer

STANTON — If ever there was the proverbial complete team victory, it might've been Stanton's 39-0 rout of Shallowater here Friday night in a District 5-A game.

Nary a thing went wrong for the Buffaloes — they were called for only one penalty all night and it was declined — as they posted their second straight district shutout, raising their season record to 4-0-1 and their 5-A reading to 2-0.

And it seemed that everybody had a hand in the homecoming triumph that tickled the near capacity crowd. The smile on first-year Buff coach Steve Park's face afterward just about told the whole story.

Statistics table for Stanton vs Shallowater. Columns: Stanton, Shallowater. Rows: First Downs, Yards Rushing, Yards Passing, Passes Completed, Punting Avg, Penalties Yds, Fumbles Lost.

Score by quarters: Stanton Shallowater 13 0 20-28 0 0 0-0

Scoring Summary: St-Derrick Looey, 1-yard run (kick failed); St-Lewis Henry, 25-yard pass from Craig Eiland (Eiland kick); St-Freddie Silva, 17-pass from Eiland (kick failed); St-Silva, 48-pass from Eiland (kick failed); St-Greg Douglas, 30-yard punt return (Eiland kick); St-Rusty Alfred, 1-yard run (Curtis Williams kick).

Good, 6-0. The second Stanton touchdown emphasized the Buffs' domination of the Mustangs.

Taking possession at their own 10, Stanton marched 90 yards in 15 plays, capping the foray with junior quarterback Craig Eiland's 25-yard thread-the-needle touchdown pass to Henry.

Eiland split the uprights and with 9:04 remaining before halftime, it was 13-0.

By the way, Eiland's passing was superb the entire evening. The 175-pounder maintained his cool when he had to and completed seven of 11 attempts for 104 yards and three scores.

After Shallowater fumbled and it was covered for Stanton by Jim Smith at the Mustang 26, the Buffs were ready to strike again with the pass.

Four plays later, Eiland bootlegged and found elusive wideout Freddie Silva 17 yards away. The kick failed but Stanton moved out to a 19-0 advantage with 5:43 until intermission.

Silva, who played a marvelous game, scored once more in the fourth quarter. The 135-pound senior jitterbug burned the Mustang secondary on a fly pattern and Eiland completed the play by nailing Silva with a 48-yard strike. The one play drive started after Gary Douglas covered a Mustang fumble. The kick failed and the count ran to 25-0 with 5:22 remaining in the game.

Things then really fell apart for Shallowater.

Mustang punter Willie Johnson drilled a line-drive kick that Greg Douglas snorfed up and returned 30 yards for a score. Eiland hit the point after and ran the score to 32-0 with 4:20.

Then, reserve Rusty Alfred pilfered a Mustang pass and put the Buffs the business at the Shallowater 34.

Although Stanton, according to Park, was trying to run out the clock, Alfred capped the frantic last-second thrust with a 4-yard run — with six seconds remaining. Williams connected on the PAT and it was 39-0.

All told, Shallowater was limited to 149 yards of offense, a deceiving figure in that they garnered only five first downs.

Greenwood rolls over Fort Davis for 4th win

GREENWOOD—Greenwood's Rangers posted a 34-0 win over Fort Davis here Friday night for their fourth win in six starts. Fort Davis is now 3-3.

Vondell Woolfolk put the Rangers on the scoreboard in the first period with a four-yard run and Rex Evans kicked the extra point. Evans then crashed over from the two in the second period and added the point while the game's most spectacular play came when Tommy Somers hit Homer Lopez on a 65-yard scoring pass and Evans' kick made it 21-0 at half.

Evans ran 25 yards for a third period score and Somers went over from the five to give Greenwood, which plays Midland Sophs at 4:30 p.m. Thursday in Midland, completed its scoring. Although he didn't score, Joe Mobley gained 103 yards rushing while Woolfolk gained 40 and Evans 44.

The Rangers had a 21-0 edge in rushing and gained 172 to 25 in passing. As if that wasn't decisive enough, the Rangers intercepted two passes and recovered three fumbles.

Andrews stings Yellow Jackets for 6th win

ANDREWS — Defense predominated in this one and Andrews had the better defenders as the Mustangs remained unbeaten with a 14-0 non-conference victory Friday night over the Kermit Yellow Jackets.

The Class AAA Mustangs, 6-0-0, were helped to the homecoming victory by Kermit's four lost fumbles. In addition, the Class AA Yellow Jackets, 4-2, were unable to complete a pass.

Andrews, with sophomore quarterback Keith Brooks back at the controls, struck first with 11 seconds remaining in the first quarter. Brooks found end Robbie Jones with a 43-yard strike. Following Van Eisenbach's point after, the Mustangs were up 7-0. Then, midway through the third period, Brooks tucked the ball away and scampered 8 yards for a score. Eisenbach again connected and the final count was 14-0.

Tide, Trojans to face easy grid assignments

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON AP Sports Writer

While Oklahoma and Texas will be trying to settle the question of who's No. 3, top-ranked Southern California and runner-up Alabama are expected to have little trouble hanging onto their positions in The Associated Press college football ratings Saturday.

The Trojans of Southern Cal are favored by almost four touchdowns against Pacific-10 rival Stanford in the Los Angeles Coliseum while at the other end of the country the Crimson Tide of Alabama is rated three touchdowns better than winless Florida in another of those Bear Bryant teacher-pupil matchups.

Elsewhere, fifth-ranked Nebraska entertains Kansas, No. 6 Washington visits Arizona State for a night game, No. 8 Ohio State hosts Indiana, No. 9

Florida State plays a night contest at home against Mississippi State and No. 10 Notre Dame travels to Colorado Springs for what likely will be a mismatch with the Air Force Academy.

In the Second Ten, No. 11 Michigan entertains Minnesota, No. 12 Arkansas visits Texas Tech, No. 13 Louisiana State is at Georgia, Wake Forest at No. 14 North Carolina, Oklahoma State at No. 15 Missouri, No. 16 Brigham Young at Utah State, Maryland at No. 17 North Carolina State, Vanderbilt at No. 18 Auburn, No. 19 Michigan State at Wisconsin and Illinois at No. 20 Purdue.

There is no love lost between Southern Cal and Stanford, either, but things are not as bitter as when John McKay was at USC and John Ralston at Stanford. The Trojans are equally explosive rushing and passing.

Estacado packs too much punch for Lamesa

LUBBOCK — Lubbock Estacado simply had too much for the Lamesa Golden Tornadoes Friday night as the Matadors walked over the visitors 35-0 in a non-conference Class AAA football game.

After a scoreless stand-off in the first stanza, Estacado's power finally took over. The hosts, 5-1 for the campaign, gained their first tally when Jerry Gray threw 34 yards to Kenneth Cole, who converted the point after to make the count 7-0 with 1:10 before half.

Following intermission, the Matadors ripped for three third quarter scores.

The first came at 11:09 following a fumble by Lamesa quarterback Joey Froman. Alvin Davis scuffed 16 yards and carried Cole's boot, it was 14-0.

Then with 4:29 in the third, Preston Davis zoomed 30 yard to pay dirt. Cole made the point after for a 21-0 lead.

With time running out in the third, Gray went to the air and found Warren Lyons for a 23-yard touchdown. Cole's kick made it 28-0.

The final Matador score came via the airwaves as Gray cranked a 27-yard touchdown dart to Stacy Burrell. Cole again made the PAT.

Lamesa, 0-6 heading into next week's assignment with Sweetwater, was held to six first downs and just 93 total offensive yards, due in some part to four lost fumbles.

Schutzhund trials set

The Schutzhund Regional championship will be held at 1 p.m. today and Sunday in Memorial Stadium. Schutzhund is called the "most complete form of training ever devised for the working dog," according to Robert Chaney, one of the owners in this week-end's competition.

This produces the ultimate in family protection and competition in Schutzhund trials or AKC obedience. Training involves tracking, obedience (including retrieving) and protection. Tracking is development of a dog's natural abilities and instincts and encourages confidence. Obedience makes a dog a more enjoyable house companion, develops character and confidence and adds to the dog's pride. Schutzhund obedience looks at a handler-dog as a team and puts emphasis on working relationship.

Protection for Schutzhund is more intricate and advanced than average protection training with the dog making his own decisions and using his own judgement. He works completely off lead and at a distance from his handler. He is trained to alert and bark at the suspect until there is aggression or an escape attempt. At such time, he must bite and hold and release automatically when the suspect ceases fighting.

The Schutzhund movement, says Chaney, is growing rapidly and trials give breeders a way to judge potential of dogs regarding correct temperament and working ability.

Arana sparks McCamey over Eunice Cardinals

EUNICE, N.M. — The McCamey Badgers shut out the Eunice Cardinals, 21-0 here Friday night in inter-state football action.

The victory gives the Badgers a 4-1-1 season mark going into next week's action.

Dan Ferguson scored the first Badger touchdown on a two-yard run in the first period and Arana booted the PAT for a 7-0 lead.

Then in the third period, the Badgers scored twice to put the game on ice when Arana capped a long drive with a 9-yard TD run on the option. A 40-yard run by Ferguson, set up the score. Arana added the PAT for a 14-0 advantage. Arana hit Brent Rhodes with a 60-yard TD bomb for the final score of the evening and then added the extra point for the final 21-0 margin.

THE STATISTICS: McCamey Eunice 13 0 21-0 0 0 0-0

Scoring Summary: McCamey-Dan Ferguson, 2-yard run (Raul Arana kick); McCamey-Arana, 3-yard run (Arana kick); McCamey-Brent Rhodes, 60-yard pass from Arana (Arana kick).

JIM MURRAY

By JIM MURRAY
Los Angeles Times Syndicate
On paper, it doesn't look like one of your vintage World Series. It's a club fight. Ernie (The Rock) Durando vs. "Fancy Pants" Requejo. A couple of swarms. Baltimore vs. Pittsburgh. Color it gray. Paint it dull. Dempsey-Tunney, it ain't. One team can't hit, the other team can't pitch. Look for it to go the route to a split decision. I don't see how either one of them can win two in a row. If one does, look for it to win. One team wears those funny hats, and the other team has the greatest collection of anonymityes this side of a motel register. Not too many people west of Pittsburgh care who wins it. Not too many east, either. Baltimore is not exactly Everybody's Team like the old Brooklyn Dodgers were. Neither is The Team-You-Love-To-Hate like the old New York Yankees.

George Woodard, once hailed as the large, economy-sized successor to Earl Campbell, Texas' Heisman Trophy winner, is now the Texas Aggies' forgotten man as he relaxes out of limelight during win a World Series, but the worst ever to play in one.

1925 — This Washington-Pittsburgh Series makes the grid only because shortstop Roger Peckinpaugh made eight — count 'em 8 — errors in this Series. And he was the league's MVP that season.
1926 — This makes the list because of The Strikeout. It happened in the seventh inning of the seventh game. Tony Lazzeri came to bat with the bases loaded with New York Yankees. Grover Cleveland Alexander, then 39, and hung over, came out of the bullpen to strike him out.
1927 — This is the only Series decided by batting practice. This is the year Babe Ruth hit 60 home runs. No team in the league hit as many home runs as the Babe did that year. Lou Gehrig hit 47, and the Ruth-Gehrig total of 107 home runs was one-quarter of the league's total output of 439. The Yankees became "Murderers' Row" that year and hit so many balls out of Forbes Field in batting practice before the first game that the Pirates almost had to be dragged kicking and screaming onto the field and they went quietly in four straight games.
1928 — It was the St. Louis Cardinals' turn in the woodshed as the Yankees blasted them in four straight. Ruth hit three home runs in one game after being up all night the night before.
1931 — The Philadelphia Athletics were prohibitive favorites over the Cardinals, but the Cardinals came up with an unknown reserve outfielder named John Leonard

Martin. Martin got 12 hits, including a home run, drove in five runs, stole five bases, scored five times and batted .500. Overnight, he became "Pepper" Martin, also "The Wild Horse of the Osage."
1934 — The only Series the so-called "Gas House Gang" and the storied Dean Brothers ever made. Dizzy Dean, a pupfish sort, beat the Detroit Tigers in the final game, 11-0, after a Series in which 1) He beat the Tigers in the opener, 8-3; 2) He appeared in Game 4 as a pinch runner at his own insistence, whereupon the Detroit shortstop gleefully bounced a relay throw on a double play off the middle of Dean's forehead? 3) He lost the fifth game, 3-1, because he really was feeling dizzy that day; 4) He threw a contemptuous shutout in the last game by which time his head had sufficiently cleared.
1941 — A Series in which the world found out you can't even beat the Yankees when you have a one-run lead and get the third and final out in the ninth inning. With two out, and nobody on, Brooklyn Dodgers pitcher Hugh Casey fooled Yankee batter Tommy Henrich badly on a third strike. Unfortunately, he also fooled his catcher, Mickey Owen. After Henrich swung, he watched the ball trickle past Owen, and ran safely to first base. Joe DiMaggio then got a hit, "King Kong" Keller doubled off the right-field wall, and when the smoke cleared, the Yankees won 7-4. 1947 — Probably the greatest Series, next to 1934. It marked the first Series with a black player appearing, Jackie Robinson. It was the Series in which Al Gionfriddo robbed

Dimaggio of a sure home run with a shocking catch at the Yankee Stadium bullpen. It was also the Series in which Yankee pitcher Floyd Bevens, only a 7-13 pitcher that year, had a no-hitter going for the Yankees against the Dodgers in the bottom of the ninth with two out in Game No. 4. Bevens, however, did not have a no-run game. He walked 10 batters, and had a 2-1 lead, a man on first and two out, when Yankee manager Bucky Harris unaccountably ordered him to walk pinch hitter Pete Reiser and put the potential winning run on first base. Another pinch hitter, Cookie Lavagetto, then got the first Dodger hit of the afternoon, a double off the right-field wall; scoring the winning runs. Bevens lost a one-hitter, after 26 outs.
1954 — The World Series of The Catch. The facts of the matter are these: In the eighth inning of the first game of a Series between Cleveland and the New York Giants in the Polo Grounds, with two men on, Willie Mays, with his back to home plate, hauled down a drive off the bat of Cleveland's Vic Wertz some 480 feet from home plate. This was the only ballpark in the major-leagues where this was possible.
1956 — Don Larsen, a journeyman right-hander with an 11-5 record that year for the New York Yankees, pitched the only no-hit game, in fact, the only perfect game in World Series history. Brooklyn was his victim. Larsen finished his career as an 81-91 gypsy pitcher with several out-of-contention teams.

Tech fights for SWC life

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer
Texas Tech and Baylor, if you are to believe the old bromide that it's two losses and you are out of the Cotton Bowl picture, fight for survival Saturday in the Southwest Conference football race.
Of course, the clash between No. 3 ranked Oklahoma and No. 4 ranked Texas will get all the national attention. Texas was a one-point favorite in that annual gridiron war for bragging rights between the two states.
Tech and Baylor are scrapping to keep from going the way of the Texas Aggies, Rice, and Texas Christian who have at least two league losses. No team has ever won the SWC title with two blemishes on its league ledger.
Tech hosts unbeaten Arkansas which got a scare from TCU last week before surviving on a last-minute field goal. Oddsmakers say Arkansas is a field goal favorite over the Red Raiders, who rallied for a 21-20 victory over the Aggies last week.

Baylor travels to Texas Stadium to meet Southern Methodist with the Bears a one-point nod over th Mustangs and all their mania.
Tech and Baylor each have one conference defeat.
In other SWC action, defending champion and unbeaten Houston takes the perilous road to College Station to play the Texas Aggies, who have been up and down like a stock market graph, and TCU is at Rice.
The oddsmakers say this Cougar-Aggie game is dead even.
Rice is a four-point nod over the winless Horned Frogs.
TCU Couach F.A. Dry said not to discount Arkansas' strength because of its close win over his team.
"They've looked the same to me since 1958," said Dry. "They are quick and mobile on defense and have an excellent offense. If you try to run wide on them it's suicide. They have a good secondary."
"I think Arkansas will get better and better," Which is not good news for Coach

UT-OU eye bigger stakes

Talk about your showdown games. When Texas and Oklahoma clash in early October, the immediate dispute may be over Red River boundary rights and which way the cattle get to cross, but everybody knows the stakes are much higher.
Annually when the Sooners and Longhorns fast-draw on the scorching Cotton Bowl surface, it's an elimination game for the national championship. The winner becomes a viable candidate for all the marbles. Maybe someone else will sneak off with the honors, as Alabama did last year because the Sooners stubbed their toes against Big Eight rival Nebraska, but it's there for the team that does its homework.
Two years ago, Texas defended OU's built-for-speed surrey and had No. 1 fringed and mounted in the UT trophy case only to have Notre Dame come along on New Year's Day and snatch it away, the second time the Irish had pulled the rug from under the Steers during the 1970s.
For the vanquished, all that is left to look forward to is a conference championship. So, if the Longhorn and Sooner backers get hyped up for this one, it's pardonable. They may not have a national championship college football playoff yet, but this comes about as close to an early round elimination contest as you'll find.
Those who back Texas to bounce back last year's loss to win point to the Longhorns' intimidating defense. But isn't this the same bunch that surrendered 31 points to Oklahoma last year?
Well, defenders protest, it wasn't quite that bad. Sure, OU's first TD was set up by a 55-yard run, but the rest could be traced to a careless Texas offense. The second TD was set up by a 17-yard run, but only after UT handed the ball over on its 23. A field goal before half was set up by a 45-yard interception return while a 16-yard interception and 22-yard pass set up the final score.
What's more, Steer avids still argue the legitimacy of OU's second TD when Billy Sims leaped into the line, fumbled into the arms of a Longhorn, but it was ruled he had crossed the plane of the goal line. And what, they argue, about that UT touchdown that was rubbed out by an illegal motion penalty?

BATTLE SCENE
And if you want to argue that Texas' defense is suspect, how about the Oklahoma offense? Just how good is it? After all, the Sooners haven't had a decent workout yet. Last week against Colorado, Sims spent most of the afternoon sunning himself on the OU bench, sans tee-shirt.
When all is said and done, the team with the Heisman Trophy winner usually wins. Oklahoma has last year's Heisman winner, Sims, returning while Texas is still looking for a successor to Earl Campbell, something they'll probably be doing for several seasons to come... Oklahoma 21, Texas 13.
Elsewhere:
Arkansas 17, Texas Tech 14—Raiders bounced back last week, but Razorbacks, although not yet a proven quantity, nevertheless are unbeaten.
Baylor 28, SMU 25—Close to the vest all the way. Last year SMU won by seven with Mike Ford, without him it's the Bears' turn.
Rice 14, TCU 13—The Frogs came so close last week...but Owls have shown a bit more consistency.
Houston 14, Texas A&M 10—Who can predict the Aggies. They might win by two touchdowns.
Missouri 19, Oklahoma State 14—Cowboys looked pretty good against South Carolina last week despite loss.
USC 21, Stanford 17—With Irish looming for Trojans next week, this could be a rough hurdle for nation's No. 1 team.
Alabama 35, Florida 6—Bear is buckin' for No. 1 and won't spare the horses.
Michigan 21, Minnesota 7—Don't Wolverines own the Little Brown Jug by now?

Britton captures MCC Women's golf tourney

Susan Britton lined up for the Midland City Women's Golf Tournament by winning the Midland Country Club women's title with a 1-up victory over Marion Spears Friday.
Clara Boyd won the first flight while Laura Canter was the winner in the second flight. Consolation winners were Becky Huff, championship; Sylvia Lauffer, first; and Alice Moxey, second. Fran Locker won the Crybaby flight.

It's Big Game Day in Big D when Longhorns face OU in Cotton Bowl

What would a Texas-Oklahoma weekend be like without Big Tex to greet fans and State fair visitors...

...or national television camera coverage...

...or a Heisman Trophy winner like OU's Billy Sims (20), scoring disputed second TD last year...

...or somebody's blimp hovering overhead?

Sooners face final exam against Texas

DALLAS (AP) — Third-ranked Oklahoma's half-point a minute offense gets what Coach Barry Switzer calls "the final exam" Saturday afternoon in a muscle-on-muscle confrontation with No. 4 ranked Texas' formidable defense in the 74th renewal of their bitter rivalry.

"Texas simply has the finest defense in the country," says Switzer whose offense has averaged 45.5 points and 442 yards per game.

The Longhorn defense has allowed only 165 yards and six points per game.

Both schools come into the Red River rivalry unbeaten for the 22nd time. Oklahoma is 4-0 and Texas is 3-0. The only common opponent was Rice which fell 63-21 under the Oklahoma grinder and 26-9 to the Longhorns.

Both Switzer and Texas Coach

Fred Akers know each other well. They played together at Arkansas. Switzer is 2-0 against Akers since they entered the coaching ranks, including last year's 31-10 victory over Texas in which Heisman winner Billy Sims rushed for 131 yards and scored two touchdowns.

Sims is back again and hasn't lost his nose for the end zone. He's scored 11 touchdowns to lead the nation.

The Longhorns have unearthed a worthy replacement to Russell Erleben in the place-kicking ranks. Barefoot John Goodson has twice kicked four field goals in a game this season.

Texas has a budding running back of its own in sophomore

A.J. "Jam" Jones, who is third nationally with 138 yards per carry.

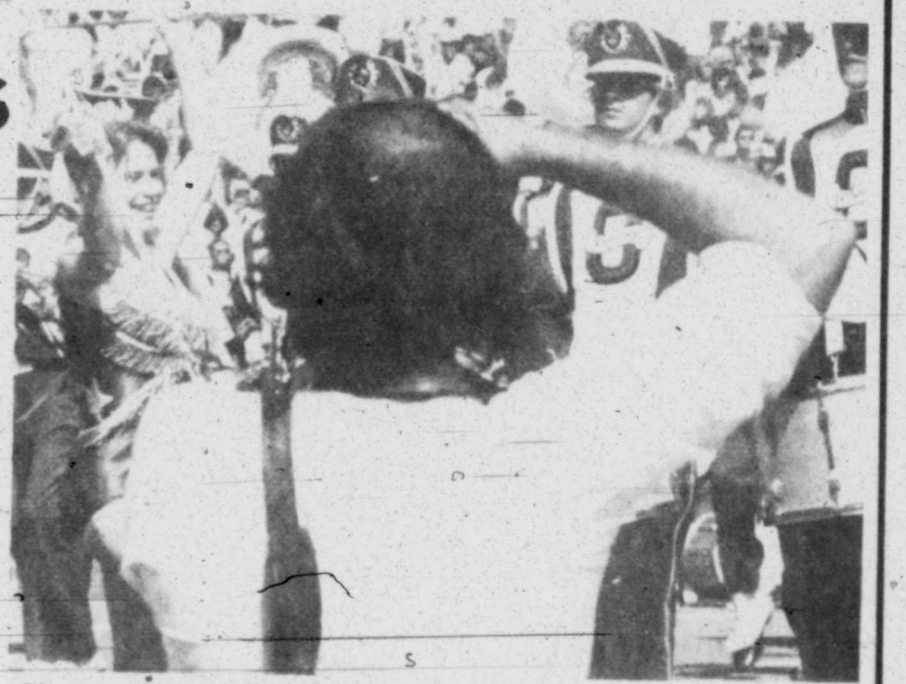

The Oklahoma first string defense has yet to allow a touchdown.

"They won't be the best offense we've faced this year, but their defense is their pride," says Sooner defensive back Mike Babb.

Texas leads the overall series 43-27-3 but the teams are tied 16-1-1 since World War II.

There's little problem stirring up intensity because a number of Texans are on the Oklahoma roster.

"We have a lot of starters from Texas," said Babb.

Photographers outnumber players and if you aren't quick, you can zero in on a pretty girl and come up with this.

A Texas-OU brings out TV's Bill Simpson, reviewing his notes before button-holing Barry Switzer or Fred Akers for a halftime interview and acrobatic cheerleaders.

And when the Longhorns play, there's always the world's biggest base drum...

If Billy Sims is key to OU attack, quarterback Donnie Little (1) is the Longhorns' unanswered question. (Photos by Ted Battles)

Eagles abound at Hogan Park

BY REX WORRELL
Hogan Park Golf Pro

The storecards for Hogan Park Golf Course will arrive Monday. The new nine will not be put into use until the weather cools a bit so the grass can stand the traffic. The driving range has been activated so players are now able to warm up before teeing off on the course... Dr. Bobby Moirs, visiting from Houston, was playing golf with Bill Chandler, Cliff Chaffey and Fred Kizer and accomplished quite a feat. On No. 14, Bobby made an 18 inch eagle putt and then turned around to eagle No. 15 by hitting his second shot into the hole. Congratulations, Bobby, on your back-to-back eagles.

During the couples tournament Sunday, Fred Kaizer had an eagle on No. eight, hitting a nine iron shot 130 yards into the hole. Congratulations, Fred...

The Midland Women's City championships will be Oct. 23. Oct. 18 will be the qualifying round for the championships. Defending Champion is Susan Britton, who Friday won the MCC Ladies title. Fighting will be determined by the qualifying round and/or handicaps. Format for the tournament will be match play. We feel certain that this year's championship will be better than in years past, since each year we learn and can improve on them.

The Hogan Park Women's Golf Association held a Closest-to-the-Pin event Thursday with Wilma Cox winning in the 18 hole division. Jane Wagner took second with Mary Lee Phipps third. For the Hazard's Division, Evelyn Guidry took first with Lois Guthrie second.

There will be no scheduled playday for the HPWGA Thursday since that is qualifying day for the city tournament.

Chaparral golfers take first at Odessa

ODESSA—Midland College shot a 301 to beat out New Mexico Junior College by two strokes in Friday's Western Junior College Conference golf tournament at Odessa CC, although NMJC's Angus Baker was medalist for the second straight tournament, shooting a 71.

The victory left MC's defending champion Chaparrals a half point behind NMJC which leads the overall competition with 11 points.

Coach Delnor Poss

said, "We did what we set out to do and got a good consistent scoring effort from all our players. Denny O'Connor particularly turned it around when he shot a 34 on the back nine after a rather bad 39 on the front half."

The playing conditions were good, but Poss said pin placements were extremely difficult. MC's defending champions, Chaps to Brownfield to play college invitational Oct. 23-26 and will return to host final fall conference tournament at Midland Country Club Nov. 1-2.

Midland College 301 10 7-2 points, New Mexico JC 303-11 points, Western Texas 311-8 1-2, Odessa College 314-6, Frank Phillips 315-3, New Mexico Military Institute 326-3.

Midland College—Denny O'Connor 72, Alan Coe 75, Jeff Lutke 76, Craig Day 77, Grant Spencer 80, Jim Julian 77.
