What looks like the work of a paranoid locksmith is in reality the idea of Midland College's Dr. Wayne Holcomb. Student parking behind the automotive and machine shops had become a problem and, in what might be described as a chain reaction, Holcomb ordered a gate with nine key locks installed. Each instructor is responsible for his own key, and the area is now "under control." (Staff Photo by Bruce Partain)

Most of bonds for MHS

$3.6 million is for athletic facilities

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of a five-part series reviewing the items to be voted on in the Oct. 23 $10.2 million school bond election.

By SUSAN TOTH
Staff Writer

The planned expansion of Midland High School will take more than half the $10.2 million in bonds Midland school trustees are asking voters to approve Oct. 23.

Of the slightly more than $5.5 million reserved for MHS in the all-or-nothing, one-vote bond package, more than $3.6 million will be spent adding or renovating physical education and athletics facilities at the 50-year-old campus.

One goal of the expansion is to bring MHS facilities to a comparable level with those at Lee High School.

But the basic reason for the renovations and expansions, school officials maintain, is to improve and support the academic program.

The MHS building, remodeled six times since it was constructed in 1928, lacks many of the facilities and most of the shiny newness of Lee.

The bond package sets aside $500,000 for remodeling the present gymnasium — inadequate for current needs, school officials say — into a library-resource center.

OTHER ACADEMIC ITEMS in the MHS package are:

— $185,000 to remodel the current library and office area.

— $338,770 for classroom renovations.

— $70,000 to replace lockers.

— $50,000 to renovate and refurnish science laboratories.

— $65,000 for band hall enlargement.

— $50,000 for auditorium refurbishing.

In addition, $300,000 has been set aside for a new boiler house, $12,000 for overhauling the air conditioning system and $90,000 for reroofing the school.

The library at MHS — built in 1949 — is about half the size of other secondary school libraries in the city. Compared to the LHS library, which has 4,450 square feet of reading area and 1,602 square feet of storage and book area, the MHS library has 3,500 square feet with no storage area.

Back issues of magazines now can be kept only a year, and equipment usually available in the library is sent to classrooms on a rotating basis because there is neither room nor electrical outlets to use them in the library, school officials said.

"The old gym is the only space within the academic complex we have to put a new library and learning center," Principal Jack Stone said.

"The only other choice is to extend the existing library out to C Street, and the cost involved is almost as great as that involved in renovating the gym to make it a really first-class learning center."

Space in the MHS library is so limited, according to Librarian Rose Marie Stortz, there is no space for book processing. Books are shelved in windows until they can be processed.

THE STATE REQUIRES all accredited libraries have at least 10 books per student. Because of the space limitations in the MHS library, "we have no flexibility for the loss factor."

American scientists share Nobel prizes

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — The 1979 Nobel Prize in physics was awarded today to two Americans and a Pakistani and the chemistry prize to an American and a West German as U.S. scientists again this year dominated the prestigious international awards.

A total of four of seven laureates selected for the three 1979 science prizes are Americans, the same number as last year.

The physics prize was awarded to Professors Sheldon L. Glashow and Steven Weinberg, both 46, of Harvard, and Abdus Salam, 53, a Pakistani physicist working in London and Trieste, Italy, for studies aimed at unlocking the mystery of forces that hold matter together. They believe their work may eventually find a single force underlying the universe.

The chemistry prize was awarded to Professors Herbert C. Brown, 67, of Purdue University, West Lafayette, Ind., and Georg Wittig, 82, of the University of Heidelberg, West Germany, for their development of chemical tools for synthesizing organic compounds.

Last week the medicine prize was awarded to physicist Allan McLeod Cormack of Tufts University and British research engineer Godfrey Newbold Hounsfield for developing the X-ray technique known as computer-assisted tomography.

Today's awards were made by the Swedish Royal Academy of Sciences. Each prize carries a $190,000 stipend to be shared among its winners.

The Academy cited the three physics winners "for their contributions to the theory of unified weak and electromagnetic interaction between elementary particles, including ... the prediction of the weak neutral current."

In Massachusetts, Weinberg told a reporter today the work is an effort to help "people understand what makes the world tick."

Both he and Glashow agreed their studies do not have any immediate practical application, although they have spinoffs in understanding radioactivity and how the sun produces energy.

"We suspect that there is at root a fundamental simplicity of nature," Glashow said. Their theory is that "the particles of nature are held together by four different forces, of which one is gravity. That's what Einstein spent his life on. The other three are weak, strong and electromagnetic."

The goal now is to show that the other three are "three different facets of the same thing" — a single underlying force of which they are simply manifestations.

In 1967, Weinberg proposed that electromagnetism and a class of subnuclear reactions called the "weak interactions" could be understood as different expressions of a process described by a single group of equations called a "broken gauge symmetry group."

Salam independently proposed a similar theory a few months later.

It turned out to be the first unification of two basic natural forces since electricity and magnetism were shown to be connected more than a century ago.

Glashow and Weinberg, both New York City natives, are the 38th and 39th American winners of the physics prize.

Nobel winners work to understand matter

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Two Harvard professors awarded the Nobel Prize for Physics today did their work in an effort to understand the forces that hold matter together.

Reached at his Brookline home, recipient Sheldon Glashow, Higgins professor of physics, explained: "Basically it's an intellectual, scientific challenge. It's not something that is apt to give some practical applications anytime soon."

"We suspect that there is at root a fundamental simplicity of nature," Glashow added.

The theory, he summarized, poses that "the particles of nature are held together by four different forces, of which one is gravity. That's what Einstein spent his life on. The other three are weak, strong and electromagnetic."

Referring to the other three, he said his work now is "to make them so they become three different facets of the same thing." In other words, he said, he believes that underlying all three is a single force, of which they are just expressions.

The other American recipient, who worked separately in the same field, Steven Weinberg, 46, of Cambridge, was unavailable for comment.

However, in an earlier interview with the Associated Press, he explained his work as an attempt to develop a single theory to explain all physical things.

In 1967, Weinberg proposed that electromagnetism and a class of subnuclear reactions called the "weak interactions" could be understood as different manifestations of a process described by a single group of equations called a "broken gauge symmetry group."

50,000 marchers ask protection of gay rights

WASHINGTON (AP) — An estimated 50,000 persons, bearing banners from nearly every state in the union, marched through the nation's capital Sunday, demanding civil rights protection for homosexuals.

They marched down Pennsylvania Avenue and behind the White House, then gathered on the Mall below the Washington Monument to hear dozens gay people.

The demonstrators want Congress to amend the Civil Rights Act to protect homosexuals against discrimination. They also are hoping to convince President Carter to sign an executive order banning discrimination in the military, civil service and among government contractors.

The affair went off peacefully under near perfect fall weather, with a few minor exceptions. As the last few hundred marchers were leaving their staging area on the Mall near the Capitol, someone fired a tear gas canister into their midst.

"Everybody thought it was just a smokebomb, but then the people around me started choking," said Amy Clark, 21, who journeyed from Brattleboro, Vt., for the march. The wind quickly blew the fumes away.

At the protest prayer session the Rev. Jerry Falwell, a television evangelist from Lynchburg, Va., said Christians nationwide prayed Sunday for homosexuals, "asking the Lord to deliver them from their lives of per-"God did not create Adam and Steve, but Adam and Eve," said Falwell, who labeled homosexuality "an outright assault on the family" and likened homosexuals to bank robbers, thieves and other sinners.

Some marchers carried signs identifying themselves as clergy or members of churches and synagogues. Rev. Frank Crouch of the Metropolitan Community Church for homosexuals in Philadelphia said, "I think this is going to educate some people. The legislators, the people who make policy, will notice what took place."

of speakers denounce what one called the "homophobia" and "heterosexism" of mainstream Americans.

The U.S. Park Police estimated the crowd at 50,000, but march organizers claimed the turnout was at least twice as large.

Most marchers were young, white and male, but the throng included lesbians and gay men of all ages, including a few mothers pushing or carrying their babies.

Nearby, a coalition of conservative ministers branded the homosexuals as sinners and urged them to repent. They held a news conference and prayer session in a congressional office building to protest the march.

The biggest crowdpleaser in the homosexual parade was the 100-piece Great American Yankee (GAY) Freedom Band from Los Angeles, which also featured a 20-member drill team and two talented male baton-twirlers. Los Angeles also sent a Gay Men's Chorus, 80 members strong, who sang "Stout Hearted Men" and other tunes.

The theme of the march was "an end to all social, economic, judicial and legal oppression of lesbian and

Pro-oil industry rally here Tuesday an attempt at 'something positive'

By BILL MODISETT
Staff Writer

"We're trying to make the thing a positive rally for the industry and the country," Bob Madison, membership and public relations director for the Permian Basin Petroleum Association, said of Tuesday's scheduled Pro-Oil Rally at Midland County Courthouse.

"We feel like many of the people taking part in these anti-industry rallies are uninformed of the facts," Madison continued.

The event Madison was speaking about is Tuesday's noon pro-oil industry rally to be held on the front lawn of the courthouse. The pro-industry rally comes one day prior to a national day of protest against the petroleum industry under the collective title of "Stop the Oil Profiteers."

"Basically, it's (Tuesday's rally) in response to the planned rallies against the oil industry Wednesday in about 20 cities around the country," Madison added.

The event is being co-sponsored by the Permian Basin Petroleum Association and the West Texas Geological Society.

According to PBPA president Al Dillard, "We think that this is not the time for groups and individuals to be dividing the country by calling for even more government control of the petroleum industry.

"The purpose of the rally is to draw attention to the fact that the interests of the country would be better served by the petroleum industry, the unions and government working together to immediately increase domestic production and lessen our dependency on foreign energy sources."

Tuesday's rally, expected to last about a half an hour, will feature brief addresses by Bob Bailey, independent operator representing the PBPA secretary; Harrell Feldt, a Midland attorney; and Elmo Linebarger, Mid-

Chamber seeks new 'Objectives for Midland'

EDITOR'S NOTE: Following a period of major growth and development, the Midland Chamber of Commerce — with the help of a broad cross-section of local residents — is now looking toward new goals for the 1980s. In this, the second of two articles, initial planning is discussed.

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

Midland has undergone a tremendous change since 1973, both physically and economically.

But what effect that change has wrought, and what is needed to keep other areas of Midland moving ahead with its pace of growth, will be explored by a group of residents chosen to compile "Objectives for Midland."

The group, chaired by Charles Priddy, will seek new goals for the 1980s.

Organization of these people will follow the same pattern cut out in the 1960s when a group of Midlanders sifted through priority goals aimed at developing the city during the next 10 years.

THE MAJORITY OF THOSE early goals have been accomplished. Now, the Midland Chamber of Commerce is putting the machinery in motion for a second set of objectives.

Priddy has decided on nine areas of specialization and has selected an advisory committee of 25 persons.

Of this number, 12 are committee chairmen or co-chairmen. The other 13 are serving strictly in an advisory capacity, he said.

There will be nine committees, each charged with doing an essay giving historical data on the specific field. Committee members then will evolve preliminary objectives to present to a group of conferees during a retreat, Priddy said.

Committee chairmen and their topics include Mayor Ernest M. Angelo Jr., government; Craig Eaton, vice president of Magnatex, design of the city; H. Rollins, a professor in The University of Texas Graduate School of Business, education; Ray Moudy, president of Citizens Savings and Loan Association, housing; Dr. Durwood Clader and Dr. Ralph Greenley, health and welfare; Doug Henson with The First National Bank, economy; the

WEATHER SUMMARY

Rain, showers and colder weather are expected over much of the northern Plains until Tuesday morning. Warm to mild weather is forecast for the Southwest and most of the East.

Midland statistics

Table with 2 columns: WEATHER FORECAST and LOCAL TEMPERATURES. Includes data for various times of day and locations like Abilene, Amarillo, etc.

The weather elsewhere

Table with 2 columns: Monday and HI Lo Pre Othk. Lists weather conditions for various cities like Albany, Albuquerque, Amarillo, etc.

Hail, lightning produced by thunderstorm

Pea-sized hail rattled some windows in the Midland area as a mid-night storm rolled through the Permian Basin early today.

The storm lit the early morning skies in a short-lived spectacular of lightning and thunder. Rain continued intermittently through the night.

National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport recorded an inch of rainfall during the storm, the only precipitation this month for the area.

No hail was recorded by the National Weather Service, but a weather service spokesman confirmed a hearing of several Midlanders, noting that he, too, had heard "a little hail along with the rain."

Andrews weather watchers reported a few sprinkles to the northwest, while Lamesa reported no rain at all.

Martin County Sheriff's Department in Stanton, to the east, noted that the area had received a "good little rain," and Big Spring weather watchers reported about .25 inch of precipitation.

To the southwest of Midland, Crane received "some wind and a little hail."

Low tonight should be in the mid-50s and the high Tuesday should reach into the mid-80s, according to the weatherman.

High Sunday was 84 degrees and the mercury dropped to 65 degrees overnight.

Record high for Sunday's date is 91 degrees, set in 1970, and the record low for today is 36 degrees, set in 1966.

Winds tonight should be westerly 5 to 10 mph.

Rain returned to the Texas weather picture during the night with a band of scattered showers and thunderstorms developing over West Texas and moving into northern portions of the state early today.

Some of the thundershowers were accompanied by small hail, heavy rains and gusty winds in isolated areas.

Bulk of bond money for MHS

Mrs. Stortz said. "I find myself guarding the books instead of urging students to use them."

The planned learning resource center will have a total of 28,328 square feet, including two new classrooms, which will be used for academic classes.

Other facilities in the new library will be a language library for remedial and second-language students, a music library, individual study carrels and a large main reading room.

The learning center also will provide dressing rooms for golf, tennis and swimming participants which are not now available at MHS, school officials said.

After the library renovation, the largest academic outlay in the bond package at MHS is $338,770 to renovate classrooms.

That figure includes $126,000 for fluorescent lighting and ceiling tiles and $170,000 for window and wall renovations.

BOTH ITEMS WILL provide energy savings at the school, school officials note.

The new window treatments, which will result in smaller windows and more wall insulation, should save one to two tons of air conditioning in the school and will improve the ability to use audio-visual materials by cutting the amount of outside light in the classrooms, according to School Superintendent Dr. James Mailey.

Floor tiles in the classrooms will cost another $42,770, Mailey said. "These three items will tie together to save energy and to make the classrooms an attractive learning environment," the superintendent noted.

A $65,000 enlargement of the band hall, built originally in 1949, is needed, school officials said, because the size of the band has more than doubled since the facility was constructed.

Both storage and practice space are inadequate for the present band members, according to school officials.

Still other items in the bond issue are: $1.3 million for improvements at Lee High School, $431,000 for vocational facilities, $844,600 for capital improvements at most of the district's schools and $2.1 million for a new elementary school.

Rev. Robert Boynton Smith, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, spiritual, and Mickey Cappadonna and Betty Sumner, recreation.

THESE MIDLANDERS were selected as chairman, Priddy contended, because they "have an interest in the community and they have demonstrated that interest in the past."

Serving on the advisory committee will be Harrell Feldt, past president of the Midland Chamber of Commerce; Joe Kloesel, current chamber president; Sid Lindley, chairman of the board of Champion Chemical Co.; Robert Griffith, division landman with Gulf Oil Corp.; A.K. Trobaugh, independent oil operator and president of the United Way; and Thornton Hardy, attorney.

Other members will be Decker Dawson, president of Dawson Geophysical Co.; John Grimland with Main, Lafrentz and Co.; Martin Allday, attorney; Tony Martin, president of Midland National Bank; and Wilbur Yeager, president of the First National Bank.

SERVING AS CHAIRMAN emeritus will be William Blakemore II, who headed the first "Objectives for Midland."

After the essays have been written and some general objectives put on paper, the committees will present those to the 100 to 150 conferees drawn from the community to attend a special retreat.

Priddy said the session probably will be in February or March, but the location hasn't been selected.

"We're trying to get a good base of conceivable, yet worthwhile, objectives," he commented.

The objectives designed for Midland essentially are a "source of input from the community to the governing bodies," said Priddy. The people voice what they want to see done.

After the retreat, town hall type meetings will be conducted throughout each section of the city to get "ground-swell support from the community."

By going from committee to conferees to community, the objectives are designed from "the women's point of view, the industrial point of view, the economic, education-and philosophical points of view," Priddy noted.

BEFORE STARTING ON entirely new goals, Priddy said the committees will look at the old ones to see if there might be something to resurrect. Then they will go from that point.

Devising new goals won't be easy, he said. "It takes a lot of background work, and you have to watch a lot of factors in devising these goals to come up with rational, logical suggestions."

This new group of workers will have to wrestle with Midland's changes since 1973.

Ticking off a few of those changes, Priddy included a spurt in economic growth, a change in the mix of people, "the ability of the community to afford some of the nicer amenities and an increase in the tax base."

"We'll be able to do things we couldn't do before," he said.

Absentee total stands at 358

Officials with the Midland Independent School District reported today that 358 people had cast absentee ballots as of 10 a.m. today in the school district's upcoming bond election.

Don Ferguson, business manager for the school district, termed the turnout "pretty average."

Absentee balloting entered its ninth day today and will run through 5 p.m. Friday in the school administration building, 702 North N St.

Meanwhile, instruction for election officials is scheduled for 5 p.m. Thursday in the board room at the School Administration Offices.

All election officers have been asked to attend the meeting.

Midland County tax assessor-collector. Midland College's jazz ensemble will provide music, according to Madison.

On Wednesday, a coalition of unions, liberal groups, consumer advocate Ralph Nader, actress Jane Fonda and activist Tom Hayden is expected to protest against the oil industry.

According to accounts, the coalition wants price controls reimposed on crude oil, heating oil and natural gas, and wants price controls placed on gasoline.

According to accounts, among other goals the coalition, also wants oil company accounting books open for public scrutiny and a special prosecutor appointed to investigate gasoline and heating oil shortages.

A release from the BPBA states, "The editorial staff of Newsweek magazine recently stated 'The past has already shown that price controls discourage domestic production, subsidize costly imported oil and postpone development of alternate energy sources.'"

BPBA and the geological society say the oil industry already has been the subject of numerous investigations by the Department of Energy and several other federal agencies.

The release from BPBA states, "The petroleum industry is already highly competitive with more than 50 fully integrated oil companies among the 10,000 plus companies engaged in the search for petroleum. Divestiture would not increase the competitiveness or efficiency of the industry."

"And, finally, a taxpayer-owned Energy Corporation would cost the public billions of dollars."

One of the escapees was killed after a chase and shootout with police, and the other five were recaptured within an hour of the Sunday night breakout. One policeman was seriously wounded.

The escape was made after one inmate somehow obtained a gun. Police spokesman Lee Libby speculated it was drawn up from the ground floor with a string through a window.

Police throughout Washington were alerted to watch for the lone prisoner to make a successful escape, 26-year-old David Warriner, a convicted burglar, Libby said.

Five inmates were captured within 45 minutes of the 9 p.m. breakout. Seattle police officer Frank Alexander was severely wounded by gunfire but expected to recover, Libby said.

One prisoner, Roger Raynor, was killed by police gunfire and Pierre Parent, another escapee, was wounded, Libby said.

Two other men, William Crest and Jeffrey Pierce, who police said were driving getaway cars, also were wounded, he said.

THE $50,000 REFURBISHING of the auditorium, which also dates back to 1949, will entail re-covering some of the seats in the facility and closing off the windows for better light control. Several other areas will be repaired, updated and improved in the auditorium, which serves a number of different groups in the school and in the community.

Other items for MHS included in the bond issue are:

— $1 million for land acquisition west of the campus for a new physical education facility, track, baseball diamond and practice field.

— $2.4 million for the 49,000 square-foot P.E. building.

— $47,500 for swimming pool renovations.

— $140,000 for site work around the additions and improvements.

— $120,000 for paving and walks.

— $165,000 for athletic participation areas including construction of the baseball diamond, cinder track and football practice field.

— $9,000 to resurface the tennis courts.

Still other items in the bond issue are: $1.3 million for improvements at Lee High School, $431,000 for vocational facilities, $844,600 for capital improvements at most of the district's schools and $2.1 million for a new elementary school.

One inmate still at large after escape

SEATTLE (AP) — One of seven inmates who overpowered guards and rode a public elevator to freedom from the King County Jail remained at large today after one was killed and an officer was wounded, the object of a state-wide manhunt.

One of the escapees was killed after a chase and shootout with police, and the other five were recaptured within an hour of the Sunday night breakout. One policeman was seriously wounded.

The escape was made after one inmate somehow obtained a gun. Police spokesman Lee Libby speculated it was drawn up from the ground floor with a string through a window.

Police throughout Washington were alerted to watch for the lone prisoner to make a successful escape, 26-year-old David Warriner, a convicted burglar, Libby said.

Five inmates were captured within 45 minutes of the 9 p.m. breakout. Seattle police officer Frank Alexander was severely wounded by gunfire but expected to recover, Libby said.

One prisoner, Roger Raynor, was killed by police gunfire and Pierre Parent, another escapee, was wounded, Libby said.

Two other men, William Crest and Jeffrey Pierce, who police said were driving getaway cars, also were wounded, he said.

Adults find high school tests not as easy as they thought

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The adults who accepted a challenge to take high school achievement tests found out the hard way that the tests were not as easy as they thought.

"It was horrid," said Joanne Audi after taking the mathematics and reading achievement tests that are routinely given to public high school seniors.

"I'm sorry we accepted the challenge," she said. "You could hear a sigh of relief when it was over with."

School Superintendent Lee S. McMurrin had said he was issuing the challenge in response to critics who complain of deficiencies in the educational system.

The Milwaukee Parent-Teacher Association became the first group to accept the challenge, and about 30 association members took the tests Saturday.

Alfred Bloedel, the school system's director of testing and the proctor for the exam, said the test conditions were nearly identical to those faced by the school seniors.

The adults took the test in the lunchroom at West Division High School, and the usual school-day distractions were present in the form of students outside the lunchroom preparing for the school's homecoming parade.

Bloedel said about the only advantage the parents had was coffee and sweet rolls served during the testing.

Afterwards, one man, the father of three children who recently graduated from Milwaukee Trade and Technical High School, said he didn't find the exam too difficult, "but I think I did bad on the English part."

Sonja Bermke said she found some of her academic training outdated, especially in math. "When I was in high school 20 years ago, we didn't have sets and empty sets," she said. "It was Greek to me."

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — State transportation officials from throughout the United States have agreed to develop the country's first system of interstate bicycle routes.

The policy committee of the American Association of State Highway and Transportation Officials adopted the proposal Sunday at the first full-day session of the association's annual meeting.

Tom Moreland, president of the association and Georgia's transportation commissioner, said the proposal for a uniform system of cross-country bicycle routes had been in planning for the past two years.

A Matter Of Pride....

Midland has some great public buildings: the College...the Federal Building...the City Hall and Courthouse/...the Hospital...Lee High School. These are all buildings to which we can and do point with pride. But part of Midland High School is 50 years old--part is 30 years old, and we have not maintained it in good condition and have not added the necessary room to take care of a growing student body.

We voted five-to-one this year for two equal high schools. At Midland High we have a library built in 1949 for 800 students. The enrollment now exceeds 1,800--and the library facilities are deplorable. The MHS Band-158 strong--must practice in a band hall built for 70. The gymnasium is awful, for both boys and girls. Classroom floors--windows--P.E. facilities--all are energy inefficient and in terrible shape. Old houses--and old schools--must be repaired and kept up if they are to serve their purpose. If we wait, it will cost much more.

Bond funds will also be used to renovate and update many elementary schools and our junior high schools which are badly in need of repair. 15,000 students are depending on us to provide the educational facilities to which they are entitled--schools that all of us can be proud of.

Relief for Cambodia

Word that Cambodian officials have agreed to accept international assistance to alleviate the famine spreading across their country is welcome indeed.

Fully half of Cambodia's decimated population of perhaps four million face starvation in a land successively ground to bits by civil war, a frightening brutal revolution, and, most recently, by Vietnamese invasion and occupation. The suffering of the Cambodian people has long since reached depths remarkable even in this bloodsoaked century.

The extensive relief program envisioned by the United Nations Children's Fund, the International Red Cross and a number of other humanitarian organizations could conceivably save two million lives.

It is, however, far too early for anything other than the most cautious optimism. Until the recent agreement, it was apparent that Cambodian officials and their sponsors in Hanoi were quite prepared to sacrifice starving Cambodians if saving them meant compromising the expansionist ambitions of the Vietnamese Communists.

During two months of negotiations with U.N. and Red Cross representatives, the Vietnamese refused to countenance the presence of neutral observers needed to administer the famine relief effort. In part, this reflected Hanoi's anger at the United Nations' continued recognition of the ousted Pol Pot regime as the legitimate government of Cambodia.

No doubt Hanoi also hoped to control the distribution of donated food and medical supplies as an integral part of its campaign to wipe out the anti-Vietnamese insurgents based in western and northern parts of Cambodia.

Mounting international pressure apparently forced the Vietnamese and their Cambodian clients to agree finally to an expanded U.N. and Red Cross presence inside Cambodia.

It is anyone's guess how many Cambodians starved during this two-month negotiating deadlock. Judging from the evidence of famine in the capital city of Phnom Penh itself, conditions in the countryside must be truly horrifying. Tens of thousands may well have perished during August and September.

Significantly, U.N. and Red Cross negotiators were unable to persuade Cambodian and Vietnamese officials to put the terms of the aid agreement in writing. This may mean that the Vietnamese, whose 200,000 troops in Cambodia are beginning their anticipated dry-season offensive against insurgent forces, plan to interpret the verbal agreement in ways politically favorable to themselves.

Most assuredly, the Vietnamese will do everything they can to prevent any assistance from reaching civilians in areas controlled by guerrillas.

It is also likely that the Vietnamese will bar U.N. and Red Cross access to areas involved in military operations. After all, any evidence of resistance undermines Hanoi's claim that its client government in Phnom Penh controls all of Cambodia.

The prospects, then, are for a famine relief program that will save lives in parts of Cambodia while the Vietnamese busy themselves with the task of killing guerrillas and starving the rest of the population into submission.

The responsibility for the wholly avoidable deaths of these civilians rests directly with the cruelly cynical members of Hanoi's ruling politburo.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Yes, a pay cut would be dramatic

WASHINGTON — Try to picture a classified ad like this in your paper:

"HELP WANTED — Male or female, no experience necessary. On-the-job training provided. Salary and fringe benefits in the $500,000 range. Pleasant working conditions. Luxurious, fully staffed suite of offices provided. Free medical care, generous pension benefits increasing with seniority, free use of swimming pool and fully equipped gymnasium. Free underground parking. Private subway to meeting rooms. Meals at bargain prices, when not paid for by business associates. Life insurance, haircuts, stationery at discount. Working hours and vacations up to you. Many free trips available, throughout the United States and overseas."

Even in a time of full employment, which we don't currently enjoy, such an ad should draw millions of applicants.

Yet astonishing as it may seem, the current holders of these cushy jobs — the 535 members of Congress — are never satisfied. Except when they're reined in by fear of the voters' wrath, our federal legislators go blithely along year after year, raising their own salaries, building new and ever more extravagant office buildings for themselves, adding to the treasure chest of perquisites they already enjoy, and dreaming up splendid new ways to increase their army of assistants.

Our senators and representatives have voted themselves into the top 2 percent of American "wage" earners. That's just in salary alone. Yet a study by Americans for Democratic Action showed that a member of Congress has at his disposal an "expense account" that adds up to well over $500,000 a year.

Many of the representatives of the people are, in effect, self-made millionaires. They have become an economic elite such as was never envisaged by even the most aristocratic of the Founding Fathers.

Congressmen are largely shielded from the harsh realities of life, making it all but impossible for the ordinary citizen's often desperate struggle against inflation to gain sympathy on Capitol Hill. What possible meaning can inflation have for someone who is automatically insulated from its effects?

Marie Antoinette earned the derision of history for her ignorance of the poor Parisians' plight. An ominous echo of her famous, if apocryphal, "Let 'em eat cake" was heard on Capitol Hill recently, when a federal official told Congress a plot of New Englanders are going to have to choose between eating and heating this winter. He might as well have been talking to Marie Antoinette and her ladies-in-waiting, for all the impact it had on Congress.

The squabbling in the Senate and House over whether to raise their salaries — and if so, how much — would be unseemly in any period. At a time when inflation and taxes are driving many of their constituents to the wall, it was obscene.

A few years back, discussion on the House floor on the proposed allotment of a modest sum to control rats in the poorer sections of Washington, D.C., degenerated into raucous mirth as some members ridiculed the idea that rat infestation could possibly be a ORLANDO, Fla. — If it would help wake up American politicians to the importance of the Caribbean and Latin America, I would hope that the Russians would put a combat division into Cuba.

The 3,000 troops are only a symptom of the government's failure to define a policy for the Western Hemisphere.

Already, the fate of Nicaragua, with all its strategic implications, has faded not only from the headlines but apparently from the consciousness of the State Department and the Congress.

A month ago, Rep. John Murphy, D-N.Y., held a press conference at which a number of Nicaraguan soldiers and civilians, made charges of mass murder against the Sandanista regime. Murphy asked the State Department to investigate, but a spokesman for his office told me he has gotten no response.

The Congress itself should investigate the fall of the Somoza government and the role the Carter administration played in it. There is no question that we helped topple the government of a faithful ally. We cut off arms aid in 1977 and later economic aid. While Somoza was facing a rebellion, we publicly called for him to step down. We tried to get the Organization of American States to send in troops. We pressured other countries to cut off their aid to Somoza.

It was all done, of course, in the name of human rights, but it was an inconsistent action and the American people are entitled to know why it happened and who is responsible.

Somoza was corrupt and heavy-handed. No argument there. But, he was no more corrupt and heavy-handed than other dictators. Freedom House, a respected New York organization which rates countries on the basis of political and civil rights, rated Nicaragua under Somoza as a 5 on a scale of 1 to 7, with 7 being the worst.

Somoza's rating is identical to Panama's and better than Cuba's or Haiti's. Yet Omar Torrijos gets presidential kisses, a gift of the Panama Canal, and millions in American aid. Fidel Castro, who doesn't let the sun set without villifying the United States, has Russian troops in Cuba, Cuban troops in Africa, African slaves in Cuba, and Cuban spies all over the Caribbean. Yet this behavior has been rewarded by the Carter administration which has taken steps to renew diplomatic relations and has encouraged tourists, businessmen and journalists to visit the Red dictator's island prison.

What gives? If our policy is to cut and run everytime a communist-armed group threatens an ally who is not pure by State Department standards, then we'd better start fortifying the Rio Grande because all of the Western Hemisphere south of it is going down the Red drain.

I shall wait with anticipation for Secretary of State Cyrus Vance to call on Fidel, Papa Doc Jr., and Omar to relinquish power in their respective countries. I shall wait with anticipation for Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, to explain why Somoza had to go but Fidel's okay.

I shall not worry about the 3,000 Soviet troops which the politicians are clacking their teeth about because they are pale in comparison to the larger dangers in the area.

We have to face facts. The late John Kennedy scrapped the Monroe Doctrine when he agreed to accept a Soviet presence in Cuba. Talk about offensive or defensive forces is just diplomatic hogwash to hide the fact that the U.S. gave up the Monroe Doctrine.

That is bad enough, but what's worse is that we haven't replaced it with any kind of plan for dealing with the problems of Soviet influence in the Western Hemisphere.

At a fatalist, I can accept that eventually the United States may face defeat, but, God, I hate to see us lose by stupid defeat.

INSIDE REPORT:

President Jimmy Carter's Cuban incongruities reviewed

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — For four straight days following President Carter's televised speech Oct. 1 on the case of the Soviet brigade in Cuba, this nation's intelligence system awaited a presidential order to start spy flights over Cuba by the high-flying SR-71 Lockheed Blackbird.

The directive finally came early the following weekend. But the long delay in ordering resumption of overflights cancelled by Carter when he took office in January 1977 has led to concern, some of it by the president's own men, that Carter lacks instinct and comprehension on how to operate the nation's foreign policy.

A few days earlier, similar concern was shown within Carter's own official family over an intense presidential desire to lash out in the Oct. 1 speech against Cuba's Fidel Castro, source of so much Carter anguish. Carter was dissuaded from attacking Castro by, among others, national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski.

To complement those two clear insights into Jimmy Carter's incongruity at his moment of political peril on the Soviet-Cuban brigade, flash back to President-elect Carter in December 1976. Ex-Navy officer Carter was informed then that the Navy and Marines were about to launch a long-planned landing exercise at Guantanamo Bay, the U.S. toehold on Cuba.

When he received this information from his intelligence briefings, Carter sent this word to the Navy's highest uniformed officials: "If you want to get along with the new administration, cancel the Guantanamo exercise! Carter wanted nothing to happen that might interfere with his grand design of talking Castro out of Cuba's alliance with the Russians. Take the landing exercise to Roosevelt Roads he told the Navy via back channels, but don't dare land in Cuba. Ironically, on Oct. 1 he himself was forced to reinstate that Marine landing as part of his unheroic response to the Soviet brigade.

Evans

The thread connecting these three events is the president's persistence in doing and saying the wrong thing at the wrong time in the conduct of foreign policy. Repeatedly, Jimmy Carter allows his words to suggest actions he cannot perform and his actions to convey intimations he does not mean.

Consider the overflights. With the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) reduced to less than $200,000 in its non-electronic activities in Soviet-occupied Cuba, overflights by the SR-71 seemed obviously necessary following disclosure of heightened Soviet military power in Castro's island. Consequently, when the controversy heated up and Carter pledged to the U.S. that he would not tolerate the status quo, both the CIA and the Air Force prepared for immediate resumption of the reconnaissance flights. At least they would signal U.S. determination.

Day after day went by with no presidential order. Up until his Oct. 1 speech, a case could be made that the Soviets might in the end relent and agree on at least a face-saving solution for Carter in the brigade-impasse. That case argued against renewing the overflights hated by Castro.

But once the speech was delivered, with its soft-handed theories of U.S. ripostes to growing Soviet power in Cuba, there could be no excuse at all. Thus, impatience turned to anger within the military-security bureaucracy — in Carter's own national security apparatus. Finally, Carter gave the long-awaited order. But still there is no hard decision on regularizing the spy flights, as before 1977.

As for the president's understandable urge to verbally attack Fidel, his choice of the Oct. 1 speech as a showcase could hardly have been more unfitting. Carter was gently persuaded inside the Oval Office in the hours leading up to the final draft of his speech that to attack Castro would be to repeat all the mistakes of rhetorical excess that led to Carter's face-losing stand-down under Moscow's refusal to yield.

"He could attack Castro," one aide told us, "but he couldn't make Castro do one single little thing under the program he was outlining in his speech. That would have shown his impotence all over again."

Carter overcame his desire to hit at Castro. But the mere fact he entertained it at all demonstrates his limitations in playing the foreign game.

The lesson should long ago have been learned by the president, a fact driven home in deep irony when on Oct. 1 he himself ordered the Marines to make that landing on Guantanamo cancelled so unthinkingly nearly three years earlier.

Iranian terrorists assassinate West German businessman

By The Associated Press

Terrorists gunned down a West German businessman in Tehran on Sunday and 17 people were reported killed in clashes between rebels and government forces in Iran's Kurdistan region near the western frontier.

A spokesman for the West German embassy in Tehran, reached by telephone from Nicosia, Cyprus, said two gunmen riding a motorcycle shot Hans Joachim Leib as he stepped from his door to join his wife in their car Sunday morning in Tehran, the Iranian capital.

Leib, a 32-year-old from Munich, had been administrative director of the Tehran subsidiary of the pharmaceutical company Merk Inc. since June 1978, the spokesman said. He was the first West German killed in Iran since February when forces loyal to Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini toppled the regime of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi.

The embassy spokesman said the assassins left a pamphlet on the scene identifying themselves as members of Forghan, a mysterious underground organization that has claimed responsibility for killing senior Iranian government and religious figures close to Khomeini.

Tehran radio, in a broadcast monitored in London, said 16 rebels and one government guard died in fighting at Mahabad and Mokud in western Iran.
Three guerrillas and one guard were killed in an insurgent attack on revolutionary guards loyal to Khomeini in the Kurdish city of Mahabad, the radio said. It said one government soldier was critically wounded during simultaneous assaults on the Mahabad bar racks and gendarmerie.

The broadcast said 13 rebels were killed in "a confrontation between guards and counter-revolutionary raiders" at Mokud, apparently a Kurdistan town.

Tehran radio reported Saturday that government forces were "stringently mopping up counter-revolutionary forces" in western Iraq near the Iraqi border, but did not identify the rebels.

The government claimed last month to have driven rebellious Kurdish forces into Iraq after an uprising in support of autonomy for the Kurdistan region. Iran's four million Kurds supported Khomeini's revolution; but leaders of the outlawed Kurdish Democratic Party opposed movement of troops into Kurdistan as the new government consolidated power.

In Tehran, the Forghan pamphlet said Leib was killed because he was not a Moslem and was connected with Western capitalism.

Korea to allow writer to cover visit of Brown

SEOUL (AP) — Reversing an earlier decision, South Korea will allow New York Times reporter Richard Halloran to cover the visit to Seoul this week of Defense Secretary Harold Brown, informed sources reported Monday.

Halloran, a Washington-based correspondent, originally received a South Korean visa to cover Brown's attendance at an annual U.S.-Korean security meeting on Thursday and Friday, the sources said.

The Seoul government revoked the visa last week, but Sunday night informed The New York Times that Halloran's visa has been reinstated, the sources said.

WORLD NEWS

Israeli troops evicting Jewish nationalists

JERICHO, Occupied West Bank (AP) — Israeli troops began evicting about 2,000 militant Jewish nationalists who set up 31 temporary camps overnight on the occupied West Bank.

A spokesman for the settlers said they would go peacefully. Army helicopters flew over the camps, asking the people to leave quietly. Radio Israel said 10 camps were evacuated by mid-morning.

"This is just the first of many actions we will take," said a spokesman for the ultra-nationalist Gush Emunim, or Bloc of the Faithful, which organized the operation after Prime Minister Menachem Begin's government rejected their demand that Israel seize Arab-owned lands on the West Bank of the Jordan River for Jewish settlement.

Chinese premier arrives in Paris

PARIS (AP) — Chinese Premier Hua Guofeng arrived in Paris to a triumphant welcome today as he began the first visit to Western Europe by a Chinese Communist head of state.

President Valery Giscard d'Estaing greeted Hua at Orly Airport as the Chinese leader started a three-week tour of France, West Germany, Britain and Italy.

At stake in their conversations will be proposals for France to help China develop its mining and steel industries, hydraulic power, telecommunications and plants for petrochemicals and fertilizers.

South African leader suspended

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — An ultra-rightwing South African political party zealously opposed to interracial sex suspended one of its leaders today after a newspaper alleged that he fathered three children by young black women.

Neville Warrington, a former mercenary in the Congo who ran and lost as the "honest white man's candidate" in a recent midterm parliamentary election, was suspended from the Herstigte Nasionaal — Reconstituted National — Party.

The Sunday Times reported that Warrington fathered three children by different black women while he was manager of a timber plantation in Swaziland about nine years ago. All three children died, the paper said.

Warrington spent most of Saturday evening seeking a court order to bar publication of the report. He claimed at first he had never worked in Swaziland but subsequently admitted he had, and a judge permitted publication.

Schmidt seeks more nuclear missiles

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Chancellor Helmut Schmidt on Sunday endorsed deployment of a new generation of U.S. nuclear missiles in Europe, saying NATO would proceed despite Soviet threats.

"The West will not renounce something that the Soviets long ago achieved in their region," Schmidt said in a West German radio interview.

NATO military experts have recommended deploying 572 middle-range nuclear weapons, but some Western European politicians are reluctant to take the step. Alliance ministers are to announce a final decision in December.

U.S. governors arrive in Peking

PEKING (AP) — Seven U.S. governors arrived in Peking today for a 12-day visit to promote trade, economic relations and cultural exchanges between their states and China.

The governors included William Milliken of Michigan, who heads the delegation; George Ariyoshi of Hawaii, Thomas Judge of Montana, Richard Lamm of Colorado, Albert Quie of Minnesota, Robert Ray of Iowa and Richard Snelling of Vermont.

They were accompanied by their wives and Prof. A. Doak Barnett, an expert on China from the Brookings Institute.

They were greeted at the airport by U.S. Ambassador Leonard Woodcock and Wang Chuliang, deputy secretary general of the Chinese People's Institute of Foreign Affairs.

After a visit to the institute and a banquet tonight at a Peking duck restaurant, the governors were to begin meetings Tuesday with Chinese officials. They will go Friday to Jinan, in Shandong Province, then visit Nanking and Shanghai. They go to Thailand on Oct. 27 to visit refugee camps and return to the United States on Oct. 29.

Premier concedes defeat

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — Premier Bulent Ecevit's Republican People's Party conceded defeat early Monday in mid-term elections after early returns indicated it would lose all five contested Assembly seats crucial to its survival.

Mustafa Ustundag, the ruling party's secretary general, issued a statement announcing the concession after examining voting returns representing 25 percent of the vote. He said his party's executive committee would meet later in the day to assess the situation, and political analysts interpreted the remark to mean the party leaders would discuss whether the government would resign.

Former Premier Suleyman Demirel, leader of the centrist Justice Party, the major opposition force, has pledged to hold a no-confidence vote in the Assembly next month if the moderate-left government does not resign. Previously, the Justice Party, which went into the ballot with 189 seats, could not draw enough support to bring down the government.

The loss of the five seats would give the opposition forces led by Demirel's Justice Party a majority of 227 in the 450-seat Assembly. Prior to the election, Ecevit's party held 220 seats, two less than the opposition forces, and neither side had a majority. Three vacant seats are to be decided in a later election.

DEAR ABBY Son forgets anniversary

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I have been a widow for 11 years. My sister and my daughter still remember my wedding anniversary in a quiet way, which I feel is comforting.

However, my son (now married) never remembers my wedding anniversary.

Am I expecting too much of my son? What is proper? — HURT

DEAR HURT: It is not proper to offer congratulations on a wedding anniversary after one of the couple dies.

Perhaps your son remembers the date, but doesn't acknowledge it because he fears it might sadden or depress you. Let him know that you derive comfort from having those you love remember that day. Then if he forgets, you will have a legitimate reason to feel hurt.

CONFIDENTIAL TO J.P. IN MAN-KATO: "CPR" is Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation — a method of maintaining the oxygen supply and blood circulation for a person whose lungs and heart have stopped working. One who has stopped breathing will either die or suffer permanent brain damage within four minutes.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "THE END JUSTIFIES THE MEANS": No way. To record a conversation without advising the parties concerned that they are being recorded is both illegal and unethical. Being deceitful in an attempt to get the goods on someone you distrust makes you no less deceitful.

World Health group promotes breast feeding

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — The World Health Organization has announced that it is preparing strict global rules against any promotion of baby food designed to discourage the natural method of breastfeeding infants.

The organization said breastfeeding should be "protected and encouraged" all over the world and invited its 135 member governments to set strict national rules to prevent its replacement by substitute foods.

"I will now start immediately" preparing an international code of conduct for the marketing of infant formula and other breastmilk substitutes, WHO Director General Halfdan Mahler of Denmark told reporters.

Speaking after the end of a four-day experts meeting that agreed on a set of firm recommendations to support breastfeeding, Mahler said he expects to complete a draft in time for WHO's annual assembly next May.

Washington's social book is published

WASHINGTON (AP) — The new Green Book has been published. Four hundred Washingtonians are out and 685 are in for the first time. And Mrs. Jean Shaw Murray, publisher and arbiter, doesn't want to say who's in, who's out, or why.

The Green Book is Washington Society's Who's Who. Its formal name is "The Social List of Washington, D. C." It is published in a Kelly green cover. It lists 5,000 names. It was started 50 years ago by Mrs. Murray's grandmother, Helen Ray Ragner, and taken over later by Mrs. Ragner's daughter, Carolyn Hagner Shaw.

"Mother used to tell who's been dropped, but I don't," Mrs. Murray said. "We drop people if they've died, of course, or moved from Washington, or don't return our questionnaire."

Or misbehaved? "Oh, yes." The judgments are made by a board of governors — four women, one man — acting anonymously, she said.

Mini-skirt reappears with different look

PARIS (AP) — Skirts crept above the knees, or at least showed a lot more shin, at the ready-to-wear industry's annual preview of next summer's fashion that went on display Saturday.

But this doesn't mean you can haul out your old minis to look like young Paris. These newer models have different shaping, with big shoulders, small waists.

Jean-Claude de Luca jumped right onto the mini bandwagon, leading off with suits that had nipped-in small belted jackets sparkling with plastic pastilles and spangles over narrow skirts three inches above the knee. They were topped with spaced-out Buck Rogers saucer hats with plastic windows in them.

Also on show were good reversible belted rainjackets with contrasting lapels, and contrasting panels showing in the short skirts with flaps or notches at the hems.

De Luca's sauciest minis were hot-colored, mid-thigh models with fringes to look like hula skirts.

The cotton, poplin or linen creations ranged in color from yellow gray, pink or turquoise to deeper tones of teal green, charcoal gray, raspberry or deep blue.

A kind of Indian-Western theme produced feathered headdresses topped belted, melon-sleeved "frontier" jackets over bouncy plaid striped or solid full short skirts, some with under-skirts.

De Luca, who loves pants, offered lean bermudas often topped by belted cotton or loose crepe de chine-viscose tunics. One of the more chic looks in this line is taupe and black cotton or gabardine combinations, topped by tipped, flat, round hats.

Chad Green dead, but legal battles may continue

BOSTON (AP) — Leukemia victim Chad Green is dead at the age of 3, but the legal ramifications of his parents' fight to treat him with Laetrile are still to be settled.

The youngster died Friday evening in Tijuana, Mexico, where his parents took him to continue Laetrile treatments in defiance of a Massachusetts court order.

His parents, Gerald and Diana Green, were found in civil contempt of court early this year by Judge Guy Volterra in Plymouth Superior Court, and there was a later finding of probable cause of criminal contempt of court for flouting the court's authority.

Should the Greens return to Massachusetts, where Gerald's parents live, they would be taken before Volterra for sentencing on the civil contempt of court finding.

And they could be tried, before another judge, for criminal contempt if prosecutors decided to proceed with that action.

Legal experts said they doubted any criminal charges could be brought against the Greens in Massachusetts because of Chad's death. He died at his home in Mexico, and presumably any such charges would be up to Mexican authorities.

The cause of Chad's death was not announced, nor was there any official announcement on an autopsy.

The Greens could not be located to comment on the death.

However, their lawyer, William L. Ginsberg of Atlanta, said in a telephone interview that he had asked the district attorney of Baja, Calif., "to have an autopsy performed in Mexico and he has agreed." His remark could not be confirmed immediately.

"I want the autopsy to be made by all parties that have a real interest in the matter so that the truth can come out as quickly as possible," Ginsberg said.

"I must emphasize that no cause of death has yet been established," he said. "All we know is that Chad is dead."

Ginsberg said he wanted U.S. cancer experts to be involved in the autopsy, saying "there is precedence for a medical team from the United States coming to Mexico."

The Boston Globe quoted Ginsberg as saying the Greens originally planned to bury Chad in Nebraska, where he was born Dec. 18, 1975, but that burial would be delayed pending an autopsy.

In Nebraska, Betty Barton, Chad's maternal grandmother, said it was "not true" that the burial will be in that state. "Diana expressed to me in the telephone call from Mexico early Saturday that she wanted Chad to be buried in Scituate, Mass., where he spent most of his little life."

There was no comment about the funeral from the child's paternal grandparents, who live in Scituate.

Dr. Ernesto Contreras, owner of the clinic where Chad was receiving treatments, was reported out of the country.

A clinic hematologist, Dr. Julio Edgar Selva, said that he last saw Chad a month ago and that the boy showed signs of anemia and low blood-platelet count that might have indicated a relapse was near.

But he said the parents "would not submit to a bone-marrow test that would conclusively show the status of leukemia, nor would they resume chemotherapy in spite of my urging."

"It was their decision to stop it," he said. At that time, he told reporters the boy would die of lymphocytic leukemia within six months.

Laetrile is derived from the chemical amygdalin, found naturally in the pits of apricots and peaches and in bitter almonds. Advocates claim it is an effective cancer treatment, but the U.S. Food and Drug Administration and the medical establishment in this country have said there is no proof it is of any value in treating cancer. The FDA bans its shipment across state lines.

In Hastings, Neb., Diana Green's mother, Betty Barton, said Sunday that she knew nothing about funeral arrangements. She said her daughter called to tell her of Chad's death early Saturday morning but that she had not heard from her since. She said another daughter, Brenda Barton, 18, went to Mexico Saturday but could not find the Greens.

The Greens fled with Chad to Mexico from Scituate, Mass., on Jan. 25 following the court order for them to stop Laetrile treatments and a special diet and to resume chemotherapy treatments for the boy at Massachusetts General Hospital.

The hospital had brought the suit nearly one year earlier when the Greens refused to resume the chemotherapy treatments.

STUART, Fla. (AP) — War hero Archibald Bulloch Roosevelt, the last surviving son of Theodore Roosevelt, is dead at 85.

Roosevelt's death of natural causes Saturday night leaves Alice Roosevelt Longworth of Washington as the only surviving child of the nation's 26th president.

Archibald Roosevelt died at the Stuart Convalescent Center.

Bush favored in poll

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Iowa's party regulars personally favor former CIA Director George Bush for the 1980 Republican presidential nomination, according to a straw poll released Monday by the Iowa Daily Press Association.

And 50.66 percent of the respondents believe Bush will be facing Massachusetts Sen. Edward Kennedy in the election.

Participants who paid $50 per ticket to see nine of their party's presidential candidates Saturday night in Ames returned 1,454 of the 1,639 ballots distributed, an 88.7 percent response.

The poll will have no legal bearing on the party's eventual choice for the 1980 nomination. Committed delegates to the GOP national convention will be selected during Iowa's first-in-the-nation party precinct caucuses next Jan. 21.

Bush received 33.74 percent of the ballots cast in the straw poll. Former Texas Gov. John Connally came in second with 15.35 percent, Kansas Sen. Bob Dole tallied 14.79 percent, former California Gov. Ronald Reagan had 11.28 percent and Tennessee Sen. Howard Baker received 8.20 percent of the vote for fifth place.

Other votes were scattered among Illinois Rep. Philip Crane, 5.47 percent; Illinois Rep. John Anderson with 2.94 percent; California businessman Ben Fernandez, 2.24 percent; South Dakota Sen. Larry Pressler .77 percent; former Defense Secretary Alexander Haig .14 percent; and former Minnesota Gov. Harold Stassen .07 percent.

IRA gunmen take school, kill truck driver

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Three gunmen believed to be Irish Republican Army guerrillas took over a school in the border village of Roslea today and shot dead the driver of a truck delivering food for pupils' lunches, police said.

The victim was identified as Kirby Kinnaghan, 36, a part-time soldier in the Ulster Defense Regiment (UDR), Northern Ireland's militia.

The gunmen, who held the school principal and other teachers at gunpoint, opened fire on the driver only moments after a busload of 20 children arrived at the Roman Catholic school. None was hurt by the gunfire.

Police said the guerrillas fled in one staff member's car across the nearby border into the Irish Republic.

The killing raised the death toll in 10 years of sectarian warfare in Northern Ireland to at least 1,966 — 85 of them this year.

There's nothing to worry about, really

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cuban tensions and the coming political campaign aren't the only problems in government. At any given moment, the issues on the Potomac can range from a sinking White House to inadequate tornado warnings and troubles with the census.

For example, following extensive study, the chief of the Vertical Network Branch believes that the White House should be carefully monitored in the coming years.

While many politicians and reporters will be doing just that, their efforts aren't what Charles T. Whalen has in mind.

Videotape has new uses.

NEW YORK (AP) — The use of videotape recording has found its way into today's hospitals.

Now a neurosurgeon in Boston can teach a special surgical technique to a class of medical stu-

Whalen, you see, works for the National Geodetic Survey and he reports that at least a portion of the White House seems to be sinking.

A study team began work two years ago to check out benchmarks placed when the White House was reconstructed 27 years ago.

And now it reports that while the north wall remains firm, there has been some sinking — about the thickness of two dimes — in the southwest corner of the executive mansion.

As minor as that sounds, Whalen terms it "statistically significant" and urges that the building be monitored to determine if any structural damage may occur.

But President Carter and his successors apparently needn't worry for a while. Whalen says that at the current rate it will take 89 years for that corner to sink an-inch.

SHEINWOLD ON BRIDGE

The Silent Treatment

By Alfred Sheinwold

"My wife is giving me the silent treatment because of a word I said at the bridge table last night," a reader reports.

"East captured the king of diamonds and returned the three to West's ten. West led the jack of spades to dummy's king, and I forced out the ace of trumps. Back came the ten of spades to dummy's ace."

"When I led the ace of clubs West dropped the king. I therefore ruffed a spade, hoping to reach my hand and draw trumps. West over-ruffed and returned his other club."

"This is where I said a bad word. Was I so terribly wrong?"

QUITE A PARLAY

West would have fooled me too. Ruffing a spade is wrong if West had more than one club, only two spades, and enough presence of mind to play the king of clubs without hesitation and with just the right manner. That's quite a parlay.

No comment on the bad word. My own experience is that you meet much less silence if you exercise some of your own.

THE MIDLAND NATIONAL BANK presents straight talk on high interest rates and tight money.

To our customers and other interested West Texans...

Recently, there has been a great deal of talk about high interest rates and the money supply. I think it is time for The Midland National Bank to address this subject.

The regulatory bodies and the administration in Washington have chosen to fight inflation primarily by decreasing the supply of lendable dollars and increasing the interest rates charged to borrowers. While the merits of this action will be debated for years to come, The Midland National Bank makes this statement now... we will honor all of our existing commitments and continue to meet the legitimate credit requirements that are requested.

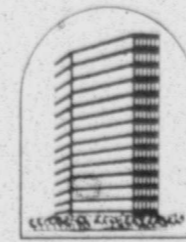

We have the professional ability to stay abreast of economic conditions, and we will respond quickly and positively to your banking needs. Therefore, the communication you have with your Midland National Bank officer is more important than ever. Together we can make sound financial decisions in your personal or commercial business.

As in previous uncertain times, The Midland National Bank has approached the situation in a realistic and honest manner. We will continue with this approach and a renewed commitment to keep Midland strong and viable. We believe in the future of our city.

Over the past several days, we have had numerous calls from you seeking information and advice. We are always pleased to hear from you and encourage your inquiries.

Iran denies oil cutback

LONDON (AP)—The Iranian oil minister has denied reports that Iran has cut back its oil production, state-run Tehran radio said.

A British oil journal had reported that Iranian exports were running at a sharply lower level recently and a U.S. government source had said the Iranian government informed several oil companies that petroleum shipments from Iran would be delayed.

But the Tehran broadcast, monitored in London, said Iran had maintained its production at 4 million barrels of oil a day over the past three weeks.

It said Oil Minister Ali Akbar Moinfar "has told our reporters that ... the oilfields of Ahwaz, Aghajari, Masjid Soeyman and others have produced 3.5 million barrels of oil a day, while other sources have produced 484,000 barrels a day ... The daily figure is thus about 4 million barrels. All the reports in the foreign press are hereby denied, Mr. Moinfar said."

"Several oil companies have been notified to push back their October loadings" onto tankers, said the U.S. source, who asked that he not be quoted by name.

"The delay was confirmed by sources at a number of major oil companies. 'The ships are backed up,' said one at a company that buys some oil from Iran. 'We don't know why.'"

Iran's oil production shutdown last winter during the revolution that replaced the shah with Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini was a major cause of this year's oil shortage. A severe decline in Iran's supply of oil, which at $21 a barrel is about $2.50 below the OPEC price ceiling, could again affect the world's delicate supply situation. There are 42 gallons of oil in a barrel.

A British oil industry journal, London Oil Reports, said in an article to be published Monday that Iranian oil exports are running at 1 million barrels a day instead of the official target of 3.3 million barrels.

It also reported a long line of tankers had formed at Kharg Island oil terminal, the Iranian loading point in the Persian Gulf.

Other publications and industry officials have said in recent weeks that Iranian oil production appeared to be dropping. Government and industry sources were unable to estimate the size of the cuts.

Pittsburgh lives to play another day

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates have used the word adversity as a rallying cry all season, and they did it again Sunday to stay alive in the 1979 World Series.

The National League champion Pirates had trailed 1-3 in games to the American League champion Baltimore Orioles.

They went out and beat the Orioles 7-1, reduced their deficit in the Series to 2-3, and headed for Baltimore for a sixth game Tuesday night.

Pirates' manager Chuck Tanner was asked if he felt the victory switched the momentum.

"Well I hope it means momentum for us, because we have to win two and they have to win one," Tanner replied.

Baltimore manager Earl Weaver scoffed at the momentum theory.

You know what I think about momentum... If (Jim) Palmer goes out and pitches a good game... then there is no such thing as momentum."

It was a grim, saddened Pittsburgh team that took the field to attempt a feat accomplished by only three teams in the history of a best-of-seven game World Series — come back to take the championship.

Only hours earlier, Tanner learned his mother died in nearby Greenville, Pa.

Then, it was disclosed that Edgar Speer, a director on the Pirates' board and former chairman of the board of U.S. Steel had died Saturday night.

The Pirates had to start a pitcher, Jim Rooker, who was 4-7 in the regular season and twice had been on the disabled list with a sore elbow.

The Pirates, who had battled from behind all year to get where they are, went into Sunday's game faced with still another challenge, and they responded.

Shortstop Tim Foli, who had two hits, drove in a run and scored twice in what could have been the last game, said the scrambling bunch of Buccaneers had not been themselves in the World Series until Sunday.

"This is the first game they've seen the real Pittsburgh Pirates. You saw an imposter in the other four games. We played bad until today," Foli said.

And Dave Parker, who had two hits, an RBI and a run scored, issued a warning to the Orioles.

"If we win Tuesday (night) you're going to see a shootout in Baltimore," Parker said, referring to a potential seventh game.

Baltimore took a 1-0 lead in the fifth inning of pitcher's battle between Orioles' ace Mike Flanagan and Rooker.

Gary Roenicke started the Baltimore fifth with his team's first hit, a double, moved to third on a single to short right, and scored while Doug DeCinces hit into a doubleplay.

Flanagan, the winner of the Series' opener and the biggest winner in the majors during the regular season with 23 victories, stayed around for six innings. He gave up two runs in the sixth and woundup the loser.

Foli opened the Pirates' sixth with a walk on a 3-1 pitch, and Parker followed with a single. Cleanup hitter Bill Robinson sacrificed the runners along. Willie Stargell then lifted a sacrifice fly scoring Foli and tying the score 1-1.

Parker moved to third on the sacrifice fly, and came home on the third of Bill Madlock's four singles. The Bucs now led 2-1.

After Flanagan left, Pittsburgh's suddenly awakened sluggers beat a tattoo on three Baltimore relievers. They scored two in the seventh and added three in the eighth.

Meanwhile, Bert Blyleven, who hadn't pitched in relief since 1972, had relieved Rooker in the sixth. He checked the Orioles with just three hits the rest of the way.

In the seventh, Phil Garner opened with a chopping single over the shortstop's head. Two force plays produced two outs, but Omar Moreno reached second when Orioles' reliever Tim Stoddard threw wild on a pickoff play.

Foli then ripped a single scoring the fleet Moreno for a 3-1 lead. Tippy Martinez relieved and was greeted with a run-scoring double by Parker.

Pittsburgh wrapped it up with three in the eighth.

Stargell and Madlock started it with singles. It was Madlock's fourth hit and made him the third player in this Series to tie that single game record. Now 39 have done it.

Steve Nicosia fouled out but Phil Garner collected an RBI single.

Blyleven then bunted, and Moreno was walked intentionally to load the bases. Foli bounced a single up the middle, scoring two more runs.

Tanner wasn't sure if he'd be accompanying the Pirates to Baltimore after a Monday workout because of the death of his mother, Anne Tanner, 70.

Palmer will be opposed by John Candelaria, the third game loser. Tanner said the pitcher with a chronic back condition and some arm problems this season, was in good physical condition.

Baltimore catcher Rick Dempsey offered this analysis for the Orioles.

"We really didn't have the opportunity to win today (Sunday)," Dempsey said. "We didn't put enough men on base to threaten. That's the way it goes. We're a hot and cold team and we weren't hot."

Blyleven said he felt strange pitching in relief.

"It was really different, but in the final games of the World Series, everybody has got to do a little more," Blyleven said.

Rooker gave all the credit for his fine performance to his catcher, Nicosia.

"He called for the fast ball in on the right-handed hitters and it ran in on them," Rooker said. "They were looking for something outside and they were surprised when we got the third called strike on the inside pitches."

Tom Landry has to call off Staubach against Rams

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Tom Landry finally had to call Roger Staubach off the Los Angeles Rams Sunday night.

Staubach, the 38-year-old master quarterback of the Dallas Cowboys, was devastating in a one-man show, completing three touchdown passes and scrambling like a young colt in a 30-6 rout of the Rams.

Staubach completed his first nine passes and when he wasn't killing the Rams, he did so with his feet, rushing five times for 44 yards in key situations.

COACH LANDRY called a halt to the dazzling performance midway through the fourth quarter as he mercifully sent in backup Danny White.

Staubach completed 13 of 18 passes for 176 yards.

"Roger was as sharp as I have seen him this year," said Landry. "He made the big play all night."

Asked about Staubach's scrambling, Landry smiled and said, "It's dangerous for a quarterback to do that. But this was his night to do everything right."

Landry said the crippled Rams had an off night.

"The 16-game schedule brings times when you are not emotionally or physically ready to play," said Landry. "It happened to Pittsburgh and it happened to us against Cleveland. And it happened to the Rams tonight."

STAUACH AGREED "that it was my best game this year. I had plenty of time to throw the ball."

Staubach's second touchdown pass broke the club record of 135 touchdown passes by Don Meredith, the man he drove into retirement and who was in the television booth announcing the game.

His runs set up 17 of the Dallas points as the Cowboys, 6-1, kept pace with the red-hot Philadelphia Eagles atop the National Conference Eastern Division.

The Rams are now 4-3 and lead the NFC Western Division over Atlanta and New Orleans, both 3-4.

Staubach completed touchdown passes of 18 yards to Tony Hill, three yards to Tony Dorsett and 23 yards to tight end Jay Saldi.

Dallas led 13-6 at halftime and exploded for 17 points in the third quarter on Staubach's touchdown pass to Saldi, Rafael Septien's 32-yard field goal and Dorsett's 1-yard run.

RAM QUARTERBACK Pat Haden was sacked four times and LA had to settle for field goals of 42 and 41 yards from Frank Corral.

Staubach completed 13 of 18 passes for 176 yards and ran five times for 44 yards before he departed midway in the fourth quarter for substitute Danny White.

Haden completed only nine of 26 passes for 122 yards and had one intercepted before he was relieved by Vince Ferragamo in the fourth quarter.

The Rams lost two starters to injuries in the first half. Wide receiver Billy Waddy suffered a pulled left hamstring, and safety Dave Elmendorf suffered a back injury. Neither returned.

Ram cornerback Pat Thomas was carried from the field with a knee injury late in the fourth quarter.

LOS ANGELES lost guard Dennis Harrah and receiver Ron Jessie with leg injuries last week.

Dorsett finished the game with 103 yards on 24 carries, his third straight game of more than 100 yards.

Staubach's radar was turned on from the start. He nailed Hill with an 18-yard touchdown strike on the Cowboys' first possession.

Septien's extra point try hit the upright.

A 28-yard pass to Hill and a scrambling 20-yard run to the Los Angeles 3 set up Staubach's second TD pass, a toss to Dorsett, who crossed the goal line untouched to give Dallas 13-0 lead.

The Rams got a break on Dallas' next possession when Dorsett streaked 46 yards for an apparent touchdown, but fullback Robert Neuhouse was called for holding to nullify the score.

Earl Campbell runs wild in 28-16 win over Colts

BALTIMORE (AP) — Earl Campbell scored three touchdowns and ran for 149 yards to lead Houston to a 28-16 National Football League victory over the mistake-prone Baltimore Colts Sunday, and propelled the Oilers into a first-place tie in the American Conference Central Division.

Campbell, last year's Conference most valuable player as a rookie and the AFC's leading rusher this year, scored on runs of 7, 20, and 2 yards.

The other TD for the Oilers came on the game's fourth play from scrimmage, as defensive end Jesse Baker picked up a fumble by Baltimore quarterback Greg Landry and lumbered 20 yards for the score.

Landry, again starting in place of the injured Bert Jones, had three passes intercepted — two by league leader Mike Reinfeldt and one by Willie Alexander.

In addition to the fumble and inter- ceptions, the Colts, now 1-6, had several scoring chances stopped by pen- alties or misses on short-yardage situ- ations.

Baltimore's first touchdown came on a 1-yard plunge by Don Hardeman

Rams tormented again

By TED BATTLES
Sports Editor

IRVING — If the Rams were souped up to extract revenge and build their confidence for the annual NFL championship meeting with Dallas as advertised, it's a good thing they didn't show up at Texas Stadium Sunday bored and disinterested.

As it was, they pulled the wool over the eyes of 65,032 fans in losing 30-6 to Dallas in the game that was supposed to hail the end of the easy segment of the Cowboy schedule and introduce the tougher portion with St. Louis and Pittsburgh following on the heels of the feared Rams.

BEATEN THREE times in the NFC championship game and, thereby de- toured from the coveted Super Bowl, this was the game in which the Rams hoped to prove it was all a monstrous mistake. But it didn't turn out that way.

The Cowboys had things all their own way, leading 13-6 at half as the Rams, after falling behind 13-0, showed signs of coming back with two Frank Corral field goals before inter- mission.

But Ron Springs, the rookie from Ohio State, returned the third period kickoff 55 yards to ignite a 17-point burst that had even Cowboy fans, not to mention a national TV audience yawning by the fourth period.

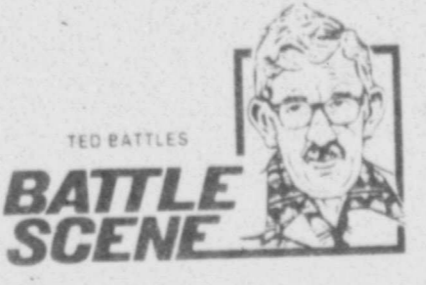

Dallas coach Tom Landry was gra- cious in victory. "The Rams didn't have a good night. That happens to you. It happened to us in Cleve- land."

THE RAMS dead? You better not believe it, cautions Tony Dorsett, who set a Cowboys' record with his third straight 100-yard game. "Maybe we caught them on a bad night. I expect them to be in the playoffs. That's the way it has been year in and year out."

Dorsett also reminded that the Rams beat Dallas, 28-0, last year in the regular season game between the two.

Even that famous Ram baiter, line- backer Thomas Henderson, was char- itable, keeping with his new non-con- troversial image that he has been advised to adopt. "I don't think the Rams came to play. Other than that, I refuse to make any other bad com- ment about them, but they choked again."

One thing everybody agreed on was that Springs' explosive return to open the second half was just the tonic the Cowboys needed to snap Dallas out of its usual second half slia.

"The second quarter was a difficult one for us," said Landry. "We had too many mistakes, but the second half kickoff return by Springs gave us a great lift."

DORSETT AGREED, noting the third period has been a real bumer for the Cowboys in recent weeks, particu- larly in Minnesota last week.

While Los Angeles turned out to be a paper tiger, no matter how non-con- troversial the Cowboys tried to be, the Pittsburgh Steelers are playing like they are punch drunk from scrim- maging radical tires. They have al- ready lost two games and Sunday's licking at the hands of the Bengals was embarrassing. Injuries are blamed, but right now, they aren't even a limping facsimile of the team that beat Dallas in Miami last Janu- ary.

For the Rams, it was more than just a demoralizing defeat. Rams coach Ray Malvasi groaned. "We're hurt- ing, there is no doubt about that. Tonight we lost Dave Elmendorf and Pat Thomas (defensive backs). Ron Jessie is out of course, and tonight we lost our other wide receiver Billy Waddy. With our injuries, we couldn't stay in our defensive game plan. We have a lot of people hurt right now, but we will come back."

IN CONTRAST, Malvasi noted, "Dallas' defense is healthy and that is bad news."

Malvasi felt the Cowboys' defense played with a lot of "intensity" and the addition of tackle John Dutton may have some folks hearing foot- steps.

"Staubach had a great night. I'm sure he has had his bad days. But we caught him on one of his better days," said Malvasi.

Staubach seldom has been sharper. He hit his first nine passes and wound up with 13 of 18 completions for 176 yards. He needed one touchdown pass to equal Don Meredith's Dallas record and he got three. Staubach passed 18 yards to Tony Hill with 8:07 left in the first period to tie the record and broke it with 4:32 left in the half with a three-yarder to Tony Dorsett. Then after Springs' kickoff return, he hit Jay Saldi for a 23-yard score. The other Dallas TD was a one-yard run by Dorsett, who gained 103 yards in 24 carries.

WHILE STAUACH was rewriting the record book, the Cowboys' defense hog tied Rams' quarterback Pat Haden, limiting the Rhodes scholar to 122 yards on nine completions in 26 attempts. "We had an excellent pass rush early and kept Haden under control," Landry said. "Our defense has improved every week, especially against the run, which is how we control the game."

Pirates ready to travel

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Back to Baltimore. That was the battle cry of the Pittsburgh Pirates Sunday after they stayed alive in Game Five of the World Series.

"We're going to go to Baltimore and do some kind of job," said Jim Rooker, an ailing four-game winner in the regular season, who combined with Bert Blyleven to pitch Pitts- burgh to a 7-1 victory over the Balti- more Orioles.

"We bury ourselves. We're going back to Baltimore to undig our- selves," said shortstop Tim Foli, who drove in three runs with a triple and a single.

"If we go there and play Pirate baseball — like we did today — this is going to get interesting," said third baseman Bill Madlock who went 4- for-4.

"This was a heck of a victory. Now we can go back to Baltimore and get some more of that crab," kidded hun- gry team captain Willie Stargell.

Game Six will be played Tuesday night. The Pirates trail three games to two.

In Sunday's must-win game the Pi- rates started Rooker, 4-7, against Baltimore ace Mike Flanagan, who beat Pittsburgh in Game One after a 23-9 regular season.

Cincinnati's Howie Kurnick and Jim LeClair turned Pittsburgh fumbles into touchdowns and Ken Anderson threw scoring passes to tight ends Dan Ross and Rick Walker as the Bengals earned their first victory of the National Football League season Sunday with a 34-0 upset of the Steelers.

The only touchdown for the Steelers, a 2-2 on Terry Bradshaw's 33-yard pass to John Stallworth in the final period. But Pittsburgh coughed up the ball nine times as Cincinnati intercepted Bradshaw twice and recovered seven of the Steelers' nine fumbles.

The outcome left San Francisco as the NFL's only winless team. The 49ers lost 22-16 to the New York Giants as rookie quarterback Phil Simms passed for 300 yards, including two TD tosses to rookie Earnest Gresham.

Craig Morton passed for 218 yards and two touchdowns, lifting Denver past the Chiefs. Oakland's defense forced six Atlanta turnovers while Kenny Stabler and Mark van Eggen passed and ran for five touchdowns as the Raiders routed the Falcons.

David Whitehurst ran for a touchdown and passed to Paul Coffman and Walt Landers for two others in Green Bay's triumph over Detroit. Dan Fouts fired three TD passes in San Diego's victory over the Seahawks.

Bill Rogers has mission

VIRGINIA WATER, England (AP) — Bill Rogers returns to the United States this week with a very special mission.

The lanky Texas golfer earned $61,500 for winning the World Match Play Golf Tournament at Wentworth Sunday and now wants to see more match play events in the United States.

Rogers' enthusiasm for the once-popular type of competition was understandable after he sank a 7-foot putt at the 36th hole to defeat defending champion Isao Aoki of Japan 1-up.

Youngster captures golf title

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — Youngster Ed Fiori calmly knocked in a birdie putt on the second playoff hole Sunday to edge veteran Tom Weiskopf and capture his first tour triumph in the $200,000 Southern Open Golf Tournament.

Fiori and Weiskopf each were tied at 274, 6 under par, after the regulation 72 holes, when leader Mike Reid faltered by bogeying three of his final four holes to finish a stroke behind Fiori.

Fiori had a final round 68 while Weiskopf shot a 70 Sunday over the hilly, 6,791-yard Green Island Country Club course. Both had dramatic birdies to gain playoff berths.

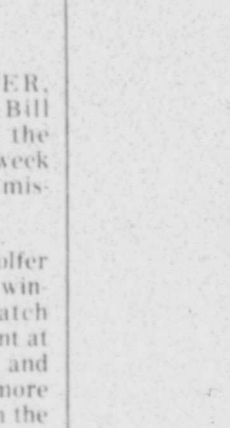

Fiori, a 26-year-old former Houston University golfer, got his on the 17th hole while Weiskopf nailed his on the final green.

Weiskopf, 36, who has earned more than $1.7 million on the tour, blew a chance to win on the first playoff hole, missing a three-foot par putt on the 401-yard, par-4 hole.

"I thought I lost the tournament right there. Tom Weiskopf doesn't miss those very often," said Fiori, who refused to watch the veteran putt. "I didn't want to see it go in."

Weiskopf said, "I just made a birdie putt."
