

Inspection Of DC-9s Ordered

NEW YORK (AP) — The FAA today ordered all U.S. airlines to inspect the tail sections of their DC-9s following an incident in which a tail cone fell off a DC-9 over the Atlantic Ocean and the subsequent discovery of cracks in the tails of two other Air Canada planes.

The Federal Aviation Administration order was contained in an airworthiness directive sent by telegram to the airlines.

It "requires airlines to inspect for cracks in the aft pressure bulkhead, the emergency exit door jamb and bulkhead skin within 10 landings after receipt of the telegram for airplanes having more than 15,000 landings," said FAA spokesman Dennis Feldman.

The directive says that if cracks are found in the door jamb or the bulkhead's metal skin, the plane must be repaired before it may fly again.

Air Canada inspected its DC-9 fleet after Monday's near disaster in which the cone-shaped tail of a jetliner blew off in flight. The inspection turned up cracks in two other planes on Tuesday.

It was disclosed Tuesday that the problem with the DC-9s has been known to the FAA for three years.

Texas International revealed in Dallas that after discovering cracks in the tail section of one of its DC-9s three years ago, engineers developed a "doubler" to strengthen the tail section and reduce the problem to one of routine maintenance.

Texas International spokeswoman Peggy Dyer said that after the airline got FAA approval to install the doubler, it was put on "all of our aircraft."

Only one of Texas International's 34 DC-9s is affected by the FAA order, Mrs. Dyer told The Avalanche-Journal this morning. Half of that airline's exclusively DC-9 fleet is exempt because of a rear stair design, and 16 of the other 17 have been modified with the "doubler."

The single plane currently is being inspected in Denver, she said, and if it requires repair it will be ferried to the airline's maintenance headquarters in Houston.

GETTING OUT — Jack and Pam Williams leave their apartment in Corpus Christi's north side after heavy rainfall and high tides combined to flood much of the coastal city. The southern section was hardest hit, with scores of persons having to be evacuated, but flooding was widespread after 5 inches of rain in the vicinity and 13 inches nearby. (AP Laserphoto)

Texans Flee Floods On Gulf Coast

CORPUS CHRISTI (UPI) — At least 400 persons were evacuated from their homes today in Corpus Christi and Aransas Pass, across Corpus Christi Bay, authorities reported. More than 13 inches of rain fell over one area and more evacuations were ordered.

At Corpus Christi, officials said at least 100 persons, many of them children, were evacuated because of heavy winds and rain that left water as deep as 4 feet in some parts of the city.

"We're under a stage of siege," said a harried newsman trying to keep up with fast-paced developments in the coastal Texas city.

Northeast of Corpus Christi, across the bay, Aransas Pass Mayor Al Hoigun said several hundred families were evacuated from low-lying areas of the city.

He reported all roads into the city were flooded and a bus stalled, forcing sheriff's deputies to transfer passengers to another bus ahead of rising floodwaters.

At Corpus Christi, Coast Guard boats were being used to evacuate people, most on the south side of the city in an area known as Flour Bluff.

The Coast Guard also began evacuating a trailer park in Corpus Christi and approximately 100 families at Ingleside, also located across the bay from Corpus Christi.

Altogether, authorities reported at least 400 evacuees in the Corpus Christi-Aransas Pass areas.

The National Weather Service issued a flash flood warning for Matagorda and Brazoria counties. A weather service spokesman said the Colorado River was out of its banks, and at Sargent 13 inches of rain had fallen.

At Angleton, southwest of Houston, a Brazoria county sheriff's spokesman said "We have high water on most of the county roads. All the main highways are open. The beaches are all closed because the access roads are all closed."

A Matagorda county sheriff's dispatcher said "Some of the Sargent area has been evacuated out. They started at 1 o'clock this morning. No roads are closed except on the beach. Matagorda Beach also has been evacuated."

At Bay City, Cotton Wood Creek was out of its banks.

In Brazoria County, flooding was reported in the Freeport area and Mustang Bayou in the northern part of the county was out of its banks.

"The rains are expected to continue through the day with a possibility of more serious flood problems," the weather service reported. Rain was falling over much of South Texas.

Corpus Christi police began moving through the south side at midnight, using buses to take residents to fire stations and churches that had been set up as shelters.

Assistant Fire Chief Robert Allen said approximately 100 people had been evacuated early this morning and taken to fire stations throughout the city. Many of them were children, he said.

The National Weather Service said at least 100 people were evacuated. See HUNDREDS FLEE Page 14

Tornado Damage Heavy

HOUSTON (AP) — A tornado that aimed its scattergun fury at an affluent, heavily populated residential area on Houston's west side Tuesday afternoon took a heavy toll in property damage, destroying 10 homes and damaging 40 others, but caused only minor injuries and no deaths.

"There was this terrific noise and all the windows blew out at one time, said Susan Whitworth, 27. "The front doors blew off their hinges and the brick living room wall was completely blown in."

The twister dipped down in the Country Village subdivision of Houston late Tuesday afternoon, wrecked a house on one block, then skipped to another area to continue its destruction.

There was no immediate estimate of damage to the approximately 50 homes in the stricken area off the Katy Freeway. But John Caswell, the Harris County assistant Civil Defense director, said 10 of the houses were destroyed.

He said about 20 families were left homeless by the twister, but found shelter with friends and relatives.

Another tornado touched down Tuesday afternoon in Brazoria County, south of Houston, causing $15,000 damage to a business and slightly damaging several homes, a sheriff's department spokesman said.

A third tornado ripped roofs off mobile homes, overturned a car and blew out windows and doors in several houses northwest of Houston in Harris County Tuesday afternoon.

There were no reports of injuries in the two tornadoes.

The twisters were spawned in clouds that soaked the Houston area with a day long rain that caused street flooding in some areas.

Fires Raging In California

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Homes were destroyed, cattle were killed and hundreds of families were evacuated today as record heat and erratic winds fanned the flames of a dozen fires covering 90,000 acres of California brushland from Plumas to San Diego.

Thousands of firefighters fought the flames that jumped fire lines and raced toward expensive residential areas.

A half-dozen houses in Santa Barbara County were razed by the latest fire burning out of control in the vicinity of Goleta, west of Santa Barbara. The fire broke out Tuesday in the Santa Ynez Mountains, raged down Eagle Canyon, jumped the coast highway and burned all the way to the beach.

One home was lost in the Rancho Embarcadero tract, another in Winchester Canyon and three more in upper and lower Eagle Canyon, police said.

Numerous ranch outbuildings were lost, and one rancher reported 38 head of cattle, valued at $40,000, had died in the fire.

One more home was destroyed in that area, according to U.S. Forest Service spokeswoman Kathy Good, and up to 400 families were evacuated.

Flames advanced southeast toward avocado and lemon groves bordering Goleta. No injuries were reported.

Forest Service officials feared the flames might surge into timberlands of the Los Padres National Forest.

Three residential areas were hastily evacuated as the flames advanced.

S. U.S. 101 was closed for several hours, causing a 10-mile traffic jam in both directions, the California Highway Patrol said.

The patrol tried to convoy cars and trucks through the dense, choking smoke early today, but the plan was abandoned after a sheriff's car and a state truck collided in the gloom.

In Ventura County southwest of Ojai, a brush fire that broke out Tuesday afternoon had spread over 14,000 acres early today.

Evacuation centers were set up in three Ventura high schools as nearly 100 families fled the Valley Vista housing tract on the city's northern edge. Reports of fire-related power outages flooded in from all over Ventura County, the County Fire Department said.

Police blocked off roads in the area and residents on a half-dozen more streets were under standby evacuation orders.

"I can see the flames from here," Ventura County Fire Department spokeswoman Dana Dediana said from her base about 15 miles away in Camarillo.

For a time, the fire threatened the Petrochem USA refinery and oil derricks northeast of the city. Fanned by winds gusting between 20 and 30 mph, the fire had destroyed one structure.

The blaze menaced Villanova Prep School before about 300 firefighters from Ventura County's Fire Department, Oxnard and Ventura city fire units and a special "strike force" of Los Angeles County fire Department engine companies turned back the flames.

Red Cross spokesman Ed Gutierrez said police evacuated nearly 100 live-in students as aerial tankers and helicopters began chemical-retardant and water-bombing runs over the school yard.

In Los Angeles County, an army of 3,044 firefighters was battling the Sage fire in the Angeles National Forest, which had covered at least 31,000 acres.

Another 1,000 acres were lost on the eastern edge of that blaze Tuesday night when flames leaped a fire line north of the Chilao Station area close to 7,124-foot Mount Pacifico 25 miles north of Los Angeles.

Not far away, the Monte fire, which like the Sage blaze began last week, was reported 80 percent contained.

House Kills Pay Boost For Congress, Judges

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House passed an amendment today that would give members of Congress and top-paid bureaucrats a 7 percent pay raise, then minutes later killed the bill to which it was attached.

Passage of the politically sensitive pay raise amendment came on a standing vote of 156-64, in which no names were recorded.

But when the time came to pass the stopgap government spending bill to which the amendment was attached, the House defeated the measure on a 219-191 vote.

Passage of the pay raise portion came after opponents were unable to get the necessary support to force a roll call. Only 34 members would support a roll call vote. It took 44 votes to force such a vote, which would have put each member on record as opposing or supporting the pay hike.

The vote, the second this year on the pay question, came one day after an Associated Press-NBC News poll showed only one in eight Americans feel Congress is doing a good or excellent job.

The pay raise proposal would affect the salaries of congressmen — who make $57,500 a year — and of federal judges and bureaucrats making $47,500 a year. It comes only three months after the House accepted — and then rejected — an offer to raise all those salaries by 5.5 percent a year.

Like the first time around, the legislation was cloaked in parliamentary maneuvering aimed in part at avoiding a recorded vote on the question.

Opponents conceded in advance their cause was lost unless they could force a recorded vote. Both voice votes and division votes are preferred in passing controversial legislation since constituents are not sure who voted which way. A recorded vote puts each member on record as either favoring or disapproving the raise.

The bill was brought to the floor under an unusual procedure which required opponents to get 44 votes instead of the usual 25 votes in order to force a roll call.

The pay proposal was structured so that the House had to kill the attempt to raise its pay by 7 percent — or nearly $4,000 — before it could vote on killing the raise entirely.

The measure is attached to legislation that will provide emergency operating money to some of the biggest federal departments after this month.

As of Oct. 1, congressmen and bureaucrats making more than $47,500 a year are due a 12.9 percent pay raise.

Busing Foe Pledges 'Fight For Freedom'

By LISA PAIKOWSKI
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Libby Ruiz is a supporter of equal education for all. But the Mexican-American woman, who sees herself as American first, is an ardent and active foe of those who want to achieve that equality by moving youngsters from their neighborhood schools.

Mrs. Ruiz is a national board member of the anti-busing group NANS (National Association for Neighborhood Schools) who arrived in Lubbock today to address a meeting of the local chapter Thursday night.

She is currently an intervenor in an appeal of a court-ordered integration plan in Tucson, Ariz.

"Our God-given parental rights are being usurped," said Mrs. Ruiz during an interview today. "What I'm really fighting for is freedom. My lifestyle is being dictated to."

Mrs. Ruiz said she is fighting for the right of minorities as well as whites to live and learn in the location of their choosing. She resents the minorities who support desegregation and attempt to speak for all minorities in that support.

In fact the vocal anti-busing supporter became involved in the Tucson case because a group of Mexican-Americans had originally fought for desegregation in the city through a class action suit. Mrs. Ruiz told the court that those people did not represent all Mexican-Americans by that action.

"My identity is in the barrio," she said today. "We are segregated by choice. I'm as comfortable as I want to be."

Mrs. Ruiz noted that the Tucson integration order calls for integration by "race, ethnicity and wealth. It doesn't mention the quality of education as the most important part."

She continued, "We should all have equal opportunities," but she believes students can get those opportunities no matter where they learn. She said that what a student learns and how well he or she learns "has to do with the abilities and intellect a person naturally inherits."

She added that she was educated in a barrio school and her education was an adequate one.

"I know who I am," she said. "I See BUSING FOE Page 14

FRB's Split Vote On Rate Hike Could Hurt Dollar

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Reserve Board's split decision to boost its bank lending rate to 11 percent suggests dissension over how to battle inflation and could endanger the dollar's value, some economists say.

In an almost unprecedented 4-3 vote, the board agreed Tuesday to raise the discount rate from 10.5 percent. The discount rate is the interest member banks are charged when borrowing from the federal government. The increase should continue to drive up borrowing costs for businesses and consumers, including homeowners.

Such rate rises are designed in part to bolster the dollar's value in the face of persistent inflation and to stem excessive borrowing.

But the lack of unanimity among board members could create the opposite effect, said Lawrence Kudlow, chief economist of Bear, Sheares and Co.

"The rate increase raises more questions than it answers," he said. "It suggests circumstantially that future policy adjustments will be of a timid nature," he added.

This can sow uncertainty abroad and if doubt persists, "we'll see a drop in the value of the dollar," Kudlow said.

Rep. Henry Reuss, D-Wis., chairman of the House Banking Committee, called the split vote "intriguing."

"For the first time, Fed members are wondering out loud whether it really makes sense to throw men and women out of work and businesses into bankruptcy" to tighten credit and reduce borrowing, he said.

While higher interest rates do discourage borrowing, and thus can cause inflation by slowing the growth of the money supply, it also can worsen the nation's recession.

That recession has been increasingly evident as industrial output last month declined 1.1 percent, inventories increased 1.9 percent, retail sales remained sluggish, factory wages slipped and unemployment rose from 5.7 percent to 6 percent.

But the board's majority apparently believed such a threat was not as serious as excessive borrowing.

In recent weeks, borrowing activity has remained intense despite rising short-term interest rates, including the prime rate banks charge their best customers.

In fact, the discount rate has become a bargain when compared with other short-term interest rates.

The prime rate, for example, has soared to 13 percent, and some analysts suspect it may reach 13.25 percent by week's end. On Monday, the Treasury's 26-week bills reached a record high of 10.315 percent.

Action was taken against the background of (these) recent increases ... to bring the discount rate into closer alignment with those rates generally and to discourage excessive borrowing by member banks at the discount window," the board said Tuesday.

The board has assumed a very tight money policy since Paul Volker assumed the chairmanship early last month, succeeding G. William Miller, who became treasury secretary.

Last fall, the discount rate was as low as 8.5 percent. It was raised an entire percentage point in November as part of President Carter's $30 billion dollar rescue plan. It reached 10 percent this July.

Power Restored To Storm Area

By The Associated Press
Electric power flickered back on in southeast Mississippi homes and businesses today as more than 1,000 workers continued restoring service to the area shattered by Hurricane Frederic.

State officials urged persons who were not suffering extreme hardship to allow others to apply first for food stamps at several centers along the Mississippi Gulf Coast and inland.

"We're encouraging those who are not in a critical situation — where their houses are not completely gone or cannot be lived in — to let those in worse shape to come first," said Ken Phillips, director of emergency services for hard-hit Jackson County. "But it doesn't do much good."

A preliminary report from the National Weather Service in Mobile, Ala., released Tuesday, revealed Frederic carried winds of 145 mph, flooded streets with more than 8 inches of rain, pelted the Alabama Gulf Coast with tides of 12 feet and caused more than $1.25 billion in damage.

Back On Broadway

NEW YORK (AP) — Mary Tyler Moore, whose last Broadway effort pooped before its premiere, is trying Broadway again — for at least two months on her back, in bed and in a role originally written for a man.

The Emmy-winning CBS star will appear next February in "Whose Life Is It Anyway," which author Brian Clark will extensively rewrite, a spokesman for the hit British comedy said Tuesday.

The play is about a young British sculptor — now played by England's Tom Conti — who, after a car crash, lies totally paralyzed in a London hospital bed, pleading for the right to die.

The new version has Miss Moore as an American woman in the same plight. She'll appear in the show here for eight to 10 weeks, then possibly reprise the role in Los Angeles and San Francisco, the spokesman said.

Miss Moore hasn't appeared on Broadway since 1966, when she was in a musical version of Truman Capote's "Breakfast at Tiffany's." It never officially opened, closing after four preview performances.

Elizabeth Taylor Cheered

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt (AP) — Some 17 years ago, Elizabeth Taylor was barred from filming the movie "Cleopatra" here. But this time she came back as a diplomat. And the shouts that echoed through this ancient city 2,000 years ago for the beloved queen were heard again.

Miss Taylor, wife of Sen. John Warner, R-Va., was the center of attention during a VIP tour Tuesday. She arrived on President Anwar Sadat's private jet for a four-day visit.

The actress was blacklisted by Egypt for her strong support of Israel, but the ban was dropped with the signing of the peace treaty earlier this year.

During her tour, tourists gawked, clicked cameras, and a school boy ran up and kissed her on the cheek as she sat gazing out at the harbor. Later, Miss Taylor was the honored guest at Cairo's fourth annual film festival before flying on to Tel Aviv, Israel, to meet Prime Minister Menachem Begin.

First Lady Solves Problem

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rosalynn Carter found out the hard way that when you get a visitor in an unfamiliar language the first thing you do is tell him to speak slowly.

Mrs. Carter received a book with five Mexican children

Tuesday. An exhibition of paintings and text from the book, "Mexico as Seen by Her Children," opened at the Organization of American States building here earlier in the day.

The first lady, who studies Spanish, greeted the youngsters in their own language and gave them a book about the Executive mansion. But when Gerardo Francisco Lopez, 12, launched into a conversation, Mrs. Carter had to ask him to slow down because she couldn't understand him.

Pair To Cash In On Melon

HOPE, Ark. (AP) — Seems like you can't buy anything cheap anymore. Ivan Bright and his son Lloyd plan to sell their watermelon seeds for $8.33 each, or eight for $50, or a dozen for $100.

But these aren't just any old seeds. They come from the Bright's 200-pound melon that eclipsed the 197-pounder listed in the 1979 Guinness Book of World Records. Hope city officials certified the melon's weight after it was picked late last month.

The Brights are preserving the monster melon in a cool room until the Arkansas State Fair at Little Rock later this month.

Ivan says he will cut the melon at the end of the fair. With an estimated 600 to 700 seeds inside his beauty and people reportedly lining for a share, he hopes to make more than $5,000.

But that won't necessarily make Ivan Bright a happy man.

The Hope Advertising and Promotion Commission had offered a $10,000 prize for a 200-pound melon at the Hope Watermelon Festival. Bright's melon didn't reach 200 pounds until 33 hours after the contest deadline elapsed.

Refinery Cleaned Up After Tuesday Blast

TORRANCE, Calif. (AP) — Firefighters mopped up a Mobil Oil Co. refinery here today after a deafening explosion late Tuesday set fire to the plant and injured five persons, authorities said.

"We have a good view of the refinery, and there were flames a couple of hundred feet high," said Torrance police Lt. Jim Foster. "We had calls from people living five or six miles away saying the blast shook their houses. There were some unconfirmed reports of broken windows."

The injured were taken to Little Company of Mary Hospital in Torrance, inhaling hydrogen sulfide gas. The other four were treated for minor injuries and released, she said. Identities were unavailable.

The blast and resulting fire apparently occurred when excessive pressure built up in a propane line, rupturing a hose and causing a gas leak, said Torrance Fire Chief Bill Slonecker.

Police blocked area streets, causing a huge traffic jam as motorists flocked to the fire, Foster said. The California Highway Patrol also closed an offramp from the San Diego Freeway for a time.

Fire Department spokesman Loren Krause said about 55 firefighters from 12 engine companies battled the blaze for about two hours before bringing it under control.

"It's a huge plant, several stories high and on the north end of the property" near the San Diego Freeway, Krause said.

Exhaustion Plagues Runners

NEW YORK (AP) — The heat exhaustion that drove President Carter out of his first competitive race is so common among runners that it's an occupational illness, experts in sports medicine say.

"What it comes down to is that anyone who runs in warm weather gets a certain amount of heat exhaustion, but most people tolerate it because the sweat mechanism is able to cool the body sufficiently," said Dr. Peter Hanson, head of the Biodynamics Lab at the University of Wisconsin Center for Health Sciences in Madison.

What happened to Carter Saturday, Hanson and other experts said, is that he was exercising so hard his body couldn't get rid of the excess heat.

When that happens, a runner develops what amounts to a fever — often as high as 101 degrees Fahrenheit. The muscles weaken, the runner feels dizzy, and if he keeps running he may go into a more serious state called heat stroke and lose consciousness.

Carter's physicians, Dr. William Lukash, stopped the president after the third mile of a 6.2 mile race in Thurmont, Md.

Lukash said Carter was sweating excessively and had become wobbly. But after being covered with wet towels, and after a dose of intravenous fluids to replace the water he lost in sweat, Carter recovered and was pronounced in good health.

The president said later he'd been trying to shave four minutes off his best training time for the event — 50 minutes.

"The first thing he did wrong was trying to run what we call a personal best in a warm climate. Warm weather conditions demand you exercise at a lower intensity," said Dr. David Costill, a biologist and past president of the American College of Sports Medicine.

It was 65 degrees on the day of the race, but that's still a little warm for distance running, Costill said. The big races like the Boston and New York marathons are held in the spring or fall to avoid the hot summer weather.

Costill, who, like the president, runs about 50 miles a week, said Carter also may have erred in trying to shave so much time at once.

In a 6.2 mile race, he was trying to cut an average of about 40 seconds off each mile. One recent study of four novice runners who suffered heat stroke noted that all four had tried to increase their pace by about 60 seconds per mile just before the attack.

The experts agreed that if Lukash had not stopped Carter, the president would have been in danger of going into heat stroke.

Miamians Reject Property Tax Cut

MIAMI (AP) — The residents of Dade County, Fla., have voted down a chance to wipe out virtually all their county property taxes, but a leader of the tax revolt movement says the fight to put a lid on government spending isn't over.

"I think our next move would be something like a limit on budgets or a limit on appropriations," said Al Hanson, a key supporter of the referendum defeated in a special election Tuesday.

The final count, with all voting precincts reporting, showed 165,140 votes against the tax cut and 89,200 in favor of it. About 37 percent of the county's 715,000 registered voters turned out, fewer than expected after months of emotional campaign rhetoric.

The referendum would have cut an average homeowner's bill for county-wide services from $300 to 16 cents.

Tax rebel Harry L. Wilson, whose Dade Tax Revolt Committee pushed for passage, saw victory in defeat.

"With about 40 percent of the people voting for what they were told was a tax wipeout, we have a strong protest against runaway ... taxation," he said in a statement.

Flawed by botched wording that boosted the proposed tax cut from 50 percent to 99.5 percent, Wilson's referendum had united the Miami area's civic and business community in opposition.

The one-sided defeat suggested that even hard-pressed taxpayers weren't willing to risk what officials called catastrophic breakdowns in life-and-death services.

Based on the total of taxes billed to an average homeowner, Wilson's proposal would have meant a savings of 25 percent to 43 percent, since many taxes for city functions, bond payment, libraries and flood control would have remained intact.

But County Manager Merrett Stierheim had warned of cuts in government that would jolt lifestyles from the austere retirement centers of Miami Beach to the lavish Spanish villas of Coral Gables.

He said the $200 million lost through the referendum would have eliminated most of the "real operating budget" for the services that touch people daily.

Hundreds of miles of streets would go unlit, Stierheim said, most of the county's bus routes would be abandoned, medical care for the poor slashed and up to 9,000 of the 23,000 county employees fired. One fifth of county policemen and a third of its firefighters would have been lost, Stierheim had predicted.

But even though the tax slash was defeated, Stierheim said it carried a message for government.

"I think we have a job to do — be austere and cut back," he said. "It doesn't mean we don't have problems. It's been a painful election. There's a message for all of us."

Already, Stierheim has outlined a county budget that would reduce property taxes 6 1/2 percent.

Volkswagen Rabbit Takes Top Fuel Economy Rating

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Volkswagen Rabbit diesel at 42 miles per gallon took the top spot again this year in the government's annual fuel economy rating of new cars.

The No. 1 ranking went to a Rabbit with a manual five-speed transmission. The same car with a manual four-speed transmission was second at 40 mpg, while a Dodge Colt and a Plymouth Champ, both with manual four-speed transmissions, tied for third at 37 mpg.

For the first time, a small station wagon — a VW Dasher diesel at 36 mpg — was among the 10 most fuel-efficient cars in the ratings released this week by the Environmental Protection Agency.

Last year, in EPA's rating of 79 model cars, Volkswagen Rabbit diesels also took the top two spots at 41 and 40 mpg, and another VW product, a Dasher diesel at 36 mpg, came in third. This year the Dasher diesel fell to fourth, displaced by the two Chrysler products.

The worst showing in this year's ratings was by a pair of Rolls Royces at 10 mpg. In addition, a variety of domestic cars weighed in near the bottom. A Chevrolet and a GMC pickup cab chassis also got only 10 mpg.

The mpg ratings are based on tests designed to measure average fuel economy — a combination of both city and highway driving. The kind of mileage any individual driver will get depends on traffic, driving habits and a variety of other factors.

The above figures are for all states except California. A separate listing for that state, which has tougher air pollution laws, showed the top '80 model was a Dodge Colt at 31 mpg.

While not all cars have yet been tested, the agency said more than half have. The EPA will release a final list early next year that will be available free to consumers in booklet form.

The ratings also include estimates of what the driver will have to pay for gasoline to operate the car for a year. Those figures are more costly this year because the agency based them on a price of 90 cents per gallon of gas, compared to 70 cents last year.

Thus an AMC Pacer with a manual four-speed transmission which got 17 mpg on both the new and old lists was estimated to cost the motorist $794 in fuel bills this year, compared to $617 last year.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Having discovered a new way to earn high interest, small savers are investing in money market funds at a "phenomenal" pace and thereby creating a severe threat to savings institutions, says the U.S. Comptroller of the Currency.

Since the beginning of this year, money market funds have grown from $11 billion to $30 billion and may reach $60 billion by the end of 1979, John Heimann said.

These funds allow savers to deposit as little as $1,000 and receive interest currently hovering at about 10 percent, nearly double the rate allowed for pass-book savings accounts. Money market funds are different from money market certificates offered by savings institutions. Those certificates require minimum deposits of $10,000.

The growing competition with conventional savings institutions is bound to get even tougher because of a recent decision by the Securities and Exchange Commission to allow more advertising of these funds, Heimann told the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks.

Until now, investor knowledge and understanding of money market funds has been extremely limited," Heimann said. "Advertising is certain to increase understanding."

Furthermore, the money market certificate, by increasing depositor interest sensitivity, has set the stage for depositor acceptance of money market funds as an alternative to traditional deposit accounts," he said.

The savings industry is being pummeled by a series of economic events that threaten its survival, many economists agree.

Mutual savings banks, for example, have experienced a $2.4 billion outflow of funds from April through July, said Saul B. Klamon, president of the mutual savings bank association.

Heimann said the industry must take rapid steps to adjust to the greater competition for depositors and the skyrocketing inflation that increases short-term interest rates.

He repeated Carter administration calls for phase-out of Regulation Q, which imposes a ceiling on the interest rates savings institutions can offer pass-book savers.

Many savings bank officials favor Regulation Q because it lets thrift institutions pay savers one quarter of one percent more than competing commercial banks.

However, Heimann said that while Regulation Q can afford protection in the short-run, "it is a strategy which virtually guarantees the erosion of thrift institutions" in the long run.

He said thrift institutions will have to become one-stop, full-service banks, a concept gaining growing acceptance in the savings industry.

Many money market funds not only offer higher interest for small deposits, but also provide checking services and advice on other investment opportunities.

Bakhtiar Campaigns To Replace Khomeini

LONDON (AP) — Former Iranian Premier Shapour Bakhtiar campaigned in London as an alternative leader to the present government of Prime Minister Mehdi Bazargan and his backer, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

Bakhtiar told several thousand Iranians this week that he needs their support. But he said it is not yet time to form a government in exile. He predicted the Bazargan government will not last beyond January.

Bakhtiar was the last premier under Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi, who fled the country in January when forced loyal to Khomeini seized power. Bakhtiar resigned in February and went abroad. He has been sentenced to death in absentia by current Iranian authorities.

HY GARDNER HAS THE ANSWER:

Glad You Asked That!

Some columns ago we noted that a full-length documentary on Anwar Sadat's life will soon be filmed. And we suggested that the ideal actor to play the role of the Egyptian president would be the Egyptian-born and educated international star, Omar Sharif. Perhaps such a meeting of minds and men will take place, coincidentally, in late November.

Sharif, with Bob Hope and Barbra Streisand, will reportedly appear at the foot of the pyramids for a tentative celebration to mark the second anniversary of Sadat's historic trip to Jerusalem. The Egyptian president has hired French film director Roger Vadim to produce this Nov. 19 "peace spectacular" for 3,000 guests.

Vadim, who spent time in Egypt as the son of a diplomat, would, very likely, be the pro also tapped to produce the film.

Incidentally, Sharif and Miss Streisand might enjoy their reunion. They had a hot and cold running romance when he starred with her in the film version of "Funny Girl" in 1968, and again in 1975 in the sequel, "Funny Lady," which some critics referred to as "Funny Girl II."

Richard Valeriani, the NBC News diplomatic correspondent, has a new book published by Houghton Mifflin ("Travels with Henry"), humanizing former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger. An excerpt of a conversation between the two men, flying home from a quick tour of the Middle East in '73, reflects the informal tone the talks sometimes took:

Reporter: Have we been to Damascus on this trip?
 Kissinger: Sure. Damascus is the place where the foreign minister held my hand.

Reporter: We were beginning to wonder about you.
 Kissinger: I was beginning to wonder about myself. Once, Brezhnev kissed me on the mouth and now the foreign minister holds my hand.

Reporter: If this is on background, do we write that: "A high U.S. official said Brezhnev once kissed him on the mouth?"

TODAY'S EDITORIAL:

'Kindness' Is Killing Us

IF YOU'VE ever had to wrestle with a bottle, you can imagine how difficult it is to be for older people whose fingers are as nimble or as strong as they used to be.

In what might be called a bitter turn for the worse, a little known act of Congress intended to prevent child poisonings may be killing older Americans.

The law—the Poison Prevention Packaging Act—mandates that most drugs and prescription medicines should be packaged in containers with "child proof" safety caps.

Ironically, what prevents a life-threatening situation for a child can be a direct threat to the life of an elderly person.

Physicians in an article in The Journal of the American Medical Association.

THE REASON is simple. Many elderly patients hampered by a variety of crippling diseases and infirmities find it difficult to open the containers. Thus, they don't take needed medication.

One pharmacist described the situation as "bordering on comical." One patient complained that "stomping on his bottle" was necessary.

Which is perhaps the saddest and least discussed aspect of the entire controversy over regulation—the fact that in their all-consuming zeal to be everyone's Aunt Nancy, the bureaucrats instead may be killing us with their kindness.

The results: malaria is again on the rampage around the world and our own West this summer experienced the worst grasshopper plague since the Depression.

As Prof. Murray L. Weidenbaum suggests in his new book, The Future of Business Regulation, maybe what we need most is some way of regulating the regulators.

It is a challenger's glove thrown without provocation into the face of Soviet Russia as the SALT II debates resume. It reminds Taiwan of how we chase the Mainland Reds for allies.

MONDALE'S RECITATION gives unintelligible signals to an expansionist Vietnam, a threatening North Korea and a threatened South Korea.

Altogether, the Vice President said such a mouthful of other men's words that we have talked up a storm of interventionism which we have not the strength or spirit to mount and ride.

But the recent data on Red China as a trading partner is not encouraging. The per capita income ($262) and the Gross National Product ($249 billion) show this country still in the poverty bloc.

Petroleum and other minerals may be plentiful, but we just don't know. What we do know is recorded in Hammond's Almanac (1979): "China's chief 20-year defense goal is to achieve parity with the U.S. and the Soviet Union."

This would indicate that the main thrust of Peking is not different from Moscow's thrust—to become a nuclear world power with the help of the U.S.

Mr. Trombly thought his wife would receive a surviving spouse's benefit if he should die, but when he passed away unexpectedly at 54 after 18 years on the job, his widow got exactly nothing.

The plan claims it is not at fault for providing incomplete information because the plan summary contained a disclaimer clause. This clause, found in virtually all such booklets, says in effect that only the plan's formal documents are completely reliable.

ITEM: "I HAVE been a successful electrical engineer in research and development for 20 years, working for several different engineering companies, but today have not one single nickel's worth of pension coming to me and my family outside of Social Security."

This predicament is typically faced by engineers who change jobs on average every seven years. They and many other workers seldom stay long enough with one firm to "vest" or earn a right to a pension.

But since technically they are "active plan participants," they are not permitted by law to set up their own Individual Retirement Accounts.

The Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers in Washington, D.C. is one group which is urging Congress to enable employees who fall through the cracks in the existing pension system to provide for themselves.

This, the employees could achieve through a LERA (Limited Employees Retirement Account). Several LERA bills have been introduced in Congress, but to date none has been enacted.

ITEM: LLOYD MASON never worried about his firm's pension plan, for it was reputed to be one of the best in the U.S. When, five years before his retirement, the firm announced it was improving benefits, Mason took a close look at the plan.

He was shocked to learn that his lower-paid colleagues would receive little of the increase; most would go to the firm's higher-paid employees.

The reason: present law permits plans to "integrate" or subtract Social Security benefits from the amount of private benefits workers have earned.

He sent out hundreds of anonymous letters of protest and helped push the company into modifying its plan somewhat. Now retired, he has formed the Florida-based "Committee to End Unfair Pension Practices" to educate the public about how "integration" formulas work.

SMALL GRASSROOTS PENSION reform organizations are starting to spring up throughout the country.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

The Glib Tongues

TED KENNEDY'S breezy and informal entry into the 1980 Presidential race shows how desperate a great many Americans are for a leader who promises a painless cure for what ails them.

Kennedy, who articulates a philosophy that has brought the country to the brink of economic collapse and social revolution, says with a grin that his "deep concerns about the direction of the nation" are pushing him toward challenging President Carter.

Polls indicate that, if the election were today, Kennedy would steamroll Carter 2-to-1. This is not at all surprising. A glib tongue nowadays is the mark of "leadership."

Look at the people who inspire large followings: Kennedy, Andy Young, California Gov. Jerry Brown, Ronald Reagan, John Connally, the Rev. Jesse Jackson.

The common denominator is that each is extremely articulate and self-confident, thus projecting an image that he has a workable answer to every problem.

AFTER 16 YEARS of Lyndon Johnson, Richard Nixon, Gerald Ford and Jimmy Carter, none of whom would win an oratorical contest, many voters appear ready to equate public speaking ability with Presidential ability.

But whereas a Connally or a Reagan feels compelled to honestly point out the magnitude of our domestic and foreign policy shortcomings, a Kennedy can get away with saying that the cure is more of what caused the malady in the first place.

To the masses who want to believe in a free lunch, that there's plenty of money to do everything they want done for them, the Kennedy line is easy to swallow.

He thus attracts a fanatical following that almost certainly will rupture the centrist fabric that has been holding together two very radically different philosophies of government, society and economics.

A JIMMY CARTER can bad-mouth the free enterprise system and feed on the belief that more government is the solution rather than the problem.

But a Ted Kennedy can articulate that philosophy in such a way as to bring about a cultural revolution.

It is not stretching a point at all to say that Kennedy's active quest for the Presidency will bring into sharper focus the deep divisions that exist between the American right and left.

China plans to reward one-child families and fine those with three or more children. Even if it doesn't solve the over-population problem, it'll make virtue its own reward.

Headline: "East German Families Escape To West In Hot Air Balloon."

The Office Cliche says she knew all along that that stuff out of Washington could be put to good use.

Dallas school Supt. Linus Wright, who ran the business side of the school system here before moving to Houston in the early 1970s, is firing top administrators right and left amid an investigation he ordered after being hired in Dallas this year.

To keep the public's confidence, Wright also has undertaken a heavy speaking schedule.

SHERRY BEADLE, who was Miss Lubbock of 1964, has become such a renowned painter of horses that she will have a show in the Cannon Office Building in Washington, D.C., Nov. 7-9.

Now a resident of Amarillo, and still Sherry Beadle, she will take 16 to 20 portraits to the show, sponsored by the Capitol Hill Equestrian Society.

One of the paintings will be of the Texas Tech Red Raider with Charcoal Cody, which she says was pastured on her family's New Mexico ranch when she was growing up.

MISS BEADLE always has loved horses but is allergic to them ("I begin coughing and wheezing when I'm around them") and took up painting them as a way to surround herself with horses without suffering the consequences.

When she represented Lubbock in the Miss Texas contest, her paintings were her talent entry. Every article written about her over the years, she says, has mentioned her "Miss Lubbock" background.

When she becomes an internationally famous artist, Lubbock will be known for producing more than mere governors and singing idols, by golly!

Holmes Alexander:

Fritz Has Words Put In Mouth

WASHINGTON—Walter (Fritz) Mondale has proved again that Vice Presidents should be rarely seen and never heard.

This fifth-wheel appendage to U.S. government has consistently made good men, like John Adams, and Harry Truman, into drones until they could rise above it, and given rascals, like Aaron Burr and Agnew, their chance to make the national rogues' gallery to the hurt of our reputation before the world.

Mondale, handsome and hamless, was chosen to play the ventriloquist's dummy for the Carter China policy—a Nixonite wait. Nothing uttered by Mondale in his Peking University address belongs to him by knowledge of history or political conviction.

HE WAS AN American official, qualified to do nothing more than dedicate Chinese tea rooms, but entrusted on this occasion to quack out words that will be hard to digest when led back to the American people.

Mondale in a single sentence raised totally unnecessary tensions with friends and foe alike—with Taiwan, Russia, Vietnam and the two Koreas.

He declared that anti-China attitudes and moves by "any nation (would) run counter to American interests." This is the sort of statement that waves the Big Stick which we are tragically lacking.

It is a challenger's glove thrown without provocation into the face of Soviet Russia as the SALT II debates resume. It reminds Taiwan of how we chase the Mainland Reds for allies.

MONDALE'S RECITATION gives unintelligible signals to an expansionist Vietnam, a threatening North Korea and a threatened South Korea.

Altogether, the Vice President said such a mouthful of other men's words that we have talked up a storm of interventionism which we have not the strength or spirit to mount and ride.

Atop this jingo rhetoric, Fritz Mondale, the only U.S. government official whose power and responsibility were literally zero, laid Kris Kringle visions of sugar plums and promises of Sino-American trade.

But the recent data on Red China as a trading partner is not encouraging. The per capita income ($262) and the Gross National Product ($249 billion) show this country still in the poverty bloc. The people are still 75 percent peasant farmers.

Petroleum and other minerals may be plentiful, but we just don't know. What we do know is recorded in Hammond's Almanac (1979): "China's chief 20-year defense goal is to achieve parity with the U.S. and the Soviet Union."

This would indicate that the main thrust of Peking is not different from Moscow's thrust—to become a nuclear world power with the help of the U.S.

Mondale in offering American engineers and American loans to the extent of $2 billion, did not indicate that the U.S. would expect peaceful development of the Chinese economy.

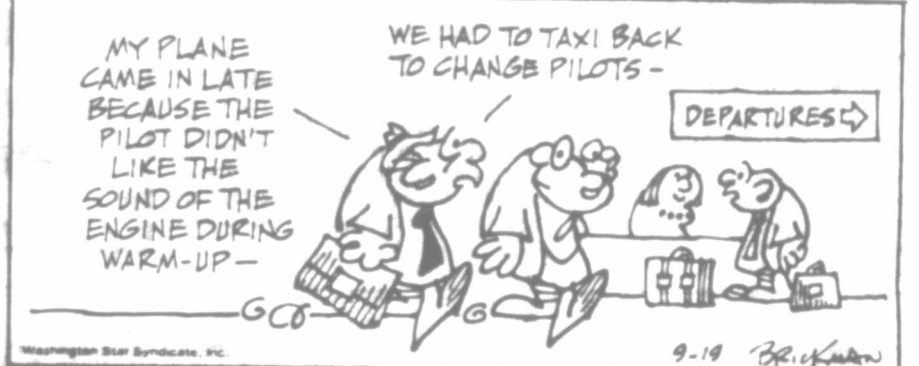

There is no reason to doubt that the Chinese Reds will be seeking sensitive weapons-materials, as their fellow-communists and punitive foes in Russia have done by stealth and chicanery.

If the Vice President deserves some good marks for his Peking speech, it is that he refrained from the hypocrisy of finding any "human rights" he could praise in the People's Republic.

The regard for the American-style freedom and justice stands in China about as high as in Russia. At least Mondale gave that subject the silent treatment.

Sylvia Porter: Pension May Not Pay All You're Banking On

WASHINGTON—Item: Mrs. Bernice Trombly of Clearwater, Fla. is a widow whose husband's great error was in believing what the booklet his firm gave him said about his pension plan.

"MOTHER SAYS I CAN COME OUT AND PLAY"

James J. Kilpatrick:

Criminal Code Faces Hard Road

WASHINGTON—It is a disheartening experience more often than not, to watch the wheels of Capitol Hill go round and round.

The machinery groans and clanks and clatters, but rarely grinds out legislation of real merit; and even when legislation is urgently needed, the congressional factory sometimes seems incapable of producing anything at all.

That is the case right now with efforts to agree upon recodification of the Federal Criminal Code. All that is agreed upon is that recodification is needed.

For 10 years—at least 10 years!—good men in both parties have labored at the task. In the 94th Congress members struggled vainly over the bill known as S.1.

THE 95th we had the son of S.1, a 682-page bill identified as S.1437. The measure actually passed the Senate 72-15 in January of 1978, and then collapsed in the House.

Now the effort is being revived, and a truly worthwhile effort it is. The Criminal Code has not been overhauled since the First Congress began enacting criminal laws nearly 200 years ago.

It is today a mishmash of provisions that are conflicting, confusing and inconsistent. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy terms the code quite simply "a jumble," and one does not have to agree with the senior senator from Massachusetts on other issues to remark that he is absolutely right on this one.

Offenders found guilty of substantially identical crimes receive widely disparate punishments. More than 70 different statutes deal with theft and fraud.

Provisions dealing with forgery and counterfeiting conflict with one another. Fifty statutes cope ineffectually with perjury and false statements.

IN TITLE 18, approximately 80 terms are used to describe the mental state necessary to convict an accused.

The only statute now readily available for combating election fraud was enacted in 1870.

The case for recodification, in brief, is overwhelmingly evident. The cause has enlisted such conservative Republicans as former Sen. Roman Hruska of Nebraska and Sen. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina.

It has attracted such liberal Democrats as Kennedy in the Senate and Father Robert Drinan in the House.

SOME OF US who follow the law had hoped that things would be better this time around. After all, not more than 40 or 50 disputed provisions had sunk S. 1437 a year ago.

Surely, it was supposed, these could be compromised—or left untouched in existing law—and all the other agreed-upon aspects could be passed. Alas, it apparently is not to be.

On the very day after Sen. Kennedy's speech to the Senate, Asst. Atty. Gen. Philip B. Heymann came before a subcommittee of House Judiciary.

He took a long, measured look at the subcommittee's draft bill and dumped all over it. The draft, he said, would "seriously undercut" the government's ability to fight white collar crime and organized crime.

Heymann provided specific examples. By forbidding "consensual monitoring" (recording conversations with the consent of one party but not both parties), the draft bill would abolish an investigator's tool that was used on 8,600 occasions last year.

By shortening a certain statute of limitations from five years to two years; the draft would make it "difficult if not impossible" to investigate many allegations in the area of white collar crime.

BY REWRITING the old Hobbs Act, the subcommittee would destroy the principal weapons available to respond to public corruption. The witness's statement ran on for 45 pages, and he seemed barely to be getting warmed up.

This devastating attack upon the House draft is bound to arouse doubts and fears among many members who last year were generally agreeable to recodification.

Sen. Kennedy's version will have to start from square one.

It's a pity, for the need is great and agreement might yet be reached on a modest bill aimed at the half a loaf that is better than none.

Fall Shari's Favorite Time For Hiking

By SHARI LEWIS

I've always liked hiking best of all in the fall. It's cooler, the parks aren't so crowded and a fall hike seems to make summer stick around a bit longer.

Hiking (whether you're doing it in the city or the country) is extra fun with a bunch of other kids. Here's how my scout troop and I found that we were most likely to have a trouble-free day:

Map Check: It saves arguments on the road if you plan where you're going ahead of time, and do it with a map. And this will also guarantee that you won't miss any of the good stuff along the way. You can also plan where you'll stop to rest. Incidentally, I've found that lots of little rests are better than a few long ones.

Weather Check: The weatherman isn't always right, but who else can we turn to? Bring layers of clothing (so that you can take something off if you're hot, and pile it on if the weatherman misled you).

Pack It: Try to carry nothing in your hands. Wear a jacket with big pockets, stuff your drinks into a knapsack, tie a sweater around your waist.

Think About "What If?": What if someone gets separated from the rest of the group? (Who will you call? How will you signal? Where will you meet? Carry a couple of coins for phone calls and bus fare.) "What if someone gets hurt?" (Hike in single file or in twos, and the last person in the group should carry the first-aid kit.)

Have a good time! I wish I were going with you!

Yesterday's Brain Twister: What is a sure way to keep milk from getting sour?

Answer: Leave it in the cow! Today's Brain Twister: If there are 10 fingers on two hands, how many fingers will there be on 10 hands? (Look for the answer in tomorrow's Kids-Only Club column.)

(Do you have something you like to do to give a helping hand to others — people or animals, friends or strangers, youngsters or senior citizens? Share your "helping hand" idea with me, and I'll send a copy of my book, "The Kids-Only Club Book," as a prize for the helping hand idea submitted that we print. Just write to Kids-Only Club, care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1111, Los Angeles, Calif. 90053.)

Increase In Grasshopper Infestation Predicted

PIERRE, S.D. (AP) — South Dakota's grasshopper problem — described this year by some as the worst since the 1930s — could be far worse next year, state officials have been told.

About 690,000 acres of rangeland this year had eight or more hoppers per square yard, the number required for an economic infestation declaration.

But the U.S. Department of Agriculture reports the state could expect that infestation to increase to 1,768,610 acres next summer.

"What's even more disturbing is that maps indicate that there is an equal number of acres with three to seven grasshoppers per square yard," said Mike McNamera of the state Agriculture Department.

"So with a dry spring, we could have another 1.8 million acres infested," he said. "And that represents a very severe potential infestation."

Those figures are only for the western part of the state, McNamera said, adding "... we have no idea what the problem is going to be east of the (Missouri) river."

McNamera said the federal officials made their report after touring the western part of the state, counting the number of adult hoppers in various areas and calculating the number of eggs which might hatch next year.

"Nature is going to make the difference," said McNamera. "If we get a cool, damp spring after the hatch begins, we'll be in better shape. But the chance of our having ideal weather conditions throughout the state at the ideal time is not very likely."

PUC Backing Southwestern Bell Request

AUSTIN (AP) — For the first time since the state began regulating telephone rates in 1976, Texas Public Utility Commission staffers have recommended giving Southwestern Bell a big rate increase as Ma Bell wants.

Correction of a computation error caused the staff to change its recommendation in the Bell case from $136.4 million to $145.2 million in higher rates — the same as Bell requested.

The three-member commission usually follows staff recommendations in rate cases.

One result of the changed recommendation could be higher residential telephone bills than the staff previously suggested. A week ago, staff economist Julie Parsons proposed across-the-board increases within a range of 40 cents to $1.10 a month.

"She (Miss Parsons) is taking a look at everything else before she says the additional money has got to come out of local exchange (basic monthly telephone rates)," said PUC general counsel John Bell.

But if other Bell services can absorb no further increases, the extra money will have to come from basic monthly charges, he said.

"I hope it won't be over $1.10," John Bell said.

The staff said Bell actually was entitled to revenue increases totaling $156.4 million over a 12-month period. But state law says a utility can get no more than it has requested, and Bell's request was for $145.2 million.

Bell, in turn, says it really needs $242.9 million but trimmed its request to stay within President Carter's 7 percent guideline for price increases.

"If this were a normal rate case, they (Bell) would have asked $243 million and we would have come in at $156 million and we would have fought it out," said

John Bell.

He said the change in the staff recommendation has at least the potential of shortening the hearing, which began its third week Tuesday and could go as long as four weeks.

"It seems rather moot to continue to fight, as far as the staff is concerned, on the revenue requests," Bell said. But, he added, if the change could provoke longer cross-examination of PUC staffers by opponents of the increase.

Adams Interested In Heading Texas DPS

AUSTIN (AP) — James B. Adams, former No. 2 man in the FBI, says he would be interested in taking command of the Texas Department of Public Safety if the conditions are right.

Col. Wilson Speir announced Tuesday he will retire as director of the DPS on Dec. 31, and Adams' name immediately arose as a possible successor in the $47,500-a-year post.

Adams, 52, is executive director of Gov. Bill Clements' Criminal Justice Division, and there was speculation here that Clements would push hard to get Adams the DPS job.

The director is chosen by the Texas Public Safety Commission, and Clements will appoint one of the three commissioners when chairman Robert Shelton's term expires Dec. 31. Some reports mentioned Dallas electronics millionaire H. Ross Perot as a possibility.

Asked whether anyone in authority had discussed the DPS director's job with him, Adams said in a telephone interview, "I don't think it would be appropriate for me to make any comments in that regard."

"I am aware of the rumors. I am honored that people would think I would make a good replacement (for Speir). Anybody would be proud to work with the men and women of the DPS," Adams said.

As for the director's job, he said, "I would be interested in it. It would be a challenge."

Adams said he misses day-to-day responsibility for law enforcement operations.

"Law enforcement has been my career. The operational end is more challenging than the administrative end. ... I miss it. That was the hard thing in leaving the FBI, where I was in charge of all investigative operations. I miss contact with cases, with people working the streets," he said.

In his $42,000-a-year post with the criminal justice division, Adams parcels federal law enforcement grants to Texas cities, counties and state agencies.

Adams said he would not apply for the DPS job, adding, "The last job I applied for was FBI agent" in 1951.

Clements wooed Adams to the Criminal Justice Division, he said, with the argument, "You're a Texan. Texas has been good to you."

"If people think I can serve elsewhere and do the job they want done and do it in the manner I am accustomed to, non-political and down the middle, I would be interested," Adams said of the DPS post.

Services Pending For Fighter Pilot

ABILENE (AP) — Funeral services were pending Tuesday for George Lee "Pappy" Paxton Jr., one of Gen. Claire Chennault's Flying Tigers in World War II.

Paxton, who died Monday at age 76, logged more than 6100 hours of flying time during a lengthy career as a pilot.

He was one of about 90 pilots in Chennault's American Volunteer Group in 1941 who fought in China.

The group's record included 297 Japanese planes confirmed as shot down in a six-month span, but Paxton said that many more were downed and not confirmed.

Baptist Official Cites Voting Irregularities

DALLAS (AP) — The registration secretary of the Southern Baptist Convention has revealed voting irregularities in the elections of top Baptist executives.

Lee Porter said Tuesday that an investigation has revealed 284 churches were caught "with blood on their hands" and that the five top offenders were from Texas.

Porter said while there were no "mass irregularities," 1,000 messengers, or delegates, registered and voted without being elected by their churches. He said 69 children were illegally elected, 31 denomination workers and five foreign missionaries illegally voted, 107 registered more than once and people voted for others not attending the meeting.

Although churches are allowed to elect only 10 messengers each, Porter said, 47 churches registered more than 10. The top five were Texas churches that registered 22, 20, 16, 14 and 13 messengers. He declined to reveal the names of the churches.

Porter said 200 churches with congregations of 150 to 1,000 registered from six to 10 messengers, far more than churches of that size are allowed.

At the convention in Houston in June, Baptists elected Memphis pastor Adrian Rogers president of the 13 million-member denomination. He drew 51.3 percent of the vote on the first ballot.

Rogers was the selection of an ultra-conservative coalition led by Dr. Paige Patterson of the First Baptist Church of Dallas and Houston attorney Paul Pressler.

Rogers was still the top vote getter for president, Porter said, but his margin was 168 votes.

Porter said the investigation underlined a need to change bylaws and tighten registration procedures.

Minister Expects 'No Problem' Becoming Convention Delegate

SHERMAN (AP) — The Rev. Charles E. Glass says he anticipates "no problem" becoming a delegate to the United Pentecostal Church's international convention, although the Texas district voted to revoke his ministerial credentials.

Glass, who has been pastor of the First United Pentecostal Church since 1958, was notified by telephone in August of the Texas board of presbyters' decision.

But he contends he never received written notification of the action from Texas district Supt. E.L. Holley. And Glass says he and his wife will attend the convention Monday in Salt Lake City, Utah.

"I am still a minister of the United Pentecostal Church," Glass said.

Glass said Holley acted "with power, but no authority," and said the Texas

Singer Robbed Before Concert

PRINCETON, Ind. (AP) — Country music singer Tammy Wynette was robbed of $20,000 in cash and $6,000 in jewelry before a concert appearance, state police said.

The money, proceeds from a Monday night concert in Chicago, and the jewelry were taken from Miss Wynette's motel room here while she and members of her family were at dinner, authorities said.

There were no signs of forced entry, officials said Tuesday, although the motel room doors automatically lock upon closing. Miss Wynette was here for a scholarship benefit concert at nearby Oakland City College.

Her husband, songwriter George Richey, told authorities he normally carries the money with him, but inadvertently left it in the room Tuesday.

(Miss Wynette is scheduled to perform at 5 and 8 p.m. Sept. 29 at Lubbock's Panhandle South Plains Fair.)

district and general headquarters have not discussed his removal as a minister.

He said he has not received written notification because the Texas district "realized they were in error and that if they pursued this, I'd certainly have a case."

Glass' wife, Mary Jo, said she expects to be received "very, very warmly." She said the couple has many friends in the church hierarchy, including general superintendent Nathaniel Ursham, international head of the church.

Glass said it would be easier not to fight his disfellowship and the charges against him, "but I have a lot of ministers in the United Pentecostal Church that feel this is a test case. We can survive easily, because we have a strong church.

"But there are some ministers that could not survive, and because of my loyalty to them, I'd be willing to, at their prompting, take legal action."

In January, two fellow ministers filed formal charges with the district saying Glass' conduct was unbecoming a minister.

Former members of Glass' congregation contended he has divided families, become overly concerned with demons and devils, strayed from Pentecostal teachings and harassed former church members.

In March, presbyters censured Glass for conduct unbecoming a minister, retaining Glass as a clergyman with several undisclosed stipulations.

Senators Clear Connally Of Influencing Charters

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate committee has found "no evidence" indicating John Connally used his influence as treasury secretary to obtain national bank charters for Texas associates, says a committee spokesman.

"We've completed all the reviews of the files: all our interviews," Kenneth McLean said Tuesday. "The staff has come up with no evidence showing that Connally attempted to intervene."

The Dallas Morning News had reported in a copyright story that the Senate Banking Committee was checking an "unusual pattern" of national bank charters granted to Connally's friends and associates during his tenure in the Nixon administration.

Connally, now a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, was treasury secretary from 1971 to 1972.

When the former Texas governor was in Dallas on Monday he dismissed an article that singled out the charter for that city's Love Field National Bank. Connally called the article a "vicious smear piece" that was "political from end to end."

McLean said the committee's study was not an investigation of Connally but a broader look at procedures for granting national bank charters.

Today's LAW: ANYBODY FOR A WALK?

Soviet Physics Teacher Recalls 2500-Mile Trip To Freedom

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (UPI) — Alexander was no ballet star or sought-after scientist, but a physics teacher who wanted out of the Soviet Union with a yearning so deep he undertook a 2,500-mile journey to freedom.

He walked, rowed and hitchhiked his way across the Soviet Union, Finland, Norway and Sweden for 26 days — braving risky border crossings and living off berries and wild mushrooms. He reached the U.S. embassy in Stockholm last week and formally asked for political asylum.

Still wearing the dark blue work clothes and shoes he donned in Moscow, Alexander asked outside the embassy: "Do you think they will let me in dressed like this?"

"Of course," he answered himself. "This is a free country."

Alexander, 26, asking that his last name be withheld to protect his elderly mother in Moscow, said he chose to leave his native land because he was dissatisfied with a Soviet political system that prevented him from getting a job in his chosen profession because he refused to be a member of a Communist Party youth group.

He told UPI, "I am not a radical, all I am interested in is my own freedom and my right to choose to do what I want."

Alexander began the 2,500-mile odyssey Aug. 19 in Moscow, boarding a train for a 33-hour rail journey to the northern Soviet city of Murmansk. Thumbing rides, he reached Verkhnetulomsky, where he assembled a rubber raft and embarked on a 48-hour trip down the Tuloma River.

He stopped at night to eat berries and mushrooms and sleep under a plastic sheet he carried in his backpack.

At the end of his river journey, he camped in the woods near the frontier, watching the movement of Soviet guards and looking for the best place to attempt a crossing.

"I finally decided to try to cross at a point where the barbed wire and wood fence crossed a tiny stream," he said. "There was a small bridge on the Soviet side and I knew I could use this in my escape."

He passed unnoticed into Finland.

"While I was in Finland I was careful not to meet anyone, because I knew that Finland has an agreement with the Soviet Union to return Russians who go there without permission," he said.

So Alexander walked the next 250 miles through the woods and marshes of northern Finland.

The map he had ended at the Soviet border, so he found his way across Finland with just a compass, using the names of cities he had memorized as landmarks.

He strayed once into Norway, but found his way back into Sweden.

White South Africans Escape Restrictions

MASERU, Lesotho (AP) — Every weekend, thousands of white South Africans pour into neighboring black-ruled nations to watch pornographic movies, play slot machines and drink on Sundays. They call it fun and the locals here call them "dirty weekend brigades."

Lesotho, an independent black nation the size of the state of Maryland and completely surrounded by white-ruled South Africa, is a kind of haven for South Africans looking for entertainment of the type they can't get back home. The travelers also invade Botswana and Swaziland to escape the puritanical laws in their nation.

Last weekend, about 1,500 persons, most of them from South Africa, paid up to $24 to watch 12 young women, wearing only smiles, compete in the "Miss Body Beautiful" contest here. It was treated as a gala affair.

South Africa, whose white settlers came from a stern, Calvinist heritage in Europe, has strict laws segregating races, prohibiting gambling, censoring films and books and limiting the hours for sales of alcohol. On Sundays, dancing and public entertainment are also prohibited.

The restrictions cause some to cross the borders, earning them the title of the "dirty weekend brigades."

"People come down here for something different," said Willem Nolte, who sells cars when he isn't promoting the "Miss Body Beautiful" contest with partner Soily Chesno, another South African.

"Not all South Africans are puritans. They stay in line back home because that's what everybody else is doing. Then they break out and come to places such as Lesotho, before going back to get into line again," Nolte said.

The modern Kingsway Cinema, the only movie theater in the capital, has a seven-day-a-week schedule of half-a-dozen movies running from morning until after midnight.

"Deep Throat," has been running almost a year along with other pornographic offerings, mostly attended by white South Africans.

Sandwiched between the skin flicks are kiddie matinees and general audience films, attended mostly by the local residents.

The pornographic offerings come directly from New York and are uncensored, but general features are cut.

"That's because we get them from South African distributors," explained the theater manager, Gladys Sello. "The government censors there cut out the sexy parts."

On Friday night, at the opening of a new pornographic film from the United States, the audience was white, and mostly couples, giggling as they walked up the aisles.

Over at the Holiday Inn, where the lobby is wall-to-wall slot machines, white South Africans swarmed through the lobby and into a theater where the body beautiful contest was staged.

The men wore suits and ties while their female companions came in long gowns.

Nolte, serving as master of ceremonies, introduced 12 young women taking part in the contest. All of them were South African. Two were "colored," or mixed race. None was black. They first wore bikinis, then veils, then nothing.

The winner was 19-year-old Arnell Prinsloo, a blonde South African who told the assembled press "a person's body is nothing to be ashamed of."

"It was worth every cent," said one South African who had traveled more than 300 miles from the coastal city of Durban.

Spiders' webs are made of a liquid protein that is drawn from the spider's body and then solidifies. The spiral part of some of these webs is sticky to snare insects, while the spokes are dry, making them safe for a spider to walk upon.

Nolte and Chesno are planning something new for the weekend excursionists — "we hope to introduce topless wrestling," Nolte said.

Chrysler's Chairman May Retire

DETROIT (AP) — Chrysler Corp. Chairman John Riccardo, fearing he might be an obstacle to federal help for the troubled company he serves as chief executive, is asking for early retirement.

Riccardo also said this week he had been advised by doctors to retire after a heart problem flared up in May, and had decided "this is the appropriate time to follow the advice."

He said he would ask the directors at Thursday's board meeting to let him go immediately.

Riccardo, 55, made it clear he would recommend President Lee A. Iacocca to succeed him as chief executive. "In my judgment, Lee Iacocca is one of the foremost automobile men in the industry. That was my judgment when I brought him in, and that is my judgment now. I am absolutely confident that under his leadership the company will return to the position of eminence that it deserves," Riccardo said in his statement.

It was agreed last November when Iacocca came from Ford Motor Co., where he had been president, that he would succeed Riccardo at the end of the year as chief executive, with Riccardo staying on as chairman.

Some analysts said Monday they expected a prominent outside executive to be asked to take the chairmanship.

"There is no question that even though I have actively addressed the major problems facing Chrysler, in the minds of many I am closely associated with the past management of a troubled company," Riccardo said.

"It would be most unfair to the new management and to the employees of Chrysler if my continued presence as board chairman should in any way hinder the final passage of our request for federal loan guarantees."

He said he was now "confident that the necessary assistance will be provided" because "even though the final amount is not yet fixed, the administration has agreed it will support a loan guarantee."

Chrysler turned to the federal government after reporting a $207 million loss for the second quarter. On Saturday, it presented its revival plan to Treasury Secretary G. William Miller, who said the request for $1.2 billion in loan guarantees was too high and would have to be reworked.

The document revealed for the first time that Chrysler's loss for 1979 was expected to be $1.07 billion.

If he was retiring at 65, Riccardo would be eligible for a pension of $100,768 a year, according to data provided in the company's proxy statement this year.

Company spokesman Bill Stempien said he could not say until after the directors' meeting what pension Riccardo actually would get.

Riccardo and Iacocca three weeks ago forfeited for two years all but $1 a year of their $360,000 annual salaries as a sign of confidence in the company. The plan called for them to earn back the money if the company did well.

Riccardo, a native of Little Falls, N.Y., joined Chrysler in 1959. He became vice president for marketing in 1966, a group vice president and director in 1967, president under Lynn Townsend in 1970 and chairman and chief executive when Townsend retired in 1975.

Brown Names Homosexual To Court

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — The appointment of a man believed to be the first avowed homosexual judge in California has been announced by Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.

"I believe from what I have been told, that I am the first," Steven M. Lachs said this week in an interview a few hours after being sworn in as a Los Angeles County Superior Court judge.

Lachs, 39, a Los Angeles County Superior Court commissioner for 4 1/2 years, is a board member of the Los Angeles Gay Community Services Center.

Brown, who opposed Proposition 6, the anti-homosexual teacher ballot initiative of 1978, and has spoken out for gay rights, appointed Lachs to the $54,205-a-year job to replace Howard McClain who retired.

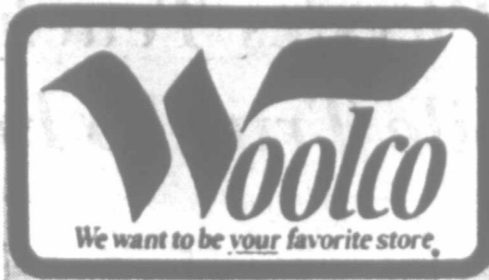

Steve Duscha, the governor's assistant press secretary, said Lachs' sexual preference had nothing to do with his appointment to the bench.

"He was chosen on the basis of his experience as a court commissioner and a lawyer and his record on both," Duscha said.

Lachs called his appointment "an important step" for gay rights.

"The idea of openly gay people being able to perform functions based on their ability, I think, is a very important step," Lachs said. "When we can say a person's sexual preference is not important in terms of their doing a job, it is important."

"There probably are millions of lesbians and gay men in the country who are performing their jobs very well and yet are in positions where they feel they cannot allow their sexual preference to be known," Lachs said.

Kidnapping Of Children Feared

MONROE, Wash. (UPI)—Doug and Ardy Whipple guard their children night and day, in constant fear that her wealthy former husband will forcibly take the three youngsters and spirit them back to an armed fortress in Mexico.

The Whipples are so certain and so worried about the potential of paid kidnapers that the children no longer go to school and the family seldom leaves home.

It could be days or months or years. But eventually, says Mrs. Whipple, people on her husband's payroll will come to steal Manuel, 12; Enrique, 10, and Cristina, 7.

Manuel and Enrique have already been through a kidnap of sorts and a counter-kidnap in the battle for possession.

When Mrs. Whipple was divorced from Manuel Sautto, a Mexican citizen and father of the children, the divorce decree granted her custody but allowed occasional visits with the father in San Miguel de Allende, Mexico.

The boys went on a six-week visit in the summer of 1975, but the father never allowed them to return. A four-year struggle ensued, and it cost the Whipples more than $20,000 to retrieve the boys.

"We borrowed every cent we could," said Mrs. Whipple. The money was spent on fees for attorneys, phone calls, plane tickets and, finally, on private investigator Jay J. Armes of El Paso.

In July, Armes engineered a meeting between the mother and children in a bungalow on the outskirts of San Miguel de Allende. The building was guarded by 15 armed men, but Armes reportedly overcame them and broke the mother and children free from the "fortress."

They rushed to Mexico City, flew to Juarez and drove over the border in an official car.

But now the Whipples believe Sautto or his friends are preparing to get the children back.

Such situations are not uncommon, said John Leonard, social-service program manager for the Washington Department of Social and Health Services. National statistics show that 25,000 children a year are taken by parents who don't have legal custody. Some of the situations "get pretty volatile," Leonard said.

"If they (the children) are taken across the state line, 99 times out of 100 the legal parent that lost them will never get them back."

Edward Lange, attorney for the Whipples, described the Sautto family as wealthy and highly influential in the town of San Miguel de Allende.

"They will eventually get the kids," said Mrs. Whipple, "because he and his family can keep going well with all the money they have."

And the children? They know why their mother pulled them from school and why they are accompanied at all times. The increasing tension is tearing at them, making them sometimes cranky, sometimes hyperactive and always on edge. They have developed emotional and some physical problems, their stepfather said.

"The anxiety, the depression, irritability, the tiredness soon comes to everybody," said Whipple, adding that if the problem is not resolved soon the family will "drop out, lose our names, identification, friends, furniture."

Campaign Begins For Re-Election

TOKYO (AP)—Campaigning began Monday for Japan's parliamentary election, called by Prime Minister Masayoshi Ohira in an effort to strengthen his ruling Liberal-Democratic Party's slim majority in the Lower House and improve his chances for re-election as party president next year.

Ohira dissolved parliament on Sept. 7. The election for all 511 seats in the Lower House is scheduled for Oct. 7.

The Liberal-Democratic Party presently holds 248 seats in the house, one more than a simple majority but not enough to control all important committees. It hopes to gain firm control by winning at least 271 seats.

The largest opposition party, the socialists, have 116 seats; the Buddhist Komeito (Clean Government), 56; social democrats, 28; communists, 19 and splinter groups and independents, 25. Nineteen seats are vacant.

Demos Ask Control Of Fuel Oil Prices

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Democrats, concerned about soaring prices of home heating oil, voted today in favor of reinstating price controls on the fuel.

The action came as congressional leaders were predicting House and Senate passage of a standby gasoline rationing compromise reached Tuesday night. And the Senate Energy Committee was poised to approve President Carter's proposal for an Energy Mobilization Board to speed action on priority energy projects.

By voice vote, the House Democratic caucus adopted a resolution asserting "it shall be Democratic policy in the House that mandatory allocation controls for (heating oil and diesel fuel) be re-established."

The resolution carries no force of law and is not binding on the 276 Democratic members of the House. But sponsors said it would send a clear message to other legislators and the White House that something must be done to curb rising fuel prices.

Prices of heating oil have climbed 80 percent since last winter, to about 60 cents a gallon. Controls on heating oil and other "middle distillate" fuels like diesel fuel and kerosene were lifted in 1976 by President Gerald R. Ford.

Rep. Peter H. Kostmayer, D-Pa., the sponsor of the House resolution, told colleagues that "the astronomical increases in prices in the past eight months alone justify the establishment of price controls."

Later, in an interview, Kostmayer said the purpose of the resolution was to pressure Carter into using authority he already has to reimpose heating oil price controls. "He can do it right now," Kostmayer said. "And I think he will."

Several months ago, the Democratic caucus went on record favoring re-imposition of price controls on crude oil, which are being lifted gradually by President Carter.

Meanwhile, the Carter administration indicated it would accept the compromise reached late Tuesday by House-Senate conferees on a mechanism to allow the president to ration gasoline during a severe petroleum shortage.

The compromise would give Congress two shots at blocking such a move — first when the rationing plan is drafted and then again if the president attempts to impose it.

The agreement marked a compromise between the House proposal to give Congress the power to block a rationing plan at the time of imposition and the Senate desire for congressional review at an earlier stage in the process.

Sen. Bennett Johnston, D-La., the top Senate negotiator, called the compromise "one that is workable" and predicted Senate approval.

"We provided for congressional input, but not to an extent that it will cause a stalemate. And when all is said and done, we will have a rationing plan that can be put into effect if we get into real trouble and our oil is cut off," he said.

Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., head of the House conferees, said: "I think we have something that can be sold to the House. ... a plan I feel the president will accept."

However, Rep. Clarence Brown, R-Ohio, said he was one negotiator who couldn't support the finished product, saying it combined "the worst of both" House and Senate approaches.

Under the compromise, the president could move to impose rationing — subject to a veto by either house of Congress — if U.S. petroleum supplies dropped by 20 percent.

The 20-percent requirement could be waived, but that would require approval by both chambers.

And in a crucial agreement that broke a week-long stalemate, the conferees also decided to give Congress a limited chance to scrap a rationing plan once it is drafted and before it goes on the standby shelf.

However, to do so would require a vote by both chambers, which in turn would be subject to a presidential veto. And that means it might require a veto overriding two-thirds margin in Congress to send the president back to the drawing board.

Carter's first standby rationing proposal was killed in the House in May by a 246-159 margin, prompting him to challenge Congress to develop one of its own.

Congressional leaders say the mood on Capitol Hill has shifted since May, with summer gas lines dramatizing the gravity of the energy crisis and building support in Congress for standby gas-rationing legislation.

Unlike the May plan, the current one does not spell out how gasoline should be rationed, leaving to the president such decisions as whether to distribute ration coupons based on motor vehicles or drivers.

But the administration has indicated a clear preference for a system that allocates coupons based on the number of registered vehicles in a household or a business, which was the basic formula of the initial Carter plan.

Air Force Probing Hospital's Action After Child Dies

GREAT FALLS, Mont. (AP) — Air Force officials are investigating allegations that a 2-year-old boy who died at a local hospital had been turned away from a military hospital four hours earlier because his mother couldn't produce her ID card.

The embittered parents, Airman Dan Greiger and his wife Susanna, allege an airman on duty at the Malmstrom Air Force Base hospital turned the child away before he died Saturday in a civilian hospital.

Although the parents concede Danny may have died of meningitis anyway, they charge the actions of the airman under other circumstances could have cost a life.

The parents said an internal investigation has already begun and say they will ask for an additional probe by the Air Force inspector general's office.

A base information officer, Lt. Carol Northrup, confirmed Tuesday that officials were looking into the matter. She declined further comment. The airman has not been identified.

In an interview, Mrs. Grieger described the incident:

"She woke early Saturday at their base residence and found her son's blue eyes wide open. His mouth was bloody and his legs appeared purple.

"She quickly changed the child's diaper and called a friend, who drove her and the child to the base hospital.

"The airman on duty asked for Mrs. Greiger's ID card and she told him she forgot it. Her companion, Sherrie Day, said she had her base ID card and offered to vouch for Mrs. Grieger's residency.

"Her ID card wouldn't do any good," the airman was quoted as saying.

"The airman refused to admit the child, even though Danny was bleeding from the mouth and his legs appeared dark colored. The airman simply asked her where 'all the blood' came from. 'My son was dying in my arms,' Mrs. Grieger said as she continued her story.

"The woman was told to sit and wait, but she and her companion decided to rush the child to Montana Deaconess Medical Center, about five miles from the base.

"As soon as they arrived at the Deaconess emergency room, a nurse took a quick look at the child and immediately admitted him. Doctors quickly began trying to save the boy.

"Within an hour, with her husband now by her side, the parents were told their baby was dying. 'We just prayed,' Mrs. Grieger said in concluding her account.

"An autopsy showed the cause of death was meningitis, Mrs. Grieger said. Meningitis is an inflammation of the membranes covering the brain and spinal cord, often the result of a viral infection.

"Grieger was sharply critical of the base hospital. 'I feel that they didn't do a damn thing for us.' He said he will try to leave the Air Force on humanitarian or hardship grounds and that his commanding officer was conducting an investigation into the matter.

plants in Castro County.

"It might change our total agricultural outlook in the future," Upshaw commented, referring to the possibility that area farmers would begin growing more crops that could be used in the gasohol process.

(Bob Ethridge of the Chamber of Commerce said he felt the federal loans being made available next year would be well received by area farmers.)

(U.S. Rep. Kent Hance was unavailable for comment this morning. But his administrative assistant in Washington, Glen Hunt, said the congressman supports the legislation.)

used to produce alcohol, processes must provide protein by-products such as distillers dried grain for human or animal food.

(Lubbock County Extension Agent Randy Upshaw said area farmers would welcome the opportunity of getting federal money to set up small gasohol plants.)

"There has been some interest shown in the production of gasohol on area farms, but it would be on a partnership basis because it will be pretty expensive to set up the plants," he said, adding that there has been some work done on the possibilities of small gasohol

Hundreds of American farmers would be able to borrow money from the federal government to build small gasohol plants under legislation approved by the House Agriculture Committee.

The bill, approved Tuesday 36-1 after several weeks of committee wrangling, would authorize $800 million in federal loans to produce alcohol fuel from crops, forest products and wastes.

Mixtures of 10 percent alcohol fuel and 90 percent gasoline are being sold in hundreds of gasoline stations across the nation. If farmers built alcohol plants, they could use the fuel for their cars and trucks and sell it to others.

In fiscal 1980 and 1981, $200 million in direct federal loans would be targeted for small plants, costing $1 million or less and producing less than 1 million gallons a year.

The legislation would authorize a $5 million program of 10 demonstration plants to show how new alcohol fuels technology can be used on farms.

In addition, the bill would authorize $600 million in federally guaranteed loans for up to 90 percent of the cost of larger plants. One-fourth of the guarantees would be for medium-sized plants costing $5 million or less.

The bill must be approved by the full House, the Senate and President Carter before it would become law. Even if enacted, the money would not be available unless appropriated by Congress and approved again by the president.

The legislation would require gasohol be purchased to fuel the chauffeur-driven car of the agriculture secretary and all other Agriculture Department vehicles, as long as it is convenient and gasohol costs no more than 15 percent more than gasoline.

The legislation would attach a number of strings to the loans. Alcohol fuel would have to provide more energy than was burned to produce it. If crops were

Hospital Panel Considers Cuts

By KIM COBB
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Continuing the effort to cut costs at Health Sciences Center Hospital, the county hospital district's administrative committee today discussed the possibility of reducing the amount spent yearly on paid leave and accumulated pay.

Board member Gwen Stafford said the hospital is "paying an inordinate amount on leave."

"We're getting whacked," she emphasized.

Staff personnel at the hospital currently get up to 25 days a year in paid leave, that is, institute a policy which requires employees to take off leave time before a certain time or lose the time altogether.

At present levels, staff members may collect up to 300 hours in accrued leave while management personnel may accumulate up to 480 hours.

Board member Dub Rushing urged that Health Sciences remain competitive with other local hospitals in its leave policies. Committee members asked assistant administrator Charles Roberts to check with the area hospitals to see what their leave policies are.

In other business, the committee heard a report indicating that Security Protection Systems proved to be the low bidder of security protection for the hospital. It is expected that the service will cost the hospital about $46,000 a year.

Roberts will attempt to start the new system at the hospital by Oct. 1.

hours than were budgeted, even though recent staff reductions have prompted employees to collect on their leave time, perhaps raising the percentage.

Committee members discussed what may be a problem with actually recording leave time as it is taken. It is the responsibility of each department head to record leave time as it is taken and committee members are concerned that the recording of that leave is not always occurring, giving employees the opportunity to take paid leave without being charged for it.

Committee members will also consider putting a limit on the accrual of leave, that is, institute a policy which requires employees to take off leave time before a certain time or lose the time altogether.

At present levels, staff members may collect up to 300 hours in accrued leave while management personnel may accumulate up to 480 hours.

Board member Dub Rushing urged that Health Sciences remain competitive with other local hospitals in its leave policies. Committee members asked assistant administrator Charles Roberts to check with the area hospitals to see what their leave policies are.

In other business, the committee heard a report indicating that Security Protection Systems proved to be the low bidder of security protection for the hospital. It is expected that the service will cost the hospital about $46,000 a year.

Roberts will attempt to start the new system at the hospital by Oct. 1.

Hospital Panel Considers Cuts

Continuing the effort to cut costs at Health Sciences Center Hospital, the county hospital district's administrative committee today discussed the possibility of reducing the amount spent yearly on paid leave and accumulated pay.

Board member Gwen Stafford said the hospital is "paying an inordinate amount on leave."

"We're getting whacked," she emphasized.

Staff personnel at the hospital currently get up to 25 days a year in paid leave, that is, institute a policy which requires employees to take off leave time before a certain time or lose the time altogether.

hours than were budgeted, even though recent staff reductions have prompted employees to collect on their leave time, perhaps raising the percentage.

Committee members discussed what may be a problem with actually recording leave time as it is taken. It is the responsibility of each department head to record leave time as it is taken and committee members are concerned that the recording of that leave is not always occurring, giving employees the opportunity to take paid leave without being charged for it.

Committee members will also consider putting a limit on the accrual of leave, that is, institute a policy which requires employees to take off leave time before a certain time or lose the time altogether.

Japanese Politico's Hoax Proves Fatal

TOKYO (AP) — A Japanese politician stabbed himself in the thigh in an assassination hoax to get sympathy from voters, but he drove the knife in too deeply and bled to death, police said today.

An official of the prefectural police in Japan's second largest city said Jintaro Itoh, 41-year old restaurant owner and former head of a right-wing splinter group, died from his self-inflicted wound Monday night.

Police said Itoh's associates told them he planned to declare himself a candidate for Japan's Oct. 7 general election from a hospital bed, where he hoped to be recovering from his wounds. Monday was the first day of the campaign for the 511-seat lower house.

Police said Itoh's plan failed when he stabbed himself too deeply and died from loss of blood before he could walk from his car to his house. Police became suspicious because Itoh walked more than 20 yards without summoning help from neighbors.

Earlier, the Senate voted 90-6 for "reconciliation," an unprecedented attempt to force seven committees to achieve $3.6 billion in savings included in last May's target budget but so far not enacted.

The Budget Committee had originally sought $4 billion in savings. However, Muskie agreed to reduce the amount in a compromise with Democratic leaders last week. All but $100 million of the cuts would come from social programs.

After the vote, Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., said many senators were amazed to hear about Soviet military superiority in some areas. "What is it for but to stir up mischief?" Jackson asked.

Hundreds Flee Coastal Floods

most 5 inches of rain had fallen at Corpus Christi since 7 p.m. Tuesday, with winds clocked at up to 50 mph.

Authorities reported most major intersections under water and said high tides in Nueces Bay were sending water lapping over the edges of the Nueces Bay Causeway, which was closed.

The causeway, known as Highway 181, between Corpus Christi and Portland, was closed "indefinitely," police reported. Corpus Christi High Bridge was also closed. It leads to North Beach and the causeway.

Some county roads in the area were also closed by high water. Most schools and universities in a two-county area — Nueces and Aransas counties — were also closed for the day.

The Texas Highway Department announced S.H. 35 north of Aransas Pass had been closed, along with S.H. 361 at Farm Road 2725 near Aransas Pass. Park Road 53 on Mustang Island was also ordered closed, along with S.H. 286 at Farm Road 43 south of Corpus Christi and Farm Road 70 near Bishop, Texas.

Texas 87 between Galveston and Sabine Pass, Texas, was closed east of High Island due to flooding.

Rains Fade Over Area

A-J News Services

Area farmers, faced with problems caused by wet and stormy weather in recent weeks, can expect only minor delays in field work for the next five days.

Weathermen list a 20-percent probability of rain today and tonight for the Lubbock vicinity.

"Winter wheat planting and corn harvesting should see plenty of progress," the National Weather Service reported today. "Some sunflower harvesting continues, and some early sorghum harvesting is getting underway."

"As grain harvesting increases and continuing on into cotton harvest time, the relative humidity will be very important."

"The relative humidity is expected to drop below 40 percent on the Texas South Plains today for only a few hours in the late afternoon."

Partly cloudy skies are forecast for today and tonight with the slight chance of showers or thunderstorms.

Generally fair skies are expected for Thursday.

Temperatures will be in the low 80s today and Thursday and in the high 50s tonight.

Winds will be light and variable today and tonight.

Lubbock's low this morning was 58 degrees after a Tuesday afternoon high of 83.

The extended forecast for the West Texas region calls for cooler weather over the Panhandle Sunday and highs in the 70s and 80s Friday through Sunday except for some temperatures in the low 90s in the extreme southern part of the region.

DENTON (AP) — Five more persons exposed to a rabid kitten earlier this month have begun rabies shots, bringing the total to 16 receiving the inoculations.

As many as 90 persons came into contact with the kitten between Sept. 6 and Sept. 9 at an old Nike missile base.

Senate Hikes Defense Spending

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate backers of higher military spending, flexing their muscle in the midst of current SALT II debates, see approval of a three-year boost in defense spending as a sign of U.S. willingness to challenge Soviet military might.

However, Defense Secretary Harold Brown said today that the Senate-approved $24.9 billion increases are more than are needed to maintain an adequate national defense.

The Senate action includes a 3 percent increase in fiscal 1980 and 5 percent boosts in the second and third years.

"My own judgment is that ... 3 percent is the proper figure at this time ... because the programs that such a real growth rate will finance are adequate to meet our objectives and arrest the dangerous trends we see," Brown told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

The Senate on Tuesday approved a 3 percent increase in 1980 defense spending, after inflation is deducted. However, in a later non-binding vote, it also called for increasing defense spending by 5 percent above inflation in 1981 and 1982.

President Carter has supported a 3 percent increase in real defense spending and has pledged a hike of that size to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. He has objected, however, to a 5 percent spending hike in 1981 and 1982.

The Senate votes upset defense spending critics, who noted that only hours earlier senators had decided to force $3.6 billion in savings, mostly from social programs.

The Senate action added $3.2 billion to the defense budget for fiscal 1980, which starts Oct. 1, and pushed the 1980 deficit figure above $30 billion.

However, supporters of a strong national defense praised the Senate action.

"I think it means that the U.S. Senate, reflecting the view of the American people, has declared that we are moving out of the post-Vietnam era," said Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., one of the Pentagon's leading allies on Capitol Hill.

"We're sending strong signals to our allies and our adversaries around the world that while we don't want an arms race, we're not willing to allow a unilateral, one-sided arms race to continue with the Soviet Union being the one that's racing," Nunn added.

Resuming work on its proposed 1980 budget today, the Senate rejected, 61-36, a Republican-backed $24-billion, anti-recession tax cut in calendar year 1980. The amendment, sponsored by Sen. William V. Roth Jr., R-Del., also called for a $19-billion cut in federal spending.

Meanwhile, the House was set to begin voting on its proposed 1980 spending limits, including a figure for defense and another Republican tax cut plan.

The defense spending boost increased the Senate's proposed 1980 budget to $545.3 billion with a projected deficit of $31.4 billion. The Budget Committee had hoped to hold the deficit under $30 billion.

Defense spending has also become a key factor in the SALT II debate with some senators, including Nunn, suggesting their votes might hinge on whether the military budget is increased by 5 percent to 7 percent.

The defense vote, however, was a setback to Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, chairman of the Budget Committee, who had argued that both defense and social programs should absorb some losses due to inflation.

"The greatest threat to our national security is inflation," Muskie said.

Earlier, the Senate voted 90-6 for "reconciliation," an unprecedented attempt to force seven committees to achieve $3.6 billion in savings included in last May's target budget but so far not enacted.

The Budget Committee had originally sought $4 billion in savings. However, Muskie agreed to reduce the amount in a compromise with Democratic leaders last week. All but $100 million of the cuts would come from social programs.

City Rape Suspect Wins Appeal For New Trial

AUSTIN — The Court of Criminal Appeals Wednesday ordered a new trial for Donald Pirkle, convicted of the aggravated rape of a 15-year-old Lubbock high school student, on grounds "extraneous offenses" were introduced at Pirkle's trial.

According to the court's opinion, Pirkle was assessed a 25-year sentence for the Jan. 21, 1974, assault on the victim as she was returning home from school through an alley.

Pirkle and several other witnesses testified at his trial that he was elsewhere when the offense occurred, the court reports.

The opinion also says the state offered a rebuttal witness who testified that on Jan. 30, 1973, when she was a 15-year-old high school student, she was attacked by Pirkle, who at the time was wearing only a pair of socks.

The witness escaped, and her evidence was used at a juvenile proceeding which resulted in Pirkle being sent to the Gatesville State School, the opinion says.

The defense objected to that testimony on the grounds it was extraneous, but the state held the testimony was relevant to the issue of identity, the opinion states. The trial court admitted the testimony for the question of identification only.

The appeals court said that there were "common characteristics" in the two incidents involved: both involved 15-year-old girls who were pushed to the ground and had their clothing removed or partially removed, and both occurred during the daytime when the victims were walking to or from school.

"While these facts are common to both offenses, they are in no way unique or distinctive in a manner that would set these offenses apart from the general class and thereby identify appellant," the court said.

Therefore, the court concluded, the testimony on the previous incident was extraneous and the conviction was reversed.

Funeral Services Scheduled Thursday For A.E. Quest

Services for Arthur Eugene Quest, 92, owner of A.E. Quest & Sons Manufacturing Co., are set for 10:30 a.m. Thursday at W.W. Rix Chapel with the Rev. Lloyd Hamilton of Wilson, a retired Methodist minister, officiating.

Burial will be in City of Lubbock Cemetery under the direction of Rix Funeral Directors.

Quest, who had resided at 3105 45th St., died at 8 p.m. Tuesday at High Plains Retirement Center.

A native of Corsicana, he attended school in Clifton and later worked as a night operator and day lineman for the telephone exchange. In 1907, he went to work for American Express Co. in Chickasha, Okla., as a wagon driver.

He was promoted to messenger and baggage master on a train and moved to Aika, where he lived until he had to quit his job because of an injury.

He then became a salesman, moving to Lubbock in 1924. He became manager of a hardware store in Pampa, and in 1928, returned to work as a specialty salesman with his home in Amarillo.

He married Lula Montgomery Moore Nov. 20, 1910, in Gatesville. They opened the manufacturing company in Lubbock in 1938, with their sons, Arthur Eugene Jr. and Ralph Bernard, becoming partners in the firm after their return from service in World War II. Mrs. Quest died in 1977.

The company manufactures all types of canvas articles and has expanded to the irrigated regions of California and the Mississippi Delta. It won an outstanding international award in 1951 for having built the largest canvas canopy in the world.

Quest served on the board of Stewards of Asbury Methodist Church since 1939 and served as chairman for two years. He taught Sunday School for eight years and was president of the Men's Bible Class for four years. He became a Mason in 1912, was a Knight Templar and a member of the Scottish Rite, the Shrine and the South Plains Shrine Patrol.

For nine years, he was director of the South Plains Shrine Club and was a past president. He was an active Rotarian and was a delegate to the National Republican Convention in 1952 in Chicago.

Survivors other than his sons include two daughters, Ruby Alice Rolier of Houston and Georgia M. Ford of Amarillo; seven grandchildren; six great-grandchildren; and two great-great-grandchildren.

Sudan Student Tells Court Of Shotgun Blast

A Sudan High School youth told a 99th District Court jury this morning he was just playing basketball in the street the night of April 14 when he was struck by a shotgun blast.

Sammie V. Soto, 17, said he and six other youths were playing with a basketball at 29th Place and Avenue N when he was hit with about 30 shotgun pellets, several of them striking him in the head and face.

Soto testified this morning in the opening day of Jessie Perez Cruz's attempted murder trial. Soto said he and his family had come to Lubbock April 14 to visit relatives and that evening Soto went to a friend's residence at 1508 29th Place.

Also testifying this morning was Police Cpl. Ralph Bowen Jr., who arrested the 28-year-old Cruz.

Bowen said after arriving at the 29th Place address, he and another officer walked down Avenue N and saw Cruz standing in the drive of his 1502 30th St. residence. The officer testified that Cruz was holding a shotgun and drinking a beer.

Bowen said he had his service revolver drawn and told Cruz three times to drop the shotgun, but the defendant just laughed. Bowen said when Cruz finally placed the weapon in the bed of a pickup, the officer was able to wrestle him to the ground and arrest him.

Prosecutors in the case are Criminal District Attorney John Montford and Travis Ware. Cruz is represented by Byron Chappell.

Court Upholds Suspension Of Former City Policeman

AUSTIN — The Texas Supreme Court has upheld an appeals court ruling against a former Lubbock police officer seeking to be reinstated to the job from which he was suspended three years ago for tapping a private telephone line.

A state district court ruling in favor of Robert Estrelo was reversed in May by Mary Lou Robinson, who was then chief justice of the Seventh Court of Civil Appeals in Amarillo and is now a federal district judge in Amarillo.

Judge Thomas L. Clinton of 99th District Court here ordered Estrelo reinstated in January 1978, but the city appealed to have the June 25, 1976, suspension by the Lubbock Civil Service Commission upheld.

Estrelo had been accused of using an illegal "blue box" to make a telephone call while on duty June 1, 1976.

A police sergeant testified in the civil service hearing that he saw Estrelo talk into a receiver while he was seated in his patrol car outside a 1912 19th St. business.

Estrelo said he was calling a restaurant so that his order would be ready when he arrived, but that he got a busy signal and never completed the call.

Judge Clinton ordered Estrelo reinstated because of what he said was vagueness in the city's civil service code.

Judge Robinson said in her ruling that the civil service commission ruling "should be accepted unless there is no substantial evidence on the record as a whole to support it."

Wilson Says China Cannot Be Trusted

By RUTHANNE BROCKWAY
Avalanche-Journal Staff
Former British Prime Minister Harold Wilson warned Americans Tuesday night to be wary of China, saying the communist nation is not to be trusted.

Wilson, speaking to several hundred people in Texas Tech's University Center Theatre, said the U.S. is taking Chinese expansion too softly. "I do not trust them. They are just as communist as Russia," he told the crowd.

Wilson, who resigned as prime minister in 1976, said he was worried about "the concept of goodies and baddies in the world." He said Russia has been considered the "bad guy" for a long time and because "Russians hate Chinese, then therefore the Chinese must be the goodies." But Wilson strongly disagreed with that type of thinking.

"Now Russia would think twice, three times, four times, five times (about starting a war) in view of its vulnerability to China," Wilson explained. "There is little danger of Russia starting (a war)," he added. "Their economy is too vulnerable."

Russia has nightmares about a U.S.-China alliance against the USSR, Wilson said.

The former prime minister, who has known virtually every president since World War II, assessed the U.S. leaders, calling Truman "a man of courage," and

Ford "hard working," but saying of Eisenhower, "I hardly knew him."

Of Nixon, Wilson said, "But for Watergate — and that's a big 'but' — he could have been a significant president."

Wilson said Nixon told him his strength was in dealing with China and also that, "I'm in a better position than my predecessors to end Vietnam. I'm known as a hard-liner."

Wilson first met Kennedy when JFK's father was an ambassador to Great Britain. "I knew him well," Wilson said of the president. He said Kennedy told him legislative measures were necessary for the American economy but that "he had no hope of Congressional support until his fourth year in office. Sadly, he did not get that chance."

Although Wilson had "profound disagreements" with Johnson over Vietnam, and Wilson was under pressure in his own country to denounce the American president, Wilson said, "I would not."

Wilson noted one of the differences of government between the U.S. and Great Britain is that, "The American president, apart from death or Watergate, is guaranteed to stay in office four years." The president may or may not be able to get legislation passed in Congress.

However, in Great Britain, Wilson said, "You can get legislation, but you aren't guaranteed the Prime Minister office."

Youngster Finds Friend Through UW Agency

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is another in a series of articles dealing with the United Way of Lubbock. Except for officials of United Way agencies involved, the names used are fictitious to protect the identities of those served. However, the stories reflect actual case histories here.)

After his parents divorced and his older brothers moved to different cities, Brian Davis didn't have much contact with male adults. But there was a need in the 13-year-old youth for a figure to help guide him through the increasingly difficult teenage years.

Fortunately, Brian knew where he could find the friend he needed. Two years ago, Brian called Big Brothers Big Sisters of Lubbock.

Big Brothers Big Sisters of Lubbock is a United Way agency and will receive $65,068 of the United Way's 1980 goal of $1,803,752.

Panel Sets Overton Boundaries

By RAYNIE HARDESTY
Avalanche-Journal Staff
Boundaries for a Design-Historic district in the Overton South neighborhood were outlined by members of the Planning and Zoning Commission Thursday night after more than three hours of discussion.

The commission also approved 10 of 11 proposed historic landmarks within the district, including two houses owned by First Baptist Church in the 2200-block of 13th Street.

The church and the Overton South Neighborhood Association previously have clashed over the historic designation of the Cox and Mast-White houses. The houses are located on church property and church officials wanted the homes removed and the land used for additional church parking.

The final boundary lines approved by the commission generally zigzag along 13th Street to Avenue R before turning west between 19th and 18th Streets. The final line roughly follows property lines between University Avenue and Avenue X.

Recommendations approved by the Planning and Zoning Commission will be considered for final approval by the City Council in October.

Although the commission heard comments on the historic landmarks and standards for new structures and property improvements, Thursday's discussion centered on the boundaries outlining the new district.

Commercial business owners along Avenue Q, Broadway, 19th Street and University Avenue — major thoroughfares surrounding the new district — argued against proposed boundaries that might hinder expansion of their establishments.

Although the district ordinance does not restrict commercial buildings or parking lots within the historical zone, structures would have to comply with district architectural standards and follow the guidelines of a land use plan implemented for the neighborhood in 1975.

The commission heard several boundary arrangements suggested by surrounding businesses, the Urban Design Commission and the Overton South Neighborhood Association. The commission eventually amended the OSNA's proposal and unanimously accepted the new boundaries.

Commission member Harry Stokley Jr. told the chamber audience before the final lines were drawn, "We're going to consider everybody affected by this. We do know we have parking problems in areas, that it's going to get worse, and that something going to have to give."

"But, on the same token, we're trying to salvage a neighborhood," Stokley added.

In another motion, the commission designated 10 structures as historic landmarks within the neighborhood after chairman Jim Ratliff's vote broke a 3-3 tie.

The only property not included in the designations was St. Paul's Episcopal Church because its officials had not indicated to the commission or the OSNA its position concerning the designation.

Despite strong opposition from First Baptist Church because the two homes on 13th Street were placed under moratorium, the commission designated the homes as landmarks "because if these homes are not designated now, they won't be there later when someone decides they should be," said Mary Vines.

By being designated an historic landmark, structures are under restrictions on remodeling the exterior of the buildings.

Judge Orders Burning Of Copied Documents

By KAY BELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff
A former Texas Tech University graduate student watched Tuesday as her seven-year battle with the university ended in a court-ordered 30-second puff of smoke.

U.S. District Judge Halbert O. Woodward put an end to the protracted wrangling over university-held medical records concerning the woman by ordering the burning of two sheets of paper in a courtroom trash can.

With the approval of both plaintiff and defendants in the civil suit, Woodward instructed his court reporter to burn two illegible copies of documents "to avoid any question of (their destruction) coming up again."

The closely supervised fire put an Allosaurus Chosen

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The 40-foot-long, meat-eating allosaurus has edged the woolly mammoth in a poll to choose Utah's state fossil.

In recent voting sponsored by the Utah Historical Society at the Utah State Fair, the allosaurus got 111 votes to 108 for the mammoth. Now the nomination goes to the Utah Legislature for confirmation hearings.

The allosaurus overcame the disadvantage of not having lived in the area. The allosaurus, a giant bear, a trilobite and a plant called cycadeoidea.

end to any further legal action involving Texas Tech Medical School file documents of Jo Ann Baggerly.

Miss Baggerly of Las Vegas, N.M., had filed suit against the university and several officials charging they had violated her civil rights and invaded her privacy by failing to destroy all her medical records pursuant to a December 1976 out-of-court agreement on another federal court lawsuit.

After Miss Baggerly's morning testimony, however, Woodward ruled that Miss Baggerly produced insufficient evidence to prove her claim of civil rights violations concerning the dissemination of the medical records.

The judge then ordered counsel for Texas Tech to allow Miss Baggerly to inspect their file on the case.

When the afternoon session of court opened, Miss Baggerly produced from the file two sheets of copied documents, which Woodward inspected and deemed illegible but nonetheless ordered destroyed after Miss Baggerly said she did not wish to retain the copies for appeal purposes.

"It is doubtful and uncertain whether these documents are in the purview of the (1976) settlement agreement," Woodward noted. "However, to ensure all medical records, and it's possible these are, are destroyed, we will do it in open court."

The judge then asked his court reporter, Roger Miller, to "do the honors."

Other structures within the district only must comply with restrictions on exterior alterations.

Also named as historic landmarks are the Etz House at 2003 17th St.; the Kuykendall House at 2201 16th St.; Miller-Loter House, 2323 18th St.; Nistar-Napier House, 2313 17th St.; Thompson Junior High, 2002 14th St.; Lubbock High School; street trees in parkways; ornamental street lights; ornamental fire hydrants; and WPA signs on curbs.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: Don't back down! You were NOT wrong when you advised your readers to "consult a lawyer, and pay HIM for what he knows." HE and HIM become personal pronouns when referring to BOTH sexes.

Please inform Mandy Stellman of Milwaukee and Perlman of St. Paul, who should not object to being known as Mandy Stell — and Perl — after removing the "man" from their names, that old rule still holds.

So don't apologize, Abby. We appreciate the fine lawyers, doctors, clergy and those in other vocations who are of the fairer sex, but let's not bend over backwards to distinguish whether HE has acquired a 5 o'clock shadow or a shiny nose just before dinner. It is HIS vocational, performance that counts.

GEORGE WASHINGTON BOWEN

DEAR GEORGE: I cannot tell a lie. I find it a nuisance to write "he/she" and "him/her." And I abhor that new style journalism that refers to women by their last names. I find myself backing up to re-read entire paragraphs in order to find out if the "Fonda" is JANE or

HENRY!

DEAR ABBY: I am being married in six weeks, and everything would be perfect if it weren't for the way my mother feels about my fiance. She keeps telling me it's still not too late to change my mind even though she knows how much I love Ron. (He's 26 and I'm 24).

He's a wonderful person and I have never loved anyone the way I love him, but Mom thinks I deserve a better-looking man. Can you believe it, Abby? I've gone with some gorgeous men, but they were all so in love with themselves that they couldn't love anyone else.

True, Ron is short and he doesn't have a very good complexion, but he has the most beautiful, honest eyes I've ever seen, and to me he is handsome!

I am no beauty, but my mother thinks I am. I am happy with what I have, but my mother is making me miserable. I can't take much more of her hassling. What should I do?

UNHAPPY BRIDE

DEAR UNHAPPY: Tune mother out when she puts down Ron. She's wrong, of course. Handsome is as handsome does.

DEAR ABBY: Someone who had worked in a government agency for 15 years wrote to say that the average person is an "idiot." To support that statement the writer explained that a woman was given an employment form to fill out. One of the routine questions was "SEX?" In response to that question, she wrote, "I don't care for it much anymore."

Well, I'd like to offer a similar experience. I am a room clerk in a first-class hotel. On our hotel registry is the question, "FIRM?"

After one very attractive young woman had registered, I carefully read the form she had filled out. In the space following "FIRM?" she had written, "VERY!"

IT HAPPENED IN BOULDER, COLO.

CONFIDENTIAL TO B. IN BEACON HILL: Tell your friend that giving birth to a child does not make a woman a "mother" in the truest sense of the word. But taking a motherless child into one's home (and heart) and raising that child with love, patience and understanding spells out the real meaning of motherhood.

DEAR READER: Why look for "excuses" when you have a perfectly legitimate reason? Tell Neville that you don't care to meet his girlfriend. And don't worry about his feelings. He seems well able to take care of himself.

Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple do-your-own-thing ceremony, get Abby's new booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents) self-addressed envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif.

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

September...the season when schools open their doors...school janitors become sex symbols...and little children wander around the halls muttering, "My Mom can drive."

Throughout the years, I thought I had heard just about every horror story of volunteer mothers you could think of. But I hadn't heard the one about the busload of Head Start children which my friend in California volunteered to help transport.

That memorable Monday, 75 three- and four-year-olds boarded a bus to be transported to the Jewish temple a couple of miles away. A pastor was in charge of the driving and my friend sat in the front seat and was in charge of "tranquility."

The children were dropped off and picked up again without a hitch. Now all that was left was to drop children off in the arms of their waiting mothers at 15 street corners in Venice, California. It would have worked out perfectly had someone remembered to tell the mothers.

They took the children back to the temple to check their records for addresses, only to find the doors locked. They threw themselves on the mercy of the children. It seemed all 75 of them lived in a white house with a fence around it and two trees in the front yard.

They put plan B into operation, which was to stop at every street corner while the reverend led them in prayer. Occasionally, at these stops they dragged strangers in off the street to see if they recognized anyone on the bus. (By this time the children were into their third afternoon nap.)

After four hours, the children were all safely at home. Not to be daunted on the next trip, our school volunteer decided to remedy this situation by hanging a colored bird around the neck of each child. The pink birds would get off at the pink corner, the green birds on the green corner, etc. Her only problem was that she ran out of colors and one group had blackbirds around their necks. When a mother heard her call out to a group of black children, "All blackbirds off the bus," she called her a, bigot and demanded her resignation.

The life of a school volunteer is not an easy road. It takes stamina, time and personal sacrifice. In your infinite mercy, take a school volunteer to lunch this week.

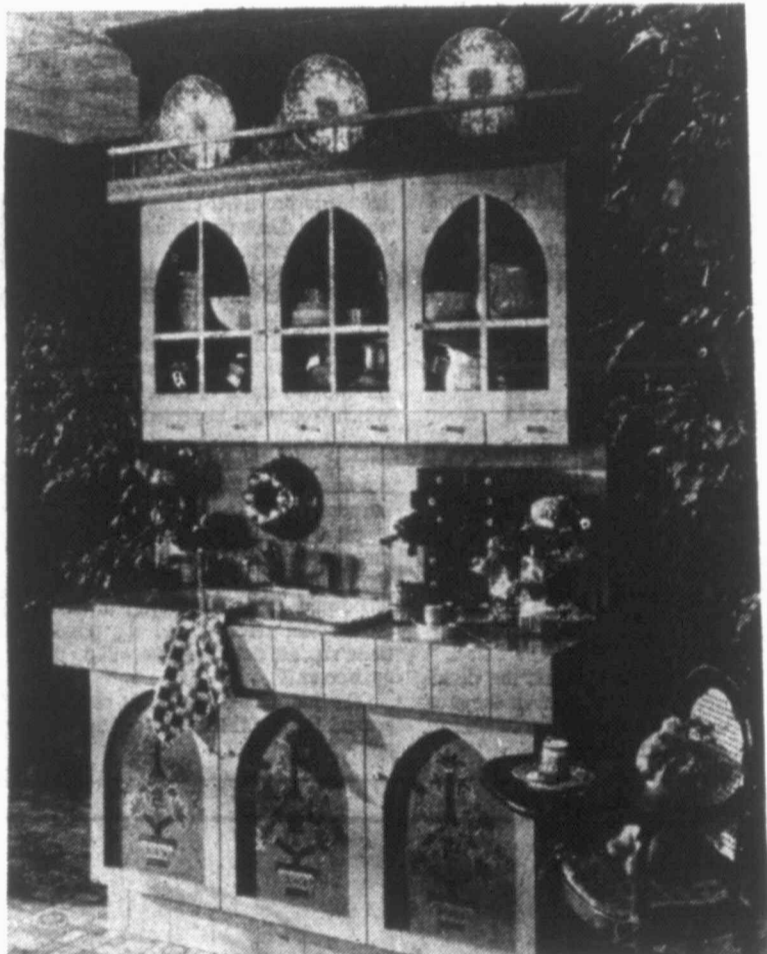

Not in the school cafeteria, for crying out loud!

Booklet Offers Consumer Help

WASHINGTON, D.C. (Special) — The cost of home ownership just seems to go up and up. Many people wonder if they would be better off investing in a home now, or investing their down payment money in a savings account or in stocks and bonds.

"Should I rent or buy?" There is no easy answer to that question. A lot depends on your personal life-style. Do you enjoy do-it-yourself maintenance projects? Or would you rather leave the upkeep to someone else? A new booklet from the U.S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics can help you decide what's best for you. For your copy of "Rent or Buy" just send 80 cents to the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 51G, Pueblo, Colorado 81009.

Cost can be a big factor, too. How would you compare, for example, the cost of renting a home for $300 a month with the cost of owning a home with a $600 monthly mortgage payment? It all depends upon your income, how you would invest the money you save by renting, your tax benefits from owning a home, and the net proceeds you may realize from selling the home in the future. If you look at these various factors, you can make a better decision about whether to rent or buy a home.

For example, homeowners can anticipate substantial tax benefits. Amounts spent for interest and property taxes on your home are deductible on your Federal and on many state and local returns as well. How much you'll save depends largely on how much your income is and on what other itemized deductions you can take. Remember, renters do not have similar tax benefits for any part of their housing expenses.

Before you think about buying, look at all the costs. Once you buy, your monthly payment for interest and mortgage will probably become fixed. That is, it will stay the same even if purchase prices and mortgage rates go up. On the other hand, taxes, insurance, maintenance, fuel and utilities will increase. Between mid-1969 and mid-1978, property taxes and insurance costs rose an average of 85 percent. Expenditures for maintenance and repairs went up 100 percent. And, fuel and utilities rose a whopping 110 percent.

But remember, renters too can feel the effect of rising costs, as landlords raise monthly rents to reflect higher taxes, fuel and other costs.

You can also estimate the future market value of a home. Consider the local market conditions, and allow for changes in general economic conditions. Then arrive at a rate of appreciation per year. For example, if you bought a home today for $52,000, at an annual appreciation of 7 percent, you could expect to sell that home in 10 years for $102,284.

Renters can figure earnings from a regular savings program. For example, if you place the money in a savings account rather than in a $5,000 down payment for a house, and you were able to save $165 a month you would accrue $35,684 over a 10-year period at 6 percent interest.

When you order a copy of "Rent or Buy" (80 cents), you'll also receive a copy of the free "Consumer Information Catalog." It lists more than 200 selected free or low-cost publications from the federal government. The "Catalog" is published quarterly by the Consumer Information Center of the General Services Administration.

from dummy, and in an effort to prevent that card from winning the trick, a vast number of players would automatically produce the queen. A quick analysis should suffice to show that such action under the circumstances, could not gain.

South's opening bid and subsequent jump to two no trump make it certain that he holds either the ace or king of spades. Thus, it will be impossible to prevent declarer from winning two tricks in that suit. The more important consideration, however, is to make certain that one of these two spade tricks cannot be won in dummy later in the play when it could serve as an entry to the diamond suit.

East's plan was to prevent, if possible, the running of dummy's diamonds. He could achieve that goal only if declarer had two diamonds. The first part of the defense involved permitting dummy's ten of spades to win the first trick! Declarer crossed to his hand with a heart to run the queen of diamonds, which East ducked. Declarer continued the suit, finessing the table's nine, and East decided that it would not be prudent to test his luck any further. He exited with the queen of spades, and try as he might, declarer was faced with a hopeless prospect. With the help of two tricks in clubs, he managed to bring his total to seven, but that was all.

PLACE OF DREAMS — Dream your waking and sleeping hours away in this dynamic dual-purpose bedroom and sitting room. The relaxing environment is created with a subtle yellow and blue color scheme and highlighted with paneling applied at a 45-degree angle in the recessed area of the room to create a suitable accent for the framed graphic.

You cannot conduct the defense of a hand by precept alone. Such stray bits of advice as "cover an honor with an honor," "second hand low," "third hand high," etc., have application to a large number of cases, but they are not golden rules. Defense is not a matter of handling certain combinations of cards—a particular play should always be considered as part of a campaign, and the hand must be viewed as a whole.

The bidding of this hand requires no comment, as it is strictly in accord with current practices. West's opening lead of the five of spades—fourth best from his longest and strongest suit—was normal, and East's conduct at the very first trick controlled the fate of the deal.

Declarer played the ten

Prolonged Drought Hurts Brazilian Crops

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — A prolonged drought in the northeastern states of Pernambuco, Ceara, Piaui, Alagoas and Rio Grande do Norte has seriously damaged crops and prompted the government to enact an emergency relief plan in more than 250 cities and towns throughout the region.

There was no immediate estimate of the extent of crop damage caused by the drought but it was reported in some areas of Piaui up to 40 percent of this year's harvest had been lost.

The government is granting special credits to farmers in the stricken areas and distributing food to thousands of hungry peasants.

Old Tax Idea Making Comeback

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer
An old idea for a new tax is back in the spotlight.

The levy is VAT — the acronym for value added tax. It has been talked about for decades. It was adopted by France in 1954. And it is being promoted here by U.S. Rep. Al Ullman, the chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, and U.S. Sen. Russell Long, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee.

The tax gets added to goods and services as they move from the producer to the consumer. Some people describe VAT as a national sales tax — a description supporters don't like.

Ullman, a Democrat from Oregon, says Americans could be paying VAT by 1981. He wants Congress to enact the new tax to replace some existing taxes. No one, says Ullman, should end up paying any more taxes than he or she does now.

Ullman has indicated he is thinking of a VAT in the neighborhood of 10 percent. He wants to reduce Social Security taxes by 25 percent and cut some other existing levies as well. Long, who is also a Democrat and is from Louisiana, wants Social Security taxes to be eliminated.

Donald Lubick of the Treasury Department said earlier this year that it would take a VAT of 13 percent to completely replace the payroll tax as a source of financing for Social Security.

The Tax Foundation Inc., a research group based in Washington, D.C., calculated that in 1978, each one percentage point of VAT would produce $11 billion in revenue. Social insurance taxes — basically, Social Security — are expected to raise a little more than $140 billion in the current fiscal year.

VAT is a tax on the value that is added to a product on its way to market. It is based on the difference between each manufacturer's buying price and selling price. Suppose, for example, there is a 10 percent VAT. A baker buys flour and other bread ingredients for $100. He plans to sell the finished loaves to a supermarket for $300. The VAT would be $20 — 10 percent of the $200 in value added by the baker. The final retail price paid by the consumer includes the sum of all the VATs paid along the way.

Ullman has said he wants the addition of VAT to stop at the wholesale level. Supermarket News, a trade publication, quoted him as saying: "I am thinking only about the wholesale level. Retail taxes are totally pre-empted by the states already. There will be no retail tax. I am opposed to a national retail tax."

VAT may or may not apply to all products. Some European countries exempt essentials like food and drugs. Great Britain considers reading material an essential and exempts books. Ullman has indicated he would favor exempting at least food.

Supporters of VAT concede that the new tax would raise prices. But Ullman says the higher prices would be offset by decreases in other taxes. Supporters of VAT also note that it is based on consumption. People who save money are rewarded. Opponents say the tax puts an unfair burden on the poor since they spend a greater proportion of their income on needed goods and services.

A report by the Tax Foundation said the inflationary impact of VAT is hard to measure. "Actual experience (in other countries) has varied and the possibilities for this country are so complex that no unequivocal answer can be given as to the results most likely," the report said.

There are other arguments over VAT. On the plus side, it could be used to help our balance of trade situation. Foreign buyers of U.S. goods would get a refund equal to the amount of the VAT. That would make the American products more attractive overseas.

On the negative side is the argument that VAT is a "hidden" tax; people don't know what they are paying. VAT also could mean increased paperwork for manufacturers who would, presumably, pass along increased business costs — along with the tax — to consumers.

Wage Guidelines Extended

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government has extended its year-old wage and price guidelines so more talks can be held with labor leaders on a new program.

The Council on Wage and Price Stability said this week the revised program will be published by the end of the month. Extra time was needed to "complete consultations" on the possibility of creating advisory committees to help run the program, the council said.

The AFL-CIO has proposed creation of a "pay board," made up of representatives from labor, business and the public, with powers to set new wage guidelines and alter them as economic conditions change.

The administration, however, wants to retain authority to set the guidelines, giving the board authority to review it and hear appeals for exemptions.

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — A Yugoslav Airlines Boeing 707 was the first plane in a week to take off from Havana's flooded Jose Marti Airport, it was reported recently. The Yugoslav news agency Tanjug said the plane had been stranded at the airport since last Sunday because of flooding caused by Hurricane Frederic.

The Almanac TODAY IN HISTORY

By United Press International
Today is Wednesday, Sept. 19, the 262nd day of 1979 and 103 to follow. The moon is approaching its new phase.

The morning stars are Mars, Jupiter and Saturn.

The evening stars are Mercury and Venus.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Virgo.

Irvin Westheimer, who founded the Big Brothers movement in Cincinnati, Ohio, in 1903, was born on Sept. 19, 1879.

On this date in history:
In 1777, American soldiers won the first Battle of Saratoga in the Revolutionary War.
In 1863, Union and Confederate soldiers met in the battle of Chickamauga, Ga., during the Civil War. The rebels won the following day.

In 1881, President James Garfield died in Elberon, N.J., of gunshot wounds inflicted by a disgruntled officer-seeker on July 2.

In 1960, Cuban Premier Fidel Castro and his staff were ousted from a New York City hotel because they had been discovered plucking chickens for cooking in their rooms. The Communist delegation was in New York to attend a United Nations' meeting.

A thought for the day: James A. Garfield, 20th president of the United States, said: "This great nation is too great to look for mere revenge but for the security of the future I would do everything."

Canadians Concerned About Energy Crisis

(EDITOR'S NOTE — Canada, Mexico and Alaska all have natural resources that have been suggested as solutions to U.S. energy problems. But for various reasons, none of these areas is likely to provide a real solution. This first of a three-part series on North American resources looks at Canada's energy potential.)

By WILLIAM GLASGALL
OTTAWA (AP) — With vast reserves of oil and natural gas, and a bountiful supply of hydroelectric power, Canada is a natural ally in the United States' battle with the energy crisis.

But Canada, which has one-tenth of the population of the United States and uses one-tenth as much energy, has energy problems of its own. It imports about 40 percent of its oil needs today.

And many Canadians are more concerned with their nation's future energy needs than with the problems south of the border.

It is "more important to guarantee that Canadians be able to heat their homes in years ahead than to help Californians heat their swimming pools," said Cyril Symes of the socialist New Democratic party, the nation's third-largest political party.

Canada is trying to free itself from the high cost of oil imports for its five eastern provinces by developing new energy sources — but these are expensive.

The United States in 1978 got 1 percent its crude oil, 5 percent of its natural gas and 1 percent of its electric power from Canada.

The exports earned Canada nearly $4 billion last year. With pipelines, railways and electric lines crisscrossing the Canada-U.S. border, Canadian energy exports are likely to continue, but most oil exports are scheduled to end in 1981 because — like the United States — Canada has declining reserves of readily available oil.

The new Progressive-Conservative party government of Prime Minister Joe Clark has not disclosed its energy policy. But President Carter has said the United States is "working very closely" on energy matters with Canada, and will "share hydroelectric power and other energy resources with our neighbor."

But many senior Canadian government officials and political leaders are reluctant to back large-scale development and exports of Canada's energy resources solely for the benefit of the United States.

"A supply of natural gas sufficient to meet reasonably foreseeable Canadian requirements ... should be ensured before consideration is given to additional exports," the Saskatchewan provincial government said in a statement before the National Energy Board last fall.

"I think there would be public objection to massive energy exports," an official responsible for formulating export policy told a U.S. reporter recently.

"When you're sitting in a stew of your own making, why are you looking to us?" asked another.

Even though one government official noted Canada "cannot assure the health of the United States economy with its energy resources," there is a general realization that a strong United States economy is vital for Canada's economic welfare.

Two-thirds of the $48 billion worth of goods and services Canada exported last year went to the United States, according to statistics compiled by the International Monetary Fund. The IMF says Canada's exports to the United States have grown by 131 percent since 1972.

"We've got to make sure that we don't do anything to hurt trade relations with the States," International Trade Minister Michael Wilson says.

A major problem in tapping Canada's energy reserves is the tremendous cost involved. Many projects will cost billions each. They include:

—The long-delayed 2,800-mile Alaska Highway natural gas pipeline across Alaska and Canada, will cost $12 billion to $15 billion, or more, if built.

—The giant James Bay hydroelectric project in Quebec, which could generate enough power to satisfy 70 percent of New England's electricity needs when completed, will cost as much as $15 billion.

—A single facility capable of extracting the equivalent of less than 1 percent of a year's U.S. oil needs from Canada's gummy tar sands, will take five years to build and carry a price tag of nearly $5 billion.

Overall, Montreal's Royal Bank of Canada estimates that more than $255 billion in new investments will be needed through 1990 "in order to achieve and maintain a significant degree of energy self-reliance."

The oil and gas industry alone will need at least $90 billion to finance drilling projects, the construction of pipelines and the exploitation of tar sands and "heavy" oil deposits.

That would mean investments of about $7.5 billion a year. Capital spending by Canadian petroleum companies in 1978 and 1979 is about $6.6 billion a year.

The U.S. oil and gas industry spent $27 billion last year and is expected to spend $34 billion in 1979 on exploration and development projects.

Here is a look at some of Canada's main energy sources and at their export potential:

—OIL: The United States daily receives about 55,000 42-gallon barrels of high-quality light oil and 100,000 barrels of heavier oil from western Canada. But light oil output in Alberta, Canada's main oil-producing province, already has peaked and is expected to fall by 7 percent between 1980 and 1985.

Canada has a potentially vast supply of oil — perhaps more than the world's current proven conventional oil reserves — locked in the tar sands and heavy oils of Alberta and Saskatchewan.

"The heavy oils and tar sands can get us into the year 2000," said Fred W. Belaire, an Energy Mines and Resources Department analyst.

Two plants, built at a cost of more than $2 billion, are operating today and by 1982 will be extracting about 7 percent of Canada's oil needs from the tar sands — grains of sand surrounded by viscous petroleum.

But the "synthetic" crude oil, while of top quality, is expensive to recover and sells today for about twice the $11.75-a-barrel domestic price for conventional Canadian oils.

Because the tar sands yield "the premium stuff" needed to meet domestic needs, they are not likely to be used for exports, a major bank's energy economist noted.

—GAS: Last year, Canada sent the United States 874 billion cubic feet of gas, and the National Energy Board this summer is reviewing current gas export permits, which begin running out in the late 1980s.

Canada gets nearly 20 percent of its energy from natural gas, and expects demand for gas to nearly double by the end of the century while oil demand expands at a far slower rate.

"There's a lot of anxiety about gas exports," says an energy official, because oil-dependent eastern Canada "also wants gas. The East is running up warning flags on gas exports."

Even if Canada went all-out on gas exports, it could supply only a small portion of U.S. energy needs, said Belaire. He added: "The only thing that could change that is the arctic situation, and that's an unknown."

The Alaska Highway pipeline, planned by Northwest Energy Co. of Salt Lake City and a group of Canadian companies, would be vital for both the United States and Canada in tapping arctic gas reserves. The pipeline would bring currently unused gas from Prudhoe Bay in Alaska to the southern 48 states and could boost U.S. gas supplies by 5 percent.

Although President Carter has said he "will insist personally that the pipeline be built without further delay," ways to finance the project — an undertaking far larger than the 800-mile Alaskan oil pipeline — remain uncertain.

A section of the pipeline linking Canada and the United States might be built by 1981 and could be used for the export of gas from Alberta.

But the Alaska pipeline also could encourage the building of a 2,500-mile, $7 billion spur to Canada's gas-rich Melville Island area far to the north of the Arctic Circle.

Energy economists say gas taken from such a pipeline today would cost from $6 to perhaps $9 per thousand cubic feet, three to four times the current top domestic price for U.S. natural gas.

Canadian gas also might be transported from eastern arctic regions to the south by special ice-breaking tankers.

—ELECTRIC POWER: Canada has been sending the United States electricity since 1901, and major power lines cross the border in New England, New York, Minnesota, North Dakota and Washington. Canadian power is sold as far south as Nebraska.

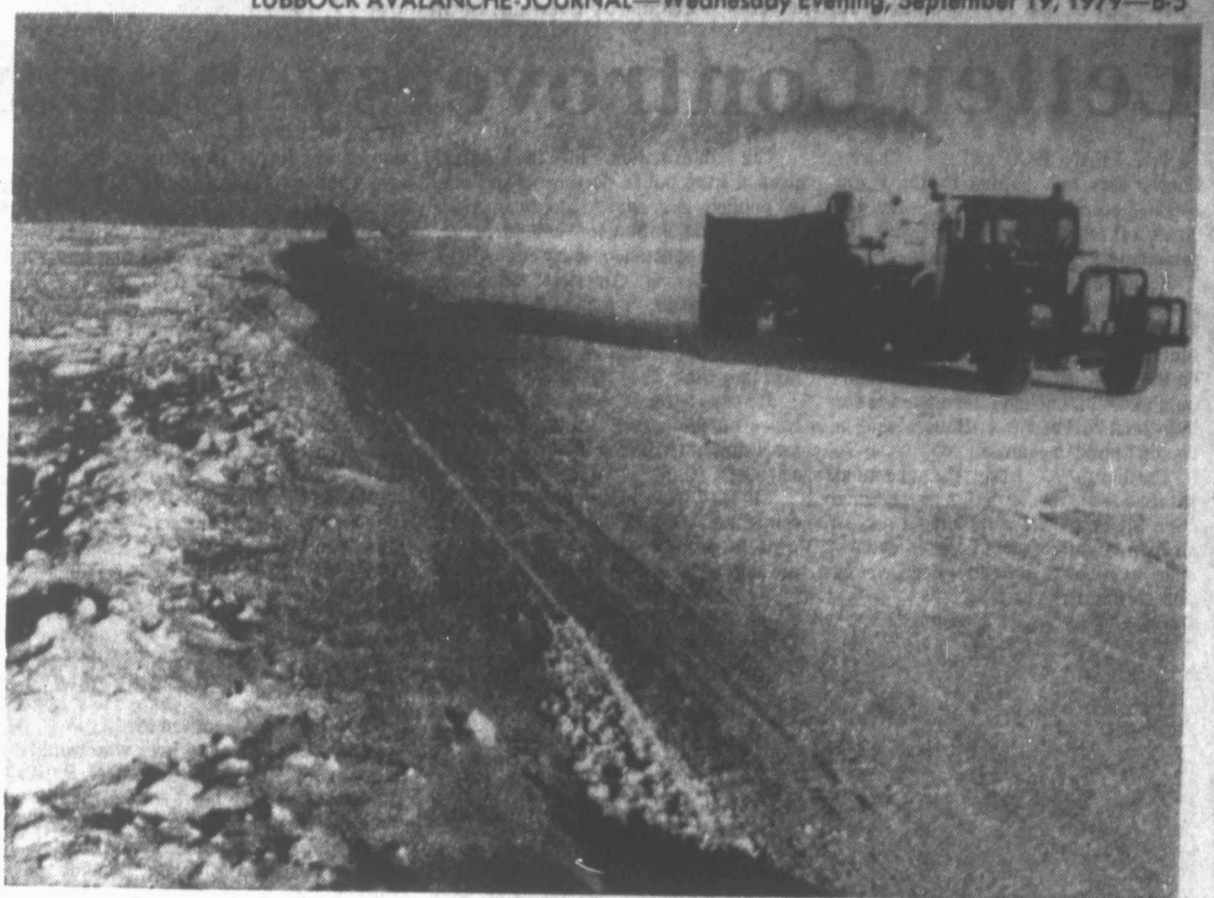

But expansion of Canada's power facilities will cost more than $160 billion over the next dozen years, the Royal Bank says. And the government report notes "lengthy regulatory procedures" and "uncertainties regarding construction and operating costs" in the United States could slow Canada's power export drive.

Rebates, Incentives Cut Automobile Inventories

DETROIT (AP) — Automobile inventories were reported at record levels for the end of August, but big incentives from dealers and Chrysler Corp.'s $400 customer rebates cut the backlog by 14 percent.

The industry was down to a 60-day supply of cars on Sept. 1 compared with 74 days on Aug. 1, the trade publication Automotive News said this week.

That came to 1,752,661 cars in September versus 2,026,315 in August.

Generally, manufacturers and dealers consider a 60-day supply desirable, but they like it to run down slightly just before the new model year.

Still, the Sept. 1 supply was the lowest since a 56-day inventory last Dec. 1, in part the result of stiff production cuts.

Chrysler's stock fell from 106 days to 68 days, compared with 79 days at the same time last year. At General Motors Corp., inventories declined from 66 days to 48 days, still above the 45-day supply on hand last year.

Ford Motor Co.'s backlog rose only slightly, to 87 days from 85, still above last year's 61 days. American Motors Corp. inventories rose from 55 days worth to 81 against 86 last year.

Only six models were over 100 days compared with 27 last month. They were the AMC Pacer at 113 days, Chrysler Cordoba (104), Ford Granada (107), Ford LTD II (142), Ford LTD (101), Mercury Zephyr (101) and Mercury Monarch (121).

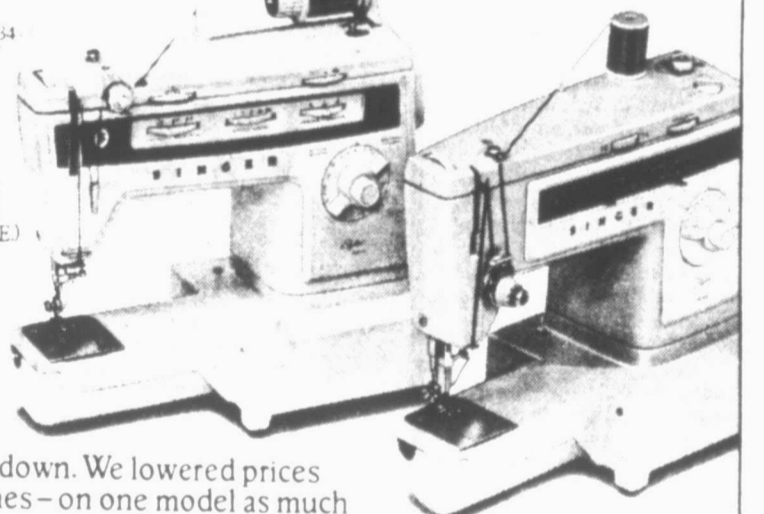

The most demanded cars were the Mercury Cougar, with only three days' worth on hand, and GM's new front-wheel drive compacts — Chevrolet Citation (21), Pontiac Phoenix (18), Oldsmobile Omega (15) and Buick Skylark (nine).

Letter Controversy Surprises Hansen

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Charles Hansen says he's baffled by the storm swirling around his H-bomb letter, the target of court orders and Justice Department threats.

At a news conference, the self-described amateur hydrogen bomb expert told reporters Tuesday that the letter he sent to several newspapers, with details on the construction of a hydrogen bomb, didn't contain enough information for an individual to build one. Hansen said he couldn't build one himself.

Furthermore, said the bearded, short-haired computer programmer from Mountain View, building a nuclear weapon could cost "billions of dollars" since it would require an "extensive, expensive industrial base."

The information in the letter, gleaned from public documents and other publicly accessible data, was more "conceptual than how-to," he said.

In an appearance today on ABC's "Good Morning America" program, Hansen, 32, said, "I wanted to show that they were nothing more than pieces of hardware, how they're produced and how they work."

He asserted that private citizens were called on the carpet by the government for using information made public by scientists.

"If they want to be concerned about something, they should be concerned with the people who have authority over the bomb," he said.

As for his possible criminal prosecution by the Justice Department, Hansen said Tuesday, "I don't believe I've broken any laws."

Mark Topel, Hansen's attorney, called the thought of prosecution under the Atomic Energy Act "foolhardy."

The Justice Department said earlier it would begin a "preliminary inquiry" to determine whether criminal prosecution would be pursued for violation of the act.

Conviction of violating the act carries a prison sentence of up to 10 years and a $10,000 fine.

So far, the letter has been published in part by the Madison, Wis., Press Connection and Berkeley's student-run Daily Californian. The Chicago Tribune published the entire text. A court order blocking publication of the letter in the Daily Californian was tossed out by a San Francisco judge after the Wisconsin paper printed the article in a special Sunday edition.

Hansen, who studies nuclear information as a hobby, told reporters the letter evolved from a request by Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., for information in connection with Howard Morland's article on "The H-Bomb Secret" for the Progressive magazine. He said the letters were sent to the newspapers "as an afterthought."

"I had no idea the material was as sensitive as it was," he said.

Although Hansen said he wouldn't favor publication of an article describing in detail how to make a hydrogen bomb, he said newspapers should have the final word on what articles to print in their own publications.

"By nature I'm a stubborn and individual person," Hansen said. "I don't think government has a right to dictate what other persons think and say."

The Progressive said it intended to print its article in its Oct. 4 issue. The Justice Department has withdrawn from the suit against the magazine which had reached the U.S. 7th Circuit Court of Appeals in Chicago.

Editors of the magazine said Tuesday they would ask U.S. District Judge Robert W. Warren in Milwaukee to open up sealed court records pertaining to the case.

Boston Archdiocese Will Pay For Altar

By The Associated Press

A dispute in Boston over who would pay for an altar for the visit of Pope John Paul II has been settled, and in Washington where plans for a papal Mass have been challenged in court a church spokesman says "the pope obeys the law."

Calling the pope's visit an event meant "to bring us together," the Boston Archdiocese said Tuesday it will pick up the tab for building an altar on the Boston Common.

Still in dispute is whether the pope should be allowed to say Mass on the public Common. A hearing is set for Thursday on a suit filed Tuesday by birth control and abortion advocate William Baird.

"It would be a great pity if the public discussion of financial matters relating to the pope's visit were to distract us from this unique opportunity," said the Rev. William Helmick, the archdiocese's coordinator for the pope's Boston visit.

Helmick said the archdiocese would pay for a $150,000 platform and altar to be used in an open-air Mass on Boston Common on Oct. 1, the first day of the pope's six-day trip to the United States.

The visit should not be an occasion of acrimony or contention among our citizens," he said.

The city had proposed paying for the platform, but the Civil Liberties Union of Massachusetts and others objected to the use of public funds for the visit.

In Washington, where the pope concludes his visit Oct. 7, atheist Madelyn Murray O'Hair and her son John Garth Murray have filed suit challenging use of the Mall between the Washington monument and the Capitol for a Mass before possibly 1 million people Oct. 7.

They contend the visit is a political move by the Roman Catholic Church and there are churches where the pope can say the Mass.

Asked about the suit, the Rev. Robert Lynch, coordinator of the papal visit, said, "the pope obeys the law."

Controversy surrounding the pope's visit was not limited to the United States. A group of Vatican employees expressed concern that the trip may distract him from hearing their own complaints.

In an open letter to the pope, Vatican workers complained that red tape and opposition of prelates were delaying action on a pay increase promised months ago.

In the pope's official itinerary announced Tuesday, the pontiff will visit Harlem and the South Bronx, two of New York City's poorest neighborhoods and visit President and Mrs. Carter at the White House.

It also calls for the pope to spend a day at the United Nations Oct. 2 and meet the permanent members of the U.N. Security Council. According to Vatican sources that would give him a chance for an unprecedented meeting with Chinese Foreign Minister Huang Hua.

John Paul vowed the pope in August of reopening contacts between the Holy See and China.

Husband Allows Wife To Die Because Of Religious Belief

FALMOUTH, Mass. (AP) — A Jehovah's Witness says he was carrying out God's will when he refused to let doctors give his wife a transfusion as she died during childbirth.

The man said his wife, Eleanor L. Maurer, 31, of Falmouth gave two links to doctors who asked her if she would permit a transfusion. Two links was her code for "No," he said.

Mrs. Maurer died Monday after she hemorrhaged while giving birth to her third child, a girl. The baby lived and is being cared for today in Falmouth Hospital.

"We have great respect for life and want to try to keep living and healthy as long as possible," said the husband, John Maurer. The only restriction we have to abide by is that, as God told all of us in the Bible, to abstain from blood.

Jehovah's Witnesses refuse blood transfusions on the basis of a passage in Leviticus that reads "Whatsoever man eats any manner of blood, I will cut him off from among his people."

Maurer said that before she died, his wife agreed that she should not go against her religion's teaching and accept a transfusion.

Maurer was in the delivery room when his wife began to bleed uncontrollably, but he left while doctors tried to stop the flow.

As he waited, he said, doctors asked him four times to allow them to administer blood, but he refused.

"I understood how serious it was every time, but God is serious, too," Maurer said.

Dr. Raymond Gagnon, who said he provided pre-natal care for Mrs. Maurer, said his patient started bleeding shortly after the child was delivered about 11:30 a.m. He said she died at around 4 p.m.

"I have never seen anyone die in these circumstances," Dr. Gagnon said, and I hope never to see it again.

Her husband was present during labor and in the delivery room. She was conscious. There was no way we could do anything. He was there until the end. He was rather reserved.

They had signed papers before entering the hospital stating that there was to be no blood transfusion. But there was nothing to foresee this.

There were several doctors there. People coming in and out, all trying to persuade him. What can you do?"

It is possible to seek a court order board of directors voted Tuesday night not to charter 100 buses for the pope's Oct. 4 visit.

General Manager Forrest Swift said the decision may cause problems for thousands of visitors. But he said the MTA's responsibility is to those who ride the buses on a regular basis.

Louisville Police Told To Hire More Blacks

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — A federal judge has ruled that one out of every three new city police recruits for the next five years must be black to correct the results of past discrimination.

U.S. District Judge Charles Allen ruled Tuesday that the city did not hire enough black police officers in seven recent years.

Where there is a significant under-representation of an ethnic minority, and where violations of the federal Civil Rights Act have occurred, there is an obligation upon the court to remedy that past discrimination," Allen said in his ruling.

His hiring quota will be in effect until the end of 1984. Allen calculated that by then, the percentage of black officers in the department will have grown from about 7 percent to just under 15 percent.

Through a comparison of 1970 census statistics, Allen concluded that blacks constitute 15 percent of the Louisville-area labor market from which the city can select its officers.

The ruling came in a class action suit filed five years ago by the Louisville Black Police Officers' Organization against the city alleging racial discrimination in police hiring, promotion and discipline.

She winked no at them that she did not want it. I know she did not want it. She wasn't trying to put on a show. She just knew that if it was God's will, that he wanted her to be healed, he could perform a miracle to make her get better.

Soviet Ballet Company Raps Latest Defectors

MOSCOW (AP) — Embittered by the loss of three soloists seeking Western careers, Russia's Bolshoi Ballet troupe returned to a quiet welcome, and one dancer labeled the two latest defectors "scum" who had been given roles beyond their talents.

One tall blond colleague said dancer Leonid Kozlov and his wife Valentina, who defected after taking final bows in the Bolshoi's month-long U.S. tour, had done the unforgivable: "Left their parents and homeland."

Kozlov danced the lead in "Swan Lake" Sunday night in Los Angeles, replacing Alexander Godunov, one of Russia's finest dancers who defected in New York Aug. 22. The Kozlovs slipped away from the company after the final curtain call and sought U.S. asylum Monday morning.

"We couldn't believe it," a female dancer told Western reporters while the 125-member troupe filed through customs at Moscow's Sheremetyevo airport Tuesday.

Other dancers said the Kozlovs' defection upset them, at least in part because they were not considered among the company's most talented performers, despite their solo roles.

"We have a lot of good dancers so they are no big loss," said Vyacheslav Gordeyev, husband of fellow dancer Nadezhda Pavlova. The Kozlovs "got good parts and therefore, we could not expect them to leave," said Gordeyev.

Western ballet experts said the Kozlovs were competent, but not among the premier Soviet dancers. Their solos during the U.S. tour were considered a major career boost, the sources said.

Godunov's wife, 36-year-old Bolshoi ballerina Ludmilla Vlasova, returned to the Soviet Union after he defected, receiving a heroine's welcome. Her flight to Moscow was delayed for three days at New York's Kennedy Airport while U.S. officials sought to determine if she was going back of her own free will.

The defections of Godunov, 30, Leonid Kozlov, 32, and Valentina Kozlova, 25, were the first from the Bolshoi, Russia's most prestigious ballet company.

WEATHER FORECAST — The National Weather Service forecast for Thursday calls for rain over the mid-Atlantic coast and west through the southern Ohio Valley. ## Uranium Discovered Missing From Plant

ERWIN, Tenn. (UPI) — An undisclosed amount of highly enriched uranium calls for rain over the mid-Atlantic coast and west through the southern Ohio Valley. Showers are expected over Wyoming and Colorado, as well as parts of Texas, Oklahoma and Louisiana, and the Great Lakes states. (AP Laserphoto)

The uranium was missed during a routine inventory at Nuclear Fuel Services Inc., a private concern in a mountainous region of east Tennessee near the North Carolina border. The Nuclear Regulatory Commission sent seven inspectors to the plant Tuesday.

"An intensive review of accounting methods is underway," NRC spokesman Frank Ingram said in Washington. "This will be followed by a detailed materials inventory." He said the shutdown meant the firm would halt the manufacturing process involving the uranium until the check is completed.

Federal officials would not disclose the amount of uranium missing, indicating the information was classified. But, under the firm's operating license, any discrepancy of 19.8 pounds or more requires a shutdown for inventory within 72 hours.

Experts do not agree on how much highly enriched uranium would be required to make a nuclear device. In 1977, however, the NRC said 40 pounds of the material would be sufficient. Ingram said the agency is "not ignoring" the possibility the uranium could have been stolen, but said "right now it's considered to be an inventory difference. We have preliminarily notified the FBI."

"We haven't issued an order like this before," said Ingram, who described inventory discrepancies as common. "We thought it was prudent in this case."

Last January, a construction worker removed 150 pounds of low-grade uranium from a General Electric & Co. nuclear fuel fabrication plant in Wilmington, N.C., and demanded $100,000 in ransom. An attorney for David L. Dale said the man simply walked into the plant, picked up the uranium on a handcart, loaded it in a car and drove away. The man, now serving 15 years in a federal prison, vowed to distribute the uranium throughout a major city if the ransom wasn't paid.

Union Expected To Ratify Pact

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers union expects handy approval by local unions of the new contract with General Motors Corp. now that local leaders have endorsed it.

The contract was signed today, subject to ratification, by the 46 members of the bargaining teams of the union and GM.

Members of the union's GM Council — officers of the 151 locals — recommended ratification in a closed meeting Tuesday by what UAW President Douglas A. Fraser called an "overwhelming" majority.

Some 3,000 shop stewards, committeemen and officers will hear an explanation of the contract in Dallas on Friday and Saturday. Voting should begin Sunday and be finished by Oct. 1, the union has said.

The contract provides large increases in pensions, more than 10 percent a year for some, extends automatic recognition to the union in future new plants, continues the traditional 3 percent annual wage increase and makes the current cost-of-living formula more generous in the third year.

A total of 14 cents an hour of future cost-of-living increases will be withheld to help finance the pension increases.

Bank Raises Prime Rate To Record High Level

NEW YORK (UPI) — Chemical Bank of New York today raised its prime rate to 13 1/4 percent, a quarter point increase that puts the interest rate at another all-time high.

The action by Chemical, the nation's sixth largest bank, followed the increase Tuesday by the Federal Reserve Board in the discount rate — what it charges member banks for loans — to a record 11 percent from 10 1/2 percent.

The increase in the discount rate signaled the Fed's determination to use high interest rates to cool borrowing and, it hoped, dampen inflation.

The prime has been rising since July 27 when it went up a quarter of a point to 11 1/4 percent.

Some analysts have been expecting the prime rate, the rate that banks charge preferred corporate customers, to go over the 13 percent mark for several weeks.

In August, banks matched the previous record of 12 percent set in the 1974 recession year and then climbed to 12 1/4 percent by Sept. 7. Chase Manhattan, the No. 3 bank, posted a 13 percent prime just a week ago and the rest of the banking industry swept in behind just last Friday.

The Fed's Open Market Committee met Tuesday to set domestic monetary policy for the coming weeks. The conclusions reached at the meeting are not yet announced but the Fed's opinion that interest rates are not high enough is unmistakable in its action to boost the discount rate.

While the recent climb in the prime has been a reaction to hikes in other interest rates, money market analysts are beginning to express doubts about just how much further the Fed will be willing to tighten credit.

At some point, tighter credit will start to discourage borrowing and, in turn, slow economic activity that already is in a recessionary phase, in the view of many analysts. Overly tight money would serve to worsen the economic slowdown as it did in the 1973-75 recession.

Housewife Tells Police Of Kidnapping, Rape

A young housewife told Lubbock police early this morning she was kidnapped at 34th Street and Avenue P and raped by one of her three abductors in the back seat of a car.

The 18-year-old Lubbock woman said she was walking home about 2:30 a.m. today when three black men, traveling in a 1969 blue Camaro, drove up and yelled at her.

The woman said she began running toward Avenue P when one of the men jumped out of the vehicle and chased her down. She said she was forced into the car, where one man reportedly sat in the back seat holding a pistol, and driven south on Avenue P.

The woman said she was not sure of the exact location, but that the suspects stopped and the man who caught her outside the car, ripped her clothes off and sexually assaulted her.

Police were told the woman, still nude, was driven back to an alley near 34th Street and Avenue P and pushed out of the car, along with her clothing. After dressing and walking home, the victim went with her husband to the police department and reported the incident about 4:30 a.m.

The woman was examined at Health Sciences Center Hospital.

The rapist was described as thin, about 5 feet 10 inches tall, and with a 3-inch scar on his right forearm. He reportedly was wearing a striped shirt, jeans and boots.

Another suspect was described as thin, tall, and wearing a white T-shirt and jeans. The third man reportedly was heavy-set. All three were thought to be about 25 years old.

City police early today also were investigating a reported theft at the Lubbock Civic Center which resulted in Judy Lou Rogers, executive director of the Lubbock Visitors and Conventions Bureau, losing $475.

Miss Rogers said when she returned to her Civic Center office about 3 p.m. Tuesday after being gone about an hour, a co-worker handed her her wallet, which she said he had found in another room.

The director said she inspected the billfold and discovered the cash missing. She added she had gone to the bank earlier that day to withdraw the cash so she could pay for some furniture she had bought over the past weekend.

The investigating officer reported that he received a list of full-time employees at the center, adding that the city-funded center's administration would supply an additional list of temporary help on duty Tuesday for the purpose of questioning possible suspects.

A 16-year-old Lubbock boy was taken into custody about 9 p.m. Tuesday after police said he was caught burglarizing a car in the 6500-block of Salem Avenue.

The youth allegedly had broken into another vehicle and made off with about $1,500 in property before being caught.

A 19-year-old Lubbock man told police that a young Mexican-American male pulled a pistol on him and took his radio Tuesday afternoon in an alley in the 2400-block of Colgate Street.

Mike Castillo of 213 N. Ave. Q said that he was waiting about 1:45 p.m. for his brother to get out of school near Clovis Road and Akron Avenue when the suspect approached and asked him to go to his house on 50th Street to look at some guns.

Reports show that the suspect and Castillo were walking up the north alley in the 2400-block of Colgate Street when the suspect pointed a small-caliber pistol at Castillo's back and told him to put the radio down. Castillo said the suspect then ordered him to go to a nearby school to buy some marijuana for him, telling Castillo that he would wait for him.

Castillo called police from the school. When officers and the victim went back to the scene of the alleged armed robbery, the suspect had fled.

Castillo said the suspect was 18 to 25, short and thin and was wearing a white short-sleeve sweater and denim overalls.

A 31-year-old Lubbock man was jailed Tuesday morning for aggravated assault and theft over $20, following an incident about 9:14 a.m. in the parking lot of K-Mart, 34th Street and Avenue Q.

When police arrived at the scene, Steve Bachran, assistant manager of the store, told them he had been run over by a man in a pickup truck whom he suspected of shoplifting. Bachran said the suspect had driven behind the store, and when police went behind the store, they saw that two men had apprehended the suspect and they took him into custody.

Bachran reported that he had seen the suspect take several items from the infant counter at the store and followed him to the parking lot. Reports show that when Bachran accused the suspect of taking some items from the store, the suspect placed his pickup truck into reverse, knocking Bachran to the pavement.

Another store employee, Brian Heller, told police that he then jumped into the back of the pickup truck and removed the keys. Reports indicate that the suspect jumped out of the pickup truck and began running but was caught by Heller and Jeff Feyerherm. The clothing the suspect had taken was valued at $33.85.

Thomas A. Ball of 5204 50th St. said that someone stole his $1,500 motorcycle from the parking lot at his apartment complex sometime Monday night or Tuesday morning.

In another motorcycle theft, Carl T. Blum of 3001 South Loop 289 told police that he left his cycle in the 3600-block of South Loop 289 after having mechanical trouble with it. But when he returned to get the cycle Tuesday morning, someone had taken it. The cycle was valued at $900.

Claudio Zapata of 3116 Dartmouth St. said that someone removed a $1,000 pistol from his van sometime between Aug. 24 and Friday.

Lubbock County sheriff's deputies Tuesday afternoon jailed two Carlisle sisters, ages 17 and 19, for the May burglary of a county residence. Deputies had received a tip through Crime Line implicating one of the women in the burglary.

Tech, LCHD Slate More Negotiations

By KIM COBB
Avalanche-Journal Staff

County hospital district officials and Texas Tech administrators emerged from a lengthy private session Tuesday without having reached a contract settlement for shared services between Health Sciences Center Hospital and the Tech medical school.

But the meeting is scheduled to reconvene Monday and hospital administrator Bob Berryman predicts the group should be ready to discuss a contract after two or three more sessions.

Meeting with the hospital district board were Dan Williams, interim vice president for administration for Texas Tech; Bill Hatherill, clinical coordinator for the medical school and the county commissioners.

However, commissioner Alton Brazzell left the meeting when the group went into executive session, saying he doesn't believe in closed sessions, adding that public business should be conducted before the public.

Apparently discussion of resident physicians' salaries and hospital utility costs dominated the almost three-hour closed session. Board member Joe Stanley said that the various parties are not "butting heads," but are looking for a way to fund the services shared by the hospital and medical school.

Before the group closed the doors on the meeting, hospital finance director Tom Kearney stressed that the hospital only has a set amount of money available in the 1980 budget to be allotted for shared services.

"This hospital can afford gross shared services of $2,380,000," Kearney said. "Any more will be over budget."

Administrator Berryman said, "I think it is very important to establish in the beginning an understanding of the hospital's ability."

Berryman described the session later as being "very cooperative," adding "It's probably the first time people have understood all the ramifications of the situation."

Berryman said "certain points of agreement have been reached" in certain areas, but he declined to say which areas.

Timmons Given Six-Year Term

Jerry L. Timmons was assessed six years in prison Tuesday by the same 140th District Court jury that found him guilty of aggravated robbery.

Jurors deliberated more than two hours before agreeing on the sentence. However, it took them only about an hour to reach the guilty verdict.

Timmons, already on probation, was convicted of robbing Johnny Alfred Dyer after threatening him with a baseball bat on the night of June 5 in East Lubbock.

In one unusual aspect of the case, 56-year-old Louis Clifton of 1508 Ave. C was charged with tampering with a witness after he reportedly told Dyer outside the witness room Monday that he should drop the charges against Timmons. "If you know what's good for you..."

Villagers Taking Blood Tests To Check For PCB

FRANKLIN, Idaho (AP) — Though some say the idea is silly, residents of this small Idaho farming village are volunteering for blood tests today to see how much of the outlawed chemical PCB they may have absorbed from eggs or contact with feed at a local poultry farm.

Residents were to gather at the Mormon Church's activity center to fill out questionnaires and give blood samples in the test program conducted by the Idaho Department of Health and the National Center for Disease Control.

Health officials said they also might ask lactating mothers to give breast milk samples. PCB — polychlorinated biphenyl — was discovered in eggs and chickens from Rite-wood Egg Co. of Franklin, a major egg supplier to western states. PCB was widely used as a coolant for electrical equipment before April when the Environmental Protection Agency banned its manufacture. Since the discovery in Idaho, the firm has voluntarily killed more than 300,000 chickens and smashed millions of eggs. Food and Drug Administration investigators traced the contamination to meal produced by Pierce Packing Co. of Billings, Mont., and shipped to Rite-wood as use as chicken feed. Pierce officials said the meal apparently became contaminated from a leaky transformer at their plant.

Official Predicting Increase In Farm Commodity Exports

By KATHLEEN HARRIS, Avalanche-Journal Farm Writer. About 28 percent of the farmer's income is derived from the export of farm commodities and this percentage will continue to grow, according to Russ Strobel of the U. S. Department of Agriculture Foreign Agriculture Service.

Strobel joined Texas Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown and other farm and marketing officials in an agricultural commodities export seminar Monday to inform producers and processors about the intricacies and importance of exporting American goods.

Products that won't sell in the United States, such as high-tannin grain sorghum seed. Jim Gilbreath of R. C. Young Seed and Grain Co. of Lubbock said the seed potential far outweighs the problems in exporting.

Statistics Prove Need For United Way Agency

Brian's Big Brother is Lt. Bill Allen. It was almost by accident that Bill became involved in the program. He said he was going to volunteer for another agency but just before calling he heard a radio public service announcement for BB/BS and became interested in the organization.

Now, Bill said, he is very impressed with the program. He has been with little brother Brian for 15 months and both are pleased with their relationship and the activities.

"What I like most about the program is the one-to-one relationship. Having a friendship with a young person will keep you in the know," Bill said.

Brian said, "It gives me stuff to do and it's nice to have somebody to do it with you. I liked Bill when I first met him."

Some of the new things that Brian is getting to do are workouts at Reese Air Force Base, agency-organized trips, see the circus and travel to Palo Duro Canyon for the play "Texas."

However, most of the activities they have are not of a spectacular nature. Many times it's getting out on the miniature golf course, going out for a soft drink or bowling — things that give them the opportunity to talk and get to know one another.

Both say they will stay in the program, with Brian admitting he might even be a big brother when he's older and has achieved his dream of college and employment with the fire department.

Both said many of their friends have inquired about their participation in the BB/BS organization. According to agency director Jim Douglass, there is a very great need for adult males to join the program. Statistics show that 45 percent of babies born in 1978 will at some time live in a single-parent household and 18 million children already do.

In Lubbock, statistics say that in the next several years two out of every five children will, at some time, live in a single parent household.

Douglass said these figures prove the need for BB/BS. He said it is no fault of the single parent. Many times he or she has to work and cannot meet the special needs of the child.

However, Douglass cautioned, the big brother or sister is not there to replace the parent but to play a supportive role and provide a positive direction for the child. He said that many times the little brother will approach the big brother to talk because of his non-family status and his ability to be perhaps much less judgmental than a parent.

Also, Douglass said, the big brother or sister can become a sounding board for the child, a person he sometimes feels more comfortable with than a parent or family member.

Douglass said the program provides an environment for the child that is an outlet for things that are fun but also things that are serious.

To become a big brother or big sister one must first participate in an orientation with the staff, the director said. He or she will learn there the requirements and the advantages and disadvantages of the program.

Screening the prospective candidate is a very involved process and is done very carefully by the staff. He or she must provide four character references and fill out an application, including a complete background description.

A personal interview is part of the process of determining which matches should be made. Douglass said matches are not made by the waiting list, but rather by compatibility of the child and the big brother or sister.

After a meeting through the case worker, the teams are given a two-month trial period and the case worker keeps in close touch during this time. After the trial period, the participants are put on a permanent status, if they are compatible.

There are no dues for the BB/BS program. It is one of 34 United Way agencies.

Fair Slates SPC Acts For Show

Four acts, followed by South Plain College's "Golden Years of Country Music" presentation, will highlight a special three-hour show Thursday as part of the 62nd annual Panhandle South Plains Fair.

The fair is scheduled Saturday through Sept. 22-29.

General manager Steve L. Lewis said the four acts represent varied entertainment and all four are widely known throughout the region.

Scheduled to perform are "South Plains Bluegrass," The Maines Brothers, "Mary Beth and the West Texas Travelers" and South Plain College's "Baker's Dozen."

"Golden Year" played to more than 14,000 persons this summer in its road show of 18 cities in Texas and New Mexico, including a Lubbock show sponsored by the Downtown Kiwanis Club.

"We are very pleased to have the opportunity to participate in the fair," commented John Hartin, electric guitarist and vocalist in the show. Hartin also is director of SPC's degree program in country and bluegrass music.

The country music show features 50 songs, including "T.B. Blues" by Jimmy Rodgers and "Good Hearted Woman" by Waylon Jennings.

The "Golden Years" portion of the program is scheduled to begin at 8:30 p.m. Opening time for the pre-show activities is 7 p.m.

It is but one of 11 big shows scheduled to highlight the fair. Lewis said there are plenty of seats remaining for all of the Fair Park Coliseum shows.

In addition to a varied slate of acts scheduled on the outdoor stage throughout the engagement, shows have been crammed into the eight-day run.

Free entertainment outside includes Bob Ford's world of magic; Vandermeide, Europe's fastest hypnotist; the Amarillo Gunfighters; the Flatland Bluegrass band; Sam Hill and the Tennessee Sounds; Lubbock and area square dance club; and mime Ruth Rubin following lineup:

The Charley Pride show, 5 p.m. and 8 p.m. Sunday; the Statler Brothers, with Barbara Mandrell, 5 p.m. and 8 p.m.

Monday: the Eddie Rabbitt show, with Janie Fricks, 8 p.m., Tuesday only; the Dave and Sugar show, with John Conlee, 8 p.m., Tuesday Only; "The Golden Years of Country Music," presented by South Plains College, 7 p.m., Thursday only; the Tom T. Hall show, with Charly McClains, 8 p.m., Friday only; and the Tammy Wynette show, with Rex Allen Jr. and George "Goober" Lindsey, 5 p.m. and 8 p.m. Saturday.

Tickets for all other coliseum shows except the SPC event $4, $5 and $6 and all seats are reserved. Tickets for the SPC show are $2 and $3.

Tickets may be obtained at the fair office, Dunlap's, Sears and Hemphill-Well stores in the South Plains Mall, Lusk's Western Wear or at Ed's Wagon Wheel.

Trustees Expected To Decide On Land Purchase At Meeting

Public school trustees are expected to decide at their regular board meeting Thursday whether to purchase property from Calvary Baptist Church, possibly to expand parking facilities for Lubbock High School.

The board met for a two-hour closed session Monday night to discuss acquisition of the church property across from the downtown high school, sources told the Avalanche-Journal Monday.

Although trustees would not reveal any information about the proposed purchase, board president Monte Hasie said the land under consideration "certainly could be used for parking."

Lubbock High principal Knox Williams, who attended the meeting, acknowledged that the school has "a growing problem" finding sufficient parking spaces for students.

Williams said that some students must park within a four or five block radius of the school.

Also on Thursday's agenda is the presentation of a model of a proposed learning center for Wilson Elementary School. The model was designed and built this summer by students in the department of architecture at Texas Tech University.

The students worked with the Wilson

PTA on the project that would be utilized by the school and the community. If approved by the board and the PTA, plans call for construction on the center to begin this year.

The board also will hear a report from architect Byron Martin who was employed by the school district to help develop long range plans for a school bus maintenance facility.

Jackson's Conviction Upheld By Court

A-J Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The involuntary manslaughter conviction and 10-year sentence assessed J.D. Jackson by a Lubbock County jury in the death of his 19-month-old daughter were upheld Wednesday by the Court of Criminal Appeals.

As stated in the court's opinion, the child's mother left the girl at Jackson's apartment while she went to work on Aug. 10, 1975, with Jackson calling her at work to report the child was ill.

Jackson picked up the mother, and the two returned to the apartment to find the child lying naked on the bathroom floor and not breathing.

The woman testified Jackson said he had spanked the child for "missing on herself" and then placed her in the bathtub before leaving the apartment; she also said Jackson threatened to hit her with a wrench if she attempted to call an ambulance or the police.

She also testified she and Jackson took the child's body and left it on the side of a road "in an isolated section of the city" where it was found later by police. She also said she telephoned police prior to that time to tell them the child had been kidnapped.

Testimony by a doctor who performed an autopsy on the child indicated the immediate cause of death was "asphyxia caused by strangulation." The doctor also testified that he found abrasions, bruises and two second-degree burns on the body.

Jackson, in his appeal, attacked introduction of photographs showing the deceased on the autopsy table, and in allowing testimony by a police officer regarding his belief that the anonymous call regarding the location of the child's body came from a "black man."

Jury Finds Lubbock Man Guilty Of Forging Check

A 99th District Court jury Tuesday took only 10 minutes to find Ricky Lav-elle Smith guilty of forging a $279 check on March 19.

Smith, who waived his right to have the jury assess punishment, will be sentenced by Judge Thomas L. Clinton after the judge reviews presentencing reports prepared by the adult probation office.

Smith, 25, of 1918 48th St. and a 22-year-old female companion were arrested March 19 after they had cashed one check at American State Bank and were attempting to cash another at Bank of

DR. LAMB

Not Comparable

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.
 DEAR DR. LAMB — In one of your columns you said there was an increased tendency to develop atherosclerosis in men who have had a vasectomy. You said the sperm cells are not allowed to escape and remain in the body and are treated as foreign protein leading to the increased risk of hardening of the arteries.

Doesn't this same problem exist in single men like myself who for ethical reasons do not engage in sexual intercourse until marriage? Does it mean that I'm running the risk of developing atherosclerosis because I'm not engaging in sex?

DEAR READER — In my previous column I referred to some research studies that had been done which did show an increased tendency to atherosclerosis or at least to develop higher levels of cholesterol.

The animals that were used for this study were on a very high cholesterol diet and I'm not sure that this information can be directly transferred to man. However, it's significant enough to suggest that men who have had a vasectomy should be particularly careful in terms of their diet and body weight and exercise.

Specifically, such men should be sure to be on a relatively low-fat, low-cholesterol diet and avoid obesity and smoking cigarettes. I don't mind giving that advice because it's good for all men and if everybody did it, we'd have a significant decrease in heart attacks.

To give you a better idea of the factors that do increase your risk of heart attacks, I am sending you The Health Letter number 13-2, How To Measure Your Risk Of Heart Disease. Other readers who want this information can send 75 cents in check or coin with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Refraining from cigarette smoking could also prevent lung cancer, the leading cause of cancer deaths in men. If it were not for the increase in lung cancer, the deaths from cancer would actually be declining for each age group.

No, I don't think you can compare a vasectomy to your personal situation. There is no evidence that not having sex will lead to having heart disease. The simple truth is, as long as the exit for the sperm cells is not blocked, as occurs with a vasectomy, and build-up or accumulation of them will simply result in their migration to the prostate gland.

You may not realize that the sperm cells represent such a small portion of the male orgasm that you'd have trouble seeing their contribution with the naked eye. Almost everything else comes from the prostate gland and other secretory glands. The sperm cells formed in the normal male merely migrate up the vas deferens tube to the prostate gland.

So, from a scientific point of view, it doesn't make too much difference what you choose to do about your sex life insofar as the risk of heart disease is concerned.

Army Eliminates School Requirement To Achieve Recruiting Goal

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army, unable to meet its manpower goals, will soon loosen schooling requirements so more young men and women can qualify for enlistment, sources say.

At the same time, the Army is raising its recruiting objective for the 1980 fiscal year starting Oct. 1 in hopes of overcoming this year's shortage.

The Army is eliminating a requirement that male and female volunteers complete at least the 10th grade before trying to enlist, said the sources, who asked to remain anonymous.

Formal announcement of the actions was expected shortly.

"It won't make any difference how much schooling you've got, so long as you can pass the entrance qualification test," said one senior officer.

The minimum acceptable score on that mental test will remain at 31 percent. The Army still will hunt for as many high school graduates as it can attract, officials said. High school graduates generally have proven more reliable and more likely to finish their enlistments, according to military manpower studies.

The relaxing of school requirements or recruits is the latest in a series of steps the Army has taken in a so-far unsuccessful effort to fill its ranks.

Gen. Edward C. Meyer, the Army's new chief of staff, told a news conference Monday that "it looks now as though, at the end of ... the fiscal year, we are going to end up somewhere around 13,000-to-15,000 short."

Pentagon officials reported shortly afterward that the four services all were below their enlistment objectives by a total of 23,300 men and women as of the end of August, only a month from the finish of the current fiscal year.

While loosening its school requirements for enlistment, the Army upped its fiscal 1980 goal to 173,000 recruits — nearly 15,000 above this year's objective.

Last summer the Army reversed a year-old policy and decided to accept 17-year-old male volunteers who have not completed high school but finished at least the tenth grade.

The Army also has ruled that generally higher standards demanded of women recruits in the past would be brought in line with those for men as of Oct. 1. This action was taken when enlistments of women showed a dramatic drop early this year.

While abandoning the 10th grade school minimum, the Army said it would use a new "military applicant profile" questionnaire to screen 17-year-old male enlistees as a method of predicting whether they will finish their schooling.

TAUGHT SURVIVAL

MYSTIC, Conn. (AP) — A young pilot whale, nursed back to health after being found beached in May, will not be released into the ocean until spring, say experts at the Mystic Marine Aquarium. Aquarium spokeswoman Laura Keezer said original plans were to free the 900-pound mammal, named "Whale," in November, but it was now thought wiser to release Whale near a group of whales in the spring.

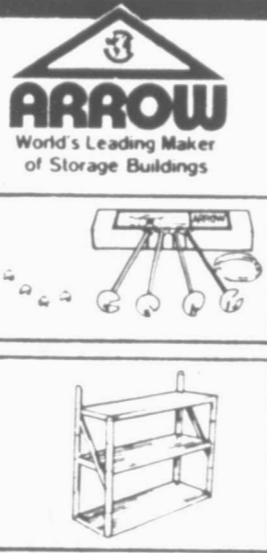

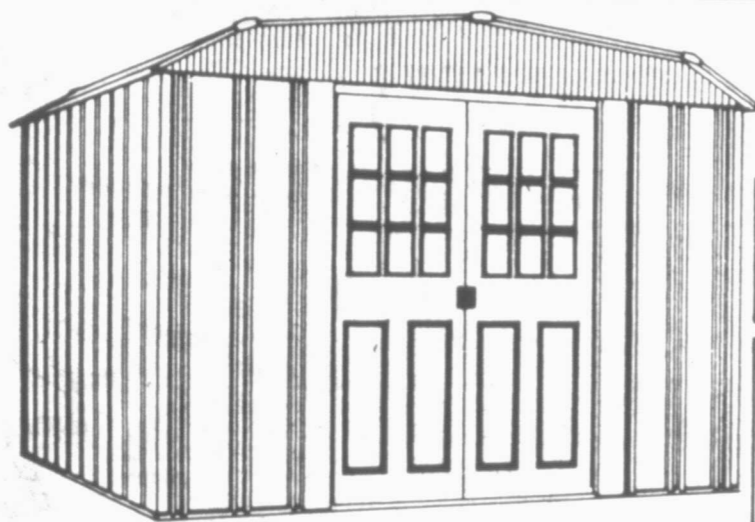

three- or four-year enlistments. This screening device will be tested on women selectively for the time being.

The method involves giving 17-year-old male recruits 60 multiple-choice writing questions designed to explore their home life backgrounds, experiences in school, attitudes, interests and how they performed in civilian jobs.

Meyer indicated he believes the manpower problems can be overcome by 1981 if Congress votes nearly $49 million the Army has requested to increase recruiting resources and provide bonuses and other incentives next year.

WHITES HOME & AUTO ADVERTISING POLICY

Our every intention is to have all advertised items in stock and on our shelves. If for any unforeseen reason an advertised item is not available, Whites will cheerfully issue a RAIN CHECK on request for the merchandise at the sale price when it becomes available. Whites will offer a comparable item at a similar reduction in price. This does not apply to special purchase, clearance and closeout sales where quantities are limited.

If a stock item is not advertised as reduced or as a special purchase, it is at its regular White's low price. A special purchase item, though not at a reduced price, represents an exceptional value.

Prices effective through September 22, 1979

PUBLIC NOTICE OF REQUEST FOR RELEASE OF FUNDS
 City of Lubbock, P.O. Box 2000, Lubbock, Texas 79407, (806) 762-6411.
 TO ALL INTERESTED PARTIES: On September 27, 1979, the City will request the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) to release federal funds under Title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 (PL 93-383) for the following project:
 REHABILITATION OF ANNE SIMMONS SWIMMING POOL, 440-000-00.
 CONSTRUCTION OF YELLOW-HOUSE CANYON ADDITION ACCESS ROAD, 536,000-00.
 The City has made an environmental review of the project. This record is on file at the above address and is available for public examination and copying, upon request. The City will undertake the project described above with Block Grant funds from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development under Title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974. The City is certifying to HUD that the City and Mayor Dirk West, in his official capacity as Mayor, consent to accept the jurisdiction of the federal courts if an action is brought to enforce responsibilities in relation to environmental review, decision-making, and approval, and that these responsibilities have been satisfied. The legal effect of the certification and HUD will have satisfied its responsibilities under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969. HUD will accept an objection to its approval of the release of funds and acceptance of the release of funds on or after the date of the following basis: (a) that the certification was not in fact executed by the chief executive officer or other officer of the City approved by HUD; or (b) that the City's environmental review or public examination and copying, upon request, project indicates omission of a required step applicable to the project in the environmental review process. Objections must be prepared and submitted in accordance with the required procedure (24 CFR Part 81) and may be addressed to the Director of the Federal Office of Management and Budget, Room 3024, 1200 Pennsylvania Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20546. Objections received after October 15, 1979 will not be considered by HUD. No objection received after October 15, 1979 will be considered by HUD.
 Dirk West, Mayor

Friend Tells Why Egbert Disappeared

Detroit (UPI) — A friend of James Dallas Egbert III, the missing Michigan State University computer prodigy who vanished for a month before being located by a Texas investigator, says the 16-year-old was trying to run away from personal problems.
 "He (Egbert) said the teachers, his parents, the people on his (dormitory) floor, just everybody was jumping down his throat and he wanted to get his head together," the unidentified friend was quoted as saying today in the Detroit Free Press.
 At first police believed Egbert, who disappeared Aug. 15, may have been the victim of foul play or become trapped in 8½ miles of underground steam tunnels on the MSU campus in East Lansing where he often went to play the bizarre fantasy game "Dungeons and Dragons."
 But the newspaper quoted Egbert's friend as saying the disappearance had nothing to do with the game and that the Huber Heights, Ohio, youth was with "an acquaintance" during his absence.
 Egbert, the newspaper said, refused to say where he was during the time between his disappearance and when he was found last Thursday by William Dear, a Desoto private investigator hired by Egbert's parents.
 Meanwhile, Dear has returned to Michigan to meet with an unidentified woman tipster who is claiming a $5,000 reward for helping locate Egbert. The woman met with Dear's investigators last week in an attempt to arrange Egbert's return, Dear said.
 He said it had not been determined whether the woman was entitled to the reward.

Priests Picked For Council

DENVER (UPI) — Episcopal church officials Tuesday announced the selection of two Episcopal priests, Maurice M. Benitez of the Diocese of Texas and Herbert A. Donovan Jr. of the Newark, N.J., diocese, to serve on the church's executive council.
 Officials said the men have been chosen as members of the council which governs the church during the three-year periods between General Conventions. The House of Deputies selected the two priests and six laypersons as their representatives on the council.
 Selection came at the church's 66th General Convention, which concludes Thursday after 12 days.
 Benitez currently is rector of St. John the Divine in Houston and has served congregations in Florida and west Texas. Donovan began his ministry in Wyoming, was executive officer of the Diocese of Kentucky and now serves as rector of St. Luke's Church in Monclair, N.J.
 Laypersons selected for the panel were Mrs. Carter C. Chinn of the Diocese of Washington D.C.; John L. Carson III of Denver; Robert F. Gaines, senior warden of Trinity Cathedral in Sacramento, Calif.; Harry Griffith, Diocese of Central Florida; Harry W. Havemeyer, senior warden of St. James Church, New York City, and Mrs. Thomas S. Hutchinson, Diocese of Dallas.
 The council, chaired by presiding Bishop John M. Allin, meets quarterly.

Report Cites Waste In Auto Repairs

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressional report says about 40 percent of the $50 billion Americans spend annually for car repair is wasted.
 The conclusion of the report issued Tuesday by the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce subcommittee on consumer protection and finance is identical to earlier estimates by the National Highway Traffic and Safety Administration. Rep. James H. Scheuer, D-N.Y., subcommittee chairman, said "a little bit more than half" of the wasted costs is due to mechanics' incompetence or negligence and the rest due to fraud. The most common unnecessary repairs, the report said, are brake work, tune-ups, front-end work such as replacement of shock absorbers and ball joints, and transmission repairs.
 Light bulbs and lamp fixtures should be dusted regularly. A slight accumulation of dust will lower the lighting level considerably.

Chavez's Union Doing Well In Eight-Month Battle

WASHINGTON (AP) — Last April, as California's huge lettuce crop began ripening in the verdant Salinas Valley, a fearful Cesar Chavez came East warning that his United Farm Workers union might perish in its strike against lettuce growers.

Now, five months later, Chavez has returned to the nation's capital, riding the crest of one of the most significant victories in his union's brief and uncertain history.

In September, with some lettuce crops rotting in the Salinas Valley, the union that Chavez founded 15 years ago is not only alive, it is doing well in its eight-month battle with lettuce growers for better contracts.

The breakthrough in the occasionally violent strike came Aug. 31, when California's largest lettuce grower broke with 10 other major growers and signed a contract giving its farm workers an immediate 35 percent wage boost, from $3.70 an hour to $5.

The contract also provides 70 cents more over the next two years and improves worker benefits. The settlement approximates earlier union demands that growers had called unrealistic.

"We still have hold-outs," the UFW president cautiously reminded a reporter in a recent interview.

But he spoke as if victory were nearly at hand, that it would be just a matter of time before all the growers match the settlement the union won from Sun Harvest Inc., and a dozen smaller producers.

"We have about half the industry now. It'll be a lot easier to deal with the other growers," Chavez said matter-of-factly in a quiet voice.

Absent were the anxious looks and worried voice of April, when Chavez toured the East Coast to raise money and publicize a consumer boycott against iceberg lettuce and Chiquita-brand bananas, which are sold by the same food conglomerate that owns Sun

Harvest — United Brands Co. The boycott was later expanded to include other United Brand labels — including A&W root beer and John Morrell meats.

During his spring appearance here, the 52-year-old union leader said the strike threatened the very survival of the UFW.

The growers were importing illegal-alien "strike breakers" en masse from Mexico to harvest the spring and summer lettuce crops while federal immigration officials turned their backs, he charged.

Chavez also charged that strikers were being victimized by violence, climaxed by the shooting death of 27-year-old UFW member Rufino Contreras in a lettuce field in February. Murder charges against three grower foremen were subsequently dismissed.

At the time, Sun Harvest denied it had hired any illegal aliens or was responsible for any violence in the fields. The growers said California's farm labor law allows for the replacing of striking workers, and that is what Sun Harvest had done.

The turnaround in the union's fortunes since those low days has been dramatic, and the contract with Sun Harvest marks the thrust into a new era for the union. It no longer must live on the edge, where each battle involved its right to exist.

Now, with its survival apparently no longer at stake, the union is concentrating on bringing its members' wages up to those of other groups of unskilled American workers and expanding its base.

"We need to organize more people in California," said Chavez, whose union claims a dues-paying membership of 60,000 that is growing by 1,000 a month.

Chavez said his union's victory against Sun Harvest is a credit to the boycott by American consumers, many of whom have supported his union's struggles since the 1960s — from its battle for a contract with grape growers to its bitter jurisdictional fight with the Teamsters union.

Chavez said the turning point in the latest strike came in early August, when he led a 140-mile march from San Francisco to Salinas. The march attracted 20,000 supporters and "marked our commitment to put the boycott against lettuce, bananas and root beer into high gear," he said.

Labor observers, however, say the turning point came in late July, when Bud Antle Inc., one of California's largest growers and a chief competitor of Sun Harvest, settled with the Teamsters on new wages of up to $5 an hour. Antle is the only major lettuce grower whose workers are represented by the Teamsters, bitter organizing rivals of the UFW until the two unions signed a truce in 1977.

But Chavez denies that the Antle settlement paved the way for the Sun Harvest contract. "No, no," he said, shaking his head. "It was strictly the boycott," he insisted.

The boycott, that is the tool that has served the UFW so well in the past and that Chavez said the union will use to force the remaining struck lettuce growers to settle. That is why he was back in the East — "to get the word out on which stores are selling scab lettuce."

You and the Law

Presented by the State Bar of Texas

Q: I have been named executrix of a relative's will. Will I have to post a bond to qualify?

A: State law requires anyone serving as executor of a will to post a bond, unless authorized by the will to serve without bond. The purpose of this law is to assure financial responsibility of the executor for loss in the event of mismanagement of the estate. Texas law allows the person making the will to exempt the executor from this requirement in order to save his estate the expense and inconvenience of obtaining a bond.

Q: If my husband dies without a will, what share of our home is our child entitled to if I need to sell the house?

A: If a married couple's home was purchased during their marriage and is their community property, the husband's half interest would automatically pass to his child if he died without a will. If the child is a minor, a guardianship must be created for the child before the home can be sold. If the child is over 18, he can join with the widow in the sale. The expense of a guardianship for a minor child can be averted by having a will prepared leaving the property to the widow.

Q: Can the executor of a will be held personally responsible for any debts that may exceed the assets of a small estate? How are such debts disposed of, for instance, the expense of a long terminal hospital stay?

A: As a general rule, an executor will not be personally liable for the payment of a deceased's debts. However, if the executor violates a duty placed upon him by law it is possible that he could incur personal liability for a loss sustained by a creditor of the estate. Where the debts exceed the assets of a small estate the law provides an order for payment: the first debts paid are those for funeral and last sickness expenses and not to exceed one thousand dollars; any excess expenses are treated as unsecured claims against the estate.

Q: We read that banks lock safe-deposit boxes in case either owner dies. If that's true, where should we store wills and other valuables we'll need in an emergency?

A: You should keep wills and other irreplaceable documents in the safe deposit box precisely because the bank does lock it upon death. When a bank learns of the death of a boxholder, only one authorized family member is allowed, in the presence of a bank officer, to inventory the box. At that time, wills, insurance policies, and burial instructions may be removed. All other items remain locked up until the proper owner is determined.

Q: I am writing a book which may take several years to complete. How do I go about protecting the name of the title if during that time someone else writes a book and uses the same name? Also, where do I check to find out if the name has ever been used?

A: Unlike the motion picture industry which provides movie title protection, there is no copyright protection on a book title in most instances. However, the contents of the book would be protected by copyright. To determine if a particular book title has already been used, a search of the title index of the Library of Congress would provide the answer.

Send your questions to "You and the Law," State Bar of Texas, P.O. Box 12487, Austin, 78711. Answers may appear in columns in hypothetical terms; personal answers not possible.

Fire Destroys Town's Only General Store

DREWSEY, Ore. (AP) — A trash fire that got out of control recently touched off a blaze that has left Drewsey's 23 residents without a general store.

With the nearest fire truck in Burns, 50 miles west, there was little hope as the flames spread quickly. Within 90 minutes, the roof collapsed and there was no hope of saving anything.

It's not the first time it's happened. In 1952, flames spread from a burning home to the original general store, destroying it. That building was constructed in 1885 with stones from nearby hills and adobe mud.

The second store was built on the same spot. And the third one will be, too.

"I want to build another one," says Sam Burt, poking his cowboy hat farther back on his head. "We're waiting for the insurance people to get done with the paperwork."

Since 1953, the 74-year-old Burt and his partner, 91-year-old Castalia "Cassie" Drinkwater, have operated their "supermarket," which also served 300 ranch families tucked among the hills along the north fork of the Malheur River.

With no store nearby, residents have begun communal shopping of sorts.

"If someone is going into Burns or Ontario, they make the rounds and see what everybody needs," explains Dee Clair. "Everybody's been real good about that."

Mrs. Clair, who along with her husband, Ken, operates the Dry Gulch Tavern and Cafe, misses the store.

"That store had a little of everything," she recalls. "The place was packed wall-to-wall. You could hardly get down the aisle."

The inventory included everything from livestock salt and feed to bolts, paint and gate hinges.

"I tried to have a store that ranchers could use — all the things they need," says Burt, who moved to Drewsey in 1934. Burt says he's never thought of moving out.

Walton Ruling Stuns Both SD, Blazer Owners

SAN DIEGO (AP) — "I have this empty feeling in my stomach," said Bill Walton, rocked by the stiffest compensation award in pro sports history.

"I don't think it was fair," Walton said after San Diego Clipper teammates Kermit Washington, Kevin Kunnert, Randy Smith and a 1980 first-round draft pick were awarded to the Portland Trail Blazers Tuesday.

Ending a two-month tug-of-war, NBA commissioner Lawrence O'Brien ruled that Washington, one of the league's prized power forwards, and Kunnert, a 7-foot reserve center, must go to Portland as payment for the loss of Walton.

The 6-foot-11 all-pro center played out his option with the Trail Blazers and signed with the Clippers May 12, reportedly for the largest sports salary ever — a five-year contract calling for $900,000 per year.

If the year-old Clippers choose to keep Smith, a starting guard who averaged 18 points per game last year, they must pay Portland $350,000 and their 1982 first-round draft choice.

"It's a real setback," said Walton. "We were very close to a championship team. Indirectly, I'm somewhat responsible for that."

Walton's "durability" was the central question, O'Brien said. He said he took into account that Walton's contract "reflects a clear recognition by both San Diego and Walton that his past medical history created legitimate concerns about his ability to fully perform in the future."

After signing as the NBA's top draft choice of 1974, Walton, 26, was sidelined for half of the Trail Blazers' games. He sat out all of the 1977-78 season with a stress fracture in his foot, a year after winning MVP honors for leading Portland to the NBA championship.

After the announcement, Portland owner Larry Weinberg said he "didn't believe the Trail Blazers were made whole" for the loss of Walton.

Clippers' owner Irv Levin said he called Weinberg and congratulated him.

"For what?" asked Weinberg, according to Levin.

"For coming out smelling like a rose," said Levin.

"If Walton in his first five years had

Randle, Adams Reap Honors

By NORVAL POLLARD
Executive Sports Editor

When the 1979 football season began for the Texas Tech Red Raiders two weeks ago against the University of Southern California Trojans, Tate Randle was backing up one of the hardest-hitting and most complete strong safeties in college football today — senior Larry Flowers.

Last week, when the Red Raiders faced the University of New Mexico, Randle had taken Flowers' place on Tech's starting defensive unit because Flowers had suffered a badly sprained ankle against the Trojans.

Randle, a sophomore from Fort Stockton, took the pressure of replacing Flowers in stride and turned in an outstanding effort.

The 6-1, 195-pounder intercepted two passes, both of them resulting in Tech scoring drives — the last of which went for a touchdown and locked up the 17-7 victory over UNM. Randle also broke up another pass with a diving tackle and made two unassisted stops.

For his excellent performance, Randle has been selected the Avalanche-Journal's Tech Defensive Player of the Week.

"Tate did an excellent job in a tough situation," Red Raider defensive coordinator Sam Robertson said. "We like to play as many of our players as possible and we expect them to do a good job when they are in there. We are very pleased with Tate's effort and the effort of the entire defensive unit."

"We still have a lot of polishing to do, but we've had two super efforts thus far."

Two Red Raiders share this week's Offensive Player of the Week honors. They are senior place-kicker Bill Adams and senior fullback James Hadnot.

Adams, a 5-10, 155-pounder from Fort Worth, provided Tech with all of its

MY BROTHER CHRIS, long regarded as the family clown, has a pet snake. Now pet snakes are nice to look at, fun to have around the house — and make excellent conversation pieces.

But, really Chris, they don't serve any useful purpose. But, he always replies, neither do sportswriters.

Football polls are a lot like my brother's snake. They fill space in the newspaper, get plenty of mention on the airwaves and do wonders at cocktail parties, riots, gas station lines or business dinners — anywhere or anytime conversation begins to lag.

For instance, SMU is rated No. 18 in the nation by the Associated Press after two unimpressive victories over unimpressive foes — Rice and TCU. Bring up that little tidbit anywhere in town, and you're likely to have an argument on your hands.

But it is easy to pin-point my brother's demise, and easy to understand the ensuing snake fetish. You see, he was a left-handed baseball player who couldn't hit the ball in Little League. But Little League pitchers tend to have a rough time pitching to lefties.

ONCE CHRIS DISCOVERED that all he had to do was crowd the plate, take the shot to the head, get up and trot down to first base — and be a hero — he stuck with it. But after two years, the balls started coming at him a little faster, and he gave it up. Obviously it was a little too late.

But in regard to polls, I don't have the foggiest notion as to their creation. I don't understand them and I don't trust them — especially the kind that come out before a single game is played. Sometimes I wish they, and all snakes like

Astros, Reds Lose In West; Bucs Extend Lead

By The Associated Press
Willie Stargell and the rest of the Pittsburgh Pirates put a damper on the evening for the Montreal Expos.

On a night when swim suits and scuba gear might have made more sense than the standard baseball garb, the Pirates spent six waterlogged hours and 14 minutes beating the Expos 5-3 in 11 innings.

(National League
Box Scores,

In other words, it rained a little bit while the teams were struggling for the National League East Division lead. The first delay halted action for just five minutes, but the second took a whopping two hours, 54 minutes, and the sixth inning didn't begin until midnight, local time.

Shortly thereafter, the Expos tied it 3-3 on an RBI single by Larry Parrish in the sixth. The Pirates, who hadn't scored since the first, didn't undo the tie until Stargell came to the plate with Mike Easler on first in the 11th.

"I was swinging for the fence because in that situation, you have to," said the 38-year-old Stargell, whose swing gave the first-place Pirates a two-game lead in the East. "It was just two great teams going at each other, and you knew that something had to happen."

It happened when Stargell launched his 29th homer of the year over the fence in right-centerfield.

"If it wasn't me, it would have been somebody else," said Stargell. "It's been like that all year long. Everyone feels they want to make an individual contribution to help this ballclub."

That has helped build confidence, says manager Chuck Tanner.

"We always think we're ahead, even if we're even," he said.

They went ahead 3-0 in the first on RBI singles by Bill Robinson and Bill Madlock plus a run which scored on an error by center fielder Andre Dawson. Montreal came within 3-2 in the third on an RBI double by starting pitcher Lee and a sacrifice fly by Warren Cromartie.

It stayed that way until the rains intervened.

Meanwhile, the Cincinnati Reds dropped a 3-1 decision to the San Francisco Giants but maintained their 1 1/2-game West Division lead over Houston because the Astros were beaten 4-0 by the San Diego Padres.

The first rain delay — rather the end of it — prompted Montreal manager Dick Williams to protest the outcome. Williams questioned plate umpire Andy Olson's decision to resume action although the rain had not stopped.

He isn't likely to win the appeal, but Tanner advised against counting him — and the Expos — out.

"They're not about to lay down," he said. "They've got too many pros on that team."

Padres 4, Astros 0 Manager Bill Virdon was singing the same song after his Astros were held to six singles by Eric Rasmussen.

"My main concern is that we're not scoring runs," he said after Houston's fifth loss in the last seven games. "We haven't been scoring many runs since the all-star break. It's been tough on our pitchers."

Phillies 5, Cardinals 3

Pinch-hitter Greg Gross delivered a 10th-inning sacrifice fly to score Manny Trillo, then Garry Maddox cracked an RBI single to lead Philadelphia to its 13th victory in 18 games and pull the Phillies within a game of the third-place Cardinals in the East.

Meanwhile, Pete Rose extended his hitting streak to 15 games and pulled within nine hits of a major league record 10th consecutive 200-hit season.

Giants 3, Reds 1

Run-scoring singles by Darrell Evans, Mike Ivie and Johnny LeMaster carried the Giants to their 12th victory over the Reds in 18 meetings this season.

"We didn't lose any ground, so we've got to be happy," said Cincinnati manager John McNamara. "We just haven't been hitting lately. I think we've only scored 10 runs in the last five games, so we're fortunate to be 2-3 in those games — in light of our run production."

Johnny Bench was Cincinnati's run production Tuesday night with a ninth-inning homer.

Dodgers 6, Braves 1

Jerry Reuss pitched a four-hitter and Steve Garvey reached the 100-RBI plateau for the third consecutive seasons as

Los Angeles beat Atlanta.

Cubs 2-2, Mets 0-1
Dave Kingman drove in the game-winning run in each game and Bruce Sutter picked up both saves in the Chicago's doubleheader sweep of New York.

Kingman's two-run, third-inning single won the opener and his 11th-inning single delivered the winner in the nightcap — boosting Kingman's RBI total to a league-leading 110.

Sutter, meanwhile, had 37 saves — tying the NL record he shares with Clay Carroll of the 1972 Reds and Rollie Fingers of the 1978 Padres.

League West lead to two games over the Royals, the Angels seemed ripe for a fall. Instead they erupted for four runs in the first inning off KC starter Rich Gale, who lasted all of 24 pitches, and held on for a 6-4 victory. With Minnesota losing 1-0 in 10 innings to Chicago and dropping four games back, it was a profitable night for Fregosi.

"I have a great deal of confidence in my players," said the California manager. "They have battled their tails off all year. At the end of the year, no matter what, I'm going to be proud of them. "I'm not going to hang myself if we lose. I've said all along we're going to win it because we have the best club. Professional players are going to go out there and do their jobs."

It was a balanced effort for the Angels, who got solid pitching from Dave Frost, 15-9. Rod Carew and Carney Lansford each walked leading off the first. Dan Ford singled in Carew, Don Baylor hit a sacrifice fly, Willie Aikens doubled in Ford and Bobby Grich singled in the fourth run off reliever Marty Pattin.

In the sixth, Baylor tripled and scored on a single by Willie Davis, who eventually scored on a sacrifice fly by Jimmy Anderson.

Aikens was carried off the field on a stretcher after his first-inning double with an apparent left knee injury.

Kansas City, which stole five bases, got its first run when George Brett singled, stole second and came all the way around when Brian Downing's throw trying to nail him on the steal deflected into shallow right field off Anderson's glove. Darrell Porter doubled in Amos Otis in the seventh and added a two-run single in the ninth, knocking out Frost. John Montague finished up.

"After the way they whacked us around Monday, this is just what we needed," said Frost.

White Sox 1, Twins 0

Ken Kravec pitched seven innings of no-hit ball and wound up with a three-hitter. The lone run scored when Kevin Bell, Mike Squires and Thad Bosley hit consecutive singles with none out in the 10th for Chicago.

Ron Jackson's leadoff double in the eighth broke up Kravec's no-hit bid.

Tigers 2, Orioles 1

Dan Petry and Aurelio Lopez combined on a four-hitter and Ron LeFlore had a solo homer and an RBI grounder for the Detroit runs. Doug DeCinces homered for Baltimore.

Brewers 7, Mariners 6

Paul Molitor's single scored Sixto Lezcano, who had doubled, for the Brewers' decisive run in the eighth. Milwaukee overcame a 6-2 Seattle lead built mostly with a five-run second that included Bruce Bochte's two-run homer. Jim Gantner had a two-run shot for Milwaukee.

Red Sox 8, Blue Jays 3
Mike Torrez, who broke a personal three-game losing slide, threw a seven-hitter and Dwight Evans contributed a home run for the Red Sox.

Indians 16, Yankees 3

Former Yankee Cliff Johnson had two homers and five RBI and Toby Harrah slammed a pair of home runs and four RBI in a 16-hit attack. Ted Cox added a solo shot for Cleveland and Oscar Gamble homered for the Yankees, who lost their fifth game in a row.

Rangers 9, A's 5

Al Oliver had four hits and knocked in three runs, raising his batting average to .330 in a game played before only 750 fans, the second smallest crowd at Oakland this season. A game with Seattle on April 17 drew 653.

OU Signee Changed Mind

"I made up my mind Sunday (Jan. 28). I told coach (Rex) Dockery that I liked it here and this was where I wanted to go." — Royce Coleman.

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

After months of heavy recruiting by college coaches from across the nation, Royce Coleman proclaimed to the world on Jan. 30, 1979, that for the next four years Texas Tech would be his college football home.

So turn down the covers and dust off the shelves in that Weymouth Hall dorm door, Coleman was on his way.

But now it seems Coleman never had any intention of attending Tech. He merely signed a Southwest Conference letter-of-intent with the Raiders to "get them (the Tech recruiters) off my back."

In an interview with Oklahoma (City) Journal Sports Editor Al Eschbach, Coleman was quoted as saying, "The reason I signed with Texas Tech was to get them off my back. They were putting a lot of pressure on me. Once I signed that letter, they thought I would be going there. But all along I knew I was going to Oklahoma."

That's certainly a far cry from what Coleman told the Avalanche-Journal just a few months back. "I called them (OU) and canceled my visit after I talked to coach Dockery. My parents and friends will get a chance to see me play at Tech and if I had gone to Oklahoma or somewhere they might never have heard my name."

Coleman, who rescheduled a trip to Norman a few days after making the statement inked a national letter with the Sooners.

Contacted again by the A-J, in an effort to set the record straight, Coleman said he never told Eschbach "any such thing. I never said any of that."

And does that mean Eschbach simply made up the quotes, Coleman was asked? "Yes," replied the ex-Plainview standout.

Eschbach disagreed: "Everything that was in the story he said I asked him about the recruiting and that's exactly what he told me. I don't know why he'd change his story now."

Coleman said he "wasn't considering" Oklahoma at the time he signed with Tech, as the Eschbach column said. But after "some coaches talked me into making a visit (to the OU campus), I changed my mind.

"All along I thought I was going to Tech but then I visited OU. I liked it up here a lot better (than at Tech)."

Coleman reportedly told Eschbach that another reason he chose OU over Tech was "because they started bad-mouthing Oklahoma. They were really putting it down. And they told me if I went to school there I would never play because of all the running backs they had. I told them I didn't expect to go anywhere as a freshman and become an instant star. When the national signing date came, Texas Tech was in my house trying to still talk me out of going to OU."

Coleman said the "bad-mouthing" did go on. "They (Tech recruiters) said some bad things. But so did everybody else."

Coleman didn't want to expound anymore.

Prior to signing the national letter, Coleman went to Clovis to visit a brother and "think about the recruiting matter." It was in Clovis that he decided to cast his lot with the Sooners and coach Barry Switzer.

There were some accusations that Coleman had been hidden out in Clovis for three days by Oklahoma coaches, preventing him from signing with Tech. However, a National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) investigation found nothing illegal and the case was closed.

"It (the decision) was all mine," Coleman said. "I was trying to get away from those people, trying to think it over for myself. I think it's best for me. They always are in the top. I like to be in the top all the time."

During his three year tour at Plainview, Coleman received all-state running back honors in Class AAAA. He was named to the All-South Plains team and was the District 4-AAAA MVP. He set a PHS single-season rushing mark by gaining 1,750 yards his senior year.

Prior to hurting an ankle during a practice session, Coleman ran on the Sooners' second-team behind starter Barry Joyner.

After missing the season opener against Iowa State, Coleman said he'll be ready to play this weekend when OU takes on Tulsa.

"I'm feeling good now," said Coleman, "about everything."

Panther Duo Leads Week's AAA Stars

By CHUCK McDONALD
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Fort Stockton was supposed to be in for a rebuilding year in 1979. Coach John Blocker welcomed only two returning offensive starters from last year's 2-AAA league championship club, and not a single defensive starter was coming back.

But the Panthers are already 2-0 in '79, after scoring 40 points and piling up 689 yards of offense without giving up a single point — and only 199 yards.

Two reasons for the Panthers early success have been Billy Ray Gordon and Brad Jackson. The two Fort Stockton running backs keyed the Panthers 20-0 victory over Alpine last Friday and have been named the Avalanche-Journal offensive players of the week.

Gordon, one of the two Fort Stockton starters, gained 115 yards from his half-back position Friday night while full-back Brad Jackson went one better than his teammate — gaining 116 yards.

"It's been real windy down here the last couple of week," said Fort Stockton coach John Blocker. "So we haven't really been able to throw the ball that well yet. But these two running backs have really done a good job for us so far."

The Panthers also won that one by a 20-0 margin. But they face a much tougher challenge this weekend when they travel to El Paso to face Adress.

Other AAA players cited for their offensive work include Estacado's Alvin Davis — 86 yards on 14 carries. Matador wingback Preston Davis also had a good outing against Plainview carrying the ball five times for a 10.2-yard average gain.

Defensively, the honor goes to the entire Estacado defense — which has allowed on seven points in two games.

Against Lubbock High Friday night the Mats first team unit was almost perfect. They gave up three first downs and 35 total yards before retiring to the bench in the fourth quarter.

Leading the Matador charge were linebackers Stacy Burrell, Kenneth Davis and Steve McGraw. Dominating the play at the line of scrimmage were tackles James Rose and James Ellis and ends David Johnson and Alvin Majors.

Mats Hold Second In AP Poll

By The Associated Press

The leaders won big and some also ran fell by the wayside last week in The Associated Press Schoolboy Football Poll.

Abilene Cooper in Class AAAA. Jasper in AAA, Pittsburg in AA and China Spring in A all retained their top billings for the second straight week after big victories in last week's games.

Cooper defeated Wichita Falls 48-7 and China Spring shut out Whitney 38-0 and each was rewarded with 20 first place votes out of a possible 22 by the AP panel of sports writers and sportscasters.

Jasper received 13 first place votes after a 48-0 victory over Center and Pittsburg netted 17 first place votes following a 35-0 shut out Gilmer.

The bottom four teams in AAAA were losers last week and were banished from the top 10 this week Houston Kashmere, San Antonio Roosevelt, Odessa Permain and Fort Worth Richard all vanished following losses.

Newcomers in AAAA are No. 7 Conroe followed by Tyler, 1-0, Killeen, 2-0, and Temple, 2-0.

LaPorte, No. 2 in AAAA, will take an unbeaten record into this week's game against defending state champion Houston Stratford, ranked fifth and carrying a 20-game winning streak.

Lake Highlands held onto third place and Plano, a state finalist last year, was fourth.

Bay City, the defending Class AAA champ, dropped from the rankings following an 8-6 loss to Dickinson Gregory-Portland, which opened its season with a shocking 3-0 victory over AAAA Corpus Christi Carroll, moved into the No. 10 position.

In Class AA, No. 4 Bellville was defeated by Willis 22-16 last week and here is The Associated Press Schoolboy Football Poll with first place votes in parentheses, season records and points based on 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1.

Eighth-ranked Celina and 10th-ranked San Saba both lost for the second consecutive week and dropped out of the Class A rankings. Mason, which beat San Saba 27-0 last week, moved into the No. 9 position, and Flatonia, 2-0, took over the 10th spot.

Lautenslager Smashes Cross-Country Mark

By DON HENRY
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

PLAINVIEW — Greg Lautenslager felt so good, he just wanted to get out in the park and run. So, he ran, and ran, and ran.

And no one could catch him Tuesday afternoon.

Lautenslager, the Raider senior from Mesquite, put on the best exhibition of Country Club running ever seen here, snapping the Plainview CC and Wayland Baptist College cross-country course record by some 40 seconds.

However, Lautenslager's efforts were not enough to keep West Texas State's Kenyan-dominated squad from walking away with the team honors. WT runners finished 2-4-5-7-8 in amassing 26 points in the lowest-total-wins scoring.

Tech finished second with 38 points, followed by Eastern New Mexico with 66, host Wayland with 103 and Hardin-Simmons with 158.

South Plains College won the junior college division with 36 points, followed by Odessa College 57, Tech JV 81, and the Pioneer Club 85.

But, the individual leader was Lautenslager, who covered the four-mile course in 18:39, or just about 4:40 per mile.

The old record was 19:20. Finishing second was West Texas's Johnson Bett in 18:49, with Raider Bert Torres third in 19:02.

The threesome came through the two-mile point in the lead in 9:34, then broke away from the pack in the next half mile. It was a two-man race for the final mile, as Lautenslager and Bett passed the three-mile mark in 13:55.

With 250 yards to go, Lautenslager started his kick, and Bett was unable to challenge. Lautenslager finished all alone.

"I felt good; it was a good day to run," said Lautenslager.

"It was the first time I have ever beaten Bett in cross-country; he beat me all three times last year," said Lautenslager.

"I felt so much better than last week (Saturday's meet at Lubbock). And the course here is not as hilly as back home (Mae Simmons Park) in Lubbock."

Lautenslager finished second to a runner from New Mexico in that meet at Lubbock, as he was timed in 19:13.

Tech runners came in 1-3-9-12-13-15.

CHS Volleyballers Win Over Dunbar

The Coronado volleyball team raised its season mark to 7-2 with a 15-8, 15-8 victory over Dunbar at the Coronado Gym.

Tammi Edmonson and Beckie Lovett led the way for the Lady Stangs with 10 serving points apiece. Cynthia Hardaway had seven points.

The loss dropped Dunbar's record to 3-5. The next action for the two teams comes this Friday when they compete in the Lubbock Invitational.

The Coronado JV team took a hard-earned 17-15, 11-15, 15-11 victory over the Dunbar JV.

The Estacado volleyball team defeated the Monterey spikers 15-12, 11-15, 15-10 Tuesday night at Estacado. However the MHS JV squad took a 15-8, 15-9 victory over the Lady Matadors.

The victory raised Estacado's varsity record to 3-4. Joy Gontin served for 15 points for the Mats while Maxine Walker had 10.

Metroplex Fans Follow New Team: FW Strangers

EDITOR'S NOTE — "Disgusting... unamusing... garbage," says one reader. "Love 'em," laughs another. The target of this scorn and scintillation? The Fort Worth Strangers, currently baseball's wackiest and winningest team. But are they for real?

FORT WORTH (AP) — "The 1979 season began inauspiciously for the Fort Worth Strangers.

"First, there was the tragic loss of the Strangers' owner, 92-year-old Randolph Banks-Smythe Sr., on opening day.

"Throwing out the first ball from his luxurious skybox high above home plate in Cowtown Stadium, Mr. Banks-Smythe forgot to let go, thus becoming the third person in stadium history to topple from the skyboxes into the mezzanine seats.

"Mr. Banks-Smythe, to his credit, tumbled to a new club record of 71 feet, 7 1/2 inches."

So began the saga 10 days ago of the mythical Strangers, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram's remedy for the late summer doldrums.

"The whole idea was to provide entertainment in an unusual form," insists executive editor Jack Tinsley.

The Strangers seemed a dubious group early on, traceable in part to general manager Junior Banks-Smythe II, 40, only son of the late owner.

He traded away heavy-hitting Emil "Emil" Haas and Pete "Rat" Haddix for the Angels' cheerleaders.

"Morale was low, especially with shortstop Larrupin' Lou Merkle, who lost in the finals of the Pillsbury Cook-Off when his oysters Rockefeller attacked a judge."

By Sept. 11, the Stranger plight had become ominous. Junior Banks-Smythe had disappeared after the team absorbed a 10-6 loss to the White Sox in Chicago.

The Sept. 12 Star-Telegram told how the Strangers survived their darkest hour:

- Lance "Dude" Adami, who has centerfold poses in "Playgirl" to his credit, hurled a four-hit, 3-2 victory over the White Sox, ending the Strangers' 11-game losing streak.
- Junior Banks-Smythe, feared kidnapped, emerged in Los Angeles and announced the signing of Leonard L. Leonard, the baseball immortal to manage the Strangers. Leonard had all but vanished five years earlier.
- "At 73, Leonard is an anhydrous little man with chicken neck, bandy-bowed legs and a skin-sac of wrinkles. Brown as an old penny. From nude sunbathing at his California mountaintop temple," the newspaper reported.
- The fictitious account of baseball's wackiest and winningest team in some ways parallels the trials and tribulations of the Texas Rangers.
- "It was not designed to be a direct parody of the Rangers. I was very concerned at the outset that we be very particular about writing anything that would be a direct parody of Brad Corbett (the Ranger's principal owner). The similarities are obvious," said Tinsley.
- "I would say it's kind of a spoof at baseball in general and a spoof at the media, including our newspaper...but it's not intended to offend," the editor said.

"Silly, stupid, dumb and degrading," commented one irate reader.

"Bravo, bravo!" wrote another.

It was on Sept. 9 that Star-Telegram readers learned they'd acquired a new baseball team, the Strangers, "dogs on and off the field."

Tinsley said the idea percolated in the brain of SMU journalism professor David McHam during an editors' retreat in the piney woods of East Texas.

The hottest in-house rumor is that publisher Amon Carter Jr., a minority owner of the Texas Rangers, is decidedly not a Stranger fan.

"I don't understand it and I don't like it," he was quoted as saying. "I think it's a waste of newsprint. I'd rather devote the space to high school football."

Covering the Strangers daily was, and is, Jerry Flemmons, a master satirist who says his only baseball exposure was marred by a beer spill at Arlington Stadium, home of the Rangers.

When introduced, the Strangers trailed the California Angels by four games and Kansas City by 1 1/2 in the American League West.

The rest is, as they say, is history.

The Strangers won the series finale at Chicago, swept a four-game stand at Kansas City and returned home to beat the Boston Red Sox Monday night.

The stunning winning streak was attributed to the leadership of Leonard L. Leonard.

Tinsley admits he's in an unusual position.

"I've been telling people the reader reaction has been 50-50. Privately, I don't think it's that good. And the negatives are a hell of a lot more intense."

But the Strangers are catching on, not only with the Dallas-Fort Worth broadcast media but nationally as well.

The New York Times and Philadelphia Inquirer have reported on the Strangers, and a CBS television crew was in Fort Worth Tuesday gathering a filmed account of their escapades.

"We got local sporting good stores bidding for T-shirt rights," laughed Flemmons. "And we got a Stranger fan club formed."

Flemmons said he was once prepared if the Strangers bombed to send the team plunging into Pike's Peak, or at least get it hijacked to South America.

"I don't know what's going to happen. I want to let them win the pennant, although the first idea was to let them lose in an honorable way."

But watever, Dallas radio station WFAA says it intends to broadcast the Sept. 25 final championship game against California — live.

Miller Heads Napa Golf Tournery Field

NAPA, Calif. (AP) — Johnny Miller was heading for a good paycheck one year ago in Napa's pro golf tournament when he disqualified himself by turning in an incorrect scorecard.

It was that kind of a year for Miller, whose play and mental lapses left him with a mere $17,440 in tournament winnings. In 1974, at age 27, he topped the PGA money winners with $353,021.

The Napa tournament, an 11-year-old event which is offering a $300,000 purse this year, opens Thursday and no one is feeling sorry for Johnny Miller anymore.

He is, in fact, considered among the favorites in the event.

Tom Watson won the title last year but, because his wife had a baby last week, he is not on hand to try for a repeat victory. He'll be back on the tour at next week's World Series of Golf.

No question about it, Johnny Miller is back. Watson said after beating Miller in a playoff three weeks ago to claim the title and first-place money in the Hall of Fame Classic at Pinehurst, N.C.

By tying for first after 72 holes, Miller made his best showing since winning the 1976 British Open.

"I'm encouraged by the way I'm playing. But I sure would have liked to have won," he said after picking up a runner-up check for $27,000. "Believe it or not, I really thought I would win the playoff. I thought it was my tournament."

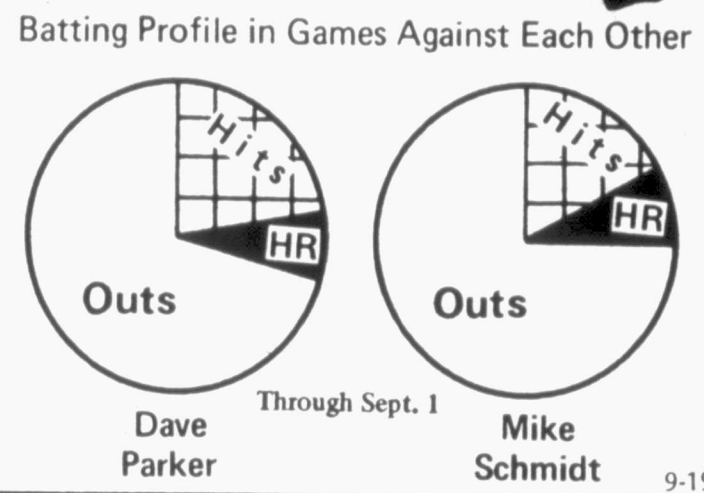

In 1974, definitely Miller's year, he won the Napa tournament by eight strokes. He also won here in 1975.

When he was disqualified last year, after posting scores of 72-66-70 in the first three rounds, at least he didn't face a long trip home. Miller's $600,000 home overlooks the 11th hole on Silverado's North course.

Bryant-Led Team Wins

Snyder Country Club pro Don Bryant and his team of David Jennings, Tom Wilkins and Bill Rader turned in a best-ball score of 56 Tuesday to capture the Lubbock Country Club Pro-Member Tournament.

Bryant and his Lubbock partners were three strokes ahead of David Griffin's second-place team. Griffin, the Big Spring Country Club pro, and his team of Dirk West, Paul Beane and Gene Murrel finished in second place with an 18-hole total of 59.

Third-place honors went to the team headed by Amarillo Tascosa Country Club pro Sherwin Cox and Lubbockites Bucky Sheffield, Ralph Quest and Carole Hale carded a 60.

Muleshoe Country Club pro Randy Hodges and David Hand of Kermit Country Club tied for low pro honors Tuesday. Both golfers shot rounds of 71.

Midland's George Clark was alone in second place with a 72. Treasure Island pro Wilson Swinney and Bill Glenn of Dumas finished in a tie for fourth place with scores of 73.

For the next three days, Lubbock Country Club will be the site of the West Texas PGA Chapter Tournament.

Thirty-nine West Texas golf club professionals will compete in a 54-hole, medal play tournament beginning today.

Lions' Progress Pleases Smith

By RUSS PARSONS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Jim Eddins and B.J. Smith should get together and compare notes. They'd find they have a lot in common.

Both Eddins, coach of the Sagraves Eagles and Smith, of the New Deal Lions, are in the enviable position of coaching teams that are packed with talent.

They're also in the unenviable position of being the heavy favorites in every game they play. Everybody says their best shots for the big guys.

Perhaps most dangerously from their point of view, both are in districts where there is a wealth of talent this season.

The Eagles must contend with Stanton and Shallowater in District 5-A while the Lions must deal with Hale Center, Crosbyton and Petersburg in 4-A.

Also, both emphasize the improvements their clubs have made over last year, in spite of the fact that last season both went to the playoffs.

"We have a little more experience than last year and that makes a difference," Eddins said. "Last year when we started out we were completely new all the way across. Those kids did a good job but you just can't beat experience. When you've been there before it makes a difference."

The Lions are getting back on their feet after an opening loss to Class AA power Idalou. In that game they were plagued by mistakes — fumbles, penalties at key moments, etc. Smith says that situation is improving.

"We went from five turnovers (against Idalou) to three (against Plains). And I think we hit real well against Plains. That was the best hitting game for us in two or three years."

The Lions only beat Plains 13-0, not as bad as many expected, Smith says that's because of those mistakes.

"Plains has got a good ball club," Smith said. "But we lost two fumbles, we lost an interception and we had three holding penalties — that's five drives right there."

With the rest of his district hard on his heels, Smith isn't about to predict success for his Lions, not this early in the season.

"There's just too many variables to predict this thing," he said. "Boys can get hurt, balls can bounce the wrong way, there's officials' calls."

"You have to be lucky plus good to get in the playoffs."

Battle Royal Set On Wrestling Card

A $5,000 Battle Royal will highlight tonight's wrestling card at the Fair Park Coliseum. The action gets underway at 8:30 p.m. and tickets are available at the door.

In the battle Royal, all of tonight's wrestlers will be in the ring at the same time, and the first one to climb a 15-foot pole will get the money attached at the top — $5,000 bucks.

In the main event Tor Kamata will square off against Dory Funk Jr. In a special Lumber Jack Match General Ackbar will face James J. Dillon. Ten wrestlers will be on the floor just outside the ring to keep these two in the ring until the battle goes on until the bitter end.

In the tag team match El Granda Marcus and The Diablo will face the duo of Dick Murdoch and Ricky Romero. Other matches will pit Jose Lothario against Tom Sharp while Gary Young tangles with Alex Perez.

Landry Slates Drills To Prevent Fumbling

DALLAS (AP) — Monday night games are bad enough for the Dallas Cowboys.

But Monday night in Cleveland? Tom Landry had rather not.

"I really don't know why we don't have a better Monday night record," said Landry, whose team is 7-6 on that day of the week. "I really haven't thought about it much."

But Landry does have memories of playing in Municipal Stadium.

"I have memories of mud up to my ankles," said Landry. "It seems like it rains everytime we play there."

Dallas is 2-8 against the Browns in Cleveland.

Landry began preparations for the game this week by setting up a fumbling drill for star tailback Tony Dorsett, who was round booed last week for his three lost fumbles to the Chicago Bears.

"The fans are entitled to do what they want to do and Tony has to learn to handle it (the boos)," said Landry. "We all have been booed from time to time."

Dorsett, playing only his second game since he broke a toe by dropping a mirror on it in July, gained 108 yards Sunday in Dallas' 24-20 National Football League victory over Chicago.

Because of the fumbles, he was booed at Texas Stadium for the first time.

"Let 'em boo," Dorsett said after the game. "I don't have to work for those people everyday. I just want my teammates to believe in me. Fans are fickle and they expect the Cowboys to be almost perfect."

Landry ordered "the gauntlet" for this week's drills.

"We usually don't have the gauntlet until we have a (fumbling) problem," said Landry. "A back just runs through a line of players with everyone grabbing at the ball. We also do it in dummy scrimmages. The drill just makes backs more conscious of holding onto the ball."

Landry only blamed Dorsett for one fumble.

"The first one was an exchange problem and the second one could have happened to anyone... somebody's headgear hit the ball," said Landry. "The cubs that hold an edge in the all-time series with the Cowboys (14-7). But Dallas won the last meeting 41-17 at Texas Stadium.

UH Linebacker Lauded

HOUSTON (AP) — When the Florida Gators started gobbling up yardage against the Houston Cougar defense last Saturday, they usually ended up choking on UH linebacker David Hodge.

In the first quarter, Hodge decked running back Lonell Brown on a 13-yard line, where the Gators missed a field goal. In the third quarter he planted Brown for a four-yard loss on third down at the UH 48.

In the air-tight closing moments when Houston was protecting a 14-7 lead, Hodge tackled a runner for a three-yard gain on second down, and on third down jumped on Gator quarterback Tim Groves causing an incomplete pass and forcing Florida to settle for a field goal.

Florida never got the ball again as Houston won in the second half for the second week, and Hodge, who finished the game with 10 unassisted tackles and five assists, won The Associated Press Southwest Conference Defensive Player of the Week honor.

Despite his drive-killing performance, Hodge, a first team all-SWC performer last season, didn't look back on the game with total satisfaction.

"I'm really surprised because I don't feel like I played that good," said Hodge, ever the perfectionist. "We played well enough to win but I missed a lot of keys and I didn't tackle as well as I did against UCLA. And I didn't get (Groves) the quarterback on that touchdown."

Groves scored Florida's only touchdown in the first quarter on a four-yard run, careening off of Hodge at the goal line.

"But we are playing more together now," Hodge observed.

"I don't feel any extra pressure to make the big plays but sometimes it's up to Steve (Bradham, the other UH linebacker) or me to make the good tackle," Hodge said.

Cloris Leachman Plays Mother Of Rape Victim In NBC Movie

By JOAN HANAUER
NEW YORK (UPI) — There is a nightmare that haunts mothers of daughters and for a few of them, their fears become reality.
Cloris Leachman plays such a mother in "Mrs. R's Daughter," a television movie to be seen on NBC today, 8-10 p.m., Central time.
In this dramatization of a real-life tragedy, Miss Leachman plays the mother of a girl who is beaten and raped. Grimly pursuing vengeance, she forces a reluctant criminal justice system to punish the culprit — a man who had beaten and raped before.

Warning: when actress Season Hubley as the daughter testifies at a pre-trial hearing, her tensely dramatic and harrowing performance provides one of the most explicit descriptions of rape ever to be broadcast. It is not for young people — or for the squeamish of any age.

Less dramatic but almost as frightening as the crime itself is the manner in which the law and the courts would allow a violent criminal his freedom — to repeat his crimes, probably until they would injure in murder.
The subject matter will insure "Mrs. R's Daughter" an audience; the cast adds depth and dimension. This Cloris Leachman is a woman with a will of iron, her face harsh with purpose. She won't remind anyone of "Phyllis."

For less adult fare — in every sense of the word — in the same time slot CBS offers "Sex and the Single Parent." Susan Saint James and Mike Farrell play consenting adults — both divorced — who have an affair and then fall in love (remember when it used to be the other way around?). The children complicate matters.
Surely "The Brady Bunch" didn't start out this way.
The most attractive elements of the show are the charming performances of Farrell and Miss Saint James, and that of Dori Brenner as another marital loser. They manage to fight off the script and give their characters charm.
Two new half-hour comedy series also premiere on CBS tonight — "The Last Resort" at 7, followed by "Struck By Lightning." The first is an MTM Production focusing on the staff of a resort — girl-happy but normal student, class snob and class animal. There also is an Oriental chef who won't admit he speaks English, and a runaway wife hired as a pastry chef. Her only qualification — she's flakier than a pie crust.
MTM wants to turn "The Last Resort" into a "WKRP" of the kitchen, but that will take work.
Last, and maybe least, comes "Struck By Lightning," in which a young man named Stein inherits an inn, only to find his great-great grandfather was Dr. Frankenstein, and the current caretaker was one of the doctor's creatures.
Jack Elam turns in a beautifully comic performance as Frank, the caretaker nee monster, who wants Stein to keep him alive and whip up a wife in his carefully preserved test tubes.

Juvenile Work Program Draws Praise

LIGHT SCULPTURE — Chicago artist John David Mooney checks out one of 150 pieces of a light sculpture he and a dozen other artists have created. The sculpture employs 2,400 sealed beam auto headlamps in the 10,000 pounds of equipment, which will cover a quarter mile of a grassy mall at a Zagreb, Yugoslavia, exhibition pavilion. MODESTO, Calif. (AP) — Faced with an overcrowded, aging juvenile hall facility, officials here decided to seek an alternative to incarcerating youthful offenders.

They developed a work program that has won national and state awards and the compliments of juvenile-justice officials and parents. Brad Brown, the program's director, estimates it has saved Stanislaus County about $700,000 since it started a little over two years ago.

"It costs $36 a day to keep a kid in juvenile hall where 69 percent of the costs are never reimbursed to the county," Brown said. "Take the same kid, put him on a work program, and it only costs $2.50 a day and you have the benefit of his labor."

While those involved in serious crimes are still incarcerated, many guilty of such first-time offenses as burglary or bicycle theft are punished by a stint in the work detail, which involves about 100 separate projects.

Currently, about 200 youngsters are doing grounds keeping at county facilities, old cemeteries and local parks. Others are refinishing furniture and building a nursery that will grow the county's shrubbery, Brown said in a telephone interview.

A garden project furnishes fresh produce for the jail, local hospitals and the needy. Several youths have told Brown how much they enjoy working in the garden, and he believes the work has a calming effect on them.

"It used to be the county sold its old wood furniture at an auction, but since the youngsters have been refinishing the stuff, almost every county agency is asking for the old chairs and desks that they like better than newer products," Brown said.

He said the county had saved about $51,000 in six months by using refinished furniture.

Youths who are still in school participate in the programs on weekends and holidays.

Work commitments for juvenile court referrals last about 15 days on the average, while those committed informally without going to trial get an average of eight days.

Brittany Separatists On Trial In Paris

PARIS (AP) — Twenty-four Brittany separatists are on trial charged with 41 bombings of public institutions from June 1974 to May 1978.

Some of the defendants are already serving separate sentences for blowing up a room in the Versailles Palace a year ago, but two leaders of the movement are being tried in absentia. They are Yann Fouere, 69, who lives in Ireland, and Ange Peresse, 59, residing in West Germany. The trial began Monday under tight security.

Tickets Being Sold To Free Papal Mass

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — The visit by Pope John Paul II is two weeks away, and police say men are busily selling $4.50 tickets to a papal Mass that will be free to the public.

Police said the swindlers are concentrating their sales on the elderly, telling them the tickets will "get you close to the pope."
