

Carter Vows Hostages' Freedom, Warns Iran Crisis Not Near End

Regime Blasted As Uncivilized

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter said Wednesday he is grimly resolved to win the freedom of American hostages in Iran, but he warned the American people that "our determination may be even more sorely tried" in days to come.

"There is no recognized religious faith on Earth which condones kidnapping," Carter said.

"There is no recognized religious faith which condones blackmail. There certainly is no religious faith on Earth which condones the sustained abuse of innocent people."

Carter told the nation the 49 hostages held at the U.S. Embassy are being kept "in inhuman and degrading conditions."

The president said his administration "will persist in our efforts until every American has been freed, and again warned the Iranian government of "grave consequences" if the American captives are harmed.

"Claims Ring Hollow" — Any claims raised by government officials of Iran will ring hollow while they keep innocent people bound, abused and threatened," he said.

At the same time, he made it clear he was reserving strong measures against Iran if the hostages are harmed.

"The United States has other options available to it — but I think it would not be well advised to discuss them."

He said he could not lay down a deadline because to threaten military action at this point "might result in the harm or death of the hostages."

Carter took full responsibility for admitting the deposed shah of Iran for cancer treatment. And he said the ex-ruler would decide when to leave the United States.

U.S. Refuses Demand — The militants who seized the embassy have demanded that the United States extradite the shah so that he can be tried as a war criminal in Iran. The United States has flatly refused the demand.

Carter said the decision to admit the shah was made "without pressure from anyone," including former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, and that the medical treatment the shah is receiving in a New York hospital was necessary to save his life.

"I have no regrets about it, no apologies to make," Carter said, "because it did help to save a man's life and was compatible with the principles of our country."

Kissinger has been accused by long-time U.S. diplomat George Ball and others of pressuring the administration to grant the shah a temporary visa. Kissinger

LINCOLN GLASSES SOLD

NEW YORK (AP) — A pair of black enameled opera glasses used by Abraham Lincoln the night he was assassinated at Ford's Theater was sold Wednesday at auction for $24,000, an auction house spokeswoman said. A collection of Lincoln artifacts that belonged to the late Roy P. Crocker, a Los Angeles banker, were put on the block in what the Sotheby Parke Bernet auction firm said was the best sale of articles related to the nation's 16th president in years.

257 Killed In Antarctica

AUCKLAND, New Zealand (AP) — An Air New Zealand DC-10 carrying 257 persons on an adventurous flight to the bottom of the world slammed into a volcano Wednesday on the ice-bound coast of Antarctica, apparently killing all aboard. It was one of history's worst air disasters.

The 237 passengers on the sightseeing flight included 20 Americans, according to a list of victims released by the airline early today. Airline officials initially reported 12 Americans aboard.

A Navy C-130 search plane from the U.S. Antarctica base at McMurdo Sound spotted the wreckage in the sunlit polar midnight about 1,500 feet up the slope of Mount Erebus, a smoldering, 12,400-foot peak that is one of the world's tallest active volcanoes.

Three New Zealand mountain climbers were dropped by helicopter at the crash site Thursday and reported seeing no sign of life. The tail portion of the giant plane was intact but empty, they said. A search party was on the way overland to the foot of the mountain.

Murray Reported Safe — (Texas Tech University has learned from the National Science Foundation that Dr. Grover E. Murray, former Tech president, was not on the crashed DC-10. Murray, now a professor at the university, is in Antarctica for a flight over the South Pole on the 50 anniversary of Adm. Richard Byrd's historic flight.)

A C-141 Starlifter that took part in the search earlier had flown Sen. Harry F. Byrd Jr. of Virginia to McMurdo Sound

Physicians Say Shah Can Leave

NEW YORK (AP) — Doctors told the deposed Shah of Iran on Wednesday that his gall stone operation was a success and he is free to travel, a doctor and officials at New York Hospital said.

"We told him he can leave any time he wants," said one of the shah's physicians, who asked not to be identified.

"At this point, we have done everything medically possible, but I stress, at this point," the doctor added.

But another doctor involved in the case said it was unlikely the shah would travel before a drainage tube was removed from his abdomen, since to do so would risk "big league trouble" such as infection.

Once the tube was removed, he said, patients are "pretty well able to get around." The tube could be removed in 24 to 48 hours, he said.

The shah's public relations office in Cuernavaca, Mexico, said Wednesday that Mohammad Reza Pahlavi would return to his retreat there within 10 days.

In the shah's homeland, militant students are holding 49 American hostages in the U.S. Embassy, demanding the United States return the former monarch to Iran for trial.

A statement issued by the hospital said the specialist who flew to New York on Monday to extract the gall stone, Dr. H. Joachim Burhenne of Vancouver, B.C., was leaving Wednesday after "post-procedure studies indicated the extraction was successful."

"During the next few days, clinical conditions permitting, the tube remaining in the (bile) duct will be removed. Closure of the tract usually occurs spontaneously two or three days after the tube is removed," the statement said.

The statement did not specify when the shah would leave.

Doctors familiar with the special procedure used to extract the gall stone have said many patients do not need to be hospitalized either before or after it is done.

Burhenne removed the gall stone through a tract formed by a flexible See DOCTORS Page 14

Khomeini Stiffens Stand, Fires Foreign Minister

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini replaced his acting foreign minister Wednesday in what appeared to be a toughening of Iran's line in the confrontation with the United States. The Moslem militants holding the U.S. Embassy said Iran must not take part in a United Nations debate on the crisis.

In Washington, President Carter declared anew he is determined to win the release of the 49 American hostages at the Tehran embassy through peaceful means. But, addressing a group of diplomats, he sounded a tough note as well.

"The harming of innocent people is condemned by every law of mankind and God.... It's extremely important that mob violence be contained and that international terrorism not be permitted to reign."

Abolhassan Bani Sadr was relieved of his foreign affairs post and replaced by Revolutionary Council member Sadegh Ghotbzadeh after the embassy militants denounced Bani Sadr's plans to participate in a meeting this weekend of the U.N. Security Council on the Iran situation.

Militants Rap U.N. — The militants, echoing Khomeini's own rejection of any Security Council decision, condemned the U.N. body as the "Satanic Council" and "Carter's mouthpiece" and once again refused to consider diplomatic attempts to end the 25-day-old standoff.

The United States "must return the fugitive criminal (the shah) and all the wealth he has plundered," their statement said. "... otherwise the trial of the hostages will be a certainty." They accuse the embassy staff members of being "spies" who should be tried for their alleged crimes.

The militants and Khomeini have repeatedly rebuffed Bani Sadr in his conciliatory efforts to find some solution to the crisis short of immediate extradition of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi to Iran.

Extradition Demanded — Ghotbzadeh, who is also director of Iranian radio and television, has been uncompromising on the question of the exiled monarch's extradition.

But the new foreign affairs chief, whose appointment was announced after he, Bani Sadr and other members of the ruling Revolutionary Council met with Khomeini, told the Iranian news agency Pars that it was still undecided whether Iran will be represented at Saturday's scheduled Security Council meeting in New York.

Outside the embassy, meanwhile, Iranian Moslems staged new anti-American demonstrations Wednesday and paraded with Islamic banners in preparation for the highly emotional Islamic holy days of Tasua and Ashura, Thursday and Friday.

Trio Slain Including Man, 106

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Four persons, including a 106-year-old man, were gunned down Wednesday as they arrived at a church for a birthday party for a century-old friend, police said. Three died and a fourth was critically injured.

"It looks like it was some sort of a madman with a gun," said Leon Bivens, lay leader at Haven Memorial United Methodist Church.

One of the dead was Moses Beckett, 106, said the Rev. Roderick Clark, church pastor. He said the party was for Beckett's 104-year-old sister, Ella Palmer.

The shootings occurred on the street just outside the church.

Not Apprehended — "I didn't see what happened but persons who looked out the door when they heard the shooting told me they saw a man indiscriminately shooting," Clark said. "They didn't know who he was. He hasn't yet been apprehended."

A spokesman at St. Joseph's Hospital said Shade Sherman, 63, and Althea Dunmark, 65, also died from their wounds. Edward Durrah, 75, was reported in critical condition with multiple gunshot wounds.

Homicide Inspector Joseph Golden said the gunman drove up to the church, got out of his car and fired several shots from a handgun. He then fled with the weapon, Golden said, fired several more shots and sped away in the car.

Blames Church — A woman at the church who refused to give her name said she had heard "the guy who did the shooting said he was doing it because the church people 'was the cause of his mother being in a hospital.'"

Clark described Mrs. Palmer "as one of the oldest and grandest ladies of our community."

She turned 104 on Saturday, but the congregation decided to toast her at a special party Wednesday after a prayer service. About 35 elderly people were inside the building when the gunfire broke out.

Mrs. Palmer was feted at a party by neighbors Saturday. Besides the cakes, pies and songs, they gave her a special gift. They named a small park after her. The Ella Palmer Park, a small patch of ground with two cherry trees and a couple of picnic tables, will be reserved for senior citizens.

"Thank the Lord for life," she told a well-wisher then.

Lester Pinkett, a church custodian, said he heard the shots Wednesday. "I was inside running an afternoon worship. I heard the shots, but I thought it was a car backfiring," he said.

Goodfellows' Mail Filled With Warmth

"GOD BLESS you a million times for all this things you do for these children and also mine. Thank you and the people who send money and donations for so many years now."

The letter from a mother to Chief Goodfellow says it all — the reason for giving time and money so that many Lubbock children may not miss Christmas.

Dozens of Goodfellows band together, anonymously, each year to put in many hours of free labor so that every child, who might miss a visit from Santa, will get a little Christmas cheer in a Goodfellow sack.

By the hundreds Lubbock folks send in donations — some as memorials, some in lieu of Christmas cards or presents at Christmas parties, and many just to help out.

Combined, the efforts spell Christmas for thousands of Lubbock children each year.

This Christmas, an estimated 10,000 youngsters, 14 and under, will get a toy plus some fruit and candy from the Goodfellows.

Anyone knowing of such children should fill out the coupon and mail it to: Chief Goodfellow, P.O. Box 491, Lubbock, Texas 79408

Contributions toward the $20,000 needed to fill this year's sacks may be mailed to the same address.

More Clear, Chilly Weather Expected For Area

Wintry weather appears to be settling in for good across the South Plains as several days of mostly clear but very chilly weather loom ahead.

Highs across the South Plains today should be in the low 40s as the weather almost duplicates Wednesday, which saw a high of 41 degrees in Lubbock. The low tonight is expected to be near 20, with readings in the middle 40s predicted for Friday and Saturday.

Winds should be northeasterly throughout the remainder of the week, blowing about 5 to 10 mph. No precipitation is mentioned in the forecast.

The wintry weather is being caused by a northwest-southeast high pressure ridge extending from northern New Mexico to Louisiana and a high pressure system centered over south-central Colorado. That system should move into central Texas by early today, clearing the skies but keeping the temperatures down.

Snow is expected to fall from northern New England through the lower Great Lakes region into the northern half of the Ohio Valley and scattered snowfall is expected across the Pacific Northwest.

Most of the rest of the nation is expected to be under sunny skies throughout the day with partly cloudy skies extended northward from Virginia along the Atlantic Coast.

By dusk, a cold front should curve along the coast of British Columbia through the western half of Oregon and over the central coast of California. Another cold front will reach eastward from a low in east central Quebec, then curve southward over the Atlantic and pass through the Florida straits into the Southeastern Gulf of Mexico. Another high pressure system, in addition to the one in central Texas, will be situated over Montana.

Representative Reveals Names Of 'Select' Cotton Farmers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Paul Findley, R-Ill., Wednesday revealed the identities of three cotton producers who were visited regularly by Cotton Inc. representatives escorting European textile officials on cottonbuying trips.

Findley, a critic of Cotton Inc., said the Agriculture Department has informed him that they were J.G. Boswell Co. of Los Angeles, Texas Cotton Marketing Corporation of Lubbock and Farmers Investment Co. of Tucson, Arizona.

Findley said "a few big, well connected cotton farmers have benefited from Cotton Inc.'s activities at the expense of the vast majority of cotton producers who were paying Cotton Inc.'s bills."

Cotton Inc. is supported by $2-per-bale contributions from cotton farmers collected under federal authority.

A recent Agriculture Department audit charged that Cotton Inc. funneled cotton export business to a select group of farmers, but did not reveal the names of the farmers until Findley asked for their identities.

J.G. Boswell, the nation's largest cotton farmer, secretly hired Cotton Inc. president J. Dukes Wooters Jr. as a consultant for $120,000. He was hired following a congressional mandate that his salary be cut if the farmer-financed cotton promotion organization was to receive a $3 million federal subsidy in fiscal 1976.

James Fisher, executive vice president of Boswell, is on the Cotton Inc. executive committee.

The chairman of the board of Texas Marketing Corporation is L. Don Anderson, outgoing chairman of the Cotton Board, the quasi-governmental body appointed by the agriculture secretary to oversee the cotton program.

The president of Farmers Investment is Keith Walden, a former board member of Cotton Inc.

The visits by foreigners often resulted in sales, Findley revealed earlier that J.G. Boswell was directed foreign export

Five Gunmen Nab Bundle From Truck

CLEVELAND, Tenn. (AP) — Five gunmen surprised two Wells Fargo guards at a cafe Wednesday, then unloaded 23 sacks of money containing $203,000 from an armored truck and fled, authorities said.

Officers said no one was injured and the bandits did not fire any shots. The Bradley County sheriff's office at first reported that four gunmen were involved, but later said a fifth participated.

Police said they believed the getaway vehicle was a pickup truck with a camper that was found three miles from the robbery site, at the Payne Gap Truck Stop just south of Cleveland. Tire tracks from a second vehicle were found near the pickup, officers said.

Man, Nephew Sentenced For Roles In Burglary

By KAY BELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff
A Carlisle man and his 18-year-old nephew from Dallas were sentenced Wednesday to 35 and 40 years in prison by State District Judge John R. McFall for their roles in the July 12 burglary of a Lubbock County residence.

Charlie Jordan Jr. pleaded guilty to the charge and received the lesser prison term, partially because when arrested at the scene of the break-in, he told officers his fleeing companions were armed.

McFall, however, assessed Willie David Jordan a stiffer term. The younger Jordan was arrested about an hour after the break-in when a police dog tracked him to a building more than half a mile from the burglary.

Jordan was discovered on top of a building at Quirt Avenue and 114th St., a .22-caliber pistol in his possession.

Jordan pleaded innocent to the charge but waived his right to a jury trial, electing to have McFall hear evidence presented by Assistant Criminal District Attorney Everett Seymore.

Among witnesses called by the state was Sheriff's Deputy Cecil Brown, who allegedly was threatened with a shotgun by the third man accused of breaking into the northeast Lubbock County farmhouse. The man, Roger Earl Timmons, also is charged with attempted capital murder in connection with the incident but has eluded capture by authorities since the night of the break-in.

The younger Jordan took the 237th District Court witness stand Wednesday afternoon to refute testimony from his uncle that Willie and Timmons were inside ransacking the home.

Willie Jordan said he, his uncle and Timmons had been drinking earlier the evening of the break-in. After consuming several drinks and Valium tablets, Jordan said, he left the club and decided to go to sleep in the back of Timmons' car.

Jordan said the next thing he remembered was being awakened by his uncle, who handed him the pistol. Jordan said when he realized a burglary was in progress, he decided, "I don't want no part of this." Jordan said he then heard a shot, panicked and ran from the scene.

He said when he reached the building where he was arrested, "Something told me to get up on top of this building and lay low."

Supporters Of Hospice Center To Set Planning Committees

Supporters of the establishment of a hospice in Lubbock will meet at 7:30 p.m. today in the George Brewer Room of Methodist Hospital to organize planning committees.

A hospice is a center for the terminally ill with a home-like, yet medical, setting, according to registered nurses Lee Battey and Ronda Hartman, who are organizers of the local hospice movement.

Miss Hartman will give a report on a national hospice symposium which she and Mrs. Battey attended this month in Ohio.

"Then we will organize into committees and brainstorm for about 45 minutes to an hour," Mrs. Battey said, adding that she expects some 50 to 60 persons at tonight's meeting.

Several nurses have volunteered to work on the standards committee, she said. The committee will develop guidelines and criteria for administration, admission and care.

Three other committees also will be formed, Mrs. Battey said, to work on organization, public relations and fund raising. She said the organization committee will "view the concept (of a hospice) in relationship to the needs of the community." The committee also will be charged with the responsibility of developing sound business principles for the hospice and its administrative structure.

Inauguration Scheduled Friday For Former Tech President

By RUTHANNE BROCKWAY
Avalanche-Journal Staff
Former Texas Tech University president Cecil Mackey will be formally inaugurated Friday as the 16th president of Michigan State University.

Attending the ceremony as representatives of Texas Tech will be Dr. Lawrence Graves, interim president, and Clyde Morganti, assistant to the president.

Morganti was Dr. Mackey's assistant during his term as president, from Sept. 1, 1976, until August of this year.

Invitations to the inaugural have been sent to presidents and administrators of colleges and universities across the United States; Michigan legislators; civic leaders; members of the President's Club of MSU; and representatives of the MSU faculty, staff and student body.

"Traditionally this is an occasion for those from other educational institutions to participate in the ceremony and meet the new president," said Herman King, director of academic services. "Those representatives will be included in the program and will march in the procession."

The ceremony, to be held in the 3,900-seat MSU Auditorium, will be broadcast live by a Michigan television station at 3:30 p.m.

John Bruff, chairman of the MSU board of trustees, will install Mackey, who took office Aug. 3. The program will include an address by Dr. Robert Clodius, president of the Land Grant Association, and remarks by Mackey.

Since being named president in June, Mackey has appointed four new vice presidents at MSU, including two from Texas Tech. Ken Thompson, 37, was named in July as vice president for operations. He has been associated with Mackey since 1969 at three different universities. Thompson was formerly vice president for finance and administration at Tech.

Dr. Moses Turner, 41, who was director of student life at Tech, began his duties Nov. 1 as vice president for student affairs and services at MSU.

Mackey also appointed the first woman to be named to the position.

Sir Francis Drake attacked the Spanish Armada in 1588.

an to be named to a vice presidential post at MSU. Connie Stewart, 40, will take office Jan. 1 as vice president for university relations.

Mackey's other appointment was to name Joseph Dickinson, 52, an MSU alumnus, as vice president for university development. He has 28 years experience in fund raising.

It is the first time in the 124-year history of MSU that the university has inaugurated a president.

AN EDITORIAL:

Southwest And Love Field

THE LATEST battle over Southwest Airline's use of Dallas Love Field, this time for inter-state flights, has ramifications far past the immediate objective.

Almost without notice, legislation introduced by Rep. Jim Wright of Fort Worth, in Congress would have the effect of banning flights into and out of Love Field which go to or return from points outside Texas.

Thus far, Southwest's recently inaugurated schedule to New Orleans and back from Dallas Love Field, would be the major victim. But, this is not the entire story.

THE BATTLE, by major airlines who signed a contract to move from Love Field to Dallas-Fort Worth's new Regional Airport, by the cities of Dallas and Fort Worth and others to block Southwest's use of Love is well known by now.

Also well known is the fact that Southwest, starting out more or less on a shoestring and parlaying good fast service, with low fares and attention to detail and safety, has built itself into one of the nation's most successful intra-state airlines.

Now, Southwest wants to expand its "short haul" service to cities outside Texas.

A HEARING on the measure to block Southwest's latest bid to expand was conducted this week in Washington.

The issue is more than just the old one of Southwest being allowed to use Love Field while other airlines party to the D-FW pact must use that base.

AN EDITORIAL:

Another Snub For Taiwan

ONE OF THOSE "small" news items with far-reaching implications came across the wires this week.

It was to the effect that the International Olympic Committee (IOC) has approved a plan whereby both China may compete in the upcoming Olympic Games.

The plan, approved by a 62 to 17 margin, would allow what the wire services gratuitously called "Mainland China"—instead of Communist China—to send a full complement of athletes to both Moscow and Lake Placid.

THE SAME plan would "permit" Nationalist China, or the Taiwanese, to send a group also.

The clincher is that the Taiwanese would be able to compete only if they did not display the Nationalist flag or march behind the Nationalist banner!

The Taiwanese are being asked to call themselves the Chinese Taipei Olympic Committee and to adopt a special Olympic flag, that to be approved by the IOC.

At this writing, the Taiwanese officials had not given a definite answer but have indicated through lawyers they will file a suit against the IOC in the Swiss courts. The IOC's headquarters is in Lausanne.

M. STANTON EVANS: Abortions' True Horror Twisted By High Court

WASHINGTON—Choosing the most wretched Supreme Court decision of all time is not an easy task, but a persuasive case can be made for conferring this distinction on Roe v. Wade and Doe v. Bolton, the abortion rulings handed down in 1973.

Just such a case is made, in fact, by John T. Noonan, Jr., professor of law at the University of California at Berkeley.

In a recently published study called "A Private Choice," Noonan dissects the abortion rulings on grounds of legal history, medical science, common logic, and elementary ethics—and finds them wanting on all counts.

In these decisions, Noonan contends, the high court twisted the safeguards of our constitutional law and the facts of scientific record beyond all recognition, in order to sanctify the killing of a million unborn children annually.

THE CENTRAL paradox of the court's position, Noonan argues, is its bland assumption that killing the unborn is a civil libertarian aspect of the mother's "privacy."

This notion is arrived at by the simple expedient of ignoring other parties to the transaction, most obviously the children themselves. The court professed itself unable to determine whether the unborn child is human life or not, and then resolved the issue in favor of death by ruling that the child could be exterminated.

In fact, as Noonan demonstrates, the matter isn't that mysterious. Medical science tells us individuated human life comes into being with the genetic union of male and female chromosomes, and that the life process is continuous thereafter.

IT ALSO tells us that unborn babies, by the time they are ready to be killed, are perfectly formed if very tiny human beings who, among other things, recoil from pain, and who must suffer unspeakable agonies when they are being cut to pieces.

Noonan demolished the legal rigamarole used to justify this horrible business—showing that it is a reversal of legal traditions expanding human rights, as well as a refusal to confront the medical facts of record concerning the reality of fetal life.

The abortion decisions, he contends, represent the victory of rampant ideology—a sophisticated barbarism that has succeeded in pounding its dehumanizing message home in media, government, and, finally, the courts.

IF WHAT we are doing to unborn children is ghastly, Noonan concludes, what we are doing to ourselves is no less appalling.

For we have taken it upon ourselves to decide that certain human beings are no longer legal people, and may be disposed of according to the whim of others—the first step toward the totalitarian abyss.

Beyond it lie still other horrors which expand upon the principle—letting babies born alive die through neglect, experimentation on the unborn (half sanctified in Federal law), euthanasia, infanticide.

Infanticide, of course, was widely practiced in the ancient world and is still accepted in some non-Western cultures.

BUT ACCORDING to Dr. Maria W. Piers of the Erikson Institute for Early Education, the killing of children occurs in our society more often than we imagine.

In "Infanticide: Past and Present," Dr. Piers examines the psychological roots of infanticide, and does not devote much space to assembling empirical data.

Her evidence suggests, however, that infanticide has had a long underground existence in the West and is being practiced now in the United States and elsewhere.

The key consideration, she observes, is that the parent thinks of the child not as a human being but as "a thing"—which, though she does not herself draw the connections, is precisely the message conveyed by the abortionists in the debate about the unborn child.

EMBASSY ROW

ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK:

Politics As Unusual

NEW YORK—The two weeks of stumbling after the shock of "Teddy" over CBS has so debilitated Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's supposed political domination in New York that sharp-tongued Gov. Hugh Carey privately calls him a "plummeting star."

Kennedy's ineptitude on the network documentary, followed by incompetence and neglect in his campaign's early days, has transformed the political landscape here.

Neither Carey nor Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, seemingly sure Kennedy boosters, have endorsed him. While President Carter's operatives round up organization Democrats, Kennedy's men have offended both centrists and reformers.

None of this would likely keep Kennedy from beating Carter if New York's Democratic primary were held today, but politicians think it could make things close next March 25.

Apart from exposing Kennedy campaign blunders, that raises serious questions whether Kennedy can unite the two rival Democratic constituencies in this and other northern industrial states.

Party unification seemed Kennedy's long suit during last summer's heady days when reformist and centrist Democrats, usually gouging out each other's eyes here, coalesced for him. Agents of Sen. Moynihan and his antithesis, state Atty. Gen. Robert Abrams, collaborated to fix a primary date late in Carter's interest.

This common purpose did not long survive Kennedy's answers to CBS correspondent Roger Mudd on "Teddy," shown Nov. 4.

ANDREW TULLY:

Two-Bit Dollars

WASHINGTON—Sometimes, with my eyes wide open, I have pleasant dreams. One of them is that overnight we switched to the British system and an election was called for tomorrow in which the electorate would be given a chance to cast a vote of no-confidence in our ruling lords.

In this manner, the people would stand in judgment not only of Jimmy Carter but of a Congress that is also Democratic. For it passeth rational understanding that a political party in full command of power in both the White House and in Capitol Hill could make such a mess of governing the Republic.

This partnership has failed even to make a start toward whipping inflation. When Carter was elected, the inflation rate was 4 percent. As of this writing, it is 13 percent, going on 15.

We have had an energy crisis since 1973. The cost of a barrel of imported oil has risen since then from $5.12 to $23—and up.

CERTAINLY, RICHARD Nixon and Jerry Ford should have done something about the high cost of energy. But that's water over the dam. Carter and a Democratic Congress have run the show since January, 1977, and the nation's plight has grown worse.

And then there is Iran. Although even many casual observers saw danger in the mob uprisings against the Shah, the Carter administration had no plan for coping with the inevitable overthrow of that pretentious ruler.

So, unprepared, Carter and Congress were confronted with calculated chaos in that country and, eventually, the invasion of the American Embassy and the seizure of 100 hostages, including 60 to 65 members of our diplomatic mission.

What makes the situation so disgusting is that politics as usual has prevailed.

IN BOTH the "fight" against inflation and the energy crisis, Carter has operated with one hand tied behind his back.

Obsessed with the need not to offend any special interest with votes and/or campaign money, he has been careful to do no more than preach against high prices and the get-rich-quick, anti-American price policies of the OPEC alliance.

Carter and his palace guard are fond of saying that America is not the only Western country that is suffering from inflation and OPEC's economic warfare. Wrong, as usual.

Japan imports 99 percent of its oil. Its inflation rate is 6.9 percent. West Germany imports 97 percent of its oil. Its inflation rate is 6.6 percent.

AS IT is, we are all suffering from the biggest governmental spending spree in history.

As Ronald Reagan reminded us the other day, the federal government in the 34 years since the end of World War II has spent $448 billion more than it has collected in taxes.

In short, government deficits are responsible for both inflation and the OPEC price gouge. Simply put, if the dollar were worth what it was 34 years ago it would buy both more hamburger and more oil.

That must have dawned on even Jimmy Carter. One wishes he had organized his administration as well as his race against Teddy Kennedy.

JAY HARRIS:

An Open Bridge...

JERUSALEM, Israel—Within a day's drive of this ancient city, one can find the ingredients for some of the most fascinating chapters in religious, political and archaeological history.

Less than an hour's drive through the ancient Judean hills, past the "fields where shepherds tended their flocks," today wandering Bedouins keep tab on goats climbing precipitous cliffs.

And a short distance away, Arab merchants ply their trade in the dusty streets of Jericho, one of mankind's oldest recorded sites of civilization 9,000 years old.

Farther on, just this side of the Jordanian border may be found one of the incongruities of Israeli relations with one of its former foes. It is the Allenby Bridge, an "open bridge" over the Jordan river across which thousands travel between the two nations.

NEARBY ARE the Qumran Caves where the Dead Sea Scrolls were found.

Just below the caves and farther south may be found two of the disputed "settlement" type kibbutz, the first near one of the lowest points on earth, the other atop a sheer and barren mountain.

Still farther south, and overlooking the lower portion of the Dead Sea, is Masada, Israel's "Alamo," where a group of almost 1,000 Jewish zealots defied a conquering horde of Romans, finally dying en masse rather than surrender.

Coupled with Jerusalem, today a united city after almost 2,000 years of conquest and division, this panorama is the setting for a Gordian Knot which seems to defy solution.

MUCH OF THE area just described, including East Jerusalem or the Old City, is in what is known as the West Bank.

That area and other huge chunks of land which bulge westward on each side of Jerusalem to within nine to 19 miles of the Mediterranean are key elements in the peace talks between Israel and Egypt.

And while much of the world's media, the Arab world and the Carter Administration argue that the West Bank—as occupied land taken by Israel in the 1967 Six Days War—must be returned, many in Israel, including some in the highest echelons of government, leave no doubt Israel plans to maintain a "military presence" in the area for the foreseeable future.

And there are those who argue that Israel won the land, known as Biblical Samaria and Judea, and should annex it permanently.

AGAINST THIS backdrop, life goes on.

It goes on for the predominantly Arab population in the West Bank cities with their at times defiant West Bank mayors and city officials and schools.

It goes on for the Israeli Army officials who administer the "open bridges" and those who populate the kibbutzim and settlements, which are in effect extensions of Israel.

And it goes on for both Jews and Arabs in a for the most part peaceful and profitable way, while politicians and peoples far removed argue about what to do about it.

Probably one of the most unusual incongruities that is Israel today is the "open bridge" concept. We got an updated second look at it in the company of a man who helped set it up shortly after the 1967 conflict, one Rafi Horowitz, a veteran of Israel's four wars and today an official of the Israeli Defense Information department.

IT WAS FOUR years ago we first visited a rambling, shed-like structure not far from the Jordanian border.

There, thousands of Arab citizens of Israel, after crossing the narrow, wooden Allenby Bridge over the Jordan were being processed after returning to Israel following visits to Jordan or other Arab nations, including the traditional journey to Mecca.

Today, the process continues, only this time it is taking place in an ultramodern, air-conditioned, multimillion dollar complex paid for and operated by the Israelis.

Here, although living in a "conquered and occupied area" under Israeli jurisdiction, Arabs may go back and forth across the border freely, submitting only to close security checks to screen out weapons, explosives and newly-trained PLO terrorists.

It is part of the process Israel has maintained in the West Bank and Gaza Strip of not imposing its religion or political process unduly on more than 1,000,000 Arabs. It is also perhaps the major roadblock—along with guaranteed "safe" borders for Israel in any final Mideast Peace pact.

THE OTHER sticking point is one which has become a major issue in Prime Minister Menachem Begin's government, the Jewish settlements in the West Bank.

In a program of building residential perimeters of defense around Jerusalem—actually numerous suburbs occupied by Israeli citizens and immigrants—Israel also has established kibbutzim and outposts in the heavily fortified hills and plains facing Jordan.

One of these is near the Dead Sea and the lowest point on earth. The other is atop a towering and barren mountain overlooking the Dead Sea. Called Kibbutz Mizpe Shalom, it was established in 1970 as a Nahal paramilitary outpost. It became a civilian settlement in 1977 with 15 members, including two married couples.

We ate a box lunch with some of those atop the mountain retreat and heard of the trials of growing food to eat and to export in a forbidding land which has defied generations.

A short distance away, we again climbed over the imposing mountain fortress of Masada, fortified by King Herod in 36 B.C. and the site of one of the Jews' most famous final battles to the death in 73 A.D.

It is against this backdrop of modern and ancient history that today's search for peace is being waged. It has never been easy in the past, nor will it be in the future.

High Court Rules On Public Search Case

WASHINGTON (AP) — Police officers authorized to search a public place may not search all persons who happen to be there, the Supreme Court said Wednesday.

In the first constitutional ruling of its new term, the court outlawed such searches as an unreasonable invasion of privacy.

The justices, voting 6-3, struck down an Illinois man's conviction for heroin possession. They ruled that the drug should not have been used as trial evidence because it was seized unconstitutionally.

Ventura Ybarra was arrested in a March 1, 1976 police raid on the Aurora Tap, a tavern in Aurora, Ill. When police officers investigating alleged drug trafficking by an Aurora Tap bartender staged the raid, Ybarra was one of about a dozen patrons present.

The police did not suspect Ybarra of any crime, but decided to search all patrons for concealed weapons. Some heroin was found in Ybarra's pants pocket.

Wednesday's ruling means Illinois authorities must free Ybarra or give him a new trial in which the heroin will be excluded as evidence.

"Although the search warrant ... gave the officers authority to search the premises and to search (the bartender), it gave them no authority whatever to invade the constitutional protections possessed individually by the tavern's customers," Justice Potter Stewart wrote for the court's majority.

The Constitution's Fourth Amendment protects individuals against unreasonable police searches and seizures. A long series of court rulings have established that police must convince a judge or magistrate there is "probable cause" to suspect criminal activity before a search warrant can be obtained.

But in 1968 the Supreme Court made an exception to the "probable cause" rule, and allowed police to frisk someone to find a weapon an officer reasonably believes to be concealed.

Illinois authorities had argued that the 1968 decision, called Terry vs. Ohio, authorized the search of everyone in the Aurora Tap for weapons.

The high court's three dissenters agreed, but Stewart's majority opinion said, "Nothing in Terry can be understood to allow a generalized cursory search for weapons ..."

Stewart was joined by Justices William J. Brennan Jr., Byron R. White, Thurgood Marshall, Lewis F. Powell Jr. and John Paul Stevens.

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justices Harry A. Blackmun and William H. Rehnquist dissented. In an opinion for all three, Burger said that "when police execute a search warrant for narcotics in a place of known narcotics activity they may protect themselves by conducting a Terry search."

Burger said police should not be required "to assume that they will not be harmed by patrons of the kind of establishment shown here, something quite different from a ballroom at the Waldorf."

Although a specific Illinois law authorized the search of all persons at a public place targeted by a search warrant, the ruling never specifically invalidated the law.

The last footnote in Stewart's 10-page opinion said the law "falls within the category of statutes purporting to authorize searches without probable cause, which this court has not hesitated to hold invalid as authority for unconstitutional searches."

The court's apparent hesitancy to address the law's constitutionality head-on could cause confusion in the future.

Similar laws are found in Arizona, Kansas, Georgia, Connecticut, Montana, Nevada, New York, Wisconsin, Delaware, Massachusetts, New Hampshire and the District of Columbia.

In other decisions Wednesday, the court:

• Ruled, by a 6-3 vote, that the federal government can deny certain money to school districts if statistics show their teachers are racially segregated.

• Upholding the government's denial of $3.5 million in special funding for the 1977-78 school year to the New York City Board of Education, the court said the federal Emergency School Aid Act authorizes such denials even for unintentional racial disparities.

• Made it more difficult to sue federal doctors for medical malpractice by effectively shortening the time limit for filing such suits.

FLOOD VICTIM FOUND

ELIZABETHTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — The body of a fifth person killed when a highway collapsed during a sudden flood near this Adirondack Mountain village was found Wednesday on a small island. ## Congress Unanimous In U.N. Appeal For Hostages' Release

WASHINGTON (AP) — By a unanimous vote of both chambers, Congress Wednesday appealed to the United Nations Security Council to "take all measures necessary" to bring about the immediate release of the 49 American hostages in Iran.

The resolution, passed in rapid-fire order first by the Senate and then the House, took strong exception to claims by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini that Americans are divided about the stalemate at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran.

"The American people and their representatives in government are united in their determination and in their efforts to achieve the immediate, safe and unconditional release of all United States personnel," the resolution said.

The Senate approved the measure, sponsored in that chamber by Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., by a 98-0 vote.

About an hour later, the House passed the identical measure by a 386-0 margin. "The House of Representatives can do no less," said Rep. Clement J. Zablocki, D-Wis., chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

"It is of utmost importance that the U.N. Security Council act quickly," Zablocki said.

The resolution declared: "We call upon the Security Council of the United Nations to take all measures necessary to secure the immediate, safe and unconditional release of all the United States diplomatic personnel held hostage in Iran."

"There must be an immediate, safe and unconditional release of all United States personnel" being held in the embassy, the resolution said.

While it is nonbinding and carries no legal status before the United Nations, leaders said the resolution was important as a gesture of U.S. unity.

Race To Nab Jogging Rapist Continues For City's Police

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The slap of quick footsteps after dusk in the city's Northeast section sends a chill through the air. Little girls know it could be the jogging rapist.

Since Feb. 24, 13 youngsters have been assaulted — five raped — by a runner in greasy work gloves who continues to slip through a massive police dragnet. He struck again Monday night.

"I'm scared," says Christine Humphreys, a sophomore at Little Flower Catholic High School. "My girl friends want to kill this guy, whoever he is."

Police say the eight girls who were molested escaped by struggling or screaming. The younger victims — the 10, 11, and 12-year-olds — were raped. They included a police officer's daughter.

"The stalking, the hunt, they must be as sexually stimulating to him as the actual act, because he lets them go if they resist," says Lt. Gerald Baker, who heads the manhunt.

There's a pattern to the attacks. The jogger, described as a man in his early 20s with sandy hair, stops and asks the child the time. Then he grabs her with gloved hands. After the attack, he tells his victims to stay put and count to 100. Some of the witnesses said the man was dressed in a jogging outfit.

Until this week he has always struck between the 16th and 24th of the month. Based on that information a special stake-out unit of 50 detectives and plainclothes cops was assembled to comb the area between the morning of Nov. 15 and 11 p.m. Sunday, the 25th. It came up 19 hours short.

At 6 p.m. Monday, the 12-year-old girl was walking to cheerleading practice near her Olney home. She heard the heavy footfalls of a runner behind her.

"What time is it?" he asked. Then he grabbed her and pulled her into a secluded driveway. There, on the cold pavement, the little girl was raped.

"I want this guy bad," Police Capt. Kenneth Schwartz, told the detectives

COMPOSITE OF ATTACKER — Philadelphia police have released this composite sketch of a man they believe is responsible for a number of rapes and assaults on young girls in Northeast Philadelphia. (AP Laserphoto)

Some schools in the area have posted composite drawings of the rapist on bulletin boards. At one, the principal has alerted her students of the problem over the public address system. School yards are being patrolled after hours to check for lingering students.

The jogging rapist has struck at least once every month except August.

"This guy is smart," says Baker. "He stalks his victims. He picks out a group of two or three girls and follows them until they split up. Then he follows one until he finds the right place."

and highway patrolmen in the roll-call room Nov. 15.

"I have a vested interest. I live right in the middle of his area and I have a 13-year-old daughter. Go out there and get him before some 10-year-old tries to fight him and he kills her."

Synfuel Development Program Proposed

FOR YOUR WANT ADS CALL 762-8821

BOCA RATON, Fla. (AP) — The chairman of Exxon Corp., the world's largest oil company, Wednesday proposed for the first time the development of a $700 billion synthetic fuels industry, the type of program President Carter has been urging.

Clifton C. Garvin Jr. also said conservation efforts are beginning to help ease the nation's energy shortage, although he warned the country was likely to face continuing tight supplies of fuels for years to come.

"Conservation is beginning to work. 1979 may well turn out to be the peak consumption year for petroleum," Garvin told a press conference at the annual convention of the Securities Industry Association, a Wall Street trade organization.

While Garvin brushed aside a question about whether there would be more oil shortages in the 1980s, he conceded, "we're going to live on the ragged edge of never having enough."

Garvin proposed the development of an industry producing synthetic fuels from such sources as coal and oil shale as a bridge toward an ultimate solution to the nation's energy problems.

Such an effort would take years, cost billions of dollars and pose many environmental and other problems, Grvin said. But he added:

"One of the silent enemies of a successful resolution of our energy difficulties is inertia. Because of it, we have been losing time — ever since the OPEC oil embargo six years ago. Now time is running out."

Garvin also said synthetic fuels yield about twice as much energy as is needed for their production. By contrast, alcohol — a mixture of gasoline and alcohol — requires more energy to produce than it yields, he said.

As much as 20 years and $700 billion — without taking into account future inflation — may be needed to build a synthetic fuels industry, Garvin said.

"We have access to shale and coal capable of providing an amount equal to almost 1 trillion barrels of oil. That's enough to supply the current U.S. demand for of about 18 million barrels a day for the next 150 years.

"It's more oil than exists in all the OPEC countries combined," he said. A barrel contains 42 gallons.

Garvin said he felt some "modest" incentives from government, such as increased tax credits for investment, would speed the process of getting the efforts started.

"My own guess is that, with time, the need for incentives would lessen and for that reason they should not be made permanent. They should be a springboard to action, not a crutch for inefficiency."

The Carter administration has proposed a $20 billion synthetic fuels development program capable of producing 1.75 million barrels of oil daily by 1990.

Exxon is "now at the point of seriously considering commercial ventures" for the production of synthetic fuels after several years of research, Garvin said.

"I'm under the impression that many other companies are at a similar stage," he said.

Exxon already is a major producer of synthetic crude oil in Canada.

Its Imperial Oil subsidiary owns 25 percent of the $2 billion Syncrude project, which recently was producing 100,000 barrels of high-quality crude oil a day from the gummy tar sands deposits of northern Alberta.

Council Blasts High Schools, Warns Of 'Ill-Educated' Youth

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of every three youths is "ill-educated, ill-employed and ill-equipped to make their way in American society" by a public education system in need of an overhaul, it was asserted recently.

The Carnegie Council on Policy Studies in Higher Education said high schools prolong "compulsory youth" and favor those continuing formal education over those moving directly into the job market.

"We must find ways to break up the big, monolithic high school and its deadly weekly routine," the council declared in a 322-page report. "High school is an alienating experience for many young people (and) like a prison — albeit with open doors — for some."

The council said there is a need for basic changes in the manner in which high schools operate, adding that new ways must be found to teach marketable job skills.

If society smoothes the abrupt transition from school to work and stops prolonging "compulsory youth," it said, then those coming of age before the year 2000 could be "the most favored generation since the 1950s."

But failure to act poses the danger of "creating a permanent underclass, a self-perpetuating culture of poverty, a substantial and continuing 'lumpen-proletariat' in the 'home of opportunity,'" it added.

Council chairman Clark Kerr said the study, entitled, "Giving Youth a Better Chance: Options for Education, Work and Service," was undertaken "as a matter of conscience."

The Berkeley, Calif.-based council is a research arm of the nonprofit Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching. Its past studies have influenced changes in American colleges.

"College youth have been assisted by federal initiatives in the 1970s far more than noncollegiate youth and it is time to redress the balance," the report said.

"The 'youth problem' in the United States is not going to go away," although the baby boom is over, it said. The high school dropout rate is 23 percent, and 20 percent of the graduates fail to master basic work skills, it added.

Among other things, the report said:

•Juniors and seniors should attend regular classes three days a week and devote the other two to education-related work or community service.

•Compulsory schooling should be ended at age 16 and a work-study program should be created for needy high school youth.

•New apprenticeship programs for civilian and military work for 16-and-17-year-olds are needed.

•Teen-agers and their employers should not have to pay the Social Security tax.

The recommended changes would cost the government $1.4 billion to $1.9 billion, but that would be offset by "reduced social costs," including lower crime and welfare rates, the report said.

Jetliner Forced To Abort Landing

WINDSOR LOCKS, Conn. (AP) — A jetliner carrying about 120 persons was forced to abort its landing at Bradley International Airport at the last minute to avoid a maintenance truck on the edge of a runway.

The U.S. Air DC-9 landed without incident on its second approach Tuesday after circling the field while the truck was moved, authorities said. There were no injuries.

Texas Supreme Court Throws Out Suit Against County DA

AUSTIN (AP)—The Texas Supreme Court said Wednesday Hidalgo County voters "forgave" District Attorney Oscar McNinnis by re-electing him after he was named in federal indictments stemming from an alleged murder plot.

The high court threw out a removal suit filed against McNinnis by the Texas Prosecutors Coordinating Council.

However, the longtime prosecutor will remain out of a job pending his appeal of a disbarment ruling.

The prosecutors council's removal suit was initially dismissed by State District Judge Walter Dunham of Corpus Christi. Dunham agreed with McNinnis' argument that state law prohibits removal of an elected official for acts committed during a previous term.

McNinnis was unopposed in the November 1978 election. The indictment was returned in June 1978 and involved a plot that allegedly occurred a month earlier.

The trial judge's ruling was reversed by the 13th Court of Civil Appeals in Corpus Christi, which ordered the case to trial.

The court of civil appeals said re-election would "forgive" misconduct only if the voters were aware of the official's alleged misdeeds.

John Paul's visit to Turkey, with a population of 45 million including 26,000 Roman Catholics and another 75,000 Christians, brought criticism, especially from Moslem fundamentalist groups.

the places he visited were cordoned off by army troops and police.

Crowds were almost non-existent for his fourth international trip of the year, in contrast to the millions who cheered him in Mexico, his native Poland, and the United States and Ireland.

As the pope flew to Ankara, he dismissed the reported threat. "It is necessary to go there now," he said. "It is the feast of St. Andrew (Turkey's patron). I must go for ecumenical reasons. I am in the hands of God."

A high Vatican official, Bishop Ramon Torella Cascante, said Orthodox Leader Demetrius I and the pope would announce formation of a joint theological commission of 25 or 30 members each to start meetings next year.

The group will seek to remove differences such as papal primacy and different attitudes on divorce which have separated the two churches since the schism of 1054.

Asked how long it might take to achieve full reunification, the pope replied: "This is an object of research... God knows."

The pope made clear this was only his "first" ecumenical trip, saying he was "ready to go now" to meet with the Anglicans in London.

"We are also always spiritually united with the Russian Orthodox," he added. "As for the trip..." He let his voice trail off.

John Paul's visit to Turkey, with a population of 45 million including 26,000 Roman Catholics and another 75,000 Christians, brought criticism, especially from Moslem fundamentalist groups.

Violence between rival extremist groups has been taking about five lives a day here and a death threat to the pope, purportedly from an escaped killer and sent to a newspaper, forced the army to insulate the pope from the public. The government even provided a "trustworthy" cook for the pontiff.

From the time the pope landed, security was so tight Turkish people could not have had a glimpse of him if they wanted. All the roads used by the pope and

The National Salvation Party's publication wrote that throughout history Catholics and other Christians have battled Islam, "turning churches into ammunition depots and killing innocent women, children and elderly," a reference to the Crusades in the Middle Ages. It said the meeting with the Orthodox leaders should have been held in Greece.

Pope John Paul was asked on the flight from Rome what he thought of the fanaticism sweeping the Islamic world.

"I esteem Islam as a monotheistic religion. That is true. My impression is formed by the Vatican (Ecumenical) Council," the pope replied.

Vatican sources explained the pope's words could be interpreted as respect for Islam as a religion, but not as an acceptance of the violence associated with religious fervor in recent weeks in the Islamic world.

The pontiff met with President Fahri Koruturk and discussed the occupation

Carter Warns Iran Poses More Tests

ger denied this Monday and Carter went out of his way to assume responsibility. The president's condemnation of the Iranian regime was his harshest since the embassy takeover Nov. 4.
"For a government to applaud mob violence and terrorism — for it actually to support and in effect participate in the taking and holding of hostages — is unprecedented in human history."

For that, Carter said, "We hold the government of Iran fully responsible....
"The government of Iran must recognize the gravity of the situation it has itself created — and the grave consequences that will result if harm comes to any of the hostages."
The president said he still hopes for a peaceful solution to the crisis.
"Last night, a statement of support for the release of the hostages was issued by the president of the United Nations Security Council on behalf of all of its members," Carter said.

"We expect a further Security Council meeting on Saturday at which more official action may be undertaken to help in obtaining release of American hostages."

"We hope that out of this exercise of international law will come a peaceful solution, because a peaceful solution is preferable to the other remedies available — for the United States and for the world," he said.

In his opening statement, the president said he was proud of the support and patience shown by Americans during the crisis.

People Meet Test

"In these 24 days our will, our courage and our maturity have all been severely tested. History will show that the people of the United States met that test."

"In the days to come our determination may be even more sorely tried. We will continue to defend the security, honor and freedom of Americans everywhere. We will not yield to blackmail," he said.

Virtually every point in Carter's opening statement had been made by Carter himself or in statements issued through the White House in recent days.

White House officials said the president's purpose in scheduling the prime time news conference was to rally public opinion in support of a hard line on release of the hostages.

No-Compromise Stand

The news conference was coupled with the launching of a major White House effort to win public support for a no-compromise stand on release of the captives.

Letters and Mailgrams — signed by press secretary Jody Powell — were being sent Wednesday to 7,500 newspapers, broadcast stations and others saying that Carter supported the ringing of church bells and writing of letters to the Iranian mission to the United Nations as a lawful show of public support for the hostages.

Carter coupled his appeal for support for his Iranian policy with an indirect call for congressional approval of his energy program.

"We must also now recognize as never before that it is our entire nation that is vulnerable to being held hostage — by our overwhelming dependence on oil from foreign countries," he said, adding:

"Threat To Security"

"We have got to accept the fact that this dependence is a direct, physical threat to our national security and we must join together to fight for our nation's energy freedom."

"We know the ways to win this war — more American energy and a more efficient use of what we have."

"The United States Congress is now making this extremely important decision."

"The way to victory is long and difficult — but we have the will and the human and physical resources of this great and strong nation."
"It is unthinkable that the freest nation on Earth should not be free."

Hansen Urges Shah Probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. George Hansen arrived home from Iran Wednesday night, saying a congressional investigation of whether the deposed Shah of Iran skimmed money from that country would bring only the hope of freedom for 49 American hostages there.

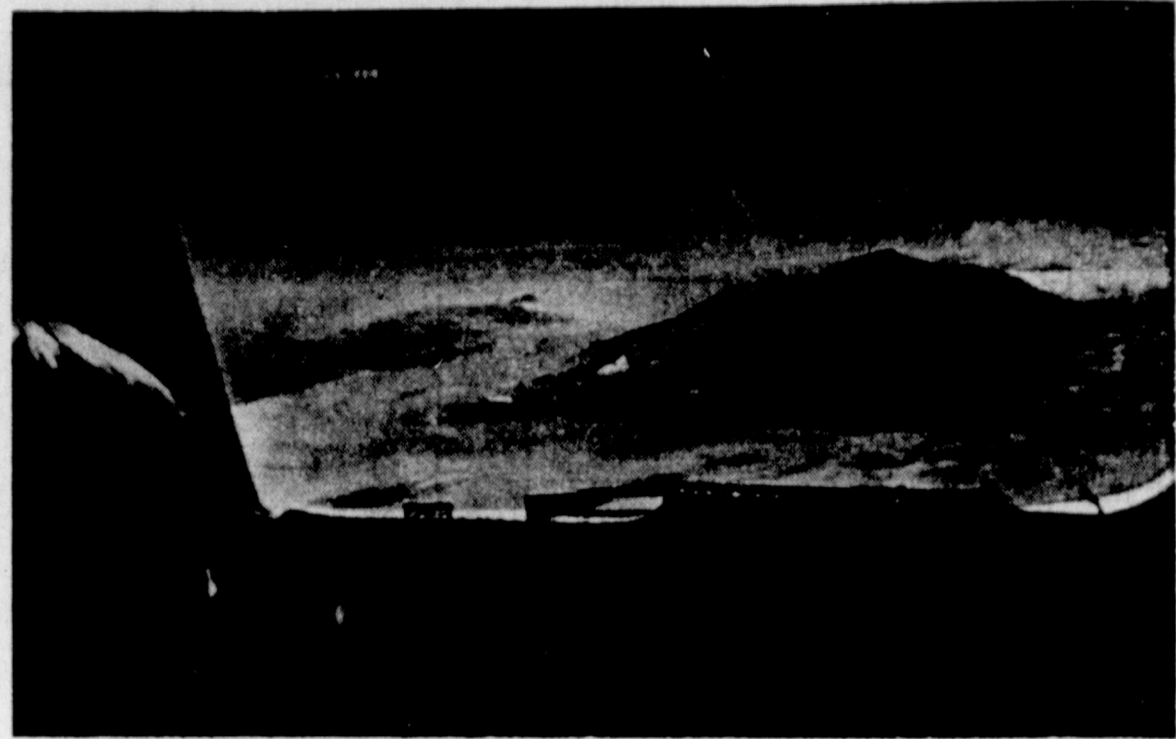

"It cannot be done on a quid pro quo basis because they will not accept anything like that," the Idaho Republican told reporters in an airport interview. "Everywhere you saw, there were signs that say 'No Deal, No Negotiations.'"

Hansen said he hopes to suggest possibilities to the Carter administration for freeing the hostages, but refused to say if he found other possibilities besides a congressional investigation.

He said he can suggest to U.S. negotiators the names of Iranian officials they could contact. He refused to name the officials at the news conference.

Muldoon said bodies would be taken to the base for identification, then flown back to New Zealand, weather permitting. "We will endeavor to get out as many as possible taking into consideration the safety factors," he said.

Erebus is on Ross Island, off the Antarctic coast 2,000 miles south of New Zealand. A low-altitude swing past the volcano is part of the spectacular 11-hour air tour.

The cause of the crash was not known. A spokesman for the Department of Science and Industrial Research in Christchurch, New Zealand, said the plane appeared to have exploded when it hit the volcano.

"The crew did not report any trouble in their last radio contact" at 2:30 p.m. Wednesday, Air New Zealand spokesman Chris Smith said.

Several Nationalities Represented
The passenger list issued by the airliner indicated 56 of the 257 persons aboard were foreigners: 20 Americans, 24 Japanese, seven Britons, two Canadians and one person each from Switzerland, Australia and France. They paid $359 each.

The full identities of the victims, who included 20 crew members, were being withheld until notification of next of kin, airline officials said. The list released included last names, but only first initials and no hometowns. One of the crew was well-known New Zealand mountaineer Peter Mulgrew, an associate of famed Mount Everest conqueror Sir Edmund Hillary who gave the passengers a complimentary on the sights.

The sightseeing planes fly from Auckland to Erebus and McMurdo Sound, cruise at a low level over that area, then fly for 45 minutes north along the Victoria Land coast before heading out across the water for the return to New Zealand. Air New Zealand has operated the flights for the past three Southern Hemisphere summers, and this was the fourth of the season.

Plane Reported Overdue

At 8 p.m. Wednesday, the jetliner was reported an hour overdue for a refueling stop at Christchurch, and at 10 p.m. the airline declared it lost, saying its fuel would have been depleted by 9:30 p.m.

Because the last radio contact was from 38 miles north of McMurdo, the U.S. base sent up two ski-equipped Navy C-130s, a C-141 Starlifter and two Navy helicopters to conduct a search. The fire-blackened remains of the plane were finally spotted on the northern slope of Erebus, 30 miles north of the base.

"The wreckage was spread over an area of about 200 yards," said Hatcher, spokesman at the Navy Group Support Headquarters in Christchurch.

Airline spokesman Smith said it was unclear whether the plane had just begun the tour or was headed northward to New Zealand when it crashed. But Hatcher said its position on the north slope indicated it was flying south.

"If the weather's nice, they come in at 2,000 feet or so to get a look at the volcano," Hatcher said of the aerial tours.

Smith said a report from the area — he was unsure whether it was from the pilot or the ground — said there was a slight cloud layer at about 3,000 feet.

Navy personnel reported temperatures had dipped Wednesday to about 15 degrees Fahrenheit in the area, where daylight is almost continuous at this time of year.

Doctors Say Shah Free To Travel

drainage tube left in after the shah had his gall bladder and several stones taken out Oct. 24, two days after his arrival in New York.

The shah completed a series of radiation treatments for lymph cancer last week.

Spokesman Mark Morse, in a telephone interview from the exiled monarch's rented Villa Dos Rios in Cuernavaca, said, "It all depends on when his medical treatment ends, but we believe he will be here in eight to 10 days."

Morse said he did not know if the shah had a new visa but added "...he must have it because he is coming back..."

But a Foreign Ministry source in Mexico City said "no decision has been made to give the shah a visa and there has been no application." He added the government is not opposed to granting the shah a new visa.

The source, who asked not to be identified, said there was no indication when the shah might return, but he expected more information in the next few days after the shah recovers from an operation to remove a gall stone in his bile duct.

Medical authorities said the shah is suffering from cancer of the lymph system and an official of the National Cancer Institute, who asked not to be named, said all facilities to provide chemotherapy and other cancer treatment are available in Mexico City.

When the shah left Iran in January, he first traveled to Cairo for a brief stay, then moved to Morocco for a while, then to the Bahamas before coming to Mexico.

The Mexican government gave the shah a six-month tourist visa in June when he moved into the six-house compound, 50 miles south of Mexico City. But the government indicated when the shah left Oct. 22 for medical treatment in New York that he would have to reapply if he wanted to return.

Morse, who works for Robert Armao, head of the shah's public relations firm, said there had been no unusual activity around the villa and said it had been maintained and regularly patrolled by guards since the monarch's departure.

However, Morse declined to answer further questions about security preparations for the shah's return. He also refused to say where the shah's mother and sister were. They had been living in the compound before the shah left for New York.

Although Mexican security officials said there have been no attempts on the shah's life in Mexico, security around the compound is very tight. It is believed to include up to 40 agents from the Mexican federal security police and the shah's private force.

Before leaving for New York, the shah visited the cities of Oaxaca and Taxco, and was seen playing golf and horseback riding and visiting outdoor restaurants.

His entry into the United States drew outrage from the new government in Iran, and on Nov. 4, militants seized the U.S. Embassy in Tehran. They still hold 49 Americans hostage and say they will hold them until the United States sends the shah back to Iran.

Clements Given Award Of 'Barefoot, Pregnant'

AUSTIN (AP) — Citing his reported wisecrack that women might try scuba diving as a form of birth control, local feminists have bestowed their "Barefoot and Pregnant Award" on Gov. Bill Clements.

"You can see I'm not barefoot and obviously I'm not pregnant," Clements said when told in advance of the award.

The Austin chapter of the National Organization for Women (NOW) announced the award at a news conference Wednesday.

The award is described by NOW as "not quite annual." Its last recipient was University of Texas athletic director Darrell Royal in 1974. Royal had ventured a derogatory remark about the inability of women's athletics to draw paying customers.

Vicky Worsham, coordinator of the NOW chapter, said Clements deserved the award because:

— He fired the staff of the Texas Commission on the Status of Women and never has hired a new one.

— He vetoed $230,000 appropriated to the Texas Rehabilitation Commission for services to "displaced homemakers" — women re-entering the job market upon divorce or widowhood.

— His reported off-hand remark after an A&M science said deep sea diving could damage a fetus — that women "should go deep sea diving to exercise birth control."

"I didn't think it was funny," said Miss Worsham.

The text of the award said it was made to Clements "in recognition of his callous attitude toward childbearing, his ignorance of the tremendous contributions of self that Texas women dedicate to this state and society, and his unconscionable disregard for the health and safety of women and children."

Miss Worsham said Clements will receive a "suitable-for-framing certificate," probably by mail.

She also said the award — despite its tongue-in-cheek name — is meant to be taken seriously.

"I am angry with the governor," she said.

Miss Worsham said nominations were solicited from all members of the chapter, which has about 200 people on its mailing list.

"No one else was nominated," she said.

Hansen proposes congressional hearings on the Iranian allegations that the shah's wealth was stolen from Iran.

Tight Security Ordered By National Guard

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Guard Bureau advised all units around the country Wednesday to tighten base and armory security against possible penetration by pro-Iranian demonstrators.

Officials said the message was sent to nearly 4,400 units after an estimated 25 to 30 demonstrators forced their way into the Selfridge Air National Guard Base in Michigan Tuesday.

The officials said they understood nobody was hurt, but that an American flag was burned and some telephones were tampered with at the commander's office.

Air and Army guard units were advised to review their security procedures and to tighten control of access to guard installations.

Guard Bureau officials said they were not suggesting any additional security guards, but were attempting to alert their local commanders to be more aware of possible trouble.

Both Air and Army National Guard units were told to maintain close liaison with law enforcement agencies at all levels.

Air National Guard units were advised to "review plans and procedures for activating the base defense force if required" and to "increase gate control where possible."

Messages to Army National Guard units called for local commanders to direct special attention to security of weapons and ammunition.

It was also recommended that commanders ask for increased surveillance of their base and armory facilities by local police.

The National Guard Bureau supervises Guard units in their federal role, overseeing such things as equipment, training and management of facilities.

Iran's position in the dispute with the United States was unchanged.

"The United States returns the shah, and we will free the hostages. That's all," he said. "The hostages are here and they are very well off here."

Ghotbzadeh told the Pars news agency that Bani Sadr, who also serves as finance minister, left the foreign affairs post because he found the burden of two portfolios too great. Pars said he would retain the finance job. It was not known whether Ghotbzadeh would continue as broadcast chief.

Despite Ghotbzadeh's statement, however, it was clear Bani Sadr's international dealings in the explosive showdown with Washington had put him in conflict with the harder-line clergymen within the ruling Revolutionary Council, apparently including supreme leader Khomeini.

Bani Sadr, a mustachioed economist who became a familiar figure to the world as Iran's leading spokesman in the 3-week-old crisis, had suggested that the hostages might be freed if the United States agreed to an international inquiry into the shah's alleged crimes during his 37-year regime. The revolutionaries say the shah was responsible for the slaying and torture of large numbers of Iranians and the theft of billions in public funds.

But the embassy militants declared they would accept nothing less than surrender of the shah, and Khomeini on Tuesday repudiated the idea of an international trial, saying any investigation must be conducted inside Iran.

Diplomats at the United Nations said they feared the switch in foreign affairs chiefs might lead to an Iranian boycott of the planned Security Council meeting. The United States wants the Council to adopt a resolution condemning the hostage-taking, but some diplomats expected the Bani Sadr plan would also be taken up as a possible way out of the crisis.

U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim said he was "not happy" though still hopeful after the Iranian change. But one European diplomat, speaking privately to a reporter, described it as a "catastrophe" and said, "It is very grave." An Arab U.N. delegate said it showed that Khomeini was not interested in a Council meeting, and another Middle Eastern diplomat said it appeared the Iranians want to delay the meeting further.

State Department spokesman Hodding Carter said the United States is not likely to support a further postponement of the U.N. meeting.

Researcher Claims Exercise Should Help Diabetics Reduce Sugar Levels

BOSTON (AP) — Regular daily exercise may help diabetics and people who are overweight reduce their high levels of blood sugar, a medical researcher says.

The research, conducted at Yale Medical School, found that men who exercised regularly had a 30 percent increase in their bodies' absorption of sugar.

The study was conducted on six healthy men who pedaled stationary cycles for an hour at a time. They exercised four times a week for six weeks.

The results of the study, directed by Dr. Vijay R. Soman, were published in Thursday's issue of the New England Journal of Medicine.

In an interview, Soman said he later repeated his study on diabetic patients and that the soon-to-be published results showed exercise significantly reduced their blood sugar, too.

Thursday's study also revealed that after exercise, insulin was more likely to attach itself to the men's white blood cells, which is one of the ways that the hormone circulates through the body.

Insulin controls the body's storage and use of sugar and other fuels that are taken in as food. Insulin ensures that these fuels are kept at relatively constant levels in the blood stream.

"Most people who develop diabetes do so when they are in their 40s or 50s," Soman said. "Most of these patients have enough insulin, which indicates that they are not insulin deficient, but somehow their insulin doesn't work properly. They are resistant to the action of insulin."

"The question we have raised is, with respect to the observation in normal people, can we somehow improve sensitivity and glucose metabolism in patients with maturity-onset diabetes who are resistant to the action of insulin by having them undergo physical training? In studies which will be published later, we do have some preliminary data suggesting that yes indeed."

However, Soman said it was too soon to speculate whether exercise could take the place of insulin shots in some diabetics.

Attacker Has History Of Emotional Problems

NASHUA, N.H. (AP) — Suzanne Osgood, charged with invading the Washington offices of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy with a knife, has a long history of emotional problems but no interest in politics or the Kennedys, her family said Wednesday.

"Suzanne has been hospitalized for a schizophrenic condition at McLean Hospital in Belmont, Massachusetts, and at various state hospitals in New York, New Jersey and New Hampshire," her mother, Anne Osgood, said in a prepared statement.

"During the summer of 1978 she was hospitalized in a Nashua hospital and was brought to New Hampshire State Hospital for an evaluation, which determined her not dangerous to herself or others," Mrs. Osgood said.

"To my knowledge, Susie had no political connection with anyone," said Mrs. Osgood in an interview with The Associated Press. "I doubt very much that the girl ever voted. I have never heard her say anything about the Kennedys."

In her statement, Mrs. Osgood apologized to Kennedy and his staff for the incident and said the Osgood family "understands and sympathizes with her condition and will lend loving support to Suzanne."

"This has been a real shock to us," Joseph Bashalany, brother-in-law of Ms. Osgood, said in a telephone interview. "We can't understand this at all. She never mentioned anything about Kennedy in her entire life."

Bashalany said he had not heard from his sister-in-law for some time. "Suzanne was not in touch with her family too much," he said.

Miss Osgood, 38, was charged with assault on a federal officer Wednesday after she allegedly rushed into the reception room of Kennedy's Senate offices, yelling and brandishing a knife. One of the Secret Service agents who seized the woman was cut on a wrist.

Kennedy was in his private office, separated from the reception room by an outer office, and said later he was unaware of the disturbance.

Tom Southwick, Kennedy's press secretary, said he knew nothing of the woman's motives. He described her as "shabbily dressed" and said she "looked elderly."

Bashalany, who is married to Miss Osgood's sister, Sally, said the family could not explain the incident. He said the woman had no known political affiliations.

"The last we heard of her was that she was in Ireland," he said. "We received some presents and postcards from there." He said that was several months ago.

Possible Attack On Kennedy Intercepted

WASHINGTON (AP) — A woman, shouting incoherently and carrying a knife, was arrested Wednesday after she burst into the reception area of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's Senate office. A Secret Service agent was cut on his left wrist in the struggle to subdue the woman.

Kennedy, who was in his office, separated from the reception area by another room, said later he was unaware of the disturbance.

The incident occurred about 8:40 a.m. CST, hours before Kennedy was to fly to Iowa to resume campaigning for the 1980 Democratic presidential nomination.

Boston. She was charged with assault on a federal officer, which carries a maximum penalty of 10 years in prison.

Moments after the incident, Kennedy left his office and went across the hall to the Senate Judiciary Committee hearing room for a meeting on a bill revising the federal criminal code.

Kennedy is chairman of the Judiciary Committee and was anxious to complete the panel's work on the bill before he resumed campaigning.

Joe Meusberger, a Secret Service agent assigned to protect Kennedy, was cut on his left wrist during the struggle to subdue the woman. He was treated on the scene.

The woman was arrested with the help of the Capitol police and appeared later in the day before U.S. Magistrate Lawrence Margolis. Margolis ordered her held without bail and sent her to a mental hospital for a 60-day evaluation.

Miss Osgood, wearing a gray overcoat, looked bewildered as she was escorted into Margolis' courtroom. U.S. Attorney Carl Rauh, in asking that the woman be held without bond, told Margolis that she had previously been a patient in a mental hospital.

Rauh described the weapon taken from Ms. Osgood as a six-inch hunting knife.

Kennedy declined to comment except to say, "It was an incident that I understand is being handled by the Secret Service."

Tom Southwick, Kennedy's press aide, described the woman as "shabbily dressed."

"The key element is that the Secret Service was there, did their job, and did it extremely well," Southwick said.

Richard Burke, Kennedy's executive assistant, said that when the woman entered the reception area, "she let out a yell" and drew a knife from under her coat. None of the witnesses to the incident could say what the woman yelled.

Burke said there had not been any similar incidents in Kennedy's office.

The day after Kennedy declared his candidacy someone threw an egg at him in Chicago. The egg brushed the senator's left shoulder without breaking and then shattered on the ground.

President Carter ordered Secret Service protection for Kennedy shortly after the senator disclosed he was considering challenging the president for the 1980 Democratic nomination.

While neither the White House nor Kennedy's office would discuss threats against the senator, it was learned that there was an increase in threatening letters after he said he might run for president.

Blaze At Apartment Complex Forces Tenants To Evacuate

By JACK DOUGLAS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

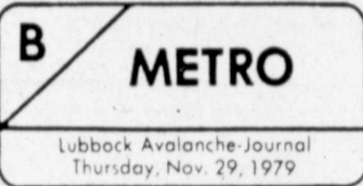

A major fire in East Lubbock Wednesday afternoon forced the evacuation of tenants from an E. Fourth Street apartment complex.

No one was injured in the two-alarm blaze at Parkway Village Apartments, 2105 E. Fourth St., which heavily damaged two apartments.

Flames licked the walls of a third apartment and smoke damage was reported in at least four other residences.

Apartment manager Robert McIntyre said several apartments in the two-story complex sustained heavy damage, but he declined to estimate a monetary loss.

A Lubbock Fire Department dispatcher said the first call on the fire was at 2:08 p.m. At 2:27 p.m., firefighters were calling for a second alarm.

Fire officials said they had not determined the cause of the blaze, but one woman resident thought a repairman's torch may have been involved.

Annie Johnson, in whose apartment the blaze was thought to have started, said, "This guy came in this morning and fixed a sink in my bathroom and he was using this torch I smelled something but I didn't think anything of it."

She said the repairman was gone when she left the apartment about 1:30 p.m. When she returned about 2 p.m., firemen were already battling the fire.

About 25 firefighters from stations one and five were called to the scene, along with five engines, one snorkel and eight other firefighting units.

Station Five Capt. Jerry Denton said the fire appeared to have started in the bedroom area of Miss Johnson's apartment and moved up the south wall to a second-floor apartment and the attic.

Fire damage also was reported in the residence on the west side of the upper-story apartment.

"There is smoke damage in four or five apartments," Denton said.

During the fire, a handful of people threw rocks at the complex, breaking windows in several of the apartments.

Firemen evacuated the tenants in the complex when the fire erupted.

Burglars Said Shifting More Time To Homes From Autos

By RICHIE REECER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The apparent decline in the popularity of citizens band radios has led to a decline in auto burglaries, a crime that was once a major headache for the Lubbock Police Department.

In the past year the number of auto burglaries has dropped significantly, according to Lubbock police detective Sgt. Doyle Nelson. But now, burglars are concentrating their efforts on individual homes, he said.

The three items most commonly stolen in residential burglaries are guns, television sets and stereos. Auto burglaries, Nelson said, have declined to the point that such thefts are almost rare occurrences.

"They just don't bother them (cars) like they used to," he said.

Nelson noted that car burglaries increased substantially a few years ago when the CB "fad" was in its heyday. A similar increase was recorded when small eight-track tape players were first introduced.

Since the CB boom of two years ago, sales of the radios have leveled off, according to several Lubbock dealers.

Nelson said auto burglaries became infrequent when 40-channel CBs were introduced, making the 23-channel models obsolete, and more importantly, cheap.

Ed Wilbanks, manager of Trice Electronics in Lubbock, agreed with Nelson's assessment. When the 40-channel models were made available last year, Wilbanks said, the 23-channel radios dropped sharply in value.

"Who wants to go to the trouble of stealing a $29 radio?" Wilbanks said. "There just isn't a market for used CBs anymore. I guess everybody already has one."

While auto burglaries have declined, residential burglaries have become more common.

Nelson said most of the burglaries committed in Lubbock are the work of narcotics addicts who either sell the stolen merchandise or trade it directly for drugs.

The goods may be sold to professional "fences," he said, or to "good people, your next door neighbor or mine."

Guns are a favorite item among drug dealers, Nelson said. When guns are traded for narcotics in Lubbock, they usually end up in Mexico, the source of most of the drug flow in this area, Nelson said.

Because stolen merchandise is worth only about half its retail value, Nelson said, an addict with a $150-per-day habit must sell at least $300-to $500-worth of merchandise each day to sustain his habit.

Capt. Bill Cox, head of the police department's juvenile division, said juvenile involvement in residential burglaries was common, "especially in the first nine or 10 months of this year."

Most juvenile crime in the city, including burglary, is committed by 16-year-olds, Cox said. Under Texas law, 17-year-olds are "totally accountable for their criminal acts," he added. However, a 17-year-old who is a previous offender may be treated as a juvenile, Cox said.

Most juveniles who commit burglary do so because they need "extra spending money," Cox said, money not necessarily spent for drugs. But he said he is certain some juveniles steal to support drug habits.

Poor To Get Winter Heating Bills Aid, CSA Director Says

By NANCY ALLEN
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Lubbock Community Services will receive about $110,000 to help low-income households pay utility bills this winter, despite a threatened lawsuit against the federal Community Services Administration by Gov. Bill Clements.

Director Archie Bottoms told the Community Services commission Wednesday that the money will be available beginning Dec. 1 to persons of limited income and assets who apply at one of the three Community Services offices in Lubbock.

In some cases, qualifying elderly persons will be given a higher priority when the funds are distributed, Bottoms said. Grants will be applied directly to fuel and electricity bills, with no money available to pay water bills.

Bottoms stressed that no cash grants will be awarded through his office. Lubbock will receive the Community Services allotment directly from the federal agency because of the threatened lawsuit, Bottoms said. Normally, funds are distributed through the state office.

Earlier this week, a high official in the Clements administration announced the lawsuit was being considered. The governor's spokesman charged federal bureaucrats with initiating an illegal distribution plan for the $6.5 million in CSA funds earmarked for Texas.

The governor's office, which heads up Texas CSA, wants to wait to see where the worst weather in the state will occur before deciding how to allocate the funds, according to TCSA Director Omar Harvey. He said some $2.5 million was distributed to residents of North Texas earlier this year by the state.

Federal CSA authorities, however, oppose the Clements plan in favor of immediate distribution of the $6.5 million through normal channels.

Bottoms takes a dim view of the lawsuit, which State Attorney General Mark White has agreed to file, saying, "It distresses me very much to see these programs, intended to help poor people, get caught up in political arguments."

Persons wishing to apply for assistance with utility bills should contact the Community Services Office at 762-6411 ext. 2300 for an appointment. Some emergency funds are available immediately, said Bottoms.

Attempted Hijacking Leads FAA To Warn Airlines Of Danger

By JOHNNY HOLMES
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Security measures at Texas major airports have not been increased because of the tense situation in Iran, but the Federal Aviation Administration has contacted the airlines and "warned them of the potential danger" of that situation.

And since an attempted hijacking at El Paso Saturday and an incident at Lubbock International Airport Monday in which a woman was arrested for attempting to carry a gun through a security checkpoint, FAA officials are "keeping a very close eye on things."

"We've not ordered any extra security at Texas airports because of Iran or the hijacking," said John Adams, chief of security at the FAA's regional office in Dallas. "When the Iranian situation began developing several weeks ago, our Washington office contacted all the regional offices and suggested we might contact all the airlines based in our area and warn them of the potential danger."

"It was just an advisory thing. It didn't change any procedures," he continued. "We've had no changes in procedure because those already in effect are working."

"We did have a breakdown somewhere in the system last weekend, and we're still trying to find out exactly what happened," Adams said, referring to an 18-year-old man's attempt to commandeer an American Airlines 727 jet from El Paso to Iran. The man, armed with a six-inch Bowie knife which was smuggled through security at San Antonio, held the passengers and crew hostage aboard the plane for 3 1/2 hours, until FBI agents stormed the plane and arrested him.

"The procedures for security we follow here at Lubbock haven't changed," said city aviation director Marvin Coffee.

"In fact, we've even been accused of being too tight here, but I don't know that we can be too tight."

Lubbock airport security officers apprehended a 43-year-old woman about 6:30 a.m. Monday after an X-ray machine detected a gun in her handbag. Lubbock police officers arrested the woman when they found a .25 caliber pistol.

Reader's Exchange

BY JEANNE LIVELY
Family News Staff

For all those who sent chocolate fudge recipes, we are planning to publish as many as we can, just in time before your Christmas candy-making gets underway. So, watch for these recipes!

Dorothy Phillips, Lubbock, sent this "Chess Pie" recipe. The recipe is similar to one that has been in her family a very long time.

CHESS PIE

3 eggs beaten
1-1/2 cups sugar
1/2 cup melted butter
1 tbsp. white cornmeal
2 tbsps. buttermilk
1 tsp. white vinegar
1/4 tsp. lemon juice
1 tsp. vanilla
1 unbaked 9-inch pastry shell

Combine ingredients, beat well. Pour into pastry shell, and bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes. Makes one pie. (Note: Dorothy says you can use oleomargarine in "this day and age". However, the original recipe called for "butter" and of course large, fresh eggs.)

For Verla Chaffin, Lubbock, here are several extra-special peanut patty recipes.

Charlene Deaton, Lubbock, sent the following:

PEANUT PATTIES

In large, heavy saucepan mix:
4-1/2 cups sugar
2-1/4 cups water
2 cups white syrup

Bring to a boil over medium heat and add a:
1-lb. package of raw Spanish peanuts.

Cook (stirring occasionally) until hard ball stage or brittle in cold water. Remove from heat and stir until quits bubbling. Add:
1/2 cup whipping cream (not whipped)
2 tbsps. oleomargarine
1 tsp. vanilla

Red food coloring, as desired

Stir until creamy (about 10 minutes) and spoon onto waxed paper. (Note: These patties keep indefinitely and also freeze well.)

Readers Swap always likes to receive old-time recipes. And although Mary Weigle, Lubbock, didn't mention it, we suspect this may be a very old recipe.

VINEGAR PIE

(From "Indian Recipes" collected by Lu-la Gibbons from the Cherokee Indians of Ok.)

1 cup sugar
2 tbsps. flour
1 tsp. butter
3 tbsps. apple vinegar
1 8-inch pie crust

Mix well sugar, flour and butter. Put vinegar into a pint cup and fill cup with water. Add to mixture. Pour into an unbaked pie crust and bake in moderate oven.

Here is another recipe from Mary:

MYSTERY PIE

3 egg whites
1 cup sugar
1/4 tsp. baking powder
1 tsp. vanilla
20 round buttery crackers, rolled fine
1 cup chopped pecans
Whipped cream

Grease a 9-inch glass pie pan. Beat egg whites until stiff, then fold in sugar, baking powder and vanilla. Beat until stiff. Fold in cracker crumbs and nuts. Pour mixture into pie pan. Bake at 350

AFTER SCHOOL WARM-UP

In saucepan combine 3 cups vegetable cocktail juice with 1/2 teaspoon Italian seasoning and 1 tablespoon butter or margarine. Heat and simmer 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Makes 6 servings.

114th STREET and SOUTH UNIVERSITY AVE

One of the nicest affairs of this, or other years, was the Young Women's Christian Association's annual International Food Fair held recently.

Gaily decorated tea tables on the main floor of the Y's O'Neil Center featured exciting hors d'oeuvres and sweets — all prepared by members of the Board of the YWCA. And recipes were furnished:

The basement was filled with up by native cooks preparing foods representative of their countries. Also astonishingly, the cooks were cooking "on the spot." Again, recipes were furnished.

Those doing demonstrations with countries represented included:
— Kathy Blakeman, Italy
— Madeline Colleoni and Jeanette Ayoub, Lebanon
— Serpal Yilmaz, Turkey
— Geita Chanda, India
— Lorena Quant and Maggie Chui, China
— Esther Fisher and Raquel Vigo, Spain.

YWCA executive director Betty Rhea Moxley's very special holiday recipe follows:

LINZER TORTE (Austria)

1 package of dry bread crumbs
Crust:
2-2/3 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1/2 cup granulated sugar
1-1/2 tsp. baking powder
3/4 cup butter or oleomargarine
1 egg
1 egg yolk
Almond Filling:
1 cup butter or oleomargarine
2 cups confectioners' sugar
2 cups ground blanched almonds
4 eggs
2 jars (12 oz. size) red raspberry jam

Grease 15 x 10 x 1-inch jelly roll pan. Sprinkle bottom and sides with bread crumbs. Make crust: sift flour, granulated sugar and baking powder together into bowl. With pastry blender, cut in 3/4 cup butter until mixture resembles fine cornmeal. With fork, beat in egg and egg yolk; knead with hands to make smooth dough. Shape into ball; divide in half.

Between two sheets of waxed paper, roll out half of dough to one end. Tuck in overhang, to make edge even with top of pan. Repeat with other half of dough, fitting into other end of pan. Press edges of dough together in center. Refrigerate while making filling. Preheat oven to 325 degrees.

To make almond filling: In medium bowl, with electric mixer, beat butter until creamy. Beat in sugar and almonds; mix well. Add eggs, one at a time; beat well after each addition. Sieve jam; spread half over crust. Top crust with filling. Bake 55 minutes, until golden. Cool in pan on wire rack. Spread remaining jam over top. Cut into 2 x 1-inch strips. Makes 75.

Jackie Golightly submitted this inspired recipe:

SCOTCH EGGS (Scotland)

3-4 lb. bulk pork sausage
12 hard cooked eggs
1 egg, beaten
1/3 cup fine dry bread crumbs
Fat for Deep Frying

Divide sausage into 12 equal portions (1-oz. each). Shape each portion into patty and wrap completely around one hard cooked egg, dip sausage covered egg into beaten egg, then roll in bread crumbs until completely coated. Cook eggs in preheated 375 degrees deep fat until golden brown and heated through, seven to nine minute minutes. Drain on absorbent paper. Serve hot or cold. Makes six servings, or 24-36 hors d'oeuvres.

Esther Fisher and Raquel Vigo prepared Mrs. Vigo's recipe of their native Argentina. The unique recipe follows:

TORTILLAS (Argentina)

3-4 med. size, peeled potatoes cut in thin slices
3/4 cup cooking oil
1 large onion, cut in thin slices
2 red pork sausages, cut in thin slices
8 eggs
Salt and pepper

Heat oil in pan, add potatoes and let them cook. Drain potatoes. Cook onion and sausages slightly, drain. Beat eggs, season with salt and pepper. Add potatoes, sausage and onion to egg mixture; stir. Pour mixture into hot pan to form the omelet. When mixture is cooked a golden brown, underneath, flip it over and let the other side get golden brown.

The International Food Fair at the YWCA was coordinated by Donna Holton.

BLUSHING TIPS

Many women make the mistake of placing blusher too close to the nose or eye areas, making the nose seem larger and the eyes smaller. Blusher looks best framing the face. When applying blusher place your finger straight up from your cheek to your eye and line it up with the outside of the iris. Start color right there and move from the outside of the iris along the bone into the temple. Finish by blending it well.

BETSEY CLARK

WHITER ICINGS

Seven-minute cake icing will be whiter and remain desirably soft if you add vinegar to the ingredients before cooking. Use one-half teaspoon white vinegar in a basic seven-minute icing calling for one-and-one-half cups sugar and two egg whites.

Hints From Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

I have devised a way to walk on icy streets.

I went to a sporting goods shop and bought three pairs of oversized men's woolen socks to put on over my boots.

While I still have to creep along at my usual snail's pace, whether the sidewalk is icy or not, I don't feel so much in danger of sliding and falling with my triple socks on over my boots.

Also, I use a sponge floor mop as a cane. It braces me nicely.

I look ridiculous, I know, but I don't care, even if it does suggest to onlookers a strange mode of transportation. Better to be upright and ridiculous than stretched out flat with a shattered tail bone. — Jane B.

How right you are, Jane! Walking on ice is slippery business and dangerous at any age, so please be cautious! — Hugs 'n' kisses, Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

When taking a small toddler shopping, take along a belt or sash to strap him into the shopping cart. This will prevent him from climbing or falling out. — Mrs. J.O.

LETTER OF THOUGHT

DEAR HELOISE:

This is in reply to Carolyn's comments concerning the handicapped.

Carolyn, I agree wholeheartedly that we should love one another, and that there is no greater joy than in sharing what we know or do with someone else.

Since each handicapped person is different, it is difficult to offer advice on coping with special problems.

It is up to each individual to use every available means to help himself. We should not burden those around us but make ourselves useful to whatever degree possible.

My disability is limited and I do not feel qualified to make suggestions for the severely handicapped except to say, "You'll never learn unless you try."

So keep trying and you will discover your own shortcuts to success! — Catherine Woodring

Many stores offer free gift wrapping for packages. I always take along a few Christmas gift cards and write the name of the person receiving the gift while the package is being wrapped. I then have the clerk tape the nametag to the package.

Sure saves a lot of time trying to figure out what package belongs to whom. — Mrs. George Hicky

DEAR HELOISE:

Tin cans take up a lot of room in trash bags and besides make holes so that other trash spills out. So, after emptying the contents from the can, I open the other end and flatten the can.

This leaves extra room for many more items in the bag, and saves on buying trash bags at the same time. — Mrs. D. Moontie

DEAR HELOISE:

Save a pin-on convention or party name tag to make a name tag for your child. Print his name on a piece of paper in big block letters and slip it into the plastic case or glue his name over yours. It is a good idea to have a child wear a name tag whenever he joins a new group — kindergarten, ballet, nursery school, etc. — where others will be trying to remember who's who. Teachers love this idea.

After a few days, store the tag in a desk or dresser drawer until needed again. — T.R.

In a rubber bridge game with strong players there is apt to be a lot of jockeying for position in the bidding.

West wanted to get his partner to play a heart contract at as low a level as possible. North also hoped to let South become the declarer in spades.

Then, after West had persisted to five hearts, North decided to jump to six spades and hope that something really good would result.

East came through with a double. He didn't really know what was going on, but he did hold the king of clubs in back of North's original club bid.

West was pretty sure that East had something in clubs for his double but West had never bid his beautiful diamond suit. He led the king of diamonds.

South ruffed in dummy, led one spade to his hand and led a heart to dummy's king and East's ace. East led his last diamond to force dummy to use up another trump, but night had fallen for the defense. South discarded a club on the queen of hearts, ruffed a club, got to dummy with a trump, ruffed another club to clear the suit, led his last trump to dummy's king and made the rest of the tricks with clubs.

Oh, yes! As East pointed out, a club lead would have beaten the slam.

To Your Good Health

By PAUL DONOHUE, M.D.
Dear Dr. Donohue: This letter may sound silly, but it is very important to me. Each day, around 2 p.m., I go through this period of fatigue that lasts for about three hours. I can hardly stay awake, or even do my work at the office. It does not matter how much lunch I eat or how many hours I sleep the night before. My health is good and I am not anemic. I eat properly. I am 27. It is just this slump I go through that drives me nuts. I have heard of biorhythms. Is this my problem? — Ms. S.T.

A "silly question" is a contradiction in terms.

If your health is good, if you have been examined, and if your blood sugar is not low during the slump periods, it may be only that your body hears the beat of a different drummer. I'm not too familiar with "biorhythms," but it is true that some people are morning types, full of energy early. Others come to life at night.

Many societies recognize the mid-day poop-out syndrome you describe. They take siestas between noon and 3 p.m. in our society. I am at a loss to advise you what to do. An examination, though, would be a good first step.

If nothing is found wrong, you and I could organize a campaign to institute the siesta on a national scale so we wouldn't get fired from our jobs. Those hours are the low points of my own day, too. I sympathize with you. Maybe I could use an examination as well.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Is it possible to have gout and have it disappear without any treatment? — N.N.

Gout symptoms may appear, then disappear. One may have an attack, then be symptom-free for a long period, for as long as a year in some cases. But if the uric acid problem exists there will be a second attack. Intervals, without symptoms tend to become shorter and the attacks more severe with passing years. The rest of your letter (deleted) indicates to me that you fall into this category, and, yes, I think you should have follow-up attention (blood tests). For more on this condition see the booklet, "Gout: The Modern Way to Control It." For a copy, send 35 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Donohue, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have read that a person can live a normal life without a spleen. Also, I have heard that persons who have had their spleen removed can be subject to infections. Which statement is correct? — B.C.F.

Both. The role of the spleen is not entirely clear, but one of its functions seems to be in providing immunities from infections. For this reason, persons who have undergone splenectomies (spleen removal) need extra protection. For example, immunization with the new pneumonia vaccine is advised for them.

Except for such precautions one can lead a normal life without the spleen.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have heard that fat can be removed surgically. If so, what is the operation called? I am 5 feet, 6 inches and weigh 170. I am interested. I am 71. P.S. My neighbors all read your column, so please reverse my initials if you use them. — J.S.

How about some brand new initials? Provided above at no cost.

Removal of fat is called "lipertomy." For a woman of your age and height you should lose about 20 pounds by sensible dieting and moderate exercise before thinking about anything as radical as lipertomy. That's like trying to kill a mosquito with an elephant gun.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am 14 and for about a year I have had severe pain and cramping and vomiting along with diarrhea during my menstrual period. I can't do anything normal, but sleep for a couple of days. What should I do? Is this normal? — D.L.S.

That amount of pain and vomiting and diarrhea definitely is not normal. See a gynecologist.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Can you comment on the rice diet? — M.R.

I believe you refer to the diet once popular among doctors treating obesity or high blood pressure. The diet consisted of daily feedings of cooked rice along with fruit juices and sugar.

Advantages cited were that the rice is relatively low in calories to begin with and that further, when cooked, there is greater volume for its calorie total. Rice is also lower in sodium, (a plus in high blood pressure).

The combination of facts made the idea appealing. However, more complete diets are possible to accomplish the same thing — weight loss. Also, drugs are available to control high blood pressure without resorting to a diet as dreary as rice and fruit.

You can lose weight if you really want to. The booklet, "Lost Secrets of Reducing," tells you how — naturally and without gimmicks — to the level best suited to your individual needs. For a copy write to Dr. Donohue, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Scottish Americans Honor Patron Saint

NEW YORK (MNS) — Each year on November 30th, several million Scottish Americans celebrate St. Andrew's Day in honor of the patron saint of Scotland.

Unlike the Irish holiday, St. Patrick's Day, there are no major public celebrations for St. Andrew. It is, however, a time for feasting and dancing.

The most formal of celebrations involve the numerous St. Andrew's Societies, social and charitable organizations, which hold banquets or dinner-dances complete with traditional Scottish dishes, songs, dances, bagpipes and kilts.

The holiday is also celebrated in the home as an excuse to gather family and friends for an evening of good food and drink.

The two most important elements of the meal are the haggis (sheep's stomach stuffed with oatmeal, onions, meat and spices) and Scotch whisky, the "water of life."

Other dishes served vary from region to region, depending on local traditions and availability of ingredients.

Table decorations almost always include an arrangement of purple heather, with tartan ribbons placed on the table leading from the centerpiece to each place setting.

Some Scots also add the four flags used in the color guard: the Saltire or flag of St. Andrew; the Lion Rampant, royal flag of Scotland; the Union Jack or British flag; and the American flag.

For an intimate St. Andrew's gathering in your own home, a well known distillery suggests the following menu from the family cookbook: cock-a-leekie soup, haggis (served with oat cakes), steak and kidney pie, brussels sprouts, boiled potatoes and Scotch whisky trifle, all washed down with a good "tot" of straight whisky.

COCK-A-LEEKIE SOUP

- 1 1/2-lb. chicken
- 2 qts. water
- A sprig of parsley
- 1 tsp. salt
- A dash of black pepper
- 6-10 leeks, sliced
- 2 tsp. white rice
- 12 prunes

Put cleaned chicken into two quarts water, adding parsley, salt, pepper and three of the sliced leeks. Cover tightly and simmer for one hour.

Strain soup, setting chicken aside. Add the remaining leeks, rice and prunes to stock.

Finely chopped chicken meat may be added for extra flavor.

Cover mixture and simmer for 30 minutes.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I have been married for five years to a man who was married before. He has a child from that marriage.

My problem is with my in-laws. My husband's mother is very friendly with his ex-wife. She invites her over for dinner once a week. They take vacations together, and exchange birthday and Christmas gifts. The same goes for my brother-in-law and sister-in-law.

Two weeks ago I had my first baby. Not a single in-law came to visit me in the hospital. No one sent a gift, or even telephoned to see how I was.

I've tried very hard to get them to like me, but nothing works. When I'm out shopping and see something I think my mother-in-law might like, I buy it for her. I have yet to see the woman wear a single thing I have given her. My mother-in-law is a great fan of yours, Ann. She is always quoting you. I hope she reads this in the paper and realizes how much she has hurt my husband and me by her attitude. Any advice? — Outside Looking In Obviously, your husband's first wife earned the love and respect of your in-laws, and she will continue to have it. Equally obvious is the fact that you were never accepted by your husband's family. After five years of the cold shoulder, I doubt that you ever will be. So, stop buying little gifts for your mother-in-law in the hope that it will generate some affection. Think about the reason you are "Outside Looking In," and look elsewhere for friendship.

kids, but I've always had to beg for every extra dollar.

A few years ago, I went into his wallet and took out $3.00. He never missed it. From then on I've been helping myself to a few dollars every week. It's amazing how a man so tight doesn't realize what's been going on. Some weeks I've taken as much as $8.00.

My bank account is growing, along with my sense of satisfaction. After all, I am his wife and I'm entitled. I feel no pangs of conscience. Am I right or wrong? — Night-Worker

Dear Ann Landers: I have been married to a stingy man for 17 years. He pays the bills and gives me a meager sum to buy a few odds and ends for the

Dear N.W.: Wrong. You should have the courage to speak up and tell your husband that he owes you a decent allowance because you are a working partner in the relationship called marriage.

Your bank account is proof that the revenge is more important to you than the money. If you needed the money, you'd be spending it — not banking it.

Miscellany

Dear Outside: Yes. Give up. You neglected to mention the circumstances of the divorce... which gives me a fairly good idea of where you fit into the picture.

Makes six servings.

SCOTCH WHISKY TRIFLE

- 1 three-oz. package of orange gelatin
  - 1 sponge cake (12-13 oz.)
  - 1/4 cup Scotch whisky
  - 1 small (6-8 oz.) can mandarin oranges, drained
  - 1 cup vanilla pudding (canned or packaged)
  - 1 cup whipped cream
  - Multicolored sprinkles (known as "hundreds and thousands" in Scotland)
- According to package instructions, dissolve 1/2 packet of gelatin in a two-quart clear crystal bowl (this will be serving bowl).

Add broken-up sponge cake and Scotch whisky. Allow the gelatin to cool until slightly firm, about 1/2 hour if refrigerated.

Add mandarin oranges, stirring gently. Cover mixture with vanilla pudding and again allow to harden slightly.

Dissolve remaining 1/2 packet of gelatin and add to mixture. Do not stir! Allow entire contents to cool and set firmly. Top with whipped cream and sprinkles.

Refrigerate until serving. Makes six servings. Other fruits and gelatin flavors may be substituted for variety.

Do you feel awkward, self-conscious — lonely? Welcome to the club. There's help for you in Ann Landers' booklet, "The Key to Popularity." Send 50 cents with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

No Extra Security Seen At Airports

 tool and two rounds of ammunition in the bag.
 The security systems, complete with X-ray machines and metal detectors, sometimes are as unpopular as they are effective, though. Coffee presented a recent example:
 "We had a doctor write us a really nasty letter recently because he had been stopped after a machine picked up a pair of scissors in his bag," Coffee said. "He demanded an apology and everything, but I wonder how he would have felt if we had let some guy with a knife that long just walk on through."

 "The airport security police were monitoring him on closed circuit TV, and judging by his actions, it's a wonder he wasn't arrested," Coffee added.

 The FAA conducts security checks at all major Texas airports at least four times per year, said Adams, "and we spot check whenever we feel like we ought to."
 "That hijacking attempt in El Paso is the first incident of a weapon being introduced through security and then being used in a hijack attempt since the new security regulations went into effect (in January 1973 for Texas airports)," Adams said. "That's not a bad record."

 "You know, our program has been so successful that the screening can sometimes get pretty boring," Adams said. "We were just sending out sort of a pep talk. If someone hijacks a bus, nobody pays too much attention, but when someone hijacks an airplane, everybody says something."

Importer Recalling 422,000 Stuffed Toys

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Consumer Product Safety Commission reports that an importer is recalling about 422,000 stuffed mobile toys which may pose a strangulation hazard to infants.
 The recall by R. Dakin & Co. of San Francisco covers eight different types of stuffed animal mobiles which are intended to be suspended from ceilings by three elastic cords.
 The commission said an 11-month-old girl strangled when she became entangled in one of the cords in her crib.
 The toys being recalled were identified as: Humbug Bee, model 34-3645; Embo Elephant, model 34-1972; Jolly Polly Parrot, model 34-3462; Stanley Stork, model 34-3653; Jingle Frog, model 34-3661; Lucky Ladybug, model 34-3662; Duckswoop, model 34-3666; and Jingle Lamb, model 34-3690.

 The toys are covered with plush fabric and contain musical chime devices. The model numbers are on a tag attached to the animal's ear.
 Imported from South Korea from January 1977 to October 1979, the toys sold nationwide for about $7.

Court Upholds Damages Against Loan Company

AUSTIN (UPI) — A Wood County loan company and two of its officers must pay a Dallas man $26,000 in damages because they solicited and obtained a criminal indictment against him in an effort to force him to pay a debt.

The Texas Supreme Court, without written comment, Wednesday upheld the judgment against Northeast Texas Credit Corporation, its president, Bruce Lloyd, and his daughter, Clara Ziegler.

James M. Myers, who lived in Wood County at the time, borrowed $298.25 from the credit company in October of 1973 and pledged his television, refrigerator, and clothes washer and dryer as security.

He moved to Lamar County in April 1974 but, failing to make enough money there to meet his living expenses, fell behind in his payments to the credit company.

In June of 1974, the company sent him a letter warning that unless he paid $18 a week on the debt, he would lose his appliances.

Later that summer, Myers and his family moved to Dallas for another job but never managed to earn more than $500 a month. Although he made periodic payments, Myers remained up to two or three payments behind on his note.

Ziegler and Lloyd persuaded the Wood County attorney to seek an indictment against Myers for theft of goods — the appliances. The county attorney said Ziegler and Lloyd failed to inform him they had never owned the merchandise, and he believed Myers had purchased the appliances from the credit company.

A Wood County grand jury indicted Myers for theft, but that charge later was dismissed.

Myers filed suit against the company, Ziegler and Lloyd for malicious criminal prosecution and unreasonable collection efforts.

A trial court ordered the three defendants to pay $15,000 in damages and assessed $3,000 exemplary damages against Lloyd, $3,000 against Ziegler and $5,000 against the corporation.

The Supreme Court upheld that judgment without written comment.

Deaf Awareness Week Heralds Time To Overcome 'Awkwardness,' Myths

By NANCY ALLEN
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Much has been written and said about the deaf and the special problems they face. To many hearing people, they are condemned to life in a silent world, with little hope of cracking the communication barrier between themselves and the world where sound is all-important.

Sign language, expensive machines, and interpreters are beyond the realm of concern of many hearing Lubbockites who may assume they have no part to play in the life of someone without hearing.

That does not have to be so, says Colleen Harmon, a Lubbock interpreter for the deaf. People with no special skills relating to the deaf can make inroads into the silence when they encounter a deaf person by simply "taking time and being flexible to find out how to communicate with that individual person," she says.

This week has been highlighted as Deaf Awareness Week in Lubbock "to create an awareness among hearing people that they can help overcome the awkwardness of communicating with a deaf person," says Miss Harmon.

"There's always that moment of 'fight or flight,' when a hearing person encounters a deaf person," she continued. "Some people will do their best to communicate, while others will feel uncomfortable and avoid it."

She described the "terrible isolation" felt by persons deaf from birth. "When you think about it, sound gives the world its aliveness," Miss Harmon commented.

While an unskilled hearing person can do nothing to restore sound to a deaf person's world, he can make it richer by pausing to communicate the best way he can.

"There aren't any pat answers to how to do it," stressed Miss Harmon. "We want to encourage people to find out which way an individual deaf person communicates best. Maybe he or she lip-reads or maybe he'd rather just write it down.

In lip-reading, the hearing person should speak more slowly but not abnormally slowly, said Miss Harmon, and not exaggerate the formation of words. "It's easier to read a mouth forming the word normally," she said. If the deaf person doesn't understand at first, try rephrasing the sentence, she continued.

"Many hearing people feel all of a sudden they have to take complete responsibility for communication when they encounter a deaf person," Miss Harmon said. "They should give some of that responsibility back to their deaf partner."

While communication keeps people in touch with the world around them, it also keeps themselves in touch with themselves, she added. "It's of utmost importance."

Often when a hearing person encounters a deaf person he never realizes it, according to Miss Harmon. "Many times the deaf hide their deafness and simply point to an item in a store or on a menu because it's easier," she said.

According to estimates, there are some 175 deaf persons — those who communicate mainly through sign language — in Lubbock. Many of them are school children from a 20-county area who attend programs in the Lubbock Independent School System, says Audrey Banks of the Lubbock County Services for the Deaf.

Sign language classes for hearing students make adjusting to deafness easier for both the deaf and hearing students, Miss Harmon says.

Evening classes in sign language are available for adults through several Lubbock schools, often at no cost. Miss Harmon says it "takes about a year" to get a working knowledge of signing, and after that time many people can qualify for a first-level interpreter's certificate. "We need interpreters desperately," she commented.

Deaf Awareness Week is sponsored by the Heart of the Plains Registry of Interpreters for the Deaf, Lubbock County Services for the Deaf and the Lubbock Independent School District Program for the Deaf.

Volunteers from those agencies will have a booth in South Plains Mall Saturday from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. They will feature "magic hands" demonstrating sign language, and answer any questions.

Lubbock City Council To Decide On Renaming Of Avenue

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A Lubbock City Council decision on whether to rename Quirt Avenue in honor of Martin Luther King Jr. is expected today.

The Human Relations Commission requested the street name change to honor the slain civil rights leader and indicate city responsiveness to the wishes of the minority community.

However, many others have been applying behind-the-scenes pressure on council members to convince them not to alter the street name.

An informal poll of council members two weeks ago showed two members for the change, two against and one who refused to give his position.

Councilman Bill McAlister has said he would like the council to approve an alternative memorial to King, and that also is expected to be discussed at the 9:30 a.m. meeting in council chambers.

The council also will be asked to set in motion the mechanics for the March 1 sale of $6.45 million in general obligation bonds.

Anticipating legal challenges by city hall critic Jimmy Marshall, the council will be asked to authorize a district court suit to validate the bonds. That procedure was used successfully a year ago when $9.5 million in bonds were validated.

Of the total $6.45 million bond sale, more than $5 million would be used for water projects, including initial work on the Justiceburg reservoir project and the construction of a 500-million-gallon storage and treatment facility for water from the Canadian River Municipal Water Authority.

Another $800,000 would be allocated for improvements and extensions to the city's sanitary sewer system and $568,000 would be earmarked for street improvements.

Voters approved a $26.4 million bond issue in May 1977, but only $11.2 million of that amount has been sold because of litigation.

Council members also are expected to discuss launching a tax-exempt mortgage bond program which would generate $25 million for low-interest loans to low and moderate income home buyers.

Local lenders indicated their opposition to such a program at a meeting with the council in August, but council members decided to seek the lenders' views again in light of skyrocketing mortgage interest rates and the almost total lack of conventional money for home loans in Texas.

Additionally, the U.S. House is pondering restrictions on the popular bond programs because of the drain on the Treasury, and it is still uncertain what form those regulations will take or whether Lubbock would be permitted to start a tax-exempt bond program.

The council will be asked to approve a resolution which would authorize the start of acquisition of land for a half-block wide park in Overton South near Carroll Thompson Junior High School.

Three parcels of land would be purchased this year with federal Community Development funds to begin the park land acquisition at a cost of $54,500 if the council approves the resolution.

The entire cost of acquiring the land and developing the 2.5-acre park is expected to be more than $672,000.

Burl Masters, representing Texas Bank, will ask the council to remove a portion of the median on University Avenue to allow southbound traffic to turn eastward onto 20th Street.

A similar request was denied by the council in 1975.

If approved by the council, the median cut would cost the city $26,800 to remove the median, relocate street lights and make adjustments to the irrigation equipment in the median.

The council also is scheduled to decide whether two Overton South houses owned by the First Baptist Church will be made landmarks.

A final decision on the landmark status was postponed at the last council meeting to allow the church to continue attempts to sell the houses.

The council said it would not purchase the endangered houses, so if no buyer is found, the houses likely will be moved or demolished.

Also at the meeting, the council is expected to:

— Consider appropriating $20,000 from bond funds for installation of a traffic signal at 82nd Street and Slide Road.

— Consider selecting an engineering firm to study the feasibility of an overpass or underpass at East 34th Street and Quirt Avenue.
— Discuss leasing a portion of the fire station at 30th Street and Texas Avenue to Emergency Medical Services for use as an ambulance station.

— Discuss a gas contract between Lubbock Power and Light and Pioneer Natural Gas.

Bids For New Jail Wing To Be Opened

Lubbock County commissioners will learn the final price tag on construction of a third wing to the new county jail when bids are opened today.

Bids to be opened at 4 p.m. Thursday are for general construction and other phases of the addition.

With two wings now close to completion, the commissioners court has been faced with the problem of expanding the structure by a third section to handle current jail population increases.

Sheriff C.H. "Choc" Blanchard earlier reported to the commissioners that daily inmate occupancy in the jail now has reached an average of 225. Capacity in the new jail with only two of the wings completed would be only 245.

The cost of the third wing, however, has risen by 50 percent since bids were originally let in July 1978, contractors told commissioners.

HEW Issues Non-Coverage Medicare Rule

WASHINGTON (AP) — Medicare beneficiaries must pay for non-covered services only if their doctor gave them written notice in advance that the government would not pay for the procedure, an H.E.W. agency said Wednesday.

"Patients don't have to pay for items or services if they had no way of knowing the service was not covered by Medicare," H.E.W.'s Health Care Financing Administration said in issuing a new regulation.

It is intended to clarify an old rule under which some health care providers and insurance intermediaries simply told patients verbally that Medicare would not reimburse them.

RUBEN BONILLA

LULAC President To Be Guest Speaker At Tech

Immigration policies and the political impact of the Hispanic vote in the presidential election in 1980 will be among the topics of Ruben Bonilla, national president of the League of United Latin American Citizens, who will speak at Texas Tech University on Dec. 4.

Bonilla's appearance is part of the World-at-Large Forum, sponsored monthly by University Center Activities. The address, at 7:30 p.m. in the University Center, is free and open to the public.

"Presidential politics is a critical issue for Hispanics," Bonilla said. "We hold pivotal votes in southwestern states and Texas is a key state because of its electoral votes."

Bonilla said Texas and Colorado have the largest Hispanic populations and because of that, he said, "Texas and Colorado can determine who may be the next president, depending on how close the race is."

Now, if the patient did not get a written notice, Medicare will reimburse the patient, minus deductibles, and recover the fees from the doctor.

Medicare does not pay for services it regards as reasonable or unnecessary, and it does not pay for custodial care.

The new rule takes effect 30 days from its publication in the Federal Register on Thursday.

Message To Washington

MESSAGE — I am the head of an organization in our county that assists senior citizens in various ways and I am very concerned about a bit of news I just heard. Due to energy problems, the Social Security Administration is planning to cut back the weekly visits of its representatives to once a month. Many of the elderly and disabled resident of our community cannot drive and this would be a true hardship for them since they would have to find a way to get all the way to San Antonio. Anyway, it would seem to make more sense energy-wise for one Social Security representative to drive to our town than for many older Texans to drive to another town. Can anything be done? M.V. — Lemming

SENATOR BENTSEN RESPONDS — Something has been done. Weekly service has been restored to your county. Social Security officials agreed that the cutback resulted in problems not savings.

MESSAGE — If the following facts are true, they demonstrate further the bureaucratic morass into which this country has fallen. It seems that a family of 10 — eight children — was evicted from a federally subsidized housing unit simply because HUD rules require each child to have his own bedroom. Since when has the sharing of a bedroom by children become so horrendous? The father in this family happens to be a disabled vet who is going to night school and if anyone deserves government help, he does. You elected officials are not doing your jobs if this and similar nonsense is permitted to continue in our government. J.Z. — Houston

SENATOR BENTSEN RESPONDS — HUD officials report that the facts are wrong. There is no regulation requiring that each child in federally subsidized housing have a bedroom — that would be truly ridiculous. The 10-member family in the incident you cite was living in a very small three bedroom apartment designed for six persons and HUD is presently working to find them more suitable accommodations. I am enclosing a copy of the HUD occupancy regulations for your review. I think you will agree that they outline a realistic and flexible policy for assigning apartment units.

Do you have a problem with government? MESSAGE TO WASHINGTON cuts through the red tape to get answers to your questions about Social Security, veterans benefits, immigration matters and other problems you may have run into in your dealings with the Federal Government in Washington. Write MESSAGE TO WASHINGTON, c/o Senator Lloyd Bentsen, U.S. Senate, Washington, D.C. 20510. Inquiries to MESSAGE TO WASHINGTON are sometimes edited before publication, but the intent and substance of the inquiries are maintained.

Guest Speaker To Discuss Children's Rights

Giving children the rights, responsibilities, and independence of adults is the philosophy of John Holt, author of seven books on learning and education.

Holt will discuss "Learning vs. Education" at the Texas Tech University Center Theater at 8:15 p.m. Thursday.

Holt, 56, who shies from disclosing any information about his own education, believes elementary school children do not learn but instead seek to avoid mistakes, trouble and danger. These adult pleasing strategies kill most of their natural curiosity and intelligence he says.

"Instead of Education," his most recent book, details a way to break the school monopoly on learning and make it easier in all parts of society for independent learners to have access to the tool resources and people who will help them learn what they want to know.

Holt has taught English, French, mathematics and other subjects and coached soccer and baseball for various age levels. His last two teaching jobs were as a visiting lecturer at the Harvard University Graduate School and the University of California at Berkeley during the 1968-69 academic year.

He since has worked in Boston as editor and publisher of "Growing Without Schooling," a bi-monthly magazine on home education.

Tickets for the lecture are $2.50 for Texas Tech students and $3.50 for the public and are available at the University Center Ticket Booth.

Hospital, Windfall Tax Votes Highlight Pre-Holiday Session

WASHINGTON — Here's how area Members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes in the days before the Thanksgiving recess.

HOUSE

CONTROLLING HOSPITAL COSTS By a vote of 234 for and 166 against, the House killed proposed federal ceilings on hospital costs. This vote substituted a voluntary price-watching mechanism for mandatory federal price controls. It created a 15-member presidential commission to oversee and reinforce hospitals' voluntary efforts to slow the rise in their bills. The bill (HR 2626) was sent to the Senate.

The mandatory controls scuttled by this vote would have been triggered when hospital costs nationwide rose by a certain percentage. In 1980, for example, a hike of more than 11.6 per cent would have activated the ceilings. Hospitals in violation were to have been heavily fined. The Carter Administration favored the plan and the American Hospital Association and American Medical Association opposed it.

Rep. Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., who led move to kill mandatory controls, said the president commission will "keep even more pressure on hospitals to keep their voluntary program going, to improve it, to make it better."

Rep. Charles Rangel, D-N.Y., a foe of the voluntary approach, referred to the commission and said: "I submit that no member in this House can go back home and suggest that the question of the increased cost of hospital care needs any further study."

Members voting "nay" favored federal ceilings on hospital costs.

Reps. Manuel Lujan, R-1, and Harold Rummels, D-2, Samuel Hall, D-1, Charles Wilson, D-2, James Collins, R-3, Jim Mattox, D-5, Phil Gramm, D-6, Bill Archer, R-7, Jack Brooks, D-9, Jackie Pickle, D-10, J. Marvin Leath, D-11, Jack Hightower, D-13, Joe Wyatt, D-14, Richard White, D-16, Charles Stenholm, D-17, Kent Hance, D-19, Tom Loeffler, R-21, Ron Paul, R-22, Abraham Kazen, D-23, and Martin Frost, D-24, voted "yea."

Reps. Bob Eckhardt, D-8, Mickey Leland, D-18, and Henry Gonzalez, D-20, voted "nay."

Reps. Ray Roberts, D-4, James Wright, D-12, and Kika de la Garza, D-15, did not vote.

SOLAR PROJECT The House passed, 201 for and 146 against, a bill to spend $25 million this year on research that could be one small step toward developing solar-energy satellites. The research would be in addition to a $16 million study due to be completed in 1980. Such satellites would gather energy from the sun and convert it to a major supply of electricity on earth. The bill (HR 2335) was sent to the Senate.

Advocates say solar satellite development is a high-risk, high-promise venture that the nation must seriously consider if it is to achieve energy-independence. Foes like the concept but caution against rushing heading into the most expensive military or civilian project ever undertaken by the government — a $70 billion research and development venture, according to the Office of Management and Budget.

Rep. Dan Glickman, D-Kans., a supporter, said nuclear power should not be the nation's only long-term energy alternative, and added that "it would be negligent for us not to at least explore" the energy potential of solar satellites.

Rep. Bob Carr, D-Mich., an opponent, said the House "should not panic in a way that haste makes waste," and should wait until the ongoing $16 million study is completed before beginning more solar-satellite research.

Members voting "yea" favored the bill.

Hall, Wilson, Gramm, Archer, Eckardt, Brooks, Pickle, Leath, Wright, White, Stenholm, Hance, Gonzalez, Loeffler, Kazen and Frost voted "yea."

Collins, Mattox, Leland and Paul voted "nay."
Lujan, Roberts, Hightower, Wyatt and de la Garza did not vote.

SENATE

WINDFALL PROFITS The Senate rejected, 32 for and 58 against, an amendment to cut from 75 to 60 per cent the tax rate on "windfall profits" from so-called old oil. Such profits accrue to oil companies as a result of the ongoing removal of federal controls from the price of domestic crude oil.

Old oil, that discovered before May, 1973, accounts for about one-third of domestic production. It was selling at $6 per barrel before gradual decontrol was begun this year. Now it is rising toward the world market price, which is $23 and rising. The amendment, offered to an oil-taxation bill (HR 3919) still under debate, was favored by the oil industry and opposed by the Administration.

Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kans., the sponsor, said: "The question is, how much should the tax be? Should it curtail oil production? Should it make us more dependent on OPEC sources of oil? The senator from Kansas believes it should not."

Sen. John Chafee, R-R.I., an opponent, said both the Energy Department and Congressional Budget Office conclude that production of old oil will be about the same under a 75 per cent windfall-profits tax as under a 60 per cent rate.

FDA Urges Makers Of Tanning Booths To Install Safeguards

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration wants manufacturers of tanning booths to install special safeguards or the agency may take regulatory action against the fledgling franchise business for people who want instant tans.

The agency said it is worried that people could get severe sunburns or otherwise harm themselves in the booths if they stay too long or fall. It suggested that manufacturers place shields around sunlamps and install handrails and other safeguards.

If the manufacturers do not voluntarily modify their booths, "the FDA is prepared to take regulatory action," the agency said in a letter sent last week to manufacturers.

The agency estimates that up to 1,000 tanning huts have sprung up around the country. Most are in free-standing franchise operations, but some booths are in beauty parlors and barber shops. Customers usually are required to sign up for a series of brief visits.

The FDA said it investigated tanning booths after receiving reports of five injuries. Four involved sunburns and one involved a man who grew dizzy, toppled over and cut himself against the lamps. The FDA said the temperatures in the booths should be kept below 100 degrees Fahrenheit to insure that people do not faint.

The ultraviolet lights in the booths, which are usually about four-foot-square with sunlamps on the ceiling and reflecting paper on the walls, can be six times more intense than the sunlamps people buy for home use, according to FDA spokesman Bill Rados.

SLA Member Tells Story

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A charter member of the Symbionese Liberation Army says SLA leader Donald "Cinque" DeFreeze was wild with excitement and claimed responsibility after the slaying of an Oakland school superintendent, a newspaper says.

Robyn Sue Steiner, 27, now living in England under an assumed name, described DeFreeze's reactions in the third of a five-part series of interviews in Wednesday's editions of the San Francisco Chronicle.

Miss Steiner said DeFreeze "death warrant" against her, fled shortly before the SLA's 1974 kidnapping of Patricia Hearst Shaw, the newspaper reported. The newspaper heiress was later convicted of participating in a bank robbery with SLA members.

DeFreeze died with several followers in a 1974 gun battle with Los Angeles police.

Miss Steiner said DeFreeze insisted that his shots killed superintendent Marcus Foster in 1973, although he acknowledged the participation of SLA members Nancy Ling Perry and Patricia Soltsysik, known as Mizmoon, the newspaper said.

She recalled he said, "I know we've agreed nobody would take sole responsibility, but I've no doubts I killed that pig. I've done it!"

Miss Steiner said she does not believe that Russell Little participated in the ambush. Little, convicted with SLA member Joseph Remiro in 1975, is awaiting a retrial on murder charges in the case.

Miss Steiner added that DeFreeze "always sounded as if the SLA had a cast of millions, but we never numbered more than 12."

Movie To Portray Doctor's Life

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — Heart transplant pioneer Dr. Christian Barnard says he has signed an agreement with a film producer for rights to a movie on his life.

The film, which Barnard said would be produced by Tom Richards, reportedly might be partly financed by King Khalid of Saudi Arabia, one of his patients.

Barnard said he would be guaranteed a minimum of $500,000 plus 11 percent of the film's proceeds.

DR. BARNARD

Mucho Money Minute

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Cheryl Thorgaard made $7,751 for a minute's effort.

She got to scoop up as much as she could from a $100,000 mountain of $1 bills piled in front of a bank vault Tuesday. Miss Thorgaard had won a WOKY radio station promotion contest.

"I decided to grab bunches of money and grab a few bundles if I had an extra arm," said Miss Thorgaard, 22.

In her first trip to the bountiful pile, she scooped a mighty armload of the $1 bills, dumping it into a red container 20 feet away. The singles and a few $50 packages that slipped from her grasp were picked up by bank officials.

The rules said anything Miss Thorgaard dropped didn't count.

Although subsequent loads were somewhat smaller than her first, Ms. Thorgaard made five trips to the pile.

"Whatever it is, I'll use it for my apartment," said Miss Thorgaard, who will graduate in December from University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee. She plans to move from her parents' home next spring.

Robber Big Tipper

NEW YORK (AP) — A cab driver who delivered a passenger to the Mayfair Regency Hotel early Sunday got a fat tip from a man who police think could well afford it. Officers suspect the man was robbing the push hotel.

A passenger tried to pay the unidentified cabbie with a $50 bill after arriving at the hotel from Kennedy Airport, police said.

The cabbie couldn't break a bill that large, so the passenger went into the hotel to get change. When the man did not return, the cabbie rang the hotel's night bell.

The bell was answered, police said, by another man who paid the driver the $18 fare and added a $10 tip.

Police say the man who paid the fare might have been one of five thieves who at the time were taking $250,000 in cash and jewels from the hotel's vault.

The passenger presumably had become one of the gang's hostages.

Youth To Meet With Sadat

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — A 12-year-old boy from Easley, S.C., will be the guest of the Egyptian government next month and will meet with President Anwar Sadat.

Sam Brown was invited to Egypt after he wrote to Sadat last spring, saying he supported his efforts to bring peace to the Middle East.

Janet McKenzie, a spokeswoman for Egypt's tourist office in New York, said Tuesday that arrangements have been made for the boy to leave for Egypt on Dec. 17 and return Dec. 24, with the Egyptian government paying his way.

Sam's parents, Donald and Sybil Brown, will not go along, but an Egyptian government representative will accompany him during his tour, Miss McKenzie said.

Miss McKenzie said she didn't know why Sadat singled out Sam's letter. "He was the one who read the letter and was very moved and extended the invitation," she said.

Transplant Patient Celebrates

MARSEILLE, France (AP) — The world's longest-surviving heart transplant patient, Emmanuel Vitria, celebrated the 11th anniversary of his operation Wednesday with a quiet day at home.

"This year, I prefer to be at home with my family," said Vitria, 59, who received a new heart in 1968 at the Jules Cantini Medical Center in Marseille. "For my 15th anniversary, I'll have a big celebration."

Before the transplant, Vitria had suffered from what doctors called a post-traumatic aneurism, or rupturing of a blood vessel, and had been hospitalized for two months.

The donor of the heart was Pierre Ponson, 20, oldest son of a family of six children. Ponson, fatally injured in a truck accident, had persuaded his parents during the eight days before he died to allow him to donate his heart.

Bus 300 Miles From Home

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (AP) — A San Francisco Muni bus seemed a bit out of place heading south on Interstate 5 in the southern San Joaquin Valley, 300 miles from its home base.

So highway patrolmen Matthew Sanchez and Mario Flores ran a check early Tuesday and found out from San Francisco police that a Muni bus indeed had been stolen.

The patrolmen then stopped the bus driver, who said he was the mayor of San Francisco, highway patrol spokesman Bob Burdick said.

The officers didn't buy that story, especially since San Francisco's mayor is a woman.

The bus was confiscated and a man identified by his driver's license as Ronnie Baby Foxy, 42, was booked for investigation of grand theft auto, authorities said.

Sugar Plant Closing Rumors Denied

A-J Correspondent
HEREFORD — A rumor that the Holly Sugar Corporation's Hereford plant will close was touched off early this week when a New York based firm called for the liquidation of Holly Sugar Corp.

But a spokesman for the local Holly plant reported Wednesday that excellent production and the most attractive sugar market in many months are ample reasons for Holly to stay on in Hereford.

A wire service story Tuesday touched off concern over the continued presence of the Holly beet processing plant here.

The report indicated that a New York firm was calling for Holly's liquidation, claiming Holly stock should be valued at $100 per share. According to Calvin Jones, agricultural manager of the Hereford Holly plant, Holly stock closed at $50 per share Tuesday, marking an impressive climb from $18 per share only a week to 10 days earlier.

Holly's corporate headquarters in Colorado Springs issued a statement on stock activities last week. Holly officials indicated they had no information concerning the reason for the drastic stock activity.

Holly indicated it had been advised by counsel for Irwin L. Jacobs, a Holly stockholder, of a call by Jacobs for liquidation of the Holly firm due to his dissatisfaction with management of the company.

Jacobs indicated he holds 155,700 shares, or 9.8 percent, of Holly's outstanding stock.

In June 1978, Jacobs had expressed an interest in purchasing the assets of Holly, but in September of last year stated it was no longer his intent to acquire control.

Jones was at a loss to explain the activities of Jacobs or the New York firm, but emphasized that the Holly Sugar Corp. Hereford plant is in the Panhandle to stay.

"We're planning on being here. We have good growers to produce our product and a good market for our sugar. The sugar market has improved in the last month, and sugar consumption is projected to exceed production in 1980," Jones said.

The rumors of a Holly pullout came during one of the best sugar beet harvests in the Hereford area in recent years. Sugar content of the 1979 beet crop is a full percentage point above 1978, and will bolster income for sugar producers in the region.

Squid can be as tiny as minnows or as large as whales, according to National Geographic. Squid can weigh as much as two tons and can be as tall as a six-story building from the tops of their heads to the tips of their arms.

Woman's Fantasies Elusive After Arrest

By JACK DOUGLAS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A Lubbock woman, presently on six months probation and now facing two more criminal charges, once thought that at this stage of her life, "I would be a nurse and be married to some wonderful man and have three children and a perfect life."

"That was my fantasy."

But as the attractive 27-year-old, who does not want to be identified, knows, things don't always turn out the way you want them to.

After leaving a successful husband and a young son in California 2½ years ago to be with an old high school sweetheart in Lubbock, she has been convicted of unlawful carrying of a weapon and faces charges of possession of a controlled substance and car theft.

The slender brunette said she was briefly addicted to narcotics, but has escaped their hold. In a recent interview, she readily admitted running along the criminal element in Lubbock.

"I know people who have killed people."

The woman does not blame bad luck or past hardships for her present predicament. "I was doing something illegal — we all were. And there's a cause and effect. We got busted."

She's convincing when she says she wants to change. To leave Lubbock, go back to school in California and learn to be a medical assistant.

And possibly get back with her husband and son.

Those are the things she hopes to accomplish after making restitution for the wrongs she has committed in the past. And, with the possible exception of her family and old friends, she has hurt no one but herself.

In her most recent scrapes with the law, she and a friend were arrested in July when four Lubbock policemen rushed through the door of their small apartment and found a quantity of amphetamines — better known as "speed."

Both had injected themselves with the illegal drug when they were surprised by the officers armed with a search warrant. "All I know is that they kicked the door in and there I was; it was over," she said.

The woman's only problem before the officers broke in was finding a vein to place the needle. "He was a lot higher than I was," she said of her companion. "I was glad because I didn't want to go to jail high. I don't care if they (police) know about it. It's just hard to handle. It intensifies everything."

She said that even straight it's no joy getting arrested. "It's awful. It's the worst experience I ever had in my life. You become unhuman, you become an object."

Like a Bonnie and Clyde episode, the woman did not start running afoul of the on a normal conversation with somebody. I'm getting to where I can now, but I couldn't for a while.

"And the ones I know, I don't see where they have any great desire to get out of it right now."

She managed a small smile when she told of a run-in with a small-town policeman about a year ago. She said the officer pulled her over for being out at 4 a.m. and began flirting with her while she sat in a getaway car for two companions who were in the process of burglarizing a nearby drug store.

"He just wanted to know what I was doing at four in the morning. Then he decides he wants to go out with me, so I talk with him a couple of hours," she said. "While the burglars waited, 'We went and had coffee,' she said.

"He was telling me how many police ported stolen.

The woman's first confrontation with Lubbock police occurred when she and a friend were caught with a pistol. She was convicted and sentenced to six months probation for unlawful carrying of a weapon.

Her present problems did not begin until she left her husband and son in California.

"I had a nice home with a swimming pool. I went to school. I was going to be a registered nurse. I made excellent grades. We had what everyone thinks of as a perfect family."

"My husband was home every day at the same time. He totally provided for me, put no demands on me." She admits she had it better than she thought at the time.

"He was probably the only person who understood me in my entire life. He understood me so well that he gave me the freedom I had to have to find out what I needed in my life, which is pretty hard to do."

With a pensive look, the young woman says, "Sometimes I wish I could just erase the last few years of my life, just go back to the way I was. But I was miserable then, too. Miserable in being dissatisfied. I don't know why I was dissatisfied, I just was."

She wants to go back to her husband, and she is not sure he won't take her back. She does not want her son to grow up in a split family. "I don't want to bring him up in a divorced family. I was brought up that way, and I didn't like it."

She said she has been scarred somewhat by the "verbal abuse" dished out by some of the officers involved in her numerous arrests, adding that "when the handcuffs are put on so tight the circulation stops, there's no need for that."

She admitted, however, that being caught may have kept her from getting in deeper trouble. "I might have destroyed my body or my health. Somebody could have given me some bad dope or something."

"I'm not happy about having charges against me, but it did make me snap when they arrested me. It was beneficial."

"In a funny way, I'm glad that I did get busted . . . except for the consequences."

"I was doing something illegal — we all were. And there's a cause and effect. We got busted."

law until she joined an old boyfriend, whom she first met in a ninth grade math class. He recently was jailed after being convicted of a criminal offense.

Her social life began to fill with criminal types and fugitives from justice. "There were people in the upper society and all the way down. We knew the pimps and the whores and the dealers — there was the whole group."

Asked if they were dangerous, she answered, "All criminals are dangerous if you get them into a corner."

She adds, "Most people I know that are doing drugs and illegal things, they're just lost. It's like they're running from something. If they get high enough, or can stay high all the time, they can draw out whatever the hell is bugging them."

"And you have to hang out with drug addicts because you have nothing in common with anyone else. I can hardly carry cars he had on duty, and that his wife worked at nights. Also, if I came back up there the following night we could go out and drive around in his cop car."

"And we could leave the city with no one knowing about it and go fool around. Of course, I went along with it. I would have told him anything to have gotten rid of him."

She said that after shaking the policeman, she picked up one of her companions. "He was having a cardiac."

She asked her the other man was and he told her, "I don't know, let's just get out of here." However, they located the third person and left town with a small amount of loot from the business.

"I didn't even want to be there that night. It does not thrill me to be doing that, but they thought it would look good if there was a woman in the car; that it would look less suspicious. I was angry that I didn't have enough sense of worth not to be up there in the first damn place."

The outing proved costly for her. Texas Rangers arrested her several days later in Lubbock after it was learned the vehicle used in the break-in had been re-

REGIONAL ROUNDUP

Farmers To Strip Cotton For Cone Man

CONE (Special) — Bill Ashley, a Cone farmer recuperating from second and third degree burns he received in an October accident, won't have to worry about how he'll harvest his 60 acres of cotton. Neighboring farmers are planning to meet at the Ashley farm shortly after noon today to harvest the crop.

The farmers are bringing their strippers to harvest the cotton for Ashley, 49, who only was allowed to return home Nov. 21 to continue his recuperation.

Ashley, the father of two children, was burning cockle burrs late in October when a diesel can, apparently filled with gasoline, exploded.

Ashley was able to run to a well-house and douse the flames on the front of his legs, before his wife, Grace, heard him scream and ran to put out flames on the back of his legs.

The victim has undergone two series of skin grafts at Methodist Hospital in Lubbock.

Welch Man Named CAP Wing Head

A-J Correspondent

WELCH — Col. Ronald Rides of Welch has been named head of the Texas Wing for the Civil Air Patrol.

Raney was appointed wing commander at the Texas wing conference held in Amarillo in October.

Raney helped form the Lamesa squadron and also worked to secure local funds to build the CAP facilities at the Municipal Airport.

He joined the CAP in October, 1967.

THE SUPERMARKET SHOPPER

By MARTIN SLOANE

Some refunders don't collect proofs of purchase the way you and I do. They are not satisfied with cutting out box tops and universal-product-code symbols one at a time. For them, the excitement of refunding is making a "secret connection" that will get them bushel baskets of POPs.

What's a "secret connection?"

Shhhh! I'll tell you if you can keep a secret.

A refunder recently revealed to me that one of the waitresses at the local diner was her secret connection.

Once a week they meet behind the recipe books at the public library. When they are certain they are not being observed, a brown bag is passed from one to the other.

What's in the bag? Hundreds of empty Sanka envelopes!

Laundromat owners can be excellent secret connections. This is the way you do it:

When you first meet the owner, don't be nervous. Just say hello and compliment him or her on the clean washers and dryers.

The following week get the owner talking about his or her hobbies. After a few weeks he or she will look forward to seeing you.

Then, one day when the owner's natural defenses are down, ask the crucial question:

"You wouldn't mind if I went through your trash and cut the box tops off the detergent boxes, would you?"

How can the owner say no? He or she will never know you have a new Maytag in your basement.

The refunder's secret motel connection is difficult and often dangerous! This type of undercover work should only be attempted by the most dedicated of refunders.

It requires the cooperation of one of the motel maids, and this isn't easy to get. You can't just sit down, ask for a cup of coffee and start talking to them. And you can't compliment them on the clean washers and dryers.

Obviously there are dangers in being seen too often around the local motel. But the pot at the end of the motel rainbow is often worth the risk. Can you imagine stripping the wrappers off a whole supply room full of Charmin?

Someday someone will write an epic novel about the unsung heroes and heroines of refunding and their secret connections. Adventure, intrigue, romance — all the elements are there for a big best-seller.

P.S. If you are a refunder with a secret connection, please write to me in care of this newspaper and tell me all about it. I'll keep it a secret.

Placing Your Bets

IF I STILL HAD A BEARD, this would be a great time to lean back in my chair and thoughtfully stroke it.

In fact, I might even be inclined to pull out every single hair — one by one. Because it's time for a very trying chore — making those preseason Southwest Conference basketball predictions. All nine conference teams will begin the 1979-80 cage campaign this weekend.

But the beard is gone now and hopefully so is the misspelling fool that went with it. That former Texas Tech basketball coach's name is Polk Robison — not Robinson as I incorrectly reported Tuesday.

The conference season doesn't start until January but even that's approaching awfully fast. And to my way of thinking, this predicting business ranks as the most difficult task in this profession. After all, preseason picks are as old as sports itself. Nobody agrees with them, but at the same time, everyone enjoys disagreeing.

But to simply ignore the task would be a breach of contract — a cop-out. I've put it off as long as possible — so here goes nothing.

FIRST: TEXAS A&M. If coach Shelby Metcalf doesn't come up with a SWC crown this year he just may be pumping gas for a living. The Aggies have one of the best front lines in the country in 6-11 Rudy Woods at the post and 6-8 Vernon Smith and 6-6 Rynn Wright in the wings.

Those three fellas scored an average of 43 points a game between themselves in 1978-79. And just in case one of them should falter, the Ags went out and recruited one of the state's top big men in 6-9 Claude Riley.

The trouble is at the guard spots where Metcalf will have to get improvement out of seniors David Goff and David Britton who were inconsistent at times last year. Still, the Aggies are the team to beat this year.

SECOND: Arkansas. You just have to like the Hogs. Coach Eddie Sutton has been nothing less than masterful in his five years in the hills compiling a 63-15 conference mark and three straight titles.

Sidney Moncrief, who won so many last-second games for the Hogs, is finally gone but Sutton has plenty to fall back on. Big (6-10) sophomore Scott Hastings and flashy junior U.S. Reed head the list and steady seniors Alan Zahn and Tony Brown round out that group.

Plus the Hogs got 6-7 freshman center Carey Kelley to give them needed help at the post. You've just gotta like the Hogs.

THIRD: Texas Tech. And here come your own Red Raiders picked to finish in the top three — but if you're a betting man this is strictly a show ticket.

The Raiders had their moments in last year — the most memorable was a 92-74 dismantling of the Texas Longhorns on regional TV. But then there was Tech's darker side — like a 62-56 defeat at the hands of the Rice Owls.

Tech's strong suit should be balance. They've got five men capable of scoring in double figures in Kent Williams, Ralph Brewster, David Little, Ben Hill and Jeff Taylor. But the Raiders look woefully small against some of the SWC big boys.

FOURTH: HOUSTON. In one of the great mysteries of all time, the Houston Cougars managed to come in sixth in last year's SWC race. The Cougs were better than that — and they'll be even better this year.

Tech coach Gerald Myers rates the Cougars as the league darkhorse and he may be right. Houston has one of its best shooting teams in awhile and Kenneth "Juice" Williams will probably lead the SWC in scoring — he averaged 19.6 last year.

Also back is 6-6 Victor Ewing, who averaged 14.5 last year. Add a couple of hot-shot recruits like 6-9 freshman Darryl Brown from Los Angeles and 6-5 sophomore transfer Russell Walker and you've got a potent lineup. The Cougs will be tough.

FIFTH: Texas. Ron Baxter really hasn't been playing for the Longhorns for a decade — it just seems that way. Baxter, nicknamed the Pillsbury Doughboy, is back for his senior season at UT but this time the supporting cast is somewhat suspect.

The Horns will probably use three freshmen starters this year and although they're good ones — they're still fresh frosh and prone to mistakes. The young guys to watch are 6-1 guards Fred Carson and George Turner and 6-10 post LaSalle Thompson. Senior John Danks will round out the starting five.

You get the impression this is a building year for the Horns.

SIXTH: SMU. It could be a make-it or break-it year for Mustang mentor Sonny Allen. Mustang Mania just won't tolerate losing and in three seasons Sonny has posted a 45-65 ledger and gone 29-35 in conference play.

Brad Branson, a 6-10 senior, could carry Sonny through the year though. Branson was an all-SWC player a year ago. And Billy Allen (Sonny's son) is back to take on guard spot. But the Mustangs are weak in some areas — most notably in the wings. And Sonny will have to patch that up before he can expect to fly.

SEVENTH: BAYLOR. — Vinnie Johnson is gone now and coach Jim Haller is promising a "true five man basketball team."

For the last two years, it was strictly a two-man show — between Vinnie and whoever threw the inbounds pass. But the Bears have another great one in sophomore Terry Teagle who averaged 14.6 a game as a freshman. At the guard

UPI Honors Tech's Hadnot

DALLAS (UPI) — James Hadnot, who led the Southwest Conference in rushing for the second straight year, and three members of the talented University of Texas defensive backfield highlighted the 1979 United Press International all-Southwest Conference football team announced Wednesday.

Hadnot was one of six players to repeat on the all-SWC team, having piled up 1,371 yards this season despite Texas Tech's disappointing campaign.

In addition, Hadnot was named Offensive Player of the Year in the SWC. Baylor linebacker Mike Singletary was chosen Defensive Player of the Year and TCU linebacker Darrell Patterson led in the balloting for Freshman of the Year.

Red Raider punter Maury Buford was named to the second team.

The UPI all-conference team was chosen by a panel of writers and broadcasters who covered SWC games this year.

Longhorns Johnnie Johnson, Derrick Hatchett and Ricky Churchman — members of what Texas' assistant athletic director Bill Ellington called the best secondary he has ever seen in college football — were all named to the all-conference squad.

Texas has surrendered only 76.9 yards through the air this season and it was the third year for Johnson to be voted to the all-league team.

Joining Hadnot in the offensive backfield were Texas running back A.J. Jones, who will miss the Longhorns final games of the season with a knee injury, and Arkansas quarterback Kevin Scanlon, who has completed a remarkable 66 percent of his passes this season.

Arkansas' Robert Farrell, Texas' Johnny "Lam" Jones and Longhorns tight end Lawrence Sampleton made up the receiving corps on the all-conference team while the offensive line was made up of Greg Kolienda of Arkansas and Melvin Jones of Houston at tackles, George Stewart of Arkansas and Dennis Green-walt of Houston at guards and Texas' Wes Hubert at center.

Joining Hatchett, Churchman and Johnson in the defensive backfield was Kevin Evans of Arkansas. The defensive line was made up of Andrew Meltontree of Baylor and Jacob Green of Texas A&

M at ends, Steve McMichael of Texas and Hosea Taylor of Houston at tackles and Robert Oglesby of Houston at nose guard.

David Hodge of Houston joined Singletary at the linebacking positions. Arkansas punter Steve Cox and place kicker Ish Ordonez both won in the balloting at their positions.

Neither SMU receiver Emanuel Tolbert nor A&M running back Curtis Dickey, both of whom had been selected to the all-conference team in 1977 and 1978, were picked to this year's squad. They were second team selections in this year's balloting.

Cards Dismiss Bud Wilkinson

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Ousted St. Louis Cardinals Coach Bud Wilkinson, his head held high, said Wednesday night his firing by Bill Bidwill, owner of the National Football League team, came as a complete surprise.

As near as I could tell, there was no difference in our relationship," Wilkinson said of his dealings with Bidwill, who earlier in the day announced the release.

"There was nothing to indicate anything otherwise," the 63-year-old Wilkinson said at a news conference. "I'm just as surprised as you. The owner of anything is entitled to do as he pleases."

"I think I've done a reasonably good job. It's a disappointment, naturally. Whether I stay in coaching is something I'm not sure of. At this point in time, I won't rule it out."

Earlier, Bidwill described Wilkinson's refusal to use back-up quarterback Steve Pisarkiewicz as "the catalyst" in the split between the two.

"If it was, I wasn't aware of it," Wilkinson said, however. "I had planned to be here next year."

"You always hope to do the best job you can with the personnel available for that particular game," he said. "I think we were very close to being a contending team."

Bidwill said other factors in addition to the team's 3-10 record entered into the firing of Wilkinson, a former coaching legend at Oklahoma, but declined to specify.

"I prefer not to get into particulars," the St. Louis owner said. "I still have a great deal of respect for Bud."

Larry Wilson, former Cardinal All-Pro defensive back, was named to succeed Wilkinson on an interim basis through the remainder of this season.

An assistant coach, defensive line chief Rudy Feldman, said he was shocked. "In fact, I was talking to Bud this morning and he was talking about

Gervin Stays Cool As Ice

By The Associated Press
 "When George Gervin plays his game, there's no one in the league who can stop him. He can get his shot off against anyone, and he never takes a bad shot — I mean never! There's no such thing for him."

Doug Moe, coach of the San Antonio Spurs, was talking about one of his favorite subjects: Gervin, the Spurs' lean and lanky guard, a 6-foot-7 whirlwind of skinny arms and legs.

Gervin's game is shooting ... putting the ball in the hoop ... making the scoreboard light up.

And nobody does it better. He has averaged 27.2 and 29.6 points per game the last two seasons, becoming the first guard in the history of the National Basketball Association to win scoring championships in consecutive years.

This season he ranks second at 29.8, just behind Lloyd Free's 30.4 for San Diego. While winning his scoring crowns, the Iceman — so nicknamed because of his unflappable court demeanor — compiled shooting percentages of .536 in 1978 and .541 in 1979, uncommonly high marks for a backcourtman.

Gervin is, as former Detroit Pistons Coach Dick Vitale called him, "a scoring machine."

But it hasn't come easily. Gervin grew from 5-7 to 6-6 while in high school in Detroit, but he never put on any weight. Even now it's hard to find the listed 185 pounds on his gaunt frame — he could stand behind a street lamp and not be seen.

He went to Long Beach State to play college ball under Jerry Tarkanian, but became homesick and left a few weeks later. He enrolled at Eastern Michigan and averaged 29.5 points per game in his sophomore year, leading his club to the semifinals of the NCAA college division playoffs.

That's when his career nearly came to an end, almost before it had begun. In the semifinals Gervin went up for a rebound against Jay Piccola of Roanoke College. The two players struggled and the Iceman blew his cool, punching his opponent.

An invitation to try out for the 1972 Olympic team was withdrawn, and the NCAA ruled that Gervin should be suspended for the following season.

At the age of 20, he dropped out of school. But basketball was in his blood. He hooked on with the Pontiac Firebirds, playing semi-pro ball for $500 a month. The wide-open, running style of the Continental League was perfect for Gervin, giving him an opportunity to hone his moves and showcase his talent.

He scored 50 points in one game and picked the right time to do it. In the audience was Johnny Kerr, then a scout for the Virginia Squires of the American Basketball Association.

Kerr persuaded the Squires to sign the skinny kid, and it's been onward and upward ever since.

He averaged 14.1 points per game after joining the Squires in midseason, then posted marks of 23.4, 23.4, 21.8, 27.2 and 29.6. His salary has grown proportionately, from $40,000 to $320,000 a year.

And when he says the money isn't that important, you get the feeling he's sincere.

"I enjoy playing basketball," he says. "I appreciate going from semi-pro to pro, but even if I played semi-pro all my life, I'd be satisfied."

He doesn't even mind the nomadic life that keeps him away from his wife and three young children.

 "Road travel doesn't bother me because I appreciate being in the NBA and playing in 22 cities and meeting beautiful people. Otherwise, I could be working in a factory," he reasoned.

What has been the greatest thrill of his career? "The 63 points I got in New Orleans to win the scoring title for the first time," he replied, referring to the dramatic events of April 9, 1978.

On that final day of the 1977-78 season, Gervin was locked in a duel with Denver's David Thompson for the scoring title. "I was in the New Orleans Hilton an hour after the game, stretched out on my bed, and I said 'Wow!'"

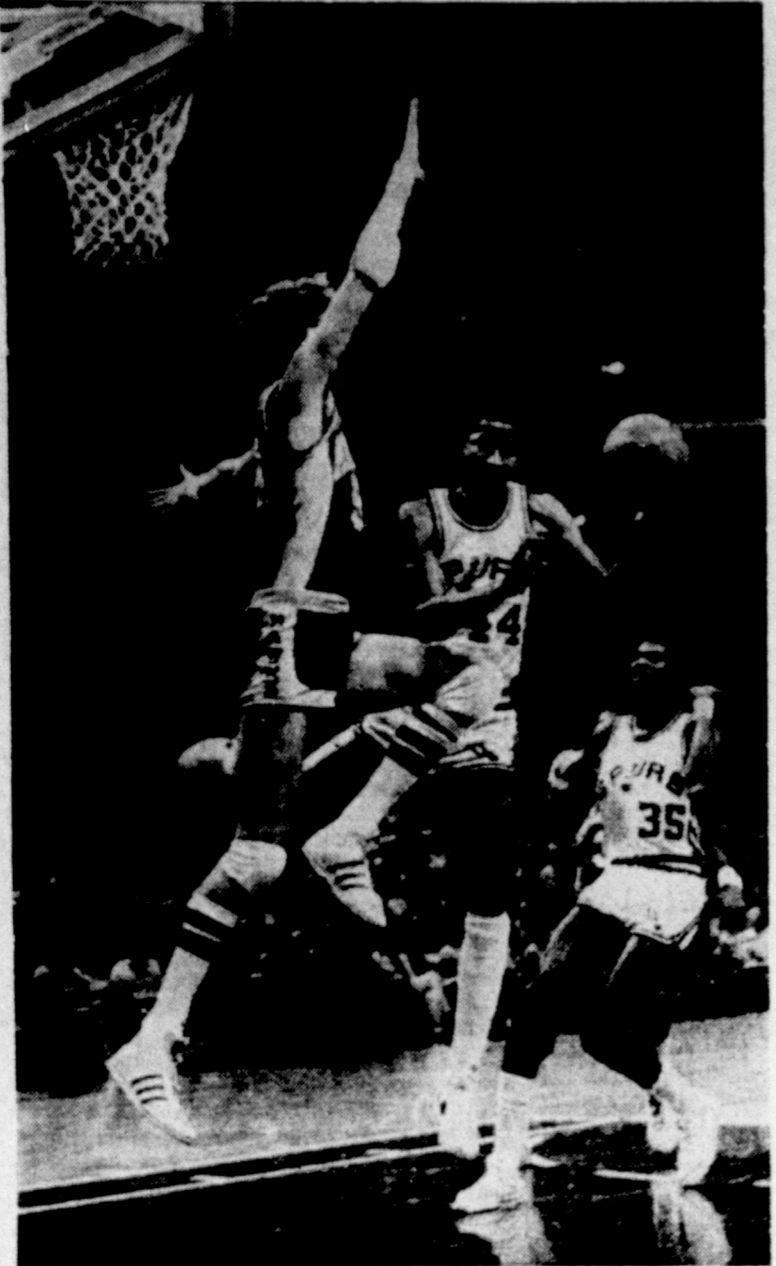

"I had flashbacks of the game. I was tensed up emotionally. Mike Green (an ex-teammate) tried to get me to go out that night but I didn't want to. I just wanted to think."

His other biggest thrill, said Gervin, "was when I first signed with the Virginia Squires. I played with Julius Erving. Playing with him was very exciting for me."

Now that he's an established pro with two scoring titles to his credit, what's on the horizon? "My goals are first to win the NBA championship, then to pursue a program after basketball with kids," said the 27-year-old Gervin.

"The kids look up to me and I appreciate that. I want to do something for them."

He gets special joy from his own three children: George Jr. (nicknamed Icecube), Jared and Mia. "My only daughter is my heart, my two sons are my soul," he said. "We are one happy family."

Fallen Fighter Classen Dies

NEW YORK (AP) — Boxer Willie Classen of Puerto Rico died Wednesday night of injuries he suffered in a bout last week.

Peter Schectman, evening administrator at Bellevue Hospital, said Classen died at 7:42 p.m. EST.

Classen, a 159-pounder, had taken an eight-count with 15 seconds remaining in the ninth round against unbeaten Wilfred Scypion of Houston last Friday at Madison Square Garden's Felt Forum. When the bell sounded to start the 10th and final round, Classen, 29, remained on his stool.

However, Classen's handlers, headed by manager Marco Minuto, lifted him from the seat and pushed him out of his corner. Classen never raised his hands and was hit twice with rights by Scypion, 156.

Referee Lew Eskin stopped the fight at 12 seconds as Classen lay flat on the ring outside the ropes. He was carried from the ring on a stretcher and taken to Bellevue, where he underwent 2½ hours of surgery Saturday morning.

Dr. Richard Izquierdo of the New York State Athletic Commission said he talked to Classen both in Spanish and in English between the ninth and 10th rounds and that the Santurce, Puerto Rico, boxer said he was all right and wanted to continue.

Bidwill Displeased, Nips Bud

 the future," said Feldman.

At Oklahoma, Wilkinson compiled a 145-29-5 record in 17 years, guiding the Sooners to 14 titles in the Big Six. Big Seven and Big Eight conferences before bowing out to become director of the President's Council on Physical Fitness in 1963. In 1964, he ran unsuccessfully for a U.S. Senate seat from Oklahoma.

Under Wilkinson, the Cards lost their first eight games in 1978. This year, they divided their first two games and have since then had a 2-9 record, which includes six setbacks in their last seven games.

The entire Wilkinson staff will be retained, at least through the conclusion of the current year, Bidwill said.

"He's a fine gentleman, a fine man and I still respect him," Bidwill said of Wilkinson. "Basically we just had to do what was best for the football team."

The announcement was made at a hastily arranged news conference by Cardinals President Bill Bidwill. Wilkinson, who became a legend in the 1940s and 1950s at Oklahoma, had guided St. Louis for 29 games.

Bidwill, in explaining his action, said, "As often mentioned, my intention has been to await the end of the season before fully evaluating and making decisions concerning the future of the team."

"However, I have determined to take immediate action about the coach and what I consider to be the best interests of the football team. This decision was made when it became apparent Coach Wilkinson and I had opposing positions on the subject of our program for the remainder of the season."

Bidwill said the conflict with the departing coach involved use of personnel.

"This conflict of purpose chiefly involves my position expressed to the coach Monday that Steve Pisarkiewicz should be given an opportunity to start in this Sunday's game with San Francisco," Bidwill said in a statement.

"I agree our team should make every effort to be competitive each week that we take the field," he said. "At the same time, it is only good logic and sound football procedure to take advantage of our position of being out of the race..." he said.

The split between Bidwill and the 63-year-old Wilkinson came after the Cardinals slumped to a 6-10 record in 1978 and skidded to the bottom of their division in the National Football League with a 3-10 record this year.

The club has lost six of its last seven games, standing last in the National Conference East.

Wilkinson was hired in March 1978 to succeed Don Coryell, fired after five seasons at the St. Louis helm.

"I've appreciated the opportunity to be associated with Bud Wilkinson and respect his efforts in behalf of the organization," the Cards owner said.

spots are junior Mike Little (David's older brother) and Pat Nunley. Big Julio Gallardo is also a valuable addition.

EIGHTH: TCU. — New coach Jim Killingsworth didn't waste any time getting immediate help for the Frogs feverish basketball program. He got players from high schools, junior colleges and even the armed services.

Killingsworth scoured the countryside and came up with enough talent to pull the Frogs out of the conference cellar. The ones to watch are transfers Deckery Johnson and Darrell Lovett.

NINTH: Rice. "I know you guys will probably pick us in the bottom two," Rice coach Mike Schuler told Texas sportswriters a couple of weeks ago and he's right.

Okay, twist my arm coach — I'll pick Rice last.

But really, the Owls will be improved as will everyone in the conference. And in a couple of years who know's — they may come in fourth or fifth.

Eddins Invites 1977 Repeat

By RUSS PARSONS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Two years ago Seagraves met Haskell in the regional round of the state Class A playoffs. The Eagles took an easy, 25-3 victory on the way to a state finals appearance.

The teams meet again Friday night in Snyder with the same thing at stake, but SHS coach Jim Eddins says he sees more similarities than that.

"They look very similar to when we played them two years ago," Eddins said. "Of course we do too."

"They're a very power-type team. They just line up and wear you out," he said.

"They have plenty of size. It's their line that just wears people down."

Those big old kids Eddins was talking about are 6-6, 200-pound Giles Kemp, a defensive end and offensive tackle, and 6-5, 200-pound David Drennan, a defensive tackle.

Those two, along with safety Monnie Hise, spur a defense which allowed 1,190 yards rushing this season and 640 passing.

That compares with Seagraves' 10-game marks of 604 and 610.

Offensively, the Indians piled up 2,286 yards on the ground and 735 passing. Leading the ground gainers is Hise, also a tailback. The last remaining member of the infamous Hise family (Lonnie, Donnie, and Vonnie have also worn Indian colors), Monnie gained 1,198 yards on 218 tries this year. Not bad for a 5-10, 150-pound tailback.

Other backs for the Indians are fullback Steve Escobedo (5-10, 150 and 834 yards on 110 carries) and quarterback Jim Harris. He picked up 386 yards on 38 carries and completed 42 of 126 passes for 735 yards.

They match up with Eagle backs Ronnie Griffin, Davis Morgan and Johnny Castro. Griffin was the leading ground gainer in the regular season, with 1,233 yards on 129 carries but Morgan, who had 964 on 115, is the guy who put Seagraves into this regional game with 290 yards on 20 carries and two touchdowns in last week's 21-0 win over McCamey.

In that game the Eagle defense, which allowed an average of 120 yards a game through the regular season, gave up only 84 yards rushing and 18 passing. They forced McCamey to punt nine times.

"We didn't play well but we broke a couple of long runs on them and our defense played real well," Eddins said. "In fact, our defense played an exceptional game."

The winner of this match will face the winner of the New Deal-Stratford game next week.

"I think our kids have had a hard time getting up and playing well the last couple of games," Eddins said. "But if they're going to get up for anybody, they'll get up for them."

Muleshoe Must Cope With Morren

By RUSS PARSONS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Perry Morren isn't the first good quarterback the Muleshoe Mules have faced this year, but he could well be the last.

Morren, the third-ranking passer in Texas high school history, will bring his top-rated Childress Bobcats to Canyon Friday night to battle Muleshoe for the Class AA regional championship.

The Mules earlier this year shut down Littlefield quarterback Eddie Gregory in a key district game. But even Gregory's arm pales compared to Morren.

A stocky, 6-0, 195-pounder his coach says is "cut out of the Ron Reeves mold," Morren has thrown for just over 1,600 yards this year. That's enough to put him at just over 6,300 yards in his three-year career.

And he doesn't just throw the ball up for grabs either. In the regular season, Morren completed 59.7 percent of his passes and connected on an unbelievable 25 scoring throws.

But Morren isn't the only thing that's keeping Wartes up at night. The Mules got pretty banged up in their bi-district win over Idalou and as many as three key starters could be sidelined for the Childress game.

Those players include quarterback Mike Northcutt, the heart of the Mule offense.

"We're pretty beat up, but we've been banged up all season," Wartes said. "All season we've had kids filling in well for us and I'm sure that whoever we put in will give it their best."

Childress isn't the physically awesome team it has been in the past. Besides Morren, there is tailback Donald Sims (5-7, 130) and fullback Quentin Klepper (5-8, 150) in the backfield.

"I think we're probably over-rated to a certain extent," said Bobcat coach Charlie Johnston. "But at this stage of the game you don't go by ratings anyway, it's what you do on the field on Friday night."

"I think we're pretty balanced between throwing and running the ball and defensively people haven't scored a lot of points on us, even though we've given up a lot of yards. I guess we bend a lot but don't break."

"I don't think we're as good as people think we are. People come out to see the No. 1 team in the state and when they leave they say 'They're not what I thought they'd be.'"

"We're a good, average high school team. We're not as physically strong as we have been in the past. We can't manhandle people like we used to. Last year we manhandled Muleshoe pretty well in the first half. We can't do that this year."

They may not be awesome, but they're much more than adequate. The Bobcats went through the 1979 season undefeated and only gave up more than one touchdown once. They also have tradition on their side. This is the ninth playoff appearance for Childress in the last 10 years and the fourth straight time it has been in post-season play.

The 'Cats went to the state finals in 1975 and 1976 and to the semifinals in 1976 and 1978. Coach Johnston's 13-year record is a hefty 127-28-4 and his playoff record is 22-8.

Wartes hopes that after this weekend it's 22-9.

NBA Rockets Cut Ex-Cougar Jones

HOUSTON (UPI) — The Houston Rockets Wednesday waived center-forward Dwight Jones to make room on their roster for guard Mike Dunleavy.

Dunleavy, who has been on injured reserve since Oct. 16 due to ligament damage to his left thumb, was needed by the Rockets for a Wednesday game after guard Tom Henderson suffered a minor toe injury Tuesday.

Jones, the team's reserve center, was in his seventh pro season and fourth with the Rockets. He had played his high school and college basketball in Houston.

Jones played in all of the Rockets' 21 games this season, averaging 15 minutes, 6 points and 3.5 rebounds.

MHS' Cockrell Flashes Past Defenders

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Considering how a person looks at it, either Joe Cockrell is the smallest Monterey Plainsmen on the block or one of the largest.

It's a real brain tease.

Stature-wise, Cockrell — all 5-9, 145 soaking-wet pounds of him — is definitely one of the world's Mickey Rooneyes. Time after time, head coach James Odum has commented on Cockrell's lack of size, saying: "Bless his heart, he's no bigger than a whistle."

But while someone was busy passing out the size, Cockrell stood in another line getting an extra helping of quickness. So when it comes to out-and-out speed, Cockrell — all 9.8 seconds of him — is in a land of giants.

At split end, Cockrell, the district's 100-yard dash champion last year as a junior, has helped give Monterey a dimension it hasn't had in awhile — a deep, deeper, deepest threat. Heading into Saturday's regional contest against El Paso Coronado, he's caught 15 passes for 378 yards, an average of 25.3 yards a grab. Among those grabs are a 63-yard reception against Hereford and four catches for 117 yards in a key District 4-AAAA contest with Coronado.

Plus, Cockrell is always a threat to score on the end-around reverse. Just ask Lubbock High. Cockrell caught the West-erners with their spurs down and dashed 61 yards for a first-quarter touchdown that put MHS ahead 7-0 at the time. He tried the same play in last week's bi-district contest with Amarillo, but picked up only seven yards on two carries. Amarillo smelled it coming.

"I don't know what happened (on the reverse against Amarillo)," said Cockrell, who spent more time running east-to-west than north-to-south against the Sandies. "I just didn't have anywhere to run. I think I outran the pulling guard. That was part of the problem. And the Amarillo defense was awfully quick."

And well-coached.

The reverse, says Cockrell, isn't in Saturday's game repertoire. But should the Plainsmen advance further down the playoff road, then don't be surprised if it does resurface again.

If anyone is glad to hear that news, it's Coronado head coach Don Brooks who commented: "We don't have anybody that can stay up with him. We've got a couple of kids that can run 10.4. But that's about it."

What Brooks failed to add, said MHS assistant coach Bob Gay, is that Coronado — lack of speed or not — owns one of the best defensive secondaries around. But that doesn't scare Cockrell, who admittedly can "outrun most defensive backs."

About Saturday's game, Cockrell said: "We're really confident. I know that I am. Against Amarillo, I knew we were going to come back (after trailing 7-0 at halftime) and win. I didn't have any doubt."

Cockrell says this week's practices have "gone pretty well. We haven't started to peak early like we did (prior to the Amarillo game). But I haven't had that good a week, especially early. I was dropping some passes because the sun kept getting in my eyes. That 2 o'clock sun is tough."

JOE COCKRELL

Because of his lack of size, the first-year starter says the college scouts have spent most of their time looking at other members of the '79 team.

"SMU told me I had good hands," laughed Cockrell. "But I was too small. Maybe I need to run a 9.2 or something. Then they'd looked at me."

Pioneers To Go On Road

ABILENE (Special) — Fresh from their first home victory of the 1979-80 season, the Wayland Baptist College Pioneers launch an 11-game road trip that runs through the remainder of '79 here this weekend.

The Pioneers will play at Abilene Christian University tonight at 7:30 p.m., play Hardin-Simmons Friday night and then go on to Seguin to play Texas Lutheran College Saturday night.

The Pioneers are 2-3 this season, following an 85-83 win over Sul Ross Monday night at Plainview. Earlier this season, the Pioneers fell to Texas Lutheran in a game at Plainview 103-86.

"ACU is undefeated (in four games), and Hardin-Simmons will be sky-high for our game since they're opening a brand-new facility," commented WBC coach Bob Clindaniel.

WBC is coming off a game where it never trailed and had a 19-point lead at one time. Junior forward Rick Cooper led the way with 19 points and nine rebounds.

He'll be starting tonight, along with 6-4 Robert Warren, 6-1 guard Bruce Kimball, 6-8 Brian Bryder and 6-9 Bill Schneider.

LHS Leads City Cagers Into Tourneys

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
Unbeaten, untied and, some say, even untested, that's Lubbock High so far this season.

Off to its fastest start in over five years, the Westerners travel to the three-day Odessa Tournament. And according to coach Craig Wells, LHS must continue to improve if it hopes to stay amongst the untouchables.

"I don't think we've come close to peaking or playing up to our potential," commented Wells during a Wednesday afternoon practice session. "At least I hope not."

Lubbock opened the season with a 58-50 win over Odessa, edged Dunbar 51-49, then Tuesday night squeaked past Estacado 60-57. Three wins by an average of just over three points.

"I'm glad we're going into the tournament with the three wins," said Wells. "It really gives us a lot of confidence. I know it beats being 0-3."

Wells knows that feeling, too. Lubbock opens the tournament with an 8 p.m. contest against Odessa Permian, a team that recently handed Monterey its only loss of the year 71-66 in an overtime period.

By far, the Panthers will be LHS' strongest test of the year.
In the second round, the Westerners will meet either Amarillo Tascosa or El Paso Parkland, depending on who wins and who loses on opening night.

Monterey, meanwhile, travels to Hereford for the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce Invitational Basketball Tournament. Whew. The Plainsmen open the three-day tournament against Dimmitt, starting at 1:30 p.m. today.

"Hey," said MHS coach Joe Michalka. "they've got to be considered the sentimental favorites. I'm not kidding either. People always like to see Monterey lose. But I guess you could call us the darkhorse of the tournament."

Monterey, which easily defeated Dunbar — also entered the tournament — 68-47 Tuesday night to run its season record to 2-1.

Dunbar plays Pampa at 10:30 a.m. Should both Monterey and Dunbar either win or lose, then the two Lubbock schools would play again Friday in the second round of the eight-team event. Estacado also dips its toes into the tournament waters. The Matadors, losers to Lubbock High, compete in the Plainview tournament.

Lubbock's lone tournament holdout, Coronado, travels to Midland Lee Friday night.

HEREFORD TOURNAMENT

TODAY — Pampa vs. Dunbar 10:30 a.m.; Monterey vs. Dimmitt 1:30 p.m.; Amarillo Palo Duro vs. Morton 4:30 p.m.; Canyon vs. Hereford 7:30 p.m.

ODESSA TOURNAMENT

TODAY — Odessa vs. El Paso Riverside 3 p.m.; Tascosa vs. El Paso Parkland 4:40 p.m.; Ector vs. El Paso Jefferson 6:20 p.m.; Permian vs. Lubbock, 8 p.m.

Rookie Makes Award Secondary

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Rick Sutcliffe gave just about everybody except himself credit Wednesday for his winning of the National League Rookie of the Year honors.

He mentioned Los Angeles Dodgers' vice president Al Campanis for having faith in him, veteran pitchers Don Sutton and Bert Hooton for helping him, pitching coaches Red Adams and Ron Perranoski and Steve Yeager for his catching.

"I never thought as much of winning the Rookie of the Year honor as I did of winning my next start," the 6-foot-6 right-hander told a news conference. "But I'd gladly turn my record (17-10) around if we could have finished first instead of third."

He did say his wife, Robin, brought home a beagle puppy during the season and named him Rookie of the Year. Sutcliffe had thought he would start 1979 in Albuquerque of the Pacific Coast League but a late decision by Campanis released veteran Pete Broberg and kept the 22-year-old Sutcliffe.

With a 8-8 record at the All-Star break, Sutcliffe won nine of his last 11 decisions to set a record for most victories by a Dodger rookie. Sutton set the previous high of 12 in 1966 and Bill Singer tied it in 1967.

"Nothing tops making the Dodgers' ball club," said Sutcliffe, who finished with a 3.46 earned run average.

"But I feel if it weren't for the other players on the team, I wouldn't have won. Sutton and Hooton were very helpful to me. I went out with the idea of what Don Sutton would do and most of the time he was right."

Sutton, holder of numerous Dodger pitching records and still active, commented, "I think that I, more than anybody else in this room, enjoyed Rick's success."

QB Griese Displays Patience As Back-Up

MIAMI (AP) — Viewers tuning to tonight's AFC East showdown between the New England Patriots and the Miami Dolphins will get a rare sight — the Dolphins' No. 12 on the bench.
But Bob Griese, his head still held high through a season of disappointments and criticism, accepts his new second-string status as yet another challenge.

Last week, the 34-year-old quarterback was benched because of performance for the first time in his pro career. When Don Strock was knocked cold by a sack, though, Griese entered in the second quarter and led the Dolphins to a 28-24 victory at Baltimore.
"It's a little bit more difficult in a way — preparing and then not playing. It tends to cause a feeling the following week of well, why should I prepare and work hard if I'm not going to be playing," Griese said Wednesday.

"In the last game — the first week I'm not starting — after a quarter of play

I'm in there, and you know, you better be prepared, because you could be in there in a second," Griese said.

He said the only problem about coming off the bench is needing time to warm up, but he said there's also an advantage in that "you can sit back and watch the defense, the tendencies against your team's plays, and you can pick up things."
This has been a unique season for Griese. He's been benched for the first time, he's been heavily criticized by the fans and media for the first time, and he's even been publicly criticized by a teammate.

Coach Don Shula said Griese's performance Sunday was "tremendous, particularly because of the ordeal he had to go through last week — all the stuff about is Griese washed up."

Griese surprised nearly everyone by saying afterward he thought Strock should start tonight's game.

The decision was made last week to give Don an opportunity to play and I agreed with it. If they wanted to give him a chance, I don't think the Baltimore game was his chance. I went in in the second quarter and won the ballgame, so he deserves his chance all over," he said.
Griese said the major differences between Strock and himself are obvious.

Chaps Drop Sixth Straight

CHICKASHA, Okla. (Special) — Cameron State of Oklahoma shot the lights out here Wednesday night and sent the Lubbock Christian College cagers staggering to their fifth straight setback with a 95-76 victory in the first round of the University of Arts and Sciences of Oklahoma Basketball Classic.

Cameron connected on 21 of 40 field goals in the opening period to jump out to a 48-33 halftime lead. With the score tied at 8-8, Cameron reeled off 10 straight points and never trailed again.

But the 95 point output was the lowest of the season for Cameron which had been averaging 110 a game and is now 4-0 on the year. LCC is 2-6 with five of those losses coming to Oklahoma schools.
Andre King led Cameron with 22 points and Leroy Jackson added 20. Kevin Wharton paced the Chaps with 19 points.

Tonight the Chaps will face the loser of the USAO-Jarvis Christian contest at 6 p.m. here in the Myers Fieldhouse.

Perkins Rejects Hype Of Cowboy Game

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — New York Giants Coach Ray Perkins concedes "it would be a big shot in the arm if we beat Dallas in Dallas Sunday," but claims it's not the biggest of the three remaining games.

New York has won six of its last eight games after opening the season with five consecutive defeats. Twice they have come within one game of attaining the 100 mark, but both attempts ended in losses.

The first chance, when the Giants were 4-5 and riding a four-game winning streak, came against the Cowboys. Dallas needed a 22-yard field goal by Rafael Septien with three seconds remaining to pull out a 16-14 victory.

Perkins said Wednesday, "Of the three games, the most significant game is the last one. That's the one they will remember the most in the off-season."

Landry noted that the Dallas defense just hasn't been able to overcome the retirements of the left side of the defensive line — Ed "Too Tall" Jones and Jethro Pugh — and safety Charlie Waters' season-ending knee injury.

Landry also said there's no chance linebacker Thomas "Hollywood" Henderson will play for the Cowboys again. Henderson retired last week after he was placed on waivers.

Erving Deflects Bullets As 76ers Win

By The Associated Press Philadelphia's Julius Erving led the never-trailing 76ers to their fourth-straight National Basketball Association victory Wednesday night as they beat the Washington Bullets 120-102 at the Spectrum.

Erving later made another jump shot to bring the Bullets to 62-60. And Washington closed the gap to 64-62 on a lay-up by Wes Unseld at 6:03.

Minutes left. Then Newlin, who scored 35 points Tuesday night, hit three jump shots and two foul shots to build the lead back to 10 points with a minute to play. Newlin finished with 10 points.

Roundfield led the victors with 20 points, followed by Drew with 19 and Eddie Johnson with 16.

home record to 10 games with a 119-97 victory over the Denver Nuggets.

he was taken to University Hospital for x-rays.

'Paper Chase' May Make Comeback On Public TV

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "The Paper Chase," a much-praised but low-rated show canceled by CBS last year, may return next year on public television.

John Houseman, who starred in the series, has been negotiating with Chicago public television station WTTW to rerun the original shows and produce new episodes.

"They want to do about six or eight new episodes," said Houseman. "I don't think they'll have any trouble getting the other public television stations across the country to air it."

John Wilson, director of information services for WTTW, confirmed by telephone that his station has obtained an option on the series from 20th Century-

Fox Television.

"We're very excited about it," said Wilson. "We're attempting now to find funds to exercise our option, which expires in mid-1980. When we get the funds we'll offer the show to the full Public Broadcasting Service. The next step will be to produce a number of new episodes for 1981."

Houseman played Prof. Charles Kingsfield in "The Paper Chase," which was set in the law school of an Eastern university. He was a curmudgeon much-feared by his students, but his bark was always worse than his bite. James Stephens also starred as law student James T. Hart.

It was based on the novel by John Jay Osborn Jr., which also became a motion picture. Houseman won an Oscar as best supporting actor for his role as Kingsfield.

"John Frankenheimer called me when he was doing 'Seven Days in May,'" he said. "He asked me if I'd play a treasonous admiral, and I said sure. I did the thing in half a day and thought no more of it until 10 years later I was offered 'The Paper Chase.'"

Houseman was recently seen in the ABC miniseries "The French Atlantic Affair." He played the head of a think tank who finds the solution to save the hijacked French passenger liner and its passengers.

"The French Atlantic Affair" was adapted from the novel by Ernest Lehman. It was Houseman who brought Lehman to Hollywood and gave him his first job writing the screenplay for "Executive Suite."

He's also in the upcoming theatrical movie "My Bodyguard."

"It's a very small part, but I did it because I wanted to play with Ruth Gordon," he said. "I thought it would be fun to work with her."

Houseman also is executive producer and plays the chief justice in "Gideon's Trumpet," which will air next spring on CBS.

FBI 'Breaks Back' Of Counterfeit Ring

FORT WORTH (UPI) — The FBI claimed Wednesday it had "broken the back" of a multimillion dollar counterfeit recording tape operation and seized 10,000 illegal 8-track tapes and sophisticated electronic equipment.

Two locations were raided but no arrests were made.

"We have broken the back of at least $10 million business," said David Rarity, special agent in charge of the FBI in Fort Worth.

Armed with "probable cause warrants," agents raided two locations and said they seized the tapes and high quality machinery used to manufacture the bogus recordings.

Rarity said he checked with recording sources in New York City and learned that illegal tape recordings manufactured in Fort Worth formed the "heart" of the U.S. counterfeit tape industry.

"Our work now is just beginning because we must inventory everything," the FBI Agent said.

Houseman briefly reprised his role as Prof. Kingsfield for an episode of the ABC series "The Associates." After the show was filmed, however, ABC pulled the series off the air. The Kingsfield episode may air when "The Associates" returns in March.

In the story, Kingsfield found himself in court opposing a young lawyer — one of the "associates" on the show — who was a former student. His former student, of course, is still terrified of him.

The movie version of "The Paper Chase" is considered Houseman's first venture into acting, but he actually was in a movie 10 years before that.

"There was one script I didn't approve of and I refused to do it," he said. "It was a silly episode about Hart falling in love with a visiting Russian gymnast in what became 'Romeo and Juliet.' They got Pernell Roberts to play another professor."

"The one who might be dubious is Jim Stephens because he's so successful now," Houseman said. "But I think if there is enough notice he'd probably love to play that again."

Houseman has just published the second volume of his memoirs, "Front and Center." It follows his career from 1942-56, when he was with the Voice of America in World War II and then became a movie producer for MGM.

Ad Libbed Introduction Sees Replay Of History

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—To movie insiders, it was a wry replay of one of Hollywood's favorite anecdotes.

The culprit once again was Joseph Cotten, the suave, smooth-voiced Virginian with a sometimes devilish sense of humor. The scene this time was Stage 9 at the Burbank studios, where a televised tribute to Ingrid Bergman was being taped before a glittering crowd.

After paying tribute to Miss Bergman, Cotten was to introduce the next entertainer. The cue cards were printed with a flowery speech, but Cotten supplied his own punctuation: "He is a man with the enviable distinction of having been awarded an Oscar, an Emmy and a Tony — Jack Albertson?"

Flashback to 35 years ago. Cotten starring on the "Suspense" radio show and announcing to a nationwide audience: "The star of next week's 'Suspense' will be that distinguished actor of American films — Sonny Tufts?"

Cotten's note of incredulity became a local catchphrase, and even today old-timers cannot intone the name of Sonny Tufts without the question mark. Hollywood legend insists that in that one swift second, Tufts film career was destroyed, no producer being able to take him seriously thereafter.

Nonsense. Tufts was an ingratiating leading man during the war years, when many male stars were in the service. His charm later wore thin, and booze helped speed the decline of his career. He died in obscurity in 1970, age 59.

After the Bergman telecast, Cotten remarked that he had introduced Albertson, whom he admires, as a nostalgic prank. Cotten recalled how the original incident had occurred: "I was doing a 'Suspense' show for that man with the beard — William Spier was his name. During rehearsals, I had announced the name of the next-week guest, Cary Grant. Now Spier hadn't told me that Grant had cancelled, and I didn't know about the change until I came to the end of my script on the air. Cary Grant's name had been scratched out, and I was astonished when I read 'Sonny Tufts'."

Cotten managed to escape encountering Tufts until many years later. They met at the Racquet Club in Palm Springs after Tufts' career had all but disappeared. Cotten remembers:

"I was somewhat concerned since he was six-foot-four and rather drunk. Fortunately, he wasn't belligerent. He insisted on telling the whole story of the incident. All I said was, 'I've heard it told better.'"

At least one guest at the Bergman dinner was offended by Cotten's jest. Oddly enough, it was Cary Grant.

"I think they ought to cut it out of the tape," Grant snapped.

"No way are we going to leave Joe's introduction as is," reported Paul Keyes, producer of the Dec. 6 CBS special. "We had already introduced Jack at the top of the show so maybe we will just cut to him and eliminate the last two words."

'All-Star Tribute' To Honor Actress

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP)— Those televised salutes to movie greats are always a combination of show biz and sentiment.

INGRID BERGMAN

"An All-Star Tribute to Ingrid Bergman" has ample quantities of both.

Television viewers will see an hour-long report of the affair on the CBS network Dec. 6. The Hollywood crowd witnessed a longer version at the fourth annual Variety Clubs International gala to benefit children's hospitals (previous honorees: John Wayne, Elizabeth Taylor, James Stewart).

The show biz aspects seem inevitable to provide "production value." There seemed little reason for a long routine by Victor Borge, except that both he and Bergman are Scandinavian. Even less explainable was "You Ought to be in Pictures" sung by Jack Albertson, who admitted he had never met the guest of honor.

Sentiment fared better. How could it fail, when the party was given on the same Warner Brothers stage that housed Humphrey Bogart's cafe in "Casablanca?" A section of the original set was resurrected, and people with the original doorman, Dan Seymour, and barman, Leonid Kinsky, as well as Paul Henreid, Teddy Wilson subbed for the late Dooley Wilson on piano, and Frank Sinatra dropped in to sing "As Time Goes By."

"Like the man said, 'Here's looking at ya,'" Sinatra saluted Miss Bergman.

The emcee was James Stewart, looking rugged in a stubby beard he is growing to play a gold miner in an African adventure. Among those he introduced at the head table were Bergman's children, Pia Lindstrom Isabella (recently Mrs. Martin Scorsese) and Roberto Rossellini Jr.

Among the comments of the evening: Goldie Hawn, who earned an Oscar in "Cactus Flower": "I want to thank you in public for taking me by the hand and leading me through my first picture."

Heleen Hayes, who co-starred in "Anastasia," which provided Bergman's second Oscar and return from scandal: "Ingrid has described herself as ordinary. You do not give three Academy awards to ordinary people."

Richard Widmark, victim of 12 murderers in "Murder on the Orient Express" (Bergman Oscar No. 3): "Ingrid, you killed me best."

Joseph Cotten, co-star of "Gaslight" (Oscar No. 1), told of how he and Bergman suffered under servitude to producer David O. Selznick. To make their point, the pair dressed up as butler and maid and served at a Selznick dinner party.

Stewart introduced co-workers of Miss Bergman's: Rhonda Fleming, Lew- is Milestone, Irene Hervey, Martin Balsam, Cary Grant, Mike Frankovich, Fay Wray, Richard Mulligan, James Lydon. Signe Hasso recalled attending drama school with Miss Bergman in their native Sweden.

Others attending the gala: Peter Falk, Irene Dunne, Charles Bronson, Jill Ireland, Ted Knight, Sammy Davis Jr., Jack Paar, Steve Allen, Shirley Jones, Dick Van Patten, Art Linkletter, Fred MacMurray, June Haver.

Her beauty untouched by her 64 years, Miss Bergman responded by demonstrating "how long I've been in motion pictures." Her father, she explained, was fascinated by the new medium and began filming her when she was an infant. She showed a series of home movies which had been edited by an expert — fellow Swede Ingmar Bergman.

At one point the actress explained: "My father (a widower) fell in love with my governess, so you can see he focused on her. Later she became his wife."

She gave special thanks to Katherine Brown, the Selznick scout who brought her to America, and to Ruth Roberts, who taught her English. She concluded: "Thank you all for the most unbelievably beautiful and unforgettable evening of my life."

Afterward she was asked about reports she was retiring as an actress. Her reply: "Why not? I'll never find a role as good as the last one ('Autumn Sonata'), so why shouldn't I quit while I'm ahead? Besides, they don't make pictures like 'Casablanca' and 'Gaslight' anymore."

PEONAGE TRIAL SET
MONROE, La. (AP)— Two workers accused of helping chain illegal Mexican aliens on a Union Parish farm have pleaded innocent and will go on trial in federal court on Jan. 7. Joe Price Jr. and his son Dale were arraigned in U.S. District Court, and Magistrate John W. Wilson set the trial date.

Resort City Planning

New Convention Center
ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)— Municipal planners are proposing a $250 million convention center in this seaside resort city.

The proposed facility would include a new Convention Hall, museums, retail and parking space. City Planner Angelos Demetriou said at a city council meeting Tuesday it would supplement the city's "outdated, inefficient and inflexible" Convention Hall.

About 150 families and 50 businesses would be relocated if the convention center were built and several people at the council meeting voiced angry opposition to the proposal.

Actor Takes Reluctant Look At Stardom

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Character actor Robert Donner, one of the most recognizable nameless faces in movies and TV, has a shot at stardom and is reluctant to grasp the opportunity.

Donner currently plays the recurring character of Exidor, the weird, robed fanatic in the "Mork and Mindy" series.

The powers at ABC and the producers of the series at Paramount Television would like to spin Exidor off on a show of his own, especially now that the gaunt fanatic is getting married.

Exidor will be locked in unholy matrimony on the Dec. 16 episode of "Mork and Mindy" to Georgia Engel who plays Ambrosia Malspar. Engel played the spaced out wacko married to Ted Knight on the old "Mary Tyler Moore Show."

Doubtless the adventures of the new-lywed would surpass any insanity yet seen on television. But Donner, who has the most to gain from the projected series, isn't sure such a show would succeed.

A veteran of such movies as "Cool Hand Luke," "El Dorado," "Vanishing Point" and "Bite The Bullet," Donner has been around Hollywood for more than 20 years. He's appeared in 240 television shows, almost always playing villains.

He has a secure life as a character actor, including a running role as the slovenly but lovable Yancy Tucker in "The Waltons."

Should Donner ascend to a starring role in an unsuccessful series as Exidor, the viewer recognition factor added to producer disenchantment might take its toll of his burgeoning career as a character actor.

"I've been pretty outspoken about the suggestion that Exidor should spin off into his own series," Donner said the other day. "I think the idea is crazy."

"Exidor is a genuinely funny character. He comes into every scene in 'Mork and Mindy' on the ceiling and you can't get any higher than that. He's fine for every third show or so. A little of anyone as strong as Exidor goes a long way."

"I'm not sure he could hold an audience every week on his own. But I must admit Exidor is a joy to do."

"He's a stranger in paradise. Mork is from another planet who finds strange things on earth. Exidor comes from Earth and finds things on his own planet which are strange. They have common ground."

"Exidor is clearly mad because he makes perfect sense to Mork and vice versa. He does and says wild things but he makes good sense to himself."

"He is always surrounded by from five to seven people who are visible only to himself. He's even given some of them names — Pepe Lamendola and Steinmetz for two. They are his assistants and disciples."

Exidor is not precisely religious or a political fanatic. He wears robes and rubber hip boots, not unlike some of the Los Angeles street corner prophets who offer a variety of nostrums and other means for saving humanity.

Unfortunately, or perhaps fortunately, Exidor has no recruits to his banner except for his invisible followers. His eyes burn with the passion of a terminal reformer. He emits an intensity which would seem impossible to sustain over a full season of a situation comedy.

Originally Exidor appeared as a one-shot character last year in the debut season of "Mork and Mindy." Viewer reaction was so great he was brought back for three additional appearances. This season he will be seen on the show a half dozen times.

"I know the writers on 'Mork and Mindy' love to write for Exidor," Donner said. "Exidor allows them to give Robin a rest on the show. But whether they would be able to write an entire show every week around Exidor is another question — And I don't have the answer."

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

By DUANE HOWELL

A U. S. DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE economist believes there is a rather high probability that farmers for the first time will receive cotton deficiency payments for 1979.

Any payments would be made on the difference between the target price of 57.7 cents per pound and the national weighted average farm price, if that price is lower than the target level.

The average U. S. farm price is calculated monthly by the USDA's Economics, Statistics and Cooperatives Service.

The economist said the national average farm price in November and December is expected to decline because the grower sales volume will contain a high proportion of Texas growths, which predominantly are mostly low micronaire and short staple.

Monthly average prices received by farmers this calendar year have ranged from a low of 52.5 cents in March to a high of 60.9 cents in July.

The weighted average price received by farmers for the entire calendar year is used to determine whether or not deficiency payments will be made.

MONTHLY AVERAGE PRICES IN JUNE, July, August and September were above the target price.

But the national average farm price for the year, which will be calculated in January, is not a simple average of the monthly prices under the target price formula. Since it is a weighted average, the prices in November and December, when larger amounts of cotton are sold following harvest, will have proportionately more influence on the final national figure.

In 1976, about one-half of the cotton sold by farmers was marketed in the last two months of the year. Last year, 36 percent was sold in that period, up from 28 percent the previous year.

If payments are made, any producer who voluntarily planted in 1979 at least 15 percent less cotton than he planted in 1978 would be eligible for payments on 100 percent of his cotton land.

Any reduction in acreage of less than 15 percent would result in payments on some portion of cotton based on the national allocation factor. An allocation adjustment formula could be used where farmers planted less cotton but didn't reduce by at least 15 percent.

The allocation factor is the national program acreage (this year set at 10,634,181) divided by harvested acres. Using the November crop report estimate of 12,948,500 harvested acres, the allocation factor would be 82 percent this year.

HIGH INTEREST RATES ARE HAVING a dramatic impact on break-even prices for cattlemen.

Each 1 percent rise in interest rates, reports the Western Livestock Journal, increases the break-even price for a 700-pound steer by 21 cents per hundredweight. For a calf, the break-even increase is 50 cents per hundredweight.

As a result, the journal concludes, interest costs for both pasture and feeder cattle have doubled in the past year.

LATE TRADE AND COMMISSION HOUSE buying pushed cotton futures to just below the session's highs at the close Wednesday, up 78 to 58 points in nearby.

Renewed buying moved spot December up 78 points to close at 66.65 cents, while March gained 74 points to settle at 69.66 and May advanced 58 points to finish at 71.30. Estimated volume was 9,050 lots.

Thirty-five December notices were issued. Certificated stocks as of Tuesday totaled 19,358 bales. A total of 1,810 bales awaited certification and none awaited decertification. Open interest in December going into Wednesday's session totaled 1,129 contracts, off 345 on the day.

Reports surfaced this week that China bought 100,000 bales of cotton in California over the weekend. Half the cotton was reported to be San Joaquin Valley growth and the rest was said to be California-Arizona growths, all for December-January shipment.

JAPAN AND HONG KONG Also ARE SAID to have been heavy buyers of U. S. cotton this week. Some analysts say rumors of the fresh export business have contributed to market strength the last two days.

There also have been reports that a Soviet trade delegation in Japan has been asking for higher prices for its cotton for export and at the same time promising less of it.

Meanwhile, trading on Telcel was by far the heaviest of the season Wednesday, even though the system was down part of the day. The volume totaled 19,297 bales. The average price was 54.85 cents, which was 937 points over the loan.

Cotton mixing 2.9 and below continued to drag. But quotes on 3.3 and higher were being raised 95 points and were being hiked 50 points on 3.0-3.2. The 2.9 and below cotton was being left unchanged, although bidding on it was reported definitely sluggish.

Government To Continue Milk Price Support

By DON KENDALL

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter has signed a bill that continues the government's current basic milk price support formula for two more years.

Carter, however, indicated that if the federal support triggers surplus milk production and a buildup in government stocks of dairy products at taxpayer expense he will ask Congress to reconsider.

"There is currently some concern that milk production could exceed demand sometime during the next two years. It may become necessary to give the secretary of agriculture authority to adjust the future rate of increase in support levels, should supplies become excessive," he said.

The measure allows the government to set its milk price support at between 80 percent and 90 percent of parity.

A 1977 law that specified the minimum of 80 percent expired earlier this fall. Under so-called permanent law, the support could have reduced to 75 percent of parity on Oct. 1.

However, Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland, feeling the pressure from dairy interests, took administrative action to keep the support at the 80 percent level.

Agriculture Department experts said the action would have "no appreciable effect" on consumer milk prices because those have been running higher than the federal guarantees to dairy farmers.

Retail prices of all dairy products as a group are expected to be up about 11 percent this year, the same increase estimated for all food, but should slow a bit in 1980.

Carter, in a statement, said milk supplies have been tight and prices high "at least partly as a result of decisions made before my administration came into office that held returns to dairy farmers to very low levels."

"The result was a cutback in dairy herds, which made it impossible for the industry to respond to strengthened economic incentives in 1977 and 1978. The industry has now overcome the effects of these low returns, and we can expect good production this year and next," he said.

But Carter added that "the dairy outlook is unusually uncertain this year" and that Bergland has been assured by dairy interests they will work with him "to monitor dairy developments and to seek legislative action if it appears government stocks will reach excessive levels."

The parity formula used to set dairy supports, theoretically, at 100 percent would give farmers the same buying power they had in a 1910-14 base period.

Linked partly to production costs, the formula — even when kept constant at the 80 percent rate — has provided consistent increases in price supports.

For example, when Bergland decided to renew the 80 percent support at the beginning of the new dairy marketing year on Oct. 21, the basic guarantee was increased to $11.22 per 100 pounds of milk, up 71 cents per 100 pounds or about 6.1 cents a gallon.

The government does not pay farmers directly when milk prices fall below the support level, but does buy surplus cheese, butter and nonfat dry milk to prop up the prices that dealers pay them.

Thus, if milk output climbs precipitously, government purchases of those items could soar.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q. I am 59 and thinking of retiring soon. My wife is 55. We have a home worth about $35,000, with a $15,000 mortgage at 7 1/2 percent. I will get about $400 a month as a pension. We also have a farm, all paid for, from which I receive rent of from $3,000 to $5,000 a year.

When I retire, I will have $150,000 to invest. I do not want to take any risk with this money. We only want to live off my pension, the rent from the farm and the income from the $150,000. What are your suggestions?

A. Unless you have ideas about "living it up" in retirement, you should be able to get along nicely.

If you are dead set against taking any kind of risk, you should consider putting that $150,000 into U.S. Treasury bonds. Long-term Treasuries are now yielding better than 10 percent — $15,000 a year on your $150,000.

With $150,000, plus your $4,800 pension and farm rent of at least $3,000 a year, you should have a comfortable retirement. Since you have obviously worked hard to accumulate what you have — a sizable amount of wealth — you deserve to live well.

So, visit a brokerage firm, explain your situation and tell the broker you are interested in buying U.S. Treasuries. There are many different Treasury bonds available. Long-term bonds seem best suited for you.

Q. An insurance salesman told me that, if I deposit money with his company, I will receive 8 percent tax free, as long as the money I put in lasts. After that, I would continue to receive 8 percent but that would be taxable.

Can this be true?
A. Sure. As long as your own money is coming back to you, why should you pay taxes. You don't pay tax on your own money. If you put money in a bank account and then withdraw it, you don't pay tax.

The deal that salesman is trying to put you into is no bargain. You can get about 7 3/4 percent tax-free interest from many good-grade municipal bonds these days and keep your principal intact.

Q. I need information about the "old Ponzi game." I want to pass it along to some young friends who are now making investments. Who was Ponzi? Where and when did he operate?

A. Charles Ponzi was probably the most celebrated con man of this century. Although he was involved in swindles before and after, his biggest scam took place in Boston in 1919 and 1920.

He fleeced suckers by promising them tremendously high returns. As the money flowed in, he used the most recent dollars that arrived to pay so-called "interest" or "profits" to people who had "invested" earlier.

As long as more money came in from new suckers than had to be paid out to earlier pigeons, the Ponzi scheme remained afloat. But, when people wanted the money they had put in, it just wasn't there.

The lesson, of course, is that promises of sure, sky-high profits are usually phony.

Q. I have some U.S. Treasury bills, bought through a bank and left at the bank for safekeeping. In case of bank failure, are my T bills considered part of the bank's assets?

A. No. You own those T bills. They are part of your assets — not the bank's. They are, no doubt, in a "book entry" account your bank maintains with the Federal Reserve System.

In the unlikely event the bank goes belly up, your T bills would be well protected. Relax. You have nothing to worry about.

Unemployment Rate Expected To Rise

By WILLIAM GLASGALL
NEW YORK (AP) — Will unemployment soar as the economy nosedives?

Economists generally are predicting an economic slowdown will mean higher unemployment in the months ahead. But how high will the jobless rate rise — and what kind of signals are analysts watching? Here are some questions and answers about the unemployment outlook.

Q. What's the current unemployment rate?

A. In October, unemployment stood at 6 percent of the work force. In other words, 6.2 million out of 103.5 million potential job-holders weren't working.

Q. Does the government count all workers in figuring out the size of the work force?

A. No — and that may mean that unemployment statistics actually are understated. Persons who usually work part-time and who currently aren't seeking work are not counted as unemployed in the labor force. In addition, "discouraged" workers — those not actively looking for jobs — are not included in the labor force. In the government's eyes, these workers are not employed but are not unemployed either.

Q. Even though they're not part of the labor force, do the discouraged workers have any significance?

A. Researcher Charlie Carter of the Federal Reserve Bank of Kansas City says the discouraged workers are more prone to begin looking for jobs when confidence by the general population in the economic outlook is high.

"Therefore, favorable perceptions by discouraged workers could be helpful in explaining the large increases in labor force participation in the latter stage of (economic) expansions," he said in a recent issue of the bank's "Economic Review."

Q. What about part-time workers?

A. Economist Geoffrey Moore, who is best known for his research in the field of business cycles, has suggested that the ratio of workers holding part-time jobs voluntarily to involuntary part-time workers has been a useful indicator of general labor trends.

Layoffs of involuntary part-time workers typically begin to rise as a period of economic expansion nears its end. The ratio of voluntary to involuntary part-time workers peaked one year prior to the rise of unemployment during the 1957-58 recession, nine months before the 1960-61 recession, seven months before the 1970 recession and six months before the 1973-75 recession.

Q. What's the jobless outlook?

A. Carter notes the part-time ratio reached its latest peak in the fourth quarter of 1978 "if the lead time behaves as it did before the last recession, June's unemployment rate (an average of 5.7 percent during the first half of the year) was the lowest point for the current cycle," he said.

"Thus, the indicator suggests that the unemployment rate will rise ... to about the end of 1980," he said, possibly reaching "over 9 percent before the current recession is over."

Other economists have come up with different forecasts. Philadelphia's Provident National Bank sees the unemployment rate climbing to 8 percent by next summer before falling to 7.7 percent at year-end.

The consulting firm of A. Gary Shilling & Co. Inc., believes, however, that unemployment will rise steadily to 7.2 percent by the last quarter of 1980. In 1981, Shilling believes, unemployment may reach as high as 9.7 percent by the end of the year.
