Report Shows Foreigners Grabbing Texas Land

AUSTIN (AP) — The Germans are coming — and the Swiss, Mexicans, French, Dutch, Canadians, Scots and others, all buying choice Texas farm and ranch land.

Since March foreigners have bought 53,002 acres of farm and ranch land in 32 counties. The land has an estimated value of nearly $27.3 million.

"There's a lot of money floating around," Texas Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown said Monday.

Brown distributed the first official federal report on foreign investment in Texas agricultural land.

The 1978 Agricultural Foreign Investment Disclosure Act charges the U.S. Department of Agriculture with gathering information on land owned by foreigners and submitting reports to the states.

In April the Texas House killed a proposal that would have prohibited purchases of agricultural land by foreigners.

The largest investors in recent months have been West Germans, who spent more than $7.2 million for 8,456 acres, including over 1,000 acres of citrus groves in Hidalgo County.

Brown, however, expects the next wave of big buyers to be Mexican nationals, who have been involved in 12 recent transactions.

The report, which includes transfers of inherited land, shows 28 separate transactions in Hidalgo County and seven transactions each in Cameron County, also in the Lower Rio Grande Valley, and Zavala County in Southwest Texas.

The largest land sale involved 14,000 acres of "pasture" in Pecos County, purchased by Alvaro Lebrija of Mexico. The most expensive sale was $3,400,000 for 9,206 acres in Delta County, bought by Salpist Bluff Realty of the Netherlands Antilles.

Brown said the report covered the six-month period ending Aug. 1 and does not show foreign purchases prior to March.

When an estimated 93,000 acres of farm land were purchased in 1978, it was said that at that rate it would take foreigners 25 years to gain control of 1 percent of Texas' 157.9 million farm, ranch and forest acres.

However, Ed McKay of the Texas Farm Bureau has been quoted as saying foreigners already own 1 percent of Texas' farm land.

Teachers' Walkouts Spread

By The Associated Press

Nearly 300 Detroit schools were shut down a second day today and about 3,600 San Francisco teachers were called to a mass meeting to pass out picket signs as nearly 800,000 pupils in 12 states awaited the return of their regular teachers.

But in Detroit, negotiators for 12,000 striking teachers said they would return to the bargaining table.

Leaders of the Detroit Federation of Teachers met with school board members and state-appointed mediator Robert Blackwell in a five-hour bargaining session Monday night. But no results of that session were announced.

San Francisco teachers, who voted by a 2-to-1 margin Monday night to boycott the first day of duty today, scheduled a mass meeting and vowed to go on the picket lines when classes begin Wednesday for 60,000 pupils.

Strike-ending settlements were reached in smaller districts in Connecticut, Washington and Illinois, and a Superior Court judge Monday ordered 1,900 Anchorage, Alaska, teachers to end their 6-day walkout.

Los Angeles school officials faced a possible sickout today by the 26,000-member United Teachers of Los Angeles, but said substitute teachers were adequate to cover absences.

Classes for 600,000 Los Angeles pupils begin today, and negotiations continued Monday in a dispute over pay.

Nationwide, strikes by more than 39,000 teachers continued in Alaska, California, Illinois, Indiana, Louisiana, Michigan, New Jersey, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island and Washington.

Detroit officials ordered school doors closed indefinitely when a head count Monday showed only about 11,800 of the district's 213,000 pupils crossed picket lines to attend class. They said 294 of 12,000 teachers in the district showed up.

"Detroit teachers do not work without a contract," said Mary Ellen Riordan, president of the Detroit Federation of Teachers. "We're hoping this will be a short strike."

The dispute centers on a cost-of-living clause the teachers want included in the board's contract offer.

The union is demanding a 15.7 percent wage increase and the rehiring of 1,200 teachers laid off last spring in a budget trim. The length of the contract is negotiable.

In Southington, Conn., the 470-member teacher union voted overwhelmingly to go back to work and submit a wage dispute to binding arbitration. Teacher strikes in Connecticut are illegal.

House Panel Plans Study Of New Tax

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation could have new tax, called a value added tax, as early as 1981 to raise as much as $150 billion as a partial substitute for other existing taxes, the chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee said today.

Rep. Al Ullman said his panel will hold hearings on the proposed tax in October. While he said he favored the idea, he stressed in a speech that it would not increase the total tax burden.

"We don't want one dollar of new taxes for the American people under today's conditions," Ullman said at a seminar sponsored by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce.

The value added tax, also known as the VAT, is often described as a national sales tax, since it is a tax on value and is paid by the buyer of the product. It is in operation in various forms in a number of European countries.

Ullman said that in the United States the VAT would have to be part of an overall package of tax changes. "The VAT on its own would go nowhere," he also said he objected to calling it a sales tax, since it is a tax on value.

He suggested that VAT could be part of a package that included:

- A 25 percent cutback in the Social Security tax, without a loss of benefits.
- More rapid depreciation, for tax purposes, of business investment.
- An end to the so-called double taxation of corporate dividends and profits.
- Reducing the "over-reliance" on the income tax, including a restructuring of income tax rates to ease inflation-induced tax pressures on middle-income persons and limiting the maximum tax on income to 50 percent.

— Deferring taxes on dividends paid by savings and loan associations as an incentive to invest.

— Providing a new incentive to exports by rebating the VAT tax on export goods.

Gulf Coast Gets Ready For Reborn Hurricane

MIAMI (AP) — Hurricane Frederic grew stronger today as it drifted lazily in the Gulf of Mexico and forecasters warned that a hurricane watch might be necessary for the Florida Panhandle, Alabama, Mississippi or Louisiana before the end of the day.

By noon, winds had reached 100 mph and were expected to strengthen more. Gale warnings were in effect for the Dry Tortugas, a group of small islands at the edge of the Gulf.

"It's 24 to 48 hours away from land, but the storm has a slow motion that increases the chances of the steering currents making a path slightly different from what they are now," said meteorologist Preston Leftwich of the National Hurricane Center.

"A slow-moving storm, by staying over water longer, runs the chance of changing course rapidly," he said.

At noon, Frederic was continuing its 5 mph drift towards the northwest. It was near latitude 24.6 north and longitude 85.1 west, about 200 miles west of Key West.

Frederic, which reached hurricane strength crossing the Atlantic Ocean last week but weakened to tropical storm status by week's end, was reborn as a hurricane Monday as it threatened Key West. By Tuesday, the threat to the Florida Keys had decreased as the storm moved farther into the Gulf.

Boaters from Key Largo in the Florida Keys all the way along the Gulf coast to Grand Isle, La., were warned to stay in port. Small craft from Key Largo up the East Coast to Jupiter were warned not to venture far from safe harbor.

In New Orleans, Chevron USA Inc. began closing two Gulf of Mexico oil drilling installations and said other cut-backs may be likely.

"We're in the very preliminary stages of securing and getting people in," said spokesman Newell Schindler. "If we have to bring everybody in, we're looking at about 800 people."

Schindler said Chevron contractors began ceasing work on two oil rig installations — one at South Pass 78 near the mouth of the Mississippi River and at a new platform being installed at Garden Banks, about 140 miles due south of Cameron.

Out in the Atlantic, meanwhile, Hurricane Gloria lost strength and was downgraded to a tropical storm.

Gloria's top winds were 65 mph, beneath the hurricane threshold of 74 mph. Forecaster John Hope predicted the storm would begin moving east-northeast toward the open sea later today. No significant change in strength was expected early today.

Witness Tells Jury Of Agents' Night Raid

By KAY BELL

Avalanche-Journal Staff

The victim of a misdirected drug raid told an eight-member federal court jury this morning that men he later discovered to be narcotics agents broke down the back door of his Plainview apartment three years ago and then held him at gunpoint without identifying themselves or showing him a search warrant.

Ted Hooks was the first witness called to testify as the retrial of the damage suit he, Diane Duncan Hooks and Delia Gutierrez filed against the officers began this morning in U.S. District Judge Halbert O. Woodward's courtroom.

The trio filed the suit, seeking $3,003 in damages, against the officers involved in the March 19, 1976, raid after it was discovered the officers had entered the wrong apartment in their search for a reputed narcotics dealer.

Originally named in the suit were the Amarillo Metro Squad, Hale County sheriff's officers, Plainview police and members of the Hale County Major Crimes and Narcotics Unit. The latter since has been disbanded.

Hooks told the four-woman, four-man civil jury that he was awakened about 2 a.m. March 19, 1976 by a loud "explosion type" crash.

He said he jumped from bed un-clothed and ran into the living room of the apartment he was sharing with his fiancée, Miss Duncan, who later became his wife, and Miss Gutierrez.

When he reached the living room, Hooks testified, one of officers pushed him back into the bedroom and forced him against the wall in a spread-eagle position. He said the officer, Jim Patterson, refused to answer Hooks' questions concerning what was going on and told Hooks to keep his face to the wall or the officer would "blow your — brains out." Hooks said Patterson held a .357 magnum revolver to the back of Hooks' head.

Meanwhile, Hooks said, he heard

Miss Duncan screaming and officers apparently breaking down the door of Miss Gutierrez's bedroom.

Hooks, who now is a court reporter in Alabama, said the officers ransacked the apartment for about 20 minutes before another officer asked Hooks his name and the address of the apartment. When Hooks answered, he said, the officer replied, "Uh, oh. We've got the wrong address. Where's Apartment B, quick, quick."

Only then, Hooks said, were he and the two women allowed to dress and were told the men were narcotics agents seeking the man who lived in the apartment below the trio's residence.

However, Hooks said, after most of the officers went downstairs to conduct the search in the other apartment, another officer re-entered the trio's residence and again searched the place.

Defense counsel tried to shake Hooks' story as "illogical, considering the usual way narcotics agents conduct a raid," but Hooks refused to budge on his testimony, saying the "whole incident seemed pretty silly to me."

After the first trial in Canyon, the jury said the officers had acted in good faith in conducting the raid, but the jury could not decide on the officers' behavior. See RAID DESCRIBED Page 14

Pray-In To Fight TV 'Garbage'

AMARILLO (AP) — Judy Mamou is worried about the moral decay of television, and she says CBS-TV is "leading the parade in garbage."
So Mrs. Mamou, her husband Jimmy, and about 100 Panhandle pastors and church members hope to exorcise the garbage with a pray-in today at KFDD, the local CBS affiliate.
The pray-in was born when CBS announced it would air "Flesh and Blood," a two-part program about incest, on Oct. 14 and 16.

"I was involved in incest," Mrs. Mamou said, "and it is not funny. If they were going to show the terrible trauma and how to survive incest, that would be different, but to exploit it is disgusting."
She said she read the book the movie is based on, and it was "the pits."
Mrs. Mamou also said the group would pray for Suzanne Pleshette, who stars in the program as a mother who has an incestuous relationship with her boxer son.

"We just might make an offering for her," Mrs. Mamou said. "She must be pretty desperate for work to stoop so low."
But the prayers won't stop there.
The group also planned to protest "30 Minutes," a children's show patterned after "60 Minutes" that deals with such topics as homosexuality, drugs and venereal disease.
"I was shocked," Mrs. Mamou said of the Saturday morning program. "Trying to give smut to adults is one thing, but trying to reach down to our children, that's another thing. The kids that watch TV on Saturdays are two to eight years old. They don't need to know about VD."

Group Doubts Legality Of New Obscenity Laws

HOUSTON (AP) — Attorneys for 46 dealers in adult materials say they will appeal a ruling by U.S. District Judge Norman W. Black that the state's new and tougher obscenity laws are constitutional.
Clyde Woody, who represents one of the plaintiffs, said he was shocked by the ruling Monday and said the group would appeal.
Woody argued at a hearing that the new law "gives unbridled license to the defendants to invade the First Amendment rights of the plaintiffs."
Black lifted a preliminary injunction that had blocked enforcement of the statutes in Harris and eight other counties. The new law went into effect Sept. 1.

The preliminary injunction also included Dallas, Tarrant, Travis, Bexar, Galveston, El Paso, McLennan and Hidalgo counties.
"Each one of the various plaintiffs and other retail outlets is probably doing substantial self-analysis tonight about whether to stay in business or what," said John W. Weston, Los Angeles, representing one of the plaintiffs.
Weston said the ruling would have a serious impact on the ability of smaller establishments to stay in business.
Assistant Harris County District Attorney R.K. Hansen said "Assistant district attorneys are not standing by at the police department. Nothing will happen right away, but I'm sure something will in the foreseeable future."
Houston Vice Sgt. Jim Flagg said officers started surveying dealerships Monday to see if they were in compliance with the new law.

Ballerina Shunned By Friends

MOSCOW (AP) — Bolshoi ballerina Ludmilla Vlasova, who left her defector husband in New York last month, is being shunned by her fellow dancers and regrets her decision to come home, according to Bolshoi insiders.
Former friends and fellow dancers will not talk to the 36-year-old dancer because they think she "sold her soul" to Soviet officials in exchange for better roles, Bolshoi sources say.
Miss Vlasova was the center of a Soviet-U.S. confrontation when her plane was grounded for three days in New York by U.S. authorities until MISS VLASOVA they determined she was returning to Russia by choice.

Nashville Honors Dolly Parton

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Entertainer Dolly Parton has been given an official thank you for donating her image in an advertising campaign designed to lure fuel-wary tourists.
The country music singer was honored Monday at a Chamber of Commerce luncheon for her efforts at bringing more tourism to Tennessee and to Nashville. Then, in a surprise presentation, she was given the annual Metronome Award as the person in the music industry who has done the most to help the Music City.
"We could find no one who has meant more to country music over the past year as well as the continued vitality and growth of the entire recording industry in our city," said Chamber president Joe Thompson Jr.

Miss Parton agreed to the use of her picture, free of charge, this summer in a chamber-sponsored newspaper and magazine advertising campaign aimed at rescuing some of the city's tourism business left high and dry by visitor fears of gasoline shortages.

French Hold Protest

ROME (AP) — French philosopher Jean Paul Sartre and author Simone de Beauvoir joined a half-hour protest in front of Parliament in support of six persons jailed on suspicion of terrorism.

They also signed an appeal of "solidarity" with the detainees, who have been awaiting trial since April 7 in connection with the killing of former premier Aldo Moro.
At the demonstration Monday, the wife of one detainee held a banner reading, "Jailed without proof."

He'll Remember David

WALDWICK, N.J. (AP) — A veteran carpenter is only now feeling the real fury of Tropical Storm David as residents of this community glare at his chain saw's darkest hour.
Alan McAllister says he thought removing the 80-foot oak tree in Neddie Sabile's front yard on Monday would be like downing any one of about 100 trees he has felled in his 10-year career.

It wasn't.
The stately oak crashed through two 4,000-volt electrical lines and a telephone line, and ripped down a telephone pole holding two electrical transformers on Highland Avenue.
"The tree didn't behave in the fashion I thought it would," McAllister said.
Immediately, 20 homes that had been without power for almost 16 hours after the storm last Thursday were blacked out again.
Many neighbors, angrily watching their freezers defrost a second time in less than a week, said McAllister should be forced to pay for damages and repairs.
"Those transformers are worth a lot of money," McAllister said. "I'm sort of anticipating a big bill. I've already retained counsel."

Guess Who Pays Postage

BY VOLUNTEERING its services as a clearinghouse for information about political action committee mailings challenged by the Postal Service, the Republican Party is skirting the edge of the federal law that established the low-cost mailing privilege.
The preferential rate is 3.1 cents per letter for third-class bulk mailings, compared with 8.4 cents per letter for commercial users of the same service and 15 cents per first class letter for the rest of us.

THE KEY TO compliance with the letter if not the spirit of the law is that the state committees must produce and finance the mailings entirely on their own. "The state party has to prepare it, package it and mail it out," Ivers explained.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

By Bernice Bede Ouel

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Unless you marshal your forces properly you may not be able to accomplish all you hope to. Be wary of situations where the odds are not in your favor.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Do not advise another to do something unless you know from personal experience that it will work. If he or she fails, you'll be blamed.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Joint ventures could become a sticky morass if you get involved with incompetent associates. Do it yourself, rather than delegating.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Let no one pressure you into making important decisions. In order to keep their good will, you may use faulty judgment.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Give co-workers the velvet glove treatment if you hope to gain their co-operation. Being pushy when you should say "please" will prove disastrous.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Avoid situations with your peers that have political overtones. Treat all your friends equally, instead of playing favorites.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Try not to bring up domestic issues that will arouse your mate's opposition. It's not likely that these matters can be resolved tomorrow.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be careful how you phrase remarks to others. Your words could be taken out of context and interpreted a way you didn't intend.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your normal caution in managing your resources could desert you and cause complications. Don't allow extravagant whims to gain control.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Attempting to juggle too many projects at one time is not a wise course of action. Limit your agenda to top priority items.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) A failure to attend to your responsibilities may be due to seeing them in your imagination as more difficult than they really are. Think "win."

Nugent Urges Truckers To Obey Weight Limits

HOUSTON (AP) — Railroad Commissioner James Nugent urged the trucking industry Monday to abide by weight limits. He pledged that violators would be prosecuted.

The commission, state attorney general's office, Department of Public Safety and state highway department scheduled six hearings, beginning Monday on what Nugent said were the "serious effects overweight trucks have on our public roadways."

In 1975 Texas and the federal government established a maximum weight limit of 80,000 pounds.

"Those who choose to thumb their noses at the law, and those who continue to profit at the expense of the taxpayers and the safety of other motorists will get their day in court," Nugent said.

Application Approved

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Railroad Commission on Monday approved the application of Houston Oil & Minerals Corp. to discharge salt water from three oil fields in Galveston Bay into the inter-coastal waterway.

The company operates some 25 wells in the North Point Bolivar, Half Moon Shoal and Baffle Point fields in the bay. A total of 3,700 barrels of oil, 123 million cubic feet of gas and 7,300 barrels of salt water are produced each day.

Advantages Sought

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — This year's National Hispanic Heritage Week is a good time to stop celebrating customs and start working toward advantages for the nation's Latin American citizens, according to League of United Latin American Citizens President Ruben Bonilla.

The heritage week runs through Sept. 16, but Bonilla issued a statement Monday saying, "after years of celebrating, we (Hispanics) still have the highest unemployment, the lowest paid and the greatest under-represented group in government service."

"It is hard to get excited about national Hispanic Heritage Week when you have statistics of such a dismal nature. You have to ask yourself, 'What is there to celebrate?'" Bonilla said.

Auditor Gives Report

DALLAS (AP) — An independent auditor has reported there is no "missing money" from the defunct Foundation for Quality Education, a statement at sharp variance with claims of the superintendent and school board for the Dallas Independent School District.

Superintendent Linus Wright and board members claim the foundation, established by the school district to help raise and manage school money, could not account for about $700,000 now owed the district.

Auditor Paul Hiller, though, testified at a court hearing Monday that he inspected the foundation's books and found no evidence of "stealing, missing money, coverups or embezzlements."

The court hearing is to determine whether a receiver should be appointed to handle the foundation's assets.

Castillo Seeks Office

HOUSTON (AP) — Leonel Castillo, the Immigration and Naturalization Service commissioner who is to retire Oct. 1, says he will run for a Houston city office in November, probably an at-large council position.

The former Houston city controller said Monday night he is developing issues and organizing for a campaign. Castillo, 39, resigned as controller when appointed two years ago to the federal position by President Carter.

Name Changed

HOUSTON (AP) — The name of the 75-story office building now in the early stages of construction in downtown Houston has been changed from El Paso Tower to Texas Commerce Tower.

The El Paso Co. had planned to lease 420,000 of the structure's 1.5 million square feet but announced Monday it has decided to remain in the American General Center about two miles west of the downtown area.

The new skyscraper is being built by the Gerald D. Hines investments building firm in partnership with Texas Commerce Bank. The first concrete for the structure's foundation was poured last weekend.

Taxes Projected

HOUSTON (AP) — Harris County expects to receive $283 million in property taxes this year, an increase of $32 million.

Carl Smith, county tax assessor-collector, based the projection on property valuations that total $14.1 billion, 15 percent higher than in 1978.

Salary Hike Approved

HOUSTON (AP) — A 10.5 percent salary increase has been approved for state and county judges in Harris County.

State appeals judges will be paid $55,092 over the next 12 months, county judges $63,462, and district, probate judges and the county judge $64,587.

D-FW Officials Oppose Opening Of Love Field

WASHINGTON (AP) — Opening Dallas' Love Field to interstate flights would either benefit the traveling public or provide the death stroke to the massive Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport, the Civil Aeronautics Board has been told.

Charles Wells, the regional airport's attorney, said Monday interstate service at the older, in-city airport would pose air safety hazards, increase noise pollution in densely populated neighborhoods and destroy the regional airport's financial viability.

Asked what would happen if the board approved the requests from Southwest Airlines and Air Florida for Love Field flights, Wells replied: "We would wither on the vine. That's what would happen."

He said the airlines that moved to the regional airport when it opened in 1974 would flock back to Love Field. "If these carriers are given the slightest leeway to go back to Love, they will," the lawyer said.

The CAB is hearing requests from Southwest for service between Love Field and New Orleans and from Air Florida for flights between several Florida cities and the Dallas airport.

The board said it will indicate its decision Thursday, leaving out the environmental questions.

Paul Seligson, Southwest's attorney, said the noise pollution issue is a smokescreen officials are throwing up to stifle competition between airlines.

Southwest pioneered economy service from in-city airports, escaping federal rate regulations by keeping its flights within Texas borders. The airline fought court battles to use Love Field, closer to downtown, for its service.

'Miniature' Hobby Develops Into Career

By JACQUE HUTCHINS
Family News Staff

The making and collecting of miniatures has become increasingly popular during the last three or four years — making it the second largest hobby in the United States.

Doris Robison has contributed to its popularity in West Texas. What started out as a hobby 15 years ago has developed into a new career for the Littlefield woman. She will be teaching classes on miniature making at the House of Crafts and The Little Shoppe throughout the fall.

"I've always liked things that are small," said Mrs. Robison. "I originally started out dressing dolls, then making dolls and then I began making miniature room settings."

The scale for miniatures is usually one inch to one foot. Mrs. Robison says the key is to keep everything according to this scale. "If you have just one thing that is too big, it ruins the whole scene," she said.

The making of miniatures is a very delicate and time consuming project. Mrs. Robison may spend an entire year, in her spare time, creating one vignette, or room setting.

Most miniatures are 18th Century room settings and then there are the adult doll houses that have become so popular.

The fun is in creating the different objects from pieces of wood, cloth, even bread dough and bits and pieces of things around the house. Mrs. Robison added that she never throws anything away because she never knows when it might be needed.

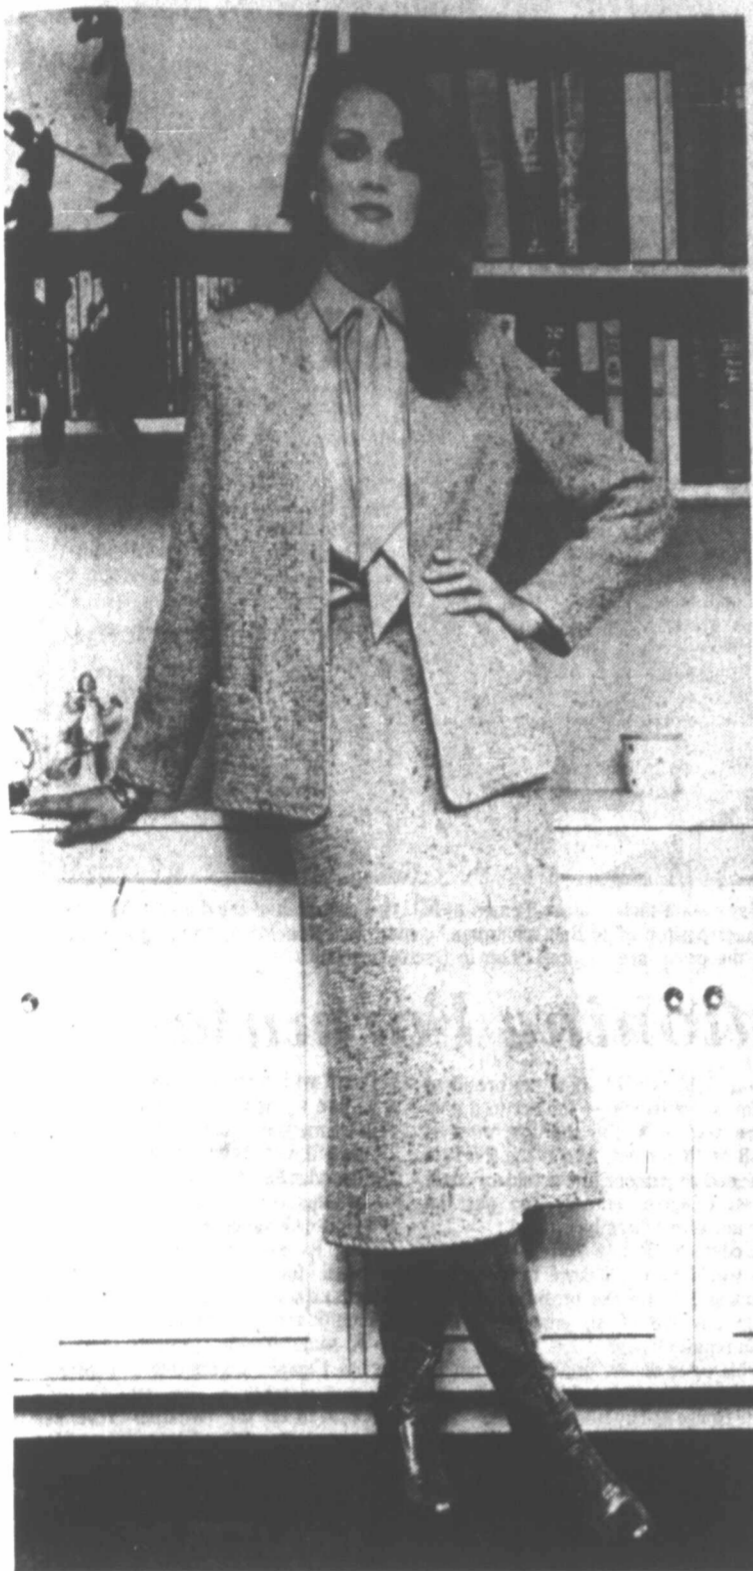

Her favorite room setting is of a general store. She made the tow sacks from old towels, then stained them with tea. The bananas hanging on the wall were carved from tiny dowel sticks. She used pins for the keys on the cash register and the backs of ear screws for the door knobs. She has thought of everything to create an air of realism; from matches by the pot belly stove to a white mouse on the shelf peering down at cheese on the counter.

Mrs. Robison's hobby may seem tedious, working with tiny details, but the rewards are plentiful. She has had her designs of doll clothes on the cover of World Wide Doll News and has won many ribbons for her miniatures in art shows. Her work will be on display at the George Mason Library in January.

THIEF TOOK ALL

PIERREFITTE, France (WNS) — Lady cabdriver Danielle Destouches was so quick to report to police the male passenger who attacked her and stole her night's receipts that he barely managed to escape. Two weeks later he struck again, with a new technique that slowed her down a bit. He took not only all the cash that 39-year-old Yolande Soudeau was carrying in her taxi but also all the clothes she was wearing. "It was most embarrassing," she said. "Fortunately — or unfortunately — there is not much traffic at 1 a.m."

Safety Tips Reduce Food Poisoning Risk

DALLAS (Special) — It's the first week of school, and already your child has decided he doesn't like the day's regular offering at the school lunchroom. He wants something different for lunch. You cull your brain and come up with three options.

1. Let him do without.
2. Give him some money and let him get a hamburger at the fast-food place across from school, or
3. Pack him a lunch.

Your conscience eliminates No. 1. Your pocketbook eliminates No. 2. You're stuck with No. 3. Your child is going to brown-bag it.

Your mind strains to recall all those sack lunch safety measures you've had all summer to forget. Strain no more. The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) has some tips to reduce the chance of food poisoning.

First, consider the bag itself. If you have an insulated lunch box, use it. It's designed to protect the lunch, and it's easier to keep clean. If you do use paper bags, buy them specifically for lunches and use them once. Don't pack bags that have been used to carry groceries or other items.

USDA's Food Safety and Quality Service reminds that common sense in food handling can save your child a severe belly ache. Sensible sanitation, personal hygiene and sound food care are essential to safety. Keep everything clean, from your fingers to utensils to counter tops.

Keep hot food hot and cold food cold. Use a vacuum bottle if you have one. You also can use a freezer gel device or make one by cleaning out a plastic margarine tub, filling it with water and freezing it. That will help keep the lunch cold in the bag.

You may even try freezing the sandwich. That may cost you some flavor, but it prevents contamination and helps keep the rest of the lunch cool. Keep the lunch away from heaters. Bacteria thrive between 45 and 115 degrees.

Canned meat and poultry products, if they're eaten immediately after opening, are a good bet for the brown bag. (But watch for bulges or dents in the cans.) Many processed meats, like bologna and wieners, keep well, too. But virtually any meat or poultry product can be used if it's cooked and handled properly.

Fresh fruits and vegetables are safe if they're cleaned and scrubbed.

If your brown bagger comes down with a headache, diarrhea, vomiting, abdominal cramps and fever after eating, don't pass it off as the "flu" or some bug that's going around. Ask your doctor about the symptoms. Most often, food poisoning is not fatal, but it's no fun for a kid.

OVERBLEACHING REMEDY
International hair designer Charles Nicholas told a beauty magazine his home remedy for overbleached hair. "Shampoo hair and towel dry till it's slightly moist. Put approximately four tablespoons of mayonnaise into a glass dish. Using the fingers, massage it into the roots and along the hair shafts to the ends. Wrap your head in a damp towel, leave it on for 30 minutes, then rinse thoroughly." Your hair will come out soft and manageable.

NECTARINE BAVARIA
Slice fresh nectarines from pits into bowl. Spread sour cream over nectarines and sprinkle with brown sugar. Repeat and chill.

Cleveland's Busing Of Students Continues Without Violence

CLEVELAND (AP) — Black students arriving today at John Marshall High on Cleveland's mostly white west side on the second day of court-ordered busing were greeted with racial epithets painted in red on the side of the building.

But police reported no major incidents as up to 3,600 students were scheduled to make cross-town rides under the desegregation plan.

Maintenance workers at John Marshall began painting over racial slurs as school began.

Also greeting the students from the city's predominantly black east side, however, were members of WELCOME, an organization seeking to foster racial understanding.

Paula Estok, a 17-year-old white John Marshall student, greeting blacks and campaigning for student council president, looked at the graffiti and said, "I wish it hadn't been done."

In an attempt to avoid a repeat of first-day student and parent confusion over which buses students should board, placards with route numbers were displayed on windows of the school district's 123-bus fleet.

Superintendent Peter P. Carlin said fewer anxious parents were calling the school system today than Monday, and added, "We had many calls late last evening from parents who felt more confident and said they feel very comfortable with the system."

Carlin said today might even be considered a better than normal day in the first week of school. "People are paying attention to details better than usual," he said.

On Monday, only minor demonstrations and busing confusion hampered the start of the limited court-ordered racial desegregation plan.

"We set the attitude — we set the atmosphere — for peaceful and quiet desegregation in the city of Cleveland," Carlin said.

He said 3,100 students out of an expected 4,500 were bused Monday. Carlin said schools reported attendance at 73 percent of the expected enrollment of 15,416, and officials believe the figures will rise when reluctant parents see that the busing is peaceful.

By Thursday, the gradual phase-in of busing for 9,500 students at 33 schools with a total enrollment of 26,000 will be complete.

Jurors Get To Hear Tape Of Meeting

FORT WORTH (AP) — The judge in the murder-for-hire trial of millionaire Cullen Davis today allowed the jury to hear a defense tape of a conversation between the state's key witness and a member of the defense team.

The conversation on the tape between lawyer Steve Sumner and witness David McCrory also discusses the killings at the Davis mansion in August 1976.

The jury was allowed to read a transcript along with the tape playback.

State District Judge Gordon Gray told the defense he would allow lead attorney Richard "Racehorse" Haynes to cross-examine McCrory on those portions of the tape pertaining to the mansion shootings, but it was not clear at once if the defense would raise that issue before the jury.

Davis was acquitted of murder in the only trial thus far stemming from the mansion episode.

The defense introduced the secretly recorded tape Monday, the first time its existence was known publicly.

Sumner, a Dallas attorney who has done the bulk of defense investigative work, testified outside the presence of the jury that he recorded an August 7, 1978, meeting with McCrory. According to the tape of that meeting, the two discussed what McCrory might know that would help Davis' multi-million dollar divorce from Priscilla Davis.

Less than two weeks after that meeting, McCrory secretly recorded two meetings with Davis that led to the Fort Worth millionaire's arrest on murder conspiracy charges.

The 45-year-old defendant is charged with soliciting the murder of his divorcee, Joe Eidson.

Under cross-examination by lead defense attorney Richard "Racehorse" Haynes McCrory said he met with Sumner at his office at Jet Air Co. — a Davis-owned business in Dallas where McCrory was working at the time.

"I don't remember what we talked about," McCrory said when Haynes asked the gist of the conversation.

"Did you tell the truth," Haynes asked.

"I told him anything he wanted to hear," McCrory replied.

On tape, Sumner asked McCrory about his knowledge of a 1968 pre-nuptial agreement between Davis and Priscilla.

Priscilla claimed in the divorce trial that she did not know she was signing a document forfeiting any claims she could make on Davis' extensive business holdings.

A district judge ruled the pre-nuptial agreement valid and Priscilla received a $3.4 million settlement when the divorce was granted this spring.

DPS Trooper Describes Crash Scene To Jury

COLORADO CITY (AP) — A Department of Public Safety trooper described the grisly scene he encountered at the scene of a school bus-oilfield servicing truck collision to jurors hearing the involuntary manslaughter trial of William Clarence Dixon Jr.

Allen Arwine, the first witness to testify at the trial, said Monday bodies and debris were strewn through the intersection near Roby. Five students died and 20 persons were injured in the Dec. 8 accident.

Dixon, the driver of the truck, faces three counts of involuntary manslaughter. If convicted, he could be sentenced to 10 years in jail and a Arwine told the six-man, six-woman jury a flashing warning signal suspended above the intersection "was working when I got there."

But defense attorney Malcolm Shulz of Abilene objected when Arwine testified the school bus was traveling west on U.S. 180 and that Dixon's truck was traveling south on Farm-to-Market Road 611.

Shulz said Arwine was not a witness to the accident. District Judge Weldon Kirk sustained the objection.

Earlier, Shulz objected when Assistant District Attorney Rusty Carroll told prospective jurors they "should not show sympathy toward the defendant simply because he is charged in the deaths of four or five kiddos."

Kirk advised jurors to disregard the remark but refused to declare a mistrial.

The trial has been postponed four times, and was moved to Colorado City from Roby on a change of venue.

The bus carried the McCaulley High School girls' and boys' basketball teams, and since the crash 16 civil lawsuits totaling $14 million have been filed by families of the victims.

State traffic records show Dixon was convicted of 13 traffic violations in the four years before the collision.

After the trooper's testimony, Kirk recessed the trial until 9 a.m. today. He ordered jurors not to read or listen to news accounts of the trial and instructed attorneys not to discuss the case.

Area Justice Of Peace Protests 1980 Salary

A Slaton justice of the peace is the fourth elected county official to protest his 1980 salary since Lubbock County commissioners revealed plans to give themselves a 23-percent raise.

Justice of the Peace Arvin Stafford wrote the commissioners a letter protesting his 1980 salary — an 8-percent increase to $12,720 — and asking that his original request for $13,800 be approved.

The letter was acknowledged at a Monday afternoon commissioners meeting without discussion on whether or not the original request might be approved.

Lubbock Justices of the Peace Charles Smith and Wayne LeCroy and County Treasurer Connie Nicholson also have protested their 1980 salaries this year. Smith will air his protest in a Wednesday county grievance committee hearing. LeCroy was given a larger raise early this month.

Mrs. Nicholson met with the commissioners Monday and was given a full-time employee status instead of half-time for next year, but was not given a bigger raise.

The commissioners Monday afternoon approved a request for a county courts-at-law administrator from Judges J.Q. Warnick and E.H. Boedeker and Criminal District Attorney John T. Montford.

After a lengthy discussion, they set the salary for the new position the same as the $890 per month this year and $962 per month next year that is allocated for district courts administrator Gloria

Negotiations Near End On Revised Guidelines

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration is concluding delicate negotiations with organized labor and business this week on a revised voluntary anti-inflation program the government hopes both sides will support — backing the current program has badly lacked.

Labor leaders have led the opposition to the program President Carter announced in October on the grounds that its 7 percent wage guideline penalizes workers whose wages are being eroded by a 13 percent inflation rate.

But administration officials are cautiously optimistic that they can reach an understanding with labor on the revised voluntary wage-price guidelines, due out by week's end.

Administration sources say the new guidelines, to take effect as Carter's program starts its second year next month, will be tightened for prices and relaxed for wages. The sources asked not to be named.

The administration has acknowledged that the current program has failed to slow the rapid rise in consumer prices, mainly for food, housing and energy. In fact, the annual inflation rate is higher now than when Carter unveiled his voluntary program.

The pay guideline, however, has helped curb large wage settlements by giving employers a reason for holding firm at 7 percent a year, administration officials say.

That is why labor leaders have opposed Carter's voluntary program and called instead for mandatory controls, which they believe would result in more equitable sacrifices by corporations, stockholders and wage earners in the fight against inflation.

Carter remains opposed to mandatory controls, and administration economists say a voluntary program can work only if it enjoys the backing of both business and labor.

With that goal in mind and at the suggestion of the Labor Department, administration officials have been meeting quietly with labor and business leaders all summer to see if the three parties can forge a "social compact" for fighting inflation.

The term "social compact" refers to a British anti-inflation experiment under which government, business and labor — recognizing their mutual interest in controlling inflation — entered into an agreement that limited wage and price increases.

Officials have been reluctant to detail the status of the discussions but have indicated the talks are going well.

One government bargainer, who asked to remain anonymous, said he felt encouraged that the government, labor and business could become allies in the fight against inflation. But he cautioned that "it is very difficult to reach a consensus among these three groups."

An AFL-CIO official was guarded in his assessment of the discussions, saying "it remains to be seen" if the administration can propose new guidelines both business and labor can live with. He, too, asked not to be named.

Already, however, the administration appears to have ingratiated itself among labor leaders for seeking their help in drafting the new guidelines. The AFL-CIO has muted its call for mandatory controls and is hinting it might accept a voluntary program it feels would be more equitable.

A year ago, by contrast, the administration presented labor with its guideline proposals only after they were completed.

Labor's opposition came swiftly. Administration officials said Monday that work on the revised guidelines was still incomplete. But they said the price standard was being tightened to make it more effective in slowing rising prices. Without evidence of success on the price front, labor support for a voluntary program will erode quickly.

The current program calls for a company to hold its average price increases to 0.5 percent less than the increases of the previous two years. But the price guideline contains several exemptions some administration officials believe are too generous and should be tightened.

Sources said the administration also has agreed to raise the 7 percent wage guideline but was undecided about how to do it. The AFL-CIO wants the new pay guideline to rise with increases in the cost-of-living index, but several government economists say that approach would fuel rather than abate inflation.

California City Runs Vehicles On Fuel Made Out Of Sewage

MODESTO, Calif. (UPI) — First results point to success in an experiment by the City of Modesto to fuel municipal vehicles with methane gas produced from city sewage. If another year of testing proves as encouraging as the past year, officials say Modesto may buy the hardware to permit the use of methane in its entire 100-vehicle fleet. Last October the city installed a refining device at the sewage treatment plant which removes carbon dioxide and trace elements and converts sewage gas derived from sludge deposits into methane.

At a cost of about $1,200 each, the city had the engines on five Sewer Department vehicles — three pickup trucks and two cars — modified to run on either pressurized methane gas or gasoline. "All the results aren't in yet," said Richard Hosegood, the city's assistant public works director, "but the early findings are encouraging enough so that we're going to extend the test another year." He said that by the end of this year the city will have five more sewer department vehicles converted to run on methane to broaden the experiment. "So far the program has proven highly satisfactory," Hosegood said.

Investors Bilked By Man, Secretary

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The president of a California real estate school has been accused of fleeing with his secretary to Hawaii after swindling investors out of $500,000.

Steven Kent Woolcot, 36, and Linda Pirri, 26, operators of the Accelerated Real Estate School, allegedly bilked 89 investors of up to $15,000 each in a franchise scheme, Deputy District Attorney Robert Sills said Friday.

In addition to several felony grand theft counts, Woolcot was charged with failure to provide the state and investors with required background information about the company, the franchise plan and himself, Sills said, adding that an arrest warrant and extradition papers will be issued for Woolcot and Miss Pirri, who was named in 15 of the felony counts.

Ford Admits Company Built Some Lemons

DEARBORN, Mich. (AP) — Henry Ford II may be the only auto industry tycoon who admits that his company builds a few lemons.

In characteristically blunt fashion, he confessed it again at a new-model news conference recently that turned into a farewell to reporters who have covered him during his 34 years as chief executive of the family firm.

Ford took over the No. 3 automaker in 1945 when it was losing $9 million a month and turned it into a money-maker the next year through management practices imported from General Motors Corp.

He was asked if a man of 28 could do the same for a stumbling industrial giant today.

"It would be more difficult," in part

ACLU Asks Civiletti To Rule In Dispute
WASHINGTON (AP) — The American Civil Liberties Union is asking Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti to overrule a controversial ruling by the U.S. Board of Immigration Appeals.

The ruling holds that evidence seized because of today's consumer movement, he replied.

"We were in a seller's market. From 1945 to 1952 the customers would chew up anything you turned out the back door. It didn't matter if it wasn't any good," he added.

The clear implication was that some were indeed no good. The obvious follow-up question was asked: Does the company make lemons now?

"Unfortunately, we still do — but far fewer," he replied.

Ford, now 62, will remain as chairman of the board after Oct. 1, but on that day President Philip Caldwell takes on the title and duties of chief executive officer.

The news conference was to wind up a two-day preview of new models, but in an allegedly illegal raid may be used in deportation cases. It was issued three weeks ago in the case of a Mexican woman, now living in New York state, who is the subject of a four-year-old deportation order.

not a single specific question was asked about them.

Ford insisted he was "glad to get out" and said, "I've got to figure out what I'm going to do."

Later, he said he would visit compe-ny-facilities around the world, starting next year, a job he said would take two years.

Caldwell said Ford would be chief executive until Oct. 1, but later Ford said "for all practical purposes" he was retired now.

Kennedy Aids Draft Move

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats trying to drum up support to draft Sen. Edward M. Kennedy as the party's 1980 presidential nominee are riding a wave of encouragement brought on by events of the past few days.

"The phone is ringing off the hook," said State Sen. Sharon Pollard of Massachusetts, a leader of the draft movement in Kennedy's home state.

"As the indications become more clear that Sen. Kennedy is thinking seriously of making a bid, more and more people are calling," she said. "It's a social phenomenon we've never seen before and we'll never see again."

The latest of the "indications" came in a Kennedy interview published in today's editions of The Boston Globe.

"I have not ruled out the possibility of a candidacy," Kennedy told the Globe. "I have no time frame; I have no date and I have no further comments or statements about a date."

Meanwhile, seven of 10 persons questioned in an ABC News-Harris Poll, which sampled 1,493 adults between Sept. 1 and 5, said they think President Carter cannot win re-election if nominated. He also got his lowest-ever rating from the poll for inspiring confidence in the White House — 76 percent negative, 20 percent positive and 4 percent unsure.

In another development Monday, House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill of Massachusetts told reporters: "I don't think that he (Kennedy) could be denied the Democratic nomination if he were to run."

There's never been any question about the support for Kennedy in Massachusetts. But 3,200 miles away in Vancouver, Wash., Jim Carty, the Clark County prosecutor, has operated largely as a one-man draft movement and grasps encouragement where he can find it.

ARRIVES IN ISRAEL — Special Mideast envoy Robert Strauss, left, is welcomed at the Tel Aviv airport by Israeli Interior Minister Yosef Burg, Samuel Lewis, the U.S. ambassador to Israel, in the center. ## Strauss Launches Talks With Begin In Tel Aviv

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — U.S. Mideast negotiator Robert Strauss arrived from Egypt today for consultations with Prime Minister Menachem Begin on the outlook for the Palestinian autonomy negotiations, with all sides agreeing they want to move ahead.

The American ambassador told reporters at Ben-Gurion Airport that he had had "most constructive and worthwhile" talks with Sadat and repeated a comment he made in Egypt in which he characterized the so-far slow pace of negotiations as "shifting into second gear."

The chief of the Israeli autonomy negotiators, Interior Minister Yosef Burg, indicated Israel also wanted to speed up the pace. "We have no intention to wait for the last day of the eight months remaining in our negotiations," Burg said.

Strauss told reporters in Cairo Monday after two days of talks with Sadat and Egypt's chief negotiator, Prime Minister Mustafa Khalil, "I am terribly encouraged and hope to find the same feeling in Israel."

Strauss said Sadat was convinced of the "inevitability of success." But the American conceded "terrible difficulties" lie ahead and said he did not expect a breakthrough on "gut issues" before March.

However, he did seem to share Sadat's belief that the "personal chemistry" he and Begin have developed virtually rules out a breakdown in the negotiations.

"It seems reasonably certain now that we can do it," Strauss said of the possibilities of reaching agreement on the nature of self-rule for 1.2 million Arabs living in the West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip.

Strauss said both Sadat and Khalil felt that by the time he returns to the Mideast in November "so much will have been either announced or already done that the picture that takes place will be one of success."

U.S. officials traveling with Strauss indicated that in the next few weeks the Egyptians and Israelis would begin debating their basic differences instead of arguing about agenda and procedure.

"We will move into second gear," Strauss said.

One U.S. official said the optimism in Cairo stemmed from a pervasive enthusiasm and a shedding of doubt by lower echelon officials rather than from any secret agreement.

"People who had doubts about the peace process before don't seem to have them now," he said.

Strauss said the Egyptian leaders believe that success in implementing other provisions of the peace treaty ahead of schedule "will give credibility to the peace process that will move these autonomy talks forward. The world didn't expect the parties to perform, but the process is ahead of schedule and this is obviously something they place great significance in."

Strauss said that because of the steady Israeli withdrawal from Sinai, Arab critics can no longer claim that Israel will renege on its commitments or that Egypt is unable to deliver on its promises.

Carty tells how at a county fair last month he put out Kennedy campaign material — buttons, brochures and bumper stickers left over from Robert F. Kennedy's 1968 presidential bid.

"They were all gone in less than two hours and weren't well displayed at all," Carty said Monday.

More important, he says, is the sudden change in the response to his frequent letters to Kennedy urging the senator to run.

"In the past, I've always gotten back the standard response you see and hear about," he said. "The one I got back today (Monday) about the response at the fair surprised me."

"It offered me 'many thanks' and 'appreciation' and said, 'I want to thank you for warm words of encouragement and support.' I think he's moving in the right direction."

And in Oregon, Bill Garrett, head of the "Ready for Teddy" committee said he has had so many telephone calls in the past couple of days he "can't keep up."

"It's really been overwhelming," said Garrett. "The response is explosive."

There are Kennedy committees in at least 19 states, some tiny like Carty's and others highly organized like the one headed by Dudley W. Dudley in New Hampshire.

"I'm overjoyed" was Mrs. Dudley's reaction to news that Kennedy had discussed the possibility of a presidential race with his family and had received their support for whatever decision he makes.

"We could have got along without him, but there's no doubt it will be a great help, especially with our fund raising," said Mrs. Dudley, an elected member of the governor's executive council.

Mrs. Dudley and her group are campaigning for write-in votes for Kennedy in the New Hampshire primary next winter.

But sources who asked not to be named say Kennedy intends to make a decision in time to enter the New Hampshire primary if he decides to run.

A survey of draft-Kennedy committees around the country Monday brought these other replies:

Sergio Bendixen, executive director of the Florida for Kennedy Committee, said he has raised about $30,000 so far. "I don't see how it could be going much better," he said.

In Louisiana, Russell J. Henderson said his group will run a slate of Kennedy delegates in the April presidential primary. "I just think he's the only hope of the Democratic Party now," said Henderson. "It's just purely pragmatic politics. He is the only candidate who is going to win against a Republican."

Allen O'Donnell, a former Democratic national committeeman from Nebraska, announced formation Monday of a Kennedy committee and said President Carter should see "the handwriting on the wall" and not seek re-election.

In Tennessee, Democratic Party sources who asked not to be identified said efforts were underway to form a Kennedy committee that would include people who were active in the Carter campaign four years ago.

In Georgia, the president's home state, liberal Democrats are forming a committee to find an alternative to Carter. "Right now it's just a conversational group," said Frances Turner, immediate past president of the Fulton County Democratic Party in Atlanta. "We'd like to hear from all candidates," she said. "But so far it seems that Sen. Kennedy is the name that comes up most."

In Iowa, Matt Wannan, head of a pro-Kennedy group, said activity on Kennedy's behalf has picked up in recent days. "All I did all day long Saturday was answer the phone from people who had taken the time to look up our number in the phone book and call us to volunteer."

Kennedy backers in Kansas and California predicted increased efforts on his behalf in those states in the next few days, although not necessarily in direct response to the recent hints that he may be a candidate.

Interest Rates Set New Mark

WASHINGTON (AP) — The trend of higher interest rates has hit a new landmark with record-high interest rates of more than 10 percent paid on U.S. Treasury bills.

The Treasury Department said the interest on the three-month bills it auctions each week rose to 10.531 percent Monday, up from 9.855 percent a week ago. On six-month bills, the rate rose to 10.294 percent, up from 9.775 percent.

Interest on Treasury bills reflects the cost to the government of borrowing money on short-term.

Yields to investors on money market certificates available at banks and thrift institutions are tied to the six-month rate and will carry a maximum 10.294 percent interest rate starting Thursday.

The previous records for Treasury bill rates — 9.908 percent for three-month bills and 9.930 percent for six-month bills — were set on Aug. 26, 1974, as the economy was entering a deep recession.

Interest rates have been increasing throughout the economy as the Federal Reserve Board attempts to contain inflation by slowing growth of the money supply. Higher interest rates make borrowing more expensive, however, and the increase may worsen the current recession.

Meanwhile, the reserve board said outstanding consumer installment debt increased by $2.44 billion in July, compared to a $2.55 billion increase in June. That marks the third straight month consumer borrowing has lagged — a trend that may reflect resistance to rising interest charges.

Extensions of credit and liquidations of existing debt both increased in July, the board said. Growth in credit also slowed for revolving charge accounts, auto credit and mobile home purchases, although the pace for personal cash loans increased.

On another front, the Commerce Department said total sales by the nation's retail stores increased 0.7 percent in dollar terms in August, the same as in July. The sales volume probably declined for the fifth consecutive month, however.

Commerce officials estimated total retail sales at $72.79 billion, up from July's $72.28 billion. The figures were adjusted for seasonal variations.

The Commerce Department said total dollar sales last month were only 8 percent more than August 1978, while the August consumer price report to be released in two weeks is expected to show consumer prices increased about 11-12 percent in that period.

That means consumers are spending more dollars for fewer goods.

The decline in sales volume, evident since April, is the major cause of the recession that is now beginning to be felt throughout the economy.

As businesses sell less, manufacturers produce less, and that means fewer jobs. The Labor Department reported last Friday that unemployment had increased from 5.7 percent to 6 percent of the labor force last month.

Energy Bill Changes Accepted By Carter

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter was reported today to have made concessions to get two of his energy proposals through the Senate, and one senator predicted swift passage.

Carter met at the White House with members of the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee. Afterward, its chairman, Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said "He's going to get the bulk of what he's asked for."

Sen. Pete Domenici, D-N.M., said Carter had softened somewhat his original proposals for an $88 billion program to develop synthetic fuels and an Energy Mobilization Board to push energy projects through state and federal red tape.

Domenici said Carter indicated he is willing to accept a "phased approach" to reaching the full $88 billion synthetic fuels program. He said Carter would settle for a first-phase program that would cost $20 billion to $30 billion.

Domenici said Carter does not intend for his proposed mobilization board to interfere with state water laws. "There is no such intention," he said.

Water is a major concern in the dry Western states, where most of the proposed water-consuming synthetic fuel plants would be situated.

Domenici said Carter told the group he would not insist on government ownership of some of the synthetic fuel plants.

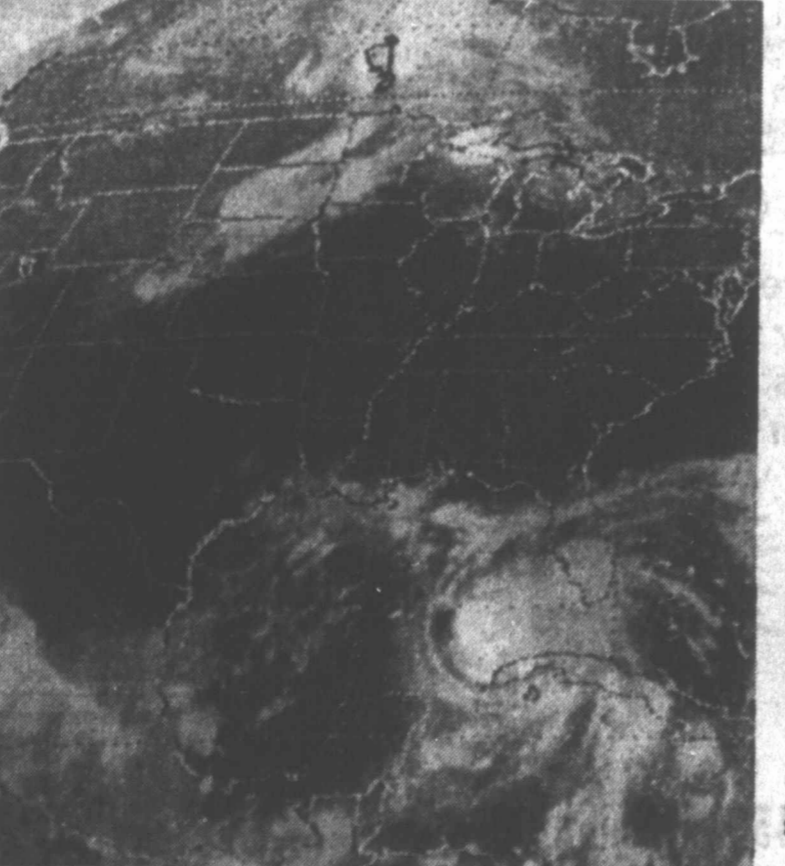

Sen. Bennett Johnston, D-La., predicted Senate passage in a few weeks of the synthetic fuels and mobilization board legislation.

Carter himself said later that his mobilization board proposal is not intended to overturn state laws or undermine the authority of governors.

He said it is "designed to cut through the red tape and delay" associated with building energy projects.

Cool Air Gives Area Preview Of Autumn

A-J News Services

September finally felt like autumn this morning, as Lubbock and the South Plains enjoyed cool temperatures and moist morning air.

The overnight low here was 60 degrees, and temperatures fell into the 50s over much of the South Plains.

Weathermen predicted fair skies and temperatures near 90 today and near 60 tonight.

Partly cloudy skies and a 20-percent probability of rain and a high in the middle 80s is forecast for Wednesday as a cold front moves in.

Winds today were expected to be southerly at 10 to 15 mph and southerly at five to 10 mph tonight.

Overnight lows in the area included 50 at Hereford, 51 at Post and Silverton and 52 at Floydada, Morton, Olton and Spur.

Average maximum and minimum daily temperatures for Lubbock at this time of year are 85 and 60, the National Weather Service reported.

Meanwhile, bands of thunderstorms rolled through the Midwest today and forecasters kept a wary eye on Hurricane Frederic, which they said could prompt advisories for the Gulf Coast.

Showers and thunderstorms extended from Colorado and southern Wyoming, across Minnesota and into northern Wisconsin and Upper Michigan. The strongest storms were in Nebraska, where heavy rain, strong winds and small hail pelted several communities.

An inch and a half of rain fell in 10 minutes near Torrington, Wyo.

Thunderstorms also fell along the Gulf Coast, across Florida and along the Atlantic Coast through the Carolinas. Rain showers were scattered from the lower Great Lakes through New England, and a few showers extended from northeastern Washington into northwestern Montana.

Californians sweltered in hotter than normal weather for this time of year. The high in the state Monday was 113 at Palm Springs. Heavy smog afflicted the Los Angeles area for the third day in a row.

HSCH Seeks Help With Backlog Of Bills

By KIM COBB
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Cash collections are up at Health Sciences Center Hospital and administrators are predicting they'll keep on rising, but a backlog of bills totaling more than $1 million is a haunting reminder that the struggle isn't over yet.

Board members for the Lubbock County Hospital District are asking for help from local hospitals to clear up that backlog. Though the resolution passed by the group Monday indicates they'd take help in any form, board members would be delighted if neighboring hospitals would donate their billing staffs one day a week.

"We won't criticize them (area hospitals) any more for dumping on us if they'll help us," finance director Tom Kearney quipped.

Board members also began contract negotiations with a private Oregon ambulance firm in hopes of straightening out the financial troubles of Lubbock's Emergency Medical Services. The details of the proposed takeover are expected to be submitted to the board within 10 days.

Approximately $1 million in hospital bills are being stored in the basement billing offices, the financial director told the board, because the staff isn't big enough to handle the load that has accumulated. But meeting the extra work on their own would mean hiring additional staff, Kearney said, which would defeat the hospital's staff reduction efforts.

"Whoever put in this billing system," Kearney said, "I don't know where he got it." He said he had never seen anything like it and doubted if other hospitals used similar approaches.

He suggested asking the billing personnel from other hospitals to work with Health Sciences business office workers until the backlog could be cleared up. Workers from other hospitals could help

Health Sciences personnel make the switch to a more productive system as well, he said.

Hospital administrator Robert Berryman told board members, "I think you will be pleasantly surprised" at progress made by Brookwood Management Services in improving the hospital's cash flow. Kearney told the board that cash collections had reached $228,500 at the end of the first week in September.

And Kearney predicted cash receipts would total more than $1 million by the end of the month.

"You can also anticipate another $200,000 to $300,000 increase on a monthly basis," Kearney speculated.

"We're proud of it but we're not satisfied yet," administrator Berryman said.

Kearney also reported on the board's new cash-only policy for the hospital's ancillary (clinical and lab) services, saying cash collections have jumped sharply.

"We're collecting over $1,000 a day," Kearney said, adding that prior to adopting the new policy, collections averaged about $200 to $300 a day.

In a later administrative committee meeting, Bill Leonard Of Medical Services Inc. met with LCHD officials to discuss his private ambulance firm's bid to take over Lubbock's EMS. The group immediately went into an hour-long executive session, saying they would be involved in contract negotiations.

Emerging at 4:30 p.m., committee chairman Don McInturff told reporters that MSI submit a written proposal outlining the specifics of the proposed operation within 10 days of Monday's meeting.

Board members have been communicating with MSI to possibly take over EMS in light of the local ambulance system's mounting financial problems. Board members voted to turn the study of the problem over to the Blue Ribbon advisory committee, hoping its members would approach the city for help in supporting the operation.

McInturff said the committee also is planning to talk with the local Air Ambulance operation about their interest in assuming the EMS system. All of the proposals still are in the discussion stage and no action has been taken yet.

McInturff didn't elaborate on specifics of the conversation with Leonard, but he did say that MSI apparently can provide all the services now provided by EMS.

Groups Fight Over Phone Rate Payment

AUSTIN (UPI) — Unlike previous rate increase cases, the disagreement this year over Southwestern Bell Telephone Co.'s request for a $145 million hike has involved who should bear the brunt of higher costs.

"I've never seen so many people trying to prove Bell's rate case for them," Don Butler of Austin, attorney for the Texas Municipal League, observed as hearings before the Public Utility Commission entered their second week Monday.

In Southwestern Bell's two previous rate increase requests before the commission, controversy centered on how much more the phone company should be allowed to collect.

This time, an expert hired by consumer advocates has suggested rates for private lines leased to large businesses be raised $51 million to $150 million. The lawyer for the Texas Retailers Association, however, has elicited statistics showing residential phone users do not pay the costs of the service they receive.

Proceedings before the PUC have slowed in lengthy cross examinations of Bell executives by lawyers for various classes of customers who contend they are paying more than their fair share of phone service costs while some other groups are subsidized.

W.B. Andrews of St. Louis, SW Bell's assistant vice president for staff, and Richard J. Maskiell of New York City, an executive with American Telephone & Telegraph Co., testified Monday about licensing arrangements between affiliates of the Bell system.

Critics questioned how AT&T allocates expenses to various affiliates and the justification for SW Bell's payment of $37.7 million a year to its corporate parent.

Andrews said the license contract arrangement with AT&T saved SW Bell more than $48.8 million in research and development of systems and equipment. He acknowledged on cross examination, however, that the "savings" figure was based on estimates of how much it would cost SW Bell to duplicate what AT&T had done and did not take into account how much of the advice and assistance actually benefited SW Bell.

Dr. Gary White, director of accounting programs at Texas Tech University, will speak on "New Directions for Texas Tech College of Business" at a 7 p.m. meeting today of the National Association of Accountants at the Gridiron Restaurant.

White holds a Ph.D. degree from the University of Washington, an M.A. degree from the University of Illinois, and a B.S. degree from the University of Colorado.

Before joining Texas Tech, White taught at the University of Colorado for 10 years, the last two as head of the division of accounting. He previously taught at the University of Washington.

White received the Gold Key Award from the Colorado Society of CPAs in 1963.

Slaton Resident Named 'Outstanding Farmer'

SLATON (Special) — Longtime Slaton area farmer Bill Alspaugh was named as "Outstanding Farmer of the Year" here Monday night at the 22nd annual Farmer-Merchant Barbecue.

Some 550 area farmers and businessmen looked on as master of ceremonies Coy Biggs presented the award.

Alspaugh is director of the Ideal Co-op Gin and the Lubbock Ag Club, and serves on the Lubbock County Water District Board. He also serves as president of the Mercy Hospital Board, holds an honorary membership in the Slaton Future Farmers of America chapter, and was named as "Outstanding Young Farmer of the Year" by the Slaton Jaycees several years ago.

Cash prizes awarded by the Slaton Chamber of Commerce each year for the first, second and third bales of cotton harvested in the Slaton area were not handed out at the banquet as planned, because no bales have been officially recorded as harvested, said Cleo Green of the chamber.

The chamber will award prizes of $150, $100 and $50 to the harvesters bringing in the first bales, he said.

The large group converged on the Slaton Babe Ruth Ballpark for the outdoor feast which was planned by 15 area groups, the Slaton Chamber of Commerce and area merchants as a gesture of appreciation to the farmers who trade in Slaton.

The merchants pay for the meals for the farmers and offer several prizes.

Ronnie Milsap Show Canceled

The Ronnie Milsap concert, slated for 8 p.m. Sept. 20 at the Lubbock Coliseum, has been canceled.

Those who already have purchased tickets can take them to the University Center ticket booth on the Texas Tech campus from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday for a full refund.

City Man Held In Murder Case

Nathaniel McDade, 25, of 1515 Ave. C, Apt. 34, Monday was charged with murder in connection with the Saturday shooting death of Arthur Lee Jones.

The Criminal District Attorney's office recommended a $40,000 bond for McDade, who remained in county jail late Monday.

When police responded to a shooting report at 400 17th St., they found Jones, 47, of 2204 Cedar St. lying on the ground with a bullet wound above his left eye.

Justice of the Peace L.J. Bialack pronounced the man dead at 1:36 a.m. Saturday.

Reports show that an argument over possession of clothing apparently sparked the shooting.

The parched area of southwestern South Dakota known as the Badlands was once a flat, moist, forested lowland.

The proposed amendment would allow the Legislature to provide for, issue, and sell general obligation bonds called "Farm and Ranch Loan Security Bonds" of the State of Texas not to exceed 10 million dollars. All money received from the sale of such bonds would be deposited in a separate fund with the State Treasurer and administered by the commissioner of agriculture without further appropriations. These funds would be used to guarantee loans for the purchase of farm and ranch real estate. The commissioner of agriculture would use these funds, under provisions to be prescribed by the Legislature for the purpose of guaranteeing loans used for the purchase of farm and ranch real estate, to acquire real estate mortgages or deeds of trust on lands purchased with guaranteed loans. These funds would also be used to advance to the borrower a percentage of the principal and interest due. The Legislature may also authorize the commissioner of agriculture to sell at foreclosure any land authorized in the manner authorized by this amendment. The commissioner of agriculture would be required to charge at least 6 percent interest on such loans. The proposed amendment appropriates an amount that is sufficient to pay the principal and interest on the bonds that mature or become due during the fiscal year less the amount in the interest and sinking fund at the close of the prior fiscal year.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows:

"The constitutional amendment authorizing the legislature to provide for the guarantee of loans for purchase of farm and ranch real estate for qualified borrowers by the sale of general obligation bonds of the State of Texas."

Vincent Bufano Shunned 'Typical' Career Options

By VERNON SCOTT
HOLLYWOOD (UPI)— Three career options were open to Vincent Bufano as a youth growing up in the south Bronx a few years ago — crook, cop or construction worker, or so he says.

Bufano, 22, and a muscular, 6-foot-2 first generation Italian-American, opted for construction worker and now finds himself a movie-TV star. He has the physique of an Adonis, the nose of a prizefighter and the eyes of a poet.

Viewers will see the kid from the Bronx costarring with Joe Don Baker in the new NBC Series "Eisched" and in the movie "Gorp," due out this fall.

A tough, street-wise kid, Bufano grew up in a rough and ready Italian-Jewish neighborhood where you survived on your reputation as a street fighter.

Bufano established his prowess with his fists early in life and discovered once he proved he could handle his dukes he rarely was challenged.

His nose has been broken three times and he's lost several teeth. But the real challenge was breaking away from the traditional routes open to youngsters growing up on the streets of New York. He brings to mind a real-life Rocky Balboa.

"Either you became a crook or a cop, it seems," he said. "A lot of my friends are New York cops right now. And some of them are behind bars.

"If you were lucky, you followed your father or your uncle into a union and became a teamster or a construction worker. My father died when I was a little kid so I was raised by my mother and grandfather.

"I also had seven uncles who lived on the same side of the street in the neighborhood. My best friends were 14 cousins who lived in the same block.

"I knew all the cops in the area. And, when I got in trouble, they never ran me in. They did worse. They took me home to my mother. Then my uncles took turns coming over to beat me up. I learned the hard way."

Bufano's nickname was "dreamer." His dream was to become an actor. He came out of theaters imitating Robert Mitchum and Marlon Brando. He acted in plays at St. Michael's High School.

Tough guys in the neighborhood ridiculed his acting aspirations, but not too strongly. Bufano played fullback on a neighborhood sandlot team and fought in the heavyweight division of the Golden Gloves, effective deterrents to his detractors.

"No other actors ever came out of the neighborhood," said Bufano. "I didn't want to settle into the rut that the other guys did."

"I'd see guys in their 30s and 40s who grew up in the neighborhood, hanging around on street corners at night, working 9-to-5 jobs during the day."

"There was no such thing as a career. I knew a 9-to-5 job wasn't for me when I was a meat slicer in an Italian delicatessen. The boss caught me rapping with the girls and told me I'd wind up being a bum."

"Maybe he was right. But I worked steadily from the time I was 13, all through high school. I loaded crates of fish at the Fulton Fish market and I lugged sides of beef at a packing plant. I also did heavy labor in construction, breaking up sidewalks with a pick.

"Between times I took acting classes and dreamed of becoming an actor."

After leaving high school, Bufano sold his car and his other possessions, withdrew his savings from the bank and headed for Hollywood.

He spent his first seven months in the film capital trying to locate Frank Campana, a friend of his grandfather with show business connections. Campana put him in touch with an agent.

"I lived in a rat hole of an apartment and spent most of my money on acting classes," Bufano said. "I honestly went hungry for weeks at a time. My weight dropped from 230 to 180 pounds."

"I was used to eating those wonderful big Italian dinners mother used to fix every night. But I didn't give up my dream.

"My agent got me my first job, playing a tough guy in 'Flatbush,' a TV series that bombed. The important thing was it got me a Screen Actors Guild card. They paid me $500 a week. I didn't know there was that much money in the world."

"Then I did a few guest shots and got a good part in 'Gorp.' Now, with 'Eisched' I'm making a lot more money. But my mother isn't impressed. She wants to know when I'm going to get a decent job."

"When I told her I was starring in an hour TV show, she figured I was only working one hour a week. I can't tell her any different.

 "She asks what I'm going to do for a living. Mom thinks if I don't come home with dirty fingernails and aching muscles I'm not working."

Senate Improves Federal Crop Insurance Plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate has approved legislation to expand and improve federal crop insurance in hopes that increased use of it by farmers will make other programs for guarding against crop losses by natural disasters unnecessary.

The bill passed the Senate Monday on a 64-27 vote. The House has similar legislation awaiting floor action.

Sen. Walter Huddleston, D-Ky., the bill's floor manager, said he hoped action will be completed on the crop insurance bill before Congress adjourns this year.

The bill is designed to remove the current limits on expansion of the federal crop insurance program and expand it to cover all crops in all counties. It also provides additional funding authority for the new program.

The government, through the Federal Crop Insurance Program, would pick up a portion of the cost of crop insurance premiums in hopes of getting more farmers to take advantage of the program.

The major features of the bill would take effect in the 1981 crop year. At present, farmers are offered two federal programs — the voluntary, low premium crop insurance program, and federal disaster payments — to guard against natural hazards that can prevent crops from being planted or destroy planted crops.

The disaster program covers producers of wheat, feed grains, upland cotton and rice under a form of free crop insurance. The Senate-passed bill would phase out the disaster program over a two-year period while the improved and expanded crop insurance program is put into place.

Although a federal crop insurance program has been operating on an experimental basis for nearly 30 years, it covers only about half of the nation's counties and frequently fails to cover all major commodities in the places where it is available.

In addition, high premium rates and the existence of alternative modes of crop disaster protection have kept participation levels low.

A key portion of the legislation will encourage farmer participation by lowering premium costs by requiring the government to pay a part — not less than 20 percent or more than 40 percent — of the crop insurance costs.

Also, insurance must be made available to a farmer on his crop for 75 percent of average yield, and the price coverage would be available at the highest of target price, loan rate or projected market price of the commodity.

Sponsors said the two provisions should substantially increase the number of farmers who take advantage of the federal crop insurance program.

Congress Demanding Completion Of Tellico Dam

WASHINGTON (AP)—Congress is demanding completion of the controversial Tellico Dam, a multimillion-dollar project stopped dead in its tracks for more than two years by the tiny snail darter.

By a vote of 48-44, the Senate told the Tennessee Valley Authority Monday to complete the $115 million project regardless of the Endangered Species Act or any other law that might hinder its completion. The House had voted its approval earlier. The vote in effect would overturn earlier court decisions halting work on the project because of the threat it poses to the snail darter. As an endangered species, the tiny fish is protected under federal law. The Senate's vote sets the stage for a possible presidential veto of a major appropriations bill.

Interior Secretary Cecil D. Andrus has said previously he would recommend that President Carter veto any law authorizing completion of the dam. The provision relating to the dam is part of a bill appropriating $10.8 billion for energy and water projects during the fiscal year starting Oct. 1.

Zyglis Plater, an attorney who successfully argued against the dam in the U.S. Supreme Court, called on Carter to veto the legislation. He said the Senate made its decision "ignoring the dam's lousy economic record, its multiple statutory violations, three years of government review, and even ignoring the discovery that the dam does not meet safety standard federal law. But Sen. J. Bennett Johnston, D-La., who voted to construct the dam, said he doubted Carter would veto the measure.

"There are too many good things in this bill" for the president to veto it, Johnston said. "It was a good, clean, tough fight, a good, hard fight, and I think he'll gracefully accept the result."

The legislation contains money for dozens of dams and other water projects, as well as for energy facilities.

Also contained in the bill is a provision setting a $137 million ceiling on construction funding for a new Senate office building near the Capitol.

The court rulings against the Tellico Dam, culminating in a Supreme Court decision in June 1978, sparked efforts in Congress to complete the project regardless of the law that blocked its construction.

The House had voted several times previously to complete the project. The Senate had refused each time, most recently in a 53-45 roll call vote six weeks ago.

In Tennessee, TVA director Bob Clement said he was "very pleased" by the Senate vote. "Completion of the dam will mean the taxpayers' dollars already spent on this project will not be wasted," he said. Another director, Richard Freeman, declined to comment, and the third, S. David Freeman, could not be reached for his reaction.

But Sen. John Culver, D-Iowa, a member of the Senate Environment and Public Works Committee, argued taxpayers' money would be wasted because the dam "clearly does not meet the tests of economic merit applied to other federal water projects nationwide."

Lawmakers May Be Violating IRS Tax Ruling On Speeches

WASHINGTON (AP)—Members of Congress who do not pay Social Security taxes on the money they earn making speeches may be running afoul of a recent Internal Revenue Service ruling.

The IRS ruled in 1977 that a member of Congress had to pay the tax on those monies if he regularly made outside speeches for pay.

The key to the issue is the definition of the word "regularly."

IRS spokeswoman Ellen Murphy said the question of liability might vary from case to case based on whether a legislator's speech-making qualified as "regular" self-employment.

"I can't tell you that making four, five or six speeches a year does it," she said.

A spot check of several dozen lawmakers who earned more than $10,000 on the 1978 lecture circuit showed most did pay the 8.1 percent Social Security self-employment tax, in addition to income tax.

But four senators and three representatives said through aides they did not pay the tax.

Most said they thought the speeches were not subject to Social Security, since members of Congress and other federal civilian workers do not pay the payroll tax on their salaries.

Sen. Dale Bumpers, D-Ark., was following his accountant's advice when he did not pay Social Security tax on the $17,000 in honoraria he drew for speeches last year, said his executive secretary, Jo Nobles. She noted the 1977 ruling "hinges on the definition of regularly."

The little-noticed ruling expanded on a 1955 IRS ruling that exempted from the tax those who made speeches only occasionally.

Lawmakers who have not paid the Social Security tax on their speeches could be liable for back taxes and interest for three years, three months and 15 days. Beyond that, the statute of limitations has run out.

A Social Security official said it was up to the IRS to spot any taxpayers who are not paying the tax.

The 1977 IRS ruling evolved from a request for advice from an anonymous member of Congress who earned $1,500 for 10 speeches.

In ordering him to pay, the IRS said that lecturing "may or may not be a trade or business, depending upon

Auto Strike Will Hurt Car Owners

DETROIT (AP)—Any strike by the United Auto Workers union will hurt owners of General Motors Corp. cars who need repair parts as well as buyers of popular small cars.

Contracts covering 700,000 Big Three auto workers expire at 11:59 p.m. Friday. GM earlier was chosen as the company to be struck if no agreement is reached.

The UAW's hit list of plants to be shut down in its previously announced strategy of a selective strike—unprecedented in national auto negotiations—includes 32 of GM's 43 parts warehouses.

Ten of the remaining 11 warehouses serve only the GMC Truck & Coach division. Those 11 warehouses are not covered by the union's national agreement with GM.

The other strike targets on Monday's list are 13 of the 26 U.S. car and truck assembly plants and the diesel locomotive plant at LaGrange, Ill., near Chicago.

Those plants make popular subcompact and compact, some of the somewhat less popular intermediates, high-profit luxury cars and the better-selling trucks.

Plants and warehouses to be struck employ 95,350 in 22 states, or 21 percent of GM's 460,000 UAW members nationwide.

Michigan accounts for one-third of the potential strikers, or 32,200 workers. GM has about 200,000 production workers in its home state.

The company had no comment on the union's announcement. In informal discussions, spokesmen referred reporters to a remark by the company's chief negotiator, Vice President George B. Morris, last Friday that the company was "keeping all our options open."

Morris' comment was made in answer to the question of whether GM was planning a lockout of workers at plants not struck.

Locked-out workers would not be eligible for unemployment compensation in most states.

Plants supplying engines, transmissions, frames, body panels and other components could keep building parts for inventory. Presumably some could reduce their production to supply only the assembly lines still running.

Neither side met reporters Monday, but UAW Vice President Irving Bluestone said in a recorded message on the union's telephone line giving news of the talks that, "Obviously, it would be foolish to have a strike at plants where the inventories of automobiles are extremely high."

Bluestone also said: "The atmosphere in the negotiations is good. There is hard work going on; very serious attention being paid to the issues."

whether such engagements are carried on with a degree of regularity, whether (he) seeks or otherwise indicates availability for speaking engagements, and whether (he) receives compensation."

Others whose staffs reported they did not pay the tax, and their speech fees, are: Sens. John Culver, D-Iowa, $25,924; Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., $24,250; Ernest F. Hollings, D-S.C., $25,000; and Reps. Robin L. Beard, R-Tenn., $12,726; Ronald V. Dellums, D-Calif., $13,151; and Barry M. Goldwater, Jr., R-Calif., $16,800.

Committee Cuts Controversial Textbooks

AUSTIN (AP) — A health education textbook that was criticized for dealing with breast examinations didn't make the cut Monday.

The State Textbook Committee left Scott, Foresman & Co.'s "Health: A Way of Life" off the list of five health education texts recommended for use in Texas high schools.

"I didn't object to the breast exam. ... I just thought a mixed classroom of boys and girls) was the wrong place to do it," said Norma Gabler of Longview, who had protested the book at an August hearing.

The 15-member committee chose the book as an alternate, meaning it can be adopted only if State Education Commissioner Alton Bowen or the State Board of Education eliminate another book.

"I doubt it will go on the list," Mrs. Gabler said of the Scott, Foresman text.

She had maintained at the hearing that teaching self-examination for breast cancer was a "fantastic" idea, but not in a class of both boys and girls because it might be embarrassing to some and "exciting" to others.

Two of the three health education texts opposed by Mrs. Gabler, who has criticized textbooks from a conservative stance for 18 years, were approved by the committee. They are Houghton-Mifflin's "Investigating Your Health" and Laidlaw's "Healthful Living for Today and Tomorrow."

Her main criticism of the two books, she said, was inadequate treatment of drugs. Mrs. Gabler said the Laidlaw book devotes only 43 lines to marijuana and says the evidence on its physical effects and potential for harm is inconclusive.

"If I were a teen-ager and read that little is known about the physical effects of marijuana after all these years, why not try it?" she said in an interview.

She said she would ask board of education to require publishers to expand their drug chapters before adopting their books for use in public schools.

Other books for health education, a required high school course, approved by the committee were Holt's "Modern Health," Webster-McGraw-Hill's "Health and Safety For You" and Harcourt's "Your Health and Safety for Better Living."

The state board will adopt textbooks Nov. 10 for health, civics, typing, computer math and auto repair courses. Adoptions will last six years in most cases and may consist of no more than five textbooks per subject. Local school boards choose the books they want from the state list. The state pays for the books.

Civics texts also aroused protests at the August hearing.

The committee recommended Holt's "American Government"; Prentice-Hall's "American Government: Comparing Political Experiences"; Webster-McGraw-Hill's "American Government"; Scholastic's "American Citizenship"; and Addison-Wesley's "American Citizenship."

Mrs. Gabler had protested the Addison-Wesley, Scholastic and Prentice-Hall books.

Addison-Wesley's book has been criticized by Allyn-Bacon, for the first time on the recommended list. McGraw-Hill has been a staple in Texas civics classes since 1957 and is used by about 90 percent of the students, an Allyn-Bacon spokesman said.

Being dropped from the state list means the loss of nearly $1 million in sales to Allyn-Bacon.

Mrs. Gabler had protested McGraw-Hill's because of "an inexcusable amount of editorial opinions and bias," but the committee's discussion centered on the book's difficulty for modern students.

DA Seeks Dismissal Of Jury Indictments

AMARILLO (AP) — District Attorney Tom Curtis has filed four motions to quash and dismiss misdemeanor indictments returned against him by a Potter County grand jury.

The motions also would require the grand jury to turn over tape recordings of Curtis' testimony and to provide a list of witnesses the state might call.

The indictments, returned Aug. 15, charge Curtis attempted "to obtain a benefit for himself" in his Aug. 3 attempt to subpoena a grand jury tape recording of his testimony. The indictments allege such an act was "an unauthorized exercise of his official power" and an act that exceeded his official power.

Acting Potter County Attorney George Harwood said the motions may be heard as early as the end of next week. District Judge John R. McFall of Lubbock was assigned the case last week. He is expected to hear it in Amarillo.

Although the indictments are a Class A misdemeanor, conviction on either would lead to automatic removal from office.

Curtis claimed in the motions that the indictments should be dismissed because he did not issue the subpoena until after the grand jury granted a 90-day extension of its term.

That extension was granted by District Court Judge Byron Poff so that the jury could continue its investigation of "four distinct matters of grave public concern."

Curtis' motion says the grand jury "had no authority to inquire into" his subpoena, and adds that because the subpoena was being processed when the extension was granted, the jurors had no authority to look into a "new" matter.

Curtis alleges the indictments are "self-contradictory and it fails to allege facts which constitute any crime or offense under the laws of the State of Texas."

The motions argue that not only did Curtis have the power as district attorney to issue the subpoena, but he also had the power, under the 8th Amendment, "to have compulsory process, especially for a copy of his own statement if he requests it."

Grand jury foreman Bob Rudd refused to comply in any way with the subpoena, saying Curtis had no right to inspect or copy his testimony.

A second motion to dismiss the indictments alleges the grand jury did not act impartially or according to the law. The grand jury was invalid from the beginning and had no authority to return any indictments, the motion stated.

In addition, the motion says, the grand jury "was so fundamentally prejudiced" against Curtis that it denied him due process.

The third motion asks the court to order prosecutors to reveal names of witnesses on whose testimony the indictments were brought.

The "motion for discovery" of evidence calls for tape recordings Curtis tried to subpoena, as well as any recordings made Aug. 15, when the grand jury apparently deliberated on his indictments.

The tapes, Curtis' motion says, will be evidence of "a bias and material prejudice."

Police Abuse Hearing Set For Houston

HOUSTON (AP)— The city of Houston, where 446 homicide victims have been counted already this year, will be the target in the next two days for a U.S. Civil Rights Commission hearing on alleged police brutality.

But, the commission also said it would focus attention on "attempted reforms of the department" since Houston came into the spotlight in 1978 with several charges of police abuses, use of so-called throw-down guns and the slaying of unarmed suspects.

The hearing follows a session in June when the commission took preliminary testimony from representatives of the Mexican-American community, an official of the Gay Political Caucus and a spokesperson for the Houston Public Interest Advocacy Center.

All read numerous reports of police abuse.

A 133-page staff report released by the commission recently said despite the adverse national publicity on the Houston department, "It also came to the attention of this commission that a new police administration was attempting ... to bring about more effective police discipline and accountability."

The report added, "This commission is interested in determining how the system under which the officer operates can be modified to minimize the potential for abuse, while still protecting the due process rights to which police officers are entitled."

Scheduled to testify during the two days are those with complaints and a number of community leaders, city, state and federal government officials and police department officers.

Angola Leader Dies In Moscow Hospital

AGOSTINHO NETO
African Leader Dies

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Agostinho Neto, Marxist president of the oil-rich African nation of Angola, died in a Moscow hospital Monday following surgery, Radio Angola announced today.

The 56-year-old Angolan leader, long rumored to be suffering from cancer, flew to the Soviet Union last Thursday on what was described as a private visit.

The Angolan news bulletin, monitored here, said the Central Committee of the ruling Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola "announces the death of our dearest President Dr. Agostinho Neto yesterday at 16:45 (4:45 p.m.) in Moscow after a prolonged sickness in spite of an operation performed."

Neto, who led his Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola to power after 13 years of colonial war against Portugal's former right-wing regime and through a bloody three-way civil war in 1975-76, had made several trips to Moscow for treatment.

There was no immediate word from the Angolan radio about who might succeed Neto. In addition to being president, he was chairman of the MPLA Central Committee.

Neto's death comes at a time when the Angolan government is plagued with internal dissension over policies and as anti-MPLA guerrilla activity continues in eastern regions of the southern African nation.

Neto had appeared to be leaning toward the West in recent months, if only because he desperately needed Western economic aid to help rebuild Angola's still-shattered economy.

A quiet-spoken poet and physician, Neto became Angola's first president after its uncertain and tumultuous independence in 1975 amid civil war.

He was arrested for anti-colonialist agitation and kicked out of medical school in Angola from 1955 to 1957. He then resumed his medical studies in Portugal, graduated in 1958 and returned to Angola to practice in 1959. But Neto was soon active again in local politics and quickly re-arrested.

In 1962 Neto was named president of the Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola, then a struggling anti-colonial group. He visited Moscow in 1964 and received assurances of future Soviet military help.

Wave Of Refugees Reaches Hong Kong

HONG KONG (UPI) — A new surge of nearly 1,000 Vietnamese refugees, including the largest single group to flee the communist nation in two months, has made it to the Crown colony.

The arrivals appeared to openly contradict Hanoi's pledge to stop the exodus of the boat people.

Two boats, carrying 893 people, arrived Monday — bringing the number of daily arrivals to more than four times the average of about 200.

A motorized junk jammed with 604 Vietnamese and drenched by torrential rains was being watched by harbor officials today, who fear that large groups of boat people again are on the way.

The newly arrived junk brought the largest single group of refugees to emerge from Vietnam since Hanoi promised in July to stop the exodus of its people.

"There are definitely more to come," a government spokesman said. "It's no good." Hong Kong now harbors almost 69,000 Vietnamese.

The other boat that arrived Monday carried 289 people, including 124 children.

The larger group was crowded on the 80-foot vessel, sheltered from the rain only by flimsy bamboo mats. Authorities are keeping them on board for six or seven days in quarantine.

Followers Of Baha'i Face Peril

By The Associated Press

The lives, property and holy places of hundreds of thousands of followers of the Baha'i religion in Iran are in peril because "they are under pressure to recant their faith" by Shiite Moslem zealots who support Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, Baha'i officials report.

They said the Baha'i was excluded from the new draft constitution of Khomeini's Islamic Republic, even though it is the largest non-Moslem religious minority in the country.

The officials said mobs destroyed the home of the religion's founder, which was a shrine, and that 79 houses, some offices, and cemeteries owned by the religion were confiscated, burned or demolished in recent months despite Khomeini's promises of protection.

Mary Hardy, deputy secretary of the Baha'i center in London, said Baha'i followers in Iran reported by telephone that the Most Holy House of the Bab in the southern city of Shiraz was attacked Sunday and partially destroyed.

She said demolition of the shrine and two adjacent, holy sites continued Monday with the apparent approval of the head of the government's department for religious endowments in Shiraz, who accompanied a crowd of onlookers.

The shrine was decreed a place of pilgrimage by Baha'u'llah, a Persian nobleman who founded the sect in Iran in the mid-19th century. The Baha'is has membership among more than 1,600 ethnic groups in most countries of the world. Its followers believe in the unity of all religions, universal education, world peace and the equality of men and women. They are forbidden to take political positions.

Tehran Radio reported, meanwhile, that Ayatollah Mahmoud Taleghani, Tehran's Shiite Moslem leader and a moderate leader of the revolution that ousted Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi's regime in February, was buried this morning in the Iranian capital.

The broadcast said thousands of people spent the night in the area of the Beheshti Zahra, Tehran's main cemetery, so they would be on hand for the burial services. It said a memorial service will be held Wednesday after evening prayers at the Great Mosque in Qom, the holy city 100 miles south of Tehran where Khomeini lives.

Taleghani died Monday of a heart attack at the age of 69, the government radio said, and Khomeini's regime declared three days of mourning.

Violence Marks Independence Celebrations

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Chanting slogans of hate and vengeance, 800 leftists marched behind the coffin of a 16-year-old slain with six other teen-agers in an ambush. More political violence was expected as Central America prepared for independence celebrations Saturday.

Leftists said they would confront the troops in towns around the capital and try to disarm them. The right-wing military government, trying to keep a low profile since the overthrow of its Nicaraguan allies in the Somoza dictatorship next door, said the army would not be provoked into violent reaction. But Information Minister Rafael Flores Lima said the armed forces would control any outbreaks that threatened to get out of hand.

The teen-agers killed in the ambush Saturday and seven who were wounded with them were members of the student wing of the Popular Revolutionary Bloc, El Salvador's largest organization of leftist activists. The Revolutionary Bloc blamed the ambush on government plainclothesmen, but President Carlos Humberto Romero denied any of his forces were involved and lamented the deaths.

Rightist hit squads also have made frequent attacks on leftists and suspected leftists, but no one claimed responsibility for the ambush.

Four policemen also were killed during the weekend, three when they responded to a false accident call southwest of San Salvador and the fourth in a town 40 miles to the northeast.

The young people were on their way to a recreation area 80 miles east of San Salvador. Masked men opened fire on them when their small truck slowed down for a curve.

The mourners marched through San Salvador's narrow streets for two hours in a driving tropical rain Monday, following the coffin of Nubio Castilla.

Case May Clear High Court's Trial Access Ruling

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court could act soon to clear the considerable confusion that has arisen in lower courts over its most recent ruling on press freedom.

Among the hundreds of cases to reach the court during its summer recess is one that could be used to clarify last July's decision, which dealt with courtroom access for the public. The new case involves an appeal of a Virginia law that could mean total exclusion of the public from certain trials.

The decision in July saw a divided court give judges enormous authority to bar the news media and public from courtroom proceedings that have traditionally been open to them.

Although the justices do not often fine-tune their work so quickly, some signs indicate they might be willing to make an exception in the case known as Gannett vs. DePasquale — the case decided July 2.

The justices at that time voted 5-4 in ruling that "members of the public have no constitutional right under the 6th and 14th amendments to attend criminal trials."

Confusion has arisen, however, since the Gannett vs. DePasquale case did not involve a criminal trial. It involved a pretrial hearing from which the public — including a Gannett news organization reporter — was excluded because the court felt the defendants' rights to a fair trial could be jeopardized if the public attended.

Thus, the main point of dispute arising from the Gannett decision is one of scope. Does a judge's broad discretion to conduct secret proceedings apply only to pretrial hearings or to the trials as well?

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, one of the court's five-member majority, took an extraordinary step last month in telling a reporter that judges were being misled by news accounts of the July ruling.

Burger said the ruling was meant to apply to pretrial hearings only.

Members of the nation's highest court almost never publicly discuss their rulings. But just days after Burger's comment, Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr.

voiced concern about possible misreading of the ruling.

Then it was Justice Harry A. Blackmun's turn. A dissenter in the Gannett case, Blackmun said that Burger was wrong and that the ruling did apply to trials as well as pretrial hearings.

Blackmun was quoted as calling the decision "outrageous," and saying he hoped the Supreme Court would overturn it within 10 years.

James C. Goodale, vice chairman and general counsel of The New York Times, has stated that such a possibility is a strong one.

"While the opinion may not be overturned overnight, it would not surprise me that eventually it came to rest with other Supreme Court aberrations, such as outlawing the minimum wage, outlawing maximum working hours and overturning the New Deal legislation of the 1930s," Goodale wrote in The National Law Journal.

Even before Blackmun's outburst, an appeal by the Richmond Newspapers Inc. of Richmond, Va. had reached the Supreme Court.

The appeal challenges a Virginia law that authorizes, according to the state's highest court, the total exclusion of the press and public from an entire criminal trial.

It was sparked by a 1978 murder trial held entirely in secret after the defendant requested that the public and news media be barred.

The votes of four of the high court's nine justices are necessary to grant review to the Richmond appeal. If four votes for review are not cast, the Virginia Supreme Court's ruling will stand.

Some word in the Richmond case may come soon after the justices return to the bench on Oct. 1.

Meanwhile, judges have not hesitated to employ the Gannett ruling. According to a survey by the Washington-based Reporters Committee for Freedom of the Press, there have been more than 100 instances since July 2 in which judges closed or tried to close court proceedings.

At least a dozen of those instances involved actual trials.

Many journalists have expressed concern over the Gannett ruling. The Associated Press has issued guidelines to its staff on what to do in the event there is an attempt to close a trial.

Even if the Gannett ruling's impact is narrowed, says Jack Landau, of the reporter's committee, some free-press damage has been done.

"Having taken off our arms and legs, the court might decide to give us back our left leg as a compromise," he said. "But the trend of restricting First Amendment rights will be continued."

A trend perceived by many in the news media began in 1972, when in Bransburg vs. Hayes the Supreme Court said reporters enjoy no right to withhold information about their sources from grand juries.

During their 1977-78 term, the justices limited the right of access the press and public have into institutions the government wants to keep closed (Houchins vs. KQED) and ruled that police may obtain a warrant to search a newspaper office for evidence of a crime with which the newspaper had nothing to do (Zutcher vs. Stanford Daily).

In addition to its Gannett decision, the court may need two more decisions to narrow the limit on the right of "public figures" — making the media easier targets for libel suits.

In one, Hutchinson vs. Post, the justices ruled that individuals who receive public notice are not entitled to prove actual malice in the case of a defamatory statement. In the other, Walker vs. Austin Daily, the justices said that persons charged with crimes also are not automatically public figures under libel law.

In a third libel decision, the court ruled in Herbert vs. Lando that persons required to prove "actual malice" when suing journalists or news organizations for libel may inquire into the "state of mind" of reporters and editors who prepared the challenged report.

The justices at that time voted 5-4 in ruling that "members of the public have no constitutional right under the 6th and 14th amendments to attend criminal trials."

Confusion has arisen, however, since the Gannett vs. DePasquale case did not involve a criminal trial. It involved a pretrial hearing from which the public — including a Gannett news organization reporter — was excluded because the court felt the defendants' rights to a fair trial could be jeopardized if the public attended.

Thus, the main point of dispute arising from the Gannett decision is one of scope. Does a judge's broad discretion to conduct secret proceedings apply only to pretrial hearings or to the trials as well?

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, one of the court's five-member majority, took an extraordinary step last month in telling a reporter that judges were being misled by news accounts of the July ruling.

Burger said the ruling was meant to apply to pretrial hearings only.

Members of the nation's highest court almost never publicly discuss their rulings. But just days after Burger's comment, Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr.

Airline Reports Dallas Move Went Smoothly

DALLAS (UPI) — More than 800 employees of American Airlines have completed their transfer of the company's national headquarters from New York City to the Dallas-Fort Worth area without "any real problems," a spokesman says.

A majority of the employees had elected to follow the airline from New York to Texas, said American representative Al Becker, and because of advance planning the move went smoothly.

"We haven't taken any surveys, but we feel that it all went well," he said. "But we don't know of any real problems encountered. That in itself is pretty good, because the move involved approximately 75 percent of our management personnel and at least 60 percent of our secretarial and clerical staff."

Rather than making the move all at once, the company carried out the relocation in stages.

"We did it in phases," Becker said. "Each weekend a different set of departments moved until we had everyone who was relocating in the area. We began in the middle of July and by the middle of August it was completed."

But while employees have been relocated into permanent homes in the Dallas-Fort Worth area, the company must wait to make another move.

"Our permanent headquarters at the (Dallas-Fort Worth Regional) airport will not be finished until late 1981 or early 1982," Becker said, "so we are currently leasing two buildings from Vought Corporation in Grand Prairie and another near Six Flags in Arlington. They have been completely refurbished for us and we will operate from there until we make the move to the airport."

American contracted with Merrill Lynch Relocation Services to help locate housing in the area for employees.

The evening star is Venus.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Virgo.

American short story writer O. Henry was born Sept. 11, 1862.

On this day in history:

In 1777, troops of Gen. George Washington were badly defeated by the British in the Battle of Brandywine.

In 1841, all members on President John Tyler's Cabinet resigned except Secretary of State Daniel Webster. They were protesting the veto of a banking bill.

In 1963, all 81 people aboard an Indian Airlines Viscount died when the plane crashed near New Delhi.

In 1973, the regime of Socialist Salvador Allende of Chile was toppled in a military coup in which he died, reportedly by his own hand.

Reflections

JERRY DON SANDERS had plenty of time to think about that 47-0 drubbing his Chaparrals absorbed in Alpine Saturday night. Fact is, there's little else to do — except think — while making the 300-mile return trip from that Big Bend country, especially if that trip starts immediately after the game.

So, from the moment the LCCers stepped on the bus at Alpine until the time they hit Lubbock about 4:30 Sunday morning, Sanders mulled over the defeat. And after he got the replay via game films later, the truth came through clearly:

"We just didn't play very well," Sanders observed Monday.

No use wasting words.

"We weren't ready to play," the coach added. "It was a combination of a couple of things. First, we had them so emotionally high the previous week (for the season-opening McMurry game) that we didn't really press (psychological) matters last week.

"Then, too, we didn't execute well at all.

"On top of that, they did execute well on offense, and their defense had a good front, so we weren't able to move the ball against them."

UNLIKE THE McMURRY series, Sanders and his Chaparrals will get another shot at Sul Ross — here Oct. 13 — and a chance to retaliate. But, between now and then, Sanders will take a different tack: Less offense, better execution.

"We will probably drop a lot of our plays and try to get better benefit from the eight or ten we use," Sanders remarked Monday. "We'll use work on the few until we get them down right."

Despite the loss, the LCC coach pointed to the work of a few individuals. "Joe Green (split end) played well. He runs his routes well and he's catching the ball. We're going to try to get the ball to him more. And I thought Kent Allison did some things well at (alternate) quarterback. He got loose from the rush a couple of times."

The pass rush from the Lobos brought another train of thought for the Chaparrals coach. "We don't have time to throw," he admitted. "They were running

Dockery Worries About Injuries

By NORVAL POLLARD
Executive Sports Editor

For the Texas Tech Red Raiders, it's time to forget the past and look ahead to the future. And for the Red Raiders, the future is now.

There was plenty of disappointment in the Tech locker room following Saturday's 21-7 loss to the University of Southern California, the nation's top-ranked college football team.

But that contest is now firmly notched in history and all the talk in the world isn't going to change the outcome of that close, physical battle. Just as coaches prepare "one game at a time," every contest — win or lose — must be forgotten, or at least put aside so total concentration can be directed toward the next opponent.

Tech's next opponent is the University of New Mexico, an old rival. The Red Raiders and Lobos have been knocking heads since 1931. Tech has dominated the series — winning 20 times and tying twice in 24 meetings and is currently on a four-game winning streak against UNM. The Lobos last won in 1971 when they defeated Tech in Lubbock 13-10.

The Lobos will be watering at the mouths when they invade Jones Stadium at 7:30 p.m. Saturday. New Mexico is off to its best start since the 1966 season, at 2-0 after a 34-0 mauling of Louisiana Tech and a 35-16 drubbing of Oregon State. Both victories came in Albuquerque.

The Tech clash is always an important contest for the Lobos and there is nothing sixth-year head coach Bill Mondt would like better than to dispose of the Red Raiders in front of the home fans. Mondt has never beaten a Tech team. The closest a Mondt-coached UNM squad came to upending the Raiders was in 1974 when the two regional foes battled to a 21-21 standoff.

Tech coach Rex Dockery expects a whale of a game from the Lobos and knows the Raiders will have to have their heads in the game if they expect to win.

"This is undoubtedly the best New Mexico team we have seen since I've been at Tech," Dockery admitted. "They became a good team last season and they have a lot of good people back from that team.

"It seems like New Mexico always has some people at the skill positions who can give you a lot of trouble. I don't have to say too much about (quarterback) Brad Wright. All you have to do is look at his stats from the game last season and you can see we respect him."

In 1973, the Raiders jumped ahead 14-0 in Albuquerque before Wright, who is in his junior season, led the Wolfpack back and made a game of it.

Wright completed 23 of 49 passes for 452 yards and three touchdowns to set a UNM single-game passing record. Tech won 38-23, but only after UNM pulled within seven points in the fourth quarter.

Tech's outstanding fullback James Hadnot had his best performance of the '78 season against New Mexico a year ago, carrying the pigskin 36 times and totaling a neat 289 yards and one touchdown. Together, the two squads amassed 1,100 yards in total offense — a statistician's nightmare.

By The Associated Press
Southern California, Alabama, Oklahoma and Texas held onto the top four places in The Associated Press' first regular-season college football poll today while Stanford, Texas A&M and Arizona State were casualties of the year's first upsets.

Southern Cal, a 21-7 winner over Texas Tech in its opening game, received 47 first-place votes and 1,222 of a possible 1,240 points from a nationwide panel of 62 sports writers and broadcasters.

(AP, UPI Polls,

However, second-ranked Alabama closed the gap from the preseason poll. The Crimson Tide, which opened by thrashing Georgia Tech 30-6, received 14 first-place ballots and 1,172 points. The margin of difference in the preseason poll was 1,242-1,141.

Neither Oklahoma nor Texas has played yet. The Sooners received two first-place votes and 1,653 points while the other No. 1 ballot went to Texas, which accumulated 962 points.

Penn State, fifth in the preseason poll, also was idle and slipped to seventh place behind Purdue and Michigan, which posted impressive triumphs. Purdue trounced Wisconsin 41-20 and climbed from sixth to fifth with 931 points while Michigan swamped Northwestern 42-7 and jumped from seventh to sixth with 898 points.

Then came Penn State with 823 points, idle Nebraska with 742 and idle

Notre Dame with 644. Michigan State defeated Illinois 33-16 and held onto 10th place with 594 points.

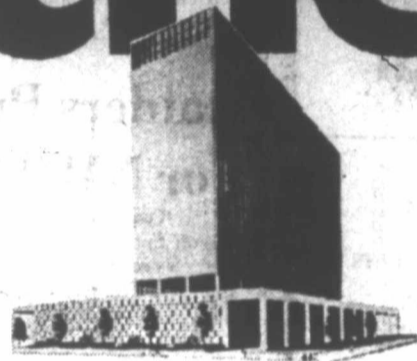

The Second Ten consists of Missouri, Georgia, Houston, Washington, Ohio State, Pitt, Arkansas, Florida State, North Carolina State and SMU.

The preseason Second Ten was Georgia, Missouri, Stanford, Texas A&M, Washington, Houston, Pitt, Arizona State, Florida State and Arkansas.

However, Stanford was beaten by Tulane 33-10, Texas A&M lost to Brigham Young 18-17 and Arizona State was upset by California 17-9.

The three newcomers to the Top Twenty are Ohio State, North Carolina State and SMU. Ohio State whipped Syracuse 31-8. NC State trimmed East Carolina 34-20 and SMU downed Rice 35-17.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials managed a .25 gain to 877.13 by noon.

Gainers led a 6-5 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Louisiana Land & Exploration, which announced a gas discovery Tuesday, led the active list in the early going, up 1 1/2% to 37 1/2.

State Drops Retirement Program

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) - Alaska has become the first state to make a wholesale withdrawal from the Social Security program with a vote by state workers to get out of the system Jan. 1.

State workers voted to trade their participation in the federal plan for a percent pay cut to fund a replacement program set up by the State Division of Retirements and Benefits. Under the new plan, the state will match worker contributions.

State officials say they won't be able to duplicate Social Security benefits, and that the 14,451 workers affected instead will choose to be covered by one or two of the five benefit programs to be offered.

But despite the warnings, state workers voted 3,357 to 2,475 to withdraw, according to election results tabulated Monday.

"I think this signals to the federal government that there is a concern about taxation, and I wouldn't be surprised if this begins to happen nationwide," said Commissioner of Administration Bill Hudson.

Across the nation, 98 government bodies in 16 states have said they want out of the federal program at the end of the year, and 147 others have said they plan to withdraw in 1981. Social Security officials said.

If none change their plans, that will mean about 100,000 public workers will opt out of Social Security over a two-year period, an increase over 1978 when 20,000 public workers left the program, officials said.

In six states, state workers never have participated in Social Security. They are Colorado, Louisiana, Maine, Massachusetts, Nevada and Ohio.

Alaska employees who pressed for the vote said higher wages here meant higher Social Security payroll taxes, even though retirement benefits are the same as those in low cost-of-living states.

Others said they were fearful of leaving the federal system, which now makes monthly checks to 35 million Americans.

"Social Security is not something you play around with," said Al Baffone of Alaska Laborer's Local 71, one of several state workers' unions. "It's been a total and complete success for 40 years. They've never missed a check. He called the vote 'a tragedy.'"

"The turnover of state employees is so great that a hell of a lot of people are going to lose all those years when they leave state government," he said.

The average state worker quits after three years and eight months, he said. Those who have contributed to the system for less than 10 years will not be able to draw on those contributions, Social Security officials have said.

Social Security retirement benefits paid to workers who contributed for longer periods will be less now that the state is withdrawing, opponents say.

Chrysler Fall Could Damage U.S. Economy

WASHINGTON (AP) - A shutdown of the financially troubled Chrysler Corp. would have an enormous effect on the U.S. economy and result in long-lasting damage to several metropolitan areas, says a study by the Department of Transportation.

The draft study, released today by Sen. Thomas Eagleton, D-Mo., also concludes that the demise of Chrysler would deprive the United States of an estimated 800,000 small, fuel-saving cars by 1981. "This would lower the potential for fuel savings derived from new fleet sales each year," it said.

The document said a shutdown could result in a severe depression in the Detroit area, raising unemployment from today's 8.7-percent rate to as high as 19 percent of the labor force there.

"One needs no strong reminder of previous social unrest in the Detroit area," said the report. "While social tensions are not as strong today as they were in more troubled times, it takes little imagination to envision the results of such massive economic reductions in the inner city."

"It need not be emphasized that the unemployment rate among minority workers is higher now, and would soar under Chrysler shutdown conditions," the report added.

The study was made by the department's Transportation Systems Center and forwarded to the Treasury Department in connection with Chrysler's appeal for federal assistance. The firm lost $207 million in this year's second quarter alone.

The study concluded that if Chrysler closed operations, 97,000 U.S. production workers would lose their jobs, at least for the time being, along with 15,000 in Canada and 7,500 in Mexico.

Another 180,000 employees of firms that supply parts to Chrysler would be thrown out of work, along with 100,000 employees of dealers and 12,000 who work in freight and related areas.

In the worst case - a shutdown with no immediate takeover of Chrysler facilities or employees by other companies - would require governments to spend another $1.5 billion a year for unemployment assistance, plus welfare payments for as many as one million family members.

"It is doubtful that local coffers could support this level of payment," the study said. Losses of income taxes alone would amount to $500 million, in addition to reductions in sales and property taxes, it said.
