Oil protest agenda includes rallies, teach-ins

By The Associated Press

The organizers of today's Campaign For Lower Energy Prices are trying to turn anger into action, urging Americans to let the oil industry and the government know they are fed up with rising costs.

The agenda for the day included the usual rallies, demonstrations, marches and teach-ins.

The sponsors included the Gray Panthers, Consumers Opposed to Inflation in Necessities, the Episcopal Urban Bishop's Conference, the Americans for Democratic Action and a variety of unions.

A major effort was the distribution of millions of red, white and blue postcards headed "Big oil discredit cards." The cards urge Congress to put a lid on oil and gas prices, appoint a special prosecutor to investigate the oil industry and create a publicly owned energy corporation.

Oil company offices were targets of demonstrations even before the official day of protest. About 30 people picketed the headquarters of the Standard Oil Co. (Ohio) on Tuesday, chanting slogans like "Shoo, stop pumping us dry."

The company, which closed off the entrances to the building and stationed guards nearby, said in a prepared statement that it understood the frustrations that lead to demonstrations. "But fundamental answers on solving inflation are needed, not looking for scapegoats," the statement said.

In St. Louis, Don Owens, the head of research and public relations for District 9 of the International Association of Machinists, one of the sponsors of a mid-day demonstration, said: "We're holding this rally because we're sick and tired of a national energy policy that robs the workingman and gives to the multi-national oil corporations."

William Wimpinger, president of the International Association of Machinists and the chairman of the coalition coordinating the events, described the protest as a "national grassroots organizing effort."

Wimpinger also is heading an effort to draft Sen. Edward M. Kennedy for the 1980 Democratic presidential nomination. He broke with President Carter last year over the issue of whether to decontrol energy prices. Congress already has approved the phasing out of controls on natural gas and is considering an end to controls on petroleum. Price controls on heating oil and diesel fuel were ended during the Ford Administration.

Carter's re-election headquarters in Concord, N.H., was the focus of a planned afternoon march. Sponsors said they would try to telephone their demands to Carter; if they get no response, they said, they will urge everyone driving by to honk horns in protest.

An Associated Press spot check indicated support for the protest seemed strongest in states where winter heating bills are expected to be a serious problem.

Here in Connecticut, the rally will focus on low and middle-income families already affected by cash-on-demand payments for heating oil," said Lou Kiefer, labor co-chairman of the coalition sponsoring today's demonstrations.

The protest follows on the heels of announcements of price increases by Libya and Iran, two of the world's major oil exporters.

Midlanders exhibit pro-oil enthusiasm

By RICHARD MASON
Staff Writer

It was American flags waving in the wind, enthusiastic speeches, music and pointed comments directed at the federal government.

That was the tone Tuesday of the Pro-Oil Rally at Midland County Courthouse.

Consensus of the 1,000-plus persons attending the rally was that everything is right with America EXCEPT the federal government.

They gathered on the front lawn of the courthouse to express their support for oil — for an event co-sponsored by the West Texas Geological Society and the Permian Basin Petroleum Association.

News media representatives huddled on the courthouse sidewalk, inscribing notes and snapping pictures.

Tuesday's probably was the most enthusiastic rally the Permian Basin has seen since the AFL-CIO hosted its Labor Day picnic in Odessa.

Much of the enthusiasm came in response to barbed statements directed at the federal government's role in oil industry matters.

THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT takes oil industry money at a rate approaching 71 percent, according to Midland County Tax Assessor-Collector Elmo Lineberger.

Bob Bailey, an oil consulting engineer and speaker at the rally, openly admitted to being an "oil profiteer," a person he defined as one who "spends more on drilling than he makes on production."

These weren't rag-tag protesters. Much of the noontime crowd wore three-piece suits. Most of the women were dressed fashionably. It appeared clear that oil, after all, has been quite good for these people — even if the federal government hasn't. Thus, the appreciation for the industry.

"Without oil and gas, our economy would be what it was 25 years ago," Lineberger said.

THE OIL RALLY TUESDAY was held to gain national attention, said Ed Thompson, a spokesman for the PBPA.

Thompson added that the rally will be the first of several.

"We'll do this again in about a month," said Thompson.

Thompson was decked out in a Panama hat and carried a sign at the rally.

"We've got some names to get in, otherwise we won't get any national publicity," he said of future rallies.

The Midland rally was held one day before a national day of protest against the oil industry. Spectators applauded rally speakers liberally. The crowd of 1,200 to 1,500 was of one mind and one heart.

A pickup truck with a bed full of T-shirted workers applauded comments concerning anti-industry spokesmen.

Farther down Wall Street, a parked motorcycle supported three vocal supporters of oil industry sentiments.

Hand-lettered signs pointed out how cheap gasoline was in comparison to coke, tea and coffee, or mentioned disparities in oil pricing for Arabs and Americans.

"Smart Arabs reinvest CHEAP dollars in Texas real estate," one said. Another stated, "Nationalized oil is not free enterprise."

Most all the greetings were earmarked for Washington.

"We're here to let the nation know we're out here," Bob Bailey told the crowd.

Bailey led spectators on two loud "Hello, Washington" yells.

Marines make landing on Guantanamo beach

GUANTANAMO BAY, Cuba. (AP) — Marines swarmed ashore by helicopter and amphibious craft in a practice landing today on the beaches of the only U.S. military base on communist soil. A Soviet surveillance ship stood offshore and Cuban reservists in the area were called to duty.

"So far as we know, there were no problems" in the 8 a.m. landing, said Cmdr. Howard Matson, a spokesman at Atlantic Fleet headquarters in Norfolk, Va.

Three Navy warships had carried the Marines close to the shore at dawn in the show-the-flag exercise, hastily arranged by the Carter administration as a flexing of military muscle in response to the presence in Cuba of a Soviet brigade, about 500 miles west of Guantanamo.

In Washington, a Pentagon spokesman said there was no overt action by the Cubans.

About 2,200 Marines were involved in the exercise, a practice reinforcement by helicopters and amphibious vehicles at Guantanamo Bay, on the eastern tip of Cuba 500 miles from Havana.

Military officials insisted the exercise was routine and, although they made extreme efforts to accommodate nearly 80 reporters and photographers covering the landing, they denied reports that the exercise was merely a media event.

"This is a training exercise which reinforces the Marines and Navy units (stationed at Guantanamo Bay)," Navy Capt. John Fetterman said at a briefing Tuesday night.

However, Fetterman said, "What you will see tomorrow (Wednesday) in no way approximates what would be done under hostile conditions." He said if the base was threatened, reinforcements would be flown in instead of brought in by ship.

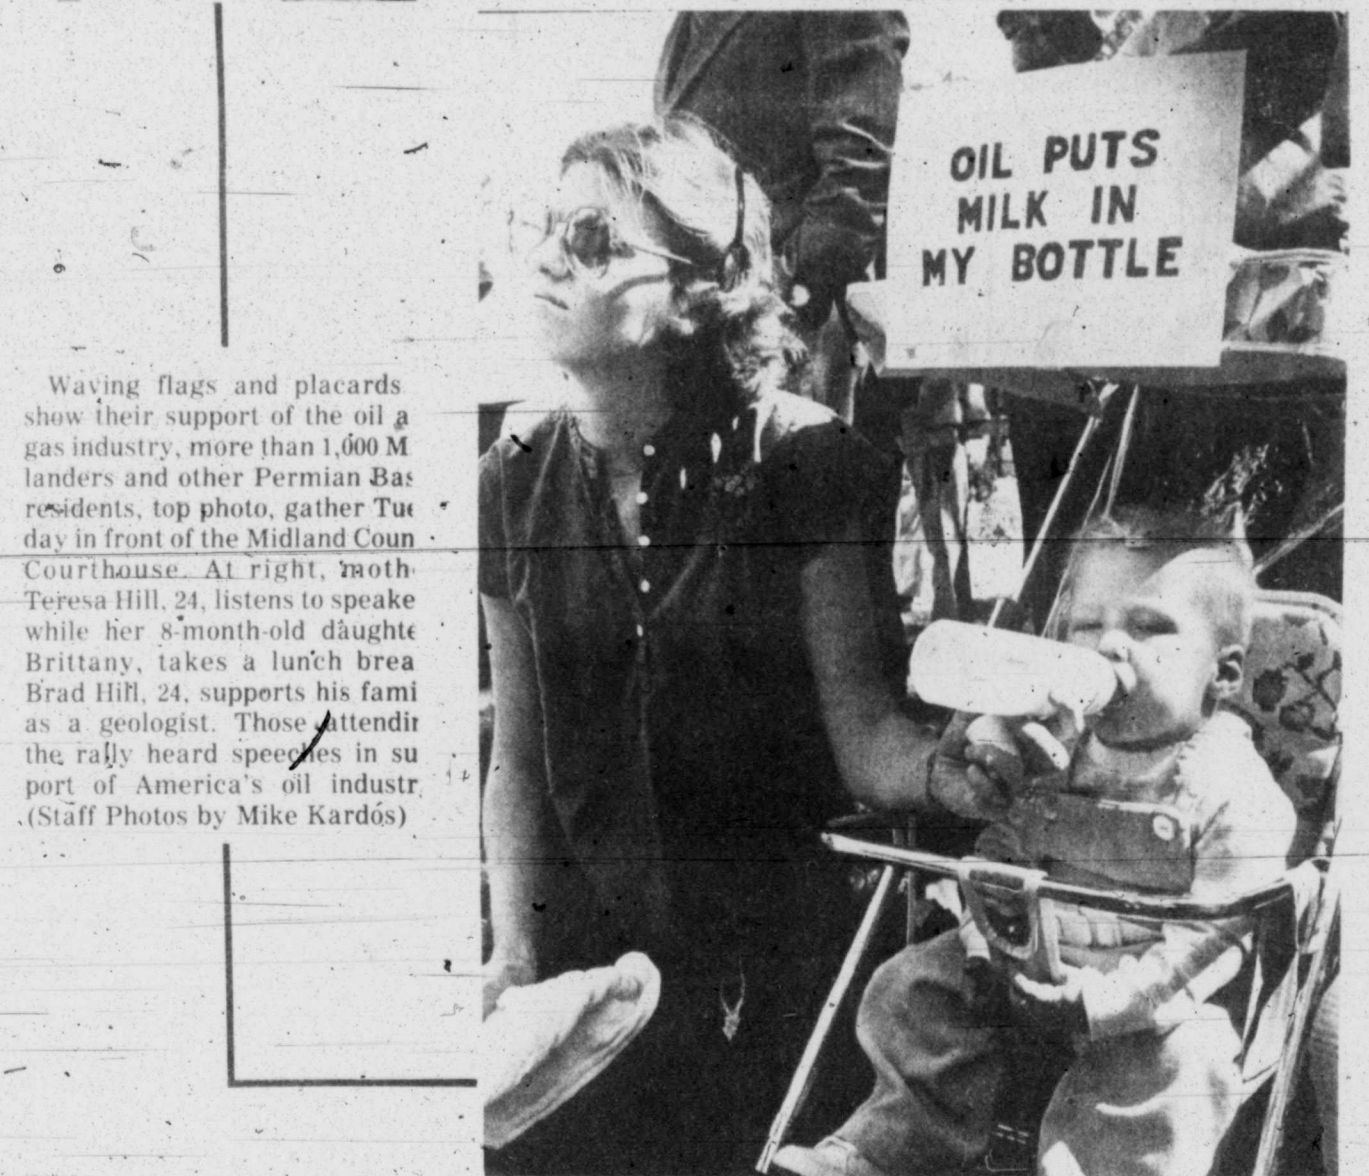

"It is not a classic amphibious assault," said Capt. Robert Bowen, a Pentagon spokesman.

Once ashore, the Marines were to move into defensive positions behind the 17.4-mile perimeter fence, then engage in about four weeks of training and drills before returning home.

Sources in Washington said they viewed the call-up of about 3,000 Cuban reservists and other action as "normal precautions."

There was no indication in the Washington reports that the Cubans were moving any troops close to the 45-square-mile base, but about a half-dozen tanks and an equal number of anti-aircraft guns were said to have been shifted to the vicinity of the base.

Administration sources also said a Soviet hydrographic research ship, which U.S. intelligence officials say is a cover for surveillance activities, was reported off Guantanamo.

Waving flags and placards show their support of the oil and gas industry, more than 1,000 Midlanders and other Permian Basin residents, top photo, gather Tuesday in front of the Midland County Courthouse. Nobel Peace Prize awarded to Mother Teresa of India

OSLO, Norway (AP) — Mother Teresa, Calcutta's "saint of the gutters," was awarded the 1979 Nobel Peace Prize today for her work among the poor of India.

The Yugoslav-born Roman Catholic nun is the sixth woman to win the prize and the first since Mairead Corrigan and Betty Williams of Northern Ireland won in 1976.

President Carter had been among the 56 individuals and organizations nominated for this year's prize. Other nominees had reportedly included South African black leader Steven Biko, who died while in prison; Soviet dissenter Yuri Orlov; Archbishop Oscar Romero of El Salvador and Adolfo Perez Esquivel of Argentina, head of a Latin American Christian services group.

The five-member Norwegian Nobel Committee said Mother Teresa was given the prize "in recognition of her work in bringing help to suffering humanity."

The prize this year is worth $190,000.

In 1947, Mother Teresa moved into Calcutta's slums to serve God among the poorest of the poor. The order she founded, the Missionaries of Charity, is best known for its "home for the destitute dying" which opened in Calcutta in 1952.

Mother Teresa, 69, was made an officer in the Order of the British Empire in a ceremony last year at the Australian High Commission in New Delhi for her "services to humanity."

Is new school needed?

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the fourth in a five-part series reviewing the items included in Tuesday's $10.2 million school bond election.

By SUSAN TOTH
Staff Writer

Why build a new school when enrollments are declining?

That's the big question that gets raised whenever school officials mention the $2.1 million set aside in the upcoming $10.2 million bond election for a new elementary school in northwest Midland.

Total enrollment in the schools is declining, MISD officials acknowledge, but elementary students are increasing about 3.8 percent a year.

The drop in students comes in the secondary schools, part of a downward curve district projections show should bottom out by 1983 and start to slowly curve upward again, reaching present levels by the early 1990s.

Those same projections, however, show elementary school enrollments are on the upswing now.

Elementary enrollments will jump from 7,500 this year to more than 10,000 by 1991, district projections predict.

By 1982, if district projections are correct, Midland will be short 26 classrooms — the size of one elementary school — in the present buildings.

If the bond election passes, school officials say, that new elementary will be ready for the students.

Without the new school, Trustee Parker Humes contends, Midland could be forced to go to the half-day sessions currently used in some Odessa schools because of lack of space.

The changes in teaching methods and programs in the elementary schools have helped add to the current classroom crunch, school officials said.

When most of Midland's 19 elementary schools were built, a separate library was not a part of the building plan.

That means many schools have had to give up classrooms to make room for a library.

Special programs mandated by the state or federal government also have made a dent in the number of available classrooms in the elementary schools.

Self-contained special education classes take 15 of the total 380 classrooms in the elementary schools, Title I programs use another 12, while Headstart, migrant and 4-year-olds use another 12. L.L.D. rooms are set aside at 12 schools.

Other classroom space is dedicated to a varied program, with 15 rooms set aside for music and art and a special enrichment room designated at each of the elementary except Travis.

A current district survey of Building use shows that of the 286 rooms left for regular classes, four are not being needed this year.

No special rooms have been set aside for motor development or physical education, school officials noted.

Rooms at Bunche, a small elementary school considered an annex to the Travis Elementary campus, house headstart classes moved from South and other schools because of lack of room and the Midland Freshman School horticulture program. Part of the building is rented by the Community Day Nursery.

"We are already to a 'make-do' stage in the elementary schools," according to Dr. James Mailley.

School officials, who estimate another school could take three years

Chad to be buried in Nebraska due to charges awaiting parents

TIJUANA, Mexico (AP) — The parents of 3-year-old leukemia victim Chad Green say they will take their son's body to Nebraska for burial Saturday, then return to Mexico to await further developments in the Massachusetts contempt-of-court charges against them.

Gerald and Diana Green said Tuesday that a Massachusetts state Senate resolution urging authorities to let them return to their Scituate, Mass., home to bury Chad without fear of arrest "just came too late."

The couple became the center of controversy last January when they took their son out of the country in defiance of a Massachusetts court order barring use of Laetrile in treatment of Chad's leukemia. Custody of the toddler at that time was returned to the state.

Chad did receive Laetrile, however, at the Tijuana clinic of Dr. Ernesto Contreras. A substance derived from apricot and peach pits and bitter almonds, Laetrile is severely restricted in the United States but legal in Mexico.

Gerald Green told reporters Tuesday that "everyone across the country — in the world — that loved Chad is welcome to attend his funeral" planned Saturday at the boy's birthplace of Hastings, Neb.

The owner of the Tijuana mortuary where Chad's body has been kept since his death Friday said the Greens' attorney, William Ginsberg, planned today to make arrangements to transport the body across the border.

"I believe he will be making arrangements to have the body taken to San Diego, then flown wherever they plan the funeral," said mortuary owner Irene Gonzales.

On Monday, Green denied reports that Contreras advised the Greens nearly six weeks ago that Chad showed signs of a relapse and should resume chemotherapy.

Laetrile is a trademark for a substance derived from the chemical amygdalin, found naturally in the pits of apricots and peaches and in bitter almonds.

Advocates claim Laetrile is an effective cancer treatment, but the U.S. Food and Drug Administration and the medical establishment in this country have said there is no proof it is of any value in treating cancer.

The FDA has banned Laetrile from interstate transportation. But 20 states have legalized use of the substance within their boundaries: Alaska, Arizona, Delaware, Florida, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, Louisiana, Maryland, Montana, North Dakota, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Jersey, Oklahoma, Oregon, South Dakota, Texas and Washington.

In 1977, a federal judge in Oklahoma ordered the FDA not to interfere with shipment or use of Laetrile. The agency appealed the ruling in 10th U.S. Circuit Court in Denver.

Pakistan under martial law; Opposition leaders arrested

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — President Mohammed Zia ul-Haq's forces arrested opposition leaders all over Pakistan early today after the military strongman cancelled elections and froze all political activity.

Among those arrested were Begum Nusrat Bhutto and Benazir Bhutto of the Pakistan People's Party. They are the wife and daughter of hanged former Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto.

Official sources said in addition to heads of most of the parties, a number of other leaders, including deputy party chiefs, were put under detention.

Most of the leaders were arrested in Lahore, Rawalpindi, and Karachi, and put under detention in their own houses. The arrest orders provided for a three-month detention.

In addition to the arrests, the offices of all the parties, including their branches in various cities, were sealed by the government.

"Martial law hereafter will be what martial law should be," Zia declared Tuesday in announcing the Nov. 17 general elections were postponed indefinitely.

He said magazines and newspapers he accused of "poisoning and polluting" the atmosphere were closed, and that violators of press censorship would be subject to jail terms up to 10 years, fines and flogging.

"No one can be allowed to destroy the country in the name of democracy nor will violence be permitted in the name of politics," he said, plunging the nation back under the administration of military strongmen that Pakistan has had for 14 1/2 of the past 23 years.

There was speculation Zia cancelled the elections for fear voters would support the daughter of Bhutto, the prime minister Zia ousted in a coup in July 1977. Bhutto was hanged in April on conviction of plotting the murder of a political foe.

Despite the cancellation of the election, Zia insisted during his nationwide broadcast, "I fully uphold democracy and stand by my earlier pledges that the country will return to a democratic government."

Engineer may have ignored signal, causing train collision

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The engineer of a packed commuter train may have ignored a signal and caused an early morning three-train pileup that sent 442 commuters to area hospitals, investigators say.

All but 26 of the injured have been released from hospitals, and only one of the injured, a conductor on one of the trains, was reported in serious condition, authorities say.

"I was standing in a rear vestibule when I suddenly found myself plastered against the wall," said Robert Burke in describing the wreck.

"The train was going at high speed when I suddenly realized he (the engineer) was applying his emergency brakes. Two seconds later — boom," recalled Burke, whose train hit the rear of another train, Tuesday, forcing it into the rear of the third train.

About 1,200 passengers were aboard the trains when the accident occurred about 8:15 a.m. Tuesday on the Media West Chester line just beyond a curve in southwest Philadelphia, officials said.

Officials said a preliminary investigation indicated that the engineer of the last train had failed to obey a signal telling him to stop and then proceed slowly.

A full investigation of the accident is being conducted by Conrail, the federal Railroad Administration and the National Transportation Safety Board.

The impact, which caused five of the 15 cars involved to derail, hurled passengers down aisles and into seat-backs. And with the fronts of some cars crushed, many passengers were forced to climb out windows.

The passengers, many dazed and dabbling their bloody faces with handkerchiefs, stumbled from the cars as police wagons, ambulances and rescue vehicles raced to the scene.

A few people were trapped in the first smashed car but the firemen got them out quickly," said Police Commissioner Joseph O'Neill.

O'Neill said most of the injuries involved bloody noses, sprained necks and some broken bones.

"We heard this big bang and ran out there with ice and paper towels," said Ruth Wolf, a teacher at the Harrington Elementary School, a block from the accident scene. "Poor things. They were really shook up."

U.S. sends carrier battle group in 'show the flag' operations

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has sent an aircraft carrier battle group into the Indian Ocean in a step-up of American naval "show the flag" operations in those strategic waters.

The 64,000-ton carrier Midway and six other Navy ships entered the Indian Ocean from the South China Sea on Sunday for training maneuvers and port calls aimed at stressing U.S. interests in the area, including the oil-producing Persian Gulf.

The Midway battle group voyage comes only six weeks after the departure of a cruiser-led task force. In the past, such naval voyages normally have been conducted about two months apart.

In an Oct. 1 speech, President Carter spoke of strengthening "our naval presence in the Indian Ocean" while outlining measures to demonstrate readiness to safeguard U.S. interests around the globe.

A day after that speech, the Pentagon said the small, permanent naval force that has been maintained in the Persian Gulf-Indian Ocean area for about 30 years had been increased from three to five ships.

The Navy said the Midway battle group, which includes cruisers, destroyers and oilers, will not become the nucleus of a permanent fleet in the vast Indian Ocean.

One hurt, one killed after crash in Ireland

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Two Northern Irish men wanted for questioning in murder cases sped through a police checkpoint near the Northern Ireland border during the night and crashed into another car, police said. One man died. The other was injured seriously.

Police said the dead man was Anthony McClelland, 25, wanted by Northern Irish police in connection with the killing of a policeman in July. Hospitalized was Desmond O'Hare, 19, wanted in the investigation of the murders of a number of security officers.

The incident took place near Castleblayney, County Monaghan. Both men were from County Armagh, the Irish Republican Army stronghold just across the border in Northern Ireland. Rifles and ammunition were found in their car, police said.

The Irish National Liberation Army, which claimed responsibility for the murder of British Conservative Party lawmaker Airey Neave last spring, said McClelland was one of its members. It described him as a volunteer in its Armagh brigade and said he died while "on active service."

Midland Youth Center celebrating building's 25th anniversary this week

By ROGER SOUTHAILL
Staff Writer

The Midland Youth Center this week is celebrating the 25th anniversary of the completion and occupancy of its quarters at 1001 W. Illinois Ave.

The Midland Youth Center building was erected and furnished at a cost of $75,000, and open house for the new facility was held Oct. 18, 1954.

According to director Marvin Rasco, the Midland Youth Center has an active student membership of 825 for the 1979-80 school year. The center employs four full-time workers.

More than 500 student members eat lunch at the center every school day, Rasco said. The center is open from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. and from 3 to 5 p.m. each school day.

A number of dances are held at the center each school year, including the traditional Howdy Week dance, annual homecoming dance, the Coronation Ball and the traditional Junior-Senior Prom.

The center is equipped with a snack bar, dining area, ping pong and pool tables, a TV room and a large area suitable for dancing. There is no organized athletic program at the facility, the director said.

According to Rasco, the story of the growth and development of the Midland Youth Center parallels the growth and progress of the city itself.

The youth center actually had its beginning here just after World War II when the old USO building on Main Street was made available to the city's young people as a recreational facility.

However, because of the rapid growth of the city, and the increase in the youth population, the USO quarters were soon inadequate.

The young people found a vacant church building which they attempted to fix up, and they utilized this structure for a time for their recreational and social functions, with parents serving as chaperones.

However, this arrangement was not very satisfactory and ultimately the city donated a former officers club building from the abandoned military air base nearby.

The structure was moved to a site leased from the First Presbyterian Church, at North B street and West Illinois avenue, across from Midland High School.

Once again, though, the structure soon proved to be inadequate to care for the influx of students at MHS, as a result of the city's continued growth.

Parents and other interested Midland citizens, keenly aware of the need for a larger, better-equipped, fire-proof student center, laid the groundwork for a financial campaign to erect such a facility.

"These people knew the Midland Youth Center was paying dividends to the youth and to the city and they were willing to back the endeavor," Rasco pointed out this week.

A vacant lot at the corner of West Illinois and North C street was donated by Mr. and Mrs. James H. Chapple as a site for the planned new structure.

Following countless hours of planning and consultation with experts, the building committee finally approved blueprints for the structure.

Then, the finance committee began its monetary drive in the fall of 1953. By the early summer of 1954, the building was rising from the ground. Finally, it was brought to completion in early fall of 1954, and open house was held on Oct. 18 of that year.

The city's young people played a large role in raising funds for the new structure, Rasco pointed out this week.

However, at one point available funds were far below the $75,000 cost of constructing and furnishing the youth facility. Civic, social and business organizations, along with many individuals, pitched in and contributed money as well as furnishings and equipment for the new building.

The Midland Youth Center is at the present time completely debt-free.

The center receives its operating funds from four sources: from the sale of memberships at $7 apiece, from snack bar sales, from special projects (such as the spring concerts which have brought such entertainers as Ray Stevens, Danny Davis and the Nashville Brass, and Larry Gatlin to town) and from the United Fund.

Real-life princess is a hit

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP)—The little girl, in her pink dress with a matching ribbon in her hair, said, "I have read stories about it, but this is the first time I have seen a real-live princess. She is pretty."

The real-life princess was Margaret, younger sister of Britain's Queen Elizabeth II, who was on a tour of the Johnson Space Center.

Her audience was about 50 pupils from a suburban elementary school.

Tami Love, another of the youngsters sitting on the grass watching, said, "Just say this is terrific, this is great, this is fantastic."

And one young boy said, "Is that the queen?"

A classmate answered, "That's the princess, silly. Can't you tell a queen from a princess?"

Princess Margaret also met with officials of the space center and with astronauts as she asked numerous questions about the United States space program.

The princess is on a tour of the nation in an effort to raise $4.5 million for improvements of London's Royal Opera House, where the royal ballet also performs.

The opera house at Covent Garden is in need of at least $16.4 million worth of major repairs. Some $12 million has been contributed to restore the historic site.

Dr. Chris Kraft, director of the space center, gave the princess a tour and went into details on the solar power satellites, which, he said, may some day provide the world with 50 percent of its energy needs.

...but not with Chicago's mayor

CHICAGO (AP)—Princess Margaret referred to the Irish as "pigs" during a dinner party conversation with Chicago Mayor Jane Byrne, who is of Irish descent, a Chicago Sun-Times columnist reports.

Irv Kupcinet said Tuesday the two women were sitting at the same table when Mrs. Byrne remarked that she had attended the funeral of Margaret's cousin, Lord Louis Mountbatten in London. Mountbatten was killed last month by a bomb planted by Irish Republican Army assassins.

"The Irish," Princess Margaret was quoted as saying, "they're pigs."

Then, she told the mayor, "Oh, oh, you're Irish," Kupcinet reported. Mrs. Byrne left the party as soon as possible, he wrote.

"She (the mayor) was very incensed," Kupcinet said late Tuesday night. "She's very, very Irish, you know."

Freak tidal wave kills 13 in France

NICE, France (AP)—Police closed beaches along the eastern end of the French Riviera today following a freak tidal wave that swept 13 persons in Nice and Antibes into the sea and did damage estimated at $10 million.

Officials said there was no indication of a repetition of the disaster Tuesday—but people were told to stay off the beaches as a precautionary measure.

Weather and marine experts said there was no record of a similar tidal wave on the Riviera. They said it was due to more than a week of torrential rain that flooded the Var River. The river carried millions of tons of mud, sand and debris into Antibes Bay, and this caused a massive underwater landslide.

The slide pulled the waterline away from the shore more than 300 yards, and the damage was done by the rush back of the returning sea.

"It happened just after

2 p.m.," said Michel Burgeaud, the keeper of the Antibes lighthouse.

"I saw the sea suddenly pulling away from the shore. A wide area of the sea bottom that I have never seen uncovered before was suddenly high and dry. I guess the sea level must have dropped by more than one meter (39 inches)."

"This lasted for about 15 minutes. Then the sea returned abruptly with a gigantic wave that kept rushing forward for a good five minutes. After that, the water settled back to its normal level and the sea even seemed calm. It was an extraordinary experience."

The wave was felt 60 miles along the famed

FOR QUALITY EDUCATION FOR EVERY MIDLAND CHILD!

Each one of us has served one or more terms as a member of the Midland School Board, many of us during periods of rapid growth such as our City is now experiencing. We have worked to maintain and enhance Midland's reputation for having the best schools in West Texas—a record which goes back to the early 1900's. We believe passage of the October 23rd bond proposals to be absolutely necessary, if our public school system is to continue to perform its responsibilities to every Midland child...and that is our solemn duty as citizens.

Our School Boards have always submitted school bond issues in one "package", because improvements have always been designed to benefit the ENTIRE city not just one section. This is true with the October 23rd bond election. We have ONE school system, and ALL of it must measure up, if we're going to do the job.

We Urge You To Vote "FOR" Bonds!

from planning to opening its doors, are concerned the enrollments will outstrip the time available to build it.

During the three years, the continued enrollments will be absorbed into existing buildings and new temporary and portable buildings, Mailey said.

Mailey probably will have to make do until the new elementary can be built by taking away from areas we have said are important in the elementary program.

Instead of separate art rooms, we'll have a traveling art teacher, for instance," he noted.

The problem with the elementary schools will continue, even with the passage of the bond election, Mailey said.

Projections show the new school will be full when it opens, and elementary enrollments will continue to increase.

That could mean asking voters for another bond issue to build a second new elementary school within three to four years, Mailey said.

Carter fulfills Department of Education pledge

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter today fulfilled one of his 1976 election campaign pledges by signing legislation establishing a Department of Education, the 13th Cabinet-level agency of the government.

The president signed the bill in the White House, East Room before an audience of hundreds of the measure's supporters and a class of fourth graders from Brent Elementary School in southeast Washington.

"I don't know what history will say," Carter remarked. "But my guess is the best move for the improvement of the quality of life in the future might be the establishment of this Department of Education."

The ceremony capped a hard-fought battle in Congress and marked one of the few legislative victories the president has won this year. The House gave final congressional approval to the bill Sept. 24. Carter had not expected creation of the department one of his top domestic priorities.

Carter said the Brent School fourth graders were invited to the bill-signing because they represent "the real beneficiaries" of the new department.

The president asked Benjamin Mays, president emeritus of Morehouse College and a Georgia educator for more than 50 years, to join a girl from the Brent School class on the podium as he signed the bill.

The new department will consolidate 152 of the government's education programs under one roof. It was the second Cabinet-level department established during Carter's presidency. The Energy Department was set up in 1977.

The Education Department is to have about 17,000 employees and a budget of $14.2 billion, larger than those for the departments of Energy, Interior, Commerce, Justice and State.

Its functions will be stripped from five existing departments. The largest segment will come from the education division in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, now to be called the Department of Health and Human Services.

Education and Welfare, now to be called the Department of Health and Human Services.

No secretary for the new agency has been designated, but sources familiar with the selection process said the president's choice may be announced within the next 10 days.

Meanwhile, three names recur on the list of potential candidates: Jerry Apodaca, the former governor of New Mexico; Barry Berry, the assistant HEW secretary for education, and Alan Campbell, director of the federal Office of Personnel Management.

Apodaca is Hispanic and Berry is black. The appointment of either might be expected to boost the president's standing in those constituencies in an election season.

Others whose names are being mentioned include former Iowa Sen. Dick Clark, Panama Canal treaty negotiator Sol Linowitz, civil rights activists Jesse Jackson (Operation PUSH) and Vernon Jordan (the National Urban League), and television newsman Bill Moyers, a former press secretary to President Lyndon Johnson.

By law, six months will be allotted for setting up the department, starting from the time a secretary is sworn in. A transition team already is at work in the Office of Management and Budget to coordinate the changes.

The Education Department had the strong backing of many groups representing interests in the area, but the most notable advocate proved to be the National Education Association.

The 1.8 million-member group is the nation's largest teacher organization. When Carter pledged support for a separate Education Department to the body, it awarded him its first presidential endorsement.

Voyager 2 photos show new moon around Jupiter

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pictures snapped by the Voyager 2 spacecraft have disclosed a new moon in orbit around the planet Jupiter. Traveling 67,000 miles per hour, it's the fastest moving satellite in our solar system.

The moon, temporarily designated "1979 J 1," is the 14th known to be orbiting giant Jupiter. It is only 18 to 25 miles in diameter and is circling near the outer edge of the Jovian ring, about 36,000 miles above the planet's cloud tops.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said Tuesday the discovery was made by two researchers at California Institute of Technology, Dr. G. Edward Danielson and graduate student David Jewitt.

NASA said they noticed a star-like object in a picture transmitted by Voyager 2 as it passed near Jupiter last July 8. But after an extensive search they could find no stars in the vicinity.

This led to examination of another Voyager 2 photo of higher resolution "showing the same portion of the ring, the same curious object and trails of some known stars. Verification that the object was indeed a satellite of Jupiter was based on the differing angles and lengths of star trails and the trail left by the target object."

From the two pictures, an orbit was calculated independently by Jewitt and Dr. Stephen Synott, an optical navigation engineer at NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena, Calif.

"1979 J 1" is the closest moon to Jupiter. It is smaller than seven of the planet's other moons, and larger than six of them. The satellite takes only 7 hours and 8 minutes to complete an orbital circuit. NASA reported "This is the fastest-moving satellite in the solar system and it has the shortest orbital period."

The newly found moon adds to an impressive list of Jovian scientific observations made by Voyager 1 when it probed Jupiter last March and by Voyager 2 in July. Among the discoveries are the ring itself, considerable volcanic activity on the satellite Io and tremendous bolts of lightning in the planet's atmosphere.

Both spacecraft are now en route to Saturn, with Voyager 1 slated to fly by that planet in November 1980 and Voyager 2 to follow in August 1981.

Meanwhile, flight controllers at Jet Propulsion Laboratory wrestled with a potential problem with Voyager 1 most of the day Tuesday after failing to regain radio contact with the probe following a deliberate shut down of 20 hours for an instrument calibration maneuver.

JA directors name Whitley, Morris to fill organization's board openings

Directors of Junior Achievement of Midland, Inc., this morning named Loyd Whitley and D. Earl Morris to fill vacancies on the organization's board of directors.

Hagan, Scholarships and Awards chairman, and Gary Petersen, executive director.

Joe Kloessel, immediate past president of JA, presided at today's meeting in the absence of President Paul Henderson. The session was held in the JA Business Center.

Turner, 35, of Odessa, was found about 1:30 a.m. Monday slumped behind the steering wheel of a car parked across the street from the Diamond Club, 541 East Pearl St.

The directors approved a comprehensive program which will be launched immediately in an effort to enroll and retain additional members in Junior Achievement. The plan, which was outlined by W.H. "Bill" Collyn, public relations chairman, will be aimed directly at high school students who previously have indicated an interest in JA, and their parents.

Turner was found about 1:30 a.m. Monday slumped behind the steering wheel of a car parked across the street from the Diamond Club, 541 East Pearl St.

James Ingram was named chairman of a subcommittee charged with implementing the proposal, which was drafted by Womaek Claypool-Giffin Advertising, Inc. through the courtesy of Compressor Systems Inc.

Testimony in Chambliss trial may not start until Thursday

By BILL MODISETT, Staff Writer

Testimony in the murder trial of 17-year-old Midlander Kelly-Joe Chambliss may not start until Thursday morning, according to attorneys for the state and the defense.

"We'll be lucky if it starts by Thursday morning," Assistant District Attorney Charles Seltzer, one member of the two-man prosecution team, said Tuesday afternoon.

Defense attorneys Allen McFall and Eddie Garza concurred.

Garza estimated, however, that testimony in the trial will take at least three days once it does start.

Chambliss is charged with murder in connection with the July 18 shooting death of Army Sgt. J.B. England on Interstate 20 west of Midland.

A co-defendant in the case, 24-year-old Raymond Wesley Mathis of Midland, was convicted of murder in the case and assessed a 99-year prison term during a September trial. That conviction is now on appeal.

The time-consuming process of individual questioning of prospective jurors in the case entered its third day this morning.

Garza and McFall had requested individual examination of prospective jurors outside the presence of the entire jury panel after 238th District Court Judge Vann Culp last month denied their request for a change of venue.

They had contended that news media coverage of Sgt. England's death and the trial of Mathis had made it impossible for Chambliss to receive a fair and impartial trial in Midland County.

After brief questioning of the entire 65-member jury panel Monday morning, attorneys began the tedious task of questioning each prospective juror.

Monday's session dragged on until 9 p.m. and Tuesday morning the attorneys began questioning the potential jurors in groups of four, but still the process was time consuming.

The Mathis trial lasted a week and speculation has been that the current trial may take even longer. District Attorney Vern Martin, who along with Seltzer is prosecuting the Chambliss case, has declined speculation on how long the trial will last.

Set-England was on his way from Marion, N.C., to Fort Bliss at El Paso July 18 when he was fatally shot about 10 miles east of Midland on I-20. He was found by law enforcement officers about 4:30 a.m., that day and taken to Midland Memorial Hospital, where he died shortly before 6 a.m.

Mathis was arrested later that same day in Ward County and Chambliss was arrested July 19.

According to testimony in the Mathis trial, Sgt. England was wounded three times in the face and once in the left arm.

Mathis said in a statement to deputies entered into his own trial that it was Chambliss who shot the Army sergeant.

Weatherman changes tune to dry, cool

The weatherman seems to have changed his taped forecast from hot and sunny to dry and cool for the fall season.

Skies should be partly cloudy through Thursday, said the weatherman, as a cold front pushes through the Permian Basin.

High on Thursday should be only in the low 80s after an overnight low in the mid-50s, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport.

The mercury hit 90 degrees on Tuesday, just two degrees shy of tying the record 92 degrees set on that date in 1964.

The overnight low of 54 degrees was far from the record low of 36 set in 1976.

The month's rainfall stands at .54 inch and the yearly total at 12.82 inches.

Police 'don't have much to go on' in shooting death of Tommie Turner according to reports. Two guns found in Turner's car were not used in the shooting, said Blalock.

Although difficult to determine, the detective said it appears neither of the two guns had been fired for at least 15 hours prior to Turner's death.

While several persons reported hearing the shooting, no one saw the assailant.

A number of witnesses have been questioned by police, but "so far we really don't have much to go on," said Blalock.

Future of nuclear energy may hinge on dumps

By H. JOSEF HEBERT

WASHINGTON (AP) — While the accident at Three Mile Island focused attention on potential dangers associated with atomic power plants, the future of nuclear energy may well hinge not on the plants themselves, but on finding a way to store the radioactive wastes they produce.

"It's the Achilles heel of nuclear energy," said one industry executive who asked not to be named. "The most credible argument (against nuclear power) is still that satisfactory long-term waste disposal has not been demonstrated."

The widespread concern about nuclear wastes — as well as a spotty industry and government track record on the subject — was emphasized this week by the continued shutdown of a low-level nuclear waste dump in Washington state after complaints that some shipments to the dump were not properly packaged.

The brouhaha over the closing of the Hanford dump near Richland, Wash., as well as criticism of similar dumps in Nevada and South Carolina, involves only "low-level wastes" — a long list of contaminated items ranging from radioactive medical wastes used in hospital and research laboratories to clothing, resins and sludge discarded at commercial nuclear plants.

But the industry's most gnawing problem is not what to do with such low-level wastes, but what to do with more troublesome high-level waste: primarily 5,000 tons of spent fuel resting at the nearly 70 commercial reactors, but also wastes from the nuclear weapons program.

Public acceptance of a permanent disposal program for high-level wastes is necessary to gaining acceptance for nuclear power, says James M. Lydon, senior vice president of Boston Edison. "We cannot be seen as an industry that just wants to put it down a hole," he said recently at a symposium.

The National Academy of Sciences recommended in 1957 that such nuclear wastes, which also include byproducts of the nuclear weapons program, might be buried in deep salt formations where, it was hoped, they would sit for the hundreds of thousands of years it takes for them to become harmless.

The salt domes remain the most likely answer, say experts, but other proposals, such as shooting the wastes into space, burying them deep beneath the sea, or isolating them on an unpopulated Pacific island have been suggested.

Industry leaders and many government officials insist the basic technology for long-term storage is available.

"What we have not had is a decision by our government on which way to go," argues Edward Teller, developer of the hydrogen bomb and a vocal nuclear power advocate. "Waste disposal is a political problem, not a technical problem."

Other scientists argue that because byproducts of the atomic age may take 300,000 or more years to become safe, the experts who profess to have the answers are working with incomplete information and cannot guarantee a safe storage site.

Indeed, the government already has had a couple of false starts in its search for a waste repository. The most embarrassing was near Lyons, Kan., where some spent fuel already was in an abandoned salt mine when the project was cancelled in 1972 after it was discovered that someone had done considerable drilling in the area, making the salt formations unsafe.

"They were sitting in a piece of Swiss cheese and they didn't know where the holes were," recalls one industry executive, who asked not to be named.

The government's current high-level waste strategy — made more critical by President Carter's decision two years ago to abandon spent fuel reprocessing — is two-fold: to establish a number of government-run surface interim storage sites for spent fuel while at the same time expanding the search for and development of a permanent site.

Emergency plan debated

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nuclear Regulatory Commission staff is seriously questioning whether the five-member commission as a group should participate directly in responding to a nuclear emergency.

"Constraints created by emergencies, particularly the limits of time and information, might make full collegial decision-making infeasible and even counterproductive," said a staff report to the commission.

The report by the agency's Office of Policy Evaluation suggested that the chairman of the five-member commission take control of operations during an emergency and make only a "best effort" to keep the other four commissioners informed.

Chairman Joseph Hendric indicated he favored such a move, although several other commissioners questioned it and the agency's chief lawyer said such a change might be illegal.

Albert Kenke, acting director of policy and evaluation, told the commissioners the staff believes there should be clear lines of authority within the agency during an emergency.

The "collegial" atmosphere by which all five commissioners by law are considered equal in decision making hinders the way the agency can respond in an emergency, he said.

Kenke suggested in his report that if the commission chairman is not available the next senior commissioner should take charge. The remaining commissioners would serve "as key spokesmen with relevant groups and agencies" such as the media and Congress.

Commissioner John Ahearne questioned whether the commissioners would best serve such a communications link and commissioner Victor Gilinsky snapped, "What you basically are saying is that you want us to take over public affairs and congressional affairs."

The five commissioners did not take any action on the matter.

Various persons investigating the Three Mile Island accident last March in Pennsylvania have said lines of authority within the NRC often were blurred during the accident.

During Tuesday's commission meeting, Lee Gos-sick, the agency's executive director of operations, urged establishment of clearer lines of authority within the agency.

ART BUCHWALD Innuendo reporting is the toughest type of writing

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — There ought to be a Pulitzer Prize for "innuendo reporting." Innuendo reporting is an offshoot of investigative reporting — the main difference being that the innuendo reporter has failed to get any facts to back up his story and therefore must resort to allegations that could or could not be true. We're seeing more and more of this kind of journalism in the newspapers and on television so the public believes it's easy to do. Wrong. Innuendo reporting is the toughest type of writing and requires a great deal of imagination.

Let me give you an example of what I mean.

Sources at the Justice Department revealed today they are investigating Halabird Gritts, Amy Carter's appointments secretary, for sniffing glue in the basement of FAO Schwarz toy store in New York City.

The source said the case has been turned over to the FBI, which hopes to complete its investigation within the next six months.

The key witness is Miss Lalla Pigeon, former wife of punk rock singer Sydney Gravestone, who was sentenced to five years for the hatchet murder of his cat Yo-Yo during a concert at Shea Stadium.

Miss Pigeon, who is hoping to start up her singing career again, said that she was in the Barbie Doll department of FAO Schwarz, which is located only three blocks from the barber shop where Albert Anastasia, the notorious mob leader, was gunned down while he was getting a shave.

She saw Gritts come in with three friends who apparently had been drinking wine with lunch at the Pierre Hotel, scene of one of the greatest safe deposit box robberies in the history of New York City.

She said Gritts came up to her and asked if she knew where he could buy some airplane glue. She said she had a friend in the hobby department in the basement at Schwarz and would take him there.

On the way to the hobby department Gritts and his friends raucously played the pinball machines, and two of them tried on ski masks, a favorite ploy of stickup artists in the city's recent plague of bank robberies.

When they got to the hobby department, Gritts inquired of the clerk if he had any glue. The clerk asked if he wanted glue for model boats or model planes, and Lalla said Gritts replied, "What's the difference?"

The clerk said it was in the smell and he offered to let Gritts sniff the two kinds. Lalla, in a sworn statement, revealed that Gritts sniffed both the boat and airplane glue in her presence. Then he asked her if she wanted to go to Studio 54, whose owners are now being investigated for IRS violations.

Gritts denied, through the President's press secretary, that he had gone anywhere near the glue department and had only come into Schwarz to buy a "Star Wars" game.

In the meantime, Lalla's lawyer said that she had changed her story and now maintains that she did not actually see Gritts sniff the glue. She said after Gritts bought the glue, he disappeared into the washroom with his friends, and when they came out they started dunking basketballs into the net set up in the sports department. The manager became enraged and asked them to leave.

The President's press secretary produced an affidavit from a clerk who said the only thing Gritts did while he was in FAO Schwarz was play with the electric trains.

If Gritts is convicted of sniffing glue he could get a maximum of 10 years in prison and a $50,000 fine.

Amy Carter refused to return this reporter's calls.

Selectivity of concern irritating

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Jimmy Carter's much-ballyhooed concern for human rights has irritated representatives around the world — as much for the selectivity of the president's concern as for the embarrassment it causes the dictators.

But like the proverbial hypocrite in the Bible, Carter has no difficulty spotting the mote in an adversary's eye, while ignoring the beam in his own — or at least, in the eye of his political pals.

The Coca-Cola Co. and its top executives have been among Carter's most reliable — and generous — political supporters. So there has been nary a peep out of the White House about the violence that has been wreaked on workers by Coke's franchise-holder in Guatemala.

There is substantial evidence suggesting possible American corporate complicity in some of the widespread violence and bloodshed. Rep. Don Pease, D-Ohio, wrote in a confidential letter to Carter, "What disturbed the congressman most, he wrote, is 'the seeming unwillingness of the Coca-Cola Co. to do anything' about the wave of murder, torture, kidnapping and intimidation aimed at Coke's employees in Guatemala."

For more than four years, Pease charged, the workers have been subjected to "an unmercifully ruthless, campaign of intimidation and terror orchestrated by the plant management and its American owner, John Clinton Trotter."

Trotter "appears firmly committed to destroying the union and has demonstrated his willingness to stop at nothing toward this end," Pease wrote. "Union officials have been assassinated and their successors have been constantly harassed with death threats."

Earlier this year, the Ohio congressman noted, Guatemalan religious leaders appealed to Coca-Cola executives in Atlanta to do something about the reign of terror at Trotter's plant. "A non-committal response was given and no action was taken."

And when Israel Marquez, a former union official who fled for his life, showed up at the annual stockholders' meeting to plead for help, he got a similar brushoff, Pease complained to Carter.

The congressman concluded his letter by citing the "close ties" between Carter and Coca-Cola, adding, "This suggested to me that I ought to bring to your attention the tragic state of affairs at the Coca-Cola franchise in Guatemala, as well as the callous disregard shown to date by Coca-Cola corporate executives toward the well-established human rights violations occurring there."

Human rights advocates fervently hope that the president will use his Coca-Cola connection to champion the rights of the harassed workers. But Carter's "close ties" to the company have so far been evidenced by back-scratching, not finger-pointing.

Grateful for such favors as campaign contributions from Coke executives, free use of a company jet while he was governor of Georgia, and fund-raisers sponsored by Coke executives for pet Carter projects, the president responded in a number of helpful ways. He banished Pepsi-Cola from the White House, gave White House blessings to Coke's entry into the Red Chinese, Russian and Portuguese markets, and blocked a hike in sugar prices — a move that saved

Coca-Cola millions. Carter's recent trip on the Delta Queen gave the riverboat so much free publicity that it may return its first profits to the parent company — Coca-Cola Bottling Co. of New York.

A word from the president to his buddies at Coca-Cola might bring an end to at least some of the human rights violations in Guatemala — if he'll say the word.

Footnote: A spokesman for Coca-Cola told our associate Gary Cohn that Atlanta headquarters has no control over operations of its independent bottler in Guatemala. In an apparent contradiction, he added that the company did investigate the situation and is "doing all we can at this point." He told us solemnly, "We abhor violence."

WATER WOES: Residents of seven states are risking their health every time they take a drink of water — and all because Congress passed a toothless Safe Drinking Water Act five years ago.

The law was intended to get state agencies to enforce water-safety standards set forth by the Environmental Protection Agency. Cash incentives to states that undertook such enforcement would supposedly do the trick.

But Congress failed to give EPA a stick with which to beat recalcitrant state authorities who won't respond to the carrot of cash payments. The federal agency has no way to punish states that refuse to enforce the government's pure-water regulations.

In fact, the only penalty in such cases is against the EPA, which by law must assume responsibility for monitoring the water systems of the irresponsible states. And as agency officials told us, they simply don't have the staff for proper supervision on a regular basis.

In Pennsylvania for example, nearly half of the 20,000 water systems — serving 2 million persons — have never been chemically analyzed, and are not covered by state health laws. A fifth of the state's water systems aren't even inspected. Yet the EPA staff in Pennsylvania, responsible for doing the job the state is shirking, numbers just 17.

Meanwhile, new tougher regulations are being drafted by the EPA. If adopted, they will spread the agency's manpower even thinner.

MIG buildup in Cuba

Reports that Moscow has steadily increased its deliveries of MIG fighter planes to Cuba since last fall can only further erode public confidence in the Soviet "assurances" on the Communist motives in the Caribbean.

And the information provided by the CIA compounds political problems facing President Carter in his drive to win Senate approval of the SALT II agreement.

The buildup has revived the flap of last November when Pentagon officials estimated that a dozen or more of the planes were based in Cuba. The president cited Russian "assurances" that any weapons sold to Cuba were "defensive in nature."

The choice of words, unfortunately, was duplicated in the recent Carter speech when he professed unconcern over Soviet troops in the island nation because of Soviet "assurances" that they were merely on a training mission.

The president's hope of coaxing Senate approval of the strategic arms limitation agreement is jeopardized by the apparent violation of the understanding reached after the 1962 missile crisis that Russia would never again introduce offensive weapons in Cuba.

Well, once again, what can one expect of the Soviets? Will the powers that be never learn?

The really serious part of the incident is that, as intelligence officials have pointed out, the planes can be fitted quickly to deliver nuclear warheads — a highly offensive tactic.

It is uncertain whether the news of an additional number of planes to Cuba — perhaps more than 40 — will intensify the opposition to SALT II.

But the implication of a systematic assembly of a hostile force on the American doorstep suggests that Moscow is testing the Washington will and undercuts the president's plea to separate the troop and weapons problem from SALT goals.

There seems to be increasing sentiment that both a SALT rescue and the Carter leadership image hinge on more firmness — a "stronger confirmation," in Henry Kissinger's words — in meeting the Soviet challenge.

The president has the political weapons — favored trade proposals or the hint of stronger ties to China — to display displeasure without shaking the doors of the nuclear closet.

It appears more and more likely all the while that he must use them.

And it most certainly is time for President Carter to exert more firmness in his dealings with the Soviet Union. Such action very definitely would improve his leadership image across the nation and around the world.

This business of not calling the hand of the Soviets when they break their "assurances" is for the birds.

AWARE's 'Energy Day'

Thursday will be another day of special significance in Midland and across the Lone Star State, insofar as energy is concerned. And energy certainly is of tremendous importance to everyone.

It will be "Energy Day," as proclaimed locally by Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr.

Mrs. Joanne Dinsmoor is serving as chairman of the Midland observance, which is sponsored by AWARE (Alerting Women About Resources and Energy), a recently formed energy-conscious organization.

Texas First Lady, Rita Clements, is serving as honorary chairman of the statewide energy information organization.

The Midland observance will be highlighted by a meeting of organization members and guests in the Midland Hilton. Arthur H. Dinsmoor will address the session on the subject, "Our Future Lies in Energy."

The prime purpose of AWARE is to present factual information on energy and energy sources to women and others. Conservation also is being stressed.

Both Mrs. Clements and Mrs. Dinsmoor have said it is the responsibility of members of the group "to take this message to others."

It is a most worthwhile undertaking, which merits community-wide support on "Energy Day" and every day.

NICK THIMMESCH

Goldwater and Javits, the much sought-after political team

WASHINGTON — It was rather nice that, with one exception, all Republican colleagues of Sens. Barry Goldwater and Jacob Javits recently urged them to seek reelection next year. Both of these senior, but ideologically dissimilar, gentlemen haven't made up their minds yet about trying for a fifth term.

North Dakota's senior legislator, Milton Young, 81, in the Senate 34 years, says he can't recall his fellow Republicans ever writing a letter of this sort before.

Initiated by Republican Senatorial Committee Chairman John Heinz, the letter said: "For more than a quarter of a century you have been two of America's most respected and most influential leaders...you have helped shape many of the most crucial decisions of our time...You certainly have earned the right to step down from the Senate...demanding pace. But we need you. A Senate without Barry Goldwater or Jack Javits is almost impossible to imagine."

Now Goldwater, 70, and Javits, 75, have always seemed to be opposites. Javits was born poor on New York's lower East Side in what he once called "an urban counterpart to a log cabin." His immigrant father didn't earn enough as a pants presser, so he moonlighted as a janitor. Father and son resented the heavy-handed corruption of Tammany Democrats. Front boyhood on, Javits was a Republican, an interesting sort of dissident in Manhattan.

Javits worked his way through school, excelled in the law and made himself a nest egg before running for office for the first time at the relatively late age of 42. He became a record vote-getter and for years was kept at an arm's length by many Senate Republicans because of his consistent liberalism.

In 1964, Javits refused to support the GOP nominee, Barry Goldwater, a defiant act that hardly won him plaudits. West of the Hudson River, his older brother, Benjamin, an ardent Goldwater fan, irked Jacob Javits by having Goldwater picked up in his limousine whenever he arrived in New York.

Goldwater was born in the Territory of Arizona. His uncle helped found the Jeffersonian-flavored Democratic Party in those parts. It wasn't until after World War II that Barry turned Republican. Moreover, Goldwater was born into a wealthy family, attended private schools, married an industrialist's daughter, and while always a hearty outdoorsman, knew nothing of the rough and tumble of growing up in an ethnic (Jewish) neighborhood.

Since Goldwater was reared in his mother's Episcopalian faith, he was sheltered from anti-Semitism. There is a story that he was once turned away from a country club because of his name and that he asked the manager if he could play nine holes, "because I'm only half-Jewish."

Later in life, after he learned that his Jewish relatives in Poznan, Poland, had been exterminated by the Nazis; he became more sensitive to his background. Goldwater became very angry in 1964 when Daniel Schorr, then a CBS correspondent, did a report suggesting that Goldwater was linking himself with neo-Fascist elements in West Germany, a falsehood which Schorr came to regret.

Javits, living in the ethnic turmoil of New York City, was always keenly aware of who he was. In one of his books, Javits wrote that had his father come to the United States earlier, he might have gone West as a Jewish "Yankee peddler" on the frontier, and "with his wagonful of pots and pans... come to rest in a small Western town. Thus Javits' father might have eventually opened a dry-goods store which would become a department store."

"It amuses me to think that he might have come to rest in Phoenix, where he could have met a man like himself named Goldwater," Javits wrote. "Perhaps the pair might have even become fang and claw competitors." Javits then mused that they might have, even become partners, and then "the great department store of Goldwater and Javits."

That entrepreneurial partnership was never formed, and even today there is only a limited political partnership of Goldwater & Javits. The two men are friends and speak very well of each other.

Javits remains the hard-headed liberal, respected by his Republican colleagues. No one is more impressive in Senate floor debate for skill or command of facts than Javits. He is also the ranking Republican on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and an expert on SALT II. Republicans gave him the chief role in forming their alternative economic package, and he is lauded for his longtime campaign for pushing for greater productivity in our economy through capital formation.

Goldwater is more low-key but is an important and respected figure in deliberations on the armed services, SALT II, intelligence and the pending communications act. No Republican gets more affection from his colleagues than Goldwater, and he is holding up well in polls in Arizona. His wife's health and his own are major considerations as he makes his decision whether to run again.

North Carolina's Sen. Jesse Helms is the only Senate Republican who didn't sign the letter. His spokesman explained that Helms "wasn't properly consulted; feels that he shouldn't tell Republicans in Arizona and New York whom to nominate; is a friend of New York's Rep. Jack Kemp whom he might favor in a primary over 'Jake' Javits."

DEATHS

Ada Belle Tune

COLEMAN — Services for Mrs. Sanford (Ada Belle) Tune, 91, of Abilene, mother of Mary Boardman of Lamesa, were to be at 2:30 p.m. today in Stevens Funeral Home chapel here with burial in Coleman City Cemetery.

She died Monday in Abilene. Mrs. Tune was born in 1887 at Bickie's Cove, Ark. She moved to Bell County in 1891 with her parents. She was married to Sanford Tune May 31, 1908, in Temple, and they lived on a farm near Temple before moving in 1915 to Coleman County, where they farmed for many years.

Mrs. Tune began working with the Home Demonstration Club in 1925. She was president of the Live At Home Club and was a member of the Church of Christ.

Other survivors include two daughters, two sons, a sister, 16 grandchildren and 27 great-grandchildren.

John A. Rapp

WARREN, N.J. — Services for John A. Rapp, 89, of Warren, father of William A. Rapp of Midland, will be at 10 a.m. Friday in Harding and Orr Funeral Home chapel in El Paso, Texas. Burial will be in Fort Bliss National Cemetery.

Rapp died Sunday in Warren after a lengthy illness. He was born Oct. 5, 1890, in New York City. He was married May 15, 1920, to Carrie Shaw in San Antonio. They lived in El Paso from 1921 until 1965. Mrs. Rapp died in 1970.

Rapp retired from the El Paso Police Department in 1961. He was a member of the American Legion Post 36 and Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 846, both of El Paso.

Rapp had served in the horse cavalry on the Mexican border, in the Philippine Insurrection and in World War I.

Other survivors include a son, a daughter, three sisters, 11 grandchildren and two-great-grandchildren.

Grand jury investigating attacks on federal officials

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The lawyer for a convicted hit man tried to get quashed today a subpoena to appear before a federal grand jury investigating the killing of a judge and an attack on a prosecutor.

Charles B. Harrelson, 41, of Dallas, was subpoenaed to see if he could shed any light on the investigations, federal authorities said.

Harrelson was sentenced to 15 years in prison for the 1968 murder-for-hire of Hearne grain dealer Sam Degelia Jr. He was acquitted in a 1968 slaying of Houston carpet company executive Alan Berg. He completed his parole in 1978.

His lawyer, Charles Tessmer, accused federal prosecutors of conducting a "fishing expedition" and said the subpoenas for Harrelson and his wife, Joan Starr Harrelson, were "unreasonable and oppressive."

"These investigations sometime take on the character of a witchhunt and people can find themselves subpoenaed for purposes that can only be described as harassment," Tessmer said in an accompanying memo.

Harrelson told reporters outside the grand jury room, "Why don't you just leave me alone."

Thirty-six witnesses are to appear before the grand jury today and Thursday, including members of the Bandidos motorcycle club and a reputed organized crime leader.

The subpoenas do not mean the witnesses are targets of the investigation, only that federal prosecutors feel they can shed light on the case.

The federal panel is investigating the May 29 sniper assassination of U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr., known as "Maximum John" for his stiff sentences in drug cases.

It is also investigating the attempted assassination last Nov. 21 of Assistant U.S. Attorney James Kerr, who had been spearheading a federal investigation into an international drug smuggling ring centered in El Paso.

A total of 36 witnesses have been subpoenaed. Among the Bandidos subpoenaed is Richard Paul Ricks of San Antonio, who took part in a police lineup viewed by Kerr last March. Federal officials have refused to reveal the results of that lineup.

Other Bandido leaders in the group of witnesses are two officers in the Austin chapter, the president of the Corpus Christi chapter and two Houston club officials.

Federal prosecutors have also subpoenaed club records.

Salvatore Michael Caruana of Boston, whom an FBI agent has testified answers directly to the head of the New England organized crime syndicate, is also scheduled to appear.

He was a friend of Lee Chagra, slain El Paso defense attorney. Chagra's brother is fugitive drug smuggler Jimmy Chagra.

A friend of Jimmy Chagra, Peter Lynn Krutschewski of Lansing, Mich., was subpoenaed, but was jailed Monday morning on charges of conspiracy to violate federal drug laws. Krutschewski, who uses the name "Peter Blake," was indicted by a federal grand jury in Boston.

Restrictions to test Russian insistence

WASHINGTON (AP) — Proposed restrictions on the Soviet Backfire bomber being debated by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee appear certain to test Russia's insistence that the SALT II treaty not be changed.

The Soviets, insisting that the modern swing-wing two-engine bomber does not have the range to attack U.S. targets from Russian airfields, have refused to include it in the strategic arms limitation treaty.

However, many senators are insisting that the Backfire does have intercontinental range and should be counted in the treaty.

On Monday, the committee voted 9-1 to implement SALT II only if Moscow agrees that the assurances on Backfire made to President Carter by Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev at the Vienna summit meeting last summer are legally binding.

Brezhnev, in an unsigned written assurance and in orally, said the Backfire will not be given intercontinental capabilities and that production will be held to no more than 30 a year.

Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., said he voted against incorporating the Brezhnev statement in the treaty because he believes that the Backfire already has intercontinental range and that the Brezhnev statement was incorrect.

Other senators said that merely incorporating the Brezhnev assurances into the treaty does not solve the problem and they want it addressed directly.

"We want to make it very clear that if the Soviets modify the Backfire bomber to increase the range or increase production, we're out of the treaty, we're not going to play anymore," said Sen. Joseph R. Biden, D-Del.

Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, said he will introduce an understanding addressing just that issue.

Other potential controversies facing the committee include an attempt by Sen. Richard Stone, D-Fla., to close what he considers a treaty loophole by outlawing the possible deployment of Soviet diesel submarine armed with medium-range nuclear missiles in Cuban waters.

U.S. chamber

president dead

ROANOKE, Va. (AP) — Clem Dixon Johnston, a former president of the U.S. and Virginia chambers of commerce, has died at a Roanoke hospital. He was 82.

Johnston, who died Tuesday, founded Roanoke Public Warehouse in 1926 and operated six wholesale grocery firms in southwest Virginia and West Virginia.

A native of Kentucky, he graduated from Centre College and attended Harvard Medical School for a year. Johnston came to Roanoke in the early 1920s.

He served as an infantry captain in the Panama Canal Zone in World War I and was an Army ordnance lieutenant colonel in World War II.

Survivors include a sister and three stepchildren.

Police trace owner of car possibly involved in hit, run

Tracing ownership of a car through four different used car dealers, Midland police Monday arrested Francisco G. Verdesco, 17, of Midland, in connection with a hit-and-run accident Oct. 5 in the Tall City.

Verdesco remained in Midland City Jail today in lieu of $5,000 bond set by Peace Justice John Biggs. He is charged with failure to stop and render aid, which is a felony, according to police records.

The Oct. 5 hit-and-run accident involved James Henderson of Odessa.

Henderson was treated and released at Midland Memorial Hospital after he was struck by a car at the intersection of Big Spring Street and Missouri Avenue.

A witness at the scene of the accident wrote down the license number of the car believed to have been in-olved, Officer George Taylor said.

Taylor and two other Midland police officers, Joe Ortiz and John Roundtree, traced ownership of the car through four used car dealers in the area before finding who owned the car at the time of the accident, Taylor explained.

Arresting Verdesco, listed as the last owner of the car, was hampered when police learned he was no longer in the United States, the officer said.

A Mexican national, Verdesco had been picked up by the Border Patrol as an illegal alien and deported Oct. 8, three days after the accident, Taylor said.

Verdesco was arrested Monday at the car dealership where he had bought the car when he appeared there to make a car payment, Taylor said.

MC enrollment, contact hours up

Enrollment was up more than expected and contact hours — the basis for state aid to colleges — increased considerably, Midland College trustees were told Tuesday.

Fall enrollment is 2,550 this year, compared to 2,202 last fall, Registrar Dee Windsor told trustees in their regular meeting Tuesday.

Vocational contact hours were up 7 percent, with academic contact hours up 18 percent, he said.

In other business, trustees accepted the only bid they received for letter to be put on campus buildings, identifying them to people driving around the campus.

The $10,790 project will be paid for from funds raised by the Midland College Foundation.

A summary of 1979 Midland Junior College District tax rolls indicated a total tax levy of $2.66 million for the college district on a net assessed valuation in district of just over $1 billion.

The board also acted on request to allow Midland College to purchase ethanol alcohol for the traffic safety program at MG. The substance is used in breathalyzer analysis tests administered by traffic safety department at the college, which recertifies all breathalyzer operators in the area.

Fred Wright was appointed to represent MC on the county tax appraisal district board.

College President Dr. Al G. Langford told the board the Midland College Foundation had allocated funds for a number of projects, including $11,000 for building signs, $12,000 for construction of a foot bridge across drainage canal to connect MC and Theatre Midland, $10,000 for faculty development, $6,000 for drafting equipment for second drafting technology lab.

Other projects approved by the board included $4,000 for PE equipment, $17,000 for a grand piano and other musical instruments, $15,000 for additional learning resource center equipment, $15,000 for floor repair and blinds over windows at the entrance of Chaparral Center, $11,000 for music scholarships and $12,000 for grounds maintenance equipment.

United Way termed efficient, accountable

The efficiency and accountability of the United Way are some of the reasons independent oil operator Allen K. Trobaugh supports the United Way.

Trobaugh is president of United Way's 1979 board of directors.

"I support the United Way because it is a concentrated effort by the community to meet its social service needs on a one-time fund drive basis," he said.

"Each United Way member agency has its own governing body made up of volunteers from the community, just as the United Way board is. The United Way works as their fund-raising arm and also works with each of the agencies to help assure that community funds from the private sector are spent wisely and that community needs are being met by these agencies," Trobaugh said.

RINGING THE BELL

Blackside of Washington continues far from bright

With BOB TIEUEL

Blacks and native Americans rank below Hispanics and Oriental Americans, as well as whites, on the federal pay scale totem pole, according to recently available figures from the Office of Personnel Management.

Of the 2,418,808 federal civilian employees, 387,680 or 16.1 percent are black and 184,074 are other minorities. But the average pay for blacks in the General Schedule (GS) is significantly lower than all others except native Americans.

The average pay for native Americans is $11,800 a year; blacks, $12,000; Hispanics, $13,200; Orientals, $15,400, and whites, $15,350. In other pay systems the discrepancy is about—the same.

In the postal service, for example, where blacks make up one-fifth of the $14,000 total, their average pay is only $12,196 a year; Hispanics, $19,092; Orientals $23,327, and whites, $27,198. Native Americans are not represented in this category, but in other similar categories their average pay is $17,425, slightly higher than blacks.

In general, the percentage of minority groups goes down as the categories go up. However, black employment by the federal government is continuing on the increase both in numbers of workers and pay, the figures show.

A new annual employment survey was made last November. The figures are expected to be released shortly and will continue to show improvement in black employment, officials say. Figures in this story were taken from the 1977 report.

TO MRS. G.W. of Lubbock. Thanks, bellingring. Yes, this column in some form is widely read in Botswana, Swaziland, Mozambique, Lesotho, Rhodesia and Zambia as well as a number of other countries in Central and South America—and in other parts of the world.

Dear Bob: Please remind bellingrings, especially church members who support the black church, that the odds are ever increasing that they will be contacted by Internal Revenue agent to account for the figures shown and not shown on your income tax return. Good record keeping is basically the only solution to otherwise terror and alarm when the tax agent requests answers to such questions as: Is that your total salary? How much did you contribute to charity and the church? Where are the records to substantiate each item?

The best proof of all will be your check book. Be prepared to give the government what it demands, and give to Caesar what is Caesar's. (Signed) Rev. J.M. Granberry, secretary-treasurer, Pension Dept. A.M.E. Church.

BLACK SELF-HELP economics: "The idea of poor people trying to pay $25 to $40 per night to live in a white (or any other color) motel is preposterous. The majority of us, in spite of our gains, are still poor. For the most part our C.M.E. Church is supported by the poor. Bishops, urge the membership and friends to accept more ministers and delegates into their homes at exactly half of the prevailing motel price. Few homes would turn down $15 to $20 per night.

"To the question, 'Why, then, don't Negroes build their own motels and public accommodations?' the answer is that banks are negative toward large black investments.

"Yours in 24 years of AMEism, a concerned A.M.E."

DEAR ABBY

Curtain call for courtesy

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: The other evening I saw an outstanding ballet company perform. At the end, the audience responded with enthusiastic applause, but as the dancers took their first curtain call a large percentage of the audience rushed out of the theater, no doubt hurrying to get to their cars first.

These people were not only being rude to the performers but to others in the audience by obstructing their view of the stage.

As an actress, I have felt anger and resentment after having given my all in a performance only to be deprived of my few moments of glory because some people didn't want to stick around for an extra five minutes.

The curtain call is important to performers. It's the only opportunity we have to step out of our roles and express our gratitude to an audience that rewards us with their applause.

Please print this, Abby, to remind audiences that performers need those few precious moments of appreciation. Withhold my name and sign me. —ACTRESS

DEAR ACTRESS: Name withheld (but I'm saving your letter). Take another bow for a beautiful letter on behalf of all performers.

DEAR ABBY: My wife has this long-time girlfriend I'll call Muriel. She's my wife's age (30), divorced, fairly attractive, but doesn't have a steady man. Muriel fancies herself to be some kind of femme fatale and has given me the come-on several times, but I've never given her any encouragement.

A couple of months ago, after I had taken my wife and Muriel to a disco, my wife told me that Muriel told her that I had made a pass at her! That was a total lie, and I told my wife it was.

Last weekend we were at a party and Muriel was there. I was very cool to her, and hardly spoke, but the next evening, my wife told me Muriel had called her at work and said that I had propositioned her!

Abby, I don't know what Muriel's game is, but I am fed up with her. I have never fooled around, but if I decided to start, it wouldn't be with Muriel. I have the feeling my wife isn't convinced that I am totally innocent. How should I handle this? —NOT GUILTY

DEAR NOT: Ask your wife to invite Muriel over. In the presence of both you and your wife confront her about her accusations. If your wife is really a good friend, she will encourage Muriel to get professional help. The poor girl could be less malicious than disturbed.

DEAR ABBY: Bravo to your response to the 82-year-old man who wants to marry a woman 20 years his junior! May I add:

I am 34, beautiful, well-educated and popular. I've had wealthy, young professional men beg me to marry them, offer me trips to Europe. One wanted to buy me a $17,000 Cadillac! I turned them all down because I am deeply in love with a 70-year-old man who has never given a material gift to me in the two years we've been caring for each other. What he HAS given me is an incomparable inner joy. I've never felt with anyone else. He's so alive, warm and loving. I thank the Lord for this wonderful man daily.

I have proposed to him, but he has cold feet. I know he loves me, but he's afraid he's "too old" for me. (He has never married.)

Fireplace heat goes up in smoke

By AL CARRELL

The wood-burning fireplace in most homes is an inefficient way of heating. Much of the heat goes right up the chimney along with the smoke. That alone makes it inefficient. However, to hear more blame on the air that the fireplace must draw is generally air from within the house. In many houses, this will be heated air. If you've paid to heat this air with your furnace, the fireplace may be robbing you of more heat than it contributes.

Another negative about the fireplace is what it does to you in your sleep. When you get ready to retire, you can't just close the damper in the flue because the fireplace will smother you. So you go to sleep, and sometime around 3 a.m. the fire dies out, however, the updrafts don't, and so the fireplace continues to draw warm air out of the house.

If you've done all the caulking and weatherstripping I've talked about, your house may be airtight, and your fireplace may be grasping for combustion air as well as air to draw.

Fireplaces are also smokey, and they create ashes that have to be hauled out and disposed. Certainly keeping the fire going requires bringing in a bunch of logs that may give you splinters, a hernia, and also provide a free ride into the house for insects.

Why then would anyone bother with a fireplace?

Well, it just might be your only heat source on some days this winter. Fuel shortages, power failures or other problems might stop the operation of your central system. To me, the biggest reason for the fireplace is the great atmosphere it creates. We've even been known to turn on the air conditioning when cold weather was too slow in arriving so we could enjoy that crackling fire. But the big reason for most is that the fireplace can be made into an efficient heat source if you use it properly, and if you add some accessories to help make it more efficient.

Whether you have tightened up your house against air infiltration or not, the idea of using outside air for combustion and draw makes sense. In a masonry fireplace, you may be able to provide this if your fireplace backs up to an outside wall. Several manufacturers are putting out an outside air combustion kit. It's a metal flue that lets you control the air, and it's installed by taking out a fire brick in the back and cutting through from the outside.

Maybe the best addition you could make would be a good glass fire screen. They aren't cheap if you get a good one, but these units should have a damper on them. The extra damper cuts out the problem of your fireplace robbing your home of all that expensive heated air while you're asleep. When you get ready to retire, you just close the damper on the fire screen, and with the glass doors shut, there, there's no room air that can be sucked in.

Heritage Club meets

October meeting of the Heritage Study Club was held in the home of Jan Kimery. Linda Freeman was co-hostess.

President Mary Tift introduced two guests, Claire Woodcock and Kathleen Stewart. An in-depth review of the book, "A Time for Truth" by William Simon was presented by Shirley Johnston.

Insurance Women of Midland to attend convention this week

The Insurance Women of Midland will attend the 35th annual state convention of the Federation of Insurance Women of Texas Thursday through Sunday at the Sheraton Inn in Houston.

Attending will be Mrs. Charles P. Campanella with Dillard Anderson & Co.; Mrs. Carl Crawford with John W. Rahlfs Co.; Mrs. H. D. Eikenberg with McKee Insurance Agency; Mrs. C. E. Grant with Johnny Johnson Insurance; Mrs. Jack Cook with Mims & Stephens; Mrs. Jeff Puckett with Myers-Reddin Agency; and Mrs. Dottie Miller, associate member.

Imogene Buie with Gene Luttrell Insurance is president of the local club and will be represented by Mrs. Carl Crawford, vice president, at the convention.

Mrs. Campanella and Mrs. Grant are past presidents of the Federation of Insurance Women of Texas and will attend a special luncheon Thursday at noon honoring all past presidents of the federation.

Mrs. Claire Bledsoe is the current president and will be presiding throughout the convention. New officers will also be installed.

The Federation of Insurance Women of Texas was organized in Dallas in June, 1944, to build and maintain greater efficiency through study and practice, to establish acquaintance with women of common interest through social and business meetings, to participate collectively in a worthwhile manner in civic betterment of the community, and to seek to elevate the standards of the insurance profession.

Governor Clements has issued the proclamation designation this week as Insurance Women of Texas Week to be presented to the general assembly on Friday.

Volunteers in training at local museum

Annual training sessions for the docents of the Permian Basin Petroleum Museum, Library and Hall of Fame are in progress.

These docents are volunteers from the Santa Rita Club and the Junior League of Midland, Inc.

Under the coordination of Ed Rowland, assistant director of the museum, the volunteer docents have heard various speakers make presentations on the different categories of the oil industry and Permian Basin history.

Speakers from the community and their topics include Robert Ward (Gulf Oil Co.), geology; Marvin Hargess (Gulf Oil Co.), finding and drilling for oil; and Dave Dorchester (TESCO), anthropology.

The Petroleum Museum is the only major museum of its kind in the Southwest. It is a non-profit project designed to pay tribute and tell the story of this area's largest industry, explained Rowland.

The docents will soon begin conducting tours to area public and private school children.

Midland women get high on high fashion show

Professional model Elsa Roseborough of Houston applies make-up before the style show begins in Midland Country Club, sponsored by Palmer Drug Abuse Program volunteers for the benefit of PDAP.

By PATSY GORDON
Lifestyle Writer

It could have been a showing of fall and winter collections of top United States designers in Paris, France, or Rome, Italy.

But it wasn't. Oh, it was high-fashion all right, with a sneak preview of resort wear by Pauline Trigere of New York City and Jean-Louis of California thrown in. But the occasion was a benefit style show and luncheon in Midland Country Club, sponsored by volunteers of Midland's Palmer Drug Abuse Program, with Janet Pollard of Midland instrumental in getting the event going.

Grace Jones of Salado, who operates her very own high-fashion outpost in the little Central Texas town, brought 1979 fall and winter styles of many other of the well-known names in designing — and the models to wear them.

Professional models in the Tall City Tuesday were Elsa Roseborough, Sharon Burt and Margie Owens, all of Houston.

Also modeling, but not professionally, were Texas society leaders in their own right, donating their services for the benefit of PDAP. They were Jane Sibley and daughter, Mahala, of Austin and Glass Mountains in the Big Bend; Betty Rainey of Austin; Betty Weideman and Joan Brashear of Temple, and Harriet Herd of Midland.

According to Mrs. Jones, who was accompanied to West Texas by her husband, Jack, "the mini-skirt may come back for the young, but generally speaking, women will wear skirts at the most flattering length — two inches below the knee."

Bob Savage, director of Midland PDAP, explained to the audience that the center, a non-profit organization open to the public free of charge, "has 27 teenagers as of last Thursday."

Savage introduced the two other counselors, Michele Savage, who assists Savage with the older group at First United Methodist Church, and Sarah Cross, who is in charge of the younger group at Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity.

Harriet Herd of Midland models an Agona two-piece tweed suit of brown and beige. The beige blouse is accented by brown and white pearls and a brown velvet tie. Mrs. Herd is a volunteer working for Midland's Palmer Drug Abuse Program.

This all-occasion dress of contrasting purple and moss green silk is worn by Sharon Burt, also a professional model from Houston. An obi-wrapped belt and matching hat complement the ensemble.

Margie Owens, the third professional model from Houston, models a David Hayes two piece suit of silk wool crepe. A silk blouse of black on white print cabbage rose over white background is accented by a white tie that creates a rose. Her tiny black hat features a veil worn over the forehead.

Professional model Elsa Roseborough of Houston wears rust pants by Geoffrey Beene topped with a Koos Van Den Akker turtleneck sweater of beige. Her beige jacket is a Bogner design lined in possum with leather trim.

Chinese don't expect talks to relieve tensions

PEKING (AP) — Acting Premier Deng Xiaoping told seven American governors today the Chinese government has no illusions that its new round of talks in Moscow with the Soviet government will ease tensions between the two neighboring communist giants.

Deng, China's senior deputy premier who is heading the government while Premier Hua Guofeng is in Europe, said the Chinese hope for progress in the talks, but "at the same time we don't entertain any illusions about it."

He reminded the governors that China and the Soviet Union have been holding talks on their border disputes for 10 years, but none of the disputes has been settled.

"But in a nutshell, to have negotiations is better than not to have them at all," he commented.

The governors, who arrived Monday, met with Deng for an hour and 40 minutes in the Great Hall of the People. Gov. William Milliken of Michigan, the chairman of the group, told reporters about the meeting.

The other governors are George Ariyoshi of Hawaii, Thomas Judge of Montana, Richard Lamm of Colorado, Albert Quie of Minnesota, Robert Ray of Iowa and Richard Snelling of Vermont.

Milliken said they discussed a wide range of topics, including trade, refugees, China's economic development and dissidents.

Deng told them the protest posters on Peking's government wall and local demonstrations "cannot represent the genuine feelings of our people." He did not comment on the conviction Tuesday of a magazine editor who demanded democracy for China or the trial today of a woman who organized a demonstration by poverty-stricken peasants from the provinces.

Milliken said the governors were especially impressed by Deng's emphasis on individual initiative and incentives. The Michigan governor said he told them:

"In order to have the kind of personal interest and enthusiasm by workers that leads to increased productivity, there must be personal incentive."

After serving nine years on the Parks and Recreation Commission, Richard Saxe, left, receives a plaque in recognition of his time and effort from Wayne Kohout, director of the Midland's Parks and Recreation Department. Saxe was appointed in 1970 to the commission. From 1971-72, he served as chairman and, from 1976-79, he was a co-chairman. (Staff Photo)

New evidence discovered in Chinese dissident's trial

PEKING (AP) — Fu Yuehua, a 31-year-old woman who organized a demonstration by poverty-stricken peasants campaigning for work and food, went on trial today on charges that she falsely accused a minor party official of rape and that she instigated public disturbances.

The trial adjourned later in the day after the discovery of new evidence in the case, according to spectators present in the courtroom. They would not say if the trial would continue Thursday or what the new evidence concerned. An investigation of the evidence had been ordered, they said.

It was the second such trial in two days. Wei Jingsheng, a 29-year-old magazine editor and advocate of democracy, was convicted Tuesday of giving military secrets to a foreigner and seeking to overthrow the government. He was sentenced to 15 years imprisonment.

Mrs. Fu was charged with libel and violating public order by organizing a mass disturbance, the official Xinhua news agency reported. She went on trial at the People's Intermediate Court before more than 500 ticket-holding spectators and representatives of the government-controlled media. She was represented by a lawyer from the Peking Lawyer's Association.

Outlining the libel charge, the indictment said Mrs. Fu, a construction worker at the time, in April 1973 accused Geng Yutian, former acting Communist Party secretary of her commune brigade, of raping her 14 months before. It said she persisted in her charge despite three official investigations that found it "groundless" and "entirely false."

Mrs. Fu also was accused of organizing a protest in Peking's main square "in violation of public order" last Jan. 8. The indictment said she "led a group to create disturbances at Tien An Men Square and West Chagan Street and ignored advice from traffic police." Traffic was blocked for more than an hour. The demonstrators were among thousands who came to the capital from the provinces demanding food, jobs and the redress of wrongs stemming from the 1966-69 Cultural Revolution. At least 6,000 were camped in the city during the summer, and several hundred sat in at government offices. Mrs. Fu was arrested on April 3 and has been in jail ever since. The charges were not announced until today. All Peking newspapers today hailed the three-judge court's conviction of Wei Jingsheng, the 29-year-old editor of the magazine Explorations.

Hua gets look at everyday Parisians

PARIS (AP) — Chairman Hua Guofeng got his first look at everyday Parisians at a working-class hotel where Chou En-lai stayed as a student revolutionary, and the Parisians got their first unhurried look at the head of a Chinese government.

Hua, who succeeded Chou as China's premier and Mao Tse-tung as chairman of the Chinese Communist Party, waved happily, and the Parisians applauded.

The encounter took place Tuesday at the three-story Hotel Godefroy, in south Paris. It was the second day of Hua's three-week trip to France, West Germany, Britain and Italy.

China's No. 1 man and French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing unveiled a plaque at the hotel commemorating Chou's residence there in 1922-24, when China's future premier was working in the Renault automobile factory and organizing Chinese students in France for revolution.

Parisians and Chinese lined the little Rue Godefroy, and residents hung out of their windows to see the slow-stepping, round-shouldered Chinese with the gentle smile.

Paul Drexler becomes gourmand of grotesque

By TERESA CHUH

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Paul Drexler's parents once dreamed their Ivy League-educated son would land a high-paying job as a lawyer or a regional planner. Somewhere, something went wrong.

Dashing their fondest hopes, Drexler emerged from the hallowed halls of Cornell and Amherst not as Paul Drexler, Attorney at Law, but as Paul Drexler, Gourmand of the Grotesque, Epicure of the Eccentric — Father of Art Dreco.

Art Dreco? The dictionary says the word "dreco" comes from the Yiddish "drek," slang for trash or rubbish.

By Drexler's definition, Art Dreco comes in many forms.

It's a copper bust of Sen. Joe McCarthy with a small dent in the back of the head. It's a "Mr. Whipple" toilet paper dispenser that plays classical music.

It's a pair of ping-pong paddles stamped with the technicolor faces of Chairman Mao and Richard Nixon.

It's a jar of Killer Bee honey from Brazil.

It is art that shines and stinks, like a rotten mackerel by moonlight," the 31-year-old Drexler says. "It repels and attracts at the same time. It has a fascination that draws one beyond the ecstasy of loathing."

But seriously, folks. . . . "Dreco illustrates the circular nature of art where extremes pass into their opposites."

The soft-spoken, scholarly looking art patron — clad in classic Art Dreco shirt splattered with a lurid cowboy and Indian pattern — says he coined the concept seven years ago while working as an antique dealer in Massachusetts.

"I saw pieces at auctions there that I just couldn't categorize," he says. "Pieces so ugly that they were beautiful."

Drexler brought Art Dreco to the West Coast from Amherst less than a year ago because "Massachusetts was too constrained — life was like a Norman Rockwell painting."

Today, San Francisco's Art Dreco Institute flourishes as a one-of-a-kind oddity in the sleepy neighborhood just east of the city's Castro District.

In the back of the shop — away from scads of postcards, trinkets and other Art Dreco paraphernalia for sale — are nearly 50 pieces of Drexler's priceless permanent collection.

Among the notorious are objects like a parakeet harness entitled "Born Free" and an alligator purse entitled "Moon over Miami."

And the list goes on. Drexler explains that Art Dreco is not the merely grotesque or ugly, but "works done with a purity of intent. If it's intentionally offensive, it's kitsch. Medicine."

Most of Drexler's collection breathes cynicism and parody. But is it serious?

"That's not a fair word since it implies that humor can't be credible," he says. "Dreco is a way of looking at things. It may be ironic, but it's real."

"Beauty is only skin deep," Drexler pauses. "But ugly. That's deep down to the bone."

Insulation

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Despite rising energy costs, more than 10 million households in the United States have no attic insulation, according to a recent report by Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp.

The attic is one of the major areas of heat loss in the home.

The report also says another 22 million households (excluding mobile homes and multi-family dwellings with more than four units) have only 1 to 5 inches of attic insulation. Six inches is considered the minimum in most areas of the country.

Country Sleuths

Tom Selleck (center) and Jerry Reed star as two men out to solve a puzzling mystery in Nashville, and country music star Barbara Mandrell, playing herself, gives them some clues in "The Concrete Cowboys," on The CBS Wednesday Night Movies, Wednesday, Oct. 17 on CBS.

"The Concrete Cowboys" was directed by Burt Kennedy from a script written by Jimmy Sangster. Richard Newton produced the film, with Ernie Frankel as executive producer for the Frankel Film Inc. production.

Family united again

ERESNO, Calif. (AP) — Mushak and Armen Manukian have been reunited for 50 years, but they are almost strangers.

Recently his faith was rewarded. Mrs. Manukian and her 49-year-old daughter, Asya, who visited her father in 1977, flew from Moscow to Los Angeles where Manukian met them.

The Manukians and Asya will live here. Their two other children will remain in Russia, Manukian said.

With an Individual Retirement Account at First Savings you can save for the future at the impressive current interest rate of 8% (effective annual yield 8.33%). You can deposit up to $1500 or 15% of your yearly income, whichever is less, and deduct every penny from your taxes. You do not have to pay the taxes on your IRA funds until you start with drawing from it, normally after you retire. (THE LAW REQUIRES SUBSTANTIAL PENALTIES FOR WITHDRAWALS BEFORE THE AGE OF 59½.) When you retire, you'll probably have less income and more than likely be in a lower tax bracket, that way the tax bite will be less.

And now for greater protection, your IRA funds are insured up to $100,000 by an agency of the Federal Government.

So, stop by either First Savings office . . . downtown at 500 West Wall . . . or San Miguel Square . . . today, and tell them you want a great retirement plan, and they'll tell you all about the benefits of an Individual Retirement Account.

*Remember, The deadline for starting or adding to an IRA is the date your taxes are due.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Preservatives have two uses

Dear Dr. Solomon: What is the purpose of adding preservatives to foods? Do they do anything besides keeping the food from spoiling? — Mrs. K.H.

Dear Mrs. H.: In addition to preventing food spoilage, preservatives protect the natural flavor and color and even the texture of a variety of food products. An example is the use of sorbic acid in cheeses and margarine.

Dear Dr. Solomon: My baby was born six weeks prematurely. It had always been my intention to breast-feed the baby, but I naturally assumed I would carry for the full nine months. I'm concerned that my milk may not be nourishing enough for a premature infant. Would she be better off with an enriched formula? — Grace

Dear Grace: You can put your concerns to rest. Scientists at Duke University have found that breast milk from mothers of premature infants is significantly higher in a number of important ingredients than the milk produced by mothers who carry their children for the full nine months. These ingredients include protein, sodium, chloride and protective antibodies.

Dr. Steven J. Gross, assistant professor of pediatrics, says that the results of the study clearly indicate that breast milk from the mother of a premature infant is more appropriate than either breast milk from another woman or cow's milk formula. It is also easier to digest than the formula. Previously, many doctors assumed that the milk of all mothers was similar and therefore did not meet the special nutritional needs of the premature infant.

Dr. Gross and his associates based their conclusions on a study of milk samples from 14 women who had delivered after a normal gestational period, and 31 women who had delivered up to 10 weeks prematurely.

Dear Dr. Solomon: My

doctor has prescribed an iron supplement, but I would prefer to avoid taking it, if possible. Can you tell me what foods best provide iron? How can I tell if I'm not getting enough iron? — Mae

Dear Mae: I can suggest dietary sources of iron, but whether you also need a supplement is a matter to be discussed with your physician. It may be that particular circumstances of which I cannot be aware — such as heavy menstruation, hemorrhage, or other loss of blood — make a supplement necessary. Additional iron also is needed during pregnancy.

In terms of foods, however, the best source of iron is liver; next best are oysters, heart, lean meat and tongue. The best plant sources of iron are leafy green vegetables. Excessive use of coffee and tea may interfere with the absorption of iron by the body.

The most common result of deficiency is iron-deficiency anemia. This is characterized by skin pallor and abnormal fatigue. Other symptoms may include constipation, difficulty in breathing and dull, brittle fingernails.

If you have a medical problem, see your doctor. If you have a medical question, write to Neil Solomon, M.D., 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Md. 21208. Dr. Solomon cannot give personal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.

Indoor stream does job

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Fishery scientists in the Michigan State University Department of Fisheries and Wildlife are using an indoor model stream as a laboratory for studying ways to improve fishery management.

Associate Professor Ray White and Kurt Fausch, a graduate student, are seeking to learn what details of stream habitat are important to salmon and trout, and how different species and sizes fight for habitat.

The model stream is a meandering 25-foot-long Plexiglas creation, a foot wide and a foot deep, that weaves across a large room. The streambed is lined with gravel and rocks of various sizes. Plywood laid across the top shades portions of the stream from the glare of overhead lights.

An air-lift pump drives water from one end of the stream to the other and cycles it back through a pipe to a gravel bed, where it is filtered.

Atlanta, Dallas, Portland, Phoenix lead city horse race

By LEE MITGANG
Associated Press Writer

Atlanta is "red hot," Dallas still is attractive, but has slowed down a bit. Portland, Ore., and Phoenix are gaining fast.

If it sounds like a horse-race of some kind, it is, in a way. Cities across the country remain locked in pursuit of corporations, especially now that recession is making jobs more precious.

But according to Maurice Fulton, the 60-year-old chairman of Fantus Corp. which helps about 200 corporations relocate each year, things haven't changed much in terms of which cities business favors.

"The Sunbelt lives," he said recently. And for the foreseeable future, he predicts that cities in warm climates will continue to lure manufacturing jobs from the declining Northeast.

The Northeast and Midwest haven't been completely out of the running, though. A number of cities in those regions have shaped up their acts enough in the past five years and are now doing quite nicely in attracting corporate headquarters.

"Beginning five years ago, some of these cities began to attack their problems, instead of failing to recognize their problems or saying they were inevitable," he said.

Chicago, where Fantus is headquartered, now has an economic development commission to retain and attract new business. Detroit has its Renaissance Center which is entering a new phase of growth. Philadelphia and New York also have a new and better attitude toward keeping and attracting business, said Fulton.

But the recession is not likely to stop companies from relocating if they see a long-term advantage in doing so.

"Some companies we've been working with say if we do go into a recession, that's a good time to move, that they might get incentives in some cities," said Fulton.

In Fulton's opinion, the level of taxes and quality of life in a city aren't as important as pure business economics when a company is considering a move.

"The incentives for a company to relocate come with obsolescence of a plant, inability to attract workers with the right kinds of skills, development of new products, accelerating costs of production, and the development of new markets," he said.

Fantus Corp., a subsidiary of Dun & Bradstreet, has been in the business relocation service since 1919, and Fulton has led the firm for the past three years.

For a fee ranging from $35,000 to $50,000, Fantus will determine the cost of a move and the costs and benefits resulting from a business changing its location. Finally, Fantus will recommend whether a company should move or stay.

When Fantus was busy assisting big corporations move out of declining Northeastern cities in the 1970s, like New York City, the company wasn't especially popular in those parts.

"That's like shooting the messenger who brings bad news," Fulton protested. "At times, we recommend staying."

Brezhnev said possible 'diplomatic' illness victim

MOSCOW (AP) — President Leonid I. Brezhnev skipped two meetings and a banquet with Syrian President Hafez Assad Monday and Tuesday and Syrian sources said they had been told the Soviet leader was ill.

There also was speculation among Western diplomats that Brezhnev may have been suffering a "diplomatic illness," a malady that would have kept him from immediately having to respond to Assad's reported demands for more Soviet arms in his battle against the Israeli-Egyptian peace accord.

Questions about Brezhnev's health stem from recent public appearances. During his visit to East Berlin earlier this month, spectators said Brezhnev, 72, appeared feeble, although he delivered his main speech in a strong voice.

Brezhnev was last seen in public at the end of the Berlin trip.

Brezhnev's health appears to change quickly.

During last summer's Vienna summit with President Carter, Brezhnev appeared fit.

That was only a few months after a Moscow meeting with French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing during which sources said Brezhnev appeared very ill.

Brezhnev's exact health problems are a closely guarded Kremlin secret. He has been reputed to suffer from gout, emphysema and even leukemia. He wears a hearing aid in public, slurs his speech and frequently stumbles and needs help from aides who are always close at his side in public.

But Western specialists said a diplomatic illness could also be a valid diagnosis. Soviet-Syrian relations cooled late last year, apparently over Assad's refusal to sign a friendship treaty in return for more Soviet arms.

- Civic Center
- Golf course improvements — Hogan Park expansion (Midland will also soon have 3 18-hole private country clubs)
- North Loop Road
- Economic diversification
- Improved medical facilities

With the help of the Midland Chamber of Commerce, most of these goals have been reached (some are in progress, and others are on the drawing board) during the past 10 years. By providing the leadership and direction for Midland's future, your Chamber of Commerce has played, and will continue to play, a major role in this progress.

Conrail bureaucrats play with their train sets

BRANCHVILLE, Conn. (AP) — Conrail, the bunch of bureaucrats playing with trains in the Northeast Corridor, took a full page ad in the New York Times the other day to tell the folks they're "back on the track."

They got themselves 479 new locomotives, the ad said, and overhauled another 2,771, thanks to an investment of 2.3 billion dollars of taxpayers' money by the federal government. This also enabled them to buy 6,000 new freight cars, refurbish "nearly" 59,000 more and lay more than 16 million cross-ties and "over 3,200 track miles of steel rail." With the throttle wide open on superlatives, the P.R. men up there in the cab loudly tooted their horn to let the public know that instead of "Six collapsing, bankrupt railroads" in the northeast corner of the country, we now have ourselves a federally-run railroad that lost only 98.3 million dollars in the past six months, compared with 276.9 million in the previous six months.

Right under the picture of an adult hand playing with toy trains came the line: "The result? For the most part, trains can now operate at scheduled speeds on Conrail's key routes."

The blockbuster ad failed to note that the 11:07 out of Branchville, Conn., that very morning took two hours and 43 minutes to get to New York. The schedule calls for an hour and 31 minutes. A milepost marker at the little red, long neglected wooden station proclaims that Branchville is exactly 54 track miles from Grand Central station, which means the run averaged 19.9 miles an hour. If the ad copy writers wanted to blow their horn about something, they could have said this was almost twice as fast as the old Danbury stagecoach took to make the trip, even if the overall speed fell five miles short of the pony express on straight runs through Injun territory.

Only the train hasn't been running this week and for all we know may never run again. You get to the station and, at the moment she's due, a loudspeaker announces that the "11:07 train has been cancelled but a bus will be provided instead."

The same people who can write full page ads for the New York Times don't bother to tell the passengers why the train has been cancelled, or even more crucial, that the bus which arrives 20 minutes later surely will miss the connection at Norwalk, dooming everyone to arrive in the city at least an hour and a half late on another train.

"Has the bus ever made the connection at Norwalk?" I asked the conductor.
"Once, I think," he responded gloomily.

San Andreas fault is nothing compared to New Madrid

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Mention of the notorious San Andreas fault sparks images of cracked earth, trembling skyscrapers, and the dread that half of California may one day crumble into the Pacific Ocean.

Mention of the New Madrid fault is likely to raise only eyebrows and prompt puzzled looks.

Yet many scientists now consider the New Madrid fault zone — a five-state region in the mid-Mississippi Valley — as the nation's most threatening earthquake belt.

A major quake today in that area would inflict up to 10 times the damage of a similar quake along the San Andreas fault, according to recent studies by seismologists at St. Louis University.

The fault zone touches southeastern Missouri, southern Illinois, western Kentucky and Tennessee and northeastern Arkansas. Within a 160-mile radius of New Madrid, Mo., lie the cities of St. Louis, Memphis and Nashville, Tenn., and Evansville, Ind., with a combined metropolitan population of more than 4 million.

It's here that American earthquake legend was born.

Only a few pioneers and Indians inhabited the southeastern Missouri Boothele area in mid-December 1811 when the most severe earthquake in U.S. history virtually swallowed the village of New Madrid, Mo., and leveled every building within a 50,000-square-mile area.

The Mississippi River, tossed from its bed and onto the hillsides, swept away entire forests.

The quake — actually a series of about 2,000 tremors lasting more than three months — was felt throughout the lower half of the continent.

Although it struck before measuring devices were invented, scientists calculate the 1811 quake would have registered about 7.6 on the Richter scale.

The Richter scale measures ground motion as recorded on seismographs. Every increase of one number means a tenfold increase in magnitude. A 7 reading is a "major" earthquake, capable of widespread heavy damage.

Today, scientists say evidence is mounting that another major quake could strike the region at any time. If so, the potential loss of life and property has grown more than a million times.

Scientists say cities would suffer devastating losses, if not total destruction, in a quake as severe as the great quake of 1811.

Despite the hazards it presents, surprisingly little is known about the New Madrid zone, thought to be a system of deeply buried faults which trigger frequent earthquake activity within a 250-mile radius of New Madrid.

The 7.6 Richter measurement of the 1811 quake is less than the 8.5 reading in the 1964 Alaska quake or the 8.3 calculated for the 1906 San Francisco quake. But scientists say the New Madrid quake actually was more severe than those because of differences in the fault zones.

Sean-Thomas Morrissey, who heads seismology research at the university, explained the difference in potential destructiveness.

Presidential campaigns too long says President Carter

WASHINGTON (AP) — Presidential campaigns are too long, President Carter says. A lot of Americans would agree.

"I don't think it's in the interest of our country to start so early," said Carter, who started his campaign for the 1976 Democratic nomination in 1974.

Not so many years ago, no candidate would have thought of announcing for president before Jan. 1, of the presidential election year. By Jan. 1, 1980, it's likely that every major contender for the Democratic and Republican nominations will have formally entered the race.

Rep. Philip Crane of Illinois, announced his candidacy for the Republican presidential nomination Aug. 1, 1978. Others have been campaigning for at least as long.

A lesson that may have been lost on those who lust for the White House is that the leading contenders for both major party nominations are the unannounced candidates — President Carter and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy among the Democrats, and Ronald Reagan among the Republicans.

The 1980 campaign has been going on so long, no one is certain when it began.

Some political historians would date it to the first speaking trip Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., made after the last vote was counted in the 1976 election.

Dole was the vice presidential candidate on the losing Republican ticket and he lost no time in taking soundings for a race for the top spot on the 1980 ticket.

A few revisionist historians might go so far as to date the start of the 1980 campaign to the time, maybe 20 or more years ago, when Harold Stassen perceived that 1980 might be a good year for one more try at the White House.

Whatever date is agreed upon as the start of the 1980 campaign, the trend is clear: presidential candidates soon may start to announce more than four years ahead of time.

That could offer some advantages to politicians who have misgivings about challenging an incumbent president of their own party.

For example, suppose a Democratic senator should summon reporters to the Senate Caucus Room during the next few weeks for "a major political announcement."

Striding the rostrum, the senator might declare: "It's time to get this country moving again, therefore, with my mother's permission, I am announcing my candidacy for President of the United States."

SHEINWOLD ON BRIDGE

Eat Your Vegetables

By Alfred Sheinwold

Children are told: "No dessert until you've eaten your vegetables." You follow the same principle in some bridge hands.

South took the first diamond, led a spade to the ace and returned a spade to finesse with the jack. West won with the queen of spades and continued diamonds to the ace.

South hoped that the missing spades would divide equally, but when this failed he could get only eight tricks.

TOO SOON

South went after the toothsome jack of spades too soon. He should play both top spades first. If the queen happens to fall, as it would in the actual hand, no finesse will be needed.

If the queen of spades doesn't fall, South can get to dummy with a club to lead another spade. He will get a third spade trick by this delayed finesse if East has the queen of spades. And if West has the queen, South still has the chance of a 3-3 spade break.

Take immediate finessses only when you need immediate tricks.

Powerful Cougars next for Rebels

To hear the word from those that have seen them play this year, the Abilene Cooper Cougars are the state AAAA football champions of 1979.

Sports writers across the state have claimed them No. 1 in the world, kin to the Pittsburgh Radials — er, Steelers. Even that old fella Harris, who conducts a statewide ranking poll for high schools, at one time stated that the Cougs were 14 points better than the second ranked team in the state. And no team has proven different at this point in time.

TERRY WILLIAMSON

It's easy to knock the Lee Rebels. They have had a lot going against them this year. Sometimes it's easy to overlook some hard facts. But before you forget, let it be known that these underdog Rebels are equally undefeated, playing defense that only Texas Longhorn fans can appreciate.

The Rebels are masters of the goal line stand, performing the tactic four times this year already. They have staged three shutouts in five games. Not even Houston's J. R. Richard of baseball fame can top that ratio.

THE REBS dig in and hit like someone's trying to take the house. Cooper hasn't seen anything like this before and likely won't again. Lee is the top defensive team in the district, giving up a mere 326 yards in two league games while giving out a few Excedrin No. 9s along the way.

The rugged Reb defense has only given up 321 yards rushing and an amazing five through the airways. These five came on two completions by San Angelo Central.

ONE 5-4A writer who has seen both Lee and Cooper play this year said, "Lee can't stay on the field with Cooper. No one can. They're that good."

Penalties have killed the Lee offense this year, and that is one reason the above quote was issued. But when you look at the scoreboard at game's end, Lee is always on top. They've done it with defense, and this is going to be something new for Cooper. They may have to work to score and they may not know how.

The Cougs may be the strongest football armada the state has ever seen and may even eventually prove it, but Lee isn't going to play for second place. Haven't seen any rumors of a postponement.

So, Cooper bring on your animals and we'll all eat a few nails together.

COOPER SCORES in numbers that sends the old pocket calculator blinking. They have two running backs capable of amassing awesome yardage. They have two quarterbacks among the top six passers in the league and three of the top seven receivers. Rumor has it that their water boy is 6-foot-4, 260 pounds, and couldn't make the team.

Cooper coach Ray Overton, normally a steak and potatoes man, has gone to feeding his team poached nails for breakfast, a light snack of arsenic for lunch and a boiled steel girder or two for dinner.

After two district games, Cooper leads the league in total offense by 102 yards over its nearest competitor, Permian. They run. They throw. They score. And they win.

It's no wonder they command such respect. Cooper fans are wondering why they just don't declare the Cougs as the district champions and let everyone else play for second place.

And with the formal introduction over, that brings us to Friday's 8 p.m. game in Memorial Stadium. It's those awesome and undefeated Cougs against the Midland Lee Rebels.

YOU KNOW the Rebels. They're the ones who have all those injuries. They're the ones who coach Gil Bartosh said at the beginning of the year were so green that they were off the color scale. They're the ones who thought team speed was a term developed for track instead of football. And they're the ones who have only two returning starters back from last year.

Coach Gil Bartosh's Midland Lee Rebels have climbed into ninth place in the Class AAAA state schoolboy football poll going into Friday's big game with the Abilene Cooper Cougars in Memorial Stadium.

Cooper in AAAA, Jasper in AAA, Pittsburg in AA and China Spring in Class A held onto their top ranking in The Associated Press Schoolboy Football Poll in a virtual status quo performance by all but two of last week's ranked teams.

Only two of the 50 ranked teams in the four classes lost last week and the successes were reflected in the balloting by 22 Texas sports writers and sportscasters.

There were no changes in the top 10.

Houston Stratford and Lake Highlands, ranked sixth and ninth last week, lost their second games of the season and dropped from the 4A rankings.

Lake Highlands, ranked as high as No. 3, lost to Plano 30-0 while Houston Stratford, the defending 4A state champion, was defeated by Houston Spring Woods, 9-0.

W.T. White of Dallas, 4-1, returned to the top 10 in the No. 10 position in the poll by the state's sports writers.

Pittsburg blasted Hooks 40-0 last week and still lost ground to No. 2 ranked Childress, which beat Tulia 35-0.

Cooper maintained a strong 217-178 lead over LaPorte in 4A but the big battle was for second place with 1978 state finalist Plano challenging LaPorte for the No. 2 ranking. LaPorte retained the runnerup spot by a slim 178-175 margin.

MHS beats Lee in volleyball

The first half race of the District 5-4A volleyball season came to a close Tuesday with Midland High taking two victories over cross town rival Midland Lee in the MHS gym.

The Bulldogs captured a 15-5, 15-7 victory over Lee in the varsity contest to end up third in the 5-4A first half chase with a 4-3 record. Lee fell to 3-4. San Angelo won the first half with a perfect 7-0 record and Big Spring was second with a 5-2 mark.

"We didn't have any one player that stood out," MHS volleyball coach Jo Ann Martin said. "It was just a great team effort. We lost Kathleen Teague, our 6-2 girl in the Odessa game, to a broken ankle and we had to make up for the lost height. That was a little tough on us, but the team played very well."

Midland High also won the junior varsity contest, 15-11, 15-6.

Second half 5-4A action begins Tuesday when the Bulldogs host Odessa Permian in the MHS gym with two games beginning at 6 p.m.; Lee travels to Odessa High with the same starting time.

Pirates even World Series

BALTIMORE (AP) — John Candelaria stood in the Pittsburgh Pirates' dressing room after practice Monday and held aloft a crumpled ticket for the seventh game of the World Series.

"After tomorrow night this will be worth a lot of money," shouted Candelaria, who usually hasn't too much to say.

CANDELARIA WENT out Tuesday night and put his arm where his mouth was and made that last-chance ticket worth the asking price. He combined with reliever Kent Tekulve for their fourth tandem shutout of the season.

The National League champion Pirates scored four late-inning runs and beat the American League champion Baltimore Orioles 4-0 to tie the Series at 3-3.

Pittsburgh now is within one game of becoming the fourth team in history to come back to win baseball's showpiece from a 3-1 deficit in a best-of-seven World Series.

Jim Bibby, the starter in Game 4 who was not involved in the Pittsburgh loss, has the assignment for tonight's seventh game. He'll be opposed by Baltimore's Scott McGregor, the winner of Game 3.

The 25-year-old Candelaria went six pain-wracked innings, gave up just six hits and no runs. Tekulve followed, allowing only one hit in three innings for his second save of the series.

"He (Candelaria) pitched through pain tonight (Tuesday)," said Pittsburgh Manager Chuck Tanner.

Oscar Moreno (18) of Pittsburgh slides safely into second on bouncer hit up the middle by teammate Tim Foli in seventh inning of sixth game of the World Series in Baltimore Tuesday night. It was a big play as the Bucs went on to score a pair of runs off Jim Palmer. (AP Laserphoto)

Pittsburgh players say family concept not phony

BALTIMORE (AP) — Willie Stargell, power-hitter and patriarch of the Pittsburgh Pirates, says "The Family" isn't a phony concept at all.

"The thing about our ball club is everyone is into each other... we do have a unique family," Stargell said Tuesday night after Pittsburgh earned a 4-0 victory over the Baltimore Orioles in Game 6 of the World Series.

The Pirates bill themselves as "The Family." It's printed atop their dugout at home and it's a carryover from the club's chosen theme song, "We Are Family," by the disco group Sister Sledge.

The team-togetherness notion was assaulted in a Baltimore newspaper column Tuesday. It was billed as "a cheap grandstand play," and it was suggested that "any team that tries to compare itself to a family is straining for attention."

Stargell, the man who got "The Family" theme going, said in the noisy winners' locker room that he had not read the story. Stargell was told the gist of the article.

"That was an expression of opinion, and opinions are like rear ends: everyone has one," Stargell responded. "They don't live with us. They don't know our feelings about each other. And we don't care about what other people say."

Third baseman Bill Madlock said the Pirates had discussed the article casually before the game.

"That's the way we feel. That's the main thing," said Madlock.

"When we say family, we mean we win together as a team and we lose together as a team, not that we all sleep together and eat breakfast together. We're just together as a team; and a lot of ballclubs are not like that."

With a crushing 8-4 loss Saturday in Pittsburgh, the Pirates fell behind 3-1 in games. But they've won two straight now and they'll meet Baltimore in Game 7 Wednesday night.

"Did 'The Family' unity, tighten the last two games?"

"It's never left us," said Stargell. "It's a constant thing that's been with us all year long."

Dave Parker saw the article. And he didn't agree with the headline: "The Family" is a Bad Joke.

"I think people who say we don't like each other must be frustrated," Parker said. "Maybe they don't like themselves."

Meanwhile Parker and the Pirates were pointing toward tonight's showdown.

"I think people remember a series more when it goes to seven games," said Parker. "To come back from being down 3-1 makes it even more dramatic. Evidentially we wanted to be in this situation because we played poorly the first four games."

How does Parker feel the Orioles will respond to the Pittsburgh comeback?

"They've got to be thinking," he said. "Most teams would fold when they got down 3-1. We stayed together. We battled back together. And here we are."

Knicks down Houston

By KEN RAPPOPORT AP Sports Writer

Before playing the New York Knicks, Houston's Moses Malone was warned by his coach, Del Harris: "You'll be seeing a lot of Bill Cartwright for a long time."

He saw all he wanted to see of him Tuesday night.

New York's gifted rookie center took last year's Most Valuable Player in the National Basketball Association as if he had been playing Malone all his life.

Cartwright scored 31 points while holding Malone to a 17-121 victory for the Knicks.

"Tonight I learned how to play Moses Malone," said Cartwright. "I decided to keep Moses away from the boards and keep him from getting inside the basket area. Basically, I think I succeeded. He was taking shots he didn't want to take. If I had to play against Malone tomorrow, I'd play him the same way I played him tonight."

Cartwright, the 7-foot-1 product of the University of San Francisco who was the Knicks' No. 1 draft pick this year, is demonstrating durability as well as court savvy.

It was the second straight victory for the Knicks and forced the Series to a decisive seventh game tonight. Scott McGregor will pitch for the Orioles against the Pirates' Jim Bibby.

Borelle leveled the fine Oct. 2, stemming from a locker room scuffle between Clayborn and Willie McWhorter of the Boston Patriots. Borelle fined Clayborn, Mass., and a verbal reprimand the week before with Associated Press.

A spokesman for Borelle said the appeal was filed by the NFLPA last week. It was the first time since the NFLPA is unhappy with the result, it can take it to a neutral arbitrator.

MISSION, Kan. (AP) — The University of San Francisco basketball program has been placed on a one-year probation for several violations committed between 1972 and 1976, the NCAA said.

The probation is the result of a 36-month investigation into the team's program under former coach Bob Galliard. The probation will keep USF out of post-season play until after the 1980 season.

Court battle ahead for Chicago schools?

Lane Kirkland

Kirkland likely to follow Meany

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lane Kirkland, now certain to become organized labor's chief spokesman when George Meany retires next month, has no intention of altering AFL-CIO policies that he helped shape for three decades.

"You know, I'm not a stranger coming into this house," the 57-year-old AFL-CIO secretary-treasurer told reporters Tuesday as his only potential rival for the federation presidency scrapped a planned challenge. That left Kirkland as the only announced candidate for Meany's job and all but guaranteed his elevation to the labor movement's top post.

What major policy changes would he make as only the second AFL-CIO president, a reporter asked. Why, Kirkland responded, would he consider changing course when he has had a hand on the helm?

"I've been here for quite a while and I've been part of the policy-making structure," said Kirkland, the AFL-CIO's No. 2 man for the last 10 years. "On everything we've done and every program we've undertaken, among the fingerprints are mine."

"I think, on the whole, they have been very sound (policies) and will stand the test of time."

The 85-year-old Meany, who has been suffering from arthritis and other ailments for the last eight months, announced three weeks ago that he would retire after 24 years as president of the 14-million-member federation.

Kirkland, Meany's choice as successor, announced on the same day that he would run for a two-year term as president at the federation's convention beginning Nov. 15 here.

Most labor officials had expected Kirkland to be elected without opposition until J.C. Turner, 62, president of the 400,000-member International Union of Operating Engineers, told colleagues he was considering a challenge against Kirkland. Turner said he already had a third of the votes that would be cast for president.

But Turner, who said he had been led to believe Meany would remain neutral in the contest, announced Tuesday that he was giving up any thought of running after Meany made it clear he favored Kirkland.

Midland sales tax share up about 11 percent

AUSTIN — Midland's share of the local 1 percent sales tax rebate from the state is running about 11 percent higher than last year, according to a spokesman in the State Comptroller's office.

The payment for October, however, is slightly less than the one for the same month a year ago. Midland should be getting a check for $194,495.34 compared to $198,344.07 in October 1978.

The yearly total, though, is higher than a year ago. The October payment brings Midland's sales tax rebates up to $3,019,932.10, up 11 percent from the 1978 total so far of $2,701,114.91.

The city of Odessa also received a smaller amount for October than a year ago. The figures were $241,732.26 compared to $283,338.30 a year ago.

This still keeps the city's total to date about 3 percent above that of last year. The figures are $4,108,492.56 for 1979 over $3,966,861.55 last year.

Trustee to review items

Trustee Parker Humes will review the items in Tuesday's $10.2 million school bond election from 8 to 9 p.m. Thursday at Rusk Elementary School.

Sponsored by the Rusk PTA, the meeting is open to the public. Humes' speech will be followed by a question and answer period.

Included in the all-or-nothing, one-vote package is $5.5 million for expansion and renovation of Midland High School and its campus, $1.2 million for a new elementary school, $1.3 million for renovations at Lee High School, $844,000 for repairs and improvements at most of the district's schools and $431,000 for vocational facilities.

Man arrested on four warrants

Jimmy Lee Kendrick, 28, 1213 East Pine St. in Midland, was arrested Tuesday in Odessa on four aggravated-robbery warrants, according to Midland police.

The warrants were issued in connection with four armed robberies in Midland in the past three months, police said.

Handwriting analysis of notes given to clerks at the Midland stores linked the notes to one given an Odessa clerk in an armed robbery there, officials explained.

A fingerprint identified as Kendrick's was found by Midland police on the Odessa note, police said.

Cash box, $40 reported stolen

A cash box containing $40 Tuesday was reported Tuesday missing from the offices of Brown Aviation at Midland Air Park, city police said.

Entry to the building was gained through a door, police reported.

Eight five-gallon water bottles and a 12-gauge shotgun were reported missing Tuesday from a residence at 3206 Thomas Drive, police said.

Entry to the home was gained through the back door.

Storage shed damaged by fire

A storage shed at 301 E. Dakota Ave. was heavily damaged after a fire broke out there Tuesday, fire officials said.

Cause of the 2:36 p.m. fire was not known, firefighters reported.

The fire was extinguished in about 10 minutes, according to reports.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Charges that Chicago school officials have for 40 years discriminated against minority students appear headed for one of the biggest court battles over desegregation in the nation's history.

The prospect of a federal lawsuit demanding mandatory busing of school children is seen by some lawmakers and Democratic politicians as a potential election-year problem for President Carter.

But unless the Chicago Board of Education makes a last-minute switch in its policy today, Patricia Roberts Harris, the secretary of health, education and welfare, is expected to send the case to the Justice Department with the recommendation of a lawsuit.

THE DEADLINE comes a day after Carter left Chicago where he has been courting Mayor Jane Byrne in hope of getting her re-election support next year.

Chicago school officials sent a telegram to Carter Tuesday, asking him "to use the power of your office to direct HEW to grant" a 170-day delay in instituting legal proceedings.

Asked at a town meeting in a Chicago suburb about a last-minute busing to achieve integration, Carter said: "My own experience and my own belief is that mandatory busing ought to be minimized." But he said the law prohibits segregation and "that's got to be honored."

Despite predictions that a desegregation suit would cause Carter problems, some observers say the case would be so complex and slow in starting that the impact wouldn't be felt until after the election.

ALSO, MRS. BYRNE has given no signal that she would tie her political support to the administration's handling of the desegregation case. She has, however, endorsed the school board's own, mainly voluntary busing plan.

A two-year investigation by HEW's Office of Civil Rights concluded in April that in some cases black students are packed into mobile classrooms to ease overcrowding while space goes unused in predominantly white schools nearby.

HEW's 102-page report said the 475,000-student system has undergone boundary changes to maintain segregation and the board has constructed new buildings in minority areas but not in mainly white areas where integration could take place.

Through its policies and practices, the Chicago Board of Education for the past 40 years has confined its minority children to schools that are separate and unequal, depriving both black and white children of the educational opportunities promised in the law," Mrs. Harris said in threatening to send the case to the Justice Department.

IN SEPTEMBER, Chicago schools Superintendent Joseph Hannon asked Mrs. Harris to consider the board's plan — "Access to Excellence" — as fulfilling HEW's desegregation requirements.

The board plan is based mainly on voluntary transfers by students to "magnet" schools with special programs. It also has some provisions for mandatory busing in case not enough youngsters were attracted.

Mrs. Harris declared the plan inadequate. HEW officials noted that an earlier voluntary program attracted only 4,000 transfers.

Instead, HEW issued a feasibility study that it says would desegregate a large percentage but not all of the school system. It would involve mandatory busing for 114,000 students.

HANNON SAYS this would set off a massive flight of white families from Chicago where the school system already is 60.3 percent black, 21.5 percent white, 16.1 percent Hispanic and 1.9 percent Asian, American Indian and other minorities.

If the board doesn't accept the HEW offer, he said it was expected that the matter would be sent to the Justice Department on Thursday.

Carter's visit to the city, HEW told Hannon that the Wednesday deadline for referring the case to the Justice Department could be extended two months — if the board acted promptly to meet criteria for desegregating the schools.

HEW said that would involve a guarantee that no school in the city would be more than 50 percent white. Board of Education spokesman Thomas Maloney said the offer was "nothing new" but added he was uncertain what action the board would take.

GE attorney asks for jury trial on a contempt charge

CLAREMORE, Okla. (AP) — A General Electric Co. attorney has asked for a jury trial on a contempt of court charge filed against him by a Claremore judge.

The criminal charges name GE and attorney F. Paul Thieman and J. Kenton Francy of Tulsa. Thieman said he was surprised by the charges and was optimistic they would either be dismissed or he would be acquitted.

The Reed Report, an in-house study the company has fought to keep secret, was subpoenaed last month by anti-nuclear protesters who were on trial for trespassing at the site of the proposed Black Fox nuclear plant.

The September trial for 339 persons, presided over by Box, ended in a mistrial Sept. 20. Attorneys for the Sunbelt Alliance, the anti-nuclear group that staged the June protest at the proposed nuclear plant site, subpoenaed the Reed Report.

The report reportedly deals with 27 safety-related items of the company's boiling water reactors. Two of the reactors have been ordered for the Public Service Co. of Oklahoma Black Fox plant.

Attorneys for GE argued that disclosure of the report would reveal the company's trade secrets to competitors.

Ford to increase sticker prices by $58 average

DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Co. said it was increasing sticker prices on its cars by an average $58, part of an overall price boost that averages $206 for all its 1980 vehicles.

Ford said the overall increases would recover costs associated with meeting federal regulations for fuel economy, safety and pollution while the $58 boost on cars would partially recover general economic cost increases.

The $206 increase would average 2.1 percent and the $58 would average 0.8 percent, Ford said.

Ford said the increases do not apply to farm tractors.

The increases, Ford said, had been discussed with the Council on Wage and Price Stability and are within the administration's anti-inflation guidelines.

Ford did not say so, but when General Motors Corp. announced 1980 price increases, GM said that since they were to meet federal regulations they were exempt from the guidelines.

Bases may get computer systems

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House committee is investigating an Air Force proposal to buy $4 billion in computer systems for its bases around the world.

Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Texas, chairman of the House Government Operations Committee, said a study by General Accounting Office investigators had raised serious questions about Air Force management of the deal. Those investigators questioned the openness of the bidding process and whether the $4 billion purchase was fully justified, he said.

Fingers pointed in test case

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — A case is under way in federal court here that could establish who faces liability for millions of dollars in damages sought by hundreds of shipyard workers exposed to cancer-causing asbestos.

The suit was brought against the federal government by nine asbestos manufacturers; and each side is blaming the other.

The manufacturers dragged their feet coming up with substitutes, said Neil Peterson, a government lawyer.

But Michael Montgomery, a lawyer for Johns-Manville Corp., a manufacturer, said the government violated recommended safety precautions when it did not furnish respirators to asbestos workers in naval shipyards, provided inadequate ventilation and did not wet the fibrous substance before it was used.

The test case that began in the courtroom of U.S. District Judge John A. MacKenzie was filed by the asbestos manufacturers in an attempt to get government reimbursement for $69,000 given to William B. Glover. He received the money in an out-of-court settlement when he developed lung fibrosis and left the Norfolk Naval Shipyard in 1975 after 35 years as a pipe fitter.

Though the amount of damages is relatively small, both the government and the manufacturers are concerned because it is believed to be the first case on the asbestos liability issue.

The government argues that the asbestos industry is solely liable for damages — that it knew of the health danger posed by asbestos for "decades" before it began to deal with the problem in the 1960s.

The government said the industry knew of the hazards of asbestos in the 1930s, but the industry says it was not until the mid-1960s that the industry learned that asbestos caused lung diseases, including cancer.

Furthermore, government lawyers told Judge MacKenzie, the asbestos manufacturers "dragged their feet" in providing asbestos-free substitutes after the Navy began requesting them.

Ken Peeler, manager of Midland "66," proudly announces an innovation for the convenience of Phillips 66 customers. The unsurpassed motor oil, Trop-Artic, is now available in the easily stored and carried 6-pack. Pick up a couple of packs soon, to carry in your car trunk or stack neatly in the garage, so the important "car insurance" of high-quality Trop-Artic oil is always at hand.

Pick up a Trop-Artic six pack for your car

Midland '66's proud of their Trop-Artic oil and unhesitatingly recommend it for its versatility and dependability.

Trop-Artic is made from selected base oils and blended with carefully selected additives, including two exclusive Phillips additive developments, Phil-Ad 100 and Phil-Ad VII. Phil-Ad 100 provides excellent detergency and dispersancy. Phil-Ad VII is a Phillips-developed Viscosity Index (VI) Improver with shear stability. Protects against thinning out in service — STAYS IN GRADE.

Trop-Artic meets the latest requirements of auto manufacturers. GM, Ford, American Motors, Chrysler and those foreign imports for which recommendations are made.

Trop-Artic 10W-40 and 10W-30 exceed the rigid requirements of military specifications.

Trop-Artic provides balanced performance and lubrication under both stop-and-go and highway driving. Improved to give extra protection against thickening in engine crankcases of cars pulling trailers, boats, etc. at high speeds. Makes for easy starts in cold weather and good lubrication in hot weather.

Trop-Artic All Season Motor Oil is recommended for engines of automobiles, trucks, tractors, buses and other automotive equipment operating on gasoline, diesel fuel or LP-Gas where the manufacturer suggests the use of multi-grade motor oils. Also recommended for cars equipped with catalytic converters and operating with unleaded gasoline.

Trop-Artic is perfect for Texas use, where the temperatures soar, and where oil consumption or valve lifter leak-down can be a problem. Go to your Phillips 66 station and ask for the new six-pack, for convenience and neat storage, and Trop-Artic with complete confidence. Your automobile will surely show its gratitude in a practical way!

Eucalyptus eyed as source for fuel

By ANDREW HORVAT

TOKYO (AP) — Japanese researchers are turning to the eucalyptus tree, as well as to other plants, in the hope of finding a synthetic fuel to decrease this country's 99 percent dependence on imported oil.

A professor at Mie University in Central Japan said he had succeeded in refining oil from the leaves of the eucalyptus tree into a fuel similar to gasoline. Professor Sakurzo Takeda said he used the liquid to drive a small tilling machine at the university's agricultural department.

"The adjustments that had to be made to the motor were minor," Dr. Takeda told The Associated Press in an interview, "and the fuel can be made by anyone with a small stiller."

Dr. Takeda said the eucalyptus fuel had higher octane characteristics than gasoline and burned more cleanly although it was more difficult to ignite.

The Japanese Science and Technology Agency has set aside the equivalent of $100,000 this year for research into plant fuels, including eucalyptus oil.

A government laboratory is to study the eucalyptus as well as the "aosango," a cactus-like plant with a sap that has characteristics similar to petroleum. The director of the Japan Physical and Chemical Research Institute, Dr. Kazuo Shibata, said the existence of plants with saps rich in hydrocarbons had first been pointed out by U.S. Nobel laureate Dr. Melvin Calvin of the University of California.

The Sekisui Co., a plastics firm specializing in construction materials, has planted about 900 eucalyptus saplings and 6,000 aosango plants. A spokesman for the company said the search for a substitute for petroleum, the raw material for his firm's products, had been a motivating factor in the research project.

An official at the Ministry of International Trade and Industry said the Japanese government was placing more faith in sugar-cane alcohol than in fuels from other plants.

Agricultural cooperatives have asked MITI and the Ministry of Agriculture to consider making synthetic fuels from potatoes and mandarin-orange dregs.

A government laboratory has perfected a process of making alcohol from mandarin-orange pulp but the drive to include potatoes in the list of "energy plants" is said to be motivated by a desire on the part of farmers to obtain subsidies the government at present reserves for rice, soya beans and certain other grains.

"Sugar cane offers the only viable plant energy source," the MITI official said. "Once the major oil firms have perfected a system of taking alcohol straight from the cane without the inefficient intermediary stage of sugar-manufacture, the Japanese government will probably seek the cooperation of Southeast Asian governments in the growing of the cane," he said.

"Southeast Asian nations receive greater sunlight and more than one harvest per year could be possible with newer technology," the official said. Japan's synthetic fuel program calls for a 50-fold increase in alcohol production by 1990 and a reduction of this country's reliance on imported oil to below 50 percent.

A spokesman for the technology department of the Sekisui Co. maintained that under optimal growing conditions eucalyptus oil could already yield a fuel cheaper than gasoline.

"We could get fuel for about $1.75 per gallon," he said. Ordinary gasoline in Tokyo costs the equivalent of $2.50 per gallon.

Jury in Stafford murder trial set for deliberations

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — The jury in Roger Dale Stafford's mass murder trial was to hear instructions from the judge in the case and closing arguments by attorneys today before beginning deliberations.

Stafford, 27, is charged with six counts of first-degree murder in the July 16, 1978 shooting deaths of four teen-agers and two men at a Sirlain Stockade restaurant here. The steakhouse workers were killed during a $1,300 robbery.

District Attorney Andrew Coats and defense attorney J. Malone Brewer were prepared to give closing arguments in the case.

If jurors find Stafford guilty of the steakhouse murders, Coats said he will ask them to sentence the father of three to death by injection of a lethal dose of barbiturate.

A separate penalty hearing would be held in the event of a guilty verdict. Prosecutors would have to show jurors that one of seven aggravating circumstances was present when the steakhouse murders occurred to get a death verdict.

Stafford's wife, Verna, 26, was the star prosecution witness at the trial of her husband of seven years.

She testified she watched in horror as Stafford and his late brother, Harold, gunned down the steakhouse workers in the restaurant's meat locker.

Mrs. Stafford said the bloodbath began when her husband became enraged by threats of assistant manager Louis Zacarias, 43, to see the Staffords punished for robbing his establishment.

Other prosecution witnesses also linked Stafford to the steakhouse murders, but no one else claimed to have actually seen Stafford commit the crime.

Stafford told jurors he was "as drunk as I could be on the hood of a Chevrolet in front of my house" in Tulsa at the time of the steakhouse murders, after he "got to partying with these three black gentlemen."

"It's strange that they cannot be found" to testify for the defense, he added.

"I didn't do this horrible, vicious crime," Stafford testified. "I've never hurt anyone."

Stafford said witnesses testifying against him are "lying or mistaken."

In addition to Zacarias, the steakhouse murders claimed the lives of Terri M. Horst, 16; David Lindsey, 17; Anthony Tew, 17; David Salsman, 15; and Isaac Freeman, 56.

Two Oklahoma County Jail inmates — one a prosecution rebuttal witness and the other a defense rebuttal witness — both linked Stafford to the steakhouse murders Tuesday.

Two other prosecution rebuttal witnesses testified that Stafford showed them a gun he owned in June or July of 1978 and a third said Stafford had talked to him about owning a pistol.

Stafford testified he didn't have a gun at the time.

The defense called only two witnesses besides Stafford before resting Tuesday morning. Neither testified about Stafford's whereabouts at the time of the steakhouse murders.

Pamela Lynch, 18, testifies in Oklahoma City that a car driven by Roger Dale Stafford almost collided with her car on Interstate 240 near the Sirlain Stockade the night six workers were killed. Stafford is on trial on six counts of first-degree murder. (AP Laserphoto)

Convicted murderer predicts delay of execution will fail

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — Convicted murderer Jesse Bishop predicts an unwanted 11th-hour attempt by the NAACP Legal Defense Fund to stop his execution next Monday will fail.

The defense fund filed a petition for rehearing Tuesday with the U.S. Supreme Court, along with a sealed document purporting to shed "new light" on the Bishop case, a high court spokesman said.

But Betsy Saxon, information officer for the court, said the petition appeared to be procedurally incorrect. She did not elaborate.

The court and Joel Berger of the Defense Fund refused to disclose contents of the petition. But a spokesman in the Clark County Public Defender's Office said Berger had received information "which may be of significant consequence" in the case.

Although Bishop is white, the NAACP Legal Defense Fund has entered the case because it is categorically opposed to capital punishment, Berger said.

Bishop, an admitted killer being held in the Maximum Security Prison in Carson City, said he was not surprised by the move. Prison Superintendent Bob Lippold said.

Lippold quoted Bishop as saying, "There's too much publicity in this for those people to ignore the situation. I don't anticipate the court will respond to it."

Bishop had been taking sedatives before now because of "nervousness," but Lippold said the inmate, under supervision of two guards at all times, has been off them for about a week now and is "pretty relaxed." His cell is just 20 feet from the two-seat gas chamber.

Nevada Attorney General Dick Bryan also said he expected the petition to Justice William Rehnquist to be denied. Bryan said the legal defense fund has no more standing than the Clark County defenders whose appeal on behalf of Bishop was recently rejected by the Supreme Court.

Rehnquist had earlier granted a stay pending a review by the high court which preceded that ruling. Bryan said that in light of the ruling by the full court he didn't think any one justice would stop the execution — the first in Nevada since 1961.

As the document was filed with the court, the Nevada Pardons Board also met. But Gov. Bob List, chairman, said there was "no way" the panel could consider a delay in Bishop's execution.

List said the Pardons Board decided in late August against commutation for Bishop, 46, sentenced to die in the gas chamber for the killing of a Baltimore man.

Prosecutors attack credibility of Davis

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Prosecutors hammered away at the credibility of murder-solicitation defendant Cullen Davis, telling the millionaire it is not only what he says on FBI tape recordings — but what he doesn't say.

Lead prosecutor Jack Strickland focused on the most devastating passages Tuesday in the Aug. 18 recording of conversations between Davis and informant David McCrory.

Davis is accused of trying to hire the murder of his divorce judge and others.

He has repeatedly denied he plotted the murder of Judge Joe Eidson, claiming he was duped and framed by his ex-wife, Priscilla, McCrory and karate instructor Pat Burleson.

Davis disputed the testimony of McCrory on all fronts Tuesday and said he did not, as McCrory testified, see a faked snapshot of a "slain" judge last year before surrendering $25,000 allegedly earmarked for a phantom killer.

Strickland questioned Davis about what he meant on a passage in the tape when he asked McCrory, "What are you going to do with these?"

McCrory testified the exchange referred to an FBI staged picture of the judge and the jurist's identification cards.

Davis maintained he was talking about the tapes themselves, which he said McCrory showed him.

Strickland then asked why Davis made no mention of the tapes while he was being recorded.

"If you had said, 'Okay, what are you going to do with those tapes,' the FBI tape would have reflected that, and McCrory would have been blown out of the tub, wouldn't he?" Strickland asked.

"Yes, I suppose. I'm not sure ... it could have," responded Davis.

The millionaire defendant conceded that he once acknowledged telling David McCrory: "Do the judge," and then his wife, and that would be it.

Davis told this jury he did not say "do the judge" but said instead that he'd do the judge.

Although the distinction is complex, and the tape inconclusive, prosecutors interpret the recorded "do the judge" remark as implicit instructions to kill Eidson.

Davis contends he issued no such instructions, that the "he'd do the judge" remark was merely conversational. He insists he was "playing along" with McCrory to uncover an extortion scheme.

He denied on cross-examination that he said "do the judge" but admitted that, had he done so, it would have been a "damning" statement.

Two convicted for $1 million sabotage of nuclear plant

SURRY, Va. (AP) — A man facing a possible two-year prison sentence for causing $1 million damage to fuel assemblies at a nuclear power plant says he remains convinced the action was justified.

William E. Kuykendall and co-defendant James Merrill said they acted to point up safety problems at the Virginia Electric & Power Co. plant here. The utility has denied their charges.

"If it ultimately accomplishes my objective, yes, it will have been worth it," Kuykendall, 28, of Newport News, said after he was convicted Tuesday night of damaging a public utility.

But Merrill, 24, of Hampton, asked whether the sabotage was worth prison, said, "No, at least I don't think so."

The jury deliberated a little more than three hours before convicting the two on the felony charge and recommending a two-year prison term — the minimum. Ten years would have been the maximum.

Surry County Circuit Judge Ligon Jones can either let the sentence stand or reduce it. He cannot increase it.

The two remain free on bond pending appeal.

"It doesn't end here. I have faith in the justice system," Kuykendall said.

The two admitted they poured caustic sodium hydroxide on 62 new fuel rod assemblies stored at the Veeco power plant here April 27, doing damage estimated at $1 million.

The two former control room operator trainees said they did it to dramatize their claims of unsafe plant conditions and tax security.

Veeco has denied allegations of tax security and unsafe working conditions at the two-reactor plant. It said the damage done to the fuel rods, which cost $30 million, was a breach of trust.

The week-long trial is believed to have been the first one in the nation to deal with sabotage at a nuclear power plant.

"The community has said they will punish the defendants as leniently as possible," said defense attorney Richard Ben-Veniste. "It is the very minimum sentence they could receive. In respect to that, we think it was a very close verdict."

There was no immediate reaction from Veeco.

Defense attorney Maurice Nessen said they passed up a chance Tuesday to seek declaration of a mistrial when a juror was replaced after she told the judge she had received a telephoned bomb threat.

"Both defendants thought about it and decided they wanted the trial to go forward," Nessen said.

The defense had sought to base its case on a claim that Kuykendall and Merrill were morally justified in damaging the fuel rods even though the action might be illegal. But the judge ruled out such a defense and refused to allow any evidence pertaining directly to the defendants' allegations against Veeco.

At the time the fuel rods were damaged, the Surry plant was shut down for repairs.

WHY WAIT UNTIL 1981 TO PURCHASE YOUR DREAM HOME?
New Federally imposed mortgage rates will soon make it very difficult to obtain a mortgage, and in 1980, it may be impossible. In 1981 your new home could cost 20 to 25% more than it does today.

INFLATION IN THE HOME BUILDING INDUSTRY WILL NOT BE CONTROLLED BY THE PRESENT ACTION OF THE FEDERAL RESERVE.
Skilled construction workers and material suppliers are already taking advantage of long-term apartment, commercial and Federal contracts. Federal controls on timber harvesting are limiting the available supply of timber, thereby driving up the price of lumber materials.

WE STILL HAVE MORTGAGE MONEY AVAILABLE FOR OUR FINE NEW HOMES.
No down payment to vets on most homes.
