Major Earthquake Strikes California One Dead, 76 Hurt Along Border

CALEXICO, Calif. (AP) — A powerful earthquake struck Southern California and part of Mexico on Monday, buckling buildings, wrecking water systems and swaying skyscrapers as far away as Las Vegas and Los Angeles. At least 76 persons were injured, authorities said. One death was reported in Mexicali, Mexico, but there were no immediate reports of deaths in California. The five-second earthquake was the strongest in the Imperial Valley since 1940, the U.S. Geological Survey said.

"There was window glass all over the streets. Mannequins were piled up in the (store) windows and chimneys were down," said Dorothy Shook, 55, a store owner in El Centro, one of the hardest hit communities. Seismologists at California Institute of Technology in Pasadena said the 4:16 p.m. tremor, measuring 6.4 on the Richter scale and centered 10 miles east of here on the Mexican border, was followed by a series of aftershocks measuring more than 3.0 on the Richter scale. The National Earthquake Center in Golden, Colo., measured the major quake at 6.5.

Carter Plans U.S. Office Of Families

CHICAGO (AP) — President Carter, declaring that the family unit is in trouble, told a Roman Catholic audience Monday that he is establishing an "Office for Families" in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Speaking to the National Conference of Catholic Charities, meeting in Kansas City, Mo., the president called the family "one aspect of our national life" where a partnership of public and private interests is needed.

Formal Pledge
Carter also formally announced that the United States is pledging $7 million "to help feed tens of thousands of starving human beings in Cambodia." The money is to be funneled through the Red Cross and the United Nations Children's Fund.

The aid program was first disclosed by government sources last week. Sources said Carter originally had scheduled to reveal the plan at a news conference last Tuesday, but delayed the announcement because of technical questions on distribution of the money. After a two-hour stop in Kansas City, Carter traveled to Chicago for a fundraising reception. He planned to hold a "town meeting" Tuesday with citizens of Dolton, Ill., a Chicago suburb, before flying back to Washington.

In his speech to the Catholic Charities, Carter said families "are the foundation of a healthy and vibrant society." But he added:

Strained, Broken
"Today, what Pope John XXIII called 'the first and essential cell of human society' is in trouble. Many families have been strained to the breaking point by social and economic forces beyond their control. Some indeed have broken."

Carter said three White House Conferences on Families will be held next summer in Baltimore, Minneapolis and Los Angeles for a "long overdue assessment of how actions by government and major private institutions help, hurt or neglect American families."

Carter said the "Office for Families" in HEW is the first of its kind and will help implement the recommendations of the White House conferences.

White House press secretary Jody Powell, traveling with the president, said Carter planned to repeat the family theme in future speeches. He called the address a continuation of Carter's assertion of a need for moral and family values, expressed in his July 15 "crisis of confidence" speech.

Powell said Carter received more See CARTER PLANS Page 18

EMS May Get $40 Rate Hike

COUNTY hospital district officials approved a substantial rate increase for Emergency Medical Services Monday — but both the city council and Blue Cross, Blue Shield will have the final vote on the matter.

Hospital district board members voted to raise the base rate for EMS from $60 to $100 in light of the service's ongoing financial problems. The group tabled other recommendations from the administrative committee concerning EMS pending further study, but wanted to get the proposed rate increase before the council as soon as possible.

"Our rates are much lower than any other metropolitan area in Texas," administrative committee chairman Don McInturff said. Medical Services Inc., a private firm which had expressed an interest in taking over EMS, proposed raising the charge to $120 if it assumed the operation, McInturff said.

Under an agreement with the city, rate increases must be approved by the council. "I don't know what to anticipate from the city council," McInturff admitted.

City council members approved the last EMS increase in April, when the base charge was upped from $45 to $60. Other related fees for such things as oxygen and night runs also were increased to offset the rising EMS deficit.

The rate change also must pass muster with Blue Cross, Blue Shield of Texas. Blue Cross representatives approve medical rates for purposes of insurance payments.

Board members did not take any action on the administrative committee's other EMS proposals, which included:

—Closing down the substation at 48th Street and Avenue Q and moving into an old city fire station located at 31st Street and Texas Avenue. This would mean a savings in terms of rent currently paid for the substation.

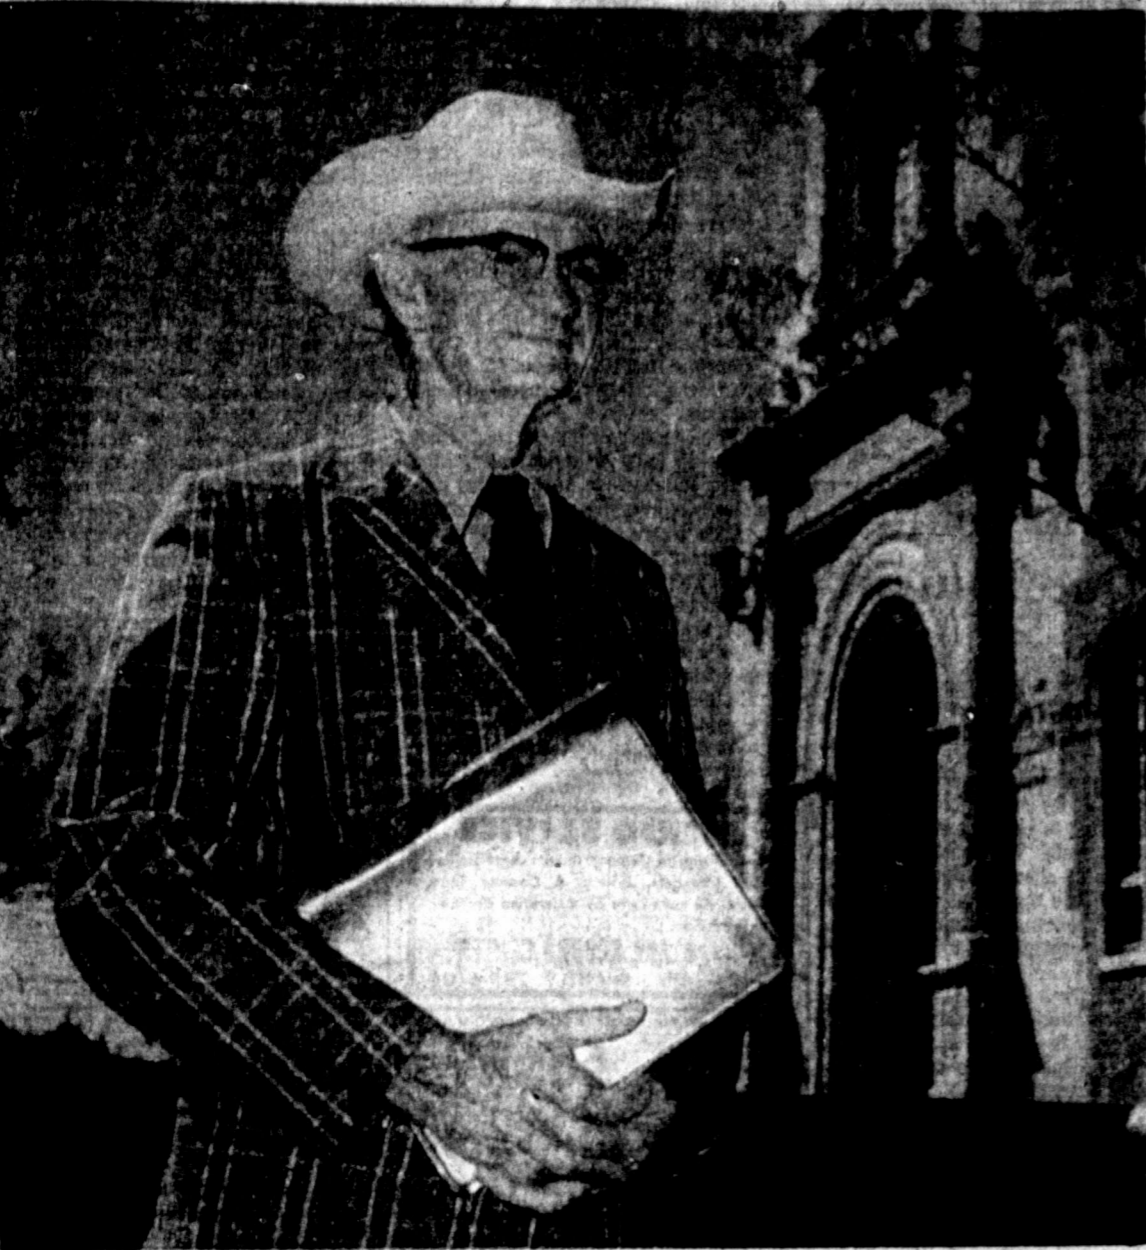

—Reducing EMS overtime by changing the structure of the work shifts, EMTs and paramedics currently work 24 hours on, 24 hours off, 24 hours on and then 48 hours off. That shift structure produces large amounts of overtime.

The recommendation is to change the schedule to a simple 24 hours on, 48 hours off schedule. It would mean a reduction in take-home pay for EMS employees, but a salary increase may be included later.

—Reducing the staffing of the West Texas Hospital substation from 24 hours a day to eight hours a day, but expanding the service from five days a week to seven.

Board members agreed to table the other recommendations pending further study. Several board members expressed concern that moving one substation and reducing the hours of another would alter the EMS response times.

"We may be talking about 30 seconds," financial advisor Ronnie Elliott said about a possibly longer response time. Though the West Texas Hospital substation will not be open as much, he See INITIAL OKAY Page 18

Rebels Claim Overthrow In El Salvador

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Army rebels seized four key military barracks Monday, forcing President Carlos Humberto Romero from office, diplomatic and rebel sources said. The reports said Romero fled the country and one officer was killed.

The usually reliable diplomatic sources said Romero left by commercial airplane bound for the United States with his family. No details on the flight were provided.

In Washington, State Department spokeswoman Sue Pittman said "we don't have confirmation on exactly what has happened," adding the department was in constant contact with the U.S. Embassy in San Salvador, the capital.

A rebel spokesman said key aides and several members of Romero's Cabinet, including Defense Secretary Gen. Federico Castillo Yanez and his deputy, Col. Jose Eduardo Iraheta, left with him, but there was no official confirmation.

The spokesman said a major and two colonels, all unidentified, led the coup against Romero, a rightist army general who was elected two years ago to a four-year term.

Earlier, a rebel spokesman, who asked anonymity, refused to describe the ideology of the rebels, but said they wanted to "seek a change in the structure of the armed forces and effect the changes that are necessary in the country."

A later statement said the rebellion "stabilized the situation in the country." Prior to Monday, some officers were known to want Romero to liberalize his regime, while others called for an even tougher crackdown on the increasingly See REBELS Page 18

Rock Group Runs Into Opposition

JUDGING by the advance ticket sales for the Halloween night appearance of the rock group Kiss in the Lubbock Coliseum, the city's youth is eager for the event. But some Lubbockites, who have heard the band conducts blood rituals before its shows and is working for the devil, want parents to prevent their children from attending the show.

Larry Goff, a member of Trinity Church, is working through the church to prevent Kiss' concert here with a campaign of flyers and petitions at some of the city's schools and churches. "Everyone at the church was alarmed when they read Kiss was coming," he said. "The church community is getting fed up with these types of bands."

Goff's flyers, done up in red and yellow, read, "It is high time for the concerned citizens of Lubbock to keep groups like Kiss from coming to our town and corrupting the minds and morals of our young people... the appeal of their music is straight out sex with perversion."

Hundreds Of Calls
"I've had hundreds of parents call me since we've started this," he said. "People really seem to be upset and we think we need to say something."

Goff said he spoke with a woman named Roseann Shelnett, but didn't know her exact affiliation with the band. The Avalanche-Journal was unable to contact her, but did speak with Julie Steigman, a spokeswoman for The Press Office in New York, which handles Kiss' publicity. Miss Steigman said no one from Lubbock had contacted her to check out the rumors concerning Kiss. "It's all so ridiculous I can't believe it," she added.

Blood Sacrifice Claimed

Goff said he knows "a girl in the church who was converted a month ago who was backstage at their last Kiss show here and saw them perform a blood sacrifice where they asked Satan's demons to aid them in getting their show right. And two boys in the church said they saw young children smoking pot there."

"This has come up before and I'm sure it will again," said Miss Steigman. "I don't know how people will believe See ROCK GROUP'S Page 18

ICELAND INSTALLS GOVERNMENT

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — A new, minority government was installed Monday, replacing the three-party coalition that ruled from Sept. 1, 1978 until its collapse, last week. Benedikt Grondal, chairman of the Social Democratic Party, is the new premier and foreign minister. The Social Democrats have 14 seats in the 60-seat Parliament and are supported by the Independence Party, which has 20 seats.

HSC Hospital Survives Financial 'Crisis'

By KIM COBB
Avalanche-Journal Staff

IT ISN'T out of the woods yet, but an official at Health Sciences Center Hospital says the debt-ridden facility has passed the crisis period.

Finance director Tom Kearney, employed by Brookwood Management Services, presented a financial report showing steady improvement to the county hospital district board Monday. And he expanded on the report, saying that things should be on the upswing with passage of the critical months of August and September.

Several months ago, hospital officials were faced with increasing numbers of unpaid patient bills, mounting expenses and a dwindling cash flow. Predictions were that the teaching hospital would run out of cash by late August if the hospital continued at its then current rate of loss.

Kearney told the board that the average daily census — the number of patients housed in the facility — rose to 143 last week.

"We are seven away from our goal of 150," Kearney said, referring to the average census of 150 patients needed to balance next year's budget.

Kearney said it is probable that the hospital will reach its goal of 150 before the end of the year. The patient census has jumped from 122 since the week ending Sept. 7.

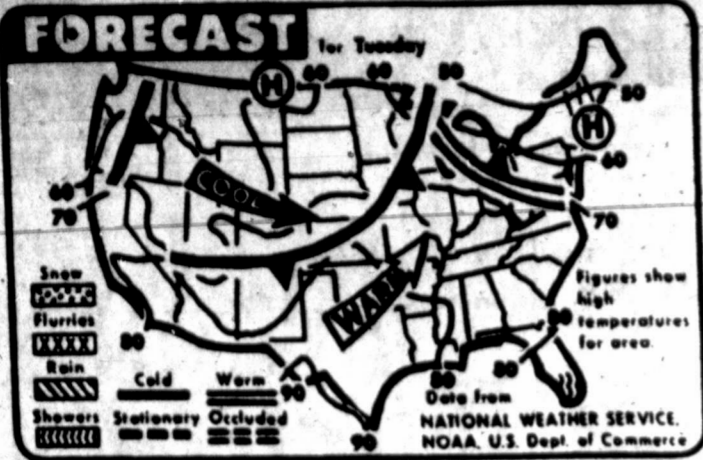

Dr. William Holmes, hospital chief of staff, re-emphasized his position that the hospital faces a staffing problem in light of the rising census and exiting employees — particularly nurses. The hospital is down to the equivalent of 609.8 full-time employee positions, which is below the budgeted allotment for 1980.

Holmes and other physicians are complaining that the shortage of nurses on the floor is affecting patient care and the situation will worsen if the number of nurses continues to drop.

Kearney also reported that the number of out-of-county admissions has dropped to an average of 17 per week. He said that number is almost half of the original figure and that all those admitted were true emergencies.

Health Directors May Get Aid

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Legislation recommended by the Texas Department of Health would make state public health laws enforceable in Lubbock County, a Texas Senate subcommittee was told Monday.

The Public Health Subcommittee of the Senate Human Resources Committee, chaired by Sen. E. L. Short of Tahoka, heard comments Monday on three pieces of legislation proposed in a state health department study of local health departments.

One recommended bill would give directors of local health departments and public health regions authority to enforce state public health laws where no public health officer has been appointed.

Such is the case in Lubbock County, John Board, regional health department director, told the subcommittee. "In Lubbock County, the commissioners court and the county judge have not appointed a health officer for the county," Board said.

When he is called upon to enforce state health laws in the county outside the city limits of Lubbock, Board said he must rely on bluff and cooperation of the party in violation.

Specifically, Board said he's been asked to take action against businesses in the county generating a large number of files.

Each time, Board said it's come down to "a cooperation thing — there's no legal status to it."

"Very frequently I'm in a situation where I'm required or expected to take action where I have no authority," he said, adding the proposed legislation would give him legal authority to take action against violators.

Marjorie Orr, city of Lubbock Health Department director, echoed Board's comments.

"The county government elected not to provide food sanitation out in the county" and does not provide other preventive health services like maternal and child health care, she said.

"Without the cooperation of the county, we get involved in a lot of things in the county, but we can do nothing," Dr. Orr said.

She noted Lubbock County has $8 million in savings, saying "that's because they don't provide animal control, fire protection, preventive health services or food sanitation services in the county."

Dr. Orr said the legislation also might have prevented the "appalling" situation in which she said she found the city Health Department when she became its director last year.

The department had been headed by only an acting director "for many, many years," Dr. Orr said, adding "all sorts of illegality" was taking place.

The steering committee report states "29 local health department directors and 10 public health regional directors are without authority to initiate appropriate court action for violations of state public health laws."

"In such cases the directors find themselves handicapped in carrying out their duties," the report states.

William Ross, chief of the health department's Bureau of Community Services and chairman of the steering committee which drafted the recommendations, said many cities and counties are without health officers because of a state requirement that the directors be physicians residing in the city or county.

Of 254 counties in Texas, Ross said 58 did not have health officers either because there was no physician in the county or no physician willing to serve as director.

United Way Fund Closing In On Goal

United Way campaign officials took a second look at the progress of the drive Monday at Memorial Civic Center and with $1,291,010 reported for 72 percent of the 1979 goal of $1.8 million, said the campaign appears to be on schedule.

"We appreciate the work of all the volunteers who made a special effort to get reports in for this meeting," campaign chairman Joe Price said.

"The second report meeting must continue the pace set by the first and the campaign might falter. We are pleased with today's report and look forward to the third one Oct. 24 which should put us within striking distance of completion."

All divisions turned in reports Monday, with a number of them greatly increasing their quote percentages over the first report. Price gave special attention to members of Mackenzie Junior High School's student council who were guests at the meeting. Selling spirit ribbons, Mackenzie students raised $225 for their contribution to the campaign. Presenting that amount to Price were Jeff Johnson, Cody Hurd, Marni Gibson, Leigh Ann Ogle and Ricky Shew.

Slight Cooling Due Tonight

After a chilly weekend, the weather warmed to summer-like conditions Monday, and the upper 80-degree readings are expected to continue for the next few days.

Lubbock topped out at 87 degrees Monday afternoon, and highs today around the area are expected to climb near that same level again. The warm weather, however, should begin losing its punch late tonight as a light cool front moves in, lowering Wednesday's temperatures to the upper 70s.

Winds should remain southwesterly at 10 to 15 mph through the middle of the week, and no measurable amounts of rainfall are expected.

Lubbock recorded no official rainfall Monday morning, even though several neighborhoods received traces during the night.

Some showers are expected across portions of northern West Texas and southern Oklahoma as an upper air disturbance pushes a high pressure system down into the Panhandle. This weather pattern is not expected to affect South Plains weather for the next several days.

AN EDITORIAL:

Congress Fills Till To Brim

FOR A WHILE there, taxpayers had delightful visions that maybe Congress finally had stumbled onto a way to hold down spending: Get itself hopelessly deadlocked.

Senate and House differences over Congressional pay and over how and when to borrow how much money to pay for abortions temporarily dried up operating funds for several departments.

The world, of course, was waiting with bated breath to see how Congress finally would resolve the all-important question of whether (a) to leave members' pay at $57,500 a year, (b) raise it by 5.5 percent, (c) raise it by 12 percent, (d) find an agreeable compromise or (e) none of the above.

EVEN MORE IMPORTANT, if that's possible, were the differences in the way the House and Senate would treat taxpayer-paid abortions.

As best we understand it, neither house this year was holding out for the taxpayers to pick up the tab any time an unwed mother-to-be decided to go the abortion route.

Instead, the House wanted to pay for abortions only if the prospective mother's life would be threatened. But the Senate was equally adamant that there should be public financing of abortions in cases of rape, incest or threatened damage to a pregnant woman's health.

AN EDITORIAL:

A Shakedown Over SALT?

SALT II ISNT out of the woods by any means.

That assessment as Senate hearings wound near a close seems warranted on several counts.

But, one of the "drawbacks" to the treaty, linking it with the Russian armed force in Cuba could backfire for those who oppose the pact for numerous other reasons.

In brief, the "let's do something" about the Cuban-Russian shenanigans could be used as a smokescreen by those wanting to gain approval for the document.

AS THE NEW week of debate over the treaty started, Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, urged the Senate to link approval of SALT to assurances that Soviet troops in Cuba "are not engaged in a combat role."

In a Senate speech, Sen. Church, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, which has been holding hearings on the pact, said:

"It will be said that the adoption of this condition will make the treaty hostage to a satisfactory Russian response respecting the brigade and its use."

"I say without this condition, the treaty cannot garner the two-thirds vote necessary for its ratification."

WE WOULD GO one step further. And that is even with a satisfactory solution of the Soviet-Cuban issue, there are still numerous reasons not to accept SALT II in its present form.

Those reasons—inability to verify without a doubt what Russia is doing, the disparity between U.S. and Soviet heavy missiles, the Backfire Bomber and limits on the U.S. Cruise Missile—need clarification and in most instances changing before the treaty should be approved.

To place too much emphasis on just the Soviet combat brigade risks having President Carter, or even the Russians, claim—with or without verification—that the "status quo" has indeed been changed, therefore the "major" roadblock to SALT II thus has been removed.

THIS IS the danger involved in making the presence of Soviet troops in Cuba the major issue.

While that is a factor—and an important one—it must not be used to delude the Senate into overlooking those other issues just enumerated.

Nor should it mislead the American people still concerned with the fact that reputable former high officials, including men like former NATO Gen. Alexander Haig feel that SALT II gives Russia a distinct advantage in the years to come.

This nation, especially under the present administration, has given too much away to the Russians already.

THEY ALSO have social consequences. Transsexuals not only demand the right to regard themselves as women, they go to court to force others to treat them as such.

The expansion of one person's freedom turns out to mean the diminution of another's.

The rhetoric of individual freedom disguises all this, but we should bear them in mind when discussing things like "victimless" crimes.

It is easy to say a man has the right to take his own life, so long as you forget that he may also be killing a husband, a father, a friend. Survivors are victims, too. So is Richard Raskin's son.

SUICIDE CHEAPENS life in general: an act may be wrong not only for what it does but for what it implies. Viewed reductively, genocide is only aggregate murder.

But its real horror is its implication that someone may decide that others' lives are worthless.

For similar reasons many people are horrified by the freedom to abort. The law now permits one person arbitrarily to assign value to another's life. The Supreme Court didn't say a fetus's life is worthless.

It said something more sinister: that there can be no objective truth on the subject. In trying to leave the matter up to the individual, it has thrown in doubt what an individual is.

A fetus can't define itself, let alone make its definition stick. It is the victim of fluid social values. Its death is among the things modern man can freely buy and sell.

Unable to resolve the impasse, Congress temporarily held up appropriations to operate seven major departments and numerous smaller agencies.

IN ADDITION TO threatening real hardship on some worthy recipients of federal payroll and benefit checks, the impasse affected programs operated by the Departments of Defense, Agriculture, Housing and Urban Development, Interior, Transportation, Labor and Health, Education and Welfare.

That's serious business in some cases, but taxpayers couldn't help but wonder if maybe it wasn't a blessing in disguise.

Could, just maybe, there be any hope that in the absence of funding Somebody Up There would discover a billion here and a billion there that really wasn't being spent for programs that are absolutely necessary?

NAH, WE KNEW better than to hope. Even if it meant agreement on how underpaid they are for doing such a wonderful job, senators and representatives were certain to sooner or later pour in all of the funds to which the bureaucrats have become accustomed.

Even if it means borrowing it at today's usurious rates of interest and spending it to further fuel the inflation that Congress has been too busy to notice.

VIRGINIA PAYETTE

Will You Survive?

DALLAS—Here's one for all you million-mile macho types who climb aboard a plane, open your newspapers, and ignore the safety instructions rattled off by the flight attendant. This may show what a veteran flier you are; but it could also be the death of you.

So fasten your seat belts and pay attention to a "born-again" passenger. When I think of the millions of miles I've flown without even bothering to find out what kind of plane is shooting me through the air at 600 miles per, I get a bad case of the twitches.

My flying attitude was probably the same as yours. After hearing that life-jacket-oxygen-mask spiel for 10, these many takeoffs, I'm as bored with it as the attendant seems to be going through the mechanical motions. I always get the feeling that she's mentally making up her grocery list.

I WILL EVEN plead guilty to a bit of the "macho" thing. It tickled my vanity to impress the other passengers with my can't-be-bothered approach to takeoffs and landings (especially those I've slept through). Showed 'em I was a real jet-setter, by gosh.

Well, no more. That little old lady you see checking exit handles on your next flight will probably be me.

And if I appear to be talking to myself, that's because I am memorizing the diagram of the aircraft and the instructions on the safety cards I use to only for bookmarks.

What brought this all on was an unfamiliar magazine that crossed my desk the other day, the September issue of Quest 7/89. And the article that caught my eye was "How to Survive a Plane Crash."

I'VE ALWAYS had this fatalistic notion that nobody ever did: that if your plane goes down, that's it. I was wrong about that, too. But whether I live through it or not is mostly up to me.

(Assuming, of course, that we don't plow into a mountain or explode in midair.)

Most crashes, it turns out, happen either on landing or takeoff, and how I handle myself in the first 90 seconds, says Sarah Uzzell-Rindlaub, is the difference between a funeral and future flights.

You want to pay attention to this lady because, among other things, she's an ex-flight attendant who has lived through two flaming crashes herself. Now she's selling safety full-time as an "emergency procedures instructor" for United Airlines at their training center in Denver.

WHAT KILLS most passengers is smoke inhalation. And the victims die needlessly because they fail to get out of the plane fast enough after a crash.

"They didn't study their safety information cards," Miss Uzzell-Rindlaub says, "so when the cabin begins to fill with toxic smoke, they slip into a state of helpless shock. Negative panic sets in. Without any idea of what to do or where to go, they just freeze in their seats."

Here's another surprise: First-time passengers are more likely to survive a crash than veteran fliers.

That's because they're a little scared, so they listen carefully when the attendant goes through the safety information and points out the exits. And while we old pros are reading our papers, they're studying their safety cards.

SO WHAT DO you do to survive a crash? Well, first you follow the basics:

1. Make sure no baggage, tray or reclining seat blocks your path into the aisle. You need a clear track to make a fast getaway.

2. Read the safety cards; memorize the closest exits; and remember that not all planes have the same layout. Even the 727 you're on today may have different doors from the 727 you flew on yesterday.

3. Check the handles on the four nearest exits. Find out which ones rotate to the right and which to the left. Some may even pull up or down; and some are on the wall next to the door. Find out ahead of time.

4. Check out your flotation gear. Seat cushions or life vests?

5. Fasten your seat belt low and tight over your hipbones. Practice unfastening it in a hurry.

6. PRACTICE THE brace position (head between knees, hands clasping ankles) to shield yourself from flying debris.

Once you've crashed—and lived through it—the next thing to do is get out of the plane in the next 90 seconds.

1. If the cabin fills with smoke, keep your head at arm-rest level and crawl out.

2. Head for the nearest exit or hole in the fuselage. If it's a chute, make sure it's inflated and jump onto it.

3. If your exit is a window over the wing, step through leg first and slide off the rear wing-flap. An escape rope? Hand-under-hand to the ground.

There's more, plus pictures to show you the brace positions, escape slides, etc., and my advice to you, before you buy your next airline ticket, is to get yourself to your neighborhood newsstand and buy the September Quest 7/89. It could be the best $1.75 you'll ever spend.

...Pass It On

ARGUMENT CONTINUES over whether wolves ever attack people. Some authorities claim they don't. But a report out of the Soviet Union would suggest otherwise, even though it dates back quite a way.

In December of 1927 in the Russian village of Pilovo, packs of wolves allegedly attacked the town dogs first, then the horses, quickly thereafter any humans caught out of doors.

The wolf packs grew larger. They clawed their way through weak places in the houses, even battered down doors, and devoured whole families.

Border patrolmen spotted the wolves and called in the army. But for 36 hours, those wolves annihilated all the mammals they could get to, including people. Or such is the story.

Only state where the men's average life expectancy is more than 70 years is Hawaii.

Airplanes owned by U.S. corporations outnumber airplanes owned by commercial airlines by about 20 to one.

Given a choice between tuna and mackerel, the typical cat will always turn first to the tuna. Why I don't know. But studies prove it.

Flight From Reality

WASHINGTON—Against the military's better judgment, the Carter administration is continuing in slightly modified form a strategy that, kept secret from Japan, would "swing" substantial U.S. naval forces from the western Pacific to Europe if the Soviets attacked NATO.

This confirms the "swing strategy," one of the U.S. government's most closely held secrets for 25 years. Plans to shift half of U.S. naval power to Europe if war seems imminent trouble Pentagon professionals in two ways:

First, it underlines U.S. naval weakness in coping with a global emergency; second, it is less than candid in dealing with Japan (which, if it

Two To Tangle

WASHINGTON—Take your pick. Would you believe Vice President Walter Mondale for President? Mondale resigning his office? And—a real blockbuster—Mondale as Ted Kennedy's running mate for the Democratic nomination?

I do not pull the reader's leg. Every one of those rumors has been floated in political alleys from New Hampshire to California as a "you-cannot-on-it" possibility.

All of them support the gossip around Washington that President Carter and Mondale aren't getting along these days.

Mondale camp followers whisper that their man feels Carter is too weak and a convert to neo-conservatism, whatever that is. In saloons and parlors, Carter people outside the White House claim Carter doesn't think Mondale works hard enough at his job or at plugging his boss for re-election.

IN SHORT, there are enough rumors around to satisfy the most psychopathic members of any political community. But they merit the light of print because in the atmosphere created by the Carter-Kennedy dog fight almost anything could be true.

The rumors also reflect the real and growing liberal dissatisfaction with Jimmy Carter.

Moreover, Ted Kennedy is more Fritz Mondale's cup of ideological tea. Kennedy is acceptable to the New Deal-Fair Deal-New Frontier crowd. Carter is the leader of his own personal party.

His ideology is heavily evangelical. He is a savior of souls afflicted with "malaise," with little time for preserving the Franklin Roosevelt-John Kennedy heritage.

THUS I FIND credible the report from several Mondale sources that the President gave Mondale a tongue-lashing for his failure to mention his boss in a recent speech before an important Democratic dinner in Los Angeles.

Mondale devoted his entire speech to plugging Sen. Alan Cranston, a Kennedy liberal, for re-election.

There is also a bit of contrepemps between Carter and Mondale on the subject of Kennedy's behavior after the fatal accident at Chappaquiddick. Mondale had urged Carter not to mention the accident.

But at one of his patented "town meetings" in New York City, Carter made a point of declaring that he had never panicked in a crisis.

This time, it was Mondale's turn to take umbrage. His people say he was "appalled" at what he saw as the President's insensitivity.

BUT CARTER no longer will be guided by Mondale and others who consider mention of Chappaquiddick a no-no. He's in a brawl with Kennedy because the Massachusetts senator has questioned his capacity for leadership.

As White House Press Secretary Jody Powell put it: "When an attack is made on the President, we have to be in a position to respond. If you want to talk about leadership, then we'll talk about leadership."

So Carter will take off the white gloves any time he feels the need to do so. And, says a White House aide: "If Fritz Mondale doesn't like it, that's his problem."

new truth, could be urged to step up its own defenses.

Nevertheless, continuation of the post-Korean War swing strategy was recommended by the Pentagon's Consolidated Guidance Study No. 8 (CG8) of May 14.

It did urge that U.S. replies to NATO's annual defense planning questionnaires (DPQs) be amended to make more flexible just how many ships would "swing."

But secrecy with Tokyo was endorsed: "It is recommended that the U.S. not announce the DPQ commitment, whether modified or not, to its Asian allies."

This recommendation is grounded on the bleak assessment, quoted in the document, by the U.S. commander-in-chief, Pacific (CINCPAC), of what would happen if half his fleet was sent to Europe:

"...He would have to turn his back on U.S. alliance commitments and become totally defensive in order to survive in the Pacific."

PARTICULARLY UNSETTLING is the counterpoint of comments by the military, peppered throughout, mostly as asterisks and parenthetical notes. For example, this footnote:

"The joint staff believes we do not have sufficient assets to perform all missions assigned in a global war." The alternative "is to program additional forces."

Time and again, conclusions of CG8 (directed by Dr. Lynn E. Davis, a deputy assistant secretary of defense) are challenged by military professionals. A footnote from NATO commanders suggests the "swing" forces would arrive in Europe too late.

IN FORWARDING CG8 to Defense Secretary Harold Brown, Assistant Secretary David E. McGiffert noted that the Joint Chiefs of Staff (JCS) "believe the long-term solution is to obtain the forces required to make the 'swing' unnecessary."

Nevertheless, McGiffert called the military rationale for the swing strategy "sound."

What did trouble McGiffert, Davis and other authors of the document is what McGiffert flatly calls "subterfuge" in dealing with Japan.

CG8 rejects the naval buildup favored by the JCS, and warns that "any U.S. initiative to retreat from the swing concept probably could be viewed in NATO capitals as...an indication of confusion and indecision among U.S. policy makers."

Yet, the document warns that "public acknowledgment" of the swing strategy could "further reinforce" Asian notions of a "general U.S. withdrawal from the region."

The backdrop: consternation over Carter's now modified withdrawal of U.S. ground forces from Korea.

Specifically, CG8 warns that a public discussion would "strengthen pressures for Japan to go neutral or rearm."

Here is the issue between Carter appointees such as Lynn Davis and the professionals, both military and civilian, who think neutrality out of the question and want Japanese defense spending encouraged by telling Tokyo the truth. But Davis and her State Department allies are wary of Japanese military expansion.

THIS CONFLICT leads to the flights from reality characteristic of Carter administration defense policy papers. Arguing for the swing strategy, the paper claims "a primary Japanese concern is whether she becomes directly involved" in a U.S.-Soviet conflict.

"...while Japan would undoubtedly be disturbed if the carriers on the (U.S.) West Coast headed for the Mediterranean rather than for WESTPAC (the western Pacific), she would be more disturbed if U.S. carriers...prepared to initiate attacks against Petropavlovsk, and these preparations resulted in pre-emptive Soviet attacks against U.S. bases in Japan."

Here is a family resemblance to presidential review memorandum (PRM) 10, which in 1977 envisioned withdrawal from one-third of Germany if the Soviets attack, and President Carter's Oct. 1 grudging acceptance of growing Soviet military power in Cuba.

Being forced by weakness to deceive one ally to help another adds another chapter to U.S. decline.

Unlawful Flight Tacked On To Charges Against Murder Suspect

By JACK DOUGLAS
Avalanche Journal Staff

Joseph Michael DePauw, charged with the murder of a Lubbock businessman, is now wanted on a federal charge of unlawful flight to avoid prosecution after allegedly kidnapping a man near Amarillo and forcing him to drive to San Jose, Calif., according to the FBI.

The 28-year-old suspect, wanted by police here for the murder of sign company owner Oland Kenneth Anderson, became a target for federal agents Sunday when a warrant for his arrest was issued from Lubbock's FBI office.

"It's slightly unusual for a warrant to be issued on a Sunday," an FBI agent in the San Jose area said. "But he's very badly wanted."

San Jose police indicated they believe a 21-year-old Dallas accounting clerk, who told them Friday night that he picked up a hitchhiker — suspected to be DePauw — near Amarillo, and was later forced at gunpoint to drive his passenger to San Jose, which turned out to be a five-state, five-day journey.

Cary D. Olsen, an accounting clerk with the Market Center Holiday Inn in Dallas, told California police his passenger in Albuquerque, N.M., displayed a revolver and said, "I'm going to San Jose and so are you." Once in Santa Monica, Calif., the hitchhiker reportedly told Olsen, "I'm a murderer."

An FBI agent said Olsen was thought to be en route to Dallas Monday. "I don't know what Cary was doing in Amarillo," the employee said.

Bill Gergurich, area commander for the San Jose police, said Monday DePauw was still at large in the city. A police spokesman said the suspect has a brother and a former girlfriend living in the city of about 600,000, but that neither had seen him.

Olsen told police he attempted several times to escape from his abductor before the passenger asked to be let out of the car Friday in San Jose.

"We stopped for gas at least a dozen times," Olsen said in an interview with a California newspaper. "I wrote 'help' on my credit card several times. He thought I was just writing my signature."

"But none of the station attendants apparently realized what was happening," Olsen said his abductor kept his weapon in his waistband most of the time. "But he pulled it out several times to remind me he had it."

Olsen, who described the man as a "weirdo," said they traveled for five days, but at only four times.

The victim told police he managed to escape his abductor in Las Vegas, Nev., but that he accidentally locked his keys in his car trunk and was discovered by the kidnapper moments later.

Olsen said he tried to escape a second time on a beach when both men were out of the car. "He had me pull right onto the sand at a beach," Olsen said. "It was 10 miles from anybody. I jumped into the car and tried to get away, but the car got stuck in the sand."

The man added, "DePauw kept drinking beer all the time. Constantly. He would go through a 12-pack in a couple of hours, then stop and get more and keep on drinking."

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: "Bemused in Berlin's" statement that an "important change has occurred in American women these past 20 years" was an insult to every woman on the face of the earth. He referred to an unsightly physical deformity known as "Balloon Butt" or "Pillow Hips."

The idiot asked, "How does a woman who must know she is being observed from all angles feel about the shape she is in? If she doesn't care, does it mean she is mentally unhealthy? If she does care and refuses to remedy the situation with diet and exercises, does it mean she is a slob?"

Would you please ask that male chauvinist pig if he has looked at American MEN lately? Or in the mirror maybe. Then suggest that he reread that last paragraph and substitute HE instead of SHE.

What's different about American women these days is that they refuse to accept a double standard of judgment from sickies like him. If we are willing to overlook their beer bellies, balding pates, hanging flab and varicose veins, they should be able to accept us as we are — "Balloon Butt" included. Only perfect people have a right to criticize the imperfections of others — Burlington, Vt.

Dear Burlington: I received a load of angry responses from women who had a lot to say on this subject. But you said it best. "Bemused" doesn't sound like he's wrapped very tight, and I was delighted that so many readers socked it to him.

Dear B.G.: I applaud your mother's courage. I'm sure she didn't feel much like giving a party, but she followed your dad's instructions. As for the aunts — give 'em a deaf ear and the Deep Six.

Dear Ann: You once printed a letter from a woman who felt hurt because her husband never blessed her when she sneezed. You said some people are "Gesundheiter," others are not — depending on how they were brought up.

Last Sunday in the middle of the pastor's sermon my husband felt loose a window-rattling sneeze. All eyes were on him. He nearly died of embarrassment.

The pastor, in a rich, melodious voice, said, "God bless you!" Everyone laughed. My husband felt a tremendous sense of relief and gratitude. In the past my husband was not a "Gesundheiter," but I'll bet he will be from now on. — We Live In N.J.

Dear N.J.: Your pastor is a gentleman. God bless HIM.

It's not always easy to recognize love, especially the first time around. Acquaint yourself with the guidelines. Read Ann Landers' booklet, "Love or Sex and How to Tell the Difference." For a copy, mail 50 cents and a long, self-addressed envelope with your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Here is another problem hand from our British friends. The bidding is poor but fancy. North's jump to three hearts is one of those splinter bids designed to show spade support and not more than one heart.

South ruffs the opening heart lead in dummy, notes that seven spades or seven diamonds were both very good contracts and then steps to figure out how to play safe for six spades.

After the heart ruff, the safety play for six is for declarer to play a spade to his ace, lead a small spade to dummy and finesse the 10 spot. This play would cost him the contract if East produced the jack of spades and was able to give his partner a diamond ruff, but that would only happen if diamonds were breaking 4-0.

After the play of the spade 10, South makes seven since West holds the jack. If South had played queen, the hand would have collapsed and he would be down at least two.

Ask the Experts

We have been asked several times what a splinter bid is. A splinter bid is an unnecessary jump in an unbid suit. It shows strong support for partner's bid suit and either a singleton or void in the splinter suit. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

and shopping's fun again for Ms. Barnwell

Lots of little pleasures—like shopping for a smaller size—are part of the joy of attaining a slender figure. Ray Barnwell, for example, enjoys looking for new clothes now that she has lost 60 pounds on our proven program of weight reduction. A petite 113 pounds, she slips easily into size 6—and that's much more exciting than trying on the size 18 (or larger) she wore before she started treatments at Pat Walker's.

"After years of being overweight and trying all types of diet plans, I discovered a truly workable solution," Ms. Barnwell writes. "Pat Walker's is helping me take off the weight plus the inches I have struggled with all my life. . . For the first time, I'm getting down to the size I want to be and feel I can control my weight without being on a starvation diet."

Pilot Club To Observe Founders Day

The Pilot Club of Lubbock will join with other clubs throughout the world in observing Founder's Day Thursday with a dinner and program at the Lubbock Women's Club, 2020 Broadway.

Charter members of the local Pilot Club, Evelyn Clewell and Jewel Huie, will join others in presenting the program.

Pilot International was founded 58 years ago by a group of 40 women who saw the need for a service organization for women.

The international organization now boasts some 20,000 members, whose projects extend not only to the communities of the members but also to national and international needs.

With the theme "Growth, Friendship and Service, the Treasures of Pilot," the Lubbock chapter sponsors such projects as the baby room at Carver Heights Day Nursery, a scholarship for a medical student at the Texas Tech University School of Medicine and support of Meals On Wheels.

The newest interest of the group is the formation of a local organization, the Epilepsy Society of the South Plains, with a view to increasing public awareness and knowledge of this disease as well as assisting epileptics and their families.

Mrs. Ella Mae Dever is president of the local organization.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY DR. PAUL G. DONOHUE

Dear Dr. Donohue: Recently, I fell and hit my head on a concrete deck. I was out for a few seconds and when I came to, my arms and legs felt tingly. I couldn't move them. I laid down and when I got up my chest, neck and the back of my head hurt.

I never told my parents about this and have not seen a doctor. My chest still feels like I have a sunburn and I still get sharp pains along my collar bone every so often. I've been getting dizzy a lot and have headaches. My question is: Should I see a doctor? — S.E.E.

My answer is, yes, see a doctor — promptly. Note: Parents should be aware of such symptoms, which are common with spine injuries, especially in this season of violent contact sports — football, hockey, etc. Any symptoms that persist after even a minor head or neck injury need to be investigated.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Is shingles (herpes zoster) contagious? Does it require hospital care, a nursing home, a skilled nurse, or can it be taken care of at home by the family? — S.S.

susceptible to the herpes virus that causes it.

Most adults are protected because of previous exposure that may or may not have caused the great discomfort usually associated with shingles. A childhood case of chicken pox provides the same protection. Chicken pox is caused by the same virus, herpes zoster. In some people, the virus lurks in a hidden state. Later in life, it comes out of hiding to show itself as shingles.

Ordinarily, shingles can be handled at home. Rarely, hospital care is required.

Your other shingles questions are answered in detail in the booklet, "The Facts About Shingles," which I'm sending on. Other readers can obtain a copy by sending 25 cents to cover printing and handling, along with a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Donohue, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

Dear Dr. Donohue: My daughter-in-law is a "vegan" and plans to raise her baby this way. What is your advice? — Mrs. R.T.

I trust you know what the term vegan (VEDJ-eh-an) means. For those who do not, it is a total vegetarian — no meat, no eggs, no dairy products. The adult vegan might get along with careful attention to vital vitamin and mineral supplement needs. For the infant this would be most difficult. Breast feeding might forestall nutritional problems in such months, but my advice would be for this mother to seek the advice of a pediatrician before she starts her infant on such a road. The nutritional consequences can be devastating.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

For Halloween I make jack-o'-lantern features from white poster board and a black felt-tipped marker and use double-faced sticky tape to attach to the pumpkin.

After Halloween remove the features and make a Thanksgiving turkey using brown construction paper and a felt-tipped marker. Cut a large fan shape for tail, make two wings and a head and tape on.

After Thanksgiving, I cook and freeze the pumpkin and make pies for Christmas.

How's that for conserving? — Conservative Hoosier, Naomi Swan

250 miles.

Once when we were crossing the Canadian border we had our meat cooking and the fellow at the border wanted to know if there was anyone in the trailer. We said no, but he wanted to look anyway, because he smelled the meat and thought someone was in the trailer.

We realized what he was looking for so we showed him where the good smells were coming from and he had to call all the other border patrolmen over to see this idea. And all the people that had backed up behind us had to come over. It was really a lot of fun! — E.R.

Then we decided to leave it in the fridge and see just how long it would keep crisp.

You may not believe this, but the lettuce has been there over three weeks and it still just as fresh and crisp as the day we put it in there.

If this sounds like I'm stretching the truth, just try it! — Dixie G.

We did, and what ya know, it does work — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

I have three suggestions for the "Golden Agers" who have problems with their hands, knees and feet.

Use a sturdy armless child's chair to sit on while running the sweeper, cleaning the kitchen floor, or to get something on lower shelves of the cabinet.

A child's play mop or a mop with a shortened handle is great to clean and dust floors as you sit on the chair.

Use a pair of scissors in the kitchen — it will cut just about anything and is easier on your hands.

Thanking you, dear lady, for your daily help to all of us. — G.H.T.

Thank you, my dear, for those words of advice.

I'm sure there are people out there that can use these hints even though they are not "Golden Agers" as you so lovingly put it. — Heloise

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

DEAR HELOISE:

When we used to travel (many moons ago, before the gas shortage) we had an old pickup and cooked our meat on the manifold.

My husband made a pan that fitted on the manifold and we wrapped the meat in foil and then put a piece of glass cloth over that. It was usually done after

DEAR HELOISE:

We have a small kitchen with a fridge where I work.

Some time ago I brought a head of lettuce to work for us gals (who are always on a diet).

We washed and cored the lettuce and put it in a large, two-pound, plastic margarine bowl. Of course, the lid would not fit over this, so we used aluminum foil to cover the bowl.

At first we were amazed that the lettuce kept so fresh and crisp for a week. After all, you do get tired of lettuce!

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

By DUANE HOWELL

DIRECTORS OF THE PLAINS COTTON Growers, Inc., at a board meeting here last week, went on record for continuing the 25-county organization's strong support of Cotton Inc.

The PCG board also formulated recommendations for 1980 cotton program provisions and voted to support a proposal aimed at providing more adequate funds for commercial export credit financing through the Commodity Credit Corp.

Cotton Inc. is in the process of revising its operational procedures in answer to criticism resulting from a recent investigation by the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Office of Inspector General.

Dukes Wooters, president of Cotton Inc., also has been criticized, but the PCG board made no formal comment on that subject. This, PCG officials said, apparently reflected the PCG board's desire "not to interfere with the CI board of directors in matters related to personnel."

THE PCG'S RESOLUTION ON COTTON INC. said research and market development "are vital to the future of cotton" and added that CI has "made significant and highly beneficial contributions" to the industry. There is no other mechanism in existence or in prospect, the PCG said, that can continue the work of CI on a comparable scale.

Therefore, under the resolution, the PCG board voted to:

- "Express its support for Cotton Inc."
- "Urge that the Cotton Board, CI board of directors, CI staff and the (USDA) act expeditiously and in unison to do all things possible to make CI serve cotton producer interests even more effectively."
- "Appeal to all organizations and individuals with an interest in the industry to join PCG in recognizing, preserving and enhancing the inestimable value of Cotton Inc. to the U. S. cotton industry."

One of the 26 board members present requested a roll call vote and then voted against the resolution. His was the only negative vote. He emphasized he wasn't voting against the cotton research-promotion program per se but wanted to "protest the way the CI board is elected" and was afraid a positive vote might in some way be construed as in support of the Wooters-Boswell incident.

ON THE 1980 COTTON PROGRAM, THE PCG board voted to recommend:

- A 15 percent voluntary set-aside, with "payments sufficient to attract producer participation."
- Loan and target price levels at the highest figures permitted by law.
- New legislation to prevent the loan in 1980 from falling below the base rate of 50.2 cents for the current marketing year.
- Continuation of loans on seed cotton stored in ricks or modules.

The CCC's commercial export credit financing for agricultural products currently is funded by annual appropriations from the U. S. Treasury. Repayments of principal and interest are returned to the Treasury.

Since inception of the program in 1956, it has consistently returned a profit to the U. S. taxpayer, said Donald A. Johnson, PCG executive vice president. But requests for CCC export credits are far greater than the budgeted funds, he added.

The proposal approved by the PCG would allow loan repayments to go into a CCC capital credit account to be used for future loans. Once the fund reached $3 billion, CCC credit financing would be removed from the budgetary process. The program then would be self-funding, with all repayments continuing to be available for further CCC commodity export financing.

AN ANNOUNCEMENT IS EXPECTED within the next several days on the 1980 feed grain program, with the current thinking in the Carter administration still in favor of having no set-aside.

J. Dawson Ahalt, chairman of the USDA's World Food and Agricultural Outlook and Situation Board, commented on this at a meeting Monday of the Food Marketing Institute and said the department's crop report released Friday has caused no change in thinking within the administration.

He declined further comment on details of the program and said it is uncertain whether an announcement also may be made on changes in the U. S. grain reserve program.

Ahalt also said the farmer-owned grain reserve may be rebuilt before the end of the year.

COTTON FUTURES CLOSED LOWER Monday on late commission house selling which absorbed scale-down trade buying, floor brokers said.

Final prices in the front three months were down 39 to 81 points. Some trade buying in the afternoon was thought to have represented mill fixations. Earlier, trade buying pushed nearby to gains of as much as 40 points in December.

Brokers said the early firmness was a mild surprise, following last Friday's USDA cotton report, which generally was interpreted as somewhat bearish. Some analysts said at the end of Monday's session they see no big near-term break in the market, however, so long as export demand remains strong and cotton hard to buy.

The USDA, in a supply-demand report issued after the close, hiked its export estimate for the current marketing year to 6.5 million bales, up from 6.0 million last month and 6.2 million (480-pound net weight bales) last season.

As of Sept. 30, export commitments had reached a bulging 4,842,200 running bales and substantial sales are believed to have been made since then to the Far East.

THE USDA ESTIMATED DOMESTIC USAGE at 6.2 million bales, unchanged from last month but down from 6.4 million last season. Total offtake, exports plus domestic consumption, was projected at 12.7 million bales, up from 12.2 million last month and 12.5 million last season.

Last Friday's crop report of 14,356,000 bales, up 111,000 from the previous month, boosted the estimated supply to about 18.3 million bales, counting beginning stocks of 4.0 million.

But the bigger market offtake now foreseen is expected to more than offset the increase in the crop estimate, leaving the carryover at the end of this marketing year at 5.7 million bales, down from last month's projection of 6.1 million.

An "unaccounted for difference" — the difference between ending stocks based on Census Bureau data and the preceding season's supply less distribution — is reflected in some of the figures, which in some cases also are rounded and which may not tally out precisely.

Livestock Futures Close 150 Lower To 55 Higher

By Reuters
CHICAGO — Cattle futures closed the limit level of 150 lower in October to 55 higher in distant October. Sales totaled 28,732 cars.

The market uncovered support after plunging more than 10 cents in less than two weeks.

Selling was triggered by weakness in cash cattle and beef and by continued liquidation in the nearby contract.

There have been 1,877 deliveries thus far. Wholesale beef was off 2 to 2 1/2 cents at 96 1/4 cents a pound, f.o.b. river points. Cash cattle were off 50 cents to $3 with the best top $67.75 per hundredweight at Joliet Slaughter was 131,000 head. About 11,400 head are expected to-day at the major markets.

Feeder cattle futures closed 50 to 110 lower led by April on 3,070 contracts.

The market stiffened after slumping the 150 limit the third day in a row.

Early selling forced prices to two-month lows. Selling was prompted by weakness in beef and cash feeder cattle.

Deliveries, total 98 thus far. Cash feeder cattle were off $1 to $6 with the best top $117 per hundredweight at San Antonio. Receipts at the major terminals today are expected to total 1,800 head.

Hog futures closed 95 lower to 20 higher on 6,327 lots.

June and August were off the most with only thinly-traded distant December higher. The market fell 150 limit in June through October before firming.

Prices skidded under the influence of continued heavy kill and weakness in cash hogs and pork products.

Wholesale hams were unchanged to off 2 at 67 to 75 cents a pound, f.o.b. river. Cash hogs were off 50 cents to $2 with the best top $36 per hundredweight at Indianapolis. Kill was 364,000 head. The major markets are expecting about 30,500 head today.

Pork belly (bacon) futures closed 52 higher to 50 lower on 5,164 cars.

The market fell 165 before rebounding to the day's highs at the close.

Much of the late buying was technical after recent sharp losses to two-month lows. Traders noted heavy pace of slaughter and weakness in cash hogs and bellies as influencing selling.

Wholesale bacon was unchanged to off 1 1/2 at 28 1/2 to 30 cents a pound, f.o.b. river.

Speakers Address Annual Dairy Short Course

By KATHLEEN HARRIS
Avalanche-Journal Farm Writer

The primary goal of the food industry should be new product development," Dr. Howard Zimmerman of Dallas, Southland Corp. director of research, development and quality assurance, said here Monday.

Zimmerman spoke to about 50 dairy industry representatives and Texas Tech University students at the 31st annual dairy short course at the Hilton Inn.

Products are very expensive to develop," Zimmerman, noting the majority of products now on the supermarket shelves were non-existent 20 years ago, said the days when cornflakes were the only dry cereal available, for example, are gone.

Jim Adamson of Austin, president of the Texas Dairy Products Institute, compared the dairy industry of the United States with that of the Scandinavian countries which were recently toured by the institute.

While the technology is much the same," Adamson noted, "most Scandinavian dairy producing and processing businesses are cooperatives."

Dependence on the world dairy products market by the smaller countries causes additional differences from the domestic-grown U.S. dairy industry, he said.

Dairy Products Institute executive vice president Glenn Brown of Austin discussed highlights of the 1979 Texas legislature and Donna Huffington of Lubbock, director of quality control at Bell Dairy Products, discussed quality control.

The Texas uniform milk inspection program was discussed by Hugh Rundle of Austin, director of the Texas Department of Health milk and dairy products division, while the "question of balance" was discussed by Irwin Glover of Lubbock, power sales engineer for Southwestern Public Service Co.

Three food technology students were presented scholar ships at the closing banquet.

Pat Logan Moore of Lubbock received the J. J. Williamson scholarship. Odell Shadden of Lubbock was given the Dallas-Fort Worth Dairy Society scholarship and Jim Smylie of Snyder was presented the Texas-New Mexico Dairy Society scholarship.

Speaking at the dinner, Dr. J. Wayland Bennett, associate dean of agricultural sciences at Tech, discussed producers and consumers in an inflationary economy.

The short course was sponsored by the departments of food technology and animal science at Tech.

Bentsen Testifies Against Ban

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress was asked Thursday to partially lift a ban on sales across state lines of meat from packing plants that are monitored only by state inspectors.

The Agriculture Department's top food-safety officer opposed the request, made by Texas and Alabama officials and executives of small meat packing firms.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, told the Senate Agriculture Committee's subcommittee on general legislation that the 1957 Wholesome Meat Act discriminates against small plants. The act set up a system of inspection of the slaughtering, processing and distribution of livestock and meat products.

Only products from federally inspected plants can be sold in interstate commerce or exported. If a state has inspection standards "equal to" federal standards, it may inspect plants but the meat from those plants cannot be sent outside the state.

A bill Bentsen has sponsored would partly lift the ban by allowing such meat to be sold to federally inspected plants for further processing before sale in other states or countries.

Donald L. Houston, administrator of the food safety and quality service, said the Carter administration opposes the bill. "Equal to" does not mean "identical," he said, so trade agreements based on federal inspection would have to be renegotiated.

The change also "will lead to substantial problems related to administration, enforcement and duplication of services," Houston said.

Foy McCasland, chief of the bureau of veterinary public health in Texas, argued that most owners of small plants prefer state inspection to the federal standards, which are geared to large meatpackers.

'Sweden' Termed Disappointing

Rest Of PBS 'World' Series Impressive

BOSTON (AP) — Viewers impressed by the season-opener of public television's "World," a British import on the death of defector Georgi Markov, might find themselves switching channels after a glimpse at Tuesday night's locally produced documentary on Sweden.

The WGBH-TV production is a random overview of what went wrong with the Swedish dream of a "society that has everything," a subject in itself as hackneyed as the way it is handled by producer-narrator Ofrá Bikel.

An insider at Boston's WGBH, sponsor of the 17-week series, concedes "Sweden: Waiting for Spring" is "soft" in comparison with standard "World" fare. But she describes the documentary as "real pretty — like a Fellini film."

Despite "Sweden: Waiting for Spring," the rest of the "World" season looks promising, if the programs are as good as their titles sound.

On the calendar are documentaries on Soviet television, Algerian migrant workers, boat people in Hong Kong and a journalist's search for the story behind the public execution of an Arab prince.

"Yulya's Diary," scheduled for Jan. 8, looks particularly intriguing. Based on the diary of an imprisoned Russian dissident poet, the dramatized documentary stars Russian actress Victoria Fyodorova, whose mother was jailed for her affair with an American naval officer, the actress' father.

The hour-long programs are scheduled to air at 9 p.m. Tuesdays, following "Nova." WGBH's highly successful scientific series. The time slot, which may vary by station, is not coincidental.

"We felt right along that because "Nova" was such an established program, that hopefully we'd pick up 'Nova' viewers," says WGBH spokeswoman Terry Park.

Many of the films in the "World" package are acquisitions from the British Broadcasting Corp., as was last week's premiere show, which traced the mysterious death of Bulgarian defector Markov to behind the Iron Curtain.

CBS' "60 Minutes" deflated the "World" balloon a bit Sunday before the premiere program Oct. 9 when it broadcast, apparently coincidentally, an account of the Markov killing.

It is unfortunate that for the second show of the season, "World" producers chose "Sweden." The opening is dreary, with the producer-narrator introducing her subject of a troubled Sweden through vague references to a bleak countryside empty of springtime lovers, the strains of the "Elvira Madigan" theme in the background.

The film then moves on to different categories of Swedish society — the elderly, unemployed, sick and addicted — showing bored faces, disenchanted youth, winos in a park.

What separates Sweden's problems from those of the rest of the industrialized world? Presumably, the myth of what the Swedish government promised back in the 1960s: a social-democratic state where all people would be cared for.

Soggy Oregon Weather Keeps Producers Away

SALEM, Ore. (AP) — Ready? Roll 'em! Rain? Oregon's soggy climate often tips the scales when movie producers are weighing the advantages and disadvantages of filming amid the state's splendid scenic riches.

It is Warren Merrill's tough task to convince producers that choosing movie locations here is worth their money — despite an average annual rainfall as great as 66 inches along the coast.

The silver-haired Merrill, a former public relations man, is the state's "motion picture specialist." He's held the job for 11 years and done well enough to bring $41 million of movie business to Oregon.

"We try to get film companies outside the state into the state so they will spend their money, hire our people, won't foul up the environment and they will go away," says Merrill.

Oregon's rain has sent some movie companies packing, Merrill says, although "other states have bad weather, too." Part of the recent multi-part television movie "Centennial" was scheduled for shooting in Oregon, but work was moved to Colorado because the producers were worried about rain.

"They went to Colorado and got snowed out," Merrill says. The rain was supposed to be an asset when "Sometimes a Great Notion" was filmed along the Oregon coast.

But the summer was abnormally dry and the film crew had to make rain. When it came time to shoot a sunny picnic scene, "it rained like hell."

Merrill's first project was the 1968 filming of "Paint Your Wagon" during which the film company spent $7 million in Oregon. Since then, 30 feature films, 42 television shows and 103 commercials have been shot in Oregon.

The first movie ever filmed in Oregon was Buster Keaton's "The General" in 1926. More recent movies include "Animal House," "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest" and "Emperor of the North."

A movie called "How to Beat the High Cost of Living" is being filmed in Eugene this month with Susan St. James and Jane Curtin. Merrill says the company will spend more than $2.5 million in Eugene.

Among the benefits a movie location community enjoys is income from lodging, food, equipment rentals, service industries like laundry and the hiring of local residents as extras or as carpenters and technicians.

"One town said, 'We're a nice little town and we're not interested in movies,' so we went to another town and they made $1 million off the film," says Merrill.

When Merrill started out, Oregon was one of just five states actively seeking movie-makers. Merrill says 41 states now have official movie promotion staffs, and "the competition is getting pretty stiff."

The field of contenders includes Mexico and Canada, which Merrill says can offer financial inducements to Hollywood that Oregon can't come close to matching.

ACTOR FRANK BONNER

...Hospitalized

TV Actor Suffers

Parachute Accident

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — A parachute accident has put actor Frank Bonner of "WKRP in Cincinnati" in the hospital.

Bonner, who plays sales manager Herb Tarlek in the CBS-TV series, was injured in stable condition Monday following the accident in the desert 50 miles northeast of Los Angeles.

Bonner, 37, fell about 20 feet when the "ascendancy parachute" from which he was hanging collapsed in a freak wind Sunday at El Mirage Dry Lake Recreational Area, said MTM Productions spokeswoman Josie Williams.

Bonner was being towed by a four-wheel drive vehicle when the accident occurred, she said.

Doctors at Victor Valley Hospital said the actor may have suffered back and internal injuries.

"He's in stable condition now and resting comfortably," Miss Williams said. "He was joking on and off when I saw him."

Miss Williams said Bonner, who lives with his wife and daughter in Beverly Hills, was with friends at the time of the accident.

Boy Gets Film Role

In Upcoming Movie

OLD BRIDGE, N.J. (AP) — Instead of an autograph, a New Jersey teen-ager got a part in Woody Allen's next movie.

"Anthony... DePaola, 13, approached the film star in a New York restaurant last year.

"He looked up and just stared at me for a while," the youth recalls. "He then quietly told me no. I could not have his autograph. I felt awful."

"Allen then handed the youth a card. 'Hi. I'm casting for my new major motion picture and would you like to come for a screen test?' the card read.

Filming was recently completed in Oyster Bay, N.Y., for the movie co-starring Allen and Jessica Harper.

All DePaola had to do when he showed up, he said, was stand up in front of Allen. No audition, no light and no resume. Allen apparently liked what he saw.

The freckle-faced boy, with braces on his teeth, spent several weeks before the camera wearing a beige suit, a bow-tie and his hair parted in the middle. He was filmed running, walking, playing frisbee and chasing a young girl.

Loss Of Disney 'Spirit' Causes Exodus Of Artists

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Walt Disney Productions had its own Black Friday last Sept. 14 with the news that a dozen members of the animation department were leaving for a new company.

How did it happen? Details are provided by producer-director Don Bluth, who led the exodus, followed by directing animators Gary Goldman and John Pomeroy. The departures finally totaled 14.

Bluth is a mild-mannered, slender man of 42, hardly the picture of a Moses among cartoonists. He started at Disney in 1955 on "Sleeping Beauty," and left in 1957 to serve as a Mormon missionary in Argentina.

He returned to help grind out Saturday morning TV cartoons at Filmation, rejoined Disney in 1971. He was a directing animator of "The Rescuers," director of "Pete's Dragon" animation, produced and directed "The Small One."

"Over my seven years at Disney, things changed in my head," Bluth remarked. "I found it was difficult for creativity to happen. Why not the best? But they weren't trying for the best. They always settled for the weakest people and paid the lowest salaries..."

"The guiding, creative force was missing. Walt had supplied that. Walt had always placed the emphasis on product. Now the emphasis is on marketing. The young people were hard to teach. They were not the hungry, eager artists that came to Disney in the Thirties. The new bunch were arrogant, they refused to listen and got mad if you tried to press them. You'd explain a drawing to them, then look around and see they had wandered off."

Sill, Bluth said, a corps of young animators retained the old Disney spirit. They were challenged on "Pete's Dragon."

Card (Walker, Disney president) had made an impossible deadline because he had already booked the picture into the Radio City Music Hall," Bluth recalled. "We worked until 9 o'clock every night to get the picture finished."

"The artists got no raises, not even any thanks. Then they read that Card and Ron (Miller, the production head) split $3 million in bonuses. 'What is this?' the artists asked. I had no answers."

When he decided to cut his Disney ties and found Don Bluth Productions, he found a welcome home in Aurora.

Aurora Productions was founded two years ago by three former executives of Disney: Ric Irvine, James L. Stewart and Jon Lang. They have developed six feature projects; the first to be filmed is "Why Would I Lie" starring Treat Williams and Lisa Eichhorn for MGM.

"I left part of my heart at Disney," explains Stewart, who rose during his 12 years to become the company's youngest vice president. "My departure was a career decision; I was not doing what I wanted to do in the creative area. I think Rich and Jon left for the same reason.

"It saddened me to see the situation that had occurred in the Disney animation department. But we also saw it as a big opportunity to make a contribution in the field of animation."

Financed by private investors, Aurora bought the film rights to Mrs. Frisby and the Rats of NIMH, a Newberry award book by Robert C. O'Brien about a family of mice who become involved with an underground city of educated rats.

"The book was offered to Disney in 1972," said Bluth. Do you know what the answer was? 'We already have a mouse.'"

Bluth has been assigned a $7 million budget with a completion date of 1982. So far the Disney defectors have been working at their homes while Bluth searches for a studio site. He has just about decided on a building opposite NBC Burbank, a mortor job from Disney.

Said Don Bluth: "I love the art of animation. I love what Walt Disney stands for. I owe a debt of gratitude for what I learned at the studio. But I can't stand by and watch animation go down the tubes. Its legacy can't be allowed to dwindle into Saturday morning TV."

'Harvey' Continuing Theater Run

Mary Chase's celebrated comic fable about an invisible rabbit, "Harvey," will continue at Texas Tech University's Lab Theater with performances at 8:15 p.m. Friday through Oct. 27.

Directed by Texas Tech student, Patrick Donnelly, the cast of Harvey includes: Richard Privitt as Elwood P. Dowd, Ann Allford as Veta Louise, Terre Finley as Myrtle Mae Simmons, Roxanne Auguson as Miss Johnson, Deborah Bigness as Mrs. Ethel Chauvenet, Laurie Willis as Ruth Kelly, R.N., Jerry Smith as Duane Wilson, Gary Walters as Lyman Sanderson, M.D., G.W. Frazier as William R. Chumley, M.D., Clara Crockett as Betty Chumley, William Durham as Judge Omar Gaffney, David Graham as E.J. Lofgren and Harvey, the 6'-1/2" invisible rabbit as himself.

The comedy follows Elwood P. Dowd, a gentle man of 47 who lives with his widowed sister, Veta Louise, and her daughter, Myrtle Mae, in a fine old-fashioned mansion. The mansion's other boarder is Harvey, a giant 6-foot-tall rabbit who is Elwood's best friend and constant drinking companion. Harvey is usually invisible to everyone, except Elwood.

Elwood's preoccupation with Harvey makes living in the Dowd home difficult for Veta and her daughter, and Veta tries to have Elwood committed to Chumley's Rest, a sanitarium. Through a misunderstanding, Veta, not Elwood is committed.

After spending an evening on the town with Harvey and Dr. Chumley, Elwood agrees to take a shock treatment and abandon Harvey. As Elwood is about to be treated, Veta has a change of heart and reasons that if Harvey means so much to her brother, why should they be forced to give each other up? At the final curtain Elwood and Harvey stroll off arm in arm, inseparable as ever.

Mary Chase, a Denver newspaper reporter, won the Pulitzer prize in 1945 for Harvey. Two years in the writing, Harvey was originally titled The Pooka, and was first copyrighted as The White Rabbit.

Over those two years, Miss Chase wrote three separate versions of "Harvey." In the first one, the pooka was a man-sized canary; in the second, the canary had become a rabbit, but the central character was a woman. It was not until the third version that Elwood P. Dowd finally emerged.

"Harvey" was produced by Brock Pemberton, who seven years earlier had sponsored a Chase flop called "Now You've Done It." "Harvey" opened on Broadway on November 1, 1944, and was directed by Antonette Perry. Harvey ran for 1,775 performances.

In a letter to Peterson six months before the Broadway opening, Mary Chase wrote: "The thing that concerns me most is the overall impression of the play. It must be bold humor, with a folk-like quality to it. It is the kind of production about which the audience would say later, 'It's a play about a man who goes around with a 6-foot white rabbit,' rather than 'It's a play about woman who tries to get her brother in a sanitarium.' This is my main concern — that it does not pull any punches, that it does not sacrifice its integrity, and that the laughs are deep and rooted in truth — that it has genuine humor instead of gags, and that it gives the audience genuine satisfaction.

Play Tickets Still Available

Critic John Chapman of the New York Daily News wrote: "Harvey" is the most delightful, droll, endearing, funny and touching piece of stage whimsy I ever saw..."

Helen Hayes in performing Harvey with Jimmy Stewart at the University of Michigan, said: "We didn't know how this wonderfully gentle play would go. We saw the audience outside — young men and women with long hair and bands around their heads and tassels on their clothes. Even bells. I shouldn't wonder. And bare feet! Well, Jimmy and I thought maybe the play was going to be out-of-date, or we were."

Rhodesia Guerrillas Get Talks Ultimatum

LONDON (AP) — In an apparent attempt to force the hand of guerrilla leaders at the Zimbabwe Rhodesia peace talks, Britain announced on Monday that it will conduct separate independence negotiations with the biracial government of Prime Minister Abel Muzorewa.

According to a report in the French daily Le Monde, the Soviet Union broke its silence on Hua's European tour with a commentary on state radio that drew a connection between Hua's visit and Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev's offer to withdraw unilaterally as many as 20,000 Soviet troops and 1,000 tanks from East Germany.

Fighter Purchase

Hua and Giscard d'Estaing were expected to discuss Chinese interest in purchasing sophisticated Mirage 2,000 jetfighters.

Moscow already has cautioned several Western European governments, reportedly including France, against selling arms to China. The Kremlin also is known to consider the Mirage as an offensive, not a defensive, jetfighter.

Acceptance Required

Commander Summoned

He summoned the country's white military commander, Lt. Gen. Peter Walls, to London over the weekend, underlining his impatience that they get on with arrangements for new elections that are to lead to British-granted independence.

Change Needed

"Our government has lost a majority in the Parliament. The election results as they reflect in the Parliament necessitate a change of government," Ecevit told reporters, after emerging from the meetings.

Elections Possible

Demirel had called for Ecevit's resignation, but declined to say whether he planned to form a government himself or take the country to early general elections. His aides said privately Demirel favored installing a caretaker government headed by an independent until such elections. The next regularly scheduled general election is set for 1981.

Local Station Delays Showing Of TV Movie 'Flesh And Blood'

By LISA PAIKOWSKI
Avalanche-Journal Staff

KLBK-TV Sunday night delayed for late night viewing the controversial movie, "Flesh and Blood," in order to bypass a young audience that might be affected by the questionable content of the drama, station manager Bill deTournillon said Monday.

DeTournillon said he felt the scheduled 8 p.m. slot for the movie, which contains an incestuous subplot, was "a little early" for the material featured in the show.

The movie, an adaptation of the Pete Hamill best-seller about a boxer's road to success, was replaced by a rerun of "Gunsmoke" at 8 p.m. and was shown at 10:30 p.m. instead. The second half of the two-part offering is scheduled at 10:30 p.m. tonight.

DeTournillon said Channel 13 was not practicing censorship by delaying the air time of the movie "because we're against that." He said the 10:30 time slot was "when we felt most of the young people would be in bed."

Prior to the scheduled 8 p.m. showing of the movie, KLBK aired a brief explanation of its decision, saying "KLBK-TV has been put into a very awkward position — that of deciding for you, our viewers, what you can and cannot watch. In our opinion that is censorship."

"We realize and accept our responsibility to all our viewers and not just specific groups. It is our contention that TV should be viewed intelligently by the family and censored by the family. The movie 'Flesh and Blood' has brought this situation home. KLBK has decided to give that responsibility of censorship to you the parents."

The explanation said the movie will be broadcast at 10:30 p.m. and added, "The on-off switch is there awaiting your judgment."

Dockery To Keep Offensive Strategy

By NORVAL POLLARD
Executive Sports Editor

Rex Dockery blames Texas Tech's lack of offensive success this season on one culprit — execution.

"There's no difference in this year's offense and the offense we ran last season," the second-year Red Raider coach said. "We're running the same basic plays we did a year ago."

"We picked up big yardage with it last season, but this year we just are not executing consistently. And it's a different breakdown everytime — a missed block or a penalty or a dropped pass. It's not one mistake that we keep making over and over again."

Dockery said he was pleased with Tech's offensive game plan used during Saturday's 20-6 setback to Arkansas and said he would use the same offensive strategy again if the Red Raiders and Razorbacks were to meet.

"If we had to play them again, I'd do it the same way," Dockery stated. "Our philosophy entering the game was not to make the big mistake and beat ourselves."

"Our game plan would have worked, but we couldn't get into the end zone when we were inside their 20 yard line. That, in a nutshell, was the game. And the breakdown in the kicking game sealed it."

Dockery defended Tech's offensive play selections and credited the Razorback defense with playing its best game of the season.

"We felt that we could control the line of scrimmage against them," Dockery added. "We felt their biggest weakness was up the middle and we could move the football by running right at them."

"Percentage-wise, our best play is James Hadnot off tackle. And our next best play is the loaded play with Ron Reeves (the option keeper). But like I said, we did not execute. There were a couple of plays where Arkansas just whipped us."

"Arkansas' defensive scheme took a couple things away from us, including the outside pitch to the tailback. They made us run inside."

After watching game films, Dockery said that there were several times when he thought the Red Raiders moved the football well.

"I felt at times we did run the football better than it might have appeared," Dockery said. "It hurt us when Ron (Reeves) got hurt and had to come out of the game. We were starting to get things going before he had to leave."

The Red Raiders host the Rice Owls at 2 p.m. Saturday in Jones Stadium and Dockery is confident his squad will be able to overcome the breakdowns that have limited the offensive production.

"When you're not executing, it usually means you're trying to do too much," Dockery stated. "That's always been my philosophy. We will be narrowing down the things we're doing in an effort to correct the execution problems we've had."

"We have to come back from the loss. Our backs are to the wall. But I believe our players have the type of character it takes to come back."

Dockery praised freshman noseguard Gabriel Rivera; junior outside linebacker Jeff McKinney and junior tackle Jamie Giles for their excellent defensive play against the Hogs.

Dockery also cited senior guards Joe Walstad and Larry Martin, Hadnot and senior split end Howie Lewis for outstanding offensive efforts against Arkansas.

Tech Loses To Kittens

By CHUCK McDONALD
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

The Texas Tech junior varsity battled the Universit of Houston JV to a 7-7 tie in the second half of the 13th Annual Khiva Shrine Bowl Monday night in Jones Stadium. Unfortunately for the Picadors, the defensive surge came a little late.

Because the Houston Kittens rolled up an awesome 35-0 lead in the first half and waited to a 42-7 romp over the Picadors as 5,675 fans stuck it out to the end. The win raises the Houston JV record to 2-1 while the Picadors fell to 1-1.

And although the final score was a lopsided 42-7, if Houston would've had its way, the final result would've been a lot more embarrassing.

You see, although the Kittens led 35-0 at the intermission, the second half saw Houston come out passing and, rather than punting, going for the first on several fourth downs. Oh, yeah, the Houston squad made little or no substitutions in the second half.

But the Tech defenders held this same Houston team that had mauled them in the first half scoreless until the final 43 seconds of the contest.

That's when quarterback Brent Chinn sprinted 10 yards for the final Kittens TD. Surprisingly, Houston decided not to go for the two point conversion.

The Picadors only score came late in the third quarter when quarterback Ricky Etheridge found split end Walter Turner wide open in the endzone for an 11 yard scoring strike.

Tech moved 68 yards for its only score and 30 of those yards came on a pair of Houston personal foul penalties.

Offensively, about the only bright spot for the Picadors was the running of freshman Clifford Bailey. The Tahoka sensation picked up 81 yards on 14 carries and showed some speed in the Tech backfield.

However the Kittens countered with the running of Dwayne Love who had 14 carries for 101 yards. Chinn also completed 11 of 19 passes for the Houston JV for 231 yards and three touchdowns.

Don Stanhouse Lost To 'Birds

BALTIMORE (AP) — Don Stanhouse, the ace of the Baltimore bullpen, says he won't be able to pitch for the Orioles anymore during the 1979 World Series.

"I first felt my back hurt during the last week of the season," Stanhouse said. "Now it has reached the point where I can't rotate my hips when I pitch. When something hurts that bad, it's not good for me or the ballclub and it's time to get out."

Stanhouse, who is expected to test the free agent market during the winter, said he planned to visit one doctor Monday and another today to check his condition.

After posting a 7-3 record with 21 saves during the regular season, Stanhouse has given the Pittsburgh Pirates five hits and three runs in two innings of World Series action, and has a 14.50 earned run average.

Cookie Lazarus, Stanhouse's agent, said there were two reasons why the 27-year-old right-hander probably won't be back with Baltimore next season.

STARRON QB'S

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Coach Bart Starr of the Green Bay Packers is recognized as having been one of the great quarterbacks in the history of the NFL and is considered an authority on that position. He does not buy the theory that a quarterback takes a certain number of years to develop and there is no deviation from that.

Houston dominated the contest piling up 466 yards of offense to 196 for the Picadors. The Tech squad was also plagued by fumbles — committing seven and losing three.

But by halftime it was all over — even the Shriners would've admitted that much.

Fifth-year senior Elick Brown ran underneath a pair of Chinn bombs in the second quarter to highlight a 21-point Houston explosion that put the game out of reach.

The first one was a 40 yarder that came with 7:21 left in the half. Then, with 1:58 remaining, Chinn again found a wide-open Brown for a 36 yard touchdown pass that the senior carried into the endzone untouched.

But the Kittens had more in store for the Picadors.

With only 38 seconds remaining in the half, Eugene Lockhart blocked a Jesse Garcia punt on the Tech 28 and ran it into the endzone for another Houston score.

The Kittens quickly let it be known who would dominate the game as they drove 90 yards in eight plays on their first possession. Love capped the drive with a 12 yard burst for the first touchdown of the game.

Houston's next score came on a 49-yard pass-run play from Chinn to Leon Felder with 38 seconds left in the first quarter. Chinn also connected with Felder for the two point conversion to negate the missed PAT on the first Houston score and it was 14-0.

From there, it was all downhill for the Pics.

Houston piled up an incredible 316 yards of offense in the first half to Tech's 88. And Bailey provided half of Tech's first-half yardage as he picked up 44 yards on the ground in the half.

The Picadors let plenty of people play, though, as eight different running backs got a chance to carry the ball. The Kittens relied on the work of quarterback Chinn and a trio of backs.

Score by quarters: Tech JV 0-0-7-0-7-42; Houston JV 14-21-0-7-42.

Orioles Seek To Defuse Hot Buc Bats

BALTIMORE (AP) — Pirate punch, a vital element in the success of the National League champions this season, has forced the 1979 World Series between Pittsburgh and the Baltimore Orioles to a sixth game tonight at 7:30.

The Bucs, still trailing the series 3-2, will send left-hander John Candelaria, the loser in Game Three, against Baltimore's Jim Palmer, who started Game Two but was not involved in the decision.

Palmer's problem will be bottling up the marauding Pirate bats. Pittsburgh set a World Series record for hits by a losing team with 17 in Game Four. The Pirates added 13 in winning Game Five Sunday and forcing a return to Baltimore.

The Pirate infield is batting a lousy 423, with second baseman Phil Garner and Bill Madlock at .500 each on 9-for-18 through the first five games. First baseman Willie Stargell is at .381 and shortstop Tim Foli is batting .333.

Overall, Pittsburgh has manhandled the Baltimore pitching staff with a Series batting average of .339 with 61 hits in 180 at-bats. The Orioles, on the other hand, are batting almost 100 points less than that, at .251, on 43-for-171.

Madlock had four singles and Foli drilled a triple and a single, driving in three runs, in the 7-1 victory Sunday that kept Pirate hopes alive.

The Orioles are trying to figure out a way to deal with those lively Pittsburgh bats.

"We haven't been able to yet," admitted Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver. "What do they have, 65 hits?"

Weaver has another problem, with relief ace Don Stanhouse sidelined for the remainder of the Series with a pulled muscle in his lower back. Stanhouse, who led the Orioles with 21 saves, appeared in two games in the Series and was hit freely, allowing five hits and three runs in two innings. Weaver said he didn't think Pittsburgh's victory in Game Five would switch that baseball intangible called momentum. "You know what I think about momentum?" he began. "If Palmer goes out and pitches a good game and gets the ball by Madlock and some others, there's no such thing as momentum."

JIM PALMER

Palmer, often an adversary of his manager, thought the secret to wrapping up this Series for the Orioles centered on Baltimore's bats, not its pitchers.

"Obviously, we're going to have to outwit them," the veteran right-hander said. "As far as I'm concerned, they're all good hitters. You've got to respect all of them. They all hit."

The Orioles, of course, have learned that the hard way.

"They saw the real Pirates for the first time," chortled Foli after Game Five.

It wasn't just the timely hitting, but clutch fielding and tight pitching as well. Now, Pittsburgh must try and repeat that performances Tuesday night to force a seventh game showdown.

The fifth-game loss hardly diminished the enthusiasm Orioles fans have for their team. Some 2,000 of them turned out at Baltimore-Washington International Airport to welcome the Orioles home following the game.

The players were happy to be back, too.

"We play our best ball in Baltimore," said Mike Flanagan, the fifth-game loser. "I guess it's fate, or something, but it's fitting for us to be back in Baltimore."

The assignment to keep the Pirates' comeback chances falls to Candelaria, the tall left-hander who was Pittsburgh's biggest winner during the regular season with 14 victories, despite persistent back and rib cage injuries. He pitched three innings in Game Three of the Series, allowing six runs on eight hits.

Dolphins Await Key AFC Foe

MIAMI (AP) — The Miami Dolphins, who wanted to have some breathing room between themselves and the New England Patriots, are ready for a wide-open battle for the AFC East leadership this Sunday.

"I'm looking forward to it. It's going to be a shootout," fullback Larry Csonka said. "We would have liked to go to Boston with a two or three game lead, but we don't have that."

An upset loss to the New York Jets and a loss the following week to Oakland dropped the Dolphins into a tie with the Patriots in the American Football Conference's Eastern Division.

Miami's 17-7 victory over Buffalo and New England's 27-7 win over Chicago on Sunday kept the rivals tied at 5-2. Both clubs were 5-2 last season when the Dolphins traveled to Foxboro, Mass. The Patriots scored a 33-24 victory, and Miami couldn't catch them the rest of the season.

The Dolphins hope their dominating victory over the Bills has restored their lost momentum this season.

"If we would have lost to Buffalo, we would have been in desperate straits," center Jim Langer said. "We have lost games we shouldn't have lost, that will happen some times. This game keeps us with the pack."

"If we had gone out there 4-3, we would have been in sorry shape," Langer said.

The Dolphins defense, which struggled in the first half of 1978, has been consistently effective this season.

"I feel we've got the best defense in the league, including Pittsburgh's," offensive tackle Bob Kuechenberg said. "If the defense can continue to play the way it has and we get cranked up a little offensively, we're going to win some games."

Miami's inconsistent offense controlled Sunday's game with a powerful ground game complemented by Bob Griese's sharp passing. Griese threw just 12 passes, fewest this season, and said he hopes the pulled right hamstring that's hampered him will heal by Sunday.

Griese was the key offensive figure for the Dolphins in the Patriots series last season. He hit 22 of 35 passes for 227 yards in the loss at Foxboro, Mass., then was 12 of 13 for 171 yards in Miami's 23-3 victory here.

The Dolphins know the Patriot defense won't be as accommodating against the run as Buffalo's. New England held Chicago star Walter Payton to 42 yards Sunday.

"They're one of the toughest teams to run against," Csonka said. "It's going to be tough. But we want it. They want it, but we're going to have to want it a little more."

Alabama Rises To AP Top Spot

In the first big shakeup of the season, Alabama's defending national champions nosed out Texas for first place in The Associated Press college football ratings Monday while Southern California, No. 1 since the first preseason poll, dropped to fourth.

The Southern Cal Trojans were done in when they blew a 21-0 halftime lead and settled for a 21-21 tie with Stanford. That opened the door for Alabama, which walloped Florida 40-0 and received 42 first-place votes and 1,332 of a possible 1,360 points from a nation-wide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

Alabama was closely trailed by Texas, which defeated Oklahoma 16-7 and jumped from fourth to second with 26 first-place ballots and 1,313 points.

Southern Cal, Alabama, Oklahoma and Texas had occupied the first four places since the preseason poll. Oklahoma slipped to eighth place this week.

SMU Struck By Injuries

DALLAS (AP) — Southern Methodist coach Ron Meyer said Monday five starters injured in the Baylor game may not play against Houston Saturday, including quarterback Jim Bob Taylor and All-America wide receiver Emanuel Toltbert.

Meyer said linebackers Eric Ferguson and Clarence Bennett and noseguard Charles Hunt more than likely will not play.

"We'll go with (freshman) Mike Fisher at quarterback unless Jim Bob's knee gets drastically better," said Meyer. "The knee swelled up like a balloon yesterday."

Taylor was injured in SMU's 24-21 Southwest Conference loss to Baylor.

CRIP OFF BLOCK
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Bruce Allen, only 22, is coaching chip off the old block. Bruce is head football coach at Occidental and is one of the youngest in the country, if not the youngest.

Nebraska, a 42-0 winner over Kansas, climbed from fifth to third with 1,204 points, followed by USC with 1,108.

Houston rose from seventh to fifth with 1,011 by edging Texas A&M 17-14 and Ohio State went from eighth to sixth with 1,010 points for a 47-6 rout of Indiana. Washington, which had been sixth, skidded to 12th by losing to Arizona State 12-7.

Florida State beat Mississippi State 17-6 and advanced from ninth to seventh with 894 points, followed by Oklahoma with 883, Notre Dame with 810 and Arkansas with 803. Notre Dame, 10th a week ago, defeated Air Force 38-13 while Arkansas climbed from 12th to 10th by downing Texas Tech 20-6.

The Second Ten consists of Michigan, Washington, Brigham Young, Auburn, North Carolina State, Purdue, Pittsburgh, Tennessee, North Carolina and Navy.

Last week, the Second Ten was Michigan, Arkansas, LSU, North Carolina, Missouri, BYU, N.C. State, Auburn, Michigan State and Purdue.

Pitt, which dropped out of the Top Twenty three weeks ago, moved back in with a 35-0 rout of Cincinnati. Tennessee also returned after a one-week absence by crushing Georgia Tech 31-0 while unbeaten Navy made it for the first time this season by defeating William & Mary 24-7. The Midshipmen are 5-0.

Ousted from last week's rankings were LSU, a 21-14 loser to Georgia; Missouri, which bowed to Oklahoma State 14-13, and Michigan State, which was knocked off by Wisconsin 38-29.

Free Agents Up Income

NEW YORK (AP) — A salary study conducted by the National Football League Management Council announced Monday shows that the 93 players who became free agents on Feb. 1, 1979, and signed 1979 NFL contracts received an average salary increase of 27.9 percent.

According to the owners' group, these players' salaries rose from $58,411 in 1978 to $74,623 in 1979, nearly identical to the 27.8 percent increase received by the 84 free agents a year ago.

"For the second straight year salary figures show conclusively that the NFL's free agent system is working well," said Paul Sonnabend, executive director of the NFLMC. "Our free agent system provides veteran free agents the opportunity to test their market value with other teams. Through this system free agents are receiving significant salary increases."

But they are not switching teams, said Ed Garvey, executive director of the NFL Players Association.

"Not a single player switched teams under the free agent system," said Garvey. "Very few of the 93 received any offers at all, and whenever a player received an offer, it was matched by his old team."

"The system is absolutely not working," added Garvey. "It's foolishness to focus on a few thousand dollars instead of the fact that no one is bidding for these players."

Garvey charged that there is a "conspiracy" among the 22 NFL owners not to bid for free agents. He pointed out that in the three years the current system has been in effect, 240 players became free agents, 17 received offers from other teams and only one switched clubs — defensive back Norm Thompson, who went from St. Louis to Baltimore.

LCC Tourney Sets Tee Times

Tee time for the annual women's golf championship of the Lubbock Country Club is 9:30 a.m. today. The field consists of 28 participants including Joan Batson, who was medalist with an 86 in Monday's qualifying round.

Defending champion Katie Quest was forced to withdraw from this year's field due to illness.

Former Bear Files Suit

CHICAGO (AP) — Former defensive tackle Roger Stillwell of the Chicago Bears filed suit Monday claiming the National Football League team and its physicians were negligent in treating a knee injury that forced him to retire.

The suit, filed in Cook County Circuit Court, alleges team doctors Theodore A. Fox and Lawrence J. Bonness conspired with personnel of the Bears to allow Stillwell to play when he was medically unsound.

Stillwell, 28, injured his left knee Oct. 16, 1977, in a game against the Minnesota Vikings.

Attorney Shelley B. Gardner said that before the game his client "had begun to have some problems with his knee" and "he was given pain killers and anti-inflammatory drugs" to keep him in the game.

The day after the game Stillwell underwent surgery and later developed a severe infection in his leg.

According to the suit, the football club "conspired with its own personnel and with medical personnel to fraudulently conceal" from Stillwell the nature of his medical condition.

Bears' attorney Jerome R. Vainisi said that Stillwell, whose contract expired Feb. 1, 1979, was placed on the injured reserve list after the injury and that the player became a free agent when his contract expired.

Bill Walton Left Home

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The San Diego Clippers will leave Bill Walton behind when they travel to Portland for a National Basketball Association contest tonight, a team spokesman said Monday.

Walton said he still is in "considerable pain" from a left foot that has kept him inactive for 16 days.

"When I run on a soft surface, there's hardly any pain," said the 6-foot-11 center.

Oiler Feud Ends Happily

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Oilers Coach Bum Phillips saw the Mike Barber-Dan Pastorini feud through rose-colored glasses Monday but other members of the team were pleased that the simmering dispute had been resolved.

"It wasn't anything really," Phillips said. "You don't give up a friendship of four years just like that. These guys are emotional and they have feelings just like the rest of us. A lot of people were just making a mountain out of a mole hill."

Barber said last week he felt as if his hands had been cut off because he had not been included in the Oilers' passing game. The matter came to a tearful conclusion last Saturday prior to Houston's 28-16 victory over Baltimore on Sunday.

Both players apologized to each other during the team meeting and shook hands in a move applauded by the team, especially center Carl Mauck, Pastorini's close friend and roommate on the road.

"It was one of the roughest weeks I've ever gone through in pro football," Mauck said. "We finally got it squared away. It's a credit to both of them that they shook hands. It's a tough thing for grown men with a lot of pride to admit they were wrong. They both did it and you've got to compliment them."

"I like Mike and Dan but sometimes they both act like little boys."

Barber, a key factor in Houston's late-season drive to the playoffs last year, has caught only 10 passes for 176 yards this season. He didn't catch any in Sunday's game.

Pastorini, off to a rugged start this season, completed only five of 14 passes and was intercepted three times.

Phillips told his weekly news conference Monday that it had been a pleasant weekend in Baltimore.

"We had a great team effort, we played well in the clutch and we came out of the game with few injuries," Phillips said. "Earl Campbell played the kind of game you've come to expect of him. He does it each week and he does it better each week."

Campbell rushed 149 yards on 22 carries and scored Houston's three touchdowns to spark a one-dimensional Oilers offense that netted only 47 yards passing.

Defensive standouts in the game included rookie Jesse Baker, who returned a fumble for his first pro touchdown and safety Mike Reinfeldt, who picked off two Baltimore passes.

Phillips' weekend was made more pleasant when Cincinnati defeated Pittsburgh to throw the American Football Conference Central Division back into a two-way tie between the Oilers and Steelers.

"Cincinnati has the personnel to beat anyone," Phillips said. The Oilers play at Seattle Sunday.

Kush Denies Intimidation, Lies

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — Frank Kush was fired as Arizona State University's football coach for "trying to get people to lie for him," Athletic Director Fred Miller said Monday.

Responding, Kush said: "Believe me, I never did such a thing." He said he told players and coaches to tell the truth about allegations that he punched former Arizona State punter Kevin Rutledge after a bad kick in last year's Washington game in Seattle.

Kush also repeated earlier denials of hitting Rutledge then, or any other player, but did say he sometimes had slapped players on the helmet or grabbed their face mask to get their attention. Rutledge has filed a $1.1 million lawsuit against the school and Kush.

Miller said that until last Wednesday he had been "completely convinced" that Kush's position was sound. He said since then three players and three individuals have told him of witnessing the incident.

Miller also said he since had learned that Kush was pressuring players and coaches to keep quiet about what they had seen.

"I will not allow our coaches or athletes to be intimidated," Miller told a news conference at the school.

Miller said Kush never again would coach at Arizona State, which he built into a national football power over the last 22 seasons.

Kush made his rebuttal comments a few hours later at a news conference in the backyard of his home.

Kush did admit striking players and talking to players and coaches about the Rutledge case.

"Yes, I have hit them on the head-guard with my hand," Kush said. "I have grabbed their face mask."

But, he continued, "I never had skin-to-skin contact," saying that hitting helmets and grabbing face masks only was a means of getting their attention and hurt him more than them.

Of Rutledge, he said, "Believe me, I did not punch him in any way."

Kush said he has told the team's players, "Don't believe a lot of things being said. I want you to forget about them. Don't pay any attention to it. Even though some of you may have said you saw it, I excuse you, I pardon you."

However, Kush emphasized that "I told the players to tell the truth."

Kush said his instructions to the coaches were similar.

"I said, we as a coaching staff must stick together. There is going to be a lot of innuendoes and lies. I said, don't believe half of this that you're hearing," Kush said.

Reminded that Miller had said Kush asked people to lie for him, Kush replied: "I never would ask anybody to lie for me."

Kush said he suspected during summer training that someone was out to get him. He said the first indication was that there were many more news photographers than normal at such sessions.

Miller said Bob Owen, a defensive assistant, would be interim head coach and that Kush will remain as an assistant professor of physical education for the balance of a one-year contract.

MANAGER IN MOURNING — Chuck Tanner, manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates, did his best to force a smile following his Pirates' 7-1 victory over the Baltimore Orioles in Game 5 of the World Series Sunday. Cosell, ABC Lauded For Nifty Series Coverage

NEW YORK (AP) — As Howard Cosell does unto Earl Weaver, we do unto Cosell and his colleagues — the almighty second guess. Here goes one man's opinion on how ABC has covered the first five games of the World Series.

Production

Producer Chuck Howard is the man responsible for the overall look of the broadcasts. The look is as beautiful as Tim Foli's wife. Howard integrates the interview inserts into the game action, controls the isolated cameras and replays. Basically, he calls all the shots, except the coverage of the game itself.

Although the gap is almost totally narrowed, ABC has always been better than NBC at giving us the story line behind the baseball game. Cosell's timely interviews of the key individuals and their roles in the game and controversies is a big plus. The producer deserves credit for this. It's a bonus when we get to hear Bert Blyleven talk about his reputation as a choker, or Earl Weaver explain why John Lowenstein didn't bunt in a key situation in Game 2.

Howard has one man, Curt Gowdy Jr., whose job is to quickly decide which camera had the best angle on a replay, and ABC will then show that one replay. NBC sometimes wades through several angles before finding the best one. If there's time between the action, the extra replays can be interesting, sometimes they clutter up the telecast.

Everybody has routine statistics, like batting average and earned run average, but ABC's additional stats have been right on the money. Credit Steve Hirdt of Elias Sports Bureau, who travels with the ABC crew.

—Lowenstein, a clutch hitter in the postseason, "has driven in six of nine runs with a runner on third and two outs."

—Manny Sanguillen is 4-for-10 against Don Stanhouse — Sanguillen then singles for the winning run in Game 2.

—Pitcher Tim Lincecum has just gotten his first hit in the major or minor leagues.

—Bert Blyleven, the winning pitcher out of the bullpen in Game 5, has not relieved since 1972.

During Friday night's one-hour rain delay, Howard was ready with an excellent interview with former Pirate pitcher Steve Blass, the 1971 World Series hero, and a feature on Roberto Clemente. Frank Gifford, in a studio in New York, was host for this segment.

"Monday Night Football," some excuse Gifford's incessant mistakes on the distractions of Cosell and Don Meredith in the booth. Alone in the studio Friday night, what was Gifford's excuse for fumbled words?

Direction

Director Chet Forte, with 14 cameras available for his game coverage, is responsible for how the viewer sees the game. ABC's documentation of the baseball game has improved from its first telecasts in 1976, which Forte says "stunk." But NBC still documents the game better.

Overall direction has been fine, but ABC loses points for missing some key plays, particularly Dave Parker's beautiful throw to the plate in Game 2. Forte cut to runner Eddie Murray, and we never saw if the throw bounced or came all the way home on the fly.

In the next day's pre-game highlights, Parker's run-saving throw was not shown. In a 3-2 Pirate win, this play at the plate can't be overlooked. ABC only confused the mistake by ignoring it on Friday.

Several times the ABC cameras missed the ball.

—In Game 3, ABC stayed with Steve Nicosia crossing the plate when the actual relay never came home but got Phil Garner in a rundown.

—In Game 4, we missed Willie Stargell's double past first base.

—In Game 5, we never saw Stoddard's wild pickoff rebound to first baseman Murray, whose throw almost got Omar Moreno at second.

But overall, the good camerawork outweighed the bad.

—The hand-held camera in the bullpen, instead of the usual long-range shot, gives a much better feel for this part of the game.

—The human element of seeing a wife's reaction to her husband pitching or batting is superb. Moreno's pitching has become a prime-time star. What devotion! She's still tweeting her whistle and supporting her "sweetie" despite the fact Moreno is making bonehead mistakes and having a pitiful Series.

—NBC doesn't give as many intell replays from the outfield cameras as ABC does. We like the ABC approach. Even though you can't always see the ball go into the glove, you get the perspective of the infielder.

—Forte said before the Series that the Baltimore dugouts weren't well lit, but he solved the problem by adding fluorescent lights. That allowed us a peek into the Baltimore dugout, after Lowenstein limped off in Game 1, and Weaver told Gary Roenicke to take off his jacket and go in.

—And who will forget the old man drooping on national TV, then letting his cigar slip from his lips. The slow-motion replay was a great moment in TV history.

Announcers

Al Michaels, filling in for the versatile Keith Jackson over the weekend, is the best baseball play-by-play announcer at the networks. Don Drysdale is informative, but too cliché-ridden and is no Don Sutton, whose interesting and humorous insights for NBC in the NL playoffs were superb. Cosell was Cosell, interviews, but he does extract the information. Right or wrong, he has an opinion on everything. And not everything is great, like it is for the ungrammatical Sparky Anderson, who was working the AL playoffs for NBC. After Anderson spoke, NBC should have flashed this tag line: "Sparky Anderson has been brought to you on behalf of major league baseball."

Jackson provides a very professional call of the game, but he does a little too much inside joking with Cosell. And if Drysdale guarantees us that one more time, we'll scream.

Cosell still is too pompous with his

Steeler Mistakes Invited Upset

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Ordinarily, some things can be taken for granted. In professional football, the snap from center to quarterback is one. Or at least it was for the Pittsburgh Steelers.

"It's not something you work on," Coach Chuck Noll said Monday. "That's the basics. You take it for granted."

But it's not an ordinary time for the Super Bowl champions. Pittsburgh was stunned 34-10 in Cincinnati Sunday by the Bengals, who took advantage of nine Steeler fumbles and two Terry Bradshaw interceptions.

The Steelers are now tied at 5-2 with Houston in the Central Division of the National Football League's American Conference.

The Bengals recovered seven of Pittsburgh's nine fumbles. Two of the recoveries were converted into instant touchdowns. Three of the dropped balls occurred on the center snap. Quarterback Terry Bradshaw recovered the ball only once.

"On one, our center's butt went down. On the other's we couldn't tell," Noll said.

"That's something we shouldn't have problems with," Noll said. "We will review it all. We may have to go back to training camp."

"Our aim is to get 45 people playing the best they can," he said. "But for the moment, 'We have as many problems as we have people.'"

Pittsburgh's problems were evident in Riverfront Stadium, where the Bengals won their first game of the season.

The Steelers intercepted Cincinnati quarterback Ken Anderson on the first play from scrimmage, but managed only a 46-yard field goal by Matt Bahr.

The Bengals ruled from there on Pittsburgh fumbles by the usually sure-fingered receiver John Stallworth and kick returner Larry Anderson produced the only touchdowns Cincinnati needed to win.

But Steeler running back Franco Harris coughed up the ball on the next Steeler series and Jim LeClair returned it 12 yards for his first NFL touchdown and the Bengals' third score in less than two minutes.

Anderson added a 14-yard touchdown pass to Rick Walker and Bradshaw answered with a 33-yard scoring toss to Stallworth.

Noll credited Cincinnati with playing inspired, aggressive football, but he added, "I'm not saying that we were blameless."

"I was upset with people sitting on their butts on the field."

Raider Netters Win Doubles

MIDLAND (Special) — The Texas Tech doubles team of Zahid Maniya and Mark Thompson defeated Tech teammates Jeff Bramlett and Jose Rivera in the finals of the Midland Adult Major Zone tennis tournament Monday.

Maniya-Thompson were victorious 6-1, 6-4.

Rivera was defeated by his brother Sam, a freshman at Midland College, 6-3, 7-6, in the singles finals

Bridegman Sparks Milwaukee Victory

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Guard Junior Bridgeman scored 28 points and forward Marques Johnson had 27 to give the Milwaukee Bucks a 131-107 National Basketball Association victory over the Jazz in the Utah team's first season home game since moving from New Orleans.

Johnson scored 12 points in the second half in helping the Bucks build up a 98-77 lead after three quarters.

The Jazz broke out to a 37-32 lead after the first quarter, behind guard Pete Maravich's 14 points, but the Bucks' defense contained Maravich the remainder of the way, and shut off the rest of the Jazz offense.

Milwaukee, after leading 63-57 at the half, broke open the game early in the third quarter as Kent Benson and John Smith combined for 15 points to give Milwaukee a 78-63 edge.

Milwaukee's sticky defense was able to hold the Jazz to only a pair of field goals, by Maravich, in the first five minutes of the third quarter.

Maravich finished with 29 points for the Jazz, and forward Adrian Dantley scored 23.

Milwaukee upped its record to 2-1 in the Midwest Division of the Western Conference of the NBA. The Jazz dropped to 0-2 in the division.

Valley, Klondike To Lead District Chases

By RUSS PARSONS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
If you are the kind of person who likes to bet with the favorites, you'd have to go with Valley to meet Amherst for the District 3-B championship and Klondike to meet Sterling City for the 3-B crown.

Those are the favorites, but each faces some stiff competition inside its loop.

DISTRICT 3-B EAST: Let's start at the top, with the Avalanche-Journal's No. 1 team, Klondike. It used to be you could look somewhat askance at the Cougars' unbelievable statistics and undefeated record because of their schedule. Let's face it, Klondike's first four games were against teams which have won five games altogether at this point.

But big back-to-back wins over tough Christ the King (29-14) and New Home (a resounding 52-6) has to make even the sternest skeptic a believer.

The Cougars' stats are no longer as unbelievable either, though they are still No. 2 on the South Plains in both offense and defense. Offensively, Klondike, which averages almost 360 yards a game, is led by back Ronnie Ferguson (a 113.6 rusher) and quarterback Todd Airhart (35 completions in 64 attempts with only one interception and a 76.3 average).

Defensively the Cougars are just as strong, allowing only 115.1 yards a game and just 26 points per year.

You can't count the Cougars in the district championship yet, because of Meadow, also undefeated in six starts.

sure plays some defense. The Broncos stand at 111.8 yards a game allowed (best on the South Plains) and have permitted only 21 points.

DISTRICT 3-B WEST: This is the toughest district of all to pick, although Sterling City's resounding 20-0 win over Lorraine simplifies things a great deal.

Basically, it looks like the race should come down to either the Eagles or defending champ Jayton. Neither one has been outstanding this year.

Sterling City had to struggle in each of its wins before the Lorraine game. First the Eagles had a tough time with Iron County, 21-15. Then came narrow wins over Miles (8-7) and Eden (10-6). Against some class competition — Bronte — week before last, Sterling City fell pretty badly, 23-13.

Jayton, on the other hand, has only a 14-0 win over Class A Crosbyton to point at. Other than that, the Jaybirds have beaten weaker Motley County and Borden County clubs (three wins between the two). And on the negative side, there's that 6-6 tie with once-victorious Spur, a tie against Roscoe and loss to Aspermont.

DISTRICT 2-B NORTH: Can anybody stop the rampaging Valley Patriots? The answer appears to be no, although that might be disproven rather quickly, like Friday night.

Valley struggled somewhat in its first two games, losing to Class A Crosbyton 12-6 and barely beating Rails 12-0. But the tide that largely without the help of their top running back James McNary.

If you don't believe the addition of one player can have that much effect on a team, consider that McNary is averaging almost 54 yards rushing quarter.

Upon his return to the lineup (he was injured in the first quarter of the first game and missed the second entirely), Valley ripped Class A schools Spur and Paducah by 60-0 and 70-0 respectively.

Last week the Patriots narrowed the district race to two-by defeating Nazareth 19-0. This week they take on the only other contender in sight, Silverton.

Silverton has a fine, steady offensive team that is averaging 228.2 yards a game. Leading the Owls is back Bobby McPherson, who is averaging 114.3 yards a game despite a couple of sub-50 yard nights in the middle of the year.

DISTRICT 2-B SOUTH: This zone looks like it will come down to a classic matchup between an offensive and a defensive team.

Only thing is, the offensive team plays great defense and the defensive team plays great offense.

Sure, Amherst is leading the South Plains in offense with a 369.1-yard average, and sure Lazbuddie has only allowed three touchdowns in five games. But don't forget that the Amherst defense is clipping along at a 146.1 pace and the Lazbuddie offense is averaging 296.4 yards a game. Each is the fifth best in its respective category.

Of course the potent Amherst offense is led by back Ronald Johnson, who has rushed for just shy of 1,200 yards already this year.

But Lazbuddie is clipping right along and last week's 20-6 win over Sudan showed that the Longhorns can put some points on the board.

Sudan is the team that could throw a monkey wrench into the whole works. With an outstanding running tandem of Joey Bellar (104 yards a game) and Victor King (109), the Hornets are a force to be reckoned with, at least by Amherst.

Portales' Back Stockton Provides One-Man Show

By ERIC GALE
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

When not gaining 32 yards in five carries — a mere pittance — Portales senior quarterback Tommie Stockton was almost singlehandedly defeating NMMI in a 19-12 Rams' victory Friday night.

Stockton's modest rushing statistics were the extent of the mercy he showed NMMI as Portales upped its record to 5-1.

When not scoring a touchdown against NMMI, he was setting one up with a clutch pass reception. When not making a clutch pass reception, he was denying NMMI yardage from his defensive halfback position.

It was this all-purpose, all-over-the-field performance by Stockton that has earned him both the Avalanche-Journal's Offensive and Defensive Player of the Week honors for eastern New Mexico.

"He can play," said Portales coach Tommy Gruber, of the 165-pound senior. "He's the best athlete I've ever coached, and this is my ninth year."

Stockton's first key pass reception occurred on a third down-and-20 situation. Eddie Poe fired a 40-yard bomb to Stockton, a play that led to the Rams' first touchdown.

He repeated the feat when, on a fourth-and-long, he snagged a 39-yard pass at the enemy's 1-yard line. Finishing what he started, Stockton carried for the touchdown on the next play to give Portales a 13-12 advantage and a lead it never lost. He frosted the cake with a short TD burst late in the game.

"I hate to think where we'd have been without him," Gruber said. "He came up with the big play when we needed it. You begin to take it for granted after awhile. He does this every game, whenever we're in a jam."

He helped jam the NMMI offense all night, making two fumble recoveries. He solo tackled and intercepted a pass. That's known as keeping busy.

"This was a typical game for him," Gruber said. "He seems to be there, when he's needed, every time."

Akers Cites Defense

AUSTIN (UPI) — Texas Coach Fred Akers praised the Longhorn defense Monday for dominating Oklahoma in a 16-7 victory Saturday, and said tackle Steve McMichael should be a leading candidate for the Outland award presented each year to the nation's top lineman.

Akers picked McMichael as the Longhorns' most outstanding defender in the Oklahoma game, although he said the entire defensive unit deserved the honor.

"You could almost draw the names out of a hat," Akers said. "Everyone that hit that field played like a real champion. But our outstanding defensive player was McMichael."

"Steve plays great every week, and I can't imagine anyone being higher on the list for the Outland award than Steve McMichael. He's outstanding."

McMichael made 13 tackles against the Sooners, despite being double-teamed much of the day. "He took up a lot of blockers, and the more they put on him the more it freed everyone else," Akers said.

Akers said he was thankful for the Longhorns' solid effort and victory over Oklahoma, but said the Razorback contest is more important because it is a conference game as well as an interstate rivalry.

The Texas coach said this week's Southwest Conference showdown with undefeated Arkansas will present the Longhorn defenders with a new and different kind of challenge, however. Arkansas' offense is more balanced than that of the Sooners, and the Razorbacks have more big play potential in the passing of Ron Scanlon and a group of gifted receivers, Akers said.

"They don't just have a running attack," Akers said. "It's going to be another and a different kind of challenge for our defense."

"We're thankful for the fact we played a game well enough to win and show some improvement in it," he said of the victory over Oklahoma. "But you're talking about a conference game now against another big opponent. Arkansas is just as undefeated as Oklahoma was. Arkansas also has a great football team. There are a lot of similarities (with the Oklahoma game), plus it's a conference game."

The Longhorns' game with Arkansas will be regionally televised, meaning Texas will not be eligible for another TV appearance during the regular season.

Owner Raps 'The Greek'

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — New Orleans Saints owner John Mecom Jr. said Monday that oddsmaker-television commentator Jimmy "The Greek" Snyder was dead wrong in saying Coach Dick Nolan might be fired.

Snyder's remarks came on a CBS television show before the National Football League game between the Saints and Tampa Bay Sunday.

Snyder said the Saints had excellent people at skill positions, but "they are poorly coached." He said that "if he blows this one," Nolan would be fired.

"That's totally erroneous," Mecom said Monday.

"This is the first time I've had a coach who has kept me fully informed. A lot of coaches will lie to you, when they think that sounds better than the truth."

"We've become experts in detecting that," and Dick Nolan would never do that."

The Saints, who posted a best-ever 7-9 record under Nolan last year, got off to an 0-3 start, beat San Francisco and the Giants, lost to Los Angeles, then beat Tampa Bay 42-14 Sunday.

"Our winning percentage is better than his (Snyder's), and we have a lot of room for improvement," Mecom said.

Vice-presidents Harry Hulmes and Eddie Jones said much the same thing.

"I can't conceive of any dissatisfaction with the job Dick is doing," Hulmes said. "We're not disappointed at all."

"I have no idea where an idea like that could have originated," Jones said that even when the Saints were 0-3, Mecom never appeared cooler. "It's preposterous," Jones said.

Nolan, taking a break after watching films of Detroit, next week's opponent, said he has had no hints that Mecom might be dissatisfied with the job he is doing.

"I've had a lot of people tell me what he (Snyder) said — that I was going to be fired. He has no facts to back that up," Nolan said.

"And how can you 'blow' a game when you're an underdog?" Nolan said he talked to Mecom two or three times last week by telephone, then met with the owner before Sunday's game.

"In all of our talking, John never even hinted about being dissatisfied. I don't know where he (Snyder) got that."

Richard Todd Inspires Cheers As Jets Grind Down Vikings

NEW YORK (AP) — Quarterback Richard Todd turned a fumbled punt into a 3-yard scoring run and safety Shafer Suggs returned an interception 32 yards for another touchdown Monday night as Minnesota coughed up the ball seven times and helped the New York Jets to a 14-7 victory.

It was the Jets' first victory in eight Monday night games since ABC and the National Football League began it in 1970. And it came in their first Monday nighter at home.

The Jets, 3-4, ran the ball consistently against Minnesota's defense, while young quarterback Tommy Kramer passed almost unhindered against New York's secondary.

But it was the turnovers that enabled the Jets to keep the Vikings, also 3-4, from cutting into Tampa Bay's two-game lead in the National Conference's Central Division.

Minnesota's touchdown came with 6:36 gone in the fourth period, when Chuck Foreman climaxed a 73-yard drive with a 1-yard plunge. It was his 52nd career touchdown, tying Bill Brown for the Vikings' club record.

New York got its first scoring opportunity with just 2:16 gone in the game when punt returner Jimmy Edwards was smacked by John Sullivan of the Jets and fumbled Tim Moresco recovered on the Vikings' 18-yard line and, five plays later, Todd faked a handoff and sprinted untouched into the left corner of the end zone.

Rich Szaro, the former New Orleans placekicker signed by the Jets to replace injured Pat Leahy, kicked the extra point for the 7-0 lead at 4:56 of the first period.

It went to 14-0 with 5:15 left in the third period on Suggs' interception. The Jets, after driving from their 5-yard line to the Vikings' 29, came inches short on a fourth-and-1 play, turning the ball over to Minnesota.

But on the Vikings' second play, Suggs — the strong safety — stepped in front of tight end Bob Tucker, picked off Kramer's pass toward the right sideline and raced the 32 yards unchallenged into the end zone.

But on the Vikings' second play, Suggs — the strong safety — stepped in front of tight end Bob Tucker, picked off Kramer's pass toward the right sideline and raced the 32 yards unchallenged into the end zone.

Four plays after that touchdown, the Jets got the ball back when Foreman fumbled after catching a 6-yard Kramer pass at the Vikings' 34. Defensive end Lawrence Pillers recovered and New York appeared ready to strike again.

It was one of four interceptions by the Jets, who also recovered three fumbles to kill Minnesota scoring opportunities. The last interception was by Burgess Owens, his second of the game, on the goal line as time ran out.

The Jets, with the worst pass defense in the league entering the game, allowed Kramer — a third-year pro replacing Fran Tarkenton — to complete 28 of 48 passes for 270 yards while the Vikings shunned the ground game. Rickey Young was Minnesota's leading rusher with 31 yards on nine carries.

Todd, strongly criticized by New York fans earlier this year for his seeming inability to lead the Jets, passed only 13 times — completing nine for 72 yards. Meanwhile, the Jets' league-leading rushing offense controlled the clock with Kevin Long rushing 15 times for 78 yards, Clark Gaines adding 54 and Scott Dierking 23.

After Moresco's fumble recovery, Long rushed twice for 12 yards and, two plays later, Todd faked his handoff and rolled to the left. As he scampered into the end zone, he raised the ball victoriously, bringing cheers from the fans who had been demanding that reserve quarterback Matt Robinson replace him.

Four plays after that touchdown, the Jets got the ball back when Foreman fumbled after catching a 6-yard Kramer pass at the Vikings' 34. Defensive end Lawrence Pillers recovered and New York appeared ready to strike again.

WTSU's Nelson Voted Honor

TULSA, Okla. (UPI) — West Texas State linebacker Mike Nelson and Southern Illinois quarterback Gerald Carr have been named this week's Missouri Valley Conference top defensive and offensive players, respectively.

WTSU, which defeated previously unbeaten Indiana State 33-17, was paced by Nelson. He chalked up 13 tackles — nine unassisted — to help hold the Sycamores to minus 19 yards in the second half.

Among the offensive nominees was Buffalo quarterback Larry Thompson.

State Vacancies Occur Only In RR Commission

By BILL KIDD
A-J Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Apart from the Texas Supreme Court and Court of Criminal Appeals, the only statewide races (barring vacancies occurring somewhere) for the 1980 general election on the State level are the two Railroad Commission campaigns.

And judging from the early going, there's likely to be lots of money spent, lots of charges made and denied, and lots of press releases issued, whatever the eventual outcome may be.

The Railroad Commission is a peculiar Texas institution, which Texans know has far, far more to do with drilling rigs, pipelines, utilities and trucks than with tracks and trains.

Historically, that came about because the commission was created to deal with railroads, and care to serve as a kind of catch-all agency during that long-forgotten time when lawmakers showed new duties to old agencies rather than creating additional entities (although that trend now seems to be reversing again).

For the record, the commission has long been viewed as the spokesman for, sometimes even little more than an arm of, the oil and gas industry in Texas.

That industry remains, as it has been for years, an important and inseparable part of Texas' economy — and few would argue that the health of that industry is vital to the health of the state's economy in general.

What has been argued, and will be argued again, is how well the Railroad Commission does in protecting and promoting the interests of the state's citizens in general, as opposed to the oil and gas industry in particular.

Both challengers in the current contest are doing that.

Diboll Rep. Arthur S. (Buddy) Temple III, who is challenging John Poerner, contends the commissioners at least give the impression — including to policy makers in Washington — that they are merely "errand boys" for the petroleum industry.

Denison native Jim Hightower, former editor of the "Texas Observer," who's going against Jim Nugent, says he's not running so much against the former Kerville legislator as he is against "the oil companies and the utilities."

Any of those three — let alone them all — is a formidable opponent.

Railroad commissioners appear to enjoy long tenure, and unusual on isn't an easy task — and I haven't happened, at least in recent history.

In fact, since 1980, when the commission was created, there have been 26 governors, giving the average Railroad Commission member an office holding period about three times that of the governor.

It has been the last several elections, judging from past returns, where most of the contested commission races have occurred.

That has been due, at least in part, to the fact that there have been no elected incumbents in those races.

All three of the current commissioners first came to the commission as appointees (and all three as appointees of former Gov. Dolph Briscoe).

Commissioner Mack Wallace has won election since his appointment, as has Poerner, leaving Nugent to attempt his first state effort.

Hightower and Temple also will be making their first attempts in that regard, as well.

Temple says he plans to spend $600,000 in his primary bid, and he has $200,000 on hand, (and he says he'll pump his own funds from his not inconsiderable holdings into the race).

Hightower estimates he'll need $250,000 for his attempt, and has raised or pledged $100,000 to that amount.

In all likelihood, both races will be decided in favor of those raising the most money, as is the usual case in statewide races.

If past races are any guide, Poerner and Nugent should have the advantage in that category.

And if the past is any indication, all three commissioners will continue their almost daily attacks on Federal energy policies (or lack thereof).

A lot can happen in the next half year between now and the primary, but unless a lot does, the incumbents are likely to remain incumbents.

Health-Transit Dilemma Probed

By NANCY ALLEN
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Lubbock's Health Department could fit space downtown for what it would cost the city to provide bus transportation to the north Avenue Q and Jarvis Street location, Transit Advisory Board members agreed Monday.

"There is a need (for transportation to the health department)," acknowledged board member Bill Dean, "but Citibus won't fill it."

After vetoing a special Citibus route to the health department last month, the Transit Board asked the city staff to examine the feasibility of contracting with a taxi company for service to the department.

But such service would be more expensive than what it would cost Citibus to add a route to the health department, according to transit planner Clyde Shannon.

The study, released to the board at Monday's meeting, concluded the cheapest means of connecting the health department with the rest of the city would be by a van-pool serving both employees and clients of the various clinics.

The van-pool could be organized by the transit department and operated by the health department, Shannon said.

The board asked that the results of the recent study be forwarded to health department personnel.

Transit coordinator John Wilson explained, "If we could provide transportation to the health department cheaper than anybody else, then it would be our business to do it."

"The van is the cheapest way to go, though, and we don't own a van."

Because of restrictions on federal funding, Wilson maintains the health department could purchase a van more cheaply than the transit department.

"When they decide to go (with a van-pool system)," Wilson emphasized, "we'll get them organized."

Some 50 damaged bus benches have been removed from their locations around the city, Shannon told the board.

They will be repaired and the backs covered with Citibus route maps sometime before Christmas, he estimated.

Vandalism of bus benches is a constant headache for the transit department, Shannon said. "I'd be surprised if there are 25 benches left on the streets."

Despite a dip in ridership from August to September, Wilson reported total Citibus passengers increased 28 percent in September over the same period a year ago.

Since ridership fluctuates seasonally, he said the year-to-year comparisons are better, because "you've got to compare apples to apples."

The year-to-year figures have been climbing steadily since March, when they dropped to four percent below what they were in 1978.

Passengers per mile rose above the "one" mark for the second time this year, to 1.04. Wilson compared the figure to "possibly 2.5 in the big cities," and said he's aiming for 1.25 in Lubbock. "After that we'll definitely need new buses," he said.

Board Reaffirms Policy On Prayer

By LISA PAIKOWSKI
Avalanche-Journal Staff

At a news conference Monday, the president of the Lubbock public school trustees reaffirmed the board's policy allowing religious activities in the schools, saying the policy meets "Constitutional requirements."

Board president Monte Hasie read from a prepared statement concerning the trustees' stance on the controversial issue, but did not mention the recent Lubbock Civil Liberties Union lawsuit challenging the constitutionality of the policy.

The LCLU filed the lawsuit Sept. 27 in federal court against the school district, the trustees and the superintendent of schools.

Hasie said board members developed the policy adopted early this year "after a great deal of thought and after considering prior court rulings."

"It is our opinion that this policy does meet Constitutional requirements. Religious activities are student-initiated and directed, and there is no favoritism to any religious belief, nor is there a prescribed religious activity."

Hasie further stated, "It is our opinion that the majority of the community supports this policy and its approach to the matter of religion in the schools. We further believe that the majority of the people have rights and it is time for their rights to be affirmed."

"This recognition of a Supreme Being is a part of the majority of our lives and to deny recognition of this in the schools would be reverse infringement on the majority's rights."

Rodrigue Schoen, president of the LCLU recently told the-

Avalanche-Journal does not believe the majority of Lubbock citizens backs the board's position, but are not speaking out against it for fear that others "will think they're against religion."

He added that even if trustees did have majority support, religion in the schools still is against the law. "The Bill of Rights and then the 14th and 15th Amendments were put into the Constitution to restrain the majority and I think everybody agrees to that."

Hasie said today he believes the rights of the majority and the minority are protected under the policy, noting, "We have instructed administrators to make provisions for excusing students who ask to be excused from these exercises."

In response to a reporter's question, Hasie said he does not believe students who ask to be excused from the religious activities will be criticized by their peers or teachers for such action.

The school board policy, adopted in January in response to an ACLU request for a ban on religious activity in schools, states, "Insofar as religion is concerned, the Lubbock Independent School District adheres to the principal of freedom of religion as expressed in the Constitution of the United States and the Constitution of the State of Texas."

Then in April, trustees adopted the following guidelines for implementation of the policy: "No school employee shall compose, prescribe, or place his/her approval upon any particular prayer or form of religious activity; however, student initiated and directed religious activities will be permitted."

Injunction Entered Against Dealer

By KAY BELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

An agreed temporary injunction was entered Monday by 140th District Court Judge William Shaver against a Lubbock automobile dealer accused of rolling back the odometers on used cars.

The order prohibits W. D. "Buddy" Ball, president of Buddy Ball Auto Sales Inc., from altering used car odometers, certifying any altered odometer readings as correct and demands that all odometer mileage statements be filled out "completely and accurately" and provided to purchasers.

The State Attorney General's office has accused Ball, either personally or in his capacity as owner of the 4320 Ave. Q business, of being responsible for employees who reset odometers on used vehicles to reflect less mileage.

Shaver last week issued a temporary restraining order against Ball and a hearing was held on the injunction sought by the state Monday morning. However, Assistan. Attorney General Roy Smithers and Ball's attorney, George L. Thompson, reached the agreed injunction limitations and the hearing was cancelled.

Shaver notes in the order that the injunction will remain in effect until further court orders or until a hearing on the case. But no hearing date was set.

The injunction also states that although Ball has agreed to the temporary injunction, his agreement to the order does not constitute an admission to the state's charges, filed under the Consumer Protection Act.

State officials allege that as part of Ball's business, he buys, reconditions and resells used automobiles, a large number of the vehicles being purchased in California and then transported to Texas.

However, in the course of business, according to the attorney general's petition, Ball or employees who are his responsibility have turned back the odom-eters on the vehicles before their resale. The state further charges Ball with certifying the falsified odometer readings as correct and presenting purchasers with incorrect odometer mileage statements.

Documents in Ball's possession indicating such activity, the state alleges, date back to Jan. 1, 1976, and state officials ask in their petition that Ball be ordered to present the documents to the court.

Bond To Be Considered

By A-J Correspondent

PADUCAH - Cottle County residents will decide today whether to approve a $1.9 million bond for an extensive renovation and building program in the Paducah Independent School District.

If the issue is okayed, proposed plans call for Goodwin School to be remodeled and converted into an elementary school and for the construction of a new high school building, new physical education facility and a new field house at the football stadium.

If voters pass the bond, Paducah residents will pay an additional 45 cents per $100 valuation, and county landowners will pay an additional 14 cents per acre on cropland and .075 cents more per acre for pastureland. The current tax rate for Paducah residents is $1.47 per $100 valuation.

Man Tells Court He Saw Gameroom Shooting

A Lubbock man told a 137th District Court jury Monday he watched murder defendant Ruben Ramos pump two bullets into Curtis Pegues' back as Pegues lay face down outside Chocolate City Gameroom the night of April 14.

Stanley Bolton said he and a friend arrived at the 308 Idalou Highway pool hall about 9 a.m. April 14 and he spotted his former Estacado High School football teammate, Pegues, in the back of the establishment.

Just moments later, Bolton said, the 17-year-old defendant and his brother, Joe, who also was indicted on a murder charge in connection with the incident, entered the gameroom.

After the defendant and his brother entered, they walked back to the area where the 23-year-old Pegues was, Bolton said, and he then heard two shots and ran from the building. The witness said he crouched behind a car and as he looked around the vehicle, he saw Pegues lying face down in the parking lot area and Ramos fire two shots from a revolver into the motionless body.

Bolton told Criminal District Attorney John Montford, who along with felony chief Rick Howell is prosecuting the case, that the duo then left the scene in a yellow Chevrolet Malibu.

Defense counsel Chuck Lanehart questioned Bolton's ability to accurately identify the man who fired the shots, but the witness said he had nothing to drink that night. Bolton added he has known both Ramos brothers for about six years and it was Ruben he watched shoot Pegues in the upper right back.

Bolton, however, said he did not see what happened in the back of the pool hall and did not know who fired the first two shots he heard.

Also testifying Monday, as Ramos' trial began, was police identification specialist Cpl. Jimmy Riemer, who told the eight-woman, two-man panel that six bullet wounds were found in Pegues' body. Including the two in the back, Riemer said, Pegues suffered a wound to the right upper chest, right upper arm, right wrist and left upper chest.

Riemer said the right chest wound appeared to be a bullet exit wound because it was jagged while the other wounds were more uniformly rounded.

Testimony will resume in Judge Robert C. Wright's courtroom at 9 a.m. today.

More than 60 Arnett-Benson area residents told city officials Tuesday night they want federal Community Development funds spent on rehabilitation of substandard housing in their neighborhood.

The meeting at McWhorter Elementary School, and another for southwest Lubbockites at Stubbs Elementary School, were two of several scheduled throughout the city this week seeking community input on proposed uses for $3.3 million in federal funds allocated for city improvements.

Although the Arnett-Benson residents also recommended CD funding for proposed construction of a larger day care center in the neighborhood, a new fire truck and road and traffic signal improvements, the group's top priority for their share of the federal funds is for neighborhood housing rehabilitation.

The present day care center, located at 3302 Colgate Ave., serves about 80 children daily. City Planning Director Jim Bertram assured the residents that the $250,000 allocated to the project would allow for considerable expansion.

But when Bertram noted a proposal to use CD funds to change hanging traffic signal lights along University Avenue to standard mast arm lights, many in the crowd voiced strong opposition.

Bidal Aguerro asked Bertram if new traffic lights in west Lubbock were paid for with CD funds, Bertram said lights in other parts of the city were funded by general revenue funds, CD funds and other money sources.

Dora T. Cortez questioned the fairness of having Arnett-Benson residents' tax money going to pay for traffic signals in other areas of the city, while CD funds would have to be taken away from other needed projects to pay for Arnett-Benson traffic signals.

Residents also criticized the City Council for not controlling the growth of weeds in the Arnett-Benson area.

Mrs. Cortez asked Bertram, "Is the City Council apathetic to our grievances on weed control? Do these meetings do any good?"

CD meetings scheduled tonight will be at Posey Elementary, 1301 Redubud, and at Roscoe Wilson Elementary, 2807 25th St. Both meetings start at 7:30 p.m.

YOUR PERSONAL BIORHYTHMS

By Bernard Gittelson, Author of "Biorhythm: A Personal Science"

The personal science of biorhythm can tell you how your day will go. Now you can judge the highs and lows of not only yourself, but loved ones and friends, and celebrities and stars. Biorhythm, our newest scientific discipline, is the study of the built-in natural cycles that powerfully influence our behavior.

BIORHYTHMS FOR OCT. 16, 1979

PHYSICAL: Critical: 4, 15, 27, 38, 50, 61, 73. Take care, can get hurt. High: 5-14, 28-37, 51-60, 74-75. Hop to it, it's your day. Low: 1-3, 16-26, 39-49, 62-72. Take it easy, you're tired.

EMOTIONAL: Critical: 10, 24, 38, 52, 66, 80. Emotional judgment nil. High: 1-9, 25-37, 53-65, 81-85. Positive day emotionally. Low: 11-23, 39-51, 67-79. Easily discouraged.

INTELLECTUAL: Critical: 1, 17, 34, 50, 67, 83. Be on the defensive. High: 2-16, 35-49, 68-82. Blaze new paths today. Low: 18-33, 51-66, 84-95. Ponder choices carefully.

Enter your own permanent numbers in the chart in the bottom right-hand corner. To figure your own permanent numbers, follow these three steps:

Step 1: From the year chart, find the numbers corresponding to your year of birth. For instance, if you were born in 1947, your number for Physical would be 21, Emotional 17, Intellectual 19. Note whether your numbers are preceded by an A or B; this will be used for Step 2.

	1900-09			1910-19			1920-29			1930-39
	P	E	I	P	E	I	P	E	I	P	E	I
0	A13	15	13	A8	27	2	B3	11	24	A22	24	14
1	A10	16	15	A5	0	4	A1	13	27	A19	25	16
2	A7	17	17	B2	1	6	A21	14	29	B16	26	18
3	A4	18	19	A0	3	9	A18	15	31	A14	0	21
4	B1	19	21	A20	4	11	B15	16	0	A11	1	23
5	A22	21	24	A17	5	13	A13	18	3	A8	2	25
6	A19	22	26	B14	6	15	A10	19	5	B5	3	27
7	A16	23	28	A12	8	18	A7	20	7	A3	5	30
8	B13	24	30	A9	9	20	B4	21	9	A0	6	32
9	A11	26	0	A6	10	22	A2	23	12	A20	7	1

Step 2: Now find the corresponding number for the month you were born. If your month is February, and your year numbers were preceded by a B, your month numbers would be 8 for Physical, 3 for Emotional and 31 for Intellectual. Enter your own numbers in the figure chart for Step 2.

Jan.	Feb.	March	April	May	June
P	E	I	P	E	I	P	E	I	P	E	I
A 0	0	0	8	3	31	13	3	26	21	6	24	5	8	21
B 0	0	0	8	3	31	14	4	27	22	7	25	6	9	22

Step 3: In the figure chart, enter your day of birth three times, once each for Physical (P), Emotional (E) and Intellectual (I). (If you were born on April 3, for instance, place a 3 in each column.)

Add the three columns to derive your permanent biorhythm numbers for your Physical, Emotional and Intellectual cycles. Now you can refer to today's rhythms.
