U.S. warns Iranians not to use hostages as trial witnesses

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States would consider use of American hostages as witnesses in an Iranian investigation of U.S. activities under the deposed shah to be "public exploitation," a Carter administration spokes-

Iranian authorities should be aware they would bear 'full responsibility for any ensuing consequences" if the hostages are forced to participate in a trial, White House press secretary Jody Powell said Tuesday

The militants who seized the U.S. Embassy in Tehran on Nov., 4 have threatened to place their 50 American captives on trial as spies.

As an alternative, Iranian Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh has proposed creation by Iran of an international "grand jury" to investigate U.S. involvement in the regime of deposed Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi: Under his plan, the American hostages could be required to testify.

In an interview published today by The Washington Post, Ghotbzadeh raised another possibility for ending the crisis - an internal investigation by the United States of the alleged crimes of the shah and this country's involvement in his regime.

The newspaper said Ghotbzadeh was vague about what form the investigation should take and whether any hostages would be freed before it got under way.

Powell's statement seemed to indicate the U.S. government would consider use of the hostages as "witnesses" as serious as actually putting them on trial.

President Carter has several options for stepping up U.S. action in the crisis. Among them is a massive military response, such as a naval blockade. While such action would not necessarily shed blood, it would be more punitive than economic actions taken against Iran

Asked Tuesday if the military option remained open, Powell repeated Carter's contention that a peaceful resolution of the stalemate is preferred.

But he also reiterated a Nov. 20 White House statement issued on first word of a possible trial, saying there is "a range, of options available to the United States under international law and the United Nations charter" - a reference to a U.N. provision which provides for a country's right to take military action in certain situato Iran has weakened the U.S. threat of a trade embargo.

The Congressional Research Service report said a "de facto" embargo has been created by President Carter's freeze of Iranian assets and actions by private citizens, such as the refusal of longshoremen to load ships bound

The only exports that have not fallen dramatically are agricultural products, the study says, concluding that 'the principal short-term economic embargo weapon against Iran must be food.'

It warns that the impact of such an embargo would depend on participation by other nations because "Iran has recently been reducing its dependence on the U.S. (for food) and diversifying its food imports.'

Mourning Iranians march on embassy

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — At least 50,000 Iranians mourning an assassinated religious leader marched on the occupied U.S. Embassy today, placed the coffin in front of the mission's iron gates and alternated chanting "Death to America!" with wailing verses from the Koran, the holy book of Islam.

But they made no move to breach the gates and enter the embassy compound, where Moslem militants-have been holding 50 Americans hostage for 46 days demanding the U.S. government get Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi to return to Iran.

The funeral cortege of Hojatoleslam Mohammad Mofateh and his two bodyguards began at Tehran University, then wound a mile to the bolted embassy gates, surrounded by a sea of chanting and wailing people. Four mullahs, or priests, waving pistols were drawn on an open carriage behind the cortege:

The heady mixture of religious fervor and militancy climaxed when the priests were passed over the heads of the crowd and mounted the speakers' platform on the embassy wall. Massive portraits of Mofateh were carried by mourners along with Islamic flags in black. Mofateh's 22-year-old son Sadegh declared: "The CIA kills people who are against the imperialism of America. They killed my father because they want to change the Many of the women in the revolution. Meanwhile, a draft copy of a congressional study crowd, all tightly wrapped in black chadors, wept as

Simple idea becomes mind-boggling bill

WASHINGTON (AP) - The "windfall profits" tax working its way through action on the bill this year. Congress is a good example of how a simple idea can be turned into a mind-boggling law.

The idea: tax away a portion of each new increase in domestic crude oil prices so the oil industry will not profit unduly from President Carter's decision to phase out price controls

The result: legislation that imposed a half-dozen different taxes by separating U.S. crude oil into a dozen categories depending on when it was discovered and where and by whom it is produced. Not all the complexities can be blamed on Congress or bureaucrats; it seems that tax simplification and oil just don't mix. A conference committee of 15 House members and 11 senators were to begin tackling some of those complexities this afternoon. That panel must find a compromise between the Senate's $178 billion bill and the $277 billion version passed by the House. There are growing doubts the committee can complete

Congressional experts concede their estimates of what the bill will bring in from 1980 through 1990 could be off by as much as $100 billion, mainly because the figures are so dependent on outside forces.

They assume the average price of U.S. crude oil freed from controls will be about $30 a barrel, and that the figure will increase every year by the amount of inflation plus 2 percent. If inflation in 1980 is 10 percent, that $30 will become $33.60 a year from now

The tax, incidentally, would not end in 1990. The 1980-1990 figures are generally cited only because Carter's original energy program covered that term. The Senate tax probably would run through the late 1990s and most of the House version would end in 1990. Again, it depends on how quickly oil prices

The average price of uncontrolled U.S. oil grows each time the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries raises the world price. The average OPEC price has jumped 60 percent in 1979. A repetition of that in 1980 could perhaps double the size of the windfall tax.

Why, then, would President Carter want to phase out controls?

Supporters of that decision — including numerous economists — say the higher prices that result will encourage conservation and investment in new forms of energy; domestic oil production will increase because it will be more profitable; and U.S. dependence on imported oil should drop, reducing the flow of dollars abroad and weakening a strong outside influence on American foreign

The price for those benefits will be paid by American consumers. Decontrol would let the oil industry take an estimated $1 trillion more from consumers in the 1980s by charging higher prices for gasoline, heating oil and other

MidTran now a city department after Midland City Council vote

By LANA CUNNINGHAM Staff Writer

MidTran - formerly a non-profit corporation - has changed its sta-

The public transportation system officially is a department of the city of Midland. The City Council approved the action Tuesday during a regular session in City Hall.

This makes MidTran the first new department added to the city in a number of years.

John Ingram, president of the board for the non-profit corporation, recommended the council make the change based on the board's investigations, interest of the community and MidTran's work over the past two vears.

Shopping Days 'Til Christmas

The board, he said, never had the intention of just "trying" a public transportation system for Midland. "We were going to put one on the ground. We have done our work well and cheaper than if it had been done by any government body. Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. pointed out the amount of public support the board has received in the form of private donations which amount to about $90,000. He questioned Ingram about some of the negative aspects of MidTran coming under the city government

On one point about shutting down the system if it proves a failure, Ingram replied, "We're going to make it a success. But, if it becomes a burden, then it (MidTran) should be shut down. And it could be done easier by being under city control rather than as a corporation, Angelo added in answer to his own question.

The mayor expressed his wish that United Way - which had planned to provide some funding for MidTran - continue to give some support.

Ingram replied that MidTran can transport persons from United Way agencies, such as Casa de Amigos or Boys Club, cheaper than each group using its own van.

The MidTran board of directors will become an advisory commission to the City Council with the same responsibilities and duties as a Planning and Zoning Commission or Airport Board.

MidTran's board currently consists of three members from the Chamber of Commerce, three from the community and three from the City Council. Gordon Marcum II questioned the city's position in case of a liability suit, but Angelo said the city can get cheaper insurance for MidTran than if it remained a corporation.

'Every potential problem is there either way you go," Angelo added. But the employees of MidTran will stand to gain more from the move as they will come under the city's benefits program and salaries.

Although the motion by Councilman Tom Sloan to approve the move was passed, Councilman Carroll Thomas voted against it. Later he commended Ingram and the board "on the job you've done.

Afterward, Ingram explained the MidTran board had voted unanimously to become a city department and to dissolve the corporation.

'The community has a high respect for departments of the city of Midland," he said. "We had to prove up to the council, and the council has recognized the efforts put forth by our

Plans still call for the buses to begin operating Feb. 4, and Ingram said, "We are putting a first-class system on the road."

Joyce Fisher, transportation coordinator who will become department director, said two buses should arrive in Midland between Saturday and Monday. Two more of the light transit, 20-passenger buses should come in by Dec. 28 with the other three to arrive in January.

Of the council's approval she said, "The city and I have always worked close together. Being a part of the city will make it simpler.

MidTran began two years ago as a Chamber of Commerce task forceassigned to study transportation needs in Midland. It became a nonprofit corporation in April 1978 and in May 1979 signed a contract with the city of Midland to obtain some funding for the first year's budget.

Since then it has received state and federal funds to obtain buses, salaries

MidTran will operate on a subscription basis in the early morning and late afternoon for workers and on a demand-responsive system during the middle of each day.

The buses will be serviced and kept at the city garage. MidTran employees will operate from offices in a portable building to be set up at the

This system was designed for Mid-Midland's needs and wants.

OPEC oil ministers meeting in secret

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) - Oil ministers from the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries met in secret today seeking to work out a compromise solution on the price split which has persisted through their yearend conference.

Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani, Saudi Arabia's oil minister and a leader of OPEC's moderate bloc, held the talks in his hotel suite, a conference source

The moderates are trying to keep the official price of oil near the $24 per barrel level while Libya, which already has boosted the price of its oil to $30 a barrel, has said it would like to see the base price elevated to $34.

Today's is the final session of the three-day meeting and officials said it was possible the conference could end without agreement, meaning each member would charge as much as it can get or thinks prudent. It would not be the first time the 13-nation oil cartel failed to reach agreement. 'We've had these differences for 19 years," said one source. The shah's New York doctors, Benjamin Kean and Hibbard Williams, have revealed few details of the treatment for the deposed monarch.

But Kean said in an affidavit in a Fort Worth, Texas, court last week that the shah's condition had "deteriorated" and that "additional surgery might be necessary." The shah underwent surgery two months ago here to remove his gallbladder and several gallstones, and also had two weeks of X-ray therapy for swollen cancerous lymph nodes in his neck.

The surgeon who removed his gallbladder noted that the shah's spleen was enlarged, which is usually a sign in lymphoma that the spleen has become cancerous and the cancer is spreading. Doctors questioned the finding, since medical records showed the shah had had an enlarged spleen for 30 years.

But when Kean examined the shah at Lackland Air Force Base last week, he found that the spleen had swollen even further since the shah left New York. Hence, there is a good chance the shah's cancer has re-

Doctors familiar with lymphoma said it was not unusual for a cancer to recur rapidly, especially in a patient like the shah, who took anti-cancer drugs for six years for a case of chronic lymphatic leukemia before the lymphoma was diagnosed earlier this year.

This guy has had a lot of disease, he's been treated with drugs and radiation, and there's going to be recurrence. In general, in this setting, you're in trouble," said one doctor, who asked not to be identified.

The doctor said any new flareup might be difficult to treat, since it could be resistant to the drugs used against the earlier case of leukemia, many of which are the same as those used in lymphoma.

The shah's New York doctors originally planned to combat the lymphoma with what was described as an-'aggressive" six-drug therapy.

These drugs are toxic, and patients must be closely watched during treatment. But one of the shah's physicians said Tuesday it would be possible though not desirable - to give them in a place like Contadora, where medical facilities are few.

However, another of the shah's physicians, though declining to discuss the case in detail, hinted that only a few or even only one anti-cancer drug was involved in the shah's current treatment, rather than a multi-drug regimen.

Asked why, he implied that there were medical reasons that prevented the use of the full regimen, but would

Midland's chamber elects Ray Moudy as its president

Trust of Midland, was elected to serve as treasurer.

New directors of the chamber for 1980 are W.L. Barnes, Joan Baskin, Charles Fraser, Walter Hall, Bill Hickey, E.M. Miller, John Neill and Allen K. Trobaugh.

Moudy served the Midland chamber as treasurer in 1978 and 1979. In addition to that post, he has served as a chamber director since 1975 and was a vice pesident in 1976. Moudy also serves on the Leadership Mid land Advisory Committee and the Objectives for Midland Advisory Committee for the chamber.

He received his BBA and LLB degrees from The University of Texas. He is a member of the Midland County and state bar associations.

In addition to his Midland chamber activities, Moudy has served as a director of the Midland County American Red Cross from 1966 to present, and the United Way of Midland. He also is a past director of the Permian Basin Chapter of the Multiple Sclerosis Society, trustee of the Fireman's Relief and Retirement Advisory Commission of the city of Midland, and the Midland County Library Advisory Board. Moudy is a member of the Downtown Lions Club and the board of trustees for Midland Memorial Hospi-

Big Spring City Council to protest FAA's objection to school for deaf

BIG SPRING - The Big Spring City Council has resolved to protest the Federal Aviation Administration's objection to the city's turning the former Webb Air Force Base hospital into a Howard Collegeoperated school for the deaf.

FAA District Chief Bill Howard of Albuquerque, N.M., has objected to the transfer of property to the college on grounds that the school for the deaf would not generate revenue to support the Big Spring Air Industri-

Howard noted that in the transfer of the Webb AFB property from the federal government to the city, the city of Big Spring was required to use that property to support the airport.

Webb AFB, a jet-pilot training base, was shut down two years ago in an economy move by the Pentagon.

City Manager Don Davis said the city council will explain to the FAA and "our congressmen" that the school for the deaf "would be an asset and an enhancement to the in-

Court won't order removal of nativity

DENVER (AP) - A nativity scene erected on the steps of the Denver City-County Building will be allowed to remain on display, despite objections from the American Civil Liberties Union

A three-judge emergency panel of the 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals on Tuesday stayed U.S. District Judge Richard Matsch's order that the manger scene must be removed today from the steps.

We are convinced that the public interest is best served by the grant of the stay," the panel said in its rul-

Protest pickets had marched in front of City Hall before the stay was granted and hundreds of protest calls flooded the mayor's office.

'A woman phoned from Dallas and offered to buy the steps in front of City Hall. Once she owned them, she said, she would give the city permission to keep the scene there," said Wilma Jewell, Mayor Bill McNichols' secretary. The offer was turned down.

Phone lines at the Denver office of the Colorado Chapter of the ACLU were busy all day, including one bomb threat that proved to be a hoax, said chapter director Bob Joy.

Joy also was hit by a snowball later as he was interviewed by reporters in front of City Hall.

Warm, cloudy days to continue

3 The cloud cover that moved into the Permian Basin this week will remain at least through Thursday, the weatherman said today

The warm weather that came with it also will continue. High Thursday should be in the mid-60s with the overnight low in the upper 30s, according to the National Weather Service office at Midland Regional Air-

Southwest winds should continue at 5-10 mph tonight.

Tuesday's high was a cloudy 60 degrees with the overnight low at 36. Neither approached the records for the dates of 78 degrees set in 1939 or 19 set in 1945.

No rain is mentioned in the forecast, so the December total should remain at 2.16 inches with the annual accumulation so far at 15.41 inches.

Council passes motion on DOE

It was a motion to "positively deny" whatever it was the Department of Energy was asking. And that motion passed unanimous-

Taking up an issue Tuesday which had plagued the Midland City Council during a November session, the panel decided the whole deal was a "charade" planned by the DOE and wasn't worth any action.

The item was to decide rules and regulations for exempting residents who already have natural gas outdoor lights from the DOE's ruling which prohibits such lights.

Assistant City Manager Fred Poe explained that Pioneer Natural Gas Co., in trying to comply with the DOE ruling, had asked the City Council to exempt customers from the man-

Without the exemptions, these customers can be subject to being instructed by the DOE to get rid of the lights even though, said Poe, they use less energy than electric lights.

Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. commented the city should forget the entire matter. And Councilman Tom Sloan remarked, "Ernie, this is one of the few times I am in complete agreement with you. After the unanimous vote on Sloan's motion to "positively deny" the resolution for granting exemptions, Angelo added, "But if anyone gets harrassed by the DOE, we want to know

Moving the Pliska airplane to a new spot at Midland Regional Airport isn't as easy as it sounds, according to Bill Hill of HTB, Inc. Suspending Midland's first airplane from the ceiling of the terminal building lobby is feasible, but still poses some problems, Hill advised the council.

He suggested another option of constructing a separate building for it next to the lobby. Hill and two council members were assigned to research the situation more before making a decision.

Instead, he suggested the city scrape the dumpsters and spray them with oil to eliminate fly problems.

A public hearing on proposed zoning and building code amendments brought no comment from anyone in

If passed by the council at the Jan. 8 meeting, these codes will change the uses permitted in LR-1, LR-2 (local retail districts) and C-1 (central area distict), and signs allowed in residential, office and neighborhood service

Also to be changed would be the sale of alcoholic beverages in restaurants, theaters, amusement and sport facilities, bars, lounges and nightclubs. It would include a redefining of bars, dance halls and lounges.

Maryland's governor will try to prevent dumping of wastes

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) - Gov. Harry Hughes says he will ask federal officials to ensure that large amounts of radioactive wastes from Three Mile Island nuclear power plant are not permitted to be dumped into the Susquehanna River.

Hughes said, he would ask the Nuclear Regulatory Commission not to allow any contaminated plant water environmental impact statement is

He said he also would ask the commission to enforce nuclear waste discharge limits contained in the original operating license for the disabled

Hughes said he does not want these limits exceeded unless there is a formal amendment to the license, a to be put into the river until a broad move which would require public

Eleven penitentiary escapees due in court for arraignment

VOUNDSVILLE, W.Va. (AP) -Eleven inmates who fled the West Virginia Penitentiary last month were due in court today for arraignment on charges of murder, armed robbery, kidnapping and escape, stemming from the breakout. Marshall County Prosecutor Mark Karl said Tuesday that the arraignments probably would continue Thursday and Friday, and that trials probably would begin in February or

A special Marshall County grand jury handed up 82 indictments related to the Nov. 7 escape of 15 convicts. One was found shot to death the following day

Karl said one count of murder was lodged against each of the escapees in the death of off-duty state police Trooper Philip Kesner, 23, who was killed in a shootout during the es-

Other indictments include two counts each of armed robbery against the escapees. One armed robbery charge concerns the theft of Trooper Kesner's car, which several inmates commandeered. The second relates to the theft of a service revolver owned by the state Department of Corrections. Karl said the revolver was taken during the break.

Karl said each escapee also was charged with holding hostages and kidnapping. The prosecutor said two corrections officers at the prison were held during the escape.

An additional charge of kidnapping names escapees Jack Stephen Hart, 37, and Thomas Burton, 33. Those charges stem from the abduction of Moundsville resident Daniel Reynolds, who was held three days at his home, then forced to drive the pair to Ritchie County, where they were apprehended, Karl said.

Ten indictments charged convicts with escape. Karl said escapees who were not serving life sentences at the maximum-security prison were charged with escape

Mayor expresses shock' at defeat

ABILENE, Texas (AP) - Abilene Mayor Oliver Howard expressed shock at the defeat Tuesday of a proposition calling for $300,000 in improvements at Abilene's municipal airport.

That should have been an overwhelming vote in favor," Howard said, "because of the $2 million in federal matching funds the city expected to receive. Somebody else will get the money.

The proposition failed by a scant 355

hearings and would give the state a chance to oppose any plan which it believes would endanger the river and Chesapeake Bay

The governor outlined his position Tuesday at a meeting with representatives of the Maryland Ad-Hoc Committee on Three Mile Island, a private committee to monitor the situation at the plant. Members who attended the meeting said they were surprised the position taken by Hughes and James Coulter, natural resources secretary, was so similar to their own.

"It seems that we are moving toward consensus," said John Kabler, coordinator for the ad-hoc committee. He said, however, that his group would withhold judgment until it sees final details of what Hughes will present to federal officials.

The two major points presented by the governor were the necessity for the environmental impact statement and the need for independent monitoring of waste disposal.

The Suquehanna supplies most of the fresh water flowing into the Chesapeake Bay, and committee members, as well as state officials, are concerned about the danger to water supplies and fisheries that could result from dumping large amounts of radioactive wastes into the river and from there into the bay.

never more than the palest reflection of the free expression ostensibly guaranteed by China's 1978 constitution. At best, the uncensored wall posters displayed along the 200-yard brick wall by independent-minded citizens could be seen by only a few thousand persons in a nation of nearly one billion souls.

But the wall's value as a symbol and hopeful portent for the future was immense. It served as a focal point of China's budding human rights movement. And the international publicity accorded the wall posters by foreign journalists punctured the myth that China's millions marched in lockstep to the beat of a single drum.

Alas, this year-old taste of liberty was deemed too dangerous by China's rulers. Presumably angered over posters that assailed China's food shortages, official corruption, and pervasive violations of human rights, officials closed the wall recently.

A remote public park has been designated as the new wall poster area. But henceforth, those advertising their views will have to register their identity beforehand, a requirement sure to Peking's Democracy Wall was quench unfettered expression of political views.

> Taken together with the 15-year prison sentence meted out recently to human rights activist Wei Jingsheng, the death of Democracy Wall signals an ominous defeat for the modest political liberalization begun in November 1978. While China's present rulers seem unlikely to return to the limitless repressions favored by the late Mao Tse-tung, they seem even less likely to tolerate anything approaching real civil and political rights.

If the sharpest edges of totalitarianism have been dulled since Mao's death in 1976, its essence the dictatorship of the Chinese Communist party - remains undiminished.

The growing power of the Soviet Union has necessitated a pragmatic rapproachement between the United States and China. But the geopolitical requirements of survival in a perilous world should not blind us to the sad fate of the Chinese people under Peking's rule. The last poster protest displayed on Democracy Wall said it all. Declared the poster: "The people have no

A CHANGING WORLD:

Bustling Berlin beckons U.S. industry

By JOHN PINKERMAN Copley News Service

To those of us who have admired West Berliners since the dark days of the Communist Wall back in August 1961 it is refreshing news to learn that things are good in that embattled city 110 miles inside the Iron Curtain and that there are plans to make the free city even stronger.

A man who has a major role in improving the economy of Berlin is in the United States for a few weeks. His name is Wolfgang (Robbie) Robinow. He admits openly to being a salesman and his pitch that medium-sized specialty-type U.S. industries should locate in his vibrant city is a persuasive

There was a time not many years ago that foreign firms, even West German firms, would not be interested in locating in Berlin. The extremely sensitive and dangerous situation vis-a-vis the Red regime in East Berlin and the Soviets all around stopped industrial expansion. The fact that Berlin's 2 million population was dominated by senior citizens meant that there was no effective labor market of any consequence. The tax situation was unsatisfactory

All that has changed. "The fourpower agreement (United States, France, Britain and Russia) has brought an atmosphere of realistic relaxation," Robinow said in an interview. "There has been no stoppages of road, rail or canal traffic in a long time. True, the waters still are a bit 'muddied,' but it no longer is difficult to get young people from West Germany and other countries to come to Berlin to work

It is an indulgence in nostalgia to hear Robinow talk of the attractions of Berlin, in his words, "one-third greenery, one-third water, 50 million

From an investment standpoint, the lures for selected U.S. plants to operate in Berlin are amazing.

The Berlin Economic Development Corp. has worked with its governmental bosses to achieve some of the following benefits for foreign investors: A reduction in some cases of value-added taxes by 10.2 percent, corporate taxes 22.5 percent less than in West Germany, tax-free investment subsidies of 15 percent for buildings, 25 percent for machinery, 25 percent for computers and 10 percent for general equipment. Staying within the limits of realism, Robinow is not huckstering for a mammoth basic industry. "We want to limit our plants to 800 to 1,000 employees," he said, "one-third unskilled, one-third semiskilled and one-third skilled. We simply cannot provide a 5,000-man work force for one plant. We are particularly interested in firms concerned with electronics, pharmaceuticals and medical equipment.

To get such firms, Robinow has been spending considerable time in the Northeast Corridor - Washington New England, the Chicago area and California's Orange County, rich in precision-type small firms.

He is doing quite well, thank you, and that is genuinely good news to those of us who possess a special affection for his city and the wonderful people who inhabit it.

U.N. General Assembly delays '79 adjournment

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The General Assembly, deadlocked over a choice between Cuba and Colombia for a seat on the Security Council, has put off the adjournment of its 1979 session for at least one day

After an unprecedented 112 inconclusive ballots over nine days of voting, Assembly President Salim Ahmed Salim of Tanzania got approval Tuesday night for a one-day extension of the session and scheduled further balloting for today.

Cuba and Colombia are competing for a Latin American seat on the council to be vacated by Bolivia on Dec. 31. Cuba has consistently won more votes than Colombia but fallen short of the two-thirds majority

Campaign planning was at a standstill before Tuesday, when the former prime minister surfaced from four days of personal agonizing and arm-twisting by party brass to announce he would scrap retirement plans and lead the party through one last election.

Prime Minister Joe Clark, whose government lost a no-confidence vote over its budget Friday, and New Democratic Party leader Ed Broadbent already are on the campaign trail rounding up votes for the Feb. 18

Britain postpones Rhodesia peace

LONDON (AP) - Britain postponed the formal signing of the Rhodesian peace settlement when Bishop Abel Muzorewa, who resigned last week as prime minister of the rebel colony, demanded clarification of new concessions granted to the Patriotic Front guerrillas.

The ceremonial windup to the 14-week peace talks had been scheduled for today, but Muzorewa said Tuesday he would not attend unless he receives clarification of the new arrangements Britain made to win the approval of Front leaders Joshua Nkomo and Robert Mugabe. The signing ceremony now is expected within two days

The assembly adopted the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination Against Women by a vote of 130-0 with 10 abstentions

It will take effect on the 30th day after 20 countries have ratified it, but Carlos Calero-Rodriguez' of Brazil told the assembly, "The signatures and ratifications necessary to make this effective will not come easi-

Hans Kung defies Vatican, intends teaching continuance

TUEBINGEN, West Germany (AP) - Liberal theologian Hans Kung, defying the Vatican's removal of his teaching credentials for disputing key church doctrines, says he will fight to continue teaching at the University of Tuebingen. "As a Catholic theologian, I will continue to stand up for Catholics and fight so that this step will be revoked," Kung told reporters after the Vatican's Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith on Tuesday ordered him stripped of his teaching credentials for continued "contempt" of church doctrine

He accused the Congregation, which once was the office of the Inquisition, of a "clandestine action" and said it was a scandal that "inquisitional trials are still conducted in the 20th century" in a church that bases itself on Jesus Christ and supports the human rights movement.

'I am ashamed of my church," he said. "It is very saddening that German cardinals and bishops collaborated in this inquisition.

But though the church's conservative Germany hierarchy did not support him, Kung, one of the church's leading liberal theologians, said he believed he had the support of many Catholic laymen, priests and theologians as well as of many non-Catho-

Dean Wolfgang Bartholomaeous and eight other faculty members at the University of Tuebingen said in a statement supporting their colleague: "We see heavy damages for the believability of the church in today's society and for the freedom of theology in research and teaching." Kung, 51 and a native of Switzerland, has been professor of dogmatic and ecumenical theology and Director of the Institute for Ecumenical Research at the university, one of Germany's most respected institutions, since 1960.

Although an ordained priest, he is employed by the state, and the Vatican's ruling does not affect his status as a civil servant. As a full professor, he is also guaranteed a teaching position at another German university should he be forced to leave Tuebingen, and he undoubtedly would be wooed by the world's leading secular universities because of his reputation. But Kung indicated he intends to try to stay at Tuebingen and force the Vatican to rescind its ruling against

The Vatican censured Kung for continuing to question three central doctrines of the church in his writings and teachings despite repeated warnings to conform to the church's position. These were the infallibility of the church in interpreting the word of God, that Christ was the son of God and that Christ was born of a virgin.

If " a teacher of sacred doctrine chooses and disseminates as t' 10rm of truth his own judgement, d not the thought of the church" d continues even after being wa. ed, said the Vatican declaration, "then honesty itself demands that the church...should state that he can no longer teach with the authority of the mission which he received from

The action was personally approved by Pope John Paul II and was viewed by liberals in the church as evidence that his will be a conservative papacy. Kung in a recent article reviewed the first year of the pope's reign, said it had been marked by doctrinal "rigorism" and wrote: "I cannot imagine that Jesus of Nazareth himself would take the same position today in the controversial questions as is taken by the Roman

Rhodesia policy labeled successful

WASHINGTON (AP) - Carter administration officials feel they have scored a major foreign policy success in Rhodesia, a victory that has all but gone unnoticed because of the Iranian

Although Great Britain is the nation chiefly responsible for the settlement announced this week, administration officials feel their own policies played a major role.

"We've been vindicated," an administration African specialist said Tuesday. He, like others who discussed the administration's Rhodesian policy, asked not to be identified. There is evidence to support the administration's view. Eighteen months ago, there was little to be optimistic about in Rhode-

Efforts to negotiate a settlement had led only to polarization. Some black Rhodesian groups agreed to an "internal settlement" with the white minority that preserved most of the privileges of the minority. Bishop Abel Muzorewa, a black, was elected prime minister under that settle-

But two black factions, comprising the Patriotic Front, rejected the settlement and continued fighting from bases in neighboring Zambia and Mozambique. It also was unacceptable to nearly every other African nation. In Congress, however, pressure rapidly grew to end the economic sanctions mandated by the United Nations in 1966 against the southern African nation and, in effect, recognize the "internal settlement.

Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., led numerous battles against the sactions, arguing that the regime in Salisbury had gone far enough toward majority rule and deserved American sup-

The Soviet Union and Cuba, flexing their muscles in Angola and Ethiopia, seemed bound to get involved on the side of the guerrillas.

The prospect was for a long and bloody war, with the United States on the side that much of the world branded as racist and colonialist.

Nonetheless, the administration de cided to stick to the policy outlines developed by former United Nations Ambassador Andrew Young; Richard Moose, assistant secretary of state for Africa; and Anthony Lake, the State Department's director of policy planning.

President Carter fought and won narrow battles in Congress to keep the sanctions in place until there was a settlement that offered fair elections leading to true majority rule.

"We kept the faith and built credibility. We convinced the Front Line states (mainly Zambia, Mozambique and Tanzania) that we offered a genuine alternative to expanding the war with Soviet assistance," an official

Good fortune also intervened. In May, Britain elected a conservative government pledged to end the sanctions against Rhodesia.

The civil war, meanwhile, had become a bloody stalemate. The war was particularly costly to Zambia and Mozambique where the guerrillas had their bases. Rhodesian forces frequently raided them. So in August, when the Commonwealth nations met in Zambia, the atmosphere was conducive to laying the groundwork for the peace conference in London that ended in success Monday.

The negotiations almost broke down at the last minute as one of the guerrilla leaders, Robert Mugabe, balked at the cease-fire arrange-

At that point, officials say, the administration did two things. It lifted the sanctions against Rhodesia, backing the bold British gamble of sending a governor to supervise the elections before the Patriotic Front had agreed to terms.

And it urgently requested Mozambique to lean heavily on Mugabe to agree to the settlement. A day or two later, Mugabe did.

In retrospect, some officials said the United States could have waited for the signing of the agreement to lift the sanctions, thereby avoiding criticism that it had bypassed the U.N. Security Council.

But other officials said there was no way of knowing with certainty that the Patriotic Front would make the final concession and agree to sign the agreement unless the United States had lifted the sanctions.

The agreement has been initialed but not formally signed. Britian on Tuesday briefly put off the signing ceremony after Muzorewa asked for clarification of new concessions made to the Patriotic Front.

Even with the settlement virtually in hand, U.S. officials said there is no guarantee it will work. "There are too many people and too much bitterness, and too many guns," one said.

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) - Soldiers killed 25 leftists who opened fire at them from a coffee plantation the militants seized, El Salvador's two-month-old military junta announced

The government also said four leftists were wounded and 16 captured in the shootout Tuesday, and that there were an unspecified number of army

The guerrillas occupied the plantation 30 miles west of San Salvador on Monday demanding higher wages for workers and other benefits. The junta said the troops asked the leftists to leave peacefully, but the leftists opened

It said the leftists belonged to the February 28 Popular League, the same group holding Peace Corps worker Deborah Loff of Succasunna, N.J., and 12 Salvadorans hostage in San Salvador since last Wednesday. The League is one of about a dozen leftist groups opposed to the colonels who ousted President Carlos Humberto Romero Oct. 15, and the colonels' civilian The leftists claim the junta has not carried out its promises to improve economic, social and political conditions in this tiny Central American country. The junta says it needs more time.

Washington's rivers leveling; Forecasters fear new storm

SEATTLE (AP) - Flood-swollen rivers in western pic National Forest in Clallam and Jefferson coun-Washington have begun leveling, but forecasters are watching an approaching storm that is expected to bring more rain to the drenched Olympic Peninsu-

Heavy rains have caused rivers and creeks to flood, forced the evacuation of about 550 people, damaged roads and culverts and were linked to at least three deaths.

All but two western Washington rivers had reached their flood crest and were receding by Tuesday night, officials said. The Chehalis River and the Skagit River had not reached their predicted

Ted Vuehner, a forecaster at the National Weather Service in Seattle, said a new storm packing galeforce winds would move into Washington today. But he said the rain would not be as heavy as those that have drenched the area since late last week "It should not have a major effect on the rivers,"

Gov. Dixy Lee Ray has declared a state emergency, clearing the way for immediate disaster relief from state and federal agencies for Clallam, Snohomish, Whatcom, Jefferson and Grays Harbor counties, where officials had requested assistance. The storm caused an estimated $1 million damage to roads, culverts and drainage ditches in the Olymties, said information officer Tom Sayre.

Rivers were going down Tuesday night, said Don Roberts, Clallam County undersheriff. "We're clear of any additional damage. It looks like things are coming back together.

One man was killed Friday when his truck plunged into the Bogachiel River at a bridge washout. And 75year-old Henry Jardine apparently died of a heart attack Monday night as he was being evacuated. The third man died whep his fishing boat swamped on the

About 550 persons who were evacuated from the Elwha Valley and other parts of Clallam County were either already home or on their way back, Roberts said

Although there was no official damage estimate, Roberts said one home was destroyed and 49 other homes, 16 businesses and 16 farms were damaged. He said 11,000 acres of farm land were covered with silt or washed out.

The Snohomish River had reached its crest and was holding at more than five feet above flood stage Tuesday night. It had washed out a dike in two places below Snohomish, but volunteers quickly olugged the breaks with sandbags, said Shirley Bartholomew, Snohomish County emergency services spokeswoman.

Snow cloaked an area from New York to Michigan, and accumulations of up to 5 inches were expected in the southern part of New York by tonight. Parts of Upper Michigan reported up to 3 inches on the ground this morning.

Readings were well below zero in Maine, with Limestone and Rumford at 7 below.

In the South, temperatures were below freezing in many areas, but Florida recorded highs in the 50s

Light rains persisted in the Pacific Northwest, where most rain-swollen rivers in Washington and Oregon had crested by today

Fair skies and mild temperatures were posted in California and the Southwest.

The Rockies and the High Plains enjoyed record highs when the mercury reached the 50s Tuesday. Philip, S.D., warmed to 70 degrees Tuesday but by early this morning the temperature had plunged to

Feud: Khadafy vs. Arafat imperils united Arab front

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) - A longsimmering feud between Libyan strongman Moammar Khadafy and the Palestine Liberation Organization has finally broken into the open, a development that could imperil Arab unity against Israel and increase disunity within the PLO itself.

The volatile Libyan colonel was reported to have deported two PLO officials this week from Benghazi, Libya's second largest city, about a week after he expelled the PLO's representative in his capital, Tripoli. Khadafy accused the PLO of extorting money from his country'st40,-000 Palestinians and obliquely compared PLO leader Yasser Arafat to Prime Minister Menachem Begin of Israel

In response, Beirut's PLO newspa-per called Khadafy "the mad colonel." Abu Iyad, Arafat's second-incommand, called him a "clown" and accused him of stabbing the PLO in

The PLO is made up of eight guerrilla groups, with Arafat's Al Fatah organization the main one. Khadafy has long been the most verbally militant opponent of Israel, and a rift between him and the PLO, if not quickly patched up, could make it difficult for Arab nations to coordinate their opposition to the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty.

The anti-Camp David forces already have suffered from a squabble between Syria and Iraq that has frozen the two neighboring nations' announced plans to unify their governments and armies against Israel.

There appear to be two underlying reasons for the Khadafy-Arafat discord bursting into the open: money and power.

'Khadafy hasn't contributed a piaster to the PLO since 1975," said Abu Iyad in a speech last Sunday. "Khadafy wants us to become hired hands, like those who do things for money. But I tell him on behalf of all the Palestinian people we are not employees and we don't want him to pay our salaries.

During the same four year period, Palestinian sources claim, the Libyan leader has contributed greatly to the more radical groups in the PLO, including Nayef Hawatmeh's Democratic Front, Dr. George Habash's Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, Ahmed Gebril's Popular Front-General Command and a small group called the Popular Struggle

All the PLO's guerrilla armies are financed by Arab countries, and the guerrilla organization constantly fights to remain independent of the dictates of its financiers.

Fatah is by far the largest of the eight groups, and conservative Saudi Arabia is its biggest contributor.

Fatah claims 90 percent of the PLO rank-and-file, and Arafat controls the PLO through his leadership of

However, smaller contributors like Libya cannot be ignored.

Diplomatic sources here say the danger for the guerrilla movement is that Khadafy will press the smaller groups for loyalty, thus fomenting more disunity in the overall organiza-

The Libyan leader reportedly opposes Arafat's personalized, moderate diplomacy, his search for diplomatic recognition in Europe and ultimately from the United States and his hints that he would be satisfied with an independent state made up of the West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip, occupied by Israel since the 1967 Arab-Israeli war.

While Arafat now opposes guerrilla operations outside of Israel and the territories occupied since the 1967 Arab-Israeli war, Khadafy is calling for a resumption of such operations. In a speech on Nov. 13, the national day for solidarity with the Palestinian people, he suggested that the Palestinians attack the Suez Canal and Egypt's Sinai oil fields to help upset President Anwar Sadat's peace effort with Israel.

A campaign of violence against Sadat would certainly scuttle Arafat's diplomatic efforts.

Texas oilman seeks Titanic resting place WWW TITAN

ABILENE, Texas (AP) - An oilman who has looked high and low for ungodly creatures and divine relics says he'll now sink to new depths in search for2 a legendary ocean liner.

Jack Grimm, 54, is a man whose vision may indeed exceed his reach — but not for want of trying.

He has tracked Big Foot across Canada, sought the Loch Ness Monster in Scotland and has produced a documentary film on the search for Noah's Ark.

Now the Abilene oilman wants to find the Titanic, the "unsinkable" luxury liner that sank into the icy depths of the North Atlantic on its maiden voyage in 1912 with 1,513 persons aboard.

"Everyone has been curious about it for years," Grimm said, "but no one's ever thought we could

But after several years of planning and with the aid of modern science, Grimm says he can reach the ship resting 12,000 feet under the surface and 380 miles off Newfoundland's coast.

"The one thing that haunts us is that it's such a watery tomb," Grimm said Tuesday. "It's not our plans at this time to do anything about any of the individuals. It's just to locate it, to film it, to prove where it's located and the extent of the damage to the

Grimm and his associates will begin the search in the spring, as soon as the winter storms are gone. He expects the project to last a year and a half.

Grimm will be aided by Michael Harris and Marvin Steffins of International Expeditions, a film company that has produced several documentaries. Harris said the scientists and photographers plan to film the wreck with the aid of the world's largest deep-diving submersible.

The 50-foot Aluminaut, which was used to retrieve a lost hydrogen bomb off the coast of Spain several years ago, can carry nine or 10 persons to a depth of 15,000 feet, and stay submerged 36 to 72 hours.

Harris said the Titanic should be in good condition because at 12,000 feet there is no coral life to corrode metal. He expects only a light layer of silt

The first step, Grimm said, is to pinpoint the ship's

'Once the site is pinned down, then we can put a ship over it with cables and lower cameras to the depth," he said. The Aluminaut then will send two submersible

"robots" into the Titanic to take photographs. Photographs will be used to put together a mosaic of the Titanic. Grimm says steps are being taken to prevent plundering of valuables from the Titanic. Harris said interest in the valuables would be largely historical. A major goal is "to get the bell of the Titanic, which should be easy to do.

Chicago: Catching cities' 'fever'

By PAULINE JELINEK

CHICAGO (AP) - If New York City was on the financial critical list in the mid-1970s, then what ails Chicago now is a touch of fever.

The nation's "Second City," which appeared so healthy when ruled by the late Mayor Richard Daley, seems to have caught that common bug, the "metropolitan virus."

City transit workers, already the highest paid in the nation, went on strike Monday over salary demands. On Sunday firefighters authorized their union to call a strike. Other city employees with informal contracts are pressing for firm union

In September, Standard & Poor's Corp. lowered Chicago's general obligation bond rating.

Last month, Moody's Investors Service Inc. dropped the school district's bond rating, leaving the district unable to borrow from banks and dependent on the state for cash advances to pay teach-

On top of its financial needs, the system has been threatened with a federal lawsuit over its plans for racial desegregation.

A local Teamsters strike has cut gasoline deliveries to many service stations, adding to the traffic headaches created by the transit workers' walkout. Indeed, about the only bright spot for Chicagoans these days is that their usually hapless Bears have made it to the National Football League playoffs. Although business and political sources say Chicago has nowhere near the money problems New York had in 1975, they admit concern.

The service was free "because of the inconvenience to our

And the slogan Daley so often used - "The City That Works" - is being challenged. Many say that the smooth-working city machinery is headed for a the past decade the assessed values in real terms breakdown unless it gets a major overhaul.

Mayor Jane Byrne has been quick to separate the cantly — more than 12 percent.' problems of the deeply troubled school system from that of her city government, at least where it comes to laying blame.

"I'm very angry that that happened, but I in no are the loss of jobs and dissatisfaction with city way am responsible," she said of the escalating schools. school crisis.

Alderman Vito Marzullo, who at 82 has served city that works. under four mayors, said Tuesday that people are expecting too much too soon from Mrs. Byrne, whom he called "this young lady.

'How can anyone take Mayor Daley's place overnight? It takes time. You can't expect someone new to do what it took someone 40 years to do," Marzullo

Alderman Eugene Ray also defended the city. He said a "city that works" means cooperation from many groups - labor, business, industry and citizens. He said Daley got involved in conflicts and helped mediate labor disputes, noting that Mrs. Byrne is trying to do the same thing.

'Our present mayor has inserted herself to make it work, but I don't think she's getting the cooperation others have gotten," he said

· The school district's problems include empty cash coffers, but Mrs. Byrne said Tuesday that the school board would be able to meet Friday's $41.5 million

She said she would announce on Wednesday just meet its other debts, including more than $12.2 million owed to milk suppliers and other vendors. The board also owes money to private bus companies, but they've agreed to continue service until the end of the week, when Christmas break begins.

Financial analysts have estimated the school sys tem needs almost $500 million to straighten out its

In addition, school board president Catherine. Rohter has said that $8.1 million withheld from employee checks for pension fund, union dues and other voluntary contributions is missing.

And the Internal Revenue Service wants the school board to pay $16 million in back payroll taxes. Mrs. Byrne said Tuesday that the IRS had given the board until March 31

"And you have a school system which has never been good A lot of terrible things were going on while Daley was supposedly running things well,' Oberman said.

Mrs. Byrne has been trying to orchestrate a solution to the schools' growing money problem which would involve support from the business community, the state and the city.

That, Gregario said, has put the financial community on guard.

The drop in the city's bond rating "is not near what happened in New York, but what a lot of people are concerned about is the close tie between the Board of Education and city credit," he said.

Gregario said that if the school system were how the wages would be paid and how the board is to considered a city obligation, "city's credit would necessarily suffer more.

End to transit strike sought in court

CHICAGO (AP) - Some Chicago commuter trains rolled today, manned by supervisors and dissenting union members and protected by police, as the Chicago Transit Authority headed for court to seek an end to a public transit strike.

Circuit Judge Daniel J. O'Brien, who on Sunday issued a temporary restraining order against the strike, was to hear the CTA request.

His order was ignored and 11,000 bus drivers and train operators walked off the job early Monday, causing traffic jams, keeping some people home from work and dealing a blow to downtown merchants during the Christmas shopping season. About 1 million commuters normally use the system each

CTA supervisors began operating a few elevated trains during rush hour Tuesday evening, and trains were heavily guarded by

LOS ANGELES (AP) - David Begelman, toppled from power at Columbia Pictures in a 1978 forgery scandal, has bounced back to the movie industry's top echelon with the announcement that he will become president of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's motion picture division.

Frank E. Rosenfelt, president and chief executive officer of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Inc., said Tuesday he believes Begelman was "a sick man" when he forged checks on a Columbia account Now, he said, the 59-year-old Begelman has recovered and is ready to resume his former role as a gifted hit-maker in the movie industry. "I am persuaded that period is behind him. He has paid a very severe price," Rosenfelt said.

Begelman, whose Columbia projects included "Shampoo" and "Close Encounters of the Third Kind," spent a year on probation after pleading no contest to grand theft charges for forging $40,000 worth of checks. He was not available for comment and his office said he would be out of town

Begelman has been working as an independent producer at Columbia since his resignation as studio president.

HUDSON, N.Y. (AP) - David Rockefeller, chairman of the Chase Manhattan Bank, is acquiring 1,000 acres of zich, Hudson Valley farm land with a reported price tag of more than $1 million, according to published reports.

Rockefeller and his wife Margaret recently purchased the 400-acre Stone House Farm owned by Stanley and Margaret Voorhees-Sr. The farm is considered the focal point of the purchase.

Closings on three other adjacent farms are expected within the next several weeks, with the cost of the entire parcel expected to exceed $1 million, according to the Hudson Register-Star.

The Rockefellers plan to use the farm to raise show cattle, the paper said. They do not expect to live on the property, however.

NEW YORK (AP) - Michael Learned, star of the television series "The Waltons," and her 17-year-old son Luke both had something to celebrate - her marriage and his birthday. Miss Learned, 40, was married Tuesday to screen and television writer aboard a double-decker English bus sporting a "Just Married" sign. Miss Learned's youngest son was not left out of the festivities. A small note on her three-tiered wedding cake read: "Happy Birthday, Luke." The bride has two other children from a previous marriage, Caleb, 22,

House OKs Chrysler bill

WASHINGTON (AP) - Federal loan guarantees for Chrysler Corp., which says it will go bankrupt without them, are a step closer with House passage of a bailout package that calls on United Auto Workers to double their wage concessions to $400

.The ailing automaker's UAW members would have to approve that figure, which union president Douglas Fraser says he would agree to as the price of the $1.5 billion in loan guaran-scheduled to start a month's vaca-

Clouding the outlook for the Senate bill, however, was the fact that several senators have said workers of the nation's 10th largest corporation should make greater sacrifices.

Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., was ready to submit an amendment calling for $800 million from the hourly workers.

Sen. Paul Tsongas, D-Mass., prepared an amendment for $550 million in concessions. Tsongas said he was aiming at a compromise of $475 million once the issue reaches a House-Senate conference committee.

Whatever package Congress finally approves will require UAW ratification because the union recently approved a three-year Chrysler contract providing for only $200 million in wage concessions.

House passage on a 271-136 vote houses by Friday, when Congress is . Tuesclay followed a debate in which

Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D. Mass, said a Chrysler collapse might bring on a depression.

"We can't afford what would happen to this country if Chrysler went down the drain," he said. The company has 113,000 employees, but backers of the aid say more than three times that number would ultimately be jobless if Chrysler goes under.

The House bill drew the support of 209 Democrats and 62 Republicans and the opposition of 88 Republicans and 48 Democrats.

Opponents said the aid would mark the first time the government had bailed out a consumer products firm that sustained setbacks in the marketplace.

The measure proposes a total of $3.43 billion from public and private sources to bolster Chrysler, which anticipates losing $1 billion this

In addition to the loan guarantees and hourly wage concessions, the House bill provides for the federal assistance to be matched by $100 million in missed pay raises by white collar workers, $650 million in bank loans not insured by the federal government, $300 million from the sale of Chrysler assets, $250 million in tax concessions and other benefits from state and local governments, $180 million from Chrysler suppliers and dealers and $50 million from the sale of new stock.

A five-member board made up of the secretaries of treasury, transportation and labor; the chairman of the Federal Reserve Board; and the comptroller general would have to approve a Chrysler operating plan before the federal loan guarantees could be made.

Chrysler would be required to give its employees $150 million worth of stock over the four yearslof the loan guarantee program.

The three senators who offered an amendment to the bill providing loan guarantees to Chrysler Corp explain the measure in Washington Tuesday. From the left, they are Sen. William Roth, R-Del.; Thomas Eagleton, D-Mo.; and Joseph Biden, D-

Del. At a capitol news conference, they explained their amendment would provide $3.2 billion in aid and impose a wage freeze that would cost United Auto Workers members employed by Chrysler $400 million. (AP Laserphoto)

New wage guidelines exempt workers earning less than $4

WASHINGTON (AP) - Individual workers who earn less than $4 an hour would be exempt from new wage guidelines under an agreement reached by President Carter's Pay Advisory Committee.

The 18-member group also voted unanimously Tuesday to exempt all groups of workers whose average earnings are below $5.35 an hour.

The two decisions could affect more than 35 percent of the nation's hourly wage earners, said Robert Russell, director of the Council on Wage and Price Stability.

The panel also voted to exempt pay increments given either for a specific

U.S., Great Britain in anti-trust tussle

WASHINGTON (AP) - Great Britain and the United States are tussling over enforcement of antitrust law and the issues sound a bit like those of the American Revolution, only this time the shoe is on the other foot.

Instead of "taxation without representation," the British are raising a battle cry over American efforts to crack down on alleged economic concentration involving foreign companies. The conservative government of Margaret

Thatcher has charged the United States with imperialism and is proposing legislation that British officials say is "justifiable commercial self-defense." The proposed law, expected to be enacted early next year by the House of Commons, would allow a British company to recover punitive damages assessed against it by a court in the United States. With approval from a British court, the British company could seize the assets of the American company that won the damages in an American court. In cases involving so-called triple damages, the British firm could recover two-thirds of the judgment through a seizure.

The proposed legislation also would empower the British trade secretary to prohibit British companies from complying with foreign court orders to supply documents in antitrust cases.

In the opinion of American officials, this latter provision may be superfluous. Five members of the British House of Lords, who form that nation's highest court, ruled in 1977 that a British company did not have to honor a subpoena from an American judge to turn over documents in a private antitrust suit.

That suit was brought by Westinghouse Electric Corp. against 29 producers of uranium, including Rio Tinto-Zinc of Great Britain. The case is credited with being one of the major incentives for the proposed British legislation against U.S. antitrust enforcement.

Westinghouse alleged that it could not meet commitments to supply uranium to public utility companies in 1975 because the uranium producers had increased the price of the metal about five times what it had been a few years earlier.

Westinghouse is suing the producers for $6 billion in damages - three times the $2 billion that Westinghouse is being sued for by the utility compan-

Under the proposed British law, a judgment for punitive damages against Rio Tinto-Zinc could be recovered by the British firm by seizing Westinghouse assets in Britain.

It is not entirely clear to American officials whether the assets would have to be those of the parent company or whether it could be those of the parent company's subsidiary in Britain.

The second major case which has angered the British involves the U.S. government directly.

The Justice Department pressed criminal charges here last June against seven European shipping companies, including two from Great Britain, that were accused of conspiring to fix prices on freight.

The defendants settled the case by pleading no contest and were fined a total of $6.1 million. The proposed British law would not directly affect such criminal fines, since it only provides for seizing of assets in civil suits by private American compan-

But the case was cited by Britons, who considered it an example of American over-reaching. Critics say the Justice Department case ignored realities of the shipping business in which companies form conferences and set rates for particular international routes.

The Justice Department said while it was all right to fix rates, the companies must first get approval for them from the U.S. Maritime Commission. The seven European lines had failed to do so, the indict-

Kennedy faces questioners for Iowa TV commercials

WASHINGTON (AP) - One questioner asked Sen. Edward M. Kennedy if he wasn't just another "slick politician" undeserving of the man's vote.

Another wanted to know how much Kennedy's wife, Joan, was behind him and whether they are a happy couple the way-Jimmy and Rosalynn Carter appear to be

A third person asked about busing, and Chappaquiddick also came up as did inflation and other issues as Kennedy spent several hours Tuesday filming television commercials in Waterloo, Iowa, for use later in his presidential campaign.

The trip to Iowa was Kennedy's fourth since he announced his candidacy on Nov. 7, an indication of the importance he attaches to the state's Jan. 21 precinct caucuses.

The Massachusetts senator had been scheduled to spend part of today in the state, but abruptly changed plans and flew back to Washington early this morning.

Aides said he wanted to be on hand for a key Senate vote on legislation to provide federal loan guarantees to the Chryşler Corp. It was the second time this week Kennedy quickly changed campaign plans to attend to Senate business

On Monday, he canceled campaign appearances in Illinois and Wisconsin so he could stay in Washington for votes on the

'windfall profits' tax.

Kennedy's abbreviated trip to Iowa was unlike his earlier visits. While he made two campaign appearances, one a speech at the University of Northern Iowa and the second at a black church, he spent most of his time in private question-and-answer sessions with Iowans while cameras filmed the discussions for possible use in the commercials.

Directing the filming was Charles Guggenheim, who has worked for Kennedy in the past and also helped prepare commercials for Robert F. Kennedy's presidential campaign in

All three sessions were closed to reporters, but Mona Sievers, who attended one, said Kennedy was asked some tough ques-

"His wife came up," Mrs. Sievers said. "One woman said she sees President Carter and Rosalynn as a happy couple and she did not see Joan campaigning for him." Mrs. Sievers said Kennedy replied that his wife campaigned with him last week and was at a fundraising reception Sunday

"He said she will be in Iowa campaigning in January," Mrs.

She also remembered that one participant told Kennedy, "I think you are a slick politician," and questioned whether he deserved support. She said Kennedy disputed that statement and said he had compiled a record spanning 17 years in the Senate.

Overall, Mrs. Seivers said she was impressed by Kennedy. At an earlier commercial filming at a farm implement dealership at the outskirts of town, Kennedy impressed two other Iowans, Don Pech of Windsor and Gary Crawford of Indepen-

Both said they had had the impression that Kennedy was inarticulate at times.

Americans worry about heating bills, opinion poll shows

NEW YORK (AP) - Nearly two out of five Americans are worried they won't be able to pay their home heating bills this winter, an Associated Press-NBC News poll says.

'Almost half of those who use fuel oil for heating are afraid they can't afford to keep warm, while slightly more than one-third of those who heat with natural gas or electricity are similarly concerned.

Americans are still concerned that not enough heating oil and other fuels will be available this winter, but that fear has apparently been overshadowed by worries about being able to pay for the Thirty-eight percent of those questioned Dec. 11 and 12 said they are worried about being able to pay for the fuel to heat their homes this winter. Sixty-two percent were not worried.

That 38 percent broke down into 17 percent who were very worried about being able to meet their heating bills and 20 percent who were only somewhat worried. One percent of the 1,595 adults interviewed nationwide by telephone were not sure.

Those most worried about paying their bills use

Forty-eight percent of those polled who use heating oil are worried about paying their bills, versus 52 percent who aren't worried. Twenty-three percent are very worried and 24 percent somewhat worried about the bills. One percent was not sure.

Thirty-six percent of those who heat with natural gas and 34 percent of those who use electricity were worried about the bills. For each group, roughly half were very worried about paying their bills with the other half somewhat worried.

Fewer Americans now are worried about being able to get enough fuel for heating this winter. Earlier in the year, there were concerns of heating oil shortages this winter. But, under prodding from the government, oil companies stockpiled large quantities of the fuel and consumers are apparently making a major effort to conserve.

Seventy-two percent of those questioned said they are not worried about getting enough fuel this winter, while 28 percent are worried.

Ten percent are still very worried about availability, and 17 percent are somewhat worried. One percent was not sure.

As with every sample survey, the results of the AP-NBC News poll can vary from the opinions of all those with telephones across the country because of chance variations in the sample.

For polls of about 1,600 interviews, the results should vary no more than 3 percentage points either way simply because of sample error. That is, if one could talk to all adults in the country, there is only one chance out of 20 that the results would vary from the findings of this poll by more than 3 percentage

Of course, the results could also vary because of differences in question wording, timing of the interviews and the methods of interviewing.

Memories bring back her first Christmas in U.S.

By SANDI BREEDEN Lifestyle Writer

On Dec. 7, 1941, Pearl Harbor was bombed.

On that same day, Herta Fuhrman and her husband listened to the car radio, anxiously waiting for any news on the bombing. At the time, they were waiting at a Midland bus terminal for some friends from California who were planning to help them celebrate Mrs. Fuhrman's first Christmas in the United States

Mrs. Fuhrman moved to the family ranch outside of Andrews with her husband when she came to the states, and has lived in that area since.

"THE RANCH HOUSE was a small, two-room house," Mrs. Fuhrman said. "We had no elec-

"Does she recognize you?" the young Argentinian journalist asks Julia Quinlan.

"There's no recognition," she replies wearily, as she has all these years to the question posed in a dozen languages by reporters from hundreds of publications. Had Karen Ann Quinl her respirator was turned off, June 10, 1976, her parents, like the watching world, would have been prepared. Joseph and Julia Quinlan were ready, they said then, for their daughter to be placed "in God's hands." They had gone through their struggle, come to grips with their grief.

But nearly five years of visits twice a day have kept Karen Ann very much a part of the Quinlans' daily life. Her death now may well be harder to bear than it would have

'Having her removed from the respirator was a relief," Julia Quinlan said during a recent interview. "Visiting her every day is part of our way of life. When she does die, I'm sure we'll have to adjust to it. But we'll go

They still bring flowers, still "talk to her," still celebrate birthdays at her bedside - the next will be her 26th. But there is no hope. The visits are for them. 'The holidays are harder," says Joseph Quinlan, who came later than his wife to the belief in the summer of 1975 that Karen should be removed from the respirator then thought to be keeping her alive.

'If I go down and she's restless, or has a temperature, it makes it more difficult. Or it may just be my mood," says Julia Quinlan of her visits to her eldest daughter, who now weighs about 70 pounds and lies in the same fetal position she assumed within days of becoming comatose.

When most of the publicity surrounding the case died down, the Quinlans used the funds received from their book and its subsidiary rights to establish the Karen Ann Quinlan Foundation, which is now working to launch a home care program for the terminally ill, the Karen Ann Quinlan Center of Hope.

The Quinlans say their interest in establishing such a program began when we were trying to find a place FREEZERS REFRIGERATORS FREEZERS MICROWAVE for Karen and couldn't find any place in the entire state of New Jersey. Eventually, Morrisview agreed to not everyone sees as much fun in it as they do. Two anti-nuclear political scientists have come up with a board game called 'NUKE," but some utility company authorities, environmentalists and established game companies aren't laughing.

'Nuke' game not fun(ny) for everyone

> By CAROLE FELDMAN Associated Press Writer

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) - For the activist-who-has-everything, there's a new board game, called "NUKE: The Race to Nuclear Power." But you might first make sure your activist has a sense of humor.

The Monopoly-type board game, with 36 squares for two to four players, pits one utility against another in the scramble to be the first to build a nuclear power plant. All it takes to win is $1 billion and five federal and local permits. The inventors, two anti-nuclear political scientists, say the game is meant to be educational and fun, an irreverent satire on the nuclear power industry.

But, say Andrea Asaro and David Morell, who developed the game, it also is designed to teach people about nuclear energy. What I wanted to do was a spoof on nuclear power, a real satire," says Ms. Asaro, a first-year law student."It was a joke

But one utility official, although acknowledging that he had not seen NUKE, says the nuclear industry is nothing to joke about.

"I hardly think the nuclear industry is something to be spoofed," says Sam Laird, a spokesman for Jersey Central Power & Light Co., which operates a nuclear power plant in

"Nuclear energy is something too important and too vital to the

EDITOR'S NOTE - It's only a game, say its inventors. But country to hold up as light as a game," says Laird. "The nation is going to depend too strongly on nuclear power.

> Ms. Asaro, 29, who received a doctorate in political science at Princeton University, says it took her about two weeks to develop > the board game, which sells for $8.95 by mail order. 'I have the sense that this will appeal to anyone who's concerned about the environment and energy," she says. 'Games are in, and this is a very topical kind of theme.'

"The statement of the game is twofold," says Morell, 40, a research political scientist at Princeton's Center for Energy and Environmental Studies and an anti-nuclear activist.

'For those already committed to an anti-nuclear power stance, it's important that on occasion we be able to maintain a sense of humor," he says. "It also is educational - it may foster more understanding of the nuclear industry from a critical

NUKE's utilities move around the board at the throw of a die and lose or gain permits and money, depending on the square on which they land.

The game is laden with the technical jargon synonymous with the nuclear industry, and the instructions include a glossary to help players decipher the terminology.

NUKE also includes a Brice-Henderson Insurance Pool, a fictitious allusion to the Price-Anderson Act, which sets the maximum liability for the nuclear industry at $560 million.

Morell says the game has several advantages; you can play it in about an half-hour and it's cheaper than most board games.

To keep down the costs, he says, NUKE is made of paper. It comes in an envelope rather than the cardboard boxes associated

Writer spends earnings on gym for children

BOSTON (AP) - A woman who writes religious poetry is spending the earnings from her books on a Christmas present for city kids. She's building them a gymnasium. Ann Kiemel, whose six slim volumes of simple verse have sold several million copies, says she gives away half of her gross income.

This year, she is turning the basement of a shabby tenement in the Italian-American North End into a vestpocket gym for Boston children.

'This is my Christmas gift to the neighborhood," said Miss Kiemel. "I thought that if I built a gym in this building, kids would have a place to Miss Kiemel says she donated nearly all of the $57,000 needed to build a basketball court, install calisthenic equipment, put in toilets and generally overhaul the cellar. The work should be finished in early January.

The basement was once part of a small church. Now the building is an apartment house on a tenement-lined alley where long underwear hangs from clotheslines strung between fire

Until three years ago, Miss Kiemel, 34, was dean of women at Eastern

Nazarene College in suburban Quincy. Now she writes and spends five days a week traveling around the country giving talks

'Money is not significant except to touch people's lives," the tall, slender woman says. "That's its only

Today, she leaves for Israel, where she will run in a marathon around the Sea of Galilee. She is taking with her 12 children and nine adults and will pay their expenses.

"They will cheer me through 26 miles, but the real purpose is to let them spend Christmas in Bethlehem and let them walk where Jesus walked. It will be an opportunity they. could never have otherwise

Miss Kiemel, whose books include "I'm Celebrating" and "I'm Out to Change My World," says she does not advocate any one church.

"I believe that one person plus a great God can make a difference in the world," she says. "I speak for all Christians - Protestant and Catholic. I don't preach any cause except that love changes everything. It's a pat on the back, the sparkle in your eyes or a warm handshake."

Natives are pampered by wealth of Emirates

SHARJAH, United Arab Emirates (AP) - Take $14 billion in oil revenue, spread it among the 890,000 inhabitants of the United Arab Emirates and you get $15,750 a year for every man, woman and child. It is the highest per capita income in the world.

In this category, the fortunate people of the United Arab Emirates - a loose federation of seven emirates on the southern shore of the Persian Gulf - regularly outdistance those of the United States, Switzerland and Swe-

The spread of wealth here is lopsided, with far more going to ruling sheikhs and merchant families than to the Indians and Pakistanis who compose the bulk of the work force. But, in the view of diplomats and Western experts here, there is more than enough for everyone

There is no income tax. The government provides free education and health care. Citizens who are not satisfied with local medical treatment may go abroad, also at government expense. Local phone calls are free.

'Let's face it, the government takes good care of its own," said one diplomatic source, who asked not to be identified. "As a group, native citizens are pampered.

There are only about 200,000 native citizens, and they consider manual labor beneath them. Hence construction workers are Egyptian, streetsweepers are Indian and government clerks are Palestinians or Pakistanis. But the top posts in government, trading and banking are held by

Here in Sharjah, perhaps the flashiest of the seven emirates; the Marbella Club of Spain built 50 villas on a lagoon surrounded by 28,000 airfreighted trees - for tourists.

But who needs tourists when so much money is already at home? The villas were snapped up by local mer-chants as permanent homes even before they were finished.

Inflation, energy crunch changing shopping habits

By HARRY ANDERSON The Los Angeles Times

At a shopping mall in Orange County, Calif., Andy Krumm, a divorced father of an 8-year-old son, says his biggest Christmas shopping difficulty this year has been finding a tree tall enough to show off in his new home. Energy crisis? High prices? Recession? No problem.

'If I see what I want and I can have it immediately, I'll pay twice the price," Krumm says. "So what if it's $50 more? I can afford it."

Across the country at a Korvette's department store in New York, mail clerk Alvin Comberbatch has a different view. He is upset because he cannot afford a $60 bicycle for his second son this year like the one he gave his eldest son last year.

"I HAVE TO GIVE everything a second thought this year," he says. "I will have to give less for Christmas this year because I am trying to save money. I don't know what I will be able to get them.

Krumm and Comberbatch reflect what major retailing companies say they have already learned: This is a very uneven, uncertain Christmas shopping season. After several years of soaring holiday sales volume, most retailers expect this year's total to barely exceed that of 1978

In some areas, particularly in the Midwest, consumers appear to be greatly concerned about high prices and a recession. In others, particularly California and the West, there seems to be much less worry about the economic situation.

SURVEYS OF SHOPPERS and retailing executives in several major cities found that, generally speaking, Americans are being very cautious with their Christmas shopping dollars, but few are able — or willing - to cut back significantly on their spending.

Shoppers have changed their habits noticeably because of the energy crunch. They are making fewer trips, studying price comparisons in advertising and phoning ahead to make sure merchandise is available.

"We used the telephone a lot more to get prices before we ever made a trip out of the house," says Annette Ruth of McLean, Va. "I must have called 10 stores to find the best price for electronic games.

Others have turned to mail-order houses and catalogs to save trips to the department stores. Violet Bradford of Los Angeles, for example, ordered everything from dolls to disco. roller skates through the Sears, Roebuck & Co. catalog. It is cheaper, she says, and she doesn't like the crowds in the stores.

STILL OTHERS, in an effort to save both gasoline and money, are giving gift certificates. "Let them use the gas to pick out something," says one shopper in Los Angeles.

Inflation has also altered shopping habits this year. Although retailing industry executives say that prices in department stores have gone up only about 5 percent on average, most shoppers think otherwise - even in more affluent areas. Clothes and toys have gone up the most, according to many shoppers.

A middle-aged woman at a mall in Southern California, complains, There is no such thing as a little toy any more. I bought an old-fashioned spinning top for one of my boys that cost $20.

To cope with higher prices, many shoppers say they are making small gifts at home to save money. Sewing supply stores report brisk sales of material for decorative pillows.

An import store reports it already has sold out its Mason jar supply, apparently because consumers want them to pack homemade candy, sachets and nuts.

ANOTHER MEANS to economize, shoppers report, has been to "negotiate" with family members either to set a dollar limit on gifts or to eliminate gift-giving altogether.

"For the first time ever," says Leslie Long of Washington, D.C., "my large family has decided to draw names for presents. My sisters and brothers now have their own young families. Nobody can afford that wholesale gift-giving any more.

her family set a $5 limit on all gifts to family members except children. She is buying inexpensive goods such as socks for most relatives. 'Unfortunately, says Varvel, there are few stores selling good gift items for less than $5, so she has been making quite a few including a shirt for her brother-in-

Others have tried to set strict spending limits on themselves. Some say they are spending only cash for their gifts. "When my $125 runs out, that's it," one comments.

CREDIT CARDS, many of which offer deferred billing until February, have been a cushion for shoppers such as Hannah Marsh. It is easier to put everything on deferred billing, she says, than to live within a holiday shopping budget.

Across the country, shoppers offered the observation that stores seem quieter this year, that consumers do not seem to be buying as much. "Maybe people just don't have the money this year," Marsh theorizes.

Many shoppers comment that they are economizing on Christmas spend ing to save for big expenses coming up next year - new houses, furniture, arrival of a new baby.

Others explain that they are buying only practical gifts. "For my family I am getting what they need," says Barbara Cisco, a New York department store employee. "Underwear for my sons, pajamas for my husband and a plaid shirt for my 26-year-

For most, this Christmas shopping season has entailed a great deal more planning than usual to minimize wasted trips.

ONE WASHINGTON, D.C., housewife asked her two children to draw up lists of "every conceivable gift" that they liked. From that, she narrowed the choice before she went

"I really put more pencil and paper thought into my shopping this year, instead of going and wandering aimlessly about," she says. "I did practically no impulse buying.

Retail executives are acutely aware of the caution among shoppers. Last year, despite a slow start, Christmas sales came on strong to set a record. This year, as one store executive said, "Everyone is categorizing Christmas sales as 'good,' and you know what that means in diplomatic terms. It's the equivalent of politicians saying they had 'frank and candid discussions.

Store officials say Christmas shopping this year got off to a slow start in November, partly because unusually warm weather in many places kept shoppers away. Many retailers are hoping that an extra shopping day this year (since Christmas Eve falls on a Monday) will buoy sales. Shoppers, they said, tend to put off many purchases until the last weekend - at least, that was the pattern last year.

SOME CHAINS - most notably those that sell more expensive, "upscale" merchandise - are expecting a sales increase of 10 percent or more above last year because inflationwary consumers appear to be buying costlier goods, such as crystal and jewelry, that have "intrinsic" value.

Lower-priced merchandise - especially novelties and "gimmick" gifts is not doing as well. Edwin G. Roberts, president of May Co. California, notes that sales at the company's budget stores are running behind other departments this season. "Historically, a downturn in our budget stores has been a sign that a recession is on the horizon," he says.

The store executives are not overly nervous as yet, but they are prepared in case sales do not meet expecta-

George P. Kelly, president of Marshall Field & Co., Chicago, says shoppers are not spending as freely as last year, and that has caused his company to do more price-cutting sales promotion than in previous Christmas

THE WARM WEATHER has been as big a factor in the relatively sluggish Christmas sales as high prices and recession worries. Higher than normal temperatures have caused a substantial drop in sales of heavy

'Proposition 9 cents' grows into loss totaling thousands

By BRYNA BRENNAN

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) - It was billed as a campaign to "pound some cents into Congress," and it ended when a coal truck delivered two tons of pennies to Washington, D.C.

Organizers of Proposition 9 Cents, which took its name from the 1978 inflation rate, said in August they hoped to deliver more pennies in the future. Now they say they have no intention of trying it again - it was a financial disaster.

'We thought we would pull it through," said John McCormack, who headed the public relations end of the campaign. "It was a very big task for a small number of people. The financial thing caught up with us and we had to put the brakes on.

Proposition 9 Cents grew from a bank's plan for a series of advertisements to educate people about infla-

"We were very concerned about inflation and we wanted to do something about it," said Stephen Stark, marketing director for the First National Bank of Ceredo. Stark went to munities had joined in the drive to collect nine pennies from each of 250,-000 area residents, then deliver the money to Washington to help reduce the national debt.

"Every one of us is losing money because the federal government spends more - while politicians tell us to live on less — and fuels inflation," McCormack said in July.

But by the time the loaded coal truck reached the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, it was carrying about 50,000 donations - $4,700 - and about $60,000 of the total expense of $147,000 was absorbed as a loss by the advertising company. The rest was paid off by area businessmen.

'The organization is pretty much in limbo now; nothing much is anticipated," Stark said in a recent interview. "Most banks and businesses don't want to get involved in things of a controversial issue. But Stark says that considering this year's double-digit inflation, "I think it's a good indication that what we were trying to say was right on the

Lori Varvel of Burbank, Calif., says clothing and ski apparel, executives say, and that could hurt the overall sales total more than anything.

Retailers report that the hottest sellers this Christmas are electronic games (which sell for up to $50), velour shirts and robes, food processors, silver and gold home accessories, jewelry, exercise equipment and rabbit fur coats.

Besides heavy coats and other outerwear, other poor sellers have been men's suits and formal clothes.

Retailers in areas hard-hit by plant closings and unemployment are feeling the pinch much more - but they apparently planned for it. Hudson's, a chain of stores in Michigan and Ohio, expected trouble during the Christmas season this year because of layoffs in the auto industry, a big employer in that area.

"OUR WESTERN REGION is our best region," says a spokeswoman for Kmart Corp., Troy, Mich., adding that even in the West buyers are going more for specially priced items or goods that have been heavily promoted on television.

"Obviously, we realized in the beginning that there would be a weakening economy," the spokeswoman

Meantime, "upscale" chains said they are expecting "healthy" increases in sales over last year as consumers seem willing to lay out higher prices for a few special gifts.

To titillate, or not to titillate

By JACK SMITH (c) 1979, The Los Angeles Times A group of feminists in Miami, according to a story in the paper, have, pressured the county commissioners' there to stop the distribution of 50,000 posters featuring "a back view of a topless woman snorkeler." The posters were part of a campaign to attract tourists

At first glance that seems merely silly, but Dorothy Yates, a leader of the protest and a former chairman of the county's Commission on the Status of Women, is said to have complained that "a half-nude woman cannot serve any other purpose than sexual titillation."

Perhaps I shouldn't comment on this minor skirmish so far as from California, specially because I haven't seen the poster; but what hurts the women's movement in one state hurts it everywhere. And if we are to get the Equal Rights Amendment ratified we must discourage those embarrassing little misuses of

One of the movement's favorite gambits in the beginning was the taunt that men felt threatened by the liberation of the opposite sex. Of course a man who feels threatened by women's demands for nothing more than equal rights is a feckless fellow, undeserving even of our pity. But anyone might well feel threatened when Comstockian vigilantes bring about a public poster-burning of the kind that evidently has taken place in

Not having a copy of the poster, I can only guess what it looks like, but I don't think it would be too extravagant of me to imagine that it shows a lissome young woman floating face down in some limpid blue cove of Biscayne baye. She wears a bright bikini bottom but no top, and her lovely back, tan as a coconut and sparkling with diamond-drops of water, is happily not traversed by the narrow and binding band of cloth that one conventionally expects to see.

Whether this picture is sexually titillating is a matter of personal response that one should not be required to disclose. But we may wonder why Ms. Yates finds this woman's back more titillating than the back of a woman in a backless evening gown of the type that may be seen, let us say, on women of the most unimpeachable taste and decorum at the Los Angeles Music Center.

I suppose the Miami snorkeler seems more titillating because any intelligent man would sooner or later realize, from her naked back, that she must be naked on the other side too; and that of course would set him to imagining what she must look like from that side, and once he was off on such speculations as those, why of course he would be likely to find himself titillated.

Wht actually brings about the fellow's titillation, though, is his own imagination, activated by a simple deduction of the kind that Sherlock

Holmes spun off so effortlessly. 'Watson, that woman is half-naked. "I say, Holmes. How d'you know that?" "You may have noticed that she has no strap across her back. Consequently, she cannot be covered on the other side, since there is nothing to support the necessary apparatus." "I say, Holmes!"

On the other hand, when we see the back of a woman in a backless gown, we assume, from experience, that we will find her adequately covered when she turns around, and so our imagination is in rein at this umpromising probability, and we are not titillated. Assuming that Ms. Yates is right, and that the poster indeed is titillating, I wonder what the commissioner hoped to accomplish by using it in a tourism campaign. Did they suppose that flaccid businessmen from up north would hurry down to Miami in the hope of catching one of those half-naked naiads in their motel pool? Did they suppose their wives would

Or could the commissioners simply have seen the poster as a work of art, like Botticelli's Venus rising from the sea, and hoped it would suggest a nearby lotus land, balmy and lush, in which the tired spirit might be refreshed and the tired flesh momentarily freed of its fetters.

It seems to me that Ms Yates' epigrammatic dismissal of halfnaked women as useless for anything but sexual titillation is degrading to women in general, and reduces many of our greatest works of art to mere pornography, including Degas' lovely paintings and sculptures of halfnaked women brushing their hair, scrubbing their toes, or going about the other homely and intimate rituals of the boudoir. Imagine what Degas could have done with a woman adjusting her snorkel."

It won't do to argue that Venus de Milo is a work of art but a half-naked woman in a poster is simply a halfnaked woman. What about "September Morn?" I know it is scorned by the critics. But is that shy young woman, surprised in her innocent and beguiling nakedness, any less entitled to the respect of Ms. Yates than her ancient

Also, it is ironic that Ms. Yates should greet with wrath a picture of a woman snorkeling without a bra when a woman's right to discard her bra is one of the most cherished and symbolic if trivial rights of the movement; one sanctified in the observance at every cocktail party and even on the street and in the office, and one that I have no wish to interdict.

The story in the paper said that the commissioners didn't know what to do with the 25,000 posters they still have. I am asking them to send one to me. If it's titillating I'll put it in the trash. Scout's honor I'd just like to look at it long enough to see if my imagination is still working.

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) - The Republic of Transkei, South Africa's first homeland nation for blacks, not only still lacks international recognition after three years of 'independence.' It also Tacks money

A confidential memorandum, leaked recently to South African newspapers, and allegedly authored by Transkei's finance secretary, claimed there isn't even enough money to pay the salaries of government workers.

Transkei, now the flagship of three 'independent" black homelands, became a republic with 2.5 million people within South Africa on Oct. 25, 1976, amid much pomp and cere-

The event was ignored by all countries of the world, including the United States. Only South Africa recognized the new republic. Today, not even South Africa has formal diplomatic relations with Transkei. The Transkei government broke off relations in 1978 over a land dispute.

The severing of relations meant little. Borders remain open and Transkei remains economically dependent on handouts from South Africa's white-minority government. South Africa annually gives it $138 million in cash.

But even with this help, the leaked, "strictly confidential" memorandum of the Transkei Finance Ministry said only $7 million remained in the state coffers, that the country is $45 million in the red this year and that there isn't enough money to pay the salaries of 30,000 civil servants.

Finance Minister Ramsay Madikizela was quoted by the Rand Daily Mail as saying that the document had been leaked to the press "by enemies of Transkei wishing to create a damaging impression of the actual situ-

Religious TV station uses church for studio

By JEAN PETERS The Washington Post

MANASSAS, Va. - Not more than one in 35 of the religious television stations across the country can claim genuine organ pipes on the studio walls and stained glass that gently filters daylight into the control room

WTKK ("Witnessing the King of Kings"), a Northern Virgina momand-pop operation that started out two years ago on little more than a prayer and a borrowed studio set, is the

Broadcasting on Channel 66 from an abandoned Baptist church in Manassas, WTKK is the brainchild of ex-ABC News engineer Les Raker, 40, whose start-up budget was so tight he moved his family into the church to keep a roof over their heads.

THE STRUGGLE to get on the air and stay on has been "an exciting walks with the Lord," says Raker, who begged the station's first and only studio backdrop from the set of ABC's "Good Morning" in Washing-

But the miracle is that little WTKK not only survived but also is grow-

Virtually every religious station in the country had major supporters to back it at infancy, says Ben Arm-strong, president of the National Association of Religious Broadcasters. "Les was a loner."

Raker's $264,000 budget still is humble compared to the giants to the religious broadcasting industry. The Praise the Lord Club, a popular syndicated show based in Portsmouth, Va., hauls in $52 million a year in donations. Rev. Jerry. Falwell, a Lynchburg, Va., tevelvison evangelist, attracts a cool $40 million yearly from viewers.

RAKER'S STAFF is loyal, if tiny. His wife, Kay, handles the books. His older son, Tony, 20, is studio director, when he's not in school. His daughter Leslie, 19, is the programmer and his younger son, Patrick, 14, "is one of the better camermen around."

The station's signal is considerably weaker than Raker's faith in the project. With a 39-mile radius. It is received by some homes as far away as Washington, D.C., but can't be captured even in Manassas by

"You just can't perdict where it will be bicked up," Raker, who nevertheless is tempted to think that WTKK might be received at the White

THE STATION'S live programming - enough to meet the FCC requirements - makes up only onethird of WTKK's 12-hour broadcasting day. It consists largely of a two-hour religious talk show hosted by Ken Connolly, a transplanted California evangelist, a children's show called "Beyond the Blue," and 15 minutes of news that carries occasional religious

Raker, a fundamentalist Christian, feels strongly his kind of religious approach is needed in Washington to spread the Bible's message and help combat the sins of more conventional TV programming.

"My gift is broadcasting and I knew Christ wanted me to use it to perpetuate the gospel," he says. "What I wanted was someting that would offer people an alternative to the garbage of commercial televison."

NETWORK PRIME TIME, he felt. "was embarrassing to watch. My family and I don't use that kind of language of have the kinds of conversations they put on television, and we don't want to hear them in our

When he felt "a calling from God" to do something about it, Raker set out for the FCC in 1972 looking for a vacant broadcasting frequency. At the last minute the FCC legal department found one - if station were based in Manassas.

"I had moved my family to Manassas when I came to Washington in 1969, for what I thought was no particular reason," Raker said, I knew then that the personal calling I had from the Lord had to be fulfilled."

Even so, the road was not smooth.

RAKER BORROWED $105,000 from a friend's company in Florida, got the Praise of Lord Club and another gospel show to pre-pay the fees for a year's programming, and "begged enough donations" to convince the FCC he was worthy of a

Used studio lights and the set were handed over by "Good Morning America" in Washington. Raker and one of his sons drove cross-country to pick up a used transmitter and trucked it back to Manassas themselves. There were endless nights of searching for funds, begging equipment and gleaning support from

Finally, the National Christian Broadcasting Corp., which Raker created to serve as the station's parent company, leased the 100-year-old Baptist Church. Pews were removed to make room for the studio, and lights were hung from the old church's oak rafters.

WTKK WAS ON the air, if not exactly on the broadcasting map. Marvin Blumberg, of the A.D. Ring engineering firm that did most of the start-up work at Channel 66, said he now can't believe how little money Raker had. "If I had known that," he said. "I probably would have discouraged him pretty heavily.

Despite the early donations, the station almost foundered for the first year, Raker sold his home for $25,000 to stave off creditors, and moved his family into four dimly-lit rooms in the back of the church.

IT WAS ONLY after Raker managed to persuade Connolly, a Los Angeles evangelist, to move east and help raise money that WTKK's financial vital signs improved.

"I had no choice but to come," said Connolly. "I don't think there's a station anywhere in the country that has the importance this one has. (The apostle) Paul said a major concern was to get the message into Rome. Washington is unquestionably the Rome of the world today ..

Connally arrived last March and ran-two telethons that brought in a transmitter and edge the station into

CONNOLLY STAYED on to host the two-hour daily talk show that features religious leaders and politicians including Sen. Harry F. Byrd Jr. I-Va.

With the financial boost from the telethons - the key to which was "talking shoulder-to-shoulder with people and telling them what we needed to stay on the air," Connolly says - the station plans to double its transmitter power within the next two

That would increase its broadcasting radius by eight miles. After that, the station will be able to concentrate on upgrading its programming.

"This calling isn't nearly completed yet," Raker said. "The purpose is to fill a need in the Christian community and we have just begun to do that. There's a lot we really want to do, but I'm encouraged now it can be

Cracked spring latch blamed for loss of DC-9 tail cone

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) - A cracked spring latch was blamed Tuesday for causing a Republic Airlines DC-9 to lose its tail cone for the second time in just over a week, federal aviation officials said. 'There is no apparent problem with the design of the DC-9," said Jack Barker, a spokesman for the Federal Aviation Administration in Atlanta. 'The problem is with this particular aircraft.

The same plane lost its tail cone on takeoff Dec. 9.

The jet, carrying 36 passengers and four crew, lost the tail cone while landing at Memphis International Airport on Monday night. The plane had just touched down when the 10foot-long tail cone fell to the runway. There were no injuries.

Police were called to the airport after ground crews found indications a pull-ring that releases the tail cone may have been pulled loose. But a police spokesman said no evidence of tampering was found.

Barker said the jet will be tested before being returned to service, adding that the faulty spring latch which holds the tail cone to the plane has been replaced.

Airline and FAA spokesmen said after the Dec. 9 incident the tail cone did not contribute to the airworthiness of the aircraft and there was no danger to those aboard.

Satellites revolutionize world communications

GENEVA, Switzerland since the Soviet Union opened the space age with its earth-orbiting Sputnik, artificial earth satellites have revolutionized global communications and have now come to dominate the developing world's thrust for greater communications power.

Nowhere was this more evident than at the recently ended World Administrative Radio Conference here in Geneva; where some of the most difficult negotiations centered on planning satellite telecommunications for the rest of the century.

The conference found the satellite issues so vast, complicated and politically charged that it agreed to hold a major international meeting in 1984 for satellites and their communications applications, which up to now have been almost the exclusive province of the developed countires. In the view of many observers of this 11week, highly technical radio summit, this decision stemmed in part * from Western recognition of the developing world's claim to equitable access to the airwaves, even in satellite and other highly sophisticated communications technology they have yet to obtain.

The Paris newspaper Le Monde and many delegates from the 154 member nations of the International Telecommunications Union, the oldest specialized U.N. agency, agreed that this Western recognition and the developing world's evolving communications clout were among

The key to much of the use it. - Just 21 years satellite negotiations here was the "geosta-tionary orbit," a ring around the Earth 22,350 miles above the equator. best listeners are animals. Dogs. cats, animals of nearly all types are being used to aid psychologists in dealing with the emotionally disturbed. Here's a look at pet psychotherapy and the use of "feeling heart dogs" to help people.

By CHRIS ROBERTS

Walking in the moonlight one quiet night many years ago, the monk overheard the young tough - who wouldn't talk to the school psychiatrist - pouring out his troubles to a Russian wolfhound.

So, officials at Lincoln Hall, a home for wayward boys run by the Christian Brothers outside New York City, acquired some dogs to do what people couldn't

Today, dogs and other animals, from ants to alligators, are being used extensively in the psychological care of the emotionally disturbed, the mentally retarded, the old.

Whether it is a dog, cat, lizard or mouse, pets do not react to the color of a person's skin, his uncombed hair, his dirty clothes, or substandard speech," says Dr. Boris M. Levinson, a psychologist and pioneer in the

"A CHILD WHO finds it most difficult to tell us how he feels about his dreams and relationships finds his tongue when he has to discuss his problems with a dog." Another pioneer, Dr. Samuel Corson, puts it this way: "A dog is a man's best friend because he wags his tail and not his tongue:

The results of pet psychotherapy, or pet-facilitated psychotherapy (PFP) as it is now sometimes called, can be startling, if not completely under-

Take Jed, who in 1949 was admitted to the Castle Nursing Home in Millersburg. Ohio, after suffering apparent brain damage in a fall. Doctors believed the accident had left him deaf and mute. For years, he grew old in silence.

Then in 1975, Corson, a psychiatry professor at Ohio State, took his 'feeling heart dogs" to the home. Corson says Jed stroked the fur of a dog named "Whiskey" and smiled. "You brought that dog," the old man said. They were his first words in 26

"YOU CAN WALK through a whole ward in some of these homes and they don't even know you're there," Corson says. "It's like walking through a room full of stones

"But if you bring in a pet,' they brighten up. An animal offers a patient love, attention and acceptance without criticism."

rnere are no recent studies to show just how many institutions are using animals as therapeutic tools. Levinson conducted a survey in 1972 that indicated half the psychologists in New York state were engaged in some sort of pet psychotherapy. And a study in Pennsylvania a few years earlier by the Women's Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals showed the same thing.

IN ADDITION to dogs, cats, ants and alligators, frogs, seagulls, snails, lizards, snakes, and goldfish are among the animals being used in PFP, according to the American Humane Association.

For Dr. Levinson, a retired psychiatry professor at Yeshiva University in New York City, PFP began in 1953 with a big, fluffy dog named "Jingles." Today, he's still using dogs to treat emotionally disturbed children, and has written a book about the subject entitled "Pet Oriented Child Psychotherapy.

IN HIS OFFICE, the goateed psychologist would introduce his young patients to Jingles, Then the youngsters would ask the dog to shake hands and dance. Levinson says

'One child said to me, 'I am also Jingles. I also want to dance," Levinson recalled in a paper presented to the American Psychological Association

"This child got down on his knees, started to bark like a dog, and asked me to give him a cookie. In great joy and glee, he then picked up the waste basket, scattered its contents, put it on his head and started howling like a

"THIS APPARENTLY relieved him and he went on with his play as usual. He then said to me, 'Why can't you have two dogs and why can't you take me as one of them?

"Interspersed with his request were questions about myself whether I had a wife; how many children I had; how big they were?

'It was clear that the child wanted to become part of my family. If the human complement was full, the dog complement was not, and he would like to be considered, if a vacancy

UNDATED: Restoration Center.

There are some 740 patients at the institution. They've come from state retardation centers or mental hospitals with a chance to return someday to life on the outside. A few are there simply because they got in society's way a long time ago. All it took back then was an epileptic fit.

DOWN THE ROAD is the Antietam Humane Society, managed by Ted Thomas, a 26-year-old sociology major and animal lover. Lately, he's been taking the shelter animals up to the center.

"I'm not sure why it works, but it works," he says. "Even the quiet ones begin yapping with the dogs.

The last trip was in October. Two adult mongrels, a standard poodle, two mixed puppies and two kittens tagged along

The patients, in shifts, were led into an activity room and began cuddling and hugging the animals. One man tucked a pup beneath his raincoat and sat for almost an hour, stroking the dog's head and whispering into its

Another, Orlie McHaffey, 50, asked if he could stay when it was time for his group to return to the cottage. He could. There was always an animal on his lap and a smile on his face.

"I USED TO HAVE a dog," he says. "A collie to keep the hog away while the cow would eat, then he'd keep the cow away while the hog would eat. But they had to shoot him because he got the fits." Not all the patients handled the animals, but most did. And many asked Thomas when he would re-

"It seems they have a better relationship with the animals than they do with our employees," says Susie Bumbaugh, an activities helper.

No one is sure just what type of animal or breed of dog is most effective in pet-facilitated psychotherapy. Corson, in work with patients at a psychiatric hospital, used wirehair fox terriers, border collies, beagles, a Labrador retriever, and a German shepherd-husky mix.

ONE PATIENT showed a liking for a border collie named "Wallace" that Corson described as "a pathologically withdrawn, extremely shy animal exhibiting paranoid/type of behavior a rather unattractive dog.

Asked why, the patient responded, "I felt that this dog needed me."

"Feeling hearts dogs" — or "seeing heart dogs," as Levinson calls them - have been listening to kids' problems at Lincoln Hall; the school for wayward boys, for the last 20 years.

Some guys even rate Santa Claus bad risk

Organizational business managers traditionally are tight-fisted, but, as some secretaries at Midland College discovered recently, they can have a sense of humor

Just before the Christmas holidays, seven Midland College employees got together and submitted a purchase order to the business office. Listing "S. Claus & Co., North Pole, World" as the vendor, the group asked for a number of items to be shipped to Midland College, in care of the "Good Little Girls."

The list included a year off with full pay for one secretary, another wanted a Yorkshire-terrier, still another asked for a round-trip for two to Hawaii, one simply wanted a 50-foot yatch, another sought a sable coat, one asked for Charlton Heston, and one decided a helicopter would be

The purchase order noted "These little girls have been good all year and deserve to receive these gifts from Santa." Further validating the order, which was prepared by B. Elf, was oganizational approval from

In due course, the purchase order was returned through channels with six attachments explaining why the request was being returned.

First, declared the business office, the "ship-to address" was incorrect, since "there are no good little girls at Midland College." Another reason was "we do not do business with this vendor as he only works one day a year and will not submit invoices.

Always practical, the business office folks also noted the "items are too large to get through chimney." And, chillingly aware of possible fraud in government purchasing, the business office declared "it has been reported this vendor requires a 'kick-back' on all purchases - milk,

And, going by the regulations of the school, the business office finally declared such items must be submitted for competitive bidding and that even the purchase order listed an invalid account number "Oh, well," one secretary sighed, "It was worth a try, since the business office is so busy, we thought it might slip through. I guess we'll just have to write individual letters to Santa Claus to get what we want. Meanwhile, in the business office, Fiscal Vice President Bob Phillips and accountant David Diffie mumbled "Bah, Humbug," but were seen winking, smiling and rubbing the sides of their noses - knowingly.

Coconuts grow atop tall, skinny palm trees which are hard to climb. For centuries local Malays have found it easier to con monkeys into harvesting the crop.

They are trapped in the jungle, trained for several weeks and put to work by men like Dollah Kassim, 60, who operates his animal as a contract coconut plucker.

This is the sharpest month-to-month drop in home sales in the 12 years we have monitored such activity," the realtors' group said in a statement.

Bentsen, Tower continue accord On windfall profits tax matters Here'e how Texas members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes Dec. 6 through Dec. Hall, Collins, Gramm, Archer, Leath, Hightower, Wyatt, White, Stenholm, Hance, Loeffler, Paul and Kazen voted "nay." Roberts, Mattox, Brooks and Pickle did not vote.

HOUSE
PARENTAL CONSENT — The House refused, 163 for and 225 against, to require the consent of the parent or guardian before a minor can receive birth conrol devices and family planning information under the federal-state Medicaid program. The vote came during consideration of a bill (HR 4962) providing upgraded Medicaid services for poor children and pregnant women.

Members voting "yea" wanted Medicaid birth control material distributed to minors only on the consent of parents or guardians.

Reps. Samuel Hall, D-1, Charles Wilson, D-2, James Collins, R-3, Phil Gramm, D-6, Bill Archer, R-7, J. Marvin Leath, D-11, Jack Hightower, D-13, Joe Wyatt, D-14, Kika de la Garza, D-15, Richard White, D-16, Tom Loeffler, R-21, Ron Paul, R-22, and Abraham Kazen, D-23, voted "yea."

Reps. Bob Eckhardt, D-8, Jack Brooks, D-9, Jake Pickle, D-10, Mickey Leland, D-18, Henry Gonzalez, D-20, and Martin Frost, Reps. Ray Roberts, D-4, Jim Mattox, D-5, James Wright, D-12, Charles Stenholm, D-17, and Kent Hance, D-18, did not vote.

SETTLING DISPUTES — The House passed, 207 for and 195 against, a bill to create agencies on the local level for resolving comparatively minor disputes, such as those between buyers and sellers and landlords and tenants. The settlement centers, under either governmental or private control, would be alternatives to the court system. The bill (S 423) was sent to conference with the Senate. It provides seedmoney to encourage localities to establish settlement centers, and it opens a unit in the Department of Justice to oversee the venture.

Members voting "yea" favored the bill.

Is it possible to trim a Christmas tree without beginning another civil war?

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

RIDGEFIELD, Conn. (AP) - A card in the mail this morning invites me to a neighbor's house for a Christmas tree decorating

I regret sending my regrets. As a keen observer of humankind, I would be truly interested in seeing how people can have a good time, laugh and drink and be civil to one another, while decorating a Christmas tree. At our house in my youth, trimming the tree was necessarily a very private affair, the closest the family ever came to civil war. Because of the thinness of the walls, the neighbors may have shared in the event and even taken sides in the various skirmishes over tinsel vs. snow, colored bulbs over all-of-akind, blinking or regular lights, etc., but they never were invited in to join the hostilities. These always took place on Christmas Eve. The tradition was more economic than sentimental. My father always waited until the last minute of closing time, certain that the merchants would drop their prices drastically rather than be stuck with a surplus of unsellable trees on the day after Christmas. We three boys - I was the middle one with a year's difference on each side - sweated out the Christmas countdown in fear that the best trees or perhaps even all of them would be gone by the time Father made his move.

That happened one year and we had to go down to the railroad yards and buy a tree from the men who cleaned out the flatcars: Or at least that's where they said they got them.

Our tree had to be big, "branchy" and straight. Under the strung-out bulbs in front of the grocer's or the butcher shop, where trees were usually sold in those pre-World War II days, we boys fluffed out and studied the various possibilities, while Father shamelessly invoked our joy and eagerness to get the price down to around 50 cents.

Our eyes, of course, were always larger than our apartment, as we found out the minute we tried to get the tree over the banister and make the turn at the first landing. This invariably brought out the Italian "super" and his wife from their street floor back flat with excited instructions and sweet anise cakes for us amid delectable garlicky aromas from the kit

Every year the tree had to be hacked off at the top to fit into the front room, as the parlor was called in those Depression days. Mother's best carving knife, volunteered ungraciously, always suffered a couple of nicks coping with the gooey, sap-bleeding upper branches.

Then there was the annual problem with the tree holder, a three-legged cast iron contraption with screws that had to be tightened just so to make the tree stand perfectly vertical, which it rarely did. It usually heeled 20 degrees to starboard from a bend in the trunk or imprecise tuning of the holder. Sometimes we had to hack at the stem of the tree with a hatchet to make it fit the claws of the holder.

Next we all paraded down to the cellar to carry up the Christmas ornaments from the padlocked storage closets that the tenants in our four-story apartment building were allocated behind the coal bins. We blew off the coal dust from the cardboard cartons, trying to figure out which one held the lights or the extension cords or crib figurines, while solemnly assuring each other that this time when the tree came down we would store them more carefully.

Mother often turned on carols on the radio to drown out father's

When the ornaments were all aboard, one section of the tree, near the middle or at the side facing the window, looked bare. The problem was a deficiency of foliage there. The tree had to be delicately turned around, so the awkward bald spot faced the wall, which invariably twisted up the starched muslin sheet that served as a snowy landscape for the nativity scene leaning against the iron holder.

Then came the sublime monent of truth. Father got down on all fours, crept beneath the lower branches, sorted out the ganglia of extension cords and triple sockets, and inserted the prongs into the outlets. Let there be light. And there was, in some areas. But at least four of the nine sets of lights were not on. In those days one dead bulb knocked out a whole set, and so began the irritating, exacting, at times jolting job of testing each light without blowing a fuse or falling off the ladder into the tree from a sudden shock.

But at last the job was done. Every light sparkled. Even the bulbs with chipped paint had been discarded and we had all played the game of making sure that two reds or two greens were not next to each other. The tree was topped off with all the ceremony of steel workers proclaiming the upper limits of a new skyscraper. The gleaming silver star was planted on the topmost branch, which always immediately flopped over and threatened to deposit a falling star into the water bucket behind the tree. Somehow, it hung in there, perhaps not pointing heavenward but at least precariously clinging to its perch:

Father, in control of himself and his language, retired to the kitchen for a nightcap and a fried egg and onion sandwich, his Christmas Eve favorite. Mother made us take a bath, shine our shoes and lay out our altar boy cassocks for early Mass the next morning, then hurried us off to bed so she could place the presents beneath the tree. The steam heat was turned off in the front room, to keep the tree from shedding its needles, and remained off until the Christmas season was over, except on days when company came.

One Christmas morning, among the earliestin my memory, we arose with a clatter to the tumble of church bells and stampeded into the front room.

And what to our wondering eyes should appear? Marcus Tullius Cicero, our cat, asleep in the branches halfway up in the tree amid a chaos of broken ornaments.

Family 'heartbroken' at treatment of tree

KENT, N.Y. (AP) - "I was planted about 16 yearsago by a family who really loves trees," the letter to the local paper began.

As I grew," it continued, "the family would take pictures of their young children beside me. I grew to be a beautiful 25-to-30 foot fir with branches ever so thick and green.

.Alas I grew too tall and full. My family decided I should leave before I became too crowded.

They wanted me to spend my final days in glory, so they donated me to the Town of Kent. I would be the tallest tree the town ever had for a Christmas tree. It would be the nicest way to say goodbye.

Shortly after Thanksgiving, the town of Kent-accepted the fir as a Yule gift from the Louis

Kristianson family. But when it was set it up at the intersection of Routes 52 and 311 early this month, Kristianson complained that it had lost its regal grandeur and become "a really puny-looking. Kent officials said they had to cut the tree to prevent its being a traffic hazard. Then, according to town park foreman Charles Aubrey, someone took the tree's lights and people discarded beer cans beneath its branches. A few days later, Aubrey took down the mutilated tree and discarded it in the town

Thus the proxy letter by the Kristiansons, on behalf of the tree. It was signed "A Christmas Tree in Putnam County

'It was part of the family," said Mary Kristianson, who described herself as furious and heartbroken. "What Kent did was a horrible way for a tree to be treated. We made it grow and at one shot they destroyed it."

Georges Bank oil lease sale success with $827 million in high bids made

By JAMES SIMON

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) - The sale of offshore oil and gas drilling rights in the Georges Bank raised nearly $230 million more for the federal government than expected, officials say.

Postponed twice in the last two years by legal challenges, Tuesday's sale was delayed again for three hours when U.S. Supreme Court Justice William J. Brennan requested additional time to study a last-minute appeal by environmentalists for an injunction.

The proceedings also were interrupted briefly when demonstrators threw a dead fish and several bags of oil at the 300 oil executives gathered at the Veterans Memorial Auditorium for the bid opening.

Oil companies submitted bids on 73 of the 116 tracts available. Frank Basile, manager of the New York Outer Continental Shelf Office, said the $827.8 million in high bids received for the tracts was well beyond the $600 million he had anticipated the sale would produce.

Basile said it was "close to phenomenal" that an average of more than two bids was received for the tracts in the Georges Bank, one of the world's richest fishing grounds.

"It's an excellent sale for the area," said J.R. Jackson, Exxon's manager of exploration and regulatory affairs. "It indicates a lot of interest by industry.'

and offering up to five times more than its competitors for choice

A group of companies headed by Mobil Oil Corp. offered the highest bid of the day, $80.2 million for a ninesquare-mile piece of ocean floor about 100 miles southeast of Cape Cod.

The 29 participating companies submitted 189 sealed bids totaling almost $1.3 billion for the most desirable tracts.

Two executives were soaked in the oil-throwing incident, which interrupted the sale for about five minutes. State police said the protesters were not apprehended.

The protesters also threw leaflets identifying themselves as members of "Fish For Survival." The leaflets said it was "high treason" to promote drilling in the prime fishing grounds, which supply an estimated 17 percent of the nation's food fish.

Federal geologists estimate the Georges Bank could contain 123 million barrels of oil and 850 billion cubic feet of natural gas.

The government has 45 days to decide whether the top bids are high enough and should be approved. It would take an additional six to seven months to obtain necessary permits, preventing any drilling from beginning before next summer.

Although Brennan rejected the lastminute appeal, Basile said there may be other legal roadblocks to drilling. A suit is pending in U.S. District Court in Boston seeking to block exploration on environmental grounds.

"We're positive we can resolve any problem that occurs to be sure nobody suffers irreparable damage," Basile said in a post-sale news conference.

RRC says buyers ask for less oil

AUSTIN (AP) - The Railroad Commission reported Tuesday major buyers of Texas crude oil want to buy 2,671,478 barrels a day in January, a decrease of 1,495 barrels a day from this month.

A commission statement Monday incorrectly reported January purchaser nominations at 2,557,178 barrels daily, which represented a decrease of 115,795 barrels.

The commission meets Thursday to set the statewide oil production factor for January.

Newly-discovered crude oil posing problem for taxers

By JIM LUTHER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The biggest financial issue facing a Senate-House conference on the "windfall-profits" tax is how stiff a tax to impose on oil vet to be found.

The House voted to tax away 60 percent of future price increases in such "newly discovered" oil. The Senate, contending no windfall is possible on oil that is still hidden, levied a tax of 10 percent.

The lower tax on that oil, which within 10 years will represent about 43 percent of U.S. production, would be worth more than $50 billion to the oil industry over the 1980s. That is the biggest single difference between the $178 billion tax passed by the Senate and the $277 billion version cleared by the House

The conference committee of 15 House members and 11 senators planned to start work this afternoon on resolving their differences. But there was growing doubt the panel can complete its work before the tax is due to take effect on Jan. 1.

In addition to the dispute over how to tax newly discovered oil, here are other major differences between the two bills:

-INDEPENDENTS: The House voted no special exemption for independent producers, which include 'wildcatting' individuals as well as multimillion-dollar firms that are not affiliated with any of the oil giants. Recognizing that they drill 90 percent of the exploratory oil and gas wells. the Senate voted to exempt from the windfall tax the first 1,000 barrels of oil produced each day by an independent. This would cost about $26 bil-

-OLD, NEW OIL: Old oil, from reservoirs discovered before 1973, and new oil, from fields found between 1973 and 1978, would face a 60 percent tax in the House bill. The Senate raised the levy to 75 percent.

-HEAVY, TERTIARY: Heavy oil, so thick that extra expense is required to pump it, and increased production from "tertiary" methods, which include costly chemical injection, would be taxed at 60 percent in the House bill; 20 percent in the Sen-

-SPENDING: The House bill does not spend any of the tax revenue. The Senate measure would spend more than $35 billion to help lower-income Americans pay rising fuel costs; to encourage homeowners, landlords and businesses to conserve; and to grant tax credits to boost production of such unconventional fuels as gasohol and shale oil.

-SOCIAL SECURITY: Senators voted to set aside about $18.6 billion in income tax revenues to pay for a Social Security tax cut in 1981. Further action by Congress would be necessary to impose the cut.

—INTEREST: The Senate bill includes a provision exempting from income taxes the first $201 in interest and dividends earned each year by an individual, or $400 for a couple filing a joint return. There is wide support for this in the House, but it is not in the Senate bill would repeal a 1976 change in inheritances taxes that is so complicated Congress never allowed it to take effect. Although repeal is not in the House bill, this provision all but vanished as an issue Tuesday when the House instructed its conferees to accept repeal.

The change, known as carryover basis, would have imposed income taxes on the full increase in value from the time property is acquired by the deceased until it is sold by the heir: Repeal would mean a tax only on the increase in value from the time the property is inherited until it is

Whatever the shape of the final oil tax bill, it will not really be a "windfall-profits" tax. Instead, the tax will take a percentage of future oil price increases. But like any other tax, the new levy ultimately would cut into industry profits.

So far, Davis said, only 13.449 - about half the owners - have renewed registrations which expired in September. That leaves 12,924 more who so far haven't gotten around to sending the $6 for their two-year renew-

Presently applications are being processed with a two-week turn-around time, Davis said, but snowmobilers who wait until the first good snow to apply probably will have to wait four weeks or more to receive their renewal.

Those who fail to renew before Jan. 31 will be assigned a new number when they do reapply, which will necessitate removing the current decal from the vehicle and replacing it with a new registration sym-

In addition to the 13,449 who have renewed, the department has processed another 6,753 new registrations, Davis said a number in line with DOC experience of about 7,000 new registrations

Dear Dr. Solomon: When I was pregnant with each of my four children, I practically starved myself to keep my weight down and to keep the baby's size down. My only reward was the approval of my doctor for gaining so few pounds. Now my daughter is pregnant, and her doctor is recommending a weight gain of 25 pounds; he says this is normal and desirable. What gives?—Ray

Dear Ray: What gives is a new philosophy among obstetricians. Dr. J. Courtland Robinson of City Hospitals in Baltimore says a 25-pound weight gain is normal because that is the amount the mother will lose after she gives birth, and that there is no biological way to control the birth weight of the baby. In addition, he says, the big baby is a healthier

The proportion of heavy babies-that is, babies weighing more than eight pounds at birth—has increased since about 1950 because people have been eating more nutritious meals. This has meant healthier mothers and fewer problems during pregnancy.

Dr. Robinson also says there is no cause for concern that a baby who is heavy at birth will tend to be overweight in later life. He maintains that obesity is a result of environment, which includes a person's diet and eating habits, and not the weight of the baby

Dear Dr. Solomon: After a series of tests, I've learned that I am allergic to certain color additives. What good does the information do me if labels on food do not list color additives by name?-Gwen

Dear Gwen: The Food and Drug Administration is beginning to rectify that omission. The most widely used color additive, tartrazine (or Yellow No.5), will have to be listed for drugs after June 26, 1980, and for food shipped in interstate commerce after July 1, 1981.

Drugs applied only to the skin are not included in this requirement. For prescription drugs sent to physicians, the label must say that the prod- fleeing war and famine. uct contains Yellow No.5, and that it could cause allergic reactions in susceptible individuals. Manufacturers of cosmetics have been required to La., one of seven conidentify all color additives on the label since May, 1976.

It is estimated that 100,000 people in the United States may be allergic eled to Southeast Asia to Yellow No.5; most of these people also are allergic to aspirin. Although tartrazine may be hazardous to some people, it is considered safe for

boots, wearing a tooled leather belt

Fact is, Wilford Brimley is a visiting actor, and a very good one. Those who have seen his performance as Ted Spindler, Jack Lemmon's friend and co-worker in the nuclearpower plant in "The China Syndrome," can attest to his abilities.

Brimley was dressed western because, well, he is western. He's a Utah cowboy, blacksmith and horse trainer who, for the last 15 years, has been trying to earn a living as an actor. The tin of snuff in his shirt pocket is no prop. He's genuine.

As for the sunglasses, "I left my regular colored glasses in my truck in Nevada," he explained. Whenever he comes to Los Angeles from East Mill Creek, Utah, Brimley drives or tries to. This time the rear end went out on his Datsun truck near Las Vegas, Nev., so he had to fly the last leg of his trip.

"I like to drive, it's a nice ride," he said of the 17-hour trip.

This was the 45-year-old Brimley's first interview. He was here to help promote "The China Syndrome, which Columbia is re-releasing. He's one of the stars of the film, but when the movie was released in the spring Brimley wasn't invited to any VIP screenings. He saw the picture in a Salt Lake City Theater and paid for

HOLLYWOOD - Help!

TV's White Christmases are coming in avalanches. We're being Yule-specialed to death; Rudolphed, Frostied and Scrooged, Bugs Bunnied, Grinched and Mr. Magooed until it hurts.

The blizzard began after Thanksgiving and has run nonstop. The number of Christmas specials the networks this season is close to 50, with another 23 (shudder) on the way

Can you believe it? That's about 70 over a month's period, not including the mandatory, Christmas episodes aired by weekly series (save us from Christmas Even in Men's Diner).

It's sadistic. Also, I suspect, it's business Every sleighbell is a metaphor for a jingling cash register, a subliminial message telling us to open our wallets as well as our hearts. Get with the

So naturally Christmas specials become attractive depositories for advertisers looking for a place to drop their seasonal bucks. In other words, the more specials, the merrier the Christmas for TV. The system's as solid as Santa. But at least they could do something with those shows Most are pretty ratty, the worst being the televised family gathering with ersatz snow in which a star trots out all his relatives for a round of carols, and no one can carry a tune. *

Christmas specials are occasions for bringing back over-the-hill celebrities, the Deans and Perrys of season's past, who have been gathering dust along with their Christmas albums. We even got another look at Bing, who is no longer with us but lives on in a Christmas special taped shortly before his death. Don't tell me it's no different from watching him in an old movie. Bing is playing himself here, not a role, and it's downright creepy.

If Bing has achieved a sort of TV permanence partially through Christmas specials, so have others. The repetition is maddening. The Grinch has tolen Christmas on TV for as long as I can remember, and old Frosty (am I the only one who pulls for him to melt?) has come to us in triplicate this season, once with Rudolph, once by himself and once in his little "win-

Tradition is endearing, but so is change. Let's change Virginia's TV story: "No, Virginia, you dope, there isn't a Santa Claus.

On bad nights, when the TV pain is intense and the ghost of Christmas past is moaning especially off-key, I feel like burning Charles Dickens in effigy. December is always good for at least three productions of "A Christmas Carol," mostly bad.

ABC Sunday night gave us an updated version with Henry Winkler supposedly aged about 40 years as Scrooge, but looking instead like someone had poured cement over his face. Stop the forced good cheer. It's time we told "A Christmas Carol" the way it should be told.

Farmers face gloomy year USDA projections show

WASHINGTON (AP) - High interest rates and other expenses are among the gloomier prospects facing farmers in 1980, says the Agriculture Department's chief economist.

At current high levels, interest rates could mean fewer people will attempt to become farmers next year and could add to the problems of farmers who have recently expanded their operations, Howard W. Hjort told Congress on Tuesday.

Generally, only those rich enough to carry a land investment from other income until it starts to pay off will be buying cropland, Hjort said. He is director of agricultural economics, policy and budget in USDA.

"This situation is actually quite comparable to housing, where it is virtually impossible to invest in a single-family residence and expect to make loan payments from the rent received on the house in the early years," he said

But adequate operating loan money seems to be available for the farm economy, which historically pays lower interest rates on debt than other businesses anyway, Hjort told the Senate Agriculture Committee's credit subcommittee.

And, he said, despite the prospect of a 20 percent decline in net farm income next year, the farm economy's health is "generally strong.

The stiff interest charges probably will have little effect on farmers' production decisions, because they are a small portion of operating costs and producers always buy planting supplies with borrowed money, Hjort

But the combination of high rates and normal cash-flow problems could make them postpone new machinery purchases and encourage them to market crops and animals earlier than usual, he said.

Total farm debt and interest costs have recently risen to record annual levels but the debt has stayed at 16 percent to 17 percent of total assets,

The large commercial farms that receive 80 percent of the cash receipts have debts averaging 20 percent of assets, compared to about 5 percent for small farms.

That makes them more sensitive to interest-rate changes, along with those who have recently expanded, he said. But the most vulnerable are 'new farms without substantial build-up of equity.

"As a result of that vulnerability and of a reduced amount of land available for sale — in part attributable to higher interest rates — there may be a decline in numbers of beginning farmers next year, even from presently low levels of entry," Hjort said.

Hjort said the tightening of the money supply in October by the Federal Reserve Board, which sent interest rates skyrocketing for two months, will continue to increase farmers' production costs but not that "We should remember that the Federal Reserve System took the steps it did to cool inflation, a more serious threat to farmers," he

After reviewing the principal supply, demand and price trends for farmers and ranchers, Hjort said, "The 1980s could be a very good decade for U.S. farmers.

However, "a dark cloud on the horizon is the persistent inflation in farm expenses, which threatens to erode gains farmers may make in the marketplace," he said

This threat re-emphasizes the importance to the long-run health of American agriculture of supporting policies designed to eventually bring

Still not enough kids' TV: FCC

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission, despite heavy lobbying by broadcasters, is launching a formal rulemaking process that could eventually force television stations to offer a minimum amount of children's programs each

The FCC staff charged two months ago that the television industry had failed to meet its obligations to children under voluntary guidelines adopted by the commission in 1974.

The staff then offered several options, ranging from mandatory programming standards to continued use of voluntary guidelines. The commis-saw little hope for improvement without minimum standards. The television industry, led by the National Association of Broadcasters.

Force made it clear, however, that it has focused its lobbying effort almost exclusively on the proposed mandatory guidelines. The FCC's staff has recommended guidelines that would specify a minimum of 71/2 hours of children's programming each week. But the broadcasters say that would lead to an unprecedented violation of their First Amendment right of freedom of speech.

The broadcasters claim that while such a rule would focus on quantity, it

The government proposed a onetime tax of 0.11 percent on the windfall of $150 million to Danish agriculture due to the recent five percent devaluation.

After protests the government lowered the rate to 0.07 percent, but withdrew an offer of special grants for farmers burdened by high interest rates on their debts.

sued, the seven members of the FCC have been heavily lobbied on both sides of the issue. Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., chairman of the Senate communications subcommittee, joined the fray last week by suggesting a delay of five to six months in the rulemaking process

Hollings said he had received "reasonable assurances" from the industry that it would use the additional time to offer some constructive alter-

Under FCC procedures, a special report such as that of the children's task force must be followed by a formal "Notice of Proposed Rule-making" if new rules are to be approved. The proposed rules are published for public comment before any final action is taken.

FCC chairman Charles D. Ferris, who has strongly supported formal rulemaking, was expected to recommend today that the commission respond to Hollings' request by specifying broadcasters would have a special four-month period to offer their alternatives before the public comment period began. And the commission was further expected to mollify broadcasters by placing each of the staff's proposed options in the rulemaking notice, thus reinforcing the possibility that mandatory guidelines would not be adopt-

U.S. will pay expenses of dying patients in test

WASHINGTON (AP) - The federal government will pay for all care for dying Medicaid patients in 26 hospices as part of a two-year demonstration project, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare said

The experiment will involve waiving Medicaid limits on reimbursement for custodial care and use of pain-controlling drugs at home for the dying

Leonard D. Schaeffer, administrator of HEW's Health Care Financing Administration, said although Medicaid pays for some of these services normally given the dying, "many hospice services are not reimbursible under current laws and regulations.

The hospice concept encourages the dying to remain with their families and to engage in normal activities as much as possible, with the help of a team of medical, social and psychological workers.

The 26 hospice organizations were selected from 236 that applied to take part in the project.

They are: San Diego County Hospice, Calif.; Peninsula Hospital, San Pedro, Calif.; Hospice of Marin, San Rafael, Calif.; Santa Barbara VNA, Calif.; Hospital Home Health Care, Torrance, Calif.; Boulder County Hospice, Colo.; Hospice Inc., New Haven, Conn.; Elisabeth Kubler-Ross Hospice, Clearwater, Fla.; Hospice of Miami, Fla.; Hospice of the Good Shepherd, Waban, Mass.: University of Massachusetts Medical Center, Palliative Care, Worcester, and Bethesda Lutheran Medical Center, St. Paul, Minn.

Also, Lutheran Medical Center, St. Louis, Mo.; Overlook Hospital, Summit, N.J.; Hospital Home Health Care, Albuquerque, N.M.; Cabrini Medical Center, New York City; Genesee Region Home Care Association, Rochester, N.Y.; Providence Medical Center, Portland, Ore.; Visiting Nurse Association of Dallas, Tex.; St. Benedict Hospital and Nursing Home, San Antonio, Tex.; Community Home Health Care, Seattle, Wash.; Bellin Memorial Hospital, Green Bay, Wis.; Rogers Memorial Hospital, Oconomowoc, Wis.; VNA of Vermont, Burlington, Vt.; Hospice of Northern Virginia, Arlington, Va.; and Medical College of Virginia, Richmond, Va.

China could become big mushroom supplier

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Agriculture Department says China could be a major new foreign supplier of mushrooms for Americans if the United States grants it most-favored-na-

China "has never exported significant amounts of mushrooms to the, United States" because of high tariffs that boost their costs, a report said · Tuesday

But if most-favored-nation status - . recommended by President Carter and now being considered in Congress - is approved, U.S. import duties on Chinese mushrooms would be reduced sharply, it said.

"While there is little information exports of canned mushrooms are expected to rise substantially in the long term," the report said.

Thus, it said, imports accounted for about 24 percent of the U.S. mushroom consumption in 1978-79.

Taiwan supplied 50 percent of the imported canned mushrooms last year, South Korea 32 percent and Hong Kong 15 percent, the report said.

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Soviet Union has bought an additional 700, 000 metric tons of U.S. corn for delivery through next Sept. 30.

The latest sales, reported Tuesday by the Agriculture Department, boosted to about 14.9 million metric tons of grain the total that the Soviet Union has bought from the United States for shipment in 1979-80. It includes more than 10.4 million of corn

Truly Unique Design

Wall-to-wall carpeting, new dishwasher, range/oven, garbage disposal, washers and dryers, plus a fireplace.

Extraordinary Value

With home prices spiraling, Idlewilde Village is a great value, affordably priced, within the budget of most homebuyers. If your income was less than $30,000.00 in 1978 or 1979, you may be able to buy under a unique mortgaging program.

Featuring

. 95% financing Approximately 91/8% interest . 30 year loan

Apartment dwellers paying as little as $225.00 per month may be surprised to learn that they may be wasting over $600.00 per month by renting, instead of buying.

Don't Delay

Stop by our office at 4501 W. Wadley for a free computerized personal budget analysis, or write P.O. Box 5185, Midland, Texas 79701.

Duplex ownership gives many people the opportunity to buy their first home, with the tenant helping pay the mortgage.

Rams announce 1980 schedule

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — The Los Angeles Rams have announced the teams they will play during 1980, their first season at Anaheim Stadium after moving from the Los Angeles

In addition to the National Football Conference West Division foes - Atlanta, New Orleans and San Francisco - the Rams will meet Detroit, Miami, the New York Jets, Dallas and Green Bay. Road games will be against the three divisional foes plus St. Louis, New England, Buffalo, New York Giants and Tampa Bay.

Dates have not yet been set but the opposing teams are decided under an

Landry says shotgun good for Dallas

DALLAS (AP) - The Dallas Cowboys have lived and died from the spread or shotgun formation two-minute offense this year but Coach Tom Landry said he can understand why other National Football League teams don't use the Shotgun.

"The advantage of the spread the way we run it is that your quarterback doesn't have to run back 10 yards," said Landry. "This gives you a little more time.

"The big disadvantage is that the quarterback has to take his eye off the secondary just a split second to take the snap. Of course, Roger (Staubach) has got it down where he can just about do both."

Landry explained that in the last two minutes other teams run basically a spread formation with the quarterback under the center.

'You see triple wings and things that we do out of the Shotgun," said Landry. "Our spread takes a lot of work because you are always under fire from blitzes. But we've been doing it for years now.

Landry said the Cowboys worked extra hard in training camp because he felt they were below par in the two-minute area in 1978.

"Actually, our performance was very poor last year," said Landry. The Cowboys have come from behind four times in the last two minutes this year to defeat St. Louis, Chicago, Philadelphia and Washing-

"I like the Sunday kickoff," said Landry. "That way we can prepare like a normal week and still give the players Christmas Day off."

As far the opponent, Landry said "I have no preference. We're breaking down the game films today. We'll scout both Chicago and Los Angeles. We'll work out all week but they won't be long ones. Landry said the Cowboys' progress in the playoffs depended on how fast injured defensive tackle Randy White, strong safety Randy Hughes, running back Tony Dorsett heal, and wide receiver Drew Pearson heal.

"White hurt his other foot and now has both feet injured," said Landry.
"I think he will be OK. Tony still has a sore shoulder but should be ready. It will be close on Hughes with his dislocated shoulder.

Landry said he fears Pearson had cartilage damage in the knee he twisted throwing a ball in the stands three weeks ago.

"We hope the soreness will come out in two weeks," said Landry. "We don't know yet if he will need an

McKay highly optimist over Buccaneer's chances in playoffs

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) - You could call Coach John McKay optimistic. His NFC Central champion Tampa

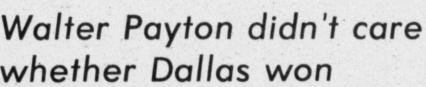

Bay Buccaneers host their first-ever playoff game Sat. Dec. 29 in Tampa Stadium in a nationally televised game at 11:30 p.m. CST. Their opponent will be either Philadelphia or Los Angeles, depending on the outcome of this weekend's National Football League wildcard playoff games.

We could play the last game here too," McKay said Tuesday. "If Chicago beats Philadelphia, then Chicago beats Dallas and we beat the Rams

While McKay was thinking aloud, fans were rushing outlets all over the city Tuesday buying up playoff tick-

McKay has already made out his Christmas list - three more victories. "And I'll take them all at 3-0 and never look back," said the boss of the 10-6 Buccaneers.

Sunday's 3-0 victory over Kansas City finally lifted the fourth-year Bucs to the NFC Central title after three weeks of being on the verge of clinching. And McKay was still bask-

CHICAGO (AP) - Walter Payton said it was not that he didn't care. It's just that he wasn't going to worry about whether the Chicago Bears would make the National Football League playoffs. Payton said he left Soldier Field after the Bears' season-ending victory over the St. Louis Cardinals knowing that the Dallas Cowboys would have to defeat the Washington Redskins for the Bears to qualify.

He said he knew the game was on the radio, but he didn't listen as he drove home. "I was tired. I knew we had gone out and done our job. I didn't really care if Dallas won. If they didn't I'd get ready for next year. If they did, I'd get ready for next Sun-

How did you feel when you heard Dallas won and the Bears were in the playoffs, Walter?

"I had a headache ... Really I had a terrible headache and to add insult to injury, there was no dinner ready when I got home. So I had other things on my mind."

mind today. Payton, who finished second in the NFL rushing derby with 1,610 yards,

That was three days ago. Payton has the Philadelphia Eagles on his 87 less than Houston's Earl Campbell, leads the Bears, 10-6, into the playoffs against the Eagles, 11-5, at Veterans Stadium in Philadelphia.

Chicago will be making its second playoff appearance in three years, while the Eagles are in for the second straight season.

"This team is a little more mature" than the one which reached the playoffs in 1977 and lost to the eventual Super Bowl champion Dallas Cow. boys in a first-round game, Payton

"I don't think Dallas was better than us. But we reached a peak and it took everything we had to win against New York to make it," said Payton, referring to the Bears' 12-9 victory over the Giants in the 1977 season

"It's like getting to the mountain top and there's no place to go but down. That's what happened when we went to Dallas," said Payton.

The Bears qualified for the playoffs as a wild-card team which means they would have to win one more game than any other National Football Conference team to make it to the Super Bowl and don't get a one-week rest before playing their first postseason game.

Payton said he thinks it's to the Bears' advantage to be in such a

"That extra week's rest should be an advantage to get everything together. But sometimes it can work against your timing," he said. "In our case, maybe it's to our advantage. We got everything going last week and to keep it going we need to play every

Earl Campbell wins MVP honors again

Campbell has praise for offensive line

AP Sports Writer HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Oiler running back Earl Campbell has not only proven he can perform feats on the football field to compare with O.J. Simpson and Jim Brown, he's also All-Pro at dishing out praise to his offensive linemen.

Campbell was named the National Football League's Most Valuable Player by The Associated Press Tuesday after becoming only the third player in NFL history to win the rushing title his first two years in the

CAMPBELL SET NFL records for most rushes in a season at 368 and most consecutive 100 yard games in a season with seven. He also tied

Following his rookie season in 1978 Campbell received 29 post season awards. He's off on another award-winning binge this year but his acceptance speech never has changed. It's always a pat on the back for 'It's kind of like it is with a movie star," Campbell explained. "It takes a lot of people working to make him look good. That's what the offensive line does for me. I wouldn't be anything without They're the ones that make it possible for me to get those yard.

Campbell, behind the blocking of his efficiency ine, won the NFL rushing title with 1,697 yards on 368 carries to give him a two-year total of 3,147 yards. Gamp, Wheat out Chicago's Water Payton with 1,610 and St. Louis rookie Ottis An and the payton before him, has done more than praise the Oiler offensive line. He's taken the players out to dinner twice

Although he's tried, Campbell has yet to pay for a meal he's hosted.

Both times, an Oiler backer picked up the tab. When a jeweler presented Campbell with a watch after he won the NFL rushing title Sunday, the former Heisman Trophy winner suggested his offensive line should also receive watches.

THE JEWELER COMPLIED and also gave watches to Mike Barber, Conway Hayman, Ed Fisher, Morris Towns, Carl Mauck and David Carter. Starting tackle Leon Gray had received a watch earlier.

Oiler offensive backfield Coach Andy Bourgeois points out that Campbell has done more this season than run through holes provided by the

"He's still one of the hardest workers on the team," Bourgeois said. "He came to training camp this year like he thought he wasn't going to make the team. And for him to accomplish what he has this year is greater than last year in my opinion.

Dallas fans should learn

Cliff Harris, Cowboys free safety, says you'd think the Texas Stadium fans would have learned by now, "Dallas fans should never leave."

Can you imagine what it was like out in the parking lot when those fans who figured it was all over and dashed for the exits early to beat the traffic jam after John Riggins' 66-yard run made it 34-21 switched on their car radios and discovered the Cowboys had scored? It's a wonder there wasn't a reverse jam of fans trying to get back in.

IMAGINE, MISSING the comeback that even the players rated as the most exciting in Cowboys history. After all, it would be bad enough to flick off the TV set, if you were watching at home, but to get up and walk

Even the Mrs. will attest that we wouldn't walk out on a game still in progress. She still remembers that summer day in Ebbets Field back in the mid-1950s when the Dodgers and Reds were playing. Two were out in the eighth of a tie game and then Brooklyn exploded and began scoring runs and runs and runs. The Mrs. wanted to leave, but was shsshed, "No, something might happen."

WHAT HAPPENED was that the Dodgers' scored 13 runs after two were out. It turned out to be a record. Can you imagine missing a record like that? The

We learned our lesson back in 1946, also at Ebbets Field. The Dodgers were playing the Blue Jays, which is what the Phillies called themselves in those days, in a late September game. The Dodgers had the pennant locked up and apparently this game as well. It was 9-4 with two out, none on and two strikes on the batter. So we left only to discover later that the Blue Jays rallied and won. That wasn't bad enough, but a few years later we picked up a Baseball Guide and discovered it ranked as one of the 10 greatest comebacks in baseball history, because it opened the door for the Cardinals, who tied the pennant race and then won the playoff.

IT WAS the kind of thing that could have ruined a relationship, but we married her anyway, warning that after what had happened at Ebbets Field, it was doubtful that it would last. She still doesn't know she's off

Tight end Jay Saldi admits the sight a lot of backs in the aisles with six minutes to play is disturbing, although he admitted, "things looked kind of dim there for a while. We look up in the stands and we see people leaving and that bothers us, but we play for each other and we know we are not out of it until the final whistle." And in the Cowboys' case, it's more true than trite.

AS FAR as Saldi is concerned, "Roger is the great two-minute man, probably the best in the league, probably the greatest the game has ever seen."

Coach Tom Landry confesses, "I wasn't too optimistic after Riggins toughdown, but the fumble recovery gave us a chance to get out of it." Landry was especially pleased Dallas won for Staubach's sake.

"He was really down on himself after the interception which put us in the hole. If we hadn't won, he probably wouldn't have slept for two or three days." Harris compares Staubach's ability to rescue lost causes with the same skill the Cardinals' Jim Hart exhibited a few years ago. "Other have had streaks, but none has been as consistent as Roger over the years. And he has done it in the clutch games, the games that mean something.

Harris goes on, "Staubach is one of two quarterbacks in the game I would hate to have to face...the other one I have faced before and might have to face

ASKED WHAT makes the Washington-Dallas rivalry so bitter that it amazes even a rookie like Ron Springs, who admits he has never seen such hatred, Harris quips, "Maybe it's because we're Cowboys and their Indians." Then, more seriously, "Every year they are the team we have to beat. It wouldn't mean as much if we beat them easily all the time"

Harris claims this is the most unusual Dallas team he has ever played on. "We have always been a dominant team in the past, but this year we're scrapping. Maybe that's because we don't have the potent offense we have had in the past.'

Cliff adds, "I like emotional crowds, but we never have one.' He might have added a dominant team doesn't need that kind of hype. A scrappy team needs every emotional edge it can

Washington's Pardee NFL's Coach of Year

NEW YORK (AP) - Jack Pardee, who guided the aging, draft-poor Washington Redskins to within a whisker of a division championship, was named today the National Football League Coach of the Year by The Associated Press.

Pardee received 30 of the 84 votes cast by a nationwide panel of sports writers and sports broadcasters, three in each league city. Dick Vermeil of the Philadelphia Eagles was a close second with 23 votes.

OTHER COACHES receiving more than one vote were Don Coryell of the San Diego Chargers, 10; John McKay of the Tampa Bay Buccaneers, 7; Sam Rutigliano of the Cleveland Browns, 6, and Bum Phillips of the Houston Oilers, 4.

The Redskins, 8-8 last year and picked by many to fall below .500 this season, rose instead to 10-6 and came within 40 seconds of beating Dallas for the National Conference East title before losing to the Cowboys 35-34.

'It's a great honor to have been selected," Pardee said. "Certainly I would have rather had a couple of more points last Sunday. I'd trade the individual honor for team honors anytime. But considering the other coaches I was up against it really is an honor to be chosen and I accept the award on behalf of the entire team."

IN 1978, after one year as head oach of the World Football League's card playoff berth. coach of the World Football League's Florida Blazers and three seasons as head coach of the NFL's Chicago Bears, Pardee took over the Redskins' reins. He inherited a veteranpacked team whose future had been mortgaged by George Allen's "the future is now" philosophy. Allen, seeking instant success (he achieved it to a moderate degree in the early and mid-1970s), dealt away most of Washington's draft choices for older

"What we want to be is more aggressive, more physical and have more speed," he said before this season began. "We want a swarming defense. We want to be able to run the ball better. We expect better spirit."

He also wanted youth - so Pardee cleaned house, cutting a number of veterans, most notably quarterback Billy Kilmer, linebackers Chris Hamburger and Harold McLinton, safety Jake Scott and defensive end Ron

THEN WITH a lineup including rookies like linebackers Neil Olkewicz and Rich Milot and tight end Don Warrent Pardee implemented "situation" football - a different unit for almost every play, depending on the

Deloplaine loses chance at Super Bowl ring

Jack Deloplaine has lost a chance to earn a $42,000 playoff check and win a Super Bowl ring because of a NFL rule... The Steelers had wanted to sign Deloplaine to replace injured linebacker Jack Ham but Deloplaine, who was waived by the Steelers in November when Loren Toews returned to the roster, was ruled ineligible by the league...According to league rules, a team is not allowed to sign a player it has cut and who has not been picked up by another team unless the player clears waivers... The waiver system ended before the final regular season game...The Steelers, who clinched their sixth AFC Central Division championship with a 28-0 victory over the Buffalo Bills, will take 44 instead of 45 players

Commissioner Pete Rozelle announced pairings for the NFL playoffs which begin with wild card games Sunday...In Sunday's NFC wild card match up, Chicago plays at Philadelphia...That will be followed by Denver at Houston in the AFC matchup... Saturday, Dec. 29, Philadelphia or Los Angeles will play at Tampa Bay in an NFC semifinal and Houston or Miami plays at San Diego in an AFC semifinal... Kansas City wins 7th game in row

By The Associated Press

The Kansas City Kings got their first taste of champagne lqst season, when they won their division title. So when they posted their seventh consecutive victory Tuesday night to regain a share of the lead, there was no whooping or hollering.

"I don't think that way and they don't think that way," said Coach Cotton Fitzsimmons, whose Kings beat the San Diego Clippers 110-96 to move into a tie with Milwaukee atop. the National Basketball Association's Midwest Division at 20-14. The Bucks were idle Tuesday.

'I think if this was our first time,' added Fitzsimmons, "if we hadn't already pulled it off last year, we'd be . all excited and jumping around. Now we aren't even thinking about it. "The only important thing is how

Long Beach upsets Brigham Young, 78-76

By The Associated Press

It was a big weekend for both the Georgetown and Brigham Young basketball teams, but a pretty bad hangover afterwards.

After working hard to win weekend tournaments, the 17th-ranked Hoyas and 18th-ranked Cougars showed the after-effects Tuesday night when Georgetown struggled to beat an inferior Providence team 55-50 at home and BYU lost to Long Beach State 78-76 on the road.

"We lacked mental concentration," said Georgetown Coach John Thompson. "The weekend tournament, the travel and exams all contributed to our losing our concentration.'

Santa pays visit to Pitt workouts

PITTSBURGH (AP) - This Santa Claus was no ordinary bell-ringer.

"Ho, ho, ho, Merry Christmas," bellowed 6-foot-5, 287-pound Mark May, wearing a pillow-stuffed Santa costume that made him look even larger than he does in his University of Pittsburgh football uni-

May, an offensive tackle, paid a surprise visit to a press luncheon Tuesday as Coach Jackie Sherrill was discussing the 10th-ranked Panthers' Fiesta Bowl meeting with Arizona on Christmas Day.

'You don't see many Santas who wear size 18 shoes." Sherrill said. Pitt rented a Santa suit big enough for May, but he had to wear his own sneakers disguised with black ankle wrap,

May spotted All-America defensive end Hugh Green, and he went over and sat on Green's lap. "Ho, ho, ho. Santa and his little elf," said May, who outweighs Green by about 60 pounds.

"Merry Christmas. I have some gifts, quite a few of them," said May, assisted by linebacker Jeff Pelusi, who came dressed as Frosty the Snowman after making a goalline stand against the idea of donning an elf's tights.

Among Santa's gifts: -A miniature baseball bat for freshman quarterback Dan Marino, who was drafted by the Kansas City Royals last summer but chose to enroll at

"Wish you all the luck in your baseball career. This bat is for use at your next Kansas City Royals tryout." said Santa.

-- A cane for Green, who was ineligible for this year's Outland Trophy because he plays standup defensive end instead of using the three-point stance of a down lineman.

"You can use this to get in a three-point stance so you'll be eligible next year," said Santa.

-For the financial wing of the Pitt athletic department, May had an invaluable tool for balancing football budgets. "ABC-TV," said the sign May held aloft, referring to the big checks Pitt has received from that network for its telecasts in recent seasons. -For Bob Heddleston, director of the Pitt Golden

Panther alumni group, there was a stuffed animal. "This Golden Panther is guaranteed not to complain to you about his football tickets, ticket prices, parking and the football team.'

-Athletic Director Cas Myslinski got a gift from the marching band, which won't be making the trip to Arizona because of the cost involved. "This is a copy of the Pitt's band latest recording single, 'By the Time I Get to Phoenix.' With that, May waved a cheery farewell and headed for practice. The team flies to Phoenix

Tar Heel backers critical of team

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) - Even in Blue Heav en, also known as Chapel Hill, there is some skepticism about how deserving the North Carolina football team is in accepting a bid to the Dec. 28 Gator Bowl against Michigan. The players were the first to hear about it.

"People around campus are saying they hope we don't get killed too bad," said senior linebacker Buddy Curry

The barbs result from Carolina's 7-3-1 season, a campaign in which the Tar Heels broke to a 4-0 start, lost to Wake Forest at home, then stumbled the rest of the way until a win at Virginia and the subsequent invitation to Jacksonville, Fla.

"We are getting a lot of criticism for going to a bowl," Curry added. "We expected some, but not so

"People just don't realize what kind of team we have. The criticism just makes us more determined to beat Michigan," he said.

In reviewing the season at a press conference earlier this week, Curry mentioned the injuries to starting tailback Amos Lawrence and backup Kelvin Bryant. He added the inability of the team to "maintain the high we had experienced in the first

After the loss to Clemson that knocked the Tar Heels out of the Atlantic Coast Conference title chase, Curry admits hope was lost.

"We all thought any bowl chances died. Everybody was really down. We tried to motivate ourselves and hope something good would happen. It did," he

Now the bowl game has been secured. The Tar Heels will be facing a team steeped in football tradition, the sort of tradition that started all that negative talk around Chapel Hill in the first place. But Curry doesn't seem the least bit concerned about all that glitter that accompanies Michigan football.

All he wants for Dec. 28 is a victory, and he's even willing to give up the fun side of the trip to get it.

"I don't know about the other guys, but I'm not just going to Florida for the trip. I'm going there to win the football game. I want to earn some respect for myself and respect for my football team."

Follis wins 800th game

MONAHANS - The Lamesa Golden Tornadoes gave coach O. W. Follis an early Christmas present Tuesday night with a 69-54 cage decision over the Monahans Loboes to highlight area basketball action Tues-

The victory gave Lamesa an 8-1 season mark, but more importantly, the win was Follis' 800th of his career. Follis now owns an 800-210 record in 33 years as head basketball coach at Lamesa. That is the most wins ever recorded by a Texas high school basketball coach.

Eddie Arrendondo led the way for Lamesa with 14 points, but the Tors had a balanced attack with four players in double figures. Pepe Lucio canned 13 points while Fred Harris and Victor Spencer each had 10 points in the historic win.

Joel Faulkenberry led Monahans with 20 points.

Oregon coach offers to resign

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) - University of Oregon President William Boyd rejected football Coach Rich Brooks offer to resign Tuesday.

Brooks offered his resignation after the Eugene Register-Guard reported that freshman football player Paul Perez had received 10 hours of academic credit for courses at Los Angeles Valley College in which Perez was enrolled but did no work.

The newspaper story said assistant Coach John Becker, former football coach at the college in Van Nuys, Calif., had arranged for Perez to get the credits

Oregon athletic department representatives issued conflicting reports as to whether Becker had decided to resign, and Becker was not available for comment.

Brooks issued a prepared statement that said, "My letter of resignation was prompted by my total support of John Becker and my feelings for him, plus my overall responsibility for the football program." Brooks withdrew his letter of resignation after Boyd rejected it.

Boyd said of Becker, "He could simply tell what happened, and if the facts indicate something less than dismissal was called for, I would have been prepared to act appropriately."

Boyd said he had not heard from Becker on the matter. Boyd said Oregon apparently would forfeit no victories because illness and injury kept Perez from playing-football.

The Ducks, with a 6-5 record, recently finished their first winning season in nine years.

Earlier, Perez admitted receiving three hours of credit without doing any work in a summer extension course taken at Los Angeles Valley

College through Ottawa University of Kansas. Perez submitted a transcript listing the 13 credit hours because he needed 12 credit hours to be admitted to Oregon, since his high school grade point average was below the university's admittance standards.

Meanwhile, the FBI announced in Portland that it was investigating allegations of mail fraud and bribery involving student athletes at Oregon State University as well as the University of Oregon.

Stingers' franchise folds because of poor crowds

CINCINNATI (AP) - Don and Barbara Cammeron say they've attended every professional hockey game in Cincinnati since 1949 - including Tuesday night's final appearance of the Central Hockey League Stingers. The Cammerons supported the teams that successively were the Mohawks, Swords and Stingers, since an exhibition match that year in the old Cincinnati Gardens

The Stingers franchise folded because of a lack of paying customers like the Cammerons.

My first reaction would be to take my retirement and move to a city that has a hockey franchise," Cammeron said when he learned that the Stingers were going out of business. "This team and its owners have an obligation to us. We bought our tickets in good faith, and we think they owe us

After the Stingers lost 10-1 to the Oklahoma City Stars, General Manager Ronald Ryan read a terse state-

"It is with deep regret that I must announce that the Cincinnati Stingers are unable to continue and will cease operation's effective immediately,'

Ryan said. Team officials declined further comment.

"It's going to make a big hole in our said Larry Burroughs, who said he and his wife, Ann, have missed only three home games since hockey moved into the Coliseum in

"I sort of expected them to fold the franchise, but it really hurts me to see them bleed slowly all over the ice,' said Mrs. Burroughs, watching the 10-1 debacle.

Dave Rodgers, a University of Cincinnati student, was among the an-nounced crowd of 949 who attended the Stingers' finale.

"I figured they would fold, but I thought they would wait until the end of the season," Rodgers said. "It's too bad there's nothing else to do in this town during the winter, in terms of sporting events. Bud Poile, president of the CHL.

"At 3 p.m., they reached the point that they realized the Stinger operation must fold," Poile said. "I am more embarrassed than disappointed. We've explored all possibilities and there's no way we can continue for this year.

"There is no way any team in our league can operate under these conditions, which include the highest hockey rent in the world - $7,300" per game, and a paucity of fans in Riverfront Coliseum

Poile said he expected the Stingers to honor their $40,000 yearly obligation to the league to cover operational

Pack gives Stephenson win over Tigers, 68-65

SNYDER - The Midland High Bulldogs helped make coach Jack Stephenson's return to Snyder a pleasant one Tuesday by pulling out a 68-65 non-conference basketball victory over the Tigers.

The Bulldogs held a 10-point lead in the fourth period before Snyder made a close game of it, but Perry Bolger hit two key free throws with five seconds left to ice the win for the 12-3 Bulldogs. Snyder is now 11-4 on the Stephenson, who coached Snyder to the District 3-AAA championship last season, said, "I could see when Snyder was warming up that they were ready to play a big game against us, but it was good to see those kids again. However, in a close game like that, it's really hard to get caught up emotionally. It was really a good basketball game.' Herbert Johnson paced the Midland attack with a game high 20 points and Bolger added 14. Those were the only two Bulldogs in double figures, but Pat Hickey and Darrin Matlock each scored nine points. Bradley Richardson led Snyder with 17 points while Kyle Short had 13 and Mark Preston 10. Midland led 40-34 at the half, but Snyder made a run in the final quarter with a 17-14 advantage over the Bulldogs, but it wasn't enough.

The Midland High junior varsity got 19 points from Mike Velasco, 18 from Ted Bartley and 15 from Don Sharnowsky to capture a 65-59 win over the Snyder JV. MHS is now 11-2 on the

In a sophomore outing, Midland ran to a 78-32 victory as Michael Blake and Darrell Jones scored 14 and 13 points respectively to lead the way. Doug Terrell, Jim Gunnels and Rob

Fouts spent boyhood in Kezar Stadium

SAN DIEGO (AP) - Growing up in a suburb of San Francisco, Dan Fouts got to act out every youngster's fan-

As son of the 49ers' play-by-play broadcaster Bob Fouts, his Sundays were spent at Kezar Stadium as a ballboy for the National Football League team.

One of his early idols was 49ers' quarterback John Brodie, who passed for more than 31,000 yards in his 17 NFL seasons.

Almost 20 years later, Fouts has fulfilled another fantasy. At age 28, he has broken Joe Namath's single season passing total of 4,007 yards - the NFL's all-time mark - and put the Chargers in position for a run at the Super Bowl. A national television audience watched Fouts establish the record in a critical 17-7 victory over Denver

With the victory, which gave San Diego its first title in 14 years, the Chargers receive the home-field advantage throughout the playoffs.

The seven-year veteran from Oregon finished his incredible regular season with 4,082 yards, bettering the record Namath set in 1967. Fouts did it by completing 332 of 530 passes for 24 touchdowns. Namath was 258 of 491, with 26 touchdowns and 8 interceptions.

Fouts had a 16-game schedule while Namath, the New York Jets' star, achieved it in 14 games.

Fouts, the first quarterback to throw for more than 300 yards in four consecutive games, led the NFL in completion average with a 62.6 percentage, and edged Oakland's Ken Stabler as the AFC's top-rated passer. For the second year in a row, he led the NFL in passing.

His record-breaking season came two years after a bitter nine-game holdout over salary. Demanding to be traded, he blasted the franchise, saying "I don't think the Chargers will ever be winners." Ending his holdout Nov. 18, 1977, he silenced his critics nine days later by completing 19 of 26 passes in a 30-28 victory over the Seattle Seahawks.

But he made peace, and declines to discuss "that can of worms.

Last year, when Don Coryell took over as coach four games into the season, Fouts took charge of the team's dazzling air show and ended up as the NFL's leading passer.

This year he shattered almost every club passing record, a feat that knocked passing giants Tobin Rote and John Hadl out of the San Diego record book.

His primary receiving targets -

John Jefferson and Charlie Joiner rate among the league's best. With Fouts averaging 33 passes a game, the Chargers became the first team since the 1968 Jets to produce a pair of

1.000-vard receivers. Joiner, an 11-year veteran, finished second in the NFL with 72 receptions and 1,008 yards, while Jefferson, an all-pro in his first two seasons, had 61

Three times during the season, Fouts tied the club record of 28 completions. He finished nine completions shy of Fran Tarkenton's league record of 345 set last year.

Fouts' total of six 300-yard games in one season tied Namath's all-time mark, set in 1967. His season high was 350 yards against Kansas City. He had 253 yards and a 35-0 lead at halftime against New Orleans a week ago before Coryell replaced him in the third

Malavasi unhappy with Ram performance

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Unhappy over his Los Angeles Rams' effort in the regular-season-finale, Coach Ray Malavasi decided rest might be the cure for their doldrums.

So, after losing to New Orleans, 29-14, on Sunday, the coach gave his players three days off this week and said, "I hope they will be refreshed and ready to go on Friday.

That's when they resume practice for their opening National Football League playoff game against either Dallas or Tampa Bay.

"I am not a bit happy we did not play well against the Saints," Malavasi told his usual Tuesday morning news conference. "We had to analyze why and the big reason was simply

The previous week the Rams had clinched their seventh straight NFC West division title, assuring a playoff

"After 15 games, I guess some of our players felt they had the divison won and relaxed a little bit," Malavasi mused. "Sometimes you can avoid it and sometimes you can't.'

He said the coaches will be looking at films of both Dallas and Tampa devise the game plan after it's known which team they'll be playing.

Malayasi said five players did well against New Orleans and named linebackers Jack Reynolds and Bob Brudzinski, running back Wendell Tyler - who passed the 1.000-vard rushing mark for the season, offensive tackle Jackie Slater and free safety Nolan Cromwell.

In the fourth quarter, Malavasi sent recuperating cornerback Pat Thomas into the game and said the star veteran, who has been hampered by a leg injury, "felt pretty good after the game

Asked if he might have pulled quarterback Vince Ferragamo and gone with the veteran backup Bob Lee if the division title had been at stake, the coach answered candidly: "I probably would have, yes. But I felt Vince needed the work. His biggest problem is reading coverages.

Then, on a brighter note, Malavasi said, "We are probably in better shape at this point than were were at any time during the regular season.

NEW YORK (AP) - Stock prices lost more ground today as the price of gold soared to another record high in world markets.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, off nearly 6 points Tuesday, was down ers by more than a 2-1 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues. The gold price shot up to back to $488.50 at the afternoon fixing, but that was still $11 above where it had stood 24 hours before. Gold is considered a good indicator of the level of concern and uncertainty around the world over such prob-change, and oil prices. Chrysler led the active included a 115,000-share block at 61/2. The House approved a federal loan-guarantee plan for the troubled automaker Tuesday, and action on the measure was

Khomeini used modern tactics in power grab

EDITOR'S NOTE: Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini directed the climactic stage of his revolution against Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi from a cottage in a French village 2,000 miles from Iran. Here is a report on how it was done.

By JEFFREY ULBRICH

PARIS (AP) - In the drab back room of a small cottage in the French village of Neauphle-le-Chateau, two tape-copying machines whirled relentlessly in late 1978 and early 1979, reproducing the revolutionary words of Ayatollah Ruhollah Kho-

As the struggle against Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi was reaching its climax, the words of the imam called on the people to rise against the shah, throw off the yoke of foreign influence and crush the politicians he claimed were bleeding the ountry of its riches.

For his rise from obscurity in the extreme rightwing Fedayeen Islam of Iran's Shiite Moslem clergy to the ruler of a major oil-producing nation of 35 million people, Khomeini owes a lot to the small group of mullahs who began playing his words in the mosques in mid-1978.

FROM HIS EXILE from Iran in 1964 until October 1978, Khomeini was relatively isolated in the Shiite holy city of Nejef in a remote part of Iraq. His only contact with Iran was through occasional communiques smuggled in by a small circle of followers to a hard-core group of supporters centered in Qom. It was in Nejef, however, that the ayatollah formulated his cassette tactic. His early tapes preaching overthrow of the shah were taken to Iran and distributed among mullahs favorable to the Fedayeen Islam who played them in the mosques. According to some sources, it was from these tapes that the phrase "Islamic republic" was heard for the first time.

THE TAPING OPERATION grew after his arrival in France in October 1978, and the distribution expanded. Tehran music stores began to slip Khomeini cassettes in with cassettes of music purchased by customers. As the revolution grew, they were passed about openly.

In the back room of Khomeini's modest headquarters at Neauphle-le-Chateau, 20 miles southwest of Paris, young supporters were kept busy operating the two tape-copying machines. Each time the ayatollah' spoke, one of the youths' would record his remarks, then rush back to make copies.

In the later days, these recordings were passed by elephone to Tehran. Iranian sources said the main impact of the cassettes was that they marked the first time any opponent assailed the shah directly. Until that time, complaints were directed at the "regime" but did not lay the blame directly on the monarch, the developing hot spots in Iran. According to one source, when word reached Neauphle that people in a particular town were angry because of an act of the government, the ayatollah would make a recording addressed to those people, blaming the shah for their

KHOMEINI'S WORDS usually were directed at

·The cassettes are believe to have played a significant role in the revolution, but they reached only a limited number of people in Iran.

But following Khomeini's arrival in France and the spread of the anti-shah movement in Iran, news correspondents flocked to Neauphle-le-Chateau to report on the ayatollah's remarks and reactions to developments in his country. Many of their dispatches filtered into Iran.

Growth of GNP year's strongest

WASHINGTON (AP) - The government today revised its estimate of the nation's total output for July through September downward slightly, but the 3.1 percent annual rate of growth still was the strongest for any quarter this year. The Commerce Department said earlier that the nation's real gross national product - the value of goods and services adjusted for inflation - had risen at an annual rate of 2.4 percent in the third quarter. That was later revised to 3.5 percent, and was trimmed slightly today.

The new 3.1 percent annual growth figure still represents a rebound from the second quarter, when output fell at an annual rate of 2.3 percent. The economy had grown at an annual rate of 1.1 percent in the first quarter.

The latest figure means that if the nation's economy continued to grow for four quarters at the same rate as in the third quarter, total output would increase 3.1 percent. The economy last year grew 4.4 The figure is watched closely because it is a measure of the nation's economic well-being. Many economists had believed the economy had fallen into a recession in the second quarter. After the thirdquarter rebound, many analysts said the downturn probably would not begin in earnest until the final quarter this year. The Commerce Department also made slight revisions in its corporate profit figures. The new figures show that profits before taxes rose 6.3 percent from the second quarter to the third quarter to an annual rate of $242.3 billion. After-tax profits were up 6.5 percent to an annual $148.3 billion...

Profits adjusted for inflationary effects on inventory and capital were up 2.4 percent to an annual $180.8 billion, the report said.

The work is expected to begin within the next few days. Drivers are reminded to observe the barricades, posted speed limits and construction equipment in order to prevent accidents in the construction area. Vernon Wilkinson, resident engineeer in Odessa, is in charge of the project with State Department of Highways and Public Transportation District Engineer A. Henry Pearson providing supervision.
