$155 million lawsuit filed against PEMEX

HOUSTON (AP) — A Houston attorney has filed a $155 million lawsuit against Mexico's state oil company on behalf of fishermen who contend they have lost money in the world's worst oil spill.

Joe Jamail named the defendants in the federal court class action as PEMEX, the Mexican oil monopoly, and SEDCO, a firm founded by Texas Gov. Bill Clements.

"Since the governor of this state has refused to represent the people of Texas, somebody had to," he said. "I filed the suit to force some people's hands and, by God, I think — I know — we can win a judgment."

Spillage from Ixtoc I, a PEMEX oil well in the Bay of Campeche, has stained more than 100 miles of Texas beaches and sent oil slicks over a wide area where fishermen harvest shrimp, oysters and crab.

The well has pumped more than 98 million gallons of oil into the Gulf since it ruptured June 3.

Thousands of steel and lead balls are being pumped into the well and have helped cut the flow from the initial 30,000 barrels per day. Open water containment booms and skimmers are sweeping up some of the oil at the well head. Officials hope to cap the well this month.

In a related development, the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration said the high tides and surging waves from Hurricane Frederic may have helped cleanup efforts along the Texas Coast.

Dr. Nancy Maynard said Thursday the tides lifted tar balls and other oily splashes past the intertidal zone — the area of sand between high and low tide where birds, crabs and other species feed.

In addition, the waves may have pushed ashore submerged oil that had been trapped in troughs between sandbars, she said.

Clements, Texas' first Republican governor in more than 100 years, placed his interest in SEDCO in trust and disassociated himself from the multi-million dollar firm before his election. The Dallas-based company leased to the Mexican government the offshore rig that collapsed.

PEMEX officials refused to comment on the oil suit. Clements was in Moscow and not available for comment.

Gil Clements, the governor's son and chief officer of SEDCO, said, "I can't say I am surprised by a lawsuit being filed. I am surprised that anyone thinks they can document any damages against us."

Jamail said he represented a group of fishermen who suffered "million-dollar losses" in the past year.

"This will increase as their losses increase, and I expect the owners of hotels and motels and others along the affected beach areas to eventually join in this action," he said.

During the past few months, Clements and Texas Attorney General Mark White have been at odds over whether legal action should be taken against the Mexican government for the oil spillage.

The governor has said, "There is no foundation for any statement that SEDCO is responsible for the blowout, or that the equipment was defective."

House may be stopping investigations of big oil

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — A House subcommittee is moving quietly toward banning the Federal Trade Commission from continuing major antitrust investigations of the big oil companies and the auto industry, plus a raft of other regulatory actions.

Language approved tentatively by the Appropriations subcommittee that handles FTC funding would bring to a virtual standstill a long string of consumer protection activity at the agency.

The probes of the petroleum and automobile industries would be stopped, as would rule-making activity on the funeral industry, used cars, health spas, hearing aids, mobile homes, children's television advertising, home insulation, apparel labeling, protein supplements and non-prescription drugs, among others.

Sweeping up beginning Frederic now dropping torrential rains

The Associated Press

The once-brutal winds of the storm called Frederic pushed torrential rains today as remnants of the former hurricane moved north, leaving residents of three states to sweep up the splinters of their homes and businesses and to bury their dead.

"For Sale Cheap," read the sign on one flattened trailer in Mississippi.

"Extras: sun roof and solar air."

Frederic claimed only half the human toll of last week's Atlantic

cal devastation might surpass the $95 million racked up by David there.

Towns from Florida to Mississippi sustained heavy damage in Frederic's 130 mph winds and in the tornadoes that trailed the storm. Hundreds of homes were swept from their foundations and businesses were ripped apart.

At least six persons were killed. Two others in Florida were missing and believed dead.

Early today, the remnants of the storm, weakened to little more than a low pressure system, dumped as much as 7 inches of rain on western and central Kentucky and up to 6 inches on eastern Tennessee. Schools closed in Buffalo, N.Y., after five inches of rain fell there, and more than 3 inches of rainfall were reported in Cincinnati and Erie, Pa., as the system moved north.

President Carter ordered disaster assistance for 30 counties along the central Gulf Coast, and planned to assess the damage today.

"It looks like this place has been shelled," said Gulf Shores, Ala., firefighter Ed Currott. Assistant Fire Chief Wade Ward, whose own home was swept away, estimated 90 percent of the businesses and homes in that community were destroyed by the battering winds.

"Looks like King Kong took a stroll through downtown," one Citizens Band radio enthusiast reported of the damage in Mobile, which along with areas around Pascagoula, Miss., and Pensacola, Fla., suffered the brunt of the storm.

Mobile authorities imposed a 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. curfew Thursday when sporadic looting was reported. In the northern suburb of Prichard, Mayor A.J. Cooper advised policemen to fire two warning shots before shooting to kill looters.

Officials declined to speculate on the extent of damage in that city, where century-old oaks toppled like bowling pins before the winds. One insurer estimated its homeowner claims alone would be $30 million to $60 million.

With hot food nearly impossible to obtain, some service stations did a booming business in chips and warm beer. Thousands of people remained in emergency shelters Thursday night, while others picked their way home to try to assess damage with flashlights and candles.

"Power is the critical thing over here right now," said John McMillan in a telephone interview from his home in Stockton, across the bay from Mobile.

cal devastation might surpass the $95 million racked up by David there.

Carter going to Gulf to inspect the damage

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter headed for the Gulf Coast today to make a helicopter inspection of the damage wrought by Hurricane Frederic.

Carter flew to Mobile, Ala., one of the hardest hit cities, where he planned to board a helicopter there for a two-hour inspection flight along the devastated coast to Pensacola, Fla. White House officials said they were uncertain whether he would make any stops during the aerial survey.

The president acted quickly Thursday to designate 30 counties in Mississippi, Florida and Alabama as major disaster areas eligible for special federal recovery aid.

Carter made an unannounced appearance Thursday at a White House meeting of volunteer organizations and disclosed he would make the trip. He said he wanted to "assess the efficacy of government programs in dealing with the hurricane."

The president predicted that 90 percent of the recovery effort will be accomplished by volunteer agencies, not by government.

The hurricane crashed into the Gulf Coast from Florida to Louisiana on Thursday, destroying homes and businesses. White House press secretary Jody Powell said recovering from the brutal storm "is going to take years."

Jack H. Watson, Jr., the president's assistant for intergovernmental affairs, told reporters that, because of the severity of the damage and the extent of the Gulf Coast emergency, red tape was short-circuited so the governors of Alabama, Florida and Mississippi could request disaster declarations by telephone rather than in writing.

Watson said there would be immediate federal assistance for debris removal and emergency road repairs. Later, he said, low-interest loans will be offered to farmers, small-business men and other storm victims.

Flying to the storm area with Carter were John Macy, head of the Federal Emergency Management Agency, and A. Vernon Weaver, head of the Small Business Administration.

Midland City Council OKs small TESCO rate increase

If Texas Electric Service Co. doesn't protest, the utility will get only the 2.74 percent rate increase approved on second reading Tuesday by the Midland City Council.

The hike, to take effect about Dec. 1, is less than a sixth of the 16.1 percent increase requested by the electric company.

Assistant City Manager Fred Poe said the hearing examiner for TESCO's case before the Public Utility Commission has recommended a higher increase.

If that figure is approved by the PUC, then TESCO probably will appeal Midland's proposed increase, he added.

The Dec. 1 starting date was decided upon after it was considered how long such an appeal probably would take, Poe said.

TESCO filed a request in May for a 16.1 percent overall rate increase. The city of Midland joined with other cities and hired a consulting firm to study the proposal.

That firm said an increase of 2.74 percent would suffice to cover what TESCO had listed generally as inflationary costs and, specifically, as increased costs of new power plant construction.

The council had approved the 2.74 percent figure on first reading during its Aug. 28 meeting in City Hall.

Council delays refunding water and sewer bonds

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

Results of the city's $16.83 million bond election earlier this month were canvassed Tuesday by the Midland City Council during a meeting at City Hall, but the first step in refinancing current water and sewer bonds was delayed.

Three issues in the nine-proposal bond election passed — $3.6 million for improvements to the sewer plant, $4.2 million for water system improvements and $6 million for street improvements.

The other six issues were defeated overwhelmingly. In approving the resulting vote tallies, Councilman Tom Sloan quipped that "he didn't like the results."

AFTER REVIEWING an agreement with the First Southwest Co. on water and sewer revenue refunding bonds, the council decided to compare "apples with apples" before deciding on the firm's proposal.

Robert Massengale, director of finance, said the city has an agreement with the firm to handle the city's bonds. But under the refinancing method, the city can choose another firm to handle the bonds.

"The rate was higher than the council thought it would be," Massengale said of First Southwest's charges. The firm had requested $17.50 charge per $1,000. In the past, the maximum limit had been $12.50 per $1,000, Massengale said.

By waiting, the city also will have time to make another principle payment on the existing bonds, thus bringing the refinancing amount down from almost $6 million to a little more than $4 million, he added.

Water, sewer and garbage rate increases of 10 percent were approved by the council on second reading. These increases should become effective Oct. 1, the beginning of the city's fiscal year.

The city approved First National Bank's bid to purchase $500,000 for airport revenue bonds at 6 percent interest. An ordinance, also passed by the council, authorized issuance of those bonds.

THE FUNDS WILL be used to construct a Federal Aviation Administration building at Midland Regional Airport. Rent to be paid by the FAA will pay off the bonds.

The City Council officially supported retaining Midland Air Park in its current location for the next 20 years with only Carroll Thomas opposing.

"We should face up to losing it," Thomas said of the small city airport. "I feel that in another five years we may find the encroachment that we are seeing now from the residential development increasing, and we should seriously consider a relocation for Air Park."

Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. rejected the idea, saying, "I'm satisfied there isn't a viable alternative to Air Park."

Sale of Cal White's stock in Aquila, Inc., to Dunavant Enterprises was approved by the six-member panel. White, who owns Aquila, said the company would become a subsidiary of Dunavant.

With the council's earlier move to support Midland Air Park, the members also approved hiring Parkhill, Smith & Cooper, Inc. to update a study on one of the runways and carry the project through to completion. Col. Wilson Banks, the city's director of aviation, said the runway is almost unusable.

Sloan and Angelo were selected by the council to talk with the Midland Independent School District board of

Baker says Chappaquiddick shouldn't be legitimate issue

Cool front brings chance for showers

Fall is taking an early trip into the Permian Basin as a cool front is bringing cool temperatures and a chance for rain.

The weatherman said skies should be overcast for the most part by tonight and remaining partly cloudy through Saturday.

Temperatures should drop into the middle 50s tonight and rise only into the low 70s Saturday.

High Thursday was 84 degrees, almost a cold front compared to the record 102 degrees set on that date in 1930.

Overnight low was 61 degrees compared to 52 set in 1949.

The weatherman noted that two years ago at this time, the Permian Basin was on the verge of entering an unusual heat wave.

Elsewhere, high pressure dominated the Texas weather scene today, bringing cooler temperatures and drier air to most of the state.

Forecasts called for mostly sunny skies across the eastern half of the state and partly cloudy skies across the western half.

Highs today were to range from the middle 60s in the Panhandle to the middle 90s along the Rio Grande in the Big Bend area of Southwest Texas.

A few showers and thunderstorms were reported in the Panhandle and on the South Plains during the night as an upper level disturbance moved southward out of Colorado.

Cloudy skies were reported early today in the Panhandle and South Plains, but the remainder of Texas had clear to partly cloudy skies.

Early morning temperatures ranged to the middle 70s along the coast. Early morning extremes ranged from 50 at Dalhart to 77 at Galveston.

Carter, Sen. Kennedy appear at same event

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy are taking their undeclared presidential campaigns into a new arena by appearing at the same event, much to the delight of the audience.

Both men showed up Thursday night at a black-tie event sponsored by the tiny congressional Hispanic caucus, although their appearances were separated by a few hours.

The Massachusetts senator, attending a pre-dinner reception for about 10 minutes, was mobbed so tightly by reporters and television crews that it's doubtful many people ever saw his face.

The president, featured speaker at the $100-a-plate dinner, was applauded often during a speech that dwelled on his accomplishments for the Hispanic community and besieged by members of the crowd for hand-shaking afterward.

Earlier in the week, Kennedy said he had "not foreclosed the possibility of running" for the 1980 Democratic presidential nomination, increasing speculation about a possible Kennedy-Carter battle.

Both men came bearing gifts: Kennedy's famous charisma and reputation in the Senate, Carter's political favors such as announcements that he had selected Hispanics to be chief of protocol and secretary of the Navy.

It was all sweet music to the ears of Rep. Robert Garcia, D-N.Y., and the caucus, which has four members.

"All these years they didn't know we existed," Garcia said with a smile. "I am delighted. The attention is something we accept very willingly."

Garcia, the happy host, diplomatically evaded questions about his political preference as he escorted Kennedy around the reception room and, later, introduced the president at the dinner.

Boston Globe reports Kennedy will definitely run

BOSTON (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy has definitely decided to run for president, a Boston Globe columnist wrote today.

"The decision was made last month on Cape Cod away from what he has told friends are the unreal pressures of Washington," wrote Robert L. Healy in a front-page column.

Healy, associate editor of the newspaper, has been a long-time observer of Kennedy family politics.

"It was a decision that evolved," Healy wrote. "There were none of the conferences with brain trusts that both his brothers, John and Robert, had before they announced."

"To be sure, there were questions to be asked about the logistics of the primary system, but staff people such as Carl Wagner have always had the filing dates and the points of no return memorized."

Healy said Kennedy, D-Mass., planned to run in the primaries, although details about this had not been worked out.

"The matter was resolved largely with the blunting of one question — whether anyone of stature in the Democratic Party could stand and accuse him of wrecking the party by challenging of President Jimmy Carter," Healy said.

He said Kennedy was now satisfied that no major figure would accuse him of damaging the party.

Healy did not say who was the source of his information. Kennedy could not be reached immediately for comment.

If current recession persists, Carter's in political trouble

WASHINGTON (AP) — If history is a guide, President Carter had better hope the current recession is behind him if he runs for re-election.

A standard fare textbook in many college economics courses says the outcome of elections often follows the up-and-down swings of the economy.

"In slumps, the ins go out," writes Paul A. Samuelson, an economist at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. "Thus, the 1960 Eisenhower recession helped elect President Kennedy, just as the Hoover depression of the 1930s helped elect Franklin Roosevelt."

Those conclusions are contained in his book entitled "Economics."

Samuelson referred to the recession that occurred near the end of President Dwight D. Eisenhower's term and the long depression that started in 1929 when Herbert Hoover was president.

While Eisenhower wasn't seeking a third term, Democrat John F. Kennedy defeated the then-incumbent vice president, Richard M. Nixon, who was later elected president in 1968.

The nation's longest and deepest recession since the Great Depression started about the time Nixon was forced to resign from the White House in 1974. While his resignation stemmed from the Watergate scandal, the impending economic slump didn't help him any.

Actually, even though such authorities as Treasury Secretary G. William Miller say the nation is now in a recession, Miller is not the official judge of whether a recession is occurring.

A recession is commonly defined as two consecutive quarters of decline of the nation's gross national product, which is the value of the total output of goods and services in the economy.

The GNP declined at an annual rate of 2.4 percent in the second quarter, after growing slightly in the first quarter. Most economists predict it also will decline in the third quarter, but those figures have not yet been compiled.

Zimbabwe Rhodesian leaders object to proposed constitution

LONDON (AP) — Ian Smith and other white Zimbabwe Rhodesian leaders today objected to a British-proposed constitution that would strip them of almost all their remaining power in that war-torn country, a senior source at the peace conference said.

The four white ministers in the 22-member delegation, including former Prime Minister Smith, made the protest at a meeting of the delegation in its hotel, said the source, who asked not to be identified.

The delegation, led by black Prime Minister Abel Muzorewa, must formulate a joint stance on the British proposals.

Muzorewa, the whites and leaders of the two minority parties in his delegation later met with British Foreign Secretary Lord Carrington, the conference chairman, to seek clarification of the British draft.

The 15-page proposal was to be debated for the first time in formal session with the opposing delegation of the Patriotic Front guerrilla alliance when the 5-day-old conference resumes later today.

The whites' objections to the British draft spring mainly from their belief that Muzorewa, whose government is not recognized internationally, should extract recognition from the British and an end to trade embargoes in return for a new constitution, conference sources said. They said the white ministers acknowledge that Muzorewa will have to end some of the special powers the white minority has under the current constitution.

The draft, circulated by Britain Wednesday night and leaked by conference sources, envisages an unspecified number of special seats for the white minority for up to five or 10 years.

But the number of seats would be a mere token compared with white power now. Currently, the 28 white legislators in the 100-member assembly have power to block constitutional change and to control top military and civil posts and the judiciary for up to 10 years.

Whites, who ruled for almost nine decades until Muzorewa took office last June, make up only 3 percent of the country's 7 million people. But Muzorewa's government depends on the white-led armed forces to defend it against the guerrillas and on white expertise to run the strained economy.

The Patriotic Front is to put forward its own draft constitution. Guerrilla sources said today it would permit whites a few seats "reflecting more their proportion of the population."

Front leaders Robert Mugabe and Joshua Nkomo maintain it is racist to allow whites any special seats at all. But the guerrilla chiefs evidently are ready to agree to a token number of white seats in deference to the British view. They may also not object to British proposals for pension guarantees and compensation if new rulers nationalize white assets.

Tanzanian President Julius

Nyerere, chairman of the group of five African states that support and give refuge to the guerrilla armies, has backed the idea of disproportionate legislative representation for whites.

Nyerere arrived in London today from Ireland, where he declared that his impoverished nation would back the Patriotic Front's war "whatever it costs us, until we are quite sure power is going to be transferred to the majority."

Nyerere, who can bring considerable pressure to bear on the Patriotic Front, was scheduled to see the guerrilla leaders and confer with Carrington later today.

Jury recommends six years for Dixon, after conviction

COLORADO CITY, Texas (AP) — A state district court jury has recommended William Clarence Dixon spend six years in prison, after convicting him of involuntary manslaughter in a collision between a school bus and Dixon's oilfield equipment truck that killed four students.

The jury recommended the punishment late Thursday, after convicting Dixon on the charge Wednesday, after four hours of deliberation.

Dixon was indicted on charges he caused the four deaths Dec. 8, 1978, by failing to stop at a stop sign near Roby at a rural West Texas intersection.

As Judge Weldon Kirk prepared to read the sentence, Dixon sat at the defense table, eyes closed and hands folded as though in prayer.

Dixon showed no emotion after he heard the verdict, but glanced at his wife Pam who appeared to be fighting tears.

Kirk set Sept. 28 as the date for formal sentencing, and Dixon has ten days to ask for a new trial.

Dixon's truck hit a bus carrying the boys' and girls' McCaulley High School basketball team to a tournament.

Four students were dead at the scene and another died three weeks later. In addition, 20 people — including Dixon — were injured.

Authorities originally had charged Dixon with three counts of manslaughter but two of them were dropped, without explanation, during the trial.

Before retiring to discuss punishment, the jurors heard attorneys haggle over whether adverse driving records could be admitted during the punishment arguments.

At one point, the judge sent the jury out of the room while defense attorneys argued with prosecutors over the admissibility of Dixon's driving record.

A Department of Public Safety trooper testified he ticketed Dixon for driving 18 mph over the speed limit in Sept., 1978. The defense tried to keep the ticket from being admitted.

Defense attorney Malcolm Schulz of Abilene had wanted to call 31 character witnesses during the punishment phase, but Kirk limited him to 15.

Doctor under investigation in connection with Presley's death

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Elvis Presley's personal physician is being investigated for possible criminal liability in the entertainer's death, a local assistant prosecutor says.

Executive Assistant Attorney General Jewett Miller said Thursday night his office began investigating Dr. George Nichopoulos on Tuesday after the state Board of Medical Examiners filed a complaint accusing the doctor of indiscriminately prescribing medication for Presley and 15 other persons.

However, District Attorney General Hugh Stanton Jr. has just about ruled out the possibility of a homicide investigation because of conflicting medical opinions about the cause of death, officials said.

Miller said the medical board notified his office that the Nichopoulos case could involve criminal allegations. The board's complaint involves civil charges and could lead to the suspension or revocation of the doctor's license.

The doctor, on the advice of his attorney, has not commented.

Conviction on criminal charges of indiscriminate dispensing of drugs could result in a prison term of several years. A negligent homicide conviction generally carries a penalty of less than one year in jail.

Miller said the Memphis Police Metro Narcotics squad will also investigate the case.

The announcement of a criminal investigation came only hours before ABC-TV reported Presley's persistent abuse of drugs led to his Aug. 16, 1977, death. The autopsy report listed the cause as heart disease.

Three pathologists, including one who took part in the Presley autopsy, were interviewed on the program "20-20," which devoted an hour to the 42-year-old singer's death.

ABC said Baptist Hospital's chief pathologist, Dr. Eric Muirhead, and his assistant, Dr. Noel Florendo, concluded the interaction of stimulants, depressants and painkillers killed Presley.

"I agree with Dr. Muirhead's conclusions," Florendo said, referring to Muirhead's belief that polypharmacy — the interaction of several drugs — killed the singer.

Muirhead did not sign the autopsy report in which Dr. Jerry Francisco, Shelby County medical examiner, ruled Presley died of hypertensive heart disease.

Florendo said "there was no gross evidence of a heart attack" and no sign of advanced heart disease as Francisco described.

The network show backed up statements made in October 1977 by Baptist Hospital sources that Presley died a drug-related death with 10 drugs present in his body.

ABC reported that Presley had a 1.6 level of codeine in his body and that a level of 1.8 is considered lethal.

Francisco said earlier this week he stands behind his ruling in Presley's death.

Meanwhile, a television station in St. Paul, Minn., reported Thursday that Presley was taken to a drug treatment center in Minnesota while on a concert tour in 1977, but refused to stay.

KSTP-TV, citing "knowledgeable sources," said Presley was taken to the Hazelden Foundation in Center City. But sources did not say whether Presley had been formally admitted to the treatment center.

A spokesman said officials of the treatment center would have no comment on the report until later today.

Woman goes berserk and eats arrest report

CHICAGO (AP) — A woman went berserk in Chicago police headquarters, attacking another woman with a penknife, biting a woman employee, punching a matron in the face and eating her arrest report, authorities said.

Emma Williams, 30, of Chicago, was charged with three counts of battery after the incident Thursday, police said. She was being held in the women's jail.

Police said Ms. Williams, who had come into the station on her own, was standing in the headquarters lobby when the incident began. They said she was next to a display case containing the badges of policemen killed in the line of duty, when she suddenly turned on another woman and shouted, "You're the reason all these policemen are dead."

She then allegedly attacked the woman, Elaine Bryant, 21, with a small knife, slashing her on the neck.

Police subdued Ms. Williams and took her to an interrogation room to book her on battery charges. Before they could handcuff her, however, she ate the arrest report form and overturned a desk.

Midland man sentenced to life

ODESSA — Robert Gonzales Heredia of Midland was found guilty Thursday of a charge of possession of heroin.

Heredia was on trial in 161st District Court here before Judge R.L. McKim who sentenced the Midlander to a life sentence.

It was the second trial for Heredia on the charge in connection with the Aug. 16, 1974, offense. His May 29, 1975, conviction and subsequent life sentence were reversed early this year by the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals following his appeal.

The appeals court found in reviewing the case that a court reporter's notes, which were lost, had not been transcribed, resulting in an incomplete record.

Heredia was arrested about one mile east of Odessa on U.S. Highway 80. He has been in prison since being given the life sentence Aug. 18, 1975.

Apparent burglary ends in $800 damage

Damage totaled over $800 in an apparent burglary of about $5 in change from the Basin News Agency, 300 E. Indiana Ave., Midland police said.

A plate glass window was broken out, possibly with the use of a glass cutter, late Wednesday or early Thursday, police said.

A soft drink machine and a candy machine in the building had been broken into, accounting for the greater part of the damage and the $5 in missing change, police said.

62 bodies pulled from wreckage

STALAC, Yugoslavia (AP) — Searchers have pulled 62 bodies from the mangled wreckage of a passenger train and a freight that collided at this rail junction in eastern Yugoslavia and officials say they think more dead are entombed in the wreck.

More than 24 hours after the Thursday crash, authorities said they did not yet know how many travelers were still unaccounted for. More than 100 persons were injured when the freight train ran a red light and slammed broadside into the Belgrade-Skopje express.

The dead included 25 soldiers, the Defense Ministry said today. It said they were from a group of first-year cadets from a military academy and a unit of regular army recruits on the express train.

Authorities said the express was 66 minutes behind schedule when the two trains collided 95 miles south of Belgrade.

Search teams, armed with cutting torches, continued to probe the wreckage today looking for more victims.

It was the second worst railway accident in Yugoslavia since World War II. A crash in 1974 at Zagreb killed 153 persons.

Horse dies of rabies

MONAHANS — Rabies was confirmed in a Monahans horse this week by veterinarian Bryan Stuckly.

The horse, with which at least six persons are known to have come in contact, was stabled near the rodeo grounds when it died Wednesday.

A biological specimen was sent to the State Health Department in Austin and a positive report was returned.

State Health Department zoonosis specialist Joe Terry was in Monahans this week and identified the rabies virus.

The six people who came in contact with the horse now are undergoing the 23-shot anti-rabies treatment.

Monahans veterinarians have urged all pet owners to be sure their animals are vaccinated in the wake of Monahans' first rabies case in a domestic animal this year.

Miss Lillian would vote for Kennedy

NEW YORK (AP) — If he should win the Democratic nomination over her son fair and square, Lillian Carter says she would vote for Sen. Edward Kennedy for president.

In a Thursday visit to New York City, President Carter's mother said Kennedy would get her vote "if he is decent and kind as he's always been" and did not get the nomination by way of personal attacks against her son.

But that's all just speculation, Miss Lillian told reporters here, adding Kennedy hasn't announced any candidacy.

"I wish he wouldn't run. I'd hate to see him get beat," Mrs. Carter said of the Massachusetts politician. "I like the Kennedys."

She also said she had no regrets about her comment last week that if Kennedy ran for president she hoped nothing would happen to him. Two of Kennedy's brothers were assassinated.

Mrs. Carter said she mentioned it out of motherly concern and that reporters covering that event "had to pick out something, so they took it out of the clear blue sky."

"I worked for John and Bobby (Kennedy) both. I adore them, and I like Ted and I think the first thought that comes into any mother's mind is I hope to goodness nothing happens to any of the rest."

"It was an inadvertent speech, but I couldn't take it back," she said.

Miss Lillian Carter confers with Sam Kinsella at New York's Tavern on the Green, Thursday. Kinsella, owner and chief chef of Dublin's internationally-famous Mirabeau restaurant, is in New York

Wrong apartment costs two narcotics officers $10,000

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Two members of a police narcotics team who raided the wrong Plainview apartment three years ago have been ordered to pay the people who lived there $10,000 in punitive damages.

A federal court jury also awarded Ted Hooks, Diane Hooks and Delia Gutierrez an additional $1,000 apiece for actual damages suffered in the raid.

The three were court-reporting students in Plainview and were sharing an apartment the night of March 19, 1976, when five officers burst in looking for a suspected heroin dealer.

The officers said they soon discovered they had the wrong apartment, but all the officers did not leave immediately.

The jury deliberated three hours, then found that Hale County narcotics agent Benny Clifton acted "maliciously, capriciously or arbitrarily" while they were in the apartment.

During the trial, Clifton testified that when he entered the Hooks' bedroom he knew Hooks was not the suspect, but that he tried to pull the covers from Mrs. Hooks as she lay in bed screaming.

Clifton and former Amarillo policeman Jim Patterson were ordered to pay the punitive damages, although the jury found that Patterson and the other three officers named as defendants did not act maliciously, capriciously or arbitrarily.

However, the jury held that the police squad did not act in good faith while executing the search warrant.

Thursday's decision ended the second trial in the case. The first was held in Plainview, and the jury ruled the officers acted in good faith during execution of the warrant but could not reach agreement on the officers' conduct once inside the apartment.

The trial judge decided such a ruling was not necessary.

Mexican Independence Day celebration to be Saturday

Mexican Independence Day celebration will get under way in Midland at 10 a.m. Saturday, when a parade through downtown Midland begins near Midland High School at Illinois Avenue and San Angelo Street, said Ruben Vargas, co-chairman of the event sponsored by the Eastside Lions Club.

"We don't have much interest (in the parade) this year," surmised Vargas. "It's going to be a short one."

From the parade, many of the celebrants will continue with the celebration at the Midland County Exhibit Building, where the Great Southwest Show has set up a carnival.

The 1979 Independence Day Queen, Sarah Jacqueline Brito, a 16-year-old junior at Midland's Robert E. Lee High School, will be crowned in a coronation amid her court at 9 p.m. Saturday at the exhibit building.

Last year's queen was Lena Jakel, 17, a senior at Midland High School.

Sunday's events will include an Asado Cook-off at 3 p.m. and a tamale-eating contest at 5 p.m., said Vargas.

"It's like chili — 50 percent pork and 50 percent beef," Vargas said of asado. "It's a lot spicier than chili, and it's a lot better, more tasty," he said.

Food booths also are set up at the Midland County Exhibit Building, just off U.S. Highway 80 east of Midland.

Working with Vargas on the celebration is John Rendon, Gavy Subia is chairman of the event.

Mexican Independence Day commemorates Sept. 16, 1810, when the Mexican people began their revolt against the then-ruling Spanish forces.

The Mexicans won their independence 11 years later — in 1821.

Public hearing set on closing Goodfellow Air Force Base

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) — About 20 U.S. Air Force officers were in this West Texas city today to hold a public hearing concerning the proposed closing of Goodfellow Air Force Base.

The hearing, requested by U.S. Rep. Tom Loeffler, R-Kerrville, is said to be only the second such hearing the U.S. Air Force has ever held concerning the proposed closing of a base.

The Air Force announced earlier that the base was to be closed out beginning in 1980 with the facility to be completely phased-out by 1984.

An organization called the City Blitz Committee planned to present a 15-page position paper at the hearing today. A committee spokesman says the position paper challenges evidence used by the Air Force in a study on the economic impact the base closing would have on San Angelo and Tom Green County.

The meeting was to be held in a bank meeting room.

Goat is common-denominator in four-footed economy of Tibet

By VICTORIA GRAHAM

LHASA, Tibet (AP) — One yak equals 12 goats, one sheep is worth two, one horse buys 24. Therefore one goat equals 1-12 yak, 1-2 sheep and 1-24 horse. So goes the four-footed arithmetic and livelihood of the highlands of Tibet.

The economics of life in the muscular sky country is measured in bartered goats, as well as Chinese currency. The goat, worth 12 yuan or $8, is the common denominator and is still a unit of exchange in a region which has 1.7 million people and 23 million cows and sheep and goats.

At the Yu Lan — "Emancipation" — commune, about 100 miles and five hours' drive northwest of Lhasa, animals outnumber humans. Located more than 15,000 feet above sea level, the commune has 977 people in 185 households.

Xiao Kuji, secretary of the commune, told visitors recently that his isolated encampment has 20,165 animals: 7,098 yaks, 6,780 sheep, 6,079 goats and 208 horses.

Weary visitors to his treeless prairie are greeted by indifferent herds of sheep, and children brightly rouged and dressed performing ethnic dances. Horsemen gallop across the grasslands and snatch red pennants from the ground.

Women in bright pink bandannas, traditional striped aprons and sneakers serve smoked and dried Tibetan-style macaroni, and bowls of yogurt with raw sugar.

Guests at the Yu Lan commune sit on rich, old carpets before gilded tables in tents of black yak's wool. And women constantly refill the covered tin cups of honeyed milk and press them to their visitors' lips. Behind the costumes and the hospitality are poor herdsmen in grimy and tattered clothes. Many have blotched and mottled skin from exposure to the sun and many a small child has a runny nose.

The commune was founded in 1970 and most of the herdsmen were previously pastoral serfs. There were an estimated 200,000 pastoral serfs in Tibet in the 1950s. Most of the commune members worked corvee — unpaid labor — for the Zhe Bang monastery in Lhasa, which once owned 40,000 serfs.

Today the average per capita income each year is 123.5 yuan, about $80, including the money which is used to buy food.

Every household keeps a private herd for sideline income in meat, milk, butter and wool. The secretary's family of three owns one horse and two yak.

The herdsmen migrate a short distance with their animals in summer and they live in tents. But in winter they live in houses in a square mud-brick compound that includes a store and clinic.

Van Deerlin to continue rewrite push

NEW YORK (AP) — Rep. Lionel Van Deerlin said Thursday he will continue to press for revision of the Communications Act of 1934, despite the demise this summer of his subcommittee's rewrite legislation. "Cancel the wake," Van Deerlin advised a meeting of the International Radio and Television Society. "I wouldn't re-election next year. I believed the communications rewrite would pass."

The Communications Act of 1934 covers all radio communication. The Federal Communications Commission, which regulates radio and television, was created under the act.

Deerlin abandoned his bill in mid-July, in the face of opposition from broadcasters and consumer groups.

The more feasible approach to revision, the California Democrat said, is through amendment of the existing act, and that process already has begun.

He said his goal still is "more competition and less regulation" in broadcasting, and promised, "The country will have a communications policy that embodies those goals."

Van Deerlin said work by his House communications subcommittee in the last three years showed the scarcity of outlets, particularly in television, "is an artificial scarcity, created not by technologies but by a combination of restrictive regulation and public ignorance."

Indeed, Van Deerlin said the work of the subcommittee already has had an impact. "The rewrite gave the networks, these old, prosperous industries, a good nudge in the ribs, and got them to reassess their futures," he said.

'Syndrome' banned by Philippines

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — The government censorship board has banned the American movie "The China Syndrome," the story of a nuclear power plant accident, until a special commission completes hearings on the safety of a proposed nuclear plant in the Philippines.

A board spokesman said the temporary ban was ordered at the request of Gabriel Y. Itchon, president of the government-run National Power Corp. In a letter to the board, the spokesman said, Itchon wrote, "The untimely release of the film may prejudice the dispassionate inquiry being conducted by the commission."

An NPC spokesman said the firm feared the film might generate anti-nuclear opinion.

Navy aids refugees

TAIPEI, Taiwan (AP) — A Nationalist Chinese navy frigate rescued a boatload of 71 Vietnamese refugees and landed them on Penghu, in the Pescadores Islands off Taiwan, a government spokesman said today.

Among the 71 "boat people" were three pregnant women and 19 children. One of the refugees said they fled from southern Vietnam aboard a 36-foot fishing boat in early August, developed engine trouble a week later and were rescued last Friday in the Spratly Islands in the South China Sea.

Higher education group sets priority

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A special committee on the financing of higher education has decided to give priority to a review of general academic institutions and medical and dental schools.

If there is enough time, the legislative-citizen committee also will review the financing of junior and community colleges and Texas State Technical Institute.

It will report to the 1981 Legislature.

"I'm concerned we might try to take in more than we could chew," said Frank Erwin Jr., former regent chairman of the University of Texas system. The financial study will include teacher education, faculty salaries, construction, bonding, enrollments and mandatory student fees.

The Legislative Budget Board was instructed to brief the committee at its next meeting, Oct. 31.

Erwin, an Austin lawyer and committee member, said "basic to the committee's consideration" are national press reports of declining enrollments.

"This (declining enrollment) is simply not true in the state of Texas as a general proposition," said Erwin.

He said there are 10 or 11 colleges in Texas with declining enrollments but others, such as UT, have had large increases.

The same across-the-board formula is not adequate to handle schools with increasing enrollments and those with declining enrollments, Erwin said.

Also, he said, administrators should consider the "enormous influx of people coming into the state" as well as the number of Texas high school students in projecting college enrollments.

"I heard an economist say Houston is growing at the rate of one Waco a year," said Erwin.

"One Austin a year," interjected Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby.

"It's worse than I thought," responded Erwin.

SHEINWOLD ON BRIDGE Laugh At Finesses

By Alfred Sheinwold

If the odds are even that a finesse will fail, with your luck two finesesses will fail. With good planning, you can laugh at unlucky finesesses.

The average player takes an early diamond finesse in today's hand. West wins, and South eventually loses a second diamond.

A more cautious player draws trumps, cashes the ace of hearts and two more clubs and then leads dummy's queen of hearts. If East played low, South would discard. Even if West could win the trick he would have no safe return.

STILL LOSES

As the cards lie, East plays the king of hearts, and South must ruff. If South then tries the diamond finesse West gets out with a diamond, and South still loses a second diamond.

After ruffing the king of hearts South should cash the ace of diamonds, lead a trump to dummy and return a diamond. If East has the king, South gets a trick with the queen of diamonds. If West has the king but held only two diamonds he will have no safe return after winning with the king.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner bids one club, you respond one heart, and he bids one spade. The opponents pass. You hold: ♠None ♥K 10 5 4 2 ♦J 10 9 7 3 ♣5 4 2. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two clubs. This minimum rebid shows a weak hand. A bid of two diamonds would suggest additional strength. Look for safety when you have a horrible hand.

City may break traditon: Take clerk off sun porch

SOUTH HARRISON, N.J. (AP) — The building inspector keeps files in his kitchen. The town clerk works on her sun porch. And the town's two policemen have their headquarters in a mobile home.

Voters in this rural hamlet of 1,400 persons in southwestern New Jersey decide Saturday whether to break a 97-year tradition and change all that — by building their first town hall.

The Gloucester County community doesn't have any traffic lights, gas stations, housing developments or sewers.

Its town hall — the hottest political issue in years — is needed to store the municipal paperwork, said Mayor Donald J. Kelley.

"The building inspector has a filing cabinet in his kitchen and papers in his bedroom," he said. "The clerk works out of her sun porch. It's an inconvenience to the officials as well as the people."

There is no central phone number for the township and people have a hard time finding officials, he explained.

As proposed by the township committee, voters will decide whether the town should put down $40,000 cash and borrow $50,000 by issuing bonds to build a wood-frame municipal building.

The plan has been scaled down twice — costs of earlier versions were estimated at $400,000 and $200,000.

But some people still object, saying the small residential community can't afford even the scaled down building.

Committeeman Harvey Skinner, a retired farmer, said taxes are high enough already, and "that's good reason to be conservative."

Kelley, a surgeon, disagrees.

"We don't provide much in the way of services," he said. "There is no water, sewer or trash collection. The only thing we do provide are the police and the streets, and of course, the paper."

It is technically a violation of state law to store the records outside a municipal building, but state authorities are reluctant to pursue legal action when there is no building.

Kelley said times have changed enough to warrant a building. A full-time police force was started last year, and the two officers now work out of a mobile home.

Congress seeks amateur status for Jim Thorpe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is seeking to restore the status of the late Jim Thorpe, stripped of his Olympic gold medals 66 years ago, as an amateur athlete.

The Senate approved a resolution urging the International Olympic Committee to reverse a 1913 ruling that Thorpe had become a professional baseball player.

Thorpe, an Indian from Oklahoma, played in a semi-professional East Carolina baseball league in 1910 and 1911 and accepted $60 in expense money.

In the 1912 Olympics, he won eight gold medals, outdistancing all competitors in both the pentathlon and the decathlon. When it was discovered that Thorpe had accepted the $60, the IOC lifted his medals and his amateur status.

Experts try to keep shark alive

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (AP) — For the second time in less than a month, marine experts say they are trying the "almost impossible" feat of keeping a captured great white shark alive.

The 8-foot-long shark, brought to Marine World-Africa USA after being netted Wednesday by a fisherman in Tomales Bay, was beginning to swim by itself early Thursday, said Ron Swallow, a veterinary technician at the amusement park.

Marine World divers had been pushing the fish along in an effort to get it to swim. Despite the improvement, Swallow said the shark was in poor condition.

"Since sharks must swim continuously or die, it is "almost impossible" to catch one and bring it back to captivity," Swallow said.

Last month, a great white was caught and taken to the Steinhart Aquarium in San Francisco. It lived about a day before dying.

Higher education group sets priority

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A special committee on the financing of higher education has decided to give priority to a review of general academic institutions and medical and dental schools.

If there is enough time, the legislative-citizen committee also will review the financing of junior and community colleges and Texas State Technical Institute.

It will report to the 1981 Legislature.

"I'm concerned we might try to take in more than we could chew," said Frank Erwin Jr., former regent chairman of the University of Texas system. The financial study will include teacher education, faculty salaries, construction, bonding, enrollments and mandatory student fees.

The Legislative Budget Board was instructed to brief the committee at its next meeting, Oct. 31.

Erwin, an Austin lawyer and committee member, said "basic to the committee's consideration" are national press reports of declining enrollments.

"This (declining enrollment) is simply not true in the state of Texas as a general proposition," said Erwin.

He said there are 10 or 11 colleges in Texas with declining enrollments but others, such as UT, have had large increases.

The same across-the-board formula is not adequate to handle schools with increasing enrollments and those with declining enrollments, Erwin said.

Also, he said, administrators should consider the "enormous influx of people coming into the state" as well as the number of Texas high school students in projecting college enrollments.

"I heard an economist say Houston is growing at the rate of one Waco a year," said Erwin.

"One Austin a year," interjected Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby.

"It's worse than I thought," responded Erwin.

Laugh At Finesses

By Alfred Sheinwold

If the odds are even that a finesse will fail, with your luck two finesesses will fail. With good planning, you can laugh at unlucky finesesses.

The average player takes an early diamond finesse in today's hand. West wins, and South eventually loses a second diamond.

A more cautious player draws trumps, cashes the ace of hearts and two more clubs and then leads dummy's queen of hearts. If East played low, South would discard. Even if West could win the trick he would have no safe return.

STILL LOSES

As the cards lie, East plays the king of hearts, and South must ruff. If South then tries the diamond finesse West gets out with a diamond, and South still loses a second diamond.

After ruffing the king of hearts South should cash the ace of diamonds, lead a trump to dummy and return a diamond. If East has the king, South gets a trick with the queen of diamonds. If West has the king but started with only two diamonds he will have no safe return after winning with the king.

ANSWER: Bid two clubs. This minimum rebid shows a weak hand. A bid of two diamonds would suggest additional strength. Look for safety when you have a horrible hand.

Alleged terrorist on trial for murder

DUESSELDORF, West Germany (AP) — Angelika Speitel, an alleged Baader-Meinhof terrorist, has gone on trial charged with murder, illegal firearm possession and being a member of a criminal gang.

The 27-year-old former law assistant was among the terrorist suspects sought after the murder of banker Juergen Ponto in his Frankfurt residence in July 1977 and the kidnap-murder of industrialist Hanns-Martin Schleyer three months later.

The charges against her stem from a gunfight with police last September in which she was apprehended. A policeman and a companion of hers were killed, Ms. Speitel

City may break traditon: Take clerk off sun porch

SOUTH HARRISON, N.J. (AP) — The building inspector keeps files in his kitchen. The town clerk works on her sun porch. And the town's two policemen have their headquarters in a mobile home.

Voters in this rural hamlet of 1,400 persons in southwestern New Jersey decide Saturday whether to break a 97-year tradition and change all that — by building their first town hall.

The Gloucester County community doesn't have any traffic lights, gas stations, housing developments or sewers.

Its town hall — the hottest political issue in years — is needed to store the municipal paperwork, said Mayor Donald J. Kelley.

"The building inspector has a filing cabinet in his kitchen and papers in his bedroom," he said. "The clerk works out of her sun porch. It's an inconvenience to the officials as well as the people."

There is no central phone number for the township and people have a hard time finding officials, he explained.

As proposed by the township committee, voters will decide whether the town should put down $40,000 cash and borrow $50,000 by issuing bonds to build a wood-frame municipal building.

The plan has been scaled down twice — costs of earlier versions were estimated at $400,000 and $200,000.

But some people still object, saying the small residential community can't afford even the scaled down building.

Committeeman Harvey Skinner, a retired farmer, said taxes are high enough already, and "that's good reason to be conservative."

Kelley, a surgeon, disagrees.

"We don't provide much in the way of services," he said. "There is no water, sewer or trash collection. The only thing we do provide are the police and the streets, and of course, the paperwork."

It is technically a violation of state law to store the records outside a municipal building, but state authorities are reluctant to pursue legal action when there is no building.

Kelley said times have changed enough to warrant a building. A full-time police force was started last year, and the two officers now work out of a mobile home.

Congress seeks amateur status for Jim Thorpe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is seeking to restore the status of the late Jim Thorpe, stripped of his Olympic gold medals 66 years ago, as an amateur athlete.

The Senate approved a resolution urging the International Olympic Committee to reverse a 1913 ruling that Thorpe had become a professional baseball player.

Thorpe, an Indian from Oklahoma, played in a semi-professional East Carolina baseball league in 1910 and 1911 and accepted $60 in expense money.

In the 1912 Olympics, he won eight gold medals, outdistancing all competitors in both the pentathlon and the decathlon. When it was discovered that Thorpe had accepted the $60, the IOC lifted his medals and his amateur status.

Firms 'hoarding, pirating' executives

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — A battle for talented managers is leading to sharply higher salaries in the executive suite, with incomes of some key people jumping 50 percent and even 60 percent at a time.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials fell .17 to 870.73. Advances held about on an indecisive stock market finished with a small loss.

Analysts said the prime lending rate could hit 13 1/2 percent soon following Chase Manhattan Bank's announcement of a record-high 13 percent prime.

When the executive is likely to be tempted, the package is presented. Typically, it includes a long-term commitment to the executive and benefits designed to win the same commitment from him.

Senators say talks in order

WASHINGTON (AP) — Both Texas senators think negotiations are in order to decide who is liable for damages to the state's beaches and businesses as a result of the oil spewing from a runaway offshore Mexican well.

Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo has denounced calls for compensation, saying talks were not in order. The well is owned by Petroleos Mexicanos, the national oil company.

"I think there is a liability there by Pemex and we should press very strongly in the negotiations to see that people are compensated," Sen. Lloyd Bentsen said.

The state's Democratic senator canceled a speech he planned to deliver about U.S.-Mexican relations, saying he was told natural gas negotiations had reached a "delicate" stage.

The speech reportedly referred to tensions from the on-again, off-again negotiations for U.S. purchase of Mexican natural gas as well as the oil spill liability issue.

Tower said the question of liability is "a matter of negotiation" but it should be undertaken through quiet diplomatic routes.

"I think the fact is that there has been too much public comment to the extent that it has exacerbated our relationship with Mexico," the Republican senator said Tuesday.

The man the incumbent senator defeated in a tight race last fall, former Texas congressman Bob Krueger, had provoked blasts from Mexican officials last month by announcing the U.S. would ask for payments for at least some of the damage.

Conferees are searching for some middle-ground formula.

One proposal, suggested by Sen. Bennett Johnston, D-La., would be to require the president to submit the draft of the plan to Congress for possible veto. However, if Congress did veto the plan, then he would be allowed to produce another one not subject to congressional review.

Johnston said a compromise along these lines was nearly reached Thursday, but that administration officials and House negotiators backed off and wanted more time to study it.

Standby gasoline rationing plan caught in stalemate

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's request for standby gasoline rationing authority is caught in a House-Senate stalemate but leaders say they're hopeful of working things out by next week.

"We just don't have our act together yet," said Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., the top House energy negotiator.

The House-Senate panel recessed its deliberations until early next week after failing Thursday, for the fourth day in a row, to resolve its remaining differences on the rationing legislation.

The basic argument is whether to give Congress veto power over a rationing plan after the president drafts it, but well in advance of when it would be imposed.

Senate conferees say Congress should have this veto power while House negotiators, arguing the White House position, say to do so would needlessly tie the president's hands.

Conferees have already agreed to give Congress a one-house veto over rationing at the time the president moves to impose it during a shortage.

So the only issue now is whether Congress should get an earlier crack at the plan as well.

Conferees are searching for some middle-ground formula.

blamed the White House for the stalemate. "They don't have their wires straight," he said.

The conference committee did reach agreement Thursday on several non-rationing parts of the legislation.

It voted to go along with a House provision that would exempt out-of-state motorists from having to comply with odd-even gasoline restrictions. The exemption would not apply to adjacent states that both have such plans, however.

The conference panel also rejected a Senate-passed ban that would prohibit gasoline hoarding by people who bury storage tanks in their yards. The ban was dropped after Department of Energy officials said it would be extremely hard to enforce.

In other congressional energy developments Thursday: —The Senate Banking Committee approved a $3 billion bill to spur synthetic fuels through government subsidies and loans. The program is more modest than Carter's "synfuel" proposals, now advancing through other committees.

—Additional federal money to help the needy and the elderly pay rising fuel bills could be made available by the first of the year, HEW official John L. Palmer told a special Senate aging committee.

Discovery reports final; wildcat projects staked

A discovery and a wildcat have been announced in Garza County, and wildcats have been staked in Borden, Cottle, and Fisher counties.

The Garza discovery is Energy Resources Oil & Gas Corp. No. 1 E. W. Williams.

It completed from the Clear Fork for a daily pumping potential of 24 barrels of oil and 360 barrels of water, through perforations from 3,311 to 3,323 feet. The gas-oil ratio is too small to measure, and gravity is 39 degrees.

Hole is bottomed at 8,570 feet and 4.5-inch pipe is set at 3,618 feet. The plugged back depth is 4,400 feet.

The Yates was topped at 1,092 feet, the San Andres at 2,105 feet and the Clear Fork at 3,305 feet. Ground elevation is 2,481 feet.

Wellsite is 1,980 feet from north and west lines of section 112, TTRR survey, abstract 828.

The Garza wildcat is Jerry McCutchin of Dallas No. 3 K. Stoker, three miles southeast of Post and one location southeast of production in the Garza area which produces at 2,900 feet.

The project, scheduled on a 3,500-foot contract is 1,483 feet from south and 330 feet from west lines of section 50, block 5, GH&SA survey and one location northwest of a depleted Garza field producer.

It is 9,500 feet southeast of 4,505-foot Canyon production in the Eskota field and one mile southwest of 4,429-foot Strawn production.

It also is 7/8 mile southwest of Hill No. 1-A Pike Hall, an active wildcat 1.5 miles northeast of the depleted Nofish (Strawn) field.

FISHER WILDCAT
Hill Production Co. of Dallas No. 1-A Irene Swann is a 6,000-foot wildcat in Fisher County, four miles east of Eskota.

The operator staked location 760 feet from south and 1,500 feet from west lines of G. W. Robinson survey No. 22.

It is 9,500 feet southeast of 4,505-foot Canyon production in the Eskota field and one mile southwest of 4,429-foot Strawn production.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate committee approved legislation Thursday calling for a $3 billion government effort to develop a synthetic fuels industry, an effort far less costly than President Carter favors.

The measure, approved by the Senate Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs Committee, also sets up a solar bank to provide low-interest loans for installation of solar equipment and provides government backing for production of fuels from alcohol and conservation efforts.

Under the bill, the government could provide loan guarantees and purchase commitments for a maximum of 12 synthetic fuel plants, each of them capable of producing a maximum of 50,000 barrels a day.

The financial assistance would expire in 1988, after which Congress would have to decide whether it wanted to support a synthetic fuels industry further.

The program is more modest than the version Carter embraced earlier this week which was a scaled-down version of the original measure proposed by the White House. The Senate Energy Committee is expected to approve a larger effort than that favored by the banking committee.

Carter originally favored an $88 billion synthetic fuels program with a goal of producing the equivalent of 1.75 million barrels of oil a day by 1990. Earlier this week the president and members of the energy committee agreed to a two-phase program estimated to cost between $20 billion and $30 billion in its initial phase and produce between 300,000 and 600,000 barrels a day.

The energy committee is working on its own version of a synthetic fuels bill. The measure approved by the banking committee is not expected to reach the Senate floor before the other panel completes its work.

One aide to the banking committee said the panel had approved a smaller program than the president favors because "we feel that synfuels are less of a solution (to energy problems) and that solar and energy conservation are more important."

Carter's program for reducing dependence on oil imports also includes increased use of solar energy and a stepped up conservation program.

In addition to the synthetic fuels provision, the banking committee bill calls for $1.13 billion in government spending over five years to make available low-interest loans to persons installing solar equipment in residential or commercial buildings.

The measure also permits government grants and loans to finance development of fuel such as gasohol.

To spur conservation, the measure calls for government-subsidized low-interest bank loans for installation of conservation equipment such as storm windows and insulation. The loans would be available for existing residential and commercial structures.
