Carter warns Iran of 'grave' retaliation

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter met with his top military and foreign policy advisers for more than two hours today and warned Iran's leader that harming a single American hostage would produce "extremely grave" retaliation.

White House Press Secretary Jody Powell told reporters after the meeting the president had asked him to relay the message that in Carter's view, "the last American hos-tage is just as important to the United States as the

"The consequences of harm to any single hostage will be extremely grave."

The press secretary said he had no new developments to report but that the United States is keeping diplomatic channels open and "there may be some encouragement from the fact that they are still active."

In response to reporters' questions, Powell said the administration remains firm in its refusal to turn over the former shah, who is undergoing cancer treatment in New York. "He was allowed to come here for humanitarian reasons to receive medical treatment. That treatment will not be interrupted," he said.

Powell also said he saw little new in the threat issued Thursday by Irank's revolutionary leader, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, who said militants occupying the U.S. embassy in Iran would kill their hostages and blow up the building if the United States attacks Iran.

Powell noted that the militants themselves had said the same thing earlier. "It really makes no difference who says it or how many times it is said," he said, adding that U.S. policy is unchanged.

Carter methfor about two hours and 20 minutes with his advisers, including Vice President Walter Mondale, Secretary of Defense Harold Brown, Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski, Central Intelligence Agency Chief Stansfield Turner and Gen. David Jones, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

They arrived at Carter's mountaintop retreat by helicopter and after the meeting returned to Washington. Also present at Camp David were White House chief of staff Hamilton Jordan and Press Secretary Powell. Powell would not give a list of all those who took part in

Powell said Carter plans to meet Saturday with the military Joint Chiefs of Staff, which includes the uniformed leaders of the Army, Air Force and Navy. Powell said the "primary topic" of the meeting would be to discuss the Defense Department's budget, but said he could not rule out that the Iranian situation might also be

The White House went out of its way to call attention to today's meeting by allowing photographers and television camera crews into the compound to record the arrival of the advisers. Ordinarily, news photographs are not allowed inside Camp David. The last time such arrangements were made was during the Mideast summit more than a year ago.

Carter, wearing a blue windbreaker and dark slacks, walked from his lodge to the helicopter landing area to greet his advisers, who then strolled with him back along the path towards the president's Aspen Lodge.

Powell, dressed casually in a gray crew-necked sweater, strolled over to chat with reporters and told them there had been no particular event that had prompted the 'Nothing, nothing particular," he said.

In Tehran, Iranian strongman Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini called on all Moslems and American blacks to rise and "join us in this struggle between the infidel and

And the commander of Iran's navy put his forces on full alert to counter the approach of U.S. warships, dispatched to the Indian Ocean, south of Iran, by President Carter.

Khomeini, in a statement from his headquarters in Qom broadcast over state radio, warned that the students holding American hostages would blow up the embassy and kill them if the United States attempts to rescue them

The Carter administration said earlier this week that it hoped to end the standoff peacefully but had "other remedies" available.

At the State Department, spokesman Hodding Carter promised Thursday that the government would take a 'full-court press' approach to freeing the hostages. The basketball analogy he used refers to a tactic in which everyone on the team plays an aggressive defense from one end of the court to the other.

Hansen suggests investigation

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Iranian officials today permitted a U.S. congressman on a personal "mercy mission" to see the U.S. charge d'affaires and two other senior envoys detained at the foreign ministry.

Rep. George Hansen, R-Idaho, told a news conference he still expects to see the 49 hostages in the occupied U.S. Embassy and that he had proposed to Iranian officials a congressional inquiry into Iranian allegations against the Hansen said Charge d'Affaires L. Bruce Laingen and the other diplomats were "concerned and tired, but well."

Laingen, with the embassy's political officer, Victor Tomseh, and security chief Michael Holland have been detained at the foreign affairs ministry since the Nov.4 embassy takeover by militant Moslems.

"There's substance to Iran's complaints (about the shah) and it's in the best interests of the U.S. to look into some of these charges....We've had investigations into the president and congress. Why should the shah be immune to an investigation?"

The trio has been visited by other foreign diplomats, but Hansen is the first American to see them.

Hansen said he was taken to Laingen's "living area" to confer briefly with Earlier, Hansen suggested a congressional investigation of the deposed shah's regime which Hansen says could prompt Iran "to be much more open to negotiations" on the release of American hostages.

Hansen, on a one-man peace mission to that Middle Eastern nation, said Thursday he will seek such an investigation as soon as he returns to Washington.

"The Iranians would like to find a way out of this, but they want their goals satisfied, and such an investigation may prompt them to be much more open to negotiations," Hansen said in a telephone interview with the Idaho Statesman. "We've found people here who would like to find a way out of this situation."

Hansen flew to Iran on Tuesday on a peace mission that caught the White House and State Department by surprise. He said he made the trip because there has been "no real dialogue" between Iran and the U.S. "I'm not attempting to conduct foreign policy, but after three weeks, it seems that something ought to be done," he said. Hansen stood at the gates of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran on Thursday in an attempt to talk to the Americans who have been held hostage since Nov. 4. Armed Iranians didn't allow Hansen beyond the embassy's gates. Hansen said they told him they may contact him later if they decide to let

He said he has talked with Iran's foreign minister, Abolhassan Bani-Sadr, members of the Revolutionary Council, and students. "We were on track to something very significant," Hansen said. "But under the circumstances it's not possible to be more specific."

Neither White House nor State Department officials knew of Hansen's Iranian mission before he departed Tuesday. State Department spokesman Ashley Mills said Thursday his department was neither condoning nor prohibiting Americans from contacting the Iranian government.

Claudia Townsend, a White House deputy press secretary, said President Carter did not favor private American missions to Tehran unless the missions were arranged in advance and there were Iranian commitments that the hostages would be released.

Of Iranian demands that the shah, now in New York for cancer treatment, be returned to to face trial, Hansen said:

"There's substance to Iran's complaints and it's in the best interests of the U.S. to look into some of these charges. If some of their claims are valid, they'll reflect not only on Iran, but on the U.S. as well," he said. "We've had investigations into the President and Congress. Why should the shah be immune to an investigation," he said. Hansen said he reported by telephone to the White House about his trip and expected a reaction soon.

"There were no deals, no negtiations," said Hansen. "But I'm convinced this situation can be resolved by dialogue and initiatives." Hansen, descibing himself as a "do-it-yourself ambassador," was uncertain whether he could muster sufficient support for his proposed congressional inquiry.

"Whether there is enough strength of conciliation, I don't know," he said. "But let's hope so, because it sure beats war."

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) - The U.S. Air Training Command today ordered Iranian pilots at all U.S. military installations grounded at least

'Our pilot training bases for Iranian students are on a standby for today. They will not be flying today," said Lt. Col. Tom Maple, deputy director of the Air Training Command's national headquarters in San

"Their academic training continues; it's only the flying portion that's affected by this order. Beyond this, at this point in time, I cannot comment further," Maple said.

The order came from Gen. E.L. Davis at Randolph Air Force Base in

Mandatory controls due, says treasury secretary

LONDON (AP) - U.S. Treasury Secretary G. William Miller said Friday that President Carter may propose mandatory measures to reduce American oil consumption next year.

Miller, en route to the Middle East on a six-day trip, said the mandatory measures could include ones aimed at curtailing the use of cars by rationing gasoline, increasing gasoline taxes or other steps he did not speci-

Other mandatory measures to reduce oil consumption could include lighting and temperature controls, he told reporters during an airborne news conference.

'All the options of mandatory curtailment, price curtailment, have to be looked at," Miller said. "We need to make a tremendous effort next year to restrain demand.'

Reducing energy consumption to help restrain oil price increases is the key to controlling inflation, he said.

'The battle now revolves around energy," he said. "If oil prices continue rising, then all other efforts to control inflation, including efforts to support the dollar, will be frustrat-

The Associated Press learned a week ago that an inter-agency task force was working on options for conserving oil for the president to look at, but Miller's statement was the strongest yet by a high official that mandatory measures are being seriously considered.

What do you buy for the city that has everything?

LOWER ALLOWAYS CREEK, N.J. (AP) - What do you buy for the town that has almost everything - including a nuclear power plant, brand-new municipal and fire buildings and a zero tax rate?

Municipal officials purchased a ski slope and now are hoping for an early snowstorm to see how it works.

This pastoral township of 1,600 residents begins its premiere season operating the 93-acre Holly Mountain ski slope.

"It all depends on the weather. From what I understand, the temperature has to be just right," said Deputy Mayor Robert Traae, chair-

But the $550,000 cash purchase of Holly Mountain last March didn't even make a dent in Lower Alloways Creek's $16 million surplus.

In the past few years, the township has eliminated all local and school property taxes, built a $500,000 municipal building, a $127,000 playground, a $1 million addition to the elementary school and a $165,000 fire department headquarters.

The community, which was almost bankrupt 10 years ago, derives its wealth from the Salem I nuclear power plant, located on adjacent Artificial Island. Public Service Electric & Gas Co., the plant's owner, contributed about $7 million a year in taxes and will pay an additional $14 million a year when three other planned nu-

Below freezing scenario tonight

It's the perfect time for bringing in the firewood and warming up the homestead the old-fashioned way as the temperature should drop below freezing again tonight. Midlanders today awoke to find

frost on the windows and frozen water in the streets

The scenario should be replayed tonight, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport.

The mercury is expected to dip into the upper 20s tonight and warm into the low 60s on Saturday. High Thursday was a chilly 48 degrees in view of the record 81 degrees set on that date in 1966. Today's overnight low was 25 degrees, close to the record low of 17 set in 1938. No precipitation has been recorded in the last 24 hours leaving the year's rainfall total at 13.25 inches. Light rain continues to sift through cloudy skies in the eastern regions of Texas today. Trace amounts of rain were reported in Longview, Lufkin, Palacios, Corpus Christi, Victoria and light sleet clogged traffic in the Houston area.

The rest of the state was clear and cold with early morning temperatures raning from near 10 at Marfa in the western mountains to the lower 20s in the Panhandle. Mercury dipped to the mid 30s in Northeast Texas and the upper 40s in the lower Rio Grande

Today's forecast calls for mostly cloudy skies with a chance of showers in the southeastern coastal sections. Weathermen call for partly cloudy skies in South Central Texas and showers and light sleet in East

Dense fog causes 24-car smashup

By The Associated Press Dense fog covered much of the New York City metropolitan area Friday morning, causing airport delays, closing part of the New Jersey Turnpike and apparently leading to a 24-car smashup in Connecticut. The fog covered eastern Pennsylvania, central and northern New Jersey, the New York counties of Westchester, Rockland and Putnam, Long Island, parts of New York City, and Connecticut.

In West Haven, Conn., a section of Interstate 95 in three towns was closed after a 24-vehicle accident that injured six persons, one seriously, state police said. The accident involved about 14 cars and at least a half-dozen tractor trailers, and was attributed to the fog, state police Saudi authorities, in a statement issued after the takeover, identified the attackers as Mahdists, an extremist Moslem sect that believes a new Islamic messiah will appear shortly. They are aligned with the Shiite branch of Islam, which is practiced by most Moslems in Iran and several other non-Arab Islamic nations. Moslems of most Arab countries, including Saudi Arabia, are members of the Sunni sect, Islam's dominant group.

In Cairo, an Egyptian Moslem theologian called for the formation of a pan-Moslem special military unit to defend Moslem shrines in the Saudi cities of Mecca and Medina.

CALCUTTA, India (AP) - A mob of more than 1,000 Moslems burned vehicles, looted shops and stoned and tried to set fire to the American and Soviet consulates today in a violent reaction to the raid on the Grand Mosque in Mecca this week.

No casualties were reported among foreigners but at least eight policemen were injured in the rock-throwing demonstration that was finally broken up with tear gas

Police kept the mobs from entering the consulates, which are in the same district of the city, but some damage from rocks and thrown bottles was reported at both the Soviet and American missions.

The mobs set fire to one U.S. Consulate auto and one French consulate car parked on the street as well as several private cars, a trolleycar and

Zambians protest British presence

LUSAKA, Zambia (AP) - Fifty youths scaled steel fences surrounding the British High Commission building Thursday and pulled down the British flag from a pole inside the compound

Thousands of others surrounded the building, chanting, "Kill the oppressors!" and "White pigs!"

The youths, identified as militants of the ruling United National Independence Party, called on President Kenneth Kaunda to nationalize Shell, British Petroleum and the London Rhodesia Co. - which he refused to do - and to sever relations with Kaunda said Zambia holds the British government responsible for the deaths of nine Zambians and destruction of 12 bridges in raids by Zimbabwe Rhodesia forces since Oct. 12.

Earlier this week, Kaunda ordered the armed forces mobilized in response to stepped up air and ground attacks by Zimbabwe Rhodesian forces. Zambia is the object of such attacks because Zimbabwe Rhodesia guerrillas have some of their bases in

The Times of Zambia newspaper, owned by the United National Independence Party, said editorially Wednesday: "We must warn the British not to push us too far because if we react to the activities of their rebels we can turn the white man's happiness in this country today into sorrow overnight. If we were barbarians like the rebels and their supporters, we would demand the life of one white man for one bridge destroyed." Kaunda on Thursday also lashed out at the British high commissioner, or ambassador, to Zambia, Sir Leonard Allinson, for saying his government was not responsible for the recent raids that crippled Zambia's transport links to the sea. "What insolence...for this man to reply to my news conference (Tuesday) within one hour after I had finished speaking," Kaunda said. Shouts of "shame, shame!" were heard from the crowd.

Foreign Minister Wilson Chakulya said he summoned Allinson and "told him in no uncertain terms that he has committed a serious breach of diplomatic etiquette by immediately replying to Kaunda instead of reporting to his government."

"In our view the high commissioner insulted our head of state," the foreign minister said.

Chakulya said Zambia would take its case for compensation from Britain - as Rhodesia's legal colonial power - to the U.N. Security Coun-

Kaunda said the international companies would not be nationalized.

"We are waiting for managers, study hard and work hard," he told the students. "We are waiting for you, the youth, to come and run socialist organizations. Those running them now are under a capitalist system."

Kaunda said the government had 51 percent shares in Shell and BP and was waiting for qualified Zambians to take over the control of industries.

Monroe chicken farmer charged with enslaving Mexican laborers

MONROE, La. (AP) - Connie Ray Alford owns a prosperous 300-acre cattle and chicken farm at Truxno, a one-store village in the red clay hills just south of the Arkansas state line. He calls it "Welcome Home Ranch."

Alford was to go on trial Monday in U.S. District Court, accused of enslaving two Mexican laborers and keeping them shackled and chained while they worked off a debt at "Welcome Home." He pleaded guilty Wednesday to one count of peonage in a plea bargain agreement which calls for the other charges to be dropped. He faces up to five years in prison.

It is the first case ever involving Mexicans rather than blacks in connection with alleged violations of federal anti-slavery and peonage laws, which date back to Reconstruction years after the Civil War, said a spokesman for the U.S. Office of Civil Alford's arrest last September, on his 40th birthday, was a jolt for the rural area. He is a member of the Unymo Parish Police Jury, the parish governing body, and ranks as a leading citizen. The case has become notorious in Mexico, where minority political factions cite it as proof that incidents of "slavery" for illegal aliens are common in the United States.

An anonymous telephone call reporting mistreatment of aliens at

"Welcome Home" first alerted the U.S. Border Patrol.

"At first, Alford denied having any illegal aliens working for him," said William Collette, border patrol investigator. "We didn't find any on our first visit to the farm. After two months of checking the sparsely populated countryside and talking to neighbors, FBI and patrol agents routed 11 illegal aliens from Welcome Home.

As evidence, the FBI seized chains and locks — and an 8-by-8 jail-like cage made of welded iron bars. The cage is on display on the loading dock of the Monroe post office. A sign proclaims it is evidence for a trial and is not to be tampered with.

"I never completed or used that cage," Alford has stated. "It doesn't even have a door.

The FBI said he told agents he built it to imprison honey bears which were ruining his watermelons. He denied it was used to hold human beings.

The informant who tipped the bor der patrol told the FBI four illegal aliens who tried to flee "Welcome Home" were picked up by a sheriff's deputy and returned to Alford, who "chained them by the neck."

Alford was indicted on two violations of the anti-slavery laws and nine counts of harboring and concealing illegal aliens. He pleaded innocent on Oct. 1. He said the investigation was instigated by one of his three opponents in the police jury race.

Alford's bid for a third four-year term on the police jury went down the drain in the Oct. 27 election. He finished third.

Alford had more bad news this past Tuesday when "Welcome Home" foreman Joe Price Jr. and his son, Dale, were arrested, along with a neighbor.

The Prices were indicted by a federal grand jury in Alexandria, La., on two counts of helping hide illegal aliens and holding them in a condition! of peonage. Goldsby's arrest warrant said he helped chain two Mexican laborers, Isual and Fidel Mata, by the neck on July 28 to keep them from leaving the farm "prior to the repayment of an alleged debt."

federal agents also found several pounds of marijuana and hashish in the house trailer occupied by Alford's 21-year-old son, Jamie, a rodeo

Jamie Alford was charged with possession and intent to distribute mari-

The illegal aliens found at "Welcome Home" were held as material witnesses in a Shreveport jail. Assistant U.S. Attorney Marty Stroud said a judge ordered them released to immigration authorities two weeks

A man indicted with Alford, Franciortez-Perez of San Antonio, Texas, was granted a separate trial after agreeing to testify for the prosecution. He pleaded innocent to charges of conspiring to transport illegal aliens to "Welcome Home."

Wrong prescription

White House Press Secretary Jody Powell characterized rejection of the administration's hospital cost-containment legislation by the House of Representatives as "a defeat for the common good." Mr. Powell's assessment reflects the same misunderstanding of the hospital-cost phenomenon so evident in the administration's proposed legislative reme-

In effect, the Carter administration's answer to rising hospital costs is the blanket imposition of federal price controls on hospital services. While this has a certain popular appeal, it overlooks the lessons we should have learned already about the effects of government's involvement in the health-care industry.

Step one in understanding what has happened to hospital costs during the last 20 years is recognition of the fact that hospitals have become one of the nation's most regulated industries. In New York state, for example, hospitals answer to no less than 164 regulatory agencies, including 40 at the federal level. The costs imposed by this regulatory burden have been reliably calculated to be 25 percent of hospital costs in that state. While New York state may be an extreme example, overregulation is a problem throughout the coun-

It does not require an advanced degree in management or economics to see that no institution can hope to function efficiently while struggling to comply with the overlapping, and sometimes conflicting, bureaucratic demands of 100 or so public agencies. Where is the Carter administration's plan to deal with this problem?

The frequently inadequate

Medicare and Medicaid reimbursement levels imposed in 1975 have encouraged hospitals to boost prices for services covered by commercial insurers or paid directly by private patients. And, of course, these de facto price controls have failed to remedy, or even address, some of the most significant cost-escalating factors associated with Medicare and Medicaid.

But perhaps the most glaring oversight in the administration's cost-containment strategy is its inattention to the quality of hospital services, and, by implication, to the effects of price controls on the quality of health care.

Much of the rise in hospital costs over the last two decades is attributable to dramatic improvements in the quality of services and especially medical technology. Enactment of the administration's plan to hold the annual increase in hospital costs to a maximum of 11.8 percent - a figure well below the current rate of inflation - would have produced an inevitable deterioration in the quality of hospital services. Perhaps that is what the public wants, but it should at least be told that quality of care would be adversely affected by price controls. This was consistently, but unconvincingly, denied by the administration.

The House of Representatives wisely rejected the administration's bill by a decisive 234-166 margin. Jody Powell attributed this defeat to a "highly financed, special interest (hospital) lobby." It would, we think, be more accurate to credit the vote to a recognition that pervasive price controls would create more problems than they would solve.

Rhodesian breakthrough

Britain stuck with its effort to deal with the Rhodesian problem and, after weeks of negotiations, the talks in London are close to final agreement.

That is a triumph for the Conservative government. It is also good news for all who are concerned about the future of whiteblack relationships in Africa.

Seven years of guerrilla war cost more than 100,000 lives after the white settlers of Rhodesia refused to accept proposals for an orderly end to their minority rule and declared their independence of the British Commonwealth.

Sanctions were ordered by the British, by the United Nations and by our own country. They seemed to have little effect. But the guerrilla fighting was bloody and desperate. Casualties kept escalating. Continually there was the danger of war between Rhodesia and the black nations on its bor-

The London agreement will, we hope, open a new era for Rhodesia and demonstrate again that there can be an orderly transition from colonialism to self-government where men of good will on both sides are willing to compromise and work together for the common good.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

White House position misused (?)

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON - White House aide Richard Harden was once described as the "Achilles heel" of Jimmy Carter's gubernatorial administration in Georgia. He may wind up filling that role in his boss' presidential administration — though he's getting some stiff competition from his buddy Hamilton Jordan for that du-

Harden is already under investigation by a federal grand jury, which is trying to find out exactly what his involvement was in an alleged atby fugitive financier Robert Vesco to buy legal favors from the Carter White House.

Now we've uncovered evidence which strongly indicates that Harden misused his high position to help his father, D.H. Harden, clear up a threatened libel suit down home in Camilla, Ga. Our sources tell us Harden got a subordinate, White House legal adviser William Pollack, to intervene on the elder Harden's behalf, improperly invoking his official position to head off the lawsuit.

Pollack has admitted that he arranged an out-of-court settlement for D.H. Harden at the son's request, but insists he didn't do it on the taxpayers' time, and didn't use his White House position to bring pressure on anyone.

The younger Harden - tall, handsome, affable, prematurely graying at 33 - is a member of the unofficial "Cornpone Cabinet" of Georgians who are Jimmy Carter's most trusted advisers. He was Gov. Carter's controversial director of human resources, then became his presidential campaign finance manager. His performance in that capacity earned him sharp rebuke from the Federal Election Commission, which charged him with sloppy bookkeeping on the scores of bank accounts he set up to handle cash deposits for the Carter campaign chest.

Earlier this year, Harden took time off from his White House job and flew home to help audit the tax accounts of the Georgia-Florida-Alabama Peanut Association (GFA), which was then managed by his 69-year-old father. Young Harden later was forced to make restitution for his airline tickets, which his father had charged off to the farm co-op.

The elder Harden had been accused of expense account abuses and mismanagement of GFA's funds, which led to a $2.18 million bill from the Internal Revenue Service for back taxes. After the audit, D.H. Harden was forced to resign, and letter-writing campaign aimed at discrediting his critics.

One letter cast slurs on the professional ability of an accountant who audited the co-op's records. This was published on the front page of a newspaper in Albany, Ga. The accountant began libel proceedings against the elder Harden

That's when Pollack, the White House legal aide, stepped in. A participant in a conference call from Pollack to the accountant and his attorney told our reporter Sally Ann Denton that Pollack identified himself as a White House attorney representing the Hardens. He then tried to persuade the accountant to drop the law-

Pollack denies saying he worked for the White House, and even claims he didn't try to dissuade the accountant from filing suit. "I used no pressure whatsoever," he insisted. "I was just trying to prevent a Hatfield-McCoytype feud. I can assure you we didn't use this office to coerce anyone.

He did get his client to make a public apology, and the suit was never Young Harden has refused to comment on the case, or to explain his role in the affair. Meanwhile, the grand jury that's probing the Vesco bribe charges is highly suspicious of young Harden's testimony, because it so closely corroborates statements made by another witness who has flunked two lie-detector tests. Harden has not been subjected to such tests.

FOGGY BOTTOM FOOT-DRAG-GING: Foot-dragging in Foggy Bottom may be blowing the United States' chances to keep the new revolutionary government of Nicaragua from turning into another Soviet satellite like Cuba.

Continuing delays in the delivery of long-promised aid to Nicaragua — its economy shattered by decades of looting by the ousted Somoza dict: torship followed by a bloody revolution - have led the hard-pressed government to turn elsewhere for assistance. And "elsewhere" means the communist bloc.

The State Department promised aid to the Nicaraguans in September but a department task force took an unreasonably long time in its on-the-spot study of the situation. It wasn't till two weeks ago that the cookie pushers managed to present an appropriations request to Congress, and sources tell us the funds aren't likely to be approved before Christmas.

Meanwhile, the Nicaraguans have concluded a trade-and-aid pact with East Germany, and for the first time the revolutionary junta is seeking commercial ties with the Soviet ORLANDO, Fla. - The time to nave done "something about Iran" was before 62 Americans were captured and the embassy occupied.

It's encouraging to see the resurgence of American patriotism, but we should carefully direct our anger toward the proper target - the American politicians and their supporters who placed us in this ridiculous posi-

There is no point in getting mad at the Iranians. Why shouldn't they occupy our embassy? They did it once before and we did nothing about it. In fact, three of our ambassadors have been murdered and we have done nothing about it. Why shouldn't they mutilate the American flag? Not long ago, Americans routinely did it and we did nothing about them.

If you present your backside to the world, you shouldn't be outraged when someone plants their boot in it. Let me suggest some proper targets for your anger:

President Jimmy Carter who has time and time again accepted insults and assaults against American interests with nothing more than drooped noulders and weak smiles.

Carter, despite the unending torrent of abuse and ridicule coming out of Iran, was continuing to supply the Iranians with spare parts for their military equipment up to the time the

Rockefeller prescribes economic cure for what ails us

(Editor's Note: Nick Thimmesch is on a fact-finding trip to Israel. His guest columnist today is David Rockefeller.)

By DAVID ROCKEFELLER

Current economic talk has shifted from when the recession will begin to when will it end. The "good news" is that this recession should be milder than the one we experienced in 1975, and should be over by the middle of next year.

But the "bad news" seems to be that our current economic downturn did not appear to have a significant long-term effect in reducing infla-

Therefore the Federal Reserve in early October took steps that were aimed at bringing down our near-record inflation rate. It's true that the tighter money policy adopted by the Fed, in the short run, could intensify the slowing down of the economy and. in turn, reduce the level of employment. It's also true that nobody including bankers - generally welcomes stratospheric interest rates.

If we hope to reduce our chances of facing this dilemma in the coming years, we must save and invest today to generate stable, real economic ment, lower real pay and a loss of competitiveness in world markets are, at least in part, a result of our failure in past decades to invest in our future productivity.

To correct this problem will require fundamental changes in our country's economic direction. - First, we need increased capital

Over the past several years, U.S. capital investment for new plant and equipment was lower in the United States than in any other industrial nation. Today, the average U.S. plant is 20 years old - eight years older than the equivalent German plant and more than 10 years older than the equivalent Japanese plant. In a highly competitive world, how can an industrialized nation grow richer un-

more productive? - Second, we must reemphasize

research and development.

Technological innovation can create jobs and reduce prices. Traditionally, the United States has been the world's leader in developing and applying innovative technologies. But lately, U.S. investment in R and D has lagged badly, and our rate of productivity growth has come to a halt. The ratio of R and D expenditures to output reached its U.S. peak in 1964 and has since dropped steadily. This must be reversed if we are to regain our competitiveness in world mar-

We would benefit from tax and other policies that provide incentives for increased R and D. Moreover, today's R and D is, to a large degree, 'defensive" in nature, designed solely to comply with government regulations. Such research does virtually nothing to aid productivity performance. We must redirect our research toward productive purposes. - Third, we need policies that en-

In the energy area, for example, price controls on gas and oil have encouraged energy consumption and discouraged the exploration and development of new energy sources. An end of these controls will undoubtedly mean higher energy prices in the short term. Yet if we don't take the courage investment and discourage necessary steps today, we will continue to be dependent on costly and uncertain foreign sources of oil in the coming years.

Rarely in our history have we been beset by such a raft of immediate and longer term economic problems. There is no instant remedy for our economic ills. But I believe solutions can be found if we withstand the policies that will pave the way for greater productivity, energy self-suf-

CAMDEN, N.J. (AP) - The Thanksgiving rivalry between two high schools was overshadowed by the rivalry of two metorcyle gangs when gunfire erupted on the football field, sending 5,000 fans screaming for cover and leaving 19 persons in-

Eight persons were hit, including a 2-year-old boy, when shots rang out at the Woodrow Wilson High School field during the third quarter of the game Thursday against Camden. Police said at least 20 shots were fired.

Eleven persons suffered other injuries, including some hurt when they were trampled by fleeing spectators. Dozens of police officers converged on the field to restore order, and at least 37 persons were arrested. The fighting erupted between the Wheels of Soul gang of Atco and the Ghetto Riders of Camden just behind the south end zone shortly before 1 p.m., police said.

"There were clearly gunshots fired and a lot of, I guess, general hysteria here and we've had an ending - an abrupt ending — to our scheduled game in this great, long rivalry, which dates back to 1933," said playby-play announcer Herb Hurvitz of WCAM, Camden.

"All of a sudden we saw a crowd, a horde of people running from the left corner of the field toward our side which houses the greater part of the stands here at Wilson Field and you heard gunshots," Hurvitz said.

Camden was leading 14-6 at the time of the shootings. Police ordered the game postponed. Spectator Jerry Cross said players

Lebanese, PLO reach agreement

TUNIS, Tunisia (AP) - Lebanese President Elias Sarkis has agreed to let Palestinian guerrillas keep their bases in southern Lebanon, and PLO chief Yasser Arafat in return has pledged to temporarily halt raids against Israel from the area, Arab summit sources say.

The pact between the Lebanese leader and the Palestine Liberation Organization chief came after hours of backstage wrangling Thursday as a three-day summit conference of Arab League nations ended.

At the summit, the Arab leaders renewed their attacks on Israel, Egypt and the United States, but rejected calls by militants to impose an all-out oil boycott against those na-

The conference also voted to give Lebanon $2 billion over the next five years for rebuilding from the destruction of its civil war and the fighting in the southern part of the country. More than half the money from the oil-rich Arab nations was earmarked for the

Delegation sources said the Sarkis-Arafat compromise confirmed the PLO's right to continue its struggle against Israel "from all Arab fronts," including southern Lebanon, but said the PLO would temporarily refrain from mounting attacks from the Earlier, sources said, Sarkis had insisted on complete withdrawal of the PLO from its bases in the U.N.policed area between the Lebanon-Israel border and the Litani River.

A fragile truce exists in that area among Israel and pro-Israeli Christian militia, Palestinian guerrillas, United Nations troops and the Lebanese army as the Arab-Israeli peace talks proceed.

The U.N. Security Council's 1978 resolution establishing the U.N. Interim Force in Lebanon called for withdrawal of all armed forces except the U.N. force and the Lebanese army from the area between the border and the Litani river.

A Lebanese official said Sarkis, "having failed to obtain the backing of the Arab leaders, will now take the crisis in southern Lebanon before the United Nations.

The summit reaffirmed the Arab boycott of Egypt, imposed after the Camp David agreements last year, but rejected militant demands that it should be intensified. Egypt was expelled from the Arab League after it signed the Camp David peace agreement with Israel and was not at the meeting.

"In large part, it is a steal-to-order racket," Percy said. "If a repair shop is looking for front-end parts for a white 1979 Cadillac Seville, then that kind of car will be stolen.

Subcommittee investigator Howard Marks said the scheme attracts organized crime in Boston, New York, Chicago and some other areas because "it has the two things that organized crime wants: high profits and low risk. It's the ideal crime and we are all paying for it in higher insurance costs."

Marks said one of the favorite spots for theft is in large parking lots where the criminals can "shop" for the kind of car they want.

Laetrile's legal in 21 states, but no one manufacturers it

13y HARRY NELSON The Los Angeles Times

Althou, gh 21 states have passed laws legalizing laetrile, the alleged anticancer drug, no company manufactures it in any of those states, according to health officials.

The chief reason appears to be the clifficulty that a pharmaceutical company would have in not running afoul of federal laws which forbid taking a ny raw materials used in manufactruring latetrile across state lines.

Even the apricots — whose pits are the principle ingriedient in laetrile as well as the containers and tabletn naking machines - would have to be produced within the state's bounclaries, according to legal interpretations of federal interstate commerce regulations.

'Nobody is licensed and nobody has applied to be licensed," said Barbara Seely, office manager for the Board of P harmacy in Washington state, where making laetrile has been legal for more than two years.

Ms. Seely said her office received three requests for applications soon a fter the effective date of the law but none was returned We really haven't heard anything about laetrile in our office for a year and a half," she said in a telephone int erview

Health department representatives ir, Florida, Arizona and Nevada had essentially the same story to tell.

Even in Arizona, where laetrile is classifier by a 1978 law as a food rather th an a drug - thereby avoiding the more complex regulations that appl y to drugs - health officials. said they, were unaware of any local company legally marketing the sub-

All that Arizona law requires, according to Dr. Alex Kelter, is that the manufa cturer obtain a food permit. which requires that certain sanitary proced tires be followed. There is no requir elment that the patient have a prescription from a physician.

Keltery said the law allows the distributio n or sale of laetrile by any person in the state but that the product mu st bear a label identifying the content is as laetrile, amygdalin or Vitamin | B17. The label also must state that the contents are not approved as a cure or treatment of cancer by the Food and Drug Administration.

But he knows of nobody making the product, the physician said. "We don't grow many apricots in Arizona," he said.

Rep. Pat Wright, the state legislator who sponsored the bill making laetrile a legal food supplement in Arizona, said she did so because she realized that "people were taking it on their own, anyhow, if they couldn't get any from Mexico.'

Rep. Wright, a Republican whose district includes Sun City, a retirement community near Phoenix, said she regards the state Health Department as "an arm of the FDA," which steadfastly has refused to recognize laetrile as an anti-cancer agent.

Rep. Wright also authored a 1977 law that legalized laetrile as a drug. She wrote the later bill classifying it as a food because of what she calls the "bureaucratic nightmare" that arose in the preparation of the regulations aimed at controlling it as a drug.

"The more reading I did the more arbitrary the feds seemed to be (in opposing legal use of laetrile)," she

"It's wrong for people to be prose-cuted for taking it," she said. "But then I come from a state that's very big on individual rights."

Workers spend Thanksgiving cleaning oil-soaked beaches

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — While 70 workers spent Thanksgiving cleaning the oil-soaked beaches on this tourist island and officials pondered a new fire-fighting method, northerly winds kept away at sea more crude spilling from the bowels of a battered tanker.

Coast Guard spokesman Larry Clark said Thursday the tanker Burmah Agate was still aflame and leaking oil, but the northerly winds prevented any more oil from washing ashore on Galveston Island.

"It's fairly breezy. We've got north winds of 30 knots, gusting to 40 knots, which should disperse the oil," said Clark.

However, the gusty winds halted skimming operations and grounded helicopters used to track the drift of the spill. "Without an overflight, we can't tell which way the slick is moving," said

The Burmah Agate, with 390,000 barrels of crude oil, and the freighter

Mimosa collided Nov. 1 near the mouth of the Galveston Ship Channel. The bodies of 17 crewmen have been recovered and 15 remain missing. The volatile cargo fueled a fire that has raged for 21 days on the tanker and triggered numerous exposions that have battered the vessel's charred hulk.

Firefighters have been frustrated in efforts to suffocated the blaze and the sporadic explosions have posed a constant threat. Authorities had decided to let the fire burn itself out, but Clark said when the will bubble to the top and smother it," he said. Clark said clean-up efforts were being concentrated on Jamaica Beach, the area hit hardest by the pollution.

"The tanker owners have hired a contractor who has about 70 men working today," he said. As many as 300 had been on the job this week. Clark said, "It's a little hard

CINCINNATI (AP) - A New York lawyer for Hustler magazine publisher Larry Flynt says a decision barring out-of-state lawyers from representing Flynt should be challenged in court.

Paul Cambria of Buffalo, N.Y., said he and his partner, Harold Fahringer, may seek a trial in U.S. District Court here on whether their removal as Flynt's defense was discriminatory.

A ruling earlier this year by the U.S. Supreme Court said Flynt has no constitutional right to be represented by out-of-state lawyers. Hamilton County Common Pleas Judge William Morrissey decided in 1977 to bar Fahringer and Cambria from representing Flynt on charges of disseminating material harmful to juveniles. "We think the issue ought to be tried so Morrissey can be called as a witness to explain why he excluded us," he said.

'They are going to feel that it's somehow expected they favor one parent over the other. That causes conflict. It is important for them to know they can love both, that they can talk to daddy and mommy in positive terms," he said.

Dress code once again an issue

MESQUITE, Texas (AP) - Jimmy Ray Lewis just had his ears pinned back by the administrators at Mesquite High School. Of course, you can't tell it, because Lewis' hair still covers his ears - even after the district-ordered haircut that got him back into school. It seems that the school's dress code, a controversy not heard of by most of this generation's high school students, has sprouted again in this Dallas suburb. And when Lewis' mother appealed to the federal government to intervene, she said she was told there was nothing the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare could do.

On Nov. 7, the 17-yearold high school senior was sent home from school and told not to return with his collarlength locks. Lewis said his hair-style was reviewed by assistant principal Bob Hurst on Nov. 1 and given the seal of approval

But six days later, he was called out of class by Bud Maines, dean of students, and told to pay a

Botha asks for businessmen to support new racial reforms

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa - Prime Minis- impedes non-white large-scale business undertakter Pieter W. Botha met with South Africa's top 250 businessmen Thursday and urged them to use their economic power to support his new racial reform policies.

It was an unprecedented appeal, because historically the government, dominated by the Dutch-descended Afrikaners, and the mostly English-descended businessmen have always distrusted each

During the daylong session, Botha unfolded his ideas for a "constellation" of black-ruled states in southern Africa linked to South Africa as an economic anti-Communist grouping.

Botha said that his government's preliminary and secret discussions with some of the black rulers indicated their willingness to join, despite South Africa's present legalized discrimination against the black majority

Under Botha's plan private investors would establish labor-intensive industries in independent black states within South Africa and in adjoining countries to a far greater extent than they have done up to

After discussion with black governments, Botha said that he is confident such investments could be protected against nationalization, and there would be favorable economic conditions and other financial

He also assured them that his government was relax the laws that presently inhibit foreign and domestic investments.

In asking the private businessmen's assistance. Botha conceded that government agencies trying to industrialize some of the nation's tribal homelands had not been able to make much headway because of lack of money and know-how.

In the last several months, Botha has shocked many of his own conservative party members by advocating fundamental steps to eliminate economic and social discrimination against the majority black population in South Africa. His meeting with the businessmen included the small number of black, Indian and mixed-race entrepreneurs who have been successful despite working under a system that said.

His meeting with the businessmen was his first step toward implementing "economic equality" with blacks in the tribal homelands and in neighboring

In a press conference, the prime minister declined to identify the states that had expressed interest in joining a confederation. But he noted that Lesotho and Swaziland, both independent black states within South Africa, and neighboring Botswana already were members of a South African customs union.

He envisioned that an association similar to the European Common Market could be developed to include black states further north - any nation in the African subcontinent could be eligible, he

After the meeting, Sam M. Motsuenyane, who heads a black-run bank, acknowledged that the prime minister was breaking new ground by sponsoring the multi-racial conference of businessmen,

But Motsuenyane said that it was unrealistic for Botha to believe that a black-and-white common market could succeed until there is political as well as economic power-sharing for blacks in South Afri-

"Free enterprise can only survive under freedom," Motsuenyane said, adding, "I am waiting for change in deed rather than in word.'

Frederick Van Vyul Slabbert, leader of the Progressive Federal Party, the chief white opposition party to Botha's National Party, also noted that the prime minister had failed to indicate what political changes he envisages to accompany his design to improve the quality of life for blacks.

"Throughout his address, Mr. Botha spoke as if separate development (of the races) was a given and unchangeable fact of life," Slabbert said, referring to the official policy of apartheid — the segregation of South African blacks in cities and in the countryside under vastly inferior living conditions.

"The invitation to the businessmen amounts to helping the government make an economic success of its own political (racial) ideology," Slabbert

Lock out the breaker-in

By AL CARRELL

Today's column is devoted to making your home more secure against entry by a burglar. I'm not going to try to get you to install exotic electronic devices, although I really do believe in their effectiveness. I just want to urge you to increase your odds against being burgled the next time you are gone from the house. First, I want to tell you about the most common type burglar. He's the person who is considered by police as an amateur because he has no special skills at lock picking or alarm jumping. He is the guy who usually walks in through the door, and this requires no skills. Some just go along and try out doorknobs until they find one that is not locked. They first ascertain that no one is home, and then they try the

There are several reasons why this type criminal doesn't try to break in. First of all, one of his biggest enemies is time. He's under pressure and wants to be able to get in, grab the obvious goodies and get out in a matter of a very few minutes. If he has to spend much of his few minutes on gaining entry, he'll go on to an easier house. The longer he is around, the greater the chance that the homeowner will return. If he has to force entry, he's afraid the noise might raise the suspicion of the neighbors. Probably the big reason he doesn't bother with a break-in is because he knows that if he tries very many doors, he'll find one that is

The lesson here is to always lock your doors even if you'll only be gone for a few minutes. OK, so you never leave home without locking your doors. There are some locks that won't slow down even the amateur by more than a few seconds. If your entry doors have the type lock that automatically locks when you close the door, it may be easier for the burglar to open with something like a plastic credit card than for you to open it with the key. These locks have a beveled striker that is pushed back by the striker plate as the door is pulled shut. There is a spring that then pushes this strik-er into place in the hole in the plate. That same spring is all that's holding the door locked, and the striker can easily be pushed back in many

If you have this type lock, replace it or add a deadbolt type lock. This is an easy installation, and often the lock dealer will have an installation kit that will have the tools to allow the homeowner to make a perfect installation. Dealers usually loan these kits or rent them for a small fee. The deadbolt requires that a key be used to lock as well as to open or that a thumb bolt be turned to open from the inside. As long as you're buying one, get a good quality lock.

If you have installed deadbolt locks, check to see if there's a pane of glass on the door or at a nearby window that could be broken so the burglar could reach in to turn the thumb bolt. If so, you might wish to replace the glass with a pane of acrylic plastic. The breaking of one small pane of glass will make some noise, but not much. The breaking of a piece of acrylic would take many blows.

Sliding glass doors are another easy entry even when they are locked. Many crooks have merely jiggled the door until the lock let go, while others have lifted the entire door unit up and out of the track. A pipe or broom handle will stop the jiggler from being able to move the door open after the lock lets go. Properly installed sheet metal screws in the upper track will prevent the door unit from being lifted up far enough to clear the track. We mentioned breaking glass. Many windows have only the simple latch that could be reached by breaking only one pane. Some of these latches can be manipulated from outside with a knife blade because there's a space between the upper and lower sash. Your hardware dealer will have locking devices for windows, or you can make them more burglar-proof by drilling a hole through the lower sash and into the upper, and then inserting a nail into

As we stated at the outset, these tips are merely to tilt the odds in your favor against getting hit by the doorto-door burglar while you're away. There are lots of other things you should do. Make the house look occupied. Let the neighbors know you'e going to be gone.

Upgrade your security by contacting the Crime Prevention Unit of the local police department for a home survey and upgrade the chances of keeping your goodies.

Opera star sings blues

DETROIT (AP) - If singer Mignon Dunn could record a fantasy album, she says she'd like to belt out the blues on one side and sing operatic arias on the other.

The mezzo-soprano, who has been associated with the Metropolitan Opera for 20 years, says in a Southern drawl, "I just love the blues."

Miss Dunn, a Memphis native who was brought up on "an honest-to-God cotton plantation with four pillars," says her accent often perpetuates her image as "an operatic Loretta Lynn." When she's not performing in New York or on international stages during the season, Arkansas is her home and she's a firm booster of the region - "the South isn't all quilts and country music.

The singer was in Detroit recently with her husband, conductor Kurt Klippstatter, to open a new production of Tchaikovsky's "Joan of Arc" with the Michigan Opera Theater.

Long praised for her dramatic as well as her vocal skills, Miss Dunn described her role here as "the dream part of every mezzo-soprano."

Miss Dunn says the repertoire contains starring roles mainly for sopranos and much fewer for the mezzo voice. Besides having the title role. Miss Dunn also had the opportunity to portray a character on the heavenly side:

'Not many of the roles I get to do are angelic. It's mostly wicked women, the other woman or the woman who causes the trouble."

Possessing a strong acting ability can make a performance powerful and concentrated on stage, but it can also blur the role, Miss Dunn

"It's important to keep watch over yourself because if you get too involved, the voice can go in 14 different directions. It's important that your audience feels it more than you do. Otherwise, you're shortchanging the music and the audience, and that makes it an ego trip. An actor or actress can't do this and a singer can't either.'

She started singing at age 5 and performed for the Lions, Rotary Club and other community groups. After her mother took her to see the Verdi opera "Aida" when she was 10, "I thought that must be the best thing in the world.

Monthly contraceptives may avoid side effects of pill

RESEARCH TRIANGLE PARK, N.C. (AP) - Researchers are preparing for human tests of a contraceptive that would be implanted under the skin and release a steady dose high enough to prevent preg-nancy but low enough to avoid the side effects of birth-control pills.

Laboratory tests of the contraceptive, performed on rats and rabbits at the Research Triangle Institute here, were completed recently and clinical testing is expected to start within the next six months.

If the method works as well as doctors at RTI expect, it could be available to women in about five years. The contraceptive is now a once-a-month capsule, but scientists hope to develop it into a capsule to be used once a year.

"We believe it's safe to use in cliniof the RTI research project. He said initial tests will involve about 10 to 12 volunteers and will be handled by a local medical school.

Each woman will have a polyester capsule containing a month's supply of contraceptive implanted under her skin. Once all the medication is released, the capsule dissolves from contact with body fluids.

Pitt said a team led by Dr. Anton Schindler has refined the capsule to the point where "we can design something that lasts as long as we want." The capsule is known as a Palmer membrane and is made of the same substance that encloses the crystals in a common cold capsule.

The contraceptive inside diffuses into the body in "very small amounts - you wouldn't be able to see it in your hand if you collected a day's dose," Pitt said.

Researchers hope the coming trials will help determine which is the best way to implant the capsule: through a small incision, closed by surgical tape until it heals, or with a large hypodermic needle.

great advantage of the plants over current methods of chemical contraception is that they release only the dose necessary to prevent pregnancy.

The pill, on the other hand, releases a dose that peaks shortly after the pill is swallowed then drops off until the next pill is taken 24 hours later. That means the pill must contain an excess of the drug so the dose doesn't drop below the crucial level.

But having such a high level of the drug in the body increases the chances of side effects. With the implant, the amount in the bloodstream would be almost steady.

"We don't anticipate any side effects we haven't already encountered" in the pill, Pitt said. Concern over side effects centers on whether women will react negatively to the contraceptive substance. The capsule used in the clinical trials will contain progestogen, which can be used by many women, Pitt said.

In a similar project, Dr. Paul George Stumpf of Penn State University and Dr. Daniel Mishell of the University of Southern California have developed a contraceptive ring that works much like the implant but does not need to be put under the

The soft rubber ring, worn inside the vagina, also releases a continuous flow of contraceptive. But a woman could insert and remove the ring herself, and it would need to be taken out only once every three weeks for a woman to have a normal menstrual cycle.

Stumpf said the ring, which has been under development since 1971, has successfully prevented pregnancy for all women who have tested it so far. But he said it would take several more years of testing before the ring is available commercially.

Pitt said it may be possible eventually for the under-the-skin capsules to be tailor-made to meet a woman's individual needs, but he noted that this would be too expensive for most women. Mass-produced capsules, he said, will contain the optimum dosage for all women.

Researchers will record the effects of the 30-day implants on the volunteers then go back to their labs for tests of longer-acting contraceptives on such animals as dogs.

So far, the longest a capsule has remained in a smaller animal is three

After extended animals tests, scientists will perform long-term studies on humans.

Women janitors get rights; Can clean men's rooms now

BUCKSPORT, Maine (AP) - This town's major employer has been found guilty of sex discrimination because it wouldn't let six women janitors clean the men's locker room. St. Regis Paper Co. was cited earlier this week by the Maine Human Rights Commission. Male janitors are allowed to clean women's locker rooms at the sprawling paper mill along the Penobscot River.

"There'll be hell to pay in Bucksport," said St. Regis personnel director James Terrell, referring to the furor he expected the ruling to generate among male employees.

The women filed complaints against the company last April, contending the decision to bar them from the locker rooms froze them on the night shift because the men's locker room is always cleaned during the day shift. They also said the policy barred them from overtime pay because they were not allowed to work overtime to replace day-shift work-

One of the women, Flora Webster, complained that male employees were less than modest around the women janitors. "If the men at the mill are so upset with all this, why are the doors unclosed in two of the locker rooms?" she asked.

A union official representing the women at the hearing charged that male workers deliberately expose themselves to drive the women out of the mill altogether.

"That's a sad commentary on the morals of Bucksport," Terrell retorted. "You make it sound like the mill workers are a bunch of flashers." Of the 967 non-management workers at the mill, 915 are men and 52 are

Company officials told the commission that to "reasonably accommodate" the women janitors would disrupt normal activities at the plant, which produces high-grade magazine

The men's locker room is used day and night by workers showering and changing clothes after work.

St. Regis estimates it could cost $172,000 to renovate the men's locker area so that women could clean one section while the other area was in use. Company officials said they will study the ruling further before deciding whether to appeal.

Contestant wins silent victory

PORT ORANGE, Fla. (AP) - The crowd at the Silver Sands Bridle Club horse show went wild when first place was awarded to a young woman on a big Appaloosa. But the winner wasn't listening.

Josie Meyer has been deaf since birth. It wasn't until someone flashed her a victorious hand signal that she knew the blue ribbon was finally hers. For Miss Meyer, 21, it was the end of a long climb.

A 1976 graduate of the Florida School for the Deaf and Blind in St. Augustine, Miss Meyer began competing in horse shows in the Daytona Beach area two years ago. She and her mother, Billie, moved to nearby Ormond Beach from Miami five years earlier.

Josie began devoting all her spare time to her two horses. Her mother laughingly suggested that it would be simpler if Josie just moved out of the house and into the barn.

Shah's bladder surgery should be delayed: Doctor

By MARK BLOOM Special to The Washington Post

NEW YORK - The exiled shah of Iran will be able to leave the United States once doctors have removed a gallstone blocking his bile duct, but the doctor who designed the technique said the operation should not be performed before Wednesday:

Dr. M. Joachim Burhenne, of of Vancouver, B.C., said in a telephone interview it would risk failure of his "basket" technique for removing the remaining gallstone if performed before a full five weeks after the shah's surgery on his gall bladder. That five-week period ends Wednesday.

Dr. Burhenne said he had been consulted on the case by the shah's doctor at New York Hospital-Cornell Medical Center, and he estimated that there is a greater than 80 percent chance of success of removing the stone. He added that he had personally taught two doctors at the New York institution how to do the proce-

The New York Hospital doctors said a week ago there was a 50-50 chance of success, but Dr. Burhenne said that was unduly pessimistic. "They didn't ask me what the chances were," said the Vancouver radiologist who developed the technique that has become standard in gallstone surgery, in 1973. 'They should know it's 80 percent from the medical literature."

He confirmed reports here that the gallstone is lodged in the section of the bile duct inside the shah's liver a spot generally inaccessible to the surgeon's knife. The gallstones that surgeons recovered from the shah were in the section of the duct outside

The Burhenne technique was developed to avoid having to re-operate for gallstones that can't be found when they migrate from the gall bladder into the bile duct system. With the success of the Burhenne technique, surgeons now often deliberately leave stones in parts of the duct difficult or dangerous for them to reach because it is easier and safer for the Burchenne basket to do it later. This, says Dr. Burhene, was apparently the case with the shah.

The Burhenne technique involves leaving a tube in place through the skin into the bile duct, both as a drain and as a mold for a channel. It takes the full five weeks for this channel to form firmly, and trying to search for the stone sooner could cause the channel to collapse, making it hard or impossible to slide in the stone retrieval basket.

After five weeks, the drainage tube is withdrawn, and a flexible tube is inserted through the channel. Then the little wire basket is threaded through the new tube. using flouroscopy, the tube with the basket at its tip is moved through the duct to the stones. When the wire basket is pushed out through the tip of the tube, it opens slightly, grasps the stone, and it is pulled out.

Sometimes, however, the stone is in an area of the duct too narrow for the basket to be able to reach. If that happens, the New York Hospital doctors have a variation of the straight Burhenne technique they can try. It's called Pogarty balloon, named after Dr. Thomas Fogarty of Palo Alto,

If all fails, according to doctors at New York Hospital, they would have to resort to surgery, an "exceedingly grave" operation that they said could not take place for at least a month, maybe two, after trying with the Bur-

Florida controversy on over theory of evolution By DAVID POWELL

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) - Florida lawmakers soon may become embroiled in a controversy over whether public schools should be required to teach a Bible-like alternative to the theory of evolution.

Two legislators, Rep. Tom Bush, D-Fort Lauderdale, and Sen. Joe Carlucci, D-Jacksonville, have filed companion bills that would order teachers to instruct their students in the "theory of scientific -creationism" when they teach Charles Darwin's theory of Already, some legislators have objected that the measure would amount to the Legislature dictating course content to teachers. They also contend it may violate the separation of church and state mandated by the First Amendment.

Bush says his proposal is neutral and secular.

"We're not trying to teach Genesis in the schools but rather an alternative theory of creation," Bush says. "Evolution is being taught as an unquestioned fact of science and that's just not true."

Scientific creationism is generally defined in his bill as a theory holding that there was a sudden creation of the universe and life, disputing Darwin's theory that man evolved from a common ancestry with apes through a process of mutation and natural

Bush's bill would require all 67 county school districts to instruct. pupils in scientific creationism if they also offer instruction on the theory of evolution. He said schools in at least seven other states already urge or permit the instruction of scientific

"I personally believe God created the universe and the earth and I believe there's scientific evidence for that. I don't believe man has to commit intellectual suicide to come to an understanding of the universe," he

But some legislators view the proposal as a throw-back to earlier conflicts, such as the famous Scopes monkey trial in Tennessee in the mid-1920s, over whether evolution should be taught at all.

"It's fascinating that at this day and time something like this could be offered," says Rep. Bill Sadowski, D-Miami. "One of the strengths of our system is the complete divorcing of church and state. You see the other end of that spectrum in Iran right

Sadowski argues that "political people" in the Legislature have no business prescribing course content for the public schools, particularly on such a delicate subject as the origin of

"It's reminiscent of Tennessee in days gone by and the debates over evolution," says Sadowski. "Those debates are fun and can be meaningful in some times and places, but I don't think they belong on the floor of the Legislature."

Many states assisting poor pay fuel bills

The Associated Press

When heating bills go up, public pressure comes down on state legislators. So while Congress has allocated some $400 million for fuel assistance for the nation's poorest, a number of states have set up programs to help the working poor meet escalating

Earlier this month, Congress approved the Energy Crisis Assistance Program, which will provide more than a million households with $200 to $400 for this winter's fuel bills.

To be eligible for the program, family income must fall within 125 percent of federal poverty guidelines. For a family of four, that means an annual paycheck must be under $8,300 to qualify for help.

But with heating bills taking a bigger and bigger bite of the family budget, many state legislatures are under pressure to expand the aid.

"I think the thing we have to remember is the amount of funds we have is limited and we have to get it to the people who are the most in need," said Ed Freel, director of the federal program. "That is not to say there are others who are not in need.'

The Massachusetts plan provides $15 million in grants up to $200 for families living uncomfortably close to the poverty level. That means a family of four, with an annual income of $10,050, can turn to the state for help with their fuel bills.

"We basically felt that people between the 125 to 150 percent mark who are essentially in the lower middle class - were under the same problems as people on fixed incomes," said Stanley Grawle, a director of the Community Action Program in Franklin County, Mass.

Grawle said many families in his area spent last winter surviving in 50 degree temperatures because they couldn't afford fuel.

"They are usually in a desperate situation; they're not trying to rip the system off," he said.

Earlier this week, the New York State Assembly overrode a veto by Gov. Hugh Carey and passed a fuel assistance bill which provides a $35 "energy tax credit" to senior citizens and up to $200 in assistance to families living well above the poverty level. Under the New York plan, a family of four earning up to $13,400 a year would still be eligible for help.

Minnesota Gov. Al Quie is considering a special legislative session to enact an energy assistance program similar to Massachusetts'. Quie and lawmakers are arguing over the amount which would be appropriated for the program.

Ohio has provided a program over the last two years which offered credits for 25 to 30 percent of metered fuel bills for those over 65 and the disabled with incomes less than $9,000.

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) - Gun-toting vigilante Anthony Imperiale glibly says his personal heroes include actors John Wayne, Humphrey Bogart and James Cagney. But no famous names spring to his lips when asked who should play Anthony Imperiale in a film being planned by Columbia Pictures.

After a long pause, he answered. "That's a tough one - I really don't know. I don't think I'll be in it...but I do want it to tell the

The whole story will have to wrap up Imperiale the vigilante, the private detective, the 300-pound martial arts expert, the politican. Especially the politician.

Imperiale, a former Independent state assemblyman and state senator who critics had dismissed as washed up in politics, is headed back to the New Jersey statehouse after his Nov. 6

"I surprised the hell out of them by getting elected. I know that," he said. "But the people who voted for me are those everyday people getting victimized out there by violence and political corruption.

The 30th District Imperiale will represent is a racially mixed enclave of urban slums and blue collar communities.

Imperiale feuded with state Republicans during his campaign, charging they had failed to support his candidacy. But that is behind him, and Imperiale promises to bring a touch of flamboyance to the GOP.

"My intention is to get right into being part of that Republican machine." Imperiale said. "But I will still be Tony Imperiale and

Being Tony Imperiale also means being featured as a law and order community leader on CBS-TV's "60 Minutes" and becoming a consultant for Columbia on the movie about his vigilante adventures.

Standing 5-foot-7 and weighing just under 300 pounds, the 48-year-old Imperiale first gained attention as leader of a white vigilante squad that "protected" Newark's North Ward from racial unrest during the 1960s.

His previous statehouse stint was marked by impassioned calls for law and order, restoration of capital punishment and a crackdown on liberal professors in the state colleges and univer-

In a recent interview conducted while driving through the North Ward, Imperiale said he's the same man as before. Before leaving the office of his private detective agency, he stuffed a

.357-caliber Magnum, Python into his suit pants. "To my followers, I'm still a leader and not a politician," he said while driving a van owned by North Ward Citizens Commit-

The committee and others from the North Ward Citizens First Aid Squad still make nightly patrols through Newark streets "watching out" for trouble, he said.

Imperiale readily agreed that his "60 Minutes" appearance boosted his national image, brought him a movie contract and generated 5,000 pieces of mail. "They know me in Holland, Germany, Denmark, Sweden, Italy..," he said.

At the bar of his wife Kathleen's Italian restaurant, Imperiale said he has never shot anybody, but has had some close calls. He recalled the time in a delicatessen back in 1968 when he was unarmed and found himself looking into a gun barrel. As Imperiale retold it, the trigger clicked but the gun jammed, and he downed the holdup man with a martial arts kick. Imperiale said his night patrols are still needed because the police aren't doing their job. "If there was trouble, I could get 25 people here in 10 minutes," he said.

The police, of course, rankle at Imperiale's criticism and regard him as a particularly bothersome thorn in their side, but there is no action they can take against his vigilante activities. After several scotches and water. Imperiale left the bar and headed for home, a compact, two-story brick fortress surrounded by wire fence. The Imperiales have four sons and a daughter.

In a parking area behind the house are parked three of five police cars he bought at a recent auction.

"The other two are out on patrols," he said. In his den, Imperiale displayed part of his 300-piece gun collection, which includes 150 rifles lined against the wall.

These days, a penny buys you 'a whole lot of nothing'

By PRESTON TUREGANO

Copley News Service A penny - one-one-hundredth of a dollar. People used to respect the coin that helped to immortalize Abraham Lincoln. It was the backbone of a once-strong American dollar. "A penny saved is a penny earned," sages said. "A penny for your thoughts," was an economical proposition to invade one's privacy. Most everyone has met or knows someone named Penny

And even a popular song forecasts that "every time it rains, it rains pennies from heaven. Eighty years ago the penny had clout. Its buying power was the delight of any youngster. Piggy banks were well fed on pennies, a diet that was afford-

Today there are millions - perhaps billions - of pennies in circulation. One can hardly escape an encounter with a cashier without surrendering, or receiving, a few cents.

And it seems that every time you really need a penny it manages not to be on hand.

what a penny will buy now, but what was its worth at the turn of the century? You have to ask the old folks for the answer.

"We could buy a lot of nice balloons, marbles of all kinds, long sticks of peppermint candy or a yo-yo for a penny," said 87-year-old Bessie L. Phillips at a Mrs. Phillips was born and raised in Fort Worth,

Texas. Once a week she meets her friends at the center for a bingo game. The center is a place where someone's recollection of what a penny once bought is priceless and poignantly refreshing. "And if you had five cents, you were rich," Mrs. Phillips recalled. "You could buy a lot for a nickel.

And if you had a lot of pennies at the end of the week, you had to put them in the church offering plate." Anna Blake, 77, remembers that a penny bought "a lot of jelly beans."

"You could buy a pencil, a postcard, a postage stamp, an envelope, a newspaper, or a long strip of paper with little dotted candy on it for a penny," said Mrs. Blake, who grew up in Brooklyn.

"But today," she added wearily, "honey, a penny won't buy anything." What the older generation can't recall about what a penny once bought is well documented in the 1897 edition of the Sears, Roebuck and Co. catalog.

Thumbing through the catalog, you discover that a penny back then would buy a one-pound bag of drypaint, 10 paper fasteners, a blank page of sheet music, a fishhook, a spool of thread or string, a card for mounting a photo, a yard of some grades of fabric or wallpaper border.

Collectively, pennies can still buy some things, despite rampant inflation and depressing dirges from economists who fear a recession.

But alone, a penny today buys precious little. A penny will get you six minutes' parking meter time, but it may take that long to read the meter to figure out if you've gotten a one-hour or two-hour

And a penny can buy you a gumball - that is, if you can find the endangered gumball machine.

Other than parking and the gumballs, you can almost forget the penny's worth. The simplest toy now costs too much. Paper - like gasoline - is expensive, and nails and tacks are hardly cheap. Candy is sold nicely packaged now.

Most types of loose pieces of candy are at least a nickel apiece. Finer candy stores sell their sweets at 12 to 18 cents each. The sugar shortage, and subsequent higher price for the product a few years back, has made paying for confections and pastries truly unforgettable

"We just don't have anything for a penny," a department store clerk said, looking at a reporter as though he had been out of touch with society for 100

So who in the name of copper ware cares about penny power?

After all, aren't those little pieces of metal really something for coin collectors to cherish and hoard? Well, consider this, spendthrifts. The federal government recently announced that it is studying the possibility of doing away with all metal coinage and even replacing the paper $1 bill, as well as other currency, with plastic coins. The penny, financial bureaucrats say, just isn't practical anymore. Fine. It may well be that a penny will one day be worth thousands of dollars. Plastic dollars, of course.

Credit card to feel first pinch

By DONALD C. BAUDER Copley News Service

Throughout the United States, the most promiscuous entity in almost every family is the plastic credit

It now appears certain the credit card is going to receive some pretty severe discipline. If the current credit squeeze continues well into next year - and it probably will - consumers can count on several significant changes in credit card administration: There may be charges for the cards, the present grace period (30 days in many states) may be modified or eliminated, banks could be muchmore stringent in passing out the cards and putting loan limits upon them, and there could be additional service charges. And if state legislatures agree, there could be increases in the interest rate paid (now usually 18 percent a year on the first chunk of the balance say, $1,000 - and then lower on the remainder).

MIAMI (AP) - At least six crew members from a percent on the balance above $1,000. In other states, it may be 1.5 percent up to $500, and a lower rate thereafter.

However, these rates were set when corporations were paying 4 or 6 or 8 percent for their money. Now, the prime rate is headed inexorably toward 16 percent. Companies simply cannot make money on that 2 percent difference, because there are always big losses to the issuers of credit.

In interviews, economists and credit experts agreed that banks and other credit issuers will lose money at current rates, but will try to ride out the storm in hopes of a decline in rates next year. If it does not come, something will have to give. Consumer spending accounts for about two-thirds (and more) of the gross national product (GNP, or the economy's total output of goods and services). Although politicians kowtow to consumers, it is clear that a credit squeeze must extend beyond commercial, industrial and real estate lending.

Said Charles T. Russell, executive vice president of San Francisco-based Visa U.S.A., issuer of the Visa card, "At the cost of funds today, very few banks can make money off of their credit card operations. However, at today's high rates, it won't take much of a dip to put them back into the profit column." So Russell thinks the banks will try to wait it out

In the meantime, they can take several steps: "They can reduce costs by cutting risks - getting more selective in usage. They can quit promoting the

"The 30-day grace period (its length varies by states) could be modified or eliminated," said Russell. (This could mean that you would get stuck for interest no matter when you paid the balance. Normally, 20 to 30 percent of balances are paid off without lapsing into the charge period.)

Long range, "On this roller coaster we're on, it's evident that we end up each time with higher interest rates," said Russell. This means that banks, to protect their profits, probably will start going to state legislatures to get the laws changed to raise the rates, he said.

Kneeland Moore, marketing director for New York-based Interbank Card Association, which has Master Charge, cited many of the same options open to banks: "There could be a $5 or $10 a year charge, or monthly service charge. "In Kansas, the interest rate on revolving credit was just recently raised to 22 percent. It's the only state I'm aware of that has done this. "A reduction or elimination of the grace period could be another option, but the competitive factor would inhibit that," said Moore.

Home doubles as only bar, restaurant in town

STRATFORD, Calif. - Alice Gentilini's kitchen is a fully licensed bar. She cooks in the same kitchen for her husband and herself and for a half dozen to 40 guests each day.

Her modest home doubles as the only bar and restaurant in this small Central California farm center of 700

To look at Alice's place from the outside - or the inside - you would never know you could buy a drink or lunch or a sumptuous seven-course dinner. When Alice isn't tending bar or serving meals it looks like a typical old-fashioned rural home. The house was built by Alice's father, Peter Irigaray, in 1919, when Alice was 4. She has lived in the house ever since, sharing it with her parents until they died and with her husband, Ned, since they were married in

Alice and Ned Gentilini's place has been a private home doubling as a bar and restaurant for 60 years. By accident, not by design. "This was sheep country when my father built the house," explains Alice. "More than 200,000 sheep grazed on the range out here. The people who lived here then were nearly all Basques who migrated here from the Pyrenees Mountains on the Spanish-French border.

"Our house was a gathering place for sheepherders and lamb buyers."

Mother would always cook a big Basque meal for the sheepmen who stopped by. Dad would always serve them wine and whisky." At the request of the sheepmen, Alice's mother began accepting money for the meals and the drinks.

"It was Prohibition. I guess my folks were really bootleggers, but nobody in Stratford ever cared. That's why the place was never raided," continues Alice. When Prohibition ended in 1933 the Irigarays applied for and received one of the first liquor licenses in the San Joaquin Valley — for the bar in the kitchen cupboard, where it is located to this day.

Alice serves lunch and dinner every day except Sunday: steaming soup, homemade bread and pies and several courses of Basque food.

Alice's husband Ned operates the general store down the street. 'My life is different from every body else's in this small town. Everytime I go home the place is full of people. But I've gotten used to it," says Ned When Alice decides to close the place for a few days or a few weeks.

she does just that. "I really don't have to do this, you know," says Alice. People from Strat ford and surrounding farm communities hope Alice never quites cooking and serving drinks out of her kitchen. for Alice's place is more than the best place for miles around. It's the only place.

Investigation sought into Clements' use of Guard

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas AFL-CIO President Harry Hubbard has asked the Legislative Budget Board to look into the use of state police and National Guardsmen at the Republican Governors Conference held here this week.

He made the request in letters to Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and House Speaker Bill Clayton, chairman and vice chairman of the board.

Hubbard contended Department of Public Safety troopers and National Guardsmen were assigned by Gov. Bill Clements "as chauffeurs and valets" for the conference.

"I don't know why he would want to say some demagogic thing like that," responded Clements' press secretary, Jon Ford.

The labor leader, who has criticized Clements on a variety of matters in the past, called it "blatant misuse of state personnel for a purely political meeting."

Hubbard observed that an Austin bank was robbed while the conference was going on and the robber apparently escaped down highways usually patrolled by the DPS.

"I make no necessary connection, but the matter certainly is one that should be considered in connection with the misuse of DPS officers on menial assignments," he said. "If DPS officers were taken off the highways in Austin to chauffeur and carry bags of governors' aides, then Governor Clements should be called to task for a serious misuse of tax noney."

Ford said DPS troopers "certainly didn't serve as valets."

Kathy's ordeal to remain personal secret—for now

ERIE, Pa. (AP) — Kathy Gross, the first woman released from the U.S. Embassy in Tehran, arrived home for Thanksgiving to the applause and embraces of relatives and neighbors. But for the time being, her ordeal will remain a personal secret.

"It's nice to be back in America," the 22-year-old embassy secretary when her airplane landed at Erie International Airport on Thursday. "I thank the people for their concern for all of us and hope they keep praying until the rest of them are released.

"I won't say anything. I'm worried about how it may affect the others," she said. "I'll have a statement after the rest of the people are released. It's been a tough time."

Miss Gross was released Monday, along with two black men, two weeks after the embassy was seized by demonstrators seeking the return of the deposed Shah of Iran, who is in New York for cancer treatments. Eleven others were released later.

The released hostages were taken to a U.S. Air Force hospital in West

Germany and were flown to Washington on Thursday for reunions with their families and a brief welcoming ceremony by Secretary of State Cyrus

"I'm very surprised. I didn't expect to be here," said Marine Sgt. William E. Quarles as he relaxed in his mother's home in Washington. "I'm kind of tired and nervous."

Quarles said he was treated "pretty friendly and fair" by his captors, who he said were mostly students.

"The Iranians don't have anything against the American people," he said. "They are angry at the American government."

Foreign Service officer Lloyd Rollins told reporters in Alexandria, Va., "it's terrific to be home."

"I thank all you people for the support you gave us," he said. "And we're going to get the rest of them home, too."

Residents of Cambridge Springs, Pa., planned a gala welcome today for Miss Gross.

"They're going to have a big banner outside town and a motorcade and we're going to a local college for an assembly in the evening. We're all meeting there and having a big celebration," said Dan Gross, Miss Gross' brother.

Miss Gross' father, Robert, said the family was overwhelmed with emotion when Kathy descend the steps of an airplanz at Andrews Air Force Base outside Washington.

"We cried. For two weeks we didn't know whether she was coming or going. It's Thanksgiving. It's great,"

Contest man says it's all Americana

GERMANIA, N.J. (AP) — Vince Luciani is a soft-spoken man, a 52-year-old father of three, and a serious engineer involved in developing sophisticated aviation electronic systems at a federal test base near Atlantic City.

But at night, Luciani becomes Contest Man, bent on culling newspapers and travel brochures for the oddest, most interesting and just plain craziest competitions he can find.

"They're something unusual; they're not everyday," Luciani says. "And then it's all Americana." Luciani's interest lies in such diversions as the annual Chicken Flying Contest in Ohio, the National Hollerin' Contest in North Carolina, the Cow Chip Throwing Contest in Oklahoma and the one-time Bridge Blowup Contest in West Virginia.

Luciani is so thrilled about the thrill of unusual victory that he has published his own 96-page book, "Guide to Unusual Contests in America," listing 170 such oddities throughout the country.

"I have two favorite contests," Luciani confides.
"The Cow Chip Tossing Contest in Beaver, Okla., is the one that turned me on to this whole thing. They even have a division for professional politicians.

"The other one I like is the one bridge-blowing contest in Charleston, W.Va., in which the Charleston Daily Mail had a contest to see who would push the button to blow up the Kanawha City Bridge in 1975," Luciani said.

"Of course, they don't have that every year," he added sadly.

His book also lists such competitions as the Beer Belly Contest in Chicago, the Varmint Calling Contest in Arizona and the Earthworm Cooking Contest in California.

Luciani, now a student of such matters, says unusual contests always celebrate local folklore or a local industry.

He says the oldest contest appears to be the Jumping Frog Jubilee in Calaveras County, Calif., made famous by Mark Twain's short story. Each May, frog jockeys come to the county fair to kick, stomp and yell to make their amphibians jump for the 1966 record of more than 19 feet.

"As a contest, it's nothing extraordinary," Luciani says. "It's more of a tribute to Mark Twain." When it comes to whacked-out contests, Luciani says California, Louisiana, Texas and Florida take the prizes.

"They have more of them and they are more original, and they have more regular contests, too," Luciani says. "They seem to have an enthusiasm in everything they do."

Like many of the contests he's listed, Luciani's book is strictly home-grown and small-time. He had 1,000 copies printed locally and his friends and family helped put the pages in order.

His goal is to put out a second edition next year with more detail, better photographs and twice as many contests. Another goal is to start visiting the contests he has written about.

"I went down to the National Hollerin' Contest last year in Spivey's Corner, N.C.," he said, "People were out there in the pouring rain and just hollerin' like crazy. There's a basic enthusiasm there. It was really something."

Marshals to attend Jerry Lee Lewis country music bash

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — U.S. marshals, armed with a writ of attachment against Jerry Lee Lewis, will be among the concert-goers at a weekend country music bash headlined by the flamboyant entertainer

The marshals have been ordered to seize "all monies held by or on behalf" of Lewis and to take all the singer's jewelry, musical equipment and motor vehicles to satisfy a $100,000 court judgment against him. Judge Robert McRae of U.S. District Court issued the writ of attachment Wednesday.

Norman "Butch" Owens of Clarkston, Ga., a former bass guitarist in Lewis' band, and his wife sued Lewis and his wife, Jaren Lewis, in September 1977 over a shooting incident.

Owens said he was wounded in September 1976 while visiting the Lewis' suburban Collierville, Tenn., home when Lewis pulled a pistol and shot at a bottle.

This summer, McRae entered a default judgment against Lewis after he repeatedly refused to give a deposition in the case, and on Sept. 11 the judge assessed $100,000 in damages against Lewis.

A federal jury in September also awarded Owens $75,000 in damages against Mrs. Lewis.

Lewis is to headline a Memphis Country Jubilee at

The attachment order says marshals can seize the property before or after Lewis' scheduled performance

the Orpheum Saturday night.

Neither Lewis nor his attorney, Joseph Willcox, were available for comment.

Authorities said Thursday they charged a paraplegic guest at the party, Albert Stewart, 23, with murder after he allegedly fled the scene in his motorized wheelchair.

Witnesses reported that Stewart and Kelvin Adams were attending a party on the South Side early Thursday when Stewart interrupted a conversation Adams was having. The witnesses said Adams asked 'What?'' and Stewart became enraged, saying: "Don't say 'what' to Police said Stewart then pulled a gun from underneath his paralyzed legs, shot Adams once in the neck and forced another guest to assist him down the stairs from the secondfloor apartment. Adams died several hours later in a hospital.

Stewart, who lost the use of his legs when he was shot a year and a half ago, was arrested later in his own apartment, authorities said.

It would be a real grabber. The team would lose its quarterback to injuries and start the season with a raw rookie calling signals. The club would be 1-11, taking an eight-game losing streak into a nationally tele-vised Thanksgiving Day game against the rough, tough Chicago Bears, who would be riding a fourgame winning string and talking about the playoffs.

The rest is elementary. In the Big Game, with the whole nation glued to its television sets, the quarterback a blojd matineel — and the fun-loving defensive end - who wears an earring in one ear off the field - lead the team to a 20-0 victory and everyone agrees it's the best Thanksgiving

And listen. The Lions could go into production immediately because they rehearsed the whole show Thursday and pulled it off with a letter-perfect dress rehearsal. They played it before

Case in point: A stupid fourth quarter five-yard penalty for having 12 men on the field that gave the Oilers new life - and the touchdown that brought them the victory Dallas needed so badly.

"The 12 man on the field penalty was a critical one for us," said an apparently shaken Tom Landry. 'There was some confusion on whether it was a punt or field goal call and one of the field goal players (David Stalls) didn't get off.

That is not the stuff Super Bowl champions are made of, much less conference kingpins. Yet Landry thought the Cowboys played well - in comparison to their recent nightmares with Philadelphia and Wash-

'This was our best game out of the last four," said Landry. "Things seem to happen to you when you are down and right now we are making mistakes and it costs you.'

Indeed. But once more, Landry waxed optimistically, "We still have three games left against our Eastern Division opponents and we have a chance to win them and get into the playoffs. If we can't, we should stay home." he said.

It was a game of Dallas' Roger Staubach versus Houston's Earl

Campbell. Campbell dashed for touchdowns on runs of 61 and 27 yards and finished the day with 195 yards on 33 carries.

Staubach completed touchdown passes of 56 yards to Drew Pearson and 21 yards to Robert Newhouse and had statistics of 21 of 30 for 287

Dallas built a 21-17 halftime lead before young Mike Renfro, who was a Cowboy waterboy when his father served as an assistant coach in the 1960s, shagged a 47-yard touchdown pass from Pastorini Rafael Septien's 44-yard field goal set the stage for the fourth quarter faux pas by the Cowboys and the game-winning touchdown pass by

Pastorini. It was the first time Houston had beaten Dallas in the regular season in three tries, and gave them five victories in a row for the first time since

"Right now we are on the bottom," Landry said. "You have to come off of it if you want to win. If we play with this same intensity the rest of the way, we will be in the playoffs."

Midland cagers in action as season really heats up

The Tall City Invitational Basketball Tournament began a two-day run today at the Chaparral Center with eight teams gunning for the title.

In today's feature games, Midland Lee is to make its 1979 home debut against El Paso Austin at 7:30 p.m. while the undefeated Midland High Bulldogs are scheduled to take on district favorite Amarillo High at 9 p.m. in the last game of today's first round.

Action continues Saturday, beginning at 9 a.m. The championship bout is set for a 9 p.m.

Two other games are on tap today. The Midland High girls will face El Paso at 6 p.m. in the MHS gym while the Midland Lee girls will square off against El Paso Yselta at 8 p.m. in the second game of the doubleheader. The Lee girls will face El Paso Bel Air at 11 a.m. Saturday at the Lee gym.

Bears face Texas with bowl in hand

By DENNE H. FREEMAN AP Sports Writer

The Baylor Bears, with bowl bid firmly in hand, now try to account something they haven't done in 28 years - beat the University of Texas

"Beating an outstanding team on the road was one of our goals when the season started" said Baylor Coach Grant Teaff. The Bears are 11-point underdogs for Saturday's meeting with the Longhorns, who are tied atop the Southwest Conference standings with Arkansas and Houston. "I'm not even thinking about going to the Peach Bowl right now, the only thing on my mind is beating the Longhorns," said linebacker Doak "I look forward to this game each year as much as any. We beat them son of the Atlantic Coast Conference. Arkansas, Texas and Houston all have only one loss in SWC play, and if all win their remaining games, Arkansas will go to the Cotton Bowl against the Big Eight runnerup since the Longhorns and Cougars have been to the Jan. 1 classic in Dallas since the Razorbacks. Texas would go to the Sugar Bowl against the Southeastern Conference champion and Houston would go to the Sun Bowl against Washington, provided Washington doesn't go to the Rose Bowl. In this Saturday's action, Arkansas plays Southern Methodist Saturday night in Little Rock, Texas hosts Baylor and Texas Christian hosts Texas

Houston played host to Texas Tech in a nationally televised game today EITHER TEXAS or Arkansas will be in the Sugar Bowl depending on how the cards fall in the SWC. But if Arkansas stumbles to SMU, Texas would have the edge on the Cotton Bowl host berth, since the Longhorns beat Houston, the team with which it would tie for the conference title.

Even if Arkansas beats SMU, the Razorbacks' Cotton Bowl hopes still depend upon Texas' not losing again. A Texas loss to either Baylor or Texas A&M in its final two SWC matches would leave Arkansas and Houston tied for the title, and in a two-way tie Houston would go to the Cotton Bowl since the Cougars beat Arkansas this season. Should Houston end up in the Cotton Bowl, the Sun Bowl has said it would invite Texas or Arkansas, whichever one doesn't go to the Sugar Bowl. "Since we have a bowl invitation, the tendency might be to slack up against the Longhorns," said Baylor running back Walter Abercrombie. "I think Texas has one of the best defensive teams in the nation. It's going to be a real challenge to play against them."

TEAFF SAID Baylor slipped up on the Longhorns last year and that won't be the case again.

"Last year Texas couldn't have taken Baylor serious," said Teaff. "I know this year they'll look at us with different eyes. We were lucky last year and they knew it. It's a different situation for both teams this year." Houston was a 17-point favorite over Texas Tech in today's nationally televised game from the Astrodome

Sooners, Huskers prepare for 'classic' football shootout

By KEN RAPPOPORT AP Sports Writer

Oklahoma and Nebraska are clearly the Big Two in the Big Eight. Since the World War II, those two college football superpowers have won or shared the conference championship 32 times.

And Saturday, one of them will make it 33. "The game will be a great one, probably a classic," says Oklahoma halfback David Overstreet as the Sooners prepare to meet the Cornhuskers in Oklahoma once more for the Big Eight championship. "The teams are pretty evenly matched, and at the end the one that makes the fewest mistakes will be victorious. I am very confident that we will be that team." The winner will get a trip to the Orange Bowl to meet No. 5 Florida State. The loser won't do too badly, either, gaining a spot in the Cotton Bowl against the Southwest Conference champion.

The Sooners, who have lost only to Texas in 10 games thus far and are ranked No. 8 nationally, have won 17 Big Eight titles outright and shared six others. Nebraska, 10-0 heading into this big showdown and ranked No. 3, has been undisputed conference champions six times and shared it on three other occasions.

"If the defense plays to its potential, I don't think we will have any problems," says Oklahoma tackle Keith Gary. "But the offense will have to move the ball well to insure a victory for us. It all comes down to a defensive struggle in the end, though, because both teams have excellent offensive units and it will be up to the defenses to contain their opponents." Halfback Billy Sims, last year's Heisman Trophy winner, is the big gun for Oklahoma, while Jarvis Redwine is Nebraska's star in two of the nation's most awesome running attacks.

In another traditional and meaningful game Saturday, fourth-ranked Southern Cal will play UCLA in the Los Angeles Coliseum. If the Trojans win as expected, they will make another of their perennial trips to the Rose Bowl, where they'll meet Ohio State. The Trojans are led by one of the nation's classiest tailbacks, Charles White, and quarterback Paul the four teams still in contention for the SWC title will be in action this weekend. Sixth-ranked Texas will host No. 17 Baylor and No. 7 Arkansas will meet SMU in a night game Saturday.

Elsewhere, 10th-ranked Brigham Young plays San Diego State for the Western Athletic Conference title and a berth in the Holiday Bowl Dec. 21

The Cougars are led by passing sensation Marc Wilson, who can close out his spectacular season with a 10th straight 300-yard passing day.
"We have to get pressure on Wilson or he's going to eat you alive," said San Diego State Coach Claude Gilbert.

Wilson, who already holds or shares seven NCAA records, has thrown for 25 touchdown passes and a remarkable 3,442 yards. By comparison, Dan Fouts of the San Diego Chargers - pro football's passingest team team - has 2,911 yards in 12 games. Clemson, the nation's 13th-ranked team, plays No. 19 South Carolina and No. 18 Tulane takes on LSU in other games Saturday involving the nation's Top Twenty teams. In another game today, Florida State plays arch-rival Florida. Among other games Saturday between long-standing rivals: Georgia-

Chaps trip Trinidad to remain unbeaten

AMARILLO - The Midland College Chaparrals ran their unbeaten record to 4-0 here Thursday in the first round of the Amarillo College Classic basketball tournament with an 88-83 victory over Trinidad (Colo.) Junior College.

The Chaps now move into today's winner's bracket at 6 p.m. against Allen County (Kan.) Community College. The tournament runs through Saturday.

Kenneth "Big Time" Young, Chucky McGill and Robert Tate, all veteran sophomores, each connected for 16 points in the victory. Bannister of Trinidad led all scorers with 23 points while teammate Rivers added 17 markers. Nicholson had 16 in the losing cause

Midland College jumped to an early 15-6 lead and never trailed after that even though Trinidad cut the margin to two points midway through the second half. However, the Chaps used a sterling press late in the game to keep the rally from proving fatal. The Chaps led 49-40 at the half.

Midland College had a narrow 44-42 edge in the rebound department.

Bucs are in festive mood TAMPA, Fla. (AP) - The Detroit Lions' 20-0 Thanksgiving Day upset of the Chicago Bears has set the stage for a festive Sunday in Tampa.

The Tampa Bay Buccaneers can wrap up a playoff appearance and their first NFC Central Division title by defeating the Minnesota Vikings

The 9-3 Bucs are now 21/2 games ahead of second-place Chicago, which dropped to 7-6 with the Detroit loss. The Bears' loss to a fellow Central Division team immediately reduced from three games to one the Bucs' 'magic number" for clinching the title, because of the importance of intradivisional records in the National Football League's tie-breaking formula

The first tie-breaker is head-tohead competition. The Bucs beat the Bears earlier, so all the Bears can do is tie the series 1-1 with a win Dec. 2 at

Central Division, with two division games left: against Minnesota and

The second tie-breaker is records within the division. Right now, the Bucs are 6-0 in the Chicago. So the worst they could finish in the division is 6-2. The Bears are 3-3 in the division and the best they could do is 5-3. So the Bucs would win a tie between the two

By beating Minnesota in Tampa Sunday the Bucs would clinch the title, because a victory would mean the worst they can finish is 10-6, which

'hy is football crusade?

By JOE DOYLE South Bend Tribune

TOKYO - "Why is college football such, how do you say it, such a cru-sade and not just fun?" asked a writer friend, Yoichi (just call me Yo) Furu-

From the detached viewpoint of a Japanese writer, that's the way the sport looks. And in a year when college football has been plagued by such things as the Arizona State controversies, Yo looks right.

IT ALSO may be why the Japanese hosts not only have invited 60 players each from Notre Dame and Miami, but also the 200 bandsmen from the competing schools. The football teams will perform, the Japanese will politely clap or cheer the good plays, and perhaps laugh at the fumbles or mistakes. But they won't boo, says

Notre Dame fans in particular are awed by such a thought. To them, football has become sort of a crusade. If the team should lose its final game of 1979 and finish with a record of 6-5, the followers will be in shock.

They'll wring their hands, write letters, telephone other friends and wail in wonderment, "What has happened to our team?" They'll suggest the Irish need a new coach,

To a lesser extent, perhaps, the supporters of Coach Howard Schnellenberger's Miami team will be much the same, There is obviously not such a hard core of rooters that automatically call for the scalp of the coach, but there are a few who do not like the losing ways of "our team."

BY CONTRAST, the bands, hard at work for such things as a television appearance that started at five minutes, was cut to 21/2 and then just as strangely back to five, are having

No one will care - except the band directors and those with personal pride — if there is a missed note along the way.

But of football, Duffy Daugherty of Michigan State once said, "It isn't a matter of life or death, it's more important than that." Duffy was joking, but sometimes on the college football scene, others don't think it's funny

This serious approach in an entertainment sport makes you wonder if the game ever can become fun. Coaches get fired for losing or for not playing the game according to the rules. And all too often, the rule calls for winning or else.

WHILE NOTRE DAME and Miami are going about their paces trying to get ready for Sunday's game (it starts at 10:30 p.m. CST Saturday), Oregon State and UCLA officials are getting ready for next year. They signed a contract for the appearance in 1980 in what will be a Pacific-10 conference game.

If either should be high up in the conference race, it might mean that the Rose Bowl entrant could be decided on foreign soil. Athletic Director Dee Andros is here to sign for Oregon State.

One of the things that ex-Coach Andros and the UCLA people are seeing is a real football oddity - two college teams sharing the same hotel, adjacent dining areas and practice fields before a game. And while it might not be in the usual tradition of considering the other team the enemy, it might be great for the

FOR SOME the idea that college students, players and bands should be bitter rivals is overdone. In this case, there appears to be many lasting friendships started. Hopefully, it will remain that after the game.

The game, at first approached negatively by Miami when it was first proposed in 1977, now appears to be a financial windfall for a football program that went over its budget by almost $500,000 a year ago. The $200,-000 payment surely will help and it's no secret that Miami's football program is making progress.

Schnellenberger, who has been exposed to both the pro and college games since graduating from Alabama, wonders if his team hasn't set some sort of a record. When the Hurricane gets home to Miami for its final home game on Dec. 1, they will have traveled 28,000 miles this sea-

Travel surely is broadening the view of one college program. And it could be fun, and more so if Miami

UCLA worries USC's Robinson

LOS ANGELES (AP) - John Robinson is worried, but he's looking forward to the game. Terry Donahue finds the opponent "scary," but he is also excited

"UCLA has played some very good games when they were 'up' this season," Southern Cal Coach Robinson said as his fourth-ranked Trojans prepared to take on Donahue's UCLA Bruins in the Coliseum Saturday.

"The type of team that's up and down can be very, very dangerous," Robinson continued. "I just hope they're down for us. Whatever, I know it's going to be a good game. This is a big game, the type we love to play.'

"My first impression of USC is, in one word, scary," said Donahue. "Offensively, there hasn't been a team that has stopped them yet. But it's a great rivalry and should be a great game." The cross-town adversaries, who'll be meeting on the football field for the 49th time, with USC holding a 28-14-6 edge, can approach the game with slightly different attitudes. The Trojans, 9-0-1 overall and 5-0-1 in the Pacific-10, have a great deal riding on the outcome. They must beat UCLA if they're to win the Pac-10 championship and go to the Rose Bowl. UCLA, on the other hand, is 3-3 in league play and 5-5 overall and has nothing

Earlier, the game had appeared to be for pride only, since Southern Cal's Nov. 10 victory over Washington seemed to give the Trojans the conference title and the Rose Bowl berth. But a Pac-10 ruling last week forfeited Arizona

State's victories and kept Washington alive in the title chase with a revised 6-1 league mark. The Huskies will thus be conference champions and Pac-10 Rose Bowl representatives if Southern Cal loses to UCLA. We can't allow ourselves to dwell on the ruling, or use it as an excuse for something going wrong," Robinson said. "This team has had a lot of challenges to face, and this is just one more."

Dawkins refuses to pay ejection fine

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Center Darryl Dawkins of the Philadelphia 76ers says he will refuse to pay a fine levied on him because he was ejected from a National Basketball Association game with Houston.

"I'm going to write the commissioner and call my attorney about this," Dawkins said of his ejection by referee Darrell Garretson on Wednesday Dawkins, who had just been called for traveling, was ejected with about five minutes to play when he "made an obscene gesture," Garretson

"I was adjusting my athletic supporter," Dawkins insisted. "He thought I was telling him where to get

The center was also called by referee Terry Durham for a rare hangingon-the-rim technical foul earlier in

"Ever since I broke that backboard, the refs have been watching me around the rim to see if I hang on it," Dawkins said. "Anything close, anything that looks like hanging, and they call it."

BYU's Wilson is marked man

Wilson, who can close out his incredible 1979 season don't think we could have anyone better to handle the with a 10th straight 300-yard passing day, is a marked man in Saturday's nationally-televised Western Athletic Conference showdown. "We have to get pressure on Wilson or he's going to eat you alive," said San Diego State Coach Claude Gilbert, whose 8-2 Aztecs tackle 10-0 and 10th-ranked Brigham Young. At stake is a trip to the Holiday Bowl Dec. 21 in San Diego. A near-capacity crowd of 52,000 is expected for the WAC shootout between two wide-open clubs. Averaging 516 yards per game, BYU is bidding for its first unbeaten season in the school's history and a repeat appearance in the Holiday Bowl. The Cougars dropped a 23-16 decision to Navy in last year's bowl

Wilson, who already holds or shares seven NCAA records, has thrown for 25 touchdown passes and a remarkable 3,442 yards. By comparison, Dan Fouts of the San Diego Chargers - pro football's passingest team in years — has 2,911 yards in 12 games. Earlier this year, Fouts set an NFL record by passing for 300 yards in four straight games.

Wilson, who is completing 58 percent of his throws, set an NCAA passing record with 571 yards against rival Utah in 1977.

"Marc seems to be getting better each week,"

SAN DIEGO (AP) - Passing sensation Marc according to Cougar Coach Lavell Edwards. "And I pressure.

Despite a 37-7 loss at Colorado State, the Aztecs' lone league setback in six games, they can claim the Holiday Bowl berth by beating BYU. Gilbert voiced equal respect for Wilson and the Cougars' defense. 'We haven't scored a touchdown against them in the last two games," noted Gilbert.

But Gilbert engineered a surprising rebound effort. The season opened with a 45-15 loss at Missouri, although the Aztecs led in the second half before collapsing in the fourth quarter. Shaking off the rout. San Diego State won eight of its next nine games to stay in title contention. The Aztecs have won 20 of their last 21 home games, losing only to BYU 8-0 two years ago. It stands as the only time the Aztecs have been shut out in 97

'When you look at San Diego State's home record," said Edwards, "you know why BYU won't have time to think about anything but Saturday's game. We know we are facing a very, very good team. But they are a team we are ready to play. Their balanced attack makes them real tough to plan an furnish that money quickly and easily. It's as simple as a phone call. Make the arrangements on the phone and sign the papers when you ome in to pick up the money. It's that easy. Give us a call.

Warmed-over stuffing. Psuedo purists who berate players who spike the ball after scoring a touchdown, calling it "bush." Baloney. Despite all the money involved, football is still a little boy's game. Let them be little boys. While we think of it, baloney.

THE STARCHY baseball rule, if it actually exists, denying first ball honors at World Series games to "politicians and show personalities. # Pro Picker likes Cards

By HAL BOCK AP Sports Writer

You have to give Cincinnati and St. Louis credit. Week after week, they get beat and still show up for the next game. It's something like your friendly Pro Picker.

This week the Cardinals and Bengals get a break from the schedulemaker. Instead of facing powerhouses, they go against each other. The AFC vs. NFC formula says Cincinnati but the Picker, who loves underdogs, occasionally, will take a chance on the Cardinals.

Last week's 9-5 was followed by an 0-2 on Thanksgiving Day. That made the season's log 104-64 for .619. The Picks:

ST. LOUIS 31, CINCINNATI 13: A picnic for Ottis Anderson against Bengals' porous defense.

NEW ENGLAND 33, BUFFALO 17: Enough of this up and down stuff for the Patriots. The time has come for them to assert themselves. PITTSBURGH 27, CLEVELAND

10: No last minute heroics this week for Brian Sipe and Co. They won't be close enough at the end. SAN DIEGO 23, KANSAS CITY 14:

Charger defense is improving every week and after the Steeler romp, this team is sky high.

MIAMI 20, BALTIMORE 10: Yes, on the road and yes, with Don Strock at quarterback instead of benched

Bob Griese. DENVER 24, OAKLAND 10: Breathe in. Now exhale. That thin air is great, isn't it? The Broncos sure think so. LOS ANGELES 30, SAN FRANCIS-CO 17: Rams beat the 49ers when their northern neighbors were good.

Now they're not so good. TAMPA BAY 24, MINNESOTA 7: Bucs smell title now and the Vikings won't interfere. NEW ORLEANS 31, ATLANTA 10: Payback time for the Saints who have lost some toughies to the Falcons the last two years.

PHILADELPHIA 16, GREEN BAY 7: The key question is whether kicker Tony Franklin's bare foot will survive the Wisconsin deep freeze.

WASHINGTON 20, N.Y. GIANTS 14: This one's too important for the Redskins to let get away.

SEATTLE 31, N.Y. JETS 13 (Monday night): Wait'll Jim Zorn gets a look at that New York secondary.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - If actress Tovah Feldshuh had come along a few years earlier you probably would know her by another name. Evelyn something.

But she arrived in a time when performers are keeping their own names, unusual though they may be and difficult to pronounce. Just say To-vuh Felt-shoe.

She was first asked if she wanted to change her name when she arrived at the Tyrone Guthrie Theater in Minneapolis. "I couldn't think of anything better so I kept it," she said. "It's

Yes. But ABC has made a dramatic encroachment on what has traditionally been NBC territory, improving its morning ratings in October by 26 percent over last year, while "Today" has gone down by 11 percent.

"Good Morning America" epitomizes the trend in communications of the last five years toward softer, personality news; and to some extent, host David Hartman, the actor, personifies the soft-news newsman. While "Today" has made changes in that direction in the last year, the NBC show

NBC, for example, has changed Brokaw's title from "host" to "correspondent" and has had him reading the news himself for several weeks

NBC's prime time entertainment lineup is hurting ABC this season, and

'Lobo" is actually ruining ABC's Tuesday night, which has been ABC's fortress. If "Lobo" keeps it up, the show could become the cornerstone of Miss Feldshuh stars as Monika Wolner (speaking of names) in the NBC miniseries "Beggarman, Thief." The two-part, fourhour movie airs Monday and Tuesday nights.

It's based on Irwin Shaw's novel that is a sequel to "Rich Man, Poor Man." That first book also ws made into a miniseries, which ran for 12 hours on ABC nearly three years ago and set off the whole miniseries cycle.

It was also followed the next year by "Rich Man, Poor Man, Book II," which was another version of the further life of the Jordache family. Shaw had written an outline for that series, but was ignored by Universal and ABC. So he turned that outline into "Beggarman, Thief," which Universal then produced for NBC. Life can be as complicated as a miniseries.

"Beggarman, Thief" also stars Glenn Ford, Jean Simmons, Lynn Redgrave, Andrew Stevens, Tom Nolan, Susan Strasberg and Jean Pierre Aumont. It was not available for pre-review.

Iranian bank denies it defaulted on loan

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) - The Central Bank of Iran today denied reports it had defaulted on the repayment of a $500 million loan and denounced Chase Manhattan Bank, the lead bank involved in making the loan.

A statement by the bank, reported by the official Pars News Agency, charged Chase Manhattan Bank "playing a dangerous game in telling lies and spreading deceitful rumors within the international banking system.

It was reported earlier in the week that Chase had decided to declare a default on the loan after the Central Bank failed to make a payment due Nov. 15, the day after President Carter froze Iranian assets. The Central Bank claimed it ordered Chase to transfer funds from one of its accounts to pay the interest, but was prevented from doing

In New York, a spokesman for Chase Manhattan Bank refused to comment on the Iranian statement.

The complete Central Bank statement, as reported by

"We have been informed that the Chase Manhattan Bank, the agent bank for a syndicated loan of $500 million, has polled the participating banks, asking their views on the supposed Iranian failure to make a regular six-monthly interest payment of about $4 million.

"The decision was taken to declare default and pressure Iran for accelerated payments, which effectively calls in the loan.

"We would like to make it quite clear tht the Central Bank of Iran has effectively paid the due interest, well in advance, and that the Chase Manhattan Bank is playing a dangerous game in telling lies and spreading deceitful rumors within the international banking system.

Iran's foreign minister was quoted today as saying Iran was planning to totally change the nation's banking system.

Group repulses Pakistani attacks

The Los Angeles Times

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan - A small group of Pakistanis, led by a 62-year-old retired army colonel, successfully repulsed an 75 American children hid inside in terror.

The attack came Wednesday afternoon, apparently part of the frenzied reaction throughout Pakistan to rumors that Americans had either participated in or instigated the invasion of the Grand Mosque in Mecca, Saudi Arabia, Islam's most sacred shrine.

Seventeen-year-old Devin Haggerty, son of the U.S. Embassy's political counselor Herbert Haggerty, said the attack took place about 4:30 p.m., as his father and 90 others were trapped by another mob at the embassy itself.

Regular school buses had been canceled and the children kept in the school past the regular closing time of 3 p.m. as a security measure. While many parents of the estimated 200 non-American students had picked up their children in less conspicuous private cars, a group of about 70, mostly Americans, ranging in age from eight to 17, remained behind.

With many of their parents trapped in the burning embassy just visible from the school located about five miles away, officials from other embassies worked frantically to arrange car pools to take the children home with a minimum of danger.

"We had just gone into the quadrangle where all the lockers were to get our things when I heard some girls scream, 'They're here! They're here!

The students fled screaming first to the school gymnasium, where teachers yelled for them to lie down. Moments later, a retreat to a sound-proofed music room was carried out. Some other students hid in a boy's changing room and the school

"The younger ones were crying and the older students tried to comfort them," Haggerty said. "I had one sixth grader in my lap and another hanging onto me.' Outside, however, 62-year-old Ishmail Khan, one-time military attache at the Pakistan Embassy in Washington, launched a counterattack "I was about to leave the school with my son who attends the school and a number of little tots when I saw 10 to 15 teen-agers running toward me carrying crowbars and lead pipes," Khan said. "I grabbed at a number of them and started shouting." Acting school superintendent William Hamidullah then joined Khan by taking on another band of youths trying to enter the school from another point. "There were only the two of us," said Hamidullah, who is only acting superintendent because the school's permanent administrative head is a hostage in the Tehran embassy. "There was a lot of grabbing, shouting and

Khan said that as he disarmed one youth, a number of others ran past him and began breaking windows and pounding on the locked door of the gymnasium.

Inside, older students and teachers tried to calm terror-stricken youngsters. "There was about a 15-minute period when we didn't know what was going to happen next," Haggerty

With Khan's 15-year-old son, Murad, protecting him from behind, the elderly man continued to take on the youths. Soon a Pakistani employee at the school came to Khan's assistance and also began attacking the invaders, who by this time had entered the school cafeteria The ferocity of their attack, coupled with yelling by Khan's son that police were coming, apparently frightened the youths into retreat, and within a few minutes they had left the grounds.

Khan then hastily gathered together the rest of the local Pakistani employees at the school, armed them with baseball bats and posted them around the school until army troops In the confused hours following the nationwide anti-American rampage, Khan's actions went largely unnoticed. And as dependents prepared for evacuation only hours away, few who learned of the incident had time to determine who had defended

"I've heard what happened but I don't know who it was," said one American parent, Mrs. Patricia Lassard. Despite the odds, Khan said he escaped without injuries. "I think they got confused and a little frightened by what we did," he said. "If I had had another four or five people with me, we'd have given them hell.' Khan said the youths eventually drove off in a bus led by a

Shortly afterward, the children were taken from the school in private cars and spent the night in groups at the homes of embassy staff members in Islamabad. Embassy officials were especially angered by the attack on the

"We had been assured it was being well-protected," embassy official said. "It could have been a disaster."

Carter 'too late' to solve housing industry's ills

By DONALD C. BAUDER Copley News Service

Don't look now, but President Carter - that very paradigm of piety and probity — is taking the cure at a detoxification center. Note that this is President Carter - not his brother, Billy Carter. In fairness, it must be noted that President Jimmy's overindulgence problem exists only in the figurative sense. It's the economy's problem, really - but since he has been the chief executive while the problem has been building, it is his responsibility to do something about it. The problem is curing the housing hangover - and as usual, the Carter administration is too little too

Also as usual, the Carter administration is trying to solve the problem with sanctimonious rhetoric. But in this case, even Mr. Carter's most severe critics - including this columnist - are not suggesting that the problem requires cold-turkey treat-

We must gently but surely let the gas out of the nation's speculative housing bubble without pushing consumers, banks and savings and loans associations to the edge of financial perdition.

In recent days, the Carter White House has been huddling with key administration officials, exploring ways to stimulate home building, even though current statistical evidence does not yet suggest that housing starts are down very much from last year's

Late in October, the Federal Home Loan Bank Board (FHLBB) voted to reduce the liquidity requirement for savings and loan associations - thereby freeing more credit to be used for housing.

In defending these actions, the government, not surprisingly, assumes the altruistic stance: We must continue to provide credit to housing so that poor people can get shelter and construction workers can

It's far more complicated than that, of course. Actually, what the government is worried about is a speculative bubble in housing that is starkly similar to the stock market bubble of 1929. It is a debt overhang which can become a hang-

Consider today's scenario: Young people — realizing that housing investments have been just about the only way to beat inflation in the last 20 years -

decide they must get their foot in that home equity

With help from their parents or other relatives for half or more of the down payment - they buy a grossly overpriced home (perhaps a converted condominium) for upward of $80,000, locking themselves into a $700 or $800 or more monthly mortgage payment which requires that both work.

Worse, to get money for daily existence, our couple may take out a home equity loan - cashing in on the rising market value of the home.

But we are in a recession. Unemployment is beginning to mount. But if the two young people keep their jobs, there is the possibility of pregnancy.

Typical of speculative bubbles, the housing edifice is a case of high-risk contingency heaped upon high-risk contingency. When the bubble is pricked -unemployment mounts, home prices begin to fall - the whole house of sticks can collapse in a

Indeed, during the U.S. inflationary boom of 1975-1978, the home price escalation phenomenon represented the glue holding the structure together.

Economist Alan Greenspan, who once served as President Ford's chief economics adviser, has cited the translation of home equity into funds available for consumption as a key reason behind the 1975-1978

Over the period, home values were soaring by more than $150 billion annually. Even without taking out a home equity loan, consumers got psychological comfort from this artificial market value. Economists call it the "wealth effect."

New York's Morgan Guaranty Bank estimates that home equity now accounts for as much as 18 percent of households' net worth, up from less than 13 percent in the 1960s. The value of homeowner equity is today about 150 percent of the market value of households' holdings of common stocks. In the 1960s, it was less than 50 percent.

It is little wonder, then, that President Carter is assuring the housing industry, and its labor force, that the nation will not have a rerun of 1974-1975, when housing utterly collapsed. Encouragingly, it appears that there is ongoing cooperation and unity of purpose among the federal agencies and the banking regulators involved. After all, a housing collapse would put banks and savings and loans and the financial paper they issue, such as certificates of deposit - in grave danger. Defaults on CDs could in turn imperil the burgeoning money market mutual funds.

Clearly, this is no time for a knight to tilt with a windmill. That windmill is a bubble. While we can be grateful that the authorities are approaching the problem circumspectly, we can once again ask: Why was not something done in 1977? In 1978? Earlier in

Fifty years ago, after several years of excessively easy money had created a monstrous bubble in common stocks, similar questions were asked: Why wasn't something done in 1927? In 1928? Earlier in Eckhardt said that by increasing their rates significantly the railroads have damaged the incentive utilities would have to switch from higher priced oil to coal.

He said the Supreme Court should review the case because it deals 'very powerfully" with the national energy issue of conversion from imported oil to domestic coal.

A Supreme Court review also is in order, he said, because the ICC did not follow congressional guidelines when it approved the higher rates before adopting uniform rules for the The ICC since has approved rate increases for other companies -including the bitter fight between San Antonio's City Public Service and the Burlington Northern Railroad.

The Arizona and Houston companies, however, are the only cases which have been completed by a federal appeals court.

Eckhardt said that the Texas company should be paying the railroads about $11 per ton for hauling coal from Wyoming instead of the current hauled from New Mexico. Eckhardt is the chairman of a House subcommittee that has reviewed rail transportation of coal. A report on the hearings is due to be released in December.

$18 per ton. The Arizona company has its coal

"A careful balance must be obtained between providing railroads with adequate revenue levels and preventing them, in a case where they have market dominance, from obtaining these levels solely or principally from captive shippers through exorbitant rates for a commodity in high demand," Eckhardt wrote in his

No 'A-person' rings from lips of linguist

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

RIDGEFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Sister Teresa Kane, the mod nun in mufti who told off the pope during his visit to our shores, has announced she will not attend Mass or receive Communion at any service retaining sexist language in

Her ire is aimed at the masculine ring to rubrics like the Apostles Creed: "for us men and for our salvation, He came down from heaven" and the Eucharistic prayers at Mass repeating Christ's words that the cup of His blood "will be shed for you and for all men so that sins may be forgiven."

Citizen Kane inaugurated her liturgical boycott after the Catholic bishops of America at their semi-annual meeting declined to substitute people or persons or some such noun in the traditional prayers.

Her stand must have brought a fervent "A-person" from the more militant members of the sisterhood who were miffed when the pope suggested they get back into uniform and forget about becoming priests, at least during his tenure in the Apostol-

Stew

Sister Kane, whom the media invariably identify "as the highest ranking nun in the land," an eminence that does not exist, probably will also be tuning out the various versions of Dickens' "A Christmas Carol" on the tube this season for the same reason. The sexually degrading morale here is revealed early in the first stave, as Dickens called his chapters, when Jacob Marley, dead seven years, rattles his chains of greed forged of old cash boxes, padlocks, ledgers and the like.

"But you were always a good man of business," protests Scrooge.

"Mankind was my business," replies the ghost. Marley did not say "personkind" was his business, or the ghosts of Chaucer, Marlowe, Milton and Shakespeare might have rattled their chains too.

But old Scrooge may have been on Sister Kane's side in grabbing his ruler and chasing the carolers from his door when they serenaded him with the masculine rondelet "God rest ye, merry gentlemen" instead of the unisexually acceptable "God rest ye, merry gentle people" or, for Dixie audiences, "merry you all"

John Steinbeck likewise must be on the good nun's index of male chauvinist publications, along with the authors of the Douay Bible, the Book of Common Prayer, the Baltimore Catechism or whoever promulgated those prayers that begin "remember, man, that thou art dust..." Steinbeck was born too soon and became famous too fast to realize that his touching tale of Lennie asking George to tell him about the rabbits should have been entitled "Of Mice and Persons"

And how was poor Alexander Pope to know way back in the days of the unenlightenment that "the proper study of personkind is persons"? As Hamlet might have put it, "What a piece of work is a person!"

And what a piece of nonsense, too. Or as Vladimir Nabokov once called such torturings of the English language in the name of sexual equality "a load of horse personure."

At the risk of being barbecued alive in a revamped edition of Charles Lamb's "Dissertation on a Roast Male Chauvinist Pig," I am boldly belaboring the point for Sister Kane and her strident sisterhood that their rejection of a phrase-like "Christ died for all men" in liturgy of the Catholic Church and indeed in all but the most extravagantly modern vulgarizations of the New Testament is a complete misreading of the Queen's English, or, to avoid sexist language, the House of Mountbatten-Windsor's English.

Man, men, mankind are generic terms for all God's creatures with souls or all Darwinian anthropoid mutations showing exceptional intelligence, depending on your frame of orthodoxy.

"Man is the plumeless genus of bipeds," said Plato, who was anxious to distinguish the species from birds but had no sexual hangups about limiting his featherless friends to only the male gender.

The Oxford English Dictionary, the unexcelled arbiter of our mother tongue, makes the point even more conclusively.

Its first definition of man is: "a human being, from the Latin, homo. The human creature regarded abstractly; hence, the human race or species, mankind. The human creature or race viewed as a genus of animals."

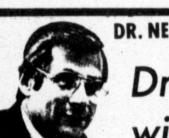

The O.E.D., as we pedants prefer to call it, goes on for 24 more lines in this vein, even quoting a 1597 translation of the Bible on a unisex use of the word: "The Lord had but one paire of men in Paradise," thus awarding the title to both Adam and Eve.

After all that, the learned lexicographers finally get around to the second definition of the word man: "An adult male person, the male human being." This is the one who presides in the chair when it is not occupied by a chairperson.

There, I've said it. The angry phone calls and letters undoubtedly will fall like an avalanche on these hoary locks. "Man is born unto trouble, as the sparks fly upwards," said Job. Of course, he should have said "person is born unto trouble" and there might not have been any sparks at all.

But there comes a time in every, er, person's life when one's got to take the gelding by the horns and assert one's personhood. James Thurber did it once in a play called "The Male Animal" and was never heard of again until the musical version called "The Personal Biped" came along starring Barbra Streisand. Or was it Betty Friedan?

Anyhow, the point had to be made, and as an updated sexually aware Bobby Burns might have applauded: "a person's a person for a that." So be it, or be it so really, both of which the Oxford English Dictionary lists as acceptable alternatives to Amen.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Drinking still widely accepted

Dear Dr. Solomon: I'm a white-collar worker and I like to think that the people I work with have some intelligence. The other day at lunch, one of my fellow employees was actually bragging that he was so drunk over the weekend that he still doesn't know how he was able to drive home. Isn't it appalling that anyone would see nothing wrong in risking his life and the lives of others on the road in this fashion? — Stan

Dear Stan: I couldn't agree more. The use of alcohol — even its excessive use — is socially acceptable to large segments of the population in the United States today. In fact a recent General Accounting Office report noted that our general acceptance of drinking and driving is the main roadblock to eliminating the drunk-driver problem. The report indicated that 25,000 people die in alcohol-related highway accidents each year. This figure represents half of all highway fatalities.

It is unlikely that the situation will change to any great extent until the public's attitude about drinking and driving changes.

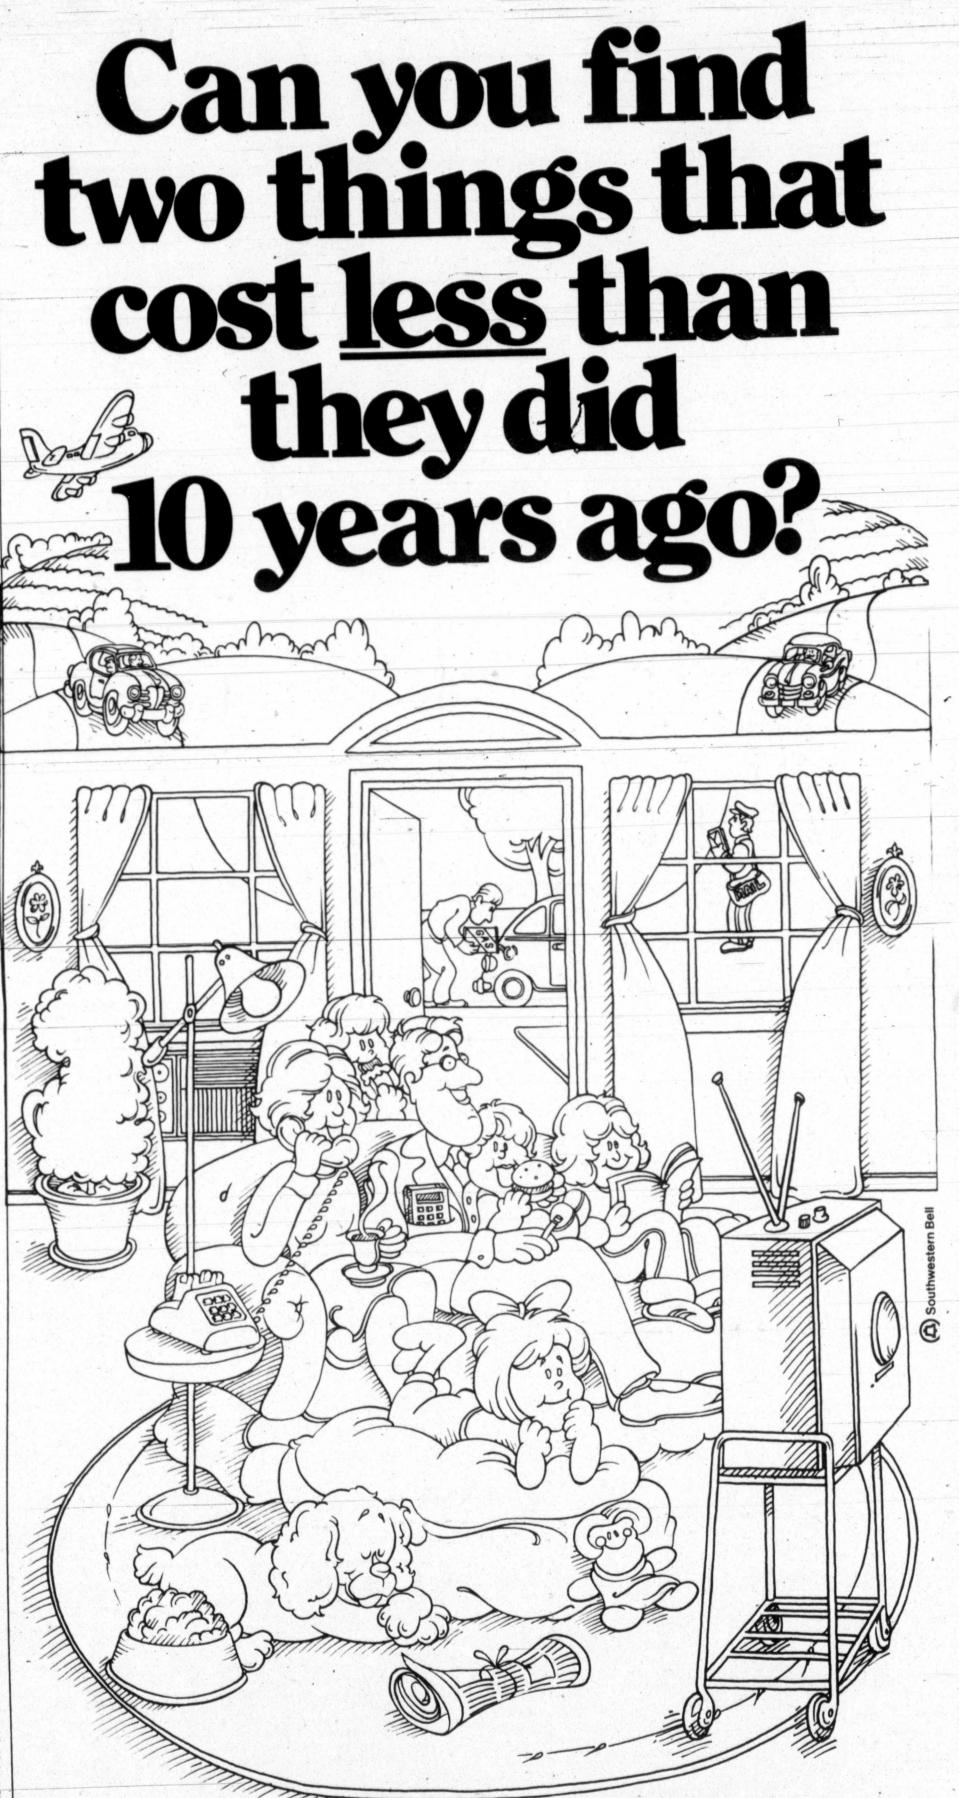

Dear Dr. Solomon: The child of a friend of mine was a victim of crib death. Although this happened two years ago, the mother still has not gotten over it. Recently she told me the death may have been caused by an inherited condition. Is this possible? — Janet

Dear Janet: Researchers who have been studying crib death, or the sudden infant death syndrome, believe that many factors contribute to it. One of these may, indeed, be herediDr. Norman H. Edelman, chief of the College of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey, treated the parents of eight SIDS children. He found that their breathing control systems showed greatly reduced function; and he concluded that the same condition in an infant, especially during a cold when glands and tonsils are enlarged, could be very dangerous.

If this relationship can be confirmed, it might be possible to take steps to avoid SIDS in vulnerable children.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I am writing in response to the letter from Mrs. J.G. which appeared recently in our paper. Perhaps your readers are not familiar with the Associaion for the Care of Children in Hospitals. It is a multidisciplinary group, involving doctors, nurses, child life specialists, etc., which attempts to meet the emotional and developmental needs of the hospitalized child. As doctors and nurses become increasingly award of the importance of meeting the emotional needs of children, the number of hospitals with a child life staff will continue to grow. In this, the International Year of the Child, speak up for children, contact your hospital, ask them if they have a child life department. Make them aware that there is an association that cares. - Sally J. Narwold, Wilmington, Del.
