New health building part of bond issue

Lack of space in current facilities and anticipation of the City-County Health Department someday being asked to move out of Midland Memorial Hospital prompted Midland City Council's decision to include funds for a new health department building in the $16.83 million bond issue. A new building for the department - at an estimated cost of $750,000 - is in the Sept. 4 bond issue lineup. A new structure probably would not cost more than the city already pays in rent to the hospital for use of basement space there, reasoned City Manager James Brown.

'We're already paying the hospital $35,000 a year in rent for that

Midland County pays $30,500 as its share of the rent, resulting annually in a combined $65,500 which could go toward paying for a new building

If the city had gone ahead with building a new city-county health facility more than 20 years ago, instead of locating at the hospital, the building already would have been paid for, Brown said.

BUT SINCE THE city chose not to go that route, council members are having to wrestle with the problem today.

With the hospital undergoing a major expansion and renovation, and hoping to locate a cancer treatment center there, Brown said the hospital's board of directors probably will ask the city to move the health department. And besides, Brown noted, the health department has run out of space at the hospital.

Since the department has been serving an increasing number of people, both in and out of city limits, Brown said he feels the county will continue its participation in the program.

Although the main facility is located at MMH, the health department has two satellite clinics. Brown said these would be consolidated into one facility, eliminating rent on those buildings. The satellites are at 1109 E.

Parker Ave., and 310 E. Florida Ave. Chief Sanitarian Jewel Smith said if all personnel were at one facility, that would save his department money as concerns hiring additional help when one of the nurses at a clinic is ill or on vacation.

PATIENT LOAD for the three clinics in 1978 totaled 17,789, with more than 51,000 laboratory tests conducted. Personnel at the central facility last year performed 1,518 food establishment inspections, 120 dairy farm inspections, investigated 327 public health complaints, conducted 615 septic tank inspections, and

Three Odessans shot to death in liquor store

ODESSA — Three persons were shot to death Monday in an Odessa liquor store in what Ector County Sheriff's Department officials said today was a murder-suicide.

The dead were identified by sheriff's department officials as James Wayne Taylor, 40, Carolyn Taylor, 37, and A.B. Starritt, no age available. All were residents of Odessa.

The three were found about 12:30 p.m. Monday by a customer on the floor inside Korker Liquor Store, 6108 W. University Ave., about one mile west of the Odessa city limits.

According to an official with the Ector County Sheriff's Department, Taylor and his wife recently were divorced. She was an employee at the liquor store, police officials said.

"Our investigation so far shows that Taylor went into the place and shot his wife and also the owner of the liquor store, Starritt," the law enforcement officer said.

All three apparently were shot with on the floor of the liquor store.

All three were pronounced dead at the scene Monday by Ector Peace Justice Jimmy Harris.

Officers indicated the shootings apparently occurred between noon and 12:30 p.m., just prior to the victims being found in the store by a customer, Wayne Antonicchio of Odessa.

According to Antonicchio, one man's body was found near the store's front door. Another body was found in a chair and the third was near the chair, he indicated.

After officers arrived at the store, they cordoned off the business. But by midafternoon Monday, officers had left the scene.

County budget OK'd, but tax rate tabled

By DAVID CAMPBELL Staff Writer

Midland County commissioners Monday approved a $5.7 million 1980 budget, but postponed setting the tax rate until their next meeting.

Commissioners tabled until their next meeting a motion to set the 1980 county tax rate, but Commissioner Win Brown noted there would be no tax increases for the upcoming fiscal year which starts Jan. 1, 1980.

The motion was tabled because under Texas law a tax rate must be set during a regular meeting of the commissioners, stated Commissioner Durward Wright. Only the first meeting of each month qualifies as a

City Council for an additional man to be added to their unit. The budget records reflect that this request was denied. My question is why? I for one would like to know before the new bond election comes up. - Mrs. T.T.D.

ANSWER: Assistant City Manager Fred Poe takes time to give an explanation on the operation of budget hearings regarding requests for new personnel in the city departments.

The Midland Police Department Crime Prevention Unit recently asked our

The Midland Police Department submitted a request for about nine new employees, including a person for the Crime Prevention Unit, he said. Other departments also submitted requests totaling about 40 new employees for all deparments.

Poe said it was decided the city cannot "stand" the expense of this many new employees without increasing taxes for the operating budget. At this time, the city feels Midlanders are unwilling to pay additional taxes for services, he said.

Another person for the Crime Prevention Unit probably would be an additional expense of some $20,000 to $25,000 a year to pay the salary, equip the person with automobile, etc.

Judgment decisions had to be made for each department, each of which was told to study the situation and return to the council with requests for only two or three persons considered to be critically needed by the deparment, Poe said.

Within the last several years, many building permits have been issued many new homes and multi-story buildings, as well as one-story commercial structures have been built. This adds increased revenue to the Midland taxing entities.

Answer Line, please explain how this new revenue was budgeted (or spent) by the city of Midland. In other words, what is happening to all this new tax money? - Mrs.

ANSWER: Fred Poe, assistant city manager of the city of Midland, reports the increase in revenue from new building permits has made it possible for the city not to raise its tax rate for Midlanders in the last few years. The revenue from the building permits goes into the city's general operating fund and helps cover the increasing costs due to inflation.

I have two questions. I would like to know if its legal during a telephone interview for the person being interviewed to be asked questions about physical characteristics?

Second. I would like to know if the police can do anything about items stolen from the alley behind a house, since that might be outside the property line? - S.W.

ANSWER: In response to the first question, we thank Dorothy Foster, employment supervisor with the Texas Employment Commission, who did some research on this one.

To begin with, Ms. Foster says that the only security an employer has in interviewing is to limit questions to name, address and work experience. Any questions not related directly to the job situation are probihited Height and weight are not to be discussed, but the employer can ask, in the event the job requires heavy lifting or such, if the person is physiclly able to do this. Quoting from the "Affirmative Action and Equal Employment Guidebook for Employees," Ms. Foster said it states, regarding physical requirements, "Application questions and hiring standards relating to height, weight and other physical requirements should be retained only where necessary for performance of a particular job." "Court and Equal Employment Opportunity Commission decisions have found that height and weight requirements violate the law when they screen out a disproportionate number of Spanish surnamed persons, Asian Americans or women, an employer cannot show that these standards are resonably related to job requirements.

As for the second question, upon checking with the Midland Police Deparment, the answer is YES, something can be done about stolen proper-Midland's total labor force was estimated by the TEC to be 47,090. Of that, 1,760 were unemployed and 45,-330 were working in July, said the TEC spokesman.

Most of Texas was clear Monday night and Tuesday morning, with a few exceptions. Scattered thunderstorms roamed across deep East Texas and in the southeastern parts of the state before midnight. Rainfall amounts were moderate, but there were still some low clouds in those sections early today.

Attorneys claim new evidence

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - Cullen Davis' defense attorneys have literally unearthed a new development that may play a part in their contentions that their client was framed on murder conspiracy charges.

But prosecutors have dismissed the validity of the "development."

The bizarre new twist, in the second round of a trial chock full of bizarre old twists, allegedly grew out of a statement by Jody Mac Oliver, a former friend of Fort Worth karate instructor Pat Burleson

The statement given to defense attorneys and an Oklahoma sheriff contended Burleson had several statues that Davis had reported missing from his Fort Worth mansion

Davis regained custody of the showplace home this May, after his divorce from Priscilla became final. He claimed then that several thousand dollars in artwork was missing, and he blamed his ex-wife.

The allegedly missing artwork would provide a material link between Burleson and Mrs. Davis. The defense has contended that Mrs. Davis, Burleson and star prosecution witness David McCrory framed him in a scheme that led to his arrest Aug.

The trio has denied any such scheme existed, and Mrs. Davis denied taking the artworks.

It is not known if defense attorneys plan to introduce Oliver's statements when they plead their case before

Burleson has so far avoided defense subpoenas, despite an intensive search by a team of defense investi-

Lead defense attorney Richard "Racehorse" Haynes continues his cross-examination of FBI agent Joe Gray today. Gray was the agent who led the undercover team that built the case against Davis, accused of trying to buy the murder of State District Judge Joe Eidson.

The first trial for the millionaire ended in a mistrial last January. A Houston jury, hearing the case on a change of venue, deadlocked 8-4 for conviction.

That trial marked a split in the Oliver-Burleson friendship when Oliver disputed minor portions of Burleson's testimony on his whereabouts the morning of Davis' arrest. Sheriff Doyle Bell Jr., of Pushmataha County, Okla., said Monday that Oliver, escorted by Davis defense attorney-investigator Steve Sumner, told him he and Burleson buried two sealed Army ammunition boxes on Burleson's ranch at Antlers, Okla., several months ago.

According to Bell, Oliver said Burleson told him the boxes contained they were taken from Davis' $6 million mansion.

Mrs. Davis denies the allegation. The boxes already had been partially dug up when Bell, Oliver and Sumner visited Burleson's cabin with a search warrant, Bell said.

A mysterious brown bottle and an ominous note were the only items found at the site, Bell said.

"Anyone within 12 feet of this box will die in six to eight months from a toxic gas" Bell quoted from the note addressed to "Judas." "Only this writer has the antidote.'

Bell said the "poison" looked more like motor oil, but he sent it to the Oklahoma State Bureau of Investigation just in case.

The law requiring these examinations goes into effect Sept. 1, Smith added.

As of this time, there are no estimates as to the cost of the program. But commissioners agreed to investigate using a psychologist from the Midland County Department of Mental Health-Mental Retardation for the examination.

In other actions, the commissioners approved a Win Brown proposal to join the northern half of voting precinct 26 with precinct 28. The commissioner noted the fast growth of precinct 26 required the division of that voting area. By law each precinct is required to have, at most, 3,000 voters. Commissioners also looked at plans for a senior citizens center, a new telephone communications network and new road work. Remodeling of the senior citizens center would cost about $60,000, according to Wayne Kohout, of the Midland Parks and Recreation Department. Kohout projected the completion of the center would be sometime in

In a resolution signed by all the commissioners and County Judge Bill Ahders, Aug. 31 was proclaimed Frances Williams day. Mrs. Williams will be retiring as County Librarian that day. Also, the commissioners noted a change in the jury payment system. Jurors who are called for selection will be paid $6 a day. Individuals who are selected for grand jury or trial duty will be paid

$10 per day. Commissioners also considered purchasing an IBM computer to help with the county attorney's office. If the county should approve the purchase, the state would pay approximately 75 percent of the cost.

Services provided by the health department include pre-natal clinic, Well Child Clinic, chronic respiratory disease clinic, epidemiological interviews and investigations, immunization clinic, tuberculosis clinic and screening, environmental sanitation, blood pressure checking, venereal disease diagnosis and treatment and education in areas of public health.

Services are available to all persons, but the department primarily serves low-income Midlanders, according to Smith.

Crowded conditions become especially evident on pre-natal days, Brown said. The OB-GYN examining room is separated from the waiting room by a sheet. There can be little privacy for patient and physician when the entire waiting room is listening, according to Brown. When there are too many women for the small waiting room, additional patients must wait in the hall before room, Smith said. Meanwhile, other persons are using the hall for various Lack of privacy also is evident in other areas. Smith pointed out that employees who need private interviewing areas, such as social workers, must share an office. With a new building and expanded offices, Smith said a nutrition program known as Women, Infant, Children could be added. The program is a diet supplement project funded by the state, he added 'It's a good program and one we need, but we don't have the space for it," Smith said.

Also planned is a position for an epidemiology technician, or venereal disease investigator, Smith said in his report to the City Council. A qualified person could be made available to Midland by Sept. 1, he said, but lack of space will keep the investigator

Regulators to probe beef prices

WASHINGTON (AP) - Agriculture Department regulators who monitor stockyards plan to look into statements by a New York congressman that several meatpacking industry figures may have manipulated wholesale beef prices this month, setting the stage for "dramatic" hamburger price hikes.

But the Chicago Mercantile Exchange, where part of the alleged manipulation would have been carried out, says it finds no unusual price patterns that aren't explained by economic forces in the livestock indus-

Rep. Benjamin S. Rosenthal, D-N.Y., chairman of the consumer affairs subcommittee of the House Commerce Committee, asked six federal agencies Monday to investigate allegations he said were brought to him by consumer groups and industry insiders. Deputy Administrator Charles B.

Jennings of the Agriculture Department's Agricultural Marketing Service said that cattle producers and others have complained recently about "wide fluctuations" in live cattle prices and that the issue is being investigated.

Rosenthal's complaint will be studied too, he added. Jennings' division is required by law to assure fair trading in livestock cash markets, where the actual transactions take place. A Rosenthal spokeswoman, Barbara Timmer, said that consumergroup curiosity about market shifts led the congressman's staff to question unnamed industry insiders, who Live cattle also are "traded" in futures markets, where business interests and speculators trade contracts to buy or sell fixed amounts of live cattle in a future month.

Rosenthal said a group of present and former officers of meatpacking firms may have depressed already declining cattle prices in late July with artificial, fixed-price sales between themselves.

He suggested that this could have led to farmers panicking and selling, thus dropping the price further, and that the officials then may have bought futures contracts on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange at the reduced price in early August.

Retailers saw the low price, expected it to level off and agreed to buy large amounts at the market price on a set day in the future, Rosenthal further suggested. Then, he suggested, the alleged manipulators had their companies buy large numbers of cattle, driving the price back up within two weeks, so they could sell their futures contracts for a quick profit. The futures market fell and then rose about 11 cents a pound within two weeks. Each penny change in the price of a live-cattle futures contract is worth $40,000. That alleged manipulation meant $5 million in "turnaround profits" for the traders, Rosenthal said.

It also could increase hamburger prices "dramatically for the consumer within days" because retailers were locked into a certain day's price rather than a specific amount and will losses, he said. Michael Weiner, a vice president and head of the compliance and audit department at the Chicago exchange, said trading is monitored "closely and constantly."

"In the case of cattle futures, the department found no unusual price patterns," he said.

"Actual cash sales were reviewed throughout the month, as part of the usual monitoring program, and the futures market in cattle at the CME was found to be in line with the cash market," Weiner said.

Rep. Charles Grassley, R-Iowa, asked the Agriculture Department Saturday to investigate major meatpackers' heavy slaughtering of their own herds during the period in question as a possibly deliberate attempt to drive the cash market down.

The department and industry analysts have said that the dip in livecattle prices could well have been caused by ranchers waiting for prices to return to spring levels and then being forced to market large numbers in late July or lose more money on overweight animals. Those sell-offs eventually produced a tight market again in mid-August, that explanation goes. Respected traders had predicted the market be-Rosenthal sent telegrams to the

British, Irish governments seek killers of Mountbatten

Ireland (AP) - The British and Irish governments hunted the IRA killers of Earl Mountbatten, 18 British soldiers and three others today as the Irish guerrillas promised more escalation of their 10-year-old war to drive the British from Northern Ireland and unite it with the Irish Re-

There was no indication that either government had any leads to the men who planted the bombs that blew up Lord Mountbatten's fishing boat off the west coast of Ireland, killing the 79year-old cousin of Queen Elizabeth II, a 14-yearold grandson and another teen-ager, and a few hours later decimat-

Defection shocks the Bolshoi Ballet members

Bolshoi Ballet were "shocked" when Alexander Godunov defected and sought asylum in the United States last week, a spokeswoman for the Soviet dance troupe says.

But Lillian Libman, executive producer of the Bolshoi's U.S. tour, also said she thinks Godunov's defection will not affect the performance of the renowned ballet company.

"They didn't smile that day, that particular day," Ms. Libman said of the company's performance the day Gudonov sought asylum. "And I'm sure they will miss him.'

But, she added, "I don't think it's going to affect the Bolshoi. I don't see why it should.

No one has ever left the Bolshoi (before), and for excellent reason,' Ms. Libman, an employee of the New York-based Nederlander Producing Company of America, said. "It is considered Russia's greatest cultural treasure. It's one of the most awed companies in the world."

Ms. Libman said she believes Godunov's wife, Ludmilla Vlasova, a member of the Bolshoi who finally was allowed by U.S. officials to leave New York Monday for the Soviet Union, sincerely wanted to go home.

"I'm sure if she said she wanted to go home, she must have meant she wanted to go home," Ms. Libman said. "I've been to Moscow and seen how they are treated. They are treated like treasures.'

The ballerina, who departed from John F. Kennedy International Airport, was at the center of an impasse between U.S. and Soviet officials that spanned four days.

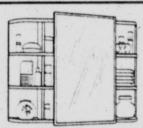

American authorities had refused to let the jetliner carrying Miss Vlasova leave the airport until they could determine whether she was returning to the Soviet Union voluntarily.

Ms. Libman said there was no sign of a drop in Bolshoi ticket sales in Chicago and that security has not been beefed up since Godunov's de-

School discipline

The Texas Legislature, during its 1979 session, passed a series of bills designed to toughen discipline in the public schools of the Lone Star State.

As a result of the legislative action, students this fall face the prospect of the sternest disciplinary measures in Texas' history. And this is good, since discipline in some cases had gotten completely out of hand.

Three of the principal measures affecting conduct of students on public school campuses became effective Monday.

Under these bills, a teacher can oust an "incorrigible" student from the classroom for a full school term, and students can be sent to jail for physically assaulting a teacher.

Backers of the bills said they resulted primarily from problems in inner-city schools, although disciplinary problems are widespread throughout the state.

These are problems which should have been attended to before now, but it is good that the legislature got around to them during its most recent session. Teachers in the public school system here and elsewhere in West Texas have been heard to say they have quit or contemplated quitting teaching because they feared physical harm from unruly students, and because they apparently could do nothing about Another of the bills makes it a Class C misdemeanor, punishable by a fine up to $200, to bring alcoholic beverages onto school campuses. There previously had been no state law in this regard.

State Rep. Gene Green of Houston, sponsor of the bills dealing with alcoholic beverages and assaults on teachers, said his bill increasing the penalties for assaulting a teacher was backed by teacher groups. Some opposition was reported, although we fail to understand why.

The legislation, it is explained, makes it a Class B misdemeanor to threaten or do bodily harm to a teacher. That offense carries a maximum punishment of a $1,000 fine and six months in jail.

This legislation is basically sound and long needed.

Discipline in the public schools is essential to the overall training process and the general welfare of the state and nation. Somewhere along the way, particularly in more or less recent years, discipline took a licking in many public schools. It is good to know that steps are being taken to regain some of the lost ground. Now, if the federal government and the courts will just stay out of it ...!

And we join in the tear-shedsince the institution is the City of Luckenbach, Texas, where nobody's feelin' any pain and where they sit up all night waiting for the mud daubers to come back in the spring, is about to be sold for taxes.

When old Hondo Crouch, Luckenbach's owner, mayor and foreign minister died about three years ago, his daughter Becky was one of the co-owners of the town. She and the other co-owner, Kathy Moran, tried to keep things rolling in the direction Hondo started them, but to no avail. It is said that inheritance taxes, later lowered by the state legislature, were so high when he died that they had to hang up a sign on the city limits announcing that Luckenbach is for sale.

The town lost its guiding spirit when its mayor died, of course, but, as the Longview newspaper points out, "the kind of spirit re-

It seemed to throw custard pies into the face of every stuffed-shirt foible that came into range. They laughed a lot in Luckenbach and they made a lot of others thousands of miles away laugh at their antics.

"And as serious preservers of Texas folklore the residents and those who visited the little city (in Gillespie County) were respected as authentic by the experts."

It also is pointed out that since the nation has bailed out New York City and has been asked to bail out Chrysler, it would seem that Luckenbach (Pop. 3) would qualify for a little government assistance.

Anyway, it is hoped that the purchasers will preserve and continue its future existence in some manner close to that in which old Hondo managed it.

Ku Klux Klan is growing nationally

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — It was Saturday night, an hour after sundown. The field was filled with trash, chiggers and hate. The speeches were over, but the rhetoric still rippled through the crowd. As our reporter watched from the shadows, a cross perhaps 50 feet tall was torched by about 150 whiterobed figures. It was an awesome sight blazing against the night sky.

Then a rusty yellow school bus, packed with kerosene-soaked straw, was set afire by half a dozen school children as proud parents shouted their approval. Within mini bus was a roaring inferno, illuminating some 500 faces, many cheering and yelling at the fiery theater of protest against school busing.

Another Ku Klux Klan rally - this one in the strife-torn Alabama town of Decatur - drew to a vivid close. Similar ugly gatherings have become all too common from New York to California as the Klan enjoys its biggest resurgence in more than a decade.

This column has kept a watch on the Klan since my predecessor, Drew Pearson, accepted a dare from Klan leaders to broadcast from the steps of the state capitol building in Atlanta, Ga., in July 1946. We worked closely with black and Jewish groups to expose the secret operations of this hooded hate cult. At last, after a series of columns in October 1965, we turned to the more urgent investigations as the Klan faded from the headlines.

Now it is back again, mean as ever. But the blacks and Jews are quarreling with one another; FBI agents have also stopped infiltrating the Klan. Its recruiters, meanwhile, are exploiting such race-related issues as school busing, affirmative action, minority quotas and illegal aliens. There is also growing frustration over rising prices, job insecurity, high taxes, government spending, gas shortages and a host of related aggravations. In troubled times, people look for outlets for their anger and scapegoats for their problems. For some, the KKK is providing the answers.

The message of white supremacy and racial separation is no longer confined to the backwoods and cow pastures. It is being heard increasingly on college campuses, state fairgrounds, television talk shows, miliry bases and even ships at sea. The Navy is investigating Klan activity aboard Atlantic Fleet ships, following reports of a cross buring on the mess deck of the aircraft carrier America.

Marches, demonstrations and rallies have been staged at racial flashpoints. In Decatur, violence has exploded since a mentally deficient black youth was convicted of raping a white woman. In Tupelo, Miss, black protests over police brutality have drawn strong Klan responses.

Oxnard, Calif., was the scene of a five-hour club-swinging, rock-tossing riot when Klansmen protested the rape of a high school student and the murder of her boyfriend by Chicano youths. The Klan has been stirring up trouble in San Diego, Calif., Colorado Springs, Colo., Selma, Ala., Flemington, N.J., Seabrook, N.H. and Winston-Salem, N.C., to name a few

In Baton Rouge, La., Klansmen make a show of parading in large numbers brandishing Tompson submachine guns, riot guns, sawed-off shotguns, .44 magnum handguns and other heavy-caliber weapons. Members of the youth corps, some as young as 10 years old, proudly wield knives or clubs.

Brags their leader, Imperial Wizard Bill Wilkinson: "These guns ain't for killing rabbits. They're to waste people. We're not gonna start anything, but if anyone does, we're ready to defend ourselves." Such brandishing and bravado, lawmen fear, is bound to explode sooner or later either by accident or design.

Our reporter witnessed a chilling incident at the height of the Decatur bus-burning rally. After two hours of hate speeches and calls for armed attack upon "niggers, commies and Jews," Klansmen prepared to light the cross. Suddenly a trigger-happy member fired into the bushes at what he thought was a black face.

Some 500 Klansmen hit the ground or ran for cover. This was followed by the ominous sound of dozens of safety catches being clicked off machine guns and carbines, and the sight of 100 or more Klansmen leveling their weapons and looking for targets. Luckily, in this instance, no more shots were fired.

"There's a lot of hate building up, along with a lot of weapons," warns Wilkinson's former Alabama Grand Kaliff, who quit the group. We interviewed him in a Huntsville, Ala., jail where he was being held on a federal weapons charge. He mused, "We've had some good solid Klansmen resign because the group is moving in the wrong direction. It's attracting riff-raff, people who want to go nightriding, who want to see violence."

Responded Dr. Joseph Lowery, president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, whose own car was hit by bullets during a Decatur rally: "The Klan's growing militancy is frightening. It reflects a step backward. Unless law enforcement takes stronger action, more blacks are going to defend themselves. They're not going to stand by and let the Klan shoot up their homes and families.

He shook his head soberly. "The Klan is the ugliest expression of racism in this country," he said. "They are hatemongers and white supremacists, and violence is a natural product of those attitudes. They are totally unacceptable in a civilized society. What we need is a massive national response to them."

CHARLEY REESE It's time to get busy at work of self-government

By CHARLEY REESE Sun Belt Syndicate

ORLANDO, Fla. - The presidential campaign of 1980 has begun and it's time once more to get busy at the work of self-government.

For those who care, I have a few non-partisan tips based on my experience as an observer and as a former hired gun in a few political cam-

You have the widest choices in the nominating phase of the campaign. People who complain about Tweedle Dum and Tweedle Dee choices are usually the people who wait until the general election to participate. By that time, of course, your choice is limited for all practical purposes to one of the two major parties. Each major party, however, has many factions and by supporting one of them now you have the best chance to change the direction of the party as a

As for choosing a candidate, look to the past. Most of what is said by and about a candidate in a campaign is carefully planned and programmed. The worse ones, the opportunists, will say anything their advisers tell them to say even if it's 180 degrees from their real beliefs and intentions. A man's past, however, doesn't lie and people don't change simply because they become major candidates. Look also at the inner circle of advisers. These people know the real man and if you spot an inner circle of liberals, then you can bet your life the candidate is liberal even if he is making speeches that sound like vintage Goldwater. The reverse also applies.

Two of the biggest myths in American politics are that public office corrupts and that it doesn't matter for whom one votes "because they are all the same once they get in office.' Both myths are really rationalizations for failure to perceive the truth about the candidate. Public office provides new job opoortunities for crooks but it doesn't make a crook out of an honest man. Campaign speeches may deceive voters, but most men act consistently in or out of office. Richard Nixon was the same man in 1973 he was in 1953 and Jimmy Carter's presidency is a repeat of his performance as governor of Geor-

I have a few personal rules for what they are worth. For one, I don't vote for anybody I know has lied about even the smallest matter. A man who lies about small matters will certainly lie about big ones.

Secondly, I don't vote for people who have played around on their wives. This many sound Puritanistic. but think about it: if a man's wife can't trust him, can a voter? Will he take his oath of office more seriously than he did his marriage vow? Of course not. If a man's word is no good, then he's no good.

I also never vote for professional politicians, those characters who have made it plain they intend to devote their lives to "serving my fellow man." The rule that you get what you pay for works in reverse in politics. The more you pay a politician, the less likely you will get decent leadership.

A lifetime career in politics necessitates a lifetime devotion to winning and that's a sure way to create an opportunist. The man who has to earn a separate living will keep his ties to the communities area; the pro-fessional politiciaari a form new ties to lobbyists. Making the right political choices isn't easy, but you must never give up on politics. The politican process is the on-going American Revolution. It is our duty as American citizens to participate, not only by just voting, but by involving ourselves in the hard business of party politics and campaign work.

To paraphrase a statement by one of the worst products of our political system, politics can be just as clean, just as fair, just as honest and productive as the American people want to make it.

There is only one alternative to choosing leaders by the ballot and that is choosing them with bullets and that is never a clean way.

Defense to give final arguments

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — After six weeks of testimony, the defense has rested in the triple-murder trial of Dr. Jeffrey MacDonald, a former Green Beret charged with killing his family nearly 10 years ago.

Attorneys for MacDonald were to present closing arguments to the jury today, summing up testimony presented by 62 witnesses in the complex

The arguments were expected to last all day, and the jury of seven men and five women was to begin its deliberations Wednesday

The government maintains that MacDonald committed the murders, then made up his account of four drug-intoxicated intruders killing his pregnant wife and two young daughters after reading about the Manson family cult killings.

Man pleads for his unborn child

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - A California man has asked the state Supreme Court to save the life of an unborn child he and a woman "agreed and planned to conceive.

Robert Blake, 23, asked the high court Monday to force the Orange County Superior Court to reinstate an order barring Holly Lynn La Triell, 27, from having an abortion.

Blake, no relation to the actor of the same name, has also asked for a hearing on the court order. Blake and Ms. La Triell are both from Corona

The petition was filed by Los Angeles attorneys Marvin Mitchelson and Harold Rhoden. Mitchelson represented Michelle Marvin in her widely publicized suit against actor Lee Marvin.

In the Marvin case, the Supreme Court ruled that an agreement between cohabiting persons to share property they acquire while living together is valid. Blake brought an action in Superior Court Aug. 13 entitled "complaint by a father for an injunction to prevent an abortion. It alleged that he and the defendant, Ms. La Triell, "agreed and planned to conceive the child whose life defendant La Triell threatened to put an end to by an abortion.'

Blake was granted a restraining order, and a hearing was set for Aug. 21. But on Aug. 15, Ms. La Triell obtained an order setting aside the temporary restraining order and cancelling the hearing. The petition said the question is whether the fact that the prospective father and mother agreed to conceive the child gave the father the legal right to protect the unborn child's

Selecting furniture for children

By BARBARA MAYER AP Newsfeatures

Geri Brin and Linda Foa started out to write a book about well-designed furniture and equipment for children more than three years ago.

There was only one problem, said Geri Brin recently. "We talked to retailers and we talked to designers. And they told us the kind of products we were looking for didn't exist.'

But the two women, both mothers of young children, persevered. The resulting book, "Kids' Stuff," is a kind of annotated catalogue of interesting furniture, playthings and equipment

To find the sturdy, simple-looking products they were seeking, the two women searched in out-of-the-way industrial catalogues and among firms serving schools and other institu-"I personally never had much taste for industrial objects. But in the process of writing the book, I have come to appreciate how much more practical and sturdy they are than the usual products," said Ms. Brin.

Lockers, exercise equipment, chalkboards, tool chests, metal laundry baskets, playground equipment and store fixtures are some of the products which are shown and described in their book, along with the more commonplace bunk beds, cribs and child-sized table and chair sets.

Behind their selection of these products and the illustration of chic children's rooms executed by New York decorators is a belief that children will develop better in an environment geared to teach them things and to withstand the hard use that is natural for children to make of their toys and

Among the lessons the two women learned in interviews with child-development experts is that "if you give children tasks they can master, it will help them to graduate to the next stage," said Ms. Brin.

Furniture a child can reach and open storage for toys help children take responsibility for themselves. Children need to feel at home in their surroundings. Chairs, chests of drawers and tables they cannot reach make it much harder for them to exercise a natural bent toward manipulation and mastery of their sur-

"I prefer open storage for the baby's clothes. And since children grow so quickly, I wouldn't buy a new crib if I could get a good used one," she added.

To stimulate the child's development, provide a mirror with which it can look at itself, a picture or other art work over the changing table and another over the crib. "And I would change the art work periodically to give it something new to look at," concluded the writer.

Harrassment survey made

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) - More than 5,000 female employees of the state are being asked if their male colleagues have given them "leering or suggestive looks," or made "sexual propositions."

The questions are part of a survey on sexual harassment being conducted by the Center for Policy Studies and Program Evaluation at Sangamon State University. Researchers hope to learn more about what had become a growing national issue the sexual pressures on working

"It's been kept under wraps a little too much, and women are afraid to come forward with it," said John Collins, center director. "It tends to be a closet issue for those who are subjected to it and know anything about it."

Eight-page questionnaires were sent out this month to 5,192 female employees selected at random in 51 state agencies. More than 660 responses have been received so far, said Gay Davidson, a research assistant working on the survey.

Ms. Davidson said some women called to ask if they were sent a questionnaire because the center had been tipped that they had been sexually harassed.

The Illinois General Assembly is considering legislation that would make it an unfair practice for an employer to retaliate because a worker declined sexual advances made by

The questionnaire asks women if they have been subjected on the job to unwanted "subtle sexual hints or pressures," "touching, brushing against, grabbing, pinching," or to "coercive sex."

It also asks what action they took as a result of the incident, whether and to whom they reported it and what happened to them as a result.

Wages aren't keeping pace with inflation, study shows

WASHINGTON (AP) - Wages are not keeping up farm income will be about $142 billion, compared to with inflation, farm income will be less than expect- $126 billion in 1978. Production expenses were foreed this year and U.S. investments overseas are on cast at $112 billion, about the amount projected the increase, government figures show.

Hourly compensation — including wages, fringe benefits and employment taxes — rose at an annual reported Monday that U.S. corporations and individrate of 7.9 percent in the second quarter this year, uals increased their overseas investments 12 percent compared with an 11.3 percent increase in the first quarter, the Labor Department said.

But after adjustment for inflation, hourly compensation showed a record decline of 5 percent when figured at an annual rate.

Federal Reserve Board member Henry C. Wallich said while workers have lost real purchasing power because of inflation, there is no alternative. An effort to maintain or increase standards of living would only contribute to further inflation, he said.

That this has not happened so far is one of the few elements of strength in our situation. That it may happen in the near future is one of our greatest dangers," Wallich said in a Monday address to the New York Society of Security Analysts.

The decline in hourly compensation means if economic conditions continue unchanged, earnings of American workers a year from now will buy 5 percent less than they do now, the department

Much of the blame could be placed on consumer prices, which went up at an annual rate near 13 percent in the first half of the year.

Other statistics in the department's quarterly report on productivity suggest inflation could worsen because output is not increasing enough to offset higher labor costs, which results in higher priced goods and services.

Productivity for non-financial corporations fell at an annual rate of 3.3 percent from April through June, the Labor Department said. It was the sharpest drop since a 6.3 percent decline in the third quarter of 1974, figures indicated.

The department also issued revised figures for second-quarter productivity in manufacturing, where output per hour worked rose at an annual rate of 2.8 percent; non-farm business, where it fell 4.3 percent, and private business, where it fell 2.4

Meanwhile, the Agriculture Department reported Monday that sagging market prices, primarily those of cattle and hogs, will mean a much smaller gain in farm income this year than had been expected.

As a result, the department's outlook board said net farm income may be up only 7.5 percent to about $30 billion from $27.9 billion in 1978. As recently as July 26, department experts said farm income could soar nearly 18 percent this year to about $32.8

The report said farmers' cash receipts for sales of commodities are expected to be about $127 billion, some $2 billion less than had been projected and up from $111 billion in 1978.

This year, according to the new figures, gross

UTPB will repay Stock market( misused funds

AUSTIN-Texas colleges and universities that have misused tax money given them to pay for increased utility costs must reimburse their general appropriations fund from auxiliary enterprise funds to cover the lost monies.

State Audit Supervisor Tim Weaver said Friday he sees no penalties being levied against the errant institutions, but said the funds will need to be reim-

The University of Texas of the Permian Basin, Weaver said, must reimburse its general approriations fund some $31,000. "Essentially, we have an agreement in principal, but there is some difference on the exact dollar figure," he said.

State Auditor George McNiel told the Legislative Audid Committee last week The University of Texas System, excluding the Austin campus, admitted taking $1.6 million appropriated for utility increases for main college plants and using it for auxilliary

37 highway deaths expected by DPS

Colonel Wilson E. Speir, director of the Texas Department of Public Safety, estimated early this week that traffic accidents will claim 37 lives in Texas during the Labor Day holiday weekend.

The holiday runs from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Monday. During the comparable 78-hour period last year, there was a preliminary death count of 45 with late deaths raising the toll to 62, according to DPS

"Our estimate is lower this year because, with the lower supply and higher cost of fuel, weekend travel is reduced from 1978. But at the same time, we recognize the traffic will probably increase during Labor Day since it is the last holiday weekend of the summer," Speir said.

"We could easily have more deaths than estimated if drivers fail to put safety first. I would appeal to all motorists to save both fuel and lives by observing the 55 mph speed limit, and am hopeful that persons who are drinking will let others do the driving," he

To help keep traffic moving safely, DPS and many local law enforcement agencies will be placing spe-cial emphisis on traffic enforcement during the Labor Day weekend, Speir said.

Auto workers won't strike GM plants

DETROIT (AP) - The United Auto Workers union has decided not to strike seven General Motors Corp. plants after holding "satisfactory discussions" with the automaker, although talks have not yet reached the economic bartering stage. UAW Vice President Irving Bluestone announced cancellation of the authorized strikes in a statement Monday, but did not give details of the dispute resolution. The strikes ostensibly would have been over local production standards. UAW spokesman Howard Lipton declined to elaborate on the action, and a GM spokesman said he had no information.

GM and Ford Motor Co. were expected to reveal their economic offers today.

At the compact car assembly plant in Ypsilanti. not far from Detroit, Local 1776 President Richard Debs said he had not been given details of the agreement and did not expect them until a meeting of the union's GM officials Thursday - the day the UAW picks its strike target.

"We're definitely not pleased. We intend to send a telegram to Mr. Bluestone asking him to stick to his

Over 11.800 of the U.S.'s 12.350 airports are served only by General Aviation. Approximately 33% of all air passengers are moved this way, at a petroleum consumption rate of less than 1% of the national total.

90% of all General Aviation planes are single, or twin, light engine models, burning less fuel per trip than a '79 automobile. For example, a twin engine Beechcraft Baron uses 41 gals. of fuel on a direct flight from Memphis to Kansas City. A car. traveling the most direct route. burns 48 gals. ### Energy aid developed

MENLO PARK, Calif. (AP) -Scientists say a faster and cheaper method of manufacturing silicon for solar energy use has been developed at Stanford Research Institute International - a process that could cut material costs as much as 90 percent.

Dr. Leonard Nanis, SRI project manager, said the onestep process of manufacturing silicon, a key component of solar energy cells, is at least 100 times faster than current methods and produces a "very pure" silicon.

SRI scientists said the success in producing cheap silicon came years earlier than expected and could trigger other discoveries that will advance the day when solar power can compete economically with oil.

Nanis said the project was conducted over a three-year period to develop mass-production for solar cells quickly and cheaply. The savings could ultimately be passed on to consumers, he said.

Nanis said the new method uses cheap silicon-containing materials in an energy-efficient process that generates its own

He said the one-step method produces a pound of silicon for about $2.30 while the other, more lengthy process costs about $25 per pound. Silicon, one of the most common elements found in nature, is found in ordinary sand, but processing it for solar energy use has proven costly. The new method also cuts

End of tropical depression puts Coast Guard at ease

By GREG THOMPSON

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) -A tropical depression beat itself to death in northern Mexico early today, much to the relief of Coast Guard officials who feared it would become a tropical storm and drive runaway Mexican oil into the delicate Laguna

The depression, with sustained winds of 35 mph and gusts up to 50 mph, appeared to be bearing down on the southern entrance to the lush lagoon late Monday when it veered into Mexico, 100 miles south of Browns-

Although the storm was expected to rake the entire South Texas coast through today with driving rain and winds up to 28 mph, officials were relieved Monday night.

"We don't have a severe tropical storm to contend with," said Roger Meacham of the Environmental Protection Agency.

"You really don't do much contending with a tropical storm. Yes, we are

The storm's ill-defined center was stalled in northern Mexico late Monday night, but forecasters predicted it would move north-northwesterly about 8 mph and dump up to five inches of rain in some South Texas

The depression's swirling winds still lashed Coast Guard defenses in the southern end of the Laguna Madre, the 100-mile-long lagoon that is the nesting ground for rare birds and breeding grounds for shrimp and other vital commercial marine spe-several inches thick, presenting a serious cleanup challenge only four days before the Labor Day weekend. The multimillion dollar tourist industry at both ends of the island has been crippled by the oil and tourist beaches were all but deserted Mon-

Coast Guard Lt. Cmdr. Jim Paskewich had said that 45 mph winds might tear loose the floating barriers in the three passes through Padre Island into the Laguna Madre. He said oil also could splash over the booms, which are two-feet high. Skimmer vessels used to scoop up the infiltrating oil cannot be used in stormy weather.

Lt. Jake O'Neal, the acting commander of the government task force, said that the Coast Guard would pull out its men if any such storm becomes

"Our major concern is not going to be for the environment or the equipment, it is for our people," he said.

Scientists say small sheen patches and tiny sub-surface tar balls have been slipping into the Laguna Madre, but dismiss the amount as "insignificant."

The seepage, plus the steady north-ward creep of huge patches from a crippled Mexican offshore well prompted officials to fill in a portion of the shallow, narrow Cedar Bayou Pass, which runs between San Jose and Matagorda islands and leads into the salt marshes where most of the 126 remaining whooping cranes win-

Paskewich said that project would be completed by late today.

Coast Guard strategy is to sacrifice the easily cleaned beaches on the barrier islands and protect the passes into bays and lagoons.

Scenic Texas beaches from San Jose Island south to the glistening resort area of South Padre Island have been soiled by the oil.

More than 2 million barrels of crude have gushed from the damaged well that blew out June 3 in the Bay of Campeche, 500 miles south of Brownsville. Mexican officials have predicted it will take at least until mid-September to cap the well. But they say they have reduced the daily flow from 30,000 barrels to 10,000 bar-years since the first bids on oil leases in the Baltimore Canvon Trough. some oil companies still are drilling and others still are watching. Since the first exploratory well was sunk in March 1978, wildcatters have come up with 14 dry holes, two gas strikes and one oil strike. Three other wells are still being drilled. Six companies have given up on Baltimore Canyon oil, at least temporarily. Only Texaco, Exxon and Tenneco are still drilling. Industry and government experts say they still don't know if there is enough crude oil and gas out there to make it worthwhile to pipe ashore to the energy-hungry Northeast. One industry executive estimated the cost of building just one underwater pipeline at $500 million. But the experts say no one, including the six frustrated oil companies, has completely given up on the Baltimore Canyon area. "There's a lot of exploration that still has to be done out there," said one industry official who asked not to be identified. "When you have 14 dry holes, there's a natural dampening of enthusiasm. But no one is going to spend this kind of money without taking a good look-see.' The government now estimates that there may be 1.02 billion barrels of oil and 13.5 trillion cubic feet of natural gas in the Baltimore Canyon Trough geological formation off New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland and Virginia. That estimate, which if accurate would supply America's total oil needs for only about 50 days and its gas needs for about 10 months, will be revised downward soon, U.S. Geological Survey officials say. Dwayne E. Hull, the geological survey official in charge of the offshore drilling, believes many oil companies are waiting to see if Texaco and Tenneco can find more gas and oil. Despite the number of dry holes, Hull said, "I'm encouraged by what I see so far." He explained that the ratio of dry wells to strikes is not bad
