

November Wholesale Food Prices Leap

WASHINGTON (AP) — Led by sharply higher prices for poultry and beef, wholesale food prices increased by 2.6 percent in November, the worst monthly increase in five years and a clear warning that consumers face higher grocery bills in weeks ahead.

Overall wholesale prices increased 1.3 percent during the month and were up at an annual rate of 12.8 percent for the year, the Labor Department said Thursday.

The increase makes it virtually certain that 1979 will be the worst year for inflation at the wholesale level since 1974, when prices rose 18.3 percent. Wholesale prices increased 9.1 percent last year.

Energy prices rose by 2.5 percent in November, the smallest amount since February, but were still 62.7 percent higher than a year earlier.

Meanwhile, the Commerce Department said American businessmen apparently are slowing down their investment plans for the first half of next year. It said a survey showed they will increase spending on new plants and equipment by only 1.5 percent over the final half of 1979, after adjusting for inflation.

While that isn't much, a department economist said it's better than nothing. "Many economists were concerned that business investment would just flatten out entirely after the end of 1979," he said. Investment for all of 1979 is expected to be 5 percent higher than 1978.

Lyle E. Gramley, a member of the President's Council of Economic Advisors, said the November price report is evidence that "we've not made any breakthrough on inflation yet."

The increase in food prices, the largest since a 4.2 percent rise in November of 1974, means consumers will be paying more for groceries in the near future, especially for meat items.

Poultry prices increased 21.5 percent, while beef, veal and pork prices also rose sharply after declining in October.

The overall increase in wholesale prices follows a 1 percent rise in October and 1.4 percent jump in September. Food prices had declined 0.1 percent in October.

"Any time prices go up as much as 1.3 percent, as they did in November, it's got to be disturbing," Gramley said in an interview.

But he said the big jump in food prices may be a "one-month bump," adding there are "some hopeful signs" of an improvement in the inflation outlook.

He said prices of meats at the farm level have stabilized since mid-November, Gramley said. "If we take out food and energy in November, there was basically a 7 percent rate of inflation."

The easing in the increase in energy prices was welcome, although Gramley cautioned that if the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries votes another increase in the price of oil at its Dec. 17 meeting in Caracas, the respite may be only temporary.

The price of home heating oil rose just 0.1 percent in November, compared with a 4.7 percent jump in October. Gasoline prices rose 3.4 percent, compared with 5.1 percent in October.

Prices also rose more slowly for passenger cars, up 0.2 percent compared with an 0.6 percent rise in October, and for mobile homes, jewelry and rugs. Prices for flatware declined 1.7 percent compared with a 39.1 percent advance in October.

Wholesale price changes are included in the Producer Price Index, which reports prices at three levels: the wholesale — or finished goods — level, when goods are ready for sale to the final user; the intermediate level, where they have received some processing; and the crude level, where goods have not yet received any processing.

The Producer Price Index for finished goods stood in November at 225.9, meaning that goods priced at $100 in 1967 had risen to $225.90 last month.

Prices of finished goods other than food rose 0.8 percent in November, down from a 1.4 percent increase in October. Prices of intermediate goods rose 0.9 percent, one-half the October increase of 1.8 percent, and prices of crude goods rose 2 percent, up from the October rise of 1.5 percent.

Price changes at the wholesale, or finished goods level, usually show up at the retail level in a month or two.

Retail prices increased at a 13 percent annual rate during the first 10 months of the year, the fastest rate since 1946 when

Khmeini Appeals For Iranian Unity

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Ayatollah Ruhollah Khmeini urged Thursday for national unity after two days of clashes between opponents and supporters of Iran's Islamic Constitution that was overwhelmingly approved by voters this week.

He asked the nation to focus instead on the conflict with the United States.

Supporters of Ayatollah Mohammed Kazem Shariat-Madari seized the state radio-television station in Tabriz, capital of Azerbaijan Province 300 miles northwest of here, and said they had ousted the provincial governor.

Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh said he and Khmeini agreed the U.N. Security Council resolution on the U.S.-Iran crisis was a "step forward" to a negotiated settlement, the official Pars news agency reported. The crisis centers on demands the ousted shah be sent to Iran in return for the release of 50 American hostages held in the occupied U.S. Embassy since Nov. 4.

A spokesman for the protesters in Tabriz said they numbered 30,000 and were concerned about a demonstration near Shariat-Madari's home Wednesday. He said they mistrusted broadcast reports that their leader had called for calm and would heed only a broadcast by Shariat-Madari himself.

The fate of Gov. Noreddin Gharavi was not clear. Telephone calls to his office were not answered. A spokesman at the Tabriz office of the Moslem People's Party, which is loyal to Shariat-Madari, told The Associated Press: "We haven't had a governor for the past 24 hours. 'Everything is in the hands of the people, and Tabriz is at peace,'" the spokesman said. "Any governor or official sent to Tabriz must have the approval of Ayatollah Shariat-Madari."

Khmeini Confers
Khmeini issued his unity call after meeting in the holy city of Qum with Shariat-Madari, who has said the Islamic charter approved by voters Sunday does not give adequate autonomy to Iran's minorities and vests too much power in Khmeini.

"Do not quarrel between yourselves and focus on the one and only enemy... It is your religious duty and national responsibility to concentrate on the confrontation with the United States," Khmeini said in a nationwide radio broadcast.

Khmeini and Shariat-Madari, the most powerful leaders of Iran's predominant Shiite Moslem sect, appear to be in essential agreement on national policy and the new charter despite clashes between their followers.

"Caused By Plotters"
Two persons were killed and eight wounded Wednesday in a demonstration near Shariat-Madari's house in Qum, 100 miles south of here. One of Shariat-Madari's personal guards was killed in the incident, but reports differed on whether the other victim was a Shariat-Madari supporter or a member of Khmeini's revolutionary guards.

In his unity call Khmeini said, "The tragedy that occurred at Shariat-Madari's home was caused by plotters and must be condemned. You should make sure such plots are not repeated."

According to Tehran Radio, the clash began as an argument between opponents and supporters of the constitution. The argument grew into a fight, and crowds poured into the streets.

Revolutionary guards closed off streets and alleys leading to Shariat-Madari's house and tank-cannon fire was heard near his residence, the radio said. It said one of Shariat-Madari's guards was fatally wounded, several people were arrested, and a number of swords, knives and hatchets were seized.

Bazargan Designated
The ruling Revolutionary Council designated one of its members, former Prime Minister Mehdi Bazargan, to deliver a television and radio address to the 600,000 "honorable and fighting people of Tabriz." Bazargan, a member of the Turkish minority that makes up at least 10 percent of Iran's 35 million people, resigned his government post shortly after the embassy takeover.

The demonstrators, members of Azerbaijan's predominant Turkish population, also said they opposed the new Islamic Constitution because it did not give them enough autonomy. Leftists and centrist parties joined leaders of Iran's Turkish, Kurdish, Turkomen, Baluchi, and Arab minorities in calling for a boycott of the vote.

According to official election results, 99.6 percent of those voting endorsed the charter, which mandates theocratic government and confirms Khmeini, 79, as ruler for life.

Ghotbzadeh disclosed the apparent softening of Khmeini's stance in the U.S.-Iran crisis after conferring with him in Qum, Pars said. Khmeini had rejected in advance any steps taken by the Security Council, alleging it was under U.S. control.

"Regarding the U.N. Security Council decision, we of course have noticed that this is not a resolution condemning us... This resolution is a step forward," Ghotbzadeh was quoted as saying. He did not mention the resolution's request that Iran immediately free the hostages safe passage out of the country.

He expressed some reservations over

Chicago Duo Indicted In Murder Plot Here

By BOB CAMPBELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A 137TH DISTRICT Court grand jury Thursday returned 85 true bills, including indictments for solicitation of capital murder against a Chicago couple and eight sealed indictments reportedly related to a long-term drug trafficking investigation.

The grand jury no-billed or refused to indict nine persons. Vaso V. Mraovic, 41, and his wife, Ann Mraovic, were accused of offering a "hit man" $150,000 to travel to Lubbock and kill Arthur Boldt, son-in-law of Mrs. Mraovic, in a reported scheme that ended when Mraovic was arrested at a Lubbock motel.

Criminal District Attorney John T. Montford said extradition proceedings will be undertaken against Mrs. Mraovic. Montford and his first assistant, Jim Bob Darnell, said the names of persons accused in the sealed indictments will be withheld until all are arrested.

The district attorney said the drug investigation lasted about five months and was not related to a federal grand jury investigation that resulted in a number of drug indictments last summer.

"It's something we've been working on since June," he said.

At least some of the indictments reportedly are related to trafficking in meth-amphetamines, or "speed."

The grand jury returned a murder indictment against a 23-year-old man in the Nov. 23 beating death of 22-year-old Raymond Padilla of Lubbock but no-billed two other men, the father and brother of the accused man.

Marcus Villesca was indicted in the case; Frank Villesca, 52, and Adam Villesca, 19, both of Amarillo, were no-billed.

Padilla was found unconscious Nov. 21 in the 2700 block of Texas Avenue. He

State Gasoline Cutbacks Outlined For Early '80

WASHINGTON (AP) — Energy Secretary Charles W. Duncan said Thursday the nation must use no more gasoline in 1980 than it did in 1979, and proposed voluntary state gas-saving limits for the first quarter of next year.

Although there is a hold-the-line limit for all of 1980, the states will find their initial ceilings amount to an average 7 percent cutback from the high gasoline consumption of the first three months of 1979.

The state quotas will be adjusted quarterly to achieve the full-year target of about 7 million barrels of gasoline daily. A barrel contains 42 gallons of gasoline.

"These targets are voluntary now," Duncan told a news conference, "but they could become mandatory under the new Emergency Energy Conservation Act if the president determines that a severe supply shortage exists or is imminent."

"We want to avoid gasoline lines if at all possible," he said.

Duncan said petroleum supplies appear adequate now, but warned that "there is a real possibility that we will have problems in 1980."

Duncan also announced that the department would publish on Friday for public comment a standby gasoline rationing plan which could be imposed in the event supplies fall short by at least 20 percent for more than 30 days.

He said the plan would involve issuing gasoline rationing coupons based on vehicle registrations and allowing extra rations for high priority needs, such as public services and farming.

Duncan provided no further details, but administration officials have favored allowing the public to buy and sell ration coupons legally, in so-called "white market" trading.

Duncan said the administration also is considering a wide range of other measures it might impose if necessary, short of all-out rationing.

Among those options, he said, are assigning each vehicle a weekly no-driving day, assigning once-a-week gasoline purchase restrictions, or asking Congress to raise the federal gasoline tax from the present 4 cents a gallon to as much as 50 cents.

Duncan said the administration would rather let the states achieve their voluntary gasoline-saving targets, or mandatory targets if it comes to that, in their own ways, and use federal intervention only where a state fails.

In a meeting with state governors last month, President Carter said the administration would set both national and state gasoline-saving targets for 1980.

Duncan's national target for 1980 of gasoline consumption averaging no higher than 7 million barrels daily is just about the same as the average gasoline use so far in 1979. However, it is about 5 percent below average use in 1978.

The 1978-1979 decline marks a trend of reduced driving which Duncan said was caused by an economic recession and heightened public awareness of the need to save fuel.

With a growing population of licensed drivers, the trend toward less driving per person would have to be maintained if total gasoline consumption is held at the 7 million barrel level.

Asked what might prompt Carter to propose a gasoline tax of 50 cents per gallon, Duncan replied: "If the trend in driving habits were not to continue as satisfactorily as now, I think the president would have no option but to do this."

The Energy Department worked out individual state consumption targets based on past trends, weather conditions and existing conservation efforts. The result was specific limits on the number of barrels of gasoline assigned to each state

Civic Center Promoter Considered By Boards

By NANCY ALLEN
Avalanche-Journal Staff
Lubbock's Civic Center Board and the Hotel-Motel and Restaurant Associations moved a step closer Thursday to agreement over the need for a city-employed administrator to promote the Civic Center.

The two associations have opposed using hotel tax money to fund a civic center promoter, on grounds it would be a "duplication of efforts" already made by the Visitors and Convention Bureau.

The promoter would "keep Lubbockites informed of civic center and Civic Lubbock Inc. events, and notify visiting conventioners of cultural events going on while they are here," explained civic center director Dottie Townsend to two Hotel-Motel Association representatives at the meeting.

The individual also could increase civic center follow-up efforts to correct any problems with service, said Jim Weston, the city's director of facilities. He said the civic center's current staff is too overworked to do a good job of contacting building users.

"We don't try to interfere with anything the Visitors and Convention Bureau does," Mrs. Townsend assured Ray Chapman and Bill Figg of the H-MA.

"We're all in the same business — getting people into Lubbock," Chapman told board members. "It's clear you need something; either a new staff member or reorganization of (staff) duties."

Both representatives said they would support another civic center staff member "as long as there is no duplication" of duties, but reserved final endorsement until Hotel-Motel Association and Restaurant Association can meet in full.

At a mid-September city council meeting, Hotel-Motel Association opposition preceded a vote by the council to table the Civic Center Board's recommendation that the position be established.

The Hotel-Motel and Restaurant Associations are expected to vote on whether to endorse the position before the January 10 city council meeting.

"We don't try to interfere with anything the Visitors and Convention Bureau does," Mrs. Townsend assured Ray Chapman and Bill Figg of the H-MA.

"We're all in the same business — getting people into Lubbock," Chapman told board members. "It's clear you need something; either a new staff member or reorganization of (staff) duties."

Fair Weather Predicted For Area

After a cold front dropped temperatures in Lubbock to the low 20s early Wednesday, the weather today on the South Plains should be fair, with temperatures climbing into the low 60s this afternoon.

The rapidly moving front swept across the state Wednesday, leaving clear skies and cooler temperatures in its wake. Temperatures in Lubbock Wednesday ranged from an afternoon high of 58 to a low of 24 at 8 a.m.

Tonight the low should be in the low 30s with the high Saturday again in the low 60s. Winds today should be northwesterly up to 5 mph.

The extended forecast calls for fair weather through Tuesday with mild afternoons and lows at night in the 30s.

No precipitation is expected in Texas through Saturday night.

Nationally, high winds returned to the eastern slopes of the Rockies on Thursday, while other parts of the nation received scattered snow or rain.

The high winds affected the eastern slopes of the Montana Rockies, northern and central Wyoming and parts of Colorado.

There were snow flurries in Montana and parts of North Dakota, and light snow extended from western Minnesota across the eastern Dakotas.

Report Claims Soviet Warplanes Launched Attack On Villages

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Soviet warplanes flying support for government forces in the 19-month-old Afghan civil war, bombed rebel-held villages in strategic Badakhshan Province, a delayed report from Kabul said Thursday.

The report from a usually reliable source said Soviet air power was used after Moslem insurgents seized major towns including Faizabad, capital of the remote northeastern province that borders the Soviet Union, China and Pakistan.

The rebel tribesmen are battling to overthrow President Hafizullah Amin and establish an Islamic republic in the overwhelmingly Moslem country. They control about half the rugged Afghan countryside.

The Kabul source quoted an Afghan army officer hospitalized in Kabul with battle wounds as saying 400 government troops survived the recent fighting while about 1,000 deserted to the rebel side with arms, artillery, jeeps, trucks and several tanks.

The fighting involved Soviet MiG jet fighters and helicopter gunships from Soviet bases that hit northeastern villages believed in rebel control, the report said. It said some napalm bombs were dropped.

The air strikes followed reports of Afghan army officers refusing to proceed to Badakhshan for a counteroffensive, the report said.

State Department spokesman Hodding Carter said in Washington earlier this week there was evidence of Soviet troops in actual combat but "Soviet advisers have increased their role in support of the Afghan military, especially in the area of command and control functions."

The Soviets have taken over Shindand military air base in Herat Province on the Afghan-Iran border, a reliable Kabul report said. The Soviets already control Bagram Air Base near Kabul, diplomatic sources said.

Western estimates say there are between 3,500-4,000 Soviet military advisers in the country. It is not known if this number includes some Asian Soviets — Tajiks and Uzbeks — whose features similar to some northern Afghans. There have been reports of the Tajiks and Uzbeks serving in some Afghan army combat teams.

Amin, 50, seized power after thwarting an attempt by his predecessor, the late Nur Mohammed Taraki, to remove him as foreign minister in September. His regime has accused the Soviet Embassy in Kabul of shielding several members of the conspiracy, diplomatic sources reported.

In an apparent move to patch up differences, Moscow replaced its ambassador and this week sent Deputy Interior Minister Viktor S. Paputin to Kabul, a report from the Afghan capital said.

Paputin met Amin on Monday, an unofficial report from Kabul said. They discussed the restructuring of the Afghan police force along Soviet lines and possible closer links between the Soviet KGB secret police and its Afghan counterpart, the KAA, both at home and abroad, said a source who quoted a senior Kabul police official.

Cease-Fire Agreement Hits Snag

LONDON (AP) — The day-old Zimbabwe Rhodesia cease-fire agreement ran into a snag Thursday when Patriotic Front guerrilla leaders balked at proposals to confine their forces at 15 assembly points in the former British colony.

Patriotic Front co-leader Joshua Nkomo was quoted as saying he was ready to "tear up" the agreement-in-principle announced Wednesday by British Foreign Secretary Lord Carrington unless government troops were forced to withdraw to the same number of points.

Conference sources also quoted Nkomo as saying Britain must rethink its "totally unacceptable" proposals. A spokesman for Carrington said the latest dispute would be addressed during Friday's negotiating session.

Under the compromise agreement, peacekeeping forces would encircle all assembly points accommodating Front guerrillas from sanctuaries in neighboring African countries. However, Nkomo's chief spokesman said Thursday it was impossible for the Front to put its forces "into the nets of the enemy" by sending them into fixed assembly areas while Rhodesian government forces are allowed to stay in operational positions.

The agreement also stipulates that peacekeeping forces surround operational positions where Zimbabwe Rhodesia government forces are stationed.

The Front has refused to reveal the size of its forces until the numbers and locations of Rhodesian army forces are disclosed.

"We are willing to reciprocate, but we do not accept that we must do what others are not required to do," said Robert Mugabe, the other Front leader. "We shall not be pushed into places where we appear to surrender. We insist on equal conditions, equal obligations, equal rights and equal duties."

News of the latest disagreement came after British government sources said the United States agreed to provide transport aircraft to fly military equipment needed by British troops to supervise the cease-fire. The cease-fire is aimed at ending seven years of fighting that resulted in 20,000 deaths.

On Friday, Britain is to name a governor to run Zimbabwe Rhodesia until independence is reached following elections. Lord Soames, a son-in-law of Sir Winston Churchill and a former cabinet member, is considered the likely choice.

The governor would re-establish British control in the colony, whose white settlers proclaimed independence in 1965 rather than submit to black-majority rule in the country where blacks outnumber whites 28-1.

Bishop Abel Muzorewa, a black, replaced Ian Smith as prime minister earlier this year, but whites retained 28 seats in the 100-seat parliament under terms of a new constitution, the guerrillas boycotted the elections.

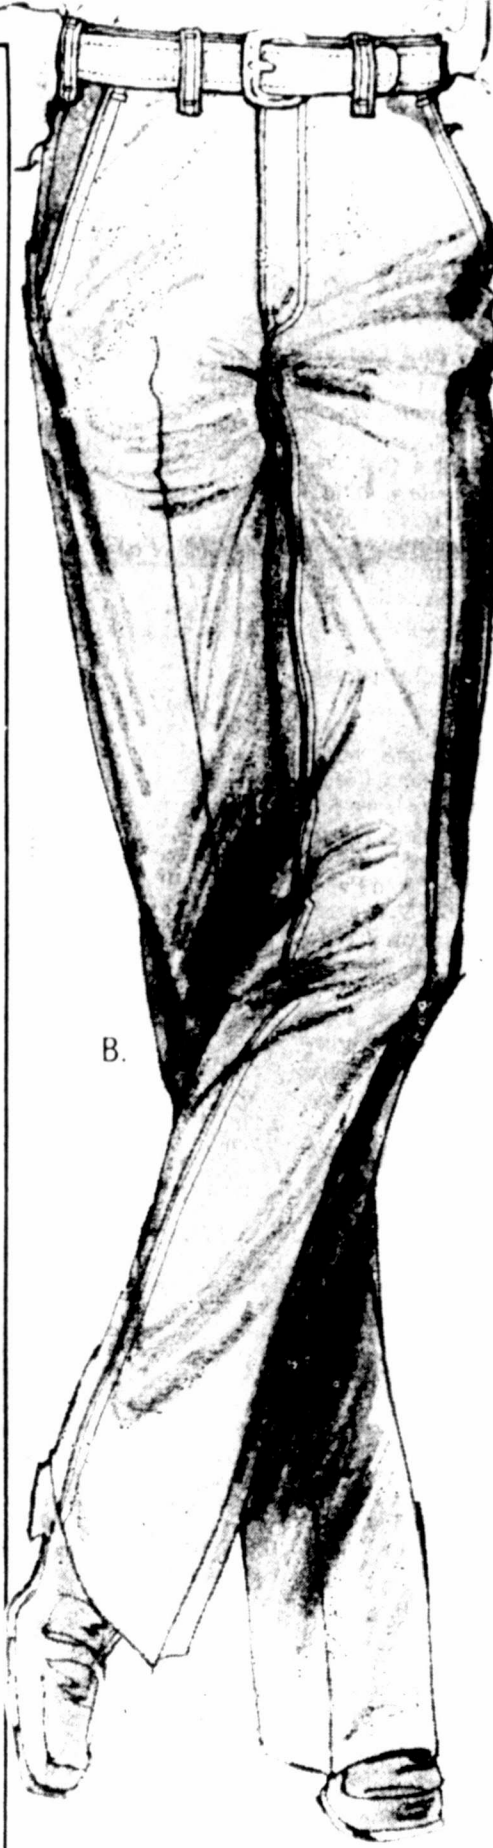

A bill to grant Rhodesia independence was presented to the British Parliament on Thursday and is expected to become law by Christmas.

JAY HARRIS:

The Last Hurrah?

IT MAY BE Jingle Bells time across most of the nation, but the Yule season also is for politicking, it seems.

Despite the fact that the Iranian crisis has put a damper on certain aspects of foreign policy debate among "the men and women who," the Presidential campaign is in full swing.

And one of the major surprises of the fading weeks of the year and budding weeks of the political scene has been the fact that Sen. Ted Kennedy may not be a "Kennedy" after all.

Which is to say that the Massachusetts solon has stunned both friend and foe among the pros and ordinary folk with his inept handling of his campaign. As of this moment, the heir-apparent to Camelot is in deep trouble.

FOR A MAN brought up in a political world and a man who is supposed to be the epitome of the polished politician, Teddy has a long way to go.

We had just walked into the small lobby of the Azarim Hotel in Metulla, the northernmost city in Israel, when we heard Sen. Kennedy's announcement that he formally was launching his long-expected run for the White House roses.

A group of 12 U.S. news people left their bags set with hotel guests and a group of Norwegian UN "peace-keeping" troops headed for Lebanon less than a mile away.

Quite frankly, whether it was the Iran crisis or the just-completed fog-shrouded trip along the Lebanese border, Sen. Kennedy came off as a strong and decisive candidate to most of those watching. The fact that Joan Kennedy stepped up to heartily endorse her husband didn't hurt any.

THAT WAS less than a month ago. What has happened in the past three weeks when time stood still won't soon be forgotten.

It won't be forgotten as it applies to another trip to the brink of war and peace for this nation.

Nor will it be forgotten how the suave, sophisticated and supposedly politically-savvy senator may have blown his chances even before getting started.

The campaign is just getting underway, of course. What happens on the world scene, at home and in the presidential contest itself is yet to be written. No one has a hammerlock on the nomination in either the Republican or Democratic party, let alone the White House.

And no one can be counted out. But, in the overall context of assessing the campaign to this point, the "boo-boos" committed by Sen. Kennedy stand out above all else.

IN THE FIRST place, once past the formal, rehearsed kickoff, Teddy has come off as a man ill at ease, groping for answers and inept under pressure.

Those around Kennedy blame it on the fact that "we didn't have the normal shakedown period." They charge the news media built up Kennedy in the mystique of brothers John F. and Robert then fault Teddy for not living up to the image.

But most of Teddy's problems have been of his own making, in the full glare of television, the medium which many argued was "made for him."

What millions have seen is a man who while making Brownie points before large turnouts in some areas, overall has come across as a man who gropes for the right words if not answers, who stumbles verbally on tough questions and who may have committed a fatal faux pas on Iran.

IT ALL STARTED with a widely discussed interview with CBS newsman Roger Mudd, in which Kennedy stumbled and fumbled over questions about Chappaquiddick.

But it has been the Senator's stance on the former Shah Mohammed Pahlavi's stay in the U.S. that set off the biggest firestorm.

Marching in where no other candidate has dared tread, the Massachusetts solon denounced the exiled Shah as having headed "one of the most repressive regimes" in history and stolen "umpteenth billions" of dollars from Iran.

Those remarks brought a swift rebuke from Carter administration officials who said they feared they might jeopardize the safety of the 50 Americans being held in Tehran. That didn't deter Kennedy. Back in Washington, he defended his criticism and called for a public debate on whether the deposed monarch should receive permanent asylum in the U.S.

The senator's position as regards the Shah is shaky on several counts. In the first place, surveys show many feel the U.S. has every right to grant asylum and certainly medical aid to the Shah. Others feel Kennedy's remarks will be misinterpreted by Iranian leaders.

JUST FOR THE RECORD, Tehran newspapers splashed Kennedy's remarks on page one in most instances, along with photos of the senator.

At this juncture, the injection of the Shah into the campaign may be a major blunder.

But there is much more to the faltering Kennedy campaign than his ineptness at the podium and before the media. Now that he is a formal candidate, many are taking a hard, new look at the man who has been "assumed" to be a candidate for years.

Not only are many persons seeing a man who they feel hasn't told the whole story of Chappaquiddick, but a man who is playing a worn-out and rejected tune of continued big spending, racial favoritism and memories of another time and another place.

In brief, people are "taking a look at the record" and not buying it. Add to that the senator's awkward start, his seeming evasiveness on key questions and issues and his tossing the Shah to the jacksals and you have a man who no longer is an enigma and a reincarnation of Kennedy's past, but a man who may even have feet of clay.

L.M. ROYD:

...Pass It On

Q. HOW FREQUENTLY does the average person take a bath?

A. Curiously, that's a mystery. The politakers have tried to find out, but admit their statistics probably aren't accurate. People queried on the subject clam up for some peculiar reason.

Q. Where was the world's worst railroad wreck? A. In Modane, France, on Dec. 12, 1917, when a passenger train derailed killing 543 persons.

A blindfolded dolphin can find a penny at the bottom of its tank. How does it do it?

Q. Does anybody know the approximate height and weight of Jesus Christ?

A. Bible scholars pretty much agree on the figures of 6 feet 170 pounds.

ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK:

SALT II Under Table

WASHINGTON—President Carter is so anxious to keep his distance from Henry Kissinger during the Iranian crisis that the White House tried to cover up its invitation for Kissinger to attend a hush-hush meeting about defense spending and the strategic arms treaty (SALT II).

That meeting was called in Sen. Sam Nunn's Capitol Hill office the evening of Nov. 27 to discuss defense spending increases demanded by both Kissinger and Nunn, as their price for supporting SALT II.

The President's men leaked word that Kissinger

ROBERT WALTERS:
Running On 'E'

WASHINGTON—Every time the subject of federal funding for public transit arises, penny-pinchers at the budget office and on Capitol Hill start screaming loudly about how much it costs.

They are right. Mass transit is indeed a big-ticket item, especially rail transit. But it is also one of the most productive energy-saving investments the government can make, as transportation planners are finally starting to realize.

The hard fact is that the United States made a disastrous public policy error when we put all of our transportation emphasis on the automobile in the years following World War II.

While our government was building interstate highways and Detroit was perfecting the gas guzzler, other industrialized nations were developing fuel-efficient bus systems, subways, light rail and commuter trains.

AND NOW that the energy crisis has arrived in earnest, these other nations are far better equipped than we are to adjust to a world that is, as a new Worldwatch Institute book puts it, "Running on Empty."

There has been some cutback already in automobile use with gasoline priced at $1 a gallon: imagine what will happen when gas reaches $2 or $3 per gallon, as it already has in most of the world.

We are facing more than mere rationing by price, however. We are facing, as sure as the sun rises in the east, allocation by priorities—and by anybody's standards, the private automobile (which now accounts for one-third of all the oil consumed in this country) has to rank below demands for heating oil, food production, freight delivery, industrial production, public transportation and everything else.

"AS THE GLOBAL demand for oil outstrips supply, pressures could mount for an international allocation system," the Worldwatch Institute study suggests.

"And Western nations may find that those who supply the oil choose not to allow the inefficient auto-centered transport systems in the wealthy industrial countries to siphon fuel away from the food-producing sector in the Third World."

Detroit is finally starting to produce more fuel-efficient cars. And that is fine for people who simply must rely on the automobile to travel to and from work.

But in the major urban areas, a concerted—and expensive—effort is needed to revitalize mass transit, whether in the form of bus systems, subways, light rail or commuter trains.

IN CITY after city, those systems are a shambles, plagued by poor management, ancient equipment and hopeless maintenance.

Seventy-five years ago, when the New York subway system opened, America led the world in public transportation. Now there are more breakdowns in the transit systems of many American cities in a single day than there are in a whole year in Japan.

All of us share responsibility—as consumers, taxpayers and voters—for neglecting mass transit all these years. And all of us will have to share the costs of bringing those systems up to snuff

AN EDITORIAL:

U.S. Image Needs Polishing

AMERICA'S LONG-time friends in and out of government from Bogota to Buenos Aires confess they've lost confidence that we'll stand up to protect even our own vital security interest.

A civilian Sandinista revolutionary now occupies Nicaragua's seat on the sensitive Inter-American Defense Board for example.

Lt. Gen. Gordon Sumner (Ret.), who has just returned from a fact-finding trip to South America, says, "Only from abroad does one see how seriously U.S. power is deteriorating in every dimension."

Gen. Sumner, former senior military aide to ex-Defense Secretary Melvin Laird, traveled under the auspices of the Council for Inter-American Security, an independent research organization based in Washington, D.C.

THE DANGEROUS unreality of our current policies and of the Carter administration's ideologically blurred perception of what is actually happening is especially clear from a South American vantage point. Gen. Sumner wrote in a letter to The A-J Editorial Board.

"In the highest circles," he said, "people wonder out loud what new storm cloud will burst forth in the wake of Soviet-Cuban expansionism in Africa and the Middle East, Central America and the Caribbean as the Carter administration limps lame duck-like through next year's election."

While Soviet power is growing on every front, the U.S. in Gen. Sumner's eyes seems paralyzed by the introduction of Soviet troops in Cuba and the seizure of its embassy in Iran. "Military decline and diplomatic blundering are also having economic consequences," he points out.

At a time when the hemisphere, lacking U.S. coordination and protection, should be hanging together, some of the smaller countries seem panicked into hanging one another, the general observes.

WHILE THE McGovernite appointees of President Carter lament abuse of leftist dissidents and terrorists, they are consistently quiet about the thousands of civilian victims of leftist kidnapping, murder, bombing and torture.

South Americans apparently recognize better than we that the window has opened onto a period that invites Communist initiatives and which requires a new realism in Washington.

A Soviet military advantage of varying degrees will be with us for at least six more years, even if we set a new course in strategic and conventional forces tomorrow.

Geo-politically, we could immeasurably strengthen ourselves and the Hemisphere if we would heed Gen. Sumner's advice to discard Andrew Youngish preoccupations and concentrate instead on the nations like Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Mexico and Colombia that can—and do—make a difference in the power equation against the Soviet Bloc.

AN EDITORIAL:

Puerto Rican Act 'Despicable'

OVERSHADOWED by the reprehensible actions of Iran has been an equally or even more reprehensible act of terrorism within the jurisdiction of the United States.

Puerto Rican fanatics of the type President Carter released from prison recently ambushed a U.S. Navy bus and killed two sailors.

Three outlaw groups dedicated to Puerto Rico independence so that they can seize power for themselves boasted that they were responsible for the attack, which resulted in the wounding of 10 other American servicemen and women.

It was the bloodiest, but not the first, attack ever against the military on the commonwealth island.

THE WHITE HOUSE branded the ambush as a "despicable act of murder" but, in fact, the President's failure to take a hard line against domestic terrorism has encouraged the dissidents, just as his soft line in foreign affairs has encouraged street mobs to attack American embassies all over the Moslem world.

It was only a few weeks ago that the President granted clemency to and released from jail one Puerto Rican who stormed the White House in a murderous attempt to assassinate President Truman in 1950 and three others who sprayed the House of Representatives with bullets in 1954.

There has been no indication that the freed terrorists had anything to do with this week's atrocity but it will be recalled that they were unrepentant upon their release.

At the time, Atty. Gen. Benjamin Civiletti and Secretary of State Cyrus Vance called the clemency move "a significant humanitarian gesture."

Critics, including The Avalanche-Journal, disagreed.

"SOMEHOW, WE THINK the world would be a lot safer place with the jails full of terrorists instead of the streets being full of them," we editorialized at the time.

Instead, members of the Armed Forces of Popular Resistance, the Puerto Rican Popular Army and the Organization of Volunteers for the Puerto Rican Revolution are free to wage guerrilla warfare and kill unarmed Americans.

These outlaws should be tracked down and taken out of circulation before other lives are lost. And, this time, there should be no clemency. One mistake is too many.

M. STANTON EVANS:

Commerce Shifts Gears To Slow Russian Drive

WASHINGTON—The lid that has been tightly clamped on the boiling issue of East-West trade was raised a couple of inches last week.

In hearings before a Senate Banking subcommittee, Commerce Department official Lawrence Brady charged that lax procedures by the U.S. government had permitted the diversion of our technology to military uses by the Soviet Union.

He also asserted that, even when such diversion had been discovered, appropriate steps had not been taken to correct it.

In his explosive testimony, Brady told the senators that over a period of about 10 years, the system of national security export controls has gradually been dismantled to the point where the Soviet Union and other controlled countries are now acquiring some of the most sophisticated Western technology and diverting it to military forces.

THE COMMERCE Department is supposed to make certain that such diversion does not occur.

But the Department, Brady said, has failed to adequately protect the national security interests of the United States, by neglecting to conduct full investigation of persistent reports of diversion of our technology to military uses, and also by failing to apply the proper sanctions when such diversion is established.

The sanctions available to us, Brady said, arise from so-called end-use restrictions for foreign users of our products concerning the purpose of the export. If these purposes are evaded, then further exports, including spare parts, may be suspended.

BRADY'S MAJOR case in point was the Kama River trunk plant—a gigantic complex built for the Soviet Union with hundreds of millions of dollars' worth of American and other Western technology.

In this instance, he said, end-use restrictions and other data make it plain that the project was to be used for civilian vehicles.

Yet, in the face of mounting evidence that the Kama plant is being diverted to military uses, the United States has not enforced available sanctions against the Soviets.

In answering Brady, Commerce officials acknowledged that trucks from the Kama River plant are being used by the Soviet military—which makes the point just about unanimous.

BUT, ACCORDING to the Commerce higher-ups, this military usage does not constitute a diversion of the Kama River facilities.

The reasoning behind this position is that the Soviets allegedly never agreed to restrict the project to civilian uses in the first place so their military hi-jinks there are not a violation.

Also, according to Commerce officials, the Nixon administration, which launched the Kama River deal, had weighed the possibility that the project might be used for military purposes, and considered this to be an acceptable risk.

How much of this is true is a bit uncertain, since documents reflecting decisions taken in the previous administrations are under lock and key.

SUFFICE IT TO say the project was not presented that way to the American people, and that even if the Nixon regime had adopted such a policy, there is no good reason for the Carter administration to continue it.

Also, despite their public lambasting of Brady, it appears that Commerce Department officials are shifting their position on this issue as a result of his disclosures.

The Department used to contend that virtually any military use of Kama River by the Soviets was perfectly all right. Now they contend that if actual "combat vehicles" were being produced by the plant—as opposed to trucks—that would constitute a serious problem.

In this day and age, that change in the official posture must be viewed as a sign of encouraging progress.

Controls Tightened On Eyewear

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration will tighten controls over a type of lens used to improve the vision of some elderly persons suffering from cataracts. Commissioner Jere Goyan said Thursday.

The FDA's action against the type of intraocular lens known as anterior chamber lenses includes restrictions on the number of doctors who may implant the lenses, inspection of plants where the lenses are manufactured and agency-sponsored laboratory tests, he announced.

"Interim data indicate that there is a higher incidence of some complications with the anterior chamber lens as compared with other lenses or with no implantation at all," Goyan said. "In addition, the corrected vision of patients with anterior chamber lenses is not as good, on the average, as for patients with the other three lens styles or with eyeglasses or contact lenses."

Intraocular lenses or IOLs are plastic lenses surgically implanted in an eye after the removal of the natural lens. IOLs, which have been in use for 25 years, are most often implanted in the eyes of elderly persons who have cataracts.

The FDA began a study in February 1978 which will be used to determine whether the lenses should be approved for general marketing.

New Chryslers To Be Seen In Photos

DETROIT (AP) — With an openness automakers rarely display about their cars of the future, financially ailing Chrysler Corp. this week is delivering color photos of its 1981 K-car compacts to all 535 members of Congress.

The No. 3 automaker is staking its future with the new line of smaller cars that it hopes will turn losses into profits by 1981.

The publicity this week is part of Chrysler's campaign urging Congress to pass a financial aid package for the automaker.

"Here is the future of Chrysler," Chairman Lee A. Iacocca said in a note accompanying the color photos. "A 'yes' vote puts them in production in less than 10 months."

The company plans three basic small-car platforms by 1985, which will make its biggest car a foot shorter and 600 pounds lighter than this year's compact Volare-Aspen. The 1980s models will get as much as 30 miles per gallon, company officials predict, and help Chrysler make a profit by 1981.

WOLVES NOT WANTED
DENVER (AP) — The state Division of Wildlife says Alaskan wolves aren't welcome in Colorado. And the division is taking a stern look at six wolves already being cared for by the Boulder-based Wolf Country Foundation, a group that earlier this week offered to provide homes for 200 Alaskan wolves who are to be slain next month in an aerial hunt. "Think of the opposition from sheep and cattle people," said Arsh Andrews, a Wildlife Division spokesman. "What if one of those wolves got away?"

Heartline

EDITOR'S NOTE: Heartline is a service for senior citizens. Its purpose is to answer questions and solve problems — fast. If you have a question or a problem not answered in these columns, write Heartline, 114 E. Dayton St., West Alexandria, Ohio 45381. You will receive a prompt reply, but you must include a stamped, self-addressed envelope. The most useful replies will be printed in this column.

HEARTLINE: I am a senior citizen, age 71. I have been walking with a cane for many years because of arthritis in my leg. My limp is getting much worse and at times I am slightly off-balance. My doctor has mentioned his concern that I could very easily lose my balance completely and take a fall. He said he is especially concerned about my being able to safely get around this winter when it is icy. He suggested that I purchase a walker which, because it has four legs and each leg is rubber-tipped, would grip surfaces better and give me more stable support.

I live on a fixed income but could afford to spend a little now if it could keep me from having to spend a lot more if I should fall and hurt myself. I have looked at the prices of several walkers and know that I cannot afford to pay the full price. Then I remembered that I have Medicare, and wondered if it will pay some of the cost of the walker. If so, please let me know how much it will pay. — V.F.

Medicare Part B (medical insurance) will help by paying 80 percent of the reasonable charges for the walker. This does not mean that it will pay 80 percent of the full cost of the walker, so, for the sake of your budget, do not count on being reimbursed for 80 percent of the actual cost. They will pay 80 percent of what they feel are the reasonable charges.

There are things now and in the future that anyone on Medicare will need to know. Be prepared and knowledgeable about the program by ordering Heartline's guide to Medicare.

To order, send $1.75 to Medicare Guidebook, 114 E. Dayton St., West Alexandria, Ohio 45381.

HEARTLINE: A friend of mine recently purchased a home with a VA guaranteed loan. He bought it directly from the owner; no real estate company or attorney was involved, just a savings and loan company. I warned my friend that it was best to deal with an attorney or realty company to adequately protect both parties, but he is one who thinks he knows it all.

My know-it-all friend now owns a house that needs wiring, plumbing and a new roof. He saw an attorney who told him, "Too late. Another know-it-all friend has advised him that the Veteran's Administration will make sure that a home bought by a veteran with a VA guaranteed loan is free from defects. I told him that this is wrong, but he will not listen to me. What do you say?" — G.K.

The Veteran's Administration does not have the legal authority to guarantee that a home is free of defects. The government guarantees the loan, but it cannot under the law guarantee the house.

HEARTLINE: I have a space heater that a friend says has been found to be defective. She believes it has been recalled by the company that produced it. Being a senior citizen on a fixed income, I cannot afford to buy a new one. How can I find out if this product has been recalled? — S.C.

To receive information about recalled items, you can call the Consumer Product Safety Commission's toll-free hotline at (800) 638-3326. The commission will provide you with safety information on hundreds of types of products, identify those that have been banned and/or recalled and tell you what steps to take with any recalled items you may have.

Energy Department Eases Building Temperature Rules

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Energy Department has eased its rules on building temperatures, to allow facilities used by senior citizens to have warmer temperatures during the winter.

The emergency building temperature restrictions, designed to save energy, currently limit the maximum temperature in most buildings to 65 degrees Fahrenheit.

The new exception allows the operators of facilities used by senior citizens to raise the temperature to 70 degrees.

Libya Offering Compensation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Libya has offered to compensate the United States for damage to the American embassy in Tripoli, a U.S. official said Thursday. The disclosure followed the shutting down of the ransacked embassy and the near-suspension of diplomatic relations. The official, who asked not to be identified, said the United States was still not satisfied with Libya's response. He said assurances were lacking that American diplomats would be protected. The embassy was assaulted by about 2,000 demonstrators on Sunday and set ablaze. The Americans within escaped unharmed. Estimates of the damage are not complete. Another U.S. official here said it was "substantial." Libya's offer to provide compensation would seem to meet one of the U.S. demands for maintaining relations. Another was met on Monday when the foreign ministry apologized. But U.S. officials want to be certain there will be no recurrence if the embassy is reopened. Before the attack, Libya was asked to increase the guard at the embassy. When the mob appeared, however, only one policeman was on hand.

Fireman Suspended For Wearing Earring

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — A Concord firefighter is battling for his right to wear an earring. Chris Pope, a 22-year-old paramedic, was suspended with pay last Sunday when he showed up for work wearing an earring. He was told to take the earring off by 6 p.m. Wednesday or face a 30-day suspension without pay. Pope showed up for work without the earring Wednesday night, but he said he's checking out the situation with his lawyer and the union. The Concord firefighters union is on Pope's side. The union said no safety violation has been proved and there's no department rule against wearing jewelry on the job. A fire department official said the issue is one of having firefighters give a professional appearance in their attire.

SERVICES CUT BACK
AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Commission for the Blind said Thursday it was cutting back services because of the possible loss of $500,000 in federal funds. The agency said Congress is squabbling over funding for social services for the blind. Failure to agree would cut the money to its 1975 level, which was $400 million lower than it is now.

Libyan Trouble Spurs Removal Of Families

NEW YORK (AP) — Several U.S. oil companies will fly their employees' families out of Libya in the next few days as suggested by American officials after last week's burning of the U.S. Embassy in Tripoli, oil company officials said Thursday.

Those companies and other oil firms also are taking steps to protect employees and their dependents in other Moslem countries in the wake of the Libyan incident and the Iranian crisis, company spokesmen said.

U.S. oil companies have roughly 2,000 employees and dependents in Libya, involved in administrative work and in production and transportation of that nation's oil.

According to spokesmen for Exxon and Mobil, whose contingents in Libya are among the largest, U.S. diplomats in Libya suggested after the embassy was burned that the firms consider moving families of workers in the country to safer nations.

Mobil spokesman John Flint said the 68 dependents of the firm's 30 employees in Libya would leave this weekend for England and the Netherlands, some on commercial flights and others on a charter flight arranged by Occidental Petroleum.

"We have gone to the dependents and offered them the out," said Exxon spokeswoman Sara Johnson. "How many of them will take us up on it we don't know yet."

Exxon has almost 500 employees in Libya, 95 of them Americans. It has offered to remove any of their 450 dependents — 175 Americans — who want to leave.

Last Sunday, a Libyan mob attacked and burned the U.S. Embassy in Tripoli. The U.S. government has protested that the Libyan government failed to protect the embassy while anti-American protests flared in many Moslem nations following the seizure of the U.S. Embassy and hostages in Tehran.

The United States is reducing its diplomatic staff in Tripoli and has asked Americans to forego non-essential trips to Libya.

Carl Blumay, an Occidental Petroleum spokesman in Los Angeles, said 74 dependents of the company's 244 employees in Libya would be flown out Saturday "as a precautionary measure at the advice of the U.S. State Department."

"We don't know how long this is going to last, of course," Flint said, "but we'll probably keep them out for at least 30 days."

Not all of the dozen or so U.S. oil companies in Libya have decided to remove personnel.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q. If I sign up for the dividend reinvestment plan of the company in which I own stocks, I will become eligible to make additional optional cash purchases, without paying brokerage commissions.

Might I not do better by buying more of this stock through a broker and paying the commission, when the price of the stock is low? That way, I wouldn't take the chance that the price might be higher on the day the company reinvests my dividends and my option cash payment.

A. You might. But the odds are against it. To begin with, you would have to know when the price of that stock is going to be low and when it is going to be high. Not many people have the ability. If you do and if you have some spare cash, you should be able to get rich out-guessing the stock market.

Dividend reinvestment plans have become tremendously popular with investors because the more than 600 companies which have such plans provide their stockholders with the opportunity to increase their holdings at little or no expense.

The details on these plans vary from one plan to another. But they all provide big savings in brokerage commissions.

When a company or its agent — usually a big bank — goes into the stock market to buy shares to fill the reinvested dividend and/or optional purchase orders of its stockholders it's quite possible that the stock's price might be high.

That is more likely to happen, if the purchase is made on the same date every three months, or — with some companies — every month. Some sharpie brokers on the trading floor of a stock exchange can run the stock's price up, in anticipation of purchases.

But, if the company or its agent shows some smarts, it can avoid that trap — by varying its stock purchase patterns. The key is for the company or agent to place the buy orders with a broker who provides "good execution" at the best possible price.

Q. I am 55 with $20,000 in a savings certificate which will mature in six months. I would like to put this money into a certain mutual fund or a certain closed-end investment company. Would this be a good move?

A. The closed-end investment company you named in your letter has an excellent long-term record for growth in value of its shares. Recently, however, you might find the house you want within a shorter period of time, a money market mutual fund would seem right for you.

Many money market mutual funds now have yields about equal to six-month savings certificate yields — about 11 percent — and shares of those funds can be redeemed at any time, without penalty.

DOYLE welcomes written questions, but he will be able to provide answers only through the column.

Judge Rules System May Be Shut Off

MINEOLA, N.Y. (AP) — A judge ruled Thursday in New York state's first right-to-die case that a priest can ask doctors to disconnect a respirator supporting a comatose 83-year-old Roman Catholic brother.

Brother Joseph Charles Fox is "entitled to decline treatment," since he had told members of his Marianist community at Chaminade High School here he did not want any "extraordinary means" to prolong life, state Supreme Court Justice Robert Meade ruled.

Fox has been in "a chronic vegetative state and is totally incompetent" and his religious superior, the Rev. Philip T. Eichner, is entitled to have the respirator removed, the judge ruled.

But Meade said no other life-support treatment — in this case intravenous feeding — may be suspended.

Dr. Edward Kelly, Fox's surgeon, said the respirator was Fox's main life support and that he probably would die "in a matter of hours" after its removal.

Nassau County District Attorney Dennis Dillon immediately appealed for a "full airing of the facts" in a higher court. The Supreme Court is a court of original jurisdiction in New York state.

During two days of hearings, Dillon opposed respirator removal on grounds that the "people of the state" had never indicated "the court has the power to pass on life."

Brother Fox has been on a respirator since he lapsed into a coma on Oct. 2 after suffering a heart attack during hernia surgery at Nassau Hospital here.

Eichner, who heads the 40-member Marianist community, asked for court authority to remove the respirator after hospital authorities refused to do so.

The judge declined to rule on Eichner's basic claim that Fox had a "right to privacy" which was being invaded by continuation of the respirator.

He noted, however, that Fox had discussed with the Marianist community the case in New Jersey in which the parents of the comatose Karen Ann Quinlan won the right to remove her respirator. Miss Quinlan, still comatose, has survived 3½ years without the respirator.

Brother Fox repeatedly expressed agreement with the church's teachings on the subject of the withdrawal of extraordinary life support systems, but also stated that he personally would not want any of this "extraordinary business" done for him under such circumstances, Meade noted.

Meade appointed Eichner a "committee" to act on behalf of Fox and directed him to obtain a medical opinion that Fox was in "a chronic vegetative state" with no "reasonable medical possibility that he will ever regain any sapient or cognitive function or capability."

Three doctors in court papers submitted such opinions and two of them repeated their opinions in court.

The judge said that after receiving the opinions, the respirator could be removed pending 48 hours notification to the district attorney. Such action has been frozen pending Dillon's appeal.

"I think the decision is a vindication of the church's position," Eichner said after the ruling. He said he hoped it would "relieve the anguish this (issue) gives to people... in similar situations."

The local diocese of Rockville Center supported him in his court plea, as did Roman Catholic clergy in the 1976 Quinlan case.

Houston Mayor Rejecting Allegations

HOUSTON (AP) — Mayor Jim McConn has rejected allegations by a city purchasing director he fired that McConn asked him to extort money from businessmen holding city contracts.

"I categorically deny that," McConn said. "It's not true."

McConn said he learned of the allegations by Jack Key, 41, while appearing Wednesday before a federal grand jury that is investigating possible City Hall wrongdoings.

Key was McConn's first appointee to office last year but was fired in April after being named in a six-count indictment alleging extortion of $42,500 from contract holders.

"Mr. Key is trying to save his fanny and, if he can, pull others down with him," McConn said.

Key testified before the grand jury Monday and U.S. Attorney Tony Canales later said a plea bargaining agreement under which Key is to change his plea of innocence to guilty is to be submitted next week to U.S. District Judge Carl O. Bue.

Van Stolen At Area Auto Leasing Firm

A recent inventory of vehicles by the manager of a Lubbock vehicle leasing firm indicated a van was missing and apparently had been stolen.

Conway D. Gafford, manager of Lone Star Leasing & Rental at 5024 Ave. H, told police the 1977 Ford van, valued at $5,500, was locked, but that keys to the vehicle were left inside the van.

Gafford said the van probably was stolen about three weeks ago.

A 22-year-old Texas Tech University coed said she was assaulted and "undressed" early Thursday after she and a girlfriend accepted an invitation to go to a party.

The student said she and her friend were at a club in the 2400-block of Main Street about 1:30 a.m. when they accepted an offer from four men to go to the party in the 2200-block of 15th Street.

Reports indicate that once at the party, the woman was taken into a bedroom and stripped by two of the men. She told police the men attempted to have sex with her, but that she was able to escape before she was raped.

The victim's companion said she heard the woman's cries for help, but that she was restrained by the other two men when she tried to help. The two women told police they were able to flee the apartment after the men began arguing over some marijuana at the party.

The women fled to a Tech dormitory and called police. The assailants were described as one white man, a black man and two Puerto Ricans.

In a Thursday morning holdup, Felipe Medragon, 51, of Idalou told Lubbock police five men robbed him of $150 at a pool hall in the 700-block of 13th Street about 2:30 a.m.

Medragon told police he had asked a bartender at the pool hall for a beer when four men grabbed him from behind, knocked him to the ground and took his money. He said he watched as the four men and the bartender divided the loot.

Reports indicate police questioned the bartender, but that he was not taken into custody at the scene. The complainant described the other four men as young, black and skinny.

An incident late Wednesday was classified as an attempted robbery of a convenience store, but police admit they could do little to the person named as a suspect in the complaint even if he is located.

All the suspect did, according to reports, was walk into the Town and Country Food Store at 1611 19th St. about 11:15 p.m. wearing a costume mask and act in a suspicious manner.

However, store operator Jefferson Don Kinman, 18, told police he felt the person, thought to be a white man, was planning to rob the business, but was scared off by three customers who came into the store.

Kinman told police the person entered the business wearing a mask of a white-haired old man. The attendant asked what the person wanted, but the subject reportedly did not answer.

Kinman said that along with the mask, the person had a pistol handle protruding from his belt. Reports indicate three men entered the store, saw the person's getup, and asked if the business was about to get robbed.

Police were told the person, instead, calmly walked out of the store, and then broke into a run, heading west on 19th Street.

A 16-year-old Lubbock girl said she and a 4-year-old boy at her 34th Street residence were assaulted by a man about 6 p.m. Wednesday.

The teen-ager said the assailant, described as an 18-year-old white man, threw stuffed animals and pillows at the boy, and then began hitting him on the back with a fly swatter.

She said that when she took the swatter from the man, he picked up a roll of floor tile and hit her about 20 times. The man then left on his motorcycle.

Reports indicate neither the tot nor the woman was seriously injured in the attack.

Police took a 13-year-old boy into custody about 6 p.m. Wednesday after he allegedly was spotted by an off-duty officer pulling the hair of a girl, also 13.

The policeman ordered the juvenile to let go of the girl and asked for a motive for his actions. The boy was taken into custody after he reportedly answered, "None of your business."

A 64-year-old Lubbock woman was taken to the county jail about 3:30 p.m. Wednesday after she allegedly attempted to steal a pair of shoes, valued at $1.37, from the K-Mart Discount Store at 3201 Ave. Q.

Isidro B. Moreno of 2716 Cornell St. said she lost $5,000 in property, including a washing machine, sewing machine, two television sets, stereo equipment and jewelry, when her residence was burglarized between 5 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. Wednesday.

A stereo, boots and $6 in change, totaling about $600, was the apparent loot for burglars who broke into Mike Copeland's 2404 Seventh St. residence between 9:15 p.m. and 11:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Lubbock Man Gets 16 Years For Forgery

A Lubbock man who Wednesday tried unsuccessfully to flee the courtroom during his forgery trial has been assessed a 16-year penitentiary sentence.

James Donald Crittenden, who was wrestled to the floor by a prosecutor and two deputies Wednesday morning, was found guilty after only nine minutes of jury deliberation Wednesday afternoon in 140th District Court.

Crittenden went before Judge William R. Shaver for punishment Thursday and was given the 16-year sentence. The prosecution had asked for the maximum of 20 years on the basis of a 1975 conviction for delivery of LSD.

His escape attempt was not witnessed by jurors, who convicted him for attempting to open two bank accounts with a check forged with a local attorney's signature.

Although Crittenden's attorney Pat Simek earlier had tried to have the defendant declared incompetent, a jury Tuesday afternoon ruled he was able to stand trial on the forgery charge.

But as a new group of prospective jurors were about to be brought into 140th District Court to hear the forgery case, Crittenden leaped from his chair and started toward the open courtroom doors.

The quick reactions of prosecutor Rick Howell and two sheriff's deputies, however, allowed the 25-year-old defendant to take only two steps before he was wrestled to the floor while a shocked Simek watched.

Police were told the person, instead, calmly walked out of the store, and then broke into a run, heading west on 19th Street.

Area Woman Killed In Traffic Mishap

LAMESA (Special) — A 78-year-old Lamesa woman was killed and her 83-year-old husband slightly injured in a traffic accident here Thursday morning.

Martina Rodriguez died at 11:10 a.m. in Medical Arts Hospital, about 40 minutes after the accident occurred. Encarnacion Rodriguez was treated and released from the hospital.

Police reports indicate a tractor-trailer rig driven by Lloyd Wayne Terrell of Seagraves was northbound on Lynn Avenue and the Rodriguezes were southbound when Rodriguez apparently turned east in front of the truck. Terrell was not injured in the accident.

Action On SALT, Energy Plan Postponed Into Election Year

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two of President Carter's most important legislative proposals — the SALT II treaty and the energy plan — will be delayed in Congress until next year, Senate leaders disclosed Thursday.

The postponements will mean congressional consideration during a presidential election year, historically a bad time for pushing controversial legislation through either the House or Senate.

Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd had previously said he hoped to at least begin debate on the strategic arms limitation treaty with the Soviet Union by year's end.

There had even been earlier forecasts that the debate would begin in October with a final vote on ratification by early December.

But on Thursday, Byrd noted the slow pace of Senate consideration of the "windfall profits" tax on the oil industry, and said: "I don't see how it (SALT II) could conceivably be brought up this year. Our time is running out."

Asked if the delay into the election year will jeopardize approval of the arms pact, which requires a two-thirds Senate vote, Byrd said, "If it goes over to January, I would see no harm in that."

Meanwhile, Henry Jackson, D-Wash., chairman of the Senate Energy Committee, said in an interview that there is no chance the president's multibillion-dollar energy plan will clear Congress before both Houses quit work for the year just before Christmas.

The House and Senate have approved competing versions of two separate energy measures urged by Carter, a synthetic fuels development bill and creation of a powerful Energy Mobilization Board to speed construction of energy projects.

Differences must be resolved by congressional conference committees which Jackson said will meet for the first time, probably beginning today.

Both conference committees are much larger in number than the usual makeup of such panels, and Jackson said there are major differences to be worked out before compromise versions of both bills are sent to the House and Senate for final votes.

"I won't have anything ready for the House or Senate floor this month," Jackson said.

Byrd had planned to close out the current session of the Senate four days before Christmas, and reconvene in late January.

On Thursday, he said, December 21 "would have to be the date we stop for Christmas," implying a possible return immediately after New Year's Day.

The Senate has been debating the oil tax legislation for three weeks. The measure, which would tax the additional revenue oil companies will receive as a result of the phasing out of federal price controls on domestic oil, is expected to be on the floor for another week.

There is no guarantee that Congress will take final votes on the tax this year.

In addition, the House and Senate are also being asked to give federal financial aid to the Chrysler Corp. There is considerable opposition to the rescue effort.

Sen. Lowell Weicker Jr., R-Conn., for one, has said he will filibuster to block Senate approval.

Senate debate on the SALT treaty has been delayed by two developments, first the discovery of Soviet troops in Cuba and later the takeover of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran.

The troops issue was particularly sensitive to several key members of the Senate.

U.S. Charts Pressures On Iran For Hostages

The resolution, adopted unanimously Tuesday by the 15-member council.

"We are not very satisfied with it because they have not condemned the shah. Altogether this is a step forward and a better decision than the previous one," he said, referring to a Nov. 9 statement issued with the unanimous consent of the Security Council calling for release of the hostages.

President Carter has refused to return Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi to Iran to stand trial for alleged crimes against the people, and approved the Sunday transfer of the deposed monarch to Lackland Air Force Base in Texas from a New York hospital he entered Oct. 22 for cancer and gallbladder treatment.

A spokesman for U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim called Ghotbzadeh's remarks an "important development," but declined further comment pending Iran's official reply to Waldheim, who he said was in telephone contact with Ghotbzadeh.

Soviet Ships Sighted

In other developments:

The Pentagon announced three more Soviet ships had been sighted in the Indian Ocean, increasing Russian naval strength there to 18 ships. It was the second increase in two weeks. U.S. naval strength in the Indian Ocean-Arab Sea area rose to 21 ships this week as the carrier Kitty Hawk led a task force into waters south of the Persian Gulf.

Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance will travel to four Western European capitals next week, a spokesman said, but refused to disclose his mission. Observers believed Vance would try to rally support for a series of economic and diplomatic moves against Iran which President Carter said Wednesday he hoped would turn "the screws a little tighter" and secure release of the hostages. Sources said this would include a halt in shipments of military spare parts to Iran, and that Britain, West Germany and Italy had agreed to this but France had not.

Economic Steps Eyed

A high-level State and Treasury Department delegation met with British and West German officials and were expected to travel to Switzerland to discuss U.S. economic steps against Iran, officials said.

The Kuwaiti newspaper Al-Hadaf said Kuwait would send an envoy to Khomeini to help mediate the crisis, but there was no official word from the government. During the Security Council debate, Kuwait proposed an investigation of alleged abuse of power by the shah.

The governor of Iran's central bank, Alireza Nobari, protested to the International Monetary Fund against President Carter's order freezing Iranian assets in the United States. Nobari said in a letter to IMF director J. DeLauroisier that the order was "illegal and totally irresponsible."

U.S. Supply Stopped

The United States provided nearly $20 billion in military equipment to Iran during the 37-year rule of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi. But the supply slowed to a trickle after his fall and was stopped entirely after the U.S. Embassy in Tehran was seized by Moslem militants.

Sources, declining to be identified, told reporters that former Foreign Minister Abolhassan Bani Sadr and an unspecified number of colleagues on Iran's Revolutionary Council favor releasing the hostages.

But it was not clear how close that number is to a majority, or whether it could influence Khomeini or the militants holding the 50 Americans.

Because Vance will see many European officials at a NATO meeting in Brussels, Belgium within the next few days, the hastily arranged stops for the Cabinet officer indicated they might be part of new economic and diplomatic moves against Iran that reportedly are under consideration.

Announcement of the Vance trip followed a meeting Wednesday night in which congressmen invited to a White House dinner said President Carter discussed U.S. efforts to isolate Iran in the world community. Carter also was said to have discussed the escalating economic pressure on Iran.

U.S. officials have suggested that the administration has a number of economic and diplomatic means to use in the effort to force Iran to free the 50 American hostages. The hostages have been held since a militant Moslem mob overran the U.S. Embassy in Tehran on Nov. 4, demanding the deposed shah be returned for trial.

Spokesman Carter said Vance wanted the allies' views about "diplomatic initiatives we are undertaking and plan to undertake." But the spokesman refused to provide details.

"I do not want to try to itemize what he is going to do," he said.

Vance will leave late Sunday, stop in London and Paris on Monday, in Rome and Bonn on Tuesday, and then go on to the NATO meeting. There he will seek approval of a U.S. plan for deploying nuclear missiles capable of reaching the Soviet Union in Western Europe.

A high-level State and Treasury Department mission was sent to Europe on Wednesday, intending to visit the same four countries, as well as Switzerland.

Speaking to a group of about 100 House members Wednesday night at the White House, Carter was reported by participants as having outlined a series of economic measures he is prepared to take to end the crisis.

But spokesman Jody Powell said the president spoke mainly about actions already taken and "in process," rather than laying out prospective moves.

At the White House dinner, Carter indicated Iran's economy, heavily dominated by imports, may suffer even without any new American initiatives, according to one participant.

The congressman, who asked not to be identified, reported that Carter said U.S. food shipments to Iran have virtually been halted by the freezing of Iranian assets in the United States.

One source said there is some sentiment in the administration favoring a U.S. call for a U.N. economic embargo against Iran, similar to the one that has been in effect against Rhodesia for many years. He said another option is a U.S. proposal for a global boycott of Iran Air flights.

It was not clear whether either of these proposals is receiving high-level consideration.

The president also was reported to have said the arrival of U.S. warships in waters off Iran has caused insurers to declare the area a war zone, resulting in a 400 percent increase in ocean shipping insurance rates.

Prices Rise Sharply For Wholesale Food

The government lifted World War II price controls.

The increase in food prices in November pushed them 8.9 percent higher than they were a year earlier.

In addition to meats, prices were also up for roasted coffee, fresh vegetables, macaroni and sugar. Prices were down for fresh fruits, rice and fish.

Robert A. Dobkin, a spokesman for the Food Marketing Institute, a trade association for supermarkets, said consumers should not be surprised by the big increase in poultry prices.

"Poultry has been a bargain for consumers, but producers have been losing money," he said. "As long as double-digit inflation continues, it will drive up food and everything else," he added.

After months of optimistic forecasts, Carter administration economists now say inflation at the retail level, as measured by the Consumer Price Index, probably will be near 13 percent this year, up from 9 percent in 1978. The original target for the year was 7.4 percent.

Gramley said the outlook for 1980 depends in large part on the price decisions by OPEC. But he said he expects inflation will decline to less than 10 percent toward the end of the year, although it could exceed 10 percent for the entire year.

Prison Riot Kills Two

SOLEDAD, Calif. (AP) — Two Soledad Prison inmates were killed and 18 injured Thursday in a race riot that was quelled by guards who waded in among the battlers firing birdshot, officials said.

"The fighting was among inmates," said Phil Guthrie, spokesman for the state Department of Corrections. It was a serious riot, but it's under control now.

He said two men were killed and one was in very serious condition. The condition of the other injured men was not known.

"It was tentatively learned that it was a fight in which browns and whites were aligned against the blacks," Guthrie said. "We don't know which, if any, group was the aggressor or if it was a spontaneous thing."

He said it was necessary for guards to "go in on the ground and separate people. There were a few rounds of birdshot fired, but not many. But the initial observers of the people coming off the yard saw only one guy who had been struck with birdshot," Guthrie said.

The cause of the outbreak, and the identities of the dead and injured were not immediately disclosed.

Guthrie said the fighting was limited to a section of the medium-light security prison housing about 500 of the prison's 3,000 inmates. He said he did not know how many were involved in the fighting.

Guthrie said the birdshot, a type of granular-like pellet used in firearms, "was the lightweight, non-lethal stuff."

"It was in a section of the prison that had been under lockdown since August. The lockdown had just been lifted this week," Guthrie said.

"We haven't had any riots this serious — with two dead — in more than a year. We've had at least two race riots there this year," Guthrie said.

State Gas Cutbacks Proposed

during the first three months of 1980.

Every state but two, Alaska and Colorado, face cutbacks in gasoline use if they are to meet their first quarter targets, because their assigned limits are lower than first quarter consumption in 1979.

At the other extreme was Kansas, whose gasoline use was high in the first quarter of 1979. The state would have to cut back 15 percent to meet its target for the first quarter of 1980.

Here is a list of other states or jurisdictions and the percentages they would have to reduce gasoline use in the first three months of 1980 from comparable 1979 levels:

- Alabama, 7 percent; Arizona, 7 percent; Arkansas, 7 percent; California, 7 percent; Connecticut, 10 percent; Delaware, 8 percent; District of Columbia, 10 percent; Florida, 8 percent; Georgia, 7 percent; Hawaii, 8 percent; Idaho, 4 percent; Illinois, 6 percent; Indiana, 8 percent; Iowa, 8 percent; Kentucky, 7 percent; Louisiana, 8 percent; Maine, 10 percent; Maryland, 7 percent; Massachusetts, 11 percent; Michigan, 11 percent; Minnesota, 6 percent; Mississippi, 10 percent; Missouri, 7 percent; Montana, 9 percent; Nebraska, 9 percent; Nevada, 5 percent; New Hampshire, 8 percent; New Jersey, 9 percent; New Mexico, 4 percent; New York, 10 percent; North Carolina, 8 percent; North Dakota, 11 percent; Ohio, 10 percent; Oklahoma, 4 percent; Oregon, 5 percent; Pennsylvania, 7 percent; Rhode Island, 8 percent; South Carolina, 7 percent; South Dakota, 7 percent; Tennessee, 8 percent; Texas, 5 percent; Utah, 8 percent; Vermont, 10 percent; Virginia, 7 percent; Washington, 6 percent; West Virginia, 10 percent; Wisconsin, 8 percent; Wyoming, 7 percent.

Iceland, Tonga Invite Shah

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Iceland and the island nation of Tonga have invited deposed Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi of Iran to make a permanent home in their countries, it was learned Thursday.

An administration official said, however, that the search an asylum for the shah is still underway.

Tonga is a country made up of 150 islands in the South Pacific.

The shah is resting at Lackland Air Force Base in San Antonio, recovering from surgery for cancer and treatment for a gall bladder condition at a New York hospital.

School Class In Manners Wins Praise

LIBERTY, Okla. (AP) — This tiny community has one of the poorest schools in the whole state, but it has a full-time teacher who does nothing but teach the children good manners.

It was the idea of Leroy Taylor, the school principal for 18 years, who says there is "a national mood — a national need — for more respect."

The federal Department of Health, Education and Welfare put up $16,000, through the Oklahoma Department of Education, to hire a manners teacher this fall for Liberty's 210 school children and to buy the necessary supplies.

If an evaluation to be made this spring shows the program is worthwhile, it could be funded for two more years. Taylor has no doubts that it will.

"It, potentially, is the finest program we have ever had here," he said in an interview this week. "It's not like a good calculus course. It can involve every child — it just has to. From the most gifted to the one with the least ability, they all can prosper from it."

Most of the parents of Liberty's students work in nearby Fort Smith, Ark. In terms of taxable property, the school district is the second-poorest in Oklahoma.

So far, there has been no criticism from parents, educators said. Instead, there have been reports that the program is working.

For instance, first-grader James Allsup surprised his mother by quietly pulling back a chair for his fifth-grade sister at a hamburger dinner.

Noticing a bit of food at the corner of his sister's mouth, James twirled his napkin into a point, leaned over and daffily dabbed it away.

"What it all boils down to is attitude the right attitude — more respect," says Ann Hogan, the manners teacher.

Because more mothers are working today and the lifestyle is faster-paced, manners may not be getting as much attention as they once did, Mrs. Hogan said.

The Liberty curriculum varies from class to class and ranges from table manners to how to react "if you come across a person with no legs," Mrs. Hogan says.

How should one react?

"Physically, it makes him different," Mrs. Hogan says to her students. "But, inside, he is just like you. He has feelings."

Parents Fewer Among Arizona's Visitors

PEARL HARBOR, Hawaii (UPI) — Now it's the brothers, sisters and cousins of the sailors entombed aboard the U.S.S. Arizona who come to gaze at a name on a wall and imagine how it must have been on Dec. 7, 1941, when the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor.

"Years ago, a lot of parents came out," says Fred Kukonu, the Naval police officer aboard the Arizona Memorial which straddles the battleship. His eyes still glisten when he relates the cry.

"That used to be very emotional, when the parents came. They'd see their son's name on the marble wall. But now they're old, or dead. So now I get the brothers, sisters and cousins."

This morning, the 38th anniversary of the surprise attack that pulled the United States into World War II, visiting dignitaries and representatives of patriotic groups will take a shuttle boat to the memorial for a brief ceremony.

Each will take a flower from one of the many wreaths and cast it on the waters above the sunken battleship.

Outside the Pearl Harbor Naval Base gates, members of the American Friends Service Committee and other antiwar groups will hold a "vigil for peace."

More than 3,000 persons a day visit the memorial, Hawaii's most visited tourist attraction. During the summer peak season they stand in line for up to three hours to ride Navy shuttle boats out to the shrine, spend silent moments gazing at the inscribed names and listening to the trade winds snap the American flag above.

A more than 500-fold increase in the number of visitors annually since the shrine opened in 1962 has created a critical need for additional facilities. After 10 years of planning, hoping and penny scraping, veterans groups will witness the opening next July of a $4.2 million shoreside visitor center.

The center will include a new boat landing, two movie theaters that will continuously show films of the actual Pearl Harbor attack and a museum. The latter will provide display space for thousands of m

Dollar Slips In Europe, Recovers In Late New York Trading

NEW YORK (AP) — The price of gold rose in Europe Thursday and closed at a record high in London before falling back in New York. The dollar slipped in Europe and then recovered in late New York trading.

European dealers said gold and foreign exchange markets reflected continued anxiety over the state of relations between the United States and Iran.

Gold closed in London at a record $434.25 a troy ounce, up $3.75 from Wednesday and up $238 from a year ago. The previous highest London close was $431 last Monday. In Zurich, gold closed at $436 an ounce, up $9.50 from Wednesday and $2 short of that market's record of $438, set Oct. 2.

In New York, however, gold fell $6.50 to $425.50 an ounce, according to Republic National Bank. The price of a December gold futures contract on New York's Commodity Exchange fell $7.60 to $426.40.

A gold dealer in New York said prices were steadily depressed in thin trading Thursday. He said there was no particular news to account for gold's declining in New York after it rose in Europe. "With all of the tensions about Iran and possible hikes in OPEC oil prices, the market was very volatile," he said.

Dealers in Europe said the gold price was boosted by the weakening dollar and by a strong average price of $426.37 an ounce for 444,000 ounces of gold auctioned Wednesday by the International Monetary Fund in Washington.

Since June 1978, the IMF gold auctions have raised about $3.45 billion to benefit underdeveloped countries.

After the dollar lost nearly 2 yen to close in Tokyo at 246.275 yen, European foreign exchange markets also marked the U.S. currency down in what a Frankfurt dealer said was thin but nervous trading.

The dollar also lost ground to the yen in New York trading, quoted at 244.40 yen late Thursday, compared with 245.42 yen Wednesday.

Late rates for the dollar in Europe Thursday compared with Wednesday, were: Frankfurt, 1.7385 West German marks; down from 1.7465; Zurich, 1.60145 Swiss francs, down from 1.60825; Paris, 4.0890 French francs, down from 4.1013; Amsterdam, 1.9275 Dutch guilders, down from 1.9350, and Milan, 814.15 Italian lire, down from 821.50.

Nation's Basic Money Supply Dips

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's basic money supply fell $1.1 billion in the latest reporting week, the Federal Reserve said Thursday. Analysts said the drop further indicates that the supply's growth rate appears to have calmed after its rapid increase earlier this year.

"I see a continuation of a trend we've been expecting for some time, namely a tend toward moderation, if not some downright weakness," said William Gibson, an analyst at Smith Barney Harris Upham.

"It's clear from the data of the past few months that money supply growth has moderated substantially," said Larry Kudlow, an economist at Bear Stearns.

"There's a slightly more relaxed tone here," said David Jones, an analyst at Aurbey G. Lanston & Co.

In the week ended Nov. 28, the nation's basic money supply measure, M1—the amount of money represented by cash and checking accounts — fell to a seasonally adjusted average of $378.9 billion from $380 billion the previous week.

The broader measure known as M2 — which consists of M1 plus savings deposits at commercial banks — fell $800 million to a seasonally adjusted average of $943.9 billion, from $944.7 billion the previous week.

Analysts were encouraged by the decline in M1 despite a $544 million increase in loan activity at major New York banks in the week ended Wednesday. Bank loans have been falling in recent weeks, including a drop of $432 million a week ago, as tough credit-tightening actions taken by the Federal Reserve in October have taken effect. Those actions included moves to sharply increase interest rates.

But loan demand is usually high at this time of year, according to analysts. In the same week a year ago, loans from New York banks rose $346 million.

"In general, it looks like both money and credit growth are moderating and the Fed can hold stable here," Jones said.

The growth rate of the money supply measures, which has often exceeded Fed targets in recent months, is now comfortably within those targets and might actually have slowed below the expectations, Jones said.

"It looks like, if anything, we're beginning to fall slightly below the target path the Fed desires for money growth in the fourth quarter," he said.

"All this tends to indicate that interest rates have peaked."

Kennedy Says Remarks About Shah Will Not Hurt Campaign

HARTSELLE, Ala. (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy said Thursday his presidential campaign has not been hurt by the criticism he has received for remarks about the deposed Shah of Iran, and said again he considers the controversy closed.

Asked by reporters whether he thinks he has been harmed politically by his castigation of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, or has had any second thoughts about what he said, Kennedy replied both times with one word, "No."

Kennedy, making a campaign stop in the South, also said the Carter administration should send Congress proposals to deal with a possible cutoff in oil supplies.

He declined to state a preference between gasoline rationing on the one hand and a stiff federal gasoline tax on the other, two options believed to be under consideration within the administration.

But Kennedy said the country needs to insure "that any lessening of supplies will mean that the burden will be equitably and fairly distributed across the population and that there won't be a possibility for one group of people to effectively buy their way out of some form of a shortage."

The Massachusetts Democrat, challenging President Carter for the party's 1980 presidential nomination made his comments in an airport interview at Huntsville, Ala., the first stop of a three-day campaign trip. His schedule included two and a half days in Iowa, the state that Kennedy says will provide the first test between himself and the president in their battle for the nomination.

Kennedy later dedicated a civic center here in honor of former Sen. John Sparkman, D-Ala. The president's mother, "Miss Lillian" Carter, was one of the dignitaries present. She and Kennedy shook hands when he arrived.

As he did on Wednesday, Kennedy said Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance has promised that the administration will not grant permanent asylum to the shah without first consulting with Congress.

"I think the assurances that were given by the secretary of state resolved the question as far as I'm concerned," Kennedy said.

As if to emphasize the point, he made no mention of Iran when he spoke at the dedication ceremony.

Kennedy was interrupted at the dedication by hecklers protesting the murders of five Communist Party workers earlier this fall at an anti-Ku Klux Klan rally in Greensboro, N.C. Secret Service agents hustled two of the demonstrators out of the audience.

In the past several days, Kennedy has been criticized sharply for asserting that the shah ran "one of the most violent regimes in the history of mankind" and stole "umpteen billions of dollars" from his country.

On Wednesday, Kennedy defended the remarks and called for a public debate on whether the shah should receive permanent asylum in the United States, if he asks for it.

The shah has been in this country for more than a month and his spokesman and administration officials say he intends to leave as soon as possible.

Fraud Indictments Against Four Oilmen Dropped

HOUSTON (AP) — Securities fraud indictments against four oilmen were dismissed Thursday by a federal judge who said prosecutors had used a grand jury as a "rubber stamp."

U.S. District Judge Ross Sterling said Mike Brown, an assistant U.S. attorney, rushed the cases through the grand jury in an hour's time on the final day of the jury's term.

"What can I say?" Brown said when asked for comment. "That's the opin-

In Washington, Robert Clark, a Justice Department, said possible appeal of Sterling's order would be considered.

ALL THAT'S LEFT — All the mementos James Barnett picked up during World War II went to friends and relatives. All that is left of war that began for him at a naval air station on Hawaii on Dec. 7, 1941, is one string of beads from shells found on New Caledonia Beach. 'Three Seconds From Death': Man Recalls Pearl Harbor

By GERRY BURTON
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Ammunition was running out and still planes came in strafing and bombing.

The young sailor left his machine gun in the window of the hangar to dash outside, grab ammo belts from a trailer and race back, slowing momentarily to sidestep through the door with his load.

"That's when the bomb hit the hangar. It was a matter of three seconds, just three seconds from getting killed," James N. Barnett of Lubbock recalled on the eve of the 38th anniversary of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor.

"There was one guy in the door, firing at planes coming in, and it tore him up. He was killed instantly.

"I came to sprawled flat. There were three steel walls between me and the bomb."

It was Sunday, a peace time holiday with only the duty section in the hangar. Three Navy PBV planes were out patrolling and 22 others were on the flight line in two perfect rows.

Barnett, like most of the crew at Kaneohe Bay Naval Station, was in the barracks when planes flew by, went out of sight behind the chow hall and raised back into the air.

"The Army's out early," somebody observed, thinking the Army planes were buzzing Navy barracks."

Then a bosun's mate yelled "It's Japs" just as a plane came by. "turning its belly up and there were two red balls on the wings."

Instantly, came the call for all hands to fight fire and scatter planes, the PBV patrol bombers also used for sea rescue.

They were searching debris for casualties and loading them into ambulances when the planes came back across the bay from Pearl Harbor 20 miles to the West.

Figuring the four steel doors of the hangar would deflect strafing bullets, Barnett raced inside, found the machine gunner in the window and started to help.

After the raid no one knew exactly what to do.

There were rumors of a Japanese parachute drop in uniforms similar to the denim pants and chambray shirts the Navy men were wearing.

They had the regular blues and the whites for changing. The blues were winter and the whites were too obvious, so they started to dye the whites. The dye soon ran out.

"They found a clay spot, took a garden hose and made a lollolly. We got down in it with our whites and rolled in it. It never did come out."

That night, afraid to sleep in the barracks, the men went up on the mountain where trigger-happy sailors riddled every tree that moved.

It was "pitch black and drizzling" as Barnett was easing back down the mountain trail in the dark, crawling along parting the grass and weeds with his hands when he pitched into space.

"They had dug a machine gun nest after we went up the mountain. The guns were aimed downhill. If they had been aimed uphill, they would have killed me."

The two close brushes with death turned out to be Barnett's wildest combat stories of World War II.

After the raid, the aviation machinist mate became a combat air crewman, flying patrol on lookout for ships, planes and submarines.

Three days before the Midway battle, torpedoes were attached to PBV wings and Barnett flew off with sealed orders that took him to patrol duty during the Midway operation.

He was based at Johnson Island — "just a coral reef about a quarter mile wide and two miles long" with flying orders not to engage any enemy patrol boats because his mission was to find ships.

After 23 months in the South Pacific, he was based stateside until he left to fly patrol during the Philippine Islands recapture. When he arrived, "they had part and we had part."

During Midway and the Philippine operations he didn't locate any ships, but soon after Pearl Harbor he did spot a whale that gave everyone a scare.

Part of his Pacific duty was with ground maintenance, overhauling engines and flying to check them out, on New Caledonia.

Pearl Harbor, he figures, had to happen. He was where he had joined the Navy to be — "right in there protecting our country."

The Olton native was working for Douglas Aircraft and "could have gotten deferred," but volunteered in March 1941.

"Hitler was going to conquer the world back then and there wasn't a way we could stay out," he said.

"It may look silly to young people today, but I felt it was my patriotic duty to be in there protecting my country. I wouldn't have felt right if I hadn't."

The Iranian situation today is bringing back a feel of patriotism to the country, but Barnett stressed, "It won't bring the now generation back until we get in a war or a big depression."

He didn't refer to the Vietnam situation. Anybody who had bothered to read history, he said, would have known "it was useless to go over."

Can Pearl Harbor happen again? "I wouldn't be surprised, with a lack of interest, a hum-ho stage."

Former Coach Seeking Damages

Claiming he was unjustly fired last April, former Morton basketball coach Dan Smith Thursday took his case to federal district court in Lubbock.

He seeks $465,000 in damages from the school district and from the superintendent and four school board members.

Taking the stand Thursday morning, Smith asked U. S. District Judge Halbert O. Woodward for re-instatement to his job and various damages from Supt. Marlin Dodds, Mrs. Dodds and board members Dexter Nebhut, Herbert F. Greener, Robert Year and Raymond Lewis.

He claims in the suit, filed last June, that he was ousted on a split 4-to-3 board vote because he refused to show favoritism to the son of Nebhut and because he stood up for the rights of black athletes to log playing time in proportion to their abilities.

Smith asks $225,000 for loss of income and damage to his reputation, $240,000 for punitive damages, $75,000 each from Nebhut and Mr. and Mrs. Dodds and $5,000 each from the other board members.

The trial is to continue today.

PATIENT DIES

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A man who received artificial blood at a Santa Ana hospital has died, but his doctor says there is no reason to believe the newly developed blood was to blame. The death of the unidentified 65-year-old patient was reported Wednesday. He died Sunday, five days after he entered Doctor's Hospital in shock due to massive bleeding in the gastrointestinal tract, according to Dr. Ron L. Lapin. Only three persons in the United States have received artificial blood, an experimental product made in Japan.

Newspaper Buys Announced

AUGUSTA, Ga. (Special) — Purchase of three Georgia newspapers, the Elberton Star, the Hartwell Sun, and the Royston News Leader, has been announced by Morris Communications Corp., Augusta-based parent company of The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal.

The announcement was made by William S. Morris III, president, and Paul S. Simon, executive vice president.

The Elberton Star is a semi-weekly publication, while the Sun and News Leader are weekly publications. Hartwell also has a commercial printing operation.

Robert L. Williford, publisher of the Elberton Star, will remain with the paper as publisher. Bill Bridges will remain as editor and general manager of the Hartwell Sun and Bob Poe as editor of the Royston paper.

In making the announcement, Morris and Simon said, "We are extremely pleased to have these three newspapers join our company. These community newspapers have distinct records of service to their respective areas and we are truly proud to have them as part of our family of publications."

Morris Communications Corp., publishes newspapers in Georgia, Florida, Alaska, and The Avalanche-Journal in Lubbock and The Globe-News in Amarillo. The firm also is involved in commercial printing operations.

Terms of the acquisitions were not announced.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann: I'm 19, in the U.S. Navy, stationed at Great Lakes, Ill. This is no gag. I need advice and will do as you say.

During my senior year at high school I had sex with a girl who said I was the first one. I believe she was telling the truth. We dated steady for three months, then broke up. I went with other girls and she went with other guys.

After graduation I lost track of her. This week I received a letter. She is pregnant and wants to be married by mail or telephone. (I checked this out and was surprised to learn it can be done.) She says the father of the baby swears it isn't his and won't marry her. She thinks it would be nice if I did, in order to give the baby a name. Do I owe her this because I was the one who got her started on sex? She seems to think so.

The last line of her letter said, "We can get divorced after the baby is born if you don't want to stay married to me."

What is your advice? — Old Mistake Washed Ashore

Dear O.M.: You need this marriage like you need a hole in your hull. Say no. Just because you were there for the launching doesn't mean you have to take over for a second mate.

Dear Ann Landers: Two weeks ago my husband passed away. Fred and I had been married 44 years. He was a member of the Masonic Order and was very proud of his ring. He wore it all the time. I wanted him to be buried with the ring on his finger and was sure my wishes had been granted until last night.

My son came to dinner with his wife, and before they left he handed me an envelope. In it was his father's Masonic ring. I was stunned because I saw the ring on Fred's finger when he lay in the casket. I asked my son how he happened to have it, and he said the funeral director handed it to him in a silk pouch, along with Fred's wrist watch, just before they left for the cemetery.

Does a funeral director have the right to make such decisions? I can't look at Fred's ring without bursting into tears. Please respond to my question and tell me what to do. — Sad Heart In Sacramento

Dear Sad Heart: Unless the family specifies otherwise, it is customary to remove jewelry from the deceased before burial. Obviously, no one told the funeral director it was your wish that Fred be buried with the ring.

Time will ease your grief, and one day you will be happy to have the ring to give to your son or grandson as a keepsake.

Dear Ann Landers: I realize you receive thousands of letters, but how long can one have hope that his or her letter will one day appear?

I wrote you several months ago about our Down's Syndrome baby and the joy he has brought us. I enlisted your aid in educating the public to use the correct term, "Down's Syndrome," rather than the old-fashioned and negative names, "Mongol" or "Mongoloid." Parents of these children find such terms offensive. We are doing everything we can to stamp them out. Please help us. — Proud Parents, Berwyn, Ill.

Dear Parents: I'm happy to join the crusade. And while we are on the subject, let's add: Hansen's disease instead of "leprosy," seizures instead of "epileptic fits" and please, deaf and mute instead of "deaf and dumb."

Dear Ann: I despise cats. Yet I can be in a room with 12 people, and if there's a cat, he will pick me out and jump on my lap. It happened again last night. I said, "Go away" and "Scat," but he hung around, shedding on my navy blue suit. When I shoved him off my lap, he ripped my pantyhose.

The hostess sighed, "Too bad, dear. I'm sorry." Should she have offered to buy me a new pair? — Steaming In Larchmont

Dear Steam: Yes. In fact, you have every right to send her a bill. It's time she learned the responsibilities of a hostess.

It's not always easy to recognize love, especially the first time around. Acquaint yourself with the guidelines. Read Ann Landers' booklet, "Love or Sex and How to Tell the Difference." For a copy, mail 50 cents and a long, self-addressed envelope with your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

I always wanted to do a funny book about traveling.

But I could never think of anything funny to write about it. Most trips are like a death march with stop-offs at tedium, exhaustion, and a layover at frustration.

If you doubt it, just ask yourself have you ever seen a traveler anywhere with a smile on his face?

Every time I return home from a trip, I sit for days and ponder on the great mysteries of travel.

Like how come the first suitcase off the plane never belongs to anybody? I have purposely run from the plane to the baggage claim area to make sure I see the first piece to come rolling down the chute. Minutes later (35 or 40 of them to be exact), when I have my luggage, that first piece is still whirling around...unclaimed.

Why is it the window seat on the plane is always occupied by someone who is (a) sick or (b) asleep?

How come when the pilot comes on over the PA and says, "For all of you camera buffs sitting on the right side of the airplane there is an absolutely breathtaking view of Halley's Comet passing over the Statue of Liberty." I am always sitting on the left side which has been enveloped in clouds since we left the airport?

It has always been a mystery to me how the Fates know which gate to send me to. When I am carrying a newspaper and my handbag and have two hours and a half to change planes, I am at gate two.

However, when I am carrying my own luggage, a three-pound novel, hot rollers, an extra coat and live cactus for my hostess, and have 12 minutes to make a connection, my gate is still being built.

There is never a choice on will your luggage get lost or not get lost. The choice is always will it get lost on the way TO your vacation or on the trip home. It is invariably the former.

And finally there's the Feast or Famine Law. A dieter will be met on the 7:00 a.m. flight with a glass of champagne and food every 15 minutes throughout the flight and twice over each time zone, while the starving person will be forced to live by macadamia nuts alone.

Maybe traveling was never meant to be a fun experience. Come to think of it, Wilbur and Orville Wright rode bicycles.

base the big score never materializes.

Sitting South, Church had several choices for his first response, but elected to bid two diamonds. West stuck in a takeout double of sorts and Head elected to bid two hearts rather than show immediate diamond support.

When Church continued with three clubs Head was trapped, but decided to jump to four diamonds to show he had really good cards in that suit. Now Church jumped to five hearts (he had not shown any heart support up to this time). Head knew that Church was asking him to place the slam and bid six diamonds to end the bidding.

The way the cards lay the slam was a cinch. The only trick Church had to lose was the ace of trumps since he was able to discard two of his clubs on good hearts after the jack dropped.

Note that the heart slam wouldn't make. With hearts as trumps there would be no way to avoid a club loser.

To Your Good Health

By PAUL DONOHUE, M.D.
Dear Dr. Donohue: Please explain about Dupuytren's contracture. The doctor said I have it in the left hand. It stays sore all the time. I broke my wrist a few months ago. Can that be connected with it? — R.P.

There are many forms of this contracture, the most common one appearing in later life. Scar tissue forms under the skin of the palm of the hand, causing tissue contraction and pulling on the tendons leading to the fingers. Most often the ring finger is affected, drawing in toward the palm.

Although the cause is not known, Dupuytren's contracture seems to run in families (in males twice as much as in females). Sometimes, but seldom, it is associated with lung disease.

For reasons that are unknown, those of European extraction seem more prone to this problem. About 40 percent of patients are of Anglo-Saxon origins. It is seldom caused by activity or occupation, so the chances of your being connected with your wrist injury are slight.

There have been good results with conservative treatment, including radiotherapy and cortisone injection. Special exercises may also help. However, the ultimate answer often is surgical correction.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am 16 and a high school sophomore. Recently, my allergist told me that I should have my tonsils taken out. I wouldn't be worried except that he said that at my age there could be complications. Also, he is not going to put me to sleep. He is going to use a local anesthetic. I don't understand what the complications are, and won't it hurt if I am not put to sleep? — S.B.

Your doctor was being honest with you. There can be complications in removing tonsils, but for you there might be worse complications from not removing them.

Hints From Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

One year while waiting for the arrival of our first child, I found myself idle. Since it was near Christmas, I decided to make tree ornaments.

I wrapped yarn hair ribbon around cunning jar rings, covering the rings completely, and taping the yarn ends together, then covering them with yarn bows in contrasting colors. I added a hanging hook to each and had a very original and inexpensive ornament that wouldn't break even when that playful kitten batted it down or a curious toddler attacked it.

We've had these ornaments for 10 years now and still receive compliments. They are so easy to make and cost very little. — Sue Nelson

Thanks, Sue. We are always looking for new ideas for making Christmas decorations and you've come up with a goodie. Tree trimmers are fun to make, save money, and sure give you that Christmas spirit. Happy holidays! — Hugs, Heloise

HINTS FROM HIM

DEAR HELOISE:

When my son's basketball net is worn out I never throw it in the trash.

I undo the loops and have about 40 feet of good strong nylon cord for tying up tomatoes and other plants or for a clothesline. — Woodrow Newkirk

DEAR HELOISE:

It will soon be Christmas time, so here's my idea for a gift that will last a long time after the holidays and be something that youngsters will enjoy playing with.

Buy little boxes of candy or raisins. Put them in a bigger box with a cash register, small telephone and little paper sacks. A child can save the boxes after the goodies are gone and use them to "play store." Kids really enjoy every minute of it. — Mrs. Ross Gregg

THIS COLUMN is written for you, and by you! So if you have a super shortcut or a marvelous money-or time-saver, drop a note to Heloise, 235 E. 45th St., New York, N.Y. 10017, and let her share it with her readers. Sorry she can't answer your letter personally but you'll find the best hints she receives in this column every day.

ing them. The chief complication is bleeding afterwards. (in about 5 percent of cases). This is watched for, and doctors have effective methods of stopping it if it occurs. With local anesthesia the chances of bleeding afterward are reduced. General anesthesia (putting one to sleep) is done for children and local for adults.

Repeated sore throats or infection of tonsils are reasons for removing them, and another reason is a history of allergy. You won't feel any pain during surgery. The local anesthetic prevents that. You'll probably miss a week or two of school. There won't be any stitches to take out afterward, though.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Please give me information about medullary sponge kidney. I'd like to know the symptoms and an explanation of it. — A.W.

I suppose if I had a choice of kidney ailments to have I'd choose medullary sponge kidney. There are almost never any symptoms. It does not get worse and has an excellent prognosis (outlook). It is also easy to pronounce (MED-u-lary).

This condition usually is diagnosed by an x-ray taken for other reasons, but is, of course, noted when found. What is seen on x-ray are tiny cysts. They may, on occasion, have small stones in them.

No surgery or medicine is necessary, another good reason for my preference.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have a question regarding the drug tetracycline, taken for acne. I seem to remember seeing once that this could cause white spots on the skin when the skin is exposed to the sun. My daughter has developed the white spots while taking it for her acne. Do you think the drug is to blame? — A.M.

Some of the drugs of the tetracycline family may produce a skin reaction after exposure to the sun, but this is more like a severe sunburn. I cannot associate the white spots to this, however. The spots represent small areas of depigmentation (vitiligo). Except for the cosmetic problem it is not serious. A physician can advise her if anything need be done.

Dear Dr. Donohue: My five-year-old daughter has thick, long, black hair on her legs. Is there anyway I can have it removed permanently? She is very self-conscious about it. — Mrs. F.R.

Excess hair growth can be significant if it occurs at times other than puberty, pregnancy, or menopause. Have your child seen by an endocrinologist (gland specialist).

Acne is a terrible problem for anyone growing up. If you are afflicted with it, or have children who are, write to Dr. Donohue, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, for a copy of his booklet, "Controlling Acne, Blackheads and Pimples." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

NY Camera Repairman Solves Photo Problems

By SANDY COLTON
Associated Press Writer
Among professional photographers who have worked the New York circuit, the name Marty Forscher stands out as the guru of equipment.

Not just for camera repair, which he and his associates handle admirably at their Manhattan shop, Professional Camera Repair, but for the innovative solving of photographic problems through building special equipment.

He's adapted lenses to cameras that weren't supposed to be adaptable, built special backs for existing cameras and even fabricated special cameras. And he's been doing it since World War II when he served in the Navy with the famed Steichen unit.

But today it's not just these things for which Marty has such a devoted following. It's his sincere concern for the plight of the professional photographer and the battle he has been waging on their behalf with equipment manufacturers.

Marty is quick to point out that he is not against the technological developments which have opened the doors to photography for thousands who earlier were intimidated by the photographic process.

He does object to what he calls "planned obsolescence" and the current emphasis on manufacturing the most sophisticated cameras at the lowest possible price, "a practice that can only lead to compromise in the manufacturing process."

"The industry should be commended," Marty says, "for making available to the general public more versatile and feature-laden equipment, while at the same time holding costs down."

"But what is good for the general public does not necessarily satisfy the needs of the professional photographer whose livelihood, reputation and sometimes very life is on the line when he picks up a camera."

"The professional puts several hundred times more film through his camera than the amateur in the course of a year, and the quality that will take that abuse no longer prevails."

Marty likes to talk about the ideal camera for professional use. One, he says, that the kids can use as a hockey puck on weekends and Pop can use in his work the rest of the week.

It's an oversimplification, perhaps, but an argument wholeheartedly backed by such people as Jack Fletcher, photo equipment manager for the National Geographic, myself, and a host of others who are either assigned or must deal with photographers assigned to wars, riots or the far corners of the earth where, if a breakdown occurs, you might as well toss the camera away.

Unless you are in a major metropolitan area you can't get it repaired. It's too complicated to do yourself. And, frequently, you don't even know that the camera is malfunctioning until it's too late — not until the film has been processed, and that could be days or weeks and hundreds of more lost pictures.

As recently as the Korean War, many professionals carried a stripped-down Speed Graphic. It hardly ever broke down and, if it did, the photographer usually could repair it with a piece of tape, chewing gum or rubber band.

Then came the smaller cameras — Roliflexes, Leicas, Contax and early Nikons, all comparatively reliable. Even then, one or two cameras were usually sufficient. Today, photographers must carry two, three or more spare cameras as backups.

We now have a mass race on by the industry to capture the amateur market. Professionals, it is said, make up less than 8 percent of the total market. Ask a manufacturer to consider building a camera for the professional today and the answer is usually "no market."

Today we are bombarded by advertising where the manufacturers claim to be the "Official Camera" of this or that, "a title open to the highest bidder which bears little relationship to performance," says Marty.

If manufacturers would like to compete for the title "Official Camera of the Professional Photographer," let them listen to Marty and the thousands who work for magazines, picture agencies, wire services and newspapers.

Needlepoint Has Many Advantages

Needlepoint is a lively art. Not only is it a relaxing hobby requiring the simple filling in of stitches on a painted canvas, but it can be a skillful creative outlet demanding utmost attention as you design and stitch a fine intricate pattern.

The advantages of needlepoint are many. It's a relatively inexpensive craft to learn. All the materials you need to begin are canvas, yarn, a large-eyed needle and a pattern or instruction book. Basically, there are only two kinds of needlepoint stitches with infinite variations.

Needlepoint is a portable craft. No matter where you go, you can roll up your canvas and carry it with you to work on whenever you have a few spare minutes. And besides the traditional needlepoint projects — wall hanging, throw pillow and pin cushions — there are a multitude of other items you can make in needlepoint such as belts and handbags, clock faces, book marks and eyeglass cases.

Needlepoint as we know it today became popular in the 16th Century. And after the invention of the steel needle in Elizabethan England, nearly every European home contained some article of needlepoint.

When our pioneer ancestors came to this country, they brought their needlework with them. In colonial America, needlepoint was used in samplers, as upholstery fabric, and for fashion accessories. At first the patterns were strongly European, but soon Americans began developing their own designs, as well as spinning and dyeing the yarns used for their needlepoint.

For Many Cats Needlepoint, order kit No. 15605, for $29.99 plus $2.95 for postage and handling. For Cats with frame, order kit No. 15606 for $38.99 plus $2.95 for postage and handling. Creative Home Crafts is required to pay and collect sales tax in Texas.

Woman Claims Hospital Denied Aid

HOUSTON (UPI) — Officials at a private hospital Thursday denied they refused emergency treatment to an 11-month-old child who died in his grandmother's arms en route to a public hospital.

When Mae Theall returned to the car, Mrs. Theall said the child had no pulse. It was declared dead on arrival at Ben Taub at 7:30. Officials said an autopsy was planned but the death appeared to be from natural causes.

Benjamin Ladette Theall would have been a year old next Tuesday. He died Wednesday night outside a convenience store where his aunt had stopped to get transmission fluid for her car, which she feared was about to break down.

Verna M. Theall, 51, the child's grandmother, and Mae Theall, 23, a store clerk and the child's aunt, said a man they believed to be a doctor refused to accept the child at Doctors Hospital because his mother was not present.

Mrs. Theall said the mother, her daughter Bennie Mae Theall, 35, is retarded and lives with her. She said she had been responsible for raising her grandson since his birth.

"We did not ask for money or refuse treatment," said hospital administrator Bill Adams. "We've been in business 23 years and never denied service in an emergency."

He said hospital personnel told him the two women appeared at the emergency room Wednesday night and one identified herself as the grandmother.

Adams said the women failed to convey any sense of emergency. He said hospital policy requires treatment in emergency cases, but in nonemergencies the hospital requires authorization by the immediate next of kin — in the infant's case, the mother.

Hubert Waller, a male nurse in the emergency room at the time, said the two women "displayed no visual appearance of any concern" and were "low-keyed and not excited," Adams said.

Waller told the women they needed the mother's authorization for the child's treatment and, apparently frustrated, the two women left, Adams said. He said four other personnel confirmed Waller's account.

Mrs. Theall said the child had a cold for about four days and that she had been treating him at home. She said his condition worsened Wednesday night and she and her daughter took him to the hospital.

She said they were told insurance would not cover the child's medical bills and cash would be required. Mae Theall said she told hospital personnel she had the $80 they said was needed for admission but they said the mother was absent.

Mrs. Theall said they took the child to Yaie Clinic and Hospital, where a doctor said the child was having convulsions and should be rushed to Ben Taub Hospital. En route, they had car trouble and stopped to buy transmission fluid.

Mrs. Theall said the child began breathing hard.

"I was praying for him. Then I raised the sheet and said, 'Oh Lord,'" Mrs. Theall said.

Youth Killed At Concert Memorialized

CINCINNATI (AP) — Peter Bowes, an honor student and volunteer mental hospital worker, was remembered at a memorial service Thursday as a model youth, an unfortunate victim of the rock concert stampede that killed 11 young fans.

"There are times when words are unsatisfactory, inappropriate, hollow — sometimes even trite," said the Rev. H. Wiley Ralph, who conducted the service attended by many of Bowes' classmates at Wyoming High School in suburban Cincinnati.

"At such times as tragedy, some of us turn to what we believe to be divine words," Ralph said, then read a Bible passage that refers to a promise of heavenly rewards for good deeds.

Bowes, 18, was among the young people who died of asphyxiation when they were trampled by a crowd of several thousand people trying to push their way into a concert by The Who at Riverfront Coliseum on Monday night. Funeral services for most of the others were scheduled for Thursday and Friday.

An overflow crowd was gathered for the service at the Episcopal Church of Ascension and Holy Trinity. Ralph has known the Bowes family since he began serving as pastor there 16 years ago.

"They're handling it very well," Ralph said of the family's remorse. "They're letting their grief out. And they're getting a lot of support from the community."

At the request of the family, reporters and photographers were barred by police from attending the memorial service. There was no casket, since the body already had been taken for cremation.

Court-Martial Set For Marine Sergeant

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A jury was seated Thursday for the general court-martial of a Marine drill sergeant who admitted mistreating 31 recruits.

Government prosecutors and defense attorneys for Staff Sgt. Rockie L. Cross of Anadarko, Okla., approved the five-man panel, composed of two gunnery sergeants, a colonel, a first lieutenant and a lieutenant colonel.

Cross and two other drill instructors were accused of roughing up more than 100 recruits in their barracks early one morning last June.

Audience Enjoys Light Comedy

Individual Talents Carry Production Weight

By WILLIAM D. KERNS
A-J Entertainment Editor

No one is going to leave the Country Squire Dinner Theater this month lauding the depth or intelligence or multi-dimensional nature of the featured production. But with a play like "Send Me No Flowers," who could expect such a reaction?

It is geared toward the sort of audience which wants marshmallow-light entertainment, a bit of pure escapism fluff designed to make people forget about inflation and the situation in Iran for a couple hours — though it is obvious the play will be forgotten by the time keys are placed in ignitions after the final bows.

As such, it succeeds, thanks more to the imaginative haming on stage than anything put down on paper by playwrights Norman Barasch and Carroll Moore.

The rather farcical plot involves a hypochondriac named George Kimball, who thinks his indigestion is really nature's way of telling him he'll soon be pushing up daisies. Being a loving sort of chauvinist, the type who is certain his wife will fall to pieces after he's gone, he decides to find her a new husband. Naturally, problems arise. First, his wife thinks his actions are more indicative of a man having an affair and second, he and his wife both discover that that indigestion really was just indigestion.

The audience at the performance I viewed was kept laughing throughout, obviously having a better time than this writer. There's a reason people paid money to see Doris Day and Rock Hudson act out the same shenanigans on the movie screen, and that is the fact that there will always be a market for entertainment which does not tax the senses. And while I, too, found myself laughing out loud more than once, I also found much of the production tiresome and confusing.

One wonders, for instance, why director Joseph V. Barone skips back and forth between lightweight comedy and out-and-out farce. Out of the blue, it seems, his actors will abruptly change tones and expressions. Luckily, it is a strong cast able to make such inconsistencies pay off most of the time.

David Silberman and the talented Freda Williams work well together as the hypochondriac and his wife, though he manages more laughs through deadpan comebacks than she does with her often farcical expressions. Charles Cudd is a jolly sort, earning a few chuckles as the doctor, and Jan Romig is capable enough in the not-so-funny dream sequences. But the real hits in this play are Arthur Smith, William Carter and Johnny McCollum as the Texas oilman Bert, the next-door neighbor Arnold and the cemetery plot salesman.

Smith is the stereotypical rich Texan, whose hilarity is based in the ease of his caricature. For some bizarre reason, we actually believe he'd walk off stage singing "Streets Of Laredo" after discovering a man is dying or "Your Cheatin' Heart" upon finding an adulterer. William Carter is a fine comic actor again asked to handle a common stage and screen stereotype, the funny drunk. Mind you, he's a smashing hilarious one, the lawyer drinking to mourn his not-yet-dead neighbor. His pratfalls and seemingly uncoordinated movements are a delight, but I still remember Carter performing Shakespeare and wish he'd return to more serious works.

McCollum is an unexpected pleasure as Mr. Akins, selling cemetery plots at Eternal Gardens. And again, it is the little things he adds to the script which pay the highest dividends, the way he'll separate syllables or jut his chin forward when saying farewells. It's hokey, yes, but funny all the same.

Indeed, that's how one must classify this production of "Send Me No Flowers," as a hokey bit of fluff which succeeds almost despite of itself. This is the sort of production which works best on the dinner theater stage, where audiences don't want to strain after devouring a fine meal. But the fact remains, this is certainly not the best material to work with. Credit goes to Barone for the brisk pacing and to technical director Janet Crane for the quick and capable lighting and sound cuts for the dream sequences — but let's save the most for the cast, a group of actors using individual talent to instill hilarity in dated comedic situations.

The play is funny, though inconsistent. The audience seemed to leave satisfied. But it remains a bit sad, too, having to watch talented local actors like William Carter and Freda Williams trapped within the boundaries of non-challenging material.

"Send Me No Flowers" will be performed nightly, except Mondays, at the Country Squire Dinner Theater. Advance reservations are highly advised during the Christmas season. Call 794-2738 for reservations and ticket prices.

Dance Organized To Rebuild Brothel

BEATTY, Nev. (AP) — When Fran York's business burned down, it was only natural that residents of this community do something to help. So they're holding a dance to raise money to help rebuild Fran's Star Ranch, one of Nevada's legal brothels.

"It's not only just because this is Fran," Bill Sullivan, Beatty's justice of the peace and chief of the volunteer fire department, said Thursday. "It happens in this area quite a bit."

When a family is hit by tragedy, he explained, "the town gets together, and does something for the people. That's one thing about a small community."

"Everybody has been just unbelievable," said Mrs. York. "The night it happened they took the girls downtown, got clothes for them and places for them to stay."

Mrs. York, who managed the brothel for eight years until she bought it just days before the fire, said she got back in business last Saturday, moving her six girls into a three-bedroom mobile home she had towed to the property. She estimated she will need about $100,000 to rebuild the brothel.

Fran's Star Ranch is one of five brothels in Nye County, a sprawling rural area north of Las Vegas best known for the Nevada Test Site, where the nation's nuclear weapons are tested.

Although Nevada law prohibits prostitution in the counties where Las Vegas and Reno are located, it leaves up to local ordinance whether to permit it in the other 15 counties. Nye County has no ordinance covering prostitution, although county officials are considering a measure to require bordellos to be licensed.

The brothel was gutted by fire on Nov. 20 and state Fire Marshal's investigators concluded the blaze started in faulty wiring in the old wood frame establishment a couple miles north of Beatty, a community of about 700 persons near the California border.

Bill Perry, a Federal Aviation Administration employee who operates an FAA aircraft navigation beacon at Beatty, is the organizer of the benefit dance scheduled for Saturday night.

"Fran's quite well thought of by the majority of the people here," he said, explaining why he and his wife, Helen, decided to organize the event.

"Fran has always been extremely gracious when it comes down to the support of local organizations, or anyone, indeed," he said. "I tell you, the amount of money she donates annually to different places, you'd never get that much from the tax structure. She donates a couple thousand dollars a year."

"Usually on the Fourth of July, when the Fire Department puts on its annual celebration, she buys a lot of raffle tickets," Sullivan said. "She's really been good to the fire department."

"Not everyone is happy with the benefit, Sullivan added.

"You're going to hear pro and con," he said. "I've heard some statements around that this type of thing shouldn't be done. I certainly appreciate their feelings, but not everybody likes baseball."

Commission Not To Regulate Off-Road Vehicles

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Consumer Product Safety Commission has declined to begin regulating two-wheel motorized off-road vehicles such as minibikes, trail bikes and minicycles.

The commission had been asked by Drs. Frederick Rivara and Lawrence Berger of Seattle, Wash., to adopt design and labeling requirements for these unlicensed vehicles, particularly addressing the risk to persons under age 14.

However, the commission concluded that the commission could only regulate the design of the vehicles, and the vast majority of injuries associated with these items result from the way they are used, not their design.

The commission concluded that riding these vehicles can be a dangerous activity. They are often used on rough terrain and injuries occur when the riders bump into obstacles and fall off the bikes, the commission noted.

Tech Lab Production Termed 'Superb' Despite Abrupt Ending

By WILLIAM D. KERNS
A-J Entertainment Editor

Despite an ending which seemed to lose a bit of effectiveness through sheer abruptness, the Texas Tech University Lab Theater's current production of "Of Mice And Men" remains an oftentimes superb rendering which captures every emotional peak present in the familiar work by John Steinbeck.

The story of George and Lennie, two ranchhands battling a hostile, suspicious society through the common bond of friendship, is just as moving on stage as it was in its original prose form, and it is to the credit of director Sara O'Neil and her leading players that the audience also develops hope in the common dreams which never come to pass.

We meet George and Lennie on the run from the citizens of Weed, where Lennie has done "a bad thing." Lennie is as kind as he is big, but he is mentally deficient. Without George, he would be lost, unable to cope and survive. Yet George, for all his grumbling, also realizes that he is better off with Lennie. For all his troubles, he is not lonely.

"People don't seem to give a damn," says one character upon learning the two new men travel together. But Lennie and George give a damn; they care. The two are friends and, together, they have a wonderful dream of saving enough money to buy their own ranch and live "off the fat of the land." Still, Steinbeck took his title from the phrase "the best laid plans of mice and men often go awry" and, indeed, these two characters — and the others who find a renewed sense of hope in their dream — are belittled by fate soon enough.

Bruce DuBose and T.H. Maynor are both outstanding as George and Lennie, respectively. The latter, especially, had a difficult task in creating a retarded character, since it's one of ten overplayed on stage by thespians who become too sentimental or silly or naive. Lennie is slow; he has trouble remembering some things and he does not know how to curb his own strength. But he is intelligent enough to sense when he's done something wrong or when a place is "mean." Maynor offers a sensitive and, ultimately, believable performance, mastering every nuance from the always present (but never exaggerated) slow speech patterns to the distant, vacant look in his eyes when thinking.

His affiliation with the animals he loves is not lost on us, either, as more than once Maynor sits in suffering silence while being taunted like some misbehaving pet, letting the words glide over him and knowing full well that all will be forgiven at some point in the near future.

Just as impressive is DuBose, a sophomore theater student from Dallas, who must be regarded as a man to watch on the Lubbock theater scene. Only in his second year of study at Tech, he is already in possession of a stage presence and intensity as commanding as it is admirable. As George, he ably expresses not only love and independence, but also the necessary frustration present in a character who is never able to fully take care of his friend. He is the tough guy with a soft underside, a man who can at one moment lose his temper and vent his frustration with words of anger and yet, at another moment, tenderly tell the same story over and over again to an eager listener. His is a terrific performance.

George and Lennie find their fate on a new ranch, where the boss's son (Curley) happens to be married to a woman who failed to realize the loneliness attached to her wedding ring. This woman, with her own dreams of "someday" and a teasing attitude brought about by her resentment, is the obstruction blocking George and Lennie's road to happiness. But they are not the only ones affected. G.W. Frazier offers a solid performance as Candy, the handicapped worker who buys his way into the newcomers' plans. He, just as much as his benefactors, lays all hope for happiness on the plans for a new piece of land — and his reaction at seeing those plans broken into pieces and sprawled out in the form of a body on the barn floor comes close to drawing tears from the audience.

Jerry Smith also offers a solid performance as Carlson, and Patrick Remmert is extremely impressive with his natural flair and easygoing style as the mule skinner Slim. Deirdre Jamison, cast as Curley's wife, proves capable during her final scene — but one wonders how much of that effectiveness should be credited to Miss O'Neil since her earlier vamping seemed a little too smirking. On the same note, David Graham was not satisfying as Curley, adding a little too much pseudo-toughness to the part; there's no denying a lot of energy is present, but it is not toned down enough and results in overacting.

But these are but minor faults, and certainly not capable of harming the flow of the production. Sara O'Neil, after all, is well aware of which scenes need emphasis and which can be quickly passed over. The stressing of the hands' wanting to shoot Candy's old dog tells us not so much about the hands, as it does about Candy's thoughts on the future — and, of course, it sets up the play's final scene. When Slim notes that people don't listen to each other, we are not yet aware that Miss O'Neil will pound the point home in a key scene in which Miss Jamison and Maynor speak of their individual dreams, both centered on self, neither listening to the other.

Robert McVay and Dale Heath deserve applause for the scene and lighting designs, which managed to simultaneously make use of the small stage and make us believe we were in the proper setting, be it in the bunkhouse or out on the prairie.

The violent choreography is handled so well as to be almost too believable: one character's hand is broken in a fistfight, and yet another character's neck is snapped in harsh visual terms. But this is all to Miss O'Neil's credit; in fact, despite the occasional overacting from supporting players, my only complaint remains the abruptness of the ending.

We leave with the sound of a gunshot still ringing in our ears, the house darkened before the body has time to hit the ground. I can't help but feel how much more effective an instant of illumination could have been, an instant in which the man holding the pistol might truly emphasize his knowledge that more than one life was destroyed with that solitary bullet. The fact that the audience on opening night seemed uncertain as to whether the play had ended might support my point.

Regardless, though, Sara O'Neil's production of "Of Mice And Men" remains moving and effective, helped in no small way by the introspective performances of DuBose and Maynor in the leading roles. It deserves to be seen.

"Of Mice And Men" will be staged at the Lab Theater on the Tech campus at 8:15 p.m. today through Wednesday. The performances tonight and Saturday have already been declared sellouts. Call 742-3601 for reservations and ticket prices. Note to parents: a small amount of profanity is used in the play.

Producer Named Director Of Fund

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Corporation for Public Broadcasting announced Thursday that television producer Lewis Freedman will become the first director of its newly created Program Fund, responsible for selecting and funding programs for public TV.

The corporation's board also approved a budget of $1.5 million for the coverage of the 1980 political campaign by public television and radio.

Freedman, 53, is a New York City native who has worked as a producer, executive producer and television programming executive. He has won both the Peabody and Emmy awards for his work.

In August, the corporation's board of directors decided to create the new Program Fund structure as a means of removing itself from the direct process of selecting programs for public television. The director of the Program Fund will still receive policy guidance from the board.

Freedman, who will receive an undisclosed salary, but one believed to range from $55,000 to $66,000, will have a $24.5 million budget for fiscal 1980 and a staff of 13. He will assume his new duties in January.

Freedman, who for the last five years has been traveling extensively and working as a consultant, was among 284 persons considered for the post and one of six finalists.

The corporation's board, which is holding two days of meetings here, held a lengthy session behind closed doors Wednesday night and then announced its decision Thursday morning.

"Lewis Freedman is an award-winning producer who will bring to public TV one of the nation's most creative minds in this medium," said Robben W. Fleming, president of CPB, in announcing the board's decision. "The corporation is indeed fortunate to have secured his services and we welcome his return to public broadcasting."

Freedman, who is well known in the television community for his creation of the series "Bicentennial Minutes," began his career in public television in 1965 when he joined WNET-TV in New York as its vice president of programming.

In 1972, he joined CBS-TV as its producer of drama but left the network for extensive travel in Europe and Northern Africa, where he observed programming and production, studied history and worked as an international consultant on television programming for Mobil Oil Corp.

The issue of how much to spend in covering the 1980 presidential election was a divisive one for the corporation's board, which settled on the $1.5-million figure as a compromise in a 9-4 vote.

The money will be used by the Public Broadcasting Service and by National Public Radio.

The corporation's management had recommended a maximum budget of $1 million, noting the major commercial television and radio networks would be providing extensive coverage of the campaign and political conventions.

Both the public radio and television services, however, had lobbied for $2.5 million.

Most of the political budget is expected to be used to enhance existing public television and radio programs which focus on the political scene, according to a CPB spokesman.

Dermatologists Say Suntan Booths Can Be Dangerous

CHICAGO (AP) — A committee of dermatologists says there are "potential dangers" involved in the new fad of acquiring tans in parlors or booths.

"We want to educate the public to the fact that a tan is not a healthy thing because it damages skin cells," said Dr. John Epstein of the University of California-San Francisco chairman of the 14 member-committee that reported Wednesday at the annual meeting of the American Academy of Dermatology.

Epstein said excessive tanning prematurely ages the skin, causes it to look leathery and makes it more susceptible to injury. He said skin damage caused by the lamps in booths is the same as that produced by a sunburn and also increases a person's risk of developing skin cancer.

People who run the highest risk of being injured from the ultraviolet light are those who do not tan easily and thus will spend more time in the booths, and people who have certain diseases that make their skin more susceptible to sunlight damage, he said.

Former Affairs Chief Becomes Scout Leader

DALLAS (AP) — Omar Harvey of Dallas, who recently resigned as chief of the Texas Department of Community Affairs, will become director of special projects for the Boy Scouts of America on Jan. 1.

Chief Scout Executive J.L. Tarr announced the appointment Thursday.

Before entering state government service this year, Harvey had a long business career that included service as president of First International Services Corp. and executive vice president of First National Bank in Dallas.

He was campaign manager for Gov. Bill Clements in last year's Republican primary.

Judge Rules Rally Poses Clear, Present Danger To Hostages

SAN ANTONIO (UPI) — A state district judge, saying he personally wished a "plague" on both the deposed Shah of Iran and the Ayatollah Khomeini, Thursday refused to issue a temporary restraining order that would have allowed Iranian students to protest the shah's presence at Lackland Air Force Base.

"How come you don't express your views about Khomeini, what a sorry so-and-so Khomeini is, trampling peoples' rights and international law," Judge Peter Michael Curry asked in a brief debate with Iranian Ali Seyed Fanaei Khayat, who brought the lawsuit.

"As a matter of fact, a plague on both their houses."

Curry ruled at the end of a five-hour hearing that any Iranian demonstration at this time presented "a clear and present danger" to the safety of American hostages held in Tehran and chided the Iranians for not exhausting administrative remedies.

Attorney Louis Linden, representing Ali and the Iranian Muslim Organization, made an impassioned plea for Curry not to abandon First Amendment rights to free speech and assembly during the current crisis.

Linden argued that to squelch the proposed demonstration would be giving in to the Ku Klux Klan, which had promised a counter-demonstration if the Iranians were allowed to march.

"Are we going to allow a bunch of God-forsaken barbarians to decide who's going to be allowed to exercise their constitutional rights, or are you going to decide?" Linden asked Curry.

City Manager Tom Huebner and other witnesses testified the city administration decided not to issue parade permits to the Iranians because they feared counter-demonstrators, including the KKK, might provoke violence and that if any of the Iranians were injured, retaliatory measures would be taken against the 50 American hostages.

"What really offends me and terrifies me and makes me want to throw up is that anything the KKK doesn't like ain't gonna happen," Linden said in his final argument.

"It would be real easy to sacrifice the Constitution by saying these are just a bunch of rug merchants who are jacking up the price of our oil," Linden said. "It's easy to abridge their rights, but what happens when we knuckle under to the Ku Klux Klan? How soon will it be until the KKK is doing this all the time?"

Representatives from Mexican-American and black organizations also testified that they feared violence, not from the Iranians but because of the KKK's pledge to counterdemonstrate.

In making his final ruling, Curry countered Linden's argument that the United States should show it is a nation of laws and not of men by allowing the demonstration to take place.

"I don't want to kick the Constitution around" Curry said, "but I'm smart enough to know the consequences if I did other than deny this temporary restraining order."

"I wonder if I asked the Iranians for a permit to let me demonstrate in Iran, how far I would get? We don't keep our nation great by allowing people to kill each other on the streets, and that's exactly what would happen."

In his final argument, City Attorney Crawford Reeder also expressed concern for the American hostages should violence erupt in San Antonio.

"All we need is one Iranian with a bloody head to give the Iranians holding hostages a reason to do something to them," Reeder said.

Linden indicated he would appeal Curry's decision to the state 4th Court of Civil Appeals in San Antonio.

Americans Express Anger At Iran In Many Ways

By The Associated Press

Armbands were in demand by the hundreds of thousands Thursday as Americans found new ways to express their unity — and anger — against Iran.

A tribe of American Indians in the Midwest, at peace since 1795 when Chief Little Turtle signed a treaty with the United States, called a tribal convention to declare war on the country of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

Taxi drivers in Washington said they would join New York cabbies in burning their headlights during the day Friday — the 38th anniversary of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor — to protest the captivity of the 50 hostages in Tehran.

A spokesman for the Northeastern United States Miami Intertribal Committee, a coalition of segments of the Miami Indian Tribe, said he expected 500 members in Youngstown, Ohio, to consider the declaration of war.

Mel Fletcher, who said the tribe has members east of the Mississippi River from the Canadian border to Florida, said, "The purpose of the meeting is to make a declaration of war of the Miami nation against Iran and in support of President Carter and the United States." He added that the declaration was only symbolic.

A New York City radio station, WMCA, said it had been deluged with more than 300,000 requests since it suggested Americans wear white armbands.

Ellen Sulzberger, president of Straus Communications, which owns the station, said 30,000 armbands already had been distributed bearing the words "Unity Is Strength."

Manhattan businessman Milton Stern sent a $500 check to WMCA to help pay for the armbands.

"It was a way for me to become involved, to feel as if I'm doing something to help or at least stand with them," he said. "Frankly, it's given me a certain pride in being a citizen of the United States." Elsewhere, there were these developments:

•A Texas state judge, convinced that an anti-shah rally could lead to violence, refused to force the city of San Antonio to grant parade permits to an Iranian student organization.

The student group sought permission for an anti-shah demonstration near Lackland Air Force Base, where the deposed Iranian monarch is in seclusion. The city denied the permit earlier this week after Ku Klux Klansmen threatened violence if the Iranian students marched.

"There's a clear and present danger of all sorts of things happening," said State District Judge Peter Michael Curry in denying a restraining order sought by the Iranians. "It's quite obvious to me what would happen under these circumstances."

•In San Clemente, Calif., a group of angry residents calling on President Carter to cure "an epidemic" of defamation against the United States overseas, won permission to hold a rally on Friday in support of American efforts to resolve the Iranian crisis.

•About 200 people turned out at the University of Iowa in Iowa City to protest visa checks of Iranian students ordered by Carter. Participants at the rally, organized by the Revolutionary Student Brigade, also called for the extradition of the shah.

Meanwhile, the armband idea was gathering momentum in other communities as well. In Somersworth, N.H., Mayor George Bald asked the residents to join him in wearing black armbands, which were being distributed at the city hall and fire station.

A postal workers union in Hanover, N.H., also got permission to wear armbands in exception to the uniform regulations.

In Cheraw, S.C., radio station WPDZ-FM launched a project called "Christmas for the Hostages," soliciting cards and letters to be forwarded to the U.S. Embassy in Tehran where the captives are being held.

And Gov. Joseph E. Brennan said he was surprised when he walked into Jean Rice's sixth grade class in Farmington, Maine, and was hit with a barrage of questions about the crisis.

"Will there be a war?" asked one sixth grader.

"What if the hostages get hurt?" another wondered.

"Why do they want the shah back if he's dying of cancer, anyway?" a third asked.

San Angelo Quads In Good Condition

SAN ANGELO (AP) — Dazed parents of this city's only birth of quadruplets Thursday thought up names for their four sons, and the mother was moved from the hospital's intensive care unit to a private room.

The babies born Tuesday night to Larry and Dana Roberson — Daryl Edward, Jamie Allen, Jesse Brian and Larry Wayne — were in good condition Thursday, as was their mother, in Angelo Community Hospital.

Roberson, 28, manager of the drug department at Albertson's Supermarket, said he and his 22-year-old wife talked "for about 30 minutes" and decided on four names.

Doctors told the Robersons several months ago there would be three babies, and the prospective parents had picked out three boys' names and three girls' names.

But then Mrs. Roberson, who had been taking the fertility drug Clomid, had quadruplets. The babies were delivered by Caesarian section.

Dr. Dan Cravy said Clomid produces single births "97 percent of the time. Of the other 3 percent, most are twins." He said the fertility drug Perganol is more likely to cause multiple births.

Cravy said the normal likelihood of quadruplets is one in 729,000 births.

Cravy said Mrs. Roberson's condition was "real stable," although she suffered from a pregnancy ailment known as preeclampsia, which he said was a "self-limiting toxic condition," and had been given certain drugs.

Roberson said his wife was awake enough Wednesday night to talk about names "and she knows there are four babies, and she's very happy."

The babies weighed a total of more than 17 pounds and had a total length of 5 feet, 7 inches. The smallest weighed 3 pounds, 8 1/2 ounces and was 15 1/4 inches long.

Cravy said the babies may be two sets of fraternal twins "but we won't know that until we study the placenta and check the babies."

Nude Woman Flees Motorcycle Gang

KENNER, La. (AP) — A woman who ran nude through the streets of this New Orleans suburb before someone would help her apparently "was beaten unmercifully" by kidnappers because she wouldn't become a prostitute, police said Thursday.

"She's a drifter, and we're sending her back to Missouri," said Police Chief Salvador Lentini.

Lentini would not identify the 19-year-old woman, nor reveal the name of her hometown. But he said three purported members of the Outlaws motorcycle gang had taken her clothes, tied her hands and feet, then locked her in a closet for two days.

Police spokeswoman Ruth Barnett quoted the woman as saying she met one of the men at a bar in the French Quarter of New Orleans and later dated him several times.

The woman told police that she escaped Tuesday from the home where she was being held by getting permission to go to the kitchen for a match to light a cigarette she had requested. As soon as she was out of her abductors' sight, she said, she untied herself and fled.

Once free, the woman told police, she was refused help at one home a block away from where she was imprisoned.

Medicaid Funds To Be Restricted

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House voted Thursday to prevent Medicaid money from being spent on abortions for needy women unless the life of the mother would be threatened by carrying the fetus to full term.

By a 217-169 vote, the members tacked the restrictive abortion language onto a major health bill that would expand Medicaid coverage to children from low-income families and some pregnant women.

Final House passage of the full bill was deferred until next week. House passage will send the measure to an uncertain fate in the Senate, where lawmakers have been unwilling to accept strong restrictions on Medicaid money for abortions.

The intent of the original House bill — backed by the administration — was to expand Medicaid coverage to 5 million additional poor children. About 12 million are now eligible.

It would also give free medical coverage to 220,000 low-income women during their first pregnancy and for two months after delivery.

The current federal-state Medicaid program does not provide coverage for low-income single women and couples having their first child.

Rep. Harold L. Volkmer, D-Mo., offered the new abortion language as a substitute for a part of the bill that would have given Medicaid money for abortions caused by rape, incest, or in the event the life of the mother was endangered.

Volkmer argued that no federal Medicaid money should be paid to terminate pregnancies resulting from rape or incest.

"I'm willing to pay for that life out of taxpayers' money if necessary," said Volkmer.

Rep. Henry A. Waxman, D-Calif., who opposed Volkmer, argued that needy mothers should not be precluded from taking advantage of modern medical techniques which can tell if an unborn fetus has serious defects.

But Volkmer countered: "I don't think we have to rid this earth of those that are handicapped...or those that have low IQ's." The government is now operating under an appropriations bill that gives federal funds for abortions in cases where the mother's life is directly threatened and in cases of rape and incest.

Arctic Lab Faces Shutdown

World's Largest Facility Labeled 'White Elephant'

POINT BARROW, Alaska (AP) — Even as the world looks to the polar region for new energy sources, the nation's only arctic research laboratory may be shut down as a "white elephant."

Scientists say years of research will be lost if the pioneering Naval Arctic Research Laboratory, 330 miles above the Arctic Circle, is closed.

The laboratory, the largest such facility in the world, has provided information on such things as global weather, the movement of submarines under ice, and the effect of pollution on polar regions.

"It's a national asset," Dr. John Kelley, a scientist here for 20 years and now technical director of the laboratory, said in an interview. "It's also a white elephant that nobody wants to take on."

Since it was opened in 1947, the U.S. Navy has operated the laboratory with assistance from private contractors and the University of Alaska. Thousands of private and government scientists have used the facility over the years.

"We've been subsidizing it for everyone else all this time," says Lt. Cmdr. Michael E. Brown, commanding officer at the laboratory.

A search has been on for about a year for a new federal agency or private organization to take over the laboratory. So far, there have been no takers.

The House Appropriations Committee wants the facility closed next year, saying it is a drain on "scarce research money. It has refused to grant $6.1 million requested to maintain and operate the station at a minimum level.

The Senate wants the funding restored while the search is speeded up for a new operator of the facility.

Already there have been cutbacks in the operations, which have cost $11 million a year and more. In October, the staff was reduced by 48 persons, to 92.

A search for new homes for laboratory animals has started. Some of the quonset huts have been put up for sale and research library services have been halted.

"This is the only high latitude arctic laboratory in the United States," says

Kelley. "The beauty of it is it is set up in the region itself."

Research is carried on within the lab and in field camps, some of which are set up on ice floes drifting hundreds of miles out in the Arctic Ocean.

Kelley for years has been studying the levels of carbon dioxide and other gases in the arctic atmosphere and the ice. His findings suggest the polar ice cap may be an important source of the atmosphere's trace gases and a critical element in global weather.

There are indications that pollution from industrial areas of the Northern Hemisphere are having significant effects on the polar regions, he says. Dust particles traced to the Gobi desert have been found in the arctic.

Dr. Gary Laursen, assistant director of the lab whose specialty is studying fungi of the tundra, says "a lot of applied science has also come out of here, mostly in the form of engineering."

Much of that engineering is important, as the world turns to the arctic for new energy sources.

Comedian To Visit 'Nowhere Town'

TERRE HAUTE, Ind. (AP) — Comedian Steve Martin, that wild and crazy guy, has agreed to visit the western Indiana city he proclaimed the most nowhere place in America, the mayor's office said Thursday.

Vicki Weger, an aide to Mayor William Brighton, said Martin will arrive Friday at Hulman Field, where he will be greeted with a bouquet of wilted flowers.

"They'll probably be forget-me-nots," she said. "Maybe a few snapdragons. We're having the flowers flown in."

The invitation for the popular comedian's visit came after city fathers learned of Martin's uncomplimentary comments in an interview in the January issue of Playboy magazine.

"We just made the offer tongue-in-cheek," Miss Weger said. "We're proud of our farming community. We thought, what the heck, we can laugh too."

Even though Martin said the town is the most nowhere place in the country, "we're quickly becoming somewhere," Miss Weger added. "The mayor thinks it's great. The community is really having a lot of fun with it. It's a pretty good town that can laugh at themselves."

Martin was not immediately available for comment. He was to appear in San Jose, Calif., Thursday night for the premiere of his film, "The Jerk."

Miss Weger said that after Martin arrives at the airport, he will make some remarks before driving into town.

"We are not encouraging the public to show up at the airport. But we're going to have the official welcoming on the city hall steps, where the public will be welcome," she said.

Martin will be taken into town in a 1957 Chevy that he can rent for $7 a day with unlimited mileage, she said.

"The driver's door doesn't open, but he can get in the other side," Ms. Weger added.

The next stop is the Shuffle Inn, where a chef imported from Maxim's of Paris will prepare a luncheon of lobster and other assorted treats for Martin and the mayor.

"Playboy is picking up the tab for that," Miss Weger said. "The lunch will be served by bunnies."

After lunch, Martin will go to city hall where he will get a key to the city. From there, it's over to CF Industries, the local fertilizer plant. Then, when Martin heads back south into town from U.S. 41, Miss Weger said he will be "railroaded," otherwise known as being stuck in traffic until the train goes by.

"We have 350 railroad crossings in Terre Haute, so there's always a pretty good chance you'll get stopped by a train," she explained.

At Jones and Bezy Tractor Sales, Martin will get a $20 gift certificate. A $5 certificate will be waiting for the comic at Smiley's Jiffy Car Wash. On the way back to the airport, he'll be given a bucket of chicken from the Colonel.

"He was going to stay the night originally, but we figured three hours would do it," Ms. Weger said. "He can see the whole town."

Approximately 3.6 million birth control pills are taken by American women each year.

Chase Ends In Florida River

Burglar Saved From Drowning By Man He Tried To Rob

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — In a fit of anger, Alex Suarez chased two men from his home into a river, ready to thrash them. He wound up saving a 20-year-old stranger, but wasn't able to keep the second man from drowning.

Police said the incident happened after Suarez, also 20, caught a young man rummaging through his mother's bedroom Wednesday — the second break-in at his home that day.

Suarez hollered, and the youth and another man who may have been the lookout fled, police said. Suarez chased them along north Tampa streets, then through an apartment complex. The chase ended at the Hillsborough River.

The men ran out on a pier, and Suarez said he yelled, "I got you now."

The two dove into the river with Suarez close behind, police said. Suarez caught up with one man, and the two struggled while the second man apparently tried to swim away, police said. Suarez realized the man he had couldn't stay afloat, and feared they would both be pulled under.

"This guy isn't going to make it," Suarez, a good swimmer, said he thought to himself. He said he was too tired to try to pull the man to shore, so broke away, telling the man to "hang on and be cool."

Suarez swam over to a small rowboat and tied up near the pier. He climbed in and paddled with his hands toward the man he had fought. By this time, the second man also was struggling to stay afloat.

Suarez said he was able to pull out the youth, but the second man slipped beneath the murky water and disappeared. Divers later found the body of Franklin Perez, 21, of Tampa. Tampa police spokesman John Barker said investigators speculate Perez was the lookout or had left the house just as Suarez appeared.

Suarez reported the first burglary at his house around noon Wednesday. He said he lost about $1,800 worth of goods, including a stereo set, a television set, a camera and a pair of binoculars.

The house, where he lives with his mother and younger brother, was left in shambles. Police dusted for fingerprints and left.

Suarez also left, for about 45 minutes. When he returned, he found a side door open and a young man going through his mother's bedroom closet, police said. That's when the chase started.

Police arrested Gilbert Cabrera, 20, on the riverbank and charged him with burglary. Cabrera was treated at a hospital for exposure.

"I was kind of mad at him, but then he said, 'Help me, help me. I'm sorry,'" Suarez said.

Barker said Suarez couldn't just let somebody drown. "Suarez went back because he's a person with compassion," Barker said.

Suarez said he doesn't think of himself as a hero for saving the life of the man he wanted to beat up.

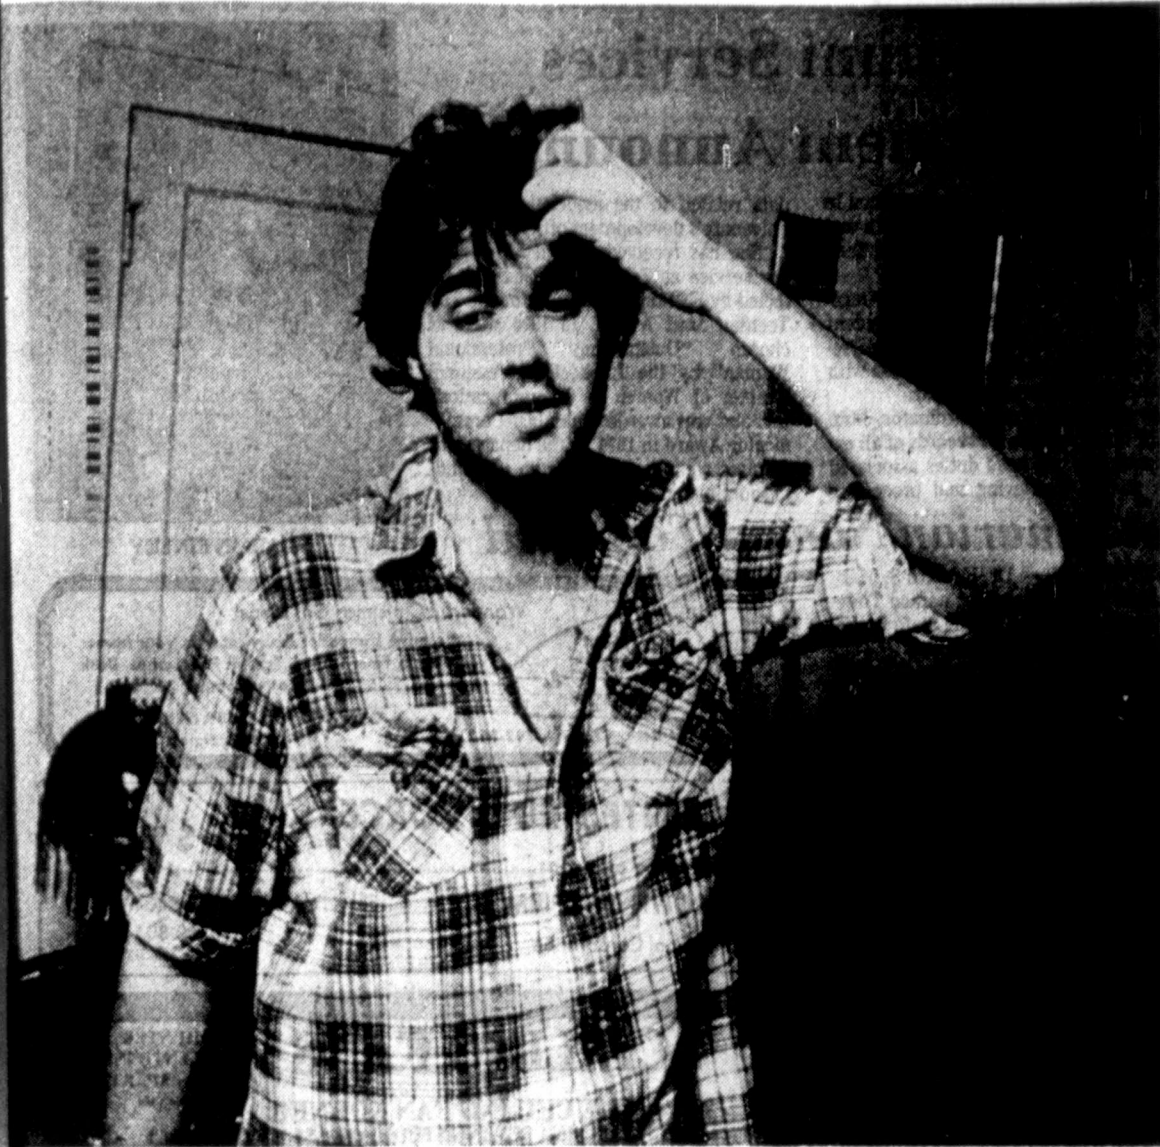

"I don't consider myself anything," he said. "I felt he was drowning, and I didn't want to see him die. He's a human being. I had to do something — no matter what he had done to me."

Miss Lillian Not To Retract Comment

HARTSELLE, Ala. (AP) — President Carter's mother said Thursday she is "getting more money than you ever saw" since she suggested a contract should be taken out on the life of Iran's Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

Campaigning here for the re-election of her son, President Carter, "Miss Lillian" was asked about a statement she had made Nov. 29 in New Hampshire.

Appearing at a question-and-answer session at the Bow Men's Club in Bow, N.H., she said that if she had a million dollars, she would hire someone to kill Khomeini, Iran's revolutionary leader.

"If I had a million dollars to spare, I'd look for someone to kill him," she told a cheering crowd at the time.

Miss Lillian told reporters Thursday the president did not mind her earlier remarks about Khomeini, and said she was not changing what she said.

"I'm not changing it and Jimmy doesn't mind, but I said it after 15 hours" of campaigning, she said.

"Honey," Miss Lillian said, "I'm getting more money than you ever saw... people are sending me money."

She appeared at the same event as Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, who is challenging Carter for the 1980 Democratic presidential nomination.

Miss Lillian and Kennedy shook hands as the Massachusetts senator arrived to speak at ceremonies dedicating a civic auditorium in honor of former Sen. John J. Sparkman, D-Ala.

The president's mother side-stepped an opportunity to comment on Kennedy's recent criticisms of the deposed Shah of Iran.

"I think he's a good orator," she said of the senator. "I'm not running against him I'm running for Jimmy," Miss Lillian added.

But she did have some tongue-in-cheek advice for Kennedy: "I just told him when he gets to the White House not to sleep in the Lincoln bed because it's too hard, and for God's sake turn the heat up."

School's Medical Center Opens 'Horizontal Elevator' Transit

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — With a hum and a lurch, Duke Medical Center inaugurated its new, $4,900-a-foot transportation system Thursday.

The white car, trimmed in Duke blue, rose up slightly on a cushion of air and carried 15 people from the hospital to the as-yet-unopened Duke Hospital North.

The distance: 1,200 feet. The cost: $5.9 million.

The system, developed by Otis Elevator Co., is described as a horizontal elevator. It features futuristic subway-like cars that travel on air above concrete guideways.

Special motors create a magnetic field, which moves the cars along the guideways. Energy is provided by 480-volt power rails.

The medical center has been expanding almost since it first opened about 50 years ago. The latest addition is Duke Hospital North, a 600-bed, $93-million hospital scheduled to open sometime next year.

With the main center 1,200 feet away, and hospital officials wanted a fast, new system for transporting people — patients, visitors and staff. Planners came up with what they call the Personal Rapid Transit system.

A Duke Eye Center receptionist, Jane Bindewald, cut the ribbon Thursday as hospital officials, employees and state Transportation Secretary Thomas Bradshaw looked on. Treating the first rides as a major event, officials dispensed punch and had an employee chorus sing railroad songs.

Veterinarian Named To Board

AUSTIN (AP) — Dr. Edward S. Murray, Spur veterinarian, was named Tuesday to a six-year term on the State Board of Veterinary Medical Examiners.

He replaces Dr. James Gandy, Brownwood, who resigned. Other appointments Tuesday by Gov. Bill Clements included:

Jim R. Wright, Eastland attorney, to be judge of the 91st Judicial District until the next general election.

Jack Gordon Willingham, Hamlin attorney, to be district attorney of the 249th Judicial District in Jones and Shackelford counties. He replaces Quay Parker, who resigned.

Eugene L. Ames Jr., San Antonio, president of Venus Oil Co., to a six-year term on the board of the Nueces River Authority. He replaces Joe E. Briscoe, Devine, whose term expired.

Rallies Reminder Of War Years

DALLAS (AP) — For thousands of Japanese-Americans, the bombs that turned Pearl Harbor into a funeral pyre 38 years ago Friday signaled an ugly change in American mood. Some see that mood rising again in the anti-Iranian demonstrations sweeping the United States.

The naval base in Hawaii was obliterated on Dec. 7, 1941, and the United States declared war on Japan.

Within a few days of Pearl Harbor, people became very aggressive and "a Jap is a Jap is a Jap," recalled Hiroo Fukuyama, who was 20 in 1941. "The only difference between that and the Iranian students now is that it (the anti-Japanese feeling) involved American citizens."

"Like the Iranian students, suddenly we realized what was happening. It happened so fast. Suddenly we were at war," he said.

Fukuyama and his brother, mother and father, who owned a hardware store in San Pedro, Calif., were among 110,000 Japanese living in the United States who

But he said Iranian students should be allowed to stay in the country, and Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi — for whom 50 Americans are being held hostage in Tehran — should be turned over to Iran or to a world court.

"One of the problems of this country is that people can't see in perspective," he said, explaining he meant that Americans cannot seem to grasp the Iranian viewpoint that sees the shah as a criminal.

Today's FOCUS

were forced to auction their homes and possessions for "relocation" at U.S. internment camps. Of them, 60,000 were naturalized or native-born American citizens.

The Fukuyamas were herded into the Amache Relocation Center at Grenada, Colo., in the spring of 1942.

"They didn't call it a concentration camp, but that's what it was. There was no brutality as such, but the humiliation was terrible. It was a terrifying experience," said Fukuyama, now executive vice president of U.S. Aerial Inc., a U.S.-Japanese television and filmmaking company.

Fukuyama said he was accosted several times on the street, then was forced out of the California State Nautical Guard, where he worked as a machinist.

"One day when everyone was in formation at the armory, they called my name out. They said, 'You're a Jap. We don't want you here. You're out of the guard.'"

When he sought work at the city water works, "They just kept me waiting and I was looking at all the drawings of the water works. First thing he said was, 'Are you Chinese?' I said, 'No, I'm Japanese.' So he said, 'What the hell are you doing in this place?' He got very upset that I had been looking at the drawings of the water works."

"Why did the Americans react with such prejudice?"

"I think it's a fear that they have because the nation was a very young nation" and had no strong, solid culture of its own, Fukuyama said, adding that he believes that fear has returned with the Iranian crisis.

Chicago School Board Reports $8.1 Million In Missing Funds

CHICAGO (AP) — Some $8.1 million in voluntary deductions from employees' wages is missing, including teachers' pension fund money, union dues money, and employees credit union money — in possible violation of federal law, the new president of the Chicago Board of Education said Wednesday.

In addition to the $8.1 million in missing funds, Catherine Rohter said at a news conference that the financially beleaguered board has unpaid bills totaling $38.1 million as of Nov. 30.

The Chicago Sun-Times reported in its Thursday's editions that a tentative plan to bail the system out of its financial crisis had been drafted in a cooperative arrangement between the city, the state and major banks.

But the newspaper reported the plan still had not been approved by Gov. James R. Thompson and that parts of it would have to be approved by the Legislature next spring.

Under the plan, the state would carry the system over its immediate financial shortage by buying as much as $200 million in short-term school board notes which would be guaranteed by the city. Later, the plan would involve a tax increase and approval to issue more long-term bonds to raise working cash for the schools.

Mrs. Rohter, who is also vice president of the Chicago Teachers Pension and Retirement Fund, said diversion of the pension money represents a violation of federal law, contractual agreement and it is a violation of trust.

"The voluntary deductions belonged to our employees; it is not our money. It is different from the money owed the vendors, and the board members are extremely concerned," she said.

The figures used by Mrs. Rohter were prepared by Arthur Andersen & Co., the accounting firm hired by the board to examine the school system's financial records.

Included in the $36.1 million unpaid bills is $15.9 million in federal withholding tax due by the end of February 1980 and state withholding taxes of $1.9 million due by Dec. 15, Mrs. Rohter said.

She said the $8.1 million in voluntary deductions includes $2.4 million from the teachers' pensions; $2.9 million in tax-sheltered annuities; $1.5 million from the employees credit union; $600,000 from the municipal pension fund; $400,000 in savings bonds; and $300,000 in union dues.

In addition, she said, the board owes $4.7 million in premiums due on the hospitalization plan, $1.4 million to utilities and $12.2 million owed to other vendors.

The news came on the same day that Mayor Jane Byrne accused business and public school leaders of covering up an immense financial school crisis for 10 years.

The news came as the school district tried Wednesday to grapple with the prospect of a payless payday for its nearly 50,000 employees.

Wheelchair-Grabbing Cabbie Rebuked

DETROIT (AP) — A cab driver who seized a 61-year-old woman's wheelchair because she didn't have the full $3 fare for a trip to her doctor's office has been taken off the road, a cab company official said Thursday.

Isabell Woodson said a Checker Cab Co. driver took her to her doctor's office Tuesday and became angry when she told him she had only $2. "I said I don't have no $3 but I have $2 and I'll give you the rest if you'll take me to the bank," said Mrs. Woodson.

She said the driver, David Walter, wheeled her into the office, forced her out of the chair, then folded it up and carried it away. According to the doctor who witnessed the incident, Walter said: "You can snatch their shoes if they don't pay the fare."

Detroit police said cab drivers may not take property as collateral for unpaid fares, but after a meeting Thursday with the driver and the cab's owner police decided not to press charges against Walter.

Dr. Ralph Sachs said Mrs. Woodson uses the wheelchair because she suffered a stroke. Without it, she slipped while trying to get up from an office chair and was taken to a hospital for examination and released.

The wheelchair has since been returned to the woman, and Tom Poucher, Checker general manager, said the cab company would not try to collect the fare.

Since his company is an association of 300 independent owners and cannot fire individual drivers, Poucher said, "Checker can't do much about it." But he said the owner of Walter's cab, whom he would not identify, has taken Walter off the road.

In Walter's defense, Poucher said the driver had told him that Mrs. Woodson claimed to have the full fare at the start of the trip and that she told him she was short only after he had wheeled her to the sixth-floor doctor's office. Nevertheless, he called Walter's action "inexcusable."

He pointed out that Checker cooperates with the city of Detroit in a program that provides 9,000 free rides a month for the elderly and handicapped and said he would try to involve Mrs. Woodson in the program.

Poucher also said the public "takes advantage of cab drivers far too often. In this case, it was probably a calloused driver who had been picked on one too many times."

White Wants Investigation Made Public

AUSTIN (AP) — A report of an investigation into alleged misuse of Fort Worth Independent School District property and employees must be made public, Attorney General Mark White held Thursday.

The local school board had exonerated several administrative employees on the basis of the report, made by school district attorneys after interviewing 79 witnesses.

But it refused to make the report public.

The Fort Worth Star-Telegram, which sparked the original investigation with a series of stories, requested the report along with tapes and transcripts of interviews, all affidavits, all sworn statements, invoices and cancelled checks.

The district responded that disclosing the requested materials would invade several persons' privacy rights as well as the school board's privileged relationship with its lawyers.

"There is no authority to support the contention that factual information concerning alleged misuse of school district materials an services is protected by a constitutional right of privacy," White said.

He also dismissed the attorney-client argument, saying the district lawyers merely had made a factual investigation and had not offered any legal advice with it.

While holding the report and some cancelled checks must be disclosed to the public, White said tapes, transcripts, affidavits and sworn statements of witnesses — other than the subjects of the investigation — may be closed.

Sale Of Company To Be Completed

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The sale of Irel Corp.'s Bermuda-based reinsurance company to a new holding company formed by three corporation executives is expected to be completed by year's end, an Irel official said Thursday.

Catherine Compton, director of corporate communications, confirmed the sale of Belvedere Insurance Co. Ltd. to Belvedere Holdings Ltd. of Bermuda.

The purchase price is expected to be nearly $5.67 million, or about book value.

Belvedere, which had premiums in excess of $10 million this year, is primarily a property and casualty insurance company formed in 1978 as part of Irel's diversification from computer and equipment leasing.

Irel reported a $176 million third-quarter loss last week and has started to sell its computer and computer services units, and other businesses not associated with container and railcar leasing.

A reinsurance company insures insurance companies by spreading their risk. Belvedere's policies are primarily with commercial accounts.

Police Academy To Honor Graduates

Two women and nine men will be graduated from the police academy in a 2 p.m. ceremony today at the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center.

A police spokesman said the 11 rookies, who just completed 14 weeks of extensive training in law enforcement, probably will begin patrol duties about Dec. 15.

The graduates are on a year-long probationary status, which began the first day of their studies at the police academy, the spokesman said. They will patrol with a senior officer for three to four months before they are allowed to work a shift alone.

With today's graduation, the number of police officers employed by the city will increase from 234 to 245, one person short of the number allotted for manpower in the police department's budget.

The public is invited to attend the graduation ceremonies to be conducted in Rooms 111 and 112 of the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center.

SER Directors To Host Open House Today

The board of directors of SER-Jobs for Progress will host an open house from 3-5 p.m. today in its new offices at Suite 608, Metro Tower.

State Sen. E.L. Short, State Rep. Froy Salinas and Lorenzo Sedeno of U.S. Rep. Kent Hance's office will be special guests. Other guests will include members of the board of directors of the South Plains Association of Governments and members of the Private Industry Councils of Lubbock and Albuquerque, N.M.

The open house is arranged to recognize the many businesses and agencies that work with SER to provide employment and training services in Lubbock.

Gene Priest, director of SER, and staff members will present information on two new SER training programs at the open house.

SER was established by the League of United Latin American Citizens and the American G.I. Forum in 1965 to provide employment and training for the disadvantaged and for persons who do not have the English language skills necessary to obtain gainful and meaningful employment.

Former Workers Criticize Plant

GLEN ROSE (AP) — Three inspectors at the Comanche Peak nuclear power plant under construction near here have left their jobs in the past 15 months after alleging poor quality control procedures, the Dallas Times Herald reported Thursday.

Two quit and a third was transferred. However, the newspaper said most of the complaints involved procedures and documentation as opposed to the quality of the final product. The inspectors worked for Hartford Steam Boiler Inspection and Insurance Co., hired to oversee the work of the builder, Brown & Root.

The inspectors were not identified. One of them was quoted by the Times Herald as saying: "Anybody that has any confidence in the main cooling water loop pipes would be out of their mind because of the welding problems."

But Tom Gamon, quality assurance manager for Brown & Root, said, "They probably left because they disagreed with somebody who was deemed to know more than they did."

"We can't increase costs just because someone prefers one way of doing it to another. We bring in a higher authority."

The inspectors said they found what they considered mistakes with welds in the pipes and with documentation required by the quality assurance code.

Jim Westmoreland, Hartford's assistant regional manager in Houston, said the inspectors became disgruntled because they were forced to take orders.

Author's Hometown

To Get Yellow Road

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The yellow brick road led L. Frank Baum out of his hometown of Chittenango to an estate in California. Now New York is helping the town install a $25,000 yellow-brick path as a memorial to the author of the "Wizard of Oz."

The state has included a project to inlay a winding path of yellow brick in the sidewalks of Chittenango's main business district — all 500 feet of it — as part of a resurfacing project on the state road which serves as the small central New York village's main street.

There will be trees and benches, and it will be very nice when it's finished," Phil Barnes of the state Department of Transportation's regional office said Thursday.

According to Barnes, a group of local merchants led by Mayor Darwin Houseman, who owns the Chittenango Hotel, has raised the extra $25,000 to reimburse the state for the yellow brick.

The Department of Transportation opened a low bid of $1.28 million for the whole resurfacing project on Thursday.

Erected in 27 B.C., rebuilt in the second century and converted into a Christian temple in 609, the Pantheon at Rome has served as a place of worship for 20 centuries.

Chinese Government Abolishes Use Of Dissident Showcase

PEKING (AP) — The municipal administration, apparently embarrassed by anti-government sentiments, ruled Thursday that citizens no longer can post their grievances on the "Democracy Wall" in the heart of the city and must use a less conspicuous one instead.

The government said it acted because "certain people with ulterior motives had wrapped themselves in the banner of 'democracy' to damage socialist democracy."

But Western observers said some of the posters put up at the downtown wall embarrassed the government, a feeling heightened by proximity of foreign diplomats and reporters who watched a unique kind of free speech movement there during the last year.

Notice forbidding further posters at the wall on Changan Avenue, which leads to the main square and government offices, was posted on the brick and plaster structure immediately after the decision. Two policemen stood by as the notice was posted.

When activists learned the new wall would be in Moon Altar Park, about one mile to the west, they said they were relieved posters were not being banned entirely.

"This is good because we thought they would ban it. They only moved it which indicates it isn't all bad," said Xu Wenli, an editor of the April Fifth Forum, a magazine of political commentary.

"If it's so bad why do thousands and thousands of people come to read it everyday?" he asked.

"Even if they demolished the wall, they could not extinguish the democracy movement," said Mang Ke, 29-year-old editor of the literary journal "Today."

Before putting up posters in Moon Altar Park, writers must register their names, pseudonyms, addresses and work units with officials in the park. Posters would not be examined at the registration center, the notice said.

The Peking Revolutionary Committee, or city council, said, "writers of big-character posters will be held responsible for the political and legal implications of the content."

"It is forbidden to reveal state secrets, to fabricate information and make false charges, to libel and conduct other activities that violate the law," it said.

"These stipulations have been set to protect the people's democratic rights," said the notice, "to safeguard social order, facilitate the handling of proposals and reasonable demands set forth in some big-character posters and prevent the use of posters under pseudonyms for the conducting of law-breaking activities."

The Chinese constitution guarantees its citizens the right to put up wall posters, but the decision to forbid posters at Democracy Wall followed a torrent of official criticism of the wall last week.

Church Heads Jailed For Conspiracy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Five leaders of the Church of Scientology were sentenced to jail Thursday for directing a conspiracy to steal government documents about the church.

Four of the church members were ordered to jail immediately by U.S. District Judge Charles R. Richey. They were sentenced to prison terms of four years and were fined $10,000 each.

Mary Sue Hubbard, the fifth leader and the wife of church founder L. Ron Hubbard, was sentenced to five years in jail and was fined $10,000. However, her sentence could be reduced in three months after prison officials interview her and make a recommendation on her length of sentence.

Mrs. Hubbard also was granted 10 days of freedom. During that time, she can petition the U.S. Court of Appeals to grant her bail pending an appeal of her conviction.

Four other persons are to be sentenced Friday.

Richey turned down pleas from the first five to do community service work and thus avoid or reduce their jail terms.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Raymond Banoun reacted with apparent anger to the pleas, noting that bugging equipment, lock-picking equipment and a blackjack were found in the office of one defendant, Gregory Willardson.

"What is the example that Mr. Willardson can set for young people he wants to help?" Banoun asked.

In addition to Willardson and Mrs. Hubbard, Richey sentenced Henning Heldt, Duke Snider and Richard Weigand.

On Friday, Richey will sentence Mitchell Hermann, Cindy

Raymond, Gerald Bennett Wolfe and Sharon Thomas.

He turned down the requests to substitute community service for jail terms Thursday, saying jail was necessary so others would be deterred from committing similar crimes.

"One must understand the courts have a responsibility to consider the interest of society and the system of justice in the United States of America," Richey said.

Eight of the nine defendants were convicted by Richey Oct. 26 of either conspiracy to obstruct justice or conspiracy to illegally obtain government documents. The crimes carry a maximum five-year jail term and a $10,000 fine.

Ms. Thomas, the ninth defendant, was convicted of a misdemeanor theft count, which carries a maximum one year in jail and a $1,000 fine.

The conspiracy included stealing documents from the Internal Revenue Service, the Justice Department and the U.S. attorney's office. As part of the plot, the Scientologists also bugged an IRS meeting about the church's tax-exempt status, planted spies in the Justice Department and the IRS, and kidnapped a church member who decided to help prosecutors.

Banoun, in pushing for maximum sentences for all nine defendants, said the conspiracies that resulted in the convictions told only part of the story.

He said documents seized from the church showed Scientologists also acted to discredit individuals and organizations who fought the church.

TV Stations Employing More Minority Workers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The three major television networks are employing more women and minority workers this year, but the percentage is less at headquarters staffs than it is at their individual TV stations, a new report shows.

The Federal Communications Commission said Thursday that 16.5 percent, or 2,316, of the employees working at the headquarters of the three networks this year were classified minority, compared to 15.9 percent or 2,183 of those employed in 1978.

In comparison, 23.1 percent or 1,016 of the workers employed by the three networks this year at 15 individual TV stations were classified as minority, compared to 22 percent or 953 of those working at the stations last year.

The report, based on annual employment figures required of the three commercial television networks by the FCC, also shows improvements in the percentages of female workers at both the network headquarters and individual stations.

Slight improvements also are shown in the percentages of minorities and women listed in the "top four" employment categories of managerial, professional, sales and technical at both the headquarters and TV stations.

"I am encouraged by these results and recognize the steady efforts of each network in working toward them," FCC Chairman Charles D. Ferris said Thursday.

CBS To Acquire Newspaper Magazine

Family Weekly magazine has been purchased by CBS Inc., it was announced Thursday by officials of both the network and the magazine.

CBS Inc., and Family Weekly Inc., publisher of the national newspaper magazine, signed a definitive agreement whereby CBS will acquire the magazine that is included in 352 subscriber newspapers, including The Avalanche-Journal. The announcement was made by John R. Purcell, executive vice president of CBS Inc., and Len H. Small, chairman of the board of Family Weekly, Inc.

Founded in 1953, Family Weekly's gross advertising revenues, as reported by the publisher's information bureau, were $70 million in 1978. For each of the past 14 years, Family Weekly has grown in circulation, number of subscribing newspapers, and advertising revenues. Today it is subscribed to by newspapers with a combined circulation of more than 12.2 million, making it the fourth largest paid circulation publication in America.

In making the announcement, Purcell noted, "CBS is an ideal home for Family Weekly and we are delighted to welcome the publication and its management, led by Morton Frank, president publisher and chief executive officer.

The other partner-owners of Family Weekly, Inc. are: Donrey Media, headquartered in Fort Smith, Ark., owned by Donald W. Reynolds, represented on the FWI board by executive vice president Fred W. Smith; Hoiles Freedom newspaper, owned by the Hoiles family and headquartered in Santa Ana, Calif., represented on the FWI board by R. David Threshie; and Howard publications, headquartered in Oceanside, Calif., owned by Robert S. Howard, an FWI board member.

The CBS consumer publishing division, known as CBS publications in the trade, is currently comprised of four major operating components. Family Weekly will become the fifth major operating unit, to be called the newspaper magazine group. The four existing groups are: women's magazine group, which consists of Woman's Day; Men's magazine group, which encompasses Field & Stream and Mechanix Illustrated; special interest magazine group, which is comprised of Road & Track, Cycle World, PVA, World Tennis, Sea and the recently acquired Audio; and the Fawcett books group, which publishes paperbacks under the imprints of Crest, Gold Medal, Popular Library, and the newly launched Coventry Romances and Columbine.

Annual 'Carol Of Lights' Ceremony Set Tonight

Almost 10 miles of Christmas lights in hues of red, yellow and white will be illuminated tonight at the annual Carol of Lights at Texas Tech University.

Work crews began stringing the 47,000 feet of lights in late October. Buildings in the Science Quadrangle which will be illuminated tonight by the lights are Mass Communications, Math, Science, Chemistry, Holden Hall, Administration and Home Economics.

The idea was conceived in the late 1950s by former Tech regent Harold Hinn, who provided the first 5,000 lights.

Campus police will block traffic at the University and Broadway entrance at 6:15 p.m., throughout the program and for about 30 minutes afterwards.

University officials suggest spectators take the 19th Street and Boston entrance or the 15th Street and University Avenue entrance to the campus. Parking will be available in the administration, band or dormitory lots.

The program will begin at 6:30 p.m. with Judson D. Maynard, professor of music, playing the carillon. Saddle Tramps will lead a torch-light procession from the Broadway and University entrance to Memorial Circle. The Tech Trombone Ensemble will accompany the procession with holiday musical selections including "Jingle Bells," "We Three Kings," and "God Rest Ye Merry Gentlemen."

Karla Neeley, president of the Residence Halls Association, will give the welcoming address.

Spectators will be asked to join in the singing of "The First Noel," and "Deck the Halls," followed by Tech Choir's performance of "Carol of the Bells" and "Angels We Have Heard."

Lighted candles in paper sacks, called luminarios, will line the walkways from the campus entry at Broadway and University to Memorial Circle. The luminarios were provided by Alpha Phi Omega, men's service organization.

Then, late in the program, the thousands of Christmas lights will be turned on, followed by more group singing and the Tech Choir's rendition of "We Wish You A Merry Christmas."

This year's theme is "An Eternity of Light."

Suspects Arrested In Attempted Bank Extortion

FORT WORTH (AP) — FBI agents Thursday arrested three men and sought a fourth in the attempted extortion of a bank officer whose wife was being held hostage.

B.G. Jenkins, president of Central Bank & Trust, told police two armed men, one wearing a ski mask, forced their way into his home Wednesday morning. They shot out a window and broke a door, Jenkins told police, and were armed with a shotgun and a pistol.

The men kept Mrs. Jenkins hostage while ordering Jenkins to the bank, where he was to withdraw $100,000, Jenkins said.

After Jenkins dropped the money at a pre-arranged site, federal agents exchanged the bundle of cash for a marked package of bills but the men never picked it up, according to police.

FBI agent U.H. Specht in Dallas said the three men arrested were taken before a federal magistrate and charged with violation of the Hobbs Act, which "speaks to interference with commerce by threat of violence."

He identified the men as Ricky Joe Bostice, John S. Thompson and Leland Earl Williams, all from Fort Worth.

Bond was set at $100,000 for Bostice, $75,000 for Thompson and $40,000 for Williams, and all three are still in custody, Specht said.

A federal warrant has been issued for a fourth person who is still at large, Specht said.

DOLE STAFFERS RESIGN
CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — Eight of the 10 staffers of Sen. Robert Dole's campaign in the New Hampshire presidential primary have resigned. State Sen. Ray Conley said Thursday that the Kansas Republican has "a long way to go" in his New Hampshire campaign.

Jury Decides Alien Guilty Of Attempting Rape

By RICHIE REECER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A 23-year-old Mexican alien was sentenced Thursday to 15 years imprisonment for entering the home of a Lubbock woman and attempting to rape her.

Antonio Ortega, 23, a citizen of Mexico, was found guilty and sentenced by a four-woman, eight-man jury in Judge Robert C. Wright's 137th District Court. Ortega was charged with burglary of a habitation with intent to commit rape in connection with an incident that occurred Aug. 12 at the woman's East Lubbock home.

The 41-year-old woman testified Wednesday a short, Mexican-American man attempted to rape her in a vacant lot near her house after she had fled her residence.

She told jurors the man entered her home that night and that she managed to free herself from the man's grasp and run outside into a vacant lot, which was covered with tall grass and weeds. She said the man pursued and caught her in the lot.

She testified the man then attempted to rape her. About 10 or 15 minutes later, she said, she saw the lights of an approaching car and told the man her husband was arriving home.

The woman said she and the man stood up and he grasped her shoulders, but she "broke and ran" to a neighbor's house.

Police arrived and discovered Ortega lying on his back in the weed-covered lot, according to testimony. Police officers Ronny Logan and Trey Moody testified Ortega fought with them, but was subdued and arrested.

The woman that night identified Ortega as the man who entered her home and attempted to rape her. However, she said in testimony Wednesday her assailant was not present in the courtroom. Ortega was present.

PAIR APPOINTED

AUSTIN (AP) — Attorney General Mark White has appointed Tom Aubry as head of his Houston regional office and Peggy Tyrell Price as chief of its consumer protection division. Aubrey, 30, and Mrs. Price, 26, received their law degrees in 1977 from the South Texas College of Law in Houston.

AT LAST, OUR RABBITS ARE MULTIPLYING LIKE RABBITS.

It seems that all the world loves our Rabbits—so much so, that we at Montgomery Motors weren't able to keep up with demand—hill now!

We've boosted our Rabbit production, and new 1980 Rabbits are arriving daily.

Test drive a 1980 Rabbit, and you will be owning one a lot sooner than you think.

CREAM PUFFS. STILL FRESH.

Howard Payne Nips LCC

By DON HENRY
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
Throughout the game, Howard Payne coach Chester Story kept exhorting his troops that, "You're the best, you're the ones."
But, it took a 17-foot bullseye with just one second left in overtime to make it official.
The visiting Howard Payne Yellow Jackets had been beaten but once this year — by nationally ranked Midwestern — but they were on the verge of the second one until Davis ripped his shot and lifted the Jackets to an 82-81 field house burner over Lubbock Christian College.

The loss dropped the Chaparrals to 4-per from the 45-degree angle, and it swished through with a second left on the clock.

But, by that time, the Jackets were celebrating and LCC couldn't call time.

It was a game of turnabout, with both teams holding leads and chances to win, both in regulation and in the overtime.

HPU had a 43-39 halftime advantage and seemed to have the game in hand when it went up 63-51 with 11:12 remaining. Also, the Chaparrals, down to eight players at best, had Bruce Carver on the bench with five fouls and Hays saving Marshall Smith, saddled with four infractions.

But, the Chaps, playing deliberately against the HPU zone, began to pepper away. Jim Steensma and Wharton — with one bucket by Keith Gardner — led the comeback, and with 8:51 remaining, the Chaps trailed only 65-61.

They finally tied at 69 on a shot from 8 for the season and they will return to the court here Sunday afternoon against Panhandle (Okla.) State.

LCC coach Larry Hays was thinking victory after a Jacket mistake had given the Chaparrals new life. Trailing 80-79, HPU's Allen Bonds dropped an inbounds pass across the line and LCC gained control with 15 seconds left.

The Chaparrals moved it around before getting in to Kevin Wharton, and the 6-6 center whirled to hit a 10-foot jumper with nine seconds remaining.

HPU called time with eight seconds and set up its play.

The Jackets tossed it, passed a couple of times and hit Davis on the left side. He jumped and launched the jum-

Texas Gridders Admit Cheating

AUSTIN (UPI) — Four University of Texas football players have signed affidavits admitting they plagiarized science lab reports, university officials announced Thursday.

Freshmen Fred Acorn, Rick Benson, T.J. Dilworth and Carl Robinson also accepted an "F" in the course. The students met with their instructor, Corinne Manogue, the course supervisor, Dr. Robert Little, and with athletics counselor Joe Eivens on Wednesday to discuss the instructors' accusations against the students.

A fifth freshman student, Herkie Walls, was not located before the meeting but was expected to sign an affidavit confirming his part in the incident.

Eivens said the failing grade would not affect the players' eligibility, either for the Sun Bowl game against Washington on Dec. 22 or for next season.

"They're all doing OK in other things," Eivens said. "Each has to pass six hours his first semester at UT."
The student newspaper, The Texan, earlier Thursday reported freshman quarterback Rick McIvor, who started the last two regular season games for the Longhorns, also had signed an affidavit admitting to plagiarizing work. But Eivens said McIvor, although enrolled in the same course as the five other athletes, was not involved and had not been accused of cheating by Miss Manogue.

"He had nothing to do with it. Rick is completely innocent," Eivens said.

New Deal, Seagraves Collide Tonight

By RUSS PARSONS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

There have been a lot of big games this season, each week it seems like another crops up. But, it can be said without a doubt, tonight's game pitting Seagraves and New Deal is the biggest area football game of the year.

At stake? A state Class A playoff semifinal berth. The favorite? Nobody.

The teams are so evenly matched that tonight's 7:30 game at Lowrey Field could end in a deadlock. Or, it could be a runaway. It's one of those deals.

Both teams have defenses that give up ground grudgingly and offenses that gobble up yardage like some mad movie shark. But, as noticeable as the similarities are the differences between the two teams.

The most obvious difference is size. New Deal brings in a pack of behemoths that would do most college squads proud. The Lions' offensive line weighs an average of 205 pounds per man. The backfield averages 185. That is amazing for a Class A school.

The defensive line is even bigger. Led by the giant tandem of noseguard Jim McIntire (6-1, 230) and linebacker Ron Mayo (6-2, 215), the New Deal front seven weigh in at 215.

To put that in perspective, match them up with Seagraves, which has been considered a big team by everybody it's played so far.

The Eagles' average only 185 across the offensive and defensive lines and 155 in both backfields.

But it's doubtful anybody who played Seagraves this year noticed any lack of size. The Eagles averaged almost 400 yards a game total offense and allowed but 120 yards on defense.

Only four teams scored on Seagraves all year and only two scored more than two touchdowns. But despite that, really nobody came close to the Eagles all year. Their narrowest margin of victory was 16 points (in a 35-19 win over Stanton).

In the playoffs, Seagraves has taken a pair of 21-0 wins over McCamey (in the bi-district contest) and Haskell (in the regional game last week).

New Deal, of course, has stats to match those of Seagraves. The Lion defense allowed only 110 yards a game while the offense racked up an average of 305.

Seagraves' offense is centered around three running backs — 5-11, 155-pound halfback Ronnie Griffin, 5-9, 155-pound halfback Johnny Castro and 5-10, 175-pound fullback Davis Morgan.

To look at these guys' statistics, you'd think they spent the year running against somebody's B squad. Griffin gained 1,230 yards during the regular season for a 9.5-yard average per carry. Morgan gained 964 with an 8.3 average and Castro, the third back, got 768 for a 6.9 yard average.

New Deal, on the other hand, lacked a superstar running back. Tony Howell, a 5-10, 180-pound halfback, gained 780 yards to lead all the Lion ball carriers and 5-10, 160-pound Martin Adams had 542 to back him up.

But still, New Deal gained 2,761 yards on the ground during the regular season.

In the playoffs, Morgan and Griffin have been the big guns for the Eagles.

E-Shane Langehenning, 6-2, 165; Ted Ward, 5-10, 150; T-Mike McCormick, 6-2, 240; Manuel Bueno, 5-11, 200; NG-Richard Wilson, 5-10, 170; LB-Davis Morgan, 5-10, 175; Dean Tupin, 5-11, 190; DB-Joseph Williams, 5-10, 170; Scotty Middleton, 6-3, 165; Ronnie Griffin, 5-11, 155; Dennis Hart, 5-9, 145.

Morgan gained 200 against McCamey and Griffin had 94. Against Haskell the full-back had 99 while Griffin gained 84.

Nobody played enough to pile up big stats in New Deal's 35-8 win over Kress. Adams gained 87 yards on 10 carries, substitute Billy Thiel had 74 on five and Howell gained 71 on nine.

But against Stratford last week, in a 47-16 win, everybody got yards. Adams wound up with 154, quarterback Ricky Smith had 116 and Howell had 102.

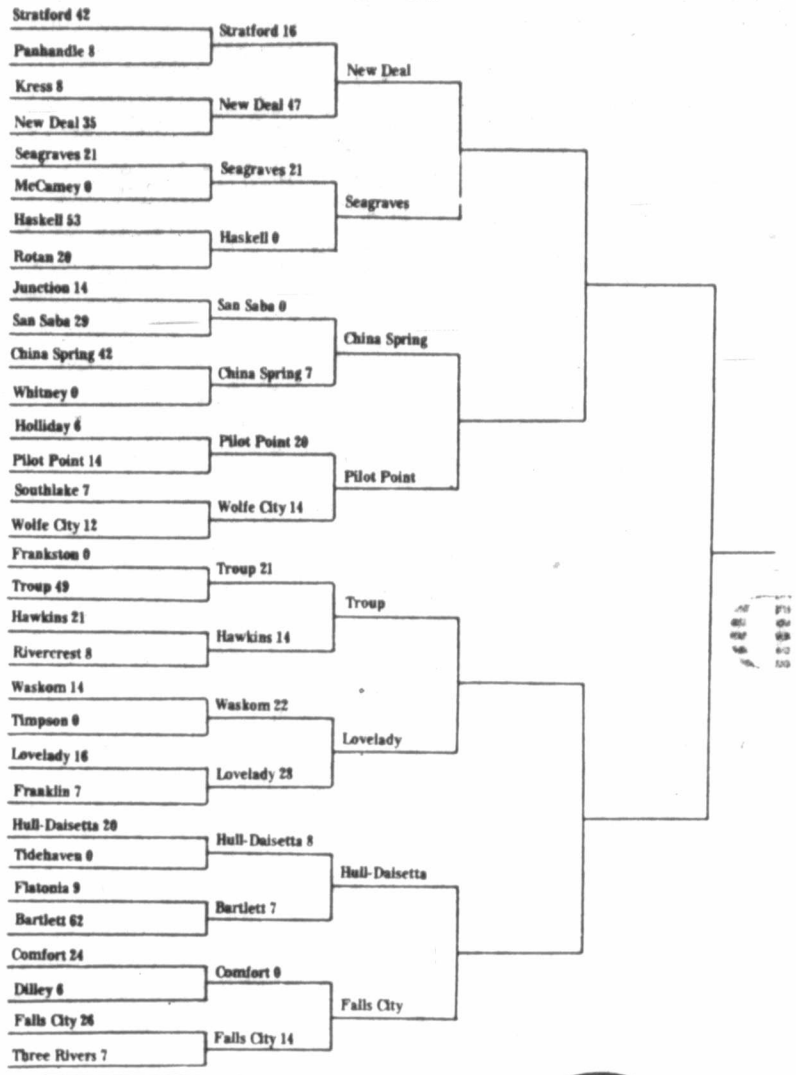

stake? A state Class A playoff semifinal berth. The favorite? Nobody.

The teams are so evenly matched that tonight's 7:30 game at Lowrey Field could end in a deadlock. Or, it could be a runaway. It's one of those deals.

Both teams have defenses that give up ground grudgingly and offenses that gobble up yardage like some mad movie shark. But, as noticeable as the similarities are the differences between the two teams.

The most obvious difference is size. New Deal brings in a pack of behemoths that would do most college squads proud. The Lions' offensive line weighs an average of 205 pounds per man. The backfield averages 185. That is amazing

Class A Playoff Bracket

Mats' Defense Sweet As Rose

By CHUCK McDONALD
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Estacado defensive tackle James Rose says he rather face a fast team than a big team. But really, he's quick to add, it doesn't much matter either way.

"It doesn't matter if they have speed or size or whatever," says Rose, "we're gonna shut 'em down."

Talk like that can sometimes get you into trouble but when you're the heart of the Matador defense it probably won't. Because — more often than not — the Mats have shut down the opposition.

In 12 games this year, the Mat defense has recorded five shutouts and given up only 57 total points — an average of 4.5 a game. Since the playoffs have begun the Mat defenders have been at their best, allowing only seven points in two contests.

At the heart of that defense is Rose — the man that coach Louis Kelley says Estacado looks to for leadership.

But it's a role that the 6-1, 195-pound Rose tries to downplay.

"I guess I talk to the guys," he said. "I tell 'em to keep fighting and that kind of stuff."

And Rose is promising that the Matadors will come out fighting this Saturday when they face McKinney in Abilene's Shotwell Stadium in the Class AAA semifinals.

"We have to become champions for us to go to state," he explained. "Maybe last year we really weren't prepared to play (in the semifinal game)."

But this time, says Rose, "we're going all the way."

And while he's happy on defense, Rose could live with a few more passes coming his way on offense. The senior is also the Mats starting tight end. And while that role is primarily a blocking one for the Estacado sweep — Rose proved that he could catch the ball this year.

He came up with some circus catches against Levelland to key a Matador win and caught 11 passes this year for over 200 yards and two touchdowns.

"I wish they'd throw it more to me," he said. "But in these last two games I just haven't been getting any passes. Most of my work has been on defense."

Rose can also throw the ball and heaved a crucial touchdown pass against Plainview in the season opener. And he's ready to throw the bomb again, if the coaches see fit.

"I can throw it far," he said, "but I'm also trying to complete it."

Still, Rose's main forte is defense. In the Mats 7-0 victory over Ector in the bi-district contest he was a one man wrecking crew blocking passes, field goals, sacking quarterbacks, recovering fumbles, throwing ballcarriers for losses and keying two goal-line stands.

The Lake View coaches were at that game in Odessa and not surprisingly Rose was triple-teamed by the Lake View Chiefs the next week. So while he was held partially in check, his teammates picked up the slack. Estacado's linebacking crew of Stacy Burrell, Steve McGraw and Kenneth Davis were particularly noticeable against the Chiefs.

Rose has had plenty of double-teams thrown at him this year, but he did not like that triple-teaming stuff.

"I've got to play better this week," Rose said. "They were really ganging up on me last week — I've just got to try a little harder."

The biggest responsibility for Rose this weekend will be to stop the trailing back on the option he says. That means that Rose will have his eyes glued to speedy McKinney tailback Tommy Hargraves who gained over 1,200 yards this year.

But it's a battle that Rose expects to win — and eventually the state championship. But after that, he says it'll be time to relax. Unlike most of the Matador football players — Rose is tired of running track.

"No more track," he said. "Me and track just don't get much in common."

Unfortunately for the opposition, Rose doesn't harbor those same kind of thoughts about football.

Mustangs Welcome Tourney

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Barry Arwine is a self-professed tournament freak. The more games a team can pack in during a two-day period, the better Arwine likes it.

"It's just a lot of fun," commented the Coronado cage coach. "Especially if you happen to get in the championship game, then it's even more fun."

With a smile from ear-to-ear and back again, Arwine leads the Mustangs into their first tournament of the year — the two-day Amarillo event which tips off to-day. El Paso Austin will offer the first challenge for CHS, starting at 3:30 p.m.

Austin and Coronado have one mutual opponent, Midland Lee. Coronado fell to the Bulldogs by a 72-71 count last week. Meanwhile Austin handed the Midlanders a 10-point setback.

"They're a quality team," said Arwine, referring of course to Austin. "And I like to think we are, too."

Coronado is coming off a poor showing against Dunbar last Tuesday night. Despite the 28-point scoring surge by Scott Williams, the Mustangs fell 77-64.

"We have to be a more intent (in the tournament)," said Arwine. "I didn't think we were intent enough against Dunbar. We just didn't get after it."

Because of the loss, Arwine says the Mustangs are currently going through a personality conflict. "We're mentally down," said Arwine. "But physically we're in great shape. We just need to get things together."

On the subject of his love for tournaments, Arwine commented: "It gives up a great chance to play three games in a hurry. That's important to a basketball team. It also forces you to get a lot of playing minutes in and that gives you a chance to correct problems."

Lubbock High, currently the hottest team in town with a 5-2 record, travels to Lamesa tonight for a single game with the Tors, starting at 7:30 p.m. LHS is fresh off a 52-49 win over Caprock.

Dunbar is also on the road for a 7:30 p.m. contest with Midland High.

Meanwhile, Estacado and Monterey will both continue tournament action at the Canyon Reef event in Snyder. The Plainsmen, who defeated Sweetwater 63-61 in a double-overtime affair Thursday, will meet Permian at 3 p.m. The Matadors, losers to San Angelo Central, face a high-noon shootout with Pecos in a consolation affair.

Sisemore Feels Excitement

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Not even the thousand miles of telephone wire stretched between six states — give or take West Virginia — could disguise the excitement in Jerry Sisemore's voice. He sounded like a kid again, instead of a seven-year National Football League veteran.

The playoffs, Sisemore contends, tend to do that even to the crustiest of old-timers.

"I've aged a little bit but that doesn't take away from the excitement," commented Sisemore. "I'm excited and it's a good feeling... a very good feeling. It's been a long time coming."

Not since Sisemore, the former Plainview schoolboy standout and a two-time All-America lineman at the University of Texas, was destroying defensive lines as a Longhorn he has played on a championship team. And, he admits, it's been almost seven years since he last suited up for a game — this late in the season — that meant anything more than the season was just one game closer from ending.

But the 1973 Cotton Bowl game in which Texas defeated Alabama 17-13 (Sisemore's last "important" game) is about to be overshadowed by Saturday's meeting with the Dallas Cowboys. It's a game in which Philly, now 10-4 and a 31-21 winner over the Pokes earlier in the season, could wrap up its first division title in almost 20 years.

Sisemore is quick to point out that the Eagles have already clinched a playoff spot, but a win at Veterans Stadium would only make the '79 season that much sweeter. The icing on the cake, in other words, both for him personally and the franchise.

"When I was drafted (number one in 1973) that was a great day. I was excited, very excited, that I was going to get the chance to play. But now this. This is definitely the highlight of my career so far. And I think it's only going to get better," commented Sisemore.

And Sisemore says the success couldn't happen to a better town than win-starved Philly.

"It's great to win here," he continued. "I'd rather be winning in Philadelphia than in Dallas. People in Dallas except to win. But here it's been a long time since the last championship. Now, the whole city, the whole Delaware Valley, is behind us. It's a nice feeling."

Because of the winning ways, Sisemore says even the daily practice sessions aren't nearly as long as when he first broke into the league.

"At practice everyone is smiling and laughing and running around and having a good time," noted Sisemore. "It's certainly a change. We used to go (to practice) and worry about the cold weather. But that doesn't even bother us now."

Sisemore says the success at Philadelphia can be traced back to one, the owner, Leonard H. Tose and two, the coach, Dick Vermeil.

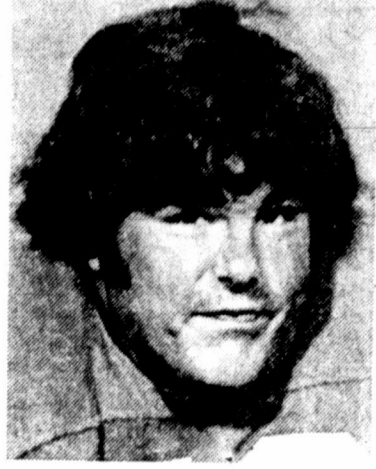

"There's no doubt that we've got the best owner in football," lauded Sisemore. "And what Dick Vermeil has brought to this club is unbelievable. Dick is a winner and that's rubbed off."

"Because of them I always knew we'd eventually be winners. I never had any doubt even when things were going really bad."

During his pro career Sisemore has been more transient than a family of fruit pickers. First he was switched from tackle to guard and back to tackle again. Now, club officials, believe the 6-3, 255-pounder has found a home. And because of that permanent move, he is having one of his finest seasons as an Eagle. But Sisemore would like to reserve judgment on that subject until after the Super Bowl.

"I've had some good games and some bad ones," he said. "I don't have any gripes. But I'll sit down and evaluate things after the season is over. Right now, I'm just thinking about Dallas. We've got to beat them this time, nothing else matters."

Even phone bills.

Plainsmen Win, Mats Stumble In Snyder

SNYDER (Special) — Trav Clardy scorched the net for 25 points and Greg Thomson added 16 Thursday afternoon to lead the Monterey Plainsmen to a 63-61 double overtime victory over Sweetwater in the opening round of the Canyon Reef Tournament.

The win pushed Monterey's season record to 6-2. The Plainsmen will meet Permian at 3 p.m. today in the tournament's second round.

Regulation play ended with the score knotted at 54-54. Both schools scored four points in the first overtime, but the Plainsmen outscored Sweetwater 5-3 in the second three-minute overtime to chalk up the win.

Kenny Walker paced Sweetwater with 18 points.

The Estacado Matadors found the going a little rougher in the first round of the Canyon Reef competition. Charles Bishop popped for 24 points to lead San Angelo Central to a 73-67 decision over the Matadors.

Estacado, which is now 4-4 on the season, received a 29-point scoring performance from John Jones. The Matadors will face Pecos at noon today in a consolation bracket contest.

In other tournament games played in Snyder, Mineral Wells used the 18-point shooting of Jesse Kimbrough to down the Levelland Lobos 70-66. Barry O Dell led Levelland with 16 counters. The Lobos are now 0-3.

In other boys' play, Benjamin downed Knox City JV 52-27. Old Glory downed Benjamin JV 46-43 and Patton Springs whipped Weinert 58-40.

Melanie Keith scored 22 points and Lana Smith add 18 points as the Guthrie girls downed Paint Creek 68-30.

Also, Benjamin downed Knox City JV 61-53. Old Glory blitzed Benjamin JV 59-24 and Patton Spring edged Weinert 38-35.

Action resumes today.

Dunbar Facing Rebuilding Year

By RUSS PARSONS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

"You know," one area basketball coach contended not too long ago, "old Joe McWilliams will tell you every year that he's rebuilding. But he may be right this time."

Maybe isn't the word. Heck, Dunbar-Struggs High School didn't even win district last year, the first time that has happened in three seasons.

And he's only got one starter coming back off that team.

But before you break out in tears, it ought to be said that the Panthers have some of the best raw talent in the city, as proven by their 77-64 win over Coronado Monday night. Only problem is, it's just that — raw.

"We've got eight seniors on the team," said McWilliams. "But we're talking about 10 sophomores. And most of those seniors did not play much last year."

"Only two did really, Stanley Whitfield and James Nelson. Leroy Rivers only played some on the varsity last year."

Each year seems like a rebuilding year around here," McWilliams continued. "We have good senior turnover. We try to cut down on the number of seniors we have every year so next year's team won't be affected, but it keeps happening."

That senior turnover might be a problem, but one wouldn't realize it from looking at McWilliams' record. In his five years at the Panther helm, the likable coach has compiled a 97-44 regular season record (688 percent) and a 46-13 district record (780). In that time Dunbar has won the district three times.

It seems like every Dunbar team has one dominating player and this year's is Whitfield, a 6-3 1/2 post.

"It's really hard to say what our strength is," McWilliams said. "I'd like to say depth but I don't know if we've had a true indicator of what we can do yet. We're not a proven ball club."

That last sentence sums up this year for Dunbar in a nutshell.

"This year a lot of our kids have never been in a program before," McWilliams elaborated. "They didn't know what to expect. We have to teach them all those things that make a program — leadership, team play, enthusiasm."

And, probably most important, to give 110 percent at all times. I don't think in the past a lot of these kids have ever been asked to do that, to give all they can and then that little bit more.

"This year's team is very young and inexperienced," he summed up. "Everything that occurs in basketball, we're going to have to help them understand."

"They're just not fundamentally sound. They don't have the experience our other teams have had. But there is a great deal of raw talent in this group."

Of this year's District 1-AAA race, McWilliams says it's wide open, but don't be surprised by anything that happens at the other end of Quirt Ave.

Estacado (which defeated Dunbar in a playoff last year for the district championship) stands a better chance of finishing high in the standings than most people realize," McWilliams said. "They've got some jumpers over there and they've got some shooters."

"Last year I thought the district would go down to a three-team race but everyone played tough basketball."

"This year, I think anyone can beat anyone. Of course, Berger has to be the favorite and I'd like to say Levelland, but Canyon looks awesome now too."

Chaps Meet ECO In Tourney

PORTALES, N.M. (Special) — Lubbock Christian College will take on East Central Oklahoma at 7 p.m. today in the first game of the Eastern New Mexico University Women's Basketball Tournament.

In the second game, the hostess Lady Greyhounds will play New Mexico Highlands.

The Lady Chaparrals are 1-6 for the year, after having won their first game of the season, an overtime verdict over the Wayland Baptist Queen Bees last Monday night.

Starter Sherry Brown was injured in that game, and if she is not able to play tonight, Irene Ramirez could take her place in the starting lineup.

Darla Lynch, Fawn Musick, Sherry Williams and JoAnn Phillips are expected to fill out the lineup. Miss Lynch is the leading scorer, averaging 20.3 points and 10.0 rebounds per game.

Losers of tonight's games will meet at 7 p.m. Saturday, with the championship scrap set for 9:30 p.m. CST.

Delta State Hosts Red Raider Women

The Texas Tech women's basketball team takes its 7-3 record against one of the nation's top squads tonight when the Red Raiders face Delta State. The game, which will be played in Cleveland, Miss., is scheduled to begin at 8:30 p.m. CST.

Delta State is currently ranked 20th by The Associated Press poll and sports a 7-1 record. The University of Texas Longhorns, who defeated Tech 77-47 Wednesday night, are the only women to have defeated Delta State. That score was 81-56.

Expected to start for the Red Raiders tonight are Louise Davis and Nodia Vaughn at the guard spots, Gwen McCray and Kristie Newman at forwards and Pam Stone at center.

"This year's team is very young and inexperienced," he summed up. "Everything that occurs in basketball, we're going to have to help them understand."

7 YEARS OLD

More UNM Cagers Declared Ineligible

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Five more University of New Mexico basketball players, three of them starters, were declared ineligible Thursday by UNM officials.

The action left six players, including freshman football player Keith Magee, on the squad. Magee was added to the team Wednesday.

A spokesman for President William "Bud" Davis said Larry Belin, Larry Hubbard, Andre Logan, Paul Roby and Larry Tarrance each received three credits for courses at Ottawa University in Ottawa, Kan., but had never been enrolled in them.

The spokesman, who asked that he not be identified, said the players said in a signed statement Thursday that they had no knowledge of how the credits got on their transcripts and that the credit hours should be removed.

The players are ineligible without the hours, the spokesman said.

Belin, Logan and Roby were starters. Belin, a 6-8 senior from Detroit, was an All-Western Athletic Conference selection in 1978-79. He was the team's top returning scorer.

Logan, a 6-7 senior forward from New York, was a co-captain this year. Roby is a 6-5 senior from Saginaw, Mich., Tarrance a 6-6 junior from Montgomery, Ala., and Hubbard a 6-9 junior from Columbus, Ga.

University officials said last week that Craig Gilbert, a junior from Santa Barbara, Calif., was ineligible because of junior college transcript problems.

The university began checking the eligibility of the remaining players after the FBI announced it was investigating possible bribery and mail fraud in connection with the Gilbert transcript.

Coach Norm Ellenberger and his top recruiting assistant, Manny Goldstein, were suspended indefinitely last week by Davis after the allegations were made public.

The spokesman for Davis said Thursday the Lobos would forfeit Tuesday's 112-100 win over West Texas State because some of the five players who were suspended Thursday saw action. Belin was the leading Lobo scorer with 29 points.

The forfeit leaves the Lobos, who dropped their season opener to Colorado last Saturday, 0-2 on the year.

Athletic Director John Bridgers said Wednesday, his first day on the job, that the Lobos might have to fold for the season if too many players were declared ineligible.

But the spokesman for Davis said the Lobos would travel to Las Cruces for Saturday's battle against archrival New Mexico State.

The spokesman said the five players signed a statement Thursday saying they were unaware of how the records were transmitted to UNM or who was responsible.

"This action by unknown individuals was taken without the knowledge or consent of the players," the spokesman said.

The course, Current Problems in Coaching Athletics, was offered at Van Nuys, Calif., by Ottawa.

The spokesman said he didn't think the players ever attended any of the classes or even knew they were enrolled.

"As far as I know they (the players) didn't even know the course existed," the spokesman said.

Seven Lobo players were interviewed by the university's admissions office earlier Thursday and were asked to sign waivers so the university could verify their grade transcripts and check attendance records and grade books at other colleges they had attended.

The university's basketball program, its top revenue sport, has been rocked by developments that began last week with the disclosure in an affidavit filed in U.S. District Court that Goldstein had Gilbert's transcript doctored.

Goldstein, in an interview with Sports Illustrated, said, "They have me for changing a transcript or allegedly making one up. Now you tell me how bad a crime I did. I bought a seal. I didn't steal it. I went to a print shop and had it made, and I bought it."

Goldstein has refused to talk to reporters in Albuquerque.

The affidavit filed by the FBI contained comments from a tape-recorded telephone conversation between Goldstein and Ellenberger.

The conversation included statements by Goldstein to Ellenberger that Goldstein had arranged to provide Gilbert with an associate of arts degree from Oxford Junior College in California.

The FBI has said it will present its findings to a federal grand jury that convenes in Albuquerque Dec. 12.

The New Mexico basketball program also has problems with the NCAA.

Davis on Wednesday made public a list of 57 alleged NCAA violations by UNM in connection with the school's basketball program.

The NCAA has charged New Mexico with providing cash gifts and free travel to players. Davis said none of the players involved in the NCAA probe are at the school this year.

Doctor Says He Would Have Halted Bout

NEW YORK (AP) — The medical director of the New York State Athletic Commission said Thursday that he would have "jumped into the ring" and stopped the ill-fated Willie Classen fight if he had been there.

However, Dr. Edwin Campbell testified that he was sick at home when Classen was hammered fatally by Wilford Scypion in a bout in Madison Square Garden's Felt Forum Nov. 23.

Dr. Campbell spoke at a hearing by a state Senate investigation committee.

Classen died five days after the mid-weight bout, which ended in a knock-out early in the 10th round.

Classen was hit with three hard right hands in the ninth round and took an eight count. He was checked in his corner by two physicians, but the referee allowed him to come out for the final round.

"Willie took a severe beating and I would have jumped into the ring in the ninth round and stopped the fight,"

Campbell, 62, who has a 20-year affiliation with the sport, told the committee.

He said that Classen, whom he knew when he was an amateur, passed an electroencephalogram on Nov. 13 and a complete physical on Nov. 20.

Campbell said that he saw an April bout in which Classen was knocked down and was unable to get to his feet before being counted out.

He said that he ordered a medical suspension of Classen pending a brain scan, but that the boxer when to London for an

Oct. 9 bout without having the scan.

Classen lost that fight in the second round. He told Campbell, who did the Nov. 20 physical, that the fight was stopped because of cuts. In fact, the fight was stopped because Classen was knocked down twice in the first round and once in the second round.

Campbell was asked if he thought Classen could have been suffering from the "punch-drunk syndrome," because of the number of blows he had taken to the head in his last several bouts.

Dawkins Called To NBA Office

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Philadelphia 76ers center Darryl Dawkins, who has destroyed two backboards with dunks in the past month, and two team officials have been ordered to report to the office of National Basketball Association Commissioner Larry O'Brien Friday.

An NBA release Thursday said Dawkins, 76ers coach Billy Cunningham and General Manager Pat Williams were directed to appear at his New York office at 1 p.m. (EST) as a result of the backboard-shattering incidents Wednesday night in Philadelphia and Nov. 13 in Kansas City.

Both times the game was delayed over an hour before the backboard could be properly replaced.

Meanwhile, another NBA official said the league was considering a collapsible basket that would separate from the backboard and the support bracket when placed under more than 260 pounds of pressure.

"The player would end up holding the rim," explained Joe Axelson, the NBA's director of operations. "The rim could then be re-attached quite simply so the game wouldn't be held up. We're getting ready to test it in the next week or 10 days."

Dawkins, a 255-pound, 6-foot-11 center for the Philadelphia 76ers, destroyed his second NBA backboard in less than a month Wednesday night in a home game against the San Antonio Spurs.

Cocking the ball between his shoulder blades, he soared into the air and rammed it through the hoop. The backboard rained glass, the net tangled in his hands, and he left a hole 20 inches square.

In Kansas City on Nov. 13, Dawkins brought down the entire backboard.

"It was the power, the chocolate thunder," Dawkins said of the latest dunk. "I could feel it surging through my body, fighting to get out. I had no control over it."

Axelson, in a phone interview from New York, said that since the Kansas City dunk, the NBA has been looking into the possibility of installing stronger backboards.

"We've heard from a couple of companies that have boards they claim are practically unbreakable," he said. "The problem is they have to be transparent."

Axelson said the game delays caused by destroyed backboards were a concern to the NBA, but that "our real fear is that someone is going to be hurt."

He said that in Kansas City, a 2-by-3 inch piece of glass left a hole in the hardwood floor seven-eighths of an inch deep.

"Can you imagine what that would have done to a person?" he asked. "That kind of stuff scares the hell out of me."

Pat Williams, the 76ers' general manager, said Thursday that the 22-year-old Dawkins was not busting backboards intentionally, nor was he breaking any NBA rules.

"If he was doing something against the rules, then, yes, the league could step in," Williams said.

But looking at the videotape, it's simply a two-handed power stuff. He goes up and drives the ball through the net. He doesn't hang on the rim. I don't know of any way around it."

Former Holtz Assistant Named North Carolina State Head Coach

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A little bit of Lou Holtz, a little bit of Bo Rein and a lot of Monte Kiffin is the way North Carolina State's new head football coach describes himself.

Lou Holtz, who brought success to N.C. State before landing at Arkansas, says that's so.

"I'll tell you about him. He's a winner," Holtz said after Kiffin was named to replace Rein as coach Wednesday night.

"Monte is a great football coach and is probably a greater person," added Holtz. "He has as fine a football mind as anybody I've been around and has as great a rapport with players as any person I've seen."

Holtz, interviewed by telephone from his Fayetteville, Ark., office, knows Kiffin as well as anyone. He hired the 39-year-old Kiffin from Nebraska two years ago as his defensive coordinator at Arkansas, and this year named Kiffin assistant head coach of the Razorbacks.

Holtz gave as enthusiastic an endorsement for Kiffin as anyone could hope for. "The guy can really coach," Holtz said. "He is the finest assistant coach I've ever had."

He has everything it takes to be a winning head coach, and everything you could want. As long as I had him on my staff, I knew we would win."

At the time of Kiffin's introduction Wednesday night, he had not signed a contract. Kiffin was expected to sign a contract Thursday that was reported to be a three-year pact at $40,000 annually.

Rein also was an assistant coach under Holtz before landing the Wolfpack head job. He remained at N.C. State for four years, taking the Louisiana State head coaching position last week.

Holtz recommended Kiffin to his friends at N.C. State this week, and recommended the Wolfpack to Kiffin.

"Monte came to me and asked about the State job. I told him it was one of the best coaching positions in the country, because of the school, the people there and as a place to live," he said.

"All I did was to express to State my opinion of him," he added.

Holtz said he knew he could not hang on to Kiffin as an assistant for long. "He just has too much on the ball to remain an assistant coach anywhere."

The selection of Kiffin was a surprise to most N.C. State fans, and something of a disappointment to many who had been urging selection of Pat Dye, coach until last week at East Carolina. Most of the N.C. State football team had endorsed Chuck Amato, a nine-year veteran assistant coach at the school, for the job.

"His getting the job might be a surprise now," said Holtz. "But I promise you, N.C. State people will find it will be a pleasant surprise."

Sherrill Accepts Lambert Trophy For Pitt Panthers

NEW YORK (AP) — University of Pittsburgh Coach Jackie Sherrill accepted the Lambert Trophy Thursday as the best college football team in the East and said Pitt reached the top by following "the high standards and objectives" set by Penn State.

Sherrill cited the recent success of the Pittsburgh Pirates and Steelers and called it "a great honor to represent the city of champions." He added:

"I'd like to thank Penn State for setting the high standards and objectives that forced us, if we wanted to compete for the Lambert Trophy, to set the same high standards and objectives."

Pitt won the first two Lambert trophies in 1936 and 1937 but has won only three since then, including this year. The Panthers finished the regular season ranked 10th by The Associated Press with a 10-1 record and will meet Arizona in the Fiesta Bowl on Christmas Day.

Penn State has dominated the Lambert voting in recent years, including 1977 and 1978.

Sherrill called Pitt's football resurgence "very good for Eastern football" and said his players dedicated them to winning the 1979 trophy following last year's 17-10 loss to Penn State.

Pitt, once a national power in college football, was at a low state when Johnny Majors took over as coach in 1973. Majors' four-year reign, highlighted by the ground-gaining feats of Tony Dorsett, was capped by a national championship in 1976. Sherrill was named head coach in 1977 when Majors went to Tennessee.

Braves Ship Jeff Burroughs Back To Texas

TORONTO (AP) — Jeff Burroughs, the American League's 1974 Most Valuable Player traded by Texas two years later to Atlanta, was returned to the Rangers by the Braves Thursday night in a five-player swap.

Burroughs, 28, who slumped to a .224 average and 11 homers this year, was dealt with right-handed pitcher Adrian Devine and infielder Pepe Frias for right-hander Doyle Alexander and infielder Larvell Blanks.

Only formal approval by Burroughs held up official announcement of the trade.

It was the fourth trade of the day as dealing picked up with the trading deadline of Friday midnight nearing in the windup of baseball's annual week-long winter meetings.

Earlier in the day, the California Angels acquired veteran outfielder Al Cowens and sent slugger Willie Mays Aikens to Kansas City in a five-player deal.

In the Atlanta-Texas swap, Devine, 1-2 with a 3.22 ERA in 40 games this year, also rejoined the Rangers, who sent him packing to the Braves with Burroughs in 1976. Frias batted 259 in 140 games this season.

Alexander, who played out his option with Baltimore and the New York Yankees to become part of baseball's first free agent re-entry draft in 1976, signed with the Rangers and won 17 games in 1977. However, he slumped to 8-10 in 1978 and 5-7 with a 4.55 ERA this year. He is 29.

In addition to Cowens, 28, one of the key players in Kansas City's three consecutive AL West titles from 1976-1978, the Angels received Todd Cruz, 23, a fine defensive shortstop but weak on offense, and a player to be named later.

Kansas City, trying to regain the title, also received shortstop Rance Mulliniks in the deal that was a slight gamble for the Royals, since Aikens is coming off a knee operation.

Jim Frey, the new Kansas City manager, said Cruz was expendable because U.L. Washington will be his regular shortstop.

"We think Willie Aikens is one of the best young power hitters in baseball," Frey said of the 25-year-old first baseman who hit .280 with 21 home runs and 81 runs batted in during 1979 before injuring his knee late in the season.

"His knee surgery has been successful and he is convalescing successfully. We had our doctor check with the surgeon and the operation (in late September) was a success," Frey said.

Mulliniks, 23, hit .343 at Salt Lake City of the Pacific Coast League, and .147 in 22 games as a part-time player with the Angels.

Angels' manager Jim Fregosi said, "Right now Cowens is on my (starting) team. I could go with an outfield of Cowens, Joe Rudi and Dan Ford and use Don Baylor as the designated hitter."

Rudi, however suffered an Achilles tendon problem, and Ford also underwent knee surgery last season.

Cruz, acquired last March from the Philadelphia Phillies for pitcher Doug Bird, hit .203 in 56 games after being recalled from Omaha. He has great defensive range, but never has shown much with the bat.

The Angels-Royals trade was only the third of the meeting involving a total of 11 players.

The Angels, who lost the American League playoffs to the Baltimore Orioles, have been busy since the 1979 season ended.

California has signed free agent pitcher Bruce Kison, formerly of Pittsburgh, and free agent Fred Patek, ex-Kansas City shortstop, and drafted pitcher Alfredo Martinez.

The Philadelphia Phillies, who tumbled from champions to fourth place in the National League East, were trying to stir things up, but so far with no success.

The Phillies, who stole the show last year at the meetings with the signing of free agent Pete Rose, twice have tried to put across blockbuster deals.

The latest, learned from a top source, involved the Phillies sending pitcher outfielder Greg Luzinski, starting pitcher Larry Christenson and reliever Tug McGraw to the Chicago Cubs for reliever Bruce Sutter, the 1979 Cy Young award winner in the National League.

Walter To Play In Shrine Game

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Seven offensive players, including Texas Tech senior offensive tackle Ken Walter, were named Thursday to the West roster for the 55th Shrine East-West Game.

All-American quarterback Marc Wilston of Brigham Young and Stanford's Turk Schonert, ranked first in the country in passing efficiency this year, were selected earlier to play in the football game scheduled Jan. 5 at Stanford Stadium.

The West roster was completed with the latest additions which, besides Walter, were linemen Paul Tabor of Oklahoma, Tom Bell of BYU, Arland Thompson and Bill Glass of Baylor, Tom Turney of Washington and Southern California wide receiver Raymond Butler.

Craftsman 'Complete' With Versatile Knives, Tools Of Trade

By TED J. SIMON
A-J Outdoor Editor

"By the work — one knows the workman." Jean de La Fontaine (1621-1695) French author.

There are some individuals who just don't feel complete without a knife on their person. You know the type; they reach into their pocket and withdraw a folding knife to quickly cut a piece of string or open a package. Such persons will never be stymied by Little Tommy Tucker's question of "How shall he cut it without a knife?"

Knives are tools. The folding style, whether it's a dainty pen knife or a heavy duty type with a four-inch blade, may be used to scrape away the insulation on electrical wire or tighten a screw on a loose door knob. Tools, like most everyday items, come in varying qualities, and knives are no different. Prices for a pocket-type folding knife with a four-inch blade can range from $5 to more than $150.

Charles Hipp, owner of The Bone Knife Company, explained why his knives are in the upper price category. "My knives are made one at a time," said Hipp. "I give my personal attention to each and every knife that is made here. The quality of the material and the quality of the workmanship is the difference between my knife and a mass produced product stamped out by a machine on an assembly line."

From concept to finished product, quality control is the commanding factor for every knife made in the cutlery shop at 4009 Avenue A in Lubbock. And following the various stages of knife making is a short course in a time honored craft.

The metal for the blade is tempered on the premises. After a controlled time in a furnace, the metal is then quenched by oil.

Blades for knives are usually carbon steel or stainless steel. "For a using knife, a knife that is going to be used in the field, I recommend a carbon steel blade," said Hipp. He added, "The carbon steel holds a better edge and it sharpens a whole lot easier. But the stainless doesn't rust or spot, and it stays pretty and shiny."

Whether the knife style is a small pocket type or Bowie of historical fame, a knife blade isn't a complete tool until it has a proper handle. Materials for knife handles can be composed of buffalo horn, stag horn, ivory, leather, metal, wood or man-made materials. A very popular man-made substance for knife handles consists of Micarta, a phenolic resin impregnated into semiporous material. Micarta is very resistant to splitting and cracking.

Keeping a good cutting edge on a blade is the pride of many knife owners. Hipp recommends that a knife user acquire a medium grit Arkansas stone for honing the blade. A light oil, such as sewing machine oil, or even plain water should be applied to the stone before the sharpening process. An excellent finishing edge can be achieved after honing with the stone by using a piece of leather such as a barber's strop. Some persons use their boot strap or the side of the boot for stropping the blade.

The collecting of knives has become a popular and sometimes profitable hobby. So if you come across grandfather's "trusty ol' friend" — don't throw it away. Some quality bench-made knives that sold for $100 ten years ago are now worth close to $1,000 to collectors.

"I do quite a bit of custom work for collectors," noted Hipp. Besides the custom work, the knife maker has about 50 different styles; he also designs and makes the leather sheaths and holsters that carry and protect the knives. Engraving and scrimshaw work is also done at The Bone Knife Company.

Surprisingly, Hipp doesn't carry a knife. "I used to always carry one of my folding knives," said the craftsman, "but some friend would admire the workmanship and I'd end up giving the knife away. It became a costly habit for me. So, if I don't have a knife with me, I can't give it away."

There are people, however, who wouldn't go anywhere without a knife — regardless of the occasion. Author and knife expert Ken Warner in "The Practical Book of Knives" describes an incident involving the king of Norway attending a cultural affair. It was noticed by some in attendance that the king had a belt knife under his tail-coat. When asked the reason for carrying a knife, his majesty remarked that a fellow never knows when he might need a good knife.

A good knife — it can be a useful tool, a prized possession, a friend in need. Again and again, you'll hear sagas of an outdoorsman who found his knife to be a lifesaver. Aside from such dramatic accounts, the camper, will find many uses for a good knife. From whittling wood to start a fire to making an emergency tent stake — a good knife should be an outdoorsman's constant companion.

If you're the successful executive type — a good knife will neatly open important mail or sharpen a pencil when the secretary is unavailable.

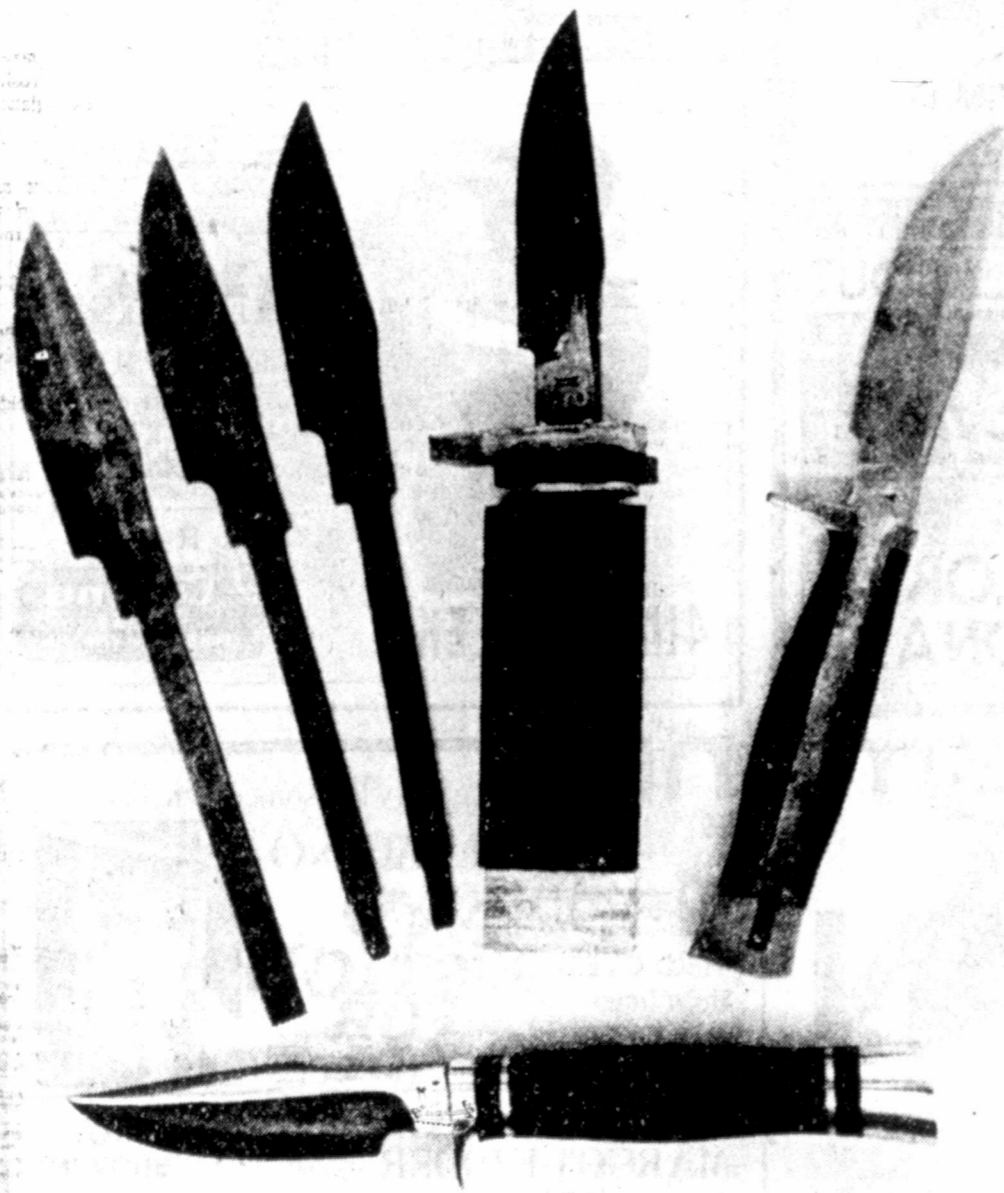

From plugging watermelons to cleaning the posts on a troublesome automobile battery — there's always a reason for having a good knife.

Discovery

SKILLED CRAFTSMAN — Honing the blade of a knife, as seen at upper right, will sharpen a dulled edge. Keeping the blade between 20 and 30 degrees to the stone's surface will make for the proper "slicing" motion for sharpening most knife blades. The cutting edge of the blade should lead the back edge for both sides of the blade during the honing process. From rough steel to a precision tool, a bench made quality knife is thoroughly inspected during each stage of development at The Bone Knife Company, as seen at lower left. The finished product is a popular style for campers. At lower right, Charles Hipp carefully inspects the primary materials for a bench made knife. The Lubbock craftsman has been making knives for more than ten years. (Staff Photos by Ted J. Simon)

House Panel Chairman Claims GM Suppressed Air Bag Studies

Defeat Of Legislation Stalling Restraints Called For

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of a House panel charged Thursday that General Motors Corp. suppressed marketing studies showing consumers prefer air bags to seat belts.

Rep. John Burton, D-Calif., released portions of the studies and urged defeat of legislation designed to slow the development of air bag safety restraints. Burton is chairman of a House Public Works and Transportation subcommittee.

A representative of General Motors said the studies had not been suppressed and that when GM actually tried to sell air bags, it found customers unwilling to buy them.

"Marketing studies are not considered to be infallible," William C. Chapman, head of technical liaison for GM, told reporters.

"There is a lot of difference between saying I'm going to do something and writing a check to do it," he added.

Burton asserted that a 1971 study, which became public when it was filed in court in connection with a lawsuit, showed 50 percent of those interviewed preferred air bags to seat belts. The rest either wanted seat belts or no restraints at all, he said the study showed.

After seeing this study, Burton said the House panel learned of other studies conducted in 1978 and earlier this year, and subsequently obtained these documents from General Motors.

In the 1978 study, Burton said, GM found that air bags received higher ratings than seat belts "on all operation, comfort and appearance items evaluated."

He said 70 percent of those responding in the 1979 study selected the air bags as their first choice over belts, even though the bags added $360 to the price of the car.

Chapman said he did not think there was "anything to substantiate that we suppressed" the studies.

"One does not normally take marketing studies and give them to the competition," he said.

Chapman said that in 1974, 1975 and 1976, General Motors prepared to produce more than 100,000 automobiles equipped with air bags, but received orders for fewer than 5,000 in any one year.

They sold for $250.

Transportation Department regulations require that front seat air bags or automatic seat belts, which the occupant of the car does not need to fasten, be installed on all new large cars after Sept. 1, 1981. The requirement will be extended to medium sized cars and to small cars over the next two years.

Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., successfully offered an amendment to the department's current appropriations bill restricting its ability to use funds to enforce this so-called passive restraint standard.

When a two-year authorization bill for the department comes to the House floor, possibly next week, Dingell is expected to offer an amendment calling for a further study of air bags before they are required.

Burton opposes this amendment. "GM knows that the public prefers air bags," he said. "The passive restraint standard, if not weakened, will simply give the public a chance to have a choice of air bags or, for those who prefer, automatic seat belts. Let us do nothing to interfere with that choice."

Chapman said General Motors has taken no position on the Dingell amendments.

New Jersey Casino Granted Temporary License

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — The New Jersey Casino Control Commission voted unanimously Thursday to grant a temporary permit to Bally's $300 million Park Place casino hotel after Bally chairman and president William T. O'Donnell stepped aside from his post.

The 5-0 vote authorizes a four-month temporary permit for the Bally facility. The commission granted the shortened permit, usually issued for six months, after state officials said they would complete their investigation of the firm within a few weeks.

The commission immediately began further hearings on a certificate of operation, which is necessary before Atlantic City's third legal casino can open. The hearings will continue today.

Although the opening date still is not certain, Bally and state officials say they expect the facility would open later this month, possibly around Christmas.

The commission voted with little comment after permit hearings that lasted 12 hours.

O'Donnell, 57, resigned at the insistence of the state Division of Gaming Enforcement, a branch of the state attorney general's office, because of his alleged ties to organized crime figures.

O'Donnell had led the Chicago-based slot machine and pinball machine manufacturing firm since 1963. He controls 7 percent of the company's stock.

Division director Robert P. Martinez said there is "a substantial likelihood" that the state would oppose O'Donnell's returning to the posts when the state completes its investigation of Bally in a few months.

He said a 14-page agreement signed by O'Donnell on Wednesday was intended to separate him from the slot machine company and its Park Place subsidiary in New Jersey.

The agreement also requires that Alex Wilms of Antwerp, Belgium and his family, who own 9.5 percent of the company stock, also put their shares in a trust at least until the state's investigation is completed. The agreement requires that Wilms' son, Alfred, resign as a director of Bally.

"The applicant before you today," Martinez told the commission, "has made substantial concessions to the legitimate public interest of the state of New Jersey."

Martinez refused to say why the state was asking for the separation of O'Donnell and the Wilmses.

Director Pleased With 'Star Trek'

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Star Trek — The Motion Picture" blasts off in 900 U.S. and Canada theaters today, culminating the biggest gamble in Hollywood history.

Consider the hazards: •Production costs set an all-time record, reportedly at $42 million.

•The movie is based on a television series that failed in its first run, though its reruns attracted a legion of followers.

•The stars are not exactly box-office names: Leonard Nimoy, William Shatner and DeForest Kelly from the series, plus India-born Persis Khambatta as the bald Iia from Planet Delta Four.

•Popularity of the space spectacular may have peaked with "Star Wars" and "Close Encounters of the Third Kind."

Despite these drawbacks, Paramount Pictures executives say they are jubilant over the finished film and confident that the gamble will produce heavy rewards.

The man most responsible for sending "Star Trek" aloft is white-haired director Robert Wise. The producer was Gene Roddenberry, creator of the TV series. At the end of 22 months of intensive work, Wise ("West Side Story," "The Sound of Music") seemed both relieved and exhilarated.

Boston Bookworms Losing Old Friend

Old Corner Book Store Closing Doors After 151 Years

BOSTON (AP) — Boston bookworms will lose an old friend Christmas Eve. The Old Corner Book Store, which opened in 1828 and became a gathering place for the likes of Ralph Waldo Emerson, Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, Harriet Beecher Stowe and Daniel Webster, is closing.

Store manager John Zielinski said Thursday that Dec. 24 would be the last day for the store at its present location and that there was only a slim chance it would re-open at a new location.

"Right now, it looks like we'll probably be closing rather than moving," he said. "It depends on whether the people who own the store can find another place to move to. It looks like we'll go out of business."

The store is owned by Doubleday, the New York publishing firm.

"The store doesn't do enough business at the location to support itself," Zielinski said.

Despite its name, the bookstore is not on a corner, but it once was. The building it originally occupied is on the nearby corner of Washington and School streets. The restored building now is operated by the Boston Globe as a circulation and advertising office.

That building also housed the Tinker and Fields publishing company, and it was at that location that Nathaniel Hawthorne, John Greenleaf Whittier, Emerson, Longfellow and Webster could be found. Many of them were published by Tinker and Fields.

There has been an Old Corner Book Store since 1828, not all owned by the same people," Zielinski said.

For 75 years it has been at its present location, on Bromfield Street near Boston Common and the Old Granary Burying Ground, where Revolutionary War patriots are buried.

"The location is probably the biggest problem," Zielinski said. "We're not on a main thoroughfare. Bromfield Street was much more prosperous at one time," he said. The proliferation of downtown bookstores is another reason for its failure, he said.

"The store has been struggling for quite a while," he said.

Film Company Head Leaves After 25 Years At Firm

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Samuel Z. Arkoff has resigned as president of American International Pictures, which recently became a subsidiary of Filmways Inc.

Arkoff, who founded AIP about 25 years ago, also resigned Wednesday from the board of directors of Filmways.

He said in a joint statement with Filmways acquired AIP last July for $30 million.

Singer Wants 'Occasional Boom'

Black Addition To Country Music Receiving Comparisons

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — "I don't want to hear rockets," Big Al Downing says about his new career in country music. "Just an occasional boom."

After forays into disco, rock 'n' roll, rhythm and blues and gospel music, Downing has become one of the few black singers in country music.

Downing, 39, has had two songs reach the Top 20 of the country music charts in the past year — "Mr. Jones" and "Touch Me."

His success has triggered comparisons with Charley Pride, country music's No. 1 black star.

"People say, 'You're trying to be another Charley Pride,' or, 'I love Charley Pride and you sound just like him,'" said Downing, a blue cowboy hat and shiny brown boots enclosing his 6-foot-3, 275-pound frame.

"It's not my intention to be another Charley Pride," he said. "We're different; his voice is light and mine is real booming. I write all my material and I don't think he does."

The genial Downing, who lives in Spencer, Mass., has encountered no prejudice in the mostly white country music business.

"I've been to Louisiana and Alabama, all those places, and all colors come up and hug me. I think if you are sincere in your music color has nothing to do with it."

Just four years ago, Downing had a No. 1 disco hit in the United States and Europe, "I'll Be Holdin' On." But the record company associated with it folded and he never made a penny off the song.

"Disco is too much of a rat race," he said, explaining why he's no longer doing that style music. "If you have one hit but don't have two or three more, you're forgotten in two months. And the market is flooded with people. I've got to have room to breathe."

Not long after his disco hit, he was in a recording studio clowning around and singing country music. A record producer liked it and Downing began cutting country songs.

"All my life I've been wanting to get into country music," Downing said in an interview over breakfast before taping the "Hee Haw" syndicated television show. "But I never could get anyone interested in me as a country artist."

In the 1960s, Downing was primarily a rhythm and blues and rock 'n' roll singer. Prior to that, he sang gospel music with members of his family. All told, he's been singing professionally for 25 years.

"It's been a long, hard pull all the way," he said. "In a way, I'm glad I didn't have success early. I would have come up with a Cadillac and fancy suits and spent all that money for nothing.

"Now, I don't need that to realize I'm successful. I can sit back and enjoy it rather than go out and live real high. Anyhow, I'm a Capricorn and we're successful later in life."

"Eating 10-cent hot dogs and working seven days a week taught me to be humble and take nothing for granted. Music has been an education; it's taught me a lot."

DELAYED SENTENCING

CHICAGO (AP) — A Chicago man whose case had been continued 92 times has been sentenced to eight years in prison for raping one young girl and kidnapping another seven years ago. Charles Parrott, 43, who pleaded guilty in both cases, was sentenced Wednesday by Circuit Judge Theodore Swain to two concurrent eight-year terms.

BRAZILIAN JAZZ SINGER — Flora Purim, the Brazilian jazz singer who has won the Down Beat magazine female jazz vocalist of the year poll every year since 1975 poses in a recent photo. A conviction on cocaine possession charges that resulted in a jail term in the mid-seventies is threatening Purim with deportation from the United States now. Brazilian Singer Fighting Deportation Case

NEW YORK (AP) — Flora Purim was scrubbing the floor at Terminal Island prison in California one day in 1975 when she heard a voice reverberating through the halls.

The voice was her own, singing one of her Brazilian songs, piped into the hollow corridors from a radio.

Flora Purim had just won the 1975 Down Beat magazine poll as female jazz vocalist of the year, the disc jockey announced.

"I'm a singer," she told a jailer nearby. "You see, I told you. I'm a singer."

"How much time you got left?" the jailer asked.

"Five years," she replied.

"Well, then, for the next five years, I'm your booking agent," the jailer declared. "And the floor's still dirty."

The jailer was wrong. The gutsy Brazilian singer who burst onto the music scene with Chick Corea's "Return to Forever" group served 18 months at the coed facility before she was paroled. And she has won the prestigious jazz poll every year since.

The story of her arrest on a cocaine charge (she denies ever having used hard drugs) and her ongoing fight to avoid deportation from the United States as a result of the conviction, are to be the subject of a book and an upcoming CBS movie.

Ever since her days with Corea — one of the pioneers of the fusion jazz style, which blends jazz, rock and blues — Miss Purim's voice has been distinctive. Her six-octave range takes her from traditional ballad singing to shrill but sensuous notes that sound sometimes like the wilds of the Brazilian jungle.

"I would like my music to be visualized, not just heard but visualized all the time through sounds," she said in a recent interview. "I'm looking for new avenues all the time."

The most powerful recent influence on her music developed from her work with Francis Ford Coppola on the score for "Apocalypse Now."

Wasps May Help To Control Greenbugs

AMARILLO (Special) — Greenbugs have the potential of destroying either wheat or sorghum in the Southern Great Plains, under the right conditions.

These light green aphids would do a lot more damage if it were not for biological control by predaceous lady beetles and a small parasitic braconid wasp.

According to N. E. Daniels, Texas Agricultural Experiment Station entomologist, greenbugs have caused considerable damage to sorghum in Texas and most states in the Great Plains.

In order to learn more about biological control, the life cycle of braconid wasps was studied in the laboratory at the U.S. Department of Agriculture Southwest Great Plains Research Center at Bushland by Louis Chedester, research associate, who assists Daniels.

This study was part of Chedester's thesis for his masters degree in biology at West Texas State University. Knowing the life cycle of the wasp would enable the researchers to develop a good pest management program for greenbug control.

Parasitized greenbugs were collected and reared in the laboratory at 68 degrees. Adult wasps emerged shortly and were allowed to mate at random. The researcher chose eight females, and put each one in a glass petri dish. At the same time a healthy adult greenbug one-sixteenth-inch in length was placed in each dish with a mated female wasp.

Shortly after the two insects were placed together, the wasp thrust her ovipositor into the back region of the greenbug and laid an egg inside the body of the aphid. Two days later the egg hatched and the larva began to feed on the body contents of the greenbug.

By the third day, the aphids coloration had changed from light green to yellow, indicating death had occurred. By the fourth day, the wasp larva had grown enough to completely fill the inside of the greenbug's body.

Microscopic examination of dead parasitized greenbugs, called mummies, showed that six days after eggs were laid larvae transformed into pupae. By this time the mummies had changed from tan to dark brown.

By the eighth day, the outline of the adult wasp could be seen through exoskeletons of mummies, which had swollen to about twice the size of a nonparasitized greenbug. Adult wasps emerged on the ninth day after eggs were laid.

According to Chedester, this parasite is effective for controlling greenbugs on sorghum when it is 80 degrees during the day. Unfortunately, they are not very effective against greenbugs on winter-wheat, when it is cold or below 50 degrees.

Other studies have shown that a single female wasp can lay 100 eggs a day for 10 days. This enables the wasp population to expand 1,000 times in a single life cycle.

The scientist figures if greenbug populations in sorghum do not develop to destruction levels before a nine-day life cycle is completed, the braconid wasp can keep greenbug populations in sorghum to nondestructive levels.

Crop Prospects To Brighten

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — Prospects for the 1980 winter wheat crop have brightened somewhat as a result of improved moisture conditions and the crop is now rated from fair to good, the crop report of the Santa Fe Railway says.

It said snow, rain and hail from cold fronts moving across most of the major Santa Fe serving wheat producing states of Colorado, Kansas, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Texas brought welcome relief to dry soils.

The report said the moisture should allow wheat plants to establish more adequate root systems and promote top growth to protect the crop from erosion during the "windy" season.

The Santa Fe said that many fields are suffering from poor stands and uneven seed germination and additional moisture and good growing weather is needed before the wheat plants become dormant.

Auction Plans Announced

What officials describe as the most unique and probably the most prestigious sale event in the history of Charolais cattle in North America will be held here today and Saturday at the South Park Inn.

The auction will combine purchase opportunities for Full-French Charolais cattle, Western and wildlife fine art in all media, and top racing Quarter Horse prospects and producing mares.

Plans for the unusual sale have been announced by the sponsoring North American French Charolais Council (NAFC), based in Denton.

The event is a coat and tie dinner sale and is being held in cooperation with Altermann Art Galleries, Dallas and Wellborn & Deer Creek Ranch of Fort Worth.

Cattle consigned to this sale represent the very best of the Full French Charolais breeding in North America, the announcement said. Included are "classic" older females destined for ova transplant programs; a number of the finest producing Full-French herd matrons in the country and a select, limited number of young daughters of the most highly respected reputation Full-French sires of contemporary breeding.

Council president Jim Paul of A.V.I. Ranch at Seminole, said members of the council had thrown the gates to their pastures open to the selection committee for this sale and that the consignment is the most elite set of Full-French females ever offered at public auction on the North American continent.

Artist to be represented are known for their western renditions and presentation of wildlife subjects. In addition to the pieces offered at auction, another 60 items will be sold on a sealed bid basis during the two-day event.

The racing Quarter Horse stock in this sale are a select group of top prospects, AAA-rated and Register of Merit Mares or Register of Merit producers in the American Quarter Horse Association registry. The consignor's list includes a number of the top running Quarter Horse breeders in the Southwest.

A reception and showing of animals and art will be at 7 p.m. today. A brunch at 10 a.m. Saturday will offer a complete explanation of the sale. Another reception is scheduled at 5 p.m. Saturday with the sealed dinner and auction scheduled to begin at 6:30 p.m. Sealed bids on the art will be opened prior to the auction.

Gerald Bowie of West Point, Ga., will be the auctioneer.

Invitations to the event are $50 per person.

BY DUANE HOWELL

SOME QUESTIONS HAVE BEEN ASKED concerning the mechanics of the unique Telcot on-call fast-flow cotton contract being offered by Hohenberg, Brothers Cotton, a division of Cargill, Inc.

Conceptual details were reported Sunday.

The contract premiums, which range mostly from 35 to 150 points and are specified according to micronaire readings at different gin points, are automatically added to the call price. The call price is an individualized thing farmer.

At the beginning of each day, each lot of cotton in the Telcot system has a quote on it. The Telcot computer has a price in it for every grade, staple and micronaire combination, based on how cotton has been trading. Each night the computer assigns a price — mirroring the day's trading action — to each bale based on that bale's quality.

So if a farmer has a 50-bale lot, the Telcot quote on his cotton is an average of the prices on the individual bales, or the composition of the lot. A farmer might start the day with 50 bales that have a Telcot quote of, say, 53 cents.

TELCOOT THEN TRADES DURING THE DAY and at 3 p.m. (the farmer in the on-call program can fix his price between 3 p.m. and 5 p.m.) the computer figures the call difference. This call difference could be a plus or minus figure, depending upon how Telcot has traded done during the day until 3 p.m. as compared with the beginning.

Say the call difference was plus 25 points. If a farmer wants to fix his price between 3 p.m. and 5 p.m. that day, he first would take the beginning quote for his 50 bales — 53 cents in this example — and add the 25 points. Then he would add whatever premium was specified in the contract.

If this farmer was a gin point with a 100-point premium, he would have 58 cents plus 25 points plus 100 points. Thus his call price would be 54.25 cents.

The call difference is simply a sum total of all Telcot cotton which has traded during a given day. It is an average weighted by bales. It is the weighted average of the cotton that trades that particular day, its price, and how the average trading price compares with the starting-out price at the beginning of the day.

Then would have both interest and storage charges back of it, or sell his loan equity at the time he deems appropriate.

IF HE GOES INTO THE ON-CALL PROGRAM, he in effect is "operating" on money much more expensive — or paying interest at a much higher rate — than the 9 percent he would be paying on the Commodity Credit Corp. loan.

Actually, "operating" in this loose sense could mean he is paying higher interest on a commercial bank loan or is losing interest income or otherwise is not getting maximum value from the use of certain money.

In any event, the point is there are what might be called "opportunity costs" associated with the capital management angle, even if the letter of credit the farmer receives under the on-call program is used as collateral for a commercial bank loan.

But putting a pencil to it would indicate this loss or cost, in general and in rough numbers, would just about equal what the farmer is saving on storage in the fast-flow program. And thus, in the final analysis, still leaves the farmer with the gin point premium.

How long the new program will be left open was under consideration Thursday.

LATE NERVOUS SPECULATIVE SELLING pressed cotton futures Thursday to closing losses of 117 to 62 points in nearby.

Floor brokers said commission house sell stops took pace-setting March down 117 points to close at 69.52, while May finished with a 111-point loss at 70.95. July ended with a 62-point loss at 72.38.

Brokers added that the market reacted to late weakness in gold and a change in technical factors as chart patterns turned bearish. December expired with the official settlement at 66.12, down 118 points.

Estimated volume was 15,050 lots.

U.S. cotton export sales set a record in the week ended Nov. 25, the USDA reported after the close. Sales rose a whopping 500,160 running bales, with China buying a record 396,200 bales and smaller quantities going to Hong Kong, Japan and Taiwan.

THIS BROUGHT CHINA'S PURCHASES for delivery this season to 1,989,700 running bales. The 1979-80 export commitment — outstanding sales plus shipments — climbed to a hefty 7,184,000 running bales.

Sales for delivery in the 1980-81 marketing year, which begins next Aug. 1, rose by 3,600 running bales to a new total of 54,700.

Exports for the week totaled 142,100 running bales, with 87 percent to Asia.

Some analysts said futures may react to the big export sales report with a gap up opening to 70 cents or more basis March, today.

Spot quotations were steady to 100 points lower at Lubbock Thursday. The base was raised 50 points Thursday morning and discounts on cotton miking 3 and 4 and lower were widened 30 points. In the afternoon, the base was cut 50 points, leaving the base 3-4.9 mikes unchanged on the day.

Trading on Telcot totaled 10,940 bales.

Area-wide classing office receipts on the High Plains through Monday, the latest figures available, totaled 1,112,266, including classings of 860,166 and a carryover of 252,100. The total a year earlier was 264,536 on classings of 228,088 and a carryover of 36,500.

Rep. Hance Scheduled To Speak At Bankers' Agricultural Meeting

U.S. Rep. Kent Hance of Lubbock, a member of the House Committee on Agriculture, will be the dinner speaker today for the opening of the seventh annual Bankers Agricultural Credit Conference at Texas Tech University.

The dinner will be at 7:15 p.m. in the Coronado Room of the Texas Tech University Center. Registration will begin at 6 p.m.

Leadoff speaker for Saturday sessions, which begin at 7:30 a.m. in the University Center, will be James L. Wittingham, president of Arthur State Bank Arthur, Ill. Wittingham is past president of the Agricultural Division of the Illinois Bankers Association.

Although a freshman congressman, Hance has been described as influential in the House. He was elected by 41 Democrat freshmen congressmen to chair the new members caucus. Among his special interests as a four-year member of the Texas Senate was legislation affecting insurance, water, banking, education and agriculture. A lawyer, Hance was named an outstanding professor at Texas Tech when he taught business law in the College of Business Administration.

Wittingham is a graduate of the Illinois Bankers School of Southern Illinois University, the University of Wisconsin Graduate School of Business, Harvard University Senior Bank Officers Seminar and the University of Oklahoma ABA Graduate School for Commercial Lending. He is a certified commercial lender.

Wittingham is president of the 430-member Independent Community Banks in Illinois. He is past president of the East Central Illinois Chapter of the Bank Administration Institute.

Other participants on the program will include conference president B.A. Donelson, senior vice president, First State Bank, Stratford; John Wright, chairman, First State Bank, Abilene; Gene Adams, president, First National Bank, Seymour; Lowell "Stretch" Smith, Jr., chairman, First State Bank, Rio Vista; and Norman Wright, president, City National Bank, Plainview. The bankers will discuss innovative banking for service and profit.

Faculty of the Texas Tech Department of Agricultural Economics will participate in a panel discussion on the economic and commodity outlook for 1980 and the estimated cost of production budgets.

Bounty Hunters Aiding Banks

CHICAGO (AP) — Tight money supplies have made banks more competitive, and one suburban North Side bank is turning to bounty hunters to bring in new accounts.

The Bank of Ravenswood this week started offering a cash bounty to anyone who brings in savers willing to take their money out of downtown financial institutions and place it in the North Side bank.

Finder's fees range from $40 for a one-year $1,000 certificate account to $8,000 for an eight-year, $100,000 certificate.

Bank president John Obereiner said downtown banks often overlook the communities and funnel money into national or international projects.

"We want to bring back money to North Side communities so it can be invested here," he said.

The program drew angry responses from some downtown bankers.

This is certainly not in line with normal industry marketing practices and could become very unpleasant if it starts a trend," said one banking official.

CLASS ACTION

LUBBOCK COUNTY BEVERAGE ASSOCIATION, CECIL'S, INC., CROSSED KEYS PACKAGE STORE, INC., PINKIE'S, INC., THE ALL STAR COMPANY, BOB J. GRIMES, HUBERT ODOM, AND KENNETH F. ODOM.
Defendants

NOTICE OF PENDENCY OF CLASS ACTION AND OF RIGHTS OF CLASS MEMBERS

TO: all persons who purchased retail alcoholic beverages, including beer and wine, during the period from March 1967 through December 1974 from retail stores located in Lubbock County, Texas, owned, operated or controlled by Pinkie's, Inc., Cecil's, Inc., Crossed Keys Package Store, Inc., The All Star Company, Bob Grimes, Hubert Odom, or Kenneth Odom. A person is a retail purchaser if such a purchase was not for resale or solely for profit. Retail purchases of alcoholic beverages include purchases by private clubs for its members and case lot purchases.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN to you that the plaintiff above named has filed a suit in the above entitled United States District Court in behalf of himself and all members of the class herein addressed. By order dated September 18, 1978, the Court determined that this action should be maintained as a class action under the provisions of Rule 23(b)(3) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, and directed the giving of notice to class members.

NOTICE IS FURTHER GIVEN as follows:

1. Plaintiff's Complaint alleges a conspiracy among the defendants to raise, fix, stabilize and maintain the prices at which retail alcoholic beverages, including beer and wine, were sold in retail stores located in Lubbock County, Texas, owned and operated by the defendants named above. The time period of the alleged conspiracy extended from as early as March 1967 until at least December 1974. As a result of the alleged unlawful conspiracy, plaintiff and other members of the class were compelled to pay substantially higher prices for retail alcoholic beverages purchased at these retail stores than they would have paid in the absence of such a conspiracy to the injury of the plaintiff and the members of the class. Recovery of money damages is sought for three times the amount of the alleged overcharge on the purchases made from the defendants by plaintiff and the members of the class. Recovery is also sought for attorneys' fees and costs of this suit.
2. The overcharge is the difference between the higher price for alcoholic beverages resulting from the alleged conspiracy and the price at which such alcoholic beverages would have been sold in the absence of such conspiracy. In response to the plaintiff's claims, all defendants have denied any wrong doing and have denied any liability to plaintiff or any member of the class. This Notice is not to be construed as an expression of any opinion by the Court with respect to the merits of the claims or defenses of any of the parties. This Notice is sent merely to advise you of the pendency of the action and the rights which you have respect to it.
3. The Court will exclude any member of the class to whom this Notice is addressed on written request for such exclusion on the attached "Request for Exclusion" form, postmarked on or before February 1, 1980. Persons who request such exclusion will not be entitled to share in the benefits of the judgment if it is favorable to the plaintiff, and will not be bound by the judgment if it is adverse to the plaintiff. All requests for exclusion should be mailed by First Class

Mail to the Clerk of the United States District Court for the Northern District of Texas, Lubbock Division, at P.O. Box 10412, Lubbock, Texas 79408. All class members who do not elect to return the Request for Exclusion form above referred to in the manner and within the time specified above will automatically be included in the class in this action as members of the class represented by the plaintiff.

3. All members of the class who do not request exclusion as prescribed in the preceding paragraph, and who are therefore deemed to have elected to participate in this action, will be entitled to share pro rata in the benefits of any judgment favorable to the class or in any settlement of their claims, after deduction of attorneys' fees and disbursements, but they will also be bound by any judgment unfavorable to the class. Included class members will also be subject to the orders and notices hereafter given in this action with reference to the furnishing of proper affidavits of due diligence.

4. If any class member does not desire to be excluded, but does wish to appear in his own behalf, such class member may enter an appearance through counsel of his own choosing. All members who do not request exclusion or who do not enter an appearance through counsel of their own choosing will be represented by plaintiff throughout his counsel hereinafter named.

5. Counsel for plaintiff and for members of the class included in this action is the law firm of Locke, Purcell, Boren, Loney & Neely (A Professional Corporation), whose address is 3600 Republic National Bank Tower, Dallas, Texas 75201, and whose telephone number is (214) 746-7400. All communications and questions concerning this notice should be sent to such attorneys, c/o Stanley E. Neely, Orrin Harrison III or Nathan L. Mecht at that firm and should not be addressed to the Clerk of this Court.

6. If you have not received this notice in the mail and you are a member of the class, you may request that your name be included on the list of persons who receive individual notice by mail by completing the "Request for Individual Notice" form which is attached to this Notice and mailing such Request for Individual Notice to the Clerk of Northern District of Texas, Lubbock Division, at P.O. Box 10412, Lubbock, Texas 79408. Persons who request individual notice will receive any further notices which may occur in this lawsuit by mail.

7. This Court has retained jurisdiction in this action to correct, modify, amend, vacate or supplement its orders determining that this cause shall be maintained as a class action at any time before the trial of this action.

Tractor Reputed As Largest In World

By A.F. IWEN
HELENA, Mont. (UPI) — Farming is big business nowadays. The "Big Bud" tractor is proof of that.

The Big Bud, manufactured in Havre, a town of 15,000 not far from the Canadian border, is reputed to be the largest tractor in the world.

With eight tires that are each 8 feet high, the Big Bud lives up to its name. It's 17 feet high, 22 feet wide, 28 feet long. Depending on the model, the tractor weighs 45,000 to 60,000 pounds. It carries 550 gallons of diesel fuel.

The success story of the Big Bud, it could be said, is based on the principle that bigger is better.

"Fuel is a major thing we talk about now because you're much more efficient with a big unit (tractor) than you are with several smaller units," says Ron Harmon, 32, chief executive officer and chairman of the board of Big Bud Tractors Inc.

Harmon says the result is less fuel consumption per acre. And "you got one driver, you got one engine to worry about" in the field, instead of several drivers and engines that would be necessary when using the smaller tractors to cover roughly the same acreage, Harmon adds.

"We have found them (farmers) wanting to go to a bigger unit to do their land quicker," Harmon's company plans to manufacture 175 tractors in 1980. That compares to 135 units this year and only 15 per year when Harmon took over the company in 1974.

Production at Big Bud doubled every year thereafter, although it leveled off, expectedly, in 1979.

About 500 of the giant tractors are scattered around the world. Markets for the Big Bud include Australia, the Middle East, Canada and Mexico.

More Big Bud machines are sold in Hawaii than any other tractor model, Harmon says.

Harmon figures that Big Bud has found a "niche of our own," one that the major tractor manufacturers cannot match because it is costly and takes five to eight years for the majors to "tool up" for model changes.

"We can change much quicker than anyone else, to meet the demand in the field, plus we can afford to build a lot fewer units per model and fill a market for the entrepreneur in farming," says Harmon. "The major manufacturer just can't."

Believing the market for giant farm equipment will continue to grow, Big Bud is selling 760-horsepower models, and a 980-horsepower prototype has been built.

The largest Big Bud five years ago was a 360-horsepower model, which today is still larger than most tractors sold by other manufacturers.

Corporate farming in recent years, says Harmon, has meant "a lot of new land," and "big equipment fits that bill."

The big tractor from Big Bud goes for a big price: $125,000 and $160,000 for the 400-horsepower and 525-horsepower models; the 760-horsepower model, $350,000.

Grain Futures
CHICAGO (AP) — Grain and soybean futures fell Thursday on the Chicago Board of Trade, continuing a slow decline begun two weeks ago.

Analysts said general quiet prevailed on cash markets, with prices drifting lower at Gulf of Mexico export points. Ample supplies of grain are available in Chicago, as reflected in continuing deliveries against the maturing December futures contracts.

No major export deals have emerged to boost prices. The Agriculture Department said late Wednesday that 100,000 metric tons of corn had been sold to China, but the news was not unexpected.

The decline tended to build on itself in otherwise quiet trading, as lower prices triggered successively greater selling by brokerage houses.

At the close, soybeans were 5 1/2 to 10 1/2 cents lower, January $6.59; wheat was 3 1/4 to 5 1/2 cents lower, December $4.14; corn was 2 1/4 to 3 cents lower, December $2.68; and oats were 1/2 to 1 1/2 cents lower, December $1.41 1/2.

WHAT GOOD ARE AFTER-CHRISTMAS SALES IF YOU HAVE TO WAIT UNTIL AFTER CHRISTMAS?

OUR ALREADY LOW OUTLET PRICES ON EVERYTHING.

Our every day prices on in-style, in-season fashions for men and women are always at least 25 to 70% off. Now we've clipped another 1/3 off on everything. So for every $100 worth of gifts, you pay just $20 to $50. Save an extra 1/3 on handsome sweaters, shirts, vests, jackets and jeans for your Adam. Save an extra 1/3 on something lovely from our handbag and jewelry collection to go with the blouse and skirt or slacks and sweater your Eve's been hinting about. Because the shoppers' paradise has your after-Christmas sale now.
