

SALT Pact Urged By West Germany

Defeat Seen As 'Crisis' For Allies

WASHINGTON (AP) — A divided Senate wrangled over the significance of the Soviet troops in Cuba on Wednesday as West Germany's defense minister cautioned that rejection of the SALT II treaty would create a "real crisis" for European allies.

A band of senators, most of them Democrats, held the Senate floor for more than an hour, demanding that the strategic arms limitation treaty with the Soviet Union be considered on its own merits and not be linked to the presence of Russian troops in Cuba.

Meanwhile, critics of the treaty continued a drumbeat of complaints about President Carter's handling of the Cuba issue, calling his response to the Russians disappointing, weak, inadequate and uninspired.

In a Monday night address to the nation, Carter announced that negotiations with the Russians had failed to produce an agreement that would change the status of the Soviet brigade in Cuba. He pleaded with the Senate to ratify the SALT II treaty without regard to the situation in Cuba.

NATO Wants Treaty

West German Defense Minister Hans Apel backed up Carter's contention that European allies in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization want the Senate to approve the SALT treaty.

"You cannot underestimate the necessity of SALT ratification for the future of NATO," Apel told reporters after a White House meeting with Carter's national security adviser, Zbigniew Brzezinski.

He said failure of the treaty would make the nations of Western Europe less willing to accept modern nuclear missiles to counter Soviet SS-20 missiles now being deployed.

Would Accept Missiles

He said West Europeans are willing to accept the more powerful missiles on their soil if ratification of the SALT II treaty points the way to the eventual reduction of missiles on both sides.

Without SALT II, many European nations would be unwilling to deploy new missiles for fear of provoking the Soviets to deploy even greater numbers of missiles aimed at Europe.

"We need SALT II being ratified, and if that does not happen, then NATO will be in a real crisis," Apel said.

The debate over whether the SALT II accord should be linked to Soviet actions in Cuba raged unabated on Capitol Hill.

Sen. Thomas Eagleton, D-Mo., said concern over the presence of less than 3,000 Soviet soldiers in Cuba has been "blown into a matter of such enormity that one would think we were on the brink of some international catastrophe. The current frenzy over Cuba should not, in my opinion, impact upon the thoughtful and rational analysis which SALT deserves."

Sen. Donald W. Riegle, D-Mich., said attempts to defeat the treaty by linking its consideration to the Soviet brigade "are nonsense if not worse."

"Anyone who finds comfort in accelerating the development of nuclear weapons (by defeating the treaty) really ought to have his head examined," Riegle said.

Crisis Fiction Hinted

Riegle predicted treaty foes will find a new crisis to block ratification of the treaty "when this particular tactic fails."

Sen. Charles McC. Mathias, R-Md., praised the president's decision to increase intelligence surveillance of Cuba and to give more attention to economic needs of the Caribbean area.

But Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, an outspoken critic of the treaty, called the brigade a Soviet challenge and said Carter's response is "empty of content or tangible result."

"Declaring at the outset that the status quo was unacceptable, President Carter, after a month of rationalization, ineffectual posturing, accommodation, hand wringing, and chaos has declared that the status quo is acceptable — the troops will remain," Tower said. "Only our perception will change."

Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., said he believes it would be wise for Carter to admit he made a mistake in saying that the status quo was not acceptable.

"Nonetheless, I think a case has been made that by our actions the status quo has been changed," he said.

HRC Sticks With Plea For Renaming Street

By DEBBI STALTER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

THE ISSUE of renaming Quirt Avenue to honor Martin Luther King Jr. was passed back to City Council Wednesday by members of the Human Relations Commission.

City Council members voted in a workshop session last week to ask the HRC to reconsider its request to rename the street in honor of the late civil rights leader.

Interrupts Alphabetical Order

The council suggested the commission find an alternate way of commemorating King because of a 30-year-old city ordinance requiring streets east of Avenue A to be named in alphabetical order after trees and shrubs, although the word "quirt" is defined as a riding whip.

HRC member Joan Ervin voiced strongest objection to complying with the city request and made the motion leading to the commission's decision to stick with its original request.

"We have asked for a specific thing," Mrs. Ervin said of the council's decision, adding that trying to find an alternate method of noting King's efforts would be settling for something other than what the HRC really wants.

"Settling For Less" Disputed
HRC member Mark Bass, however, pointed out that naming another project, such as a park or lake, after King did not seem to be "settling for something less," saying that the commission's purpose was to honor King, regardless of what was named after him.

Included in Mrs. Ervin's motion passed by the commission was a clause telling the City Council that the HRC supports a public hearing on the issue. The hearing will be scheduled at a future council meeting.

In other action, commission members heard a request for input into the selection of a new president for Texas Tech University.

The request came from National Organization of Women representative

Catherine Allen, who asked the HRC for help in finding a means of determining whether the presidential search committee was considering candidates supportive of minority recruitment at the university.

Miss Allen noted that more than 80 percent of faculty members employed at the university are white males, leaving very little room for women or minorities. However, she said she did not have information regarding how many minorities or women had applied for faculty positions at the university.

HRC members voted to ask the presidential search committee for a chance to present a letter at a committee meeting asking that presidential candidates be polled on their attitudes toward recruiting minority and female students and faculty.

Copies of the letter will be sent to the Tech board of regents and interim President Dr. Lawrence Graves.

Pope Urges Strict View Of Standards

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Pope John Paul II, welcomed "home" Wednesday to this historic city he had visited in the 1976 Bicentennial, admonished the largest American crowd he has seen to follow the strict moral standards of their past.

Thousands were at Philadelphia's airport as the papal jet "Shepherd I" touched down in bright sunshine from rainy New York at 2:07 p.m. CDT. Hundreds of thousands lined the streets into the city. And police said a million or more were at the pope's open-air Mass in Logan Circle.

At the airport, one group of youngsters held placards forming the words "Philadelphia Welcomes Pope John Paul II With Love," and with a nod from Cardinal John Krol, they turned over the cards to repeat the message in Polish.

On the ride into the city, shouts of "Papa! Papa!" greeted John Paul in largely Italian South Philadelphia, and balloons of papal gold and white drifted skyward.

Along Broad Street, flags of Philadelphia's blue and yellow, America's red, white and blue, Poland's red and white, and the gold and white of the Vatican, fluttered in the breeze.

"He's a God-sent man. He's everybody's man," Clara Brown said as the motorcade passed by St. Rita's Church, where the 73-year-old Baptist woman and other senior citizens eat each day as part of a church-run program.

On his arrival at Philadelphia International Airport, the pope referred to the city's nickname, saying "Philadelphia means brotherly love."

Mayor Frank Rizzo called the pope "our source of joy — our hope for the future" in his welcome address.

And Gov. Richard Thornburgh, recalling that Pennsylvania was founded on the basis of religious freedom, greeted the pope as a "spiritual Pennsylvanian," and said: "Welcome Home."

The pope himself recalled his 1976 visit as archbishop of Krakow at the Cathedral of Sts. Peter and Paul. And in the homily of his Mass at Logan Circle, he noted that Philadelphia was the home of the Declaration of Independence and said he found in the document "strong connections with basic religious and Christian values."

The pontiff also spoke of Christian values in regard to sex, defending priestly celibacy and emphasizing that sex was sinful outside marriage.

"There can be no true freedom without respect for the truth regarding the nature of human sexuality and marriage," he said, adding that the traditional rules apply to "the whole of conjugal morality."

John Paul was interrupted by applause 10 times during his homily, both when he mentioned sex and celibacy and when he spoke of human freedom. The first interruption came as he quoted from the Pledge of Allegiance: "One nation under God, indivisible and with liberty and justice for all."

Youth Nabbed As Hobbs Bank Heist Suspect

A-J Correspondent
HOBBS, N.M. — Police have arrested a 15-year-old Hobbs youth in connection with the robbery of a bank in a local shopping mall Wednesday afternoon.

The teen-ager, armed with a shotgun, entered the Broadmore Mall office of the New Mexico Bank and Trust Co. about 2:04 p.m. (MST) and escaped with an undetermined amount of money.

The young man was picked up for questioning about two hours later after Hobbs police traced him to a relative's home. He was arrested after about three hours of questioning by police and was being held at the Hobbs police station late Wednesday for juvenile authorities.

Hobbs police reports show the youth entered the two-teller facility with a coat draped over his arm to conceal his gun. He reportedly walked behind a teller's window and took the cash from a drawer.

The youth fled on foot through the northeast door of the mall.

The main office of the New Mexico Bank and Trust Co. in downtown Hobbs was robbed about a year ago by a unemployed oil field worker who told police and FBI two days before the incident that he was going to commit the crime because he wanted to go to federal prison.

Police Brace For Cyclists

THE LUBBOCK Criminal District Attorney's office alerted local law enforcement agencies Wednesday that the Banditos motorcycle gang may come through the Lubbock area today on the way to a motorcycle rally in Ruidoso, N.M.

Criminal District Attorney John Montford would not elaborate on preparations but said local agencies would be "prepared to handle any contingency."

"We certainly don't want to glorify this bunch, but in case the need arises, we will be able to handle any situation," Montford said.

Montford would not disclose where he obtained information on the infamous motorcycle gang, just that "we have our intelligence sources."

School Speaker Told To Remove Religious Data From Program

By KIM COBB

Avalanche-Journal Staff

LOCAL SCHOOL district officials instructed a visiting motivational speaker to remove religious material from the program he was presenting at student assemblies this week after they received complaints from two school principals.

Principals at Coronado High School and Evans Junior High School warned officials for the Lubbock Independent School District that speaker David Stockwell had included religious material in assemblies at their schools Tuesday morning.

But Gib Weaver, director of secondary education for the LISD, said that Weaver was instructed to remove the controversial material before the second assembly at Evans.

Speakers Screened

Weaver screens all speakers for the district's secondary schools. He said he contacted principals at schools where Stockwell had spoken and they praised the program. None of them mentioned the religious content of the program, he said.

"We have tried our best to curtail any kind of religious speaking in the schools," LISD superintendent Ed Irons said.

Irons said the request for Stockwell to remove the religious content of his program had nothing to do with the recent suit filed against the district by the Lubbock Civil Liberties Union seeking a ban on all forms of religious exercises in Lubbock public schools.

"Of course, we're more conscious of it," Irons said. "That's for sure."

Weaver said that Stockwell never would have been approved as a speaker had he been described as presenting a religion-oriented program. Weaver heard him speak after Stockwell was asked to eliminate the material and was very pleased with the presentation.

Rice University Graduate

Stockwell, a graduate of Rice University and former all-state football player, travels extensively giving his motivational talks to young people. The assemblies are free of charge and his expenses are paid by a board of directors composed of businessmen.

His promotional brochure describes his program as dealing with problems faced by many young people, such as alcohol, drugs and promiscuity. The brochure mentions that Stockwell promotes patriotism as well as moral strength.

His presentation to Atkins Junior High School consisted of about 10 minutes of humor, 10 minutes of discussion on moral issues and 10 minutes of Stockwell's own background and personal experiences. At the end of the presentation, Stockwell asked the school's athletes and cheerleaders to remain behind for a few minutes.

He distributed passes to the students who remained behind, asking them to give them out to their friends. The passes admit students to a free pizza party featuring Stockwell and Rick Stanley, billed as Elvis Presley's brother.

Dan Grindstaff, public relations representative for Stockwell, said the young speaker would be "definitely more specific" on religion at the pizza party.

"We understand the limitations of what can be done in the schools," Grindstaff said.

Stockwell's motivational approach was considered a good tie-in to the Council of PTA's "accentuate the positive" theme this year, Weaver said. He sent a memo to the district's junior high and high school principals saying Stockwell would be available for assemblies if they were interested. Each principal schedules his or her own assemblies, Weaver said.

Stockwell spoke before assemblies at Coronado and Evans Tuesday; and Atkins and Hutchison Junior High Schools on Wednesday.

He will speak before students at Matthews Junior High School today at 10:30 a.m.

Lubbock Man Surrenders In Standoff With Police

By KIM PALMER

Avalanche-Journal Staff

A 31-YEAR-old Lubbock man, who called local law enforcement agencies threatening to "shoot it out" at the police department and to kill Criminal District Attorney John Montford, was arrested Wednesday afternoon after pointing a gun at police and patients near his father's medical office.

The man was arrested after police confiscated a .45 caliber revolver, .357 magnum revolver, 16 gauge shotgun and more than 300 rounds of assorted ammunition found in his car. The suspect also had a large combat knife strapped to his right leg. Police said the guns were loaded and ready to fire.

No one was injured in the incident and the man was taken to Lubbock County Jail and later transported to Methodist Hospital for psychiatric observation. He could face charges of unlawful possession of a weapon and aggravated assault on a police officer.

The incident began when Lubbock County Sheriff's Deputy Sonny Keese received an anonymous telephone call about 10 p.m. Tuesday night. The caller told Keese the suspect was threatening to kill Montford.

Police then received a call about 11 a.m. Wednesday that the suspect had left a southwest Lubbock residence and was coming to the police department to "shoot it out."

Moon Rock Loss Cited

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Substantial quantities of lunar rock samples brought back from the moon by the Apollo astronauts are missing, according to an internal audit by investigators for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

The report also said a $2.2 million facility built to protect the samples was a waste of money, and that records showed scientists possessing lunar samples even though the researchers have been out of the sample analysis program for years.

About 843 pounds of samples were brought back from the moon. The audit report, obtained by UPI Wednesday, indicated "substantial quantities are unaccounted for or missing."

But Dr. Bevan French, in charge of extraterrestrial materials for NASA, said in response to the report that there is no indication large amounts of lunar samples have been lost. He said early records were not adequate and there is an

Tornado, High Winds Kill One In Connecticut

WINDSOR LOCKS, Conn. (AP) — One person was killed and at least 81 were injured when a tornado struck without warning Wednesday, leaving a path of smashed buildings and wrecked airplanes and trucks.

Gov. Ella Grasso declared an 8 p.m. to 5 a.m. curfew and ordered 100 National Guardsmen because of what she said was "grave concern" about security in damaged areas after nightfall. She said she had heard some reports of looting.

Helicopters were used to take out the injured, with most of them going to Hartford hospitals.

Damage to planes at Bradley International Airport could be as much as $100 million, said Robert Carrier, chief of aeronautics for the state Department of Transportation.

Dr. Douglas Lloyd, state health commissioner, originally said there were two deaths, but later changed that to one, adding that a report of a second death was being investigated. No details were available. He said 10 of those injured were in critical condition.

Mrs. Grasso, who lives one block from the damaged area, said she was "absolutely horrified. ... You only see it on television and here it is happening to my neighbors. I know everyone who is personally affected." She flew in by helicopter from Hartford.

Kathy Clark, WTIC radio's traffic reporter, said from a helicopter that only foundations were left at some houses.

The tornado hit shortly before 3 p.m. and left a five-mile path of destruction up Route 75 from the Poquonock section of Windsor to the Bradley Air Museum at Bradley International Airport. Interstate 91, the major north-south route from New Haven to the Canadian border, was closed at Windsor Locks, midway between Hartford and Springfield, Mass.

"It's unbelievable it came so fast," said Margie Fisher, 26. "I was scared stiff. We looked out the door and saw everything going. Wood was flying from the gas station across the street. It was really scary."

In a McDonald's restaurant, patrons ducked under tables. "There were three of us under one little table, including the guy who said they didn't have any tornadoes here," said Bob Bickar of Toledo, Ohio.

Ten-year-old Michelle Levesque, interviewed at an evacuation center in Windsor, said she was at a neighbor's house with two other girls when she heard rain and a loud noise.

"And then the house caved in," she said. She was thrown through a kitchen window and suffered two broken ribs and a broken arm.

A steeple at the Poquonock Elementary School was driven into the school roof, but the 350 students had gone home at 1:30 p.m. as scheduled on Wednesdays. Principal Neal Osborne said a Brownie troop was meeting at the school, but the only injuries were scratches suffered by two girls.

Doug Rubenstein, a spokesman for Mt. Sinai Hospital in Hartford, said most injuries were from "people getting tossed around or cut by flying glass."

"I've never seen anything like it," said a woman who was in her house when the storm hit. "I never want to go through anything like it again."

The Bradley Air Museum, including huge former military craft and one-of-a-kind planes, was destroyed as planes were thrown about. About 25 planes ranging from World War II bombers to more recent jet fighters were in the museum's outdoor display.

Aircraft were also damaged at Bradley International Airport, which closed.

Twenty National Guard helicopters were destroyed, said Air Force National Guard Master Sgt. Bob Martin, adding that 18 planes at a nearby flight school probably cannot be repaired.

Martin noted that the museum had recently acquired a B-29 that had been 60 percent restored after 2,000 man-hours. Now, he said, "there is nothing left of it."

Short Course On Transistorized Auto Ignition Systems Set Here

A 12-hour short course in service and repair of transistorized automotive ignition systems is scheduled for presentation in Lubbock Oct. 15-18.

A part of a continuing series offered through the Texas State Technical Institute's mobile automotive program, the four-evening course will be taught by James R. Calamon.

The sponsoring organization here is the National Distributing Co., and classes will be from 7 to 10 p.m. at the firm's facilities, 1012 17th St.

Topics to be covered include function and design of original equipment transistorized systems; disassembly, testing and trouble-shooting the various systems; use of special diagnostic instruments to pinpoint malfunctions; and most common malfunctions encountered in solid state systems.

The class will be limited to 30 students and enrollment will be on a first come, first served basis. The $20 fee payable to TSTI covers tuition and cost of all materials for the course. Persons wishing to attend should contact Jim Lindsey at 744-1215.

Bergland To Visit Foreign Countries

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland plans to visit six countries in the Middle East and Europe next month, his office said Wednesday.

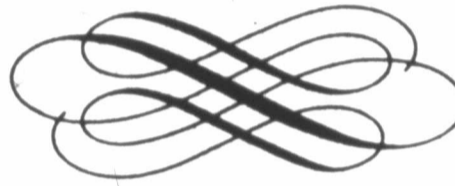

The first stop on the trip Nov. 2-21 will be Egypt, where Bergland will confer on trade and technical assistance, the announcement said.

Bergland will stop in Israel before he visits Rome Nov. 10-16 for a meeting of the Food and Agricultural Organization. He will be in Sweden Nov. 16-18 for trade discussions and tours of farms, and then will go to Hamburg, West Germany, for the opening of a U.S. trade office.

Murder Trial Jury Decries 15-Year Prison Term In Slaying Of Airman

By KAY BELL, Avalanche-Journal Staff
 A 99th District Court jury Wednesday evening sentenced Annie Fay Williams to 15 years in prison after finding her guilty of voluntary manslaughter in connection with the June 2 stabbing death of a Reese Air Force Base staff sergeant.

The eight-woman, four-man jury deliberated 2 1/2 hours Wednesday afternoon before returning with the second-degree felony conviction, then spent another hour and 45 minutes deliberating punishment. Miss Williams had been charged with murder, a first-degree felony, in the death of William H. James.

Prosecutors Travis Ware and Everett Seymore said that Miss Williams intentionally stabbed James seven times the night of June 2. However, defense counsel Tony Wright argued that the 21-year-old defendant attacked James, 30, in self defense after he started a fight with her and struck her as they were traveling along West 4th Street in his car.

Wednesday morning, Miss Williams testified that after finishing work at the Lubbock State School about 10 p.m. June 2 she took her young daughter and returned James's car to him at the base. She said she had borrowed the car the park. James's body was found in the vehicle, strapped in the seat belt and shoulder harness behind the steering wheel, by the security officer, Sgt. Clay Riley.

Riley said James was dead by the time the security officer arrived and sheriff's deputy Sony Keese testified that seven stab wounds were found in James's body, including a wound in the heart area and three deep gashes in his stomach.

Seymore argued that it was unreasonable to assume that James, who was driving the car and whose movement probably was limited by the seat belt, was able to assault Miss Williams with enough fierceness to require she react with "deadly force."

Ware elaborated on that argument, noting Keese's testimony of the multiple wounds, especially the wound near the heart that pierced a rib. Ware added that Miss Williams could have attempted to "pacify" the situation rather than stab James and that prosecutors had no way to refute her testimony because "she killed our direct evidence."

Wright, however, argued that prosecutors did not prove the intent to kill necessary for the panel to return a murder conviction. In support of his argument, Wright pointed out Riley's testimony that Miss Williams told the Reese officer she stabbed James, "but I didn't want to; he wouldn't quit hitting me." Wright said she frequently had used James's car during the 13 months they dated.

Court Finds Area Man Guilty Of Sexual Abuse

After only 23 minutes of deliberations Wednesday afternoon, a 140th District Court jury found Ralph Edward Williams guilty of the sexual abuse of a 7-year-old boy in April.

Williams, 26, of 1315-B 30th St., will be sentenced by Judge William Shaver after the judge reviews pre-sentence reports. The second-degree felony conviction carries a maximum 20-year prison term.

Prosecution witnesses during the three-day trial included the youngster, who told the jury he and his four-year-old stepbrother were playing outside Bean Elementary School the afternoon of April 7 when a man confronted them.

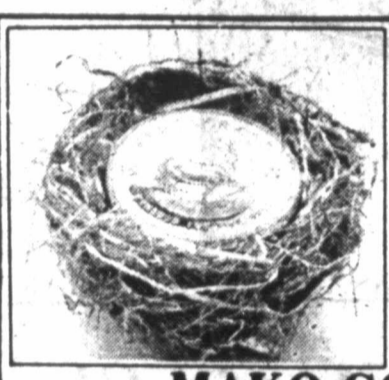

When lead prosecutor Rick Howell asked the boy if he saw the man in the courtroom, the tiny youngster, seated atop a book placed on the witness stand chair, immediately pointed at the defendant.

The boy said the man told him and his stepbrother to follow him to a secluded cul-de-sac at the school, across the street from Williams' house, and told the boys if they did not follow his orders "he was gonna have to get rough."

Howell and co-prosecutor Clint Averitte also called the boys' older sister, who was babysitting that afternoon, to the stand. The 13-year-old said she found the boys at the school yard after the incident, scared and crying.

Defense attorneys Clifford and Mike Brown argued that Williams was innocent of the charge on grounds of insanity. They called five psychological expert witnesses in support of their defense, in addition to the defendant, who admitted to being involved in numerous previous child molesting incidents. Williams also testified to being convicted of a federal child molestation offense.

Before closing, however, the prosecutors called a local psychiatrist as a rebuttal expert witness concerning a person's responsibility for his actions.

Cold Front Begins To Lose Its Grip On South Plains

A cold front that brought brisk winds and chilly temperatures to the South Plains earlier this week will begin losing its grasp over the area today, as the winds slacken and the mercury begins another rise.

Highs today across the area are expected to reach near 80, about 5 degrees warmer than Wednesday's high of 73 in Lubbock. Winds that blew in at more than 20 mph Wednesday will slow to 5 to 10 mph.

The weather should become slightly warmer as the week continues, with highs expected to rise about five degrees each of the next two or three days.

The extensive cold front that stretched the entire length of the state Wednesday was pushed through the area by a high pressure system building across the lower Midwest and Rocky Mountain areas. That system is expected to shove the front on through the state and leave clear skies and sunny weather.

Temperatures across the state Wednesday ranged from 66 at Dalhart to 104 at Del Rio, while most places enjoyed readings in the 70s and 80s.

Dallas Converting Buses To Bunnies

DALLAS (AP) — The response to Dallas' two downtown buses that are decorated to look like bunnies has been good, but there's no rush to convert the rest of the fleet.

The bunny buses sport rabbit ears and painted-on whiskers, mouth and nose. They symbolize the inexpensive "hop-a-bus" service that takes passengers around the downtown area.

Marketing director Jerry Johnson said conversion of the other buses in the downtown-only fleet is a "low priority" item, but eventually will be accomplished.

"When you've got a winner, there's no sense changing," Johnson said.

AN EDITORIAL:

Mr. Carter's Cuban Cop-Out

MOST AMERICANS, we feel, will not be reassured by President Carter's handling of the Russian-Cuban combat force issue. While the President sought, in his nationwide address, to soften the impact of up to 3,000 combat-ready Soviet soldiers only 90 miles from U.S. shores, he missed a golden opportunity to "set the record straight" on several counts. This was particularly so as regards making it clear, once and for all, that the U.S. will tolerate no foreign intrusion into the Western Hemisphere, no matter what. Also, Mr. Carter failed to hold up for world scrutiny the role of Cuban forces as "hired guns" for Moscow's adventures in Africa.

unit" for 17 years—since the Cuban missile crisis—even was given a degree of credence by the President. For several days, and in his speech, the President has asserted that the Russian force has been on the island for several years, "at least since the mid-1970s." If this is so, aside from the fact that it seeks to shift the "blame" for the troops' presence to the backs of Presidents Richard Nixon and Gerald Ford, then Mr. Carter should start beefing up the gutted CIA and whatever other intelligence apparatus we have left, now that the bleeding hearts, liberal Congressmen and misguided media types have all but dismantled it. If indeed there have been 3,000 Soviet combat troops in Cuba—only minutes from Florida—for several years undetected, then how in heaven's name can we say that we can verify what the Russians are doing 6,000 miles away under SALT II?

IN BRIEF, the President had a chance, with a worldwide audience looking on, to reassert his role as a true leader willing to stand up to world Communism's grand design, and as a man willing to speak up for what's right morally, as well as what's expedient politically. It was the President and Sec. of State Cyrus R. Vance, it should be noted, who almost a month ago finally admitted that there was at least one fully equipped armored brigade of Soviet troops in Cuba. "We can not accept the status quo," both the White House and the State Department said. This was broadly interpreted, at home and abroad, as meaning that the current status of Soviet troops in Cuba would not be tolerated. Yet, in effect, this is precisely what has happened. Russia, at least publicly, did not back down, did not change one thing one iota. Instead, it was Mr. Carter, as he has done in Ethiopia, in Zimbabwe-Rhodesia, in Afghanistan, in South Yemen, in Iran, who in effect backed down.

WHICH BRINGS us to the other part of the President's address, his pitch for peace—which we endorse—and his method of achieving it, which we do not. Actually, despite movement of American forces to Guantanamo, beefing up Florida bases and the threat to block the "export" of Marxism to other Caribbean and Latin American nations, Mr. Carter's main appeal was for ratification of SALT II. And despite his own administration's argument that the Cuban-Soviet combat issue should not be linked to SALT II, he himself did just that in his nationwide address. We do not dispute that both the U.S. and Russia as the world's two superpowers capable of "killing one another ten times over," must find a way to live in a volatile Nuclear Age.

THE ARGUMENT, put forth by Cuba's Fidel Castro and the Russians, that the Soviet force has been in Cuba as a "training force" is the answer. While holding out false hopes for a slowdown in the nuclear arms race—a hope based on the Soviets' honesty—the fact is that the Russians have built the world's most powerful military machine under SALT I and have not kept one single agreement they have made, all the while using Cuban forces to fight their "wars of liberation" for them.

But, we do not think SALT II, as now drawn up, with its obvious advantages to the Russians, who already have military superiority, is the answer. While holding out false hopes for a slowdown in the nuclear arms race—a hope based on the Soviets' honesty—the fact is that the Russians have built the world's most powerful military machine under SALT I and have not kept one single agreement they have made, all the while using Cuban forces to fight their "wars of liberation" for them. In summation, President Carter should have demanded—on penalty of trade sanctions, blocking of SALT II and the threat of future military action to keep this hemisphere secure—that the Russian troops be withdrawn. But, that was too much to expect of an administration which has failed to stand up for "what's right" for America hardly anywhere in the world.

A Sweet Truth?

SWEETS are bad for the teeth, as everyone knows. But everyone may be wrong. Preliminary research results from National Geographic researchers suggests that chocolate actually may have some effect in blocking tooth decay. If this proves true, it certainly will be a welcome relief from the recent trend of research, which is to find just about anything and everything edible a threat to health. But it is to be hoped that marketing entrepreneurs don't get carried away in exploiting the discovery. Some things might take considerable getting used to—like chocolate toothpaste.

ART BUCHWALD:

Vance Should Butt Out Of Our Foreign Affairs

WASHINGTON—Poor Secretary of State Cy Vance. He doesn't have anything to do any more since everyone else seems to be handling our foreign policy. He was in his office last week and asked his administrative assistant, "How are the Middle East negotiations going these days?" "We have no idea. They are being handled out of Atlanta by the Southern Christian Leadership Conference. They promised to call us if there was a break with Arafat." "Any news on a cease-fire in Lebanon?" "We're waiting for Rev. Jesse Jackson to get back from his fact-finding tour of the area. There is no sense in us getting into it if he doesn't approve of the terms." "WHAT ABOUT the Soviet troops in Cuba?" "Sen. Church of Idaho and Sen. Stone of Florida have taken over that one. They're dealing directly with the President. I called the White House this morning and they put me on hold." "Okay, brief me on what's happening in Vietnam." "As you know that's Jane Fonda's area. She wants to recognize Vietnam now, but Joan Baez doesn't want to until some effort is made to solve the plight of the boat people. We can't seem to get the two of them to agree on what our policy should be." "Have we taken a position on this?" "WE'RE TILTING toward Joan Baez, but I don't think we should go public with it as there is no reason to get Jane Fonda upset. It will just harden her attitude and make it more difficult to come to an accommodation with her." "Who is watching the Rhodesia situation?" "Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina. He sent his aides over to London for the talks which our people, incidentally, couldn't get into. Helms wants the United States to lift our embargo on Rhodesia immediately. Andy Young disagrees, unless the insurgents have a voice in the new government." "I'm sorry to hear that. I was hoping to have some input in the Rhodesia problem as it will certainly affect what eventually happens in South Africa." "I SEE your point, sir. But as you know the U.S. Secretary of State shouldn't involve himself in foreign affairs unless invited to do so. Helms and Young don't want us meddling there." "I'm sure there must be some place where the State Department could be helpful." "We did have China until Nixon went over last week." "What did he find out?" "He wouldn't tell us. He said he's saving it for his next book." "It looks like a long day ahead for me. Is there anything I can do about SALT II?" "Not until Sen. Sam Nunn of Georgia decides what he wants to do. If we get into the SALT talks at this moment the Senate would have a fit." "DARN IT, Peter, if the Southern Christian Leadership Conference has taken over the Middle East, Jesse Jackson is in charge of Lebanon, Jane Fonda is dealing with Vietnam, the Anti-Defamation League is handling Israel, Andy Young is working on Rhodesia, Church and Stone are dealing with the President on Cuba, and Sam Nunn is directing the SALT talks, how will the rest of the world be able to figure out what this country's foreign policy is supposed to be?" "We have a committee meeting on that right now, sir. We hope to get a report to you as soon as Brzezinski in the White House reads it." "Okay, so what am I supposed to do today?" "Would you like to look over these passport applications, sir? They're from a tour group planning on going to Rio de Janeiro for Mardi Gras."

Timely Quotes...

It's time to update cliches for the football season: "The left side of the line opened a hole big enough to drive a truck through—if fuel had been available." You might know there's a new Jimmy Carter doll. It takes one step forward, one step backward, two steps sideways and hands you a penit. Overheard: "A guy comes up to me on the street. You know where Central Park is? No? Well, I'll mug you here." Overheard: "My husband and I never argue about money. But we do fuss a lot about the lack of money."

ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK:

Born-Again Church

WASHINGTON—Sen. Frank Church's sudden transformation to hard-line, anti-Soviet tough guy over troops in Cuba, now that he faces a difficult re-election campaign in conservative Idaho, has not only diminished his stature with old liberal friends but—more surprisingly—with conservative enemies as well. Far worse, the administration complains. President Carter's negotiating flexibility with Moscow shrunk when the chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee took it on himself to set the terms: The new strategic arms treaty (SALT II) was dead, he trumpeted, "while Soviet combat troops remain in Cuba." Whatever the shrinkage of Carter's flexibility, Church has very nearly ruined chances for treaty ratification. Thus, by taking the confidential tip from Under

Secretary of State David Newsom Aug. 30 and converting it into what one Senate colleague calls "Church's big issue," he has reached a fateful point in his quarter-century Senate career. Having finally achieved his youthful goal of the chairmanship once held by Tom Connally, Arthur Vandenberg and Walter George, he has removed himself from the SALT II playing field for the sake of Idaho politics. He is now irrelevant to the treaty debate. Instead of praise and prestige enjoyed by those titans of the previous generation, Church is ridiculed behind his back in the Senate and administration. On the Senate floor, Majority Leader Robert Byrd recently spoke to Sen. George McGovern in a voice overheard by several other senators: "You made great good sense in what you said about SALT and the Russian troops being two separate issues."

HENRY J. TAYLOR: Etna At It Again

WASHINGTON—Mount Etna again has erupted. At 10,703 feet, it is Europe's highest and most active volcano—erupting 29 times since 1869. Volcano expert Haroun Tazieff, one of the Italian and international officials who helicoptered over Etna, said: "Rocks, ash and lava blew into the sky, the lava stream moving about 200 yards an hour along a 150-yard front. This is faster than earlier flows. Very fluid, it climbed over previously solidified lava. It is Etna's strongest eruption in 20 years." Tazieff and his experts considered aerially bombing Etna's craters for a new crater opened half way up the eastern slope.

WHILE PUBLICLY uncommitted on SALT, Byrd is expected to wind supporting it and obviously resents Church's defection. While there are compelling reasons to link SALT with overall Soviet policy, Byrd has privately pressed several Democratic senators—one of whom opposes the treaty—to speak out against Church's SALT-troops linkage. Byrd has told Carter that SALT may be a good or bad treaty but should be judged on its own merit, not as a campaign issue tied to Cuba. At lunch in Secretary of State Cyrus Vance's private State Department dining room, Byrd's point was driven home. "I am sorry that the situation of the Soviet troops has become so politicized by certain people," a key congressman said. "It is too serious to politicize." There was no need to name names, including Frank Church's; Vance said he completely agreed.

ONE METHOD the experts discussed was building a dike of boulders to divert the lava. But villagers opposed this on the grounds that it would destroy whatever was left of their livelihood—apple and nut orchards. Another was bombarding the craters from the air to close them from the flowing lava. However, the experts rejected this. Moreover, Tazieff and the experts feared what they call a "nue ardente"—an incandescent volcanic ash cloud smashing on Etna's slopes at about 100 m.p.h. In 1902 one such cloud swept through Martinique's St. Pierre island, killing all but one of the inhabitants.

BUT CHURCH'S transformation to protector of the West from the Soviet menace has not endeared him to serious politicians of the right who have watched the Soviets turn Cuba into a worldwide enforcer of Soviet-style communism, and a budding military power. One defense-oriented Democratic senator complained that Church has "trivialized" the U.S.-Soviet struggle by his "simplistic" demand for the brigade's withdrawal. Sen. Sam Nunn of Georgia, another pro-defense Democrat with an increasingly important voice on U.S. security, did not refer to Church but told us that the real Soviet-Cuban problem transcends the Soviet brigade in Cuba.

MOUNT ETNA is on Sicily's east coast near the Strait of Messina, the mile siver separating Sicily from Italy. In 996 B.C. the eruptions kept Carthage's army from reaching Catand and the 1381 catastrophe sent the lava flow as far as the sea. The 1852 flow took many lives. The 1928 eruption buried the village of Mascali. The 1971 flow threatened many villages, destroying orchards and vineyards. Geologists figure Mount Etna has been active at least 2 1/2 million years. Like all active volcanoes, its height varies. In 1965 the summit was 170 feet higher than in the early 1970s. Mount Etna covers about 600 square miles; the circumference is about 93 miles at the base. It is built upon clay more than seven million years old.

Nunn and other SALT-skeptic Democrats insist on linking SALT with the Kremlin's conduct, but they have more in mind than just one brigade. "I SEE IT in terms of Roman numerals," Nunn told us, "and I do not even list the Soviet brigade under Roman numeral I. The real issue is Castro subsidized by Moscow to send Soviet surrogate troops around the world." "The brigade issue comes under Roman numeral II, but even there it must be listed below the Soviet MiG 23s and Soviet submarines now assigned to Cuba." Church's credibility as a liberal genuinely worried about the Soviet-Cuban menace is not helped by the effusive praise he heaped on Castro after his 1977 visit to Havana. Such doubts were reinforced by his performance in the Senate last week on an amendment by Sen. Robert Dole. The Dole amendment would have cut off U.S. payments for operating the Panama Canal if Soviet or Cuban troops "are stationed in Panama." The amendment failed, 50 to 45, and Church voted against it.

MARCH 1869 saw Mount Etna's most violent eruption, about a million cubic yards of lava. It opened a fissure above the town of Nicolosi and later formed a 150-foot-high double cone, now named Monte Rossi. Moreover, that was the first attempt to divert the flow of lava; workers above Catania village dug a deep trench. But more than 500 armed men could not save Catania. The volcanic summit collapsed, forming an 8,000-foot circular crater.

Church's credibility as a liberal genuinely worried about the Soviet-Cuban menace is not helped by the effusive praise he heaped on Castro after his 1977 visit to Havana. Such doubts were reinforced by his performance in the Senate last week on an amendment by Sen. Robert Dole. The Dole amendment would have cut off U.S. payments for operating the Panama Canal if Soviet or Cuban troops "are stationed in Panama." The amendment failed, 50 to 45, and Church voted against it.

YOU UNDERTAKE the best ascent in the summer or autumn and the climb of about 21 miles from Nicolosi takes seven or eight hours. But you find that a 8,000-foot cable car runs to the building called Torre del Filosofo. This is a Roman ruin Italians believe commemorated Mount Etna's ascent by Emperor Hadrian. For countless centuries, men, women and children have persisted in living on Mount Etna's slopes, knowing that it might erupt, smashing them into oblivion. But, just the same, they remain.

WHEN WE asked why, Church told us the matter was dealt with separately in one of the Panama Canal treaties and that the Dole amendment was "unnecessary and a political gimmick." Political gimmickry is what Church is accused of practicing in setting the troop withdrawal as the price Carter must extract for his SALT treaty—gimmickry making him an election-year tough guy telling Moscow where to go. Some politicians think it could boomerang in Idaho, but it has already left him a loser in the Senate. The fresh-faced young lawyer from Boise who came here in 1957 determined to follow Idaho's William Borah as a senator molding his nation's foreign policy is far from that goal today.

JAY HARRIS:

The Haig And U.S.

FORMER SUPREME Allied Commander Alexander Haig may not get to first base in his "probable" quest for the GOP presidential nomination. But, he plans to have a lot to say about the man who not only winds up in that spot, but the Democratic nominee, the direction of the campaign debate and whoever the White House occupant may be in the 1980 election. The former chief of U.S. forces in Europe and immediate past head of NATO made that point quite clear in an exclusive interview with us last week after his hard-hitting talk to the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce's annual shindig. "As of right now, yes, I'm definitely interested in the 1980 election, as a concerned American and as a probable candidate," Haig said in his blunt, outspoken manner only minutes after his address. "I think it's time someone spoke up."

THAT SOMEONE and that time is here and now as far as the affable veteran of U.S. service around the world, including Southeast Asia, is concerned. Haig not only has been on "the firing line" during the Vietnam conflict and "under the nuclear gun" in seeking to keep U.S. and NATO forces ready in Western Europe, but he has seen high pressure politics first hand. It was in 1973 that Gen. Haig was called upon to rebuild the White House staff after the Watergate affair started coming apart at the seams. Brought in on a temporary basis, Haig remained on as permanent chief of staff at former President Richard Nixon's request. And he served in that capacity until Oct. 15, 1974 when President Ford recalled him to active duty to become Commander in Chief, U.S. European Command. On Dec. 15 of that year, he was named Supreme Allied Commander in Europe and is regarded as the finest NATO chief since Dwight Eisenhower.

HAIG BEGAN his undergraduate study at Notre Dame in 1942. He was appointed to West Point in 1944 as a member of the last World War II class. In 1949, he started his meteoric military career, serving as administrative assistant to Gen. Douglas MacArthur's chief of staff in Japan and later with the Tenth Corps, in Korea. Later, he was to be military assistant to Sec. of Army Cyrus Vance and as deputy special assistant to Sec. of Defense Robert McNamara. In 1967, he was sent to Vietnam where he earned the Distinguished Service Cross. In 1969, as a colonel he returned to the U.S. where he was senior military advisor to presidential advisor Henry Kissinger. He held several other posts and took part in historic events, such as advance plans for Nixon's visit to China and the Vietnam peace talks. In brief, former Gen. Haig "has been around."

AND IN getting around, history, past and present, has not been lost on the obviously well-read, cultured Haig. His formal address, if anything, is too erudite for the average voter. But, if he does step over the line and become a formal candidate, one suspects he also has the capacity for "gut fighting" if it becomes a part of the game plan. At one point in his address, he decried what he saw as "too many people today going about our land offering snake oil solutions" for what ails us on both the domestic and foreign scene. At another point, he warned: "We must have new leadership that understands that our sterile involvement in Southeast Asia is over. But that leadership also must understand that the isolationist attitude that followed that period also is over." Then in the same breath, he added, "But so should be our sackcloth and ashes attitude. It must not be considered immoral to be strong..."

THE FORMER general, whose crisp military bearing remains beneath an easy-going but forthright one-on-one manner, harbors no illusions about Russia's growing military might. "With or without SALT II," he says, "the United States will be deficient—vis-a-vis the Soviets—between 1982 and 1989 in strategic nuclear power..." Haig said he did not fear the danger of nuclear war so much as the White House occupant's ability to deal with "the lower levels of pressure," being initiated in Africa, the Mideast and Iran by Moscow. The general pulls no punches in making it clear he feels the Carter Administration has pursued a policy of appeasement and weakness in all three areas of confrontation with the Russians or their agents, such as the Cubans.

HAIG HAS NO illusion about the world of politics. After all, he survived Watergate. And while here, he paid high tribute to another survivor of those days in White House, Jerry H. Jones, the man who was in charge of the tapes. Jerry and his wife and young son now live in Lubbock. Haig describes Jerry as "a man who has done more for his country with less recognition than anyone I know..." In addition to his many other attributes, Haig has one which will stand him in good stead as the frenetic pace of the 1978 fray heats up. It is a sense of humor. Relating the incident in Europe just before he retired from active duty in which he narrowly escaped death from a terrorist group's bombing of his car, Haig told how at one point certain members of the Carter Administration had wondered out loud about his political plans. After the bombing, he said he told Sec. of Defense Harold Brown that he "hadn't realized he had generated so much attention as to justify such drastic action from those loyal to the administration... But then, it was so badly muffled, I wasn't so sure!" Gen. Haig may wind up laughing "all the way to Washington, either as the GOP's No. 1 or No. 2 man."

Polish News Media Pressured For Pope's Travel Coverage

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Poles are eagerly following the travels to Ireland and the United States of "their" pope, and the state-controlled news media have been hard-pressed to satisfy public demands for coverage.

Generally, the press has avoided comparisons between Pope John Paul II's reception in the United States and his homecoming last June, which received about twice the coverage in Polish media, including live transmissions of papal Masses.

But the coverage of the Irish-American trip is roughly four times as Polish newspapers, from the tiny Roman Catholic weekly Tygodnik Powozyczny to the Communist Party's daily Trybuna Ludu, have been carrying detailed accounts of the pope's travels.

Polish television's evening newscasts have devoted from four to five minutes to papal coverage. But that's not enough for many people in this staunchly Catholic nation.

"I wish Polish TV carried some live transmissions of the pope's reception," said mechanic Krzysztof Dzik. "Those few minutes in the evening news can't satisfy us. He is our Polish pope, and we want more of him."

Chrysler's $400 Rebates Renewed For Vehicles

DETROIT (AP) — Chrysler Corp. says it is renewing $400 rebates on its vans, pickup trucks and four-wheel drive vehicles.

"We are anxious to reduce dealer stocks of trucks before announcement day (the first day of official sale for 1980 models)," Jack Givens, director of marketing, said Tuesday.

The heavily promoted $400 rebates, which had ended Sunday, reduced the troubled No. 3 automaker's directly owned inventory from about 80,000 cars and trucks to 25,000, as of last week. Chrysler has about 17,000 trucks left over from the 1979 model year.

The election last year of Cardinal Karol Wojtyla of Krakow as history's first Polish-born pope presented unusual problems to communist censors, who must approve every word published legally in this country.

For years Wojtyla and other church leaders fought unsuccessfully for more than minimal access to government-controlled press, radio and television.

But Wojtyla's popularity among Poland's 35 million people forced the government to bend its rules on coverage of religious affairs. Polish television covered Wojtyla's coronation live and gave extensive coverage to his visit here in June.

"I'm not especially religious," said student Lidia Jarocka. "But I'm so moved when I see how the world respects and loves him."

Trybuna Ludu, the official party paper, started the story on Page One, but published most of its account of the pope's New York appearance on inside pages.

Zycie Warszawy, owned by the government, sent its own reporter with the papal party and prints more than 1,000 words a day on the pope's activities.

It wryly noted that only one U.S. television network will show the pope's Mass in Washington live "while the two other channels will have football."

Most papers published accounts by the Polish news agency PAP, which carried 2,500 words of excerpts from the pope's speech at the United Nations, including all major points, such as pope's stance on human rights.

But Polish reports emphasized the pope's remarks on a Middle East settlement.

Some Poles, worrying about their pontiff as parents fret about children away from home, have been watching for signs of fatigue.

"We remember he promised to come to Poland again in 1982," said housewife Teresa Dabrowska. "But if he works so hard, he might not make it."

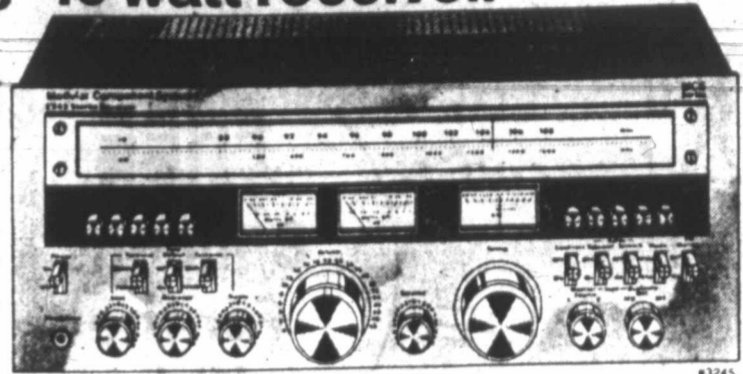

"He's had a strained and heavy time this year," added one priest. "It's good our pope always was an athlete, for who could stand as much work as he does?"

Ethics Committee Says Witnesses May Have Lied

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Ethics Committee said Wednesday it believes one or more witnesses lied under oath during testimony in the investigation of Sen. Herman Talmadge.

Other violations of law, including making false claims against the government and conspiring to defraud the government, also may have occurred, the committee said in its final report on the 14-month investigation of Talmadge.

But the panel did not single out anyone who it believed lied or committed any criminal violation. Its report said only that it had turned over its files on the Talmadge case to the Justice Department, which has jurisdiction over criminal matters.

"Should the Department of Justice find evidence leading to the indictment or conviction of any member, officer or employee of the Senate, the committee will take such additional action as is appropriate," it said.

The investigation had earlier led the panel to recommend that the Senate denounce the Georgia Democrat's conduct as "reprehensible" and as a "gross neglect of his duty."

The committee also recommended the Senate require Talmadge to repay $12,895 plus interest for overcharges made by his office of his official expenses. And it recommended he pay the interest on $43,438, which the committee said his office improperly collected through expense overcharges.

Talmadge said he considers the committee's final report "a personal victory" for him because "there is no finding of willful or intentional misconduct on my part." He said he has "no reservations whatsoever" to the Justice Department examining the committee's files and testimony presented to the panel.

But Talmadge also said he has not decided whether to fight the committee's recommendations on the Senate floor. The senator had contended earlier that the recommendation to "denounce" him rather than to "censure" him was a personal victory.

Although the term "censure" carries no automatic loss of privileges, the Senate has traditionally considered it the severest punishment it can give to a member.

There also was no indication when the Senate might act on the committee's recommendations.

The panel's report asserted that the testimony of some witnesses "conflicted in material respects" with the testimony of others.

"The committee must conclude, therefore, that one or more of these witnesses (not all of whom are Senate employees) gave false testimony under oath," it said.

It said certain testimony, if true, and certain documents, if authentic, "would indicate that other serious violations of law have occurred."

Among possible violations listed by the committee were:

- The making of false statements to the government.
- The making of false, fictitious or fraudulent claims against the government.
- Willful evasion of income and gift taxes.
- Failure to keep adequate records as required by the Internal Revenue Code.
- Failure to comply with the requirements of federal election laws.
- Receiving campaign contributions in a federal building in violation of federal law.

Much of the 39-page report was taken up in listing testimony received and evidence accumulated in the investigation. The probe involved 27 days of public hearings, 36 witnesses and 292 exhibits.

As in the previous report, the final one did not link Talmadge directly with any intentional wrongdoing. It said only that he "knew or should have known" that certain improper activities were taking place in his name.

But in a separate report, Sen. Harrison Schmitt, committee vice chairman, said he believes the evidence shows "that Sen. Talmadge knew that some campaign funds were being diverted" and that he "personally received at least $2,550 in unreported campaign contributions."

Schmitt, R-N.M., cast the lone committee vote for a recommendation that Talmadge be censured.

Talmadge testified he did not know about the excessive reimbursements and that those overcharges were the result of errors by his staff.

Daniel Minchew, the senator's top aide from 1971 through 1974, had testified he set up a secret bank account on Talmadge's orders and that he furnished some $39,000 in campaign contributions and reimbursements of Senate expenses into the account to benefit Talmadge and the senator's family.

Minchew acknowledged he also took money from the account but claimed his withdrawals were reimbursements for expenses and that Talmadge knew of his actions.

Committee auditors determined that Minchew received about $18,000 from the account and that some $18,000 of the total could not be accounted for.

Talmadge denied any knowledge of the account and claimed that Minchew, who had pleaded guilty to making false claims against the government, was a "liar, cheat and embezzler."

Famed Churchill Speech Delivered By Impostor

LONDON (AP) — Winston Churchill's famous speech, "We shall fight on the beaches... We shall never surrender," was broadcast to the world June 4, 1940, by an actor impersonating him, the British Broadcasting Corp. confirmed Wednesday.

Churchill delivered the stirring speech to the House of Commons that day, and recorded it later along with his other major speeches.

But June 4 was one of the darkest days of World War II. Churchill was preoccupied with the Dunkirk evacuation, France was about to fall and America's entry into the conflict was still 18 months away.

He was too busy to record a speech, so the job went to BBC repertory actor Norman Shelley, now 76, who told the London Daily Mail how it happened:

"I was a fan of Winnie. I had imitated his voice around the BBC. Someone must have remembered this, because they summoned me to the old Transcription Service studios near Regent's Park, gave me a copy of his speech, sat me down, and told me to get on with it."

"It was just another job. As I recall, I did it in a couple of takes."

A BBC spokesman told The Associated Press the speech was heard overseas, but was not broadcast in Britain.

Shelley's impersonation was approved by Churchill before it went out. "Very nice. He's even got my teeth right," he reportedly said, referring to a rattling noise his teeth made.

"I was sworn to secrecy about the whole thing, but I can't see that it matters now," said Shelley, who lives in London.

The full quote from the famous speech is: "We shall not flag or fail. We shall fight on the beaches, we shall fight on the landing grounds, we shall fight in the fields, and in the streets, we shall fight in the hills. We shall never surrender."

It was one of many that stirred the hearts of millions once Churchill took over as wartime prime minister in a coalition government.

On May 13, 1940, he said: "I have nothing to offer but blood, toil, tears and sweat."

With the capitulation of France on June 18 came the immortal words: "Let us brace ourselves to our duties, and so bear ourselves that if the British Empire and its Commonwealth last for a thousand years men will say 'this was their finest hour.'"

On Aug. 20, he said in honor of the Battle of Britain pilots: "Never in the field of human conflict was so much owed by so many to so few."

Sir Winston Churchill died Jan. 24, 1965, at age 90.

Ex-CIA Director Pie-Toss Target

UPPER MONTCLAIR, N.J. (AP) — Former CIA Director Richard Helms was almost hit by a pie as he spoke at Montclair State College, college police said.

Aron Kaye of New York, a self-described Yippee, claimed responsibility for the attack, saying the banana cream pie missed its mark and hit the podium in Memorial Auditorium.

Kaye said he threw the pie in "re-primar for Helms's... multiple violations of international law" during his tenure under former President Richard Nixon.

Helms, who is also a former U.S. ambassador to Iran, declined to press charges against Kaye, college police said.

Juror's Remark Causes Mistrial

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — A potential juror said he thought it was "stupid" to be in court over what he termed a "$250 larceny." Other prospective jurors applauded and an angered judge quickly declared a mistrial.

The strange chain of events occurred in Albany County Court when a panel of 200 men and women were in Judge Joseph Harris's courtroom undergoing questioning during jury selection. Three men were accused of shoplifting $161 worth of men's suits from Sears, Roebuck & Co.

Louis-Jack Posner, attorney for defendant George Peters, asked the potential jurors if any of them had undergone any "bad experience" involving the court system.

An unidentified male panelist said he did not like the present experience very much. He said he considered it "stupid" to tie up so many people over what he termed a "$250 larceny." About a third of the panelists applauded.

Attorneys gasped Harris shot back that prospective jurors see only part of the judicial process. He termed it "only a link in a chain."

Letter Leads Officials To Poisoned Pools

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — Health officials, warned by a bizarre anonymous letter, said Wednesday that hundreds of people may have been exposed to a suspected cancer-causing chemical deliberately dumped in three swimming pools.

Traces of Silvex, a powerful herbicide, and the chemical 2,4-D, which contains the suspected carcinogen dioxin, were discovered last week in a pool at Oakwood Gardens North, a 1,000-unit complex in west San Jose. Tuesday, similar traces were found in two pools at Oakwood Gardens South, a 780-unit complex about a mile away.

So far nobody has reported ill effects from swimming in the contaminated water.

Both apartment complexes are owned by R&B Enterprises, but officials said they did not know why the two were chosen by the pool poisoner. Police said an investigation had turned up nothing.

In a letter opening with the phrase "Days of Orange," the apartment manager at the North complex and the San Jose Mercury News were warned that chemicals had been placed in the pools.

"This deedis demo to unamed reguatory agency of my wherewithall to force justice from them. Will name when their

Wrong Turn 'Miracle' Affords View Of Pope

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Nancy Tipka and her three children were looking for a good place to see Pope John Paul II on Wednesday when Mrs. Tipka made a wrong turn.

"I thought I was driving towards the bridge and I made a wrong turn and ended up here where he's going to land," she said.

"It's a miracle." Mrs. Tipka's error led her to the area of Philadelphia International Airport where the pope's plane was scheduled to stop.

She said she brought her children — two in elementary school and one in junior high school — because, "I think it would be a good experience for them."

"Some of the young people are getting away from the church and I think this may bring them back."

Defense Chiefs, Carter In Agreement

WASHINGTON (AP) — Many people believe generals and admirals always urge blunt military responses to end a diplomatic impasse, but sources say U.S. defense officials concurred with the modest measures adopted to deal with the Soviet troops in Cuba.

From a military standpoint, the moves announced by President Carter essentially preserve the "status quo" in Cuba — the status of the Soviet troops will not change. Pentagon sources said this situation was endorsed by Carter's military advisers.

The sources would only discuss the decision-making on condition that they not be identified by name.

"Clearly, this was not the kind of situation where you'd think of using force," said one member of the small group who helped put together a reported 30 possible military, economic and diplomatic options for Carter's consideration.

While this adviser would not discuss specific options, he indicated that on the military side they involved largely a set of demonstrations and exercises that would point up U.S. capacity to marshal its military might.

For now, Carter is avoiding any response that might trigger a harsh Soviet reaction. Thus, the closest thing to a show of force is a Marine landing exercise scheduled for mid-month at the U.S. naval base in Cuba's Guantanamo Bay.

"That's something we used to do annually," said a civilian official. He made it clear he regards the exercise as no big deal and expects no reaction other than rhetorical bluster from the Cubans and Russians.

The 1,600 to 1,800 U.S. Marines are to be pulled out of Guantanamo after about four weeks. Defense officials believe this will keep the demonstration from becoming provocative.

In his speech Monday night, Carter repeated Soviet assurances that the Russian unit of 2,000 to 3,000 men "will not be a threat to the U.S. or to any other nation."

But U.S. officials continue to regard the Soviet brigade as a combat unit, and one senior defense official said, "Our interpretation of those assurances is that they (the Russians) will not give that brigade a power projection capability, such as airlift or sealift, that would permit the brigade to be used elsewhere in the Western Hemisphere."

Another official said that if the Russians or Cubans "show any signs of exporting a combat force, we will stop it." He did not say how.

Administration sources say Carter not only avoided a blunt military response to the Soviet troop issue, but he also rejected any options that smacked of economic warfare against Russia.

Under this heading, officials said, Carter decided against granting trade concessions to China while denying them to the Soviets.

Also, sources said Carter blocked a proposal to clamp tighter restrictions on the export of advanced technology to the Soviet Union while easing curbs on such exports to China.

Privately, most military officials consider the basic elements of the U.S. response to the Soviet troop controversy as symbolic rather than substantive. Yet the military men say these moves have real value.

A step-up in monitoring Cuban and Soviet military activities can be accomplished from planes and ships operating outside Cuban airspace and waters, providing better information-gathering at minimum risk.

Carter vowed improvement of U.S. capabilities for rapid deployment of military forces, but this already is a top military priority, and Carter's move is not considered dramatic. In any event, it probably will take years to show significant results.

Creation of a new Caribbean task force headquarters to plan and conduct expanded military maneuvers in that region and its establishment at Key West, across the Florida Straits from Cuba, are seen as perhaps the most cosmetic of the president's moves.

The job assigned to this new headquarters could as easily be done by the Readiness Command, which has been in business for years at MacDill Air Force Base, also in Florida.

"I wouldn't discount the importance of symbolic actions," said a Pentagon official concerned with Latin America. "Many Latin Americans feel that in recent years we have tended to neglect that area."

Citing the recent ouster of a pro-American government in Nicaragua and a possible ripple effect elsewhere in Central America, this official said, "We would have had to reassess our security efforts in that area, whether or not the Russian brigade was present in Cuba."

Oil Testing Block Discovered Empty

HOUSTON (AP) — A Tenneco Inc. subsidiary reported Wednesday it has plugged and abandoned a dry hole an 18,300-foot wildcat test in the Baltimore Canyon area 90 miles southeast of Atlantic City.

Tenneco Oil Exploration and Production said shows encountered in the test drilled in 379 feet of water on Wilmington Canyon Block 495 were non-commercial. Further details were not announced.

Tenneco and two other companies paid $6.37 million for the right to drill on the block, the highest bonus payment made in the second federal lease sale for the Baltimore Canyon area last February.

Tenneco holds a 50 percent interest in Block 495 as operator. Free Oil Co., a subsidiary of Freeport Minerals, and Transco Exploration Co. each hold 25 percent.

Witnesses Say Davis Received Urgent Call From McCrory

By MIKE COCHRAN

FORT WORTH (AP) — Millionaire defendant Cullen Davis received an "urgent," unmonitored telephone call from informant David McCrory in the critical hours before his arrest, two defense witnesses testified Wednesday.

The witnesses, current or former employees of the Davis-owned Frigette Corp., said Davis took the call at 9:55 p.m. on Aug. 18, 1978.

Seven hours later, Davis met McCrory for the first of two tape-recorded meetings that resulted in Davis' Aug. 20 arrest.

McCrory previously denied making such a call. Equally as important, the defense contends, FBI agents said they were unaware of such a call.

"McCrory was acting behind the backs of the FBI ... at a time when he was under their direction and control," defense lawyer Steve Sumner said.

"He was conducting his own plan and scheme ... and he was not honest with the FBI about his activities."

Earlier, Art Smith, 51, president of the Davis-owned Jet Air Corp., said Davis told him five days before his arrest to fire McCrory "if he doesn't straighten out."

However, on cross-examination, Smith conceded that he hired McCrory only at Davis' suggestion and that he would have fired him, except for his friendship with Davis.

The relationship between Davis and McCrory looms as a pivotal issue with the jury in the Fort Worth industrialist's murder-for-hire trial.

McCrory, the defendant's onetime friend-turned-informant, contends Davis got him the job at Jet Air to camouflage a scheme to kill a divorce judge and others.

Davis insists the job was legitimate, but says one reason for hiring McCrory was because he had information he considered useful in his pending divorce trial.

A month before the divorce trial, on Aug. 20, 1978, investigators arrested Davis and accused him of plotting the contract killings of Judge Joe Eidsen and his then-estranged wife, Priscilla.

The defense maintains Mrs. Davis, her friend, Pat Burleson and McCrory conspired to frame Davis, 46.

Smith, the eighth defense witness, said he interviewed McCrory on May 23, took him to a sales meeting in Atlanta two days later, and put him on the payroll June 12.

McCrory told the jury Davis indicated he wanted him to go to Atlanta because he would be contacted there by hired killers.

However, he said, the trip was uneventful.

"Prosecutors sought to show on cross-examination that, through his friendship with Davis, McCrory's association with Jet Air was suspect from beginning to end.

"You would not have hired him but for the fact he was a friend of Cullen Davis?" a prosecutor asked.

"Yes, sir," Smith replied.

"You would have fired him but for the fact he was a friend of Cullen Davis?"

"Yes, sir."

Smith also conceded that McCrory was "in some ways" an exception to the policies governing the billion-dollar Davis empire.

The Jet Air executive said McCrory was permitted to drive his, Smith's, company car for more than two months and that his work habits were erratic.

"Did he seem to be particularly concerned that you were unhappy about his taking off?" Smith was asked.

"No," he responded.

A prosecutor asked him if he ever told McCrory, "I don't know what you have on Cullen Davis, but I'm certainly glad."

Smith said he had not, and the subject was dropped.

Romantic Intrigue Hinted In Hidalgo Lawyer Trial

EDINBURG (AP) — Lawyers for the State Bar of Texas questioned several witnesses Wednesday in an attempt to link Hidalgo County District Attorney Oscar McInnis romantically with a woman whose ex-husband he allegedly wanted killed.

McInnis faces possible loss of his license to practice law due to allegations of professional misconduct and abuse of his office.

The bar alleges the longtime prosecutor asked a jail inmate to arrange the hired murder of Noe Villanueva, a former husband of Patricia Parada.

Jurors in the disbarment trial have heard taped conversations in which McInnis allegedly discussed the plot with inmate Daniel Rodriguez and said he would ask Miss Parada to lure Villanueva to Mexico and his death.

Villanueva was not killed.

FBI agent Teresa Caywood testified

she and former FBI agent John Caldwell trailed McInnis and the woman last spring shortly before the two were indicted on federal murder conspiracy charges. Those indictments later were dropped but McInnis and Miss Parada still face a federal trial on charges of lying to the grand jury about the alleged plot.

Lawyers for McInnis in the civil disbarment trial discounted the FBI surveillance as establishing nothing except an attorney-client relationship between the prosecutor and Miss Parada.

McInnis had represented the woman as a private attorney in a bitter child custody fight with Villanueva.

Two of Miss Parada's former co-workers at a medical clinic said McInnis frequently called her at work. And an employee in the district attorney's office said Miss Parada visited McInnis at work about "100 times" in 1977.

Sheriff's Department Working To Identify Mutilated Woman

DENTON (AP) — A Denton County artist and a sculptor will try to recreate the face of an elderly woman while sheriff's officers search for the person who killed her and hacked her body to bits.

Capt. Dwight Crawford of the Denton County Sheriff's Department said the artist and sculptor were recruited from nearby Texas Woman's University. He said they would be working with pathologists trying to identify the woman.

Texas Highway Department mowing crews initially found several body parts on Highway 380 near Krum, about four miles from here.

They called Denton County Sheriff's deputies, who scoured the area for seven hours Tuesday afternoon. Highway Patrolmen and deputies found body parts scattered along 17 miles of Highway 380 between Denton and Decatur.

Crawford said the woman's teeth and eyes had been removed, possibly to thwart identification.

Investigators said the body parts may have been thrown from a moving vehicle at various overpasses along the roadway that runs between Denton and Wise counties.

Crawford said Denton County pathologist Dr. Lloyd White would perform an autopsy on the woman.

"It will take a day or two for the pathologist to work on what they have so far, which isn't much," Crawford said.

"I don't know if we have a complete body yet," he added. "I don't know what all we've found. All I know is we've found a dismembered body and you'll have to take it at that."

"Tentative identification from the pathologist indicated a middle age to elderly white female," he said. "We have zero suspects."

Crawford said he has received very few calls from the public on the case.

"Usually, the phone is ringing off the wall," he said. "But (Wednesday) we haven't heard a thing."

Ruling Expected On Death

A ruling is expected this morning from Justice of the Peace Wayne LeCroy on the death of Pamela Ann McCrary, 34, of 3115 35th St., police said Wednesday.

Miss McCrary was found dead Tuesday at her apartment by her father, Post Mayor Giles McCrary Sr., after he became concerned about her welfare. The woman reportedly had been dead several days and an autopsy was ordered.

Private graveside services for Miss McCrary, a member of the Sweet Adelines singing group, will be at 1:30 p.m. today in Terrace Cemetery in Post with burial under the direction of Hudman Funeral Home.

A memorial service will follow at 2 p.m. in Post Presbyterian Church with the Rev. Thomas Pass, pastor, officiating.

Employees Assured Pay By Brown

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Harold Brown assured about 3 million military personnel and civilian employees Tuesday that preparations are being made to pay them promptly after Congress acts.

"There should be no cause for alarm as it is fully anticipated that the House and Senate will resolve their differences immediately after the House returns next week," Brown said in a statement.

The Pentagon and some other federal agencies were left without authority to pay their employees after the start of the new fiscal year Oct. 1 because of a congressional controversy over an appropriations bill containing a pay raise for Congress and top federal officials.

The next payday for about 1 million civilian employees of the Defense Department is due Oct. 12 and for about 2 million military personnel three days later.

Brown said Pentagon fiscal offices are making special arrangements with banks, finance offices, credit unions and military relief organizations in case there is a delay in congressional action beyond midmonth.

City Police Investigating Rape Of Southeast Lubbock Woman

A 59-year-old Lubbock woman told police she was raped in her southeast Lubbock apartment Wednesday afternoon by a man who apparently entered her residence when she went to get her mail.

Police reports indicate the woman only partially closed the door to her apartment when she went to check for mail in her mailbox.

The woman returned to her apartment and as she was reaching for an object in her kitchen, she said the man grabbed her from behind and put his hand over her mouth. The man reportedly told the woman, "Don't make any noise and you won't get hurt."

Reports indicate the man then dragged the woman to the living room of the apartment and pushed her to the floor behind a couch where he raped her.

The woman told police the man tied a gag around her mouth and kept his knee on her chest to keep her on the floor.

The man was described as having a reddish-colored beard and mustache, and wearing a light blue shirt, faded jeans and black shoes.

Two of three persons arrested Tuesday for allegedly interfering with attempts by juvenile authorities to take temporary custody of an alleged child abuse victim remained in the county jail early today.

The suspects reportedly blocked the path of child welfare case worker Nora Stinson of the Department of Human Resources when she tried to enter a Cornell Street residence about 1:15 p.m. Tuesday and gain custody of the 6-year-old boy.

Mrs. Stinson had earlier acquired temporary custody papers from the 99th District Court after authorities had received word that the boy had been abused by his 24-year-old mother — one of three persons arrested at the scene.

She and a 21-year-old Lubbock man remained in the county jail early today in connection with the incident. A jail roster showed an 18-year-old man, also apprehended at the house, was not in jail today.

Mrs. Stinson could not be reached this morning for comment on how the youngster had been abused.

Police reports state that when Mrs. Stinson attempted to enter the residence, the suspects blocked her path at the front doorway. When six policemen arrived, the trio reportedly began fighting each other, and were subsequently detained by police.

The case worker took custody of the child while the suspects were being taken to jail.

In other activity, city police were attempting to determine the loss in a late Tuesday or early Wednesday morning burglary at Rosen Wholesale Co. Inc., 224 Ave. H.

Reports indicate officers responded to an alarm at the building shortly before 1 a.m. Wednesday and discovered

Man Charged With Rape

Sherman Ray Morrison, 25, has been charged with the aggravated rape of a Lubbock County woman.

A $25,000 bond, recommended by the Criminal District Attorney's office, was set on Morrison Wednesday by Justice of the Peace Wayne LeCroy. Morrison lists his address as the Santa Maria Apartments, No. 2.

The 18-year-old victim told sheriff's deputies that after quarreling with her boyfriend Saturday morning, she left the residence and accepted a ride with a man.

Reports show the man pointed a pistol at her and drove to a dirt road, stopped the car and ordered the woman into the back seat where he raped her.

Houston Blaze Tests Firefighters

HOUSTON (AP) — Firefighters risked their lives Wednesday to relieve mounting pressure caused by a chemical reaction inside a tank truck that sent 10 men to the hospital and forced the evacuation of about 1,000 persons.

Had the tank exploded, said District Fire Chief D.E. Crowder, the disaster would have been similar to one earlier this year in Houston when a seven-alarm, multi-million-dollar fire destroyed the Woodway apartment complex.

Three schools in the area also were evacuated and traffic was blocked on Loop 610 South and its major arteries to the south for about five hours.

Three firefighters were hospitalized for observation and seven more were treated and released.

Crowder said the situation began when a mixture of phenol water, formaldehyde and methanol being transferred from one tank truck to another came in contact with an alkali residue in the second truck.

The gas produced by the sudden chemical reaction caused pressure as high as 97 pounds per square inch to build inside the truck — twice its rated capacity and almost 10 times normal, Crowder said.

The temperature inside the insulated tank had reached a critical level when firefighters arrived and began trying to the business had been entered through a ventilation shaft on the roof.

Inside, it was discovered that at least three desks had been ransacked, filing cabinets had been opened and two cash boxes had been pried open and the money taken out.

A vending machine had been broken into, and another machine had been damaged, according to police. And a box and sack, filled with an undetermined amount of cash, reportedly were found on the floor in the south portion of the structure.

Owner Jack Rosen told police Wednesday he would try and determine how much loss he suffered in the break-in.

Police Wednesday were looking for a man they suspect became angered that his car was repossessed Sunday, prompting him to steal back the $24,000 vehicle between 7:45 p.m. and 10:15 p.m. Tuesday.

Ray Harner, owner of High Plains Adjusters at 1423 N. Gary Ave., told police the 1979 Lincoln Mark V was parked behind his building when it was stolen Tuesday night. He said the keys were not in the car.

A 19-year-old Lubbock woman told police she was assaulted about 9:45 p.m. Tuesday by a man who she said was angy that she was running around with a new boyfriend.

Reports indicate the woman, a nurse, suffered a cut on the head and several bruises from the beating. She also claimed her arm had been broken.

The woman added this was not the first time the man had assaulted her, and that police the first time failed to arrest her attacker.

Treene Stivas of 513 51st St. said burglars entered her house between 3:30 p.m. Tuesday and 1:10 a.m. Wednesday and made off with about $2,700 in property, including a television set and stereo equipment.

Two televisions and a stereo, totaling about $1,050, was the reported loot taken in the break-in of Sonya Cornett's residence at 9705 Ave. X, Apt. A, between 8 a.m. Tuesday and 1:30 a.m. today.

Band player Terry Dwaine Vincent told police he was on break about 9:45 p.m. Tuesday at a club in the 4800-block of Avenue H when he discovered his car had been broken into and $500 in tools stolen.

Joe A. Rose of 2203 28th St. said $460 in property, including a TV set, stereo equipment and guns, was his loss when victimized by house burglars between Sunday morning and 1 a.m. today.

Regents To Consider Development Policies

Texas Tech University regents will consider two development policies at the 9 a.m. Friday board meeting.

One policy, concerning coordination of programs dealing with private sector support, which was postponed at the last meeting, Aug. 2, will be on the agenda.

The board also will consider a procedure for acceptance, evaluation and acknowledgment of gifts.

The Campus and Building Committee will ask for authority to proceed with contract documents and receipt of bids for Phase III of the Regional Academic Health Center (RAHC) at El Paso and to proceed with planning for Phase II of the RAHC at Amarillo.

The Finance Committee will seek delegation of board authority for authorization and approval of expenditures from appropriated funds. This action will apply to the university, as well. The committee will also present a contract with the Amarillo Hospital District, which will provide for 10 residency stipends, other costs related to the house staff program and library support costs for services provided by the HSC library to the Amarillo Hospital District's School of Nursing.

Meeting as the board for the university, the regents will consider readoption of an academic workload policy, first approved in 1978 but inadvertently omitted from the newly formed Board Policy Manual. They will then discuss granting of emeritus appointments to distinguished professors.

The Public Affairs Committee will recommend acceptance of an anonymous donor's gift establishing the endowed Charles Sanders Pierce Professorship in Philosophy.

The Finance Committee will ask consideration of specification of officers or employees to sign checks and of a policy on selection of primary and secondary bank depositories.

In campus and building matters, the board will be asked to award construction contracts for Women's Athletics dressing rooms in the Coliseum and for the final phase of the Goddard Range and Wildlife Management Building. Authority to proceed with planning for expansion of Jones Stadium offices for use by Women's Athletics will be sought.

Selection of an engineer for Jones Stadium structure renovation and for approval of schematic and authority to proceed with contract documents for the Music Building addition will be discussed, as will be approval to proceed with renovation and improvement of the utility distribution system's north loop.

Slaton Man Arrested

After Raid

SLATON (Special) — A 23-year-old Slaton man was free on $2,500 bond Wednesday, following his arrest for possession of two pounds of marijuana, police Sgt. Mike Savage said.

Police armed with a search warrant raided the suspect's house late Tuesday where they confiscated the substance and then took the man into custody. Formal charges have not been filed and his name was not released.

Savage said it was one of the biggest drug raids police have made recently. Authorities also raided a house about a month ago and confiscated a pound of marijuana, he said.

Caution Advised

For Changing Weather Driving

WASHINGTON (AP) — Autumn is a lovely time for quiet drives in the countryside to see the leaves, but the changing weather also provides different driving conditions, and some caution is well merited.

Indeed, the easing gasoline situation after a summer of shortages may well lead to increased sightseeing this fall.

If viewing the changing seasons from behind the wheel of your car appeals to you, the Highway Users Federation has some tips:

"Those colorful leaves that look so nice in the trees can reduce your visibility when swirling around in the wind, so watch out on breezy days."

"And once the leaves drop to the pavement and get wet they can be as slippery as ice."

If the road has wet leaves on it, use the same precautions you would if driving on icy pavement, being especially careful to avoid jamming on the brakes which can throw you into a skid.

Bicyclists and motorcycle riders should take a special note of this problem.

"Remember, you aren't the only one out for a view of the scenery, so watch out for slow-moving, gawking drivers who may slow down in front of you without warning."

Try and resist the temptation to take in the scenery while driving, instead pull over to a safe place and stop to look.

Administration Concessions To Labor Revealed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The AFL-CIO said Wednesday that the Carter administration made several previously undisclosed concessions to organized labor in exchange for union support of the president's voluntary wage-price guidelines.

A principal concession, according to AFL-CIO officials, is an administration promise that it will not withhold federal contracts or use other sanctions against violators of the anti-inflation program.

The AFL-CIO officials, who asked that they not be named, said the administration also promised that except for extraordinary circumstances threatening the national welfare, it would accept wage guideline decisions made by a newly created pay board on which representatives of labor will sit.

However, an administration official involved in negotiating an agreement with labor leaders on a new anti-inflation program said accounts of the concessions "might be exaggerated."

The government official, who declined to be named, said the administration gave no specific assurance that it would not punish guideline violators. Nor did it spell out the authority of the pay board, he said.

"There is no need to use sanctions as long as the program is working," said the official. "The administration has not forewarned the use of sanctions and the AFL-CIO has not dropped its opposition to them."

"This is a voluntary program. As long as it is working and voluntary cooperation continues, we don't anticipate the need to use sanctions."

He added that "we're going to listen very, very carefully" to the pay board, but "no one has spelled out the terms."

"We have an accord," said the official. "They (AFL-CIO) are going to participate in achieving voluntary wage restraints and we're going to pay attention to matters of concern to them."

Under the accord, endorsed last Friday by the AFL-CIO executive council, the AFL-CIO will participate on a 15-member advisory pay board composed of labor, business and public representatives who would recommend new voluntary wage guidelines.

In reaching agreement with the administration, the AFL-CIO ended a year of bitter opposition to Carter's anti-inflation effort. But that conflict could be revived by ongoing debate over some specific terms of the accord that have yet to be worked out.

The AFL-CIO has opposed the use of government sanctions against companies that violated the voluntary wage guidelines on the grounds that such actions are illegal and interfere with collective bargaining.

The AFL-CIO had filed suit to prevent the government from denying contracts to guideline violators, but lost its case in a U.S. appeals court. On Tuesday, the Supreme Court refused for a second time to review the case, thus formally ending the AFL-CIO's challenge.

AFL-CIO spokesman Albert Zack said the federation will not pursue the case because of government assurances that it would not use sanctions.

Josef Kaiser, a West German skier, is credited with creating the first grass skis in the mid-1960s. His idea caught on and soon national teams were formed to compete in the sport. The skis, varying from 25 to 31 inches long, are propelled by a nylon belt that rotates around plastic rollers fitted to a steel frame. A standard ski boot is attached to the frame.

"We're going to try to make this (accord) work and be a partner," said Zack. The AFL-CIO said the administration also agreed to adopt a labor proposal that retail stores be asked to post prices so consumers can see how much items are going up in cost.

In addition, the AFL-CIO said, the administration agreed to work with the labor group in obtaining new legislation to help workers who lose their jobs because of import competition and to negotiate a compromise formula for triggering extended unemployment benefits.

An administration official who requested anonymity said there had been discussions of a voluntary program of price posting, but that the Council on Wage and Price Stability lacks legal authority to require the practice.

Leader Charges Carter 'Anti-Business'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter and the Democratic-controlled Congress harbor anti-business attitudes that are "dangerous to the nation's economic health," House Minority Leader John J. Rhodes charged Wednesday.

In a speech to a Chamber of Commerce group, the Arizona Republican said the United States is "getting whipped badly in the world marketplace because our government has assumed an adversary relationship to business."

Rhodes claimed that while other countries, such as Japan, help their businesses, "here, success invites attack."

The minority leader said the government maintains a "punitive tax system that discourages investment." He also charged that "our sickening drop in productivity" and decline in savings can be traced to misguided government policies.

He urged Congress to approve a $1.500 tax credit for savers to encourage savings and faster tax write-offs of business-related equipment to promote greater productivity. He also called for a $20 billion anti-recession tax cut.

Veteran Saddlemaker Readies OS Roping Trophy

By GERRY BURTON
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Working with leather has been a way of life for three generations of Wilford Lewis's family, and so it is natural for him to be making the trophy saddle for the OS Ranch Steer Roping and Art Exhibit benefit for West Texas Boys Ranch.

The saddle, donated each year by Bill Price's Western Shop of Lubbock, will be presented to the champion steer roper Sunday at the climax of the annual event, which begins Friday at the OS Ranch, 13 miles southeast of Post off U.S. 84.

Lewis's grandfather, Bill, ran a leather shop in Whitesboro, making boots and repairing anything leather, including saddles. Everything was handmade.

Machines came to the shop with Lewis's father, Duff, who spent most of his life making boots all over Texas.

Hand tools used by his grandfather, added to those of a saddlemaker who died more than 40 years ago, make up part of those Lewis now uses to create his saddles.

Machines have their place in Lewis's shop, but the saddles still are handmade one at a time.

Lewis started "messing around shops" when his father was making boots in Lubbock in the 1930s. After school he helped with shoe repair and, at home, turned out hand-tooled belts.

By the 1940s Lewis was a fulltime bootmaker in the same shop as his father.

In Roswell, Lewis moved into saddle-making under the watchful eye of E. T. Amonett. While he worked, cowboys often stopped to watch and talk about the good and bad points of saddles.

While they talked, Lewis listened, adapting suggestions to his own designs, including changing the front rigging to make the saddle work better.

After a stint with a Fort Worth firm,

Lewis returned to Roswell to set up his own shop.

"It took a ton of money" to stock and maintain a shop, he said, so Lewis made a deal with Price, moving to Lubbock to turn out custom saddles for Price's stores.

When Price helped Jim Prather of Post put the OS roping event together, the trophy saddle became an annual happening.

Lewis turns out one saddle at a time, working by himself except when his daughter, Ellen, is around to do the tooling. At 17, she has her own business in beltmaking while also doing most of his saddle tooling.

A fully-tooled, customized saddle runs about $1,400, Lewis estimates.

A half-finished saddle now underway already has $400 in raw materials in it with the final cost depending on the amount of tooling and silver.

The beginning of a saddle is custom-ordered — a rawhide covered wooden saddle tree made to dimensions desired by the purchaser.

Lewis takes the flat side of leather, blocks out the patterns, fits each piece to the saddle tree and then cuts it to exact dimensions before removing it for tooling geared to fit that specific piece.

A whack with a hammer on a die saves several hours of handtooling, but still there is the intervening pattern to do by hand to tie the design together.

The fenders, or sweat leathers, are the only saddle parts always the same size, allowing a cut by pattern and tooling without any custom fitting.

All tooling on the horn and swells of the saddle is done after the leather is fitted permanently on the tree. That is the only way the design works with curved areas.

The only slack time in turning out a saddle happens "waiting for leather to wet or dry," but that time usually can be spent working with smaller pieces of leather, tooling or sewing the hoof pick holder, the cinch or the legio carrier. Use of small pieces, cut from scraps of the larger saddle parts, helps to keep the cost down.

The OS trophy saddle is constructed to the most popular specifications so it can be ready for use immediately by the winner of the OS steer roping.

This year, Wilson tooled another trophy for the OS event, the George Humphreys Memorial Saddle to be presented by Fred Martin of Aspermont to the winner of the OS cutting horse competition. The trophy honors the longtime manager of the 6666 Ranch at Guthrie, who is depicted in a Tom Ryan painting on the back of the OS souvenir catalog for the event.

Other OS arena events will include invitational calf roping, match calf roping, barrel racing and team roping.

In addition to the art show in the ranch house, there will be a weekend appearance by Ken "Festus Hagen" Curtis, an oldtimers breakfast, arbor church service, a barbecue and a Sunday noon session by the Original Texas Playboys.

Practical Tips, Skills Taught At Summer Camp

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is another in a series of articles dealing with the United Way of Lubbock. Except for officials of United Way agencies involved, the names used are fictitious to protect the identities of those served. However, the stories reflect actual case histories here.)

Far and away, ask any kid what he or she would like to do during the summer, and at least, part of the answer would include camping.

It's no different for Steve and Penny Tyler who look forward to spending part of their summer at Camp Monakiwa in Las Vegas, N.M., with other members of the Camp Fire Council of Lubbock.

The Camp Fire Council of Lubbock is a United Way agency and will receive $75,846 from the United Way's 1980 goal of $1,803,752.

However, Camp Monakiwa, the Camp Fire's resident camp, is not the only fun thing in the organization, the youths agreed. Field trips, drama productions, cooking and crafts also figure into the Camp Fire program.

For Penny, an important activity this year will be participating in a program to learn charm, make-up application, cake decorating and cooking, important things to girls approaching the teenage years.

Steve, though is primarily interested in camp. In fact he joined Camp Fire because Penny was having such a good time at Camp Monakiwa.

So, when the Camp Fire program opened its doors to male participation at the resident camp, Steve was right there to join the first group of boys to go.

Steve said he's learned many new things at camp, mostly outdoor skills such as rappelling, archery, riflery and tracking. "We get a choice of things that we want to do at camp," Steve said. Also, he said, group activities included dances, "come as you are" parties, a "Gong Show," and playing musical instruments.

Mrs. Tyler said she felt that camp is a wonderful experience for both her children. She said the children really enjoy it and have made many good friends, although they don't always see them on a regular basis.

Also, she said of her daughter, "the association with the staff is superb. The camp directors are very neat young women. My daughter is getting another point of view from them which is good."

"Sometimes, as parents, we want to be involved and we tend to get too involved with our children and do everything for them. Camp lets them get to know somebody else," Mrs. Tyler said.

Camp Fire for the Tyler's seems to have turned into a family affair. Mack Tyler goes on "dad's work weekend," which is a weekend for fathers to go to the camp and make it ready for the children. He is coordinator for the weekend. Mack said he would like to see more boys participate in the Camp Fire program because of its value to the children.

According to Glynda Cobb, director of the Camp Fire Council of Lubbock, the program is meeting with success in including boys in the program. She said that when the decision was made to include male members in what was traditionally a female organization, there was no need to change the program or its purpose which is "to provide, through a program of informal education, opportunities to realize their potential and to function as caring, self-directed individuals, responsible to themselves and to others, and as an organization seek to improve those conditions in society which affect youth," she said.

Mrs. Cobb said that the boys groups in Camp Fire are successful participating in the Day Camp program at Camp Dakonya in Lubbock. She said the boys learn many crafts and self-help skills, such as cooking.

"A lot of men are now assuming household responsibilities and they need to be taught them. Child care, learning how to cook and learning how to use the washing machine are important to our present society if both husband and wife are going to work and they have children. The men need to know how to do those things."

"So, I think one of the unique about having boys in the program is that they do have an opportunity to learn along with other boys so that they don't feel self-conscious," she said.

Mrs. Cobb said the Camp Fire program is structured so that youth may choose their own area of activity, citing the Wo-He-Lo medallion program, which is the highest honor in the program. To work for the medallion, a member examines career development possibilities, beginning in their junior year of high school. The member looks into the career he or she wants to pursue and sees all its aspects before entering into the career or studying for it. The award takes two years of interviewing and study.

The Camp Fire Council of Lubbock is one of 34 United Way agencies.

ANOTHER YEAR, ANOTHER TROPHY — Bill Price, who hung up his call-roping gear 20 years ago, had to learn how to trip a steer to become one of the steer ropers competing in the annual OS Ranch Steer Roping and Art Exhibit, set this weekend at the ranch near Post. Price helped OS boss Jim Prather put the roping together to benefit West Texas Boys Ranch, then donated the saddle for the winner. OS action opens Friday and ends Sunday with presentation of the handmade trophy saddle. (Staff Photo by Gerry Burton)

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

I've used the recipe many, many times which was in your column quite some time ago for making brownies from a cake mix, but over the years I'll tell you what I've learned about this. Each brand of cake mix needs a different amount of water as a general rule. So I start with the one-fourth cup of water as suggested in your column, then add more by the teaspoonful until it is the right consistency — very, very stiff — then add the nuts.

One has to take the dough out with a spoon, then place it in a greased pan and pat it out. You will have a thin layer of batter in the pan, but it rises some in baking. Oh yes! The cake mixes with the pudding added to the mix are better, I think, for making the brownies. — Katherine Pattison

(sob) but I do remember how good they used to be, especially when they were still warm, fresh from the oven. The original recipe called for one Devil's Food cake mix, one egg, one-fourth cup water and some chopped nuts. Bake in a greased 9x14 inch pan in a 350-degree oven for about 25 minutes. The brownies will be chewy — if you like them less moist, bake slightly longer. They are absolutely delicious (how can I stay on my diet with something this mouth-watering around) and a little less expensive than when using a regular brownie mix. — Heloise

But, frankly speaking, we thought supplying Marie Shaw, Morton, with a recipe for Sun Tea might present the most difficult problem ever faced by the readers of this column. However, to our surprise, we received not one, but three recipes for preparing Sun Tea.

Thanks to Mrs. Gene Price, Lubbock; Mrs. Finis Jennings, Muleshoe; and Midge Summitt, Hobbs — all were kind enough to send recipes with instructions.

A composite recipe follows:

SUN TEA

Use a gallon glass jar and fill it with cold tap water. Add 8 tea bags (black/orange pekoe). Tighten lid and set on cement in the sun. If it is a good, hot day, it will take between 4-5 hours to make the greatest tea there is.

Naomi C. Elliott of Lubbock contributes the following recipe for Mrs. R. Jameson, Lamesa:

OLYMPIC RAISIN CARROT COOKIES

(California Raisin Advisory Board)

1/2 cup butter or margarine, softened
1/2 cup salad oil
1 cup firmly packed brown sugar
2 eggs
2 tbsps. water
1 tsp. vanilla
1 1/4 cups flour
1 tsp. baking soda
1 tsp. nutmeg
1/2 tsp. salt
1/2 cup whole wheat flour
1 1/2 cups raisins
2 cups natural cereal
3 cups coarsely grated raw carrots (5 medium)
1/2 cup sunflower seeds
In large mixing bowl, beat butter, oil and sugar until fluffy. Beat in eggs, water and vanilla. Sift together flour, soda, nutmeg and salt. Add to bowl, along with whole wheat flour. Mix just until blended. Stir in remaining ingredients. Make large drop cookies well apart on greased sheet, using about 1/3 cup batter for each. Bake in preheated 350 degree oven 12-15 minutes. Cool on racks. Makes 1 1/2 dozen in cookies. Note: (I used granola cereal for the natural cereal. It would probably work well with coconut and wheat germ substituted for part or all of the natural cereal. In Florida, I made these cookies for a friend who was into health foods and bicycle racing.)

Again, here are several more Peanut Butter Fudge recipes for Marie Shaw of Morton. We know Marie will be grateful.

Mrs. Finis Jennings of Muleshoe sends the following:

PEANUT BUTTER FUDGE

1 1/2 cups cane sugar
1 can (6 1/2 oz.) condensed milk
1 cup peanut butter (either smooth or chunky kind)
1 7-oz. jar of marshmallow creme
Dash of salt
Combine sugar and milk in a 1-qt. size pan (or 2-qt.) and boil to soft ball stage (or to 227 degrees using a candy thermometer). Remove from heat and add peanut butter, marshmallow creme and salt. Stir all together quickly until smooth. Pour fudge into a greased 8-in. square cake pan or pyrex dish. Let set until cool. Enjoy!

Edna Ruth Green, Matador, sends the following recipe:

PEANUT BUTTER FUDGE

1 cup crunchy peanut butter
1/2 cup milk powder
1/2 cup raisins
1/4 cup sesame seed
1/2 cup wheat germ
1/2-3/4 cup honey
Mix all ingredients together until well blended. Roll into 1-in. balls and carry in plastic container that has a lid. Or, roll into 1-in. rolls and cut into 1/2-in. slices. Yield: About 1 lb.

Thanks go to Temptis Bradshaw, Lubbock; Wanda Jones, Lubbock; and L. Chamberlain, Denver City, for also sending recipes for Peanut Butter Fudge.

What! — no requests this week? Have our homemakers solved all their household problems? Do our cooks have all the recipes they need? See you next week.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

North's three-notrump bid meets with our full approval. He only has nine high-card points, but his ten-nine of spades may well prove to be worth a trick. He considered using Stayman to try to find a 4-4 heart fit, but with this type of 4-3-3-3 holding the chances are that notrump will produce as many tricks as the 4-4 major suit fit. Looking at all the hands you can see that there is no possible play for 10 tricks at hearts and very little play for nine tricks at notrump.

West opened the king of clubs rather than the king of spades. East followed with the deuce and South was faced with a really tough problem.

He could develop a ninth trick by taking the ace and leading the suit back. This plan had one serious flaw. West might well shift to a spade and the defense would take enough spade tricks to set declarer.

What other play was available? Apparently there was none.

Nevertheless South found a way. He ducked that club lead.

West thought a while. His partner had played the deuce of clubs, but what could he do if dealt ace-deuce? West led a second club and South romped home.

Incidentally, South did his thinking before playing from dummy. If he had thought after playing from dummy the swindle would never have succeeded. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I have a very serious problem, and I'm scared to death. If my husband knew or even suspected anything, he'd go through the ceiling. Can you help?

My niece and nephew (brother and sister) have been living together for four years. They are in their mid-20s, and neither one of them dates. Naturally, there have been some ugly rumors, but I refused to believe them.

Recently my niece started to act very strange. One evening, when my husband was out of town, she came over and told me what her life has been like these last several years. It was so bizarre I was speechless. The woman is pregnant.

The baby was fathered by her brother. She is terrified that the child will be born deformed or retarded.

Believe me, Ann, I am heartsick. My niece feels very strongly about keeping the baby, deformed or not. I am asking you to tell us what are the chances that the baby will be born normal.

My sister is mongoloid, but other than that there is no record of any abnormalities, deformities or birth defects in our family. We have all been of sound mind and good health.

Please answer. It is very important to us. — A Perry, Mich. Reader

Dear Michigan Reader: Accurate data on children born of incestuous relationships is not easy to come by. But, thanks to James V. Neel, M.D., professor of human genetics at the University of Michigan Medical School, I have the results of a limited study done in 1967.

According to the findings of this rather small sampling, the chances of having a normal child under the conditions described are about two out of three. This means the odds are one to three that the child born of the brother-sister relationship will have a significant problem of one type or another.

You realize, of course, this risk is much higher than if the child had been conceived by a couple who are not blood relatives.

Since your niece is determined to have the child, I wish her luck. She may have a perfectly normal baby. Please tell her that the odds are that she will.

Dear Ann Landers: For nearly a year, I've been seeing a lot of an attractive guy. He is separated from his wife, but not divorced. Orv and I are together from Monday until Friday. He spends every weekend (and holidays) with his wife and children. When I say "with" I mean he moves into his wife's bed, although he says they do not have intimate relations. (They're short of space and the couch is lumpy.)

Last weekend Orv said he was going over on Thursday because it was his son's birthday. I told him to stay there because I was fed up with his running back and forth. He replied, "OK, I'll stay there for good. My kids mean more to me than any dizzy broad ever could."

Why doesn't the dumb jerk realize that when his kids grow up they'll lead their own lives and he'll be excess baggage? I'll be off with someone else, and he will have lost a terrific opportunity to make a good life for himself.

Shall I force him to choose between me and his family? — Lots To Offer

Dear Lots: Get with it, Dummy, he's already made the choice. It's THEM. Find a man who is legally free and quit wasting your time. The clock moves for you, too, Kiddo.

What kind of wedding goes with today's new life styles? Does anything go?

Owner Explains Interest In Health Food Business

BY JEANNE LIVELY
Family News Staff

Wearing a long calico dress, Dee Justice looks as fresh and appealing as the natural foods she espouses.

Mrs. Justice, who was originally from near Hopesville, became interested in natural foods and nutrition when she was pregnant.

"While I could play around with improper nutrition before," Mrs. Justice said, "I didn't feel I could when I was responsible for the health of my unborn baby."

"My husband and I were living in California at the time, and I was fortunate in having two doctors who were especially interested in good nutrition during pregnancy. One of the things the physicians requested was an accurate record of my diet for a certain length of time. From this they made recommendations to add or subtract foods."

Mrs. Justice said she also began visiting health food stores, reading books and magazines, and generally trying to learn all she could about nutrition and especially natural foods.

When the Justices returned to Lubbock to make their home, she began visiting local shops for the natural foods she and her family had come to enjoy. But to her surprise and dismay, she was unable to find the things she wanted.

Laughingly, she admitted, "I suppose it was a strange reason for opening a store — not being able to get the natural foods we liked — but the result was the Well Body Shop."

A "Country Fair," sponsored by the Well Body Shop will be held Saturday from 2-6 p.m. outside the store, which is located at Security Park Shopping Center, 3602 Slide Rd.

One of the events planned is a food contest, for both adults and children. Only items prepared from natural foods will be accepted and judged — entrants should provide recipes. Other events will include a puppet show, a contest between "Superman" and the "Candy Monster," and free lemonade for everyone.

HAMBURG, West Germany (WNS) — Frieda Mueller, 68, used to run a school for mothers-in-law. "Now, I run boarding house for such ladies instead," she reported. "They get along better with each other than they ever did with their sons-in-law or daughters-in-law." Frau Mueller was once voted mother-in-law of the years because of her good relations with the married partners of her five children. "Good relations consisted mostly in minding my own business and not living in the same cities as my married children," she said.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY DR. PAUL G. DONOHUE

Dear Dr. Donohue: What is the cure for the common ailment known as the hangover? Does one suffer any loss of vitamins from the long and excessive use of alcohol? What diseases stem from it? — An Alcoholic.

Sounds like you've been there a few times. The only surefire cure for hangover (no matter how many g's you use) is two aspirins and lots of rest, followed by abstinence from alcohol. The latter is "preventive medicine."

Abuse of alcohol causes serious problems in many organs. Most people are aware of liver damage that occurs in alcoholism. A scarred liver can't carry out its normal functions. The heart muscle can be affected, a condition called "alcoholic cardiomyopathy," a difficult problem to treat. The pancreas can become inflamed and the stomach awfully irritated from chronic alcohol abuse. The brain is not exempt from either a binge or chronic use. Brain cells are destroyed and memory impaired. If certain brain areas are involved (cerebellum), coordination is affected.

I have not touched on all the effects, and have not mentioned the vitamin deficiencies that are part and parcel of alcoholism. Your thoughts should not center on the hangover, but your real problem, the alcohol and what it is doing to your body.

You took a good step in your letter in the way you signed it. There are agencies to help, AA being one of them. That's on the first page of the telephone directory, so you can find it, even through an alcoholic haze.

Most people who get really bad hangovers are amateur alcoholics and most find them to be the surest cure for future hangovers.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Is there a salve or cream that can be rubbed on the body to help prevent angina pectoris attacks? It seems to me I read it in this column a long while back. Is it a prescription item? What is your opinion of it? I am interested in this because a member of my family is subject to these attacks, usually at night. — M.R.

Clip 'n' Cook

SCRUMPTIOUS PORK RIBS

BARBECUE SAUCE:
2 cups tomato ketchup
1 med. onion, sliced
1/4 cup cider vinegar
1/4 cup molasses
1 cup soy sauce
1 tsp. barbecue spice
2-4 lbs. country style pork ribs
Thoroughly mix all sauce ingredients in a saucepan. Simmer 30 minutes. In a 13x9 baking dish place pork ribs. Pour sauce over ribs. Cover with foil and bake at 375 degrees for 1 hour, then follow "oven broil" or "grill" method. Sauce makes 2 cups.
Oven broil method: Place ribs on broiler pan and baste with sauce. Broil 10 minutes on each side watching not to burn.
Charcoal grill method: Place ribs on grill. Turn ribs every 5 minutes basting each time with sauce. Grill for 20 minutes. Makes 4-5 servings.
*Remember trimming meat saves fire flare-ups.

There is an effective cream that is applied to the chest for those who suffer from angina. It is made of the same substance that you place under the tongue. It can be obtained only through a doctor's prescription. The cream preparation is especially helpful for those who suffer nighttime attacks. There's a fuller discussion of various aspects of angina control in the booklet, "How to Handle Angina Pectoris." For a copy, send 50 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Donohue, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Will you please define a sebaceous cyst, and can they be removed? Will one become malignant through constant irritation, as when I comb my hair? My age is 69, if that has any bearing on matters. — Mrs. M.A.C.

When the ducts of one of the oil (sebum) glands of the skin get plugged the oily material accumulates, forming a cyst. If a cyst becomes infected it must be drained. Surgical removal is the surest treatment, and if the entire cyst (wall and all) is removed it will not recur. No, it will not become malignant.

Dear Dr. Donohue: What treatment do doctors have for bashful kidney conditions? — R.W.

Honestly, I don't know what this is, and I wouldn't care to guess. If you get a medical name for whatever condition you have, write me again.

Dear Dr. Donohue: My tongue is full of large cracks. What causes them and what can be done about them? I brush my tongue frequently. — Mrs. F.F.

The tongue has a number of normal furrows that run from side to side. If the mouth is too dry, as from mouth-breathing, for example, these furrows become deeper. When furrows develop from front to back of the tongue, one suspects dehydration, but if they are side to side they are most often insignificant. If the furrows are painful, if there are ulcers, or if there is a change in color of the tongue, have it examined. Your frequent brushing can be a factor. Try cutting back or using a softer brush to see if it helps.

Don't take chances with kidney trouble — it could be dangerous. Read the booklet, "Your Kidneys — Facts You Need to Know About Them." For a copy write to Dr. Donohue, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents.
Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Enter your own permanent numbers in the chart in the bottom right-hand corner. To figure your own permanent numbers, follow these three steps:

Step 1: From the year-chart, find the numbers corresponding to your year of birth. For instance, if you were born in 1947, your number for Physical would be 21, Emotional 17, Intellectual 19. Note whether your numbers are preceded by an A or B; this will be used for Step 2.

Tax Institute Features Dozen Speakers

A former commissioner of the Internal Revenue Service and a congressman from West Texas will head the list of a dozen speakers and panelists for the 1979 Texas Tech Tax Institute at the University Center today and Friday.

Donald C. Alexander, IRS commissioner from 1973 to 1977, will discuss tax policy at 8 a.m. Friday, and U.S. Rep. Charles Stenholm of Stamford will address a Friday noon luncheon session on "The Outlook for Agriculture."

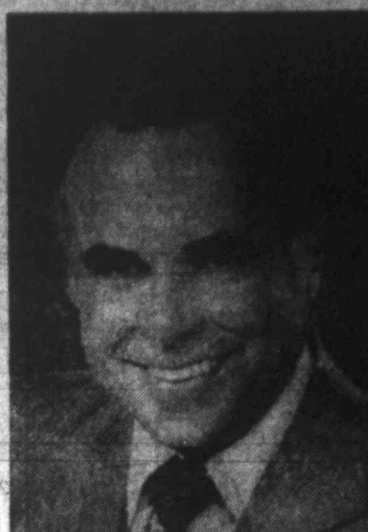

Today's luncheon speaker will be Neil B. Glenn, vice chairman of Peat Marwick, Mitchell and Co., who is responsible for directing the firm's tax practice through his position with the national office in New York.

More than 450 tax attorneys, accountants and other tax practitioners are expected to participate in the 27th annual institute. Registration is scheduled for 8 to 9 a.m. today.

The opening presentation will be at 8:45 a.m. today by Dominic A. Tarantino, partner in charge of tax services for the New York office of Price Waterhouse and Co. After Tarantino's speech, a 10:15 a.m. seminar on incorporating a partnership will be taught by Richard Losey, practicing attorney from San Francisco.

Byrle M. Abbin, managing director of tax competence for Arthur Anderson and Co. of Chicago, will head a discussion on "Partner Capital Freeze — An Alternative to Corporate Recapitalization," at 1:30 p.m. today.

Problem areas in redemptions and recapitalizations will be the topic of Gilbert D. Bloom, liaison partner for Subchapter C in the Washington, D.C., office of Peat Marwick, Mitchell and Co.

DOMINIC A. TARANTINO

NEIL B. GLENN

at 3 p.m. Bloom's talk will conclude the first day's agenda.

Alexander will open Friday's workshop at 8 a.m. Texas practice will be explained at 9 a.m. by W. Clyde Freeman Jr., vice chancellor for administration at Texas A&M University.

Joseph D. Mach, CPA with Main LaFrentz and Co. of New York, will speak at 10:30 a.m. on current developments to complete the morning agenda.

Billy M. Mann will begin the afternoon session at 1:30 p.m. with a speech on oil and gas tax matters. Mann is head of oil and gas tax matters of Arthur Andersen and Co. of Denver. "Divorce Considerations in a Community Property State" will be explained by Jack M. Vaughan, partner in Deloitte Haskins and Sells of Houston at 3 p.m.

Roy G. Shrode, a CPA with Elmer Fox, Westheimer and Co., will complete the schedule at 4 p.m. with a discussion of incorporation of agribusiness.

Wesley W. Williams III, is president of the 1979 tax institute. He is head tax partner of Main LaFrentz and Co. of Denver.

John M. Malloy, professor of accounting at Texas Tech, is institute executive director. Malloy is in charge of the tax program for Tech's College of Business Administration.

Court Orders Trial Of Printing Suit

AUSTIN (AP) — The 3rd Court of Civil Appeals ruled Wednesday that the Texas printing industry's suit to stop state agencies from doing their own printing must be tried.

The court overruled a decision by State District Judge Harley Clark of Austin dismissing the suit by Printing Industries Association of Texas and two smaller organizations of printing companies.

Attorney General Mark White has the right to appeal the decision to the Texas Supreme Court.

More than 30 state agencies do their own printing, but the printers say the Texas Constitution requires them to hire private companies to do the work.

Clark dismissed the suit on grounds that the printing association had failed to obtain the legislature's permission to sue the state and had not shown it had grounds for a lawsuit.

The appeals court said that in a suit of this kind legislative permission was not necessary because state officials were being accused of violating the constitution and invading the rights of the printers.

It also ruled there was a genuine issue between the state and the printers that must be tried.

The Texas Constitution says, with exceptions, that printing must be performed by contract. The attorney general maintains, however, that the state is required to meet its printing needs as much as possible before requesting competitive bids from commercial printers.

In a 1973 study — probably the most recent available — the state auditor found that state agencies were spending about $2 million a year on their own print shops while paying $2.8 million for commercial printing services.

The first mile of concrete highway in the nation was laid in Detroit in 1909.

Coffee-Growing Nations' Profits Cited

MONTE CARLO, Monaco (AP) — Foreign currency earnings from the sale of coffee in the year ended Sept. 30 brought the coffee-growing countries a total income of $11.1 billion, the chief executive of the International Coffee Organization said Wednesday.

This compared with $10.5 billion the year before and $12.6 billion in the 1976-77 crop year when world coffee prices soared to their highest level ever.

The figures were disclosed here by Alexandre Fontana Beltrao, ICO executive director, who was the key speaker at the Coffee International magazine's symposium and trade fair.

Cambodians Appear Near Defeat By Vietnam

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The remnants of former Premier Pol Pot's forces are fighting a desperate guerrilla war against the Vietnam-backed regime that took over the capital of Cambodia in January. An AP correspondent and a photographer crossed into a corner of Cambodia for this first-hand report.)

By DENIS D. GRAY
Associated Press Writer
TAKONG KRAO HILLS, Cambodia (AP) — Shivering with malaria and weak from hunger, tens of thousands of Pol Pot Cambodians appear to be facing defeat as the monsoon rains recede and Vietnamese forces advance in western Cambodia.

A glimpse of life in an area still controlled by the toppled regime of Premier Pol Pot and talks with recent refugees reveal hunger, disease, savagery and iron discipline even as the movement may be preparing its last stand. It makes no concessions to those under its control.

This goes on despite a recent Pol Pot declaration promising many freedoms to those who join a united front against the Vietnamese and the Hanoi-backed government in Phnom Penh. The present Heng Samrin's regime was established after invading Vietnamese and dissident Cambodians took over the capital last Jan. 7 and drove out Pol Pot and his forces.

Crossing the Thai border this week into a Pol Pot camp, reporters found a "hospital" for female soldiers filled with young girls suffering from malaria. They said two or three in their camp died of the disease each day.

There was no medicine in sight, water was drunk right from a muddy stream, and the only food was thin soup and shreds of vegetables.

A young boy met the reporters at the entrance of the camp, his spindly limbs and distended belly the outward signs of his malnutrition. He climbed a tamarind tree to pick its leaves for his next meal.

Men and women in tattered black clothes and traditional checkered scarves moved silently about their tasks. A few young soldiers armed with AK-47 rifles looked at the visitors sullenly on first encounter. They explained everything in terms of "angka" — "organization on high" — the shadowy Pol Pot leadership which ruled the country for four years but still remains unknown to the average Cambodian.

One of the guides said a young woman in the camp told him she was educated in the United States but had hidden this from the others because she feared execution for the crime of being an "intellectual."

Farther to the south, along the Thai-Cambodian border, refugees who recently fled from Pol Pot control said large numbers of civilians had been herded into a jungle area, sleeping on the rain-soaked ground and existing chiefly on roots, leaves and bamboo shoots. The penalty for attempted escape was to be beaten to death with staves "in order to save bullets," they said.

"Malaria and starvation have probably killed off more of the Pol Pot people than the Vietnamese army," one Western diplomat said.

Some analysts said the condition of Pol Pot's soldiers is probably better than that of the civilians and that must be considered in assessing guerrilla strength.

Mayor Says Traffic Program State's Best

By NANCY ALLEN
Avalanche-Journal Staff
Lubbock's Selective Traffic Enforcement Program (STEP) has been the most effective of any in the state during its first year, Mayor Dirk West said Wednesday.

"Every major city in Texas has a program like this," said West, "and in the state's opinion, ours is the most successful."

Traffic fatalities were reduced from 47 to 27 during the first 12 months of the state-funded crackdown.

Total accidents also were down by 918 as of Oct. 1, and traffic injuries finished the year at 85 less than in 1978. Before the STEP program, Lubbock averaged eight to 10 fatalities a year on Loop 289. This year only one fatality has been recorded so far.

West also noted some 30,000 more vehicles were registered in Lubbock County this year.

He credited Lubbock Police with the success, saying, "They have done a great job of saving lives. Without this crackdown I shudder to think how many citizens would have died on our city streets."

The mayor admitted public sentiment toward STEP is not always favorable, but commented, "Whoever doesn't like it, I don't care. All anybody has to do is obey the law."

In the year prior to STEP in Lubbock, 51 traffic fatalities occurred within the city, the highest per capita of any city nationwide. Currently Lubbock's total is "right in the middle nationwide," said Traffic Safety Coordinator Vaughn Hendrie.

West also reported state funding of just over $200,000 has been approved for the fiscal year which began Monday.

The program will continue to operate as it has in the past. "I feel we can still come down more this year," said Sgt. Jerry Stevens, who heads up the eight STEP officers.

Stevens said STEP officers do not confine their operations to traffic enforcement, though that is their first priority. They also have made burglary, illegal weapon and other felony arrests.

Some 24,931 traffic tickets were issued during the past year. "That doesn't mean we're ticket crazy," West said. "It means we've got the sorriest drivers in the world."

Reasons for Lubbock's poor driving record could be threefold, the mayor said. Lubbock drivers are more aggressive than elsewhere in the state, and in many cases "used to farm-to-market driving," he said, and, "Lubbock has a small-town traffic system in what's becoming a big city."

In spite of the progress made during STEP's initial year, West said he still is not satisfied. "We're getting there. But we still have a long way to go."

Scouts To Celebrate Mass At Camp Post

Three Lubbock Scout units will celebrate Mass and share an evening meal beginning at 5 p.m. Sunday at Camp Post.

The Rev. Malcolm Neyland, pastor of Holy Cross Parish, will conduct the services outdoors, weather permitting, with Cub Pack 318, Scout Troop 318 and Explorer Post 318 participating.

In supporting these three units, Holy Cross Parish is the only Catholic institution in the South Plains Council area backing all types of scouting units.

Sale Of Tech Property Voided By Legislation

AUSTIN (AP) — Regents at Texas Tech University must comply with a 1979 law to sell real estate under a lease-purchase arrangement, Attorney General Mark White held Wednesday.

White said President Cecil Mackey of Tech had said that the former home of the school's president was leased in 1977 to the present tenant under a lease-purchase contract with an option to purchase.

The lease-purchase arrangement was advertised in a local newspaper for one week, White said, and the bid opening was scheduled for a few days later. The property was leased to the highest bidder with the option to purchase conditioned upon passage of legislation.

The 1979 legislature enacted a bill authorizing sale of the property "only after advertisement in at least two issues of a newspaper published in the county in which the land is located, the first such publication to be made at least 30 days in advance of the sale date."

Mackey asked whether regents must rebid the property before selling it or whether it may convey the property to the lessee without advertising the sale.

The terms of the bill "must be strictly complied with," said White. "The board of regents must rebid the land and otherwise comply" with the bill.

The 1920's term "flapper" is derived from an English provincial word "flap," which means an unsteady young woman.

Late September Votes Of Area Solons Recorded

WASHINGTON — Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes Sept. 30 through Sept. 26.

HOUSE
PAY RAISE — By a vote of 208 for and 203 against, the House passed an appropriations bill (HJR 404) containing a 5.5 percent pay raise for congressmen and 72,000 judges and high-level federal workers.

Efforts to force a record vote on the pay issue alone failed when only 41 members (of a required 44) stood to demand one. For congressmen, salaries would go from $57,500 to $60,700. The bill was sent to the Senate, where the provisions for a congressional pay raise appeared to have been killed.

Rep. Silvio Conte, R-Mass., a supporter, called the increase in congressional salaries "modest and restrained" in view of the inflation rate.

Rep. Larry Hopkins, R-Ky., an opponent, said: "Collectively, this Congress has not done anything to deserve a raise."

Members voting "nay" opposed the pay increase.

Reps. Charles Wilson, D-2, Ray Roberts, D-4, Bob Edhardt, D-8, Jack Brooks, D-9, Jake Pickle, D-10, James Wright, D-12, Joe Wyatt, D-14, Richard White, D-16, Mickey Leland, D-18, and Henry Gonzalez, D-20, voted "yea."

Reps. Samuel Hall, D-1, James Collins, R-3, Jim Mattox, D-5, Phil Gramm, D-6, Bill Archer, R-7, J. Marvin Leath, D-11, Jack Hightower, D-13, Kika de la Garza, D-15, Charles Stenholm, D-17, Kent Hance, D-19, Tom Loeffler, R-21, Ron Paul, R-22, Abraham Kazen, D-23, Martin Frost, D-24, Manuel Lujan, R-1 (N.M.), and Harold Runnels, D-2 (N.M.), voted "nay."

PANAMA CANAL — The House passed, 223 for and 188 against, legislation putting into effect the Panama Canal treaties ratified last year by the Senate.

The bill (HR 111) cleared the way for a U.S.-Panama commission to take over operation of the canal on Oct. 1, 1979. The commission will operate the waterway until 2000, when Panams will assume ownership. The bill does more to protect U.S. interests, including the canal's security, than did a similar measure defeated by House a week earlier.

Rep. John Murphy, D-N.Y., a supporter, said it was too late to be debating the pros and cons of the treaty. "The treaty is the law of the land, whether we like it or not."

Rep. George Hansen, R-Idaho, an opponent, said: "The real issue is the giveaway of the Panama Canal." Members voting "yea" favored putting the Panama Canal treaties into effect.

Brooks, Pickle, Wright, Leland, Gonzalez, and Frost voted "yea."

Hall, Wilson, Collins, Roberts, Mattox, Gramm, Archer, Leath, Hightower, Wyatt, de la Garza, White, Stenholm, Hance, Loeffler, Paul, Kazen, Lujan and Runnels voted "nay."

Eckhardt did not vote.

DEBT CEILING — The House passed, 219 for and 198 against, a bill raising the national debt ceiling from $830 billion to $879 billion. The bill (HR 5369), later passed by the Senate, enables the Treasury to borrow money so that the government can pay its bills. The new ceiling is $49 billion higher than the one enacted last April.

Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., a supporter, said: "Fiscal responsibility is a concern that I think is shared by the members of this body. . . . The debt ceiling is only a matter of accommodating those decisions that have already been made so that the government can stay in operation."

Rep. Delbert Latta, R-Ohio, an opponent, said "the question before us today far transcends the issue of a temporary increase in the national debt. We are once again being asked to bail out the government for not living within its means. . . . this is an issue of accountability as much as one of fiscal policy."

Members voting "yea" favored raising the debt ceiling.

Wilson, Roberts, Mattox, Eckhardt, Brooks, Pickle, Wright, Hightower, Wyatt, White, Leland, Hance, Gonzalez, Kazen, and Frost voted "yea."

Hall, Collins, Gramm, Archer, Leath, de la Garza, Stenholm, Loeffler, Paul, Lujan and Runnels voted "nay."

SENATE

PANAMA CANAL — The Senate passed, 63 for and 32 against, a bill (HR 111) implementing the Panama Canal treaties. The House later approved the measure (see vote above) and sent it to the White House. Congressional approval of HR 111 came 15 years after the U.S. and Panama began negotiating the transfer of the 533-square-mile canal zone.

Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., a supporter, said it would be "tragic" if the Senate failed to "obey a treaty which is, in effect, the law of the land."

Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., an opponent, said "I will not have any part — in any way, shape or form — in giving away the Panama Canal."

Senators voting "yea" favored implementing the Panama Canal treaties.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D, voted "yea." Sen. John Tower, R, Pete Domenici, R (N.M.), and Harrison Schmitt, R (N.M.), voted "nay."

ABNER MIKVA — The Senate confirmed, 58 for and 31 against, the nomination of former congressman Abner Mikva as U.S. Court of Appeals judge for the District of Columbia. The Illinois Democrat quit his House seat to go on the federal bench. His liberal credentials drew the opposition of many conservative senators.

Sen. James Exon, D-Neb., a supporter, said judicial nominees should be "primarily evaluated" on the basis of their "integrity, ability, temperament, intelligence and honesty. . . . The question then comes secondarily on philosophy."

Sen. Gordon Humphrey, R-N.H., an opponent, said Mikva "regards the bench as an important nonlegislative road to reform. Those senators who wish to approve of judicial activism. . . will certainly want to vote for his nomination."

Senators voting "yea" wanted Mikva on the federal appeals court. Bentsen voted "yea." Tower, Domenici and Schmitt voted "nay."

EDUCATION DEPT. — The Senate approved, 69 for and 22 against, the conference report on the bill (S 210) to establish a cabinet-level Department of Education. The department would absorb the U.S. Office of Education (now in HEW) and other agencies and programs scattered throughout the government.

S 210 was stripped in conference of anti-apportion and anti-busing language which the House had attached to it earlier in the year. Still, the House later passed the conference report and sent it to the White House.

Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., a supporter, said of the proposed department: "There are no new programs, no increase in the federal government's powers, and no changes of any kind in substantive education law and policies."

Sen. S.I. Hayakawa, R-Calif., an opponent, said: "The growing belief that we should look to the federal government to solve the problems of our schools is, I think, a major mistake. Our schools should be a primary responsibility of our parents, students and the state and local officials."

Senators voting "yea" favored creating a U.S. Department of Education. Bentsen and Domenici voted "yea." Tower and Schmitt voted "nay."

Message To Washington

MESSAGE — I've had it! I spent quite a bit of time carefully filling out the Agriculture Census forms and mailed them in on time. It wasn't easy to do, but I know how important this data is to the Department of Agriculture so I did my part. Later, they sent me a letter asking why I hadn't sent in my form. I wrote back twice and carefully explained that I had sent the form. They contacted me and said thanks, they had found my form and everything was OK. Yesterday I got another letter (which was rather nasty), saying they were "deeply concerned" about the fact that I have not bothered to send in my form. When is this going to end? Help, please. R.S. — Graham

SENATOR BENTSEN RESPONDS — Relief is at hand! Agriculture Census officials advise me the problem was that they had your name listed twice on their mailing list. They have corrected this and assure me you will not be hearing from them again. They apologize for any inconvenience their error may have caused you.

MESSAGE — Three years ago my family business was designated by the Small Business Administration as an 8(a) firm — one that is minority owned and eligible for assistance in getting government contracts. Since then we have participated in the program as a supplier of products for the National School Lunch Program and my business has grown considerably. I have added over 60 new employees and have expanded my plant twice. Today I received a letter from SBA informing me that they are considering graduation of my firm from the 8(a) program. I am very upset about this. If we discontinue participation, my firm will lose the growth achieved because of the contracts we have been awarded. We have provided many jobs in an area where jobs are desperately needed. Please ask SBA to take another look at their decision. H.S. — Brownsville

SENATOR BENTSEN RESPONDS — The SBA reports that your firm has a dominant role in its field and is one of the largest and most successful companies in your area. According to the financial information they have your profits have been very large and you are now fully able to compete on the open market. The purpose of the 8(a) program is to help minority firms reach the point where they can compete successfully and SBA officials feel that you are now ready for graduation. They will, however, give you every opportunity to appeal this decision.

Do you have a problem with government? MESSAGE TO WASHINGTON cuts through the red tape to get answers to your questions about Social Security, veterans benefits, immigration matters and other problems you may have run into in your dealings with the Federal Government in Washington. Write MESSAGE TO WASHINGTON, c/o Senator Lloyd Bentsen, U.S. Senate, Washington, D.C. 20510. Inquiries to MESSAGE TO WASHINGTON are sometimes edited before publication, but the intent and substance of the inquiries are maintained.

The Speaker Reports...

By Bill Clayton

AUSTIN — With 80 per cent of Texas' population living in metropolitan areas, it has become apparent to lawmakers that the problems facing our cities will become more acute during the next decade.

Over the next year prior to the convening of the 67th Legislature, the state legislature, a concentrated effort will be made to pinpoint and label areas where appropriate public policy should be developed in dealing with urban problems.

Two special House committees will concentrate on issues and concerns that touch every city in the state.

A nine-member Select Committee on Urban Issues has been formed, and the membership is drawn from House districts that encompass metropolitan areas.

The committee will concentrate its efforts in seeking to determine if there is an ample water supply, if environmental concerns are met, and if there is adequate recreational space set aside.

The far-ranging study will also include scrutinizing public schools from elementary through university level, vocational training, and continuing education with an eye toward future needs.

Lawmakers need to know how population growth is affecting annexation of property into cities, and how property taxes, zoning, and related issues are affected.

Getting answers to these questions will take time and plenty of hard work and effort. The results could mean legislation that will make a better Texas for us all.

Squabble Continues Between Atascosa County, Troopers

JOURDANTON (AP) — Department of Public Safety Internal Affairs investigators are looking into complaints from Atascosa County residents against two state troopers who are the focus of a dispute between the DPS and the county, officials said Wednesday.

The DPS vacated its six-man, county-owned command post and suspended routine traffic patrols in Atascosa County on Monday rather than give in to county demands to transfer patrolmen Earl Conaway, 32, and Albert Rodriguez, 26.

Conaway, a black, and Rodriguez, a Mexican-American, have spearheaded a recent crackdown on drunken drivers, which their superiors say has cut the county's traffic death rate in half.

But it has also led to drunken driving charges against sons of two politicians in the rural South Texas county, including the county commissioner who sponsored the Sept. 19 eviction order.

County officials claim "harassment" by the two troopers prompted the order, not the arrests of prominent citizens or racism.

County Judge O.B. Gates collected numerous written complaints from county residents after the dispute surfaced last week. He turned them over to DPS Director Col. Wilson Speir during a meeting this week in Austin, DPS spokesman Bill Carter said Wednesday.

"The county judge did leave some so-called complaints with the colonel and these complaints are being looked into by our internal affairs division," said Carter. "None of them look too serious, but we will follow through on them."

Conaway, Rodriguez and the other four troopers stationed in the county continued Wednesday to work out of their homes, conducting routine patrols in adjoining counties and answering only emergency calls in Atascosa County, said DPS Sgt. Bobby Harpole, the area commander.

The internal investigation has not affected Conaway and Rodriguez' status with the DPS, spokesman Richard Grimmer added.

Gates says only that the two officers have "harassed and abused" county residents and has largely refused to talk to reporters. He will not discuss details of the written complaints collected last week.

Gates told one reporter last week, however, that one complaint was from a man who claimed Conaway unnecessarily held his gun on him and three companions after they were stopped on suspicion of drunken driving. "Later, he opened up his trunk and flashed a sawed-off shotgun, but he didn't point it," the man said in his statement.

But a top DPS source, who requested anonymity, said last week that the man's complaint has already been investigated and found to be false. The source said the man had apparently "changed" his version.

Some of the complaints against Rodriguez apparently have come from residents of neighboring Frio County, where Rodriguez was stationed before moving to Atascosa County last spring.

The complaints Gates gave to Speir remain the only written complaints against the two officers submitted to the DPS, officials said.

Conaway and Rodriguez deny any harassment and feel the problem stems from their "non-selective law enforcement," including the drunken driving arrests of Plez William Hall, son of Pleasanton Mayor Travis Hall, and Thomas James Tausch, son of Commissioner Smith Tausch.

DPS officials have also said they feel much of the problem was caused by those two arrests.

The six troopers in the county also feel the problem has been aggravated by racism.

Atascosa County Sheriff Tommy Williams and Frio County Sheriff Bennie Sanders are refusing to accept Conaway and Rodriguez' prisoners, forcing the two troopers to drive 40 miles away to San Antonio or 37 miles away to Floresville.

DPS Cap. Randol Ilmore has noted, however, that state law requires Williams to accept the prisoners at his jail if the jailing is officially ordered by a justice of the peace.

Gilmore said the other four troopers can still use Williams' jail.

Conaway and Rodriguez, both single, came to the county last spring. Gilmore said they regularly work extra hours and have been arresting an average of 14 drunken drivers per month, far above average. That, Gilmore said, has cut the county's traffic death toll from eight in the first eight months of 1978 to four in the same period this year. Drunken driving arrests have nearly doubled during that time, he added.

The DPS had been based for more than a dozen years in the two-room "Log Cabin" across the street from the courthouse.

Texas Court Condemns 'Vulture' Argument Use

AUSTIN (AP) — Calling would-be heirs "vultures" during a will contest trial just isn't proper, the Texas Supreme Court agreed Wednesday.

Without writing a new opinion, the court said the Beaumont Court of Civil Appeals acted rightly in ordering another trial of a suit contesting the will of Mamie Chambless, who died Dec. 5, 1976, at the age of 83.

Miss Chambless' estate totaled at least $35,000, records of the Woodville case indicate.

Her latest will was signed Nov. 19, 1978, slightly over two weeks before her death. Nieces and nephews who would have benefited from an earlier will sued to nullify the new one.

Beneficiaries of the new will were Miss Chambless' two living sisters, Lilla Fortenberry and Dona Norton. The old will named as heirs all four of her sisters — two of whom since had died — or their surviving children.

The nieces and nephews who sued contended Miss Chambless was "not of sound mind or memory" when she made the new will and alleged she was "unduly influenced by the compulsion and arguments" of persons who would benefit from it.

In final jury arguments, Jimmy Nettles of Lubbock, attorney for the contesting kin, said, "The vultures were circling in the air and they swooped down on her (Miss Chambless)."

"Ladies and gentlemen, that sort of thing has got to stop with grandmothers and grandfathers, with people that are senile. ... The word has got to go out from the court room. ... You've got to stop it. Whose grandmother is next?"

Court Upholds Conviction In Murder Trial

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals Wednesday upheld the capital murder conviction of a man who complained that a judge erred by allowing testimony about a separate murder to which he pleaded guilty.

Randy Glen Green was sentenced to death for the June 1976 beating death of Baytown tavern owner Harold Robinson. The appeals court opinion also said Green beat and raped a female employee.

The trial included testimony about a July 1976 slaying in Yazoo County, Miss. The judge allowed a Mississippi deputy to give a detailed description of the condition of the victim's body in that case.

Green had pleaded guilty in the Mississippi case. His lawyer did not contest the introduction of that plea in the Texas case. But he did complain about the detailed description of the victim.

The appeals court said the description showed similarities between the two cases.

"The trial court did not abuse its discretion by admitting evidence that appellant had committed a similar murder approximately one month after the charged offense," the opinion stated.

The court also rejected Green's claims that his lawyers were not allowed to see Mississippi police records and psychiatric reports.

In other decisions handed down Wednesday the appeals court:

—Set aside the 1964 rape conviction of a Palo Pinto County man. The appeals court agreed that the trial judge should have convened a mental competency hearing for Leon Willis Johnson. Testimony raised questions about Johnson's mental condition at the time of the crime and during his trial.

—Upheld the heroin conviction of a Houston man who complained that police conducted a warrantless search of his car. The opinion stated the officer had reason to believe the evidence might have become unavailable if an immediate search were not conducted. Mircea Alvin Nastu was sentenced to 20 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

REVOLT QUELLED

SASSARI, Sardinia (AP) — Police using tear gas quelled a six-hour revolt Wednesday by about 60 inmates, mainly terrorists led by a Red Brigades leader, at the Island of Asinara jail. The revolt began Tuesday night when Brigades leader Roberto Ognibene failed in an attempt to take a prison guard hostage, authorities said. The inmates were returned to their cells by police and combat units after authorities said they rejected the prisoners' demands to be transferred to other jails.

Whose aunt is next?" Nettles went on.

The court of civil appeals said, "Referring to the proponents (of the new will) as 'vultures' is bad enough, but to suggest to the jury it should find for the contestants to protect their own kin is truly inflammatory and improper."

It noted that the trial judge, Monte Lewis, sustained an objection to Nettles' argument, "but the harm was already done."

Nettles said in his appeal to the Supreme Court that "arguments which may be likely to inflame and excite the prejudice of the jury are not improper when predicated upon the evidence."

In other action, the court:
• Ruled that local governments have no legal authority to sue water polluters that discharge sewage, chemicals and other contaminants into streams at points outside the local governments' territory. The decision blocked a suit by the Clear Lake Basin Authority against Houston for sewage discharges.
• Agreed to hold a Jan. 3 hearing on an appeal by Life Insurance Co. of the Southwest from lower court decisions that it must pay $100,000 in benefits to the widow of Max Overstreet of Weatherford. The company said premiums weren't paid, so no insurance was in force. The Fort Worth Court of Civil Appeals said the deadline for payment had not been reached when Overstreet died in 1974.

• Set a standard requiring courts to receive "clear and convincing evidence" before committing any person to a mental hospital. It said clear and convincing evidence "is that measure or degree of proof which will produce in the mind of the trier of fact a firm belief or conviction as to the truth of the allegations sought to be published." The standard falls between the "reasonable doubt" rule followed in criminal cases and the somewhat after "preponderance of the evidence" requirement of civil trials.

• Refused to tamper with a Dallas court of civil appeals decision granting a new trial of a blind man's suit against a motorist. James Earl Scott sued for $100,000 after he was hit by William Webb's car and was narrowly missed by Joe Dale Simmons' automobile. A jury said Scott was mostly to blame for the accident and awarded him no damages.

• Left standing an Odessa election authorizing $21.6 million in bonds for schools and an athletic complex.

Use Of Herbs Brightens

Less Expensive Meals

WASHINGTON (AP) — Using herbs in your cooking can brighten some less expensive meals, and if you grow the herbs yourself you can save money on them too.
You can grow herbs indoors in boxes, pots or hanging baskets. Just be sure they have good soil, drainage and sunshine.
Timing is the essence of success, picking the herbs just before the flowers are fully open to capture the best flavor and fragrance.
They can be kept for future use by drying, freezing or preserving in vinegar so you can enjoy them in meals all year.
For details on growing and using herbs the Department of Agriculture has issued a pamphlet, "Herbs," and it is available without charge. Just send a postcard to the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 621G, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

Company Offering Malpractice Insurance For Sex Therapists

AUSTIN (AP)—Sex therapists can get sued like any other professional, but an insurance company has offered to take the worry out of bringing people closer.

The State Insurance Board has scheduled a Nov. 13 hearing on National Union Fire Insurance Co. of Pittsburgh's request to sell its malpractice policy for sex therapists in Texas.

For $125 a year, a sex therapist, sex counselor, sex educator or sex researcher could get coverage of $100,000 per claim, up to $300,000 a year.

The policy filed with the board by National Union says it will pay claims and court judgments "arising out of the performance of professional services as a professional sex therapist, sex educator, sex counselor or sex researcher."

But it has a big exclusion — one that would protect the insurance company if a jury found a therapist, counselor, educator or researcher had engaged in sex with a client.

National Union's policy would not pay court judgments for "licentious, immoral or sexual behavior intended to lead to or culminating in any sexual act."

Nor would it pay damages arising from "touching, by or at the direction of the insured, a partner or employee, for the purpose of eliciting a sexual response." The policy also does not apply to medical services, which are covered in ordinary medical malpractice policies.

In a letter to the board, Allan Wadsworth, a vice-president of the New York-based company, said such policies have been approved in 45 other states. He said a national organization that certifies sex therapists, educators, counselors and researchers has voiced a need for the coverage.

Wadsworth also said he knew of no other company that offers the coverage.

The board hearing will be on the question of whether the National Union's policy is subject to regulation at all.

In Texas, some kinds of professional liability policies are regulated while others are not.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q. I keep reading that no intelligent person buys the Series E, U.S. Savings Bonds now being sold or the EE bonds which will go on sale in 1980, because of the "low" 6.5 percent interest rate. I am 54 and only now am able to start a retirement investment program.

A. I see it, the 6.5 percent interest will just about double my money in 11 years. I can defer paying federal income tax on that interest until I cash in the bonds after retirement. I also totally escape state and local income tax on that interest.

I "guesstimate" that, after I retire, I will be in about a 20 percent federal income tax bracket. That will reduce my "real" — after tax — income on the 6.5 percent interest I receive by cashing savings bonds to 5.2 percent.

I am now in the 60 percent income tax bracket. This means that — after taxes — I keep only 40 percent of the income from taxable investments. For example, on 9.5 percent of taxable interest, I would keep only 3.8 percent.

I therefore, feel that E and EE bonds are a better bet. Am I right on this?

A. Your arithmetic is flawless. Along with that sometimes abused word "paternalism," the tax-deferred feature of E bonds has been just about the best selling point for the U.S. Savings Bond program over the years.

Recently, however, the U.S. Treasury Department's refusal to raise its interest rate on savings bonds to 7 percent — as authorized by Congress — has hurt the bond program. And the Treasury's unilateral decision to stop paying interest on older E bonds has really taken the steam out of savings bond sales.

Assuming you start cashing in your E bonds in about 11 years, this won't affect you. And you will have the tax deal you have figured out. No one can dispute the numbers you have put together for accumulating a risk-free number of dollars in E and EE bonds.

Considering your high tax bracket, however, you undoubtedly could do as well or better in municipal bonds — the interest from which is completely free from federal income tax. Technically, municipals are not as safe as U.S. Savings Bonds. But, in practice, good grade municipals carry little or no risk. And you seem to ignore that old devil inflation. With your income, you should be able to put some money into things that are expected to grow in value — such as common stocks and mutual funds.

Q. In planning for retirement, we looked at a number of annuity programs. But my wife doesn't think much of them, because of their low guarantees and high commissions and other charges. Your comments?

A. Your wife is a sharp cookie. The typical annuity is now paying a rather high accumulation rate — which is tax-deferred until you start drawing it out after retirement. But, when interest rates fall, you can look for the annuity accumulation rates to decline. In fairness, however, it is unlikely those rates will drop to the guaranteed minimum — 4 percent, in most cases — for a long time, if ever.

The commissions and other charges vary widely from one annuity contract to another but can be quite high. They are spelled out in the prospectus of every "variable" annuity — which invests in common stocks and is regulated by the Securities and Exchange Commission. But they can be hard to find in "fixed" annuities — which are not regulated by the SEC.

Q. I am contemplating drawing $2,000 out of my $3,000 savings account at the bank, which pays 5.25 percent interest and putting it in a credit union at work, which pays 7 percent interest. Do you see any risk in this move?

A. No, as long as the credit union has National Credit Union Association insurance coverage. Assuming that's the case, you'll have the same federal insurance coverage as you would at a bank which is a member of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. or at a savings and loan association which is a member of the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp.

Alaskan Gold Production Remains Low

ANCHORAGE (AP) — Alaska is a gold-proud state where the nugget is as much a symbol as the Northern Lights and your next door neighbor may spend his summers working on a claim.

But even with today's skyrocketing prices, Alaska's gold production has dwindled to a trickle. This year's estimated output is only about one-tenth of the amount mined in 1941.

J.P. Tangen, president of the Alaska Mining Association, said the price increase has only "given miners an opportunity to sell off some of the gold they have accumulated in the past several years at a reasonable profit for a change."

There is no denying there has been an upswing in production since the lean years of Alaska's "gold depression."

Mining experts estimate gold production in the early 1970s had dropped to barely 10,000 to 12,000 ounces per year. This year, Dr. Ernest Wolff of the University of Alaska's Mineral Industry Research Lab said production could be as high as 100,000 ounces, worth roughly $40 million at today's prices.

"I'd say 20 percent of the miners out there struck it rich," Wolff said. "Another 40 percent are making a real good living."

Some Alaskans look hopefully at the increase for signs of a new gold rush. But other rates it as strictly bush league — a far cry from the days when 20,000 miners and adventurers swarmed Nome's beaches at the turn of the century and fortunes were made in a matter of days.

"There is a tremendous interest in gold in Alaska as there is anywhere else," said Tuckey Hayes, who has been involved in gold mining for the past six years. "But the expertise of the large mining companies is not present due to the federal lands situation. They're reluctant to make large investments."

As for smaller operations, Hayes said, the price increase has put some miners back to work and has made their work more profitable, "but there are mines failing every day." He said this frequently happens because miners can't get financing for their operations.

There are only 300 to 400 heavy equipment operations in Alaska, many run by families or individuals with a handful of partners.

Alaska gold operations never recovered from government-set gold prices and World War II, when the government declared gold mining a non-essential industry. Tangen said this shut many mines down.

Tangen said gold mining has always been more difficult in Alaska due to sparse population, lack of roads and railroads and the distances miners must travel to their claims. Tangen said that in most cases mining simply ceased to be profitable.

Wolff estimates gold production costs have gone up 10 times since the price of gold was set at $35 an ounce in the 1930s.

Federal land withdrawals have further complicated things. When Congress failed to pass a bill setting aside Alaska park and wilderness areas last year, President Carter and Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus froze 110 million acres to protect wilderness areas.

Tangen said some of the land had already been slated for a strict ban against mining, but prospecting was to be allowed on 40 million acres involved.

"The numbers are not nearly so important as where the land is," Tangen said. "New withdrawals have significantly more sting than the original proposal, since most of the 40 million acres included vast mineral supplies."

Miners complain that only large corporations can afford to pay for environmental impact studies and reclamation plans now required for claims within federal wilderness areas — and they may wind up losing everything they have invested in their claims over the years.

Dredging operations take place only during the summer when streams and rivers thaw. Many miners work at other jobs during the winter, putting money into their summer mining the way others would make payments to a pension plan or savings account. For some, mining is their major occupation, supplemented by trapping in the winter.

There is no estimate on the number of newcomers mining in Alaska this year, but they have a tough job cut out for them.

"A lot of knowledge which existed in the 1940s was essentially lost," said Alaska Mining Association executive director Chuck Hawley. "A lot of people who are fairly new coming in will make mistakes for a year or so before they figure out how to do it."

And he added that some may not last the year.

The toad is a relentless exterminator. Its tongue, uncoiling more quickly than the eye can see, plucks harmful insects off flowers, vegetables, grass or leaves and even snaps them out of the air in mid-flight.

Traders Anticipating Dollar Defense

By The Associated Press
Gold prices tumbled below $400 an ounce on Wednesday as nervous traders worried that the U.S. government might take steps to defend the dollar. No such moves were announced, but the dollar continued to strengthen.

The price of gold, which rose as high as $444 a troy ounce in hectic European trading Tuesday, fell throughout the day in Europe and closed at $404.50 in Zurich and $401 in London, down from Tuesday's record closing figures of $438 and $424, respectively.

In later New York trading, the price breached the $400 level and dropped as low as $390 before recovering to $393.50.

The dollar, which had dropped to a record low against the West German mark early Tuesday, recovered later that day and continued to move up Wednesday, largely on the strength of rumors that the U.S. government would act to bolster the currency.

"They're still looking for Washington to come out and say something good," said a New York foreign exchange dealer. There were no announcements of such action.

Gold prices had risen sharply in recent weeks, topping $300 for the first time July 18 and closing above $400 for the first time on Monday.

"People are sitting on enormous profits," said Morton Rom, a gold analyst at New York's Moccata Metals, attributing much of the decline to profit taking by speculators who bought weeks ago.

Dealers said many sellers feared gold would drop if the United States mounted an effective rescue package for the dollar.

Heavy buying by European central banks steadied the dollar, and one Zurich currency dealer said "People are more hesitant, more prudent" about dumping the U.S. currency.

The dollar, which has gained all year against the Japanese yen despite its problems against other currencies, fell back in New York after rising in Tokyo, where the Japanese central bank intervened to support the yen. The dollar closed in Tokyo at 225.475 yen, up from Tuesday's 224.875, but slipped in New York to 223.98, down from 224.70 Monday.

The British pound eased in London to wind up at $2.1670, compared to $2.165 the day before. In New York, the pound slipped to $2.1646 from $2.1662.

Late dollar rates in other European centers, compared with Tuesday's late rates, were: Frankfurt, 1.7555 marks, up from 1.7530; Zurich, 1.5775 Swiss francs, up from 1.5640; Paris, 4.13375 French francs, up from 4.1250; Amsterdam, 1.9470 guilders, up from 1.9445, and Milan 808.55 lire, up from 808.50.

Late dollar rates in New York, compared with Tuesday's late rates, were: 1.7588 West German marks, up from 1.7548; 4.1287 French francs, up from 4.0840; 1.5770 Swiss francs, up from 1.5700, and $1.1619 Canadian, up from $1.1608.

Bargainers Discuss Secondary Issues

DEARBORN, Mich. (AP) — Bargainers for Ford Motor Co. and the United Auto Workers union were clearing the decks of secondary issues Wednesday as they sought a new contract for 190,000 workers.

The union bargaining team held unspecified "technical consultations" and several subcommittees worked throughout the day.

Those subcommittees dealt both with principal issues, such as the scheduling of paid days off, and lesser issues such as health and safety matters.

Economic questions are no longer an issue. Ford's offer is patterned on the settlement at General Motors Corp. providing large pension increases, the traditional 3 percent annual wage increases, cost-of-living protection and more paid time off.

"We remain guardedly optimistic," UAW spokesman Don Stillman said at midday.

The UAW has set a strike deadline against Ford of midnight Thursday.

Factory Orders Rebound In August

WASHINGTON (AP) — After two months of decline, the new orders received by the nation's factories rose 2 percent in August to $142.7 billion, the Commerce Department reported Wednesday.

The modest rebound, following drops of 1.6 percent in July and 0.9 percent in June, was another indication that economic activity in the third quarter this year was stronger than initially predicted.

Some economists believe the nation's economy began falling into a recession in the second quarter this year and most had predicted continued decline from July through September. But a preliminary Commerce Department figure indicates third-quarter growth, as measured by the inflation-adjusted gross national product, could be 1 percent or more.

The August improvement in new orders — which the Commerce Department report attributed to strength in durable goods, electrical and non-electrical machinery and aircraft industries — was accompanied by a 1 percent rise in shipments.

But "the steel industry reported another large decline in new orders, down $600 million, or 11.9 percent," the report said.

The $4.5 billion in August steel orders "is the lowest recorded since October 1977" and is down considerably from the year's $7.3 billion high in January, the report added.

Steel orders are watched closely by government economists because they signal future strength or weakness in manufacturing industries.

Shipments in August totaled $142.4 billion, compared with $141.1 billion in July.

Inventories rose $2.4 billion in August to $219.4 billion. The 1.1 percent increase was down slightly from the 1.2 percent rise in July, the report showed.

For the first eight months of the year, inventories rose an average 1.3 percent each month, compared with 0.9 percent per month in the same period last year.

The inventories-to-shipsments ratio stood at 1.54 in August for the third consecutive month.

The figure means that manufacturers' inventories are sufficient to fulfill slightly more than 1½ months' worth of shipping orders.

The report gave these breakdowns on new orders in August:

- Durable goods, up 2.9 percent to $74.6 billion.
- Non-durable goods, up 1 percent to $68.2 billion.
- Electrical machinery, up 8.9 percent to $9.7 billion.
- Machinery other than electrical, up 6.2 percent to $13.9 billion.
- Transportation, up 4.3 percent to $16.5 billion.

GM Hit For Body Shop Discrimination

WASHINGTON (AP) — General Motors Corp. was found Wednesday to be illegally discriminating against independent body shops that compete against GM dealers for jobs repairing crash-damaged cars.

Federal Trade Commission Administrative Law Judge Joseph P. Dufresne ordered GM to propose a non-discriminatory plan for distributing parts for its cars. The decision can be appealed to the commissioners before becoming final.

GM distributes crash parts to its dealers, who either use them in repairing cars or sell them wholesale to independent repair shops. For the parts sold to independent shops, GM gives rebates of about 30 percent.

Dufresne said this system gives GM dealers an unfair advantage over the independent shops, who are competitors in repairing crash-damaged cars. The other automakers use similar systems.

A spokesman for a group of independent body shops predicted that the ruling, if it becomes final, will mean lower prices for parts. "It will mean more competition over prices and that will mean lower prices to consumers," said Don Randall, attorney for Automotive Service Councils Inc.

Randall said the decision could put independent shops on an equal footing with new car dealers in buying crash parts. "This will ultimately be a benefit for the 23 million Americans whose vehicles are damaged annually."

In Detroit, Otis M. Smith, GM vice president and general counsel, said, "The wholesale compensation plan for crash parts was instituted by GM at the request of the FTC staff in 1968. At that time, the commission and GM agreed to the use of wholesale compensation in return for the commission's agreement not to bring an administrative proceeding."

GM spokesman Clifford Merriott, asked if the statement means that the FTC reneged on an agreement, said, "The statement speaks for itself."

Dufresne ruled in favor of GM in other areas. He said, "No persuasive evidence has been introduced of either a predatory intent or substantially adverse effect on competition attributable to the refusal to sell new GM crash parts to anyone other than GM dealers."

Rural Energy Plan Wins Senate Agriculture Panel's Approval

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Agriculture Committee approved a $2 billion-a-year rural energy plan Wednesday.

Senators backing the legislation said the plan could make U.S. food and forest industries independent of foreign energy by the year 2000.

The heart of the bill is a $1.25 billion-per-year program of loans and loan guarantees to help construction of plants to produce gasohol and other fuels from crops and forest products. The plants would produce grain alcohol and wood gas from a variety of fresh, processed or waste agricultural and forest products.

Half the funds would go to small plants on farms or in small towns. Farmers, farm cooperatives and small rural firms would have first crack at the loans.

"The demand for these small-scale plants is as intense as anything I've seen in private life," said Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D.

The measure also calls for holding workshops to help farmers and their neighbors make plans to produce alternative fuels and reduce their use of oil.

The committee rejected a provision to provide $10 million in loans to persons cutting and selling wood to homeowners. But a program to encourage owners of private forest land to increase wood production was included.

The government says food production and marketing accounts for about 22 percent of U.S. energy consumption.

Sen. Herman E. Talmadge, D-Ga., chairman of the committee, presented the basic plan two weeks ago, saying it would reduce use of petroleum and natural gas in rural counties 50 percent by the end of the century.

The House Agriculture Committee, in a more limited bill, has endorsed $800 million in guaranteed and direct loans for gasohol distilleries.

Gasohol is a blend of 90 percent gasoline and 10 percent alcohol. It has become increasingly popular, especially in farming areas where a high-protein by-product of alcohol production can be fed to animals.

The Energy Department says existing plants have enough raw material available to produce 10 times the present supply of alcohol without diverting food crops. President Carter has endorsed the underwriting of small plants but said no new laws are needed.

Court Decision To Allow Methodist 'Blue' Laws

OCEAN GROVE, N.J. (AP) — The state Supreme Court ruled the Methodist enclave of Ocean Grove may continue to govern itself until next year. The seaside resort is known for its strict blue laws prohibiting Sunday swimming, driving and bicycle riding.

The court ruled last summer that the shore community violated laws separating church and state, since only Methodists could serve on the local governing body, the Ocean Grove Camp Meeting Association.

The court ordered municipal functions transferred to surrounding Neptune township. But Tuesday, the justices agreed to allow the municipal government to continue functioning until Jan. 1.

Kucinich Preparing Political Battle For Office

KUCINICH SURVIVES — Cleveland mayor Dennis Kucinich and his wife Sandy face his supporters during Tuesday night's victory celebration in the mayoral primary. Kucinich will face Republican George Voinovich in next month's election. Voinovich led the incumbent mayor by a wide margin in the primary. (AP Laserphoto)

CLEVELAND (AP) — Turbulent Cleveland is bracing for a political brawl as Mayor Dennis J. Kucinich prepares to battle Lt. Gov. George V. Voinovich for the city's top elective office.

Kucinich, who overcame a recall attempt by only 236 votes last year, survived Tuesday's five-way, non-partisan primary to advance to the Nov. 6 election. But he trailed Voinovich by a substantial margin.

Just 42 percent of Cleveland's 300,000 registered voters cast ballots, and of that total, only 28 percent supported Kucinich. Voinovich got 37 percent.

But Kucinich, whose 33rd birthday is Monday, appeared to relish another role as the underdog and challenged Voinovich to "toe-to-toe" debates in the neighborhoods of Ohio's largest city, a sprawling industrial Lake Erie port community of 600,000 people.

"This election is the people against the fat cats," Kucinich told supporters Tuesday night. "The people united rule Cleveland, and neither gold nor tricks will take this city away from the people."

Kucinich, a Democrat who won election without party support in 1977, called on all Democrats to rally behind him "not only to save our party, but to save our city for the poor people and the working people."

But Democratic leaders in this city — where Democrats hold an 8-1 edge over Republicans — said they would not support Kucinich or his Republican opponent.

Kucinich has claimed Voinovich "bought" the election with $71,000 in campaign contributions from the Republican Party. Voinovich, in turn, accused Kucinich of "shaking down" municipal employees to finance his campaign.

Voinovich said Tuesday that he would promote himself as being "mature, proven and experienced in leadership" to lead Cleveland out of default and improve services to neighborhoods.

He referred to Kucinich's battles with the business community, saying, "We're going to get the corporate community ... those banks and institutions, and those 'fat cats' that Dennis talks about ... to perform their corporate citizenship."

"We're going to point out that they're part of the problem in this town, and I think they're ready to be part of the solution. And, by God, we're going to make them part of the solution."

The chairmen of the Cuyahoga County Republican and Democratic parties both called the primary results a repudiation of Kucinich and his confrontational politics.

In addition to the recall, Kucinich has weathered two police strikes, two municipal defaults with a third threatened for Saturday, and an ulcer. He claims his problems have been inherited and that he needs another two years to carry out his programs.

He has battled big business and the media, questioning the integrity of his opponents.

Voinovich led Kucinich in 22 of the city's 33 wards, including all 13 of the city's predominantly black wards.

The final unofficial returns showed Voinovich, 43, with 47,743 votes to 36,515 for Kucinich. Eliminated in the balloting were City Council Majority Leader Basil M. Russo, with 21,962 votes, and state Sen. Charles L. Butts, with 19,431, both Democrats; and Thabo L. Ntweng, a machine press operator and Socialist Workers Party candidate, with 1,546 votes. Ntweng was the only black in the race.

Heating Oil Stocks Increase Sharply

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's inventories of heating oil and other "distillate" fuels jumped by 8.6 million barrels in the week ended Sept. 28 in the largest weekly increase of 1979, the American Petroleum Institute said Wednesday.

According to an industry source, the "substantial" gain means refiners are likely to meet President Carter's end-of-October stockpile goal of 240 million barrels two weeks early if production and consumption trends remain constant.

Distillates are used for diesel fuels as well as for heating oil. A barrel contains 42 gallons.

According to the industry-supported API, distillate inventories rose to 226.8 million barrels in the latest reporting week from 218.2 million a week earlier and 210.9 million barrels a year ago. Production totaled 3.4 million barrels a day, about unchanged over the week.

Gasoline inventories fell to 229.6 million barrels from 231 million a week before, but remained ahead of last year's 218.7 million. Gasoline production was virtually unchanged from a week earlier at 6.7 million barrels a day.

Crude oil imports rose in the latest week to 6.1 million barrels a day from 5.8 million in the previous week.

Reward Offered For Safe Return Of Missing Child

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — A family who knows Jamie Mokhshefski has offered a $1,000 reward for the safe return of the missing 2-year-old, saying they understand the plight of Jamie's parents.

Jamie disappeared a week ago Tuesday while on a shopping trip with his 15-year-old babysitter, Letha Rose Kingsbury. An El Paso County warrant has been issued for Miss Kingsbury's arrest on suspicion of kidnapping.

The reward came from the Kenneth Swann family, who said the Mokhshefskis had done yard work for them and that they had met Jamie. A young son of their own died in an auto accident, the Swanns told reporters.

British Request Changes In Energy Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The British government has asked the Carter administration to lobby for changes in a bill by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., which it claims could hamper development of North Sea oil.

A diplomatic communication protesting Kennedy's energy bill and marked "confidential" was sent to the State Department Oct. 1 by the British embassy.

The dispatch, a copy of which was obtained by The Associated Press, contends that "should this bill, without further appropriate amendment, become law, considerable economic and commercial effect would ensue for United Kingdom interests."

U.S. Crude Oil Runs Show Modest Decline

WASHINGTON (AP) — Total crude oil runs to still averaged 14,289,000 barrels daily during the week ended Friday, the American Petroleum Institute reported Wednesday. This compared with 14,470,000 barrels daily in the previous week and 15,072,000 barrels daily a year ago.

Crude oil runs east of California averaged 11,972,000 barrels daily compared with 12,137,000 the previous week and 12,798,000 a year ago.

Motor gasoline production for the latest week amounted to 6,707,000 barrels a day, compared with 6,661,000 barrels a day in the previous week and 7,332,000 a day a year ago.

East of California motor gasoline production was 5,702,000 a day compared with 5,657,000 a day last week and 6,211,000 a day a year ago.

Motor gasoline stocks at the end of the latest week were 229,901,000 barrels, versus 231,081,000 a week earlier and 218,748,000 a year ago.

East of California motor gasoline stocks totaled 203,745,000 barrels, compared with 204,787,000 in the previous week and 191,863,000 barrels last year.

Daily average gross crude oil and lease condensate production for the week ended Friday was 8,498,000 barrels compared with 8,856,000 last year.

Crude oil stocks totaled 319,127,000 barrels at the close of last week against 316,829,000 a week previous and 326,337,000 a year ago.

Kennedy's measure would prohibit acquisitions of more than $100 million and certain joint ventures by the 16 largest U.S. oil companies and restrict the amount these companies could invest in foreign concerns.

"This provision could hinder the United Kingdom's on-and-offshore exploration and development program for oil and gas," the British note said.

The State Department has acknowledged receipt of the British protest.

A spokesman for the Senate Judiciary Committee, of which Kennedy is chairman, said administration officials have endorsed the bill on condition that it allow U.S. oil companies to buy up other firms if the competitive position of the purchased firms would be enhanced.

Hank Banta, a Kennedy aide, said the senator had no comment on the British protest. "We're having a hearing on the bill on Thursday at which the State Department will be testifying. We'll see what happens then," Banta said.

British Energy Secretary David Howell told a Washington audience Tuesday the Kennedy bill "would freeze up sensible commercial arrangements."

On Wednesday, Viscount Etienne Davignon, member for industrial affairs on the European Commission, the executive body of the nine-member European common market, also criticized the legislation. "I don't think it's always necessary to regulate and legislate by anticipation against something which is only bad if it becomes exaggerated," he said.

The British contend that Kennedy's measure would prevent joint ventures with U.S. companies in developing the vast oil resources beneath the North Sea, like the joint venture being planned by British Petroleum and Standard Oil of Ohio.

About 20 major oil companies already have joint arrangements for North Sea drilling.

In its note, the British government outlined "conditions of acceptability" or possible amendments it said would make the bill more suitable to British North Sea interests.

Similar numerous bills that would break up or restrict expansion of major oil companies have not gotten very far in either the House or the Senate.

But that was before Kennedy assumed chairmanship of the Judiciary Committee, before he emerged as a likely rival of President Carter for the 1980 Democratic presidential nomination, and before gas lines and high prices may have turned considerable public and congressional sentiment against big oil companies.

Soweto High School Readied By Chamber

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — The American Chamber of Commerce said Wednesday it will build Soweto's first private commercial high school and community center to begin training blacks for management jobs.

Chamber of Commerce members told a news conference here that it presently was "impossible" to find a black qualified to be an office manager, and that unless action was taken immediately, U.S. companies would be faced with a chronic shortage of skilled labor to run their branches in South Africa.

The decision to build the $4 million complex in the satellite black township coincides with the white minority government's plan to spend $115 million on black teacher-training institutions and community schools. Private companies have also made moves recently to sponsor their own training programs.

Construction on the school, in which 600 students will be enrolled, is slated to begin in January and will be financed by money raised by some of the 300 U.S. companies here, 100 of which are commerce members.

U.S. companies here are under fire back home from critics who say their presence indirectly supports the government's apartheid policies. U.S. business, most of whom subscribe to a code prescribing equal employment conditions for all races, say their presence has improved conditions for the black labor force.

The British Barclays National Bank also announced that it will build a $4 million dollar "fully integrated" school in Johannesburg. The school is scheduled to be completed in 1981, when the American school is due to open.

To critics of South Africa's racial segregation policies which have institutionalized separate education systems for blacks and whites, current efforts to improve the situation for blacks are too little, too late.

Their main objection is the discrepancy in funds allocated to the different racial groups.

Last year the government spent more than $1 billion on educating the children of South Africa's 4.4 million white population, and only $540 million on the youngsters among the non-white population of more than 20 million people.

Minister of Education and Training, Dr. Ferdie Hartzenberg, said the building of teacher training institutions, expected to be completed by 1983, was designed to eliminate this "undesirable" situation.

In Soweto, the nation's largest city with 1.2 million blacks, the secondary school enrollment is expected to triple from 15,000 last year to 46,000 next year, leaving the school system about 350 teachers short.

A suggestion by Johannesburg's regional director of education and training, Jaap Strydom, that white soldiers be enlisted to fill the gap has been met with anger by Soweto residents.

Soweto educator T.W. Kambule warned that the move could cause "an explosion like that of 1976," when black students sparked nationwide riots over the mandatory use of the Afrikaans language in Soweto schools.

The June 16 flare-up, which resulted in 700 black deaths across the country, uncapped the deep-seated resentment of blacks against their subordination by South Africa's Dutch-descended Afrikaaner leaders. The controversial language requirement has since been modified.

Tech Homecoming For An Aggie

BURLE PETTIT MAY BE just slightly prejudice when the subject of Texas Tech football enters conversation, but the long-time Avalanche-Journal sports authority isn't trying to pull the wool over your eyes when he tells you Tom Wilson was the headiest quarterback he's ever seen play college football.

And if need be, Pettit could get plenty of similar assessments from teammates, opponents and fans who watched the former Tech signal caller work his magic during the mid-1960s.

It's been only 14 short years since Wilson was leading the gridiron heroics for the Red Raiders. That's right, only 14 seasons ago Wilson, Donny Anderson and Jerry Shipley teamed-up for some of the most miraculous last-second victories in Tech football history — 20-16 over Texas A&M, 28-24 over TCU, 17-14 over Oklahoma State and 26-24 over SMU.

Ah yes, those were the days. Tom Wilson returns to Lubbock and his old stomping grounds — Jones Stadium — Saturday. And when he takes the field, he'll be coaching the Aggies, the team he helped whip in 1964 and 1965.

WILSON HAS BEEN BACK in town before — while as an Aggie assistant under Emory Bellard. But he's never gone head-to-head with the Red Raiders as an opposing head coach. That will all change shortly.

"I wouldn't be leveling with you if I said I wasn't excited about returning to Lubbock," Wilson remarked. "I'm really looking forward to it. It's a big thrill for me."

But Wilson doesn't want his homecoming to overshadow the contest itself, the 38th meeting between the Red Raiders and the Aggies. He figures the rivalry and the importance of the game to both squads will make it big enough.

"I've been gone (from Lubbock) for five years now, but I've coached against Tech before as an assistant," Wilson said. "Tech and A&M have a tremendous rivalry and this game is always a big one. It's always a battle."

Saturday's contest promises to be another one of those battles. Both Tech and A&M stand 0-1 in Southwest Conference action and both teams are battling to stay alive in the league race. The loser of Saturday's matchup is 99 percent out of the championship picture.

"IT'S GOING TO BE one of those games," Wilson added. "It will be a real battle. In a game like this, three or four plays could be the difference between winning and losing. You've got to be ready for those plays if you expect to win."

"We've got to play every down as though the game depended on it."

Wilson's Aggies are 2-2 this season, his first full year at the A&M helm. Wilson took over the Aggie football program midway through the 1978 season after Bellard resigned. He guided A&M to four victories in the final six games of '78, including a 28-12 win over Iowa State in the Hall of Fame Bowl.

The Aggies were picked by some before the season began to challenge Texas and Houston for the SWC title. Opening losses to Brigham Young and Baylor cast a shadow over that bit of wishful thinking, but A&M has bounced back and defeated Penn State and Memphis State.

"This has been a good week of practice for us, but only time will tell," Wilson admitted. "I've been very pleased with the development of our defense this season. Our defense has gotten better every game."

"WE'VE HAD PROBLEMS being consistent on offense. But a large portion of that has been because we've had an unusual amount of injuries. Our offensive line hasn't been consistent because we've had so many people there."

But Jacob Green, Curtis Dickey, Mike Moseley, Ed Pustejovsky and Carl Grulich will all be on hand for the opening kickoff Saturday. The Aggies have good people at the skill positions. Like Tech, the Aggies have had their share of injuries and problems, but by no means are they dead. Ditto Tech.

Tom Wilson won't be scrambling on the artificial turf at Jones Stadium, or throwing any last-second scoring bombs to Donny Anderson or Jerry Shipley. But he'll be there on the sidelines — calling the plays for the Aggies.

And as long as Wilson has something to do with Saturday's contest, there will be an element of danger involved.

Pirates Sneak By Reds 3-2

CINCINNATI (AP) — Slugger Dave Parker drove home Omar Moreno with a 10th-inning single and gave the Pittsburgh Pirates a 3-2 victory over the Cincinnati Reds in Wednesday's second game of the National League championship series.

The triumph, coming after a dramatic rally by the Reds had tied the game in the ninth, gave the Pirates their second consecutive extra-inning victory in this best-of-five series.

D SPORTS

The Pirates, driving for their first NL pennant since 1971, will try to finish off the Reds when this playoff resumes Friday at Pittsburgh.

Moreno, who led the league with 77 stolen bases, opened the 10th with a single against reliever Doug Bair. Rather than risk the steal, the Pirates used a sacrifice by scrappy Tim Foli to advance Moreno to second.

It was Foli who earlier had doubled home a controversial run which gave Pittsburgh the 2-1 lead it nursed into the ninth.

Faster-Than-Sound Aggies Invade Tech

BY NORVAL POLLARD
Executive Sports Editor
When you think of Texas A&M football, you immediately picture senior tailback Curtis Dickey streaking down the far sideline at about 90 miles an hour on his way to one of those 60-yard touchdown runs.

If that doesn't grab your imagination, maybe the sight of junior quarterback Mike Mosley darting through an army of helpless defenders will ring a bell.

If the Aggies don't have anything else they have speed—more raw speed than any team in the Southwest Conference. Dickey has run a 4.25 40. Mosley's slower. His best time in the 40 is 4.5 seconds.

The bottom line on the Aggies is if you cannot contain the ends, that speed will escape. And we all know speed kills.

sprinter, enters the contest as the leading rusher in the Southwest Conference. He has picked up 542 yards in four games for an average of 135.5 per outing. He has scored four touchdowns and his longest run has been for 69 yards.

Although Dickey suffered a dislocated thumb in A&M's 17-7 win over Memphis State last week, that ailment is not expected to slow him down Saturday.

Mosley also has the ability to run with the football and has, also, thrown the football accurately so far this season. The 6-2, 191-pounder has hit 24 of 41 passes for 238 yards. Mosley has added 162 yards rushing to his offensive statistics.

Two things have hurt the Aggies offensively this season. Numerous injuries have depleted coach Tom Wilson's offensive line and senior fullback George Woodard, who led the SWC in rushing three seasons ago, has not been able to play much because of a leg injury he sustained more than a year ago.

Woodard missed the entire 1978 season because of the broken hip he suffered during a softball game last summer. Aggie coaches had hoped that he would be able to regain his old form, but the 6-0, 247-pounder has not been able to perform. Senior David Brothers (5-10, 207) has played most of the time at fullback for A&M.

The Aggies have had a hard time achieving offensive consistency because of the numerous injuries to the offensive front. The quick guard position has been especially hard hit. Junior Paul Hagerty and sophomore Flint Risien, the top two quick guards before the start of the season, are currently out with injuries. Wilson will start sophomore John Osborn (6-3, 243) against Tech and Osborn will be backed up by senior Thomas Gregory, who was moved from quick tackle.

Senior center Preston Dickson (6-1, 243) is questionable for Saturday. If he cannot play he will be replaced by sophomore David Bandy (6-2, 216).

The Aggies do have one of the better linemen in the conference at strong guard in senior Ed Pustejovsky. Pustejovsky (6-2, 241) will be joined on the strong side of the line by tackle Zach Guthrie (6-5, 249), another capable blocker.

Mosley's favorite receivers have been tight end Phillip Simpson (6-4, 218) and flanker Gerald Carter (6-1, 183). Carter has pulled down nine passes for 170 yards and Simpson has six receptions for 54 yards.

Mosley also likes to throw to Brothers coming out of the backfield and split end Doug Teague (5-10, 176).

gies a solid scoring punch with his kicking toe. Hardy has booted eight of nine extra points and two of four field goals.

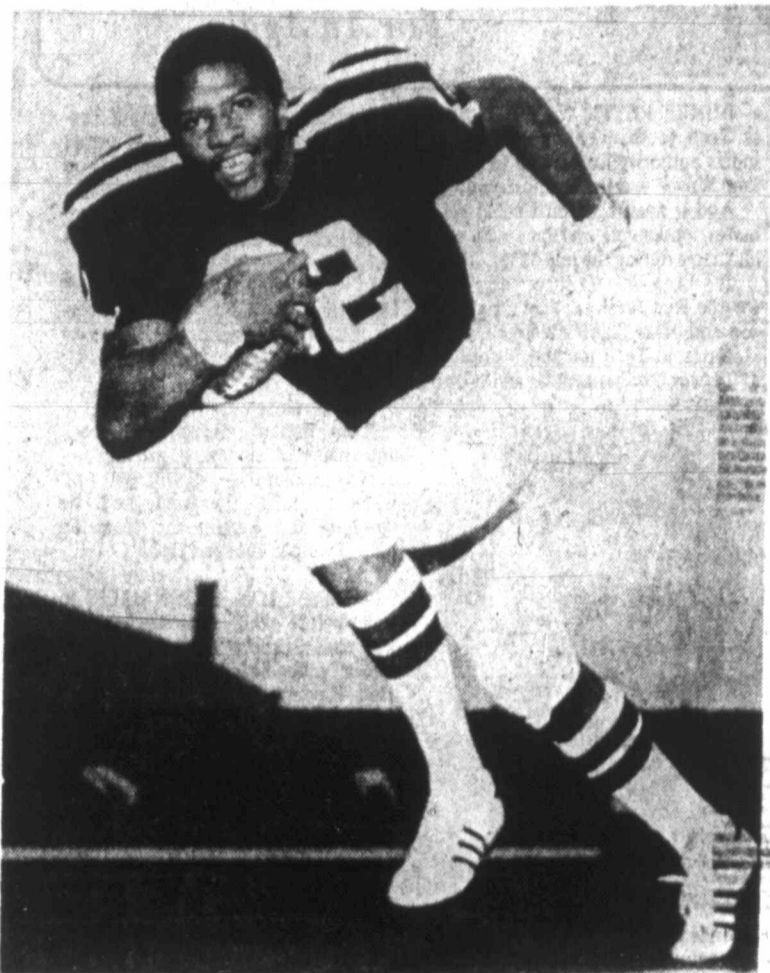

A&M's defense has been surprisingly tough the last two weeks. All-conference end Jacob Green (6-2, 230) and his partner at left tackle James Zachery (6-3, 244) are the second and third leading tacklers on the squad respectively. Zachery has 32 tackles and three quarterback sacks. Green has 29 stops and two sacks.

Linebackers Mike Little, Doug Carr and Cal Peveo are not the biggest linebackers in college football, but they are tough and quick. Little (5-10, 203), Carr (5-10, 191) and Peveo (6-2, 220) have 82 stops among them.

The starting defensive secondary of cornerbacks Carl Grulich and Dan Davis and safeties John Dawson and Elroy Steen, has also blossomed into a consistent group.

Dawson, a 5-11, 189-pound junior, has three interceptions to lead the team. Grulich, the Aggies' defensive leader, has a pair of thefts as does reserve cornerback Leandrew Brown.

Senior David Appleby has been having an excellent year punting the football. Appleby has kicked 35 times for 1,457 yards—an average of 41.6 yards per kick.

Mustang Top AAAA Lineman

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
Like an Hawaiian sunset, the exploits of an offensive lineman are a bit hard to explain at times.

Take Rodney Staggs, for example. Last Thursday night against Amarillo Tascosa, the Coronado lineman "graded out" a whopping 93 per cent. It's like a solid A on a chemistry test, in other words. And both are about as hard to come by as an understanding mother-in-law.

"The way we grade a lineman," explained CHS line coach John Carpenter, "is if he manages to block the right man and that man doesn't get to the ballcarrier. We also look at how he (the lineman) goes down field and tries to cut off a defensive back."

"Rodney did both those very, very well."

In fact, Staggs, this week's Avlanche-Journal offensive player of the week for Class AAAA, posted the highest mark ever given by head coach Jack Quarles for a lineman at Coronado.

"We always knew he could block," said Quarles. "But we're surprised he did that well."

That's because the contest against Tascosa was the first time Staggs ever played on the offensive line against a varsity foe. The 240-pound junior started six games as a sophomore and the four contests this year on the defensive side. But the CHS running game seemed to be going nowhere at times, so Staggs was called on by Quarles to help beef-up the line.

And the switch has apparently paid dividends.

"Wow," exclaimed Carpenter, "did he ever get the job did. He really played great... really great."

Staggs wasn't the sole reason Coronado posted a high 269 yards on the ground against the Rebels, but Carpenter said he didn't hurt matters either. Until Thursday night, the Ponies best night on the ground this season had been 234 in a 16-0 win over Dunbar.

Now, along with playing on offense, Staggs will also double-up and start at the tackle slot on defense. But he'll alternate throughout the game with teammate Joe Barnes.

A lineman chasing defensive backs is like a Great Dane going after a Chihuahua. They may not catch them very often, but when they do... look out.

Also nominated for the A-J honor were Coronado quarterback Alan Harp, who carried the ball for 164 yards on 22 carries against Tascosa.

Lubbock High quarterback Gilbert Cuevas hit 4 of 8 passes for 89 yards and carried the ball for an additional 17 in LHS' 21-14 win over Dunbar.

Larry Walker, a Lubbock High receiver, who caught four passes for 67 yards.

Monterey running back Willie Johnson, who galloped for 86 yards on 20 carries during the Plainsmen's stunning 7-0 upset of state-ranked Estacado.

Reds Cry Over Call

CINCINNATI (AP)—A controversial call by second base umpire Frank Pulli helped Pittsburgh to a vital run in its 3-2, 10-inning victory over Cincinnati in Wednesday's second game of the National League Championship Series.

Pulli signalled that Cincinnati right fielder Dave Collins had trapped Phil Garner's leadoff drive, allowing the Pirates runner to reach first base with a single in the fifth inning. Garner later came around to score the Pirates' second run.

The Reds howled, insisting that Pulli should have consulted with right field umpire John Kibler. Pulli, however, refused.

"Collins started toward right-center field," said Pulli, reconstructing the play. "It's my job to get out there. I got there and I ruled that he didn't catch the ball. I saw the play all the way."

Some television replays appeared to show Collins making the catch. "I don't care about replays," Pulli snapped. "Don't talk to me about replays. I'm not going to talk about it."

Kibler said he could not have made the call.

"If I make that call, it has to be a guess," said Kibler, chief of the umpiring crew working this series.

"I called it 'no catch' all the way," Pulli said. "It's either a catch or not a catch. Forget about the trap."

Collins insisted that Pulli had made a mistake.

"All I know, it was the wrong call," the Reds right fielder said. "If I didn't catch it, I would have come up throwing, because I know Garner has good speed."

Pull said John McNamara, the Reds manager, had argued that the umpire should have asked Kibler for help on the play.

Mitchell Keeps Seniors Lead

DALLAS (Special)—Lubbock Country Club golf pro Gene Mitchell fired an 80 Wednesday to go with an earlier round of 76 and wind up first place in the 60-64 age group of the Texas PGA Seniors Golf Tournament here at the Oak Cliff Country Club.

Carlye Tice won the overall tournament with a score of 74-79-153. The tournament was open to all Texas PGA members.

Jay McClure, the pro at Meadowbrook Golf Course, was Lubbock's other representative in the tourney. McClure turned in a 89-87-176.

No Dancing Tonight For Quarles, Ponies

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
It's homecoming time at Coronado, but Jack Quarles certainly isn't mum.

But, then again, Quarles never is. Speaking at the weekly press luncheon at the 50-Yard Line Restaurant, Quarles chuckled: "It's homecoming, but the dance isn't until Friday night so we won't have to worry about any tuxes in the locker room this year."

The contest, which pits Coronado against the Palo Duro Dons, is set for a 7:30 p.m. kickoff at Lowrey Field. The Ponies enter the non-conference clash with a 2-2 won-loss record, while the Dons are 1-3.

Last season, Quarles' first at CHS, the Ponies were upset on Homecoming night 19-0 by Tascosa. Following the game, Quarles said the Ponies had dancing, not football on their minds. He was miffed, in other words.

After opening the season with a 15-6 win over Dumas, Palo Duro has since dropped three straight, including a 10-6 loss to Hereford and a 9-0 setback by Clovis. Both of those losses, according to Quarles, are deceiving.

"Palo Duro doesn't have a bad team," cautioned Quarles. "They lost to a tough Clovis team and to Hereford in a game Hereford shouldn't have won."

The way Quarles tells it, the Tascosa offense might be all the Ponies can handle—then some.

"Shoot," commented Quarles, "Palo Duro will run out of a pro-set, I-set, and T... every formation since Knute Rockne was playing. So I don't really know what to expect."

"I do know they (Palo Duro) nearly have as much speed as Estacado in their backfield," continued Quarles. "They run the sweep and throw the ball really well."

So if any of the Mustangs happened to put on their patent-leathers early instead of a pair of Adidas, Coronado could be in serious trouble, Quarles pointed out.

Meanwhile, Coronado, which evened its record last week, is fresh off what the head coach calls "our best ball game of the year", a 17-0 victory over Amarillo Tascosa.

During that game, quarterback Alan Harp carried the ball for 166 yards on 22 carries. However, the signal didn't connect on a pass against the Rebels, missing all eight attempts.

"He did a heck of a job," said Quarles, talking about Harp. "He is learning how to run the option very well."

Quarles was just as pleased with the performance of Rodney Staggs, who was recently moved to the offensive line in an attempt to beef up Coronado's blocking. According to the head man, Staggs had the best game of any offensive lineman he's coached at CHS.

Red Raider Club To Meet Today

Texas Tech head football coach Rex Dockery and one of his assistant coaches will be featured at today's weekly luncheon of the Red Raider Club.

Dockery will discuss last week's game with the Baylor Bears and preview Saturday's big matchup with the Texas A&M Aggies, one of Tech's oldest rivals.

The luncheon begins at noon at Van's Koko Palace, located at 50th Street and Avenue Q. All Red Raider Club members are urged to attend and anyone interested in joining the Red Raider Club or interested in asking Dockery any questions concerning Tech football is invited to attend.

Old-Timers Game Scheduled Sunday

Many of Texas Tech's former baseball greats will be on hand Sunday at 1 p.m. to participate in an oldtimers contest with this year's Red Raider varsity.

An oldtimers-vs.-oldtimers game is scheduled for 1 p.m. That game will be followed by an oldtimers-vs.-varsity contest. Both games will be played at the Tech diamond.

All-American Ronnie Matson and Gary Ashby are expected to be among the oldtimers on hand for the games.

The Red Raider baseball team will hold a reception at 3 p.m. Saturday in the Lettermen's Lounge for past and present Tech baseball players, booster club members, bat girls and parents.

Lowenstein's Home Run Gives Orioles 6-3 Win

BALTIMORE (AP)—The pitcher John Lowenstein hit a home run in the first inning to give the Baltimore Orioles a 6-3 victory over the Cincinnati Reds in the opening game of the National League championship series Wednesday.

Lowenstein, who had started only three games after severely injuring his left arm in a July 20 game against the New York Yankees, hit the home run off Reds pitcher Tom Seaver.

Seaver, who threw a career-high 107 pitches, was pulled after the first inning because of a strained right arm. He pitched only one inning, allowing two runs and two hits.

Lowenstein's home run was the only one of the game. The Orioles scored five other runs in the second, third, fourth and fifth innings.

The Orioles' offense was led by catcher Mike Scoburn, who had three hits and three runs. Infielder Davey Johnson also had three hits and two runs. Outfielder Steve Nouri had two hits and one run.

The Reds scored three runs in the second, fourth and fifth innings. Their offense was led by outfielder Pete Rose, who had two hits and one run. Infielder Tony Gwynn also had two hits and one run.

The game was played at Camden Yards in Baltimore. The Orioles won the series in four games.

Jacklin Shares Lead

WORMHO (Special AP)—Britain's Tony Jacklin, a Scottish golfer, and U.S. Open champion, shared the lead in a $100,000 international tournament Wednesday.

The tournament, which is called the Danny Mats, was held at the Wormho Golf Club in Wormho, Scotland.

Jacklin, who has won the event twice previously, shot a 67 to lead the field. He was followed by U.S. Open champion Tony Jacklin, who shot a 68.

The tournament was held over two days. The first day was on Wednesday and the second day was on Thursday.

The tournament was held at the Wormho Golf Club, which is located in Wormho, Scotland. The tournament was held from October 3 to October 4.

Tech Coach Gets Homecoming Win

MINNEAPOLIS (Special)—It was a homecoming of sorts for Texas Tech volleyball coach James Hudson who brought his Raiders back Wednesday for a match against Southern University.

The Raiders defeated SNU 3-0, 15-11, 15-7 before a crowd of nearly 1,000 who came out to watch the Raiders' homecoming match. It was the second time this year the Raiders volleyball team has defeated SNU.

The Raiders are now 106-0 on the year and have won their last nine games in a row. Tech's next match comes at home against SNU on Oct. 6.

UT Kicker Gets Grant

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Coach Fred Akers disclosed Wednesday that walk-on kicker John Goodson had earned a scholarship with his performance in Texas' 21-0 victory over Missouri last Saturday.

The victory enabled Texas to hold onto No. 4 in the national college football poll, while the loss dropped Missouri from No. 5 to No. 15.

Goodson, a 6-foot-3, 200-pound sophomore, tied Russell Erleben's school record for a single game with four field goals against Missouri. His field goals were for 23, 50, 55 and 25 yards.

His high, long kickoffs also helped pin Missouri in its end of the field. The Tigers crossed midfield only once on its own power.

"The kickoff team was probably the most spectacular of any of our units," Akers told the Longhorn Club.

Akers noted Goodson's fourth field goal as he narrated Texas-Missouri game films and commented, "That got him a school record (tie) and also got him a scholarship."

Akers also revealed that quarterback Donnie Little had a swollen right thumb and had not worked out this week for the Southwest Conference game against Rice on Saturday.

Center Wes Hubert is nursing a hip bruise, defensive tackle Steve McMichael has a strained hamstring muscle and four or five Longhorns, including starting receiver Les Koenning, are out with a flu-like illness.

"One of the problems we are facing right now," said Akers, "is that everyone who comes into contact with our players is still congratulating them on the Missouri game or looking forward to Oklahoma."

Texas plays No. 3 Oklahoma in the Cotton Bowl at Dallas on Oct. 13. The game will be nationally televised.

"If Rice has conceded us a victory, they would have notified us by now," Akers said sarcastically.

Oklahoma demolished Rice, 63-21, but Akers said Rice "moved the football throughout the game."

Akers recalled Texas got inside Missouri's 20-yard-line six times and inside the 10 four times but scored only one touchdown. "Part of it was due to Missouri's defense but a lot of it was due to our miscues," said Akers.

"Our defense did a spectacular job," said Akers, "but there are areas we're concerned about offensively. We're still not error-free."

Bonnet Captures National Pole

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Neil Bonnett, setting a new track record for qualifying and keeping the Wood Brothers string of pole victories intact, won the pole position Wednesday for Sunday's $300,000 National 500 stock car race.

Bonnett, still in his first season of driving for the Wood Brothers, rocketed around the 1.5-mile banked track at 164.304 mph to put his Mercury on the pole.

Bonnett's run, which earned him $10,000 that was presented in the form of pure gold, surpassed the track qualifying record of 162.162 mph set by Cale Yarborough in 1969.

Thanks to a recent reaving job on the third and fourth turns at the Charlotte Motor Speedway, speeds were higher than ever during qualifying Wednesday. The top eight drivers who earned spots in Sunday's 40-car field all ran faster than the old record.

Buddy Baker was the second driver to attempt to qualify Wednesday and he was the first to shatter the old record.

But the 164.179 mph turned by Baker in a Chevrolet was eventually eclipsed by Bonnett and Baker took the other front-row spot for Sunday's race.

Darrell Waltrip was the third fastest qualifier Wednesday with Yarborough fourth fastest.

Benny Parsons in a Chevrolet was next with Bobby Allison in a Ford earning the spot beside Parsons.

Bonnett, who replaced David Pearson as the Wood Brothers driver earlier this year, handed the team its 13th straight pole for races at Charlotte.

Drivers ran two laps to qualify Wednesday, and Bonnett's first lap was slower than his second.

"To be honest, I was really concerned when Buddy turned that lap. I knew it'd take a super effort," the Hueytown, Ala., driver said.

"It didn't feel like at all we could do it on the first lap. I pretty well used up the racetrack on the second lap," Bonnett said.

Baker, a local favorite by virtue of his home in Charlotte, had to sit and watch while other drivers tried to better his speed which was turned in early in the afternoon.

"We had a good clean run," Baker said. "If we get beat, we'll get beat by a better car."

It was the famed Wood Brothers Mercury, which carried Bonnett to a pole earlier this year in the World 600 at Charlotte, that turned out to be the better car.

"I felt so grateful that we just were able to win it," said team crew chief Leonard Wood. "I think Neil did a great job."

Several drivers slipped on the new asphalt coming out of the fourth turn and some adjusted their driving accordingly. Others didn't.

"I tried to drive it just like I been driving it," Yarborough said. Maybe I shouldn't have. It's rough, but the new pavement is better."

Another 15 qualifying spots will be decided Thursday with the field completed in qualifying on Friday.

Up Boxing

WOODBIDGE, N.J. (AP) — Former No. 2 World Boxing Association light-heavyweight James Scott said Wednesday that he is leaving professional boxing because he has been barred from championship fights while in prison.

"The facts are clear," Scott said. "The WBA has stripped me of my ratings and said they will not let me fight for championships as long as I'm in prison. So I won't fight as long as I'm in Rahway State Prison."

Superior Court Judge Nicholas Scaleria last month denied Scott's petition to be released on bail so he could fight for the championship.

"There is no justice for black people in this country. If the WBA wanted me not to fight they should never have rated me. But they just said I couldn't fight for a championship while in prison."

"I follow the teachings of the prophet Muhammad who said there's no justice for the black person in this country — especially Muslims," he said.

"At the height of my career a bunch of guys who smoke cigars and eat caviar have decided: 'Okay, we know this guy is the champion and no one can beat him so we'll take his crown.'"

"They killed every hope or incentive for prisoners all over the country," he said.

Scott's promoter, Murad Muhammad, already had lined up two bouts — one with Alvaro Vaquez Lopez on Dec. 1, and another with Jerry Celestine Oct. 27.

Both fights were to be held at the medium-security prison.

"The only thing that would get me back fighting is to get back on the street," Scott said.

The light-heavyweight said he saw a comparison between his case and that of former heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali.

All was threatened with prison during the 60s for refusing induction into the Army. He was stripped of his title for several years.

"I'm undefeated (15-0-1) and he (Ali) was undefeated. I was stripped out of the ring for no just cause and he was stripped out of the ring for no just cause. And we're both Muslims."

The only WBA delegate to vote against Scott's removal at the meeting in Miami was New Jersey Deputy Athletic Commissioner Robert Lee.

"I don't think Scott ought to quit fighting," Lee said. "He didn't get this far by quitting."

"I think Scott's reaction is natural, but he can't stop now."

Scott is serving a 30-to-40-year sentence for an armed robbery conviction.

Scaleria, as he denied Scott's bid for release, cited the fighter's in-prison violations and his prior criminal record and called him a "danger to society."

Merry Mex Hometown Favorite At Texas Open

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Lee Trevino is feeling good and playing better. That prompts a message to his thousands of Mexican-American fans in San Antonio: Prepare for a big party Sunday night after the final round of the $250,000 Texas Open that starts today.

"I'm really charged up for this one. I think my game right now puts me in the position that I have a good chance of winning," said Trevino, who finished second in last week's World Series of Golf and is having one of his best years on the pro tour.

"I feel good. I'm ready. I'm hitting the ball real well. My irons are sharp and I'm putting well. My game is right now," he added.

Trevino, 39, then flashed his famous Merry Mex smile and quipped, "I tell you what, there will be one big party around here Sunday night if I do win."

Trevino, a Dallas native, is easily the most popular pro golfer in San Antonio, where Mexican-Americans comprise more than half of the city's population of 800,000.

He was the only pro golfer with a gallery in Tuesday's practice round and is customarily followed by thousands of spectators at the Texas Open. He's won five major championships and more than $1.8 million since joining the pro tour in 1967, but he has never won the Texas Open.

dered the tour's climax. The glamour names — Jack Nicklaus, Tom Watson, Gary Player, Andy Bean — are passing it up.

The tournament had only three of the Top Ten until Lon Hinkle edged Trevino and two others for the $100,000 top prize last week in Akron, Ohio. That boosted Hinkle, one of the favorites here this week, to third on the list.

Trevino has won one tournament this season, finished second four times and has a total of nine Top Ten finishes. He is fourth on the list with $228,900 — only $3,000 shy of his best season since joining the tour in 1967.

Fellow Texans Ben Crenshaw, who is fifth, and Bruce Lietzke, who is eighth, are the other two Texas Open entries in the Top Ten.

Trevino finished fifth in the 1978 Texas Open — won by surprising, little-known Ron Streck, who returns this year.

Australians Have Jets On Their Side

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Top American singles players Vitas Gerulaitis and John McEnroe, struggling to overcome jet-lag in time for Friday's singles matches in the Davis Cup semifinal against Australia, put in a four-hour workout at White City Wednesday and struggled to find their touch on the grass courts.

Neither player has played on grass since Wimbledon four months ago and they had trouble reading the bounce on the slow court Wednesday.

McEnroe, who arrived early Wednesday after a 24-hour flight from the United States, was on the court within five hours of his arrival.

Gerulaitis arrived on Tuesday but still was feeling the effects of his non-stop flight from London.

Australian non-playing Davis Cup captain Neale Fraser believes the late arrivals of the two top Americans will be a plus for Australia.

Fraser also said he was disappointed the Australian media had "written off" Australia's chances in the semifinal.

"I am disappointed in the attitude of many people who consider the United States a past proposition," he said.

He said McEnroe, ranked No. 3 in the world, never had played under Davis Cup conditions.

"We hope to take advantage of McEnroe's late arrival and I'm sure we can overcome the odds."

On performance, the Australian side looks outclassed. Along with McEnroe, Gerulaitis is ranked No. 4. Australia's No. 1 singles player, John Alexander, is ranked 19th and Mark Edmondson, a former Australian Open winner, is ranked 76th in the world.

The draw for the series will be held today.

Australia likely is to field Alexander and Edmondson in the singles and Alexander and Phil Dent in the doubles.

Dent is recovering from an ankle injury but is expected to play.

Burglars Bungle Holdup

ERIE, Pa. (AP) — A pair of bungling burglars missed their chance to holdup a bank in a suburb of this northwestern Pennsylvania city by arriving 20 minutes late, police said.

The apparent target of Tuesday's planned heist was the McKean branch of the Marine Bank.

A masked man carrying a pistol walked up to the bank at 3:30 p.m., but found the doors locked and fled in a car with a waiting driver, police said. The bank closes at 3 p.m. on Tuesdays.

Police found the getaway car, but not the bandits.

Alligator Gives Change

SEATTLE (AP) — Judy Sievert grimaced, then in a businesslike way plunged her hand down the alligator's gullet to retrieve a pocketful of loose change the reptile had swallowed.

Nasty the alligator lost 26 cents as a result of the operation Tuesday at the Woodland Park Zoo.

Miss Sievert stuck her arm down a plastic pipe inserted through the alligator's mouth into its stomach after the zoo's veterinarian, Dr. James Foster, sedated the six-foot reptile.

Miss Sievert, 24, a zoo volunteer, was summoned because she is 6 feet, 2 inches tall and slim, with arms to match her height — and Nasty's gullet.

Nasty's problem was that he had swallowed 21 pennies and a nickel in his 10 or so years at the zoo, money tossed into his pit by passersby for good luck.

Had Nasty's savings not been withdrawn, he might have suffered fatal metallic poisoning, Foster said.

Chair Dug Up For Pope

NEW YORK (AP) — The 109-year-old chair from which Pope John Paul II said goodbye to New Yorkers at Shea Stadium on Wednesday just recently had been found "buried" in the basement of a Brooklyn church.

The massive, ornately carved chair was discovered in the basement of St. Augustine's Church on Sixth Avenue where it had been buried for many years, according to the Rev. Howard Basler of the diocese of Brooklyn.

Once found, the solid oak chair was completely restored, Basler said.

The Most Rev. John Snyder, an auxiliary bishop of Brooklyn, recommended that the chair be used at Shea Stadium, the final event of the pontiff's 29-hour stay in New York.

Pope Flubs 'Skyscrapers'

NEW YORK (AP) — Pope John Paul II had a little trouble with the word "skyscrapers" during his remarks at Shea Stadium on Wednesday. But he showed he knew how to please the crowd.

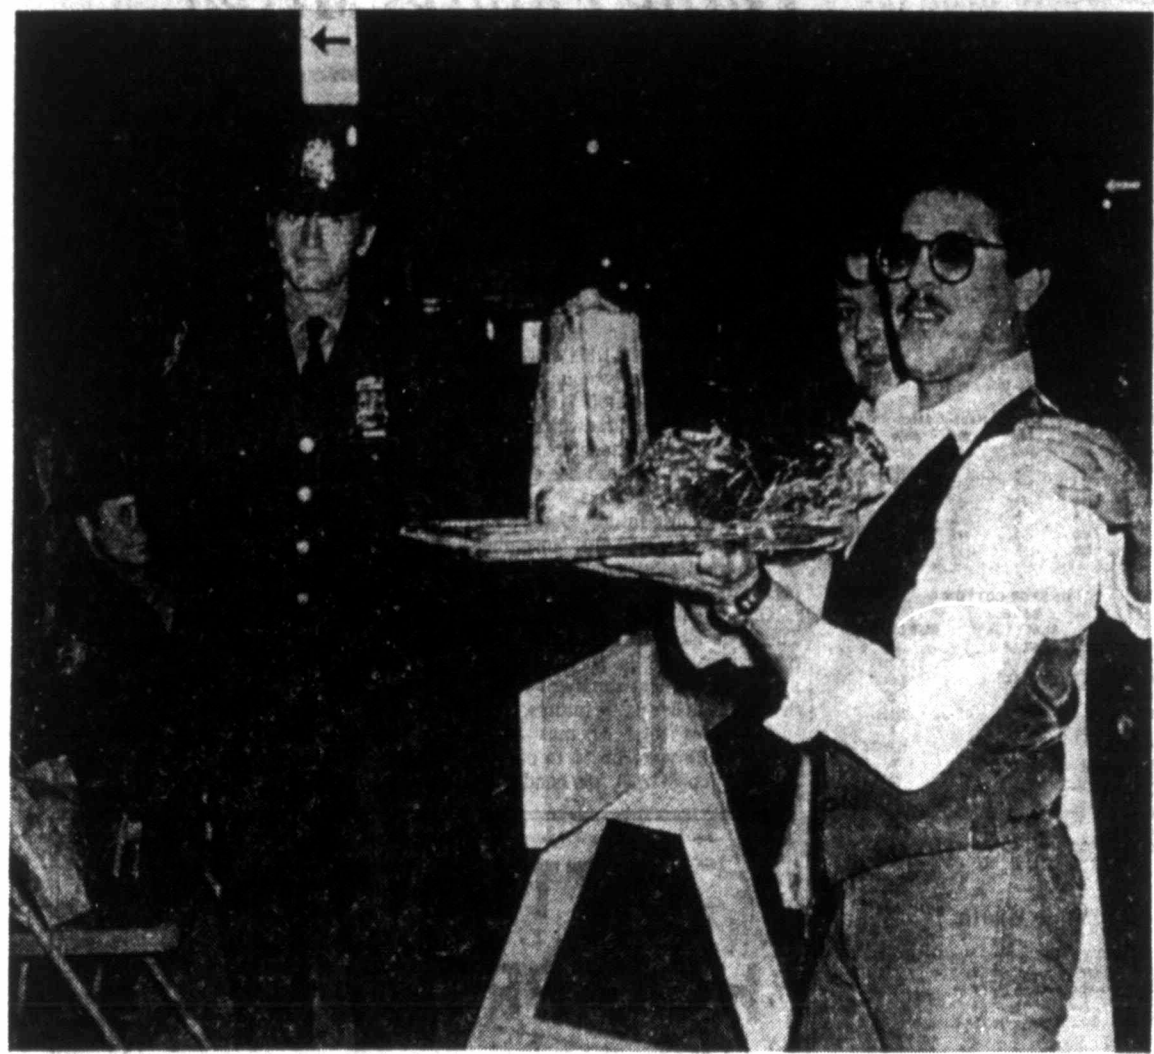

"I wish to greet all the people of New York. From Long Island. (Applause.) From New Jersey. (Applause.) And from Connecticut. (Applause.) And Brooklyn! (Applause.)"

"It's my second visit to Brooklyn. Second in my life. (Applause.)"

"A visitor to New York is always impressed by the special character of this metropolis, the skyscrapers, scrapers. (Laughter.) Skyscrapers. (Laughter.) In Italian, grattacielo ('scratched heaven'). In Polish, draczce chmur ('scratched cloud')."

Robber Readily Satisfied

CHICAGO (AP) — "That's enough" said the strangely dressed robber. Then she took the money and ran, although the teller was ready to hand over more.

Police were searching today for a young woman who was wearing both a pair of jeans and a skirt when she robbed the Pioneer Trust and Savings Bank of $2,000 Tuesday.

Police said the woman entered the bank about 3:30 p.m. and handed a woman teller a note saying: "This is a stick-up. Do not press the alarm. Give me all your 90s, 20s, and 10s. No one will be hurt."

The teller handed over two bundles of $50 bills and was getting more money when the robber suddenly said "that's enough" and fled the bank, police said.

They said the robber did not indicate she had a weapon. She was wearing a large straw hat, a button-down cardigan sweater, a striped skirt over blue jeans, and high heels.

Captain's Kids Reading

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — You can take it from Captain Kangaroo — children who grew up glued to the television antics of Mr. Greenjeans and Bunny Rabbit are reading more books than ever.

That's part of the message the durable children's idol brought to educators at a "Parents as Reading Partners" conference sponsored by the state Senate's Education Committee.

Captain Kangaroo, known off screen as Bob Keeshan, said that in the early days of television, when his show was first aired, some 7 million books were published each year and today 50 million roll off the presses annually.

Keeshan regularly lectures about the thing he loves best both on and off screen — children.

Television, he said, has the "potential to inform, stimulate and motivate" but parents "must know when to turn it off" and spend time with their children.

Haley Buys Boyhood Home

HENNING, Tenn. (AP) — Author Alex Haley, whose family heritage has brought him fame and fortune, has realized a long-time dream — owning his boyhood home.

Haley, author of the Pulitzer Prize-winning "Roots," said he purchased the white-frame house known as the "old Will Palmer place" last week. The house, built by his grandfather in 1918 and designated as a Tennessee historical landmark in 1977, was severely damaged by fire four months ago.

"I'm going to have it restored and make a kind of museum out of it," Haley said Tuesday when he visited the Lauderdale County town where he spent his childhood.

It was on the front porch of the two-story that Haley said his grandmother told him the stories that inspired him to search for his African ancestors, the basis for "Roots."

Haley said he agreed not to disclose the purchase price of the house.

Iacocca To Make Pitch

DETROIT (AP) — Lee A. Iacocca spends much of his time working as chairman of Chrysler Corp. But he's going in to television — making a personal pitch for his company's cars in a new series of commercials.

Iacocca appears for three seconds at the end of a 30-second commercial scheduled for Wednesday night's American League playoff game between the California Angels and the Baltimore Orioles.

Iacocca told reporters on Sept. 12 he had filmed a pilot commercial at the urging of the advertising agency, Kenyon & Eckhardt Inc., and dealers, but had not decided whether to permit it to be shown.

It is the first time the head of the troubled No. 3 automaker has appeared in a commercial, though other company chiefs have done so.

Rev. Jackson Reported Ailing In Beirut, Visited By Arafat

BEIRUT (AP) — The Rev. Jesse Jackson was hospitalized with a stomach ailment Wednesday night and had to postpone a meeting with Yasser Arafat, so the PLO chief visited his bedside, giving him a big kiss and a bouquet of flowers.

There was no word on the American black activist's condition.

Jackson, who has been welcomed by Arab leaders with open arms since he began his Middle East tour Sept. 24, was admitted to American University of Beirut Hospital with an ailing stomach shortly after arriving here from Damascus.

Arafat came to the hospital after Jackson postponed a scheduled meeting with the guerrilla chief and other Palestine Liberation Organization officials. Jackson was hospitalized shortly after he returned from a trip to Damascus and talks with Syrian President Hafez Assad.

Jackson and his 17-member delegation planned to leave Beirut today for the United States.

In Damascus, Assad warmly greeted Jackson and then told him the U.S.-sponsored Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty was an obstacle to comprehensive peace in the Mideast, the official Syrian news agency reported.

Jackson was expected to ask the PLO to consider deleting from its national charter clauses that call for destruction of Israel and the establishment of a secular democratic state in Palestine. He also wanted the group to renounce terrorism.

After talks with Arafat on Saturday, Jackson said he hoped to return home with a document redefining PLO aims that he would try to present to President Carter.

The American black activist briefed Assad on his visits to Israel, the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River, Lebanon and Egypt and expressed his views on Palestinian and Israeli security, Damascus sources said.

"After listening to Jackson's views about a political solution to the (Mideast) conflict, Assad reiterated that (Egyptian President Anwar) Sadat... has deviated from Arab ranks and that the Camp David accords and the subsequent Egyptian-Israeli treaty of surrender do not serve the cause of peace but rather create an obstacle to peace," the official Syrian news agency reported.

The news report was apparently directed as a response to Sadat, who had sent a message to Assad with Jackson reminding the Syrian that they were "Arab brothers."

Both shared a common goal of wanting to end the Palestinian struggle for a homeland, Assad added. Assad and Arafat have been at odds with Sadat since the Egyptian's trip to Jerusalem in 1977.

Sadat's message to Assad reportedly also dealt with efforts underway to arrange an overall Arab-Israeli settlement.

Before meeting with Assad, Jackson told reporters here that he backed Syrian support for the PLO and that the group was the "legitimate representative" of the Palestinian cause.

"And the Middle East crisis cannot be solved without the PLO," Jackson said, adding that the group was "a government in exile. Palestinians do have rights."

Jackson again urged all Palestinian leaders to abandon a struggle against Israel, saying: "Armed action (against Israel) may jeopardize the PLO's chances of winning new friends and supporters."

Jackson and his 17-member delegation of black and white American ministers, who have been welcomed by Arab heads of state and Palestinian guerrilla chiefs with open arms, arrived in Damascus late Tuesday after landing in Beirut from Cairo aboard a private jet provided by Sadat.

In returning to Beirut, Jackson carried another message from Sadat to Arafat, urging the PLO chief to take this "critical moment" to reassess Palestinian policy in light of increased support for his cause from around the world.

Jackson started his tour in Israel, where Prime Minister Menachem Begin would not meet with him.

IST DETOUR SLATED

Beginning today, traffic on Interstate 27 will be detoured to the newly constructed west frontage road in the vicinity of FM 54, approximately two miles north of Abilene. The temporary routing will allow construction of header banks at the FM 54 interchange. This work is being done as a part of the construction of I 27 from just north of Abilene to one mile south of FM 57 in Hale County.

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

By DUANE HOWELL

ALL EYES IN AGRICULTURAL FUTURES markets lately have been on the volatile price movements in precious metals.

The extraordinary developments in the metals markets make agricultural analysts uncertain about price trends in their own markets, as well as wary about the possible effects on their markets should the recent advances be retraced.

One well-known cotton analyst comments:

"All that we need to understand to predict price trends accurately is how to determine the size of the (certificated) stocks, forecast this year's crop, and divine the effect of the metals speculation on the overall picture."

Cotton is in largely uncharted territory in so many aspects of the business that predictions seem particularly foolhardy, he adds.

The cotton market for years has been burdened with certificated stocks, which have hampered the front months relentlessly. But now that weight has been lifted, with cert stocks continuing to decline and dropping Wednesday to 96,919 bales.

SOME SUGGEST THAT THE FUTURES BOARD will reflect the absence of stocks, at least for the balance of the year, although there are varying views on this.

How much of a "fluke," if indeed it really could be called that, was it that the previously large cert stocks included a heavy proportion of penalty-type Texas cotton? Was it due mostly to unique crop conditions or to something else?

What now are the possibilities of Mid-South cotton being certificated in volume, especially in time potential delivery on the December contract? What are the odds for a break in the basis, with the futures market possibly holding relatively steady or widening the gap in relation to spot prices?

The questions could be phrased differently in diverse contexts, but they perhaps convey a sense of some of the current market imponderables.

And there are more. Will growers, as some suggest, continue to be mostly scale-up sellers? Or, as others wonder, would they become basically scale-down sellers as new-crop cotton becomes available in significant volume, and to what point or degree?

What will be the final quality mix of the High Plains crop? Some aspects aren't so fuzzy. The textile trade, for all the predictions of gloom and doom, is enjoying better business—for now, at least—than most had predicted, some analysts say. Mill inventories are uncomfortably low in response to high interest rates and prospects for a big new crop. The crop itself remains a bit on the late side, with much of the early cotton committed.

BUT FUNDAMENTAL TRADING FACTORS have been thrust into the background by the market's inability to draw logical conclusions as to price prospects in light of recent developments in metals and the implications and effects these have on Western monetary instruments.

"So long as the Arab oil producing nations continue to enjoy excess revenues in the order of $20 billion or so per quarter, it seems almost irresistible that a portion of it will go chasing after gold," one cotton analyst says.

But he points out that the Commodity Research Bureau Futures price index, from the beginning of 1978 through last week, had advanced only from 228 to 275. In that same period, gold leaped from $165 to $207.

Thus trying to relate the prices of agricultural commodities to those of the metals, for that time frame at least, would have been very frustrating.

Yet a few people insist that the agricultural markets may be on the verge of an era similar to that of 1973-74 when a flight from paper currencies to commodities contributed to skyrocketing prices on the major U. S. farm crops.

The metals and currency markets this week have been influenced by reports that the International Monetary Fund, meeting in Belgrade, Yugoslavia, might agree on measures that could aid the U. S. dollar. The markets also have been studying the somewhat enigmatic remarks about the dollar and gold made by U. S. officials at the IMF conference.

These have led some analysts to conclude that a defense package for the dollar may have been prepared but that it may not be introduced, depending upon future developments.

IT IS UNCERTAIN WHETHER SHORT-TERM dollar-support packages would restrain the price of gold in the long run, says Bud Sward, precious metals analyst for Shearson, Hayden, Stone, Inc. But abrupt price fluctuations were expected in metals Wednesday on the heels of the rumors of another dollar-rescue package.

Indications that congressional pressure is building to stop the U. S. Treasury auctions of 750,000 ounces of gold monthly also are being watched. Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., may propose restrictions on the government gold sales. Another U. S. gold auction is scheduled Oct. 16.

Paul Sarnoff, director of research of ContiCommodity Services, Inc., says the United States had about 20,000 short tons of gold in the Treasury 25 years ago. That amount then was five times as much as all the European countries combined, he says.

The United States today has about 3,500 short tons, he says, with Europe holding twice as much. "It is quite unpleasant to imagine what our dollar will be worth when there is no more gold in the Treasury," he says.

Natural Insect Control Gets Industry Support

WASHINGTON (AP) — The pesticide industry said recently it supports the use of "natural" methods along with chemicals to control the grasshoppers, worms and other pests that threaten the nation's crops.

But it said the government should not force farmers to use these non-chemical methods to save their corn, wheat, cotton, fruits, vegetables and other commodities.

The National Agricultural Chemicals Association, which represents companies that make or formulate 90 percent of the U.S. pesticides, said integrated pest management "can evolve into a viable technique" for controlling pests that threaten the food supply.

Jack D. Early, association president, said IPM — as the program is called — is "a technique whose time has come" and that "we favor the best pest control methods available, whatever they may be."

The pesticide industry accepts a responsibility "to play a central role" in developing new IPM methods, he said.

But "we oppose the use of the regulatory process" to force IPM instructions to be put on pesticide labels, Early said. "Experience has shown that educational and demonstrational approaches are far more effective."

Pests include weeds and plant diseases as well as insects. For years, farmers have relied heavily on the applications of chemicals to crops and soil to curb these threats to crop production.

But with the environmental concerns and federal crackdowns on potentially harmful chemicals — such as DDT and other pesticides — much interest and research have developed on the side of an integrated approach to reduce pest damage.

Biologic controls, improved cultural practices and other means are involved in IPM so that less amounts of chemicals may be required.

However, the association said in a position paper that as IPM catches on "there is now a danger that government will attempt to restrict the use of pesticides below the level needed to produce enough food for domestic and export consumption."

According to the industry's report, "The central issue is whether farmers will be allowed to try IPM voluntarily or whether government will impose such methods regardless of the effect on farm productivity."

It said "one specific proposal for over-regulation" by the government is that IPM recommendations be included on the labels of chemical pesticides.

The association said the proposal means that the chemical product should be used only after other types of pest control programs have been tried by producers.

"This implies that the use of the pesticide will be a 'last resort.' Crop loss will have occurred already," it said.

Higher Corn Prices Trigger Releases

WASHINGTON (AP) — Corn prices again have risen enough to trigger the release of grain held by farmers in the government's reserve program, the Agriculture Department said Wednesday.

Weldon Denny of the department's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service said the most recent average price of corn at the farm was $2.92 a bushel, two cents above the release price of $2.90 a bushel.

Thus, farmers have the option of repaying government price support loans received when they stored the corn in the program and then selling or using it as they choose. However, they are not required to redeem the grain at this time.

Farmers have about 50.3 million bushels of corn still in the reserve, a program intended to keep the grain off the market for as long as three years — or until market prices go up enough to trigger its release.

Initially, producers stored 732 million bushels of corn under the program. Prices rose to the trigger level last June 19 but then sagged, resulting in the government cancelling the release status on July 31.

During the previous release, however, farmers redeemed 191.7 million bushels of corn before it was locked up again.

Denny said the department will review the corn situation again on Nov. 30 to see if it should continue in release status.

With the release of corn, all grain in the reserve program now is available for use or sale by farmers.

Initially, about 1.3 billion bushels of grain — mostly corn and wheat — were in the reserve. Of the 413 million bushels of wheat put into storage, farmers as of Sept. 28 had redeemed 159.7 million bushels.

Prices of wheat are still high enough so that it will continue to be released through Oct. 31. The release price of wheat is $3.29 a bushel.

Currently, the average farm price of wheat is $3.89 a bushel, officials said.

Agricultural Engineers Begin Meetings Today

More than 100 agricultural engineers will meet in Lubbock today and Friday to discuss the latest engineering aspects of food production and distribution.

Delegates attending the 15th annual meeting of the Texas Section of the American Society of Agricultural Engineers (ASAE) will represent federal and state agencies, universities and private industry.

The meetings will be at the South Park Inn. Registration fee is $8 and delegates can register at 10 a.m. today. Students will be admitted at no charge.

A wide variety of topics covering energy and structural disasters through fires, explosions and tornadoes will be featured.

Several banks, agricultural equipment companies, utility services, irrigation companies and agricultural processing industries are sponsoring the meeting.

Federal officials, private engineering consultants, university researchers and representatives of industrial associations will speak.

Topics discussed will be wind energy generators for irrigation power; causes and prevention of tornado wind damage; ways to establish and develop a consulting engineering practice; land treatment of municipal waste water; ground water injection of cold water for energy recovery; development of equipment for low-cost, low-energy brush control and rangeland seeding; use of cotton gin trash for energy generation; agriculture and the energy production system (gasohol); grain elevator fires and explosions; and "how to stay alive in the agricultural engineering profession."

GRAIN FUTURES	Open	High	Low	Close	Chg
CHICAGO (AP) — Wheat futures rose Wednesday on the Chicago Board of Trade in response to speculation about possible new export demand.
Buying by a major commission house with export connections was cited as one factor in wheat's late gains, which reached 8 to 11 1/4 cents a bushel by the close.
Reports that Agriculture Department officials were conferring Wednesday with Soviet officials about grain exports were sufficient to trigger renewed speculation about the level of U.S. wheat and corn sales to Russia during the coming marketing year. The Agriculture Department says the Soviets' grain crop will total 180 million metric tons, far below the official goal. Many analysts have said they expect the Soviet Union to import as much grain as it can transport.
A late spurt in silver futures encouraged further speculative buying in wheat and, to a lesser extent, in corn, on ideas that the dollar may continue to falter.
At the close, soybeans were unchanged to 2 1/4 cents lower, November $7.16; wheat was 8 to 1 1/4 cents higher, December $4.72; corn was 1 to 2 1/4 cents higher, December $2.89 1/4.

Pope's Visit To Youths 'Mind-Blowing' Event

NEW YORK (AP) — About 19,000 teen-agers in Madison Square Garden gave the pope a guitar, a "Big Apple" T-shirt, a pair of blue jeans and a rising, roaring welcome Wednesday at a youth celebration that was a combination rock concert and basketball pep rally.

They greeted him with the pulsating jungle drums that usually bring the home team hustling out of the locker room in a big basketball tournament.

Then the rafters exploded in an air-splitting thunder of shouts and whistles as the pope circled the arena in his pope-mobile to the rock beat of "Space Shuttle" and "Battle Star Galactica" themes, played by the 100-piece band of Brooklyn's St. Francis Prep.

When Pope John Paul II lifted a tiny blonde girl from a box seat in his strong arms and placed her on top of the vehicle's cab, the young people from 200 Roman Catholic high schools in the metropolitan area commenced the rhythmic chant: "Long live the pope. Long live the pope."

"The Theme from Superman," delivered with blaring, brassy gusto by the almost all-black Cardinal Spellman High School band, serenaded the pope on his way to the throne set up on the pedestal just below the basketball scoreboard that was lit up with the words:

"Holy Father, we welcome you to our city in your pursuit of human dignity for all."

In the foot-stomping, cheering crowd, many young people had tears running down their faces. Several were carried out in a faint.

Already so far behind in his schedule that the youth concert had to begin without him, the 59-year-old pontiff tried several times to start his short speech but was continually interrupted by still another burst of cheering from still another high school far up in the balcony.

One refrain came over loud and clear. "Wrack 'em up, stack 'em up, bust 'em in two. Holy Father, we're for you."

The pope seemed to enjoy these impromptu outbursts more than the scheduled folk songs and a brief slide show of Catholic youth activities which was projected on a giant screen in front of him.

He kept making a cooing, siren-like noise into his microphone, "Woo ... Woo." This perplexed the radio and TV commentators until a Polish priest explained that this was the Polish equivalent of "Wow!"

The pope finally turned the pep rally back to a teen-age revival meeting when he told the teen-agers, "Do you know what it is? We shall destroy the program."

The holy father seemed anxious to begin plucking the guitar that two teen-agers handed him during the presentation of gifts.

His ruddy face expanded into a broad grin when one of the youthful donors handed over the blue jeans that had been bought in Macy's basement and unfurled the T-shirt that proclaimed "The Big Apple Welcomes Pope John Paul II." On the reverse side, the shirt was lettered in red, "New York salutes you for upholding the rights and dignities of men and women everywhere."

The T-shirt and blue denims were meant to symbolize youth's independence as far as adult dress standards are concerned, but few of the youngsters turned up so arrayed for the Garden rally.

Catholic High School officials in New York, Connecticut and New Jersey had passed the word that girls had to wear dresses and boys shirts with collars and slacks other than blue jeans if they were to receive tickets.

"Sister told us not dress like slob for the pope," said Kathy Buelis from Hasbrouck Heights, N.J., who bought a pleated skirt and blazer for the occasion.

After the rock band bombast and the skyrocket cheers the kids listened to his 15-minute address in respectful silence without interruption and with hardly a cough.

It became so quiet when he exhorted the young people to proclaim their religion in the way they conducted their daily lives that one could hear cameras clicking and the sound of pages being turned in the papal manuscript.

But when he finished, a driving hard-rock style "Amen Chorus" erupted from the massed bands, choirs and guitar groups and was picked up spontaneously by the entire youthful audience.

The pope sat back contentedly in his chair, grinning a boyish grin at banners wishing him well in Polish, English and Spanish and reminding him that the New York Rangers were the Stanley Cup hockey champions in 1927, 1932 and 1939.

Every teen-ager you met afterward on the way down the ramps felt he or she had been through a mind-blowing experience.

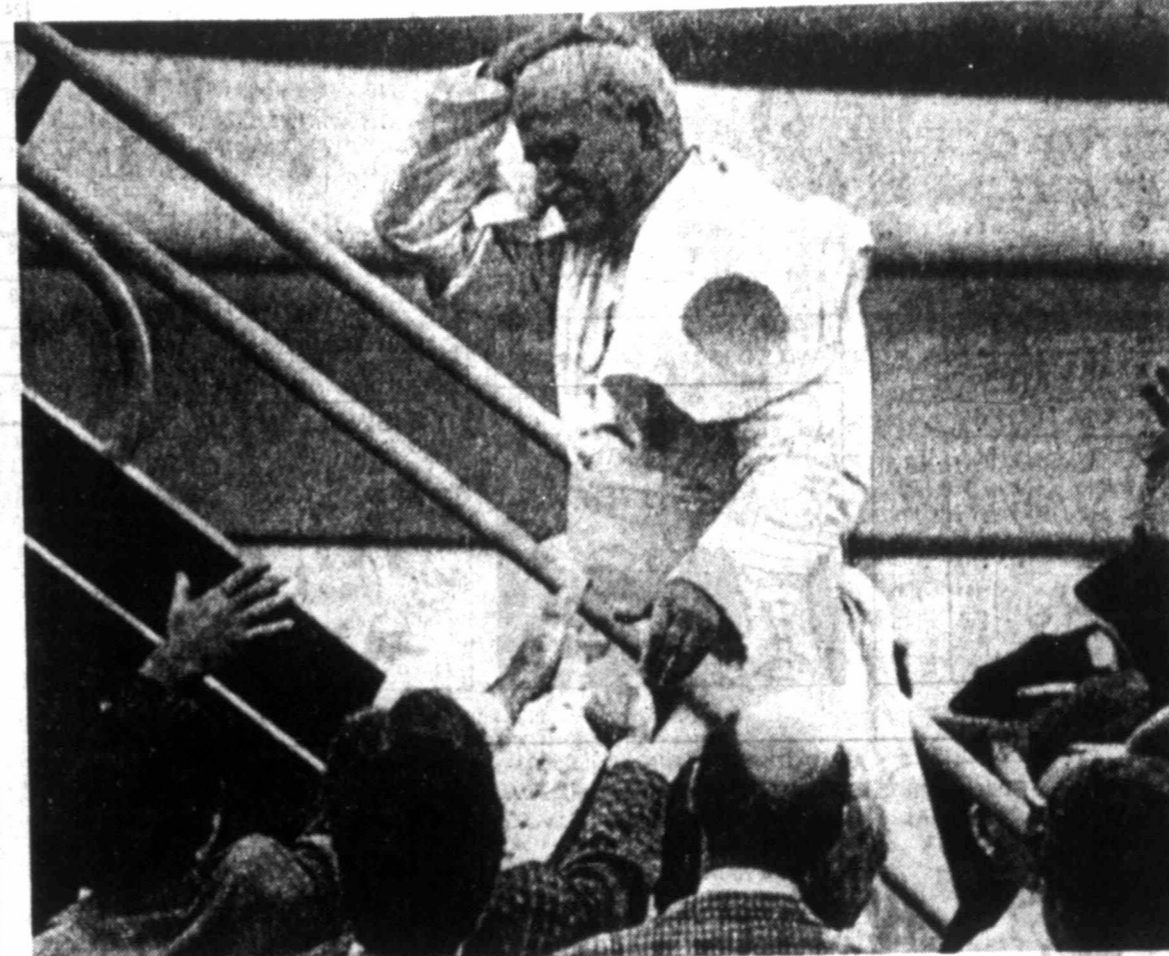

"This pope really speaks his heart to me," said 18-year-old Claudio Lake, a tall guard on Manhattan's Rice High School basketball team who dreams of some day playing in the garden. "But maybe this is dream enough, having a pope coming to see me and my friends."

Teen-Agers Give High Marks To Pope During Garden Invitational Program

NEW YORK (AP) — Pope John Paul Supersar!

That was the verdict of New York teen-agers who examined Madison Square Garden on Wednesday to welcome the visiting pontiff in their own way.

"He's so cute, look how he smiles all the time," shouted Dina Pinturo, 16, who sat near Gate 10 surrounded by other applauding teen-agers from the Holy Family Academy in Bayonne, N.J.

Others reached into their teen vocabularies to express their feelings. "It's terrifically outrageous being here, amen," said Bert Donna Waldron, 16, from Mahopac, N.Y., one of the more than 20,000 young people invited to the Garden to meet the pope.

Rock stars, politicians, sports teams and evangelists have in the past worked long and hard to gain the favor of a Garden audience. John Paul won this one within moments of entering the huge arena as he beckoned six-year-old Gerylyn Smith from the crowd and lifted her briefly onto his open vehicle.

He then proceeded on to thunderous applause that barely let up during the rest of the visit.

The teen-agers were expecting a lot from the pope. "He loves us kids, he encourages youth. He puts us in the forefront," said Lori Comitto, 15, from Mahopac, who got up at 4 a.m., and had ridden two trains and a subway to reach the Garden by 8 a.m.

They were not disappointed in the obvious pleasure the pontiff took from their singing, and from their gifts that were a grab bag of teenage memorabilia, including rock music, a pair of blue jeans and a T-shirt.

The serious message of his speech, however, belied his smiling face. Most of his audience were from Catholic schools, and John Paul preached to them on the virtues of a Catholic education as preparation for their serious duties in life.

"We understood what he meant," said Carol Sczephowski, 18. "He talked to us as adults and not little kids."

Noreen Heath said, "Sure we have heard the same thing from our parents, but it had more meaning in hearing it from the pope. He was asking us, not telling us," the 15-year-old said. Susan Kelly, 15, from College Point, N.Y., said, "It was fantastic hearing him. Very moving. He seems like someone you can talk to."

Christine Lawlor, 16, from Wappingers Falls, N.Y., said, "I didn't expect him to be so kind. He came to us. We can relate to him."

The last word on the Garden gathering came from the attendants who regularly watch crowds come and go in this popular New York City sports and entertainment center.

"The fans who come to see the Knicks (basketball) and the Rangers (ice hockey) are usually here to vent their frustrations on someone," said Don DeFranco, who has worked at the Garden for seven years. "And the people who come to hear the rock groups, they just want to be entertained."

"But here this morning, there is spontaneous joy," said DeFranco. "Watching everyone so happy here, it proves my theory that there has to be more decent teen-agers in the world than bad ones."

Unique Gifts, Chapel Readied For Pope's Arrival In Iowa

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — A tiny country chapel with no running water has been spruced up and Iowans are preparing gifts ranging from art works to homemade jelly for today's arrival of Pope John Paul II.

The pope will visit the rural parish and then proceed to Living History Farms near Des Moines where he will celebrate a Mass for an estimated 200,000 people.

Officials said all the 50 or so gifts from Iowans — including a bottle of blackberry wine and a handcrafted oak clock — will make the trip back to the Vatican on the papal jet.

The state of Iowa will present the pontiff with a porcelain sculpture portraying a peasant bride from the pontiff's native Poland.

Meanwhile, little St. Patrick's Parish near Cumming is ready for its most important guest in its 127 years.

The stained glass windows of the chapel are clean. The red-carpeted center aisle has been vacuumed. The statue of St. Patrick has been dusted.

The lawn has been trimmed. There's new white gravel on the driveway. The grass seed in front of the old hitching rail has sprouted.

There's no running water, but there never was.

"It's the visit of a priest — a very special priest — to a parish church," said Father John Richter. "I think we've got everything pretty well set."

For nearly two weeks, the 205 parishioners have gathered nightly for a prayer service. They've also come one-by-one, around the clock, to keep up a prayer vigil.

"I'm really excited he's coming," said Mrs. Marilyn Connor, who lives across the road. She and her husband and children will greet the pontiff when his helicopter touches down in a small field near their house. The family then will escort him across the road and up the tree-lined church drive.

It's a private, peaceful place, this tiny church in the heart of Iowa's old Irish settlement. The century-old tombstones the pope will see in the nearby cemetery mark graves of immigrants from every county in Ireland.

Among the gifts will be a watercolor painting depicting a rural farm scene, commissioned by the diocese.

The Rev. Sam Palmer, chairman of the gifts committee, said some of the gifts may end up in the Vatican museum.

RAIN, WIND HIT CROWD

NEW YORK (AP) — Heavy rain and strong winds hit the Battery in New York where a large crowd was waiting Wednesday for Pope John Paul II to appear, and Robert White's song was appropriate. Over the loudspeaker, the baritone sang, "Walk on through the wind, walk on through the rain, and you'll never walk alone..."

WEATHERING THE STORM — Pope John Paul II holds a child up in the pouring rain as he leaves the Battery Park religious service in New York Wednesday. (AP Laserphoto)

Others, like the assortment of seeds donated by three Iowa seed firms, will be given to people who can use them, he said.

Thus, the pope will probably never taste the homemade grape jelly made by Mrs. Anthony Kouri of Des Moines, or the popcorn sent by Kenneth Quinn of Lake View.

And he'll probably never recite the rosary on the corn-kernel rosary made by two Catholic women's groups from Des Moines.

Don't thaw frozen fish before cooking, except when necessary for pan-frying or stuffing.

Papal Itinerary For Today

By The Associated Press

Here is Pope John Paul II's itinerary for his visit to Philadelphia, Des Moines and Chicago today. The times are local.

Philadelphia

7:30 a.m. — Visits the Church of St. Peter and Tomb of St. John Neumann.

8:10 a.m. — Arrives At Ukrainian Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception.

9 a.m. — Concelebrates mass at Civic Center with one priest from each diocese in the United States and with the officers of the Conference of Religious Superiors of Men. Two thousand seminarians will be in attendance. Theme: Catholic Priesthood.

11:10 a.m. — Departs for Des Moines.

1 p.m. — Arrives in Des Moines.

1:30 p.m. — Arrives at St. Patrick's Church, a small Irish settlement parish church in rural Cumming. There he will pray with the families of the parish and meet them on the lawn outside the church.

2 p.m. — Departs St. Patrick's by helicopter to the Living History Farms for mass. He will then go by helicopter back to the airport and depart for Chicago at 5 p.m.

6 p.m. — Arrives at Chicago's O'Hare Airport, goes by motorcade through various neighborhoods, then to the Holy Name Cathedral for brief visit and then to Cardinal John Cody's residence for dinner.

9:15 p.m. — Arrives at St. Peter's Church in downtown Chicago for a special address to nuns and priests.

Texan Invited To Reception

DALLAS (AP) — Francisco "Pancho" Medrano isn't sure why he'll be at the White House Saturday to greet Pope John Paul II, but he thinks it has something to do with confronting Texas Rangers.

Medrano, a 57-year-old labor organizer, raised bail for picketers arrested in the Lower Rio Grande Valley in the 1960s when the United Farm Workers tried to organize Mexican-American farm workers. Union activists charged that Texas Rangers harassed and beat some of the farm workers.

Tuesday, Medrano received his invitation to the papal reception in Washington.

"See, someone called me last week and asked me if I was Pancho Medrano," he said, "and then asked me if I was the Pancho Medrano who was involved with the Texas Rangers confrontation in the Valley."

"I told them, 'Yes,' and they said that I would be receiving an invitation to the White House. And that was all they said. I didn't even get the name of the guy that called me."

The invitation was signed by President and Mrs. Carter.

While Medrano was expecting a White House invitation, he said he had no idea it would be for the pope's reception.

"This is an opportunity of a lifetime," he said.

Pope 'Blackout' Upsets Woman

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — The issue of separation of church and state during Pope John Paul II's historic U.S. visit has taken a different twist here.

A woman serving as a juror in a murder retrial is upset with a judge's order to avoid television, radio and newspapers. Anxious to keep track of the pope's visit, she questioned Lancaster County Judge Hugh Stuart's warning.

Stuart advised her that she would have to read about the pope's visit after her jury duty.

The woman is one of 11 prospective jurors selected for the retrial of Erwin Charles Simants, accused of murdering six people.

The first trial was marked by a confrontation between the judge and the news media, ending in a landmark U.S. Supreme Court decision in the press's favor on prior restraint.

Spanish Language Network Plans Expanding To 100 Markets

RENE ANSELMO...Plans to expand Spanish TV Network

NEW YORK (AP) — The Spanish International Network, until now a rather modest operation with 16 stations primarily in the West and Southwest, has plans to beam its signal into more than 100 broadcast markets by 1980.

"We plan to utilize all of the technologies available to us today — television stations, lower-power stations and satellite-fed cable systems — to achieve as closely as possible total coverage of Spanish U.S.A.," says SIN's President, Rene Anselmo.

A major part of the expansion program, Anselmo says, is a unique plan to pay cable systems to carry about 100 hours of Spanish-language programming a week, to be fed by satellite.

The SIN network, as recently as mid-September, listed 10 interconnected stations, in Los Angeles, Fresno, San Francisco, Sacramento, San Antonio, Corpus Christi, Phoenix, Albuquerque, Miami and New York City. In addition, there were non-interconnected affiliates in Chicago, Houston, El Paso-Juarez, San Diego-Tijuana, Laredo-Nuevo Laredo and Yuma-El Centro-Mexicali.

SIN says the 16 stations reach about 20 million Spanish-speaking people.

"We will add about 15 affiliates almost overnight," Anselmo says, "and expect 40-50 stations in a very short time."

"I think eventually we'll be able to build up an affiliate list that is going to be very impressive. We say 100 now, but I'm sure it will be many more than that."

The effect of expansion will translate beyond numbers, Anselmo predicts. "It's my perspective, if you're not in the media, you don't exist. And the Spanish-speaking in this country have been the invisible minority."

"I see this television thing, it's going to make a reality out of the Spanish minority in this country."

SIN has been involved for some time in the development of translator stations, the low-power relay facilities that retransmit a television station's signal to remote areas. It was while on a trip to explore the feasibility of locating a translator near Nogales, Ariz., that Anselmo hit on the idea of paying cable systems to carry SIN programs.

"As I was flying into Nogales, I saw something that would shock any broadcaster," he says. "There were no antennas on any houses, none anywhere. It looked like a desert."

"Nogales is an all-cable market. And I thought, 'Why spend $100,000 on a translator when they're already watching on the cable? Why not just affiliate with the cable?'"

Anselmo says SIN will continue to affiliate with translator stations in smaller areas, and feed them programs by satellite, too. Already, licenses have been granted for translator stations in Austin, Philadelphia, Hartford, Bakersfield, Calif., and Denver.

"There is no inherent difference between the delivery of our network signal via television station, translator or cable system, and we intend to write essentially the same basic affiliation agreement with all three types of outlets," Anselmo says.

SIN carries a daily lineup of Spanish-language shows, including some live sports and public affairs programs. Many are from Mexico, but others are imported from Spain and South America.

In addition, SIN on Sept. 1 launched "Galavision," a program service for the cable industry featuring first-run Spanish-language films as well as sports and variety specials and feature-length dramatic shows, or novelas.

Anselmo says advertisers have been receptive to increased commercial rates as stations have been added to the network. "We have problems with the ratings services, getting figures for our programs, so people who buy time with us are buying because they get results."

Expanding the SIN market eventually will affect the network's programming, he says. "We will be doing more. We're sort of kicking off now a census and election-awareness series called 'Destino

Jogging Docs Not Following Own Advice

BOSTON (AP) — Many doctors say everyone should have a checkup before exercising to make sure that his or her body will stand the strain. Everyone, that is, except the doctors themselves.

A survey of physicians who ran in the Boston Marathon last year shows that jogging docs are reluctant to follow their own advice.

And the doctors who conducted the poll conclude that maybe these physicians are correct to avoid their own medicine, because the battery of tests now in vogue for budding runners is probably a waste of money.

The survey found that 57 percent of the marathon-running physicians recommend that their patients have physical examinations before they begin an exercise program, even if the patients are outwardly healthy.

But at the same time, only 17 percent of the doctors — all of them regular runners — took the time to have checkups themselves.

The results of the survey of 69 doctors, conducted by physicians at the Scott and White Clinic in Temple was published in Thursday's New England Journal of Medicine.

"The data from this survey may simply be further evidence that we often do not practice what we preach," the doctors wrote. But it also shows that doctors feel compelled to offer their patients the latest medical technology, whether they need it or not.

Robert R. Rynearson, a psychiatrist who helped conduct the survey, said some patients demand cardiac stress tests before they dare lace on their running shoes.

"Patients need reassurance, and they believe that technology will give the answers, even though the doctors don't buy this themselves," Rynearson said in an interview. "The doctors know that technology does not have the answers to all health concerns."

About 25 million Americans exercise regularly, and giving them all elaborate medical evaluations would cost millions of dollars, the doctors noted. However, clinics have been set up that specialize in administering pre-exercise tests.

"In our opinion, cost containment in medical practice would be better served if the physician applied the same good judgment about his patients' needs for pre-exercise examinations as he does in his own life and reserved the more costly technological evaluations for those relatively few instances where more extensive investigation is indicated clinically," they concluded.

Interim Settlement Reached At Papers

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A contract covering 700 editorial and advertising employees at two of the city's four daily newspapers will be extended on a day-to-day basis, a federal mediator said Wednesday.

Local 10 of the Newspaper Guild had threatened to strike when its contract expired at 6 a.m. Wednesday, eight hours before Pope John Paul II's scheduled arrival in the city, unless a new agreement were reached.

But about 1:30 a.m. Wednesday, negotiators for the guild and the Philadelphia Inquirer and the Daily News agreed to the day-to-day extension, federal mediator Robert Kyler said.

"The guild negotiating committee feels that significant progress has been made in bargaining," Kyler said.

Negotiations were to resume today. The city's other two daily newspapers, the Bulletin and the Philadelphia Journal, would not have been affected by the strike.

Python Flick Big Hit Despite 'Blasphemy'

NEW YORK (AP)—Although Monty Python's controversial movie, "Life of Brian," has been branded "blasphemous" by religious groups, it has been hailed "successful" at the box office, breaking house records here and in other cities.

"We'd like to thank all the ministers, priests and rabbis," said Graham Chapman and Terry Jones, two members of the six-man British comedy group. They say the religious outrage over the film has made it more popular than anyone ever hoped.

"People who wouldn't ordinarily go to see a Monty Python film are going to this one, if even to 'tut-tut' a bit," said Jones, who directed the film.

"It does get attention, and that's useful for the film," said Chapman, who plays Brian. "After all, we do want a lot of people to see it," he added. "It helps us get beyond the audience we have at the moment."

Variety's current list of 50 top-grossing films ranked "Life of Brian" No. 25 for the week ending Sept. 19, up two places from the week before.

The movie is about Brian, a reluctant messiah, who tries to convince his followers they don't really have to follow anybody.

"Religious leaders are mistaken in their attacks on the film," Jones said. "When they say it's blasphemous, they're not actually seeing what's in the film, but what they think they're going to see."

"The film isn't dealing with belief in God or Christ or what Christ said," he added. "It's talking about the way people interpret what Christ said. It's about people getting messages wrong."

As an example, the comedians cite a scene in which a former leper is complaining that since he is healed, he can't get a job. "That's not attacking Christ," said Chapman, "it's attacking man's ingratitude."

Attacks against the movie started even before it was made. "There was an organization called the Festival of Light in England which sent 11 pages of the script to the English film censor before we actually filmed the thing," said Jones.

"Something struck me as a little '1984-ish' in calling themselves the Festival of Light," added Chapman, "when really what they'd like to do is burn books."

One question the comedians often are asked is what makes Monty Python's brand of humor seem more attractive to American audiences than other forms of British humor?

"I've been developing a theory over the years about that," said Jones. "It's because Python is more abstract. You can attach your own meaning to it."

In coming up with ideas for their films or their television show, Monty Python has one main criterion: "We do what makes us laugh," said Jones. "We don't have any concept of who we're directing our material at. We don't even know who our fans are any more."

Jones and Chapman said Monty Python has another film in the works, but they would not say what it's about. "It might offend someone," Jones said.

Americans Ask Themselves: 'Nana Who?'

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—Nana Mouskouri is an international superstar who can sell out auditoriums across Europe and into Asia. Her name, her face and her voice are known to millions.

But in America, it's mostly "Nana who?"

The United States is one of her last remaining challenges as a performer, Miss Mouskouri said.

"I like the idea of playing in places where they don't know me," she said in an interview after a show in a half-filled theater near Albany.

She admitted, though, to conflicting feelings about leaving the packed houses of Europe for smaller crowds and unfamiliar audiences.

"I thought to myself, 'What am I doing here? But it's a challenge. You always have to try to go ahead."

"To go over and over the same songs with the same audiences becomes monotonous," she said. "I've come to America to put my feet on the earth and start over."

Miss Mouskouri, who sings and speaks in her native Greek as well as English, French, Italian, Spanish, and German, has had 33 gold records around the world—more than 13 million sales. In recent years, she has expanded her European base to include Australia, Canada and Japan.

She sings a mixture of popular and folk songs from a wide range of sources. Her repertoire includes Greek songs by Manos Hadjidakis, the composer of "Never on Sunday"; songs in French by Michel Legrand, and American pop and folk songs by such writers as Bob Dylan, Neil Young, Joni Mitchell and others. New to the collection is Nashville's Dolly Parton.

On her recently completed three-week American tour, she visited Oakland, San Jose, San Diego, Los Angeles, Minneapolis, Milwaukee, Chicago, Washington, D.C., Philadelphia, Hartford, Albany, Boston and New York City.

Miss Mouskouri has toured in this country before, and has attracted dedicated followers in several big cities. But until several months ago she was handicapped by the lack of an American record label—her albums, when they could be found at all, were in the import racks.

Now her album from Cachet Records—"Roses and Sunshine"—is reported selling well. It is already a big seller in Canada and Europe.

The record, entirely in English, is in keeping with her eclectic style. It includes numbers ranging from Dylan's "Tomorrow Is a Long Time" to John Denver's "Sweet Surrender" to Miss Parton's "Nickels and Dimes," to a chillingly sensitive rendition of the classic "Autumn Leaves."

In performance, Miss Mouskouri seems almost lost to the world. She closes her eyes as she sings a ballad or a love song. Her hands flutter by the microphone, shaping the sounds.

She said it is a combination of that shyness—and a bit of stubbornness—that led her to wear her eyeglasses when she first went on tour. Now those large black-rimmed glasses have become a point of recognition.

Born in 1936 in Athens, Miss Mouskouri was trained in classical music at the Athens Conservatory of Music. After World War II, American GI's brought jazz and popular music to the island, and Miss Mouskouri said her musical interests shifted.

She said her exposure to the songs of Billie Holiday, Bessie Smith and Ella Fitzgerald became the formation of her musical style. Divorced, her two children live with her in Paris where she is at home. She also has homes in Geneva and on the Greek island of Corfu.

Some Teachers Return, Others Still At Home

By The Associated Press
Teachers in Indianapolis and Jefferson Parish, La., went back to work Wednesday ending their strikes, but elsewhere in the nation more than 13,000 educators remained off the job.

In New Jersey, 107 teachers at the Sussex Vocational-Technical High School voted to return to work Wednesday morning after a settlement was reached in their walkout just minutes before they were to be fired under a court order. Details of the agreement were not disclosed.

Strikes were affecting 290,000 students in six states.

Only hours before schools were to open in Indianapolis, the teachers agreed to submit their dispute to binding arbitration and return to work. But only 73 percent of the system's 79,000 pupils showed up for the resumption of classes under the regular teachers.

Officials said they believed many of those absent did not know of the settlement of the nearly month-long strike or heard about it too late.

In the 64,000-pupil suburban New Orleans school district of Jefferson Parish, 2,000 teacher returned to the classroom Wednesday morning, ending the nation's longest teacher strike this year.

The teachers, who walked off the job Aug. 24 in a dispute over wages in the second year of a contract, voted at a noisy gymnasium meeting Tuesday to accept a tentative settlement in the Jefferson Parish district.

In the tentative agreement, teachers would get a 9.7 percent raise the first year and a 4.1 percent raise the second. Additional raises in the second year would be tied to approval by parish voters of a half-cent sales tax.

The 1,300 striking Indianapolis teachers voted Thursday to return to work and submit the month-old dispute to binding arbitration. Asked by their leaders at a morning meeting to stand if they were willing to go back to work, nearly all did and the decision was greeted with applause and cheers.

An agreement on binding arbitration was reached Tuesday in a meeting of negotiators for Indianapolis Public School and the Indianapolis Education Association, which struck the opening day of school, Sept. 4. Negotiators met at a secret location with state-appointed mediator Donald G. Russell.

Singer Bob Dylan Cancels Lubbock Coliseum Concert

The concert by Bob Dylan, slated to take place Oct. 21 at the Lubbock Coliseum, was cancelled Tuesday, one day after tickets went on sale at local outlets.

The reason for the cancellation has yet to be confirmed. All that is definitely known is that Dylan cancelled his entire tour, not just the Lubbock show. Indeed, tickets totalling $3,610 already had been sold in Lubbock.

Coliseum officials were told Dylan cancelled the tour in order to be able to "do something on TV." The Avalanche-Journal contacted Columbia Records publicity in New York and was told to call publicist Paul Wasserman in Los Angeles concerning the Dylan tour.

An official in Wasserman's office then told the A-J that the concert tour had never been confirmed, that "Dylan had never signed the contracts." Told that tickets had already been placed on sale, the official expressed surprise and offered to "check it out" and get back in touch with the A-J on Thursday.

Tickets can be turned in for full refunds today at the manager's office at the Lubbock Coliseum.

Researcher Says Ike Tried To Shed Nixon

PITTSBURGH (AP)—President Dwight D. Eisenhower had his reservations about running with Vice President Richard Nixon in 1952, but couldn't ease him off the Republican ticket, says a Carnegie-Mellon University professor.

Eisenhower, however, stopped short of asking Nixon to step aside, said Dr. John P. Crencine, dean of CMU's college of humanities and social sciences. "He didn't want to fire him outright... but Nixon didn't take the hint."

In a transcript of a Feb. 9, 1956, conversation with the Republican National Chairman, Eisenhower said, "I think that at this moment, if I could have my favorite fellow, my first choice would be Bob Anderson." Anderson was under-secretary of treasury.

Eisenhower had the conversation with Len Hall as he was trying to decide whether to seek a second term in the White House.

Crencine said he discovered the anti-Nixon sentiment, plus a little-known intellectual side to the military hero who became president, in Eisenhower's diaries, memos and presidential correspondence. The papers were made available to the Eisenhower Library in Abilene, Kan.

The transcript also shows Eisenhower and Hall discussed how to convince Nixon to accept a cabinet appointment instead of running again.

"The easiest thing (would be) to get Nixon out of the picture willingly," Hall is quoted as telling the president.

Eisenhower concluded by telling Hall, "Talk to him, but be very, very gentle."

While Nixon impressed Eisenhower as bright and very loyal early in his 1952-56 term, he later irked the president by his arrogant behavior abroad, said Crencine. Nixon is rarely mentioned in Eisenhower's writings during the second administration, Crencine said. Eisenhower also did not campaign for Nixon in 1960, when Nixon unsuccessfully ran against John F. Kennedy. Nixon reached the White House in 1968.

In a follow-up conversation on April 9, 1956, Eisenhower recounted to Hall a talk with Nixon in which he gave the vice president the choice of staying on the ticket or dropping off, according to a transcript.

"I still insist you must make your decision as to what you want to do," Eisenhower is recorded as telling Nixon. "If the answer is yes, I will be happy to have you on the ticket."

The Nixon episode was a sidelight to Crencine's five years of research into fiscal policy-making from 1948-1972. Crencine said he and two assistants examined "half a million" documents.

He said he also learned from Eisenhower's extensive diaries that the former supreme Allied commander of World War II was far from a benign, ineffectual administrator, as he has been portrayed.

"The image of Eisenhower as non-assertive, ineffectual and someone who didn't do his homework is not sustained in the documents," he said. "He was articulate, forceful and a damned good politician."

Because your head is unique. The way your hair grows is equally unique. Really quite different from every one else's.

Precision haircutting is a technique for cutting the hair in harmony with the way it grows. Your hair eventually grows out but it doesn't lose its shape with a precision haircut. Consequently your haircut will look as good after five days as it does after five minutes. And because the hair falls naturally into place you won't have to keep fussing with it. Usually a shake of the head does it.

At Command Performance we shampoo, precision-cut and blow dry your hair for fourteen dollars, whether you're a gal or a guy. And no appointments are ever necessary.

We also offer permanent waves, coloring, frosting and conditioning. But we really shine with precision. And so will you.

the new series, "From Here to Eternity." NBC, coming off of its most successful season opening in years, is making the change in an effort to build a comedy block on Wednesday night, said Mike Weinblatt, President of NBC Entertainment.

NBC's only comedy shows, "Real People," "Diff'rent Strokes," and "Hello, Larry" air Wednesday, opposite two of ABC's strongest series, "Eight is Enough" and "Charlie's Angels."

"The Best of Saturday Night Live" will begin Oct. 24, when "From Here to Eternity" was to have made its debut. A two-hour "Eternity" introduction movie that was to have aired Oct. 22 will be replaced by another TV movie, "And Baby Makes Six," the network announced.

Weinblatt did not say how long "Eternity," based on an expensive miniseries from last year, will be postponed. Actor William Devane is reportedly being paid a record $2.7 million for the miniseries and weekly series.

The move is aimed at beefing up an NBC lineup of shows that outperformed CBS and ABC in the first two weeks of the new season. "Real People" has established itself as a hit despite the ABC competition, and "Diff'rent Strokes" has also fared well.

Referring to "Saturday Night Live" as "the hottest young adult comedy show in recent television history," Weinblatt predicted that prime time repeats would "attract new viewers, while still retaining our Saturday night franchise with new programs."

After the most dismal year in its history in 1978-79, NBC bounced back in the beginning of this season to lead ABC and CBS in the Nielsen ratings. NBC has averaged a 19.8 rating for the season, while ABC has an 18.7 and CBS is at 16.6. The A.C. Nielsen Co., which compiles the ratings, says that each ratings point represents about 250,000 families.

Distinguished Composer Roy Harris Dies

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Roy Harris, whose Folk Song Symphony helped make him one of the nation's most distinguished and enduring composers, has died at age 81.

Harris, who lived in Pacific Palisades, died late Monday in the Santa Monica hospital where he had been a patient for two months. The cause of his death was not disclosed.

Harris was best known for his Symphony No. 4, the Folk Song Symphony, a tapestry woven from some of America's best known folk songs.

Regarded as an authentic American genius, Harris was born in Oklahoma, raised and educated in Southern California and had an international reputation. He had been designated composer laureate of California.

Harris wrote 16 symphonies and 185 other major works, including choral, chamber and band music and many piano concertos and sonatas composed for his concert-pianist wife, Johana.

Orchestras such as the Boston, Cleveland and Chicago symphonies and the Los Angeles and New York Philharmonics commissioned many of Harris' works.

He had been composer in residence at California State University, Los Angeles, for 10 years and was professor of music emeritus at UCLA, where his wife is a faculty member.

In 1973, the Roy Harris Archive was established in the John F. Kennedy Memorial Library at Cal State Los Angeles. It now includes more than 5,000 manuscripts, recordings and other items relating to his life and career.

A LIFT FROM THE POPE — Geryl Smith, 6, was surprised and happy Wednesday when the pope literally picked her out of the crowd and set her atop the vehicle in which he circled Madison Square Garden. ## Small Girl Stunned By Papal Embrace

NEW YORK (AP) — Pope John Paul II reached into a screaming, ecstatic crowd of almost 19,000 young people and chose one — a fatherless, 6-year-old girl who was rendered speechless by the papal gesture.

Shortly after the pope was driven into Madison Square Garden for a Youth in Concert performance, he saw Geryl Smith and beckoned for her to come over to his open-top car.

A policeman lifted her into the pope's arms, and the bewildered blonde child was hugged by the pope and placed on the roof of the papal car.

Geryl, wearing red slacks and a white T-shirt, was too shocked to talk about the experience, and could only say, "I'm happy." A paper apple she wore, with the legend "Welcome Pope John Paul II," was ripped and turned upside-down by the papal embrace.

Her mother, Nora Smith, was not as reticent.

"I can't believe it, I just can't believe it, it's just fantastic," she said.

Geryl's father died last year of pneumonia. He was a detective with the New York Police Department, and Mrs. Smith said, "Her father, if he were here, would have been guarding the pope today."

Mrs. Smith only received the tickets for the event on Tuesday, after weeks of trying through the police department. Mrs. Smith and Geryl attended the garden gathering with the other children of the family, Noreen, 16, and Donald, 15. They are parishioners at St. Francis of Assisi Church, West Nyack, N.Y.

"She was so shocked that she didn't know what to do," said Mrs. Smith. "It's just fantastic. There are no words to describe it."

Did she feel blessed, Geryl was asked.

"Yes, blessed," she said.

Reverend 'Stupefied' Over Pope's Gesture At Cathedral

NEW YORK (AP) — The Rev. Donald Hanson said he was so "stupefied" when Pope John Paul II wiped the sweat off Hanson's brow in St. Patrick's Cathedral Wednesday that he does not recall whether they exchanged words.

The congregation of 3,000 broke into applause as the pontiff turned on the cathedral's high altar after a morning prayer service and noted that Hanson, who led a small choir of 12 during the liturgy, was perspiring profusely.

"He took out his handkerchief and patted me on the brow," the 34-year-old priest of eight years recalled.

But he said that "I don't remember" whether the pontiff made any comment to him as he did so.

Did he say something to the pope?

"I don't think so. I was pretty speechless," Hanson said. "...I was so stupefied."

Hanson is director of worship for the Diocese of Rockville Centre on Long Island.

Band Leader Waits For Pope, Baby

NEW YORK (AP) — Douglas Yeo, the 24-year-old leader of the St. Thomas Aquinas High School Band of Edison, N.J., confessed that he felt "a little apprehensive" as he waited Wednesday at the Battery to greet Pope John Paul II.

Once an hour he left his 55-member band, resplendent in scarlet-and-white uniforms, and raced to a telephone to call his wife, Pat, 23, at her parents' home in West Milford, N.J.

Mrs. Yeo was expecting to give birth to their first child momentarily, he explained, and, "God willing, it will hold off until noon."

Pope Given Silver, Gold Gifts At Park

NEW YORK (AP) — Pope John Paul II received gifts of silver, gold and crystal Wednesday from Gov. Hugh L. Carey and Mayor Edward I. Koch at ceremonies at Battery Park.

The governor's gift, an oval medalion of crystal framed in sterling, depicts a child bending down to touch a shell at water's edge as ripples rise out of the sea. It is called "Childhood."

The solid gold Medal of Honor, which is New York City's highest award, was given to the pope by the mayor. It bears the city's seal and is inscribed, "Awarded to Pope John Paul II, October 3, 1979, Mayor Edward I. Koch."

John Paul II, Cardinal Share Polish Ancestry, Friendship

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Bishop of Rome and Philadelphia's cardinal share Polish ancestry and a friendship of nearly 20 years.

And both Cardinal John Krol and Karol Wojtyla, now Pope John Paul II, became cardinals on the same day, June 26, 1967.

Their relationship began in the early sixties, when they worked on the planning commission for Vatican II. And both their families hail from the same region of southern Poland in the Tatra Mountains.

In 1967, Krol wanted to visit his father's hometown of Siekierczyn, but was denied permission. Wojtyla, his friend, made the trip for him.

Krol was able to make the visit in 1972, and stayed with the future pope in Krakow. Five years later, Krol returned to Poland to receive an honorary degree from the Catholic University of Lublin.

One week before Wojtyla's election as pope, he invited Krol to preach in Krakow in May, 1979, to mark the 900th anniversary of St. Stanislaus, patron saint of Poland.

After his election, John Paul re-confirmed the invitation, telling Krol they would have to get together to sing a Polish folk song, "Highlander, aren't you sorry you have to leave your home." The two prelates sang the tune during Krol's visits to Krakow in 1972 and 1977.

Polish-Americans Make Big Effort To Show Love

NEW YORK (AP) — Polish-Americans made a special effort to display their love for Pope John Paul II.

Paula Piekof, 24, waited six hours outside the residence of Cardinal Terence Cooke on Madison Avenue on Tuesday night just to catch a glimpse of the pontiff as he arrived to turn in for the night.

Holding a large, home-made sign that read, "I Love The Pope," Ms. Piekof explained that her parish, Lady of Sorrows in White Plains, raffled tickets for the pope's appearances in Yankee Stadium and Madison Square Garden but she failed to win one.

So, as a last resort, Ms. Piekof got a front-row standing place behind police barricades in front of the cardinal's residence.

"I brought a present, but I dropped it off around the corner in the priests' house," she said. "I made him a Polish Easter egg, 'pysanka,' with a Polish eagle on it and a pope's crest."

John Paul Delivers Message Of Love

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Here is the text of Pope John Paul II's prepared remarks for delivery at the Cathedral of Saints Peter and Paul on Wednesday.

Dear brothers and sisters in Christ, I give thanks to the Lord for permitting me to come back to this city of Philadelphia, to this state of Pennsylvania. I have very happy memories of being here before as your guest, and I remember especially the Bicentennial celebration in 1976 that I attended as archbishop of Cracow.

Today, by the grace of God, I come here as successor of Peter to bring you a message of love and to strengthen you in your faith. In your kind welcome I feel that you want to honor in me the Christ whom I represent and who lives in all of us — all of us who through the Holy Spirit form one community, one communion in faith and love. I feel moreover that I am truly among friends, and I feel very much at home in your midst.

In a very particular way I wish to thank you, Cardinal Krol, archbishop of Philadelphia, for the invitation you extended to me, to come here and celebrate the Eucharist together with you and your people.

A heart-felt greeting also goes to the clergy, religious and laity, of this local church. I have come as your brother in Christ, bringing with me the same message that the Lord Jesus himself brought to the villages and cities in the Holy Land: let us praise the Lord our God and father, and let us love one another!

It gives me great pleasure to meet you here in the Cathedral of Philadelphia, for it has a deep meaning for me. Above all, it means you: the living church of Christ, here and now, alive in faith, united in the love of Jesus Christ.

This Cathedral recalls the memory of Saint John Neumann, once Bishop of this See, and now and forever a saint of the universal church. In this edifice, his message and his example of holiness must continually be transmitted to every new generation of young people.

And if we listen carefully today we can hear Saint John Neumann speaking to all of us in the words of the letter to the Hebrews: 'Remember your leaders who spoke the word of God to you; consider how their lives ended, and imitate their faith. Jesus Christ is the same yesterday, today and forever.'

Finally, this cathedral links you to the great apostles of Rome, Peter and Paul. They, in turn, continue to give you their testimony to Christ, to proclaim to you Christ's divinity, to acknowledge him before the world.

Here today in Philadelphia, the confession of Peter becomes for all of us a personal act of faith, and this act of faith we make together, as we say to Jesus: 'You are the Christ, the Son of the living God.'

And with Saint Paul, each one of us is called to say in the depths of our hearts and before the world: 'I still live my human life, but it is a life of faith in the Son of God, who loved me and gave himself for me.'

This Cathedral is also linked in religion to the heritage of this historic city. Every service to morality and spirituality is a service to the civilization of man; it is a contribution to human happiness and to true well-being.

And so, from this cathedral I offer my greetings to the whole city of Philadelphia, the civil authorities and all the people. As the City of Brotherly Love, as the first capital of the United States of America, you are a symbol of freedom and fraternal relations.

My greeting is also a prayer. May the common dedication and the united efforts of all your citizens — Catholics, Protestants and Jews alike — succeed in making your inner city and suburbs places where people are no strangers to each other, where every man, woman and child feels respected; where nobody feels abandoned, rejected or alone.

Asking for your prayerful support for my visit of friendship and pastoral concern, I extend my blessing to all of you, to those present here today, to your dear ones at home, to the aged and the sick, and in a very special way to all the young people and the children.

God bless Philadelphia!

El Salvadoran Quizzed About Warning Letter

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — A letter warning that Pope John Paul II would be shot led authorities to an El Salvador native, who was questioned and released in Central America on Wednesday, the FBI said.

Tipped off by the letter to the FBI, police in Elizabeth searched them man's apartment Tuesday and found a submachine gun and ammunition.

FBI spokesman Michael McDonnell said the man, Albert Roberto Gustave, voluntarily walked into the U.S. Embassy in San Salvador, the capital of El Salvador, on Wednesday and was interviewed by agents.

"Based on that interview, we are convinced Gustave did not intend to harm Pope John Paul II," McDonnell said. "Our investigation is closed concerning Gustave."

Kennedy Lynch, a spokesman for the Secret Service, said that agency "no longer considers this case of special interest to us." The Secret Service is responsible for guarding the pope while he is in the United States.

However, an agent for the Federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms said that agency was investigating why the submachine gun, an empty box for a .357-caliber Magnum and boxes of ammunition were in Gustave's apartment.

McDonnell said no arrest warrants had been issued in connection with the letter, which arrived at FBI headquarters in Newark on Tuesday, or the seizure of the munitions at Gustave's apartment.

New York police quarters said they were told by the FBI that the letter said the pope would be shot Wednesday while he was in New York City. The letter reportedly was dated Sunday.

New York police said they believed Gustave might be connected to the Puerto Rican extremist group FALN — the Armed Front for National Liberation. McDonnell said the letter mentioned the group, which has claimed responsibility for a number of terrorist acts in the United States.

Poles Applaud Ad Lib From Pope

NEW YORK (AP) — Just before ending his speech at Battery Park Tuesday morning, Pope John Paul II called attention to a banner written in Polish that was held up in the crowd.

The banner read "Niec żyje Papier" — "Long Live the Pope" — and he responded in Polish, saying, "Niec żyje Polska, Niec żyje Polacy w Ameryce" — "Long live Poland, long live the Polish people in America!"

The remark drew a loud burst of cheers and applause from the crowd.
