

Iranians reject Waldheim's intervention

U.N. secretary-general now en route to Tehran

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim is flying to Tehran to try to ease the U.S.-Iranian crisis. But the students holding the American hostages rejected his intervention, and Iran's foreign minister rejected negotiations with him.

The Security Council was preparing to adopt a resolution asking Waldheim to "intensify his efforts" to secure the release of the Americans held hostage in the U.S. Embassy. Meanwhile, the United States delayed a demand for the council to vote limited economic sanctions against Iran and gave Waldheim 11 more days to try to get the captives freed.

Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh said Waldheim was coming to find out the Iranian government's views, not to negotiate for the release of the hostages.

"We will inform him of our views on America and the position the U.S.A. had in Iran," Ghotbzadeh told Pars, the official Iranian news agency.

"Waldheim is coming to Iran in order to gather information and to learn of the nature of the crisis.... The question of negotiations with him is not being raised."

The secretary-general was flying to Paris with three aides to take a chartered flight that would land him in Tehran Tuesday. Diplomats at U.N. headquarters said he believed he would be able to talk with Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, the leader of Iran's revolutionary regime. But Hassan Habibi, the spokesman for the Revolutionary Council, said he did not know if Khomeini would receive the U.N. chief.

"Waldheim has not been invited by the Revolutionary Council nor the Foreign Ministry nor any government official," he said. "When the secretary-general comes to this country, he will certainly meet some officials. Who, when and how has not been decided."

The militant students who occupied the U.S. Embassy 58 days ago expressed only hostility toward Waldheim and again insisted that the hostages would not be freed unless Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi was returned to Iran for trial.

"We do not accept Waldheim as a mediator," said a spokesman. "We will not negotiate with anybody on the hostages."

"We are holding the same stance we have had since the takeover and we will only release the hostages when the deposed shah is extradited."

"Waldheim is not trustworthy. He has proved that he is in the service of the superpowers."

The spokesman said he was sure the Revolutionary Council also would refuse to negotiate with anyone on the hostages, "but in case they come up with a different decision, the students will not change their stance."

The resolution which the Security Council was to vote on today called for the 15-nation body to meet again Jan. 7.

Soviets take up fight against Afghan rebels

KABUL, Afghanistan (AP) — Soviet troops are reported taking up the communist Afghan government's fight against Moslem rebels as diplomats report the Soviet Union's force in its landlocked Central Asian neighbor has risen to an estimated 45,000 soldiers.

A Pakistani newspaper reported Soviet troops were battling Moslem insurgents in one northern province of Afghanistan below the Soviet border. Western diplomats in Kabul said they had reports that Soviet troops had also been sent to the east and northeast to fight the rebellion that broke out after Marxists first seized control of the Afghan government 20 months ago.

The diplomats said in the wake of the third communist coup last Thursday two Soviet divisions totaling about 20,000 men crossed the Soviet-Afghan border Sunday, joining the estimated 25,000 Russian troops already in the country.

In Washington, U.S. National Security Adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski accused the Russians of "large-scale aggression" that "constitutes a serious problem for the international community." He said the U.S. government assured Pakistan, Afghanistan's southern and eastern neighbor, of U.S. aid including "the use of armed force" if the Soviets moved against it.

Brzezinski also had a warning for Iran, saying: "I should think that every sober-headed Iranian — even the most anti-American ones — ought to ask themselves what do the events in Kabul portend for Tehran. There have been Soviet troops in Tehran before. Tehran could be next."

U.S. Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher arrived in London to begin talks with West European officials seeking to formulate a joint Western response to the Soviet action. Brzezinski said the Carter administration was also consulting the Japanese, the Chinese and "Moslem countries."

President Carter used the Washington-Moscow hot line Saturday to warn that unless the Soviets withdrew their troops from Afghanistan, Soviet-American relations would be affected adversely. The White House said a reply was received from Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev, but it would give no clue to what he said.

The new Afghan government announced that it asked the Soviet Union for help in dealing with the enemies of the "socialist revolution." Pravda, the Soviet Communist Party newspaper, said the Soviet forces were sent to counter "unlimited backing" given the Moslem rebels by the United States, China and Egypt. It said they would be withdrawn when they were no longer needed.

The Afghan government in a broad-cast communique Sunday night claimed there was "complete peace and calm in the country, and the armed forces are in full control." But the Karachi, Pakistan, newspaper

Jang said Afghan rebel sources in Pakistan reported Soviet troops battling Moslem insurgents in the northern province of Takhar, with 400 rebels, a Soviet general and large numbers of Soviet and Afghan army troops killed Saturday.

The rebels are conservative, fundamentalist Moslems opposed to the Marxists who took over the government in April 1978 after killing President Mohammad Daoud. The insurgents are said to control about half the country by day and more by night, and the coup last week was apparently the prelude to a Soviet campaign to end the rebellion.

The 1978 coup installed Nur Mohammad Taraki as president, and he lasted 17 months. He was killed during a palace coup last September led by his prime minister, Hafizullah Amin. After the 3½-hour coup last Thursday night, still another Marxist, Brabak Karmal, returned from exile in Czechoslovakia to become president, and Radio Kabul announced that Amin had been executed.

One West European diplomat told one of the first Western reporters to reach Kabul since the coup that the latest government change apparently was carried out entirely by the Soviets.

"As far as we could tell, only the Russians were involved in the coup," he said. "Afghan soldiers either did not fight or did so to repulse the Soviets."

Commitment to security of Pakistan reaffirmed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is reaffirming its commitment to the security of Pakistan, the Central Asian nation that shares a long border with Afghanistan, target of a Soviet-supported coup last week.

Zbigniew Brzezinski, President Carter's national security adviser, said Sunday that the United States has assured Pakistan of American aid, including "the use of armed force," should the Soviet action in Afghanistan expand to its southern neighbor.

At the same time, Brzezinski said the Soviet Union was continuing to send troops into Afghanistan, even after Carter sent a sharp warning to the Kremlin in the Moscow-Washington "hot line" about the Soviet action.

"Several tens of thousands" of Soviet ground troops have crossed the border or been airlifted into Afghanistan, said the national security adviser. He gave no precise figure for the troops, saying that as of Saturday, U.S. intelligence placed their number at 20,000 to 25,000. "It is likely that the number is now larger," he said.

Western diplomats in the Afghan capital of Kabul estimated the Soviet force at about 45,000.

"We're talking about increasing evidence that large Soviet formations have crossed the border," Brzezinski said during an interview on ABC-TV's "Issues and Answers."

"These involved armored formations, large numbers of heavy tanks, most modern Soviet tanks, Soviet armored personnel carriers, motorized infantry and so forth," he said. "We are in effect observing large-scale aggression."

"This invasion, which has been taken not only through an airlift but in the last few hours has assumed large proportions through the crossing of the frontier by Soviet ground forces, constitutes a serious problem for the international community," Brzezinski said.

Brzezinski stressed that the United States was committed to Pakistan's security. He quoted parts of a 1959 U.S.-Pakistan agreement that calls for the United States, "in accordance with its constitutional procedures," to "take such appropriate action, including the use of armed force" in the event of "aggression against Pakistan."

"We are reviewing the nature of our on-going obligations toward Pakistan, with the view in mind of expediting certain forms of military assistance," Brzezinski said. He declined to elaborate on what form the aid might take.

Brzezinski's statements drew a sharp reaction today from the Indian government, which summoned U.S. Ambassador Robert Goheen to discuss the matter. India and Pakistan are traditional military rivals and have fought three wars.

The administration's reaffirmation of its commitment to the Islamabad government comes after recent strained relations between the two countries.

Military and most forms of economic aid to Pakistan have been reduced because of the administration's fear that the Islamabad government is developing the capability to build a nuclear weapon.

Also, the U.S. Embassy in Islamabad was attacked and burned by a mob on Nov. 21. Two American military men died in the attack.

On Thursday, the Afghan government of Hafizullah Amin was toppled, and he was executed. Installed in his place was Babrak Karmal, considered by U.S. intelligence to be a "puppet" of Moscow. Two days earlier, the Soviets had begun a large-scale buildup of forces in Afghanistan.

Brzezinski, in the television interview, also warned the Iranian government that "Tehran could be next" as a Soviet target.

Arms for Pakistan among issues

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — The Indian government reacted sharply today to reports that the United States was stepping up arms sales to Pakistan and summoned U.S. Ambassador Robert F. Goheen to talk about it.

A U.S. Embassy official confirmed that Goheen discussed the arms issue "among other things" but said there were no details available on a new arms agreement with Pakistan. Deals had been on a cash-only basis since Washington cut economic and military aid last April after disclosing what it said was reports of a Pakistan nuclear arms program. Indian newspapers, under headlines "USA to Rearm Pakistan," reported from Washington that the decision was part of the angry U.S. reaction to the Soviet role in the coup which last week toppled the regime in Afghanistan, a neighbor of Pakistan.

The reports, which did not quote government sources, upset many Indian officials and could become an issue in the current Indian general election campaign. India and Pakistan, traditional military rivals, have fought three wars.

"If America decided to rearm Pakistan, it's going to be a very very big issue in India — don't fool yourself," commented one Indian diplomat.

Zbigniew Brzezinski, President Carter's national security adviser, said Sunday the United States has assured Pakistan of American aid, including "the use of armed force" if Soviet action in Afghanistan expanded to Pakistan. He said "we are reviewing the nature of our ongoing obligations toward Pakistan with the view in mind of expediting certain forms of military assistance." He did not elaborate.

Man killed in mobile home fire

Personnel from the Fire Department and Midland County Sheriff's Department continued their investigation today into an early morning fire Sunday that claimed the life of a 44-year-old Midland County man.

Donald Howard Reynolds died in the fire that started about 3:30 a.m. Sunday and raced through his mobile home located about two miles northeast of the Midland city limits.

The home was owned by Glenda Roberts, who was present at the time and told investigators she awakened to find the home engulfed in smoke.

According to fire inspector Bob Williams of the Midland Fire Department, Ms. Roberts reported she awakened shortly before 3:30 a.m. and found smoke throughout the two-bedroom mobile home.

She said she ran out of the house, grabbed a garden hose and tried to go back inside to battle the blaze. But smoke and fire apparently prevented her from getting inside the home, according to Williams.

Ms. Roberts told investigators she was asleep in the back bedroom at the time of the fire, according to Williams. She said she thought Reynolds, who was reportedly asleep on the living room sofa, followed her out when she exited the home.

But fire investigators found his body in the back bedroom near a window, Williams said.

According to Ms. Roberts, there also were three dogs in the mobile home at the time of the fire. Firemen found two dogs alive, Williams said, but never found a third dog.

Firemen battled the blaze more than three hours.

Cause of the fire was not determined immediately, according to Williams, "but it probably is an accidental cause."

Asked if arson is suspected in the blaze, which destroyed the mobile home, Williams replied, "Right now, it doesn't look suspicious."

Ayatollah Khomeini

U.N.: voting on Iran economic sanctions

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The Security Council votes today on a U.S. resolution threatening the Iranians with economic sanctions unless Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim can get them to release the American hostages by Jan. 7.

he is in the service of the superpowers." Diplomatic sources said Waldheim had reason to believe he would meet with Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, the leader of the Iranian revolution.

Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance planned to be at the morning vote, following through on the decision President Carter announced Dec. 21 to ask the Council "to impose international economic sanctions upon Iran."

The resolution condemned the detention of the hostages, urged called on Iran again to release all Americans held there and asked Waldheim "to intensify his efforts" to get them out.

Waldheim was flying to Tehran today, but Iranian comments indicated there was little likelihood he would get the Americans freed. The resolution said if he didn't, the council would meet Jan. 7 "to adopt effective measures under Articles 39 and 41" of the U.N. charter.

Khomeini ad runs in New York Times

NEW YORK (AP) — Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, in an advertisement subtitled "Christmas Message to the Christian World," urged Americans to ring church bells in support of oppressed nations, not in support of hostages held in Iran.

Article 39 authorizes the council to find that there is a threat to or breach of international peace and decide what measures shall be taken to deal with it. Article 41 specifies that such measures may include cutoffs in diplomatic relations, economic relations and communications.

"(President) Carter, vanguard of the world's oppressors, called for the bells to be rung throughout the United States in support of his agents against the deprived Iranian nation," the Moslem revolutionary leader said in the advertisement in Sunday's New York Times.

The council has already called for the immediate release of the hostages and so has the U.N. judicial organ, the International Court of Justice.

"How good and appropriate that you ring the bells according to the order of God and the teachings of Jesus Christ in support of the oppressed nations crushed under the boots of Carter's soldiers," said the ad, referred to the hostages held since Nov. 4 in the U.S. Embassy in Tehran as "spies."

"We will inform him of our views on America and the position of the U.S.A. in Iran," Ghotbzadeh told Pars, the official Iranian news agency. "Waldheim is coming to Iran in order to gather information and to learn of the nature of the crisis. ... The question of negotiations with him is no longer raised."

"Be sure that our youth will treat the spies in a manner pleasing to God," Khomeini said.

"We do not accept Waldheim as a mediator," said a spokesman for the students holding the Americans in the U.S. Embassy since Nov. 4. "We will not negotiate with anyone on the hostages."

The Washington Post last week rejected the advertisement, which was purchased by the embassy of the Islamic Republic of Iran, saying the message was "potentially libelous" and violated its policy of not accepting "serious charges against people that are not substantiated."

"We are holding the same stance we have had since the takeover and we will only release the hostages when the deposed shah is extradited."

Times publisher Arthur Ochs Sulzberger said the New York newspaper printed it "because the Times has long believed that its advertising columns must be open to all forms of opinion advertising — even when we strenuously disagree with and abhor the message."

"There is no to be able to Anti-felt Khomeini 1979 'Man of Year' NEW YORK (AP) — Time magazine's first 'Man of the Year' was aviator Charles Lindbergh, who inspired America. This year, the designation went to a man who "towered malignly over the globe" — the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini. "As the leader of Iran's revolution he gave the 20th century world a frightening lesson in the shattering power of irrationality, of the ease with which terrorism can be adopted as government policy," said the magazine in announcing its selection of the person who did the most "to change the news, for better or for worse" in 1979. In the Jan. 7 issue, with a portrait of the Moslem mystic on the cover, Time editors said they had little trouble making the choice, noting that "selection has never necessarily connoted either the magazine's, or the world's, approval of the subject." Others honored with the "Man of the Year" designation since the review began in 1927 have included Adolf Hitler, Joseph Stalin, Franklin Roosevelt and Wallis Warfield Simpson. "The way things go, most years we pick a good guy, but this year we selected a bad guy," said a Time spokesman who asked not to be identified. Time said others "who good in the spotlight" in 1979 included Pope John Paul II, British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, Federal Reserve Board Chairman Paul Volcker and a Cambodian child who was part of one of history's greatest mass flights. The editors noted Khomeini's impact was greater than the crisis at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran, where militants are holding Americans hostage to press demands for the return of the deposed shah. "The revolution that he led to triumph threatens to upset the world balance of power more than any other political event since Hitler's conquest of Europe," said Time. "The danger exists that the Iranian revolution could become a model for future uprisings throughout the Third World ... Already the flames of anti-Western fanaticism that Khomeini fanned in Iran threaten to spread ... The magazine also portrayed Khomeini as a man who has been married for 50 years, enjoys the company of his 14 grandchildren, reportedly has a weak heart and subsists on a diet of rice, bean curd and raw onions supplemented by a bit of mutton or melon. The issue contains an interview with the Moslem leader, who from exile in Paris exhorted Iranians to overthrow their monarch. Khomeini says Iranian hostility is directed at the U.S. government, not its people, but if President Carter "succeeds in depriving us of justice" through economic sanctions or military intervention, "gradually, Iranians might suspect that the U.S. people share Carter's ill will toward Iran. Then, enmity might set in between the two peoples." In the interview, made shortly before Time's Middle East Bureau Chief Bruce Van Voorst was expelled from Iran, Khomeini urged Americans to vote Carter out of office.

Soviets defend intervention in Afghanistan fighting

MOSCOW (AP) — The Kremlin said today it sent troops to Afghanistan to help put down "counter-revolutionary gangs" supported by the United States, China and Egypt and will withdraw them when the Moslem rebellion is quelled.

China, Yugoslavia, Saudi Arabia and Britain joined the United States in a rising chorus of opposition to the Soviet intervention.

In the first public defense of its Afghan intervention, the Soviets said they stepped in to prevent "the transformation of Afghanistan into a base for preparation of imperialist aggression against the Soviet Union."

An article in today's edition of the Communist Party newspaper Pravda said intrigues by "counter-revolutionary gangs jeopardized the very existence of the (Afghan) republic."

Pravda charged American "interference" in Afghanistan was an attempt to make up for its loss of influence in the region following last February's ouster of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi in neighboring Iran.

"There is no need for special insight to be able to see through the motives of the United States' actions," it said. "There are figures in Washington who persistently look for replacements for the positions that were lost as a result of the fall of the shah's regime in Iran."

America, China and Egypt gave "unlimited backing" to the anti-communist Moslem insurgents who claim to control most of the countryside in their two-year-old war with the Kabul government, Pravda said. It claimed the U.S., Chinese and Egyptian intelligence services trained Afghan guerrillas in Pakistan and said that in 1978 and 1979 "imperialist forces" made "constant armed incursions" into Afghanistan and infiltrated mercenaries into the country.

Pravda repeated earlier claims that the new Afghan government appealed for Soviet support and denied that Russian troops were occupying the country.

Western diplomats in Kabul estimated there were 45,000 Soviet troops in Afghanistan, including 20,000 who crossed the Soviet-Afghan border Sunday. They said the coup last Thursday which replaced President Hafizullah Amin with Babrak Kar-mal, another communist who had been living in exile in Czechoslovakia, was entirely the work of Soviet troops.

Amin, who was executed after the coup, apparently fell into Soviet disfavor because he was unable to quell the revolt by anti-communist Moslem fundamentalists which broke out shortly after the first communist coup in April 1978. Pravda said Amin sided with the "reactionary forces," and "the interests of the revolution required the fastest and most decisive end to his criminal activity."

In Washington, National Security Adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski accused the Russians of "large-scale aggression" and an invasion and said Russian troops were continuing to pour across the border into Afghanistan.

President Carter sent a sharp weekend protest to Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev over the "hot line" communications link calling for withdrawal of the Soviet troops. The White House said Sunday that Carter had received a reply, but a spokesman refused to divulge any of it.

Carter sent Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher to London to try to formulate a unified Western response to the Soviet action. Brzezinski said the United States also was consulting the Japanese, the Chinese and "Moslem countries."

Brzezinski also told the ABC-News program "Issues and Answers" the United States promised aid, including "the use of armed force," to Pakistan should the Soviets invade Afghanistan's eastern neighbor. He also said that Iran, which shares a border with the Soviet Union, "could be next."

About 230 Moslems, including Afghan and Iranian students, demonstrated outside the Soviet Embassy in New Delhi, India, protesting the "Russian invasion of Afghanistan."

China, the Soviet Union's rival for influence in the communist world, condemned the Soviet move as a "grave threat to peace and security in Asia and the whole world." An official statement carried by the Xinhua news agency said the Russians "acted most outrageously" and demanded they withdraw all troops from Afghanistan.

A commentary today in the Peking People's Daily claimed "Moscow has landed itself inextricably in a quagmire, just as the United States did in Vietnam." Yugoslavia, long a maverick in the communist camp, issued a statement condemning any form of foreign intervention in sovereign states as "impermissible... all the more so because it involved a non-aligned country of long standing." The statement did not mention the Soviet Union by name.

The official Saudi press said, "the Soviet invasion was a criminal act." One paper warned, "Afghanistan will be immersed in a new sea of blood."

British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher said she sent a letter to Brezhnev saying she was "profoundly disturbed" by the Russian action and was "frankly puzzled" by Soviets claims that they were invited by the Afghan government.

Anti-American venom felt in 'corridor of hate'

By PETER ARNETT
AP Special Correspondent

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Take a walk along Tehran's "corridor of hate" and find out how venomous the anti-American campaign has become.

Elsewhere in this pseudo-modern metropolis people smile and weep and go about the daily routine of life. But outside the U.S. Embassy the hate-filled faces staring moodily through the steel-grilled gates into the courtyard beyond reveal another aspect of the Iranian national character.

"Americans are bad," an old woman muttered in response to a reporter's question, a black chador pulled across her face.

"Bad Americans! Bad Americans!" the crowd around her roared, faces flushed with excitement and exertion.

American television crews routinely staking out the gate didn't bother shooting the scene. A voice roared over a loudspeaker: "Hey, you TV people, this is for you." The crowd switched its epithets from English to Farsi when the cameramen remained indifferent.

The "corridor of hate" is a quarter mile of Telegani Street, festooned with banners that hang like yellowing washing from the plane trees outside the embassy's southern wall and the tall buildings across the street.

New banners are added each day. "The American tradition is murder may it be in Vietnam, Jaleh Tehran or in Mecca," said one in English, referring to a massacre of demonstrators by the shah's men in Tehran in 1978 and the recent attack on the Grand Mosque in Mecca.

"America cannot frighten a nation who has chosen martyrdom from death," another read.

The forest of banners is supplemented by displays of gory pictures attributing to "American imperialism" and the CIA much of the carnage of recent years, including the Vietnam War, the Lebanese civil war, the rebellion in Nicaragua and the attempts of the shah's forces to suppress the Iranian revolution.

Visiting Americans, who generally are treated politely elsewhere in the Iranian capital, are greeted by raised fists and burning effigies of President Carter.

Crowds large and small march by with banners flying each hour of daylight and into the early evening. Usually the shouted messages are the same: "Down with Carter" and "Yankees go home." The voices rise to a screeching pitch as they pass the main gate, possibly to be sure of reaching the ears of the Americans held captive somewhere inside.

Some of the demonstrators are perennials.

"We're making a star of that bow-legged lad with the whining voice," said one TV cameraman.

An apoplectic-looking old man made one evening news show in the United States three nights in a row.

The embassy compound itself is an intimidating place. Built over a whole city block with high, thick brick walls to keep people out, it is the perfect place to keep captives in. Its steel entrances and institutional-looking architecture give it the air of a prison. The impression is heightened by the surliness of the militant students on guards who suspiciously check the credentials of American reporters.

Prowling the streets outside are the all-pervasive revolutionary youths with their camouflage trousers, military jackets and shining weapons.

American reporters agree that while there is some orchestration of the crowds, there is also a deeply rooted sense of anger and barely veiled threat.

Iranian interpreters working with the American reporters are sometimes taunted by the crowd and ordered to shout anti-American slogans to prove their loyalty.

They shout out, then get back to their work.

Rhodesian troops deployed to halt guerrilla infiltration

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Rhodesian troops under British command dug in along the eastern frontier with Mozambique today to try to stop infiltration by guerrillas after the Salisbury command reported hundreds crossing the border in violation of the cease-fire.

The troop deployment was ordered by Lord Soames, the British governor. But Soames' spokesman, Nicholas Fenn, said: "We continue to be encouraged by the general situation. There are problems. We expected problems... No way do I regard this in despair."

The Salisbury command reported Saturday some 600 guerrillas from Robert Mugabe's army had infiltrated from Mozambique in the previous 48 hours. Under the provisions of the cease-fire, only guerrillas already in the country a week before it went into effect at midnight Friday were to be allowed to remain here — assembled in their camps.

The command also reported four deaths since the cease-fire became effective: a black civilian and a guerrilla killed in an attack by some of Mugabe's men on farms, another Mugabe guerrilla killed in one of four strikes against Rhodesian government bases and a white farmer killed in an ambush by Mugabe's guerrillas.

The British Commonwealth force monitoring the truce said Sunday that some 600 guerrillas had reported peacefully to cease-fire camps.

Both Mugabe's guerrillas and the guerrillas in Zambia led by Joshua Nkomo are being urged by their leaders to gather at some 39 assembly points during a seven-day period ending Friday. Most Rhodesian army units already have checked in to the bases designated for them under the cease-fire.

The cease-fire was signed Dec. 21 in London by Mugabe, Nkomo and the outgoing Salisbury government of Prime Minister Abel Muzorewa. The truce aims to end seven years of guerrilla war and provides for new elections in February for a black-majority government, with legal independence from Britain to follow.

There had been speculation Mugabe and Nkomo would run on the same slate in the February elections. But Enos Nkala, the highest ranking official of Mugabe's party now in Rhodesia, told a rally of 40,000 supporters Sunday the two parties will run independent slates.

This is expected to divide the voters among Rhodesia's 6.8 million blacks to the benefit of Muzorewa, the guerrilla leaders' most politically powerful rival among the black leaders who shunned the war and remained inside Rhodesia.

Voters among the 230,000 whites will vote Feb. 14 to fill their 20 seats in Parliament. The blacks vote two weeks later to fill 80 seats.

'Largest bill of all'

It isn't a very pleasant thought right now — totaling up all those bills for the holidays, but Publisher James Roberts of the Andrews County News, in his "Drifting Sands" column, says that you probably haven't taken into account the largest bill of all.

"To those end-of-year bills you might toss in the fact that you owe an additional $112,900," Roberts wrote.

"That's your share of what Uncle Sam has managed to spend on your behalf.

And if you'd like it broken down to help with your accounting, Roberts says it goes like this:

"Your share of the public debt is $9,012, your share of Uncle Sam's current bills owed is $1,000, undelivered orders unpaid for as yet come up to $4,150 as your share, long-term contracts will cost you $187, loan and credit guarantees $2,612, insurance commitments total $21,662, and your share of annuity programs now in force settle in at $73,750, and the rest of the government hodge podge is figured at $537.

"In other words your Uncle Sam owes close to $9 trillion and your share of that figure comes to about $113,000 for every taxpayer in the nation."

"And while you're studying ways to pay off your share you might consider the admitted fact that $3 billion is stolen annually from health programs, yet Uncle Sam has fewer people investigating misclaims and misdeeds than it has mowing the White House lawn," Roberts continued.

"Too, you might like to remember that we've spent $250 billion for foreign aid, including $10 billion to Uganda's mad dictator, Idi Amin, now deposed, and for us to finance both sides in 14 wars during the last 20 years."

But Roberts still isn't through. He continued:

"Consider also that the GSA has testified before Congressional committees of an estimated 900,000 welfare recipients who are 'totally ineligible.'"

"Part of your debt went to finance $200 million each year to perform useless research and shower professors in universities with grants...and it cost something like $85,000 per minute just to finance the interest on the national debt.

"And Congress and the administration wonder why they are held in such low esteem."

Now then, you may get back to your own private situation. The government doesn't seem to worry too much about the national debt and such, but your own private bills come under a slightly different category. In other words, there are those who will come after you or the unpaid merchandise if you do not take care of your obligations.

Just something to think about as this New Year approaches.

Goats are happy, too

The wild goats of San Clemente Island will not become targets for hunters' guns after all.

It was decided by the court recently, to the mutual agreement of the Navy and environmentalists, that a professional trapper will have 90 days to trap and remove goats from the offshore island.

If his humane methods of entrapment work out — if he catches 60 percent of San Clemente's herd in that time — he will be allowed another 90 days to complete the job.

The first plan by the Navy was to shoot the goats from helicopters. The animals, are eating all the growth from the island's hillsides, turning it into a desert. And the four-footed creatures are so clever in using the steep canyons as hideaways, it was impossible to catch them.

"Not so," says trapper Jim Clatt. He not only is sure he will round them up, he has plans for their future. Already there are requests for 5,000 goats to be used on the mainland to level brush and prevent wildfires.

It shows what a little compromising can do. The Navy is happy the goats will be going. Environmentalists are happy the goats will be spared. And presumably the goats will be happy to get off the barren island and at those tasty, brush-covered hills of Southern California.

INSIDE REPORT:

Iraq eyes border chaos with bittersweet ambivalence

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

BAGHDAD, Iraq — Iraq's revolutionary socialist regime eyes the chaos across the border in Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's Iran with bittersweet ambivalence, predicting its ancient enemy's disintegration but fearing that it may bring in the two superpowers to frustrate Iraqi ambitions for dominance in the Arab world.

Sharing Khomeini's common enemy has not warmed official frosty relations between Baghdad and Washington. Rather, two Iraqi officials suggest the Americans might have designed the hostage crisis as a pretext for bringing military force to the Persian Gulf. That, these officials believe, would open the doors to satisfaction of Russia's timeless longing for Iran. Furthermore, Iraqis see post-Khomeini Iranian regimes controlled by Washington or, much more likely, Moscow.

Despite Moscow's role as Iraq's ally and arms supplier, Baghdad is worried most by the purposeful men in the Kremlin, not by Jimmy Carter. While U.S.-Iraqi relations cannot warm without unexpected cooling by Washington toward Israel, there is concern here, as in the conservative states of the Arabian peninsula, about the Russian bear's oil hunger in the 1980s.

Iraqi leaders do not hedge in condemning the Iranian seizure of the U.S. Embassy as being against the law of Islam. Nor do they flinch at forecasting Iran's disintegration as a multi-nationality state. Tariq Aziz, a deputy prime minister and President Saddam Hussein's closest adviser, has said bluntly: "The shah didn't solve both Soviet warships and the U.S.S. Kittyhawk. "I think the Iraqis would have much more sympathy for the Americans in Tehran," one Western diplomat suggested, "if they were absolutely sure you would not intervene militarily." Sure or not, Iraqi leaders would not stop worrying about what they fear will follow Khomeini quite soon: possibly a military regime linked to Washington; probably a communist regime linked to Moscow.

Concern here over a communist Iran reflects less than comradeship Soviet-Iraqi relations. A Soviet air marshal who just visited Baghdad was not given the treatment accorded Third World luminaries. When he placed flowers on the unknown soldiers' tomb, no senior Iraqi official accompanied him.

The regime regards the suppressed Iraq Communist Party as linked through fraternal communist parties to Eastern European states — including the Soviet Union. Thus, Iraq blamed the Bulgarian government when an Iraqi student in Bulgaria was killed in turmoil between Iraqi students loyal to Baghdad and exiled Iraqi communists.

While police here kept demonstrators far from the U.S. mission after the Camp David signing authorities permitted protesting throngs to press against the Bulgarian Embassy's gates, after Iraq's ambassador and all its students were brought home from Sofia, Bulgaria sent a deputy prime minister to Baghdad with formal apologies — still not satisfying Iraq. Bulgarian kowtowing was obviously on orders from Moscow, which wants to preserve this Middle East foothold, shaky though it is.

not end dismay here over Soviet airborne troops fighting the Moslem insurrection in nearby Afghanistan. "We are concerned by political or military action in the region by any major power," Aziz told us. As for the Russians as a prospective oil importer posing an additional threat, he added: "We in the Baathist Socialist Party believe all big powers are expansionist in nature."

Iraq wants to make its non-alignment more than a catch phrase, mainly through increased American business contacts. Hussein personally noted the exclusion of U.S. exhibits from October's Baghdad International Fair and made it clear there had better be some there next year.

But there is no pressing desire to resume formal diplomatic relations which were broken in 1967. Indeed, U.S. sponsorship of the Camp David accords has enabled Iraq, using oil money and Baathist ideology, to envision political dominion of the Persian Gulf — a subject for our last report from Iraq.

But Soviet satellite kowtowing will

A CHANGING WORLD:

Malaysia's deathly fear of Vietnam Reds

By JOHN PINKERMAN
Copley News Service

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia — The mood in this capital city of 800,000 is one of fear.

The elderly remember well Japan's sweep southward in its World War II conquest of Malaya and Singapore. The younger generation remembers the Communist Vietnamese sweep into Saigon, more recently the conquest of Laos — and now Kampuchea (Cambodia).

"Are we next?" is the question asked. And, if "we" are next, Malaysia's little army of 52,000 with no tanks and only 36 aircraft, will be no match for the well-trained Vietnamese invaders, using modern Soviet equipment plus U.S. tanks, planes and guns abandoned by American and South Vietnamese forces in the final chaotic days of the Vietnam War.

Malaysian fears of Vietnamese conquest center around several facts and prospects:

1 — The 12.3 million people of this nation (44 percent Malay, 36 percent Chinese and 20 percent Indian and others) know that as part of the Vietnamese takeover of Kampuchea, over 2.5 million of that nation's 8 million people have died because of the savagery of the Communist regime.

2 — The Malaysian people also know that the forces of Hanoi have used poison gas in their conquest of Laos, and the fear of such tactics in event of a drive down the Malayan peninsula is genuine.

3 — Both the people and the Kuala Lumpur government know that Thailand is the key to survival here. If the Vietnamese decide to chase refugees from Kampuchea (nearly 700,000 expected in the next few weeks), that chase will inevitably be followed by full-scale invasion, and Thailand's 141,000-man army will not be enough to halt the Reds. Malaysia will be next.

The effects of this new Vietnamese adventure are many, and they should not be lost on the United States. Malaysia sells the major portion of its vast rubber yield to the United States and other Western nations. It also is the world's leading exporter of tin, much of this vital product finding its way to the United States. Also, new offshore oil operations show considerable promise.

Another aspect of the crisis in this nation about the size of New Mexico is that it could be the battleground for a Soviet-Chinese confrontation. The Vietnamese are a Moscow satellite in effect and China has vowed to come to the aid of Thailand and Malaysia in event of a Red thrust into Thailand.

Meanwhile, Malaysia and other members of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (Singapore, Thailand, Indonesia and the Philippines) seek to mount some kind of political and military pressure against Vietnam. ASEAN has developed a sur-

CHARLEY REESE

American people subject to Common Cause propaganda

ORLANDO, Fla. — Here is an excellent example of the kind of propaganda to which the American people are often subjected:

"Campaign contributions from the American Medical Association played a major role in killing legislation that would have saved Americans billions of dollars in hospital costs, Common Cause says."

Please note two unproven claims in that paragraph from a news story: (1) that the legislation (hospital cost containment) would have saved Americans billions of dollars, and (2) there is a cause and effect relationship between an AMA campaign contribution and a congressman's vote.

Common Cause is an intellectually dishonest organization. In the first place, its founder and its seed money came from the multinational corporations and big foundations while it pretends to be concerned about the needs of the average Joe. What a laugh.

Most of what it advocates, like public campaign financing, would entrench the present system which is exactly what the multinational corporations want to do.

What evidence does Common Cause produce that AMA contributions played a major role in killing this legislation? Well, it seems that the AMA contributed on the average more to those who voted against it than it did to those who voted for it. Since the contributions were presumably made long before the vote came up, we are to assume, if we accept Common Cause's reasoning, that the AMA is psychic.

But how much were these contributions. On the average, they ranged from $2,000 to over $8,000 which at the high range amounts to about 3 percent of a normal congressional campaign fund. Apparently, the people who contributed the other 97 percent had no feelings about this legislation one way or the other.

In plain words, Common Cause is peddling hogwash. This piece of legislation was defeated overwhelmingly, even voted against by men who are strong supporters of President Carter who had made it a number one priority in his alleged fight against inflation.

To imply, as does Common Cause, that they voted solely on the basis of a campaign contribution is a cheap shot insult. Votes are sold on occasion but only a naive bumpkin believes that you can buy a vote with a public campaign contribution. The game is not played that way.

The second claim is equally false. The legislation would not have saved the American people billions of dollars. The figures bandied about by the administration were pulled out of a political hat. Three separate analyses of that bill — one by two congressmen, one by the Congressional Budget Committee, and one by private business organizations, tore the administration claims to pieces.

Congressmen Dave Stockman and Phil Gramm summarized HEW's case as "...a lurid caricature of the actual facts." I have read their analysis and it's obvious that HEW was more interested in deception and bamboozery than in honest arguments.

In short, the hospital cost containment bill was a bad bill and lost on its merits despite intense lobbying by the White House and Common Cause.

Common Cause, like so many other self-righteous organizations, is simply outraged that the Congress didn't vote the way they wanted it to. Since to Common Cause, it is impossible that they are wrong, then obviously they were defeated by villains.

Common Cause is really a classic case of a self-righteous do-gooder. Not only do they assume that they are right and that everyone who disagrees with them is evil, but in their wrath they insult the American Medical Association for doing exactly what they themselves are in the business of doing — attempting to influence legislation.

The truth is that Common Cause has acted badly in this instance, not the AMA, and that as far as health care goes, doesn't know what in the heck it's talking about.

THE BIBLE CAN YOU QUOTE IT?

By LAVINA ROSS FOWLER AND ELIZABETH ROSS WIERSEMA

1. Truly Abraham must have been one of the best men who ever lived. The Scripture tells of his faith, obedience, fairness, unselfishness, courtesy and other good qualities. How did he first show faith? Genesis 12:4.
  2. How did Abraham show his generosity toward Lot? Genesis 13:9-10.
  3. With what words did Melchizedek bless Abraham? Genesis 14:19-20.
  4. Give the Hebrew name of the hill and city, which flourished 2500 to 300 B.C., where the final battle between good and evil is to take place. It was also the place where Josiah was slain. 2 Kings 23:29 (K.J.) 4 Kings (D.).
  5. How did Paul describe his ailment? 2 Corinthians 12:7.

IT HAPPENED HERE

40 YEARS AGO (Dec. 31, 1939):

The upward rise in building in Midland in 1935 after a stand-still for three or four years, was continued during 1939 when permits for construction totaling $861,920 were issued.

Mark Russell says

Pope John Paul II reprimanded the theologian Hans Kung for excessive liberalism and taking liberties with tradition. The Pope had no choice when Kung wrote that the Nativity took place in Shreveport and that the Wise Men brought gold, frankincense and Tupperware.

It was utter heresy to quote the New Testament — "Thou art Peter and upon this rock I will build a Safety."

Kung took liberties with the Old Testament as well, writing — "Noah inflated a rubber ark" and "Joshua fit the Battle of Bull run."

Who can blame the Pope after this account of Kung's — "After delivering the Pep Talk on the Mount, Jesus fed the multitudes with loaves and Fritos."

Rape victims suffer through myths, trauma

By WANDA MOUTON
Lifestyle Editor

Editor's Note: Everyday, women of all ages, races and social and economic backgrounds suffer the trauma of rape and its aftermath. In 1978, 30 rapes were reported to the Midland Police Department and Sheriff Department. Sunday's article discussed the Midland Rape Crisis Center and a victim's personal experience. This article will deal with the myths and traumas of rape.

Rape victims, because of fear and embarrassment based on social myths, do not report the sexual assault to law enforcement agencies. "An estimated one case of every three to four rapes that occur in Midland are reported to the authorities," said Capt. Billy Ray of the Midland Police Department's detective division.

"Many women are unwilling to report a rape because of the belief that past sexual histories will be brought out in the courtroom," explained Nan Gordon, Midland Rape Crisis Center director.

"Questioning concerning rape victims' past sexual history was allowed in the past, but in 1975 the State of Texas passed a statute disallowing a rape victim's past sexual history in the courtroom unless it is relevant to the particular case at hand."

"Only if the woman has been married to or lived with the offender or has had previous sexual relations with the offender may the sexual relationship be presented," said Gordon.

"Inclinations of the public are to believe that a raped woman was at fault. People may think she probably provoked the attack," added Gordon.

NATIONAL STUDIES REPORT that only four per cent of reported rapes involved any precipitative behavior on the part of the woman. Precipitative behavior is often nothing more than walking and dressing in a way that is socially defined as attractive," said Gordon.

There is also the social belief that rape is impossible without consent, that a normal woman cannot rape a normal woman unless he has assistance.

"It is simply not true that a woman who does not want to be raped can always prevent it," explained Capt. Linda Petree, Midland Sheriff's Department.

"She may be knocked unconscious, or may submit because she fears for her life or her children's. Most men have more endurance than women. Plus, the attacker usually has the advantage of surprise," said Petree.

One continuing and prominent myth, long used as an excuse for rape, is that men rape because of an uncontrollable sexual impulse and unavailability of sexual outlets.

On a national scale, over one half of convicted rapists are married men and 95 per cent report having access to a willing partner. The typical offender's motivation is to express power, dominance, control and anger. Rape is a crime motivated by violence or misdirected aggression, not sex.

"Many people believe that women 'cry rape' to get even with a man or to protect their reputation," said Laura Chandler, assistant director of the Rape Crisis Center. "The process of reporting a rape is a long, tedious and sometimes humiliating experience, and, therefore, makes a very unsatisfactory means of revenge. False reports exist in the reporting of all crimes; but are recognized by investigators due to lack of evidence," she said.

"YOU ALWAYS HEAR that most rapes occur in dark back alleys," she continued. "Studies on the location of sexual assault show that more than half of all rapes committed occur in residences and more than one third of all rapes are committed by a man who forces his way into the victim's home.

"Many people believe that the typical rapist is a stranger to the victim, but a full 48 percent of rapists are known to the victim," said Chandler. "Some were merely casual friends, others close relatives. Rapists do not have a certain look about them, nor can they be labeled in any way," she said.

"The rapist cannot be stereotyped," added Gordon. "A rapist could be a person you least expect. Rape can occur when it is least expected."

She suggests that a good rule is to always be aware of surroundings. Never take anything or anybody for granted. And keep alert.

For many rape victims, the experience following the sexual assault is worse than the actual crime. She goes through varying emotional and physical symptoms. The Rape Crisis Center has trained volunteers who are available to help a victim deal with her particular symptoms of the trauma syndrome.

"For rape victims, the crime represents a disruption of lifestyle," said Gordon. "Symptoms may vary, but because of the traumatic experience of rape, the victim will have one or a number of the symptoms."

SHE DIVIDES THE SYMPTOMS into the acute and reorganizational phases.

"In the acute phase the victim commonly can not fall asleep, their appetite changes, they are nauseated, and they feel self blame."

"They fear future violence and seeing the rapist again. The victim will often see her attacker in other men's faces," said Gordon.

She went on to explain that a victim is usually on the verge of tears and is unable to keep the scene of the rape out of her mind.

A reorganization phase follows as the rape victim tries to return to a stable lifestyle that was disrupted with the rape.

"Often a victim experiences an increase in motor activity. She may change residences and telephone numbers, and suffer from fierce nightmares," said Gordon. "There is also the fear of the circumstances in which the rape occurred, such as a fear of being alone, of riding in cars, or even a fear of all men."

GORDON SAID THAT continuing myths concerning rape are what often make the victim experience these post-rape symptoms. Because society often blames the woman for provoking the attack, the unfortunate victim suffers from self blame.

The Rape Crisis Center volunteers and staff will provide programs with the Crime Prevention Unit of the Midland Police Department to educate the public on the realities of rape.

All requests for programs should be made through the MRCC (682-RAPE) or the Crime Prevention Unit (683-4281, ext. 338).

Any rape victim or her family who needs paraprofessional counseling, assistance or referral to another agency which deals with any rape related situation should contact MRCC volunteers on the 24-hour crisis line at 682-RAPE.

Some advice is offered by Lt. Jimmie Rhoads of the Midland office of the Texas Department of Public Safety, if you plan to party tonight. He said, "If you are going to party, arrange for someone to drive before-hand, if you know you are going to be drinking. Don't mix drinking with driving."

According to Rhoads, 56 Texas traffic deaths have been predicted for the holiday period which began 6 p.m. Friday and goes through midnight Tuesday.

So far, 12 Texans have been killed, as of Sunday night. Rhoads said another accident occurred at Van Horn this morning and was not included on that report.

Rhoads also pointed out that all drivers should observe speed limits. Most holiday accidents are caused from drinking and driving and the breaking of speed laws.

More accidents will probably occur in the early hours of Tuesday morning, around 12:30 to 2 a.m., said Rhoads, "when people start leaving parties."

Midland County hasn't had any fatalities and very few minor accidents, said Rhoads.

Let's help keep it that way. Drive defensively and stay alive to come back and make good news for the R-T instead of sad news.

Happy 1980.

Proper care will prolong books' life

NEW YORK (AP) — Whether you collect rare old volumes or today's best sellers, you'll want to keep your library in the best condition possible, says an expert on caring for books.

"The people who spend small fortunes on books often fail to care for them properly," says Jim Landers. "They cram books into the shelves, weakening the bindings, spill batter all over cookbooks, or leave open books lying around face down, wrinkling the fragile pages."

Landers, who as manager of a Waldenbooks store here is responsible for the maintenance of more than 100,000 books at any given time, offers some tips for keeping books in good condition:

—Leave enough space between books so they can be pulled out and replaced easily. Never stack books more than eight volumes high or shelve very large and very small books next to each other. Following this advice will make bindings last longer and keep your shelves neater.

—Store books away from moisture, preferably in a glass-fronted bookcase. Dust off the tops of your books regularly so dirt doesn't collect near the binding.

—Never bend the corners of pages to keep your place; this causes irreparable damage, especially when the book has aged and the dried-out paper breaks off easily.

—Open a new book carefully, gently easing the binding in several places; don't lay an open book pages down.

—When using a cookbook, place it on a special cookbook stand to hold the pages open, well out of the way of your ingredients.

—Teach children the value of books, and buy very young children books with plastic-coated or cardboard pages. Little children tend to walk around holding books by one page.

—Prolong life of valued paperbacks by reinforcing the cover with cardboard and laminated adhesive paper, or cover paperbacks immediately with a purchased paperback cover in reinforced plastic or imitation leather.

Man begins sewing for his therapy

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — After a fall in 1978 seemingly put him in a wheelchair for life, Guy Haskett took up sewing slippers as a form of therapy.

It worked wonders, not only for the 70-year-old Haskett but for hundreds of disadvantaged children and adults.

His most recent project was making slippers as gifts for youngsters in the Crippled Children's Home. He also recently donated 500 slippers to patients at the Veterans' Hospital.

Haskett — the father of 5, grandfather of 28 and great-grandfather of 5 — uses a treadle sewing machine that his mother used before he was born.

After the fall, Haskett himself was a patient in the Veterans' Hospital for a leg injury.

"Twenty-five doctors and five specialists never could find out what was wrong with his leg," said his wife of 40 years, Lucille.

He couldn't help in the plumbing-supply business they ran. He was in almost constant pain, could sleep only for brief periods. Then he had the idea that running the sewing machine and making slippers would take his mind off the pain.

He graduated from the wheelchair to a walker, from the walker to two canes, from the canes to getting about a little on his own. Mrs. Haskett says she has no doubt the sewing was responsible.

"He'd get up at 7 in the morning and would sew until 11 or 12 at night," she says, adding that the pain is still in his leg, "but he doesn't say anything about it any more."

So far he's made about 1,400 pairs of slippers for donations.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Tuesday, January 1, 1980
YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Paul Revere was born on this day and sounded the call to arms against the British. Your participation in presidential politics in year ahead may help preserve your country now. Business will be slow, but you can record progress with your usual devotion to hard work. Xavier Cugat was also born on this day, but while you may feel as romantic as Cugat, your marital relationship should last longer. Your strong, but gentle ways will be rewarded with love.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Happy New Year! Good day to take stock, make resolutions with real meaning for you. An open house may catapult you into new romantic adventure.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Happy New Year! 1980 starts off with peace and quiet. Loved ones are in affectionate, understanding mood. Open conversation may lead to decisions that enhance your future.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Happy New Year! Too much New Year's Eve celebrating may make the day difficult to face. Make the most of the positive forces at hand. Mate, partner give you joy.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Happy New Year! Treat people as you would like them to treat you. Someone is truly in love with you. Be aware of situation.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Happy New Year! Rest and enjoy quiet. Avoid taking a superior attitude—others will be alienated. Remember to return a favor.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Happy New Year! Older relatives are easier to get along with. Travel will not bring expected results. Compliment from old friend is heart-warming.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Happy New Year! Great day for joining forces with others. Alertness pays off for you. Keep your diet resolutions.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Happy New Year! You are determined to get the best out of life and working, even on a holiday, is not a chore. Enjoy being with a friend.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Happy New Year! Resolutions are not hard to make. Efforts to be more self-disciplined will win you new admiration from people who hold an important place in your life.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Happy New Year! Your goal to get things off to productive start will make this a happy day. People who live overseas have news.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Happy New Year! Timing is important today where key decisions or events are concerned. You are capable of constructive action in emotional or spiritual circumstances. You know how instinctively.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Happy New Year! Relying on intuition is rewarding for anyone who is in love. Talk with relatives by phone or visit with neighbors. A friendly exchange is enlightening.

Party-ers will find half-pints 'petite'

By JEFFREY MILLS

WASHINGTON (AP) — New Year's Eve revelers who closely check their liquor supplies today are likely to find that the pint or fifth they thought they were buying wasn't a pint or fifth at all.

A federal regulation taking effect with the start of the new year means the familiar labels will give way to metric measurements.

Thus the half-pint size of whiskey will shrink to 200 milliliters. That is 6.8 ounces, or 1.2 ounces less than a half-pint.

Actually, the 200 milliliter size already is in widespread use by distillers, who have had several years to conform to the new size regulation. The regulation makes U.S. liquor sizes conform to those in most of the rest of the world, making it easier to import and export liquor.

Other sizes allowed by the metrification program are 50 milliliters (1.7 fluid ounces), 500 milliliters (16.9 ounces, or about a pint), 750 milliliters (25.4 ounces or about the old "fifth" size), 1 liter (33.8 ounces or slightly larger than a quart) and 1.75 liters (59.2 ounces or slightly smaller than the old half-gallon).

Steve Davidson, manager of Apex Liquors in Washington, D.C., said customers who order half-pints now are given the 200-milliliter bottle, even though it is not as big.

"It will be a couple of years before people call bottles by their right name," he said.

Herb Rothberg, manager of Central Liquors here, said the conversion to metric containers provided a windfall for distillers and wholesalers.

New Year's merrymaking begun

By The Associated Press

Mystic, Conn., is stepping back 100 years to celebrate the end of the '70s as Americans by the millions sit back for an overdose of televised football and New Year's merrymaking.

In New York, police are hoping to keep Times Square peaceful, but in Boston, Baltimore and Honolulu, there may be no peace as fireworks hail the 1980s.

Meanwhile, mothers-to-be will sip champagne and celebrate with noisemakers, balloons and party hats tonight as they await that first child of the 1980s in the Lying-in Unit of Boston Hospital for Women.

The Seamen's Inn in Mystic, Conn., is recreating a New England New Year's Eve celebration from Dec. 31, 1879, with a 20-piece string ensemble and dinner served by costumed waiters.

In Milford, Conn., merrymakers can skate into the '80s at a disco roller rink. And in Hamden, Conn., Daniel Kearns plans to fill his club with 10,000 helium balloons, white stuff from three snowflake machines, confetti and machine-made fog.

"It's going to be like Disneyland in Hamden," he said.

"First Night 1980" — which actually begins on the "last night" of 1979 — offers Bostonians an arts celebration with more than 100 performances of dance, music, theater, poetry and mime. There are fireworks at midnight from City Hall Plaza.

At Baltimore's Inner Harbor, the city is staging bands, dancing and a sound-and-light show. As a barrage of fireworks lights up the sky, a 100-foot-high silver-and-gold helium sculpture will be launched from a waterfront office building.

Some of New York's active set will greet the new decade in Central Park by donning glow-in-the-dark T-shirts and joining in a 5-mile midnight run sponsored by the New York Road Runners Club.

Others will gather at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel, where Bill Lombardo, who took over Guy Lombardo's Royal Canadiens after his uncle's death two years ago, will conduct a disco version of "Auld Lang Syne."

Still others will attend a party given by comedian-filmmaker Woody Allen. Several hundred persons were asked to come — and those who weren't reportedly were eagerly hunting an invitation.

But the biggest party will be in Times Square, where 50,000 revelers are expected to hoot in the new year as a white ball of light drops from 1 Times Square at the stroke of midnight.

Some 900 police will be on hand to see that the merrymaking doesn't get out of hand. Last year, there was a stabbing, several dozen robberies and 40 picked pockets reported.

"It was a horror show," said officer Tom Quigley, whose regular beat includes Times Square.

Another crowd is expected in Atlanta's Margaret Mitchell Square to count down the end of 1979 on a clock under a huge, blinking red and white Coca-Cola sign. It's the last gasp for the sign, which will be removed to make way for an office building and park.

Meanwhile, football fanatics warmed their TV easy chairs Saturday and Sunday with two post-season college bowl games and four National Football League playoff games.

Today college teams meet in the Peach Bowl and the Bluebonnet Bowl. On New Year's Day, there are four bowls — Sugar, Cotton, Rose and Orange — likely to decide the national championship.

Klan to continue picketing funeral home

DALLAS (AP) — A granddaughter of longtime Ku Klux Klan spokesman Addie Barlow Frazier said Klansmen would picket again today outside a Dallas funeral home which refused to allow a KKK funeral for her.

Mrs. Frazier, 72, who helped organize a Klan rally in downtown Dallas on Nov. 3, died Saturday night in a Dallas hospital, where she was admitted Dec. 7 with viral pneumonia.

Beverly Pittman, who lives in the north Dallas suburb of Carrollton, said her grandmother bought a pre-need burial policy in January 1976 with Laurel Land, a Dallas funeral home and cemetery, through monthly payments that totaled $685.51.

"They flatly refused to give her a Klan ceremony, because of the robes. They wanted no robes Klansmen there. They said they wanted no trouble," said Mrs. Pittman, who said there were "four or five" KKK members picketing the funeral home Sunday and said others would return today.

"We're working off a little anger and frustration," said Dan Smith of Dallas, one of four robed klansmen demonstrating at the funeral home Sunday.

"To deny somebody their last rites is pretty low down," he said.

"They allow robes at funerals of Shriners, beanies at Jewish funerals, and if it's a military funeral, they allow uniforms, but they flatly refused to give her a Klan ceremony because of the robes. They wanted no robes Klansmen there. They said they wanted no trouble," Mrs. Pittman said.

At the family's demand, the funeral home returned the money for the policy, and another Dallas funeral home agreed to allow a Klan funeral, she said.

Robert McNatt, general manager of the funeral home, said they refused to allow the Klan funeral because "by them being dress as Klansmen, that would have created a disturbance."

"We could not have them robed in the chapel and in the park," he added.

Her grandmother joined the Ku Klux Klan in 1952, Mrs. Pittman said, and was on a first-name basis with Klan leaders throughout the United States.

"She always carried brochures and literature for the Ku Klux Klan and never spoke anything but God, her country and the Klan," her granddaughter said.

The funeral is expected to be Wednesday, Mrs. Pittman said, because of KKK officials from throughout the country who have indicated they want to pay their respects.

"I have gotten calls from Georgia, Kentucky, Alabama, South Carolina, Arkansas, all over the United States," she said.

Mrs. Frazier is survived by a daughter, Erma Frazier of Carrollton; two granddaughters, Mrs. Pittman of Carrollton and Becky Davis of Arlington, Texas; a grandson, Jimmy Barnes of Houston; and seven grandchildren.

Burned boy flown to Galveston

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — A two-year-old Mexican boy, critically injured when he fell into a burning pit of garbage, has been flown from El Paso to Galveston for treatment of burns that cover 65 percent of his body, authorities say.

Space was found late Sunday in the Shriners Burns Hospital in Galveston for Jose Luis Romero of Juarez, Mexico, after officials at an El Paso hospital said their burns unit lacked the facilities to treat such severe injuries.

Shriners got him admitted to Sun Towers Hospital in El Paso, which has a burns unit, but officials said the boy's hopes for survival hinged on getting him to the Galveston hospital with its larger facilities for burns treatment.

The boy lost his nose and ears because of the burns, and officials said he was in danger of losing his hands. U.S. Air Force officials agreed to fly the child to a military installation near wherever treatment could be obtained, and a C-9 air evacuation plane designed to carry patients was dispatched late Sunday from Scott Air Force Base in Illinois.

The plane left El Paso International Airport with the boy about 12:30 a.m. today for Ellington Air Force Base in Houston, where a Coast Guard helicopter stood by to take the burns victim to Galveston.

Worldwide campaign under way to save vicuna, endangered species

By KERNAN TURNER

LIMA, Peru (AP) — Four Andean countries have extended their protection of the vicuna, one of the world's endangered species, for another 10 years.

The vicuna's hide and soft wool command high prices on international markets, although it has been illegal to export vicuna products for the past 10 years.

Conservationists said there appeared no way to stop the government slaughter of at least 5,000 vicunas in Peru, where biologists fear overcrowding at the main reserve is dangerous for the entire herd.

The local branch of the World Wildlife Fund said it had the support of the Peruvian Foreign Ministry to begin a worldwide campaign to raise a half million dollars to transport an additional 5,000 vicunas from the reserve to other, less populated areas.

The basic purpose of the treaty approved recently by Chile, Bolivia, Ecuador and Peru is to continue a 10-year ban on the hunting and commercial use of the vicuna, a wild member of the camel family, related to the domesticated llama and alpaca.

Felipe Benavides, president of the World Wildlife Fund in Peru, said the treaty represented a victory for conservationists. Benavides is a winner of the J. Paul Getty award for his work in saving the vicuna from extinction.

The campaign has resulted in an increase in the number of the vicunas from between 5,000 and 10,000 in 1965 to more than 65,000 today. In the time of the Inca empire here, the vicuna herd numbered more than a million head.

Peru has the largest population, some 55,000 vicunas, compared with 3,384 in Bolivia, 6,124 in Chile and 7,000 in Argentina.

Argentina did not subscribe to the new treaty because its local laws are more strict than the terms of the accord, Benavides said.

Benavides said the most important part of the new treaty was the establishment of a commission, with representatives from each country, to regulate the future utilization of vicuna products. The treaty also requires the products to be marketed under one, international brand controlled by the commission.

Any slaughter must be backed up by scientific evidence that it is necessary to protect the conservation of the vicuna herd.

"This will keep poachers from exporting illegal products," Benavides said.

He also said it would be illegal to export raw wool or hides, except as part of finished goods approved by the commission.

The commission's first meeting will be in April, when Peruvian biologists are expected to advocate killing 10,000 vicunas.

The biologists claim that the Pampa Galeras Reserve, high in the Andes 300 miles southeast of Lima, is overcrowded. The reserve has been the focus of the worldwide campaign to save the vicuna.

Benavides' fund-raising drive will be to pay for the transportation of 5,000 of the doomed vicunas to other suitable Peruvian pastures.

RINGING THE BELL Black dreams, vision and black leadership

With BOB TIEUEL

In his famous Washington, D.C., speech the late Dr. Martin Luther King expressed his dreams for America, yet Father Cecil Williams states that more important is what are the dreams of the black people of America themselves? What is the vision of Black America?

He adds: "My dream and my vision for Black America is of a people who have not merely achieved first class status as citizens of America, but the distinction of being a great and outstanding people among the peoples of the earth. If such a dream were to become a reality, then the black people of America must be alive and respond to the challenge of racial self-development which is demanded.

"While civil rights laws enacted and enforced impartially can make even the humblest American a first class citizen, no civil rights law can make any human being who is of a second rate personality a first class human being. That lies with the individual himself or herself."

The most ideal leadership for black people as we face 1980 and the years just ahead will be that to come from men and women of high moral and spiritual character, believes the minister. Any leader, whatever his or her abilities, who has no reverence for God and morality can eventually be the ruin of those whom he leads. Remember Adolf Hitler!

Recent great quotes: Even though we are losing more black people as a result of murder in the United States than we did during the Vietnam War, the problem raises no cries from our black congressional leadership, civic or church leadership....And in spite of the fact that Texas is only 12.4 percent black, more than 48 percent of the victims of murders in 1977 were black.

Until later Peace, and have a good New Year!

DR. NEIL SOLOMON
Diet can relieve, but not cure ulcers

Dear Dr. Solomon: Can ulcers be cured through adherence to a strict diet? — Mr. L.S.

Dear Mr. S.: Adherence to a soft, bland diet can relieve pain, but recent studies indicate that, by itself, diet does not help heal an ulcer. For healing to take effect, it is necessary to neutralize the acid in the stomach.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I don't suffer from claustrophobia, but the idea of being cooped up in a spacecraft for days and weeks or even months sends shivers up my back. Is there anything about the astronauts that seems to set them apart from us mortals? — Mr. S.S.

Dear Mr. S.: Aside from the fact that the astronauts obviously were in top physical, mental and emotional condition, one interesting feature does seem to set them apart. Most of them either are the only children born to their parents, or they are first-born sons. In fact, this family position applies to 21 of the first 23 astronauts who went on space missions. Moreover, this same characteristic seems to hold true for people successful in other fields, such as business executives.

The phenomenon of superior achievements by first-born sons was documented recently by two researchers from the New York State Department of Social Hygiene. Lillian Belmont and Francis Marolla reviewed the results of an intelligence test given to almost 400,000 men, 19 years of age, in the Netherlands. The subjects comprised almost all the male children born there from 1944 to 1947.

The study revealed that those who had been born first scored better on the intelligence test than their brothers and sisters who came later. Moreover, in most instances the test scores fell between the first and second-born, between the second and third-born, etc.

The size of the family also affected intelligence test scores — the larger the family, the worse the scores. Thus the men who came from families with three children generally had higher scores than those from families with four children, and so on. Similar results were obtained in a study of 800,000 men and women who had applied for National Merit Scholarships.

If test scores are lowered as the size of the family increases, one might logically conclude that those who were only children did best. Yet this is not the case. The first-born in a family with two children generally achieved more than children without brothers or sisters.

There are many theories about the reasons for the phenomenon, but no real answers. One theory is that first-born children excel because for a while, at least, they enjoy their parents' undivided attention.

One consolation for those who came later in the family birth order is that they appear to be more popular among their classmates and contemporaries.

Telephone Number Bid

By Alfred Sheinwold

Good players don't overbid so foolishly that the penalty looks like a telephone number. Right?

Wrong. The worst penalty in the recent world championship in Rio de Janeiro was suffered by Benito Garozzo when the famous Italian Blue Team lost to the United States. And Garozzo is no slouch.

When U.S. experts Billy Eisenberg and Edwin Kantar bid six notrump, Garozzo sacrificed at seven clubs.

NOT HIS DAY

It was not Garozzo's day. Kantar doubled, and the defense held declarer to four tricks. Down nine came to a mere 1700 points.

This would have cost only 260 points if the Italian pair at the other table of the match had scored 1440 points on the East-West cards for bidding and making six notrump. Actually, the East-West pair at the second table bid seven spades and were down one when the opening club lead was ruffed.

Italy lost 1800 points at the two tables combined. Save this to show your partner if you lose a telephone number some day.

Locker room oratory vanishing?

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — What's become of the fiery locker room speech?

You hardly ever hear of football coaches making them anymore. Unless they're orating from atop the rubbing table while the TV announcer is giving his halftime pep talk for an insurance company or telling you how Old Siwash, the game of the day college, has an atomic reactor in the basement of the field house and six Nobel Prize winners who get paid almost as much as the assistant line coach.

Probably in this day of coaches wired for sound and spies in the press box telephoning down enemy tactics and quarterbacks audibling (that was the sportscaster's verb last week) all over the place, the art of steam room rhetoric is in serious decline.

ists out there." Returning to the fray with renewed religious fervor, the Irish blasted the heretics 13-10.

Rockne's nettlesome discourses to the flower of Notre Dame manhood are even more memorable than his five undefeated seasons at South Bend and his 12-year record of 105 wins, 12 losses and 5 ties. In that flat, nasal, metallic voice, issuing from a face that Westbrook Pegler said "looked like a battered oil can," he could be scolding, cajoling, ranting, pleading, even weeping, but most often acidly sarcastic.

One of his best speeches contained only two words. With favored Notre Dame trailing at halftime, Rockne didn't accompany the squad to the dressing room. They waited half-an-hour in dejected silence for the expected tirade. No Rockne. An official put his head in the door and announced, "Team on the field in two minutes." Still no Rockne. With 30 seconds to go, the door burst open.

THE ROCK glared his basilisk glare at each player, then spat out, with disgust and disbelief.

"Fighting Irish!" Those two words were worth a pair of touchdowns apiece in overhauling bitter rival Nebraska.

Rockne, a born actor who became a sought-after public speaker, was shameless in his melodramatics and had the Midwest distributorship on bathos. He gave several Dying Gaul panegyrics from a wheelchair during a bout with thrombophlebitis. He once defected into the stands for the second half rather than, as he told the team, preside over "a lousy gutless performance."

ROCKNE used the occasion of his baptism in the Catholic Church to scourge a Notre Dame team trailing Northwestern by 10 points with a halftime sermon that began: "Obviously this is a helluva religion I've gotten myself into: losing to a bunch of Method-

Irish luck, was seen blinking back tears. Final score: Army 7, Gipper's Ghost 28.

LOMBARDI is from the Mark Antony school of public speaking. He comes not to praise but to bury. A Rockne acolyte, he is famous for a number of homilies on premeditated homicide to his Green Bay Packers. A man of many moods, mostly different shades of rage, he is the author of such epigrams as: "Winning is not everything. It is the only thing." "Fatigue makes cowards of us all." "Put your nose right in the other guy's numbers. The neck bone is the strongest bone in the body. You cannot possibly hurt the neck bone." "The Lord gave you a body that can stand anything. It's your mind you have to convince."

THE CICERO of the rubdown table was Yale coach Tad Jones, who sent his troops forth against Harvard in 1924 with the classic: "Gentlemen, you are about to play Harvard. You may never again do anything as important."

Bob Zupke of Illinois delivered the only known pep talk in French. No one on the squad knew what he was talking about, but with Harold George "Red" Grange seated in the front pew the point was deemed less than moot.

When the learned Herman Hickman was at Yale, striving to "keep the alumni sullen but not mutinous," he memorized bits of poetry and drama to goad the numbered lumps of lard in his keeping. Autumn shadows stretching across Harvard Stadium at the start of the 1948 traditional game filled his poetic soul with thoughts of the Coliseum in Rome. He chose for his text the speech of Spartacus to the Gladiators, beginning "You call me chief but you do well to call him chief."

Harvard coach Art Valpey did not go into deep cultural shock. "I can't read any Greek," he said afterwards. "But I can read a scoreboard. It says Harvard 20, Yale 7."

OPEC base price expected to reach $30

By JOHN M. BERRY
The Washington Post

ATLANTA — After a brief lull in the first half of 1980, world oil prices will take off again with OPEC's present $24 base soon hitting $30 a barrel, several oil experts predicted Friday.

"To my view, a base price around $30 a barrel is likely to be achieved by the end of 1980, an increase of another 23 percent on top of the current OPEC average price," Anthony Copp, an energy specialist with Salomon Brothers, the New York investment bankers told a session on oil pricing at the annual meeting of the American Economic Association.

"I have no quarrel at all with that forecast," M.A. Adelman of M.I.T., a world oil market expert, declared.

Several OPEC members announced new price hikes last week, with Libya going all the way to $34 a barrel. Saudi Arabia, however, which produces nearly one-third of OPEC oil, is selling its oil for $24 a barrel, up from $18 a few weeks ago.

Even with the latest round of OPEC increases, economist William Prast of Columbia University said he expects a far smaller increase in refined product prices during 1980 than the 60 percent or so jump this year. Part of the reason will be "flat demand" for energy in the industrial nations in 1980.

If Prast is right, profit margins for refiners, distributors and retailers of petroleum products, which increased sharply this year, will be squeezed.

An encouraging part of the forecast was a prediction of declining spot market prices for crude oil. "Barring unforeseen events," Copp said, "a higher contract price... will reduce the attractiveness of paying close to

ENERGY OIL & GAS

$40 a barrel for spot crude. In the short run, higher official based prices will bring down spot prices.

"My concern is that the short run may last for only about half a year. By the end of 1980, it is possible to witness another jump in the spot rates," Copp warned.

If spot prices do come down early next year, that will offset a significant part of the latest round of OPEC increases. In November, according to Carter administration energy officials, about 20 percent of crude oil imported into the U.S. was bought at spot market prices. Should spot prices drop to the $32 to $35 range, that would be an $8 to $10 a barrel drop for that one-fifth of imported crude.

For the longer run, none of the economists on the panel had anything but gloomy words for oil consumers.

David Nissen, of Chase Manhattan Bank, said a combination of high inflation and an expected slower pace of economic development in oil exporting nations have produced a situation in which the exporters' best investment opportunity may well be leaving the oil in the ground. If so, then the exporters can be expected to produce only enough oil to cover their current cash needs, Nissen said.

Copp predicted "nominal prices of between $50 and $75 per barrel are likely to be achieved long before the end of the coming decade. Such a pricing outlook has enormous implications for the international monetary system, the debt problems of less developed countries, not to mention the political difficulties in the United States of coping with $2.50 to $3 per gallon prices for motor gasoline."

Albert Danielson, a University of Georgia economist, also expects the Saudis "to adjust their price upward to the $30 range" by the end of the year. Danielson said OPEC's pricing power is so great that it can raise prices even in the face of lower demand from the industrial nations — demand that is dropping because of slower economic growth, higher oil prices, and the fact that most of the world's storage tanks are full.

At prior meetings of the American Economic Association, as Chase Manhattan's Nissen noted, energy economists regularly were predicting oil prices eventually would decline in real terms — that is they would be going up less than other prices. Friday, no economist wanted to climb out on that limb.

Ashland Oil Co. says its in business to produce money

By JOHN M. BERRY
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Ashland Oil Co. makes no bones about the business it's in, which is producing cash, not oil.

And in pursuit of cash in the last two years, Ashland has done an extraordinary thing for a major oil company. As part of a "redeployment" strategy, it has sold off many of its oil wells and all but scrapped its search for new ones.

With the $1.2 billion it received for its oil properties, Ashland happily doubled its dividend, repurchased 15.5 million shares of its own common stock from the public, paid off part of its debt and, as of Sept. 30, had more than $400 million left, which it plans to use to buy some cash-rich non-oil company.

Yet Ashland also very much intends to remain in the oil business as a refiner and marketer.

It is counting on the U.S. government to force other oil companies to sell it the crude oil it needs if it should run short. So far, it has succeeded.

Just the other day, a U.S. District Court upheld a government order that nine other large oil companies, ranging from Exxon down to Marathon, which is smaller than Ashland, sell the company 80,000 barrels of crude oil a day to replace most of the 100,000 barrels a day it lost in November when President Carter embargoed imports of oil from Iran.

"THEY SOLD OFF their assets in the North Sea, in Canada and the United States," complains a bitter executive with one of the nine, "while saying the government would take care of them if they got in a bind."

"Ashland is putting itself in position to be the first nationalized oil company," he continued. "I think it is the pits."

What so enrages the other oil companies is this: Ashland, in addition to realizing great amounts of cash from the sale of its producing properties, has managed neatly to rid itself of the costs and risks of finding new wells, in fact, has shifted these burdens onto its competitors.

With the success of its petition for an allocation of crude from other companies, Chairman Orin Atkins could write in the company's just-released 1979 annual report, "Ashland Petroleum Company, with its recently expanded refining capacity, remains in an excellent competitive position despite the uncertainties of foreign crude oil supplies and prices."

Company executives were confident the government would come through because Ashland — with $6.7 billion in sales and revenues last year, less than one-tenth the size of Exxon — has its operations concentrated in an area running through the Ohio and Upper Mississippi River valleys. A sharp cutback in operations at Ashland's seven refineries, which have a combined capacity of 475,000 barrels a day, could hurt severely that part of the country.

As its chief operating officer, John Hall, put it in the annual report, "In light of the possibility of future petroleum product shortages, our position is strengthened by the regional locations of our refineries; in some instances they are the only facilities capable of serving important markets."

WHEN IT APPEALED to the government late in November for an allocation of crude from other companies, Ashland never claimed that it could not replace the lost oil, only that it would cost $40 or more a barrel to do so on the spot market when it had been paying only $23.50 for Iranian light.

In fact, Ashland officials testified before the Office of Hearings and Appeals of the Economic Regulatory Administration, a part of the Department of Energy, that the company had lost 35,000 barrels a day of crude from Abu Dhabi not long ago strictly because of price.

Abu Dhabi the largest Arab emirate, told Ashland it could still buy the 35,000 barrels a day but would have to pay spot market prices instead of the $21.56 it had been paying. Ashland declined to buy, Hall testified.

Ashland argued for the DOE crude oil allocation "to relieve the extreme hardship, gross inequity and unfair distribution of burdens which will be inflicted upon Ashland, its customers, and its marketing areas as a result of the unilateral action of the President of the United States in terminating the import of Iranian crude oil into the United States."

The "major integrated multinational" oil companies that would have to provide the oil could replace it either through exchanges with foreign oil companies still able to use Iranian crude or through spot market purchases, spreading the added cost to all their customers, or not replace it, spreading the resulting shortfall to all their customers, Ashland said.

In other words, the added economic burden ought to be shifted to the other companies, Ashland said, because they were bigger and had more crude and therefore they and their customers could absorb the losses more easily.

THE SHARPEST rejoinder came from Marathon Oil Co., which ultimately was ordered to supply more than 10 percent of the 80,000 barrels a day.

"This is a case where one company simply does not want to pay spot market prices for replacement of crude oil," the Marathon brief said. "Ashland simply doesn't want to invest in obtaining oil when it can rely on the government to force its competitors, who have undertaken those investments, to share their oil with it."

Marathon's total revenues in 1978 were slightly less than $5 billion, smaller than Ashland's, but substantially more of it came from crude oil production. Marathon is the operator for the Brae field in the North Sea in which Ashland sold its own interest this year.

Nine months ago, when Ashland was completing its deals, William Harli, its director of financial communications, explained the sales this way to Oil and Gas Journal: "We feel the profits have been taken from the oil and gas exploration business through price controls and regulations. Most of the easy stuff has been found, an it's going to take increasing amounts of capital to find incremental amounts" of oil and gas.

"We're confident that we'll be able to purchase enough crude on the market to service our capacity, and if we can't, the government will step in and allocate."

Other Ashland executives argue it is good that Ashland sold the oil properties to companies like Tenneco because its luck at finding oil has been poor. Moreover, they said, Ashland still is buying about 19,000 barrels a day of the 20,000 barrels they formerly were producing on their own.

BUT OFFICIALS IN other oil companies point angrily to Atkins' desire "to maximize cash generation" as the real reason for the sales. He has, for instance, explained sale of Ashland's Canadian wells on grounds that, while they were earning $20 million a year, that was not enough to pay for an aggressive exploration program and still contribute a fair share toward dividend payments.

It often takes a long time for exploration and development expenses to pay off. Cutting such expenses helps the bottom line immediately. Ashland's exploration and dry hole costs dropped from $66.2 million to $26.5 million in a single year.

Atkins basic strategy, aside from generating more cash, has been to sell assets at full market value and use part of the proceeds to buy up Ashland shares whose price did not reflect the full value of the assets being disposed of. Both parts of the strategy give a great lift to per-share earnings, as the balance sheet shows.

Earnings per share shot up from $5.52 in 1978 to $15.55 in 1979. The return on stockholder equity nearly doubled, from 28.6 percent in 1978 to 54.9 percent this year. And the stock price jumped from a low of 20 1/4 last year to 41 1/8 this year, after adjustment for a three-fourths stock split.

The government is left with a dilemma. What do you do if a refiner decides the best strategy these days is to have no crude at all?

Energy Secretary Charles Duncan said, "We are in a very complicated situation respecting the cost of crude oil," which until the recent OPEC price increases from between $18 and $51 a barrel on world markets.

"YOU HAVE TO consider what is reasonable and equitable," Duncan said of the effects of the embargo on Iranian imports. "To do nothing would cause great inequities to appear between the companies... We have a responsibility, where it is appropriate, to get into these kinds of situations."

Of Ashland, he said, "I think that, with the spirit of equity and fairness, the decision made was the right decision."

The nine oil companies now providing Ashland with that 80,000 barrels a day, however, vehemently contend that the decision significantly changes their competitive situation. In parts of Ashland's marketing area, they are in competition with Ashland. In those areas, Ashland is better off because of the crude oil allocation and they are worse off, they say.

In fact, Ashland's need for crude oil is increasing. Last April it completed a major expansion of its Catlettsburg refinery, and it has been seeking new customers.

One of Ashland's backers at the crude oil allocation hearing was fledgling Midway Airlines, which began operating DC9 commuter services out of Chicago's Midway Airport Nov. 1. A key to commencing operations was finding a contract for jet fuel, a precondition the new line's financial backers insisted upon. Ashland was the only company willing to sign such a contract, Midway officials said.

Kuwait oil price soars 100 percent during 1979

KUWAIT (AP) — Kuwaiti oil prices soared a full 100 percent in 1979 as the government ended the year with a 19 percent increase.

The $4.07 rise was announced Sunday by State Minister Abdul Aziz Hussein. It put the price of a 42-gallon barrel of Kuwaiti crude at $25.50, above the $24 a barrel price now being charged by Saudi Arabia, the world's largest oil exporter.

Kuwait, which was charging $12.27 a barrel at the beginning of 1979, ships about 150,000 barrels a day to the United States, considerably less than one percent of total U.S. consumption.

Kuwait was one of the few holdouts among members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries who hiked their prices prior to the cartel's meeting in Caracas, Venezuela two weeks ago. Those increases, including Saudi Arabia's jump from $18 to $24 a barrel, are expected to raise U.S. fuel prices by 5 to 10 cents a gallon.

Iran, Japan agree on $30 average for oil imports

TOKYO (AP) — The governments of Japan and Iran agreed today to set the price of long-term Iranian oil imports at an average $30 a barrel, a Japanese Foreign Ministry source was reported as saying.

Kyodo news service, quoting an unidentified source, said the agreement between the Japanese envoy in Tehran, Tsutomu Wada, and Iranian Oil Minister Ali Akbar Moinefar paved the way for Japanese importers to proceed with individual negotiations on the volume of oil imports next year.

Japan imported 455,000 barrels of oil a day, or about 10 percent of its oil imports, directly from Iran in 1979, Kyodo said.

It quoted a Japanese oil company source as saying that for financial reasons Iran would have to export a lot of oil and that Japan would not have to worry about securing the volume it needed.

But a source at the Japanese Ministry of International Trade and Industry was quoted by Kyodo as saying that the Japanese government would continue to ask oil importers to conduct negotiations with care.

The Caracas meeting failed to set a ceiling on prices and Libya, Venezuela, Indonesia and Iraq began a new spiral Friday, raising prices up to 20 percent in a move that could tack on 2 to 3 cents more to American fuel costs.

The Friday increases were the second in a month for three of the four countries. Analysts have said that if most other OPEC members follow the Libyan jump to $34.50 a barrel, U.S. prices could climb at least another five cents a gallon.

Saudi Arabia, leader of OPEC's moderate camp and the chief OPEC exporter to the United States, said it raised its prices on the eve of the Caracas meeting in an attempt to head off bigger hikes by OPEC hard-liners.

The United Arab Emirates and Qatar followed the Saudi lead but Kuwait held off because it "did not want (to) put advance pressure on the Caracas meeting," Hussein said.

Import dip narrows U.S. trade deficit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's trade deficit narrowed to $1.4 billion in November as the volume of imports fell to the lowest level in nearly two years, the Commerce Department has reported.

Last month's deficit was an improvement from deficits of $2 billion in October and $2.8 billion in September. In both September and October, the United States paid record bills for crude oil and refined product imports.

The value of imports, including oil, fell 2.3 percent from $18.9 billion in October to $18.4 billion in November, while exports rose 1 percent from $16.8 billion in October to a record $17 billion in November, according to Friday's report.

Because of the strength of exports, especially agricultural and manufactured products, the nation is expected to end the year with a total $23.4 billion deficit, an improvement of more than $5 billion from 1978.

Much of the November improvement in the trade balance was credited to a sharp drop in oil imports, which totaled 219.6 million barrels in November, down 20 percent from October to the lowest level since imports of 218.8 million barrels in December 1977.

Commerce Department and oil industry officials said oil companies had probably filled most of their storage capacity by November, having stockpiled oil to beat OPEC price increases.

DETROIT (AP) — About 16,000 Chevrolet four-wheel-drive LUV trucks are being recalled to fix a potential steering problem, the Chevrolet

Division of General Motors Corp. announced.

Chevrolet said the upper control arm bolts on the front suspension could loosen under severe off-road driving.

The problem was discovered in test driving and no reports of bolts coming loose in use had been received, Chevrolet said Friday.

If bolts came off, the arm could rub against the brake fluid line and in theory could cut it, Chevrolet said, though that had not happened in the tests.

The trucks affected were from early production of the four-wheel-drive version of the truck, introduced in the United States in December 1978. The trucks are made in Japan by Isuzu Motors, of which GM owns 34 percent.

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's basic money supply declined by a modest amount in the latest reporting week, the Federal Reserve has reported. A more broadly defined measurement of money supply increased slightly.

Analysts who follow money supply statistics saw nothing in Friday's report to indicate significant changes in interest rates or in the monetary policy of the Federal Reserve.

The basic money supply, known as M1, declined $500 million to a seasonally adjusted average of $379.6 billion in the week ended Dec. 19. M1 includes cash in circulation and funds in checking accounts.

M2, which includes M1 plus funds in savings accounts at commercial banks, rose $700 million to an average of $947.2 billion in the week.

"We will act after taking into consideration the moves by other oil importing countries," the source was quoted as saying.

Japanese oil importers started negotiations with Iran last Dec. 9 but stopped them recently under the guidance of the Japanese government because of the troubles between the United States and Iran.

Kyodo said Japan agreed on the $30-a-barrel price apparently because Britain's British Petroleum and Shell Oil were considering similar agreements with Iran.

It said Iran asked for $28.50 a barrel for half its oil exports to Japan and $31.50 a barrel for the other half.

By comparison, Saudi Arabia, the biggest oil exporter and a moderate on pricing, recently raised its prices to $24 a 42-gallon barrel. Kuwait announced Sunday that it had raised its oil price to $25.50 a barrel, retroactive to Nov. 1. Libya, a pricing "hawk" recently raised its price to $34.50 a barrel.

Kyodo said many industry sources here believe Iran will try to raise the price of its oil after the meeting of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries scheduled for February.

DEATHS

Ruby J. Bean

LAMESA — Services for Ruby Juanita Bean, 64, of Lamesa were to be at 2:30 p.m. today in the Second Baptist Church with the Rev. Clifton Igo, pastor, officiating.

Burial was to be in Lamesa Memorial Park directed by Branon Funeral Home.

Mrs. Bean died Friday in a Lubbock hospital following a brief illness.

She was born in Carlsbad, N.M., and was a longtime Dawson County resident. She was married to Emery Bean on Dec. 12, 1929, in Comanche. He died in 1964.

She was a member of the Eastern Star and the Second Baptist Church.

Survivors include a son, Charles Bean of Dickinson; four daughters, Juanita Mayfield, Berniece Neagle and Joy Lee Bean, all of Lamesa, and Marie Frazier of Bowie; a sister, Norma Barenchi of Vallejo, Calif.; a brother, R.W. Bradfutt of Moriarty, N.M.; 19 grandchildren, and seven great-grandchildren.

Beverly Loffler

ANDREWS — Services for Beverly Jean Loffler, 38, of Andrews were to be at 2 p.m. today in Singleton Funeral Home Chapel of the Chimes with the Rev. Ramsey Humphries, minister of Andrews Christian Fellowship Church, officiating.

Burial was to be in Andrews Cemetery.

She died Saturday in an Andrews hospital after a lengthy illness.

She was a native of Kennedy. She was married Sept. 1, 1975, to Jess Loffler in Wichita Falls. She moved to Andrews 13 years ago from Garden City.

Survivors include her husband; two sons, Jess Loffler Jr. and Leslie Loffler, both of Andrews; two daughters, Glenda Morgan and Debora Harrison, both of Andrews; her mother, May Conger of Quemada; a sister, Glenda Taylor of Vacaville, Calif.; a brother, Ben Gear of Pecos; and two grandchildren.

Don H. Reynolds

Graveside services for Don Howard Reynolds, 44, of rural Midland County were to be at 2 p.m. today in Sunset Memorial Gardens at Odessa with the Rev. Jerry Thorp, a Baptist minister, officiating.

Arrangements were handled by Thomas Funeral Home of Midland.

Reynolds died Sunday in a mobile home fire in Midland County.

He was born Oct. 19, 1935, in Oklahoma City, Okla. He had lived in Odessa several years prior to moving to Midland in 1963.

Survivors include his mother, Florence Reynolds of Midland; a son, Shannon Reynolds of Midland; two daughters, Candice Reynolds and Amy Dawn Reynolds, both of Midland; and a brother, Lee Reynolds of Odessa.

F. Edward Hebert dies

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — F. Edward Hebert, a military hawk for his 36 years in Congress and a former chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, was praised as a "dedicated American" who "put the security of the United States first."

Hebert died Saturday of a heart attack at Hotel Dieu Hospital, where he had been recovering since Dec. 10 from a congestive heart condition. He was 78.

Hebert's funeral was scheduled for today at the historic St. Louis Cathedral with interment at the Lake Lawn Mausoleum.

The Most Rev. Philip M. Hannan, Roman Catholic archbishop of New Orleans, was to preside at the services.

In Washington, House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill said Hebert would be "remembered in the House as a patriotic congressman who put the security of the United States first" while serving under six presidents.

Former President Gerald Ford, one of the six presidents Hebert served under, said the former congressman was a "superb legislator who was totally dedicated to keeping the United States strong."

Sen. Russell Long, D-La., called him a "dedicated American and a conservative in the best meaning of the word," saying he would remember his former colleague as "a man who never made a commitment lightly and never failed to keep one."

Survivors include Hebert's widow, Gladys; a daughter, Mrs. John Duhe of New Iberia, La.; a brother, Gordon Hebert of Gulfport, Miss.; and four grandchildren.

The son of a streetcar conductor and a school teacher, Hebert was in deteriorating health since his retirement from Congress on Jan. 3, 1977, after serving in the U.S. House of Representatives longer than any other Louisiana congressman.

He was first elected in 1940, and kept his congressional seat longer than only a dozen or so others among more than 9,000 persons elected to Congress since the nation was founded.

Hebert, never seriously challenged for re-election, suffered his most serious political setback in January 1975, when new congressmen ousted him from the Armed Services chairmanship he held since 1970.

"I want to be able to take the last curtain call while still sound in mind and body," Hebert said in announcing in March 1976, that he would not seek re-election.

"The day I walk out of this building I am forgotten, absolutely forgotten," he said as he watched workers packing his belongings in his congressional offices in 1977.

Coast Guard trying to sink capsized freighter

KETCHIKAN, Alaska (AP) — The freighter Lee Wang Zin, which capsized Christmas Day in the cold seas off Alaska, was headed today for an unceremonious burial in Canadian waters that may sink forever any clues to the whereabouts of its crew.

But early today, 16 rounds fired from five-inch cannons on the Coast Guard cutter Munro missed the vessel, probably because of darkness, a spokesman said. A commercial diver was called in to plant charges inside the ballast tanks, reducing the danger of a hit to the fuel tanks.

There had been hope that some crewmen might have survived the Dec. 25 accident, when the ship, carrying 30 Taiwanese sailors and a load of iron ore pellets for Japan, rolled over.

Searchers turned up two bodies and a life raft, but divers found no signs of the crew aboard. Aerial flights showed only traces of fuel oil that spilled when the ship rolled.

Coast Guard and Navy officials Sunday were forced to scuttle plans to sink the vessel in open seas and hastily arranged to sink it in Canadian waters when a tow line snapped, sending the ship and its estimated 200,000 gallons of fuel drifting toward Canada's Queen Charlotte Islands.

"The Canadian government concurs with our decision" to sink the vessel in about 1,200 feet of water, said Coast Guard Petty Officer Phillip Franklin. "They'd rather have us sink it there than have it drift into Queen Charlotte Islands."

Authorities said the ship carried bunker C-type oil, which solidifies in cold weather and will remain trapped inside the ship when it is dispatched to the ocean floor.

Gustabo Laabs

LAMESA — Services for Gustabo Laabs, 68, a Lamesa resident since 1931, were to be at 10:30 a.m. today in Margaret-Mary's Catholic Church with the Rev. Jerome Vitek, pastor, officiating.

Graveside military rites were to be in Lamesa Memorial Park directed by Branon Funeral Home.

Laabs died Friday at his home.

He was a native of Melvin, served in the U.S. Army during World War II, and was an automobile mechanic. He was a member of the Catholic Church.

Survivors include his wife, Eva; three daughters, Josephine Gonzales and Gloria Lara, both of Lamesa, and Sally Laabs of Amarillo; a son, Ray Laabs of Lamesa; a brother, Daniel Laabs of Midland; and four grandchildren.

'Pete' Akin Sr.

BIG LAKE — Graveside services for H.O. "Pete" Akin Sr., 69, of Big Lake were to be at 2:30 p.m. today in Glen Rest Cemetery with the Rev. Jim Myers of the Assembly of God Church officiating.

Akin died Sunday in a Big Lake hospital.

He was born June 9, 1910, in Novice.

He had lived 33 years in Big Lake.

Survivors include his wife, Donnie; two sons, H.O. Akin Jr. and Paul Akin, both of Big Lake; two sisters, Lola Floyd of Fort Worth and Maud Woriscleek of Scotsdale, Ariz.; two brothers, J.C. Akin of Sundown and Coleman Akin of Fort Worth; and four grandchildren.

Ray Wilson

BIG SPRING — Services for Ray Wilson, 86, of Forsan were to be at 4 p.m. today in Nalley-Pickel Funeral Home Rosewood Chapel. Burial was to be in Mount Olive Memorial Park.

Wilson died Sunday in a Big Spring hospital.

Survivors include his wife; two sons, Cleo Wilson of Big Spring and Russell Wilson of Alamogordo, N.M.; two daughters, Lucy Barton of Forsan and Lovera Hughes of Hobbs, N.M.; a brother, Nat M. Wilson of Fort Worth; six grandchildren, and nine great-grandchildren.

Mickey Landrum

KERMIT — Rosary for Mickey Landrum, 47, of Jal, N.M., brother of Lucille Bonds of Hobbs, N.M., will be recited at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the St. Cecilia Catholic Church in Jal.

Services will be at noon Wednesday in the church. Burial will be in Kermit Cemetery directed by Cooper Funeral Home.

He died Sunday in a Jal hospital. Other survivors include his wife, a son, three daughters, two brothers, three sisters and three grandchildren.

Composer, Richard Rodgers, dies

NEW YORK (AP) — Richard Rodgers, the prolific composer whose unforgettable melodies for such Broadway hits as "Oklahoma!" "South Pacific" and "The King and I" helped define the musical as America's own art form, is dead at the age of 77.

Rodgers died late Sunday at his East Side home with his wife, Dorothy, at his side.

The cause of death was not immediately known, said Alice Regensburg, Rodgers' long-time publicist. Rodgers had been ill for some time, suffering a throat ailment that made it hard for him to speak, and only five weeks ago received a pacemaker to help his heart.

Over the last 60 years, many of Rodgers' 1,000-plus songs — most written in collaboration with lyricist Lorenz Hart and later Oscar Hammerstein II — have become classics, intrinsic parts of Americana.

"All I really want to do is to provide a hard-working man in the blouse business with a method of expressing himself," Rodgers once said. "If he likes a tune, he can whistle it, and it will make his life happier."

His rare talent produced 43 stage musical scores, 40 of them for Broadway, nine film scores, four television scores and assorted other works.

Sammy Cahn, president of the Song Writers Hall of Fame, remembered Rodgers as a "true professional" whose work could not be matched.

"With all the sophisticated methods we have of computerizing performances, I don't think there's any way you can measure the incredible contribution of Richard Rodgers," Cahn said in a telephone interview from California.

Broadway historians credit him with turning the musical theater into a tight package that fully integrated music and dramatic plot.

"Oklahoma!" — written in collaboration with Hammerstein and opened in 1943 — was regarded as the pinnacle. It was the perfect mix of song, dance and story and was followed two years later by "Carousel."

Rodgers wrote sweet, sophisticated, inspirational and catchy songs that endured. A sampler of titles proves it: "Some Enchanted Evening," "People Will Say We're in Love," "Climb Every Mountain," "If I Loved You," "Bewitched, Bothered and Bewildered," "Oh, What a Beautiful Morning," "My Funny Valentine," "There Is Nothing Like a Dame," and on and on.

He was born June 28, 1902, in Manhattan. His father, a well-to-do physician, and his mother exposed Rodgers to many musical scores and classical composers. He first played piano at age 4, could play by ear at 6, was writing by 9 and at age 15 published his first song, "Auto Show Girl."

His partnership with Lorenz Hart was born when Rodgers began studies at Columbia University. As the first Columbia freshman to compose the score for the annual Columbia Varsity show, he matched his music to the words of Hart, then a recent Columbia graduate.

"When I met him," Rodgers once said of Hart, "I acquired in one afternoon a career, a partner and a best friend."

Their first professional score, "Poor Little Ritz Girl," came out in 1920. However, not until they wrote "The Garrick Gaieties" in 1925 did they begin a successful career that included 28 stage musicals, a nightclub revue and eight film musicals and lasted until Hart's death in 1942.

Their hits included "Dearest Enemy," "On Your Toes," "Babes In Arms," "Pal Joey," and "The Boys From Syracuse."

But it was during his subsequent 18-year partnership with Hammerstein that Rodgers tasted his sweetest successes.

The two turned out such box office smashes as "Oklahoma!," "South Pacific," "The Sound of Music," and "The King and I," an unmatched set of hits that ran for more than 1,000 performances each.

After Hammerstein's death in 1960, Rodgers went it alone and in 1962 wrote "No Strings," the only show for which he wrote both music and lyrics.

His final work, "I Remember Mama," which played on Broadway earlier this year, was not an artistic or commercial success.

Late TD bombs lift Los Angeles over Cowboys

By TED BATTLES Sports Editor

IRVING — Los Angeles' underdog Rams landed a couple of sucker punches at the end of each half to knock Dallas out of the playoffs...

The Rams, humiliated 30-6 Oct. 14 in this very stadium and ushered from the playoffs by the Cowboys three out of four times in the last six years...

After taking a 14-5 halftime lead on quarterback Vince Ferragamo's version of the Hail Mary pass, a 43-yarder to Ron Smith with three seconds left in the half, the Rams watched as Dallas came back to seemingly take control of the game, 19-14, on two long drives.

It looked like the same old story all over again. Cowboy class once again rising to the top, but the long abused Rams had one big play left, a tipped pass from Ferragamo to end Billy Waddy, a short yardage pass that went 50 yards for a TD.

There was still 2:06 left after the score, plenty of time for Roger Staubach and Company to work their two-minute magic, but this time it wasn't to be.

The Cowboys hopes for a third straight Super Bowl trip evaporated when Staubach, troubled by the Rams defense all day, missed end Drew Pearson on a fourth and 20, although tight end Jay Saldi was wide open.

"I watched Drew all the way," explained Staubach later, "I waited until he cleared Dave Elmendorf (LA defensive back), but I overthrew him."

The Rams victory ended a wild upset weekend in which three-time Super Bowl champion Pittsburgh was the only favorite to survive. And with Dallas' elimination, injury racked Houston, an upset winner over San Diego, becomes the Lone Star standard bearer in post season play while the unlikely twosome of Tampa Bay and Los Angeles from the much maligned Central and Western Divisions meet for the NFC title next Sunday.

"Someone tipped the ball a little, but didn't knock it off course that much. I kept my eye on the ball, I said, 'I ain't gonna let that son-of-a-gun get past me.'" Waddy described his game winning TD catch.

Tight end Saldi, who caught the two-yard pass from Staubach that propelled Dallas into a 19-14 lead with 2:14 left in the third period, questioned the Cowboys' defensive strategy on the winning TD pass.

"We used three down linemen instead of the four we've been using all year and seven backs, taking out a linebacker. Usually we leave the linebacker and take out a lineman. I just don't understand it," Saldi lamented.

"With Ferragamo's inexperience, we should have kept the pressure on him. Instead, Waddy was able to run across the field on a 5-yard deep pattern and went all the way. I just don't understand why we didn't use what got us here. It's a long time since I've seen a 3-2."

Defensive back Cliff Harris' view was diametrically opposed. "Despite what Coach Saldi says, we played the percentages and it didn't work. They study the films and make the call based on the past. I think it was the right call. And that touchdown in the first-half, we had two men in position. Either one of them should have made the defensive play. But who is to say what the difference is between great and lucky catches."

Although Dallas took a 2-0 lead when Ferragamo slipped in the end zone while negotiating for throwing room, the first half belonged to the Rams, who took the lead 7-2 on a 32-yard pass from Ferragamo to Wendell Tyler to wrap up a 92-yard drive on the eighth play. Rafael Septien's 33-yard field goal narrowed it to 7-5 with only 52 seconds left in the half after a studdering 51-yard drive by Dallas, but the Rams still had time to score again. It took only four plays to devour 70 yards with Harris calling Ferragamo's TD pass something, "he just threw up for grabs."

Dallas gained only 157 yards offensively in the first half and coach Tom Landry blamed it on the failure to convert on third down. "We made adjustments that helped at half, but third down was our big problem today." On the last TD, Landry post mortemed, "We were in a zone. We had five men across and it seemed we were in position to get the ball. We simply didn't make the play."

Staubach admitted he saw stars when hit on his TD pass to Saldi, "Things were cloudy for a few seconds," but he said he was all right once he got to the sidelines and indicated it didn't effect his play on the final two possessions.

"The Rams did a good job of changing up their defenses and sometimes it was tough to go with the type of plays we had called," Staubach said.

Staubach was 13 of 28 for 150 yards, not exactly a vintage Staubach performance. The Rams' seven defensive backs against Dallas' third down shotgun was part of the reason.

"We tried to match speed with speed. Linebackers don't have the speed of receivers," said coach Ray Malavasi. "It was Bud Carson, our defensive coordinator who came up with the idea. We planned to use it here against Dallas in October, but we had too many defensive guys hurt. It was very effective for us today." Perhaps the understatement of the year.

Dallas' hopes for a return trip to the Super Bowl were dashed Sunday by Los Angeles wide receiver Billy Waddy as he crosses the goal line with the winning touchdown in the final minutes of the NFC Playoff game in Irving. Waddy caught a 50-yard pass from Vince Ferragamo to eliminate the Cowboys from the Super Bowl race. (AP Laserphoto)

Steelers claim 'Team of Decade' title

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Super Bowl XIV title is still up for grabs. The "Team of the Decade" competition is over.

"I can understand why some people get bored watching us. I got bored watching Green Bay," Terry Bradshaw said Sunday after he and the Pittsburgh Steelers beat the Miami Dolphins 34-14 to earn a berth in the American Football Conference championship.

GREEN BAY was the team of the 60s. Sunday's results assure the Steelers of being the only team of the 70s with three Super Bowl trophies — and maybe another if the fans who twirl Terrible Towels get their wish. The Dolphins, who dominated the decade's early years, came here with a chance for a third Super Bowl title.

team was on the upswing," said Don Shula, coach of the AFC East champions.

But by the end of the first quarter, the Steelers had scored three straight touchdowns, two on passes by Bradshaw, to take a 20-0 lead. And the Pittsburgh defense did the rest as Miami managed just 25 net rushing yards for the entire game.

"I was pleased. I was definitely pleased," said tackle Joe Greene. "We made a pretty good team look like something less than that."

Shula agreed. "The disappointing thing is that we never challenged them," he said. "You can't be proud of that in a game that meant so much."

NFL COMMISSIONER Pete Rozelle attended the game. He had no "Team of the Decade" trophy for the Steelers, but the Dolphins certainly weren't staking a claim to that unofficial distinction. Neither was two-time Super Bowl champion Dallas, a loser in the NFC playoffs.

"I think we could have gotten consideration if we had gone to the Super Bowl and won," said Shula. "I don't think we will now."

"You have to say the Steelers are the 'Team of the Decade,'" said Dolphins' guard Larry Little. "I know one thing, right now, this very minute, they are the best team in pro football."

There are three other teams left with something to say about that. Among them is Houston, which meets Pittsburgh for the AFC title here next Monday. THE OILERS and Steelers — rivals in the AFC Central Division — also met for the conference here title last year. Pittsburgh won 35-7 in freezing rain.

This season has been a repeat. They again split in the regular season. Pittsburgh again won the division while Houston earned a wild-card.

Now, they meet again for the conference title and a spot in Super Bowl XIV against Tampa Bay or Los Angeles.

Against Miami, the Steelers took the opening kickoff and drove for a touchdown that came on a 1-yard run by Sidney Thornton.

"I was surprised we were able to run on them as well as we did. Our offensive line manhandled them," said Bradshaw. Bradshaw capped the next two Steeler drives with touchdown passes to John Stallworth and Lynn Swann. "They ran three plays and we had 13 points," said Greene. "They ran six plays and we had 20 points. I'd liked to have seen the game plan they had set for us, but they never had a chance to get into it."

own 2-yard-line after Thornton lost a fumble.

In the third quarter, Grieseth threw a 7-yard touchdown pass to Duriel Harris after an apparent error by the officials gave the Dolphins the ball at the Pittsburgh 11.

On a Miami punt, the officials ruled that Steeler rookie Dwayne Woodruff was struck by the ball while making a block. Miami recovered and was given possession, but instant replays didn't support the officials.

The Steelers added two more touchdowns on runs by Rocky Blier and Franco Harris.

Miami backup quarterback Don Strock later led a 77-yard touchdown drive that ended with a dive by Csonka, the Dolphins' top rusher with 20 yards on 10 attempts.

Oilers' Perry is more than last line

SAN DIEGO (AP) — As strong safety in the Houston Oilers' second year, Vernon Perry is the last line of defense. But on Saturday, he was downright offensive.

Perry intercepted four passes — making one less catch on the day than San Diego's leading receiver — as the shorthanded Oilers upset the Chargers 17-14 in an American Football Conference semifinal game.

As if that wasn't enough, Perry blocked a field goal attempt in the second quarter and returned it 57 yards. It was quite likely the game's most important play.

"The blocked field goal cost us the game," said Jim Hanifan, the Chargers' chief assistant coach. Instead of trailing 10-0 on the field goal, Houston came away with a field goal of its own — and revived confidence.

Overcoming the loss of injured starters Dan Pastorini and Earl Campbell, the Oilers rallied around the Perry-led defense and second-year quarterback Gifford Nielsen.

Perry, a refugee from the Canadian Football League, set a National Football League playoff record with his four interceptions.

Three years ago, the Chicago Bears cut the Jackson State defensive back because, according to Perry, "I was too slow."

He recalls the setback as "a bitter disappointment. I asked myself: 'Am I wrong or did they make a mistake?'"

After two brilliant CFL seasons with the Montreal Alouettes, Perry's two-year contract expired last year and he waited for the NFL to show interest.

The wait wasn't a long one. After the Oilers out-bid the Buffalo Bills for his services, Perry played a key role in the Houston's second straight trip to the AFC finals as a wild-card entry.

Houston, 13-5, and Pittsburgh, 14-4, meet Sunday in a rematch of last year's AFC showdown, won by the Steelers 34-5. The winner advances to the Super Bowl in Pasadena, Calif., Jan. 20.

What the Oilers lacked in personnel Saturday was compensated by pride.

Baylor, Clemson kickoff two-day bowl run for fans

By The Associated Press

Purdue, Tennessee, Clemson and Baylor all had hopes of ending 1979 in style. Ohio State, Alabama, Southern California, Florida State, Oklahoma and Arkansas harbored hopes of beginning 1980 by making itself the college football champion of the year that ends today.

On New Year's Day, the national championship figures to be decided in one of three bowl games. The Rose Bowl pits No. 1 Ohio State against No. 3 Southern Cal, the Sugar has second-ranked Alabama against No. 6 Arkansas and the Orange features fourth-rated Florida State against No. 5 Oklahoma. The Cotton Bowl, the only one of the Jan. 1 games that doesn't appear to have a bearing on the national title, pits No. 7 Nebraska and No. 8 Houston.

Before those heavy battles take place, Clemson and Baylor had a date in the Peach Bowl this afternoon and Purdue was to take on Tennessee tonight in the Bluebonnet Bowl.

In the only games this weekend, North Carolina edged Michigan 17-15 in the Gator Bowl and Missouri took the Hall of Fame Bowl, 24-14 over South Carolina.

Clemson, 8-3 and ranked 18th, went into the Peach Bowl a slight favorite over Baylor, 7-4 and ranked 19th. The Bears, of the Southwest Conference, played one of the toughest schedules in the country this season: their four losses were to Texas, Arkansas, Houston and Alabama.

"We knew we were going to be a good football team this year," noted Baylor Coach Grant Teaff. "We could have finished 9-2 except for the losses to Houston and Arkansas, which we should have won."

"I think our turnaround was in the minds of the public and the media," he added, noting that the Bears were 3-8 in 1978. "We had a good team a year ago. The big thing last year was we lost our first four games by a total of 14 points."

It was Baylor's second trip to a bowl since Teaff took over eight seasons ago — they won the SWC and went to the Cotton Bowl in 1974, losing to Penn State.

Clemson beat Ohio State last year in the Gator Bowl. The Purdue-Tennessee matchup in the Bluebonnet loomed as a wide-open offensive display with Purdue's junior quarterback Mark Herrmann, already the Big Ten's career yardage leader, battling Volunteers' all-time total offense leader, signal-caller Jimmy Streater.

"He's the most dangerous when he gets in the open field," said Boilermakers defensive end Keena Turner of Streater. "He sets up so quick on his passes, he's hard to get to. That accounts for his completing 60 percent of his career passes."

The Bluebonnet was the first postseason appearance for 7-4 Tennessee since 1974. Purdue, 9-2, blasted Georgia Tech 41-21 in the Peach Bowl last year.

Although any of six teams might wind up No. 1 in The Associated Press poll, the winner of the Ohio State-Southern Cal Rose Bowl seems to have the inside track.

The Buckeyes, 11-0 and champions of the Big Ten in their first season under Coach Earl Bruce, will have to stop a high-powered Trojan offense led by Heisman Trophy winner Charles White at tailback and quarterback Paul McDonald.

"McDonald, if he weren't at USC, would have been close to winning the Heisman," said Ohio State defensive coordinator Denny Fryzel.

The Buckeyes also have a topnotch QB in sophomore Art Schlichter. "Comparing Schlichter and McDonald is like comparing Terry Bradshaw and Kenny Stabler," said Trojans' Coach John Robinson, whose team was 10-0-1. "One (Schlichter) is very physical, he can dominate the game by scrambling or throwing a long pass."

"Paul has been more caught up in the confines of our system. I don't think there's a better college quarterback in the country as far as running a team."

Alabama, 11-0, was ranked No. 1 for most of the season but dropped to second in the final regular season poll. The Crimson Tide, defending national champions, probably need an impressive victory over the Razorbacks in the Sugar Bowl to move back to the top. Arkansas also might rate a shot at No. 1 if they can convincingly beat the Tide.

In the Orange Bowl, 11-0 Florida State is the kind of passing team Big Eight champion Oklahoma rarely plays, with Jimmy Jordan and Wally Woodham alternating at bombing the opposition. On the other hand, FSU hardly ever plays against a wishbone attack. And the Sooners, 10-1, have one of the very best.

"It's a complicated offense to defend against," said Seminoles' defensive coordinator Jack Stanton. "They've got great backs and one super back."

That would be 1978 Heisman Trophy recipient Billy Sims, who has rushed for just under 3,300 yards the last two seasons.

"We've just got to guess with them and hope we take away the right option," added Stanton, whose team faced a wishbone just once this season, against Mississippi State.

A one-sided win for either Oklahoma or Florida State, combined with a dull, poorly played game in Pasadena and a less-than-decisive victory by Arkansas in New Orleans, might propel the Orange Bowl winner to the national championship.

Porker Scanlon is no funny joke

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Despite what Lou Holtz says, Arkansas quarterback Kevin Scanlon is no joke.

For instance, Holtz was asked how Scanlon had developed so quickly from his so-so performance of 1978.

"I'd have to say it's a miracle," said Holtz, the Arkansas coach.

When asked about Scanlon's ability as a runner, Holtz will use throw-away lines such as:

"When he runs the ball, we use a lot more film."

"Our offensive linemen always say they have to hold their blocks longer when Scanlon's carrying the ball."

"If he runs outside, we get a delay of game penalty."

THE OBJECT of this affection is a Beaver Falls, Pa., product who majors in speech communications and has a B-plus average. He's a smooth talker who worked at the state Capitol in the governor's office last summer.

"I don't mind not being known as a runner," Scanlon said Sunday. "But I'm not as slow as people think. I know he's just kidding when he says those things."

He played behind Ron Calcagni last year and threw four interceptions in 49 attempts.

This year, he completed 92 of 139 passes for 1,212 yards and nine touchdowns while leading the Razorbacks to a 10-1 season and Tuesday's Sugar Bowl date with second-ranked Alabama. Scanlon threw only six interceptions and Holtz says only one was Scanlon's fault.

For his performance, Scanlon was named Offensive Player of the Year in the Southwest Conference.

Scanlon said the fact that he had three cracked bones in his back hampered his performance last year.

THAT, AND the fact, that he played sparingly.

"I'd get in and feel like I had to do something great," Scanlon said. "I'd have a receiver open short and a receiver covered deep but I'd throw deep and get it picked off. This year, I'd hit the open man and we'd hit a long one now and then."

Scanlon has a good arm but Holtz is most impressed by his ability to read defenses.

"With most college quarterbacks you can't use all of your playbook," Holtz said. "For instance, if you have a pass pattern and it will work against eight coverages but not the other two out of any 10, and maybe it will get intercepted against those other two, you'd better be careful about putting it in."

"With Kevin, you don't have to worry. If you call that, he will get you out of the play if he reads the two coverages it won't work against."

Scanlon says he enjoys reading defenses.

"I feel real comfortable in our passing game," Scanlon said. "Being a senior helps. I used to come up to the line of scrimmage and only see part of the defense. Then I began to see more and more. Now, it's just like watching it on film."

SCANLON SAYS preparation for Alabama's blitzing defense has been thorough.

"We've covered everything that could possibly be. We've even been doing things that Alabama has only done once during the season so that when I walk up to the line of scrimmage I won't be surprised."

Holtz says Arkansas must be versatile against Alabama's defense, which led the nation in defense against scoring, and that Scanlon is the key.

Scanlon made the big plays time after time in the Razorbacks' 10-1 season. For instance:

- Completed nine of 13 for 115 yards against Texas Christian University, including a 51-yard bomb in the final two minutes to set up the winning field goal.
- Completed 16 of 20 for 223 yards and two touchdowns against Rice.
- Completed 12 of 16 for 137 yards and three touchdowns against SMU.
- Completed 12 of 15 for 127 yards against Texas A&M.
- Completed five of six for 155 yards against Colorado State.
- Threw two second-half touchdowns passes as Arkansas rallied from a 17-0 deficit against Baylor.
- Completed three passes for 40 yards in the final minute to give Arkansas a chance to tie Houston.

McGinnis to sit out

DENVER (AP) — Denver Nugget George McGinnis says he decided to sit out his National Basketball Association suspension because a court victory wouldn't "have been worth what it cost me the rest of my career."

McGinnis was benched without pay for 10 days after a game at Seattle on Dec. 16 during which he was accused of purposely slamming into official Jess Kersey. The penalty later was tempered to a six-day, three-game suspension by NBA Commissioner Lawrence O'Brien.

At first the 6-foot-8, 240-pound forward was incensed. He wanted a "complete apology" from the NBA and the suspension without pay dropped.

"My lawyers told me that if I went to New York, even though I had as many or more witnesses as they (Kersey supporters) had, it was circumstantial evidence," McGinnis said. "They felt that there was a 75 percent chance that the sentence that had been sent down would either stick or be even more severe."

McGinnis said he is convinced he would have won in a court of law.

"I know I'm right," he said. "But my lawyers have convinced me that this is the way life is. To prove a point sometimes is not worth it. I know in my heart I didn't intentionally hurt him. I'm the only one — despite all the witnesses may say — who knows what really happened."

McGinnis said the Nuggets team has supported him and added that President-General Manager Carl Scheer offered to stand behind him in an appeal.

Completed nine of 13 for 115 yards against Texas Christian University, including a 51-yard bomb in the final two minutes to set up the winning field goal.

- Completed 16 of 20 for 223 yards and two touchdowns against Rice.
- Completed 12 of 16 for 137 yards and three touchdowns against SMU.
- Completed 12 of 15 for 127 yards against Texas A&M.
- Completed five of six for 155 yards against Colorado State.
- Threw two second-half touchdowns passes as Arkansas rallied from a 17-0 deficit against Baylor.
- Completed three passes for 40 yards in the final minute to give Arkansas a chance to tie Houston.

Quarterbacks hold key to Rose win

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Art Schlichter and Paul McDonald, two contrasting quarterbacks, likely will be the key performers Tuesday when top-ranked Ohio State takes on No. 3 Southern California in the Rose Bowl.

Both sides already are contending the winner will claim the national college football championship. Ohio State matches its 11-0-0 record against USC's 10-0-1 mark in the nationally televised showdown (NBC-TV, 4 p.m. CST).

The two schools have been consistent bowl performers in the last decade. Each has appeared eight times in post-season play, the Trojans performing in six Rose Bowls, the Liberty Bowl and the Bluebonnet Bowl and the Buckeyes in five Rose Bowls and the Orange, Sugar and Gator bowls.

Schlichter, 6-foot-2 and 200 pounds, is a raw-boned sophomore who runs as well as he passes. He's developed into a big play man.

The strong right-hander has cracked the school's single-season total offense record in both of his seasons. With two years to go, he already ranks as the Buckeyes' all-time passing champion.

"It always amazes me how well Schlichter does in the clutch. There are not many quarterbacks that can run and pass like him. And what I like about him is, he's only a sophomore," said Earle Bruce, Ohio State's coach.

"We are a big play team," said Schlichter, who accounted for 1,955 yards and 22 touchdowns this season. "We can be very explosive at times. But I think we can drive the ball down the field if it's needed."

The left-handed McDonald, 6-2 and 180 pounds, is a smart senior, a gifted passer, but not a good runner. He ranks as the second-best passer in major college history.

McDonald is completing passes at a school-record 64 percent clip this season. He has thrown for 3,904 yards and 36 touchdowns in his four-year career.

"He's more caught up in the confines of our system," said USC coach John Robinson. "His career interception rate is the lowest in college football. McDonald's reputation is less than it should be because of (Heisman Trophy winner) Charles White and our whole team."

The Trojans, who some say have the greatest array of talent in history, averaged 466 yards and 33 points per game this season. Ohio State produced at rates of 408 yards and 34 points.

McDonald predicts it will be a high-scoring game, saying, "I don't think anybody is going to sit on the ball. It's supposed to be the best game in the country this year. Let's make it that."

Southern California ranks as a 7 1/2-point favorite to hand the Big Ten its sixth successive defeat and 10th in the last 11 Rose Bowls.

"I don't pay much attention to that," said Robinson. "We were six-point underdogs against Michigan in the 1970 Rose Bowl. We won."

"I think it will be a close, dramatic game. The teams will find a way to hang in there for three quarters and then the team that gets hot in the fourth quarter with its passing game will win."

If the Trojans have a defensive weakness, it might be their secondary.

SWC cage teams take weekend beating by foes

By The Associated Press

Southwest Conference basketball teams, despite a "lost weekend," have assured themselves another winning intersectional season going into family feudin' beginning Thursday with Southern Methodist at Arkansas in the feature game.

Other SWC matchups show Rice at Houston in the television special, Texas Tech at Texas and Texas A&M at Texas Christian.

The SWC was 51-36 for a winning percentage of .586 with only four intersectional games left.

The league suffered a severe sinking spell last week, going 5-10 and harvesting no first place tournament trophies.

Vanderbilt's 88-77 upset of SMU knocked the Ponies to 8-2, still the league's best.

Texas shined Thursday night with a four-point victory over San Francisco, and then took a 77-61 flogging from New Mexico State Saturday night. The Longhorns led 35-31 at halftime, then shot a miserable 28 per cent from the field in the second half.

Texas is 7-2 against intersectional foes.

The Texas Aggies took the second place medal in the Pillsbury Classic when Minnesota muscled Shelby Metcalf's crew 69-63 Saturday night. Metcalf played only his starting five in the game. Vernon Smith and Rynn Wright both made All-Tournament honors at forward.

While the Aggies dipped to 8-5, the Texas Tech Red Raiders lost all three games in the Far West Classic including a 47-46 loss to Penn State Saturday in a joust for seventh place. Tech is now 6-4.

Baylor beat Davidson 76-67 and Texas Christian walloped tiny North-east Missouri State 89-71 to even their records at .500.

Houston earned the consolation crown of the Sun Bowl Classic with an 83-75 victory over Alabama behind cousin guards Robert and Kenneth Williams.

Arkansas fell to 6-3 with a loss to Memphis State Friday night and a 66-57 defeat at the hands of Kansas State Sunday.
