

City Wins Battle Over Sign Rules

By SYLVIA TEAGUE

Lubbock Poster Company's four-year legal battle against City of Lubbock sign regulations ended today when the U.S. Supreme Court refused to hear the company's appeal.

However, the primary issue in the case — that of whether the sign company should be paid for signs which must be removed under city regulations — may not be settled yet, Lubbock Poster attorney Don Hunt said.

The billboard company filed suit against the city shortly after the new sign regulations were enacted in July 1975. The suit challenged the city's right to require existing signs to be brought into compliance with the law by Jan. 1, 1982, or be removed with no compensation to the company.

Attorneys for Lubbock Poster argued the regulations deprived the company of due process, denied freedom of speech to commercial advertisers and amounted to seizure of company property without just compensation.

A 7th Court of Civil Appeals opinion, affirmed by the Texas Supreme Court on Jan. 17, upheld the city's right to establish a "reasonable" amortization period during which sign owners would recoup their original investments.

The appeal of that decision to the U.S. Supreme Court contended 1978 amendments to the U.S. Highway Beautification Act requires payment for signs on federal highways which must be removed, so the city should be compelled to pay for signs which must be removed under its regulations.

While acknowledging the Supreme Court decision not to hear the appeal makes the Civil Appeals Court ruling final, Hunt said the question of payment for the illegal signs remains open.

Hunt said he believes someone will be compelled to pay for the signs which must be removed by 1982, or the state of Texas may lose 10 percent of its federal highway funds under the Highway Beautification Act amendments.

"We still believe some compensation must be paid for those signs on interstate highways and primary highways," Hunt said.

Because the Supreme Court gave no reason for refusing to hear the appeal, Hunt said the justices could have believed the issue of the highway act amend "was not ripe" or felt "this was not the case" to rule on the amendments.

Attorneys for the city had asked the court to rule on the amendments after the amortization period ends, if it ruled at all, Hunt said, and the justices may have agreed with that suggestion.

Lubbock Poster has estimated it owns 285 billboards, 217 of which cannot be brought into compliance with city sign regulations. Those signs have a total fair market value of $710,000, the sign company has estimated, and would cost $132,000 to remove.

City officials welcomed the Supreme Court decision, saying it would strengthen enforcement of the sign regulations.

"I'm very pleased by the decision and feel the ordinance prepared by the legal department was constitutional and this certainly proves that it is," City Manager Larry Cunningham said.

"I believe this will add strength to our present enforcement of the ordinance and improve the image of our community," he added.

There already has been a "tremendous improvement" in the city's appearance since the sign ordinance was enacted.

President Polishes Report On Troops

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter cleared his schedule today to work on tonight's speech dealing with a brigade of Soviet troops in Cuba, a controversy that Cuban President Fidel Castro contends Carter invented to bolster his own political image.

So he would have more time to devote to his speech, Carter postponed until Tuesday a scheduled afternoon meeting with President William R. Tolbert, Jr. of Liberia.

Carter worked Sunday on the speech, apparently with his wife, as they wrapped up a weekend at Camp David, Md. The administration, meanwhile, maintained its virtual silence on the issue.

Carter returned this morning to the White House, where he will make the nationally broadcast speech at 8 p.m. CDT. He made the 65-mile trip from Camp David by limousine instead of helicopter because of rainy weather.

He scheduled the address after negotiations with Soviet officials apparently had broken down, with the Russians refusing to budge on Carter's insistence that they change the "status quo." Those talks resumed unexpectedly Sunday.

The Soviets say the force — which U.S. officials say has 2,000 to 3,000 soldiers, 40 tanks and artillery and armored personnel carriers — has been stationed in Cuba since 1962 with the full knowledge of previous American presidents and is not a combat brigade.

"I challenge Carter to explain to the U.S. people and the world public opinion the truth and to say when" this post was established in Cuba, Castro said Sunday in an interview on CBS' "60 Minutes" program.

Carter said in his Sept. 7 address that the troops likely have been in Cuba "for some time, perhaps for quite a few years." Former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger has said former President Nixon was unaware of the situation.

The brigade's presence recently was revealed by Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, and has become a sticking point in the Senate's consideration of the SALT II arms treaty with the Soviet Union.

Castro charged Carter "set up this comedy" to sabotage the recent summit of non-aligned nations in Cuba and "to overcome the difficulties that Carter is facing for his re-election."

He said he would not set up a meeting with Carter, but would "have no objections" to contact with Carter or other officials if Carter initiated such action.

Economy Moves May Trim EMS

By KIM COBB
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Emergency Medical Services will remain under the umbrella of Health Sciences Center Hospital, but the service may be "scaled down" to an affordable level — which may lengthen response times.

The administrative committee for the Lubbock County Hospital District today voted to reject two bids from private ambulance firms to run EMS. Medical Services Inc. (MSI) of Eugene, Ore., is asking for a subsidy of $180,000 from the district to operate EMS and Lubbock's Aid Ambulance is requesting a minimum of $121,000 to run the service.

Committee members and visiting representatives from the Blue Ribbon Advisory Committee agreed the subsidies asked by both firms are too steep, but that several ideas included in the proposals can be adopted for use even if the hospital district continues to run the operation on its own.

Although specific changes in present EMS service have not been authorized, committee members seemed to agree on at least three changes: raising the price for an emergency run, eliminating one of the existing three substations (which would mean longer average response time) and the possibility of picking up the more lucrative transfer service.

But whether the LCHD decides on these specific proposals, the consensus today appears to be to cut costs by reducing the frills.

"You can have anything you're willing to pay for," Blue Ribbon Committee member Lonnie Hollingsworth said. Board member Don McInturff agreed, adding that EMS currently is losing $30,000 a month.

David Ehler, owner of Aid Ambulance, submitted two proposals for assuming the service. Both proposals were outlined for a year's operation.

The first proposal was geared toward

Food Costs Higher For Consumers

Although consumers are shelling out plenty of cash for groceries now, they will be glad to know that an Avalanche-Journal survey today showed prices for 16 items inched up only slightly this month after last month's record jump of $1.56.

Cash register tapes will show customers paying $20.94 for groceries that last month would have cost them $20.80.

Comparisons at a local store also revealed that sharp increases in bacon and potatoes were offset by a considerable decline in the price of round steak.

While potatoes were up 30 cents, from 89 cents to $1.19 for a 10-pound bag, and a one-pound package of bacon went up from $1.29 to $1.53, round steak is selling for $1.68 a pound, down from $2.19.

Round steak is at its lowest price since October of last year, when it sold for $1.59 a pound.

Also in the meat department, chicken is still a good buy at 53 cents a pound, down 2 cents from last month.

Wiensers came in as another good bargain at $1.95 for a one-pound package of the all-beef variety, down 3 cents from September.

Price Of Gold Climbs To $414 In London

LONDON (UPI) — The price of gold soared through the $400 mark and raced up to $414.75 an ounce in London today for a new all-time high.

After closing at $398 on Friday, gold at first opened lower at $395.75 in London, was fixed at $399.50 in the morning and trading forced the fixed price to $414.75 in the afternoon.

The dollar was slightly stronger from last week's prices, which were the lowest of the year:

"Nervousness still about the dollar pushed gold higher in early trading, with persistent demand coming from "all quarters," a dealer for London bullion brokers Mocatta and Goldsmid said.

Brokers were trading several dollars above the morning fixed price and the trend continued upward through the day amid strong demand.

Gold dropped back slightly from last week's record highs at the start of trading in London and Zurich. In Zurich, gold opened $1.50 an ounce lower at $395 an ounce from $396.50 at Friday's close.

On European money markets, the dollar edged up from last week's dol-drum, when the U.S. currency recorded its lowest rates this year. But the dollar still was weak, dealers said, despite a West German pledge to support it on international money markets and a statement from the West German finance minister that the dollar is undervalued on the markets.

In Frankfurt the dollar opened at 1,7490 marks, slightly above its 11-month low of 1,7425 recorded at close Friday. In Zurich it was 1,5612 Swiss francs from 1,55525, in Paris 4,1175 francs from 4,100, and in Milan 805.55 lire from 802.05.

In London, the pound fell back against the dollar to open at $2.18375 from 2,2025. The dollar also was higher in Brussels and Amsterdam, opening at 29,3250 Belgian francs from 29,2450 and 1,9415 guilders from 1,9310.

The dollar closed in Tokyo at a five-rewell as the pope, dressed in white cassock and a scarlet cloak, blessed, shook hands and embraced scores of well-wishers gathered on the tarmac.

After a final papal benediction and a gesture of embrace from the steps to the Aer Lingus flagship, dubbed "St. Patrick," the green, blue and white Boeing 747 flew off to Boston.

Pope John Paul Brings Peace Mission To U.S.

SHANNON, Ireland (AP) — Pope John Paul II left for the United States today on his pastoral mission for peace and reconciliation, highlighted in Ireland by repeated calls for an end to sectarian strife.

His first stop is Boston on the seven-day visit.

An Aer Lingus Boeing 747 carrying the papal entourage took off from Shannon Airport in the west of Ireland 19 minutes behind schedule at 1:49 p.m. local time, 7:49 a.m. CDT. It is due in Boston in midafternoon.

The pope told the Irish in an airport departure statement: "I thank all the people for the warm and loving reception in which they manifested their keen sense of humanity and their lively faith."

In a final open-air Mass in nearby Limerick, the pontiff urged Roman Catholics to resist growing pressure for the church to liberalize its stand against abortion and divorce.

Only hours before he spoke, terrorists in Northern Ireland refused to heed the pope's call for peace, raked a British army Land Rover with gunfire, forcing it to crash and slightly injuring two troops.

The pope departed from Shannon Airport, west of Limerick across the River Shannon, where he had helicoptered after celebrating Mass in Limer-

Auto Industry Entering New Difficult Period

WASHINGTON (AP) — The world automobile industry is entering one of its most difficult periods and more companies, like Chrysler, will be fighting for their lives, according to a new study.

Decreased oil supplies, demands for more efficient vehicles and saturated markets are forcing auto makers into a new era that offers some of them little hope for survival, researchers from Worldwatch Institute said in a study released this weekend.

The private, non-profit research group concerned with global issues said "Demands for more efficient cars are forcing automakers to spend billions of dollars in designing and producing a new range of vehicles."

"The auto industry, in effect, is having to boost capital expenditures at a time of recession and depressed earnings," the report said.

This, combined with inflation and an uncertain oil future, means "the automobile industry in both industrial and Third World countries is entering perhaps the most difficult period in its history," said authors Lester R. Brown, Christopher Flavin and Colin Norman.

Brown said the top 10 companies control 80 percent of world auto production and the remaining firms — numbered in the dozens — scramble for the rest.

The world fleet has grown to more than 300 million cars — more than one-third of them in the United States — and 30 million new cars are made each year, he added.

Flavin said in an interview that virtually all the auto companies in the world took a beating in 1974-75 because of the first oil crisis and world recession.

"The smaller companies got into the most trouble because a higher unit volume gives more of an economic buffer than a small one," he said.

For American companies, retooling to produce smaller, more efficient cars, and simultaneously trying to meet government pollution and fuel economy regulations, has added additional strains that larger firms can better cope with.

"You need assets to continue research and development projects required for later generation cars," Flavin said. "So if you are General Motors, you can spread out the costs better than Chrysler because of volume sales."

Of the top 10 auto producers worldwide, only No. 7 Chrysler is in serious trouble, Flavin said. Chrysler is asking the government for a $1 billion bailout.

"I think the world auto demand can support the top 10 companies if they are well managed, but many of the others will be in trouble," Flavin said.

Ranked by size, the other major producers are General Motors, Ford, Toyota, Nissan (Datsun), Volkswagen-Audi, Renault, Ford Europe, Peugeot-Citroen and Fiat. The other major U.S. company, American Motors, is only No. 25 in world production.

Since size is a big asset in the auto business, there has been a worldwide trend toward consolidation that is likely to continue, Flavin said.

The biggest markets for cars are the United States, Western Europe and Japan. But there are signs these areas might be nearing sales saturation with little prospects for major market growth, Flavin said.

Horowitz Turns 75

NEW YORK (AP) — Vladimir Horowitz says his doctor told him after a recent medical examination that "everything is perfect, like a man of 45 or 50 years old." Not bad for a concert musician who turned 75 today.

After half a century on concert stages, the pianist told The New York Times on the eve of a new season that "playing does not bother me, but the traveling can be very hard."

"I have fixed it so I avoid all the hard winter weather," he said in an interview in today's editions. "I go to Phoenix in January for a recital and spend two weeks there. A wonderful city."

Horowitz says all his popularity can be a burden — "I go all the time on the streets and people stop me" — but he isn't anti-social. He occasionally has visited New York City's hot night spot, Studio 54.

"I wear ear stoppers because of the noise," he said. "I go to see how the people behave."

Frustrations Collector

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — President Carter's lagging popularity is due to his role as "collector of the people's irritations and frustrations," says Joan Mondale.

"It seems to me that if you get up in the morning and get out of bed on the wrong side then it's the president's fault," she said.

"He is the representative of the entire nation, and the problems we have are exceedingly complex, and require long and sophisticated attempts at answering them," said the wife of Vice President Walter Mondale. "They aren't overnight solutions."

But Mrs. Mondale said Sunday she was confident Carter will win re-nomination and re-election, even if Sen. Edward Kennedy runs.

Mrs. Mondale, nicknamed "Joan of Art" because of her commitment to the arts, was in Shreveport to open an arts festival.

Veterans Rap Actress

AMHERST, Mass. (AP) — Actress Jane Fonda and her husband, Tom Hayden, led a lot of protests against the Vietnam war. But when they appeared at the University of Massachusetts, some 300 veterans came to protest against them.

"She did more than anybody to give the North Vietnamese aid and comfort during the Vietnam War," said Joseph Scerra, a former commander-in-chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Miss Fonda and Hayden were on campus Sunday to address about 4,000 UMass students. The couple canceled a scheduled news conference, said Joel Weissman, spokesman for the group that brings speakers to the campus. But he declined to comment on reports that the news conference was canceled for security reasons.

Veterans lined the corridor leading to the room where the news conference was to be held.

"We were sorry she canceled," said veteran Paul Spera. "We would have liked to tell our stories to the press, too."

For Women Only

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Women here have their own alternative to one of the honored traditions of male bachelor parties.

If they hire Gideon Productions, which provides "Entertainment for Women Only," Mike Winebrenner will jump naked out of a cake. Or he and business partner Ted Gaertner will do a striptease act.

Winebrenner and Gaertner, both 22, formed the association when a female friend of Gaertner's wanted a "modern" party for a woman friend who was leaving town.

"At our first gig, there were about 200 women," said Winebrenner. "We didn't really know what to do."

Neither do some of the guests. "If the guest of honor wasn't a good friend I would have left," said a woman after one recent party.

But the partners, both good dancers, were a success and have been in demand ever since. It is "only an act. We're strictly professionals," Winebrenner said.

"We've learned that, when we throw our clothes off, we must try to keep an eye on them," Winebrenner said. "One night I lost my hat and my underwear."

Floridian Designs More Efficient Air-Conditioned Automobile

COCOA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Engineer Norm Halem says he has invented a better fuel saver — one that could yield gas savings of 9.1 percent in air-conditioned cars. But the world isn't beating a path to his door.

Halem, a former Kennedy Space Center engineer, says the device is a small vacuum switch that shuts off the air conditioner as the car accelerates, saving engine labor and gas.

Several federal government tests back his claims that the device, which sells for less than $15, is not just another gimmick. But it seems too simple and too inexpensive for the driving public, he says.

"The public has been tainted by gas-saving gimmicks through the years and anything that comes along and suggests it might be a gas-saving device is looked on as a gimmick," Halem says.

The government purchased only 21 of the "Passmasters" for its fleet of 61,000 cars, and Sears, Roebuck and Co. has decided to pull the device out of its catalog because "it hasn't been selling." Halem says he's sold 30,000 to 40,000 nationwide.

This is how it works: A piece of tubing is plugged into the intake manifold vacuum line. The lead wire of the device then goes to a point on the electrical wire leading to the air conditioner compressor clutch. When the engine comes under load while accelerating, as on a hill or at a stop light, the switch cuts off the compressor and the engine won't have to work so hard.

The device will only work on cars with an intake manifold. It will not work on some vehicles with diesel engines, Halem said.

Convinced the device could save the government money and gas, Halem took it to the General Services Administration, which controls the federal automobile fleet. The GSA passed it to the Department of Transportation and Environmental Protection Agency for testing.

"The engine vacuum switch to cut off the air conditioner compressor during automobile acceleration does indeed appear promising," said National Highway Traffic Safety Administration associate administrator Rhoads Stephenson. He says it could result in a 9 percent fuel savings in urban driving, reduced pollution levels and slightly increased acceleration capacity.

Stephenson said the government estimates 64 percent of all cars on the road in 1982 will have air conditioning. If they all used the device, he said, 650 million gallons of gasoline could be saved.

Halem would like to sell his device to automobile manufacturers, but says the automakers told him they have no incentive to install it.

He says federal testing procedures simulate the load an air conditioner places on an engine — so manufacturers would not get better EPA results on fuel economy even if they use the device.

General Motors spokesman Mike Davis said he doesn't know whether the automobile manufacturer ever tested Halem's device but says the concept is known to automotive engineers.

Poll Shows Buyers Prefer Used Cars

DETROIT (UPI) — Option-laden, full-size used cars are a staple of the U.S. automotive market and many times are chosen over cheaper new cars, a Hertz Corp. survey released today said.

The poll showed a wide majority of used car buyers needed the vehicle as their primary form of personal transportation and that secondhand car buyers are younger and earn less money than average new car buyers.

"Our research shows that cost is the central consideration in buying a used car, an apparent result of the continued inflationary spiral," said William Welty, vice president of used car operations for Hertz.

The study was the second of the used car market in the United States. The first study, issued last year, showed almost three of every four domestic autos bought for personal transportation were used cars and that used cars cost about one-third less to buy and operate than new ones.

The two surveys — the first a statistical analysis, and this poll by mail — indicate that the recent-model used automobile rather than a new one is the mainstay of personal family transportation in this country," Welty said.

The company said the poll covered a cross section of buyers nationally who made their purchases from a variety of sources.

One finding was that many used car buyers could have bought smaller, stripped-down new vehicles for about the same prices they paid for the larger ones with more options.

"They apparently chose the used unit for the comfort and convenience — or prestige — it offered," a Hertz spokesman said.

Of those polled, 71 percent said a used car was the primary or first car in the family.

Almost one in four used car buyers — 23 percent — never had owned a car, while 15 percent of the respondents had bought new cars in the past said they had switched to a used car this year, the study showed.

The average price paid for a used car was $3,602, compared with an estimated 1979 average new car price of $6,238.

Used cars bought from franchised new car dealers averaged $4,196 in price with 21,200 miles on the odometer. Those bought from independent used car dealers cost an average $3,678 and had run 31,820 miles.

Cars less than one year old — About three percent of the sample — cost $6,296, or more than the typical new car price. Cars one to two years old sold for $5,034, those two to three years old for $4,079 and those three to four years old for $2,930.

Hertz, which retails used cars from its rental-lease fleet, said 42 percent of used cars are bought from franchised dealers, 18 percent from independent dealers.

Car Industry Magnate Henry Ford II Retires

DETROIT (UPI) — The last of the auto industry magnates retired today.

Henry Ford II, who at age 62 has spent more than half his life as chief executive of the company his grandfather founded, officially turned over operating control of Ford Motor Co. to President Philip Caldwell.

The action ends — perhaps forever — direct Ford family control over day-to-day operations of the 76-year-old company.

It also brings to a close an unparalleled business career that made Ford one of the most recognized industrial executives in the world and, in the auto industry, a figure second in fame only to the elder Henry Ford.

In May, Ford designated Oct. 1 as the day he will give up his title of chief executive officer. He said he will retain his post as chairman of the company's board of directors and will chair the corporate Finance Committee.

Many observers wondered whether that really amounts to retirement, but Ford, at his last formal news conference early in September, insisted he is withdrawing to the background.

He said he will move his offices from Ford world headquarters in suburban Dearborn to rooms in his pet project, Detroit's riverfront Renaissance Center.

Furthermore, he said, he plans to take a two-year trip around the world starting next year to inspect Ford's worldwide operations.

Ford, swarmed as usual by reporters, disclosed Sept. 6 he already had severely curtailed his direct involvement in management decisions.

"My objective is not to try and influence the new team in any way," he told the trade publication Automotive News. "I will be chairman of the Finance Committee and of the board, but other than that I will be out of it and will back off completely."

In an industry where executives typically are reserved, Ford usually was direct and outspoken — and not only on automotive affairs.

Observers said that was because his name is on the building. But there never was any doubt he was in charge.

Ford Motor Co. was losing $1 million a day when Ford was named president and chief executive officer on Sept. 21, 1945, at the age of 28.

Americans Support Papal Tour

NEW YORK (AP) — Americans have high hopes for Pope John Paul II's visit to this country, even if they are not happy with the spending of public funds in connection with his visit, a special Associated Press-NBC News poll says.

The public in general has a very positive view of the pontiff, although there is substantial disagreement with several official church positions.

The poll found 58 percent of those interviewed said the pope's seven-day visit to United States will have a positive impact on religion in this country. Five percent predicted a negative impact and 37 percent said it would have no impact or were not sure.

Among Catholics, 74 percent foresaw benefits from the visit, 3 percent foresaw problems and 23 percent either saw no benefits nor problems or could not say.

The traditional and constitutional division between church and state is reflected in the public opposition to spending public money in connection with the papal visit. While most of the cost of the visit is being defrayed by private donations or church funds, government money is paying for police protection and some facilities. Lawsuits have been filed in several cities challenging such uses of funds.

Overall, 24 percent approved of spending government money on the visit, while 69 percent disapproved. Seven percent were not sure.

Even Catholics opposed such spending, by a 58-36 margin.

The special AP-NBC News poll is based on telephone interviews with 1,600 adults across the country Sept. 24 and 25. Twenty-eight percent of those interviewed — 449 respondents — said they were members of the Roman Catholic Church.

Fifty-six percent of all those questioned said they approved of John Paul II's stewardship as leader of the Roman Catholic Church. Only 7 percent disapproved and 37 percent were not sure.

Seventy-nine percent of the Catholics approved of the pope's work in his first year in office; 6 percent disapproved and 15 percent were not sure.

Among non-Catholics, 46 percent approved of his work and 46 percent were not sure. Eight percent disapproved.

Both Catholic and non-Catholic Americans tended to disagree with several official Roman Catholic Church positions.

—All Americans approve of divorce, even when there are children involved, by a 65-25 percent margin. Catholics approved by a similar 63-28 edge.

—Americans overall approve of ordaining women as priests and ministers by 57 percent to 35 percent. However, Catholics split, with 46 percent favoring female priests and 48 percent opposing such ordinations. The remainder were not sure. With the 6 percent margin of error implicit in the figures for Catholics, that can only be said to be an even split.

—Catholics say the church should approve of artificial methods of birth control. Sixty-six percent support such a change and 27 percent oppose it. By a 76-19 edge, they add that it is possible to use such methods and still be a good Catholic. The rest were not sure.

—By a 53-40 edge, Catholics said priests should be allowed to marry.

—On the subject of abortion on demand, Catholics divide, with 50 percent in favor and 45 percent opposed — a statistically insignificant difference. For non-Catholics, the split is wider and is significant — 54 percent in favor and 40 percent opposed to abortion on demand. The remainder were not sure.

As with every sample survey, the results of the AP-NBC News poll can vary from the opinions of all those with telephones across the country because of chance variations in the sample.

For polls with 1,600 interviews, the results should vary no more than 3 percentage points either way simply because of sample error. That is, if one could talk to all adults in the country, there is only one chance out of 20 that the results would vary from the findings of this poll by more than 3 percentage points.

For percentages based solely on the Catholics in the sample, the sampling error margin is 6 percentage points. For non-Catholics, it is 4 percentage points.

Final Preparations Under Way For John Paul II's U.S. Tour

By United Press International

The six U.S. cities hosting Pope John Paul II are making frantic last-minute preparations for their guest of honor — and about eight million spectators.

In New York it will be the biggest crowd-control effort in the city's history with about five million people expected to see John Paul — more than the population of most states. Half that number saw Pope Paul VI during his visit to the city in 1965.

Another three million will see him in Boston — where the nine-day U.S. tour was to begin late today — Philadelphia, Des Moines, Iowa, Chicago and Washington, D.C.

Officials in Washington and Chicago frankly admit they're not sure they're ready.

"The time is fast approaching when we will simply have to turn our preparations over to the Lord," the Chicago Archdiocese Parish Preparation Committee said in a letter to priests.

In Boston workers put finishing touches on the Boston Common altar set up for the papal mass scheduled for 4:30 p.m. — carpeting the platform, hanging an overhead canopy and setting out an arrangement of chrysanthemums.

Boston police will have an extra difficulty on their hands. Black leaders have called for a protest march at the same time that about 750,000 people would be attending the papal mass in Boston Common. The march's sponsors said it was organized to protest recent violence against blacks, including the shooting of a 16-year-old high school football player.

On Tuesday the pope travels to New York for a ticker-tape parade, mass at Yankee Stadium and a motorcade to and from the United Nations.

About 11,500 police officers, roughly half the entire force, will be deployed during the pope's two-day visit that also includes appearances at St. Patrick's Cathedral, Madison Square Garden and Shea Stadium.

One million people are expected to attend a mass Wednesday at Logan Circle in Philadelphia, the third stop on the pope's tour. The city has assigned parking spots for more than 3,000 buses for parishioners throughout Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

Public schools will be closed Wednesday and the archdiocese's parochial schools will be closed Wednesday and Thursday.

In Des Moines the pope will offer mass before about 200,000 people at Living History Farms museums during a four-hour visit to Iowa Thursday.

Pontiff Challenges IRA's Foundation

By DONAL O'HIGGINS

DUBLIN, Ireland (UPI) — Whether he intended to or not — and he almost certainly did — Pope John Paul II has touched off a new war for the hearts and minds of Northern Ireland's Roman Catholics.

The pope's resounding appeals for an end to violence, made again and again during his 50-hour tour of Ireland, were certain to be hammered home repeatedly and lengthily from Catholic pulpits all over Ulster.

How can the Irish Republican Army respond?

For 10 years the IRA, outlawed north and south of the Irish border, has used bombs and bullets in an effort to unite Ireland by force, to blast Britain and her troops out of the six counties of Ulster.

Much of its money comes from the United States, many of its weapons through international guerrilla groups. But the bedrock of its support remains the half-million Catholics in Ulster.

Now John Paul has challenged this foundation.

Particularly in his speech Saturday at Drogheda, he turned all the IRA's own arguments against it. Violence is self-defeating, he said. Justice does not depend on bombs and bullets.

"Murder is murder," he repeated Sunday at Knock, "no matter what the motive or end."

Priests throughout the north will drum that home time and again — and in the south, too, since John Paul told Irish bishops Sunday night they should step in where politicians falter to seek an end to violence.

The IRA knows this well. Its first reactions mirrored its divisions.

In the militant Provisional Wing, "hawks" confront "doves." For some time, doves have supported a switch in emphasis from physical to political action.

It was one of them, perhaps, who reacted quickly to the Drogheda speech by saying the IRA might "be glad to lay down our arms" if anyone "can offer a reasonable solution to the Irish question."

Within hours, an "authorized" IRA statement said:

"Any suggestion that there is thinking in army circles of a cease-fire is a malicious lie."

The majority hawks are likely to step up propaganda — though not necessarily the level of violence — to counteract and undermine the pope's words.

A similar IRA crisis has happened before, as is so often the case in Ulster tragedy. Two years ago, at the emotional height of the women's peace campaign — its founders won the Nobel Peace prize — rank-and-file Catholics deserted the IRA chiefs.

The hawks won by personal attacks on the peace movement leadership. Two days before the pope's visit, peace leaders held a London news conference to announce they were virtually broke and faced extinction.

Moreover, history is against John Paul.

Pope Stresses Human Dignity, Christian Unity In Speeches

By JACK R. PAYTON

DUBLIN, Ireland (UPI) — Pope John Paul II's 50-hour visit to Ireland was so filled with political import that the religious aspects tended to get overshadowed.

But between his passionate pleas for an end to the religious bloodshed in Northern Ireland, John Paul also gave the Irish and their Roman Catholic priests some lessons in theology and committed himself once again to the Christian unity movement.

The central religious theme struck he struck in Ireland was that of human dignity, a concept that is the foundation of his moral, theological and social beliefs.

John Paul first set out his concept of human dignity in his first encyclical, "The Redeemer of Man," issued in March.

In that document, humanity's search for dignity was used to underpin his condemnation of materialism, war, sexual permissiveness, violations of religious and human rights, abortion and birth control.

The pope used human dignity for the same purposes in Ireland, but added

Christian unity as yet another goal of exalted humanity.

Calling the divisions between Christian religions "an intolerable scandal," he told a group of Ireland's Protestant clergy never to doubt the complete devotion of the Catholic church — and its pope — to the ecumenical movement.

No Big Spender

PRESIDENT Carter says he does not panic in a crisis. My Neighbor Twice Removed says the President's problem is more at the point of reacting to all to a crisis.

Carter wrote Sen. Kennedy that, gee whillikens, he wasn't thinking of Chappaquiddick when he spoke of panicking in a crisis. His reassurances came too late; the senator's supporters already had panicked.

With a note from their doctor, wide-reared bureaucrats can fly first class instead of the Carter-mandated tourist class. Now we know why bureaucrats are so adamant against trimming fat from the budget.

Gov. Bill Clements has told Atty. Gen. Mark White to put up or shut up about suing Sedco for oil spill damages. So far in the running battle, it's Bill One, Mark Two.

REP. KENT HANCE doesn't believe he should be characterized as a big-spending Democrat even if he did vote for a record 1980 budget calling for $548.2 billion in spending, including $28.9 billion we don't have and don't expect to get. "I was one of 40 Democrats who voted for a balanced budget" earlier this year, the Lubbock Congressman recalls, "and I also voted for the GOP tax cut."

It's true. I have no doubt, that if Hance had his druthers there'd be less spending and a smaller deficit. He was, nevertheless, one of the "swing" GOP tax cut.

Paul Scott:

PLO To Aid Black 'Struggle'

WASHINGTON—Black leaders who met with Yasser Arafat, leader of the Palestine Liberation Organization and other militant Arabs are interested in a lot more than peace in the Middle East.

Informants within their organizations reveal that the U.S. activists were seeking organizational ties and financial support, including backing for the broad-based political action coalition they are attempting to create.

While these objectives were never publicly mentioned by the delegation from the Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC), a Reuters dispatch from London tells the story. The brief dispatch covered the meeting of another group of SCLC-connected black leaders with Col. Moammar Khadafy, the controversial Libyan leader who bankrolls many PLO political and terrorist operations worldwide.

IT TERSELY READS: "A delegation of black Americans visiting Libya gave what they called the 'decoration of Martin Luther King' to Col. Moammar Khadafy."

"Col. Khadafy promised Libya's support for the struggle by black Americans 'to end racial discrimination and achieve freedom and equality between them and other men.'"

Informants within the black militant groups report that "policy-controllers" within these organizations decided earlier this year to seek ties with the PLO and other radical African governments, including Libya.

Objective was to seek financial backing from the Arabs for what they describe as their "PR" (political-revolutionary) activities in this country.

FINANCIAL BACKING from liberal Jewish sources for militant black groups has dramatically decreased because of the widening split over such issues as affirmative action and the equating of Zionism with racism by Third Worlders.

This cutback caused resentment among black leaders and their Marxist advisers took advantage of this split and sold the policy of linking "causes" with the PLO and other radicals.

UN Rep. Zehdi Labib Terzi for the PLO said: "A great deal was accomplished by building this bridge with one of the biggest constituencies in the U.S."

How well the black leaders are succeeding in their new strategy was discussed at the recent Congressional Black Caucus meeting here.

DC Delegate Walter Fauntroy, who led one of the two delegations to the Middle East and Rev. Joseph E. Lowery, president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference who accompanied him, made private reports to the black lawmakers. Fauntroy is chairman of the SCLC board of directors.

A Prayer Of Winning?

THE WAY PLAINTIFFS in a suit against the Lubbock Independent School District see it, there's really no reason to try the case. The U.S. Supreme Court, they say, already has ruled in their favor.

"Zudicrous" is the term, however, that School Board President Monte Hasie uses to characterize the Lubbock Civil Liberties Union's allegations that the system violates the First Amendment to the Constitution.

They can't both be right, which means there's a chance that plaintiff Robert Davi-dow, a Texas Tech law school professor, has misinterpreted the Supreme Court's earlier religion-in-the-schools rulings.

"WE ARE PROCEEDING on the basis of an interpretation of the U.S. Constitution as interpreted by the Supreme Court," Davi-dow said of the suit seeking a ban on all forms of religious exercises in the Lubbock schools.

He even says "it becomes irrelevant what most of the people of Lubbock want...the Constitution is the supreme law of the land."

So, if the supreme law of the land is so clearly spelled out and if it's so irrelevant what "we, the people" want, why is the school board even bothering to fight?

Obviously, on advice of counsel, it feels the Civil Liberties Union doesn't have so strong a case as it professes to have, maybe even that the suit is "ludicrous."

THE FIRST AMENDMENT to the Constitution says that "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof."

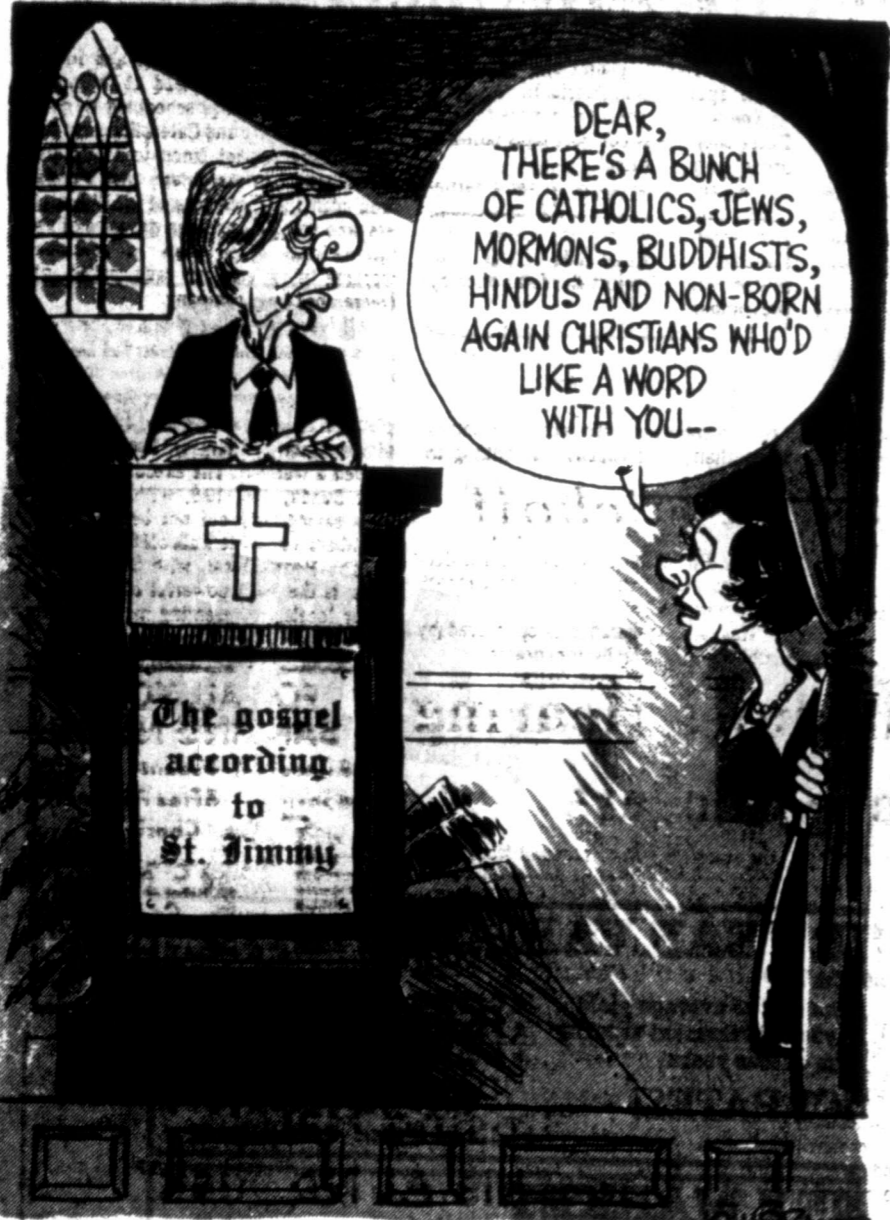

In a landmark case, the Supreme Court said this means that a prescribed prayer in public schools is unconstitutional. Arguments have raged over whether voluntary prayer is permissible.

Is a school board violating the Constitution if it permits "a period of silent meditation ended with 'amen' over the public address system," as alleged by the plaintiffs, or if it prohibits such a period of free exercise?

IS IT UNCONSTITUTIONAL to distribute free Bibles to students who want them, or to read passages from the Bible over the PA system?

Do such practices cause children to have "contempt and scorn," as alleged, for the judicial system in light of the plaintiffs' interpretation of past court decisions?

Perhaps the lawsuit against the LISD will answer those questions; assuming, of course, that they haven't already been answered.

James J. Kilpatrick:

Kennedy On Road To Damascus

WASHINGTON—In a few brisk leaps, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy suddenly has advanced in the Table of Standard Progressions from an Unlikely Candidate to an Almost Certain Candidate, and already a conventional wisdom has begun to develop.

Unlike a lot of the conventional wisdom that floats around this town, the Kennedy speculations probably are well-founded.

The conventional wisdom is to this effect—that once the senior Senator from Massachusetts becomes an Announced Candidate for the presidency, or even an Openly Avowed Candidate, his staggering lead in the polls over Jimmy Carter will fade.

Second, Sen. Kennedy, the flaming Liberal, will soon be heard making the harrumphing noises of Sen. Kennedy, the born-again Conservative. It will be the most remarkable conversion since Saul of Tarsus set out for Damascus.

BOTH PREDICTIONS seem to me sound, but my concern at the moment is for the second proposition. Until the past couple of weeks, Kennedy has basked in the soft morning noises of the Camelot tradition—his name, his family, his charisma, his magnetic attraction, all of the above.

In this gentle light, the senator's record on the issues has been obscured. Once he gets out in the noontday sun, it will be a vastly different matter.

Several years ago, in advance of the 1970 presidential campaign, Americans for Democratic Action (ADA) performed a useful service.

The ADA worked up a 10-year study of a dozen Democrats in Congress who might be presidential candidates. Among them was Kennedy.

The study embraced 202 roll-call votes in the Senate between 1965 and 1974. From these data the ADA computed Liberal Quotients for each of the prospects. The quotients represented the percentage of votes cast in support of liberal policies as defined by the ADA.

HOW FARED Kennedy? He missed 10 of the 202 votes. On the remaining 192, over the 10-year period, he voted wrong in the ADA's view only six times.

He wound up with an overall Liberal Quotient of 97, the most liberal Liberal of them all. Such certified big spenders and bleeding hearts as Muskie, McGovern, Humphrey, Bayh and Church trailed in the Kennedy wake.

On 60 issues in the area of foreign and military affairs, Kennedy's Liberal Quotient was 95. He was for every spending proposal in foreign economic aid and against every proposal for foreign military aid.

He voted to delay the anti-ballistic missile, to reduce funds for bombers, to cut funds for the Trident submarine.

On 14 issues having to do with consumer and environmental questions, the senator rang up a lovely 100. He was for no-fault auto insurance, for a Consumer Protection Agency, against nuclear testing, for a more powerful Federal Trade Commission.

THE ADA STUDY, examined 26 votes on the economy and tax reform. Kennedy's Liberal Quotient in this area was 92.

He voted, in effect, to abolish state right-to-work laws, to accelerate increases in the minimum wage, to prohibit sub-minimum wages for youngsters and to provide food stamps for strikers.

The senator scored 100 on social services, civil rights, civil liberties and miscellaneous issues. He voted for rent subsidies, gun control, open housing and racial quotas for hiring. Seen through the rose-tinted glasses of the ADA, his record was practically perfect. The pattern of 1965-74 has continued without significant change in the 75th and 96th Congresses.

Now and then Kennedy draws a mildly conservative breath—he is tough on crime, though he opposes the death penalty for such offenses as treason and kidnapping, and he has promoted deregulation in the name of competition—but these lapses are few.

ON 19 KEY votes last year, the senator hit 19 for 19 with the ADA. On 30 key votes tabulated by the opposing American Conservative Union, not surprisingly, he scored a lousy 3.

Kennedy is for national health insurance, high welfare payments and racial balance busing. He is against exempting small employers from the Harassments of the Occupational Safety and Health Administration; he is against lifting Rhodesian sanctions. And so on, ad infinitum.

This is the Kennedy record. Maybe it will take him to the White House, but a still, small voice says: "Maybe it won't."

votes the Democratic majority needed to get a six-vote margin of victory for the enormous budget.

It passed, 212 to 206, with 52 Democrats joining all 154 Republicans in voting "no." A change of four votes would have defeated the bill.

"It looked like the best deal we could cut," said Hance, who shares the George Mahon philosophy that you fight in the trenches for spending reductions but there comes a time when you have to be a team player if you are to have any measure of effectiveness.

I have to agree with his logic, the only question being whether a guy really puts up a fight. I have to believe that, for a freshman, Hance did.

When a big courtroom story breaks, it used to be the editor but now it's this or that lawyer or judge across the land who yells, "Stop the press!"

NOTE TO POLICE: If you can spare a patrolman from his radar trap for about 30 minutes, he could make the City a mint and the people who live around the high schools very happy writing tickets to teenage drivers of cars with loud mufflers.

Past or Future Tense?: "The House today passed and sent to President Kennedy..."—An Associated Press news wire budget of the day's top stories one day last week.

United Press International carried a news story about a pipeline explosion, which it datelined "Best, Texas." It said the blast was one mile north of Best or, if you prefer, "12 miles south-east of Benedum, Texas."

Man, I'm sure glad they cleared that up. Doctors and national security analysts have one thing in common: Both say too much SALT can kill you.

Bill Ducker says in a note: "I would nominate for a May Bouquet the Congress of the United States which, in its finest hour, mustered the supreme courage to have the Snail Darters moved to another creek."

STERLING MILLER'S unexpected death is a great loss to the City of Lubbock.

As City Manager Larry Cunningham said, the 46-year-old finance director was "a financial wizard." What I liked about him, professionally, was that he always had straightforward answers to straightforward questions.

Never in all the years that I knew him did I find Miller trying to dodge or mislead a reporter or a city councilman. In this business, it's always refreshing to find a public official on whose facts you can rely.

On top of that, I liked him. His death, and that the same day of Ralls' J. Edd McLaughlin, are the latest in a year-long string of tragedies to strike people with whom I had rubbed shoulders for years.

McLaughlin, a former chairman of the Texas Tech board and past president of Rotary International, was proof that a small-town boy doesn't have to leave the small town to make good.

Diplomatic-intelligence reports indicate the black leaders pledged to force a change in U.S. policy toward the PLO within a year in exchange for Arab financial support.

Both Lowery and Fauntroy say "it's just a matter of time before the U.S. will recognize the rights of the Palestinians." Former UN Amb. Andrew Young is expected to play a major role in the formation of the coalition.

Sylvia Porter:

Several Ways To Settle Complaints On Broker

(First of two columns) WASHINGTON—Are you among the ever-widening number of investors (in all income groups) infuriated because of the action of stocks, options, other securities, the executive in charge of your brokerage account has recommended for you in recent months?

Do you feel that the investments you bought on his (or her) advice were not suited to your stated financial goals? Do you want to "strike back"?

If this is you, you are challenging the rule of "suitability"—a rule that is causing increasing concern at the New York Stock Exchange (among others) and individual brokerage firms as well.

There is no missing the upsurge in the number of customers who feel they have made wrong and extremely costly decisions as a result of following the recommendations of their brokers.

Nor is there any dismissing the significance of complaints by individual investors who say they are stuck with investments not "suitable" to their aims.

THE "SUITABILITY" complaints actually represent no new concept in the buying and selling of securities. New York Stock Exchange members, for instance, have long stressed to their registered representatives (salespeople) the necessity to follow the "prudent" investing theory.

This concept, in essence, holds that skill and good judgment must be used by sales representatives in recommendations to customers for the investment of their resources.

"The problem," says the head of one brokerage firm with a seat on the Big Board, "is that everybody's against Wall Street."

NEGLIGENCE LAWYERS are finding this sudden awakening to the rule of "suitability" a bonanza. On a contingency basis, a lawyer will take from 25 to 40 or more percent of what is recovered as a result of a law suit.

Even on a fee basis, the hourly charges can result in hefty legal bills. On a relatively simple case, the lawyer's fee will come in at $1,500 to $2,000. If the case is complex, costs can run up to $10,000 and above.

And while no tally has been made of the success of the law suits, the consensus is that the number of investors winning in the courtroom is not necessarily matching the upsurge in the number of cases.

THE SECURITIES & Exchange Commission expects to process approximately 4,000 complaints this year from small investors, up roughly 15 percent over last year's volume. The first and cheapest route to settling a dispute with your broker is to complain to the firm and try to resolve it right there.

Stock Exchange; submit your claim against a broker to formal arbitration; use the courts to seek remedial action.

To get any satisfactory settlement, you must assemble detailed records to document your claims. In small claims cases, your arbitration fee will be $15.

On larger claims extending up to $10,000 or more, your fee may range from $120 to $350. The decisions of the arbitrators are considered final and in most cases, you cannot appeal.

HERE ARE THE addresses you may need in filing complaints:

* Securities & Exchange Commission, Complaint Section, 500 North Capitol St., Washington, DC 20549.

* National Assn. of Securities Dealers, 1735 K St., N.W., Washington, DC 20006.

* Securities Investor Protection Corp., 900 17th St. N.W., Washington, DC 20006.

* The New York Stock Exchange Investor Service Bureau, 11 Wall St., New York, NY 10005.

* American Stock Exchange, Department of Inquiries, 86 Trinity Place, New York, NY 10006.

The fundamental message to you is: you do have sources to which to turn for help if you have a legitimate complaint against your broker. These sources cover a much wider range than you probably have suspected.

The rule of "suitability" is alive and kicking—in your favor if you learn about it and use it properly.

Radar Guns Surviving Challenge To Accuracy

MIAMI (AP) — Last spring when television reports showed police radar clocking a tree at 86 mph and a house at 28 mph, Dade County Judge Alfred Nesbitt called the device unreliable for catching real speeders.

But five months later the impact of Nesbitt's ruling seems mainly confined to Dade County. Spot checks by The Associated Press in a dozen states show that in most areas, the nation's 100,000 radar guns have survived the challenge with only an occasional flutter of the speed meter.

In Dade County, Nesbitt says 16 of the 17 other county judges followed his May 7 lead. Speeding tickets fell off by 50 percent as county police put away their radar guns. And, according to the county clerk's office, most of the pending 4,000 speeding tickets were thrown out for those defendants who bothered to show up in court.

Nesbitt's ruling made him the speeder's hero. Hundreds of congratulatory letters from around the world poured in. More than 2,000 people asked for copies of the ruling.

"To be honest with you, I was a little bit unnerved," Nesbitt says. "But the more I see and read now, it seems to firm up that I was on the right track."

But why didn't the anti-radar movement catch on elsewhere?

"Police agencies don't understand what happened down there. You're fighting 20 years of tradition and a great deal of inertia," says Neal Sanders, director of legislative relations for Electrolite Inc. of Troy, Ohio.

Sanders, whose firm makes the "Fuzzbuster" radar-detection device and spent $30,000 to underwrite the Miami court challenge, estimates "no more than a few dozen" judges have openly declared they will throw out radar cases.

One case Sanders is watching closely is that of Janice Lee, executive assistant to the inventor of the Fuzzbuster. She was ticketed in Kentucky and a hearing to suppress radar evidence against her will be held Nov. 7. Sanders says a victory could overturn "the granddaddy of all cases."

In Nevada and Ohio, officials say, court challenges to radar lost, but a judge in Albuquerque, N.M., called radar "unreliable" and police pulled radar units off the road. A few tickets were thrown out in Colorado but there have been no court challenges. Oklahoma, Tennessee, Massachusetts and Ohio still use radar as they always have, officials say.

Sanders says hearings are under way in Nebraska on a bill to set equipment and training standards for radar units. Louisiana state police are training operators of 100 new radar units.

About 200 local police agencies in California use radar, although the state Highway Patrol does not. In Pennsylvania, there is "no evidence" that radar is inaccurate, as Allegheny County judge ruled.

In Florida, meanwhile, radar guns went back on the roads three weeks ago after 30 officers took a radar training course and the state attorney issued a set of radar guidelines.

Assistant State Attorney Kenneth Drucker, however, isn't sure the training program will mean all speeding tickets will stand up in court. He's waiting for the National Bureau of Standards to issue a new set of radar performance specifications this fall. If the bureau supports the radar, Drucker says his office will find a test case.

Contract Talks Begin Between UAW, Ford

DETROIT (UPI) — The United Auto Workers Union, which has won a decisive rank and file vote in favor of a pattern settlement with General Motors Corp., today opened deadline contract talks with the Ford Motor Co.

Top UAW officials met at Ford to map bargaining strategy and await a new economic offer from negotiators for the No. 2 auto company.

Union sources said they expected new money proposals from the company later today.

The union reported Sunday its GM workers ratified their tentative contract by a wide margin, opening the way for intensive bargaining at Ford.

"Ratification was approved by a more than 2-to-1 margin of the workers who voted," UAW President Douglas Fraser said.

Roughly half the 460,000 GM workers represented by the UAW did not cast votes — but the situation did not dismay UAW officials.

Reports were widespread that many workers favoring ratification did not bother to vote because they figured the ratification vote would carry. Fraser said.

The UAW said the contract was favored by 75 percent of production workers and 81 percent of skilled workers who voted.

Union officials also said local contract agreements between plant-level union and company officials now have been reached in 75 of 151 UAW bargaining units at the No. 1 auto firm.

Convinced by early returns late last week the contract was being ratified, UAW officials declared a midnight Thursday strike deadline at Ford. That gives UAW and Ford bargainers four full days to reach an agreement.

Ford has not yet formally responded to the GM settlement, but the auto companies historically have assented to terms of the agreement reached with the UAW's target company.

The GM pattern likely will be broken this year at the financially ailing Chrysler Corp., however.

Deere, Caterpillar Hit By Union Walkout

By The Associated Press
The United Auto Workers union today struck Deere & Co. plants in Illinois and Iowa and the giant Caterpillar Tractor Co. operations in Peoria, Ill.

The walkout shut down more than 10 Deere shops after contract talks failed to produce an agreement.

"We're too far apart to get a settlement tonight," said UAW spokesman Pat Greathouse after the Deere talks stalled at midnight Sunday. "Our committee voted to reject the final offer by the company."

Negotiators for the two sides, meeting over the weekend in Moline, were in agreement on pensions and wages, Greathouse said, adding, however, "the union wanted a more extensive settlement than the company was willing to give and they wanted it distributed differently than the company was willing to give."

Contracts with Caterpillar and International Harvester expired at midnight as well but work was scheduled to continue at Harvester and Caterpillar.

However, picket lines went up early today at Caterpillar's four Peoria area plants by members of UAW Local 974 who voted to strike in defiance of an international union plan to continue working if a walkout was called at Deere, the target company.

All four Caterpillar plants in the Peoria area were shut down by the picketing.

Eight of nine Caterpillar local unions planned to stay on the job, but leaders of the ninth and largest, Local 974, approved a walkout. The executive board's vote Sunday was 10-8, with some officials saying they did not believe union members wanted to walk off their jobs.

The Peoria local, with 23,000 members, is the most powerful of the Caterpillar locals, representing more workers than the other eight combined.

TDHR Schedules Hearing On Day Care Centers

A public hearing regarding proposed changes in minimum standards for day care centers has been called for 1 p.m. to 7 p.m. Wednesday in the Garden and Arts Center. It will be conducted by the Texas Department of Human Resources, which licenses the centers.

Changes in character investigation of day care employees are the only ones proposed which could make the qualifications more stringent, say TDHR officials. They have received recommendations from providers, advisory groups and individuals in the field of child care.

The proposed standards also require

"Losing Hair? Try This At No Risk"

HOUSTON, Texas—If you don't suffer from male pattern baldness, you can now stop your hair loss...and grow more hair.

baldness and cannot be helped.

For years "they said it couldn't be done." But now a firm of laboratory consultants has developed a treatment for both men and women, that is not only stopping hair loss...but is really growing hair!

But, if you are not already slick bald, how can you be sure what is actually causing your hair loss? Even if baldness may seem to "run in the family," it is certainly not proof of the cause of YOUR hair loss.

They don't even ask you to take their word for it. They invite you to try the treatment for 32 days, at their risk, and see for yourself! Naturally, they would not offer this opportunity unless the treatment worked. However, it is impossible to help everyone.

Hair loss caused by sebum can also run in your family, and many other conditions can cause hair loss. If you wait until you are slick bald and your hair roots are dead, you are beyond help. So, if you still have any hair on top of your head, and would like to stop your hair loss and grow more hair...now is the time to do something about it before it's too late.

The great majority of cases of excessive hair fall and baldness are the beginning and more fully developed stages of male pattern

Loesch Laboratory Consultants, Inc. will supply you with treatment for 32 days—at their risk—if they believe the treatment will help you. Just send them the information listed below. All inquiries are answered confidentially, by mail. Adv.

STATE PRESIDENT — Lubbock County Treasurer Connie Nicholson is the new president of the County Treasurers Association of Texas. She was given the president's "golden key" to keep while she is in the statewide office. Mrs. Nicholson was elected at a meeting of the state group in Dallas last week. (Staff Photo by Paul Moseley)

Connie Nicholson Named To Post

Lubbock County Treasurer Connie Nicholson has been elected president of the Texas County Treasurers Association.

She serves her first week in the office this week after being elected unanimously at the annual conference of the organization last week in Dallas.

As president of the association, which includes the treasurers of all 254

Texas counties, Mrs. Nicholson will go to College Station in November to plan the annual state seminar for county treasurers.

The seminar is held each spring. Mrs. Nicholson had been on the association board of directors for two years but had not held statewide office. She is only the second county treasurer from the Panhandle-South Plains to head the organization — the now-retired Ava Johnson of Dickens County was chosen in 1969 — in its 31-year history.

The 46-year-old Littlefield native was nominated by the nominating committee of the group and elected by acclamation at the convention at the Adolphus Hotel in Dallas.

She gained statewide attention as a member of State Comptroller Bob Bullock's committee on standard financial procedures for county treasurers.

Before she attended the convention, Mrs. Nicholson was involved in protests made by several Lubbock County officials of their 1980 salaries, and she said today that she was unsure if she would follow suit with Justice of the Peace Charles Smith and file a grievance with the county grievance committee.

She indicated, however, that she will not. She asked $19,300 for 1980 but was given an 8-percent raise to $16,800 instead.

Mrs. Nicholson is a 1953 Texas Tech University graduate in home economics who worked as a legal secretary and in trust accounting and real estate before winning a three-way race for Lubbock County treasurer in 1974.

She was re-elected without opposition last year.

Sustaita Continues Testimony In Trial

FORT WORTH (AP) — Isaac R. Sustaita, 33, returns to the witness stand today to help attorneys defending Cullen Davis bolster their claim the millionaire was framed on murder solicitation charges.

room, Davis branded McCrory a "pathological liar." He accused prosecutors of grooming McCrory extensively before the witness took the stand and said defense attorneys weren't going to such lengths.

Sustaita began his testimony Friday, but the trial recessed for the weekend before he was finished. He said he stopped to change a flat tire in a motel parking lot Aug. 18, 1978, and saw three persons, including two he identified as Davis' ex-wife Priscilla and karate teacher Pat Burleson.

"Our witness preparation program doesn't take six hours a day for a month like the DA's witness preparation program," Davis said. "McCrory is exactly the way I described him to my attorneys. He's a pathological liar. My attorneys probably thought that was too harsh."

Defense attorneys say those two persons conspired with the state's key witness, David McCrory, to frame Davis.

Davis said McCrory's testimony shows "that he's actually sick." He said McCrory's allegation that Davis suggested he find a killer to lie in wait outside Mrs. Davis's residence and then either open fire with an automatic weapon or throw grenades in her car were ludicrous.

Instead, McCrory went to the FBI. Davis was arrested Aug. 20, 1978. In an interview outside the court-

"It takes some kind of special mentality to come up with that wild imagination," Davis said.

Haggai To Launch Campaign Kickoff

For the 25th year, citizens of Lubbock, many of them members of the city's civic clubs, will gather for the United Way's public campaign kickoff. This year's campaign launching is scheduled at noon Tuesday in Memorial Civic Center.

Campaign workers and supporters will hear a kickoff address by Dr. Tom Haggai of High Point, N.C., one of the nation's busiest speakers, who averages a speech a day and travels 25,000 miles a year to do it.

The 1979 campaign is headed by Joe Price, district manager of Pioneer Natural Gas Co., and Ron Ritchie, vice president of consumer products with Texas Instruments.

The campaign has a goal of $1.8 for the operation of 34 community service agencies in Lubbock. Included in the agency list is a new day care center with a capacity of 130 children.

Civic club members attending the rally will be vying for United Way attendance awards. Clubs with more than 75 percent of their membership present will receive a gold award at the first report meeting scheduled at the civic center at noon Oct. 8.

Providing music for the kickoff will be the Mackenzie Junior High band under direction of Dick Whitten. The national anthem will be led by Trini Foster and the Rev. J. Waid Griffin, associate minister of First United Methodist Church, will give the invocation.

Colors will be presented by members

Teachers Resume Strike In Spite Of Ultimatum

By The Associated Press
Striking teachers in Jefferson Parish, La., voted to support their five-week strike despite an ultimatum from school officials, while teachers in Jasper, Ala., were going back to their classrooms today for the first time in three weeks.

The 279 teachers in Michigan's Chipewava Valley reached a tentative contract agreement and were to vote today whether to go back to the classrooms. Strikes continued in Lansing and Flint.

More than 18,000 teachers walked picket lines today in California, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, New Jersey, New York, Ohio and Pennsylvania in strikes affecting more than 350,000 students.

In Ohio, a nine-day strike by 640 Middletown teachers was settled Sunday, but teachers in the Ohio Valley and Meigs local districts and the Lorain city schools planned to remain off the job today.

Some 3,000 teachers are on strike in Jefferson Parish, where school board President Andy Valence set today as the last day teachers could go back to work with amnesty.

State mediators withdrew from contract negotiations in Indianapolis, where teachers have been on strike since Sept. 4. Mediator Don Russell said further meetings without all board members would be nonproductive. Meanwhile, a hearing on a parents' suit for a back to work order was to be held today.

"It's just more blue smoke that they're blowing around about having to negotiate a fair and equitable settlement," Charles Iannello of the Jefferson Federation of Teachers said Sunday after teachers voted to stay on picket lines.

Views of the 10 Republican candidates for the presidential nomination will be discussed at a meeting of the Lubbock chapter of the National Federation of Republican Women at 10 a.m. Tuesday at the home of Mrs. J. Evetts (Rosalind) Haley, 5424 16th St.

The dispute is the longest of this year's teacher contract battles.

Mrs. Haley attended the national federation's biennial convention last weekend at which all 10 candidates spoke.

In Jasper, the first teacher walkout in Alabama history ended when 600 teachers voted Saturday to return to work. Several businesses agreed to guarantee a loan to be used to rehire 42 teachers fired in a cost-cutting move.

Mrs. Haley said this is the first time in more than 100 years that 10 Republicans have announced candidacy for the presidential office, and said persons attending the meeting may be surprised to hear whom she considered to be the most dynamic speaker.

More than 1,800 delegates attended the national convention, with members

Valet Parking Proves Customer Pleaser At Budget Rent A Car

"Free valet service, with delivery and pick-up right at the doors of the air terminal... did you know such a convenience is being afforded in Lubbock?" Budget Rent A Car of Lubbock makes it possible. Yes, one can park his or her vehicle at Budget Rent A Car, 1701 N. Quirt, at a cost of only $1 per day, and free valet service is provided right to the airport! (Many also find it advantageous for the folks at Budget Rent A Car to service the vehicle while it is there.) Budget Rent A Car of Lubbock, 1701 N. Quirt Ave., not only operates from all-new facilities said to be the most modern in the area, but it provides likely a much greater scope of services than some may have realized. You don't have to be in need of rental units to be served at this complete Enco service center where there's even a big used car lot. As for the rental part of the business, the owner emphasizes, that "we save you money," inviting comparison of the low rates afforded on current model GM and other fine cars of all sizes. Valet Parking Valet parking is one of the much-appreciated services, with Budget Rent A Car enabling one to leave a personal car there, with a firm representative taking the driver and occupants right to the airport, affording the same service upon return trip! Thus there are no long walks from parking areas; the customer is taken right to the airport doorway. A full-service station is provided, open six days a week. Rentals are available every day. Good Car Buys The Used Car Lot features late model rent cars. (Check now for exceptionally good buys in '78 and '79 low-mileage rent cars.) Not only are autos rented, but a good truck selection is available in the rental department, too. Select units varying from cargo vans to 22-ft. units, some air conditioned, most with hydraulic lifts and some with automatic transmission. Some 70 to 80 cars are kept in the rental fleet at most times, right here in Lubbock. (There is no drop charge for cars dropped in Amarillo.) Bill Creps is manager of the firm, coming here from Amarillo to the Budget Rent A Car of Lubbock (a budget rent car system licensee) with opening in September '78 in the all-new present quarters just 2 1/4 miles south of the airport at 1701 N. Quirt. The firm previously was at 604 No. Ave. Q for several years. Whether the automatic car wash, the full-service station, the rental services, the car sales lot or any other feature of Budget Rent A Car is desired, customer service is assured. "May we have the pleasure of your consideration and patronage at Budget Rent A Car of Lubbock? Phone 763-6471."

Childress Hardware, At New Address, Still A Leader In Downtown Lubbock

"Thanks for all the good things we're hearing from you about our new home! And thanks for coming by, renewing or making new friendships, discovering how we can be of benefit to one another in the good old South Plains way!" Yes, Childress Hardware is an old friend, but with a new address in Lubbock and with a new functionally-beautiful building in which to serve even better. Now, the Fred Childress Hardware is at 10th & H (915 Ave. H) just a block north of the former 902 Main Street location that was home of hardware since back in 1917! It is no idle statement that hardware needs of the area have been met for decades by the Childress Hardware and its predecessors. As a bit of history, it is recounted that the old Cole-Myrick Hardware was established at 902 Main in 1917. Within a few years ownership passed to the Nislar interests, with Fred Childress in 1924 going to work for that ownership. Then in 1934, just a decade later, the firm was purchased by Childress and O.A. Terry. Then in 1959, Terry disposed of his interest. The Fred Childress Hardware, Inc., is owned by Dick Jay and Leslie Duncan who have long served at this time-proven and time-honored establishment that prides in stocking needs of the day for every year, every season. The former Main Street building has been razed to make way for other use of the property, and the new and beautiful building at 915 H marks even greater capacity for service. Away from the "congested area," more and easier parking is enabled, yet the business still is on a major traffic artery to conveniently serve city and area. The new building was specifically designed for Childress Hardware, and the open displays and other built-in conveniences certainly do not detract from the traditional Childress image of "we appreciate you as a customer and friend, and we're glad you came to see us." Whether one's immediate concerns and needs involve winter preparation (even need of fireplace accessories, etc.), security via quality mortise locks, or even the unusual hardware items, likely still the first and only place necessary to check is Childress Hardware, now at 10th & H. Childress for years has stocked the finest in security hardware, and possibly at no time has "security" been more in the minds of most people than today. And properly so. It would be foolish, then to consider security for the home of business without attention to the locks, such as dead bolts etc., that are among the products stocked at Childress.

ENTRYWAY TO HARDWARE NEEDS

Correct tools and equipment can be the big item in convenience and accomplishment in numerous home operations or by the professional builder throughout the year, and for these tools, one can rely with certainty upon the Fred Childress Hardware. For those who appreciate good hand tools, there is a wide stock, including the respected name of Stanley, Crescent, Thorson, Nicholson, Bluegrass, Disston, Lufkin, Plumb and others long associated with quality and integrity in tool-making. On and on the list could go in enumerating the lawn and the building needs provided at Childress Hardware, but suffice it to say that "if it is in the hardware line, you can get it there. Thousands of Items One can purchase an old-fashioned sprinkling can or a lawn watering device that negotiates your yard; a well pulley or a lamp chimney; actually more than 10,000 items. Childress Hardware continues as a popular place with carpenters and craftsmen, who make it headquarters for nails of all sizes, as well as a wide range of other fastenings including stove bolts, capscrews, carriage bolts, machine screws, metal screws, wood screws and brass screws, chain, rope — you name it, for home, industrial or farm use. Cabinet Hardware The Fred Childress Hardware also stocks one of the most extensive line of cabinet hardware in the city, with latest designs in hinges, pulls and latches attractively displayed. Here again brands such as Stylecraft, Christensen, Phylrick and Pfanstiel are indicative of top quality and design. "May we have the pleasure of serving you soon... and often... at our new home, 10th at H?"

Kirby Sales And Service Tells New Model Arrivals, Top Deals

Let us prove anew at Kirby Sales and Service, 5410 Slide Road, that this is the place to come for a good product and a good deal!

And what better time is there for discovering this than now with the introduction of the new 1980 models of the Kirby Tradition, a really fine vacuum cleaner.

With its dozens of different uses (more than 80, actually), the Kirby Tradition had refinements over even previous models. Disposable or regular bags can be utilized, as example; and larger wheels at the rear enable easier rolling and maneuverability.

From the availability of the finest vacuum cleaners and the Super Upkeep products to the popular maintenance special (still $7.95 for a tuneup on any Kirby vacuum cleaner, with no labor charge on fixing any Kirby vacuum cleaner, with no labor charge on fixing any Kirby unit, just a charge for parts only), with full emphasis on friendly, qualified service, the firm invites full consideration.

"Very, very liberal trade-ins on your present vacuum cleaner when purchasing any new unit at Kirby Sales and Service, 5410 Slide Road... this should help get the new season started right for you!

Not only does this Kirby firm have a quite good selection of new cleaners (including the sensational new Kirby Tradition) but the firm is in need of trade-ins, so special deals are being made at this time. But don't delay!

(Reconditioned units are sold with a full one-year warranty!)

New Kirby units carry a two-year warranty!

Super Upkeep Line

So come on out to Kirby Sales and Service, on the way to the Mall, at 5410 Slide Road, and see the many products including the Super Upkeep line now made available there.

Super Upkeep is a carpet cleaner, stain remover and deodorizer, fully guaranteed to spot clean and completely deodorize a long list of stains on carpets, fine furniture and auto upholstery, ceramic tile, shoes and clothing, etc.

There is more to merit one's patronage of the firm.

Reasonable prices always, as example:

"The new Kirby Tradition is presently featured, a system that gives more versatility, quality, reliability and performance than in any other appliance!"

"Suppose you had to shampoo a rug, clean, sanitize, buff, wax, polish and paint — all in the same day: how many appliances would you need?"

"Just one... when that one is the Kirby Tradition System with its 80 different uses!"

Repairs, Parts

See this and the entire Kirby line at Kirby Sales & Service, open 9 a.m. until 6 p.m., six days a week, at 5410 Slide Road, phone 792-3718, in Lubbock.

The firm is essentially a family operation, with Dale Bramlett and his son-in-law Dan Wilbanks, as owners-operators, and with Sandy Everitt, daughter of Bramlett, also on the job. They assure a personal interest in every transaction.

Repairs and parts are stocked, and the skilled staffers work on any kind of vacuum cleaner.

A complete line of rebuilt Kirby units is stocked at "a price you can afford."

Rental is available on vacuum cleaners and shampoo machines.

Visa and Bank Americard are honored, and in-store financing is available.

Take a good product, represent it well, with the customer's welfare considered foremost, and you have a business worth knowing and patronizing. The business concept and everyday practices of Kirby Sales & Service, 5410 Slide Road, place it as such a business.

Southern Sea Catering Services Seen Advantageous, Flexible, Economical

Southern Sea is most appreciative of the reception to our expanded menu, our so-convenient catering service, and to the dining and take-out services at our two Lubbock facilities, 10th & Q and Loop 289 at S. Indiana.

Some may not realize the catering capabilities and convenience that is making this department a key service of Southern Sea.

Two Mobile Kitchens

"Using two mobile kitchens, we are in position to serve your group, anywhere in the area, one of the finest catered meals you've ever had! We are happy to custom plan your catered menu from a variety of entrees. Furthermore, fish and chicken are fried on location assuring freshness, prepared just minutes before you eat! Chicken fried steak also is cooked right on location.

"Or maybe the preference is barbeque, spaghetti, chicken gordon bleu or chicken Marco Polo, or just about any menu item you can think of... Southern Sea can cater to your complete satisfaction."

All You Can Eat!

Served buffet style, these menus are economical, versatile and convenient, served on an "all you can eat" basis (however, we at Southern Sea can serve any style catered meal that will suit your needs).

And as for eating at one of the two great Southern Sea restaurants in Lub-

AT PAULINE'S SPORTSWEAR ON UNIVERSITY — Owner Kathy Wagner and her mother, Affanell Patterson, are shown with one of the attractive apparel items from a really exciting stock.

Town & Country Pauline's Sportswear Prides In Selection, Brands, Price

"We are what you've been looking for!" This is the assurance from Pauline's Sportswear in Town & Country Shopping Center, 4th and University. Devoted to providing quality merchandise (with known and respected labels) at prices inviting comparison, Pauline's provides a full line of junior and missy sizes, with queen size in numerous items. There are tops and pants in all sizes represented at the attractive shop, dresses in junior and missy sizes, skirts, blouses and an exceptionally good jean line (including queen sizes). And there are uniforms, too, with tops in all basic colors and with white pants. A very good line of sweaters is stocked.

Examples of the "name" brands include jeans by Levi, California and Faded Glory. Savings Explained All merchandise is top quality... no seconds... and this is probably surprising when the modest prices are considered. A low overhead, involving family operation of the store, location out of the high-rent district, volume buying power and other factors enable exceptional savings. The shop relies upon numerous sources of supply for its wide selection. Home-Owned In the same location for 12 years, Pauline's Sportswear for the past two years has been owned by lifetime Lubbock resident Kathy Wagner, who operates the shop with assistance of her mother, Affanell Patterson, who marks some 10 years experience in the type store presented. Under their operation, Pauline's has been remodeled and the enlarged stock reflects the owner's attention to fashion, practicality, quality and price. Kathy, the former Kathy Patterson, is a graduate of Lubbock High School and attended Texas Tech. Long-Term Layaway Aside from its attractive and selective merchandise, Pauline's Sportswear affords other advantages including: Open six days a week, 9 a.m. until 5 p.m., even on Saturdays. Master Charge and Visa purchases are welcomed. Ninety-day layaway is provided without special charges or interest. Gift certificates are available and encouraged. "See why we believe that 'we're what you've been looking for!'"

Optical Store & Boutique Affording Modern Services, Fine Quality, Style

"Our Boutique is Unique" actually is the motto but nevertheless an understatement of the services and products of the Optical Store & Boutique, phone 792-0901. "Doesn't the new school term call for renewed awareness of the correct optical needs?" "Then, we wish to direct your attention to the Optical Store & Boutique, 5202 Slide Road, phone 792-0901, where we know that we can serve you within one or more of our departments... where we welcome your visits and believe you will appreciate the professional yet friendly service and the truly relaxed atmosphere traditional here." "Here's something of special interest that we want you to consider, regardless of your eyewear situation, especially if you have too often found yourself in this predicament..." "Upon selecting new frames for you, eyewear, hoping of course to get those frames that look the very best on you, desiring frames with which you would be pleased day in and day out, you have found that selection was difficult because in trying them on, with your present glasses 'off', you just couldn't see to select intelligently?" "The Optical Store & Boutique, just south of 50th & Slide, has done something about this!" "New video tape equipment has been installed to enable one to be photographed with the various frames, then the tape is played back through a color television set to enable one to see exactly how the frames look upon him or her! Doesn't this make sense?" "We at The Optical Store & Boutique think so, and we believe we are the first optical company in Lubbock to offer this brand new innovation to optical dispensing." "We believe it is general knowledge that quality lines in frames and glasses are just as near as The Optical Store & Boutique." "Thoroughly in keeping with the firm's consideration of the customer's welfare, the folks there emphasize: (1) Children should have an eye examination annually, (2) Adults should take the same step every two years; (3) Even if one does not wear glasses, eye examination on a systematic schedule is recommended; (4) See your eye doctor and then when glasses are advised, bring his prescription to us at The Optical 'Store & Boutique, and we'll prove our uniqueness and capabilities, with you benefiting." "We want to see you keep your frames in good repair; and we'll help if you simply give us the chance!" "And did you realize that The Optical Store & Boutique stocks the complete spectrum in frames, including a utility selection combining style with surprisingly low price?" "A departmentalized arrangement of rooms and areas provides four distinct categories in our service: (1) utility selection, (2) another where quality is the sole consideration, (3) designer frames, and finally (4) the Boutique. So, whether the attractively priced lines in frames and glasses for the student, as example, or the very finest in choices from the Designer collection or the unusual and expensive lines within the Boutique are preferred, this Lubbock facility is outstanding, in a class by itself. Upon entry into The Optical Store & Boutique, one is impressed with the pleasing but striking decor (such as the art deco in the Designer Room carried out in mirrors, pictures and fixtures); a customer consideration that exemplifies the firm's uniqueness. One may first discover the Designer Collection where an area is devoted entirely to designer frames by Ralph Lauren, Givenchy, Diane Von Furstenberg, Oscar de la Renta and other top designers. Then there is the Children's Corner in another segment of the complex. And who could not help but be most intrigued by the Boutique where antique decor dominates and where the unusual and expensive lines are displayed. Some glasses are set with diamonds, some with 18k gold settings, some with real cultured pearls. Custom design with special precious stones, etc., is a specialty. Lines are out-of-the-ordinary, with some exclusive in Lubbock to the Boutique, such as the Martin Creations from West Germany. "See what we mean when we say that 'Our Boutique is Unique,' providing a product and service seldom experienced anywhere?"

AMONG UNITS AVAILABLE AT NATIONAL FIRE EXTINGUISHER

National Fire Extinguisher Firm Locally Owned, Operated

Take a good staff, a good product and service, and a genuine desire to serve best, and there you have a firm worth turning to. In this instance the National Fire Extinguisher Co., affording 24-hour service.

National Fire Extinguisher Co., Inc., at 3407 Ave. A, phone 765-6532, can fill all your fire extinguisher needs.

A master warehouse and distributor of quality portable fire extinguishers, the firm is owned and actively managed by the husband-wife team of Furd and Betty Taylor, assisted by an experience, well-trained and customer oriented staff.

'Folks You Know'

In operation since back in 1963, the firm has only recently come under ownership of the Taylors. Furd Taylor is a Texas Tech graduate of '59 and is certified as a safety professional (earned by examination) by the Insurance Board of Texas. Mrs. Taylor, the former Betty Meyers, is a lifelong resident of Lubbock and is a graduate of Cooper High School.

Jerry Frasier is shop manager, with Eddie Cox in shop and service; and Ron Childers and Joe Threalt are in sales and service. All are licensed and experienced service men.

Two lines dominate the stock of the firm... the General fire extinguishers (since 1903) and the Badger-Powhatan lines, both for home and business.

Last a Lifetime

All extinguishers sold by National Fire Extinguisher are best quality, all fully rechargeable, and being all-metal products, they last a lifetime.

Sales and service, retail and wholesale, are provided.

A really good stock of fire extinguishers is kept in stock; the shop is fully equipped; and the firm does all its own work, never sending extinguishers elsewhere for repairs.

"See why we say that National Fire Extinguisher can fill all your fire extinguisher needs!"

Whether selection is from a General (think of fire before it starts) unit, or one from Badger-Powhatan (the protection people), assurance of a quality, long-lasting unit is the picture.

General is the only manufacturer in North America with a complete line of portable fire extinguishers, and has long been recognized as a leader, the knowledgeable management at the National Fire Extinguisher firm emphasizes, General manufactures all its vital component parts: valves, shells, hose assemblies, powder and many other parts. This integration assures the buyer of a quality product manufactured under strict control.

"For the best in portable fire protection equipment, depend upon the home-owned National Fire Extinguisher Co., Inc., 3407 Ave. A, phone 765-6532, in Lubbock."

Tick Tock Clock Shop Marks Anniversary With Sale Prices

It is Anniversary time at the Tick Tock Clock Shop in Monterey Center, which brings to mind:

"In every field of endeavor there is a leader, and there are followers. For the fourth year in a row, it is clear that Tick Tock Clock Shop is the leader in its field."

Growth has been marked by larger selection and even greater display area.

Ceiling Fans
Ceiling fans have been added to the selective stock and have met with enthusiastic reception. Four brands and 55 models are stocked, together with all parts. Variable speed models are included in the wide presentation. Brands include Classic, Casa Blanca, Emerson and Ritz.

A really tremendous stock of clocks always is on hand at Tick Tock Clock Shop. An enlarged display area recently has been arranged, and 30 new models in grandfather clocks have been stocked.

"Volume buying is one of the factors that enables our presentation of the best clock for the money," owners of the big shop explain.

Significant Specials
Anniversary Special prices have been posted, highlighted by a Howard Miller grandfather clock, of oak construction, at $299.

Wall and mantle clocks start at $69.90.

Specials are arranged throughout the stock, and one is invited to come in to discover how really significant these savings are.

(Also, bring your ticket stubs from the Tick Tock Clock Shop booth at the Fair and match to see if you have won the beautiful clock prize.)

The Anniversary Observance presents a great opportunity for selecting and paying away for Christmas. Layaway purchases can be made at this time for Christmas, with no interest or carrying charges.

Also, there is free delivery and set-up for grandfather clocks.

Tick Tock has experienced a really impressive growth in its four years in business, and the October Anniversary Specials are a very practical method of saying "thanks", wouldn't you agree?

Possibly you have not realized the scope of services at this popular shop.

"Did you realize that invisible identification is placed on all repaired pieces and purchases at no extra charge? This can be quite a protection factor for you as owner of a fine timepiece."

Meaningful Warranty
And a three-year limited warranty is

LARGEST SELECTION — Against backdrop of representative fine clocks stocked abundantly at Tick Tock Clock Shop is Mrs. Al (Shirlene) Juno displaying a Matthew Norman repeater alarm clock made in England, and daughter Lisa Seifert holding a unique brass hourglass. Special prices have been posted as an Anniversary observance.

another factor that should make the Tick Tock Clock Shop especially considered. In reality this warranty is three years plus a four-month grace period. As example, a customer receives a three-year notice but does not wish to have his clock serviced at this time (clock still running). Three months later the clock ceases to function correctly, and the customer brings it in and it is serviced for a fee, then we give the customer a new three-year warranty, which in reality means a lifetime warranty that can go on and on.

There are hundreds of clocks from which to select at Tick Tock, from the most economical to the unusual and to the very finest such as a $4,250 clock handmade in Spain, a limited edition with only 80 having been made.

Prices of all are most likely much less than one would expect in clocks that are "quality throughout". Tick Tock would stock no other kind. All are of wood cases, with no simulated wood cabinets, no plastic cabinets.

Full Westminster chimes are stocked. "We service what we sell, with in-store service provided" is further advantage at this better clock shop where particular people congregate.

Locally owned and operated by Al and Shirlene Juno, the Tick Tock Clock Shop is a family operation.

Finish-Off Stripping Center
Serving At Avenue E Address

The do-it-yourselfer no longer need endure the fumes, mess and time-consuming labor of stripping down articles for refinishing!

Finish-Off Stripping Center is introducing to the Lubbock area a unique process that quickly and thoroughly removes layers of paint, stain and varnish. The process is safe for wood, metal and other materials, and does not damage the original surface like harsh commercial products and related methods can.

Finish-Off Stripping Center is new to Lubbock, established by long-time Lubbock businessman L.K. Lankford. Operating businesses here for about 20 years, Lankford is still associated with House Clinic. He was the founding owner of Arcadia Stone Manufacturing. Long involved in the home improvement field, Lankford has secured for Lubbock and Finish-Off Stripping Center, the exclusive rights to the Houck's process for professional stripping. The nearest comparable facility specializing in this unique process is located in Dallas.

Explains Need
Lankford commented that he "felt there was a definite need in this area, since many people enjoy refinishing but don't like the messy part." Now at a reasonable cost, Finish-Off Stripping Center can accomplish the hard work, leaving the do-it-yourselfer the fun part.

Even the largest furniture pieces can be completely stripped without having to be dismantled. Glued joints, formica insets or thin wood veneers are not damaged. The process is safe for even marble or stained glass.

Advantages Cited
Antique dealers and other individuals involved with restoration of treasured heirlooms have already discovered the advantages of the service offered by Finish-Off Stripping Center. Pieces with ornately carved designs, curved spindles or other hard-to-reach places can be the at-home refinisher's nightmare. At Finish-Off Stripping Center, the most unreachable cracks and crevices are cleared of the old finish or stain. The most delicate of details is safely preserved, and valuable antiques protected from stripping hazards.

Grease, grime and rust are dissolved away, making the process useful for cleaning tools and equipment. A rust preventative coating is applied to protect any metal surface until the item can be refinished. Among articles already processed by the recently opened business have been antique car parts for restoring and a Mercedes trunk lid in need of repainting. Other interesting collector's items and decorative pieces received at the Center have included old milk cans, kitchen scales and a hand drill press, in addition to an assortment of chairs, tables, cabinet and antique wardrobes.

"Know-How" Assured
Owner-operator Lankford and his wife, Barbara, who assists in the business, attended sessions last May in Atlanta, Georgia, to receive their specialized training in the exclusive stripping process. Since then, they have been setting up equipment and assembling materials for the Finish-Off Stripping Center. A representative from the company's home office in Stamford, New York, joined them initially when they began operating on Aug. 9 to oversee the beginning and to train shop foreman David Corder.

Lankford and his staff plan to expand their services to offer replacement hardware and refinishing supplies in the future.

"What have you got that you've been 'intending' to refinish but have put off because of the dressed mess and hassle of stripping? Call, customer relations director Kenan Curry at 747-3838 or bring your articles to be stripped by Finish-Off Stripping Center at 1922 Avenue E. Achieve completely professional results for your refinishing work by using the quick, thorough and safe process offered exclusively in Lubbock by Finish-Off Stripping Center."

Dynastar, Head and Olin ski lines are stocked, and the Salomon 626 and 727 ski bindings are featured, and Tyrolia 360 racing, 360 diagonal and the new 260 diagonal, even the 60 series bindings for aggressive children are stocked. Also, select from the "Look in 77" turntable bindings.

(Now would be a great time to select for Christmas gifting, too, at Ski-Lubbock Sports.)

Ski-Lubbock Sports, as a knowledgeable dealer and concentrating all activities to the field of skiing, can be the greatest help imaginable in pointing one to a fun season ahead.

The selection of a ski dealer might seem nothing more than a question of convenience, but take it from us (and a lot of our customers) where you buy your skis is a most important consideration, for the dealer who choose will affect the skis you choose, as well as the boots, poles, bindings and accessories you need to improve your skiing and for full enjoyment of the sport. Finding a dealer who can satisfy you in each of these areas is not difficult... simply depend upon Ski-Lubbock sports where expertise and customer consideration is the rule rather than exception."

Home Improvement Center Initiates Do-It Yourself Insulation Service

Maxe Home Improvement Center makes it possible... now you can insulate your home, doing it yourself, saving money and saving energy.

Get full details now from Maxey Home Improvement Center, 120 N. University, phone 765-7736.

There's nothing complicated about the offer or the operation. Maxey delivers materials and the insulation blowing machine right to the site, and a two-man operation can then get the job done speedily and economically.

Maximum Convenience

"You'll be insulating your home, yourself, with the insulation the professionals use: Premium Brand Rockwool. The blowing machine and trailer comes with everything you need to reinsulate your home quickly, easily, safely. The Premium Brand insulation is non-combustible, non-irritating, noncorrosive, and is the finest, most efficient mineral fiber insulation one can buy."

Not only can one conserve energy, saving on utility bills, too, but there are tax savings possible. Let the folks at Maxey Home Improvement Center go into detail on all this, showing how the tax credit program can help in your own situation.

With the new blowing insulation products and facilities of Maxey Home Improvement Center, six special advantages might be cited:

(1) Installation is easy; with the insulation being blown about six to eight feet from the end of the hose there's no need to crawl into tight places such as along the eaves;

(2) There's no cutting or fitting the insulation around wiring, framing members and other obstructions;

(3) It will take you only about half the time and much less effort to use blowing insulation;

(4) You will end up with a uniform, complete insulation coverage, even over the tops of the joists and other wood surfaces;

(5) There's no hauling bulky bags of insulation into tight attic access openings; the only thing that goes into the attic is you and the end of the hose.

(6) Finally, there's no big cleanup of used bags and excess insulation in your home. Blowing insulation is clean and neat.

Remember... Do it yourself and save, thanks to Maxey Home Improvement Center.

HOME INSULATION CONVENIENCE — Ben Romo of Maxey Home Improvement Center announces a do-it-yourself insulation package from that firm enabling added savings and convenience.

Panamanians Hail Takeover Of Canal

BALBOA, Panama (AP) — President Aristides Royo raised the Panamanian flag over Ancon Hill this morning, symbolically taking control of the Panama Canal Zone from the United States, which officially surrendered the area at midnight Sunday.

The 650-foot hill just inside the former Canal Zone long has meant to Panamanians the 76-year occupation of the 646-square-mile area. Vice President Mondale stood beside Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo as the flag climbed the 150-foot pole and a presidential band played the national anthem. Five other Latin American heads of state and other dignitaries stood around the base of the flagpole for the brief ceremony.

The giant flag, which will be floodlit at night, will be visible for miles, including from ships waiting in Panama Bay to enter the canal.

The summit of the hill was shrouded in fog just before the ceremony began, but cleared in time to permit a clear view of Panama City, the bay and the canal. "It is a view few Panamanians have ever seen," Royo told Nicaraguan junta member Violeta Chamorro.

In Panama City below, firecrackers popped, sirens wailed and horns honked as thousands of Panamanians paraded into the zone for a giant rally at Albrook air field. They were noisy but orderly and Canal Zone policemen and national guardsmen stood side by side watching the processions.

Church bells began pealing at midnight Sunday as the zone officially became Panamanian property. A shower of fireworks erupted from atop Ancon Hill, and Panamanians began entering the area.

At the center of the Bridge of the Americas, a giant structure over the zone, groups of Panamanians gathered at about 1 a.m. for brief rallies. Three youngsters climbed the structure, lowered the U.S. flag atop the bridge and replaced it with a Panamanian flag. They folded the U.S. flag, put it in a box and took it away. But other groups were seen tearing down American flags in other sectors.

Thousands of Panamanians spent Sunday night partying in the downtown area of the capital. They included busloads brought in from the provinces for the symbolic march of possession into the zone today.

The country's 1.8 million people were told it was their "patriotic duty" to participate in the march. The capital's streets were decorated with posters exhorting "Everyone to the Zone." About 250,000 marchers were expected.

Many of the American civilians in the zone, known locally as Zonians, were worried about the march.

"My dad said we should stay inside today and that we should get everything off the patio," said 10-year-old Matthew Haught.

The marchers were to enter the zone along Fourth of July Avenue, which the Panamanians call Avenue of the Martyrs because 84 Panamanians died in battles with U.S. troops during anti-American riots in 1964.

The rioting, triggered by Panamanian unhappiness over the 1903 treaty that gave the United States the canal zone "in perpetuity," led President Johnson later in 1964 to commit the United States to negotiating new pacts with Gen. Omar Torrijos.

Under the new treaties which President Carter and Torrijos signed in 1977, the Canal Zone government went out of existence at midnight Sunday and the 35,000 Americans living in the zone are subject to Panamanian laws. Panama takes over most basic services in the area, along with the operation of the ports and railroads and becomes landlord for 996 houses in which canal company employees live.

A new U.S. government agency, the Panama Canal Commission, will operate the canal until the year 2000.

The United States also retains five military bases occupying 109 square miles of the zone and manned by 10,000 troops until the year 2000 and the headquarters of the U.S. Southern Command will continue to be located there.

Attorneys File Brief In City Voting Suit

Attorneys for minority plaintiffs in a challenge of the City of Lubbock's at-large method of electing council members filed an appeal brief with the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans today.

Unless an extension is granted, attorneys for the city now have 30 days to submit a reply brief with the court.

The appeal will be an evidentiary one, said Dan Benson, one of the plaintiffs' attorneys, rather than an appeal based on errors in the U.S. District Court proceedings.

This means basically the same evidence will be presented to the court with an assertion that U.S. District Judge Halbert O. Woodward reached the wrong conclusion when he ruled in June that the at-large voting system has not discriminated against minorities in Lubbock.

During the trial in Woodward's court,

A SOLDIER'S PRAYER — An Israeli soldier wearing a prayer shawl reads from his prayer book as he sits at the historic Wailing Wall in Jerusalem Sunday, before the start of Yom Kippur. Israeli Troops On Alert During Holy Day Rites

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — Israelis observed Judaism's holiest day today with fasting and prayer — and memories of another Yom Kippur six years ago when they confronted the armies of Egypt on a battlefield since given up in the name of peace.

Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement, began at sundown Sunday with the plaintive chant of the Kol Nidre prayer in synagogues, converted hotel auditoriums and at the Western Wall in Jerusalem's old city.

Army patrols and police were put on special holiday alert. A spokesman reported "all quiet" on Israel's frontiers. But a bomb damaged the rail link between Tel Aviv and Jerusalem before the onset of the holiday Sunday. Thousands participated in the sun-down-to-sundown period without food or drink in appealing to God for forgiveness for last year's misdeeds and to inscribe them in the "Book of Life" for the new year.

The 10-day high holy day period began with the New Year observance, Rosh Hashanah, Sept. 21.

Emergency vehicles of Israel's Red Cross, the Mogen David Adom, were on standby alert to help Jews who fall ill from the rigorous fast in temperatures expected to peak in the high 80s and low 90s.

They were among the few vehicles given special permission to travel on the holiday. Shops and theaters closed. Radio and television went off the air. The country virtually came to a standstill.

Even Israel's large secular population reverses the imposed solemnity, using the break in their usual six-day work week for rest and quiet at home.

The army spokesman said every unit beefed up patrols in the usual holiday practice, alert for possible terrorist attacks. Special measures were taken in the occupied territories, with Arabs in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip barred from leaving them.

But there was a difference this year: This was Israel's first year at peace with Egypt.

It was also a time when Israelis recalled another Yom Kippur — only six years ago but already part of a history that both signatories to the Camp David accords hope will never repeat itself.

It was on Yom Kippur six years ago that the fourth Middle East war in 31 years broke out with Egypt's surprise attack across the Suez Canal and into the Sinai Desert, which Israel is returning as part of their peace pact.

Food Prices Up Slightly from last month, with flour and sugar balancing out each other. Five pounds of flour dropped 4 cents, while five pounds of sugar went up 4 cents, at 95 cents and $1.33 respectively.

Although a head of lettuce is selling for a relatively low price compared to some months in the past three years, its price went up 10 cents, from 39 cents a pound in September to 49 cents.

A gallon of milk rose 4 cents this month, with milk prices hitting their highest mark since The Avalanche-Journal began its marketbasket survey in 1975. A gallon is selling now for $2.47, compared to $1.70 in March 1975.

Milk prices increased a few cents each year during 1975-1977, but began taking quicker jumps in 1978 and 1979.

A 49-ounce box of laundry detergent rose only 2 cents, from $1.73 in September to $1.75, and several prices remained exactly the same as they were on last month's price tags.

Those totals included bread at 75 cents for a large loaf; medium-sized eggs, 87 cents a dozen; a can of whole green beans, 47 cents; a one-pound package of stick butter, 81 cents; and a 12-ounce jar of creamy peanut butter, 92 cents.

Coffee remained the same at $3.45 for a one-pound can of regular grind, but is at its highest level since May 1977, reportedly because of a freeze in Brazil.

House Blocking Federal Funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — There is no chance that the House will interrupt its 10-day recess to end an impasse with the Senate that is holding up funds for most of the federal government, top House aides said today.

The deadlock brought at least 10 major government departments into the new fiscal year today technically without funds to pay bills or meet payrolls.

The tax money is rolling in as usual, but government agencies have no legal right to spend it. That's because the two houses have not agreed on a resolution to authorize continued spending at last year's levels.

Senators have roundly criticized the House for taking a recess while the funding dispute remains.

The holdup is based on disagreement between the House and the Senate over a congressional pay raise and abortion funding.

House leaders have no plans to try to resolve the issue this week, despite pressure being applied by the Senate to try to force House action on Tuesday, aides to House leaders said.

The House has scheduled a session for Tuesday, but it is intended to be just a formality — with no legislative work scheduled and nearly all of the chamber's 435 members expected to be out of town until Oct. 9.

Tuesday's session will just be in and out, said a staff member of the House Democratic leadership, who declined to be identified. "There is no chance that any work will be done, regardless of what the Senate is saying or does."

The aide said House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill had been assured by congressional administration fiscal officials that delaying action for a week or so would have no effect" on federal payrolls, Social Security and welfare checks or on the government's ability to meet its commitments.

However, Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd has said that there may only "a few days" of grace before the lack of funds will begin impairing the government's ability to fully function.

The Senate Appropriations Committee planned to meet later today to approve a stop-gap appropriations measure. Byrd planned to bring that bill directly to the floor as soon as the committee acted.

That could enable it to be before the House by Tuesday, Senate leaders said that sending the bill to the House might pressure the House leadership into summoning members back to town.

"The only way the House could do something on Tuesday would be by unanimous consent," another leadership aide said privately.

"And that's not going to happen. Because if someone tried to bring up any piece of legislation on Tuesday, there would be a point of order raised that there was no quorum. And, with everyone out of town, you could never get a quorum."

Legislation actually appropriating money under a new 1980 budget is still far from final passage, but it is not unusual for new appropriations bills not to be in place in time for the start of the new budget year each Oct. 1. Those situations usually are resolved by passing a continuing resolution authorizing temporary spending authority.

The new wrinkle this year — one which makes the situation potentially more serious — is that the Senate killed the continuing resolution late Friday.

EMS To Remain Under Hospital

(Continued From Page One) funding EMS at its current level of service. Ehler is asking for a subsidy of $71,000 for the comprehensive service.

Ehler maintains that an even greater subsidy might be needed the following year to cover equipment costs.

In his second proposal, Ehler suggests manning two emergency stations rather than the present three, keeping one station on standby. He speculated that maintaining the third station, and therefore a five-to-six-minute response time, costs the district an additional $50,000.

He proposes to run EMS with fewer substations for $121,000. The proposal is contingent on leasing the equipment already owned by EMS for the minimum fee legally allowed.

Committee members did not go over the specifics MSI proposal, stopping as soon as they got to $180,000 subsidy.

Board member Gwen Stafford remarked earlier in the meeting, "The amount of subsidy will get your attention."

"With this in mind, we really can't afford either of them."

Administrative committee members asked Hollingsworth to return to the board in two weeks with some specific cost cutting measures for EMS. Hospital financial consultant for Brookwood Management Services Ronnie Elliott told the committee he has been working with acting EMS Doak Enabnit on additional cost cutting proposals.

The Board of Managers for the hospital district was meeting in a closed session with the president of Brookwood Management Services at 12:45 p.m. The board is beginning preliminary talks toward establishing a longer contract with the Birmingham, Ala., management firm.

High Court Aids City

In other actions today, the Supreme Court agreed to decide whether American workers may refuse, free from employer retaliation, to perform jobs they consider too dangerous.

In a case of great significance, the justices will study whether federal laws and regulations bar employers from taking action against workers who base their refusals on a belief that the assigned tasks present an immediate danger of death or serious injury.

Two federal appeals courts have reached opposite conclusions on the issue. In the case acted on today, the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled in favor of Labor Secretary Ray Marshall's authority to protect workers.

That ruling was appealed by the Wheelcorp, which was sued by Marshall after it took disciplinary action against two employees at its household appliance plant in Marion, Ohio.

In other matters today as it opened its 1978-79 term, the Supreme Court:

— Told Nevada authorities that they may proceed with a new execution date for confessed murderer, Jesse Bishop, who has opposed legal efforts to save his life.

— Let stand lower-court decisions giving members of the clergy no more constitutional protection than news reporters from inquiring grand juries.

— Involved in the worker-safety case is a section of the Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970 that forbids employers from discharging or discriminating against workers who file a safety complaint against them.

Pope Brings Peace Quest To U.S.

(Continued From Page One) on the other side of the Atlantic will be many of our brave," Irish President Patrick Hillery told the pope in a farewell address at the airport.

Cardinal Tomas O. Fiaich, primate of all Ireland, told the pope that while he was here Ireland was "a whole people on pilgrimage and a whole nation at prayer."

"Pope John Paul will have no respite, America waits," said the commentator for the live coverage on the Irish television broadcast as the helicopter near Shannon Airport.

The Polish pontiff addressed an estimated 400,000 Catholics from Ireland's traditionally conservative southwest who gathered at Limerick race track.

The Mass at Limerick was cut short after communion, a priest announced, because the pope "is very tired" and "has a long journey ahead of him." A flight of pigeons was released to mark the end of the ceremony.

The pontiff has put in extremely long days during his Irish tour. He has delivered six major speeches and a score of minor addresses while criss-crossing Ireland over a total distance of about 780 miles. Out of the pope's 52 hours in Ireland, about 39 hours have been filled with public or semi-public activities, leaving him about 13 hours for rest.

The pope then entered his crowd-touring vehicle.

The crowd cheered wildly as the pope walked on the race track to the simple covered altar. Then the deeply religious country folk sat in the stands with their hands clasped as the pontiff told them.

"Abortion, as the Vatican Council stated, is one of the abominable crimes.

Cool Front Dips Into Panhandle

A-J News Services

A blustery cool front was moving through the Texas Panhandle at midday, bringing gusty winds and slightly cooler weather to the region. The front is expected to move through the South Plains late today and probably will drop the South Plains' torrid temperatures by a few degrees for the next several days.

Behind the new front, winds up to 50 miles per hour raked southwestern Kansas and southeastern Colorado. Some blowing dust was reported.

The front, though not likely to touch off any precipitation on the South Plains, was forecast to hold afternoon maximums to the mid-80s on Tuesday, a sizable drop from the 90-plus readings of the past week.

However, chances appeared good that the mercury would reach a record high for the date before arrival of the front.

Record for the date is only 92 degrees, set in 1951, and with temperatures running well above the seasonal average this morning chances for a new record seemed to be a good bet.

Temperatures were expected to continue slightly cooler well into the week after passage of the front, then fall considerably toward the weekend.

The extended forecast predicts highs in the 80s on Wednesday, dropping to the 70s by Friday. Lows also were due to show a corresponding drop, dipping to near 50 tonight after this morning's low of 62 degrees.

Despite the considerable fall in temperatures predicted, the front is only bringing a return to more seasonable weather. Normal afternoon high for this time of year is 80 degrees.

Southwesterly winds this morning were expected to shift to northerly at 10 to 20 this afternoon with arrival of the front, then become westerly at 5 to 10 mph on Tuesday.

Elsewhere in the state today, clear skies prevailed except for some fog along the upper Gulf Coast.

Temperatures ranged from the upper 40s in the western mountains to near 70 in the Dallas-Fort Worth area.

plaintiffs' attorneys attempted to prove a pervasive pattern of past discrimination against minorities had affected their ability to participate fully in the political process.

The attorneys also alleged city officials have been unresponsive to minority needs as a result of the at-large election of council members, and urged Woodward to order the city to institute a single-member district or ward election system.

The lead attorney for the appeal, and the author of the appeal brief, is William Garrett, an attorney with West Texas Legal Services in Fort Worth.

The tax-supported Legal Services Corporation also is financing the appeal, expected to cost up to $7,000.

Benson said no decision on the appeal should be expected from the overloaded 5th Circuit until late spring or early summer next year.

To attack "unborn life" at any moment from its conception is to undermine the whole moral order, which is the true guardian of the well-being of man."

He said of divorce that "the stability and sanctity of marriage are being threatened by new ideas and by the aspirations of some."

"Divorce, for whatever reason it is introduced, inevitably becomes easier and easier to obtain and it gradually comes to be accepted as a normal part of life."

"Pray, pray not to be led into temptation. Now is the time of testing for Ireland. This generation is once more a generation of decision."

The very possibility of divorce in the sphere of civil law makes stable and permanent marriages more difficult for everyone," the pope said.

"May Ireland always continue to give witness before the modern world to her traditional commitment to the sanctity and the indissolubility of the marriage bond."

Civil divorce is not recognized in Ireland, though in a bizarre twist, the church hands out hundreds of annulments every year. Abortion is also illegal in Ireland. But thousands of women go to Britain every year for abortions.

During speeches Sunday in Dublin, Galway and Knock, the pope lashed out repeatedly at murder and violence as weapons for change in Ireland.

"Murder is murder, no matter what the motives or ends," he declared. He called the war in Northern Ireland, where the predominantly Catholic Provisional wing of the IRA is fighting to end Protestant domination and British rule, "this great wound now afflicting our people."

Citibus Has Low Accident Rate

By NANCY ALLEN
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Citibus riders can take heart — the Lubbock transit system's accident rate beats the national average, according to a comparison of National Safety Council and American Transit Corporation (Lubbock Transit's St. Louis-based parent company) statistics.

City bus systems nationwide average 5 accidents per 100,000 miles, says a spokesman for NSC in Chicago, while CTC Regional Manager Jim Bender reports the average on Citibus routes is 4.8 accidents per 100,000 miles.

Both figures include passenger injuries within the bus, in addition to collisions involving other vehicles. "Everything," commented Bender.

During the fiscal year which ends today, 38 accidents occurred along Citibus routes, according to departing Lubbock Transit Manager, Ernie Prenevost. Of those, 11 were to bus passengers, while the remaining 27 involved vehicles or pedestrians.

Prenevost said five persons claimed injuries resulting from the collisions — three Citibus passengers and two "in other vehicles." No fatalities resulted from the Citibus mishaps, and according to Prenevost, none of the injuries was serious.

Insurance claims against Citibus, which still are incomplete for fiscal 1978, show at least one broken bone was sustained by a Citibus passenger when the bus driver failed to tie down a wheelchair passenger.

Prenevost said transit companies commonly compile accident records to show what the National Safety Council terms "chargeable" and "nonchargeable" accidents.

A chargeable accident, he explained, is one which the bus driver — in management eyes — could possibly have averted. A nonchargeable accident, Prenevost continued, counts a mishap which occurred although the company judged the bus driver to have done all he could to prevent it. Neither category takes into account legal responsibility for the accidents.

Prenevost said Lubbock Transit management firm considered 18 accidents to be chargeable during the past year.

The company notes each accident and its classification in the bus driver's personnel file, he continued, and policy calls for reprimands, retraining and termination on the basis of driver safety records.

Of Citibus' 44 full time drivers, 25 last year had no chargeable accidents, Prenevost said. Between them, those drivers have accrued 129 years "safe driving time," with up to 17 years per driver without a chargeable accident.

Statistics showing how many times Citibus drivers received traffic tickets for moving violations were not released to the Avalanche-Journal. Prenevost claimed they were "all in boxes" pending ATC's replacement today by another management firm.

According to Bender, however, the figures are covered under the Privacy Act, because they are included in each driver's personnel file. He acknowledged that records showing chargeable and nonchargeable accidents also are included in the personnel files.

Prenevost stressed his commitment to Citibus safety over the 17 years he has been in Lubbock. "It's a continuing business; safety must be a daily thing with everybody, particularly the supervisors."

With both money and public image ("we wouldn't be attractive to the passenger if he couldn't think he was safe on the bus") in mind, Prenevost outlined the Citibus safety program.

Beginning with checking a driver applicant's driving record and assessing whether he has "the right disposition to think safety eight hours and 120 miles a day," it is carried out through part-time street inspections by Citibus supervisors and three-times-yearly safety seminars. Spot checks of a driver's personal driving record also are conducted.

"Our objective is to assist the operator be safer," Prenevost said.

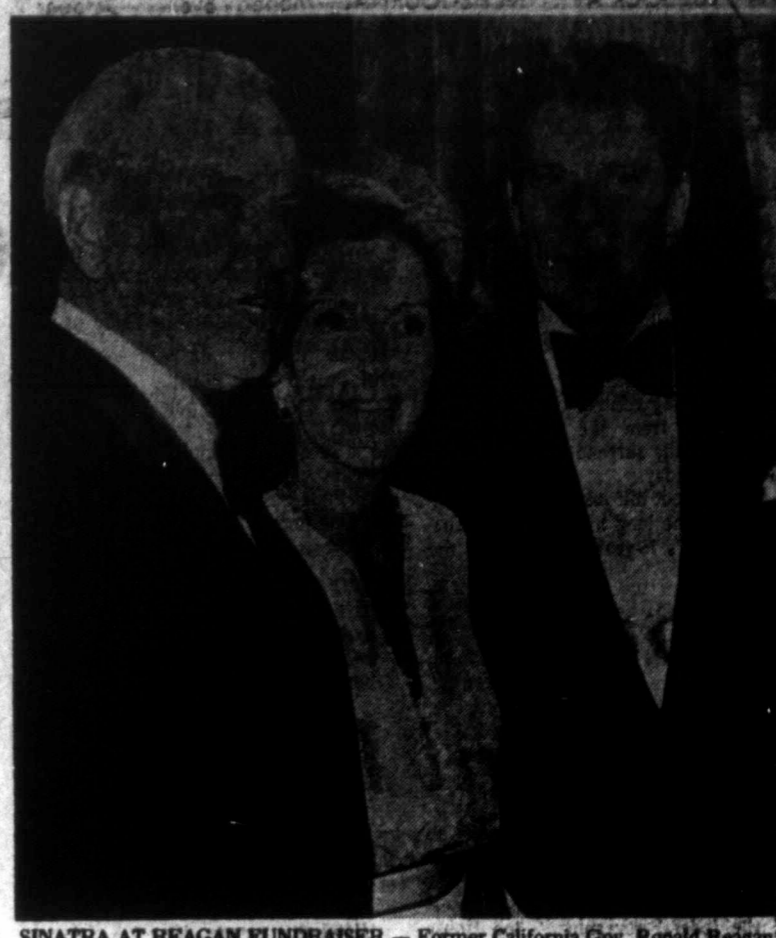

Additionally, mechanical inspections are conducted every 3,000 miles or once a month. Though each of the 30-some parts of the bus inspected does not relate directly to road safety, Prenevost commented "it's hard to separate them. In some cases a broken mirror could be as important as anything else."

With the Grumman (Citibus) equipment approaching its five-year optimum use age, Prenevost acknowledged maintenance becomes increasingly difficult. "But we take the position that if it isn't safe, it won't run," he said.

Prenevost estimated that over the 20 years Lubbock Transit has managed Citibus, the system has carried some 32 million passengers more than 16 million miles without a fatality to permanent injury to a passenger.

He did not have figures regarding non-passenger victims, but remembered at least one fatality since 1978, and admitted "some" of the non-bus injuries have been serious.

With the beginning of the 1979 fiscal year, Lubbock Transit will be replaced by ATE management firm. Incoming General Manager Dwight Maddox commented he believes Citibus' present safety record is sound, but he hopes to improve it. "I've never seen anything that couldn't be improved upon," said Maddox.

Plainview Woman, Son Die In Car-Truck Crash

PLAINVIEW (Special) — Services for Donna Gale Hodges, 19, of Plainview and her 3-year-old son Kenneth Dale will be at 3 p.m. Tuesday in the First Assembly of God Church in Plainview with the Rev. Doug Metzgar, pastor, officiating, assisted by the Rev. Jerry Roberts, former pastor.

Burial will be in Parklawn Memorial Gardens under the direction of Lemons Funeral Home.

Mrs. Hodges and her son were killed Sunday afternoon when Mrs. Hodges' car and a pickup truck collided head-on on a county dirt road three miles east of Plainview.

Both were pronounced dead at the scene by Abernathy Justice of the Peace Jean Marr, who ruled the deaths accidental. The accident occurred about 3 p.m.

The driver of the 1977 Chevrolet pickup truck, Max Noel of Plainview, was not injured in the crash.

Department of Public Safety reports show that Mrs. Hodges was traveling west and Noel was eastbound on the dirt road when the collision occurred.

Mrs. Hodges is a Plainview native and was graduated from Plainview High School.

She was the head checker at Howard Discount Center here. Mrs. Hodges was a member of the First Assembly of God Church.

She is survived by two sisters, Tammy Hodges and June Malone, both of the home, and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Hodges of Plainview.

Beginning with checking a driver applicant's driving record and assessing whether he has "the right disposition to think safety eight hours and 120 miles a day," it is carried out through part-time street inspections by Citibus supervisors and three-times-yearly safety seminars. Spot checks of a driver's personal driving record also are conducted.

Black state legislators planned to lead a protest march today from the city's Roxbury section to the Boston Common where this afternoon the pope was to celebrate the first Mass of his U.S. tour, said Rep. Mel King.

Extra police will guard school buildings for the re-opening of classes Tuesday. School Superintendent Robert C. Wood said. Schools were closed today because of the pope's visit.

"We want to send out the message that we will not tolerate any violence," said Chuck Wexler, a spokesman for Police Commissioner Joseph M. Jordan.

Wood appealed to students to return to school and assured parents "every step humanly possible will be taken to assure the safety of all children, in the schools and as they travel the streets of the city."

Three White Youths Arrested For Shooting Black Athlete

BOSTON (AP) — Three white youths are under arrest in the shooting of a black high school football player that has sparked tighter security at Boston schools — and a protest aimed at Pope John Paul II.

Black state legislators planned to lead a protest march today from the city's Roxbury section to the Boston Common where this afternoon the pope was to celebrate the first Mass of his U.S. tour, said Rep. Mel King.

Extra police will guard school buildings for the re-opening of classes Tuesday. School Superintendent Robert C. Wood said. Schools were closed today because of the pope's visit.

"We want to send out the message that we will not tolerate any violence," said Chuck Wexler, a spokesman for Police Commissioner Joseph M. Jordan.

Wood appealed to students to return to school and assured parents "every step humanly possible will be taken to assure the safety of all children, in the schools and as they travel the streets of the city."

However, the citywide Parents' Advisory Council called for a system-wide boycott of Boston's public schools on Tuesday unless the city administration can guarantee the safety of youngsters.

Council co-chairman Pat Corcoran backed the boycott. "We are still not sure about the safety of our children," she said.

Wood said extra monitors will ride buses in the Charlestown section, where the shooting took place Friday. He said Sunday some buildings already were under surveillance, but did not disclose the locations.

Meanwhile, Darryl Williams, 15, of the Roxbury section, was in critical condition and on the danger list at City Hospital, paralyzed from the neck down and unable to breathe without aid.

Jordan announced Sunday the arrests of three teen-agers on charges of assault and battery with a dangerous weapon. The three were being held on $100,000 bail pending arraignment Tuesday.

Mayor Kevin White said Friday the shooting was "apparently racially motivated." The FBI entered the investigation "in connection with possible violations of the federal civil rights act."

The shooting was "not racial, in my opinion," said police Deputy Superintendent William MacDonald, King disputed the officer's opinion.

King said protesters did not expect to meet the pope.

"It's not necessary to meet the pope," said King, "but we'll have banners; I hope he can read."

"Our object is to get to the pope as the moral and spiritual leader of the people who are responsible for the direction this city goes," said King.

Tax notices are being mailed today to the approximately 60,000 persons who own property in Lubbock County.

Today is also the first day that 1979 ad valorem taxes may be paid, Tax Assessor-Collector Frank Stuart said.

Lubbock County taxes about 90,000 parcels of land.

Property owners who pay their taxes in October will get a 3-percent discount. The discount drops to 2 percent in November and 1 percent in December.

After January, when the face amount of the notice will be due, there is a penalty of 1/2 of one percent per month.

Crime Line Awards Total Exceeds $7,000

Lubbock's highly successful Crime Line program now has paid out more than $7,000 in reward money to anonymous informants who have called the Crime Line number with information leading to the clearing of a crime.

The crime-busting program is funded entirely through donations from private citizens, and guarantees anonymity to all persons calling in.

Persons wishing to make donations to the program's reward fund should mail them to Box 2000, Lubbock. And all persons with information concerning a felony are eligible to receive rewards of $300 or more if their information aids in the solution of the crime. This week the Lubbock Police Department is offering $1,700 in rewards pertaining to five specific crimes.

The "Spotlight Crime of the Week," which has a reward of $500 attached to it, occurred on September 19, when a local woman entered the police station and said she had been forced into a car at Avenue Q and 34th Street and raped.

The woman said she was walking when a light blue Chevrolet Camaro drove by and three black males in the car yelled at her. She said she tried to run but one of the men pulled her into the car and began driving down Avenue P. She said the man who forced her into the car raped her while the trio drove around. The victim told police she was eventually pushed from the car at 30th Street and Avenue P.

Four burglaries each carry rewards of $300 for information leading to their solution.

In the first, police say that a self storage unit at 5840 50th, No. 61, had $1,000 worth of property removed from it August 23rd. Taken were two Cervin-Vega speakers, a Kustom mixer, a stereo Kustom amplifier and the cords and hookups of the public address system.

Burglars opened a kitchen window at a house at 2316 Seventh St.

on the night of July 16, and took several items, including a Texas Instruments SR-51 calculator, a Backgammon set, some Concord stereo equipment and a Home Box Office cable TV unit. Also taken was an RCA color portable TV set, serial No. 632436122. Some items were marked with Texas driver's license No. 2295176 or 7736863.

Another July 16 burglary, this one at 1805-A 14th St., netted burglars an RCA XL100 color TV, an RCA cassette player, some stereo equipment, an RCA TV cartridge, 25 record albums, 100 cassette tapes, a 12 gauge single shot shotgun, a classical guitar, a chain watch and a ring. Police said the intruders entered through a back door.

And on Sept. 11, the Lubbock County Sheriff's Office received word that a burglary at H-1, Shallowater cost the owners some $6,600 worth of property. Someone kicked open the front door of the home and removed a Yamaha YP-701 turntable, a Yamaha CF-2020 home entertainment center, two NS 100 speakers, and a cassette deck.

Information on any of these burglaries is worth $300 to persons calling the Crime Line number.

Seminar Stresses Rape Problem

By RUTHANNE BROCKWAY
Avalanche-Journal Staff

An explicit film demonstrating a reenacted rape, the testimony of a Lubbock rape victim and the shocking statistic that one of 15 women will be raped in her lifetime combined to make Sunday's rape prevention seminar message clear.

Rape is a degrading, humiliating violent crime.

And it can happen to you. It's an individual decision for each woman to make whether to resist or cooperate, noted Becky Mahan, chairman of the seminar and director of Lubbock's Rape Crisis Center.

But a brief film clip of convicted rapists discussing the subject, ended with the chilling comment of one rapist, "The woman I raped fought back and she's dead."

Miss Mahan advised the audience of some 500 to 600 persons. "There is no one single foolproof plan."

Assess your attacker, your surroundings and yourself, she said. Do you think he will carry out his threat? Is he armed?

If you are in a desolate area, your screams may infuriate your attacker and bring you no help. But a scream in a populated area may save your life.

"There's no question we have a rape crisis in our city," Mayor Dirk West said. In 1978 there were 177 reported rapes in Lubbock. In the first six months of this year there have been more than 70 rapes reported, a figure far ahead of last year. "And underline reported," West noted, adding that many rapes are not reported.

The battle to fight rape has two fronts: prevention and penalty.

Prevention tips include changing locks when moving to a new address, keeping doors and windows locked, keeping well-lighted grounds, using last name only on the mailbox and in the phone directory and being leery of trusting strangers.

As for the courtroom battle, Criminal District Attorney John Montford said, "We intend to make this a very unprofitable crime in our community." A round of applause erupted after Montford told the audience the lowest sentence given this year in Lubbock for aggravated rape was 99 years.

People in Lubbock tend to be friendly, warm and kind, said Pat Riley of the Rape Crisis Center. But that can lull women into a false sense of security when a stranger comes knocking at the door asking to use the phone to call for car repair.

"The cold plain facts are that you can't trust everyone," she said.

Forty percent of the rapes reported in Lubbock last year occurred in the victim's home. More than half of those rapes either used or displayed a weapon.

And in 53 percent of those rapes, the victims were sexually assaulted more than once during the attack.

Sexual assault includes vaginal penetration, oral and rectal. Abusive language frequently accompanies the assault.

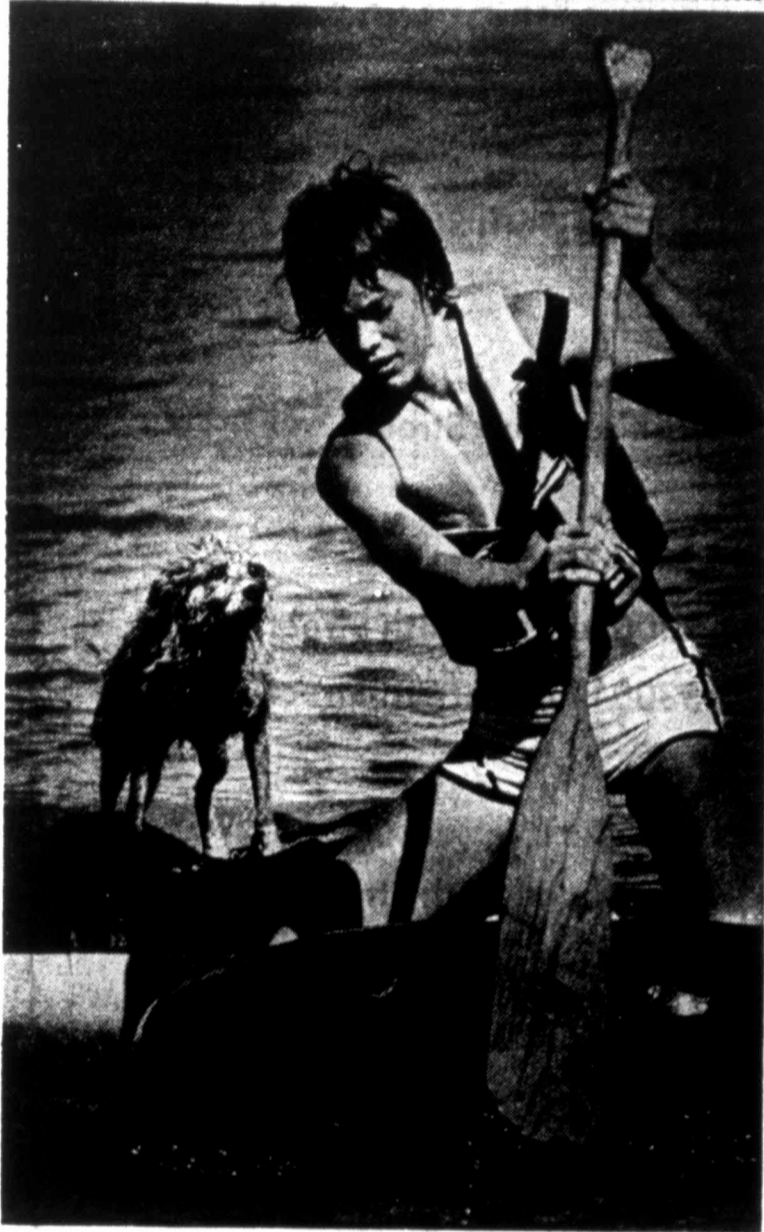

It may be embarrassing to repeat those graphic words that the attacker used, but Det. Sgt. Butch Hargrave of the Lubbock Police Department said it is important for victims to report as many details as possible.

The attacker may have used the same words and methods in a previous attack, and when several victims report the crimes, it may help police solve the case.

In Lubbock, 73 percent of reported rape cases are solved, which is higher than the national average of 51 percent solved.

Although rapists often threaten victims not to report the attack, Hargrave said in his 17 years on the Lubbock police force, "I've never known of a victim being harassed (after reporting a rape)." See SEMINAR Page 6

By JOHNNY HOLMES
Avalanche-Journal Staff

It wasn't exactly the same as whipping through the churning white water of the Colorado River rapids, nor was it a re-creation of "Deliverance," but the "Great Yellowhouse Canyon Raft Race," held Sunday in the Canyon Lakes, was certainly a memorable event.

More than anything else, the race was an excuse to get outside and enjoy one last sweaty summer day before autumn sets in for keeps, and more than 1,000 people took advantage of the gorgeous Indian summer afternoon to do exactly that. And our Olympic sculls team can rest assured, they'll get no competition from Lubbock.

The race, sponsored by the city Parks and Recreation Dept., the Texas Tech University Recreational Sports Dept., and KSEL Radio, covered a 1 1/2 mile course through Canyon Lakes 1 and 2, which stretch from near N. Loop 289 across N. University Avenue, and was marked by a spirit of carefree fun and a relative lack of concern over who managed to win the prizes in each of several different categories of type of craft.

To be sure, there was some competition, especially in the canoe races that preceded the main event, but over a course that long, few of the 108 entries, most of which were inexperienced and out of shape, could manage any sort of rapid, consistent clip. The most notable exception was the team of Rusty Hamilton and Ricky Tomanson of Waco, which blazed through the course in 14 minutes, 24 seconds, almost twice as fast as any other raft in the event.

Instead, most took their time and enjoyed the trip through the murky green water of the canyon lakes project, trading good-natured insults and encouragement from the spectators lining the canal. And, if any sort of speed records were set Sunday, it was because there were none to beat in the first place.

City Parks and Recreation director John Alford had said the race was created to have some fun, but also to put the canyon lakes to use and to create another enjoyable alternative for the numerous outdoors lovers in the city. In each of those respects, the raft race was completely successful.

That success can be attributed largely to the efforts of the three sponsors, but also to the creativity and ingenuity of the participants. Sure, there were some who decided to run the race in your basic innertubes or rubber rafts, but most of the entries snacked off imagination, however demented. There were rafts of rubber, plastic and wood, and various combinations thereof; there were rafts that looked like longhorn steers, and one that looked like a carrot, complete with orange paint job and a green sticking from the rear.

There was a raft made of six styrofoam beer coolers lashed together and carpeted, and, most incredibly, there was one wood and rubber raft sponsored by Mr. Tom's Cutters that carried 26 screaming, cheering people on it. Even more incredibly, all 26 people who began the race on the precariously balanced raft managed to stay on all the way to the finish — which is certainly more than some persons on rafts not nearly so crowded can say.

The sponsors required Coast Guard life jackets on all participants, though, so even those who fell overboard in their enthusiasm suffered nothing more than a temporary case of dampness and in the blazing sun, no one stayed wet too long.

Whatever the reasons the competi-

Legal Aid Society Gets United Way Funds

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is another in a series of articles dealing with the United Way of Lubbock. The stories reflect actual case histories here.)

A young woman with three children was beaten by her husband on Saturday night. Monday morning she goes to the office of the Legal Aid Society of Lubbock, Inc., she wants to file for divorce. What can she do?

This case, according to attorney Thomas Giovannitti, director of Legal Aid, is one which might cross his desk on any typical day.

The Legal Aid Society of Lubbock, Inc., is a United Way agency and will receive $37,127 from the United Way's 1980 goal of $1,802,752.

The story of the young woman continues. The police were called that Saturday night, but could do nothing in the family argument. She feels she has no recourse but to divorce her husband of 12 years.

During the course of an interview at the Legal Aid office, it comes to light that her husband has beaten her frequently over the past years of their marriage.

Also, she says he works hard but he only gives her a little money for groceries. If the children need extra medical care or other necessities, he doesn't help. Yet, he beats his wife if the children are not neat, clean and in good health.

In this case Giovannitti said, if the woman meets the guidelines of indigency set up by the federal government and other requirements which are measured through the interview at the office, the agency will handle the divorce, perhaps, by first obtaining a restraining order barring the husband to see his wife and children or visit their home.

The woman is not charged for the services of Legal Aid, but clients must pay their own court costs.

Giovannitti said that the agency deals in family law and will not handle cases involving criminal charges or traffic violations.

He said that many times persons will come to his office not knowing whether they need a lawyer with the problems they are having. At this time, he may only have to refer the person to another agency or write a letter for them.

Area Justice Of Peace Requests Salary Boost

A-J Correspondent

PLAINVIEW — Justice of the Peace Glenn Stone filed Friday for a grievance hearing in the court of Hale County Judge Bill Hollars for a salary increase.

Stone had asked the commissioners to give him a $100 a month salary adjustment and to increase his car allowance $50 a month. Instead, the commissioners granted Stone along with other county employees a seven percent salary raise raise, a $25 a month salary increase for Stone.

Stone, who has requested salary adjustments several years and been rejected by Hale County commissioners is the first to request a grievance hearing in the county since the procedure was enacted by state law in 1972.

A committee, consisting of the county sheriff, tax assessor-collector, county clerk, county treasurer, county attorney, district clerk and three citizens must consider the grievance within 30 days after it is filed, according to law.

Judge Hollars also will sit on the committee but will not vote.

If six committee members vote in favor of a raise, then the county commissioners will vote again on the raise based on findings of the committee.

If all the members on the committee vote for a raise then Stone's raise will go into effect the first day of the following month.

Former Prostitute Disputes IRS Estimates On Brothel's Earnings

RENO, Nev. (AP) — The fabled prostitute's heart of gold isn't always matched by her purse, according to witnesses at the tax appeal trial of brothel owner Joe Conforte.

Federal attorneys portray Conforte's Mustang Ranch brothel as a booming, $2.7 million-a-year sex mill packed with as many as 60 working prostitutes.

But a former prostitute said last week she earned less than $14,000 a year at the legal brothel. And other witnesses say the "working girls" often sit and knit.

Pamela Dean, a cashier at the brothel east of Reno, said the Mustang took in $11,082 on the biggest night she's seen — during the 1976 Reno Air Races.

But she said that more often, even during the normally busy summer, the brothel wouldn't make enough to cover the night's expenses.

On some slow, winter nights, "The girls sit down and knit; they don't have anything to do," said maid Willie Mae Smith.

Mrs. Dean said that in years she worked as a prostitute, she had only $13,000 to $14,000 in earnings. And that included her husband's part-time job income, she added.

Conforte and his wife, Sally, are appealing Internal Revenue Service claims they owe $5.6 million in back taxes and penalties on unreported income for the years 1973 through 1976.

Conforte paid a total of $444,000 in taxes for the four years and refused to list his income, saying the government might use it against him in criminal cases.

The government contends Conforte tried to defraud the IRS and hide his true income by burning records, dealing only in cash and telling employees not to file income tax returns.

Many brothel workers testified they were told to burn papers in the trash can beside the cashier's desk, but none identified the papers.

Because all other records had been destroyed, government attorney Gordon Cook told Tax Court Judge Samuel Sterrett last week, the Mustang's income for all four years was based on a single scrap of paper — a "trick sheet" of prostitute earnings scavenged from a brothel trash can by a part-time worker.

The IRS figured that sheet represented a night shift. It added 50 percent as estimated daytime earning and multiplied by 365 days — and then by four years — to get the $2.7 million figure, Cook said.

But cashier Neva Tate said the "trick sheet" covered a full 24-hour shift — reversing her testimony in three previous court appearances.

The government also used the grand jury testimony of a Japanese prostitute named Miko, since deported, to support its estimates of brothel profits. She had claimed to earn $20,000 a year.

But Gloria "Kitty Bono" Elliott, former madame of the Conforte-owned Starlight brothel east of Carson City, testified that Miko was a "top girl," the most profitable at the Starlight.

THE CAPITOL

Senate's Silence Unusual

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate session began routinely enough. The bell rang and Sen. Bill Bradley rapped for order. The chaplain recited a brief prayer. Some parliamentary business was disposed of and then the chamber fell uncharacteristically silent.

"La de da do," sang Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va.

He turned to his Republican counterpart, Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr. of Tennessee.

"I would like to hear the distinguished minority leader expound on some subject," said Byrd. "Just any subject."

"I heard the majority leader expounding in lyrical tones a moment ago for the edification of the gallery, but since we have already passed that high point in the proceedings of the Senate today, I find myself speechless," replied Baker.

"When the distinguished minority leader is speechless, one notices a great silence fall over this chamber like a cloud," said Byrd.

The problem was Sen. Harry F. Byrd Jr., the independent from Virginia. He was late. He had reserved 15 minutes to denounce federal spending and growing national debt.

"La de da do," sang the majority leader, once again.

"I must say this may be a historic first in the chamber," said Baker. "I have not heard the musical tones of the majority leadership heretofore, nor have I seen any reference to it in the public press."

"La de da do."

Talmadge Gives Reaction

An award for the best description of an uncomfortable situation goes to Sen. Herman Talmadge, D-Ga., who had this to say in a radio interview about the Senate Ethics Committee recommendation that he be denounced for financial misconduct:

"Well, I've denounced a lot of people myself, a lot of people have denounced me. I'm sure I'll be denounced in the future, and I'll continue to denounce other people with whom I disagree."

Code Being Revised

The Senate Judiciary Committee, whose chairman is Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., is working on a massive rewrite of the federal criminal code.

Testifying recently on the bill was a former governor of California named Edmund G. Brown, who is the father of the present governor of California, Edmund G. Brown Jr.

The former governor of California commented on the vastness of the undertaking and added:

"I do admire your tenacity, Mr. Chairman, in sticking with the effort. I might also note that just this week my son for the first time expressed to me his interest in the enactment of a code, even if, as he put it, 'the matter requires a full-time effort by Sen. Kennedy in the coming year.'"

Technique Cited

Sen. J. Bennett Johnston, D-La., has a reputation for being a shrewd bargainer in Senate-House conference committees.

One of Johnston's favorite techniques for winning support from House members is to name proposals after individual congressmen.

For example, when Johnston found Rep. Toby Moffett, D-Conn., showing an interest in a Senate-supported provision of an energy bill, the Louisiana senator quickly began referring to it as the "Moffett plan." Before long, everyone was calling it the "Moffett plan" and the House conferees supported it.

The technique didn't work as well with Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich. When Johnston started referring to a provision as the "Dingell proposal," the congressman, the father of four, snapped: "I've acknowledged paternity four times and do not wish to do so again."

Vietnam Offers China Greetings

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Vietnam, which fought a bitter border war with China only seven months ago, sent greetings to the Communist regime in Peking on Sunday in honor of its 30th anniversary, the Vietnam news agency said.

The message, monitored here, said: "The Vietnamese people greatly treasure friendship with other peoples and will always do their best to preserve the friendship between the peoples of Vietnam and China."

ALL TOGETHER NOW—These hearties, known as the High Plains Rafters, find it works better if they set all their oars in the water at the same time during Sunday's "Great Yellowhouse Canyon Raft Race." The event was hailed as a success by its sponsors, the city Parks and Recreation Department, KSEL Radio and Texas Tech University. (Staff Photo by Milton Adams)

Canyon Raft Race Hailed As Success

 tors conjured up in explanation of their performances, little could be blamed on the course. The waterway is, of course, as flat and level as the South Plains. There were no rapids, no white water, not even a ripple. In fact, bath-tubs are seldom as calm and glassy smooth as were the lakes Sunday, with the only trouble coming in the form of a slight easterly wind that sprang up out of nowhere and forced the rafters to move into its not-so-awesome 5 mph force.

As the event came to a close, many of the participants and spectators gathered at the Buddy Holly Recreation Area, which served as the halfway point and the hub of activity, and began to talk of next year's still unplanned encore race. All of those present Sunday felt the race was an unqualified success as an outdoor diversion and felt it would be even bigger next year. Spokesmen for the sponsors agreed that, while a similar event is still in the mill, the second annual event is a very real possibility.

Trophies were awarded the winners of the various classes, but all those present shared in one final summer sun-burn and the event's pleasure almost equally.

Yeah, the "Great Yellowhouse Canyon Raft Race" was almost as good as the girl-watching.

Fishing Feud

SEADRIFT (UPI) — The summer-time clash of cultures that left a Texas crab fisherman dead and a Vietnamese refugee jailed in the slaying is undergoing a cooling of tempers and temperature.

As the autumn breezes swing to the north and the scorching heat eases, there are indications the truce among the wary communities could be permanent. But, there also are signs that not everyone wants to get along.

"I'm not sure all the talk in the world will work. It's going to be hard," said one resident.

During the summer, the natives complained the approximately 100 refugees who settled in Seadrift since 1976 poached in the bountiful crabbing spots of San Antonio Bay, set crab pots too close to their long-established competitors and stole crabs.

On Aug. 3 crabber Billy Joe Aplin, 48, argued with Sat Van Nguyen, 21, about fishing customs. A witness said Aplin cut Nguyen with a knife minutes before Aplin was shot and killed.

The death ignited a 48-hour rampage. Vietnamese property was firebombed and most of the refugees left. In the eight weeks since, "it's been pretty quiet," said sheriff's investigator John Sexton, and about 80 of the refugees have returned.

"The native fishermen still get mad and talk about legislation to limit the influx of Vietnamese," said Rev. Don Gallagher of the First Baptist Church.

Seminar Stresses Rape Problem

 by the guy either out on bond or after parole."

In fact, he added, if a victim fails to report the crime, "He's much more apt to come back and rape again."

Statistics show that 70 percent of convicted rapists will rape again. Program speakers said rapists are not seized by passion, but use the attack to release their anger and frustration, which they are emotionally unprepared to handle.

A convicted rapist in a film clip said it more bluntly. "They are things. You could be a woman or a used car." One rapist in the film had sexually assaulted both women and men. Either way, the men described their victims in one word, "Objects."

Rapes are not spontaneous acts prompted by the actions of the victims, Miss Mahan said.

Of the referrals reported to the Lubbock Rape Crisis Center since its opening in 1975, victims have ranged in age from 2 to 83. "They weren't asking for it," Miss Hefner said.

Citing statistics that rape is not a spontaneous act prompted by the victim, Miss Mahan said 60 percent of rapes are planned ahead of time and 90 percent of gang rapes are planned in advance.

Statistics are numbers on a printed page. Personal testimony of a victim makes the figures and percentages all too real.

A Lubbock woman gave her personal account to the audience, which sat motionless during her remarks. She still carries scars on her neck from the attack of more than two years ago.

It was in a normally quiet residential area of this city, just after 10:30 p.m., that a man entered her unlocked door and asked if Tim was home. Her husband, who was not at home, was not named Tim. She sensed what was about to happen and thought silently to herself, "I'm going to die."

Outwardly, she tried to remain calm. "You have the wrong house," she answered.

But the man slammed the door, turned out the lights and announced to his victim, "No, I'm in the right house."

She yelled, reasoned, pleaded and begged. To no avail. It wasn't until she glanced at a mirror that she realized her nose was bleeding from his slaps. He used her own pair of sewing scissors to cut her neck and back. After the assault, he asked for a pair of pantyhose.

"Suddenly I knew how I would die," she said, afraid that he would strangle her.

Instead he tied her hands and legs, then rummaged her purse for money. There was none. "I'm sorry I opened your purse," he told her.

The woman was struck by the absurdity of his actions. "He had sanctity for my purse, but not for my body."

After he noticed her wedding ring, he believed her threats that, "My husband will be home any minute." He left.

This woman now keeps windows and doors locked day and night. She has a plan in mind should an intruder enter her home.

"A lot of people feel guilty about not trusting people," she said. Some feel silly or paranoid about locking their doors in the daytime when leaving for only a moment to take out the trash. But it only takes a moment for someone to open that door.

"I don't feel silly. I lock my doors," she said.

The woman was composed during her testimony to the audience. But a woman never forgets being raped.

"I never go to sleep when (her husband) isn't there," she said. "I still haven't crossed that hurdle."

United Way Campaign To Give $37,127 To Legal Aid Society

 for people who normally do not have access to legal systems," Giovannitti explained.

Also, he said, many times his dealings show persons that the legal section of society is not just to put people in jail and that it does many other things for them.

Besides Giovannitti, third-year law students from Texas Tech University assist in cases, with the clients permission, for credit in school.

He reviews all applications for aid and determines their merit. Giovannitti said that many of the cases involve working persons but the size of the family and debts also are figured into its merits.

In handling primarily family law cases, Giovannitti said that many deal in custody during a divorce. For example, he said, a woman will come in and say her husband has taken their child and will not let her see the child. He says she can do nothing and that, if she tries to get a divorce, he will make sure she never see the child again. Also, he said, the husband has friends who will testify that she is not a good mother, has been promiscuous and is on dope.

It has been two weeks since she has seen her child. She is not living with her parents because they think she should solve her own problems and go back to her husband. They do not realize that he has been mentally harrasing her for months.

In this second case, he said, the threats are probably not true and, if the woman is sure the man will stay in town, they will proceed with a custody suit for the children.

Giovannitti said, at times, the children are used by a parent who really does not want custody but rather wants to hurt the partner.

Currently, he said, Legal Aid serves more than 290 clients in one capacity or another and each case is totally unique in its problems and solutions.

The Legal Aid Society of Lubbock is among 34 United Way agencies.

Viral Infections Hard To Treat

NEW YORK (AP) — Bacterial infections are a leading cause of brain disorders at all stages of life, reports Scientific American.

However, Seymour S. Kety, professor of psychiatry at Harvard Medical School, writes in a recent issue of the magazine, many severe disorders have almost been eradicated through the control of infection by antibiotics.

He points out that, on the other hand, viral infections cannot be treated as effectively as bacterial infections, so "acute and often fatal encephalitis (inflammation of the brain) is occasionally associated with such viral diseases as measles, mumps, influenza and herpes."

Vietnamese Refugees Cited For Low Crime Rate

HONG KONG (AP) — Despite sporadic incidents of theft, fighting and prostitution, the estimated 340,000 Indo-Chinese refugees scattered through camps in Southeast Asia have generally been law-abiding visitors.

A survey of refugees in Thailand, Malaysia, the Philippines and Hong Kong has found surprisingly little crime considering the cramped living conditions and frustrations of spending months on end not knowing what the future holds.

But in Indonesia government officials complained that refugees stole sheep and coconuts from local people, fought over scarce food and water, and engaged in prostitution. The regent of Riau Archipelago, Firman Eddy, said the local population is worried that the refugees might spread venereal disease.

In northeastern Thailand at the Nong Khai camp, officials said there had been clashes between long-time residents, mostly Laotians, and newcomers suspected of being "spies" for the new communist regime in Laos. The appointment of a group of respected refugees as leaders has improved the situation, they said.

There are no statistics available on refugee crime in any of the countries, but officials in Thailand, Malaysia, the Philippines and Hong Kong said it's either low — or not high enough to be a problem.

"Crime among refugees has been remarkably low," said Morris Morgan, Hong Kong's acting secretary for security. "Certainly, there has been and will be frustrations and the results of frustrations become more depressing as time goes on ... But refugees traditionally all over the world are patient and law-abiding."

When asked if there had been any problem with crime among refugees in the Philippines, Peter Gaechter, assistant to the representative of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) replied: "Oh my god, no. These are civilized people."

Anne Henshaw, refugee officer at the U.S. Consulate here, said refugees who have managed to make it into a refugee camp are motivated to obey the laws of their host country. "They know that any criminal activity would jeopardize their chances of resettlement," she said.

The following is a country-by-country rundown on refugee crime:

— Thailand, with more than 170,000 predominantly Laotian and Cambodian refugees, had been plagued with robberies and murders at some camps in the past but officials said conditions are much better now following some reorganization last year.

UNHCR officials claimed there have been incidents of young Cambodian girls being raped by Thai police and mentioned an incident in July involving a 12-year-old Cambodian girl. Over the last few years, some refugees have complained to journalists of Thai authorities being corrupt and beating them, but relief agency officials say the overall Thai performance in maintaining law and order in the camps is good.

— Hong Kong, with 67,000 refugees, is the only place where camps are right in the midst of a teeming city and where 15,500 "boat people" are working primarily in factories and at construction sites.

There have been some gang fights, several drug arrests, a few robberies, allegations of prostitution and one murder which Morgan noted was the 51st homicide in this British colony this year but the only one involving a refugee.

— Malaysia, which has reduced its refugee population from 76,500 in mid-June to about 50,000, said crime is not a problem at any of its camps which refugee officials claim are the best in the region.

Some Vietnamese women picked up by the French hospital ship Ile de Lumiere said they had been raped by Malaysian sailors but Home Minister Ghazali Shafie said investigations showed no evidence of rape. Six refugees claiming they had been hungry pleaded guilty to stealing a Malaysian fishing boat on May 6 in the South China Sea. The fisherman was also shot and wounded. They were sentenced to five years in jail and one stroke of the cane.

— Indonesia has about 45,000 Vietnamese refugees scattered on remote island camps in the Riau Archipelago. In addition to stealing and fighting over drinking water, which must be brought from the main island of Sumatra about 10 miles away, the deputy armed forces commander said refugees had increased smuggling between Riau Archipelago and neighboring countries.

Another government official said the refugees might be a new factor for disturbances to the nation's defense and security if they are allowed to stay for a long time.

— The Philippines, with 5,800 refugees, has reported no crime in any of its five refugee camps. The only incident ever reported was a stabbing sparked by a refugee quarrel over fresh water aboard the freighter Tung An which was anchored in Manila Bay.

Kremlin Launches War Against Crime

MOSCOW (AP) — Young hooligans, white collar crooks and the jobless who want to stay that way are targets high on the list of the Kremlin's newly proclaimed war against crime.

A wide-ranging decree adopted recently by the Communist Party Central Committee marks the most authoritative Soviet policy statement on the issue of crime within the last five years.

Western diplomatic sources say the top-level party pronouncement may be linked with Soviet efforts aimed at tightening social controls and ideological discipline in advance of next summer's influx of thousands of foreigners attending the Moscow Olympics.

The Central Committee decree called for "further strengthening of socialist legality and law and order," conceding current measures to combat street crime, alcoholism, stealing of government property and official corruption are "still not effective enough."

It accused party and government organs, trade unions, the Communist Youth League and other public organizations of failing to take a unified, determined approach toward crime.

In July, the Soviet Supreme Court called for "unflinching application of the strict measures of punishment that the law stipulates for people who commit serious crimes, for repeat offenders and for people who do not wish to lead an honest life of work."

The high court recommended expanded police patrolling of city streets, assigning more authority to precinct police commanders and stepped-up involvement by "druzhinki" — auxiliary police — and other volunteers.

Central Moscow and the central areas of other Soviet cities most often visited by tourists already tend to be heavily patrolled by gray-uniformed police known as militiamen.

But recent Soviet press reports indicate street crime is considerably more serious in many outlying cities.

For example, earlier this year a city official from Grozny in the Caucasus Mountains region wrote to Izvestia complaining parents there had to recruit volunteer guards to protect their children from teen-age toughs loitering outside schools.

"Quite often police reports make everything appear normal, even good. The number of crimes recorded in the city has decreased, owing to a decrease in petty hooliganism."

"But in fact, it's unsafe to go out on the street at night in some parts of the city," wrote A. Ryabukhin, a deputy to the Grozny City Soviet.

He pointed to the case of two 17-year-olds who "had long police records for vagrancy and hooliganism."

Still, the two were not prosecuted or even given counseling. Instead, the official said, "people felt sorry for them. And then one Saturday night the hooligans, having stolen a car, struck and killed five pedestrians."

Western analysts, who declined to be named, said the new Central Committee decree apparently is the outgrowth of a series of high-level meetings among Soviet law enforcement and judicial officials held in the wake of a Supreme Soviet resolution on crime-fighting passed early this year.

The presidium of the Supreme Soviet, the Parliament, adopted the resolution Jan. 17 after hearing reports by Prosecutor General Roman A. Rudenko and Interior Minister Nikolai A. Shchelokov.

SILENT OBSERVER — The Da Vinci TransAmerica floats over Nebraska as its occupants attempt the first complete transcontinental balloon flight. The balloon was photographed from a plane about 40 miles south of Omaha. (AP Laserphoto)

Four Continue Balloon Trek

COOK, Neb. (AP) — The clear nylon bubble was suspended, hovering almost motionless in the warm, soupy haze over Cook. There was little activity in the balloon, the four adventurers aboard taking a Sunday rest like the earthbound populace below.

The flight command center at St. Louis, Mo., said the balloon, attempting a non-stop flight across North America, crossed into Iowa about 20 miles south of Omaha at 8 p.m. CDT.

Aboard the 100-foot high helium Da Vinci Trans-America are Fred Hyde, of Prairie Village, Kan., Vera Simons of McLean, Va., Rudolph Enselman of Boulder, Colo., and NBC-TV cameraman Randy Birch.

The four lifted off Wednesday from Tillamook, Ore., in their attempt to be the first to fly across North America non-stop in a balloon.

Via ground-to-air mobile telephone, co-pilot Hyde told The Associated Press the ride was "a little bumpy" over Topeka, Kan., earlier in the day.

Tritium Buried In Arizona Army Bunker

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz. (AP) — More than 6.5 million tiny tubes of radioactive tritium gas seized from a Tucson manufacturer have been buried in a concrete bunker at an Army ammunition depot.

Nuclear experts supervised Army National Guard troops Sunday as they placed the tritium in underground vaults at the depot 12 miles west of here.

"That's it. We sealed up the bunker and are going home," said Darrell Warren of the Arizona Atomic Energy Commission. "There were no complications at all."

Warren said what had appeared Saturday to be a small leak "turned out to be a pocket of gas."

"It was gone before we got there this morning," he told a reporter. "We left it there overnight and found no more than a background reading."

The radioactive material, more than $500,000 worth, had been conveyed by truck across central Arizona in a high-security operation that began early Saturday in Tucson.

Gov. Bruce Babbitt on Wednesday ordered the tritium seized from the American Atomics Corp. plant in Tucson. The state AEC had closed the plant in June after tests showed the plant was leaking radiation.

On arrival at the depot, where the tritium will be stored until officials decide on a means of disposal, the convoy rolled past 50 demonstrators who chanted, "We don't want it here."

William Reilly, president of the protesting Parks Water Users Association, said the group is considering a suit to force removal of the tritium. He said the association fears the radiation will contaminate wells near the depot.

The association was among several groups that Friday obtained a temporary restraining order against the storage. Superior Court Judge Richard Mangum lifted it order a few hours later after a telephone conference call with state and federal officials.

Babbitt said he ordered the seizure because it did not appear the company would meet an Oct. 19 deadline to decommission its plant and ship the tritium, used for luminous watch dials and exit signs, out of the state. Babbitt also said he was concerned with continuing emissions from the plant and plant security factors.

American Atomic agreed to surrender its license to handle tritium in July after the state charged the firm allowed excessive amounts of radiation to leak into the surrounding, semi-residential neighborhood two miles east of downtown Tucson.

Survey Reflects Young Shoppers Misinformed

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Information can be a shopper's best weapon in the battle against inflation. How well-armed are you?

Here are some of the questions in a recent survey on economics and consumerism conducted by the National Assessment of Educational Progress among 17-year-old high school students.

The answers are below, along with the teen-agers' responses. A panel of experts which reviewed the results of the government-financed study concluded that the youngsters were not well prepared for their roles as consumers. And several panel members said that the adult population at large probably knows even less than the students in several key areas.

Take the abbreviated test and see how you measure up.

1. Is it legal: (a) To advertise a $4,000 car at $90 per month without including credit terms? (b) To keep merchandise that you got in the mail even though you did not order it and do not pay for it? (c) For a chain store to charge different prices on the same items in different neighborhoods? (d) For supermarkets to raise prices on the day welfare checks are issued?

2. Which of the following statements are true? (a) Advertising may help increase sales and lower prices for a new product. (b) Companies that advertise more always produce better products. (c) Production costs are less than advertising costs for some items.

3. Which is the best buy: (a) A four-ounce bag of potato chips at 22 cents? (b) A six-ounce bag at 28 cents? (c) An eight-ounce bag at 48 cents? (d) A 20-ounce bag at $1?

4. True or false: A service contract is always a good investment when purchased for the life of the appliance.

5. Which of the following is the largest single deduction from the average pay check? (a) Federal income tax. (b) State tax. (c) Social Security. (d) Sales tax.

Now the answers.

1. Only (a) — advertising the car at $90 a month without giving credit terms — is illegal. Forty-three percent of the 17-year-olds mistakenly thought the practice was legal; 41.1 percent knew it was illegal; 15.4 percent said they didn't know the answer and the rest didn't reply. More than half the youngsters thought it was illegal for supermarkets to raise prices the day welfare checks come out; 30 percent thought different prices in different neighborhoods were illegal.

2. Both (a) and (c) are true. A majority of the 17-year-olds got the right answers. But a substantial minority — about one in five — erroneously said that companies that advertise more always produce better products.

3. The answer is (b). Only 40 percent of the teen-agers picked correctly; 41 percent said the 20-ounce bag was the best buy.

4. False. You have to weigh the cost of the service contract against the cost of potential repairs or replacements. Only about 10 percent of the 17-year-olds knew the answer; 80 percent said the statement was true and 10 percent said they didn't know.

5. Federal income tax — (a) takes the biggest bite. Just under half the youngsters answered correctly.

New Law Helps Debtor Make Financial Start

By The Associated Press
Starting today, Americans in most parts of the country who seek relief from debts in bankruptcy court will be able to keep more of their property as they make a fresh financial start.

The Bankruptcy Reform Act of 1978 generally makes it easier to go broke and, in some cases, makes it harder for creditors to collect the money they are owed.

Personal bankruptcies already are on the increase, although they have not reached the peak they did during the 1975 recession.

In the 12 months that ended June 30, individuals filed 196,976 bankruptcy petitions — up from 172,423 the previous year. In the recession year of 1974-75, there were 224,354 personal bankruptcies.

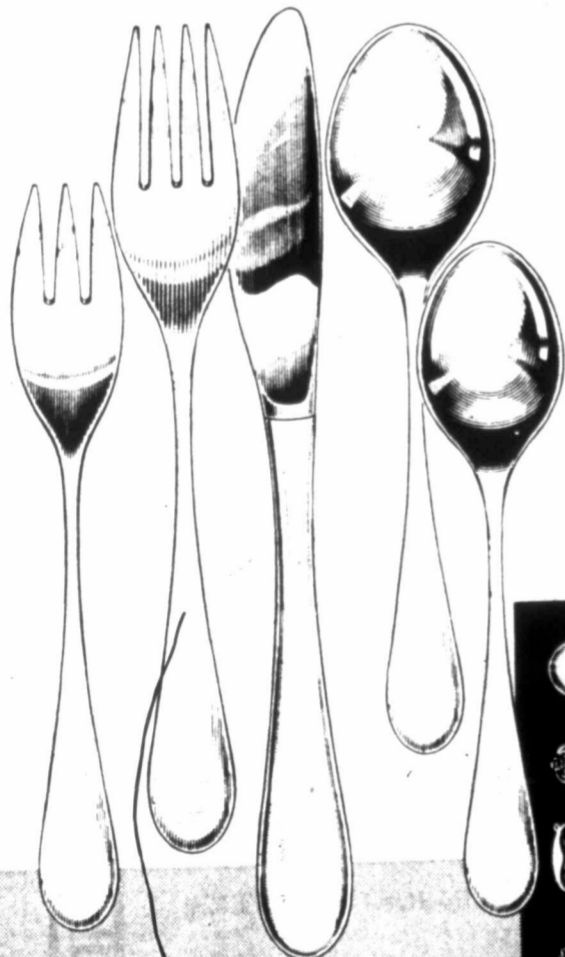

Credit experts say the current recession — combined with the law which takes effect today — will result in a continuing rise in individual bankruptcies.

A major provision of the new law involves the amount of property a debtor can keep when he or she files for straight bankruptcy — Chapter 7.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the newlywed signed FRUSTRATED, who couldn't wait for her husband to be released from the hospital to have sex, reminded me of a similar incident.

Years ago, when I was on night duty at a hospital, a woman patient rang her bell and asked if I'd mind standing guard.

RETIRED RN, MILWAUKEE

Dear Retired: At least she asked.

DEAR ABBY: I was once in the same predicament as FRUSTRATED, and my husband and I were ready to climb the walls. Then we spoke to his doctor, who wrote my husband a "prescription" in our scrapbook.

One nurse entered our room out of curiosity, but we felt justified in telling her to stay out — that it was doctor's orders that we were not to be disturbed for two hours.

There were no more problems once

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

Good news for all of you apartment dwellers who are short on space and long on imagination. I have before me a magazine article in which a decorator, faced with a dinner party, makes what she calls an "amusing transformation."

She converts her dressing room-bathroom into a dining room.

The tub is covered with an upholstered, cushioned board which serves as a buffet. She adds a folding table, extra chairs, puts the champagne into the sink to chill (thank goodness, she didn't go for the cooler with the lid) and stores her glasses on the vanity shelf.

She covers each of the walls in a different flowery fabric and for accent, sets baskets of fresh fruits about with tangerines peeled and ready to eat as "a nice surprise for hungry guests."

The peeled tangerines would be the least of the surprises. Can you imagine for a moment herding your guests to the bathroom for dinner?

I don't even want my guests to use the bathroom when we have dinner in the dining room. I cannot imagine that the idea will catch on like wildfire. Our bathroom is entirely out of the question.

1. The dressing room IS my bathroom.

2. My menu can never be adapted to harsh lighting.

3. The bathroom door has not been open, or for that matter ajar, in 15 years.

4. I couldn't eat a bite facing a full-length mirror.

5. I couldn't relax in a chair that was bolted to the floor.

To tell you the truth, I hate to see the bathroom exploited as a room for entertaining. To me, that sacred part of the house has been the last bastion of privacy for the American family.

The toddler who regards it as Disneyland with faucets; the teenager who barricades himself in there until puberty has passed; the father who seeks peace in his reading room.

But mostly, it is needed by the woman of the household as a haven from havoc...a port for post-natal depression...a refuge from reality...a retreat to regroup...a chapel in which to pray...a cloister in which to cry.

It's no place for peeled tangerines.

SAVED BY UNUSUAL PRESCRIPTION

DEAR ABBY: As an RN in a Houston hospital I have seen some mighty strange goings-on. I recall a complaint from a woman who was sharing a double room with a pretty young girl who had broken both legs in a skiing accident. It seems that the girl (with both legs in casts, yet!) had frequent visits from her husband, during which time they carried on as though they were in a private room. When I confronted the young girl with her roommate's complaint, she said, "If she's such a prude, she can turn the other way."

TRUE STORY

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the frustrated newlywed reminded me of my days as a young intern at St. Joseph's Hospital in Syracuse, N.Y.

I'll never forget the 82-year-old patient who had a young woman visiting him. I went into his room to tell him that visiting hours were over. At first it appeared that he was alone, then I discovered that they were BOTH in his bed! (I was more embarrassed than they were.)

NEW YORK M.D.

DEAR ABBY: In my 16 years of private nursing, I cannot count the number of times I've been embarrassed when I've walked into private, semi-private and ward rooms to find people with the same views as FRUSTRATED.

I am not totally without sympathy, but I think the patient's health should be cared for at the hospital, and his romantic needs elsewhere. A hospital is not a hotel. If a patient is well enough for marital relations, and wants to get his $98-a-day's worth, perhaps he should be transferred to the nearest Hilton.

Carpet Choice Reflects Needs

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

The consumer who wants to make the best possible choice in carpeting should begin the process of selection before going to the store, say carpet manufacturers.

It is wise to mull over before leaving home such factors as the amount and hardness of expected wear and the length of time the carpet must last.

Carpet durability and looks are influenced by three factors: Density, fiber and texture. Density is most important, since, regardless of texture or fiber, the more pile packed into a carpet's surface, the better it will wear.

The fiber chosen influences the carpet's resistance to soil, wear and crushing and determines its ease of cleaning.

Texture is primarily a question of looks. Most textures are satisfactory, provided the carpet is dense enough. Some textures, however, require more care than others.

Since most purchases are trade-offs between what can be afforded and is practical compared to what is most appealing or best, consumers are likely to have some hard choices to make.

In general, one should choose the heaviest density one can afford, even if it means going to a less expensive fiber.

Wool, which has long been considered the fiber of choice in terms of looks, is now too expensive to be acceptable to many. However, manmade fibers such as nylon, polyester and acrylic have been substantially improved recently. Consequently, consumers may now choose these formerly less desired fibers with more confidence than in the past.

Nylon is the most widely used fiber in carpets today. Its outstanding characteristic is its ability to resist abrasion or wear. As a result, nylon carpeting offers durability over a long period of time. Nylon takes dye well and is reasonably resistant to stains.

Drawbacks include the build-up of static electricity and a tendency toward pilling, which occurs when tiny, fuzzy balls of fiber become wedged between the carpet tufts.

Improved nylons which resist pilling and static-electricity buildup, are now being marketed under a variety of trade names.

Acrylic carpet, usually more expensive than nylon, resembles wool in appearance, texture and performance. Acrylic also resists soil, is resilient and is durable.

Polyester fibers, relative newcomers to the carpet field, are valued for their softness and luxurious looks.

Problems, as with nylon, include pilling and static electricity.

Polypropylene or olefin fiber is used extensively as a backing material in carpet. In addition, polypropylene is used to produce indoor-outdoor carpet.

While fiber considerations are based on cost and durability, texture choice is often a question of style.

At present, plush, a velvet-like, smooth-looking carpet texture, is highly popular. Plush carpets feel good underfoot and are available in most fibers in a wide range of prices.

Some people object to the shading which occurs when plush carpets are stepped on and the pile leans in different directions. For them, the new Saxony plush texture which lessens the degree of shading would be preferable.

Twist textures which were once known as "friezes" are gaining popularity again because of their ability to conceal tracking and shading. By combining slightly twisted yarns with bulkier ones, designers working with twist textures have been able to create interesting style and pattern effects.

Other types of textures include looped-pile designs, a dense, tight construction very useful in high-traffic areas, and cut and loop textures.

Besides evaluating the carpet sample, consumers should also look into the reputation of the retailer from whom they contemplate buying. Beware the retailer whose price is substantially below everyone else's.

Also watch out for extra charges at delivery. Carpet bills should clearly state what is included in the price and whether removal of the old carpet, and installation of metal threshold stripping at doorways and padding are included.

Books Offer View Of Changing Lifestyles

By DENISE PERRY DONAVIN
American Library Assn.

Juggling a career, home and family may well be this decade's best trick.

Caroline Bird's "The Two-Paycheck Marriage" is an in-depth report on how working women are affecting American life on every level. Her jumping-off point was a questionnaire circulated in "Family Circle" which elicited responses from 30,000 husbands and wives. From there, she conducted further interviews and research. The result is a book which provides no pat answers but at least provides the information on which sound decisions depend.

Marriage is, of course, the most obvious institution affected by a woman's decision to work. Profoundly changed are such issues as money management, sexual relations and the care of the house and children. To add confusion to chaos, gone are the days when husband-wife conflicts are exclusively in-house. Whose career takes precedence when job transfers, late hours, travel or business entertainment are required? The text is laced with comments from people who have faced these questions and sometimes even found answers.

As mentioned before, Bird's business is information, not advice. She does, however, engage in a bit of crystal-ball gazing and sees a race of self-actualized individuals enjoying stable marriages and fewer — and thus more precious — children.

In "The Two-Career Couple" Francine and Douglas Hall analyze the various ways couples met occupational and domestic challenges and then type them with the labels: accommodators, acrobats, allies or adversaries. Full of pragmatic advice on coping with everything from identity crises to office romances, they even cover the option of resolving conflicting career obligations through something they call a "visitors' marriage."

The Hall's sociological term-paper style, replete with charts, inventories and self-help questionnaires, makes rather dry reading. Fortunately, it also generates highly precise conclusions and methods for solving the simplest but most vexing household disagreement.

Marilyn Fabre and Norman Wikler, both professional women in their early 30s, were plagued with indecision about having children. So they started talking to other women, also in their 30s, who had made a decision. The result is "Up Against the Clock: Career Women Speak on the Choice to Have Children," organized around the three most common choices: combining a career and family, becoming a single mother, and remaining childless. The authors do not lobby for any of the three, but simply examine the decision-making process and explain how compiling the study influenced their own decisions.

The authors discuss the special medical and psychological problems some doctors believe older women risk (other doctors say it matters not whether the first baby comes at 22 or 39). They also provide advice on getting family support when the decision is either for single motherhood or childlessness.

The final interviewee is an older woman who opted for childlessness against a strong current of conventional opinion. Her broader experience will prove enlightening to what is really the first generation of married women ever to have the freedom of this particular choice.

In "The Working Mother's Complete Handbook," Gloria Norris and JoAnn Miller accept the fact that the responsibility for child care and housework still usually falls on the mother, even when she is also working outside the home. The author's concern is not polemicalizing but advising women on how to cope.

First comes an overview of what's available in child care outside and inside the home, along with a discussion of the pros and cons of relying on relatives, housekeepers, sitters or day care centers. The mix of basic advice with precise directions, such as on evaluating, hiring and firing a housekeeper, is a feature that sets this guide above its competition.

Moving outside the home, the "Handbook" also includes suggestions on job hunting and interviewing, a paraphrase of Title VII's sections on sex discrimination, and addresses for all 50 state Equal Employment Opportunity Commission offices.

Grace Mitchell's "Day Care Book" is truly, as the subtitle claims, "a guide for working parents to help them find the best possible day care for their children" — and to help them help their children and themselves adjust to day care. The author, who visited 150 centers throughout the United States in writing this book, suggests that the best place for parents to start in evaluating a center is to simply look around them. The quality of the facilities and the attitude of both teachers and children should be obvious.

Next, they should use the checklist Mitchell provides to evaluate the people, place and program. The author describes the attributes of a good program in minute detail.

Insurance Rate Change Proposed

NEW YORK (UPI) — Automobile insurance premiums soon may depend more on how much damage your vehicle is liable to incur in an accident.

A new rating plan being introduced by a national insurance advisory, rating and statistical organization affects that part of auto insurance premiums that pay for collision and comprehensive coverages. The Insurance Services Office's new plan is being submitted to state insurance departments nationwide.

Current rates assigned to autos are based on their cost when new.

The Insurance Information Institute, a trade group, says the new plan would adjust rates either up or down, based upon the loss experience of individual makes and models of cars. It would be applied to 1980 and later vehicles.

1 ♠ Pass 1 NT Pass

What do you bid now?

A. — You have a very good hand, but it does contain a flaw — some of your high cards are in your short suit, where they don't pull their full weight. Therefore, we would re-bid only two diamonds, because we don't feel we can make game unless partner can act freely over that bid. But had we held two low hearts and the ace king in diamonds, we would have jumped shifted.

Q.6 — Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠K86 ♠QJ92 ♠AQJ ♠J109

Partner opens the bidding with one no trump. What do you respond?

A. — This is a matter of simple arithmetic. Assume that partner has a maximum opener of 15 points. Add your 14 and you still come up with only 32 — not enough for slam. So you should simply bid three no trump, since you do not get anything extra for bidding four or five no trump and you run the risk of going down when partner has only 16 and you get some bad breaks.

Q.7 — As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠AJ ♠KJ92 ♠5 ♠AKQJ73

Your right-hand opponent opens the bidding with one diamond. What action do you take?

A. — Today, jump overalls are played as preemptive, but even if they were not, we would not jump to three clubs — that risks missing a 4-4 heart fit and a possible game in that suit. We would double and hope that partner responds in hearts. If he bids anything else, we can then jump in clubs to show our power.

Q.8 — Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠75 ♠92 ♠Q1043 ♠K10952

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West

2 ♠ Pass 2 NT Pass

3 ♠ Pass 3 NT Pass

4 NT Pass ?

What action do you take?

A. — Since you could have passed three spades with an absolute bust, your rebid of three no trump promised some values. However, it did not promise a king and a queen, with a fair five-card suit into the bargain. If partner could move over that, we are prepared to play in a slam. If you rebid five clubs, we will accept that if you intended it as natural and were not responding to Blackwood. But for our money we would risk a direct six no trump.

Q.9 — As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠87 ♠AKJ92 ♠AK6 ♠A83

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Pass

What do you bid now?

A. — With 19 points in high cards, some strong bid is called for. You could jump to three hearts to highlight your good five-card suit, but we prefer to have at least a six-card suit and an unbalanced hand for that action. Our choice would be to jump to two no trump, thereby describing a hand of 19-20 points that is balanced.

Q.10 — As South, vulnerable, you hold:

Balloon O'Lantern Decorates Parties

By SHARI LEWIS
Halloween is coming. (I know, so is Christmas, but Halloween is coming first!)
In the next couple of weeks, I promise to flood you with masks, costumes, games and party decorations that will give you pounds of fun for pennies. You might even want to start cutting out these columns and putting them into a Halloween scrapbook, so you'll have the know-how when you need it!

Let's start with a Balloon O'Lantern for your Halloween party centerpiece or decoration:

You will need a round orange balloon, scissors, black plastic tape or black construction paper, rubber cement, string or box, crepe paper (optional), thread (optional).

Inflate the balloon and tie a knot. Decide whether the pumpkin is to be hung in a doorway or from the ceiling fixture with tape, or placed in the middle of the table. If it is to be hung, make your pumpkin face with the knot on top. If it is to be "tabled," put the knot on the bottom. Cut two eyes, a nose and mouth out of plastic tape or construction paper. The shapes are up to you. Then stick the features to the orange balloon with tape, glue or rubber cement.

To hang your pumpkin, tie a string to the knot on top of the balloon. To sit the pumpkin on your party table, use an upside-down box or a boxtop as a base. Make a tiny hole in the center of the box and, holding the balloon above the box, pull the knot through the hole. Tape the knot in place inside the box.

If you wish, the balloon can be surrounded by a "collar" of crepe paper. Just run a row of huge stitches down the middle of the strip of crepe paper. Then pull the thread until the strip is gathered into a ruffle. Circle the balloon with the paper ruffle and tape it in position.

Today's Brain Twister: Since today is the Jewish holiday called Yom Kippur, I have a special riddle for you:

How can you make a tortoise fast? (Look for the answer in tomorrow's Kids-Only Club column.)

Steel Plant Attracts International Attention

MATANZAS, Venezuela (UPI) — The world's largest direct reduction iron-making unit has gone into production without a hitch at the Venezuelan government's progressive, multibillion-dollar integrated steel complex SIDOR.

Successful fire-up on schedule this summer of the last module of the trimodular Midrex unit enabled Sidor's president, Venezuelan Edgar Marshall, to boast that SIDOR soon will be the world's largest producer of sponge iron.

Rated capacity of the new unit is 1.2 million metric tons of sponge iron annually.

SIDOR's implementation of direct reduction in tandem with on-site electric arc furnace steel making has grabbed the attention of world steelmakers as a possible harbinger of a trend away from traditional scrap-coke-open hearth processes to sponge iron-natural gas-arc furnaces.

The direct reduction unit installed at a cost of $132 million is a segment of SIDOR's $4 billion expansion program known as Plan IV.

This plan is designed to boost annual steel production from 1.3 million metric tons in 1974, when it was launched, to 4.3 million m-tons by 1984 when installed capacity would reach 4.8 million m-tons.

Rapidly-developing Venezuela, using its oil bonanza to diversify, will consume 1.8 million m-tons of steel in 1979 and, according to government projections, 3.4 million m-tons in 1984.

In seven more years consumption could double, so Plan IV seeks mainly to make Venezuela nearly self-sufficient rather than a net exporter.

On the short term, however, Marshall said Venezuela will export 400,000 tons of sponge iron to Europe — Italy, Spain and France — in 1980 and is seeking to export to the United States next year 1 million tons of the pellets for steel makers.

Marshall scoffs at talk of Venezuela dumping on the steel market.

"We will charge a high premium price. We are already in negotiations. The price will be pegged to the Japanese scrap reference price plus a premium," he told foreign newsmen on a walk-through of SIDOR facilities. He did not say which U.S. firms SIDOR was talking with.

Plan IV will increase the net investment in SIDOR to $4.5 billion and its share of the Venezuelan gross national product from 1.8 to 6 percent by 1984.

Marshall said SIDOR has developed a new cooling technique in conjunction with the direct reduction process, which it will patent and market in the near future.

The MIDREX direct reduction process utilizes natural gas to produce hydrogen and carbon monoxide. This gaseous mixture is passed through a continuous flow of iron oxide pellets in a 760 to 925 degree centigrade vertical shaft furnace. The oxide pellets are stripped of oxygen, producing iron up to 92 percent pure.

The process was pioneered at the Gilmore Steel plant in Portland, Ore., in 1969 and 15 such plants now are in operation in the United States, Canada, Germany, Scotland, Argentina, Qatar and Venezuela.

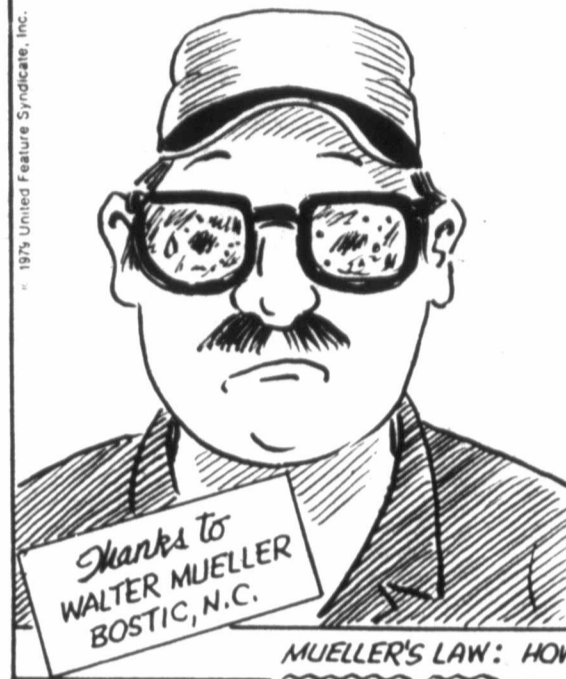

MIDREX, of Charlotte, N.C., is the American arm of the Korff group of Duesseldorf, West Germany.

Matanzas, in eastern Venezuela near Puerto Ordaz, is ideally suited to steel-making, with nationalized reserves of 2.5 billion tons of high-quality iron ore and 600 billion cubic meters of natural gas, and good river and road transportation.

San Antonio Urged To Accept Damages

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Insurance adjustors recommend the city accept a $3.3 million settlement — about 60 percent of the estimated replacement value — for fire damage to the historic Municipal Auditorium.

Fire gutted the more than 50-year-old building last January. The building was insured for $4.6 million, but adjutor Gordon Refoy said there is no way to determine actual value because there is no record of actual cost.

Through a series of assumptions and calculations, the adjustors arrived at a replacement value cost of $5.5 million.

Pat Walker's presents: the Splendor of being Slender

'I MAY BE 63, BUT I'M A NEW PERSON!'

(Agnes Hall lost 36½ pounds and 59¾ inches.)

Agnes Hall made a marvelous new start in her life when she slimmed down to a trim, attractive size 10 on Pat Walker's proven program of weight reduction. Her story:

"I'd been overweight for so long I was beginning to think I was just naturally a fat person.

"Even when I got married 40 years ago, I weighed 160 pounds—not what you'd call a slim bride. Over the years, my weight crept up to 175, and I found myself wearing size 16. That's when I decided something had to be done.

"I tried a health spa, but I didn't like undressing or musing my hair or going in the water—and I couldn't do floor exercises because of back problems. I heard some women there talking about Pat Walker's, and since I'd already seen some ads, I thought . . . well, why not?

"Two, sometimes three, treatments a week on Pat Walker's passive exercise unit have gotten me down to—would you believe it?—a size 10. I've lost 36½ pounds and 59¾ inches, and I've kept my figure firmed and toned the whole time.

"My friends are amazed. One of my bowling partners says that almost everyone she knows who's lost the pounds I have has gotten bags and sags, but I haven't . . . I look and feel better than I have in at least 14 years. I may be 63, but I'm a new person . . ."

Dallas Shows Signs Of Improvement

IRVING (AP) — Although the Cincinnati Bengals can't be confused with the Pittsburgh Steelers, the Dallas Cowboys will take Sunday's 38-13 pounding of the Bengals as a sign they are back on the Super Bowl track.

There was an honest-to-goodness pass rush, which had been missing, three interceptions that led to touchdowns, and a tough-running Tony Dorsett, who gained 119 yards.

"This game gives us confidence," said Cowboy Coach Tom Landry. "We were losing some confidence after that Monday night game."

Dallas took a 26-7 thumping from Cleveland Monday night and hadn't played particularly well in three victories, resorting to fourth-quarter Roger Staubach come-from-behind passes for victory.

Rookie cornerback Aaron Mitchell, safety Randy Hughes, and rookie line-man Bruce Thornton intercepted passes and the Cowboys cashed them for touchdowns.

Hughes ran his interception back 68 yards to set up the first of two Scott Laidlaw touchdown runs, and Mitchell lugged his 36 yards to put Dallas in position for the second of two Staubach touchdowns.

Hughes said, "The defense as a whole didn't play as well as we're capable, but we'll get better."

Mitchell said, "It was like a dream ... I wanted to score bad, to take the pressure from the offense and for my own sake too."

Defensive end Larry Cole said the Cowboys, "talked all week" about improving the pass rush. Dallas got to Ken Anderson three times and rookie Jack Thompson once.

"We worked on our techniques and got back to the fundamentals," said Cole. "We feel we'll beat anybody if we don't beat ourselves."

Dorsett, who had been booed because of his fumbling, said "I feel like I'm back where I was last year when the season ended. I haven't been concentrating on not fumbling because that takes away from my running ... that's not what they pay me for."

Dallas built up a 21-6 halftime lead on touchdown runs of 3 and 1 yards by Laidlaw and a three-yard Staubach-tight end Billy Joe DuPree TD connection.

The Bengals, who only had two Chris Bahr field goals as an offensive punch in the first half, got back into the game on a 10-yard scoring pass from Anderson to Don Bass.

Then Mitchell made his interception, Staubach hit Tony Hill on a nine-yard TD pass and the rout was on.

It was the Bengals' fifth loss without a win.

Anderson, starting his first game in two weeks because of a sore back, played the game with a flak jacket under his jersey for the first time.

"I was pleased with Kenny coming back off his injury," said Cincinnati Coach Homer Rice. "Our defense hasn't been playing well. The intensity isn't there. We're not getting the pass rush we did last year."

"Despite the loss, I think we're going to get things turned around and I know we had better. I don't think we're an 0-5 football team."

Hot Day In Big D

CLIFF HARRIS, THE ALL-PRO free safety of the Dallas Cowboys, had it figured just about right. On the eve of Sunday's game against the Cincinnati Bengals, Cliff said he thought the 'Poke defense was beginning to come around and might give the AFC Central team a rough afternoon.

"I told you last spring that I thought this was going to be a difficult season for us," Cliff reminded this scribbler. "And I still think it is going to be very difficult. Look at the schedule ahead of us and the competition we have in our own division! But I've seen a few things on our team the last few days that gives me some hope."

Sure enough, the Cowboys survived the steamy cauldron of Texas Stadium Sunday afternoon and even showed a few flashes of brilliance, both offensively and defensively. Ace running back Tony Dorsett, finally rounding into shape after missing most of the exhibition season, put some zing in the Dallas ground attack. Quarterback Roger Staubach started a bit slow, but found the range in the second half and riddled the Bengal secondary. Putting 38 points on the scoreboard was most satisfying, after that night of frustration in Cleveland last week.

BUT THE BIGGEST STRIDES were made by the Dallas defense, which up to now has been just a shadow of the Doomsday legend. Through the first three games, enemy runners raced through the Cowboys almost unmolested. Then the Browns' Brian Sipes passed them silly.

That was a bitter pill for Coach Tom Landry, who, if he didn't invent defense, at least helped bring it to its present form.

Landry had a little to smile about Sunday afternoon, though, between gulps of Gatorade and checking for signs of heat stroke. The Dallas defense choked off Bengal runners and even got a bit of a pass rush on Ken Anderson without the help of a linebacker blitz.

There still is a way to go, of course. Former Houston receiver Don Bass was open all afternoon over the middle, where one would suppose there should be a linebacker on patrol. Cowboy partisans wince at the thought of giving a Lynn Swann or John Stallworth an opening like that.

Still, the bottom line is points given up, and the 'Pokes earned their victory by holding Cincy to just 13.

THE PERFORMANCE OF THE DALLAS defense was somewhat surprising because of the mounting injury problems. The defensive secondary still is adjusting to the loss of strong safety Charlie Waters, and Sunday the 'Pokes had to play without veteran cornerback Benny Barnes as well. Benny's foot ailment makes his future with the Cowboys extremely uncertain.

So Landry must have had some concern about starting rookie cornerback Aaron Mitchell against a chunker such as Anderson, who was the most accurate passer in NFL history during his first six seasons. Anderson was hitting right at 58 percent for that period, although he has tailed off a bit the last couple of years.

The Bengals were able to take advantage of Mitchell at times in the first half, as the rookie played back a little too far against receivers. A tip from the coaches at halftime corrected that, however, and the rugged rookie intercepted a toss and returned it deep into Cincinnati territory to set up a very important Cowboy tally.

Mitchell, as the Bengals now realize, is not your average first-year cornerback.

THERE IS NO TIME at all for celebration by the Cowboys or their followers. They still make too many mistakes for a good team, and they still lack the coordination of previous years. Then there's that schedule that Harris warned about.

Dallas goes to Minnesota Sunday to meet a resurging Viking team that seems to be gaining confidence in young quarterback Tommy Kramer. Then the Cowboys come home for a Sunday night battle with the Los Angeles Rams. Everyone knows how well the Cowboys play on those big nighttime TV extravaganzas!

Pittsburgh, which has destroyed Dallas' dreams in two Super Bowls, plays host to the 'Pokes on Oct. 28. That should be a real Halloween horror show.

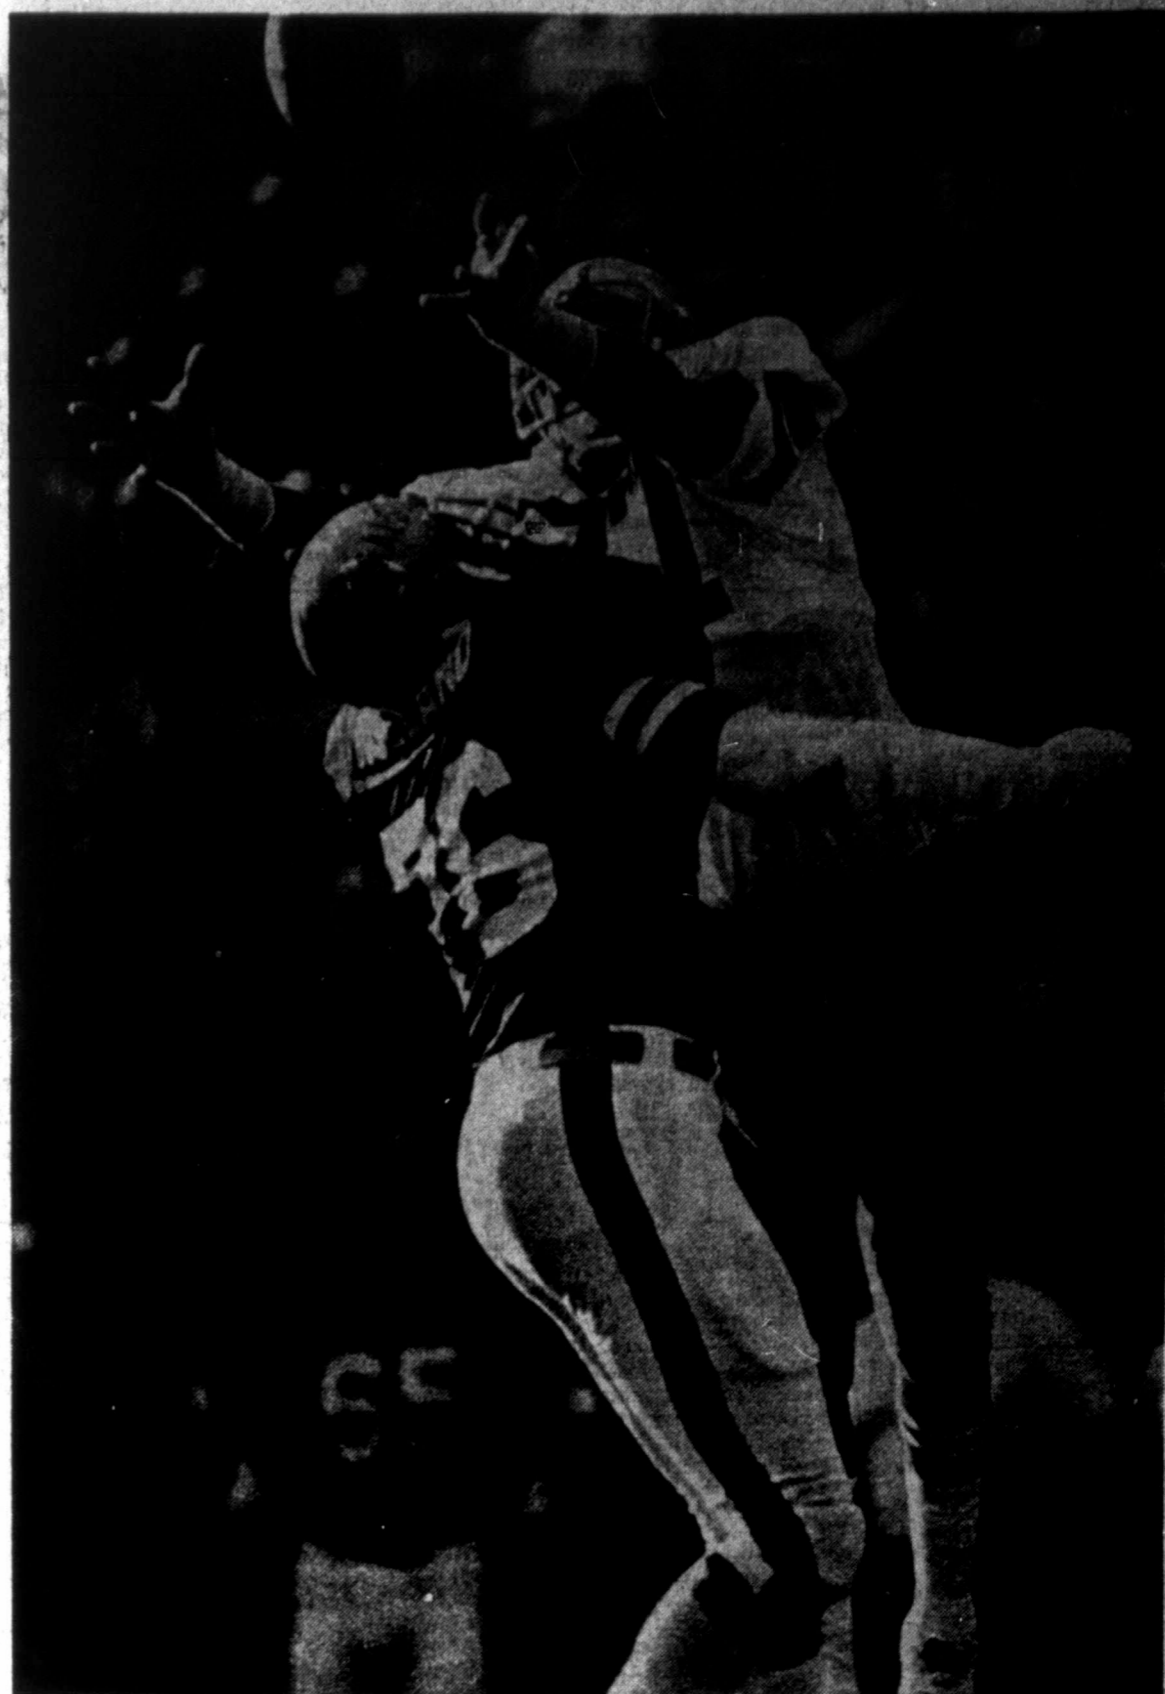

It is a long, rough road and the Cowboys are still struggling. But, as a weary Randy White said in the locker room after the win over the Bengals, the 'Pokes may at last be back on the right track.

Grammas To Join Anderson, Tigers

ATLANTA (AP) — Alex Grammas, Atlanta Braves third base coach, will go to the Detroit Tigers next season to rejoin his old boss Sparky Anderson, the Braves announced.

Grammas was a long-time coach for the Cincinnati Reds, working under Anderson. When the Reds fired Anderson as manager in 1978, Grammas joined the Braves. Anderson was hired to manage the Detroit baseball team midway through this season.

STRANGE INTERCEPTION — Dallas Cowboys rookie defensive tackle Bruce Thornton (77) reaches over Cincinnati's Vernon Holland (76) Sunday afternoon in Dallas to grab a Ken Anderson pass. Anderson had the pass deflected by Dallas defensive end Larry Betha. The Cowboys carved out a 38-13 decision over the Bengals. (Staff photo by Paul Moseley)

Oilers Score Early, Whip Browns

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Oilers threw away their old come-from-behind script, rested Earl Campbell and unleashed rookie defensive end Jesse Baker Sunday.

The result was an early lead the Oilers never lost, three touchdowns by Campbell, one and one-half sacks by Baker and a 31-10 victory over Cleveland.

The Browns' loss and Philadelphia's 17-14 victory over Pittsburgh knotted the Browns, Oilers and Steelers in a tie for the American Football Conference Central Division lead, all with 4-1 records.

"We forced them early to play catch-up and you are talking to one who knows what that means," Oiler Coach Bum Phillips said. "I mean to tell you, that's a hard way to play a football game."

A week earlier, the Oilers had to rally from a 24-0 deficit against Cincinnati before earning a 30-27 overtime victory.

The Oilers introduced a new act Sunday, taking a 24-3 lead in the second quarter on a pair of two-yard touchdown runs by Campbell, a 34-yard interception return by cornerback J.C. Wilson and Toni Fritsch's 11th consecutive field goal, a 28-yarder.

bruise, scored his third touchdown on a one-yard run early in the third quarter and retired for the rest of the afternoon with "only" 76 yards rushing on 18 carries and three touchdowns.

The Oiler defense, which entered the game with 19 quarterback sacks, pilfered the Browns' backfield five times for 52 yards in losses. Baker got one sack outright and shared another with middle guard Curly Culp.

The rookie from Jacksonville (Ala.)

State now has eight sacks to lead the Oilers in that category. Elvin Betha led the Oilers eight sacks for the entire 1978 season.

Cleveland got on the scoreboard with a 46-yard field goal by Don Cockroft in the second quarter and the Browns trailed 24-10 at the half on a 46-yard pass from quarterback Brian Sipe to Dave Logan to set up a one-yard touchdown run by Sipe 34 seconds before intermission.

"We had a lot of things go our way," said Oiler center Carl Mauk, who recovered two Oiler fumbles. "Maybe they were looking ahead to Pittsburgh but I don't see how they could do that since we were in the playoffs last year."

With Campbell taking a second-half breather, other Oiler runners got a chance to perform. Starting fullback Tim Wilson carried four times for 46 yards and Rob Carpenter rushed 57 yards on 11 carries.

Tampa Bay Keeps Perfect Record Intact

By The Associated Press
The game plan, Coach John McKay admits, wasn't exactly to go out and win the first five games of the season.

That, in fact, is as many games as the Tampa Bay Buccaneers won all last year with basically the same team.

At this stage, however, the Bucs look like the giant killers of the National Football League.

They are the only remaining unbeaten team. They dispensed with the Chicago Bears 17-13 on Sunday, while the other previously unbeaten — the Cleveland Browns, Pittsburgh Steelers and Miami Dolphins — were taking the gaff.

But McKay shouldn't forget what happened to the Washington Redskins last year, though. The Redskins got off to a 6-0 start and couldn't hold on long enough to make the playoffs.

"I guess we're ahead of our plan for five weeks," McKay said, "but we still have a long way to go."

Young quarterback Doug Williams, formerly of Grambling, engineered Tampa Bay's latest miracle, throwing an 8-yard touchdown pass to Isaac Hagins with 5:08 left in the game to erase a 13-10 deficit.

The Bears had gone ahead when Vince Evans connected with Walter Payton on a screen pass that covered 65 yards for a touchdown.

"We had to go out and move the football," Williams said. "and we did. I can read a little bit too. I had three receivers out, and he (Hagins) was open."

Hagins said he ran a slant pattern, and defensive back Mike Spivey "had to bite, so I just came back out. I got his hips turned, and it was all over then."

The victory kept the Bucs on top in the National Conference's Central Division.

Philadelphia moved to a 17-7 lead on 1-yard TD runs by Leroy Harris and Wilbert Montgomery and a 48-yard field goal by barefoot kicker Tony Franklin, then held on to hand Pittsburgh its first loss.

The Steelers had gone ahead in the first quarter on a 7-yard scoring run by Sidney Thornton, but two Terry Bradshaw interceptions and a pair of lost fumbles helped keep Pittsburgh off the scoreboard again until late in the game.

Bradshaw capped an 80-yard, six-play drive with a 37-yard scoring toss to John Stallworth with just 1:12 left.

"I really can't tell you how I felt coming off that field today," Eagles Coach Dick Vermeil said, "but I was excited and happy for my team, our coaches and our entire organization."

"There is no way we're better than the Steelers over 16 games," Vermeil said, "but I told the guys we only have to be as good for one day. Today was the day."

NATIONAL LEAGUE ROUNDUP

Pirates Nail Down East Division Crown

By The Associated Press
Pittsburgh's veterans and Philadelphia's cagiest pitcher sent the Pirates to the National League East Division title and eliminated the youthful Montreal (National League Box Scores Page 5, Sec. E)

Expos after a marvelous chase on the final day of the regular season.
The Pirates beat the Chicago Cubs 5-3 on the heroics of 38-year-old Willie Stargell and 36-year-old Bill Robinson Sunday, but needed the three-hit magic of Steve Carlton of the Phillies to finally force Montreal to call it a season.

"Hey, we voted Carlton a full playoff share, didn't we?" kidded Pirate catcher Steve Nicosia after he learned that Carlton and his Philadelphia mates had blanked the Expos 2-0.

"This is a thing of beauty. I'm so proud of these guys," said Stargell, who slammed his 32nd homer of the season and added a sacrifice fly one day after making a costly throwing error and striking out three times in a tough loss to the Cubs.

The Saturday loss put the Pirates and Expos even in the loss column. If the Expos could have won Sunday, they would have then made up two games against Atlanta today. Now the only one whose season will continue is Pittsburgh, which begins its NL championship series Tuesday night against the Cincinnati Reds.

The last time the Pirates won the NL East, in 1975, they succumbed to the Reds in three straight games.

"I'm very happy. I thank the good Lord. But now our work really starts," said Robinson, whose two-run single cemented the Pirates' 98th triumph of the season.

"We're good. Cincinnati is good... If we get the pitching, we'll win it," said Pittsburgh Manager Chuck Tanner.

He's certainly got the relief pitching in lanky Kent Tekulve, who nailed down the victory for his 31st save, tying the team record he set a year ago. It was also his 93rd appearance, two more than the previous Pirate record he set last season.

The Expos, the surprise leaders in the division much of the season, had never finished better than fourth place. This year, they fell two games short of the top spot.

"We pushed the Pirates to the limit and they were equal to the challenge," said Larry Parrish. "If we had won our 95 games last year, we would have won the division by five games."

"We all said the race would go down to the last day and our predictions were right," said Ellis Valentine. "But our performance just wasn't there."

Greg Gross cracked a run-scoring double and Bake McBride hit a sacrifice fly for the Phillies' runs.

Elsewhere in the NL, the San Diego Padres fired their manager, Roger Craig, then beat San Francisco 5-3 in 10 innings; the New York Mets downed St. Louis 4-2 to avoid 100 defeats; Houston edged Los Angeles 3-2 and Atlanta topped Cincinnati 7-2, with Joe and Phil Niekro, respectively, each winning his 21st game.

Braves 7, Reds 2

Phil Niekro, who was seeing 20-20 before the game, was looking even better following Atlanta's victory over the Reds. Niekro, who matched his brother, Phil, for most victories in the NL, ended the year with a 21-20 record.

The Atlanta pitching ace was backed by solo home runs by Bob Horner and Jerry Royster. He lost his shutout in the ninth when George Foster cracked his 30th homer of the year and Rick Auerback hit his first.

Astros 3, Dodgers 2

Joe Niekro, 21-11, kept pace with his older brother when rookie Dan Heep's sacrifice fly in the eighth scored Jeff Leonard and broke a 2-2 tie.

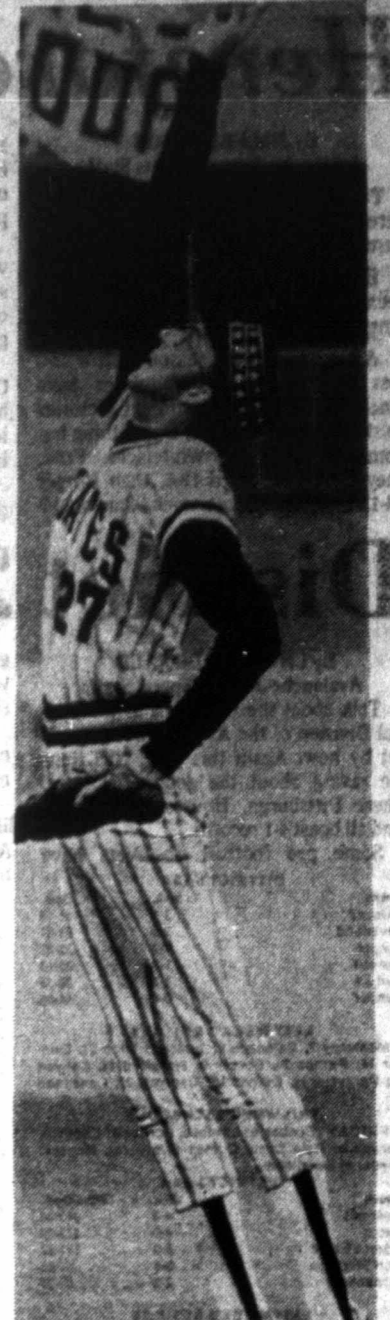

Houston ended the season in second place with a 89-73 record, best in the club's history. Los Angeles, 79-83, suffered its first losing season since 1968.

Mets 4, Cards 2

The Mets, winners of four straight over St. Louis, remained at 99 losses. Elliott Maddox singled in a run with two out in the ninth and circled the bases on a three-base throwing error by catcher Terry Kennedy.

Padres 5, Giants 3

Gene Tenace's 20th homer, a two-run shot in the 10th inning, carried San Diego past San Francisco. The Padres have scheduled a news conference for today to announce a new manager.

IT'S OVER — Pittsburgh relief pitcher Kent Tekulve leaps as he points to a pop fly in the top of the ninth inning against Chicago Sunday. The ball was caught by third baseman Bill Madlock and it gave the Pirates a 5-3 victory and the National League East title. (AP Laserphoto)

AMERICAN LEAGUE ROUNDUP

Koosman Picks Up 20th Win

By The Associated Press
BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — When the Minnesota Twins traded for veteran left-hander Jerry Koosman last winter, Manager Gene Mauch refused to predict how many games he might win.
"All I said was that he'd win in this league and probably win big," Mauch (American League Box Scores Page 5, Sec. E) said. "Eighteen is big, 19 is big, 20 is even bigger."

Well, Koosman took the high road Sunday, winning his 20th game on the final day of the season by shutting out Milwaukee on nine hits for a 5-0 Twins victory.

In other American League games on the last day of the regular season, Oakland nipped Kansas City 6-5, Chicago stopped Seattle 6-1, Detroit topped Boston 5-1, New York bombed Toronto 9-2, California defeated Texas 11-5 and Cleveland edged Baltimore 6-5 in 11 innings.

The best-of-five, American League championship series opens in Baltimore on Wednesday night when the Orioles host the California Angels.

Koosman, who became the first pitcher to hurl a shutout against the Brewers this season, won 21 games in 1976 while with the New York Mets and was asked to compare the two years.

"The first time you win 20 games is a special experience," said Koosman, 20-13, who guzzled champagne in the Twins' clubhouse after the game.

"It's like your first baby, your first marriage. Your first 20. But that doesn't make the second time anything less. It's not something you do everyday. It was my last shot of the year and I gave it my best."

Koosman's shutout was preserved by rookie John Castino in the ninth inning after Ray Fosse had tripled with one out. Jim Wohlford hit a hot smash down the third base line, but Castino snared the ball and lunged to tag out Fosse, who was caught off third.

It was the first time the Brewers had been shut out in 214 games since Ron Guindry of the New York Yankees stopped them 9-0 on Aug. 9, 1978.

"He's made difficult plays all year look easy and he's made the impossible plays possible," said Koosman of Castino, who is a prime rookie of the year candidate.

"Not many Brooks Robinsons come along in this league. The Twins are lucky to have the next one."

Castino was also part of the Twins' five-run fifth inning. Roy Smalley singled with the bases loaded for two runs off loser Gary Sorensen. Castino, Rob Wilfong and Danny Goodwin also drove in runs.

Gorman Thomas got two of the hits off Koosman, but also had the dubious distinction of tying the American League record for strikeouts when he was caught looking in the eighth.

It was Thomas' 175th strikeout, matching the mark set by Dave Nicholson in 1963.

Smalley, who played in 162 games this year, set an American League record for assists by a shortstop in a single season. His two chances gave him 572, erasing the previous mark held by Terrance Turner, Cleveland, 1906, and Leo Cardenas, who played for the Twins in 1969.

A's 6, Royals 5

Dave Revering's triple drove in two Oakland runs in the ninth for the victory, making Brian Kingman, 8-7, the winner. Dwayne Murphy and Dave Chalk hit solo homers for the A's.

White Sox 6, Mariners 1

Ken Kravec, 15-13, hurled a five-hitter and Thad Bosley knocked in three

Hereford Keeps Winning Close Football Games

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

To Don Cumpton, it doesn't matter if Hereford wins by one point or 60 or 100 — just as long as the Herd wins.

But lately the HHS head coach hasn't seen too many of those 60-point margins; the one-pointer is more like it.

After opening the season with a 23-0 loss to Pampa, the Whitefaces have since reeled off three straight victories to stand 3-1 for the year. But nothing has come easy for the Whitefaces. First, they beat Palo Duro 10-6, then Borger 14-13 and finally, last week, Canyon 14-

13. So over the last three Friday nights, Hereford has managed to outscore its opponents by the grand total of six points.

"I'm just tickled to death that we're winning," said Cumpton, who has now seen HHS win exactly the same number of games this season as it did through 10 games a year ago.

The key to Hereford's early success, Cumpton said, is "getting the big breaks. And we've been playing with a lot of emotion, too. But we've gotten the big breaks, too."

Last week against Canyon, Hereford got a long scoring pass off the arm of quarterback Derek Dirks right before the halftime break. And finally, as the game was winding down, the Hereford defense stopped Canyon on its two-point conversion try following a touchdown with 1:50 remaining.

Against Borger the week before, Dirks directed the Herd on a late scoring drive.

"We're keeping it interesting, all right," said Cumpton, now in his second year as Hereford's head coach. "But a victory's a victory and we'll take it every time."

Another key to Hereford's success, said Cumpton, is the way the "veterans" and younger players have welded into a team. The HHS offense returned only four starters off the '78 team, while six regulars are back on the defensive side.

"The veterans that we had coming back have really come through for us," said Cumpton. "They've shown a lot of leadership and helped the younger players quite a bit. It's been a good mixture, I think."

Paced by the running of back Joe Walker, Hereford has averaged a little over 212 yards total offense each outing. Before Friday night's contest, Walker was the third leading runner in the loop with 173 yards on 21 carries. He trails only Willie Johnson of Monterey and Plainview's Irvin Davis in that department.

Dirks, the junior quarterback, was the league's top passer with 212 yards on 15 completions. He has gone to the air 37 times without an interception.

Hereford still has two non-district games remaining — against Amarillo and Brownfield — before it opens loop play against Plainview. And, according to Cumpton, the Herd will be ready to compete for the 4-AAAA crown.

"You've got to think that Monterey and Plainview are the favorites," said Cumpton. "And Coronado has been improving. But I think we'll be in it too."

District 2-AAA Squads Shine

By CHUCK McDONALD
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Talk about the toughness of the Central Division of the AFC has become old hat by now. Again this year, NFL fans are raving about the good of Central where Pittsburgh, Houston and Cleveland all boast 4-1 records.

Some pro football observers have gone so far as to say that maybe two wild card teams from that division should be allowed in the playoffs.

Here on the high school level there is no such thing as a wild card team — but maybe there should be.

District 2-AAA is beginning to look like the Central Division of the Class AAA South Plains schoolboy competition. After four weeks, three of the schools boast 4-0 records, one is 3-1 and last-place Monahans is a respectable 2-2.

To put it bluntly, district 2-AAA has feasted on outside competition. Pecos, Odessa Ector and Andrews are all undefeated. Last week Andrews got its toughest test of the year when the Mustangs battled Snyder of district 3-AAA. The Mustangs took a 14-7 victory in Snyder.

That victory, coupled with Estacado's loss to Class AAAA Monterey, moved Andrews into first place on the Avalanche-Journal area AAAA poll.

San Angelo Lake View stunned highly-ranked Brownwood 3-0 also this weekend to make its presence felt in the poll. Lake View is the only team in district 3-AAA with a margin better than .500. That's hardly the kind of mark the teams down south in 2-AAA have been making.

And up north in 1-AAA, the record against non-district competition hasn't been what you would call outstanding. In fact, it's been downright lousy.

Only Estacado is over the .500 mark. Levelland is next with a 2-2 mark. No one else has managed more than one victory in four tries.

The Dunbar Panthers trail the pack with an 0-4 mark but things are beginning to look brighter for coach Van Jefferson.

The Panther offense showed signs of life Friday night against Lubbock High, racking up 195 yards of total offense and scoring 14 points — the first of the year for DHS

Lon Hinkle Claims Pro Golf Victory

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Last year Lon Hinkle made his first appearance in the World Series of Golf and shot 292.

"I thought about it a lot afterwards," he said, "and I really couldn't see a lot of ways I could have improved on that score."

But Hinkle — who planned, played and successfully executed one shot off the surface of a pond, skipping the ball off the water to the green — cut that score by 20 strokes for a 1-stroke victory Sunday that Hinkle said will "do more for me than anything I've done. It's the most important thing I could do at this stage of my career."

"It (his career) can go either way. That's for sure. But this is very important."

"Believe it or not, I've been pointing for this for the last six weeks. I thought I had a chance of winning, if I could make some puts."

But going into the last four holes of the double-round, 36-hole windup, Hinkle appeared to be out of it. He was 3 shots back and steady little Larry Nelson, the leader, was playing with methodical precision and had a 2-shot lead over Lee Trevino and Tom Watson, his playing partners. They appeared the only logical challengers.

But Nelson drove poorly and bogeyed the 15th. Hinkle, playing in front of him, razzed in a 35-foot birdie putt on the 17th and suddenly was a single shot

Nelson then buried his second shot under the lip of a bunker on the 17th and made double bogey 6. Suddenly Hinkle was the leader.

But he missed an eight-foot birdie putt on the 18th hole and said, "I thought I'd blow it."

Watson, Nelson and Trevino went to the 18th tee tied for second a single shot back. If any one of the three birdied, it would be a playoff.

But Watson hooked his drive into the woods and eventually made bogey. Nelson drove into a bunker and came up some 75 feet short of the pin in 2.

Trevino, who'd missed a short birdie putt on the 17th, put his second shot some 15 feet from the flag on the final hole and needed that to tie. But he missed it and Hinkle let out a happy shout of "unbelievable."

Hinkle finished with rounds of 71-67 and collected the biggest prize in golf, $100,000, from the total purse of $400,000.

Trevino had closing rounds of 72-66 on the 7,180-yard, par 70 Firestone Country Club course, and tied at 273, one shot back, with Nelson and Bill Rogers. Nelson shot 68, 70; Rogers 68, 69.

Watson, the pretournament favorite and second-round leader, tied for fifth with Hale Irwin at 274. Watson shot 72-69, Irwin 70-65. Each collected $15,000, which left Watson well short of becoming the first player in history to win $500,000 in a single season. He has $462,636 and has said he probably will not play in this country again this season.

Hinkle, the protagonist in the famous tree-planting incident at the U.S. Open, had an equally unorthodox shot in Saturday's second round. From the rough on the 16th, he skipped a shot — on purpose — off the surface of the pond and reached the green.

Nancy Lopez Captures Dallas Open

DALLAS (AP) — Nancy Lopez Melton says she wants to boost her year's earnings to $200,000, but she is giving herself only one more chance to do it.

After winning the $150,000 Dallas Open with a 274, the 22-year-old pro queen said she would play only one more Ladies Professional Golf Association event out of four remaining tournaments this year.

"I won't say which, but I definitely will not play at Wheeling, W.Va., this coming week. After that there is the Portsmouth, (Va.) the Manila and the Far East in Japan. I've not determined which two I will miss."

Mrs. Melton shot a final round 2-under-par 70 on the tough Bent Tree course here to go 14 under par in the four-day tournament and take the first place check of $19,500. It boosted her 1979 earnings to $193,752, erasing her previous LPGA season total high.

"I'd like to win $200,000 this year," said Mrs. Melton.

She withstood late charges by Sandra Post, who carded a final round 67 for 276, and former Furman University collegiate star Beth Daniel, who made up a lot of ground with a 6-under-par 66, winning third place money with a 278.

College Football Shootouts End Up in Ties

By The Associated Press

Three of the weekend's most publicized shootouts turned out to be little more than target practice for Texas, Nebraska and Notre Dame.

While top-rated Southern California and No. 14 Ohio State had to rally for last-minute triumphs over No. 20 Louisiana State (USC 17-12) and No. 17 UCLA (Ohio State 17-13), the other matchups between members of The Associated Press Top Twenty were really mismatches.

Fourth-ranked Texas put the clamps on Missouri's offense, holding the fifth-ranked Tigers to 164 yards in a 21-0 triumph. Sixth-ranked Nebraska trailed No. 18 Penn State 14-0 after one period but erupted for a 24-14 halftime bulge and punted the Nittany Lions 42-17, the most points against a Joe Paterno team since 1966, his first year as head coach.

And No. 15 Notre Dame, facing its third straight Big Ten power, crunched seventh-ranked Michigan State 27-3 as Vagas Ferguson rushed for 169 yards and moved past the legendary George Gipp into second place on the school's all-time rushing chart.

Meanwhile, runner-up Alabama walloped Vanderbilt 66-3, third-ranked Oklahoma punted Rice 63-21 — Oklahoma's offense mated Texas' defense in two weeks — No. 8 Houston trounced West Texas State 49-10 and No. 9 Washington buried Fresno State 49-14.

The only other Top Twenty team to have it easy was No. 13 Arkansas, a 33-8 winner over Tulsa. Tenth-ranked Purdue was hard-pressed to turn back Oregon 13-7, No. 11 Michigan shaded California 14-10, No. 12 Florida State downed Virginia Tech 17-10, No. 16 North Carolina State edged Wake Forest 17-14 and No. 19 Southern Methodist was knocked off by Tulane 24-17.

Texas routed an 18-0 halftime lead over Missouri on three of John Goodson's four field goals and a 1-yard run by Jam Jones, who finished with 142 yards. Missouri has been a second-half team all season, but Texas Coach Fred Akers explained that "we're a second-half club, too, and we pride ourselves on that fact."

Tom Jones of Arkansas, Bert's younger brother, threw a 38-yard touchdown in his first starting assignment and Southwestern Conference

"I don't think you can be up for every game." Coach Jim Young said in the wake of last week's emotional win over Notre Dame. "Jones is our blocker, but today he was our best runner, too."

Michigan trailed Cal 10-0 at halftime, then came from behind on 3-yard touchdown runs by Stanley Edwards and Lawrence Reid. Jimmy Jordan's 18-yard pass to Jackie Flowers broke a second-period tie as Florida State defeated Virginia Tech.

Tom Jones of Arkansas, Bert's younger brother, threw a 38-yard touchdown in his first starting assignment and led the Razorbacks to scores on two of their next three possessions against Tulsa. Calvin Murray's 34-yard run triggered Ohio State's comeback from a 10-0 halftime deficit and the Buckeyes overtook UCLA on Art Schlichter's 2-yard pass to Paul Campbell with 46 seconds left.

North Carolina State quarterback Scott Smith scored twice but the Wolfpack needed Nathan Ritter's 41-yard field goal with 5:13 remaining to turn back Wake Forest. And Marvin Christian, who scored Tulane's first touchdown on 14-yard run, booted 19 yards to break a 17-all tie with 1:22 to play as the Green Wave handed SMU its first setback.

Outstanding individual performances were turned in by:

- Iowa's Dennis Mosley, who rushed for 229 yards and three touchdowns, as the Hawkeyes trimmed Iowa State 20-14.
- North Carolina's Amos Lawrence, who gained 209 and tallied twice as the Tar Heels crushed Army 41-3.
- Utah State split end Ken Thompson, who caught nine passes for 184 yards and a school record four touchdowns as the Aggies overpowered Utah 47-21.

McEnroe Clips Fleming At Tennis Tournament

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — For the second time in about two weeks, doubles partners John McEnroe and Peter Fleming found themselves in the finals of a $175,000 open tennis tournament.

But it has been singles competition that has brought them together, and Sunday it was McEnroe's turn as he won the $27,500 top purse, beating Fleming 4-6, 7-5, 6-2, to bring his total season winnings near $500,000.

"For me, he's the toughest of any guy to play," said top-seeded McEnroe, who lost the opening set in a sluggish start before turning the finals around in the second set.

The last time the two made the top bracket in Los Angeles, Fleming beat McEnroe, largely on the strength of his serve.

But the in the latest contest, McEnroe would often successfully return the 6-foot-5 Fleming's serve, catching him rushing the net and out of position. And Fleming hurt his own cause, bearing down after bad first serves and double-faulting seven times.

"John was returning my serves so well that I had to put a little extra steam on my second serves," said sixth-seeded Fleming, as he accepted a check for more than $13,700 in second place prize money.

In a wild second set, service was broken seven times, four times by McEnroe and three by Fleming, as McEnroe began to take charge of the finals.

"He kept breaking me back," said Fleming, "and that made the difference."

McEnroe, who was booed in the first set when he stepped to protest a serve ruled a fault, began to win the applause of the 7,500 spectators at the Cow Palace as he played from the baseline, repeatedly beating Fleming with pinpoint crosscourt shots to the far corner.

McEnroe, 20, won the same tournament last year.

"As well as I've been playing here, you're bound to see me here next year," said McEnroe, who was to fly to Sydney, Australia, Monday for the Davis Cup competition. He has not had a break since the August beginning of the U.S. Open, which he won.

Fleming, 24, appeared to lose his concentration in the final set, when he double-faulted four times and McEnroe twice broke service. He changed into a fresh shirt before the sixth game, but appeared tired as three times he stood flat-footed at mid-court, watching McEnroe lob balls over his head to fall just inside the baseline.

After the singles final, McEnroe and Fleming teamed up in the doubles final and split $9,200, beating the team of Frew McMillan and Wojtek Fibak, 6-1, 6-4.

The tournament was sponsored by the Transamerica Corp.

Notre Dame's Ferguson rushed for 167 yards, including touchdowns of 24 and 48 yards in the third period, as the Irish stopped Michigan State's 10-game winning streak. His second TD came on fourth-and-one.

"It was an off-kick play and suddenly everything opened up," Ferguson said. "Tim Foley took his man out, and when the linebackers went with the outside flow I just cut back in and blew it out. You don't think big run. You just stay with the ball and let it happen."

Southern Cal trailed LSU 12-3 with 10 minutes left, but Charles White, who rushed for 185 yards, plunged across from 4 yards out and the Trojans pulled it out on Paul McDonald's 8-yard pass to Kevin Williams with 32 seconds left.

Alabama got two touchdowns apiece from Steadman Shealy and Joe Jones in crushing Vanderbilt, while Oklahoma's Billy Sims rushed for 103 yards and three touchdowns — all in the first half — against Rice.

Backup fullback David Barrett scored three times in the second period as Houston drubbed West Texas State, while Tom Porras scored one touchdown and passed for another and Joe Steele scored twice in Washington's rout of Fresno State.

Sophomore Wally Jones rushed for 156 yards and scored on a pair of 2-yard runs — including the tie-breaker with 4:37 left — as Purdue downed Oregon.

Americans Drinking More Wine

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

By the glass, the bottle and the jug, Americans are downing millions of gallons of wine and the market is expected to more than double by the end of the next decade.

Marvin R. Shanken, editor and publisher of Impact, a newsletter on wine and distilled spirits, said the wine shipments in the United States last year totaled 430 million gallons — about two gallons per capita — up 61 percent from the 267 million gallons shipped in 1970.

By 1990, Shanken said wine shipments should total 1.1 billion gallons. "Wine is closing the gap," he said, adding that wine accounts for a steadily growing share of the alcoholic beverage market.

California growers, who provide a little more than 70 percent of the wine Americans drink, are in the midst of harvesting this year's grapes and the producers predict an excellent crop, in terms of quantity and quality.

Shanken said California and Italy are "really leading the way" in producing low-price, high-quality wines.

The biggest boom in the wine business has come in the area of white wine, which has been replacing other alcoholic beverages as a before-meal drink.

In 1970, Shanken said, 50 percent of the wine drunk in the United States was red; 24 percent was rose; and 26 percent was white. By 1977, he said, only 38 percent was red; 22 percent was rose; and 40 percent was white.

"It's light, flavorful and cold," said Shanken, when asked to explain the popularity of white wine. "And it's very sophisticated," he added, explaining that people think of a white wine cocktail as an elegant drink.

"How can you tell what to buy?"

"Be adventuresome," said Shanken. "Try different wine types from different areas. There is no reason to go out of the $2 to $4 price range. Don't be intimidated — by the retailer, by your friends or by the wine itself. See what you personally enjoy."

Ask questions. Where does the wine come from? Is it dry or sweet? Does the retailer know how the wine has been stored? (Extremes of temperature can ruin a wine.)

Compare prices. Experiment with lesser-known brands; the well-advertised label is not necessarily the best and it may be more expensive. Check vintages, but do not avoid a wine just because it was made in a particular year. There are good wines made in bad years and bad wines made in good years.

Learn how to read a wine label. Recent changes in government regulations are designed to provide more information for consumers and to make sure that the description on the label is accurate. The rules are being phased in gradually. Here are some terms to look for:

— Appellation of origin: The place where the wine was made. If a wine label lists a particular place — a country, state, county, etc. — at least 75 percent of the wine has to come from that place. If the label indicates that the wine comes from a viticultural area — a specific grape-growing region like the Napa Valley of California or the Burgundy district of France — at least 85 percent of the wine must come from that area. As a general rule, the more specific the place name, the better the wine.

— Varietal wine: A wine from a particular type of grape like zinfandel, pinot noir or cabernet. At least 75 percent of the volume of a wine labeled with a varietal name must come from the type of grape that is listed. If two or three types of grapes are listed, the percentage of each must be included on the label. (Note: Wines made from labrusca grape varieties are exempt from the 75-percent rule since these grapes have a very strong flavor.)

Debt Collection Problem Studied

By BROOKS JACKSON
WASHINGTON (AP) — If someone owed you $600 you probably would want to know how long it had been owed, how likely the debtor was to pay, and who the debtor was, wouldn't you?

Well, in effect, someone does owe you $600.
And you can't get those answers. The money is due you — through your federal government.

More than $140 billion was owed at the end of the last fiscal year by farmers, foreign governments, delinquent taxpayers, state and local governments, businesses, college students and others.

The total is growing, and amounts to more than $600 for every American.

But as President Carter's management specialists have discovered, the government has relatively little information about who owes the money, and how much of it is likely to go unpaid.

"We never have attempted to manage this centrally," said Wayne Granquist, a top official in Carter's Office of Management and Budget. "We just don't manage our portfolio."

Granquist is aiming to collect some information that will allow OMB — which is supposed to oversee the spending and functioning of the government's executive branch — to tighten lending and collection procedures.

A large portion of the debt seems on the surface to be quite sound. For example, $2.7 billion of the $140 billion total is loaned to farmers and backed up by commodities such as grain.

But a lot of Uncle Sam's loans have clearly gone bad. The student loan program, for example, has now seen more than 1 million U.S. students fail to make their payments. The sour student loans now total more than $1 billion.

The default rate on student loans is conservatively estimated at 8.7 percent for federally insured loans made by private lending institutions and 17.4 percent for loans made directly by the government.

Howard Messner, a Granquist lieutenant, figures that would be enough to send a bank or savings and loan company into receivership.

"They'd drop like a rock," Messner said.

Jerry Bridges, who will direct a special "debt collection project" for Granquist and Messner, predicted the study will take a year and a staff of about 15 persons, plus assistance from the agencies that lend the money.

Bridges is asking how much is owed, by whom, for how long, at what cost to the government. He wants to know, most importantly, how many defaults are likely and what can be done to prevent them or to collect bad debts.

The debt collection problem is seen by OMB as an increasingly important one, because the government is lending more and more money.

In 1975 the total lent was $77.6 billion, but last year the total had grown more than 80 percent, to $140.6 billion.

Granquist also sees it as part of a general "austerity" budget psychology. "We're looking to save nickels everywhere we can," he said.

He says he wants to repeat the success of OMB's earlier efforts to tighten up on the government's "cash flow" management.

He claims savings of $400 million a year already have been realized by such devices as speedier collection of payments owed the government and speedier cashing of checks that sometimes floated around the bureaucracy for days before being deposited.

For the record, the Department of Agriculture has by far the biggest total of loans outstanding: $53.8 billion at the end of fiscal 1978, most of it through the Farmers Home Administration which makes loans to low-income farmers and other rural residents for homes, farms and community development.

That total is followed by the State Department's $15.4 billion in foreign aid loans, the Treasury Department's $14.7 billion in debts owed mostly by delinquent taxpayers, $12.3 billion owed to the Department of Housing and Urban Development in mortgage loans, and $11.8 billion lent by the Export-Import bank to foreigners for purchase of U.S. goods.

Many Homes Lack Attic Insulation

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Despite rising energy costs, more than 10 million households in the United States have no attic insulation, according to a recent report by Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp.

The attic is one of the major areas of heat loss in the home.

The report also says another 22-million households (excluding mobile homes and multi-family dwellings with more than four units) have only 1 to 5 inches of attic insulation. Six inches is considered the minimum in most areas of the country.

Owens-Corning said the majority of dwellings without attic insulation were more than 30 years old. About two-thirds of the occupants were over 50 and two-thirds earned less than $15,000 a year.

DR. LAMB

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB — My eyes were checked by the ophthalmologist and he says I have bilateral cataracts. I was fitted with driving glasses. The cataract is the hard kind. I asked about removal and he said when I wasn't able to get a driver's license, he would talk to me. I see to read, thread a needle and have no headaches. What could be done about my eyes now? Will this affect my near-sightedness later on? What type of operation will I need?

DEAR READER — Cataracts are a very common problem. Basically, they are simply opacities that develop in the lens of the eye.

The lens itself is a small globular structure of jelly-like material and it's quite elastic in youth.

The cells of the lens regenerate just like the cells in your skin do. The problem is that old cells are not shed off those on the surface of your skin. Rather the new cells form at the surface of the lens and the old ones move to the center. Eventually these old hard cells are compacted in the middle of the lens. That's why if a person lives long enough, the likelihood is that he will develop some changes in the lens.

We don't know all the factors related to cataracts but I am sending you The Health Letter Number 13-6, Your Cataracts Are Coming. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents in check or coin with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

At the beginning a cataract may involve areas of the lens that don't really interfere much with vision. At this stage the doctor may not feel like subjecting his patient to an operation. As the opacities increase and begin to affect sight, the decision has to be made on the basis of how much the sight is affected and what can be done to correct it without an operation. Some people who do not read and don't thread needles don't really need as accurate eyesight as others. Still another person who needs excellent eyesight in both eyes may require an operation sooner.

When the cataract is opaque enough that it won't transmit light and you can't see through it, it's said to be mature. At that point it's usually necessary to take it out. Despite other claims to the contrary, the only real cure for cataracts is removing them surgically.

These operations are relatively simple today and in many instances the hospital stay is of short duration. The only way to determine when you need a cataract operation is from a competent eye examination. There's no reason to take them out if they don't significantly interfere with vision. And, on the other hand, if you have serious disease of the rest of the eye that compromises vision anyway, removing the cataract may not improve the vision.

There's not much that can be done to prevent cataracts.

Wife Reunited With Husband

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — Mushak and Armen Manukian have been married for 50 years, but they are almost strangers.

Manukian's imprisonment in a Nazi concentration camp and subsequent emigration to the United States, leaving his wife and three children behind in Russia, separated the couple for nearly 38 years.

But Manukian, a 73-year-old retired restaurant worker, never lost faith that he would be reunited with his wife. He kept in touch with her by correspondence.

Recently his faith was rewarded. Mrs. Manukian and her 49-year-old daughter, Asya, who visited her father in 1977, flew from Moscow to Los Angeles where Manukian met them.

The Manukians and Asya will live here. Their two other children will remain in Russia, Manukian said.

A new suit for $35?

You bet!

I'm talking about my birthday suit of course. A month ago, I was pale and white. Now everyone thinks I just got back from the Caribbean. But I didn't. I cheated.

I spent about 15 to 20 minutes of my lunch hour at Sundance Tanning Salon a couple of times a week. And their tanning booths are safe, comfortable and totally private, so I can get an all-over tan. It was only about $35 for 20 visits—that's about $1.75 per session.

This new suit is like a whole new wardrobe. And now, I feel better and look better. What do you think?
