NEW LEVELLAND RESIDENT — It took a 4-month trial, six attorneys, six child psychologists, 30 witnesses and more than $200,000 in legal expenses to find a legal home for 2-year-old Stevie, an El Paso child who was given up for adoption after his parents were divorced. A district judge in Fort Worth approved Stevie's aunt and uncle, Jean and Jim Fortner of Levelland as his adoptive parents. The Fortners have three other children—all boys. (AP Laserphoto)

Levelland Couple Wins Custody Of Boy In Long Court Battle

FORT WORTH (AP) — For four months the legal battles raged. The principals paid more than $200,000 in legal fees to six attorneys who paraded six psychologists and more than 30 witnesses across the stand. The issue at stake: custody of a 2-year-old child named Stevie. In the end, Stevie was awarded to his aunt and uncle, Jim and Jean Fortner of Levelland, over four other couples, including two sets of grandparents. The sounds of a happy family could be heard in the background Tuesday night, as Fortner talked about having Stevie home for good. "Things are going just great," the Levelland oil field worker told The Avalanche-Journal, as his three other sons and Stevie shrieked and laughed.

For example, he said, in April, agency officials told the natural parents they would support efforts to get the child back while foster parents believed the See BOY Page 14

CD Funding Proposals Given City

By SYLVIA TEAGUE, Avalanche-Journal Staff HOUSING rehabilitation should receive the majority of $3.3 million the city will receive in federal Community Development funds next year and more of the funds should be devoted to services rather than facilities, the Community Development Advisory Committee recommended Tuesday night. Meeting for 3 1/2 hours to formulate its annual recommendation to the City Council on how the CD funds should be spent, the committee left unchanged a prior recommendation that 55 percent of the money be devoted to housing rehabilitation.

Of the $3.3 million, $1.82 million would be used for rehabilitation efforts in seven city neighborhoods. Arnett Benson would receive the most funding ($600,000) with the total clearance work in Phyllis Wheatley recommended for $400,000 in funding. However, the CDAC did delete $257,000 in previously recommended projects to enable other projects to receive money. Irrigation Project Deleted Those projects deleted and their costs include replacing the irrigation system in Hood Park, $39,000; replacing the traffic signals at Avenue L and 34th Street, $10,000; purchase of a triple pumper fire truck for the fire station at University Avenue and Third Street, $90,000; and construction of a parking lot for the Huffman Athletic Complex north of Loop 289, $117,000.

Those projects were replaced on the list of recommendations by a security patrol at Green Fair Manor, $43,500; remodeling Chatman Hospital for Pre-natal Center operations, $45,000; construction of an access road on the south side of Canyon Lake 6, $92,500 and funding for the Neighborhood House located at 2009 E. 13th St., $75,000. Park Funding Included Parks projects would receive nearly $429,000 under the CDAC recommendation. Other parks projects recommended for funding include land acquisition for a park in Overton South, $110,000; remodeling George Woods Community Center, $139,402; replacing irrigation systems in Rodgers, Washington and Guadalupe See FUNDING Page 14

Iran Charges U.S. Stirs 'War Climate'

Request For OPEC Embargo Hinted

By The Associated Press IRANIAN leaders Tuesday dropped their demand that the shah be handed over to them immediately and set new conditions for freeing the U.S. Embassy hostages in Tehran. But the Moslem militants holding the 98 hostages rejected any compromise. Iran accused the United States of stirring a "climate of war" in the world, asked for a meeting of the U.N. Security Council, and hinted it might seek an OPEC oil embargo against America.

The request for a council meeting, handed to U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim late Tuesday, said world peace was threatened by American "war psychosis." Security Council President Sergio Palacios de Vizcaino said he would meet with individual members of the 15-nation council today. The apparent split in Tehran came after 11 days of public solidarity between the hundreds of students who seized the embassy Nov. 4 and the regime of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini. Iranian foreign affairs chief Abolhasan Bani Sadr, in a letter to Waldheim, proposed the United States agree to an international investigation of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi's alleged crimes and turn his U.S. money and property over to Iran.

He implied the results of the inquiry would force Washington to return the deposed monarch, now hospitalized for cancer treatment in New York. Another Iranian official, radio and television director Sadeq Gotbzadeh, said the regime was ready to end the embassy occupation "before the extradition of the shah for humanitarian reasons and the interests of the hostages," the Kuwait news agency reported. Khomeini Guarantee Tehran Radio, in a report monitored in London, said Khomeini had guaranteed the shah he would get a fair trial and be able to hire as many defense lawyers as he wanted. The radio also said the ayatollah stated that if the shah were absolved he would not object to restoring the monarch to power.

The Carter administration had no response to the evident softening of the position Iranian authorities. In one of the first reactions, Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said the proposals "will never be accepted." Reaction from the militants at the embassy also was quick. The government-run Tehran Radio quoted their spokesmen as rejecting "any conciliatory proposal." They said they could not compromise — the shah must be returned to Iran for trial.

Return Shah Wealth In the letter to Waldheim, Bani Sadr wrote: "The American government should, at least, accept the investigation of the guilt of the former Shah of Iran and its consequences. The American government should return to the Iranian government the wealth and property which the Shah, his family and the leaders of the former regime have transferred to the United States." There are no reliable estimates of the shah's wealth abroad, though some of his enemies claim it is $50 billion or more. Sources close to the shah estimate his wealth at between $60 and $90 million.

Bani Sadr denounced President Carter's cutoff of U.S. purchases of Iranian oil and asked for a Security Council meeting, saying, "The American government is immersing the world in a climate of war." Cleared For Return Gotbzadeh told a news conference in Tehran that once the new conditions were met, "naturally the way would be clear for steps toward his (the shah's) return," Tehran Radio reported. Gotbzadeh said the new proposals had the endorsement of Khomeini's all-powerful Revolutionary Council, of which both he and Bani Sadr are members. The council also voted to bar Iranian air space to U.S. airplanes, Tehran Radio reported in a broadcast monitored in London. The New York reservation office of Pan American World Airways, the only U.S. airline serving Iran, said it had suspended all flights there Nov. 7 because of political tension between the two countries. A reservation clerk said the only other carrier with flights between Iran and the United States was dropped service on Nov. 9.

The severity of the split between Iranian authorities and the embassy militants could not be determined. Palestine Liberation Organization sources said PLO envoys in Tehran last weekend found hard line and more conciliatory students bickering with each other about strategy. Khomeini has not been heard from since a speech Saturday in which he rejected any negotiations and declared the shah must be returned. He has been in seclusion in his headquarters city of Qum, 100 miles south of Tehran.

As for the hostages, one of their student captors, reached by telephone by a Toronto Star reporter, said they were "OK and there is nothing to worry about. They are getting much food. They could not be treated better." The mili- See CONDITIONS Page 14

Tech's 70 Iranians Reported 'In Good Academic Standing'

By RUTHANNE BROCKWAY, Avalanche-Journal Staff

AN IMMIGRATION representative visited the Texas Tech University campus Tuesday to discuss with university officials the mandate that all Iranian students report to immigration authorities within 30 days or face possible deportation. The crackdown on student visas, initiated by President Carter, has netted at least five violators in the state, but a Tech spokesman said all 70 Iranians at Tech are in good academic standing. Iranian students in the Lubbock area must report to the U.S. Border Patrol office before Dec. 14, according to orders issued Tuesday by U.S. Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti.

Working Time Limited Hugh Rushton, a spokesman for the area Border Patrol office in Marfa, said the majority of student visa violations are because, "They drop out (of school) for work." He explained that students who obtain permission from the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service may work 20 hours per week, but those working more are in violation of their student visas.

Academic standing of Iranian students also will be checked, Rushton said. Undergraduates must be enrolled for at least 12 hours of course work and graduate students for 9 hours, unless they are working on their thesis, in which case they may take fewer hours. Although deportation proceedings have been initiated against four persons on student visas at Sul Ross State University in Alpine, Rushton said, "We found most of the Iranian students in Alpine to be very high caliber." Documentary Proof Asked In an announcement issued at noon Tuesday, Civiletti said Iranian students must provide proof of address, proof of enrollment in school including a receipt for tuition and fees or a waiver of fee payment for the current semester, and a Wreckage Of Plane Yields Few Drugs after the plane was discovered Monday morning. Hoover said that a white powdery substance found in the wreckage had been identified as cocaine, but he added that only two to three grams of the illegal substance was recovered, along with a small amount of marijuana.

Federal Aviation Administration officials Tuesday had not determined the cause of the crash that killed David Alan Jones, 32, of 5427 Ave. B, and Michael W. O'Keefe, 31, of Owalla, Wash. The Seattle Times reported that O'Keefe's brother, Gary, said Jones had flown his orange-and-white Cessna to Tacoma the last week in October to pick up seats for the airplane. O'Keefe said his brother went to meet Jones in Tacoma and the pair left Oct. 29 for Omak, Wash. O'Keefe said the plane was a five-passenger craft but that two seats had been removed to increase the cargo area.

Although Jones never filed a flight plan, records indicate Jones landed his plane in Grand Junction, Colo., for minor repairs and fuel. Officials said they believe the small plane crashed during a blinding snow storm that swept across New Mexico Oct. 30. John Sena of the New Mexico State Police said the plane apparently was flying too low when it struck a treetop and slammed into a clump of trees before skidding about 50 yards up the side of a hill. The men's bodies were taken from the wreckage and flown by helicopter to Albuquerque for autopsies, said Tom See DEBRIS Page 14

Wreckage Of Plane Yields Few Drugs

DRUG ENFORCEMENT Administration officials Tuesday said only a small amount of narcotics was found amid the wreckage of a twin-engine plane in which a Lubbock pilot and his passenger were killed. "The initial reports (of large amounts of drugs aboard the aircraft) were grossly exaggerated," said David Hoover of the Dallas office of the DEA. "Only a small amount of cocaine and marijuana was found among the wreckage."

National Transportation Safety Board officials sealed off the crash site shortly

World Boycott Reaction Mixed

By The Associated Press JAPAN said "no." Australia said "maybe" and Britain kept its own counsel Tuesday about whether it will join the United States in a boycott of Iranian oil. Foreign exchange dealers, meanwhile, credited what one called President Carter's "guts and aggressiveness" for giving a boost to the dollar, whose value rose against other currencies in morning trading Tuesday in London and other markets. In announcing he was cutting off U.S. purchases of 700,000 barrels a day in Iranian oil and oil products, Carter indicated Monday he would welcome parallel moves by U.S. allies. But foreign officials said they were unaware of any direct American request for concerted action.

A Japanese Foreign Ministry official said Japan has no plans at present to join in the embargo of Iranian oil imports. "The situation is different in Japan... A cutoff of Iranian oil would have serious consequences for the economy," said the official, who asked not to be named. Ten percent of the oil Japan consumes comes from Iran. Iranian oil accounts for no more than 4 percent of U.S. consumption. Japan's Kyodo news service, in a Tehran dispatch, said the U.S. confrontation with Iran would severely test Japan's ability to maintain good relations with both countries. Australian Foreign Minister Andrew Peacock applauded Carter's move. In a Canberra news conference, he was asked whether Australia would turn back Iranian oil — less than one percent of Australia's supplies — as an act of solidarity with the United States. "I don't think it is necessary for us to do that at this stage," he replied. "But it may well become a consideration that we will move to."

British government officials declined to comment publicly on Carter's decision. But a spokesman for Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher said, "You can take it for granted that we're keeping in close touch (with the United States) on the whole situation." A source in the West German government said Carter's move was aimed at "knocking an economic weapon from Iranian hands and we consider this basic consideration of his to be a correct reaction." He said the United States had not asked Bonn to join in the boycott. The chairman of the International Energy Agency, the pooling arrangement established by 20 industrial nations to counter the oil-producers cartel, said Carter's move could actually be a boon to the West by encouraging U.S. energy conservation. "I do believe that the Americans will now begin to save," IEA chief Niels Erbsjoell of Denmark said in Copenhagen. An analyst of Persian Gulf politics at the respected International Institute of Strategic Studies, a London research center, said that even if some other countries join the boycott it would not seriously affect the Iranian oil industry or the world market. "It's just a matter of rearrangement" of the market, he said.

Telephone Contact With U. S. Embassy In Iran Established

WASHINGTON (AP) — Officials said Tuesday they have established telephone contact with the U.S. Embassy in Tehran, but refused to say whether there have been any significant negotiations with the Iranians who are holding some 60 Americans hostage there.

State Department spokesman Hodding Carter said communication with the Iranian students who control the embassy was established several days ago and that the Iranians have been taking messages for the hostages. The students "have taken verbal messages, taken them down very carefully, and said they would transmit them to the hostages," the State Department spokesman said. "It's been going on for a while."

But the spokesman declined to reveal whether any "substantive discussions" have been held with the students. Meanwhile, the Carter administration was studying conflicting reports from Iran about possible compromise proposals that could lead to the release of the hostages.

The Iranians, who overran the embassy Nov. 4, have demanded that the deposed Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi be returned to their country to stand trial as a war criminal. The shah is undergoing treatment for cancer in a New York hospital, and the United States has refused to surrender him.

But according to a Tehran radio broadcast monitored here, the acting head of the Iranian Foreign Ministry, Abolhassan Bani-Sadr, is now proposing that the United States support an international investigation into the "crimes" of the shah and turn over the shah's fortune to Iran. The sources close to the shah have estimated his wealth at $60 million to $90 million.

Bani-Sadr was not quoted as repeating the demand that the shah be returned to Iran.

But Tehran radio also carried a statement from the Iranians holding the embassy in which they rejected any "conciliatory proposal" to the United States.

Spokesman Carter said the State Department had received no official statement about the proposals attributed to Bani-Sadr.

"We don't have a complete, private proposal. There is not enough to respond to," Carter said. "I'm incapable of dealing with something we don't have before us."

But department spokesman Jack Tuohy said of the radio reports: "We're giving them a hard look. Any movement upward is welcome."

Later, after a briefing for Senate members by Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and Vice President Walter Mondale, Sen. Howard Baker said the administration has decided to make no reply to Bani-Sadr. Bani-Sadr's proposals were contained in a letter to U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim.

"The administration, and properly, is saying the issue is the release and safe conduct of those American nationals and until that is done we will not consider discussing this matter," said Baker, R-Tenn.

Speaking privately, officials said the conflicting statements from the students and Bani-Sadr raised questions as to who, if anyone, is in charge of the situation in Iran and indicated the nation was sliding toward anarchy.

These officials said they thought the Bani-Sadr statement might be a trial balloon by a faction within the ruling revolutionary council, which may want to end the crisis.

The Iranian radio reports came a day after President Carter, in a nationally broadcast statement, ordered an end to the purchase of Iranian oil. The president said the United States would not bow to terrorism or economic pressure in its efforts to free the hostages.

A short time after Carter's address was aired, Iranian officials said they already had decided to cut off the flow of oil to the United States.

In an Arabic-language broadcast, Iran called for a total boycott on all Arab oil supplies to the United States to strike at "the U.S. idol."

The broadcast said Islamic people should follow Iran's example because "it is stupid to think that we can restore holy Jerusalem while our wealth goes to the United States to strengthen the Israeli enemy."

It added: "Jerusalem will be restored through will, through stopping the flow of oil to the United States and Israel, but not through sweet words."

Mercury Predicted To Reach Low 60's

After the temperature in Lubbock dipped to the lowest of the season Tuesday, area residents can look forward to a high today in the low 60s. The temperature tonight, however, should once again be near the freezing mark.

The 23-degree temperature logged in Lubbock early Tuesday morning was the lowest so far this fall, and the coldest in the entire state.

A high pressure system moved southward Tuesday through Texas, bringing sunny skies and mild weather to the state.

The forecast calls for clear skies and mild temperatures throughout the state today. In Lubbock, winds should be light and variable today.

Cool nights and mild afternoons should continue for the Lubbock area through Sunday. No precipitation is expected in the area through Thursday.

Rain fell in much of the nation Tuesday, and snow was reported in parts of Wisconsin and northern Michigan.

Showers were reported along the East Coast, from the Carolinas to New York, and in Florida.

Pat Nixon Getting Pneumonia Care

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — Former first lady Pat Nixon was hospitalized with pneumonia Tuesday, former President Richard Nixon's office announced.

"Mrs. Nixon has been admitted to the San Clemente General Hospital for treatment of pneumonia," the Nixon office said in a brief statement.

"She is resting comfortably and making satisfactory progress."

Mrs. Nixon was taken to the hospital about noon Tuesday, a spokesman said.

The 66-year-old former first lady suffered a stroke in 1976 and was hospitalized for several weeks.

Speakers Hit Nuclear Power Industry At Tech Rally

By NANCY ALLEN
Avalanche-Journal Staff
An anti-nuclear rally drew about 100 persons to the Texas Tech campus Tuesday on the fifth anniversary of the death of anti-nuclear activist Karen Silkwood.

The noon hour crowd listened attentively to eight speakers representing such organizations as the National Organization of Women, the Sierra Club and the National Lawyers' Guild.

Calling "ridiculous" the claims that nuclear power is safe, Dr. Mike Wentzler described the increasing incidence of cancer and genetic defects in Japan as a result of the U.S. atom bomb attacks in World War II.

"Radiation in any form poses a risk," Wentzler stressed.

Employees of nuclear power plants have statistically higher cancer death rates than many other industries, he continued. "Not every worker will die, but we have to ask ourselves, 'How many deaths are worth maintaining the industry?'"

Wentzler like other speakers to follow, called for "the building of no more nuclear energy plants. We need to shut down those operating now."

Sierra Club member and Tech economics professor Ted Taylor echoed Wentzler's words, describing the Sierra Club's objections to nuclear energy as four-fold.

Radiation-emitting nuclear wastes pose an insurmountable problem, explained Taylor, because they cannot be contained. "There is no safe way to store nuclear wastes," he told the crowd.

He said the Sierra Club challenges nuclear industry claims about the safety of nuclear plants. "No one ever tested plant safety 'on line' (when the plant was operating)," he said. "All testing is done on computer models."

The Sierra Club also opposes nuclear power because of the danger of terrorism. Even nuclear wastes can be used to make a bomb, he explained, "and even the federal government has acknowledged there is no way to stop an attack on a nuclear waste carrier."

Taylor also cited nuclear energy's "thermal effect on the environment" as the final reason for the club's anti-nuclear stance. "Waste heat" from the plants been shown to damage the ecosystem, killing fish and causing fish eggs not to hatch, said Taylor.

Rick Piltz of Austin, well known in the anti-nuclear movement, stood before a large banner proclaiming "Nuke-Free World," to tell listeners that "nuclear technology is entwined with nuclear weapons," making even "atoms for peace" unsafe.

"Every country in the world with nuclear energy has the power to produce a nuclear weapon," Piltz told the crowd.

He named Iran, Japan and Argentina as countries which could develop atom bombs.

Sponsoring the rally, which is believed to be the first of its kind on the Tech campus, was the South Plains Alternative Resource Coalition (SPARC).

Spokesman Glenn Hill, a local environmental designer and graduate of Tech, said the turnout was "just about what we'd expected."

SPARC is preparing an ordinance which would prohibit transporting of nuclear wastes through Lubbock for consideration by the Lubbock City Council.

Hill said.

The organization "definitely" is planning further anti-nuclear demonstrations in Lubbock, "probably next spring," he said.

Hill described SPARC's official stance as "anti-nuke" but said, "We think everybody should educate himself to evaluate the issue and make a personal decision. We'll all be in better shape if we do."

Courthouse Gains New Telephone System, Changes Numbers

Lubbock County Courthouse has instituted a new telephone system with changed phone numbers.

The new main number for the courthouse is 741-8000, and courthouse information is 741-8011.

"Prior to installation of the new phone system, calls went through a PBX operator and had to be connected to the individual departments," County Auditor Dale Gallimore said. "Callers will now be able to call directly to all departments in the courthouse."

Some of the more frequently called offices, with their new numbers, are:

County judge 741-8008, county clerk 741-8034, criminal district attorney 741-8043, district clerk 741-8064, tax assessor-collector/motor vehicle department 741-8028, tax assessor-collector/property tax department 741-8028, jury pool 741-8000, sheriff 741-8091, adult probation 741-8061, juvenile probation 741-8068.

European explorers first reached Lubbock in the late 18th century.

Data System Sought For Crime Work

By BOB CAMPBELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff
The Criminal District Attorney's office Tuesday asked the county commissioners for a special data processing system to handle burgeoning paperwork.

Hal Hensley, office administrator for Criminal District Attorney John P. Montford, said the $70,000 system is needed because of a "glut of paper" in the office and because of the difficulty of pinpointing problem areas in office workings under the manual system.

Hensley said the system he wants — manufactured by Justice Information Management of Austin — would cost $69,900 for outright purchase and about $95,000 on a five-year lease-purchase arrangement.

He said there would be no additional costs because maintenance and software would be part of the package.

County auditor Dale Gallimore and Hensley agreed to do further analysis of the system and various options regarding its cost and meet again with the commissioners at a later date.

In other business, the commissioners Tuesday afternoon decided to cast all 533 of their votes in the election of a countywide tax assessment board for Shallowater farmer Don Martin.

Each of the taxing entities in Lubbock County casts a number of votes according to its annual tax levy. The five board members to govern the Lubbock County tax appraisal district will take office Jan. 1.

Martin already had been nominated by the Shallowater Independent School District.

Morton Officials To Hire New City Manager

Morton city officials expect to hire a new city manager and adopt a new insurance policy for city employees by Monday or sooner, says Mayor pro tem Hazel Hancock.

Morton's former city manager Wiley Hodge resigned at a City Council meeting Oct. 29, when the council laid off 17 of the city's 27 employees because of the city's accelerating financial problems.

Within the past six months, the small oil and cotton community has fallen as much as $200,000 in debt, almost three times its total annual tax collections of $78,000.

City officials began trying to climb out of the financial hole Monday night in a meeting that adjourned at 1 a.m. Tuesday, as they interviewed two applicants for city manager and studied "recommendations from the general public" to remedy Morton's financial situation, Hancock said.

"We've set a meeting for next Monday night, but it's possible we might call one sooner, as soon as we check out the information these people (applicants for city manager) gave us," he said.

But, Hancock said, the council learned Monday that the most popular recommendation, to sell the city-owned gas line, is not feasible because of regulations on grant money. The city bought the dilapidated natural gas system about 35 years ago. The system has been leaking 25 to 50 percent of the gas passing through it each year and costing the city a fortune in revenue.

The 2,800 residents of Morton also have been left without a police force since the massive layoff of city employees. Mayor J.A. Love has been hospitalized out of the state for much of the year.

AN EDITORIAL:

Windfall Tax Would Aid Iran

A HOLLYWOOD script writer could not have timed it better: The Senate debate over a windfall tax proposal that would discourage domestic production of oil follows hard on the heels of an announced cutoff of Iranian oil.

President Carter and the Ayatollah Khomeini announced within minutes of one another Monday that (1) the purchase of oil in Iran for delivery in this country is forbidden and (2) the sale of oil in Iran for delivery to this country is forbidden.

Meanwhile, more than 60 American embassy personnel in Tehran still were being held hostage by the ayatollah's anti-American fanatics.

IN TRYING TO deal with the crisis of his administration's own making, the President had announced two days earlier that any of the 50,000 Iranian students in this country who violate the terms of their entry visas may be deported.

It could take at least a year for "due process" to run its course before anyone actually could be sent back to Iran, however.

Carter did not immediately act on such other limited alternatives as he had to work with, such as ordering a halt to the shipment of grain and other food products to Iran.

It was obvious, as it has been all along, that the Iranian revolutionary council would make the decision as to if and when to free the hostages and that any counter-measures the U.S. might take would affect the American people more than the Iranians.

AN EDITORIAL:

Savers Are Losing 'Interest'

THANKS TO repressive taxation, Americans literally are being forced to not save, as well as not invest in U.S. produced goods.

With today's tax structure, the U.S. saver is taxed on income, sales and the interest he draws from a savings account.

Interest is the incentive behind savings—and savings themselves are the driving force behind much of the business investment that keeps the American economy strong.

Charley Pope of First Federal Savings says data compiled within the industry show that many other capitalistic countries provide tax incentive for their citizens to save—and it works.

FOR EXAMPLE, West Germans save an average of 15 percent of their disposable income, according to S&L Communications, Inc., and the highly productive Japanese save more than 25 percent.

In comparison (contrast, really), most Americans are lucky to save 6 percent of their take-home pay.

Conservative members of Congress have put forth a bill (HR 1429) that would make the first $100 in interest earned tax-free. Sponsors said this benefits the saver who needs such a break the most—the small saver making less than $20,000 per year.

Rep. Robert E. Bauman, R-Md., chair-

ALL OF WHICH brings us back to that windfall profits tax, a measure that will increase American dependence on foreign oil by reducing the incentive to find and produce oil in this country.

The President and the Democratic-controlled Congress have been adamant in their insistence that the oil crisis should be used as a new source of revenue for the federal treasury to finance a new round of handouts to the poor.

This plays into the hands of unfriendly governments such as that of Iran and permits the OPEC countries to continue raising prices at will.

AN UNFETTERED OIL industry would have done something about the domestic energy shortage in the six years since the Arab oil embargo.

If oil from Iran is cut off, and nothing else changes, Americans will have to get along on 4 percent less oil. This would be no great sacrifice and it would be one that Americans would gladly shoulder if it would help free us from international blackmail.

It is, however, a sham. While we should not do business with a country that violates the human rights of our citizens, our decision not to buy Iranian oil directly was purely symbolic, albeit important in that respect, in terms of freeing the hostages.

If, on the other hand, we had a foreign policy and an energy policy properly conceived and executed, we would not be at the mercy of cutthroat fanatics in the first place.

man of the American Conservative Union, says, "It would put the money back in the hands of the 'little guy' who has been hit by the economic backlash of taxation."

WHY HAS THE federal government hampered production when everyone agrees that productivity is the key to a healthy economy? The answer is frighteningly simple:

Tax policies have stymied economic growth because of years of tax-and-tax and spend-and-spend liberal philosophy.

Business investors and passbook account holders alike are seeking better ways to offset a double-digit inflation rate and what amounts to double taxation by government.

Conservatives are working for a new tax package that would cut personal income taxes by $20 billion and business taxes by the same amount. Rep. Bauman believes this step, coupled with corresponding cuts in federal spending, would encourage both saving and investment, at the same time freeing badly needed money in the current recession.

A break for the small saver, an income tax cut, a reduction in federal spending, a chance for investors—not government—to begin recharging the lagging economy. All are needed quickly.

M. STANTON EVANS:

Iranian 'Students' See U.S. As Impotent Giant

WASHINGTON—Nothing could illustrate more clearly the decline of American power in the world than the sacking of our embassy and consulates in Iran.

These violent incursions make all too plain the manner in which the United States is currently viewed abroad—as a nation which can be disdainfully bludgeoned into compliance with the demands of foreign powers.

In this case, the demand with which we are supposed to comply is to deliver up the Shah of Iran to the tender mercies of the revolutionary government in Tehran.

To date, the Carter administration has refused to send the Shah to what would be an almost certain death at the hands of the Khomeini zealots. That refusal is perfectly proper, and we can only hope that it persists.

TO HAND over the Shah to a Mideast version of a kangaroo court would be, in any event, an act of inhumanity; to do so in surrender to a fanatic mob would be a degradation of our country.

Simply refusing to hand over the Shah, however, is hardly sufficient answer to such conduct. There remains the matter of the threats to which we have been subject, the manhandling of our citizens, the seizure of our property.

That we should suffer these indignities from a minor power like Iran speaks volumes about our standing in the world today.

A distinction should be drawn between the kinds of threat that have been made against us. The Iranian oil minister has suggested that, as part of the current controversy, our supply of oil from Iran might be interrupted.

THAT IS one threat. Another is the seizure of our embassy, the kidnaping of our citizens, and the threat to kill them unless the Shah is handed over.

The oil belongs to the Iranians, and if they refuse to sell it, that is their business. Imports from Iran amount to roughly five percent of our consumption needs, and we could easily counter a cut-off of that magnitude by the simple expedient of deregulating our own domestic production.

The violence against our citizens and property is another matter. Suitable reparations for this outrage should be exacted from the Iranian government.

THE FULL array of sanctions available to us, from the financial to the diplomatic, should be brought to bear against Khomeini.

Deeper than these immediate considerations is the course of official conduct on our part which has led to such contemptuous treatment from other countries.

All too clearly, we are viewed and treated as an impotent giant. Too many nations have seen us back off from other confrontations—in Korea, Vietnam, Angola, Panama, Nicaragua, Taiwan. They can hardly help concluding that we lack either the will or the resources to stand up for our interests.

Reinforcing this conclusion is the perception that the global balance of power has tipped against us, and that we are unwilling, or unable, to do anything about it.

AS THE SOVIETS throw their weight around in Africa, Asia, and Latin America, and aggressively pursue a policy of military build-up, the Carter administration talks of "peace," and truckles to Marxist revolutionaries in every quarter of the globe.

Such contrasts are not lost on people like the present governors of Iran. They want the Shah, and have concluded we are the kind of nation that can be brought to heel by threats and violence.

GEORGE WILL:

A 'Dear John' Letter

John Connally Houston, Texas Dear John:

YOU SEEM surprised that when you threw down the gauntlet, I and others picked it up. In your public letter to me Nov. 1 you say I misrepresented your policy outlined in your Oct. 11 speech on the Middle East. I said your policy is extreme and anti-Israel.

You imply that your disagreement is only with "the present Israeli government"; you assert in your letter that your policy "does not go beyond" UN Resolution 242; and you promise to "assure Israel's security with U.S. military forces." Well, now.

Israel has never sought and does not need U.S. forces for its security. It needs only that which you implicitly threaten to weaken—U.S. support for its self-defense capability.

Israel, noting your threat, and your opinion that

ANDREW TULLY:

Land Of The Plea

WASHINGTON—It is no good yearning for those proud and rational days when half-baked bums in foreign countries thought a hundred thoughts before pushing an American around.

We've got a President who weeps about freedom in Chile and Afghanistan but who accepts as just one of those things in an average day's botheration the seizure of the American Embassy in Iran by a horde of howling Moslem "students."

Summon Ted Kennedy? Don't be silly. The disease is epidemic. Kennedy and all the other Presidential candidates with the possible exception of John Connally and Kansas' Sen. Bob Dole would run just as scared as Jimmy when it came to getting tough with global gangsters skulking behind the slogan of "liberty."

WE HAVE on our hands a new generation of national politicians sworn, not to uphold the rights of Americans here and abroad, but to play protector to foreign revolutionaries who substitute "liberal" persecution for the old fascist brand.

Those vicious nuts in Iran are safe from our official wrath because they overthrew the tyrannical Shah. Of course, the people of Iran are worse off than before.

The Iranian "students" said it all when they unfurled a banner saying "Khomeini Struggles, Carter Trembles," and then proceeded to take 100 hostages at the U.S. Embassy.

Like everybody else, they knew that what passes for an American government would swallow this violent insult with prudent equanimity.

INDEED, THE Ayatollah Khomeini's peculiar regime put its stamp of approval on an act that violated every concept of diplomatic immunity. How can one view, without retching, the statement put out by the Iranian Foreign Ministry?

It said: "Today's move by a group of our compatriots is a natural reaction to the U.S. government's indifference to the hurt feelings of the Iranian people about the presence of the deposed Shah, who is in the United States under the pretext of illness."

Some pretext. The Shah has cancer. Besides, giving diplomatic asylum is a practice as old as the civilized world. Khomeini, whose capacity for compassion toward his own people makes Atilla the Hun look like a rabbit, is sore because the torture chamber he had furnished for the Shah has gone unused.

MEANWHILE, A band of seven Iranian "students" chained themselves to railing inside the Statue of Liberty, demanding that the shah be returned to his homeland for, you should pardon the expression, "trial."

This is a free country, and all that jazz. But what bugs me is that the superintendent of Liberty Island and National Park Service police negotiated with the "students" for three hours before they were hauled off to jail.

The "students" had committed a crime. What was being negotiated—a steak dinner and free hashish for the criminals if they behaved?

Beh! I call not for the Marines, but bemoan the decline of a Republic that "don't get no respect."

Israel is the obstacle to peace, can hardly entrust its security to your military promises.

You depart radically from Resolution 242. It does not call, as you do, for virtually complete Israeli withdrawal from the areas from which aggression came in 1967.

The resolution does not mention what you are ready to accept: a Palestinian state on the West Bank, a state that might crush Jordan, and would further the encirclement of Saudi Arabia by radical states.

TO SAY that you support 242 is to say almost nothing: the crux of the controversy is the interpretation of 242.

But clearly 242 requires peace between states, and peace between Israel and Jordan before any Israeli withdrawal from the West Bank. In this regard, your policy turns 242 inside out.

You say "the greatest sources of intellectual stimulation" for your plan were a 1970 study by the American Friends Service Committee and a 1975 Brookings Institution study.

The former simply is not a serious source. The latter was a counter to Henry Kissinger's step-by-step approach to peace, and was the intellectual progenitor of the Carter administration's initial "comprehensive" approach.

THAT APPROACH was a study in futility and (like yours) would have maximized the leverage of the most radical participants in the process.

You imply, on the slenderest evidence, and wrongly, that there is substantial opposition among American Jews to Menachem Begin's policies. You call Begin uncompromising—Begin, who to get peace yielded the entire Sinai, a concession never suggested by any previous Israeli government.

A Labor government, not Begin's government, initiated West Bank settlements, and no conceivable Israeli government could or should accept your extreme policy of expelling all Jewish settlers from the West Bank.

Neither the Palestine Mandate nor any other international law requires or justifies your position.

EVEN MORE mystifying than your desire to link oil questions to the negotiating process is your belief that Iran's Khomeini or Libya's Khadafi or other Arab leaders will subordinate oil pricing and production decisions to developments concerning the West Bank.

You are eager to pressure Israel in the hope that this will make oil producers more complaisant. But the nervous spirit of your proposal will only convince various producers that they can make U.S. policy a hostage for purposes unrelated to the West Bank.

Speaking of hostages: having announced yourself ready to pressure an ally, Israel, for preemptive concessions to appease oil producers, you are the wrong fellow to be saying that administration "appeasement" is responsible for the seizure of the U.S. embassy in Iran.

YOUR CAMPAIGN organization has contrived to give the false impression that Henry Kissinger approved your Middle East speech in advance.

Anyone who remembers Kissinger's policy, or reads his memoirs, or has accurate information about his response when your aide showed him your speech, knows that Kissinger does not agree with your approach.

Only insignificant cosmetic changes were made in the speech in response to his criticisms.

In your letter, you say there are "no grounds whatsoever" for saying you are anti-Israel.

Two paragraphs later you brag: "I did not... as is customary for presidential candidates take all my cues on Israel from the Israeli Embassy and 'lobby'."

YOU DO not mince words; neither shall I. You know, or ought to, that you are inciting hostility toward Israel when you imply that you are virtually alone among presidential candidates in not being subservient to Israel.

Your suggestion that you have cornered the market on virtue is a shade generous regarding yourself and gratuitously disagreeable regarding everyone else.

Yours are fighting words, and he who picks a fight should not wax indignant when he gets one.

Sincerely, George F. Will

JAY HARRIS:

This Old House...

SOMETIMES THE most powerful message can be found in the most simple way...

It's always been a puzzle why mankind, from the earliest stages of his beginning, has spent as much or more time seeking out the destructive forces of life as he has in the more worthwhile pursuits...

At least in the known universe, there is no other spot such as this earth, with its myriad races, its oceans and land masses, its wealth in nature's plant and animal life.

For much of our existence to this point in time, it has been nature which has dominated, shaped man to her whims, challenged, served, shocked and soothed.

But, in recent years, it has been man which has turned on this God-given bounty of forests and plains, of fish and fowl, clean air and blue skies...

MUCH IN the same vein, man also abuses the temple that is his personal home, his body.

It is safe to assume that although most of us are concerned with "our health," few relate it to how we treat the "home" which serves as our life.

Most of us do things to our "homes," our bodies, we wouldn't think of doing to the houses of mortar and wood in which we live.

These thoughts passed through our mind the other day as we came across a piece of writing penned by one Dorothy Fuldheim, a prize-winning news analyst for television station WEWS in Cleveland.

On reaching her 86th birthday, Dorothy aired her philosophical outlook on life.

It brought an unprecedented demand for reprints, one of which found its way to The Cleveland Press. Here is the way it appeared, under the title: "Old House...Fading But Still Vibrant..."

"THE HOUSE I live in is 86 years old. It has lost some of its original color, much of the red and pink is gone, and the white is not as white as it used to be.

It doesn't stand quite as straight—it seems to have sunk a little and sometimes it tilts slightly. But, its heating apparatus, its disposal plant, its illuminating system all are functioning remarkably well.

It has talked with many people all over the world—from Chinese cooks to the priests of Bangkok.

The house I live in traveled extensively, and still does, though more infrequently.

It has been fanned by the perfumed winds of Hawaii, and made thirsty by the deserts. It has tasted of the foods of all people—from the Scandinavian to the Hindu food.

"ITS WINDOWS have looked upon God's Earth—from the villages in Spain to the glories of French art; it has looked out on the Swiss mountains and the Russian steppes.

Through these windows, my house gazed into the heavens and once watched the first human being step out into space and walk on the moon.

That house, which I inhabit, has heard music—singing the sonorous sound of the great masters—from Bach to Ravel. That house has talked to the great and the insignificant, to world-famous individuals and to humble people.

My house has rumbled with delight and been shaken with laughter at the Bob Hopes and the Jack Bennys of the world, and the gaiety of my friends over the years.

"THAT HOUSE has looked upon Albert Einstein, and felt the warmth of his handshake.

My house, that I inhabit, has known the sweetness of tender love and been torn with stormy, glorious and ecstatic passion.

My house has been with friends and known quiet smiles and serenity, and torn with sobs for friends who left this strange and absorbing planet, even as you and I must someday, but whose memory is stored away in the computer which runs my house.

This house has known agony, and has been repaired by specialists so that it is whole again, able to withstand any storms. Sometimes the house creaks as though old, but always it has remained sturdy and staunch, withstanding pain, storm, snow and rain.

It has stored away secrets revealed to it, and treasured. The attic is full of memories, someday in a leisure hour to be taken out and remembered.

"ITS BRAIN IS its most important room, for here are to be found new ideas, concepts, contents of books, philosophies, poems, the treasures of the world in print, and been awed by knowledge of the expanding universe.

It is like an expanding library—each new idea creates more room for other ideas. It is the one room in my house that attests to my relationship with divinity.

In another chamber, known as the heart room, are all the loves, the compassion, the hurts, the triumphs, the exquisite passions for those I love.

This is a sacred room, for it has known happiness and sorrow. Its colors are radiant yellows and golds, somber greys and blues.

I look at the house and I see an aging house, needing a coat of paint, but covered with the bushes and trees of experience, willing to stand sturdy for more years.

"EIGHT-SIX years ago, my parents gave me a deed to this house, with the understanding that I use it and enrich it.

I have done so, and I think that on this day it deserves my thanks for giving my spirit a resting place where I could see and hear and feel and love and learn.

It is a house now crammed with many memories, but still stands staunch and valiant, waiting the years until it must finally be closed with a sign saying Sold To God."

L.M. BOYD:

...Pass It On

NOTHING NEW about the environmentalists' efforts to clean up the air. England passed an edict against the burning of coal there way back in 1273. There weren't a whole lot of prosecutions under it, but those that did happen were pretty extreme. In 1306 a fellow caught burning coal was beheaded.

Certainly you've heard all your life about the amazing conquests of Alexander the Great. But were you aware that malaria killed him at the age of 32?

Youth Slain After Shootout With San Antonio Policemen

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A young bicycle-riding gunman, stopped by police for routine questioning, wounded three police officers Tuesday before being killed by members of the police SWAT team, authorities said. One of the wounded officers was in critical condition.

A fourth officer escaped with only a bruise after a gunshot struck him in a bulletproof vest, police said.

The midday drama took place on a residential street about two miles south of downtown and less than 200 yards east of Wheatly High School. Students who normally would have left the building during the lunch period were kept inside as shots echoed through the neighborhood.

Sgt. Coy Boone was listed in critical condition Tuesday afternoon at Baptist Hospital with gunshot wounds in the head and neck. Patrolman Michael Young was listed in fair condition with gunshot wounds in the left hand and knee, while Patrolman Oscar Gallo was listed in satisfactory condition with a gunshot wound in the arm.

Authorities identified the dead man as Xavier Sanchez, 19.

Police Inspector Marion Talbert said Young stopped the gunman and another youth Tuesday morning as they both rode a bicycle in the neighborhood. Officers speculated that Young wanted to question the youths about a burglary, although Talbert could not confirm that.

Talbert said the gunman suddenly pulled out a .357-caliber magnum pistol and began firing as Young stepped out of his patrol car. As the gunman fled into a small frame house nearby, the wounded officer radioed for assistance.

The other youth fled and had not been apprehended Tuesday afternoon.

The police SWAT officers were called in and unsuccessfully searched one house. "Several" officers were approaching the back door of a second house when the youth burst out of the door, firing his pistol, Talbert said.

Boone and Gallo were wounded and Patrolman Neal Mitchell was hit in his bulletproof vest.

"The gunman was then killed in the barrage from the SWAT officers," continued Talbert.

Officers kept the house under siege for the next 90 minutes, a second gunman might be inside. They finally pumped in tear gas and rushed the house, only to find it empty.

Residents of neighboring houses were evacuated.

Liquid Propane Cargo Blasted By Officials

MOLINO, Fla. (AP) — Demolition experts blasted six derailed tank cars with a powerful plastics explosive Tuesday night, sending a giant mushroom-shaped cloud into the dusky sky in hopes of averting a runaway propane explosion.

The blast at 5:14 p.m. — which could be seen more than 20 miles away — tore holes in the tankers so their dangerous liquid propane cargo could escape and feed the flames. Three of the cars had been burning for three days.

"They blew it. It was just a large fireball that came up above the trees," said sheriff's communications officer Richard Hawkins.

Ron Vallela, an aide to Gov. Bob Graham, termed the strategy of blowing up the cars to avoid an uncontrolled explosion successful. But Al Smith of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency said it was too early to tell for sure.

The tank cars derailed Sunday when a Louisville & Nashville Railroad train hit a section of washed-out track. About 500 persons were later evacuated from their homes by officials fearful of an uncontrolled propane explosion.

As the powerful charge was set off, disaster officials huddled two miles away, unable to hear or feel the detonation. Only the short-lived fireball told the tale as it boiled 2,000 feet above the Florida Panhandle woodlands.

"It was beautiful," said county civil defense Coordinator Buck Renfro. Volunteers and their fire trucks from 14 communities stood by.

No injuries were reported from the blast. Deputies had scoured the woods and homes in a final sweep minutes before the explosion to make sure everyone was safely out of the rural area.

The demolition team headed by Wayne Rutledge of Jet Research Inc., of Arlington, Texas, had staked out a ditch 1,000 feet from the train as the safest spot during the explosion.

Smith said the federal government would foot the estimated $25,000 to $50,000 bill for the work done by the Texas company. But he said the government may seek reimbursement from L&N.

Earlier, hundreds of anxious nearby residents taped windows in their homes, parked up their pets and precious belongings and moved out of the area.

Residents of this sparsely populated area of northwest Florida were ordered to evacuate their homes until the danger was over.

Commuter Train Catches Fire; 50 Passengers Injured

UPPER DARBY, Pa. (AP) — A fire spread dense smoke through a single-car commuter train at rush hour Tuesday, injuring more than 50 passengers, police said.

The injured, who suffered burns and smoke inhalation, were taken to three area hospitals.

The fire broke out after two small explosions, the first like an electrical spark, the second larger. Lights on the train went out with the second explosion and the car began filling with smoke.

Passengers left the above-ground car from the back door as the driver urged them not to panic.

Upper Darby Police Sgt. John Clay said the fire broke out under the carriage of the high-speed train on the Bryn Mawr line west of the 69th Street Terminal in this Philadelphia suburb. Apparently electrical in origin, it was controlled by 5:30 p.m.

Service on the Southeastern Pennsylvania Transportation Authority's Red Arrow Division was interrupted for about an hour.

"We got about 35 patients," said Dick Thomas of Delaware County Hospital. "Most of the patients were suffering from varying degrees of smoke inhalation. The smoke inhalation has resulted in some internal burns," he said.

Botulism 'All But Ruled Out' As Cause Of Oklahoma School Illnesses

HUGO, Okla. (AP) — More students were taken to hospitals Tuesday for treatment of food poisoning, but officials said they had all but ruled out botulism as the cause of the illness that overcame about 300 children and adults at a school cafeteria.

after becoming sick on Monday were brought to hospitals Tuesday morning after having a night of discomfort and little sleep, officials said.

None of those hospitalized was listed in critical condition.

The latest count indicated 296 persons had been treated at hospitals in Hugo, Antlers and in Paris, Texas, after suffering vomiting attacks, cramps and other abdominal disturbances following the noon meal at Hugo's Benjamin Franklin Junior High School cafeteria. The facility is used jointly by about 400 elementary, junior high and high school students.

Dr. H.K. Malone, head of the state Health Department lab in Oklahoma City, said some preliminary results on throat cultures and food samples should be completed around noon Wednesday.

Although the type of infection had not been determined Tuesday afternoon, Malone said botulism "doesn't look like very much of a possibility."

All schools in the Hugo school system were closed so health officials could inspect the 25-year-old cafeteria and four other cafeterias, Superintendent Simon Parker said.

The school officials said there are no clues as to why a group of first-and second-graders who ate the same menu of tacos, okra and peach cobbler during the early lunch shift at the cafeteria were not affected.

A second group fed about noon started becoming sick during the early afternoon.

Tax Reform Alternative Plan Offered

WASHINGTON (AP) — Repeal of a key 1976 tax change that assesses a capital gains tax on inherited property would benefit largely "our wealthiest non-taxpayers," a Carter administration official said Tuesday.

Donald C. Lubick, assistant secretary of Treasury for tax policy, said the administration favors instead a bill to simplify the 1976 change that Congress has delayed from taking effect until Jan. 1, 1980.

The change, known as the "carryover basis" provision, was a central part of the 1976 Tax Reform Act and was intended to close a tax advantage worth nearly $1 billion a year to those who sell inherited property.

The Senate Finance Committee has attached repeal of the carryover provision to the "windfall profits" tax on revenues resulting from the administration's phase-out of crude oil price controls. A repeal bill has 276 cosponsors in the House, more than half the members.

Under the pre-1976 law, the government largely freed from income tax capital gains on inherited property.

For example, if a person bought $5,000 in stock in 1950 and it grew in value to $50,000 by 1970 when it was willed to another person and if the heir sold it five years later for $55,000, the heir would pay capital gains tax on only $5,000 instead of the total $50,000 appreciation.

Lubick told the House Ways and Means Committee that the old law was unfair because people who sold their stocks or other property while alive were taxed on their capital gains while heirs to such property could sell it and avoid the tax.

"This is a fundamental question of equity," he said.

However, several members of the tax-writing panel attacked the 1976 change, calling it unworkable. They said it was not worth the extra revenue that it would raise.

"I don't think it's worth putting the American people through all this trouble," said Rep. Sam Gibbons, D-Fla.

"This (change) was stillborn," said Rep. Barber Conable, R-N.Y. "If not stillborn, it was on life-sustaining machinery. I think it's time to pull the plug."

Other committee members, however, said revisions in the 1976 law could make the carryover provision workable and apply it only to large estates.

Rep. Joseph L. Fisher, D-Va., has proposed a bill, supported by the administration, that simplifies the way appreciation of inherited property is computed.

The Fisher bill would exempt the capital gains taxes on property from estates of $175,000 or less and assume a 6 percent annual appreciation of property.

Like the 1976 act, Fisher would forgive appreciation of property before Jan. 1, 1977.

Rep. James R. Jones, D-Okla., a conservative, suggested changes in the Fisher bill, including raising the exemption to $200,000 and moving the "fresh-start" date to Jan. 1, 1980.

The original carryover provision was expected to raise $833 million a year in 20 years. The Fisher bill would reduce that amount by $367 million a year.

Judge Wants Sentencing To Fit Crime

IRONTON, Ohio (AP) — A Juvenile Court judge said Tuesday he has not given up his plan of sentencing a couple found guilty of mistreating their son to seven days in jail on rations of bread and water.

"I'm going to do it if the prosecutor says it's legal," Lawrence County Juvenile Judge Lloyd Burwell said.

The judge announced his intentions last week, when Joe Ed Moore and Eva Moore were found guilty of contributing to the negligence of a child. The couple was accused of putting their 4-year-old adopted son in a wire cage at night so the child could not get out of bed and find food.

Burwell said the child was malnourished when taken away from the Moores last month and sent to a foster home.

The Moores are free on bond, pending an appeal.

"If and when they do serve their sentence," the judge said, "I would hope they get only bread and water."

The judge said the couple has four other children who were fed adequately.

"We haven't found a motive as to why they treated their adopted child as they did," he said. "It's real hard to understand."

During their two-day trial, the couple maintained that they were advised not to feed the boy unless he asked for food by name. They said the wire cage was not used to prevent him from obtaining food.

Burwell said he felt a jail sentence of bread and water was a punishment that fit the crime.

Asked about the judge's tentative sentence, Lawrence County Prosecutor Richard Meyers said he had not received Burwell's request for his opinion. However, he said he felt jail regulations required that all inmates be given hot food.

"It may be that they'll have to be given hot bread and water," Meyers said.

Despite world opposition, the Soviet Union exploded a giant nuclear device in 1961.

Lisbon Terrorist Attack Injures Israeli Envoy To Portugal

LISBON (AP) — Two terrorists wounded Israel's ambassador to Portugal and killed his bodyguard Tuesday in a grenade and machine gun ambush. Three other persons were injured.

Portuguese national radio said it received a telephone call from a previously unheard of group, the International Militant Workers, claiming responsibility for the attack.

The radio said the caller claimed the group fought against "capitalism and imperialism as represented by Zionists" and that other, unspecified attacks would follow.

The unmasked men attacked Ambassador Ephraim Eldar's car as it drove up to the Israeli chancellery shortly before 10 a.m.

A grenade fragment hit the ambassador's bodyguard in the head, killing him instantly. Police said the 55-year-old Eldar was saved by staying in the car, but a bullet broke a bone in his right forearm and another wounded him in the thigh, and he suffered shrapnel wounds along the right side of his body.

Shrapnel hit a female passerby in the face, endangering her sight, and bullets wounded the ambassador's driver and a Portuguese guard at the embassy door, police said.

Eldar underwent surgery in Lisbon's Santa Maria Hospital, where doctors described his condition as satisfactory.

Police said the broad, tree-lined street outside the embassy was fairly crowded as the ambassador's official car pulled up and the attackers opened fire and pitched the grenade at bodyguard Ildefonso Pereira as he stepped from the car. They said driver Jose Dias quickly drove the car to a police station two blocks away.

Witnesses described one of the attackers as a blond man in a light raincoat who carried his submachine gun with him while escaping on foot.

Police set up checkpoints on border crossing, airports and maritime departure points on orders of Prime Minister Maria de Lourdes Pintassilgo and said they were looking for two men in a white car. There was no elaboration.

Police said they did not know the authors of Portugal's first terrorist attack since a 1974 revolution ended 50 years of right-wing dictatorship.

There was an Arab solidarity meeting in Lisbon 10 days ago, climaxed by the appearance of Yasser Arafat, head of the Palestine Liberation Organization, and in Tel Aviv an Israeli Foreign Ministry spokesman said Portugal's warm welcome to Arafat "...contributed to the confidence of the killers."

Israel did not say the PLO was responsible for the ambush but said "it is not difficult to guess who stands behind the attack."

The PLO in Madrid issued a statement denying responsibility for the attack and claimed it was aimed at damaging Portuguese-Palestinian relations. Lisbon diplomatic sources also discounted the possibility of PLO complicity.

London Times Rolls Presses Once Again

LONDON (UPI) — The prestigious London Times, closed for almost a year, returned to the British breakfast table Tuesday with its unique mixture of history, news and the urbanly eccentric.

"Let the Good Times Roll," bannered one congratulatory advertisement in the 32-page first edition, which was ceremonially "piped" through the composing room by a Scottish piper in full dress.

The Times, nicknamed the "Thunderer" for its Olympian pronouncements, shut down Nov. 30, 1978 after almost two centuries of reporting history first hand — including news of the storming of the Bastille, the death of Nelson at Trafalgar and Abraham Lincoln's assassination.

At issue was a dispute with unions over introduction of electronic technology that had led to months of wildcat strikes. Closed with the Times were the Sunday Times and three sister publications.

Agreement was reached with the last union Oct. 21, only hours before a deadline set by Times management for closing the papers forever.

Tuesday's first edition — the Sunday Times returns Nov. 18 — had a press run of 452,000, about 140,000 above its circulation last November. All disappeared "within the first hour of being on sale," said Times spokesman, adding "we probably could have sold 150,000 more."

He described the atmosphere in the composing room as "superb" when edition 60,473 rolled off the presses.

"A great cheer went up," he said. "Everyone was shaking hands and grinning. People who had been fighting nose to nose last year, the management and shop stewards, were greeting each other warmly."

The paper itself appeared unchanged, much to the relief of loyal readers. The front page, while headlining stories on Iran and the Rhodesia conference, also devoted a prominent column to a "scoop" on attempts to bridge a rift between the Vatican and Britain dating back to the reign of Henry VIII.

Three Brothers, Triplet Sisters Marry In Rite

TEL AVIV (UPI) — Three is a magic number for a set of identical triplets who married three brothers in a triple wedding Monday night to the cheers of family and friends in suburban Ramat Gan.

Three times the guests shouted "mazel tov!" — good luck — as each groom crushed the traditional wine glass under his heel and sealed his vows to the bride.

The triangular romance among Eti, Dalia and Batsheva Levi, 19, and the Ezon brothers began two years ago, after Eti stopped dating a fourth brother and found she had more in common with Itzik.

The six have since been inseparable. But how do the Ezon brothers deal with the problem of look-alike wives?

"Who said there are no differences?" the brothers asked, laughing wryly.

To avoid any marital difficulties, each girl wears a locket engraved with the first letter of her name.

Carter Orders Immediate Assistance To Refugees

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, acting at his wife's behest, Tuesday ordered an immediate U.S. airlift of special food for children and other supplies to Indochinese refugee camps in Thailand.

Rosalynn Carter, who visited the camps last week, announced the presidential action when she detailed her recommendations for helping thousands of sick and starving refugees.

"We cannot lose time," she told a White House gathering of executives from international relief agencies. "The situation is urgent."

Mrs. Carter announced that the president also approved these other recommendations:

- An immediate $2 million grant to UNICEF to buy rice for the refugees, whose food supply was said to be less than 30 days.
- An increase in the number of refugees from Thailand to be resettled in the United States. Hereafter, most of the monthly quota of 14,000 refugees allowed into America will be filled from Thai refugee camps rather than from among the boat people in Malaysia and Hong Kong.
- $4 million for the care and maintenance of refugee camps.
- A review of the refugee resettlement process, which is said to take too long.
- The airlift will contain vegetable oils and other food to meet the nutritional needs of the refugees, many of whom suffer from malnutrition.
- It also will include mobile equipment to provide water for refugee camps and equipment to improve communication between camps and relief agencies in Bangkok, Mrs. Carter said.
- "There will be at least one shipment immediately and if we need more we will do it," said Richard Holbrooke, assistant secretary of state for Far East and Asian affairs. He accompanied Mrs. Carter on her journey and helped prepare her report to the president.
- An emergency task force at the State Department was working Tuesday to locate the necessary food and arrange for the flight to Bangkok. It has not been determined exactly when it will occur.
- Holbrooke said all of the money to implement the recommendations comes out of Carter's $69 million pledge to help the refugees and other emergency funds.
- In her report, Mrs. Carter also suggested an airlift of equipment such as

Police Investigate Knifepoint Robbery

Lubbockite Flees From Abductor

A 27-year-old Shallowater musician told police that he was robbed at knifepoint of $75 early Tuesday.

Dale Roy Lynch of Shallowater told police that he was driving west in the 2800 block of Idalou Road about 2:30 a.m. Tuesday when a dark-colored car pulled behind him and starting flashing its lights.

Lynch said both he and the driver of the other car pulled to the curb. Reports indicate a man got out of the dark-colored car and walked up to the right front door of Lynch's car and got in the vehicle. While inside the vehicle, the suspect reportedly pulled out a large pocketknife and told Lynch to hand over his wallet.

Lynch told police the man took his wallet and then grabbed the keys from the car's ignition and told Lynch not to look back and that he would throw the keys some place close.

Lynch told police he last saw the subject traveling eastbound in the westbound lane of Idalou Road.

A Lubbock woman said a man attempted to force her into his car about 1 p.m. Monday as she was walking in the 3700-block of 62nd Street.

The 36-year-old complainant told police she was able to break free from the man's grasp by screaming and scratching his hands.

She said she was walking home from the bus stop when the suspect drove up in a white car, grabbed her arm and tried to pull her into his vehicle. The woman pulled free from the man and ran home and called police.

The suspect was described as a white man, between 18 and 25 with a medium build.

In other activity, James Edward Caldwell of Slaton told Lubbock County sheriff's deputies he arrived home about 5 p.m. Monday and discovered his front door kicked open.

Caldwell said he found his television set and stereo equipment stolen, totaling an estimated $1,100 loss.

In a city break-in, Joann Miller of 1314 58th Place said television sets, CB radios, clothing, jewelry and a camera were among the items stolen when her residence was burglarized between 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. Monday. She reported a loss of $2,540 in property.

Fee Hike Proposed At Tech

A possible increase in the student service fee will be considered by the Texas Tech Board of Regents at its meeting Friday.

The proposed increase in the student service fee would be used to provide funds for operation of the new Student Recreation Building, scheduled for use after the beginning of the spring semester.

Although the university has authorization from the state legislature to assess a recreation fee, the Tech student government has endorsed a proposal to raise the necessary money with the student service fee.

The student service fee at Tech currently is $3.60 per credit hour enrolled with a maximum of $43.00 per semester.

The regents also will acknowledge establishment of the first endowed chair in the College of Engineering.

Establishing the chair in electrical engineering are J. Fred Bucy Jr. and his wife, Odetta Greer Bucy, for whom the chair will be named. Minimum contribution for such an endowment is $600,000.

Burglary Suspects Slay Policeman

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — A rookie Richmond police patrolman was shot to death early Tuesday when he stopped a car for a routine traffic check, authorities said.

Police said they were looking for three men, one armed with a pistol and another with a shotgun, in connection with the shooting of Michael P. Connors, 23. They said the three may have robbed a convenience shortly before Connors was shot.

The day before, D.P. McClain, a police officer in suburban Henrico County, was shot and critically wounded in the chest when he tried to arrest William Bernard Randolph III, 41, on a charge of threatening a neighbor.

Three Clovis Residents Dead Following Separate Accidents

A-J Correspondent

CLOVIS, N.M. — Three Clovis persons died in accidents early this week, including an 83-year-old woman struck by a car and a truck driver who apparently fell from his vehicle.

Eufelia Anaya, 83, of Clovis, died Monday afternoon in a Clovis hospital from injuries she suffered in a car-pedestrian accident about 2 p.m. at Grand and Thornton Streets.

Police said the woman was struck by a car driven by Eusebio L. Medina, 43, of Clovis. Medina was charged with vehicular homicide and was free on bond Tuesday.

New Mexico state police reported the deaths of Donald Ray Bailey, 36, and Jack C. Plummer, 71, both of Clovis, in separate accidents west of Albuquerque and near Elida.

Bailey died Sunday at St. Joseph's Hospital from injuries he suffered early Friday in a fall from the truck he was driving on Interstate 40 west of Albuquerque.

State police said other motorists reported Bailey was driving slowly with the truck's emergency flashers on, had the door on the driver's side open and appeared to be vomiting when he fell from the truck.

Plummer died Sunday in the crash of his vehicle on U.S. 70 near Elida.

State police said Plummer was eastbound on U.S. 70 towing a travel trailer when he apparently lost control of his pickup truck. The pickup overturned, and Plummer was thrown from the vehicle, reports said.

Services for Mrs. Anaya are pending with Muffley Funeral Home here.

Services for Bailey will be at 1 p.m. today in the Steed Memorial Chapel with Grover Ross, minister of Portales Church of Christ, officiating.

Burial will be in Lawn Haven Memorial Gardens under direction of Steed-Todd Funeral Home.

He was born in Denver, Colo. Bailey was a truck driver and a Vietnam veteran.

Survivors include his wife, Melba; two daughters, Rae Lynn and April, both of the home; and three sons, Greg and Ricky, both of Clovis and Jimmy of Orlando, Fla.

Services for Plummer will be at 10 a.m. today in the Steed Memorial Chapel with Dr. Carl Scott, pastor of Central Baptist Church, officiating.

Burial will be in Lawn Haven Memorial Gardens under direction of Steed-Todd Funeral Home.

The Elida, N.M. native was retired from Clovis Auto Parts in September, 1978. He was an active member of the Oddfellows Lodge and a member of the First Baptist Church.

Survivors include his wife, Eunice; three daughters, Bernice Marston of Clovis, Janice Barking of Bountiful, Utah and Evelyn McClure of Tucumcari, N.M.; two sisters, Winnie Gamblin and Dixie Banes, both of Amarillo; 10 grandchildren; and two great-grandchildren.

Inquest Jury Requests Death Probe

UVALDE (Special) — An inquest jury here Tuesday agreed to ask a Uvalde County grand jury to investigate the shooting death of Cynthia Marie Smith, 17, formerly of Seminole.

The inquest was conducted before Justice of the Peace Bobby Tafolla, who said the six-member jury decided the girl's death was "possibly a homicide."

Miss Smith, who had lived with her mother the last three years in Uvalde, was found dead Nov. 7 at a friend's house in Uvalde.

She was pronounced dead by Tafolla, who said he called the inquest into the death at "at the request of the family."

Miss Smith had been shot once in the head with a .410 shotgun. The weapon was found by police on the bed where her body lay, Tafolla said.

After hearing testimony from 10 witnesses, the jury decided to remand the girl's death to the grand jury, which meets Dec. 17.

Miss Smith was buried Friday in Seminole.

Reagan Sets Drive For GOP Banner

NEW YORK (AP) — Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan, saying the nation "hungers for a spiritual revival," Tuesday declared his candidacy for the 1980 Republican presidential nomination.

Reagan, in his third bid for the job, entered the crowded GOP race as the acknowledged frontrunner.

In a taped and televised speech in which he declared his candidacy, Reagan repeated his controversial 1976 proposal to shift some functions of government away from Washington to state and local authorities.

"I shall regard my election as proof that the people of the United States have decided to set a new agenda and have recognized that the human spirit thrives best when goals are set and progress can be measured in their achievement," he said.

Reagan, a 68-year-old former movie star, was the 10th man to declare his candidacy for the 1980 GOP nomination.

His 30-minute announcement speech was taped on Monday and broadcast Tuesday night to millions. Simultaneously, Reagan took the podium to deliver the same speech in person to a $500-a-ticket Republican fund-raiser at the New York Hilton. Campaign aides said the New York site was picked to demonstrate that the Californian intends to campaign vigorously on both coasts.

In his speech, Reagan sounded a number of often-heard Republican themes, and he repeated his 1976 proposal for a transfer of some government functions.

"We must review the functions of the federal government to determine which of those are the proper province of levels of government closer to the people. The federal government has taken on functions it never was intended to perform and which it does not perform well," he said.

Amount Not Estimated

In 1976, Reagan accompanied that proposal with a price tag, saying that more than $90 billion could be cut from the federal budget. He said tax resources also should be shifted to state and local governments. Tuesday, he did not say how much money he thought would be saved.

Reagan also called for a tax cut to fight inflation, for sharp cuts in federal spending, for the lifting of price controls on domestic energy and for increased defense spending.

As former President Gerald R. Ford had proposed near the end of his term, Reagan advocated statehood for Puerto Rico "if the people of Puerto Rico vote for statehood in their coming referendum."

IRANIAN STUDENTS BURN OLD GLORY — Iranian students, shouting "Carter's a murderer and traitor," burn the American flag Tuesday in the Iranian embassy compound in Makati, Philippines. The students are supporting the takeover of the American Embassy in Tehran where about 60 Americans are being held hostage with ransom demands being the exchange for the deposed shah of Iran. Most American Universities have contingents of Iranian students who have been ordered to prove that they are in this country to receive education and are full-time students. (AP Laserphoto)

Embassy Takeover Account Given By American Escapee

LONGVIEW, Wash. (AP) — A man who says he escaped from the U.S. Embassy in Iran as it was being seized by Moslem militants has told a newspaper that at least eight other Americans escaped and probably are hiding in Tehran.

Kim King, 26, who said he lived in Iran for about six months, told the Longview, Wash., Daily News that U.S. State Department officials seemed surprised that anyone escaped from the embassy during the takeover Nov. 4 in which 98 persons were taken hostage.

The 98 were still being held Tuesday, and details of the takeover are sketchy. It has not been reported previously that any Americans escaped.

State Department sources reached Tuesday night by The Associated Press refused to comment on King's account of the takeover or his alleged escape.

Blown Out Of Proportion

"I think the whole episode has been blown out of proportion — most Iranians are good people," King told the newspaper in an interview published Tuesday.

King arrived at the Clatskanie, Ore. home of his parents Sunday, tired but in good condition, the newspaper said. He was interviewed Monday.

He told the newspaper he was at the embassy the day of the takeover because he had lost his visa and exit papers.

When the unarmed militant students arrived, he told the newspaper, they surged onto the embassy grounds.

He told the newspaper he and 30 other persons — including nine Americans — were on the second floor of one of the embassy buildings.

Tear Gas Fired

"A Marine pushed onto one student who tried to crawl in a window and then two or three rounds of tear gas were fired," King was quoted as saying. Then the Iranian guard unlocked the gates, he said.

"No one tried to break into our building, but the power was cut off. We waited about two hours, and then it started pouring rain. When we still didn't see anyone, we went outside in small groups and started walking. Not running, just walking," King told the newspaper.

Two Marines were in his group of about six people who escaped, King said, adding he assumed the other Americans are hiding in Tehran.

King told the newspaper he later went to Iranian customs and said he wanted to return to the United States but had lost his papers. The officials gave him 14 days to leave Iran, charging him $800 for a visa and other exit papers, King told the newspaper.

Canada, Mexico Ties

The conservative Californian also called for developing closer ties with Canada and Mexico by forming what he termed a North American accord. He said he could not say exactly what form this accord would take, but that he would propose that Canada and Mexico send special representatives to Washington "to sit in on high-level planning sessions with us" on issues concerning the future of the continent.

"It is time we stop thinking of our nearest neighbors as foreigners," Reagan said.

While not mentioning President Carter or other leaders by name, Reagan blasted what he said was "a failure of our leaders to establish rational goals and give our people something to order our lives by."

Won't "Stand Back"

"I cannot and will not stand back and see this great country destroy itself," Reagan said.

He cited "bewilderment at how our defense strength has deteriorated," and said, "The citizens of this great nation want... a leader who will unleash their great strength and remove the roadblocks government has put in their way."

"I want to do that more than anything I've ever wanted," he added. "And it's something that I believe with God's help I can do."

"I believe this nation hungers for a spiritual revival, hungers to once again to see honor placed above political expediency, to see government once again the protector of our liberties, not the distributor of gifts and privilege," Reagan said.

Reagan expressed concern over the nation's double-digit inflation and declared, "The key to restoring the health of the economy lies in cutting taxes." He did not specify what kind of tax cut he would seek but he cited several Republican tax cut bills in Congress as "the kind of realistic reductions" that he was thinking of.

After the speech, Reagan was to embark on a five-day, 12-city campaign swing that will take him to most of the early-primary states. He also scheduled a news conference for this morning in Washington.

Conditions Revised To Free Hostages

tants and many other Iranians began a five-day fast Monday in support of their demand for the shah.

The State Department disclosed Tuesday it established telephone contact with the embassy several days ago and was relaying messages to the hostages. It refused to say whether negotiations had been conducted on the special line.

As U.S. officials pondered their next move and Carter canceled a trip to Pennsylvania to monitor the Iran situation, the U.S. aircraft carrier Midway was steaming toward the Arabian Sea, near Iran, for what Pentagon officials said were long-planned maneuvers.

The Carter administration has repeatedly played down the possibility of military action to free the embassy hostages.

In the letter to Waldheim, Bani Sadr hinted Iran might seek an anti-U.S. embargo by other members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries:

"Do you not think that the people of Moslem countries whose oil is placed at the disposal of the industrialized countries for a pittance would use this opportunity to show their dissatisfaction and anger and that that cutoff of oil would turn the crisis into a world crisis?"

Later Tuesday, Iran's Pars news agency reported that Iranian Oil Minister Ali Akbar Moinefar had called on his fellow OPEC oil ministers to "back up" Iran's stance. But there was no elaboration.

Reese speculated the plane, which was spotted from the air by Civil Air Patrol, had been down for at least four days.

King Riley, vice president of Sky Breeze Aviation Inc., where Jones worked part-time as a mechanic and carpenter, said he received a call last week from someone claiming to be a friend of O'Keefe asking about O'Keefe's whereabouts.

Riley said that when he went to the hangar where Jones usually kept his plane and found only Jones's van he called CAP officials.

Services for Jones are pending with Sanders Funeral Home. He had lived in Lubbock the past 11 years and had attended Texas Tech. The Vietnam veteran had been a bomber mechanic. He also was a member of the Bandidos Motorcycle Club.

Survivors include his wife, Ginger Rene; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Robert Jones of Ceevee; and two sisters, Mary Badgett of Lubbock and Patricia Henningsen of Callahan, Colo.

Venezuelan Ruling Hits Oil Firms

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — A recent ruling by the Venezuelan Supreme Court could cost foreign oil companies, including American giants like Exxon Corp., more than half a billion dollars in back taxes.

A ruling Oct. 30 against the oil company American Petrofina for back taxes of $23,000 may have established a legal precedent that could jeopardize relations between Venezuela and foreign oil companies, say industry sources.

Venezuela, the fifth largest producer in the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries and the third largest supplier of oil to the United States, currently is negotiating new marketing and technical assistance contracts with foreign companies.

A total of $820 million is involved in 64 different claims against a score of foreign oil companies that operated here before nationalization of the industry in 1976. Some of the biggest claims are against Exxon and Shell Oil Co.

"We are carefully watching to see if this is a precedent," an Exxon spokesman said. "Our case hasn't been dealt with yet."

An industry source said, however, that some lawyers for the companies involved fear a legal precedent has been established in the Petrofina case.

"The cases of the other companies are structured very much the same," the source said. "It all depends on what steps the courts or the government takes. The cases could just sit there. There may be no further movement."

If a precedent has been established and is applied, Exxon will be required to pay $261 million and Shell will face a payment of $197 million. Gulf Oil Corp. would be liable for back taxes of $38.6 million.

Exxon and Shell produced more than half of Venezuela's oil output before the state takeover and still buy the bulk of the production through long-term contracts. They also provide technical assistance considered essential to keep the nationalized industry running smoothly.

Industry sources say future technical assistance contracts with Venezuela's national oil monopoly "would be virtually impossible" if the companies are forced to pay the back taxes.

And an economic analyst said that all contractual relations between foreign firms and the government might be "poisoned" if the ruling establishes a precedent.

The claims cover the tax year of 1970, but the Venezuelan comptroller-general did not file them until 1976, months after nationalization of the industry.

The foreign companies were not happy with the $1 billion they received in compensation for the takeover, but accepted because of the prospects for doing business with Venezuela in the future. The back tax claims, however, would practically wipe out the compensation.

In 1976 the comptroller-general, a nonpartisan fiscal watchdog appointed by the Venezuelan Congress, ruled that new tax reference prices set in March, 1971 were applicable to the 1970 fiscal year because Congress had passed a law changing the oil export tax system in December 1970.

The companies appealed, arguing this interpretation constituted retroactive application, thus violating the Constitution. Last year a lower tax court ruled against Petrofina in the only case so far to be decided by the courts.

King told the newspaper he and 30 other persons — including nine Americans — were on the second floor of one of the embassy buildings.

Parks at a cost of $42,000; and construction of a road to the Huffman Athletic complex.

The Parks and Recreation Department had requested $162,000 to fund both the road and parking lot. Those funds also were to be used as the city's match for a Bureau of Outdoor Recreation grant the department is seeking to build soccer fields in the 100-acre park.

This year, more than $218,000 in CD funds is going for construction of a softball quadrangle in the complex.

However, sentiment on the committee supported park funding the Lake 6 area of the Canyon Lakes instead, because neighborhood residents vocally demanded funding for that lake last year.

Construction of an access road on the south side of Lake 6 was substituted for an upper loop road and lighting on the north side, because a road already exists on the north side of the lake.

Committee member George Nelson urged the CDAC to support $60,000 in funding to rehabilitate a building to be used for a shelter for battered women and children.

He said the shelter can't secure any money for operations until the it opens, and it cannot open until the building is rehabilitated.

Building Donated

Nelson said a building has been donated to Women's Protective Services, Inc. for such a shelter and said the organization would "make a concurrent move to secure funds for the operation" of the shelter if funding is approved to rehabilitate the building.

Davis Price, a member of the Presbyterian Center board, told committee members the medical facility needs funds to remodel the old Chatman Hospital.

The center was located in the hospital until recently, when it was relocated in Posey Community Center. However, the city approved only a six-month lease on the community center, so Presbyterian Center must find a new home, Price said.

Presbyterian Center provides free medical care and free pharmacy service for the working poor who can't afford the medical expenses, he said.

The committee recommended that rehabilitation of the hospital be funded from this year's CD contingency funds if possible. If not, the committee asked that the work be funded next year.

Also recommended for contingency funds were purchase of the Yellowhouse Canyon Addition water system and remodeling Rodgers Community Center.

Immigration Check On Students Set

give who visited the campus Tuesday gave the school a list of questions that students will be asked when they report to the Border Patrol, including current address, academic standing and number of hours of enrollment. She said the Border Patrol also will keep on file a current photograph of each student.

A spokesman for the International Programs office said last week that the largest number of Iranian students at Tech is in engineering, followed by business administration.

Enrollment of Iranian students at Tech has not varied much in the last year. Current enrollment is 70 students, compared to 73 students last spring and fall.

The International Office spokesman said that although, "They (Iranian students) are very concerned about how (American) people are reacting," that no "serious threats" have been aimed at the students. "Some have been a little upset about things said to them in classes, but they know to expect it."

The spokesman added that some Iranian students have received anonymous telephone calls, but, "I'm not aware of any serious threats."

DALI FORGERIES REPORTED

FIGUERAS, Spain (AP) — Twenty-two paintings on sale in an antique shop that marketed them as works of Salvador Dali have been seized at the request of Dali's secretary, who claimed they were forgeries, police said. Authorities said the paintings are being held at a local court while an investigation is conducted, and five unidentified persons are being questioned.

At the same time, Valderas said, the agency had not investigated the reason for the parents' divorce and gave up the child in the first place.

"All of this could have been avoided if the agency had properly performed its duties," he said.

Stevie's court-appointed attorney, Wayne Herron, said he recommended the Fortners get custody so the child could grow up with his cousins, ages 3 to 8, and learn the family heritage.

"My four years in combat in World War II were nothing like this," said Angelo Donati, Stevie's paternal grandfather. Donati said he and his wife were glad the boy would stay in the family.

"We have visited with him so many times I don't think it will be that hard on him." Mrs. Fortner said before taking her new son home to Levalland to celebrate. "It's over. It's such a relief we can't express it."

Poor Countries Advised To Plan Food Supplies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland says that poor countries, still threatened by the specter of food shortages, need to do more to help feed their own people.

Bergland, speaking in Rome at the 20th Food and Agriculture Organization Conference, said an "increasing global interdependence" must be matched by "a greater acceptance by all nations of shared responsibility for our world poor and our world hungry."

But he added: "External assistance is effective only if the developing countries are firmly committed to giving the food and agriculture sector higher priority in their own development plans."

Iranian Students To Report—Or Deport

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration formally ordered Iranian students on Tuesday to report to immigration authorities within 30 days or face deportation.

Attorney General Benjamin R. Civiletti issued an order on instructions from President Carter that is aimed at determining how many Iranian students are violating the terms of their visas and may be ordered to leave the country.

The administration adopted the deportation policy in response to the crisis in Iran in which Americans at the U.S. embassy in Tehran have been held hostage for 10 days. Administration officials who asked not to be identified said the policy was partly aimed at placating U.S. citizens who might resort to violence against Iranians that might jeopardize the lives of the hostages.

The Justice Department's Immigration and Naturalization Service estimates there are about 50,000 Iranian students in the United States, but does not know how many are violating their visas by not enrolling full time in college.

At a news briefing, David W. Crosland, acting head of the immigration service, promised a vigorous effort to locate and deport Iranian students who are here illegally. But he was vague as to the manpower that would be directed toward the effort.

He said there are 900 INS investigators throughout the nation and officials in the four INS regions of the country will have responsibility to send them where there are the greatest concentrations of Iranian students.

The Justice Department's Immigration and Naturalization Service estimates there are about 50,000 Iranian students in the United States, but does not know how many are violating their visas by not enrolling full time in college.

At a news briefing, David W. Crosland, acting head of the immigration service, promised a vigorous effort to locate and deport Iranian students who are here illegally. But he was vague as to the manpower that would be directed toward the effort.

He said there are 900 INS investigators throughout the nation and officials in the four INS regions of the country will have responsibility to send them where there are the greatest concentrations of Iranian students.

Crosland disclosed that colleges which refuse to comply with the administration's deportation drive could lose their federal accreditation to admit foreign students. But Crosland said there have been "no negative responses" from universities, and he said he has no reason to believe that any will refuse to help.

The students have until Dec. 13 to report to the nearest INS office or to an INS representative on campus.

Failure to report would be reason in itself to deport the students even if they are otherwise complying with visa requirements.

The students will be required to produce passports and forms bearing arrival information as well as evidence that they are as properly enrolled at a college and have paid school fees. Crosland said the students will be photographed but will not be fingerprinted.

He said he could not estimate how many students are violating visa requirements.

The INS tried to determine last January how many Iranian students were in the country illegally following violent demonstrations against the shah, who was still in power at the time. The program to deport Iranian students was suspended earlier this year after the shah was deposed for fear that forcing the students to go back to Iran could place them in jeopardy under the new regime.

Crosland refused to say why Iranian students were being singled out and why the INS was not extending the policy to all Iranians. The government has provided various estimates on how many Iranians there are in this country, placing the figure anywhere from 130,000 to 200,000.

Crosland said students who report to the INS and are found to be violating the terms of their visas could prolong their stay in the United States by "months or longer" if they have the money to pay a lawyer to challenge deportation orders.

But he said many may leave voluntarily once the INS tells them they are here illegally.

In addition to not being a full-time student, other grounds for deportation include conviction for a violent crime which carries a sentence of more than one year in prison. Iranian students are also forbidden to work without permission from the INS.

PEOPLE PLACES THINGS

Arabian Offers To Buy Band

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — The Aggie Band of Texas A&M so impressed a group of Arabs at a football game, one woman offered to buy it, lock, stock and bugle.

The offer to purchase the 300-member precision marching unit came when a group from oil-rich Kuwait attended the Texas A&M — Rice game as guests of the Gulf Oil Co.

"One woman in the group offered to buy the band and take it home with her," said Leroy Johnson, a Gulf executive and one of the hosts. "She was joking, of course. I think."

The Aggies have nothing to fear, however.

"We'll just have to convince her we're not for sale," said band director Lt. Col. Joe Haney. "We certainly appreciate the flattering offer."

The Kuwaitis had to be content with an Aggie Band record of school songs.

Fleas Attack State Workers

BOSTON (AP) — Now that the Legislature is out of session, court officers and pages have been drafted to battle fleas that reportedly have been attacking statehouse workers.

"A lot of us have gotten bites," Sergeant-at-Arms Charles McGowan said Tuesday. "Those bites are awful; we've had a lot of complaints."

The problem, he said, stems from wastebaskets with caked-on dirt.

When they were made by prisoners at Walpole state prison, the wastebaskets were replaced every couple of years, and never got that dirty. But the wastebaskets are no longer made at the prison. And commercially manufactured wastebaskets are too expensive to replace the hundreds in use at the statehouse as often.

So about 12 court officers and pages have been recruited to clean those now in use, and McGowan said the project will take about a week.

Men Decide To Share Post

CANTERBURY, Conn. (AP) — The voters were split down the middle so Arthur Warner and Franklyn Robbins decided to share a seat on the Board of Selectmen.

Both got 399 votes in the Nov. 6 election and a recount didn't change the results.

"We were faced with a dilemma," Warner said.

So the two Democrats have agreed to split the two-year term. Warner will serve the first year, and Robbins the second year.

"We certainly didn't want to force a small town like ours to have another election," Warner said.

Parking Offender Traced

NEW YORK (UPI) — The man from Uruguay said he was astounded that New York City authorities could trace a parking offender 10,000 miles away — so he decided to pay his ticket.

In a letter to Mayor Edward Koch released Tuesday, Elias Bluth of Montevideo, Uruguay, wrote: "Any department of the City of New York that can track down a Uruguayan citizen residing in Uruguay, who visited New York just for a few days, and manages to deliver a summons for a parking violation at his personal address nearly 10,000 miles away, deserves to get paid."

"Therefore, attached please find my check in the amount of $40," the impressed South American said.

Better Mousetrap Desired

LIVERMORE, Calif. (UPI) — Engineers at Lawrence Livermore Laboratory are attempting to design a better mousetrap.

But nature might be designing a better mouse.

The U.S. Department of Energy scientists got interested in mousetraps because field mice became a serious problem for them by eating through wires and other mischief.

Three of four traps designed at Livermore utilize a teeter-totter or walk-the-plank design in which a mouse seeking bait gets dumped into a container of water where he drowns.

White House Urging Removal Of Women's Non-Combat Role

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration urged Congress again Tuesday to remove its ban against women in combat, but said they should not be put into the "dirtiest combat."

Robert B. Pirie, assistant secretary of defense for manpower, told a House subcommittee women could serve in more combat jobs without fighting directly.

"If you're asking if women should serve in the dirtiest combat, or if we should have a system that would force them into that, I think we would preclude it," Pirie testified.

But a retired woman Air Force general testified women can fight as well as men in nearly all combat except ground fighting, where women generally lack the strength to keep up.

Retired Maj. Gen. Jeanne M. Holm said women can fly combat jets, serve on combat ships, and fire missiles and artillery — any job that requires skill rather than muscle.

She said women can also handle the stress of combat as well as men, with the same training.

But she said, "I have great difficulty with women serving in ground combat."

"The No. 1 concern is physical strength," she said. "Every member of a ground combat team must support the team to come out with the minimum of casualties."

She was the leadoff witness at hearings before the House Armed Services Committee's military personnel subcommittee on the role of women in the military.

She started service in World War II as an Army truck driver and retired in 1975 as director of the Air Force's Personnel Council.

Mom's Permission Not Needed

DAVENPORT, Iowa (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy didn't need his mother's permission to run for president, Rose Kennedy says.

Mrs. Kennedy, 89, accompanying the Massachusetts Democrat on a campaign trip to Iowa on Monday, was asked, "Did he really need your permission?"

"No," she replied.

The first firm hint that would challenge President Carter for the 1980 Democratic presidential nomination came in September, when his office disclosed that his mother and his wife, Joan, had told him they would not object to his entering the race.

Mrs. Kennedy told an audience of her son's supporters: "I know you helped my other sons ... and I'm delighted you are going to help him."

Country Gained From Wars

ARKADELPHIA, Ark. (AP) — Norman Hobgood, 107, the nation's oldest veteran of the Spanish-American War, says the country has "gotten something" from all its wars.

For three months, Hobgood, then 28, served as a member of Company A of the 3rd Kentucky Regiment in Montezuma, Cuba, during that war just before the turn of the century.

"We learned that certain diseases were transmitted by insects," he said Monday during a ceremony in his honor.

"We've gotten something from each war that we've fought," he said.

The Arkadelphia resident said he would have enlisted to fight in World War I, but the government said he was too old. He was 42 when that war broke out, 69 when Japan bombed Pearl Harbor, and 78 during the Korean conflict. When U.S. involvement in Vietnam ended in 1973, Hobgood was 101.

Coupon Dream Almost Over

DALLAS (AP) — Until the first of this month, selling freebie airline ticket coupons was a quickie investor's dream.

Buying the half-fare coupons and reselling them at a profit was an easy way to make a few hundred bucks. But suddenly, investors say, the market is bloated and they are stuck with a fistful of soon-to-be-worthless coupons.

"I have more than I'd like to," lamented Bobby Goldman, a self-described speculator and financial advisor for a cable television firm. "I've got about 200 left. I was buying them, but not anymore."

The coupons were issued by United Airlines last June to regain business after a strike, and American Airlines joined in. Full-fare travelers were given the coupons, redeemable for half-price air fare anywhere in the continental United States, and often sold them to "scalpers."

The middle-man investors, in turn, sold the coupons to prospective travelers.

The hitch is, the coupons expire in December.

"I was buying coupons from 10 to 15 people a day, selling 10 to 20 coupons each, up until about two weeks ago," said Goldman, who admits to five-figure profits from the sales.

Quadruplets Reported Fine

DENVER (AP) — Forrest and Marty Garrison, say their quadruplets born nearly a week ago are doing fine and are expected to go home in two to four weeks.

They also all have names now — Forrest Jr., Brittany Morgan, Emily Nicole and Jessica Ann.

The quads, four to six weeks premature, were delivered Wednesday by Caesarian section at St. Joseph Hospital.

"They're doing just super, real well," Garrison said Monday night.

"And three of them are so healthy it wouldn't surprise me if they were earlier."

"Jessica Ann is still on the respirator but they are bringing her oxygen level down and she is doing more on her own and she is just looking super," he added. "The infection in her lungs seems to be diminishing."

"The other three are already out of the isolates and into their bassinets."

Space Distance Miscue Found; Universe Younger, Smaller

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Three astronomers say the discovery of a mistake in the way distances in space are measured means that the universe is only about half as old and half as big as they previously thought.

The scientists who noticed the apparent error say the universe is only 9 billion years old, not 15 billion to 18 billion years, the usually accepted figures.

The discovery, which still must be double checked by other scientists, could upset many theories about the age of stars and the evolution of the universe.

The new work was performed by one astronomer at Harvard and two in Arizona. They found a major error in Hubble's Constant, a yardstick that scientists use to figure out the distance between objects in space.

The researchers found that the constant, which is the ratio of speed to distance, should be almost twice as large as previously thought.

"If the Hubble Constant is about twice as big as it was thought to be in the past, that means that the age of the universe has dropped down to nine billion years," John P. Huchra, a staff member of the Harvard-Smithsonian Center for Astrophysics, said in an interview Tuesday.

Besides being only half as old, he said, the universe is only half as big as previously thought.

"The distance to the furthest point in the universe is the velocity of light times the age of the universe," Huchra said. "Since we have now scaled down the age of the universe by a factor of two, that means that everything is half as distant."

Previously, scientists had believed that Hubble's Constant was 50 kilometers per second per million parsecs. A parsec is 3.26 light years. Now, Huchra says, the constant is 95 kilometers per second per million parsecs.

Huchra developed the new figure with Marc Aaronson of the University of Arizona and Jeremy Mould of the Kitt Peak National Observatory in Arizona.

Astronomers believe that the stars and planets have been rushing outward ever since the "big bang," the giant primordial explosion that most scientists believe started the universe.

Huchra and his companions found that other astronomers erred by failing to take into consideration a motion of the earth that is independent from its rush outward into space. This is the tendency of the earth to fall inward toward the center of its supercluster of stars.

"No one had ever inserted a correction for the infall rate of the local supercluster," Huchra said. "If you get the velocity wrong, you get the Hubble Constant wrong."

George B. Field, head of the astrophysics center, said: "There is going to be a lot of scrambling and trying to make sense of things if this result is correct. I think the first response of the scientific community will be to verify it and frankly to attack it and look at all the weaknesses in the argument."

He said some stars are currently believed to be as old as 15 billion years. "Now we run into the absurd situation that it appears the universe is younger than the stars."

The findings of the Huchra's team await publication in a scientific journal. They were made public Tuesday in an article in the Harvard Crimson.

House Majority Favors King's Birthday As National Holiday

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Tuesday rejected a bill to establish the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr.'s birthday as a national holiday.

A majority of House members favored the bill in a 252-133 vote, but it fell 14 votes short of the two-thirds majority needed to pass it under a suspension of House rules.

Conservative critics of the bill argued that another federal holiday would hurt the economy and cost taxpayers $185 million in lost work by federal employees. One congressman also charged that King had been "anti-American."

Supporters claimed a national holiday on Jan. 15, King's birthday, would recognize the contributions to the nation made by the Nobel Peace Prize winner, who was assassinated in 1968.

Backers have been proposing the holiday for the past 10 years, but this was the first time it reached the House floor for a vote.

The bill could be brought up again this year under normal House rules that would permit passage by a simple majority.

In Atlanta, an official of the Martin Luther King Center for Social Change said his group would keep lobbying for the holiday.

"We're disappointed but we're not quitting because when you have a 252-133 vote that is a huge majority of the House that wants Dr. King's birthday to be a national holiday," said Steve Kline.

But Rep. Gene Taylor, R-Mo., one of the opponents of the measure, had argued during floor debate: "I do not believe that our economic situation allows for another federal holiday."

Rep. John M. Ashbrook, R-Ohio, said his opposition was based on King's "anti-American" comments about U.S. involvement in the Vietnam War.

Anti-Iranian Protests Erupting Across State

By The Associated Press

Simmering anti-Iranian sentiments erupted across the state again Tuesday with the fifth day of demonstrations in Houston, silent protests in Beaumont and acts of vandalism and threats against naturalized Iranian-Americans in Dallas.

Downtown Houston demonstrators burned the Ayatollah Khomeini in effigy outside the Iranian Consulate while 150 office and construction workers chanted "Let our people go!" in the chilly mid-day weather.

And in Beaumont, where 500 students engaged in shouting and shoving matches Monday, 100 students wore white armbands, vowing not to remove them until Americans are freed by Iranian students from the U.S. Consulate in Tehran.

The armbands bear the number "62" in red, the number of Americans believed held hostage.

Dallas restaurant owner Abbas Bagheri says his family has been threatened and his two businesses vandalized since the Americans were taken captive Nov. 4.

This weekend, someone spray-painted "Kill the Iranians", "Iranians go home" and "The place is gonna burn" in 2-foot green letters outside his two plush establishments, The Enclave and Pompano.

"I'm going to send my wife away," said the 41-year-old naturalized American. "I'm scared. I feel bad. I don't think I've done anything to deserve this."

"I started in business and I worked real hard. I paid my dues. I'm more Americanized than the real Americans. My wife is an all-American girl from Longview. I have two sons."

"I think the hostages should be released," he continued. "The first day they did this, I thought, my God, they're doing absolutely the wrong thing by keeping these people."

Another naturalized Iranian-American, Said Nassar, said he neither "condemns nor condones" the situation in his native country.

"Deep down, I feel badly," he said. "I am an American citizen. My wife is an American and my kids are American."

"At least I can go out in public without anybody being able to tell I am from Iran."

Munir Bayoud, head of the Arab League Information Center in Dallas, said he, too, has been threatened.

Demonstrators Have Iranian Flags To Burn

By The Associated Press

The 50,000 Iranian students in the United States, told to report to immigration officials or face deportation, were the targets of more demonstrations Tuesday across the country.

Iranian flags intended to be burned were selling like hotcakes for $13 each at a store across the street from the Betsy Ross house in Philadelphia.

"We Reserve the Right to Refuse Service to Iranian Citizens," read a sign posted in front of the First Edition restaurant and disco in Oceanside, N.J.

About 200 persons chanting "Drink your oil" watched as a homemade Iranian flag was burned on the Indiana State University campus in Terre Haute, Ind.

Residents of Cleveland, Tenn., lined up to sign an anti-Iranian petition circulated by District Attorney General Richard Fischer. City officials were the first to sign.

Small anti-Iranian demonstrations were staged in New York, Grand Junction, Colo., Baltimore and elsewhere as Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti ordered all Iranian students to report to immigration officials within 30 days to show that they are full-time students as required by their visas.

A government official, who asked not to be identified, said the action was an attempt to forestall any violence by Americans that could threaten the lives of 60 hostages who have been held at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran for the past 10 days.

In Chicago, federal authorities have taken three Iranians into custody to await exclusion or deportation hearings, authorities said. William Skidmore, an assistant deputy director for deportation, refused to say whether the incident was related to President Carter's orders to begin deportation hearings for Iranian students who are in the country illegally.

Meanwhile, four Iranian students jailed since Friday for allegedly plotting to kidnap Minnesota Gov. Al Quie were released. Ramsey County Attorney Tom Foley said that while there had been good cause to arrest the four Iranians from Mankato State University there was not sufficient evidence to charge them.

At the University of Missouri in Columbia, Mo., about 500 students staged a demonstration that ended in jeers, catcalls, shouting and chants aimed at Iranian students on campus. Two Iranian students in the crowd were surrounded and heckled, but not harmed.

Stan Schiermeier, an organizer of the demonstration, called for release of the hostages in exchange for the former Shah of Iran, if necessary. He was frequently interrupted by the crowd, which chanted, "Deport, deport, deport."

Shouting back at his hecklers, Schiermeier asked them, "What kind of answer would deportation be?" And many in the crowd responded, "A good answer."

In New City, N.Y., about a dozen demonstrators chanting "Death to the Ayatollah," marched outside the Rockland County courthouse. They carried signs that read "Let Our People Go" and "Down with the Ayatollah."

One of the pickets, Peter Sauer, of New City, an athletic trainer with a private firm in Port Chester, N.Y., said he believed President Carter did a wise thing Monday when he suspended American purchase of Iranian oil, but he said the U.S. also should impose economic sanctions on Iran and cut off shipments of food to the Middle East nation.

"We should cut off their food supplies; they can't eat their damned oil," Sauer said.

About 20 students marched from Baltimore Community College to the Baltimore City Hall carrying signs saying "War with Iran" and shouting "Iranians go home" and "Death to Khomeini." Seven area colleges had been expected to participate but the light turnout was blamed on rain.

In Grand Junction, Colo., about six Mesa College students demonstrated while about 200 watched.

William Spangler, a Philadelphia flag merchant, said he knows what's behind the boom in the sales of Iranian banners.

"It's a matter of frustration," he said. "These are American people who have seen too many American flags burned." To the best of my knowledge, the last time something like this happened was during World War II. After Pearl Harbor there was a run on Japanese flags."

Military Training For Iranians Hit By Solons

By KIM COBB
and LISA PAIKOWSKI
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Despite President Carter's decision to stop the shipment of spare military parts to Iran, Iranians continue to receive military training in Lubbock, Texas lawmakers, though, support a halt to that practice as well.

Approximately 275 Iranians, including three at Lubbock's Reese Air Force Base, are receiving training in the Navy and Air Force. Those receiving training at Reese arrived only last month and are being funded by the revolutionary government of the Ayatollah Khomeini.

U.S. Rep. Kent Hance seemed surprised at their continued presence here in light of the strained relations between the U.S. and Iran due to a student takeover of the American Embassy in Tehran.

Hance said he had assumed military trainees finished or quit their training in the U.S. when the deposed shah's government collapsed in January. He said he would contact the U.S. Department of Defense for details and justification for their continued presence here.

"It certainly doesn't make good sense to train those individuals to fly our fighter planes, then allow them to go home and oppose us on all fronts," Hance told The Avalanche-Journal.

He speculated there may have been some diplomatic justification for their training here before the student takeover of the embassy, in terms of maintaining relations between the U.S. and Iran. But Hance added that the holding of American hostages in Tehran has overridden the initial attempts at maintaining relations with the Middle East country.

U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, who favors severing relationships with Iran, said Tuesday, "I can certainly see no reason

B METRO
Lubbock Avalanche-Journal
Wednesday, Nov. 14, 1979 to continue providing training to members of the Iranian armed forces. We should put a swift stop to that."

The other senator from Texas, John Tower, said halting the training of military personnel would be a logical extension of the ban on shipment of military spare parts to Iran. He indicated he would support a move to stop that training.

President Carter last Thursday stopped a load of military spare parts destined for Iran before the shipment was flown out of McGuire Air Force Base in New Jersey. He called for the halt of any other similar shipments earmarked for the politically turbulent country.

Spokesmen for the Defense Department told The Avalanche-Journal that it appears the students enrolled in military instructional programs here will continue with their training. One spokesman said Carter is reviewing all relations with Iran, but that he knew of no decision to terminate the training.

A Reese AFB spokesman said the Iranian student pilots are following a normal training schedule, but that they have been instructed by the Khomeini government to grant no interviews and allow no photographs.

Although the Iranian situation has sparked several incidents involving Iranians in this country, Lubbock has seen no real protest activity since Crown Prince Reza Pahlavi's residence in Lubbock for his own military training at Reese.

Jackie Behrens, director of International Programs at Texas Tech, said, "I think we're sitting in a pretty good position in Lubbock and at Texas Tech." She said Iranian students are "mixed in their feelings" about the takeover of the embassy in Tehran, but that most just want to finish their education here.

The Iranians are following a regular class schedule, she said. There have been no reports of incidents on the campus over the situation, although Mrs. Behrens thinks it likely the visiting students have been the object of derogatory comments by their classmates.

The weekend retreat of the crown prince, in a fashionable section of West Lubbock, remains on the market, although at a price greatly reduced from that originally listed. The home and furniture once listed for $650,000 has been reduced to $350,000 — and the owners will accept $265,000 for the house alone.

Lubbock real estate agent Stephen Von Phul told The Avalanche-Journal he is no longer handling the sale of the home for the present owner, the Khomeini government. An Iranian student at Lubbock Christian College lives in the home, working strictly as a caretaker, Von Phul said.

The real estate agent indicated there might be some trouble over the title of the property in the event of a sale inasmuch as there has been a call from many political figures to freeze Iranian assets in this country.

Youth's Concern For Elderly Man Leads To Rescue

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

For 14-year-old Blake Smith, being an Avalanche-Journal carrier involves more than just delivering newspapers.

It means taking an interest in customers on his route.

Early Monday morning Blake demonstrated that concern and may have saved an 89-year-old subscriber from serious harm.

Blake's father, Jere, said the carrier went out on his morning route about 5:30 Monday. When he returned, Smith said Blake expressed concern about William L. Renfro, who lives alone at 3506 41st St.

The Hutchinson Junior High School ninth grader told his father Renfro's door was open and something was holding it ajar.

Smith decided to check on Renfro. He found both the front door and the storm door open. Renfro's bathrobe was lying in the doorway, half in and half out, Smith said.

After there was no response to his calls for Renfro, Smith said he decided to go home and contact police.

However, as he was driving away, Smith said he noticed the elderly man's walker beside the house.

Leaving his car running in the street, Smith ran over to find Renfro lying between his house and a neighboring house.

"When I got closer I could hear moaning," Smith said, but added Renfro was able to talk to him.

With the assistance of some of Renfro's neighbors, Smith said he got the six-foot-tall man inside his house and attempted to make him comfortable.

When his daughter-in-law arrived from Seagraves, Renfro said he had fallen outside the previous night. Fortunately, the elderly man was fully dressed when he was discovered, Smith said, because the temperature fell to about 30 degrees Sunday morning.

Renfro is now in satisfactory condition at West Texas Hospital.

"Blake knew he was old and had problems and was just concerned," Smith said. "He knew it was unusual for the door to be open that time of morning with no one around.

"He was concerned enough to say something and I'm so glad he did."

Blake's good work has not gone unnoticed. Already this year he has been named The Avalanche-Journal carrier of the year and runner-up for state carrier of the year.

He has worked as a carrier about three and one-half years.

Noted Runner, Author To Speak Today

Noted runner and author James Fixx will speak at 8:15 p.m. today in the University Center Theater at Texas Tech.

Fixx's topic will be "The Science of Running."

The prize-winning author's "Complete Book of Running" within six months of publication had sold more hardback copies than any other book in Random House history.

Fixx also wrote "Games for the Superintelligent" and "Solve It," among other works, all of which were Book of the Month Club selections.

He also has served as senior editor of Life, managing editor of Horizon and editor-in-chief of McCall's.

Tickets are available at the UC ticket booth. Admission is $2.50 for Tech students with ID and $3.50 for the general public. Reservations may be made by calling 742-3610.

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

If there is comfort in someone else's misery, "The Book of Heroic Failures" should make the author, Stephen Pile, a legend in his own time.

He lists such failures as The Least Successful Alcoholics Anonymous meeting ever held; Staged in Belfast, Northern Ireland in 1974, it ended in a cloak-room brawl after $847 had been spent at the bar.

The Least Successful Television Program was shown in France on Aug. 14, 1978. It was an interview with an Armenian woman on her 40th birthday in which she discussed the way she met her husband. An opinion poll showed not a single viewer watched it.

The Worst Homing Pigeon ever released was set airborne in June, 1953, in England. It was returned by mail, dead, in a cardboard box 11 years later from Brazil.

I started my own personal book of Unparalleled Failures 30 years ago. I defy Mr. Pile to top them.

The Most Underrated Case of Flu and Water Retention was treated without success in July 1952. In April 1953, I delivered an eight-pound, four-ounce son.

The record for the Biggest Failure Ever Recorded by the Department of Motor Vehicle Driver's Testing Program occurred in 1959. My daughter, on her 15th temporary permit, made a U-turn in front of a police officer, parallel-parked with two wheels on the curb (the front ones), ran over the examiner's foot and asked, "Does this mean I don't get my license?"

The Most Miserable Meal Ever Served at a Family Gathering was a Thanksgiving dinner which I hosted last year. Without benefit of glasses, I thought 1.50 was the weight and not the price of the turkey per pound and cooked a 17-pound turkey in a 325-degree oven for 25 minutes, then served it to a mother-in-law who observed, "You're not pretty enough to cook this rotten."

The Worst Idea for Traveling With a Dog Who Is Trained to a White Shag Carpet goes to my husband, who devised a plastic arrangement of a bush, a couple of daisies and a few fake leaves. The dog ate the arrangement and wet on my husband's foot.

Back to Mr. Pile, he listed the Least Accurately Labeled Museum Exhibit ever. It was a Roman sestertius coin, minted between A.D. 135 and A.D. 138. It was impressive until a nine-year-old kid pointed out it was really a plastic token given away by a soft drink firm.

I feel better already.

LINDA IMLE

Linda Imle, registered nurse at West Texas Hospital, has been named an Outstanding Young Woman of America for 1979. The award makes Mrs. Imle a candidate for one of the nation's top 10 outstanding young women.

Criteria for the national award are based on contributions to the community in which the nominee lives and on achievements and awards.

Mrs. Imle currently serves in Lubbock as the chairman for the Cardiopulmonary Task Force, an affiliate of the American Heart Association and as chairman for the Affiliate Faculty for the American Heart Association. The faculty sets standards for local cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) training certification.

Mrs. Imle is a certified CPR instructor and a registered emergency medical technician (EMT), which means she is trained in crisis medicine and can function as part of an ambulance team. She has been employed at WTH since July.

The Athenian Study Club of Slaton will hold its annual Holiday Bazaar Saturday from 9 a.m. - 4 p.m. at the Slaton Junior High School cafeteria, 1000 South 10th St. Various crafts and baked goods will be sold from booths set up in the cafeteria. Coffee and tea will also be sold by the study club for refreshments.

To Your Good Health

By PAUL DONOHUE, M.D.
Dear Dr. Donohue: Please explain psoriatic arthritis. I have read about osteoarthritis and rheumatoid arthritis, but not about this kind. I have had psoriasis for the past 35 years, but for the past five years I have had pains in the neck, finger joints, knees, elbows and in the lower spine. I'm 57. Until recently, the psoriasis was limited to my scalp and armpits, but recently the finger and toenails decided to have a fling, and they are a total mess. — Mrs. E.M.

Psoriatic arthritis is a very special and peculiar kind of arthritis. It has NOTHING to do with the other kinds you mention. About 5 percent of persons with skin psoriasis develop the joint pain. Hands, feet and the spine are frequently affected. Hand swelling gives rise to the term, "sausage fingers."

Psoriatic arthritis is diagnosed by tests to rule out the common forms of arthritis (rheumatoid and osteo-, for examples).

It is a strange ailment about which we know little. There does not have to be a relationship, for example, between the degree of joint pain and the degree of visible psoriasis. The only treatment is that used for joint pain and for regular skin psoriasis. Aspirin may not be as helpful in this form of arthritis. A dermatologist can advise about treatment for the skin signs.

Dear Dr. Donohue: What is your opinion regarding surgery to relieve pressure on my urinary bladder caused by my uterus pressing against the bladder? It is not causing me any problems. — G.W.

Excuse my cutting your letter so drastically. You discussed in great detail the differences of opinion between you and your doctor, but the essential point is made when you say that the situation is causing you no trouble.

The determination to have surgery should be a joint decision between you and your physician. If there is no serious problem, like malignancy, then you can base your choice on the severity of your symptoms, i.e., frequency of urination, leaking of urine and amount of discomfort. If your urine were infected (because of an inability to void completely) the decision to operate would be given more weight. That is a potentially dangerous situation.

But if none of the problems I mention exist then your "input" into the surgery-or-no-surgery decision is based on one simple factor — how uncomfortable you are with the bladder situation.

You tell me you are in menopause. The uterus tends to decrease in size at this time and such a pressure problem may, indeed, subside on its own.

Dear Dr. Donohue: What's the meaning of the original serpent and rod on the M.D. insignia, the one you see on the coat, shirt, or on the doctor's office sign? — K.G.

The serpent coiled around the rod is the staff of Aesculapius, the Greek god of healing. The Greeks attributed mystical qualities to snakes, which is why it became symbolic of healing and of the medical profession. You've heard of snake oil?

The serpent and staff is often confused with the Caduceus, which was the magic wand of the messenger of the gods, Hermes, or Mercury. This wand has two intertwined snakes with wings at the top. It is the symbol of the Army Medical Corps (to which I once belonged, incidentally) — also of the Bell Telephone Company.

Enough of mythology and back to medicine, which has enough of the former to deal with as it is.

Dear Dr. Donohue: A friend of mine claims her 30-year-old daughter is ill with a disease called "lupus." Hope I spelled it correctly. Another acquaintance, a retired nurse, said there is no such disease. Who is correct? — Mrs. W.P.

Well, of course, the mother of the lupus victim is correct. It's been written about in this column often. Just briefly, it's a tissue inflammation disorder and about 90 percent of the patients are young women. A milder form affects only the skin. Lupus societies have chapters around the country, and much research continues into this troublesome problem.

Arthritis sufferers can be helped. For a copy of the booklet, "How You Can Control Arthritis," which discusses many types of arthritis and related joint diseases as well as effective treatments and medications, write to Dr. Donohue, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611. Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 30 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Hints From Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

We all know how grubby and spotty the wall can get, especially those of us who have small children and/or amateur mechanics in the house.

Well, after a very long day of washing clothes, children and animals and finding a filthy pair of jeans I had missed, I wasn't aiming too well with my bottle of pre-wash laundry spray. I ended up getting quite a bit on the wall.

When I cleaned it up, I was stunned! The wall was spotless!

Feeling an attack of cleverness coming on, I took the spray and hit one of hubby's grimy fingerprints. It came off with no scrubbing!

I'm "allergic" to doing walls, but I went over all of the worst spots in the house and got them looking like new in less than 30 minutes.

The only thing that took any scrubbing was my 3-year-old's "pencil masterpiece," but the spray didn't seem to damage the walls at all. (Test it on your walls in an out-of-the-way spot. — Heloise) Mine are painted with a semi-gloss latex paint. Keep up the good work! — Ann McKeever

DEAR HELOISE:

I hate to brown meatballs on top of the stove, so I stuck mine under the broiler to brown, then put them in with the sauce to cook through.

Since I also hate to clean the broiler, I put them in a small cake pan or disposable pie tin and thus don't have a messy broiler. — Dottie Pennington

DEAR HELOISE:

Here is a hint for older folks — and maybe younger ones, too.

No need to pull the spread and all of the covers from the bed when changing sheets.

Place a chair at the foot of the bed and pull the covers and spread onto it.

Put on clean sheets, pull up the covers and spread and, with a little adjusting at the foot, the bed has been changed. — Mrs. A.J. Peine

DEAR HELOISE:

Is it safe to use ammonia for cleaning an oven with the pilot on and all vents stuffed with paper so no fumes escape? — Mary Y.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann: I am 34 years old and the mother of four. Our oldest son is 14. My husband is the head coach of baseball and track at my son's high school. He also teaches chemistry. Our son is a natural athlete and into track.

I was "the teacher's kid" all through high school and I know how rough it can be. People were afraid to talk to me because of my father's position. I was a loner and very unhappy.

Coaches' kids are not considered a part of the team. They suffer the tortures of the damned. My son wants to participate in track this year, but he doesn't know what he is letting himself in for. Should I let him? I hate to see the boy go through his entire high school years with no friends. — A Mother In Florida

Dear Mother: The tone of your letter was more emotional than rational, so I decided to check it out with the Chicago Sun-Times sports desk. By sheer chance I reached a woman, Sandra Bailey. I read your letter to her and asked for an opinion.

Sandra said many coaches' kids are sports-oriented from early childhood, which is understandable. Very often they do play on the school teams and are neither hated nor ignored by their teammates. Also, the coach usually bends over backwards not to show favoritism to his own kid.

My advice is stay out of it, Mother. The problems you had in school had nothing to do with the fact that your dad was a teacher. I went to Central High in Sioux City, Iowa, with a Bill Brandenburg. His mother taught Latin there and Bill was very active and never lacked for friends.

Dear Ann Landers: Our only son was married eight months ago. I will call his wife Susan, although that is not her real name.

My son never gets breakfast at home because Susan enjoys late-night TV and can't get out of bed in the morning. So he makes himself coffee and toast.

Susan goes to her mother's every day. She takes her laundry — although she owns an automatic washer — because her mother does her ironing. The girl never cooks dinner. She either mooches something from her mother's house or picks up junk at the deli, a pizza parlor or a Chinese carry-out.

Her house is — don't ask. The girl never makes the bed. Dishes can sit in the sink for three days.

My son never complains because he is a saint. How long do you think this marriage will last? — His Mother

Dear Mother: Longer — if you stay out of it. The situation, as you describe it, is terrible. But believe it or not, some men don't attach much importance to housekeeping or cooking.

My advice is keep quiet and offer no suggestions and no "help." What goes on in their house is strictly their business.

Dear Readers: In case anyone wants to know what happened to the Washington, D.C., physician who was accused of killing a Canadian goose with his putter while playing golf at the Congressional Country Club: Well, he paid a $500 fine for killing the bird out of season, and now he must face his peers at the club.

Are drugs OK if you learn how to control them? Can they be of help? The answers are in Ann Landers' new booklet, "Straight Dope on Drugs." For each booklet ordered, send a dollar, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (28 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Lubbock Observes 'Book Day'

Thursday has been designated "be with a book for a day" day in Lubbock, and the local library is urging patrons to check their favorite books out of the library and carry them about with them, to show their support for the importance of reading.

As part of the observance, the Mahon library asked local persons and state figures to designate their favorite books for special display in the library during the week.

City Councilman M.J. Aderton named "Centennial" by James Michener; Coach Rex Dockery of Texas Tech, Taylor Caldwell's "Captains and Kings," and W.R. Collier, president of the American State Bank cited the new International Version of the Bible as his favorite.

Avalanche-Journal Family News Editor Frances Lowe cited "Children of Pride," by Robert Manson Myers as her favorite reading and Lady Bird Johnson, the other woman responding to the survey, named her own book, "A White House Diary."

Bob Bullock, comptroller of public accounts, mentioned "A Message to Garcia," by Elbert Hubbard, and both Chief Justice Joe R. Greenhill and Stanley Marcue of Dallas named Lewis Carroll's "Alice in Wonderland."

George M. Mahon said that "Pilgrim's Progress," John Bunyan's classic, was his favorite reading, and Ernest A. Shiner, editor in chief of the Texas Farmer Stockman named "The Great Plains," by Walter Prescott Webb. George W. Strake, secretary of State, named "Five Years to Freedom," by James N. Rowe. John Tower and Mark White, Texas State Senator and Attorney General, both named the Bible. Tower choosing the King James Version.

Special displays and programs in libraries, the public schools and public places will recognize the special importance of "be with a book for a day" throughout this week in Lubbock.

Opening lead: ♦ 7

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

In this charity-game hand, South usually landed at three notrump after West overcalled the diamond opening with one spade.

West opened a spade, and those South players who went right up with dummy's jack of spades wound up making 10 or 11 tricks.

Note that this is one time when it is definitely correct to play second hand high. That jack is worthless unless it can hold the first trick.

Our choice for unluckiest player is the West who opened the queen of spades rather than his fourth best. This lead should have cooked South's goose, but it didn't.

South just won that trick with his king and led a heart toward dummy. West hopped up with his ace and played his ace of spades but East, who had been sitting around gathering wool, failed to drop the 10 and the defense just got three tricks. Incidentally, that queen of spades lead is not an impossible one in this situation. It isn't too good because it can only gain if dummy holds J x and partner holds the 10. A better unusual lead would have been the ace with the doubleton jack appearing in dummy. West would continue low and clear the suit if South started with king and one. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Home Insurance Weakened

COLLEGE STATION (Special) — Can your home insurance match today's inflated prices — if you have to replace your property?

Be sure to insure your home up to at least 80 percent of its replacement value, cautions Linda McCormack, a family resource management specialist.

Mrs. McCormack is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Many people who've failed to increase their homeowner's insurance coverage over the years would be unable to handle replacement costs on their house or its furnishings in today's market, she says.

Girl, 15, Testifies At City Probation Officer's Trial

By KAY BELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A 15-year-old girl placed on informal juvenile probation this summer told a County Court-at-Law No. 2 jury Tuesday that her probation officer offered her a job where she could earn $800 to $1,200 per week.

Although the probation officer, Roy King, did not spell out exactly what she would be doing for the money, the girl testified, "The only thing I know 'trick' means like that is sleeping with guys; doing what they want."

"He (King) said the money I made, he'd get half and he'd let me off probation if I was doing okay and that I'd owe him one after that," the young newlywed added in a barely audible voice.

The young probationer was the first witness to testify as King's trial on four misdemeanor counts of official misconduct began Tuesday in Judge J.Q. Warwick's court. In addition to being accused of soliciting the girl's services as a prostitute, the 25-year-old defendant also is accused of using his official capacity in soliciting the girl to engage in nude photography in return for the discharge of her probation, asking her to perform nude dancing and taking her to a "known house of prostitution."

Obviously nervous, the young witness spent most of her almost 1 1/2 hours on the stand staring at her lap, twisting a piece of paper in her hands and quietly answering questions of Criminal District Attorney's Office Misdemeanor Chief Dan Hurley.

Only once did she begin to quietly cry — when lead defense counsel Byron Chappel began rigorously questioning her about her past boyfriends, family life, first marriage and most recent marriage about two weeks ago to a 52-year-old Lubbock man. She declined, however, Warwick's offer that the court recess momentarily and resumed her testimony.

She told the three-man, three-woman county court panel that King was nicer than usual when she made her regular weekly visit to his office Aug. 17. That morning, she said, he mentioned he had a job for her but wouldn't tell her what it was involved. He said he would call her in a few hours and elaborate.

However, after telling friends of King's attitude change and job offer, she said, her friends suggested she carefully evaluate whatever job King offered before agreeing. After making arrangements to meet King later at her apartment, she said, she and her friends decided to tape-record the conversation and let one of the friends, another 15-year-old Lubbock girl, hide in a closet and eavesdrop.

When King came to her Avenue Q apartment that night, she said, they engaged in small talk for about a half-hour before he mentioned "tricking," nude modeling and nude dancing as parts of the job. She said the tape recorder had clicked off about five minutes before King spoke about the work.

Warwick and attorneys will listen to the cassette tape this morning before the judge will rule on whether it may be admitted to evidence.

King left after the conversation, the dark-haired girl testified, but returned shortly after midnight.

"He said he wanted to show me what all it'd be like and wanted me to come with him," she said. Another friend who was at her apartment then also went with the witness, King and another man, she said, to Suite 130 at 312 E. 34th St.

At Suite 130, the girl said, they were greeted by three scantily attired women, one of whom took her into a back room. She said the room was furnished with a mattress and photographs of women in various stages of dress.

The woman told King to bring the girl back at 8 p.m. the next day because "they wasn't gonna work me that night," she testified.

However, when she returned to Suite 130 with King the following evening, the girl said, he refused to let her go inside because a man she knew was inside "raising a racket and (King) said he was afraid they (Suite 130) might get raided that night."

The man inside, she said, was former Lubbock police officer Jerry Plunkett, who was working on the case in an undercover capacity as part of the investigation into the girl's allegations against King. Plunkett was fatally shot Sept. 1 in the parking lot of the Koko Club, 5201 Ave. Q.

Also testifying Tuesday was the girl who hid in the probationer's closet the night of King's alleged mention of tricking as a job. The girl said she heard most of the conversation.

"He talked about how people at his office didn't understand what it was like, how hard it was growing up on the streets," the second witness said. "He had a hard time telling her what the job was. He kind of skipped around it before telling her."

Your Personal Biorhythms

Figure your numbers here — For your own permanent biorhythm number for the Physical (P), Emotional (E), and Intellectual (I) cycles, just follow these steps:

	P	E	I
STEP 1. YEAR OF BIRTH
STEP 2. MONTH OF BIRTH
STEP 3. DAY OF BIRTH

YOUR PERMANENT NUMBERS

Step 1 — Year of birth. Read down the left hand column to find the last number in the year of your birth then go across to the appropriate decade. For instance, if you were born in 1947, your number for Physical would be 21, Emotional 17, Intellectual 19. Note whether your numbers are preceded by an A or B; this will be used for Step 2.

Step 3 — Day of birth. Enter your day of birth three times in the figure chart, once each for Physical (P), Emotional (E) and Intellectual (I). Add the three columns to derive your permanent biorhythm numbers for your Physical, Emotional and Intellectual cycles. Now you can refer to today's biorhythm readings.

A Proven Scientific Treatment
Plan For A Beautiful, Healthy Skin
Clean Healthy Skin-Is Beautiful Skin

Most men and women understand the fact that no matter how well they dress or how clean they keep their hair, the common problem of blackheads, acne, excessively oily skin or scaly dry skin can spoil the whole picture.

Even "good skin" derives benefits from our treatments. We make it feel silky smooth, look and feel tighter, have finer texture and with the healthy glow that only DermaCulture can give. Today's fashions requires an honest natural projection of your own self. A thick mask of make-up destroys the natural beauty of your own skin. The qualified technicians at DermaCulture can aid you in determining your own specific skin condition, and can recommend a regimen of regular cleaning habits designed especially for you.

A comprehensive skin care program (deep cleaning, abrasion, vacuuming and ionization) need not be costly. At DermaCulture, after your first visit, a complete treatment cost only $15.00. Call us for an appointment to find out about your skin.

Yes, you will be eligible for Medicare in April of 1980, since it will have been 24 months since you became eligible for Social Security disability. You should apply for Medicare in January.

Your wife would be eligible for Social Security wife's benefits as early as age 62. The percentage of your benefits which she would receive would vary depending on her age at the time she applied for wife's benefits. The percentages are as follows: age 62 — 75 percent of one-half of her husband's unreduced benefit; age 63 — 83.4 percent of one-half of her husband's unreduced benefit; age 64 — 91.7 percent of one-half of her husband's unreduced benefit; age 65 — 50 percent of her husband's unreduced benefit.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q. Where does a person invest for retirement these days? Articles on the market have shown stocks to have been poor investments over the last decade. Other articles do not paint a rosy picture for the future of stocks.

Gold and silver are highly speculative. Diamond experts suggest buying only large, expensive stones. Savings certificates are safe but do not keep pace with inflation. Antiques require expertise. Real estate is difficult for the small investor to get into.

I am 38, married, with two children. I have enough savings for emergencies and can invest $1,000 to $2,000 a year. My employer has no pension plan and, when he does, it probably will be a poor one. Any suggestions?

A. The first suggestion for you is to set up an individual retirement account (IRA). Because you are not covered by any employer's retirement plan, you can establish your own IRA and put into it 15 percent of your annual earnings, up to $1,500 a year — $1,750 if your spouse does not have an earned income.

You don't pay income taxes on the money you put into an IRA and you don't pay taxes on the money your IRA investment earns, in dividends and/or interest, until you start taking money out. Normally, that's after retirement — when you figure to be in a lower tax bracket.

Anyone who is eligible for an IRA and doesn't have one is making unnecessary gifts of income taxes to Uncle Sam. What are you waiting for? Set up an IRA.

What kind of IRA? Despite the fact that the market in general has not been a world-beater in the past decade, many stocks have done quite well. And, despite what the prophets of gloom and doom are writing, I believe the market will do well in the future.

Over the really long-term, the values of good stocks have not been outpaced by inflation. Sure, we're in a period of hyperinflation now. But this nation has licked big problems in the past and has the ability to do so again.

If we don't have confidence in our economic system, we might as well give up. "You gotta believe," because we really have no other choice.

Between now and retirement, a steady investment program should build a good nestegg for you. An easy way for you to go to work with an IRA in a no-load mutual fund which holds growth stocks.

Q. I own a few pieces of jewelry that just stay in the safety deposit box, year after year. Would you advise me to sell the jewelry and use the money to invest with some financial institution? Or should I just leave well enough alone and let inflation increase my jewelry's value?

A. Also, if I sell the jewelry, would my profit be considered a capital gain, which would have to be reported to the Internal Revenue Service?

If you need income, sell your jewels and put the money to work in income-producing investments. But, if you're well-fixed, keep your jewels. The value of good jewelry has increased much faster than inflation has cut into the purchasing power of the dollar. This applies especially to gems. Just don't count on the price of gold skyrocketing, forever.

When you sell stocks, jewels or any other "capital asset," your profit is a capital gain and is supposed to be reported on your income tax return. I'll let your conscience be your guide on that one.

Fed's Inflation Fight Raises Questions

By WILLIAM GLASGALL

NEW YORK (AP) — The Federal Reserve has made major changes in the way it attempts to guide the economy. The changes, announced just over a month ago, were made in a bid to slow the nation's 13 percent-a-year inflation rate.

Did the Fed merely substitute one set of economic mumbo-jumbo for another — or were the changes substantial ones? Here are some questions and answers about the central bank's techniques:

Q. What prompted the Fed to move?

A. Inflation can be affected by sharp energy price jumps, slow productivity growth and long-term wage escalator clauses in major labor contracts.

But the Fed's control over the money supply also plays a vital role in determining economic growth rates. When the amount of money available grows faster than the supply of goods and services, escalating consumers' demands bid prices higher and higher.

Q. How does the Fed control money?

A. Most money is in the form of bank deposits, rather than cash. These checking and savings accounts provide the base for banks' loans.

When the Fed wants to drain money from the economy, it sells commercial U.S. government bonds. The banks pay for the interest-bearing government-guaranteed bonds out of their reserves, which are the funds banks must set aside out of each dollar they accept as a deposit.

To add money to the system, the Fed buys back the bonds, writing banks checks drawn on itself and increasing bank reserves.

Q. What had the Fed been doing up to Oct. 6?

A. It had set desired long and short-term money growth rate targets, and also had established targets for short-term interest rates. The rate target was achieved by its purchases and sales of bonds.

If the Fed sold bonds, for instance, it would drain reserves from the banking system. Banks still holding on to extra reserves after the draining operation then would be able to loan these funds to reserve-scarce banks at higher rates than before.

Q. What was going wrong?

A. Economic activity rebounded sharply in September after the summer's energy woes began to slow things down. Demand for credit was strong, so upward pressure on interest rates continued. The Fed wanted to slow the interest rate spiral, which meant adding money to the system to meet credit demand. But by adding funds to the system, the Fed was accelerating a money growth rate that was well beyond its official targets.

"The Federal Reserve cannot control the level of interest rates and bank reserves ... at the same time," commented New York University economist William L. Silber. "The only way it can temporarily lower interest rates is by increasing reserves — and that offsets its intended anti-inflationary policy."

Q. What did the new policy comprise?

A. While it didn't say it would ignore interest rates, the Fed decided to take a closer look at bank reserves. It raised reserve requirements on some types of deposits — meaning banks could lend out less of each dollar they took in. It also decided to concentrate its attention — and its bond trading — on the size of the bank reserves.

According to economists Kevin Hurley and Lawrence Chimerine of Chase Econometric Associates Inc., a major task for Federal Reserve Board members now will be to monitor "actual money growth to see if it is maintaining its historical relationship with reserves."

Q. What were some effects of the Fed's actions?

A. The Fed stopped its minute-by-minute attempts to maintain interest rate targets, and the prime lending rate jumped. The rate on loans to top-ranked business borrowers rose from 13 1/2 percent before the Fed announcement to 15 1/2 percent this week.

"Some would-be borrowers will be shut out of the market, especially smaller businesses and homebuyers; some consumers may also find it difficult to obtain credit for a while," said Hurley and Chimerine.

But they added that "a severe credit crunch is unlikely in the months ahead as the recessionary forces already under way will reduce pressure ... by lowering credit demands."

Small Change Noted In Business Inventories

WASHINGTON (AP) — Business inventories rose a scant 0.1 percent in September to $417.3 billion for the smallest change in nearly four years, the Commerce Department reported Tuesday.

The increase in retail, manufacturing and wholesale trade stocks occurred despite heavy auto sales that pushed auto inventories down $1.9 billion, or 6.7 percent, to $26.7 billion, the report showed.

Auto sales in September were spurred by rebates and other incentive programs as manufacturers and dealers tried to move 1979 model vehicles in preparation for 1980 model arrivals.

Still, auto inventories in September of $26.7 billion were 16 percent ahead of stock in September 1978. One commerce analyst, who asked not to be identified, suggested "that may be too high in view of sluggish sales in October."

In percentage terms, the September change was the smallest since inventories fell 0.03 percent in December 1975, when the nation was coming out of a recession, Commerce statistics show.

The $402 million increase in September followed a $3.1 billion, or 0.8 percent increase, in August.

Sales, meanwhile, rose 1.4 percent in September to $297.1 billion after rising 1.5 percent in August, the report showed.

Manufacturers' inventories rose 0.8

percent in September to $220.8 billion, and wholesalers' stocks were up 0.3 percent to $89 billion, the report showed.

But retail inventories, reflecting in good part the drop in auto inventories, fell $1.6 billion, or 1.46 percent, to $107.5 billion. Commerce statisticians said it was the largest drop since October 1970, when retail inventories dropped 1.45 percent. Retail inventories had risen 0.4 percent in August.

Overall inventories of $417.3 billion in September were 11.7 percent higher than in September 1978, the report indicated.

The inventory-to-sales ratio stood at 1.40, down from August's 1.42. The ratio shows how many months' supply businesses have on hand to accommodate sales at current levels.

Panel Approves Fed Chairman Term Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Tuesday passed and sent to the Senate a bill that would link the four-year term of the Federal Reserve Board chairman to the term of the president who appoints him.

By voice vote, the House approved the measure that would set the end of a Federal Reserve chairman's term one year and 10 days after the appointing president's term ends.

The bill also would permit the vice chairman of the board to act as chairman if the chairman is unavailable or if the seat is vacant. Past chairmen and vice chairmen also would be permitted to continue to serve after their terms expire until their successors take office.

In 1815, Austria, Prussia and Russia formed the Holy Alliance.

American Home Dream Edging To Nightmare

By PETER JACKSON

AUGUSTA, Maine (AP) — I can't kid myself anymore. The proverbial American dream — to be lord of my own castle — Has lost its warm glow. It's a mortgage nightmare.

For me, my wife and our baby girl, the castle lies on the east side of the Kennebec River, on the outskirts of Maine's capital, a green and white clapboard house, with an open-sided porch out front.

Step inside and there's a cozy living room, with an old-fashion brick fireplace cut into a handsome wooden mantelpiece with glass-door cabinets. Upstairs are three big bedrooms, and a half-finished attic on top of that.

It's the kind of place you'd want to be when that first Nor'easter slams in from the coast this winter.

But that blizzard is just around the corner, and we've been waiting five weeks now for word on our mortgage application. In that brief time, our prospective monthly payments have gone up more than a dollar a day in interest alone. We try not to think about the oil bills.

If this keeps up, the modest empire we plotted may become just another hard-luck fairy tale of the Recession of '79.

So far the story is a real hum-dinger.

The three of us came to Maine last fall from suburban Philadelphia, where houses cost twice as much and I was making half as much. Sure, we were adjusting to a new baby, a new job and new neighbors all in one shot, but things were looking up.

So from the day we moved into our rented second-floor apartment, we house-hunted. I don't believe we missed a single rental.

For a solid year we looked. And looked. We kept the baby up long after bedtime, wasted many a weekend and burned gasoline by the tankful, traipsing behind one agent after another.

"You'll love it," they inevitably chirped. But we never did; not until we saw that clapboard house in September.

The owner, an amiable, gray-haired widow, accepted our offer. She agreed to pay a small percentage of the price to the mortgage company, a common stipulation on Veterans Administration mortgages.

A word here about the VA: having given four of my years to the Air Force, I'm used to waiting in lines. And that training comes in handy when you ask Uncle Sam for mortgage assistance.

The woman who's selling us her house is abandoning two decades of memories for an apartment on the other side of town. Naturally she doesn't want to move out until she knows our mortgage is approved. She calls us often just to check.

But it will be some time yet before we know anything. The wait isn't unusual; interest on VA mortgages is too low to attract any local banks right now, so we had to apply through a mortgage company in Massachusetts.

Time is working away on our budget too. The interest rate on VA Loans has been hiked twice — from 10 percent to 11 1/2 percent — since we applied; and its little consolation that conventional mortgages are up to 13 percent.

We're all a bit edgy. The woman, with whom we've become quite friendly, says she wakes up at night worrying about it all. My wife downs a lot of aspirin for her headaches, and I'm developing a taste for antacids.

Just last week our landlady dropped another bombshell. She called to say she's finally found a buyer for the house we've been renting. And by the way, we have 30 days to move out.

We're just hoping for the best, and dreaming about that clapboard castle across the Kennebec.

Mississippi Cotton Harvest Ranks As Hard Work

By JULES LOH
ROBINSONVILLE, Miss. (AP) — Hallelujah, brother. It is cotton picking time in Dixie.

In the Deep South — and it is nowhere deeper than the Mississippi Delta — where abundance has been denied to so many for so long, there is nothing like the cotton harvest to evoke at least a sense of plenty.

The fields of the Delta, flat as water, are covered with froth all the way to the horizon, all the way to the levee.

Cotton everywhere. Wagons heaped with cotton queue up at the gin like strings of giant pearls. Trucks on the highway groan under bales piled high. Tufts of blown cotton decorate the roadside and the naked branches of trees. Cotton to spare.

"You are standing on the Bowdre Farm of P.N. Owen," said Dick Taylor, a stoutish man, a blond. In his youth, in the Southern manner regarding blonds, his uncles likely called him cotton top.

"All the land you can see in every direction belongs to P.N. Owen. I manage this farm for him. It is 2,400 acres and I expect to have it picked in 24 days."

In the field before him, six mechanical pickers growled among the rows, snatching fat white bolls into their maws, stripping off the cotton with moist spindles, sucking it into a cage.

"You pick cotton twice," Taylor said. "First the heavy pick; that's this one. Then you go back three weeks later and scrap it, pick the cotton that has opened since the first picking."

"Right now I'm picking two and leaving two. That's in case it rains before I finish the first picking."

He explained. "Pick two rows, skip two rows. Go through the whole field, pick half the cotton. Then, if it rains and the soil turns muddy, the machines still can pick the rest because they can ride on soil their tires have already packed down hard."

Not long ago, even in the memory of a young man like Dick Taylor, who is 27, people, not machines, picked cotton.

By his estimate, it would take 200 people to do the work of his six machines: 200 men — and women and children — trucked down from Memphis or up from Vicksburg or Jackson, stooping in the fields, muddy or not, dragging nine-foot cotton sacks behind them, picking two rows at a time, skipping none. Dick Taylor grew up on a small farm near Vicksburg. He took business courses in college, vowing never again to work on a farm.

Now, of course, farming is business, big business. P.N. Owen, for instance, scion of an old family of Delta planters, farms about 10,000 acres. "We should make two bales an acre," Taylor said.

"If we have any luck with the weather, we should have it all picked by Thanksgiving. After Thanksgiving it can rain for a week at a time. The soil becomes bottomless. You have to wait for it to freeze before you can make the second picking."

This is Delta soil. Bottomless. Before he planted, Taylor plowed 20 inches deep and still didn't hit native soil.

Its bounty is cotton. Cotton in profusion. An annual miracle, and, in the Southland, a time to celebrate.

"Not for me," Dick Taylor said. "Not yet. Celebrating will have to wait. Right now there's a hell of a lot of hard work to be done."

ELECTRIC CAR — Briggs & Stratton, builder of small gasoline engines, has unveiled this six-wheeled that can be propelled by its electric motor, an 18-horsepower gasoline engine, or both powerplants in unison. The firm says gas mileage varies between 25 and 150 miles per gallon. The car was designed to carry two adults, two children and two bags of groceries. (AP Laserphoto)

Hybrid Auto Driven By Electricity, Gasoline

MILWAUKEE (AP) — An automobile that can be powered by an electric motor or an 18-horsepower gasoline engine — or both at the same time — was shown Friday by Briggs & Stratton Corp.

The six-wheeled vehicle gets between 25 and 150 miles per gallon, the company said.

Briggs & Stratton, a major manufacturer of small gasoline engines, said it has no intention of producing cars.

"We only want to demonstrate that the hybrid electric car design is a practical alternative to the standard size auto," Frederick P. Stratton Jr., president and chief executive officer, said.

He said the goal was to develop an electric car that would overcome the limited range of such vehicles by use of an auxiliary motor.

The driver, the company said, can determine his cruising range between electric battery charge — 30 to 60 miles — or fillups of gasoline — up to 280 miles.

The gasoline engine is mounted in the front and the battery pack rides over the rear wheels. The engine-motor combination drives the middle two wheels,

Suspect Facing Extradition Hearing

Joseph Michael DePauw, charged with murder in Lubbock, will go before a U.S. Magistrate in San Jose, Calif., where federal charges of unlawful flight to avoid prosecution against the suspect will be dropped, according to an FBI agent.

Joe Chiaramonte, supervisor in charge of the FBI office in San Jose, said that after the federal charges are dropped, an extradition hearing will be held for DePauw, 28, accused of the Oct. 5 murder of Oland Kenneth Anderson, 63, owner of Neon Specialty Co. at 2402 Ave. J., whose bludgeoned body was found inside his business.

Chiaramonte said Tuesday he understood DePauw would fight his removal from California to face murder charges in Lubbock, which were filed three days after the victim was found.

"The last I talked to him, he said he wants to fight extradition," the agent said.

If the suspect does fight extradition, the Texas governor's office must show cause for DePauw to be turned over to Texas authorities. "That takes about a week," Chiaramonte said.

If DePauw waives his right of extradition, it will be up to Lubbock authorities on when they want to go to California and pick up the murder suspect.

DePauw surrendered to an FBI agent Sunday at the suspect's brother's San Jose residence, ending a month-long search for the man.

Outcome Of United Way's Goal Uncertain Until Final Report

The United Way campaign comes to an end today, 12 days later than originally scheduled with an additional report meeting at Memorial Civic Center at noon.

Whether the drive will keep alive Lubbock's string of successive victories or whether the 100 percent mark will be missed for the first time will remain in doubt until the final minutes of the report, according to chairman Joe Price.

"Since the Nov. 2 report, when we were 5 percent short of the goal," Price said, "the campaign cabinet and team captains have been in constant touch attempting to close out the drive. Our volunteers are certainly not lacking in zeal. They know the job has to be done."

The total raised at the fourth report, originally planned as the "victory" report, was about $1.7 million, about $100,000 short of the goal. Since then, according to Price, additional contributions have brought the amount to about $1.73, leaving the drive $68,000 short.

Campaign funds are budgeted and allocated this year to 34 community service agencies. Failing to make the goal, according to Price, would result in the 28-member budget division's going through a rebudgeting process which would result in a loss of services from the agencies.

"This has never happened," Price said, "and it would be difficult to rebudget since the volunteer budget division was quite stringent in the spring budgeting period."

NOTICE AFFORDING OPPORTUNITY FOR PUBLIC HEARING

The State Department of Highways and Public Transportation is planning the reconstruction of F.M. Highway 1750 in the City of Lubbock from 82nd Street, south a distance of approximately 1.1 miles. The proposed construction will consist of reconstructing the present 20 foot pavement to an 80 foot face-to-face curb and gutter section consisting of six 12 foot lanes with 14 foot continuous left turn lane. Proposed usual right of way width will be 110 feet. Maps and other drawings showing the proposed location and design and any other information about the proposed project are on file and available for inspection and copying at the Resident Engineer's Office, Lubbock, Texas. Information about the tentative schedule for construction can be obtained at the Resident Engineer's Office. Reclamation is not involved in this project. Any interested citizen may request that a public hearing be held covering the social, economic and environmental effect of the proposed location and design for this highway project by delivering a written request to the Resident Engineer's Office on or before November 24th, 1979. The address of the Resident Engineer's Office is P.O. Box 271, 601 Station Highway, Lubbock, Texas 79408. In the event such a request is received, a public hearing will be scheduled and adequate notice will be publicized about the date and location of the hearing.

NOTICE AFFORDING OPPORTUNITY FOR PUBLIC HEARING

The State Department of Highways and Public Transportation is planning the reconstruction of F.M. Highway 1750 in the City of Lubbock from 82nd Street, south a distance of approximately 1.1 miles. The proposed construction will consist of reconstructing the present 20 foot pavement to an 80 foot face-to-face curb and gutter section consisting of six 12 foot lanes with 14 foot continuous left turn lane. Proposed usual right of way width will be 110 feet. Maps and other drawings showing the proposed location and design and any other information about the proposed project are on file and available for inspection and copying at the Resident Engineer's Office, Lubbock, Texas. Information about the tentative schedule for construction can be obtained at the Resident Engineer's Office. Reclamation is not involved in this project. Any interested citizen may request that a public hearing be held covering the social, economic and environmental effect of the proposed location and design for this highway project by delivering a written request to the Resident Engineer's Office on or before November 24th, 1979. The address of the Resident Engineer's Office is P.O. Box 271, 601 Station Highway, Lubbock, Texas 79408. In the event such a request is received, a public hearing will be scheduled and adequate notice will be publicized about the date and location of the hearing.

Tackling a new job—a woman mechanic at Israeli air base gets a briefing.

WOMANPOWER FOR ISRAEL

Manpower is short but womanpower can do the job. That's what applies now in the Israeli air force, where women mechanics, as seen in these photographs, are doing repair work on the U.S.-built Skyhawk fighter-bombers the air force uses. Women are taking on jobs previously the domain of male counterparts in other branches of Israel's armed forces, too: they're working as tank instructors and artillery instructors, for example, releasing male colleagues for other tasks.

Efforts To Cut Farms' Water Shares Praised

WASHINGTON (AP) — House efforts to cut big Western farms' shares of federally subsidized irrigation water won praise Tuesday from Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus.

Andrus criticized Senate action on the same issue, saying a Senate bill passed in September supports legal "aberrations of large farms, absentee speculator owners and other enforcement loopholes that cry out for reform."

The Senate bill "would accommodate substantially all of the large farming interests which have been fighting so hard in recent years to avoid compliance with limitations of the reclamation law," Andrus said.

He was testifying before a House Interior and Insular Affairs subcommittee which is considering a number of bills on the subject, including several that would put the limit at 640 acres per family rather than the 1,280-acre limit established in the Senate bill.

Andrus called the Senate's 1,280-acre limitation "both inadequate and illusory," subject to numerous special exceptions.

Several House members from California expressed disagreement with Andrus while questioning him.

He said the 1902 law was clearly intended to encourage relatively small family farms by furnishing subsidized water for irrigation of marginally productive land in the West.

Since then, a few big farming operations, especially in California, have used various exemptions to carve out farms of thousands of acres using irrigated land theoretically limited to 160 acres per family member under the law, Andrus said.

The Carter administration favors a new bill that would set the limit at 960 acres per family but eliminate most exemptions and require that families actually live on or near their farms.

"It is a very small but powerful sector of the reclamation community who are clamoring for a large acreage entitlement and who would benefit from it," Andrus said.

They argued that the big farms are important in national food production, have been told their operations are legal by previous administrations and are willing to pay for most of their irrigation water if need be.

"All we're asking is that the government keep its word," said Rep. Clair Burgener, R-Calif.

Andrus replied that the big farms could be efficiently replaced by smaller ones and that paying for water is not the point since the land-reclamation system was intended for small or moderate-sized operations.

As for previous understandings between big farm operations and the government, he said the operators "knew what the law was when they signed the contracts."

Chrysler Collapse Seen If Aid Lacking

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chrysler Corp. representatives predicted Tuesday the faltering automaker will go out of business in the next few months without government help.

"Sometime early in the first quarter of 1980, we are going to run out of cash and then it is going to be all over" unless Congress acts promptly, Gerald Greenwald, executive vice president of Chrysler, told the House Banking Committee.

"I can't emphasize enough the importance of an immediate decision," Greenwald said.

James Wolfensohn of Salomon Brothers, a leading New York investment banking firm which is advising Chrysler on financing, said that if the company fails to get government aid, "our judgment at this time is that the game would be over."

Greenwald and Wolfensohn testified at a one-day hearing scheduled by the committee, which is to begin action today on the administration's plan for a $1.5 billion loan guarantee to Chrysler.

The administration bill was approved

12-6 Thursday by a House Banking subcommittee and seems to have the votes for approval by the full committee.

Republican critics predicted the measure faces a tougher time when it reaches the House floor.

Rep. J. William Stanton of Ohio, the ranking GOP member of the committee, said he thought the bill would "stop for quite a while" and that a "backlash" against it would develop.

Rep. Richard Kelly, R-Fla., said, "The enormity of what we are doing is going to come into focus the more information we get."

Testimony on a Chrysler aid bill will begin before the Senate Banking Committee, whose chairman, Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., is opposed to the proposed loan guarantees.

The House version would require Chrysler to come up with $1.5 billion on its own to qualify for government assistance.

Wolfensohn told the House panel that negotiations to raise the extra $1.5 billion privately are "an area of great concern and difficulty."

He said 140 domestic banks are being asked to stand by their present $1.6 billion in commitments to Chrysler and lend an additional $400 million as part of the required matching money.

Other negotiations are going on with foreign banks, he said. "There is a reasonable chance, but we are far from home," he said.

Thomas Moore, a professor of economics at Stanford University, took a different tack, saying there was "a good possibility" Chrysler could avoid bankruptcy without government assistance.

Greenwald said Chrysler had "some concern" about proposals that it be required to sell stock to its employees, suppliers or other specified parties as a condition of the loan guarantee.

But he said the company would be glad to cooperate in a study of the desirability of establishing a stock option plan for its employees, as some members of Congress are advocating.

Chrysler Workers Vote Against UAW Contracts

DETROIT (AP) — Workers at two of Chrysler's busiest plants have voted against the tentative contracts with the United Auto Workers union, the UAW said Tuesday.

Other locals were approving the contract, and UAW officials still expected ratification.

In Syracuse, N.Y., workers at Chrysler's New Process Gear division voted against ratification, 1,608 to 627, said Local 624 President John Courcy. The plant employs about 3,700.

In Detroit, UAW officials said workers at the Belvidere, Ill. assembly plant had voted down the contract by a 3-2 margin. That plant has about 5,000 employees. An exact tally of the Belvidere vote was not immediately available.

The New Process plant makes transmissions, transaxles and four-wheel-drive transfer cases used throughout the industry. The Belvidere plant makes the subcompact Plymouth Horizon and Dodge Omni, Chrysler's U.S.-built cars in greatest demand.

The UAW said final ratification votes will be taken Friday instead of Thursday as previously announced.

"Because of heavy layoffs, some locals had difficulty in notifying members," spokesman Jerry Dale said.

Nearly 30,000 of the 110,000 UAW members in Chrysler are on indefinite layoff.

The contract would put Chrysler workers behind their counterparts at General Motors Corp. and Ford Motor Co. for the first time since the industry was organized 42 years ago.

Despite that, leaders of the 184 local unions at a meeting about the contract in Kansas City last month said their members had feared an even more meager contract. Those leaders said they expected little trouble winning ratification.

Carter Calls Off Trip Due To Iranian Crisis

WASHINGTON (AP) — Because of the Iranian crisis, President Carter decided to call off a planned trip to Philadelphia and Harrisburg, Pa., on Tuesday, the White House said.

The president had been scheduled to hold a town meeting in Philadelphia in late afternoon and then fly to Harrisburg or a Pennsylvania Democratic State Committee dinner.

The trip was the second canceled by Carter as a result of the takeover of the U.S. embassy in Tehran on Nov. 4. The president already had postponed a trip to Canada until early next year.

Cowboys Waited Too Long

IN BETWEEN THE UNRECOGNIZABLE drive of Humble Howard Cosell and the quaint, almost nauseous humor of Dandy Don Meredith, there was a professional football contest played Monday night in Dallas.

The game came compliments of the National Football League. The three-ring circus was sponsored by all those wonderful prime-time people at ABC-TV.

While Cosell was busy shouting his most overused adjective — brilliant — to describe everyone in the stadium except one of the Philadelphia ballboys and relating the supposedly poignant and touching tale of how Pope John Paul II touched the young son of one of the Eagles' executives during his recent trip to America, Meredith was happy just to hum the melody of his favorite country and western tune and let everyone in America know that his old high school buddies in Mt. Vernon considered Clarksville the closest thing to a bye on the football schedule.

But I will say this much for Meredith. He does know more about the game of football than his arrogant sidekick in the booth. Cosell knows it takes 11 players to make a side. Meredith knows what it takes to win — or at least come close.

MEREDITH, WHO WAS BOTH loved and hated during his tenure as Dallas' quarterback during the mid-and late-1960s, came up with two statements Monday night during the Cowboys' 31-21 loss to the Eagles that made more sense than Cosell's entire vocabulary.

The Cowboys, who jumped ahead of the Eagles 7-0 on the third play of the game, obviously weren't in the mood for football against Philadelphia. If they were, someone is in trouble — bad trouble.

Dallas' offense stumbled around like a truckload of punch-drunk fighters for three and a half quarters after bringing lightning down against the obviously hungry Eagles on the third play from scrimmage. Roger Staubach hit Tony Hill with one of those picture-perfect long bombs and it appeared that the Eagles might just be another 6-4 team looking to be 6-5.

But the Cowboys died after the quick score. Sure, there were some strange penalties that helped the Eagles get untracked in the early going, but penalties are part of the game. You can't use penalties as an excuse everytime you lose. There are probably many 4-7 teams in the NFL today that would be 7-4 or 8-3 if they didn't have to worry about penalties.

SELDOM HAVE THE COWBOYS played as ragged as they did Monday. Except for the quick score and Staubach's almost weekly last-second rescue escapades, that brought his squad within four points of Philadelphia at one time very late in the game, did Dallas really play with intensity. It was the first time that I have seen Tom Landry's team appear confused.

Meredith made two excellent points during the second half of the contest. His first statement came early in the third period with the Cowboys trailing 17-7. Meredith pointed out that the Cowboys had never lost a game in which Tony Dorsett had gained over 100 yards rushing.

At the time, Dorsett had about 40 yards on the ground on eight or nine carries. He finished with 55 yards on 15 carries. Meredith explained that Dorsett needed to get the ball at least 20 times a game if the Cowboys were to make full use of his breakaway ability. Too bad Don, no one on the Dallas sideline was tuned in Monday.

Meredith's second point was that Landry tries to do too much with the Cowboys — that maybe there are too many gimmicks in the Dallas offense. The Cowboys tried them against Pittsburgh two weeks ago and were soundly defeated. There were a few called against Philadelphia and they netted a fat zero.

GIMMICK PLAYS WORK AT TIMES, but I agree with Meredith. Why do the Cowboys need so many of them? Dallas has excellent personnel, the type you can win with just by running five or six plays. Staubach's arm and his receivers are as lethal as any in the NFL and they sure come through when the clock ticks down to the two-minute mark. Why can't they click throughout the other three quarters of a football game? Because football is a game of fundamentals. The team that blocks, runs and tackles the hardest usually wins. It is in those areas where the Cowboys need to improve.

Maybe some of you Cowboy fans out there don't believe me. But just ask yourselves this. When was the last time Philadelphia scored 31 points on your heroes? And even though the Cowboys are 8-3, who have they defeated? Only one of those victories came against a team with a winning record — Chicago, no powerhouse.

If I were Tom Landry, I'd go back to being a pragmatist — instead of a procrastinator. As he and his Cowboys found out Monday, waiting until the last second doesn't always work.

Dockery Praises Tech's Copeland

By NORVAL POLLARD

Executive Sports Editor

Obviously Texas Tech head football coach Rex Dockery was impressed with the performance of senior inside linebacker Jeff Copeland during Saturday's 3-3 stalemate with Texas Christian.

"I'd have to say that it was the best game Jeff has played since he's been at Tech," Dockery admitted. "He was everywhere, always around the football."

Now Tech's defense is a pretty sound returned it to the Red Raider 17 before being run out of bounds.

Copeland finished the day with 16 tackles, 13 of them solo. For his outstanding individual effort against the Frogs, Copeland has been honored as the Avalanche-Journal Tech Defensive Player of the Week.

The A-J Offensive Player of the Week award goes to senior split end Howie Lewis — a surprise to many opponents this season.

Lewis' ability as a pass catcher and blocker were questioned by many before the 1979 season started. But the 6-5, 211-pounder from Pampa has silenced those critics with consistent solid performances during the campaign.

Lewis hauled in three of Jim Hart's eight completions during the TCU contest. His longest reception was for 19 yards and Lewis had 41 yards for the day.

He now ranks as Tech's leading receiver with 20 catches in nine contests. He has amassed 281 yards and three touchdowns to lead the squad in both categories.

Lewis' consistent play makes him a contender for Southwest Conference post-season honors this year.

Dockery was also pleased with the improvement displayed by his two freshmen quarterbacks during practice Tuesday. Starter Jim Hart and backup Mark James both were sharp during workouts according to the Red Raider mentor.

"I was happy with both of them," Dockery stated. "Jim ran well and continued to learn and Mark was looking sharp. He's come a long way since last week."

"He (James) is going to play Saturday. I feel like it will be good for both of them."

and stingy bunch of hombres, but there are no real super stars in the unit. There are just 11 or 12 guys who play hard and compliment each other very well.

But during each of the previous eight contests the Red Raiders have been involved in, one of those defenders — be it Johnny Quinney, Tate Randle, Lewis Washington, Gabe Rivera, Willie Stephens or someone else — has stood out from his teammates. And Saturday was Copeland's chance to showcase his football skills.

The 6-2, 230-pounder from Sterling City started the afternoon against the Horned Frogs by pouncing on a TCU fumble at midfield the first time the Frogs tried to move the football.

It was Copeland to the rescue only minutes later. Copeland killed a threatening TCU march early in the second period when he stepped in front of a Kevin Haney pass at the Tech 7 yard line. He

Class AA Districts Not Decided, Yet

By RUSS PARSONS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Only one week remains in the high school football season, but still two Class AA district races remain technically undecided.

And, with a couple of upsets Friday night, all three conferences on the South Plains should wind up in ties for the district championship.

Consider first, District 3-AA. Friday night Morton travels to Muleshoe. On the face of things, the Indians don't stand much of a chance. Though they've lost only one district game, it was a 56-0 blowout to Littlefield, a team which lost 16-3 to Muleshoe.

And looking back at Morton's pre-district season, their only wins were 13-12 and 6-0 squeakers to Class A Plains and Springslake-Earth.

On the other hand, they tied Class A Farwell 14-14, lost to Class A Crosbyton 22-16 and dropped a 20-14 decision to Cooper of Class AA.

Muleshoe, now 7-1 on the year, is riding a hot streak. In the last three games the Mules have allowed only a touchdown (to Olton in a 27-7 win) and a field goal (in that win over Littlefield). And they've got seasoning on their side, too. The Mules opened the year with a 7-

2 loss to New Mexico powerhouse Portales.

After that they beat Floydada 9-7 and Tulia 24-0, and tied Abernathy 20-20 before closing out the pre-district with a 21-15 win over Idalou.

That last win could be important, because (if the Mules dump Morton) Muleshoe will face Idalou in the bi-district round of the playoffs.

Of course, it might also mean nothing, the way that series has gone recently. Last year the Wildcats beat the Mules 21-7 but then were surprised 21-6 in the first round of the playoffs.

Idalou has a playoff berth wrapped up, but not the district championship. If the Wildcats should fall to Lockney Friday night they would wind up in a tie with Abernathy — co-champions. But since the 'Cats beat the Antelopes 26-6 two weekends ago, Idalou would still represent.

Speaking of co-champions, it's been five years since anybody won District 5-AA outright. And there's a darned good chance of a tie once again this year.

This weekend Slaton will travel south to Tahoka. If the Tigers win, they will have sole claim on first place. But, should the Bulldogs (now 7-2) win, the two teams and Seminole would wind up in a three-way tie, providing the Indians can get past 2-7 Cooper.

Last year at this time, a similar situation existed. That time, Tahoka had to come up to Slaton to play and emerged with a tight 7-3 win that threw the loop into a four-way tie between Tahoka, Slaton, Seminole and Frenship.

Slaton won the coin toss later that night and advanced into the playoffs. The Tigers beat Colorado City 33-21 in bi-district but lost to Kermit 21-7.

The winner of District 5-AA will play 6-AA. Funny thing is, almost exactly the same situation exists down there as in 5-AA.

Stamford, undefeated in district play and 8-1 (only loss to Haskell 41-23) in Coahoma, 6-3 and 5-1, Friday night. A Stamford win would clinch the title.

But should Coahoma pull an upset, and an upset it would be looking at comparative scores, the district would end up in a three-way tie with Wylie, 8-1 and 5-1, included.

Stamford beat Wylie 41-15 and Wylie beat Coahoma 22-14 in district play.

them. It will give us a chance to talk with Jim on the sidelines and give him a chance to see what is going on out there."

Several other underclassmen are going to see action during Saturday's 1:30 p.m. contest with Southern Methodist in Dallas, Dockery revealed.

Junior Greg Tyler will get a chance to play more than he has this season against the Mustangs. Tyler will spell senior fullback James Hadnot on occasions.

Tech's second-team offensive line, which consists of freshmen Matt Harlien and David Joeckel, sophomore Anthony Lyons and juniors George Smitherman and Mike Wells, should see plenty of playing time.

"Our second-team offensive line has improved to the point where we feel we must let them play and get some game experience," Dockery said. "That group has really been coming along."

Despite the 3-3 tie with TCU and the 3-4 record, Dockery expects the Red Raiders to give the Mustangs a good run for the money come Saturday.

"We have a good rivalry with SMU," Dockery added. "If you saw the game last year or have seen the game films, you saw two teams that played as hard as they could to win. We always play well and hard against each other."

"I think our players will get after it during the game on both sides of the line of scrimmage. We want to win this game. It means a great deal to our players."

Women Golfers Win Tournament

TEMPLE (Special) — The Texas Tech women's golf team captured the 36-hole Temple Junior College Invitational held here Monday and Tuesday by turning in a two-day score of 628.

Lamar University finished second with a 631 and the host Temple team was third in the seven team field with a 668.

Robin Wohltman led the Raider women with a two-day total of 152 and Mary DeLong fired a 153. The other Tech scores were Linda Hunt, 156; Luz Remy, 167 and Jane Gray with a 173.

Netters Blank ASU

Also on the Texas Tech women's front, the tennis team closed its dual meet schedule for the year by blanking Angelo State 10-0 for the second time this year.

Jill Crutchfield led with a straight set 6-0, 6-0 victory. Other winners and their scores include Regina Revello 6-2, 6-2; Sandra Carillo 6-2, 6-3; Cathy Stringer 6-3, 6-2; Kathy Lawson 6-3, 6-3; Joanne Waliko 6-0, 6-1 and Zeida Semino 6-2, 6-0.

Doubles victories were Beckie Gurken and Becca Fritz 7-6, 6-3; Leslie Romley and Terri Moore 6-3, 7-6 and Kay Tally and Vicki James 5-7, 6-2, 7-6. Texas Tech's record is now 13-6-1 on the year.

Dickey Injured

COLLEGE STATION (UPI) — Texas A&M coach Tom Wilson said Tuesday running back Curtis Dickey would miss next Saturday's game with Arkansas because of a cracked rib.

"Certainly we'll miss a runner of his class," said Wilson, "but we won't be as hampered now as we were against Texas Tech when he was hurt because then Johnny Hector and Earnest Jackson were not ready to step in for him."

"Now they have proven themselves. Both are good running backs and they're smart enough to do what we ask of them."

Arkansas, tied for first place in the SWC with Houston and Texas, is in the best position for a Cotton Bowl berth. A victory over A&M would leave the Hogs only one win away (against SMU) to secure the bowl bid.

"If we can avoid turnovers and play with great intensity, we have a chance to beat Arkansas," said Wilson. "There's no way we can be predicted to win, but I think it will be a great football game."

Wilson also said that the top quarterbacks in the league would also be on display Saturday at Kyle Field.

"Not taking anything away from the other quarterbacks," said Wilson, "but I think our Mike Mosley and Arkansas' Kevin Scanlon are performing better than the others."

Hogs Face Injuries

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (UPI) — Arkansas practiced without regular cornerbacks Trent Bryant and Hugh Jernigan Tuesday and coach Lou Holtz said the Razorbacks may have to start two freshmen at those positions against Texas A&M Saturday.

Holtz said freshmen Ronald Matheny and walk-on Kim Dameron would open at the corners in the event Bryant and Jernigan could not play. Bryant suffered a bruised thigh and Jernigan aggravated a shoulder in the 29-20 victory over Baylor.

"Overall, it was a good day," Holtz said. "I think the players realize how important this game is. Texas A&M is playing as well as anybody in the conference right now."

PQC Tops Chap Cagers

(Special) — The Lubbock Christian College basketball team lost to Paul Quinn College 85-71 Tuesday night to square the account following LCC's 97-96 win over PQC Nov. 5.

LCC, 2-2, never regained the lead after PQC scored 10 straight points to break from an early 8-6 deficit.

The Chaps failed to grab an offensive rebound throughout the first half and were led in scoring by Bruce Carver's 25 points.

Sooners Expect Major Bowl Bid With Victory

NORMAN, Okla. (UPI) — Oklahoma will be in good position for a major bowl bid if it defeats Missouri Saturday, Coach Barry Switzer said Tuesday.

"We've got to win at Missouri," Switzer said. "If we win at Missouri, we'll probably tie up with a major bowl somewhere."

Switzer hinted that he and Nebraska Coach Tom Osborne had reached agreement on bargaining for a major bowl to accept the loser of the Nov. 24 Sooner-Cornhusker clash. The Big Eight chamion goes to the Orange Bowl.

Switzer was asked at his weekly news luncheon, if he and Osborne were "pretty close" in their thinking on a bowl arrangement.

"Yeah," Switzer quipped. "We only differ on one thing."

The "one thing" on which they disagree is which team should go to the Orange Bowl. Both teams are unbeaten in Big Eight play, going into Saturday's Oklahoma-Missouri and Nebraska-Iowa State games. All other Big Eight teams have at least two conference losses, and all except Oklahoma State have three or more.

Switzer has said previously he would like to go to the Sugar Bowl, if not the Orange, but has not been contacted by Sugar Bowl representatives.

Various reports have indicated the Sugar Bowl was ready to match the Big Eight runnerup against the Southeastern Conference representative, or to make a deal to fill the Sugar and Cotton bowls with teams from the Southeastern and Southwest conferences.

Switzer, in response to questions, said he has "always been against" the Orange Bowl tie-up that sends the Big Eight winner to Miami, but will not campaign to end it.

"Our track record shows we went to the Orange Bowl as much without the tie-up as we did with it, and we used to go to other major bowls too," he said.

Switzer said seventh-ranked Oklahoma, seeking its 100th victory of the decade, respects Missouri and expects a tough game.

"Missouri is a very talented football team," Switzer said. "I don't know why the record doesn't complement the talent. You have to be within the program and evaluate it to determine that."

"They are a team that will point to an opponent, and can beat any team they play," Switzer said of the Tigers.

Switzer said his team's 38-0 victory over Kansas last Saturday was "probably the best team effort, defensively, we have had."

"Offensively, again it was a problem of mistakes in execution, busted assignments," he said.

"We're hung up on 38," Switzer said, referring to the Sooners' 38-point total in each of their last four games. "We'd probably be hung up on something higher if it wasn't for the mistakes."

Reds Awaiting Chance To Begin Goltz Talks

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds are waiting their turn to talk to the representative for pitcher Dave Goltz, and it will be at least a few more days until club President Dick Wagner gets his chance for serious negotiations with the hottest property in the free agent market.

Later this week, Wagner hopes to meet with LaRue Harcourt, the California attorney who is representing the Minnesota Twins pitcher.

Goltz, who was 14-13 with a 4.16 earned run average this past season, was the first player picked during the recent free agent draft by the maximum 13 teams.

Harcourt and his client are trying to meet with each of the teams, especially those in the National League, before deciding which clubs will have the chance to sign the 30-year-old pitcher.

Goltz has averaged just under 16 victories a year in his last five seasons with the Twins, and in 1977, he was 20-11.

"He has all the pitches," said Reds Manager John McNamara, who saw Goltz pitch in 1978. "He's not overpowering, but he has good control. His best pitch is probably his breaking ball. You have to evaluate him as a good all-around pitcher."

Wagner won't have a chance to talk contract with the Reds' other draft selection — left-handed hitting outfielder-first baseman Jay Johnstone — until early next week.

Wagner said he understood that Johnstone's attorney is in Japan with touring major league all-star teams and wouldn't return until late this week.

"I've talked to both players and both agents on the phone to indicate our interest in signing them and as a prelude to getting a meeting set up," Wagner said. "But we never mentioned figures or anything serious."

The Reds president said the club was not out of because Johnstone will turn 33 in less than a week.

"I think we're aware of him — his personality, his physical abilities and his age," Wagner said. "We think he's a fellow that can help us."

Yankees Trade For Soderholm

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Yankees obtained 31-year-old third baseman Eric Soderholm from the Texas Rangers Tuesday in exchange for an unspecified number of players to be named later.

Soderholm started the 1979 season with the Chicago White Sox and was traded to Texas in June, with the Rangers giving up pitcher Ed Farmer and first baseman Gary Holle.

Soderholm, a right-handed hitter with a career major league batting average of .262 since coming up with Minnesota in 1971, hit .262 with 10 home runs and 53 runs batted last year.

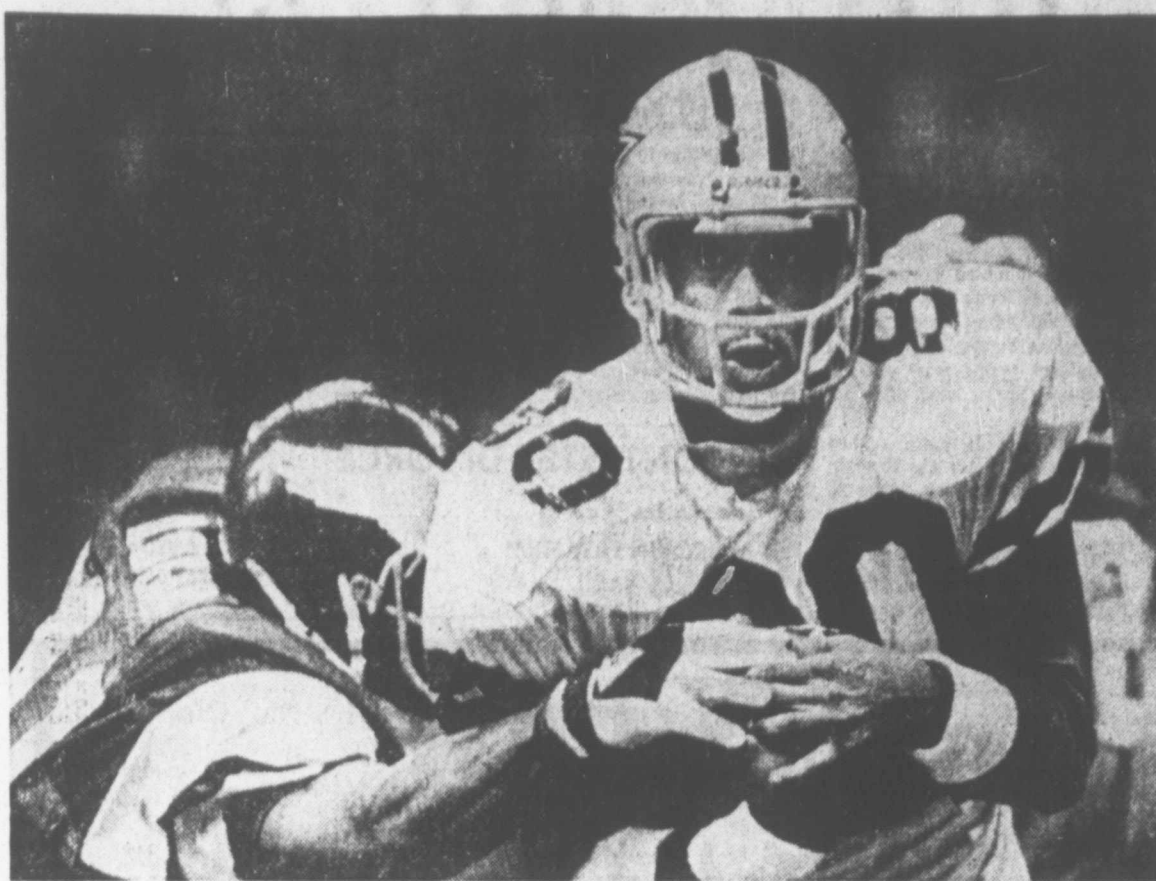

He spent the 1976 season on the disabled list with a torn-up knee, became a free agent and was signed by the White Sox.

Landry Says Team's Future Lies In Players' Hands

By The Associated Press

Dallas Cowboys Coach Tom Landry, who is now battling below .500 in Monday night games, said Tuesday he wishes his team could play the entire game the way it does in the two-minute offense.

"Thanks to the Cowboys we've got a new race in the National Conference Eastern Division," said a red-eyed Landry, who showed up for his weekly press luncheon with only a few hours sleep after the Cowboys had lost to Philadelphia 31-21 Monday night.

"Monday nights are not the best outings for us," said Landry, who has a 7-8 record in the nationally televised jousts. "We've made it interesting again. It was a most disappointing game. It seems we can't stand prosperity but it happens to all teams. It even happened to Pittsburgh."

Landry said, "It's hard to say why we can't play until we get behind and get into our two-minute offense. Maybe, we just have to be in a desperate situation."

The injury situation was not good for the Cowboys Tuesday.

Landry said quarterback Roger Staubach was "very questionable" for the game against Washington because of a bruised thigh.

"He's sore and may not be able to work out this week," said Landry. "It may be game time before Roger decides whether he can go. Also, (defensive tackle) Randy White has a foot injury. He could barely walk today."

Landry said halfback Preston Pearson, who has missed two weeks with a leg injury, will be out of action through the Houston game Thanksgiving day.

"This is a tough stretch coming up for us with two games almost back-to-back. Our destiny is in our hands."

Dallas is now 8-3 trailed closely by Philadelphia and Washington at 7-4.

"The division race is dead-even now even though we have a one-game lead," said Landry. "We have to play Philadelphia again on the road and Washington twice."

Landry said it seems that his players have to face adversity before they can get rolling. Dallas has won three games in the last two minutes and almost pulled out the Eagle game Monday night.

"Some of our players have no conception what it is like to play on a loser," said Landry. "They think we can always come back. Sometimes you wish they all had been there (on losing teams) to see what it's like."

Pardee Ready For 'Pokes

It's Dallas Week in the nation's capital.

Although feelings aren't as bitter as the days a few years ago when the Cowboys treated Washington Redskins Coach George Allen with disdain, there's still a strong dislike between the National Football Conference East rivals.

Last year, the Cowboys routed the Redskins on Thanksgiving Day and linebacker Thomas Henderson said, "We're sending those turkeys back to Washington. And with their feathers in their mouths."

Two weeks later, when the Redskins were eliminated from the playoffs by Atlanta, defensive end Harvey Martin announced on the intercom of the Cowboys' chartered plane: "Play was interrupted in Atlanta to clear turkey feathers off the field."

Coach Jack Pardee told newsmen Monday he started thinking about the Cowboys, who will play the Redskins here Sunday, as soon as the gun went off after Washington's 30-28 victory over St. Louis.

And Pardee declared: "We're going to beat Dallas. I like our matchups against them and I like playing in RFK Stadium against them. Our record at home against the Cowboys is pretty good."

Dallas, after losing 31-21 to Philadelphia Monday night, still leads the NFC East by one game with a record of 8-3. Washington and Philadelphia are tied for second at 7-4.

Pardee said it is easy to prepare the team mentally for the Cowboys.

"All you've got to do is put the film on the machine," he said. "You know the players are going to get ready for the Cowboys."

Pardee's dislike for the Cowboys is deep-seated, going back to his boyhood days growing up in Texas. It grew more intense in his later years when he played for Los Angeles and as a coach for his alma mater, Texas A&M.

"Back when I was playing for the Rams and living in Texas, I heard so much about the Cowboys that I developed a dislike for them even before I came to Washington," he has said on several occasions.

"They come across as the superior being, which makes it more gratifying to knock them off. Superior scouting, superior coaching, superior talent ... They've done a heckuva job and I admire them for that, but it still makes them fun to beat."

Pardee hasn't mellowed as he displayed Monday.

"The Cowboy fans down there are like the Redskins fans around here. They're pretty hard core. I heard about as much as I wanted to hear about how great the Cowboys were."

"I wanted to do what I could to knock them off. They're just as human as anyone else in the league," he said.

Falcons Worry LeBaron

Disappointment was written on the face of Eddie LeBaron, but the Atlanta Falcons' general manager refused to concede the division title despite the misfortunes of his stumbling National Football League club.

"I'm disappointed, sure," LeBaron said Tuesday of the Falcons' 4-7 record, which includes a 24-3 loss to the New York Giants Sunday in a game Coach Leeman Bennett termed the "worst in three years."

"We started out with three excellent games but for some reason have just been going downhill since," he said of the club which won its first two games before losing in overtime to Denver.

That started the slide which has yet to end. Despite the problems, LeBaron still feels the Falcons can regroup and take the title in the NFC West which New Orleans currently leads with a 6-5 record. Los Angeles is second at 5-6. Atlanta still must face the Saints again and the Rams twice, including next Monday night.

"Normally with a 4-7 record you would be thinking about next year," said the cigar-smoking LeBaron. "But in our division we still have a chance, if we win. We can't afford to lose anymore."

"The general thought is we have to put it together and win the rest of our football games. We still have a shot at it at this stage," he said.

"We're close to the edge," LeBaron admitted. "But this team can bounce back. We made a lot of mistakes against New York. We were killed by errors. But we did maintain our intensity."

He said this year's team has lacked consistency, the main ingredient missing from last season's club that went 9-7 and made the playoffs for the first time in the 13-year history of the Falcons.

"Initially, we had defensive problems. We were not stopping the run or the pass, especially the pass. But the last two to three weeks, the defense has played well. Penalties have hurt us, turnovers have hurt us. It's not just one person," said LeBaron.

"I don't know the answer. Maybe our people are trying too hard. We just don't seem to be consistent," he said.

LeBaron, however, said there is no reason to panic and he remains optimistic.

"We feel we have a good group of athletes. There are no thoughts of wholesale changes, certainly not. We felt with our schedule an 8-8 record was attainable this year," he said of the goal which still is within reach.

Stargell, Hernandez Tie For NL Award

NEW YORK (AP) — Keith Hernandez of the St. Louis Cardinals and Willie Stargell of the Pittsburgh Pirates finished in a tie for the National League Most Valuable Player Award Tuesday — the first time in the 49-year history of the prestigious award that it was shared by two players.

The results were announced by the Baseball Writers Association of America, which conducts the annual balloting.

Both players finished with 216 points. Outfielder Dave Winfield of San Diego was third with 155 points on the basis of 14 points for a first-place vote, nine for second, eight for third, etc.

Stargell received 10 first-place votes to four for Hernandez, but four voters on the BBWAA panel of 24 writers failed to list the Pirates' star on their ballots. Had the Pittsburgh slugger, named the most valuable player in the playoffs and World Series, received even a 10th-place mention from any of those voters, he would have won the award.

Much of Hernandez' support came in second-and third-place votes. He received eight second-place votes and seven for third, and was the only player named on all 24 ballots.

It was an ironic result for Stargell, the 38-year-old captain of the Pirates, who twice has finished second in close MVP balloting, losing to Joe Torre in 1971 and Pete Rose in 1973.

Hernandez, who recovered from a disastrous 1978 season to win the National League batting championship this year, hit .344 with 11 home runs and 105 runs batted in.

Stargell, who led the Pirates to the World Championship with heroic play-off and World Series performances, batted .281 and led Pittsburgh with 32 home runs while driving in 82 runs. Winfield led the league in RBI with 118, batting .308 with 34 home runs.

The co-winners are both first basemen. Stargell moving to that position from the outfield late in his career to save wear and tear on his legs, and Hernandez, a Gold Glove winner as one of the slickest fielders in the game. The BBWAA committee was composed of two writers from each of the league's 12 cities. Besides his 10 first place votes, Stargell had three seconds, four thirds, one fourth and two sixths. Hernandez received four firsts, eight seconds, seven thirds, two fourths and three fifths.

Winfield received four first place votes and Cincinnati third baseman Ray Knight had two No.1 votes. Other first place ballots went to Houston pitcher Joe Niekro, Pittsburgh reliever Kent Tekulve, Montreal catcher Gary Carter and Pittsburgh third baseman Bill Madlock.

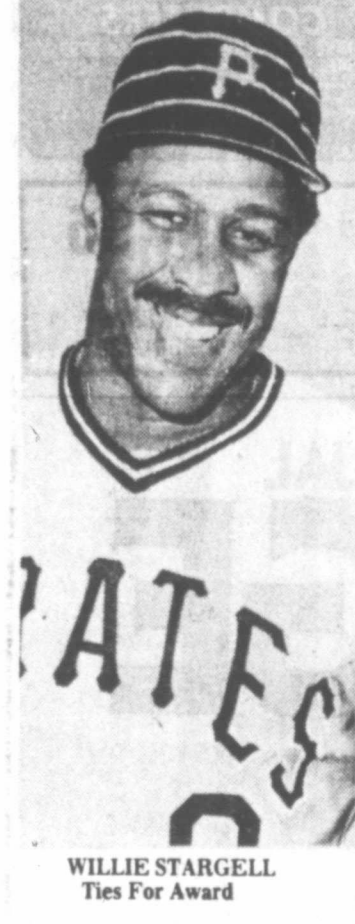

One voter split a fourth place vote, dividing it between the pitching Niekro brother, Houston's Joe and Phil of the Atlanta Braves. Both were 20-game winners last season.

Behind Stargell, Hernandez and Winfield came Montreal third baseman Larry Parrish with 128 points and Knight with 82.

Last year's winner, Dave Parker of Pittsburgh, finished 10th with 56 points.

The closest previous MVP election came in 1947 when Joe DiMaggio of the New York Yankees won the American League award with 202 points to 201 for Ted Williams of the Boston Red Sox.

This year's AL MVP will be announced next week. Previously, the BBWAA had announced Mike Flanagan as the AL Cy Young Award winner and Bruce Sutter as the NL Cy Young winner.

Abilene Cooper Set For Playoff

ABILENE (Special) — Abilene Cooper, the winner of District 5-AAAA, will take on 6-AAAA champion Lewisville in a bi-district football game, Friday, Nov. 16 at Texas Stadium in Irving. Game-time is 8 p.m.

With one game left this season, Cooper, the top-ranked team in the state, owns a 9-0 win-loss record. Lewisville, which has already clinched the playoff berth, stands at 8-1.

teams in The Associated Press Schoolboy Football Poll.

Three of the four leaders scored lopsided victories last week while Kerrville Tivy struggled before finally subduing Fredericksburg 19-13.

Abilene Cooper blanked Midland 35-0, China Spring humbled Lorena, 96-0 and Childress beat Electra 33-3.

While the top-ranked teams scored easy victories, the biggest battle among the lower-ranked teams was a 14-14 deadlock between Spring Klein and Conroe.

Conroe went into the game ranked No. 3 last week and Klein was seventh. Klein won the game on first downs to take charge of the district race. Conroe dropped to No. 7 this week and Klein moved up to fifth.

There were two losers among the 2A ranks. Hays Consolidated was upset by Boerne 24-14 and Kenedy fell to No. 5 Hallettsville, 21-0. Both teams dropped out of the top 10 and were replaced by Refugio at No. 9 and Van, No. 10.

Haskell, ranked No. 2 a week ago, dropped to sixth on the Class A list after it was tied by Quanah 21-21. Pettus meanwhile assumed sole possession of the No. 10 spot after a 40-0 victory over Charlotte.

Wolfe City, tied for 10th last week, defeated Whitehouse 7-6 but did not retain its position in the poll.

Bryan, which has won eight games since losing its season opener, again narrowly trailed Lubbock Monterey for the No. 10 position in Class 4A by a 17-14 point total.

Only four teams other than the top 10, received any votes in Class 3A including Jacksonville, Falfurrias, Brownsville Pace, Austin Westlake and Cuero.

In other 2A voting, Port Isabel with 12 points and Kenedy with 11 were Van's closest rivals for the No. 10 ranking.

Seagraves Nears Top In Schoolboy Balloting

By United Press International
One newcomer made it into the Class AAAA top 10 and there were two changes in Class AA this week but the Texas high school football leaders in all four classifications remained unchanged in the 10th weekly ratings released today by United Press International.

Abilene Cooper continued to dominate Class AAAA. Paris topped Class AAA. Breckenridge led Class AA and China Spring paced Class A in the poll of sportswriters and broadcasters who regularly cover Texas high school sports.

Conroe, undefeated and ranked second in the Class AAAA poll last week before a 21-21 tie with Spring Klein, dropped out of the ratings with one week remaining in the regular season. Klein had an advantage in first downs for the game and will advance to the playoffs if it wins its regular season finale Friday at Humble.

The Tigers were replaced by Lewisville, a team certain to make the playoffs, in the top 10. Making the elite list in Class AA were Port Isabel (9-0) and Barbers Hill (8-1), replacing Hays Consolidated and Refugio.

Abilene Cooper received all 17 first place votes and a maximum 170 points for the fourth straight week. Paris had 10 firsts and 159 points in Class AAA. Breckenridge polled 10 firsts and 161 points in Class AA, and China Spring had 13 firsts and 165 points.

The voting was closest, as it has been all season, in Class AA. Defending state champion Wylie moved into second with two firsts and 138 points, Pittsburg was third with three firsts and 137 points, and Childress was fourth with one first and 136 points. Fifth-rated Hallettsville received the other first place vote and had 104 points.

TEXAS STADIUM PARKING — Because of recent parking problems at SMU football games at Texas Stadium in Irving, the Texas Tech ticket office currently has stadium parking passes on sale. The cost of a stadium parking pass is $2 and can be purchased at the ticket office on the north end of Jones Stadium today and Thursday between 8:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m. SMU officials are urging fans who plan to attend Saturday's Tech-SMU game to leave for the game two and a half hours before kickoff. The game will kick off at 1:30 p.m. Tech will try to break a two-game SWC losing streak against the Ponies.

Little Proves Himself With Sparkling Game

DONNIE LITTLE
SWC Offensive Player Of Week

AUSTIN (AP) — Coach Fred Akers of Texas went on at some length about quarterback Donnie Little's performance against Houston, then summed it up — "the results were on the scoreboard."

Texas ruined Houston's bid for a perfect season with a 21-13 victory in the Astrodome Saturday night as Little scored twice and directed a 27-yard drive capped by A.J. "Jam" Jones' touchdown run.

For his performance, Little, a 200-pound sophomore, was named the Associated Press' offensive player-of-the-week in Southwest Conference football.

Texas cornerback Derrick Hatchett, who intercepted two Houston passes, was voted the outstanding SWC defensive player.

The Houston game was an amazing turnaround for Little. He had been pulled from the Texas Tech game the previous week after Akers said he became "rattled." There were questions whether he would remain Texas' No. 1 quarterback.

"It (the Houston game) was a pressured-packed game," said Akers. "We required execution, which he (Little) provided; we required leadership, which he provided; and we required determination, which he provided. His running was good, his execution was good and his passing was good."

On Texas' first touchdown, climaxing a 77-yard drive, Little faked a pitchout and darted between would-be tacklers for a five-yard touchdown run. "Donnie really did a number on that end, then kept inside," Akers recalled.

Little also scored on a weaving, fourth down 15-yard run with 1 minute 20 seconds remaining to clinch the victory.

"That was strong running, and what started it was a great double-team block by Craig Rider and Lawrence Sampton," said Akers.

Little had 38 yards on 15 carries and completed seven of 12 passes for 75 yards and had three dropped. He was not intercepted.

"Little is one of the premier athletes in the nation," said Houston Coach Bill Yeoman.

"I think I proved to a lot of people what I can do," said Little.

NBA ROUNDUP

Gervin, Spurs Whip Warriors

By The Associated Press
George Gervin poured in 47 points and James Silas keyed San Antonio's overtime surge Tuesday night as the Spurs slipped past Golden State 131-127 in a National Basketball Association game.

The Warriors jumped out to a 125-121 lead with about three minutes remaining in the overtime. But San Antonio's guard twosome, Gervin and Silas, went to work.

Gervin had four points and Silas added two key baskets and a game-clinching assist as San Antonio outscored Golden State 10-2 to finish the game.

Silas, who finished with 21 points, put San Antonio ahead for good with a 15-foot turn-around jumper with 38 seconds remaining and flicked a pass to a

Bullets 111, Knicks 107

Phil Chenier scored 22 points, including two baskets down the stretch, as the Washington Bullets held off a New York Knicks bid to beat the Knicks 111-107 in a National Basketball Association game Tuesday night.

Chenier, starting his seventh game at guard in place of the injured Kevin Grevey, hit his first five shots from the field and scored 16 points in the opening period as the Bullets raced to a 35-22 lead. Washington stretched that margin to 47-30 midway through the second quarter.

Rockets 128, Bulls 127

Moses Malone capped a 45-point, 22-rebound explosion by sinking two free throws with no time remaining to carry the Houston Rockets to a 128-127 National Basketball Association victory Tuesday night over the Chicago Bulls.

Malone, whose previous high game this season was 44 points, grabbed his final rebound with 11 seconds left as David Greenwood's wild shot missed while the 24-second clock ran out.

LCHS GIRLS WIN

The Lubbock Christian High School girls defeated Southland 37-31 here Tuesday night. The Eagles trailed 26-18 entering the fourth quarter but came back. Freshman Kristy Logan scored eight points in the final period and Emily Smith had four straight free throws to lead the comeback.

Eighth Grade Title At Stake

Atkins and Matthews will meet for the eighth grade city championship in football at 4 p.m. Thursday at Chapman Field.

Atkins is 7-0 overall, while Matthews posts a 4-2-2 mark. Atkins averages 25 points per game while allowing opponents an average of four.

"This is what we've worked for all year," said Atkins coach Larry Hyer, "so I think we'll be ready."

Matthews is coached by Bill Smith.

Brooks, Romero In Big Match

Killer Tim Brooks meets Ricky Romero in the main event on the pro wrestling card at 8 tonight at the Fair Park Coliseum.

In other matches, The Lawman battles Karl Krupp; Gypsy Joe tangles with Gary Young; Super Destroyer and James Dillon wrestle Larry Lane and Gin Caroso in a tag-team event.

WESTERN HILLS ROLLS

BLEDSOE (Special) — The Western Hills Baptist Academy basketball team knocked off Bledsoe 54-45 here Tuesday night. Jeff Shadden had 17 points for WHBA, now 2-3, while Bledsoe, 1-4, was paced by Rusty Trull's 16.

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

TEXAS WHEAT PRODUCERS, IN THE INTEREST of national unity, Tuesday urged President Carter to halt sales of wheat to Iran if he determines such a move would further national security.

"Since colonial days, farmers have proven themselves to be Americans first and farmers second," said a spokesman for the Texas Wheat Producers Association.

It was in a continuation of this spirit, the spokesman said, that the association relayed the message by telephone to Carter. The message was delivered through Dr. Lynn Daft, the president's agricultural adviser on the White House domestic affairs and policy staff.

Bill Nelson of Amarillo, executive vice president of the TWPA, presented the message on behalf of Otis Harman of Tulsa, association president.

THE MESSAGE FOLLOWS: "Mr. President, farmer-members of the Texas Wheat Producers Association have strong policies against using food as a diplomatic weapon and food embargoes as an economic tool, except in the case of national security.

"Inasmuch as Texas and U. S. wheat has continued to be sold to Iran as a balance of payment medium to offset oil imports, this is to let you know that Texas wheat producers, in the interest of a show of strength in national unity, would support you in a decision to now stop wheat sales to Iran, and in fact to urge you to do so if you should determine that it is in the interest of national security."

The TWPA spokesman said U. S. wheat shipped to Iran during the last marketing year totaled about 35 million bushels. He said this made Iran a rather substantial buyer, ranking close to the top 10 countries in U. S. wheat imports.

U. S. wheat shipments to Iran so far this marketing year have totaled about 8.8 million bushels, he said. While down from last year, he said, the shipments still represent a significant amount of wheat and are the largest to any Middle East country except Egypt.

MEANWHILE, AN IRANIAN CARGO SHIP, the Arya Shad, was scheduled to arrive in Baltimore early this week, but longshoremen there said they would not unload the vessel if Americans were still being held hostage in the U. S. Embassy in Tehran.

John Kopp, vice president of the International Longshoremen's Association, said union workers will not unload or load any Iranian ship until the U. S. hostages are released.

Kopp said the boycott began Friday when he received a call from ILA national president Thomas Gleason instructing him to follow the lead of New Jersey longshoremen, who refused last week to handle any Iranian cargo.

The entire ILA will honor the boycott, Kopp said. The Arya Shad was carrying a cargo of building materials and machinery.

Longshoremen and farmers at times have had differences. But it would seem they also can have a common purpose in an international crisis when external forces threaten Americans and attempt, as the president put it, "to force unacceptable demands on our country."

FRIONA INDUSTRIES, INC., NOTED Tuesday that the number of cattle on feed and those available for placement in feedyards nationwide are below year-earlier levels.

These, the High Plains-based company said, "are good indications that beef prices could go higher and the marketing of grain-fed cattle should remain profitable."

The company also said it has agreed to acquire Village Packing Co. in exchange for 635,000 of its shares. Friona's shares closed Monday at 7 1/4.

Friona Industries said its shareholders will be asked to approve the proposed transaction at the annual meeting in December. Village Packing, based in Columbus, Ohio, is the largest supplier of hamburger meat to Wendy's International, Inc.

SUPPORT FOR CROP INSURANCE legislation reportedly is being developed within the House Agriculture Committee leadership through reaching agreement in controversial areas, and the measure may come up Thursday or Friday on the House floor.

Grain and cotton commodity groups have continued to seek a two-year continuation of disaster coverage, at the producer's option, to allow additional time for the new program to be phased in.

Private insurance groups also have sought amendments to protect their interests in writing fire and hail coverage.

The legislation has been a priority item for the Carter administration.

LATE LOCAL AND COMMISSION HOUSE profit taking added to a technical sell-off Tuesday as nearby cotton futures ended an active session 50 to 75 points lower in nearby.

The market collapse followed gains on speculative buying of up to 130 points in December and 98 points in March, floor brokers said. December lost 75 points on the day to close at 68.45 cents, March dipped 50 points to end at 70.22, and May declined 57 points to settle at 71.56.

A wave of commission house and local buying shortly after the opening moved prices higher in hectic activity, brokers said. Estimated volume was 12,050 contracts.

The market commitments report released prior to the opening showed speculative longs at the close of last week at 66.1 percent, up 5.2 percent from the previous week, and speculative shorts at 48.3 percent, down 2.2 percent. This represented a considerable shift of 7.4 percent.

Trade longs were at 23.8 percent, down 3.3 percent, and trade shorts were at 42 percent, up 4.5 percent. Thus the trade had been selling and getting out of long positions.

The number of speculators and the percentage of their holdings probably increased Monday, when a major upward move was accompanied by a rise of 984 contracts in the open interest. This brought open interest to a new high of 46,135 contracts.

A NEW SUPPLY-DEMAND REPORT released after the close showed the U. S. Department of Agriculture now expects 1979-80 exports to total 6.8 million bales, up 300,000 from last month's projection.

Sales are expected by private analysts to exceed that by a significant margin and could be even greater were it not for cotton flow-shipment problems. Physical limitations on the movement of cotton, including compress bottlenecks in Texas, may prevent sales from reaching their full potential, however, and leave questions on precisely how much actually can be shipped before the marketing year ends next July 31.

Exports last season totaled 6.2 million bales. The USDA estimated domestic usage at 6.2 million bales, unchanged from a month ago but down from 6.4 million last season. Despite last week's increase in the crop estimate, the carryover projection was reduced 100,000 bales from last month, putting it at 5.6 million bales, due to the bigger export shipments now foreseen. The carryover last Aug. 1 was 4 million bales. Micronaire discounts in the Lubbock spot quotations widened 100 points for 3.2 and lower and 35 points for 3.3-3.4.

Tech Agricultural Sciences Dean Named

Dr. Robert C. Albin has been appointed associate dean and director of research for the Texas Tech University College of Agricultural Sciences.

The appointment was announced by Dean Samuel E. Curl. Albin will succeed Dr. A. Max Lennon, who has been named chairman of the Department of Animal Husbandry at the University of Missouri effective Jan. 15. Albin has been chairman of the Department of Animal Science at Texas Tech University.

Curl commended Lennon for his "splendid contributions" to the college through his direction and coordination of its research program.

During Albin's more than 15 years as a member of the Texas Tech faculty, Curl said he "has compiled an outstanding record in research, teaching, administration and public service activities."

"His broad agricultural background, academic experience and his contacts with industry will be of significant benefit in the conduct of his new responsibilities."

Curl said a search for a new chairman of the Department of Animal Science will begin immediately.

Albin, a native of Beaver City, Okla., earned degrees at Texas Tech and the University of Nebraska. His major research interests have been in beef cattle nutrition with a major interest in the areas of ruminant digestion and nutrient metabolism of beef cattle. He has also engaged in studies of energy and nitrogen utilization of beef cattle, sorghum evaluation and cattle feedlot waste management.

He is author or co-author of more than 80 technical papers. He is a member of the American Society of Animal Science and the honorary societies of Alpha Zeta, Gamma Sigma Delta, Phi Kappa Phi and Sigma Xi.

Albin was selected "Outstanding Teacher in the College of Agricultural Sciences" for 1973 and for the fall semester 1974. He was selected as an Outstanding Educator in America in 1972 and was presented an AMOCO Distinguished Teaching Award in 1974.

He is listed in "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities," "Who's Who in American Men and Women of Science" and "Who's Who in the South and Southwest." In 1973 he was named one of the "Outstanding Young Men of America."

He is past president of the Plains Nutrition Council and has represented Texas Tech at numerous local, state and national meetings. He participated in the Second World Congress on Animal Feeding in Madrid in 1972; evaluating Peace Corps cattle programs in Peru in 1973; and evaluating drought conditions in Niger, 1974. He has recently returned from Peru where a Texas Tech team is working through the U.S. Agency for International Development in assisting that country to improve production of small ruminants.

He is a consultant to the feedlot and ranching industries. On campus he has served as sponsor of the Alpha Zeta and

DR. ROBERT C. ALBIN the Block and Bridle Club. Albin grew up in Follett, and was valedictorian of his high school class there.

ABC Retains Highest Ratings Despite CBS Program Surge

NEW YORK (AP) — For the second time in three weeks, CBS' "60 Minutes" had more viewers than any other prime-time television program, but the high rating for the newsmagazine wasn't enough to knock ABC from first place in the networks ratings race. CBS listed seven of the 10 highest-rated programs in the week ending Nov. 11, figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co. showed, though ABC recovered quickly and claimed nine of the Top 20.

NBC, which began the 1979-80 television season by winning the competition twice in the first month, continued to slip. NBC had only two of Nielsen's first 20 shows, both movies: NBC's highest-rated series, "Little House on the Prairie," ranked 23rd. The rating for "60 Minutes" was 23.7. Nielsen says that means of all the homes in the country with television, that percentage saw at least part of the program.

The No. 2 show for the week — "Eight is Enough" — was ABC's, while CBS got the next five, beginning with "M-A-S-H" in third place.

CBS was hurt by heavy representation at the bottom of the ratings — three of the five lowest-rated programs. A CBS special, "Lost Treasure of the Conception," was No. 58 for the week, followed by "Salvage 1" on ABC, NBC's "Eisheid" and two more CBS programs, "California Fever" and "The Horror Show."

ABC's rating for the week as 20.5, with CBS at 18.8 and NBC at 18. The networks say that means in an average prime-time minute during the week, 20.5 percent of the homes in the country were tuned to ABC.

ABC, since the season began the week of Sept. 10-16, has won the ratings competition six times, NBC twice and CBS once. CBS has, nonetheless, improved its standing in the last three weeks, and now trails NBC for the season by less than half of a ratings point.

Here are the week's 10 highest-rated shows:

"60 Minutes," with a rating of 31.1 representing 23.7 million homes, CBS; "Eight is Enough," 27.6 or 21.1 million, ABC; "M-A-S-H," 27 or 20.6 million, "Alice," 26.6 or 20.3 million, "One Day at a Time," 26.5 or 20.2 million, "Archie's Place," 25.1 or 19.2 million, and "The Jeffersons," 24.9 or 19 million, all CBS; "Three's Company," 24.8 or 18.9 million, ABC; "The White Shadow," 23.5 or 17.9 million, CBS, and "Happy Days," 23.4 or 17.8 million, ABC.

Rommel's Son Honorary Egyptian

CAIRO (AP) — Manfred Rommel, son of World War II's famed "Desert Fox," was made an honorary citizen of Cairo Tuesday during a meeting with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat.

Rommel, who is the mayor of Stuttgart, West Germany, arrived here Sunday to join representatives of the former warring nations to honor the dead of the Battle of El-Alamein.

His father, Nazi Germany's Field Marshal Erwin Rommel, lost his first major battle at El-Alamein to Britain's Field Marshal Viscount Bernard Montgomery 37 years ago. It was a turning point of the war.

'Sesame Street' Marking Decade Of Production

NEW YORK (AP) — When "Sesame Street" premiered Nov. 10, 1969 — introducing American tots to Big Bird, the Cookie Monster and bright flashing numbers and alphabets — it revolutionized teaching concepts.

But 10 years later, despite the program's still-growing influence, its creator says, "I don't believe we've done a great deal for television."

"When 'Sesame Street' began, there was one daily network series for children, called 'Captain Kangaroo.' And today," says Joan Ganz Cooney, "there is one daily network series for children, called 'Captain Kangaroo.'"

"We have influenced families and the way people raise their children," she says, "and I'm very proud of the contribution we've made there. But I cannot claim we've changed television."

"Sesame Street" has racked up its successes — including 13 Emmy awards — on public television. The hours of network TV devoted to quality children's programming remain meager.

As "Sesame Street" prepares to open its 11th season on Nov. 26, directors of Children's Television Workshop, which produces the series, can point to:

• A growing audience. A 1971 survey showed viewers aged 2 to 5 watching "Sesame Street" in 7.5 million households. The figure had increased to 9.3 million last year — even as the nation's pre-school population declined. Recent research showed 88 percent of parents of preschoolers said their children watch "Sesame Street."

• Expansion into new parts of the world. "Sesame Street" is shown in 50 countries. Local language editions are produced in West Germany, France and Holland. An Arabic version, "Iftah Ya Simsim," debuted in 12 Middle Eastern countries in October, and "Barrio Sesamo" will premiere in Spain later this year.

• Extension of its teaching approach. Hospitals and day care centers now use the "Sesame Street" formula, and special programs are being developed for the mentally retarded, disabled and deaf.

"Sesame Street" was designed to teach letter and number skills to preschool children, primarily disadvantaged city youngsters. Over the years, the curriculum has broadened to include such concepts as health, cultural diversity, bilingual skills and, recently, women's roles and ecology.

The program made familiar faces out of Jim Henson's Muppets — Bert and Ernie, Oscar the Grouch and the aforementioned Big Bird and Cookie Monster — long before Kermit the frog and Miss Piggy won their own network showcase.

"Sesame Street" was built on techniques common to TV commercials — short, speedy segments — and that became a major objection: critics said the show discouraged development of a child's attention span.

"It is my fixed belief," says Mrs. Cooney, 49, CTW's president since 1970, "that children live in a television environment, and if 'Laugh-In' is the most popular show of the day — as it was when we began — then you had better realize that and adapt yourself to it.

"Then things slowed down, and 'Sesame Street' slowed down with them," she says. "Our pacing is slower now, and the segments are longer. When we started, our researchers said 2-year-olds could take a half-hour of the program. Now they say the same age group can watch the full hour."

An Arizona native, Mrs. Cooney has worked as a newspaper reporter, a TV publicist, a public television documentary producer, and a consultant on preschool education and TV for the Carnegie Corp. In 1967 she helped found CTW to produce "Sesame Street."

"I think we've all lived it so utterly intensely over the years," says Mrs. Cooney, "that today it's hard to separate my personal life from my work life, and I don't try."

CTW helps support "Sesame Street" and its other projects through the sale of toys and other materials inspired by the program.

In 1969, the show was produced for $6.9 million, all of it from grants and public funding. The budget for its upcoming season is $8.3 million. Almost half — $3.9 million — is CTW-generated from sale of its "Sesame Street" products.

"On balance," says Mrs. Cooney, "I would say the financial atmosphere for us is worse than it was in the late '60s, when there was a good deal of emphasis on education, especially of those children of impoverished circumstances.

"Vietnam and, now, inflation, have changed that. Everyone is saying, 'Do what you can with what you've got, and good luck.'"

CTW has made several forays into commercial television. CBS, for instance, last season broadcast an animated CTW production of "The Lion, The Witch and The Wardrobe," from C.S. Lewis' "Chronicles of Narnia."

The show won an Emmy, as did "Christmas on Sesame Street," a special produced for the Public Broadcasting Service. Another PBS special, "Sesame Street in Puerto Rico," will air later this month.

"I find the networks are interested, with reservations, in our work," Mrs. Cooney says. "... When they feel the heat, they'll call."

TEN YEARS ON THE AIR — The creator of "Sesame Street," Joan Ganz Cooney, here surrounded by the show's featured players, says that after ten years on the air, and despite the program's still growing influence, she doesn't believe she's done a great deal for television. (AP Laserphoto)

Actress Researched Role Of Teenage Alcoholic

NEW YORK (AP) — Maia Danziger went to a meeting of Alcoholics Anonymous, visited a halfway house for troubled youngsters and toured rock clubs notorious for serving drinks to the underaged, all in preparation for "The Late Great Me: Story of a Teen-age Alcoholic."

"I don't know how to do it any other way," says the New York-born actress. "I guess it's panic if I don't feel prepared."

"I want to understand my character, to know why she's the way she is. Doing it without knowing those things would be like writing a paper for school without researching the subject first."

Miss Danziger plays Geri Peters, a 15-year-old student with a drinking problem and the lead character in the "ABC Afterschool Specials" presentation at 5-6:30 p.m. CST today.

"The Late Great Me" is a half-hour longer than any previous program in the "Afterschool Specials" series that began in 1972, and in Miss Danziger's view, that added emphasis is important.

"I had no idea how serious a problem teen-age drinking was until I started doing my research," she says, "and I'm pretty aware. I mean, I read the papers and watch the news."

"I felt it was important to play Geri as realistically as possible. I didn't want the kids who see this to feel removed from what they're watching. If they don't say, 'Yeah, I know that girl, and that's what it's like,' then I didn't really do my job."

"And it's not a pretty story," Miss Danziger says. "It's raw."

Tony Lovar, who directed "The Late Great Me," and Charley Lang, Miss Danziger's costar, helped with the first-person research.

Maia Danziger — it's pronounced MY-ah, from the Greek goddess of spring and growth — has, at 23, already established a considerable reputation as an actress.

"Ever since I was 12," she says, "I wanted to be just like Haley Mills."

Daughter of a musician-father and artist-mother, she first performed while a student at Manhattan's Hunter College High School and was awarded a scholarship to the Yale School of Drama, which she passed up to study at New York University's School of the Arts.

She appeared in "Waltz of the Toreadors" on Broadway and in public TV's "Best of Families" series and recently returned from Berlin, where she made "The Magician of Lublin" with Alan Arkin, a film based on Isaac Bashevis Singer's novel. The movie opened around the country this month.

"How's all that happened ... that I got lucky?" she asks, in answer to the question. "What's happened for me is that each job I've had was the right sort of job for the level I was at. In each case, I've been forced to overcome some sort of problem as an actress, to stretch a new muscle."

"They called me to replace another actress just before they shot 'The Magician,' and if Alan had been anything but a terrific human being as well as an outstanding actor, I probably would have been frightened out of my mind."

In the film, she plays Arkin's magical assistant and mistress.

Off-camera, Miss Danziger hardly appears the prime candidate to play a teen-age drinker. Married to a writer, she works on short stories herself when her schedule permits, and plays from time to time with an all-woman calypso band. She recently returned from a trip to India.

"I feel really strongly the more you know of the world, the more you have to give as an artist," she says. "And I love my work, a whole lot."

Stock Mart In Decline

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market slipped into a gradual but steady decline Tuesday, giving up some of the ground it gained in the two preceding sessions.

Blue chip issues posted the day's most notable declines. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up 24.32 points in the last two sessions, dropped back 7.85 to 814.08.

New York Stock Exchange volume increased to 29.24 million shares from 26.60 million Monday, when many investors were taking a Veterans Day holiday.

Traders had responded favorably Monday to President Carter's order that oil imports from Iran be suspended immediately.

Experts expected the action to have a relatively small impact on energy supplies in this country. And given the emotional mood engendered by tensions with Iran, some observers speculated that Americans might respond well to Carter's accompanying call for intensified efforts to conserve energy.

But by Tuesday some investors seemed inclined to step back to await further developments in the Iranian situation.

GM announced a program of cash incentives to dealers covering many of its 1979 model cars.

No Odd-Even Plan, Says Texas Energy Adviser

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas motorists will not go back to odd-even gasoline rationing because of the Iranian situation, even if Californians do, Texas' chief energy adviser said Tuesday.

But the odd-even day purchase of gasoline may come later, Ed Vetter, chief of the Texas Energy and Natural Resources Council, told reporters.

California Gov. Edmund G. Brown ordered reinstatement of odd-even gasoline sales Monday after President Jimmy Carter put a ban on Iranian oil imports. Officials said Iran has been furnishing 4 percent of the U.S. crude oil consumption.

"Our November allocation for gasoline is 1 percent below October but we are still getting about 93 percent of what we had last year at this time," Vetter said.

The allocation amounts to 755 million gallons of gasoline that major refineries plan to deliver to distributors for service stations.

Vetter said he has had reports of "some short lines at gasoline stations, but most of these are majors that are selling at discount prices. Motorists shop around and if they can get it eight cents cheaper they will go there."

Vetter said the Iranian shutdown did not mean an automatic loss of capability of U.S. firms to buy foreign crude. The crude that has been sold to the U.S. by Iran may be sold to some other country, which might in turn release more oil for purchase to the U.S., Vetter said. He added it probably will cost more.

He said his office is watching the fuel situation in Texas "carefully and continually."

Last June, Gov. Bill Clements ordered gasoline sold on alternate days according to the odd or even numerals in a motor vehicle license. He also set a $6 minimum purchase price for gasoline to discourage "tank topping."

Rationing applied mostly to the Houston and Dallas-Fort Worth areas but finally was authorized for 17 counties.

On Sept. 2, Clements discontinued the odd-even system but retained the $6 minimum purchase until Sept. 28.

Clements said there was no improvement in the national availability of oil, gasoline or diesel, but there was a "better supply-demand situation due to less driving and no tank-topping," plus an end to the high-driving vacation months.

"This nation continues to have a major energy crisis, and Texans should keep this in mind," Clements said in September. "There is a distinct possibility that we will be faced with reinstating this program next spring, and I will do so if the situation warrants."

Californians Prepare For Odd-Even Sales

By The Associated Press
California residents prepared for odd-even gasoline sales again, but officials in other parts of the country generally said they had no immediate plans to impose rationing.

An order signed by Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. on Tuesday reimposes odd-even restrictions, effective at 12:01 a.m. Monday, in the 14 California counties where sales were rationed earlier this year, as well as in San Francisco. It provides for odd-even sales in the other counties two weeks later.

Brown, who is seeking the Democratic presidential nomination, said he wanted to make sure California is prepared for any shortages resulting from President Carter's embargo of oil imported from Iran.

Brown said his action was "for those who don't believe there is an emergency. I would say they are asleep. I would say this program is rather modest. The specter of gas rationing is getting close."

He said the odd-even plan may last "perhaps until rapid transit is installed or the electric battery is discovered..."

A top U.S. energy official on Tuesday urged the Northeast and other regions to adopt emergency measures. U.S. Energy Undersecretary John M. Deutch said, "All states are going to have to put into effect some emergency conservation measures."

Speaking at a state Conference on Energy Research and Development at Florida A&M University, he said, "Florida should have an odd-even plan or minimum purchase. You're going to have a shortfall in six weeks."

But Florida Gov. Bob Graham called the warning "premature" and said Florida would adopt a "wait-and-see attitude."

Other governors and state officials checked by The Associated Press said they were studying the situation, but saw no need for action yet.

"We think it is way too early to determine what impact the Iranian situation will have on Kansas," said Bill Hoch, press secretary to Gov. John Carlin. He said, however, that the state was looking at an odd-even sales plan — just in case.

New Jersey Gov. Brendan T. Byrne met with the state's energy commission, Joel Jacobson, to discuss the situation. Officials said there were no present plans to reimpose the rationing program in effect last summer. Minimum purchase requires to prevent "topping off" remain.

The office of Virginia Gov. John Dalton surveyed local officials in the northern part of the state to see if they wanted to go back to odd-even sales. Paul G. Edwards, Dalton's press aide, said early results were inconclusive, but added: "We're ready to go at a moment's notice if they want it."

Paul Critchlow, press secretary for Pennsylvania Gov. Dick Thornburgh, said: "We have no plans as of this moment to reimpose odd-even gasoline rationing... We do intend to monitor the impact of the loss of oil supplies and stand ready to reimpose whatever controls may be necessary."

Officials in New Hampshire, Texas, Oklahoma, Tennessee and Montana also indicated that they were watching the situation, but were taking no immediate action.

Maryland Gov. Harry Hughes told state police to step up enforcement of minimum purchase requirements for gasoline. The requirements remained in effect after odd-even restrictions were lifted Sept. 30.

Connecticut Gov. Ella Grasso said she has no plans to reimpose odd-even rationing. Her press secretary, Larry deBear, said it was hoped that enforcement of minimum purchase requirement would prevent "topping off" and ensure adequate gasoline supplies.

Legitimate Fuel Saver Finds Going Rough

WASHINGTON (AP) — The inventor of a gasoline-saving device told a House subcommittee Tuesday he was having trouble selling it despite high marks from government testers.

"Having a fuel-saving product that works, even in the era of shortages and high fuel costs, is not a guaranteed road to success," said Norman Halem, of Cocoa, Fla.

Halem suggested that action is needed to "segregate legitimate energy-saving products from the world of gas-saving gimmicks."

Halem's invention simply turns off the automobile air conditioner when the car is accelerating, thereby cutting the load on the engine.

The inventor said tests by the Environmental Protection Agency showed his device, which costs $15, could improve fuel mileage on air conditioned cars between 6 percent and 13 percent. The Department of Transportation, he said, estimated the potential saving at 9 percent.

But Halem said his product has not become a big seller, even though two large merchandizers are offering it for sale. Automakers also have not rushed to purchase his device for installation on new cars, he said.

"Every time a consumer protection group warns the public against gas saver gimmicks, I am pushed back a notch."

Energy Secretary Says Public More Aware Of Problems

NEW YORK (AP) — Recent events in Iran have reinforced growing awareness among Americans that the United States faces serious energy problems, Energy Secretary Charles W. Duncan said Tuesday.

"There is a growing, though belated, recognition of the reality of the problem, and the magnitude of the job we face," Duncan told about 2,500 oilmen at the closing session an American Petroleum Institute meeting.

"This recognition is growing gradually and it is, no doubt, reinforced by events like those in Iran and the president's announcement of a cutoff of oil imports from Iran, he said.

Duncan said President Carter's decision to halt Iranian oil imports would help both in keeping the issue of oil out of negotiations for the release of the hostages at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran and in reducing U.S. dependence on imported oil.

"To disabuse anyone from thinking that dependence on Iranian crude oil was impeding our actions, the president decided to take this action," Duncan said.

"It was right in the longer term, too," he said. "Discontinuing the importation of 700,000 barrels of Iranian crude oil (daily) is ... an important step in a direction we must move, and a bold example for the rest of the consuming world."

Duncan echoed Carter's plea to Americans to conserve energy.

The President's action does not necessarily mean, though, that the United States will get 700,000 barrels of oil less a day, analysts say. Rather, the amount lost because of the ban on Iranian imports — about 4 percent of U.S. supply — probably will be made up by purchases of oil from other producers.

CHINA

NOTEBOOK

William S. Morris III, president of Morris Communications Corp., parent company of The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal and his wife Sissie, recently returned from a 16-day trip to the People's Republic of China as part of an Associated Press exchange mission. The informative trip left Morris, a director of The Associated Press, an enthusiastic "China-watcher," as well as giving him an optimistic attitude toward the future relations between the People's Republic of China and the United States. A detailed account of the official visit will be published in a special 32-page supplement to the A-J on Nov. 18. Watch for it!
