

Bergland Defends Accuracy Of Reports On Crops

By DUANE HOWELL
Avalanche-Journal Farm Editor

Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland, on a three-day Texas tour to field questions on how the Carter administration can make life better for farmers and ranchers, defended the government's crop-reporting system here today.

Bergland met with about 200 area agricultural officials at a breakfast session at the Hilton Inn before leaving Lubbock to tour crop areas damaged by severe hailstorms last month.

A brief question-and-answer period was opened with a comment by a South Plains farmer on the monthly in-season crop estimates released by the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

"Why are the USDA estimates always high?" he asked. "Why can't we have a low one every once in a while. These high estimates hurt our cotton prices."

Bergland said he doesn't believe anyone would want the USDA "to publish lies, no matter what." He said the department "is in the business of getting information and making it public, and we do our dead level best to get it right."

"We know some people who play games with this, and I've had some farmers tell me that they're not going to tell the (USDA) reporter the truth," Bergland said. "And I said, well, it's like the computer business — garbage in, garbage out."

Bergland pointed out that the USDA collects crop information from farmers. The USDA also uses "crop counters" and other sources of information in compiling its crop reports.

"We are purging our (survey) lists because we have been getting reports from people we have found out over the years are not telling us the truth," Bergland said. "They've been adding false and fictitious numbers which tend to distort the whole pattern, and so we are purging the lists to get reports only from those whose judgments we have found to be consistently sound, so that the information that does go into those reports on yields, acreage and other data is as accurate as it can be."

"We think folks in the business — that means farming as well as other parts of the business — need to know what the truth is."

"I have farmed all my life in the Red River of the North and I grow a crop in which there is no competitive market — no futures contract, no spot pricing; it's horse trading, in effect," Bergland continued.

"And I can tell you that's a lot worse, because when we come to market with our particular product the buyers invariably tell us that the crop out in Oregon or someplace is big and the price is cheap and they make us an offer. We haven't the foggiest notion whether the crop is big or the price is (realistic) because there is no government report on it."

"So I think these reports need to be sound and accurate and tell it like it really is — for better or for worse. If I were to start doctoring these reports, holding down the supply (estimates), it wouldn't take more than one report and folks would say that thing is no good — you can't depend on it."

The USDA's Crop Reporting Board, despite extensive hail losses in August, earlier this month estimated prospective cotton output on the High Plains at the largest production in the region's history.

Leaders Predict SALT Rejection

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Grim Senate leaders met with President Carter today and told reporters the Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty will not be ratified unless nearly 3,000 Soviet combat troops are pulled out from Cuba.

"I don't think the SALT Treaty has a prayer in hades unless the Russians do something to de-escalate their presence in Cuba," Senate Republican Leader Howard Baker, R-Tenn., said after the White House meeting.

"The Senate will insist that combat troops not be in Cuba. The combat forces do not belong in Cuba," said Senate Foreign Relations Committee Chairman Frank Church, D-Idaho.

Baker said he wanted to speak out further on the subject, but at Carter's request has agreed "to give him a little more time" while U.S.-Soviet negotiations continue over a Russian combat brigade 90 miles from Florida.

Carter briefed Baker, Church, Republican Jacob Javits of New York and other key senators on the situation as Secretary of State Cyrus Vance arranged another meeting later in the day with Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin.

"The president brought us up to date," said Church, but declined to elaborate on the options discussed by Carter.

The Senate leaders said they agreed that the brigade poses no military threat to the United States, but called it a Soviet challenge to Carter and a provocation that should not be ignored.

"I do not believe that this issue should be blown up into an international crisis, but it does offend U.S. sensibilities," Javits, R-N.Y., said after the meeting.

"I believe the negotiations are in mid-career and one cannot tell how they will go. As far as the United States is concerned, the administration policy has been set down — that the status quo is unacceptable. And the status quo is unchanged."

Baker was more blunt:

"I think we have used too much time. It's the president's turn at bat." Other Senate sources, also regularly informed on the negotiations, said, "They are progressing slowly, just plugging away at it."

"The Soviets recognize that it is in their interests to find a solution to the problem, because the SALT II treaty hangs in the balance," one Senate source said.

However, the source said: "They're suspicious and they (the Soviets) are still inclined to think the U.S. administration thought up the whole thing. They have a hard time believing that U.S. intelligence didn't detect the combat troops earlier."

Vance chaired a brief meeting of a Presidential Review Committee at the White House Wednesday. The committee, which met to discuss the negotiations on the Soviet troops, is called to gether periodically to lay out a series of options for the president on specific issues.

Vance will also meet Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko next week in New York, and possibly before then in Washington. State Department sources said today's Vance-Dobrynin meeting will determine whether it will be useful to have Gromyko fly to Washington this week to discuss the troop issue.

Dollar Dips; Gold Soars

LONDON (AP) — The dollar spiraled downward on European money markets today as some dealers predicted a renewed crisis of confidence in the U.S. currency. Gold soared to another record of $380 at London's five major bullion firms, a jump of $10 from Wednesday's close in both London and Zurich.

The dollar hit 11-month lows in Milan and Frankfurt and was lower in Tokyo.

"The dollar is in trouble again, and it seems the rising interest rates have not been sufficient to prop it up," a Tokyo trader said.

"When the Federal Reserve Board let the dollar slip against European currencies Wednesday, people became worried about having too many greenbacks on hand."

Dealers said further uncertainty about the U.S. economy, inflation and the political climate in the United States probably all contributed to the slide. Some said massive and immediate support for the dollar by the U.S. Federal Reserve would be necessary to prevent a further plunge of the dollar.

West Germany's Bundesbank, the country's central monetary authority, announced it bought up $15.5 million to prop up the dollar when it dropped from 1.8073 late Wednesday to a late fixing of 1.7745 marks. It was first time the dollar dipped below 1.80 marks in 11 months and was the lowest value since shortly before President Carter announced a dollar support package last Nov. 1.

But a Frankfurt trader said central bank support was not a good means of restoring confidence in the dollar. "It makes the dollar look like a sick man, held up on its feet only through injections," he said.

The dollar also hit a low for the year against the Italian lira in Milan, but the Bank of Italy did not grant any support to the U.S. currency despite significant selling pressure.

"U.S. economic indicators signal the dollar should be lower than current rates," commented a senior foreign exchange dealer in Milan. "Thus it is useless to support the currency. It can only help speculators."

Heavy Rains Fading Over Flooded Area

By United Press International

Thousands of Houston-Galveston area residents fled overnight from inundated or flood-threatened homes, some only recently repaired from high water damage earlier this year. Forecasters said three days of steady rain would end today.

No deaths or serious injuries were reported.

The Red Cross set up 32 shelters Wednesday night to house and feed 1,700 displaced residents who, with the aid of National Guard, Civil Defense and volunteer workers, left flooded parts of 25 subdivisions in Harris and Galveston counties.

At the height of the flooding, complicated by high tides from a low pressure zone moving eastward near Galveston early today, 100 roads were reported closed in the Houston area.

Thousands of motorists were stranded or turned back from trying to get home during rush hour Wednesday, and although flights continued at Intercontinental and Hobby airports, some access roads to both airports were blocked.

Some of the worst flooding hit suburbs on the south and east sides of Houston, where residents of Friendswood, Kemah, Clear Lake and Brownwood were forced to flee.

"The outlook is better, although there's still some rain around," said Gary Beeler of the National Weather Service as the sun penetrated clouds over downtown Houston for the first time since Monday morning.

"There's still 40 to 50 percent probability this morning in parts of the area. By late afternoon, probability will be down to 20 percent. Anybody that has had rain, it's gonna be significant, but totals will be less than 1 to 2 inches."

Mickey Murphy, who lives in the Seardsdale subdivision on the south side of Houston, was one of dozens still recovering from two previous floods. Murphy had cleanup and repair personnel at his home Wednesday.

"We had to replace all the insulated outside walls, all the doors and repaint everything and now this. My carpet is supposed to go in Saturday," said Murphy, who admitted he had considered moving.

"But this is our home. My wife and I have worked hard for everything we've got. I don't think we should have to move because of somebody's (official) ignorance for not putting in proper drainage."

Dozens of bayous that cut across the Gulf Coast lowlands rose rapidly and ran at capacity all night. Many were reported.

White To File Oil Spill Suit

AUSTIN (UPI) — Attorney General Mark White says he will sue SEDCO — the drilling company founded by Gov. Bill Clements — and Pemex — Mexico's nationally owned oil company — for causing the oil spill that stained Texas beaches.

White, in a "Capitol Eve" interview scheduled for viewing Sunday, said he would file the suit in October. The attorney general said the suit would try to assess responsibility for "mismanagement, negligent operation and negligently maintained equipment."

White said because SEDCO has sought to limit its liability in the June 3 blowout of the Ixtoc I oil well in the Bay of Campeche, the company will be named in any action filed by the state. Pemex's private contractor, also will be a prime target of any litigation, the attorney general said.

White said the SEDCO-owned rig in operation during the blowout was not maintained properly.

"It wasn't an act of God," he said. "This thing occurred apparently because of mismanagement, negligent operation, negligently maintained equipment, whatever."

White said he would delay filing the suit until after President Carter and Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo meet in Washington Sept. 28-29.

The massive oil slick from the well blackened South Texas beaches in late August and caused heavy losses for hotel and motel operators and fishermen. The Labor Day weekend, usually the peak of the tourist season on Padre Island, was termed a disaster by many businessmen.

The government has spent millions in efforts to control the slick and to clean up the beaches.

Businessmen on the Gulf Coast had hoped to receive massive federal assistance as a result of their losses, but government agencies and officials have chilled any hopes for immediate aid.

The beaches have been relatively clean in recent weeks, because of changing weather patterns and tides, but the threat of pollution will remain until the runaway well is under control.

Earthquake Jolts Italy; Five Killed

ROME (AP) — A strong earthquake followed by nearly 300 weaker tremors rattled the mountainous heart of Italy, killing at least five people, damaging buildings in dozens of towns and sending thousands of terrified citizens from their beds into the streets.

"I saw the walls trembling from floor to ceiling," said a nun operating the switchboard at the Vatican outside Rome late Wednesday. "The quake swung a door open and kept it going and banging. My chair slid under me."

Damage was concentrated near Norcia, a medieval town of 7,000 in hilly Umbria 70 miles north of Rome. All five deaths were reported in villages close to Norcia, where St. Benedict was born 14 centuries ago.

In San Marco, three members of the same family died when their house collapsed, and police said two persons were crushed by falling debris in Chiavano.

Authorities evacuated the Norcia hospital, and streets in the town and villages throughout the Nerina Valley were covered with stones, bricks and fallen wall fragments.

The earthquake shook palace and church walls in Rome and the Vatican. Chandeliers swayed and mattresses slid to the floor. Dogs howled and the earth's movement set off thousands of anti-theft sirens on automobiles.

Romans fled into the streets still clad in pajamas and tugging crying children. Similar scenes occurred in dozens of towns and cities, including the port of Naples, where some women took mattresses into the streets and slept in the open with their children.

High Borrowing Costs Add To National Debt

By JOHN CUNNIFF
NEW YORK (AP) — G. William Miller has asked Congress to raise the ceiling on the federal debt by $56 billion to $865 billion, a figure that was destined, he knew, to raise the roof as well.

Treasury secretaries before Miller have had the same experience: Their requests have been met with anger, debate, promises and threats, but after the noise has died they have been granted, as expected.

And so the debt grows inexorably, while attempts to put a lid on it are as futile as trying to cap Mt. Etna. It swells always, and erupts often, especially when high borrowing costs add heat to the mixture.

The Tax Foundation estimates, for example, that interest payments alone on the 1980 fiscal debt will be about $7 billion, or only a bit less than the entire 1940 national debt, cities and states included.

The contrast can be spiced with layers of comparisons. That $7 billion, notes the foundation, is 600 percent more than in 1960. And with interest rates rising, that percentage is also bound to rise.

But now for the shocker: As a percentage of gross national product, or the total output of goods and services, the federal debt has been — are you ready — falling. Not in actual dollars, but in percentages.

In 1960, the foundation observes, the federal government owed $290.9 billion, or 58.5 percent of that year's gross output. It estimates the 1980 yearend debt will amount to 35.9 percent of that year's GNP.

But after accepting those figures you must pause to realize what inflation can do. It is, for example, included in gross national product numbers. Absurd, unrealistic, misleading, you say. Yes, but true.

By using inflated GNP figures you have the illusion of growth when little exists. The economy might grow very little, or shrink, in 1979, but the dollar figures won't reveal it. They're growing at 13 percent.

One of the reasons we have such inflation, claim some of the monetary "experts," is that the federal government is running big deficits and borrowing money to finance it. That borrowing, they say, inflates the GNP numbers, and keeps the debt to GNP ratio from rising.

At the same time, or so it is argued,

15 Airmen Injured In Bus Accident

WICHITA FALLS (AP) — An Air Force charter bus skidded off a rain-slick highway and overturned near here Wednesday injuring 15 airmen, none of them seriously.

A second bus, also loaded with airmen bound for Sheppard Air Force Base, left the road to avoid a collision and crashed through a fence.

the high level of borrowing forces up interest rates, including those paid by Uncle Sam. And those high interest rates, of course, can worsen the already burdensome debt.

There is no quick solution, and Congress really is without much choice in dealing with Miller's request. If it doesn't approve, and quickly, the Treasury might have to postpone the refinancing of its notes.

So let it postpone, you say. Fair enough, but with interest rates still headed higher, that could cost the government even more money. It happened last spring, said Elmer Staats, the comptroller general.

There exists the possibility also that the government wouldn't be able to pay its workers and suppliers, which would set off an even bigger controversy. To raise the limit seems to be the only possible move.

Over the longer term, however, various solutions have been offered, including the extreme possibility of simply renegeing on the debt. By constantly refinancing, some say, this is what is going on anyway.

The more conservative approach, however, is to stop these yearly budget deficits, which not only add to the total but add to the cost of financing. But that, you already have assumed, is not so easy to do.

The president, for example, has little control over three-quarters of the budget, which is legislated. It is, says the Office of Management and Budget, "relatively uncontrollable under present law."

Many people say the answer is to reduce government involvement in the private sector. But much of that involvement, such as for supervising environmental controls and safety, is dictated by law.

Two things are certain: It will take a long, long time to reduce the federal debt. And in the meantime, there seems little choice but to raise the temporary ceiling, which is already more than double the "permanent" ceiling.

Archbishop Will Get Medal Of Freedom

WASHINGTON (AP) — Archbishop Iakovos, head of the 3-million-member Greek Orthodox church in the Western Hemisphere, is being awarded the Presidential Medal of Freedom.

In announcing his intentions during a reception for the religious leader Tuesday at the White House, President Carter said of the archbishop: "We could not have a finer exemplification of the finest aspects of human life." Who's A Leader?

NO, VIRGINIA, the term "mass merchandising" did not originate with the hawking of souvenirs while the Pope says mass.

Madalyn Murray O'Hair says Pope John Paul would be in violation of the constitution if he says mass on the Washington Mall. Maybe he could say it on Mass. Ave. instead?

Wasn't it John Paul who said, "I have only been to fight!"?

A hearing officer, ruling in an anti-trust case brought by the bureaucracy, said that DuPont is guilty only of "intelligent planning"—which is something the bureaucracy wouldn't understand.

IT'S HIGH TIME that the Lubbock Independent School District provide adequate parking around not only Lubbock High School but every high school in the city.

Trustees met this week to consider acquiring parking lots near LHS.

Churches, shopping centers, other businesses, even the City itself—everybody except the schools—have been required for more than 20 years now to provide parking for the car traffic they generate.

Only the schools and Texas Tech have been permitted to get away with imposing so deleteriously on adjacent residential neighborhoods.

Students park all over the place, regularly blocking driveways, creating blind corners and obnoxiously throwing papers, bottles, cans, trash and garbage on streets and lawns.

Police patrols are minimal, city officials argue.

ing that fighting crime and manning radar traps are of higher priority on limited budgets. Meanwhile, homeowners suffer year after year from living near high schools.

Adequate parking lots wouldn't entirely solve the problem, but they'd be a good start.

The lots should be acquired, paved, maintained and amortized by charging students a sufficient parking fee. If they can afford a car, they can afford the legitimate costs associated with driving one—and that includes paying for parking the thing.

It's poor citizenship for the school system to force this cost indirectly onto nearby residents.

A PROPOSED conference between police and minority leaders here, if approached in the right spirit, undoubtedly would be highly productive.

There has been far too much inflammatory rhetoric within the black and brown communities—and far too little sensitivity toward minority feelings by some elements of police and officialdom.

I think better communication would show that (1) most minority citizens and all of their true leaders are as interested in stopping crime as the police are and (2) most of the police and all who supervise them are as interested as any minority citizen is in seeing that the law is enforced fairly, equally and without mistreating anyone.

A CONFERENCE approached in the spirit of giving all participants the benefit of belief in their sincerity should wipe away mutual mistrust and misconceptions.

There appears to be some disagreement among blacks and browns about how minority representatives to the proposed seminar should be chosen.

Human Relations Committee member Gilbert Flores says the establishment tends to recognize as minority leaders persons who "have never even been to the barrio."

Oscar Jones says the black community "is getting away from identifying people as leaders. We want to make everybody leaders."

Both points of view are valid and demonstrate the difficulty the white community, including the police, has in knowing who to talk with in order to weave the minority races into complete participation in community affairs.

IN MY OPINION, true leadership emerges when someone who has the respect of those he seeks to lead steps forward to represent their interests, works open-mindedly to resolve problems in a give-and-take fashion, and then has the ability to gain support for the programs and/or approaches to solutions that have been agreed upon.

That, obviously, requires someone of good character, stability and public mindedness. Fortunately, there are dozens—nay, thousands—of blacks and browns who fit that description, so the only problem is to focus on the issues rather than squabble over the personalities.

Each of us—black, brown and white—can be a leader in promoting better relations and in fighting crime, but there's no need for us to quarrel over who sits around the conference table, so long as those who do are good people with good heads on their shoulders.

front of the arms race could dictate some disarmament.

The paradox, noted by Cousins, is that such a non-parallel in American hands would be the peace-maker.

Until somebody comes along to solve the human equation, we are not apt to find any logic in war. But the illogic of conceding advantage to a sworn enemy well speaks for itself.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL:

Tito To Castro: 'Nyet'

IT'S TOO BAD in a way irony doesn't count for much as a negotiable commodity in the real world because frequently there are rich veins of it to be mined in the affairs of nations.

A case in point concerns the recent carryings-on in Havana, where the leaders of nearly 100 self-described nonaligned nations convened their triennial summit just as an increase in Soviet troops was confirmed.

What the troops are doing there and how long they stay are matters Washington and Moscow are likely to wrangle about for some time.

But whatever the explanations and outcome, they seem a passing strange honor guard for a gathering of nations whose common interest supposedly is the absence of commitment to either of the power blocs.

EXCEPT TO host Fidel Castro. To him, the troops were simply tangible expression of the message he had for his conferees—that the Soviet Union is the "natural" ally of the nonaligned nations.

It is a message, however, that he had no success in delivering to Josip Broz Tito, his foremost listener and president of Yugoslavia. Tito has long known all about Soviet troops. It was a disinclination to have any of them, either as allies or whatever, on Yugoslav territory that contributed to his epochal break with the USSR 30 years ago.

For all the contradictions and anomalies, the bloc and its periodic summits have provided a forum in which the smaller nations are left to themselves to argue out interests and differences, and shape common policies where possible.

BUT EVEN THAT may be a thing of the past, at least as concerns the major issue—the conflict between Tito and Castro over the bloc's future.

Tito and Castro share guerrilla backgrounds. But once having achieved national power, they have gone very different ways.

Tito, once a fiery revolutionary and fiercely anti-Western, has grown pragmatic with time and experience.

Nonalignment has provided smaller nations with a stronger voice and helped Yugoslavia avoid being drawn into the status of another Soviet satellite.

Premier Castro gives no indications of a similar mellowing. He is, however, chairman of the bloc for the next three years, a license for irony with no down payment.

Castro, with no rival in charisma and stature after the inevitable passing of Tito, who is 87, might well be able to move the bloc in the direction he sees as "natural."

And that could prove to be more than irony. For truly nonaligned states, it could prove to be a tragedy.

Judge Robs Lone Ranger Of I.D.

LOS ANGELES—It was bad enough to read about the British buying Howard Johnson's and to see Conway Twitty in People magazine getting one of those frizzy, Bob Dylan-type hairdos to replace his traditional pompadour-and-sideburns Elvis-style haircut.

But did you see the wire photo of Clayton Moore—the Lone Ranger—wearing sunglasses? Unbelievable!

In what is without a doubt the most outrageous example of judicial activism in American legal history, a Superior Court judge in this city has done the heretofore impossible: He has unmasked the Masked Man. That's right.

Judge Vernon Foster has issued a preliminary injunction forbidding Moore from wearing "the Lone Ranger mask or any mask substantially similar in appearance." Why?

BECAUSE LONE RANGER Television, Inc., claims that the public might confuse Moore—who has portrayed the Lone Ranger for over 30 years—with a new masked man who is making authorized appearances to promote a multimillion-dollar Lone Ranger feature movie.

Now, what real American among us over 35 doesn't fondly recall those "thrilling days of yesteryear" when, in 1949, we first turned on our TV and heard those "thundering hoofbeats" from out of the past? Remember the story?

Six Texas Rangers, one of whom is Clayton Moore, are under the command of Capt. Daniel Reid, sent out to capture Butch Cavendish and his outlaw gang. Ambushed at Bryant's Gap, five Rangers are killed.

Hours later an Indian (Jay Silverheels) happens upon the carnage. Muzzling, "Them dead," he discovers that one Ranger is still alive. Noticing a flattened piece of metal on a chain around the wounded Ranger's neck, and remembering how he had years earlier given this gift to the Ranger, the Indian recalls what he said at the time: "Me call you kemo sabe. It mean trusty scout. Me never forget you."

Ah, yes, says the Ranger, "Your name is Tonto." When asked what happened to his fellow Rangers, Tonto utters those immortal words: "Other Rangers all dead. You only Ranger left. You lone Ranger now."

AFTER BEING NURSED back to health, the Lone Ranger fashions a black mask from the vest of a dead Ranger brother. To assure his anonymity, six graves are marked so everyone will think all the Rangers were killed. The Lone Ranger says:

"Tonto, from this moment on I'm going to devote my life to establishing law and order in this new frontier—to make the West a decent place to live." And he does.

Subsequently, his silver bullets are produced from a mine he owns, his horse Silver is discovered and saved from an attacking buffalo in Wild Horse Valley, and Cavendish and his cohorts are brought to justice.

THE DAYS OF live radio were the fun days of the Lone Ranger. On one show a performer was so engrossed in the action that he ad-libbed the following when he heard the sound of horses: "Listen, I hear a white horse coming!"

On another show, Tonto and the Lone Ranger are in a hotel room searching the luggage of some outlaws.

Two Scorpions In Sealed Bottle

WASHINGTON—There are a number of reasons to admire Norman Cousins, editorial board chairman of Saturday Review, but lineal cogitation is not among them.

We had better hope that his influence on the present SALT II debate is infinitesimal; otherwise he may lead herds of unthinking swine over the cliff to destruction.

In his lead editorial for Aug. 4, "The Selling of SALT II," Cousins in the first paragraph veers off the runway by assuming that SALT is "the way human beings attend to the business of their survival."

He ought to know better than that. In the beginning of the Nuclear Age, at least four great nations had their scientists at work on atomic energy and the U.S., the United Kingdom, the Soviet Union and German National Socialism were of a single mind—not human salvation, but national supremacy.

THE BIG IDEA was to fabricate and discharge the ultimate strategic weapon. If the thought of universal survival wrinkled a physicist's brow—it brought no pause in the blood-thirsty eagerness of the War Lords to strike a decisive blow for victory.

In an admittedly limited acquaintance among American policymakers, I only knew one who desired to spare Hiroshima, almost wholly a non-military target.

Adm. Lewis Strauss told me while sweating out his non-confirmation by the Senate that he had proposed the first A-Bomb be dropped on Japanese redwood forest instead of on civilians.

I AM EMPHASIZING that the SALT accords are not inspired for the salvation of man. They are a Strategic Arms race which has reached almost a dead heat, with the Soviets coming from far off the pace to lead by a dirty nose.

This is the emergency in which President Carter, yielding to thoughtful senators like Nunn of Georgia, has "consented." In Cousins' language, to add the MX system to the American arsenal.

Carter, having suspended construction of the B-1 bomber and slowed deployment of other U.S. offensive weapons, is playing for "essential equivalence"—a dead heat.

But Norman Cousins, perhaps because of a literary man's love of the paradox, sees MX as "running counter to the purpose" of SALT. "This would be true if Cousins' premise were valid, and that SALT was the way human beings attend to the business of their survival."

Not "survival" but supremacy is the Russian purpose, and therefore, ours. The notable analogy of two scorpions in a sealed bottle would be the outcome of essential equivalence, and "survival," if not impossible, would be too grave a risk for any reasonable head of state to choose.

The reason, then, for introducing the MX system, a super-weapon, is to come even in the arms race, to forge ahead if possible. Theoretically, when SALT III replaces SALT II, the nation in front of the arms race could dictate some disarmament.

The paradox, noted by Cousins, is that such a non-parallel in American hands would be the peace-maker.

Until somebody comes along to solve the human equation, we are not apt to find any logic in war. But the illogic of conceding advantage to a sworn enemy well speaks for itself.

Contents May Be Worth More Than Your House

WASHINGTON—The contents of the homes of hundreds of thousands of Americans (if not the homes themselves) have been destroyed in recent months by such horrible disasters as hurricanes, uncontrollable fires, floods, storms, etc. Did their owners have enough personal property insurance to offset the losses of their precious possessions?

Almost surely: No! As just one illustration, one of California's periodic, major fires destroyed a home insured for $108,000 a while ago. This home also had $64,000 coverage on personal property—furniture, appliances, clothing, other items.

But the policyholder's personal property loss totalled $77,000. Thus, the family had to pay $23,000 out of its own pocket to replace the lost property with items of similar age and quality.

THAT SAME raging fire wiped out an expensive home that included many valuable paintings, antiques, books, pieces of jewelry. The policyholder had $65,000 coverage on his personal property—but the property's value exceeded $200,000, more than the value of the home itself. These may appear extreme examples, but they are not.

Most of you who own homes do not have adequate insurance on your personal property—even though your coverage on the home itself may be sufficient.

The reason: most homeowners policies are written so that the dollar amount of coverage on personal property is about 50 percent of the coverage amount on the building. If the home is insured for $60,000, personal property is covered up to $30,000.

THIS MAY BE more than adequate if a burglar breaks in and takes only a few of your things, or if a fire destroys only a few of your possessions. But suppose a hurricane or windstorm destroys the whole house and everything in it (such as David has done)?

How do you determine whether your personal property coverage is adequate—and if it isn't, how much more you need?

* Take a detailed, room-by-room inventory of your house.

* If you can, note how much you paid for each item and when it was acquired.

* Take photos, too; the photos should cover everything.

* IF YOU HAVE particularly valuable items—jewelry, furs, coin collections, antiques, paintings, musical instruments, the like—get them professionally appraised, so you have an accurate record.

* Once your inventory is complete, keep it in a safe place away from home—bank safe deposit box, for instance, with an extra copy for your insurance agent's files—and update it periodically.

What if you are shocked to discover how little coverage you have for your valuable personal property? What do you do then?

Berry's World

(1) Raise the coverage limit on your personal property. The typical charge is $1.80 to $2.00 per extra $1,000 coverage beyond the usual 50 percent amount. If you add $15,000 coverage, say, the extra premium would be about $30.

(2) Or buy special coverage to protect your valuables, some of which are subject to specific limits under most homeowners policies. So if a thief takes $1,000 worth of your jewelry and furs, you collect only $500. Some typical costs: jewelry, $1.15 to $3.60 per $100 of coverage; fine arts, 24 cents to 44 cents per $100.

(3) This special coverage, called a "floater," varies widely in cost depending on what you insure and where you live. With a floater, you have "all-risk" coverage on your valuables, protecting you from loss against all perils, except those specifically excluded, such as flood and earthquake.

(4) LOOK INTO REPLACEMENT cost coverage on your personal property, now available from some companies. If you don't have this type of coverage, your personal property losses will be paid for on an actual cash value basis—the cost of replacing them minus the depreciation that has taken place since they were new.

You'll probably be required to buy a higher limit on replacement cost coverage (70 percent of the amount on your home is typical) because insuring your property on this basis increases the dollar total of coverage you need. Your premium also will be higher, of course.

(5) Key point of all: do this now, before disaster strikes you. Don't delay until it's too late.

Women Inherit Another Management Headache

By PHILIP GREER
And MYRON KANDEL

As women begin to share the rewards of moving up in the executive ranks of American business, they are beginning to share some of the pitfalls as well. Executive health problems, notably hypertension and heart disease, are starting to increase among female managers.

Statistical evidence is not yet sufficient to satisfy the medical purists, but specialists in corporate health care report a "seat-of-the-pants" feel that stress-related disorders are on the upsurge among younger women in the managerial ranks.

To get an idea of how this situation is developing, we visited the New York headquarters of the Life Extension Institute, the nation's largest preventive medicine system, which conducts some 75,000 medical examinations a year in its associated centers in 10 cities.

In many cases, observed Dr. Ronald E. Costin, the institute's Eastern medical director, women managers face even greater stress than their male counterparts because they feel greater compelled to prove themselves and they sense that their performance is being watched more carefully.

At the same time, he said, women still bear a greater share of the responsibilities involved in running the home, which adds to their burden.

A further problem, Dr. Costin noted, is the desire of many women advancing up the managerial ladder to make up for what they believe to be lost time. "They treat life as if it's a 100-yard dash instead of a marathon," he said.

Despite the medical problems arising from business stress, Dr. Costin contends that both female and male executives and upper-level managers are far healthier than the average American of the same age. He disputes the widely-held belief that executives die young — the victims of the strains of the corporate rat race.

Not so, he says, reporting that they have a much lower death rate. "Even more astoundingly," he adds, "the rate is lowest in the 50-59 age group where peak stresses might be expected to occur."

One reason for this, he explains, is the operation of a sort of "Darwinism."

Black Children Hurt In Racial Incident

BOSTON (AP) — Three black children were injured when white teenagers hurled rocks and large metal bolts at three school buses near South Boston High School, police said.

School officials blamed Tuesday's outburst — the first major racial incident of the new school year — on tensions resulting from a cafeteria food fight and a scuffle the day before at an elementary school. Police said they would station patrolmen outside the school and increase their escorts of buses through the white, working-class neighborhood.

Aviation Museum To Open Soon

MESA, Ariz. (AP) — A new aviation museum created by Doug Champlin, an Oklahoma gas and oil businessman, will open at Falcon Field near here.

Champlin will start with 20 aircraft, but he hopes to expand the collection to 30 aircraft within five years.

The museum will also display 50 oil paintings of planes in combat and 600 autographed photographs of air races from 1914 to 1970.

Champlin started collecting old planes about 10 years ago.

The museum will be housed in two World War II hangars and a new building planned by Champlin.

OWL PARKING ONLY

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — A sign at a parking lot here is getting some double-takes. It says, "Owl Parking Only." Actually, you don't have to be an owl to take advantage of the parking lot. But you must be a customer of The Owl cafe which is adjacent to the lot.

whereby the fittest tend to survive and flourish in the business climate. "Freedom from chronic diseases which kill early or sap vitality; the ability to manage and even feed upon high levels of stress, and the emotional tools necessary to cope with responsibility certainly have some influence in propelling one ahead of lesser-endowed peers," he says.

But he also contends that having the intelligence and the money to pursue preventive health maintenance (including regular physical examinations), and the ability to structure their environment to provide physical relaxation and exercise, surely contribute.

Women traditionally have been more conscious of health matters than men, Dr. Costin notes, largely because they have been responsible for the health of their children. However, most of the medical attention they have received themselves has focused on female disorders and childbearing, rather than on such problems as heart disease, cancer of the colon, diabetes and strokes, which are major causes of death among both men and women. In fact, he points out, after age 55 the incidence of heart disease among women is approaching that among men.

Not surprisingly, Dr. Costin believes that women — particularly those in stressful situations — need regular and comprehensive medical examinations. More and more female managers, he notes, are getting the "executive physical" as part of their managerial "perks." Women, he says, now make up about 15 percent of those receiving such examinations at the institute.

Dr. Costin says he's encouraged by this trend, since he feels that the early detection of both disease and detrimental behavior patterns are important in extending life expectancy. But he also has some other words of comfort for women managers. "Their stress level will go down as time goes on and they become more and more accepted," he says.

One the other hand, women in business are picking up some of the bad habits of their male counterparts — alcoholism, for one. Dr. Costin says he isn't convinced that there are more alcoholics among businesswomen than among housewives, but he doesn't dispute the fact that alcohol abuse is a serious problem.

Dr. Costin says there's an easy way for an individual to determine whether he or she is a problem drinker. He calls it the "one-week test." It involves setting aside one week in the year in which absolutely no alcohol will be consumed. "If you find a reason not to comply with the week approach; if you can't make it through the week, or if you 'can't wait' for that drink at the end of the week, you're in trouble," he says, adding: "Seek help."

Midwesterner Makes Champagne

HESTON, Ind. (AP) — Tucked away in a remote corner of Indiana, close enough to feel the warm breath of Lake Michigan, Carl Banholtzer's vineyards are bringing the French tradition of champagne-making to the Midwest.

The crop of Pinot Noir grapes occupies only a portion of Banholtzer's 90-acre vineyard, but it is the source of his most chic product. With his tending, the vines that bear the small black grapes survived two fierce winters and have yielded a vintage dubbed the First Indiana Champagne.

"Ninety percent of the quality of the wine is attributable to the grapes. We make it without the addition of sugar, without the addition of acids, actually without the addition of anything," said the Chicago native.

"If you have the right grapes, growing under the right conditions and in the right soil, you have 90 percent of the battle won."

Winemaking is in Banholtzer's blood. He started on a small-scale, a home operation with his father 15 years ago.

"My father's side of the family is from the Rhine River Valley," he said. "They've been producing wines for 500 years."

Banholtzer gave up his trade as a tool-and-die-maker and moved to Michigan, where he and his wife, Janet, set up a winery. It was there he started growing European wine grapes.

The Indiana General Assembly passed the so-called "Little Winemaker's Act" in 1971, which taxes wine made in the state at a substantially lower rate than the imported product. With the prospect of a tax advantage and a "very attractive offer" to buy a winery, the Banholtzers moved south to Indiana.

"We wanted a somewhat larger facility than we had up there," he said. "Also, we wanted to be a little closer to our primary market, Chicago."

The location Banholtzer selected is a good one for fruit-growers. Neighbors grow peaches, apples, pears and plums. His soil is sandy — something grapes like because the vines can push their roots down 20 feet or more to get a firm anchor on the earth.

The reason we're able to do it here is you're on the leeward side of Lake Michigan. It's 20 degrees or more warmer than some of the inland areas," he explained.

Banholtzer approached the task of creating a quality champagne with a firm confidence. With a nod to the more famous champagne-producing areas — France, New York and California — he declared, "There's nothing they are doing there that we can't do and haven't already done."

Despite the mystique that surrounds champagne, Banholtzer insisted there is very little mystery to producing it. "If you get a bunch of grapes and squeeze them in your hands, then toss it into a bucket, in a little while you'll have wine. Everything is there for the fermentation process to begin, the sugar, the yeast. It's a self-contained package."

Banholtzer's champagne — along with his other wines — has been acclaimed by a number of wine authorities and has been featured by the Paris newspaper, Le Monde.

To date, he has had only limited success in Indiana. Earlier this year, Banholtzer sent out 120 invitations to a wine-tasting at the Indianapolis Press Club, and only eight people showed up.

"It not only hurt my pride, it hurt me financially," he said. "It was like we were coming home, in a sense, especially with the debut of the champagne. We felt slighted. And as a small winery, we are desperately dependent on the people of the state to support the product," he said.

"There's a certain snobbery associated with wine. There always has been," Banholtzer conceded. "I've done tastings where people have told me my wine is among the best they've tasted. But I've gotten the impression that they don't want anyone to see them buying it. "Maybe it'll become fashionable," he said hopefully. "Stranger things have happened."

Panels Focus Sun's Rays On Boardwalk

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI) — Atlantic City's famed Boardwalk is burning up. Well, sort of.

And it's not the hot money from the city's new gambling casinos that is turning the Boardwalk to cinders.

Last week, officials said, the decorative gold plexiglass panels that adorn the front of the Caesars World Boardwalk Regency — the East Coast's second legal gambling casino — have been working like a giant magnifying glass, focusing the sun's rays on the wooden walkway.

Officials say that for several minutes each day, the panels catch the sunlight just right and angle it into the Boardwalk. That results, they say, in warped planks, scorch marks and — in some extreme cases — even burn holes several inches deep.

"You can stick your fingers into the holes and just scrape out charcoal," City Engineer Michael Ingram said.

Ingram said he plans to present the problem to the Atlantic City Planning Board, and he hopes the board can come up with alternative materials for Caesars and other proposed casinos that use — or plan to use — reflective plexiglass.

Projects that already are planned by Ritz Associates and Playboy International call for gaming complexes entirely sheathed in reflective material similar to that used by Caesars World.

Ingram said the main problem at Caesars is the angle at which the panels are set.

"I guess we are lucky the wood never just burst into flames," Ingram said.

The Atlantic City Fire Department already has been called in by panicky merchants. Officials said the department has responded to several calls in recent days from Boardwalk vendors who said they spotted smoldering wood.

"We have to come up with new standards," Ingram said.

Company To Release Patent On Insulin

WASHINGTON (AP) — Eli Lilly and Co., maker of an estimated 85 percent of the insulin used by 1.6 million diabetics in the United States, has agreed to let competitors use its patents and know-how in producing the product.

The Federal Trade Commission announced the agreement Tuesday. It follows an FTC complaint that Lilly conspired with U.S. and foreign firms to control and allocate U.S. collection and distribution of animal pancreases, from which insulin is produced. In signing the consent order, Lilly did not acknowledge any violation of law.

Career Couples Face Transfer Dilemma

By ANDREW BLUM
 PITTSBURGH (UPI) — A Chicago businessman is offered a transfer to Pittsburgh, but his wife can not get the same professional job she now has.

The businessman, if he turns down the offer, loses a chance to advance.

It's a decision a growing number of Americans may have to make some day. Changes in attitudes and economic necessities have brought about the new American family — two spouses working and pursuing career goals.

Among 239 top industrial companies responding to a recent survey, a firm averaging 18,500 employees transferred 219 per year.

The majority of companies expected transfer activity to pick up this year over 1978.

Figures on how many transferred employees had working spouses were not determined, but companies said the trend is evident.

"Within the past five years there has been a noticeable trend to both spouses working," said United States Steel Corp.'s vice president of personnel, Donald H. Hoffman. "Before, there either was no consideration or it was not apparent."

 The nation's largest steelmaker transfers 700 to 800 management employees each year. It employs 16,000 management personnel.

Hoffman said U.S. Steel has no standard policy on how to handle transfers, but tries to look for recruits who are flexible. "They know when they come we are a worldwide company with 136 employing locations."

Most employees offered transfers seize the opportunity, but certain reasons are accepted for rejection of the move, Hoffman said. "The working spouse is a legitimate reason."

A U.S. Steel spokesman said although the second working spouse is a trend, "it is not a big problem yet, so there has been no specific tracking of numbers involved. And young people usually have their first job for four or five years, so maybe it is too early to tell," he said.

In a large corporate town like Pittsburgh, headquarters for other large firms such as Aluminum Co. of America, Westinghouse Electric Corp. and Rockwell International Corp., the transfer of employees spreads into other businesses.

Realtors get involved in the transfer process, as the employees have to buy and sell houses. Wunderly Weston Agency Inc., which works with Pittsburgh area firms on relocating employees, sometimes sees problems.

"One increase (in salary) doesn't make up for the loss of the other," says Patricia Younkins, vice president of communications, of a transfer in a family with two workers. "That is one reason why some are reluctant to accept."

The transfers go well with few exceptions, Younkins said. There are a few cases of separation or divorce, "but the transfer or relocation was not the cause, just a catalyst," she said.

As the transfer business grows, and along with it the realty business, there is a need for surveys and market research work.

One study by Market Facts Inc. found that "no matter how much a corporation thinks it is doing to help the move, if an employee thinks the move is costing him too much, he will resist."

Employee recruitment firms also come into the picture. Tom Bonner of Technical Search, a specialized personnel recruitment firm, says, "the first question is what does the spouse do? It really is a serious problem."

In an effort to smooth the transfer process, some companies even are offering the transferee and his family help in coping with psychological problems caused by a move.

Accident Grounds Aviator

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — Lt. Col. Russell Tilton is a man of the air who finds himself earth-bound and about to lose his job because a simple tragic mix-up destroyed his necessarily perfect vision.

Tilton's eyesight was impaired last year when mislabeled drops were placed in his eyes during a routine flight physical.

He can see well enough to read, with glasses, but will lose his job as commander of all New Hampshire Army National Guard pilots as a result of the accident, his lawyer says.

Attorney Richard Couser has filed a $50,000 damage suit in Tilton's behalf against the state and another claim for benefits with the federal government.

He says Tilton will never fly again. Another $50,000 claim was filed by Tilton's wife, Florette, charging mental and emotional injury, weight gain and other problems.

The skills of the 47-year-old pilot are well known among aviators who have shared the risks of guiding small planes and helicopters on rescue missions through the forested wilderness and jagged peaks of New Hampshire's White Mountains.

In 24 years, Tilton logged more than 10,000 hours and survived three crashes. Then suddenly, on Sept. 9, 1978, it was all over. He hasn't flown since.

"I thought my flying days would end when a mountain tip or a pine tree crashed through my cockpit, not because of a mixup in eyedrops," he said, irony creeping into his voice.

Tilton said "it felt like someone had shoved hot poker into my eyes" as a senior flight surgeon at Pease Air Force Base in Newington administered drops that should have dilated his pupils for a glaucoma examination.

Instead, the medication turned out to be a caustic solution of hydrogen peroxide and alcohol used to preserve stool samples.

A federal investigation has failed to determine how the substance became mislabeled.

Tilton's eyes were immediately and severely damaged, the claim said, but several doctors who examined Tilton at the time said they expected his vision to improve with time.

With glasses, he can see well enough for routine activities like driving or watching television. But even with corrective lenses his vision is 20-40, not good enough to pass a flight physical needed to maintain a pilot's license, military or civilian, the claim said.

"According to the regulations, vision corrected to 20-20 is needed for all classes of licenses," said Mary Silitch, a spokeswoman for the Aircraft Owners and Pilots Association.

"It's sad, but in effect, he's been fired because he couldn't qualify to continue flying," said Col. Leon Parker, a Guard commander. "It's not an optional thing. He can't perform his duties as a pilot and there's no other comparable job we can put him in."

"He said if he couldn't be a pilot he didn't want anything else."

Voters To Decide On Constitutional Amendments

AUSTIN (UPI) — There are no elections for statewide office holders this year, but voters still will get an opportunity Nov. 6 to adopt three proposed constitutional amendments passed by the Legislature last spring.

One constitutional amendment would authorize the Legislature to establish a program of state guaranteed loans to be used for the purchase of farm or ranch land.

The amendment would authorize $10 million in general obligation bonds, the proceeds of which would be administered by the agriculture commissioner.

The bonds would be used to: —Guarantee loans made by private lenders to individuals for the purchase of farm or ranch land.

—Acquire mortgages or deeds of trust on lands purchased under a guaranteed loan.

—Advance to the borrower a percentage of the principal and interest due on a guaranteed loan.

Rep. Luther Jones, D-El Paso, sponsored the proposed constitutional amendment to help "entry-level" farmers and ranchers obtain land.

"About the only way for a young person to get started in farming today is to marry into it or inherit and, of course, that's not always possible," Jones said.

Jones said voter approval of the amendment would preserve family farms in Texas.

"Keeping the family farm is critical to the nation's future," he said. "Not only do farmers provide natural resources of food and fiber which generate new dollars that turn over and over in the economy, they also protect those God-given resources for posterity."

The second proposed constitutional amendment would authorize the Legislature to provide terms of office for notaries public of two to four years. Notaries now serve two-year terms.

The amendment also gives the secretary of state power to appoint notaries public for the state rather than the present appointment of notaries for each individual county.

Passage of the amendment would save the state money by reducing costs to both government and notaries public by decreasing the number of renewals and reappointments to be made.

The third proposed constitutional amendment would authorize the Legislature to establish procedures for "legislative review" of state-agency rulemaking. The law could prescribe conditions for agency rules to take effect and could provide for suspension, repeal or expiration of existing rules.

If approved, the amendment would provide an exception to the separation of powers doctrine, since the executive branch currently has total control over the procedures of most state agencies.

The 60th Legislature also approved nine other constitutional amendments but those will not be decided on by voters until November 1980.

The morning stars are Mars, Jupiter and Saturn.

The evening stars are Mercury and Venus.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Virgo.

George Bird Grinnell, American writer and explorer of the West, was born on Sept. 20, 1849. This is actress Sophia Loren's 45th birthday.

On this date in history:

In 1519, Portuguese navigator Ferdinand Magellan began a voyage to find a western passage to the East Indies.

In 1873, financial chaos forced the New York Stock Exchange to close. It remained closed for 10 days.

In 1881, Vice President Chester Arthur became the 21st American President following the gunshot death of James Garfield.

In 1974, it was estimated that 1,000 people had been killed in Honduras by Hurricane Fifi. That figure was increased to 5,000 the following day.

A thought for the day: British philosopher John Locke said, "It is one thing to show a man that he is in error, another to put him in possession of the truth."

Laborer Not Injured In Five-Story Fall

NEW YORK (AP) — A Brooklyn mason's assistant, who was carrying cinder blocks, fell five stories at a mid-town construction site and walked away without a broken bone or serious injury, authorities say.

Darrell Brown, 26, was taken to St. Clare's Hospital where spokesman Don Young said, "He tripped and took a header for five stories." Young said Brown pitched the blocks and fell in the dirt or debris beneath the scaffold.

ing Brown was admitted to the hospital for observation, but doctors said he received only minor scrapes and bruises from the fall.

Potpourri

Driver Balks At Offer

RANDLEMAN, N.C. (AP) — Stock-car champion Richard Petty says he has nothing against "the good old boys," but an offer to star on CBS-TV's "The Dukes of Hazzard" didn't provide enough good old money.

PETTY

"It's not that I've got something against good old boys or anything like that," Petty said. "I guess I'm still sort of one myself."
"Their people (series representatives) contacted us, and they wanted me to be in an episode, in fact build an episode around me, but we couldn't get together on the money..."

Jerry Lee Lewis Arrested

HERNANDO, Miss. (AP) — Singer Jerry Lee Lewis has been arrested on charges of narcotics possession, Sheriff Denver F. Sowell of DeSoto County said.

LEWIS

Sowell said Lewis was arrested Wednesday at his home near Memphis, where authorities, acting on a tip from Internal Revenue Service agents, discovered quantities of cocaine and marijuana. Police refused to say how much.

Lewis was released on $3,000 bond. A preliminary hearing was set for 4 p.m. today.

Sowell said IRS agents told him they spotted the narcotics while they were seizing personal property at Lewis' home to satisfy a tax lien.

More Problems For Nixon

NEW YORK (AP) — Richard Nixon may be welcome at his new Manhattan condominium, but his bodyguards apparently are not.

A suit filed Wednesday by residents of the plush Fifth Avenue building says the Nixons can move into the lavish 12-room digs — only if they give up or restrict Secret Service activities.

The neighbors claim the agents would be a disruptive force. A hearing has been set for Friday at which the Nixons must show why they should not be prevented from buying the apartment.

It was the second rebuff the Nixons have encountered since they sold their San Clemente, Calif., estate and decided to return to New York.

Charlie To Lose Angel

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The last of the original "Charlie's Angels" says she hopes to leave the hit ABC television series next year to seek a career in movies, says the New York Daily News.

In an interview in today's editions, Jaclyn Smith says she hopes the producers of the show will let her go a year before her contract expires. Farrah Fawcett left the show two years ago in a bitter contract battle, and Kate Jackson was replaced this season — the show's fourth — by model Shelley Hack.

"If Shelley goes over well with the viewers there's no reason why I couldn't walk off the show," Miss Smith told the Daily News. "It has been frustrating to continually turn down movie scripts because I've been committed to television."

Reached for comment, Aaron Spelling, producer of the show, said, "That's the silliest thing I've ever heard. Neither Jackie nor her agent have breathed a word to us about getting out of her contract."

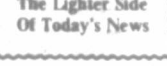

Kremlin Suspicious Of Liz

MOSCOW (AP) — Forget the U-2s, the MXs and the nuclear bombs. Elizabeth Taylor is America's new secret weapon in the Mideast, and she has the Russian's attention.

The official Soviet news agency Tass said Wednesday that Miss Taylor's visit to Egypt came "on instructions from Washington."

Chicken Little Lives

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — The little Cornish hen probably never heard of Chicken Little, but the results were the same anyway.

The sky didn't fall, and the cardboard box where the hen was placed remained intact despite a direct hit from a half-ton boulder.

Wednesday's demonstration was put on by the International Paper Co. at the Western Packaging Exposition.

"The idea is that they're introducing a new crush-proof paperboard," said exposition spokesman Jim Greif. "This is simply a way of demonstrating that."

As for the hen, who has gone through the rock ritual about 30 or 40 times a day since the exposition opened Monday, Greif said, "she seems to be holding up all right. We had a couple of TV crews here and she was a little flustered, but she's OK now."

Judges Slated For Fair Livestock Competition

Judges have been named for the junior lamb show and the junior steer show, two features of the 62nd annual Panhandle South Plains Fair, scheduled here Saturday through Sept. 29.

Jim Sachse of Las Cruces, N.M., will judge the lambs while Dr. David Ames of Manhattan, Kan., will pick the winners in the steer show, general manager Steve L. Lewis announced.

A total of $4,570 in premiums is being offered in 15 classes of competition in the lamb show, topped by $400 for champions and $200 in cash for reserve champions.

All regularly enrolled 4-H and FFA members are eligible for the competition.

However, only 4-H and FFA members in the following counties are eligible for the steer show, offering $3,530 in prizes: Bailey, Borden, Briscoe, Castro, Cochran, Crosby, Dawson, Dickens, Floyd, Gaines, Garza, Hale, Hockley, Kent, Lamb, Lubbock, Lynn, Motley, Parmer, Scurry, Swisher, Terry and Yoakum.

There will be two breed divisions with the following classes in each division: British breeds (purebred or high grade Angus, Herefords, Polled Herefords and shorthorns), lightweight and heavyweight classes, Crossbreds and other breeds in lightweight, medium-weight, medium heavyweight and heavyweight classes.

Judging will begin at 10 a.m. Sept. 28.

An all-star lineup has been booked for the stage of Fair Park Coliseum during the eight-day run and Lewis said plenty of seats remain for all shows.

In addition to a varied slate of acts scheduled on the outdoor stage throughout the engagement, eleven shows have been included in the eight-day run.

Free entertainment outside includes Bob Ford's world of magic; Vandermeide, Europe's fastest hypnotist; the Amarillo Gunfighters; the Flatland Bluegrass band, Sam Hill and the Tennessee Sounds, Lubbock and area square dance clubs, and mime Ruth Rubin.

Booked for the stage of Fair Park Coliseum is the following lineup:

The Charley Pride show, 5 p.m. and 8 p.m. Sunday; the Statler Brothers, with Barbara Mandrell, 5 p.m. and 8 p.m. Monday; the Eddie Rabbitt show, with Janie Fricke, 8 p.m. Tuesday, only; the Dave and Sugar show, with John Conlee, 8 p.m. Wednesday only; "The Golden Years of Country Music," presented by South Plains college, 7 p.m. Thursday, only; the Tom T. Hall show, with Charly McClain, 8 p.m. only Sept. 28; and the Tammy Wynette show, with Rex Allen Jr. and George "Goober" Lindsey, 5 p.m. and 8 p.m. Sept. 29.

The 12th annual old time fiddlers' contest will open the fair on Saturday. Admission will be free.

Tickets for all other coliseum shows except the SPC event are $4, $6 and $8 and all seats are reserved. Tickets for the SPC show are $2 and $3.

Tickets may be obtained at the fair office, Dunlap's, Sears and Hemphill-Wells stores in the South Plains Mall, Luskey's Western Wear or at Ed's Wagon Wheel.

Developers Turn Boston Garage Into Automobile Condominium

BOSTON (AP) — For $6,500 you can buy a nice car, but that amount — plus a $6 monthly maintenance charge — is what people are spending for a single parking space in a unique condominium or cars on Beacon Hill.

The developers say their Brimmer Street Garage is probably the first anywhere to "go condo," or cash in on the real estate craze that is turning thousands of rented apartments into resident-owned domains.

Although the price may seem high to someone who parks in his driveway, the people behind the project say that all 110 parking spaces have been spoken for even before they officially go on sale.

For $8,500, buyers get a 17-square-foot rectangle painted on the floor of a 94-year-old brick building on the Flat Part of the Hill, as people call the foot of this trendy hillside neighborhood.

But the price, says co-developer Jonathan G. Davis, is relative.

"Real estate values here are high enough and parking is scarce enough that $8,500 for a parking space is insignificant," he says. "This neighborhood has been a prime residential area for almost 200 years. People are confident that it will be a good investment for a while longer."

Beacon Hill is a place where paying $150,000 for a one-bedroom condominium apartment is not considered outrageous. One of the single-family, 19th-century brick houses that line the narrow streets is tough to find for under $200,000.

And finding a place to park on these streets can easily mean a half hour of circling the block. Dodging the Denver boot, a gadget that locks the wheels until car owners pay their parking tickets, is a fact of life on the hill. Lt. Gov. Thomas P. O'Neill's car was booted recently after he accumulated 40 tickets, most of them near his hill condo apartment.

Davis and his partner, Elliot Conviser, will begin selling the parking spaces next month and they expect 80 percent of the them to go to current renters in the garage, who now pay up to $119 a month.

As auto condo owners, they will have to make real estate tax and maintenance fee payments that add up to $66 a month.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

By Bernice Bede Osol

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you're planning to do something tomorrow that represents a sizable investment, you'd be wise to first discuss it with someone you trust and who has a good business head.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your best chances for achieving your goals tomorrow will be through the use of methods which are not too obvious or direct. Meander your way to the target.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) More can be accomplished tomorrow by pulling strings behind the scenes, rather than seeking the spotlight. Who cares who takes the bows, so long as the job gets done?

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Things look promising tomorrow, but you may have to do a little politicking to gain your aims. Pay back favors to those who help you now.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Making the necessary compromises and concessions is your key to paving the path to success tomorrow. Be willing to give in order to get.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Even though you enjoy experimenting with new methods and techniques, things will go more smoothly if you don't innovate. The proven and traditional are best tomorrow.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't be too surprised tomorrow if you begin to experience a marked improvement in your social life. Changes are stirring which will please you.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) No one has to remind you tomorrow to weigh the alternatives. Your judgment is very keen. You should be able to find several acceptable solutions to any problem.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You have the capacity to handle several tasks simultaneously tomorrow and do a good job on each. Be as productive as possible.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Being around cheerful people tomorrow is a must for your psyche. If you're not going to a gathering, arrange something impromptu with choice friends.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Several things which you have been hoping to finalize can be concluded tomorrow if you plan your agenda properly. Stick to your schedule.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) In involvements tomorrow where you're required to use sales techniques your possibilities are promising. You're persuasive, and you'll propose only that which is good.

Breakthrough In Talks Reported

LONDON (AP) — In what may be the first breakthrough of the Zimbabwe Rhodesian peace talks, the bi-racial government announced it had reached agreement with Britain today on the key issue of weakening the white minority's power under a new constitution.

"Failure is now out of the question," Foreign Minister David Mukome told reporters after a two-hour session between British Foreign Secretary Lord Carrington, chairman of the London peace conference, and the Zimbabwe Rhodesian government delegation.

In a separate news conference, Carrington's spokesman, Nicholas Fenn, was more cautious, saying he was "in no position to make a major announcement" at this time. But he said the two delegations were "very close together" and "I am not discounting anything Mr. Mukome may have said."

Even if the two delegations are on the verge of agreement, Carrington must still win over the Patriotic Front guerrilla alliance, with which it is holding separate talks.

Asked about this issue, Mukome told reporters, "It's been decided. We have reached agreement ... We have got to the stage where we are very near agreeing with the British on what sort of a constitution there should be for Zimbabwe as a whole."

But he would not be pinned down on whether his delegation, which includes white former Prime Minister Ian Smith, had actually bowed to the British demands.

Carrington was to continue later today with his separate constitutional negotiations with the leaders of the Patriotic Front, Joshua Nkomo and Robert Mugabe. He has been meeting the two sides separately this week after Mugabe said he wanted to discuss the constitution only with the British.

ZBA Tells Methodist Hospital To End Parking For Trailers

By DEBBI STALTER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

City Zoning Board of Adjustment members today decided that Methodist Hospital is in actuality operating a trailer park on its premises, meaning the hospital will have to discontinue designating a specific area for parking recreational vehicles.

The board was asked to consider the legality of the hospital directing visitors driving travel trailers to a specific parking area. The matter was brought to the board's attention by Clarence Solnick of 3502 21st St., whose home is adjacent to two sides of the trailer parking area.

Solnick said he was bothered by noise from the occupants of the trailers and said that some of the mobile homes' motors run for long periods of time, complicating his asthma problems.

Solnick, who had taken photographs of trailers parked nearby his home, said the number of vehicles involved numbered between five and 20 and ranged from sanitation trucks to horse trailers.

"I don't like to be a troublemaker," Solnick told the board, "but I think we have been abused in this field. Some people (occupants of the trailers) have been real nice, and some people have been real pigs, if you'll pardon the expression."

Solnick pointed out that he has even been approached by trailer owners wanting to purchase water from him for use in their mobile homes.

David Brown, representing Methodist Hospital, said the hospital's board of trustees has considered the matter of the parking area before, but said that because of adequate space needed to maneuver large vehicles and other parking problems, the board decided it had no alternative in changing the parking location. Brown said security personnel specifically direct those driving such vehicles to the area near Solnick's home.

The city zoning ordinance defines a travel trailer park as any tract of land under single ownership and covering more than 10 acres, where accommodations are provided for travel trailer use.

Discussion among board members arose as to the exact meaning of accommodations. Board member Bill Maloy said he considered a paved parking area to be an accommodation, while Bob Schreiner suggested that accommodations meant utility hookups for mobile homes.

The board's decision will mean that travel trailers will still be allowed on the hospital's property, but a specific area will no longer be designated for parking these, said Zoning Administrator Jerrel Northcutt.

In other action, board members granted a variance to Aubrey J. Fouts, representing Mr. J's convenience store at 5719 66th St., to allow self-service gas pumps at the store.

Fouts' request met with opposition from David Hess, representing the owners of The Pantry at 5187 69th St., who claimed the residents in the area of the 66th Street store did not want gas pumps near their homes.

Fouts called Hess's remarks a tactic to keep competition out of the area.

Board members denied a setback variance to First Federal Savings and Loan Association's office at 7802 Indiana Avenue which would have allowed for an additional driveway up to a kiosk, or deposit structure, at the site, but approved the addition of the kiosk itself.

Other requests granted by the board were from:

- Bobby J. Moody, representing The Women's Clinic at 4336 Loop 289 and Furr's Cafeterias Inc., for a sign variance allowing signs to be placed near the entrances to the clinic to avoid traffic confusion.
- Morris W. Turner, representing Tara Land Co., for a variance to townhouse site plan requirements for a structure near the intersection of Utica Avenue and Fourth Street which would allow two townhouse units to a building instead of the required three.
- Lloyd Croslin Jr., representing himself and Joe Jack Reynolds, for a variance to allow outside storage under specified regulations at a site north of Loop 289 and west of Quirt Avenue.
- Michael Shaw, representing Rent-Buy Inc. at 4917 34th St., to allow for the store's location at that address.
- Gay Crump, representing Vintage Press at 5177 69th St., for a variance to reduce the number of required parking spaces at his business to facilitate loading and unloading of equipment.

The board tabled until its next meeting a request by Pat M. Allen of South University Veterinary Hospital at 7801 S. University Ave. to allow the addition of an aviary to the site. Board members said they needed more information about the construction of the structure before making a decision.

Police Capture Suspect In Oklahoma Abduction

STRINGTOWN, Okla. (UPI) — A man took a teen-age girl from her rural home at gunpoint early today and fled with her in the family car to Pryor, 140 miles away, where he was arrested, police said.

Police arrested a suspect and found the girl unharmed as the two left a motel in Pryor several hours after the alleged abduction.

Pryor Police Sgt. Jim Moore said the suspect, identified as a 19-year-old resident of Kansas, Okla., did not resist arrest.

"It was as peaceful as we had hoped for," Moore said.

Moore said a citizen who had heard radio broadcasts about the abduction reported seeing the stolen car parked outside a Pryor motel.

Officers surrounded the motel, and shortly after 8 a.m. they came out of the motel, got into the car and started to drive away," Moore said. "Police stopped the car, and the suspect came out with his hands up."

Moore said the girl, Ellen Thompson, 17, did not appear to have been harmed.

He said the two arrived at the motel about 7 a.m.

Atoka County Sheriff's Deputy Jake T. Jackson said the man who took Miss Thompson and left her parents bound in their home, taking three guns and the family car.

Jackson said the Thompsons' car was seen at a truck stop on U.S. 69 a mile north of Stringtown, where the man apparently abandoned a car stolen Wednesday in Arlington and was not reported seen again until it was found in Pryor.

Jackson, theorizing the suspect may have had an accomplice, said the stolen car had been left along a highway during the kidnapping, then was driven to the truck stop.

Jackson said the man threatened Miss Thompson's parents and told them he had killed three people. Moore said he did not believe the slayings had occurred.

"It was just a psychological thing, or something," Moore said.

He said the suspect apparently had no criminal record.

Haynes Begins Defense Case In Davis Trial

FORT WORTH (AP) — Defense attorney Richard Haynes today spelled out what he calls the "$20 million gamble" he contends led to murder solicitation charges against Cullen Davis.

Haynes outlined the defense case learned heavily on circumstances of the five-year Davis divorce granted last spring. It appeared from his statements that Haynes intends to retry at least a portion of that divorce trial in this case.

"We're going to sketch in the background so you can see what brought these people together and why and how," he said in his opening statement.

Haynes heavily emphasized a premarital agreement between Davis and Priscilla Davis. That agreement, Haynes said, would limit Priscilla's access to the Davis fortune if the couple divorced.

Haynes brought attention to his point, marking "20 million v. 1 million" on a white pad as he explained the "gamble" to jurors. He said Priscilla's attorneys offered in 1978 to settle the divorce case for $20 million but Davis refused. Davis' attorneys counted with a $2 million settlement offer, but Priscilla turned them down.

Davis' lawyers contend the prenuptial agreement lies at the heart of his defense.

The agreement, they argue, motivated a conspiracy among Priscilla, former Fort Worth karate instructor Pat Bursell and key prosecution witness Davis McCrory.

McCrory has testified Davis ordered him to hire an assassin to kill divorce Judge Joe Eidson and others.

LEVELLAND (Special) — Services for Sally Jane Smith, 92, of Levelland are pending with George Price Funeral directors.

She died Wednesday at Cook Memorial Hospital after a lengthy illness.

She was a native of Jonesboro and moved to Levelland in 1961 from Clovis, N.M. She married Abner J. Smith Dec. 23, 1914. He died in 1960.

Survivors include a son, Joe of Tulsa; five daughters, Flora Bell Williams of Clovis, N.M., Ruth Wilson of Levelland, Ethel Lee Mullis of Amarillo, Mary Swayn of San Diego, Calif., and Margaret Fabian of Orange City, Fla.; 28 grandchildren; 90 great-grandchildren and 14 great-great-grandchildren.

Enrollment Up At LCC

Lubbock Christian College enrollment is up 10.7 percent over last year, according to Registrar Rickey Harman.

Harman said the academic head count this semester is 1,263, compared to 1,141 in the fall of 1978.

"The most important gain seems to be in the regular fall credit student enrollment, which has increased by 142 students, or 13 percent," Harman said.

Of the total LCC enrollment, 1,112 are full time students, which is an increase of 16.6 percent from the fall of 1978 and accounts for 88 percent of the students on campus this fall, he said.

Counting the 78 Industrial-Technology students and the 134 Continuing Education students, there are 1,475 students on campus this fall, which is an overall increase of 328 students over last year, Harman said.

William Mabry

PETERSBURG (Special) — Services for William A. Mabry, 65, of Route 1, Petersburg, will be at 2 p.m. Friday in the First Baptist Church here.

The Rev. Jessie James Nave, former pastor of the church, will officiate, and the Rev. Wayne Perry of Lubbock will assist.

Burial will be in City of Lubbock Cemetery under direction of Sanders Funeral Home in Lubbock.

Mabry died at 6:37 p.m. Wednesday in Lubbock's Community Hospital after a lengthy illness.

The Center Point native moved to Estacado in 1921 and to Petersburg in 1953. He farmed south of Petersburg, retiring in 1977.

Mabry was married to Nina Baker Sept. 28, 1935, in Lubbock.

He was a member of the First Baptist Church here and a member of the Petersburg Co-op Grain for 24 years. He was on the board of directors of the American Soybean Association and the Texas Soybean Association.

Survivors include two sons, Royal Thomas and Myron Jace, both of Petersburg; two sisters, Mrs. J.D. Sherrod of Lubbock and Mrs. Ford Greenhaw of Lorenzo; and a grandchild.

Statement Indicates Uranium Stolen

ERWIN, Tenn. (UPI) — The possibility that someone has stolen enough enriched uranium to make an atom bomb strengthened today with a statement by officials that chances of clerical error were "diminishing."

A routine inventory at the Nuclear Fuel Services Inc. plant revealed that at least 20 pounds of the substance was missing and the plant was ordered shut Tuesday until a complete check could be made.

Seven investigators have been sent to the installation, which processes fuel for atomic submarines, and specially-equipped aircraft with detection devices were assigned to overfly the site.

Charlie Mullins

RALLS (Special) — Services for Charlie M. Mullins, 80, of Ralls are pending at Carter-Adams Funeral Home.

Mullins died at 5:15 a.m. Wednesday at a Big Spring hospital after a long illness.

A native of Montague County, Mullins moved to Ralls in 1942. He was a retired plumber.

Survivors include his wife, Ivie Druie Benson Mullins of Electra; a son, Charles of Hollis, Okla.; three daughters, Maudine Douglas of Monahans, Barbara Warren of Alexandria, La., and Cloe Dell Parrish of Fresno, Calif.; a sister, Mary Grace Elkins of Childress; 11 grandchildren and 11 great-grandchildren.

Government Official Supports SALT II Treaty

By RUTHANNE BROCKWAY
Avalanche-Journal Staff
The purpose of SALT II is to put limits on the nuclear arms race between the United States and the Soviets "because anything they don't build, we don't have to match" a state department spokesman said in Lubbock Wednesday.

But concern over the ability of the U.S. to monitor Soviet weaponry has left some Americans reluctant to agree to the second Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty.

That concern was heightened recently when Soviet troops were discovered in Cuba.
William J. Dyess, deputy assistant secretary of the U.S. State Department, said, however, that the treaty is viable despite the Cuba incident.

The career diplomat said he could not discuss how long the U.S. has known about the presence of the troops, but did say, "We've known it was there, but not the nationality."

The triad of weaponry covered in SALT-II includes intercontinental ballistic (land) missiles, nuclear submarines and intercontinental bombers. If passed, the treaty would be effective through 1985.

He said that during the SALT I agreement, "We accused them eight times and they accused us five times." All of the incidents were settled.
Dyess said SALT I was a shorter treaty with general language which caused serious disputes. He said SALT II is much more detailed and that is the reason that negotiations have lasted through three American presidential administrations.

Taylor To Be Awarded Spur In City Ceremonies Friday

By GERRY BURTON
Avalanche-Journal Staff
The National Golden Spur Award is a prestigious honor given to an individual who has made significant contributions to the livestock industry.
The trophy is simple — a gilded OK spur of the early day working cowboy combined with a stand of glass cut to reflect the spur as it rotates.

Nearly 2,000 guests from 10 states are expected to attend the prairie party and award ceremony and many will stay for Ranch Day Saturday at Texas Tech's Ranching Heritage Center. The 12-acre center will host festivities for the public plus the annual meeting of the Ranching Heritage Association, which boasts members in 23 states and two foreign countries, with many members in ranks of the award-sponsoring associations.

Tickets sold for the prairie party will help finance the two days of activities, but the award could not be made without a special group of patrons who help underwrite expenses. Anything above the cost of the session will benefit the Ranching Heritage Center.

"It (the presence of troops) is irritating," Dyess said. "But I hope the presence of this combat unit will not interfere with the treaty."
With or without the treaty, however, Dyess stressed that the U.S. will monitor Soviet weaponry.
"Trust is not a part of this agreement," he said. "If there was trust, we wouldn't need the treaty."

Dyess noted that technically, "The Soviet Union can destroy the United States with nuclear weapons and there is no way we can stop them." But he added that such a prospect is unlikely.
"They would be risking everything for one roll of the dice," he said, adding that there "are no dry runs" for nuclear weapons. He said it is only a theory that all missiles would land exactly on target, because "it's never been done." He noted that if only a few Russian-launched missiles misfired, it could backfire on the Soviets and destroy some of their own cities.

Dyess explained that if one country exhibits "ambiguous behavior" — which he said was a euphemism for cheating — a bi-lateral commission would meet to discuss the issue.
Dyess asserted that the treaty should be judged on its merits, not politics, and that in a pre-election year the treaty was bound to attract opposition.
"If it hadn't been (the issue of) troops in Cuba, it would have been something else," he said.

Friday, the second award will go to Jay L. Taylor of Amarillo, whose achievements have been recognized on the national level for four decades.

His accomplishments have touched the big and little livestock producer, all related industries and spread to the consumer in many fields.

Hundreds Battling Flames

By The Associated Press

A 20,000-acre fire singed the city limits of Ventura as hundreds of firefighters battling hot weather and erratic winds struggled to quell at least 16 blazes consuming 90,000 acres of California brush and timber.

Since Saturday, at least 50 homes have been destroyed or damaged by the fires, which have been fanned by hot weather and erratic winds, running up damage and firefighting costs into the millions of dollars.

However, state fire meteorologists, who work full-time on fire weather predictions, are forecasting a gradual increase in sea breezes that could bring down temperatures to the lower 80s in the Los Angeles basin by the weekend and provide relief from low inland humidity.

Meanwhile, Kenneth Hahn, chairman of the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors, saying "one more fire and we're in big trouble," declared his county a disaster area Wednesday and suggested that supervisors in Ventura and Santa Barbara Counties do the same.

"My people have just about had it," said U.S. Forest Service spokesman Dave Blaine of the firefighters who have come from as far as Maine to help control the flames.

"Some of them have been at it now for two weeks and they're in as much danger from heat stroke or heart attack as they are from the fires," he said.

Hundreds of people in the Ventura area fled their homes Wednesday when that blaze, which began Tuesday, came within two miles of the city limits. Fire department officials said later the city of 64,800 was in no danger and only a barn was destroyed before firefighters beat back the blaze.

"It was quite a sight to see — the fire coming up toward the town," said Ventura County Fire Capt. Dick Perry. "It was like a wall of flames."

Meanwhile, a half-dozen houses were in ashes near Goleta, in Santa Barbara County 100 miles northwest of Los Angeles, after a 4,000-acre fire roared through Eagle Canyon and into the Los Padres National Forest.

Fires also burned across 41,000 acres in the Angeles National Forest above Los Angeles, including 3,000 acres north of Claremont in eastern Los Angeles County.

In Northern California, 6,800 acres of forest burned near Placerville, 50 miles northeast of Sacramento, and 3,000 acres went up in flames in Plumas County, 100 miles northeast of Sacramento.

The Claremont blaze, which began Wednesday, spread rapidly and for a time threatened about 50 cabins in Palmer Canyon.

Los Angeles County Fire Department spokeswoman Faye Nagy said that 350 firefighters backed by helicopters laden with chemicals battled through brush up to 25 feet high to save structures.

"Helicopters were dropping their loads right on top of homes," she said.

Meantime, the California Division of Forestry was battling its biggest fire of the year in San Diego County as erratic winds sent flames racing across more than 8,000 acres of brush in rural Dulzura, 30 miles east of San Diego.

CDF spokeswoman Linda Donaker said shifting winds saved several mobile homes in the fire's path when the blaze broke Wednesday. No structures were destroyed and no injuries or evacuations were reported.

Mrs. Donaker said the inferno began when 15 mile-an-hour winds swept three smaller fires together. The blaze remained out of control.

"Conditions out there are hot, dry and windy," she said. "This one could really rip."

In the Angeles National Forest 20 miles north of Los Angeles, firemen reported Wednesday that the end was in sight for the mammoth Sage Fire, which had charred 32,000 acres of brushland.

Forest Service spokesman Lee Redding said that a critical fire line on the northeast shoulder of the fire near Mt. Pacifico held late Wednesday, allowing for an estimated 70 percent containment on the big blaze.

Redding placed the cost for fighting the fire at $2.6 million to $2.8 million. Watershed damages should run upwards of $24 million, he said.

Area Enjoys Sunny Days

A-J News Services

Dawn brought fair skies and early morning temperatures in the 40s over much of the South Plains.

Afternoon temperatures were expected to reach the low 80s today, but day-break lows dropped to 46 degrees at Morton and Silverton, 48 at Muleshoe and Plainview and 50 in Lubbock.

Traces of rain were reported at Floydada and Paducah overnight.

Patchy light fog was reported in parts of the Lubbock area before dawn, but dissipated shortly after sunrise.

Generally fair skies are forecast for the Lubbock vicinity today through Friday.

The high Friday will be near 80 and the low tonight in the mid-50s, weathermen said.

Winds will be variable at 5 to 10 mph today and tonight.

West Texas was generally fair and the eastern half of the state cloudy and foggy with light rain falling over much of it, weathermen reported.

The extended West Texas forecast calls for mostly sunny days with minor day-to-day temperature changes Saturday through Monday.

BURNING HILLS — Los Angeles County firemen wait for a brush fire to burn within range as they try to keep it from jumping a road near the city limits of Claremont Wednesday night. Texaco Limits Pledges On Heating Oil Prices

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texaco, praised by President Carter for its announced intention to freeze heating oil prices, told Congress today its promise applies only to the rest of 1979.

"Obviously you know and we know that OPEC (the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries) is meeting in December," Texaco Vice President J.M. Seamans told a House energy subcommittee.

He said it would be "unwise" to promise to hold the line on prices beyond that time.

Texaco officials testified after being threatened with a possible subpoena for not showing up at a subcommittee hearing Monday. Plans for issuing the subpoena were dropped by the panel when the Texaco officials agreed to appear voluntarily.

The oil company's announced freeze on heating oil prices for the rest of the year won the public commendation of Carter, who urged the rest of the industry to follow Texaco's lead.

But subcommittee Chairman Toby Moffett, D-Conn., called the Texaco announcement "a public relations coup."

He said the firm "has among the highest prices and the worst credit terms in the industry."

Texaco officials acknowledged they were a little uncomfortable with all the attention that has been given the company as a result of the president's praise.

"It's unfortunate that it has been categorized as the national heating oil plan," said W.K. Tell Jr., another Texaco vice president. "Nothing could be further from the truth."

"It's not a national plan, it's not a panacea, it is one small step," Tell testified.

Moffett suggested that Carter goofed in singling out Texaco for praise. "As it turned out, the administration embraced the laggard, not the leader," he said.

Texaco has been reluctant to discuss its future heating oil pricing policies and related plans," Texaco President John K. McKinley told Moffett in a letter.

Meanwhile, House Democrats have declared their support for clamping federal price controls back on home heating oil and similar fuels.

The voice vote Tuesday is not binding. But sponsors said it was a gesture of congressional frustration over the fact that heating oil prices have soared by 60 percent since last winter, to more than 80 cents a gallon.

President Ford lifted price controls from heating oil and diesel fuel in 1976. The controls could be reimposed by either President Carter or Congress.

Bergland Sees Hail Damage On Plains crop reporting districts of 1-North and 1-South was estimated by the USDA, on the basis of Sept. 1 conditions, at 3,225,000 bales.

This would be up from the previous all-time high in the two districts of 3,154,600 bales in 1977 and would be a heavy increase from last year's output of 2,025,000 bales.

Except for the hailstorms, "very favorable August weather" promoted crop development and maturity, the USDA said. Days were generally clear and warm, the department said, and timely rains provided needed moisture in most areas.

While acknowledging that the hailstorms had created hardships for many individual farmers, the Crop Reporting Board contended that overall crop progress on the non-damaged acreage had more than offset the storm losses.

Bergland said he was going to announce later today a contract to the state of Texas to do research work on "mechanically grading cotton to remove some of the judgments which now are used in the spot market."

The secretary said he has been told that "there is great doubt about the reliability of those eyeball tests and grades" now used in the government classification of cotton to assess quality.

"So we are going to test, to try to build a machine to do it, so that there can be no question about whether or not someone is trying to hornswozzle you," Bergland said.

Bergland was to speak at a public meeting at 2 p.m. here today at the Civic Center. He was scheduled to arrive in Abilene at 4 p.m. on a two-day visit to the 17th Congressional District of Rep. Charles Stenholm of Stamford.

Rep. Kent Hance of Lubbock and Stenholm accompanied Bergland on the crop tour this morning. Bergland spoke Wednesday to the Dallas Agricultural Club.

ed receding early today as rains slackened.

So far this year, Houston has recorded 51.38 inches of rain. Alvin has recorded more than 94 inches of rain. The average annual rainfall in the area is 48 inches.

Alvin recorded 13.53 inches of rain for the three-day period ended at 7 a.m. Thursday. One forecaster said he had a rain gauge at his house that measured 18.40 inches during the period.

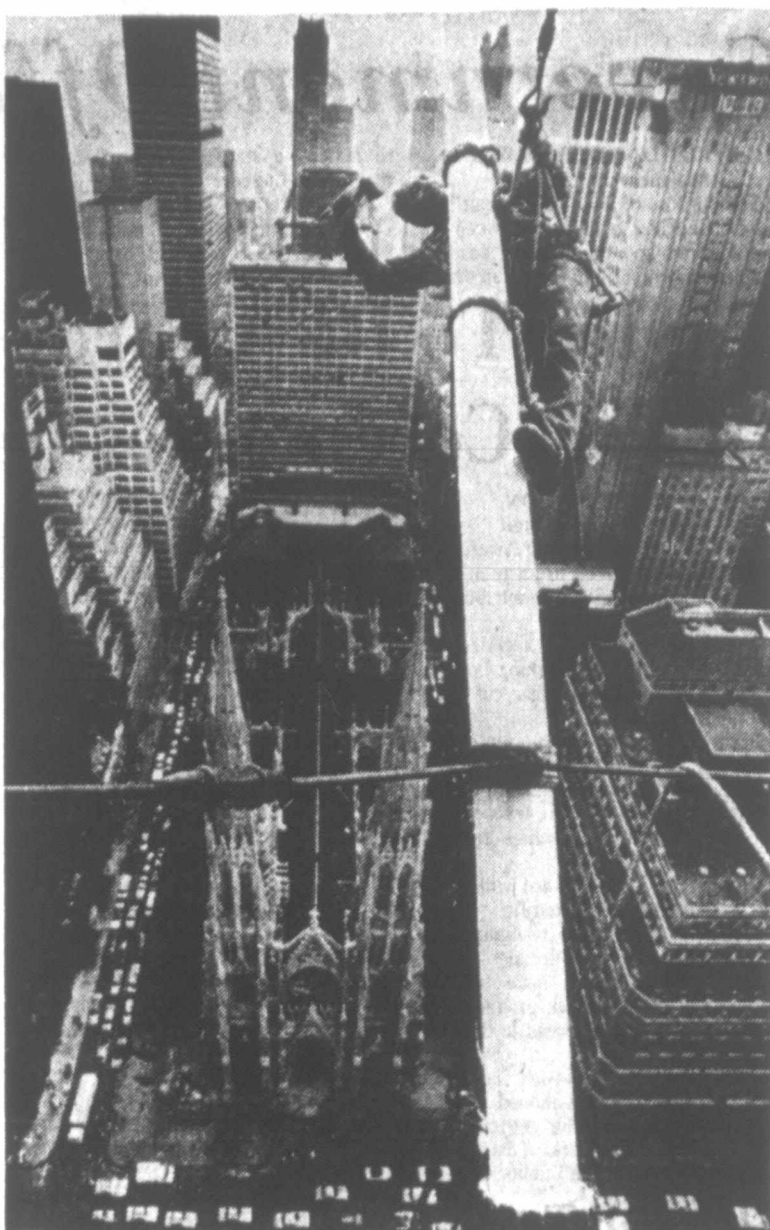

Parts of Southeast Texas from Houston-Galveston to Beaumont-Port Arthur-Orange have experienced flooding five times this year. Port Arthur's Drainage District 7 turned on its built-in pump system today to forestall flooding.

The most recent spate of flooding struck hard Wednesday in Corpus Christi, farther south on the Texas coast, but early today, Assistant Fire Chief Kyle Gibson said "We're in good shape down here right now."

A total of 400 persons were forced to evacuate homes in Corpus Christi, where as much as 4 feet of water washed into some suburbs.

WATER EVERYWHERE — Downpours that totaled 13 inches caused this flash flooding that covered most of Aransas Pass, on the Texas Gulf Coast, Wednesday. Many of the town's residents had to be evacuated because of the high water and National Guardsmen were brought in to enforce a dawn-to-dusk curfew. (AP Laserphoto)

Trustees Silent On Land Plans

By LISA PAIKOWSKI

Avalanche-Journal Staff

Public school trustees today asked administrators to negotiate for the purchase of property near Lubbock High School, but they still would not specify the location of the property.

The board went into closed session during their regular monthly meeting in order to discuss the land transaction that was the subject of an earlier closed session on Monday.

Trustees say they cannot give any specifics, but sources indicated Monday that the property under consideration is at the site of Calvary Baptist Church across from Lubbock High.

There is speculation that the property may be used to expand parking facilities for the downtown school, though board president Monte Hasie Monday said only that the property "certainly could be used for parking."

Lubbock High principal Knox Williams, who attended the Monday night session, acknowledged that parking is a problem for Lubbock High students, some of whom must park four or five blocks away from the school. He said that the faculty has grown, so that more teachers need spaces and that more students are driving cars to school.

Williams said the school earlier had an agreement with Calvary Baptist that allowed students to use the church parking facilities if the schools would pave the parking area.

But he said that "time ran out" on the agreement and when the church offered to lease the spaces, the school declined. He added that 40-50 parking slots were lost after the agreement lapsed.

Hasie said today that administrators have no deadline in negotiating a property settlement.

The board also heard a report from architect Byron Martin, who was hired by the district to develop long range plans for a school bus maintenance facility.

The facility would be located on the grounds of the transportation operations, so that travel from transportation to the current maintenance facility on Cornell Street would be eliminated.

Martin said the new facility was designed to accommodate parking spaces for just over 100 buses.

Superintendent Ed Irons said the district currently has 88 buses, with five on order, so that there would probably be more than 100 buses operating by the time the servicing center opens.

Although the facility is planned for sometime in the future, trustee Deaton Rigby told board members that he believes the item should be a board priority. "It would be false economy to wait on this," because of escalating costs, said Rigby.

Trustees agreed, with the suggestion that contracts might be put up for a bid next summer.

Cost of the project is estimated at about $270,000 for equipment and housing.

The board approved the design and plans for an outdoor learning center at Wilson Elementary School to be funded by the Wilson PTA.

A model, diagram and slides of the project were presented to the board by members of the PTA and students in the Texas Tech University architecture department who designed the center.

The center, roughly estimated to cost about $10,000 includes a greenhouse, a shallow pool system, footbridge, garden area and an area to keep a small number of animals.

Architecture students hope the design and features of the center can be extended to nearby Wagner Park and the shopping center at 28th Street and Boston by continuing seating and old-fashioned streetlights into those areas. Plans call for the learning center to be utilized by the community as well as students.

Budget Gets More Study

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House, apparently upset over levels of government spending, is forcing Democratic leaders to take a second look at a $548.6 billion 1980 budget that went down to surprising defeat.

The House rejected the spending package, 213-192, Wednesday night as Republicans and Democratic conservatives, who felt the budget was too large, joined with a handful of liberal Democrats who favored higher spending for social programs.

The vote sends the budget back to committee, where it is expected to be changed only slightly before being returned to the floor next week. The 1980 budget year begins this Oct. 1.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. said today that there was "no immediate urgency" to bring the budget back up despite the approaching start of the fiscal year.

The unexpected rejection came just hours after the House refused to join the Senate in raising defense spending. However, the budget's defeat seemed to result from dissatisfaction with overall spending levels, rather than from the defense issue.

On a 62-36 vote Wednesday, the Senate approved its $546.3 billion version of the 1980 budget, containing 3 percent growth in 1980 defense spending over and above inflation. The Senate also included non-binding 5 percent "real growth" defense increases for fiscal 1981 and 1982.

Use Of Credit Cards Approved In Home Heating Oil Purchases

BOSTON (AP) — New Englanders, faced with rising fuel costs, will be able to say "charge it" when the home heating oil truck arrives at the door this winter.

The New England Fuel Institute, which represents 1,100 of the region's fuel dealers, and the Chase Manhattan Bank of New York, the nation's third largest commercial bank, have reached a tentative agreement allowing consumers to charge their oil on Master Charge and VISA, an institute member said this week.

Interest rates for oil purchases under the credit card system will remain the same — 1 percent a month if the credit balance is over $500, 1 1/2 percent a month under $500. Officials say there are no plans so far to change customers' credit limits under the new arrangement.

If the credit card plan is approved by the institute's board of directors as expected this week, it would be the first time large numbers of consumers could buy heating oil with credit cards.

Bankers and heating oil dealers say the idea could lead to creation of a new "energy card" for consumers that might have a higher credit limit, greater availability and different payment terms than Master Charge and VISA. Plans for the energy card are still in the discussion stage.

"The Master Charge and VISA structure is really not set up for a household necessity such as fuel oil. It is structured for pleasure, leisure or a one-time purchase item," said James Garrett, president of Volta Oil Co. of Plymouth, Mass., and one of the institute's board of directors.

"We're looking at this as an interim measure," he said.

Historically, banks have not allowed credit cards to be used for basics like rent and heating oil due to the potential impact on consumer debt.

But now that the price of fuel oil — currently about 80 to 83 cents a gallon — has doubled in the past two years, and both dealers and consumers are faced with stricter payment terms for oil, a few banks decided to explore alternatives to the traditional method of payment.

"The fact that we're actually campaigning to increase the consumer debt bothers a lot of the banks," Garrett said.

Heating oil dealers like the use of credit cards because it helps them meet their suppliers' new, stiff payment terms precipitated by the high cost of oil. Under the credit card system, the bank pays the dealer immediately for the oil that is charged, then collects from the customer.

Chase will make most of its money in the arrangement by charging the dealers a percentage of each oil purchase on the credit card, said David Schwartz, a second vice president at Chase Manhattan.

Schwartz said Chase, which has 2 million VISA card holders on the East Coast, including many in New England, plans to publicize the concept, despite uncertainties about the impact it will have on the growing burden of consumer debt.

The average credit limit on Master Charge and VISA ranges from $1,000 to $1,500, and the average balance is $500, according to Schwartz.

"The only problem I can foresee is if there's a cold winter, it could eat up the credit very quickly," he said. "It could defeat the whole purpose and put somebody deeply into debt."

HISTORIC SCENE — Col. Richard A. Ingram, commander of Reese Air Force Base, poses with the base's first women pilots. Lts. Karen Robinette Klingenberg and Cathy Caseman, at left, will fly KC-135s for the Strategic Air Command after Friday graduation and Lt. Linda Martin will join Capt. Three Females To Graduate From RAFB Pilot School

By GERRY BURTON
 Avalanche-Journal Staff

It was "a long hard climb," filled at times with deep doubts of the outcome, but three young women end the "greatest year" of their lives Friday when Reese Air Force Base graduates its first female pilots.

Federal law bars them from combat, but Col. Richard A. Ingram, Reese commander, judges them fully capable of filling that duty slot if the need arises.

"Not speaking for the Air Force," the commander of the 64th Flying Training Wing termed the law "dumb" in fielding questions at a Wednesday news conference for the trio — 1st Lts. Cathy Caseman of Atlanta, Ga., and Jane K. Robinette Klingenberg of Costa Mesa, Calif., and 2nd Lt. Linda Martin, who calls herself an Air Force brat who grew up "all over."

Lts. Caseman and Klingenberg will fly KC-135s for the Strategic Air Command while Lt. Martin will be an instructor pilot in the T-37 at Reese.

Lt. Klingenberg will be based at Plattsburgh AFB, N.Y. Lt. Caseman will be stationed at Wurtsmith AFB, N.D., where she also will return to the T-37 cockpit for instructor pilot duty in the Accelerated Co-pilot Enrichment (ACE) program conducted by the Air Training Command of which Reese is a member base.

Speaking, he said, as a long-married man, Ingram stressed that "women have the tenacity and the mental and physical strength" to do what they set out to do.

AAM Leader Announces Candidacy For Senate

By JOHNNY HOLMES
 Avalanche-Journal Staff

Gerald McCathern, the outspoken national wagonmaster of the American Agriculture Movement, Wednesday announced his candidacy for the District 31 state senate seat currently held by Republican Bob Price of Pampa.

In making his announcement in his hometown of Hereford shortly before noon, McCathern said he feels the Panhandle-South Plains area should be represented "strongly and fairly" by a person who fully appreciates the area's contributions to the state's agriculture and energy supplies.

"I spent a lot of time in Austin with the state legislature this past session," McCathern said. "And I became quite upset with the ineffectiveness of Sen. Price. Our area contributes 22 percent of the state's agribusiness, and we need to be represented in our best interests."

McCathern will run as a Democrat in the 1980 election.

There will be opposition throughout the race, from the Democratic primary on to the incumbent Price, McCathern admitted. But he feels his views will be accepted widely among the voters of the district, which includes all the Panhandle and the northern section of the South Plains.

Karen Robinette married Lt. Kurt Klingenberg in July and Lt. Caseman will wed "major selectee" Harry Dahljeln two weeks after graduation. Both spouses are navigators, compatible careers to pilots.

Lt. Martin soon will be the bride of a security policeman now on duty in Germany.

Friday, the trio will be among 30 women pilots flying non-offensive aircraft for the Air Force Training for women began in 1976 with the first Air Force women graduates coming from Williams AFB, Ariz., in Oct. 1978, the same month the graduating trio began training at Reese.

Jury Investigating Arson At City Club

By KAY BELL
 Avalanche-Journal Staff

The arson of a Lubbock nightclub this summer is being investigated by a federal grand jury meeting in Amarillo.

The federal panel, which has the authority to consider evidence in cases from the Lubbock and Amarillo divisions of the U.S. Northern District, is reviewing information on the July 8 fire at Studio One, which Lubbock fire officials determined was deliberately set.

Although Lubbock authorities began the investigation of the early morning blaze at the 714 Broadway club, agents from the U.S. Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms entered the investigation after receiving information that interstate telephone conversations may be linked to the fire, sources told The Avalanche-Journal.

Those sources said the case is being presented to the panel, which is expected to finish its deliberations today, simply for investigation and that indictments may not result.

Lubbock firemen arrived at the club shortly after 5 a.m. July 8 after the establishment's alarm was triggered by the fire. The blaze, which took about four hours for 23 firefighters to control, destroyed the interior of the building and its contents.

Investigators from the Lubbock Fire Marshal's office discovered traces of what appeared to be a flammable liquid in the charred ruins. Department of Public Safety chemical analyses confirmed investigators suspicions, revealing that a highly flammable substance with the characteristics like those of gasoline and kerosene had been poured on the building and furnishings.

The nightclub, owned by Roger Freeman and Rodney Hollomon, had been known as Freeman's Club, but was remodeled extensively in June and reopened as Studio One.

Red Cross Aids Arson Victims

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is another in a series of articles dealing with the United Way of Lubbock. Except for officials of United Way agencies involved, the names used are fictitious to protect the identities of those served. However, the stories reflect actual case histories here.)

Tom and Sally Warden lost everything they had in a senseless, malicious act of arson. Their home, their belongings, gone. The only thing left, Sally said, was part of the south and west walls.

The Wardens and their three children would have been left out in the cold, perhaps, if it were not for the services of the American Red Cross that night in March.

The Lubbock County chapter of the American Red Cross is a United Way agency and will receive $141,405 from the United Way's 1980 goal of $1,803,752.

The Wardens were on a trip in San Angelo when they got the call their home had been destroyed. When they returned to the burned-out shell just outside the Lubbock city limits they were told that because of high winds, the volunteer fire department could not contain the rapidly spreading fire.

Fortunately, Tom's mother had heard of the Red Cross' disaster services for burn-out victims. She had contacted the Red Cross before the Wardens arrived home and the Red Cross was waiting for them.

According to Sally, the Red Cross provided them with money for groceries, clothing and the first month's rent on a new residence.

"It was great," said Sally of the Red Cross Service. "It was a start. We had

Readers' Exchange

By JEANNE LIVELY
Family News Staff

Readers' Exchange is an opportunity for our readers to trade recipes, cooking tips and household hints. The column will run in the Thursday editions of the Family News.

Household tips, recipes and requests are welcome, but letters must include the writer's name, address and telephone number. Addresses and phone numbers will not be given out, and no personal replies will be made. No phone calls, please. Commercial brand-names cannot be used.

Send tips, recipes and requests to: Readers' Exchange, Family News Department, Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, P.O. Box 491, Lubbock, Tx. 79408. Recipes printed are not tested by the Family News Department.

Absolutely nothing stumps our readers! Would you believe we were inundated with recipes for Millionaire's Pie. Among those kind enough to reply to Linda Peters' request for the recipe included: Daisy Holly, Lubbock; Mrs. Atkin Cook, Lubbock; Mrs. B.C. McMinn, Lubbock; Mrs. Bill Bourlon, Farwell; Betty James, Lubbock; Mrs. Gene Price, Lubbock; Mrs. Harry D. Delaney, Lubbock; Pennie Berry, Seminole; Sheri Holmes, Lubbock; Mrs. Kenneth (Midge) Moore, Lubbock; Mrs. Mary Perryman Kitchens, Slaton; Mrs. Terry Small, Lubbock; Carol Harmon, Amherst; and Mrs. Nita Hibler, Lubbock. So, thanks everybody!

For Linda Peters, Lubbock, here's the recipe you requested:

PINEAPPLE MILLIONAIRE PIE
(Recipe Reprinted by Courtesy of Furr's Cafeterias, Inc.)
2 cups powdered sugar
1 stick oleomargarine, softened
1 large egg
¼ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. vanilla
2 baked, 8-in. pie crusts
1 cup heavy cream

PLAYTIME PIZZAS

1 pkg. complete cheese pizza mix
Toppings:
Sliced pepperoni
3 slices bacon cooked, crumbled
3 mushrooms, sliced
¼ lb. Mozzarella cheese, shredded
1 green pepper, chopped
½ avocado, sliced

Preheat oven to 425 degrees. Prepare pizza according to package directions. Use small pizza pans approximately 5-6 inches. Grease bottom and sides of pizza pan. Take a piece of dough approximately 1½ inches in diameter; spread evenly on bottom and sides of pan. Pinch sides to hold sauce. Pour a generous two tablespoons of pizza sauce from can on dough. Arrange various toppings on top of sauce. Sprinkle cheese from package on top. Bake for 14 to 16 minutes until nicely browned. Makes 8-10 small pizzas.

Small pizza pans can be bought inexpensively in most variety stores. If you choose not to buy a set, use saucer as pattern and cut around it. Place circles on greased cookie sheet and pinch sides to hold sauce.

½ cup chopped nuts
1 cup drained, crushed pineapple
Cream together powdered sugar and margarine. Add egg, salt and vanilla. Mix until light and fluffy. Spoon mixture evenly into pie crust; chill. Whip cream until stiff. Blend in pineapple and nuts. Spoon on top of egg mixture and chill thoroughly. Makes two pies.

Mrs. Charles R. King of Wolfthorpe says she likes to "discover" new recipes are main dishes. One of her favorites follows:

MACARONI, CHEESE AND HAM CASSEROLE

Macaroni in amount for your family
1 cup grated cheese
1 cup basic white sauce (seasoned to taste with salt, pepper and paprika)
1½-2 cups cooked sliced ham
Bread crumbs and parmesan cheese in amount desired

Cook macaroni and put in a buttered baking dish. Add 1 cup grated cheese to 1 cup basic white sauce that has been seasoned to taste with salt, pepper and paprika. Cook until cheese is melted. Pour over macaroni. Then, add 1½-2 cups cooked, diced ham and mix well. Sprinkle in bread crumbs and parmesan cheese. Bake at 350 degrees for 30-45 minutes or until heated through. Serve with tossed salad and garlic bread. This dish makes good use of tag ends of ham or hard cheese or even leftover macaroni and cheese. This main dish can be frozen.

Mrs. Peter Schmidt, Lubbock, requested a home method of removing ballpoint pen stains from children's clothes. Again, readers responded. Here are some suggestions:

Mrs. Charles R. King asked if Mrs. Schmidt had tried plain hair spray, spraying it on and rubbing the spot lightly. She added that if that doesn't work, soak spot in buttermilk or dishwashing soap. But Mrs. King warns that different fabrics respond to different items, so if possible pre-test.

Mrs. Dan Barton, Matador; Betty Parks, Ralls; and Mrs. Dee Phillips, Lamesa; and Mrs. Bill Bourlon, Farwell, also suggested this simple but "effective" ballpoint pen stain remover. Mrs. Bourlon sent additional instructions: "First spray with hair spray, let dry and launder as usual."

Here are this week's requests: Sheri Holmes, Lubbock, requests information on a safe and proper process for drying fresh herbs and spices in a microwave oven?

Pennie Berry, Seminole, wonders if anyone can now come up with a recipe for Billionaire Pie?

Mrs. Ginny Smith, Lubbock, says she enjoys taking main dishes to church functions. "But I almost always take a chicken dish of some kind. Does anyone have a recipe for something different?"

A gentleman of Lubbock sends his name, address and phone number but wishes to remain anonymous. He says he has had success making the filling for apple pie. However, the crust — terrible! Will some experienced pie-crust maker send along a homemade, "never-fail" recipe? The reader signs his letter "Desperate Bachelor".

That's all for this week. Keep those cards and letters coming!

The bidding:
East South West North
1 ♠ 4 ♥ Dble. Pass

Opening lead: Eight of ♠.

Bridge is a game of communications. It is as important to disrupt enemy communication as it is to maintain transportation between declarer and dummy. Study this hand.

South had a difficult bid to make after East opened the bidding. A jump to two hearts these days is preemptive. A double followed by a bid in hearts would express the value of the hand, but might lead to problems later in the auction. And a simple overcall of one heart might get passed out. In view of South's playing strength, the jump to four hearts was a sensible compromise. West did not want to bid four spades on such a moth-eaten suit, so he doubled on the strength of his two sure trump tricks and partner's opening bid.

Since he had control of the first two rounds of trumps, West decided to try for a club ruff, so he led the top of his doubleton in that suit. In an attempt to thwart this plan, declarer won in dummy and ran the seven of hearts. West won the queen and continued a club. Now there was no way to prevent the ruff, for when West won the ace of hearts, he was able to cross to his partner's hand in diamonds, and the club return meant down one.

The defense was very capable, but South could have spiked his opponents' guns with a neat, though simple, piece of strategy. He should have realized that if West could be prevented from obtaining a ruff, the contract was almost sure to succeed. If West held the ace of trumps, as was likely, he can obtain a ruff only if he can reach his partner's hand. The only means of communication is in diamonds. Therefore, declarer's first task should have been to sever the link between the defenders' hands. That could have been accomplished by leading a diamond after winning the first club.

Declarer can then go about drawing trumps. Since East cannot obtain the lead to give his partner a ruff, the contract will be unbeatable.

What if West's lead had been a singleton? In that case, no power on earth could make the hand. There must be a better way to spend your time than worrying about something you cannot prevent.

Anniversaries

Mr. and Mrs. Keneal Swenson Jr. celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary Sunday with a dinner. Hosting the event were their children: Joncal Whitefield of Twenty-nine Palms, Calif.; Keneal Swenson III, Brad Swenson, Leslie Swenson and Patrice Swenson, all of Lubbock. Swenson and the former Eva Marie Brannaman were married Sept. 11, 1954 in Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

The couple were honored recently in Lisbon, Iowa with a reception celebrating their anniversary.

TUNABURGERS

Ever tried Tunaburgers? Prepare a tuna filling with onion, celery, green pepper and sour cream to moisten. Here's the switch: add one-half cup of cubed Cheddar cheese for each seven ounces of tuna. Spoon into sandwich buns, wrap in aluminum foil and heat for 15-20 minutes in a moderate (350 degree) oven.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: Eight years ago, when I was 16, I began a pen-pal relationship with a boy (my age) in Liverpool, England. We corresponded faithfully, exchanged pictures, and you might say we "fell in love" through our letters.

Derek's letters indicated that he was intelligent, well-read and romantic, and

I couldn't wait to meet him.

Last week he came to visit me. Abby, I can't believe he is the same person who wrote those letters. Although he looks like his pictures, he is like a stranger to me. He's painfully shy, hardly ever looks me in the eye, and when he talks he stammers. I did my best to make him feel comfortable and open up, but it was useless.

Last night he said he is in love with me and wants a physical relationship. Although I expressed my love for him in my letters, I have absolutely no romantic feelings for him in person. I just can't have a physical relationship with him, Abby.

How can a person who writes so eloquently be so totally inarticulate and unappealing in person? Please tell me how to handle this. I hate to hurt him.

LET DOWN IN CONN.

DEAR LET DOWN: Be gentle but honest. Tell Derek that the chemistry is not right for a physical relationship. He will be hurt, but he'll be more hurt if you give him false hope.

Many shy people can't cope with social situations, so they retreat into solitary activities such as reading and writing. Consequently they never develop the art of verbal communication. Don't totally reject Derek because you have no romantic interest in him. He desperately needs your friendship and understanding.

Last semester she failed two subjects so we sent her to summer school to make them up. Well, she had such a busy social life with the boys that she failed both subjects again!

This year we have laid down the law. Instead of letting her stay out until 11 p.m. on school nights and 4 a.m. on weekends, we told her she has to be in the house by 10 p.m. on school nights and 12:30 on weekends. Now she has her dates pick her up at 6:30. Isn't this too early for a girl to be going out? Carla says since she has to be in by 10 she has to get an early start! What is your opinion?

We have been late to more places because this thrill-seeking nut of mine has chased a fire engine, ambulance or squad car. He never misses your column, so maybe if you mentioned this, you'd make an impression. I can't get through to him.

Cakes 'Sweeten' Jewish Celebration

NEW YORK (Special) — On Saturday, the shofar will sound, and Jews the world over will celebrate the beginning of the Jewish New Year with the observance of Rosh Hashonah. Rosh Hashonah begins a 10-day period known as the High Holy Days, which culminate with Yom Kippur, the day of Atonement. As with other Jewish holidays, Rosh Hashonah has its own special foods which symbolically and creatively reflect the themes of this time.

For this occasion, the popular challah bread is baked in spiraling, well-rounded loaves, to suggest hope that the coming year will be enriched with increased good fortune. Also customary are honey and sweet dishes, which symbolize the hope that the days ahead will be sweet and happy.

This year, greet your friends and relatives with a heartfelt "L Shanah Tova Tikasevu" — "May you be inscribed in the Book of Life for the next year" — and offer a delicate Holiday Orange Sponge Cake and a traditional Rosh Hashonah Honey Cake to sweeten up the New Year. Both desserts take on a special flavor life with the zest of orange juice.

The heavenly light and deliciously moist sponge cake is a real show-stopper, lavish to behold as well as sumptuous to eat. Orange rind and juice perk up the taste of the sponge batter. The orange flavor is further highlighted by festooning the top with a sprinkling of confectioners' sugar and colorful orange slices. One hint — beat the egg yolks until thick and light-colored for that characteristic gossamer texture, but be careful not to overbeat.

What could be more delectable for a happy and healthy New Year's wish than a traditional honey cake? And Rosh Hashonah Honey Cake is a fetching creation spiced with cinnamon, allspice and ginger. A can of bracing concentrated orange juice adds savory surprise to this rich and handsome cake that would do any hostess proud.

Both these stunning desserts will provide a happy ending to a Rosh Hashonah dinner to remember with pleasure for years to come.

HOLIDAY ORANGE SPONGE CAKE

1 1/2 cups sifted cake flour
1 1/2 tps. baking powder
1/2 tsp. salt
6 eggs, separated
1 cup sugar
1 tps. grated orange rind
1 cup orange juice
1 tsp. cream of tartar
1 orange, sliced
Confectioners' sugar
Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. In large mixing bowl beat egg yolks until light. Gradually add sugar, beat until thick and light colored, about 5 minutes. Stir in orange rind. Blend in dry ingredients alternately with orange juice. Beat egg whites with cream of tartar until stiff but not dry, fold into batter. Pour batter into ungreased 10-inch tube pan. Bake in 325-degree F. oven 50 to 60 minutes or until cake tester comes out clean. Invert pan over neck of bottle. Let cake cool completely before removing from pan. Before serving, sprinkle with confectioners' sugar and garnish with orange slices cut in half. Yield: One 10-inch cake, about 12 servings.

ROSH HASHONAH HONEY CAKE

3 1/2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
2 tps. baking powder

1 tsp. baking soda
1 tsp. ground cinnamon
1/2 tsp. ground ginger
1/2 tsp. ground allspice
1/2 tsp. salt
1 cup honey
1 can (16 oz.) frozen concentrated orange juice, thawed, undiluted
1/2 cup vegetable oil
1/3 cup brewed coffee
4 eggs
3/4 cup sugar
1 cup chopped nuts
Grease and line two 9x5x3-inch loaf pans with waxed paper. Set aside. Sift together flour, baking powder, baking soda, cinnamon, ginger, allspice and salt. In small bowl, combine honey, orange juice concentrate, oil and coffee. In large bowl of electric mixer, beat eggs; add sugar, continue beating until light and fluffy. Blend in dry ingredients alternately with orange juice mixture. Fold in nuts. Pour batter into prepared pans. Bake in 350-degree F. oven 15 minutes; reduce heat to 325-degree F. Continue baking 45 minutes longer or until cake tests done when cake tester is inserted in center. Remove loaves from pans. Cool completely. Remove waxed paper before serving. Makes two 9-inch loaves.

HOLIDAY TREAT — A stunning Holiday Orange Sponge Cake makes a luscious Rosh Hashonah treat. Orange juice adds a tangy zest to the holiday cake.

Lawyer's Scheme Gets Conviction Overturned

AUSTIN (UPI) — An attorney's legal maneuvering has succeeded in having a San Antonio man's 35-year sentence for murder overturned in the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals.

Dionicio A. Cruz was convicted of killing Vicki Earline Son on Jan. 23, 1973.

After the slaying he reportedly accompanied his lawyer, Earl Hill, to Miss Son's apartment and viewed her body, trial testimony revealed.

The two then returned to Hill's office where the lawyer wrote a statement about the slaying and had Cruz sign it without reading it. Hill also did not advise Cruz of his constitutional rights.

Hill then called police, but stopped a police officer from reading Cruz his rights.

At the first trial hearing the judge ruled the typed statement was inadmissible but a second judge at a later hearing admitted the statement into evidence.

Hill then testified that it was his "three-fold purpose" to render the statement inadmissible by having Cruz sign it without reading it, by deliberately failing to read Cruz his constitutional rights and by making the statement "his own version" of what Cruz told him, rather than simply recording what his client had told him.

The court had to overturn the decision because Hill had no right to waive anything for Cruz, although the attorney had planned the maneuver.

"The facts and circumstances are unique; we trust such facts and circumstances will never again be presented," the court said.

In another case, the criminal appeals court denied a motion for rehearing for former District Judge Garth Bates of Houston, convicted in 1976 of accepting a $59,000 payoff from a robbery defendant.

Bates, who was sentenced to eight years in prison, contended the trial court committed reversible error by refusing to allow John Tanner, an undercover Harris County deputy sheriff, to rebut testimony given by the state's chief witness, Nuke Fontenot.

Fontenot, a pawnshop broker, testified he had given Bates the $59,000 before the former judge was to hear his robbery case.

The criminal appeals court said the trial judge had not erred by refusing to allow Tanner to testify because the testimony the deputy would have rebutted was not pertinent to the case and had been elicited by the defense, not the state.

The appellate court also ordered a trial judge to issue written findings on the disputed facts concerning the confession of Charles Eugene O'Brien of Waco, who was given the death sentence in a rape and murder of an 87-year-old woman.

Texas Committeewoman Joins Movement To Draft Kennedy

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Democratic National Committeewoman Billie Carr, saying Americans have "lost hope" in President Carter, has joined the growing movement to draft Sen. Edward Kennedy for the Democratic presidential nomination.

"This has not been an easy decision," Miss Carr, the leader of liberal Texas Democrats, said Wednesday by phone from Houston.

"I have the utmost respect for President Carter. I feel he has made some important contributions to our country. I also hoped he could be a two-term president," she added.

"However, I feel it is time to face facts. Support of the president is at an all-time low. People have lost hope. It would take a major miracle for the president to get re-elected to a second term," said Miss Carr.

The addition of Miss Carr and her followers gives added strength to the grass roots Kennedy organizations that have sprouted across Texas in the past six weeks.

Kennedy organizations, registered with the Federal Election Commission, have been formed in San Antonio, Dallas and El Paso to urge the Massachusetts senator to challenge Carter for the 1980 Democratic nomination. Similar organizations are forming in Austin and Houston.

Members of the State Democratic Committee who lead the Dallas and San Antonio groups say they are attempting to secure thousands of signatures on petitions urging Kennedy to run.

The groups also plan to begin constructing a campaign organization, working at the precinct level to pinpoint supporters and secure delegates to the 1980 state and national conventions.

State Democratic Committeeman Richard Solo, co-chairman of the Texas for Kennedy-North Texas group in Dallas, said that if Kennedy becomes a formal candidate the organizations would then be turned over to his campaign leaders and serve as the foundation for Kennedy's Texas campaign organization.

Kennedy has given indications in the past month that he might become an official candidate.

Miss Carr said Wednesday she became convinced Kennedy would run after his family recently agreed to his candidacy. Although she acknowledged that she is a longtime Kennedy supporter, Miss Carr said she planned to support Carter for a second term and didn't think Kennedy would run.

"I've had two problems with a Draft Kennedy program," she said. "First, I have never felt a candidate for public office should have to be drafted. I like candidates to make their own decisions. Second, I hesitated because of a keen sensitivity and respect for his family's concerns and feelings."

Texas John White, the Carter-appointed Democratic national chairman, had said such a Kennedy-Carter fight would split the party and elect a Republican president. But he backed off those statements Tuesday, saying that the competition "doesn't have to" split the party.

Miss Carr agreed, saying, "I don't intend to get in a name-calling, bloody battle. I can support President Carter's re-election if he's nominated again. I don't think there will be a falling out."

Billie Sol Estes' Retrial Scheduled For Oct. 15

DALLAS (AP) — Convicted swindler Billie Sol Estes, already sentenced to 10 years in prison, will be retried Oct. 15 on charges that he and co-defendant Raymond K. Horton bilked lending companies out of $600,000 in the sale of non-existent oil field equipment.

U.S. District Judge Robert Hill also refused Wednesday to declare Estes a pauper, a move that denied the flamboyant man free transcripts from last summer's trial for use in planning his defense.

Federal jurors convicted Estes July 11 on one count of fraud and of conspiring to conceal assets from the government. Horton was found guilty on a single count of conspiring to conceal assets.

However, the jury could not reach a verdict on a separate indictment that accused Estes and Horton of defrauding legitimate leasing companies by selling non-existent oil field steam cleaning equipment. The judge declared a mistrial only on the deadlocked charge.

Estes was sentenced to 10 years in prison on the conviction, and Horton was assessed a three-year term and a $10,000 fine.

Hill said Wednesday that evidence during the month-long trial indicated Estes should be able to bear the cost of copying the transcripts himself.

Testimony in that trial lasted more than a month, and the transcript fee often runs to a dollar a page.

Estes built a $150 million fortune around the sale of non-existent fertilizer tanks in the late 1950s and early 1960s, only to see it collapse in scandal.

He was convicted in 1965 and sentenced to 15 years in prison. He was paroled in 1971 on conditions that restricted him from promotional activities or self-employment.

Federal marshals took Estes into custody last August after Hill had denied Estes' appeal for a new trial.

The U.S. Parole Commission had revoked Estes' parole earlier pending the outcome of his latest trial.

Enrollment At Tech Sets New Record

Preliminary enrollment figures at Texas Tech University show the school has a record enrollment this fall of 23,107 students.

Late registration ended Wednesday and final figures won't be tabulated until next week, but registrar Don Wickard noted that if the figures hold, it will be an increase of more than 400 students over last fall's final enrollment figure of 22,696.

Wickard said he has no explanation for the increase, but noted that when categories of freshmen, new transfer students and other classifications are determined, it may give the university a reason for the jump.

Before registration began, Tech officials were concerned that enrollment might drop because of the gasoline.

Bentsen's Bill Places Limit On Coal Tax

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Texas senator is calling "outrageous" the severance taxes Montana and Wyoming place on coal shipped out of state.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen introduced a bill Wednesday to place a 12.5 percent ceiling on state severance taxes levied on energy produced from federal leases under the Mineral Leasing Act or from leases located on Indian lands.

Electricity consumers are paying higher prices as a result of Montana's 30 percent tax and Wyoming's tax of 17 percent, the Democratic senator said.

"Unless we act now to impose federal limitations on energy severance taxes, it is likely that other states will yield to the temptation to follow in the path of Montana and Wyoming," Bentsen said in remarks accompanying his bill.

He said Texas has accepted that limit on natural gas sold out of state.

"I have no quarrel with the concept of state severance taxes to help compensate for the strains caused by industrial operations associated with mineral extraction," the senator said. "However, the outrageous taxes in Montana and Wyoming have no realistic connection with the costs of services they provide."

Bentsen said electricity consumers in Dallas, Houston, San Antonio, Corpus Christi and Amarillo are paying more because of the Wyoming tax. The Montana tax is felt by consumers in Austin, he said.

DECA Meet Slated For Area Students

Area VI of the Distributive Education Clubs of America (DECA) announced a Distributive Education Leadership Conference to be hosted this weekend by South Plains College at Lubbock.

Attending the conference will be 200 distributive education high school students and 45 distributive education high school teachers. All will be from Area VI, an area that includes the South Plains, the Texas Panhandle and an area east to Wichita Falls. The conference begins at 5 p.m. Friday and will finish at 3 p.m. Saturday.

There will be two basic leadership sessions, one for students and one for teachers. The student session will include three basic topics: goal setting for personal and chapter goals, time management and running for area, state and national DECA office.

The teachers' conference will deal with preparing students for competitive DECA events throughout the year.

Laredo Boasts Rich Heritage

By TED J. SIMON
A-J Travel Editor

A perfect blend of Texan hustle and Mexican repose — that's Laredo in South Texas. Manana today and Old-World ambience — that's Laredo for the vacationer.

Laredo, founded in 1755, is the most interesting border town this writer has had the pleasure of visiting. Perhaps it's because of the town's rich history, or the diversity of things to do, or the easy blend of two cultures, or the easy access to Nuevo Laredo, Mexico, or the friendly people on both sides of the Rio Grande — whatever the reason, Laredo is a great place to visit. And it's understandable that many visitors return to make Laredo their home.

Seven flags have flown over Laredo. In addition to the usual six flags over Texas, the border town once flew the flag of The Republic of the Rio Grande. After the Texas Revolution, Laredo was in a no man's land because of a dispute over the boundaries of Texas and Mexico. The small town became the capital for the short-lived Republic that existed haphazardly in the years of 1839-1841. The army of the upstart republic was eventually defeated by Mexican forces.

Today the Republic's capitol building still stands as part of the La Posada Motor Hotel complex. A perfect example of "Laredo" architecture, the capitol building now serves as a museum with items pertaining to the area's unique history.

La Posada is a recent structure that was built around an old three-story school. The hotel has successfully retained the Spanish village influence in its architecture and décor while tastefully incorporating up-to-date amenities.

Jose Luis Rodriguez, general manager of the hotel noted: "We like to think of our corner of the world as a special place in time."

"Impeccable service, Spanish atmosphere, and modern conveniences have earned La Posada a four star rating in the Mobil Travel Guide. During this writer's stay, a single room rate for one person began at $24, and a double occupancy rate was only $33. Such economical rates for luxury accommodations are indicative of why Laredo has become a popular vacation destination.

Fronting the hotel is San Augustine Plaza, heart of Laredo's historical district. Across from the plaza is the San Augustine church built in 1872. Genealogical records in the church of the Oblate Fathers date back to 1789. The church is open to the public and admission is free. All of Laredo's old town district is rich in markings of the State Historical Survey Committee.

In the southwest part of the city, where the river turns a corner, is old Fort McIntosh of the mid-1800s. The restored buildings include a museum with changing exhibits and demonstrations. Evidences of the original fort are the chapel, commissary and the guardhouse. Most of the frontier fort's parade ground now serves as the shared campus of Laredo Junior College and Laredo State University. The fort's museum is open Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.; Saturday and Sunday hours are from 1 p.m. - 5 p.m.; there is no charge for admittance.

Casa Blanca Lake offers boating, fishing, picnicking, swimming, and water-skiing. There is an Olympic-size swimming pool for public use during the summer months. Adjacent to the lake is an 18-hole golf course.

Another place of interest in Laredo is the Cactus Gardens where visitors can see rare cactus and other plants, plus an extensive collection of arrowheads, fossils, minerals and shells. There are also many pre-Columbian figurines. Open daily from 9 a.m. - 5 p.m., there is no charge for admittance.

With a population of 80,000, Laredo has more for visitors to see and do than some cities many times its size. For more information, contact the Convention and Visitors Council, Dept. AJ, P.O. Box 790, Laredo, 78040.

From streets lined with bougainvillea and date palms to the night life of supper clubs, from historic sites and shopping bazaars to a major south of the border gateway — Laredo is a great vacation destination.

OLD TOWN PLAZA — San Agustín Plaza, complete with bandstand, is a favorite meeting place for residents as well as tourists. Surrounding the plaza is Vill la de San Agustín, Laredo's historical district. Many of the older buildings played an important part in the history of the short-lived Republic of the Rio Grande.

In the background can be seen the steeple of San Agustín Church, built more than a century ago. (Staff Photos by Ted J. Simon)

Seafair V Scheduled

ROCKPORT (SPECIAL) — Seafair V is getting ready to be launched for an October weekend of fun and feasting at this charming small city on the Coastal Bend of Texas.

This year's festival weekend starts off with a parade at 11 a.m. on Saturday, October 6. Until dark on Sunday, there will be live bands, harbor boat rides, demonstrations of shrimp catching, a sailing regatta, crab races, plus body painting artists for the youngsters.

Highlight of the weekend will be the Rockport Seafair World's Championship Gumbo Cook-Off. Winners receive $1,000 in trophies in the two-day competition.

The Seafair V event will mark the Columbus Day Holiday and the arrival of autumn in the Rockport-Fulton-Lamar area of the Texas Gulf Coast.

UNIQUE HISTORY — Laredo residents, standing, take on the attire of the General Army of the Republic of the Rio Grande, and members of the Texas Party of the Rocky Mountain Fur Company represent frontier scouts to document a little known historical event.

Agreement Near On Gas Sale

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Department officials say Mexico and the United States are close to an agreement on the sale of Mexican natural gas to the United States.

Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher was back in Mexico today trying to close the deal. It's his second trip in recent weeks.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., chairman of the Senate Energy Committee, said, "It is my understanding that we are near agreement and that we could have a deal soon."

Administration officials have indicated privately they are hopeful agreement can be reached in time for a signing ceremony when Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo visits the White House Sept. 28.

However, State Department spokesman Hodding Carter denied Wednesday that Christopher's latest trip was calculated to meet that deadline.

Carter said there was no urgency in the negotiations and no pressure to finish them before Portillo's visit.

State Department officials who asked not to be identified indicated that the two countries may be no more than 25 cents apart on a price for the Mexican gas.

They said the final price likely will be between $3.50 and $3.75 per thousand cubic feet initially and would rise as the price of other fuel rises.

By comparison, Canada has announced that natural gas it sells the United States will cost as much as $3.30 per thousand cubic feet next year.

In a related matter, former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger told two House subcommittees Wednesday that the United States needs to develop a new sense of cooperation with Mexico not only on energy, but on other common problems as well.

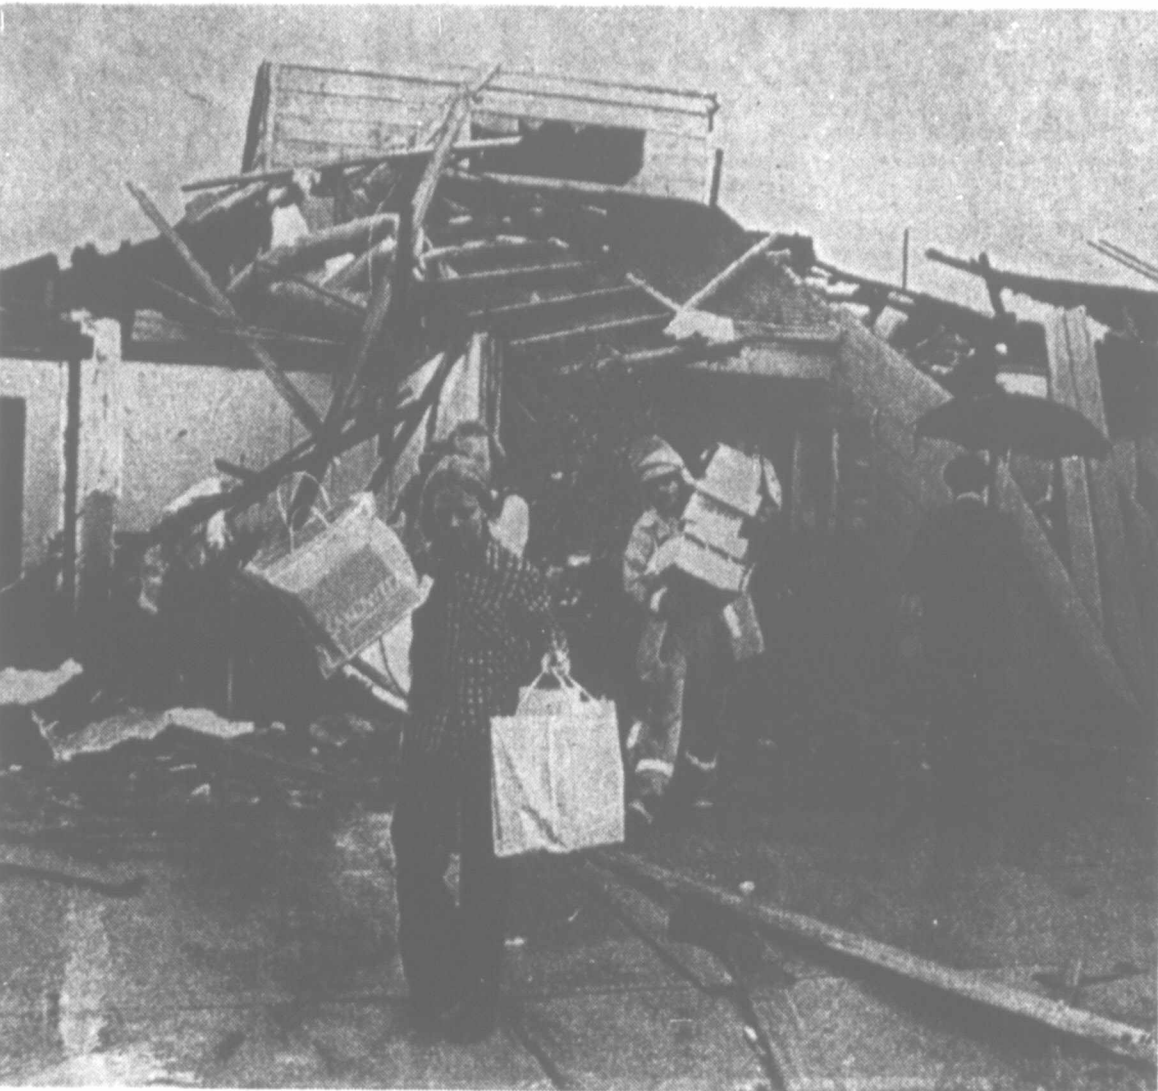

"I would think a new approach to Mexico is essential, and indeed if it is not taken our problems may become insoluble," Kissinger testified.

He said Mexico's decision on how to develop its oil and gas fields "can either bring it into conflict with the United States or a cooperative relationship."

After leaving the hearing, Kissinger said he has no specific suggestions, but said a new approach should be based on "agreeing on what the goals of Mexico's development should be and how we can help."

Kissinger's testimony came at a joint hearing conducted by a House foreign affairs subcommittee and a post office and civil service subcommittee on a new foreign service bill.

Witness Tells Of Custody Fight In McInnis Disbarment Trial

EDINBURG (AP) — The intended target of a murder-conspiracy plot allegedly arranged by Hidalgo County District Attorney Oscar McInnis wiped away tears Wednesday as he testified McInnis once claimed to be the real father of the man's daughter.

Noe Villanueva took the witness stand in the first day of testimony at McInnis' civil disbarment trial. He was to return today for further questioning.

The district attorney faces loss of his law license because of allegations by the State Bar of Texas that he violated professional standards of conduct.

The Bar alleges McInnis harassed Villanueva using his official capacity while representing the man's ex-wife in a civil child custody battle. The district attorney allegedly filed unfounded criminal charges against Villanueva and caused his repeated arrest merely to find the child in the custody fight, says the Bar.

McInnis allegedly tried to obtain a hit man to kill Villanueva in Reynosa, Mexico, the Bar says in another portion of his formal complaint.

"He told me Patricia (Villanueva's ex-wife) was very lovely and he asked me if I knew who she was going out with," the witness said. "He told me his daughter was very pretty."

"Mr. McInnis referred to your daughter as his daughter?" asked State Bar lawyer Jerry Zunker.

"Yes," Villanueva replied. The Bar's witness said he talked with McInnis Oct. 10, 1976, after being arrested for violating a court order that gave his ex-wife custody of the child.

Villanueva admitted he took the child from his former spouse and went to Houston for more than a year until he was arrested on Oct. 6, 1976. After returning to Hidalgo County, he said McInnis visited him in jail and asked where the little girl was.

"He said I had better start doing what he said because he wasn't going to put up with me anymore," the 27-year-old man said.

Villanueva did not testify about the alleged murder-conspiracy plot, which the State Bar says took shape in 1978.

McInnis claims other county officials and law enforcement officers conspired to get him out of office.

Lewis said in opening arguments that local Sheriff Brig Marmolejo got a Hidalgo County jail inmate to wear a microphone and then tricked McInnis into answering questions about the alleged plot.

Typing Error Blamed For Rate Difference

AUSTIN (UPI) — A Public Utility Commission economist blames a typing error for the discrepancy in rates set by the PUC and those being charged needy customers by Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., and advises that the phone company should be allowed a rate increase of $144 million.

"The company wasn't doing anything bad," PUC economist Julie J. Parsons said Wednesday. "The typist just left out '105 percent.'"

Consumer advocates earlier this week accused Southwestern Bell of violating a 1978 PUC Order setting cheap rates for so-called "lifeline" service by charging 105 percent of the amount authorized.

The measured service allows customers 25 calls per month at a reduced rate. Additional calls cost 8 cents each.

Ms. Parsons said the PUC Order was supposed to read 105 percent of the rate for two-party service.

"It was just a blunder," she said.

Ms. Parsons said another PUC staff error in calculating the amount of rate increase Southwestern Bell was entitled to receive would force her to revise her estimates of how the recommended rate increase would affect an average residential customer.

The staff recommendations would mean an increase of approximately 90 cents to $1.20 a month for basic residential phone service and an increase of $2.70 to $3.60 per month in prices for basic business service, she said.

The PUC economist's revised calculations indicate Southwestern Bell's requested increase is actually lower than what is justified.

The revised figure announced Tuesday indicates Bell has a revenue deficiency of $156 million — $11 million more than the phone company asked to raise its rates.

Bell executives said their calculations indicated they could justify a $245 million rate increase but they voluntarily trimmed their request to comply with the president's price guidelines.

A witness for the Texas Retailers Association Wednesday criticized Bell's accounting procedures and pricing policies, saying the phone company overstates the cost of providing certain business services and overcharges customers in large metropolitan areas.

Rates authorized by the PUC vary across the state according to how many telephones are connected to a local exchange. Basic residential rates range from $4.75 to $8 per month. Basic business service costs from $9.75 to $25 a month.

Bell wants to raise monthly residential rates $1.55 across the board and business rates $4.65.

Teacher Denies Youth's Charge

DALLAS (UPI) — A Dallas school teacher is accused of sexual relations with a 14-year-old student who told police he was given new clothes in return for engaging in sex with his 26-year-old teacher.

Penny Jane Price posted a $5,000 bond Tuesday night and was released from the Dallas County Jail, police said. Investigators said Miss Price had denied the student's allegations.

Miss Price, who taught at Spence Junior High School until last year, was a reading tutor for the youth during the summer, police said. A spokesman for the Dallas Independent School District said records showed Miss Price had voluntarily resigned her teaching position.

Police said the youth said he had a sexual relationship with his teacher during visits to Miss Price's apartment for tutoring. He said he received new clothes for engaging in sex with the former public school teacher numerous times.

The teen-ager revealed the alleged sexual relationship to a school guidance counselor Tuesday and Miss Price was arrested after investigators questioned the 14-year-old.

Carter Set To Enter Rock Island Dispute

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter plans to issue a back-to-work order today to striking Rock Island railroad employees as part of a proposal for resuming stalled freight shipments along the carrier's route, government sources said.

The sources, who declined to be named, said Carter had decided to use his emergency powers under the National Railway Labor Act to order two unions to halt their 24-day strike for a 60-day "cooling-off" period.

Under the law, the president would appoint an emergency board that would have 30 days to recommend a settlement of the labor dispute. The unions then would have another 30 days to consider the recommendation before they could resume their walkout.

The back-to-work order is part of an intricate plan the administration is piecing together to deal with the railroad's financial and labor troubles.

Shipments of grains and other farm products have been snarled along the Midwestern railroad's 7,000-mile, 13-state route because of the strike by the Brotherhood of Railway and Airline Clerks and the United Transportation Union.

Under the plan, the Interstate Commerce Commission would designate other railroads to temporarily take over Rock Island's operations after Carter ordered an end to the strike.

The administration has counted on union cooperation with the back-to-work order, but they may refuse to obey unless they receive certain wage and job security guarantees.

An ICC official, who declined to be identified, said today that the commission was prepared to act swiftly under its "directed service" authority to designate another railroad to operate the Rock Island's route. He said the Kansas City Terminal, a switching company owned by 12 other railroads, has agreed to take over the operations temporarily.

However, a directed-service order

19-Year-Old City Woman Injured In Altercation

A 19-year-old Lubbock woman was listed in good condition at St. Mary's Hospital today with injuries sustained in an early morning altercation at a North University Avenue restaurant.

City police arrived on the scene about 2 a.m. today and found the woman lying on the parking lot, her head resting in another woman's lap.

She told officers she and two female companions were in the restaurant when they began arguing over some keys. Reports indicate the teen-ager suffered an injury to her leg when one of the women threw her out of the restaurant.

In other activity, Lubbock County sheriff's deputies took into custody two males, ages 16 and 18, shortly before midnight Wednesday for allegedly causing a disturbance and vandalizing several liquor stores south of the city on U.S. 87.

One of the investigating deputies, Phil Scruggs, said in a report that after apprehending the suspects, the juvenile kicked him in the leg. The deputy stated in his report that, "I knocked him to the ground and put my foot on his neck, and grabbed the other suspect and put him belly down on the hood of the car."

Before deputies arrived, the suspects allegedly damaged several of the stores just outside the city limits, and reportedly had fired a gun.

A 24-year-old woman, who told Lubbock police she was depressed after being beaten by her common-law husband when he brought another woman to the couple's house, reportedly slashed her wrists and was treated and released at Methodist Hospital.

The woman said the man apparently became mad about 3 p.m. Wednesday after she said something to the other woman, prompting him to beat the victim in the head. She said she was so depressed over the incident that she cut her wrists.

A 22-year-old Texas Tech University coed told police she and a friend saw more than they wanted to of a man who had asked directions in the 5600-block of Bangor Avenue about 8 p.m. Wednesday.

The student said that before they could answer the man, he stepped out of his parked car wearing nothing but a pair of socks. She said when they ig-

Report Cites Firms' Holdings

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Soap companies sell food. Food companies sell clothing. And super-conglomerates? Well, they sell just about everything.

You never know who is responsible for what these days.

Advertising Age, a trade publication, provided some clues recently with its annual report on the 100 biggest U.S. advertisers. The magazine says these companies spent more than $10 billion on national advertising in 1978, an increase of 17 percent over 1977.

If you read the fine print, you'll find some interesting corporate bedfellows. The bacon on your table and the bus you take to town, for example. The toys for your kids and the food for your dog.

Here, in alphabetical order, is a random selection of companies and some of the things they produce:

- The Campbell Soup Co. of Camden, N.J., goes from soup to, er, pickles. Vlasic pickles in particular.
- Chesebrough-Pond's of Greenwich, Conn., maker of Pond's cold cream, also

- has Vaseline petroleum jelly and Ragu spaghetti sauce.
- The Colgate-Palmolive Co. of New York is behind Hebrew National kosher frankfurters.
- Consolidated Foods Corp. of Chicago tempts your tastebuds with Sara Lee bakery products. If you drop some crumbs, call the company's Fuller Brush man. Consolidated Foods also markets hosiery, L'eggs.
- Esmark Inc. of Chicago, the folks who bring you Butterball turkeys, sponsor Playtex bras, too.
- General Foods of White Plains, N.Y., tells you to stretch your at-home food dollar with Shake 'n Bake coating mix and urges you out of the kitchen and into a Burger Chef.
- Greyhound Corp. of Phoenix, Ariz., takes you places with its buses and feeds you Armour Star bacon when you get there.
- Gulf & Western Industries of New York offers fantasy with television shows like "Laverne & Shirley," but its view of panty hose is No-Nonsense, which it also owns.

- International Telephone & Telegraph Corp. of New York brings you Wonder bread, Sheraton hotels and the stag from the Hartford Insurance Group.
- The Liggett Group Inc. of Montvale, N.J., provides L&M cigarettes, Alpo dog food and Izmiria, a Turkish vodka made from white beets.
- Mattel Inc. of Hawthorne, Calif., bring you the Barbie doll. They also bring you Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus.
- Miles Laboratories of Elkhart, Ind., sells Morningstar Farms textured vegetable protein meat substitute. And S.O.S. scouring pads. And Alka-Seltzer.
- Nabisco Inc. of East Hanover, N.J., offers cookies, biscuits and Rose Milk skin products.
- Norton Simon Inc. of New York may be the champion. While its name is not necessarily a household word, you probably know the names of its divisions: Hunts tomato products, Avis rental cars, Max Factor cosmetics, Canada Dry beverages, Johnnie Walker scotch, Halston Enterprises and McCall Patterns, to name a few.

- Noxell Corp. of Baltimore cleans your skin with Noxzema and your floors with Lestoil.
- Pepsi Co. Inc. of Purchase, N.Y., makes you work up a thirst with golf clubs from Wilson Sporting Goods and snacks from Frito-Lay.
- Procter & Gamble Co. of Cincinnati, the biggest national advertiser, keeps you clean — not only with Ivory, but with Tide and Cheer as well. P&G also includes Sure and Secret deodorants, Folgers coffee, Duncan Hines cake mixes and squeezable Charmin.
- Quaker Oats Co. of Chicago makes your pets happy with Ken-L Ration and your kids happy with Fisher-Price toys like the Miss Piggy doll.
- R.J. Reynolds Industries of Winston-Salem, N.C., has the No. 2 cigarette in the nation — Winston — and the No. 1 brand of canned Chinese food, Chun King.
- Unilever U.S. Inc. includes All detergent and Aim toothpaste from Lever Bros. of New York. It also sells you tea from Thomas J. Lipton Inc. of Englewood, N.J.

Last on this abbreviated list — and 25th among advertisers — is the U.S. government. What does the government have to advertise? How about the Defense Department's recruiting posters, the Agriculture Department's nutrition campaigns, the Energy Department's drive for conservation or the Postal Service and Amtrak?

Belgium achieved independence from Holland and Leopold I assumed the throne in 1831.

EXCLUSIVE: Family Weekly Interviews President Carter In The Oval Office

It's quiet in the Oval Office. The President sits comfortably in a lounge chair and faces his interviewers, FAMILY WEEKLY's publisher and executive editor. The questions are pertinent; the answers sincere. What about the Carter family life? The inflation? The safety of the Social Security system? Re-election? Health and education? You'll respond both to the President's replies and to the man himself. And you can only have a prayerful response when the President says: "Not a single person has lost his life in combat since I have been in office, and I pray this will be the case when I go out of office." DR. LAMB

Describes Obstruction

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB — Would you please send me some information on hiatal hernia. I have a friend who is supposed to have one. He can't have a meal without getting up to release some of the pressure. Sometimes it's so bad he eats very little and goes directly to the bathroom to throw up part of it and then he comes back to eat some more. It's especially bad when he's not feeling well.

He works seven days a week and long hours which give him very little rest so he's always in a rundown condition. He has lost 35 to 40 pounds in six months and I'm worried it could be something else. When a doctor is mentioned he always says there isn't time.

Could you tell me what kind of food he should eat and what he should stay away from. He lives alone and doesn't fix proper food but I'm sure he will try if it comes from you. Could it be a rupture that causes this discomfort? Many times he will have to get up at night to relieve himself and he says it's an air lock.

DEAR READER — I wish there was an address on your letterhead because your friend should go see a doctor at once. Those are not the usual symptoms of a hiatal hernia.

Your letter sounds like you're describing an obstruction to the normal passage of food into the stomach. That could be because he's had an old hiatal hernia and the acid contents of his stomach have irritated the lower part of the esophagus, ultimately causing scarring and obstruction. But no one can tell that without a careful examination.

I'm concerned for fear he might have an obstruction caused by cancer or some other serious problem. Certainly that much weight loss with those symptoms requires immediate examination. Anyone who has difficulty swallowing or retaining the food they have eaten must be examined immediately.

There is a rare medical condition of spasm and obstruction of the lower part of the esophagus that prevents passage of food. This can be due to scarring but there's too big a risk that it could be something more serious and whatever the condition is, it should be treated.

I would have sent you The Health Letter number 48 on Hiatal Hernia if you had included your address. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents in check or coin with a long-stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your requests to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Many people who have a small hiatal hernia have no symptoms at all. Most of them do deserve at least some intelligent management such as change in life style to prevent the possibility of developing scarring and obstruction in the lower part of the esophagus.

Although I do not know what your friend has, and no one can tell without an examination, it is true that people who have a hernia of a portion of the stomach through a hole in the diaphragm are most prone to trouble when lying down. The hernia affects the close mechanism between the esophagus and stomach and if the stomach is full, its contents tend to leak into the esophagus. That is why propping up the head of the bed in such cases helps.

"It's accounting day. Let's see what you have in there that's MINE!"

Evangelist Works In War Zone

By HOWARD ARENSTEIN
MARJAYOUN, Lebanon (UPI) — A California evangelist has built a radio station on the battlefield of southern Lebanon and hopes to spread the word of God to a region blackened by years of war — along with songs from the Arab and American pop and country repertoire.

The station went on the air Sept. 10 with the theme from the movie "Exodus" broadcast as one of its first tunes.

Twin transmission towers rise from a gutted former Lebanese customs house where George Otis installed his radio station, called "The Voice of Hope." It is situated in a valley in this Christian-controlled enclave to protect it from Palestinian guerrilla artillery shells.

Otis, 60, raised $400,000 from among his 10,000 followers at the "High Adventure Ministries" in Van Nuys to get the radio station going. He, his engineers and disc jockeys, may be in for more adventure than they bargained for.

"Maybe angels will keep the shells from hitting us," Otis said.

If angels aren't enough, the broadcasting towers are decorated with white doves symbolizing peace.

The station will broadcast "the word of God" every 15 minutes, interspersing it with music ranging from popular Arab songs to Johnny Cash and Pat Boone. Boone, who is affiliated with Otis' work, has composed a song for the station. Cash, Otis says, has agreed to perform here.

Other sound effects may penetrate the station's microphones: those of incoming artillery shells. Otis said he plans to leave the microphones open if the station is bombed.

"We're trying to bring some music and happiness, some hope and the word of God into this whole area of the Middle East," Otis said.

The station started on half power but will transmit on 30,000 watts that will put it in range not only of all of Lebanon but Syria, Jordan and Israel.

Otis has invited soldiers from the U.N. peace-keeping forces posted between the guerrilla and Christian militias to bring in records for taping so the radio can broadcast music from their home countries — Nepal, Ireland, Nigeria, Norway, Senegal and Fiji.

Maj. Saad Haddad, the commander of Christian forces in southern Lebanon, gave Otis the customs house for the use of the radio station. Israeli troops left it empty when they pulled out of the region in June 1968 following their invasion three months earlier.

Otis, in a gray jogging suit, said he speaks to several million people a year across the United States and Canada from 50 television stations that carry a "Billy Graham-type" program. He has written a dozen books.

But this is his first try at running a radio station.

Findings Reported On Single Parents

NEW YORK (AP) — Single parents say they are generally happy and consider themselves interesting people, but also would like to remarry someday, according to a new survey.

On one hand, the single parents say they like having the freedom to run their own lives, but some also said they are lonely and lack adult companionship. The survey of more than 760 single parents was commissioned by Time Out Institute, a group founded two years ago by Kentucky Fried Chicken to study the changing role of American women.

"There's a lot we have to learn about what we're doing because we're just ordinary people with a dream that's going to come to pass," Otis said.

He said Haddad and his militia were "thrilled" about the addition to their isolated enclave. Haddad has promised to conduct his own talk show. He has complained regularly that the Christian world ignores the plight of the 100,000 persons who live in the six-mile-deep area he controls north of the Israeli frontier.

About 70,000 of them are Shiite Moslems and the remainder are Christians.

Otis said he hoped the guerrillas will turn their radio dials to his station.

"They have transistor radios, too, and we want them to tune in and find some hope as well," he said.

Woman Assigned To Hunt For Criminal

PARIS (UPI) — French police, desperate to find the country's Public Enemy No. 1 at large for more than a year, have assigned a pretty 25-year-old woman detective to the case.

The crafty Jacques Mesrine, France's answer to John Dillinger, shot a right-wing journalist last week and the increased pressure for police to find the 42-year-old criminal led to the appointment of police investigator Mireille Balestrazzi.

Officials would like nothing better than for Miss Balestrazzi to get her man, who like America's 1930s Public Enemy No. 1 John Dillinger taunts the police publicly.

The handsome outlaw considered France's most dangerous criminal has eluded authorities since his May 1978 escape from a maximum security cell at Paris' La Sante Prison. Since then, the elusive Mesrine has publicly ridiculed police by granting interviews to certain journalists.

Jacques Tillier, 32, of the right-wing weekly Minute, thought he could outdo some of his colleagues and get an exclusive interview with Mesrine. But his efforts landed him in the hospital last week with three gunshot wounds.

Tillier said that Mesrine lured him into an abandoned quarry near Paris Monday with the possibility of an interview but beat him up and shot him three times in the face and shoulder. He said Mesrine, known for his left-wing views, complained that Tillier's articles about him were unfair.

The journalist said Mesrine thought he was dead, but he survived by keeping his eyes wide open and holding his breath.

In letters sent to three Paris newspapers last week, Mesrine gave a different version.

He admitted shooting Tillier but said he "didn't want to kill him, only to make him pay for his dirty tricks. He isn't dead because I didn't want him dead. But I went to the limits of violence."

In the typewritten letter signed with Mesrine's fingerprint, the criminal said Tillier offended him by offering $95,000 for a scoop. "I never take money from the hand of a creep," Mesrine said.

Mesrine last popped into the news in July in the Henri Lelievre kidnapping case. Lelievre, 82, one of France's richest men who was released after his family paid a $1.4 million ransom, said Mesrine was one of his abductors.

Villagers Getting Ready To Greet John Paul II

KNOCK, Ireland (UPI) — John Rooney pushed his peaked cap back from his forehead, a wide grin creasing his freckled face. He teetered back and forth on his boots.

"Who needs a Vatican parchment when we've got the holy father himself?" he asked with a chuckle. "The pope is great man — there's none better," he added, his eyes shining.

In August, the village of Knock in County Mayo celebrated the centennial of a reported apparition of the Virgin Mary seen by 15 villagers. In those 100 years Knock has become Ireland's most hallowed shrine with 1.5 million pilgrims annually.

John Paul II accepted an invitation to celebrate a pontifical high mass at the site of the reported vision when he makes a three-day visit to the Irish Republic at the end of this month.

Despite two commissions — seven years apart — and interrogation by a small army of black-clad clerical lawyers, the simple country folk maintained a remarkable consistency in their accounts of the reported vision.

One commission reported their accounts as "satisfactory and trustworthy."

The other commented on the "remarkable consistency of their stories" despite rigorous questioning.

Even so Knock has not received the Vatican's "selective seal of approval." Instead it has been classed a "possible private revelation which the faithful are neither bound to believe or disbelieve."

The Knock of today bears little resemblance to the windswept, barren hamlet of 100 years ago when Mary Byrne and 14 other villagers claimed to have seen a brilliant light with the Virgin Mary standing near the gable end of the old village church, with St. Joseph on her right and John the Evangelist on her left.

One hundred years ago Knock was a village of abject poverty, of forced evictions and famine. Today it boasts a basilica — the biggest church in Ireland with seats for 15,000, room for 5,000 more and a spire that dominates the wild landscape.

There are modern, well-equipped care centers for the aged and invalids, holy water from a battery of taps along the surrounding wall and huge parking lots for the thousands of pilgrims who flock there daily.

Every signpost for 20 miles around points simply to Knock.

"But I don't think anyone is going to lose his way here when the pope arrives," said Monsignor James Horan, probably the only person in Knock who never doubted the pope would come.

"I knew he would accept our invitation," Horan said. "Once we asked him, I never doubted."

He said he was confident the vast throng expected to converge on Knock to see the pope would be accommodated on the 80 acres of land which form part of the shrine layout.

He estimated nearly half a million persons would be in Knock for the pontifical mass, and said the pope would pass within 40 yards of everyone.

As he spoke, an elderly nun walked slowly across the huge square where the podium is being built, stopped at a tap containing holy water, pulled out a bottle and filled it.

On the bottle was the label of a well-known Irish whiskey.

"What's going into the bottle is better than what came out of it," Horan said with a straight face.

Pontiff To Hold Mass Near Battle Site

DROGHEDA, Ireland (UPI) — Old-timer Jim McMahon watched the stone he had flung sink deeper into the murky waters of the River Boyne in this ancient walled city.

"Pray God," he murmured, half to himself, "the holy father will bury hatreds just as deep."

When Pope John Paul II arrives Sept. 29 on a three-day visit to the Irish Republic, he will carry his message of peace and reconciliation to the banks of the Boyne, scene of the famous 17th-century battle which spawned the sectarian hatreds which still divide Protestant from Roman Catholic in Northern Ireland.

McMahon, 84, has lived his life in the old city, only 77 miles from the border with Northern Ireland.

"For four score years I have lived with hatreds," he said. "I'm too old for it now."

A few hours after his arrival from Rome at Dublin airport, the pope will fly by helicopter to a site just two miles north of the city, where he will hold a liturgical service and deliver an address.

Many expect his theme will be one of reconciliation and an end to ancient feuds. His podium will be only a few miles from the banks of the river where Protestant King William Orange defeated the forces of Catholic James II in 1690, a victory still celebrated every July 12 by Northern Ireland Protestants with parades, bands, drums and all the panoply of the victorious.

The battle was the climax to the famous siege of Londonderry in Northern Ireland, where starving Protestants held the city for William against the encircling armies of James, who was attempting to regain the throne of England.

When the siege was broken by a relief ship smashing a boom across the River Foyle, James retreated south to the River Boyne in Drogheda for a showdown struggle.

William's forces smashed the ill-equipped, badly trained army of Irish recruits. James abandoned them and fled to safety.

Today, just as it was in the 17th century, the walls of Protestant areas are festooned with drawings of "Good King Billy" on his charger, coupled with sectarian slogans.

From generation to generation, down through the centuries, the story of that battle has warmed many a Protestant heart and helped keep alive the deep divisions between the two communities.

Pope John Paul, who has not hesitated to condemn violence and sectarianism in all its forms, was not expected to let the occasion pass without a reference to Northern Ireland's current strife.

Irish Write Pop Songs To Commemorate Visit

DUBLIN, Ireland (UPI) — Papal songs are a hit with the Irish clergy.

"Why shouldn't the pope be welcomed with pop songs?" queried Rev. Desmond Forrestal, in charge of the committee arranging the liturgy and music for Pope John Paul's three-day visit to the Irish Republic at the end of the month.

"As long as the lyrics are in good taste, it is all right with us," already three rush records have hit the Irish market and won clerical approval.

"If they are in good taste and attract young people we welcome them," Forrestal said. "We have nothing against people writing and singing songs about the pope."

The three records which are expected to win bishops' approval and set purple-clad toes tapping are "Welcome John Paul," sung by Jim Tobin, an Irish artist; "Viva Il Papa," sung by Carolina Walsh, who recently joined the New Stealers; and "Papa, You're Welcome," written by Irish singer Red Hurley.

This is a sample of what will greet the Pope's ears when he arrives in Dublin:

"Welcome John Paul
Welcome John Paul,
From morning 'til night, in
Your eyes there's a light
And it's shining for all men to see.
As you reach out your hand
Bring peace to our land,
With love as our guide, make
Our hearts fill with pride..."

Shops reported the songs were being "snapped up" and already punching the airwaves.

"Viva il papa. Hear the people sing
From the heart of Ireland
Let a great welcome ring.
Viva il papa, may peace bless his way."

Invitations Sent For Youth Mass

By DONAL O'HIGGINS
GALWAY, Ireland (UPI) — "I think he's groovy," said 18-year-old Rosalie Shanks, flouncing her auburn hair. "I'm booking myself in for it."

"Yeah," said her boyfriend, John Donohue, a 19-year-old mechanic, dressed in the universal uniform of sweater, jeans and sneakers. "I think he's tragic."

They were not discussing the latest super-star to climb the pop charts, but Pope John Paul II and his coming visit to the Irish Republic.

Invitations to 100,000 youngsters to attend a special "youth mass" to be celebrated by the pope in Galway in western Ireland already have been sent out by the local Bishop Eamon Casey.

Three or four times that number were expected at Galway race course where the open-air service will be celebrated, followed by a "meet-the-youth" tour by the pontiff.

The idea of a youth mass originated with the pope himself. He made it clear to the Irish Roman Catholic hierarchy it was his particular wish during his three-day visit.

"The holy father was particularly anxious to meet young persons," an Irish bishop said. "He identifies with them and attracts them. He sees the future of the church in their hands. The Galway mass seems to be the answer and we expect a huge response."

"I watched him on television and I thought he was groovy," Miss Shanks repeated. "He has a smile that somehow reminds me of everybody I like."

Mrs. Carter To Greet Pope

WASHINGTON (AP) — First lady Rosalynn Carter will be the nation's official greeter when Pope John Paul II arrives in Boston on Oct. 1.

Mrs. Carter will represent her husband at the ceremony.

President Carter plans to entertain the pope on Oct. 6, when he arrives in the nation's capital. A 1:30 p.m. EDT ceremony is scheduled on the north lawn of the White House.

Coal Industry Leaders Call For Deregulation

(EDITORS: The United States possesses huge deposits of coal, yet energy remains one of the nation's major worries. The United States imports coke for steelmaking, yet American miners are unemployed. The following dispatch surveys U.S. coal problems and differing views about their solution.)

By DEBORAH BAKER
CHARLESTON, W.Va. (UPI) — Americans fed up with gasoline lines and oil embargoes are beginning to hear a message from the nation's coalfields.

For years, industry leaders, coal region politicians and miners themselves have been trying to convince the public that the answer to the energy dilemma is to dig more coal.

Over and over, they repeat their message: coal is America's most plentiful domestic energy source and there is enough of it to provide the country with needed energy well into the 21st century.

But this summer — while thousands waited in line to get gasoline or stayed at home because they couldn't, or began to worry about the supply and cost of heating oil this winter — things changed. People began to wonder if coal really could come to the rescue. The coal industry is ready to respond to its sympathetic audience.

Smarting from 10 years of unprecedented regulation, mainly environmental, the industry wants to capitalize on the renewed interest in coal and move into the '80s with new markets and attendant growth potential.

To do that, the industry has launched a full-scale offensive against regulatory controls.

While coal is a way of life in some parts of the country ... it was little more than a dirty word to other Americans.

That was evident at this summer's meeting of the National Coal Association in Colorado Springs, Colo., where Robert H. Quenon, president of Peabody Coal Co., the nation's largest producer, urged operators to "be more affirmative and vocal."

"The lesson of the '70s instructs us that we cannot leave the political and regulatory control of these matters to politicians and bureaucrats," he said.

But coal operators expect little help from the White House for their complaints about regulation. President Carter, despite a stated long-term commitment to coal, has turned a deaf ear to them, the operators say.

Washington is the principal arena for the stepped-up campaign against regulations, which one industry official says came "springing, leaping from these statutes in the last decade."

But the effects will be felt in the coalfields, where miners and other citizens, reeling from the one-two punch of with 73.1 quads used in 1975.

Meeting that demand through coal would mean an all-out expansion — an expansion which, according to a recent study by the Office of Technology Assessment, holds "a mixture of promise and risk."

For one thing, there is the question of the public health effects of increased coal burning on land, air and water; for another, the impact on occupational health and safety.

OTA said, for example, that in the absence of any mitigating factors, twice as much coal produced means twice as many miners killed and injured.

"Coal development has a history of exploitation and turmoil in the coalfields of Appalachia, of cities laden with soot and noxious fumes, and of destruction of land and water resources," the study said. "Although an extensive regulatory system and other pressures have ameliorated many of coal's historic problems, it still retains potential for damage."

But OTA's Dr. Curtis Seltzer says that this time, there could be a difference.

"Coal will be a growing industry, and that's very much different from the past 50 years," he said. "Even in the best of times, the profitability of coal has been an up-and-down thing. That should change over the next 20 years."

The industry, he believes, will be "incredibly profitable."

"It's going to have the money to meet all the federal regulations, to spend on health and safety, to pay taxes to local communities," he said. "Then it becomes a question of whether political pressure can be generated to force them to do that."

That's just the sort of political pressure the industry has been stung by already, and seeks to counter as it faces the next decade.

Coal is ending the 1970s in a relative slump.

While this year's production — 724 million tons — will be the largest in history, the 2 percent to 2.3 percent growth rate over the past two years falls far short of the 5 percent growth rate the industry says it needs to meet the Carter administration's plan to lessen dependence on foreign oil.

The industry says it could produce more coal — say, 100 million tons a year more — if it could sell it.

"It's a demand-constrained rate," says Herbert Foster of the National Coal Association. "We just can't get it sold."

Why not? Coal's foremost spokesman, NCA's Bagge, says the federal government is the villain.

"Government policy is exclusively at fault for the present tragic state of affairs in the coal industry," he said. "We have priced ourselves right out of the international coal market."

Imports of coke, used in the steel-making process, jumped from 1.8 million tons to 5.3 million tons in a single year, from 1977 to 1978, NCA figures show.

That figure will be up to 6 million tons this year — the equivalent of 8.7 million tons of metallurgical coal not mined in this country.

Unemployment, meanwhile, is spreading, particularly in the southern Appalachian metallurgical coal fields. In West Virginia, an estimated 9,000 miners are off the job. In Virginia, 2,000 have lost their jobs in the past year. Nationwide, says the NCA, there are 18,000 unemployed miners, and another 3,000 to 4,000 working three days a week.

Notwithstanding immediate needs, Bagge complains, the administration presented an energy plan which addressed only long-term goals — and has "drawn down the curtain" on any discussion of short-term relief.

"If they were going to come to grips with what's wrong now, they couldn't maintain a posture against fine-tuning environmental restrictions on coal use," Bagge maintains.

Bagge paints a picture of the administration as a haven for former environmental lobbyists, bowing to a constituency which has "almost a religious commitment" to the environment.

"The environmental revolution has impacted severely on the coal industry," he said. "The administration, I am convinced, has a mindset against any changes whatsoever that will be perceived by the environmental constituency as a compromise."

The current focus is the Clean Air Act and the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act.

Industry wants "realistic" changes in the way environmental goals are implemented, Bagge said.

Operators deliberately have not discussed the Federal Coal Mine Health and Safety Act — the 1969 legislation which began it all. Although it "ought to be examined," Bagge said, there is little likelihood the administration would be willing to tamper with it in a presidential election year.

For its mounting anti-regulatory fight the industry counts on coal state politicians for support — and is getting it. "We haven't had a high profile on this," Bagge insists.

Instead, congressional caucuses of coal state politicians have been "quite helpful." He cites particularly Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., and Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill.

And for the first time, Bagge said, the governors are taking initiative.

In the forefront is West Virginia's Gov. Jay Rockefeller, chairman of the President's Commission on Coal.

Rockefeller's short-lived political career as a strip mine abolitionist got its second lease on life with a carefully-crafted pro-stripping campaign that earned him the coal industry's support and propelled him into the statehouse.

Some say Rockefeller now is paying back those political debts.

The first substantial legislative attack on the 1977 strip mine law — already the subject of a series of lawsuits — is the "Rockefeller Amendment," a measure to allow the states to write their own regulations to implement the law, rather than relying on those written by the Office of Surface Mining.

Complaints by Rockefeller and other coal state governors were reportedly instrumental in the recent firing of two high-level OSM officials perceived as over-zealous by the industry.

Environmentalists criticized Rockefeller's role in pushing the amendment, which has been approved by a Senate committee, saying the controversial measure guts the law and jeopardizes the legislation to which it was attached — a seven-month extension for the states to submit their reclamation programs for federal approval.

"It's a very risky game, and highly inappropriate for the chairman of the coal commission, which had taken the position it would be fair minded and listen to all groups," said Louise Dunlap, director of the Environmental Policy Center in Washington.

The industry says efforts such as Rockefeller's — and other coal state lawmakers trying to amend the Clean Air Act — are evidence of across-the-board indignation about burdensome regulations.

"Miners are mad, members of Congress are mad, governors are mad," Bagge said. Out of that, he says, will come a "new alliance" to educate the public about coal.

"The campaign of the energy companies to deregulate themselves is ultimately directed against every mine health and safety law in the book," said coal miner Steve Shapiro, president of UMW Local 6025 in Bishop, Va. "And every one of these health and safety laws has been written with the blood of dead coal miners."

UMW international secretary-treasurer Bill Esselstyn says while the union might agree some regulations are unnecessary — and be willing to go to bat along with the industry to get rid of them — the industry hasn't been specific enough about which ones it doesn't like.

"Get rid of the regulations — that's as specific as I've seen it," grumbled Esselstyn. "The idea that just because these regulations cost money, let's get rid of them — we haven't bought that in the past, and we're not going to buy it now."

He and others dispute the contention that over-regulation is responsible for coal stockpiles and unemployment. They blame market conditions and imports — and say if the industry were over-regulated, it would not have been able to produce the stockpiles to start with.

West Virginia coal miner Frank Thurman says operators are "trying to squeeze all they can from the situation."

"The sad part is, they're in a position to make the public believe it by actually causing economic chaos — or threatening the same," said Thurman, a mine committeeman at Valley Camp Coal Co. and former state director for COMPAC, the UMW's lobbying arm.

"Coal miners and others in the labor movement are sensitive to what seems to be a giant conspiracy between industry and the government," he said.

Failure Seen For 'Buck Rogers'

By PETER J. BOYER
LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Buck Rogers in the 25th Century," tonight on NBC, is a TV movie that became a theatrical movie, then a TV series pilot (tonight's version), and may soon become a bunch of two-hour movies for television syndication.

Hardly worth the fuss.
As one-shot kiddie fare, "Buck Rogers" is fine, offering plenty of spacey gadgets and creatures and galactic jargon. Oh yes, space battles, too.

As a series, though, the thing seems destined to drop from the prime-time universe faster than ABC's "Battlestar Galactica" did last season. For one thing, "Buck Rogers" offers nothing that "Galactica" didn't, and for another, Buck is at NBC, where "Star Wars" itself might have troubles.

Why, you might wonder, would Universal and NBC make an expensive space comic strip like "Buck Rogers" (made at an estimated $750,000 per episode) after "Battlestar Galactica's" failure on the No. 1 network?

I don't know what NBC's reasoning is, but Universal doesn't rally stand to lose with "Buck." The long story, shortened: Back when "Battlestar Galactica" (also made by Universal) was going great guns, NBC made a deal with the studio to make a few two-hour "Buck Rogers" movies, to be shown occasionally as specials. When Universal saw the box-office potential of the thing, the studio upgraded "Buck" to theatre quality and released it for a summer showing. The movie made "bundles of

ABC Takes Early Lead In Ratings

By JOAN HANAUER
NEW YORK (UPI) — ABC Raced to an early lead in the 1979-80 television season — which isn't surprising since the network was the only one out of the starting gate.

The No. 1 network got a week's jump on its rivals by premiering shows starting Sept. 10, while CBS and NBC began their premieres Sept. 17 — except for a few early starters.

The result was that ABC Shows took 10 of the top 11 places in the ratings (there was a tie for tenth place, so this week it's the top 11 instead of the top 10).

While ABC is expected to continue in the top spot, its margin of victory should be cut when competing against something besides reruns (including a disappointing showing for "Holocaust" on NBC) and the occasional special.

The only non-ABC show in the top 11 was CBS's "60 Minutes" in 9th place, and even that wasn't great news for CBS because ABC's news magazine, "20-20," came in fourth. "20-20" last week was devoted to Geraldo Rivera's investigative reporting on the death of Elvis Presley.

Best news for ABC was provided by "Benson," the "Soap" spinoff starring Robert Guillaume, which came in sixth. Bad news for the network was "Out of the Blue," which came in last on a list of 57 shows, and "New Kind of Family," which tied for 53rd. CBS was right down there, too, in 55th with its new "Working Stiffs" and 56th with "Bad News Bears," the networks double entry for Saturday night.

If the nation's television critics are getting too big for their typewriters, the audience cut them down to size, too. On Sunday night, viewers chose to watch the almost universally panned "The 10th Month" on CBS, rather than "Annie Hall" on ABC or "Bob Hope: The Road to China" on NBC.

For NBC, the bad news was that it could not air a program that ranked higher than 24th in the ratings. The good news was that despite being blanked in the first 23 slots, it scored respectably with "Real People" in 24th, which garnered a 31 percent share of the audience in its time period. "Real People" is a show that NBC Chief Fred Silverman has been boosting.

"Diff rent Strokes," another Silverman product, came in 29th but managed a 32 percent share of the audience.

The Welland Canal between Lakes Ontario and Erie has eight locks to detour the 326-foot drop of Niagara Falls and the rapids of the Niagara River.

dough," as one studio executive phrased it.

The movie you'll see tonight, by the way, is an edited version of the film that was released this summer.

So, Universal has already made some money off of Buck, and if the series can hang on long enough, the studio stands to make even more, as it did with "Battlestar Galactica." When "Battlestar" went off the air, Universal released it to theatres abroad, where it has reportedly shown quite well for itself.

The 24 one-hour episodes that aired on ABC last fall have been turned into 12 two-hour TV movies, sold in syndication for airing this year. After that, presumably, the film will be chopped up and sold as guitar picks. Anyway, the same recycling could be in the future for "Buck," if it hangs around long enough. It likely won't.

Remember those cheapie exploitation movies like "Reefer Madness," so shabbily made that they were actually funny? In that grand tradition, ABC tonight offers "Diary of a Teenage Hitchhiker."

This will be loved in college dorms across the land. Bring plenty of popcorn.

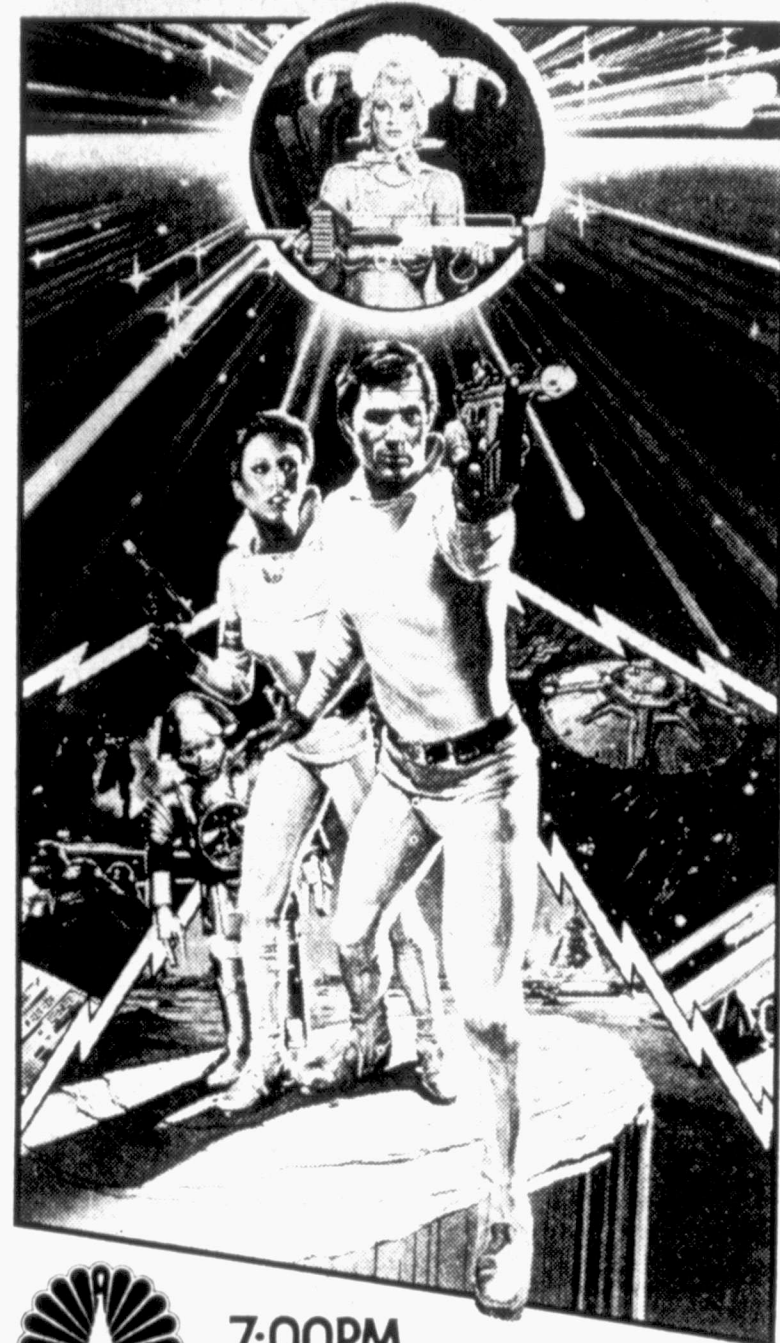

The premise is that every American teenage girl has an irrepresible urge to rush out to the nearest highway and hitchhike. The need is especially overwhelming if there is a crazed rapist or two on the loose. Pretty Charlene Tilton (who ought to have a serious talk with her agent) is at the center of this epic, a recent high school grad who (natch) doesn't know what she wants to do with the rest of her life.

So, she hitchhikes a lot. And her parents, of course, sit around and worry that she's hitchhiking. Dad (Dick Van Patten, maybe he has Miss Tilton's agent) doesn't seem concerned about social disease or drugs. It's that scourge of our nation's young people, Hitchhiking!

I'm sure that thumbing rides is a real danger, and I'm certainly not about to recommend it to anyone. This movie, ei-

Town Catches Old West's Flavor

LOOKING DOWN EUREKA STREET — The flavor of the Old West still exists in Central City, Colo. The Opera House, on the right, with its grand walls, arched windows and banistered balcony, dominates the small town. Once a gold mining town known as "the richest square mile on earth," Central City and its 1800 decor has become a popular tourist attraction. (AP Laserphoto)

CENTRAL CITY, Colo. (AP) — Tourists climb steep Eureka Street to catch the flavor of the Old West in Central City, once a gold-mining town known as "the richest square mile on earth."

An elderly couple stops to check the price of his-and-hers shot glasses, and a young woman snaps a photo of her husband, his face buried in what looks like a 19th century tabloid, headlined "Shot Gun Wedding Planned."

As evening comes, the trinket stores close, the tourists disappear, and another, fancier crowd comes to town to enter the century-old Central City Opera House.

The two-story building's long, arched windows and balcony dominate the small town — only five blocks long — like an oversized matron.

Inside the opera house, the usual select crowd of 800 sits on hickory kitchen chairs, replicas of the seats used when the hall was built in 1878 for the then-magnificent sum of $20,000.

A burst of music, the curtain rises, and almost immediately the audience begins clapping and hooting at the first act of Rossini's "The Barber of Seville," sung, accommodatingly, in English.

In the audience is silver-haired Dorothy Downing of Denver, who says she first came to the opera house in the 1930s to watch Lillian Gish in "Camille."

Also in the audience is Janice Mote, a young woman in an antique wedding dress who flew in from Aspen to watch the performance with 39 other members of her "actualization" group.

Figaro in this quixotic and sometimes hilarious opera is played by New York baritone Dominic Cossa, who this summer spent his fifth season on the Central City stage.

Although a stint at the New York City Opera awaits him later this year, Cossa says he is disappointed that he has to leave Central City at the end of the summer.

"Nowhere else in the world can you find this wild environment and have access to opera, plays and music," says the robust Cossa. "Those of us who work here do it for a fraction of our outside fees. And yet I love it and I hate to leave."

Cossa returns to Central City because he can hike and fish in the nearby mountains. And he gets to live "in a wonderful old Victorian house" owned by the Central City Opera House Association.

Cossa also jogs daily up the town's imposing slopes to prepare for working at an altitude of 8,500 feet. "I never feel vocally as good as I do at lower grounds," he says. "You run across that stage and you feel it. I can't recall any other opera house that has an oxygen tank in the wings."

There are hazards for the 140 artists and production crew members who live in Central City each summer. The sparse, dry, high country 40 miles west of Denver and just east of the Continental Divide is riddled with the ghosts of gold mines now vulnerable to cave-ins.

"We admonish our staff not to go walking up in the hills because of the mine shafts," says the opera association's artistic director, Robert Darling.

A graduate of the Yale University School of Drama, Darling alighted in Central City after several years directing and designing opera productions in Santa Fe, N.M., San Francisco and New York.

Darling says he is most proud of the opera association's apprenticeship program, which allows young music school graduates to play major parts in the season's satellite productions.

One of those productions is in the saloon of the Teller House hotel, built in the 1870s a few steps down the hill from the opera house.

Called "The Face on the Barroom Floor," it celebrates the painting of the enigmatic countenance of a young beauty on the wooden slats of the saloon floor. It is perhaps the only opera in America that undertakes two shootings of the same diva in the first 30 minutes.

Organist Enjoys Return To Theater

SEATTLE (AP) — Lee Erwin wound up just where he started 55 years ago, playing organ for silent movies — and he relishes his rerun.

Erwin, 67, is in Seattle, grinding out dramatic organ accompaniment to a touring series of silent film comedies.

"The general public has such a misconception about what silents are," Erwin said. "Television has drummed into people's heads that it is all Keystone Cops rushing around."

"Some of those films are real masterpieces. They look so clear and bright. It's a revelation for young people to see them."

He doesn't find much good about modern talkies.

"If you look at modern films objectively, you'll have to agree there's little action. I watched a film on the plane without a headset. Nobody did anything. They just talked to each other. Talking heads."

At age 12 in Birmingham, Ala., Erwin began his career as a stand-in.

"The organist there was occasionally into the bourbon," he recalled. "There was no one else in town who could read music. I made a pest of myself. That's how I got the job."

He studied classical organ at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music and then went to Paris to study with master organist Andre Marchal. But by the time Erwin returned talkies had replaced silent films.

However, radio was growing and Erwin found a job with the Moon River radio program only to see his career phased out again, this time by television.

Making a switch once more, Erwin worked as organist, arranger and composer for Arthur Godfrey's television show for 20 years.

Now, he's back to silent movies, but he has no complaints.

Airline Deregulation Saving Money

WASHINGTON (AP) — Airline deregulation may sound like an esoteric government policy but it's having a dramatic effect on Americans with more competition, falling fares and a growing commuter airline market.

While many of the government rules and regulations covering airlines have been dropped, others are still in force protecting your rights as a consumer.

The Civil Aeronautics Board notes that airlines now charge different fares on various routes and it is encouraging comparative shopping by consumers.

An easy way to do this is to call or write each airline and ask them for a copy of their fare summaries. These booklets list the fares between most major cities and any conditions attached to getting low fares.

Smaller cities are not always listed in these books, but for those routes you can get the fares from a travel agent or by calling the airlines.

To get the best price, the CAB suggests being as flexible as possible in your travel plans and to try and schedule your trip as far ahead of time as possible.

Also, after the ticket is issued and paid for, the airlines usually will not increase the fare, but if you only have a reservation you may be subject to any fare increases that occur.

The CAB warns that when a reservation clerk asks you to buy your tickets by a specific date, that is a deadline and if you don't act by then, the airline may cancel your reservations without telling you.

Dockery Points To Wildcats' Experienced Backs

By NORVAL POLLARD
Executive Sports Editor

Most of the players on the University of Arizona football team have never enjoyed a victory over the Texas Tech Red Raiders. And oh, how they'd love to change that Saturday in front of their home fans and a regional television audience.

The only Wildcats who might remember Arizona's last win over Tech are a few five-year seniors, because it was four seasons ago when the Wildcats last skinned the Raiders.

BITING BACK — Chicago Cubs slugger Dave Kingman isn't really taking a bite out of the baseball. The camera angle makes it look that way, as he ducks away from an inside pitch during Wednesday night's game at St. Louis. Kingman bit back on the last pitch, however, driving it into the stands for a home run in the Cubs' 3-2 victory. Story on Page 3, Sec. D. (AP Laserphoto)

Don Henry ...Of Backups And Baylor Streaks

WHEN TIME AND space run short... Starting next fall, there will be no Class B athletic teams in the state of Texas. No, the smallest high school classification is not being phased out, the UIL is going to a Class AAAAA (is that five?) designation, and just hiking each division one more A... About two and a half decades ago, Charley Brewer led the Westerners to two straight state championships before heading for the UT campus as a quarterback. Now, his son, Robert, is a walk-on at his dad's old college home. Young Robert played high school ball at Richardson.

SWC fans learned that, yes, there is a No. 2 quarterback at SMU. Now Jim Bob Taylor, 6-2, 192, sophomore squadman from Somerset, is No. 1. And his backup, now that Mike Ford is out for the year following knee surgery? A young man named Mike Fisher, a freshman from Waco Richfield... It was a TV date last Saturday for Levelland's Rockin' Robin Blake, probably the hottest young amateur boxer in these parts. He was on a nationally televised boxing show last week, as the U.S. team took over a European squad. And Blake came out winners...

ARKANSAS' LOU HOLTZ is at it again. Following the 36-3 crusher over Colorado State, the coach remarked there was good news and bad news. The good was the win. "The bad is we have ten games left with tougher opponents." And, "We're gonna have a good defensive team. I just don't know when. If we would have been playing touch-tackle, we would have dominated completely..." C.E. Carmichael, the former Lubbock High basketball boss? He's now in the restaurant business in Gainesville.

Bob Clindaniel, the head basketball man and AD at Wayland Baptist College, was introducing his women's counterpart, Kathy Wilson, at a WBC press conference earlier this week. "I'll let her tell you about her defense. I don't think you'd say it was man-to-man. Maybe woman-to-woman, or person-to-person. In 1975, the 'Cats nipped Tech 32-28 in the final minutes of action. The Red Raiders have won the last three outings, including last season's 41-26 thriller. Tech holds a commanding 25-3-1 mark in the series, but the Wildcats are sharpening their claws for Saturday's battle.

"This (Arizona) is a good football team," Tech head coach Rex Dockery said. "They have an experienced quarterback, three good running backs and a defense which has proven itself in game competition. I've played out there (Tucson) twice and both times the games were incredibly exciting."

"I can't make predictions about the outcome," Dockery added. "But based on how these teams have played each other in the past, I can promise it will be a tough football game."

The Wildcats are an improved football team from the squad that went 5-6 in 1978. Arizona notched a pair of victories against Colorado State and Washington State before dropping a heartbreaking 10-7 decision to California last Saturday.

The Wildcat offense is loaded with experience and guided by excellent skill position players, including senior quarterback Jim Krohn and junior fullback Hubert Oliver.

Krohn, a 6-3, 200-pounder, is an excellent passer and he is also capable running with the football. He led the Pac-10 in passing much of last season before suffering an arm injury. He's lettered three seasons and is a key leader for the Wildcats.

Oliver (5-10, 200) is currently the 12th-leading rusher in the nation with an average of 127.3 yards after three games. He is averaging 6.1 yards per carry. Oliver is listed as a fullback, but he has deceiving speed and is hard to bring down.

Joining Oliver in the Arizona backfield will be senior tailback Larry Heater (6-0, 190), the quick game-breaker in UA's I-formation.

When Krohn lets the passes fly he usually throws them in the direction of his two wide receivers, flanker Tim Haynes, a 6-1, 206-pound senior, and split end Tim Holmes, a 6-2, 195-pound sophomore. Tight end Bill Nettling (6-4, 226) is a solid blocker but will likely have some passes tossed in his direction.

The offensive line for the Wildcats is big. Tackles Ron Catlin and Bill Jensen are 6-4, 257 pounds and 6-6, 265 pounds respectively. Catlin is a senior and Jensen is a junior.

Junior guards John Wozniak and Tom Manno are also large. Wozniak stands 6-2 and tips the scales at 260 pounds, Manno is 6-2, 260. The starting center will be 6-2, 247-pound senior Norm Katnik.

The Wildcat defense is sparked by all-America candidate Cleveland Crosby, a 6-5, 250-pound tackle. Crosby led Arizona in four of nine defensive categories last season and has been tough his year, although he suffered a minor leg injury last Saturday against California.

Joining Crosby up front will be senior noseguard Jeff Whitton (6-3, 251), tackle Mike Robinson (6-5, 260) and defensive ends Chris Smith (6-2, 206) and John Crawford (6-2, 220).

The linebacking corps consists of juniors Jack Housley and Sam Giangardella. Housley, a 6-0, 215-pound junior, is replacing Gus Tucker, who suffered a broken leg against Cal. Giangardella, also a junior, is also 6-0 and 215 pounds.

Arizona's defensive backfield consists of one senior and three juniors. Marcellus Greene, the only senior, joins Mark Streeter at cornerback. The safeties are Reggie Ware and Dave Liggins.

Unbeaten Mats Face CHS

By CHUCK McDONALD
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Estacado coach Louis Kelley claims that it's mighty rough for his Matadors to have to tangle with four Class AAAA opponents in as many weeks.

But to listen to the coaches that must face the highly ranked Mats — it isn't exactly their idea of a picnic either. And this week it is the Coronado Mustangs that will try and knock Estacado off its lofty perch.

Coronado and Estacado meet tonight at 7:30 at Lowrey Field in what promises to be a humdinger.

The Matadors, fresh off a 32-0 thrashing of Lubbock High, are 2-0 while Coronado is 1-1. Tonight's game is the second Thursday night affair in as many weeks for the Mustangs, who defeated Dunbar 16-0 last Thursday.

"I've been coaching 29 years," said Quarles. "and I don't think I've ever faced a team with as much overall speed as Estacado."

"I'm not just blowing smoke either," added the Coronado coach. "I want you to know that they are awful fast."

But according to Kelley, the Matadors won't be running at full speed tonight. That's because all-everything running back Kevin White will miss the game with a knee sprain. The backup tailback, George Irvin, is also doubtful for tonight's contest because of a severely sprained ankle. Junior Kelly McBride will start the game at tailback if Irvin is unable to play. But the Matadors are loaded with running backs, and Kelly has plenty of other options.

"If we have to," he said, "we can move Stacy Burrell back to fullback and put our regular fullback, Alvin Davis, at tailback."

"Or," added the coach, "we can move Preston Davis from wingback to tailback."

Even if the Matadors can compensate for White's absence in the backfield, he will be missed in the Estacado kicking game. White had been handling the kickoff and extra-point duties for the Mats.

"We just depend on him (White) in so many ways," said Kelley at the week-

AMARILLO — Pssst. Larry Dippell says the Amarillo Sandies are for real.

Pass it on.

"I think we've got the makings of a good football team," commented the Sandie head football coach. "Maybe even as good as the one that lost to Monterey in the bidistrict game in 1976. With a little more playing time, I think I can answer that question a little better."

Amarillo, the District 4-AAAA representative in post-season action last year despite a 5-5 won-loss mark, entertains witless Lubbock High tonight at Dick Bivins Stadium, starting at 7:30 p.m. And although past performances may not support Dippell's claim, the AHS head coach says the Sandies are in for a real battle.

"I'm worried about them (Lubbock High)," said Dippell. "They're a bunch of scrappers... always have been. And when they're down you can never count them out. They always seem to battle back."

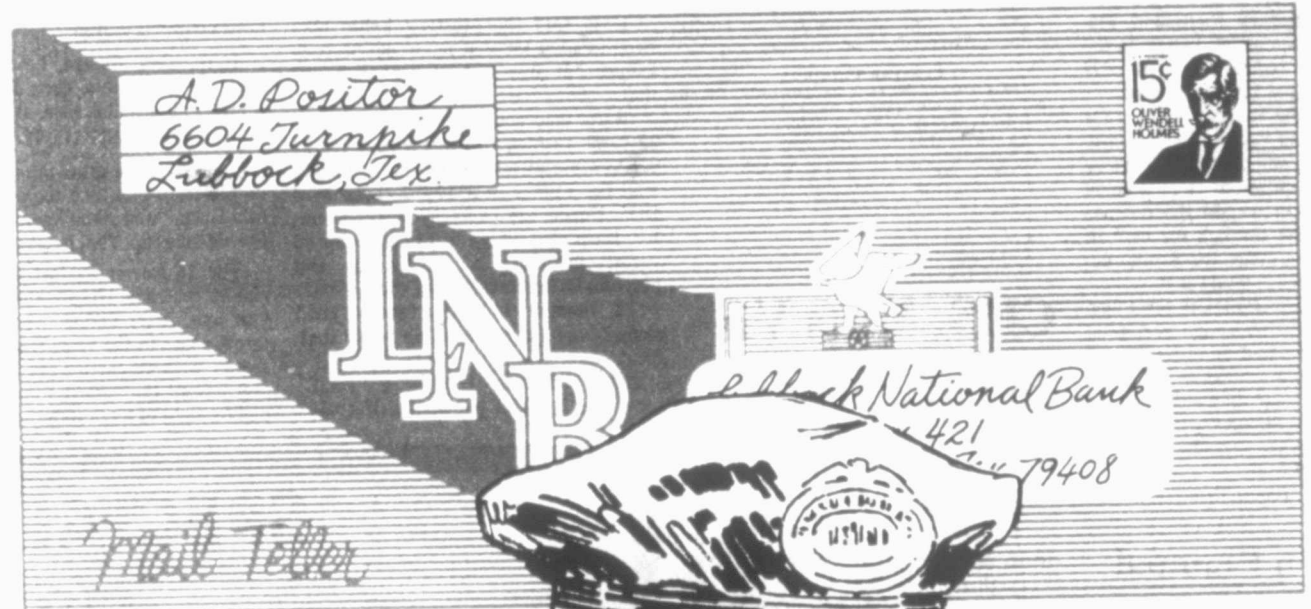

Coming off a big 9-0 upset win over state-ranked Odessa Permian last weekend and a 15-14 setback the week before against Odessa High, the Sandies enter the contest with a 1-1 mark. Meanwhile, Lubbock, which was shut out by Estacado 32-0 last week, sports a 0-2 record.

In its first two losses, the Westerners have yet to gain more than 100 yards in total offense, with their largest output coming in a 21-7 loss to Borger. That night, LHS rolled up 98 total yards.

"It's still like a puzzle to us," said LHS coach Army Salinas. "We're still trying to put the pieces together and find that right combination."

In an effort to do that, Salinas will See WESTERNERS Page 2

Idalou-Frenship Tilt Matches AA Powers

By RUSS PARSONS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

While all eyes are intent upon the upcoming battle between Littlefield and Slaton, there's another South Plains Class AA game that could slip right by the unwary.

That pits No. 4 Idalou and No. 5 Frenship. It'll be played in Idalou Friday night and both coaches point to it as key to their seasons.

Frenship, which lost 35-7 to Littlefield in its opener, has a lot of respect for the Wildcats. "I think Idalou has a team that is comparable to Littlefield," said FHS coach John Parchman.

"Looking at them on film, Idalou is not quite so diverse offensively, but defensively they're awful quick."

"I'll tell you, they're going to be a real challenge. I hope we can move the football on them a little bit or we'll have our hands full. They have great speed and quickness both offensively and defensively.

"On offense they've got some kids that you give a little bit of room to and they're gone. Anytime, they're liable to go the distance."

Those backs that have Ritchey so excited are quarterback Pat Gaston and running back Victor Bugg. Even Parchman is high on them.

"Gaston is a 10-flat sprinter," the coach said. "And he was honorable mention all-district last year as a sophomore."

"Victor Bugg, he's a real good sprinter. We're playing him in the backfield this year. If we can break either one of those loose we can score."

"Right now we're just trying to figure a way to break them out."

For Ritchey, the season is a week to week proposition, slowing bringing his Wildcats along. "We've played two outstanding football teams and we're pleased just to have been competitive with them," he said.

"But this is the point now where the good football teams get better. That's what we're trying to impress on our youngsters now. The district race is what counts and we've got to get ready for it."

Parchman is in the same position, but his District 5-AA races somehow always turn out to be lulu.

"I don't know what it is, but you never can tell what's going to happen in this district," Parchman said. "Last year we lost three in a row then we won three straight district games and beat Slaton 19-0. They went on and did well in the playoffs."

"I think if we could slip by Idalou this weekend it would give us quite a bit of momentum. It would leave us with a good taste in our mouths."

Harp's Busy Night Brings Weekly Honor

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Alan Harp wasn't sure how many times he carried the ball against Dunbar last Friday night. He needed a hint.

Ten, he guessed, maybe 15 times. But no more.

The bottom line read: 22 carries for Harp. For a fullback, that's a night's work, but for a quarterback, like Harp, it's an eternity. In other words, Harp was busier than the 34th Street Sonic on a Saturday night.

"I really didn't have any idea I'd carried it that many times," commented Harp, this week's Avalanche-Journal Class AAAA Player of the Week. "I guess that's a lot."

Harp said the Mustang battle plan hadn't called for that many quarterback keepers. It just sort of happened like that.

Harp, who ended the night with only 39 yards rushing (he was sacked for 31 yards while attempting to pass), helped lead the Ponies to a 16-0 decision over DHS. During the Thursday-night encounter, Harp also hit six of 13 passes for 82 yards, including a touchdown, and played a little defensive end, too.

"I thought I had a pretty good game," said Harp. "Nothing really that great."

Asked what he thought a "good" game was for him personally, Harp replied: "I've really never thought that much about it."

Maybe 200 yards passing and another 100 yards rushing?

"Yeah," said Harp, "that would be pretty good."

Prior to the start of the season, CHS coach Jack Quarles said Harp was "one of the keys for us this year. He needs to come through at quarterback for us to have a winning season."

A lot of pressure on a mere junior? Quarles thinks not, but Harp doesn't agree.

"I'll let him (Quarles) do that kind of talking," said Harp. "I wouldn't go as far as calling me a key player. I think it takes all 22 to get the job done...to have a winning season."

Harp, says, though, he feels a little pressure going into each Friday night contest. Mainly, because, it comes with the quarterbacking territory.

"But we have some other good backs on the team that take the pressure off," said Harp, "and some linemen that open the big holes up. That helps a lot."

The 22 carries against the Panthers almost matched Harp's entire output a year ago. After taking over Coronado's throttle late in the year, Harp ended the season with 28 carries for 65 yards. He also passed the ball 21 times, and completing eight of them for 123 yards.

Westerners Go To Amarillo

start transfer Gilbert Cuevas at quarterback and Larry Walker, the starter for the past 10 games, at tailback. Salinas said an injury to Walker's ankle last week against Estacado "did not prompt this (lineup change). It was something we'd planned on doing anyway."

Dippell will counter with fullback Mark Mathiasmeier, quarterback Jeff Lamb and tailback Ty Richmond. Mathiasmeier, a 180-pounder junior, is the team's leading ballcarrier with 177 yards. Richmond has 129 for the year.

Dippell said the Sandies' key, so far this year, has been "good solid defense. That's our strong point right now. We've still got a lot of questions to answer on offense and until we do the defense will have to come through for us." In their win over Permian, the Sandie defense allowed only 123 total yards.

But their offense didn't get much more — only 124. "We're inexperienced on offense," explained Dippell. "We're still moving people around. What we've got to get is consistent. We've had our opportunities to score and just didn't do it against Odessa. We just aren't playing well on offense."

Army's Army hopes that trend continues.

Reception Planned After Tech Game

Because of the change in time for the game, the time of the Texas Tech Ex-Students Association reception for this weekend has been changed.

The reception, at which all Tech fans and exes are invited, will be held after the Raider-Arizona game at Tucson, Ariz. The program will be held at the Plaza International Hotel, near the Arizona campus, beginning at 4:30 p.m. CDT and continuing until 7:30 p.m., Ex-Students Association officials reported.

The game was moved from a night affair to 1 p.m. CDT so it could be televised regionally.

BROWNFIELD PLANS JAMBOREE
BROWNFIELD (Special) — The 12th annual Brownfield Cross-Country Jamboree is scheduled here Oct. 27, and high school coaches interested in entering teams can contact Brownfield track coach James Morris. Competition for the 2.2-mile race will be held that morning for both varsity and junior varsity boys and girls. Entry fee is $1.50 per runner. Trophies will be awarded to the winning teams, medals to the leaders in the races.

"I hate to play these four (Class) AAAA games in a row, but our kids like to play these city schools."

"I just don't know how you get ready to play Estacado," countered Quarles. "They are difficult to stop, they'll run out of four or five different sets and if you line up wrong defensively — they'll burn you."

"We are a defensive football team," added Quarles. "And we're going to have to be against Estacado."

"If we can just play good football against the No. 2 (Class AAA) team in the state it will be a great thing for us."

Judge Nullifies Compensation Case In NBA

NEW YORK (AP) — Lonnie Shelton and Vinnie Johnson are professional basketball players without a team.

A federal judge has voided a National Basketball Association compensation award given to the Seattle SuperSonics last year for the loss of center Marvin Webster.

Judge Robert L. Carter of the Southern District of New York ruled that NBA commissioner Larry O'Brien was excessive in his compensation to the Sonics in the New York Knicks' signing of Webster.

O'Brien said he was "appalled" at Judge Carter's ruling and announced that he has directed the league's counsel "to determine the NBA's right of appeal."

Larry Fleisher, head of the NBA Players Association, which took the matter to court, said, in his opinion, Shelton would be returned to the Knicks along with the $450,000 and "Vinnie Johnson, the player Seattle drafted with the draft choice it was awarded."

"I'm not going to waste my time thinking about what could happen," Shelton said. "I have no control over the situation. I'm going to continue to work out. I hope they (the Knicks and Sonics) can settle the difference with money and not have to bother with the personal life of the players."

Carter, however, refused to comment on the status of the two players and the money.

"I did not indicate (in the ruling) that the Knickerbockers owed Seattle no compensation," the judge said. "I set aside the award on the grounds that it exceeded the value of the player. In other words, Seattle was more than compensated for the loss of Webster."

The decision is expected to affect O'Brien's latest compensation award. The commissioner on Tuesday awarded the Portland Trail Blazers two players and a draft choice plus the choice of Randy Smith or a draft choice and $350,000 from San Diego. The compensation was for the Clippers' signing of former Portland center Bill Walton as a free agent.

"The Webster award decision makes it clear to me that the Walton award is excessive," Fleisher said.

Judge Carter, noting O'Brien's compensation award in the Houston Rockets' signing of forward Rick Barry in 1978, said "there is nothing in the two awards which would warrant awarding Seattle more than twice as much for the loss of a Webster, whose potential has not been fulfilled, than was awarded to San Francisco (Golden State) for the loss of one of the NBA's greatest players."

Under NBA rules, when a veteran free agent signs with another NBA team, the two teams seek to reach agreement as to what compensation the club signing the player will pay the old team for the loss of the player's services. If the teams are unable to agree, Judge Carter said, the commissioner is empowered "to make whole the team losing the veteran free agent and not penalize the exercise of the player's right."

After the Knicks signed Webster prior to the 1978-79 season, O'Brien awarded Shelton, the Knicks' No. 1 draft pick and $450,000 to Seattle.

Johnson, signed with the No. 1 draft pick, is a former Baylor standout.

Clipper Trio Plans To Defy NBA Transfer

SAN DIEGO (AP) — San Diego Clipper stars Kermit Washington, Kevin Kunnert and Randy Smith, part of a record compensation award that would send them to the Portland Trail Blazers, plan to defy a ruling by NBA commissioner Laurence O'Brien, a San Diego newspaper reported today.

According to The San Diego Union, the players were informed by the NBA Players' Association there is "more than a chance" that the union will test the decision in court.

The three were awarded to Portland Tuesday as compensation for the loss of all-pro center Bill Walton, who signed with San Diego as a free agent last spring.

Washington and Kunnert were to join the Trail Blazers tonight in Minnesota for an exhibition game. Meantime, the Clippers had until 4 p.m. CDT today to inform O'Brien's office whether they would keep Smith, a veteran guard, or pay Portland $350,000 as well as turn over their 1982 first round draft choice.

Attorneys for the three players told the newspaper they anticipate pursuit of a temporary restraining order against execution of the of the compensation award.

Larry Fleisher, executive director of the players' association, indicated that the matter would be challenged in court after learning a federal judge overturned the Marvin Webster compensation award earlier in the day.

By ruling the compensation excessive, the judge's action makes the players and money awarded to Seattle again the property of the New York Knicks.

"I'll be talking to the officers of the association (Paul Silas, Bob Lanier, Maurice Lucas, Paul Westphal and Wes Unseld) in the next few days before we come to any decision (about the Walton compensation)," Fleisher told writer Joe Hamelein of The Union.

Based on the Webster decision, and past decisions, I would take the position that the award on Walton was grossly excessive," said Fleisher.

He said it was "reasonable to assume" the case would be pressed.

NATIONAL LEAGUE ROUNDUP

Reds Win, Hike Lead Over Astros In NL West

By The Associated Press

It doesn't take much to get Johnny Bench excited. Just throw him into a pennant race and watch him go to work.

Bench's two-run homer gave the Cincinnati Reds a 3-2 victory over the San Diego Padres and boosted their lead in the National League West to 2½ games over Houston, which lost to Atlanta 6-5.

"I don't know how he could play any better, unless he got a hit every time up," said Reds manager John McNamara of his star catcher, who is hitting .282 with 22 home runs and 75 RBI and has been the team's hottest hitter down the stretch.

"He's had a very good year, especially since the All-Star break, when he's hit over .300. And he's done some job catching."

Bench, whose torrid second half of the season places him among the favorites for the NL's most valuable player award, isn't exactly enjoying the grind.

"I'm going to be 50 years old before this thing is over," he said. "It's wears you out. I'm tired mentally and physically."

"In a game like tonight's, everything is crucial. You hope everybody's in the right position and you second-guess yourself."

"We don't want to lose this thing

now. Too many people expect us to win."

Not many people expected the Astros to remain close for so long. Bench was asked if Houston, which entertains the Reds for three games this weekend, can win the division with a rookie catcher — Bruce Bochy.

"Not unless his name is Johnny Bench," he said with a smile.

Elsewhere, Pittsburgh's lead over Montreal in the NL East was reduced to one game when the Pirates split a two-night doubleheader in Philadelphia, winning 9-6 and losing 6-5, while the Expos took a pair from the Mets, 3-1 and 4-1.

Braves 6, Astros 5

Glenn Hubbard slammed a three-run homer and Bob Horner had a two-run shot to pace the Braves, who had another hero in Gary Matthews.

With the tying run on second and two out in the ninth, Art Howe belted a long drive to right field which Matthews caught over his shoulder while tumbling to the ground.

"It was like a seventh game of a World Series," said Braves manager Bobby Cox. "Both clubs were excited and the fans were screaming. You just automatically play harder. It was a nerve-wracking game."

Pirates 9-5, Phillies 6-6

The Pirates rallied from a 6-1 deficit with eight runs in the last two innings of the first game, then were given a dose of the same medicine by the Phillies in the nightcap. Philadelphia was down 5-1 but took the second contest when rookie Keith Moreland singled in the tying run in the sixth and pinch-hitter Pete Mackanin's fielder's choice delivered the winning tally.

In the first game, Manny Sanguillen's pinch-hit triple broke a 6-6 tie in the ninth. Philadelphia had jumped in front mostly thanks to a grand-slam homer by

Mike Schmidt in the seventh. The Pirates got three in the eighth on four singles and an error.

Dave Parker started the Pittsburgh ninth with a double and scored on a single by Willie Stargell to make it 6-5. Mat Alexander ran for Stargell and stole second, moved to third on a groundout and came home on Bill Madlock's single. Ed Ott walked and, after another out, Sanguillen delivered.

It was the 40th time the Pirates have come from behind to win this season.

"That says a lot for the guys in our clubhouse," said Pirates manager Chuck Tanner. "This is the best 25-man roster I've had since I've been here."

Expos 3-4, Mets 1-1

After tough losses to the Pirates Monday and Tuesday, Montreal might have seemed ready to collapse. But strong pitching by Rudy May, who threw a six-hitter in the nightcap, and Ross Grisley, who won his first game since June 26, boosted the Expos within a game of the East lead.

"It's the sign of a good ballclub that we don't quit," said Montreal manager Dick Williams. "It's been that way all season."

The Expos won the second game despite a first-inning collision that saw second baseman Dave Cash get cut on the head and right fielder Ellis Valentine bruise his jaw. Both players had to leave the game.

"Two fellas have to come out tonight and we get a homer by Chris Speier," noted Williams. "It's been a total team effort."

Substitute shortstop Speier and Cash each homered in the nightcap. In the opener, Tony Perez knocked in two runs and scored the other for Montreal.

"Pittsburgh has a good ball club," said May. "but I know they're looking over their shoulders and saying, 'When are those Expos going to die?'"

"You didn't see us lay down tonight after two tough losses. I think we're going to win it. I'll be awfully disappointed if we don't."

Cardinals 6-2, Cubs 3-3

Dave Kingman had two home runs to increase his major-league leading total to 47 but it was a 10th-inning shot by Jerry Martin that clinched the Cubs' second-game victory. St. Louis won the opener as Ken Reitz and Keith Hernandez had two-run triples and Ted Simmons homered.

Dodgers 7, Giants 2

Rookie Rick Sutcliffe won his 16th game — he's lost nine — and Ron Cey had a three-run homer for the Dodgers.

ENCOURAGEMENT — Pittsburgh captain Willie Stargell yells encouragement to his teammates as the Pirates rally in the ninth inning of Wednesday night's game against Philadelphia. The Pirates went on to win 9-6 the first game of the doubleheader, but they dropped the second 6-5. (AP Laserphoto)

AMERICAN LEAGUE ROUNDUP

Royals' Victory Tightens Race In AL West

By The Associated Press

"The object," said Kansas City's Hal McRae, "is to win this thing — not run away with it." The subject was the American League's West Division title.

McRae and the second-place Royals beat the division-leading California Angels 6-4 Wednesday night, winning for the second time in the three games of this series but remaining exactly where they were when the set began — two games behind.

"I looked up at the scoreboard and suddenly it occurred to me: We're going to play 162 games and we're going to end up in a tie," said Kansas City third baseman George Brett, who had two hits and drove in a run. "I really think there's a chance it will happen."

It happened last year in the East, when the New York Yankees and Boston Red Sox decided divisional honors in a one-game playoff. And, since the Royals and Angels meet four times more this season, Brett's prophecy may be realized.

Darrell Porter drove in three runs while Larry Gura and two relievers combined on a six-hitter to defeat the Angels. Porter had a first-inning sacrifice fly and a two-run single in the second-inning after an error by California shortstop Jim Anderson.

With two on and two out, Brett hit a grounder at Anderson, who watched the ball skim through his legs and into left field — to the dismay of the Angels and catcher Brian Downing.

"Let's put it this way: they (the Royals) got some extra pivotal outs and they made good use of them," Downing said. Asked to elaborate, Downing snapped, "Talk to the guy who made the error."

Porter made no error when he came to bat, stroking the two-run single that gave him 10 RBI in the three games. The Royals added two in the seventh on an RBI single by Brett and a run-scoring groundout by Pete LaCock.

The Angels got home runs from Downing and Anderson, an RBI grounder by Rod Carew and a sacrifice fly by Carney Lansford.

"You have to say they're still in the driver's seat," said Brett. "I'd like to be where they are — two games up."

How long they'll stay there may be up to the Royals, and Kansas City manager Whitey Herzog isn't making any predictions. After all, his team was 10 games out after losing 14 of 15 games earlier this year.

White Sox 6, Twins 0

Twins Manager Gene Mauch admits he's playing favorites in the battle for the West top spot: he wants Minnesota to win it. But the Twins were shut out a second consecutive time by the lowly White Sox.

"We've got to win and Kansas City has to get hot and take care of California," he said. "I'm not rooting for Kansas City. I'm rooting for Kansas City to help us."

Tigers 5, Orioles 0

Steve Kemp scored one run and drove in another, backing the four-hit pitching of Jack Morris and carrying the Tigers past the Orioles.

The loss, coupled with Milwaukee's rout of Seattle, left at three Baltimore's magic number for clinching the East Division crown.

Red Sox 8, Blue Jays 0

Butch Hobson cracked a pair of doubles and drove in three runs, backing Bob Stanley's three-hitter and powering Boston past Toronto.

Yankees 2, Indians 0

Tommy John picked up his 19th victory with 8 2/3 innings of three-hit pitching and Reggie Jackson hit his 26th homer of the season to boost New York over Cleveland.

Rangers 9, A's 4

Mickey Rivers' two-run single highlighted the six-run third inning that helped Texas beat Oakland. Jim Sundberg walked twice in the outburst, the second time with the bases loaded.

Brewers 12, Mariners 1

Home runs by Buck Martinez, Ben Oglivie and Sixto Lezcano paced the Brewers' 19-hit attack and kept Milwaukee mathematically alive in the East race.

Refugio Back Honored

By The Associated Press

Refugio coach Ted Gray decided it would be humorous to nickname his 6-0, 140-pound son Ira, "Muscles."

Gray failed to see the joke last Friday night when Ira "Muscles" Gray wrote himself into the record books with 14 receptions for 186 yards and touchdowns of nine, 60 and 25 yards in a 27-0 victory.

Crosby's Jerome Lockett and Bonham's Bobby Ross, a couple of running backs with real muscles and rushing statistics, also had big games last week to earn mention this week in The Associated Press Schoolboy Honor Roll.

Lockett, a 5-9, 170 senior, rushed 16 times for 303 yards on 16 carries, scored two touchdowns on runs of 75 and 85 yards and had touchdown runs of 41, 9 and 35 yards called back on penalties in a 33-8 victory over Magnolia.

Ross, who can bench press 400 pounds, used his strength to rush 225 yards on 19 carries and score four touchdowns in a 34-14 victory over North Lamar.

Ross ran for touchdowns of 64 and 34 yards, caught a 47-yard touchdown pass and ran 70 yards for another touchdown with a punt. Ross returned four punts 106 yards, returned one kickoff 15 yards and made nine tackles and intercepted a pass as a defensive safety.

Gray's feat equaled the fourth best receiving effort in the history of schoolboy football, surpassed only by Mike Coomer's 16 catches for McCamey in 1970 and 15 each by Bobby Burns of North Lamar in 1974 and Eric Herring of Houston Yates in 1975.

"He cuts and darts on a dime," Crosby assistant coach Ronnie Davenport said of Lockett. "He's so hard to bring down even after you get a handle on him. I'd hate to defend him. He always finds someplace to run."

Lockett had 207 yards rushing at the half and in his first carry of the third quarter ran 85 yards for a touchdown. In Crosby's 58-0 season opening victory over Hitchcock, Lockett rushed 125 yards.

"He'd have had more yards but he kept getting the ball too close to the goal line," head coach George Dean said.

Ross is a 9.8 sprinter and member of Bonham's state champion sprint relay team, but coach Jimmie Brooks says his senior star utilizes his strength.

"He's got good speed but he's really just a strong runner," Brooks said. "He only had about 60 yards in our opening game. I think he was just learning to run. He really opened up last week. Now, I look for some more performances like that."

In other schoolboy games last week:

- Quarterback Tony Perez of San Antonio St. Gerard's set a city passing record with 401 yards passing and five touchdowns in a 35-13 victory over San Antonio Southwest. Perez completed 27 of his 42 aerials and broke the previous record of 368 yards set by San Antonio Brackenridge's Victor Castillo in 1962.
- Ronnie Thomas of Victoria Stroman rushed 243 yards on 31 carries and scored the game's only touchdown in a 6-0 victory over Austin Crockett.
- Gregory-Portland quarterback Glenn Burdine passed for two touchdowns and ran for another and accounted for 184 yards in offense in a 37-0 victory over Class AAAA Corpus Christi Carroll.
- Running back-linebacker Americo Cantu rushed 23 times for 195 yards and three touchdowns, made 15 tackles, caused two fumbles and sacked the quarterback as Class A Pettus beat Class AA Cotulla 23-3.
- Evadale halfback Bruce Murphy rushed 179 yards on 32 carries and scored two touchdowns in a 13-12 victory over Chester in his second big performance. Murphy got 200 yards on 40 carries and one touchdown in the opening week of the season.

Purdue Picked Over ND

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

There's nothing like college football to turn grown, dignified men and women into a babel of banner-waving, horn-toting juveniles. They go into spasms over cleated knights in plastic and synthetic armor who spend three hours wrestling for a result that makes the mob want to tear down the goalposts.

The combatants are distinguishable by their flamboyant colors and weird nicknames. There are scores of Tigers and Bears, plus Trojans, Spartans, Boilermakers, Spiders and even Webfoots and Buckeyes (a hard Ohio nut with a big brown eye).

But in the final analysis, only mathematics count. Last week our score was a gaudy 41-8, 837 with the Fighting Irish (Notre Dame) and Bruins (UCLA) the surprise specials. Season score: 71-20, 780.

Expect no drastic upheavals this week.

Southern California 33, Minnesota 20:

How can a Trojan on a white horse be unseated by a Gopher?

Alabama 37, Baylor 7: They call them the Crimson Tide, Red Elephants and Scarlet Doom. This one is the Bear (Bryant) vs. the Bears.

Oklahoma 47, Tulsa 13: The always formidable Sooners rely on a wishbone ball-handling Houdini named Julius Caesar Watts. What?

Texas 34, Iowa State 9: The belated debut of the "Hook 'Em Horns" gang. The Longhorns have a hatchet man named Hatchett.

Purdue 19, Notre Dame 15: The Boilermakers will do a little soldering on last week's conquerors of Michigan.

Michigan 43, Kansas 3: Speaking of Michigan, they bounce back with B.J. Dickey and a more diversified attack. What's a Wolverine?

Penn State 30, Texas A&M 13: The best team in the East still gives ground grudgingly. Seriously, now, are there any lions in Nittany?

Nebraska 35, Iowa 9: Shhh, shhh, shhh. Not being risqué, but is it true aved Cornhusker fans even wear red unmentionables?

Michigan State 33, Miami (O.) 10: If good things come in clusters, can Spartan gridders match their basketball brothers?

Ole Miss 19, Missouri 14: If Mizou has to be shown, Steve Sloan, Ole Miss' young sideline genius, may have something to show.

Washington 25, Oregon 14: The Huskies have quarterbacks with intriguing names — Tom Porras (porous?) and Tom Flick.

North Carolina 25, Pittsburgh 20: Pitt has a lot of talent that gets slowed in rich Southern tar, whatever that is.

Florida State 32, Miami (Fla.) 10: An intrastate rivalry that should go to the Seminoles. Do they really carry tomahawks?

Arkansas 23, Oklahoma State 7: Lou Holtz's quarterback Kevin Scanlon broke all of Joe Namath's passing marks at Beaver Falls, Pa.

Brown 21, Yale 14: A left-handed quarterback named Larry Carbone should paint Yale's blue bluer.

Bell Sees Game As USC Vs. Rams

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — There's an intangible flavor to this Sunday's Los Angeles Rams-Tampa Bay Buccaneers game, a crucial meeting for both teams.

"It means something extra," Bucs' fullback Ricky Bell said. "When we went out there last year, it was like Southern California against the Los Angeles Rams. It's that same situation this year."

"There's a lot of us on the Bucs who are from the West Coast," linebacker David Lewis said. "This has got to be a big game."

Bell, former standout USC tailback, compared the excitement to a Southern Cal-UCLA showdown for the Pac-10 Conference title.

"It's that same kind of feeling," he said. "This will be a big test for us."

The Bucs, 3-0 and leading the National Football Conference's Central Division, want the game badly. A victory over the Rams, trying to stay atop the NFC West, would give the Bucs momentum for next week's trip to second-place Chicago.

Their rise to contention has probably buried a persistent criticism — that coach John McKay, highly successful coach at Southern Cal for 16 years, was running an employment center here for his old players.

The "USC East" tag has been fueled by such as running back Louis Carter. After the Bucs traded him to Washington this year, Carter said, "They ran a USC shuttle system at Tampa."

"After a while, when the Ricky Bells and Anthony Davises kept showing up, you realized what your position on the team would be. You never got beat out of your position at Tampa Bay. Things didn't work out that way. People were brought in and became instant starters."

Lewis was surprised at his reception in the area when he arrived after being drafted second in 1977.

"I've never understood that. I felt like a marked man when I came here, just because of my college. I wasn't wild about Tampa because I felt there was a lot animosity towards me."

"For some reason, down her the people seem more worried about what school you played for than whether you can play," Lewis said.

Some fans, reacting when Tony Dorsett was a star his rookie season for Dallas while Bell was struggling with Tampa Bay, said the only reason McKay chose Bell over Dorsett in 1977 was his alma mater.

Of the more than 100 players who've appeared in regular season games for the Bucs, 15 have been ex-Trojans. At one point, they were 11 on the team at once.

The number is down to six this season: striders Bell, Lewis and linebacker Richard Wood; top reserves quarterback Mike Rae, defensive back Danny Reece and tight end Jim Obradovich.

"USC East" is clearly a wornout subject for McKay. When he announced trout Marty King was being given a tryout in training camp, McKay said, "He's from Southern Cal, but please don't give me hell about that. I didn't recruit him, and I don't know him."

(King was eventually cut in favor of Tom Blanchard — from Nebraska, of all places.)

"I think that criticism about USC bothered him (McKay)," Bell said. "I think all types of criticism have bothered him, but he's a man who will stick with his own will."

"There are advantages to it. You know most of the system already, secondly, you know the people you're going to work with. You know what they're going to ask of you," Bell said.

Boyer Gets New Contract

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Ken Boyer, who has reversed the fortunes of the St. Louis Cardinals, says the National League club's leading objective is clearly defined.

In order to climb higher in 1980, Boyer said Wednesday night, the Cards must do everything in their power to secure a hurler who ranks as "a 100 percent stopper in the bullpen."

Boyer's appraisal of St. Louis' needs followed his rehiring earlier in the day to manage St. Louis through next year under the undisclosed terms of a one-year pact.

"The club has made significant progress," said chief executive August A. Busch Jr. in a statement, "and his signing will move us closer to our goal of future championship seasons."

Boyer, who took over as Cards pilot following the firing of Vern Rapp in April, 1978, steered St. Louis to a 69-93 finish for fifth place in the NL East that season.

Tech Women Set School Record

OKLAHOMA CITY (Special) — The Texas Tech women's golf team fired a round of 320 Wednesday to finish the Susie Maxwell Berney tournament here in twelfth place with a 920 total.

The University of Tulsa won the 21 team affair with a three-day total of 882. SMU finished second at 900 and Ohio State wound up third.

The Raider women finished 16th in this same tournament last year and their score of 920 represented their best tournament round in the history of the school. The previous best was a 965 turned in last year.

Mary DeLong led the way for the Raiders with a 78-233. Robin Wohltman was next with a 79-236. Linda Hunt had an 80-238 and Liz Remy turned in an 83-246.

Chaps Starter Out of Action

The Lubbock Christian College women volleyballers will be without a starting senior when they enter the Sul Ross tournament this weekend.

Diane Fogarty fell in Tuesday night's action, sustaining a slight shoulder separation, and LCC officials reported Wednesday that she will be out of action for at least two weeks.

LCC, with a 2-4 record, will play five matches in the round-robin. Sul Ross tournament. The Lady Chaps will play West Texas State at 9 p.m. Friday, then on Saturday will face Eastern New Mexico at 10:30 a.m., the hostess Sul Ross team at 1:30 p.m., Texas A&I at 4:30 and McMurry at 7:30 p.m.

LCC has beaten ENMU and lost to WT and Sul Ross already this season.

Rosson Assumes Tourney Lead

Ronnie Rosson fired a two-under-par 70 during the first round of the West Texas Pro Golfers Association's to grab the first-round lead of the three-day tournament.

Trailing Rosson at 72 is Hillcrest Country Club pro Richard Whittenburg.

In at 73 are Billy Noolen, Bill Cruise and Randy Hodges.

In the best-play partnership play, Plains and West Texas, enters its second round of play today.

Whittenburg teamed up with Dick Clark to fire a four-under par 68 during Wednesday's round. Back at 69, just one stroke off the pace, are the teams of Mike Horton-Gidd Faircloth and Bill Cruise-Danny Snyder.

The tournament is being played at Lubbock Country Club.

Landry Concerned With Browns

IRVING (AP) — Never mind that the Dallas Cowboys have been of Super Bowl quality for several recent seasons while the Cleveland Browns have been struggling to achieve respectability.

Both teams are undefeated after three games in the National Football League season, and the longtime coach of the Cowboys is worried.

"The Browns have been playing very well, just about the way we've been doing," he said from the Cowboys training camp. "We both have been winning close games, so I would think that we are pretty evenly matched and should have a great game."

The Cowboys will venture into cavernous Cleveland Municipal Stadium on Monday night before a sell-out crowd for a nationally televised battle with the Browns.

Landry, the National Football League's winningest coach the last 13 years, said he is concerned about the Browns' offense, especially the running of Greg Pruitt and the passing of quarterback Brian Sipe.

"You always have to be concerned about defending a fellow like Pruitt, and Sipe is throwing the ball very well, hitting on a lot of touchdown passes."

"I'd have to say the Browns are as good as any of the three teams we've played. I'd rate them up there with Chicago, mainly because Pruitt and Walter Payton are very similar."

The Cowboys defeated the Bears 24-20 on Sunday. They have also defeated San Francisco by a 21-13 score and St. Louis, 22-21.

But despite the unbeaten mark, Landry says the Cowboys are not yet as good a team as they were last season. He says injuries are to blame for what he feels is a slow start.

"But I think we can become a good football team as the season goes on because we have some good young rookies. If they continue to improve, we could be just as good by playoff time — if we're in the playoffs at that time."

Safety Charlie Waters, an All-Pro performer, is out for the season with a knee injury, and three running backs, including star Tony Dorsett, have been injured less seriously.

The Cowboys are also trying to manage despite the retirement of two All-Pro defensive linemen, end Ed (Too Tall) Jones and tackle Jethro Pugh.

Napa Golf Meet Opens

NAPA, Calif. (AP) — A professional golfing career that will be watched closely, that of 1978 U.S. Amateur golf champion John Cook, began today in Napa's $300,000 PGA tour event.

Eight years ago, on the same Silverado Country Club courses, Tom Watson joined the tour.

"I hope I can do about half as well," said Cook, 21, generally considered the nation's top amateur golfer before making the decision to turn pro.

He led Ohio State to the NCAA championship this year, made the cut in the U.S. Open and almost repeated as U.S. Amateur champ, losing to Mark O'Meara of California in the finals.

Cook received a sponsor's invitation to the Napa tournament and will attempt to earn his official tour card later this year in the Professional Golfers Association Tour Qualifying School.

John Fought, who won the 1977 U.S. Amateur title, also is playing here, fresh from his first tour victory at the Buick Open.

"John didn't get his tour card until his third try. It's a lot tougher than most people think," said Cook, who will compete against about 600 other golfers at the qualifying school.

Watson won the Napa tournament last year but it will be at home in Kansas City this week with his wife and their week-old first child.

"Tom came here in 1971 directly from the PGA school, had to go through the Monday qualifying to get into the tournament and then won himself a nice check," recalled Vern Peak, the Napa tournament director.

Watson, who decided over the weekend not to defend the Napa title, tied for 28th in 1971 and won $1,065. He's won $1,648,000 on the tour since then, including a record $447,000 this year.

Five players in the top 10 on the tour's 1979 money-winning list, including No. 3 man Ben Crenshaw with $216,000, are in the Napa tournament.

Network's Ratings To Get Boost From Olympics

By FRED ROTHENBERG
Associated Press Sports Writer

NBC paid $87 million for the 1980 Summer Olympics in Moscow, and indications are that the winning bid for the rights to the 1984 Games will be twice that figure.

Preliminary proposals for the Los Angeles Olympics were made by the three networks last week. Each now must play the waiting game with the same kind of anticipation and excitement normally reserved for the Emmy Awards.

And with good reason. "To Americans, the Olympics are more than a sports event," was one conclusion of a commissioned study of public attitudes towards the Olympics. Another conclusion is that television views the Summer Games as the greatest thing since Milton Berle.

Every four years, for two weeks, the center of the world is wherever the Olympic flag is planted. And the American TV network that can point its cameras in that direction has a publicity, prestige and public relations bonanza that is unparalleled.

The lasting impact of a network broadcasting the Olympics is shown by the fact that 40 percent recall which network broadcast the 1976 Summer Games (ABC) but only 28 percent recall where the Games were held (Montreal).

That was another finding of the Olympic research commissioned by NBC and the U.S. Olympic Committee. The habit of watching one network for two whole weeks and the opportunity to bombard a riveted audience with promotional announcements for its fall schedule help explain why ABC became No. 1 in the ratings in 1976. It also allows NBC president Fred Silverman to predict that No. 3 NBC will become the top-rated network by Christmas of 1980.

Sports, except for the Super Bowl, World Series and ABC's successful "Monday Night Football", do not reach the mass audiences that stimulate advertisers to turn their pockets inside out for network air time. And the Olympics is the biggest exception of them all.

Despite a generally low interest in sports, women are as interested as men in the Olympics," said David Sawyer, whose firm, D.H. Sawyer and Associates, interviewed 999 subjects on their attitudes toward the Moscow Games.

The ironic thing is that the folks at NBC didn't know that women were that gung-ho for the Olympics when they made their winning bid in 1977. But you can be sure all three networks know now. Imagine their glee when they realized they could sell expensive commercial time to manufacturers of plenty hose and laundry detergent, as well as premium beer and fancy cars.

The high level of interest expressed by women in the Olympics affords NBC the opportunity to capture an audience not normally available to a sports program," Sawyer's study concluded.

Which becomes more important because NBC will be pre-empting some operas and game shows during weekday afternoons as part of its 172 hours of coverage next July. For 1984, expectations are that the covering network will air more than 225 hours of the LA Olympics.

Sawyer emphasized that most Americans surveyed were fixated on the Olympics because of the important values, like sportsmanship and brotherhood, the Games supposedly teach — not the competition itself. "These feelings are strongly felt," said Sawyer. "It's very emotional and moving stuff."

According to the survey, 81 percent of the respondents want the Olympics to teach American youth the value of sportsmanship, 72 percent want the Games to increase pride in their country, and 63 percent want the Olympics to increase interest in amateur sports.

The survey ranked from 1 to 10 the important aspects of the Olympics for them, and the results were surprising. Most important was to take pride in the U.S. athletes who participate in the Olympics regardless of how many medals they win. Next was for American children to take pride in U.S. athletes whether they win or lose.

Ninth in importance was for the U.S. to win more medals than any other nation and last was for the U.S. to beat the Russians to demonstrate to the world that our way of life is better than theirs. Ironically, the people most concerned with beating the Russians were the 241 respondents making less than $10,000.

"I was surprised by the lack of chauvinism," said Sawyer. "Americans like the Olympics for the values it represents. This has very little to do with flag-waving. People see it as promoting values they hold important. They see it hooked up with the American dream."

And for television, the American dream is to channel all this interest onto their channel.

Raiders' JV Opens Play At New Mexico

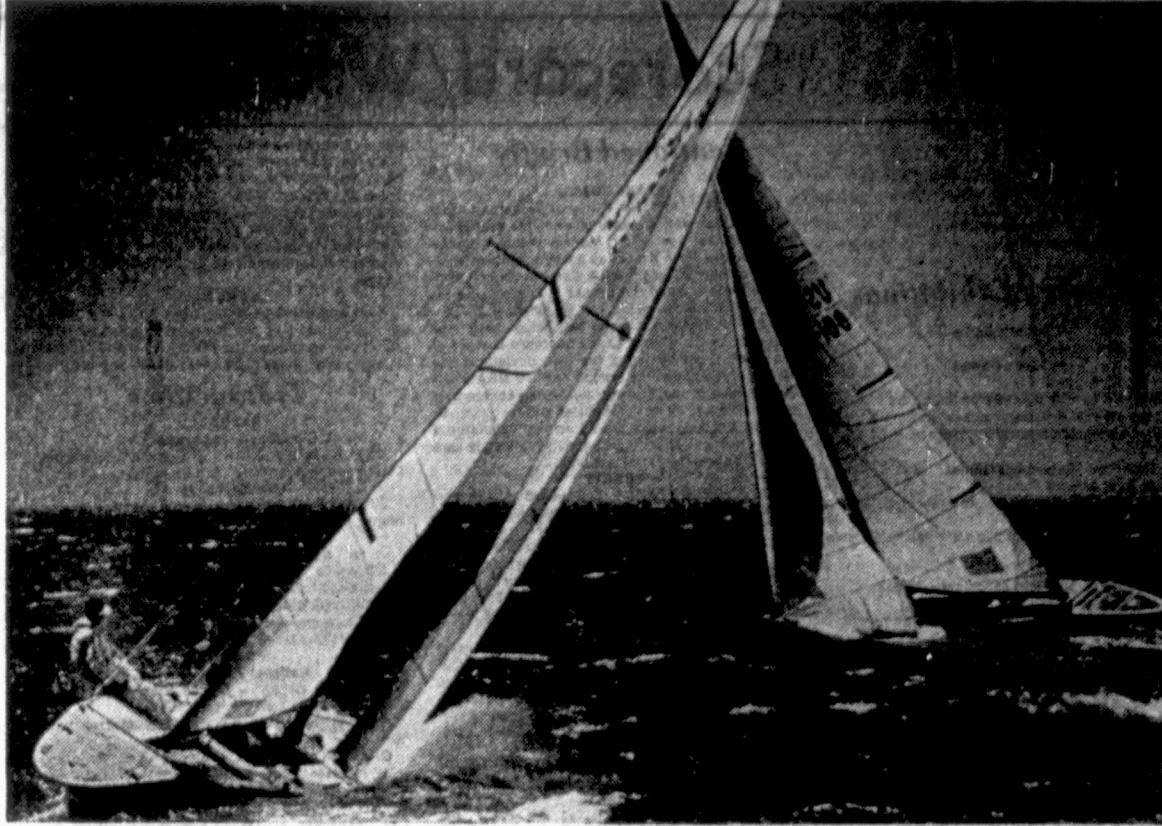

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (Special) — The Texas Tech junior varsity football team begins its three-game 1979 season here tonight against the University of New Mexico junior varsity.

The contest is scheduled to begin at 8:30 p.m. CDT at University Stadium.

Picador head coach Jerry Bomar has made several changes in the starting lineup announced Monday afternoon by Tech coaches.

Senior scout squadman James Person will start at quick tackle instead of strong tackle, replacing freshman Herb Pearce. Pearce moves to the starting center position in place of David Joeckel. Freshman Lynn Duren will take Person's spot at strong tackle.

The remainder of the offensive unit will not change for the Picadors. Bomar also made one defensive change for the Tech JV. Greg Chalin will start at one inside linebacker post instead of David Smith.

THE DEFENDERS — The six-meter St. Francis VII, at right, crosses tacks with the Ranger, left, skipped by Atlanta Braves owner Ted Turner, during the weather leg of their elimination race for defense of the Australia-America Cup in San Francisco Bay. McEnroe Takes Match Despite Fatigue, Smog

LOS ANGELES (AP) — John McEnroe has a right to be tired, since he's recently kept busy by winning the U.S. Open and a Davis Cup round victory against Argentina. But he still felt good enough to rally to a 6-2, 1-6, 6-1 victory over lightly regarded Ferdy Taygan in the $175,000 Jack Kramer Open tennis tournament. McEnroe, explaining the mysterious lapse in the second set, said after the second-round match Wednesday night that he was feeling a little tired.

And, he added, "Maybe it's the smog. I'm glad we're playing indoors this week."

It has been difficult to escape the current smog and heat siege in Los Angeles, with yellowish skies and 100-plus temperatures.

Tarleton Linebacker Honored By TIAA

Austin College quarterback Larry Shillings and Tarleton State's strong-side linebacker Bobby Rodriguez have been named respective offensive and defensive players of the week in the Texas Intercollegiate Athletic Association.

Lubbock Christian College will get to learn this week about the abilities of Rodriguez.

Rodriguez, a 5-10, 185-pounder from Fort Worth, came up with 15 tackles, two fumble recoveries and a blocked pass as the TSU Texans overcame Sul Ross 15-8 in Stephenville last Saturday in a key TIAA contest. This week, Rodriguez and the Texans will play LCC in a game at Coronado High Stadium beginning at 2 p.m.

Shillings, a 5-11, 175-pounder from Bryan, hit 10 of 17 passes for 148 yards and two touchdowns in leading Austin College to a 22-2 verdict over Trinity. His 58.8 percent passing attack included a 48-yard scoring bomb to Rory Dukes as the Kangaroos ran their TIAA-leading record to 2-0.

In addition to the leaders, players nominated for weekly honors were Sul Ross kicker Steve McLaren (two field goals), Sul Ross defender David Sanchez, LCC halfback Marvin Wiley, Tarleton's quarterback Greg Edwards and defender Tony Tuck, and Austin College defensive ace Kevin Woodrow.

Wiley, who was honored as LCC's athlete of the week, rushed for 102 yards and three touchdowns in leading the Chaparrals to a 47-0 rout of Regio-Montana last Saturday.

Woodrow had eight tackles, five assists and a quarterback sack against Trinity. Edwards hit on four of five passes for 65 yards and punted for a 37.7-yard average, and teammate Tuck was in on 17 tackles.

Wiley's rushing effort lifted the Crosbyton sophomore into fifth spot in the conference in rushing. The leader is Sul Ross' Willie Rodriguez, who has picked up 175 yards in two games, an 87.5-yard average.

Henry Mills, a 195-pound sophomore at Tarleton, is third-leading rusher in the league and will bring a 59-yard average into the game against LCC Saturday. Wiley's average is 45.7 yards in three games.

The conference's total-offense leader is Brett Lang of McMurry, whose 482 yards passing and 20 yards ffoot give him a per-game average of 147.3 yards per game.

Trailing Lang in total offense is Trinity quarterback Karl Meisenbaur, who is averaging 166.5 yards per game.

Meisenbaur leads the league in passing, however, with a 194.5-yard average. LCC's alternate quarterback Curtis Dean is fifth, averaging 75 yards per game.

Ray DeSpain of Sul Ross, with 10 catches, is the top receiver. Joe Green of LCC is tied for second, with nine catches and his 20.4-yard, per-catch average is second best behind McMurry's Keith Gipson's 22.9.

Robert Pittard of McMurry is top man in punting, carrying a 43.1-yard norm after three games.

The win over Austin College moved it in front in the conference race at 2-0, although McMurry is 1-0, and Saturday afternoon at Sherman, the two unbeaten teams collide. Austin College is currently ranked 14th in the nation in NIAA Div. II.

McMurry holds a win over Trinity in conference and is 2-1 for the year, the victory over LCC not counting in the conference race.

Defending TIAA champion Tarleton started the season as the fourth-ranked NIAA Div. II team in the nation, but the Texans have been unable to generate much offense with regular quarterback Dan Smalley sidelined with a hamstring muscle pull. Without him, the Texans have generated but 28 points. However, the Texans are still ranked 17th in the nation.

But Smalley is expected back for the LCC contest.

Last week's results — Austin College 22, Trinity 2, LCC 47, Regio-Montana 0, Panhandle State 18, McMurry 3, Tarleton 15, Sul Ross 8. Saturday's schedule — Trinity at Sul Ross, McMurry at Austin College, Tarleton at LCC.

Mentioned Briefly

BASKETBALL
NEW YORK (AP) — A National Basketball Association consolation award given to the Seattle SuperSonics last year after Marvin Webster was voted by a federal judge, NBA Commissioner Larry O'Brien had ordered the Knicks to compensate Seattle with center-forward Lonnie Shelton, a first-round 1977 draft choice and $450,000 in cash. But New York said it would not accept the deal. The Knicks said they would appeal the Carter's ruling.

BASEBALL
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Top-seeded John McEnroe defeated unseeded Fergal Taygan 6-2, 1-6, 6-1 and second-seeded Roscoe Tanner overcame Tom Guikleen 3-6, 4-6, 6-1 in second-round play in the $175,000 Jack Kramer Open tennis tournament. In other matches, Bruce Manson overcame fourth-seeded Jose Luis Clerc of Argentina 6-4, 6-3 and Tom Gorman surprised sixth-seeded Wilton Fife 6-2, 1-6, 6-4.

TENNIS
PALERMO, Sicily (AP) — Buster Brimicom of Britain defeated Ramiro Benavides 6-1, 6-2 on the third day of the $75,000 Tennis Championships of Sicily. In another match, Corrado Barazzutti of Italy defeated Otto Parun of New Zealand, 6-1, 6-4.

BASEBALL
BALTIMORE (AP) — A lobbying group for the handicapped will seek a restraining order today to prevent further use of Memorial Stadium until improvements to aid the disabled are made. The group's attorney said the organization, Disabled in Action, plans to file suit in U.S. District Court today — just two weeks before the Baltimore Orioles are expected to open the American League playoffs here. Attorney Richard Bolan said the city of Baltimore, the Orioles, Mayor William Donald Schaefer and the city council will be named as defendants in the suit. The group is angry with "inadequate" facilities for the disabled at the stadium, which is also used by the Baltimore Colts of the National Football League.

GENERAL
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Gene Kelly, the "voice of the Phillies" as the National League baseball club's play-by-play announcer during the 1950s, died Tuesday after a long illness. He was 60 years old.

Discs Allow Deaf To Feel Music

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Charles Lowe took a firm grip on a bookcase. He apparently had decided not to have any part of a disc-shaped device being demonstrated for 48 hearing-impaired youngsters.

Then someone put one of the discs on the 12-year-old boy's chest. His face twisted up, his body shivered and he started laughing out loud.

He was hearing music. To be more exact, he was feeling it.

When someone puts his hands over his ears and the discs, known as audio transducers, are placed on his elbows or back or chest, Charles' entire body becomes a speaker.

"It makes your body play the music," said David Thompson of Atlanta, who demonstrated the device this week at the Southside Estates Elementary School Center of the Hearing Impaired.

When two of the devices were placed against a bookcase where Chris Cantrell was sitting, his head bobbed up and down to the rhythm and his face broke into a grin.

Some of the deaf or nearly deaf youngsters began disco dancing on a table relaying the music. When the music stopped, they stopped.

Audio transducers capable of turning most surfaces into speakers have been around more than 10 years. They have been used to make windows "talk" and produce muted background music.

"The sound and quality are different from those of regular speakers," Thompson said.

Sold in similar form as Hydro-Sonic Hull Tenders, the devices are supposed to keep ships free of barnacles, he said.

Only recently did someone discover the discs may help the deaf feel music and maybe even learn to speak.

Their use as a teaching tool for the deaf hasn't been proven, but Thompson hopes enough people take an interest to initiate serious research.

Therapist Marcia Huggins at the hearing-impaired school said the effect on the children there was tremendous.

"I'm really excited about it," she said. "Anything that makes the kids aware of music is good, but I want to see what it can do with speech sounds."

Cooperative Arrangements Increasing Among U.S. Colleges

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
United Press International Writer
The idea's as old as the United States
America: sharing.

It's the big movement in higher education these days as colleges and universities lean into the next decade — full of shifting enrollment patterns, higher costs and growing public resistance to new buildings and fatter budgets.

About one-fourth of the nation's colleges are involved in cooperative arrangements — and insiders say the movement is growing about 10 percent a year.

A report from the American Association of State Colleges and Universities in cooperation with the Council for the Advancement of Small Colleges explains:

"The desire for cooperation is prompted in part by problems arising from enrollments and financing, but also by a genuine desire to avoid excessive government intervention by working together to anticipate and implement needed change."

The report on 170 groupings of colleges and universities involving 775 individual institutions makes these points:

—Institutions studied reported 100 distinct cooperative activities that have been grouped as administrative, curricular, faculty and staff, facilities, community affairs and special interest.

—The 10 most frequently reported cooperative activities are cross-registration, coordinated student advisement, faculty exchange, visiting scholars, shared classroom facilities, joint majors and degrees, library use, faculty development, community events and loaned administrators.

Three types of private-public cooperative groupings exist. To wit:

—Type A: Informal partnership of two or three institutions in close geographical proximity. Right now, there are 66 such partnerships.

—Type B: This largest and fastest growing type is the regional urban cluster of institutions. There are 73 such clusters on the American scene.

—Type C: In this category institutions are linked by special purpose such as international interests or a unique research facility. There are 32 groups in this classification.

Examples of each type:

1. Quachita Baptist College and Henderson State College are located almost across the street from each other in Arkadelphia, Ark., a small town 75 miles southwest of Little Rock. They're into a Type A arrangement.

They are similar in size, around 3,000 students each. Students cross-register; courses are cross-listed. Many cultural events are joint. There is rivalry in sports but a mutual boosters association. Another Type A arrangement: In North Carolina's mountains a partnership flourishes between Warren Wilson College and Appalachian State University — a two-hour drive apart.

They exchange students, faculty, language study, workshops, a film festival and an artists and lecture series.

2. The Five Colleges Inc. are an example of Type B. This is the highly successful venture of five Massachusetts colleges — all in close proximity to each other and with complementary campus features. The cluster, formed since 1965, includes Amherst, Smith, U. Mass., U. Mass., Hampshire, and the Amherst campus of the University of Massachusetts.

It is just a 25-minute bus ride from one end of the five-school campus to the other. Cross registration is in the thousands. Faculty exchange and visiting artists are frequent. Meal service, when necessary, can be obtained without added charge on another campus. The inter-campus buses carried 300,000 passengers last year.

3. The Association for Graduate Education and Research for North Texas (TAGER) is an example of Type C.

This association of seven institutions on 10 campuses and several major corporations in the Dallas-Fort Worth area provides academic programs and a television network serving students.

The north Texas institutions include Austin College, Baylor College, Dallas Baptist College, Southern Methodist University, Texas Christian University, Texas Wesleyan College and three campuses of the University of Texas.

General Dynamics, Texas Instruments, and Xerox are among the industrial receiving locations.

KIDS-ONLY CLUB

Trick Involves Friend's Help

By SHARI LEWIS

Here's a trick involving Stolen Treasure.

A small object is placed under a handkerchief and, to avoid any cheating on the part of the sneaky magician, everyone reaches under the cloth to feel the object. They all agree it is still solid and present right up to the last moment. You snap your fingers, shake out the handkerchief, and the item has totally vanished!

Here's why: You have a little help. One of the people who obligingly reaches under the handkerchief is your equally sneaky stick-fingered secret confederate.

Here's how: Borrow a handkerchief and any very small object. Hold the object in your right fingers hand to each of a number of persons so they each can react under and feel the object resting safely in your fingers. Make sure your confederate is the last to reach in.

When your confederate removes the object, make sure your right fingers stay in the same position so the handkerchief will maintain the same shape.

Now snap your left fingers, take a corner of the hanky in your left hand, shake out the empty cloth and return it to its owner. As for the small object that has disappeared — promise to return it before the day is up, and do so!

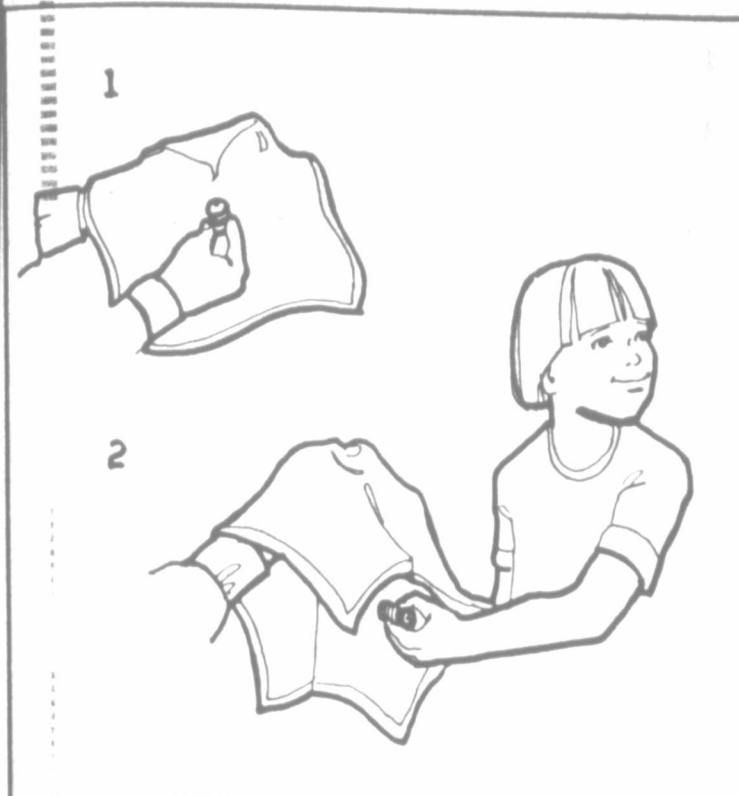

YESTERDAY'S BRAIN TWISTER: If there are 10 fingers on two hands, how many fingers will there be on 10 hands?

ANSWER: Most folks automatically say "10 times 10" (which equals 100). The answer is 50 fingers.

TODAY'S BRAIN TWISTER: If you met your brother-in-law's wife's grandmother's husband, what relationship would he be to you? (Look for the answer in tomorrow's Kids-Only Club column.)

Stock Prices Mixed; Dow Up 1.1

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices were mixed today as more banks raised their prime lending rate and the dollar sank to its lowest value of the year against major European currencies.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks rose 1.1 to 877.56 in the first two hours of trading, but losers outnumbered gainers by a 3-2 margin in New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The dollar slipped below 1.80 West German marks for the first time in 11 months and reached its lowest value of the year against the Swiss franc. Gold resumed its upward push, rising to $380 an ounce in afternoon London trading.

The dollar slipped below 1.80 West German marks for the first time in 11 months and reached its lowest value of the year against the Swiss franc. Gold resumed its upward push, rising to $380 an ounce in afternoon London trading.

Henry Wallich, one of the Federal Reserve members who voted to boost the discount rate by 11 percent, said in a New York speech that rates may not yet be high enough to fight inflation.

Chase Manhattan Bank and Morgan Guaranty Trust joined in the latest prime rate boost, to 13 1/2 percent.

American Telephone & Telegraph led the NYSE active list and was down 3/4 at 55 after the Federal Communications Commission proposed an overhaul of AT&T's private line charges.

Chrysler was unchanged at 7 1/4 after Lee Iacocca was named chairman and chief executive officer of the troubled automaker.

McDonnell Douglas, facing checks of its DC-9 aircraft, managed a gain of 1/2 to 26.

Trans World Corp. rose 1/4 to 26 1/2 despite another denial that its airline subsidiary was for sale.

Texas International Airlines says it wants to buy the airline.

The NYSE's composite common stock average rose .10 to 61.86. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index rose 1.71 to 225.58.

Big Board volume came to 16.22 billion shares in the first two hours of trading, up from 15.34 billion at the same point in the previous session.

Supporters Rally For Teachers

By The Associated Press

Parents rallied in Indianapolis and singing teachers gathered in San Francisco to support strikers, but there was little progress in resolving walkouts by more than 30,000 teachers nationwide.

San Francisco officials hoped to open the city's 72 elementary schools today for pupils in kindergarten through grade five, but the union vowed Wednesday to keep them closed with pickets.

School Superintendent Robert F. Allitto said $90-a-day substitutes would fill in for teachers, who have been on strike for nine days in a dispute over rehiring 1,200 teachers laid off last year.

In Michigan, the hotbed of school labor unrest this year with more than 16,000 teachers on the picket lines, tentative settlements were reached Wednesday in three districts but two more strikes began.

Altogether some 655,000 pupils are having their fall school routine disrupted by teacher strikes in 11 states.

About 300 parents staged a demonstration Wednesday night at the City-County Building to show support for a 17-day walkout by more than 1,000 teachers in Indianapolis.

Contract talks continued behind closed doors under orders of Circuit Court Judge Frank P. Huse, who on Wednesday suspended $25 fines levied against 28 strikers for violating an anti-picketing order.

Indiana Education Association spokesman Stanley I. Irwin said the strike "obviously is going to continue to grow" with immediate removal of the threat of fines. "Teachers have a basic commitment to the strike, but a long strike has great financial impact," he said.

About 400 striking San Francisco teachers and classroom aides, waving picket signs and singing, rallied outside the school district headquarters Wednesday. Meanwhile, a marathon negotiating session called by Mayor Dianne Feinstein continued in an effort to end the strike by 3,000 teachers.

Louisiana Gov. Edwin Edwards met with leaders of a parent's organization Wednesday, but refused to pledge state money for pay raises to end a month-long strike by 2,000 teachers in Jefferson Parish in suburban New Orleans. Only about half of the system's 64,000 pupils have been showing up for classes.

Talks between 12,000 striking Detroit teachers and the school board were at an impasse, but tentative settlements were reported in Saginaw, Mich., where 19,000 students have been out of class, and in the Montague and White Pigeon districts. However, more than 150 teachers and other school employees struck Wednesday in the Baldwin and Van Buren Intermediate districts.

Elsewhere, teacher strikes continued in public schools in Spokane, Wash., and in scattered districts in Alabama, Illinois, New Jersey, New York, Ohio and Pennsylvania.

Meanwhile, striking teachers at the University of Rhode Island reached tentative settlement early today with the Board of Regents, according to a spokesman for Gov. J. Joseph Garrahy.

Lubbock Girl Returns Home

A 16-year-old Lubbock girl who has been reported missing for two months, walked into the Lubbock Police Department Wednesday night apparently unharmed.

Tambra Donnette Wilhelm walked into the police department about 9:30 p.m. carrying a purse containing six cents, a white canvas bag and a faded orange, yellow and green pillow case with three pairs of jeans stuffed inside.

She told juvenile officers that she left Lubbock about 2:30 p.m. Aug. 6 in her father's 1977 yellow Camaro and ended up three days later in Walla Walla, Wash. After running out of money, she decided to hitchhike back to Lubbock, she said.

"I have no money and I'm hungry because I haven't eaten in three or four days," she told police officers. She was taken into custody and placed in the county jail until being released to county juvenile authorities today.

Poverty-Stricken Mexico Floating On Sea Of Oil

By ROBERT LOCKE
MEXICO CITY (AP) — Presidents, bankers and businessmen come here now from around the world — an oil-hungry parade paying its respects to this poverty-stricken country that floats on an ocean of crude.

"They've seen a huge number of heads of state (including President Carter of the United States and President Valery Giscard d'Estaing of France) in the last two years," said an American energy expert in Mexico City.

"The Mexicans look at that as their due. They feel the world is finally paying them homage for their oil," said the American who, like most sources interviewed in Mexico, insisted on anonymity. "They welcome all the attention, but I think they're a little afraid of it, too."

"This oil is like Mexico and its people: it is very complicated," said Fulvio Zama, an official of Pemex, the government's giant oil monopoly.

The parade reflects new realities in a world that's running short of energy — for both those who need oil court those who have it. Mexico claims the world's sixth largest proven reserves.

Most experts agree that huge pools of oil and gas lie beneath the Mexican landscape and offshore waters — that Mexico has moved into the petroleum big leagues.

The size of the oil cache and the amount that will enter the chaotic world market are subject to some debate.

But one fact seems clear — Mexican oil is not likely to solve American shortages in the foreseeable future.

"The United States should not plan for Mexico to produce very high exports during the 1980s and it is extremely unlikely that any U.S. concessions or pressures could get Mexico to produce high exports," said David Ronfeldt, a Mexico specialist at the Rand Corp. think tank near Los Angeles.

President Jose Lopez Portillo has said repeatedly that an oil bonanza will not be allowed to threaten an economy that's just recovering from turmoil and runaway inflation. The oil, he said, will be developed only as rapidly as Mexico can use the revenue, which, at current export prices of $22.60 a barrel, could be enormous.

"If...we open the valves to export oil to the limit of demand in a world that is avid for it, we will have nothing to do with the money; we will inflate our economy by the worst of all ways: congestion," the president told reporters last January.

"It is," said a senior member of the president's staff, "just like a person who has too much to eat. If he eats everything in sight, he will get sick with indigestion."

Mexico's oil production reached 1.6 million barrels a day in July and Lopez Portillo says he expects to reach his goal of 2.25 million barrels a day late next year. Of that total, about half will be available for export. And he says his goal is also the limit for the remainder of his six-year term, which ends in November 1982.

The United States, which bought about 80 percent of the 365,000 barrels exported daily last year, can expect a share of Mexico's oil. But Mexico seems committed to expanding its list of customers — which already includes France, Japan, Canada, Israel and others — and decreasing its dependence on the United States. America imports almost half the 16.5 million barrels of oil it uses each day.

"The United States is clearly one of our logical customers," Lopez Portillo told reporters a few months ago. "(But) it will not be the only country to which we will sell... We shall sell to those who wish to buy from us under the most favorable conditions and best offers for Mexico."

In a nation that feels strongly that it has been ignored and ridiculed as a poor relation by its powerful neighbor, petroleum is wrapped tightly in pride and politics.

"Whenever petroleum becomes a foreign policy issue," Ronfeldt said, "this very traditional nationalism is aroused in Mexico."

That nationalism seems also reflected in Mexico's refusal to join the Arab-dominated Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, although Mexican oil prices are kept at OPEC levels.

"We want to have our own policies and develop our own resources. We do not want our hands tied by other interests," said Pemex's Zama.

And of proposals for a common market of North America, Lopez Portillo and his spokesmen are noncommittal. The president has said energy is a worldwide problem that requires global solutions. His office said he will expand that view in a speech to the United Nations this September.

Meanwhile, Pemex, which controls the industry from oil well to gas station, continues a massive exploration program.

Pemex has been steadily boosting estimates of reserves, which stood at six billion barrels when the president took office in December 1976.

The agency lists its energy reserves — including natural gas — in measurements defined by how much energy is produced by a barrel of oil. By last December, it was listing proven reserves of 40 billion barrels. That total includes, the agency said, about 26 billion barrels of oil and 59 trillion cubic feet of natural gas.

The same report cites probable reserves of another 44.6 billion barrels — perhaps 29 billion barrels of oil — and potential reserves of a mind-boggling 200 billion barrels.

The United States has proven oil reserves of about 29.5 billion barrels. And Saudi Arabia, the giant of the oil world, has some 160 billion barrels.

The potential claimed by Mexico has sparked media comparisons with Saudi Arabia and talk of a new king of the oil mountain.

But Pemex engineers and American experts caution that "potential" means only that the geology is favorable. As an American economist put it: "Those numbers don't mean much until you actually put a hole in the ground" to see what's down there.

That process is just beginning in most of Mexico. "The more probable locations have already been tapped," Zama said. "In this business, the easy always comes first."

Richard Nehring, a Rand Corp. energy specialist who has studied the Mexican claims, said the estimates of proven, recoverable reserves probably represent some "premature optimism. It's not that it's wrong, but it may take a while to really prove it."

But he said he's comfortable with the combined total of proven and probable reserves, although "that may not be fully developed by 1985 and it will require substantial secondary recovery (efforts)."

The rich new finds are in the steamy jungles of southeast Mexico and offshore in Campeche Bay, an arm of the Gulf of Mexico where a runaway well has created the world's worst oil spill.

The fields, probably among the richest in the world, could put Mexico on the brink of a new era.

But Jorge Bustamante, a political scientist at Mexico City's prestigious College of Mexico, cited a "basic skepticism about the oil."

"It's like Acapulco. We know we own Acapulco and we are ready to defend it with our lives. Yet it does not touch our lives."

"We have been raised with the idea that we own oil. But at the same time, oil has not touched our lives."

Petroleum was discovered in Mexico in 1901. By 1921 Mexico was the world's second largest producer of oil — oil that was owned, produced and exported by American companies.

Production dropped rapidly after that, however, and Mexican oil was nationalized in 1938.

Now it is Mexico's oil and Mexico plans to develop it at its own pace and with its own technology. The Mexican Petroleum Institute is training engineers and technicians, financing postgraduate education abroad and developing technology.

In the oil boom towns of Villa Hermosa and Ciudad del Carmen, hotels and bars are full of Texas draws. Especially for the difficult offshore wells, Pemex has bought the experience of the good of boys of the oil business — veterans who have sunk wells in Texas, Oklahoma, Alaska and Saudi Arabia. But they are surrounded by Mexican workers who are learning the ropes.
