Looking Backward...

Controversies, compromises and construction created a major portion of the news reported in 1979. Sunday's Reporter-Telegram takes a not-so-nostalgic look back at Midland's top stories of the year.

...With a Smile

In a year marked by shrinking dollars, expanding energy problems, receding hairlines and advancing ayatollahs, it takes an optimist to look back over the entire year and smile contentedly. Sunday's West Texas Life takes on that Pollyanna-ish task.

Looking Forward

Prophets; seers; astrologist — all spell controversy when they refer to Jeane Dixon. Claiming an accuracy record some have described as phenomenal, Dixon will make her annual predictions for 1980 — on a wide variety of subjects — in Sunday's Reporter-Telegram.

Kansas City fires burn

Firefighters continue work slowdown

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Hundreds of National Guardsmen manned fire trucks and stations today as arson investigators probed the rubble of a $5.5 million building gutted by the first major fire since city firefighters began a work slowdown eight days ago.

The fire Thursday destroyed an unoccupied retirement home and forced the temporary evacuation of a nearby nursing home that houses about 100 people. No one was hurt.

Seven fire investigators were trying to determine the cause of the fire, but it could not be learned immediately whether officials suspected foul play.

Meanwhile, firefighters continued to call in sick today in a contract dispute with the city. Officials said they had no count of the number of firemen on duty.

Among the 75 persons who fought the fire Thursday were police, some regular firefighters and Guardsmen mobilized under an emergency order by Gov. Joseph Teasdale.

Teasdale declared a state of emergency earlier Thursday as firefighter ranks were thinned by dismissals, suspensions and sickouts in an escalation of a contract dispute over salaries.

He called on firefighters to stop "this illegal strike," and said city officials could no longer guarantee public safety.

By noon Thursday, 33 of the city's 900 firefighters had been dismissed, more than 200 were given three-day suspensions to be served after the emergency is over and 232 firefighters had joined the sickout, which began Wednesday. City officials said the dismissals and suspensions were for refusal to work overtime.

Abnormally high sick calls continued late Thursday, but city officials said confusion and personnel shortages hindered tabulation.

Shortly after midnight, 500 Guardsmen were assigned to 15 fire stations being manned by city police. Guard officials said some troops would provide security and others would bolster police firefighting squads.

The city's 18 other fire stations were staffed by firefighters still working, city officials said.

"How long do you expect the city to take this?" Teasdale challenged firefighters as he urged them to resume bargaining.

Local 42 of the International Association of Firefighters has continued the slowdown despite a judge's temporary restraining order issued Monday.

Police have been on 12-hour shifts since Friday when the firefighters' contract expired and the work slowdown began. The firefighters initially refused to work non-emergency overtime, but Wednesday they also began refusing to conduct inspections or attend training classes.

Mayor Richard Berkley acknowledged that police efforts cannot measure up to experienced firefighters.

Fighting erupts among Iranians

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Fighting erupted in Tabriz, capital of the northwest Azerbaijan region, and members of the dissident Azari Turks' political party wounded one Revolutionary Guardsman and took 10 other Khomeini men hostage, the official Pars news agency said today.

Meanwhile, the foreign minister angrily demanded spy trials for the U.S. hostages Iran is holding if America pushes for U.N. sanctions against his country. At least 10 of the captives were reported rebelling against their captors, and there was no sign their jailers would free any of them.

Pars, quoting the Revolutionary Guard office in Tabriz, said the attack began Thursday night when an unidentified group set fire to a pavilion set up for Friday prayers.

The guardsmen, chief security force for revolutionary leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, pursued the unidentified attackers past the headquarters of the Moslem Peoples Republican Party. Groups identified only as "counter-revolutionaries" also attacked and tried to set fire to banks and newspaper offices in Tabriz, Iran's fourth largest city, Pars said.

Pars reported the revolutionary guardsmen said they had so far been unable to negotiate release of the hostage guards.

The party is loyal to Ayatollah Mohammed Kazem Shariat-Madari, Iran's second-ranking religious leader. His followers clashed with guardsmen in Tabriz earlier this month. Tension had developed around Shariat-Madari after he criticized the nation's new Islamic constitution. The Azaris, ethnic Turks, seek more self-rule.

In Tehran, the embassy militants denied reports that seven hostages had been transferred from the compound to a maximum security jail. The official Pars news agency also denied distributing the report.

First word that Pars was carrying the report came from the NBC-TV correspondent in Tehran, who said Pars got its information from the French news agency, Agence France Presse.

A French newspaper quoted a French legislator just returned from Tehran as saying the hostages had been transferred to Tehran's Evin Prison, probably for health reasons.

Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh told reporters Thursday night that the United States has interpreted every Iranian "good gesture as a sign of weakness." He referred to Khomeini's decision last Friday to allow three American clergymen to have Christmas visits with the hostages and President Carter's announcement that America would seek U.N. sanctions against Iran in a bid to pressure the release of the captives.

Ghotbzadeh remained silent on the Carter announcement until after the three visiting clergymen left Iran Thursday morning, but he was clearly angry when he gave his country's official reaction to the plan.

"All of a sudden we realize their (America's) whole propaganda is absolutely ridiculous," Ghotbzadeh said. "Now they are going to the Security Council just because they know in January the composition of the council will be different, and this is not acceptable to us."

"If the United States continues to put pressure on us... I don't see any usefulness in having this grand jury.

It is better to have the normal trial of the hostages," he said.

Ghotbzadeh has been pushing a proposal to convene an international "grand jury" to hear Iranian grievances against the United States, with the hostages appearing before it as witnesses, but "not as the accused."

He put forward the plan after the Shah of Iran left the United States for sanctuary in Panama, a move he saw as a victory for Iranian determination. The Iranian militants who seized the U.S. Embassy in Tehran Nov. 4 have demanded the shah be returned for trial or all the captives would be tried as spies.

Iran crisis at-a-glance,

Before they left Iran, the clergymen, who met with 43 of the hostages, urged conciliation on both sides to end the 55-day-old U.S.-Iranian standoff.

The clergymen arrived in the United States Thursday night and said they would relay messages from the hostages to their families today. They also planned to discuss the situation with American and Iranian officials in Washington.

"We must find subtle enough overtures of good will to be signs of some movement, without suggesting a give away," the Rev. William Howard, a Baptist from Princeton University, told reporters in Tehran.

Howard was joined on the three-day mission by the Revs. William Sloane Coffin and Thomas Gumbleton. But it was Howard who saw the largest number of hostages — 21 — at the occupied embassy compound on Christmas Day.

He told reporters 10 of the captives were "clearly rebellious spirits," who "said sort of snappy things to their guards (and) let it be known their will had not been broken."

"They said things like 'What do these guys (the militants) know?'" Howard said after his rare glimpse behind the guarded embassy walls.

For example, he noted that the militants barred their captives from any political discussion with the visitors, but "one guy said (to the guards) 'Can I ask a question about the Rose Bowl, or is it too political for you?'"

U.S. optimistic over U.N. move

WASHINGTON (AP) — As the United States seeks support from U.N. Security Council members for a resolution imposing economic sanctions against Iran, some U.S. officials concede that such sanctions are not expected to have an immediate impact on Iran.

White House officials are expressing optimism, though, that the United States will be able to obtain U.N. authorization for the sanctions, and that the Soviet Union will not veto the move.

President Carter was scheduled to interrupt his Christmas holiday today to return to the White House from Camp David, Md., for meetings with his chief advisers on the Iranian situation and other foreign policy matters.

However, White House officials said there is no sense of urgency in the president's return and that he will go back to Camp David for the weekend at the conclusion of the meetings.

CBS News reported Thursday night that Carter has been personally contacting the top leaders of China, the Soviet Union and other members of the U.N. Security Council to ask for their votes on the sanction question.

White House press secretary Jody Powell said the president has been "actively involved" in soliciting support from other Security Council members but he refused to say whether Carter was personally contacting heads of state.

Negotiations with the 15 council members are continuing to determine what types of sanctions could get the necessary nine-vote majority.

Sources at the United Nations said a draft resolution circulated by the United States calls for the U.N. Security Council to impose an embargo on all Iranian exports carried in Iranian ships and on all Iranian imports except medicine and food.

According to the sources, who asked not to be named, the resolution also would forbid U.N. member countries from allowing Iranian ships and planes into their territory and would prevent them from granting Iran credit or shipping Iran spare parts for military equipment.

However, the resolution would not block Iranian oil exports, which are vital to many of America's allies, including Japan and Western European countries.

The Carter administration hopes the sanctions will force the release of 50 American hostages who have been held in Iran since Nov. 4.

But intelligence reports reaching the Carter administration show the economic sanctions directed at Iran to date have had little or no impact on the average Iranian.

The reports indicate that Iran has adjusted with only minor difficulties, diplomatic and administration sources say. And they predict that the economic moves the United States is considering would work very slowly if at all.

"There is lots of time built into this process. It takes effect bit by bit, but we don't really know how fast. Eventually, we believe there will be more shortages, more discontent," an administration official said, conceding he could cite no specific examples of shortages caused so far by the U.S. actions.

Thus far, the major steps taken by the United States include a freeze on Iranian assets, a ban on direct American purchases of Iranian oil and a series of efforts to persuade Iran's major trading partners to assist in the effort to isolate Iran. Accurate information about the Iranian economy is scarce in Washington, particularly for the period since Nov. 4, when militants seized the U.S. Embassy in Tehran and captured the hostages.

10 prisoners are killed when Carolina jail burns

LANCASTER, S.C. (AP) — A fire broke out Thursday night on the top floor of the 156-year-old Lancaster County jail, killing 10 inmates and injuring two other persons, authorities said.

Dace W. Jones, administrator of Elliott White Springs Memorial Hospital, said the 10 prisoners were dead on arrival at the hospital. Only three inmates locked in the jail escaped death.

Two firefighters were hospitalized in stable condition suffering from smoke inhalation after the blaze, Jones said, and three inmates, two firefighters and a policeman were admitted to the hospital for observation.

The blaze began at about 6 p.m. on the top floor of the historic brick building. By 7:30 p.m., the fire was under control and everyone had been evacuated, a Lancaster County sheriff's deputy said.

Thirteen inmates were in the jail when the fire broke out, said Lancaster County Sheriff Nae Parks.

Parks said a State Law Enforcement Division arson unit was called from Columbia to investigate the fire, which he said was of "undetermined origin."

He said the dead inmates' relatives would be notified before the names of the victims were released.

"There was minor fire damage to the building with the exception of smoke damage," Parks said.

The jail is a landmark in this central South Carolina community about 50 miles north of Columbia. The building was designed by architect Robert Mills, a Charleston, S.C. native who also designed the Washington Monument. Mills died in 1855.

Soviets install Afghan puppet

By The Associated Press

Die-hard supporters of executed Afghan President Hafizullah Amin were reported still trading rifle-fire in Kabul today after Soviet forces installed their own man in power to end a Moslem insurrection on Russia's southern border. There were signs the new leader, Babrak Karmal, will conduct large-scale purges.

A report from the Japanese embassy in Kabul said sporadic shots were heard near the road running from the Soviet embassy to the old royal palace which appeared to be still in the hands of Amin's followers. Several MiG-21 warplanes circled over the city, the report said.

The airport in Kabul, the Afghan capital where thousands of Soviet troops were flown in over the past few days, was believed closed, so there was no immediate way for correspondents to confirm reports of active Russian fighting to take over the presidential palace and radio station Thursday night.

But witnesses said in telephone calls to diplomats in New Delhi, India, the Russians fought Afghan troops guarding Radio Kabul, knocked out two Afghan tanks, captured the complex and took soldiers prisoner in 3½ hours of battles that ended at 11 p.m. with MiG-21 warplanes criss-crossing the skies.

"It was the largest Soviet troop movement outside Eastern Europe since World War II," one source said of the influx of Russian troops. "You can see it almost as a Soviet invasion of Afghanistan — taking Kabul and then putting their man in power."

Karmal was immediately declared Afghanistan's president and general secretary of the central committee of the ruling Khalq Party and named his cronies to important positions.

Poisonous gas leak in Panhandle slows down

BRISCOE, Texas (AP) — The flow of poisonous gas from a blown-out well dropped substantially early today from a level that sent firemen and deputies scrambling to evacuate more than 30 families...

"It has choked back down to where the flow is almost nothing," said Hemphill County sheriff's dispatcher Kay Holland. "They're gonna go in and try to cap it today."

Hemphill sheriff's deputy Joe Reyna said officials began the evacuation about 10 p.m. Thursday, about two hours after the natural gas well began spewing poisonous hydrogen sulfide gas.

Deputies tried to evacuate any residents who could smell gas, Reyna said. One evacuee estimated 100 residents of the sparsely populated area took refuge at the Briscoe School Thursday night.

A check with local hospitals revealed no victims from the toxic fumes. Reyna said there was no immediate estimate of how many persons had been evacuated in Hemphill County.

Wheeler County officials said they evacuated about 30 to 40 families from ranches along a strip about 15 miles long and seven miles wide.

"Everybody in this country was told to get out," said a man at the school who declined to give his name. Another evacuee, who also refused to give her name, said the evacuation order was never given to her officially.

"I got the word from neighbors, just by word of mouth, from people... who had heard about it on their CBs," she said. "The people here really don't know a thing. We received word there was poisonous gas that could possibly be lethal and we ought to leave our homes," she said.

"They are checking and double checking. We are checking, the fire department is checking, Hemphill (County officials) are checking. The fire department is going door to door and we are checking by phone," the spokesman said Thursday night.

Fire officials probe airport blaze cause

Fire department officials are still investigating the cause of two fires that broke out Thursday in the terminal building at Midland Regional Airport.

A spokesman for the fire marshal's office this morning said listing a cause at the present time would be "guesswork." He also said a damage estimate had not been given yet.

At approximately 6:40 a.m. Thursday, firemen from the Air Terminal Station responded to a call on a smoke smell in the terminal building. On their arrival, they found a room containing air distribution equipment burning. The room suffered heavy damage in the fire and hot, acrid smoke was blown through the building, causing extensive smoke damage throughout the terminal.

Several flights were delayed for up to 30 minutes, and there were some delays for passengers awaiting luggage, since the fire was near the baggage carousels. There were no serious injuries from the fire, although Capt. Charles Womble of the Midland Fire Department was treated for smoke inhalation. Reports a policeman also was treated for smoke inhalation were erroneous, a hospital spokesman said today.

Iran at-a-glance

By The Associated Press

Some hostages at the U.S. Embassy were reported to be "rebellious spirits," and Iran's foreign minister made new threats against the captives as the stalemate in Tehran entered its 55th day. Here are the highlights.

IRANIAN THREATS

Iran's foreign minister angrily demanded spy trials for the U.S. hostages if America pushes for U.N. sanctions against his country. The United States has interpreted every Iranian "good gesture" as a sign of weakness, Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh said.

Ghotbzadeh has been pushing a proposal to convene an international "grand jury" to hear Iranian grievances against the United States, with the hostages appearing before it as witnesses, but "not as the accused." He said that would change if sanctions are imposed.

U.N. SANCTIONS

White House officials expressed optimism that the United States would be able to obtain U.N. authorization for sanctions against Iran, and that the Soviet Union would not veto the move.

President Carter reportedly has been personally contacting the top leaders of China, the Soviet Union and other members of the U.N. Security Council to ask for their votes on the sanction question.

Sources at the United Nations said a draft resolution circulated by the United States calls for the U.N. Security Council to impose an embargo on all Iranian exports carried in Iranian ships and on all Iranian imports except medicine and food.

DEFIANT HOSTAGES

The Rev. William Howard of Princeton University, one of three U.S. clergymen who spent Christmas in Tehran and met with the hostages, said ten of them were "clearly rebellious spirits," who "said sort of snappy things to their guards (and) let it be known their will had not been broken.

The clergymen returned to New York with messages from 43 captives and said they "seem to be bearing up well." They are meeting today with State Department officials, Iranian diplomats and the captives' families.

The militants at the embassy refused to confirm or deny a report that regime of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini "suggested" three hostages of Mexican, Indian and Portuguese descent be released.

IRANIAN STUDENTS

The U.S. Court of Appeals cleared the way for the deportation of Iranian students who are illegally in this country as part of America's retaliation for the seizure of the hostages on Nov. 4.

But a lawyer for three students who challenged President Carter's order singling out Iranians for immigration checks said he would carry the fight to the Supreme Court unless he gets a rehearing.

A three-member panel of court ruled Carter's Nov. 10 order was constitutional and that it was "a fundamental element of the president's efforts to resolve the Iranian crisis."

As of Dec. 23, the Immigration and Naturalization Service had interviewed 54,486 Iranian students and found that 6,444 did not have valid visas.

Rough seas hamper survivor search

KETCHIKAN, Alaska (AP) — Stormy seas hampered efforts by Navy divers to explore an overturned ore freighter that is leaking diesel fuel in the Pacific, and authorities said there was little hope for the Taiwanese crew.

A second body from the 741-foot Lee Wang Zin was recovered Thursday, but diving plans were thwarted by 45-knot winds and 15-foot seas. A small storm was approaching the area, with winds expected to remain at 40-50 knots and seas at 10 to 15 feet today, the National Weather Service said.

Coast Guard Cmdr. Ray Spoltman, federal on-scene coordinator, said the grounding of the freighter Thursday might make it easier for the 25-member diving team to approach from calmer water on the vessel's lee side to check for bodies or survivors from the 30-member crew.

Diesel oil from the ship spread over 100 square miles of ocean, and major oil-spill equipment was being brought to the scene from Seattle by the cutter Munro, which also has a large sick bay, Spoltman said.

Officials say they have no estimates of how much of the estimated 370,000 gallons of oil already had leaked, but Spoltman said the amount of oil believed to be on board posed a major threat to the marine environment. As of Thursday night, the oil slick appeared to be moving out to sea and was breaking up in heavy weather.

Search and rescue officials had said some crew members might have been trapped in air pockets when the ship overturned suddenly on Christmas Day.

"The chance of surviving in this water is 10 minutes to an hour and a half," Spoltman said. "If there are air pockets, they (the crew) will be suffering from exposure.

"It's doubtful anyone can be alive. As time increases, it's becoming more remote we'll find anyone alive."

The crew of the Coast Guard cutter Clover recovered a body about five miles east of McLean Point and within two miles of the floating wreck. The Clover brought the body to Ketchikan.

Cruise missile barely misses populated area

LOMPOC, Calif. (AP) — Investigators were searching Santa Barbara County ranchland today for charred pieces of the second experimental cruise missile in less than a month to fall short of its target in Utah and crash near a populated area of California.

The Air Force said Thursday an unarmed General Dynamics AGM-109 missile slammed into ranchland southwest of this town of 26,500 people, some 800 miles off-target.

The missile was launched from a B-52 bomber over the Pacific Ocean and flew 45 minutes on its way to the Utah Test and Training Range before crashing in gently sloping grasslands near the coast 125 miles northwest of Los Angeles.

"We got a call from a rancher's wife who said it's just off Jalama Road," said Air Force Capt. Leonard Brady at Vandenberg Air Force Base, 15 miles from the crash site.

The missile went down about a mile from the picturesque coast route, state Highway I, Brady said, and also near heavily traveled U.S. 101.

It took four hours to find the missile buried in the heavy brush. "Part of the problem in finding the missile is that there was no fire and no smoke," said Air Force Lt. Col. Guy Brown, who works with the cruise missile program at Edwards Air Force Base, 100 miles east of the crash site, where the B-52 launch planes are based.

No injuries or damage to buildings were reported, and aside from the rancher's wife, local authorities said nobody called about the crash. Brown said the missile was destroyed in the crash and that the area was cordoned off by Air Force security officers.

It was the third crash in three attempts by General Dynamics over the Pacific flight path to Utah, cruise missiles, which hug the contours of the earth to undercut radar defenses, have a 1,400-mile range. Earlier this month, another General Dynamics cruise missile crashed in the Los Padres National Forest just 13 miles from the coast of Ojai in Ventura County, about 60 miles northwest of Los Angeles.

The last thing anyone wants to happen is for a ship to sink in the Houston Ship Channel and block all the traffic," Coast Guard ensign David Paxton said Wednesday. "It's a fairly old ship... it has quite a few problems."

Gray skies hang over area

Gray, drizzly skies hung over Midland and the Permian Basin this morning and the chance of rain the clouds brought will exist through tonight, according to the weatherman.

The forecast, issued by the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport, was calling for the overcast conditions to continue through tonight and for temperatures to be colder. It should be mostly cloudy and cool on Saturday, the weatherman said.

The weather bureau recorded .04 inch of rain in the past 24 hours, boosting the month's accumulation to 2.80 and the yearly total so far to 16.05 inches. A 20 percent chance of more rainfall exists for tonight.

(Third in a series of three guest editorials by Copley News Service.)

The fourth defeat: Incredibly, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled in April of this year in Herbert vs. Lando that reporters and editors must answer questions about their "state of mind" when material was written that became the subject of libel litigation.

The 6-3 majority decided that the press would have to disclose its editorial process, its conversations and thoughts.

Jack Landau, director of the Reporters Committee for Freedom of the Press, has condensed this series of defeats to one scary sentence: "The courts can take your notes, the government can take your telephone records, and the police can march into the newsroom. Now libel lawyers can go into your brain. I'd like to know what's left?"

What indeed?

The obvious question that the press and people should examine and try to answer is: Why this unprecedented court-press conflict at this time?

The reasons, it seems to us, are complex and therefore defy ready explanation. But, basically, the public in the post-Watergate malaise has come to view the press as being too powerful, as being aloof, arrogant and alien. Politicians and judges have felt, and not incorrectly, they had popular support for cutting the press down to size.

The press, we think, has been too slow in realizing that its freedom ultimately depends on the "general spirit of the people." Accordingly, it has not properly communicated the judiciary's threat to the First Amendment.

Indeed, the press seems to have been at pains at times to alienate the "general spirit of the people" by insisting too often that a newsmen's privileges outweigh considerations of a fair trial for either a defendant or for society's representative, the prosecutor.

Equally reprehensible has been the press' I-dare-you attitude toward the government of publication of details of such as building a hydrogen bomb.

If the press is to achieve harmony with the "general spirit of the people" and enjoy greater public support, it must not flout public sensibilities, especially where First Amendment rights collide with those perceived by the average citizen to be more nearly his own.

Not until public opinion is persuaded that the battle now joined over First Amendment rights is truly the people's fight can recourse from judicial error be sought from the legislative branch of government.

The consequences of not forming a firmer alliance between the people and their press in defense of free speech are fearful to contemplate.

Even as Alexander Hamilton was urging the press to rely ultimately on the "general spirit of the people" for its freedom, our other founding fathers also spoke to future ages about this precious, perishable way of life.

Thomas Jefferson advised that "The natural progress of things is for liberty to yield and government to gain ground." And James Madison, the father of the Constitution, said this: "Remember, democracy never lasts long. It soon wastes, exhausts and murders itself. There never was a democracy that did not commit suicide."

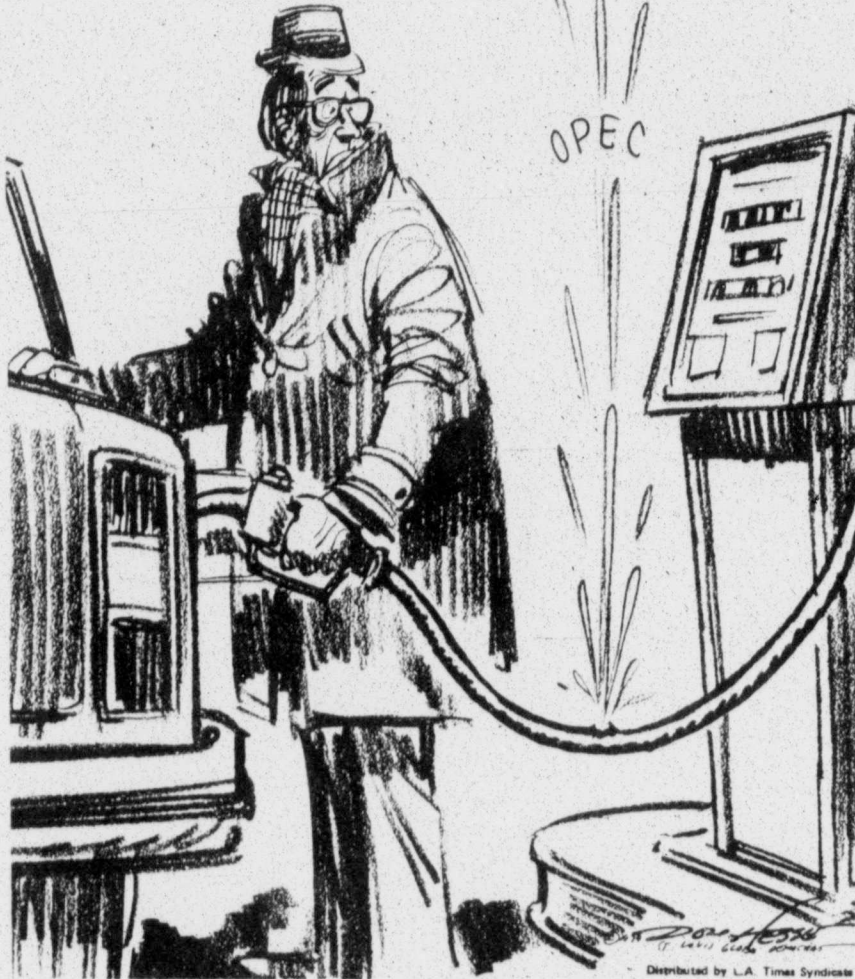

Office of Integrity

A government task force recommends an anti-corruption unit be created to watch the nation's food inspectors — to keep them from engaging in bribery and extortion.

It seems some of the 12,000 federal employees and thousands of other government-licensed workers who inspect and grade the nation's meat, poultry, fruits, vegetables, dairy products and eggs are on the take.

We've read of federal inspectors receiving bribes for upgrading meat and making a pile of money for packing firms and meat buyers. And more than 100 food service employees have been indicted in inspection scandals in Boston, Southern California, New York and New Jersey since the early 1970s.

Thus it makes sense for the Department of Agriculture to set up an Office of Integrity.

Nation's women attain top journalism posts

By VIRGIL PINKLEY
Copley News Service

More and more women are winning important positions.

This is especially true in the publishing field and, in particular, as it pertains to newspapers.

All over the nation women are filling schools of journalism and then moving on to positions of authority and accomplishment.

Women no longer are only filing clerks or cub reporters. They hold top positions, including such posts as editors and publishers and owners.

What has happened at Ohio State University is typical. In 1968, 41 percent of the 26,716 journalism majors were women. In the fall of 1978, however, some 53 percent of the 66,446 journalism majors were women.

This trend applies to all parts of the nation.

Recent official figures show that 53 percent of the undergraduate journalism enrollment at Pennsylvania State University were women.

The University of Wisconsin at Madison, during the 1978-79 year, listed 61 percent of its junior-senior majors in the news-editorial classes as women.

Texas A&M University, an all-male university 15 years ago, today reports two-thirds of its journalism enrollment are women.

Stanford University reports 57 percent of undergraduates majoring in journalism are women. The University of Missouri, which has one of the top schools of journalism in America, says that the percentage of women enrolled in that school increased from 35 percent in 1958 to 45 percent in 1968 and to 55 percent in the fall of 1978.

Today many women work overseas to provide news and information to newspapers, magazines and the media. They undertake some of the toughest assignments abroad and several have won Pulitzer Prizes.

Katharine Graham was publisher of the Washington Post for many years and also has headed up the Post's feature syndicate, its newspapers and radio stations as well as Newsweek.

Oveta Culp Hobby, head of the WACs during World War II and the first secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, who served in the Eisenhower Cabinets, is the publisher and owner of the Houston Post.

Helen K. Copley, from La Jolla in the San Diego area, directs nine Copley daily newspapers and the Copley News Service, which has more than 2,000 subscriber-clients in all parts of the world.

Some 20 years ago Samuel Vaughan, advertising manager at Doubleday and Co., was so taken by the skills and abilities of his new secretary that he decided to promote her. In his words, "I touched her shoulder with a sword, so to speak, and thereafter she was a media manager."

During the ensuing 20 years, Vaughan has become vice president of Doubleday, one of the nation's leading publishing houses, while his secretary, Joan Manley, moved ahead even more rapidly than her onetime boss.

CHARLEY REESE

Columnist Charley Reese takes good look at 1980

ORLANDO, Fla. — The 1980s will be mean, bad and dangerous. Possibly fatal. The Iranian crisis is only just the beginning. Economic hard times, wars, and political turmoil are clearly on the agenda.

In the Middle East, we face the continuing state of war between Israel and the Arab states, the growing possibility that the Camp David agreement will come unglued, the anarchy in Iran, the Soviet moves in Afghanistan, Yemen, and Ethiopia, and the use of oil as an increasingly potent weapon against the West.

The Soviet Union is on the verge of changing leaders and will certainly exchange old despots for younger ones who are enamored of the Soviet's newly acquired military superiority and likely to be more reckless and uncompromising.

The United States enters the decade dependent on foreign imports but with a Navy weaker than the pre-Pearl Harbor fleet, with an under-manned, ill-equipped and poorly disciplined army; with accelerating inflation and monstrous debt, both public and private; with its intelligence and domestic security forces gutted and demoralized; and with no clear consensus among its people as to which course of action should be pursued.

This century has already killed more people than the previous five and it certainly has the potential to "better" that sorry record by many, many millions. In short, the next 10 years are sure to be exciting and possibly terrifying.

Clearly then it is time for us to decide if we are going to fish or cut bait. Do we want to survive or perish? If the answer is perish, all we have to do is just what we've been doing. If the answer is survive, then we are going to have to get tough — with ourselves as well as with others.

We are going to have to root out incompetent or stupid officeholders as ruthlessly as if it were a life or death matter, for that is exactly what it is. We have no margin for error left.

We are going to have to accept inflation in order to rebuild our military superiority, both strategically and conventionally. We are going to have to cut away the layers of civilian bureaucrats that produce cost overruns and lead times of up to 10 years. We don't have 10 years to undo the damage. We are going to have to have a military draft.

In fact, if we are to survive, we are going to have to reduce our own freedom. The choice is either do it ourselves in a controlled and careful manner or allow the irresponsible to push us into such a state of chaos that all liberty will be lost to an inevitable dictator.

We cannot afford to let vocal minorities set public policy or block public policy they oppose. We cannot afford, for example, to continue to allow environmentalists to cripple this nation's energy production. The environmentalists have demonstrated that they will not compromise so we simply must choose sides and slug it out.

We need rapid and massive development of oil, coal and nuclear resources. The safest way to proceed is to repeal the laws these extremists use to block energy development. Since the choice is between national survival and the Environmental Protection Act, then the EPA will have to go.

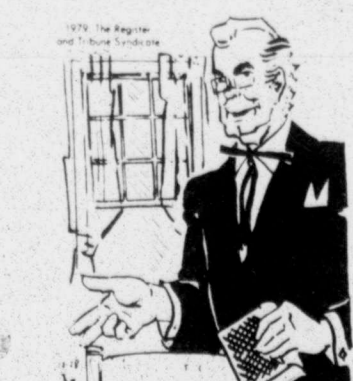

The point is we are at the point where we must go on a war footing in order to survive the coming decade. Like all nations fighting for survival, we must become intolerant of dissenters who allow their dissent to impede the war effort. This includes environmentalists, pacifists, religious disarmament nuts, and libertarians who meddle to the point of destroying discipline in even the schools.

I'm sure this column will drive liberals into a frenzy, but so be it. The nation is under assault by powerful enemies and its condition is dangerously weak. The world order is coming apart at the seams. The little cocoon in which we could pretend that nothing bad would ever happen to us no matter how lazy and how self-indulgent we became has been ripped open.

Luxuries, irrelevancies like gay rights and women's rights, and extreme interpretations of the Constitution will all become moot points after defeat or surrender or economic and social chaos followed by dictatorship.

We must either pull ourselves together and do what is necessary to win or lose it all, and the time to choose is now.

INSIDE REPORT:

Ted Kennedy faces multitude of problems during campaign

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

DOVER, N.H. — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy was winding up a fiery political pep talk in the drafty cafeteria of an electronics plant here called Clarostat, charging Jimmy Carter with high interest rates that have killed home-buying, heating bills that threaten health, and inflation that is undermining the nation.

"Do you want four more years of that?" he shouted at the middle-aged audience of electronics workers. "No," they shouted back. In such a setting, as in his brilliant handling of adoring street crowds that greeted him here and in several other New Hampshire towns last week, Teddy Kennedy was superlative.

But beyond the surface brilliance, a multitude of political problems, from uneven public performances to courtship of the Democratic center, besets the campaign of the third Kennedy brother. He now runs no better than even with the president, in the opinion of many Democratic politicians (a verdict more than confirmed by the public opinion polls).

Back in New Hampshire for a final 1979 campaign swing for the Feb. 26 presidential primary election, Teddy Kennedy wisely ignored the crisis in Iran, which got him in such deep political trouble Dec. 2. He confirmed in a two-day swing that until Iran radically worsens — or the crisis ends — his campaign will be targeted in one area: inflation and energy.

But the ease with which he moved the elderly workers at the Clarostat electronics plant here was not duplicated several hours later. Twenty miles north of here in the small town of Rochester a chamber of commerce luncheon audience sat on its hands through 20 minutes of similar but less spontaneous Kennedy rhetoric on the twin crises of inflation and energy.

Evans

He charged Jimmy Carter with responsibility for the fact that "elderly people are huddled in small apartments in Rochester," unable to afford heating oil. His audience did not stir. He fumbled a line about the Kennedy energy conservation plan for "weatherizing" homes, referring to "weatherization of the program" instead of houses.

When he finished, applause was tepid and barely spontaneous. In the question period, there was only one question about the economy — whether he favored tax credits for the purchase of wood stoves (he does).

His apparent failure to move members of the chamber of commerce in Rochester, after arousing the unionized workers here, symbolized Kennedy's problem in winning the hearts and minds of the center and right wings of his party. That problem had brutally but privately surfaced in Washington Dec. 13, when Kennedy invited a dozen or so leading defense contractors to his McLean, Va., house for breakfast. The purpose: to try and demonstrate that Teddy Kennedy's long record of voting "no" on higher defense spending did not mean he was unsympathetic to their point of view.

The breakfast, on the private testimony of several who attended, was less than successful. Kennedy himself was not there, but his choice of a representative displayed a surprising lack of knowledge about what makes defense contractors tick. Chief briefer for the senator was Mark Schneider, a former top State Department aide in promoting Jimmy Carter's somewhat controversial human rights policies.

Defense industry representatives from such well-known companies as Raytheon, Garrett, Fairchild and several others were disappointed that Schneider, in the view of one, "had little understanding of Soviet arms programs and was not at ease with the general subject of military planning and weapons building."

Adding to the disappointment of those who accepted the breakfast invitations was the fact that neither Stephen Smith, Kennedy's top campaign strategist, nor Sargent Shriver, like Smith a brother-in-law, was present as promised in the invitations.

Breaches like that are not unusual in any presidential campaign, particularly one as hastily put together as Teddy Kennedy's. But this particular breach cast doubt on how serious Kennedy is to show himself not as an anti-defense liberal ideologue but as a pragmatist able to cut his cloth

Indeed, the choice of Schneider as one of the senator's foreign military policy strategists, perhaps the chief defense strategist, displays a certain naivete for so polished a political performer as Kennedy. On the two-day campaign swing up here, Schneider was part of the senator's traveling staff to counsel him on his foreign and military policies — a further indication that political reality has not yet taken full possession of Kennedy's bid to run Jimmy Carter out of the White House without that "four more years."

Officials confirm Soviet role in Afghanistan

WASHINGTON (AP) — It could hardly have been coincidental that the reported coup in Afghanistan followed a dramatic buildup of Russian troops, including combat forces, according to U.S. analysts.

Officials said the Russians apparently were instrumental in ousting a nationalist-minded communist leader Thursday in Afghanistan in favor of another Marxist who "will be in lockstep with the Soviets."

Defense Secretary Harold Brown estimated at a Florida news conference that Soviet military strength in Afghanistan has reached perhaps 10,000 men. That is about double the figure previously used by the State Department.

Reports reaching here indicated Russian troops were directly involved in street fighting in the capital city of Kabul. Information was said to be sketchy.

Radio Kabul said Babrak Karmal, a former deputy prime minister, had overthrown a regime headed by Hafizullah Amin. Several hours later, the official Soviet news agency, Tass, quoted Karmal as denouncing Amin's regime as a dictatorship and an agent of American imperialism.

The radio station also was quoted as saying that Amin had been executed. U.S. analysts described both Karmal and Amin as communists, but said they were members of rival factions.

Both have been described as pro-Soviet, but U.S. officials said Amin evidently was not pro-Soviet enough to satisfy the Kremlin.

One official who asked not to be identified referred to Karmal as "a puppet."

A recent U.S. intelligence appraisal spoke of Amin as a nationalist-minded Marxist who welcomed Soviet help against Islamic rebels but wanted Afghanistan to remain a truly independent state.

Intelligence officials have reported a coolness developing between Amin and Moscow in the last few months.

Soviet military movement into Afghanistan on a major scale is the first such overt action by the Russians since Red Army divisions and other Warsaw Pact forces invaded publicly for the first time today its military role in the upheaval in neighboring Afghanistan. The confirmation bears striking similarities to Moscow's justification for its 1968 invasion of Czechoslovakia.

The disclosure came a day after Afghan President Hafizullah Amin was reported ousted and executed in a Soviet-led coup in Kabul that brought to power former Deputy Premier Babrak Karmal, described by Western diplomats as a Soviet stooge.

The official Tass news agency quoted Kabul Radio as saying the Afghan government "made a pressing appeal to the U.S.S.R. for urgent political, moral and economic assistance, including military aid," and that the Soviets "satisfied the request of the Afghan side."

interference and provocations of external enemies of Afghanistan, and with the goal of defending the gains of the April Revolution, territorial integrity, national independence and the maintenance of peace and security."

Brown said Thursday the Soviet actions had contributed to instability and unrest in Afghanistan.

"We certainly protest, and we think international condemnation is in order. I think we can expect more of this kind of instability and it's very unfortunate."

And Joseph Sisco, who served as former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's chief Middle East aide, said today he thought the Soviet action should be referred to the United Nations Security Council.

"Clearly this is an aggression against Afghanistan," Sisco said on ABC-TV's "Good Morning America" program. "Its independence has been snuffed out."

Kremlin acknowledges its military intervention

Stock market mixed

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was little changed today as the stand-off that has prevailed all week continued.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial edged up .26 to 840.36 by noon.

Advances slightly outnumbered declines among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The price of gold, which has dominated the attention of traders for the past several days, showed some signs of leveling off around record levels today.

In London, gold was fixed at $515 an ounce in the morning and $512 in the afternoon.

Also contributing to the mood of caution were reports of oil price increases by Iraq and Indonesia.

Central & South West led the active list, up 1/4 at 13 1/4. A 200,000-share block traded at 14.

Among precious metals issues, Dome Mines rose 1/2 to 30 1/2, but ASA was down 3/4 at 38 and Homestake Mining lost 1/2 to 47 1/2. Hecla Mining was unchanged at 35 1/2.

The NYSE's composite index rose .05 to 61.96. The American Stock Exchange market value index, which closed Thursday at an all-time high, climbed another 1.89 to 246.77.

Volume on the Big Board totaled 15.30 million shares at noontime, against 13.67 million at the same point Thursday.

Sailing cargo ship sinking

WESTHAMPTON, N.Y. (AP) — Ned Ackerman watched his twin-masted dream vanishing into the ocean mists as foul winds and heavy seas sought to push the John F. Leavitt, the nation's first sailing cargo ship in 40 years, beneath the waves.

The 97-foot wooden schooner was making its first working voyage Thursday, carrying a load of lumber and tanning chemicals from Quincy, Mass., to Haiti.

It was Ackerman's attempt to recreate the age of sail and beat the energy crunch, but early today it was sinking into the Atlantic Ocean.

Coast Guard officials said the Cutter Chase was dispatched from Boston to the site of the distressed ship about 300 miles east-southeast of New York City. Spokesman Fran Padilla said the cutter would "do what it can to save the vessel."

Ackerman and eight crew members and passengers were rescued from the foundering schooner Thursday afternoon by a helicopter from the Air National Guard's 106th Aerospace Rescue and Recovery Group here.

"This has been my life for the last four years," said Ackerman, 36, of Thomaston, Maine. "I will have to reassess the situation now....It's been a long haul and I'm exhausted....We got caught by the perils of the sea."

Ackerman said he called for help because, "it wasn't worth risking everyone on board trying to get the situation under control."

Upon his arrival here, Ackerman said his troubles began when winds shifted from the northeast to the northwest about 4 p.m. Thursday. He said the ship began rocking between 20-foot waves pushed by 20-knot winds, causing the vessel to take on water.

The Coast Guard said the ship left Quincy about 10 days ago.

The Leavitt, which took nearly four years to build, set sail Nov. 12 from Thomaston, bound for Quincy, and ran aground twice in that trip.

Ackerman, a former medieval scholar and English instructor at Merrimack College in North Andover, Mass., named the vessel after maritime scholar John F. Leavitt, who wrote "In the Wake of the Coasting Schooner."

Modeled after 19th-century prototypes, the red-and-white-hulled Leavitt was powered by wind pressing against 6,440 square feet of canvas sail rigged on 80-foot masts. With no engines, its only fuel requirement was a small amount of diesel oil needed for pumps, generators and hydraulic cargo hoists.

Estimates of the cost of building the vessel started at $300,000, but Ackerman never disclosed an exact figure.

The Leavitt's cargo capacity was 150 tons, the equivalent of five semi-trailer truckloads.

In addition to Ackerman, the crew included Paul O'Connell, 27, of Quincy, Mass.; Bill Cowan, 21, of Nahant, Mass.; Stephen Baily, 30, of Andover, Mass.; Alexander Hadden, 21, of Brunswick, Maine; Cynthia Slater, 23, the only woman aboard, who said she was the ship's cook.

Also aboard were William Duane, 42, of Quincy, who arranged the lumber shipment; and Robert Eckhardt, 24, of Portsmouth, N.H., and John Craig Cloutier of Kittery Point, Maine, both independent filmmakers doing a documentary on the ship's voyage.

Nixon tried to block Connally milk trial

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former President Richard M. Nixon tried unsuccessfully to get the Justice Department to scuttle the milk-fund prosecution of former Texas Gov. John B. Connally, The Washington Post said today.

Connally, now a candidate for the 1980 Republican presidential nomination, was acquitted by a federal jury of charges stemming from the milk-fund investigation. In an interview with the Post, Connally, a former treasury secretary in the Nixon administration, said he knew nothing about Nixon's reported effort. "It's news to me if it happened," he said.

County official sees more dump thefts next year

CHERAW, S.C. (AP) — Clayton Caldwell says people may get the wrong idea about the publicity and money garbage truck driver Raymond Sansbury Jr. received after his arrest for trespassing while "Christmas shopping" at a dump.

"We will probably have them lined up fighting to get arrested next Christmas. I'm not kidding," Caldwell, the Chesterfield County administrator, said Thursday.

Sansbury, 33, who earns $112 a week, and his family have received clothes, toys and an estimated $5,000 from well-wishers upset about his Dec. 19 arrest for trespassing.

Cheraw police arrested Sansbury after a landfill operator said he had taken discarded clothes and shoes from a dump in violation of state law.

Sansbury of Darlington, S.C., said he took the items, left by a department store, to give to his wife and seven children for Christmas. And he said he had no idea he was breaking a law.

He continues to receive gifts and money from across the country, but all county officials are getting is hate mail.

Sansbury will go before Magistrate T. Belk Ingram Jan. 24 on the misdemeanor charge, which carries a maximum penalty of a $100 fine or 30 days in jail. He said he'd hoped the charges would be dropped, but Caldwell says no.

"The whole thing was to paint me and Chesterfield County as a bunch of Scrooges," Caldwell said of nationwide news accounts of the incident. "I'm amazed that the whole country would believe a twisted, blown-up story like that."

Sheriff's dispatcher B.J. Allman said, "We have been swamped by literally hundreds of calls, most of them belligerent."

"They would say, 'Who's this?'... (and) just right off they would start cursing," Allman said.

Caldwell said many news accounts failed to mention that Sansbury was asked to leave the landfill and was arrested when he refused.

Sansbury said earlier that he asked the landfill operator if he could have the items. "He shrugged his shoulders and sort of shook his head. I thought that meant 'yes.' He didn't tell me I had to put them back."

Chesterfield County Council Chairman Charles Ingram said Wednesday the council supports the county administrator.

State laws prohibit taking materials out of landfills for good reason, Ingram said. "We can't have that. Somebody could get killed down there (or) eat poisoned food," he added.

First primary officially underway

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — As the 5 o'clock whistle signaled the end of the work day, the Secretary of State closed his office door and announced that the nation's first state presidential primary will feature only 12 candidates.

"I'm amazed there were so few candidates fighting to get on the ballot this time," William Gardner said Thursday. "Early indications were that we would have a record turnout this year. I guess the fact we increased the filing fee diminished the interest."

In 1976, a record was set when 16 candidates crowded the ballot.

The traditional flock of fringe candidates, perhaps discouraged by the $500 filing fee, didn't show up this time.

"We didn't have the ministers dragging crosses, the Indian chiefs, or the men handing out white shoelaces that we've had in the past," Gardner said.

When the whistle blew, President Jimmy Carter, Sen. Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts, California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., Cleveland lawyer Richard Kay and former U.S. Labor Party chairman Lyndon LaRouche had filed as Democrats.

At 4:38 p.m., Robin Dole, daughter of the Kansas senator, rushed in with 1,500 signatures and her check for $500.

Dole, one of the first candidates to campaign in the state, had to hire temporary help at the last minute to get his 1,000 signatures.

Mississippi Gov. Cliff Finch, who had frantically worked collecting signatures since he announced Monday that he was going to run, didn't make the deadline. But he said earlier that he would launch a write-in campaign in the state "if I have to."

Benjamin Fernandez, a former executive of the Republican National Committee, had sent in his $500, but without the signatures he didn't qualify. Gardner said he'd sent the check back and Fernandez would have to wait until next time.

Just hours before the deadline, South Dakota Sen. Larry Pressler, 37, dropped out of New Hampshire's Republican race.

"We have decided that the senator's initial primary effort should be in Florida," said Paul Arneson, his national campaign director.

Paraplegic arrested on murder charge

DENVER (AP) — First-degree murder charges have been filed against Louis Roger Moore, accused of killing his 23-year-old roommate and scattering parts of the body around a Denver housing project, police say.

Moore, 30, a wheelchair-bound paraplegic, was arrested at Stapleton International Airport last Friday after parts of the body of William Charles Kidd were found in plastic bags scattered throughout the Lincoln Park housing project, police said.

Formal charges were filed Thursday. Kidd's head was found in Moore's refrigerator, and his hands were found in one of Moore's suitcases at the airport, police said. An electric saw apparently was used to cut up the body, authorities said.

Collegians living off campus

WASHINGTON (AP) — An increasing number of college students chose to set up their own apartments in the 1970s rather than live in dormitories or with their parents, according to a study released Thursday by the Census Bureau.

The report credits the shift to "large increases in the number of older college students" and the possibility that rising government aid for college students allowed more to live away from home.

The report shows that in 1976, about one-third of the nearly 10 million college students aged 14 to 34 maintained their own households. A decade earlier, only about one-quarter of the 6 million students did so.

At the same time, the percentage of students living in college housing dropped from about 30 percent in 1966 to 21 percent in 1976. The proportion living with parents or other relatives remained at about one-third during the decade, the report showed.

The information could be important to college officials and developers, who must anticipate student housing needs for the future, according to Census Bureau statistician Rosalind Bruno, who worked with Peter Sepielli in analyzing the data.

Ms. Bruno suggested that the trend likely would continue in the 1980s.

Record year for New York City tourism

NEW YORK (AP) — A record 17.5 million people visited New York City this year, capping a decade-long turnaround for the city's tourist industry, officials of the New York Convention and Visitors Bureau Inc. announced.

Preston Robert Tisch, chairman of the bureau, said Wednesday that more than $2.2 billion was spent this year by tourists in New York.

The figures include 4.3 million delegates to 910 conventions. That compared to 875 conventions last year that drew 3.7 million people.

The report noted there were a record 2.1 million foreign visitors this year, compared to 2 million in 1978.

Port Authority chairman Alan Sagner announced that the number

Newark international airports had increased by 50 percent over the last two years.

He said the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service estimated 2,250,000 travelers from Europe will have landed at the Port Authority airports by the end of the year. The figure is 24 percent higher than last year.

Convention bureau president, Charles Gillett, said the figures reflected a turnaround from 10 years ago when "visitor traffic was stagnant and hotel occupancy rate about 20 percent below the present figure."

Gillett said said 1979 was the fourth year of tourism growth, with the hotel occupancy rate soaring to 82 percent, the highest rate in the city's history.

Family to end efforts to keep chemist alive

MONTAGUE, Mass. (AP) — The family of a 78-year-old man who is terminally ill plans within the next few weeks to end mechanical efforts to keep him alive.

The state Court of Appeals ruled on Christmas Eve that efforts to keep Earle Spring alive could be suspended. The order, which upheld a Probate Court ruling, takes effect Jan. 4.

Spring, formerly a chemist at the Greenfield Tape and Die Division of TRW Inc., has been confined to a Holyoke nursing home for nearly a year as the result of pneumonia and a kidney infection.

Doctors say Spring has no chance of recovery and his condition has made him mentally incompetent.

Spring's son, Robert, and wife, Blanche, say they will end mechanical efforts to keep him alive by early next month.

Robert Spring said his father requires five-hour dialysis treatment sessions three times a week and "should have been removed from dialysis long ago. All you need to do to understand is to go and see him."

"I say, 'Hi, Dad' and he just stares through me. It's horrible," said Spring, adding: "Let him go on his own like a human being should."

Gary Owens presents New Year's resolutions

By PETER J. BOYER

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Gary Owens, writer, Emmy-winning star of NBC's old "Laugh-In" show, local radio host and depraved fellow, was preparing his New Year's resolutions when he came across this gem from the Carthaginian theologian, Tertullian: "Credo quia absurdum." Translation: "I believe, because it is absurd." In the spirit of Tertullian, then, I present the Gary Owens 1980 Resolutions: "I have resolved never to let Jack Klugman guest on my show and perform a surprise autopsy. "I have resolved to try to help the Mafia and the PTA merge, to help cut costs. "I have resolved not to sneak into hospital recovery rooms and pull sheets over everybody's head. "I have resolved never to book a hotel room directly below Jose Greco and his flamenco dance troupe. ("These are just a lot of old jokes I've gathered through the years," Owens says, apparently grateful for the opportunity to be shed of them.) "On Valentine's Day 1980, I resolve not to allow Western-Union Prune-Grams to be sent to my elderly relatives (I've found that offends them). "During the summer of 1980, when it really gets hot, I resolve to help get people cooler by tattooing a picture of Admiral Byrd on my sternum. I plan to keep myself cool by packing a friend's nose with ice until he sneezes on me. "On Thanksgiving 1980, I have resolved not to try to fool my family by filling our canary with helium and telling them that they're having turkey (it never works). "At Christmas 1980, I resolve not to run down the Hollywood Freeway with reindeer antlers in my mouth (it created a lot of problems this year). "I resolve not to reserve seats on a bus for anyone smuggling in a whoope cushion, or anyone taking an alligator of the wrong gender across state lines. "I resolve that when I take I.Q. tests, I will not misspell I.Q. "I resolve to figure out a way to convert wire coathangers into gasoline. "I resolve not to attend any more erotic Tupperware parties. "And, finally, I resolve to find a TV set so perfect it will interfere with my neighbor's electric tools." May your new year be merry and bright. Or, at least absurd.

Persis Khambatta 'old-fashioned girl' from India, who carries gods' shrine, shaves head for 'Star Trek' movie

NEW YORK (AP) — Persis Khambatta, who carries a shrine on her head for the role of Ilia in "Star Trek, The Motion Picture." Her hair has since grown out in all its thick dark richness. "I love acting," she said, "because I feel one is made of a lot of personalities. One day I hope as an actress I will be able to express my soul to people. When I can touch people's souls and make them laugh, I will feel good." It was while making the film, "The Wilby Conspiracy" with Sidney Poitier, that he told her she was "an instinctive actress" — a performer who could do the work without ever really studying the craft. Ms. Khambatta said she feels more secure with camera work than stage work. "I know this was my destiny and I know I have further to go," she said. "I like challenges. I've taken a chance every time — when I went to London, when I went to New York." SHE STARTED modeling in India when she was 13. But at age 17, she left with less than $15 and went to London to pursue her career there. Although this was unusual for a young Indian woman, Ms. Khambatta nevertheless had the support of her family. "Growing up in India was difficult for me because my parents were separated when I was 2, and in India, the man is the strongest thing in the house," she said. "It put a stigma on me because I didn't have a father. My mother was both mother and father to me." Today, her mother shies away from the notoriety of her actress-daughter. "Mother is coming for the premiere but she doesn't want to ride in the limousine with me because of all the picture-taking." But there was a time when there weren't limousines and paparazzi. She can remember walking through the snow in London looking for modeling work and having nothing to eat except a plastic bag filled with potatoes. She also recalls the frustration of seeking modeling work in New York after her portfolio had been stolen. "What I have in life, I worked for," she said. "But there's nothing in this world that I need so desperately that I cannot do without. And if I had to die now, I would have absolutely no regrets."

Boston Symphony presents Beethoven's Ninth to Peking

PEKING (AP) — China had its first performance of Beethoven's Ninth Symphony in 20 years Thursday night with the Boston Symphony's Seiji Ozawa conducting a Chinese chorus and some nervous soloists before a highly critical audience.

Actually it was a dress rehearsal before three public performances of Beethoven's Ninth by the Peking Central Philharmonic. The capacity audience of 1,800, mostly music students and musicians, warmly applauded the performance.

But when the soloists hit a few notes out of tune, the audience noticed immediately and began laughing. "Frightening," said French horn player Richard Mackey, one of four Boston Symphony Orchestra players who accompanied Ozawa to Peking.

"It was an experience for me to see these people dealing with such a difficult piece," said Joseph Silverstein, the Boston Symphony's concertmaster. "They are doing remarkably well with it....This is a challenge a Western musician never had."

Silverstein, Mackey, bassoonist Sherman Walt and cellist Jules Eskin played with the Chinese Thursday night, but will not join in the formal performances. There was a slight protocol problem as the Americans tried to sit in second chairs and the Chinese insisted that they be first.

'The Jerk,' '1941'
wild, crazy movies

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

THE JERK is a wild, crazy and generally satisfactory movie debut for Steve Martin. He is a comic in the classic Chaplin-Keaton mold — the well-meaning naïf victimized by a mendacious world. Martin's character isn't fully realized in this film, but the outline is promising. His large, following will be pleased with his portrayal of the son of a black sharecropping family (that's right) who rises from gas station attendant to millionaire inventor, then slides back to poverty. Director Carl Reiner is an expert at this kind of wackiness; while some of the gags misfire, the average is high. Bernadette Peters is ideal as Martin's true love, and Catlin Adams is marvelous as a raunchy carnival motorcyclist. The R rating is mostly due to language, inordinately expletive.

1941 begins with a marvelous self-parody by Steven Spielberg. A naked girl takes a midnight swim in the ocean to the music of "Jaws," then finds herself atop the periscope of a Japanese submarine. The scene, alas, is the high point of the movie. There might have been an amusing film in the spectacle of Los Angeles gone bananas after Pearl Harbor; this isn't it. Violent stunts do not a comedy make. The actors include John Belushi, Christopher Lee, Dan Aykroyd, Toshiro Mifune, Robert Stack, Tim Matheson, Treat Williams, Lorraine Gary and Ned Beatty. The rating is PG.

Motion Picture Association of America rating definitions:
G — General audiences. All ages admitted.
PG — Parental guidance suggested. Some material may not be suitable for children.
R — Restricted. Under 17 requires accompanying parent or adult guardian.
X — No one under 17 admitted. Some states may have higher age limits.

Oilers lose Rob Carpenter

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

The Houston Oilers are still knocking them down left and right ... only it's their own team that's being knocked down.

Already hurt by three key injuries, the Oilers suffered another blow Thursday when running back Rob Carpenter tripped over a blocking dummy, sprained his ankle and was reported as "questionable" for Saturday's National Football League playoff game against San Diego.

Carpenter's mishap came on top of injuries to running star Earl Campbell, quarterback Dan Pastorini and receiver Ken Burrough in last week's 13-7 victory over Denver. All three players are doubtful starters with groin strains.

Carpenter's injury left only three healthy running backs on the Oilers' depth chart: starting fullback Tim Wilson and little-used Ronnie Coleman and Boobie Clark.

By comparison, the Chargers are relatively healthy for the second-round American Conference test at San Diego, one of four NFL playoff games scheduled for this weekend. In a National Conference game Saturday, it's Philadelphia at Tampa Bay.

Two more games will be played on Sunday — Miami at Pittsburgh in the AFC and Los Angeles at Dallas in the NFC.

Both Houston and Philadelphia won wild-card games last week. The winners this weekend advance to the conference championship games scheduled for Sunday, Jan. 6. The Super Bowl, matching the conference winners, will be played in Pasadena, Calif., on Sunday, Jan. 20.

Owing to their recent streak of injuries, the Oilers are seven-point underdogs to the high-powered Chargers, the AFC West champions led by quarterback Dan Fouts. The Chargers' receiving corps is a bit under the weather, with John Jefferson and Charley Joiner both nursing minor injuries. Both are listed as probable starters, though running back Mike Thomas may miss the game because of the flu. Philadelphia has been installed as a four-point favorite over Tampa Bay. Bucs quarterback Doug Williams sees the game as a tossup.

"We have Ricky Bell, they have Wilbert Montgomery," he said. "They have a good tight end, like we do. They have a good defense, a good three-man front and linebackers who are strong and quick, like ours, plus a strong secondary."

The Philadelphia-Tampa Bay game renews a coaching rivalry between the Eagles' Dick Vermeil and the Bucs' John McKay. They previously met when Vermeil was coaching at UCLA and McKay at Southern Cal.

Pittsburgh is a 9½-point choice over Miami and Dallas is favored by eight over Los Angeles in Sunday's games.

Dallas beat Los Angeles 28-0 in the NFC title game last year. The Cowboys also routed the Rams 37-7 in 1975 and bumped them out of the playoffs with a 27-16 victory in 1973.

Gator Bowl tonight Tar Heels face Wolverines

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — North Carolina coach Dick Crum says his Tar Heels will do everything in their power to keep Michigan's kicking game in limbo when the two teams clash in the Gator Bowl game tonight.

Michigan, 8-3, lost to Notre Dame by two points, Purdue by three and Ohio State by three, and blocked punts or field goals figured in all three defeats.

The Tar Heels, on the other hand, take a 7-3-1 record into the game and Crum feels his kicking game is adequate. North Carolina place kicker Jeff Hayes kicked a 47-yard field goal with just 13 seconds remaining to tie East Carolina and made good on six of 12 attempts for the season.

Michigan's two kickers, Bryan Virgil and Ali Haji-Sheikh, have hit on only three of 12 attempts this year.

"We spent a lot of time, right down through the season, working on punt blocking," Crum told a packed news conference Thursday.

Michigan coach Bo Schembechler, sitting at the Tar Heel coach's elbow, rolled his eyes and smiled.

"Certainly blocking punts is a part of our defensive plan," Crum continued. "We also have a field goal kicker with great range, but because of the rule about bringing the ball back to the point where it was snapped, you have to take those situations as they come up."

Schembechler said the Wolverines have been concentrating on defense during drills both in Ann Arbor and in this north Florida city.

"Our whole defensive plan for this game is to get back our defensive intensity," the Michigan coach said. "That, I think, is going to be the key. Our defense has got to be as intense as it was early in the season."

Schembechler said he felt the fact that the Wolverines lost their last two regular season games, coupled with the fact that Michigan never has won a bowl game in five tries with Schembechler as coach, also would be a factor.

"We weren't happy with our intensity the last two games, so we did some things differently this time," Schembechler said. "We were a little rougher in our three practices in Ann Arbor and our first two here."

Schembechler still would not say who he would start at quarterback in the 9 p.m. game which will be televised nationally by ABC, but Crum said he didn't care.

"No matter who starts, you've got to play against them," Crum said. Both Crum and Schembechler got their coaching starts at Miami of Ohio and, not surprisingly, their squads bear striking similarities.

Both teams run from the multiple-I and both play a basic 5-2 defense. And each team, of course, is hoping to go home with no more than three defeats on its record.

LA Rams sport new look in return bout

Last time Dallas played Los Angeles back on Oct. 14, the Cowboys whupped the Rams 30-6, but Ray Malavasi doesn't regard the return match as a case of the lambs being led to the slaughter.

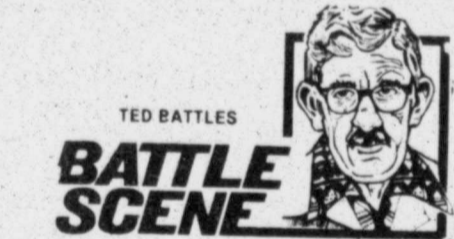

Malavasi optimistically whistles past Texas Stadium that his Rams are healthy for this time. "We've lost some players for the season, but among those still with us, we're in about as good shape as we've been all season."

In the October slaughter, the Rams were not healthy and things were to get worse before they got better. Although Los Angeles, and Dallas, down played the importance of that midseason meeting, everybody knew the Rams were skyhigh for it. The victory meant little in the races, but it was a win Los Angeles wanted and needed for morale purposes.

Dallas was a team that had ushered the Rams from the playoffs so often in the last six years, it was beginning to develop into a complex. So injured or not, the Rams wanted the win desperately.

When LA lost, it resulted in a trauma that almost took the Rams out of the NFC West race. It took weeks to recover.

The Cowboys know what the Rams went through, because they experienced the same thing not long after at Pittsburgh. It meant little in the standings, but the stigma of Steeler defeat hung oppressively over the Waddies, probably more so than the Cowboys' domination of the Rams. Dallas' had lost three in two years to the Steelers, the two of them in the Super Bowl.

And like the Rams, Dallas went into a mental depression, compounded by injuries and insolence in the ranks, that almost cost America's Team the NFC East title.

But faith has been restored and both the seven-time divisional champion Rams and Cowboys approach the playoffs renewed hope.

There has been one major change since the first meeting. Vince Ferragamo has replaced the injured Pat Haden at quarterback, taking over at low ebb and guiding Los Angeles to five victories in its last seven games.

The third year pro from Nebraska is eagerly awaiting the rematch, recalling, "Yes, I would like another shot at them. They embarrassed me and broke my hand."

That was back in October and Ferragamo has come a long way since then. In the NFC West clincher, he completed 10 of 15 passes for 188 yards, which is about as close as he has come to a pressure game.

Still facing a strange Rams quarterback shouldn't bother the Cowboys any. They have faced five different Ram quarterbacks in the last six years. And, of course, Malavasi is quick to point out that Roger Staubach's presence in the Dallas lineup gives the Cowboys a big edge in playoff experience.

Staubach may be 37, but he is enjoying what may be his best season ever, although it hasn't won him the kind of acclaim that goes with all-pro or player-of-the-year honors. Oddly, Staubach has received both of the aforementioned while doing less with more assistance.

But this year, the glamor guys are San Diego's Dan Fouts and Cleveland's Brian Sipe, who mean as much to the Chargers and Browns, respectively, as Staubach does to Dallas.

Still, statistically, the Old Salt clearly stands out as the NFL's top passer, but more importantly he has been the team's spiritual leader, repeatedly salvaging lost causes with a team that for a variety of reasons is not up to usual Dallas standards.

Sadri downs Warwick

MELBOURNE (AP) — American John Sadri eliminated Australian Kim Warwick in third round play Friday in the $362,000 Australian Open tennis championships in a match that was played in temperatures that reached 113-degrees. In the oppressive heat Sadri managed to outlast Warwick in their two-hour, fifty-minute, five-set, center-court match 3-6, 4-6, 6-3, 6-2, 9-7.

"It wasn't the best match that I've played but it was the most fun match," Sadri said.

For Warwick, who felt that this week was his best stab at the championship, the story was different.

After winning the first two sets Warwick staggered around the court and fought to stay in the match.

Bulldogs upset by Snyder, 59-58

By BOB DILLON
Sports Writer

Maybe the Midland Bulldogs ate too much Christmas turkey.

Whatever the reason, they dropped a narrow 59-58 decision to the Class AAA Snyder Tigers in a non-district basketball game Thursday night in the Chaparral Center on the Midland College campus.

It did go down to the wire, however, as Midland got off the last shot in the final six seconds, but it fell short.

SNYDER'S BRAD Richardson who netted 15 points, was whistled for a traveling violation and Midland called its final time out of the game with six ticks left on the clock. The Pack worked the ball in to guard and playmaker Perry Bolger, who slipped, almost went down and got off an off-balanced shot that hit the rim and bounced off as the buzzer went off, ending the game with Midland on the short end of the stick.

After beating teams from Houston and San Antonio last weekend in the Optimist Classic in the Alamo City, the Bulldogs didn't play that well Thursday night, but then Snyder, which Midland High coach Jack Stephenson coached for the past two years, was chalking up its 12th victory against four losses while Midland takes a 17-4 record into Saturday's game with Fort Stockton in Fort Stockton before opening District 5-4A play here at the Chaparral Center on Jan. 4 against potent Odessa Permian.

MIDLAND TOOK a first period lead of 15-12, but the Tigers battled back for a 35-32 lead at intermission. It was Midland's turn to lead and the Pack took a 49-46 lead into the final eight minutes before bowing.

The game was won at the free throw line for Snyder as the Tigers cashed in a 19 of 26 charity tosses with Richardson hitting nine of 13. Richardson is the son of Western Texas College coach Nolan Richardson.

While Richardson was scoring 15 points, teammates Eric Arnold and Kris Seale were adding 12 and 10 more to the attack.

Midland was paced by 6-foot-9 junior center Herbert Johnson with 23 points while Bolger connected for 17 and Anthony Carroll 10 more.

Kyle Short was the hero, hitting the winning basket with 26 seconds left on a driving layup to give Snyder a 59-56 margin. He wound up with eight points, but those two were the most important of the game.

IN THE preliminary game, Coach Eddie Shirley's Midland High Bulldogs won the junior varsity contest easily by the score of 95-50 with Ron Sharnowski paving the way with 27 points. The win gives the Pups and 12-2 mark going into tonight's game with the Stanton varsity at 6:30 p.m. in the Midland High Gymnasium. The Midland sophomores, 6-1, will play the Stanton JVs in the 4:30 p.m. contest.

Besides Sharnowski's 27 points, Wesley Williams, Tim Dixon and Ted Bartley added 12 each for the Pups while Nolan Richardson, Jr. had 13 for the losers.

MIDLAND (58) — Johnson 9-5-23; Bolger 7-3-17; Maitlock 3-0-3-6; Carroll 4-3-10; Brown 1-0-3-2; Mackey 0-0-2-4; Hickey 0-0-1-0. Totals: 24-19-19-58.

SNYDER (59) — Short 2-4-8; Richardson 3-4-15; Seale 3-0-3-19; Blackmon 2-0-1-4; Selmon 0-0-2-4; Arnold 4-4-12. Totals: 28-19-14-59.

Score by periods: Midland 17-17-17-13-10; Snyder 12-17-17-8-16.

Chargers to go with Lydell Mitchell

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The San Diego Chargers announced Thursday that veteran running back Lydell Mitchell will replace flu-stricken Mike Thomas in Saturday's American Football Conference semifinals against the Houston Oilers.

Mitchell, the club's leading rusher last year, lost his starting job this year while recovering from off-season knee surgery. He will team up with Clarence Williams, the Chargers' top ground gainer.

Thomas is the latest casualty for both teams. Earlier in the day, the Oilers announced that running back Rob Carpenter, who was to start if Earl Campbell couldn't, suffered a sprained ankle in practice and is doubtful.

Carpenter joins Campbell, quarterback Dan Pastorini, wide receiver Ken Burrough and defensive tackle Ken Kennard on the doubtful list.

Mitchell started the eighth, ninth and 10th games for the Chargers and has 211 yards rushing in 63 carries for a 3.3 average. He has 19 receptions and one touchdown catch. Other than Thomas, San Diego is near full strength physically.

All-Pro defensive tackle Louie Kelcher is taking part in defensive drills for the first time since undergoing knee surgery in July.

However, Charger coach Don Coryell said Kelcher is not expected to play unless a starter gets hurt.

San Diego, the AFC West champion with a 12-4 record, is rated a seven-point favorite over the wild card Oilers, 12-5.

Sundown, Dorris' pet lion, facing crisis

HOUSTON (AP) — Sundown, Houston Oiler defensive end Andy Dorris' pet lion, is going through the same crisis that his owner faced a year ago.

He's not big enough to take care of himself — yet.

Sundown, who comes to practice daily with Dorris, is only six weeks old and little more than a furry bundle of fun, tripping over his own feet and groping at passersby who jab him unexpectedly.

Dorris plans to bring Sundown to practice again next season when his pet will weigh almost 100 pounds and have firm control of his feet. Dorris suspects Sundown will command more respect next season.

Dorris went through the same transformation during the off-season. He tired of getting his nose tweaked by offensive tackles last year and spent a gruelling off-season gaining 20 pounds of muscle.

"Andy always had the agility and quickness but he lacked in strength," Oiler defensive line coach Wade Phillips said. "He asked us after last year what to do and we told him to get stronger. He did and you can really see the difference."

The well-traveled seven-year veteran made his off-season work pay off Sunday when he sacked quarterback Craig Morton three times en route to a 13-7 victory that advanced the Oilers to Saturday's American Football Conference semi-final game against San Diego.

"I had been around the league seven years and I had to make a decision about my future in pro football," Dorris said. "I decided I owed it to myself to give it one more all out effort."

It wasn't fun. "I worked out with Terry Stieve (St. Louis Cardinals offensive guard) and if it hadn't been for him I never would have made it. We kept each other going. It was a real drag."

Dorris can now see the dividends paying off.

Before, I had good movement into the hole, but I'd get pushed back because I wasn't strong enough," Dorris said. "Now I am able to stay in there longer and fill up the hole."

Consequently, when Dorris goes up against some of the players who pushed him around a year ago, he finds more respect.

"I've tried to do better against each of the guys I played against last year and to get mutual respect," Dorris said. "Several guys have given me compliments after the games and that's what made it worth while."

Dorris says Sundown's diet eventually will include about three chickens per day and occasionally "an old soap horse." As for Dorris, he hopes to dine on quarterback Saturday.

Arkansas' Sales is coach's dream

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Arkansas running back Roland Sales is a coach's dream.

He's a senior with a preseason buildup who wound up the year watching two freshmen get most of the playing time — and cheering every time Gary Anderson or Darryl Bowles or any other Arkansas player scored.

"To me, it's not that I've been beat out or anything," Sales said Thursday. "They are Razorbacks, too."

"It's not like they want to steal the show or I want to steal the show," he said. "The whole feeling is good. The way we got here is more memorable than any 1,000-yard season."

Arkansas was picked to finish in the second division of the Southwest Conference by most observers. Instead, the Razorbacks earned a share of the SWC title with a 10-1 record and are No. 6 in the country entering Tuesday's Sugar Bowl game with second-ranked Alabama.

"This is such a close-knit team. It's the type of team that has a feeling for each other. We really called on ourselves to get where we are today."

"This year, our senior influence was so positive. We didn't want a bad thing to happen to this group. What we wanted to do was make the young guys not feel like freshmen. If they feel like freshmen, they will play like freshmen."

Sales said the Arkansas seniors attempted to set good examples.

"Actions speak louder than words," he said. "I can talk until my head turns green, but they look at what you do. We have to be on our toes all the time.

"Some of us have been up here five years. You want to get on the right track. To do that, you don't walk around like Mr. Stud. It's going through Fourth Quarter (the off-season conditioning program at Arkansas) and spring drills and not complaining about it."

For instance, not a discouraging word about being on the bench when the Razorbacks faced Texas A&M in a conference showdown.

"I know I've got to be the same no matter what happens," he said.

Big things were predicted for Sales after he set an Orange Bowl record with 205 rushing yards on 22 carries in a 31-6 upset of Oklahoma. Sales was thrust into a starting role in that 1978 game when Arkansas Coach Lou Holtz suspended Ben Cowins and Michael Forrest.

Then, in 1978, Sales gained only 216 yards while playing behind Cowins, Jerry Eckwood and Forrest.

He finished the 1979 season as the Razorbacks' leading rusher with 625 yards, but that is deceptive. He topped 50 yards in each of the Razorbacks' first six games, but his high game was only 39 yards in the final five games of the season.

He is likely to start against Alabama.

"If everybody was as easy to coach as Roland, I would have an ideal job," said Arkansas backfield coach Don Breaux. "Roland is more interested in winning than in statistics."

SPORTS IN BRIEF

NFL cracks attendance record

FOOTBALL—The National Football League drew an all-time record total of 13,182,039 fans to its 1979 regular season games, in unaudited figures released by the league.

HOCKEY—Czechoslovakia scored five goals in the final period to defeat the United States 7-3 while Finland beat Canada 2-1 in a brawl-marred game at the World Junior Hockey Championships in Helsinki while in other games, the defending champion Soviet Union team beat Switzerland 6-0 while Sweden defeated West Germany 5-1.

Rod Horn, All-Big Eight defensive tackle, turned Texan in a hurry after arriving in Dallas for Cotton Bowl game, donning western headgear for practice as teammate Randy Schultsener looks on.

Jacksonville captures Gator Bowl tourney

By Associated Press

So far this season, the Jacksonville Dolphins are a school of flying fish. Off to their best start since the great Artis Gilmore team of 1970, the undefeated Dolphins won their ninth game of the year with a 61-55 victory Thursday night over Florida in the finals of the Gator Bowl basketball tournament.

The Dolphins were led by a familiar figure, James Ray, who scored 18 points and grabbed 12 rebounds. Maurice Rouhac helped the Jacksonville cause with eight second-half points.

Elsewhere in college basketball, Chad Kinch and Donnie Koonce ignited a second-half rally and lifted North Carolina-Charlotte to a 69-64 victory over Oregon in the Far West Classic in Portland, Ore. John Campbell scored 17 points, including four slam dunks, as Clemson defeated Texas Tech 79-68 in another first-round game.

Oregon State and Brigham Young won opening-round games in the tournament Wednesday night.

Jerry Shoecraft sank two free throws with three seconds to go in overtime to give Nebraska an 83-82 victory over Wisconsin in the opening of the 16th Rainbow Classic in Honolulu.

Bo Overton scored 16 points to lead Oklahoma past Western Michigan 72-60 in a first-round game of the All-College tourney in Oklahoma City. Anthony Johnson's 12 points led Wyoming past St. Francis, N.Y. 59-52 in the other half of Thursday night's double-header.

Kicker finds Miami not same any more

MIAMI (AP) — When Uwe von Schamann kicked for the Oklahoma Sooners in three Orange Bowls, he considered the trip to Miami a vacation.

But now that von Schamann is a Miami Dolphin, he's found preparing for the Orange Bowl was a lot different than getting ready for the defending champion Pittsburgh Steelers.

The Sooners are having a lot better time than the rookie placekicker. Oklahoma players, who are preparing for their New Year's night battle with Florida State, are soaking up the South Florida sun and enjoying themselves. For them, the FSU game isn't the biggest of the season.

But Sunday's Dolphins-Steelers National Football League playoff at Three Rivers Stadium in Pittsburgh could well be the biggest game Miami has played this season.

"Coming to Miami for the Orange Bowl was like a vacation," von Schamann said. This was what he had worked hard for all year. The coaches let you have about as much time off as you wanted.

"The first time we had to beat Michigan for the No. 1 ranking, and it was different. Practices were a little more intense, there wasn't much kidding around."

There's not much joking at the Dolphins' practices this week. The Steelers are nine-point favorites. If a poll ranked the eight playoff teams in order of chances of making the Super Bowl, the Dolphins wouldn't get many first-place votes.

"Most everybody in the rest of the country doesn't think we have much of a chance," von Schamann said. "But if anybody watched closely in the last few weeks, they've noticed we've played with more hustle, more as a team. I think we will surprise people."

The Dolphins' best hope may be a low-scoring kicking duel between von Schamann and fellow-rookie Matt Bahr.

"The kicking game is always important in the big games. Von Schamann has got long-range ability," said Coach Don Shula.

Von Schamann, who began the season under heavy pressure after unseating veteran Garo Yepremian, hit five straight field goals, including kicks of 53, 43 and 40 yards, in Miami's show-downs with New England, and boots of 51 and 32 yards in a 9-6 loss to Houston.

"I think the special teams might make a difference this week," von Schamann said. "I think who covers kicks well, or punts, or just kicks the field goals, might be the deciding factor."

Although Pittsburgh's 35-degree temperatures are 40 degrees colder than Miami, von Schamann, who has kicked in warm weather all season, isn't worried.

"I kicked in cold weather at Oklahoma. Whenever we played Colorado up there, or at Nebraska at the end of the year, it was really cold and windy. I remember we played in Nebraska up there and it was 20-below with the wind chill factor, so I'm used to it."

Lowliest Husker rewarded

DALLAS (AP) — Nebraska Coach Tom Osborne is one who believes that football players, whether first string or fifth, should be rewarded for an honest effort.

So at a time when athletic budgets are tight and travel costs high, even the lowliest Cornhusker sub is in Dallas doing his part to help get the team ready to face Houston in the Cotton Bowl.

More than 100 players, the largest Nebraska bowl squad in recent history, were on the team plane that arrived here Wednesday. Several more players were to arrive with an alumni group today and all will dress for the New Year's Day game.

Osborne views the large squad not as money being spent, but as a reward for those who stick it out — from the murderous heat of twice-a-day sessions in August to the bone-chilling workouts of November.

"A lot of the guys, particularly those on the scout team, don't letter and they don't get to play much," Osborne said. "This is about all we're able to provide. It's a reward and they've earned it with their dedication.

"We took a large group to the Orange Bowl last year, but I think we may have five or 10 more this time."

In contrast to the 100-plus players who will suit up Tuesday, NCAA regulations limit traveling squads during the regular season to 54, a rule instituted as a money-saving measure.

Osborne said money is always a consideration and he consulted Athletic Director Bob Devaney, the former Cornhusker coach, about taking as many players as possible to the Cotton Bowl.

Clemson All-American zeroes in on BU runners

ATLANTA (AP) — Clemson's All-American defensive tackle Jim Stuckey knows what he has to do in the Peach Bowl New Year's Eve. He must make it possible for the Tiger linebackers to stop Baylor's running game.

"I've been double- and triple-teamed most of the season — especially in the last four or five games," the 6-foot-5, 253-pounder said Thursday. "It's been frustrating, but it's also been a compliment to me and my ability."

"A lot of our fans haven't been able to understand why I'm not in on a lot of tackles, but I know I'm doing my job and the coaches and my teammates know I'm doing my job," he said.

Clemson, 8-3 and ranked 18th, uses a defense designed so the linebackers will make most of the tackles. Bubba Brown leads in that department with 140 and Jeff Davis has 109. Stuckey has 92.

What they will be trying to stop is a host of Bear runners and a passing attack that is just barely there.

Baylor, ranked 19th, completed just 3 passes in 11 games as the Bears ground out a 7-4 season that saw them lose only to top teams, Alabama, Arkansas, Houston and Texas.

Tailback Walter Abercrombie gained 886 yards in 171 attempts to lead the Bears. Fullback Dennis Gentry gained 528 yards in 106 tries and quarterback Mike Brannan ran 108 times for 436 yards.

The Bears, who use the option offense, averaged 4.2 yards per carry.

"Having been a four-year starter, I've matured to the point where nothing is new to me," Stuckey said. "I've been in almost every blocking situation a defensive lineman can be put in, so unlike a young, inexperienced guy, I react instinctively."

"The option offense like the one Baylor runs is the one I've faced the least," he said. "So I may have some trouble with it. But I don't think it'll be too much."

"They're going to be gunning for me, to see how good I am," he said. "So, it's going to take a lot of intensity and a kind of quiet emotion on my part. I can't just go out and play on my ability against these guys and expect us to win."

Baltimore seeks more offense

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Baltimore Colts, criticized for being too conservative on offense under Ted Marchibroda, may be looking for someone who favors a more wide-open attack to succeed him as coach.

The Colts' front office was expected to begin screening candidates for the job today. Among those reportedly under consideration were Dan Reeves, offensive coordinator of the Dallas Cowboys; Jerry Rhyme, a record-setting college quarterback and offensive coordinator of the Seattle Seahawks; and Jim Hanifan.

Pearson has caught only 26 passes this year but 23 of them have gone for first downs, 16 times in third down situations.

"Preston Pearson has more moves than a wide receiver," said Washington's Mark Murphy after a 35-34 loss Dallas which propelled the Cowboys into the National Conference first round playoff

Third down Pearson proves worth in clutch

DALLAS (AP) — When it's third down Sunday and the Dallas Cowboys are in the Shotgun Offense against the Los Angeles Rams, try to pick out No. 26 on your television screen, oldtimer Preston Pearson.

In fact, anytime the Cowboys are in the spread offense attempting to beat the clock or in an obvious passing situation, quarterback Roger Staubach usually looks to his 34-year-old halfback in the clutch.

Pearson has caught only 26 passes this year but 23 of them have gone for first downs, 16 times in third down situations.

"Preston Pearson has more moves than a wide receiver," said Washington's Mark Murphy after a 35-34 loss Dallas which propelled the Cowboys into the National Conference first round playoff meeting with the Rams in Texas Stadium.

Redskin Coach Jack Pardee said "the critical thing for us at the end of the game was the way Staubach keyed to Pearson. They know each other so well that it's a hard combination to stop."

The 13-year veteran Pearson hadn't caught a touchdown pass in two years until he caught a 26-yarder against the Redskins.

Los Angeles remembers Pearson: In the 1975 NFC championship game in Memorial Coliseum, he caught seven passes for 123 yards and three touchdowns.

"I pride myself on being able to come up with the big play whenever it is needed," said Pearson.

Nelson's most memorable Cotton game, Moegle's short-circuited TD run

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer
On Jan. 1, 1954, the Cotton Bowl was on television for the first time.

"Up in the booth, Red had the biggest smile on his face. He just turned to me and motioned for an explanation. I said on the air that in a case like this, the referee is empowered to award a touchdown, which he did.

"In 1953, the same two teams met, and Neyland (then athletic director) again said they didn't have any white uniforms. Texas said, 'Get some.' Tennessee lost 16-0.

immobile. They looked like tanks. But it was easier for me and a lot more fun. Now my job is promos and cues for the commercials."

with Paul Hornung, the former Notre Dame star. Nelson credits Notre Dame's coming out of a 45-year bowl hibernation in 1970 with revitalizing the Cotton Bowl.

"I got started wearing them in the early '60s when I was broadcasting for the New York Mets and they didn't have much going. It caught on, but I'm not crazy about it anymore. I can't stop, otherwise I'd get all sorts of mail asking me if there's been a death in the family. Now I'm stuck with it."

UNM council okays athletic probe procedure

Lucy Jane Moore, West Covina, Calif., shows winning ticket for more than $220,000 she won in Irish Sweepstakes. She earned her $4.20 ticket by selling an entire book of sweepstakes tickets.

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — The University of New Mexico Athletic Council, echoing the school's regents, says the UNM administration proceeded properly in investigating troubles plaguing the university's athletic program.

The action Thursday by the Athletic Council, an independent committee of faculty and student representatives, came less than a day after the panel heard four hours of testimony concerning possible grade buying and eligibility problems raised by Journalism Prof. Charles Coates.

The UNM Board of Regents gave university

President William E. Davis a vote of confidence Monday, saying he had acted ethically and responsibly in dealing with the situation.

Coates told the council Wednesday that he had presented a documentary film by students to Davis in 1978 in which persons identified as football players said grades were purchased on a routine basis for athletes.

Coates also said he had requested an investigation Oct. 18 of the eligibility of star basketball player Larry Belin, who had failed a summer course taught by Coates but was still playing for the team.

Coates said he was told that without the summer credits, Belin would be ineligible to play.

Davis testified that Dean of Admissions Robert Weaver already was investigating the eligibility of Lobo basketball players at the time of Coates' memo.

The practice referred to by Coates in 1978 had been discontinued at least a year before, Davis said.

The Athletic Council concluded "that in each of these questioned situations the university administration acted ethically and responsibly...and in a timely manner given the complexities involved in checking transcripts from other institutions."

The university has been rocked by problems involving the athletic program since the FBI disclosed in November it was investigating possible mail fraud and bribery.

Former Lobo head basketball Coach Norm Ellenberger and assistant Manny Goldstein were suspended after the FBI released a transcript of a wiretapped telephone conversation in which Ellenberger and Goldstein apparently discussed a method to falsify a player's academic transcript so he would be eligible to play at UNM.

Ellenberger was later fired and Goldstein resigned as a result of the problems.

Belin and five other Lobo basketball players were declared ineligible in early December when the players said they had not enrolled in or attended a course given by Ottawa University of Kansas for which they had been given credit.

Without the credits, the players were not eligible to play basketball.

It later was learned that three UNM football players also received Ottawa University credits without attending class. They also were declared ineligible.

The school forfeited six 1979 football victories and a basketball triumph over West Texas State this season after it was discovered that ineligible players had participated in the games.

Law professor Albert Utton, speaking for the council, said the university:

—On its own initiative pursued the question of eligibility of student athletes;

—Where appropriate declared athletes ineligible;

—Forfeited games won in which ineligible athletes took part;

—Began reorganizing the athletic department.

Rockets' Barry sued by fan

A West Orange, N.J., woman named Houston Rockets forward Rick Barry among 11 defendants in a lawsuit which claimed she was assaulted as Barry tried to get at a heckling fan last year at the Rutgers Athletic Center. Renee Brenner, 32, said in her lawsuit, filed Dec. 19, that Barry jumped into the stands after the Rockets defeated the New Jersey Nets on Dec. 20, 1978. Barry allegedly pushed Mrs. Brenner's head down on his way through the stands, causing injury to her neck, face and shoulder.

Veteran Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, Los Angeles Lakers, is the leading vote-getter among West Division players in the fan balloting for the NBA All-Star Game, leading Denver's Dan Issel, 75,969 votes to 33,714 for the starting center position. Phoenix' Alvan Adams was third with 29,896 votes. Marquis Johnson, Milwaukee, with 52,744 votes, and Scott Wedman, Kansas City, with 42,928, led at the forward spot. Third place was occupied by Phoenix' Walter Davis with 42,684 votes, followed by Utah's Adrian Dantley (41,098) and Denver's George McGinnis (39,102). San Diego's Lloyd Free (67,096 votes) and Phoenix' Paul Westphal (56,026) led the guards. Los Angeles rookie sensation Earvin "Magic" Johnson was third with 51,622 votes, followed by Kansas City's Phil Ford (45,253) and Denver's David Thompson (44,826).

Douglas Piolet of Aurora, Ill., upset fourth-seeded Kelvin Ng of Hong Kong 4-6, 6-4, 6-3 to gain the Boys 16 Years Division quarterfinals in the International Junior tennis championships Thursday.

Frank Kush, former Arizona State University football coach, was repaid $1,000 by the school for charity and political contributions he made over the past two years, the Arizona Republic said in its Friday edition. Joseph Wirth, Brown University assistant, has been named to replace Tom Cahill, former Army coach, as head football coach at Union College.

The Cincinnati Bengals aren't saying officially that Forrest Gregg will be their new coach, but Gregg has been released from the final two years of his three-year contract with Toronto of the Canadian Football League. "If I could tell you that this guy is our new coach, I would," said Paul Brown, vice president and GM of the Bengals. "But nothing's done until it's done. There has been nothing consummated with us."

Australian Syd Ball upset Hank Pfister, 4th seed, 7-5, 4-6, 6-4, 6-3 in the Australian Tennis Championships at Kooyong Thursday. Veteran Tony Roche gained the third round over Geoff Masters 7-5, 6-2, 7-6 while Guillermo Vilas defeated Alvin Gardner 6-4, 6-2, 6-4 and Colin Debly won over Rick Fisher 6-2, 3-6, 6-3, 2-6, 7-5.

Irian, a 25-to-1 outsider ridden by Anne Ferris, only woman in the race, led from start to finish Thursday and won the two-mile Irish Sweeps handicap hurdle, holding off a late challenge by Twinburn, the 6-1 favorite, to win by a head.

Mike Woodson, the Indiana University basketball team's 6-foot-5 senior standout, was operated on to repair a ruptured disc in his back and probably will be out of action the rest of the season. Woodson, leading scorer and co-captain of the 10th-ranked Hoosiers, was reported in fair condition after the operation.

Tom Watson can hardly wait to get going on the pro golf tour next year and is already talking about what he would like to accomplish. His first tournament will be the Andy Williams-San Diego Open in late January, after skipping the Bob Hope desert tournament. "I'm chomping at the bit," he said Thursday. "I can't wait to get to San Diego. I'm at my peak physically. I feel like a veteran."

Phoenix Suns GM Jerry Colangelo said he was surprised by the size of the fines levied two players who battled during a Phoenix-Detroit NBA game Dec. 15. Pistons center Leon Douglas was fined $1,000 and Suns center Joel Kramer was assessed $500 for fighting. Both fines included a $225 automatic assessment for ejection from a game. But Colangelo said the stiff fines reflected a strict policy the league has followed since the Rudy Tomjanovich-Kermit Washington incident two years ago. Washington broke Tomjanovich's jaw in that battle.

Former Midlander corners choice piece of action in pipeline game

By KATHY SAWYER
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — In the high-stakes corporate poker game of Big Energy, a longshot gambler named John G. McMillan has cornered a choice piece of the action and set off lively speculation about how he pulled it off.

A loyal and generous supporter of Jimmy Carter, a friend of Vice President Mondale and Carter aide Robert Strauss, McMillan two years ago got the government to award him the franchise on a mammoth project.

It is the Alaska natural gas pipeline, potentially the largest privately financed project in world history.

Until last summer, the project seemed, as one economic writer put it, no more than an impossible "pipe dream."

But then President Carter in his energy message called it a top national priority, and at the same time some forbidding regulatory barriers fell.

THE PIPELINE CARRIES a price tag of $15 billion and the figure is climbing, but the administration contends it is worth it and one sure way to reduce the country's dependence on foreign energy.

Carrying natural gas from Prudhoe Bay and Alaska's North Slope across Canada to the lower 48 states, the pipeline could provide American customers with up to 13 percent of the total gas supply, advocates say.

McMillan is leading an effort by major U.S. and Canadian gas transmission companies to raise the money.

Theories vary on how much McMillan's political connections have helped him. He says, with a smile, "I'm sure it didn't hurt."

Certainly his Democratic leanings and his personal shoe-leather activism set him apart from the run of energy executives and especially pipeline executives.

In any case, people naturally focus on those ties as they attempt to explain how a relatively small, young outfit like McMillan's Northwest Energy Co., based in Salt Lake City, Utah, got out in front on the project, winning over two Goliaths in the field.

WITH STEELY EYES and a clipped mustache, McMillan, 52, father of four with another on the way, looks something like the man who comes to foreclose on orphans. He speaks in an ominously quiet voice. In the movies, he would play the smoothie who corrupted Joan Crawford.

He grew up in Midland, Texas, headquarters of the huge Permian Basin oil patch.

Now, his is a world of boardroom power struggles, sleek and high-stakes stock duels, lawsuits, coalition forming and dissolving. He zips back and forth across the continent in a corporate Jet Star. He smokes black cigars. He skis with Pierre Elliott Trudeau, former prime minister of Canada.

"He plays the role of the big operator, but he works like a dog," says one associate.

McMillan's exploits, often referred to as swash-buckling, are near-legendary in some energy circles, and he is widely referred to as one tough SOB.

Consider his career: he started out as a roughneck on the rigs, got a degree in petroleum engineering, co-founded a few energy companies.

People laughed when he invested years in a court fight against an energy giant, El Paso Natural Gas. But he came away with a big chunk of his adversary, a new company.

HE ONCE AGAIN CONFOUNDED skeptics when he used the company as a base from which to talk the government into putting him at the head of this new pipeline project, even though he does not have nearly as much money as his more-established competitors.

McMillan's allies insist his impressive connections would have been useless without certain other elements, including fortuitous circumstances and most of all — McMillan's most notable trait — the relentless tenacity of a snapping turtle.

Both his friends and adversaries agree he often behaves like "a bull in a china shop," as one put it, and "swings a two-by-four (figuratively) to get his message across."

He has provoked violent hostility in some members of Congress and most recently in the state of Alaska. For instance, he reportedly sent a letter to Carter complaining that Alaska was not being supportive enough of his project and asking the president to do something. The Alaskans cried "blackmail."

But, said one source familiar with the incident, "They seem to have patched it up. McMillan has a remarkable recovery rate."

McMillan acknowledges, too, that he and Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., chairman of the House subcommittee on energy and power, were "very unfriendly" at one point because of differences on energy proposals. But he thinks they are on good terms now. Dingell could not be reached for comment.

McMILLAN SEEMS UNTRoubLED by the speculation about his political influence. On the contrary, says one long-time associate, "People think he got everything because he knows Strauss, and supports Carter. Well John loves that. He loves to think he's right in the center of the power structure."

Strauss, Carter's respected utility man who currently is serving as campaign chairman, calls McMillan "my kind of guy."

A lifelong "good Democrat," in 1972 McMillan stood virtually alone in support of George McGovern in his home base, Republican Midland, Tex. Strauss noted.

An early supporter of Carter, McMillan has lobbied for a number of the president's programs, including the Panama Canal treaties, as well as the energy program. He was one of the major corporate financiers for the White House dinner Carter held for Menachem Begin and Anwar Sadat.

Strauss and McMillan, with their wives, dine together often in Washington. Strauss added, however, that McMillan has "never asked me for any political favors . . . I expect the reason I have influence in this town is that I've never used it in improper ways."

Jerome Hass, a Cornell University professor and consultant to the Department of Energy (DOE) serving as a go-between for parties on the pipeline project, says, "I am not personally aware of any political pressures other than the kind you'd expect from anyone under the circumstances."

BUT, HE ADDED, "I am also aware that John McMillan does have an impressive capability to get messages delivered to the White House and certain members of Congress."

One reason McMillan's approach shook up some people was that he brought his "roughneck, wildcatting oil man mentality" into the regulated pipeline industry where executives had a "utility mentality," and did not deal in risk, according to one informed source.

Congress legitimized his approach by passing an act, in an effort to cut red tape and hasten action on such a project, which for the first time made that regulatory process subject to political rather than judicial review.

McMillan was a man who had dickered for contracts with a military junta in Ecuador, and spent time in New Guinea, up a river on a drilling project, where "one or two of the people working on his rig had been arrested for having eaten somebody from another tribe," according to one of his associates.

McMillan made a name for himself, and demonstrated his stubborn qualities, by emerging victorious after the smoke cleared in the historic, 16-year-long antitrust court case against El Paso Natural Gas. His prize was Northwest Energy Co.

McMILLAN HUNG ON FOR half a decade through disappointments and delays, desertion by allies and a drain on his finances.

"When the smart money had walked away, he was financing me out of his own pocket and exhorting me by phone from Australia — at 3 a.m. my time — to hang tough on these total long shots," said Salt Lake City attorney David Watkins, now a director of McMillan's company.

With Northwest Energy as a platform, McMillan jumped right into the Alaska pipeline fray.

At a point when he was still only peripherally involved in it, McMillan said he happened to read an environmental assessment of the project prepared by the Federal Power Commission (now Federal Energy Regulatory Commission) and concluded the proposed routes were not politically feasible. The environmental interests would fight them. So he filed an alternative proposal following an existing highway.

That is his technique, according to another former Midlander, RUSH MOODY, a friend and also a McMillan lawyer, a member of Strauss' old law firm. "John believes in getting to know the people who make policy and figuring out where they're taking the country," he said. In this case, "He recognized where (policy) was headed. That's why his route ended up being selected."

That selection of McMillan was up to the president, after a deadlock by the FCC, and subject to congressional approval.

SOME SOURCES CONTEND McMillan "testified with his fingers crossed," or overpromised, about his ability to get the project financed without government assistance, in order to get congressional approval. One of these sources represents one of the major oil companies which are wrestling with McMillan and the government for control of the pipeline project.

While they have benefited from recent government decisions, McMillan and his supporters point out that key decisions affecting the success of his bid on the pipeline were made in Canada, not the United States, and before the Carter administration took office.

"He didn't tell me (on his pipeline proposal) because of who he was," said former senator Frank Moss of Utah, whose campaign had drawn McMillan's support in the past. His proposal "just looked good to me."

The pipeline project now is running a gauntlet of multilayered regulatory review in the United States and Canada, possible construction problems and what one government financial specialist called "the granddaddy of all financing" efforts.

Among other things, the project has a unique provision which assures most investors a certain rate of return, but requires that those with an equity interest be penalized for any cost overruns.

McMillan and Department of Energy sources said they feel strongly that the oil companies who will benefit from the sale of that North Slope gas — Exxon, Atlantic Richfield, British Petroleum and Standard Oil (Ohio) — should help finance the pipeline that will carry it.

PROPOSALS ARE FLYING back and forth over how much control and rate of return the big oil producers will get in exchange. The oil companies have proposed that they take 40 percent equity and get a veto over any decisions, McMillan and DOE sources said.

McMillan wants to keep control but get the oil companies, with their billions, to assume most of the cost overrun risks and make the package attractive to more investors.

He contends the pipeline industry can build a pipeline better than big oil companies and refers frequently to "their past mistakes" and "the awesome heritage that the oil companies left us with in the tremendous cost overruns on the Alaskan oil pipeline."

McMillan "makes a lot of people unhappy," said a spokesman for one of the oil producers involved in the negotiations. "I don't admire his style. But I admire his ability to succeed without any apparent misconduct. He doesn't have to be liked."

Texas Utilities announces plans for coal plant in WT

DALLAS (AP) — Dwindling Texas energy supplies have prompted Texas Utilities Co. to consider constructing a West Texas power plant fired with Rocky Mountain coal.

Company officials say transportation costs make energy generated from Rocky Mountain coal more expensive than electricity from Texas ward said. Two companies will begin feasibility studies on the water supply and other environmental factors in January, he said.

A problem Texas Utilities apparently won't have is opposition from Ward County residents.

Officials in county seat Monahans, a town of 8,000, say they want the plant.

Mayor Richard Hoyer said the energy crisis is very real and he sees coal as the answer.

"As their mayor, I'm very definitely for it in every way," he said. "The only chance I see is for us to convert to coal in this country. This town is surrounded by 10,000 producing oil wells and the product is going down. It is not going up.

"I think it is ridiculous that the electric customers of this state have to pay a higher electric bill because of the pollution requirements that are put on the coal-fired plants," he added.

"I'd like to see it," said Sheriff John T. Ashcraft. "There'll be jobs . . . and a lot of electricity."

Ward was not surprised at the residents' reaction.

ENERGY OIL & GAS

lignite or nuclear power, but the situation likely will change by the late 1980s.

The company has a huge reserve of low-grade East Texas lignite coal, but the officials say that supply may not match consumer demand in another decade.

"We already have a considerable amount of lignite committed to other plants," said Ray Ward of Dallas Power & Light, a Texas Utilities subsidiary. "In the long range, you just have to be prepared."

Other Texas electric companies already have begun to import coal from strip mines in Rocky Mountain states, but the ever-increasing cost of rail transportation has caused legal and regulatory disputes.

Texas Utilities hopes to reduce transportation costs by building a plant as close to the supply as possible.

The company is looking at several locations in Ward County, just west of Midland-Odessa in the heart of West Texas' oilfields.

One advantage Texas Utilities may have is subsidiary Chaco Energy Co. of Albuquerque. Chaco plans to start mining at one site in 1983, and is obtaining permits for another location.

Eventually, Chaco expects to mine 12 million tons of coal a year — enough for three or four large power plants.

But both Chaco and Texas Utilities officials say they would not necessarily do business with each other.

The plant's size, and whether it would be built at all, will depend on the amount of water in Ward County.

Exxon Corp. completes merger of electric firm

NEW YORK (AP) — Exxon Corp., the world's largest oil company, on Thursday completed its merger with Reliance Electric Corp., the Cleveland-based manufacturer of electric motors.

The final cost of the merger was $1.242 billion, including lawyers' fees, an Exxon spokesman said. Earlier reports had valued the merger at about $1.17 billion.

Completion of the merger followed approval of the move by Reliance's shareholders. Exxon, through its Enco Inc. subsidiary, controlled stock entitled to 94 percent of the votes of Reliance shareholders.

Exxon said it acquired the balance of the outstanding Reliance shares for $72 each for common stock, $201.97 apiece for series A preferred stock, and $1,000 plus accrued dividends for the 9 percent preferred stock.

Exxon and Reliance said the motor maker would continue to operate under its current name and management as an Exxon subsidiary.

Exxon had sought the merger to further promote an energy-saving motor speed control device it had developed.

OCAW could call strike

DENVER (AP) — Unless a satisfactory contract settlement is reached by early January, the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union could call a strike against major oil companies, officials say.

The union's National Oil Bargaining Policy Committee unanimously rejected all offers made by oil companies in contract reopening negotiations that began last month, Robert F. Goss, OCAW president, said Thursday.

The OCAW settled with major oil companies last January on a two-year contract providing for a 73-cent-per-hour wage increase, an average of 8 percent. The first year of the current contract expires Jan. 8. Following that date, the OCAW has the right to strike, Goss said.

About 60,000 oil refinery and petrochemical plant workers are involved in the negotiations. They are covered by more than 400 contracts and are employed by 100 companies, including all major oil companies in the United States.

Indonesia, Iraq raise crude price

By WILLIAM GLASGALL
AP Business Writer

Iraq and Indonesia, which together produce nearly one-fifth of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries' oil, 10 percent today increases of up to 10 percent price.

The increases were expected to spread, with Venezuela, another major OPEC producer and the supplier of 3.5 percent of U.S. petroleum needs, saying it planned to announce its 1980 price list today.

Iraq boosted the price of its oil to about $26 a barrel, while Indonesia raised its price to $30.75.

Venezuela was expected to raise its base price by $2 to $26 per 42-gallon barrel.

The latest increases could prompt influential Saudi Arabia to announce a further price increase over the 33 percent boost imposed along with Venezuela and two other OPEC members earlier this month. Saudi Arabia produces nearly one-third of OPEC's 30 million barrels-a-day oil output.

The decision by Iraq, the second-largest producer in the 13-nation cartel, to raise its price was reported by industry sources in Rome, who said the boost was retroactive to Dec. 1. The increase had been expected by many industry observers.

The move put Iraq between the moderate Saudis, who are charging $24 for their oil, and the hard-line Iraqis, who charge $28.50 for oil of a similar grade.

The pricing split developed before last week's OPEC oil ministers' conference, which adjourned in Caracas, Venezuela, without reaching any agreement on a single price structure for 1980.

Iraq produces 3.7 million barrels a day — 12 percent of OPEC's output — but exports relatively little oil to the United States. It has raised production substantially over the past year. Indonesia, which had gone up by $2 during the OPEC meeting, announced increases of $1.45 to $2.85 a barrel effective Jan. 1. The boosts lifted Indonesia's top price to 75 cents above the price charged by OPEC militants Nigeria, Algeria and Libya for their high-grade oil.

Indonesia accounts for about 5 percent of OPEC's production and about 2 percent of U.S. oil needs.

The increases announced before and during the oil ministers' session may add up to a dime to the price of a gallon of gasoline or heating oil in the United States.

Saudi Arabian Oil Minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani denied in Paris Thursday his country has decided to raise its price by $2 in February.

"No decision has been taken," Yamani said.

Although Yamani had pledged at the OPEC session in Caracas to keep his country's $24-a-barrel price "at least through January," he said Thursday that "oil price increases are determined by the market, and Saudi oil prices are currently below those prevailing on the international market."
