Khomeini Urges Iran To Prepare For Battle

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini today urged his Islamic followers to mobilize "everything" against the United States and said all Iranians must learn to handle a weapon.

As the occupation of the U.S. Embassy entered its 23rd day, Khomeini gave a speech to revolutionary guards, broadcast from his headquarters in the holy city of Qom. He envisaged his nation of 35 million producing a 20-million strong army within a few years, but he did not appear to be calling for an immediate general mobilization.

"America is our enemy now and we should have everything mobilized against it," the Shiite Moslem patriarch and revolutionary leader declared.

"Our Islamic principles say everyone should know how to shoot and how to ride a horse. Our youth should learn these skills and teach them to others, so that in several years time if we have 20 million youths we shall have 20 million warriors."

In Washington, White House press secretary Jody Powell said the Carter administration is opposed to Rep. George Hansen's personal mission to Iran, and believes it may prolong the holding of the 49 hostages still held.

Powell said he didn't think the Idaho Republican's independent negotiating was helpful. Asked if there was a danger the Iranians might misinterpret Hansen's statements as an official signal from the administration, Powell said, "Yes, if he gives a conflicting view to the students ... he could prolong their (the hostages) stay."

Hansen has proposed congressional hearings into charges against the deposed Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, whom the students insist be extradited in exchange for the hostages.

In other developments:

— An unidentified group attacked an air force base in western Iran, causing serious damage to it and a television transmitter there, according to a Radio Tehran broadcast monitored in London. It said security forces rushed to the site near the Iraqi border and that three base guards had been wounded in the machine-gun and grenade attack.

— The embassy occupiers distributed copies of a September memorandum from the top U.S. diplomat in Iran, L. Bruce Laughlin, urging the State Department not to decide on admitting the shah without informally contacting Iranian officials.

— The U.N. Security Council was expected to begin debate today on the crisis. Acting Foreign Minister Abolhassan Bani Sadr planned to address the Council, but postponed his trip for a week because of a religious holiday and a constitutional referendum, a government spokesman said. The Iranian position will be presented by Iran's U.N. mission.

In a broadcast statement today, Bani Sadr said he postponed the trip because U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim failed to consult Iran about the date of the meeting.

Congressman Hansen visited the hostages Sunday and said their hands are "loosely tied with a strip of white cloth" and that the captives are kept about three to a room.

"Some were sitting and reading. Some were lying on mats," the Idaho Republican said. They "don't get much sunshine and much opportunity to change their clothes," and one was recovering from chicken pox, he said.

Hansen said the hostages looked fairly well when he visited them, "but their mental state seems anxious. They would like to get out. They are anxious for their families to know they are well."

Hansen, a self-styled "do-it-yourself ambassador," was the first American to see the captives since Moslem militants seized the embassy Nov. 4.

Hansen said the student captors "blindfolded me and took me around the compound a couple of times in a truck" before reaching the hostages.

"Some things will be with me for a long time - the crowd, the look on the hostages' faces when I walked in, and the horror the students told me they and their families had suffered under the shah."

Hansen talked with about 20 of the hostages.

"I'm here because I am concerned about your cause, your people, your suffering and about the threat of war," Hansen told the embassy captors in a question-and-answer session shown on Iranian television Sunday night.

U.N. Facing Delay In Meet On Crisis

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — U.N. Security Council members gathered at headquarters to arrange a public meeting on the U.S.-Iran crisis and decide whether to hold it today or postpone it until Iran's foreign minister arrives.

They were addressed by Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim, who on Sunday called for a meeting of the 15-nation Council, describing the stalemate over the detention of 49 U.S. hostages in Tehran as the most serious threat to peace since the 1962 Cuban missile crisis. Waldheim had been asked to explain to the members today why he thought the council should meet.

Diplomatic sources said the public meeting, planned for this afternoon, might be put off if Iran's Bani Sadr can be expected to arrive in a few days. If his arrival is uncertain, or put off for as long as a week, the council might meet with Iranian Charge d'Affaires Jamal Shemirani representing Iran temporarily. Bani Sadr said Sunday he was postponing the trip for a week.

The United States, which for nearly two weeks blocked an Iranian request for the debate, agreed because it believed the debate would result in a strong resolution demanding release of the hostages, who have been held in the U.S. Embassy in Tehran for three weeks, a State Department official said.

The hostages were visited Sunday for the first time since their ordeal began Nov. 4 by an American official as tens of thousands of Iranians held the daily anti-American demonstration outside. The official, Rep. George Hansen, R-Idaho, reported the captives were still being kept with their hands tied loosely and were "anxious" but healthy. He also reported one of them was recovering from chicken pox.

Waldheim in a letter to Security Council President Sergio Palacios de Vizzio of Bolivia said the tension between the United States and Iran "could have dangerous consequences for the entire world." He asked that the council "be convened urgently in an effort to seek a peaceful solution."

Diplomatic sources earlier said they expected the 15 council members to consult privately this morning and to meet publicly in the afternoon to start the debate.

These sources said they expected council members generally would make See U.N. TO DEBATE Page 14

Russians Refuse To Aid Hostages

MOSCOW (AP) — A member of the ruling Soviet Politburo told a delegation of six U.S. governors today it is unlikely Russia will do anything more to help the United States obtain the release of the 49 Americans hostages from the occupied U.S. Embassy in Tehran.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko has stated that the Soviet Union rejects the taking of diplomatic hostages as contrary to international law. The Soviet Union has not, however, issued a protest on behalf of the United States.

Delegation leader Gov. Robert D. Ray of Iowa told reporters the group met for more than two hours with Mikhail Solomentsev, a non-voting member of the Politburo and the chairman of the Russian Federation, and that discussion centered on Senate ratification of the SALT II treaty.

He said the discussion touched on the seizure of American diplomats by Iranian militants demanding U.S. officials send the ousted shah from New York to stand trial in Iran.

Ray, a Republican, said he told Solomentsev the Americans were united in the wish to obtain the freedom of the hostages and how "how we (Americans) can be bound together when we have a common goal."

The governor said he believed Soviet cooperation on the Iran situation might have beneficial political fallout in the United States and thus enhance the SALT treaty's chances of being ratified.

"We raised the question as a way in which the Russians or Soviets could convince people in our country about their sincerity on the elimination or slowing down of the arms race," he said.

He was there when the 45th Christmas made last week.

And the organizer of Lubbock Goodfellows will be there as long as good health keeps him going.

The faces of the young seeing Christmas coming up to the door keeps this vintage Goodfellow going.

There have been families "with as many as 18 kids" on the Goodfellow list, and 11 in a family is not unusual.

Whatever the circumstances of the family, regardless of why a child will have no Christmas without Goodfellows, no Lubbock child will be without a toy and some candy come Christmas morning — if the Goodfellows can help it.

To do it, they need the help of all Lubbock — to locate the children, to collect and package materials for the Christmas sacks, and to finance the Santa operation.

Anyone knowing of a family with children who just might miss Christmas should fill out the coupon on Page 1, Sec. B, and mail it to Chief Goodfellow, P.O. Box 491, Lubbock, Texas 79408.

Any "good fellow" wishing to aid the Goodfellows with their Christmas task may send contributions to the same address.

Pakistani Plane Crash Kills 156

JIDDA, Saudi Arabia (AP) — A Pakistani jetliner flying Moslem pilgrims home from Mecca caught fire, exploded and crashed shortly after taking off early today from Jidda and all 156 persons aboard were believed killed, airline officials said.

A Pakistani International Airlines spokesman told a news conference in Karachi, Pakistan, the plane's destination, that no survivors were reported among the plane's 145 passengers and 11 crew members. He said none of those aboard were Americans or Europeans.

Airline officials said they did not rule out sabotage, but PIA engineers in Karachi said they believed a short circuit caused the fire and explosion.

The plane carried 110 Moslems returning from a pilgrimage to Mecca, Islam's holiest shrine, a PIA spokesman said.

An airline spokesman said the Boeing 707 crashed 35 minutes after taking off from this Red Sea port city. The wreckage was scattered over a three-mile area, he said.

PIA operations chief Masoud Ghazi told a news conference in Karachi that flight captain Khalid Wyne radioed a distress signal 30 minutes after takeoff, reporting smoke in the cabin and cockpit and requesting permission to land.

At the time the plane was flying at an altitude of 25,000 feet 167 miles from Jiddah. Five minutes later, Wyne radioed: "May Day! May Day!" and radio contact was broken.

Ghazi said the plane crashed about 70 miles northeast of Jidda, in rough and mountainous desert north of Mecca.

Saudi helicopters, carrying civil aviation and Pakistani airline officials, left Jidda before dawn for the wreckage about 15 miles north of Taif.

A Saudi helicopter landed at the crash site, where burning debris from the airliner could be seen, a Pakistani press association reported.

Officials at the Saudi air force base at Taif said the wreckage was spotted after the plane crashed in darkness, but because of the hilly terrain it was not possible to land the rescue helicopters until dawn.

Two large air force helicopters from Jidda with medical supplies and rescue equipment were dispatched to the scene by Saudi authorities, Radio Pakistan said.

The PIA plane had come from Kano, Nigeria, and left Jidda shortly before 1 a.m. bound for Karachi.

It was the second tragedy during this year's pilgrimage to Mecca. On Tuesday members of an ultra-conservative Moslem tribe in southern Arabia seized control of the Grand Mosque in Mecca, Islam's holiest shrine, and took a number of hostages. Saudi troops retook the mosque Saturday in a blazing gunbattle.

Ghazi described Wyne as an experienced pilot, and said the airline had purchased the Boeing 707 in 1970. He said the most recent previous PIA tragedy involving a Boeing plane was the May 20, 1965 crash of an inaugural flight near Cairo, in which more than 120 people died.

Although the meeting had been announced, Perry testified, the specific question of Mrs. Greenwood's membership was not mentioned before the meeting, but rather made an addendum to other church business to be discussed.

Bobbie Sue Greenwood will get "her day in court" to answer allegations that she has caused an "insurrection" at Lyons Chapel Baptist Church, but until then she cannot attend the church's services.

Following a two-hour hearing this morning, District Judge Thomas L. Clinton granted a temporary injunction prohibiting Mrs. Greenwood's attendance at Lyons Chapel.

Church members contend that although Mrs. Greenwood was expelled from the church in July 1978, she has continued to attend and intentionally disrupt the services. On Nov. 16, Clinton issued a temporary restraining order preventing Mrs. Greenwood's presence at the church and extended his order to a temporary injunction this morning.

The judge, however, did not announce to the courtroom when the hearing on whether to make the injunction permanent will be held.

Floyd Perry, senior minister at the 1704 E. 24th St. church, testified that Mrs. Greenwood had been causing an "insurrection among the flock, causing conflict and confusion" and that is why on July 30, 1978, a church meeting was held during the worship hour and Mrs. Greenwood's membership revoked.

But the 44-year-old grandmother of four has continued to attend the church services sporadically, Perry said, and maintains her disruptive attitude.

The minister, who also is an education professor at Texas Tech University, added that since he joined Lyons Chapel in June 1973, Mrs. Greenwood has been involved in two confrontations with church members which were "ignored in the hopes peace might abound."

During one of the instances, according to testimony at the hearing this morning in 99th District Court, Mrs. Greenwood allegedly threatened another female member of the congregation with a chair after a meeting of the board of ushers.

Mrs. Greenwood, however, said she was never specifically told not to attend the church after the July 1978 congregational vote and in fact believed all disagreements were resolved following a meeting the next Sunday with Perry.

Mrs. Greenwood said she met with

CHARGE-IT SOCIETY Lenders Favor Tighter Credit

(EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the first in a series of four stories examining possible changes in the easy credit situation that has sent American consumers on a record buying and charging spree.)

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Buying now and paying later — and later — has become a way of life for millions of Americans, but the days of easy credit are numbered.

Look at what some experts have to say: "The amount of risk that lenders ... are willing to take is diminishing," Robert Gibson, head of the National Foundation for Consumer Credit, a counseling agency.

"I'm sure that all the banks are watching their consumer loan portfolios very carefully ... I would suspect they'll be more selective." Bob Golitz of BankSystems Inc., which handles charge-card processing for 260 banks in Ohio and neighboring states.

"I would be surprised if there weren't some tightening up," Robert Evans, director of the National Consumer Finance Association, whose member finance companies account for about 20 percent of outstanding installment debt.

"Credit is tougher to get ... It's tougher to get a loan." Dale Walwark of Wells Fargo Bank in San Francisco.

The tight money policy that the economists have been talking about means that lenders have to pay more for the dollars they loan. State usury laws limit the amount they can charge in interest. They don't want to take a chance on customers who may not be able to repay what they borrow. "It's the marginal account that's in trouble now," says Walwark. In coming months, say the experts, it could be you.

Money wasn't always so expensive.

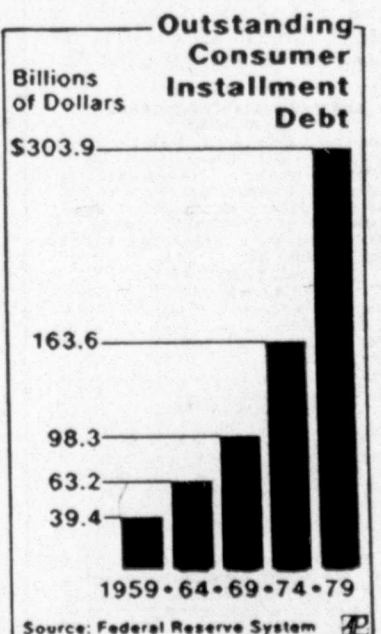

During most of the 1970s, there was "a very competitive scenario in which most of the major banks tried to expand their consumer credit businesses," said Donald Auriemma, vice president of New York's Chemical Bank.

Being competitive meant sending letters to people who were not depositors, offering Master Charge and Visa cards, overdraft checking, low-cost loans and a host of other credit. In many cases, the amount of the credit was approved in advance: Fill in the form and you're automatically entitled to $500. Or $1,000. Or more.

Outstanding consumer installment debt — not counting mortgages — has more than tripled in the past 10 years, increasing at a rate one and a third times as fast as personal income. At the end of September, Americans owed a record $303.9 billion in installment debt, compared to just over $98 billion at the same time a decade earlier.

The biggest growth has been in the area of revolving credit — the kind offered by bank cards and retailers. It can be used over and over. You can pay your entire bill when it arrives or you can pay a little at a time and add a finance charge on the balance.

In September 1969, outstanding revolving credit totaled about $3 billion; to- See LENDERS STUDY CREDIT Page 14

Inner-City Renovation Displacing Poor Residents

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The middle-aged woman — a mother of four — stands outside on the porch of her house. Her eyes blaze.

"I ain't going nowhere," she says. "I'll be here fighting for a long time. It's they who are intruding."

"They" are the state's Historic Preservation Commission, which recently designated the woman's downtown neighborhood as a historic district, and the people who are buying houses like hers to renovate.

What she is fighting goes by different names: historic preservation, forced displacement, urban renewal or gentrification. It is moving like brush fire through cities across the nation.

Old, often-deteriorating neighborhoods are being renovated by the upper middle-class who just a few years ago abandoned them for the suburbs. Those once relegated to the inner city — blacks, the elderly, those on fixed incomes — are being driven farther from the core.

Most go quietly, unable or unwilling to fight. A few like the angry woman stand their ground in the face of fear and economic pressure.

She refuses to let her name be used. She says her dog has been shot. Her children have been harassed. Her house has been set on fire, its electrical wires ripped.

"It's no secret that arson is a way of life down here," says Dorothy Burse, director of a downtown social agency. "You use it to get rid of something you don't want."

"Displacement occurs when a neighborhood is not designed anymore — in somebody's mind — to accommodate black or poor," she added.

Some long-time inner-city residents are forced out by the vandalism, even if they aren't sure where they will go.

"If your house is worth $7,000 and you're worried it may be burned, and someone comes in and offers you $4,000, you think you're lucky. Especially if you're 70 and don't feel safe," says Eve Kranig, who has lived in downtown Indianapolis for 52 years.

Reed Williamson is director of the Historic Landmarks Association, which helps hunt down federal and state funds to offer as loans — usually at 3 percent interest — to middle and upper income individuals who want to restore inner-city houses. He said the funds are usually unavailable to people on fixed incomes, even if they are living in historic houses.

Williams acknowledges that displacement occurs, but he denies people are harassed to encourage them to leave. "I know of no harassment techniques that are carried on," he said.

However, an Indianapolis fire lieutenant who is conducting his own investigation of arson in a downtown historic district brands it a white-collar crime, with a purpose of displacing undesired elements.

"There are definitely planned arsons in that area," says the officer, who asked not to be identified. "New residents have openly said they are going to get all the blacks and poor whites out."

The lieutenant, who began the investigation as a department project 10 years ago, says arson is "a touchy issue because upper-management fire officials interested in moving into the city have bought property there themselves. They are among the displacers and don't want the area to be associated with arson. It's touchy because we're talking about lots of money, lots of dollars and cents," he says.

placed persons.

Indiana's preservation commission designates historical areas and encourages renewal, but it says displacement problems are outside its realm of responsibility.

"We're not equipped by statute or staff to look at the social effects," says commission historian Jim Glass. "But usually we have observed our designation is not the principal triggering of displacement."

Glass says the commission often declares an area or building historic only after demolition is threatened. By then, he says, most residents already have been displaced.

But the fire lieutenant argues that fires are used to damage an area badly enough that repairs are too expensive for low-income homeowners. Then the preservation commission steps in, he says.

Panel Recommends Apartment Program

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A congressional committee wants the government to emphasize programs to conserve private apartment buildings, saying the high cost of new units will force low and moderate income renters to remain in existing units.

The recommendation to the Department of Housing and Urban Development was contained in a report released Sunday by the House Committee on Government Operations.

It urged HUD to promote its only apartment refinancing insurance program and combine it with an existing program offering subsidized mortgage money for new construction or rehabilitation of apartments in distressed cities.

The recent increases in interest rates and in the cost of heating oil may be the straws that broke the camel's back as far as this nation's rental housing is concerned," said Rep. Cardiss Collins, D-Ill., whose manpower and housing subcommittee's investigation led to the full committee report.

"A little-noticed crisis has developed in apartment housing for moderate income Americans," she said. "Investment money for rental units is drying up, and unless this trend is reversed we will see increasing numbers of lower cost rental units either converted to condominiums or abandoned."

A report issued Sunday by the Senate Appropriations Committee's investigative staff, meanwhile, said nearly three-quarters of HUD's 2,047 multifamily housing projects are behind in their mortgage payments.

The staff found that only 27 percent of the projects were up to date in their payments, while delinquent mortgage payments from the remaining 73 percent totaled about $500 million.

It said this condition "has existed for at least the past five fiscal years."

The low-income multifamily properties on which HUD currently holds the delinquent mortgages are valued at about $3.7 billion.

The report on HUD's management of multifamily projects included numerous instances of mismanagement, corruption and waste, and Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., who chairs the subcommittee that votes the appropriations for HUD, called the findings "a shocking indictment of the way in which HUD is handling its inventory."

The committee report recommending apartment conservation efforts came about two weeks after a similar report on rental housing, issued by the General Accounting Office, which said the rental housing market had reached a crisis because of insufficient new private construction of moderately priced units and because rental units were being either abandoned or converted to condominiums.

Signs Of Recession Emerge In Economy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's latest statistics offer the strongest evidence so far of the nation's long-awaited but slow-to-develop recession, many economists say.

Cracks in the economy are widening as business and consumers show increased vulnerability to inflation and rising interest rates, these economists said in a recent series of interviews.

Since the Federal Reserve Board moved last month to tighten credit and boost interest rates, home-building has dropped, industrial activity has weakened and retail sales have eroded.

The government says incomes rose in October, but not enough to keep up with inflation, which has been rising at an annual rate of about 13 percent.

The government also says Americans saved more of their incomes last month than in September. But while that eventually could help ease the inflation rate, it also is a sign of a recession, said Jack Carlson, chief economist of the National Association of Realtors.

And the government says that despite a 6.2-percent increase in after-tax corporate profits in the third quarter, less cash was available for dividends and expansion than during the second quarter, when a downturn was reported.

Businesses spent much of those profits replacing inventory and worn-out equipment, which cost more now because of inflation.

Michael Evans of the Washington-based Evans Economics says if the lucrative oil industry is set aside, "it's clear profits have been running behind inflation this year" for other industries.

Interest rates are so high — nearly 16 percent to banks' best customers — that many firms will delay capital expenditures.

Detroit will be an exception, says auto industry analyst Arvid Jouppi, because that industry "must expand to stay in business" and equip itself for increased small-car production.

Business spending is seen as a key prop for the economy because it can make up for diminished consumer spending, economists say.

Consumer spending was a major reason the nation's gross national product increased 3.5 percent in the third quarter after slipping 2.3 percent in the second quarter.

But retail sales in October dropped 1.7 percent, led by declining auto purchases. Many economists say that slippage will worsen.

Alan Greenspan, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers under President Ford, agrees cracks in the economy are widening, but adds: "The walls have not yet caved in." Employment remains relatively stable, he notes.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The imprints of George Burns' hands, feet — and cigar — have joined the prints of several other celebrities in the cement squares in front of Mann's Chinese Theater.

BURNS

Burns was immortalized outside the Hollywood landmark Sunday next to a cement square signed by his close friend, the late comedian Jack Benny. Burns, 83, won an Academy Award in 1975 for best supporting actor in "The Sunshine Boys." He took over the role slated for Benny after his friend died.

"I smoke 10 to 15 cigars a day," Burns told the crowd outside the restaurant. With his arms around actresses Doris Stevens and Kimberly Bos, he said, "At my age, I have to hold on to something."

Vonnegut Marries Photographer

NEW YORK (AP) — Best-selling author Kurt Vonnegut and photographer Jill Krementz were married at the Christ Church United Methodist Church here over the weekend, a church official said.

Vonnegut, the author of "Slaughterhouse Five," "Breakfast of Champions," and other popular novels, was married once previously, in 1945, to Jane Marie Cox. He had three children by that marriage.

Miss Krementz has published several books of photographs, including "Sweet Pea — A Black Girl Growing Up in the Rural South" and "A Very Young Dancer."

The private ceremony reportedly took place Saturday.

Nixon Hosts Fund-Raiser

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — Former President Nixon hosted a $1,000-per-person Republican fund-raiser at his estate here in a farewell reception for 400 friends and political supporters.

The Nixons have sold the estate — reportedly for about $2 million — and expect to move to a New York City apartment, where they will be closer to their daughters, early next year.

Former first lady Pat Nixon did not attend the Sunday gathering. She was hospitalized last week with pneumonia and was resting.

"This is our way of saying thanks to my many supporters during 33 years of political life," a brunch organizer quoted Nixon, who resigned from office during the Watergate scandal, as saying.

Four protesters displayed a sign outside the estate. Bordered with American flags, the sign said: "Kiss Richard's Ring Too."

Pulling Plug On TV

SEATTLE (AP) — Television is out at 84-year-old Clotilda Schudie's tavern, but conversation is in.

"People don't talk to people anymore," says "Tillie," as she's known to patrons of Schudie's Tavern. "The regulars, the boys who come in after work here, they talk, and I listen and talk. We don't need television or the business."

Mrs. Schudie, who likes to be called "Mom," hates TV — especially Monday Night Football.

"I just can't take it, that thing blaring at me all day," she says. "Bunch of guitar players and football players. I just won't have one of those in here. If they're coming in here for my television, then I don't want them around."

Supreme Court To Rule On States' Boundaries

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Hundreds of California landowners could find the titles to their property thrown into question if the U.S. Supreme Court decides in favor of Nevada in a border dispute, according to documents filed in the case.

But even if the court ultimately decides to leave the recognized boundary where it is, attorneys for both states say they plan to seek additional land from the federal government, claiming they were cheated of their inheritance a century ago.

Most of the boundary, which follows the towering Sierra Nevada range for much of its length, is barren desert or remote forest land. But densely populated, highly valuable property surrounds Lake Tahoe, where the straightline border bends sharply.

The dispute is over which boundary survey should be accepted. California sued Nevada in 1977 to have an 1872 survey accepted north of Lake Tahoe and an 1899 U.S. Coast and Geodetic Survey line accepted to the south. Those lines have been used — for laws, contracts and other official purposes — since they were drawn.

But Nevada claims the laws of both states recognize an earlier 1863 survey north of the lake. And it charges that the 1872 surveyor, Allexey Von Schmidt, illegally moved the boundary and cheated Nevada of 600 square miles in the process.

The high court has given both sides until mid-December to file additional briefs in the case.

"Regardless of where the boundary is, both Nevada and California have a real interest in ascertaining what the title is to some of these lands," Jan Stevens, California assistant attorney general, al, said recently. Stevens said California's "primary aim is to get the titles clarified." He said he plans to ask the court "to make some sort of declaration that the ownership is proper."

In California's El Dorado County alone, 385 parcels of land valued at $50 million sit between the two boundaries, according to a 34-page brief filed in the case by the California Land Title Association.

The brief listed a mass of problems which could arise if the recognized boundary is moved. Contracts, titles and laws which had affected pieces of property for a century suddenly could be thrown aside, it said.

The association recommended that if the line is shifted, California contracts and laws should continue to be enforced on lands suddenly in Nevada. Otherwise, because the two state's laws differ, many land titles and contracts might be illegal and planning and zoning conditions attached to land might be abolished.

Even if the border isn't moved, both states plan to press the federal government to give them more land.

Firestone Tire Recall Slow

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — In the year since it agreed to the largest tire recall in history, Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. has replaced just over a third of the Radial 500 and TPC tires covered by the recall.

When the agreement was reached in October 1978, the company estimated 7.6 million of the tires were still in use. But so far, only 2.8 million, or 36 percent, have been turned in for free replacements, the company told the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

An additional 872,000 Radial 500s have been exchanged at half price or pro-rated based on tread wear. And about 127,000 radials have been replaced free in Canada.

The administration's head, Joan Claybrook, contends replacements are lagging because the company has not done enough to notify consumers of the recall.

"We are not convinced that enough people are aware of the recall," she said, at her Washington office.

Telephone Problems Plague Waldorf-Astoria

NEW YORK (AP) — Manhattan's Waldorf-Astoria Hotel usually is a model of elegance and decorum. But guests and workers were in a frenzy when the hotel's $2 million telephone system — just hours old — went haywire, failing to make register wake-up calls and ringing other phones at random.

On Friday night, they shoved a nice letter under my door saying the phones were going to be changed," said Walter Almquist of Chicago, a guest at the 1,825-room hotel.

The next thing I knew the phones were out, and there was a pleasant, well-dressed man lying on his stomach under my bed trying to fix it," he said.

Waldorf spokeswoman Frances Borden said the system was installed at 2 a.m. Saturday and "went down" around 2:30 a.m. Sunday. Service wasn't restored until 5 p.m. — nearly 15 hours later.

Waldorf manager Eugene Scanlon used a pay telephone to call an extra 400 employees to work to supplement the regular Sunday staff of 1,600. Then he directed security staff to hot foot it around the Park Avenue hotel to shake guests awake and deliver messages.

When working right, the five-unit system is intended to reduce incoming calls on the old switchboard — a relic that came in handy during the crisis — and make as many as 400 wake-up calls in five minutes, allow direct dialing to parties abroad and aid room registration.

"The computers were supposed to take care of everything. They took care of nothing," said Miss Borden.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL:

It Makes Census To GOP

THE TWENTIETH decennial census already is stirring interest nationwide although it will not be taken until next April.

The national head count will provide Americans with a statistical portrait from which government and business will make plans affecting them all.

But the people whose livelihood will be most directly affected by the census constitute a relatively small group. They are members of the 50 state legislatures and of the U.S. House.

Indeed, the prime purpose of the population count, as specified in the Constitution, is to provide a basis for apportioning representation in the House. In every state except Montana, the state legislature draws the congressional district lines.

BEFORE THE Supreme Court's "one-man-one vote" decisions of the 1960s, malapportionment of House and legislative districts was commonplace in many states.

Rural areas tended to be over-represented, primarily at the expense of the cities. In 21 states, at least one congressional district was at least twice as populous as another.

The Supreme Court's decisions had the effect of eliminating such gross disparities.

but they did not touch on the question of gerrymandering—manipulating the boundaries of a district for the benefit of one party.

"A candidate may have all the campaign money in the world," says Sen. John C. Danforth, R-Mo., "but if the district has been gerrymandered to guarantee the election of a Republican or a Democrat, or to insure the re-election of a long-time incumbent, the fight is over before it has begun."

A BILL SPONSORED by Danforth would set up a non-partisan commission in each state to draft the redistricting plans. It also would impose strict standards on how districts could be drawn.

Few political observers expect the anti-gerrymandering campaign to succeed. It is an issue that excites little interest among ordinary voters.

Republicans, who have suffered more generally from gerrymandering than have Democrats are, of course, eager for the opportunity to turn the tables.

The GOP mounted a major drive to win control of state legislatures in 1970 so that it could gain additional House seats through redistricting. It's bound and determined to try again next year.

John D. Lofton:

CBS Slings 'Mudd' At Kennedy

WASHINGTON—Teddy Kennedy is not my first choice for President. He's not my second or third choice, either. In fact, there are several thousand people I'd rather see in the White House other than the Massachusetts Democrat.

But all of this is irrelevant. What must be said must be said, and since nobody else seems prepared to say it, I will: The press ought to get off Kennedy's back!

Did you see the CBS Reports show the other night, the one called "Teddy," where CBS correspondent Roger Muddslinger interviewed Kennedy? Never in my life have I seen a greater abuse of the First Amendment! Muddslinger's performance was outrageous! It was a disgrace to the profession of journalism!

During the first two-thirds of this show, Muddslinger asked the kinds of questions you'd expect him to ask and Kennedy handled himself perfectly!

WHEN ASKED ABOUT the present state of his marriage, Kennedy replied, as cool as a cucumber:

"Well I think that it's a...it's had some difficult times, but I think we've...we, I think, have been able to make some very good progress and it's...I would say that it's, it's...delighted that we're able to, to share the time and relationship that we, that we do share." Marvelous.

When asked if he and his wife, who are living apart, are separated or what, and how he would describe their situation, Kennedy, completely unruffled, responded that he didn't know that a single word could describe his marital arrangement.

Noting that his wife Joan had handled her alcoholism problem "magnificently well" and that he was "immensely proud" of her, the senator observed:

"Well, we will have, ah...the most important is for her full and complete recovery, she's made enormous strides. Doing exceedingly well, and I think she's taking, we're taking it day by day, or week by week." Beautiful.

KENNEDY DEALT WITH Muddslinger's questions about Chappaquiddick with equal aplomb. When asked how he could have possibly, by mistake, turned onto the unpaved road to the Dike Bridge instead of staying on the paved road to the ferry back to Edgartown, the senator's reply was as convincing as it was candid.

Pointing out that on many islands in the Chappaquiddick area there are paved and unpaved roads, he said that the difference between such paved and unpaved roads is "indistinguishable." No problem. Only the most vicious, diehard Kennedy-hater will refuse to believe the senator.

But then, out of nowhere, Muddslinger comes up with the most off-the-wall, incredible question ever asked an American public official by a journalist! Completely blindsiding the senator, and with no warning whatsoever, Muddslinger asks: "Why do you want to be President?"

UNDERSTANDABLY FLUSTERED, since he's only been thinking about this for 17 years, Kennedy does his best to reply to this cheap shot:

"Well were I to run, (it would be) because I have a great belief in this country; (we have) more natural resources than any nation; the greatest technology and the greatest political system in the world.

"And yet I see that most of the industrial nations of the world are exceeding us in terms of productivity, are doing better than us in terms of meeting the problems of inflation; that they're

THE TEXAS SUPREME Court upheld cyclical tax reappraisals in Odessa, putting the finishing touches on a similar opinion it had handed down in a Lubbock case.

Cyclical reappraisals. That's the mechanism by which the local tax collector keeps us running around in circles while the one in Washington sprints off with our wallets.

Replying to Harold Jones' criticism of Howard Cosell, ABC Sports President Roone Arledge called Cosell "among the best of all sports broadcasters." Give me Jack Dale any day.

GEORGE ROMNEY, former president of American Motors, has a better idea. Instead of bailing out Chrysler with a $1.5 billion loan guarantee, remove government regulations and tax laws that are hurting all of the auto manufacturers and the consumer.

Let's see now. Forego a $1.5 billion loan and remove regulations which add $1.5 billion to the cost of new cars and you've saved taxpayers-consumers $3 billion, kept a business in business and preserved jobs.

My, what a revolutionary idea. It'll never fly. Too good.

Holmes Alexander:

No Apologies Offered, Needed

WASHINGTON—Barry Goldwater's title for his autobiography, "With No Apologies," (Morrow) says to me that the apologies, if any, are due to from a good many of his wrong-headed countrymen. Certainly none are required of him.

How the Republican party could have preferred in 1960 and '68 to nominate Richard Nixon instead of Barry, and how the national electorate in 1964 would have given Lyndon Johnson almost 49 million votes (44 states) and given Goldwater fewer than 28 million (6 states) requires some sheepish explanations.

If we have any alibi, it can only be that we unintentionally proved that irony is the prevailing law of life. By his defeats, Goldwater became the winner over both these competitors in the judgment of his time and of foreseeable history.

WITH THAT MUCH established, I advise that Goldwater's account of his background and experience be read with attention and respect. The book is careless in spots (Muskie's first name is Edmund not Edwin).

It is sometimes too bland for credibility (who believes that the Staunton Military Academy, in Virginia of the 1920s was an open society where "black and white, gentile or Jew" were all the same?). But these are not serious blemishes, and the whole is unique and admirable.

This is the stuff that American dreams are made on. The Goldwassers of Russian-ruled Poland who eventually produced this talented patriot, took off across Europe, learning French and English, as well as the tailoring trade.

They arrived in California to become merchants instead of goldminers. They bounced up from bankruptcy, they ran a boisterous saloon, always aiming at excellence.

MIKE AND JOE anglicized their name, married and established the family business in Arizona. Goldwater's, the quality department store which lived up to its motto "The Best Always."

Barry Goldwater, with father and mother, brother and sister, the much-loved Democratic leader, Uncle Morris, were First Family in their community long before the senator became a household name.

The mother, Josephine Williams, came from Nebraska with a lung complaint, but worked her way to health and went on to become the golf club champion. It was she who took the children teachers promote students just because they're a year older.

"Social promotions" have been in vogue for some time now. Like a lot of "progressive" innovations, this one has proved to be a disaster.

A student who doesn't make his grades thus isn't "embarrassed" by being held back a year, but he's certainly at a disadvantage in getting and holding a job when he "graduates" without the ability to read and add.

New York has finally come to the conclusion that worsening discipline and dropout problems may stem from anger and boredom after being promoted into a grade where the assignments are too far over the student's head.

Just making a student repeat the fourth grade may not be the answer either, though. Maybe he should be "promoted" to 4-A and, instead of repetition, be drilled in his weaknesses by work that's different enough from last year's to be interesting and challenging but not beyond his level?

"A consumer," says economist Herbert Stein, "is a person who is capable of choosing a President but incapable of choosing a bicycle without help from a government agency."

"OUT OF ALL this change, our work force in Lubbock should stabilize at the current level of 925 employees during the next several years. Our estimated 1979 payroll is $16 million."

So says Doyle E. Rogers, vice president-Texas, for Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. In a speech at the Texas Tech School of Business the other day, Rogers did his best to make Ma Bell's centralization of management into other cities look like good news for Lubbock.

Three division managers were moved from here as a result of the reorganization—Bob Cooper, operator services, to Houston; Charles Lee, installation and repair service, to Austin; and Bob Dunbar, business office service, to San Antonio.

"At the same time, we created a new division with headquarters in Lubbock," Rogers pointed out, however. "Pat Patterson transferred in from Harlingen to assume responsibilities as division manager for cable distribution services throughout West Texas."

LUBBOCK REMAINS division headquarters for Yellow Pages advertising and has become headquarters for a newly created Business Service organization, he added.

A Texas Tech graduate, Rogers proved his point that Southwestern Bell remains important to Lubbock's economy even though moving management elsewhere is going in the opposite direction from what we'd like.

The company, incidentally, has added more than 36,000 telephones here during the last five years, bringing the total to 173,000.

And, wonder of wonders, guess what? Jim Goodwin, the Lubbock PR man for Bell, has scored a major victory: The newly delivered telephone directories show Lubbock, not Amarillo, on the area code map!

Size and rank as headquarters for Area Code 806 finally get recognition. Lubbock is on the map!

on the camping trips where Barry learned his love of nature, his skills as an exploring photographer and his zest for aviation and military lore.

His life was all adventure, flying transport planes in World War II, discovering hidden canyons, and drifting without ambition into municipal politics.

He likes to say that he rode the Eisenhower coat-tails to the Senate in 1952, but he never lived in another's shadow.

He never stopped living his life's adventure which was also his country's. He flew all the new warplanes as they came on line; he plunged into the politics of labor and finance, of the international intrigues and the universal aspiration for freedom; he rose far above partisanship and ideology. Eisenhower, Johnson, Kennedy and Nixon called him for his counsel.

Though maligned for his opinion's sake, and misunderstood for his off-the-hip candor, Goldwater is totally incapable of sustaining a grudge, and is probably the happiest politician of the past three decades. He is the last man who needs to offer or accept "apologies."

Sylvia Porter: Pets Can Become Pests If You Buy On Impulse

WASHINGTON—This holiday season, giving of pets is heading for an all-time high, with signs already emerging that countless numbers of youngsters (as well as adults) are to be greeted Christmas morning with the joyous sight of a surprise gift puppy.

But be on guard if you are the giver. This is a purchase you must not undertake casually or with haste. If you are even considering buying a pet for Christmas, begin your inquiries, research and comparison shopping at once.

The pet you buy this Christmas well may be a part of your family for many years, even might be living at home longer than some of the young recipients.

Too often, you will be attracted solely by the first cute animal with appealing eyes and a warm-looking fluffy coat.

Too often, you'll be filled with regret, even remorse, when you realize that the puppy you chose was not suited to the life-style of the family. Too often, a gift of joy will turn into a nightmare of trouble.

YOU CAN HAVE a lot of fun raising a puppy, but the job requires firmness as well as love. If you do it properly, you'll have a devoted dog and a special addition to the quality of your life.

Here are significant guidelines to consider before you make any purchase. In this case, the guidelines are for puppies.

(1) Carefully check the temperament and health of the puppy. All puppies should be outgoing. Don't buy a timid pup.

Dogs that hide when you attempt to touch them or jump away when you approach are more than likely to turn out to be disappointments.

(2) Be fully aware of how the dog will fit into your life-style. For instance, do not buy a dominating dog to stay with an elderly relative.

(3) FIGURE OUT WHAT you will have to spend not only for the pet, but also for trips to the veterinarian and possible hospitalization of the pet. (These are not puny sums! I know.)

(4) Learn as much as you can about the type of animal before you buy. Read pet magazines. An important source of information would be a visit to pet shows at which the breed you think you favor is being shown. These dogs are usually the best of the breed.

(5) If you're planning to buy a purebred, discuss the advantages and disadvantages of the different breeds.

(6) DISCUSS WITH A veterinarian the breed of the animal you want to buy, the type of home you have, your family's habits, your free time, the number of children in your family.

(7) If possible, buy from a breeder. Seldom are breeders in the business just for money. Their primary interest is in improving the breed as opposed to strictly financial gain.

(8) While most sellers of pets are honest, there are major risks. You must beware of: The sale of sick animals; Untrustworthy guarantees associated with a sale; Delay or inability to secure registration papers; Inadequate vaccinations given to pets; Misrepresentation in sales, such as mixed breeds advertised as purebreds; Pet adoption services that don't spell out fees in adoption.

A SPECIAL COMMITTEE under the sponsorship of the Better Business Bureau of Metropolitan New York, Inc. has drawn up a list of "Pet Guidelines" that lists the seller's responsibilities, standards of advertising and minimum guarantees for a dog or cat.

Among other points, it notes that the new pet owner should be given information about the care of the animal at the time of purchase.

The list is free; write the BBB, 257 Park Ave. South, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Also inquire for guidelines at the ASPCA, 441 E. 92nd St., New York, N.Y. 10028.

Texas Plans Suit Against CSA Over Utility Assistance Funds

AUSTIN (UPI) — Texas will sue the federal Community Services Administration to block distribution of $6.5 million in crisis assistance money intended to help poor people pay winter utility bills, state officials announced today.

A top official in the administration of Republican Gov. Bill Clements told a Capitol news conference the suit will be filed in federal court in the next few days charging federal bureaucrats with disobeying federal laws and initiating an illegal distribution plan.

"This time, the Community Services Administration has gone too far and must be held accountable for its arrogant disregard of the law," said Omar Harvey, executive director of the Texas Department of Community Affairs and one of a handful of state agency heads appointed directly by Clements.

Harvey said he believes federal officials are trying to distribute the funds without going through the state as a retaliation against Texas for electing a Republican governor.

Federal CSA officials rejected TDCA's proposal for distributing the state's share of Energy Crisis Assistance Program funds 10 days ago, and summoned officials of local community action agencies to Dallas last week to work out details of arrangements for federal bureaucrats to distribute the money.

"I think they want to put the money where it will do them the most good politically," Harvey said. "It'll be spent in the areas of the state where they want it spent."

Harvey said the state distributed $2.5 million under the program early this year to residents of North Texas areas hard hit by inclement weather, and wanted to wait to see where the worst weather would occur this year before deciding where to distribute the $6.8 million.

"They are in effect predicting where the cold weather will be," Harvey said.

Harvey said Texas authorities also wanted the option of contracting with local councils of government or community action agencies to distribute the funds.

"The Texas state plan was disapproved because we were unwilling to name in our application to CSA the agencies or organizations with whom we would contract to distribute the funds," Harvey said. "To do so would limit the state's bargaining power to get the best bang for the buck for recipients, and at the same time give CSA the opportunity to take credit with those which we were forced to name in the application."

Harvey said one regional CSA official told TDCA the federal agency received orders from the White House to reject Texas officials proposal for administering distribution of the special assistance money.

"This action on the part of CSA has all the earmarks of political action as we enter into a national election year," Harvey said.

Harvey said Attorney General Mark White has agreed to handle the suit against the federal agency on behalf of TDCA and is expected to file the case this week.

The lawsuit will not delay distribution of funds to the needy, Harvey said, because the case can be handled speedily by federal court.

The emergency assistance grants are limited to a maximum of $400 per year for any individual.

Seadrift Mayor Airs Warning To Klan

SEADRIFT (AP) — Mayor Rayburn Haynie says if the Ku Klux Klan wants to march through his town because of a bloody shirt it's fine with him, but he doesn't want them to bring any trouble.

Six Klan members — one of them dressed in ceremonial robes — met with city officials and residents of this tiny fishing village Saturday for a "fact-finding mission" concerning the recent acquittal of two Vietnamese refugees accused of killing a local fisherman.

The August shooting climaxed long-building tensions between the immigrants and local fishermen who complained the Vietnamese ignored traditional territorial fishing rights.

The Vietnamese were acquitted, but Louis Bean, the Texas Klan's grand dragon, said he wants evidence from the trial — particularly the shirt the victim was wearing when he died — given back to the victim's family.

"Otherwise," he said, "we will have to come back to Seadrift in force and dramatize our concern."

"We can come back with however many people we need. We can bring 100 or 200, but I feel 100 marching in Seadrift would be sufficient."

"I don't care if they walk up and down the street," said Haynie, after talking to the Klansmen for about five minutes at city hall.

"It's a free country, but we don't want any problems," he said. "The consensus here is the trial is over and let's forget about it. That's the way our justice system works, and that's the way it should be."

Bean, of Pasadena, said the Klan believes the shirt is crucial.

"There is the possibility that Billy Joe had been shot more than two times and had been cut up with a knife prior to the shooting," said Bean. "That shirt, we feel, will answer questions which have not been answered."

He said the Klan's decision to march in Seadrift will depend on whether the shirt is returned.

Man Accidentally Leaves Baby Daughter In Blaze

DALLAS (UPI) — A 1-year-old girl died in a four-alarm fire because her father accidentally left her behind in his frantic flight from a blazing apartment complex.

Firefighter David Thomas tried three times to get into the apartment Sunday and save Lakeisha Feaster, but each time was turned back by smoke and flames.

James Feaster, the girl's father, said he accidentally left the baby behind in the confused flight from the burning apartment. Feaster leaped from a second-floor window while holding a baby.

"I thought I had my baby but it was a neighbor's baby," he said. "I can't believe this happened. My baby just started to walk."

Feaster jumped from the apartment's kitchen window after three of his common-law wife's children and then realized he had not saved Lakeisha.

"I told the fireman, 'My baby's up there,'" he said.

Thomas then made his efforts to find the child. He finally located the child under some bedroom furniture where she apparently had crawled to avoid the flames.

Fire Department inspector Phyllis McCormack said she had issued citations for fire code violations in the building weeks ago because vacant apartments were not properly sealed off. City officials recently had given the complex owners a 60-day period to meet the fire code.

The fire, which caused an estimated $100,000 damage, started at the top rear of the complex where transients had been living, a fire investigator said.

Fire officials were investigating the cause of the blaze and Feaster blamed the complex's unkept condition for helping the fire spread.

"That place is just filthy," he said. "There is trash all through that place and the health department never did anything about it. Some of those apartments are empty and people just throw their trash in."

Prices Of Christmas Trees Will Climb This Year

LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

The countdown to Christmas has begun and shoppers can add another item to the list of things that will cost more this year — Christmas trees.

The National Christmas Tree Association says prices for live trees will be about 5 percent to 7 percent higher than they were last year. Association spokesman Donald L. McNeil blames the increase, which the growers describe as "nominal," on transportation and handling costs.

McNeil says prices for good-to-top-quality trees should range from $2.50 to $3.50 a foot. He also said, however, that there will be more trees available at the top end of the price scale than at the bottom.

In contrast to last year, when there were spot shortages of trees, the 1979 supply is expected to be adequate to meet the demand. The growers association predicts about 30 million live trees will be sold during the upcoming holiday season.

Calvin Freik, a Merrillan, Wis., grower who is president of the trade association, said that Americans spend an estimated $450 million a year on natural trees.

Artificial and real trees are now about equal in popularity. Artificial trees — McNeil, admitting to bias, prefers to call them "fake" — made a splash in the late 1960s and early 1970s, but the real variety has regained some of its popularity in the past five years.

Studies conducted for manufacturers of artificial trees indicate sales are expected to reach $115 million a year by 1980. The studies also show people are choosing more expensive varieties of artificial trees, with some of them costing $60 or more. Over half the buyers cite convenience as the reason for preferring artificial trees.

The most popular type of real tree is the Scotch pine, which accounts for 37 percent of the market, according to the growers association. It has needles which occur in clusters of two and are usually twisted, 1 1/4 to 3 inches long and blue or grayish-green in color.

The Douglas fir — picked by 35 percent of buyers is the second favorite. You can recognize this species by its horizontal branches, flat, short needles and blue-green or dark yellow-green color.

You have to shop carefully to get the most for your money. In some areas, you can save by going out to the country and cutting your own tree. In the cities, however, you generally have to rely on someone else's efforts.

The best trees have a symmetrical shape and are tapered at the top. They are full all the way around. If your tree will be in the middle of the room, fullness and symmetry are important. If, however, you're going to stand it in a corner or near a wall, you may be willing to sacrifice shape in exchange for a lower price.

Freshness is a major factor. Here's what to look for:

— Needles that spring back into place when you bend them; if the needles break, the tree is too dry.

— Needles that are firmly attached. Try shaking the tree or bumping the base against the ground to check.

— A stump that is moist and sticky with sap. After you select a tree, have the salesman cut off an extra inch or so from the base so the tree will be able to absorb water. A tree that has been standing, dry, for a long time, needs up to three quarts of water a day. Check the water level in your stand about two hours after you set up the tree and re-check at least once a day.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has a voluntary grading system. Growers are urged to put tags on trees, giving the grade as well as the name and address of the producer and the name and species of tree. The grades — U.S. Premium, U.S. No. 1 and U.S. No. 2 — are based on shape, density, freshness and absence of defects.

Merchants See No Decline In Holiday Sales

By DAN CHISZAR
United Press International Writer

Here we are again, shoppers, in the Christmas season. You've heard talk of recession and inflation, but you are buying again. Yes, you are. More carefully perhaps, but you're buying.

It's tradition, and the merchants can always bank on it.

Some shopkeepers are nervous, keeping inventories tight and narrowing selections, but many report normal stock and brisk early sales. And the customers are going for it, again.

"We feel the Christmas season has its own momentum and no matter whether people are feeling the effects of inflation or other things they will find a way to buy presents for Christmas," said Dan Hagan of Foley's department store chain in Houston.

"Christmas never changes much," said Robert Kareem of D.H. Holmes Ltd. in New Orleans.

They are buying at Macy's and Lord and Taylor in New York, Foley's in Houston, Dayton's of Minneapolis, Miller & Paine of Seattle and Nieman Marcus in Dallas.

John Pawlis, manager of the Penn Square Shopping Center in Oklahoma City called business "exceptionally good."

Al Dietzel, president of the Columbus, Ohio, Chamber of Commerce, said he expects sales to be 8 percent higher than last Christmas season.

Pete Gregos at King Norman's Kingdom of Toys in Portland, Ore., has a crowded store, and Bill Payne of Play Pen Toy in Jackson, Miss., said, "Business is up, really."

Edwin Roberts of May Co department stores in Los Angeles said he expects a 10 percent increase in sales over last year, and Ron Hyde of ZCMI Department Store in Salt Lake City said his store is "very, very busy."

On the day after Thanksgiving, the first "official" day of the Christmas shopping season, the shopping center across the street from the General Motors plant in Columbus, Ohio, was jammed, shopping brisk.

In Raleigh, N.C., Vance Corbett, general manager of Crabtree Valley Mall, said, "A lot of our stores are well up in sales."

Some merchants, not so optimistic, are much more cautious about the shopping season.

"We're just barely breaking even right now but that's pretty good considering the shape the economy is in," said Merrill Peterson, manager of the J.C. Penney store at Salt Lake City, Utah.

Larry J. LaBati at Skwitz department store chain in Houston: "We've been a little conservative in our purchases, yes, because we feel there's a little bit of a slump in the economy."

Stephanie Sklar of Woodward & Lothrop in Washington, D.C., said, "We are taking a conservative approach to inventories this Christmas. We are cautiously expecting good sales."

Stores in Georgia also said they are not being "overly ambitious" with their stocks, and Everett Purdy of Service Merchandise in Nashville, Tenn., a chain of 101 catalog stores, said suppliers to retail outlets have low inventories this season.

Customers also seem to be using caution, said many merchants.

Newspaper Says Khomeini Ignoring Legal Steps

By United Press International
Following is a sample of what the nation's newspapers have been saying recently:

The New York Times
...Iran and the United States are bound by three international conventions and one bilateral treaty that were designed to protect the immunity of diplomatic and consular personnel. The most explicit is the Vienna Convention on Diplomatic Relations, formulated in 1961 at a United Nations conference and signed by all nations. It opens with the statement that "peoples of all nations; from ancient times have recognized the status of diplomatic agents." The safety of diplomats is expressly addressed in Article 29: "The person of a diplomatic agent shall be inviolable. He shall not be liable to any form of arrest or detention. The receiving state shall treat him with respect and take all appropriate steps to prevent any attack on his person, freedom or dignity."
When a nation believes that a diplomat has abused this protection by conduct offensive to the hosts — when an embassy, in the Ayatollah's words, has become a "nest of spies" — two remedies exist. The host country can declare diplomats persona non grata, and order them expelled. It can also turn to an optional protocol to the Vienna Convention, which obliges signatories to submit any disputes to the International Court of Justice at The Hague.

These legal formulas obviously meant little to the Ayatollah at the start of the current confrontation. But they were well understood even by the Iranian government he had appointed and which resigned when he refused to let it protect the American Embassy in Tehran. Respect for the law continues to protect all Iranian diplomats in the United States. And it is why even nations sympathetic to Iran's revolution have condemned the seizure of hostages to press a grievance against the United States. The trick now is ... to encourage (the Ayatollah) to submit his charges against the Shah and the United States to the World Court — as soon as the remaining hostages are freed.

Anger Building

Roswell (N.M.) Daily Record
Anger has become the overpowering American emotion this week.

Anger that "students" in Iran seized the U.S. Embassy in Tehran, taking some 60 Americans hostage.

Anger that the Iranian government, following the lead of Ayatollah Khomeini, endorsed the holding of the American hostages.

Anger that Iranian students in the United States are demonstrating in support of the takeover.

Anger that the Carter administration has failed or has been unable to take firm action to secure the release of the hostages.

Anger that the United States, the strongest nation in the world, seems so weak, so helpless and so indecisive in the face of the government-sanctioned terrorism in Tehran.

The anger ... has been building for some time ... events in Tehran ... have only served as a catalyst to bring the anger into the open across the nation.

Before last Sunday ... rage at the administration's weakening of American prestige erupted only sporadically and on a limited scale.

Now this anger has been unleashed. The first to feel its fury directly have been the Iranian students protesting in the United States.

But the real target of the rage ... is a government in Washington that has lost touch with the philosophy of its people.

President Carter ... has sensed the anger ... but not its depth. Nor have his ... opponents for the presidency.

Yet this anger will determine who will succeed Carter as president for surely he has lost all chance of re-election.

Soviet Provocation

The New York Post

The ... threat to put the Americans still held hostage ... in Tehran on trial for spying is a grave new development in the crisis. Once trials begin in the revolutionary courts with a mob outside crying for vengeance, the process itself may impose its own irrevocable course.

We have every right to look to our friends in Britain, France, West Germany and Japan — all major oil clients of Iran — for powerful intervention. But so far we hear only silence.

From the Soviet Union, on the other hand, which surely has vested interest in the immunity of its diplomats and embassies, there has been continuing, provocative intervention by Moscow radio.

It is just a year to the day since President Brezhnev warned President Carter against interfering in the Iranian revolution. Carter, anxious not to upset SALT II negotiations, lamely responded that the United States had no such intention and "we note that the Soviet Union has said it will not interfere."

How naive can we be? Despite Russia's vote supporting the UN security Council's call for release of the hostages, Moscow radio has whipped up anti-American frenzy in Iran in Persian-language broadcasts by Soviet commentators before and after the seizure of our embassy.

Sending National Security Adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski to tell Soviet Ambassador Dobrynin privately that the broadcasts are bad form will not get results. The President should publicly denounce Moscow for this provocative intervention — a clear violation of détente, of the accepted standards of international affairs, and of the trust which the Soviets ask Americans to put in the new SALT treaty.

Oil Reserve Needed

The Atlanta Journal

There are many reasons why ... amassing of a Strategic Petroleum Reserve ... has not gone along like it should have. There have been contracting problems, technical difficulties and cost overruns. Now ... we're only able to get enough oil from domestic and imported sources to fuel current consumption; there isn't any left to stockpile.

...What we should be concentrating on now, as the situation in Iran so tragically reminds us, is finding a way to get the reserve completed.

The eventual plan is to have a billion barrels of oil stored away in salt domes in Louisiana and Texas. That sounds like a lot, but it would hardly relieve us of our dependence on foreign oil; at current rates of consumption, it would only replace about four months of imports. But what it would do is make us less vulnerable to short-term interruptions of foreign supply, whether by accident or on purpose.

Filling the reserve isn't going to happen, though, if we continue to consume all we can get our hands on. The 900 million barrels we still have to go to fill the stockpile isn't going to come from OPEC sources. Saudi Arabia has already said it will cut back its current extra production if we put it into the reserve, and there's no use getting upset about it — we can't make them sell us more than they want.

There is only one way to get enough oil to complete the Strategic Petroleum Reserve soon, and that's to cut down on the amount of domestic oil we are now using so we can stash some away ... that means at least some sacrifice — doing without some extra driving or turning our thermostats down a bit ... if we don't do it and OPEC nations decide to play a little oil blackmail, we'll find out what doing without really means.

Nuclear Outlook

Baton Rouge Morning Advocate

The nuclear industry's near-term survival seems assured, since 83 nuclear power plants are under construction in the United States.

On Capitol Hill, there is mounting pressure for a multi-year moratorium on new licenses for nuclear plants. The nuclear industry can be thankful that the president, a former nuclear engineer trained in the nuclear Navy, continues to have confidence in the atom. Both of Carter's announced competitors for the Democratic Party's 1980 presidential nomination, Sen. Kennedy and Gov. Brown, have called for a nuclear moratorium. Even with support from the White House, the nuclear industry's high hopes may not be realized.

Several countries may follow the lead of the revolutionary government in Iran, which canceled several power plant orders placed by the deposed shah. Iran, of course, is the joker in the deck. Now that the threat of new oil embargoes seems evermore imminent, many countries may decide that despite all they have no choice but to "go nuclear."

Time For Peace

Los Angeles Times

After seven years of war, 20,000 lives and 10 weeks of negotiations, Zimbabwe Rhodesia is now close to peace. Under prodding by the British government, guerrilla leaders waging war along the borders and the black government of Bishop Abel Muzorewa reached agreement last week on most major issues.

It's about time. The weary people in that lovely country have been through too much — the unilateral declaration of independence from Britain in 1965, the imposition of economic sanctions, the subsequent outbreak of guerrilla warfare. If their former prime minister, Ian Smith, had moved sooner to end white supremacy and had accepted previous proposals from London on black majority rule, the country would have been far better off, thousands of lives would have been saved and peace would have prevailed long ago.

So much for the past. As for the present, both sides now have the opportunity to move further to guarantee the war's end. There are still problems, including details of a cease-fire arrangement, but, with continued good will, they should evolve in the continuing negotiations in London.

Rights Defended

Corpus Christi Caller-Times

There are few if any more despicable organizations in the United States than the Ku Klux Klan. It rests on a history and a present of bigotry, violence and bully-boy cowardice. It caters to the basest emotions.

That makes it doubly difficult to defend the rights of individuals in the Klan, or of the Klan itself. But not to do so when the situation seems to warrant it is in itself a denial of the principles embodied in the Constitution.

In Absecon, N.J., officials of a high school have refused to issue a diploma to one of their students because he is a Klan leader. The student completed all his work toward earning a diploma. But ... in order to receive a diploma, the principal says, he will have to first renounce the Klan and its principles.

It is a hard call — but we believe the school is wrong. If a student can be denied a diploma because of Klan membership, could not another student be denied one because he belongs to the NAACP, or the Boy Scouts or the Catholic church?

Constitutional protections must extend to the rights of all of us, or they protect none of us.

Food Chains Offer Spicy Dishes

By PHILIP GREER
And MYRON KANDEL

Can Mexican food capture the palates and pocketbooks of the American heartland? Some of this country's biggest companies think it can, and they're investing big bucks to bring tacos, enchiladas and tequila drinks to new parts of the United States.

Food-service experts think that American taste buds are getting more accustomed to spicy dishes and that Mexican-style cuisine will provide a welcome change of pace from hamburgers, hot dogs, fried chicken and even filet mignon. In addition to the fast-food approach, new service restaurants with a Mexican theme are proliferating as Americans look for something different in the way of ethnic food and unusual decor.

W.R. Grace & Co., the chemical giant that has become increasingly involved in the restaurant and retail fields, has recently thrown a fourth sombrero into the Mexican-food ring. Grace already has a string of Mexican restaurants bearing the El Torito and La Fiesta names, and a chain of fast-food outlets under the Del Taco banner that offers such Mexican standards as tacos and burritos, as well as such American stand-bys as hamburgers.

Now Grace is aiming at the middle-level market, with the opening of three Que Pasa restaurants in California this year and the construction of six others. Predictably, California and Texas are each getting two of the new outlets. But the two others are in Oregon and Washington. And the additional 10 units the company hopes to add by the end of next year stretch from Florida to Minnesota.

That kind of geographic dispersion signifies the conviction of food-service executives that Mexican food is ready to branch out into areas where south-of-the-border specialties are not familiar. In fact, Nation's Restaurant News reports that the Midwest may well become the immediate battleground.

Three chains — Grace's Los Angeles-based El Torito, Denver-based Guadalupe HARRY'S (which is soon to be acquired by General Foods Corp.) and Casa Calardo, headquartered in St. Louis and owned by General Mills Inc. — are all said to be considering opening in the Chicago area.

And back in Dallas, Pillsbury Co's Steak & Ale subsidiary is opening a pilot model of what it hopes will be a new chain called Juan & Only (sophisticated names are not the strong point of the Mexican-food field).

At present, Guadalupe HARRY'S has only four restaurants — in Denver, Scottsdale, Ariz., San Bernardino, Calif., and Minneapolis. But an ambitious expansion program includes Indianapolis, Chicago, another site in Minneapolis and even a venture into New England, with a unit planned for Boston.

As giant companies get more and more interested in Mexican food, the granddaddy of them all is PepsiCo Inc., which operates 1,066 Taco Bell units around the country.

In the dinnerhouse field (meaning service restaurants generally with limited menus) the El Chico chain operated by Campbell-Taggart Inc. of Dallas is the leader in the Mexican field, with more than 110 outlets. But Charles Bernstein, chief of Nation's Restaurant News, estimates that its gross of about $60 million is only half that of W.R. Grace's El Torito group, which has about 48 units.

You don't even have to be in the Mexican field to offer a south-of-the-border flavor. The Pizza Hut chain (also owned by PepsiCo) has a new taste treat called a taco pizza. It comes complete with refried beans, along with beef topping, cheese and onions.

Book On Free Items Offers Kids Bonanza

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — An 8-year-old boy's interest in muscle building has developed into a best-selling book for his mother.

Pat Blakely says she got the idea for "Free Stuff for Kids: The Second Rainbow Book" in 1976 when her oldest son was sending away for information on muscle building.

When he'd get something in the mail he was really pleased with himself," Mrs. Blakely said, so she decided maybe she could take advantage of that enthusiasm.

Mrs. Blakely, then working on a school reorganization program, said she had seen teachers using letter writing as an educational tool.

So she contacted Barbara Haislet and Judith Hentges and they combined the two ideas, compiling a book of free things that children could send for by mail.

The three women spent hours in the library, combing teachers' reference books and books listing corporations and associations.

"We sent at least 500 letters to organizations and private groups asking if they had any free material available by mail," Mrs. Blakely said. "We talked with people in public relations and advertising and with public service groups."

The women published the first version of the book in 1977 as "The Rainbow Book" and sold more than 25,000 copies by mail order alone.

As the success of the original grew, Mrs. Blakely said the women decided to look for a publisher and signed a contract with Meadowbrook Press, Wayzata, Minn.

The book was totally redesigned and expanded to include many more items, and was published in June as "Free Stuff for Kids: the Second Rainbow Book."

The book was on the top 10 best-seller list the first week it was in the bookstores and in three months more than 250,000 copies were sold. It was purchased by five of the leading children's book clubs its second week on the market.

"I think one of the reasons it's doing so well so fast is that children are getting the items, showing them to friends and then their friends are buying the book, too," Mrs. Blakely said.

"Maybe it's popular now, too, because of the economy. It's a whole lot cheaper at $2.95 than a lot of expensive toys. And it lasts longer than a movie."

Some of the items in the book require postage and handling fees, but nothing is more than a dollar. And Mrs. Blakely says suppliers have promised in writing to fulfill all single-item requests from children through at least 1980.

The book is a learning tool in disguise, she noted, and can be used in the classroom or independently by children.

Precise directions are given with each listing on whether to use an envelope or postcard, what to ask for and where to write for the material.

The more than 250 free items include foreign money, educational coloring books, bumper stickers, wall charts, picture travel guides, games and informational booklets. There is even an instruction booklet on how to make a pinhole camera.

"We really wrote it for our kids," Mrs. Blakely said. "We knew what their interests were and we asked them for their opinions."

Horse Show Winner Deaf Since Birth

PORT ORANGE, Fla. (AP) — The crowd at the Silver Sands Bridle Club horse show went wild when first place was awarded to a young woman on a big Appaloosa. But the winner wasn't listening.

Josie Meyer has been deaf since birth.

It wasn't until someone flashed her a victorious hand signal that she knew the blue ribbon was finally hers.

For Miss Meyer, 21, it was the end of a long climb.

A 1976 graduate of the Florida School for the Deaf and Blind in St. Augustine, Miss Meyer began competing in horse shows in the Daytona Beach area two years ago. She and her mother, Billie, moved to nearby Ormond Beach from Miami five years earlier.

Josie began devoting all her spare time to her two horses. Her mother laughingly suggested that it would be simpler if Josie just moved out of the house and into the barn.

Josie managed some fourth- and fifth-place ribbons, but no first-place finishes. She toiled through six months of equestrian training under the eye of Julie McKean, a well-known instructor in the Daytona Beach area. Miss McKean learned sign language to help communicate with Josie.

"Sometimes we didn't understand each other," said Miss McKean, "but we both love horses. She works hard at it because she knows she has to."

Still, no blue ribbon. Even with her new training, Josie suffered a degree of handicap in competition.

High Court Rejects Methodists' Appeal

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today rejected the United Methodist Church's attempt to free itself of the financial woes of 14 California retirement homes and convalescent hospitals.

For the second time in a year, the justices left intact lower court rulings that leave the international denomination as one of several "church defendants" in two related cases.

The 10 million-member church was among those named in lawsuits filed after the 1977 bankruptcy of Pacific Homes, a non-profit, Methodist-affiliated corporation that operated the 14 facilities for the aged.

The suits, filed on behalf of the facilities' 1,900 residents, charged the United Methodist Church, its General Council on Finance and Administration and the church's Pacific and Southwest Annual Conference with breach of contract and fraud.

The complex litigation, which probably will continue for years and some day return to the high court, includes at least one issue of major significance: may a religious denomination with no formal hierarchy be sued?

Church lawyers do not argue that an individual community church or any annual conference, similar to a Roman Catholic diocese or Lutheran synod, cannot be sued. They contend, however, that the international church's ecclesiastical law "makes no provision for a central decision-maker, management or executive" and therefore no one can speak for the United Methodist Church as a whole.

Court records show that many Pacific Homes residents entered into "life care" contracts under which residents paid amounts as high as $150,000 for housing and health care for life.

Some residents signed contracts requiring fixed monthly payments in return for lifetime care free from substantial cost increases.

Because of Pacific Homes' financial problems, virtually all the 1,900 residents now must make monthly payments far greater than those required by their respective contracts just to keep the operation afloat.

The Supreme Court last Oct. 16 refused, without comment, to hear the appeal of the church's General Council on Finance and Administration.

One of the two appeals acted on today stemmed from the same $366 million breach-of-contract and fraud case now pending in a San Diego-based state court.

A federal trial judge and the California Court of Appeal both ruled that the United Methodist Church could be named as a defendant.

"This is the first time in history that a major international religious denomination has been held to be liable as an unincorporated association," church lawyers told the justices.

If the rulings are allowed to stand, they contended, "then it would follow that (anyone) in quest of a 'deep pocket' can now parlay money claims asserted against any local community church, parish or religiously related hospital, college or orphanage into oppressive legal assaults upon whole religious systems."

In another important action, the Supreme Court today agreed to consider whether Congress can refuse to pay for most abortions for women on welfare.

Stepping into a controversy marked by inflamed emotions, the justices said they will study the constitutionality of the so-called Hyde amendment.

In other action, the high court: — Barred the government from withholding federal money from school districts that discriminate against women employees.

— Refused to interfere with a ruling that parents have no legal right to police search their young children's personal property without a warrant.

— Declined to block "wandering solicitation" by members of the International Society of Krishna Consciousness.

— Cleared the way for a trial in Alabama of Georgia white supremacist J.B. Stoner, accused in the 1958 bombing of a Birmingham church.

SANTA TAKES A BREAK — Christmas is only a month away, but the temperature soared into the 70s in New York City Sunday and caused this Santa Claus to take an ice cream break. Eating a cone is a problem for a fellow with a long beard, but the unidentified Santa found a way. (AP Laserphoto)

Tornadoes Rip Into Southeast

By United Press International

At least 17 people were injured and dozens of homes damaged by tornadoes accompanying severe thunderstorms in the Southeast, and rain apparently caused a light plane crash in Florida. But eight persons aboard the craft were only slightly injured.

Heavy snow fell in parts of the Great Plains and Midwest.

A cold front Sunday sent thunderstorms rolling across Alabama, Georgia and northwestern Florida, producing nearly a dozen tornadoes, the National Weather Service reported. Most of the twisters were concentrated in the southeastern third of Alabama.

Tornadoes touched down in three parts of Montgomery, Ala., injuring at least six people and damaging about 50 homes and an apartment complex, officials said. A unidentified teen-age motorcyclist was seriously injured when high winds tossed him about 50 yards from his vehicle.

In Montgomery, Ann Jordan and her apartment roommate covered in a bathroom as tornadoes and shrieking winds ripped through their complex, where 90 units were damaged by the unseasonable storm.

They were unhurt, but the twisters injured others with flying glass shards and other debris. In all, 240 apartments, 40 houses and several mobile homes were damaged and 12 houses were splintered as the storms raced across south and central Alabama.

"I saw boards and shingles flying all over," Miss Jordan said. "We ran into the bathroom and laid down on the floor and heard everything shattering. I was screaming."

Police said the tornadoes lashed three areas of the city, causing walls to collapse and tearing roofs and windows from homes and buildings.

Utility lines were snarled, trees were uprooted and glass and other debris were strewn along city streets. Some residents were without electrical power through the afternoon.

Damaging funnel clouds were also reported in Clarke, Lowndes and Tallapoosa counties.

"Our house was really shaking," said David Dees, 12, of Montgomery. "I never experienced anything like it."

One witness described one twister as being about 200 yards in diameter.

Several police units patrolled damaged areas in Montgomery to prevent possible looting. There were no looting incidents reported Sunday night.

A tornado also touched down south of Montgomery at Letochatchee in Lowndes County, where eight people were hurt. Barns, garages and mobile homes were damaged. Three more injuries were reported when twisters struck the Clarke County community of Salitpa, and in Newsite, in northern Tallapoosa County.

Shelters were opened for tornado victims at two Montgomery hotels and in the Lowndes County town of Haneyville.

In Georgia, another tornado heavily damaged several homes in the Kennesaw community about 25 miles north of Atlanta, but no injuries were reported.

Thunderbolts and rain were scattered over most of the nation east of the Mississippi Valley.

Wintry weather plagued the northern Plains and the Rockies as a low-pressure system spread snow from the Dakotas into the upper Great Lakes region late Sunday. Heavy snows made travel hazardous in several areas, especially in southeastern South Dakota.

In Colorado, the state patrol closed Loveland Pass over the Continental Divide as 40 mph winds whipped up ground blizzards. The National Weather Service warned of up to 12 inches of new snow in that area, which received 40 inches last week.

In Oregon, highway crews were working to open up the Santiam Pass, which was closed by a rockslide.

The weather service warned the snow might move into Wisconsin and Michigan today.

Judge Acts In Dispute At Church

formed of the vote by a letter.

"I told him (Perry) that letter didn't mean a thing to me, that I'd been in this church too long," the 31-year member of Lyons Chapel testified. She added that Perry said he understood and asked her to forgive him.

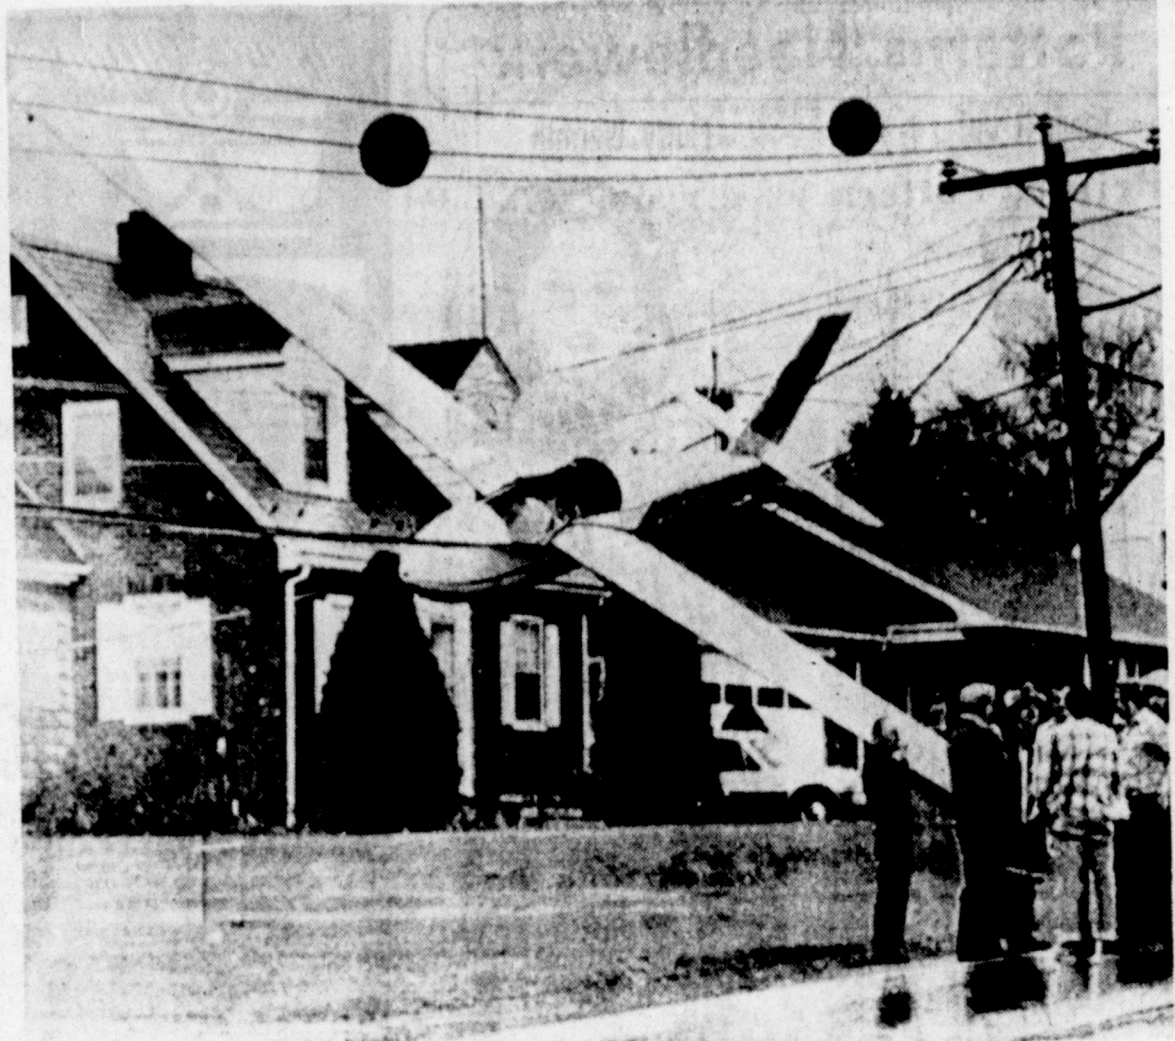

"I don't even know what this (the lawsuit) all comes to," Mrs. Greenwood said. "I had the idea after talking with the pastor. He never said anything. I had been coming a year after I got the letter."

Mrs. Greenwood, often becoming excited and ignoring questions from her attorney Carolyn Jordan in an effort to elaborate on previous testimony, also admitted that she had complained about Perry's pastorate and used profane language. She said, however, she had used such language only in private conversations and never during worship services in the sanctuary.

Both Mrs. Greenwood's alleged complaints and criticism of Perry and other church members and the use of profanity are cited in the lawsuit filed against her by the church.

Mrs. Greenwood added that although she was baptized at age 13 in Lyons Chapel, she has not attended the church since the lawsuit was filed and will not go back, even without a court order, until the disagreements are resolved.

But in response to a question from Lyons Chapel attorney Thomas Griffith concerning the accessibility of other churches, Mrs. Greenwood said, "Why would I want to go to another service when I have my own church?"

Saudi Troops In Control Of Holy Grand Mosque

RIYADH, Saudi Arabia (AP) — Saudi troops combed the Grand Mosque in Mecca today, seeking remnants of the band of Moslems who seized Islam's holiest shrine six days ago.

"The whole mosque is under our control," Oil Minister Ahmad Zaki Yamani told reporters in Riyadh after Saudi troops routed the armed men from the upper floor of the building Saturday evening. But he said "some gangs" were still at large in the tunnels and passageways beneath the stadium-size building and courtyard and that they held some hostages.

"There is no danger from them," Yamani added.

Others were said to have escaped into the surrounding countryside and were being pursued by government troops. Part of the mosque was reported reopened for public worship on Sunday, for the first time since it was taken over during early morning prayers last Tuesday.

Diplomats said the men who took over the shrine in the holy city 480 miles southwest of Riyadh were members of the ultra-conservative Oteiba tribe from southern Saudi Arabia. Their leader, who proclaimed himself the messiah, Mahdi, or prophet, and was identified as "Johaman," was reported among those captured. During the siege, he demanded that the government abolish radio, television and soccer and prohibit women from engaging in business.

Officials said earlier that those captured would be dealt with severely. A Moslem leader said Friday that they were guilty of "spreading corruption on earth," and the penalty for this is dismemberment.

Saudi national guardsmen, acting on orders from King Khaled, used howitzers and rapid-firing armored personnel carriers to blast most of the invaders from the upper floor of the mosque, diplomatic sources said. They said witnesses reported the attack was led by two armored personnel carriers that circled the inner courtyard, firing into the ramparts of the building where the intruders were holed up.

Other armored personnel carriers took up positions outside the building and after the fighting was ended, government troops could be seen atop the walls, apparently in complete control.

U.N. To Debate Crisis In Iran

it very clear that they considered the main issue release of the Americans held by Iranian students demanding that the U.S. government surrender the deposed shah for trial in Iran.

Iran's U.N. delegation asked Tehran for instructions. Bani Sadr asked on Nov. 13 for a council meeting to hear the Iranian revolutionary regime's charges against the shah and the United States. But the council refused to grant the Iranian request because it had not replied to a council statement Nov. 9 urging immediate release of the hostages.

Waldheim's request for a council meeting was announced at 3 a.m. Monday Tehran time and there was no immediate reaction from the Iranian capital. On Sunday, Paris, the official Iranian news agency, announced that Bani Sadr would fly to New York today to address the council and demand that the United States surrender the shah. But several hours later a government spokesman said the trip was delayed a week because of the Ashura religious holiday and the national referendum Dec. 2 on Iran's new Islamic constitution. Bani Sadr today said in a broadcast statement that he had postponed the trip because Waldheim had not consulted Iran about the date of the meeting.

Waldheim in his letter to the council president spoke of "the grave situation which has arisen" in U.S.-Iranian relations, with the United States "deeply disturbed" at the detention of its diplomatic personnel and Iran seeking redress for what it regarded as injustices of the previous regime.

"The international community," he said, "is increasingly concerned that the level of tension between these two countries threatens peace and stability in the region and could have dangerous consequences for the entire world."

Waldheim's spokesman, Francois Guiliani, said it was the second time in U.N. history that a secretary-general requested a Security Council meeting because of a threat to peace. The other time was on July 13, 1960, when Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold convened a council meeting because of trouble in the newly independent Congo.

Traffic Toll Reaches 22 In Texas

By United Press International

As the four-day Thanksgiving weekend came to a close today, Texas ranked sixth in the nation in the number of holiday traffic deaths.

A count by United Press International at midnight CST Sunday, the official close of the holiday, showed at least 110 people had been killed in holiday weekend traffic accidents nationwide. California reported 61, Florida had 24, Georgia 22, Michigan and Ohio 18 and Texas 22.

In Texas traffic fatalities, a former Pear Ridge mayor, W. Jennings King Jr., 61, and his wife, Dorothy, 57, were killed in a car-train wreck Saturday just outside Houston.

The Department of Public Safety said the car was crossing railroad tracks when it was struck by a train and shoved 60 feet.

Two people were killed Thursday in Texas, nine Friday, five Saturday and three Sunday.

Also among the latest killed was Melvin Eugene Rhoades, 23, Levelland, who died in one-vehicle rollover 4 miles east of Levelland on Highway 114.

The most fatalities in one crash occurred in Fort Worth Friday when three people were killed. Their identities were unavailable.

Auction Nets Funds For Two Children

OKARCHE, Okla. (AP) — About $100,000 was raised for the two children of the late Rev. and Mrs. Richard Douglass — victims of a shooting attack on the family — in an auction of family possessions.

The family's three-bedroom home and 10 acres were sold Saturday for $91,000. Furnishings and personal items, including an artificial Christmas tree, brought about $8,800, and $500 was donated by people who ran a concession stand.

On Oct. 15, the Douglasses and their teen-age children were attacked by intruders who bound and shot them. Brooks, 16, attended a portion of the auction. His sister, Leslie, 13, is still hospitalized.

Lenders Study Credit Curbs

day, it is more than 16 times that much or $50.4 billion.

There are more than 115 million Master Charge and Visa cards in circulation. Some people have both. Or several of each. Millions more cards are issued by department stores and other retailers. The J.C. Penney Co., for example, didn't issue its first credit card until the late 1950s; today, the company has 30 million to 35 million cards outstanding and credit sales accounted for 42.2 percent of total sales in 1978.

That kind of growth has some people worried. "We've got to get rid of the credit card economy to some degree," said House Majority Leader James Wright of Texas. He said businesses should require down payments of 25 percent to 30 percent for major purchases like television sets.

In a letter to banks in September, John G. Heimann, the comptroller of the currency, said: "It is in the area of multiple credit lines particularly, where observers perceive the greatest potential risk, perhaps because it is the area about which we know the least historically."

What DO we know about all this credit and the people who use it?

Banks and other credit granters won't talk about the specific rules that determine who gets money. Many of them use a credit scoring system. An applicant gets points in each of a number of categories which differ from lender to lender. Everyone whose total score is above a given level gets credit; everyone who is below, is rejected.

"One of the main things we look at is ability and stability and willingness to repay the debt," said Thomas Chapman, senior vice president of the First National Bank of Atlanta. "Sometimes, income is not a key to that..."

Chapman said First National had limited its past solicitations to its own customers and will continue that policy. "You're going to see caution," he said. "Let's make sure that since we're lending very, very expensive money, we get it in the right hands."

The ideal customer for Chemical, Auriemma said, is "someone who has been steadily employed in a rather secure job who is an established credit user and a consistent payer."

"In the credit card business, I would prefer someone who allows his balance to roll over. The convenience user (who pays in full each month) is borrowing my money for no interest..."

Auriemma said Chemical's credit analysts look not only at the amount of money a prospective borrower already owes, but also at the credit available — the amount he or she could borrow through existing charge cards or loan arrangements.

In contrast, Morton Schwartz, the general credit manager for J.C. Penney, said that the dollar value of credit outstanding is not a key in deciding which applicants for charge cards will be accepted. Thus far, Schwartz said, Penney has found that other factors — like a past payment record — are more important.

Schwartz said more than 40 percent of the people who apply for credit at Penney get turned down. It was even higher until the store adopted a formal credit scoring system a few years ago — a move Schwartz said was designed to "give as much credit as possible to as many people as possible... with an acceptable probability of repayment."

He added: "We're in a competitive environment. The risk that is taken has to be weighed against the rewards... Credit is there to support the level of goods and services."

Skunks Discovered At Kennedy Post

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP) — Secret Service agents assigned to Sen. Edward Kennedy are squaring off with a smelly foe on Cape Cod.

The agents protecting the presidential candidate discovered at least one skunk when they moved into a command post next to Kennedy's Squaw Island home.

The bodyguards were less than charmed. But when town officials were alerted about the security breach, they said skunks simply come with the territory.

"There are skunks all over the Cape this time of year," said Barnstable Police Chief Neil Nightingale. "If those men were from the Cape, they wouldn't be upset."

Doug Kalweit, a state natural resource officer, finally came to the aid of the federal agents. He set several traps outside the garage that serves as headquarters for Secret Service men protecting Kennedy, D-Mass.

He caught one skunk last week and has more traps set in the event more come around.

"You just catch them and let them go in a conservation area," he said. "I'll keep checking. We don't know how many are out there."

Writer Foresees Change In Economic World

By JOHN CUNIFF
NEW YORK (AP) — This could be the trickiest holiday selling season in many years, one to test the marketing skills and courage of sellers and the financial inventiveness and determination of buyers.

Both groups have sharpened those skills throughout these volatile years of the 1970s, but the past might no longer be a guide. More than the calendar is changing; the economic world is too.

If you were a merchant, dependent on a good show during the holidays, how would you adjust to higher interest rates, tighter money, rising prices, declining buying power and gnawing fears of the future?

Would you keep inventories lean, and risk being unable to fill orders? Offer your own brand of credit financing and then be unable to collect? Sink dollars into promotion, and then not get the orders? Lower prices?

As a customer, will you decide that less buying power means you must reduce purchases? Are you willing to buy on credit and leave to next year the worries about paying? Can you get credit? Do you want it?

The fact is that the consumer's ability to buy has been curtailed by reason of inflation growing faster than incomes. So far this year, that lost income exceeds 1 percent, or more than $100 on a $15,000 income.

There has been an expedient route around this hard fact, of course, by means of credit buying. Families also reduced their rate of savings, to just above 4 percent a year, and spent the money instead.

These practices helped maintain sales at near last year's levels. In fact, sales actually rose in August and September, even when adjusted for inflation, although much of the gain was from the new car market.

But consumer attitudes may be changing. People already are loaded with credit and they are worried about it. They are now delaying purchases of new cars. Apparel and home durable sales have been off sharply.

Moreover, the holiday season coincides with one of the harshest programs of monetary restraint ever attempted by the Federal Reserve, a program whose impact can be measured financially and psychologically.

All this may mean a change of buying habits that could extend through the holidays, but if so, it will be countered by aggressive selling by merchants. And aggressive selling often means discounts.

Automobile buyers already have seen how it works. Loaded with huge inventories — something that most retailers seem to have avoided — sellers have been offering discounts in the hundreds of dollars.

Other retailers are reluctant to suggest that they too might offer discounts, lest such reports cause customers to delay buying, but it is the technique with the biggest clout in the merchants' bags of tricks.

To what extent retailers will have to rely on discounting won't be clear for another two weeks. By then they will understand the mood of the buyer, and the buyer's willingness and ability to spend.

More so than in any of the past three or four years, it would seem, the buyer has reason for caution — the Fed's tight money policy, the decline in buying power, the cost of financing, the big debt load.

Panel Focusing On Recent Slaying

Setting its sights on the city's most recent murder, Crime Line is offering a reward of $1,000 to anyone with information leading to the solution of the beating death of 22-year-old Raymond Padilla, who died Friday, two days after he was found severely beaten about the face and head.

Also, Lubbock's privately funded crime-fighting program has posted rewards of $300 each for information on two fugitives and seven recent burglaries of houses under construction.

In the seven months of its existence, Crime Line callers have helped Lubbock Police clear 100 felonies and charge nearly 70 criminals.

Persons with information con-

cerning any felony crime are urged to call Crime Line. Callers remain completely anonymous.

Persons wishing to make tax-deductible donations to the Crime Line reward fund should mail their checks to Box 2000, Lubbock.

In Lubbock's latest murder, Raymond Padilla, 22, of 2910 Ave. H, Apt. No. 1, was found lying next to the street in the 2700 block of Texas Ave. at 7:30 a.m. Wednesday. Police said Padilla was lying face up on the west side of the street, and had bruises and severe swelling of the left side of his face, with dried blood on and around his left eye, which was swollen completely shut.

Police later learned that Padilla, who died early Friday at Health Sciences Center Hospital of those injuries, had been in Lee's Lounge about 1:30 a.m. Wednesday and that he saw a man he had had some trouble with earlier. Witnesses said Padilla left the club, and that the suspect left soon thereafter, and was not seen again until police found him about 7:30 a.m.

Witnesses described the man who followed Padilla from the lounge as a Mexican-American in his early 50s, who stood about 5-foot-6 with a stocky build and short hair.

Persons with information leading to the arrest and indictment of a suspect in this case could be eligible for a $1,000 reward.

Lubbock police also are seeking two fugitives, and Crime Line has posted $300 rewards for information on them. The first is Vicky Diaz Montez, a Mexican-American female, age 23, who has been charged with felony theft and aggravated assault. She is described as being 5-foot-2, 135 pounds with brown eyes, black hair and has a dot tattooed on her left hand.

Police also are seeking Henry

Felder, a black male age 44, who has been charged with felony theft. He is described as 5-foot-8, 155 pounds with black hair and brown eyes. Police said he has a woman's head tattooed on his left shoulder and has scars on his right eye and his upper lip.

Seven houses under construction have been victimized by burglaries and thefts in recent weeks, and Crime Line is offering rewards of $300 for information on any of the cases.

P&Z Debates Apartment Registration

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Although they are illegal, garage apartments abound in Lubbock neighborhoods zoned for single family homes or duplexes.

But city officials have launched a crackdown on the illegal apartments, including injunction suits against two apartment owners.

And an amendment to the city's zoning ordinance which would require apartment owners to register their properties and allow those apartments to be rented only for a specified time is under consideration by a Planning and Zoning Commission subcommittee.

That subcommittee will hear public comment on the suggested amendment at a hearing at 1 p.m. Tuesday in City Council Chambers.

With the amendment, the subcommittee is attempting to find a legal way to eliminate the apartments causing problems, allow apartments to remain which do not adversely affect neighborhoods and prevent the construction or conversion of any additional apartments in the incorrect zoning district.

The suggested amendment would require owners of apartments detached from main housing units to register the existence of the apartments with the city during a specified period of time.

Those apartments which are registered could continue to exist during an amortization period designed to allow property owners to recoup their initial investments in the properties.

However, any unregistered apartments immediately would become illegal at the end of the registration period and could be ordered closed by city officials.

Owners of accessory apartments would have the option of seeking Zoning Board of Adjustment approval to continue to rent the structures. The ZBA would have to determine whether the apartments are appropriate for the neighborhood or if they were in existence before the city's first zoning regulations were adopted in 1941.

Without ZBA approval, owners would have to close the apartments at the end of the amortization period.

As yet undetermined is what would constitute a fair registration period and amortization period.

The UNIT Neighborhood Association, comprised of residents in the area between 19th and 34th Streets and between University and Indiana Avenues, was instrumental in getting the city to crack-down on the illegal apartments.

Association members claim the apartments destroy property values and the stability of their neighborhood by increasing the population density, traffic volumes and parking problems in the area, as well as changing the single-family character of the neighborhood.

However, those who oppose the crackdown now have formed an organization called Concerned Citizens of Lubbock and plan to have their say at Tuesday's hearing.

Reportedly, organization members are concerned about the hardship on Texas Tech University students if the garage apartments can no longer be rented.

Though only about 15 persons attended the first meeting of Concerned Citizens last week, the charter members plan to solicit additional membership before the hearing.

Following the hearing, the subcommittee will make a recommendation to the full planning commission which, in turn, will recommend a course of action to the City Council.

Galveston Oil Cleanup Nears End

GALVESTON (AP) — A grounded, leaking oil tanker continued to burn in the Gulf of Mexico early today, but scientists predicted they would soon complete the task of cleaning up the mess it dumped on Galveston beaches.

The Burmah Agate collided Nov. 1 with an empty freighter about five miles east of Galveston. The tanker exploded, burst into flame and began spewing oil from its ruptured rear compartments into the water.

Seventeen of the ship's crew are known dead and another 15 remain missing from the accident.

Oil washed up on Texas beaches several times last week, but the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration continued beach cleanup Sunday, removing 50 yards of oil-stained sand and 2,500 gallons of an oil-water-sand mixture.

Guardsmen said no new oil hit shore Sunday, and most of the spill was about three miles from land.

"Coast Guard overflights reported that the oil streamers, consisting mostly of sheen, extended intermittently as far as 12 miles south of the vessel," said Lt. j.g. Don Zelazny.

"Scientists from NOAA expect this condition to continue through Monday," he said, "due to primarily northwesterly winds.

"If no new oil impacts occur, and none are expected, officials hope to complete beach cleanup work on Monday," Zelazny added.

In 1918, the German army began its retreat across the Marne during World War I.

Dear Abby,

DEAR ABBY: How do you go about putting a stop to exchanging Christmas gifts with people you hardly ever see? I don't mean relatives. I mean out-of-town friends who used to be neighbors and whose children were friendly with our children (all grown now), and folks who are no longer close to.

Shopping, wrapping and mailing Christmas presents has gotten to be a real chore, and I am not as young as I used to be. I would just as soon get off a lot of people's lists and take them off mine, too! I'm sure they feel the same way about it, but don't know how to get off ours.

So how do I get off this merry-go-round, Abby? I would just as soon send Christmas cards to a couple of dozen people who are still on my Christmas list. Thanks from.

CHICAGO

Dear Chicago: Early in December write a note to those you'd like to take off your gift list and put on the card list, saying you are "thankful" for friends with whom you can be perfectly frank. Explain that this year, along with trimming your Christmas tree, you're trimming your gift list and sending cards instead. I'm betting they'll appreciate your practical approach and will reciprocate accordingly.

DEAR ABBY: What do you do with a big-hearted husband who gets loaded at a party on Saturday night and invites everyone there to come to our house on Sunday for a Bloody Mary brunch? When I hear him say this, I feel I have to say, "Oh, yes, do come, we'd love to have you" — but what I would love to do is conk him on the head!

NEWPORT

Dear Newport: Should you hear your husband issue such an invitation, good-humoredly let it be known that hubby is tipsy and there will be no party. And if somebody shows up, let HIM entertain them.

DEAR ABBY: I've been married three months and already I have a very serious problem. My husband told me he divorced his first wife of five years be-

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

Eight teenage students in England have been suspended from school for wearing their hair too short.

The headmaster said, "This short hair is becoming a cult and I'm determined to stop it! It's a matter of school discipline. All of them can return to school when their hair has grown to an acceptable length."

I took one look at that story and fell to my knees. At long last, there's a new hostility between parent and teenager. With most of us the only time our teenagers will talk is through rebuttals. I chewed around about their long hair for so long I got bored with myself. Every day, same old arguments and same old replies.

Then I zeroed in on tight pants, but baggy jeans came into style and once again we had nothing to talk about with one another.

Oh, I had the usual standards: sloppy bedroom, no gas left in the car, loud music, but nothing "meaningful." A couple of weeks ago, my son walked out the door and there was nothing new to criticize. I felt like I was losing him.

Then I read this story. He came in last night and I snapped, "Another haircut?"

"Look, Mom, don't bug me about my hair."

"No one else is showing their ears. I suppose it's that peer group you run around with. I've seen them and they look weird."

"Mom, we happen to like short hair. We keep it clean and we keep it combed."

"It's not natural to have short hair. You know who you look like? Sandy Duncan! Why can't you wear your hair long like your father?"

"Because I'm not my father. I'm me."

"The least you could do is comb it and try to keep it in your eyes. I wish the school would make a stand on short hair. If they told you you couldn't play football with short hair I bet you'd let it grow."

"Mom! Billy Graham once had short hair and so did John Kennedy."

That's what I hate the most about arguing with kids. They always resort to logic.

On the other hand, it's the longest conversation we've had in five years.

Club Notables

Is there still turkey in your refrigerator? Have you bought your Christmas tree yet?

A young child asked his parents in the midst of the TV extravaganza which is the annual Macy's Parade, "How come they're celebrating Christmas? I thought this was Thanksgiving." Well may you ask, Tim.

As we enter the crest of the holiday season, an especially "notable" event scheduled for this week is the Presentation Party which the Lubbock Symphony Guild is having Thursday night to present this year's Living Appointment Book.

Lubbock members of Soroptimist International are looking forward to their annual fund raising event, a glamorous fur show, which will be held Dec. 3 at the KoKo Palace. Jean Gragg, the only woman among the elite group of 20 designated as Golden Guild Furriers, will bring a variety of styles and colors of furs for display, according to Priscilla Sims, of the local organization. Dinner and show tickets are available for a $7 donation to the philanthropic work of the Soroptimists.

The Lubbock Christian Women's Club is taking reservations through Dec. 1 for a luncheon meeting which will be held Dec. 4 at Hillcrest Country Club. Jan Lynch, owner of "The Christmas Shoppe," will illustrate her Christmas feature with angels and creches from around the world. Verla Pettit, director of the Memphis Union Mission, will be the speaker for the program. Reservations may be made by calling 799-3448 or 792-5943.

Because Family News had early deadlines this past week on account of the holiday (thanks, the day at home was delicious!), we have some late club announcements which did not make the usual spot on the Sunday Club Calendar. They include the following:

Lunch Bunch will meet Tuesday at the Mahon Library and H.K. Henniger, who heads the Law Enforcement division of the South Plains Association of Governments, will speak about "How to Prevent Holiday Crime."

La Leche League will meet tonight at 7:30 at the home of Barb Arlinghaus, 5209 71st St., for a discussion led by Michele Stalls on the advantages of breastfeeding.

The Swingin' Squares of Denver City will host the Lubbock Area Square and Round Dance Federation Saturday at the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center. Chris Year will be the caller.

THIS WEEK AT THE LUBBOCK WOMEN'S CLUB: "Christmas in Germany" is the theme of the program which will be presented Thursday by Ryla Lott for the Holiday Roundtable.

GOREN ON BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN AND OMAR SHARIF
© 1979 by Chicago Tribune

Q.1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♦73 ♠AKQJ62 ♦KQJ105

What is your opening bid?
A.—Even though you have game in hand, resist the temptation to open with a demand bid of two hearts—you do not have the high-card requirements for that action. The danger in opening with a forcing two-bid is that you might find partner with something like the king-queen in spades and ace-king in clubs, in which case wild horses couldn't stop him from contracting for a slam. Just open one heart. The chances of everyone passing are practically nil.

Q.2—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦A93 ♠A7 ♦AKJ83 ♦QJ5

The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Pass
2 NT Pass 3 ♠ Pass
What do you bid now?
A.—You have already told partner that you want to play the hand in no trump, but he is suggesting an unsuited hand. Either he wants to play in a suit, or he is interested in slam. Regardless of his intentions, your hand contains an asset not yet disclosed by the auction—support for partner's suit. Simply bid three spades and wait for his next move.

Q.3—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦954 ♠AK6 ♦K93 ♦AJ102

The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Pass
What do you bid now?
A.—Don't let your plethora of aces and kings go to your head. Whatever extra value those cards are worth is offset by the fact that you have a 3-3-4 distribution, for which you must deduct a point. You have a minimum opening bid, so show it, and your shape, by rebidding one no trump. There is no game unless partner takes further action.

Q.4—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦A1087 ♠7 ♦AQ94 ♦KQ72

The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ 1 ♠
What action do you take?
A.—Your singleton heart is the key. It suggests that game is unlikely because of a misfit. But the corollary, a penalty double of the opponents, might produce a highly satisfactory result if partner has a suitable hand. That is the action we would recommend, assuming partner remembers that all low-level doubles are, to a large extent, cooperative efforts.

Q.5—As South vulnerable, you hold:
♦KQ104 ♠K985 ♦5 ♦J873

Partner opens the bidding with one heart. What do you respond?
A.—In support of hearts, your hand is worth 12 points—almost good enough for a jump raise, and far too strong for a single raise. A jump to four hearts does not thrill us. We would temperize by responding one spade, and then support hearts at our next turn—with a jump preference, if necessary.

Q.6—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦J83 ♠J9862 ♦A7 ♦KQ4

The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 ♠ 1 ♠ Pass ?
What do you bid now?
A.—Don't waste your time bidding no trump. Partner, who is almost surely short in hearts, is unlikely to accept a no trump contract, and your stopper is not all that robust. This is simply a matter of whether you should bid three spades or four. With a fourth spade, we would jump to game. As it is, we think that three spades is enough. Partner might have handling problems, especially considering that his left hand opponent will be poised to overrull him in hearts.

Q.7—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦QJ6 ♦AJ ♦AKQ83 ♦962

Your right-hand opponent opens the bidding with one spade. What action do you take?

A.—A simple overall of two diamonds does not do your hand justice. However, a double followed by a diamond bid also misdescribes your hand. You have 17 HCPs and balanced distribution and there is only one bid for this occasion—an overall of one no trump. Don't let the fact that you do not have a club guard deflect you from this descriptive bid. Your strong five-card suit is a compensating factor.

Q.8—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦K873 ♠KJ62 ♦A7 ♦J52

The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Pass
1 NT Pass 3 NT Pass
Pass Pass
What is your opening lead?
A.—The one thing we know from the auction is that East does not have a four-card major suit. Therefore, we should not be as reluctant to lead from a four-card major as might have been the case. We see no reason on this hand to depart from the old bromide: "Fourth highest from your longest and strongest." Our choice is the deuce of hearts.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal format. Do they know something you don't? Menopause Myths Exposed PLEASANTVILLE, N.Y. (Special) — At the age of 49 or 50, with her children safely on their own and two-fifths of her life still ahead, the average American woman has a chance to enjoy middle age — and hers is the first generation that can.

At the same age, she is likely to experience the onset of menopause. To make the balance of her life as profitable, pleasurable and rewarding as it can be, the American woman must shake off the debilitating myths about menopause that were espoused as gospel truth by her mother and grandmother.

Alice Lake, in a recent issue of Reader's Digest, holds these misconceptions up to the light of scientific knowledge, and speedily dispatches them. Among them:

— The major menopausal symptom, the hot flash, is horrible traumatic. "For most women," Miss Lake writes, "this is gross exaggeration. According to a government survey, at least one woman in six experiences no unpleasant symptoms at all." For one woman in ten symptoms are severe, but they can be modulated through estrogen therapy, which must be carefully monitored by a physician.

— Menopause leads to depression and mental illness. To the contrary, Miss Lake points out, the peak period for suicide attempts occurs in the early 20s. Most women are delighted to be infertile in the middle years, and despite anxieties of mid-life, look forward to moving ahead. The "empty nest," long regarded as a crisis period, was perceived by only nine percent of women interviewed as the worst thing about middle age.

— Menopause is a deficiency disease.

like diabetes. For openers, it's not a disease. Along with cessation of menstruation, other physical symptoms will appear in time — but not necessarily at the onset of menopause. There may be flashes and vaginal discomfort may appear. On the other hand, menopause does not signal the end of a woman's sexuality — many women reach their sexual peak in the middle years, Miss Lake notes.

All skin will wrinkle. Dr. Norman Orentreich, New York dermatologist and authority on aging skin, says: "All my laboratory research suggests that female skin ages faster than male because estrogens thin the skin," and thin skin, while soft and pretty, is more susceptible to lines and wrinkles. Miss Lake's advice: "If you want to protect your skin from aging, shun face creams containing estrogen, use a moisturizer, and either stay out of the sun or use a sun screen to avoid its damaging rays."

Many women feel super once menopause has passed. One had this to say: "I would not trade the appearance of youth for the ease of interpersonal relationships or the self-confidence that comes from experience." It looks as if the best is yet to come.

West Disregarded Power Of Islamic Authorities

By R.M. SORGE
UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Superpower politics, hunger for oil and an Islamic awakening created the crisis that has brought the United States to the brink of military involvement in the Middle East.

For 26 years, the United States supported Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi to insure a firm buffer against the Soviet Union and secure a strong and friendly oil-rich nation along one shore of the strategic Persian Gulf. Saudi Arabia was the close friend on the opposite shore.

What the United States didn't understand or disregard was the depth of Islamic feeling.

The Soviet Union made the same underestimation in Afghanistan when it backed a leftist coup and found its puppet regime involved in a vicious guerrilla war with Moslem militants.

The shah didn't understand either. In his ambition to create a modern industrial state, he rode roughshod over personal liberties and probably more important, sought to set aside the centuries-old power of the Islamic legal authorities.

Moslem fanatics, happy to embrace martyrdom and inspired by the growing political successes of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, swept away the shah's modern, mostly U.S. trained and equipped, army and police force.

Arab nations are deeply worried about the confrontation between the United States and Iran over American hostages at the Tehran embassy and hope that quiet diplomacy will resolve the crisis.

Military action, they feel, may turn into disaster. "Blowing up a few tankers in the Straits of Hormuz could close the Persian Gulf and shut off all flow of oil to the West," one expert said.

The whole thing might never have happened if the West had been more perceptive.

A pro-Western Arab diplomat at the United Nations said, "To understand Islamic motives, you must be aware of the history of Islam and the original concept of the Islamic world as a single religious and political entity."

Moslems from the west coast of Africa to the southern Philippines have lived inward-looking lives for centuries, little influenced by the outside world but bound by their common link in religion.

The division of Islam into two major factions, the Shiites and Sunnis, dating back 1,300 years, was a major factor in the crisis that now has U.S. aircraft carriers steaming to the Persian Gulf, the diplomat said.

The split came about when the prophet Mohammed died without appointing a successor as head of the Islamic world. The religious leaders of the time elected a new head and this succession is supported to this day by the majority Sunni Moslems. The breakaway Shiites, the more fanatic group, believe a direct descendant of Mohammed or a God-sent caliph should lead the world's 800 million Moslems.

Khomeini, a Shiite, has never openly claimed the caliphate, but appears to be aiming for it. He delivers frequent exhortations to the entire Moslem world and has sent personal representatives to other Islamic countries to spread his message.

Support for Khomeini goes far beyond Iran, for Shiite influence extends throughout the Gulf area. Apart from Iran, there are Shiite majorities in Western-oriented North Yemen and communist South Yemen as well as in Iraq. Shiites are numerically equal with Sunnis in Lebanon, Bahrain, the Gulf emirates and Afghanistan.

Most other Moslem nations have Sunni majorities and the Palestinians, including Yasser Arafat, are Sunni. This might explain why Khomeini ignored the PLO appeal for the release of U.S. hostages.

While the successes of Shiite activism have motivated much of the present Islamic fervor evident as far east as Bangladesh, both major factions are united in their concept of an Islamic world entity that knows no national boundaries or sovereignty.

"We've never had anything like the French revolution which brought about the separation of Church and State," the diplomat said.

"Traditional Moslems live in a land known as Islam, and its rules, written down in the Koran, must be the main source of public and private law. Islam means 'surrender to the Koran.'"

Islamic religious councils or "Ulemas" are still legal authorities in the Islamic states. Saudi Arabia's army, for example, obtained Ulema approval before intervening in the armed occupation of the Grand Mosque.

In seeking to emasculate the Ulemas, the shah was playing with fire.

The diplomat said neither the ayatollah nor anyone else could think of dissolving individual Moslem states and creating a single Islamic nation. But religious influence remains a decisive factor in their policies.

In an atmosphere heady with Islamic success and redolent with suspicion of U.S. motives, Washington appeared to many diplomats to be asking for trouble in allowing the shah into the United States for medical treatment.

Well-informed diplomats said U.S. officials were warned of the possible consequences — the suspicion in Iran that counter-coup preparations were afoot.

"If treatment was not possible elsewhere, he should have been brought to New York secretly," one diplomat said.

Carter Taking Risk By Agreeing To U.N. Security Council Meet

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter has taken a calculated political and diplomatic risk by agreeing to a U.N. Security Council meeting on the situation in Iran.

By agreeing to the session, Carter is allowing Iran to send its representatives to New York and argue in the world's grandest forum that the United States and the shah are at fault, not the government in Tehran, which allows a student mob to hold 49 American diplomats hostage.

Only a week ago, the Carter administration was refusing to allow such a meeting. The United States successfully opposed a U.N. session requested by Iran, saying that the hostages must be released first.

The change in the American position is likely to be interpreted as a concession — both by Iran's few supporters around the world and by Carter's rivals in the presidential campaign, who are already arguing that his leadership is not forceful or firm.

Should the U.N. session not bear fruit, the president will have to explain why he allowed it.

But the risk carries potential benefits, according to State Department officials.

They are certain, they say, that all 15 Security Council members will support a strong resolution calling on Iran to release the hostages before there can be a hearing into its grievances.

The Americans also say they can keep the session tightly focused on the taking of the hostages, that Iran will be "like a prisoner in the dock" when it states its case.

Such an outcome could have the salutary effect of driving home to Iran's leaders the extent of their isolation to the world community.

It could also give them a chance to vent their anger and their grievances before the world, something they have indicated they want by giving frequent interviews to the media gathered in Tehran.

There is no guarantee that a U.N. resolution condemning Iran would lead to the hostages' release. But it would give the Carter administration more leverage and more options in seeking that end.

Should the administration decide at some point to try to use economic sanctions against Iran, it would have the option of asking the United Nations to impose them, as it did in the case of Rhodesia.

Should the administration decide at some point that military action is required, it would have the resolution as evidence that it had tried in good faith to solve the problem by peaceful means.

Protests Continue Over Hostages In Iran

By The Associated Press
Patriotic throngs crowded weekend rallies in California to show support for 49 Americans being held hostage in Tehran, and minor skirmishes marked smaller gatherings in Kansas City and Gainesville, Fla.

In Desert Hot Springs, Calif., about 125 persons carrying candles marched a half-mile through town Sunday night to convey their support for the hostages.

The march was organized by motel owner Hank Schmitz, who said he "got tired of watching the news reports on TV every night of thousands of Iranians throwing their fists into the air chanting anti-American slogans."

More than 1,000 persons waved miniature U.S. flags and sang patriotic songs at a "Freedom Rally" Saturday night in the ballroom of the Los Angeles Convention Center.

Louise Bagley drove 100 miles from San Diego to join the rally, and said, "I think we've heard enough of America hatred. It's time to stand up and be counted."

In Gainesville, Fla., two men were arrested after a brief scuffle between marchers with conflicting sentiments about the hostage situation.

About 40 supporters of the embassy takeover, members of the African Socialist People's Party, skirmished briefly Sunday with townspeople who support government efforts to free the hostages.

Some of the anti-Iranian participants were apparently members of a motorcycle club and some wore Ku Klux Klan T-shirts.

The melee began when a marcher lunged for an American flag carried by an American supporter. No serious injuries were reported, and police said the two men arrested were charged with assault and battery.

In Kansas City, Mo., a group of Iranian students prayed for peace with the congregation of a black church, but the service ended when one of the students demanded to be able to address the worshippers.

"We didn't come to pray — to pray just for peace, but a peace that has no discrimination, no inequality," a student said. "The reason we came here was to talk with the people."

After the service, one of the students objected to the Rev. William F. Darcy's prayer for a peaceful end to the confrontation between the United States and Iran.

He said his group wanted to talk to the congregation about the similarities between the Iranian struggle and the oppression of blacks in the United States.

Marines To Take Defensive Role In Guarding U.S. Embassies

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Since the capture of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran and the sacking and burning of the embassy in Islamabad, Pakistan, many Americans have asked the question, "What were the Marines doing?"

The answer: their job. The Marine Corps says the 1,100 Marine guards on duty at U.S. diplomatic missions in 105 countries are not supposed to be a fighting force ready to do "pitched battle" with anti-American mobs.

In the event of riots and demonstrations against U.S. embassies, the guards have an essentially defensive role — to act as a delaying force until local authorities arrive with aid.

The Marine Corps says their mandate is twofold:

— "To delay entry of a hostile group into the installation long enough to allow for the destruction of classified material.

— "To aid in safeguarding the lives of American and locally hired personnel."

Last week, a young Marine guard, Cpl. Steven Crowley, was killed when mobs stormed and burned the embassy in Pakistan. Also, Marine guards did not act as "deadly force" to resist the Nov. 4 takeover of the embassy in Iran.

Did the guards do all they could? Are they limited to defensive actions? Could the situations in Tehran and Islamabad have been avoided if they engaged in something tantamount to combat action?

The Marine Corps answers the first two questions with a "yes," and the third with a "no."

In a one-page note distributed at the State Department, the corps said the duties of Marine security guards at an embassy "are defensive in nature."

"Marine security guards are not intended to be a fighting force ready and able to engage a hostile population in pitched battle," it said.

Labor Chief Approves Union Boycott

NEW YORK (AP) — New AFL-CIO chief Lane Kirkland has given his approval to union boycotts of Iranian ships and planes, and suggests the protests might spread to unions in other countries.

"I think that we would expect that democratic countries we have close relations with might not discourage their members from following suit," Kirkland said Sunday in a television interview.

Shortly after the seizure of the U.S. Embassy and some 60 hostages in Tehran, longshoremen at several ports stopped servicing ships carrying cargo to or from Iran.

"The overall protection of our embassies and assigned personnel is the responsibility of the host governments," said State Department spokesman Hodding Carter.

He said Marines guarding the missions in Iran and Pakistan carried out their duties in an "exemplary" manner.

The guards provided "a delaying action without use of force and bought sufficient time for the destruction of most of the classified material in both places," he said.

"We also believe (their performance) undoubtedly spared the lives of the personnel in both embassies."

A similar boycott of Iranian airlines at New York's Kennedy International Airport has been carried out by members of the Transport Workers Union since the Nov. 4 takeover of the Tehran embassy.

Kirkland said a representative of the Carter administration expressed concern to him after the TWU action began that the boycott might hinder efforts to evacuate Americans from Iran.

He said he relayed White House concern to the union "but I indicated at the time that I would not appreciate such further requests because I thought it was perfectly natural, perfectly normal and perfectly logical that our members should refuse to engage in trading with the enemy."

Kirkland, who recently succeeded George Meany as head of the labor organization, said the boycotts gave workers "an opportunity to demonstrate how they feel about the conduct of Iran and the seizure of Americans as hostages," adding, "I certainly will do nothing to discourage their taking that action."

Kirkland said the issue of expanding the boycotts to other countries might be raised at an upcoming meeting of the International Transport Workers Federation.

Kirkland was interviewed on CBS' "Face the Nation" program.

China Takes Stand In Crisis

PEKING (AP) — China sided with the United States today in the Iranian crisis, declaring after three weeks of official silence that "accepted diplomatic immunities should be universally respected."

"But at the same time we hold that the principles guiding international relations and the accepted diplomatic immunities should be universally respected."

"We hope that a reasonable and appropriate solution can be found at an early date through peaceful consultation in accordance with principles of international law and diplomatic practice."

The statement, released by the Foreign Ministry, expressed concern over the crisis and a hope that an early solution can be found "through peaceful consultation."

The statement gave an indication of the attitude China may take in a U.N. Security Council meeting on the situation, called by Secretary General Kurt Waldheim. The session was expected to begin today.

The Chinese media have indicated sympathy for U.S. government attempts to negotiate the release of 49 Americans, held at the embassy in Tehran since Nov. 4 by Iranians demanding the return of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, now receiving cancer treatment in New York.

"We are concerned about recent events in the relations between Iran and the United States of America," the statement said.

Attendance Invited At Dec. 2 Abernathy Floral's Open House

Abernathy Floral cordially invites your attendance at its third annual Christmas Open House on this Sunday, Dec. 2, from 1 p.m. until 5 p.m. at its shop, 1312 Ave. D, in Abernathy. Come in, browse and enjoy an afternoon at a most unique shop, where the stock is the largest and most unique yet. Door prizes will be given.

A most comprehensive and selective stock of gift items including many that are new and some exclusive in the area to this shop, flowers and floral accessories and a multitude of services mark the long-established (about 30 years) Abernathy business that serves a wide South Plains area.

Owner and operator is Jan Hill, long a teacher in the Abernathy schools. She is ably assisted in the operation by former owner Dorothy Stephens, by Sandi Waldrop, manager, and by Lupe Hernandez.

Abernathy Floral, phone 298-2334, is a member of both FTD and AFS wire services for maximum customer convenience.

Listing of the many services and products would be impossible, but it is intended that the following "high points" will correctly indicate how very much this area business can do for one, whether a resident of Lubbock, Abernathy, New Deal or elsewhere in the near region.

It is a complete floral and gift shop
Poinsettias, Green Plants
 Poinsettias are available, with first deliveries scheduled tomorrow, Tuesday.

There are green plants, hanging baskets, fresh flowers and fresh holly and fir for the Christmas centerpiece.

See the Hindt handmade clay animals, exclusive to this shop, including decor items, vases, desk sets and more.

And the so-novel post office door coin banks, with the real "mail box door" and otherwise oak construction, Postal Originals of the Knot Hole Co. There also are fireplace match holders of the same construction.

There are unique wooden picture frames for groupings, great for grandparents, for sure.

Huge Stock At South Plains Schwinn Enables Bicycle Right For Any Age

"South Plains Schwinn, 3651 34th St., can without doubt enhance your image as a perfect Santa!"

With over 500 bicycles in stock, with the quality Schwinn products of unquestioned value, and with the layaway plan and other special considerations at the Lubbock-owned dealership, Christmas shopping can be most gratifying... at South Plains Schwinn.

The Schwinn Sting-Ray II is on the floor... great for riders in the 5-year and 6-year age group. With 20-inch wheels, it has a junior frame, full length chainguard, coaster brake, and dazzling new two-tone color combinations.

There is a fantastic selection, really, of kids' bikes at South Plains Schwinn, together with the units for older riders on your Christmas gift list.

"If you appreciate selection from the very largest bicycle stock in this region, then we invite you to come out to South Plains Schwinn, 3651 34th St."

The husband-wife team of Don and Wanda Fullwood established the Schwinn dealership about a year ago at this same location and they have been accorded a fast-increasing trade. They are West Texas natives, and Don is a '63 graduate of Texas Tech.

So much could be said in behalf of the type store provided by South Plains Schwinn, and only a thumbnail sketch is given here, we hope you'll make a visit to the facility in person and note just how very much is offered for the customers benefit.

A Complete Store
 It is a Schwinn bicycle store, not just a shop, and it is spacious, neatly and attractively arranged, with an open display enabling full inspection and comparison of units.

Complete repair and service is afforded on any make bicycle.

A complete parts and accessory department is maintained.

South Plains Schwinn is a bicycle motorcycle dealer.

Schwinn exercisers, with a quality well known, are stocked, and these units actually are recommended by many doctors, Fullwood emphasizes.

Casa Blanca Fans
 Casa Blanca fans are stocked, too, great for comfort and energy saving in the winter months and summer time alike.

Bicycles stocked include a wide range from the "Little Tiger" for age 2 and under, to the Super Le Tour II, 12-speed 28-lb. ultra-light bicycle.

With all this on hand, it makes good sense to select now and layaway for Christmas. Gift certificates are available, too, and both Visa and Master Charge purchases are welcomed.

Don and Wanda, both factory-trained repairmen, know their bicycles and they are very particular in seeing that the bicycle "fits" in every transaction, as the fit to the bike is most important for enjoyment, comfort and safety.

Even though Schwinn has a 30-day check-up program, Fullwood goes even further to provide a free 90-day check up service.

Every unit is assembled and adjusted and ready to ride before it is sold.

Free repair estimates are given on any repair job, with labor prices clearly posted within the store. There are no "surprises" on repair bills at South Plains Schwinn.

Comparative shopping is encouraged... whether for the bicycles, exercisers, accessories or the Casa Blanca fans for which the firm is authorized dealer.

South Plains Schwinn is open from 9 a.m. until 6 p.m., Mondays through Saturdays. No abbreviated hours here, even on Saturday!

"South Plains Schwinn is recommended as providing a little more, working a little harder, providing the extras that mean so much in product enjoyment. They only want the opportunity to serve, and now would be a very good time for making acquaintance... while selection is complete and everything possible has been done to make shopping for Christmas really convenient. Remember the location, 3651 34th St., where scads of off-street parking is immediately in front of the big South Plains Schwinn facility. We hope to see you and serve you soon."

Powers Jewelry, In Wolfforth, Tells 'Short Drive Worthwhile'

"Powers Jewelry, in Wolfforth, makes the short drive there most, most worthwhile."

In fact, one does not have to wait for Christmas or other special occasions to save from a quality selection at Powers Jewelry. Check the Powers ad in this section for eye-opener watch repair prices.

Located just a block west of the school, at 800 Main St. in Wolfforth, Powers Jewelry probably is best known for its watch repair ability and specials, but one should not overlook the other benefits of Powers Jewelry ... such as the selection of "wanted" items and names to trust in Christmas selection.

Great For Gifts

There are Seiko (Seiko has more than 500 styles, but only one standard excellence), Waltham and Elgin watches (Ar-nex pocket watches, too). Powers is both dealer and service specialist for Seiko.

Then there are Cross pens and pencils, Art Carved class rings, Speidel bands, and more, all of unquestioned gift value.

Special orders are taken on Seth Thomas grandfather clocks, and if one hurries, delivery can be made before Christmas.

Also select from the in-store stock of jewelry boxes, trophies, plaques, Win and Chrysler lighters, solid gold serpentine chains (14k and gold filled). Engraving is available.

Custom jewelry work is expertly done, including diamond setting.

School Rings

Class rings, including those for Texas Tech and any area school, can be ordered.

Complete clock repair is a service, as is the watch repair.

Powers Jewelry is essentially a family operation, with Melvin Powers as owner of the Jewelry and the adjacent barber shop. Melvin is a former resident of Slaton, moving to New Mexico some 30 years ago where he managed the Furr's jewelry department in Albuquerque.

Returning to the South Plains he opened the Wolfforth jewelry establishment just over three years ago. Reception to his type of service and products has been most gratifying. Folks seem to appreciate friendly service and prices that invite comparison.

Powers is assisted in the jewelry business by his wife, Bonny, and daughter, Lisa, a student in the schools at Wolfforth, and by Tammy Herrington, a Coronado High School student.

Powers Jewelry is open from 9 until 6, Mondays through Fridays, and from 10 until 6 on Saturdays. Both Master Charge and Visa purchases are welcomed.

"Let us prove that the short drive will save a lot, whether the need is watch or clock repair, or selection from a quality line of jewelry items great for Christmas giving."

Cookware Always Right

Microwave cookware for microwave and for smooth-top cooking is stocked, as is Corning cookware. And Silverstone cookware by West Bend and Mirro, heavy cast aluminum cookware by Magnolite, stainless cookware by Farberware, West Bend, Revere and others.

Stocked are dinnerware sets from Nikko, Correlle and Metlox. Pottery in sets or open stock is in abundance, as are Viking glasses and matching pitchers, stemware by Crystal D'Arques, etc. place mats, terry towels, potholders, mugs, candles, rings and vo-lives (ask about the two-for-one sale), and more.

There are famous-make glass fire-screens, fireplace tool sets; canisters, decorative plaques, bath accessories; Oster blenders and mixers, Kitchen-Aid mixer canister, and more.

Such as the Hoky floor and carpet sweeper, Coney Island steamer, G.E. food processors, elegant wooden ware, skewer sets, bath soap ensembles, decorator pieces including metal sculpture.

Or the electric pizza baker, crock pots, American teakettles and the Mr. Bacon pan.

Or a White Mountain ice cream freezer!

There even are tablecloths for the holidays, for gifting and for year-around use; see the vinyl cloths with felt backing.

There are lots of stocking stuffers throughout the stock at Meinecke Bros. Gift wrapping is available, of course.

QUALITY SELECTION TRADITIONAL HERE — Meinecke Bros. recognizes that the many Christmas situations call for an equally great choice in gifts, and they have stocked accordingly. Pictured in one of the beautiful display areas of the conveniently-located Broadway store are Steve Meinecke and staffmember Mrs. Mary Alderson.

BOWMAN BEFRIENDS AREA SANTAS — Cindy Harrist and Robin Reeves of the Bowman Garden, Gift & Christmas department reveal lots of news goodies — like Thursday night Open House festivities, new tree arrivals, poinsettia specials and a host of appreciated services and decor items.

Garden, Gift & Christmas Shop Fully Stocked, Sets Open House

There are so many pre-Christmas benefits at the Bowman Garden, Gift & Christmas Center that not only is one urged to check the following announcements, one by one, but to come on out to 8301 S. University and discover the thrilling truth... Bowman has gone "all out" to aid in holiday planning and gifting.

Open House for the entire Bowman center is scheduled from 6 p.m. until 9 p.m. this Thursday, Nov. 29.

There will be Christmas refreshments featuring hot apple cider!

And entertainment... the Sweet Adelines will be there; Der Dog from Der Wienerschnitzel is scheduled to be on hand together with the K-Triple-Elephant, etc., with live broadcast on KLLL.

Come, join in the festivities; see the gorgeous displays of decorator and gift items and all. It is an annual event to which folks understandably look forward!

Other news from Bowman:

 IN TIME FOR CHRISTMAS

WHERE BINDING, RESTORATION IS AN ART — Moises Perez of Bookbinding & Bible Repair aptly suggests one or more of the many services at the popular firm as a really thoughtful and appreciated Christmas consideration.

Bookbinding & Bible Repair Quality, Versatility Aid In Gifting Solution

The versatile services of Bookbinding & Bible Repair, 2235 34th St., phone 765-6761, may likely be of greater scope than many realize, with many or all these services fitting into Christmas planning most advantageously.

Any written material can be bound by the firm to be preserved and become a memorable gift increasing value of the material.

A variety of bindings, to suit one's particular needs, plans and desires is offered.

Any book can be restored to its original looks, at Bookbinding & Bible Repair.

Many valuable publications not only can be bound but need binding to be preserved. (This can be a valuable gift for the entire family.)

Even with these and its many other capabilities, attention to detail and the personal interest of owner Moises Perez is likely the foremost factor in service at Bookbinding & Bible Repair, no matter how small or large the order.

Bible restoration is one of the key services that might come in for special attention at this season... as a gift that "keeps on giving."

Whether a manual Bible or the family Bible is involved, expert restoration is assured. Manual Bibles differ from the big family Bible in that the family Bibles are most generally heirlooms, with family records, charts, etc. The manual ones are those "you take with you, everywhere."

The manual Bible is of necessity bound in flexible bindings of leather, with the reason that this particular cover can take hard use under all circumstances. The binding needs to be the strongest among books as the Bible is taken to church, home Bible studies, devotionals, etc., explains Perez, and with this kind of use the Bible is exposed to many accidents and unwitting mistreatment.

"In making flexible bindings, we are conscious of all these factors, and with the accumulated experience that we have we have developed a system of binding that is almost indestructible in normal use."

Advantages Defined
 Advantages of rebinding these old, used Bibles over purchasing new ones include:

(1) The quality of the paper in the last 10-15 years has deteriorated, in most new Bibles the quality of the paper is very poor, Moises relates. Any paper of an old manual Bible can outlast any of the finest papers available now, he adds.

(2) Many new bindings are coming apart as result of cheap products and mass production methods used to reduce the cost of publishing. In the manufacturing process at Bookbinding & Bible Repair every Bible is hand bound and every cover is custom made.

(3) The familiarity the owner has with his or her old Bible, notes and underlined passages make old Bibles almost irreplaceable.

(4) Add to all this that the many manual Bibles are also heirlooms, already enriched with markings and notes made by beloved parents, even grandparents, and in using them we can get the direct message plus the knowledge and study by other generations.

"So, don't hesitate in having your old Bible rebound; we can assure you that our bindings are better than new, since every Bible is hand bound and every leather cover is custom made with its finished look as close to the original as possible.

"Bookbinding & Bible Repair, in short, can help you preserve many treasures, whether involving Bibles, the National Geographic, Life and other collector magazines, journals, etc.

Multiple Services
 Whether spiro-plastic binding, magazine binding and fine deluxe leather bindings, or even if the need is lamination of pages and documents with the hot plastic process, Moises Perez has the expertise, equipment and personal interest that assures satisfaction.

In short, check the following outline and see if one or more of these services can be utilized in your own situation:

(1) Books rebound or restored;

(2) Restoration of Bibles that are out of use because of their condition but that can be rebound and re-used again and again;

(3) Binding of favorite magazines such as special years of the National Geographic Magazine, or any other professional or hobby magazine or journal;

(4) Blank books for special occasions;

(5) Restoration or rebinding of antique photo albums and pictures;

(6) New bindings in elegant leather for special letters or documents that should be preserved; and

(7) Restoration of heirloom family Bibles for family records and future memories.

"Our phone is 765-6761, and our address at Bookbinding & Bible Repair is 2235 34th St., across from the clock at First Federal Savings & Loan."

Don Crow Chevrolet Cites 'Little Known EPA Method'

Don Crow Chevrolet, Loop 289 at Slide Road, feels that an explanation is in order, and possibly long overdue:

It is in regard to the EPA ratings widely publicised and posted on auto fuel consumption, make by make:

"The government computation of EPA mileage ratings, for all American manufacturers whose output involves 60 per cent or more of their units equipped with air conditioning, results in posting of the mileage rating 'with' air conditioning use," Don Crow Jr. points out.

"Foreign cars, without exception," Crow adds, "aren't included in the '60 per cent class,' so their EPA ratings do not involve the air conditioning drag. Thus, figure against figure comparison is misleading and actually impossible."

"Air conditioning pulls mileage estimates down as much as 25 per cent, many authorities and observers state.

"So... in comparing an American car with air conditioning against a foreign vehicle in which the air conditioning is not considered in EPA postings, one should look at all factors, not a misleading comparison," the Don Crow Chevrolet manager emphasizes.

"Isn't this actually most informative? Likely most folks did not know just what was involved in EPA mileage announcements and charts."

Chevrolet's and Don Crow's devotion to energy saving and truth in advertising cannot be overlooked, for sure.

Business & Industrial Review

FOR UTILITY OR GIFTING — Frances York of Childress Hardware calls attention to the many fireplace accessories among the practical and 'in demand' stock items attractively displayed in the big new home of the firm.

Childress Hardware Emphasizes New Address, Modern Facility

Don't forget. The Fred Childress Hardware is now at 10th & H (915 Ave. H) just a block north of the former 902 Main Street location that was home of hardware since back in 1917.

"To the many of you who have visited us at our new facility, we say 'thanks' for all the kind and even enthusiastic expressions. Thanks for coming by, renewing or making new friendships, discovering how we can be of benefit to one another in the good, old South Plains way."

Yes, Childress is an old friend, but with a new address in Lubbock and with a new functionally-beautiful building in which to serve even better.

"Now, with pre-holiday tasks for most households and with Christmas planning and gifting taking top priority, wouldn't this be a very good time to visit Childress Hardware and select for these very needs? You'll like the convenient arrangement, the attractive displays, the thousands of items... and the traditionally friendly service by a staff that appreciates you."

It is no idle statement that hardware needs of the area have been met for decades by the Childress Hardware and its predecessors. As a bit of history, it is recounted that the old Cole-Myrick Hardware was established at 902 Main in 1917. Within a few years ownership passed to the Nislar family, with Fred Childress in 1924 going to work for that ownership. Then in 1934, just a decade later, the firm was purchased by Childress and O.A. Terry. Then in 1959, Terry disposed of his interest.

The Fred Childress Hardware, Inc., is owned by Dick Jay and Leslie Duncan who have long served at this time-proven and time-honored establishment that prides in stocking needs of the day for every year, every season.

The former Main Street building has been razed to make way for other use of the property, and the new and beautiful building at 915 H marks even greater capacity for service.

Away from the congested area, more and easier parking is enabled, yet the business still is on a major traffic artery to conveniently serve city and area. The new building was specifically designed for Childress Hardware, and the open displays and other built-in conveniences certainly do not detract from the traditional Childress image of "we appreciate you as a customer and friend, and we're glad you came to see us."

Whether one's immediate concerns and needs involve winter preparation (even need of fireplace accessories, etc.), security via quality mortise locks, or even the unusual hardware items, likely still the first and only place necessary to check is Childress Hardware, now at 10th & H.

Childress for years has stocked the finest in security hardware, and possibly at no time has "security" been more in the minds of most people than today. And properly so. It would be foolish, then to consider security for the home of business without attention to the locks, such as dead bolts etc., that are among the products stocked at Childress.

Correct tools and equipment can be the big item in convenience and accomplishment in numerous home operations or by the professional builder throughout the year, and for these tools, one can rely with certainty upon the Fred Childress Hardware.

For those who appreciate good hand tools, there is a wide stock, including the respected name of Stanley, Crescent, Thorson, Nicholson, Bluegrass, Disston, Lutkin, Plumb and others long associated with quality and integrity in tool-making.

On and on the list could go in enumerating the lawn and the building needs provided at Childress Hardware, but suffice it to say that "if it is in the hardware line, you can get it there."

Thousands of Items

One can purchase an old-fashioned sprinkling can or a lawn watering device that negotiates your yard, a well pulley or a lamp chimney, actually more than 10,000 items.

Childress Hardware continues as a popular place with carpenters and craftsmen, who make it headquarters for nails of all sizes, as well as a wide range of other fastenings including stove bolts, cap screws, carriage bolts, machine screws, metal screws, wood screws and brass screws, chain, rope — you name it, for home, industrial or farm use.

The Fred Childress Hardware also stocks one of the most extensive lines of cabinet hardware in the city.

Functionally beautiful patio covers, carports, room enclosures, etc., from Lubbock Carport & Patio can add an entirely new dimension to home enjoyment!

Lubbock Carport & Patio, at 2715 Slaton Hwy., features the Howmet line ("Cadillac of patios and carports") including woodgrain patio covers with domed skylight, in rich walnut, golden oak and even white birch, as seen in Better Homes & Gardens and House Beautiful.

Howmet Aluminum Corp. is reputed to be the world's largest manufacturer of patio and carport units, and is located in Mesquite (Tex.).

Lubbock Carport & Patio, established as a home-owned business in early 1976, is owned and operated by Kip Sanders, an area native and member of a pioneer Lubbock family.

Also Portable Buildings

Sanders also owns and operates Lubbock Portable Buildings at the same 2715 Slaton Hwy. location.

One is invited to come by for full details of any of the Lubbock firms' products and services, or call 745-7060, or residence phone 799-0326 evenings.

Primarily utilizing steel in the carport and patio covers, the Lubbock Carport & Patio crew can do a turnkey job anywhere in the area, constructing with the pre-engineered units and meeting applicable city building codes.

Both residential and commercial application is enabled, with the tops great for playrooms, game rooms, sunrooms, pool enclosures, carports, etc.

Free estimates are gladly given, of course.

Longlasting Finish

Howmet lays claim to being the first patio cover designed for fine homes, and with its woodgrain finishes and steel utilization, this is understandable. As beautiful as its finish, one can forget about re-staining wood every year. Let Lubbock Carport & Patio show how you, too, can enjoy the beauty and utility of a unit to meet your preferences and needs.

"For products that are fully engineered for durability, strength and long lasting beauty, we invite comparison!"

As for the portable buildings from Lubbock Portable Buildings, a wide flexibility in design and use is afforded.

Lubbock Carport & Patio Supplying New Dimensions In Functional Beauty

Sanders can provide, on custom basis, anything from a 6 x 8 unit to a large 20 ft. by 40 ft. building. Generally constructed with steel siding (recommended to withstand weather conditions here) wood construction can be utilized if desired. Custom construction of buildings for well houses, offices, tool houses, even school units, is afforded.

The portable units can be built on skids or for concrete floors. Delivery and even installation to the extent desired is enabled.

Unique Service

Lubbock Portable Buildings also provides a moving service for those wishing to move an already-existing portable building.

From the simplest building to one finished out with utilities, carpet and all, the folks at Lubbock Portable Buildings invite consideration.

And the wise word is... don't delay in constructing that carport or sunroom; make arrangements now for enjoyment of the unit this winter. Check now with Mr. or Mrs. Kip Sanders and crew at Lubbock Carport & Patio, 2715 Slaton Hwy. in Lubbock.

Business & Industrial Review

Ski-Lubbock Sports Devotes All Efforts To Skiing Satisfaction

"Put yourself in our hands" is the qualified invitation of the staff at Ski-Lubbock Sports whose whole job is to assure maximum satisfaction, correct fitting, everything that is right for the avid ski enthusiast or the beginner.

Not only is it the Christmas shopping season, but it is ski season... outdoor fun season, so why turn to any other supply source than Ski-Lubbock Sports where skiing is our only business!

For a Christmas gift that can be immediately used and appreciated, apparel or equipment for a visit to the slopes, on the South Plains it is Ski-Lubbock Sports, 2918 4th St., phone 747-5748, Lubbock.

For Entire Family
Already there is mountain snow, and it is high time to get present equipment ready, or secure new ski equipment including the great new clothing items, for an enjoyable season ahead.

Ski-Lubbock Sports for the first time has added children's clothes to its otherwise comprehensive selection. Now, all the family need make but one stop — at Ski-Lubbock Sports, just a short distance east of the 4th Street-Indiana intersection near the Texas Tech campus.

Clothing selection is at its finest at this time, including latest fashions, items and materials. Skiing underwear for ladies is stocked.

Not only do the products excel, but Ski-Lubbock Sports is especially well known for its fitting and its expertise in equipment maintenance and repair. Nothing is left to happenstance, satisfaction is more important than the sale to Ski-Lubbock Sports owners and staff.

Hoyle Moss provides an extra service in the "Ski Tip of the Week" series prepared and available at the big store. Really valuable information is afforded in these tips, relating to such matters as proper length of ski pant or bib, use of binding covers, keeping the racers edge by doing your own tuning after each day of skiing, etc. Moss even tells how not wearing a hat can cause cold feet!

Rentals
As in seasons past, the rental department is complete, enabling quality skiing equipment use at nominal fee.

The same proficient crew is back to assist in apparel needs, in choice of the finest ski lines, in fitting and in serving with a staff including certified ski mechanics.

Yes, not only is the stock of apparel and all ski equipment most impressive, but Ski-Lubbock Sports is manned by dedicated, top-notch specially-trained pros.

Ski-Lubbock Sports is easy to reach from just about anywhere... from Texas Tech, LCC, the Loop and principal cross-town arteries. Don't forget the location and the easily-spotted and distinctive building at 2918 W. 4th St., Lubbock.

"Name" lines comprise the entire stock at Ski-Lubbock Sports, whether for apparel or skis.

Select from the Number One Sunline clothing, Innsbruck, Bogner, Anba, White Stag, Roth, Obermyer, Snuggler, Demetre sweaters, and others. There are Hanson boots, too, and children's apparel is now stocked to round out the selection for the entire family.

Dynastar, Head and Olin ski lines are stocked, and the Salomon 626 and 727 ski bindings are featured, and Tyrolia 360 racing, 360 diagonal and the new 250 diagonal, even the 60 series bindings for aggressive children are stocked. Also, select from the "Look in 77" turntable bindings.

Ski-Lubbock Sports, as a knowledgeable dealer and concentrating all activities to the field of skiing, can be the greatest help imaginable in pointing one to a fun season ahead.

The selection of a ski dealer might seem nothing more than a question of convenience, but take it from us (and a lot of our customers) where you buy your skis is a most important consideration, for the dealer you choose will affect the skis you choose, as well as the boots, poles, bindings and accessories you need to improve your skiing and for full enjoyment of the sport. Finding a dealer who can satisfy you in each of these areas is not difficult... simply depend upon Ski-Lubbock sports where expertise and customer consideration is the rule rather than exception.

Gary's Frozen Foods Products Seen Equally Great For Table Or Gifts

'Twas a bountiful Thanksgiving and now we all are on the home stretch for Christmas! And it is a real good time to realize that not only can Gary's Frozen Foods assure finest products to make the Christmas meals just right, but Gary's also can be the solution to many a gift need.

"That's right, say 'Happy Holidays' with hickory smoked turkey, brisket or ham from Gary's, as example! Businessmen and professional people have recognized that these make excellent gifts of appreciation at Christmastime. Call now at Gary's, 109th Street at South University Avenue, phone 745-1933, for details and reservations.

Nutcrackers
Also... Gary's again is stocking the popular Dynamic electric nut cracker, great for one's own use in the present pecan harvest or for Christmas gifting. Response to this unit in seasons past has been so enthusiastic that Gary has made it a year-around feature. Satisfaction is guaranteed.

Further announcements from Gary's should contribute appreciably to holiday convenience and enjoyment.

Finest Chili
Gary has added fresh home-made chili to his list of products, with this great chili available at the Big Gary's facility in south Lubbock. Only the finest meat is used, assuring no fat, no gristle

... just good chili.

A new showroom with refrigerated cases has been provided at Gary's, making it easier than ever to see and select.

Whether selection is from Gary's Super Dogs, Bar-B-Que Brisket, Barbeque Delight, Gary's Corn Dogs or delicious hams, turkeys, or beef, one can be assured of the very best... from Gary's.

Gary's Frozen Foods products not only are available at the home plant but also in one's favorite supermarket throughout the area.

For easily-prepared but super-delicious meals for any occasion, for thoughtful gifting, turn to Gary's Frozen Foods, where every meat product is an experience in goodness.

Tuftwick Reveals Truckload Carpet Priced At 'Rock Bottom'

"Don't delay... check with Tuftwick Carpet, Inc., at earliest possible time for an exceptional opportunity just announced.

Hal Taylor reveals a truckload of rolls and short rolls just brought in from the Austin store to be cleared at below invoice cost in most instances!

Included is some heavy plush carpet, shags and other types; and if one is fortunate enough to find some of this in the preferred color and type, then it is a near steal in price... some as low as $2.99 per yard (carpet only)!

Warehouse Clearance at both stores has resulted in possibly the greatest carpet purchase opportunity in the firm's 24 years in business, the management reports.

Tuftwick in Lubbock is contemplating a big open house event in the near future, and those taking advantage of the above price announcement will have a "jump" on the related opportunities.

In addition to the Austin shipment, new carpet is arriving from the factory and being placed in stock, enabling a really extensive selection, at Tuftwick Carpet, Inc., Slide Road at Brownfield Highway in Lubbock.

"Tuftwick takes pride in selling at $3 to $5 per yard under suggested retail, no matter the selection, no matter if just arrived in stock!"

It all adds to the truism that carpets are one of today's best values for the home, especially when purchased at Tuftwick.

"While prices of almost everything have doubled in the last 10 years, carpet prices have hardly changed."

Carpet now on order reflects another price increase, however, but the folks at Tuftwick carefully guard its image of "the carpet store where your dollar buys more... pricing accordingly."

Treated For Static
One must surely see the new rolls arriving, from such famous mills as Lees, Milliken, Philadelphia and Horizon. Seldom has there been such a variety of fabrics and colors and patterns. All the new fabrics received by Tuftwick are treated for static and soiling, with either Scotchgard or Teflon.

A really great selection of Antron (the best Dupont nylon) is noted.

Remember, the new carpet arrivals are being introduced at sale prices! So TUFTWICK AGAIN COMES THROUGH — Nancy English of Tuftwick in Lubbock is shown in the big showroom there where a special warehouse clearance shipment has resulted in exceptionally low pricing.

ELECTRONIC GAMES POPULAR — Frank Olivares of the Woolco staff is shown with some of the electronic games that presently are in full supply . . . but with early selection advised.

Electronic Games Stocked At Woolco

Woolco has an excellent selection of electronic games. Yes, games for all ages . . . children to adults. There are pre-school games that are both fun and educational (Alpha and Major Morgan, as example). There are pocket games for all ages, two kinds of football games, three choices in baseball games, and there are racers, shooting galleries, and more. Plus table-top electronic games . . . Simon, Mania and Detective among them. Or select Atomic Arcade pinball, television video games, Atari video computer systems and a complete selection of game programs.

Lubbock Man Assaulted In Robbery At City Club

A Lubbock man suffering multiple cuts on the face told police early this morning he was jumped by three men inside a club and robbed of $70.

Rubon Torres, 29, of 1515 Ave. C, Apt. 1, said he was attacked inside the bathroom of a club in the 1800-block of East Broadway shortly before 1 a.m.

The man's assailants allegedly used a broken glass to slash his face.

Torres was listed in satisfactory condition today at Health Sciences Center Hospital with cuts on the nose, chin and right eye.

Torres said he had been at the club about two hours when he was confronted by the men inside the bathroom. The bandits took Torres' money from his pants pocket, according to reports.

The suspects were described as Mexican-Americans between 21 and 23. No arrests had been made by early today.

In other activity, a woman was grazed by a ricocheting bullet about 5 p.m. Sunday at a pool hall in the 300-block of 17th Street.

Mildred Byrd showed police the wound on the upper part of her body, but said she did not want to go to the hospital. The woman apparently was injured at the club during an altercation which she was not involved in.

A 38-year-old Lubbock man, arrested at the scene, allegedly struck another man with a .22-caliber pistol when the weapon discharged.

Reports indicate the bullet ricocheted off a wall and hit Mrs. Byrd. A man called police after the incident and said he was the one the suspect was pistol-whipping. He reportedly said he did not want to file charges against the man.

However, the woman's injury resulted in the suspect's being taken to the county jail and booked for suspicion of aggravated assault.

Police confiscated two pistols and a shotgun outside the club.

An apparent domestic squabble resulted in two men each accusing the other of aggravated assault Sunday night.

One of the complainants, a 28-year-old Lubbock man, told police the other man shot at him about 10:15 p.m. in the 900-block of Idalou Road. He said the other man fired two shots at him while he was in his car.

However, the other complainant, a 39-year-old Slaton man, told police he was the one shot at about 11:30 p.m. Sunday at Idalou Road and East Broadway.

He said the bullet missed him, but shattered his car window. Neither man was wounded in the reported shootings.

The Lubbock man reportedly was driving the other man's former wife's car during one of the shootings.

A 21-year-old man, sought by authorities on charges of felony possession of marijuana, possession of stolen property and theft, was apprehended about 11:30 p.m. Sunday at a club in the 1700-block of Fourth Street.

After being confronted by a Lubbock policeman, the suspect attempted to run, but was grabbed and handcuffed, according to reports. The man allegedly was carrying a small amount of marijuana in his sock when he was arrested.

Erasmo Garces of New Home told city police his car was parked in front of a club in the 1800-block of East Broadway when the vehicle was vandalized between 8:30 p.m. and 11:30 p.m. Sunday.

Reports indicate the passenger window was shattered and the interior slashed, resulting in about a $400 loss.

Kirk W. Whitworth of 4829 11th St. said his pickup truck was burglarized and $400 in tools and camping equipment stolen.

Whitworth said he walked about three blocks to call for help after his truck broke down in the 5700-block of Fourth Street. When he returned shortly before 1 a.m. today he discovered the burglary, he said.

About $6,000 in guns and appliances was the apparent loot taken in a break-in between Wednesday and 5:15 p.m. Sunday at William Franklin Hyatt's 4704 44th St. residence.

Two television sets, stereo equipment and clothes, totaling about $1,360, were reported taken in a burglary at Betty Alguin's house at 4624 36th St. between Thursday and Sunday night.

Property losses from four Thanksgiving weekend burglaries totaled more than $13,000, according to police reports.

The largest single burglary reported was the theft of a horse trailer and contents, valued at $3,600. Owner Jacob Messing told police the trailer was missing Saturday morning from the parking lot of Village Inn Motel on Brownfield Highway.

Police believe a crowbar-like object was used to gain entry into the home of Jack Glenn Simmons at 2219 7th St. Simmons told police Saturday evening that several items of men's clothing, a television set and stereo were missing from the residence. He estimated the loss at $3,225.

A video recorder and camera, valued at $2,700, was reported missing Saturday from the car of Artis Nelson Payne whose vehicle was parked at 2130 56th St.

Myron Earl Norman of Meadow told police his pickup truck was burglarized late Friday night while parked in the 900 block of 30th Street. Norman said tools, a CB radio, clothing, a portable gasoline welder and an air compressor, totaling $3,575 in value, were taken from the truck. A witness gave a description of two suspects to the police.

Cool Weather To Hit Area

Cooler weather will return to the area on Tuesday as a surface low pressure system in Colorado moves south-eastward, forecasters said today.

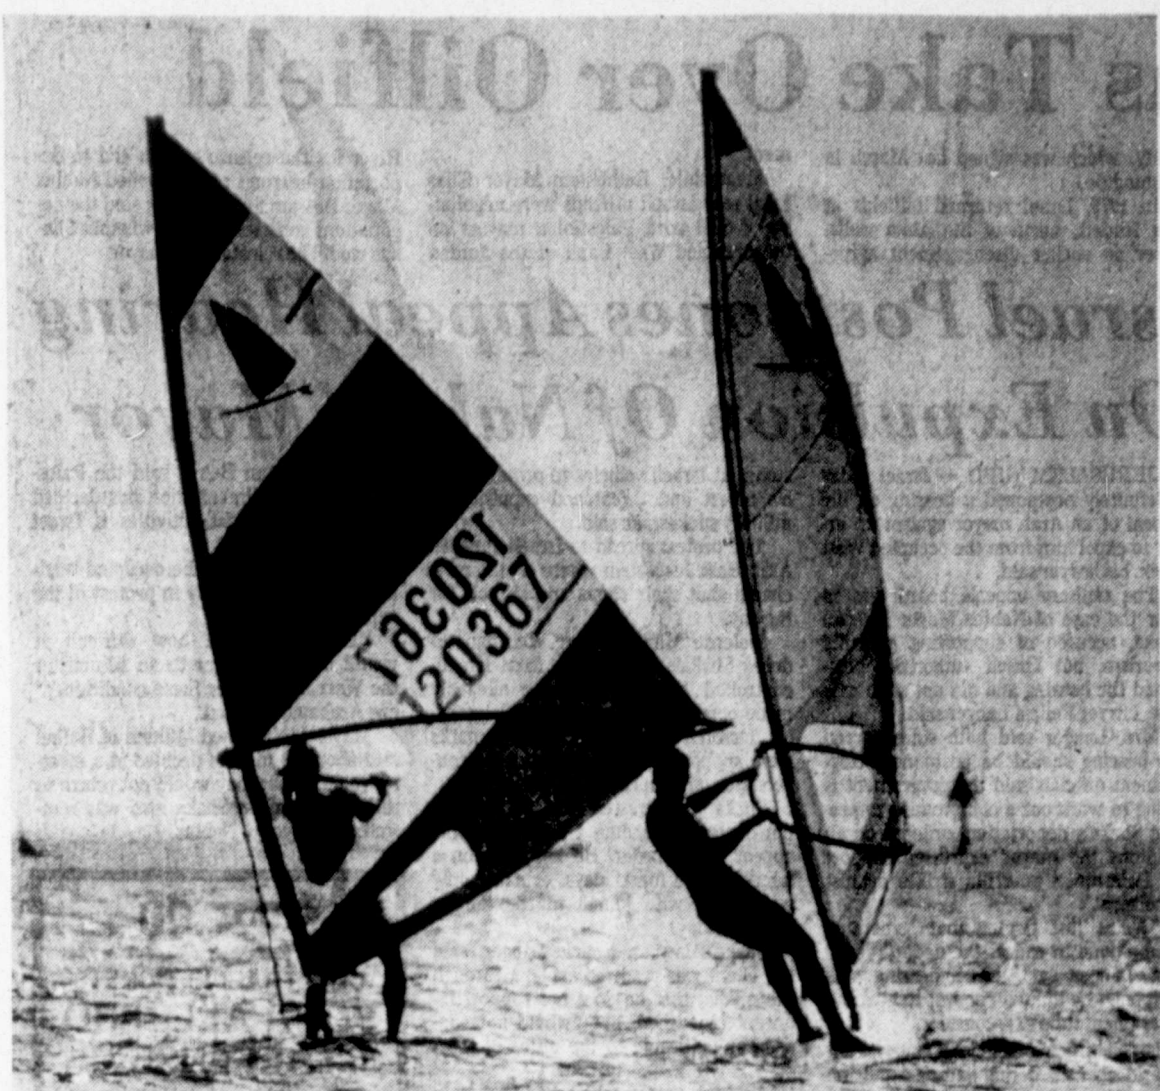

Meanwhile, slightly higher temperatures and the possibility of blowing dust are in store for the South Plains today.

Temperatures were expected to hit the low 70s this afternoon while winds kick up to 15 to 25 mph from the south-west. At midmorning, wind speed already had reached 20 mph from the south.

Cool air and high cloudiness will hold maximums to the upper 50s on Tuesday after an early morning low in the low 30s.

The extended forecast calls for fair and cold weather Wednesday through Friday throughout West Texas with highs ranging from the 40s in the north to the 50s in the south. Lows for the region are expected to be in the teens in the extreme north to the 30s in the south.

Jury Finds Burkhalter Guilty Of Attempted Murder Charge

BROWNSVILLE (AP) — A jury convicted Dr. Archie Herman Burkhalter today on a charge of attempted murder in a plot to kill the current husband of his ex-wife.

The jury acquitted co-defendant Scott David Minnick.

Both had been charged with attempted capital murder.

The four men and eight women had deliberated seven hours Wednesday before recessing for the Thanksgiving weekend. They met for little over an hour before returning their verdict.

State District Judge Darrell Hester set sentencing for later Monday.

Burkhalter showed no emotion when the verdict was read.

Minnick told reporters, "I didn't know what to expect. I feel a hell of a lot better."

Burkhalter and Minnick had been charged with attempted capital murder but the lesser charge of attempted murder was an option the jury had. The lesser charge carries a maximum sentence of 20 years in prison.

The prosecution had charged that Burkhalter hired two men to kill John Hensley, now married to the former Laurita Burkhalter.

Hensley survived a Feb. 15 shooting outside his South Padre Island condominium but was left blind.

Minnick's uncle, S.J. Wilburn, was convicted as the "hit man" in the case and was sentenced to life in prison as a "habitual criminal," based on his previous felony convictions.

Prosecutors allege Minnick drove a specially outfitted car that allowed Wilburn to fire at Hensley from portholes in the trunk. Wilburn was arrested near the Padre Island causeway shortly after the shooting and Minnick was arrested later in the day north of Corpus Christi.

The Cadillac driven by Wilburn was linked to Burkhalter through a Pasadena hospital he owned at the time. The doctor sold the hospital and moved to Fredericksburg this summer.

At the time of the shooting, Hensley had been married to Laurita Burkhalter four months. She and Burkhalter divorced in November 1977.

The doctor also faces kidnapping charges in the Oct. 24, 1978, alleged abduction of his ex-wife from her South Padre Island condominium. The woman was taken to the doctor's Pasadena Memorial Hospital but later released under police orders.

Texas Lawmen Arrest N-Plant Protesters

GLEN ROSE (UPI) — Ninety-seven demonstrators have been arrested at Comanche Peak nuclear power plant on trespassing charges — an action that enables the protesters to argue in court against nuclear power during a third wave of criminal trespass trials.

About 225 placard-toting demonstrators marched one-half mile to the partially completed plant Sunday, but less than half used homemade wooden ladders to scale a barbed-wire fence surrounding the site. They were arrested immediately on charges of criminal trespass and taken to the Somervell County Sheriff's office where they held a rally, listened to anti-nuclear speeches and conducted a worship service.

Sheriff Frank Laramore said 22 people refused to leave a bus that transported them to the sheriff's office and protesters had handcuffed themselves inside the bus. He said they remained on the bus about 6 1/2 hours. Laramore said 20 police officers from Somervell and Hood counties and the state Department of Public Safety were at the plant site.

A large number of those arrested already face criminal trespass charges stemming from a similar demonstration June 10 in which 48 protesters were arrested. The group originally was tried together, but the case ended in a mistrial when the jury became deadlocked 4-2 in favor of acquittal.

Now, the defendants are undergoing separate trials in a tactical move by special prosecutor Tommy Altaras.

In both the first trial and the retrials, the anti-nuclear forces have used the courtroom to expose what they say are the dangers of nuclear power.

The $1.7 billion plant, owned by Dallas-based Texas Utilities, is scheduled to begin operating in 1981 with a capacity to generate 2,300 megawatts of electricity.

Builders of the plant are finding defects in more than 40 percent of certain welds that would not have been tested had it not been for a former construction worker's charges.

The welds in question are not narrowly defined as "safety-related" but could be important to the overall safety of the plant.

Although the Nuclear Regulatory Commission said federal regulations did not require testing of the non-safety related welds, it substantiated charges that construction foremen were ignoring a program of random testing.

The charges prompted Texas Utilities to announce it would test all welds in two piping systems. Tests on 400 of the 1,800 welds have found defects in 43 percent.

The NRC was concerned about the findings because non-safety-related systems can be involved in nuclear accidents, as occurred at Three Mile Island.

Somervell County Sheriff's spokesman Bobby West said several of the protesters refused to give their names or leave the police bus that carried them from the demonstration site to sheriff's headquarters.

The trespassing charge is a Class C misdemeanor punishable by a fine of $1 to $200.

Course Begins On Carburetors

A course dealing with carburetors and emissions control systems will be offered here beginning at 7 p.m. today as part of a continuing series of short courses made available by the Texas State Technical Institute.

Designed for the journeyman mechanic, the 12-hour course will be conducted at National Distributing Co., 1012 17th St. Instructor will be Calvin W. Williamson.

The course, to be presented in four three-hour segments nightly through Thursday, will offer up-to-date information on smog and automotive pollutants, carburetors for engines employing emissions control, precombustion systems, combustion systems and post-combustion systems.

A fee of $20 is charged to cover tuition and cost of materials. Persons interested may contact Jim Lindsey at National Distributing Co. or telephone him at 744-1215 to reserve a place in the class.

FAA Investigating Texas Hijacking

EL PASO (AP) — Federal Aviation Administration officers today investigated the first airline hijacking attempt in Texas since 1973 in hopes of finding out how the hijacker got aboard a passenger plane in San Antonio with a large hunting knife.

"It is of considerable concern to us," said John Adams of Fort Worth, the FAA's chief of security for the five-state Southwest region.

How the knife-wielding assailant boarded American Airlines Flight 395 to El Paso Saturday "is the unanswered question. We are still investigating the matter," Adams said.

Trial Of Gregg County Officials Under Way

TYLER (AP) — Calling the Longview sheriff's office "corrupt," U.S. Attorney John Hannah prepared opening arguments today for the federal racketeering trial of five Gregg County officials, including Sheriff Tom Welch.

A federal grand jury returned the indictments Aug. 3 under statutes written to attack corrupt organizations.

"The alleged corrupt organization in this case is the Gregg County Sheriff's office," Hannah said before the trial opened.

The indictments allege Welch, Gregg County Commissioner William Satterwhite, Justice of the Peace Charles Cashell, and former deputies Billy Ray Roach and James M. Cochran plotted an aborted triple murder in 1974 and covered up illegal gambling operations in and around Longview in Gregg County.

"We're absolutely ready," said Satterwhite's attorney, Ken Ross. "We've been working hard on it. I'm sure the government has, too."

Both Ross and Hannah predicted the trial will last about two weeks.

The indictments accuse Welch, Satterwhite and Cochran of plotting to have three unidentified persons ambushed at a county-owned equipment barn. The intended victims escaped unharmed despite reported volleys of gunfire.

"We're highly confident that these charges are going to be found groundless," the sheriff said.

The indictments also contain these allegations:

— That Satterwhite built a parking lot for an illegal gambling house with county money.

— That Welch took $3,000 from two men to let them operate illegal gambling games on the midway of the Gregg County Fair.

— That Roach, Cashell and another former deputy were paid $350 to "guard" the game booths at the fair.

— That Welch "warned certain people" not to interfere with the fair games, calling the operators "his people" and then "ordered the certain individuals out of Gregg County."

The August indictments accused a total of 19 individuals. Four were convicted Nov. 7 of conspiracy and violating interstate gambling laws.

Adams said the El Paso incident was the first hijacking attempt in Texas since 1973. "The system is working," he said. "Just since last March, 283 guns have been detected in the five-state region."

Hill received a "trainee discharge" from the Army infantry at Ft. Benning, Ga., Oct. 11, according to Staff Sgt. David Bristow of the Ft. Benning public information office.

"A training discharge is given when a soldier has some kind of problem when going through training. He probably could not make the adjustment or something like that."

Wackenhut officials in San Antonio were unavailable for comment.

Library Book Drops Installed

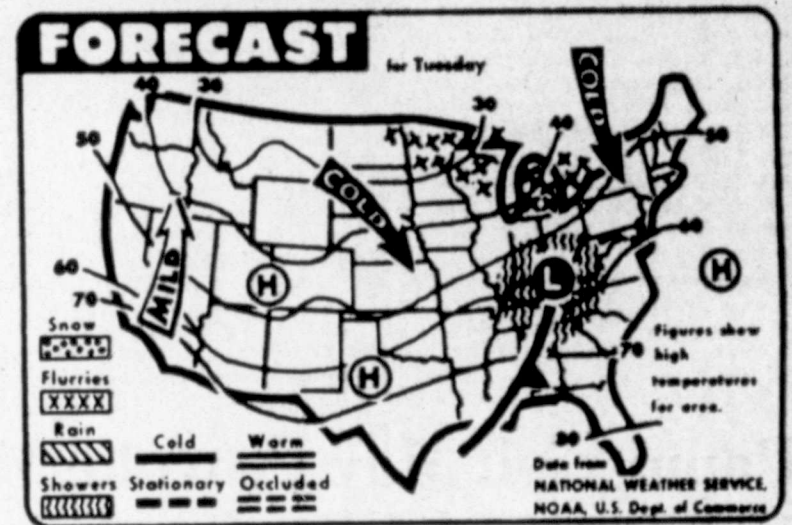

Residents of Shallowater, Wolforth and New Deal — cities served by the Lubbock City-County Bookmobile until it was damaged in a July traffic accident — may return library books checked out in Lubbock at local book drops beginning today, says Library Director Bill Stewart.

The book drops, at Shallowater City Hall, American Bank of Commerce in Wolforth and Sharp's Conoco and Grocery in New Deal, were established recently to serve county residents while bookmobile repairs continue to await an insurance settlement.

Though county residents still must check out books in Lubbock, no overdue fines will be levied for books left at the county locations, Stewart said.

No book drops will be provided at several Lubbock locations served by the bookmobile.

Adverse Conditions Restrict Refugees

KHAO I DANG, Thailand (UPI) — Squabbling anti-communist Cambodian leaders and nearly impassable roads early today reduced the flow of refugees to the newest relocation camp to a trickle.

Khmer Seret (Free Khmer) leaders at Ban Mark Moon on the Cambodian border argued about whether the 200,000 refugees spread along both sides of the frontier should be permitted to leave for the safety of Khao I Dang, 9 miles inside Thailand.

Vietnamese who know only the language of force, to release their grip on Cambodia. Sihanouk told cheering crowds welcoming him to France.

The Vietnamese, supported by the Soviets, last winter toppled the Chinese-backed regime of Pol Pot and installed the Heng Samrin government.

Secondary roads churned up by trucks bringing aid to the border camps and buses moving refugees bolstered the cause of Soriavong's faction.

But bulldozers and a grader trying to scrape the roads linking Soriavong's camp at Ban Mark Moon with a second Khmer Seret stronghold two miles to the north at Ban Nong Samet, broke down Sunday.

The road to Ban Nong Samet has really deteriorated, but hopefully it will be fixed Monday and we can get on with it," said a young American volunteer helping with relief work.

Officials fear the refugees will get caught up in the fighting in Cambodia if they remain at the border.

Five days after Khao I Dang opened, only 8,000 refugees have been relocated to the 2,500-acre site which can hold a population of about 200,000. Most of those who are there came in the first few days of the new camp. Almost none made the journey today.

But the Khmer Seret leaders are concerned that if their camps are depleted, the Vietnamese will completely overwhelm the country, and that others trying to flee from the interior will be cut off from help.

The faction supporting Prince Norodom Soriavong wants to keep the refugees inside northwestern Cambodia to fight the Vietnamese, and it got a boost from former chief of state Prince Norodom Sihanouk.

Sihanouk flew to Paris Sunday from his exile headquarters in Peking and called for military aid to back the anti-communist, anti-Vietnamese fighters still in his homeland.

Egyptians Take Over Oilfield

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israel has returned the Alma oilfield in the Gulf of Suez to Egypt, giving its former enemy its only substantial petroleum source and Egypt's greatest financial prize of the two countries' peace treaty.

The oilfield, returned Sunday along with 865 square miles of desert inhabited by some 2,500 Bedouin tribesmen, was discovered and developed by Israel after it captured the Sinai in the 1967 Mideast War.

The Israeli flag was lowered and the Egyptian flag hoisted in a brief military ceremony at an airfield on the coast, near the mouth of the Sinai Gulf.

As part of the deal, Egypt agreed to sell Israel about 15 million barrels of oil annually, equal to the output of the 12 wells at Alma, or 25 percent of Israel's yearly consumption. The United States has guaranteed Israeli oil supplies for 15 years.

The exact price Israel will pay for the oil has not been made public.

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat has cited the $23.50 price per barrel set by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, but other Egyptian officials have said the price of Egyptian oil sold to other nations is higher and that Israel will not get preferential treatment.

A source in the government of Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin said there would be a "special price" for the first year, with later prices to be set by Egypt's normal auction of its oil for export.

At the OPEC price, Israel would pay at least $350 million annually. Its total bill for oil, which it also buys from Mexico and on the spot market, is estimated at $2 billion.

Israel gave up control of the Mount Sinai area Nov. 15 in the fourth phase of a six-part pullout that will leave Egypt with control of two-thirds of the peninsula by Jan. 25. Egypt is to regain all of the Sinai by 1982 under terms of the treaty, which was signed last March in Washington.

In 1975, Israel returned oilfields at Abu Rudeis, north of the Alma wells, under an earlier disengagement agreement.

Israel Postpones Appeal Hearing On Expulsion Of Nablus Mayor

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Israel today indefinitely postponed a hearing on the appeal of an Arab mayor against an order to expel him from the occupied West Bank, his lawyer said.

The military appeals board was to hear the case of Nablus Mayor Bassam Shaka, accused of supporting guerrilla terrorism, but Israeli authorities postponed the hearing and did not set a new date, lawyer Felicia Langer said.

Mrs. Langer said both sides agreed the hearing should be postponed. Government officials said the government is trying to work out a compromise to prevent Shaka's deportation, ordered on allegations the mayor expressed support for Palestinian guerrilla strikes against Israelis.

"We're just hoping that something can be done to cancel the deportation," Mrs. Langer said. "The hearing was postponed by mutual consent to give the government time to reconsider."

Israeli officials said the government is seriously considering halting expulsion proceedings against Shaka if he would agree to publicly renounce terrorism and to resign as mayor.

Shaka's lawyers said the mayor would be willing to appear on Israeli television, but that he would not resign the post to which he was elected in 1976.

Some shops in the West Bank towns of Ramallah and Bethlehem shut their doors and youths in both places hurled stones at Israeli vehicles to protest Shaka's arrest and threatened expulsion, a military spokesman said.

The protest spread to Israeli-annexed Arab East Jerusalem where all the merchants shut their shops and schools for the day.

Defense Minister Ezer Weizman ordered Shaka's deportation from Israeli-controlled territory after he allegedly made comments in support of Palestinian terrorist operations. The remarks were supposedly made in a private conversation with an Israeli officer.

Shaka was arrested Nov. 11, but was not deported, pending a Supreme Court appeal of the order. He has been on a hunger strike for 11 days, drinking only water. His wife joined "in the hunger strike Sunday."

Shaka's lawyer, Felicia Langer, said her client was ready to explain, through the media, that he does not support innocent bloodshed, but "would not concede on returning to the office of mayor."

"The efforts are sincere, fair, reasonable and logical," the source said. "When Shaka is deported, all bridges connecting the Arabs and the Israelis will be blown up immediately. Who will benefit from this confusion and lack of dialogue?"

An Arab source, who asked to remain unnamed, said West Bank leaders have offered Israel "constructive proposals to end the crisis."

"The efforts are sincere, fair, reasonable and logical," the source said. "When Shaka is deported, all bridges connecting the Arabs and the Israelis will be blown up immediately. Who will benefit from this confusion and lack of dialogue?"

Reports from Beirut said the Palestine Liberation Organization has decided to escalate terrorist activities if Israel expels Shaka.

All the mayors in the occupied territories resigned recently in protest of the expulsion.

"Do you realize how difficult it would be for the Israelis to administer the West Bank under these conditions?" one Arab mayor asked.

Mayor Mohammed Milhem of Halhul said about 10 mayors decided at a meeting Sunday that they would not return to their posts unless Shaka also was reinstated as mayor of Nablus.

South Korean Demonstrators Arrested

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Hundreds of riot police stormed an auditorium and arrested 96 persons attending the first anti-government rally since the assassination last month of President Park Chung-hee, the martial law command announced today.

The rally Saturday was held to protest Acting President Choi Kyuhah's decision that an interim president would be chosen by the electoral college instead of by a national election. The electoral college is made up of Park supporters who are considered almost certain to elect Choi.

The protesters demanded that Choi step down in favor of a democratic caretaker cabinet that would write a new constitution to replace the one written by Park in 1972 to perpetuate his one-man rule. They also called for the release of all political prisoners and repeal of Park's emergency decree banning political dissent.

In announcing the arrests, the military command said it will not permit actions that create social unrest, harm national security or that might lead to an attack by North Korea.

Among those arrested were Park Chong-tae and Yang Soon-jik, former members of the National Assembly from Park's Democratic Republican Party, and Quaker leader Hahn Suk-hun.

The martial law command said the organizers tried to disguise as a wedding ceremony for which they sent out 500 invitations.

Choi with the support of the Democratic Republican Party has been meeting with opposition party leaders, key religious leaders and representatives of social groups to try to muster their support for his plan to elect an interim president under the existing constitution, followed by a new constitution and then the election of a new president.

Choi, who was named acting president when Park was killed by intellig-

Papal Visit May Provoke Moslems

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP) — The Turkish government has mixed feelings about this week's visit of Pope John Paul II. It hopes it will help tourism but fears adverse reaction from militant Moslems.

The Turks are pleased because the three-day papal visit beginning Wednesday will focus foreign attention on such tourist attractions as Istanbul, Izmir and Ephesus, all on the papal itinerary. But official sources said the current unrest in the Islamic world is likely to put restraints on the Turkish government's official welcome for the pope.

Fundamentalist students held a demonstration, saying, "if the pope was allowed to pray there, we will pay there, too."

"It was bad enough then, and I hate to think what that sort of thing could touch off this time with the Islamic fever sweeping the world," said Cevdet Uysan, an Istanbul University professor.

"The pope might make some statements and gestures to look sweet to the Orthodox community. No one would have any objections to this providing these statements and gestures do not injure sensitivities of this nation," he wrote.

"We will receive him cordially in accordance with international practices," said one official in Ankara, the capital. But he said he knew of no plan to "mobilize the people" to line the streets for the papal motorcade.

But if, for example, the pope treats the Hagia Sophia not as a museum but as a church, there would be complications," he wrote.

An editorial Sunday in Turkey's largest newspaper, Hürriyet of Ankara, said the "timing of this visit is wrong for Turkey because it comes at a time when Moslem-Christian differences are provoked, particularly by the events in Iran."

The Hagia Sophia in Istanbul was one of Christendom's largest churches until it was converted into a mosque in 1453, after the Ottomans conquered Constantinople, the former name of Istanbul. It was turned into a museum in 1923 after the Turkish republic was founded and religious worship there was banned.

Oktaf Eksi, the paper's chief editorial writer, noted that the chief purpose of the visit was to pursue the reunification of Roman Catholicism and the Eastern Orthodox Church. But he said the pope should take special care not to injure the sensitivities of this predominantly Moslem nation.

Vice President Bid By Woman Backed

NASHUA, N.H. (AP) — California Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. says he wouldn't accept a vice presidential nomination himself, but has "no problems" with the idea of a woman for his running mate.

Brown affirmed his support for the Equal Rights Amendment and said any controversy over women holding high office stems from "anxiety created in the minds of people who are not used to seeing women in power."

HAVING A BALL — Johnny Davis of Tampa Bay had the football, but five Minnesota Vikings have Davis — and get the football — during Sunday's NFL game at Tampa, Fla. Taylor Spoils Redskin Holiday

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Billy Taylor ran the Washington Redskins right out of first place.

"Now we have to hope the Giants keep their momentum going and kick the heck out of the guys with the stars on their helmets," quarterback Joe Theismann said after Sunday's 14-6 loss.

New York, just about out of National Football League playoff contention with a 6-7 record, gets a second chance to play spoiler next week when it faces the Cowboys in Dallas. Washington is still in good position for a wild card playoff spot.

Taylor, the Giants' second-year halfback from Texas Tech, escaped — at least for one afternoon — from coach Ray Perkins' doghouse. After running for 148 yards in New York's first victory seven weeks ago, he was inexplicably phased out of the offense.

But Perkins unleashed the self-proclaimed "BT Express" on the Redskins, and Taylor responded with 126 yards on 26 carries, including a virtual one-man, 14-play, 79-yard fourth quarter drive that resulted in the Giants' clinching touchdown.

After the Redskins had closed to within 7-6 on the second of Mark Moseley's field goals, Taylor carried 13 times, including nine in a row, for 75 yards and a 1-yard touchdown. Taylor converted four third-down plays on the drive.

Except for one run by Ken Johnson, Dave Jennings' two punts and quarterback Phil Simms falling on the ball as time ran out, Taylor was the Giants' fourth-quarter offense, carrying 19 times.

"Our game plan was to run and we did," said Taylor. "The main thing for me is to win, that's all that really matters."

Taylor had publicly questioned his lack of playing time, saying he didn't think Perkins liked him, leading to a clear-the-air meeting last week. Taylor was told he wasn't playing because he was inconsistent.

"My inconsistency is due to inexperience," he said. "You get more experience as you go along. I don't think my intention was to prove anything. Carrying 13 of 14 times is all right, I guess. Phil (Simms) did me a great favor by calling timeout after my ninth run."

Washington, which embarrassed New York 27-0 on Monday night television the third week of the season, never got untracked with only 225 yards of total offense.

"We just have to get back home and start winning. We lost the advantage of being No. 1 in our division," Redskins coach Jack Pardee said. "The secret is to play good ball every week. If we do, we'll win. If we don't, we won't."

"They're (the Giants) just playing the schedule out, playing spoilers," Washington tackle Diron Talbert said. "They wanted to knock us off and they did. It was nothing fancy."

It was just old-fashioned run-the-ball-down-your-throat football. The Giants rushed the ball 50 times for 195 yards.

"The game plan was designed totally to run the football," Perkins said. "We did what we set out to do. You get to the point where you feel you can just stuff it. We put the challenge to our offensive line and they came through. It was the best we've run the football all year."

The Giants broke on top 7-0 on a 1-yard run by Doug Kotar at 13:07 of the first quarter, capping a 10-play, 74-yard drive. Moseley's first field goal, a 31-yarder in the second quarter, closed the margin to 7-3.

SLIPPING THROUGH — Rocky Thompson of the Washington Redskins watches as a pass from quarterback Joe Theismann slips through his hands in the end zone in the third quarter of Sunday's game at East Rutherford, N.J. Also watching is New York Giant defender Alan Caldwell who had been beaten by Thompson on the play. After the missed pass, the Redskins had to settle for a field goal, and the Giants went on to win 14-6 in an upset. (AP Laserphoto)

Porkers Prove Point, Await Cotton Bowl Bid

By The Associated Press

A team without stars and flash, the Arkansas Razorbacks fooled the experts and maybe some of their own fans to earn at least a Southwest Conference co-championship and a berth in either the Cotton Bowl or Sugar Bowl.

"I thought we had to prove something to a lot of people," said senior quarterback Kevin Scanlon. "We have a lot of guys with a lot of heart. Now we have a chance to finish in the top five."

The Razorbacks could very well be playing No. 1-ranked Alabama in the Sugar Bowl if the Texas Aggies upset the Texas Longhorns Saturday in College Station.

The Razorbacks clinched the SWC co-championship Saturday with a 31-7 victory over SMU.

They were picked for a second-division finish back in August when the SWC press tour made its rounds.

"It was great to win a championship, especially in a year the league is considered tougher than it's ever been," said Arkansas coach Lou Holtz.

Arkansas will play either Nebraska in the Cotton Bowl or Alabama depending on the outcome of the A&M-Texas and Houston-Rice games this Saturday.

If both Texas and Houston win, Arkansas will go to the Cotton Bowl, Texas to the Sugar Bowl and Houston to the Sun Bowl. The same thing happens if both teams lose.

If Texas loses, Houston will go to the Cotton Bowl, Arkansas will go to the Sugar Bowl, and Texas will go to the Sun Bowl.

"We have our share of the title," said Holtz. "Someone else may share it with us. When something is that good, maybe it ought to be shared."

The Longhorns will be hurting going into the traditional meeting with the Aggies.

Texas lost two members of its starting backfield Saturday. Freshman Rodney Tate suffered a shoulder separation and A.J. "Jam" Jones will be lost for the season with a knee injury.

"We are beat up going into the Aggie game," said Texas coach Fred Akers, who started freshman Rick McIvor at quarterback in a 13-0 victory over Baylor Saturday because regular starter Donnie Little had a foot injury.

McIvor, of Fort Stockton, responded with 270 yards passing, a school record. Johnny Lam Jones caught a school record eight passes for 198 yards and the defense held Baylor to two first downs.

In other SWC games, Texas A&M defeated TCU 30-7 and Houston downed Texas Tech 14-10 Friday.

The Cotton Bowl landed Nebraska as the guest team as the Big Eight runner-up.

It has been a banner year for the SWC.

It earned more than $3 million in television appearances and stands to make another $3 million in the bowls.

Its 19-8-1 record against outside foes was the second best intersectional mark in the nation.

Earl Scudday
Turning The Corner

LARRY COLE, VETERAN defensive lineman and resident philosopher of the Dallas Cowboys, made a couple of interesting observations following the "Poke" loss to Houston Thanksgiving Day. The Cowboys are not as strong this year as they have been in recent seasons, Cole admitted, but they may have turned the corner against the bayou brawlers and still have high hopes of getting to the Super Bowl.

There will be no argument with Cole's first statement. The Cowboys are weaker in every department except the passing game this season, thanks to an almost unprecedented series of retirements, injuries and assorted mishaps. Did a Super Bowl team ever before have to rebuild its defense in the middle of a campaign?

Yet that is what Coach Tom Landry has had to do. Six of the defensive starters for Dallas against Houston were new faces — or old faces in new positions. One of those changes was temporary, hopefully, with young Larry Bethea filling in for the injured Randy White. It was a costly move for Dallas, because Earl Campbell made much of his yardage through that area.

BUT COLE ALSO had some encouraging words for Dallas partisans. There was a new sense of determination on the squad last week, Cole reported, and the shuffle in the defensive line paid off. On the left side, at least, big John Dutton and Cole made life miserable for the Houston backs. Dutton held his own in some violent encounters with the Tyler Rose.

When Randy White returns to his spot at right tackle, alongside Harvey Martin, then opponents are going to find Dooomsday II tough again.

Landry may not be through with his shakeup, either. Some Dallas insiders would like to see Bruce Huther, a deadly tackler, take over the middle linebacker post and Bob Breunig move to the strongside to replace Thomas Henderson. Only time will tell whether Landry agrees.

STRANGE AS IT may seem, Dallas' loss to the Oilers was not as damaging as a defeat by a division rival would have been. In the NFL's tie-breaking procedure, defeats in the division or conference are more costly than interconference setbacks.

Translated, that means the Cowboys are fortunate that three of their five defeats this season have been to American Conference teams and only two losses have been in the NFC.

Washington now has lost two games in the NFC East, just like Dallas, plus a conference tussle with New Orleans. Philadelphia was beaten by NFC Atlanta, in addition to one division loss. So if the Cowboys win their final three games — including the tilts with the Eagles and Redskins — then the "Pokes" will be division champs.

REGARDLESS OF THE outcome this season, Landry already is building for 1980. He took the first big step by moving Dutton into the lineup at left end and shifting Cole to tackle. With a summer training camp under his belt, Dutton should be about as effective as the departed Ed Jones. A shade slower on the pass rush, perhaps, but more consistent against the run.

There probably will be other lineup changes, as mentioned earlier, with the linebackers, defensive secondary and offensive line likely targets for Landry's attention. There isn't a lot he can do for the secondary, however, until Charley Waters returns next summer.

It is obvious that Dallas needs help at several positions — help that can only come through the draft next April. Landry will be looking for offensive linemen, a hot linebacking prospect and at least one running back. The Cowboys traded away their top two draft choices in the Dutton deal, but they should eventually get a high pick for Henderson. And good players can be found in the lower rounds, as shown by recent draftees such as tight end Doug Cosbie (3), running back Ron Springs (5) and defensive lineman Bruce Thornton (8).

The planning goes on, you may be sure. But for now, the top priority is on winning the last three games and getting into the playoffs. The future is now, to quote our old friend George Allen.

Flat Tire Flattens Petty

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Richard Petty, the pole winner, was coasting along with a healthy lead Sunday with 15 laps to go in the $31,000 Arizona NAPA 250 stockcar race.

Then, said Petty, his right front tire began going flat and Neil Bonnett roared by six laps later and went on to win the race by 3.8 seconds at Phoenix International Raceway.

Bobby Allison finished second. Petty managed to finish third, going the final miles on the tire's inner liner. Petty led in 136 of the 156 laps.

They were the only three drivers within hailing distance of the lead from the 43rd mile. The 156-mile, or 250-kilometer race, closed the Phoenix racing series.

Bonnett's winning average speed was 92.96 miles an hour.

Bill Schmitt scored enough points to win the Winston-West series point championship, his second in three years. Bonnett was driving one of Schmitt's cars, a Pontiac Ventura.

Petty had decided to change tires under a yellow flag on the 126th lap. Bonnett had changed his midway in the race.

Steelers Need Overtime To Stay In AFC Tie

By The Associated Press
Last Thursday, the nation got its chance to watch Texas' two teams whoop it up in the National Football League. Today, Pennsylvania has more reasons to cheer. It has twice as many winners.

On Thanksgiving Day, the Houston Oilers defeated the Dallas Cowboys 30-24. On Sunday, the Pittsburgh Steelers edged Cleveland 33-30 in overtime and the Philadelphia Eagles defeated Green Bay 21-10.

As a result:
• The Eagles own first place outright in the National Conference's East Division with a 9-4 record while the Cowboys, at 8-5, share second place with Washington, a 14-6 loser to the New York Giants on Sunday, and
• The Steelers share first place in the American Conference's Central Division with the Oilers, each at 10-3, while the Browns are second, two games back at 8-5.

In Sunday's other games, Minnesota shaded Tampa Bay 23-22, Buffalo nipped New England 16-13 in overtime, Miami beat Baltimore 28-24, New Orleans ripped Atlanta 37-6. Los Angeles trimmed San Francisco 26-20, San Diego defeated Kansas City 28-7, Oakland downed Denver 14-10 and Cincinnati outlasted St. Louis 34-28.

Tonight, the New York Jets visit Seattle.

"This was a very, very pressure-packed game where we showed we could come from behind against a good team," defensive tackle Mean Joe Greene said after the Steelers scored 10 points in the final 4 1/2 minutes of regulation play, then beat the Browns on Matt Bahr's fourth field goal of the game, a 37-yarder with nine seconds to go in overtime.

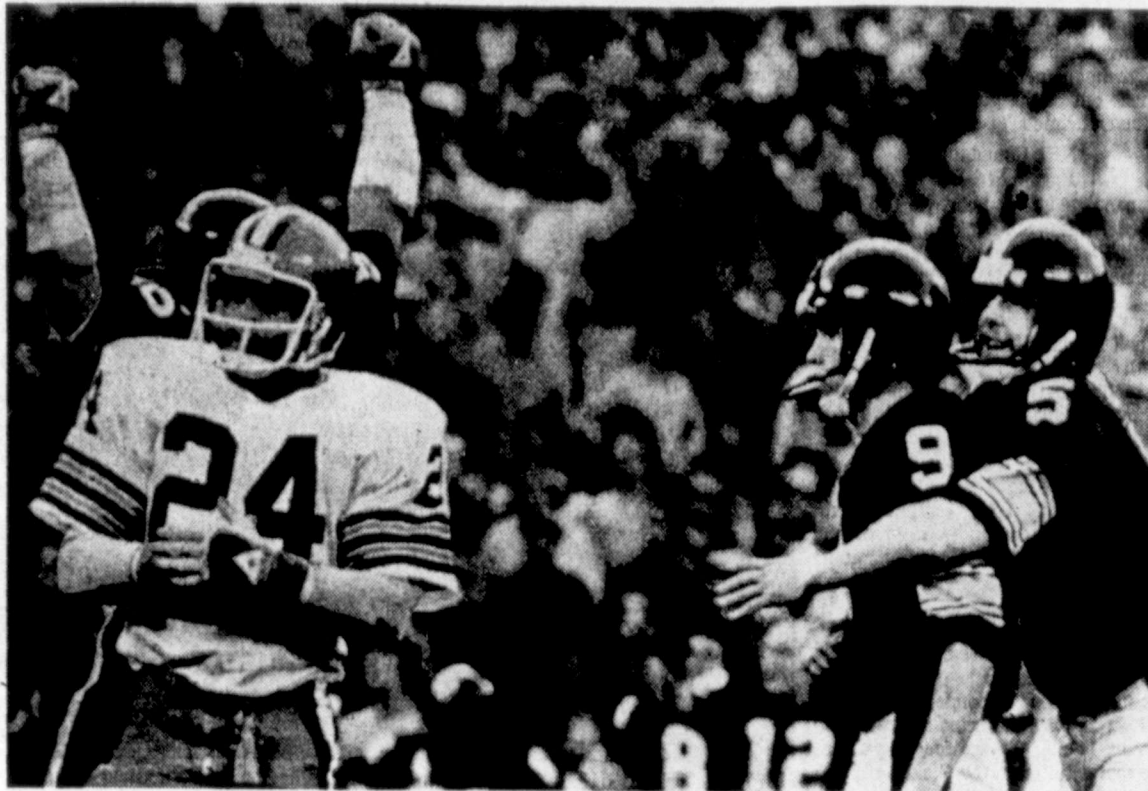

Franco Harris' third touchdown of the game, on a 3-yard run, cut Cleveland's lead to three points and Bahr tied it 24 seconds from the end of the fourth quarter with a 21-yard field goal.

Terry Bradshaw, who completed 30 of 44 passes for 364 yards — all career highs — against Cleveland, scrambled 28 yards from his own 34 on a third-and-10 play to set up Bahr's game-winner.

"They had a man-to-man coverage on and the only guy unaccounted for is the quarterback," Bradshaw said of his key run.

Then, just before the big kick, Bradshaw mentioned something to Bahr. "We try not to put any pressure on him. We just said, 'Miss it and you're cut,'" he laughed.

"We happen to have the best people at blocking kicks," said coach Bud Grant. "It's a contagious thing. If you believe you can block kicks, you will block a lot of kicks."

THE END — Cleveland defender Randy Rich (24) finds little to cheer about, as three Pittsburgh Steelers celebrate their 33-30 overtime victory Sunday. At right, holder Craig Colquitt (5) hugs placekicker Chris Bahr (9) who had just drilled the winning field goal in overtime. And at left, behind Rich, Steeler Robin Cole helps the officials signify the successful kick. (AP Laserphoto)

Vikings 23, Tampa 22

Tampa Bay, a winless team in 1976, had an opportunity to win the first division title of the 1979 season thanks to Chicago's 20-0 loss to Detroit last Thursday.

But Minnesota, whose best weapon may be the blocked kick, employed that tactic to perfection and kept the Bucs from wrapping up the NFC Central crown. The Vikings got their paws on two extra points, a field goal attempt and a punt while Tommy Kramer passed for three TDs and Rick Danmeier kicked three extra points and a field goal.

"We happen to have the best people at blocking kicks," said coach Bud Grant. "It's a contagious thing. If you believe you can block kicks, you will block a lot of kicks."

A week ago, Miami coach Don Shula relegated Bob Griese, to benchwarming duties, handing the starting quarterback job to Don Strook. But when Strook was knocked silly by the Baltimore defense, Griese regained his touch with two TD passes against the Colts.

"I've got to hand it to Griese," Shula said. "After all that happened to him this week, being asked to go in and win, and doing it."

"I told Don when he made the decision, 'I'll do whatever I can to be ready; things can happen,'" Griese recalled. "And when something did happen, I was ready."

RECEIVING—Buffalo: Piccone 5-37, Butler 4-95, New England: Jackson 4-87, Francis 3-37.

Eagles 21, GB 10

While Franco Harris was rushing for 151 yards for Pittsburgh, Leroy Harris was amassing 137 for Philadelphia, 80 of them on a fourth-period jaunt that preceded the Eagles' clinching TD. Ron Jaworski's third scoring pass and second to Harold Carmichael.

"Leroy has feet that go 100 miles an hour and a body that only goes 30, but that was the big play," joked Jaworski.

Dick Vermeil, the Eagles' coach, could afford to smile — for the moment. "It only counts at the end, but it's a great feeling to be No. 1," he said.

MONTREAL (AP) — The Montreal Alouettes won two cars and two airplane tickets Sunday, but Edmonton Eskimos won the Grey Cup for the second year in a row.

In the third consecutive Canadian Football League championship meeting between the two clubs, the Eskimos came away with a 17-9 victory while three Alouettes picked up the cars and plane tickets as individual stars of the game.

Local Boxer Castillo Wins Championship

ALBUQUERQUE (Special) — Gilbert Castillo won a national championship and the Lubbock Warriors boxing club finished second as a team Saturday in the Police Athletic League national tournament here.

Castillo won a unanimous decision over Angelo Pollack of Salt Lake City to win the national 106-107 title. Three other Warrior boxers advanced to the final round, only to lose.

Billy Burt was a runnerup in the 100-junior category, losing a decision to Paul Banke of Tucson, Angelo Castillo lost a decision to Edward Osborne of Sacramento and Joel Amagur lost a split decision to Reno's John Davis in the 132 weight class.

Mario Martinez lost a decision in the semifinals to Albuquerque's Steve Hindi and Domingo Amalia lost a split decision to Joseph Montoya of Las Vegas.

Chargers 28, KC 7

Dan Fouts passed for 350 yards — 19 yards shy of the single-game club record he shares with Tobin Rote — and three touchdown passes as the Chargers, 10-3, battered Kansas City and moved one game ahead of Denver in the AFC West.

"I wasn't aware of the passing figures," said Fouts, who passed for 249 yards in the first half. "The only figure in my mind was 10-3. I'm in the game for one thing — to get to the Super Bowl. The records will come because of our style of play."

Greens Ask $1 Million For Story

FOR YOUR WANT ADS CALL 762-8821

BOSTON (UPI) — The parents of Chad Green say they want a million dollars, not just $100,000, for the story of their little boy who lived an exodus in search of unconventional treatments for the leukemia that finally killed him.

Gerald Green told the Boston Sunday Globe that he and his wife Diana turned down a $100,000 offer from one of the publishers competing for the book rights to the story of their 3-year-old son's fight for leukemia because "it's worth a million."

"It's exhausting trying to keep up with it all," Green said in an interview with the Globe in Hastings, Neb., where the couple has been living since Chad was buried last month.

The Globe also quoted the couple's lawyer, William Ginsburg of Atlanta, as saying money is expected "to roll in by the millions."

A contract negotiator in Ginsburg's office told the newspaper he has a two-page list of sources vying for book and screen rights to the story.

Ginsburg would not disclose how much he was being paid in legal fees, but noted that "what I might get out of this eventually is a book on the legal ramifications of the case."

Chad died Oct. 12 after his parents reportedly decided to cut off the chemotherapy treatments he had been receiving at a Tijuana, Mexico clinic, preferring to treat the boy with the controversial drug Laetrile and a special diet.

The couple has been working in California, promoting a freedom of choice referendum as part of a campaign to legalize Laetrile, the newspaper said.

At the time the Greens left for Mexico, doctors had given the boy an 80 percent chance of being cured by chemotherapy. Laboratory evidence indicated he was in complete remission and virtually cancer-free.

"If the boy remained on chemotherapy, he would be alive today," said Dr.

Julio Selva, a blood specialist at the Tijuana clinic where Chad was treated. Selva said he warned the boy's parents against taking him off the treatments.

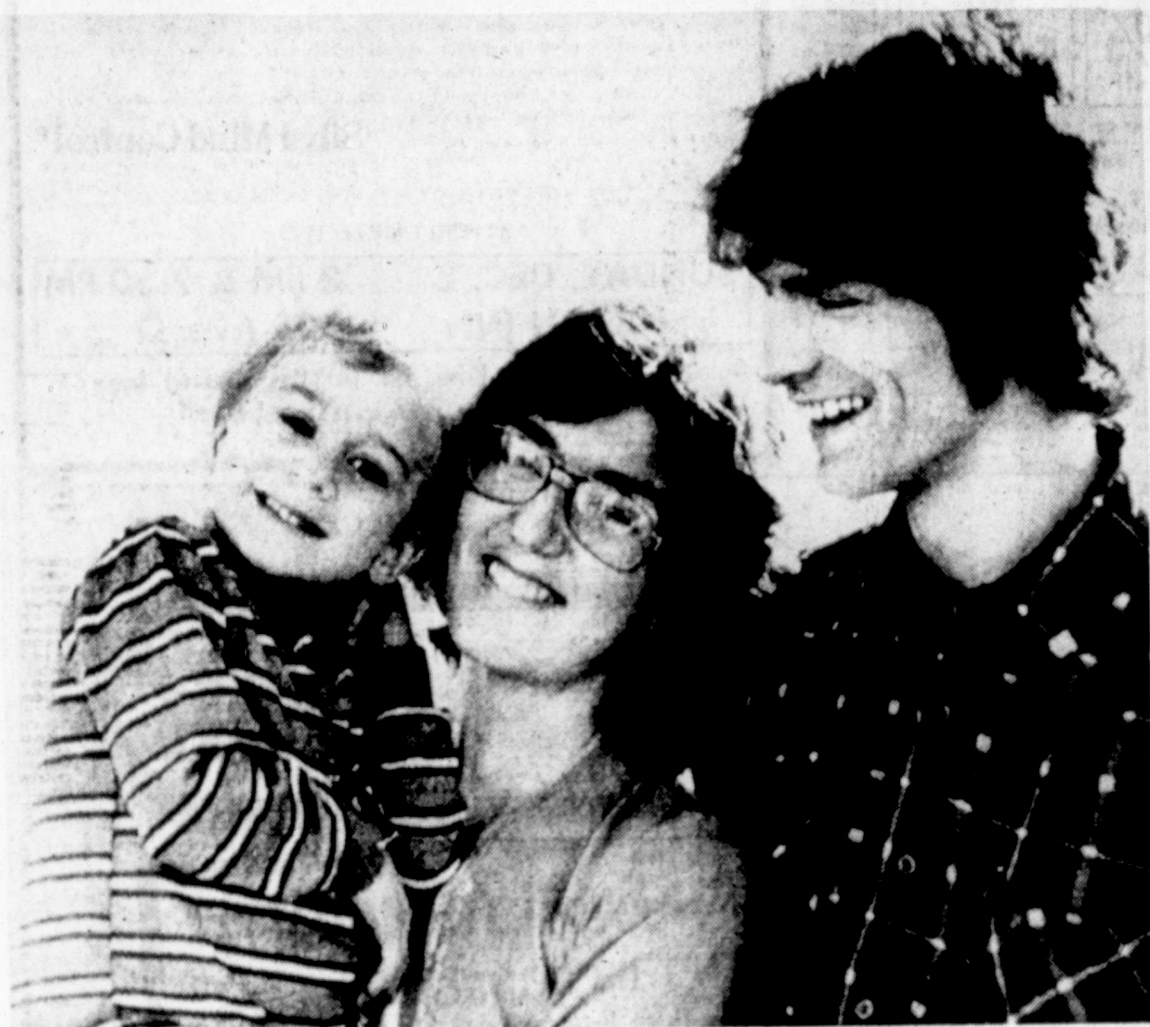

The newspaper said its month-long inquiry revealed Chad was neither as happy nor as healthy during his nine months in Tijuana as the public was led to believe.

A "psychologist" who told a televised press conference the boy died a "psychogenic" death due to homesickness, received his training through correspondence courses at an unaccredited South Carolina institution, the Globe said.

The Greens' contention they were forced into a frugality as fugitives from a rigid medical and legal system is questioned by officials, including Massachusetts Assistant Attorney General Jonathan Brant, who argued the state's case against the Greens in court, the paper said.

The Greens, who say they now have no money, got at least $20,700 from a variety of sources, the newspaper said. One source was quoted as saying the family's Tijuana apartment was "dark and dingy" and "so damp and cold at night they had to use a portable heater."

Poor Handwriting By Doctors Wastes Time Of Employees

CHICAGO (AP) — Medicine men who conversed by smoke signals or drum beats may have had it all over today's physicians, says a study which concludes 50 percent of all orders written by medical specialists require extra time to interpret.

"What effect does the clarity of handwriting have on the effectiveness of communications within the hospital community?" Ask the author of an unsigned article in the Nov. 30 edition of the Journal of the American Medical Association. "The purpose of this study is to indicate that physicians' handwriting causes a considerable waste of hospital employees' time."

The study, which analyzed 47 physicians' handwritten orders in a 500-bed teaching hospital also said 17 percent of the specialists had illegible writing, while 17 percent had barely legible writing, 19 percent fair to average, 34 percent good to very good and 13 percent excellent. The hospital was not identified.

The system used to grade handwriting assigned values of legibility from 1 to 10, with 10 being given to notes that "can be easily read — no extra time required."

"That there is a problem in communication caused by poor handwriting is commonly acknowledged," the report said. "Its actual effect on the cost of medical care can be evaluated in terms of time expended by nurses, secretaries, other physicians, pharmacists, and other personnel."

Fortunately, the study found that "cardiac surgeons, whose patients' conditions after surgery are constantly critical, have a combined writing score of 9.3 — more than double the general surgeons' score of 4.0."

According to the study, one member of the hospital's resident staff, questioned about his ability to read the notes of a doctor with 1-rated handwriting, said, "It's no problem. We can't read them, so we don't try."

"We wait until he comes around again and asks us if such-and-such has been done. Then we know what to order," the resident said.

"Although physicians' poor handwriting has been a traditional joke, there are many physicians who write well — 47 percent according to this study," said the report. "There are emotional and psychological problems involved in approaching the 34 percent of physicians whose writing is illegible or poor to fair."

"Rather than considering this an insoluble problem, I suggest that positive effort be made to understand this as a motivational challenge."

Calling written communication "the legal basis for the hospital practice of medicine," the study pointed out that the bylaws of many hospitals require that illegible signatures be accompanied by a printed version beneath.

Paper Claims Politicians Used Tour Guide Service

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Several congressmen and other politicians used a homosexual "tour guide service" that employed boys as escorts and prostitutes, the Times-Picayune reports.

The newspaper reported Sunday that the tour guide service operated unchecked until 1976, when the tour's organizers were arrested on charges in connection with a Boy Scout sex scandal in eastern New Orleans.

Ray Thomas Woodall, a former scoutmaster who is serving a 75-year prison sentence for his role in the sex scandal, told the newspaper that several politicians used the tour service when they visited the city.

Woodall said he and Robert E. Lang, a committee member of the Scout troop, formed the service in 1973 or 1974. Lang pleaded guilty to a conspiracy charge in the sex case in 1976 and received a suspended sentence.

"There were some congressmen, there was a senator involved," Woodall said in a letter obtained by the newspaper. "Almost the entire hierarchy of one of the states as far as the top political posts (was involved)."

The newspaper said its sources indicated the politicians were not from Louisiana.

Sources in the New Orleans police department said the district attorney's office was aware of the tour guide service.

Woodall said most of the "guides" were adult gays, and not boys.

"The people who answered our ads (for guides) were sure not kiddies," Woodall said. "You're talking about people who would be interested in going to work and making money. We're talking about older fellows."

But Lewis S. Sialle, a former friend of Woodall's who was a state witness in the Boy Scout sex case, said the service moved from using adults to employing boys.

"The service started out using adults, but they began ripping off the customers," Sialle said. "That's when Woodall said we could use the kids. They'll get $50, a good meal and all that jazz. The customers will enjoy themselves and everyone is happy."

The newspaper quoted sources as saying customers normally paid $500 for lodging, meals, entertainment and transportation to and from New Orleans International Airport.

Detectives said they knew of the existence of the service but were not allowed by postal authorities to open mail sent to the service's post office box, the newspaper said.

ice, which was used to escort persons to gay bars and gathering places and even provide them with sex.

But a detective said the service was not investigated in 1977 because many of the defendants in the Boy Scout sex case were convicted of other crimes.

"There was no cover-up or anything like that," the detective said. "We weren't able to develop the evidence to pursue it."

10 MILLION LEPERS
GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — The ancient scourge of leprosy may afflict more than 10 million people around the world, according to World Health Organization experts. While the total of registered cases numbers only 3.6 million, officials believe the figure constitutes only about one-third of the total number of victims. There actually may be 6.5 million cases in Asia, 3.5 million in Africa and 350,000 in the Americas, according to WHO, a Geneva-based United Nations agency.

Residents Of Halfway House Help Others

WILTON MANORS, Fla. (AP) — The mid-morning stillness in the Middle River Trailer Park here was abruptly broken when 12 residents of the Broward County Halfway House, equipped with buckets, brushes and paint, pulled up to No. 2242.

They came to clean and paint the trailer home of Irene Greene, 86, a client of the state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services. Their mission was one of kindness, a gesture of appreciation for the funds and support given the Halfway House by the county and its residents.

"We can't give back the money, but we can help those in need," said Johnny Brown, director of the center, an HRS-funded residential center for delinquents.

He estimates the Halfway House, which houses 25 boys ages 14 through 18, has received $60,000 in contributions from individuals and community groups since it opened in June 1977.

Mrs. Greene, while grateful for the services of the housecleaning crew, was overwhelmed by the 12 youths and their director, a volunteer counselor, a visiting nurse, a reporter, TV cameras and curious neighbors.

"I'm very thankful. I think it's wonderful what they're doing. But I didn't expect an army," she said.

As unfamiliar faces appeared at her windows, scrubbing the glass until it sparkled in the bright sun, and energetic painters covered the dull gray of her trailer with two coats of jade-green enamel, Mrs. Greene spoke of her solitary life in the park.

"I'm alone here. I have no one now," she said. "This park is not what it used to be — neighbors would come by all the time. It's all changed; it's the generation gap, you know."

Mrs. Greene left the Upper West Side of New York City 16 years ago for Florida. She has no regrets. "What would I do there now?"

After a fall four years ago, she no longer walks outside.

"I just sit," she said. "I watch TV, especially the game shows, and I read. I like stories, just stories. I can fantasize. I can dream."

Outside, ladders shifted and brushes slapped heavily against walls to punctuate the noisy chatter.

Talking about the Halfway House, one boy said, "It's okay. You get to see and do a lot. It's a good place to get your head together and teach yourself to deal with society."

"You meet good people there," added another youth, 17. "There are no bars. We have our own rooms and we just got air conditioning. It's a lot better than Okeechobee (a state reform school)."

A blond-haired, blue-eyed boy said he had begun to steal for excitement. He was bored with life in Lauderdale Lakes even though he was earning $230 a week. The center has given him a second chance, he said.

The boys stay at the Halfway House an average of three to six months.

Deaf School Fields Team For Football

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — It's a game of sign language, not of whistles, where crowd noise is no distraction and where players seldom commit offside offenses. It's high-school football as played by the deaf.

The Tennessee School for the Deaf, in Knoxville, has been playing that kind of football since 1894. Nearing the season's end, this year's team boasted a 7-2 record. Four of those victories have come against teams with no hearing-impaired players.

Coach Dan Schaffer says being deaf isn't necessarily a disadvantage in football.

"We're not distracted by our opponents or by crowds," he said. "We're never offside. I think the peripheral vision developed by deaf persons is sharper than that of people who can hear. We coach our players never to move until the ball moves."

The game is the same as any other played on high-school football fields across the nation, Schaffer said.

"Oh, we use sign language, of course. But we tell the officials to treat us like a hearing team — no better or worse. We ask them to go through the motions with their signals, using their whistles. We pass it on to our guys from the sidelines in sign language."

Breaking briskly from the huddle, the team trots up to the scrimmage line where the center leans over the ball.

After getting a slap on his hip pads from the quarterback, the center drops into his offensive stance, the rest of his teammates a second behind.

A few more slaps on the center's leg by the quarterback starts the play in motion, with the offensive line exploding as the ball is snapped and the quarterback handing off or passing.

While a referee whistles the action dead, Schaffer flashes the next play to his quarterback, who repeats it, in sign language, in the huddle.

"We'll have him call it twice to make sure everybody understands it. We don't have any trouble transmitting our plays unless we're playing another deaf team. They sometime steal our signals so we send in the plays by shutting players back and forth."

Schaffer credits much of TSD's current success to the play of quarterback Terrell Garrett, of Memphis. The 6-foot-2 junior was named an Associated Press player of the week for his four-touchdown performance this fall against Tennessee Military Institute.

"It's funny, but he almost quit early this season. He said we were picking on him so he stomped off the field. Here, you know, if you quit one sport you're suspended from all sports for a year."

"He apologized but we still left him behind for the first game. Terrell took the punishment better than anyone I've ever seen and now he's a leader."

In 48 hours you can learn to use your mind to do anything you wish. It has been said that Einstein used only 10% of his mind, and the general public uses only about 3% or 4%. And that's what Silver Mind Control is all about: learning to use more of your mind. There is no limit to how far you can go; there is no limit to what you can do, because there is no limit to the power of your mind. Students report simple things like: fall asleep without drugs and wake up without clocks, relieve nervousness, stop excessive drinking, memorize long lists and improve creativity — to the more sophisticated things like: develop ESP and using dreams to solve problems and to get information.

Handsaw Required For Some Jobs

By ANDY LANG
Associated Press Writer

Power saw or no power saw, there comes a time in the life of every do-it-yourselfer when a handsaw is required.

It is well, therefore, to know how to use a handsaw properly. And if you do not have one in your workshop and intend to get one, you can make a better selection if you know something about the subject.

The size of a saw is determined by the length of the blade in inches, the most popular sizes for ordinary work being 24 and 26 inches. For regular projects, what is called a "fine" saw is best, since it produces smooth, accurate cuts in seasoned wood. When doing a considerable amount of rough cutting, especially with green wood, a "coarse" saw is faster. The more teeth per inch; the finer the saw; the fewer the teeth, the coarser. Those with 8 points per inch are the most popular.

A crosscut saw, as the name implies, cuts across the grain, which is the kind of cutting you usually will do. So, if you want only a single saw, the best bet would be a crosscut that is 26 inches long with 8 points to the inch. A rip saw is needed if you do much cutting with the grain.

When you make a line on the wood where the cut is to be, always cut on the waste side of the line. If you cut exactly on the line, the piece will be too short. This is a good time to remind you of the carpenter's admonition to measure everything twice.

Support the wood well, using sawhorses or clamps or a vise. About 45 degrees is the correct angle between the saw and the work for crosscutting, about 60 degrees for rip sawing. To start a cut, draw the saw towards you a few times, extending your forefinger along the side of the handle for better control. Once the cut has been started, use forward strokes, firmly but without excessive pressure. The crosscut saw will also cut on the back strokes, whereas the rip saw works well only on the forward strokes.

A sharp saw is a safe saw. When there is the slightest sign that the saw is not cutting as smoothly or easily as it did in the past, have it sharpened and, if necessary, reset.

Stock Prices Show Big Increase

NEW YORK (AP) — Indications that the four-month-long run-up in interest rates was almost at an end sent stocks surging on a broad front today.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial issues was ahead 13.06 to 824.83 at noon.

Advancing issues led declines by a tally of better than 6-1 on the New York Stock Exchange.

Money supply figures released after the market closed Friday showed continued steadiness in rise of the nation's basic money supply and a slow down in bank lending.

"There's some hope that interest rates have peaked," said Newton Zinder, an analyst at E.F. Hutton. "There's a feeling that the next change in the prime rate is going to be down."

The NYSE's composite index of its more than 1,500 listed common stocks rose 88 to 60.54. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 2.88 at 226.02.

Big Board volume totaled 21.79 million shares in the first two hours of trading, compared to 11.65 million in the same period Friday.

Among other active issues, Middle States Utilities was up 1/4 to 13 1/2. Occidental Petroleum went 1/4 to 29 1/2. IBM gained 1/2 to 63. Xerox rose 1/4 to 60 1/2. Tesoro Petroleum gained 1/4 to 19 1/2 and Bally went up 1/4 to 34 1/2.

Holly Sugar rose 1/4 to 49. Reports over the weekend said the firm was considering liquidation.

Kennedy Staff Falls Behind

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's presidential campaign operation is in just the sort of disarray one would expect for a candidate who's been in the race less than 20 days.

Despite the buildup by various draft-Kennedy movements, the Massachusetts senator decided relatively recently to challenge Carter for the 1980 Democratic presidential nomination — and it shows.

His campaign machine is still waiting for office furniture to equip the abandoned Cadillac dealership rented as a headquarters.

Kennedy's campaign machine is part old, part new and part lured away from President Carter. Officials say they are scrambling to match Carter's organizational depth.

"It's really catch-up as far as we're concerned," says Philip Bakes, Kennedy's deputy campaign manager.

Bakes said the Kennedy campaign so far has put together a full-time staff of about 60-65, 45 to 50 of them paid.

The Carter-Mondale campaign, with a full-time paid staff of 169, has been hard at work in its Washington office since summer. Carter is expected to announce his re-election bid officially on Dec. 4.

The Carter-Mondale people also have had their share of problems. Robert Strauss is the third director of the still-unnamed campaign.

But Carter's organization already includes 10 state and three regional offices, and about half the staff is working outside Washington.

The Kennedy campaign is lagging, especially outside the capital. But "we're starting to get in fairly good shape" in Iowa, Alabama and New Hampshire, with 26 on the campaign staff, said Bakes.

ing the effort to find out what the situation is."

While there were draft-Kennedy movements in more than half the states, Bakes said most are being phased out as the formal organization moves in.

Still, Kennedy has been successful in raiding the Carter camp for political talent. Prominent defectors include:

— Morris Dees, who was Carter's chief fund-raiser in 1976, now performing a similar role for Kennedy.

— Former Sen. Dick Clark of Iowa, who left his job as the Carter administration's coordinator for refugee programs to take a senior role with Kennedy's campaign.

— Former Wisconsin Gov. Patrick J. Lucely, who quit his Carter-appointed post as ambassador to Mexico to sign on with Kennedy.

Kennedy's top man, his 51-year-old brother-in-law, Stephen Smith, has been involved in Kennedy campaigns since 1958. In 1962, he managed Edward Kennedy's first campaign for the Senate.

Among other Kennedy workers are Peter Edelman, an aide to the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., who is serving as issues director in the 1980 campaign.

Herbert Schmetz, a vice president of Mobil Oil Corp. who worked on the campaigns of John and Robert Kennedy, signed on for six weeks without pay to help set up Ted Kennedy's advertising program. A defender of the oil industry, Schmetz will not advise on energy issues.

Bob Bates, a former Kennedy aide who also worked for Mobil Oil, is serving as a political adviser.

A well-known oil industry critic, former Kennedy aide James Fluegel, has joined the campaign. Fluegel recently was director of a citizens group critical, like Kennedy, of Carter's energy policies.

Bush Keeps Silent On Iranian Crisis

KEENE, N.H. (UPI) — Republican presidential candidate George Bush, launching a two-day swing through this critical early primary state, today told a radio talk show caller he'd risk losing votes before taking any potshots at President Carter's handling of the Iranian situation.

Several of the telephone calls Bush received dealt with the prospects of freeing the hostages in Iran. But the former CIA director steadfastly refused to challenge the president, even when angrily confronted by a man who demanded a firm explanation of Bush's stand on the issue.

"You'll hear plenty about it when this crisis is over," Bush said. "You're not dealing with rationality here. I would put the lives of the hostages ahead of your understanding, at this moment, the intricacies of my foreign policy."

"Sometimes you have to resist the temptation to unload and act more responsibly... I'm not the president of the United States. I would forgo political advantage, even if it means you won't vote for me."

Bush called the Ayatollah Khomeini "a man who simply has no responsibility for the international law you don't want to give him some excuse to line up the hostages and do something."

Parole Hearing Slated For Charles Manson

VACAVILLE, Calif. (UPI) — A parole hearing will be held Tuesday for Charles Manson, who is serving a life sentence for killing actress Sharon Tate and six others in 1969, but it is unlikely he will win his freedom.

Manson, 45, who rarely leaves his cell at the California Medical Facility, will appear before the Community Release Board, but he has said he would not be there.

Another caller angrily told Bush he was sick and tired of the United States being pushed around and asked, "What will Uncle Sam do?" if the hostages are killed.

"If that happens, obviously the United States should act and act in a definitive way to let tyrants around the world know they can't brutalize American citizens."

But Bush told the caller, "You're properly identifying the enormous frustration of the people in this country who are sick and tired of the United States apologizing and kicking around, particularly when it comes to the safety of American citizens."

Bush has made about 30 trips to New Hampshire but is still running far behind former California Gov. Ronald Reagan in the state, which holds its primary on Feb. 26. The strategists say, however, he is slowly gaining ground and has the potential of finishing a strong second to Reagan when the balloting is held.

Bush's campaign strategy remains intact — relying on a strong finish in both the Iowa caucuses in January and the New Hampshire primary to generate national publicity needed to increase his embarrassingly low public name recognition.

Dollar Rises On Markets

LONDON (UPI) — Puffing from a weakness in the yen, the dollar strengthened to its best levels in two years in Tokyo today and it also opened fractionally higher in Europe.

Gold opened $1 up in Zurich at $393.50 an ounce and 25 cents higher in London at $392.75 an ounce.

In Tokyo, the yen is still plagued by fears about Japan's oil imports because of the uncertainty in the Middle East, where Japan gets most of its oil. The dollar closed at its highest levels in 25 months at 249.70 yen, compared with 248.35 last Friday.

The dollar also made modest gains in Europe. In Frankfurt, the dollar opened at 1.7615 marks up from 1.7605 and in Zurich it edged to 1.6587 Swiss francs up from 1.6530. The opening rate in Amsterdam was 1.9680 guilders up from 1.9650.

The only new development in the bizarre case, according to Los Angeles Deputy District Attorney Stephen Kay, came when Manson "slipped up" in his rantings and admitted being in the home of Leo LaBianca when he and his wife, Rosemary, were killed.

"I would go to the desert and talk to the animals," Manson told the panel. At the end of that hearing the board rejected him and said he showed no signs of remorse, and officials said chances were nil of his obtaining a release date this time, either.

Author Harold Robbins Bewildered By Critics

By VERNON SCOTT
HOLLYWOOD (UPI)— Author Harold Robbins has written his 15th consecutive best-selling novel and, as has been the inevitable case since his first book, "Never Love A Stranger" 30 years ago, the critics have bombed him.

The new work, "Memories of Another Day," brims with Robbins' lusty, action-filled adventure, vivid characters and colorful prose.

It will almost surely become a movie or TV miniseries as have so many of his other novels, "The Carpetbaggers," "79 Park Avenue," "The Adventurers," "The Pirate" and "The Betsy."

Robbins lives on a grander scale than even his fictional heroes — an 86-foot yacht in the Mediterranean, a villa on the French Riviera, a condominium in Cannes, a villa in Acapulco and a Beverly Hills estate.

The contrast between the financial success of his books and the critical outrage appears not to bother the author, although surely it must.

Robbins refuses to challenge his literary detractors in favor of kidding them.

Clearly, Robbins can afford to laugh. It is computed that his books (all 15 of them are in bookstores around the world in hard cover, paperback or both) have total annual sales between eight million and 10 million.

The most successful living author today, he shakes his head in wonder at the fire he draws from book reviewers.

"My new book got the usual reviews," he said sardonically. "I could have predicted how they'd read."

"One of them really floored me. It was written by a professor of literature at some small college for a major literary magazine. His review amounted to giving me a lecture on how to write a novel like I was a member of his class."

"I guess I broke every rule he lays down for the students of his fiction class. The inference is, I suppose, if I take his advice I could become a successful novelist."

"What the professor doesn't know is that Huxley College at Oxford has a two-year course on modern American literature. And six weeks of that course is devoted to the study of Harold Robbins."

While Robbins appears not to be bitter about critics who attack him with seeming glee, he can't understand why they also review his personal life style.

He also believes some critics write their reviews without ever reading his books. They review the dust jackets and the flap information.

"Critics serve a purpose," Robbins said. "The world is composed of establishments which need servants. Book critics are the servants of the literary establishment."

"It so happens the great preponderance of the most read critics live and work on the east coast. They look down their noses at western writers and publishers. Indeed the Easterners hold an author in contempt if he doesn't fit their exact idea of form."

"The question is, who do you want to live with? The critics or readers? I don't write for anyone's approval but my own and my reader."

"The ultimate critic is the man who doesn't get a pre-publication copy of your book. He's the guy who goes out and pays cash for a copy."

PBS Stations To Decide Fate Of Challenge To NBC Comedy

By TOM JORY
NEW YORK (AP)— It was a bold attempt to rewrite public TV's definition of humor, but the budget for "Good Grief America" was tiny and the show — if audience reaction means anything — simply was not that funny.

"The budget for this show couldn't have rented Bill Murray's sports jacket," quipped Sean Kelley as he introduced the cast of "Good Grief America" to a college crowd here the other night.

The reference to Murray, star of "Saturday Night Live," was intentional, perhaps a declaration that the Public Broadcasting Service was about to challenge NBC's late-night comedy revue at its own game.

"There's been a lingering feeling among a lot of people at PBS that we should have done a show like 'Saturday Night Live' first," said Barry Chase, PBS' director of current affairs programming. "It's the kind of risk-taking we ought to be doing."

Chase spoke an hour or so before the taping at Yale University's Woolsey Hall.

PBS, a week or so later, had all but decided to shelve the pilot program. But the story does not necessarily end there; PBS stations will vote in the next several weeks on whether to continue the "Good Grief America" project as a series.

"Good Grief America" may never make it to the air. The mere effort was, nonetheless, extraordinary.

PBS, in the first instance, made absolutely no attempt to restrict the content of the show.

"I'm not sure I wanted to define it in general terms," Chase said of PBS' desire — more appropriately, lack of desire — to play censor. "It's like the Supreme Court decision on obscenity; You'll know it when you see it."

"Of course," he said, "if it's not funny."

"As for guidance for the writers," Chase said, "we tried to give them the realistic view, the possibility that a number of public television stations might find it impossible to run the show."

But certainly he did not give them a list of words they could not use.

The writers took that lack of restriction to heart, and the show was peppered with language not normally heard on television, public or otherwise. Even the "Good Grief America" theme, sung by Steve Goodman to the tune of his own "City of New Orleans," might have caused some station managers to balk.

The cast for the pilot — a good part of it, at least — was recognizable to the audience invited to watch public TV "put the sophomore back into college humor."

Most had heard of Goodman, as well as Kelley, a former editor of National Lampoon magazine, and Jamie Widows was familiar as Hoover, the fraternity president in "Animal House."

The cast also included Jeff Greenfield, TV critic for CBS "Sunday Morning" news program; Shelley Barre, who played Rizzo in "Grease" on Broadway; Gary Goodrow, a veteran of more than 30 films, including "Steelyard Blues," and Elaine Pshountas, an actress and singer.

"Good Grief America" was conceived and developed by Larry Shapiro, an independent producer from Montreal, and produced by Connecticut Public Television.

Five Thieves Empty Hotel Safe Deposits

NEW YORK (AP) — Five well-dressed men emptied 10 safe deposit boxes at the posh Mayfair Regent Hotel in a caper reminiscent of thefts at several other luxury Manhattan hotels in recent years.

Police weren't sure how much was taken Sunday. Officers also said they couldn't say whether the Mayfair heist was carried out by the same group that tried to hold up the Carlyle Hotel two years ago or that successfully netted between $2 million and $4 million in valuables from a robbery at the Pierre Hotel.

The bandits held three employees and five guests captive, but no one was injured.

Wall Street Outperforms Money Market Funds

By CHET CURRIER
NEW YORK (AP) — Money market investments are the height of financial fashion in these days of record-high interest rates.

Since the start of the year, investors have poured more than $30 billion into money market mutual funds. Common stock mutual funds, on the other hand, continue to experience a drain of investors' money, and by all accounts the public is turned off by the very idea of stocks.

With all this to go on, one might assume that money market securities such as treasury bills have substantially outperformed the stock market in 1979.

But according to the results of a study of the first nine months of the year issued recently by Salomon Brothers, the large investment banking firm, that assumption would be wrong.

On the basis of total return — price change plus dividend or interest payments, before allowance for taxes and any reinvestment of payouts — Salomon Brothers found that stocks had consistently outpaced debt securities in performance since the start of the year.

Standard & Poor's index of 400 industrial stocks posted a total return of 8.2 percent for the third quarter, and 17.8 percent for the first nine months of the year.

S&P's 500-stock composite index was in the same league, with positive readings of 7.5 percent for the quarter and 17.9 percent for the nine months.

Even the Dow Jones industrial average, consistently one of the laggards among the major market indicators in recent years, showed total return gains of 5.8 percent for the quarter and 13.7 for the nine months.

Compare that to some of the leaders among interest-bearing investments: three-month bank certificates of deposit, plus 2.5 percent for the quarter and 7.7 percent for the nine months, and one-year Treasury bills, up 2.1 percent for the quarter and 8.0 percent for the nine months.

Of course, all these figures don't include what happened in October, when stock prices fell and short-term money market securities plainly made up a lot of ground on them.

And as everyone knows, Treasury bills offer investors the luxury of minimal risk, while stock buyers are exposed to much greater possibility of loss.

Still, the fact that those Salomon Brothers statistics are as surprising as they are suggests that stocks are suffering from an "image problem" that they may not entirely deserve.

A-J Analysis

Writer Praises New Play On Broadway

By JAY SHARBUTT
NEW YORK (AP) — It sounds weird, this play called "Strider." It concerns the life and times of a beat-up, maney, piebald horse in Russia, from his colt days to his old-age execution.

But if you're game for a wry, sad, funny, lively and galloping good show, trot on over to the Helen Hayes Theater, where "Strider" bowed last week after a hit six-month run off-Broadway.

Based on a Leo Tolstoy story, it amply indicates the world of man contains far less decency than that of animals, specifically an animal called Strider, a horse by trade. Gerald Hiken plays the nag.

The show offers ballet, drama, music, comedy of the subtle and sight-gag-time and has a fine 18-member cast alternately playing humans and horses on a simple, but highly effective set.

It opens with a flashback to Strider's last, sad days in a stable, where he's chained to a post. He's a sorry-looking mess, a once-magnificent, swift animal fallen on extremely hard times.

Of thoroughbred lines, he unfortunately was born piebald, mottled in black, brown and grey. Because of his odd coloring, he's an outcast, generally shunned by noble human and equine society alike.

But as the tale shifts to his youth and onward, we learn he has an innate dignity and spirit that survives a roller-coaster of triumph and tragedy that would fella, ah, a human.

As a colt, he clumsily romps about, is told of sex by a dashing yearling pal (Benjamin Hendrickson). But, in a moment of envy, he has an angry go at it with a lovely filly (Pamela Burrell).

Bad move. His owners castrate him. The next day, he mournfully reports, "the whole world was changed before my eyes."

But good times come when a nobleman (Gordon Gould), a handsome, swaggering prince-about-town, unexpectedly buys him, gives him a taste of the good life before discarding him as useless two years later.

Through this chap and others, Strider learns of the occasional goodness but general meanness of two-legged folk making their selfish way in the artificial, destructive world of man.

All this is done with much insight, grace and humor that peaks in a great sight-gag love scene between Gould and Miss Burrell (she at the time plays a lady who deserts him on grounds of no woo.)

You wind up booing humans, cheering Strider and marveling at an amazing cast that during the equine segments is remarkably convincing with their whinnies, prancing and shaking of hand-held tails.

Considerable credit is due the staging and direction of Robert Kalkin and Lynne Gannaway, likewise the fine writing and music of Mark Rozovsky and excellent costumes of Andrew B. Marlay.

Miss Burrell, a long-stemmed beauty if ever, exhibits a wonderful sense of comic timing (dances right well, too). Gould is brilliant and funny, and Hendrickson sparkles, as both horse and human.

As for Gerald Hiken, the star, you can sum up his wry, understated performance thusly: Can't be beat. It's the first time I ever saw a guy playing a horse arrive in win, place and show simultaneously.

Mel Gussow, New York Times — On Broadway, "Strider" remains an artful experiment in the magic of illusion — as well as a play with an uplifting message.

Douglas Watt, New York Daily News — ...as a stage work employing story-theater tactics, "Strider" is surely unusual and of a high order in general. But I kept thinking that were a real horse, or even a rabbit, placed on that stage, it would steal the show paws down.

DR. LAMB

Irregular Beats

By LAWRENCE LAMB
DEAR DR. LAMB — Please tell me what Norpace is and what it does? The doctor says I have "cardiac arrhythmia." I used to get dizzy spells and once I blacked out as I was having a cup of coffee. Also I do feel better with the medicine he gave me.

DEAR READER — Cardiac arrhythmia means some form of abnormal rhythm or beating of the heart. This can be simple sporadic extra beats or irregular beats that some people refer to as their "heart skipping a beat," or attacks of rapid heart action when the heart beats very fast. If it beats fast enough so it's not effective as a pump, it may not pump enough blood to the brain which can cause faintness in some cases.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 6-12 Heart Irregularities, Skipped Beats, Tachycardias. It will give you more information on these common problems of the heart. Some are annoying, some are unnoticed and some can be dangerous. It depends entirely on what causes them. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Norpace is a relatively new medicine that's literally used to calm the excess electrical activity of the heart and helps to prevent irregular beats or cardiac arrhythmia. There are a number of other medicines that are used for this purpose.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Unfortunately, my 19-year-old granddaughter got involved with an illiterate, mentally slow sex maniac. They have been married for two years and have a beautiful, healthy, smart baby boy six months old. When my daughter urged her to take the pill, she said she couldn't. The doctor in the hospital told her she couldn't because she has high blood pressure and sugar. We've been trying to get her to go to Planned Parenthood but she says it won't do any good.

They are good Christian people and want to do the right thing but she's afraid to have more children by this man. He is impossible and wants sex every night and sometimes two or three afternoons a week. They are living with her parents, who cannot afford to feed more. So would you tell us if she can take the pill safely?

DEAR READER — Some women do develop high blood pressure from birth control pills. These women should not use birth control pills under any circumstances.

Of course, I cannot pass an opinion on the status of your granddaughter's marriage or her husband but if there's any reason why the couple does not want or should not have additional children, then there are other forms of birth control. This includes tubal ligation for the woman and vasectomy for the man.

If neither one wishes to have surgery and would like a more temporary method, there's always the IUD which your granddaughter could wear. It doesn't have the same side effects as birth control pills at all and is reportedly just as effective, if not more so, in preventing pregnancy. Your granddaughter could seek help from Planned Parenthood, or she could ask her doctor who could also fit her with an IUD if she needs one. (Newspaper Enterprise Association)

Man Found Guilty In PLO Scheme

NEW YORK (AP) — A federal jury has found an engineer-businessman guilty of trying to smuggle stolen communications equipment to Arab terrorists in the Middle East. Defendant Paul Aljouny of Hempstead faces up to 10 years in prison.

Federal prosecutors contend that Aljouny, born in Hamallah in what was Palestine, was part of a "scheme to set up an independent telecommunications network for the PLO (Palestine Liberation Organization)."

Aljouny was convicted Friday on a charge that involved his transporting as much as $15,000 worth of stolen New York Telephone Co. equipment from the World Trade Center in Manhattan to a Brooklyn pier where it was found by customs agents in April 1978.
