

Stocks Post Wide Loss On Boost Of Prime Rate

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market suffered one of the worst losses in its 188-year history Tuesday when banks raised their prime lending rate to a record 14 1/2 percent because the government is making money tougher to obtain.

The fifth busiest session in the New York Stock Exchange's existence saw the Dow Jones industrial average plunge 26.45 points to 857.59, the biggest setback since it dropped 26.99 points on Jan. 9, 1974.

A 13.57-point loser Monday, the Dow has fallen 40.02 points the past two sessions.

The NYSE index gave up 2.05 to 60.53, the largest drop in its 13-year history, and the price of a share skidded $1.06.

Declines routed advances, 1,752 to 73, among the 1,925 issues traded. Brokers could not remember a wider spread between losers and winners.

The Big Board volume of 55,560,000 shares, up from the 32,610,000 traded Monday, was the heaviest since 59,480,000 shares changed hands Oct. 30, 1978.

Prices were sharply lower in active trading of American Stock Exchange issues.

Chase Manhattan triggered heavy selling from the outset by raising its prime lending rate for key customers by an unprecedented full point to 14 1/2 percent. Other major banks, including BankAmerica and Citibank, followed quickly.

Wall Street had anticipated a prime hike because the Federal Reserve last weekend raised its discount rate for member banks to a record 12 percent from 11 percent and boosted the amount of money banks must keep in reserve.

Many observers were surprised at the size of the latest prime increase, however.

But Monte Gordon, Dreyfus Corp. vice president, said: "The Fed, much like the Truman administration did in 1951, has unpegged its policies from interest rate targets and is now concentrating on controlling the money supply. It's a new ball game now and Wall Street doesn't yet know how to read it."

Both Paul Volcker, Fed chairman, and President Carter Tuesday said inflation was the government's top priority.

Volcker, who has demonstrated his intentions to cool inflation, warned the American Bankers Association to stop financing speculative activities in gold commodities and foreign exchange markets.

Gold, drubbed late last week and Monday, bounded sharply higher Tuesday, Gordon said this reflected foreign traders' confusion over the Fed's latest actions. The dollar, higher in early trading, finished slightly lower abroad Tuesday.

Traders also were disturbed that Kuwait raised its oil prices 10 percent by imposing a $1.94 a barrel surcharge and that Mexico boosted its oil prices to $24.60 a barrel from $22.60.

The American Stock Exchange index plummeted 12.25 to 220.15 for its worst loss in Amex history and the price of a share fell 92 cents. The National Association of Securities Dealers' NASDAQ OTC Index lost 5.78 to 145.20.

Lucey Quits As Envoy To Mexico

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter Tuesday accepted the resignation of Patrick Lucey as U.S. ambassador to Mexico effective Nov. 1, the White House announced.

Lucey, former governor of Wisconsin, had been rumored to be on the way out for months. Some Mexican officials complained they had little or no contact with Lucey and that he spent much of his time dealing with the American business community.

Carter recently named Robert Krueger, a former congressman from Texas, to be ambassador-at-large for U.S. Mexican relations — a move that in effect diminished the importance of Lucey's role.

Lucey, in a letter dated Oct. 8, submitted his resignation effective Nov. 1 "to return to Wisconsin."

"I leave not with regret but with a sense of satisfaction because it is clear that Mexico and the United States have accomplished a great deal together since your administration took office," Lucey said in his letter to Carter.

Carter, in a typed written response, accepted the resignation "with deep regret."

He told Lucey his "leadership has contributed significantly to a new frankness and balance in our cooperation with Mexico."

Lucey and Carter mentioned last month's meetings in Washington between Carter and Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo. The ambassador said it was an example of "a relationship based on mutual respect and appreciation." Carter said the Washington talks with Portillo were "a reminder of how much we have accomplished."

The meetings, while warmer than similar sessions last February in Mexico City, produced little in terms of tangible results. The United States and Mexico worked out a natural gas sale arrangement, but that was completed and announced before the two leaders met.

It was known that the White House was troubled by the February session, in which Lopez Portillo directed public complaints at the United States on several occasions.

Mexico has gained in importance in international affairs since its discovery of large oil fields and natural gas sources.

Target Store To Open Here Next Spring

TARGET Stores, a Minneapolis-based discount chain, is beginning construction of its first store in Lubbock. The store is scheduled to open in the spring of 1980.

The 8.4-acre site for the Lubbock Target Store at S. University Ave. and Loop 289 was purchased from West Central Investment Corporation. Negotiations for the land acquisition were handled by W. D. "Dub" Rogers of Lubbock. The general contractor is Page and Wirtz of Lubbock.

"We are excited about entering the Lubbock market as part of Target's accelerated expansion plans," stated Jack Fontaine, Target senior vice president-principal development.

Lubbock marks the fifth Texas city that will have Target stores, in addition to Dallas, Fort Worth, Houston and Wichita Falls. Target opened three new Texas stores this year and has four more under construction in addition to the 100,000-square-foot Lubbock store, which will be the 21st Target store in Texas.

Target Stores, the largest division of the Minneapolis-based Dayton Hudson Corporation, began in 1961 with one store in suburban Minneapolis. Currently, Target operates 72 stores in 10 states and plans to have 153 stores by 1983.

"Target's new Lubbock store will continue our tradition of offering brand-name products with an unrestricted return policy, in a modern self-service shopping environment," Fontaine said.

BLACK LEADS RACE
BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — City Councilman Dr. Richard Arrington Jr. led Mayor David Vann and five other candidates by a wide margin Tuesday, becoming the first black ever to win a spot in a runoff election for mayor of Birmingham.

Warming Trend Due Over South Plains

MOSTLY fair skies and warmer temperatures will prevail across the South Plains today, as the Canadian cold front which put a chill in the air Tuesday passes out of the area.

Today's readings should reach the upper 70s because of a high pressure system over eastern Colorado and a high pressure ridge extending into southern Texas. This weather system will produce warmer temperatures through Friday.

Temperatures Fall, Rise
A cold front which swept into the South Plains Tuesday morning pushed temperatures into the 40s, but as the fast-moving front moved northeastward, Lubbock readings rose to the mid-60s by Tuesday afternoon.

Temperatures will drop to about 50 tonight. By Thursday, forecasters expect the high in the mid-80s. Winds today will be southwesterly at 15 to 20 mph, diminishing to 5 to 10 mph by tonight.

The cold front triggered only a few showers in northeast Texas Tuesday.

The extended weather outlook for West Texas is calling for cooler temperatures Friday and a slow warming trend Saturday through Sunday.

Fair skies and mild afternoon temperatures can be expected across the state today.

Across the nation Tuesday, a blast of cold air from Canada surged into the Plains and the Midwest, sending temperatures plunging 20 to 30 degrees from Monday's readings.

Snow spread from the upper Great Lakes and the northern Mississippi Valley to Nebraska and Wyoming.

Wyoming Gets Snow
Temperatures plunged to the freezing mark and below in Montana, with some places reporting readings in the 20s. Light snow dusted Casper and Laramie, Wyo.

Temperatures dipped to the 30s in northwest Nebraska and an inch of snow was on the ground at Harrison, Neb.

Strong winds, gusting to 50 mph, swept parts of Oklahoma. The National Weather Service forecast for today calls for a dry day over much of the country with low temperatures in the Northeast.

House Passes Funding Bill, Solons' Pay Raise

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House passed legislation Tuesday that provides emergency operating funds for several major government agencies and includes a 5.5 percent cost of living raise for congressmen.

It then approved a second measure, providing emergency funds for two key departments, but containing controversial language on federal funding for abortions.

Passage sent the two measures to the Senate, which earlier passed one overall bill to fund the same departments covered by the House bill. The Senate bill contains no pay raise for congressmen and senators — a provision the House has previously insisted upon. It contains more liberal language on abortion funding than the House wants.

There was no word when the Senate might consider the measures, which are designed to provide operating funds for major government departments which have technically been without operating funds for the past week. The Senate Appropriations Committee scheduled a meeting for today to discuss the legislation.

Only a few members were on the floor during the debate, which took four minutes. No attempt was made by any congressman to delete the proposed pay hike. Both bills were passed on a voice vote although the House did vote 162-234 to reject an amendment that would have inserted the Senate language on abortion in the second House bill.

Passage came after the Appropriations Committee voted to split the original funding bill, killed by the Senate in a dispute over language on financing of abortions, into two separate measures.

The maneuver was designed to limit the effects of the continuing House-Senate battle over language governing federal payments for poor women's abortions. It would mean that only the departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare would be affected by the abortion battle. In contrast, the original bill would have affected more than half the government agencies.

However, backers of the maneuver admitted the action might not work.

Rep. Silvio O. Conte, R-Mass., said he expected the Senate to combine the two bills "and we will be back to square one as concerns abortion."

The first of the two bills passed by the Appropriations Committee would provide temporary operating funds for most of the government departments that have technically been operating without funds since the new fiscal year began Oct. 1.

Although this legislation makes no mention of abortions, it does contain the 5.5 percent pay raise for members of Congress, which the House wants and the Senate has rejected.

As the result of a 1975 law, congressional pay — and the pay of some 22,000 top-level bureaucrats — automatically jumped 12.9 percent on Oct. 1 when the

President Predicts SALT Ratification

Troops Threat Termed Neutralized

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter said Tuesday he expects the SALT II arms limitation treaty to be ratified by the Senate now that the threat from Soviet combat troops in Cuba has been neutralized.

Carter said it would be America's goal to contain Cuban military intervention around the globe, but he added that he would use United States troops to achieve that goal only when the nation's security was directly threatened.

In a wide ranging news conference — his first since July 25 — Carter refused to say whether he would debate Sen. Edward Kennedy during his battle for renomination, but he said he would support whomever the Democratic Party nominates in New York next summer.

"I have always voted Democratic," he added.

Awaits Campaign
Carter refused to say his announcement on Dec. 4 would be a formal declaration he is running, but he said he was looking forward to the campaign "with a great deal of anticipation and confidence."

Saturday's county caucuses in Florida would be the first "significant" test of how he measures up against other candidates, Carter said.

On the Middle East Carter said he would not change U.S. policy and negotiate with the Palestine Liberation Organization as has been urged by his former U.N. ambassador Andrew Young and others.

"We will not negotiate with the PLO," Carter said. "We will not recognize the PLO until after the PLO recognizes Israel's right to exist."

Pope Reception Surprise
Carter revealed that in his private meeting with Pope John Paul II he and the pontiff expressed surprise at the enthusiasm the American people had shown toward the pope during his U.S. visit.

"I had no idea it would be that enthusiastic," Carter said, adding that he thought the American people responded so warmly because "there is a hunger in our country for moral and ethical and religious principles — things that do not change — things that are decent and honest."

The president said it would be inappropriate for him to respond to two controversial questions — whether Kennedy showed good judgment at Chappaquiddick and whether White House chief of staff Hamilton Jordan should step aside during the investigation of allegations he sniffed cocaine at a party in New York City.

Carter said he was satisfied with the aims and goals of his economic program, although he admitted that inflation and employment were too high. He said he approved of Monday's decision by the Federal Reserve Board to raise the prime interest rate as a means of strengthening the dollar.

Much of the questioning centered on SALT and the presence of Soviet troops in Cuba.

"I believe SALT will be ratified this year basically on its own merits," he said. "In my opinion we have answered the questions of Soviet combat troops in Cuba. We have isolated any threat."

"The troops in Cuba have been there for a long time," Carter said. "It is important to recognize we plan to contain Cuban interventionism around the world."

But when asked if that meant use of American troops, he responded: "There is no prospect at this time for our intervening militarily anywhere in the world."

That is a judgment I would make only if I felt the security of our country were threatened."

He said the Soviet decision to unilaterally withdraw troops from Eastern Europe was helpful, but not a major development.

"It's an interesting proposal, one that might show promise, but it's not as great a step" as one might first consider it, Carter said.

Carter said he did not think there was any current need for an increase in defense spending above the 3 percent he has recommended, but he added: "If I see a need for increased defense programs I will not hesitate to recommend them to Congress."

them to Congress."

Gold Prices Zoom With Dollar Mixed

NEW YORK (AP) — Gold prices zoomed upward Tuesday but the dollar was mixed, gaining strength overseas from the anti-inflation moves announced over the weekend but falling at home because of fears of high oil prices.

The biggest jump in the price of gold occurred in New York, where the price of the metal surged $24 an ounce to $391, according to Republic National Bank. On the Commodity Exchange, the price of gold futures for October delivery rose $26.70 to $393.50.

Gold closed in London at $31 a troy ounce, up from $374 late Monday. The Zurich closing price was $389.50, up from Monday's $372.50.

On Wall Street, stock prices suffered their steepest skid in more than five years amid a surge in interest rates and fears of a deepening recession. More than 55 million shares changed hands on the New York Stock Exchange, the fifth-busiest day in history.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials fell 26.45 to 857.59, marking its largest loss since it tumbled 26.99 points on Jan. 9, 1974, in the midst of the last recession and the Arab oil embargo. The record decline was 38.33 points on Oct. 28, 1929, during the Great Crash that preceded the Depression.

Oil-price increases announced by Kuwait and Mexico, which could lead to other increases and which could worsen inflation, spurred demand for gold — a traditional haven for assets in times of financial uncertainty.

The same worries affected the dollar in trading in New York. Analysts said the dollar also fell as a natural response to the large increases it enjoyed following the announcement over the weekend of Washington's plan to fight inflation and support the dollar.

But the currency did not have that problem on foreign exchange markets overseas, generally picking up ground as traders continued to express their pleasure over the Federal Reserve Board's moves to tighten credit.

The measures include a 1 percent increase to a record 12 percent in the rate at which member banks borrow money from the Fed. Several major U.S. banks reacted Tuesday by raising their prime rates a full point to 14 1/2 percent.

Banks Hike Prime Rate

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's largest banks, feeling the effects of the government's credit tightening, raised their prime lending rates Tuesday an unprecedented full percentage point to a record 14 1/2 percent.

The size of the increase reflected the Federal Reserve's strong program, announced last Saturday, to fight inflation by pushing up interest rates and the amount of funds that banks must hold in reserve.

According to records of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, the weekly prime rate average has never changed by more than half a percentage point since 1934. Several bankers questioned about the size of the increase said they

Neurosurgeon Takes Stand In Local Murder Trial

By KAY BELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A Health Sciences Center Hospital neurosurgeon who treated Jeral Ray Kirkland testified Tuesday the brain hemorrhage that apparently killed the Shallowater man most probably was caused by an external injury to the head.

But Dr. Paul Meyer told the 237th District Court jury hearing evidence in Sammy Richard Selman's murder trial that he was unable to accurately pinpoint when the fatal injury occurred.

With the aid of computerized photographs made at various levels of Kirkland's skull, the doctor pointed out to the panel the large hemorrhage to the back, left skull area that he detected. Although such a hemorrhage could be caused by hypertension, which the 47-year-old Kirkland suffered, Meyer said subsequent autopsy photos and reports indicated the clot was caused by an injury to the head.

Dr. Meyer's testimony dominated most of Tuesday afternoon as Selman's trial entered its second day. Selman, 30, is accused of beating Kirkland on May 23, causing his death six days later.

Meyer noted that his computerized X-ray photos, as well as the autopsy information, indicated a second bruising of brain matter to Kirkland's right temple, opposite from the major hemorrhage. Such injuries, he said, could indicate that Kirkland sustained an injury to the right side of his head which forced the brain toward the left, back portion of the skull, resulting in the apparently fatal clot.

Prosecutor Travis Ware then presented the doctor with a hypothetical situation involving much of the trial's earlier testimony concerning Kirkland's activities and physical ailments. After Ware's 5-minute hypothetical presentation, Meyer repeated his opinion that an external blow caused Kirkland's death.

The doctor added that symptoms described by Ware, such as a person's incoherency, vacant stares and unsteadiness, were consistent with the type of brain injury which apparently killed Kirkland May 29, five days after he was admitted to Health Sciences Center Hospital.

However, on cross-examination by defense attorney George Thompson, the neurosurgeon said it was a medical possibility that hypertension caused the clot. And in response to questions concerning a hypothetical beating and ensuing fall, and Kirkland's widow's testimony that her husband fell the night of May 23, the doctor said he could not accurately say which fall "set in motion" Kirkland's fatal hemorrhage.

Tuesday morning, two Lubbock men told the nine-woman, three-man panel that Selman, of 6118 35th St., said he had beaten an old man the afternoon of May 23 and then left him in a ditch along the Clovis Highway.

Jim Jensen said Selman came to Jensen's Harvard Avenue automobile repair shop that afternoon and said he had beaten Kirkland and at one point thought Kirkland was dead. Jensen added that Selman said he revived Kirkland with mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and then left him beside his car just outside Loop 289 on the Clovis Highway.

Jensen, whose testimony frequently was interrupted by objections from Thompson, also said Selman was an extremely strong man. He told the jury he had seen the defendant lift a 450-pound automobile engine by himself.

On cross-examination, Thompson pointed out discrepancies in Jensen's Tuesday testimony and in statements he made to a Texas Ranger and a June inquest jury that ruled Kirkland's death a homicide. In those earlier statements, Jensen admitted he said that Selman told him he had not meant to hurt Kirkland and that Kirkland had provoked the fight.

But, Jensen told Thompson, "I kind of soft-pedaled at the inquest."

When asked by Ware to elaborate, Jensen said, "I was afraid to tell the whole truth."

"Who were you afraid of?" Ware asked.

"I'm afraid of Sam Selman," Jensen said, looking at the defendant.

Also Tuesday, Larry Blackburn, who was at Jensen's 1315 Harvard Ave. auto shop May 23, said Selman came into the business that afternoon and was very excited and nervous.

"I asked (Selman) what was wrong and he said he had been in a fight with an old man named Jeral and left him in the road," Blackburn said.

Blackburn said he drove almost to Shallowater trying to locate the apparent beating victim but found nothing.

Trial Witness Testifies Of Shooting Admission

A Lubbock police officer Tuesday told a 137th District Court jury that Jesse Alvin Glenn, on trial for aggravated assault, admitted to shooting Joe Clayton "Clay" Dodson in the head early Dec. 3, 1978.

Patrolman John Tucker said he arrived at the 34th Street club, then known as the Eight Second Ride, and found Dodson being attended by two Emergency Medical Services technicians. He said Glenn, of 6203 Elgin Ave., also was leaning over the body.

The officer said when he asked what happened, the 32-year-old defendant said he had shot the man on the ground. Tucker identified Dodson, who was a 21-year-old Texas Tech University student at the time, from photos made at the shooting scene. He pointed out Glenn to the jury as the man who admitted to the shooting.

Also Tuesday, another Lubbock officer testified that the gun, a .357-caliber Colt Python revolver he recovered from a club employee, could not be fired accidentally.

Officer Pat Hastings said the weapon was so designed that unless it were in bad condition it would not accidentally discharge. He added that the weapon he recovered at the club contained five live rounds and a spent shell.

The patrolman also told the jury that when he arrived he saw blood and pieces of what appeared to be brain matter splattered on the sidewalk and wall near the nightclub's doorway. Hastings said he followed the ambulance to Methodist Hospital and said that when he looked in the vehicle there it also was covered with blood.

Hastings added that a trail of blood and brain matter, some pieces of which were as large as his thumbnail, led from the ambulance to the hospital's emergency room.

Neurosurgeon Ross Sedler, who attended Dodson at the hospital, testified that the Tahoka man had a 1-by-2 inch piece of skin missing from his right temple and a larger section of bone was missing beneath the wound.

Deadline Passes; Furr's Sale Nearly Complete

Having received no appeals from creditors by the 4:30 p.m. deadline, attorneys for Furr's Inc. were completing transactions Tuesday to finalize the sale of the Lubbock company to West German-owned Supermarket Development Corporation.

Attorney J.K. Skillern said the transfer would be "substantially complete" by Tuesday. Bankruptcy Judge John Flowers confirmed the sale plan Sept. 26 in his Fort Worth court after clerks' tallies indicated 5,500 of the 6,089 creditors involved in the proceedings had approved the plan.

Tuesday was set as the deadline for any creditors' appeals on the agreed sale plan. No appeals were filed against the plan, which provides that a maximum of $55.67 million in debts be paid to general unsecured creditors.

Furr's has been operating as a "debtor in possession" under Chapter XI bankruptcy proceedings since May 26. The provisions of the agreement basically protected Furr's from "acute collection practices" until the firm and its creditors could agree on how the parties owed money were to be paid.

"We have been signing what seems like several tons of documents," attorney Skillern said Tuesday afternoon. He said that an audit of Furr's physical inventory as of Sept. 30 had been started, as previously reported, but would not be ready until mid-December.

Some creditors were worried that the amount to be paid them could be reduced as much as 30 percent if the results of the audit indicate Furr's has excessive debts. SDC president Klaus Weigand has said he expects the audit to reveal Furr's as having a negative net worth.

But he told creditors his company "is willing and we possess the necessary expertise, manpower and capabilities to meet the provisions of this (sale) plan." Skillern said the day-to-day operation of Furr's will continue as it has for the past several months under the debtor-in-possession agreement. Pat Murphy will continue as chief executive of the firm with the aid of a few West German executives, he said.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Don't neglect to handle important financial affairs early in the day. Be sure not to confide personal affairs to others at this time.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Waste no time in pursuing your goals and gaining them today. Evening is fine for making social contacts and getting good results.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Consult an expert early in the day and then you can handle a difficult problem easily. Be truthful to others.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Gain the assistance of close ties so that you can achieve your aims. Take health treatments and you can accomplish more.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Confer whenever possible today with a higher-up who can give you the support you need. Be cheerful and express happiness.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Morning is fine for improving relations with new contacts and getting good results. Use more authority in dealing with others.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Although you may be under some tension, try to help a close tie who is in trouble. Be active and all is fine.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Find out what is expected of you by associates and then carry through efficiently. Sit on your laurels in the evening.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Make early plans for the work you want to do today, then full speed ahead and get excellent results. Enjoy social affair later.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Study new ways of adding to your abundance in the future. Be sure to handle a business matter wisely. Be cheerful at all times.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Carry through with original plans instead of putting off to another day. Use right methods to solve puzzling problem.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY he or she will be one of those logical persons who will require a fine education to succeed in life. Government work is ideal in this chart. Teach good manners and give religious training early in life. There's a leader here.

Connally Backer Eddie Chiles LCC Speaker

By RUTHANNE BROCKWAY
Avalanche-Journal Staff
Self-styled conservative Eddie Chiles, speaking to a class at Lubbock Christian College Tuesday, compared today's political atmosphere to that of 1776 and said citizens should start a revolution.

Chiles, who has a daily radio program which blasts big government, said the revolution should start in 1980 and be fought with ballots, not bullets.

He said today's conservatives are like the colonial patriots who supported George Washington. Those colonists who supported King George were the royalists. The royalists of today, Chiles said, are the liberals.

"They (liberals) call themselves moderates," Chiles said, but added, "Liberals today are socialists in disguise."

In an interview following his address to the class, Chiles named John Connally, former Texas governor and onetime U.S. secretary of the treasury, as his 1980 presidential choice.

Chiles named government deficit spending as the major cause of inflation and said he believes Connally could balance the federal budget by using presidential veto power to axe unnecessary Congressional programs.

"We've got to take care of the poor and infirm," he said, but added that government should not make it "more profitable not to work."

Chiles is a vocal advocate of the free enterprise system, which he praises as the reason for his own rise from the cotton fields of Itasca to chairman of the Western Company of North America, an oil-related industry.

But he said, "Liberals have been in charge for 50 years and have controlled Congress. Liberals have taken us down the road to socialism. We're regulated. We don't have the free market we used to have."

His solution to inflation is to balance the federal budget and his advice on the energy situation is, "If government and environmental freaks would get off our backs there's lots of oil to be found."

Although he said there is much more oil yet to be discovered and produced in the U.S., he advocates nuclear energy for generating electrical power so that oil and gas can be used for non-nuclear powered needs such as transportation.

The 69-year-old Chiles told the class, "I'm not afraid of nuclear and you may say, 'Well you're old, so what?'" He noted that the sinking of the Titanic didn't stop sea travel and expressed his confidence in the future of nuclear power by saying, "Our scientific brains can learn how to store it."

When a student asked Chiles about his views on nuclear power, Chiles began his answer by saying, "Well, our friend Jerry Brown (California governor) seems to have turned our nuclear industry over to Jane Fonda. Now she may have a beautiful body but not much of a head."

He went on to say that he believes Miss Fonda is "inspired by the Communists" to shut down nuclear power in the United States so that Russia can bring "our country to a dead halt."

Chiles blasted "politicians and newspapers" which, he said, "don't tell you the rest of the story."

Chiles, who received a bachelor's degree in petroleum engineering from the University of Oklahoma in 1934, told the students, "The conditions of the country at the time I graduated from college were such that a young person with a good education could learn some profession or business, borrow or beg some capital and start a business of his or her own."

He said the free enterprise system insured people that if one worked hard enough, one could succeed.

But with today's federal controls, Chiles said, "I'm afraid that's not going to be possible in the 1980s and '90s."

Although his wife, Fran, is active in the Republican party in Fort Worth, where the couple lives, Chiles said he has never sought election to public office and doesn't plan to seek any office in the future.

He said he would rather spend his time and money "getting a lot of other candidates elected" and said he believes he has "more impact on the total situation as a citizen politician."

Chiles was on the campus to address the fall meeting of the LCC board of governors.

Supreme Court Rejects Power Dispute Matter

WASHINGTON (AP) — New Mexico and Arkansas lost their bid Tuesday to resolve their electric power dispute with Texas in the Supreme Court.

Justices refused, without explanation, to hear the neighboring states' complaints against Texas.

The Constitution authorizes the Supreme Court to resolve certain disputes between states before they are heard in lower courts. The justices must invoke the high court's "original jurisdiction" to do that, which in effect would have allowed officials from New Mexico and Arkansas to sue Texas in the Supreme Court.

New Mexico Attorney General Toney Anaya last December asked the court to rule that a Texas Public Utilities Commission order issued in 1977 interferes with interstate commerce.

The commission's order prohibits any Texas electric utility that is a member of the state's Electric Reliability Council to transmit power to electric companies outside Texas without first obtaining permission.

Last April, Arkansas Attorney General Steve Clark asked the court to let his state join with New Mexico in challenging the Texas commission's order.

In another case from Texas, justices Tuesday refused to hear death row inmate David Lee Powell's challenge to the state's policy of using lethal injections to execute condemned prisoners.

The justices left intact state court decisions upholding the execution method's legal validity.

Pope's Washington Tab $1.5 Million

WASHINGTON (AP) — The bill for Pope John Paul II's weekend visit to Washington will be about $1.5 million for the District of Columbia and federal taxpayers, officials say.

Nearly two-thirds of that is for overtime pay for police.

Some 1,200 members of Roman Catholic youth groups and scouting organizations cleaned up tons of trash left by the crowd of 175,000 who attended the pope's Sunday mass on the Mall between the Capitol and the Washington Monument.

Besides the police overtime, tax funds were spent for feeding and housing some personnel, bringing in extra health and sanitation workers and erecting security fences.

In addition, local governments will have to pick up some $400,000 in extra expenses for increased weekend service of the Washington area's subway system.

In 1870, Napoleon III surrendered the Papal States to Italy.

Target Stores Involved In Energy Conservation

MINNEAPOLIS (Special) — Target Stores, a retailing chain that brings customers a wide selection of quality, brand-name merchandise at low competitive prices, has been in the energy-saving business for a few years.

Coming up with ways to conserve energy in our 100,000-square-foot stores

President Honors Baseball Standout

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter met briefly Tuesday with Manny Mota, a record-setting baseball professional, and collected a souvenir bat and a Los Angeles Dodgers warmup jacket.

Carter invited the 41-year-old Mota, his wife and six children to the White House to congratulate the durable player on having set a career record of 145 pinch hits.

The president told Mota, who is from the Dominican Republic, that Carter's mother, Miss Lillian, is the "greatest Dodger fan" and followed the team when it played in Brooklyn before moving to Los Angeles.

Spying the Mota offspring, some of whom chattered with each other during the meeting, Carter quipped, "You bring your audience with you."

Gasoline-Saving Suggestion Offered

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here is another gasoline-saving suggestion from the Department of Energy.

Don't let the gas station attendant overfill your tank. Tell him to stop at the cut-off on the automatic valve. This will eliminate any chance of spillage.

is a challenge," said O.C. Adams, senior vice president of store operations. "We're combining advanced technology with some very common-sense approaches to help us save energy."

One of the common-sense ideas Target utilizes is letting outside air in to help heat or cool the air in the stores. "Opening and closing windows is a tried and true method in homes, but it is much more difficult in our large stores. A new device measures the air temperature in our stores and automatically lets in air through special vents when outside air will improve the temperature inside."

Also like individual homeowners, Target is setting store thermostats a few degrees higher in the summer and a few degrees lower during the winter months. The temperature of hot water in lavatories has been lowered as well.

According to Adams, lighting has been changed in sales areas to energy-saving fluorescent or high intensity discharge lamps, a number of energy control systems are being used to lessen electricity and fuel consumption during peak demand periods, and energy audits of every store in the chain are evaluated at Target's Minneapolis headquarters on a monthly basis.

One of the more advanced control systems being used by Target is called building self-heat. Adams said. This new method of conserving heating fuel utilizes existing heat generated by lights, people and other sources within the store to help keep the building warm in the winter.

Target is the largest division of the Minneapolis-based Dayton Hudson Corporation and operates 72 stores in 10 states. A Target store will open in Lubbock in the spring of 1980.

AN EDITORIAL:

A UN 'Pulpit' For Castro

THE AMERICAN people, it seems, are going to be subjected to another propaganda blast, this time from Cuba's Communist President Fidel Castro and courtesy of the U.S.-financed United Nations. Castro, according to the latest information, is due to arrive in the U.S. this week to address the Tower of Babel on the East River in New York, possibly as early as Friday. And while there are those who defend the UN as a sort of "letting off steam" debating society, if anything good comes out of Castro's visit, it would be a miracle.

No doubt the Cuban leader will use the UN forum to further his own arguments concerning the issue. And to put in a plug for International Communism's world program of "liberation" in the process.

Even as the latest U.S.-Cuban showdown simmers, word from Nicaragua is that the Cuban-trained Marxist Sandinistas are wasting no time in solidifying their position within the new revolutionary regime.

And in neighboring Latin American countries, news of new unrest has been growing in recent weeks.

UNLIKE THE just-completed journey of Pope John Paul II, Cuba's Red apologist and broker for "liberation" causes won't be speaking a message of love and cooperation.

The odds are that his harangue before the Third World-dominated UN will be directed at the United States and its "imperialist" policies.

Never mind that Castro has sent some 50,000 Cuban soldiers off to Africa to fight Russia's wars the past four years, and never mind that he presently is doing all he can to export Communism in the Caribbean and Latin America, he will be given the full VIP treatment, not only by the United Nations but the world press.

IT IS somewhat ironic that Castro's visit comes on the heels of a new U.S.-Cuban confrontation, this one over the presence of 3,000 Russian armed troops on the island.

AN EDITORIAL:

Crooks Beat Path To Elderly

IT'S DIFFICULT for decent people to understand the depravity of those who prey on the poor and elderly, but the Social Security Administration says con men have been busy in Texas, New Mexico and Oklahoma in recent weeks.

Posing as Social Security representatives, or cleverly leading their victims to think they are there to "help" them, the crooks often bilk the aged out of their meager funds.

Typically, according to Laura Peacock, Social Security district manager here, the con man convinces his or her victim that higher benefits are possible.

THOSE WHO HAVE no other income except their social security checks are most vulnerable to such a scheme.

"Living so close to the poverty level, they're really concerned about anything that has an effect on their checks, even by a few dollars," said Bill West, Social Security field representative here.

He recommended that any recipient of a social security check who is approached by someone offering to help get higher benefits demand identification and, if in doubt, call for verification before admitting the caller.

Sometimes, he pointed out, the impostors want to get inside so as to steal valuables, then or later.

Social security recipients sometimes fall victim, too, to swindlers who sell them unneeded or expensive "supplementary" medical insurance. They make off with a first premium payment before the oldster has presence of mind enough to check with a trusted advisor.

"BEFORE ADMITTING anyone into their homes, identification of the caller should be made," Social Security administrators advise.

"All Social Security Administration employees who call on the public in their homes have identity cards and will readily show these as requested," they add.

The cards have the employee's picture of them but, again, the best bet is to verify the identification before letting the caller into the house.

M. STANTON EVANS:

Capitulation On Cuba Maintains Status Quo

WASHINGTON—If the presence of Soviet troops in Cuba was not a calamity for the United States—and President Carter said it was not—he has made it such by his disastrous handling of the matter.

Obviously, 3,000 Russian combat troops in Cuba and of themselves do not pose a strategic threat to the United States, though scenarios exist in which they can be put to hostile uses.

What they did pose was a test of American will—a reading on the relative tenacity of the United States and the USSR in the Cold War struggle for the world. The salient issue was how the Carter administration would respond to so flagrant an initiative so near our shores.

President Carter, Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and other official spokesmen put the issue squarely in this framework by numerous public comments.

REPEATEDLY, THESE spokesmen said the United States would not accept the presence of the Soviet brigade in Cuba, and that the troops would have to be pulled out.

To force such a withdrawal, it was suggested, decisive actions would be forthcoming. For the record, the President and the other spokesmen were talking tough.

Thus Carter asserted, early on, that "we consider the presence of a Soviet combat brigade in Cuba to be a very serious matter and that this status quo is not acceptable."

He later added that if negotiations on the subject did not succeed, he would take unspecified action "to change the status quo." Vance put it that "I will not be satisfied with the maintenance of the status quo."

SEN. FRANK CHURCH, D-Ia., chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, said there was "no likelihood whatever" that the SALT II treaty would be approved as long as the brigade remained in Cuba.

The Soviets, for their part, were just as adamant. They denied that their troops were a "combat brigade," and said what we had spotted in Cuba was merely a "training center" to teach the locals the use of Soviet equipment. They denounced Carter as "rude" and "tactless," and made it clear from the beginning that they had no intention of pulling out their forces. The lines of confrontation between the U.S. and Soviet positions were therefore already drawn.

The outcome of this confrontation, of course, is now well known. When the Soviets, as usual, refused to budge, the Carter administration knuckled under.

Having said repeatedly that the United States would not accept the "status quo" of Soviet troops in Cuba, Carter went on national television Oct. 1 and told the American people he was accepting the status quo.

THE VERY thing that had been labeled intolerable by our official spokesmen was swallowed down by a gulp by the American President.

To be sure, Carter tried to divert attention from this development by talking gravely about other things: "assurances" and "significant" statements by the Soviets, steps the United States would take to insure that the brigade did not cause any trouble, military maneuvers by U.S. forces, and a plea for SALT.

But none of this could disguise the fact that the American President was meekly accepting, on national television, exactly what he had and other official spokesmen had said they would not accept.

In context, the final pitch for SALT was especially ironic. The real threat to our security, said Carter, was not "two or three thousand troops in Cuba," but the possible breakdown of our common quest for peace—which means, above all else right now, the SALT agreement.

THUS, BY the alchemy of renunciation, the Soviet troops originally seen as a barrier to SALT become a reason for its acceptance.

In another sense, however, the SALT appeal was appropriate. The effect of the treaty would be to put the Senate's imprimatur on America's self-inflicted military weakness, and to build in further strategic advantages for the Soviets.

And since the essence of the President's TV address was U.S. capitulation, what could have been more fitting than a sign-off commercial for the biggest capitulation of them all?

Eating Quo

GEORGE WILL:

The Autumn Leavers

WASHINGTON—Zbigniew Brzezinski, the President's national security adviser, says he detects in Soviet behavior a "pattern of disregard" for American interests. (What must Brezhnev make of that? Perhaps, "Oh fudge, I was afraid someone would notice.")

And President Carter says the Soviets have lied about their brigade in Cuba.

Ambassador Dobrynin, with whom Secretary Vance has been negotiating about the brigade, may have been innocently passing on lies from Moscow in October, 1962, when he assured Chester Bowles and Robert Kennedy that the only missiles in Cuba were anti-aircraft missiles.

But Foreign Minister Gromyko, who lied at the United Nations last month concerning the brigade, certainly knew he was lying on Oct. 17, 1962, when he sat opposite President Kennedy's rocking chair and solemnly said what the President knew to be false: that there were no offensive missiles in Cuba.

ANDREW TULLY:

Rich Get More So

WASHINGTON—Those political bandits who pass for a federal government—that collection of me-first hustlers who gave you $1.69-a-pound hamburger—snatched some more dough out of your pocket the other day.

The House of Representatives and President Carter arranged to give themselves and the Senate a 5.5 percent pay increase, to an impressive $60,700 a year.

The contribution from Carter was a letter to Democratic House leaders saying sure, you folks go ahead and cut yourselves in for some more swag.

President George Meany of the AFL-CIO and Common Cause also endorsed the raise, as expected. Meany just likes to spend the taxpayers' money, and Common Cause has long been afflicted with Common Confusion.

THE MAIN argument was that members of Congress had not had a raise in pay for almost two years—and that during that period the cost of living had increased by 25 percent.

Sound reasonable? Like hell it does. Big government spending is the major cause of inflation and no money can be spent without Congress' okay. So House members rewarded themselves for helping to make eating a luxury.

In the snake-pit atmosphere of the House floor, a few voices of reason were raised—all of them Republican. Rep. Larry Hopkins of Kentucky, a first-termer, took the words out of a lot of American mouths when he suggested that none of the members was dragged kicking and screaming to Washington.

"All of us knew when we applied for the job last year that there was inflation," he said. "All of us knew what the salary was."

THERE WAS Rep. Robert K. Dorman, R-Calif., who reminded the mob that the average family of four makes only about $18,000 a year and is up in arms about the high cost of living.

Dorman argued that members who voted for the raise were courting political demise. Dorman put things in perspective.

"It's a specious argument to say that we can't live on $57,500 a year," he growled.

Indeed, if a member of Congress can't make do on that pretty princely sum, what's he doing assisting in the management of billions of dollars in public monies?

Of course the mob ignored Dorman's demands that "this government simply has to clean up its act."

BUT THE Republicans are not without collateral blame: Although they voted against the raise by more than 2-to-1, the record in next year's elections should show that the party's whip, Rep. Robert Michel of Illinois, worked with Democratic leaders to pass the vicious rip-off.

"If you vote the way you honestly believe," said Rep. David Obey, D-Wis., "you will support the bill. It's the intellectually honest thing to do." Given that utterance, one half expects Obey to praise the intellectual honesty of that principled bank robber, Willie Sutton.

JAY HARRIS:

No. 1 And Holding

QUICK NOW, what's good about America? Many persons could come up with all sorts of answers to that question.

Others, flooded by the mass of "what's wrong with America" stories, including one or two from the President himself, might be taken aback.

So, maybe the question should be worded more as a statement and changed to: "What's good and what's bad about America?"

It hasn't been too long since we, among others, were decrying the "doom and gloom" syndrome which seemed to pervade much of the pundits and politicians' thinking. Back in the wake of Vietnam and Watergate, it was popular to pontificate on such things.

THE PROBLEM is that, in some respects, the pundits were right.

But not completely. And that is what today's thoughts are all about. It's still not too late to turn things around.

The other day, an item in "America's Future," offered food for thought.

While observing that public opinion polls say Americans have lost confidence in their democratic institutions and faith in the future, America's Future made this comment:

"Perhaps But our country has experienced as many 'downs' as 'ups' in the past, and somehow has survived. And somehow, we feel confident that we shall recover from our present down period. If statistics show how bad things are, other lesser publicized facts offer reassurance that we still have a lot of good things going for us..."

THEN THE author tucked off a few of them.

For instance, did you know that last year Americans shelled out almost $40 billion in voluntary contributions to a variety of causes, from the Arthritis Foundation to the United Way?

That's more than twice what people gave a decade ago. And by this generosity, we Americans seem to be saying that we still believe in the future enough to help others. If Americans criticize their institutions, it's because they believe there is room for improvement.

Religious leaders report that although there may be a degree of superficial religious revival, that many persons are sincerely turning to the church, young people among them.

And more and more Americans, both young and middle aged and older are showing their faith in the future by going to school. Americans today have better health care and longer life expectancy than ever before. In 1960, there were 8,000 new doctors; in 1977 there were 17,000.

RECENTLY, ALTON Newell, chairman of the Newell Manufacturing Co. of San Antonio, had a message for high school graduates.

After tucking off many of today's headaches, Newell reminded the 18-year-olds of the opportunities which lie ahead.

"We are just now fully entering into the electronic, the computer and the space age," he told them. "Since you were born, man has walked on the moon. Twenty-five percent of the things on the shelves today were not there when you entered this world."

"What can one person do?" he asked. "Anything—if he or she will work—and put faith in the good—yes the 'square' things which built America. You can make the world a better place before you leave it than it was when you arrived. It's your move!"

ALONG THE same lines of "what's wrong and what's right" with America, a reader wrote The St. Petersburg Times the other day.

"It is irritating, nay sickening," he said, "to hear otherwise estimable and intelligent citizens whine and bewail what they profess to be our national drift toward bankruptcy, anarchy, chaos and oblivion."

The writer went on to note how much less it costs, for instance for gasoline and food, a suit of clothes or a pair of shoes in the U.S. than it does in many other places in the world today.

"We are still the most affluent, most powerful nation on the globe, the envy of all others, and with unsurpassed resources, industrial and agricultural capacity and technical know-how." But then, he added his note of warning.

"At present, we lack three essential items, which if we do not soon develop and employ, we are doomed to perish."

THE THREE ingredients for survival are:

"First, a bold, aggressive, dynamic leadership which puts our country's interests ahead of those of any and all other nations.

"Second, the re-establishment of what we once proudly called The Melting Pot.

"Far from being that, and becoming a homogeneous race, we have deteriorated into hyper-nated groups, too many members of which put the interests and welfare of the 'old' or 'new' country (a land most have never even visited) ahead of that of America, their adopted land and home.

"Third, we seem to have lost the will to fight for our own survival. The choice is ours, let us grasp it."

Many of these hopes and fears, we feel, were reflected in the reception accorded Pope John Paul II the past week in his unprecedented visit to the cities and heartland of America.

While many would obviously disagree with the Roman Catholic hierarchy's edicts on divorce, contraception and women's role in the church, nevertheless millions, including the young, found in this forthright, firm, yet warm man the sort of person they could look up to and respect.

The hopes and fears of a nation, indeed the world, hang precariously in the balance. What's good still outweighs what's wrong. It's up to us to see that it continues to do so.

L.M. BOYD:

...Pass It On

A READER once wrote to lovemorn columnist Dorothy Dix: "A man has asked me to marry him, but he doesn't know I have false teeth. Should I tell him?" What would you suggest to this questioner, if you were such a columnist? Miss Dix replied: "Keep your mouth shut."

Q. A widow in search of a widower would have the best chance of finding same in what states?

A. Arkansas, Florida, Missouri, New Hampshire or Pennsylvania. So report the statisticians.

Am asked to identify the largest tavern in the world. Believe that distinction goes to the Staatliches Hofbrauhaus in Munich, West Germany. It seats 5,000.

Was none other than Diogenes who said, "We have two ears and only one tongue in order that we may hear more and speak less."

Early Detection In Arthritis Cases Crucial, Says Foundation Spokesman

For every case of arthritis that is properly diagnosed and treated, there is likely to be one that is misdiagnosed, an Arthritis Foundation spokesman said here this week.

"Misdiagnosis of this disease can mean unnecessary pain and permanent disability for the arthritis patient," said Dr. B. K. Khandelwal, chairman of the Medical and Scientific Committee of the West Texas Chapter of the Arthritis Foundation. "It is therefore crucial for doctors to be up-to-date on methods for spotting this varied and complex group of diseases."

Today there are more than 31 million men, women and children suffering from the over 100 types of arthritis and related rheumatic diseases. And yet, only 2,000 rheumatologists are currently practicing in this country.

"The majority of arthritis victims must depend heavily on the family physician for diagnosis and treatment," Dr. Khandelwal said. "And accurate diagnosis is difficult, because of the many forms of the disease and its unpredictability."

According to Dr. Khandelwal, early diagnosis and proper treatment are still the best defenses against the ravages of arthritis. Arthritis specialists have found that the average sufferer of rheumatoid arthritis, the most severely crippling form of the disease, waits four years after the first symptoms appear before seeking proper medical diagnosis and care. Many are therefore crippled needlessly.

Those who have no family physician but who suspect that they may have arthritis can contact the foundation for the names of doctors with special interest in the disease.

Individuals also can obtain literature about the various forms of arthritis, and information about patient clubs and other activities which can help them adjust to the limitations and requirements of their ailment.

How early should one seek professional help? The Arthritis Foundation recommends that after signs or symptoms suggesting some form of arthritis persist or come and go for six weeks, it is time to see a doctor.

To delay seeking medical help, to diagnose oneself or to experiment with home remedies, is to give the disease time to begin its insidious damage to joints, damage that can never be repaired.

The warning signs of arthritis include the following:

- Persistent pain and stiffness on arising;
- Pain, tenderness or swelling in one or more joints;
- Recurrent of persistent pain and stiffness in the neck, lower back, knees and other joints.

For more information on this disease, or for help in obtaining specialized services, patients or physicians can contact the West Texas Chapter of the Arthritis Foundation, 1926 34th St., Lubbock, 79410.

YOUR PERSONAL BIORHYTHMS

By Bernard Gittelson, Author of "Biorhythm: A Personal Science"

The personal science of biorhythm can tell you how your day will go. Now you can judge the highs and lows of not only yourself, but loved ones and friends, and celebrities and stars. Biorhythm, our newest scientific discipline, is the study of the built-in natural cycles that powerfully influence our behavior.

BIORHYTHMS FOR OCT. 10, 1979

PHYSICAL		Critique: 9, 21, 32, 44, 55, 67	A busy road today
Highs: 1-8, 22-31, 45-54, 68-75		A good day to work
Lows: 10-20, 33-43, 56-66		Moments of uneasiness
EMOTIONAL		Critique: 4, 18, 32, 46, 60, 74	Over sensitive today
Highs: 1-3, 19-31, 47-59, 75-85		You are positive today
Lows: 5-17, 33-45, 61-73		In poor form
INTELLECTUAL		Critique: 11, 28, 44, 61, 77, 94	Delay problem solving
Highs: 1-10, 29-43, 62-76, 95		Brain is working well
Lows: 12-27, 45-60, 78-93		Foolish action day

Enter your own permanent numbers in the chart in the bottom right-hand corner. To figure your own permanent numbers, follow these three steps:

Step 1: From the year chart, find the numbers corresponding to your year of birth. For instance, if you were born in 1947, your number for Physical would be 21, Emotional 17, Intellectual 19. Note whether your numbers are preceded by an A or B; this will be used for Step 2.

Step 2: Now find the corresponding number for the month you were born. If your month is February, and your year numbers were preceded by a B, your month numbers would be 8 for Physical, 3 for Emotional and 31 for Intellectual. Enter your own numbers in the figure chart for Step 2.

B	21	14	17	6	17	15	14	20	13	21	12

Step 3: In the figure chart, enter your day of birth three times, one each for Physical (P), Emotional (E), and Intellectual (I). (If you were born on April 3, for instance, place a 3 in each column.)

Add the three columns to derive your permanent biorhythm numbers for your Physical, Emotional and Intellectual cycles. Now you can refer to today's rhythms.

These numbers are yours permanently. Check them each day for your biorhythm reading.

Tight Monetary Policies Victimize Home Market

NEW YORK (AP) — The first victims of the Federal Reserve's new tight-money policy will be the people who buy, sell and build houses. But analysts say consumers and businesses also will feel the impact of the Fed's moves.

"I would think that it's going to be a little harder to get a car loan, a little harder to get a mortgage," said economist William E. Gibson of the brokerage house Smith Barney Harris Upham & Co. Inc.

"It will be very tough to buy or sell homes without mortgage financing available. It's difficult to see institutions funding mortgages one or two months in advance when the cost of money is so uncertain," said bank analyst Jonathan E. Gray of Sanford C. Bernstein & Co. Inc.

The tight mortgage situation is likely to slow homebuilding. And that means makers of appliances and home furnishings may face slower sales and rising inventories of unsold products as their major market shrinks.

The Federal Reserve, in a bid to control inflation, moved to curb lending by boosting money market interest rates and by raising the percentage of deposits banks must hold as cash.

An immediate result of the moves was a one-point jump in the prime lending rate at most institutions to a record 14 1/2 percent. The prime is a bank's charge on loans to top-rated borrowers.

"There's been a general tendency for banks to price more and more (business) loans in terms of the prime," said Gibson. "All those loans are going to be more expensive," and prices may rise as businesses pass on higher loan rates to customers.

Even at high rates, "the small businessman looking for a loan may be asked to take a smaller amount than he's looking for because the bank doesn't have as much money available," said Irwin Kellner, economist at Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co.

And "the man on the street may ultimately feel the effect" of the Fed's moves "in that his own job may be at stake," Kellner said.

The housing industry already was slowing to a rate of 1.7 million new home starts annually from last year's 2.02 million clip as high-yielding short-term money market certificates and mutual funds cut into the ability of savings institutions to provide long-term mortgages.

As availability has declined, mortgage rates have risen. Gibraltar Savings & Loan of Los Angeles Tuesday raised its base home mortgage rate a half-point to 12 1/2 percent "in response to the surge in short-term interest rates."

The Federal Home Loan Bank Board said, meanwhile, the average effective conventional mortgage rate on a new home hit 11.02 percent in September, up from 11.01 in August and 10.85 in April.

As money market rates continue to climb, "the public is going to have increased incentives to shift every dollar of cash they have" into the money market accounts," said economist David Jones of the bond broker Aubrey G. Lanston & Co. Inc.

And that shift will mean "a terrible first quarter" of 1980 for housing starts, said Mortgage Bankers Association economist Tom Harter, who forecast starts at a 1.3 million-a-year pace "or maybe lower."

Analyst Gray predicted "a deeper trough," with housing starts slipping to a 1.1 million-clip "or possibly worse than 1974," a recession year in which first-quarter starts slipped below a 1 million annual rate.

According to the National Institute of Education, at least 6,000 teachers are forcibly robbed every month in junior and senior high schools. About 112,000 secondary-school students also are robbed every month and around 282,000 are assaulted.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q. My daughter needs help with a down payment on a house. I'd lend her the money but am leery about losing it, if there is a chance she and her husband could lose their home.

I read articles stating that, by 1990, house prices will be exorbitant. Then, people tell me that there is going to be a real estate bust and houses will be much cheaper when this happens — within a year or two.

Do you foresee people losing their homes, if prices come down?

A. People usually lose their homes because their incomes are reduced or wiped out when they lose their jobs. Unfortunately, that happens to some people all the time. Fortunately, it hasn't happened to too many people recently.

And, despite worries about a recession, I honestly do not feel we are going to see a big wave of home losses.

As long as your daughter and son-in-law have income sufficient to carry a mortgage and pay off whatever loan they get from you, there should be no worry about them losing the home they plan to buy. Any drop in the market value of the home, after they buy it, won't change that.

Scare stories about a "real estate bust" have been around for a long time. Sure, we may see some small declines in housing prices, from time to time. But the overall trend in prices of good real estate has been up, and away.

You talk about home prices becoming "exorbitant." That's in relation to today's prices — which look exorbitant in relation to 1970 prices.

Q. The stocks of many electric and gas utility companies are paying dividends resulting in yields of 10 to 11 percent and their prices have been fairly stable. Did utility stock prices fall drastically, during the 1929 crash? Or did they reduce or discontinue their dividends at that time?

I am wondering how they would react to a drastic sell-off of the general stock market?

A. Stocks of most utilities suffered, badly, in the '29 crash and into the 1930s. But they were quite different than the utilities of today. They were free-wheeling public utility holding companies — some of which made financial history for high-binding tactics.

The federal Public Utility Holding Company Act put an end to that kind of activity. Today's utilities are closely regulated.

Don't take this to mean that utility stocks are immune from price fluctuations. Many are down from their previous levels and could go lower in any general stock market sell-off. But, except for a very few, the dividends of utilities seem secure. Many keep raising their dividends, on a moderate but steady basis.

Toy Phone Cords Subject Of Recall

WASHINGTON (AP) — Durham Industries Inc. is recalling the detachable connector cords sold with 97,000 toy telephone sets, according to the Consumer Product Safety Commission.

The cords are part of model 7028 "Holly Hobbie" dial-intercom toy telephone set.

Available in pink and blue with the words "Holly Hobbie" printed in the center of the dial, the toys have been sold by K-Mart stores for about $9.95.

Officials said the cord connecting the two battery-operated telephones has two-prong plugs at each end. These closely resemble electrical plugs and children forcing them into an electrical outlet could be shocked or burned, commission officials said. One such incident involving an 8-year-old girl has been reported.

Redesigned replacement cords will be provided to parents who return the cords to Durham Industries, Inc., 41 Madison Ave., New York, N.Y., 10010.

Finance Minister Predicts Rise

By The Associated Press

Analysts said Tuesday that decisions by Kuwait and Mexico to raise their crude oil prices will put more pressure on oil producers for a general price increase. And the Kuwaiti finance minister said oil-price hikes were necessary to preserve the reserves.

Kuwait, the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries' fourth-largest producer, raised the price of its oil by about 10 percent, from $19.49 a barrel to $21.43 a barrel.

Mexico, not an OPEC member but a major oil producer and supplier to the United States, raised its oil price about 9 percent from $22.60 a barrel to $24.60 a barrel.

The official OPEC price ranges between $18 and $23.50 a barrel and averages a bit more than $20 a barrel. There are 42 gallons in a barrel.

The Kuwaiti and Mexican moves probably will not mean increases in the price of gasoline, heating oil and other petroleum products in the United States, because the amount of oil involved is fairly small. Mexico produces about 1.4 million barrels of oil daily and supplies about 3 percent of the United States' oil. Kuwait produces about 2.3 million barrels of oil a day and supplies about 0.3 percent of U.S. needs.

But the moves could mean that OPEC will decide on a large price increase when it meets in December. The cartel has been expected to raise prices by some amount, but the latest actions, combined with rising prices on the spot oil market, increases the chance for a large increase, analysts said.

A series of independent price increases preceded the last OPEC price-setting meeting in June. Several OPEC nations also have said they will cut sales of oil to Western oil companies, apparently to have the oil to sell on the more lucrative spot market, where oil has been selling for more than $35 a barrel. These moves also have put pressure on OPEC.

Holy Shroud To Be Topic Of Meeting

LOS ALAMOS, N.M. (AP) — Scientists who administered a battery of tests to the Holy Shroud of Turin will meet here this weekend to go over what they've learned about the relic that some believe is the burial cloth of Christ.

Some 40 scientists are working on the shroud project. A group of them participated in the October 1978 tests when the shroud was examined with infrared and ultra-violet radiation, X-rays and chemicals.

The group will meet in private at Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory to organize their findings.

Lab chemists Robert Dinagar and Raymond Rogers; John Jackson and Eric Jumper of the U.S. Air Force Academy; and Luigi Gonella of the Turin Polytechnic Institute are scheduled to discuss the project with the news media Friday.

The 14-foot-long shroud, kept at a Catholic church in Turin, Italy, contains the reversed image of a face, front and back, similar to a photographic negative.

Authorities in Turin gave the scientists permission to examine the shroud following a rare public display of the cloth in 1978.

The testing took place in the Palace of Savoy next to a chapel built in 1694 to house the shroud.

The shroud was acquired by the Duke of Savoy in the mid-15th century and has been in possession of the Italian family since then.

300 Strong Blockade New Tactic

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — A dozen police officers in riot gear plunged into a human blockade of 300 striking workers Tuesday and cleared the way for newly hired non-union employees to enter Olin Corp.'s firearms complex.

Five pickets were arrested as police dispersed dozens of demonstrators who had massed in a chilly drizzle at intersections leading to the Winchester sporting arms plant and the other two Olin facilities.

One woman was struck by a car, but authorities said the incident was not believed related to the demonstration. No other injuries were reported.

Olin said about 85 replacement employees reported for work and were being added to the company's production lines. Seventy other new workers were to receive physical examinations.

The demonstration was the latest in a series of attempts by the striking Machinists union to prevent Olin from hiring non-union employees to replace those who have been on strike for 12 weeks.

Last week, Mayor Frank Logue shut down the Olin plants for four days after up to 800 strikers, some with clubs and baseball bats, blocked the newly hired workers from entering the complex. The mayor predicted "bloodshed in the streets" and union leaders also spoke of probable violence.

Vaccination Programs Under Fire

WASHINGTON (AP) — Future vaccination programs, a cornerstone of preventive health efforts, may be threatened if the government fails to deal with critical vaccine development, testing and liability problems, according to a study released Tuesday.

The congressional Office of Technology Assessment said that since 1967 the number of domestic vaccine manufacturers has declined 50 percent and the number of vaccine types produced has dropped 60 percent.

This decline may be due in part to federal policies; the government is "the single most important determinant of this nation's commitment to the use of vaccines to prevent disease," the report said.

The technology office, which advises Congress on technical and scientific issues, said the government not only extensively finances vaccine research and testing, but also buys half of the doses distributed in the country.

But the government does not produce vaccines. Reliance upon pharmaceutical companies could pose problems because many have gotten out of the vaccine business and more may do so in the future, the report said.

Possible reasons for decreased manufacturer interest in vaccines are a small market relative to other higher-profit prescription items and unpredictable vaccine liability risks, it said.

For 19 of the 51 types of vaccines licensed, including polio virus vaccine, Americans depend upon a single pharmaceutical company, the report said. And for 11 vaccines, including the one for Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever, there are no domestic manufacturers.

"The supply of a vaccine with only one licensed manufacturer easily could be interrupted or terminated because of technical production problems or changes in a firm's marketing plans," it said.

The congressional agency said three specific issues the government must address to assure continued development and use of safe and effective vaccines include:

—Liability problems resulting from unavoidable injuries from properly made and administered vaccines may erode commitment to public immunization programs.

—Medicare pays for treating the elderly for infectious diseases, but not for vaccinations to prevent them.

—Limitations of premarketing testing may permit some vaccines to be used without full awareness of possible adverse reactions. And the government does not require manufacturers or health agencies to collect data on the safety and effectiveness of vaccines in use.

Congress has a number of options it could use to address these issues:

—Develop a federal policy for compensating the small number of persons expected to be seriously injured because of public immunization programs. This could include the government assuming responsibility for defending all claims and maintaining authority, in turn, to sue potentially negligent parties, such as manufacturers and health agencies.

—Authorize the government to either produce or subsidize production of selected vaccines to reduce dependence on industry and increase control over the availability of vaccines.

—Amend the Medicare law to permit reimbursement for preventive vaccines that benefit the elderly.

—Require the Food and Drug Administration or another federal agency to establish surveillance programs to monitor the use of — and reactions to — licensed vaccines.

Smallpox Outbreak In Indonesia Highly Unlikely

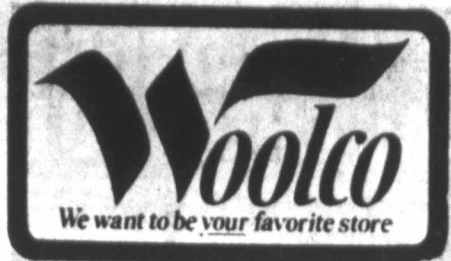

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — The World Health Organization said Tuesday a reported outbreak of smallpox in Indonesia was "highly unlikely."

WHO Spokesman Gino Levy said the organization had been advised by Indonesian health authorities that the disease which killed 16 people was "most probably a conjunction of measles and diarrheal diseases."

"We are awaiting additional bacteriological information," Levy added. The press reports, from Jakarta, had claimed the disease had broken out again in the Lampung district of Sumatra in recent weeks.

There have been no known smallpox cases throughout the world for nearly two years, according to officials here.

The last cases occurred in Ethiopia and Somalia. WHO has scheduled a ceremonial meeting in Nairobi later this month to declare officially dead the disease that killed three million people annually in the developing world before WHO began its smallpox eradication campaign in 1967.

Union Charges Corporation Funds Coerced

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Machinists' Union charged Tuesday that supposedly voluntary political funds sponsored by corporations actually coerce contributions from employees and should be declared illegal.

The charge was contained in a complaint filed with the Federal Election Commission, which oversees administration of laws and regulations covering campaign finances.

It said that while the law requires that donations to corporate political action committees be entirely free and voluntary, corporations use threats and psychological intimidation to force employees to give.

The union asked the FEC to find the corporate committees "violate federal law and that remedial relief be awarded by the commission after investigation."

It said a study of operations of political action committees in the 1978 elections shows that "corporate solicitations of employees to donate to the PACs are effectively a system of kickbacks from employees not in a position to shrug off company requests for support."

"Consequently, most of them respond to the employers' solicitations," the complaint said.

It said that mid-level management employees who are the principal targets of corporate political fund solicitors are particularly "vulnerable" since they are career workers whose advancement depends on the good will of management.

"The data shows that among the top 10 corporate PACs, career employees are donating annual amounts far beyond normal voluntary political giving," the union charged. "They are doing so though in many cases the money is going to the party opposed to the donor's own party allegiance."

The complaint, filed in the name of the Machinists' Union, its president, William Wimpfinger, and several individuals who are investors in corporations, also contends that the constitutional rights of stockholders are violated when corporate funds are used to sponsor a political action committee.

"It is unclear why a stockholder should bear the costs of political operations which do not meet his or her own political interests and desires," the complaint said.

The union argued that if the corporate solicitations are permissible, they amount to corporate donations, and therefore the statutory ban on union contributions is discriminatory and unconstitutional.

Federal law prohibits corporations and unions alike from making political contributions out of their treasuries, but both are allowed to solicit voluntary gifts from employees or members and then give the money to political candidates.

New Contract Gives Skilled Tradesmen Right To Strike

DETROIT (AP) — The new contract between Ford Motor Co. and the United Auto Workers union gives skilled tradesmen the right to strike particular plants over certain issues, the UAW confirmed Tuesday.

Union leaders were counting on the provision, similar to one reached at General Motors Corp. three years ago, to help win ratification by the 29,000 tradesmen of the 190,000 Ford UAW force.

A contract summary released at a meeting of the union's Ford Council — officers of the 99 Ford locals — said the tradesmen could bypass arbitration in disputes over certain work being farmed out to subcontractors.

UAW spokesman Howard Lipton said he did not believe there had been any plant-wide strikes at GM in the past three years on the subcontracting issue.

There were no surprises in the summary, whose economic terms closely paralleled those of the earlier GM settlement.

The union has said that if the tradesmen reject the contract for reasons peculiar to that branch of the union, a strike will be authorized.

The tradesmen — electricians, tool-and-die makers and the like — rejected a Ford contract six years ago. They thought they had exercised their veto granted by the UAW constitution, but the union declared the contract ratified — and renegotiated the issues bothering the tradesmen.

A Ford assembler now making $8.675 per hour in base pay will, if the Consumer Price Index increases by 8 percent per year, reach $11.33 in June 1982, according to the summary. Those figures are within a penny of GM's contract.

KOREAN TRAWLER SEIZED
 JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — A 320-foot South Korean stern trawler has been seized by the Coast Guard for alleged violations of U.S. fishing regulations in the Bering Sea. A Coast Guard spokesman said the Seo Wang Ho of Busan was seized Monday night 75 northwest of Dutch Harbor.

Committee Adopts Oil 'Windfall' Tax

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Finance Committee voted Tuesday to impose a 60 percent "windfall profits" tax on the bulk of America's domestically produced oil, including billions of barrels of Alaska North Slope crude.

The action came as committee members made the last major decisions confronting them in shaping the new tax on the oil industry that President Carter has recommended. Still ahead are decisions on tax credits to spur conservation and assistance to poor people hard hit by sharply higher energy costs.

On a vote of 11-7, the committee decided to tax so-called "new oil" at the rate of 60 percent above a price of about $13 a barrel, a figure to be adjusted annually for inflation.

"New oil" generally comes from fields that went into production between 1973 and 1978. Officials say it now accounts for about 52 percent of the nation's domestic production, a figure that will decline gradually during the next decade to about 9 percent as the fields deteriorate.

The committee also voted to apply the 60 percent tax on oil from the Sadlerochit reservoir, the only North Slope area now in production. The reservoir accounts for an estimated 16 percent of current U.S. oil production.

The decision amounted to a weakening of the levy on Alaskan oil that the House of Representatives approved when it passed Carter's "windfall profits" tax earlier this year.

The House bill called for a 50 percent tax above $7.50 a barrel. The difference will cost the government an estimated $5.5 billion in lost revenue through 1990.

Senate tax-writers, with the backing of the Carter administration, decided to steer a middle course between the House provision and a request from Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, to exempt all North Slope oil from the tax.

Only One Reservoir

The tax would apply only to the Sadlerochit reservoir, which Gravel said had reserves of 10 billion barrels when production began in 1977. All future North Slope production areas would be exempt from the tax.

Before approving the 60 percent tax on "new oil," the committee rejected two other proposals.

One, by Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., for a 50 percent tax above $13, with annual adjustments for inflation, was rejected, 10-6.

A proposal for a 70 percent tax, offered by Sen. John Chafee, R-R.I., was defeated 10-8.

The House of Representatives voted for a 60 percent tax when it passed the bill earlier this year.

North Slope Oil

On Alaska North Slope oil, the House voted for a 50 percent tax above $7.50 a barrel, also to be adjusted for inflation.

An exemption that Gravel demanded, rejected on a vote of 12-5, would have reduced revenue to the government by an estimated $10.5 billion through 1990.

The House-passed measure is expected to produce an estimated $104 billion through 1990 for a special trust fund that President Carter is proposing to finance various programs to reduce American dependence on imported oil.

From this fund would come the money to pay for programs such as development of synthetic fuels, conservation measures and assistance for the poor in paying higher fuel bills.

Gradually End Controls

Carter wants a so-called "windfall profits" tax to accompany his program for gradually ending price controls on domestically produced oil. Technically, the tax would be on the extra revenue, not profits, from decontrol. Without the tax, oil companies would keep more of the revenue as profits.

Compared with the $104 billion in the House-passed tax, the version the Senate Finance Committee is working on would raise an estimated $65 billion.

On the proposed exemption for Alaska oil, Gravel said the special break was needed because of extraordinarily high industry costs on the frigid North Slope.

He told the committee production costs on the North Slope are 15 times higher than in the domestic United States, labor costs are four times as high and transportation costs are 20 times higher.

But opponents of the proposed exemption, including Long, noted that some wells in the Sadlerochit reservoir produce at the exceptionally high rate of 9,000 barrels a day.

CONNALLY GETS CHECK

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Airplane problems forced John Connally to miss a Tuesday reception worth about $500,000. But it had no apparent effect, as the Republican presidential hopeful made a later fund-raising dance and picked up a check for $125,000 and pledges for up to $375,000 more.

SALT Critic Says Troops Not Issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of the foremost critics of the SALT II treaty said Tuesday the controversy over Soviet troops in Cuba should play no part in the Senate's debate over the agreement.

Taking a position espoused chiefly by treaty supporters, Paul Nitze, a one-time high-ranking Pentagon official, said SALT should be debated on the merits of the treaty and "should not be diverted by tangential issues."

At the same time, Nitze argued that the treaty is heavily weighted in favor of the Soviet Union and would "tend to nail down dangerous strategic imbalance."

He recommended that the Senate send the treaty back to President Carter for renegotiation with Russia and be prepared to live several years without any agreement limiting strategic nuclear weapons.

Nitze testified before the Senate Armed Services Committee as it opened its last round of SALT hearings, expected to run seven days.

Another witness, retired Lt. Gen. Edward Rowny, called the treaty "detrimental to our national security" and said that, "In our zeal to reach an agreement the United States made too many concessions. We permitted large inequalities favoring the Soviet Union to be written into the agreement."

Rowny, who left the military last summer after six years as the Joint Chiefs of Staff's representative at the SALT talks, said the Senate should amend the treaty to make it more equitable and then return it for renegotiation with the Soviet Union.

Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., the influential chairman of the Armed Services Committee, said he opposed putting off the SALT debate. "I just believe it best to go on and take advantage of the hearings we've had and debate this matter," Stennis said.

In a separate development, a Senate Foreign Relations Committee staff report said failure to ratify SALT might well damage the internal unity and military strength of the NATO alliance and would be a serious setback to plans to modernize allied theater nuclear forces in Europe.

"The allies want SALT — they want it ratified, and they want it ratified soon," Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., said in releasing the report.

Biden also told a news conference he believes Sens. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., and Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., leaders of the Senate Intelligence Committee, are willing to go beyond their panel's report which dodged the issue of whether the United States can verify Soviet compliance with the treaty.

"I think in the effort to get unanimity (on the verification issue) we in a sense copped out in that report, and I think there is a clear majority willing to state as the bottom line: 'We believe that this treaty is adequately verifiable,'" said Biden, a member of the committee.

The report, released last Friday, said ratification of the treaty would enhance U.S. capability to monitor Soviet strategic developments.

In his testimony, Nitze said rejection of the treaty by a small margin might have a weakening effect on NATO.

could not recall a full-point rise in the prime, even by a single bank.

The prime is the rate banks charge their most credit-worthy corporate borrowers, and banks use the prime as the basis for setting interest rates on almost all commercial-industrial loans.

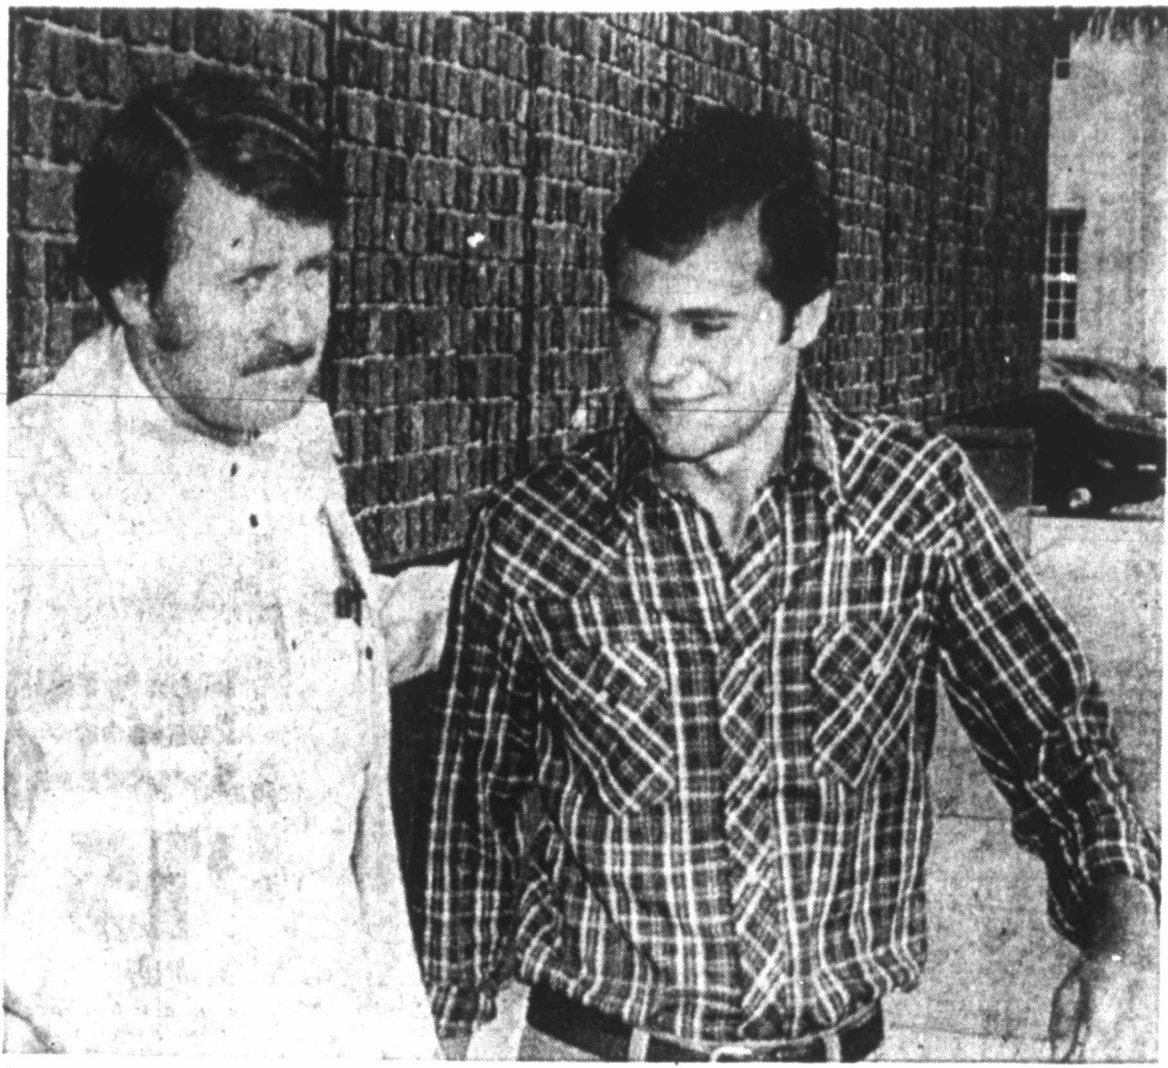

The prime does not directly affect consumer loan rates, which are limited by law in many states, but is regarded to be an important indicator of trends in interest rates in general.

In states where banks can't raise consumer loan interest rates to match their costs of acquiring funds, money for consumer loans, especially home mortgages, becomes scarce.

Chase Manhattan Bank, the nation's third-largest, was the first to post a 14 1/2 percent prime Tuesday, and was soon joined by the rest of the nation's major banks. Second-ranked Citibank, which traditionally announces its prime rate on Friday mornings, broke that tradition for the first time since Tuesday, May 7, 1974.

In a speech to the nation's bankers meeting in New Orleans, Federal Reserve Board Chairman Paul A. Volcker repeated a warning that banks should avoid financing speculation in gold, commodities and foreign exchange markets in times of "limited resources."

"This is hardly the time to search out for exotic new lending areas or to finance speculative or purely financial activities," Volcker said.

RUSSIAN SAILOR SEEKS ASYLUM — Soviet seaman Igor Alexandrovich Ponomarenko, 19, right, is accompanied by an FBI agent to a hearing in Tampa Tuesday with U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service officials. Russian Sailor Given Asylum In U.S. After Jumping Ship

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — A young Russian sailor who jumped ship in darkness and hitchhiked 45 miles in a week-long bid for freedom, was granted asylum in the United States on Tuesday.

Igor Alexandrovich Ponomarenko, 19, was told he could remain in America after meeting with immigration officials and representatives of the Soviet Embassy in Washington.

"He felt his freedom of expression was too limited in the USSR. He would have more opportunity in the U.S.," said Joseph McFadden, director of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service in Tampa.

After the decision to grant asylum was made, Ponomarenko agreed to meet with the Soviet attaché, who interviewed Ponomarenko for 35 minutes to determine whether the decision to defect was made freely.

During that meeting, McFadden said, Ponomarenko expressed fear of religious and political persecution in the Soviet Union during the meeting with Vitaliy Pukalov, vice consul of the Soviet Embassy in Washington. The meeting with the Soviet official was also observed by representatives of the FBI and the U.S. State Department.

The FBI said Ponomarenko, a native of Odessa in the Soviet Union, refused interviews with reporters.

The tone of the conversation with the Soviet attaché was gentle, said McFadden, who also observed the discussion. But he added that the Soviet official mentioned that the defection would probably hurt Ponomarenko's parents, although McFadden said it was not said in a threatening way.

The youth said he would like to continue his naval career in an American institution.

The tall Russian with dark, wavy hair fled from Tampa after abandoning ship and hitchhiked with truckers until he bumped into a used car salesman, Byron Smiddy, who hid him for five days. Smiddy said, "My heart really went out to him."

One week ago, Ponomarenko somehow managed to slip off the phosphate freighter Krasnoya Znya in Tampa's harbor, according to Smiddy. Ponomarenko, a seaman apprentice and navigator, had been working extra duty the night of Oct. 1 and wasn't able to go ashore with other sailors. But he drew some American money from the purser anyway. And sometime after midnight, he slipped ashore alone.

Ponomarenko hooked up with a trucker hauling refrigeration equipment and got a ride from the harbor area into Tampa. There he got a lift to Brooksville, 45 miles to the north in Hernando County.

In broken English, Ponomarenko said he was Russian, had jumped ship and had studied English one hour a week for two years at the Soviet Academy of Engineering.

House Passes Funding Bill With Pay Increase

House and Senate were unable to agree on the emergency funding bill.

The House wants to scale this increase back to 5.5 percent for everyone. The Senate wants to scale it back to 5.5 percent for top bureaucrats and to zero for members of Congress.

Nothing can be done about the 12.9 percent hike that federal judges received on Oct. 1 because the Constitution prohibits reducing the pay of a sitting judge.

The House pay provision would mean that members of Congress would receive a $3,200-a-year boost over their current salary of $7,500.

The second bill passed by the Appropriations Committee would provide funds for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and the Department of Labor for the full fiscal year ending Sept. 30, 1980. It would contain the strict abortion language favored by the House — language that resulted in the current impasse.

Among departments that would be temporarily funded by the first bill are the departments of Defense, Housing and Urban Development, Agriculture, and Transportation. The legislation also would fund operations of the District of Columbia government as well as foreign assistance and military construction.

This is the second time Congress has tried to pass an emergency bill, a stop-gap measure designed to keep the government operating until regular appropriations bills can be passed.

The original bill, which included money for all of the departments not now funded, was killed by the Senate on Sept. 28 when the House insisted that no federal funds be provided for abortions unless the life of the mother were directly threatened.

The Senate wanted to keep intact existing language which allows such funding in cases of rape or incest and when the mother's health is threatened.

As a result of that impasse, the new 1980 fiscal year began Oct. 1 with more than half the government technically without funds to meet payrolls and to fund programs. Many of those departments say they will be unable to meet their payrolls or fund their programs if the impasse lasts much longer.

The Senate passed a new version of the bill last Monday, while the House was on a week-long Columbus Day recess, and various senators suggested several times that the House should cut short its recess so the issue could be resolved.

The Senate bill contains no pay raise for members of Congress, a 5.5 percent pay hike for the approximately 22,000 government executives, and more liberal language on abortion.

Author Buzzes U.N., Publisher

NEW YORK (AP) — A publicity-seeking author in a light plane circled the United Nations' neighborhood in midtown Manhattan for more than three hours Tuesday, prompting the evacuation of thousands from two U.N. buildings and the offices of his publisher.

Alarm swept the area as crowds on the streets below watched the plane wheel about at relatively low altitude in the gusty autumn sky. Emergency apparatus streamed into the East Side area in anticipation of a possible crash.

But the pilot, Robert Baudin, 61, a gray-haired, mustachioed author of an autobiography, landed his plane after 3 1/2 hours at LaGuardia Airport a few moments flying time away, its gas tank indicator hovering at empty, and told police:

"Now the book will sell!"

Later, it was learned that Baudin, who was born in the United States but reared in Australia, pulled a similar stunt about a decade ago in Sydney. And his publisher said Baudin's proposal for a second book, a murder mystery, was rejected recently because it was not "promising."

"I thought this whole thing out and I may get a little jail time but it's worth it," Baudin said later at a news conference. His pilot's license was immediately lifted and he was charged with aggravated harassment, which is punishable by no more than a year in jail.

Baudin also was charged in federal court with extortion in interstate commerce — illegally seeking gain through a flight across state lines. That charge carries a maximum penalty of 20 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

He was jailed at the Federal Correctional Center in lower Manhattan, to await a bail hearing today before a U.S. magistrate.

Baudin said the target of his aerial demonstration was not the U.N., on the East River, but the nearby building of Harcourt Brace Jovanovich, publishers last April of his autobiography, "Confessions of a Promiscuous Counterfeiter."

He told police by radio that he would put the plane in the water rather than hurt anyone," according to Sgt. Leo Ingene.

At the height of the scare, two busy arteries outside the U.N. — First Avenue and the East River Drive — were closed to traffic. Fire apparatus screamed into the area. The city sent in two mobile emergency rooms, capable of treating up to 60 persons at a time. Six ambulances were on the scene, and hospitals in the area were placed on alert.

All employees were evacuated from the Secretariat building, a 48-story glass-walled slab, and the much lower curved General Assembly building. Harcourt Brace's Third Avenue building also was evacuated.

Before Baudin took off in mid-morning from a New Jersey airport, he had a tape cassette delivered to the New York Post, but too late for authorities to be alerted and the flight prevented. The tape said in part:

"It could well be that you men who constitute the top management of Harcourt Brace Jovanovich are not aware of the fact that minor editors and others in the lower echelons are engaging in the practice of ripping off, lying to and deceiving authors or at least have done so in my case."

Later, the Post said an anonymous caller claiming to speak for Baudin told the newspaper that he wanted his book re-edited and re-issued under a new title, eliminating what he termed the original "chop job."

"I merely state these as requests," Baudin was further quoted by the caller, "but the top management of Harcourt Brace Jovanovich could well see them as demands. In their wisdom they might even come to the conclusion that if I do not get what I want I just possibly might fly through the top man's office window in an attempt at a short field landing on his desk."

"Security has advised us that a that a lunatic is flying around here and threatening to crash into the U.N. building, and for that reason we are ordering an evacuation," said a U.N. information officer, Rudolph Stagdubar after 5,000 employees had streamed into the street about 10:30 a.m.

They returned at 12:55 p.m. after police determined there was no threat by the pilot to crash his red and white, single-engine Cessna. Rather, he was described as "very pleasant" in radio conversations with the ground and with police helicopters flying herd on him.

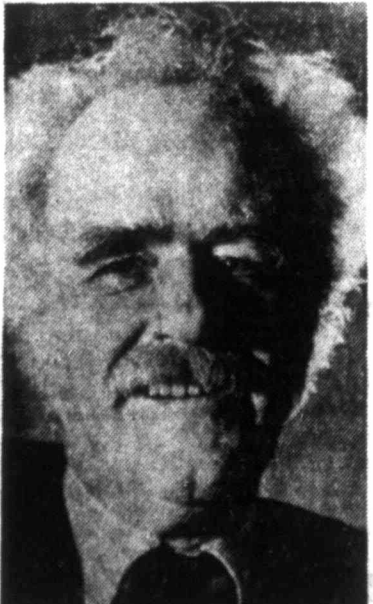

At one point, Baudin said, apparently facetiously: "If you're going to shoot me down, shoot me down into the water."

The publishing firm said it knew of no problems connected with the book or its author. Stuart Harris, director of publications, said the book described Baudin's life as a child of the depression, as a runaway who became involved in myriad troubles, many involving women, and as a pilot who took a plane aloft in Sydney in a publicity stunt 10 years ago.

"No, it wasn't a best-seller," Harris added. "It sold 5,000 or 6,000 copies."

PLANE FORCES EVACUATION — A single-engine plane, indicated by arrow, flies over an apartment building just north of the U.N. grounds Tuesday. The U.N. Secretariat and General Assembly were evacuated after a man, reportedly hoping to enhance the sale of a book he had written began buzzing the building housing his publishing firm. In the foreground are the flags and main entrance of the U.N. building. (AP Laserphoto)

W.L. Allford

Services for W. L. "Skinny" Allford, 67, of Route 1, Shallowater, will be at 3 p.m. today in W. W. Rix Chapel with the Rev. Truett White, pastor of First Baptist Church in Smyer, officiating.

Burial will be in City of Lubbock cemetery under direction of Rix Funeral Directors.

Allford died Sunday in Irving. A medical examiner ruled the death was due to natural causes.

A native of McAlester, Okla., he had lived in Shallowater since 1935, moving there from Wellington. He was a member of Hurlwood Baptist Church.

Survivors include his mother, Mrs. W.O. Allford of Shallowater; two daughters, Judy Bell and Ann Boone, both of Wilburton, Okla.; three brothers, C.C., Jack and Pete, all of Shallowater; two sisters, Mrs. T.H. Kimbrough and Mrs. W.D. Terry, both of Levelland; and three grandchildren.

Pallbearers will be Paul Perry, Fred Perry, Eugene Cain, Elma Burleson, Gayland Allford and Tommy Haywood.

Jim Bartlett

SLATON (Special) — Services for Jim Bartlett, 43, of Slaton will be at 2 p.m. Thursday in Englands Chapel with the Rev. J.T. Bolding of Lubbock and the Rev. Herb Cavener officiating.

Burial will be in Southland Cemetery under the direction of Englands Funeral Service.

Bartlett died at 10 p.m. Monday at Shannon Hospital in San Angelo. He had been hospitalized for two weeks.

He was born in Lynn County. Survivors include his mother, Mrs. W.H. (Mamie) Bartlett of Slaton; two brothers, Otis of Carlsbad, N.M., and Billy Joe of New Deal; and three sisters, Mildred Bartley of Muleshoe, Helen Rhoads of Slaton and Doris Baugh of Eustis, Fla.

Thomas Golden

Services for Thomas Golden, 83, of Golden, Colo., are pending with Sanders Funeral Home.

Golden died at 3:30 a.m. Monday in Lutheran Medical Center in Wheatridge, Colo., after a short illness.

He lived in Lubbock 10 years before moving to Golden in 1953. The retired auto mechanic was a member of Oddfellows Lodge and Rebekah Lodge.

Survivors include his wife, Florence; three sons, Norman of Oregon, Stafford of Lubbock and Darrell of Oklahoma; a daughter, Florine Gilligan of Kansas; two brothers, David and Oliver, both of Minnesota; four stepsons, Harvey Skeens, Merle Skeens, Gordon Skeens and Richard Skeens, all of Colorado; four stepdaughters, Leta Heath, Betty Hartmann and Lynn Quint, all of Colorado, and Mary Huffman of Seattle, Wash. Grandsons will serve as pallbearers.

G.W. Gunn

Services for G.W. Gunn, 39, of Odessa, will be at 2 p.m. today in Faith Temple with the Rev. E.D. Throckmorton, pastor, officiating.

Burial will be in Idalou Cemetery under direction of Rix Funeral Directors.

Gunn died at 3 p.m. Tuesday in Odessa Medical Center Hospital after a brief illness.

He was a Kent County native who attended Paint Creek High School and Howard County Junior College. He later served in the Navy, was employed by Litton Industries and farmed at Idalou. He was the former assistant manager of Furr's Cafeteria in Odessa.

Survivors include his wife, Bonnie; three stepsons, Danny Leonard of Lubbock, Scotty Leonard of Idalou, and Joe Dean Leonard of Shallowater; one brother, Clarence of Post; one sister, Marty Elliott of Abilene; and a grandmother, Bessie France of Anson.

Mrs. Carl Hereford

Services for Mrs. Carl E. Hereford, 79, of 3613 42nd St. will be at 10:30 a.m. today in Sanders Memorial Chapel with the Rev. I.D. Walker, associate pastor at First Baptist Church, officiating. He will be assisted by the Rev. J.T. Bolding, retired Baptist pastor.

Burial will be in Resthaven Memorial Park under the direction of Sanders Funeral Home.

Mrs. Hereford died about 11:30 p.m. Monday in Methodist Hospital after a short illness.

She married Carl E. Hereford in Charleston, W. Va. in 1921 and moved to Lubbock in 1936, where he served as minister of the First Baptist Church until they moved to Corpus Christi in 1946. Hereford was pastor of the First Baptist Church there until they returned to Lubbock in 1963. He died in 1968.

Mrs. Hereford was organist and choir director at First Baptist here for many years and had served as organist for Sanders Funeral Home for the past eight years.

Survivors include a daughter, Ruth Lewis of Richardson; two grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

The family suggests memorials to the Hereford Parlor at the First Baptist Church in Corpus Christi or the library fund at the Cook Memorial Baptist Church in Pineville, W. Va.

Pallbearers will be Dr. Weston Petty, John Mallory, Roe Tipton, Ernest Babs, Rex Webster, Jack Lettwich and Lattimore Ewing.

Brigitte Kushaney

BIG SPRING (Special) — Services for Brigitte E. Kushaney, 47, of Big Spring, will be at 11 a.m. Thursday in Larry D. Sheppard Funeral Home chapel, with the Rev. Kenneth Patrick, pastor of First Baptist Church, officiating.

The body will be cremated in Dallas under the direction of Rix Funeral Directors of Lubbock.

Mrs. Kushaney died at 10 a.m. Sunday in Methodist Hospital in Lubbock after an illness.

She was born in Berlin, Germany, came to the United States in 1953 and had lived in Big Spring since 1970. She was employed at the state hospital.

Survivors include three sons, John C. of Arlington, and Jeff and Jim, both of Big Spring; and a sister, Heidi Neumann of Berlin, Germany.

Hugh J. Lewis

ANDREWS (Special) — Hugh J. Lewis, 67, of Andrews died Tuesday from injuries he suffered after the road maintainer he was driving and a semi-tractor-trailer rig collided about a mile north of Andrews on Highway 385 Monday.

Services for Lewis will be at 2 p.m. today at Means Memorial United Methodist Church with the Rev. Hazel House, pastor of the Wesley Methodist Church, officiating, assisted by the Rev. Keith Wiseman, pastor.

Burial will be in Andrews Cemetery under the direction of Singleton Funeral Home.

Lewis died at 2:45 a.m. Tuesday in the cardiac care unit of Permian General Hospital in Andrews.

The traffic accident occurred about 1:50 p.m. Monday.

Lewis, who was driving the maintainer for C&R Trucking Company, suffered burns over 90 percent of his body.

The Sulphur Springs native moved from Kermit to Andrews, where he lived for the past 31 years. He was an equipment operator for Andrews County for 25 years until he retired in 1976. He belonged to Wesley Methodist Church and Oddfellows Lodge No. 91. He married Maudine Kelly on Dec. 26, 1946 in Topeka, Kan.

Survivors include his wife; two daughters, Debbie Griggs of Lubbock and Pat Stanford of Kermit; a stepmother, Mrs. Van Vanderpool of California; four sisters, Mrs. Fred Mossly of Cumby, Mrs. Earl Holcomb of Lamesa, Mrs. Raymond Gray of Fort Worth and Mrs. Leroy Byrd of Seagraves; two half-sisters, Mrs. Bill Gray and Mrs. Bob Lay, both of California; a brother, Lester, of Andrews; a half-brother, Robert, of California; five grandchildren; and three great-grandchildren.

Pallbearers will be Dub Hathcock, James Reed, Jay Mosley, Claude Lloyd, Bob Sherrard and George L. Brown. Honorary pallbearers will be all Andrews County employees, IOOF lodge members and area ranchers.

Caryl Light

LIBERAL, Kan. (Special) — Services for Caryl Light, 73, of Liberal and formerly of Plains, Tex., will be at 10:30 a.m. today in the chapel of the Miller Mortuary in Liberal.

Burial will be in Liberal Cemetery under direction of Miller Mortuary.

He died Sunday at his home. He had been under a physician's care.

A native of Liberal, he operated the Light Lumber Co. in Plains for 30 years and was a past president of the Plains Lions Club. The World War II veteran married Hazel Boling June 12, 1927 in Beaver, Okla.

Survivors include his wife; four brothers, W.D. of Lubbock, Paul of Monterey, Calif., Ed of Las Vegas, Nev., and James of Tucson, Ariz.; three sisters, Mrs. Paul Radke of Liberal, Helen Gunderson of Fallbrook, Calif., and Mrs. Eldon Mace of Breckenridge, Colo.; two grandchildren and a great-grandchild.

Graveside services for Jackie Dwain and Charles Milton Robertson, infant sons of Glen and Lisa Robertson of 3239 94th St., will be at 1 p.m. today in Resthaven Memorial Park with the Rev. J. Waid Griffin, associate pastor of First United Methodist Church, officiating.

The twins died shortly after birth in Health Sciences Center Hospital.

Survivors include their parents; a brother, Jason of the home; their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. C.M. Robertson and Mr. and Mrs. Jackie D. Drake, all of Lubbock; and their great-grandparents, Mrs. J.O. Blackburn of Lubbock, Mr. and Mrs. Jessie Drake of Littlefield and Mr. and Mrs. Homer Bond of Clarendon.

News Brief

Jeffrey Lynn Brown, 16, of Route 7, Box 943, Lubbock, was in serious condition Tuesday evening at Methodist Hospital with injuries he received Sunday in a train-motorcycle accident east of Lubbock.

Lightning packs a powerful wallop. According to National Geographic, it can deliver 100 million volts and temperatures five times hotter than the sun's surface. Basically, lightning is caused by a huge buildup of electrical charges in a thunderstorm.

Truck Haul Reported In Excess Of $2,000

The shop foreman for an east Lubbock manufacturing firm told police Tuesday that someone stole his company's pickup truck and used it to haul away more than $2,000 worth of tools.

Frank Garcia, foreman for Phares and Wilkins Manufacturing Co. at 1306 E. 34th St., told police that between 5:30 p.m. Monday and 7:30 a.m. Tuesday someone entered the business and stole $2,517 worth of tools, an undetermined amount of money from vending machines and a green First National Bank bag, and a 1977 pickup truck valued at $4,000.

Police reports indicate that the building was unlocked and that the keys to the truck were missing from the firm's office.

Police believe the stolen items were put in the truck that was then used to pull open a gate located on the east side of the company's property.

A Lubbock man, found Tuesday morning passed out and lying in the street at Brownfield Highway and Quaker Avenue, was checked into the county jail for allegedly assaulting a policeman and suspicion of public intoxication.

The 19-year-old man was found with his head resting on the curb and the rest of his body stretched out on the pavement, police said. After the man was awakened, he reportedly tried to walk away from officers, but was apprehended and placed in the patrol car.

Officer Gilliam Moody said that when he tried to take the man into the jail lobby, the suspect again tried to run off and then kicked him. Moody, in his report, stated he grabbed the man's handcuffs and hair and escorted him into the lobby.

Reports also allege the man threatened to kill the arresting officer and a citizen inside the lobby, and resisted booking procedures.

In other activity, a 17-year-old Lubbock woman suffered multiple cuts about 5 p.m. Monday when she reportedly was confronted by an angered woman at a club on East 37th Street near Quirt Avenue.

Cynthia Gail Watson of 3216 E. Seventh St., who was treated and released at Methodist Hospital, told police her assailant apparently became angry when she accidentally bumped into her at the nightclub.

She said the woman later approached her with an unknown object and began slashing her, resulting in deep cuts to the stomach and legs. Reports indicate the victim ran out of the club to escape her attacker.

A nurse at the hospital told police the woman's injuries appeared to have been caused by the end of a clothes hanger rather than by a knife.

The suspect was described as an obese black woman between 26 and 35 years old.

Tony Galbaldo of 2306 Ave. H, Apt. 24, told police he was robbed of $125 about 8 p.m. Monday by a man he had met earlier that night at a club in the 1000-block of 23rd Street.

Galbaldo said that he left the club with the man, and when they arrived at his residence, the man demanded his money. Reports indicate that when the victim refused, the bandit began hitting Galbaldo in the head.

Galbaldo said he then told the man, "I don't want to fight. I've had enough. Here, take the money." Galbaldo reportedly handed his wallet containing the cash to the robber, who went to a nearby apartment.

No arrests had been made early today in connection with the incident. The suspect was described as a Mexican-American man, between 46 and 55, wearing a white shirt and white pants.

Singer Sets Indochinese Camp Tours

HONG KONG (AP) — American folk singer Joan Baez embarked Tuesday on a tour through Indochinese refugee camps to study firsthand what she called the "massive form of holocaust going on" in Southeast Asia. She said she doesn't care what actress Jane Fonda thinks about her.

"At home in the United States, people don't really want to pay much attention" to the refugee situation, Miss Baez said at a news conference after arriving here from San Francisco.

"I think we have to really call on the wealthy nations to shell out. It's a huge disaster and people don't want to face up to it and think about it." The plight of the refugees, she added, was "a massive form of holocaust" on par with the Nazi extermination of Jews.

Miss Baez said she expected to talk to Vietnamese refugees and ask them why, "after living through Japanese invasions and famine and war ... They are leaving now."

The American folk singer, who has recently denounced Hanoi for expelling ethnic Chinese, has been criticized for those statements by Miss Fonda and other members of the Far Left.

"They feel betrayed, but I was trying to end the war for everyone who was being killed, not just for one-half" of the Vietnamese population, she said.

She said she wasn't making the trip to prove to her critics that she was right in circulating an open letter criticizing the Hanoi regime.

"I'm not really interested in the Far Left at this point, who really hate what I'm doing, and the Far Right who say 'yah, yah, we told you so, we should have stayed there and bombed the hell out of them,'" Miss Baez said.

Miss Baez said that during her travels through the area, including stops in Thailand and Malaysia where she will give a concert, she also hoped to educate Americans and others about the "faceless" land refugees from Cambodia and Laos and the famine facing those still in Cambodia.

Asked if she had ever thought there would be mass expulsions from Vietnam when she was working to halt the fighting, Miss Baez said: "I think all of us who worked to end the war in Vietnam hoped there would be some kind of relief."

She said she had been invited to make a return trip to Hanoi, which she visited as an anti-war crusader in 1972.

Body Of Executive's Son Recovered

REMINGTON, Va. (Special) — Rescue workers ended a three-day search Tuesday for Paul A. Simon, 24, of Augusta, Ga., when a Virginia State Police diver found the victim's body about a quarter mile south of Kelly's Ford in the Rappahannock River.

More than 200 rescue workers have been searching for Simon, son of Paul S. Simon, executive vice president of Augusta-based Morris Communications, since the law student's canoe overturned about a mile north of Kelly's Ford, which is five miles south of Remington, at noon Saturday.

State Trooper S.L. Crane termed the search "hazardous" because the river was higher than normal and water currents were swifter.

The hazardous water conditions and the river's large size hampered the speed of the rescue operation, he said.

State police said Simon, alone in the canoe, was not wearing a life jacket, but two companions in another canoe who were able to swim to shore, were wearing life preservers.

Although Simon's body was not found until Tuesday, rescuers found his canoe Sunday about six miles south of Kelly's Ford.

The body of the third-year University of Virginia law student was taken to Fauquier County Hospital in Warrenton, and is expected to be transferred to Pottee Funeral Home in Augusta this week.

Morris Communications publishes the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal and newspapers in Amarillo; Augusta, Athens and Savannah, Ga.; and Juneau, Alaska.

City police Tuesday continued to look for 28-year-old Joseph Michael DePauw, who was charged Monday with the murder of Lubbock businessman Oland Kenneth Anderson.

The Lubbock man, named in the first degree murder count late Monday afternoon, may have left town, authorities say.

DePauw, who was being sought by police late Tuesday, is described as a white male, 6 feet tall, 175 pounds, with shoulder-length brown hair and a thin mustache. According to a spokesman with the Lubbock County Criminal District Attorney's office, DePauw is considered dangerous and anyone with information about his whereabouts should contact police.

ACLU: Church Built Illegally

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The American Civil Liberties Union said Tuesday "the city illegally built a church" when it constructed a platform for Pope John Paul II's Mass here last week.

"The purpose was exclusively religious," ACLU attorney Henry Sawyer told U.S. District Judge Raymond Broderick, asking the judge to order the Archdiocese of Philadelphia to pay for the platform — which cost more than $200,000.

He said the use of city funds violated the First Amendment of the U.S. Constitution, which guarantees a separate church and state.

Broderick, who took the case under advisement, directed the city to provide all bills connected with the construction within 10 days.

Mayor Frank L. Rizzo had directed the platform be built over a fountain on Logan Circle, outside the Cathedral of Saints Peter and Paul, and said it was a legitimate city expense in welcoming the pope as a head of state.

But Sawyer said, "under U.S. law the pope is not a chief of state, he is a religious leader" and "you cannot spend public funds to support a religion."

City Solicitor Sheldon Albert said of the 41-foot-high platform, "It was constructed for safety, for security and for visibility by a million persons."

He said the sole purpose "was to allow all citizens to see a world-renowned

Lifeless Body Of San Francisco Sniper Found Hanged In Cell

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Civic Center sniper Wayne Cullinane hanged himself in his jail cell before dawn Tuesday, three days after he terrorized downtown San Francisco with random shooting in a 23-hour siege.

The lifeless body of the 22-year-old Rhode Island native was discovered shortly after 6:30 a.m., dangling from a strip of bedsheet tied off on the highest bars of his cell, according to the sheriff's department. The body was found by a jail trusty delivering breakfast who called a medical attendant to cut him down.

Sheriff Eugene Brown, appearing nervous, told a news conference Cullinane was last checked at 3:15 a.m. or 3:30 a.m., three hours before discovery of the body. Brown's departmental policy is that inmates get checked every hour. Brown, who as sheriff is responsible for jail security, refused to answer repeated questions on why Cullinane wasn't checked hourly.

Brown said his psychiatric team had decided that Cullinane "was not suicidal." He said he did not believe any departmental negligence was involved in the suicide "so far."

Police said Cullinane's maximum-security isolation cell was around the corner from a medical station. The cell, they said, was not visible without walking at least 10 yards down a corridor.

After Cullinane's arrest Saturday afternoon, psychologist Dr. Chris Hatcher, who headed the team of negotiators trying to get Cullinane to let his 55-year-old female hostage go and give himself up, warned: "He's more suicidal than homicidal."

Coroner Boyd Stephens reported an autopsy disclosed asphyxiation by strangulation sometime between 4:30 a.m. and 5 a.m. He indicated the prisoner should have been under constant observation since inmates such as Cullinane often tempt suicide during their first days in jail.

Cullinane had been due for arraignment Wednesday on nine charges including kidnapping, robbery and assault with a deadly weapon — a .30 caliber carbine. He had been held on $500,000 bail.

He fired more than 50 shots from a top floor of an office building at busy Ninth and Market Streets between 5:15 p.m. Friday and 4:10 p.m. Saturday, virtually paralyzing a 16-block area around the structure.

Bullet fragments struck Edward Rikula, 49, who was hospitalized in good condition. He was the only person struck by gunfire.

When police burst into the barricaded suite, they found Cullinane asleep behind the door. His hostage, secretary Chiyo Tashiro, was sleeping on a couch.

The sniper made a variety of demands, including "an end to oppression" and a $1 million food program for needy children.

Eight Minority Members Join Government Panel Directors

By DEBBI STALTER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

All four Lubbock minority representatives were approved to serve on the South Plains Association of Governments board of directors Tuesday, even though Lubbock County is no longer a part of the council of governments.

Four other minority representatives from areas outside of Lubbock also were added to the board.

One of the Lubbock representatives, Bert McWilliams, was named to take over as fourth vice president of the organization. The position had been left vacant by Lubbock County Commissioner Jim Lancaster when the commissioners voted recently to withdraw.

On a recommendation from the executive committee, board members unanimously voted to let the four minority representatives serve from the City of Lubbock, nullifying the question of whether the two county representatives would qualify for membership on the board.

Those representatives include McWilliams, Bidal Agero, Joan Ervin and Blas Mojica. McWilliams, a counselor for the Lubbock County Mental Health-Mental Retardation Center, won out for the fourth vice president position in a 13-9 vote over Crosbyton Mayor Pro Tem A.F. Ogle.

Also approved for membership on the board were the four other minority representatives from areas surrounding Lubbock.

They include Silbano Garcia of Morton, representing Bailey, Lamb, Cochran and Yoakum counties; Onofre Hinojosa of Plainview, representing Hale County; Dario Rendon of Anton, representing Hockley and Terry counties; and Benjamin Vera of Crosbyton, representing Crosby, Dickens, Lynn, Motley, King and Floyd counties.

The eight minority membership positions were added to the board in September in order to qualify this area for Economic Development Administration funding.

Of that number, two minorities were to be elected to the governmental panel's executive committee. With McWilliams' election as fourth vice president, a second committee member was needed, and the minority group elected Vera to that seat.

The minorities' membership on the board is effective immediately. Mojica and others addressed the board, thanking the members for the chance to have a voice in their dealings.

"My objective is not to see how many people I can be against," he said, adding that he does not want to change the system, but instead be able to have a vote in government affecting minority groups.

Board President Medlin Carpenter also had comments on the minorities' inclusion on the board, saying, "I think this move will not only benefit SPAG, but all the communities in this area. The integrity and class of the people elected is beyond reproach."

Carpenter had fought for minority membership to get economic development funds for the 15-county region.

LCC Symposium Will Feature One-Man Show

Actor-writer Rob Inglis will present a one-man show, "Shakespeare in Persons," for Lubbock Christian College's Freshman English Symposium at 7 p.m. Monday in Moody Auditorium.

The symposium is sponsored by the LCC English Department and the Center for Business and Economic Development, and the public is invited to attend free of charge.

The show links Shakespeare's life with the social and theatrical backgrounds of the times, from his birth to his death, drawing on the sonnets, plays and the narrative poems "Venus and Adonis" and the "Rape of Lucrece" to illustrate a chronological development.

Inglis, who has written numerous plays for British and Canadian television including "Voyage of the Endeavor" and "The Hands," also has appeared in stage productions of Shakespeare and other classic novels.

"Shakespeare in Persons" will touch on such items as the formative influences that gave the playwright awareness, sensitivity, ambition and skill.

Commission Hopeful Feels 'Anti-Texas Bias' Evident

Texas Railroad Commission candidate Buddy Temple of Diboll Tuesday said there is an "anti-Texas bias" in Washington that elected officials of the state should spend more time in Washington combating.

The recently announced candidate from East Texas criticized his probable opponent, Commissioner John Poerner, for not opposing the doubling of the railroad tariff on coal-hauling from the Northwest into Texas.

"It's an outrage, and members of the railroad commission ought to be talking about it," Temple said of the $8-to-$17-per-ton increase. "If I were there, I would be talking about it."

"There is a very strong anti-Texas bias in Washington. There are a lot of people in Washington who figure that if a producing state like Texas wants something, it must be bad. And that's not true."

Temple, 37, a four-term state representative and board chairman of Exeter Investment Co., said in a noon Tuesday news conference at South Park Inn that he has been traveling the state since June 1 to build campaign support.

His official announcement was made Oct. 1 in Lufkin.

Asked what role he thinks nuclear energy should play in meeting future energy needs, Temple said nuclear energy "should play whatever role it's economically feasible for it to play" after the necessary safety requirements are satisfied.

He said public safety is the first consideration and that nuclear plants can be made safe, but he said the economic feasibility of plants for which all safety precautions are taken is still a question.

Temple, son of Time Inc. board vice chairman Arthur Temple Jr., said a railroad commissioner having vast knowledge of the oil and gas industry is less

LCC To Host High School Seniors In Saturday Program

Chapel services with Wally Wilkerson, youth minister at the Southside Church of Christ in Fort Worth, will begin activities Saturday at Lubbock Christian College's annual Fall High School Day.

Registration for the one-day event begins at 9 a.m. for an expected crowd of 800 to 1,200 high school seniors, according to Director of Admissions John King.

A chapel service will begin at 10 a.m. with Alan Rhodes, president of the LCC Student Senate, delivering the welcome speech. A 30-minute concert by LCC's combined choruses, directed by Dr. Wayne Hinds and Charles Cox, will be held in addition to Wilkerson's talk.

The group "Montana" will present a concert at 11:15 a.m.

All students will attend the LCC-Sul Ross football game at 2 p.m. at Coronado Field.

Activities following the game include academic and financial aid counseling at the C.L. Kay Christian Development Center at 5:30 p.m., LCC's fall musical "Hello, Dolly" at 7 p.m. and a 9:30 p.m. devotional will close the day's activities.

Persons wishing more information should contact John King at 792-3221, extension 212.

Managerial Attacks Lead to 61 Firings

TURIN, Italy (AP) — The Fiat car manufacturing company fired 61 workers Tuesday and company sources said the decision was made in response to terrorist and vandal attacks against Fiat executives and foremen.

A company source who declined to be identified said the decision was in answer to "the daily use of threats, of Mafia-style warnings, of reprisal and physical and moral violence." Many of the incidents allegedly occurred during strikes and wildcat stoppages.

Union leaders criticized the decision sharply. Those fired were blue-collar workers.

important than "to use the political side of the office" on a national scale.

He said the railroad commission has enough industry knowledge in its 600 employees that a commissioner does not need to be an oil and gas expert.

"The railroad commission can have a greater influence than just issuing drilling permits," he said.

"We've got to use the weight of the office to change things," he said, adding that commission members should develop contacts and influence in Washington so that federal regulations adversely affecting Texas industry and consumers may be effectively opposed.

Temple has been a state representative since 1972. He was one of the representatives who supported an unsuccessful bill in the past legislative session to change the name of the railroad commission to the Texas Commission on Energy and Transportation.

In addition to being board chairman of Exeter, which has bank and real estate holdings throughout the state, he is on the boards of nine other companies and financial institutions, including a Time-life subsidiary, Temple-Eastex, that has timber, wood processing, mort-

Nursing Staff Shortage Worries Medical School

A major casualty of the employee exodus at Health Sciences Center Hospital has been the nursing staff — and those nurses who are left are working double and split shifts.

In a meeting of the Lubbock County Hospital District Board of Managers on Monday, representatives from both Brookwood Management Services and the Texas Tech medical school expressed concern over the growing nursing shortage. They warned that the situation could get critical if the present rate of attrition continues without a major effort to hire more nurses.

Hospital administrators have authorized the filling of some available nursing positions, which is noteworthy in light of the continued efforts to trim down the payroll in other departments. But the general consensus among medical school staff members is that there has been enough of a departure already to begin affecting patient care.

"We're skating on the same kind of thin ice as we were when the hospital opened," hospital chief of staff Dr. Bill Holmes said after Monday's meeting. If they can't take care of patients, he said, the teaching program doesn't matter.

Holmes met last week with the executive committee of the medical school staff, revealing two levels of concern. The medical school is losing some faculty members as a result of the turmoil within the hospital, he said, but the medical school faculty and staff are also very concerned about patient care.

"Our concern is that we get back into the recruiting phase," Holmes said. "This could get us into some really serious trouble."

"People are being shaken up and driven off" because of the financial problems at the hospital, Holmes said, putting the staff back in the same situation they faced shortly after the hospital opened in February 1978.

Six months after the hospital opened, administrators were forced to recruit nurses from overseas to work at the under-staffed hospital. Officials called the overseas recruitment a "stop-gap" measure to allow the hospital to open more beds, knowing they would ultimately have to rely on American nurses for the work force supply.

And officials always believed part of the nursing shortage would be relieved when the school of nursing was producing home-grown employees for the hospital. But Texas Gov. Bill Clements vetoed the legislature's appropriation of funds for the school in the last legislative session.

Holmes seemed pleased at the outcome of Monday's LCHD board meeting despite the rather harsh words that passed between several board members and Brookwood representatives on the subject of staffing. The exchange is likely to result in greater understanding of the nursing shortage problem, he said.

"I have the feeling we were able to get across some points," Holmes commented. He speculated that board members could probably be persuaded to spend some of the hospital's rather scarce funds for nurses.

However, the hospital's nurse recruiting office was a casualty of the staff cutbacks at the hospital. The director of that department is still employed at the hospital, but in another position — and Holmes is calling for a positive campaign to recruit nurses.

"It does not appear that hard to find a job in this town if you're a nurse," Holmes warned.

Jana Morton suffered from meningitis and encephalitis when she was just 10 months old. Now at age 3, she has been diagnosed with cerebral palsy, with retardation.

However, Jana's mother, Cindy, knows her daughter is happy and is learning at the Lubbock Day Nursery, number one.

The three nurseries and a fourth, due to open in October, are supported by the United Way. The Lubbock Day Care Association will receive a combined total of $166,047 from the United Way's 1980 goal of $1,803,752.

Cindy and her two children have had a rocky time in their young lives. When Jana became sick, the doctor advised Cindy to quit her job of three years, which was the sole support of the family, to give the child constant care.

The stress put on the young mother, then 24, was more than she could bear and put undue pressures on her son, 4 year old, Tim. It was recommended that Tim attend the day nursery and give Cindy a chance to care for her desperately ill child.

Now, Jana attends the nursery with her brother for a half day and spends the other half of the day at Ballenger school.

According to the center's director at day nursery number one, Jane Morris, Jana is the first handicapped child they have taken care of. Miss Morris says Jana is a mobile child, keeping up with the other children by crawling, makes sounds but is unable to say words and is very expressive in her facial features. She also said, that Jana is very good with the other children at the center.

Currently, all the staff at the day nursery are trained to work with the handicapped and the nursery hopes to take in more handicapped children. Cindy said the fact that the nursery has taken Jana into its program has been an immeasurable help to her and hopes it will be to other parents. She said she was able to go back to school and get her high school diploma while the nursery kept Jana and now she works with another agency in Lubbock involved with assisting children with learning problems due to handicapped conditions.

"I've really become interested in working with handicapped children," Cindy said. "I think it's good for normal kids to be with handicapped children. When they get to know them then it's no big deal for them anymore."

Cindy said she feels it is good for her child to be in groups with non-handicapped children for her learning process and that the staff at the nursery have been a tremendous help to her daughter. "They've been great. They're really trying to educate here and it's been a learning experience," she said.

According to Miss Morris, the requirements for enrolling a child in the day care program are handled on a priority basis. First the parents must be working, in school, in a job training program or medically unable to keep a child. In taking the child, the priorities are protective services for abused or neglected children, handicapped parents, children in the Aid to Families with Dependent Children program and income guidelines.

Miss Morris said the purposes of the four nurseries is to "provide an educational and supportive curriculum for children while they're away from their parents during the day."

She said the children receive one meal and two snacks during the day, which meet the minimum daily nutritional requirements.

In addition, the children are provided with an annual physical examination and a dental examination. Immunizations are required and are kept by the center.

The nurseries accept children ranging in age from 6 weeks to 6 years and provided well-planned activities and pre-school instruction.

The center also gives the children a chance for both indoor and outdoor activities and takes them on frequent field trips to interesting places around the city.

The center is open Monday through Friday from 6:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. and is licensed for an enrollment of 374 at the four centers.

The Lubbock Day Care Association is among 34 United Way agencies.

NEW OFFICERS — The Caprock China Club recently elected new club officers for 1979-80. Those officers are, from left, Mrs. H.D. DEAR HELOISE:

We love tart apples, and in the fall buy them by the bushel. My hint is not good to use with sweet apples, but whatever amount of tart ones you buy you can still do this.

When I use them peeled, I save all the peelings and cores and put them in the freezer in a plastic bag. It's no trouble to add to them each time I use an apple.

When I get a bag full I put them in a pan and cover with water. Cook them until soft, then strain the juice into a freezer carton.

When enough juice has accumulated for apple jelly I add sugar and pectin to it (follow the recipe on the box) and have a bonus which might have been otherwise gone with the garbage.

For mint jelly, add a teaspoon of mint extract to two cups of apple juice, plus the usual amount of sugar and pectin, of course. — C.F.

What a profitable, money-saving idea! A hug around the neck for passing it on. — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

I like to separate my cafe-type curtains on my windows in the kitchen to let the cool breezes in as well as more light, but I always had trouble with the curtains sliding back together.

One day while shopping, I noticed a package of plastic clothespins in four pruned colors so I bought a package and pinned them on the rod, one pin on each side of the opened curtain.

They held the curtains back beautifully and looked so pretty. My friends who have seen them thought I was so clever I should write Heloise. Maybe someone else could use this hint, too. — H.W.

I already know of one who's "gonna" use it. Who, you ask? Me! — Heloise
P.S. I'd say you have smart friends!

HINTS FROM HIM

DEAR HELOISE:

Just read your request for ways to recycle old business cards. Here is a few I've found useful.

Use them as bookmarkers. (This could also serve to identify the owner of the book.)

Tape inside luggage or other personal items for identification purposes.

Since these cards are of a uniform size, turn them over and you have a nice square, sturdy piece of blank paper to use as jar labels, etc.

Staple two together on three sides and you have a convenient carrier for postage stamps. If you're handy with a sewing machine, these could even be stitched together.

Hope these tips keep someone from tossing their cards out, thinking they are no longer usable. I'm sure there must be many other ways to use them as well. Thanks for listening. — Joe F.

Thank you, kind sir! Loved hearing from you — and your hints! Drop in anytime with more such goodies. — Hugs, Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

Tissue boxes come in such a variety of colors and patterns they make attractive containers for gifts of fruit or jars of food.

Cut out the top, line with foil or plastic wrap and tie a contrasting ribbon around for stability. Add a perky bow and you have a nice gift for shut-ins or convalescents. — V.M.F.

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

I know you've seen them advertised. Sometimes they're called lounging sacks. Other times they're referred to as body quilts.

Whatever, you can't open a magazine these days without seeing a family sitting around the living room in plaid sleeping bags zipped up to their throats with only their eyes peeking out. According to the blurb next to them, this is what the well-dressed family will be wearing during the coming winter's fuel crisis.

Okay, forget the fact that it will take you 32 ring-a-dings to reach the telephone. Forget that no matter how hard you try, you'll still look as sexy as an unmade bed. Forget what it's going to sound like when your son answers the door and says, "Mom can't come to the door now. She has a bag on."

Just ask yourself, "Is this the answer?"

This is not the first energy crisis I have lived through. When I was ten years old and coal was 50 cents a bag, a decision was made that winter to shut off all the rooms and heat only the kitchen. That decision had an unparalleled effect on my life. Not only did it build character, it unearthed talents I never knew I possessed.

I discovered in the mornings I could run the 50 yards from my bedroom to the kitchen in an unprecedented two and one half seconds (the record that year was five seconds) WITHOUT MY FEET TOUCHING THE FLOOR.

When I had to practice piano in an unheated room, I could play the Minute Waltz in 26 seconds.

I could stand on a kitchen chair (heat rises) and eat breakfast and carry on a conversation with people on the floor like a normal person.

I could jump under the covers of my bed and emerge three minutes later fully clothed without so much as putting a wrinkle in my skirt.

Whenever the doorbell rang on the Siberian side of the house, I could go in to self-hypnosis and feign deafness. To this day, I never hear a doorbell ring.

Oh, sure, we could sit around next winter like quilted mermaids, but where is the adventure of getting to the sealed-off room, the challenge of running through the darkness, dodging sofas and chairs, creating smoke when your warm breath meets the cold air and finally reaching the room with the oven on?

You can't get that kind of a thrill sitting around in the sack.

who write to you. I know the answer — but I need to have you agree with me so I can show the column to someone to prove I am right. The "someone" in my case is an aunt.

Mother has a birthmark on her neck. It is a large brown spot that looks like a mouse. Aunt Mae insists Mama was "marked" because Grandma was frightened by a rat that ran across her feet when she was pregnant with my mother. Aunt Mae also insists the reason I blush easily is because my mother's apron caught fire when she was carrying me. Please comment. — Caldwell, Idaho, Reader

Dear Caldwell: Stories about "marking" unborn children persist although there is no scientific evidence. Showing this column to Aunt Mae won't change her mind. Superstitious people are beyond reach.

Dear Ann Landers: What should a mother do when she finds pornographic material hidden in the bedroom of a 19-year-old son? Does this indicate perversion?

I was shocked at the pictures in the magazines (I didn't know such filth existed), and now I'm at a loss to know how to deal with it.

My son is intelligent, a good student, has no steady girl but enjoys socializing. Please respond soon because I am — Concerned In Macon, Ga.

Dear Macon: Do nothing. Say nothing. Dirty pictures have been around for a long time, and there is no evidence that interest in pornography is waning. Hopefully your son will outgrow his need for this kind of stimulation.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I read in the paper that a 14-year-old girl whose grandfather and uncle died from Huntington's disease (her mother has it now) wants to be sterilized so she will not risk passing it on to future generations. I admire the girl's judgment. My friend does not agree — on religious grounds.

Please tell me something about Huntington's disease. There seems to be so little information around. If it's as horrible as it sounds, people should be better informed. Also, do you think the government should automatically sterilize people who have inherited diseases so they can't pass them on? — Walnut Creek Inquiry

Dear W.C. Inq.: I am not in favor of the government "automatically" sterilizing anybody. This should be a personal and private decision.

As for Huntington's disease, it is a devastating, inherited illness that affects the nervous system. Symptoms usually do not appear until the person is 35 or 40 years of age, although they can show up much earlier.

Victims lose control of their facial and body movements, one muscle at a time. They lose their balance and fall. They suddenly flail around, which can be embarrassing. In time, this insidious disease can create severe emotional problems, depression and violent behavior. It cripples, then kills.

About 25,000 Americans have this illness, and the chances for passing it on are 50-50. Anyone who wants to learn more about Huntington's disease or help support research should write to either, or both: Hereditary Disease Foundation, 9701 Wilshire Blvd., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212 — National Huntington's Disease Assn., 1441 Broadway, New York, N.Y. 10018. (P.S. Remember that beautiful actress Jennifer Jones? She has virtually devoted her life to helping victims of this dreaded disease. An orchid to that dear woman.)

Dear Ann Landers: Like many others

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

The modern tendency in bidding is to bid suits up the line. That is, when holding two four-card suits and hearing your partner bid, to announce your cheapest suit first.

South was no slavish follower of this tradition. He bid his strong four-card suit immediately. After hearing North's jump raise in spades, South cue-bid his ace of diamonds. North in turn cue-bid the ace of hearts and after Blackwood, South bid the slam.

South won the opening trump lead and surveyed his prospects. Slam was an excellent proposition. If the hearts broke 3-3, dummy's club loser could be discarded on the 13th heart. Even if hearts did not divide favorably declarer would then have the option of playing either East or West for the queen of clubs.

Declarer drew trump in three rounds and then played the ace, king and another heart. East won the third round with the 10 and played the jack, which was ruffed in dummy.

Declarer first played the ace and king of diamonds and then ruffed a diamond before deciding which opponent to play for the club queen.

The club play now had become a sure thing. East had shown up with two spades, four hearts, six diamonds and therefore only one club. When South cashed his ace of clubs and the queen did not appear from East, it was a certainty to take the finesse through West.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY DR. PAUL G. DONOHUE

ORGANIZERS — Over 2,000 persons from all over Texas are expected to attend the 23rd Annual Convention of the Texas Personnel and Guidance Association that begins today in the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center. Instrumental in organizing the conference are, from left, Gertrude Miller, hospitality chairman, Hampton Anderson, printing, and Nancy Phillips, registration. (Staff Photo by Gary Davis)

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have had a series of spine fractures of late, all caused by minor lifting, bending, etc. Doctors tell me I have osteoporosis. They say that at 59 I have the spine of a person over 70. Vitamin D has been recommended, also sodium fluoride, which is supposed to harden my bones. A friend's doctor told her I should take calcium, or is it "Calcimide"? Is there value to these treatments? Will exercise help? Please discuss osteoporosis. — Mrs. C.V.W.

Unfortunately, our bodies do not come pre-shrunk. So we shrink with the years.

Osteoporosis is loss of bone tissue. It happens to everyone, but for women the loss is sooner and more pronounced. The human skeleton achieves its greatest density at age 25 and generally is able to carry our body weight efficiently for another quarter of a century. Women past 50 begin to lose about 5 of a percent of their bone substance yearly. In men the process begins later, at about 65. The normal woman of 90 may have lost as much as 20 percent of her bony skeleton.

Osteoporosis is an intensification of this normal process. The rate at which bone substance (calcium, phosphorus, etc.) is lost may double. If this continues, something has to give, and what often gives is the spinal column. This leads to severe back pain and relative ease of bone fracture in many women in later life.

Osteoporosis seems to be less of a problem for people who have exercised regularly, but this does not mean exercise is a treatment once you have it. The bones, as we've seen, are "brittle," and have to be treated accordingly. Too strenuous exercise can cause problems. Back braces, when used, are worn only briefly. Constant use can make the spine even weaker.

Some drugs help some people, but they should always be taken under a doctor's advice and supervision. Sodium fluoride has been tried because it is believed to be taken up by the bones to make them stronger. Female hormones (estrogen) have been tried on the theory that since the problem is more prevalent after menopause there is some connection between osteoporosis and estrogen deficiency. Calcium and vitamin D have been given to help maintain bone strength. Even though these are available to the public without prescription they should not be taken without a doctor's approval. I believe the product you refer to in your letter is "Calcitonin." It is an experimental drug that prevents bone loss.

The real cause of osteoporosis is not known. It is probably related to that catch-all diagnosis — aging. Getting older may have some rewards. Osteoporosis is not one of them.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am a 54-year-old male who weighs close to 300 pounds. For the last seven weeks I have watched my calorie counter guide and see to it that I do not take more than 500 to 800 calories a day. I have not lost a single pound. This no weight loss worries me. — F.K.

Wait a minute. It's very hard to be on less than 800 calories a day and not lose weight. Seven weeks of this would make you a medical wonder. Either your calorie counter guide is off or your scale is. Anyway, I'd have to see it to believe it. Keep an accurate record of EVERYTHING that you put in your mouth for one week, not just what goes in, but the amount. I promise that I will answer if you send me that information.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have a problem with being tired all the time. At the end of the month when it's time for my period it's worse and my legs are heavy and cramp so bad I can hardly walk. My mother said it's poor circulation or from losing too much blood due to a bladder condition. When I hold my urine my bladder hurts and there is blood passed. Please give me some advice on how I can help myself. — Miss Y.S.

There is no way you can help yourself. Blood in the urine calls for a doctor's evaluation — with you present, not by mail. On top of your obvious menstrual problems you may be anemic.

Dear Dr. Donohue: What is the best thing for lumbago, which my mother is always complaining about. — K.L.

Lumbago is not a disease, but a general term that signifies low back pain. The term is not a truly medical one, but the derivation of it involves the "lumbus" section of the spinal cord. For most minor spinal complaints like your mother's, simple rest and hot soaks are usually sufficient treatment. If getting off her feet for a few days doesn't help, then she needs a through back examination to determine a more precise diagnosis than "lumbago."

You can lose weight if you really want to! The booklet, "Lost Secrets of Reducing," tells you how — naturally and without gimmicks — to the level best suited to your individual needs. For a copy write to Dr. Donohue, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Pastoral Counselor Group Holds Annual Conference

The annual conference of the Southwest Region of the American Association of Pastoral Counselors will meet Friday and Saturday in the First Christian Church.

Small group workshops will allow for sharing of experiences. Leaders will come from the membership of the regional association.

Topics for workshops include the following: Marriage Enrichment for a Local Church, led by Roger M. Anderson; The Bi-Polar Personality Inventory, led by Hardy Clemons; Coping with Stress, led by William E. Denham; Family Sculpting: A Versatile Therapeutic Modality, led by Robert E. Elliott; Love or Illusion: A Process of Marital Counseling, led by Harville Hendrix; Biblical Families — Psychic Historical Perspective, led by Howard Hovde; Personal Spirituality and Spiritual Direction led by James R. Laurie, and Group Therapy with Persons in Chronic Pain led by John Schaefer.

The American Association of Pastoral Counselors, of which this regional group is a part, is a professional organization formed in 1964 to bring standards, and order and communication to the expanding field of pastoral counseling.

More than 40 percent of people seeking help turn first to ministers, according to the Rev. Charles Darwin, executive director of Lubbock's Crossroad Pastoral Counseling Center. Seminars such as this weekend event are important for the continuing growth and development of these front-line counselors.

With referrals to and in cooperation with other helping professionals, the pastoral counselor becomes an integral part of the health care team. In most cases psychiatrists and psychologists are consultants to pastoral counseling centers. The pastoral counselor is also often included as an integral part of the mental health team.

MISCELLANY

The first daytime course in floral design will be offered at South Plains College in Lubbock beginning Monday. The two-week class will meet from 2-5 p.m. Mondays and Wednesdays.

Taught by Betty Jennings, the course will cover only dried arrangements and silk flowers. Students must furnish their own materials. Training will be given in establishing basic lines of design and in learning to use accessory materials. Persons may register by calling 747-8111 or coming to the campus at 1302 Main St.

Kathleen Usry Radinsky received her law degree from the University of Denver Law School in June. She passed the bar exam Sept. 28. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R.S. Usry of Lubbock.

Lubbock Welcome Wagon Club will meet at 9:30 a.m. Thursday at Christ Lutheran Church. Guest speaker will be Yvonne Faulks of the district attorney's office, who will discuss legal concerns of women.

The Lubbock public schools are encouraging citizens to participate in a course offered by the Junior League of Lubbock. The course is entitled "Volunteer Career Development: A Self-Management Process." It will be taught by trained volunteers from the Junior League.

Volunteer Career Development is a process conceived to professionalize volunteerism. It enables participants to identify their current interests and abilities, to assess their need for future skills and to set goals and objectives for themselves.

Volunteer Career Development will be offered through the YWCA Oct. 12 and Oct. 19 from 9:30 — 11:45 a.m. There will be no charge for the course but there will be a $2 charge for a workbook. Registration may be made by calling the YWCA.

Retirement Account Gives Tax Deferred Pension

By GHITA LEVINE, Women's News Service

Fifty million Americans are eligible for significant tax savings, yet less than three million are taking advantage of them.

Are you among the sensible few, or are you losing out on a potentially lucrative benefit?

The wealthy have had tax shelters for years, now the ordinary individual has them too," says Edwin Klose, Philadelphia financial adviser and consultant to the Maryland Credit Union League.

What the ordinary individual has coming to him (but is not using) is something called the Individual Retirement Account, IRA, a creation of the 1974 federal tax reforms to help people build up retirement savings by tax incentives.

Money put into an IRA is not tax free but tax deferred, which means taxes on the money are not paid until you start drawing out the funds later in life. Interest accumulates on a larger sum of money, money that has not been reduced by taxation, and by the time you start drawing from your IRA, between age 59 and one-half and 72, most people are in a considerably lower income bracket and so the tax bite is a good deal smaller.

The result is an enormous saving. Andrew Tobias, author of "The Only Investment Guide You'll Ever Need," shows that someone who puts $1,000 annually into an IRA account for 40 years at 8 percent interest, will have an investment in his IRA of $417,417 versus the same sum reduced by taxes and put into regular savings account of $94,925!

IRA's can be saved like most regular investments, leading Ed Klose to rave that "IRA's are the most flexible personal financial tool ever invented."

Money may be invested with banks, savings and loans, credit unions, annuities with insurance firms, mutual funds, even in stocks and a special retirement bond Brokerage firms funnel the money to a bank which acts as custodian.

Who, precisely, may have an IRA? Here are some examples to check.

1. Anyone who does not have a pension where he works, or who does not actively participate in the company's pension plan for any number of reasons (new with the firm, for example) may open his own IRA plan. Up to 15 percent of your income, with a maximum of $1,500 a year, may go into that IRA.

2. Since most women do not participate in pension plans (a bitter commentary on our society) women are especially prime candidates for an IRA. Check with your employer, your bank or with the Internal Revenue Service.

3. Retired workers who may actually be collecting a pension from their former employer can even start an IRA if they have another full or part-time job!

You may be able to deduct up to 15 percent of your new earnings, before taxes, and stash it away for when you really stop working.

4. Here's another. A worker may add an extra $250 a year to his IRA if his wife is not working. This benefit works in reverse, of course, if the wife has an IRA and the husband is unemployed.

Pending in Congress is something called the Homemaker IRA which would allow a husband to put a full $1,500 annually into an IRA for his non-working wife so that she can have her own pension. He may do this whether or not he is eligible for an IRA himself.

5. Anyone who receives a lump sum of money from a profit-sharing plan, a tax-sheltered annuity or a lump-sum pension payment (this includes many teachers and city employees) may now put the entire amount directly into an IRA Rollover. It's called a rollover account because the money moves from one place to the other still without any taxes being taken out.

Rollovers may go into large sums of money (no limit on how much can be put in, except it must be a single payment). Like the regular IRA, you draw the money only as needed and pay taxes only on this withdrawal. The rest you leave to grow at a higher rate than a normal savings plan because this one is tax-sheltered.

6. Widows who receive a lump-sum death benefit from a corporate pension program may now roll that into an IRA (the rule took effect in January, 1979). Ordinarily, a widow would pay taxes on the money, then invest the balance. With an IRA she wouldn't pay taxes until she draws it out a bit at a time, leaving the rest to compound interest.

Weddings

SMITH—OHNEMUS

SAN ANTONIO (Special) — Rachel Helen Smith and Maj. Tom F. Ohnemus were married Friday in a 5-30 p.m. ceremony in St. Benedict's Catholic Church. The Rev. Dennis C. Darilek officiated.

The bride is a daughter of Gertrude Smith of Dearborn, Mich. and John M. Smith of Medford, Ore. Parents of the bridegroom are Virginia Milam Ohnemus of Lubbock and Frank Ohnemus of Kerville.

Honor attendants were Sue Ann Smith of Dearborn, Mich., sister of the bride, and Capt. John Savage.

Following a wedding trip to Philadelphia, the couple will live in Mexico City.

Expect something beautiful.

COMPLETE STOCK LIST, INDEX

Stocks Take Severe Drop

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market took its steepest drop in more than five years Tuesday in a day-long slide blamed on spiraling interest rates and fears of a deepening recession.

Bank stocks, savings and loans and other financial issues came under particular pressure amid fears of a credit squeeze.

But blue-chip industrial and transportation stocks also tumbled, as the selling swept into virtually every corner of the market.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial fell 26.45 to 857.50, marking its largest loss since it tumbled 26.90 points on Jan. 9, 1974, in the midst of the last recession and the Arab oil embargo.

The record decline was 38.33 points on Oct. 28, 1929, during the Great Crash that preceded the Depression.

The daily count on the New York Stock Exchange showed the most one-sided tally in modern memory, with 1,768 declines and only 73 stocks gaining ground.

Big Board volume came to a 55.56 million shares, the heaviest total this year and the fourth largest ever at the exchange.

The apparent catalyst for the selloff was the decision by many of the nation's banks to raise their prime lending rates from 13 1/2 to 14 1/2.

New York (AP)—Tuesday's national prices for New York Stock Exchange issues as of NYSE close. Prices and volume consolidated for securities also traded on other markets.

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

By DUANE HOWELL

DECIDING WHETHER TO APPLY HARVEST-AID chemicals to High Plains cotton is being complicated this year by the weather, says a report from Dr. James Supak, cotton agronomist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service at Lubbock.

The chemicals "condition" cotton by reducing foliage and plant moisture that otherwise would interfere with harvesting operations. In areas such as this where cotton is harvested by mechanical strippers, desiccants are needed. These chemicals kill the plant tissue and cause a rapid loss of water from the foliage.

Major factors in getting good results are plant and weather conditions during and following application, Supak says.

"The percentage of open bolls still is the best guide in determining when to apply harvest-aid chemicals," he says. Normally, application of desiccants should be delayed until 80 to 85 percent of the bolls are open, he says. The remaining bolls should be hard to dent by pressure exerted between thumb and forefinger and too tough to cut easily with a sharp knife, he explains.

"DUE TO WEATHER CONDITIONS, some cotton is opening prematurely and without uniformity," Supak says. This is most common in portions of fields that have the appearance of being heavily drought-stressed.

The wilted plants in these areas contain some open bolls and some that obviously are mature but already are drying and cracking. In other areas of the same field, plants show less stress and there is less open cotton.

"Experience tells us that prematurely opened bolls tend to be less storm-proof," the extension specialist points out. "Consequently, if at least three-fourths of a field has 80 percent or more open cotton, it might be wise for the grower to apply a desiccant to allow earlier harvest."

If the "green" fourth of the field is positioned so he can work around it, the grower should delay treatment on that part, Supak recommends. If it can't be worked around, he suggests treating the whole field.

In stripper harvesting areas such as this, arsenic acid and Paraquat are the chemicals used as desiccants. "On the Plains," Supak says, "many farmers prefer Paraquat to arsenic acid because it tends to cause leaves to shed rather than stick to the plant."

THE ADDITION OF ACCELERATE, an enhancer, to Paraquat or arsenic acid improves effectiveness, reports Dr. Charles Miller, plant physiologist at Texas A&M University.

Miller also has found that under ideal conditions, in which 90 percent or more of the cotton is open and the plants are mature but not stressed, addition of Accelerate to sodium chlorate provides sufficient defoliation for stripper harvesting.

Supak recommends these chemicals and per-acre rates for desiccation: 1 to 1 1/2 quarts of arsenic acid; 1 to 2 pints of Paraquat; 1 to 2 pints of Paraquat plus 1 to 2 pints of Accelerate; or 1 1/2 gallons of sodium chlorate plus 1 to 2 pints of Accelerate.

Penwalt, one of the companies manufacturing arsenic acid, also has a state label which allows tank mixing 1 1/2 pints per acre of arsenic acid with 1 1/2 pints per acre of Accelerate.

"SOME FARMERS ALREADY HAVE CALLED in to report that Paraquat at a rate of one-third to one pint per acre alone or with Accelerate generally failed to provide acceptable results in stressed cotton," Supak says. "This indicates that arsenic acid or the high rates of Paraquat will be necessary to desiccate this toughened cotton."

The specialist also notes that a few farmers who plan to use Paraquat, but who failed to obtain a private applicator's license, are finding they cannot buy the chemical because it is a restricted-use pesticide.

They may be able to obtain a special "single product, single purchase, single use" certification in emergency situations, he advises. This can be obtained through an approved dealer, the Texas Department of Agriculture, or county extension agents who are certified and licensed as non-commercial applicators.

Arsenic acid is not a restricted-use pesticide and can be bought even if the purchaser doesn't have a private applicator's license, Supak says.

LATE TRADE BUYING LIFTED COTTON futures — which ignored the gold market — from lows reached Tuesday in the afternoon on heavy speculative selling, floor brokers said.

Nearbys closed 48 to 78 points lower as trading in October expired uneventfully. Commission house selling and trade switching pushed December down as much as 104 points, to 64.30 cents, before the late uptick. Estimated volume was 7,050 lots.

A weaker stock market and expectations of a bearish U.S. Department of Agriculture crop estimate Friday may have fueled selling, brokers said.

The weekly market commitment report showed speculative longs at the end of last week at 62.9 percent, up from 59.5 percent a week earlier, and speculative shorts at 49.2 percent, up from 47.5 percent.

Thus speculators were net buyers, and total open interest for the week climbed approximately 2,400 contracts. Some analysts interpreted the new commitment figures prior to the opening as indicating the potential for more selling from speculative long liquidation if the market were to falter.

Trade longs were at 25 percent, down from 28.7 percent, and trade shorts were at 38.9 percent, down from 40.8 percent.

Agriculture Department Hopes For Beef Research Program

U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) officials have recommended establishing a nationally-coordinated research and information program for beef.

The USDA's recommended decision is based on evidence from public hearings sessions on a proposed beef research and information order earlier this year in Dallas, Atlanta, Pittsburgh, Reno, and Des Moines. USDA also considered comments received on hearing testimony.

Written comments and exceptions will be accepted on the recommended decision until Nov. 5. Five copies of all comments should be sent to the Hearing Clerk, Room 1077-S, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250, where anyone may review them.

Under the recommended order, a beef board composed of producers would collect assessments on sales of cattle. Funds would be used for research, producer and consumer information, and promotion to "improve, maintain and develop markets for cattle, beef and beef products." The program would be monitored by USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service.

During the first two years of operation, the board could collect assessments of up to two-tenths of one percent of the value of cattle sold. After that, the assessment rate could change, but it could not exceed five-tenths of one percent of the value of cattle sold. Producers not wishing to fund the program could receive refunds from the board.

After all comments on the recommended decision are evaluated, USDA will issue a final decision. If that decision gives the go-ahead, producers will vote on the proposed order in a national referendum.

The program is authorized by the Beef Research and Information Act of 1976. If established the program would be similar to programs already in operation for potatoes, cotton and eggs.

Record Soybean Crop Estimates Increased Due To Conditions

CHICAGO (Reuters) — Private crop forecaster Conrad Leslie Tuesday increased his estimate of a record 1979 U.S. soybean crop to 2,223,132,000 bushels and of a record U.S. corn crop to 7,356,260,000 bushels, based on conditions as of Oct. 1.

The soybean estimate compares with last year's record production of 1,842,647,000 bushels and is up from the U.S. Department of Agriculture's September estimate of 2,174,179,000 bushels and Leslie's 2,205,794,000-bushel September estimate.

The corn projection compares with record 1978 production of 7,081,849,000 bushels. USDA's September forecast of 7,268,175,000 and Leslie's September estimate of 7,334,584,000.

Leslie increased his soybean yield estimate 0.7 bushels from his September projection to a record 31.6 bushels per acre, compared with the 1977 record of 30.6.

New Corn Blight Unlikely Problem For Texas

PLAINVIEW (Special) — Southwest corn farmers should not be alarmed by a recent report that a new type of Northern Corn Leaf Blight (Helminthosporium turicum) has been found in the continental United States, according to Jim Higdon, agronomy service director for the Southwestern Division of Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc.

Higdon, a certified professional agronomist, said the disease is unlikely to be a problem for farmers in Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico.

"The new type of Northern Corn Leaf Blight has been found thus far only in northwestern Indiana, and there only in a few seed corn production fields and in trace amounts in a few commercial corn fields," Higdon said. "Apparently, the single gene source of tolerance that has been effective against the widespread Race 1 of Northern Corn Leaf Blight doesn't work against this new type."

"However, another source of single gene tolerance has already been found effective against the new type." In addition, he said, hybrids are available which have adequate levels of multi-gene tolerance to Northern Corn Leaf Blight. And these hybrids have shown as much tolerance to the new type as to the old.

"I really don't believe farmers in the Southwest should be worried about this type of Northern Corn Leaf Blight," Higdon added. He noted that conditions for the development of Northern Corn Leaf Blight have been ideal across most of the country this year, but little has been seen.

"This new type has been found in a very limited area, and that area is hundreds of miles away," Higdon concluded. "So, I would say that any alarm at this point is premature."

Northern Corn Leaf Blight first infects the lower leaves of corn plants. The disease may spread to other leaves in humid weather, and heavily infected leaves may die. The leaf blight diseases can also increase the susceptibility of a plant to stalk rot.

Higdon said agronomists at the Southwestern Division are routinely surveying corn fields for any sign of the new type of Northern Corn Leaf Blight as they inspect fields for many different characteristics. He noted that nothing new or unusual has been seen.

Soil, Water District Slates Election

HERMLEIGH (Special) — The Upper Colorado Soil and Water Conservation District will hold an election at 8 p.m. here Monday to pick a director from Zone 1.

The election will be of the Hermleigh Community Center.

Zone 1 comprises that part of Scurs County lying south of U.S. Highway 180 and east of State Highway 208.

To be eligible to vote, a person must own agricultural land within the subdivision where the election is being held. He or she must live in a county all or part of which is in that soil and water conservation district.

The voter must be at least 21. No voter registration certificate is required. Under community property laws of Texas, the wife of a landowner also owns land and is entitled to vote and hold office.

Soil and Water Conservation District directors serve a term of five years. Walter Sturl is the present director and is eligible for re-election.

Livestock Futures Dip

By Reuters - CHICAGO — Cattle futures closed 80 to 150 points lower led by October through June at the limit decline Tuesday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange.

The cash cattle connected commission house led the selling with other commission houses also selling after early buying. Stops uncovered on the scale down led the setback. The prime rate increase to a record 14 1/2 percent triggered the slide.

Deliveries total 1,548 thus far. Wholesale beef was unchanged at 102 cents a pound. F.o.b. river points. Cash cattle were up $1 to 50 cents with the best top $69 per hundredweight at Omaha Slaughter was 124,000 head. About 13,500 head are expected today at the major terminals.

Feeder cattle futures closed 65 to 150 lower with all contracts except October at the limit decline. Volume was 3,926 lots. The market turned lower after limit gain Tuesday and posted the sixth limit move in as many days.

Prices slipped to the lowest since August on aggressive profit taking and other selling after an early gain of 110. Selling was led by the cash cattle connected commission house with the record high prime rate of 14 1/2 percent triggering much of the liquidation.

Deliveries total 69 thus far. Cash feeder cattle were steady to up $1 with the best top $120 per hundredweight at Greeley. Receipts at the major markets

LCC Judging Team Places In Meet

Lubbock Christian College's judging team fared well in its first contest of the year last weekend, finishing as runnerup in a 27-team field at the Fort Hays State (Kan.) Judging Meet.

LCC finished second overall, but was first in both beef cattle and horse judging and third in sheep judging.

Bobby Harland, a junior from Texoma, Okla., was second overall plus second in sheep and fifth in cattle.

Jerry Nance, a freshman from Causey, N. M., was ninth overall, but first in reasons, second in horses and third in cattle.

Dennis Carver, a sophomore from Hale Center, was third in horses and Bentley Colbert, a freshman from Mancos, Colo., was 10th overall.

Other team members were Randie Biesing, a junior from Llano; Dennis Dodd, a freshman from Melrose, N. M.; Bryan Peterson, a sophomore from Hale Center; and Michael Sturgess, a sophomore from Dumas.

Breath Of Fresh Air

PITTSBURGH AND BALTIMORE in the World Series. What a welcomed change.

New faces and new towns. Unknown players and crafty managers. Camaraderie and clubhouse togetherness. It's as refreshing as one of those high country beer commercials.

Major league baseball couldn't have written a better ending to the 1979 season. Three close pennant races and out of the pack emerges the Pirates and the Orioles, two teams expected to be watching the fall classic at home on the TV screen when the season began six months ago.

Baseball fans who love to root for the underdog won't know which way to turn during this World Series. The Pirates and Orioles have been underdogs all season long.

Baltimore was expected to finish no better than third in the American League East because of the stiff competition from the defending champion New York Yankees and the always-scrappy Boston Red Sox.

Pittsburgh had finished second to the Phillies of Philadelphia the past three seasons and were appointed to another runner-up finish by preseason prognosticators.

THE ORIOLES SURPRISED everyone in baseball by jumping out to an early lead in their division. Writers, fans and divisional rivals waited and waited for the Birds to fold, but the collapse never came. Ironically, Baltimore captured its divisional crown earlier than any of the other three playoff-bound teams.

Pittsburgh had its usual dismal early showing. At one time the Bucs trailed first-place Montreal by eight games and were collared in last place. But the Pirates caught fire after the All-Star break and used their patented pennant stretch in August and September to overhaul the young Expos in the most exciting divisional race of the season.

Pittsburgh and Baltimore are similar in many ways. Primarily, both teams never say die. The Pirates and Orioles don't quit giving 100 percent until that final out is recorded in the ninth inning. And even then, both teams can hardly wait for tomorrow.

Both clubs are managed by baseball geniuses. Earl Weaver has long been recognized as one of the finest baseball minds ever to manage a major league team. His Orioles won more games than any other team in baseball and his moves, both on and off the field, were prevalent in many of those victories.

CHUCK TANNER IS ANOTHER manager who uses all 25 players on his roster. He was never reluctant to pull a regular player and insert a reserve if the situation called for it. He displayed uncanny confidence in his bullpen and relievers Kent Tekulve, Enrique Romo and Grant Jackson seldom choked.

But the one overriding factor that each team displayed throughout the season was togetherness. The players on these clubs have good feelings about each other. Just the respect that each team's players showed for each other day in and day out was enough to make you a fan. There were no clubhouse fights or walkouts or whatever.

I never watched either the Pirates or Orioles on television all season long when a home run by a team member wasn't greeted by a mass gathering at home plate. Winning pitchers were commonly carried off the field on the shoulders of teammates. Harsh words were not traded between manager and player. There's where the welcomed change came.

The Pirates and Orioles made baseball fun in 1979. These two clubs forgot the hassles and remembered what it is to hustle. When the players from these teams put on the gloves, it was to catch baseballs and not punch each other silly. Everyday, someone else carried the load. Everyday, someone else was a hero. And everyone got into the act at one time or another.

I'M GLAD PHILADELPHIA AND NEW YORK AND LOS ANGELES will be the teams watching the World Series instead of playing in it. I'm tired of hearing about Reggie Jackson, Billy Martin, Steve Garvey, Don Sutton, Pete Rose and all the other superstars who make those clubs what they are.

For once in a long while, America is going to see two scrappy teams who are playing the World Series not only to fatten their pocketbooks, but because

No matter who wins, it promises to be a great spectacle. Pittsburgh and Baltimore have come a long way to reach this final pinnacle and both teams can beat you a variety of ways.

But no matter who wins, baseball and the viewing public will come out ahead in the long run. This Fall Classic should be a classic.

Reeves AP Player Of Week

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer
It got to where Ron Reeves hated to go to the grocery store.
He had gone from hero to zero in his hometown of Lubbock and it stung.
Public trips brought penetrating inquiries.

"Hey, Ron, is your arm hurt?"
"Hey, Ron, what's wrong?"

It was hard for Reeves, a former local high school star and the Southwest Conference Newcomer of the Year as a freshman, to adjust. He had only heard cheers all his life.

In Jones Stadium, some fans actually booed him.

"I had to learn to let what people say go in one ear and out the other," said Reeves.
Reeves learned his self-taught lesson well. He is The Associated Press Offensive Player of the Week for a courageous performance in Tech's come-from-behind 21-20 victory over Texas A&M Saturday.

"I really grew up this week," said the Red Raider sophomore quarterback. "I've tried not to let things bother me."

Reeves shushed his critics by orchestrating two clutch touchdown drives against the Texas Aggies, who led 20-0 to start the fourth quarter. On one drive, Reeves ripped off runs of 11 and 18 yards, and flipped a pass for 16 yards.

on a Reeves-led 80-yard drive climaxed by his five-yard scoring pass.

Reeves converted four times on third down in the vital fourth period.

For the night, he had carried 26 times for 84 yards. He had no interceptions.

"I was so proud of our team for not quitting. I think we gained a lot of confidence," he said.

On Tech's final possession, he fumbled the ball to A&M trying to run out the clock but the Aggies couldn't score.

"I liked to have died," said Reeves. "But you know, I think I'm going to be a better person because of this."

Cowboys Make Trade For All-Pro Colt End

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys, who haven't parted with a No. 1 draft choice in 12 years, did so with delight Tuesday, acquiring holdout defensive end John Dutton of the Baltimore Colts for No. 1 and No. 2 draft choices in 1980.

Dutton, an All-Pro in 1976 and three times a member of the Pro Bowl, was flying to Dallas to sign a multi-year contract and hold a press conference.

Gil Brandt, Cowboy executive vice president and personnel director, said, "We're hoping Dutton will resort to his 1976 form when he was as good as any in the National Football League. We think he probably played under a great deal of duress the last several years because of contract problems."

The 6-foot-7, 266-pound Dutton had not reported to Baltimore in a dispute with Colt management and was on his farm outside Lincoln, Neb.

"I talked to him and he was so delighted he was almost jumping through the telephone," said Brandt. "The opinion of (club president) Tex (Schramm). See Cowboys Page 2, Sec. D

But no matter what you say you hear the talk.

"Probably the thing that bothers you most is that when you think you are really trying hard someone will ask you 'What's the matter?'"

The bottom came for Reeves in the second half of a 27-17 loss to Baylor two weeks ago when the Bears sacked him time and time again. When he did throw it sailed yards over the receiver's heads.

Again, the whispers. Where did his arm go? Why does he hold the ball so long? Why would he rather run than pass?

He hadn't played a game all year without being intercepted.

Series Opener Washed Out

BALTIMORE (AP) — The opening game of the 1979 World Series between the Baltimore and Pittsburgh Pirates was postponed by a torrential rain storm Tuesday night.

It was the first time that the opening game of the seven-game Series was called off because of rain.

Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn called the game at 7:33 p.m. and it was rescheduled for Wednesday night. Game Two of the Series will be played Thursday night, and the Series then shifts to Pittsburgh Friday night, as previously scheduled.

Dockery Knew Washington Would Star

By NORVAL POLLARD
Executive Sports Editor

Rex Dockery turned out to be a fortune teller of sorts last week — two days before Texas Tech's big game with Texas A&M to be exact.

"Keep an eye on Lewis Washington Saturday," Dockery said with confidence. "He'll be around the football. He'll make some things happen out there."

Obviously, Tech's head football coach knew what he was talking about.

Washington, a 6-1, 200-pound sophomore from Kerens, replaced the injured Roger Jones at an outside linebacker position for the Red Raiders and turned in a fine showing.

Washington was constantly around the football as Dockery predicted. He was in on five tackles, two of them unassisted. His finest moment came late in the first half when he zoomed past an Aggie blocker to get a piece of an A&M punt.

The blocked punt rolled out of bounds on the A&M nine yard line and set the stage for Bill Adams to kick his second of three field goals.

For his performance in Tech's 21-20 upset victory over the Aggies, Washington has been selected Defensive Player of the Week by the Avalanche-Journal.

"Our kicking teams and special teams played a big role in the win over A&M and Lewis was a big part of those special teams," Dockery stated. "He had an excellent game for us."

Offensive Player of the Week honors went to sophomore quarterback Ron Reeves, who was also named the Associated Press Southwest Conference Player of the Week Wednesday.

Reeves was the driving force behind the Red Raiders Saturday night at Jones Stadium as the Red and Black rallied from a 20-9 deficit to overtake the Aggies midway through the fourth quarter.

The Monterey High School graduate and last year's conference newcomer guided Tech on back-to-back scoring drives of 80 and 65 yards to rally the Red Raiders. Reeves ran for 84 yards on 26 carries and completed seven of 10 pass attempts for 57 yards, one touchdown and no interceptions.

The Red Raiders escaped the A&M contest without any serious injuries. Senior strong safety Larry Flowers had problems with his injured right ankle, but he is expected to play against the Hogs.

Dockery was concerned sophomore center Denny Harris might be questionable for the contest with a foot injury, but Harris practiced Tuesday and showed no signs of trouble.

ALL-SWC LEAP — Texas Tech quarterback Ron Reeves leaps over the line of scrimmage during last Saturday night's SWC battle between the Red Raiders and Texas A&M. Reeves carried the ball 26 times for 118 yards and completed seven of 10 passes for 57 yards and a touchdown to lead Tech from a 20-9 fourth-quarter deficit to an electrifying 21-20 come-from-behind victory, keeping the Red Raiders in contention for the Southwest Conference championship. For his efforts Reeves was named both the Associated Press and the Avalanche-Journal SWC Player of the Week. (A-J Staff Photo By Milton Adams)

Many of Reeves' option runs came during the final two scoring drives and resulted in key first downs to keep those drives alive.

"I think Ron played his finest game of the season," Dockery said at Monday's news conference. He ran the option very well and picked up many valuable yards."

One of Reeves' biggest runs came on Tech's final touchdown drive. On first and 10 from the A&M 18, Reeves rolled to his right on the option and turned upfield for 18 yards and another first down at the Aggies' eight yard mark. From there, junior running back Greg Tyler bolted around left end for the final eight yards and the six points that provided the winning margin for the Red Raiders.

Dockery called Tuesday's two-and-a-half hour practice session a successful workout for his football team.

"We had great intensity today," Dockery admitted. "I thought last week was an excellent week of practice and we had great intensity all during the week. I think that showed during the game Saturday."

"We had the same kind of intensity from our players today. The win over A&M has helped the attitude of our football team. It's something we can build on and I think this team is improving each day."

The Red Raiders face the Arkansas Razorback Saturday at 2 p.m. in Jones Stadium. It will be Tech's first afternoon home contest of the season.

The Razorbacks are currently ranked 12th by the Associated Press and 13th in the United Press International weekly poll. Arkansas used a last-second field goal last Saturday to turn back the stubborn TCU Horned Frogs 16-13.

USC Could Be All-Time Greatest

LOS ANGELES (AP) — When Coach John Robinson took over the Southern Cal football program in 1976, he said one of his chief goals was to produce a team with a well-balanced offense, one that could pass and run with equal success.

The unbeaten and top-ranked 1979 Trojans would appear to be the complete realization of that goal, and just might be the best offensively balanced college football team of all time. USC quarterback Paul McDonald is currently the nation's leading passer, completing 69 percent of his 81 passes for 695 yards and eight touchdowns, with only two interceptions.

Tailback Charles White, a 1978 All-American who is a leading Heisman Trophy candidate this year, ranks seventh nationally in rushing with 519 yards on 68 carries. White missed half of one game and all of another with a shoulder injury, and sat out the last half of two other contests that had turned into USC routs.

Fleeting out the Trojan attack are fullback Marcus Allen, a fine runner and pass-catcher; wide receiver Kevin Williams, who's averaged nearly one touchdown for every two catches during his USC career; tight end Hoby Brenner, a quick, sure-handed receiver; and a fine offensive line spearheaded by guard Brad Budde.

"Sure, we're pleased with the offensive mix this season," Robinson said Tuesday at his weekly meeting with reporters. "I think all the individuals on our offense blend together well, that's the main thing."

Robinson, whose Trojans play host to Pacific-10 Conference rival Stanford next Saturday, has worried this fall that his players might grow overconfident, so he's been careful to avoid superlatives.

Asked if, considering the statistics of McDonald and White, this Trojan team might be one of the best balanced ever, the coach replied: "Well, one thing that might be a little misleading is the fact that they've changed the rating system for passers this year. Where it was sheer volume in the past, now it's based on efficiency.

"I think some of the great college teams in the past, like the Nebraska team that had Jerry Tagge as quarterback, would have shown great statistical balance if the passer rating system was the same as it is now."

Further backing up his "We're not the greatest" claim, Robinson said "Our awesome" offense scored a total of three points against LSU in the first three quarters (USC finally won 17-12)."

The Trojan coach said what has pleased him most about the Trojan offense this fall is "We're not beating us. We aren't killing ourselves with fumbles, interceptions or penalties."

The Cowboys have sorely missed defensive ends Ed (Too Tall) Jones and tackle Jethro Pugh, who retired.

There has been little, if any, pass rush from the left side of the line from tackle Dave Stalls and end Larry Cole.

Until last Sunday's game defensive right tackle Randy White and end Harvey Martin have been held in check by double-teaming offensive blockers.

Brandt said the Cowboys have "no plans to activate" Dutton for Sunday night's game against Los Angeles.

"We have a two-week roster exemption because of a rule that allows a player who hasn't been to training camp time to get into shape," said Brandt. "He has been staying in shape. We could activate him but we probably won't."

The last time the Cowboys, who live and die by the draft, gave away a No. 1 draft pick was in 1967 for Ralph Neely.

"Dutton is 28 and can go five or six years or more," said Brandt. "We think highly of him. What happened yesterday with Baltimore is past history."

Tech Women's Net Team Beats WTSU

CANYON (Special) — The Texas Tech women's tennis team knocked off West Texas State 9-1 Wednesday afternoon.

Tech, 4-1-1, received winning singles performances from Regina Revello, Becky Gerken, Kathy Lawson, Jill Crutchfield, Sandra Carrillo and Cathy Stringer. The doubles teams of Revello-Crutchfield, Carrillo-Lawson and Joanie Waitko-Gerken each won in straight sets.

CLASS-A ROUNDUP

Vega Rolling As District Slate Nears

By RUSS PARSONS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

With only six players coming back off last year's varsity roster and a brand new coach, you might think the Vega Longhorns would just as soon not go through with the 1979 football season.

But if any of them did entertain such negative thoughts, they're gone now. The Longhorns, under new coach Charlie Moot, are 3-1-1 on the year and look to challenge Kress for the 3-A title.

"We're pretty happy with where we're at," said Moot, who coached Newkirk, Okla., to an 11-1 mark last year after a 5-5 1977 season.

"We're a young ball club. Last year we graduated 15 or 20 seniors and this year we're pretty much a junior ball club. We've only got three seniors starting on offense and three on defense.

"We're young but happy."

After opening wins of 28-0 over White Deer and 7-0 over Sunray, the 'Horns met their only setback 20-14 against Boys Ranch. The next week they tied Sanford Fritch 14-14. But Friday Vega used a furious rally to stem Class AA Friona 30-26.

"We were down 20-9 with five minutes left in the game and scored 21 points to win," said Moot. "You've got to be pleased with that. It showed a lot of character."

"We've played two double-A schools so far and we've played well. I think we're sitting pretty going into district. But now we've got to say grace over that and move on."

"Kress has been favored to win our district and we've got them the second game."

Moot says his club's strong points are its quickness and its attitude. "Kids in Vega are tough, they'll fight you all the way," he said. "Our games aren't over until the gun sounds."

Like the saying goes, they're little, but they're mean.

"We're tiny," said Moot. "Our biggest kid goes about 210 and after him we're down to about 175. I guess you could say we're more characterized by our quickness than anything else."

Although none of his kids are strong on statistics, Moot says backs Fred Fangman and Rick Jones have been keys to the Longhorn season, as have been linemen Ken Stevens and Albert George.

The 155-pound Jones also figures in Vega's defensive plans, not as a defensive back or linebacker, but as a defensive tackle.

Fangman and George also alternate, Fangman filling a linebacker spot and George a defensive end position. The Vega secondary is led by safety Brad Cannon, who has four interceptions in the last two games, and cornerback Rob Groves.

Cougars Drop To Seventh In AP Poll

By The Associated Press

Southern California remains the No. 1 team in The Associated Press' weekly college football poll Tuesday and Alabama, Oklahoma and Texas hold down the 2-3-4 spots again.

These four teams have been in the same positions ever since the preseason poll.

Southern Cal, which routed Washington State 50-21 last Saturday, attracted 53 first-place votes and 1,285 of a possible 1,300 points from a nationwide panel of 65 sports writers and broadcasters.

Alabama, which stopped Wichita State 38-0, received 11 first-place votes and 1,248 points. Oklahoma, which ripped Colorado 49-24, landed 1,226 points. The remaining first-place ballot went to Texas, a 26-9 winner over Rice.

The Longhorns totaled 1,101 points. Nebraska retained the No. 5 spot with 1,059 points following a 57-0 rout of New Mexico State.

Washington, No. 7 last week, blanked Oregon State 41-0 and moved past Houston into sixth place with 889 points. The Cougars, who edged Baylor 13-10, dropped from sixth to seventh with 884 points.

Ohio State, Florida State and Notre Dame held onto the eighth, ninth and 10th spots. Ohio State defeated Northwestern 16-7 and collected 781 points. Florida State topped Louisville 27-0 and got 756 points while Notre Dame withstood Georgia Tech 21-13 and drew 664 points.

Alborn, Switzer Disagree On Prediction

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Downplaying his own team's strong points, Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer agreed with oddsmakers giving the University of Texas a slight edge over the Sooners in the upcoming meeting between the two college football powers.

"Their defense has got to be considered stronger than ours," Switzer said. "And they have a much stronger kicking game, so they have got to be considered the favorites."

"(Halfback A.J.) 'Jam' Jones is a definite running threat," Switzer said. "And (quarterback) Donnie Little is a fine athlete, but I know the offense isn't where Freddie would want it to be."

For picking the winner of the annual classic.

When the Owls lost to Oklahoma 66-7 and to Texas 34-0 last year, Alborn predicted a Sooner victory. Texas Coach Fred Akers didn't like the forecast but the Sooners did win the game 31-10.

The Second Ten consists of Michigan, Arkansas, Louisiana State, North Carolina, Missouri, Brigham Young, North Carolina State, Auburn, Michigan State and Purdue.

Last week it was Michigan, Purdue, Arkansas, N.C. State, Missouri, Michigan State, LSU, North Carolina, Tennessee and BYU.

"Returns, especially on kickoffs, have been a problem," Switzer said. "And we will be kicking to (Johnny) 'Lam' Jones and Herkie Walls. We haven't even got people that fast on our track team."

"J.C. will do okay," he said. "He has had trouble with the option this year, but that shouldn't make any difference. "You don't beat a defense like Texas with the option, anyway."

Injuries also should not be a factor in the nationally televised Dallas meeting, Switzer said. The only player expected to miss the game is defensive back Jay Jimerson, who suffered a leg injury in the Colorado contest.

Rice University Coach Ray Alborn, whose Owls lost to Texas and Oklahoma on successive weekends, said Tuesday that the Sooners should win the annual slugfest in Dallas if they don't fumble away their chances.

Mississippi State beat previously unbeaten Tennessee 28-9 and knocked the Volunteers out of the rankings. Auburn, which handed North Carolina State its first loss 44-31, moved into the Top Twenty.

Building up the opposition is an age-old practice with college coaches, but Switzer carried the tradition further than usual in assessing this year's version of the old rivalry. Saturday's game takes on additional meaning with the University of Oklahoma, ranked No. 3 in the country, one notch ahead of the fourth-ranked Longhorns.

"Freddie apparently hasn't been watching the same films I have," Switzer said. "Maybe, our style of play is better, but we just don't have the talent we did last year."

"Jones is a good back, but he's not Billy Sims," Alborn said. "Not by any score. I mean, Jones isn't bad, but Sims is in a class by himself."

One stumbling block to the OU offense and Sims could be Longhorn safety Johnnie Johnson, Alborn said.

"Texas will support him on both sides against the run."

"We have one really super defensive player in George Cumber (All-America linebacker)," Switzer said. "But, they don't have a single weak link in the defensive chain. They have eight great seniors and that could make the difference."

Switzer only briefly discussed the Texas offense, which has had some trouble putting points on the board this year.

"Now if they have trouble pitching the ball, Texas could win but if they get the ball to the corner it could be a long afternoon. If I were going to pick a winner I'd pick Oklahoma."

Alborn has an accurate track record

Alborn said the Sooners aren't as powerful offensively as last year and that graduated Thomas Lott was more effective operating the wishbone than J.C. Watts.

Prank Lands Longhorn Twosome in UT Jail

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A pair of University of Texas basketball players charged with stealing a bicycle say the arrest was the result of a misunderstanding.

"The next thing I know, the police are over next to the van, saying we stole the bike," Johnson said. "It was all a big misunderstanding."

Alborn said the Sooners aren't as powerful offensively as last year and that graduated Thomas Lott was more effective operating the wishbone than J.C. Watts.

Henry Lee Johnson and Keith Stephens, both 20-year-old juniors, are charged with felony theft for allegedly stealing a $247 bicycle on the campus last Thursday. Both were jailed and later released on their own recognizance.

UT police found the missing bicycle in Johnson's van after a student complained his bike was missing, according to Lt. Johnny Rush of the campus police.

Cougar Gets AP Honor

LINEMAN — David Hodge, line-backer, Houston. The 6-3, 211-pound senior Clute, was credited with 17 tackles in the Cougars' 13-10 triumph over Baylor. He personally stopped Baylor six times on third down, five times with unassisted tackles and once via an interception. Defensive coordinator Don Todd called Hodge's performance "the most perfect physical game ever played by a human being" and Head Coach Bill Yeoman said, "We have never played a sounder defensive game."

Harmon Leads Improving Chaparrals

By DON HENRY
Avalanche-Journal Staff

"It was kinda like when I was coaching in high school," chuckled Jerry Don Sanders Tuesday.

"We played this game, and we got three straight penalties. So I asked the official what we were doing wrong."

"He said, 'One of your linemen is almost lining up offside.'"

"Well, the other night (in a 35-8 loss to Trinity), they threw for 283 yards against us. Four of their passes went for 200 of those yards. So, if we could have eliminated those four passes and one punt return, we almost could have won."

Sanders told the yarn in commenting at the weekly press conference that he felt his Lubbock Christian College football team played well in the loss. Big plays, he admitted, were the difference for his Chaparrals.

"We improved tremendously on offense," the head coach said. "We played so much better offensively, that the defense almost gave us a standing ovation as we came off the field."

LCC held an 8-6 lead going into the final 30 seconds of the first half. And Sanders pointed out that LCC ran more plays offensively than did Trinity.

"This is something that we haven't been doing."

Sanders lauded the work of linebacker Mark Harmon, who was selected the school's athlete of the week. Harmon, a freshman linebacker who worked his way into the starting lineup two games ago, had six unassisted tackles and two assists, a quarterback sack and deflected a pass in the game.

Sanders also commented defensive tackle Guyle Robertson, punter Rick Juarez, two-way performer Jimmy James and quarterback Kent Allison for their efforts.

Sanders indicated that he would use all his players in the remaining three games, in looking to the future. Allison, said Sanders, will play half of Saturday's game against Sul Ross here, with backups Curtis Dean and Paul Elkins each getting a quarter of playing time.

LCC will be playing Sul Ross Saturday at 2 p.m. at Coronado High School field. Earlier this season, Sul Ross club bed the Chaparrals 47-0 in Alpine.

"We have been competitive the last two games (Trinity and Austin College)," said Sanders. "We feel we will be competitive against Sul Ross. We have learned a lot and improved a lot since that game."

The LCC coach said that the team will be in better physical condition, too. He said that center Jim Smith and running back Marvin Wiley, both out for a couple of weeks with injuries, will be returning this week.

At the time he was hurt, Wiley was the team's leading rusher, but Pat Worthey has filled in. Sanders has not indicated which player will start this week.

Juarez, Robertson and James were nominated for the school athlete-of-the-week award, along with volleyball player Cheryl Skaggs, and tennis player Lisa Hathorn. Miss Skaggs helped LCC compile a 6-3 record last week.

Juarez averaged 38.3 yards on 14 punts against Trinity, and Robertson, the 225-pounder from Amherst, was in on five tackles and deflected a pass in the Trinity game.

The Chaparrals have three football games remaining, this week against Sul Ross, here Oct. 20 against Panhandle (Okla.) State and then at Stephenville on Oct. 27 against Tarleton State.

LCC this year played nine games, but next year's ten-game Texas Intercollegiate Athletic Association schedule has been prepared. It's a double round-robin for all TIAA teams.

Actually, the schedule has been set for the next two seasons with the sites to be reversed for 1981.

The 1980 schedule:

Sept. 6 - Austin College here; Sept. 13 - Trinity of San Antonio; Sept. 20 - Sul Ross here; Sept. 27 - Midway here; Oct. 4 - Tarleton State at Stephenville; Oct. 11 - Austin College at Sherman; Oct. 18 - Trinity here; Oct. 25 - Sul Ross at Alpine; Nov. 1 - McMurry at Abilene; Nov. 8 - Tarleton State here.

PHS' Davis Living Up To Billing

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

There was a time — earlier in the season — when some folks thought coach Greg Sherwood should take full-back Ervin Davis out behind the barn and shoot him.

Considering Davis' physical condition, it would have been the humanitarian thing to do.

But Sherwood chose otherwise and it's a good thing he did.

Davis, a legitimate all-state candidate when the season began, lived up to the lofty buildup against Clovis, N.M. last Friday night by running for 214 yards on 27 carries. The 220-pounder, this week's Avalanche-Journal's top class AAAA performer, also scored three touchdowns in PHS' 25-0 victory over the defending New Mexico champions.

The 214 yards against Clovis almost matched Davis' entire rushing output for the season. Prior to the contest, Davis had picked up only 220 yards on 59 carries through Plainview's first three games.

Following the contest, Davis praised the performance of the Bulldog's offensive line, saying, "They really got off the ball. Everyone really had the killer instinct and we never gave up. The holes were so big they scared me when I saw them."

Davis, who'd scored only two touchdowns this season, opened the Clovis game with a 80-yard TD burst. The run came on the first play of the contest. He later scored in both the second and fourth periods on runs of six yards each.

The stellar performance also moved Davis into second place behind Monterey's Willie Johnson for the District 4-AAAA rushing title. Johnson, after five games, has gained 564 yards on 111 carries. Coronado quarterback Alan Harp dropped to third with 300 yards on 91 tries.

The win left Plainview with a 2-3 won-loss mark, heading into next week's loop opener against Monterey at Lowrey Field. Plainview will take this week off in preparation for the contest.

Also nominated for the A-J honor were:

- Coronado receiver Jack Lord who caught five passes for 54 yards in the Mustangs' 9-7 win over Palo Duro.
- Kicker Ricky Melvin who came on with 13 seconds left in the game to kick a 22-yard field goal and lift Coronado to the 9-7 come-from-behind win over Palo Duro. Melvin also intercepted a Don pass while playing defense.
- Lubbock High receiver Larry Walker who caught three passes for 50 yards, including a one-yard TD reception from quarterback Gilbert Cuevas that tied Odessa Ector 7-7 late in the game. Walker also had an interception that halted an Ector offensive drive.
- Monterey running back Willie Johnson who picked up his fifth straight 100-yard rushing night by gaining 119 yards on 12 tries against Hobbs. He also caught a pair of passes for an additional 38 yards and three touchdowns.

Sanders also commented defensive tackle Guyle Robertson, punter Rick Juarez, two-way performer Jimmy James and quarterback Kent Allison for their efforts.

Sanders indicated that he would use all his players in the remaining three games, in looking to the future. Allison, said Sanders, will play half of Saturday's game against Sul Ross here, with backups Curtis Dean and Paul Elkins each getting a quarter of playing time.

Fry Says Iowa Past Schedule

CHICAGO (AP) — Hayden Fry didn't set any time schedules when he took over the football coaching reins at Iowa but he says his players are far ahead of expectations.

"We didn't know what we inherited," Fry told the Chicago Football Writers Tuesday in a telephone interview. "We didn't set any goals. We just decided to let it hang out, work hard and see what happens."

What happened has been consecutive victories over Iowa State and Illinois after the Hawkeyes lost heatbreakers to Indiana, third-ranked Oklahoma and fifth-ranked Nebraska.

Against Indiana in their opener, the Hawkeyes led 26-3 at the half only to lose 30-26 in what Indiana coach Lee Corso said was "a miracle at Iowa City. God gave us that game."

The other losses were 21-6 to Oklahoma and 24-21 to Nebraska.

"We are playing teams so close — and against quality competition — that even in defeat we have gained something, if that's possible," said Fry. "I'm sure that has made us a stronger team and will help us later."

"We have our youngsters believing in our offensive and defensive philosophies," said Fry, "and our opponents aren't sure of what we're going to do."

Before the season started, Fry told the world the Hawkeyes would be throwing the ball all over the field and "maybe even from our own end zone on fourth down. Why not?"

So what has happened? Iowa is dead last in passing in the Big Ten but ranks a strong fourth in rushing and is fifth in scoring defense despite facing two of the best teams in the country in Oklahoma and Nebraska.

"We like to let the public and our foes think we're going to throw the ball all over the place," said Fry, "we don't want our opponents to know what we're going to do. But we always emphasize defense, the kicking game and have someone gain a thousand yards rushing."

That someone apparently is going to be tailback Dennis Mosley who is averaging 128.6 yards a game and is the current Big Ten leader.

"Mosley is coming as a blocker and a receiver," said Fry, "and his running ability is improving, he's maturing. He wasn't using his God-given ability. Now everytime he carries the ball he's looking for someone to hit I admire his courage but I'd rather have him juke and get the extra yards."

Fry has been playing switch at quarterback, opening the season with Phil Sues as his starter and when Sues was injured going to Pete Gales. Last week Fry used Gordy Bohannon, a junior college transfer, in the second half against Illinois.

"Bohannon is the only one who hasn't started," said Fry, "so we'll start him this week against Northwestern."

Iowa has advanced so much this season that Fry flatly states "Our first team can tee it up with anyone in our league right now."

Dunbar Backfield Shares A-J Honor

By CHUCK McDONALD
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

When a team wins its first game in five attempts — it is hard to single out a single hero.

And such was the case in Dunbar's 20-10 victory over the Lamesa Golden Tornadoes last Friday. Not only did the Panthers score more points than they have in the last four games combined — but they did most of the damage in the second half.

"This was just a complete team victory," said Dunbar coach Van Jefferson following the contest. "We had good effort from everybody on the team."

But there were a few Panthers that stuck out. Tony Davis sparked on both sides of the ball, coming up with a big run in the third quarter to move the Panthers into scoring territory. Davis also scored the Panthers first TD on a short burst.

And there was the play of quarterbacks Kenneth Idom and Barry Pillow. Alternating on almost every play, those two turned things around for Dunbar in the second half.

It would be hard to overlook the running of Geoffrey Crawford who led the Panthers to their final touchdown of the night. And hey, don't forget steady Fab-an Garcia, who came up with a big play to set up the Panthers first TD.

Dunbar had been presented with a golden opportunity when the Panthers came up with a fumble at the Lamesa 13. But two plays netted nothing and trailing 10-0 at the time, the Panthers were in desperate need of a big play.

So Garcia gave them just that, bursting 12 yards around left end — falling just short of the goal line.

"It was a big win," understated Jefferson. "It had been a year since we won our last one."

And for the big win, the entire DHS backfield of Pillow, Crawford, Idom, Davis and Garcia will have to share the Avalanche-Journal Player of the Week honors.

The Panthers get this week off to begin working for a district title and for that reason the win comes at a very good time.

Once district play begins, the Panthers 1-4 pre-district slate won't mean anything. Jefferson's troops first test will be Levelland — and things haven't been going so smoothly for the Lobo's thus far in 1979.

Levelland is 2-3 on the year, having scored an average of 10 points a contest while allowing the opposition closer to 21 an outing.

And Jefferson promises that his team will be ready to play some ball once district competition begins.

"I guarantee you," he said after the Lamesa game, "we'll be ready."

Loop Ready To Dethrone Kingpin

By ERIC GALE
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Loop High School coach Don Jones is in the mood for a breakthrough.

His Longhorns are long on incentive to upset perennial six-man football giant Cotton Center in a District 3-B opener Friday night in Loop.

Cotton Center has dominated the district for five years and, last year, was the runner-up in the state 6-man playoffs.

Jones says it is more than wishful thinking that prompts his optimism. He feels that his Longhorns are ready.

"I know we've got a good club, and we're going to give everything we've got to try and beat Cotton Center," Jones said. "They were extremely tough last year and even though they've lost some of that personnel, they still have a very quality club."

Both Loop and Cotton Center have 4-0 records.

"We're going to cinch up our belts and go after 'em," Jones added. "We'll have to play a game without errors in order to win."

Such was not the case when the two teams met in 1978. Cotton Center humiliated the Longhorns 62-18.

Jones explained: "We were not mentally prepared to play Cotton Center last year. We fumbled the first three times we had the ball deep in our territory and they scored each time. We were down 20-0 in a matter of three or four minutes."

A Loop victory would be a major step in the restoration of a new balance of power in the district. Jones would like to contribute to such a change.

Loop's only district championship in the history of the school came in 1956," the coach said. "We've never been in the playoffs since. Cotton Center isn't the only team to worry about in our district — it's tough — but a win would really pick us up and we would be extremely tough to beat the rest of the season."

Winners Recall Disenchantment With Nashville Establishment

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Willie Nelson and Kenny Rogers, big winners at the Country Music Association awards show, have had trouble with the Nashville establishment in the past.

Nelson, winner of the prestigious entertainer of the year award Monday night, moved from Nashville to Austin in 1970 because he was disenchanted with the way music industry officials wanted him to write and sing songs.

Visa Refused To Soviet Soprano; Reason Unknown

AVIGNON, France (AP) — Soviet authorities have refused a visa to soprano Reni Penkova that would have permitted her to sing two performances of Verdi's opera "Nabucco" at this southern French city next month, the Municipal Theater announced Tuesday.

Rogers, who won three awards including top male vocalist at the nationally televised show, recalled later how he had trouble buying a house when he moved to Nashville in the early 1960s.

"I got the house," he said, chuckling. "I couldn't get the bank loan." Rogers, host of the show at the Grand Ole Opry House, also won album of the year for "The Gambler" and duo of the year with Dottie West.

Rogers told reporters he was not disappointed about losing the top award to the bearded, pony-tailed Nelson. In fact, he spotted Nelson at an after-the-show party and told him, "I'm proud of you. You deserved it."

Nelson, whose top album this past year was "One for the Road" with Leon Russell, said he'd like to see the entertainer of the year award changed.

"There are entertainers of the year," he said, emphasizing the plural. "I'd like to see that category widened."

Joining Rogers as a triple winner was the Charlie Daniels Band, which won single of the year for "The Devil Went Down to Georgia," instrumental group of the year and instrumentalist of the year for Daniels, a vibrant fiddler.

Barbara Mandrell was voted female vocalist of the year and veteran singer Hank Snow and the late talent agent Hubert Long were elected to the Country Music Hall of Fame.

The Statler Brothers won vocal group of the year for the seventh time in the past eight years. Don Schlitz, who wrote "The Gambler" and recorded it before Rogers made it a hit, won the song of the year.

A non-winner this year was Crystal Gayle, who was a finalist for entertainer of the year and female vocalist. She was voted top female vocalist in 1977 and 1978.

Dolly Parton, entertainer of the year in 1978, was not a finalist for any awards.

'White Shadow' Star No Stranger To Basketball, Television

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — It all started because an old college chum told Ken Howard: "There's so much crap on television, why don't you work with your friends and do something good for a change?"

HOWARD

The result is "White Shadow," one of the best reasons for turning on the tube on Monday nights. Howard's friend, a former football linebacker, elaborated on his suggestion: "Why don't you play yourself. Say maybe as a basketball pro who coaches at a ghetto school?"

The notion sounded good to Howard, a one-time jock at Manhasset (Long Island) High School and Amherst College. He admits that he has usually been cast in "eastern, classical, well-spoken parts." Among them: Thomas Jefferson in the stage and film version of "1776"; in the musical "Seesaw"; as the psychiatrist in the Chicago run of "Equus."

Howard, a powerfully built 6-foot-6 with clean, blond locks, took the idea to a friend from his Long Island youth, Bruce Paltrow. Paltrow had produced a failed series, "Shirts and Skins," about a group of men who played basketball together on weekends, and he was eager to try the sport again.

Paltrow developed the series idea for "White Shadow" — which Howard was sometimes called in high school because he was a white player on a largely black team. They took the project to MM Productions, which they figured would be receptive to an offbeat proposal. CBS took only a week to agree to a pilot.

"I spent three months working out, running up the steps at UCLA, practicing in Pauley Pavilion," Howard recalled. "I knew for the pilot I had to be in top shape, since I would be seen playing with the Chicago Bulls. It hasn't been so strenuous since then. After a year of a series called 'Manhunter,' 'White Shadow' is a piece of cake."

CBS liked the pilot but decreed the show should be a half-hour instead of an hour. Bruce Paltrow replied: "The show won't work that way." He stood his ground, and the network relented, scheduling "White Shadow" last November.

Like "Lou Grant" and other series of quality, "White Shadow" was not an instant success. It rose to 17th in the ratings on Monday night, then was switched to Saturday, where it died. For the 1979-1980 season, it has returned to Monday.

"The ratings this season have been terrible and good," reported Howard, 35. "We got clobbered by the football crowd and a two-hour 'Little House on the Prairie.' But we're picking up.

"I figured we should hit our stride with the 10th show, which features the Harlem Globetrotters. People ought to tune in to see that, and our ratings should go up from there. Even if the ratings are not sensational, I think CBS will keep us on the air, because ours is a good show."

"Even if the show doesn't go beyond two years, I'll be satisfied. A situation in show business can't get much better than when the executive producer and star are best friends. Especially when you know you're doing good work. Most of our shows have been on the mark. If they're not, they don't miss by very far."

Ken Howard can still throw a pretty fair hook shot at 35; but, he admits, "I was an overrated player in high school. I drawed a lot of attention — Most Valuable Player on Long Island, All-Metropolitan New York — because I was lucky to play with excellent black players."

"I was offered about 30 scholarships, but I preferred to go to Amherst, where I was not only the biggest player but the blackest (having learned black techniques). Could I have gone pro? No chance."

Networks Shuffle Shows As NBC Surges Ahead

NEW YORK — NBC entered the 1979-80 prime-time season with a plan to cut ABC's big lead in the ratings race, and that strategy, successful through the first three weeks, has the competition shuffling programs to catch up with the surprise frontrunner.

Both ABC and CBS announced programming changes last week, and with ratings from the A.C. Nielsen Co. for the week of Oct. 1-7 showing NBC in first place for the second time since the season began Sept. 17, more juggling appeared likely.

NBC struggled through last season's dismal third, behind ABC and CBS, and few in the business expected the No. 3 network to challenge the frontrunner this year. Ratings points translate into advertising dollars, since networks whose shows attract the largest audiences can charge more for commercials.

"We're not going to make any preposterous claims, three weeks into the season," said Mike Weinblatt, the president of NBC Entertainment, as the latest ratings were released Tuesday. "But I said some time ago that we would all be closer this season, that we were going to surprise a lot of people."

"The happiest thing is that our strategy and plans appear to have worked, and our new series have been sampled and are developing followings."

NBC, for the week ending Oct. 7, listed a special and two series in Nielsen's Top 20. And, perhaps more significantly, NBC had only one program — the news department's "Prime Time Sunday" — in the bottom 10.

CBS, on the other hand, had the week's most-watched show, "Alice," but also had four of the week's five lowest-rated programs, all of them in the entertainment category.

The rating for "Alice" was 28.5. Nielsen says that means of all the homes in the country with television, 28.5 percent saw at least part of the program.

One important aspect of NBC's plan for 1979-80 was to position hour-long programs, rather than more risky half-hour shows, in the 8-9 p.m. time slot. And that strategy appears to have paid off.

CBS announced last week it would pre-empt four half-hour programs, two in the 8-9 slot Wednesday and two in the same period Saturday. And ABC said "Fantasy Island," moved to 8 p.m. Fridays after a successful season at 10 Sundays, would return to its former position.

NBC's only announced change was to delay the start of a dramatic series, "From Here to Eternity," in favor of "The Best of Saturday Night Live," giving the network a full night of comedy Wednesdays.

Competition last week was not typical. NBC had "Johnny Carson's 17th Anniversary Special" at 9:30 p.m. Monday and major league baseball playoff games at 8 Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday nights, and all four contributed to a rating for the week of 19.4.

ABC finished second at 18.9 and CBS third at 17.7. The networks say that means in an average prime-time minute during the week, 19.4 percent of the homes in the country were tuned to NBC.

NBC did score with "Little House on the Prairie" at 8-9 Monday night, No. 9, and "CHiPs," at the same time Saturday evening, No. 13.

ABC, meanwhile, expected to regain a good deal of lost ground this week with baseball's World Series, but Weinblatt said NBC was optimistic about the chances of "The Misadventures of Sheriff Lobo," 8-9 Tuesday night, "Real People" Wednesday and "Buck Rogers in the 25th Century" Thursday.

Two of the week's five least-watched programs were among those pulled by CBS, No. 63 "Bad News Bears" and No. 66 "Working Stiffs," while ABC's "A New Kind of Family," No. 64 for the week, appeared on its way out. CBS' "Paris" was 65th and "Big Shamus, Little Shamus," also from CBS, was 67th — last — in the ratings.

Here are the week's top-rated programs:

"Alice," with a rating of 28.5 representing 21.7 million homes, CBS; "Eight is Enough," 27.9 or 21.3 million, ABC; "Johnny Carson's 17th Anniversary Show," 27.7 or 21.1 million, NBC; "The Jeffersons," 26.8 or 20.4 million, CBS; "Three's Company," 25.6 or 19.5 million, and "Charlie's Angels," 25.5 or 19.4 million, both ABC; "60 Minutes," 25.4 or 19.3 million, and "One Day at a Time," 24.8 or 18.9 million, both CBS; "Little House on the Prairie," 24.1 or 18.4 million, NBC, and "Trapper John, M.D.," CBS, and "Barney Miller," ABC, both 23 or 17.5 million.

The next 10 shows: Movie: "Portrait of a Stripper," CBS; "CHiPs," NBC, and "Happy Days," ABC, tie; "Angie" and "Soap," both ABC; "Archie Bunker's Place," CBS; "Love Boat" and "Benson," both ABC, and "M-A-S-H," CBS, and "Mork and Mindy," ABC, tie.

Concert Audience Lauds Frenzied Pianist

Playing like a man possessed, pianist Paul Schenly earned astonished respect and a spontaneous standing ovation as he guested with the Lubbock Symphony Orchestra Monday night at the Civic Center theater.

With perspiration dripping off his face and onto the keyboard, Schenly played with a frenzy to match his immense talent. Winner of the prestigious Avery Fisher Prize, the Munich-born pianist introduced "Concerto Number Two In G Minor" by Camille Saint-Saens with both visual and musical flair. Indeed, one music audience member was heard to comment that the "presto" section of the concerto should have been labeled "lickety split," so fast was Schenly playing it.

Though this was the only announced selection to be played by Schenly, the audience was not prepared to let him leave the stage. After wiping his brow and removing his bow tie, he came back to play the pleasing, if familiar, "Für Elise" by Beethoven — then transformed himself into a one-man energy source as he enetted with a vigorous playing of Liszt's "La Campanella."

By the time he had finished, the crowd was roaring to its feet with appreciation. Which made one wonder why the symphony had not slated Schenly to close the performance since, no matter how well played, the show-ending rendition of Tchaikowsky's "Marche Slave" had to be considered somewhat anticlimactic.

The evening had begun much earlier with the symphony's fine treatment of the light "Slavonic Dance No. 1" by Dvorak, the mood being heavily darkened with the constantly shifting phrases of Jean Sibelius' "Finlandia."

At this point, Dr. Gene Hemmle, to whom the Texas Tech University Recital Hall was recently dedicated, walked on stage to deliver vocal program notes for the following "Pictures At An Exhibition" by Mussorgsky. The explanatory notes have been missed in the symphony programs of late, and Hemmle's detailed background information made the music even more enjoyable.
