Iranians expected to set trial date

Challenging Education
 The arrival of students from Cambodia, Laos and Taiwan has been a challenge for Midland public school programs originally designed to teach Spanish-speaking students. Sunday's Reporter-Telegram takes a look at their progress and adjustments.

Bolling for Dollars
 Cotton-picking used to be a labor of bending the back and dragging the sack. That's all changed now, and Midland County's multimillion dollar crop is chronicled by writer Ed Todd and photographer Bruce Partain in Sunday's West Texas Life.

Abortion's Controversy
 While abortion is on the increase nationwide, so is the controversy surrounding it. Read the first of a two-part series on abortion and its alternatives in Sunday's Lifestyle section.

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's regime announced today that some of the 50 American hostages at the U.S. Embassy will be tried at a date to be set within 48 hours and might face death sentences. The government also said some would be freed but militants at the embassy denied it.

Hours later, Khomeini urged Iranians to unify and "rub America's nose in the dirt." His call came as the revolutionary regime struggled to end a rebellion in the northwest by the nation's largest ethnic minority, the Turks. Khomeini suggested the United States fomented the unrest.

Ayatollah Mohammed Kazem Shariat-Madari, spiritual leader of the Turkish minority, said he supported the insurgents' fight for "freedom and their rights." But he said the rebels did not seek to secede from the nation.

Tehran radio said the insurgents held a government radio-television station for the second day in Tabriz, capital of East Azerbaijan Province.

Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh said a trial date would be announced within 48 hours for some hostages and that those Americans not suspected of spying will be released "as soon as possible." He said arrangements were being made for all the captives to be visited.

However, a spokesman for the student militants holding the Americans contradicted the foreign minister. "We will release nobody, nobody at all" unless the deposed shah is returned to Iran, and "we have made no decision on the visits," the spokesman said in a telephone interview. He said it was "up to the people of Iran" to set a trial date.

State Department spokesman Walter Ramsay told reporters in Washington that scheduling trials for the hostages was "absolutely outrageous." They (the Iranians) had no business taking them hostage and they have no business putting them on trial.

"Our position is that all the hostages should be released. We welcome the news that visits to the hostages may be arranged and we hope they can be arranged soon."

There have been persistent, but unconfirmed reports that about eight hostages have been under intensive interrogation during the past two weeks. The Americans were seized 34 days ago.

Asked if he thought the hostages would be sentenced to death, Ghotbzadeh said: "I hope we don't reach that extent. But on the face of the earth anything is possible."

The foreign minister would give no specific date for the planned release or say how many hostages, who include diplomats, Marines, women secretaries, a teacher and a businessman, might be freed.

But he said there were two types of hostages — those who did not "work in espionage and those who are guilty of espionage." Of the latter group, he said, "I don't think those people are going to benefit from diplomatic immunity."

Ghotbzadeh said the reason arrangements were being made for all the hostages to be visited was to show the world that allegations the captives have been mistreated are untrue. Some of the hostages have not been seen by neutral observers since the day the embassy was seized Nov. 4.

The Moslem militants holding the captives have vowed to keep them until President Carter extradites Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi to Iran to stand trial as a war criminal.

Khomeini's forces ousted the shah's government in February. The toppled monarch is now convalescing at a U.S. Air Force base in Texas following cancer and gallbladder surgery in New York. The Carter administration has refused to extradite him.

Khomeini's confrontation with the United States is not the only crisis he is embroiled in. Ethnic Turkish rebels have claimed control of Tabriz, Iran's fourth largest city with a population of almost 600,000, and said any government peace mission must be approved by the religious leader whose reservations about Khomeini's theocratic constitution touched off bloody rioting.

Iran crisis at-a-glance

By The Associated Press

Iran's foreign minister said some hostages might be freed and that it will make a statement within 48 hours on a spy trial for some of the hostages — with possible death sentences — as the crisis in Iran reached its 34th day. Here are the highlights:

Khomeini's government
 Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's regime announced it will set a spy trial date soon for some of the 50 American hostages and that death sentences were possible.

Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh also said he hoped those not suspected of spying will be released "as soon as possible," and that arrangements were being made for all the captives to be visited.

There have been persistent, but unconfirmed reports that about eight hostages have been under intensive interrogation during the past two weeks.

In Iran's provinces
 Ethnic Turkish rebels claimed control of the capital of northwestern Azerbaijan province today, and said any government peace mission must be approved by their religious leader, whose reservations about Khomeini's theocratic constitution touched off bloody rioting.

Supporters of Ayatollah Mohammed Kazem Shariat-Madari, spiritual head of Iran's 3.5 million ethnic Turks, seized the radio and TV station in Tabriz.

Washington reaction
 The State Department labeled as "absolutely outrageous" the Iranian announcement that some of the Americans will soon be given a date for trial as spies.

However, spokesman Walter Ramsay said the government welcomed the neutral visits to the hostages.

Meanwhile, Carter administration officials were meeting today with families of the hostages. The department invited one member of each hostage family to the session and was paying to fly relatives to Washington.

The shah in Texas
 State District Judge Peter Michael Curry ruled San Antonio officials could deny parade permits to Iranian students who sought to protest the shah's presence at nearby Lackland Air Force Base.

The city had also denied a permit to Ku Klux Klansmen who planned a counter-rally, fearing violence might result if the two groups mixed.

During the hearing, the judge told a San Antonio College student he would not side with the ailing shah or Khomeini. "The plague on both their houses," he said.

The shah's visit to the United States for medical treatment inspired the Nov. 4 embassy takeover.

The American public
 Sixth graders asked Maine's governor "Will there be a war?" as two Rhode Island women joined the Carter administration in urging a flood of letters to protest the holding of American hostages in Iran.

University of Iowa students denounced "jingoist warmongers" in a rally supporting their Iranian colleagues, but high school students in Rhode Island hung an effigy of Iranian ruler Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

Oil companies abroad
 The stalemate in Iran, the burning of the U.S. Embassy in Libya, and anti-U.S. demonstrations elsewhere in the Middle East had oil companies worried.

Most U.S. companies operating in the region said they were taking steps to protect employees and their families. Some companies have begun evacuating the families.

Shah's nephew shot and killed
 A nephew of the deposed Shah of Iran was shot and killed today as he left his mother's home in Paris' fashionable 16th district, police said.

Sources said the man was shot twice in the head with a pistol as he left the house. His mother is a twin sister of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi.

Police said the victim, one of two sons of Princess Ashraf, was shot by a motorcyclist at about 1 p.m.

Princess Ashraf is not now in Paris, the sources said. The victim, whose name was not immediately available, was identified only by his relationship to Princess Ashraf. In New York, a spokeswoman for the shah confirmed the shooting, but did not know which of the two sons was the victim.

Bartosh to be named athletic director

Sam Cox has requested new assignment

Gil Bartosh

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
 Sports Writer

The Midland Reporter-Telegram has learned from reliable sources that Gil Bartosh, currently head football coach at Midland-Lee, will become the Director of Athletics of the Midland Independent School District pending action by the Midland school board in its regular meeting Tuesday.

It has also been learned that Sam Cox, MISD's athletic director for the past four years, has submitted a letter to Dr. James Mailey, superintendent of schools, dated Nov. 28, asking for reassignment in the school district due to poor health. Cox has suffered two heart attacks since August.

Cox stated in his letter, "Due to my present health conditions, I no longer feel that I am able to devote the necessary hours required of the position of the Director of Athletics. I respectfully request that I be re-assigned to another position within this school district."

As Director of Athletics, Bartosh will be in charge of overseeing all sports programs conducted by the school district.

Bartosh would make no comment about the upcoming appointment when contacted Thursday.

He was hired as head football coach at Lee in January of 1978. In his two seasons as head coach, he compiled a 15-5 record, finishing the 1978 season in a tie for second place in District 5-4A, with an 8-2 record. His 1979 team finished in third place with a 7-3 record.

The 49-year-old coach, known as the "Granger Ghost" when he led Texas Christian University to the Cotton Bowl in 1951, has compiled an overall high school coaching record of 96-21-2 since his first head coaching job at Houston Milby in 1959.

He was head football coach at Odessa Permian in 1971-72, compiling a remarkable 23-1 record. His 1971 Panthers tied for the 5-4A championship and his 1972 team won the state AAAA championship. Bartosh has stated that the 1972 Permian team "is one of the all-time great high school teams in Texas football history."

Bartosh was also the head football coach at Houston Lee from 1961 to 1967. During his 11 years of coaching in the high school ranks, he has won or shared eight district titles. He owns a 28-5 record in District 5-4A.

He also has coached in the college ranks for four different universities. In 1956, he was an assistant coach at Stephen F. Austin University before accepting the high school job at Houston Milby. From 1967 to 1970, Bartosh was an assistant coach at Rice University before becoming an assistant at Texas A&M in 1973 for one year.

He left A&M to take the head coaching job at the University of Texas-El Paso in 1974 and compiled a meager 6-26 record in three seasons with the Miners. His team, however, defeated top ten-ranked Arizona State in 1974, the first time in 17 years UTEP had accomplished that feat, and was named Coach of the Year in the Western Athletic Conference.

Bartosh served one year at the University of New Mexico as an assistant in 1977 before becoming the head coach at Lee.

He played his high school football at Granger where he was an all-state quarterback in 1948. He was an All-Southwest Conference quarterback at TCU in 1950 and played one year of pro football for the British Columbia Lions in the Vancouver Canadian League where he led the team in touchdowns.

Commissioned a Navy ensign during the Korean conflict, Bartosh served in Korea and Japan, playing

Another standby gas rationing plan being drafted

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration is making another stab at drafting a standby gasoline rationing plan that would be used only in a severe shortage.

Energy Secretary Charles W. Duncan said Thursday the new plan, being published today, would involve distribution of gasoline rationing coupons on the basis of vehicle registrations.

It was reported earlier this week that the plan, which would go into effect if supplies fell short by at least 20 percent for 30 days or more, would give ordinary motorists three-quarters of their normal usage.

Duncan's announcement came as he set a national target of holding gasoline consumption next year to no more than this year's level. To meet that target, he proposed a set of voluntary gasoline conservation goals for each state.

President Carter proposed a standby rationing plan Feb. 27 that would have involved mailing gasoline allotment "checks" to owners of registered vehicles. Under the plan, the checks would have been "cashed in" for ration coupons.

The House rejected that plan in May.

In October, after prolonged wrangling, Congress agreed to legislation that authorized the president to prepare a standby rationing plan.

The measure set out the following conditions:

—The plan must go to Congress and could be rejected by a veto in both houses.

—The plan must take into account past state gasoline consumption patterns.

—In a shortage of less than 20 percent, rationing could be imposed only with the agreement of both houses of Congress.

—In a shortage of 20 percent or more, lasting at least 30 days, the president could impose rationing as long as neither house objected.

The legislation also made counterfeiting of ration coupons a federal crime equal in seriousness to the counterfeiting of money.

Some 4.8 billion gasoline rationing coupons, printed during the 1973-74 Arab oil embargo, are stored in Army ammunition bunkers near Pueblo, Colo.

Duncan, in announcing the rationing plan would be released today, revealed no details of the proposal. He did say, though, that extra rations would be available for such high-priority needs as farming and public services.

He also told a news conference that other options, short of rationing, are being considered. Among those, he explained, are requiring each vehicle to stand idle one day a week, permitting vehicles to fill-up only once-a-week or asking Congress to raise the federal gasoline tax from the current 4 cents a gallon to as much as 50 cents.

United Way gets goal

United Way volunteers today closed out the campaign for 1980 with a victory celebration for reaching the $1,017,000 goal.

Campaign chairman W.F. "Bill" Orloff announced achievement of the goal at a noon volunteer report meeting at the Midland Hilton.

"It was a tough job, but our volunteers put in a tremendous final effort and brought us to 100 percent," Orloff said. "We appreciate all their hard work and all the generous contributions by Midland residents and businesses."

Achievement of the goal will ensure that each of the 19 member agencies can continue to provide needed community services and programs, Orloff said.

Allocation hearings for the agencies are in progress now, Orloff said, and the United Way board of directors will make a final decision on allocations Dec. 20.

Lloyd Wayne Terrell of Seagraves, driver of the truck, was not injured, officials said.

Police reports indicated the truck was northbound on Lynn Avenue and the Rodriguez auto was southbound when the collision occurred.

First secretary of education sworn in WASHINGTON (AP) — The newest member of President Carter's Cabinet, Shirley M. Hufstедler, says the Department of Education will seek to "make dreams come true" for Americans.

The nation's first secretary of education was sworn in Thursday in a brief ceremony in the East Room of the White House.

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger administered the oath of office to the former federal appeals judge, who is often mentioned as the leading female candidate for the next vacancy on the Supreme Court.

She was meeting hundreds of her 14,000 new employees today in her first visit to the headquarters of what was formerly the U.S. Office of Education in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The president extolled the 54-year-old jurist as a believer "in excellence and the value of human beings."

The ceremony set off a round of celebrations in the capital, including a victory banquet thrown by the National Education Association, the 1.8 million member teachers' union that lobbied for years for a place in the Cabinet for education.

In a brief appearance at the NEA celebration, Mrs. Hufstедler said she would look to the nation's teachers for guidance. She said she prefers to consider herself a student rather than "the nation's school marm," as one magazine called her.

"There is a voice in Washington at the Cabinet table that wants to listen to what you have to say," she said. "I won't agree with every one of you — but of course, you don't agree with each other," she added, drawing laughter. The other major teachers' union, the American Federation of Teachers, opposed the separate department.

Mrs. Hufstедler, a judge for 18 years, said, "It is incumbent to make this department (one) about which dreams can come true for the great hope of Americans to give all students, able-bodied or not, rich or poor, whether their skin is black, white, yellow or red or any shade of the rainbow, a chance to enter into the richness of the experience of the mind." Most of the new department's 152 programs will be transferred from HEW, but four other Cabinet agencies also are ceding their education agencies. The new department technically does not come into existence for up to six months from Mrs. Hufstедler's swearing-in.

In the meantime, she must choose a staff, and it was learned that she has offered the No. 2 job, undersecretary of education, to Lisle Carter, president of the University of the District of Columbia and a top HEW official in the 1960s.

When the new department is officially created, HEW will be renamed the Department of Health and Human Services.

Jobless rate drops to 5.8

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate dropped from 6 percent to 5.8 percent in November, a clear sign that the economy remains healthier than most forecasters have expected, the government reported today.

The Labor Department said total employment rose by 350,000 jobs during the month, while the number of jobless persons in the labor market fell by 140,000 to just over 6 million.

Overall, the department said, employment in November totaled a record 97.6 million out of a labor force of 103.7 million. The previous record was 97.5 million in September.

During the past five months, the jobless rate has moved like a yo-yo, rising from 5.7 percent in July to 6 percent in August, back down to 5.8 percent in September, up to 6 percent again in October and back to 5.8 percent.

"The pattern has been a welcome surprise to the Carter administration, which had predicted that unemployment would rise well above 6 percent because of an expected recession that some economists believe already has begun.

"The economy is holding up better than predictions. I doubt if anyone in the administration will complain," said John Bregger, a Labor Department economist. He added, however, that a continued slowdown in the rate of growth of new jobs and recent layoffs by manufacturers could contribute to a higher jobless rate in December.

And Janet L. Norwood, commissioner of labor statistics, noted that the growth of employment had slowed in recent months and that recent layoffs were not included in the latest unemployment survey.

"Although employment has continued to grow in recent months, the increase has been much slower than in 1978 or early 1979," she told the congressional Joint Economic Committee.

The unexpectedly strong employment picture should make it easier politically for President Carter to concentrate his domestic policies on fighting inflation, which is running at more than 13 percent a year — far exceeding government projections.

The Labor Department said most of the decline in unemployment in November occurred among women and blacks, the same two groups most affected by a rise in unemployment during October.

Bregger said the recent fluctuations in the overall jobless rate stem from changes among the part-time work force, while unemployment among full-time workers has remained steady since the summer.

The department said most of the employment gains during November occurred among adult women and white workers. A large portion of the new jobs were among white-collar sales workers.

During the past 12 months, employment has increased by 1.9 million, but most of that growth occurred during the first few months of that period.

Stations to up prices Dec. 15

Service stations in Midland will be allowed to increase the maximum legal selling price for their gasoline by 7 cent effective Dec. 15, according to Tim Taylor, audit director for the U.S. Department of Energy in Midland.

Taylor said the increase is being allowed primarily due to inflation. Currently, stations here are allowed to add 15.4 cents per gallon to the acquisition cost of their gasoline to arrive at the maximum legal selling price, Taylor said.

On Dec. 15, stations will be permitted to add 16.1 cents per gallon to the acquisition cost in order to arrive at the maximum legal selling price.

The price increase becomes effective on Dec. 15, but "not before then," according to Taylor.

The next adjustment is scheduled to come June 15, 1980, Taylor said.

Carter pushing NATO plan to improve nuclear forces

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, emphasizing the arms control aspects of his NATO missile modernization program, worked today to persuade leaders of Norway, the Netherlands and Denmark to go along with plans for introducing a new generation of nuclear missiles in Western Europe.

Carter met separately with Prime Minister Odvar Nordli of Norway and Prime Minister Andreas van Agt of the Netherlands. Denmark's foreign minister, Kjeld Olesen, was meeting with Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and White House national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski in the afternoon.

The modernization program would be "a major step toward greater arms control and a reduction in the arsenals of both conventional and nuclear weapons," Carter said as he opened his meeting with van Agt.

He made similar remarks as he met with Nordli. In both instances, reporters and photographers were allowed into the president's Oval Office to make sure his message was heard in Europe.

"There are two basic commitments we share completely," Carter said to Nordli. "One is strength and unity to make sure any potential adversary knows we are unified in our purpose of defending Western Europe and the free world.

"The second is a constant and increasing commitment to arms control, both in conventional weapons and nuclear weapons."

All three European countries have voiced reservations about the U.S.-backed plan for modernizing the NATO nuclear deterrent in the 1980s.

The plan — to be considered by North Atlantic Treaty Organization ministers in Brussels next week — has become a major test of U.S. leadership in the face of determined Soviet efforts to prevent modernization of the NATO nuclear force.

The Carter administration saw its neutron weapons program derailed last year. Because of this, it has taken great pains to insure the success of the missile initiative, which would place $72 new, long-range Pershing II and cruise missiles in Western Europe, replacing older, shorter-range weapons.

The Soviets have expressed alarm over the prospect of nuclear missiles in Germany. These missiles, for the first time, would be capable of reaching Russian cities. But the "trigger" would be controlled by the United States.

The Russians have asked the West to stop the missile program and have offered to negotiate an unspecified reduction in the numbers of their new SS-20 mobile, intermediate-range nuclear missiles. They also have withdrawn a division of troops from East Germany.

If the NATO missile program is approved, the Soviet Union has warned, it will take "appropriate measures," presumably by adding more SS-20s and Backfire bombers.

The United States and Great Britain have rejected the Soviet arms reduction proposal.

"We can't accept the Soviet idea that we do nothing while we negotiate," chief White House spokesman Jody Powell said Thursday.

The administration argues that the mere introduction of the SS-20 and the Backfire requires a NATO response to maintain a nuclear deterrence. Critics have said, however, that the NATO program would escalate the arms race.

In several months of preparatory talks, the administration has added a number of disarmament measures to the arms modernization proposal to counter the Soviet propaganda barrage.

School reports equipment stolen

Midland Police today were investigating the apparent burglary of Lamar Elementary School, 3200 Kessler St.

A rear window was "kicked in" to gain entrance to the school, police said. The break-in was discovered Thursday morning, officials said.

Three cassette tape recorders, tapes and albums valued at $300 were taken, according to police.

Dave Lyons named as new Odessa American publisher

ODESSA — Dave Lyons, 50, of Columbus, Neb., has been named publisher of The Odessa American, replacing V. Lyle DeBolt who will become assistant publisher of the Freedom Newspapers' Valley Group, headquartered at the Valley Morning Star in Harlingen.

The Odessa American is also a member of the Freedom newspaper chain.

The move, effective Jan. 1, 1980, will end a 30-year period in which members of the DeBolt family have been publishers of the newspaper. DeBolt was named publisher of the paper in 1974 after the death of his father, V. L. DeBolt Sr., who had been publisher since 1948, according to Ray Cole, general manager for the Odessa American.

Lyons has been publisher of the 12,000 circulation Columbus Telegram since October 1972. He previously had worked as advertising director for the Freedom papers in the Rio Grande Valley Group. A native of New York, Lyons began his newspaper career with the Brownsville Herald in 1953. He worked as general advertising manager for the San Antonio Light from 1964 to 1969. He is married and has four children.

New decade deserves new face; Mustache to get ax

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

RIDGEFIELD, Conn. (AP) — My mustache got the word today. It is not going into the 1980s with me.

With a new decade dawning, one must show a bright new face to the future, unafraid, unadorned. Yesterday's excess baggage must be jettisoned for a lighter, brighter tomorrow.

Let's face it, as I do every morning in the mirror, and as little as possible thereafter, mine never has been a successful mustache. I gave it every chance, nearly seven years now, but it never shaped up. It was never dapper, nor rakish, nor debonaire.

Mulligan's Stew

I decided to grow it one July morning while gazing at the Statue of Liberty from the boat deck of the M.S. Mikhail Lermonto at the start of an Atlantic crossing. What else can you do for nine days on a Russian ship? The library was full of old economic reports on past five-year plans and the works of Marx, Lenin and Engels, plus some propaganda publications with picture layouts of tractor works in Kiev, school children riding sleds on the slopes of Siberia and giant combines rolling across the wheat fields of endless collective farms.

My wife opted for ballroom dance lessons with the husband and wife team of Boris and Kalinka, who I think later defected to an Arthur Murray's in Montreal. My friend Clem Costello of the Lowell Sun took the Russian language lessons. I decided to grow a mustache, probably on the strength of the large oil painting of the mustachioed Lermontov in the smoking lounge. A dashing poet and lover, he was reputed to be a Russian combination of Byron and Shelley with a touch of Edgar Allan Poe in the dreamy eyes and seductively waxed mustache.

For my own forested upper lip, I envisioned something of an elegant compromise between Ronald Colman and Adolph Menjou, with just a hint of latter-day Walter Pidgeon around the edges.

It never came close to any of these. The nearest I came to being compared with any movie celebrity was a leering reference to Oliver Hardy among my rare detractors and an unkind cut about Wally Walrus.

Unlike Cyrano de Bergerac, I never could "twirl my wit as if it were my mustache" in answer to such uncivilities, because I never could get it to twirl or droop or flare at the ends or even curl upwards on one end and downward on the other after the manner of Salvador Dali.

Instead of a guardsman's mustache, mine was more night watchman or vaudeville's version of a Sicilian organ grinder.

I used to brush it 100 strokes a day with an old toothbrush, hoping to gladden like those silken tressed models in the shampoo commercials. I once bought some mustache wax and faithfully simonized the unruly growth for six weeks without fail, but it always wound up looking like a wet puppy. In cold weather, the wax used to cake up and flake off, so my nose resembled a candlestick.

If I trimmed it, the result was an annoying similarity to Charlie Chaplin's imitation of Adolf Hitler. If I allowed it to grow full and brushed it carefully, I, V. Lenin peered back from my mirror. If I shaved clean the middle furrow of my upper lip, Neville Chamberlain appeared with a frown or Terry Thomas with a smirk.

The biggest problem was that my mustache grew out in dark brown bristles, while my hair is quite gray, or sexy silver as a lady barber in a unisex shop once called it in anticipation of the handsome tip that was forthcoming.

"Why do you dye your mustache and not your hair?" a checkout clerk at the local supermarket asked me recently, while examining my driver's license to cash a modest check. She overcharged me for the paper towels, too.

Since I began growing my mustache at the start of another overseas tour as a reporter, I was apprehensive of what my friends would think of it on my first return home. More than apprehensive, I was terrified to the point of bald-faced cowardice. Crossing the ocean on a New York bound jumbo, I went to the washroom, lathered up nervously and raised my razor to remove the subnasal adornment. Right about them, the plane encountered turbulence and I almost removed my nose along with the mustache.

This is when I learned the hard way, the irreparable way, that summer is not the proper time to remove a mustache. The rest of the face is tanned. When you uncover the upper lip, it is lily white, except for the unfortunate razor nicks, and you end up smiling the smile of Walt Disney's Cheshire cat.

Anyhow, late in December, my mustache will go down the drain, another discarded relic of the '70s, like punk rock or cheap fuel or Billy Martin, who seems to have had nothing but trouble since he grew his mustache.

Will I have any regrets? After all, we have been together almost seven years now.

There's an old Spanish proverb: "A kiss without a mustache is like an egg without salt."

Sorry, girls. That's the way it's got to be. You're on a salt-free diet starting Jan. 1.

They became involved

Three cheers for the two Dallas young women, both 19 years of age, who Wednesday received Dallas' highest citizen's involvement award.

It seems that on their way home last June, Kim Foster and Jackie Housman came upon a traffic hazard caused by a minor accident, and they stopped to help. And it was then that things really began to happen.

They had intended to light flares and direct traffic, but two men had begun fighting and a crowd was gathering. A police officer, who had received a call on the minor accident, arrived at the scene. But when he stepped from his car, the two men jumped him. All this merely increased the young women's desire to help by becoming further involved as good citizens.

Ms. Housman, according to reports, used the officer's car radio to call for help, while Ms. Foster diverted the attention of one of the men and helped restrain him until backup officers arrived.

It is not surprising that the officer whom they assisted, Robert Makowski, nominated Ms. Foster and Ms. Housman for the Involved Citizen Award, which is presented each month by Everts Jewelers and The Dallas Morning News, saying, "Their actions and courageous involvement at the risk of personal injury deserves my commendation and gratitude."

The honorees received a plaque, which is awarded each month, then received the 7th annual Involved Citizen Award. They also were presented gold watches.

Isn't this wonderful, in this day and age, when citizens across the land generally have been accused of not being willing to become involved? The Dallas incident is the Texas way, which is the American way of old.

And isn't it great also that Dallas interests recognize such citizen involvement?

It is interesting to note, too, that Ms. Housman and Ms. Foster are former Explorer Scouts with a unit of the Dallas Police Department.

"When you see something you know is wrong, you can't stop yourself from doing something," Ms. Housman, who plans a career in law enforcement, said. "If you have any respect for law enforcement, you will get involved and you will help."

Amen!

Inflation alters plans

Bill Bucy of Midland has written a letter to the editor of Reader's Digest on the subject of inflation, a copy of which was forwarded to The Reporter-Telegram. It is worth sharing.

The letter says: "I am writing this letter to your attention because of the Reader's Digest influence on the American public and your policy of providing correct information within the framework of political moderation.

"I am concerned that most Americans do not fully realize the consequences of our present rate of inflation!

"On Page 132 of your December 1979 issue there is a quote from The National Observer. The statement is made that Anchorage's Tricentennial Commission should have few money problems. The reason being that in 2076 they will have $1,383,077.30 available from an investment of $1,000 at 7.5 percent annual interest rate compounded for 100 years.

"The American public should be told that inflation will have a tremendous effect on the buying power of that large amount of money. At an inflation rate of 10 percent annually, the buying power in 2076 will be only the equivalent of $100.35 of today's dollar, and at the present rate of inflation of 13 percent annually, the buying power is reduced to an amazing $6.81.

"Unless we do something to change inflation in America, the Anchorage Tricentennial Commission will cash in their trust account and have enough money to buy one moderately priced bottle of champagne to celebrate the Tricentennial.

"It is hoped that our leaders will take the necessary action to curb deficit spending and, if they don't, then the voters will elect someone who will show fiscal responsibility."

Mr. Bucy states the matter well and clearly, giving readers something to think about over the weekend — and beyond.

'THERE'S SOMETHING WRONG WITH THAT HALO'

CHARLEY REESE Too much ink and time devoted to tramps, trivia

ORLANDO, Fla. — One of the gripes I have about my own trade is that we devote so much ink and broadcast time to worthless human beings.

I gripe because ink and time are limited, and all of both that is devoted to tramps and trivia is denied to the valuable and inspiring.

Who really cares if a studio is or is not catering to an actor's ego. Who cares about salary negotiations between an athlete and his employer? Who cares about some dimwit actress' opinion about subjects she knows nothing about?

It's really an indictment of the news trade. The same people who wouldn't dream of interviewing Dr. Edward Teller on the art of acting will interview Jane Fonda on nuclear energy. That's assanine.

I think we must share responsibility for the decline in personal standards and for the inordinate rise in the level of public tolerance. It is probably easier for a fool to become famous today than at any other time in man's history. There seems to be no limit to the passive public's tolerance.

Look what we tolerate in politics. I have seen congressmen and senators whine and complain about their workload and the stress of their jobs and keep a straight face. I've seen people grumble in private but refuse to speak up in public because they're afraid. Afraid of what? That they'll lose a little business or offend a local bureaucrat.

Whenever I listen to one of these cribbabies in pin stripes, I always think of Col. George (Bud) Day, who is now a practicing attorney in Ft. Walton Beach, Fla.

Charley Reese

Day's plane was shot down over North Vietnam in 1967. He broke his arm (in three places) and badly sprained his knee. He was captured, tortured, and interrogated, but he refused to give them any information. Then, he managed to escape.

On the second night of his escape, he was hit in the right leg by fragments of a bomb rocket. The concussion caused him to bleed from the nose and ears, that's how close it was. For two days, he lay hidden in the jungle until he could travel again and then he set out for the border, surviving on berries and raw frogs.

He got to the Ben Hai River and swam it, but after 12 days, his wounds, exposure and hunger made him delirious and he ran into a Viet Cong ambush. He was shot in the hand and thigh and returned to North Vietnam.

For punishment, he was tortured and refused medical treatment. At one of the sessions, they hung him by the armpits from the ceiling for two hours and twisted his broken arm until they broke his wrist. Still, they never broke him. He fed them false information.

This unconquered American served his country. He did not complain about the long hours. He did not whine that the American people were making too many demands on him. He did not ask for an extra ten grand just because he couldn't spend as much time with his family as he would have liked. He never said he wouldn't serve because the newspapers might write something unfriendly about him.

Yet, listen to that trash in Washington complain. Listen to people say they won't serve their country by running for public office because they can't "endure" the "hardships" of a political campaign. Watch people take a whole day off because they've got a toothache.

Watch Day's countrymen plunk down their money to see Jane Fonda who was betraying the country while Day was serving it. This vile woman made propaganda broadcasts from Hanoi and posed for pictures aiming a North Vietnamese anti-aircraft gun.

Watch President Carter appoint Sam Brown and other Hanoi lovers to high government positions. Watch Gov. Jerry Brown of California appoint turncoats, traitors and queers.

I'll tell you something. In this world there are human beings and human monsters; there are heroes and there are cowards; there are magnificent human beings and there are scumbuckets.

People who don't learn to tell the difference or who lack the guts to cherish the good and the brave are headed toward a sanitary landfill of history. And they deserve it.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Shah's kin speak on price hike

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — The harried shah of Iran, according to members of his family, is annoyed at our columns blaming him for the ruinous rise in oil prices. He insists that he cleared the first huge price increase in 1973-74 with then-Secretary of State Henry Kissinger.

In fact, we did not neglect to report Kissinger's strange acquiescence in the infliction of the oil gouge, and we welcome this belated confirmation from the shah. We first told the story more than three years ago, citing top-secret documents.

We reported that Kissinger sought to build up the shah as the protector of American interests in the Persian Gulf oil haven. The shah needed a fat treasury to finance the armaments that Kissinger pressed upon him.

Kissinger, therefore, agreed that the shah should quadruple oil prices, so swear relatives who have discussed the matter with the shah. "He thought of it as an indirect form of American aid," explained one family member.

The shah's drive for higher oil prices alarmed the Saudi Arabian oil sheiks who feared it would cause an economic backlash. They notified Kissinger that Saudi Arabia would join in blocking a large price increase if the shah could be persuaded to stand with them, but that it was up to the United States to apply the screws.

They knew Kissinger had the leverage to bring the shah into line. When he refused to beard the shah, they assumed that the United States was behind the drive for higher oil prices. The shah made it even more explicit; he told them he had U.S. approval.

Saudi leaders emphasized this to American Ambassador James Akins who reported it in a secret letter to Washington. "Yamani (the oil minister) said the shah told him that... the Americans understood why the oil price increases had to be established. Prince Saud, who was at the meeting with the shah, confirmed that the shah had indeed said this."

In another secret report, Akins recounted: "The Iranians told (the Saudis) we were completely unconcerned about any price rise. The shah has also told this to numerous oilmen as proof that the U.S. is at least indifferent to any increase in oil price. In any case, the Saudis have seen no account from any American source that we in any way tried to pressure the shah to back off his extreme position on oil prices."

As chief agitator for higher prices, the shah had the honor of announcing the disastrous increase. It would be a cumulative increase, he declared, of 470 percent in one year. The annual bill of the oil-consuming nations would be a staggering $95 billion higher in 1974 than in 1973 — not counting what the oil companies would add on for production, transportation and profit margin.

This hike was a "minimum," the shah said. More would follow. "The industrial world will have to realize that the era of terrific progress and even more terrific income and wealth based on cheap oil is finished."

Despite howls of outrage from the industrial nations and a Saudi offer to push prices back down, the shah continued to clamor for still higher oil prices. Reported Akins on Aug. 27, 1975: "The Saudis had urged us on numerous occasions to put pressure on the shah to cooperate with Saudi Arabia and reduce the oil prices, yet we refused to do so."

The Saudis began to suspect, quite correctly, that Kissinger wanted to enrich the shah in order to build him up as the guardian of the Persian Gulf. "Yamani asked me," reported Akins in a secret memo, "if we had really considered what position we would be in if the shah were in a position to impose his will on the Arab states of the Gulf."

He said that the talk of eternal friendship between Iran and the United States was nauseating to him and other Saudis. They knew the shah was a megalomaniac, that he was highly unstable mentally and if we didn't recognize this, there must be something wrong with our powers of observation.

Then came the kicker. "Furthermore," Akins quoted a warning from Yamani, "if the shah departs, we could have a violent, anti-American regime in Teheran."

Thus Kissinger left the United States with no policy but unconditional surrender to the oil predators and no program but schemes to facilitate the borrowing of vast amounts of money, which can never be repaid, to finance the crushing extortion of the oil bloc. He favored a solution that shored up the shah with petrodollars, a solution that encountered no opposition from the big banks and oil companies.

In past columns, we have questioned whether Kissinger was influenced by his long relationship with the Rockefeller family as retainer, beneficiary and counselor. For the Rockefellers were deeply involved with the shah in various real estate and banking ventures. We'll present more on this in future columns.

Footnote: In several conversations with us, Kissinger has confirmed that he sought to bolster Iran as the protector of U.S. interests in the Persian Gulf. But he has denied encouraging the shah to quadruple oil prices. He insisted that "we didn't have the leverage" to stop the shah from driving up oil prices. "I had a strategy in which I considered the shah a chief element," said Kissinger. "You can say that was a misjudgment but not a sell-out."

INSIDE REPORT: Battle of U.S. intelligence against Soviet forgeries

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The decision by Iranian militants to show the world an alleged "secret" document which they said had been purloined from files in the occupied U.S. Embassy adds an ominous new factor in the battle of American intelligence against Soviet forgeries aimed at discrediting the U.S.

Whether the militants have what they claim to have, or whether the alleged CIA assignments for the two new staffers at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran are bogus, the surfacing of the document compounds the problem of identifying and exposing proliferating Soviet forgeries. These forgeries are now known to have drawn both President Carter and Vice President Walter Mondale into their worldwide operations.

The Soviet forgery game was analyzed early this year in a classified government document called "the forgery offensive" which opened with this flat assertion: The dangerous Soviet game of lying about the U.S. in the struggle between the two superpowers is undergoing "an appreciable upsurge."

"The political purpose of these forgeries, their technical sophistication and intelligence reporting all point to the Soviet Union, its various East European allies and Cuba as being the responsible parties," the document said.

The study containing that charge against Moscow was followed in late summer by a second analysis, limited to "official use only" and published by the Defense Intelligence Agency (DIA) — a major branch of the U.S.

intelligence community. It proclaimed that Moscow has "continually employed forged documents to implement foreign policy, support political objectives and to lend substance, credibility and authenticity to their propaganda claims."

The U.S. has never played the forgery game against the Russians or any other country. One reason could be that in an open society, forgeries would almost surely be exposed by those opposing the practice — by politicians, for example, who in the past have taken pride in exposing undercover operations by the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) regardless of foreign policy objectives.

The Soviets have a closed society and no known scruples against dirty tricks of any kind. But the efforts to put false words in the mouth of the president and vice president of the U.S., described as being "of suspected Soviet origin," touched a new low. The falsification of Jimmy Carter's spoken word came in December 1977, in the form of a bogus press release from the United States Information Agency (USIA) (now the International Communications Agency). It purported to be a verbatim report on a speech Carter gave in the "American perspective series."

Newspapers in Greece — and almost certainly in other countries where the forgery never surfaced — received the phony Carter speech in the mail. Two newspapers in Athens published it. In his "speech" Carter flayed the Greeks for letting down NATO, demanded far higher defense spending by Greece and made "demeaning" remarks about this major Mediterranean ally.

The forgery involving Mondale came just over a year ago when Xeroxed copies of an interview he allegedly gave to a European newspaper named "Karl Douglas" were mailed to Paris-based correspondents of several newspapers.

In the "interview," the vice president cast aspersions on Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin. Mondale, according to the bogus "interview," called Sadat not the master of his own house (implying the then-pending treaty with Israel would not be adhered to) and claimed that Begin was suffering from a "terminal illness."

Both these efforts were crude, and neither one did American policy much if any damage. But they illustrated this point: There is no limit to the Soviet effort to "disinform" governments and peoples of the world about the perfidy of the U.S. by exploiting all techniques of forgery and black propaganda. Moreover, other attempts to undermine the U.S. have had conspicuous success.

In 1978, in an altered version of a genuine State Department document known as "Airgram A-8950," dated Dec. 3, 1974, U.S. Embassies in Europe were ordered to collect information "on ways to bribe European officials and to develop other covert means by which to damage or eliminate foreign trade competition" with the U.S. The timing was calculated to cash in on the uproar, in the U.S., over bribery accusations against U.S. corporations.

This forgery, American intelligence now believes, was "an eminent Soviet forgery success" despite some sloppy discrepancies such as bad punctuation in the covering letter that came with fuzzy copies of the alleged airgram.

With superpower competition now heating up, partly under the stress of the Iranian crisis, top intelligence officials have ordered the anti-forgery watch put on overtime duty. But for every forgery discovered, there probably are half a dozen that go undiscovered. The whole world is a forgery market and it is inconceivable that the U.S. will not be damaged in the days of heated rivalry that lie ahead with an adversary that plays by only one rule: the rule to win.

Carter to miss fund-raiser

ATLANTA (AP) — President Carter's absence should have no financial effect on tonight's fund-raising dinner that is expected to raise almost $500,000 for the president's re-election campaign, a campaign official says.

Carter was originally scheduled to attend the $500-a-plate dinner in his home state but canceled because of the Iran crisis. Vice President Walter Mondale and first lady Rosalynn Carter will stand-in for the president at the Georgia World Congress Center.

Russ Marane, Carter campaign coordinator for the Southeast, said he expects the dinner to raise more money for the Carter-Mondale Presidential Committee than any of 10 other fund-raisers around the country.

"I would say all told we'll raise $500,000" at the Atlanta dinner, Marane said, adding that the dinner will draw about 750 Carter supporters from Georgia, Florida, South Carolina, Tennessee and Alabama.

Dignitaries from those states will act as honorary hosts of the dinner. They include Georgia Gov. George Busbee, Atlanta Mayor Maynard Jackson, Gov. Richard Riley of South Carolina and Alabama Lt. Gov. George McMillan.

Marane said Carter's decision not to attend the dinner may affect attendance at the event, but it should have no effect "in terms of raising money."

"We'll have people who will make contributions but won't go," he said. Mrs. Carter and Mondale will meet about 500 Carter campaign volunteers at a special reception prior to the dinner, Marane said. President Carter formally announced in Washington Tuesday that he will seek re-election to a second four-year term.

Iranian issue stymies Kennedy

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, eager to have the Shah of Iran disappear as a campaign controversy, concedes he is having trouble shifting public attention to his main campaign issues of inflation and energy.

In a half dozen campaign appearances Thursday in Alabama, Illinois and Iowa, Kennedy kept up a steady drumbeat of criticism of President Carter's leadership and handling of economic and energy policies without once bringing up the subject of the deposed shah.

But two news conferences he held during the day were devoted almost entirely to questions about the exiled shah and the controversy Kennedy set off when he criticized the former ruler.

Asked whether he is frustrated that the subject keeps coming up, Kennedy acknowledged that the issues central to his campaign "have been subsumed by the central concern of the American people in the safety and security of the hostages" being held at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran.

The Massachusetts Democrat, on his third trip to Iowa since he announced his candidacy for the White House a month ago, planned to devote today and most of Saturday to campaign stops in the state's major population centers.

Kennedy has maintained that Iowa will provide the first real test between himself and Carter in their battle for the 1980 Democratic presidential nomination.

In two appearances Thursday evening in Dubuque and West Des Moines, Kennedy delivered strong denunciations of Carter's leadership, and appealed to his audience to attend the state's party precinct caucuses Jan. 21.

At both stops, he made sure to spend several minutes shaking hands, signing autographs and posing for pictures for the Iowans who turned out to hear him.

Earlier in the day, he dedicated a civic center at Hartselle, Ala., in honor of former Sen. John Sparkman, D-Ala., an event also attended by President Carter's mother. Kennedy and Mrs. Carter shook hands when he entered the hall.

Kennedy's campaign has been dogged since last weekend by criticism directed at him for his remarks about the shah.

He said last Sunday the deposed ruler was "one of the most violent regimes in the history of mankind" and stole "umpteen billions of dollars" from his country.

Kennedy was criticized immediately by Carter aides and prominent politicians in both parties for making such remarks while the 50 hostages are being held in Tehran. The militants holding the hostages are demanding that the shah be returned to Iran as a condition for their release.

Hance will be guest speaker

U.S. Rep. Kent Hance, D-Texas, will be guest speaker Saturday during a dinner meeting of the Midland Board of Realtors.

Hance, formerly a Lubbock attorney, will speak on current legislation and how it pertains to the real estate and oil businesses. He represents the 19th Congressional District which includes Midland.

New officers of the board of realtors will be installed at the 7:30 p.m. meeting. Hance will begin his talk about 8:15 p.m.

First lady praised

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — To hear the politicians talk, Rosalynn Carter might as well have been the candidate.

The $100-a-plate dinner for 700 was held Thursday night to raise money for President Carter's re-election campaign, but it was the first lady who got most of the flowery praise.

From Mayor Dale Danks to Gov. Cliff Finch to former Sen. James Eastland and dinner chairman Pat McMullan, it was the same story.

Eastland, honorary chairman of the dinner that raised $120,000, called her the "most influential first lady in modern times. She is an extension of the president's power. She is the politician in the family."

Referring to the crucial 51 percent victory Mississippi gave Carter in 1976, Eastland said: "I've always been convinced that it was Rosalynn Carter's appearance in Mississippi during the last week of the campaign that turned the tide for her husband."

Finch recalled campaigning with Mrs. Carter in Florida a few weeks ago. Afterward, he said, "I called the president to relate to him to please stay in Washington and just send Mrs. Carter, because she stole everybody's hearts."

Danks welcomed the first lady as "quite an effective spokesperson for your husband, ably communicating for him while he stays close to the White House monitoring the Iranian situation."

McMullan, a Jackson banker, called Mrs. Carter "a devoted wife, a loving mother and a proven leader of her nation and the world."

Finally, after all the compliments had been paid, it was the first lady's turn.

"Jimmy once said," she began, "that when you have an introduction like that the best thing you can do is say hello and sit down."

But Mrs. Carter was not about to pass up an opportunity to spread her husband's gospel, and quickly launched into her standard Carter-Iran speech.

But first, considering the territory, there was a tailor-made beginning as she reminded the audience of her roots. "It is sooo good to be back HOME in the SOUTH," she said enthusiastically.

Kicking the habit means giving up more than tobacco

By MICHAEL GRANT
Copley News Service

Even though I am a reformed smoker, I no longer harp at people about smoking, beyond dropping a little joke every once in awhile about the joys of emphysema.

Besides, the message is out. It's been in all the newspapers.

On the other hand, I do see a gap in the coverage. Nowhere is there anything laid down advising people who do quit of what to expect. That is a serious deficiency in the project, because as I remember it, giving up cigarettes can change the pattern of a person's life in many ways, for better or poorer. As a survivor, I suggest that it helps to be ready for it.

For example, I woke up one morning after I'd quit to realize that I was no longer threatened by cancer of my left breast, where the pack had rubbed, or right thigh, which the Zippo not only chafed, but bathed continually in hydrocarbons. I had lived with these dreeds on my subconscious for some years and suddenly to be free of them was a first-stripe thrill.

This is the sort of exhilaration that kindles strange extravagance. Before you realize it, you may have bought 20 shirts with no pockets and a case of fig preserves. Better to lie quietly until you have your emotions under control.

Ironically, I missed the old Zippo. It once lit 100 straight times. I liked to watch the fluid soak into the cotton, and there was something erotic about taking the flints from their little dispenser and loading them like bullets into the striker chamber.

If you gripped the Zippo lengthwise — your thumb on the base, your first two fingers downward, the top would pop open, leaving you holding the Zippo in the ready-to-light position. This separated the pros from the amateurs. Furthermore, I knew a guy who could hit the striker wheel in that same motion, producing with a snap of his fingers an open, lit, lighter. It was generally acknowledged that he was the epitome of cool. Unfortunately, he had broken his nose several times and could not French inhale. I, of course, could.

Sometimes, lighting someone else's cigarette, I would snap the lid shut on the lit end of it and, feigning surprise, pull it from his or her lips. It was always good for a bang, but you had to take care to get the cigarette right on the end or it would break in the middle, and the victim would not be tickled.

Being deprived of this equipment creates some real gaps in your social life, and you may find yourself painfully uneasy around strangers and friends alike. First dates are awful for a while. There is no snappy way to unwrap a piece of gum.

I carried the old Zippo around for a while after I quit, both for sentiment and security, but now it's lost, gone. I had a Colibri butane, too, but I don't think about it the same way as the Zippo.

There's a third good reason to keep the lighter handy for a while. You may want to try substitution to ease the trauma in the first days after quitting. For about a week, and against my disposition, I chewed tobacco. It was all right for taste, but I kept remembering the sixth grade when a kid, smarting off on Western Day, swallowed his chaw and became more ill than anyone you'd want to see.

Neither could I bring myself to spit out of the car window. I had to stop the car every few hundred yards, open the door and lean way out, and it was damned inconvenient. I briefly considered snuff.

Eventually, I weaned myself on cigars, undisturbed. I bought Rol-Tan coronas, cheaper by the box. I recommend them, for men and women. Don't inhale, for mercy's sake, and keep the box in the refrigerator for freshness. Chew on the end, if you wish. With cigars, you don't have to spit.

It should take about six weeks, or until your spouse offers the them or the ultimatum, whichever comes first.

Everyone knows that cigarette butts keep dogs away, but that's one of the little things that slip your mind when you quit. We always had plenty of butts, 70 or 80 at the end of any given day, to sprinkle about if a dog came around to mess up the roses. Suddenly we were defenseless.

SHEINWOLD ON BRIDGE Heading Off a Ruff

By Alfred Sheinwold

One good way to head off a ruff is to convince an opponent that his partner can win the trick. Your opponent doesn't want to look foolish.

You win the second diamond and take the top trumps. When the queen doesn't drop you must try to run the spades.

If East has three spades and ruffs the fourth, you can discard a diamond. You then lose only one heart, one club and one diamond. But if you played today's hand so obviously East would ruff the third spade and cash a diamond.

LESS OBVIOUS
After drawing two rounds of trumps take the ace and king of spades. Then lead dummy's jack of spades.

East is likely to believe that his partner has the queen and that you are now out of spades. If so, East will discard instead of ruffing.

This is just what you want. You take the queen of spades, get to dummy with a club and discard a diamond on the ten of spades.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON
Frostbite
preventable

Dear Dr. Solomon: Because of the extremely cold and windy weather we had last year I was terribly afraid one of my children might get frostbite. Any information you could give me about it before the cold weather hits this year would be much appreciated. — Mrs. D.F.

Dear Mrs. D.F.: Frostbite refers to the actual freezing and subsequent destruction of body tissues which is likely to occur any time skin temperature gets very much lower than 32 degrees (0 degrees Celsius). The areas most likely to freeze are toes, fingers, ears, cheeks and the tip of the nose. Persons at the greatest risk for frostbite include those with impaired circulation, the elderly and anyone who remains outside for prolonged periods. The risk is much greater if the individual becomes wet. Prevention of frostbite includes staying indoors whenever possible, and if you must go out, wearing multiple layers of warm clothing which should be loose fitting and allow adequate circulation and exercise. It is especially important to wear heavy socks and mittens or gloves. Face and ears should be covered with a scarf, cap or ski mask. Keeping dry and active while outdoors will also help prevent frostbite. Frostbite should be suspected whenever the skin changes to a white or grayish-yellow color. Pain is often present early, but later the area feels numb and very cold. Severe frostbite may result in mental confusion, staggering, impaired breathing and loss of consciousness. The goal of treatment is to warm the affected area as rapidly as possible. On severe cases, wrap the victim in blankets and get him to a medical facility as quickly as possible. Less severe cases may be treated as follows:

1. Bring the victim indoors as soon as possible.
  2. Remove frozen and wet clothing.
  3. Give the victim a warm drink.
  4. Wrap the victim in warm blankets or even better, immerse the injured area in warm water. The water should feel warm to the hand, but not hot. If possible, use a thermometer and keep the water between 102 and 105 degrees Fahrenheit. Too hot water will damage body tissues. Do not rub the skin as this may also cause damage. Discontinue warming as soon as affected area becomes flushed.
  5. Call your family physician or local emergency room for further advice.
- Again, remember prevention is best. Hope you and your children enjoy a good winter.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I've been using laxatives off and on for the past several years and would like to stop. I tried drinking prune juice but it hasn't done much good. Do you have any suggestions that would help get me off laxatives? — Lee

Dear Lee: Dr. Phillip A. Christiansen, of the Indiana University School of Medicine, Gastroenterology Division, advocates use of a high-fiber diet supplements with unprocessed bran to treat constipation, rather than laxatives or stool softeners. This dietary approach is not only healthier than the regular use of laxatives, but cheaper. I might add that I advise my patients to drink at least a quart of water a day to help assure regularity. Others are also helped by drinking a hot cup of water with a tablespoon of lemon juice each morning.

(If you have a medical problem, see your doctor. If you have a medical question, write to Neil Solomon, M.D., 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Md., 21208. Dr. Solomon cannot give personal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.)

be sold, doctor says

By JACK WILLIAMS
Copley News Service

Is one man's medicine another man's poison? It can be, says Dr. Anthony Manoguerra, if the medicine is camphor, camphorated oil or camphor-based remedies.

"It's been around for centuries," said Manoguerra, "but there is no known medical benefit. There is absolutely no reason for camphor to be on the market."

"It's one of those items that has been used for so long, it's kind of accepted."

Manoguerra, director of professional services at the San Diego, Calif., Regional Poison Center, urges persons with camphor products in their homes to dispose of them to prevent the possibility of accidental poisoning.

"We had 113 cases of children ingesting camphor products last year," said Manoguerra. "If ingested (it is recommended for external use only), it can cause convulsions, severe vomiting, abdominal pain, diarrhea and, in some instances, coma or death."

"There have been no deaths reported here but it's a constant problem."

"We've had a number of parents say they use it only for cold sores, that it couldn't be that dangerous. The medical community is aware of its dangers but the lay public, in many cases, hasn't been informed."

Despite the fact that Manoguerra — who says his views represent those of the medical community — says camphor has no therapeutic role in scientific medicine, 30 million ounces of the product are sold in the United States annually.

Camphor products are used to heal cold sores and fever blisters, as disinfectants, and to alleviate muscle aches and pains.

"Something like Vaseline or Chapstick could be used instead to keep an infected area moist until it heals," said Manoguerra.

Many times, he said, people mistake camphor oil for castor oil, which is used as a cathartic and lubricant.

"We know of a lot of elderly people who have made this mistake," said Manoguerra.

Although swallowing is the most common means of poisoning, camphor can be absorbed through the skin and by inhalation, said Manoguerra.

"Rubbing a camphor product in large amounts on the skin, as one might to treat sore muscles or arthritis, is sufficient to cause convulsions," said Manoguerra.

Court rules priest can 'pull plug' on brother

MINEOLA, N.Y. (AP) — A Roman Catholic priest broke down and cried in the courtroom when a judge granted him the right to disconnect the respirator helping keep a religious brother alive. But the order, unprecedented in New York, was challenged immediately.

State Supreme Court Justice Robert Meade ruled Thursday that the Rev. Philip K. Eichner could "pull the plug" on 83-year-old Brother Joseph Charles Fox's respirator if a medical examination showed the cleric would continue "in a chronic vegetative state with no reasonable medical possibility" of recovery.

However, he said no other life-support treatment, such as intravenous feeding, could be discontinued.

Fox has been on a respirator since he lapsed into a coma Oct. 2 after suffering a heart attack during hernia surgery. He has been a member of the Marianist community for about 70 years and was a gardener and teacher there.

Eichner, Fox's court-appointed guardian and head of the 10 member community here, had sued for the right to terminate the life-support system on "humanitarian grounds."

In making his decision, however, the judge declined to rule on Eichner's argument that Fox had a "right to privacy" which was being invaded by continuation of the respirator.

Meade noted, however, that Fox had discussed with the Marianist community the famous case in New Jersey in which the parents of coma-tose Karen Ann Quinlan won the right to remove her respirator.

Miss Quinlan has lived 3½ years without it. "Brother Fox repeatedly expressed agreement with the church's teachings on the subject of the withdrawal of extraordinary life support systems," Meade ruled, "but also stated that he personally would not want any of this 'extraordinary business' done for him under such circumstances."

Eichner said after hearing the ruling, "I prayed for the decision." The decision was challenged by Nassau County District Attorney Denis Dillon, who opposed the request on the grounds that the people of state had never indicated "the court has the power to pass on life."

Because of Dillon's appeal, it could be months before doctors will be able to examine Fox and render their opinion.

Meade ruled that before an examination date can be set, Dillon must be given 48 hours notice to have an opportunity to "observe what transpires" during the medical exam.

Judge upholds city official's decision

Iranian students won't demonstrate in San Antonio

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A state judge — who made it clear he has no use for the shah of Iran or the Ayatollah Khomeini — says an anti-shah rally here could escalate into violence that would have local and international repercussions.

State District Judge Peter Michael Curry ruled Thursday that city officials could deny parade permits to Iranian students who sought to protest the presence of the deposed monarch at nearby Lackland Air Force Base.

The city also denied a permit to Ku Klux Klansmen who planned a counter-rally. The KKK had only planned to counter any Iranian demonstration, and city officials said they feared violent clashes and possible retaliation against the 50 American hostages in Tehran.

"We'd have all kinds of problems, not just local, but international problems," Curry said in an argument with Iranian plaintiff Ali Seyed Fanai Khayat after the ruling.

During the debate, the judge told the San Antonio College student that he would not argue on behalf of either the shah or the current Iranian ruler.

"The plague on both their houses," he said.

The hearing was convened Thursday immediately after Louis Linden, attorney for the students, challenged the city's Tuesday refusal of the permits.

The 200 Iranian at SAC had planned two rallies today — one near Lackland and one downtown. Khayat said the informal SAC student organization represents would not demonstrate without a permit, but cautioned that he could not speak for all of the students.

Linden, who is researching an appeal, contended the Iranians' rights were unfairly overshadowed by the Klan's threats of violence.

"What really terrifies me and makes me want to throw up is that (the city has) told us anything the Ku Klux Klan doesn't like ain't going to happen," argued Linden.

But Crawford Reeder, lawyer for the city, said the decision was not based on the Klan threats.

"The central point is that if it were not for the hostages, (the local Iranians) would be right," he said. Militants holding the American hostages are demanding the return of the shah for trial.

Reeder called local civil rights organization officials who testified the rallies would lead to violence. The witnesses were from black and Mexican-American organizations.

IRS 'totally unrealistic' judge says

MINEOLA, N.Y. (AP) — A Long Island judge says the Internal Revenue Service is money-hungry for taxing a widow's inheritance on a lawsuit that never went to court and from which she has not received a cent.

Nassau County Supreme Court Justice Steven Derouman called the IRS "totally unrealistic" and "heavy handed" for charging Barbara Woodring of Plandome $360,000 tax on a $2.5 million lawsuit.

The judge Wednesday granted the woman's petition for an early trial, saying the government should show a "respectable tolerance for common sense" rather than assuming the widow would win — and owe taxes on — the full amount of the suit, brought on behalf of her deceased husband. He set a February hearing date.

An IRS spokesman said the agency routinely stakes a claim in estate cases to meet a three-year statute of limitations for collecting estate taxes.

Mrs. Woodring brought the suit in April 1977 against the Manhasset School District and Board of Education.

Kyu-hah ends dissent ban

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — In what he called a bid to "promote national reconciliation," South Korea's new president today abolished his predecessor's most hated emergency decree — a gag order which had virtually barred all political dissent.

In his first major act since becoming president on Thursday, Choi Kyu-hah lifted Emergency Decree No. 9 as of midnight tonight.

About 100 political prisoners convicted of violating the decree are expected to be freed once Choi's order takes effect. Sources say they might be out by Saturday morning.

An estimated 200 South Koreans, many of them students, are currently serving prison terms for violating the decree, but about half of them were also convicted on other charges and will remain behind bars, sources said.

Choi's authoritarian predecessor, Park Chung-hee, imposed the emergency decree in May 1975. Park was assassinated Oct. 26 and Choi, his premier, became acting president. On Thursday, the electoral college elected him to serve Park's remaining term and the new president pledged an era of "increased freedom."

Who profits from Exxon's profits? Millions of Americans. Perhaps you.

Exxon's profits are split two ways. So far this year, 42% of our profits have been paid out in the form of dividends on Exxon common stock. The remainder was retained by Exxon, primarily to help pay for new energy projects. You may benefit from both uses of our profits:

Dividends

Millions of Americans have either a direct or indirect share in Exxon profits in the form of dividends. Beyond the 625,000 individuals who have a direct ownership in Exxon, there are 60,000 institutions such as pension funds, trust funds, colleges, foundations and insurance companies in which millions of people have a stake.

In 1979, Exxon's total dividends will give our shareholders a return of about 7% on the current price of Exxon stock.

Reinvested Profits

Over the past ten years, more than half of Exxon's profits have been reinvested in the business, primarily to develop new supplies of oil and natural gas, coal, uranium, solar power and synthetic fuels. But the amount we must spend on these projects far exceeds our profits. We make up the difference mainly by borrowing money and from money set-aside to replace worn-out facilities.

So far in 1979, Exxon's investments in the energy business have been nearly 1 1/2 times as large as our profits — investments that will help to supply energy to millions of consumers.

Elderly may have to pay income tax on SS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The elderly would have to pay income tax on half their retirement benefits and Social Security payroll deductions would be cut under changes recommended to Congress today by a government panel.

The Advisory Council on Social Security also called for:
—Using general tax revenue to pay for Medicare.
—Rejiggering the benefit formula to provide bigger checks for both low wage earners and high wage earners.

—Calculating cost-of-living increases twice a year instead of annually during periods of high inflation.

The council stopped short of endorsing a specific plan to split Social Security credits evenly between husbands and wives, but called some type of earnings-sharing "the most promising approach" to improving benefits for women.

A narrow majority of the 13-member panel said "serious consideration" should be given to raising the normal retirement age of 65, effective after the turn of the century.

The panel recommended liberalization of Social Security's disability program and, in a rebuff to the administration, voted against most of the minor benefit reductions President Carter unsuccessfully sought to get through Congress earlier this year. A narrow majority called for doubling the $255-burial benefit Carter wanted killed.

Councils are created by law every four years to advise Congress on Social Security, and past councils have pointed the way for many changes in the system.

Congress can reject any and all of the recommendations, but the council's 100-page report is certain to influence the on-going debate in Congress about whether to roll back the big payroll tax increase scheduled for 1981.

Henry Aaron, a Brookings Institution economist who chaired the council, said, "I think the chances (for congressional passage) are pretty good on some of our recommendations and possibly for all of them."

The report was peppered with dissenting footnotes, but the council was unanimous in saying "the time has come to finance some part of Social Security with general revenues."

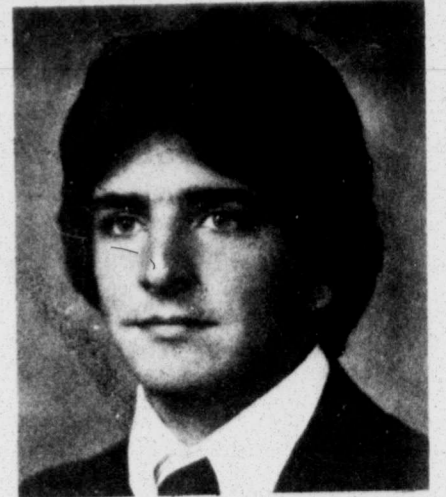

The council recommended trimming the payroll tax from 6.13 percent to 5.6 percent in 1980, and keeping it from rising to 6.65 percent in 1981. The wage base — $22,900 now and headed for $25,900 in 1980 and $29,700 in 1981 — would be held to $24,900 in 1980 and $27,000 in 1981, under the council's recommendations.

A majority said a portion of corporate and income taxes should be earmarked to pay for Medicare, which now absorbs 1 percent of the 6.13 percent payroll tax. Barring that, the majority said, Congress at least should use general revenues to hold the scheduled 1981 rate at 6.4 percent rather than the scheduled 6.65 percent.

But to allay the public's fears about Social Security's solvency, the panel said Congress should raise the payroll tax to 7.25 percent in the year 2005, putting it in the black for the next 75 years.

The council said taxing half the Social Security benefits would result in 10.6 million elderly people paying an average of $350 a year in taxes in addition to what they already pay because of income from various private sources. An additional 13.6 million elderly people would not be affected because even with an increase in taxable income, their total would remain too low to be taxed.

Buried ashes, although not William Brown's, are human

DELAND, Fla. (AP) — The body of William Brown of Daytona Beach was recovered a month ago from the back seat of a car in Georgia, but now lab tests have shown that ashes buried in a canister in his grave were human.

So goes the mysterious "ease of the back seat body."

Sheriff's investigators say they expect to give prosecutors new evidence in the case next week, but they would not say whether the evidence will result in new charges being filed.

"We have some theories, but we haven't been able to prove anything yet," Lt. Ed Carroll said Thursday.

Thomas Gallentine already faces three misdemeanors in the case.

Gallentine was arrested Nov. 7 on U.S. 41 in Georgia about three miles south of the Tennessee border after he was stopped by a deputy for a routine traffic check. The deputy found Brown's body in the car's back seat.

Gallentine and his brother, Gerald, who was following in a second car, were charged by Georgia authorities with concealing a death, a misdemeanor. They were released Nov. 16 on $25,000 bond each. Thomas Gallentine surrendered to Florida authorities 11 days later to face two misdemeanor charges — unlawful shipping of a body out of Florida and unlawful dealing in a dead body. He was released on $1,000 bond.

Two weeks after the first arrest, the body was identified as that of Brown, 73, who died of heart failure at Daytona Beach Community Hospital Oct. 23, investigators said.

His body was taken to a funeral home and then to a crematorium, where it was to have been cremated and buried.

After the body was discovered, investigators dug up the grave believed to contain his remains and found a canister of ashes.

The ashes were sent to the University of Florida anthropology lab in Gainesville Nov. 26.

30 students make top honor roll

San Jacinto Junior High School had 30 students on the A honor roll for the first quarter this year.

In the eighth grade, 14 students made all A's including Deirdre Bell, Karen Eggleston, Shondra Eppinger, Anne Geddes, Julie Griffith, David MacDonald, Carolyn Mear, Patrick Monaghan, Patricia Morgan, Timothy Peabworth, Dian Pruitt, Karen Reddin, Timothy Robinson and John Schweinfurth.

In the seventh grade, 16 students were listed on the honor roll. They were Tiffany Barnes, Blake Callaway, Kathy Cates, Dawn Edwards, Pam Emerson, Kelly Enmon, Shauna Fullen, Lisa Hicks, Riki Ivy, Crystal Lavoie, Susan Newcomer, Karen Pietruszka, Jennifer Reese, Penny Sanchez, Debra White and Michael Womack.

a bouquet of wilted flowers.

"They'll probably be forget-me-nots," she said. "Maybe a few snapdragons. We're having the flowers flown in."

"We are not encouraging the public to show up at the airport. But we're going to have the official welcoming on the City Hall steps, where the public will be welcome," she said.

McBride, announcing a rejection of the one-man, one-vote concept, said union members will get better contracts if they leave ratification to local presidents.

Some 400 USW local presidents, delegates to the union's basic steel industry conference, voted 313-70 Thursday to reject a move to give members individual votes on the basic steel agreement, McBride said.

The one-man, one-vote movement began three years ago, according to USW Local 1397 member Tom Jurgan, one of about 50 persons who marched outside the union conference hall in support of the change.

McBride said the one-man, one-vote movement threatens USW unity.

Meanwhile, the USW delegates petitioned the government to convene an emergency session of the recently formed Steel Tripartite Committee. The union wants the panel to speedily coordinate government aid to ease the impact of massive layoffs planned by U.S. Steel Corp.

"While we question reasons for and the fact of the shutdown decision, we must also respond to the consequences of that decision," McBride said in a prepared statement.

McBride conducted a brief afternoon press conference before returning to the conference podium to preside as the nearly 600 delegates established specific priorities for upcoming national contract talks. Not all the delegates were eligible to vote on the ratification issue, a union spokesman said.

General economic goals for all industries represented by the 1.4 million-member USW were set last month. Specific bargaining priorities for the 286,100 members covered by the basic steel agreement are to be set at the meeting here.

The three-year basic steel agreement — between the USW and the nation's nine top steel-making companies, expires July 31, 1980. More than half the contracts that apply to an additional 169,000 workers in the basic steel industry expire before Dec. 31, 1980.

Steve Martin going 'nowhere'

TERRE HAUTE, Ind. (AP) — Comedian Steve Martin is going "nowhere" today.

Terre Haute, the town Martin dubbed "the most nowhere place in America" is treating him to a tour of a fertilizer plant, a visit to one of its most prestigious car washes and a bucket of fried chicken. The city's "love affair" with Martin began after he said in a Playmate magazine interview that this western Indiana community of 70,000 persons was the most nowhere city in the nation.

He said there were no decent restaurants in town and claimed that a "somewhere" town is marked by the manure ads on television.

So city fathers invited Martin to see the real Terre Haute.

Vicki Weger, aide to Mayor William Brighton, announced Thursday the comic was due today at the city's airport, where he would be greeted with

Water sales show gain

BIG SPRING — Although the monthly total dropped below a billion gallons for the first time this year in November, water sales by the Colorado River Municipal Water District showed a gain.

It was the fourth consecutive month of increase, CRMWD officials said. Based on trends of recent months in comparison with last year, the district is due to top the 16 1/2 billion gallon mark for the year. Through 11 months, deliveries totaled 15,295,175,484 gallons, a decline of 1,302,000,000 gallons from the same period in 1978.

Nearly all of the decline, however, is in deliveries to oil companies and industries in the amount of 2,491,055,000 gallons, or down 1,161,000,000 gallons for the 11 months.

CRMWD officials said much of this is due to cutoff of oil companies from surface supplies as a conservation measure. The same applies to the Texas Electric Service Company's generating plant in Ward County which was cut off in June and resulted in a delivery loss of some 382 million gallons since that time.

November deliveries by the district were 986,545,426 gallons, up 20 million gallons or 2.07 percent. Of this total, sales to cities were 836,806,000 gallons, up 99,482,000 gallons or 13.49 percent.

These included Odessa, 362,278,000 gallons, up 23.13 percent; Big Spring, 190,204,000 gallons, up 15.74 percent; Snyder, 58,761,000 gallons, up 2.46 percent; Stanton, 8,633,000 gallons, up 70.48 percent; and Midland, 216,930,000 gallons, up 4.42 percent.

Pearce to head Rotary

Officers of the Midland Rotary Club for 1980-81, headed by Ted Pearce as president and Jim Crowder as vice president and president-elect, were elected at the club's Thursday noon meeting in the Midland Hilton. John R. Seay presently is serving as president.

Thomas P. "Pat" Garrigan was named treasurer, and R.O. Smith was re-elected secretary.

Directors named include C. Wallace Craig, Bob Davis, John Forsyth, David Maley and Dr. Gene Grimwood.

J. Rudolph Wright, immediate past president, reported for the nominating committee.

A film presentation, "Where Rainbows Wait for Rain," highlighted the program of the day. The color film, interesting, informative and educational, was shown by Harry Gordon, who is associated with The Chihuahuan Desert Research Institute at Alpine.

Plant life and wildlife of the desert region were pictured, along with their relationship with moisture.

Gordon also gave a brief review of The Chihuahuan Desert Institute, its organization, function, operation and objectives. He also cited interesting facts about the Chihuahuan Desert area, which includes much of the Big Bend region and on south into Mexico.

He was introduced by Kent Randel, program chairman.

House bans coverage for abortions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The future of President Carter's efforts to extend Medicaid coverage to more poor children and pregnant women is clouded by a House move to ban funds for abortion unless the mother's life is directly threatened.

The House voted 217-169 Thursday to tack onto Carter's health bill a ban against using Medicaid funds to end pregnancies solely on the grounds of rape or incest.

That puts the House on a direct collision course with the Senate, where lawmakers have been unwilling to accept strong restrictions on Medicaid money for abortions.

The Senate has yet to act on the overall Medicaid bill.

Any major differences between the two versions would have to be worked out in a conference session. Past conferences on abortion bills have been lengthy and sometimes acrimonious.

Rep. Henry A. Waxman, D-Calif., who is leading the floor fight for Carter's proposal, told reporters that anti-abortion leaders may offer still another crippling amendment next week.

Waxman, chairman of the Commerce Committee's health subcommittee, said it is his understanding the proposal would try to prevent states from using their own Medicaid funds for abortions except when the mother's life is in danger.

"I seriously doubt the constitutionality of dictating to states in this way," Waxman said.

The intent of Carter's bill is to expand Medicaid coverage to 5 million poor children in addition to the 12 million now eligible.

It also would give free medical coverage to about 220,000 low-income women during their first pregnancy and for two months after delivery.

The current federal-state Medicaid program does not provide coverage for low-income single women and couples having their first child.

Rep. Harold L. Volkmer, D-Mo., offered the new restrictive language as a substitute for a part of the bill that would have given Medicaid money for aborting pregnancies resulting from rape or incest, or in the event the life of the mother was at risk.

Volkmer argued that no federal Medicaid money should be paid to end pregnancies resulting from rape or incest.

Waxman argued that needy mothers should not be precluded from taking advantage of modern medical techniques that can detect whether an unborn fetus has serious defects.

The government is now operating under an appropriations bill that gives federal money for abortions in cases where the mother's life is directly threatened and in cases of rape and incest.

Group reaffirms women's equality

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (AP) — The Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints has issued a statement reasserting the equality of women under its religious doctrines.

The statement, issued Thursday by Church President Wallace B. Smith, was an apparent attempt to demonstrate that the church did not agree with the excommunication this week of a woman member of the Mormon Church who had supported the Equal Rights Amendment.

The Independence, Mo.-based RLDS Church, which split in the 1840s with the Mormons over the issue of polygamy, quoted from a resolution passed by its world conference in 1972.

"The present age is witnessing a worldwide struggle in which women are seeking the same equality that the church cherishes in scriptures and resolutions. Therefore, be it resolved that the church reconfirm its belief in the principle of equality as applying also to women."

Spokeswoman Renee Murray said the church had received numerous calls about its policy toward women and the ERA since the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints excommunicated Sonia Johnson Wednesday in Sterling, Va.

"The church wanted to dispel any idea that it has the same policy," she said. "They want to make clear the differences between the two groups."

DES firms now subject to suit

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Women who risk health problems because their mothers took the synthetic hormone DES can sue all manufacturers that distributed it in Michigan at the time, the state Supreme Court has ruled.

The court Thursday reinstated a lawsuit filed by 165 women and 17 of their husbands against 16 makers of the drug. All the women, whose mothers took DES to prevent miscarriage, have cancer or precancerous lesions, the suit claims.

"It's probably the most important appellate decision, affecting more people, than any in the recent history of the U.S.," said lawyer Leonard Charfoos of Detroit. Charfoos filed the suit in 1974 and estimates DES was given to 2 million American women.

The suit claims most women have no way of learning which company manufactured the DES prescribed to their mothers.

The 16 firms sued, including pharmaceutical giants Eli Lilly Co., Upjohn Co., Rexall Drug Co. and Abbot Laboratories, all distributed DES in Michigan while the women's mothers were pregnant, Charfoos said. The companies named say more than 300 firms made and distributed DES during that time.

The suit charges that the companies named "acted in concert to produce and market ineffective and dangerous products without adequate testing and without adequate warnings."

DES stands for several, similar synthetic hormones banned by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration in 1971. As of 1977, it still was prescribed in small doses to non-pregnant women for various problems.

In the late 1960s, researchers linked DES to cervical and vaginal abnormalities in the daughters of women who used the drug during pregnancy.

"We will appeal for a rehearing before the Court of Appeals," said Russ Durbin, spokesman for the Indianapolis-based Lilly Co. "If that's denied, we will petition the state Supreme Court."

Wayne County Circuit Court Judge Thomas Roumell dismissed all but 70 of the complaints in May 1977, saying the women had to be able to identify which manufacturer made the DES their mother took.

All 182 of the women and husbands appealed, and the Appeals Court panel voted 2-1 to restore all the suits, sending the case back to Roumell for trial.

The lawsuit seeks at least $10,000 damages for each of the 182 plaintiffs.

Jogging good for depression

MANHASSET, N.Y. — Jogging proved at least as good as psychotherapy for eight patients with mild to moderate depression in a study of 28 depressed outpatients at the University of Wisconsin-Madison's Health Sciences' Psychiatric Clinic.

As reported in "Medical Times" the group was randomly assigned to either 10 sessions of psychotherapy, unlimited sessions of psychotherapy, or the running treatment. At two-week intervals, psychological tests were given to gauge levels of depression. A one-year followup study showed that most of the patients became regular runners and remained symptom-free.

At 16, paternity suit doesn't fit

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Our son is a 16-year-old high school sophomore who is very mature for his age. He's been steadily dating a 17-year-old senior for about a year. We've always had an excellent rapport with our son and have openly discussed sex, reproduction and contraception.

She and her parents have talked with a school counselor and today she starts classes at an alternative school for school-aged mothers and mothers-to-be. She told all her friends at school before telling our son and he is now being approached with all sorts of questions and comments from his teachers and classmates.

The girl states she is happy about it and just hopes our son will be a good "Daddy." She's even asked him to participate in natural child-birth classes with her.

Employees defy cloak, dagger image

WASHINGTON (AP) — Information is the stock-in-trade of any foreign embassy and the United States, like most of its major adversaries and allies, regularly uses a number of diplomatic posts as cover for spies.

But the bulk of information gathered in embassies is compiled and analyzed by diplomatic employees who defy the cloak-and-dagger image being bandied about by militants in Tehran. Rather, they work routinely and above-board to glean their material from such sources as the daily newspapers, local academic journals or from open contacts with officials of the host government.

For a diplomat, part of the job is to study local political, economic, military and cultural trends. Some sources are as obvious as a parade of Soviet tanks through Moscow's Red Square; foreign diplomats here elbow their way into congressional hearings on the Pentagon budget.

little that has been released appears to be rather routine analyses of Iran's political turbulence.

A 1976 report of the Senate Intelligence Committee indicates that first-hand observation and official contacts with other governments make up "the most useful element of our foreign intelligence information."

The report, which concluded a 15 month examination of intelligence activities, made this distinction between diplomats and embassy employees and intelligence agents:

"The Foreign Service (of the State Department) competes with the clandestine service (of the CIA) in the production of human source intelligence, but operates openly and does not pay its sources."

stantially informed about espionage or counterintelligence activities directed at foreign governments."

Since the early 1960s, the CIA also has had the responsibility for transmitting most U.S. diplomatic communications. The National Security Agency, a secret agency that eavesdrops on overseas communications, also has been known to operate in U.S. embassies abroad.

ANOTHER ASPECT of intelligence is carried out by military attaches whose embassy duties are to collect information about defense capabilities. U.S. military attaches regularly report to the Defense Intelligence Agency.

Much of the information on intelligence activities has come from American critics of the CIA, such as John Marks, an author and former intelligence analyst at the State Department.

Marks once estimated that more than 25 percent of the persons working for the State Department overseas actually are with the CIA.

His voice could elevate cheap B movies into horror classics

By FRANK GREEN Copley News Service

MONTECITO, Calif. — The gaunt, slightly bent figure manning the watering the back lawn of a modest stucco home here could almost have passed as the gardener.

But the piercing eyes and the booming Shakespearean voice still carry the intensity that has the power to elevate cheap B movies into horror classics.

John Carradine, 186 films and countless stage productions (six on Broadway) later, looks all of his 73 years.

The hair has thinned and his arthritic hands are gnarled. But he is markedly less sinister than his classic character roles in "Billy the Kid vs. Dracula," "Revenge of the Zombies," "Voodoo Man" and "Invasion of the Animal People."

"These films were crap," he began, dismissing them in one dramatic wave of the hand. "I did a lot of crap. I had sons to raise, so there were parts I had to take. I couldn't afford to wait around for good parts to come up."

Nowadays, he has trouble getting any work to come his way.

So he earns his bread and butter playing bit roles in movies (most recently "Nesting" and "The Littlest Hobo") and touring on the dinner theater circuit.

Seated on a lawn chair amidst the lush, well-tended vegetation of the backyard and chain-smoking Player's Navy Cut cigarettes, Carradine talked about both the good and the bad times in a career that has spanned 50 years.

"I signed with 20th Century-Fox for $250 a week in '35," he said, following the path of the sprinkler as it moved over his lawn. "Most actors of my caliber were making $1,000 a week then. Each year, the studio would pick up my option. I became pigeonholed, lost in the shuffle."

On his fifth year, the studio finally gave him a raise and he signed with Fox once again. He recognized that it was a mistake almost immediately.

"They were making $1,750 a week loaning me out to other studios," he recalled. "I knuckled under. I was deathly afraid of having a reputation as someone with a big head."

One actor that did go to the mat with the studio was Anthony Quinn, who walked out on his contract in protest of his low salary. After a few weeks, Carradine recalls, Quinn came back with a new contract pegged at $1,000 a week.

"It would probably have worked for me. But walking out was just something I couldn't do. I gave my word when I signed the contract."

Over half of massacre victims on welfare

LOS ANGELES (AP) — More than half the 913 victims of the Peoples Temple massacre in Guyana had been on California's welfare rolls, and 109 were still receiving payments when they died, a state report said Thursday.

Secretary of Health and Welfare Mario Obledo said California lost $35,000 to $40,000 in payments fraudulently collected by Peoples Temple members and relatives.

The report, product of a year-long investigation, stressed that none of the 301 children who perished at Guyana were foster children at the time of their deaths.

"Our conclusion is that not a single one was under the care and supervision of our Department of Social Services," Obledo said.

He noted that 20 children previously had been in foster homes but were returned to their natural parents or legal guardians who later took them to Guyana in a mass migration by the followers of the Rev. Jim Jones.

Obledo conceded that although there were no illegalities in placing the children, the system failed to detect the dangers facing them.

"What I see here is a system that can be abused, obviously," he told a news conference. "Here is a system that deals with placement of children that I believe is defective."

Obledo and Marion J. Woods, director of the state Department of Social Services, called for "bold legislative action" to consolidate a myriad of welfare agencies which "allow some children to fall through the cracks."

Woods said a central agency with responsibility for all children might prevent such problems.

However, Woods said the report's conclusions should raise public confidence in the welfare system.

"In no instance did we see any wide abuse of the social welfare system of California," he said. "We find our systems were in place."

The report showed that 992 members of the Peoples Temple migrated to Guyana in a movement begun in 1974 by the maniacal Jones. On Nov. 18, 1978, a mass murder-suicide at the sect's Jonestown settlement claimed 913 lives.

Obledo said the state's probe was launched after reports that Jones had manipulated welfare funds for his own benefit. The report, he said, shows such claims are unsubstantiated.

"We found that approximately half of the 992 people in Guyana had at one time or another received some public assistance," he said. The report put the figure at 550.

Of those, Obledo said 109 were receiving aid when they died and 51 of those were involved in "some sort of fraud."

The frauds, he said, included having checks sent to addresses in San Francisco where other church members or relatives forged signatures to cash them.

Mayor said publicity on eviction made him look like a 'slum-lord'

SMYRNA, Del. (AP)

— Mayor George E. Bryson, irate over publicity he said made him look like a "slumlord," says he'll go along with city council and evict an elderly woman from the rundown house he rented to her out of charity.

The house is the target of a city council proposal to require owners of substandard homes to demolish or repair them.

Councilman George C. Wright said he introduced the housing measure, to be considered Monday, specifically because of complaints about the condition of the house owned by Bryson.

"I was trying to be nice to someone and this is the thanks I get," Bryson said Wednesday night. "I was a good Samaritan and all I got was bad publicity."

Bryson said a woman he didn't know called him last month and asked him to rent the home to Alzene Mitchell, 64, after she was evicted from an apartment.

"It's not in any condition to rent. I'll be the first to admit it," he said of the unpainted house, which has several broken windows and holes in the outside walls.

"Then I thought that but for the grace of God, it could be me. So I said that if she could make out with the house the way it was, she could live there until she could find something else," he said.

Bryson said he rented the house to Mrs. Mitchell for $75 a month, "but she's been in there since Nov. 1 and hasn't paid me one cent."

"I don't intend to take a penny from her, either. I'm just going to ask her to leave," he said.

Mrs. Mitchell, a diabetic who lives on $228 a month from Social Security, agrees that Bryson was doing her a favor, "but I'd move tomorrow if I could because I know that this is not good for me."

Bryson said he paid the town to turn on the water and electricity but Mrs. Mitchell said the home has no water because a plumber told her, the pipes are broken.

She said there is no

heat because she hasn't bought the fuel tank the oil company requires before it will begin deliveries.

Her son has tacked plastic over windows, and a piece of carpeting has been wedged between the front door and its frame to keep drafts out. The back door is broken and is propped against the frame.

Bryson said the home's former tenants, who left in June, owe him about $1,000 in rent and "tore the place up" when they lived there.

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — The city of Arlington has joined the ranks of Texas cities banning untreated wood shingles in construction of new apartment complexes.

A massive apartment fire in Houston last summer sparked similar moves by several cities, said Arlington Fire Chief Pat Martin.

Builders have favored such shingles for their looks as well as their economy.

OC to offer 'reader's theater' this spring

ODESSA — Odessa College will incorporate "reader's theater" as a part of its forensics program beginning with the spring semester, according to Don Nichols, forensics director, and professor of speech.

"Group performances which use no props or costumes are called 'reader's theater,'" Nichols said. "The art is really a combination of speech and theater, and both poetry and prose are used."

Reader's theater practice will be held once a week next spring. The college will enter competition in the reader's theater category in at least two regular tournaments and in the junior college national competition.

Nichols said persons with no previous experience can be trained in reader's theater.

Interested persons should contact Nichols at Odessa College for further information.

Nation's oil consumption down...if it's not too late

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials say the nation finally is making significant progress in reducing its consumption of oil. They hope it isn't too late.

Treasury Secretary G. William Miller cites the following evidence that oil use is down:

—Total consumption for the first 11 months of the year was off 2.5 percent from the same period last year, averaging about 18.4 million barrels a day.

—Net imports are under 8 million barrels a day, well below President Carter's self-imposed limit of 8.2 million.

—Consumption in the July-through-September period was 7.8 percent below the same period in 1978.

—Gasoline consumption in October was 8 percent below a year earlier.

Chase Econometric Associates, an economic forecasting firm, reports similar results in a late-November analysis. It said gasoline consumption for the year is down 4 percent.

"Overall petroleum demand will be down by more than 2 percent this year, the first decline since the 1974-1975 recession, despite larger-than-normal inventory accumulation," it said.

Chase attributed the decline to the increase in prices, the slowdown in economic growth and the substitution of other fuels, especially natural gas. Miller says the decline is partly due to the energy program enacted by Congress last year.

Both Miller and Chase predicted a further decline in U.S. oil consumption in 1980. Chase said consumption worldwide will drop 5 percent next year, a savings of between 2 million and 3 million barrels of oil a day.

These are positive results, whatever the cause. But the big question for U.S. officials is whether they have come in time.

The major oil-producing nations of Saudi Arabia, Kuwait and Abu Dhabi are tiring of maintaining production at maximum levels, and all are considering cutbacks, although they haven't said when.

They argue that they are earning more from their oil production than they need to finance their own economies, and the extra oil should be left in the ground to meet future needs.

But the United States fears that substantial cutbacks in 1980 would push oil prices sharply higher and bring on a worldwide recession. Oil supply and demand are now balanced "on a knife's edge," one official said.

Officials are especially worried about Saudi Arabia, which has been producing 9.5 million barrels a day since the Iranian oil cutback last summer, but which would like to cut back to 8.5 million barrels a day.

Miller was in the Middle East last week promising Saudi Arabia, Kuwait and Abu Dhabi that if they maximize production for a while longer the United States will "make renewed and redoubled efforts" to further reduce oil consumption.

"We are absolutely committed to reducing oil consumption and will continue to reduce it," he told reporters accompanying him on the trip. If necessary, he said, President Carter will recommend gasoline rationing or higher gasoline taxes to bring this about.

While Miller returned without any promises, he said he thinks the oil producers will maintain adequate production to meet demand, although he qualified this by saying there are a lot of "ifs."

"They don't want to sign a pledge in advance," he said. "They want to see the whites of the eyes of the consuming nations' performance."

Miller hopes the U.S. record in 1979 will convince them to keep pumping at high levels just a little bit longer.

Shah passes time in Texas sun

By GREG THOMPSON

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — As worldwide controversy swirls around him, the recuperating shah of Iran quietly passes his time at Lackland Air Force Base reading, playing chess, visiting by phone and strolling in unseasonably warm Texas weather.

The homeless Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi, 60, is secluded behind thick government secrecy and security, but sources and his top spokesman have provided glimpses of the shah's routine since his arrival here Sunday for an indefinite period of convalescence.

Much of the routine, Armao said Wednesday, is aimed at rebuilding the shah's strength and weight after his five weeks of cancer and gallstone treatments in a New York hospital.

"The shah is walking around. He has been confined for about six weeks in one hospital room, so his muscles are out of tone," said Armao. "He still suffers from a great loss of weight, something over 20 pounds. We hope that during his recuperation process he is able to gain the weight back.

"The prognosis at this time is very, very good," Armao said of the shah's health future, adding the shah is being treated as an outpatient. "Of course, lymphatic cancer is a very serious illness and could recur at any time."

The shah is treated as an outpatient.

Armao said the shah has been taking daily walks around the 6,828-acre base in the sunny weather as temperatures reached the balmy high 70s this week.

Sources close to the shah said he strolled Monday on the Lackland golf course, accompanied by 62 security guards. He watched his wife, the Empress Farah, play tennis on the base Tuesday.

The shah, said his spokesman, is accompanied on some walks by his wife and the couple's two dogs, a Great Dane and a small poodle.

He is watched constantly by a woman Iranian doctor, one Iranian bodyguard and at least one Air Force security policeman, a source said.

Armao said the Shah's doctor occasionally consults with Air Force doctors.

The shah quietly arrived early Sunday, spent a few hours in a private, fourth-floor ward at Wilford Hall Hospital and was later moved to the comfortable, barracks-like Visiting Officers Quarters elsewhere on the base.

The area is sealed off from the rest of the base and surrounded by several layers of defense.

"He is very satisfied with the security. The accommodations are very comfortable. He is very grateful," said Armao, who added that the shah is footing the bill.

A source said the shah is also very apologetic for the inconvenience caused by his visit to the United States.

The shah was initially taken to the hospital because the sudden departure didn't allow Lackland officials enough time to prepare the shah's quarters, Armao said.

The shah reads and talks on the telephone much of the time, and a source said he also enjoys games of chess. Armao said the Air Force provides his food, reportedly from the nearby Officers Club.

"The shah is in constant communication with friends and former officials of his government," he said. "He talks with his children in the evening on the phone. They are being educated in the United States."

The shah is purposely remaining silent on the hostage crisis in Tehran to avoid enflaming the situation, his spokesman said.

The revolutionary regime accuses the shah of stealing billions of dollars and ordering mass murders. Armao said those allegations must also remain unanswered until the 50 American hostages are safe.

"It's been very difficult for him to remain silent while the accusations are being hurled at him," said Armao. "The shah continues to pray for the safe return of the American hostages, and for his country."

The deposed ruler has access to newspapers and television. He was aware of Sen. Edward Kennedy's recent remarks critical of the shah's presence in the United States and was "saddened" by them, said Armao.

The shah also watched a local television newscast that featured footage of a Monday stroll, which was secretly photographed with a telephoto lens by a television cameraman who sneaked on base. "He saw it, but had no comment," said Armao.

Militant Iranians holding the American hostages at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran are demanding the return of the shah for trial.

Thirty years ago, just a few scrubby balsam trees dotted the hills near Canaan, Vt., and cows ruled the countryside. Now, the cows are gone and workers are busy harvesting the area's crop of Christmas trees. (AP Laserphoto)

77-year-old man haunted by 30 years in coal mines

By STRAT DOUTHAT

OHLEY, W.Va. (AP) — Some men dream of fame and riches, but not George Noble. He dreams of mining coal.

"I dream an awful lot about being down in the mines," the 77-year-old Cabin Creek resident said recently.

And, like everybody else, Noble has his good nights and his bad nights. Sometimes he loads a lot of coal in his dreams. Other times his dreams are dark and troubled.

"Sometimes I dream I'm in low coal and the air is bad," he said. "I came out of bed the other night and landed on the stove. I almost killed myself."

A small man with failing eyesight and lung problems, Noble grew up in eastern Kentucky near the West Virginia border. He can well remember the first time he ever went down into a coal mine.

"I was 11 years old," he said. "I went down under Big Black Mountain and helped my stepfather load coal by hand. I was so little I couldn't handle a shovel, so I'd go around picking up the lumps and tossing them in the bin."

Noble spent the next 30 years in the mines. "I left Kentucky and came to Cabin Creek in 1936," he said. "Those were hard times, but we got along all right. My wife and I had 10 kids, five boys and five girls."

Lueranie Noble sat listening to her husband tell about his years in the mines. She said his dreams had kept her awake many a night.

"I can't sleep with him," said Mrs. Noble. "He's so restless. He'll holler out in his sleep and like to scare me to death."

George Noble nodded in agreement.

"I dreamed the other night about a man I'd worked with years ago."

Apartment taken
NEW YORK (AP) — Russian ballet dancer Rudolf Nureyev just shelled out $350,000 sight unseen for an apartment at the famous Dakota, according to tenants quoted by the New York Daily News.

The News said Nureyev was in Paris when his agent, Barry Weinstein, called Wednesday and told him an apartment at the prestigious address — called home by Lauren Bacall and John Lennon — was available.

he said. "We were working knee deep in water in low coal. I worked for years in coal so low you had to crawl into the mine and carry your dinner bucket in your mouth. And, I've worked 14 hours lots of times for $2.50."

Although he was forced to leave the mines in 1945 because of heart and lung problems, Noble said he never suffered a serious injury during his three decades underground.

"I was never hurt, except once when I lost the tip end of my little finger," he said, holding up the scarred digit as proof. "I drew $2.50 in compensation."

Noble readily admits that coal mining is in his blood, as well as his dreams.

"Oh, I dream of other things," he said. "But mostly I dream of the mines. I was only in my 40s when I had to leave the mines. I wanted so much to work in the mines. I liked it."

One thing he doesn't like, however, is the plight of many older miners.

"I worked more than 30 years in the mines, off and on," he said. "But I didn't even get a pension because I quit before 1946. It's not fair. Us old fellers went through all that slavery and brought the union to where it is today."

Science is new China god

By BOB CORBETT
Copley News Service

The scientific potential of China is immense even though it has been kept on the back burners for the last decade or so, says Dr. William A. Nierenberg, director of the Scripps Institute of Oceanography in La Jolla, Calif.

There are very definite signs that China is beginning to awake from this Scientific slumber, Nierenberg said shortly after ending a four-month private give-and-take lecture tour of the Asian nation.

In fact, Nierenberg said, it now seems "that science is God in China."

The importance of science to China's future, he indicated, is expressed not only in laboratories but also in its cultural activities, such as ballet.

Nonetheless, he said, it will take the Chinese years to catch up with the Western world.

The decades of neglect, he said, have taken their toll of China's scientific manpower and technology.

The Chinese have no illusions about the situation, Nierenberg said, but they seem willing to pay the price of playing catchup.

"All they can do is look to the future. They're not looking back."

But the Scripps director noted that the Chinese have a solid scientific base on which to build.

It's hard, he noted, to go back over the last 3,000-4,000 years and find a new thought — rockets, gunpowder and even spaghetti — that the Chinese didn't think of first.

What the scientific lapse has cost the Chinese in recent years, he said, is the "infrastructure" — the intimate relationships between education, industry and supporting agencies — that marks the great achievements of Western science.

At the moment, he said, the Chinese have a few really good professors.

One of them is Dr. C.K. Tseng, who conducted postdoctoral work at Scripps in the mid-40s.

The problem, he said, is that there are few good teachers between the Tsengs and the young students of China.

Another problem, he said, is that China seems to be spending too much time trying to develop its own technology from the ground up.

It would be better — and Nierenberg told the Chinese that — for them to simply buy existing Western technology in fields such as computers.

The Chinese seem to appreciate these problems, he said. They are, for example, sending literally hundreds of thousands of students to Western universities.

They also see the new remote sensing satellite systems as a means to "leapfrog" the tedious cataloging of natural resources that Western nations did scores of years ago.

UTPB course offers Mexico tour

ODESSA — A five-day tour of Mexico will top off a multidisciplinary course being offered this spring at The University of Texas at the Permian Basin.

"Mexico's Indian Heritage" will be the topic of the course which will study Mexican Indians as revealed through archaeology, modern history and literature.

Classes will meet from 10 a.m. to noon each Saturday for eight weeks before the final tour, slated April 2-7. Registration is scheduled Jan. 10-11 in the UTPB student lounge.

A team teaching approach will give students a more balanced view of the Mexican Indian and his background, according to Dr. Gordon Bronitsky, one of three professors teaching the course.

Bronitsky, assistant professor of anthropology, will teach the first part of the course dealing with the pre-Columbian Indians of ancient Mexico.

Dr. Frank Samponaro, assistant professor of history, will teach the second portion of the course on the plight of the Indians during colonial and modern Spanish rule.

Dr. Genaro Perez, assistant professor of Spanish, will deal with how the Indians are portrayed in the literature of Mexico.

The tour, which will complete the course, will begin at Midland Regional Airport April 2. Cost is $360 including air fare, room, several tours and transfers to and from the airport.

Last year, UTPB offered a course with a similar format, but this year's course and tour are new. Students who enrolled in last year's course may take this class and receive credit, Bronitsky said.

Spouses and children of students may go on the Mexican tour, he added.

The class is available to students who want to take it for no grade or no credit through the university's Encore option. Under this enrollment option, students receive no grade and no credit, and the course does not affect the student's transcript. Encore students, however, must meet enrollment requirements at UTPB.

The course is among 330 classes being offered during the university's spring registration Jan. 10-11. Enrollment at the upper-level university is open to students who have completed 60 credit hours or more of course work at any accredited college or university.

Registration permits go fast at MC

Time permits for spring semester registration at Midland College are going quickly, according to registrar Dee Windsor.

More than 600 students already have preregistered for the spring term. Time permits are given to students who complete their preregistration and are assigned specific time periods to report for registration.

"Obviously, the earlier a student preregisters, the better his or her chance to get a class schedule that fits and to get into classes that are most desirable before they are filled," Windsor pointed out.

Preregistration for all credit courses, both academic and vocational, is handled in the Office of Student Services in the Administration Building. The office is open from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday and from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Fridays through Dec. 20. After the Christmas holidays, preregistration will resume from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Jan. 2-8.

Spring semester registration is scheduled for Jan. 9 and 10, with classes beginning Jan. 14.

"Persons who need assistance from counselors regarding their college careers, transfer to other four-year colleges or vocational information should visit the Office of Student Services as soon as possible. Information about scholarships, grants or veterans' assistance also is available at this time from Midland College counseling staff," Windsor said.

Information may be obtained by calling 684-7851, extension 166 or 251.

Drafting courses set for spring

ODESSA — Drafting boards and T-squares ready, Odessa College's spring semester evening courses will offer aspiring as well as experienced draftsmen the opportunity to get things in perspective.

Five evening drafting courses will be offered during the spring term at Odessa College. Ken Hurst, head of drafting technology, has announced.

Night classes scheduled to meet Tuesdays and Thursdays are technical drafting I, technical illustrations and advanced technical illustration.

Architectural drafting and advance architectural drafting classes will meet Monday and Wednesday evenings.

All classes will meet from 7 to 9:30 p.m. Persons may register early for drafting and other courses scheduled next spring in the Odessa College registrar's office, located on the second floor of the Student Union Building. Early registration runs through Dec. 14. Classes begin Jan. 14.

This picture, taken early in 1979, shows Chinese reading posters critical of the Peking government at Democracy Wall, a brick barrier surrounding a Peking bus depot. The wall, which became a public forum for dissent, was banned Thursday by the Peking city government. The ban goes into effect as of Saturday and will curtail public criticism of the city government in the future.

Rhodesia cease-fire complexities causing Britain more problems

LONDON (AP) — Despite a threat by Patriotic Front guerrillas to "tear up" the new accord for a Zimbabwe Rhodesian cease-fire, the British government today announced the name of its governor for the war-torn colony and published the bill that will give the African country independence next year.

Guerrilla leaders said Thursday they would not abide by the cease-fire unless Zimbabwe Rhodesian forces were forced to withdraw to the same type and number of camps as those set up for guerrilla troops. British officials took a calm view of the latest snag and said it would be discussed today.

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's Conservative government also announced it had selected Lord Soames as governor to take full con-rol of the former British colony during a transition period leading to fresh elections. He is to arrive in Salisbury next week.

Soames, son-in-law of the late Sir Winston Churchill, is a member of Mrs. Thatcher's cabinet and leader of the House of Lords. The U.S. Senate voted Thursday 90 to 0 to lift economic sanctions against Zimbabwe Rhodesia as soon as the governor takes over.

The Zimbabwe Bill is expected to get emergency passage through Britain's Parliament by next Wednesday.

It includes an amnesty for guerrillas and for the whites who declared unilateral independence from Britain in 1965 in a bid to forestall black majority rule. Their action led to United Nations sanctions and sparked off a seven-year war with the Patriotic Front guerrillas led by Joshua Nkomo and Robert Mugabe. The war is estimated to have cost 20,000 lives.

Muzorewa replaced former white prime minister Ian Smith earlier this year, but whites retain 28 seats in the 100-seat parliament under terms of a new constitution. The guerrillas boycotted the election.

Under the chairmanship of British Foreign Secretary Lord Carrington, a "basic agreement" was hammered out Wednesday at the 13-week constitutional conference on a cease-fire between the Patriotic Front and Prime Minister Abel Muzorewa's army.

But at Thursday's peace talks, nagging Patriotic Front doubts about cease-fire logistics brought a threat from Nkomo to "tear up" the agreement.

"We are willing to reciprocate but we do not accept that we must do what others are not required to do," said Robert Mugabe, the other Front leader.

Under the compromise accord, peacekeeping forces would encircle all 15 assembly points accommodating Front guerrillas from their sanctuaries in neighboring African countries. Zimbabwe Rhodesian forces would be allowed to stay in operational positions, also surrounded by the peacekeeping forces made up of British, Australian, Fiji, Kenyan, and New Zealand troops.

The Front also refused to disclose the strength of its forces until the Rhodesian army did likewise.

China says adieu to Democracy Wall

PEKING (AP) — In the last hours of Democracy Wall's official existence today, thin crowds eddied curiously around the landmark, paupers again posted their tales of woe and a handful of guards kept an indifferent vigil.

On Thursday the city government ordered that effective Saturday, all posters would be hanged from the wall, the battered shrine of China's tiny democracy movement.

Such signs will only be permitted at places of employment and at the small, secluded Moon Altar Park a mile away. Anyone wishing to put up a poster in the park must first register his name, pseudonym, address and place of work.

Authorities said the move was necessary to curtail "illegal activities" at the wall, which for the last year has been covered with a multitude of criticisms and complaints, some directed at the Communist Party leadership.

The official notice of the wall's demise appeared today on the wall itself and on the front pages of three Peking newspapers, including the party newspaper, the People's Daily.

The Daily, voice of the city government, said the new regulation "fully reflects the hope and desire of the broad masses of the people."

The newspaper added: "A small handful of black sheep here have created disturbances, blocked the traffic, seriously disrupted the social order" and interfered with China's drive to become a modern nation by the turn of the century.

Soviet jets bomb Afghan villages

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Soviet warplanes supporting government forces in the 19-month-old Afghan civil war, have bombed northeastern Afghan villages believed to be in rebel control, according to a delayed report from Kabul.

A usually reliable source on Thursday said Soviet MiG jet fighters and helicopter gunships from Soviet bases struck the villages after Moslem insurgents seized major towns including Faizabad, capital of the strategic Badakhshan Province that borders the Soviet Union, China and Pakistan.

Diplomatic sources in New Delhi were unable to confirm the use of Soviet planes.

The rebel tribesmen are battling to overthrow President Hafizullah Amin and establish an Islamic republic in the overwhelmingly Moslem country. They control about half the rugged Afghan country side.

Red Brigade kills Roman policeman

ROME (AP) — Red Brigade terrorists shot and killed a policeman on a Rome street today, the third police official killed in the capital in a month, detectives reported.

They said Mariano Romiti, 45, was ambushed by three or four terrorists as he left home for work and cut down by a hail of gunfire Romiti died at Rome's San Giovanni Hospital. He was shot nine times, the hospital said.

His assailants, described by police as young, fled in a car.

A caller identifying himself as "Col. Colonna of the Red Brigades" told a Rome newspaper his gang was responsible. The two previous police murders in Rome also were claimed by the Red Brigades, the terrorists who kidnapped and killed five-time Premier Aldo Moro last year.

Explosion in DMZ; Five soldiers injured

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — An explosion in the demilitarized zone separating North and South Korea today injured five American soldiers who were on patrol and probably lost in heavy fog, a U.N. command spokesman said. A sixth soldier was listed as missing.

The injured soldiers were evacuated by a helicopter which had to enter the DMZ in an area normally prohibited to aircraft, the spokesman said. They were taken to U.S. Army medical facilities in Seoul where one was reported in serious condition and four in good condition.

The U.N. command asked North Korea for assistance in locating the missing soldier, said Col. John A.G. Klose, spokesman for the U.N. command.

Haughey chosen to be future prime minister

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Health Minister Charles Haughey was chosen prime minister designate of Ireland by parliamentary members of the Fianna Fail Party here today.

Haughey, 54, is reputed to be more sympathetic than current Prime Minister Jack Lynch to the aims of the Irish Republican Army guerrillas who are fighting to drive the British from Northern Ireland and unite the province with the Irish Republic.

Canada to hike exports

OTTAWA (AP) — Canada has agreed to nearly double its natural gas exports to the United States through 1987 and says it will sell the additional 3.75 trillion cubic feet of gas at current prices, which are lower than Mexico's.

Ray Hnatyshyn, the Conservative government's energy minister, announced approval of the additional sales on Thursday.

He said the gas from Alberta would be sold at the current price of about $3.45 per 1,000 cubic feet. That's 17 cents less than the $3.62 per 1,000 cubic feet Mexico will start charging the United States for its gas after Jan. 1.

Hnatyshyn's announcement drew immediate criticism on grounds Canada will need the gas itself.

Marc Lalonde, the opposition Liberal Party's energy spokesman, said it was "one of the biggest sellouts in Canadian history." He said the additional gas exports came at a time when Canada faced its own energy shortages, and he predicted the short "will live to regret it."

The additional gas is almost twice what Canada's National Energy Board had calculated last March would be surplus to Canadian needs through the 1980s. Canada currently uses about 1.6 trillion cubic feet a year and exports about 1 trillion cubic feet.

Hnatyshyn answered critics saying he was satisfied the energy board had made "ample provision" for Canada's future energy needs, even taking into account the greatly expanded markets in Quebec, the Atlantic provinces and British Columbia.

Pan-Alberta Gas Ltd., of Calgary, was given government permission to provide almost half the total new exports in a bid to encourage early construction of southern portions of the proposed trans-Canadian pipeline. Eventually that pipeline will carry Alaskan natural gas across Alberta to the United States.

Pan-Alberta is partly owned by one of the Canadian companies working with U.S. firms on the pipeline project. The rest of the additional gas will be supplied by nine other companies.

The minister's announcement came on a day when the government came under attack in House of Commons, over predicted shortages of heating oil in eastern Canada this winter. Opposition critics suggested the government should cut oil exports to the United States.

Canada currently ships about 100,000 barrels of oil a day to the United States, along with 75,000 barrels a day of refined petroleum products, including heating oil.

The No. 1 J.M. Henderson is also one location north of depleted production, 467 from north and east lines of section 11, block 17, SPRR survey.

Spooky raindrops, melted plastic only signs of a near catastrophe

MIDDLETOWN, Pa. (AP) — Spooky raindrops, radioactive debris and a melted plastic chain are the only visible signs that a catastrophe nearly erupted in the building that houses Three Mile Island's mangled nuclear reactor. Reporters got their first televised look inside the containment building Thursday, by way of a remotely operated camera poked through a hole in the building's wall last month. The gray, cylindrical building attracted world attention for several weeks last spring when a cooling mechanism in the reactor went awry, causing the worst commercial nuclear accident in U.S. history. But lethal levels of radiation prevented anyone from looking inside until a 9-inch hole was drilled in its massive concrete wall Nov. 10. According to Robert Arnold, chief of the recovery operation at Three Mile Island, the best thing about the film was what it did not show. "I think what it shows is that there is not any evidence that the hydrogen detonation that occurred March 28, on the afternoon of the accident, caused any sign of structural damage inside the building."

South Texas puts oil spill case before House

WASHINGTON (AP) — South Texas government and business representatives have put their case before a House panel considering a measure that would offer federal compensation for damages caused by the massive Ixtoc 1 oil spill. "Our business community has suffered great losses through no business decision made by our business people and for which no insurance can be purchased," Kirby Liljendahl of South Padre Island said Thursday at a House subcommittee hearing. The beach town was among the hardest hit by the scarcity of tourists during a peak summer period. A bill introduced by Rep. Joe Wyatt, D-Texas, would authorize up to $80 million in federal funds to compensate for damages or losses caused by oil that arrived on Texas beaches from the Mexican well. Ralph Thompson of the South Padre Island Tourist Bureau estimated that hotel occupancy rates dropped from about 100 percent to 30 percent as news of the oil threat spread. He said the start of the winter tourist season would show how effectively a publicity campaign has spread the word about the oil-free beaches. Although winds and currents changed to drive the oil back toward the south, the spill in the Bay of Campeche continues and the reversal of currents in the spring could threaten the Texas coast again. "This time it may not go away after a month," Wyatt said. "It might last all summer." Texas officials threw their support to the compensation bill. Lawsuits have been filed by the state's attorney general, local governments and private organizations seeking millions of dollars in damages. Doug Caroom, representing Texas Attorney General Mark White, said federal compensation would relieve the international repercussions stemming from the pending lawsuits. Any recovery for damages that the federal government later received from private companies, the Mexican national oil company or the Mexican government would replace the expenditures of the compensation fund. The state of Texas' suit does not name the Mexican national oil company as a defendant. Caroom predicted, however, that it would be likely for the company to be named in the suit and relations with Mexico could suffer as a result. "Litigation of this sort is never pleasant," he said. "He said another advantage of federal compensation would be a speedy resolution to the claims that face long and complex battles in the court." Frank Cox, representing Texas Gov. Bill Clements, also endorsed the bill.

New law plugs loophole in military justice law

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new federal law plugs a loophole through which some military personnel have escaped court-martial punishment by claiming fraudulent enlistment, according to Pentagon lawyers. Language to accomplish this was written into the Uniform Code of Military Justice in legislation signed by President Carter on Nov. 9. Congress amended the military justice law after strong appeals from the Defense Department for action to neutralize the effects of a 1975 ruling by the Court of Military Appeals. That ruling involved Army Pvt. Louis W. Russo, who had been convicted on charges of having been absent without leave. Pentagon lawyers said Russo had been helped to pass Army entrance tests. This led the appeals court to hold that his enlistment was invalid and that, as a result, he could not be tried under military law. The Russo rule came into play as recently as Oct. 25, when a U.S. Navy judge in the Philippines ruled that a sailor could not stand trial before a court-martial on charges of killing a bar girl. The Navy judge acted on grounds that the sailor had been enlisted fraudulently. In arguing for changes in the military justice code, Pentagon general counsel Deanne C. Siemer told a House committee on June 11 that the proposed amendments "represent a prudent approach" by providing the military services jurisdiction to try individuals in two types of situations. "Where there has been a voluntary enlistment by a person who has the capacity to understand the significance of enlisting in the armed forces. —Where there has been a constructive enlistment as evidenced by voluntary submission to military authority, receipt of military pay and allowances, and performance of military duties, in circumstances where the individual met the mental competency and minimum age requirements. The lawyer contended that invalidating enlistments because of recruiter malpractice "introduces an unacceptable degree of uncertainty" into the military justice system. "Under the Russo line of cases," she said, "it is possible for an individual knowingly and intelligently to enter military service and receive military pay, allowances, training and benefits without being subject to court-martial jurisdiction. "An individual might serve for months and even years, only to claim an absence of jurisdiction upon an allegation of recruiter misconduct when confronted by court martial charges. Pentagon lawyers said the new legislation leaves untouched another ruling by the Court of Military Appeals in 1971, in which an absent-without-leave conviction against Army Pvt. Thomas W. Catlow was thrown out on grounds that his was a forced enlistment. According to legal records, there was a showing that Catlow enlisted in the Army after a juvenile judge gave him a choice of doing that or serving in jail for five years. The records did not specify why Catlow was brought before the juvenile judge at the age of 17.

Two prisoners killed in riot at Soledad Prison

SOLEDAD, Calif. (AP) — The pent-up anger of Soledad Prison inmates who spent four months locked in their cells after a racial assault exploded in a wave of hatred and two prisoners were killed before guards broke up the melee with clubs and birdshot, officials say. "It appears to have been a preplanned assault by blacks on whites and Chicanos...and it appears to have been a retaliation for an assault by whites on blacks Aug. 19," said Phil Guthrie, spokesman for the Department of Corrections. Two white convicts, whose identities were withheld until relatives could be notified, died of multiple stab wounds, prison officials said. Seventeen others were injured Thursday afternoon. Officials said about 100 guards waded in among 80 shouting, grappling convicts — many wielding handmade knives — to break up the battlers as 220 uninvolved inmates shrank back, keeping clear of the trouble. A virtual carpet of discarded weapons, rags and debris covered the prison yard after the 35-minute melee. "The atmosphere at this time is very tense at north facility," said Dan Byrd, a spokesman for the 3,000-convict prison. "The north facility houses a younger, more immature and violent-prone type of inmate than either the central or south facility." Said Guthrie, "We haven't had any riots this serious — with two dead — in more than a year. We've had at least two race riots there this year." Since the August riot, in which guards also were forced to fire birdshot, the inmates of north facility had been under "lockdown," the prison jargon for being locked in their cells. In the fourth month aftermath, prison officials gradually relaxed the procedure. Prison Superintendent Otis Loggins said some authorities had been told by some inmates that "whenever we open up again the inmates were going to get it on. We've been hearing that information since August." "We went as long as we felt was reasonable. We took every reasonable precaution. We went to final lock today, and we had a serious incident today," Loggins said.

Autry's approach remains the same despite questions

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

TORONTO (AP) — When the California Angels signed the 5-foot-4, 145-pound Fred Patek at the baseball meetings here this week, you needed a yardstick to measure the smile on Gene Autry's face. "That's great," Autry exulted. "You know, we had Albie Pearson on our first team in 1961. He was about the size of Freddie. People love to see little guys buck up to big guys. "Patek will bring in a lot of fans. "If the old singing cowboy has learned anything in his lifelong romance with the game it is that baseball is not far removed from show business. "It's more competitive," Autry, 70-year-old president and chairman of the expansion Angels, said. "But it's also entertainment. Your success depends not just on winning but the drawing power of players on the team. "Nolan Ryan, for instance, doesn't have the winning statistics of, let's say, Jim Palmer, but people come out to watch him strike out batters. Reggie Jackson of the Yankees isn't a .300 hitter but he has a sense of drama. He comes through in the clutch. "Color is very important."

THE ONETIME guitar-plunking telegrapher who was discovered by Will Rogers is only one of a bevy of show business personalities who have gravitated to baseball and other sports ventures.

Bob Hope became a part owner of the Cleveland Indians. The late Bing Crosby invested in the Pittsburgh Pirates. Danny Kaye is one of the governing partners of the Seattle Mariners.

The Hollywood crowd has saturated the pro golf tour with sponsorship — including Hope, Crosby, Andy Williams, Glen Campbell, Jackie Gleason, Sammy Davis Jr. and Dinah Shore.

"Hope got interested in Cleveland because he came from there," Autry explained. "Crosby's association with the Pirates came through his friend, comedian Joe E. Brown, whose son became an official of the club."

GENE AUTRY needed no such back door introduction. The love of baseball has been coursing through his veins, he insists, since his boyhood. "I was born in Texas but my parents moved to Oklahoma when I was young," he said. "I have always been a frustrated ball player. It seems I have been connected with the game all my life, in way or another."

Will Rogers found Autry strumming a guitar and singing improvised country lyrics in a remote Oklahoma railroad station. That launched his career.

He started with a 15-minute show in Tulsa, moved to WLS in Chicago and finally in the mid-1930s landed in Hollywood, where he starred in countless movies as the "yodeling cowboy" and cut records that sold in the millions.

He became a national folk hero with his rendition of such songs as "That Silver-Haired Daddy of Mine" and "Rudolph The Red-Nosed Reindeer."

"In Chicago we carried the Cubs' games on radio," Autry said. "I got to know most of the players of the time — Paul and Lloyd Waner, Dizzy and Paul Dean, Pepper Martin, Hack Wilson, Kiki Cuyler and others. Joe McCarthy, who managed the Cubs, was a close friend."

In 1960 when the Dodgers' Walter O'Malley vetoed Hank Greenberg's bid for the new expansion club, Autry and a few friends moved in. The Angels opened the season in 1961 with a victory. Now, division winners, they are World Series threats.

"Don't underrate short guys," added the cowboy, who himself stands only 5-foot-3 although — as all oldsters remember — he rode high in the saddle on Champion.

Gene Autry dons his Cowboy hat in the Hollywood office where he runs his baseball-hotel-broadcasting-real estate empire. And he continues to make deals — the latest of which involved the acquisition of Fred Patek — in an attempt to make baseball entertaining. (AP Laserphoto)

Last minute deals highlight baseball confab

By DAVE O'HARA
AP Sports Writer

TORONTO (AP) — With the minutes ticking away, baseball's major league brass, slow to act most of the week, talked feverishly today in an attempt to beat the interleague trading deadline at midnight in the wind-up of the annual winter meetings.

After just two deals in the first three days, the tempo picked up Thursday with four trades involving 15 players. Three of the agreements were reached during the evening dinner hour.

Slugging outfielder Jeff Burroughs, the American League's Most Valuable Player in 1974, right-handed pitcher Doyle Alexander and outfielders Al Cowens and Willie Mays Aikens were the top figures in club exchanges.

"There's been a little action and there could be quite a flurry on the final day before everyone heads home," one West Coast club executive said. "You just can't predict anything. I think a lot of clubs are moving slowly because of the second interleague trading period (Feb. 15-March 15)."

"If it's dead in the morning, I'll fly out as scheduled in the afternoon," General Manager Haywood Sullivan of the Boston Red Sox. "I don't know what to expect. The guys have done a lot of talking all week, but they're just not going to be rushed into things. They're being darn careful."

THE ATLANTA BRAVES, determined to escape the National League West cellar in 1980, were No. 1 in the wheeling and dealing as the curtain lowered on what has been, so far, one of the duller winter meetings on record.

The Braves, who earlier had signed Al Hrabosky as a free agent and acquired Chris Chambliss and Bill Nahorodny in trades, went at it again Thursday, reaching agreement on a five-player transaction with the Texas Rangers.

However, there was one big catch in the deal, in with Burroughs and Alexander were the key players. It was subject to approval by Burroughs, who was traded to Atlanta two years after winning the MVP award with Texas. As a 10-year veteran, Burroughs had the option of rejecting a return to the Rangers.

In the deal, right-hander Adrian Devine, traded with Burroughs to Atlanta four years ago, and infielder Pepe Frias were scheduled to move to Texas.

Alexander, who played out his option with Baltimore and the New York Yankees in 1976 and signed with Texas as one of the first free agents in baseball's re-entry draft, won 17 games in his initial year with the Rangers. However, he has slumped badly, winning only 14 games the last two seasons.

THE RANGERS also threw in light-hitting reserve infielder Larvell Blanks, a journeyman who broke in with Atlanta in 1972.

In another major trade Thursday, the California Angels shipped Aikens and shortstop Rance Mulliniks to the Kansas City Royals for outfielder Al Cowens and shortstop Todd Cruz.

Other developments saw: —The Cleveland Indians send third baseman-outfielder Ted Cox, a top prospect with the Red Sox a couple of years ago, to the Seattle Mariners for two minor league pitchers — Rafael Vasquez and Rob Pietroburgo — and a player to be named later.

—The Baltimore Orioles deal minor league pitcher John Flinn to the Milwaukee Brewers for infielder Lenn Sakata, who spent nearly the entire 1979 season in the Pacific Coast League.

—outfielder Rowland Office, who batted .249 while playing out his option with Atlanta, sign as a free agent with the Montreal Expos. He was the 16th player signed from last month's re-entry draft.

—Chuck Tanner, who managed the Pittsburgh Pirates to the World Series championship, rewarded with a new contract extending through the 1984 season. He had one year left on his old pact.

—American League club owners vote 12-2 in favor of a proposal that would guarantee visiting teams at least $10,000 a game. The proposal was turned over to the board of directors for implementation, possibly to be averaged for a series or even the entire season.

—MacPhail and National League President Chub Feeney reported agreement on a standard uniform for umpires. The boys all will be in blue, dressed alike, in both leagues in 1980.

—Feeney said the National League owners did not 1) discuss the designated hitter rule, 2) the idea of interleague play or 3) expansion.

—Feeney said: "Things are going so well in the National League we had the lightest agenda I can remember in years."

Cowboys, Eagles ready for Saturday showdown

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — They both stumbled over three-straight losses, but neither the Philadelphia Eagles nor the Dallas Cowboys fell flat.

The Eagles recovered from their tailspin to upset the Cowboys 31-21 in Dallas last month and have since won three straight to become the first National Football League team to earn a playoff berth.

The Monday night loss to the Eagles was the first of three games in 10 days for the Cowboys. Dallas lost all three to fall a full game behind Philadelphia in the National Football Conference Eastern Division.

With 10 days' rest after the Thanksgiving Day loss to the Houston Oilers, the Cowboys simplified their offense, got their running game going and took a 28-7 win from the New York Giants last Sunday to end their skid.

It all becomes academic Saturday, when the Eagles, 10-4, host the Cowboys, 9-5, in a nationally televised rematch.

In another game Saturday, Denver is at Seattle in a game that will help decide whether the Broncos or San Diego take AFC West Division honors. The Chargers face the Saints at New Orleans Sunday.

"The game against Dallas is for all the marbles," said Eagles tight end Keith Krepfle.

"If we win it, we have a good chance of winning the division," said Dallas Coach Tom Landry. "And if we lose it, there's a chance we won't even be in it (the playoffs)."

Dallas is still one game behind the Eagles, tied with the Washington Redskins, who the Cowboys play at home to close out the regular season a week from Sunday.

"I don't even know all those tie-breaking things, but I know we're going to the playoffs," said Eagles Coach Dick Vermeil after Philadelphia guaranteed itself at least a wild-card playoff spot with a 44-7 win over the Detroit Lions last Sunday.

"A game like that helps us from a momentum standpoint going in against Dallas," Vermeil said. "Beating the Cowboys once in a season is tough enough, but beating them twice in the same year is next to impossible."

"Now we'll raise our sights a little and see if we can't win the conference championship," said Vermeil, who had set a goal of 10 wins in training camp, figuring last year's 9-7 record wouldn't be enough to get the Eagles to the playoffs again.

Landry said that wide receiver Drew Pearson, sixth in the conference in receptions and second in total yards, and defensive end John Dutton are both questionable with bad knees.

Pearson injured his left knee against the Giants after catching the second of three touchdown passes when he threw the football into the stands and landed off-balance.

On the Cowboys' bright side, defensive tackle Randy White appears completely recovered from the sprained foot suffered against the Eagles.

Philadelphia has replaced free safety Brenard Wilson, who broke his foot against the Lions, with veteran Deac Sanders. Sanders will back up John Sciarra.

In other NFL action Sunday with a bearing on the playoffs, the Chicago Bears are at Green Bay hoping to keep alive their playoff chances; the Redskins host the Bengals in a key game for Washington; the Rams and Falcons face off in Atlanta in a game that could help Los Angeles to an NFC West Conference championship; NFC Central leader Tampa Bay travels to San Francisco; and New York's Jets host the Patriots, who need a win to stay alive in the AFC East race with Miami, which is at Detroit.

The Sophomore championship game is set for 6 p.m. Saturday with the Junior Varsity finals at 7:30 p.m.

Big guns for Midland's undefeated Bullpups in their 99-27 rout of the Brownfield Cubs were Sharnowsky, Williams and Dunn. Sharnowsky scored 14 points while Williams added 11 and Dunn 10 as the Pups were chalking up their eighth win of the season against no losses.

Lee's JV was led by Berry, Merritt and Walker with 14, 14 and 10 points, respectively. Ray was the only Eagle in the double figures for Ector with 11 markers.

Dunson ripped the cords for 16 points to pace the Lee Sophomores while teammates Van Buren and Roberts chipped in with 16 and 10 more. High for Big Spring's Sophs was Dominguez with 15 points.

Odessa High's Sophs had an easy time in their 56-16 rout of Stanton with Watt and Busick each scoring 10 points for the Bronchos. Stanley was high for Stanton with eight points.

Parker and Gunnels tallied 11 points each for the MHS Sophs while Louderback chipped in with 12 more, but it was Robertson who stole the thunder with 19 points in their 63-47 win over the Brownfield Sophs. Jones scored 10 points for the Cubs in a losing cause.

Permian's JVs, led by Brown's 14 points, just outmanned Midland Christian. McClendon added 10 more to the Mojo attack. McClintock had 12 points for Midland Christian.

East-West additions made

Seven offensive players, including Southern California receiver Raymond Butler who will be a target for two of the nation's leading collegiate football passers, were named Thursday to the West roster for the 55th Shrine East-West Game. All American quarterback Marc Wilson of Brigham Young and Stanford's Turk Schonert, ranked first in the country in passing efficiency this year, were selected earlier to play in the game Jan. 5 at Stanford Stadium. The West roster was completed with the latest additions which, besides Butler, were linemen Paul Tabor of Oklahoma, Tom Bell of Brigham Young, Arland Thompson and Bill Glass of Baylor, Tom Turnure of Washington and Ken Walter of Texas Tech.

Blazer Thompson still ailing

The Portland Trail Blazers said Thursday that Mychal Thompson probably would miss the entire National Basketball Association season. The 6-foot-9 second year forward, the first player taken in the 1978 college draft, suffered a broken left leg while playing a pickup game in the Bahamas last July 31. Blazers' spokesman John White said Thompson was examined Thursday by specialists in Switzerland. Thompson was taken to Switzerland by team physician Robert Cook for examination by surgeons who pioneered the surgery used to repair the former University of Minnesota player's injury. White said that Thompson's leg would remain in a splint cast for four to six weeks. He said it would be two months after the cast is removed before Thompson would be able to begin getting in physical condition to play basketball. White described Thompson's chances of playing this season as "very remote." He said it would be too risky for Thompson to try and rush back into playing condition. However, White said Cook told him that Thompson's leg was recovering very well from the break.

U.S. women win pin title

The United States women posted a record two-day, six-game total of 5,667 Thursday and won the title at the ninth World Bowling Championships. The American women opened Wednesday with a record 2,920 series then slipped to 2,747 Thursday but still managed to improve the old six game mark of 5,474 set by the winning United States team in the 1971 world tournament. West Germany finished second with 5,577. Australia was third with 5,187, and the host Philippines were fourth with 5,131. Annesse Kelly of New York led the Americans with 1,189. Cindy Schuble of Louisville, Ky., had 1,171. Jackie Stormo of Barstow, Calif., 1,125, while Sandi Tice and Betty Maw, both of Buffalo, N.Y., totaled 1,118 and 1,064, respectively. Kelly, Schuble and Stormo also advanced to the 16 woman all-events final, which begins round-robin action Friday. Bong Coo of the Philippines, winner of the women's doubles with Lita de la Rosa, led the all-events qualifiers with 4,720 for 24 games.

Upsets prevail in net meet

Rosalyn Fairbank, a 19-year-old South African, continued the upset trend in a $100,000 women's tennis classic, beating third-seeded Dianne Fromholtz of Australia 6-4, 7-5 Thursday. The tired Fromholtz, a 23-year-old left hander, said afterward she would withdraw from the New South Wales Open later this month and rest. "I've probably played too much tennis in the last few months and I won't be playing in the NSW Open," she said. With Fromholtz losing, the top three seeds now are out of the tourney, including No. 1 Evonne Goolagong Cawley and No. 2 Billie Jean King. Cawley dropped out Tuesday because of illness, while King lost earlier to Betty Ann Stuart. The little-known Fairbank, who had to play three qualifying matches to get into the tournament, said after upsetting Fromholtz: "Even when I was down 5-2 in the second set, I said to myself 'I'm not going to lose this one.' That was probably the best win I've ever had. Dianne is the first really good player I've beaten." Fairbank is ranked 115th in the world, while Fromholtz is ninth. Fairbank's next opponent will be eighth-seeded Hana Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia in the quarterfinals. Mandlikova, 17, further "strained" her friendship with countrywoman Renata Tomanova, winning their second-round match 6-2, 6-4. This was their fourth meeting and the fourth time Mandlikova won.

Olympic ducats available

Tickets still are available for nearly all the events of the 1980 Summer Olympics in Moscow, a spokesman for the Russian travel agency handling American ticket sales said Thursday. E. Wallace Lawrence, president of the New York-based Russian Travel Bureau, said his company, which is the exclusive ticket sales agent for the Summer Games, obtained 220,000 tickets for the events. "While demand is high, there is no reason for anyone to be disappointed," said Lawrence, indicating that 75 percent of his tours had been sold out. Tour package arrangements range from $1,630 for 15 days to $1,950 for 22 days, he said. The Soviet Union has allocated space for 22,000 American visitors to the Games, including 800 athletes, coaches and staff, according to Chris Lockwood, a spokesman for the travel agency. Tickets for individual events range from $4.50 to $40 depending on the sport, as at the Summer Games in Montreal in 1976. Lockwood said some events were nearly sold out, "such as archery, oddly enough." Preliminary arrangements also have been made for "swap booths," in the hotels where Americans are staying, so customers can exchange tickets. He said the travel agency was confident that each visitor would have a ticket to at least one event a day.

Heritage spikers roll

Heritage Academy defeated Assembly In Christ, 11-15, 15-12, 15-2, this week in a volleyball game between the two first-year schools. Tanya Spain, Kim Weis and Christa Spain paced the victory for Heritage. The two teams were composed of both junior high and high school students.

Jockey Laffit Pincay, Jr. of Panama, walks off the track at New York's Aqueduct Race Track recently. The 32-year-old rider is approaching a record $8 million in earnings at the track, which would make him the first rider in history to have his mounts earn that much in a season. (AP Laserphoto)

Pincay closes on $8 million mark

By The Associated Press Nothing is sure in horse racing, but Laffit Pincay, Jr. seems a cinch to become the first $8 million dollar jockey.

He rode three winners at Aqueduct Thursday and crept to within $39,480 of the magic figure for the most money won by a rider in one year.

Pincay isn't listed to ride in the $54,000 Firenze Handicap for fillies and mares at Aqueduct Saturday and the odds are against him to reach his goal this weekend. Unless everything goes against him, as sometimes happens, he should earn that $39,480 in the three weeks left in 1979.

PINCAY'S drive to reach $8 million shares the Saturday limelight with the $114,900 Bay Meadows Handicap at Bay Meadows and the International Jockey Challenge match on the night card at The Meadowlands.

Elsewhere, the $50,000 Walter Haight Handicap will be run at Laurel, the $30,000 Sun Beau-Billings Handicap at Sportsman's Park and the $25,000 Villager Stakes at Keystone.

Also scheduled are the $25,000 Miss Dade Stakes at Calder and the $25,000 split Jeanne D'Arc Prep at the Fair Grounds in New Orleans.

SKIPAT is the high weight at 123 pounds in the Firenze field of eight that includes Catherine's Bet, English Trifle, Abold Dame, Water Malone, Reflection Pool, Six Crowns and Miss Baja.

Willie Shoemaker, the world's winningest jockey, will be going for his 166th triumph in a $100,000 race astride Silver Eagle in the Bay Meadows. John Henry carries top weight of 123 pounds, two more than Silver Eagle, in the field of 14. Capt. Don Babas Fables, Bends Me Mind, Double Discount, Poly Host, Struttin' George, Gummacka, El Fantastico, Tilt The Balance, Leonotis, Crafty Native and Don Alberto round out the field.

Pole Position is the early favorite in the Walter Haight. Signor Cotton tops the Sun Beau. Swirlaway may be the one in the Villager.

SOBER JIG is a top contender in the Miss Dade. All Night Gal heads the first division of the Jeanne D'Arc Prep. Flick Your Bick the second division.

A United States team, captained by Steve Cauthen, and including Jorge Velasquez, Angel Cordero, Jr., Jeff Fell and Don MacBeth will compete against a European team in the International Jockey Challenge match.

The overseas contingent includes four riders from England, Pat Eddery, Lester Piggott, Joe Mercer and Willie Carson, and Yves St. Martin of France.

NY Islanders searching for missing ingredient

By The Associated Press The New York Islanders just aren't cutting it on the ice this year. And Glenn Resch knows why.

"The only thing that's missing from this club is confidence," says the Islanders goalie, "and I think a few good wins would bring that back."

The struggling Islanders boosted that self image a bit Thursday night with a 4-3 National Hockey League victory over the Boston Bruins.

"Prior to the game, we had a talk among ourselves and said we have to play more as a team," said Resch. "It's only a natural tendency when a team is in a slump for an individual player to say, 'I'm going to take care of myself.' I don't want to make this sound that the guys were going on their own. There's just a natural tendency for people to take care of themselves — maybe we were thinking too much of ourselves and not enough as a team."

Thursday night's victory was only the seventh for the Islanders against 12 losses. Last season, they lost only 15 games the entire season in establishing the best point record in the NHL.

In the only other NHL games Thursday night, the Philadelphia Flyers routed the Los Angeles Kings 9-1 and the Quebec Nordiques trimmed the St. Louis Blues 5-2.

Second-period goals by Mike Bossy and Bryan Prottier carried the Islanders past the Bruins. Prottier clinched the triumph with another goal midway through the final session to boost his season total to 16.

"We worked hard, bucked, for everything," said Islanders Coach Al Arbour. "Chico (Resch) was really good in the net and really helped us with some key saves. It's a nice to see him back in form."

Added Resch: "The defense tonight was super. We're still not perfect but I did see a lot of positive things. I thought it was about time that I started to make a contribution. I think this was only about the second game this year where I've contributed something."

Flyers 9, Kings 4 Reggie Leach scored two goals within 20 seconds, a team record, to ignite a second-period rally that swept Philadelphia past Los Angeles.

The victory extended the Flyers' unbeaten streak to 23 games, (17-0-6) since a 9-2 loss to Atlanta on Oct. 13. The streak tied a club record set in the 1975-1976 season (17-0-6) and was within five of the league mark held by the Montreal Canadiens.

Nordiques 5, Blues 2 Blair Stewart scored his first two goals of the season to lead Quebec over St. Louis. Stewart was playing in his sixth game since being called up from Syracuse of the American Hockey League.

Michel Goulet, Robbie Ftorek and Roland Cloutier also scored for Quebec, while Real Cloutier picked up two assists.

Chaps increase winning streak

ROSWELL — Tim Shelby fired in 17 points and Robert Tate and Charles Johnson each added 16 as Midland College defeated New Mexico Military Institute, 78-69, in a junior college clash Thursday night.

Also helping the Chaparrals run their record to 12-0 was Kevin Willingham, who had 12 markers.

The Chaps return home to close out the Fall season Monday night when they host Amarillo College.

Panthers among Pittsburgh's elite

NEW YORK (AP) — University of Pittsburgh Coach Jackie Sherrill accepted the Lambert Trophy Thursday as the best college football team in the East and said Pitt reached the top by following "the high standards and objectives" set by Penn State.

Sherrill cited the recent success of the Pittsburgh Pirates and Steelers and called it "a great honor to represent the city of champions."

HE added: "I'd like to thank Penn State for setting the high standards and objectives that forced us, if we wanted to compete for the Lambert Trophy, to set the same high standards and objectives."

Pitt won the first two Lambert trophies in 1936 and 1937 but has won only three since then, including this year. The Panthers finished the regular season ranked 10th by The Associated Press with a 10-1 record and will meet Arizona in the Fiesta Bowl on Christmas Day.

PENN STATE has dominated the Lambert voting in recent years, including 1977 and 1978. Sherrill called Pitt's football resurgence "very good for Eastern football" and said his players dedicated them to winning the 1979 trophy following last year's 17-10 loss to Penn State.

Pitt, once a national power in college football, was at a low state when Johnny Majors took over as coach in 1973. Majors' four-year reign, highlighted by the ground-gaining feats of Tony Dorsett, was capped by a national championship in 1976. Sherrill was named head coach in 1977 when Majors went to Tennessee.

HONORED with Pitt at Thursday's Lambert luncheon were the University of Delaware, winner of the Lambert Cup for middle-sized schools, and Carnegie-Mellon University of Pittsburgh, which won the Lambert Bowl for small college teams.

Delaware, 10-1 during the regular season, will meet Youngstown State at Albuquerque, N.M., on Saturday for the NCAA Division II championship. Carnegie-Mellon won all nine of its regular-season games but was eliminated by Ithaca, the eventual champion, in the Division III playoffs.

Concert stampede survivors file suit

Several Wyoming High School students comfort each other after memorial services for Peter Bowes in the Cincinnati suburb Thursday. Bowes, who was a senior at Wyoming, was killed at a rock concert stampede Monday night. (AP Laserphoto)

CINCINNATI (AP) — As residents of this Ohio city began burying the young victims of a rock concert stampede, some of the survivors filed a lawsuit seeking more than $27 million from a British rock group and the promoters of the concert.

The first legal action stemming from the tragedy on Monday asks $1.1 million for each of the 11 killed and 14 injured. And attorney Arnold Morelli, who filed the class-action suit Thursday in Hamilton County Common Pleas Court, said he wants to go to trial as soon as possible.

"There are a lot of strong feelings about what happened. I want the case to be heard while the memory of the event is still fresh in everyone's mind," he said.

The accident occurred when fans of The Who surged into Riverfront Coliseum to get the best seats, trampling those in front. The victims died of suffocation, an autopsy showed.

The suit was filed on behalf of Todd Volkman, 18. He was among those hospitalized following the stampede, the suit said.

Named as defendants were Who performers Roger Daltrey, Peter Townshend, John Entwistle and Kenny Jones; Cincinnati Riverfront Coliseum and Albert E. Heekin III, statutory agent; and Electric Factory Concerts Inc., Philadelphia, Pa., the promoters, and Cal Levy, their Cincinnati agent.

The suit asked damages of $100,000 each and compensatory damages of $1 million each, for a total of $27.5 million plus attorneys fees.

The suit alleged negligence in promotion, management and performance of the concert. It argued negligence in the sale of more than 15,000 general admission tickets and in the opening of two doors to the crowd when 75 were available.

Levy, on behalf of the promoters, has denied any negligence, saying the promoters were not responsible for providing ushers, ticket takers or other safety devices. Members of The Who have said they were not responsible and had no prior knowledge of any problems.

Meanwhile, several funeral or memorial services were held for victims, with more planned today.

The Wyoming High School senior class attended a memorial service for Peter Bowes, an honor student and volunteer worker at a hospital for the mentally retarded. Bowes, 18, attended the concert with several other students, including one who talked to him moments before the pushing escalated into a frantic fight for life.

"I was right up front where the people were killed. I talked with Peter just before it happened," said Doug Brown, 17. "I helped carry three bodies inside.

I'd never touched a dead person before. If I had seen Peter, I know I would have lost it. He was really special."

The Rev. H. Wiley Ralph, who conducted the service in the packed Episcopal Church of Ascension and Holy Trinity in suburban Cincinnati, said Bowes' family was "letting their grief out. And they're getting a lot of support from the community."

Bowes' friends wept openly. Some returned to school after the service.

"I don't think I have the stomach for that," said Brown, who went home "to think for a while."

Student jumps to senior class in seven months

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Less than seven months after his high school graduation, Anthony L. May, 18, is about to become a college senior.

The 1979 co-valedictorian of Blue River Valley High School in central Indiana has made the three-year jump by testing out in 71 credit hours through the national College-Level Examination program, the College Board's achievement program and departmental examinations here at Indiana University.

"I'm not smarter than other students," May said modestly. He will have 91 credit hours — only 31 less than he needs to graduate — when he goes home for semester break on Dec. 22. "It's just that many of them are unaware of the opportunities and the many different ways to earn college credit through testing."

Seventeen credit hours were earned in regular classroom courses since he arrived here last September.

May started accumulating his credits by earning three hours between his junior and senior years in high school through the university's collegiate credit program for high school students.

Then he began taking a battery of tests in English, history, political science, humanities, biology, economics, psychology, Latin and English composition.

He has failed one college-level test in algebra.

"Math is not my strong point," said May, who averaged a score of 3.93 out of a possible 4 in high school.

May, a political science major, said he began planning his accelerated college program as a high school sophomore. He credits his high school English and speech teacher, Delonda Jarvis, with influencing his decision.

He explained that Mrs. Jarvis had completed her undergraduate degree in two calendar years through the testing programs and encouraged him to take advantage of the opportunities.

He also credits his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles May of Mount Summit.

"They were very supportive of my plan and that was very important to me," he said.

Saving money — getting in and out of school quickly — is one benefit of the quick progress, May said. "My father is not a rich man and this is my way of helping out."

But, he concedes there's a drawback or two.

"He has zipped through school so fast there has been little time to consider what he wants to do when he graduates."

Jesuits told to avoid 'secular tendencies'

ROME (AP) — The head of the Roman Catholic Jesuit order has sent letters to Jesuits around the world asking them to be more disciplined and avoid "secular tendencies," church sources reported today.

They said the Rev. Pedro Arrupe, superior general of the 27,000-member order, asked that the Jesuits adopt "necessary changes" demanded by Pope John Paul II. Father Arrupe's letter was dated Oct. 19.

The Pope on Sept. 21 told a group of 30 Jesuit superiors from all over the world that he was worried about certain trends in the order.

"I count on your collaboration," the pontiff told the Jesuits. "I urge you to bring remedy with due firmness to the deplorable deficiencies."

The pope specifically mentioned loyalty, in doctrinal and disciplinary matters.

Nurses on strike replaced

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Temporary replacements are being hired for the 250 nurses and 300 support personnel who walked off the job last Sunday at Women and Infants Hospital, says its executive vice president Thomas G. Parris Jr.

Meanwhile, the administration and representatives for 180 striking nurses at St. Joseph's Hospital were to meet today in Warwick with federal and state mediators, the first bargaining session since the Federation of Nurses and Health Care Professionals struck on Nov. 24.

St. Joseph, which has operated with a minimum patient population since the strike began, transferred a substantial number of patients to a sister facility in North Providence that is staffed by non-union personnel.

The 247-bed facility cut its patient population to about 130 before District 1199 of the New England Health Care Employees Union walked out.

Both strikes were sparked by failures to reach agreements on new contracts, but are otherwise unrelated.

Union representative David Pickus accused Women and Infants Hospital Thursday of providing substandard care.

"There are not enough staff for the patients. The actions and attitudes of the hospital are basically criminal," he said.

Parris called the charge "rhetoric and nonsense" and said 395 workers are caring for the patients, 80 of which are newborns.

Mary Bonoyer of Burrillville, a patient since Sunday, said "if somebody didn't tell you they're on strike, you wouldn't know." Mrs. Bonoyer had a baby Monday.

Pickus declined to specify the union's demands. Parris said the union is demanding average raises of 14 percent for registered nurses, 18 percent for licensed practical nurses and 15.8 percent for other workers.

Movie to portray Paige's life

"Go very lightly on vices such as carryin' on in society. The social rambles just ain't restful..." - Satchel Paige's Rules for the Good Life, No. 4.

Satchel Paige has been doing the social rambles in Hollywood these past few days, and you get the feeling that the pace has angered up his blood.

"Keep the juices flowin' by janglin' 'round gently as you move." Paige is in town to help ABC reconstruct a legend, the legend of the greatest pitcher who ever lived, who is, of course, Leroy Robert "Satchel" Paige.

"He's been making publicity rounds - radio talk shows, interviews, late suppers featuring four-pound lobsters and such - and 'the mornin' time isn't so good... the water here is no good.' A little baseball talk proves wondrous tonic.

"Whiteys and coloreds used to come see us play," he says, remembering his glory days with the Chattanooga Black Lookouts. "Word got around, 'You ought to go see this boy throw, leaves the hitters with their bats on their shoulders.'"

Paige was in his prime in the days before the big leagues allowed black players, but the white players knew "all about

Paige. "I know who's the best pitcher I ever see," Dizzy Dean once said, "and it's ol' Satchel Paige, that big, lanky colored boy."

In a showdown, of sorts, Paige once faced the great Bob Feller in an exhibition game against major league all-stars. "I won," Paige says. Yes, and he struck out 21 batters in so doing.

Paige pitched 2,500 games, barnstorming and in the Negro Leagues, and won 2,000 of them. He threw 300 shutouts, of which 55 are said to have been no-hit

Story of Mary and Joseph outrages some theologians

LOS ANGELES (AP) - This weekend, NBC will air a Christmas drama called "Mary and Joseph: A Story of Faith." Next year, the network may stick to "Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer."

NBC's dramatization of the lives of Mary and Joseph and the birth of Christ has outraged some religious leaders, prompting a nationwide protest against the broadcast, which, in turn, has produced a mammoth headache for NBC.

Controversy sometimes helps a program's ratings, but "when you put on a religious program over the holidays," one NBC executive said, "controversy is the last thing in the world you want."

At issue is a script that fills in some of the spaces in the New Testament telling of Christ's birth with screenwriters' suppositions. "Mary and Joseph" is, simply, docudrama. The film's writers attempt to flesh-out the rather sketchy biblical account of the lives of Mary and Joseph, drawing upon research and imagination.

Joseph, for example, is portrayed as a sort of guerrilla type, fighting the forces of King Herod.

Mary's father is crucified in the film, an event which has no biblical foundation. And Mary, after telling the whole town of Nazareth she is pregnant with the Son of God, is tried for adultery and blasphemy and sentenced to death by stoning. This too, was invented by the film's writers.

The question is whether a telling of the birth of Christ can properly include fiction.

Father Andrew Marinak, a Catholic pastor in Chambersburg, Pa., clearly thinks not.

"I think it's an anti-Christian film, I really do," Marinak said after viewing the film. "The Scriptures aren't used in their proper sense. Mary is depicted as being ill-tempered and strong-willed, which is contrary to the biblical image, and Joseph is a man who tries to kill people."

"Nowhere in the Bible does it say that Mary went around telling everyone she was going to have a baby. The trial and all of that is simply fiction. I think that's evil, and I think that's the way the authors intended it."

NBC staunchly defends the film, as do several clergymen who've seen the movie and found nothing blasphemous. NBC, concerned about the pressure being brought against its affiliates, broadcast a closed-circuit tape to its stations this week in which several clergymen praised the film.

"There's nothing anti-Christian about filling in Warren to be star in series.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) - Lesley Ann Warren will star in "Beulah Land," a six-hour mini-series spanning the Civil War years on a great Georgia plantation.

JP Miller is adapting the film from the novels "Beulah Land" and "Look Away Beulah Land" by Lonnie Coleman. It is a David Gerber Production in association with Columbia Pictures Television.

Miss Warren plays a strong-willed young woman who marries into the powerful, Kendrick family and becomes mistress of the plantation, Beulah Land.

"Walken teams with Berenger in new movie" HOLLYWOOD (AP) - Christopher Walken and Tom Berenger will star in "Dogs of War," based on the book by Frederick Forsythe.

They play mercenaries involved in an international political plot. It is the first starring role for Walken, who won an Oscar as best supporting actor for "The Deer Hunter."

Union output greater, says study

WASHINGTON (AP) — A union-commissioned study concludes that unionized construction workers, while better paid, are more productive than their non-union counterparts.

The study by an economics professor found that output per employee is at least 29 percent greater among unionized building contractors. If the output gains were attributed solely to labor, rather than machinery, union members were found to be 38 percent more productive on the average than comparable non-union workers, according to the study.

Steven G. Allen, an assistant economics professor at North Carolina State University, also reported that wages of male union construction workers average 43 percent higher than those of comparable non-union workers. Among women, wage rates average 32 percent higher for union members.

Allen said his findings debunk the notion that union wages are higher because powerful unions dominate the construction labor market.

"The productivity results imply that these wage differences reflect differences in efficiency rather than monopolistic control over the workplace," Allen said.

The study was commissioned by the Center to Protect Workers Rights, a group supported by construction unions.

Two builder groups, however, challenged the study's methods and said the findings are ambiguous and inconclusive.

"I don't think he (Allen) has proven anything," said Dennis Bradshaw, an official with Associated General Contractors. Bradshaw said Allen's research model "is flawed, and thus his results are questionable."

John P. Trimmer, an official with the Associated Builders and Contractors, which represents non-union builders, said the study attempts "to statistically misrepresent union productivity."

"Unionized workers will never be as productive as their open shop counterparts unless reforms are made in the areas of excessive wage requirements, restrictive work practices and jurisdictional squabbles," Trimmer said.

State says it will pay teachers

CHICAGO (AP) — It was uncertain whether Chicago teachers would get paid today, despite Gov. James R. Thompson's offer to advance the school district next month's school-aid money to meet the payroll.

School board president Catherine Rother came out of a closed-door meeting Thursday night saying nothing had changed in the district's financial situation, which has left the board without the $41.5 million needed to pay salaries today.

"There is nothing to report, absolutely nothing," she said. "We had hoped for some information while in executive session. We had a number of phone calls, but we had no change from our status."

Literary hangout closing Christmas

BOSTON (AP) — Boston bookworms will lose an old friend Christmas Eve. The Old Corner Book Store, which opened in 1828 and became a gathering place for the likes of Ralph Waldo Emerson, Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, Harriet Beecher Stowe and Daniel Webster, is closing.

Store manager John Zielinski said Thursday that Dec. 24 would be the last day for the store at its present location and that there was only a slim chance it would re-open at a new location.

"Right now it looks like we'll probably be closing rather than moving," he said. "It depends on whether the people who own the store can find another place to move to. It looks like we'll go out of business."

The store is owned by Doubleday, the New York publishing firm.

"The store doesn't do enough business at the location to support itself," Zielinski said.

Despite its name, the bookstore is not on a corner, but it once was. The building it originally occupied is on the nearby corner of Washington and School streets. The restored building now is operated by the Boston Globe as a circulation and advertising office.

That building also housed the Tinker and Fields publishing company, and it was at that location that Nathaniel Hawthorne, John Greenleaf Whittier, Emerson, Longfellow and Webster could be found. Many of them were published by Tinker and Fields.

"There has been an Old Corner Book Store since 1828, not all owned by the same people," Zielinski said.

For 75 years it has been at its present location, on Bromfield Street near Boston Common and the Old Granary Burying Ground, where Revolutionary War patriots are buried.

"The location is probably the biggest problem," Zielinski said. "We're not on a main thoroughfare. Bromfield Street was much more prosperous at one time," he said. The proliferation of downtown bookstores is another reason for its failure, he said.

"The store has been struggling for quite a while," he said.

Teenager realizes a dream

NEWTON, Ga. (AP) — Terry Musgrove says he has wanted to be mayor of this small south Georgia community for years. The 19-year-old junior college student is getting his wish after ousting the incumbent this week with a 13-vote victory in the mayoral election.

"I'm real pleased people trust me to run their city," Musgrove said of his 153-140 victory over Mayor Tommy Harper in Tuesday's election.

A student at Albany Junior College and a volunteer emergency medical technician with the county ambulance service, Musgrove is one year older than the minimum age for mayor set by the city charter.

"It was the first mayor's election they'd had since I was of age, and I worked hard," he said.

"I went door-to-door, and I'd go in and sit down and let them ask me questions. I worked twice as hard, and I'll work twice as hard as mayor," he said. "I know of only two people in the whole city that I didn't visit and ask to vote for me."

The campaign for the $100-a-month job was not all fun.

"Even though some thought I would be a good mayor, others thought I was too young," he said. "It was always an issue."

Musgrove said he based his campaign on promises for the future, including 24-hour fire protection for the town's 600 residents.

"I want to publish my city budget, and I'm also pursuing extra revenue sharing," he said.

Rogers, 41, said his record was a good one and he thought he would win.

"We had a reduction in taxes, the water bills remained the same, we'd improved the garbage collection. Evidently, that wasn't enough," he said.

Musgrove ran a county-wide campaign five years ago and he worked in Jimmy Carter's presidential campaign, but Rogers said Musgrove soon would see differences between "running a campaign and taking care of the office."

"It's certainly a job that demands decision," said Rogers. "I hope he can handle the task."
