Six Horses Killed In Fire Here

By JACK DOUGLAS

Six quarter horses perished early this morning in a fire that leveled two stables in far north Lubbock and caused thousands of dollars in damage.

By the time the raging blaze was contained about 4 a. m., the only thing left was the ashes of two barns at Red Raider Arena off FM 2641 and the charred remains of six horses and two dogs, which were trapped in one of the barns.

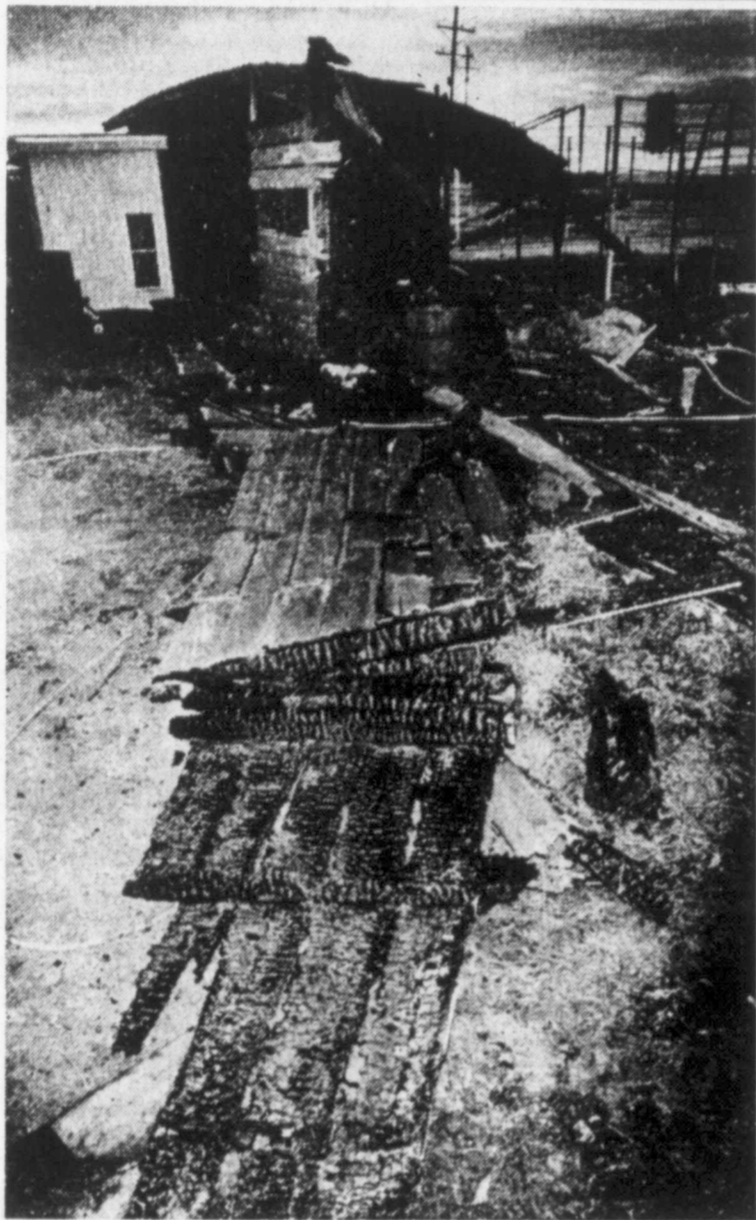

Arena owner John Robertson, who lives with his wife, Zella, next to the stables, said this morning the structure loss alone would reach at least $60,000, and could go much higher.

Robertson said each horse lost in the blaze was valued at between several hundred and several thousand dollars, depending on its breed and whether it was registered. He added that one of the dead horses was worth between $2,500 and $3,000.

Lubbock fire marshal's office investigator Jimmy Vaughn said it appeared one of the horses rubbed against a light switch in the north barn, causing an electrical short. High winds carried the blaze to the other barn, located just a few feet away, according to Robertson.

The Lubbock Fire Department received the fire alarm at 3:13 a. m. By the time firemen arrived at the scene, one of the eight-stall stables had collapsed and the other was completely enveloped in flames, a fire department spokesman said.

The dead animals were trapped in the See BLAZE AT STABLES Page 18

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh said today U.S. hostages will definitely be tried on espionage charges and will be judged personally by their student captors.

The minister, in an interview released by the official Pars news agency, said Iran had now done all it could to defuse the crisis and the next move was up to President Carter.

(Other Iranian Stories

He urged the Soviet Union not to interfere in the confrontation even if the United States launched military attacks against Iran.

"The hostages will definitely be put on trial and the judges will be the Moslem students themselves," the agency quoted the minister as saying.

He said President Carter could personally snap the stalemate by returning the shah, or at the least instituting an investigation into the shah's vast wealth.

The students, who are holding 50 Americans for the 31st day in the U.S. Embassy compound, have angrily rejected reports that several American hostages were being softened up for imminent spy trials.

But they admitted they had been extensively questioned, and the government announced the formation of a new "combat cadre" of thousands of former soldiers to help protect the country from any U.S. attack.

Ironically, while Ghotbzadeh again raised the tempo of the crisis by renewing the threat of spy trials, the country's spiritual and political leader, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, swept toward an overwhelming victory in his drive to turn Iran into a fundamentalist Islamic state — a development that could eventually pave the way for the hostages' release.

Ghotbzadeh's statement was the first that the judges would be the student captives — taken hostage a month ago to the day — are spies. At the same time, Iran formally announced it will no longer accept dollars for its oil.

Spokesmen for the students occupying the embassy said they would soon release more captured embassy documents proving at least some of the hostages were spies, presumably CIA agents.

The captors have released batches of official papers which, they said, proved the embassy was a "nest of spies" and implicated the United States with the shah's regime.

The latest move in the worsening U.S.-Iranian economic crisis came in an announcement from Iran's Central Bank officially asking all oil companies buying local crude oil to pay in currencies other than the dollar.

Late last month, Finance Minister Abol Hassan Bani-Sadr announced Iran would no longer accept U.S. dollars for Iranian crude, but today's announcement officially implemented that policy.

Previous announcements said Tehran would merely prefer payments in the strong West German and Swiss currencies.

The United States has banned imports of Iranian crude oil, so the dollar ban applies to Europe, Japanese and other purchasers.

The official Pars news agency today carried a statement by the captors warning foreign news organizations against giving out "unofficial" reports on the crisis.

The statement, believed issued in response to foreign news reports that some hostages were moved, said such unofficial reports "will be the responsibility of the news organizations concerned."

The militants said they have not issued nor would they issue any statement on the siege to individual news organizations. All statements would be released on official radio or by Pars, they said.

Policies Hit By Kennedy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, his presidential campaign dogged by criticism over his remarks about the deposed Shah of Iran, criticized President Carter's energy and economic policies today.

Noting that inflation is high while the economy appears heading into recession, Kennedy said: "We are headed for a Republican recession in a Democratic administration. Minorities and women who were the last hired will be the first fired."

Addressing a group of women a little more than a hour before Carter was launching his own campaign for re-election, Kennedy, D-Mass., accused the president of failing to deal effectively with inflation.

"The next Democratic administration will vigorously pursue an even-handed policy of wage and price restraint," Kennedy said. "At last, the president of the United States will be the commander-in-chief of the war we have to win — the war on inflation."

While his campaign aides had billed the speech as a "major policy address" on domestic issues, Kennedy appeared to repeat criticisms of Carter's leadership that he has detailed in the month since he announced he would challenge Carter for the 1980 nomination.

Kennedy's audience consisted of about 350 leaders of women's groups that the campaign invited to lunch to hear the senator's remarks.

While the speech was devoted to domestic issues, Kennedy also continued to make clear his position on the exiled shah.

As he had in Reno, Nev., on Monday, he said the country stands united behind Carter in seeking the release of the American hostages in Iran. He also sharply criticized the Iranian government for violating "every principle of international law" in not securing the release of the hostages.

And he also criticized the shah. "Support for the hostages does not mean support for the shah," he said.

It was the Iranian crisis that dominated the last 48 hours of Kennedy's most recent campaign trip.

Political leaders in both parties joined the Carter administration in criticizing Kennedy's decision to describe the shah as a dictator who "ran one of the most violent regimes in the history of mankind."

They suggested Kennedy's action could be interpreted by the militants holding 50 Americans hostage in Tehran as signaling a split among the nation's leaders over the issue of how to deal with Iran.

Kennedy declined to comment late Monday at a campaign stop in Bismark, N.D., when asked about the criticism of his action.

HEW Aids Colleges In Title IX Ruling

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Department of Health, Education and Welfare said today it will require the nation's colleges to either give women athletes their proportional share of scholarships or face federal action for violating a law against sex discrimination.

But HEW Secretary Patricia Roberts Harris, in a major revision to the guidelines previously proposed for a section of law called Title IX, said colleges will not be required to equalize per capita spending on male and female athletic teams.

If 70 percent of a college's athletes are male, they are entitled to 70 percent of the scholarship aid, but women must get 30 percent, she said in remarks prepared for a news conference.

Under the guidelines proposed a year ago by Mrs. Harris' predecessor, Joseph

A. Califano Jr., colleges would have been forced to provide a proportionate share of their total athletic spending for women athletes.

Mrs. Harris said that under her new guidelines, colleges still must "make athletic benefits available in an equitable way" to women, but they need not be identical to the support given men's teams.

She said that in weighing whether a college's athletic program violated Title IX, HEW civil rights investigators will consider such factors as equipment, scheduling of games and practices, travel and per diem expenses, coaching and even the publicity given male and female teams.

Mrs. Harris said the benefits need not be identical for men's and women's teams. But she said: "Colleges that provide new equipment each year for all their male teams and used equipment only for their female teams, for example, violate this standard."

Last year's proposed guidelines touched off a storm of controversy, particularly from colleges with major football programs. HEW's new guidelines will take effect as soon as they are published in the Federal Register.

Mrs. Harris called the new policy interpretation "a sensible, flexible policy that clearly provides colleges and universities with the guidance they requested on how to comply with the athletic provisions of Title IX."

Gold Prices Up; Dollar Rallying

LONDON (AP) — The dollar rallied against most major world currencies today after opening the week with sharp losses, and gold prices kept rising to near-record levels.

Silver also was on the rise amid speculative concern over the Iranian crisis, fear of Middle East tensions and the prospect of sharp oil price increases.

The morning fixing by London's major gold houses was $435 an ounce, up from $431 late Monday. In Zurich, the midday price was $434 dollars, up from $429.

Only once before has gold, a traditional hedge for worried investors, been so high. On Oct. 2 it reached $444 in Zurich in a crisis of confidence over U.S. inflation-fighting policies, before dropping to close at $438 in Zurich and $424 in London.

A Zurich currency dealer said Monday's loss of 1 to 2 cents against several currencies — a reaction to anti-American disorders in the Middle East — was too quick.

He said the dollar had recovered part of its losses without help from European central banks, but that support could be expected if necessary.

In Tokyo, the dollar retreated to 247.70 yen, from 248.85 Monday, without substantial selling pressure from Japan's central bank.

Silver, which has gained nearly $4 during the past week, closed at a record $20.06 an ounce in London Monday, a gain of 99 cents. It was the first time silver ever sold for more than $20 in London.

Silver closed at a record $20.05 an ounce, up $1.23, in New York.

On two things most experts agree: The rush to buy gold — and now silver — is a product of U.S. troubles in Iran, and until the situation is defused prices probably will keep climbing.

Another ingredient is the upcoming meeting of Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries ministers later this month in Venezuela. Prices are expected to go up.

"Chaos in Iran, with the danger of repercussions elsewhere in the Middle East, a sharp oil price rise later in the month, persistent currency instability, particularly in the dollar, are believed to demonstrate gold's attractiveness as a hedge," said the Times of London.

"I think $500 (for gold) is a real possibility by the end of the year," said Richard Kapsch, an analyst for E. F. Hutton Co. in Chicago. "Some people have been talking $600."

In London, analysts said oil-rich states and speculators were switching from dollars to European currencies and precious metals, especially since President Carter's decision to freeze Iranian assets while American hostages are held in Tehran.

Poll Gives Push To Carter's Bid

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, set to announce officially today that he is seeking re-election, has pulled almost even with Sen. Edward M. Kennedy in a new opinion poll.

Carter campaign chief Robert Strauss said he was surprised to see Carter coming on so quickly and suggested that Kennedy has caused himself further political damage by his criticism of Carter's decision to admit the former Shah of Iran to the United States.

Carter was scheduled to announce his candidacy officially in the East Room of the White House this afternoon, then attend a fund-raising dinner at a Washington hotel in the evening. He recorded a five-minute television speech to be broadcast at 7:55 p. m. CST on time purchased from the CBS network.

Aides said Carter might pass up the dinner, however, as an inappropriate outing at a time when the president must necessarily give prime attention to the conflict with Iran.

Earlier in the year, Carter was trailing Kennedy 2-1 in polls of Democratic voters, but an ABC-Louis Harris poll released Monday night showed Carter trailing Kennedy 44 percent to 51 percent among Democratic voters in a head-on race.

The poll showed Carter even closer in a three-way race including Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., of California, the third major contender for the Democratic nomination. In the three-way matchup, the Democrats polled gave Kennedy 44 percent, Carter 40 and Brown 10.

Carter actually was ahead of Kennedy when Democrats were lumped together with independents, who can vote in some Democratic primaries. Among both groups of voters, the poll showed Carter led Kennedy 48 to 46 in a head-on race and 42 to 40 in a three-way race with Brown, who got 11 percent.

Carter's own chief pollster, Patrick Caddell, said the Iran crisis may be inflating the president's approval rating temporarily.

"We're still the underdog," Caddell told reporters.

Strauss, speaking at a news conference at Carter campaign headquarters, said the Iranian situation has helped Carter politically by giving him an opportunity to show himself as steady, cool and decisive in a crisis.

And Strauss predicted Kennedy's attack on the shah had been a political blunder that will cost him votes.

Comedian, Town Feuding

CHICAGO (AP) — Terre Haute, Ind., is the most nowhere place in America, says comedian Steve Martin in the January edition of Playboy magazine.

Terre Haute's response? "Well ex-cuuuuuuuse me!" says Mayor Bill Brighton, quoting one of Martin's best-known lines.

Martin was quoted as saying he thinks Terre Haute, population 70,000, qualifies as America's biggest nowhere because it has "very little Main Street. And literally not a restaurant with any good food."

MARTIN "They say you can always tell that you're somewhere when they have manure ads on TV," Martin added.

"We like manure," responded Brighton in a telephone interview. "Doesn't he understand we raise a lot of corn and soybeans around here?"

Brighton said a number of magazines carried articles in the 1950s and '60s about illicit activities in Terre Haute — activities that perhaps escaped Martin's attention when he was performing in Terre Haute earlier this year.

"They called us Sin City, now they're calling us nowhere. That's a hell of a contrast, isn't it?" Brighton said.

Griddler Gets TV Role

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — New York Giants All Pro linebacker Harry Carson is trading in the turf for bright lights.

Carson, an avid fan of soap operas, will realize a dream-come-true when he appears in an upcoming episode of "One Life to Live."

"I'm going to be a football coach," Carson said. "I guess I have a lot of fans at ABC. They just called and asked if I'd like to appear."

Carson will be taping on Dec. 17, the day after the Giants season ends.

The soap opera appearance is "my dream come true. That and a date with Jayne Kennedy," Carson said, referring to the CBS sportscaster.

Last week, Kennedy and her crew came to Giants Stadium to interview Carson and fellow linebackers Brian Kelley and Brad Van Pelt. Carson was in his glory.

"She shook Brad's hand, she shook Brian's hand and she gave me a kiss," Carson said, patting his face.

Paul Lynde Files Suit

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Comedian Paul Lynde, contending he had not been forced off the "The Hollywood Squares" television show, has filed a $10 million lawsuit against The National Enquirer.

Rebutting statements published in a National Enquirer article last month, Lynde said in the suit filed Monday in Superior Court that he left the television show after 12 years because he felt it was time to move on.

Sinatra Sponsors Benefit Show

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Singer Frank Sinatra will provide the food and the drink as well as the stars for a $1,500-a-plate St. Valentine's Day benefit dinner show in February for Desert Hospital, according to the hospital foundation.

Sinatra spokesman Lee Solters said details haven't been resolved, but that he and hospital representatives would discuss the gala for 900 persons at a meeting Saturday.

Foundation director Roland Knapp said he hopes to pay off the balance of the foundation's $5.6 million pledge to the hospital's building fund.

A Fowl Assignment

PORTLAND, Maine (AP) — Portland police were faced with a fowl assignment when they had to decide what to do with a flock of 50 hens found strutting across a city parking lot at midnight.

The Lighter Side Of Today's News

"I told them to disperse, but they wouldn't," Lt. Michael Wallace, who helped trap the hens against a wall with police cruisers, said Monday.

He then called for the arrest van and went to the Public Works Department garage for two eight-foot lengths of snow fence and a piece of plywood to use as a ramp.

The chickens were corralled up to the paddy wagon, but refused to walk up the ramp. "Three escaped," Wallace said, recalling that one was apprehended by a restaurant employee.

Police then placed the hens in the van and took them to the station, while an officer went home for some chicken feed.

After a meal, the hens were taken to a pen at a holding center where police usually take dogs.

"We have no idea where they came from," Wallace said, adding that a teletype message was sent to area police departments in hopes that the owner will be located to claim his lost flock.

One unidentified police department sent back a teletype ordering a dozen eggs.

Official Warns Census Could Miss Migrants

AUSTIN (AP) — Numerous Texas migrant farmworkers will go uncounted by the 1980 census unless the U.S. Census Bureau changes its ways, a congressional subcommittee has been told.

"A serious undercount will have a devastating economic impact on the already bleak existence of migrant farmworkers," Jose Camacho of Texas Rural Legal Aid said Monday.

Federal dollars for a variety of health, education and job programs for migrants are distributed according to migrant population.

Camacho testified before the U.S. House Subcommittee on Census and Population, which is conducting hearings in several states on ways to make sure the census counts all Americans.

Besides federal funds, fair representation in Congress and the Legislature are at stake in an accurate count.

"The procedures presently set up by the Census Bureau will put us no closer to answering the question of how many migrant workers there are, where they live and what is their social and economic status," Camacho said.

In fact, Leo Estrada, staff assistant to the bureau's deputy director, told the subcommittee next year's census forms don't even show migrant farmworkers as an occupational category.

Camacho said the census should ascertain the permanent residence of migrant workers so their home counties will get credit in distribution of both federal funds and seats in lawmaking bodies.

Problems arise not only because many migrants will have left Texas by census day, April 1, but because census takers often don't know Spanish and are unacquainted with migrant living patterns.

For instance, he said, not all "colonias" — migrant settlements in South Texas — have been identified, "much less mapped," by the government. Camacho said migrants board up their houses when they hit the migrant trail, and a census taker "probably will list these housing units as vacant."

U.S. Rep. William Ford, D-Mich., a subcommittee member, recommended that migrants and minorities apply for census taker jobs in order to get a better count of their neighbors.

He and Rep. Bob Garcia, D-New York, subcommittee chairman, criticized the Census Bureau for failing to list migrant farmworkers as a job category on the standard census form.

Ford said the lack of a common definition of migrant farmworker has enabled federal agencies to use whatever population estimates best fit their dollar and program needs.

U. S. Office Of Education Announces 170 New Grants

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Office of Education announced on Sunday 170 grants totaling $24.3 million to improve education for Indian children and adults.

Nearly $4.4 million went to tribes and Indian-controlled school boards operating 28 schools in a dozen states. Some $14 million was awarded to tribes and other Indian organizations for teacher training, curriculum development, preschool programs and similar projects.

Adult education programs for Indians received $5.9 million.

All the funds were granted under the Indian Education Act. Earlier this year, the government awarded $47 million to local school districts based on the number of Indian children they enroll.

"I have to tell you, honestly, I don't feel the census bureau has fulfilled its obligation at this point," Ford told Estrada.

Garcia gave the Census Bureau three weeks to submit detailed strategies for making sure migrants and minorities are not overlooked in next year's national head count.

Consumers Favoring Darker Colored Cars

DETROIT (AP) — Buyers of compact cars are showing a sharp increase in preference for black and dark blue, according to a study by DuPont's Automotive Finishes Division.

Silver was the most popular color, but black, which had been at the bottom of the color list, jumped to second place in this year's study, chosen by 11.28 percent of buyers. Dark blue was favored by 10.2 percent compared to 6.64 percent in 1976.

Art Groth, manager of color marketing for DuPont, said he isn't sure why buyers are moving away from neutral and tan colors except that they may want more variety.

DR. LAMB

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.
 DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm 65 years old and just retired from the insurance business. Recently I've been getting a dull choking pain above the breastbone, seemingly across both lungs. Could this be a lack of oxygen getting to the lungs? My heart charts show perfect function. Each day I exercise in my basement, skipping, etc., and never experience any pain or shortness of breath. However, as soon as I go outside and begin a normal walk of say 100 yards, the pain starts and varies according to the speed of walking. Occasionally, I feel some pins and needles in my toes and fingers which I understand is due to poor circulation.

DEAR READER — Anybody who has choking, dull pain in the chest should see his physician and have a good medical evaluation. It may or may not be associated with heart disease.

The fact that you have a normal electrocardiogram does not mean that you can't have heart pain. Many people who have intermittent heart pain have perfectly normal electrocardiograms while they are at rest. That's why doctors sometimes have to do more sophisticated tests to find out what's causing the chest discomfort. This might include electrocardiograms taken with exercise or, in certain cases, special X-rays of the coronary arteries to the heart muscle.

Heart pain is not consistent. That's why it's so hard to tell from the story alone in many instances what a person has. If you're having heart pain associated with exertion, it should occur in your basement as well as outside walking.

I am sending you The Health Letter Number 2-10, Heart Attack Myocardial Infarction, Angina Pectoris, so you can have a better idea of the symptoms these problems cause. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Heart attacks do not cause tingling such as pins and needles in the fingers and toes. Overbreathing or hyperventilation may, and it can also cause chest discomfort. Often hyperventilation is associated with anxiety. I wouldn't be surprised if you were anxious in view of having some chest discomfort and not knowing what's causing it.

I note that you live in Canada. In some people, walking in cold weather and particularly into a cold wind will precipitate chest pain from heart disease. Then people who have asthma may not tolerate exertion and cold combined. That may have something to do with the difference in your tolerance to walking outside as opposed to exercising in your basement.

In any case, I would recommend, weight control, not smoking cigarettes, and, most important, seeing your doctor to discuss what your problem is so you can be diagnosed and treated properly.

Economic Disaster Predicted

GREAT BARRINGTON, Mass. (AP) — He told them so.

But they smiled when Col. Edward C. Harwood warned of the perils of inflation. They snickered when he said the dollar would fall. They laughed when he predicted a stampede of investors to gold.

For 50 years, through war and peace, good times and bad, Harwood has doggedly forecast economic disaster. Now, the 79-year-old prophet of doom claims he's about to be vindicated.

"The dollar is going to hell, just as I've said it would all along," he says matter-of-factly. "There's a flight from all the major currencies to gold. If one goes, they all go."

To Harwood, who is about as bullish on gold as Midas was, the soaring price of the glittering metal has been gratifying.

Beginning in 1958, through the stock market boom of the mid-60s, the retired Army colonel's vehemently conservative economic think tank, the American Institute for Economic Research, has recommended that investors stick with gold or gold stocks.

Inflation, says Harwood, has brought the United States government to a bleak crossroads: it can try to save the dollar by constricting the money supply, and cause a depression, or it can print more money and watch the dollar become worthless.

Sooner or later, he warns — and has warned for years — "there'll be a catastrophe. Inflation has resulted in all sorts of economic distortion."

Now, "there has to be a drastic readjustment. People have to get out of businesses that are not economically justified. Capital has to be shifted. That's what happens in a depression."

Harwood says the government should mint coins designated only by weight, allowing "a sound currency to develop along side one that is disintegrating."

Solutions will not come from Washington, and certainly not from the White House, according to Harwood: "I don't believe there's anybody in the world capable of being president, because we've pushed all our problems up to the presidential level. Even if you elected Superman, he couldn't handle them."

Harwood's philosophy is promulgated via 10 million pieces of mail sent to a million addresses a year from the institute's estate on the edge of this Berkshire County town.

The institute's numerous publications are compiled and printed here in a stone manor house staffers call "The Castle." Nearby is the library, which boasted "the largest carpeted room without columns in the United States" when it was built in 1964.

The non-profit organization purchased the 100-acre estate after the original owner, a New York businessman, lost big in the stock market crash of 1929 and had to sell.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL:

Terror Biz Is Booming

ONE BOOM IN international business activity which is causing no joy in the boardroom is the sharply steady spiral of terrorism directed at private corporations and their executives.

Terrorist-inspired murders, kidnappings, bombings, personal assaults and the like are on their way to another record year based on the first three quarters of 1979, according to a study just out from The Conference Board.

By its tally, terrorist incidents nearly tripled in a four-year period between 1975-78, jumping from 572 to 1,511.

The private economic research organization says its figures vary somewhat from those of the State Department and CIA due to different criteria.

Nevertheless, all are in agreement on the upward trend.

FOCUSING ON kidnappings, the study finds that businessmen are far and away the prime terrorist targets.

Businessmen were involved in 55 percent of abductions of American personnel in foreign countries between 1970 and 1978, with diplomats a distant second at 28 percent.

There is a sexist as well as economic tilt to kidnappings. Some 90 percent of victims have been male. Of the few women abducted, about half were daughters of executives who were the real targets of extortion incidents.

The increasing incidence of terrorist kidnappings has been paced by rising ransom demands. In 1978 there were 12 demands for $1 million or more. At the turn of the decade, there had been none that high.

The norm now is in the $5-$10 million range and since 1970 the terrorists' total take has been an estimated $150 million.

IN SELF-DEFENSE, businesses and businessmen operating abroad are using a number of stratagems such as assumed names for travel and hotel reservations, unlisted addresses and telephone numbers, unidentified company vehicles and insurance.

How many firms are utilizing assumed names for insurance purposes is unknown because publicity can in some cases be grounds for cancellation of coverage. But ransom insurance is known to be a growing field with Lloyds of London in the forefront of carriers.

While insurance may be an appropriately businesslike way of minimizing financial losses, it does nothing to resolve the basic problem. But no resolution appears in sight as businessmen try to find a way to give the business, so to speak, to terrorism.

James J. Kilpatrick:

Harassment As Usual At EEOC

WASHINGTON—Perhaps you remember the Datapoint case. That was the case, back in 1978, in which the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission blundered so badly that its errors cost the taxpayers nearly $88,000. Well, the commission has done it again.

This time the commission's boneheaded abuse of the law has cost us $106,000.

These matters are worth a moment of your time. They speak eloquently of the continuing conflict between government on the one hand and the private sector on the other.

Ordinarily it is a one-sided conflict. Few private businesses can stand up to the massive, unlimited power of a federal agency supported by federal funds.

THE GOOD NEWS is that business is beginning to fight back, the bad news is that big government seems oblivious to rebuke.

In the Datapoint case a couple of years ago, the EEOC brought sweeping charges of racial discrimination against a San Antonio firm.

The company spent months preparing its defense, but on the very day of trial, the EEOC's lawyers blandly dropped 90 percent of their charges; then they went to trial so ill prepared that an infuriated district judge found the lawyers guilty of "contumacious behavior."

The court awarded Datapoint $87,890 in legal expenses because of the "groundless, unreasonable, vexatious and frivolous" conduct of the EEOC.

A remarkably similar situation began to develop

10 years ago in Suffolk, Va., a southside town of 10,000 in the state's peanut and hog growing country.

On June 19, 1969, a black woman named Sandra Holland filed a formal charge with the EEOC. She said the Suffolk branch of the American National Bank had discriminated against her in May by hiring a white person to fill a job for which she was qualified.

NOTE THE CHRONOLOGY if you will. In March 1970, the EEOC sent an investigator to Suffolk. In December 1970, the agency's area director issued a preliminary finding of fact.

Nothing further happened until March of 1974, when the commission formally charged the bank with unlawful employment practices at its Suffolk branch.

The bank meanwhile had attempted to ameliorate the charges by citing its affirmative action program at its Portsmouth branch 25 miles away.

More time passed. Sandra Holland declined to file suit in her own behalf. Her complaint had been unimpressive from the outset, partly because she could not establish exactly when she had applied for a job. (Eventually a U.S. district judge would hold that she never had filed an application at Suffolk.)

NEVERTHELESS, EEOC WENT to court in January 1976 with a catchall complaint charging a pattern or practice of discrimination in both Suffolk and Portsmouth.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

 New Hospital Tax?

HAVING DECIDED to spend another $1 million to enlarge the Lubbock County Jail before it is completed, County Commissioners have at least shown that they have a good grasp of the kind of community in which they live.

California Gov. Jerry Brown took offense at Texas Gov. Bill Clements' complaint that Texas is being used as a dumping ground for California nuclear waste.

Brown thought Clements had said "nuclear" rather than nuclear waste and that he was referring to Brown's Presidential campaign.

If you don't believe money talks, you haven't had a repairman out lately to work on your TV set's audio.

CITY COUNCILMEN took the only responsible course open to them in turning aside a request that Quirt Avenue be re-named in honor of the late Rev. Martin Luther King Jr.

Whether their decision to honor the slain civil rights leader by naming the largest lake in the Canyon Lakes project for him will work out satisfactorily remains to be seen.

Their tentative move toward changing the name of Quirt Avenue to something other than the name of an individual needs more study.

"Quirt" is a part of Lubbock's heritage. It has no racial connotations. Cowboys hung a quirt, or riding whip, from their saddles. It was an honorable tool of their trade.

But at least the Council stayed with the ordained policy of not naming streets for individuals.

JOSEPH SOBRAN:

GOP Just Never Quite Arrives

WASHINGTON—Republican is not easy to summarize. Republicans themselves are loath to be pigeonholed. In recent years they have been loath to be identified.

If you ask a man what party he belongs to and he mumbles something you can't understand, you don't have to ask him to speak up. He's a Republican, all right.

It didn't start with Watergate. It started shortly after Abraham Lincoln, the first Republican President.

Lincoln was succeeded by Andrew Johnson, the first Republican President to be impeached. Johnson was succeeded by Ulysses Grant, the first Republican President to be our worst President, the second being Warren Harding.

HARDING WAS SUCCEEDED by Calvin Coolidge, who got out while the getting was good, thereby setting an unheeded example for later Republicans, notably Herbert Hoover, his successor, the first Republican President to be regarded by most Americans as even worse, if possible, than Harding.

The next Republican President was Dwight D. Eisenhower, who took the precaution of not becoming a Republican until he was ready to become President. Though not a truly disastrous President himself, Eisenhower laid the foundation for a full restoration of the Republican tradition by selecting as his Vice President a promising young man named Richard Nixon.

In 1960 Nixon lost the Presidency to John Kennedy when early returns from California and late, nay, posthumous returns from Illinois showed Kennedy ahead. It was shortly after that election that Nixon made his finest presidential decision, namely a decision not to become President.

NIXON WAS FAR from finished. In 1968, the nation still reeling from his decision not to become President, he decided to become President. He never quite achieved his goal of bringing the country together.

Critics—and there were many—charged that Nixon himself had no convictions. He did come close, however, and several of his aides were to earn convictions during what began as his second term.

It appears that after his gallant act of 1960, Nixon and a few subordinates of the overzealous persuasion felt that they had at least a minor burglary coming in return. Nixon became the third Republican President to be our worst President, nearly the second to be impeached, and the first to resign from office.

The Democrats, ever ungrateful, begrudged him even his pardon by Gerald Ford, his successor.

als. It is a policy which treats every group fairly, equally and logically.

In 1948, taxes took 24.2 cents of every dollar, says U.S. Rep. Mickey Edwards, and in 1978 they took 42 cents.

If this trend continues for another 30 years, with the government improving like it has for the last 30, just think what shape we'll be in.

An investment counselor says his stock advice is no.

Ted Kennedy hopes to become President on a platform of brotherly love. That for his brother, Jack.

Chrysler Corp. losing $1 billion a year, is trying to raise money by selling "preferred" stock. If that works, the company might try selling luxury cars to Tibetan monks.

By a vote of 6-3, the Supreme Court held that police making a narcotics raid in a public place may not search all persons who happen to be there for hidden weapons.

In other words, police can't jump the gun unless somebody uses it.

Today's May Bouquet: To Red Raider James Hadnot, for his conference-leading rushing record and his selection as SWC Player of the Year.

Can you imagine what this season would have been like had Hadnot had not the year he had or had Tech had not Hadnot or had opponents had Hadnot?

In Dallas, lawyers were polled to rate judges on how well they do their jobs. Eighty-seven percent approved of the job being done by Judge I.T. Scales, who hasn't been in court for 10 months.

TEACHING HOSPITALS are the latest public bodies to cast hungry eyes in the direction of a sales tax to fill their insatiable appetites for more revenue.

Officials of the hospitals that serve medical schools here and elsewhere in Texas see an increase in the state sales levy as a possible way out of their financial problems.

School officials have been making noises for years about getting onto the sales tax bandwagon. Dallas Mayor Bob Folsom has suggested an additional 3-cent levy to help cities fund more programs.

COUNTY OFFICIALS want in on the act, too. After all, taxpayers scream about a $10 increase in their property taxes but accept a $50 sales tax boost with nary a whimper.

Regional transit authorities like the one in Houston see a 1-cent sales tax as their salvation. Congress is holding hearings on a Value Added Tax, which is a form of sales tax, for the bankrupt federal treasury.

If everybody gets all the sales tax they want, consumers will find the price of the goods being added to the tax instead of the other way around.

Sylvia Porter:
 Mid-40s Not Too Late To Start New Career

WASHINGTON—Unless you believe in economic miracles, you must be on the lookout for a substantial rise in unemployment at all levels—as the credit squeeze takes hold, such basic industries as housing lose momentum, many large as well as small businesses teeter on the edge of bankruptcy and the business slump of 1980 emerges.

If you're among the victims of this deliberately engineered retreat, you may have to turn to an entirely different career.

This will be particularly true if you're in your mid-40s and older, for no matter what the employer offers as an excuse for not hiring you, in this youth-oriented nation, you're "old!"

Also spurring cutbacks at the executive and middle-management levels will be the mergers still sweeping through the nation—for there simply cannot be two treasurers, two executive vice presidents, two chief executive officers, etc.

On TOP OF this, more and more disenchanted top managers have been turning to second careers (or their own businesses) because of too much pressure, too much travel, too much paperwork.

And more and more have been accepting early retirement (as young as age 52 at IBM) to pursue new careers.

Sure, developing and making a success of a second career in mid-life can be tough. But it can be enormously rewarding as well.

But how do you go about developing this second career, or what William Morin, president of Drake-Beam Associates of New York, defines as "career continuation"?

Among Morin's counseling guides:

(1) GET YOUR ACT together. When you lose your job, you are understandably disoriented.

(2) Learn how to market yourself faster. Get your attitude in line with the marketplace.

(3) Learn how to sell yourself. At Drake-Beam, TV is used to show job-hunters how they register in style and appearance on others. Try role-playing with your close friends.

If you are dissatisfied with your work, look at yourself and decide what you want next," observes Jean Clarkson of Catalyst, New York, a pioneering group which provides women with advice on new careers.

She counsels that to get a clear idea of what the market wants and what you have to offer, you must examine your own past successes and look without bias at your own skills.

PROFESSIONALS in counseling on second careers suggest:

If you are seeking a new job instead of becoming an entrepreneur on your own, set your target on specific companies with which you would like to be associated.

Study the firm, ask questions about its operations, its reputation among its employees and customers, etc. Do your research.

Honestly answer questions to yourself on how your qualifications and interests fit in with the needs of your target firm.

Be prepared to sustain yourself and your family for six months to a year. This means cash reserves over and above any you need to finance a business—and the higher your income was from your former job, the larger may be the cash reserves you will need to carry you until you can approach or match your previous income.

Sell your age as an asset! You have a history of experience that can be invaluable in your second career.

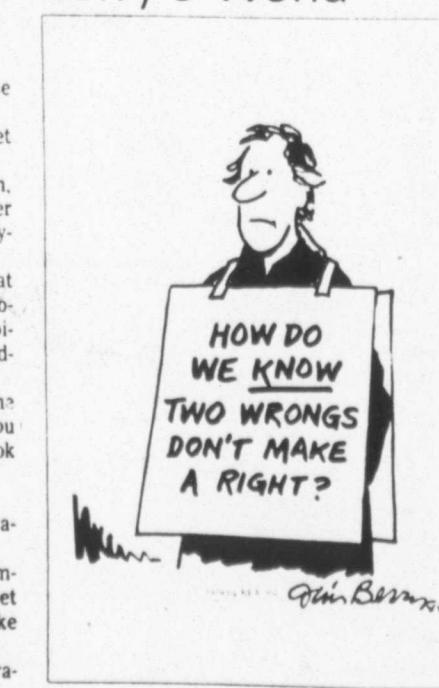

EXPECT THAT IT may take a year or more to become accustomed to a new career, particularly in the middle-ages.

Consider what training you may need for your new worklife—and take what night school and brush-up courses become apparent as helpful, if not essential.

Involve your family in your plans, discuss all the possible consequences, how you may work as a team.

Finally, beware of escapism. Don't rush into a move from a large to a small city, from a cold region to the Sun Belt. These adjustments plus a new career may simply be too much.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

By Bernice Bede Osol

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Just when you think nobody appreciates you, someone important will come along tomorrow to reward you in a most generous fashion. You'll deserve it.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) In dealing with another tomorrow you might have preconceived negative notions as to how this person will react. However, he or she will treat you more fairly than you surmised.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) That little extra effort you may be asked to put out tomorrow workwise is going to pay a larger dividend than you realize. Do your best.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) The chip on the other guy's shoulder isn't very big. With the least amount of effort on your part, you'll have this person purring in no time.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Something in which you're involved will take a positive turn and work out nicer than you anticipated. Your fears are groundless.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) In a matter on which others are not so well informed as you, try not to be too influenced by their opinions. Your views are much more accurate.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Although it may come as a surprise, your checkbook won't be as heavily dented as you assumed. Funds will stretch farther because of some unusual circumstances.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Good things will be happening tomorrow to brighten your outlook and give you a much more optimistic perspective.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Keep your hopes up. Conditions having an influence on your feelings of well-being and security are stirring. They foretell something good.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You'll have much more luck tomorrow if you get others to go along with your ideas rather than going along with theirs. It won't be as difficult as you think.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) A break will come tomorrow from an area you'd least expect, so be patient if at first things look dark. You could be celebrating by evening.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) An irritable situation could spur you to action you wouldn't ordinarily take. It will turn out to be an extremely wise and fortunate course to pursue.

Your Birthday

December 5, 1979

Before the year following your birthday ends, things will have turned out for you in a most fortunate way. Look for the unusual to happen at the most unexpected times.

On this date in history:
In 1942, President Franklin D. Roosevelt ordered liquidation of the WPA, created in 1935 in the depths of the Depression to provide work for the unemployed.

In 1965, America's Gemini 7 space-ship was launched into orbit for a then-record, 14-day voyage around the earth.

In 1974, a chartered airliner carrying 182 Indonesian Moslems on a pilgrimage to Mecca and nine crew members crashed and burned near Colombo, Sri Lanka, killing all aboard.

A thought for the day: First American President George Washington said, "There can be no greater error than to expect or calculate upon favors from nation to nation."

Woman Wins 250 Float Trophies

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Every year she built a winner. Sometimes only one, but usually it was more. Many more.

She was so good at her chosen profession and for so long, in fact, that it is still said here that no one will ever come close to smashing her record, one that is likely to remain intact when the 91st Tournament of Roses Parade passes into history on Jan. 1.

Isabella Coleman, 88, who created an average of three winners each year until her retirement in 1969, has won for her clients an unprecedented 250 major trophies since she began decorating and designing Rose Parade floats in 1904.

The Tournament of Roses Association honored her in 1974 with a one-time special float trophy category, the Isabella Coleman Award for Color Harmony.

Although her creations are now limited to design sketches, she is still enthusiastic about the parades.

"I like to visit the float construction sites every now and then," she says. "It brings back such happy memories. I always used the prettiest roses, the most beautiful flowers, the best of everything."

Much of Mrs. Coleman's life has centered around the annual New Year's Day parade. She was born in the Pasadena area just two years after the first Tournament of Roses Parade.

She spent a few of her childhood years in tropical Hawaii, developing there a lifelong passion for flowers. Her family moved back to the mainland and settled in Pasadena in time for Mrs. Coleman to witness the 1898 parade, her very first. Since then she has never missed one.

"I am still very interested in the parades, but I usually only see them on television now," says Mrs. Coleman.

Mrs. Coleman was bitten by the float-building bug in 1904 as a student attending Pasadena High School. At that time she merely helped decorate the floats, which were not much more than horse-drawn buggies.

"I rode aboard the entry from the Maryland Hotel in the 1909 parade and that whetted my appetite for more," she recalls.

The following year, her father suggested she enter her own float in the parade. Mrs. Coleman, then 18, decided to give her float a special look that would set it apart from the others and won second-prize honors in the carriage division in the process.

"Back then, flowers were simply tied to the carriages and their wheels with string," she says. "I thought it would look better if the flowers were attached in bunches. After all, flowers don't grow in strings, they grow in bunches."

Mrs. Coleman kept entering her designs year after year and kept on winning prizes for them. Her successes led to her first professional contracts. In 1913, the local realty board engaged her to decorate their float. It won first prize in the commercial division.

In 1915, the City of Los Angeles — expecting a man and shocked when they discovered she was a young woman — reluctantly hired her to work on its entry. She covered it with every flower known to grow in California and it won the Sweepstakes Trophy.

In 1925, evangelist Aimee Semple McPherson contracted with Mrs. Coleman to produce a float for Angelus Temple.

From then on, her name was synonymous with float construction.

Her name also is known in parade circles for pioneering many of the contemporary techniques that make the Rose Parade an exciting pageant of animation and color.

During the early '20s, for example, flowers were "woven" onto the float structures — a tedious and time-consuming process. In 1929, Mrs. Coleman hit upon the concept of "pasting" the blossoms instead. This permitted her creations to take on a more realistic, life-like appearance.

The technique of using nutrient vials to preserve stemmed flowers is considered to be her invention, as was the process of cocooning, in which floats are framed with chicken wire before a poly-vinyl skin is added.

Mrs. Coleman also is generally credited with leading the change from horse-power to automobile engine-power. She was responsible for many innovations in engine design, chassis construction and mechanical animation wizardry.

Christmas Is Golden

What better way is there to protect your savings of labor against inflation? Gold has remained a constant storehouse of value for centuries. Although the price of gold can vary, it has tended to retain its value by the only true measure: purchasing power.

Krugerrands are a beautiful and convenient means of buying gold — each coin is exactly one troy ounce of gold. They are relatively easy to exchange for cash since they are universally recognized as one ounce bullion coins.

Parents and Grandparents, at this special time of year, consider a gift of Krugerrands in amounts up to $3,000, not only as a thoughtful display of your affection, but also as a wise gift exclusion for your personal estate.

Various Ideas Given For Gift Wrappings

By SHARI LEWIS
Today, you have a choice. You can use these ideas to make great gift wrappings for "I-made-it-myself" gifts:
Use popcorn, rice, puffed cold cereals, cotton or macaroni — either to put together unusual pictures on the tops of gift boxes or as gifts themselves.
The gift wrapping: Start with a largish box. Cover it with solid color paper (brown wrapping paper is fine).
To make a gift picture: Start by painting the inside of the lid of a big box, or lining with black or colored paper or a piece of fabric.
In either case, here's how to make the picture:
Draw the outline of a design — something easy like a snowman, Christmas tree, star, Santa face or a simplified reindeer. Cut out the outline and paste it on your wrapped package or onto the surface of the inside of your box lid.
For example, if you've drawn a fat snowman, you could cover the inside of your snowman with rubber cement and fill it with popped popcorn. Store-bought pre-popped popcorn is hard to glue because it has oil on it. Pop your own and don't add butter or salt. After your snowman is all puffed out — that is, filled in — glue features and other details to the background or to the popcorn itself.

YESTERDAY'S BRAIN TWISTER: Can you figure out a 10 digit number which:
1—Has a first digit that tells how many zeros there are in the total 10 digit number?
2—Has a second digit which tells how many ones are in the 10 digit number?
3—Has a third digit which tells how many twos are in the 10 digit number?
ANSWER: 6 210,001,000.

Many American Workers Get Four-Day Holidays

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Many American workers will be getting four-day Christmas and New Year's holidays this year, a new survey of personnel executives says.
In addition, nearly half will attend company-sponsored Christmas parties before leaving for the long Christmas weekend, some with a company bonus in their pocket, or turkey or ham in their arms.
The Bureau of National Affairs, a Washington-based private publisher of specialized information, found 66 percent of the more than 200 companies it surveyed planned to give employees Christmas Eve off from work.
The survey included both major firms with more than 1,000 employees and those with small work forces; both in manufacturing and non-manufacturing industries, and some non-business organizations such as health care, education, and state and local governments.
This year Christmas and New Year's Day — both traditional holidays — are on Tuesday. Those employees given Monday off too will have a four-day weekend.
The policy is not as widely accepted for the New Year's holiday, with only 37 percent of the companies giving Dec. 31 as a holiday.
However, nearly one-fifth of those surveyed — 19 percent — are closing operations from Dec. 22 through Jan. 1.

Bill Clayton Considering Gubernatorial Campaign

By JOHNNY HOLMES
Avalanche-Journal Staff

"It may be down the road a bit," but Texas Speaker of the House Bill Clayton is considering running for governor in 1982, he told The Avalanche-Journal at a political reception here Monday.

Making a controversial appearance at a fundraising appreciation reception for freshman State Rep. Nolan "Buzz" Robnett, Clayton said, "I've not decided anything for sure. Let's just say I'm not closing any doors."

Called by many the most powerful man in Texas, the Democrat three-term house speaker raised some political eyebrows by agreeing to come to the reception for the Republican Robnett. His appearance became even more controversial after senior Lubbock City Council member Carolyn Jordan met with him last week to inform him of her plans to run as a Democrat against Robnett in the next election.

"Even though I got a lot of criticism for being here, I'm glad to be here," Clayton told the gathering of about 150 persons at the University City Club, referring to Lubbock County Democratic chairman Madison Sowder's earlier statement that, "I don't think Clayton ought to be at the fund-raiser."

"We're Democrats and Republicans, but more than that, we're all Texans," Clayton told the crowd. "Buzz is a member of the current administration, and as long as we're all working together for the good of West Texas, I'll support the man in office."

Clayton stressed to reporters that his appearance did not constitute an endorsement for Robnett, nor did it mean he opposed Mrs. Jordan's proposed candidacy. "I make no endorsements. I don't want to get involved in this campaign," he said. "I make it my policy to appear at such functions with any incumbents who ask me to."

Mrs. Jordan, an attorney, is opposing Robnett for the District 75-A house seat that encompasses most of west Lubbock.

Although Sowder last week termed Mrs. Jordan "a political moderate," Robnett said, "It's stretching it to call her (Mrs. Jordan) a moderate. She's more liberal than moderate. But this is basically a conservative area, and I think I can better serve the people here."

Robnett welcomed Clayton to the reception, voicing his appreciation for the speaker's support. "I don't really see any difference in ideologies between Clayton and I," he said, defending Clayton's appearance at the reception. "We're both conservatives, we're both working for the people of West Texas, and I really appreciate his being here."

"We raised several thousand dollars here," Robnett continued. "It's a nice way to start off a new campaign. It should be a good race, but I think I can win it."

HSCH Board Passes EMS Radio Proposal

By KIM COBB
Avalanche-Journal Staff

An area-wide Emergency Medical Services operation came closer to completion Monday with the approval of Health Sciences Center Hospital as the regional resource hospital for the system.

County hospital district officials approved the installation of an antenna on the roof of the hospital complex as well as placement of a radio receiver in the Health Sciences emergency room. That receiver will monitor transmissions from ambulances in other counties as they transport patients to Health Sciences.

South Plains Emergency Medical Services representatives first came before the hospital district board in October, requesting space on the district's communications tower at Loop 289 and Southeast Drive. Further study proved the hospital complex to be a better location for the antenna.

Board members were skeptical during the first presentation, questioning whether SPEMS would only provide the hospital with more out-of-county "dumps" or indigent patients. However, SPEMS director Giles McCrary told board members Monday that the communications system would serve to alert them before out-of-county patients arrived at the hospital.

"This will put you in a better position to control those problems," McCrary said. "We have a mish-mash of communications systems, now," he said, describing systems used by various county EMS units.

The new system, scheduled for hook-up in April 1980, will make it possible for the Health Sciences emergency room personnel to maintain contact with ambulance attendants and patients during the drive to Lubbock, and to monitor patients' conditions.

In other action, the board approved a two-year contract with Shared Medical Services for data processing systems at the teaching hospital. The hospital is changing its data processing service — Hospital Management Service — because it is going out of business.

The old system also has been blamed for many of the past billing problems at the hospital.

Hospital employees are scheduled to make the conversion to the new system Jan. 26, provided the Lubbock county commissioners approve the contract in a meeting this morning.

Interim administrator Charles Roberts gave the board what he called good news, saying the hospital had received a two-year accreditation from the Joint Commission on Accreditation. Usually, new facilities are only granted a one-year accreditation certificate.

Board members made a special presentation to former chairman Jack Strong, thanking him for his five years' service for the hospital district.

One of the newest board members, Dub Rushing, told Strong, "In this short time, I admire you for staying five years."

Three To Face Charges In Beating Death

ABILENE (AP) — Three men were on their way back to Abilene from Hobbs, N.M., early today to face murder charges in the beating death of air traffic controller Hubert O. Tobey.

Abilene Justice of the Peace Silas Clark set bond at $1,000 each for William Batte, 19, of Abilene, Clifton Charles Russell, 18, of Abilene, and Michael Mark Wicker, 21, of either Lovington, N.M., or Plains.

Hobbs police said the trio was arrested when a check of the 1974 Lincoln Continental they were driving revealed it was registered to Tobey.

Abilene Police Lt. Jack Dieken and Sgt. K. Z. Bradshaw left Monday night to bring the three men back from Hobbs.

Tobey, 41, apparently was beaten to death with a foot-long rock early Monday, police said. His partially nude body was found behind a house in an undeveloped part of Abilene about 1 a.m. Monday.

A preliminary autopsy report showed Tobey died from blows to the head, a police spokesman said.

Police said the case was similar to the June 8, 1978, death of William Favors, who apparently was beaten with a tire tool in West Abilene.

Favors, 49, of the Dallas suburb of Richardson, was found in a field with his pants around his ankles. Police said Tobey's shirt was pulled up over his head and his shorts were around his ankles.

Tobey's wife had reported him missing when he failed to return to his home in Potosi, just south of Abilene, from his job at Abilene Municipal Airport.

An Abilene policeman said that about midnight, he saw Tobey with another man at a convenience store near the site where his body was found.

Police had said earlier that the other man was a suspect.

The body was found when a caller, receiving no answer at the door, went to the rear of the house.

Iranian Released On $5,000 Bond

Nader Jahromi Sabet, an Iranian student arrested in Lubbock for visa violations, was released on $5,000 bond Monday afternoon.

Sabet had been transferred from Dallas to a Port Isabel detention facility. Lubbock Border Patrol agent Billy Rowe said Monday that he had talked with officials who told him Sabet was in the process of making bond.

Rowe said the bond was posted in the Washington, D.C., office of the Immigration and Naturalization Service. Sabet's brother, who lives in Arlington, Va., is believed to have posted the bond.

Sabet, an 18-year-old engineering student at Texas Tech, was arrested about noon Thursday at his Lubbock apartment after he missed a deportation hearing scheduled for Nov. 27 in Dallas. Sabet, one of the first Iranian students in the state to be arrested for possible deportation, is to be scheduled for another hearing before an administrative judge in Dallas.

Jury Rules Death As Suicide

By JACK DOUGLAS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

SHALLOWATER — A 26-year-old woman, whose decomposed body was found Nov. 17 near Shallowater, died from a self-inflicted gunshot wound to the head, an inquest jury ruled Monday.

After hearing testimony from six witnesses, the jury took five minutes to conclude unanimously that Doris Christy of Shallowater took her own life.

Shallowater Justice of the Peace Dardie Williamson had declined to make a ruling in the death, opting to have the jury, made up of three men and three women, decide the cause of the woman's death.

Testimony from several witnesses, including the dead woman's brother, revealed Mrs. Christy had suffered through several traumatic events in past years, including the deaths of two husbands and a male friend.

First to take the stand Monday was a 13-year-old Shallowater boy, who told jurors he had been jogging in a field about two-tenths of a mile east of here off FM 1294 when he discovered the body.

He said his dog picked up the scent of the woman. Lubbock pathologist John P. Ray, who also testified, said Mrs. Christy appeared to have been dead one to three months.

The boy said he found the victim in a clump of high weeds under a piece of farm machinery. Testimony indicated a 22-magnum revolver was resting under the woman's head.

Dr. Ray said he could not conclude whether Mrs. Christy's death was the result of a homicide, accident or a self-inflicted injury. He added, however, "Of the three, I would favor suicide."

Ray said deterioration of the woman's body hampered the autopsy. He said his examination revealed a gunshot exit wound in the upper left portion of Mrs. Christy's skull. Ray said it appeared the entry wound appeared to be at the roof of the woman's mouth.

The pathologist told jurors metal fragments found in the woman's skull were "consistent to that of a bullet."

Lubbock County Sheriff's Deputy Don Gass, the last to testify, said one spent bullet and five live rounds were found in the chamber of the gun under Mrs. Christy's head.

Gass said the victim's reflexes after she suffered the fatal wound could easily account for the location of the revolver.

Testimony revealed a former husband and a male friend of Mrs. Christy's had been killed in separate shootings and that another husband died of a heart attack about two weeks before she was reported missing Sept. 1.

Explosion At Oil Tank Farm Forces Evacuation Of Area

TORRANCE, Calif. (UPI) — About 200 people were evacuated today from the area of a Mobil Oil tank farm where a fiery explosion Monday night killed one worker, injured at least three other people.

At first fire officials declared the fire extinguished late Monday night, but accumulated fumes flashed over into flames shortly before 2 a.m. PST and by dawn the fire was burning out of control.

Torrance police began evacuating nearby residents shortly after 3 a.m. for fear the blaze might spread to other storage tanks. The Red Cross set up a temporary shelter at the Torrance Recreation Center. A spokesman said the center was prepared to care for about 200 persons.

More than 50 firefighters blanketed the area with a smothering foam while others trained water nozzles on several other huge petroleum tanks to keep them cool. There were six 800,000-gallon storage tanks in the immediate area.

Smoke billowed from the blazing tank and flames, visible for miles, licked hundreds of feet into the air.

Initially, fire officials said the flaming petroleum may "burn for days," but the fire was out outside the tank by midnight.

However, at 1:50 a.m. PST, as three firefighters tried to put out one of those small fires, accumulated vapors atop the tank flashed, setting the fuel on fire again, fire officials said.

The fire was confined to just the one storage tank. The flames singed the hair of the three men and one reported a slight back injury.

Authorities said there was no immediate danger to the homes near the refinery, but fire officials suggested residents may want to evacuate in case the fire spread to other storage tanks.

The explosion rocked a wide area shortly after 6:05 p.m., splattering an oily substance for a half-mile. The concussion could be felt for several miles and the flames were seen from 20 miles away.

"It just swept out like a big gust of wind," one witness said. "The flames shot out and up for 100 yards."

The explosion, so intense that nearby utility poles and power lines were set ablaze, caused a widespread blackout in Torrance and parts of the Palos Verdes Peninsula area.

The charred body of a Mobil employee, later identified as Robert Forest Mackinga, 57, Hawthorne, was found shortly after the explosion.

Two other workers, Richard Love, 50, of Torrance, and Margarito Perez, 40, of Lawndale, were hospitalized. Love was in the intensive care unit at Torrance Memorial Hospital with third-degree burns. Perez was treated for smoke inhalation.

Shooting Suspect Called 'No Threat To Society'

MEQUON, Wis. (AP) — A 19-year-old man who died with a police chief in a shootout had been arrested in a sexual assault case but then freed on bail after assuring a judge he was "not a threat to society."

Court records revealed that Anthony T. Johnson, son of Milwaukee police officer Bobby Johnson, had been sent to a drug treatment center by the judge, but ran away within two days.

Johnson died in a gun battle Sunday along with Mequon Police Chief Thomas Buntrock, 42, in Buntrock's car. The chief had exchanged himself for a man and a child whom Johnson had taken hostage.

Johnson had been pursued by Ozaukee County authorities to this Milwaukee suburb following a Thiensville service station holdup, authorities said.

Police said after Buntrock traded himself for the hostages, Johnson got into the back seat of the chief's car and ordered him to drive, but the vehicle was stopped at a roadblock and surrounded by patrol cars.

A series of shots rang out, but police said they did not know who fired first. Moments later, both men were dead. Police said Johnson was hit six or seven times in the head. Buntrock was hit once or twice.

On Sept. 19, Johnson pleaded guilty to first-degree sexual assault and was sent to Winnebago Mental Health Institute for examination. Bail was set at $10,000.

Dear Abby,

DEAR ABBY: I have a childless neighbor who loves kids and is a wonderful friend. On a moment's notice Shirley will gladly look after my brood. (I have three, ages two, four and five.) So what's my problem? Shirley's language is unreal. She can't utter two sentences without including half dozen dirty words. I'm sure she doesn't realize how often she uses those words; it's just automatic with her.

After being around Shirley for a while yesterday, my four-year-old came up with a real mind-blower. When I told him that was a "bad" word and he shouldn't use it again, he said, "Well, Aunt Shirley uses it all the time, so why can't I?"

Now, Abby, I wouldn't hurt Shirley's feelings for the world because she is really a wonderful friend and has a heart of gold, but her language is something else. Is there a solution? Don't suggest I keep my kids away from her. I can't.

FRIENDLY NEIGHBOR

DEAR NEIGHBOR: I doubt if you would "hurt" Shirley if you asked her to try to watch her language in front of the kids. (I also doubt if it would do much good, but it's worth a try.) Just tell your kids it's not nice to use "bad" words. And let them know that there are some "good" people who use "bad" words, and Aunt Shirley is one of them.

DEAR ABBY: Our beautiful, 20-year-old daughter is about to marry a fine, high-principled man who recently moved to this rather small town. The young man has a strict religious background and is as strait-laced as anyone we've ever known. I'm sure if he knew about our daughter's past, and that she has already lied to him about her virginity, he would have been long gone.

My husband and I love our daughter and want her to be happy, but we feel she should be honest with her fiancé — and admit that she has made some mistakes. We feel that this is not only the honorable thing to do, but it could save her and her husband some serious problems in the future.

Many of the people in this town know that our daughter had a very bad reputation in her teens, and since she plans to live here after her marriage, her chances of being able to hide her past are nil.

Abby, she reads your column every day and says you advocate withholding the truth in a situation such as this. If you do, forget this letter; if you agree with us, please answer this in your column soon.

TROUBLED MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: I agree that your daughter should confess that he is not the first man in her life. To lie about this would be a serious mistake. How many others, and the details, however, need not be part of the confession. If it is going to make a difference in the way the young man feels about her, she's wise to tell him now.

DEAR ABBY: Charlie and I have been married for nine years. We have eight kids. (No twins.) He just told me that he is trying to think up some minor crime to commit so they'll lock him up.

Charlie isn't a violent man, but he's threatening to hit a policeman or throw a brick through somebody's window, so they'll arrest him and take him to jail. He says the noise around this house is driving him crazy.

Abby, I can't gag the kids. Besides I didn't have them alone, and if I can stand them, so can he.

Charlie says he's fed up with me and the kids and married life, and the only place for him is in a nice quiet jail where nobody can bother him. Help me.

CHARLIE'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: I've heard of men trying to break OUT of jail, but never INTO one. If Charlie is joking — laugh. If he's serious, you'd better get him to a doctor to have his head examined.

Auxiliary Opens New Gift Shop

The West Texas Hospital Auxiliary realized a goal Monday when they celebrated the opening of their new gift shop.

The shop, located in the lobby of the hospital, will feature many kinds of gift items, including plants, flowers and articles made by auxiliary members.

Since its organization in Oct. 1976, the auxiliary has contributed a great deal to the hospital — not only in service hours, which now total more than 20,000, but in gifts of equipment and scholarships.

These gifts include a Resuscitator-CR mannequin, a chronological input apparatus for the WTH lab, a Life Pack III portable heart monitor and defibrillator for the emergency room, four LVN scholarships over a period of two years, an isolator, cardiac and apnea monitors and a "Choking Charlie" for teaching the Heimlich Maneuver.

The organization has grown from an original 16 members to 34 members. Officers of the group are: Margie Bozeman, president; Connie Teague, secretary; Betty Morris, administrative vice president; Jo Johnson, second vice president; Lorene Meyers, treasurer, and Joyce Strouth, gift shop chairman.

Recent Meeting Provided Advice, Encouragement To Career Women

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
UPI Health Editor

Talked tenderly to yourself lately? Have you rolled your head or rowed an imaginary boat while waiting in line, say, at the bank, at the checkout counter, for a bus? Formed a really supportive friendship with another woman? Said nuts to housework? My dear, if you answered "no" four times you're not likely to succeed in a career — And might even flunk a lot of other things as you wobble through life. Before you toss a people-sized butterfly net at me, hear this:

These questions are based on recommendations from perfectly sane authorities who shared secrets with several hundred career women assembled at the Ford Foundation the other day. They all were high-priced experts and included two psychologists, a heart doctor, a career development dean.

To buy 15 minutes of time from any one of them would cost big bucks. But women attending got 2½ hours of advice for just $5 — paid to the non-profit Business and Professional Women's Foundation.

The BPWF and Clairol Living Care Scholarship fund for women over 30 sponsored the event.

What about those questions at the top?

Well, first, you've got to like and love yourself and talk tenderly to yourself or else you can't like, love, or talk tenderly to others, which is necessary to succeed, according to Dr. Penelope Russianoff.

The psychologist, in private practice, teaches at the New School for Social Research. You may have seen her in the movies — she turned actress to play the psychiatrist in the film "An Unmarried Woman."

Tall, lean and with a delivery sometimes reminiscent of a comedienne, Russianoff wanted everyone to know she's 62, plays life for all it's worth and gulps a liquid lunch with vitamins and minerals every morning.

She also made the pitch about women needing "the wonderful companionship of other women" — supportive friendship.

"Lots of men are jealous of good female friendships," she said (but her husband isn't among them, she says).

Men who are jealous should get over that, she suggested. They can't be the kind of a friend to wife or sweetheart that another woman can be.

Dr. Russianoff warned against "getting hung up on homophobia" — fear of homosexuality — in a female friendship network that she figures is a vital component of success.

"The notion that closeness and intimacy always includes sex is erroneous but rampant in our society," she said.

Exercise — any time, any place — was part of success advancing and stress-reduction tips from Dr. Rosalind Forbes, psychologist. She's shown more than 50 blue chip corporations how to channel stress into a positive management force.

She demonstrated, first asking the audience of business women of various ages to stand. Then she had each one shake hands with the persons on either side.

Giggles accompanied the handshaking as the perfectly dressed career women faced one another, amazed to see almost dressed-alikes.

The uniform for the day was variations of the uniform for the times: blazer, skirt, shirt. Or man-tailored suit with vest, featuring skirt instead of pants.

Dr. Forbes said it's important to read handshakes and that if a hand is clammy or limp it would indicate the person is scared or unsure.

If you read handshakes and other body language in people you deal with, you can get a handle on stress in the situation, according to the psychologist — and that can be to your advantage.

Next, Dr. Forbes had all these impeccably groomed females stand on their toes and reach for the ceiling, loosening their muscles and stretching out.

A good way to reduce stress, anytime, she noted. The career women, as well as other women and men also, miss many opportunities a day to do little exercises that keep them from being tensed up — nerves, tendons, ligaments just one bundle of stress.

She said good times for the reaching exercise, and other mini-exercises subsequently demonstrated, are all around.

for example: while waiting in line at the supermarket, bank or any place; in the office while waiting for a phone call to go through or while waiting for a messenger.

— The head-roller. Drop chin to chest and slowly rotate head to the left shoulder, stretching neck muscles on the right. Then keep rolling it, making a full circle — ever so slowly. The muscles on the left stretch when the head's circling to the right.

— Standing, reach for the middle of your back, going over the shoulder with your left hand and arm. At the same time, try with the right hand, going behind the back, to make fingertips of right and left hand reach. This gets rid of a lot of tightness and tension carried in the back, shoulders and arms.

— Standing or sitting. Arms straight out in front, then starting rowing an imaginary boat. Row forward. Row backward. Row with one oar. On the right. On the left. Make the boat go in a circle. Great tension releasing exercises for shoulders, back, arms.

The little exercises for any time, any place are next best to a massage, especially the headrolling one, according to Dr. Forbes.

"We build a lot of tension in our bodies," she said.

"And we lose contact with our bodies as we tote this stress overload around."

And she noted that a stress overload is a roadblock on the road to success.

Dr. Forbes said stress comes in three types: Under-stress — Too little, that is; regular — the kind that keeps you keyed up and full of zest; stress overload — that kind that burns out physical, mental, emotional circuitry.

The best kind is regular stress, panelists agreed. Too little stress is almost as dangerous as too much, by the way.

The experts agreed trouble's ahead when a person in a career gets too little stress in a career. Next comes boredom, followed by absenteeism, followed by booze and pills — Maybe both.

And there's no sex difference either when it comes to reaction to under-stress, regular stress or over stress.

It happens to men the same way it happens to women, according to Dr. Stephen Slaton Scheidt, heart doctor at New York Hospital and Assistant Dean at Cornell University Medical College.

Scheidt said men and women with a stress overload can develop physical illness.

"If you have symptoms or feel fatigued all the time, make reasonably certain there's no organic disease," he said.

"Ask a doctor friend at a cocktail party, read the Merck manual (a book of how-to-doctor and read a lot by a lot of doctors), ask a friend.

"As a last resort, see a doctor and if the trouble is stress related, he might suggest a change of lifestyle."

Scheidt said figures showing women see doctors more often than men do, go to the hospital more often, are misleading.

When you subtract the hospital admissions and doctor visits for pregnancy, women really aren't heavier users of doctors or hospitals, he noted.

Now, for the best part — nuts to housework.

Something has got to give when a woman in a career, brought up to be perfect in all things, finds she can't be Mrs. Wonderful all the time, according to Dr. Marcia Fox.

The assistant dean of career development and job placement at New York University's Graduate School of Public Administration got the most rousing response from the audience when she said in her life housework is what gives.

Apparently, when it comes to the "nuts to housework" bunch, she's a master.

"A television crew is coming to tape my daughter, two, and us at a typical breakfast tomorrow morning at 8," she said.

The bidding:
North East South West
1 ♦ Pass 2 NT Pass
3 NT Pass Pass Pass
Opening lead: Five of ♠.

The opening lead is, quite often, a shot in the dark. It is then incumbent on third hand to advise partner on whether the attack has struck pay dirt or whether a shift would be more attractive. That is the time to free your mind from the old bromides and use your intelligence instead.

The bidding was simple enough. With so much of his strength in his short suits, North could see no better contract than three no trump, so he did not waste time making a bid that might lead his partner astray. West made his normal lead of his fourth-best heart, and dummy, perforce, won the ace.

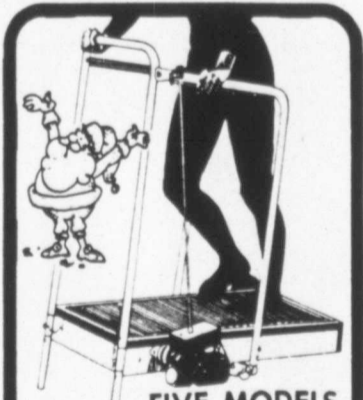

"Never signal with an honor" is one of those shibboleths, so East contributed the seven, which seemed high enough to encourage his partner to continue. Declarer crossed to his hand with the king of clubs and took the finesse. East was in with the queen. He cashed the king of hearts and continued with the jack, but whether West overtook or not, the contract was safe.

Proper play by East at trick one would have defeated the contract. He should have followed with the jack of hearts, not the seven. True, this runs counter to the adage but it is winning bridge.

In the first place, playing the lowest card you hold can never be a come-on signal. Even an eight or a nine could be a discouraging card if you hold nothing lower. More importantly, following with the jack could not possibly cost on this hand!

If South holds the queen, he is always entitled to a second heart trick. If West holds both the queen and ten, the play will make no difference. If South holds the ten-nine guarded twice, the defense is again helpless. But if South holds the ten and West the queen-nine, it is essential to unblock.

When a play cannot possibly lose and might gain, it is obviously correct to discard the axioms set forth in the textbooks and make that play!

Dr. Fox said she resolved that morning not to clear the domicile of its usual clutter. But she would excavate the dining room table. She had to do that to get three places for the filming.

Her message: don't feel guilty and get a stress overload about being a punk housekeeper.

No one can be perfect in all things, she reminded. You have to make tradeoffs.

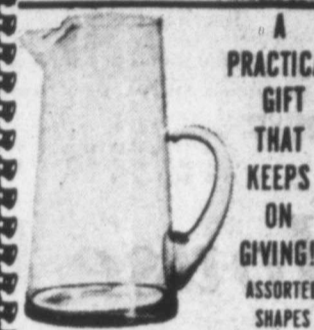

And trading off housework — Well, that suits a lot of career women, including herself, just fine, according to Dr. Fox.

I don't know about you.
But Dr. Fox can count me in!

Grain Futures

CHICAGO (AP) — Grain and soybeans drifted lower Monday in trading marked by large-scale selling by brokerage houses.

Sales of wheat by two major brokerage houses apparently were for commercial customers, and traders speculated that a major exporter may be selling the wheat it has stored in Chicago, an analyst said.

Illinois Woman Held In City Murder Plot

By KAY BELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff
A Chicago woman, who along with her husband is accused of offering a "hit man" $150,000 to travel to Lubbock and kill her son-in-law, was in the custody of Illinois State Police Monday afternoon.

But, Ann Riffner Mraovic, 69, plans to fight extradition to Lubbock to face a charge of capital (murder) solicitation, according to Criminal District Attorney John Montford.

Montford said he received a call from Illinois law officers saying they had arrested Mrs. Mraovic at her Chicago home about 2:30 p.m. Monday. Montford said he was told Mrs. Mraovic has hired an attorney and plans to fight efforts to have her brought to Lubbock County for arraignment and trial.

Monday morning, Mrs. Mraovic's 41-year-old husband, Vaso V., was arraigned on a capital solicitation charge before Justice of the Peace Charles Smith. Mraovic remains in Lubbock County Jail on the $250,000 bond set by Smith.

The third member of the local "murder for hire" triangle, alleged "hit man" Mohammed Y. Owaynat, also appeared in Smith's court Monday for the setting of a $25,000 material witness bond.

However, the 35-year-old Owaynat, a

Jordanian living in Chicago, was released on his own recognizance. Sources told The Avalanche-Journal that Owaynat, a self-employed businessman, cooperated with Lubbock authorities in their investigation of the alleged murder scheme, a capital felony carrying a life imprisonment or death sentence upon conviction.

Officials from the district attorney's office and members of the Texas Rangers arrested Mraovic shortly before 9 a.m. Saturday after he allegedly paid Owaynat $3,500 to purchase a gun and silencer to kill Lubbockite Arthur Boldt.

Owaynat reportedly contacted Boldt upon arrival in Lubbock last week and told him about the contract.

Boldt, owner of the McDonald's Restaurant franchise here, was married to Mrs. Mraovic's daughter, Lillian. Authorities here say disputes over the late Mrs. Boldt's will apparently prompted the "contract" on Boldt.

In addition to watching the exchange of cash between Mraovic and Owaynat at the Holiday Inn, 66th Street and Avenue H, sources told The A-J that Owaynat was wearing hidden electronic devices during the meeting, allowing investigators to listen to the two men's conversation.

Following Mraovic's arrest at the motel, authorities said they discovered he was carrying about $27,000 in addition to the cash he gave Owaynat. Owaynat was paid $5,000 by the Mraovics in Chicago for the job and was to have collected the rest upon completion of the contract, officials said.

Federal investigators have been advised of the case because residents of two separate states are involved, a spokesman for the district attorney's office said. But Monday afternoon, Bernie Brown, resident agent in charge of the Lubbock FBI office, said no federal charges are expected to be filed against the Mraovics.

"Since state charges have been filed," Brown said, "that's where we'll leave the matter."

The will of Boldt's late wife apparently was the motive behind the alleged murder solicitation plan, investigators say.

Woman's Injuries Minor In Fall From Vehicle

Lubbock police officer Jeff Gossett was on routine patrol about 11:15 p.m. Monday when he saw a woman clinging onto the hood of a car traveling east on Fourth Street.

Gossett, in his report, said he began pursuit of the car, and that the driver skidded to a stop at Fourth Street and Avenue R, causing the woman on the hood to be thrown on the ground.

The person atop the vehicle, an 18-year-old Lubbock woman, was taken to West Texas Hospital, where she was treated for minor injuries and released.

Reports indicate after the woman was flung from the vehicle, the motorist backed up and continued east on Fourth Street, turning south on Avenue Q.

Gossett said he was able to stop the car on Avenue Q and question the driver, a 20-year-old Lubbock woman. However, reports did not indicate whether the driver was arrested.

Nor did the report say why the victim wound up on the hood of the 1972 Monte Carlo.

In other activity, two men were taken into custody about 2:15 a.m. today after one of them allegedly stuck a .22-caliber rifle in the face of an employee of a club in the 1800-block of Clovis Road.

Both suspects, ages 17 and 21, were apprehended in their car at a shopping mall at Fourth Street and Quirt Avenue. They were taken to the county jail and booked on suspicion of aggravated assault.

The older man allegedly pointed the rifle at the club employee after the suspect was ordered to leave the nightspot. Reports indicate the man's companion managed to get the armed suspect into a car and both fled the scene.

A rifle was confiscated from the suspects' vehicle, according to police.

Ron M. Paschal, 37, of 2414 Ninth St. told police he was lured to a party in the 300-block of Vernon Avenue about 5 p.m. Monday and then robbed of $240 cash and a watch.

Paschal said he was assaulted after he entered the apartment where the party was supposed to have been. Reports indicated the victim did not require hospital treatment.

Named as suspects were five black men — including one armed with a .357 blue-steel revolver, and a black female.

The owner of the apartment where the holdup occurred told police the residence had been broken into by the suspects.

An altercation shortly after 9 p.m. Monday led to a man pulling a weapon on another man outside a bowling alley at 69th Street and Slide Road, according to police.

A Mexican-American, between 26 and 35, reportedly pulled a shotgun from his car and pointed it at a 30-year-old man in the alley parking lot. The armed man, however, fled in his car without firing the weapon, according to reports.

Several witnesses told police the 30-year-old man had challenged the other man to fight outside the bowling alley.

Police said they feel the same person is responsible for at least five incidents in which houses were shot at. All occurred between late Monday and 1:15 a.m. today.

Reporting the shootings were John Vasquez of 2901 E. Bates St., Dorothy Scavone of 3520 Idalou Road, Cora Gatewood of 224 Cherry, Pedro Arguelles Jr.

of 226 Cherry and Benito Garcia Medel-in of 1510 E. Tulane.

Police said it appeared a .22-caliber weapon was used in all the shootings, and a .22-caliber bullet was lodged in the wall of one of the victim's houses. A white vehicle was seen leaving one of the residences after shots were fired.

Arab, African Nations Call For Hostages' Release

By JOHN BAUSMAN
UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Arab and African members of the United Nations, in an unusual show of support for the United States, are calling for the release of the American hostages in Iran.

Frequently in the past they have been part of Third World groups that opposed the positions taken by the United States. But the seven African and two Arab delegates who spoke in the first three days of the Security Council debate on the U.S.-Iranian crisis all censured Iran's violation of the principle of diplomatic immunity.

Said Ambassador Leon N'Dong of Gabon: "Despite our sympathy for the cause defended by the Iranians, we are bound to regret the fact that the diplomatic personnel of a mission, as well as its premises, should be the object of aggression and violation."

"I can understand the grievances of the Iranian people," said Ambassador Blessing Akoporde Clark of Nigeria, "but to understand that is not to approve the methods the Iranians have selected to redress their deeply felt grievances."

"We earnestly implore the government and the people of Iran to release the American hostages without further delay and unconditionally."

Winston A. Tubman of Liberia said the Iranian seizure of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran and those inside it might do irreparable damage to "the very process by which peaceful intercourse among nations is made possible."

"If ... the world is allowed to become an unsafe place for diplomats to pursue their noble calling, mankind would quickly become engulfed in a dark barbaric world too dangerous to contemplate," he warned.

Ambassador Kamanda wa Kamanda of Zaire said the nations of the Third World were most endangered by the Iranians' flouting "internationally recognized and established principles."

"Small and medium-size states, which are the most numerous and most vulnerable on earth, would ultimately be the major victims of any disregard of the objective rules and principles of the United Nations Charter and of international conventions which guarantee order and justice in international relations," said Kamanda.

One of the two Arab speakers, Abdalla Yaccoub Bishara of Kuwait, in opening the debate pointed out that "passions that have been suppressed for three decades and have recently found an outlet are bound to be strong, deep and spontaneous."

But he, too, called for the immediate release of the hostages and suggested that the council authorize Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim "to set up a consultative body that may assist in identifying abuses and violations of human rights that took place in Iran under the past regime" of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi.

The other Arab speaker, Ahmed Es-mat Abdel Meguid of Egypt, expressed dismay at the bad image the Iranian action was giving the Moslem religion and in effect accused Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini and his followers of violating the tenets of Islam.

"All Moslems are concerned and even disturbed by certain adverse propaganda which Islam is receiving at present," he said. "A general impression could mistakenly develop that Islam condones such practices as the taking of hostages ... Islam is a religion of justice and not of revenge. ... Islam is a religion of tolerance ..."

"The weight of world public opinion should be harnessed to persuade the authorities in Tehran to free the hostages immediately."

Ambassador T.J.X. Muwamba of Malawi said his government could see no justification for the seizure of the American diplomatic personnel although it "fully takes note of Iran's grievances." He also accused the United States of "threatened flexing of military muscle" and said the council should appeal for the "withdrawal of all the lethal weaponry of destruction which has now been deployed in the Persian Gulf."

Paul J.F. Lusaka of Zambia called for the immediate evacuation of the U.S. Embassy and the release of the hostages "without prejudice to the position of Iran in respect of other matters in dispute between it and the United States." And N.M. Malinga of Swaziland said: "It would seem that this noble body of public opinion would be in Iran's favor if Iran releases the hostages."

Iranian Crisis At A Glance

By The Associated Press

The U.S.-Iran crisis entered its 31st day today with 50 Americans still hostage in the U.S. Embassy in Tehran and the deposed shah recuperating in Texas. Here are the highlights:

IN WASHINGTON

Carter administration officials reported no progress in efforts to find a permanent haven for Mohammad Reza Pahlavi and some were beginning to talk of his American stay as "open-ended."

But the administration will not grant the former Iranian ruler permanent residence, officials said privately, because they feel the step would inflame the tense situation in Tehran.

IN IRAN

Iranians reportedly voted 60-1 for Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's Islamic constitution, giving the Shiite Moslem patriarch supreme power for life.

Khomeini's militiamen increased the guard at the occupied U.S. Embassy, apparently in anticipation of a U.S. attempt to free the hostages.

Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh said all the hostages were still being treated and fed well, and he denied reports that they were kept tied to chairs.

IN AMERICA

The Boston Herald American and teacher unions in Oregon and Cumberland, Md., launched letter writing campaigns as Americans looked for new ways to express their anger over the stalemate.

In Los Angeles, officials lit the torch that will be used for the 1984 Olympic games and vowed to keep it burning until the last of the hostages is released.

IN TEXAS

Iranian college students in San Antonio applied for permits to marches in protest of the arrival of the shah, and worried city officials were trying to decide whether to grant them.

The San Antonio College students requested parade permits to stage anti-shah demonstrations Friday downtown and outside Lackland Air Force Base, where the ailing shah is secluded in comfortable, heavily guarded VIP quarters.

The New York Daily News reported the shah was recruiting a permanent security force of 12 highly trained men to replace the private guards he had hired to protect him in the United States, where his decision to seek medical treatment for cancer and gallstones inspired the embassy takeover.

IN WORLD MARKETS

Silver and gold prices continued to reach record heights on the world's exchanges amid speculators' concern over the crisis, fear of Middle East tensions as a result of the stalemate and the prospect of sharp oil price increases.

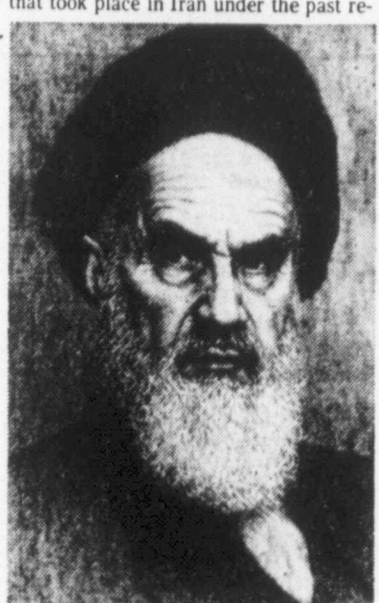

The dollar plummeted Monday in its worst slump since October 1978, when the U.S. government was forced to intervene to prop up the currency.

IN MEXICO

President Jose Lopez Portillo said President Carter's freeze of Iranian government assets in the United States was "a precipitous decision that will seriously deteriorate the international monetary system."

Lopez Portillo said he did not renew the deposed shah's Mexican visa because he "did not have to risk the minimum Mexican interest in a conflict that is not ours."

He added that the United States had put no pressure on the Mexican government to allow the shah to return. The shah stayed in Mexico after leaving Iran following the revolution.

Some Students Doubt Shah In San Antonio

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Iranian college students were surprised like everyone else here when the exiled shah arrived early Sunday at Lackland Air Force Base. Some still do not believe he is here.

And the ones convinced he is at the nearby base will not know until Wednesday whether city officials will let them stage a rally against the man they say "urged" them to leave home for an education.

The San Antonio College students gathered Monday at a cafeteria table — their usual meeting place — as the shah

Soviet Agency Airs Warning

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Tass News Agency said the use of force by the United States against Iran would result in "the most dangerous consequences."

The agency said Monday the United States is flirting with such consequences by moving its naval forces closer to Iran.

The report, which follows a Soviet accusation that the United States has resorted to "gunboat diplomacy," said American military movements were designed to be interpreted by Iranian officials as a threat.

"These measures of rude pressure on Iran are being taken despite the obvious fact that only level-headedness and restraint can lead to a satisfactory resolution of the present crisis in the interests of the world community," Tass said.

"Attempts to find a solution by means of using force will have the most dangerous consequences," it said.

The Tass story summarized U.S. news reports that more than 20 U.S. Navy ships were "near the shores of Iran." It made no mention of the 50 American hostages being held at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran, referring only to "the present crisis."

Portillo Raps Carter Action

MEXICO CITY (AP) — President Jose Lopez Portillo said President Carter's freeze of Iranian government assets in the United States was "a precipitous decision that will seriously deteriorate the international monetary system."

He told a group of Mexican reporters Monday night that oil producers may have second thoughts about investing in the United States or even keeping their oil money in dollars.

Carter froze the assets in retaliation for the seizure of 50 American hostages at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran by Moslem militants demanding the U.S. government extradite Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi.

Carter has refused to turn over the shah and has given him temporary refuge at an Air Force base in Texas.

Lopez Portillo said he did not renew the deposed shah's Mexican visa because he "did not have to risk the minimum Mexican interest in a conflict that is not ours."

"It would have irresponsible on my part to risk, in a foreign process, national interests," he said.

DERAILMENT KILLS 25

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — A passenger train derailed near the southwestern Indian city of Belgaum this week and police said at least 25 persons were feared killed and 50 injured, the United News of India reported.

recuperated behind a vast security system at the military base some 10 miles from the campus.

"He's not here," said one student, who, like many of the Iranians, asked not to be identified. "Why didn't they show him? They say they bring him someplace, but they take him someplace else."

There are 212 Iranians among the 21,000 students at the junior college. Some say they have been harassed on the phone and in person after being quoted in local newspapers. The campus just north of downtown was the scene last summer of several low-key demonstrations against the shah.

No demonstrators have appeared at the campus or outside the base since the shah's arrival.

Immigration officials determined last week that 21 Iranians here are "out-of-status" — meaning their student visas are no longer valid.

Most are hesitant to give their names, but all are unquestioning in their support of the Ayatollah Khomeini — the man they call "Imam."

"If the order comes, we will fight the United States," said Mohsen Kashani, a 22-year-old medical technology student.

The students want it known they would fight the United States government — not the American people. To them, the difference is clear.

"I am not against the people," said Kashani, who has lived here two years. "The people are innocent. We want the people to understand they should not waste their money in a war with Iran."

The students said the taking of hostages at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran may violate international law, "but the people there do not believe international law anymore."

Kashani and the others say they would not hesitate to return home and enlist for a war against the United States. However, for now they think they should continue their studies. President Carter's order freezing Iranian assets in the U.S. makes it impossible for them to finance a trip home, the students said.

Kashani said Iran has long had enough money to open universities of its own, but the shah "urged us to come here."

"We did not want to come. It costs a lot of money for us to come," he said. The students would not predict an Iranian victory in a war with the United States, but Kashani said the conflict would not end until all 35 million people in Iran were killed.

The students around the table said they had heard no plans of demonstrations. It was later in the day that an Iranian student showed up at city hall to seek a parade permit for a Friday rally near the base and a parade that would end at the Alamo.

Schools Criticized For Stigma Given Non-English Students

TYLER (UPI) — Schools are to blame for the stigma that students who do not speak English are "second-class" citizens, a linguistic expert has testified in a federal case involving bilingual education in Texas public schools.

Dr. Rudolph Troike Jr., of Washington D.C. and a member of the Committee for National Study of Bilingual Education, testified as a linguistic expert on behalf of the government in a hearing before U.S. District Judge William Justice concerning whether Texas schools have complied with an order by Justice.

The author of several handbooks and reports on bilingual education, Troike said, "There is a need for equal education opportunity. Students who do not speak English are considered second-class citizens. This stigma is placed on them by the schools."

Long-time champion of bilingual education Sen. Carlos Truan, D-Corpus Christi, also testified, saying "some $700 is spent per child in special education, $200-300 in agriculture, and only $25 for bilingual education."

The state's bilingual education programs have been under court scrutiny since Justice issued a 1971 order directing the state to offer special programs to non-English speaking students.

In other testimony, Dr. Courtney Cazden, a professor of education at Harvard University specializing in children's language development, testified children must be taught in a language they understand and they must learn to read in their first language.

"It is impossible to have equal opportunity with limited English ability," Truan, while serving in the Texas House of Representatives in 1969, sponsored a bill providing the first bilingual education in Texas in the 20th century. He was a key member of the state Bilingual Education Committee, which he said was disbanded due to pressure from the state Board of Education and the Texas Education Agency.

In cross-examination by Susan Dasher, assistant attorney general representing the state, Truan was asked if the committee was, in fact, disbanded due to lack of interest and failing to hold meetings.

"If that's the reason they gave, it was only an excuse," Truan answered.

Truan testified bilingual education in Texas has progressed through three pieces of legislation, his own 1969 bill making bilingual programs optional in all grades; a 1973 bill mandating that schools offer bilingual education in grades one through six, but requiring it only as far as third grade; and a 1978 bill offering it only in kindergarten through grade three.

It is this so-called K-3 arrangement that is being challenged by the plaintiffs.

Miss Dasher contends that Texas' current policy of providing bilingual instruction for kindergarten through third grade pupils adequately teaches basic reading skills.

Texas currently spends $4.5 million on bilingual programs for 117,000 students. In an earlier statement, Miss Dasher said the cost of expanding bilingual programs through the 12th grade "would be astronomical."

Longview Pastor Finds Baby Left In Manger

LONGVIEW (UPI) — Pastor Charles L. Holland heard a baby's cries coming from the nativity scene outside his church and went to investigate. What he found among the statues of shepherds and angels was astonishing.

Lying near the manger that cradled the statue of the infant Christ, there was a real, live two-day-old baby. Under the baby, he found a note scribbled on a scrap of cardboard that said, "I'm Timothy — please take care of me."

"I certainly hope that this little baby, which has been uniquely presented to the City of Longview, will receive much more receptivity from us than did the baby who was born 2,000 years ago," said Holland, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Longview.

The child, the minister said, "has been called 'Timothy Christmas' by everyone who's had contact with him. And that sounds fine to me."

The temperature was right at freezing when the naked infant was found about 9 a.m. Monday. But Holland said the baby was in "perfect health" and has been given to the Department of Welfare for care while efforts are made to find the mother or other "proper provisions."

"Our church has prepared an outdoor nativity scene," Holland said. "I thought some of our engineers had put on a sound track for authenticity. But the cries were irregular so I took a look..."

"I'm absolutely amazed. I've never had an experience like that in my life — absolutely amazed. Of course, my heart went out in compassion to it — it was so symbolic."

"It's been an exciting day," he said.

In an appeal to the mother of the child, Holland submitted a letter to a local newspaper asking her to contact him.

The letter, addressed "to an unknown mother of Longview," said: "This letter is intended to communicate a deep desire on the part of each member of the First Baptist Church of Longview to be of special help to you during this crisis time in your life."

"While our attention has been focused on the discovery of a beautiful, little baby boy, we are remembering that this infant has a mother who may be experiencing great perplexity."

"Therefore, please know that the same affection, concern and compassion which has been directed toward your beautiful little baby will be extended you as well if you will but respond."

Cholera Poses Threat To Rare Cranes

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — An outbreak of avian cholera, an often-fatal disease, is threatening the 75 rare whooping cranes at Aransas National Wildlife Refuge, a spokesman said Monday.

But so far, the cranes' shy nature has kept them away from infected birds, refuge manager Frank Johnson said.

"It is highly contagious, but there's hardly any feasible way to catch and inoculate them," Johnson said. "At 200s they can, but not at a wildlife refuge."

Until Monday, the disease appeared confined to 5,000 snow geese at the refuge. One of 60 snow goose deaths has been traced to the disease, also called fowl cholera. And one sand hill crane found Monday is suspected of dying from the disease.

Dr. Christopher Brand of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife laboratory in Madison, Wis., came to the coastal refuge Friday to perform autopsies on the birds.

Johnson said the outbreak was first discovered at a refuge near Hudson Bay, where about 10,000 snow geese were afflicted. He said those birds are suspected of carrying the disease to South Texas when they began arriving in mid-October.

Avian cholera is a bacterial disease spread through waste and immediate contact among birds, Johnson said, adding it is no threat to humans as long as the meat is cooked. The disease affects the birds' internal organs, and they die about three days later.

"I would stress that this is fowl cholera and it has nothing to do with human cholera. We've been handling these cases for the last couple of days and as far as we know, it can't be transmitted," Johnson said.

He said refuge workers haven't seen any of the 75 cranes closer than a half mile from the area where the snow geese have died. But when they spot cranes near a snow goose, they shoot cranes or make other loud noises to scare away the birds, Johnson said.

He said the marshland is inspected twice a day, and foot patrols have been increased.

The disease "is not known to occur in whooping cranes, but there is no reason to believe they are not susceptible to it," Johnson said.

Amarillo Kiss Concert Draws 700 Protesters

AMARILLO (UPI) — More than 700 people gathered outside the civic center Monday night for a "pray-in" in protest of a concert by the rock group Kiss, which the demonstrators accused of advocating demon worship, sexual perversion and promiscuity.

The protesters carried lighted candles and formed a cross led by 30 ministers while they sang and held a worship service. A flashing arrow pointed to a lighted sign near the protest that said "a kiss betrayed Jesus."

Author and lecturer Judy Mamou, a former nightclub stripper and prostitute and a leader of the protest, said, "Many people feel the group Kiss advocates demon worship, sexual perversion, promiscuous sex and bisexuality in their songs and performance."

She said the protesters, from Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico and calling themselves "concerned citizens," were not attempting to stop the concert but wanted to educate those unfamiliar with the popular group.

Mrs. Mamou and her husband Jimmy, both "born again" Christians, said Kiss "had as much of a right to perform in Amarillo as any other group."

Courtesy Can Curtail Shoplifting

By JEFF McCASLIN

Avalanche-Journal Staff

Merchants who follow the good sales practices of courtesy and attentiveness have the best chance to curtail shoplifting during the busy holiday season, a group of retailers were told this morning at a theft seminar.

And if merchants adhere to the lawful practice of apprehending a suspected shoplifter after that person leaves the store, the more likely the case can be prosecuted, said a representative from the Criminal District Attorney's Office.

The best way to show intent in the prosecution of a theft case is to let the suspected shoplifter get the merchandise out of the store before trying to apprehend them. And we have to show intent to prove that person was stealing," Travis Ware said.

Ware, Detective Earl Rankin of the Lubbock Police Department and defense attorney George Thompson were on hand this morning to discuss shoplifting and possible deterrents and merchant's liabilities at the seminar being sponsored by the Small Business Administration, South Plains Mall Association of Retailers and the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce.

Also making a brief appearance at the seminar was Criminal District Attorney John T. Montford, who told the group that the policy of his office was to prosecute all shoplifting cases; whether they involve the theft of a "tractor or a nail file."

A short film introducing the group to the most common methods used by shoplifters and some of the best deterrents available to merchandisers preceded the discussion by experts in law enforcement.

Appearing in the film was actor Mike Connors, better known for his television detective series "Mannix," who told the audience that the "one sure give away of all shoplifters are their eyes."

"They're (shoplifters) watching people instead of merchandise, waiting for the best possible moment to lift the merchandise," the actor said.

He told the retailers that the best deterrents to shoplifting are the way merchandise is displayed, using mirrors to watch all areas of the store, closed-circuit television cameras, and water tags that sound an alarm when the merchandise is taken out of the store.

The actor also said that dressing rooms are the most common areas where clothing thieves practice their trade by putting on a number of garments to avoid detection.

He said the best deterrent to this method of shoplifting is to limit the number of garments allowed in dressing rooms and make sure those garments are returned to a sales clerk after they are tried on.

Det. Earl Rankin pointed out to the retailers that each shoplifter has his own way of stealing and that the biggest problem of shoplifting during the holiday season is that employees are too busy to keep their eyes on all shoppers.

He warned the retailers to keep their eyes on persons wearing large coats when the weather is warm, those with loose-fitting clothing and those carrying large sacks when they enter the store.

He particularly warned them to keep a close eye on persons with receipts, because they may be using those receipts to steal merchandise.

Rankin related a recent case where a man went into a local grocery store, bought a pack of cigarettes and used the receipt to attempt to take a large console television set by telling a sales person he had a receipt for the item. Rankin said clerks could stop this practice just by looking at the sales slip.

Ware pointed out that to prosecute the case fully, the district attorney's office needs the testimony of both the employee who witnessed the theft and the owner or designated department manager where the merchandise is sold.

He also said a shoplifting case can still be prosecuted even if the suspect tries to make restitution when he is apprehended. He advised retailers not to accept restitution and to take a written statement if possible.

Defense attorney George Thompson, who praised Montford's tough policy on shoplifting, warned that force should not be used by any store employee when apprehending a suspected shoplifter because the store could be legally liable if it is a wrongful arrest. He said the suspected shoplifter could sue the store for false arrest and be awarded civil as well as punitive damages.

He said the best way to approach a suspected shoplifter is to wait until he leaves the store, then ask him to return to the store to straighten things out without trying to physically apprehend him.

In answer to one woman's question, Thompson said stores would be taking a big chance of liability if they allowed employees to use force when apprehending a suspected shoplifter.

Ralph Nader Calls For Unified Fight Against Telephone Rates

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer activist Ralph Nader urged citizens today to band together to fight rising telephone rates, just as groups have formed in many areas to contest gas and electric rate increases.

Board Approves HSCH's New Processing System

County commissioners this morning approved Health Sciences Center Hospital's new data processing contract, hoping the conversion will be a money-saver for the financially shaky hospital.

Wayne Smith, finance committee chairman for the county hospital district, made the contract presentation, saying the hospital board had been trying to reach agreement on some kind of system for several months. Shared Medical Services wanted the contract badly enough to offer a very low price, he said.

The conversion from the present data processing provider — Hospital Management Service — means a savings of several thousand dollars a month. The two-year contract calls for $9,200 a month during the first year and $14,000 a month during the second year.

The current contract demands a fee of $17,000 a month. Hospital Management Service is going out of business as a provider of hospital data processing services and has been blamed for many of the problems in billing experienced by hospital patients.

The new data processing service has made several conversions already for former clients of Hospital Management Service, which makes the firm something of an expert on what is needed at Health Sciences, Smith said. The actual conversion is scheduled for Jan. 26, though the contract becomes effective immediately.

"Telephone service today is recognized as one of the necessities of life," he said in recommending group action before state regulatory agencies.

"Telephone rate proceedings have historically been nothing more than meetings between lawyers and rate specialists of the state and the telephone companies — with the state vastly outnumbered," Nader said in releasing a primer on how telephone-users can get in the act.

The 201-page manual, "How to Talk Back to the Telephone Company," was written by former Nader associate Louis J. Sirico, now an assistant professor at Rutgers University Law School.

Sirico wrote, "For too long, the telephone company's contract with subscribers has been one-sided. Subscribers pay for service, and the company sets the rules."

He called for consumers to confront telephone company lawyers before state commissions to urge that rates be held down and service levels be kept up.

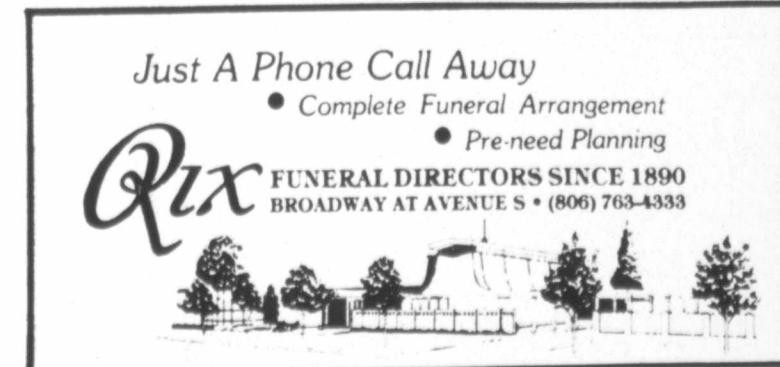

As an example of how that can work, Sirico cited a petition by 10,000 Connecticut residents opposing an electric rate increase.

"The public demonstration combined with more traditional legal and economic arguments resulted in a commission decision ordering Northeast Utilities to cut its rates by $21.6 million," he said.

Stock Prices Post Slight Trade Gain

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices managed a moderate gain today after the market held its ground on Monday's session.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was up 3.33 at 822.95. Gainers outnumbered losers by close to a 2-1 margin in the overall tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said the stage for today's advance was set Monday, when stock prices declined only slightly despite soaring gold prices, a slumping dollar and persisting tensions in the Middle East.

"The market was eligible to get killed," said Larry Wachtel at Bache Halsey Stuart Shields Inc. "The fact that it didn't is the reason we're having a rally today."

Wachtel said some investing institutions recently have begun buying programs based on evidence that the economy is slowing and that interest rates might be at or even past a peak.

Natam was the volume leader, off 1/4 at 29 1/2. A 200,000-share block traded at 29.

Gainers on the active list included Boeing, up 1/4 at 46 1/2; General Electric, up 1/4 at 46; and Litton Industries, ahead 1/4 at 39 1/2.

The NYSE's composite index rose .30 to 60.84. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 1.31 at 229.40.

Volume on the Big Board totaled 14.61 million shares at noon-time, up from 13.43 million at the same point Monday.

Economics Courses Popular At College

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — During the heights of social and political upheaval in the 1960s, a religion course was the most popular subject at Princeton University. Now, two economics courses are the top draws.

And Princeton University officials say the shift in subject popularity may reflect the changing values of American youth.

Some courses always make the list of 10 favorite courses because they are required for graduation, officials say. But in 1969, "Religious Ideas in Literature" was the course students were most eager to take. Also making the 1969 list were two sociology courses.

Times have changed and, while the religion course is still offered, the Ivy League school's heaviest enrollment is in Economics 101, or "The Structure and Functioning of the National Economy." Another economics course also made the list, while an accounting course finished 11th.

The university said the report reflected the financial concerns prevalent throughout the country and the rebounding popularity of business as a career.

University spokesman James I. Merritt said economics was now the fourth most popular major at the school. There are currently 154 undergraduates concentrating in economics, compared with 96 in 1969.

University Registrar Bruce Finney said, however, the changing student course selections were probably just a cyclical thing.

"You can get misled if you just take a snapshot," Finney said. "What is up this year is down next year."

"Course enrollment requirements are very important, too," he said.

"Right now, business is up and sociology is down. But they're all cycles and it will change again. We're not going to change our curriculum and our faculty because those are long-term commitments."

Finney said current enrollments indicated that, after steady declines, psychology is again on the rise while sociology is still at a low point.

"This may be part of the growing concern with the individual and less concern for society as a whole," he said.

Princeton University students are offered courses ranging from human knowledge to cosmic evolution to Roman law to jazz.

"We strive very hard to maintain our liberal arts orientation," he said. "It's our philosophy and we're not going to

Bach's Music Sent To Space

NEW YORK (AP) — If there is any celestial civilization in outer space, chances are its introduction to earthly culture will begin with the music of Johann Sebastian Bach.

A scheduled television salute to the German composer relates that American scientists who in 1977 sent out two unmanned space ships to endlessly explore the outer regions decided to give any possible interceptors of either Voyagers I or II a sample of earth's sounds.

Each space craft carries a gold-plated copper record, accompanied by a base our curriculum on the state of the economy."

For this year's student body, 65 percent of the undergraduates are enrolled in one of the top 10 courses.

In addition to the economics courses, the list includes physics, two literature offerings, two calculus courses, chemistry, psychology and "The Role of Law in American Society, 1607-1977."

cartridge, needle and graphics indicating how to use them. The 1-inch disc bears greetings from earth people in 60 languages, plus such natural sounds of earth as wind, thunder, birds and various animals.

On its cultural side, the record offers 90 minutes of music — 27 selections by such famous composers as Beethoven, Mozart and Bach, whose "Brandenburg Concerto, First Movement," leads off the concert. Only Bach has more than one composition on the record, with his Partita No. 3 for Violin the 10th number and his "Prelude and Fugue in C Major" the 17th.

Much of his music may be heard in "The Joy of Bach," the Christmas holiday special which will be telecast on the Public Broadcasting Service stations.

Caller Threatens Embassy Bombing

BANGKOK Thailand (AP) — An anonymous telephone caller Sunday threatened another explosives attack against the U.S. Embassy here and Thai police further tightened security at the diplomatic compound, an embassy spokesman said.

The spokesman said a man, speaking Thai, telephoned the embassy shortly after noon and asked to speak to "the senior police officer at the embassy." The phone was handed to a Thai policeman at the embassy compound.

"You better be careful today because something may be thrown over the wall," the spokesman quoted the caller as saying.

Playwright's Former Aide Falls To Death

LONDON (UPI) — A former secretary to playwright Arthur Miller and Marilyn Monroe fell through the open door of a private plane and plunged 1,000 feet to her death.

Isabelle Ritblat, 42, the wife of tycoon John Ritblat, one of Britain's richest property developers, plummeted to her death in a field near Leavesden airport, north of London, where the plane was coming in to land last week.

Police said crime was not suspected in Mrs. Ritblat's death, but they were investigating how the door of the 15-seat private aircraft came open during the flight.

Before her marriage in 1960, Mrs. Ritblat was secretary to Miller and Miss Monroe. Miller's wife at the time.

Married Couple Gets Leading Roles In 'Young Maverick' Series

By VERNON SCOTT
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Sometimes television's right hand has no idea what its left hand is doing as demonstrated in the new "Young Maverick" series.
 Warner Bros., which produced the original "Maverick" in 1959 starring James Garner, owned rights to the show and was dickering with ABC to get the sequel on the air.
 The studio had a handsome young actor named Charles Frank under contract and thought he would be perfect for the role of Ben Maverick, a charming card sharp in the old west.

 When Warners offered the part to Charlie he turned it down. "It had been done before and done beautifully by James Garner," said Frank. "I thought it wouldn't be a good idea to try to copy it."
 The studio looked elsewhere for a leading man.

 Charlie, meanwhile, went off to Arizona to star in another western series pilot accompanied by his pretty, bright-eyed wife, actress Susan Blanchard.
 Susan returned to Hollywood while her husband finished up the western. Her agent sent Susan to read for the part of Nell in "Young Maverick" which had, somewhere along the line, switched from ABC to CBS.
 "The next day my agent told me the part was mine," Susan said. "But I told him I wouldn't accept it unless Charlie played the title role."
 When Charlie heard Susan's good news, he told Warner Bros. he had changed his mind and would be happy to play Ben Maverick.
 All the contracts were signed, the pilot film ready to roll when down came the words: "Hold it!"
 Both Warner Bros. and CBS discovered that their stars, Charles Frank and Susan Blanchard were man and wife. Panic time. Incredibly, neither the studio nor the network had been aware of the fact their new costars were married.

 "Certain people at Warners and CBS were scared that a married couple as a starring team might be disruptive," Charlie said.
 "I told them both we'd been acting for 15 years and that we were professional enough not to bring our personal troubles to the set."

 "We really enjoy working together," Charlie said. "This show is especially right for us because we've both ridden horses most of our lives. I was raised with horses in the state of Washington and Susan rode in Connecticut."

Refugees Foresee Grim Future

SRA KAEW, Thailand (AP) — Every 24 hours more than a dozen men, women and children die here from malaria, tuberculosis, malnutrition or from dysentery.

The sick and the dying are heaped together with their bones ready to pierce through the stretched olive skins that cover their skeletal bodies.

The eyes of the Cambodian refugees here show little signs of hope.
 An old woman with her eyes closed sits helplessly in the midst of the sick and the dying. A small boy clutches his baby sister in his arms. A man with sunken cheeks and glazed eyes stares into space. An "X" on his forehead identifies the kind of medication he is to receive.

Some 30,000 Cambodians are in Sra Kaew camp. 1,200 of them in a primitive field hospital. An additional 1,000 are being treated daily as outpatients. About 100,000 are believed waiting across the border in nearby Cambodia to flee to Thailand.

Rock Concert Fans Storm Hall; 11 Die

CINCINNATI (AP) — "I couldn't believe it. They could see the people all piled up and they still tried to climb over them just to get in," said one man who watched in horror as 11 persons died in a crushing human wave surge into Riverfront Coliseum for a rock concert by "The Who."

Police Lt. Col. Joseph Staff said seven young men and four young women were trampled and killed when the mob pushed into the hall on the Ohio River in a crush of bodies that continued for 30 minutes.

Eight other persons were seriously injured, police said. Twenty more were treated at four hospitals and released. "They kept yelling to get back, but we couldn't," said Michael Jordan, 17, one of those caught in the stampede. "I saw people going down. I saw people hurt. People were flailing their elbows."

Dawn Gilmore of Dayton said, "I couldn't breathe. The crush was making me faint."

The Monday night concert, which drew an audience of more than 18,000 people, went on as scheduled and "The Who" made no mention of the tragedy during their performance.

"We decided to let the concert go on. If we stopped it, we would have had a worse panic," said Lt. Dale Menkhaus, who led 25 police officers in a crowd-control detail.

Menkhaus estimated that more than 6,000 people, some who had waited more than three hours, were crowded on the coliseum's plaza level waiting for the doors to open. Many had been drinking and smoking marijuana.

As at some past rock concerts, some seats were reserved; but about half were available on a first-come, first-served basis. Authorities said pushing incidents in the past had led to arrests.

"The group likes to do a little sound test," Menkhaus said. When the crowd heard the music, it surged forward.

"They opened only two doors. They have about 50. I suggested they open more, but was told there wasn't enough personnel to open more," Menkhaus said.

"First a bottle crashed through the glass. Then they started pushing more glass out and they started pouring in. We couldn't stop them," said Ray Schwertman, an usher.

Dick Ogburn, a concert-goer from Lexington, Ky., said, "People were going down. I saw people's heads being stepped on. I fell and I couldn't get up. People kept pushing me down. I was afraid for my life."

Menkhaus said it was nearly 30 minutes before his officers could mount a charge into the crowd. "We found the first bodies about 15 feet from the door outside," he said.

Dr. Al Trott, emergency room supervisor at Cincinnati General Hospital, said all victims suffered "footprint-like injuries."

"Some made it. Some died within two or three minutes," said Isy D. Agostino, a nurse from Dayton. "It's a real sad way to go."

Autopsies were being performed today to determine the exact cause of death.

City Safety Director Richard Castellini said he will ask the City Council to pass a law requiring that all seats be reserved at future events. "It's the urgency of getting a seat that makes this happen," he said.

"The Who," among the oldest surviving British rock groups, is featured in a recently released film, "Quadrophonia." The four-member group wrote the rock opera "Tommy," which was made into a movie.

Keith Altham, the European press agent for "The Who" in London, said members of the group "are absolutely devastated by the sheer horrific proportions of the tragedy." The group planned to appear as scheduled tonight in Buffalo for a reserved-seats-only concert.

Monday's mob scene was not a first for Riverfront Coliseum. On April 19, 1977, police arrested 76 people who tried to push their way into a "Led Zeppelin" rock concert.

Officials of the coliseum and Electric Factory Concerts of Philadelphia, sponsor of the concert, could not be reached for comment.

Jeff Chaney of Carlisle, an Army veteran, said he tried to revive three of the victims. His efforts failed mostly "because people just didn't seem to care."

Merchant Kills Two In Store

HOUSTON (UPI) — Merchant James K. Mills was ready for the two alleged burglars who he said backed a truck into his clothing store to load up his merchandise. He walked up to them with his shotgun and .45 automatic and shot them to death.

"I've been setting up on them for ages," Mills said. "I was broken into 10 weeks ago and I've been putting up with this crap for six years."

Mills, whose action Monday was described by a police detective as a natural result of "life in the big city," said he was sleeping in his office when he was awakened by a pickup truck crashing through the front door of his northeast Houston clothing store.

"They backed that truck up into the store and I just walked out of the office with a shotgun and a .45 automatic," Mills said. "I told one of them to hold it and he came at me and I blew him up."

Police said the man was drawing a knife from his pocket when Mills shot him.

"The other one started running toward the front door and I said, 'Halt,' and he kept running so I blew him out the front door," Mills said.

He said after he fired at the second man, the first burglar tried to come at him again, so he shot him twice more.

Mills told police he then shot the second man again as he tried to drive away in the pickup truck.

The two suspects, Bertram Charles Kelley, 36, and Terry Dean Thomas, 24, both died at the scene.

Mills said he has faith in the police, but he wanted to protect his property.

"The police pick them up. They do their job," Mills said. "But once they get to the courts they don't do a damned thing to them and these punks know it."

Police detectives tended to agree.

Blaze At Stables Kills Six Horses

One of the renters at the arena, Ricky Hafley, discovered the blaze and woke the Robertsons. The owner said when he walked out of his trailer, the blaze had engulfed several of the stalls at the end of the north barn.

HEW Ruling To Benefit Colleges

Title IX is part of a 1972 law that bans sex discrimination in all federally supported education programs, not just athletics.

The long-running dispute over sex discrimination in college athletics has pitted feminists seeking changes in the treatment of female athletes against school administrators and coaching staffs, who often have resisted what they considered an assault on football.

The National Collegiate Athletic Association and many individual schools have sought exemptions from the regulations for football. They argued that it was a money-making sport that often supports other athletic activities. But recent NCAA figures show that about 80 percent of all collegiate football programs lose money.

HEW published the act's first enforcement regulations in 1975 and has spent a good deal of time since explaining what the regulations mean. The new policy statement is the final installment in that process. Mrs. Harris' announcement comes eight months behind schedule due to a storm of controversy over the tentative guidelines and the firing of Califano, who issued them in 1978.

Women's participation in collegiate athletics has increased markedly since the sex discrimination law was passed. But by 1978, three out of four college athletes still were men.

The Robertsons, while inspecting the damage early this morning, expressed dissatisfaction over the length of time they said it took firemen to arrive on the scene.

They said it was 30 to 40 minutes after they had called for help before firemen arrived.

Robertson said only two stalls were ablaze when they called the city. "And when they finally got here, that barn was nearly on the ground and that one there was completely on fire," he said, pointing to the two sections of debris.

The Robertsons said the firemen apparently got lost in their attempts to find their Route 3, Box 308, location, "even though we told them exactly how to get out here." The couple added that the sirens they heard indicated the firefighting units apparently circled their location before arriving at the scene.

"If they had got here when they should have, we could have saved that barn there," Robertson said, pointing to the south barn.

He indicated he could have saved some of his property if a fire plug had been located nearby. "I tried to get a fire plug out here two years ago. They (the city) wouldn't let me do it. There's not a fire plug within two miles of here."

Henry Hunt said he lost two dogs in the blaze, one of them a cross between an English pointer and a beagle. "He was an experimental dog. And then I had a mutt," he said.

Those tentatively identified as losing horses in the fire were Tracy Sharber, Georgia Hafley, Billy Knight and Sylvia Mvea.

Robertson said dry hay in the stables probably fed the flames. He added that there was no way to estimate early today how much in contents were lost. Two saddles known to have been destroyed were valued at a total of $1,500.

"You can figure we lost at least $60,000 in the buildings alone," Robertson said.

Five horses were saved. All were located in the second barn.

"None of the animals in the north barn were saved. There were a couple of expensive horses in there," Robertson said.

"I just turned the other ones out. Now, I'm going to have to round them up."

free the hostages immediately and guarantee their safe exit from the country. The council is in its fourth day of emergency sessions on the crisis.

Khomeini moved toward certain victory in a two-day nationwide referendum on a new constitution.

Results of the balloting Sunday and Monday will be announced later in the week, but political observers said there was no doubt the vast majority of the country's 20 million voters voted in favor of the new constitution.

Approval of the constitution is also likely to have a decisive effect on the embassy seizure by students demanding the return to Iran of Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi, now recuperating at Lackland Air Force Base in Texas from gallstone surgery and cancer treatment.

Diplomatic sources said an overwhelmingly positive vote for Khomeini could create the climate necessary to help secure the safe release of the hostages, despite reports that the hundreds of militant captors were moving ahead with plans for a series of trials.

Washington has hinted that any trial of the hostages could precipitate a response such as a military move.

In Cincinnati, Speaker of the House Thomas P. O'Neill said he understands the shah has invitations to travel to four countries, but he refused to name them.

Egypt is the only country to publicly offer asylum to the shah, an offer renewed last week when Mexico, the shah's home in exile since June, decided not to renew his six-month tourist visa.

The militants denied an increasing number of diplomatic reports that some of the hostages — perhaps as many as 25 had been taken from the embassy compound to secret hideouts in Tehran, and that at least eight of them were undergoing thorough interrogation in preparation for trial before revolutionary courts.

Iranians Oppose Soviet Intervention In Crisis

At least 657 people in Iran have been executed under the Khomeini regime after being condemned by such tribunals.

Reports of the relocation of the hostages surfaced when rumors spread in the capital that the United States was preparing for a military strike against Iran.

"The hostages are all still in the embassy," one spokesman said. "It is absolutely untrue that they have been moved. All are in good health."

He added, "The first decision is the last decision," a reference to the militants' original declarations that the hostages would not be released until the shah is returned to Iran for trial.

No independent observer has visited the hostages recently and the militants' denials could not be verified.

Some diplomatic sources suggested a major tug-of-war was shaping up between the increasingly intransigent captors and more moderate elements in the government, who are seeking a compromise that would ensure the hostages' eventual safe release.

In Washington, administration sources said Secretary of State Cyrus Vance is expected to postpone a planned mid-December trip to Europe because of an anticipated showdown in the Iran crisis.

And because of Sunday's mob attack on the U.S. Embassy in Libya by pro-Iranian demonstrators, administration officials said the United States is considering the possibility of severing diplomatic relations with the Tripoli government.

High Court Opens Way For Suits

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A national goal for cutting gasoline consumption and separate gasoline conservation targets for each state will probably be set by the Energy Department this week in a letter to all 50 governors.

Hank Bartholomew, who deals with state and local governments for the Energy Department, said that, judging from a draft of the letter, the conservation goals were "pretty much isolated to gasoline and on a voluntary basis."

Other officials have said the state targets could be the groundwork for mandatory fuel reductions if President Carter invokes his authority under the Emergency Energy Conservation Act passed by Congress last month.

"We're transmitting targets to the states at this time so they can start preparing plans prior to any application of the Emergency Energy Conservation Act," said an agency spokesman.

Deputy Secretary John Sawhill, who will probably sign the letters and send them out sometime this week, heads an agency task force working on a national response to oil supply curtailments, including the Iranian cutoff.

Bartholomew said the individual goals, which will vary from state to state, may be above or below the national target.

"That's a good bet because the methodology (for setting targets) does take into consideration previous conservation by states," he said.

Although the national target remained under wraps, a 4 percent reduction seemed reasonable because it would cover about the amount of U.S. oil needs lost in the Iranian cutoff.

Under the Emergency Energy Conservation Act, which also provides for mandatory standby gasoline rationing, states must submit plans designed to achieve the federal conservation goals for whatever fuel source is in jeopardy.

Deportation Hearings At Dallas Slated For Family Living Here

An Iranian family living in Lubbock has been scheduled for deportation hearings in Dallas next month for alleged violation of their visas.

Seyed Abbas Azima, 34, and his wife Fatemeh, 29, are scheduled to appear before an administrative judge of the Immigration and Naturalization Service Jan. 22 in Dallas.

Azima, who graduated from Texas Tech in July with a degree in mechanical engineering, is charged with accepting employment upon completion of his studies rather than returning to Iran, local Border Patrol agent Billy Rowe said this morning.

Azima is currently employed by a local construction company. He has two children — a boy, 7, and a girl, 9.

Azima and his wife must appear before the judge, but the children are exempt from the actual hearing process. His wife and children are classified as dependents and are therefore subject to any move to deport him.

Rowe said Azima came in to the Border Patrol office this morning on his own. Azima reportedly told Rowe that he intended to return to Texas Tech for further study.

However, Rowe indicated that Azima probably just didn't want to return to Iran.

"I think I have good factual allegations against him," Rowe said. "But that's subject to a judge, just like any court."

Angry Americans Hurl Insults, Threats At Iran

LOS ANGELES — A crowd of more than 6,000 outraged citizens vented their frustrations over Iran Monday night by screaming slogans, many of them obscene, waving American flags and burning huge photographs of the Ayatollah Khomeini.

The men, women and children at the pro-America rally at the Los Angeles Coliseum directed their anger at Iran and Khomeini by chanting wildly before television cameras expected to beam the event overseas to Iran.

"We are one!" they shouted, followed by "Nuke Iran!" and "Bomb Iran!" The Coliseum scoreboard flashed the message, "Free the hostages now," as the throng sang patriotic songs and in some cases, shouted obscene slogans.

Politicians paraded to microphones saying Americans will not tolerate any more intimidation from Iran.

A small group gathered outside the gates before they were opened chanting "America united! America united!"

"I'm here just to let that stupid ayatollah know that the Americans are one and we're not going to stand for what's going on," said Michael Griffin, one of the demonstrators.

Kenneth Hahn, chairman of the county Board of Supervisors, said the Coliseum's torch would remain ablaze until all the hostages were released.

"Very few times in the history of the Coliseum have we turned on the torch," Hahn said. "It will remain burning until every hostage is released. That will be a signal to fellow Americans held as prisoners that we will not forget them."

Elsewhere in the nation, a Boston newspaper and teacher unions in Oregon and Cumberland, Md., have launched letter-writing campaigns as Americans looked for new ways to express their anger over actions by Iranian leader Khomeini.

The Boston Herald American today published a front-page, editorial letter to the ayatollah and invited readers to sign the letter and add their own comments. The newspaper said it would forward all letters to the Iranian Mission to the United Nations.

"Millions of Americans are fearful your fury toward the shah and the United States will ultimately bring death to 50 innocent hostages," the letter said. "It is essential that you think of your prisoners. Freedom for them now would be the start of a new beginning. The alternative is desperation and darkness."

The Oregon Education Association designated Friday as "Iranian Letter

Day," urging teachers, students and parents to write to Iran's U.N. mission expressing support of President Carter in the crisis.

Leland Hall, association president, said notices are going to the state's 30,000 school teachers and 2,500 administrators.

"We want the Iranian government to understand that the people support the president and we are concerned about the hostages," Hall said.

In Maryland, the Allegany County teachers union has asked that letters be written to Carter promising support and pledging to reduce gasoline consumption by two gallons per car per week. Carter halted Iranian oil imports after the hostages were seized.

Some 60 Ball State University students marched through the Muncie, Ind., campus Monday in the second anti-Iranian demonstration there in less than a week.

And in Columbia, Mo., a group of about 15 Iranians say they may refuse Carter's order that all Iranian college students register with immigration officials and have hired attorney Betty Wilson, wife of Mayor Clyde Wilson, to represent them.

The students say they object primarily to being photographed as part of the registration process.

U.S. Automakers Make Best-Selling Small Cars

By JAMES V. HIGGINS
DETROIT (UPI) — Quickly now, what is the best-selling small car in the U.S. this year?

You were wrong if you named an import.

The feeling that foreign makes dominate small car sales in this country is what one auto industry analyst called a myth — one of many he said he encounters frequently in today's disordered auto market.

In fact, the Chevrolet Chevette is the No. 1 selling subcompact in 1979. One has to go to fifth place on the nameplate list to find an import among compact and subcompact lines.

The top five in January-October sales were Chevrolet Chevette, Ford Fairmont, Ford Mustang, Chevrolet Nova-Citation and Toyota Corolla.

There also appears to be a misconception that foreign small cars are performing better in the U.S. market than domestic small cars.

"There is no market performance superiority in the foreign lines," an analyst said.

Imported small car sales increased from 15.9 percent of the total U.S. market in the first 10 months of 1978 to 19.4 percent this year, a gain of 3.5 percentage points.

At the same time, domestic small cars increased 5.2 points from 28.5 percent to 33.7 percent of the market.

Imports apparently are attracting sales from the other end of the U.S. auto industry — the mid-and full-size market. American makers remain dominant in the big car segment, however, with a 95 percent market share so far this year.

Surprisingly, U.S.-built cars are the leaders in all three classes of the small car segment.

In the first 10 months of 1979, Chevette led the subcompact list, followed by Toyota Corolla, Datsun B-210, Volkswagen Rabbit (mostly domestically built), and Ford Pinto.

Among compacts, top sellers were Ford Fairmont, Chevrolet Citation-Nova, Plymouth Volare, Dodge Aspen and Buick Skylark. The top-selling foreign compact was the Toyota Corona.

The top-selling small-sporty models included Ford Mustang, Chevrolet Camaro, Pontiac Firebird, Toyota Celica and Mercury Capri.

The competitive edge for imports — particularly from Japan — appears to be in price, which U.S. auto executives attribute to foreign automakers' lower labor costs.

A Los Angeles-based marketing information firm has compiled information suggesting that General Motors Corp.'s spectacularly successful X-car compacts have attracted buyers away from other domestic makes rather than from imports. Introduced in April, the X-cars — the Chevrolet Citation, Oldsmobile Omega, Pontiac Phoenix and Buick Skylark — sold more than 360,000 units.

A substantial share of those buyers previously owned larger U.S.-built cars and bought the new front-wheel drive compacts out of increased fuel-consciousness, according to J.D. Power & Associates.

After surveying more than 1,000 X-car shoppers in dealer showrooms and another 1,200 buyers, the firm concluded that the X-body buyers are not import

Islam Given New Life In China

By WILLIAM J. HOLSTEIN
CANTON, China (UPI) — The imam in white robe and skull cap stands before the faithful saying Friday prayers, sending the distinctive chant of Islam ringing through the immaculate mosque.

The devotees are China's minority Hui people, practicing their faith in Huaisheng Mosque, the nation's oldest. Legend has it that an uncle of the Prophet Mohammed built it on the bank of the Pearl River so Arab traders could bow toward Mecca after purchasing Chinese silk and porcelain. The rerouted river now is about a mile away.

Islam is prospering in China, now that the country's pragmatic leaders have relaxed the anti-religious and anti-minority pressures of the turbulent decade from 1966 to 1976.

The bespectacled, 6-year-old Imam Yang Hang-kuan says his mosque attracts as many as 1,000 faithful on special holidays. On this particular Friday, 40 men prayed.

"For several years during the Cultural Revolution we suffered interference by the Gang of Four," Yang said through an interpreter over the inescapable cup of Chinese tea. Pictures of Mecca and an ornate Koran graced the room.

"The people were scared and did not dare come to the mosque, so we had to do the prayers in people's homes. But now the religious atmosphere has been relaxed."

Yang was cagey about the Iranian revolution and Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, saying he did not wish to comment on the "internal affairs" of another country.

China's estimated 10 to 15 million Moslems have long been a source of irritation to the ethnic Han Chinese government in Peking, stirring riots and rebellions over the centuries.

Now that Chinese authorities have begun giving money to help repair mosques, allowing Moslems to take days off from work for their holidays and giving greater prominence to Islam, Yang does not wish to rock anybody's boat.

"Because the state government now pays respect to the customs and religion of Hui people, there is no reason for an uprising here," he said. "The Chinese government has now adopted a correct and natural policy. They protect this mosque as an ancient historic relic."

As an example of Islam's increased stature in China, Yang was invited to Peking Oct. 1 to help celebrate the 30th anniversary of the Communist revolution. China's leaders, anxious to form a semblance of national unity to pursue their modernization goals, boast that their country harbors 55 nationalities.

The Huis are one of 10 in China who profess Islam, other major groups being the Uighurs, Kazakhs, Tadjiks, Tartars and Uzbeks.

Most Moslems live in the sparsely populated regions of Inner Mongolia and Xinjiang (Sinkiang) province, and a quarter of the estimated four million Huis live in the Ningxia Hui autonomous region in Inner Mongolia. Alm

How long the Hui can retain their separate cultural identity remains to be seen. The 40 men touching heads to their prayer rugs during Friday prayers were middle-aged to elderly. Their children apparently do not harken to the cry of the imam.

U.S. Relations With Algeria Beginning To Show Improvement

By ROBERT KAYLOR

ALGIERS, Algeria (UPI) — The distance is great between this militant Third World capital and Main Street, U.S.A., in more ways than one. But veiled women in the crowded streets don't seem surprised when they pass a theater playing "Apocalypse Now."

It's no accident the movie is being shown here before finishing its first run back home.

Thanks largely to the energy crunch, the United States has become Algeria's largest trading partner through big oil and natural gas imports. And the two nations have been drawn together economically.

The government-controlled press still attacks the United States, using terms like "imperialist aggression against the Arab masses." It stridently opposed the American freeze of Iranian assets prompted by seizure of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran and suggested oil producers demand payment in other currencies besides the dollar.

Despite such polemics, government officials make clear they don't expect any real change in a relationship that nets them $3.5 billion a year for exports plus loans that have totaled more than $2.8 billion, mainly to finance the U.S. technology that is a hot item in this North African country.

Hard-line militance grew from Algeria's eight-year war for independence from France. The guerrillas established a far-left and highly secretive socialist regime in 1962 that quickly put every aspect of the country under tight government control.

How relations with the United States are conducted was illustrated when White House Security Adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski came for the Nov. 1 celebration of the 25th anniversary of the independence war and found himself rubbing elbows with Yasser Arafat, Raul Castro and Vietnamese Defense Minister Vo Nguyen Giap.

Brzezinski and cabinet officials had sharp exchanges over issues on which the two governments disagree.

Then he was cordially welcomed by Benjadid Chadli, the military officer who took over as president last February, in what diplomats say was probably a well-calculated move.

Algeria established military ties with the Soviets early and built a large arsenal of weapons that now includes Moscow's most modern battle tanks and jet fighters. As many as 1,000 Soviet military technicians and advisers may be in the country.

But a 15-member American Embassy, reopened five years ago to restore relations broken by Algeria in 1967, has been quietly expanding its influence.

The U.S. decision to resume arms shipments to neighboring Morocco, regarded by Algeria as a possible military enemy over the Western Sahara fighting, created barely a ripple in Algiers.

In what is regarded as a breakthrough, Algeria permitted the U.S. Embassy to add a military attache two months ago and says it wants to "regularize" military relations by sending one to Washington in return.

Raiders Post Second Cage Win

By CHUCK McDONALD
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Since he made the long trip from Buffalo, N.Y., to Lubbock and Texas Tech, life hasn't always been a bed of roses for Leslie Nichols.

But Monday night, big Leslie got his first-ever start for the Red Raiders and he liked it. The 5,021 fans in attendance at Lubbock Coliseum also liked what they saw as Tech crushed an outmanned South Dakota State team 111-75 to raise its season mark to 2-0.

Big Leslie didn't dominate the stats by any means, but Monday night he was first in the hearts of the fans. When his name was announced as a starter (replacing the injured Ben Hill) the crowd erupted. When Nichols left the contest with five fouls in the second half he got a standing ovation.

"It was nice," said Nichols of the crowd reaction, "really nice. It made me feel good — I felt like the people were behind me."

The South Dakota State Jackrabbits didn't feel so good. For the first 10 minutes of the game they stayed with the Raiders step for step. Then something happened to the visitors.

Tech coach Gerald Myers said it was probably their long road trip catching up with them and the play of the Raiders coming off the bench that turned things around.

Whatever it was, Tech zoomed from a 17-16 lead with 12:15 to play to a 51-24 spread with 2:39 left in the half. Sparking the Tech surge was senior Thad Sanders (9 first-half points), sophomore Steve Smith, freshman Joe Washington and transfer Dwight Williams.

At the intermission the Raiders led 58-30 and from there the game was played for grins.

"Our first bunch was a little flat," admitted Myers. "But those guys off the bench were really up — they wanted to play."

"It's good to get a game like this, everybody gets to play. Leslie was a little nervous — but he just needs a chance to play."

"He (Nichols) was having to think about what to do instead of just doing it," added Myers. Nichols finished the game with 20 minutes of playing time, 4 points, four rebounds, one block and one assist.

"I was concentrating on not making any mistakes," said the 6-foot-8 Nichols.

"But I was really intense — I didn't want to give them any easy baskets."

Nothing came easy for the Jackrabbits Monday night as they watched their season mark fall to 0-3. The Rabbits shot 55 percent from the field but they just didn't get many shots. The visitors put the ball up 47 times to Tech's 98.

A host of Raiders got into the scoring act as nine different players scored in the contest and five were in double figures. Of those five, only three — David Little,

UPI Honors Hadnot On Second A-A Unit

NEW YORK (Special) — James Hadnot, the Texas Tech fullback who rewrote the school's rushing record book, was named today to United Press International's second all-America team.

Hadnot who started his collegiate career as a tight end, finished it against the University Houston two weeks ago with a 199-yard rushing performance and the distinction of having put together the best two consecutive rushing seasons in Southwest Conference history.

Hadnot, a 230-pounder, finished his rushing career with 2,794 yards, ninth best in SWC history, and his 273 carries last season set a conference record.

He had back-to-back, 1,369-1,371 rushing seasons for the Raiders after being moved from tight end just before the start of the 1978 season.

The University of Southern California may be No. 2 in the UPI Board of Coaches college football poll, but the Trojans are No. 1 as far as All-Americans are concerned.

The Trojans Monday placed three members on the UPI all-America team — the only team in the nation to do so.

Trojans on the 24-member team were Heisman Trophy-winning running back Charles White, offensive guard Brad Budde and linebacker Dennis Johnson.

Nineteen teams placed at least one player to the first squad with Texas, Oklahoma and Notre Dame each placing two. Defensive tackle Steve McMichael and defensive back Johnnie Johnson were named from Texas; running back Billy Sims and linebacker George Cumby were selected from Oklahoma and offensive tackle Tim Foley and running back Vagas Ferguson were picked from Notre Dame.

It marked the 17th consecutive year Notre Dame has placed a player on the UPI first team All-America squad.

Rounding out the first offensive unit were split end Ken Margerum of Stanford, tight end Junior Miller of Nebraska, offensive tackle Greg Kolenda of Ar-

Short Take

IT WAS COLD and cloudy. Not exactly one of those late autumn afternoons "just perfect for college football." Nevertheless, the President was coming, a capacity throng, the competitors and TV cameras could see him from afar.

But, when the time for the kickoff arrived, "We didn't wait on him. We went ahead and started. Of course, we could see his helicopter land on the practice field south of the stadium," recalled one of the game officials. "He missed about the first two minutes, we go when TV tells us."

It was The Big Shootout, Fayetteville, Ark., 1969. President Nixon. And the official? A guy from Abilene, by the name of William Dorris Lawson.

Only, for years, he's been Shorty to football and basketball fans throughout the Southwest. He's been called other names, too, names thrown out in derision. That's in the past now; henceforth, it will be only W.D. Lawson, director of athletics, Abilene Public Schools. No more Shorty Lawson, ref.

Shorty, you see, has packed away his whistle and yellow hankerchief. Age — and the Southwest Conference's mandatory retirement guideline — caught up with him.

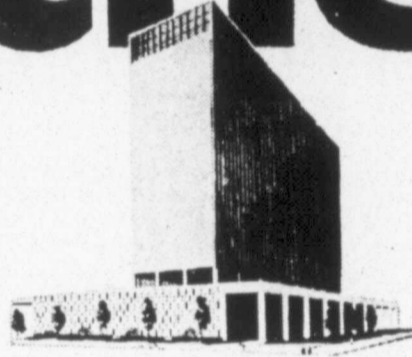

WHEN TECH'S TROOPS trudged off the field at the Astrodome 10 days ago, Shorty walked off, too; for him, it was the end of the line. Only a possible reward, in the form of a bowl assignment during the holidays, stands between him and the memories.

"They told me, 'You're too dog-goned old.' I've reached the age limit," Shorty remarked, via telephone, Monday. "The Southwest Conference's magic age is 57, and that's where I am. Oh, I could keep working high school and small college games, but I don't plan to. But, really, I felt in better condition this year than in a long time."

For more than 30 years — almost half his life — Lawson has worked the fields in a

Hogs Roll; Three SWC Teams Lose

By The Associated Press
Tom Colbert sank two free throws with one second left to give Texas-Arlington a dramatic 81-80 win over Rice in an intersectional college basketball game Monday night.

In other contests involving Southwest Conference teams, Texas-El Paso downed Baylor 81-64. Arizona State ran away from Houston 78-65. Arkansas beat Centenary 65-53. Southern Methodist blasted Texas Lutheran 123-90, and Texas Tech overwhelmed South Dakota State 111-75.

Rice's loss came only moments after the Owls appeared to have wrapped the contest up on an 18-foot jump shot by Ricky Pierce with three seconds left. Texas-Arlington threw the ball out of bounds and their case looked more hopeless than ever.

Brian Burns was fouled before the Owls could put the ball back in play, but the Rice sophomore missed on the first shot of a 1-and-1. Burns then fouled Colbert, setting up the game-winning charity tosses.

Roshern Amie pumped in 17 points as Texas-El Paso posted its third straight win of the year. Baylor, which was unable to overcome a 40-29 halftime deficit, dropped its second straight game.

Arizona State put four starters in double figures and took advantage of some cold Houston shooting in posting a 13-point win.

Alton Lister nabbed 22 points and 10 rebounds for the Sun Devils, while forward Sam Williams added 16 points for the winners. Byron Scott 14 and Kurt Nimphous 10.

Ken Williams led the losing Cougar effort with 14 points.

Hollie Hoots scored 18 points and four other Mustangs were in double figures as SMU set a school record for scoring in a single game Monday night.

The Mustangs used the red-hot shooting of Billy Allen and Brad Branson to increase a seven-point halftime lead to an 89-54 margin with just over nine minutes to play.

U.S. Reed and Scott Hastings combined for 39 points in Arkansas' 12-point win. Reed hit for 20 points, while Hastings drilled the net for 19.

George Lett led Centenary with 19 points, but managed only four in the final half while the Razorbacks expanded a one-point halftime lead.

Indiana Holds Lead In Cage Rankings

By The Associated Press
Lou Carnesecca has been trying to keep the profile low at St. John's, but how do you hide a monster?

That, apparently, is what Carnesecca has created at the New York City school. And the Redmen's basketball coach will have an even tougher time keeping the Redmen under wraps today, considering the heights that St. John's has reached in the AP basketball poll.

Ranked No. 16 at the opening of the season, the Redmen leaped seven places to the No. 9 position after two victories over the weekend, including an 88-73 pounding of Michigan State, defending NCAA champions, in the finals of the Lapchick Tournament.

The Redmen collected 571 points to edge out No. 10 DePaul by 11 points. The new position could make Carnesecca cringe, since it is generally known that he believes high rankings put more pressure on a team.

Meanwhile, the Indiana Hoosiers held on to the No. 1 position after an impressive 80-52 victory over Miami of Ohio in their season opener. The Hoosiers pulled in 28 of a possible 59 first-place votes for 1,118 points.

That was enough to give Bobby Knight's preseason favorites a 20-point edge over No. 2 Duke. The Blue Devils, who won the Big Four Tournament with two victories over the weekend, including Saturday night's 86-74 triumph over North Carolina, were handed 18 votes for first place.

Ohio State, meanwhile, received seven first-place votes and held the No. 3

Purdue, Notre Dame, LSU Post Impressive Basketball Verdicts

By The Associated Press
The Butler didn't do it this time — not against Purdue, anyway.

Class told the story Monday night, as the 12th-ranked Boilermakers ran away to an 83-60 college basketball victory over the Butler Bulldogs behind mountainous Joe Barry Carroll.

"We thought we might get shut out for a while," said Butler coach Joe Sexton, who watched helplessly as his Big Ten opponents scored the game's first 16 points behind one of the nation's top centers. The 7-foot-1 Carroll had six of Purdue's points in that streak and finished with 27.

"It was just a tremendous effort by Purdue," added Sexton. "We were too small and they just played over the top of us. Carroll was tremendous."

The Boilermakers widened their early lead to 19 points, at 24-5, and led 41-29 at the half. Butler's Gary Raker scored the first two baskets of the second half to pull the Bulldogs within eight points, at 41-33, but then Purdue ran off 19 straight points to put the game out of reach.

"Our size obviously affected their play," noted Purdue coach Lee Rose, "and Joe Barry was a totally dominating figure."

Eisewhere, fourth-ranked Notre Dame defeated Iowa State 87-77 as Tracy Jackson scored 20 points. The Fighting Irish were in front the entire game, leading by as many as 16 points at one stage in the second half.

"We did a good job of breaking out early, like we did against Valparaiso (in the 92-66 season opening victory)," said Notre Dame coach Digger Phelps. "But I'm still concerned with our offensive rebounding. I think if we concentrate more

Palo Duro Nips Estacado Cagers

AMARILLO (Special) — A fourth quarter splurge lifted Amarillo Palo Duro past the Estacado Matadors 79-70 Monday night in a prep basketball contest.

Trailing 58-57, Palo Duro outscored the Matadors 22-12 down the stretch to take the decision, its third win against four losses this season. Estacado fell to 4-3.

Leading the Mats' scoring were Tim Williams and John Jones with 20 points each. James Barnett had 16.

Palo Duro was paced by Todd Loftis and Ed Schaefer who had 24 each. Tony Westmoreland added another 16.

Estacado made only two free throws all night. Palo Duro connected for nine.

The Matadors will next play San Angelo Central at noon Thursday in the first round of the Snyder tournament.

Buckeyes Overtake Tide In Sprint For No. 1

A-J News Services
Alabama's come-from-behind 25-18 victory over Auburn cost it the No. 1 ranking in The Associated Press' final regular-season college football poll today and enabled Ohio State to vault into first place in a torrid three-way race with the Crimson Tide and Southern California.

Runner-up Alabama received 29 first-place votes from a nationwide panel of 67 sports writers and broadcasters to 16 for Ohio State and 19 for Southern Cal in AP. However, the Crimson Tide held onto its lead in the United Press International ratings, ahead of No. 2 USC and No. 3 Ohio State.

In UPI, Alabama got 22 first-place ballots from the board of college coaches, to four for the Trojans and three for Ohio State.

In AP, eight voters, apparently unimpressed by Alabama's close call, left the Crimson Tide out of their top three choices while the Buckeyes of Ohio State were lower than third on only three ballots and piled up 33 second-place votes to overcome Alabama's edge in first-place votes.

Ohio State, which was unranked in the preseason ratings, totaled 1,267 points to 1,265½ for Alabama in what may be the closest first-place race in the 44-year history of The AP poll. Southern Cal was breathing down Alabama's neck with 1,257 points.

Ohio State and Alabama finished the regular season with 11-0 records while Southern Cal wound up 10-0-1. Ohio State and Southern Cal will meet in the Rose Bowl while Alabama faces sixth-ranked Arkansas in the Sugar Bowl.

A week ago in AP, Alabama had 34 first-place votes to 12 for Southern Cal and 13 for Ohio State and led in points 1-193-1,142-1,141. However, the lumble-pressed Crimson Tide blew a 17-6 second-half lead against Auburn and needed a touchdown with 8:17 left to play to nip the Tigers.

Florida State, 11-0, held onto fourth place in both polls, with 1,103 points in AP, and 10-1 Oklahoma, the Seminoles' Orange Bowl opponent, remained fifth in both lists with one first-place vote and 1,068 points in AP.

Oklahomans Trip LCC; Chaps Entertain USAO

By DON HENRY

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
By the time the two teams got on the floor, both were worn out from marching up.

Only thing, the visitors had more left, and the East Central Oklahoma States punted an 82-63 loss on Lubbock Christian College.

Maybe it was the unfamiliarity with the home floor, maybe it was the delay in getting started. But, more to the point, maybe it was the quicker, taller Tigers from Ada, Okla.

Whatever the cause, the visitors led from the opening minutes and strolled to their fourth win in five games. They have lost only to UTEP in El Paso this season.

Tonight, however, LCC will play again at home, hosting another group from the Indian Territory, Oklahoma Science & Arts. And they're better than East Central, according to LCC coach Larry Hays. "They bigger and better. They've only lost twice this year, both to Cameron (Okla., which is rated the top NAIA team in the country)."

Tipoff in LCC's field house is at 7:30 p.m.—honest.

Monday night, the two teams were to have taken the court for the opening tipoff at 8 p.m. But because of an elongated women's game (won by LCC in overtime), the men didn't tip off until 8:40 p.m.

And the result didn't bother the visitors.

They took the lead at 4-3 after less than three minutes elapsed and didn't trail rest of the way.

However, the Chaparrals tied the count at 27, but the effort expended in catching up after trailing 26-19 left them unable to take the lead.

And this stretch, after the score was tied, made the difference.

"That was the turning point," remarked Hays. "We tied it, then the next seven possessions, we got only one shot (per possession). That killed us.

"We had (Bill) McGee and (Marshall) Smith on the bench at that time. McGee with four fouls and Smith with three.

"Then they outkicked us, too. I was disappointed with our mental effort," Hays said, "not our physical effort."

The Chaparrals had used free shots to climb into that 27-all tie, as Smith hit four in a row, then got a bucket off a goal-tending call. Jim Steensma got two free shots with 7:21 left in the first half to knot the score, but Mike Anderson connected on a pair of free tosses, and the Tigers slowly pulled away.

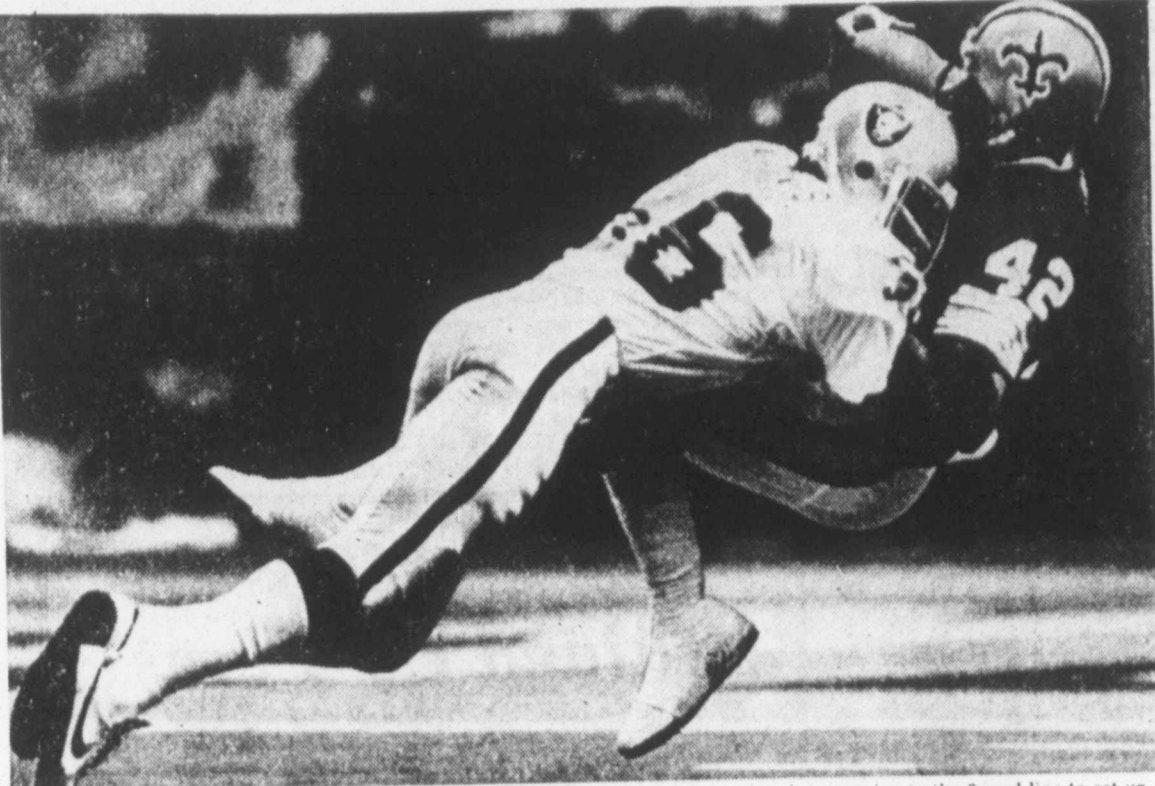

By halftime, the visitors had it 44-37.

Keith Gardner, operating close to the bucket, scored 25 points for the Chaparrals. He hit on nine of 17 from the floor.

Oakland Wins, Eyes Playoffs

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Oakland wide receiver Cliff Branch said he hoped the two late-game touchdown receptions that gave the Raiders a 42-35 victory over New Orleans would put him back in the good graces of coach Tom Flores.

Branch caught seven passes for 126 yards in the Monday night NFL game, but the last two were the keys — a 66-yarder that knotted the score at 35-all with 3:19 to play and an eight-yarder that made it 42-35 with just under two minutes left.

"Maybe this got me out of the dog house," Branch said after the game. Branch didn't explain why Flores started Rich Martini in his place Monday, but he said he wasn't disappointed that he had.

"I'm still part of the team," he said. "It takes 45 guys to win the game, and I'm still one of the 45."

The victory kept Oakland's hopes of a playoff berth alive.

"I just told our team we have a chance — just win the last three and, well, that's it," Flores said.

New Orleans has to count on beating San Diego and Los Angeles losing to Atlanta next week. That would set up a head-to-head Rams-Saints clash for the NFC West title.

"This is one of my most disappointing losses ever," said Saints coach Dick Nolan. "When you've got a 21-point lead, you've got to keep it."

The Saints had 21-point leads twice.

After Oakland went out in front 7-0 on a three-yard pass from Kenny Stabler to tight end Raymond Chester in the first quarter, the Saints went ahead 28-7 with a four-touchdown second quarter.

Fullback Tony Galbreath scored on a two-yard run 90 seconds into the second quarter and on a 17-yard pass from Archie Manning with just under five minutes gone in the period. Chuck Muncie scored on a one-yard plunge with four minutes left before intermission, and tight end Henry Childs took a 28-yard pass from Manning in for a score with 2:18 remaining.

But Oakland came back to make it 28-14 when Arthur Whittington scored as time ran out in the first half.

The Saints went up by 21 points again in the third quarter when linebacker Kenny Bordelon intercepted a Stabler pass and returned it 19 yards for a touchdown.

Mark van Eeghen narrowed it to 35-21 on a one-yard run with 2:01 left in the third quarter, and Oakland scored 21 points in the final period — all on passes by Stabler.

Tight end Derrick Ramsey scored on a 17-yard pass two minutes into the final

Russian Gymnasts Overtake U.S. Duo

FORT WORTH (AP) — The United States was wondering today what happened to the home gymnasium advantage.

Americans Bart Conner and Kurt Thomas, buoyed by a pro-American pep rally atmosphere in Tarrant County Convention Center, celebrated the first appearance of the World Gymnastics Championships outside of Europe Monday with a memorable display of precision in the compulsory events.

Following the afternoon session, Conner and Thomas were running 1-2 in the all-around and the Americans were just a notch behind defending champion Japan in the team title race.

Then, here came the Russians in the night session.

Soviet superstar Nikolai Andrianov, the defending champion in the all-around, almost fell off the horizontal bar and suffered an embarrassing 9.1 mark in the event.

The Americans sensed an upset. Then, here came 22-year-old Alexandre Ditiatin, picking up where the 27-year-old Andrianov, the "old man" of the Soviet team, left off.

Ditiatin was simply dazzling, particularly in the clutch. The potential heir to Andrianov's throne scored 9.95 in the final two events, the physically demanding rings and then the vault.

Andrianov saved face with the best mark of the day in the vault, a 9.95 that brought applause from the pro-USA crowd.

Ditiatin, the Soviet Union's No. 2 man in the 1978 World Championships in Strasbourg, France, finished with 58,900 points in the six compulsory events.

Conner had 58,750 and Thomas, 58,700.

Russia led the team competition with 293,000 points to Japan's 290,600 and America's 289,850.

The men resume competition Wednesday with optional performances in the same six events which will be added to the compulsory scores.

The women took the spotlight today in the compulsory competition with all eyes on Romania's Nadia Comaneci, the brilliant gold medal winner at the 1976 Olympics in Montreal. She was 14 then but is 18 now and rounding back into form after problems with her weight.

Orioles Talk Palmer Trade

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Baltimore Orioles, in an abrupt change in their position, have formally placed pitcher Jim Palmer on the trading block.

The hottest rumor at the major league baseball winter meeting in Toronto had Palmer going to Kansas city for right-fielder Al Cowens and one or two young pitchers not on the major league roster, the Baltimore Sun reported today.

"We're talking some now about Palmer," general manager Hank Peters said Monday. "We're going to find out how much interest there is in him."

"We've done a lot of soul-searching, and we want to examine all our options while we're here," said Peters. He emphasized, however, the talks are only exploratory.

"We might not do anything, and I don't think anything will happen, at least not in the next 12 hours," Peters said

Vermeil Downplays NFL Lead

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — "We're No. 1," the fans in Philadelphia are beginning to chant about their National Football League Eagles, but coach Dick Vermeil would rather they changed the subject for a little while.

"We're not No. 1 yet," Vermeil told reporters Monday at the weekly luncheon postmortem of what happened in the last game, a 44-7 trouncing of the Detroit Lions.

"But I am excited about where we are, and where we are going," he said of the Eagles' 10-4 record in the National Conference-East that assured them a playoff berth, the only NFL club to reach that lofty plateau so far this season.

"I know the players also are excited. I'm not really concerned about the playoffs, just the game this Saturday against Dallas," Vermeil said, noting that the Eagles will have a tougher time beating Dallas than Detroit.

"Even now I'm not relishing the 10 wins as much as I am worried about Dallas," he said.

"Ten wins was the goal we set in training camp (after last season's 9-7 record). It's a gratifying, humble and warm experience to reach that with two games still to go."

Vermeil said a playoff spot was definitely a plateau he had set for the Eagles in his fourth season as head coach, duplicating at least the wild card spot earned a year ago.

"I'm pleased with winning a playoff berth. That shows we have done something right. There was no gift win. This year we earned them with hard, disciplined football. And it will take a much better performance to play well — and beat Dallas. I still don't believe we have played our best football game this season. We're capable of playing better."

Vermeil said he has more plateaus to climb.

Lady Chaps Record First Win

It took an overtime, but the Lubbock Christian College women won their first basketball game of the year and history, Monday night, edging the Wayland Baptist College Queen Bees (junior varsity) 79-78.

The victory left LCC 1-6 and the Queen Bees 1-7. The Lady Chaps are in their first year as a cage program.

It was a foul-filled game, with each team being assessed 29 infractions. Wayland lost four players on fouls, LCC three, and Wayland had to play the last 2 1/2 minutes of overtime with only four performers.

It was tied 68-68 at the end of regulation after LCC had a chance to win but missed a free shot with two seconds remaining.

In overtime, however, the Lady Chaps never trailed.

Darla Lynch led LCC with 20 points and Sherry Williams followed with 17. Both women fouled out of the contest.

Wayland's Robin Potera scored 17 points before fouling out and Darla Merrill had 16 but she, too, fouled out.

Beating Dallas once is tough, and doing it twice is really rough, but it will be an exciting football game, and we've got an outside chance to beat those people. We'll give them all they can handle," Vermeil said.

Dallas, tied for second in the division with Washington, has been struggling this season and Vermeil was asked if he thought the Cowboys had overcome their problems.

"No," he replied. "Dallas has one more problem ahead — that's the Eagles. Problems are created by other teams."

Winning a playoff game. Last year Philadelphia was knocked out in the first round by Atlanta.

"I think we have a shot to win our division (for the first time in 19 years).

Aggie Excellence Ruined UT Plans

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas was a victim of Aggie excellence, says UT coach Fred Akers.

The Texas A&M Aggies ruined Texas' plans to go to the Sugar Bowl at New Orleans by upsetting the Longhorns 13-7 last Saturday.

"Texas A&M played very well. It's a shame they picked that day to play their best football game," Akers told his weekly news conference Monday.

Despite the loss, Texas will go to the Sun Bowl. Akers was asked if Texas players were unenthusiastic over playing in the El Paso bowl for the second straight year.

"The Sun Bowl is a great place to go. It's a top bowl and attracts top teams," said Akers. "The disappointment comes in that we had other places as our first choice."

The Southwest Conference will be represented in the Cotton Bowl by Houston, which shared the SWC title with Arkansas. Both had 7-1 conference records. Texas was 6-2.

Had Texas defeated A&M, Arkansas would have gone to the Cotton Bowl. Texas to the Sugar Bowl and Houston would have received a Sun Bowl invitation.

Texas, 9-2, will play Washington, also 9-2, in the Sun Bowl. Washington lost by only 24-17 to Southern California and also was defeated by Pittsburgh and Arizona State. The Arizona State loss, however, was reversed by a forfeit.

"We played well, although we had obvious breakdowns in our kicking game that we A&M more opportunities than they deserved," Akers said. A fumbled kickoff at the Texas 21-yard-line enabled A&M to score the winning touchdown before a record 81,000 crowd at College Station.

Akers said "serious preparation" for Washington would start Dec. 10, and Texas will fly to El Paso on Dec. 19, after final exams are over.

Akers said Adrian Price of Texas' specialty teams had surgery as a result of a knee injury in the A&M game and defensive tackle Steve Massey is on crutches with a severely strained ankle.

Texas' starting backfield missed the A&M game with injuries, but Akers said he "would assume" quarterback Donnie Little would play in the Sun Bowl.

Dye Resigns Over Conflicts

GREENVILLE, N.C. (AP) — East Carolina football coach Pat Dye, who resigned last week, says he left the school because he could no longer be loyal to athletic director Bill Cain and chancellor Thomas Brewer.

And the reason for that is "because I didn't think they were loyal to me."

Cain declined comment Monday on Dye's statements, saying only "I wish Coach Dye the best of luck. He did an outstanding job here and it's going to be a very difficult job to replace him. I'm sure he'll do a great job wherever he goes."

Dye, who has been at ECU for six years, now does not have a job.

Ralph Brewster and Jeff Taylor — were starters. Little finished with 21, Brewster with 19 and Taylor had 17. Sanders also had 17 and Smith, in only 12 minutes of playing time, wound up with 14.

Steve Lingenfelter led all scorers as he pumped in 24 points for the Raiders. South Dakota had only one other man in double figures — Bob Wenzburg who scored 17.

Lingenfelter also picked up a pair of technical fouls as did SDS coach Gene Zulk. But for all the complaining by the visitors, the fouls were almost dead even. The Raiders were whistled 29 times, the Raiders 28.

In fact, the Raiders went to the line 34 times to the Raiders' 33 visits. Both teams had three men foul out of the contest.

"The game was getting ragged and said Myers, "I thought they had called those fouls to keep them under control."

Wednesday Tech will host North Texas State in the Coliseum. Game time is set for 7:30 p.m.

Don Henry

stripped shirt, he worked basketball even longer, before giving up that sport four or five years ago. That was his decision, not the SWC's.

"I got out of basketball then (1975) because of all the travel, being gone six or seven nights a week. That was eating me alive. It (basketball retirement) should be earlier. Some conferences have a 52-year age limit in basketball."

WHILE A STUDENT — and athlete — at Abilene Christian College, Shorty began accompanying a friend, Hickman Duncan, who was officiating basketball games. Shorty got interested and jumped in. That was in 1941. "We'd officiate high school, elementary games... junior high... YMCA, anything they'd let us," Shorty recalled.

"But, why? Gosh, I don't know." Lawson didn't begin refereeing football until after World War II, and he followed the same high school and small-college formula to the NCAA level. He worked Border Conference games while Tech was in that Texas-New Mexico-Arizona circuit before he was admitted to the SWC club in 1951. In basketball, he was working high school games as well as in the Border, Southwest and Missouri Valley conferences.

It was in the Missouri Valley when he worked one of those memorable struggles which you can't dismiss with a Sominex and a long flight home. "It was back when Oscar (Robertson) was playing," Shorty recalled. "Cincinnati was number one in the country, Bradley number two. Who won? Sure, I remember Bradley, 91-90... in Peoria."

"Of course, I've worked 12 NCAA championships which you don't forget." Then, the Big Shootout, when Texas was No. 1, Arkansas was No. 2, and Nixon didn't know a Watergate from an irrigation canal.

"BUT, BASKETBALL is harder (to officiate). Much, much harder. It's not any worse physically, but every play is about like pass interference, so much judgment involved in every basketball call," said Shorty.

In basketball, too, the fans are only a few yards away, in a position — they think — to see as well as the ref. which makes for tons of boos and cups and ice and abuse.

"Heck, most of that... really, it's good-natured," Shorty remarked, leaning on his diplomatic license. "They don't mean it."

But, for the amount of abuse absorbed, the money is not all that great. So "I think I stayed in it because of the associations with the finest people in the world," Shorty said. "Coaches... players... fans... just the associations. You remember most of the good things."

"But, heck, it's just a lot of fun."

BUT, THE WEAR AND TEAR — I enjoyed it, I really did. But, by the time you go 60, 70 nights a year, it gets tiring.

"No telling how many games I've worked or how many miles I've traveled. I've been as far away as St. Louis and Houston and gotten back in time for work the next day. Took some driving some times, but I did it."

But, sure, I'll miss the heck out of it, no use saying I won't. I've often wondered, if I had known when it started, I would have kept a diary, but...

That colorful volume would record working 14 straight Texas A&M-Texas basketball games back in the late 1950s-early '60s... Becoming, with fellow Abilenean Curley Hays, possibly the best known officiating duo in the conference... Hearing the Star Spangled Banner in dozens of bowl games... At 5-7, stepping between bruisers a foot taller and 100 pounds heavier to mediate temper eruptions... Enduring long drives and plane flights in the early hours of the morning to make the regular morning work call...

The diary would have to be long — but stuffed with enough technicals and offensive motions to last a lifetime.

Jerry West scored 25,192 points during his career with the Los Angeles Lakers of the NBA.

AT LAST, OUR RABBITS ARE MULTIPLYING LIKE RABBITS.

It seems that all the world loves our Rabbits—so much so, that we at Montgomery Motors, weren't able to keep up with demand—fill now!

We've boosted our Rabbit production, and new 1980 Rabbits are arriving daily.

Test drive a 1980 Rabbit, and you will be owning one a lot sooner than you think.

JUMBLE THAT SCRAMBLED WORD GAME

by Henri Arnold and Bob Lee

Unscramble these four Jumbles, one letter to each square, to form four ordinary words.

THROBE

Now arrange the circled letters to form the surprise answer, as suggested by the above cartoon.

Answer: THEY

(Answers tomorrow)

Yesterday's Jumbles: OFTEN SWASH LIQUOR STUDIO
 Answer: Why they all laughed when he sat down at the piano—THERE WAS NO STOOL

Jumble Book No. 13, containing 110 puzzles, is available for $1.75 postpaid from Jumble, c/o this newspaper, Box 34, Norwood, N.J. 07648. Include your name, address, zip code and make checks payable to Newspaperbooks.

Youths Arrested In Shootout

BALTIMORE (AP) — Four teenagers have been arrested after a noon-time shootout in a crowded high school cafeteria that left three persons wounded, police said.

Three youths who were not students walked into the cafeteria of Eastern High School on Monday and exchanged gunfire with a 17-year-old youth, according to police. The shootings reportedly stemmed from a series of confrontations between two gangs, one of the victims told school security guards.

It was lunch period when (the) out-iders came into the cafeteria through a side door," said Leon Billie, assistant chief of school security. "These guys came in and immediately started shooting. The initial report from a victim is it was a grudge-type thing."

A clip with six live cartridges was found on the cafeteria floor and two live .25-caliber shells were found under a table, investigators said. Police said they believe four guns were displayed during the confrontation, although none has been recovered.

About 250 students were in the cafeteria when the shooting broke out at 12:20 p.m. The school's principal Elzee C. Gladden, later briefly explained the shooting to students over the school's public address system and dismissed classes.

The youth who was seated in the cafeteria when he was confronted "ran out of the cafeteria to the school office and we got him there," said police Lt. John Boyle. The youth was shot in the left shoulder and was listed in fair condition Monday night after surgery at Union Memorial Hospital.

One of the outsiders, a 16-year-old, was wounded in the right thigh, ran from the school and collapsed about a block away, Boyle said. He was admitted in satisfactory condition to Johns Hopkins Hospital.

A third youth, an innocent bystander who was eating lunch with the apparent focus of the shooting, was left lying in the cafeteria. He was released from Johns Hopkins Hospital after being treated for a stomach wound, police said.

Two other youths, ages 15 and 17, were apprehended by police Monday.

History Of Sponsors Of Tragic Concert Reveals Controversy

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Electric Factory Concerts, sponsor of the Cincinnati "Who" concert in which 11 persons were killed by a stampeding crowd of rock fans, was born in controversy more than a decade ago.

But despite anti-trust suits, canceled concerts, a reported grand jury investigation, and the wrath of a black promoters' group, the Philadelphia-based organization continues to gross about $14 million a year, officials say.

Electric Factory, which dominates the local pop music entertainment market and sponsors concerts all over the Eastern United States, began as a rock club in an old concrete-floored Philadelphia tire warehouse.

Herb Spivak and his two brothers opened the club on Feb. 2, 1968, after a visit to the Electric Circus in New York City. To book the increasingly important rock groups, the Spivaks brought Larry Magid, a Temple University graduate then in his mid-20s, back from New York where he had been working with a booking agency.

Cowboys Fight For Rodeo Championship

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — The battle between young upstart wrangler Paul Tierney and five-time national champion All-Around Cowboy Tom Ferguson intensified Monday with Tierney beating Ferguson in head-on steer wrestling competition at the National Finals Rodeo.

Tierney, a Rapid City, S.D., native, won Monday's go-round in steer wrestling, adding 40 points to his quest for the All-Around Cowboy title. His 4.5 second time nipped Ferguson's 5.2-second bid for a win.

Tierney and Ferguson, a Miami, Okla., cowboy, are now tied in their bout for the All-Around title with 90 points each. The All-Around title, as each national title, will be decided by the contestant with the most winning points after 10 go-rounds of competition. The rodeo, which began Dec. 1, is scheduled through Dec. 9.

In other close competition, Lynn McKenzie of Shreveport, La., pulled ahead of longtime rival Carol Goostree of Verden, Okla., for the women's barrel racing title. Miss McKenzie won Monday's go-round, giving her 95 points toward the title compared to Miss Goostree's 70.

The team of Don Kimble of Douglas, Ariz., and Kent Winterton of Gilbert, Ariz., pulled far in front of the competition for a team roping title. They have placed first in each go-round for three consecutive nights.

Dog's Efforts To Save Bedridden Master Fail

NEWPORT, Tenn. (UPI) — When Beatrice Hale collapsed and died of a heart attack, her bedridden brother was unable to fuel the wood stove that was their home's only source of heat.

For two freezing days, Kenneth Hale was kept alive by his mongrel dog Bimbo who huddled on his master's chest and provided enough warmth for Hale to survive until officers arrived.

But Bimbo's help was not enough. Hale, 63, died Monday at a hospital of cancer and exposure.

Police had found him in his rural home Sunday, lying helpless on the floor with his dead sister nearby.

Cocke County Sheriff Bobby Stinson called the scene "about as bad as you want to see."

Authorities were called to the old house on Cave Church Road Sunday when neighbors saw no smoke and no activity in the home. Officials smashed down the locked door to get in.

The officers found Hale, clad only in a shirt, lying on the floor. Bimbo was sitting on his chest barking. The house had no electricity.

"All they had was the wood-burning stove. It was not that they couldn't afford electricity, they just didn't want it," said Nora Henry, a neighbor who gave the family the dog, described as small with some "beagle in him."

Tom Poe, director of the Ambulance Service, said the dog's body heat apparently kept Hale alive until help arrived Sunday.

Bimbo was taken to a neighbor's home for care.

"That dog dearly loved Mr. Kenneth I suspect he sensed something was wrong," she said. "We knew something was wrong. My husband went over there and the door was locked from the inside. He also heard Bimbo in there barking."

Stinson said the woman apparently suffered the heart attack Friday, since a bag of groceries she bought then was sitting on a table.

Temperatures dipped into the teens in the area during the weekend and Stinson speculated the home had been without heat since Friday when the fire died out.

Stinson said it was colder "inside the house" than outside. The sheriff said the brother had apparently worked his way out of bed and tried to crawl to the sister.
