Jury selection in second day

40 in panel questioned in Chambliss trial

By BILL MODISETT
Staff Writer

Jury selection in the murder trial of 17-year-old Kelly Joe Chambliss of Midland entered the second day this morning in Midland's 238th District Court.

Chambliss is on trial in connection with the July 18 shooting death of 39-year-old Army Sgt. J.B. England on Interstate 20.

Prosecuting and defense attorneys Monday morning began individual examination of the 65 members of the jury panel and by mid-afternoon had questioned nearly 40 of the panel members.

Three of those questioned had been disqualified.

Individual questioning of the jury panel members is being conducted at the request of defense attorneys Allen McFall and Eddie Garza.

The two lawyers had asked Judge Vann Culp to allow them to question prospective jurors individually outside the presence of other potential jurors after he denied a motion for a change of venue in the case last month.

No jurors had been seated to hear the case as of this morning.

District Attorney Vern Martin said Monday jury selection in the case probably would last at least through today, implying testimony might not begin until Wednesday or later.

Martin would not speculate on how long it might take to try the case, although the trial is expected to last at least a week.

Martin did say the state probably will call at least seven or eight witnesses.

A co-defendant in the case, 20-year-old Raymond Wesley Mathis of Midland, was convicted of murder in a week-long trial during September. A jury assessed his punishment at 99 years in prison, and that conviction is now on appeal.

Sgt. England, who was en route from Marion, N.C., to Fort Bliss at El Paso, was found fatally wounded 10 miles east of Midland about 4:30 a.m. July 18. He was taken to Midland Memorial Hospital, where he died shortly before 6 a.m.

Mathis was arrested later July 18 in Ward County and Chambliss was arrested July 19.

According to testimony during Mathis' trial, Sgt. England was wounded three times in the face and once in the left arm.

In a statement entered in his own trial, Mathis contended Chambliss shot the Army sergeant that day.

The case is being prosecuted by Martin and Assistant District Attorney Charles Seltzer.

Earthquake rocks California

CALEXICO, Calif. (AP) — With aftershocks still grumbling, thousands of Imperial Valley residents picked up shattered possessions today after a thundering earthquake injured at least 91 persons.

Police and volunteers patrolled against the threat of looting. Damage from Monday's quake, measuring 6.5 on the Richter scale, was widespread throughout this agricultural valley of 90,000, straddling the U.S.-Mexican border about 100 miles east of San Diego.

Buildings crumbled and roofs collapsed. Automobiles were smashed by falling debris. Highways buckled, including sections of Interstate 8. Twenty rural bridges were damaged. Several fires broke out. Shattered glass was everywhere.

Firefighters stood by as officials worked to drain more than 90,000 gallons of gasoline and aviation fuel at a fuel tank farm near the Imperial Valley Airport. Nearby commercial establishments were evacuated, and authorities said they feared aftershocks could further damage three ruptured tanks, igniting a "mammoth fire."

It was the strongest quake in the 48 contiguous states since the Feb. 9, 1971, Sylmar-San Fernando quake which killed 65 people, and also registered 6.5 on the Richter scale.

A six-story, 8-year-old "earthquake-proof" county government building in El Centro shifted and tilted when support pillars cracked and was declared a total loss by state disaster officials.

"Our building, I thought was going about one foot either way. I guess it was something like being on a rollercoaster," a mayor's aide said.

There were no major problems at El Centro's schools. Students had been sent home at noon as part of a disaster drill. The quake hit at 4:16 p.m.

The All-American Canal, which brings water from the nearby Colorado River to this thirsty desert land, apparently suffered major damage, said authorities, who were to make an aerial survey today.

In Brawley, a water tower toppled and several mobile homes were shaken from their supports. Power and telephone lines were down throughout the valley and many gas and water mains were cracked. El Centro Community Hospital was without water for many hours.

Across the border in Mexicali, where some panic was reported, police officer Apulinar Samaran denied a Red Cross report of one fatality, but raised the number of injured in that city to at least 30.

North of the border, "there were no serious injuries," said Alex Smith, administrator at El Centro Community Hospital. "We had light casualties, bumps and bruises, minor lacerations. The most serious injury was a laceration that did not take stitches."

The quake was felt within a 300-mile radius in California, Arizona, Nevada and Mexico. Tall buildings swayed in Phoenix, Las Vegas, Los Angeles and in San Diego.

Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. cut short an East Coast presidential campaign swing and was to tour the valley this afternoon. Local officials have already declared a state of emergency.

"There was window glass all over the streets. Mannequins were piled up in the windows and chimneys were down," said Dorothy Shook, 55, a store owner in El Centro, one of the hardest hit communities.

Seismologists at the California Institute of Technology in Pasadena said the minute-long tremor was centered 10 miles east of here along the Mexican border and probably on the Imperial Fault, an offshoot of the murderous San Andreas Fault which cuts through much of California.

Earthquakes are not uncommon to the Imperial Valley. On May 18, 1940, an earthquake killed nine persons and disrupted water supply to crops, causing considerable losses. During this century, more than seven major quakes have struck the area.

Many residents of Calexico, El Centro and Brawley were afraid to go back into their homes as foundations shifted, walls cracked, broken glass and debris clattered and electrical power flashed on and off.

Police and volunteers patrolled streets, ready for any looters tempted by hastily boarded up windows and piles of goods on shop floors.

In Brawley, fire department volunteers were camped on the fire station lawn. Streets were flooded from broken water mains and some power lines crackled with sparks.

Odessa police seeking clues in shooting death

ODESSA — Police here today still were searching for clues in the mysterious shooting death of Tommie Joe Turner, 35, of Odessa.

Turner's body, splattered with blood, was found about 1:30 a.m. Monday slumped behind the steering wheel of a car parked across the street from the Diamond Club, 514 East Pearl.

He had been shot one time in the head with a large-caliber weapon, according to reports.

Two bullet holes were found in the passenger side window, but, according to detectives, witnesses heard only one shot fired.

A detective speculated the second bullet hole could have been caused by the bullet fragmenting after it went through Turner's head.

Although several persons apparently heard the shooting, no one saw the assailant. A detective said Turner could have been shot by someone lying in ambush near the club.

Peace Justice Charles Gee Jr. pronounced Turner dead and ordered an autopsy.

Police said two weapons were found in the 1969-model car in which Turner's body was found.

Big crowd supports oil industry

By BILL MODISETT
Staff Writer

Midland attorney Harrell Feldt at noon today urged oil men and women — and oil supporters — attending the Pro-Oil Rally at Midland County Courthouse to attempt "to change energy policies in the right way."

Feldt told the large gathering that the oil and gas industry is held in distrust in some parts of the nation, including Washington, D.C. But, he said, "It really stands for the free enterprise system."

The attorney was only one of several speakers at the event, co-sponsored by the West Texas Geological Society and the Permian Basin Petroleum Association. The Pro-Oil Rally was held one day prior to a national day of protest against the oil and gas industry by a coalition acting under the collective title of "Stop the Oil Profiteers."

Today's noon event was enthusiastic in nature with each speaker being interrupted several times by applause.

Those attending the event carried signs and American flags. Some sat on the courthouse grass. Others lined the sidewalk and walkways in front of the courthouse.

The overriding theme was "support the oil industry" and those present did just that.

"In my opinion this coalition (the anti-oil group) has done a great thing because it brought us together here today," Feldt told the gathering.

Pat Baskin, another Midland attorney, spoke briefly, telling those present that the purpose of the rally was not to attack the coalition. But he charged that actress Jane Fonda, one of the coalition members, is an "enemy" of free enterprise.

Midland Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. took the rostrum briefly and proclaimed today as Oil Industry Appreciation Day in the Tall City.

Angelo said that taxes from the oil industry and related industries have helped make Midland a better city in which to live. Midland County Tax Assessor-Collector Elmo Linebarger reaffirmed Angelo's statement with statistics. In 1935, Linebarger said, the county tax roll was valued at only $6,252,000.

But after oil industry activity started increasing about 1955, he said, the tax roll has expanded to the point where the tax roll value for this year exceeds $363 million and mineral values account for more than $89 million.

Supportive telegrams from Railroad Commissioner John Poerner, U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen and U.S. Rep. Kent Hance also were read to those in attendance.

Bond issue includes ag facilities

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third of a five-part series reviewing the items to be voted on in the Oct. 23, $10.2 million school bond election.

By SUSAN TOTH
Staff Writer

Midland's "new" high school is 30 years old.

Most of the $1.27 million set aside for Lee High School in the $10.2 million bond issue going before voters Oct. 23 can be traced directly to that fact.

The largest single item in the Lee package, however, is a half-million dollars for a vocational agriculture project area.

Vocational agriculture students at both high schools currently use an ag area originally designed for a much smaller program centered entirely at Midland High School.

The current ag barns, located just east of the city limits, are a full 15 miles from Lee, meaning a Lee student travels 150 miles per week making one round trip per day to the farm area.

Growth of the agriculture program at both high schools has resulted in some overcrowded conditions in the animal pens, school officials noted.

The $500,000 set aside for a Lee ag project includes cost for purchasing seven to 10 acres, building barns and pens and necessary fencing and other items.

Some of the construction work at the site will be done by the students, according to Schools Superintendent Dr. James Mailey.

The next largest expenditure in the Lee package is $313,000 for air conditioner and boiler replacement.

"We'll be lucky if the boiler holds out until the bond election," Mailey noted. Trustees approved an emergency item at a recent board meeting to replace one boiler, which had failed.

The $34,900 item could not wait for the bond election, school officials said.

Purchasing the remaining vacant lots across Neely Avenue from the high school and paving the area for parking will take $122,000 from the bond sale, if approved by voters.

The district has purchased roughly half the lots in the vacant strip across from the school, and paving the area will help alleviate a serious shortage of parking at the school.

In addition, $28,000 has been set aside to sealcoat existing lots.

Enlarging the central office area to accommodate the growing administrative staff will cost $51,030. Since the Lee building was constructed, school officials note, counseling services for students have increased.

The office now has little privacy for students seeking or being given advice or counseling and little space for working, storage or central meetings.

Standard maintenance items make up most of the remainder of the Lee bond package.

Reroofing the building will cost $110,000, while $88,000 has been set aside for new floor tiles.

Locker replacement will take $4,500, and $7,000 has been earmarked for new business education furniture.

Surging interest rates mean anxiety for young, elderly in many cities

By GLENN RITT. CHICAGO (AP) — In the nation's big cities and in its small towns, anxiety infects the economic environment, bankers say. Surging interest rates spell frustration and uncertainty for young people seeking their first home, for farmers planning next season's harvest, for merchants anticipating Christmas, and for the elderly fearing a frigid winter and sky-high fuel bills.

They are staring at a prime rate as high as 15 percent, prospects of an unprecedented 14 percent mortgage rate, and a shortfall of funds that make borrowing in many states all but impossible. SOME AREAS, such as Denver, Los Angeles, Houston, and Washington, D.C., — all with booming economies — should weather the tight-money storm better than most others, say these bankers.

Yet, even the nation's capital, considered recession proof by many, will feel the pinch, says William Blomquist, senior vice president of Colonial Service Company, in nearby Rockville, Md. He describes a "tremendous slowdown" in home sales. Like so many in his field, Blomquist won't — or can't — predict when interest rates will fall. Some bankers and home builders hope the credit crunch may ease by next summer.

LAMESA — Dewayne Lee, owner of Lee Office Products, has been named president of the Lamesa Area Chamber of Commerce for next year. The announcement came last week after the chamber board approved a new slate of officers and four new directors.

Roy Byrd was approved as president-elect to give him a year to prepare in taking over as head of the 600 member chamber. Other officers nominated include Doyle McAda and Johnny Grissom, vice-presidents, and Dale Newberry, treasurer.

New directors will be Danny Renner, Tommy Branon, Eugene Barrows, and Fred Vera. Claude Estes was approved to serve the unexpired term of Bill Pratt who died recently. The annual chamber banquet will be held Nov. 13 in the Lamesa High School Student Center.

It was announced the chamber still is searching for a chamber manager. Individual increases will culminate in a general rise in OPEC's set prices. The cartel meets in December to discuss prices.

An overall OPEC price boost could add still more cents to the prices of gasoline and heating oil in the United States. Meanwhile, in California on Monday, a federal judge refused to reconsider his dismissal of a price-fixing suit against the OPEC nations. U.S. District Judge A. Andrew Hauk has ruled OPEC's pricing actions had "no direct impact" on the price of fuel in the United States, and concluded crude oil prices are "lower than they ought to be" in view of inflation and the declining value of the dollar.

Iran's increase, retroactive to Oct. 1, raises the price of its best-quality oil by $1.50, to $23.50 a barrel, and its lesser-quality oil by $2.87, to $22.77 a barrel. "Libya's price rise, effective Monday, tacks 12 percent onto its prices, which vary depending on the quality of oil, which generally is considered high quality. The new prices range from $25.57 to $26.27 a barrel. Libya's increase is seen by analysts as particularly significant because it breaks the $23.50-a-barrel OPEC ceiling.

"It clearly puts them over the ceiling, no ifs ands or buts about that," said Marshall Thomas, markets editor of Petroleum Intelligence Weekly, a New York-based newsletter. The new prices first were revealed by PIW, then confirmed by spokesmen for companies that buy oil from Iran and Libya, including Ashland Oil, Gulf Oil, Marathon Oil and Conoco. The spokesmen would not allow their names to be used.

At their meeting in June, OPEC's members pledged to try to stay below the price ceiling until the December meeting. Saudi Arabia is still selling at $18 a barrel. But there have been increasing signs recently that the barrier was about to crack.

Wednesday: New elementary school Trustee to lead question session. School Trustee Ed Runyan will speak at a question-and-answer session on the Oct. 23 school bond election at Emerson Elementary School at 7:30 p.m. Thursday.

The session is being sponsored by the Emerson PTA, and the public is invited. The $10.2 million bond package, which will be presented to voters as a one-vote, take-it-or-leave-it option, includes $5.5 million for expansion and renovations of the Midland High School campus, $1.3 million for renovations at Lee High School, $2.1 million for a new elementary school, $844,600 in capital improvements and $431,000 for vocational facilities.

Some opponents, however, question the need to go into debt for ordinary upkeep and maintenance items like many of those requested for Lee. Most of the maintenance items could have been taken care of from district reserve funds if the money had not been spent acquiring land around Midland High School, opponents contend.

School trustees acknowledge some reserve funds have been spent on items usually reserved for bond issues. The new vocational building at Midland High School was built with reserves without asking voters to approve bonds. Trustee Johnny Warren noted. And several pieces of property — including the $450,000 Hill property — was purchased with district reserves. "We probably should have had bond

China's most prominent dissident sentenced to 15 years in prison

PEKING (AP) — China's most prominent dissident was convicted today of a counter-revolutionary crime and sentenced to 15 years in prison, spectators leaving the courtroom said. The trial was considered a test of the communist regime's new legal system and its attitude toward dissent and democracy.

The verdict in the day-long trial of Wei Jingsheng, an outspoken young editor, was not announced officially. But spectators leaving the Peking Intermediate Court said 29-year-old Wei had been convicted and sentenced by a judge and two assistants.

Some 700 Chinese spectators streamed out of the courtroom. Chinese TV cameras recorded the proceedings. However, foreign reporters were barred.

Wei, who was editor of the magazine Explorations, was convicted of trying to give military information on the China-Vietnamese border war to French and British journalists. The journalists were not identified.

Acting as his own lawyer, Wei argued that journalists were not involved in the war and therefore he could not betray any secrets.

Two former members of his magazine's staff, assistant editor Yang Guang and Liu Jingsen, apparently testified for the prosecution. They told the three judges of Peking's new Intermediate People's Court the magazine published nothing illegal, but some of its criticism of official policy was improper.

Both men were arrested on March 29 with Wei during a crackdown on dissidents and agitators for human rights. Liu was released in September.

Wei was known for thorough, well-reasoned articles on human rights and democracy as well as scathing criticisms of the government and the Communist Party. One of his articles, The Fifth Modernization, said China never can become a modern country without democracy.

About a dozen prominent young activists and about 30 others are believed to have been arrested last spring after criticism of the party became too pointed. Wei was the first to be put on trial publicly. Informed sources said another dissident, Mrs. Fu Yuehua, would be tried Wednesday, but nothing could be learned about the charges against her.

Foreign reporters asked Chairman Hua Guofeng on Oct. 7 what was going to happen to the dissidents and what was the future of democracy in China. He replied that the regime was "working steadily" to extend "socialist democracy" and perfect the legal system, but "we oppose anarchism and the use of democracy for infringing upon the rights of other people."

"If we do not oppose anarchism and those slandering and libeling others at will on the pretext of freedom, social disorder will result," he added. "Infractions of the law will be dealt with according to law."

Last summer, the National People's Congress adopted a code of criminal and procedural law which provides for free and open trials and the right of the accused to speak in his defense, choose a lawyer and appeal against the verdict and sentence.

Arabs give $10,000 to Jackson

CHICAGO (AP) — The Rev. Jesse Jackson, asserting that Arabs must join the human rights struggle in "dollars and bodies," says he solicited and received $10,000 in Arab money and pledges for Operation PUSH, a newspaper columnist reports.

Chicago Sun-Times columnist Roger Simon said Jackson, who heads PUSH — a civil rights self-help group, confirmed the solicitations and contributions in a telephone interview.

The column, printed in today's editions, quoted an unidentified Arab source who said the money was requested in a closed meeting Saturday between blacks and Arab Americans at PUSH headquarters in Chicago.

"Any relationship must have reciprocity," Jackson told the Sun-Times.

Guantanamo beach assault delayed for television crews

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Military officials have delayed a scheduled beach assault at the U.S. Navy base at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba — in part to make it easier for television crews to cover the landing.

More than 1,700 Marines from North Carolina bases were to have landed at dawn Wednesday. But the Joint Chiefs of Staff have changed the assault time to 8:30 a.m. the same morning.

Military officials said Monday the time change would provide for additional light for TV cameras, and would also keep Marines from hurting themselves while boarding boats in the dark. Marines will be sent ashore from three Navy ships to simulate the reinforcement of the 420 Marines already at the base.

President Carter ordered the maneuvers in response to reports that Soviet troops are training in Cuba. There is a dual purpose for the drills — to demonstrate that the United States can defend its possessions and to give the Marines and the Navy practice.

To demonstrate U.S. power, arrangements have been made to help get the news out with Navy and Air Force spokesmen telling reporters when they can see the assault.

What Are Our Priorities?

Midland has always risen to meet the challenges of being a better city — especially in the educational arena. Our schools have been operated economically by a cost-conscious administration and board. EXCEPT FOR AIR-CONDITIONING, WE HAVE NOT VOTED BONDS TO BUILD NEW SCHOOLS OR IMPROVE OLD ONES SINCE 1965. But the time has come: we must build a new elementary school, expand the Midland High School campus to meet student needs, and repair, renovate and update buildings which are twenty to thirty years old. We can't afford to wait any longer!

Here's What It Will Cost:

If Your House Is Worth	Your Yearly Tax Increase
$50,000.00	$18.49
$40,000.00	$14.79
$30,000.00	$11.09

Jane and Tom on tour

Those self-appointed evangelists of the anti-nuclear faith, Jane Fonda and Tom Hayden, have been stumping the nation of late to preach their California message to the unbelievers.

It is likely that their listeners everywhere are confused at the notion that America can afford to shut down its nuclear power plants at this juncture.

Jane and Tom, incidentally, are taking time off from their 50-city tour Wednesday to conduct pro-test rallies against the oil industry in Chicago. This is right in line with their overall objectives.

The message being preached on their anti-nuclear tour seems to be a blend of oil-fashioned populism and New Left economics: break up big business, dismantle the nuclear power plants, shackle the oil companies, and turn to the sun for energy. This is a philosophy which is guaranteed to stimulate disagreement in all parts of the nation.

Right now the nation's 71 nuclear power plants provide 9 percent of America's electricity. The excess generating capacity of the nation's utility companies is shrinking under the impact of rampant environmentalism, and there are those who would be left in the dark if nuclear power suddenly were switched off.

And, despite engineering to the contrary, no one knows how much of the back could be taken up by solar power, or when, or what it would cost. Nor are there other available energy sources which recommend themselves in the short run. Gas is becoming scarce, fuel oil is becoming more expensive and coal still is said to be dirty.

The nation sorely needs its present 53 billion kilowatt-hour nuclear generating capacity and it cannot afford to give up this or any other energy option for the future.

Nuclear power certainly is a proper subject for debate and study which should be centered on how to make nuclear reactors safer, not on how to shut them down.

Fonda and Hayden are doing their countrymen a disservice by appealing to their fear of the atom instead of promoting ways to better harness it for safe and peaceful service to mankind. But doing their countrymen a disservice certainly is nothing new for the couple. Miss Fonda in particular

Critical needs

To The Editor:
This year is my 25th year as an employee of the Midland Independent School District, and currently I am serving as Principal of Crockett Elementary School. The factor which attracted me to Midland, and has continued to keep me and my family in Midland, has been the support of the community in keeping the Midland Public Schools the best in every way. The school bond election needs to pass in order to keep this standard.

All needs are critical. I particularly would like to write about the needs of the elementary schools, since from personal experience I know how necessary these are for everyday maintenance and future needs. The maintenance items are needed just to keep up with the day to day repairs, and these repairs are money saving over the long term. The up-to-date lighting and replacement of old tiles and heaters are needed repairs that cannot be delayed much longer.

Midland is growing and needs to continue to have room for growth. In three years, as the town grows to the north and west around the Loop Road area, the MISD will be 26 classrooms short. That is the size of the new elementary school. I would hate to see one-half day sessions for elementary students in Midland, and this would surely happen without the needed space.

So, Midland! Let's do it now for the future of our children. Vote for the school bonds Oct. 23.

'Poor' people

To The Editor:
No thinking person could contend that the enormous taxes which government seeks to impose on oil producers would not decrease domestic supplies from that which would be obtained under a free market. The most often repeated excuse for the adoption of this national disaster is that the tax is needed to defray the higher fuel costs of the poor.

One question I have not heard asked is who would pay the fuel costs of the poor when that which they are taxing for the purpose is no longer available to tax? The poor are increasing in numbers primarily because the government is making it profitable to be poor. It would appear that increasing numbers to share the tax in combination with declining production will soon drive the tax and price of crude oil to levels that would cause the entire nation to become poor. Obviously, our national destiny is not as important as it is for some politicians to be re-elected.

All of the so-called synfuels processes are much more energy intensive than are the production of oil and gas. These processes will be feasible only in areas where coal, atomic, and hydroelectric power can be employed to fuel the process. The synfuels will be too expensive to bear the burdens of even that of present taxation of oil and gas production.

We should develop a synfuels industry in a reasoned and orderly manner, but that will require that it be accomplished by private industry. Government's role should be in removing road blocks, and not in destroying the oil and gas producers in order to make their operation justifiable and feasible.

If the government's program is adopted, the youth of today had better prepare to exert a lot of muscle power, and to experience what it is like to be poor.

Howdy, Cities Service

Top officials of Cities Service Oil Co. from Tulsa, Okla., are visiting in the Tall City, and Midlanders are delighted to have this group of distinguished business executives as special guests.

They will be honored late this afternoon at a reception given by The Midland Wildcat Committee in the Petroleum Club.

The Cities Service group includes Charles J. Waidelle, president, and Ray Dodson; Bob Sampson, Jack Phillips and Lox Stayton, vice presidents, all of Tulsa, and Charles Hartwell, general manager of the company's Midland-based Southwest Division.

It is fitting that the Tulsa group should be here on the day when Midland and area residents are standing up for the petroleum industry by staging a massive "Permian Basin Pro-Oil Rally," demonstrating their support for and appreciation of the oil and gas industry, which means so much to this particular region, as well as to the rest of the nation. This country very definitely needs more widespread rallies and demonstrations in support of the oil industry, offsetting the rabble-rousers who would destroy it.

Cities Service Oil Co. long has been a good corporate citizen of the Tall City, and the firm's personnel through the years have distinguished themselves in various ways in community service. Cities Service fills its citizenship role exceptionally well.

Midland and Midlanders join in welcoming their Tulsa visitors and in wishing for them a profitable and enjoyable stay here.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Time to collect pieces of puzzle

WASHINGTON — The shadowy figure of fugitive James Earl Ray, who keeps appearing in the headlines, is the White House's only known new recruit in the presidential campaign. He is the only one who has been named in the White House's list of potential nominees for the job.

In Atlanta, one of the most important cities in the South, Ray has been named in the White House's list of potential nominees for the job. He is the only one who has been named in the White House's list of potential nominees for the job.

group transport planes for Libya. There appears to have been whisperings and winkings — gossamer substances that are hard to put a finger on — but no bribes apparently exchanged hands. The names of Spencer Lee, Billy Carter and Democratic National Chairman John White have been dragged into the investigation.

Despite Vesco's ghostly presence haunting the investigators, the Justice Department seems strangely hesitant to inquire too deeply into Vesco's role. The FBI arranged to send agents to question Vesco a few months ago, but the interrogation was abruptly called off at the last minute.

Yet Vesco apparently could tell the investigators plenty. Taped telephone conversations between Vesco and his associates in Georgia indicate that he possesses documents, tapes and other evidence that would implicate White House insiders. At one point, Vesco considered producing his evidence to help an associate, R.L. Herring, plea bargain with the Justice Department.

Secret tapes have been submitted to the Washington grand jury of telephone conversations between Vesco and Herring's brother, Ronnie. In one, declared Vesco, "The trigger to everything will be a letter that I'll send to the grand jury."

"OK, I gotcha," replied Ronnie Herring.
"And once that goes," said Vesco, "the s... 's gonna hit the fan."

"Right..." agreed Herring.
"And then make that a public letter to the foreman of the grand jury," Vesco continued, "and once that happens it puts everybody in a corner."

"Huh-huh..." said Herring eagerly.
"Because there's no way they can get out of this," Vesco reiterated. "Once you publicly, or I publicly send a letter like that, I mean it's off and running."

No letter was received and the Justice Department has made no effort to find out what Vesco's explosive revelation might be. R.L. Herring, meanwhile, has been convicted of racketeering and fraud in an unrelated case.

The reason for the Justice Department's reluctance to deal with Vesco, a top official told us, is that it might play into his hands. The official suspects that Vesco may have tried to entrap people close to the president for bargaining purposes. Then he could offer his testimony against White House insiders in return for immunity for himself, the official explained.

But no matter how dubious Vesco's motives may have been, the real question is whether he hooked anyone inside the White House. The sworn testimony of White House intimates, say Justice Department sources, has not been impressive. Some have offered amnesiac defenses; others have engaged in manufactured confusion.

Spencer Lee failed at least two lie detector tests, official sources told us. This raises doubts about the testimony of presidential aide Richard Harden who corroborated Lee's story under oath. The president's personal attorney, Charles Kirbo, was also heard on tape advising a key witness not to be "too open" with the FBI.

Yet the Justice Department has divided the investigations between so many prosecutors and grand juries that no one possesses all the jigsaw pieces. If the Watergate probe had been fragmented like this, the full scandal might never have been pieced together.

Nor is there a Judge John Sirica to draw out the truth by dispensing limited immunity to cooperative witnesses and stiff sentences to stone-wallas. On the contrary, the Justice Department has acted swiftly to indict several witnesses who could testify against Carter intimates. This had the effect of discrediting those who testified before the grand jury, while others were advised by their attorneys not to testify at all.

So the grand juries, in effect, have been obstructed from getting the whole truth. Apparently, this is one reason that Ralph Ulmer, foreman of the Washington grand jury, complained to the judge that the Justice Department had been engaging in "manipulation," "duplicitous" and "cover-up."

Parking need

To The Editor:
I am particularly interested in one "Bait" item in the school bond election and that is the $122,000 to purchase land and paying for a Lee High parking lot. There is a very urgent need for that parking lot — on that MISD and I agree! Lee High is located right next to Rusk Elementary School. Until three years ago, the traffic congestion was limited to the east side of Lee and has always caused problems for those residents.

When the vocational facility was constructed to the west side with NO additional parking included anywhere, the traffic and residential parking problem not only moved to the elementary school area, but also became a serious safety hazard to every school-aged child in this area.

I consulted with some school board members on this problem last winter and was told that the district was out of surplus funds to pave a parking lot at Lee even though they already own the land around the vocational building and a respectable portion of land on the south side of Neely Avenue. (They did pave a much-needed parking lot for Midland High however!)

WHY, do you suppose, are there no surplus funds? If one consults the School Board minutes since February 1977, one will find that those surplus funds have already been spent purchasing land around Midland High (in addition to the Hill property).

The bond election was called last month. The money has been spent for two and a half years. Isn't this putting the cart way before the horse?

Yes, we desperately need that parking lot for the safety of all who attend Rusk Jr who catch a bus there, but I'm not sure I can swallow the whole pill to get it. I feel the land MISD already owns can be paved for a lot less than $122,000 and, should the bond election fail, the parking lot as well as the other miscellaneous maintenance items can be put in the budget where they should have been included in the first place.

INSIDE REPORT:

Soviet SALT I flimflammy endangers SALT II approval

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — A "top secret" report on Soviet failures to comply with SALT I is posing new verification problems for President Carter as he tries to revive SALT II and push it through the Senate.

Whatever the outcome of Carter's effort to get the new Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty (SALT II) back on the tracks, the National Security Council (NSC) report to the Senate Intelligence Committee — the most comprehensive study of Soviet-SALT I performance ever sent Congress — shows a pattern of apparent cheating that spells trouble on the verification front.

Beyond that, SALT specialists are asking why this factual log of Soviet misconduct should be classified "top secret" when everything in it has long been known to the Kremlin. Some senators, surprised at the specificity of the NSC study, will insist that both Congress and the public be given routine access to proven cases of sharp Soviet practices in the future.

The most shocking exhibit in the July 20 document reveals elaborate Soviet contortions to avoid "dismantling or destruction" of older-model ICBMs as newer missiles have come into the Soviet arsenal. Called to account by the U.S. more than three years ago, the Soviets are still trying to wiggle out of what the report calls "precise conformity" with the treaty.

launched missiles had passed the trigger point set by the treaty for dismantling two types of older ICBMs — the SS-7 and the SS-8. So, in March 1978, the Ford administration complained to the Soviets, demanding to know why 51 ICBMs had not been dismantled by March 1 as required under the treaty.

The Soviet member of the U.S.-Soviet Commission set up to police compliance admitted that 41 of the 51 launchers had not been destroyed but would be by June 1. The U.S. Commissioner called this non-compliance a "serious matter."

On June 1, the U.S. was formally told that the Soviet Union "was in full compliance." That was the first factual misstatement; during the summer of 1978 "discrepancies at a number of launch sites continued to be observed" by U.S. intelligence, the report states.

At the next compliance session in September 1978, the U.S. again raised these "discrepancies," noting "the failure to remove dismantled fuel storage tanks and missile transporter vehicles from some dismantled launch sites.

The Soviet Commission claimed that "all required items have been completed" — but gave no more to check its information.

By April 1979, intelligence again reported that "some dismantled propellant tanks had not been removed without causing the U.S. to say 'there was still a question with regard to fully satisfactory' agreed procedure."

Move now to October 1978, the next meeting of the compliance commission. The U.S. again charged that "not all the requirements had been fully satisfied at several sites, and again demanded a reply. The Soviet Commission again promised to resolve this complaint to Moscow, but the Carter administration, in the absence of negotiable SALT II progress, refused further pursuit of the matter."

But one year later, in October 1979, the U.S. was charged in a complaint again about Soviet "discrepancies" at the same old sites. "The dismantling or destruction of the propellant tanks had not occurred in all cases," "major discrepancies" still existed at four sites. Gently charging the report states that this was "not a compliance matter" because the U.S. experts "expressed confidence" with the treaty.

The issue is still under investigation. Last April the U.S. again charged that "dismantling or destruction of ICBM launchers" were "not complete at certain sites in the USSR."

Although Carter administration officials claim that its report proves U.S. verification tools are working, skeptics worry that the evidence of multiple Soviet efforts to cheat makes it virtually certain that some of those efforts must succeed.

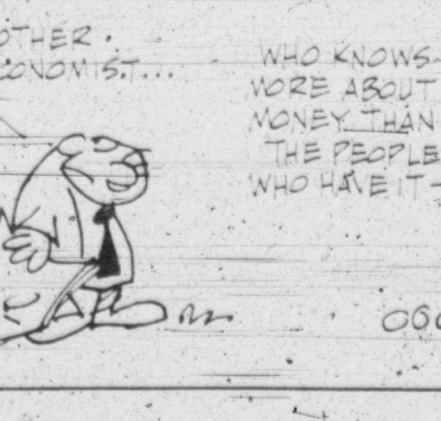

A bleaker view, held by some intelligence experts, is that one purpose of the long Soviet battle to avoid "precise conformity" with SALT I has been to test how good U.S. verification procedures really are by forcing the U.S. to tell what it knows about Soviet cheating.

If so, selectively cheating under SALT I may have produced new Soviet methods to avoid detection for cheating under SALT II. Despite its careful, almost powder-puff language, that is the unavoidable message of the NSC report.

Texas A&M engineering lecturer Wilbur L. Zingery studies one of the mechanical devices he uses to instruct students at the university. Inertial systems may soon come into common usage, Zingery says.

Engineer sees many possibilities for private use of laser gyros.

COLLEGE STATION — An engineer who develops laser gyroscopes for private industry and teaches measurement techniques to Texas A&M University students says every Bay Scout soon may have his own official pocket inertial navigator.

Wilbur L. Zingery, a 1950 Texas A&M graduate, works part of the year for Lear Siegler Inc. of Grand Rapids, Mich., on the laser gyroscopes. These devices use a circulating laser light beam to sense small changes in direction and motion.

Zingery, who was reared in Fort Worth and graduated from New Mexico Military Institute in Roswell, N.M., has visited in Midland on numerous occasions. He is the brother of Orpha Zingery Campbell, 2003 Country Club Drive.

Laser gyros are being developed for inertial guidance systems in military aircraft or ships for navigation and agricultural applications or in commercial aviation. Improvements in the devices will soon make it possible to use rugged laser gyros in more common applications. Techniques and hardware used in such systems will also have everyday application, such as in measuring cotton moisture, stress in machinery, dozens of tasks in oil exploration and a variety of other jobs.

Each September Zingery returns to the classroom to pass on some of the state-of-the-art technology in industry to his agricultural engineering students.

"These basics of real-world measurement devices and techniques give Texas A&M students confidence they can measure and control anything demanded by industry," he said.

To solve real problems, the student learns to use basics from all disciplines he has studied, Zingery added.

"If a light beam or sound wave can do a job better than a mechanical linkage, we put on a physicist hat and use it," the engineer explained. "If not, we'll be mechanical engineers for that job."

Usually, a good solution involves a combination of physics, chemistry, electronics, metallurgy, mechanics and all the other disciplines. We also emphasize hands-on experience," Zingery said.

The agricultural engineering lecturer, a former Air Force pilot, has been a leader in industrial research and development of inertial sensors many years. He organized and directed industrial research for Rockwell, Litton and Lear Siegler.

Zingery has numerous patents on control devices, laser and nuclear gyros and laser accelerometers. He was involved in perfecting the Minuteman missile navigation and guidance system and a submarine autonavigator.

'Birthday party' stresses Carter's current political advantages

By MICHAEL J. SNIFFEN

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is holding a White House birthday party Friday to honor one of his most popular urban programs and, not incidentally, to remind the recipients that he made it possible.

The event will draw attention to the ace in Carter's presidential poker hand: He has money to hand out.

No other 1980 presidential candidate-in-waiting can put on such a show to point out to politically powerful people what he has done for them. Thus, the reception is in the same tradition that spurred President Gerald R. Ford to hold so many events in the White House garden during the summer of 1976 that Democrats accused him of running a Rose Garden campaign.

Carter, who complained recently that presidential campaigns start earlier each time, is inviting 200 mayors, governors, congressmen and private businessmen to an East Room reception. This urban constituency includes many liberal Democrats, who might be tempted to back Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts against Carter for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Before the tea and cookies, they'll hear Carter and perhaps a mayor and a congressman sing the praises of the Urban Development Action Grant program, signed into law exactly two years and one week earlier.

One White House official, who asked not to be named (described the purpose this way: "This is a Jimmy Carter program. It works very well. He's proud of that and wants everyone to know it."

Asked if the real purpose were to remind a politically potent group what Carter had done for them, the official replied, "Presumably the shopping malls and jobs that have been created out there remind them of that on a daily basis, but perhaps tea and cookies help jog the memory."

"We'll be campaigning on the president's record, and this is a good part of it," the official added. "When you run on your record, you've got to tell people what it is."

The anniversary almost slipped by unmarked. Late last Friday, political appointees in the legislative office at the Department of Housing and Urban Development, which runs the program, were asked to come in to work on Sunday to help prepare a guest list.

So seven HUD employees spent up to four hours going over the lists of UDAG recipients.

Administration sources, who declined to be identified, said subtractions and additions were made to that list to be sure it:

—was adequately bipartisan and female;

—did not overlook leaders among urban and state lobbying groups; and

—included, among the congressmen who pushed UDAG, a few that the administration would like to see push its SALT II treaty with the Soviet Union.

The guest of honor, UDAG, has piled up impressive statistics. Ac-ording to the White House, it has put $935 million in federal money into 493 projects in the most distressed inner cities of America. This money has attracted $5.6 billion in private investment, created 151,000 permanent jobs and 132,000 temporary ones, saved another 81,000 which might have fled to the suburbs and added an estimated $90 million to local property tax collections.

Carter, Kennedy battle for Byrne's 'affections'

CHICAGO (AP) — President Carter is leading Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, at least for the moment, in a race for the political affections of Chicago's Democratic mayor, Jané Byrne.

Introducing Carter at what was billed as the largest political dinner in Chicago history, Mrs. Byrne gave Carter her support Monday night for a second term.

The mayor spoke to a claimed audience of 12,000 a few hours after receiving a telegram from Kennedy, Carter's likely rival for the 1980 presidential nomination, which said, "just remember that I have known you and loved you and Chicago longer..."

After hailing Carter as "the savior of the nation's big cities," Mrs. Byrne stole the show from her guest from Washington by declaring:

"I do not think we can afford a national intra-party blood bath at this critical time. The times call for unity and discipline."

"It'll be at our peril to flout the national political tradition that an incumbent deserves a second term upon reasonable performance and dedication to the national welfare."

After that statement drew a mixed reaction from the crowd of diners, Mrs. Byrne added that it would be "presumptuous and premature" for her to endorse Carter now. But she quickly added that if she were voting at the moment as a delegate to the Democratic National Convention, she would support Carter "without hesitancy."

The mayor departed from her prepared text to add, "I hope you are listening."

When it was Carter's turn to speak, the president recited a long list of federal grants and other programs benefiting Chicago. Then he made an indirect reference to the 1980 campaign, saying: "As a Democrat and as president, I'm not afraid; in fact, I look forward to tough political fights, and with your help we will not lose those fights ahead."

Chicago was the second and final stop on a two-day Carter tour that began in Kansas City, Mo., with an appearance at the National Conference of Catholic Charities.

Before returning to the White House today, the president was heading for suburban Dolton and an hour-long town meeting with citizens at a local high school.

Kennedy's telegram to Mrs. Byrne ostensibly was prompted by a luncheon the mayor attended Monday to salute neighborhood programs.

"I admire the leadership you have provided in promoting neighborhood strength," the Massachusetts Democrat wired Mrs. Byrne. "And just remember that I have known you and loved you and Chicago longer..."

Mrs. Byrne cautioned against inferring too much from the telegram but said she thought it was a nice gesture. "No one can change the fact that I know Teddy. He's like a friend and I think it's very nice of him."

Investigation of Carter warehouse loans to end

WASHINGTON (AP) — Special Counsel Paul J. Curran is winding up his seven-month investigation into nearly $7 million in bank loans provided President Carter's peanut warehouse in Georgia.

There were indications that Curran would not recommend any indictments. But there were no official statements on the outcome of the probe before Curran's news conference today.

A high administration source hinted to The Associated Press that the report would be good news for the president. The source asked not to be named.

There also were no known sealed indictments in the investigation, and the grand jury in Atlanta handling the case was sent home last week, reportedly with no instructions to return today.

A lawyer representing the president's brother, Billy, told reporters he had no word from Curran on any indictment of his client.

Second Davis juror injured

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A juror in the Cullen Davis murder-solicitation trial broke his arm as he ran to his car during a rainstorm Monday, but trial sources indicated he should be able to continue on the jury, averting a mistrial in the case.

Edwin Dennis, 26, was running through the rain outside the Tarrant County Courthouse after Monday's adjournment when he fell on the wet pavement, breaking his arm.

Several weeks ago juror Kathryn Holman broke a leg and was unable to continue. Judge Gordon Gray decided to continue the trial with 11 jurors, as permitted by state law.

Sources said had Dennis been unable to serve, the number of jurors would drop to 10, and state law would require that a mistrial be declared. However, one participant in the trial said Dennis probably would be able to continue.

The first time Davis was brought to trial on the charge, a Houston jury was unable to reach a verdict and a mistrial was declared.

In the courtroom, before Dennis' accident, prosecuting attorneys led millionaire Davis through a statement-by-statement recounting of a tape-recorded conversation with his chief accuser, claiming Davis' explanation of the tape is "absurd."

Fred Flintstone and a group of pretty "toy soldiers" prepare for the March of the Toy Soldiers in the "Wiz City" number in the 40th anniversary Ice Capades, coming Tuesday to Odessa's Ector County Coliseum for eight shows. Tickets for all performances through Oct. 21 are now on sale at Albertsons in Midland and at the coliseum box office.

'Three by Two' next Midland Community Theatre play

"Three by Two" is the title of Midland Community Theatre's next special production.

The production consists of three one-act plays by two talented playwrights—hence the title—and it will have a series of performances in Theatre Two, the smaller, more intimate arena theater inside Theatre Midland, 2000 W. Wadley Ave.

"Three by Two" will have its opening presentation at 8:30 p.m. Friday, with additional performances scheduled Saturday night and Oct. 25, 26, 27 and 28, and Nov. 1, 2 and 3.

Theatre Two has a seating capacity of only 105, so early reservation of tickets is advised. Seat reservations may be made by dialing the MCT box office, 682-4111.

"Three by Two," described as an evening of wit and satire, presents "Adaptation" by playwright actress Elaine May, and "Next" and "Botticelli" by Terrence McNally.

"Three by Two" provides an evening that is funny, provocative and, in its own way, touching. The plays are all satirically concerned, in different ways, with the frustrations, disappointments or hang-ups of modern life.

"Adaptation" dissects "The American Dream" and presents life as a television game show, with the contestant moved like a checker across a marked board as he journeys, fibs and cheats his way through the game of life. The cast includes Bill Shaner, Jesse Grimes, Mark Phillips and Holly Mathias.

"Next" is a comedy set in an Army induction center and tells the story of an overweight, over-age and over-wrought draftee who, through a computer error, has been summoned for physical exam. The two roles in the play, that of an overbearing WAC sergeant and the reluctant draftee, are played by Jeanne Haralson and Dean McLean respectively.

In the third play, "Botticelli," two American soldiers are involved in an intellectual guessing game while waiting for a trapped enemy soldier to show himself. It is a biting, satirical vignette. The cast members are Corby Considine, Steven Roche and Monte Cionally.

"Three by Two" has been staged and directed by Rick Schiller as his final production as Midland Community Theatre's managing director. The production stage manager is Vivian Gillaspia.

U.S. to protest Korean anti-democratic tactics

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Carter administration plans to increase its contacts with South Korean opposition leaders to protest what it regards as anti-democratic tactics by the country's pro-government parties, State Department officials say.

The officials, who asked not to be identified, emphasized that the strategy is not aimed at undermining President Park Chung-hee, but rather at showing support for more democratic political procedures.

"We believe it is in South Korea's interest to move toward freer political processes, and we are determined to convey that message to South Korean authorities," one official said.

In recent days, administration officials have been discussing ways to signal the United States' displeasure over the Oct. 4 decision of South Korea's pro-government parties to expel opposition leader Kim Young-sam from the National Assembly.

The administration initially responded by recalling Ambassador William Gleysteen to Washington the day after Kim was expelled. On Saturday, all opposition party members of the National Assembly resigned to protest the expulsion.

Gleysteen accompanied by Defense Secretary Harold Brown, was to fly back to Seoul today. Brown will meet with South Korean officials for the annual U.S.-South Korean consultations on the security situation in Northeast Asia.

State Department officials made it clear they do not intend to condition U.S. security commitments to South Korea on Park's domestic policies.

"We're not going to play games with our security relationship," an official said, adding that any weakening of American commitments would be ineffective and would be opposed by both pro- and anti-government parties in South Korea.

LEE YOUTH CENTER CHATTER Homecoming activities begin

HOME COMING, that's right, Rebs. The big week is finally here, so grab a date and don't be late to all the fun-filled activities as we welcome home our Exes and cage those crummy Cooper Cougars from Abilene.

Homecoming activities will get under way beginning at 6 p.m. Thursday with our train truckin' Rebel Express homecoming parade. The parade will begin at Midland College, going west down Wadley, south on Midkiff and west on Neely. Come see the beautiful Homecoming's Dutchesses; Melinda Cravens, Jill Mutchler, Phyllis Peete, Jennifer Rankin and Lisa Sherrod. One of those lovely Dixie Belles will be the 1979 Homecoming Queen.

Also participating in the parade will be the mighty Rebel Band joined by the bands from Lee Freshman School, Alamo Junior High and Goddard Junior High School. All club sweethearts, floats, Rebelettes, cheerleaders and key club entries also will be featured. Our parade will end in the east parking lot of Lee and we will burn the over-confident Cougars with a raging bonfire and super spirited pep rally to fire up our mighty Rebel Express to a victory Friday night.

If you didn't make the trip to San Antonio Friday night, you missed seeing our Mighty Macs come out with a 14-0 district win as they continue to roll down the track to State!

Way to go, Varsity. Our Stonewall Brigade also defeated the bruised-up Bobcats with the same score of 14-0. That's the way to keep up the undefeated Rebel tradition.

U.S., Pakistan begin talks on Pakistani nuclear plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — American officials say they are not optimistic about finding a solution to the issue of Pakistan's nuclear development plans.

U.S. and Pakistani officials were to begin today two days of high-level talks on the problem that has soured relations between the two nations.

Agha Shahi, foreign affairs adviser to Pakistan's President Mohammed Zia-ul-Haq, was heading the Pakistani delegation, and Secretary of State Cyrus Vance was opening the meeting for the United States.

State Department officials said there was no indication that either side was prepared to compromise about Pakistan's nuclear program, which the Carter administration says is aimed at building a nuclear weapon. The officials asked not to be identified.

The administration halted new economic assistance programs for Pakistan earlier this year because of the Pakistani nuclear program. Officials said a congressional non-proliferation law required the cutoff.

Pakistan says it will not abandon the nuclear option unless its neighbors, India and China, also forego it.

The Pakistanis have been assembling the components for a plant that could make weapons-grade nuclear material, a key component in nuclear bombs, the State Department has charged.

Premier submits resignation

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — Premier Bulent Ecevit submitted the resignation of his 21-month-old government to President Fahri Koruturk today and recommended that his chief political rival, former Premier Suleyman Demirel, be asked to form a new government.

However, Koruturk may have to call a general election to resolve the new government crisis. Demirel will find it difficult or impossible to put together a majority in the National Assembly. Aides report that since his centrist Justice Party won 47 per cent of the vote in the midterm elections Sunday, he would prefer an early general election so his party could increase its representation in the assembly.

Ecevit, his government crippled by months of slipping parliamentary support, resigned because of the severe losses his moderately leftist Republican People's Party suffered in the election. But he warned that the political crisis should not be prolonged since the nation was beset by murderous political terrorism and grave economic troubles.

Forty-seven refugees drown

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — Forty-seven Vietnamese refugees drowned when their 27-foot wooden boat capsized in the rough South China Sea, the chief U.S. refugee officer in Kuala Lumpur said today.

The officer, Joe Gettier, said the drowning was reported to U.S. and U.N. refugee officials by a sole survivor who made it to the Trengganu coast, 180 miles northeast of here, on two steel oil drums tied together.

Gettier said the United States and U.N. officials had no reason to doubt the details given by the survivor, 20-year old Nguyen Van Voc.

Voc said he and the other refugees left Vietnam on Oct. 1. He gave the following account.

Their boat was attacked by Thai pirates in the first week, and on Oct. 8 it encountered bad weather and rough seas and capsized.

All drowned except for seven who floated about clinging to various items. Voc clung to a plastic tube.

After a day the others drowned and only he was left alive.

Two days after the boat capsized, on Oct. 10, a cargo vessel picked Voc up.

He was exhausted. The crew of the cargo vessel fed him and he recovered.

On Oct. 12 the crew tied together two steel oil drums, covered him with vaseline and set him adrift near the Malaysian coast.

On Saturday, Oct. 13, he reached the shores of Trengganu where a patrol boat picked him up.

He has been put into the Pulau Bidong refugee camp in Orennganu where there are about 25,000 other Vietnamese refugees.

About 150 Vietnamese refugees drowned when their boat sank off Kuala Trengganu last year, and the latest loss of life was believed one of the biggest at sea since then.

Baryshnikov resigns from NYC Ballet company

NEW YORK (AP) — Mikhail Baryshnikov has resigned from the New York City Ballet because he is plagued by severe tendinitis and needs about four months to recover, he confirmed Monday.

While he won't appear with the City Ballet, Baryshnikov plans to honor commitments to perform outside of the troupe.

Four days of scheduled performances in Louisville, Ky., were to start as planned Tuesday and Baryshnikov was expected to appear with a small group of City Ballet dancers in Fort Worth, Texas; Biloxi, Miss., and Memphis, Tenn.

"I'm afraid to continue," the 31-year-old ballet star said. "It is my old problem with my tendinitis, but it is not just one injury. My doctors advised me to take a few months' rest."

Colonels oust head of regime

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Two colonels reputed to be moderates favoring order and democracy ousted the head of El Salvador's right-wing military regime, called on leftists and rightists to end months of violence and promised both a part in the nation's future.

Col. Jaime Abdul Gutierrez and Adolfo Arnoldo Najano forced the resignation of President Carlos Humberto Romero after their supporters took control of five key military bases Monday. One person, an army captain, was reported killed.

A spokesman for the colonels said an air force plane took Romero to Guatemala.

The coup leaders were reported to be military instructors in their 40's.

San Salvador, the capital, was calm, and the rebels said they were in complete control of the country's 14 military departments.

The new regime said in its first communique: "The high command of the new revolutionary government places its confidence in Col. Jaime Abdul Gutierrez and (Col.) Adolfo Arnoldo Najano but will soon announce the names of other members of the military-civilian junta that will rule the country."

It said the armed forces will "direct the destiny of the country, taking into account the participation of everyone during the time that will permit first establishing the bases and atmosphere proper to establish a democracy and assure free elections where the will of all Salvadorans is reflected."

The communique said Romero was ousted "in view of the anarchy in the country as a consequence of the activities by extremists which (the government) has been incapable of resolving."

Andrus endorses pipeline route across United States

By JAMES PHILLIPS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus, rejecting three routes through Canada, is recommending that President Carter approve a $1.2 billion pipeline across the northern United States to carry Alaska crude oil that cannot be refined in the West.

In a decision announced Monday, Andrus endorsed a 1,491-mile route that would transport the oil from Port Angeles, Wash., across the northern tier of states — Washington, Idaho, port facility be "relocated to some point west of Port Angeles."

Port Angeles is located on the Olympic Peninsula west of Seattle, but is still more than 50 miles from the Pacific Ocean. Andrus said relocating the terminal further west would help protect clam beds and salmon migratory routes from pollution.

John E. Latz, Northern Tier vice president, said the firm would study the recommendation calling for the terminal to be moved, "but we also feel that there are many good reasons why the terminal site at Port Angeles is safer and environmentally superior to all other alternatives."

Within the state of Washington, reaction was more hostile. Sen. Warren Magnuson, D-Wash., said the state "has nothing to gain from oil transshipment and much to lose." He noted that a state energy board can veto the plan.

And Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., chairman of the Senate Energy Committee, disputed the assumption that excess Alaska crude would be available to move through the pipeline.

In a related development, officials of a proposed $11 billion natural gas pipeline from Alaska to the lower 48 states complained Monday that the state of Alaska and gas producers there threaten completion of that project because of their reluctance to help in financing.

U.S. and Canadian pipeline officials told a House Interior subcommittee the pipeline should be ready by late 1984 if these and other obstacles can be overcome.

"The principal project beneficiaries, the state of Alaska, the Prudhoe Bay gas producers and the major transmission companies, will not provide the required significant financial support," said John G. McMillian, chairman of Northwest Alaska Pipeline Co.

He told the panel the pipeline is essential to the nation's energy future.

"The Alaska system must be built and it will be built," he said.

The pipeline will go from Prudhoe Bay into Canada; through the Yukon Territory, British Columbia and Alberta; then split into two legs that will connect with U.S. systems in the Pacific Northwest and the upper Midwest.

ENERGY OIL & GAS

Montana, North Dakota and Minnesota — to the oil-starved Middle West.

At Clearbrook, Minn., the pipeline would link with the existing pipe network. The pipeline, which could transport 709,000 barrels per day, would take two years to build.

The oil that would flow through the pipe is crude that now is being transported by tanker from Alaska through the Panama Canal to refineries on the East Coast.

West Coast refineries have been unable to handle all the oil produced on Alaska's North Slope, and Congress has refused to allow the excess to be exported to Japan in a swap for Japan's allocation of Mexican oil.

Andrus chose the Northern Tier Pipeline Co. proposal over three competitors, citing the economic and national security advantages of having the entire pipeline in the United States. Carter has 60 days to act on Andrus' recommendation.

Andrus recommended that Carter condition his approval on two factors, requiring that the four major refineries near Port Angeles connect directly to the pipeline, and that the

DOE checks marketing practices

DALLAS (AP) — Department of Energy investigators are examining a time-honored petroleum marketing arrangement that they contend skirts federal fuel price controls.

"It's a device by which the producers are trying to decontrol oil now," said DOE Southwest Enforcement Director Wayne Tucker.

"The effect is exactly that," said D. Truitt Davis, board chairman of Consolidated Petroleum Industries, Inc., in Abilene. "But there's no regulation prohibiting that."

The practice is known as a "processing agreement," and has been used for years.

Normally independent producers sell crude oil to refineries, which process it into gasoline and other products, then sell it. But under the agreement, refineries contract only to process the oil. The finished products are returned to producers for marketing.

Tucker said DOE will try to determine whether the practice is illegal, or results in overcharges to consumers. The practice involves less than 1 percent of the oil being processed.

Since the price of foreign oil has risen to $27 a barrel, many refiners have turned to buying domestic crude, priced between $6 and $13 a barrel, and processing it into fuels which often are not regulated, increasing their profit margins.

Seeing that, some producers decided to take advantage of the same procedure, retaining control of the refined products, and the practice may spread.

"I think you are going to see more independents following the barrel all the way through," said A.V. Jones Jr., an independent producer from Albany.

Tucker said DOE is investigating more than 20 processing agreements, fearing they could cause several problems.

For example, he said the gasoline allocation system is based on understood producer-refiner-retailer relationships which processing agreements could disrupt.

He also said independents tend to sell on the spot market, which usually brings a higher price than long-term agreements.

Many oilmen are asking DOE to clarify its regulations on the agreements.

"What we say is they (DOE) either ought to declare it legal or declare it illegal, or at least hold a hearing," said Earl Turner, executive vice president of the Texas Independent Royalty Owners Association.

"The regulations are so chaotic today that nobody knows who's on third base, including the regulators," he said.

Another Yank gets Nobel

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — The Nobel Memorial Prize in Economic Science was awarded jointly today to an American and a Briton working in the United States for research into the economic problems of developing countries, including human needs, women's lib and ties to the industrial world.

The awards continued U.S. domination of the Nobel prizes so far this year.

The $190,000 prize, to be shared equally, went to Theodore Schultz of the University of Chicago and Sir Arthur Lewis of Princeton University.

Stockholm's Royal Academy of Science, which awarded the prize, said both men have extensive practical experience of development problems and are deeply concerned about the need and poverty in the world and how to find ways out of under-development.

Lewis, reached at his home in Princeton, said he had been told of the award by a Swedish journalist who phoned him at 6:45 a.m. "How does it feel? It feels like being struck by lightning," Lewis said. "Once I heard it on the radio, I knew it was true," he added.

The prize was established in 1968 by the Central Bank of Sweden as a memorial to Swedish dynamite-inventor Alfred Nobel, who set up the annual awarding of the five Nobel prizes in his 1896 will.

Schultz, born in Arlington, S.D. in 192, and an agricultural economist from the outset, has specialized in the "human factor" in economics. He took his doctorate at the University of Wisconsin in 1950 and has been Charles Hutchinson Professor at the University of Chicago since 1952, and professor emeritus since 1972.

Lewis, born at Castries on the West Indian island of St. Lucia in 1915, has been James Madison Professor of Political Economy at Princeton University in New Jersey since 1968. He is a British citizen.

Lewis is a leading figure and pioneer in developing-country research who started to publish important works on the economics of poor countries in the 1950s.

Schultz in the 1930s and 1940s presented a series of studies on the crises in American agriculture and later took up agricultural questions in developing countries throughout the world.

"His most trail-blazing book was 'Transforming Traditional Agriculture' in 1964. The main feature of his studies in this field is that he does not treat agricultural economy in isolation but as an integral part of the entire economy," in industrialized as well as developing countries, the Science Academy stated.

"Schultz has received many of the impulses for his notable analysis of the importance of human resources for economic and social development from his studies of the productivity problems in agriculture," it added.

Sears used false ads, judge rules

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sears, Roebuck & Co., the world's largest retailer, used false advertising for its dishwashers, a federal administrative law judge ruled today.

Judge Daniel H. Hanson of the Federal Trade Commission said Sears' ads claimed false-ly that the washers could completely clean dishes, pots and pans without prior rinsing or scraping.

Evidence presented by Sears was "grossly deficient" to establish that the dishwashers eliminated all need for prior scraping of the kitchenware, Hanson said.

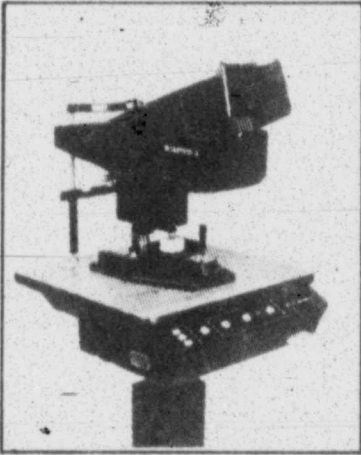

Hanson prohibited Sears from making the claim in future advertisements.

DEAR ABBY

Abby gets pot shots

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: As a long-time reader and admirer, I was shocked at your advice to the parents of the 12-year-old boy who, with his parents, had visited relatives in another city. On returning home, he told his parents (in confidence) that his 15-year-old cousin had offered him some pot, but he refused.

The parents immediately phoned the cousin's parents to report it. Instead of being grateful for the information, they reacted angrily, saying their son had never smoked pot, and the younger boy must be lying. When the visiting parents asked if they were wrong to have called the other parents, you said yes. (You also said, "Children should not betray their peers.")

Abby, if the kids had stuck up a gas station, or shot someone, would you still have said, "Children should not betray their peers?"

I just can't believe you would advise parents not to tip off the parents of children who are breaking the law and doing harm to themselves.

If I misunderstood your answer,
please explain. — DISAPPOINTED
IN YOU

DEAR DISAPPOINTED: You did, and I will. If you had read the letter carefully, you would have noticed that the boy said his cousin had offered him some pot. He admitted that he never actually SAW his cousin smoke pot.

It was my feeling that the older boy was only talking big to impress his younger cousin. Had he actually SMOKED pot in the boy's presence, it would have been a different story. No pot was in evidence, and none was smoked!

I'm sorry I didn't make myself clear, and judging from the critical mail I received, I did not.

Marijuana still is illegal, and those who break the law should be reported and dealt with accordingly.

However, in this case, no law had been broken. I should have said,
"When no law is broken, children should not betray their peers." And to have reported back to the parents with such flimsy evidence, thus creating a rift between the families, was uncalled for. (P.S. I hope the editor of the Rock Hill, S.C., Herald sees this. So incensed was he with my reply that he wrote an editorial about it.)

DEAR ABBY: I just read the letter from the 14-year-old boy who was afraid he had VD and didn't want to tell his parents, and I just had to write.

I am a 15-year-old girl who had a similar experience. I thought I had VD. I cried for days. Finally I decided the only thing I could do was to tell my mother. Abby, that was the hardest thing I ever had to do. When I told her we both cried. I begged her not to tell my father, but she said she had to.
Some pretty cruel words were exchanged among the three of us.

The next seven days were the toughest I've ever experienced, but it also proved how much my parents really loved me. They stood by me the whole time. When we finally got the doctor's report, we were relieved to learn that it was not VD—it was another kind of infection.

Abby, please keep encouraging kids to take their heavy problems to their parents. It's not always the easiest way, but it's the smartest. Thanks for letting me have my say. I believe you really do care. — BEEN THROUGH A LOT

DEAR BEEN: Thanks for the testimonial.

Scholarships helping to ease crunch from rising college costs

NEW YORK (AP) — Despite rising college costs — this year up 9 percent over 1978 — middle-income parents may find the burden of putting their children through college somewhat eased, says the head of an organization that tracks down sources of financial aid through a computer information bank.

"In addition to scholarships, some long-overdue relief is now provided by the passage of the Middle Income Assistance Act," says S. Robert Freede, president of Scholarship Search, which has been locating funds for students since 1972.

This marks the first time the federal government has offered economic aid to parents of college-bound youngsters where the parents' income does not exceed $25,000.

"It's a step that has been applauded by most student financial aid experts," agrees Mary Ann Maxin, financial aid director of the Student Assistance Council, a financial counseling group. "But the grant may not exceed $1,800 a year, an amount that doesn't cover half a year's tuition — even at state-supported colleges and universities where average tuition costs are up to $3,500 as opposed to $3,000 last year."

"Parents can make life easier on themselves," she advises, "by utilizing the new federal program along with a resource tool for locating scholarships."

More than 75 percent of the nation's college students are on some sort of financial aid package, according to Ms.

Maxin, the typical package, she says, is one-third scholarship, one-third grant and one-third work-study.

Even so, Freede points out, much available scholarship money goes unclaimed.

"Last year a staggering total of $135 million in student financial aid went begging because parents didn't know where — or how — to look," says the previously retired businessman who founded Scholarship Search when he was confronted with the high cost of educating his own three college-age children.

"Today, when parents are hit with a nearly 10 percent increase per year in costs of a college education, that figure becomes even more alarming," he adds.

Most parents think that their children aren't bright enough — or poor enough — to qualify and consequently they just don't even bother to look for money, Freede explains. "But there's real gold there," he points out. "Scholarship are available for religious affiliation, union groups, major areas of study, professional associations."

While it does not guarantee that financial aid will be granted, the search group claims a success rate of 40 percent.

"Our computer, which matches individual need with student eligibility, has more than 250,000 source items, representing more than $500 million in student financial aid resources," Freede says.

AT WIT'S END

Suppose you were a child

By ERMA BOMBECK

Hey, Mom. You with the neglected roots who has to take a glycerine pill before you go into your son's bedroom...who has spent a lifetime of shouting, "We'll see," and wonders if a convent will take a woman who considers Sara Lee a god.

I want you to imagine for a moment what it is like to be a child. It might help.

Suppose you were so insecure about yourself that you had to call your neighbor each morning to find out if she's wearing a skirt or jeans that day.

Suppose you thought you'd flatter your child by imitating his spitting, using slang and belching openly and he said to you, "That's disgusting."

Suppose you had to eat a "good breakfast" while your children dieted and when you said you weren't hungry they said, "That's different."

Suppose your children forbade you to touch their games, bedroom, toiletries, clothes, or hair dryers, but when they borrowed your things told you, "If you don't share, you're selfish."

Suppose the child you loved asked you for the truth and when you told her the truth she said you were lying and believed a woman she had never seen before and whose name she couldn't pronounce.

Suppose you told your child something very personal in strict confidence and later overheard her telling it to her girlfriend on the phone.

Suppose your child dragged you away from your favorite TV show to visit a friend and told you and the friend's mother to go off and learn to know each other until it was time to go home.

Suppose a child named you "Larkspur" or "Unplanned." Would you be forgiving?

Suppose you lived in fear because an English teacher told you you'd never amount to anything unless you could diagram a sentence.

Suppose someone said, "You're all grown up, aren't you?" and you still didn't know what you wanted to be.

But worse...suppose everyone told you these are the best days of your life.

Have a good day.

Higher mortgage rate not solution: Clements

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements is working on home building problems in Texas but he does not think increased mortgage interest rates is the solution.

Clements was asked at an informal news conference Monday if he had considered increased mortgage interest rates as a subject for the 1980 special legislative session.

"I have not really considered that," Clements said. "I have been considering what other things we in Texas might do to solve the problem but I don't have a solution."

"For one thing, I don't see raising home interest rates as a solution. I strongly believe that higher rates would not be in the best interest of the state and the nation. This would just add to the inflation."

"I do not believe we can stand the kind of interest rates we have now," Clements said that "other tools" have to be used, other than increased interest rates.

"I have been considering some of these...there could be margin restrictions on the stock market and there could be something concerning down payments on homes," Clements said.

Clements at first opposed an increase of legal interest rates for home loans from 10 to 12 percent during the 1979 Legislature but later supported the increase after federal agencies threatened to cut off VA and FHA loans for Texas.

Clements also said he knew nothing about some published reports there might be another gasoline shortage this winter, because some gasoline refiners had been diverted to producing heating oil for Northeast states.

"So far as I know there is no reason to believe there will be another gasoline shortage in Texas," he said.

He said he had given no thought to re-instating the odd-even gasoline sales program.

Clements said he would be going to Boston Wednesday for a daylong discussion on energy with Massachusetts Gov. Edward King.

"I was invited by Gov. King to meet with some of their leaders and to inspect some of their work at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology," Clements said.

"Gov. King and I are in complete accord on the solution to the energy problem. Both of us feel that the production of energy is the key."

SHEINWOLD ON BRIDGE

Start Right Suit

By Alfred Sheinwold

Telling twins apart may be difficult for ordinary human beings, but it's a cinch for bridge experts. They get practice deciding which K Q 10 to tackle first in today's hand.

The actual declarer took the jack of hearts and led diamonds, losing to East's ace. Back came the nine of spades, denying a high card in the suit. West therefore let South's king hold the trick.

If South now went after the clubs East would step up with the ace to lead another spade. And if South tried to escape by finessing with the ten of diamonds, he would be down two.

WRONG DOUBLETON

Declarer was right to start with a doubleton, but he should take the first trick in dummy in order to begin the clubs. If East has the ace, South can later discard a spade from dummy on a high club. But even if West has the ace of clubs he cannot safely attack the spades.

Declarer must postpone a play in spades until he has tackled the clubs and diamonds.

'Different' Bucs, Birds square off

BALTIMORE (AP) — The 1979 World Series winner still is in doubt, but one thing is obvious: the diametrically opposite personalities and baseball psychology of the two men pulling the strings from the bench.

Earl Weaver, manager of the American League champion Baltimore Orioles; is an unorthodox strategist, detached from his players, subtly sarcastic, supremely confident. He's patient, waits for the opposition to make a mistake.

Chuck Tanner, field boss of the National League Pittsburgh Pirates, is a perennial optimist. He must have been born with a smile frozen on his face. He rarely criticizes his players. He manages by the book. He's one of the boys among his players.

At the moment, Weaver has the edge. His Orioles lead the Series 3-2 with the sixth game scheduled for Baltimore's Memorial Stadium tonight, a seventh here Wednesday if necessary. The opposing pitchers in Game Six are Jim Palmer for Baltimore and John Candelaria for Pittsburgh.

Weaver, who got his first major league managerial job with the Orioles in 1968, has the credentials to back his approach to the game. He has won five American League pennants, six East Division titles and one World Series. He has been first or second 10 times in 12 seasons.

Tanner began managing with the Chicago White Sox in 1971, after an apprenticeship in the minors and a 17-year playing career, including stints with Milwaukee, the Chicago Cubs, Cleveland and the California Angels. He held the White Sox job through 1975, then taking over the Oakland A's for one season.

The Pirates traded catcher Manny Sanguillen and $100,000 to the A's to obtain Tanner as their manager in one of baseball's more unusual deals.

This year he won his first National League title. Now, he's faced with coming back from a 3-1 deficit in a World Series, a feat accomplished in a seven-game Series by just three teams.

Tanner talks about momentum and playing the game by the book. He brags that he has the best 25-man roster in baseball. He preaches togetherness as an ingredient in winning. He works on the emotional factor, not too high when you win, not too low when you lose. During the game he's a stoic.

Tanner is the master of the cliché. He talks about no tomorrows, backs to the wall, the will of the man upstairs, never quit, win one game at a time, etc. His office, even before a World Series game, is open to friends. They bring him wine and chickens. He rewards them with Pirates' hats, a cheerful welcome and don't forget to come back goodbye.

Weaver has that salty rather than country boy approach. He's all business before a game. His office is entered by coaches, maybe some players, people concerned with the game. They talk about the job at hand.

Weaver posts the lineup, then takes complete control of the game. He's as nervous as a cat chased by a big dog. Sometimes in crucial situations he covers his eyes or walks in the tunnel leading to the clubhouse.

Playing by the percentages is another way these field bosses differ. The book is Tanner's credo. Weaver laughs at it.

"I never read the book," Weaver said earlier in the Series. "It's people's judgment what the book should be. I do what I think is the logical thing to do at the time."

Palmer, who had arm trouble during the regular season and finished with a 10-6 record, started the second game of the Series and wasn't involved in a decision as Pittsburgh won 3-2. He went seven innings, gave up eight hits and two runs. His overall Series record is 3-1.

Candelaria also had some arm problems to go with his chronic back condition and was 14-9 in the Pirates' drive to the NL East title. He wasn't involved in a decision in the league championship series, and was the starter and loser in the third game of the Series. He went just three innings, gave up six runs and eighth hits.

Tanner insists that Candelaria is physically ready to pitch. He'll have to be against a Baltimore team that was 55-24 at home and 34-19 vs. left-handers. But Tanner will have all his pitchers ready and figures to relieve early if the "Candyman" gets in trouble. Tanner used Bert Blyleven in relief Sunday, the first time Blyleven relieved since 1972 at Minnesota.

Weaver received some disturbing news Monday. Don Stanhouse, his favorite reliever, is done for the Series with a back ailment.

Tanner, whose 70-year-old mother Anne died Sunday, arrived in Baltimore with the team Monday. He was to return home in time for her funeral Thursday.

As for the weather in one of the oldest Series on record, the forecast is for temperatures in the low 40s, with little chance of precipitation.

The key to the Series from a Baltimore standpoint is pitching good enough to silence the potent Pirates' bats. Pittsburgh, although trailing three games to two, has 61 hits in 180 at bats. Baltimore has 43 for 171.

Second baseman Phil Garner and third baseman Bill Madlock each are hitting .500 and outfielder Dave Parker .429. For the Orioles, shortstop-Kiko Garcia is at .429, outfielder Ken Singleton and catcher Rick Dempsey each at .333.

All Weaver wants is one-game skein

BALTIMORE (AP) — Buoyed at the prospect of playing before their frenzied home fans, and with veteran Jim Palmer on the mound, the Baltimore Orioles try to wrap up the 1979 World Series tonight.

"All we need to win this thing is one more one-game winning streak," Manager Earl Weaver said as the Orioles went into the sixth game with a 3-2 edge over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

"When you win three games, you still have that big one staring you in the face," Weaver said. "I hope we don't get in a hurry. I just want the players to relax and do what they did in the other games."

The Orioles had a chance to win their third World Series in Pittsburgh Sunday, but the Pirates pounded out 13 hits in a 7-1 victory and raised their Series batting average to a whopping .339.

"I never figured there'd be this much scoring," Weaver said, while bemoaning the fact that Pittsburgh already has collected 61 hits against Baltimore's fine pitching staff.

He noted, however, that the Pirates scored fewer runs on the natural grass of Baltimore's Memorial Stadium in the first two games than they did on the artificial surface at Pittsburgh's Three Rivers Stadium.

The Orioles, despite a .251 batting average, have had much more timely hitting. They've had two five-run innings and one six-run inning in the games they won.

Palmer, who has a 3-1 World Series record and will be making his eighth Series start, pitched well in the second game won 3-2 by the Pirates after he was lifted. If the Series goes to a deciding seventh game Wednesday night, the Orioles will pitch Scott McGregor, a complete game winner in Game No. 3.

"If somebody had told me we'd be leading 3-2 and going home with Palmer and McGregor ready to pitch, I couldn't be very upset," Weaver said. "You would have had to have said that would be nice."

"Pitching against Pittsburgh once before is going to help," Weaver said of Palmer. "He's going to have his own ideas about what he's going to do. I just hope we get him some runs ... early."

Palmer, who celebrated his 34th birthday Monday, said he learned some things about the Pirates last week, including the fact that he'd have to change speeds more often.

"Obviously, we're going to have to out-hit them," Palmer said. "I have to pitch good and get some runs. It's that simple."

Garner starts slowly, gains momentum fast

BALTIMORE (AP) — Phil Garner's World Series started on a frigid night last week with a costly throwing error.

But the second baseman for the Pittsburgh Pirates has come on strong since then, and he takes a .500 series batting average and a determined attitude into Game Six tonight with the Baltimore Orioles.

"Baltimore isn't going to give us anything. We've got our work cut out for us. But we're going after them," Garner said in Pittsburgh Monday before the Pirates flew home.

In the cold first inning of Game One, the numb-fingered Garner fielded a grounder with the bases full and threw the ball wildly past second base. The error scored the first two of Baltimore's five runs in that inning of the Series, and the Orioles held on to win 5-4.

Baltimore now leads 3-2 in games, but the Pirates are coming off a 7-1 victory Sunday in Pittsburgh that included a pair of key singles by Garner and a slick double play he triggered in the ninth inning.

On the series, Garner has nine hits in 18 times at bat and he leads the Pirates with five runs batted in.

"In the first two games, neither team played well because of the weather conditions, but Friday and Saturday we didn't play well," said Garner.

"We had a lot of hits go to waste. We just weren't getting timely hits. But we played Sunday like we played to get here."

Tonight, Pittsburgh will pitch John Candelaria against Baltimore veteran Jim Palmer.

Might Pittsburgh's convincing 7-1 victory Sunday take a little starch out of the Orioles? Garner doesn't think so.

"Baltimore impresses me as the kind of club that just doesn't seem to worry about things like that. I think they're going to play their same style — good, steady, solid baseball," Garner said.

Baltimore Orioles are slim favorites

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Harrah's Reno Race & Sports Book is picking Baltimore as a slight favorite to wrap up the World Series in Game 6 Tuesday night in Baltimore.

Baltimore is listed at 10-13 while Pittsburgh is an 11-10 underdog. That means a $13 bet on the Orioles would return $23, while $10 bet on the Pirates would return $21 if they win.

The odds for the sixth game are the same as Harrah's original odds on the Series.

Heavyweight fighters set

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Heavyweight boxers John Tate and Gerrie Coetzee, amid scowls and glares at each other, were pronounced fit today for their weekend heavyweight title fight.

Tate, a 24-year-old black from Knoxville, Tenn., and Coetzee, a white South African, also 24, meet Saturday in the capital of Pretoria for a 15-round bout to decide the successor to Muhammad Ali's World Boxing Association title.

Tuesday's medical exam, a perfunctory check of pulse, heart beat and breathing, was carried out in the glare of cameras in a hotel supper club with the chairs and tables pushed back.

Tate and Coetzee didn't exchange words, just stares.

Chris Beukes, an official of the Transvaal Province Boxing Board of Control, welcomed the fighters and nearly 100 reporters and journalists with a little speech.

"And to Gerrie and Bob, I say, may the best man win," he concluded. "The name is John, not Bob," shouted Tate's manager, Ace Miller.

"Oh, sorry," said Beukes. The official weigh-in is to be held Friday.

Both fighters have slackened off their training for the fight, except for some road work, light sparring and shadow boxing.

Ticket sales were reported brisk today, with nearly 70,000 of 85,000 available tickets already sold. Promoters expected a sellout by Saturday.

The fight is to be televised live by NBC in the United States. Fans in some 30 other countries in Europe, Latin America and Asia will also see the fight via satellite.

It was announced today that security will be extremely tight for the bout, with more than 1,200 security officials and 200 trained marksmen stationed around Loftus Versfeld Stadium in Pretoria.

Did Cowboys kill Rams? Only time will tell

In the wake of Dallas' convincing and somewhat unexpected 30-6 blow out of Los Angeles Rams Sunday night, you've got to wonder if a victory in a game like this does more harm than good down the line.

Last year, for example, Los Angeles beat Dallas, 28-0, in the regular season and then was humiliated in the rematch, the one that counted, the NFC playoff championship for the right, some people contended it was more of a sentence, to play Pittsburgh in the Super Bowl.

This was a real pistol-whipping and while the Cowboys soft-peddled the decisiveness of it all, assuring that the Rams would be around to contend with later on, the humiliation before a national TV audience in prime time was not softened or lost on the Rams.

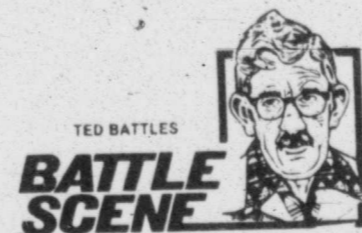

Said defensive back Dave Elmendorf, a bad back casualty, "I think this was more lopsided than the NFC championship game last season. This one they controlled from the first. In the last one, it didn't get out of hand until the end."

It's the kind of thing a team doesn't forget in a hurry and it could come back to haunt Dallas later, and nobody is more aware of it than the Cowboys.

AFTER ALL, they've been there before on both sides of the fence. Remember the year they won their last Super Bowl, 1977. In the final exhibition, Dallas beat Pittsburgh, 31-0. Although the Steelers were going nowhere that year, they made Dallas pay the price later during the regular season, handing the Cowboys a dreadful drubbing.

Then, of course, last year, Dallas beat the Rams in the playoff after taking a 17-14 beating in the regular season meeting.

While the Rams were supposed to be super-charged for Sunday's opportunity at retribution for past indignities suffered at the hands of the Cowboys, a glance at the standings indicates that if either team was under a must-win gun, it had to be the Cowboys.

The Eagles and Cowboys are tied for first place in the NFC Central and the Redskins, fresh off a dramatic victory over Cleveland, the team that conquered Dallas so convincingly on national TV, and Cardinals are in challenging positions.

And then, too, there was the matter of restoring the Cowboy image after Cleveland tarnished it before the nation a few Mondays ago.

THE RAMS on the other hand not only went into Sunday's NFL action in sole possession of first place in the NFC West, but were assured a loss to Dallas could not loosen that hold after Atlanta lost earlier in the day.

In fact, one of the disturbing aspects of postgame interviews Sunday was the concern, apprehension and total awareness of the Eagles as a living, breathing threat in the NFC Central. Every player dwelled on the Eagles' improvement and genuineness of their ominous presence as a contender, so much so that one was prompted to do a double take on the Cowboys' schedule to be sure they were indeed playing the Cardinals and not Philadelphia this week.

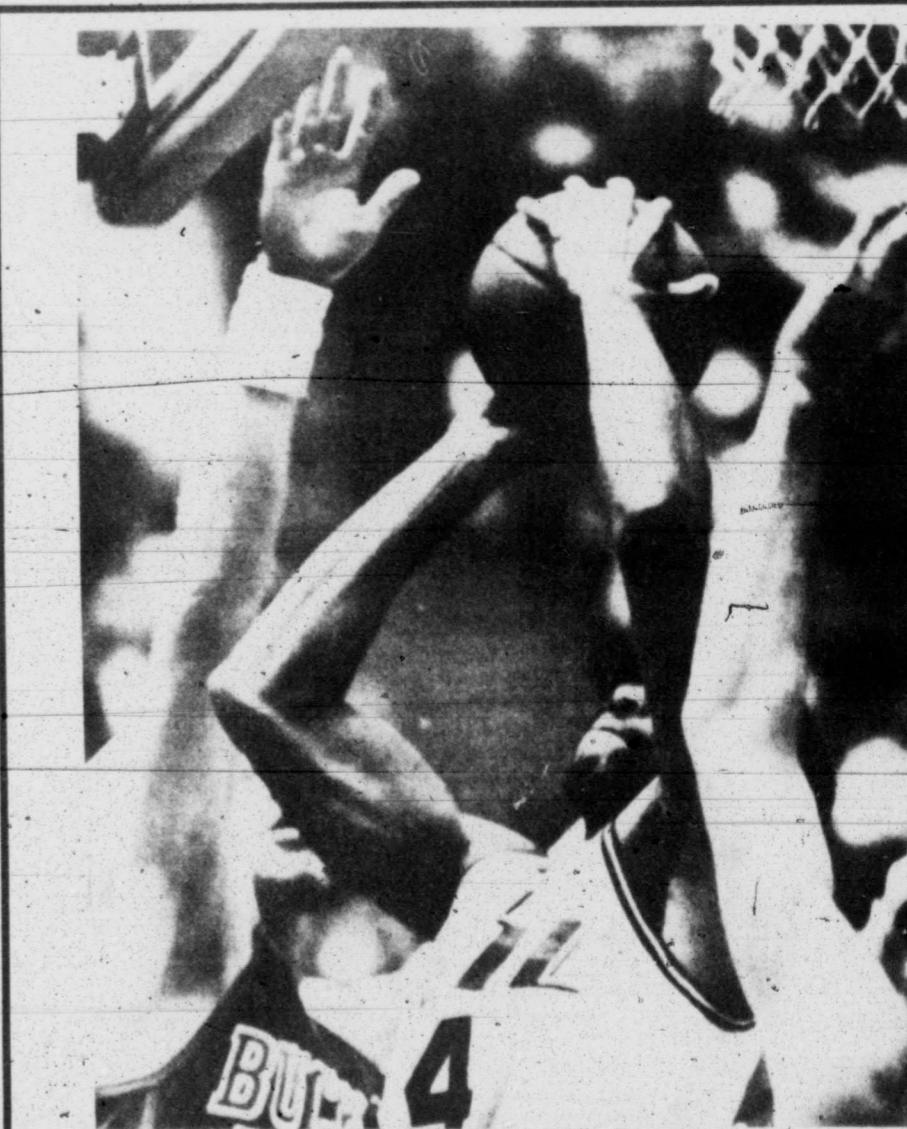

There's no doubt the Cowboys made an impression on the Rams, mentally and physically, the latter the area for Coach Ray Malvasi's understandable concern.

One of those felled was Pat Thomas, like Elmendorf, an ex-Texas Aggie, carried from the combat zone with a strained achilles heel. But Pat has his priorities straight. Asked what he wanted to tell the folks in his hometown of nearby Plano, he perked up. "Don't give up the ship. Plano's gonna win state and LA is going to win the Super Bowl. We (LA) won the first game last year and they (Dallas) won the NFC championship. Now they won the first game... just wait until the second one this year."

You can ask any witness who Sunday's massacre at Texas Stadium and they'll assure the Cowboys left the Rams for dead, but it's apparent that players on both sides are a superstitious lot. They all believe in ghosts and, after last year, who can blame them.

There's no doubt the acquisition of Adrian Dantley by the Utah Jazz from the Los Angeles Lakers will help the Jazz, but that wasn't the case Monday night as the Milwaukee Bucks defeated the transplanted franchise 131-107 in Utah's home opener. Dantley is shown muscling to the basket against the Bucks' Kent Benson. (AP Laserphoto)

No Nitrosamines in Coors Beer.

Nitrosamines are suspected cancer-causing agents.

There are no detectable nitrosamines in Coors or Coors Light as determined by the United States Food and Drug Administration, using the most sophisticated analytic techniques.

Here's why: Some years ago, as part of a continuing effort to make the best beer possible, we instituted an unconventional malting process. This special process not only creates a better beer, it avoids the possibility of nitrosamines.

Coors has a tradition of bringing innovative methods to the brewing of beer. Always attempting to brew a better, finer, purer beer. Once more, Coors' dedication to brewing excellence has paid off.

Baseball before the boom

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Sports Writer

Professional baseball in Midland wasn't as formal then as the classy organization of the Class AA Texas League entry of the Midland Cubs is now, but Big Spring's Miller Harris had the same dreams in 1927 as the players of today's Cubs.

Harris played semi-pro baseball for Midland in 1927 with dreams of becoming a major leaguer. He never quite made it to the top, but he did get a minor league shot with the Philadelphia Athletics. And it was his efforts with the Midland club that gave him that chance.

IN 1927, Midland played baseball at what is now known as Midland Downs. It wasn't Cubs Stadium, according to Harris.

"There was a set of grandstands and we had pretty good crowds," Harris explained. "We didn't have an outfield fence and any ball that was hit deep, you just had to chase it down. You hit a homer by hitting past everyone in the outfield."

"There wasn't a formal schedule back then, and Harris says that games were played when they could find an opponent."

"We played anytime we could get a game up. Usually we played on a Saturday or Sunday and we didn't play any doubleheaders. We played teams from Texon, San Angelo, Big Spring, Big Lake and Iran mostly, but there wasn't an organized league back then."

THE TEAM, according to Harris, was sponsored by Scharbauer Cattle Company and all the team members were paid a flat monthly rate of $150. The team had a guaranteed payroll of $1,800 a month.

"I thought that was a lot of money back then to play baseball," Harris said. "I remember John Dublin, who was foreman for the Scharbauer Cattle Company, used to take the team out during the week and entertain us. We were treated pretty good and there was a lot of interest in the team."

"We didn't get paid like Pete Rose, and I guess that's where the change has come in baseball today. I think the players were pretty good back then, but they didn't get the money that players get today."

Harris, a center fielder during his playing days, played baseball for 33 years. He started high school baseball at North Park High School in 1917 and also played at Abilene High. He played baseball at Simmons University in Abilene from 1926 through 1927 when he came to Midland for his professional debut. He also played football for one season at Simmons in 1926.

DURING HIS one-year stay at Midland, Harris hit a robust .373 while roving the wide open center field. He still remembers the players on the team.

"Frank Kimbro was the manager and he played second base. Bob Lewis was at short stop and Jack Wright was at third. Bud Francis played first and the outfield was made up of Blackie Adams in left, me in center and Louie White in right. Cowboy Francis was the catcher. Bob Potter, Lefty Lydie and a guy by the name of Johnson were the pitchers. Leonard Rose was a utility man and he played everywhere.

The Midland team, which had no nickname according to Harris, got a big break in 1927 when they were invited to play in two national tournaments. Back then, big cities sponsored invitational tournaments, and major league scouts attended them all. Midland was invited to play in both the Amarillo Globe Tournament and the Denver Post Tournament.

"That was a big break for us," Harris remembers. "In Amarillo, the Boston Red Sox wanted me to sign after the tournament, but they wouldn't offer me a bonus, so I went to play in the Denver tournament and we finished third after losing to Casper, Wyoming.

IN DENVER, the Philadelphia Athletics offered me an $800 bonus to sign. I took it on the spot, and I thought I was robbing them."

From there Harris was sent to Martinsburg, West Virginia, to play in the Blue Ridge League. Jess Runyan was the manager at Martinsburg, and I was outlasting this guy by 16 points. I guess Runyan didn't like me and I was sent to Chambersburg, Pa., for two years where I hit .321 and .336.

"He hurt his arm in 1929 and was never the same. I could still hit, but I couldn't throw very well. Unfortunately, they didn't have the designated hitter rule back then."

After a stint at Jersey City of the International League, Harris returned to Texas to play for the Fort Worth Armour Packing Company and later for West Texas teams of Big Spring, sponsored by Cosden, and Odessa, which won the Permian Basin Championship by defeating Texon in the title game in 1935.

Harris then became a deputy in Big Spring for three years before becoming sheriff of that city for another eight years.

Harris is retired now, but he still says, "I've played in a few ball games during my days, and would do it again if I could."

WEST TEXAS OUTDOORS

Not all is bliss in the outdoors

By JON CHASE

The great outdoors is never predictable and the quirks of fate often seem more glaring while pursuing sports afield.

It is the dyed-in-the-wool hunter and fisherman who receives the brunt of bad breaks, solely because of his numerous hours enjoying field and stream. These are the dedicated souls who take it on the chin more often than not while matching wits with Mother Nature and her wily family.

The devout bass angler is a perfect example of a long suffering soul for whom there is often no justice. The vast majority of these men and women have spent decades trying to catch a lunker bass, only to be frustrated by broken lines, straightened hooks and thrown plugs. This they grin and bear because they know that there will be another chance.

They are happy with their lot until that fateful day when they lose a lunker bass and dejectedly return to the dock only to find that a first time angler has just caught the lake record bass, fishing with a dime store rod and reel and a Japanese grab bag lure.

Into the lake goes the rod, reel and tackle box, followed by a long and loud barrage of French along with a heart felt vow to never fish again. Though fate is cruel, this fisherman will undoubtedly be back at the local sporting goods department after his wounded pride has healed. He will be sheepishly purchasing a new rod and reel while jumbling something about his boat swamping and how much he hated to lose all that fishing tackle.

Fishermen are funny folks, but they can't be kept down for long, not even by unforgivable beginner's luck.

A situation that is almost as poignant is that of the frustrated deer hunter.

Here is a fellow who has plopped down his wife's furniture money and mortgaged his car to buy into a deer lease. More than anything in the world, this man wants to kill a trophy buck.

He hunts every moment possible, and after hundreds of hours in a deer blind while patiently waiting for the big buck to come by, he has seen one scrawny doe while being literally over run by squirrels.

After one too many days of waiting around with a deer rifle in hand, this hunter will invariably leave his deer rifle at home and hit the woods on his deer lease in hopes of providing the basic ingredient for squirrel stew. After all, it's a warm day and no respectable buck would be out zolavanting around.

After 10 minutes afield, here he comes, a monster buck with the proverbial hatrack on his head, and here stands our awestruck hunter thirty yards away, holding onto his trusty double loaded with birdshot.

At this point the reaction varies. Some unashamedly howl. Some tear their hair out by the roots while others quite methodically eliminate their shotgun against a majestic oak tree. In extreme cases, the victim never hunts again. Happily, most recover and, save for a few nightmares, are as good as new in a month or two.

After a lot of soul searching involving the question of why man submits himself to the discomfort, expense and frustrations involved in hunting and fishing, I can honestly say that I haven't the foggiest. It's just something that many of us, not only enjoy, but have to do to keep this mad, mad world in its proper perspective.

Wealth, fortune and fame just can't take precedence over a 10-pound bass, or a Boone and Crockett trophy.

Longhorns will make region TV

NEW YORK (AP) — ABC-TV announced Monday it will televise six college football games next Saturday in addition to Southern Cal-Notre Dame.

The USC-Notre Dame clash at South Bend, Ind., will be aired from 12:30-4 p.m. EDT with kickoff at 12:50. It will be seen in all areas of the country except Norfolk and Richmond, Va., which will get the contest between Norfolk State and Virginia Union as one of four regular-season NCAA Division II telecasts to which the network is committed.

Five games will be televised regionally from 4-7 p.m. EDT, headed by Texas and Arkansas in Little Rock. The other regionals are North Carolina at North Carolina State.

Houston climbed from seventh to fifth with 1,011 points after edging Texas A&M 17-14. Also advancing two places were Ohio State, which moved up to sixth after a 47-6 rout of Indiana, and Florida State, which climbed to seventh following a 17-6 decision over Mississippi State.

Southern Cal., which had held the top spot since the preseason, fell to fourth with 1,108 points after being tied by Stanford 21-21.

Southern Cal., Alabama, Oklahoma and Texas had occupied the first four places since the preseason poll, but Oklahoma dropped to eighth this week following its loss to the Longhorns.

Rebel fans to huddle
The Midland Lee Booster Club will hold its weekly meeting today at 7:30 p.m. in the Lee High Youth Center instead of the school cafeteria.

The Lee junior varsity football team will be introduced and fans can view the film of Lee's 14-0 victory over San Angelo. A scouting report will also be given on Abilene Cooper, this week's homecoming opponent for the Rebels.

Ponies, Buffs, Badgers record major victories

By RICHARD VINCENT
Sports Writer

Andrews, Stanton and McCamey each fashioned important victories Friday night in area schoolboy football action.

Andrews, under the direction of head coach Bill Shipman, raised their record to 6-0 with a 14-0 nonconference victory over Class AA Kermit. The Class AAA Mustangs welcomed the return of starting sophomore quarterback Keith Brooks, who contributed largely to the triumph.

Meanwhile, Stanton posted their second consecutive whitewash job, a 39-0 verdict over Shallowater. Coach Steve Park's Buffaloes were quite impressive on both sides of the football as they increased their District 5-A record to 2-0. On the campaign, the Buffs are 4-0-1.

And things also seemed to come together for McCamey, a 21-0 winner over Eunice. N. M. Badger head coach Larry Nabors' squad is finally getting healed up from earlier injuries and appears headed for a good shot at the District 6-A crown. McCamey is 4-1-1 for the season.

There were, however, a couple of teams that had their problems. Rankin of 6-A saw their three-game win streak go into the window as the Red Devils were humbled 26-19 by Menard of 9-A. The setback left coach Dwayne Turner's crew at 3-2.

The other victim was Class AAA Lamesa, a 35-0 loser to Lubbock Estacado. The Golden-Tornadoes dropped to 0-6 with the setback.

Among District 2-AAA teams involved in nonconference action, only Odessa Ector was a loser, dropping an 18-14 decision to San Angelo Lake View. It was the Eagles' first loss of the year.

Sweetwater and Pecis, a 3-0 victor over Snyder.

Joining Sweetwater, Lamesa and Snyder as the 3-AAA losers was Brownfield, a 21-20 loser to Hereford Lake View was the lone winner.

Two of three District 7-AA outfits were on the winning end of decisions as Ozona scuttled Iraan 27-0 and Sonora bested Wall 20-7.

Over in 5-AA, highly ranked Sea-graves continued to maintain the hot pace of Stanton as the Eagles recorded their second shutout, 41-0 over O'Donnell. Plains also jumped to 2-0 in the loop with a 24-0 decision over Anton. In the battle of the basement, Ropes-trimmed Forsan 14-7.

All told, it wasn't a very pretty night for 6-A teams with the exception of McCamey. Including Rankin's four units were blasted. Fabens walloped Clint 69-0 while Ozona thumped Iraan 49-0.

And things also seemed to come together for McCamey, a 21-0 winner over Eunice. N. M. Badger head coach Larry Nabors' squad is finally getting healed up from earlier injuries and appears headed for a good shot at the District 6-A crown. McCamey is 4-1-1 for the season.

and Marfa absorbed a 28-7 reversal to Alpine.

Victories by Menard and Junction gave District 9-A a winning night although Wall was a loser. Junction tripped Llano 21-12.

Crimson Tide moves to top, Texas second in grid poll

By The Associated Press
Alabama's defending national champions have unseated Southern California atop The Associated Press college football rankings this week, but Bear Bryant, coach of the Crimson Tide, isn't ready to celebrate.

"I'm not concerned where we are right now," Bryant said Monday, after the new rankings were announced. "I would 10 times rather have our players healthy than be No. 1 right now. It is hard to enjoy being No. 1 under the circumstances."

Although Alabama cloistered Florida 40-0 last Saturday, the Crimson Tide did not emerge unscathed. Among the injured players about whom Bryant was worried were split end Keith Hugh, separated shoulder; offensive guard Mike Brock, hip pointer; defensive tackle Joe Beazley, knee; defensive lineman Warren Lyles, knee; running back Mitch Ferguson, hamstring; and defensive tackle Scott Homan, achilles tendon.

"I'm happy for our players," Bryant said, when told his team was ranked No. 1, "but nothing counts but next Saturday. We are just getting into the men of our schedule and we are badly crippled."

The Crimson Tide, who face Tennessee in a Southeastern Conference battle Saturday, received 42 first-place votes and 1,332 of a possible 1,360 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters. Texas, which defeated Oklahoma 16-7, jumped from fourth to second with the remaining 26 first-place ballots and 1,313 points. Nebraska, a 42-0 winner over Kansas, climbed from fifth to third with 1,204 points.

Southern Cal., which had held the top spot since the preseason, fell to fourth with 1,108 points after being tied by Stanford 21-21.
