It's a winter wonderland

Two inches of snow falls in the Basin

Even though Christmas is little more than a week away, Midlanders aren't accustomed to awaking in a winter wonderland, at least not until after the holiday season.

But Mother Nature — in an apparent spirit of "giving" — dropped almost two inches of snow late Thursday on Midland and other selected cities in the Permian Basin.

After misting and raining nearly all day Thursday, the snow began to fall shortly after 6 p.m. and continued through the night.

The weatherman reported snow accumulations were up to 2 inches around Midland and Odessa.

Despite the hazardous driving conditions, the Midland Police and Department of Public Safety reported few accidents — none serious.

A spokesman with the DPS said Highway 80 and Interstate 20 were open and traffic was moving at a steady pace "but people are taking it slow."

Flights at Midland Regional Airport have been halted since 8 p.m. Thursday, said Col. Wilson Banks, director of aviation for the city. He expected the flights to start again by 10 a.m. today.

The runways weren't icy, he said, but the slush was causing problems with braking action. Cancellation of flights was up to the airline and pilots' discretion, Banks added.

At Greenwood, 10 miles east of Midland, the roads were "mushy, but not slick," said Roy Graham. That community received 1-1½ inches of snow. Children were out this morning "throwing snowballs around," he said.

Midland didn't bear the brunt of the storm, however. Andrews had 2½ to 3 inches of snow. And Lamesa reported 3½ inches of snow had been dumped on that city.

Stanton received only an inch of snow.

But some area towns had a reprieve from the cold white flakes. Midkiff had sleet and freezing rain, but not one flake of snow, said a weather watcher.

Also reporting only sleet were Rankin, Big Lake, Big Spring, Crane and Garden City. Streets in those towns had some patches of ice, but were open.

The National Weather Service reported the two inches of snow melted down to .53 of an inch of precipitation. It brings the monthly total — accumulated in the past three days — to 2.16 inches. This increases the yearly amount to 15.41 inches, an unusually wet year for Midland.

However, it should be getting warmer on Saturday, according to the National Weather Service.

The mercury should plummet to near 30 degrees tonight, but it should warm up to near 60 on Saturday.

Thursday's high of 38 degrees was closer to the record low than the record high of 82 set in 1933. Overnight low was 32 degrees, still warmer than the record 18 degrees set in 1958.

There should be decreasing cloudiness tonight with fair skies Saturday — more of a typical December day in West Texas than Thursday or today.

Hospital officials pleased with OK

After getting "the best news we've had in eight or nine months," Midland County Hospital District directors wasted little time in getting matters under way for the Allison Permian Basin Cancer Therapy Center.

With approval Thursday morning from the Texas Health Facilities Commission, the directors let bids for $1.27 million in equipment for the cancer treatment center during their regular meeting Thursday afternoon.

"We're all just very happy and pleased it finally came through," Dr. Henrie Mast said of the approval for the certificate of need for the $3.3 million facility.

Ambassadors to visit hostages in embassy, observers predict

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Observers predict a team of Western ambassadors will visit the 50 Americans held hostage at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran in the next day or two as Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's regime steps up its efforts to woo the international community.

Ambassadors from a dozen countries met Thursday with Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh to discuss the visits, only hours after Khomeini gave the go-ahead for independent observers to see the Americans, held captive since Nov. 4. The diplomats were from Australia, Austria, Canada, Denmark, Finland, Greece, New Zealand, Norway, Portugal, Spain, Sweden and Switzerland.

The Khomeini regime also announced it was sending a full ambassador to represent Iran at the United Nations. A U.N. spokesman said the arrival of Ambassador Mansour Farhang "will facilitate" negotiations between Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim and Iranian authorities.

Farhang is an associate professor of government at California State University in Sacramento. William Dorman, a university colleague, said in an interview Thursday that Farhang has been "deeply distressed" by the hostage-taking in Tehran and is "totally committed as a human being" to helping to resolve it.

Tehran Radio said Thursday that Khomeini instructed Ghotbzadeh to "invite an independent (team of observers) to visit" the hostages "to confront adverse U.S. aggressive propaganda."

In Washington, White House spokesman Jody Powell questioned the Iranians' motives. He said the observers must be internationally-reccognized and impartial, must be allowed to visit all the hostages and must see them frequently. Otherwise, Powell said, it would just be a "cynical" attempt to divert attention from the hostages plight.

The Iranian militants holding the hostages said they would abide by Khomeini's order for the visits. The militants are demanding the United States return deposed Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi to Iran for trial. President Carter has refused to send back the shah, who is recuperating at the Lackland Air Force Base in Texas from cancer treatment and gall bladder surgery in New York.

Doctors tending the shah said in court papers filed Thursday that they believed the deposed monarch's condition had worsened and that his New York physicians were expected to fly to Texas today to see him. However, a source close to the shah said he appeared to be "fine" after having been ill a couple of days last week.

Khomeini's domestic crisis with the rebellious Azari Turks of Azerbaijan Province in northwestern Iran appeared to ease up Thursday, but there were reports of stirrings by another ethnic minority group, this one in southern Iran.

Tehran radio said Khomeini sent a special envoy to Fars Province, on the Persian Gulf 350 miles south of Tehran, to investigate problems in tribal areas there. There was no independent confirmation of unrest in Fars, but one large nomadic tribe in the area, the Qashqais, have resisted central government control in the past.

Meanwhile, in a speech monitored in London, Khomeini was quoted as taking a swipe at American efforts to seek international economic sanctions against Iran.

"This 'humanitarian' Carter... has sent his secretary of state round cap-in-hand in order to try to impose an economic blockade on us. (Carter) thinks he can mobilize the whole world into starving us. Unfortunately for Mr. Carter, his secretary of state went round but nobody took any notice of him, they all turned him down."

Khomeini's statement came the same day the 15 NATO foreign ministers issued a statement at their meeting in Brussels, Belgium denouncing the hostage crisis in Iran. Secretary of State Cyrus Vance won the allies' support, in what was seen as a step toward seeking formal sanctions against Iran.

Japan won't buy Iran's extra oil

TOKYO (AP) — Japan bowed to U.S. pressure today and announced it will limit its purchases of Iranian oil to what it bought prior to the takeover of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran, leaving stocks originally earmarked for America alone.

The decision to keep away from the Iranian crude the Americans are boycotting was made by Foreign Minister Saburo Okita and Yoshitake Sasaki, head of the Ministry of International Trade and Industry, a spokesman said.

Since the embassy takeover Nov. 4, Japanese trading firms have been accused of buying up 140 million barrels of Iranian crude on the spot market at prices nearly double the $23.50-a-barrel limit set by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

A government spokesman said some of the oil would be resold. Japanese newspapers said it would amount to 14 million barrels and be sold at a loss on the spot market. Press reports also said Japanese banks may be pressured to stop extending fresh credits to Iran.

A Foreign Ministry official explained that the Japanese firms bought the higher-priced oil on the spot market because they feared if they didn't, the Iranians would take a harsh line next year in negotiations for long-term, direct-deal contracts.

Japan imports almost all of its oil. Of the 620,000 barrels a day it imported from Iran prior to the embassy takeover, 460,000 barrels came through direct deals with Iran and the rest indirectly through major international oil companies.

Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance had criticized Japan for taking advantage of the U.S.-Iranian crisis by allowing its trading companies to buy oil originally destined for the U.S. market.

The Carter administration decided to boycott Iranian oil purchases in hopes the economic squeeze would bring about the release of the 50 American hostages at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran.

Explosion kills Andrews man

ANDREWS — An Andrews welder was killed about 4:27 p.m. Thursday when the hot oil truck on which he was welding exploded.

According to a spokesman for the Andrews County Sheriff's Department, Weldon "Buzz" Sawyer, in his early 50s, was welding on the truck at F&L Trucking east of Andrews at the time of the accident.

Sawyer apparently was killed instantly by the force of the explosion. He was pronounced dead at the scene by Peace Justice Jay Williams.

Sawyer was an independent welder in Andrews, according to the sheriff's department spokesman.

The accident was investigated by the Andrews County Sheriff's Department.

DOE gets the award for super outhouse

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. William Proxmire's award for the most ridiculous example of wasteful government spending is going this month to the Department of Energy for its interest in building a super outhouse.

Proxmire, D-Wis., said today the department deserves his "Golden Fleece" award for spending $1,200 to build and test "an above-ground aerobic- and solar-assisted composting toilet" that might come in handy if Americans start abandoning their indoor plumbing in the interest of energy conservation.

Hostages

A team of Western ambassadors will visit the 50 Americans held hostage at the U.S. Embassy in the Tehran in the next day or two, observers in Tehran predict.

Ambassadors from a dozen countries met Thursday with Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh to discuss the visits, only hours after Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini gave the go-ahead for independent observers to see the Americans, held captive since Nov. 4. The diplomats were from Australia, Austria, Canada, Denmark, Finland, Greece, New Zealand, Norway, Portugal, Spain, Sweden and Switzerland.

The shah

There were conflicting reports on the health of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi.

The shah's lawyers said his health may have worsened and doctors who treated him in New York were to fly to Texas today to see if the former monarch needs further surgery.

But a source close to the shah, who moved to quarters at Lackland Air Force Base in San Antonio, Texas, following treatment for cancer and gallbladder problems in New York City, said the former ruler appeared to be fine.

President Carter

The national Christmas tree on the White House lawn is remaining dark this Christmas season — a somber reminder that 50 Americans are being held captive in Iran, President Carter says.

Amy Carter pushed the button Thursday to light the tree, but only the crowning star blazed into light.

"Around the periphery of this crowd there are 50 small Christmas trees — one for each American hostage," Carter said. "On top of the great Christmas tree is the star of hope. We will turn on the other lights on the tree when the American hostages come home."

Court of Justice

The International Court of Justice in The Hague will announce its decision Saturday on the U.S. request that it order the immediate release of the 50 American hostages, a court spokeswoman said today.

U.S. Attorney General Benjamin R. Civiletti presented the case to the court's 15 justices last Monday. He charged Iran with violating international law by holding the hostages. Iran boycotted the proceedings.

The Court is the main judicial organ of the United Nations.

TV newsman quits NBC because of interview

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon correspondent for NBC News says he is quitting because of what he calls the network's "irresponsible journalism" in televising an interview with an American hostage in Iran.

Ford Rowan submitted his resignation Tuesday, the day after NBC aired the interview with a Marine guard as part of a half-hour program negotiated with militants holding the U.S. embassy in Tehran.

Rowan told a reporter Thursday that his resignation was triggered by "my feeling that we were manipulated by the (Iranian) students and my failure to get the producers to include U.S. government reaction during prime time when the hostage was interviewed."

Rowan said he had tried in vain to get NBC to include his two-minute interview with a State Department spokesman when it televised the hostage interview from Iran. The State Department interview was later included in a special report broadcast late Monday night.

Rowan, a five-year employee of NBC News who has covered the Defense Department for 18 months, said he considered it "irresponsible to run (the interview) and not include the U.S. response."

Network rivals CBS and ABC and government officials criticized NBC's broadcast of the interview with Marine Cpl. William Gallegos because of the ground rules set by the Iranian militants.

Doctors to see if the shah might need further surgery

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Lawyers for the deposed shah of Iran say doctors who treated him in New York planned to fly to San Antonio today to determine if the former monarch needs further surgery.

"The doctors at Lackland (Air Force Base) have come to believe that his condition may have worsened," the lawyers said in a motion filed in a state district court here Thursday.

However, a source close to the shah at Lackland Air Force Base said late Thursday night that the former ruler appeared to be "fine."

"He felt ill a couple of days last week, but that is over with. He is complaining about the bad weather but that is all," the source said.

Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi arrived at the base Dec. 2 to recuperate from cancer and gall bladder surgery he received in New York.

The motion, a copy of which was obtained by WFAA Radio reporter Bob West, attempts to quash a subpoena requiring the deposed monarch to give a deposition in a $6 million dollar lawsuit against Bell Helicopter International, Inc.

The suit was filed by 69 former pilots who allege they were fired after they organized a union to enforce the terms of a contract to train Iranian military pilots.

James W. Lane, attorney for the pilots, said he subpoenaed the shah in an effort to get him to tell what he knows about the labor dispute.

The shah's lawyers contend giving the deposition "would disrupt his recovery from prior therapy... and pose an extremely serious threat to his health."

Greetings going to hostages at embassy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans are sending tens of thousands of Christmas greetings a day to the 50 hostages at the U.S. Embassy in Iran even though there's no assurance the mail is getting through.

"There has been a considerable increase in mail to Iran," with most of it addressed to the embassy, Postal Service spokesman Lou Eberhardt said Thursday.

At John F. Kennedy Airport in New York, where most of the mail to foreign destinations is sorted country by country, there were 70,840 pieces addressed to points in Iran, Eberhardt said. This compares to 41,000 on Wednesday, he said.

At O'Hare Airport in Chicago, where the rest of the mail addressed to Iran is sorted, 25,420 pieces were destined for Iran, up from 16,800 on Wednesday, Eberhardt said.

Postal officials in Chicago estimated that more than 90 percent of the mail to Iran is addressed to hostages.

Mail addressed to the Iranian embassy in Washington also was up sharply, the Postal Service said. Letter carriers delivered 10,000 letters and cards to the embassy Thursday, compared to Wednesday's 4,000, and the normal daily flow of five to eight letters, he said.

Radio personalities at various stations have urged that Christmas cards be sent to the hostages, though there is no word from Iran on whether the 50 hostages are receiving the mail.

Despite the surging mail volume to Iran, the Postal Service said its capacity has not been taxed, in part because it already was geared up for the usual massive mail volume during the period before Christmas.

"The volumes we have been getting have been well within our capacity," Eberhardt said.

Airmail to the embassy in Tehran costs 31 cents per half ounce and should be addressed to American Embassy, P. O. Box 50, Tehran, Iran. The address of the Iranian Embassy here is 3005 Massachusetts Ave., NW, Washington, D.C. 20008.

National Christmas tree remains dark for U.S. hostages

WASHINGTON (AP) — The national Christmas tree, ordinarily at this season a delight of lights, is remaining dark — a somber reminder that 50 Americans are being held captive in Iran.

"At this moment there are 50 Americans who don't have freedom, who don't have joy, who don't have warmth, who don't have their families with them," said President Carter Thursday night when he and his family attended what was to have been a lighting ceremony.

Amy Carter pushed the button, but only the crowning star blazed into light. Her father took the microphone to explain to the surprised crowd.

"Around the periphery of this crowd there are 50 small Christmas trees — one for each American hostage," he said.

Judge Green, champion of individual rights

WASHINGTON (AP) — The telephone ring constantly in Judge Joyce Hens Green's chambers. Her staff of three knew they would follow her decision Tuesday that the Carter administration's program to deport Iranian students illegally in the United States was unconstitutional.

Many of the callers were venting their frustration over the seizing of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran.

Like the phone calls, the decision was predictable to her staff, and it came as no surprise to others who have followed her career.

Throughout her 11 years on the city's Superior Court, Mrs. Green's opinions championed the rights of the individual.

In her first major opinion as a federal judge, she ruled that the government was violating the equal protection clause of the Constitution by singling out Iranian students for deportation.

The Carter administration on Wednesday appealed the decision in the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals here.

Justice Department lawyers asked for an emergency stay of the ruling pending a full appeal. No hearing on the request has been set yet.

In their brief, government lawyers argued Mrs. Green's injunction halting the deportation program "is a most serious and totally unwarranted intrusion by the judiciary into the constitutional authority of the political branches of the government."

Mrs. Green's staff said Wednesday that her championing of the Iranian students' rights was far different from the time she championed the rights of children by closing a children's home she found in substandard condition.

And, staff members said, it was no different from the time she ordered a car dealer to hand a consumer a full refund for a well-driven "lemon."

Nor was it much different from her order stopping the former mayor of Washington from raising property taxes, they added.

But her staff said her concern for people was never greater than during her tenure as head of the city court's family division.

After feuding parents snarled at each other in the courtroom, "she would bring their children back to her chambers to talk to them," said Sharon Williams, the judge's secretary.

She said she wanted to decline her first judicial appointment in 1968 because she had just had the first of her three children. Her husband, Sam, also a lawyer, persuaded her to take the job.

At the time, the Greens were law partners. "He still keeps an extra office in case I want to go back," she said in an interview.

Golda Meir considered suicide, says associate

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — The late Prime Minister Golda Meir contemplated suicide during the 1973 Mideast war because she felt personally responsible for Israel's losses, a close associate has revealed.

Although she kept going out of a sense of responsibility to the soldiers at the front, "my real life ended then," according to Yaakov Hazan, a former member of the Knesset, Israel's Parliament.

Speaking at a memorial service Wednesday marking the first anniversary of Mrs. Meir's death, Hazan said she told him shortly before she died of her depression during the war.

"You know, Hazan, then, during the Yom Kippur War, I was near, very near to suicide," Hazan quoted her as saying. "I knew that any earthly court would free me from any responsibility for the terrible failure. But I couldn't free myself of the feeling of guilt."

"I couldn't forgive myself for not following my feeling and fears. And accepting the opinion of the experts."

TVA hopes to heat up solar home market

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The Tennessee Valley Authority has launched what it says is the nation's first large-scale effort to make solar homes available at a price average families can afford — about $27,000.

Directors of the seven-state government utility Tuesday approved a $2.8 million program to build 130 model modular homes with passive solar systems by next August. By 1988, TVA hopes 7,500 such homes — 10 percent of the new houses to be built in the region over the next nine years — will be up.

Francis Coster, head of TVA's solar program, said the modular homes will range from 800 to 1,300 square feet, most will have three bedrooms and a pricetag of $27,000, including the land.

"For the first time, we're getting the solar technology into the price range the average person can afford," TVA Chairman S. David Freeman said. "We're putting up the seed money to create a new kind of housing that, if it works, will save the homeowner $8,000 in energy bills over the life of the house."

Modular homes, along with condominiums, are the fastest growing segment of the housing industry. They often are being trucked down highways, one half at a time.

About 30 different models will be designed by manufacturers chosen by competitive bids, Coster said.

The homes must use passive solar approaches — those not requiring mechanical devices. Their location, shape and materials will aim at getting the maximum benefit from the sun. The houses will include solar collectors for hot water, and may feature greenhouses.

Flood case not set yet by House

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Ethics Committee has indefinitely postponed proceedings against Rep. Daniel Flood, D-Pa., decreasing the chance that the hospitalized congressman will face the panel's charges that he violated House rules.

The postponement came after the committee heard a psychiatrist testify that Flood is sane and "would make an ass of himself" if required to aid in his legal defense.

The ethics panel, formally known as the House Committee on Official Standards of Conduct, voted 10-0 not to try Flood while he is undergoing drug withdrawal at Georgetown University Hospital.

The vote reverses a stand the committee took last week when members said they were obligated to pursue the congressman's case until Jan. 31, the date of his announced resignation.

Flood is charged with using his congressional influence in exchange for more than $50,000 between 1973 and 1976. He faces a Feb. 25 retrial on the same charges in federal court.

Flood's doctors have persuaded a federal judge to postpone the retrial three times, citing the congressman's health as the reason.

A psychiatrist who examined Flood on Tuesday said the congressman's brain has "organically deteriorated too much" for him to help his attorneys assemble a defense.

"He would make an ass of himself in front of the committee," said Dr. Edward R. Janjigian, former chief of psychiatry at the Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Veterans Administration Hospital.

"He (Flood) might faint, he might even die. His mind will wander during proceedings," added Janjigian, a friend of the congressman.

Fleet can't find the boat people

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Have the boat people of Vietnam stopped coming?

"The planes keep looking every day, but there just are no boats," said a spokesman for the U.S. 7th Fleet in the Philippines.

The fleet's planes and ships have searched the South China Sea since July to assist Vietnamese fleeing their country aboard frail, leaky boats. No new sighting has been reported since early November, and a U.S. Embassy spokesman said the Navy is "mystified."

But George F.F. Reynolds, the Canadian embassy's immigration officer, said in a recent interview: "The Vietnamese promised at the Geneva refugee conference last July to reduce the numbers. Since there are fewer arrivals now, I guess we must attribute it to that. I can't think of any other reason, except for the recent typhoon season."

'Tarzan' Hall

dead; Suicide

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Jon Hall, who scaled volcanoes and swung through trees in dozens of jungle and island movies, is dead at 66, a cancer-stricken suicide, coroner's officials say.

Coroner's investigator James Cono said Hall shot himself Thursday. The body of the actor, who also starred in the 1950s television series "Ramar of the Jungle" before going on to invent space-age cameras, was found by his brother-in-law, Edward Bayman, in the North Hollywood home of Hall's sister, Louise.

Herb Klein, Hall's partner in businesses that developed new types of cameras and lenses, said the actor had been in "tremendous" pain from bladder cancer.

"He'd come into the office and stand up for about a half hour and then have to lie down," said Klein. "We had so many things going on. A lot of these things we developed just to give him something to live for."

Klein said Hall was to be master of ceremonies at a New Year's Eve Hollywood gala. "He wanted to get back into promoting and producing," said Klein.

The New Year's Eve party will go on as planned, Klein said, but as for the comeback and development of more cameras, "I don't know if we can do any of it without him."

According to police, Bayman heard a gunshot and discovered Hall's body in a bedroom. Officers found a .22-caliber pistol lying near Hall's body.

Born Charles Loehner in Fresno, Calif., Hall spent his youth in Tahiti and at age 21 won the starring role of the native boy in the original version of "The Hurricane" with Dorothy Lamour.

Bedell of Kingfisher, Okla., and Deecye Bedell of Kermit; two sisters, Frankie Sowers of Homer, Alaska, and Wenoka Roberts of Oran, Algeria; and a number of nieces and nephews.

Mourners pack St. Patrick's as Archbishop Sheen buried

NEW YORK (AP) — Archbishop Fulton J. Sheen, one of the country's most popular Roman Catholic churchmen, has been buried in the crypt of St. Patrick's Cathedral, a place usually reserved for heads of the New York Archdiocese and the cathedral.

In keeping with Sheen's pursuit of ecumenism, the funeral Mass of the Resurrection was attended Thursday by Protestant, Jewish, Roman Catholic and Greek Orthodox religious leaders.

Cardinal Terence Cooke, archbishop of New York, helped celebrate the Mass. He said special arrangements were made for Sheen's funeral because of "the extraordinary position of Archbishop Sheen in the affection of the people of the Archdiocese of New York."

Only eight other church officials have been interred in the cathedral's crypt — six archbishops and two rectors of the cathedral.

Sheen, who became familiar to millions with his radio and television ministry, was eulogized by Archbishop Edward T. O'Meara as a "powerful and convincing" spokesman, "the like of which will not be heard again in our day."

"Many came to the faith in Christ and the Church through his words," said O'Meara, one of Sheen's closest friends, who succeeded Sheen as national director of the Society for the Propagation of the Faith.

The cathedral was filled to capacity as about 3,000 worshippers paid respects to Sheen, who was credited with drawing many back to the church and converting others, including the well-known and powerful.

Sheen, who had a television show in the 1950s called "Life Is Worth Living," died Sunday at age 84. He had been in delicate health since suffering a heart attack three years ago.

Sheen's last official church position was that of bishop of Rochester.

Rotary hears of NASA Space Shuttle project during Thursday meeting

A special program on NASA's Space Shuttle project was presented by Mike Mullins, physics teacher at Midland High School, and two members of the Junior Engineering Technical Society at the meeting of the Midland Rotary Club Thursday noon in the Midland Hilton.

Mullins introduced the program, which was arranged by Kent Randal, Patricia Gilbert, a Lee High School student, and Mark Stanley of Midland High showed a film presentation, "Space Shuttle," and commented on the project.

They also discussed a special space project, sponsored by NASA, in which the Midland Junior Engineering Society, which includes students from both Midland and Lee high schools, is participating.

A question and answer period followed.

Four injured in two-vehicle accident

Levy road conditions were probably the cause of a two-vehicle accident near Midland Regional Airport in which four Midlanders were injured, according to the Department of Public Safety. The accident occurred about 7:15 p.m. on U.S. Highway 80 at its intersection with County Road 1788. DPS officials reported.

Driver of one car, Susan Taylor, 57, 3915 Gaston St., and passengers Ada Gravett, 29, 3915 Gaston St., Reda Stark, 45, 4706 Leisure Drive, and Valerie Waller, 54, 4426 Roosevelt Ave. were all treated and released from Midland Memorial Hospital, officials said.

The driver of the second car, James Allen Rasnick of Odessa, was not injured in the accident, DPS officials said.

Both vehicles were westbound on U.S. Highway 80 when the accident occurred, according to the DPS.

Gunman robs Odessa Pizza Hut

ODESSA — A lone robber walked into a Pizza Hut in Odessa Thursday afternoon, brandished a handgun and walked out with an undetermined amount of money.

According to police accounts, the man walked into the restaurant, pointed a small handgun at the woman behind the counter and told her to open the cash register.

She complied, police said, and the robber took the money from the cash register and fled the establishment.

Workingmen's club faces eviction action

CLEVELAND (AP) — Northeast Yacht Club, a workingmen's club next to a waste water treatment facility on Lake Erie, is facing eviction action by the Northeast Ohio Regional Sewer District. The 34-year-old club is just east of White City Beach on state-owned land reclaimed from Lake Erie and leased to Cleveland. The sewer authority took it over along with the Cleveland sewer system. Club president Roger Smyth said the club does not interfere with potential expansion of the nearby Easterly treatment plant and should be included in the state's new Lakefront Park. "It's a workingman's club, not one of these hoity-toity places, and the sewer authority is grinding us into the dust."

BOWLING BEAT

By RANDY ISENBERG

Bill Theobald strikes with 717

Bill Theobald paced all bowlers during the past week as he rolled consistently well enroute to a fine 717 series. The 717 came on games of 247-224 and 246 and was instrumental in helping his Orloff teammates to a fine 3.84 five-man team three game scratch series. The Orloff team bowled games of 1,110, 1,044, and 1,030. Teammate Ty Bowling chipped in a 245-241-212 for a 701 as the Orloff team sizzled in the Air Park Classic Scratch league.

Geneva Nicholson paced the women with a 625 series bowled on games of 225-188 and 211 in the Silk Stockings league. Cliffo Hogue rolled a four-game set of 800 in the Ladies Scratch Trio league while Patsy Wallin, bowling in the same league, had a three-game set of 611.

Jim Ledbetter has bowled consistently well all season, particularly in the Air Park Classic Scratch where he is averaging 208 for the first 13 weeks. For the last six weeks, his three game sets have averaged 644 for a brisk 214 plus per game clip.

Hats off to Monica Atkins, the inspirational leader of the Special Olympics bowling league that is competing for the fourth year. Monica and a multitude of gracious volunteers and parents have developed the group into one of the top programs in the state. Members of the league recently returned from Grand Prairie where they competed successfully and earned awards in various age divisions. Patience and understanding have been important in providing the more than 20 youngsters in this program. Thanks to all who have helped.

Mobil Oil says DOE has trouble interpreting its own regulations

WASHINGTON (AP) — Amerada Hess, one of two oil companies accused of new pricing violations, says the overcharges alleged by the Energy Department exceed the company's profits during the time period covered.

Mobil, the other firm cited, accused the Energy Department of misinterpreting its own regulation and said it believed it had committed no violations.

The new allegations issued Thursday bring to $8.9 billion the total amount of pricing violations charged against a dozen or so oil companies in a series of Energy Department audits covering the period 1973 through 1976.

Audits of transactions since 1976 are to be conducted in the future.

The new charges against Mobil of $504.5 million raise to $979.5 million the total pricing violations alleged against the company for the 1973-76 period.

Amerada Hess was charged with $653.5 million in violations, bringing the total allegations against it to $915 million.

Amerada Hess said the aggregate amount of the overcharges alleged by the department were "substantially in excess" of the company's profits on refining and marketing activities during that time period.

The two companies are among the 15 largest U.S. refiners.

Most of the department's allegations, including the latest ones, do not charge that the violations were deliberate but only that the companies misinterpreted the accounting rules or made miscalculations leading to actual or potential overcharges.

Some settlements have been reached in which companies agreed to make refunds to customers, to make compensatory payments to the government, or to reduce claims for future price increases.

But most of the $8.9 billion in alleged violations remain in dispute.

Senate seeks way to break stalemate on profits bill

By JIM LUTHER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The problem in finding a way out of the stalemate blocking Senate action on the "windfall profits" tax is the same one that has occupied one house of Congress or the other for most of the year.

In the words of Sen. Henry Bellmon, R-Okla., "We have to pass a bill that is politically acceptable without damaging the oil industry."

There is no standard definition of used, and oil from fields not yet discovered.

Republicans, who had adamantly opposed any windfall tax on the as-yet undiscovered oil, gave in and agreed to accept a 5 percent tax on that oil, plus the 20 percent tax on tertiary and heavy oils.

Participants in the private negotiations said that proposal was on the verge of acceptance when senators from states where heavy and tertiary oil are produced began advocating a lower tax on that production.

Carter originally proposed a "windfall profits" tax to make decontrol of U.S. crude oil prices politically acceptable. The revenue would pay for his long-range energy program and help lower-income Americans cope with rising fuel costs.

The tax would be applied to crude-oil price increases above current levels. While not imposed directly on oil industry profits, it would, like any other tax, ultimately reduce profits.

Former Gus employee nabbed by FBI

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — The former employee of an El Paso oil-finding equipment firm was in jail today after FBI agents said he tried to sell secrets of one major oil company to another.

The FBI said they arrested Billie Eugene Bauer, 48, of Juarez, Mexico after he crossed the international border with more than 200 secret documents and tried to sell them to an undercover agent.

Bauer was ordered jailed in lieu of $25,000 bond.

The investigation began after Phillips Petroleum Co. officials alerted American Oil Co. they had received a letter offering detailed plans of AMOCO equipment manufactured at Gus Manufacturing, Inc., the FBI said.

When Bauer left Gus Manufacturing last September, the federal complaint said, he pledged not to reveal company secrets.

The complaint said Phillips contacted AMOCO immediately after it had received a letter offering detailed plans for the equipment.

AMOCO notified the FBI and a meeting with an undercover agent and the letter writer was arranged for Wednesday at an El Paso hotel, according to the federal complaint.

During that meeting Bauer gave the secret documents to the agent, the complaint said.

A federal court preliminary hearing was for Dec. 18.

The FBI would not give details on the oil-finding equipment involved. But, a geology professor at the University of Texas at El Paso, Dr. Randy Keller, said he was familiar with the machinery. Keller called the equipment "one of their top of the line pieces of gear, very sophisticated.

"It's composed of little boxes that sit in a field collecting information which goes into a big computer. Seismic waves are recorded, and the seismographic picture is then interpreted by a seismographer," Keller said.

The picture can eventually be used to show where underground oil can be found, he added.

Officials of both oil companies praised the FBI for their work on the case. Security officers for Standard Oil also participated in the investigation.

If convicted of the charge of transporting stolen property across international lines, Bauer could receive a maximum sentence of 10 years in prison and be fined $10,000.

what constitutes "politically acceptable."

Still unable to work out a compromise "minimum tax" amendment to the windfall bill, the Senate planned a third attempt today to limit debate in an effort to expedite action on the bill.

Such a limit on debate would not necessarily break the stalemate over the minimum tax, which is sponsored by Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd and supported by the Carter administration. But, with a holiday recess approaching, that 100-hour limit could pressure senators into some sort of agreement.

The first try for debate-limiting closure fell seven votes short; the second, on Thursday, was four votes over the 60 needed.

Senators who represent the non-oil-producing states contend that to be politically acceptable, the windfall tax must be high enough that the public does not view removal of price controls on crude oil as a "ripoff" of consumers.

The House set $277 billion as the acceptable level. The Senate Finance Committee recommended $138 billion. President Carter asked for close to $300 billion.

Republicans and oil-state Democrats insist the tax must be low enough to leave the oil industry ample money to ensure increased energy exploration and development.

They are ready to accept the increases already voted by the Senate, which would result in a tax of about $155 billion. They insist the House tax would further increase U.S. dependence on foreign supplies.

The Senate has been trying since Nov. 16 to strike the balance between those extremes. The key to reaching the acceptable level of taxation is Byrd's proposed "minimum tax" amendment, which prompted the filibuster.

Despite another late-night session Thursday, the Senate was unable to break the deadlock. Some who participated in negotiations said several moderate and liberal senators refused to yield to GOP demands that Byrd's $30.8 billion amendment be slashed to about $17 billion.

Those moderates and liberals remember a 53-41 test vote Wednesday that indicated they should be able to win the $30.8 billion amendment — if they can bring it to a vote.

"We're close to a compromise but we're not there yet," Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., one of the negotiators, told reporters Thursday night.

"There is no agreement," said Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas, Republican manager of the tax bill.

Byrd's amendment would impose a 20 percent tax on three categories of U.S.-produced crude oil that the Finance Committee said should be exempt to encourage production.

Those are thick, costly-to-pump "heavy" oil, found mainly in California; increased production from fields where chemical and other expensive "tertiary" recovery techniques are

California-based gas company does about face in advertising negative aspect of product prices

By NANCY YOSHIHARA The Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — Most companies don't advertise bad news, but Southern California Gas Co. is doing just that.

The Los Angeles-based utility began a $300,000 advertising campaign last month based on an unusual strategy — focusing on a negative aspect of its products higher prices.

"Gas bills are going up," declares the first of the utility's newspaper advertisements. "But there's something you can do about it."

The advertisement offers energy-saving suggestions to reduce this winter's utility bills, which could be as much as 60 percent higher than last year because of rising natural gas prices.

Selling the idea of conservation is not new for Southern California Gas, but warning of the prospects of higher prices is.

"Historically, advertising does not talk of negative things," says Don Robertson, manager of advertising at the gas company. "In discussing whether such an approach would be appropriate we decided that it was, because advertising would reach the most people." (The utility has 3.6 million customers in Southern California.)

"And since we are essentially a monopoly, we thought it best to warn our customers 56% higher prices," he says. "We felt a moral obligation to commu20h5 what impact and t$827,pe of impact the higher prices would have."

Customers can't change prices, Robertson points out, but they can take such actions as turning thermostats down or insulating their houses.

"People don't have to be educated as much as they have to be reminded. The basic idea is to forewarn so they will be forearmed to cope."

Still, Southern California Gas has moved cautiously. Its advertising agency, Doyle Dane Bernbach, prepared three programs to initiate the "rising price of natural gas" campaign. It pretested consumer response to the ads at shopping centers.

The boldest of the three ads had drawings of tomatoes splattered around copy which reads, "We regret to inform you that your gas bill is going up. Boo. Hiss." Another had a simple drawing of an armchair and the headline: "Why you should sit down before opening your first winter gas bill."

Richard P. Lemen, vice president at Doyle Dane, says pretesting indicated that consumers understand. "They said, 'Aw, well, everything else is going up.' They seemed preconditioned to higher prices."

The ad that was subsequently selected is less bold than the tomato copy and was better received than the armchair ad. It lists a conservation hotline telephone number. "We are getting some phone calls — about 47 so far — but frankly fewer than we had expected," Robertson says.

But, he points out, the higher rates don't take effect until January and the current warm weather is keeping heating needs down. The campaign, which is running concurrently with the gas company's regular conservation ads, is slated for 47 newspapers, radio and transit boards in buses. It is directed to all customers, with special emphasis on low income and senior citizens, who will be hurt most by higher utility bills.

Robertson says Southern California Gas is not the first company to focus on higher prices. Pacific Gas & Electric Co., San Francisco, has a similar campaign now and had one last year, too. Southern Union of Dallas also has run such ads and so has the American Gas Association, according to Robertson.

Metromedia Inc., Secaucus, N.J., announced it is negotiating with a group of private investors concerning the sale of the assets of its Metromail division, which is engaged in the direct mail marketing business in the United States. The division also offers specialized computerized consumer market information and mail marketing services to direct mail advertisers and others.

The sale is subject to a definitive agreement and approval by Metromedia's board.

Anheuser-Busch is entering direct mail marketing through its Clydesdale collection, a wide range of merchandise bearing the emblems of its beer brands. The brewer said it is planning to have 1 million catalogues in circulation by the end of 1980. The company will begin advertising the catalogue operation next March in consumer magazines. Products include bar accessories, apparel, Mitchell telephones and full sized Ford vans decorated with Clydesdale graphics.

The American Association of Advertising agencies filed a friend of the court brief with the U.S. Supreme Court in support of Consolidated Edison Co. vs. New York's Public Service Commission. At issue is whether the commission may prohibit the company from including advertising messages as inserts in their monthly customer billings.

When Yetta blows, feet move

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Wouldn't you know a fashion designer would be in the audience the night Tommy Yetta wore his blue and yellow shoes. As it turned out, though, it was just as well.

Actually, the shoes were the second observation the designer made about Yetta. The first was the way her own shoes took to tapping when Yetta blew his horn.

When Tommy Yetta blows his horn, feet move. They can't help it.

"The more the people respond, the better I play," he said. "It's a magic circle."

Yetta's horn is a trumpet. He blows it, Dixieland style, on Bourbon Street.

One Dixieland trumpet on Bourbon Street, where that wonderfully raucous American folk art began, where, for block after gaudy block, from Canal to Esplanade, the jazz blaring from one joint assaults the jazz blaring from the next, one trumpet would ordinarily be as distinguishable as one shrimp in a hot dish of Cajun gumbo.

Not so to Signora Guigliana di Camerino.

On a visit to New Orleans to promote her fashions (which go by the design name "Roberta"), the signora got her first taste of Dixieland jazz. She was smitten.

She decided to take back with her to Venice, Italy, an authentic Dixieland band to play at a fashion show. If a Dixieland band won't attract attention, neither will a five-alarm fire.

She had just one instruction for her New Orleans agent: "Hire the man with the blue and yellow shoes."

What a kick, Tommy Yetta recalled. "We had a parade of candlelit boats out to her private island where the show was to be held. She and I and the band were in the lead boat."

Mayor gets big raise

HIACLEAH, Fla. (AP) — Hialeah City Council members say they voted a 72 percent pay raise for the mayor to put him on a par with colleagues in similar cities.

The council voted 13 to add $16,232 to Mayor Dale Bennett's annual salary of $22,500, plus $5,000 for expenses. The expense account was later withdrawn, but the city will still pay for out-of-town trips approved by the council.

Earn over $25,000, said Joanne Coleman, a new member of the council and an airline advertising specialist. "I think that having building inspectors making more than the mayor is tacky."

With the raise voted Tuesday night, the mayor of Florida's seventh largest city, makes almost double the combined salaries of Dade Mayor Steve Clark, Miami Mayor Maurice Ferre and Miami Beach Mayor Murray Meyerson.

But Hialeah personnel director Dan Greenfield says Jacksonville, Orlando and Tampa pay their mayors from $10,000 to $15,000.

Hialeah and the other cities all have "strong mayor" governments, unlike Dade County, Miami and Miami Beach, where the city council or commission is more powerful, Greenfield said.

"The mayor in each (strong mayor city) is called upon to make the strong decisions," the personnel director said.

Jimmy Dean to open restaurants

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — He's big and craggy and a lot smarter than he looks. He's Jimmy Dean, Sausage King.

Riding the crest of "Big Bad John" and a host of other country hits, Dean has parlayed a successful singing career into a national sausage business that he says this year will gross $60 million.

"Now, 18 years after 'Big Bad John,' he's ready to take what many Ohioans may regard as the ultimate step in the sausage business. He's opening up a line of sausage restaurants, and he's the lion in his den by beginning the first two restaurants in Columbus, the backyard of sausage magnate Bob Evans."

"This isn't Bob Evans country. This is America," Dean said while visiting Columbus to promote his new venture.

Dean promoted to the hill while in the state capital. He appeared on radio talk shows, attended promotional parties and put on his western hat every time someone wanted to take his picture.

While keeping the tip of his finger in the entertainment business, Dean is now the consummate wheeler-dealer.

He manages a multimillion dollar financial empire from Jimmy Dean Co. headquarters in Dallas and jets round the country managing enterprises that range from a sausage plant in Iowa through a pigskin coat business and hotels and to Florida citrus groves. He takes an occasional entertainment booking — like maybe $20,000 for playing a rodeo.

After two years of what he refers to as "problems" in the Jimmy Dean Sausage Co., he cleaned house at the top, bought out his partner brother and expects to do about $100 million in business next year.

Dean is the off-beat, classic rags-to-riches story of a poor Texas boy turned multi-millionaire entertainer-businessman.

"I just like to build things," he says. "When I get the sausage business to where it's the best and perfect and I can't make it any better, then I'll sell it and do something else," he said. But he also adds that part of his desire to "build things" may be insecurity he feels about not wanting to be poor again.

And, he sees the federal government as doing all it can to, if not make him poor, at least keep him from passing along much of an inheritance. "Any more a man is punished for succeeding," he said. And, "If a man is not willing to try, then he can drop dead and the world will be better off without him," he says in self-made man fashion.

Dean is just as pessimistic on the fate of American hostages in Iran. "It's going to lead to bloodshed and to violence," he said. "I'm scared to death and fully believe that if they harm one of those people, we should flatten them out."

Porn films now fact of college life

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — On the night before midterms and finals, students at the University of Michigan taking a study break can head for a blue movie, right in their own dormitories.

X-rated films, at informal showings or organized dorm festivals, are now a fact of college life, campus officials say.

"It does occur campus-wide and is a national phenomenon," said Mary Bewley, director of the University of Michigan's South Quad dormitory complex.

One South Quad dormitory holds a porno movie night for women each April Fool's Day. Similar festivals for men and women in other wings of the complex are held before spring exams and in the fall.

University officials say more good than harm comes of the screenings, because students see the films in a relaxed atmosphere and can discuss them with friends and staff.

The films also help students make decisions about sexuality, Bewley said.

"A lot of the women up here are really very naive," Bewley said.

"When they come here and live in the same dorm with men, they are hit with a lot of questions and have to decide their own morality and make judgments on their own sexuality."

The movies are a way of educating men too, said Patricia Ward, chairwoman of the dorm's sexuality committee.

"We try to show them they don't have to feel pressured to see a porno film in order to be one of the guys. You have the right to find these things distasteful," she said.

Of 500 women in the South Quad dormitory, only about 35 attended the April Fool's Day festival, said Sue Ferriek, director of the dormitory.

"Some felt it was gross and left, but there were no real extreme reactions. We felt it was a healthy atmosphere," she said.

No university funds appear to be used for the showings. Students raise money to obtain the films. The showings for men and women are generally separate, and no one is pressured to attend.
