

Crime Line Board Offers To Aid Other Cities

THE LUBBOCK Crime Line board will set up a Crime Line task force to notify cities in the southwestern part of the United States that Crime Line will be available to assist them in setting up a program such as the local Crime Line.

The formation of the task force will come about because of the success of the Lubbock Crime Line program and because of several inquiries about the program that have been received over the past several months from other cities.

The local Crime Line continues to receive many calls each week concerning felony crimes, and Crime Line detectives are currently working on several leads that will result in arrests and convictions of criminals.

Persons having knowledge of a felony crime are urged to call Crime Line at 741-1000. Persons may receive a cash reward if their information is valid. All callers remain completely anonymous.

Anyone wishing to make a donation to Crime Line can mail it to Crime Line, P.O. Box 2000, Lubbock. The donation will be tax free and will become a part of the reward fund.

This week, Crime Line is spotlighting a rape and two aggravated robberies as well as a traffic accident involving failure to stop and render aid. The Crime Line also has set a reward for the location of a fugitive.

Crime Line is offering $300 for any information on a rape which occurred about 12:30 a.m. Nov. 22. The victim, who was taken to Health Sciences Center Hospital, told police that she had gone to the airport to pick up a friend. She said that the flight was delayed, and she went to wait in the airport bar where she met some friends. The victim said that she saw two men whom she thought she knew and went over to talk with them. The woman said that she left the club voluntarily with the two men, and was taken to an area beside a paved road where each of the men raped her twice. The woman said she was then left at a room at the Lubbock Motor Lodge. The victim called her mother, and her mother took her to HSC. The suspects were described as Mexican-American, about 19-years-old, of medium height and build with black hair and brown eyes. The victim said she thought that she had scratched one of them on the face.

Rewards of $300 each also have been posted for any information on two aggravated robberies, which investigators believe were committed by the same persons because of the fact that the car's descriptions were almost the same.

The first incident occurred on Nov. 23 at 1:15 p.m. in Guadalupe Park. The victim told police that he and a friend had stopped to help a person get their car out of a ditch. Reports show that two men drove up and helped to get the car out of the ditch. When they got the car out of the ditch, the driver left. The two men reportedly pulled guns out and told the victims to give them all their money. One of the men shot one of the victims in the foot and again ordered them to give them their money. When one of the victims attempted to grab one of the guns, the man shot him in the right leg. The suspects took the property and fled. The suspects were described as Mexican-American, 18 to 25. One of the suspects was short and thin with black hair and brown eyes, and the other was of medium height and build with brown hair and brown eyes. The suspects were driving a 1973-74 Oldsmobile, two-door and See CRIME LINE Page 14

Seven Killed In Fiery Auto Crash

MITCHELL, S.D. (UPI) — Seven persons were killed and three others injured, two critically, in a fiery head-on collision on South Dakota Highway 37, police said Sunday.

"It's absolutely the worst accident I've seen in my 19-year career," Davison County Sheriff Lyle Swenson said, his voice shaking.

Riding in one of the cars Saturday night was a Sioux Falls family returning from watching their daughter play at the Class A girls basketball championship in Sioux Falls. It crashed head-on into a northbound car carrying six teenagers and burst into a ball of flames.

The teenagers' auto was returning to Letcher, a small rural town in neighboring Sanborn County, when the two cars collided about 10:15 p.m.

They collided in the southbound lane, we're sure of that," Swenson said. "But we don't know what caused the accident. It's still under investigation. But none of those kids had been in trouble before."

Explodes On Impact

Swenson said five of the teenagers in the northbound car driven by Daniel D. Lucid, 17, of Letcher, were killed. The southbound car driven by Verlyn Nelson or his wife, Lorretta, of Sioux Falls, exploded upon impact. But two Nelson children were thrown clear when the vehicles collided. They survived the accident.

Killed in the accident were Mr. and Mrs. Nelson, Lucid, the driver, Sally K. Hobbach, 17, Mount Vernon, Troy Van-Waaleghin, 15, Letcher, Randall L. Ruml, 14, Letcher, and Joseph M. Northrup, 17, Letcher.

Jim Rubendall, 15, Letcher, and Mike Nelson, 13, Sioux Falls, were listed in critical condition at McKennan Hospital in Sioux Falls. A hospital spokesman said both youths were on life support systems.

Candy Nelson, 9, was hospitalized in satisfactory condition at Methodist Hospital in Mitchell. She was transferred to See ACCIDENT Page 14

ALL SMILES — Although Terri Eoff is preparing to be a professional actress, her smile is not acting but genuine excitement as the new Miss Lubbock. The 19-year-old Texas Tech University freshman was the talent winner in last year's contest. (Staff Photo by Milton Adams)

AFTER winning the talent competition and being named first runner-up in last year's local contest, Terri Lynn Eoff spent the next 12 months preparing for the 1980 Miss Lubbock pageant.

Her efforts were rewarded Saturday night when she was crowned the city's new Miss Lubbock.

But in a sense, Miss Eoff has spent most of her life preparing for the role of meeting the public and being on stage.

"I was a ham," she said of her childhood. She practiced facial expressions in the mirror and performed on stage for the first time at age six in a children's play.

Acting Skills Helped
Her ambition is to be a professional actress on Broadway and she admits the skills she has practiced in acting aided her in the Miss Lubbock pageant.

"I like performing in front of an audience more than in front of one or two people," she said, explaining that when the pageant audience laughed in the appropriate moments of her talent presentation, it boosted her confidence.

Miss Eoff portrayed "Bananas," a neurotic mother in the play, "The House of Blue Leaves." It was the same scene that won the talent competition for her in last year's pageant.

"It is my very favorite play and my talent," she said.

Rebellion Against Khomeini Widens

TABRIZ, Iran (AP) — Surging mobs of rebels and pro-Khomeini forces battled in the streets of Tabriz Sunday, fighting over government buildings in the worst violence of the 4-day-old revolt by ethnic Turks in the Azerbaijan region.

Rebel leaders said three persons were killed and 60 were wounded in the fight to control the radio station in this northwestern Iranian city. They reported all of the victims were ethnic Turks and said they were shot as they marched up a hill toward the station that was held by backers of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, Iran's revolutionary Moslem leader. Hospital sources earlier had reported only six persons were wounded.

Heavy shooting broke out as tens of thousands of angry Iranian Turks stormed the government radio and television building, recapturing it from Khomeini's men who had driven rebels out earlier in the day.

Khomeini Guards Captured
Local army unit backing the rebels joined in the fight and appeared to be in complete control of the building early today. A spokesman for the rebels said six of Khomeini's revolutionary guards were taken prisoner.

Late Sunday, bands of armed rebels in civilian clothes erected roadblocks around Tabriz and searched vehicles to bar Khomeini's supporters from reaching the city.

The gunfight for the radio-TV building lasted about an hour while throngs swirled about the area, many chanting "Death to Khomeini!"

Late Sunday, Komeini's ruling revolutionary Council announced in Tehran that a three-member delegation headed by Finance Minister Abolhassan Bani Sadr would leave the capital for Tabriz today, presumably to try to make peace in the worsening conflict.

Police Station Seized
Before the storming of the broadcast station, the anti-Khomeini Azerbaijanis seized a police station and retook the local governor's mansion, which they had lost earlier Sunday to Khomeini's revolutionary guards.

By nightfall, as crowds still milled in the city's streets, it appeared that the dissidents had gained the upper hand.

Khomeini in a nationwide radio broadcast, claimed that the "rebellion against the rule of Islam" in Azerbaijan was instigated by "plotters who received their orders from America or elsewhere."

But the dissidents here claim to be just as religious as Khomeini's supporters.

Want Self Rule
The Turkish ethnic minority, comprising about one-fourth of Iran's population of 35 million, is angry that the new Islamic constitution denies them self-rule in their Azerbaijan region.

The dissidents are followers of Ayatollah Mohammad Kazem Shariat-Madari, who is Iran's No. 2 Shiite Moslem clergyman behind revolutionary leader Khomeini and who is chief spokesman for Iran's Turkish-speaking minority Tabriz, which has a population 600,000, is the capital of East Azerbaijan province.

The two ayatollahs have fallen out over the constitution because it makes the government a theocracy, with Khomeini absolute ruler for life, and denies the people of this area — also known as Azeri Turks — the autonomy they hoped it would provide.

The struggles for self-government by the Azeri and other ethnic minorities in Iran appear to pose the greatest threat to Khomeini's power and the unity of his regime.

Last week Khomeini supporters and Shariat-Madari's followers clashed in Qum, headquarters of both holy men. The Azeris here reacted by seizing the broadcast station, the governor's mansion and the airport.

Early Sunday, some 4,000 Khomeini supporters — men, women and children — praved at the university adjacent to See REBELLION Page 14

Iran Postpones Trial Setting

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Iran backed down Sunday from its threats to set a quick trial date for the American Embassy hostages — apparently preferring to leave the United States in suspense while Ayatollah Ruhollah Komeini tries to clamp down on rebellious minorities threatening his power.

U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim, meanwhile dispatched a special intermediary to Tehran to pursue U.N. efforts to resolve the crisis.

Iranian Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh, who on Friday pledged to make a statement within 48 hours on a trial date for the 50 Americans held at the embassy, said Sunday, "At present we are not going to set any time limits on arriving at any new decisions about the hostages."

And in an interview with NBC TV's "Meet the Press," he said it might take 10 days for him to establish an international panel that he said Saturday would be set up to help investigate the hostages.

Iran has threatened to try some of the hostages as spies unless the United States extradites the deposed shah, something the Carter administration refuses to do so.

The Iranian regime's domestic troubles deepened Sunday.

In rebellious Azerbaijan, Khomeini supporters in the provincial capital of Tabriz wrested the radio and television station from anti-Khomeini ethnic Turks who took it over last week. But later Sunday, tens of thousands of dissident Turks stormed the station, a bloody gun battle broke out, and the rebels regained control of it.

In Tehran, the ruling Revolutionary Council announced a three-member delegation, headed by Finance Minister Abolhassan Bani Sadr, would leave for Tabriz today.

Speed Asked On Names To Goodfellows

PLEASE help — The plea comes with letters filing Chief Goodfellow's mailbox.

It comes from friends and neighbors, but mostly it comes from a mother facing Christmas with an empty purse and several children filled with high hopes.

"I am not able to work so I need help to get my children something for Christmas. So please help."

With each plea, the list grows of children who will be helped come Christmas morning. With a little aid from Chief Goodfellow, about 10,000 faces that might have been sad will glow over toys, fruit and candy delivered by dawn Christmas Day.

Until Dec. 12, a coupon will appear in The Avalanche-Journal so names can be added to the list for screening. Today, the coupon is on Page 1, Sec. B.

After Dec. 12, Chief Goodfellow and his helpers will be busy filling sacks for each child on the list, getting ready for the big pre-dawn delivery on Christmas.

To make sure all names are in by the deadline, take time, right now, to fill out and mail the coupon to: Chief Goodfellow, P.O. Box 491, Lubbock, Texas 79408.

Funds to make the giant task possible may be mailed to the same address.

Tech Regents Keep Mum On New President

AFTER A two-hour closed meeting Sunday to discuss the presidential search, Texas Tech University regents were mum but smiling.

Dan Williams, Tech's interim vice president for finance and administration, was called into the meeting for about 20 minutes. It is believed he was consulted to advise the regents on what kind of salary range the school will be able to offer the next president. Dr. Cecil Mackey received $63,000 a year as Tech president, with a portion of the salary provided by the state legislative appropriation and a portion provided by private funds.

Board chairman Robert Pfluger said the board has not discussed balloting — whether it will be by raising of hands or by secret ballot. He said the board also has not made a decision on how many votes will be necessary to choose a president. Pfluger noted that either the board or a candidate could insist upon a unanimous vote, but that no such mandate was in effect at this time.

Absent from Sunday's called meeting were regents J. Fred Bucy of Dallas and B.J. Pevehouse of Midland.

Regents have not made any announcement as to the number of candidates now in the competition, other than to say it is "less than 10."

The next scheduled meeting of the board is Feb. 8, but Pfluger smiled when

Santa and the Elf Boy

(SYNOPSIS: Esteban, a happy elf has been banished from Fairyland because he always failed the tests given him by the Queen Fairy. The Queen took away his wings and now he is a three-faced boy.)
Chapter Three

SHOESHINE BOY

ESTEBAN looked around in astonishment. The Queen Fairy and Santa Claus and all the Fairyland folk had vanished. He looked down at his big feet and long legs.

"I'm a giant!" he exclaimed. He wasn't a giant, of course. In fact, he was a very small boy. But if you've been an elf all your life and you suddenly turn into a boy, you feel like a giant.

He reached over his shoulders to see if his elf wings were really gone. "Why here they are!" he cried. "I still have my wings."

But it wasn't his wings that he felt at all. It was the wings of the little blue bird Santa had given him. Esteban lifted the bird from his shoulders and put her inside his shirt.

"Take good care of your wings," he whispered. "We may need them before I get mine back."

Then he sighed and began his journey away from Fairyland.

For a long time, he walked until at last he came to a town. In the window of a cobbler's shop he saw a sign that said "Wanted. Shoeshine Boy."

ESTEBAN went into the shop. An old shoemaker was sitting at a bench repairing shoes.

"I'd like to be your shoeshine boy," said Esteban.

The old shoemaker looked Esteban

up and down. "You're pretty small," he said finally. "Do you think you can shine all these shoes?"

Esteban looked in the corner where there was a great hill of shoes waiting to be shined.

"Oh, yes," he said cheerfully. "Watch and see."

And he sat down immediately and began to polish the shoes. But he never before polished shoes and it was dark in the corner and the very first thing he did was take a pair of black shoes and give them a splendid shine with brown polish.

When the shoemaker saw this he cried out. "What a careless boy you are! You can't shine shoes!"

Esteban said, "If I can't shine shoes perhaps I can do something else. Let me be your errand boy."

"Very well," said the cobbler. "Take this dollar to the factory and get some shoestrings."

Esteban put the dollar in his pocket and rushed away. But it was Christmas time and the streets were filled with wonderful Christmas decorations. Esteban stopped a hundred times to see a hundred marvelous things. When he finally got to the factory he reached in his pocket for the dollar to pay for the string and the pocket was empty. He had lost the money on the way.

HE WENT back empty handed to the cobbler and the cobbler said furiously, "Go away! I'm through with you!"

Esteban sat on a bench and began to cry.

"Oh, stop sniffing," said the cobbler pityingly. "Here, see if you can deliver these slippers. They were sent for repair from the Castle on the Hill. No one has called for them and you may as well deliver them."

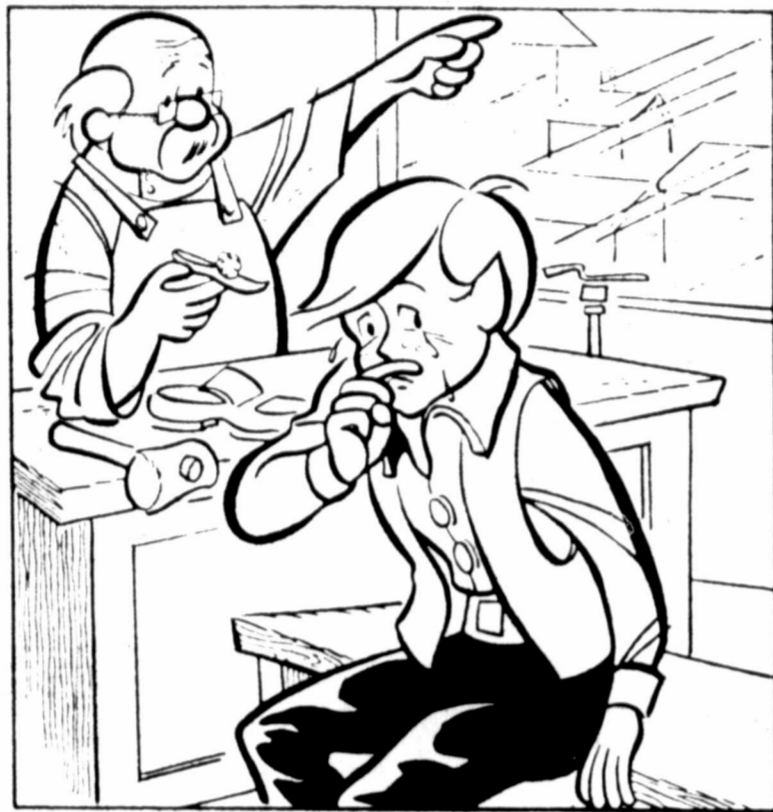

Esteban snatched the slippers eagerly and rushed into the street. He pulled a slipper on each hand like a glove. Suddenly he stopped.

There was something in one of the slippers. He pulled out a tightly folded slip of paper. He opened it and read:

"If you believe in fairies, help me before it is too late!"

Esteban exclaimed in astonishment and ran all the way back to the cobbler's shop.

(Tomorrow: The Castle)

"Try to deliver these slippers," said the old cobbler.

Man Working To Change Christmas Celebrations

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Bob Kochitzky says he is appalled at the commercialism of Christmas, and he's working to do something to change the way the holiday is celebrated.

Kochitzky began his personal rebellion by redirecting the nature of celebrations within his own family, and how he's working through Alternatives, a non-profit organization he started dedicated to bringing love and personal involvement into celebrations.

"We're not against gift giving," he said. "But gifts don't have to be expensive, inappropriate or even bought. They can be handmade, or gifts of time, sharing a skill with somebody. The best wedding gift I heard of was teaching a bride how to cook."

When Kochitzky left seminary at Southern Methodist University in the early 1960s, he said, he was appalled by what struck him as the outrageous commercial approach to Christmas.

"I realized how I had been manipulated by guilt, peer pressure and advertising influence into becoming a tool of year-end profits," he said. "I just wanted to kick the commercial Christmas habit."

"I did, by making contributions to organizations ending war, racism and hunger in the names of my mother, father, sister and brother."

"What I did was reinvent ways of celebrating birthdays for children as a new family came along. Ten years later I discovered I had developed a practical philosophy of celebrating that's less polluting and more sensitive to the earth and the family."

Kochitzky began Alternatives in 1973, scraping together $1,500 from friends in Jackson to publish a 58-page "alternative celebration" catalog for Christmas.

Alternatives now has an annual budget of about $100,000, with half the money coming from quarterly newsletters and catalog sales and the remainder from church grants. It operates a bookstore in suburban Atlanta, has a media representative in Washington and a staff of five, three of them paid, in Jackson.

This year Alternatives is sponsoring a contest, "The Best and Worst Christmas Gift Contest." Each of the two winners will receive a $500 prize, to be donated to a charity of their choice.

For his own brother and sister, Kochitzky is preparing an hour-long recording of recollections of their deceased parents by their family friends.

"This will take a lot more time than buying a $25 gift," he said. "It'll be a treasure."

Experts Condemn Toy Chests

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Government safety investigators say at least 16 children have been killed in recent years in accidents involving toy chests with lids which can fall.

There also have been serious injuries, including brain damage, caused by oxygen starvation.

In all cases, according to a staff report of the Consumer Product Safety Commission, the lid fell on the child's neck as he or she leaned into the chest. The child choked before the accident was noticed.

The commission's records show 16 deaths since 1972, not including any accidents that might have occurred this year, and two cases of brain damage where the child was rescued before death.

If anything, one commission investigator said, the number of deaths is probably underreported.

The same accident pattern continues to emerge with toy chests, a staff memo says.

The situation was described in a report to the commission on a continuing investigation. The agency has not decided whether it should take some action on the matter.

The Food and Drug Administration, which had jurisdiction over product safety before the commission was formed, once proposed safety rules for toy chests against cuts, pinches and possible suffocation in cases where a child crawled inside the chest.

The falling lid problem was not covered.

The CPSC scrapped the FDA Proposal in a housekeeping move earlier this year.

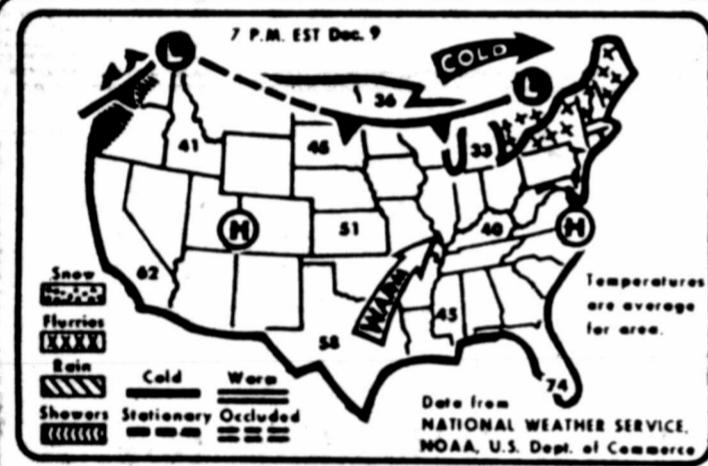

The toy chest problem, according to commission investigators, mainly involves very small children — those able to walk or crawl but not well enough coordinated to avoid trouble.

The investigator said some currently available chests have friction hinges that allow the lid to close gradually. But the best advice, the investigator added, may be to remove the lid entirely or find a different kind of chest such as a wicker laundry hamper.

PRIME MINISTER RETURNS

TOKYO (AP) — Prime Minister Masayoshi Ohira returned home Sunday after a five-day visit to China and talks with Chinese leaders on ways of strengthening relations between Tokyo and Peking.

Ohira, who was accompanied by Foreign Minister Saburo Okita, told a news conference in Peking Friday that Japan and China agreed to contribute to stability and peace in Asia and the world despite differences in their positions.

Front To End Fair Weather Wednesday

Lubbock area residents should plan for unseasonably warm and pleasant weather the first of this week, but can expect to be pulling out coats again by Wednesday as a cold front pushes into the area.

Temperatures reached to 65 on Sunday, but forecasters say the mercury will climb even higher today. The afternoon high is expected to nudge past the 70 mark before dipping into the upper 30s tonight and then reaching into the upper 60s on Tuesday.

Around midweek, however, temperatures should be much colder as a chance for rain, possibly mixed with snow, enters the forecast. Overnight readings may fall as low as 20 and afternoon highs only are expected to climb to around 50.

Sunday's mild readings were accompanied with sunny skies in the afternoon, after pushing away a blanket of fog that covered the city during morning hours. Winds were from the west and southwest at 5 to 10 mph.

Forecasters predict winds will be from the southwest today at 10 to 20 mph.

HEARTLINE: I heard on the news that Andrew Young was just recently appointed an associate commissioner of Social Security. Is this the same Andrew Young who was recently with the United Nations? — N.M.
No, this is a different Andrew Young.

Stanford G. Ross, commissioner of Social Security, announced on Oct. 19 the appointment of Andrew J. Young as associate commissioner of the Office of Hearings and Appeals of the Social Security Administration. Young has been HEW regional attorney in Seattle since 1971.

A graduate of the University of Washington School of Law in 1962, Young was assistant attorney general for the state of Washington for four years before going into private practice. In 1970, HEW created a regional office in Seattle and Young later became its regional attorney.

In this position, he furnished legal advice on all Social Security and other HEW program litigation and developments in a four-state area.

At SSA, Young will head an office of 4,300 employees — including 650 administrative law judges — that handled nearly 225,000 requests for hearings during the past fiscal year.

Young is a member of the National Bar Association and state and local bar associations. He has been active in the Seattle branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, the Washington State Board for Community College Education and various activities associated with the University of Washington School of Law.

HEARTLINE: Back in October, the Social Security Advisory Council made public certain recommendations to reduce Social Security's reliance on payroll taxes. I have not been able to find out much about this. Can you tell me who the chairman of that council is and give me some more details? — P.A.

In October 1979, the Social Security Advisory Council offered its recommendation to reduce Social Security's reliance on payroll taxes to Congress. The chairman of the council, Henry Aaron, told the House's Social Security Subcommittee that Medicare should be funded with earmarked revenues from the individual income tax and matched by revenues from the corporate income tax. He said that the council unanimously rejected the use of a value-added tax to finance Social Security.

Under the council's proposal, the 6.13 percent total (including Medicare) payroll tax would be reduced to 5.6 percent. Increases in the Old Age Survivors Disability and Hospital Insurance (OASDI) rate to 6.65 percent in 1981 and 6.7 percent in 1982 would also be rescinded by the proposal. The council also advised against putting into effect scheduled increases in the earnings base on which Social Security taxes are levied. The base this year is $22,900, but is scheduled to increase to $25,900 in 1980 and $27,700 in 1981. Further increases in the base, Aaron said, should be limited to the extent necessary to maintain a 1979 level of total wages covered, about 90 percent in 1979.

Gas Shortages Could Develop

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The nation's primary stocks of gasoline are less than one day's supply above the level at which spot shortages could develop, the Lundberg Letter reported Sunday.

And, gasoline allocations to dealers are more than 19 percent below gasoline use in December 1977, the Los Angeles-based oil industry newsletter said.

The influential weekly letter outlined several other facts about gasoline supplies that it said were "sobering," even though there has been a slight increase in allocations compared with the past two months.

The publication bases its figures on analysis of oil company announcements and surveys of thousands of dealers.

"Prospects in general are sobering," the letter said because the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries at a meeting Dec. 17 in Caracas, Venezuela, is expected to increase the price ceiling on its members' crude oil exports above the current $23.50 per barrel. National gasoline consumption at the end of 1979 is expected to be 5 percent below the end of 1978, including a 7.4-percent cutback in the last half of the year, said Mark Lundberg, the Lundberg Letter's editor-in-chief.

U.S. oil companies are releasing 293 million gallons of gasoline daily this month, compared with 288 million gallons released daily in November, the letter said.

Primary stocks of fuel — finished products at refineries, in pipelines and large terminal holdings of 50,000 barrels or more — stood at 224 million barrels on Nov. 30, the American Petroleum Institute reported. That compared with the Energy Department's "minimum acceptable level" of 219 million barrels for that date, the letter said.

Conservation goals announced by the Energy Department recently were described in the letter as "mild." The goals include limiting national consumption to 7 million barrel daily next year.

The significance of the national conservation drive is not in the level of U.S. gasoline consumption it sets, but rather in the preparation of the public for greater sacrifice in the future, the letter stated. "The effects of the Iranian embargo have not yet been felt, and a cushion is highly desirable."

December's gasoline allocations to dealers were 19.3 percent below December 1977, the base-period set by the Department of Energy that oil companies use in figuring monthly allocations.

This month's allocations are 6.7 percent below December 1978, the letter said. The November 1979 allocations were 10.2 percent below November 1978, and October's supply was 7.4 percent below October 1978.

Q. I became self-employed as a registered nurse in July. So I was interested in the column in which you wrote that a person who is not covered by an employer-sponsored retirement plan can set up her own individual retirement account (IRA) and put away up to $1,500 a year, tax-free.

A. At almost any bank, savings and loan association or federally insured credit union, if you happen to belong to the latter. Those institutions have IRAs in which your money would be put into savings certificates.

Insurance and annuity companies have IRAs, as do most mutual funds. A number of brokerage firms have "self-directed" IRAs in which your money would be put into stocks you pick.

U.S. Individual Retirement Bonds, issued by the U.S. Treasury, are also intended for IRA use. Some people like them, because there is no risk involved. I don't recommend them, because of low yields and restrictive terms.

But, rather than an IRA, you should consider a Keogh account. An IRA can be used by anyone who is not currently covered by another retirement plan. A Keogh plan can be used only by a self-employed person.

You can put 15 percent of your earned income, up to $1,500 a year — $1,750 if you're married and your spouse has no income — into an IRA. With a Keogh plan, however, you can put in 15 percent of your self-employed income, up to $7,500 a year.

With either an IRA or a Keogh plan, you don't pay income taxes on the money you put in. Nor do you pay income taxes on the money your money earns in interest and/or dividends. You pay taxes only when you start drawing that money out — normally after retirement.

As a registered nurse, I would expect that you will earn more than enough each year to make a Keogh plan a much better deal for you. And, assuming you are a young woman looking for a retirement investment that will grow in value, my suggestion is to investigate no-load mutual funds as your Keogh vehicle.

Q. In February and March 1978, I purchased six different bonds. A list is enclosed. Four were issued by utilities and pay interest ranging from 8.375 percent to 9.75 percent. The other two are tax-free municipal bonds and pay lower interest.

A. I did this because my broker assured me that these are "safe" investments which had better yields than savings certificates. What I did not realize was that I could not redeem these bonds at any time and receive their face values.

If I sell these bonds now, I will receive a good deal less than I paid. Are these good investments? Should I sell, take my loss and put my money in a money market mutual fund?

A. Yes, those bonds you listed have to be counted as good investments for people who want income. When you bought them, you started receiving just about the highest rates of interest then available from good quality bonds at that time.

Since then, of course, interest rates in general have gone up. As a result, the market prices of bonds already issued and paying lower interest than is now available have come down. If you sell, you'll have to accept the current lower than you paid market prices of those bonds.

And, by putting the money from the sale of your bonds into money market mutual funds, your income won't be any higher than the interest you receive from the bonds you now hold.

My advice is to keep your bonds. When interest rates come down — as they eventually will — the interest you collect from those bonds will look mighty good.

Flouride May Prevent Senility

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — High levels of fluoride in drinking water, commonly used to prevent tooth decay, may provide protection against a type of senility, says the chief of neurology at a state psychiatric facility.

Dr. Charles Still of the William S. Hall Psychiatric Institute says his study suggests the incidence of senile dementia may be about five times higher in communities with low-fluoride water supplies.

Senile dementia affects an estimated 4 percent of the nation's population over 65 years old, causing progressive deterioration of mental functions.

Still said in an interview in Sunday's Greenville News that he based his findings on an examination of state mental hospital records for the 10-year period that ended June 30, 1979. He said he looked specifically for patients over age 55 admitted for senile dementia and any of about 28 other diagnoses in the category of "organic brain syndrome."

He said he compared admissions from Anderson and York counties, which have low levels of water fluoride, and Horry County, where the water supply has a naturally high fluoride content.

Still said he found the annual incidence of senile dementia in Horry County to be 3.6 percent per 100,000 population, while in Anderson and York counties the rate was 20.8 and 17.1, respectively.

These startling findings support the hypothesis that water fluoride concentrations do exert a protective effect against the development of progressive degenerative dementia.

He said fluoride hinders the body's absorption of aluminum compounds and that some medical experts believe senile dementia is caused by a chronic buildup of aluminum in brain cells.

Even if his conclusion from the study proves correct, Still said, a federal Environmental Protection Agency order may block its benefits.

A number of South Carolina communities along the coast have extremely high levels of natural fluoride in their water supplies.

The EPA has said that while small amounts of fluoride help prevent tooth decay, the high levels in those communities harm teeth. The EPA has ordered about 60 communities to install equipment to reduce fluoride levels by Jan. 1, 1981.

Still said the EPA should delay its order until further studies can be made.

If fluoride does prove a deterrent, the EPA directive could be "setting the stage for a much worse outbreak of senile dementia in 28 or 30 years," he said.

Lewis Shaw of the state Department of Health and Environmental Control said the EPA has refused a DHEC request to extend the compliance deadline until more research can be done.

He said Still's study did not prompt the request, but that it is "one of the more interesting things to come up since we've been looking at this."

Still said he presented his findings at a recent meeting of the Gerontological Society in Washington, D.C.

His report, co-written by Paul Kelley, a second-year student at the University of South Carolina School of Medicine, is to be published in an upcoming issue of the journal "Neurotoxicology."

Americans Recognize Problem

NEW YORK (UPI) — Americans finally realize the economy has serious problems and most acknowledge there is no easy way out, a survey of the country's business and financial editors shows.

Hill and Knowlton Inc.'s annual survey of 143 business editors of large and small circulation newspapers, television and major business periodicals shows that most believe inflation will be the most important issue of 1980.

More than 65 percent of the editors felt inflation would be the nation's most important issue during 1980, provided there are no new international upheavals. Of the remainder, 25 percent voted for energy while 10 percent mentioned problems associated with government regulation.

Changing attitudes of Americans were cited as a "bright spot" by a consensus of the editors. A number felt, as one editor put it: "People are becoming aware that austerity may possibly become a way of life. That might be a healthy thing, not spending so much."

Another said Americans are "finally realizing that we have serious problems with our economy. You have to be aware that a problem exists before you can start solving it."

The editors were not optimistic about the economy for the coming year. More than 75 percent believe that there will be a slowdown, and 65 percent believe it will last throughout the year.

The minority view — 14 percent look for a better economy — is that business has prepared for a worse slowdown than will actually occur, thus making the recovery easier.

A consensus is that high interest rates will have serious negative effects on the economy, at least in the short-term.

Inflation was the most frequently mentioned problem by editors who think the economy will decline.

Many think the nation will make some dent in inflation as the "stringent monetary policies of the Federal Reserve begin to take effect," but they look for it to remain in the double-digit range.

Nationally, the editors believe that energy is a long-term problem and secondary to inflation, and, in this vein, they believe that price currently is more of a problem than supply.

Wolf Trap Guest House

Gutted In Weekend Fire

WASHINGTON (AP) — A weekend fire gutted a guest house on the grounds of Wolf Trap Farm, the national park for the performing arts in suburban Fairfax, Va., and caused more than $150,000 in damages, U.S. Park Police say.

The Fairfax County Fire Department battled the blaze Saturday night after a motorist saw the fire and reported it on his CB radio.

The guest house, known as the Composers Cottage, sits directly behind the Wolf Trap Theater, where many summer entertainments are held.

Experts Predict Shallow Recession

NEW YORK (UPI) — The U.S. economy is in the midst of a shallow recession that will see next year's consumer prices increase 10.5 percent and unemployment average 7.2 percent, a prestigious economists group said Sunday.

A slow recovery will begin in mid-1980 following declines of 1.7 percent in real economic output this quarter, 1.8 percent in the first quarter next year and 0.5 percent in the second quarter, the Economic Forum said in year-end predictions.

The recession foreseen by the Economic Forum is shallow, and gives way to a shallow recovery, said Albert T. Sommers, chairman of the group, sponsored by the Conference Board, a business research organization.

It is entirely clear that the group treats inflation as the overwhelming issue of 1980, outweighing the cyclical potential for recession that lies ahead. Government budgetary and regulatory programs are identified among the principal causes of inflation.

Calling for a balanced federal budget in the anti-inflation fight, members of the forum said they favored a moratorium on environmental legislation and deregulation of energy companies.

Most forum members also recommended substantial reductions in business taxes, removal of excise and payroll taxes, and altered financing approaches for the Social Security system.

They said minimum wage provisions should be contained or removed, private sector employment should be encouraged by tax incentives, and social programs should be revamped to remove work disincentives.

None of the forum's 12 economists and business analysts predicted a recession approaching the near 10 percent growth declines experienced in late 1974 and early 1975.

On the other hand, only one of the 12 sees a substantial recession recovery in 1980 and the average forecast is for very slow increases in real gross national product of 1.4 percent in the 1980 third quarter and 2.8 percent in the final three months next year.

On almost all counts, the forum's latest forecast for 1980 economic performance is more pessimistic than predicted last July. Sommers said this reflected the later appearance of the recession that previously expected, so 1980 alone will bear the brunt of the recession rather than having it spread over parts of two years.

Among the other 1980 predictions of the forum:

•Producer prices, which later are transmitted to the consumer price level, will climb 11.5 percent.

•Corporate profits will total $193.1 billion, a drop of 2.7 percent from the 1979 estimate.

•Industrial production will slump 1.8 percent, compared with a predicted gain of 3.9 percent in 1979.

Recession 'Probable'

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — The U.S. economy is following the pattern of a typical business recession and the probability of a deeper recession is rising, according to a University of Michigan economist.

Ross Wilhelm of Michigan's graduate business school said people who argue that the present recession will be mild are incorrectly assuming that capital goods investment and business spending will continue at present levels.

Wilhelm contends that business investment and production show signs of weakening and could pull the nation into a deeper recession.

The "unprecedented" consumer demand that helped end the 1975 recession seems to be missing this year, with retail sales down between 12 and 14 percent, said Wilhelm.

He said the decline in retail sales has been spread across all categories of consumer purchasing and cannot be attributed solely to gasoline shortages, high gasoline prices or a reduction in the sale of big cars. "Consumers are very pessimistic and are retrenching," Wilhelm said. He said the rise in the country's gross national product in the third quarter of 1979 is deceptive.

"Much of the third-quarter rise came from added automobile sales at distress prices and government stimulation of construction," Wilhelm noted. "Both indicate weakness, not strength."

Despite the drop in consumer spending, Wilhelm said business production and investment have so far remained fairly steady, preventing a rise in unemployment.

Wilhelm said, however, that there is a limit to how much business can add to inventories as long as sales continue to drop.

General Motors Head Predicts Sales to Stabilize In 1980

DETROIT (UPI) — General Motors Corp. Chairman Thomas Murphy, still optimistic about the nation's economy, said Sunday he believes 1980 will be a mirror image of 1979 for the troubled auto industry.

While 1979 started strong and finished weak in car sales, the coming year will gain strength from its current low point, he said.

Barring further adverse developments in the Middle East and assuming continued responsible price action by the OPEC countries, automobile sales should stabilize in 1980 and strengthen as the year progresses, Murphy said.

Deliveries for the year as a whole could approximate the 1979 total, with the selling rate in the latter part of the year at substantially higher levels. This assumes, of course, the avoidance of gasoline availability problems.

Sales of new vehicles in 1979 are expected to drop 8 percent from 1978 to 10.6 million cars and 3.5 million trucks. After a strong start early this year, sales deteriorated steadily. In November, the selling rate was 20 percent behind last year.

Murphy said there are many indications that the current economic downturn will not be as severe as the 1974-75 recession it is now beginning to resemble.

•Businessmen have cautiously avoided building up excessive inventories.

$500 Million Profit Netted

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — A Saudi Arabian prince and a Texas billionaire brought together by a love for Arabian stallions teamed up to speculate in silver and have piled up $500 million in profits, an Arab magazine disclosed Sunday.

The magazine, An Nahar Arab Report, said Bunker Hunt of Dallas and Prince Abdullah bin Abdul Aziz got together through the prince's hobby of buying and breeding pure-bred Arabian stallions, a passionate interest shared by the wealthy Texan.

They soon discovered they had more in common than just thoroughbreds.

Discussions with Bunker Hunt over the future prospects for precious metals convinced Prince Abdullah of the inevitability of a major increase in the price of silver in 1979 and 1980, the magazine said.

The magazine said Hunt, an oilman and the son of the famous Texas billionaire H.L. Hunt, felt that silver was undervalued when judged by its use in industry and compared with the industrial market for gold.

He persuaded Abdullah, commander of the Saudi Arabian national guard and the third most powerful man in Saudi Arabia after King Khalid and Prince Fahd, to join him in setting up a "common fund" with the specific purpose of buying and holding silver for sale only after the price reached $25 per ounce at the end of 1979 or early 1980.

The size of the fund cannot be assessed with accuracy, but an educated guess puts the figure at $500 million for equity financing, the magazine said.

The bulk of the bullion bought by Hunt and Abdullah has been moved in specially chartered planes from the United States to Switzerland and Britain.

meaning production downturns could be less steep.

•The world economy should continue to expand in 1980, acting as a "sustaining force" for the U.S. economy.

•The 1980 OPEC oil price increase is expected to be "significantly below the 70 percent increase experienced this far in 1979, assuming no severe cutbacks in production occur.

•Economic policies by the Federal Reserve and the Carter Administration should bring increases in the consumer price index down to the single-digit range.

•Business investment spending is expected to remain comparatively strong in the energy, aerospace, communications and automobile industries.

•With overall employment is expected to remain strong enough to prevent a sharp drop in consumer spending.

In conclusion, more than the usual amount of risk is associated with the outlook for the year ahead, given the uncertainties surrounding energy availability and price," Murphy said. "The unsettled situation in the Middle East, particularly in Iran, must moderate before the full potential of the U.S. economy can be realized."

However, based on the currently discernable economic factors in the outlook for 1980, there is reason for cautious optimism.

Santa and the Elf Boy

(SYNOPSIS: Esteban, a happy elf has been banished from Fairyland because he always failed the tests given him by the Queen Fairy. The Queen took away his wings and now he is a three-toed boy.)

Chapter Three

SHOESHINE BOY

ESTEBAN looked around in astonishment. The Queen Fairy and Santa Claus and all the Fairyland folk had vanished. He looked down at his big feet and long legs.

"I'm a giant!" he exclaimed.

He wasn't a giant, of course. In fact, he was a very small boy. But if you've been an elf all your life and you suddenly turn into a boy, you feel like a giant.

He reached over his shoulders to see if his elf wings were really gone.

"Why here they are!" he cried. "I still have my wings."

But it wasn't his wings that he felt at all. It was the wings of the little blue bird Santa had given him. Esteban lifted the bird from his shoulders and put her inside his shirt.

"Take good care of your wings," he whispered. "We may need them before I get mine back."

Then he sighed and began his journey away from Fairyland.

For a long time, he walked until at last he came to a town. In the window of a cobbler's shop he saw a sign that said "Wanted, Shoeshine Boy."

ESTEBAN went into the shop. An old shoemaker was sitting at a bench repairing shoes.

"I'd like to be your shoeshine boy," said Esteban.

The old shoemaker looked Esteban

up and down. "You're pretty small," he said finally. "Do you think you can shine all these shoes?"

Esteban looked in the corner where there was a great hill of shoes waiting to be shined.

"Oh, yes," he said cheerfully. "Watch and see."

And he sat down immediately and began to polish the shoes. But he never before polished shoes and it was dark in the corner and the very first thing he did was take a pair of black shoes and give them a splendid shine with brown polish.

When the shoemaker saw this he cried out. "What a careless boy you are! You can't shine shoes!"

Esteban said, "If I can't shine shoes perhaps I can do something else. Let me be your errand boy."

"Very well," said the cobbler. "Take this dollar to the factory and get some shoestrings."

Esteban put the dollar in his pocket and rushed away. But it was Christmas time and the streets were filled with wonderful Christmas decorations. Esteban stopped a hundred times to see a hundred marvelous things. When he finally got to the factory he reached in his pocket for the dollar to pay for the string and the pocket was empty. He had lost the money on the way.

HE WENT back empty handed to the cobbler and the cobbler said furiously. "Go away! I'm through with you!"

Esteban sat on a bench and began to cry.

"Oh, stop sniffing," said the cobbler pityingly. "Here, see if you can deliver these slippers. They were sent for repair from the Castle on the Hill. No one has called for them and you may as well deliver them."

Esteban snatched the slippers eagerly and rushed into the street. He pulled a slipper on each hand like a glove. Suddenly he stopped.

There was something in one of the slippers. He pulled out a tightly folded slip of paper. He opened it and read: "If you believe in fairies, help me before it is too late!"

Esteban exclaimed in astonishment and ran all the way back to the cobbler's shop.

Man Working To Change Christmas Celebrations

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Bob Kochtitzky says he is appalled at the commercialism of Christmas, and he's working to do something to change the way the holiday is celebrated.

Kochtitzky began his personal rebellion by redirecting the nature of celebrations within his own family, and how he's working through Alternatives, a non-profit organization he started dedicated to bringing love and personal involvement into celebrations.

"We're not against gift giving," he said. "But gifts don't have to be expensive, inappropriate or even bought. They can be handmade, or gifts of time, sharing a skill with somebody. The best wedding gift I heard of was teaching a bride how to cook."

When Kochtitzky left seminary at Southern Methodist University in the early 1960s, he said, he was appalled by what struck him as the outrageous commercial approach to Christmas.

"I realized how I had been manipulated by guilt, peer pressure and advertising influence into becoming a tool of year-end profits," he said. "I just wanted to kick the commercial Christmas habit."

"I did, by making contributions to organizations ending war, racism and hunger in the names of my mother, father sister and brother.

"What I did was reinvent ways of celebrating birthdays for children as a new family came along. Ten years later I discovered I had developed a practical philosophy of celebrating that's less polluting and more sensitive to the earth and the family.

Kochtitzky began Alternatives in 1973, scraping together $1,500 from friends in Jackson to publish a 58-page "alternative celebration" catalog for Christmas.

Alternatives now has an annual budget of about $100,000, with half the money coming from quarterly newsletter and catalog sales and the remainder from church grants. It operates a bookstore in suburban Atlanta, has a media representative in Washington and a staff of five, three of them paid, in Jackson.

This year, Alternatives is sponsoring a contest, "The Best and Worst Christmas Gift Contest." Each of the two winners will receive a $500 prize, to be donated to a charity of their name.

For his own brother and sister, Kochtitzky is preparing an hour-long recording of recollections of their deceased parents by their parents' friends.

This will take a lot more time than buying a $25 gift," he said. "It'll be a treasure."

Experts Condemn Toy Chests

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Government safety investigators say at least 16 children have been killed in recent years in accidents involving toy chests with lids which can fall.

There also have been serious injuries, including brain damage, caused by oxygen starvation.

In all cases, according to a staff report of the Consumer Product Safety Commission, the lid fell on the child's neck as he or she leaned into the chest. The child choked before the accident was noticed.

The commission's records show 16 deaths since 1972, not including any accidents that might have occurred this year, and two cases of brain damage where the child was rescued before death.

If anything, one commission investigator said, the number of deaths is probably underreported.

The same accident pattern continues to emerge with toy chests, a staff memo says.

The situation was described in a report to the commission on a continuing investigation. The agency has not decided whether it should take some action on the matter.

The Food and Drug Administration, which had jurisdiction over product safety before the commission was formed once proposed safety rules for toy chests.

The FDA proposals involved guards against cuts, pinches and possible suffocation in cases where a child crawled in side the chest.

The falling lid problem was not covered.

The CPSC scrapped the FDA Proposal in a housekeeping move earlier this year.

The toy chest problem, according to commission investigators, mainly involves very small children — those able to walk or crawl but not well enough coordinated to avoid trouble.

The investigator said some currently available chests have friction hinges that allow the lid to close gradually. But the best advice, the investigator added, may be to remove the lid entirely or find a different kind of chest, such as a wicker laundry hamper.

PRIME MINISTER RETURNS
TOKYO (AP) — Prime Minister Masayoshi Ohira returned home Sunday after a five-day visit to China and talks with Chinese leaders on ways of strengthening relations between Tokyo and Peking. Ohira, who was accompanied by Foreign Minister Saburo Okita, told a news conference in Peking Friday that Japan and China agreed to contribute to stability and peace in Asia and the world despite differences in their positions.

Data from NATIONAL WEATHER SERVICE, NOAA, U.S. Dept. of Commerce

WEATHER FORECAST — Snow is predicted today in northern New England, across New York state and in the upper Missouri Valley, according to the National Weather Service. Rain is forecast for Utah and parts of Nevada, Washington, Texas and Florida. (AP Laserphoto)

Front To End Fair Weather Wednesday

Lubbock area residents should plan for unseasonably warm and pleasant weather the first of this week, but can expect to be pulling out coats again by Wednesday as a cold front pushes into the area.

Temperatures reached to 65 on Sunday, but forecasters say the mercury will climb even higher today. The afternoon high is expected to nudge past the 70 mark before dipping into the upper 30s tonight and then reaching into the upper 60s on Tuesday.

Around midweek, however, temperatures should be much colder as a chance for rain, possibly mixed with snow, enters the forecast. Overnight readings may fall as low as 20 and afternoon highs only are expected to climb to around 50.

Sunday's mild readings were accompanied with sunny skies in the afternoon, after pushing away a blanket of fog that covered the city during morning hours. Winds were from the west and southwest at 5 to 10 mph.

Forecasters predict winds will be from the southwest today at 10 to 20 mph.

HEARTLINE: I heard on the news that Andrew Young was just recently appointed an associate commissioner of Social Security. Is this the same Andrew Young who was recently with the United Nations? — N.M.

No, this is a different Andrew Young.

Stanford G. Ross, commissioner of Social Security, announced on Oct. 19 the appointment of Andrew J. Young as associate commissioner of the Office of Hearings and Appeals of the Social Security Administration. Young has been HEW regional attorney in Seattle since 1971.

A graduate of the University of Washington School of Law in 1962, Young was assistant attorney general for the state of Washington for four years before going into private practice. In 1970, HEW created a regional office in Seattle and Young later became its regional attorney.

In this position, he furnished legal advice on all Social Security and other HEW program litigation and developments in a four-state area.

At SSA, Young will head an office of 4,300 employees — including 650 administrative law judges — that handled nearly 225,000 requests for hearings during the past fiscal year.

Young is a member of the National Bar Association and state and local bar associations. He has been active in the Seattle branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, the Washington State Board for Community College Education and various activities associated with the University of Washington School of Law.

HEARTLINE: Back in October, the Social Security Advisory Council made public certain recommendations to reduce Social Security's reliance on payroll taxes. I have not been able to find out much about this. Can you tell me who the chairman of that council is and give me some more details? — P.A.

In October 1979, the Social Security Advisory Council offered its recommendation to reduce Social Security's reliance on payroll taxes to Congress. The chairman of the council, Henry Aaron, told the House's Social Security Subcommittee that Medicare should be funded with earmarked revenues from the individual income tax and matched by revenues from the corporate income tax. He said that the council unanimously rejected the use of a value-added tax to finance Social Security.

Under the council's proposal, the 6.13 percent total (including Medicare) payroll tax would be reduced to 5.6 percent. Increases in the Old Age Survivors Disability and Hospital Insurance (OASDI) rate to 6.65 percent in 1981 and 6.7 percent in 1982 would also be rescinded by the proposal. The council also advised against putting into effect scheduled increases in the earnings base on which Social Security taxes are levied. The base this year is $22,900, but is scheduled to increase to $25,900 in 1980 and $27,700 in 1981. Further increases in the base, Aaron said, should be limited to the extent necessary to maintain a 1979 level of total wages covered, about 90 percent in 1979.

Gas Shortages Could Develop

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The nation's primary stocks of gasoline are less than one day's supply above the level at which spot shortages could develop, the Lundberg Letter reported Sunday.

And, gasoline allocations to dealers are more than 19 percent below gasoline use in December 1977, the Los Angeles-based oil industry newsletter said.

The influential weekly letter outlined several other facts about gasoline supplies that it said were "sobering," even though there has been a slight increase in allocations compared with the past two months.

The publication bases its figures on analysis of oil company announcements and surveys of thousands of dealers.

"Prospects in general are sobering," the letter said because the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries at a meeting Dec. 17 in Caracas, Venezuela, is expected to increase the price ceiling on its members' crude oil exports above the current $23.50 per barrel. National gasoline consumption at the end of 1979 is expected to be 5 percent below the end of 1978, including a 7.4-percent cutback in the last half of the year, said Mark Lundmond, the Lundberg Letter's editor-in-chief.

U.S. oil companies are releasing 293 million gallons of gasoline daily this month, compared with 288 million gallons released daily in November, the letter said.

Primary stocks of fuel — finished products at refineries, in pipelines and large terminal holdings of 50,000 barrels or more — stood at 224 million barrels on Nov. 30, the American Petroleum Institute reported. That compared with the Energy Department's "minimum acceptable level" of 219 million barrels for that date, the letter said.

Conservation goals announced by the Energy Department recently were described in the letter as "mild." The goals include limiting national consumption to 7 million barrel daily next year.

"The significance of the national conservation drive is not in the level of U.S. gasoline consumption it sets, but rather in the preparation of the public for greater sacrifice in the future," the letter stated. "The effects of the Iranian embargo have not yet been felt, and a cushion is highly desirable."

December's gasoline allocations to dealers were 19.3 percent below December 1977, the base-period set by the Department of Energy that oil companies use in figuring monthly allocations.

This month's allocations are 6.7 percent below December 1978, the letter said. The November 1979 allocations were 10.2 percent below November 1978, and October's supply was 7.4 percent below October 1978.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q. I became self-employed as a registered nurse in July. So I was interested in the column in which you wrote that a person who is not covered by an employer-sponsored retirement plan can set up her own individual retirement account (IRA) and put away up to $1,500 a year, tax-free.

Where can I set up an IRA?
 A. At almost any bank, savings and loan association or federally insured credit union, if you happen to belong to the latter. Those institutions have IRAs in which your money would be put into savings certificates.

Insurance and annuity companies have IRAs, as do most mutual funds. A number of brokerage firms have "self-directed" IRAs in which your money would be put into stocks you pick.

U.S. Individual Retirement Bonds, issued by the U.S. Treasury, are also intended for IRA use. Some people like them, because there is no risk involved. I don't recommend them, because of low yields and restrictive terms.

But, rather than an IRA, you should consider a Keogh account. An IRA can be used by anyone who is not currently covered by another retirement plan. A Keogh plan can be used only by a self-employed person.

You can put 15 percent of your earned income, up to $1,500 a year — $1,750 if you're married and your spouse has no income — into an IRA. With a Keogh plan, however, you can put in 15 percent of your self-employed income, up to $7,500 a year.

With either an IRA or a Keogh plan, you don't pay income taxes on the money you put in. Nor do you pay income taxes on the money you pay income taxes on when you start drawing that money out — normally after retirement.

As a registered nurse, I would expect that you will earn more than enough each year to make a Keogh plan a much better deal for you. And, assuming you are a young woman looking for a retirement investment that will grow in value, my suggestion is to investigate no-load mutual funds as your Keogh vehicle.

Q. In February and March 1978, I purchased six different bonds. A list is enclosed. Four were issued by utilities and pay interest ranging from 8.375 percent to 9.75 percent. The other two are tax-free municipal bonds and pay lower interest.

I did this because my broker assured me that these are "safe" investments which had better yields than savings certificates. What I did not realize was that I could not redeem these bonds at any time and receive their face values.

If I sell these bonds now, I will receive a good deal less than I paid. Are these good investments? Should I sell, take my loss and put my money in a money market mutual fund?

A. Yes, those bonds you listed have to be counted as good investments for people who want income. When you bought them, you started receiving just about the highest rates of interest then available from good quality bonds at that time.

Since then, of course, interest rates in general have gone up. As a result, the market prices of bonds already issued and paying lower interest than is now available have come down. If you sell, you'll have to accept the current lower than you paid market prices of those bonds.

And, by putting the money from the sale of your bonds into money market mutual funds, your income won't be any higher than the interest you receive from the bonds you now hold.

My advice is to keep your bonds. When interest rates come down — as they eventually will — the interest you collect from those bonds will look mighty good.

Fluoride May Prevent Senility

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — High levels of fluoride in drinking water, commonly used to prevent tooth decay, may provide protection against a type of senility, says the chief of neurology at a state psychiatric facility.

Dr. Charles Still of the William S. Hall Psychiatric Institute says his study suggests the incidence of senile dementia may be about five times higher in communities with low-fluoride water supplies.

Senile dementia affects an estimated 4 percent of the nation's population over 65 years old, causing progressive deterioration of mental functions.

Still said in an interview in Sunday's Greenville News that he based his findings on an examination of state mental hospital records for the 10-year period that ended June 30, 1979. He said he looked specifically for patients over age 55 admitted for senile dementia and any of about 28 other diagnoses in the category of "organic brain syndrome."

He said he compared admissions from Anderson and York counties, which have low levels of water fluoride, and Horry County, where the water supply has a naturally high fluoride content.

Still said he found the annual incidence of senile dementia in Horry County to be 3.6 percent per 100,000 population, while in Anderson and York counties the rate was 20.8 and 17.1, respectively.

"These startling findings support the hypothesis that water fluoride concentrations do exert a protective effect against the development of progressive degenerative dementia."

He said fluoride hinders the body's absorption of aluminum compounds and that some medical experts believe senile dementia is caused by a chronic buildup of aluminum in brain cells.

Even if his conclusion from the study proves correct, Still said, a federal Environmental Protection Agency order may block its benefits.

A number of South Carolina communities along the coast have extremely high levels of natural fluoride in their water supplies.

amounts of fluoride help prevent tooth decay, the high levels in those communities harm teeth. The EPA has ordered about 60 communities to install equipment to reduce fluoride levels by Jan. 1, 1981.

Still said the EPA should delay its order until further studies can be made.

If fluoride does prove a deterrent, the EPA directive could be setting the stage for a much worse outbreak of senile dementia in 28 or 30 years," he said.

Lewis Shaw of the state Department of Health and Environmental Control said the EPA has refused a DHEC request to extend the compliance deadline until more research can be done.

He said Still's study did not prompt the request, but that it is "one of the more interesting things to come up since we've been looking at this."

Still said he presented his findings at a recent meeting of the Gerontological Society in Washington, D.C.

His report, co-written by Paul Kelley, a second-year student at the University of South Carolina School of Medicine, is to be published in an upcoming issue of the journal "Neurotoxicology."

Americans Recognize Problem

NEW YORK (UPI) — Americans finally realize the economy has serious problems and most acknowledge there is no easy way out, a survey of the country's business and financial editors shows.

Hill and Knowlton Inc.'s annual survey of 143 business editors of large and small circulation newspapers, television and major business periodicals shows that most believe inflation will be the most important issue of 1980.

More than 65 percent of the editors felt inflation would be the nation's most important issue during 1980, provided there are no new international upheavals. Of the remainder, 25 percent voted for energy while 10 percent mentioned problems associated with government regulation.

Changing attitudes of Americans were cited as a "bright spot" by a consensus of the editors. A number felt, as one editor put it, "People are becoming aware that austerity may possibly become a way of life. That might be a healthy thing, not spending so much."

Another said Americans are "finally realizing that we have serious problems with our economy. You have to be aware that a problem exists before you can start solving it."

The editors were not optimistic about the economy for the coming year. More than 75 percent believe that there will be a slowdown, and 65 percent believe it will last throughout the year.

The minority view — 14 percent look for a better economy — is that business has prepared for a worse slowdown than will actually occur, thus making the recovery easier.

A consensus is that high interest rates will have serious negative effects on the economy, at least in the short-term.

Inflation was the most frequently mentioned problem by editors who think the economy will decline.

Many think the nation will make some dent in inflation as the "stringent monetary policies of the Federal Reserve begin to take effect," but they look for it to remain in the double-digit range.

Nationally, the editors believe that energy is a long-term problem and secondary to inflation, and, in this vein, they believe that price currently is more of a problem than supply.

Wolf Trap Guest House

Gutted In Weekend Fire
 WASHINGTON (AP) — A weekend fire gutted a guest house on the grounds of Wolf Trap Farm, the national park for the performing arts in suburban Fairfax, Va., and caused more than $150,000 in damages, U.S. Park Police say.

The Fairfax County Fire Department battled the blaze Saturday night after a motorist saw the fire and reported it on his CB radio.

The guest house, known as the Composers Cottage, sits directly behind the Wolf Trap Theater, where many summer entertainments are held.

Experts Predict Shallow Recession

NEW YORK (UPI) — The U.S. economy is in the midst of a "shallow" recession that will see next year's consumer prices increase 10.5 percent and unemployment average 7.2 percent, a prestigious economists group said Sunday.

A slow recovery will begin in mid-1980 following declines of 1.7 percent in real economic output this quarter, 1.8 percent in the first quarter next year and 0.5 percent in the second quarter, the Economic Forum said in year-end predictions.

The recession foreseen by the Economic Forum is shallow, and gives way to a "shallow recovery," said Albert T. Sommers, chairman of the group sponsored by the Conference Board, a business research organization.

It is entirely clear that the group treats inflation as the overwhelming issue of 1980, outweighing the cyclical potential for recession that lies ahead. Government budgetary and regulatory programs are identified among the principal causes of inflation.

Calling for a balanced federal budget in the anti-inflation fight, members of the forum said they favored a moratorium on environmental legislation and deregulation of energy companies.

Most forum members also recommended "substantial reductions" in business taxes, removal of excise and payroll taxes, and altered financing approaches for the Social Security system.

They said minimum wage provisions should be contained or removed, private sector employment should be encouraged by tax incentives, and social programs should be revamped to remove work disincentives.

None of the forum's 12 economists and business analysts predicted a recession approaching the near 10 percent growth declines experienced in late 1974 and early 1975.

On the other hand, only one of the 12 sees a "substantial" recession recovery in 1980 and the average forecast is for very slow increases in real gross national product of 1.4 percent in the 1980 third quarter and 2.8 percent in the final three months next year.

On almost all counts, the forum's latest forecast for 1980 economic performance is more pessimistic than predicted last July. Sommers said this reflected the later appearance of the recession that previously expected, so 1980 alone will bear the brunt of the recession rather than having it spread over parts of two years.

Among the other 1980 predictions of the forum:

- Producer prices, which later are transmitted to the consumer price level, will climb 11.5 percent.
- Corporate profits will total $193.1 billion, a drop of 2.7 percent from the 1979 estimate.
- Industrial production will slump 1.8 percent, compared with a predicted gain of 3.9 percent in 1979.

Recession 'Probable'

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — The U.S. economy is following the pattern of a typical business recession and the probability of a deeper recession is rising, according to a University of Michigan economist.

Ross Wilhelm of Michigan's graduate business school said people who argue that the present recession will be mild are incorrectly assuming that capital goods investment and business spending will continue at present levels.

Wilhelm contends that business investment and production show signs of weakening and could pull the nation into a deeper recession.

The unprecedented consumer demand that helped end the 1975 recession seems to be missing this year, with retail sales down between 12 and 14 percent, said Wilhelm.

He said the decline in retail sales has been spread across all categories of consumer purchasing and cannot be attributed solely to gasoline shortages, high gasoline prices or a reduction in the sale of big cars. "Consumers are very pessimistic and are retrenching," Wilhelm said. He said the rise in the country's gross national product in the third quarter of 1979 is deceptive.

Much of the third-quarter rise came from added automobile sales at distress prices and government stimulation of construction, Wilhelm noted. "Both indicate weakness, not strength."

Despite the drop in consumer spending, Wilhelm said business production and investment have so far remained fairly steady, preventing a rise in unemployment.

Wilhelm said, however, that there is a limit to how much business can add to inventories as long as sales continue to drop.

General Motors Head Predicts Sales to Stabilize In 1980

DETROIT (UPI) — General Motors Corp. Chairman Thomas Murphy, still optimistic about the nation's economy, said Sunday he believes 1980 will be a mirror image of 1979 for the troubled auto industry.

While 1979 started strong and finished weak in car sales, the coming year will gain strength from its current low point, he said.

Barring further adverse developments in the Middle East and assuming continued responsible price action by the OPEC countries, automobile sales should stabilize in 1980 and strengthen as the year progresses, Murphy said.

Deliveries for the year as a whole could approximate the 1979 total, with the selling rate in the latter part of the year at substantially higher levels. This assumes, of course, the avoidance of gasoline-availability problems.

Sales of new vehicles in 1979 are expected to drop 8 percent from 1978 to 10.6 million cars and 3.5 million trucks. After a strong start early this year, sales deteriorated steadily. In November, the selling rate was 20 percent behind last year.

Murphy said there are many indications that the current economic downturn will not be as severe as the 1974-75 recession it is now beginning to resemble.

"Businessmen have cautiously avoided building up excessive inventories."

$500 Million Profit Netted

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — A Saudi Arabian prince and a Texas billionaire brought together by a love for Arabian stallions teamed up to speculate in silver and have piled up $500 million in profits, an Arab magazine disclosed Sunday.

The magazine, An Nahar Arab Report, said Bunker Hunt of Dallas and Prince Abdullah bin Abdel Aziz got together through the prince's hobby of buying and breeding pure-bred Arabian stallions, a passionate interest shared by the wealthy Texan.

They soon discovered they had more in common than just thoroughbreds.

Discussions with Bunker Hunt over the future prospects for precious metals convinced Prince Abdullah of the inevitability of a major increase in the price of silver in 1979 and 1980, the magazine said.

The magazine said Hunt, an oilman and the son of the famous Texas billionaire H.L. Hunt, felt that silver was undervalued when judged by its use in industry and compared with the industrial market for gold.

He persuaded Abdullah, commander of the Saudi Arabian national guard and the third most powerful man in Saudi

"PAY NO ATTENTION TO THE EMPTY THRONES, IMAM"

ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK:

Untrue Confessions

WASHINGTON—The decision by Iranian militants to show the world an alleged "secret" document which they said had been purloined from files in the occupied U.S. Embassy adds an ominous new factor in the battle of American intelligence against Soviet forgeries aimed at discrediting the U.S.

AN EDITORIAL:

A Valuable Lesson For U.S.

AMONG THE many lessons which the U.S. should learn from the Iranian confrontation is that it never pays to have too many friends—or just a few that one can count on.

WE CAN HEAR certain critics from Mexico and Canada saying that in the past U.S. has shown little or no inclination to cozy up to either its northern or southern neighbors.

AN EDITORIAL:

Inflation Spoiling Nest Eggs

SINCE THEIR infusion into the American way of life after World War II, pension funds have grown astronomically. The U.S. Labor Department currently lists 500,000 plans whose assets approach $500 billion.

THE FRENCH, who are playing it safe as usual, should be asking themselves a question. Suppose that when the Ayatollah was in exile in France, a mob loyal to the Shah had seized the French Embassy in Iran and refused to release hostages until the Ayatollah was returned to Iran for trial?

ROBERT WALTERS:

Tax Cuts Gain Ground As 'Dark Horse' Issue

WASHINGTON—Inflation and energy clearly dominate the political agenda heading into Campaign '80, but that doesn't mean the tax revolt of yesteryear has necessarily run its course.

Let Iran Have 'em

WASHINGTON—Early this year, veteran Russian watchers in the FBI counted noses sheltered in the Soviet Embassy and the Russian delegation to the United Nations and decided that 40 percent of them were intelligence agents.

...Pass It On

IN THE school districts along the Canadian border, cheerleaders even during the freezing late fall don't like slacks or leotards. It's those little miniskirts for them, they say. The usual revealing costumes are more comfortable, they aver. Vanity has nothing to do with it, they insist. Maybe.

JAY HARRIS: An Era Of Terror...

AMERICANS ARE getting a first-hand look at the new "war tactics" of the more radical element of the Third World, as well as the behind-the-scenes role of Communist Russia.

IN A PAPER on international terrorism five years ago, Brian Jenkins of the Rand Corporation posed just the type world in which we now find ourselves.

THE EVENTS which have been unfolding in Tehran seem to bear out Jenkins' theory.

IT WAS THE use of such "instant" communications that made it possible for Khomeini to blame the U.S. for the terrorist occupation of the Grand Mosque in Mecca.

AND AFTER the mobs had taken over the Embassy, the Soviets continued to beam their tirades.

SO, WHAT DOES the U.S. do about this new type of warfare?

NEWSPAPERS IN Greece—and almost certainly in other countries where the forgery never surfaced—received the phony Carter speech in the mail.

BOTH THESE efforts were crude, and neither one did American policy much if any damage. But they illustrated this point: There is no limit to the Soviet effort to "disinform" governments and peoples of the world about the perfidy of the U.S.

Varying Rewards Lure Rodeo Riders

BIG CATCH — Ryan Renner, 8, left, and his brother, Boyd, 9, caught a 45-pound catfish Sunday afternoon in the channel at Maxey Park lake. The boys had recently seen a movie about spearing fish and decided to try their luck at the lake with their own homemade wooden spear. OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — For a chance at $15,000, Art Ray pitted his 145-pound frame against the rampaging viciousness of a half-ton Brahma bull with the deceptively gentle name of Snoopy.

But to Ray, a bull rider from Keller, Texas, and to the hundreds of others in the new breed of cowboys who follow the rodeo circuit, the man against-beast challenge is one they undertake readily at the National Finals Rodeo during the week-end.

The rewards were as small as a belt buckle in some cases and as gratifying as the cheers of spectators.

To the background of a small band's fast-paced music, the wranglers mounted feisty horses and vicious bulls and tried to tie bawling calves in a matter of eight or nine seconds.

Ray meticulously tightened a rope girthed around Snoopy and lowered himself onto the beast, which reared its head back, trying to gore anyone within range, then slammed its head back and forth from the wooden door of the chute to its metal bars.

The booming low-pitched thuds of the bull's crashing head overpowered the sounds from 13,000 restless rodeo fans in Oklahoma City's Myriad Convention Center.

"You better stand back from this one, son. He's (the bull) crazy," a rodeo hand told a bystander. "They're all crazy, but this one's crazier than most."

Ray, patiently waiting for Snoopy to calm down, wrapped the ropes around his left hand, then pounded the clenched fist with his right hand to tighten his grip.

But Ray's effort to stay on Snoopy proved as futile as the bull's attempted going. He was tossed to the ground by the bucking Brahma after just three seconds, not enough time to score points in the event.

Rodeo clowns, who risk their lives for as little as $50 per performance, ran within a foot of the bull's swinging horns to distract the animal, but not before Ray was winded by a sharp kick in the chest. Stunned but not seriously injured, the battered cowboy was helped off the arena floor by two paramedics.

What causes a slender cowhand to try to ride an oversized beast that would like nothing better than to put a three-foot-long horn between someone's ribs?

"People are trying to make money at rodeoing," said five-time national All-Around Cowboy champion Tom Ferguson. "Just like I am."

But Ferguson, who tops the career money list with more than $525,000 in winnings over seven years, said it's not getting any easier.

"To win is tougher than ever before," he said. "More people are trying to make a living at it."

Sexism Charged In Toy Sales

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — The holiday season has prompted a feminist attorney to protest what she claims is the "sexist labeling" of toys in a Burbank drugstore.

Lawyer Gloria Allred showed up Saturday at the Sav-on store with several children in tow to demonstrate against signs directing shoppers to "Girls' Toys" and "Boys' Toys."

Miss Allred filed a class-action lawsuit against the chain last week in behalf of seven local children. She claims that the signs promote sex discrimination. Sav-on spokesmen could not be reached for comment over the weekend. But the youthful demonstrators were more than willing to voice their complaints.

"I like to play with basketballs, baseballs ... sports equipment," explained 11-year-old Tracy Otey. "Those are on the boys' side," the pigtailed Silver Lake resident added.

Another 11-year-old, Steve Guluzza of Canyon Country, bemoaned the fact that the hula hoops he fancies force him to shop on the "girls' side" of the aisle.

A trial to determine whether a preliminary injunction should be granted against Sav-on is set for Dec. 20 in Los Angeles Superior Court.

Miss Allred told reporters that the labeling of toys by sex "could lead to psychological problems for children." Two area psychiatrists support her claim in the suit.

"We ask Sav-on to help move history forward by removing offensive signs," Miss Allred said.

"If the signs designated what toys were for black children and which were for white children, there would be an uprising," she said. "This is really the same thing."

VESSEL SEIZED

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — A Japanese fishing vessel was seized in the Shumagin Islands for alleged violations of the United States' 200-mile territorial fishing limit, a Coast Guard spokesman reported.

Chief Ray Massey said Saturday that the Ryuho Maru No. 38 was being escorted to Kodiak Island to be turned over to the U.S. marshal's office pending prosecution. The vessel was boarded Friday after allegedly fishing illegally for halibut in the Shumagin Islands in the Aleutian Islands, he said. The vessel allegedly kept inaccurate records, including under-reporting its catch of Pacific cod.

Cartier Official Killed By Car

PARIS (AP) — Robert Hocq, who took over France's ailing Cartier jewelry firm seven years ago and revived its profits and prestige, was killed when struck by a car as he was crossing a Paris street, police reported Sunday.

They said the 62-year-old Hocq had left his office and was crossing a street near the Place Vendôme in central Paris Saturday night when he was hit. They reported the driver of the car, who was not named, was detained for questioning.

Hocq, helped by the Rothschild banking family, took over the management of Cartier in 1972 when it was in financial distress and several foreign companies had expressed interest in buying the firm. Hocq combined modern publicity techniques and emphasis on Cartier's 100 years of catering to royalty to boost the company to annual sales of about $145 million.

Lubbock Men Booked Into Jail Sunday

Two Lubbock men, one 17 and the other 21, were booked into county jail early Sunday for public intoxication and resisting arrest after an incident about 4:10 a.m. Sunday at 18th Street and Texas Avenue.

Reports show police stopped a vehicle, driven by the 21-year-old man, at 18th Street and Texas Avenue after he skidded into the intersection at 19th Street and Texas Avenue.

When the two men got out of the car, police said the driver was wobbling and smelled strongly of alcohol and attempted to place him under arrest. However, the man began struggling with police and his companion tried to free him from the officers. Both men were restrained and taken to county jail.

Police arrested a 23-year-old Lubbock man for burglary of a habitation after they found two tires and a tool kit in his car about 11:30 p.m. Saturday.

Ezell Sanders of 1802 E. 25th St. had reported that four tires and a tool kit had been taken from his home sometime between 5:30 p.m. and 10:30 p.m. Saturday.

Reports show the 23-year-old man went over to Sanders house asking for help to start his car about 10:30 p.m. When police arrived at the house to investigate the burglary, Sanders told them that he suspected the man. Police questioned the suspect about the burglary, but the man told them that another man he was with had committed the burglary. However, when police searched the suspect's car, they found two tires and a tool kit, which Sanders later identified as his property. The suspect was taken to county jail.

David Gregory of 4710 19th St. reported that $2,775 worth of jewelry was stolen from his home sometime between Tuesday night and Sunday morning.

Fran Perry of 922 41st St. told police that she is missing $1,320 worth of household goods, including a stereo system, status, guitar and camera, after a weekend break-in.

James Waller of 2110 20th St. said that thieves carried off a $500 stereo system from his home sometime between Saturday night and Sunday morning.

A 33-year-old Lubbock man was treated and later released from Health Sciences Center Hospital Saturday for a stab wound to the upper back.

The victim, Jose Cepeda of 2818 C Cornell St., refused to give police details about the incident, which reportedly occurred Saturday afternoon in the parking lot of a pool hall at 13th Street and Avenue F.

Hotel Fire Claims Fifth Life

OGDEN, Utah (AP) — A man who was treated and released after last week's fire at an Ogden hotel has died, raising the death toll to five, officials said Sunday.

Ogden police identified hotel resident McLein Craig, 47, as the fifth victim of the fire that swept through the Reed Hotel.

Craig was released from St. Benedict's Hospital after the fire but was found dead in another hotel room Saturday, police said. Police Lt. Charles Buzick said the exact cause of Craig's death had not been determined.

Buzick identified the other persons killed in the blaze as Joe Marcelino Samora, 48, Harold Wilford Jolly, 57, Ralph Arthur MacNamara, 57, and Bessy Bate-man, whose age was not given.

Robert Lee Leatherman, 63, was being held on charges of criminal homicide-manslaughter and aggravated arson. Police accuse him of building a fire in his unheated hotel room to keep warm.

Two men remained in critical condition at University Medical Center in Salt Lake City. Their identities had not been released.

In addition, Jody Gallegos, 19, was in critical condition at St. Benedict's Hospital.

U.S. Urges NATO To Approve Missile Proposal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Unless it suffers an unexpected defeat, the Carter administration will lead the NATO alliance this week into the next phase of an escalating European arms race. The prospects that the buildup can be contained through negotiations are, at best, uncertain.

The administration is prodding the alliance to vote favorably Wednesday in Brussels on a proposal to install 572 new medium-range nuclear missiles in Europe during the early 1980s.

Because of the overshadowing SALT II debate and the crisis in Iran, the proposal has received little public attention in the United States.

But it has clearly alarmed the Soviet Union, although the Soviets can be accused of having started the current race. And at least one NATO government, the Netherlands, will run the risk of being toppled if it ignores domestic opposition and approves the plan.

The 572 missiles would consist of 108 Pershing II ballistic missiles and 464 Tomahawk cruise missiles, all with enough range and accuracy to threaten targets in the Soviet Union. For the first time, such weapons would be stationed in the soil of West Germany, the Russians' ancient enemy. Others would be stationed in Great Britain, Italy, Belgium and the Netherlands, according to the plan.

Supporters of the plan say NATO needs these weapons to give it a "flexible response" to the Soviets' new generation of mobile, intermediate-range nuclear missiles, the SS-20.

The Soviets began deploying the new weapons several years ago. They now have an estimated 120 SS-20s, each with three highly accurate warheads and a range of about 2,500 miles. About two-thirds are pointed at Europe and the rest at China. American officials say the Soviets appear to be building at least 100 more SS-20 launchers.

The SS-20 and the Soviets' new intermediate-range bomber, the Backfire, pose new problems for NATO. Their range, mobility and accuracy make them far more deadly than the Soviets' 1960-intage intermediate-range weapons, the S-4 and the SS-5.

NATO still has an advantage in the overall number of nuclear warheads in Europe, with about 7,000 weapons to the Soviets' 3,500. But nearly all of the NATO weapons are short-range, battlefield missiles and planes. It has nothing to match the SS-20.

Some NATO strategists have begun to question publicly the alliance's ability to deter attacks against Europe by the SS-20. They theorize that the only real response the alliance could make was with the American strategic arsenal, based in submarines and land-based silos in the United States.

But using that arsenal would almost certainly mean all-out war and total destruction. Would the United States really risk that to protect a European ally? Some NATO planners guessed that it would not.

At best, they theorized, there would be sufficient doubt about whether the United States would retaliate to embolden the Soviets and weaken the will of the alliance to resist. The new missiles would give NATO a more realistic retaliatory threat.

Moreover, the United States agreed in SALT II to begin negotiating limits on intermediate-range weapons as part of SALT III. It also agreed to a temporary ban on ground-launched cruise missiles like the Tomahawk.

Making that ban permanent and freeing NATO capability to catch up in intermediate-range systems is sure to be a high SALT III priority for the Soviets. American planners said they wanted some chips to stack against the SS-20 during the SALT III negotiations.

So the United States pushed ahead with its plan. Last year, the Carter administration was embarrassed when the plan to deploy the neutron bomb fell apart under Soviet propaganda pressure. This year, presidential adviser David Aaron made six trips to Europe to make sure that all the details were ironed out.

The Soviets responded with another propaganda blitz. They unilaterally withdrew a division of troops from East Germany. They promised an unspecified reduction in medium-range missiles if NATO rejected the plan, although that reduction could easily involve dismantling a few of the older missiles they were no longer relying on. They threatened "an appropriate response" if the program went forward.

The Soviet statements enhanced reservations already felt by arms control advocates in the United States, Denmark and other countries about the NATO program.

They advocate delaying a decision to deploy the missiles while the Soviet offer is explored. At worst, they feel, it would reveal the duplicity of the Soviet propaganda and not delay the actual stationing of the missiles, which is scheduled for 1983.

At best, they say, it might freeze or reduce the SS-20 program and still enable the alliance to catch up.

The Carter administration has responded that it would be foolhardy to negotiate with the Soviets from a position of inferiority. It offered to begin negotiations on limits or reductions after NATO made a firm decision to build and deploy the new missiles.

At present, though, the prospects for negotiations are dubious. SALT II has been deferred by the U.S. Senate, and its chances for ratification are questionable. SALT III would have a difficult time getting started if SALT II is not passed.

Moreover, the kind of missile involved in the NATO decision poses difficult new problems in arms control. Cruise missiles are small, easy to hide and readily transportable. Their launchers can be reloaded quickly and used again and again.

Arms control treaties have depended on the ability of satellites to see and count missile launchers and long-range bombers. Whether they could see and count cruise missiles is open to question.

A self-styled "citizens lobby on national security issues," New Directions, had this gloomy prediction to make on the issue last week:

"Once cruise missiles have been deployed and the Soviets have followed in our footsteps, as they inevitably will, NATO and the Warsaw Pact will be running blindfolded in a nuclear arms race without a finish line."

Health Experts To Speak

Drs. Louis Brown and Marc Gold, known nationally for their work with the handicapped and with persons who train them, will be featured speakers at a Texas Tech conference this month.

Sponsored by Texas Tech University Research and Training Center and its Technical Assistance and Development Disabilities Technical Assistance projects, the conference will be held Dec. 11-13 in the Banquet Hall of the Lubbock Civic Center.

Brown is a professor in the college of education at the University of Wisconsin. His success is based on a pragmatic approach — he believes that "if it works, use it."

Stressing the link between school and community, Brown finds the ultimate test of training to be whether the student performs the desired skills where they typically take place in the community.

President of Marc Gold Associates of Urbana, Ill., Gold has worked extensively in the field of mental retardation and has developed the "Try Another Way" approach for training persons for a wide variety of tasks.

He believes that service personnel should revise their perspectives regarding competencies of handicapped people and that "95 percent of the time when handicapped persons don't learn, it's because the teacher does not have the proper strategy to teach the desired skill."

Both men have worked as consultants, Brown with the U.S. Department of Education and the Education Testing Service in Princeton and Gold with programs throughout North America.

Darrel Rutherford, project training officer from the Texas Tech Research and Training Center, is conference logistical coordinator.

Participants will include 300-500 vocational rehabilitationists, teachers, administrators, supervisors, diagnosticians, aides, nurses and community representatives from Oklahoma, Louisiana, New Mexico, Arkansas and Texas.

All interested persons are invited to attend, and there is no registration fee for Lubbock residents.

The Research and Training Center in Mental Retardation is funded by the National Institute of Handicapped Research. The center is one of 19 in the United States, three of which specialize in the study of mental retardation.

State Not To Change Name Of Canyon

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Louse Canyon it was, and Louse Canyon it shall be, says the state board that passes judgment on Oregon geographic names.

In 1964, the Oregon Geographic Names Board renamed the chasm in the state's isolated southeastern corner "Larose Canyon." But Malheur County ranchers living near the canyon insisted it always had been and always would be Louse Canyon.

Meeting in Portland on Friday, the board decided the ranchers were right.

Researchers theorized Louse Canyon was named by a shepherd who was attacked by ticks as he passed through the canyon.

Group Details World Human Rights Violations

LONDON (AP) — Executions, arbitrary arrests and imprisonment, and staged disappearances formed a global pattern of human rights abuse in 1979, Amnesty International said Sunday in its annual year-end report.

The London-based group, which was awarded the 1977 Nobel Peace Prize for its international work on behalf of political prisoners, also praised what it called an increasing concern for rights of the individual in Europe, some African nations and Indonesia, where the government has released tens of thousands of persons imprisoned for political offenses.

The annual review also reiterated

Amnesty International's findings on the human rights situation in Iran.

While confirming again that political prisoners were tortured for 15 years under the deposed shah, it denounced the imprisonment without charge of thousands of alleged shah supporters and the execution of hundreds more after secret and summary trials under the new Islamic regime.

Amnesty's 219-page report detailed proven and alleged violations in 96 countries, including:

— The United States. Amnesty said it is investigating allegations that illegal aliens from Mexico and Mexican-Americans are "victims of systematic ill-treatment" and other claims that the prosecutions of some American Indians and blacks are politically motivated. Amnesty also said, "The large number of people under sentence of death in the United States, nearly 500 at the time of writing, continues to be a matter of great concern."

— The Soviet Union. It said political dissidents are still being sent to psychiatric institutions despite international condemnation and that Soviet authorities "continued to imprison religious and nationalist dissidents, would-be emigrants and non-conformist writers for exercising their civil and political rights."

— Egypt and Israel. Amnesty reported waves of arrests in Egypt of those opposed to the peace treaty with Israel. The Israeli government was accused of abusing Palestinians, especially in the occupied territories seized in the 1967 Middle East War.

— Latin America. The report was unreservedly harsh.

In Asia, long-term imprisonment without trial was common and political dissenters were executed in China, Nepal, Afghanistan, Taiwan, Cambodia, Pakistan and the Philippines, Amnesty said.

The group denounced a "dangerous" rise in political arrests in China, especially of activists calling for more democracy. In Vietnam, it said, at least 50,000 citizens are confined in "re-education" camps for political reasons.

Amnesty accused Afghanistan's Soviet-backed government of a "gross violation" of human rights by oppressing the population and adding tens of thousands of political prisoners to the many detained by previous regimes.

In Latin America, the report was unreservedly harsh.

It railed against political disappearances, to which Amnesty said the international community paid little attention, and said the worst offenders were Chile and Argentina, where it accused military leaders of using terrorism to keep the country in a "state of siege."

In the Central American nation of Guatemala, it said 770 unidentified bodies believed murdered were found in one cemetery alone.

In Africa, Amnesty praised the "growing concern and recognition of human rights violations" but also documented serious abuses in both black and white-ruled nations.

It singled out Equatorial Guinea and Uganda, where dictators were deposed this year, for their "total disrespect for basic standards of human rights."

Russians Accuse U. S. Of Persecution

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union on Sunday accused the United States of "persecution of dissidents" and "political assassinations" of militant blacks and Spanish-Americans.

The official news agency Tass, in a lengthy article, also dismissed as "demagogic" charges of Soviet human-right violations.

Pravda, the Communist Party newspaper, joined in the attack. It asked, "How do millions of blacks, Americans of Mexican descent, American Indians, reduced to the position of second-rate citizens, see life?"

It said presidential declarations on human rights "will not reach the prison-cells inmates, the jobless in urban slums and millions of families who are pressed down under the burden of want."

The twin assault came on the eve of International Human Rights Day.

In its annual report issued Sunday in London, Amnesty International said it is investigating charges that illegal aliens from Mexico and Mexican-Americans are "victims of systematic ill-treatment" in the United States. It said it also was probing whether the prosecution of some American-Indians and blacks is politically-motivated.

Amnesty International, which was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize in 1977, said political dissidents in the Soviet Union are still being sent to psychiatric institutions despite international condemnation.

It said the Soviet Union "continued to imprison religious and nationalist dissidents, would-be emigrants and nonconformist writers for exercising their civil and political rights."

In its dispatch, Tass cited prosecution of officials of the Church of Scientology as an example of an American human rights violation. It said the government acted after the church exposed "the dirty operations" of U.S. intelligence agencies. Nine members of the church were sentenced last week in Washington to prison terms ranging up to five years after they were convicted of conspiracy to steal Internal Revenue Service and Justice Department records.

Nations To Discuss

Curbing Oil Imports

PARIS (UPI) — The United States and other industrialized Western nations, anxious to curb unbridled oil purchases, will try to agree Monday on ways to reduce 1980 oil imports by 1 billion barrels a day, diplomats said.

That goal, which would amount to a 4 percent reduction in oil imports, is the subject of the 20-nation International Energy Agency meeting. It is designed to show unity among Western nations on energy conservation before OPEC meets in Caracas Dec. 17.

The IEA, which includes all major industrialized non-communist countries except France, will announce a reduction in each member's oil imports for 1980 with ceilings for each of them, diplomats said Sunday.

The intention is to reduce 1980 oil purchases to 24 million barrels a day from 25 million barrels this year, they said.

More than 80 percent of world oil sales are under medium-term contracts that now average about $23 a barrel.

But several Western governments — particularly the United States and France — are anxious to curb unbridled purchases on the Rotterdam or Caribbean spot markets where buyers pay over $40 per barrel, nearly twice as much as the average official OPEC price.

The spot market now handles nearly 20 percent of the world oil sales, according to experts.

The United States plans to warn Monday's IEA meeting that heavy oil purchases on spot markets at high prices may rapidly disorganize the world oil market, diplomats reported Sunday.

Diplomats said that many participants arriving for the conference feel that Japanese and West German purchases outside normal medium-term contracts with oil producers help drive up spot market prices so much that many oil countries will be tempted to sell growing parts of their production there.

The United States also was reported anxious to win a pledge from its allies they will not pay high prices for the oil Iran has for sale because of Washington's ban on Iranian oil imports.

France, which refused to join IEA, has made a major step towards a virtual association with the American-led agency's work on the eve of the session. French industry minister Andre Giraud discussed the world energy situation Sunday at lunch with U.S. energy secretary Charles Duncan.

Monday, Giraud will play host to other leading delegations at a working breakfast.

Several OPEC nations have warned that they might revise their pricing and marketing policies if Western oil companies were selling and buying growing volumes of oil on the spot markets.

Venezuela warned last week the Caracas session will take a "careful look" at the practices of the spot markets.

said a Santa Ana school teacher was fired after saying U.S. support for the deposed shah of Iran had aggravated US-Iranian relations. This was an example, Tass said, of "persecution for political convictions" in the United States.

It did not name the teacher, but apparently referred to Richard Robertson, a history teacher at a junior high school in Santa Ana who was suspended without pay pending a school board hearing after he wore a button saying "U.S. imperialism get your bloody hands off Iran."

The news agency also said "40 percent of the FBI's working time is taken up by political spying."

Sunday newspapers in Moscow were filled with stories and photographs purportedly illustrating misery and repression in the West. The stories referred to wiretaps by Western intelligence agencies, the problem of unemployment and actions in some countries to restrict the power of trade unions.

References to the underground Soviet dissident movement were limited to denunciations of Western support for dissidents. One Soviet commentator said Western criticism of human rights in the Soviet was an effort to "weaken the magnetic force of the ideas of socialism."

Moscow dissident leaders have complained of an increasing Soviet campaign against them in recent weeks. They reported the detention by police since Nov. 1 of six prominent activists, including religious activist Gleb Yakunin, veteran dissident campaigner Tatyna Velikanova and Lithuanian Antanas Terleckas.

Citing recent searches and arrests, dissident leader Andrei D. Sakharov said Sunday there has been a "certain deterioration" in recent months in the human rights situation in Moscow, the Ukraine and the Baltic republics of Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania.

But he said "the Soviet human rights movement continues its work, and depends very little on who is in detention and who isn't. You don't need very many people to keep information flowing."

Members Of Revolutionary Sect To Go On Trial For Murder

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — After a half year of disruptive preliminary hearings, marked by curses, gags and courtroom evictions, nine members of the self-styled revolutionary MOVE sect go on trial Monday charged with murdering a policeman 16 months ago.

The killing of Patrolman James Ramp occurred Aug. 8, 1978, when police, carrying out a court order, were met by gunfire as they sought to evict barricaded MOVE members from their west Philadelphia headquarters on the edge of the Drexel University campus.

The bloody dawn confrontation ended with the bulldozing of the three-story fortress after 12 adults, 11 children, 22 dogs and hundreds of rats were flushed from the basement by tons of water from fire hoses.

Police said they confiscated a dozen loaded weapons and 1,600 rounds of ammunition before leveling the building, an act the defendants charge was deliberate destruction of evidence.

MOVE is a self-styled back-to-nature group whose origins are obscure. It is believed to have been formed nearly a decade ago, its mostly black disciples following the teachings of a man they call John Africa. Most members take the surname Africa.

Defendants in the case include the alleged leader of the group, Delbert Orr Africa, who was allegedly beaten by officers when he surrendered after the Ramp shooting.

There is no recorded meaning to the letters MOVE, but it apparently signifies action to its members who often chant, "On the move, on the move" as a form of greeting or praise.

MOVE's problems in Philadelphia began in September 1975 when the city charged the group with health, housing and fire code violations after inspectors found garbage and human excrement scattered about their dusty front yard.

When officials sought to make a more thorough inside inspection they were blocked by MOVE members brandishing guns and holding naked children.

For 15 months, until the final confrontation, police maintained round-the-clock watch on the MOVE house, costing the city more than $4 million in overtime. There was a blockade for a week when food and water was cut off, but this ended with an agreement by MOVE to vacate the premises.

When MOVE broke that agreement the final showdown occurred. Common Pleas Judge Edwin Malmel, 67, who will preside said he would treat the case just like any other trial, and the opening session just like any other day in court.

That has not been the way the MOVE defendants have treated their court appearances. Their antics, and those of some of their supporters, have often been so disruptive that judges at preliminary sessions sometimes had them bound and gagged and often evicted.

"As far as I'm concerned we're starting a brand-new page," Malmel told reporters. "I intend to try this just like any other case. They're not unique in my eyes."

Three policemen have been charged with assault and official oppression in the Delbert Africa matter after a lengthy investigation by the district attorney's office.

"The cornerstone of American justice is that punishment for criminal acts should be meted out in the courts in a fair and open trial," said District Attorney Edward Rendell. "No one, whether he be policeman or private citizen, should be allowed to administer curbstone justice, regardless what his emotions might be at the time."

Police Commissioner Joseph O'Neill has defended his officers, and tagged the MOVE members "savages."

Ramp's death angered Mayor Frank Rizzo, a former policeman, and he said then that if Pennsylvania reinstated the electric chair "I'll pull the switch."

The Legislature reimposed the death penalty for people convicted of killing police officers earlier this year.

Sloop Crew Rescued By Freighter

HALIFAX, Canada (AP) — All nine crew members rescued from an American sloop that had been trying to cross the Atlantic in record time were reported in good condition Sunday.

Canada's Search and Rescue Service said the crew of the Desperado was picked up Saturday night by a Spanish-registered freighter about 1,000 miles east of St. John's, Newfoundland, after the sloop began breaking up in a North Atlantic storm.

"I guess there were some bumps and bruises and so forth, but no serious problems," said Jim Serna, a Bedford, Mass., meteorologist whose firm was supplying weather information to the sloop by radio and telephone.

Crew members aboard the Desperado, a 57-foot racing vessel, sent a distress call Saturday when rough seas broke the vessel's mast and cracked its hull in two places.

Ships in the area were alerted, and the freighter Seatrak Saratoga reached the battered vessel On Sunday, the freighter was en route to Baltimore, Md., with the nine crew members aboard. It is scheduled to arrive in Baltimore Thursday.

"It was the opinion of the (Desperado's) crew that it was not able to survive another heavy weather episode," Serna said, noting that "another significant storm" had been forecast for the area.

He said it would take a few days for a tugboat to get to the site to try to salvage the sloop, which was "taking on water" when it was abandoned. "It probably will sink," he added.

The Desperado, a $250,000, ultra-light sloop owned and skippered by John Tuttle, a 37-year-old Massachusetts land developer, left Sandy Hook, N.J., on Nov. 27 in an effort to break the trans-Atlantic record by sail.

In 1905, The Atlantic, a 183-foot schooner, traveled the 3,013 miles from Sandy Hook to the coast of England in 12 days, four hours, one minute and 19 seconds and that record still stands.

Weather Services Corp., Serna's firm, said Friday the Desperado was ahead of schedule, about 800 miles east of St. John's, before encountering the storm. At that time, it said the sloop had sailed about 1,900 miles in seas up to 18 feet.

Game Ends In Death When Child, Sister Struggle Over Gun

CLEVELAND (AP) — A 6-year-old first grader was apparently shot and killed by accident during a struggle over a revolver with an older brother, police said.

Police said the shooting occurred after Margery Petway left her three children, Wendy, London and Holland Jr., alone at home about 10 a.m. Saturday while she kept a doctor's appointment.

During her absence, police said, 11-year-old Holland told his brother and sister that he would give a dollar to the one who found their mother's gun first.

Wendy, 6, and London, 7, rushed to their mother's bedroom where they both found a loaded .32-caliber revolver in the chest of drawers, officers said.

The gun apparently fired as the two children were struggling over it, police said. A bullet struck Wendy just above the lips, killing her.

Holland Petway Sr., who has been divorced from his wife since 1975, said: "It was just a case where they had been home too long. They were just bored. They had to do something and that was it."

An investigation was continuing.

MISS LUBBOCK

THERE SHE IS — The new Miss Lubbock, Terri Eoff admits she has always dreamed of hearing Bert Parks sing to her at the Miss America pageant. "There She Is" — One-third of the dream is complete since Miss Eoff won the local contest. She faces Miss Texas competition in July and then, if she wins in Fort Worth, it's on to Atlantic City. The Lubbock native graduated from Monterey High School and has performed in high school, college and community theatre. (Staff Photo by Milton Adams) favorite character," she said. She said it was helpful that the character she portrayed was full of nervousness and excitement.

 asked when the board will meet again and said, "Obviously we will probably meet before then."

In procedures drafted at the July 6 meeting, the board agreed that finalists will be interviewed by the regents, the advisory committee and the search committee. A number of faculty members and some students are on the committees.

Regent Clint Formby, chairman of the search committee, said procedure will be followed, although not all of the current candidates will necessarily be interviewed by both committees.

The university will be closed for the Christmas holiday from Dec. 21 until Jan. 2. Classes will resume Jan. 10. Regents have indicated that the announcement of a new president will probably be in mid-January.

—RUTHANNE BROCKWAY

As the new Miss Lubbock, she won a $750 scholarship, a $1,000 wardrobe, memberships in a fitness center and a sun tanning center and an expense paid trip to the Miss Texas pageant next summer in Fort Worth.

First runner-up was Leslie Shelton of Denton, a junior at Texas Tech University; second runner-up was Janna Lawson of Lubbock, a Tech freshman, who also won the swimsuit competition; third runner-up was Karen Roberts of Irving, a Tech sophomore; and fourth runner-up was Donna Jo Barnes of Lubbock, a Lubbock Christian College graduate. Miss Barnes also won the talent competition with her vocal presentation of "Sweet Inspiration."

Her mother was an actress in high school and college and a professional model in Memphis, Tenn., before marriage and Miss Eoff's older sister was in theatre productions at Texas Tech. So Miss Eoff said her interest in the stage has been a natural inclination. "I modeled in style shows as a little girl," she said and described a television commercial for a local clothing store which is currently being shown on television.

Her chaperones and sponsors for the state competition are Jack and Janis Geddes who noted that the last actress to win the Miss Lubbock pageant was Susan Logan in 1966, who went on to win the Miss Texas title.

Fifty percent of the pageant is judged on the talent competition and Miss Eoff feels fairly secure on that portion of the pageant. It is physical fitness and current events which she will concentrate on between now and the state pageant in July.

The green-eyed brunette said she will concentrate on jogging, dancing and swimming "especially to work on my waist" although her current measurements are 35-23-35.

She accompanied last year's Miss Lubbock to the state pageant last summer and said the three days of preliminary judging gave her some insight.

"They were all so beautiful, so poised and so graceful," she said.

Not All Approve

Although Miss Eoff said, "I wish every single girl could feel that feeling" of being named the winner of a pageant, she noted that not all women approve of the contest.

Those women are entitled to their opinions as I am to mine," she said. "A beauty pageant or a scholarship pageant."

I think is very flattering to women. It makes any woman feel like a lady."

And she stressed to those who criticize the swimsuit competition as sexist, "No one has to enter the pageant. You do it on your own. You do it because you want to."

Miss Eoff noted that her acting experience at improvisation has sharpened her wits and senses and that will help at the state pageant interviews when contestants are grilled on current events.

But it will also help any time during her reign as Miss Lubbock, she said, explaining that now she will be more aware of her appearance and actions.

"I've got to keep in mind," she said, "I'm representing 200,000 people as Miss Lubbock."

AF Bases Quiet Despite Threat Of Protesting

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Two Air Force bases here remained quiet Sunday after security was tightened because of FBI reports of possible demonstrations by hundreds of Iranians protesting the presence of the deposed Shah of Iran.

"It's pretty sleepy out here, certainly a contrast to last Sunday when the shah got here," said a Lackland Air Force Base source who requested anonymity because of a news blackout on Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi's stay at Lackland.

An announced pro-American demonstration at Brackenridge Park failed to materialize Sunday. There have been only a handful of protesters here since the shah's arrival.

The shah slipped into Lackland Dec. 2 for an indefinite period of recuperation from cancer treatment and gallbladder surgery in New York.

At the shah's request, U.S. diplomats were attempting to find him a permanent place to live. Robert Armao, the shah's senior adviser, said Saturday that there has been no progress in those negotiations.

Officials at adjacent Kelly Air Force Base installed barbed wire barricades, floodlights and guards with automatic weapons at the two main gates Friday night to protect the billions of dollars worth of government equipment and planes at the huge depot.

Officials also sealed off a heavily traveled public road that went through the fringe of Kelly and up to a Lackland gate less than three-quarters of a mile from the shah's quarters.

The extra security was prompted by FBI reports that more than 500 Iranians were headed here to protest the shah's presence. The protesters were expected Friday, according to sources at Lackland.

Brown and three members of the Board of Supervisors, the city's legislative body, trailed their challengers Nov. 6.

Candidates' Conduct Protested

Campaigning, particularly in the district attorney's race, has become so heated that viewers have called the news media to complain about the candidates' conduct.

Freitas, who finished 25,000 votes behind challenger Arlo Smith, a lackluster campaigner who trailed in pre-election polls, blamed the outcome on the White trial.

White admitted killing Moscone and gay Supervisor Harvey Milk but was convicted of voluntary manslaughter, a verdict that sparked a night of rioting by a mob who thought it too lenient.

Smith, a 26-year veteran prosecutor, and other Freitas opponents have repeatedly attacked the D.A. for his handling of the White and the Peoples Temple case.

Freitas was criticized for employing a Peoples Temple lieutenant as a top assistant and for not finding any evidence of voter fraud or other wrongdoing by the followers of the Rev. Jim Jones. Jones along with 912 of his faithful died in a murder-suicide rite at Jonestown, Guyana, nine days before the Moscone-Milk shootings.

Shouts Obscenities

Freitas has become so sensitive about the issue, that when asked a question on the subject during a news conference, he shouted obscenities.

The White case has also come up in the mayor's race.

During a heated debate last week, fiscal conservative Supervisor Quentin Kopp accused Mrs. Feinstein of being "almost a character witness" for White during the trial.

Mrs. Feinstein, who edged Kopp by just two percentage points Nov. 6, has been endorsed by Gena Moscone, widow of the slain mayor, and David Scott, a gay activist who came in third Nov. 6.

Kopp, who calls himself "the town grocer," has won the support of Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. and two former mayors.

Sheriff Eugene Brown — Battered by a series of escapes, suicides and other embarrassments in the city jails — came in second Nov. 6 to Michael Hennessey, a lawyer and prison reformer who has been running a hardhitting campaign accusing the sheriff of "total lack of leadership."

Embassy Guard Training Now Given U.S. Marines

QUANTICO, Va. (AP) — A four-hour course in how to deal with hostage situations has become part of the curriculum at the Marine's Security Guard School, which trains sentries for duty at U.S. embassies.

But details of the new course, which was tacked on to the six-to-eight-week guard training, are secret.

The first class to receive the specialized instruction in hostage situations graduates from the school Monday.

Col. James L. Cooper, the commanding officer of the Marine security guard battalion, asked the 100 or so class members on Friday if anyone had second thoughts about becoming an embassy guard.

"No one answered."

Then he asked, "How many of you would like to be out in Tehran today?"

"Nearly everyone in the class raised his hand."

Cooper told the Marines that if they are taken hostage, "No. 1, survive. Stay alive. No. 2, do it with honor. If you have a choice just remain silent."

Carter Aide To Present Court Plea On Hostages

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter has directed Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti to go to the Netherlands Sunday night personally to press the U.S. case for release of American hostages held by Iran, the White House announced. White House spokeswoman Claudia Townsend said Civiletti would appear before the International Court of Justice in The Hague Monday when the World Court is scheduled to take up the case of the hostages at the urging of the United States.

The White House said the United States has requested an interim order that Iran should immediately release and insure the safety of the Americans held hostage in Tehran since Nov. 4.

"In the view of the United States, the continued detention of the hostages is a gross violation of the basic rules of international laws and human rights," the White House statement said.

Iran Postpones Date To Set Hostage Trials

 Khomeini supreme Iranian ruler for life and denies them the self-rule they were expecting.

The Azerbaijani rebellion — and similar unrest in Iran's other ethnic-minority regions — is regarded by most observers as the strongest threat to Khomeini since he took power last February after the revolution that ousted Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi.

In New York, a U.N. spokesman said Waldeim had told Ghotbzadeh on the telephone at 2 a.m. Sunday that a Lebanese diplomat, Zuhair Yamini, would arrive in Tehran by today to open "channels of communication" between Iranian authorities and the United Nations. Yamini was being assigned to fill the vacant post of head of the U.N. Development Program's Tehran office.

The U.N. spokesman also said Waldeim had been told by Ghotbzadeh that "neutral observers" would be allowed to visit the hostages. No further details were given.

But in remarks quoted by Tehran radio, the foreign minister showed no sign of fulfilling his promise of Friday to allow neutral observers to see the hostages. There has also been silence on his expressed hope that hostages "not knowingly involved in espionage" would be released soon.

In Washington, presidential adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski said the Carter administration expects the international community gradually to increase economic pressure on Iran. Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance will be in Western Europe this week trying to marshal support for future U.S. or multi-national efforts to pressure Iran to release the Americans.

The International Court of Justice in The Hague, The Netherlands, begins a public hearing today on a U.S. suit against Iran for breaking treaty provisions, but Iran says it will not attend the hearing.

President Carter on Sunday directed Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti to go to the Netherlands and present the U.S. case "in light of the importance and urgency of this case, the president has asked the attorney general personally to present the position of the United States to the court."

The White House announced in a statement.

Ghotbzadeh sent a cable to the court saying it should not investigate the American charges against Iran. He called the hostage situation a "minor outcome" of Iran's grievances against the United States.

Two groups of Americans in Iran on private mediation missions held news conferences over the weekend, speaking out against the shah. Two academics from the University of Kansas and a Kansas social worker blamed U.S. administrations for the crisis and say Iran's demand the shah be returned is valid.

A separate left-leaning ad-hoc group of Americans said the United States provoked the crisis by allowing the shah into the country. They support seizure of the embassy, and say the hostages should be tried here as spies, as the militants threaten to do.

In other developments:

—Bani Sadr said Iran was producing too much oil and should sell some to poor countries at cheaper prices. Iran cut oil production by 50 percent to about three million barrels a day after the revolution.

—Seyed Ahmad Madani, the navy commander, toured the Bandarabass base on the Hormoz Straits and told reporters the U.S. carriers Kitty Hawk and Midway are under "careful surveillance" in the Arabian Sea.

—Lecturers at Tehran University urged the Foreign Ministry to protest "harassment" of Iranian students in the United States.

Rebellion Flares In Iran City

 the broadcast station, then rushed the station and seized it and 20 to 30 from Turkish guards. The armed guards, and others who fled, did not shoot.

Hundreds of local Turks later marched up a small hill toward the station, and pro-Khomeini revolutionary guards in the building opened fire on them. As the sound of a gunbattle echoed through the city, thousands of Turks rushed toward the station, swelling the crowd there into tens of thousands of people seemingly oblivious to the shooting around them.

Finally the reinforced demonstrators rushed up the hill and recaptured the station.

The Turks apparently retained control of the local airport throughout the day's violence.

An official of the pro-Shariat-Madari Moslem People's Party told The Associated Press the rebellious Turks would hold the station until their spiritual leader, still in Qum, told them to release it.

Meanwhile, officials in Tehran announced they had issued an arrest warrant for Rahmatollah Moghadam-Moghaie, whom Shariat-Madari's supporters had proposed as their next governor-general in East Azerbaijan province.

He escaped arrest when the headquarters of his Radical Party, also linked with Shariat-Madari, were raided Saturday. The Khomeini forces accuse Moghadam-Moghaie of having had secret contacts with the United States.

QUANTICO, Va. (AP) — A four-hour course in how to deal with hostage situations has become part of the curriculum at the Marine's Security Guard School, which trains sentries for duty at U.S. embassies.

But details of the new course, which was tacked on to the six-to-eight-week guard training, are secret.

The first class to receive the specialized instruction in hostage situations graduates from the school Monday.

Col. James L. Cooper, the commanding officer of the Marine security guard battalion, asked the 100 or so class members on Friday if anyone had second thoughts about becoming an embassy guard.

"No one answered."

Then he asked, "How many of you would like to be out in Tehran today?"

"Nearly everyone in the class raised his hand."

Cooper told the Marines that if they are taken hostage, "No. 1, survive. Stay alive. No. 2, do it with honor. If you have a choice just remain silent."

San Francisco Election Campaign Draws Sparks

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — In campaigns so bitter that they have prompted complaints from voters, the mayor, district attorney, sheriff and five supervisors are fighting to keep their jobs in a runoff election Tuesday.

Dianne Feinstein, who became the city's first woman mayor after Mayor George Moscone was shot to death by former Supervisor Dan White in late 1978, failed to win majority support in the Nov. 6 election.

Board of Supervisors President John Molinari was the only incumbent to avoid a runoff in that contest by garnering more than 50 percent of the votes and that was only because he ran unopposed.

District Attorney Joseph Freitas, blaming his troubles on aftershocks of the White murder trial, Sheriff Eugene

Candidates' Conduct Protested

Campaigning, particularly in the district attorney's race, has become so heated that viewers have called the news media to complain about the candidates' conduct.

Freitas, who finished 25,000 votes behind challenger Arlo Smith, a lackluster campaigner who trailed in pre-election polls, blamed the outcome on the White trial.

White admitted killing Moscone and gay Supervisor Harvey Milk but was convicted of voluntary manslaughter, a verdict that sparked a night of rioting by a mob who thought it too lenient.

Smith, a 26-year veteran prosecutor, and other Freitas opponents have repeatedly attacked the D.A. for his handling of the White and the Peoples Temple case.

Freitas was criticized for employing a Peoples Temple lieutenant as a top assistant and for not finding any evidence of voter fraud or other wrongdoing by the followers of the Rev. Jim Jones. Jones along with 912 of his faithful died in a murder-suicide rite at Jonestown, Guyana, nine days before the Moscone-Milk shootings.

Shouts Obscenities

Freitas has become so sensitive about the issue, that when asked a question on the subject during a news conference, he shouted obscenities.

The White case has also come up in the mayor's race.

During a heated debate last week, fiscal conservative Supervisor Quentin Kopp accused Mrs. Feinstein of being "almost a character witness" for White during the trial.

Mrs. Feinstein, who edged Kopp by just two percentage points Nov. 6, has been endorsed by Gena Moscone, widow of the slain mayor, and David Scott, a gay activist who came in third Nov. 6.

Kopp, who calls himself "the town grocer," has won the support of Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. and two former mayors.

Sheriff Eugene Brown — Battered by a series of escapes, suicides and other embarrassments in the city jails — came in second Nov. 6 to Michael Hennessey, a lawyer and prison reformer who has been running a hardhitting campaign accusing the sheriff of "total lack of leadership."

The other incident occurred at 2:27 a.m. Dec. 1 at the Rox Club, 2211 Fourth St. The victim told police that he and some friends had just left the club and were at his pickup truck when three Mexican-American men jumped out of their vehicle. One of the suspects, who had a gun, went over to the victim and demanded all of his money. The suspect reportedly stood behind the victim and poked him with the gun in the left arm, removing the victim's wallet from his left back pocket. The suspect took $35. Another suspect reportedly went over to one of the victim's friends, pulled out a long knife and demanded his money. However, he was not robbed. The third suspect approached the other victim and made the same threats but never showed a weapon. The third victim said the suspect kept his hand in his pocket as if he had a gun in it. He also was not robbed. Reports show the suspects jumped back into their vehicle and fled east on Fourth Street. The suspects were described as being about 18 to 25. Two were tall and of medium build, and the other was of medium height and stocky. All had black hair. One of the suspects reportedly had his hair parted down the middle and had a fuzzy mustache. The suspects were driving a 1970-75 Oldsmobile, Delta model, four-door, beige over yellow in color.

Crime Line also is offering $300 for information on a traffic accident involving failure to stop and render aid, which occurred at 8:50 p.m. Nov. 14. Police said Jackie Don Tannery was riding his 1979 Harley Davidson motorcycle east on 19th Street in the inside lane when a 1973-1977 tan or brown Oldsmobile Cutlass two-door driven by a white female, 18 to 35, 5'3" to 5'6", medium build with light brown hair, apparently did not see the motorcycle, did not yield to the cycle and turned into the path of the cycle causing collision. The Cutlass reportedly continued into the parking lot in the 2300-block of 19th Street. The driver of the Cutlass ran back to the victim and found that he was injured. She ran back to the Cutlass and left the scene. The victim was taken to the hospital where it was determined he suffered a compound broken right leg just above the ankle. Several people reportedly witnessed the accident and can identify the white female.

Crime Line also is offering a $300 reward for information leading to the discovery of the whereabouts of Mauricio Garza Cardenas, 31. He is described as 5'10", 170 pounds with black hair and brown eyes. Cardenas has been charged with burglary of a habitation and Warrant No. 10335 has been issued for his arrest.

Rhodesian Warplanes Strike Countries

SALISBURY, Zimbabwe Rhodesia (AP) — Zimbabwe Rhodesian warplanes, striking as negotiators in London wrangle over a cease-fire in the war here, pounded guerrilla staging areas in neighboring Zambia and Mozambique on Sunday, the military command reported.

The jets bombed and strafed black nationalist guerrilla havens just across the Zambezi River border in Zambia at dawn, an initial communique said. A lat-

Pakistani President

Says West Fears Country

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — President Mohammed Zia ul-Haq declared Saturday that pressure being applied to Pakistan by Western nations fearful that it is developing nuclear weapons reflects "the imperialistic mentality."

The Pakistanis have repeatedly denied allegations by U.S. and other Western officials that they are planning to build a nuclear bomb.

In a speech opening a science symposium Zia said, "The pressure reflects the imperialistic mentality that ruled most part of the world politically in the past and now wants to maintain its superiority in science and knowledge."

"Our stand is that we want to acquire nuclear energy for peaceful purposes er statement said jets had attacked more guerrilla bases inside Zambia on a second raid and struck a guerrilla target inside Mozambique.

The Patriotic Front guerrilla alliance uses the neighboring black-ruled states as base areas in its 7-year-old war against the Salisbury government.

There was no immediate word from either Zambia or Mozambique on casualties in the raids.

The military command of the bi-racial Zimbabwe Rhodesian government gave few details, saying only that the attacked bases in Zambia housed "large numbers of terrorists" and that the target in Mozambique was "a major terrorist base."

It said all aircraft returned to base safely after the attacks. Unconfirmed reports said Zimbabwe Rhodesian ground troops also took part in the Mozambique raid.

Sunday's air strikes were the sixth, seventh and eighth cross-border raids into Zambia and Mozambique since the London peace conference began 13 weeks ago.

Patriotic Front spokesman Willie Masarurwa, in London, denounced Sunday's attacks as "outrageous" and said they proved that the current government of Prime Minister Abel Muzorewa is not serious about peace.

The raids may cast another shadow over hopes for early conclusion of a Zimbabwe Rhodesian peace agreement.

Both sides in the British-sponsored talks have accepted a constitutional plan, and last week the Front guerrilla leaders agreed to principles of a cease-fire. But last-minute technical hitches developed and the Front again declared it would not accept cease-fire terms that amounted to "surrender."

The British indicate, nevertheless, they believe final agreement on a cease-fire may be reached within days. A British governor, Lord Soames, would then take over day-to-day control of the country to prepare for the cease-fire and new elections.

Both sides presumably wish to be as strong as possible when, and if, a cease-fire takes effect.

The Zimbabwe Rhodesians have mounted the raids to blunt massive influxes of guerrilla reinforcements into the country. The guerrillas have apparently been anxious to place their men inside Zimbabwe Rhodesia as quickly as possible before the coming rainy season makes rivers and streams along the borders difficult and dangerous.

Under the British cease-fire plan, both Zimbabwe Rhodesia's 12,000-strong regular army and the guerrillas inside the country — now estimated at 15,000 — would have to stay inside specified bases under the eyes of 1,200 British and Commonwealth peacekeeping troops.

Heavy Emotional Issues Fuel Attack On U. S. Navy Bus

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — Though their numbers are small, advocates of Puerto Rican independence and those who want the U.S. Navy off Vieques Island are defending issues that have a heavy emotional impact among this island's 3.4 million people.

Last Monday the two issues fueled a bloody back-road terrorist attack on a U.S. Navy bus in which two Americans were killed and 10 others wounded. Three small nationalist groups claimed responsibility.

It was the first sign that parts of the hitherto sharply splintered nationalist movement might be forging a unified front.

Advocates of independence for this Caribbean island, currently linked to the United States in a commonwealth arrangement, range from the tiny bands of militant ultra-leftists who said they staged the bus attack, to the Marxist-Leninist Puerto Rican Socialist Party and the Puerto Rican Independence Party.

The Independence Party, which has lost considerable political clout over the past decade, has recently been moderating its policies. Only last month it backed away from its stand for immediate independence in the unlikely event that it should be voted into power.

All the pro-independence groups boycotted the last island-wide referendum on the island's political status more than a decade ago. Those who favored Puerto Rico's becoming America's 51st state showed surprising strength then, while the independence movement got almost no votes.

Since then, Puerto Rico's dependence on the United States has grown. The most important factors include an emerging middle class and the full U.S. citizenship that Puerto Ricans have enjoyed since 1917. This allows them to migrate freely to the mainland for jobs and to get federal aid, including the food stamps now used by more than half the islanders.

In the last election, in 1976, the Independence Party got only 59,000 of 1.4 million votes cast and failed to elect anyone to either the 51-member House of Representatives or the 27-seat Senate. In the previous legislature it had one senator and two representatives. The Socialists did even worse in 1976, polling fewer than 10,000 votes.

Gov. Carlos Romero Barcelo's pro-statehood New Progressive Party now controls both houses of the legislature, and the major opposition is from the Popular Democrats, who want the island to stay a self-governing commonwealth.

On the other hand, the movement to get the Navy off Vieques Island has broader support, including clergymen, members of the middle-class and advocates of statehood, as well as the militant nationalists, who skip few chances to criticize the United States.

For years the Navy has been using much of Vieques, an island off Puerto Rico's southeast coast, for bombing and gunnery practice.

But the issue flared last month when a Puerto Rican who was jailed because of an anti-Navy protest died in a Florida federal prison. A preliminary autopsy report said Angel Rodriguez Cristobal had hanged himself, but it failed to explain bruises and a gash on his face.

Baltasar Corrada del Rio, the island's non-voting representative to the U.S. Congress in Washington, has won a U.S. Justice Department promise to investigate the case.

Vengeance for Rodriguez's death was one motive listed by those who took responsibility for the bus ambush.

Behind the Vieques issue is the feeling among many islanders that the Navy has ignored their feelings in its decision to keep using the island to train the Atlantic fleet.

Even conservative, middle-class, U.S.-oriented Puerto Ricans often lecture mainlanders on the tender feelings of the islanders — who are afraid their own Spanish heritage and Latin culture could be swallowed up if they became just another state in the union.

One such man, standing at poolside as he advocated statehood and proclaimed his loyalty to the United States, put it this way:

"We are Americans but we are also Puerto Ricans, and if you act as if you own us, that will be it."

Cultist's Uprising Suppressed

KINGSTOWN, St. Vincent and the Grenadines (UPI) — Police poured into the hills of Union Island Sunday to root out the last of a small band of black Rastafarian cultists who took over the tiny tourist hideaway in a weekend uprising.

The police earlier rounded up about 20 of the rebels, including about six young girls, on Union Island, the southernmost island of the Grenadines archipelago. Authorities flew them to the main island of St. Vincent and held them without charges under a state of emergency invoked by Prime Minister Milton Cato.

Some of the Rastafarians, handcuffed or tied together with rope, complained that St. Vincent policemen cut off their long "dreadlocks" hair with bayonets and "scalped" them.

The Rastafarians, a cult that has spread throughout the West Indies, worship the late Ethiopian emperor Haile Selassie as a god and attach religious significance to smoking marijuana and wearing their hair long.

Police said they believe the leader of the bizarre uprising, a 26-year-old native nicknamed "Bomba," escaped to nearby Carriacou in the Grenadines of Grenada, a socialist-ruled county.

Bomba was free on bail on a marijuana charge when he and his followers blew up the police station on Union Island Friday, took over the tax office and blocked the airport runway with rock piles to keep planes from landing with government troops. The motive for the uprising was not clear.

The foreman of a French-run tourist resort was killed during the takeover and a policeman was shot and wounded in the leg.

World Court Backing Sought In Confrontation

THE HAGUE, Netherlands (AP) — The United States, already confident it has world opinion on its side, seeks the backing of the World Court on Monday in its confrontation with Iran.

U.S. spokesmen here said they hope the court — formally the International Court of Justice — will agree to take the case and decide in favor of U.S. claims against the regime of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

But the most important thing, they said, is that the court speak out in favor of releasing the 50 Americans held hostage by militant Iranians in the U.S. Embassy in Tehran. The takeover of the embassy Nov. 4 and the militants' demands that the deposed Shah of Iran be extradited back to Iran touched off a showdown that quickly reached a stalemate and has not been eased despite international efforts.

In Iran Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh said Saturday night that the ruling Revolutionary Council had decided against sending a representative to the court.

"We don't officially approve of the court so we aren't participating," he was quoted as telling reporters, adding that the government would make an official announcement on its refusal to attend in one or two days.

Iran refused to attend a U.N. Security Council meeting on the crisis, and has refused to comply with a Security Council resolution calling for release of the hostages. So it would come as no surprise here if Iran did not send a representative to the court's opening hearing Monday.

Ghotbzadeh has hinted at the possibility for a negotiated settlement to gain the hostages' release, and the court appeal is seen as another front in the U.S. attempt to exploit all possible means to solve the crisis peacefully.

One U.S. official in The Hague, who asked not to be identified, said, "We will pursue the case even if Iran doesn't show."

No sovereign state can be forced to accept the court's jurisdiction, and court officials said over the weekend they had received no word from Iran on the U.S. suit.

The World Court is the main judicial branch of the United Nations and has been based in the Hague since its creation 34 years ago. Fifteen justices and legal scholars represent legal systems of the world.

The only way a court decision could be enforced is through the Security Council, which has the power to impose economic or other sanctions against a nation it finds to be creating a threat to international peace. A court decision in its favor probably would give more weight to any U.S. petition for sanctions against Iran.

State Department legal adviser Robert B. Owen will present the U.S. arguments in the ornate Great Hall of Justice in the castle-like home of the court, the Peace Palace.

The justices are expected to hear the arguments in a public session. Although Owen's presentation is likely to last about an hour, the justices probably will question him and the session could be extended until Tuesday, court officials say.

In its suit, America accuses Iran of "numerous grave violations" of international law stemming from the seizure of its embassy and personnel.

Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance also sent a plea to court president Sir Humphrey Waldock of Great Britain, asking him to intercede with Iran for the release of the hostages.

This request is known as a plea for "interim measures of protection," or an order the court can issue while it takes time to consider the suit.

If Iran does not appear, the court can still decide to pursue the case. It must then decide whether it has jurisdiction in the matter. The court has done this several times before, say court officials. The justices then decide whether the complaints by the nation present have any basis "in fact and law," and if so, it could deliver a judgment.

The United States also asked the court to order that the embassy be cleared, that no hostages be put on trial and that they be allowed to leave Iran.

Because of the urgency of the matter, court observers here say the justices may issue a judgment within several days, something they have rarely done.

The U.N. charter says the court's judgment is binding on U.N. members, but Iran is expected to pay as little attention to any court ruling as it has to the Security Council resolution.

The justices call a separate open session to read their decision. Usually the vote tally is given and a statement on the reasons for the judgment. Any dissenting opinions may also be published, court officials say.

Russia Again Warns U.S. Against Action

MOSCOW (AP) — Pravda said Sunday that American "hawks" are pushing the Carter administration toward dangerous "adventurism" in Iran, and warned that any U.S. military action there could have grave consequences.

It was the second time in four days that the Communist Party newspaper has sharply criticized American attitudes in the current crisis.

A Pravda commentary last Wednesday accused the Carter administration of having "decided to intensify the crisis" and of using "crude military and political pressure." It drew an angry reaction from the State Department.

Sunday's commentary calling for U.S. restraint expressed concern over pressure groups that it said were urging President Carter to demonstrate American military power in the confrontation with Iran.

Referring to the takeover of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran by Moslem militants, Pravda commentator Vladimir Bolshakov acknowledged that "of course, all states are obligated to respect diplomatic privileges and immunities and the inviolability of diplomatic posts." But it said the current situation in Iran called for "reason and restraint."

Bolshakov wrote that "a turn to military force must be excluded completely in Iranian-American affairs, just as in international relations as a whole."

"This is what the peoples of the world demand, as they strive for peace and cooperation on Earth."

In a situation "where it is essential to show reason and restraint," the commentary said, "the 'hawks' are pushing the administration into adventurist steps, although the consequences of such action would be extremely dangerous for peace."

Last Wednesday's Pravda statements came just hours after the Soviet Union joined the United States and other members of the U.N. Security Council in adopting a resolution calling on the Iranians to release their hostages.

State Department spokesman Hodding Carter called the earlier commentary "deplorable," and Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance conveyed his displeasure to Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin in Washington.

President Carter has not ruled out the ultimate use of force in the Iranian crisis, but he said last week he would take no action that could lead to the harming of the hostages.

Summitt Postponement Planned

JERUSALEM (AP) — Prime Minister Menachem Begin and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat will meet Jan. 7 in Aswan, Egypt, six days later than originally planned, it was announced Sunday.

The postponement of the three-day summit, which had been set to begin

New Year's Day, was announced in a joint statement issued in Egypt on Israel.

Foreign Ministry spokesman Michael Shiloah said the meeting, the ninth Sadat-Begin summit since the Egyptian leader's 1977 visit to Jerusalem, was delayed because of a lack of hotel accommodations in Aswan at New Year's. He said Egypt feared there would not be enough room for the large crowd of journalists usually drawn to the summits.

The spokesman also said Begin has offered his closest personal aide, Elyahu Ben-Elissar, a chance to become Israel's first ambassador to Egypt, but Ben-Elissar has not yet accepted. The two countries are scheduled to exchange ambassadors in February.

TREE DISEASE

OHIO, N.Y. (AP) — A mysterious disease is troubling New York's multi-million-dollar Christmas tree industry, state officials say. The disease, which usually kills a tree in one to five years, has already invaded thousands of acres of trees in the Adirondacks.

Carter Prays For Hostages, Militants

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter said Sunday he prays for the Iranian militants as well as the 50 American hostages they are holding in Tehran.

During Bible class at the First Baptist Church, Sunday school teacher Fred Gregg called for prayers for President Carter, for the protesters, and prayers for the hostages.

Gregg nodded afterward when he was asked if he prayed for the Iranian captors as well, and Carter added, "I do."

As the class was ending, Edwin Tie-mann of Tulsa, Okla., who had been sitting in the back row, stood up and shouted, "Mr. president, if you want to be a leader instead of a self-seeking politician, read my letter."

Carter listened momentarily and then walked out.

In his handwritten letter, Tiemann said, "Give Iranian leaders 72 hours to have all of the U.S. hostages out of Iran safely on a plane or planes, or else. It ended with the admonition, 'Don't be a coward.'"

Administration Expects Pressure To Increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — Presidential adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski said Sunday the Carter administration expects the international community gradually to increase economic pressure on Iran unless it releases the 50 hostages held at the U.S. embassy in Tehran.

"I would expect that if the problem is not quickly resolved, the international community will proceed gradually to make its disapproval felt more tangibly," Brzezinski said on the CBS program "Face the Nation."

As Brzezinski spoke, Secretary of State Cyrus Vance was preparing to fly to four European capitals to discuss the economic leverage that might be applied.

In addition, President Carter ordered Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti to fly to the Netherlands Sunday night to personally press the U.S. case for release of the hostages before the International Court of Justice in The Hague.

The court, acting on a request from the United States, is to take up the case of the hostages this afternoon.

State Department legal adviser Jim Awood said the president decided Sunday morning to send Civiletti to give additional weight to the U.S. presentation.

Awood said the United States is "very hopeful" the court will act favorably on the U.S. request that the hostages be released. "We think we have an overwhelmingly powerful case," he said.

Brzezinski said the United States is not asking for an immediate, complete embargo because it wants to make sure there is unanimity against Iran in the international community.

If there is international solidarity and if it becomes more tangible, then eventually Iran will have to come to recognize that this is a self-defeating course of action," he said.

If Iran, as it has threatened, puts the hostages on trial, Brzezinski said the United States "could hardly sit by. What precisely we would do is hard to foretell."

Brzezinski would not discuss specific economic steps the United States would like its European allies to consider. He said only that "it is a fact of life that normal international intercourse cannot be maintained if Iran persists in violating established international principles."

Steps which administration officials have said are under consideration range from halting commercial aviation to more general embargoes.

Brzezinski said the administration is not specifically planning to try to halt food shipments to Iran.

But if Iranian commercial relations with the rest of the world, particularly with the United States, are disrupted as a consequence of the irresponsible conduct pursued by the Iranian authorities, then it may be difficult to avoid some impact on food shipments.

Vance plans to stop in London, Paris, Bonn and Rome to high-level discussions before arriving in Brussels for a NATO meeting on Wednesday.

Prior to his trip, a sub-Cabinet-level group of officials lunched out over Europe last week to bring American allies up to date on the consequences of the U.S. move to freeze Iran's assets, a move which has been criticized by some European banking officials.

Hints From Heloise

HI. We frequently offer you tips on home, child and personal safety. Here's one on a totally different subject, checking the brakes on your car — an often overlooked must!

Better believe it, friends, because a recent study shows that worn-out brakes are a factor in 40 percent of all automobile accidents caused by owner neglect.

Gives pause for thought, now doesn't it? A brake specialty shop told us that the average car owner just doesn't take the time to give his or her car the routine check that's necessary to keep it in good, safe, running condition.

A manufacturer of automotive brake products for cars and light trucks recommends that brakes be checked every 10,000 miles, regardless of whether you think they need it or not.

The following five warning signals should make that mental siren blast off and tell you that brakes are faulty: low pedal, hard pedal, pedal pulsation, pulling or dragging, and heated front brakes that won't release.

Dear readers, please heed these warning signals and have your brakes checked. Be safe, not sorry! — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

They say invention is the mother of necessity, and maybe so because...

I was sorting out lingerie this a.m. and started to throw away some yellowed garments until I realized there was nothing really wrong with them. They weren't frayed or worn-out by any means — just dingy.

I remembered that my son had asked me to wash his new jeans and, recalling that jeans lose some of their blue, I washed my undies along with them. After all I had nothing to lose.

Imagine my delight when, taking the load out of the washer, I discovered I had pretty, pale blue underwear.

However, Heloise, anyone who wants to do this should set the dial on "hot" or "warm" in order for this trick to work.

Hope this little hint will help those whose hints have helped me in the past — Marian Olivares.

DEAR HELOISE:

If you let your mending pile up, as I do, get to it while you're talking on the phone!

I keep mending right next to the phone. When I call someone or when the phone rings, I get out needle and thread before picking up the receiver.

You'd be amazed at how much you can mend while your mouth is moving! — Mrs. James F. Nugent

Good idea, Mrs. Nugent, especially for gabbers like you and me. Know what helps too? If you keep a couple of needles threaded and on the ready for mending moments — Hugs, Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

When a child's jacket needs a new lining, take a flannel shirt of the right size, turn it wrong side out and sew it into the jacket.

Easy to do! Nice and warm too! — D. Baumgartner

Don't hoard your favorite household hint, send it to Heloise, care of this newspaper, and let her share it with her readers.

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

I knew kids were changing, but I never realized how much until I got a toy catalogue in the mail the other day.

There was a game called "Adventures in Adverbs," ages seven and up. (Wow!)

A group decision and survival game on a non-throwable game field, ages nine and up. (Far out!)

Fun with Math Motivators, ages 8-12. (Neat!)

And Baby's First Calculator...with all the features, including plus percentages, a memory to store subtotals and an eight-digit readout, ages four and up. (Thanks, Dad!)

To a woman who put both legs in one side of her underwear until she was six years old, that's quite a jolt.

Where are the dolls that don't do anything but sit on the bed and look terrific? Where are the logs that multiply under the bed? What happened to books that had pictures instead of being contained on cassettes and played back on stereos?

I don't like to think what would have happened if I had bought my children "Adventures in Pronouns" as a biggie for Christmas. They used to write phone messages on flash cards.

I also don't like to think about what is going to happen to parents on Christmas morning when their child opens a box and says, "Oh, Mommy! Just what I wanted! Vowel Hopscotch. Play with me. Here's a bean bag. Now, all you do is toss it on a vowel and then use a long or short vowel sound. Then you hopscotch your way across the mat and back. You first, Mommy!"

I can see Mommy turning pale and saying, "You play, darling. Mommy is into vowels" and it wouldn't be fair."

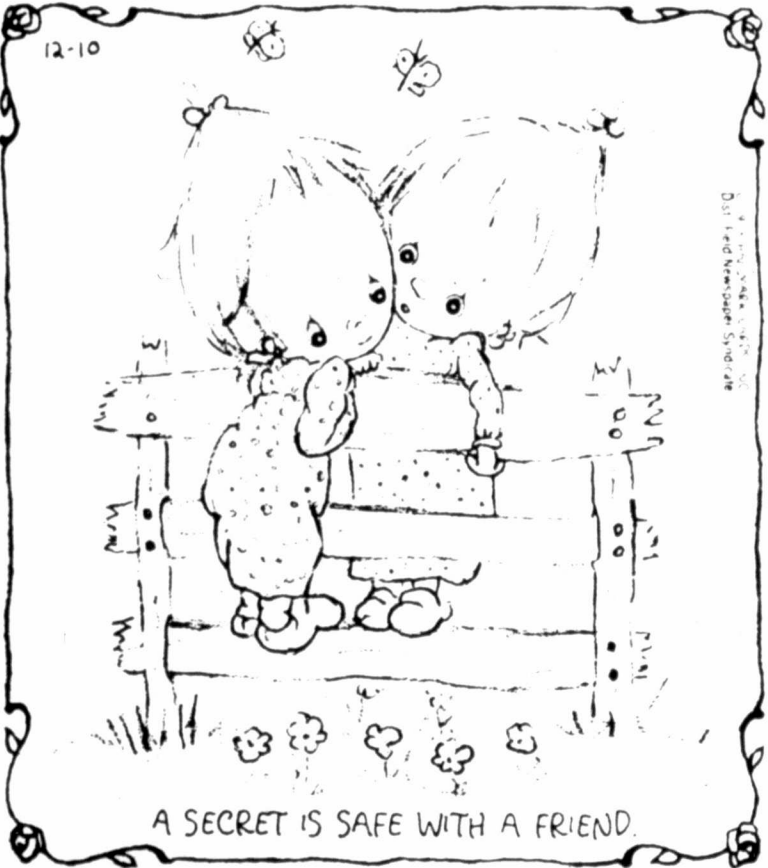

Maybe I'm mistaken, but I visualize a lot of parents sitting around at Christmas being outflashed by flash cards, outsmarted by math puzzles and outclassed by the fastest calculator ever wielded by a three-year-old.

As I leafed through the catalogue, I came across a game for a little friend on my Christmas list. It was a computer with an electronic flash card with over 16,000 problems in four levels of difficulty and instant feedback.

I'll feel like a fool taking my checkbook to a five-year-old, but what the heck, this is no time for pride.

Q.1—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠KQ1082 ♥J5 ♦A7 ♣K107
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 2 ♥ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—You have a balanced hand that is better than minimum because of the good five-card suit and intermediates. A rebid of two spades will not convey that message to your partner. Two no trump describes your holding much more accurately.

Q.2—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠109 ♥A ♦AK982 ♣AKQ83
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♦ Pass 4 ♥ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Before taking any further action, pause and ask yourself: "What kind of hand can my partner have for his jump to four hearts?" If he knows what he is doing, he has great length in hearts and no honor strength outside—with strength in a side suit, he should respond only one heart and then jump on the next round. Therefore, you should be off two quick spade tricks, so any move toward slam will only jeopardize the contract.

Q.3—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠1076 ♥A982 ♦AK64 ♣Q6
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♥ Pass
2 ♠ Pass 2 ♦ Pass
3 ♠ Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—You have given partner the opportunity to bid no trump, but he has not seized it. With a full opening bid, you must make at least one move toward game. However, your hand doesn't quite rate a jump to five clubs because of your flat distribution—eleven tricks might be too much. Four clubs should be enough to inspire partner to go on if he has opened anything but a do.

Q.4—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠AJ4 ♥Q10 ♦AQ92 ♣Q985
The bidding has proceeded:
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♥ Pass
? 1 NT Pass 3 ♠ Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—Despite the fact that you have a solid stopper in clubs, don't make the mistake of bidding three no trump. Partner has shown a very strong, unbalanced hand—at least six hearts and five spades. With such a plethora of honors in his suits, you must make an encouraging move, but the only sensible action that comes to mind at the moment is a bid of four hearts.

Q.5—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠Q7 ♥AK872 ♦KQ64 ♣AK
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♥ Pass 1 ♠ Pass
3 ♦ Pass 3 NT Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—You have done your duty when you made your jump shift. Partner has warned you that he has no slam ambitions. Don't make the mistake of bidding four hearts. It is most unlikely that partner has three hearts, since with that holding he would have shown his support at the three level, rather than bid three no trump.

Q.6—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠A83 ♥10763 ♦9532 ♣AQ
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
Pass 1 ♠ Dble. Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—Normally, you would make a jump bid in response to a takeout double to show your 10-point plus hand. However, this hand has flaws—your major suits are in your short suits. With only one spade stopper you do not want to play in no trump, so for the moment we would content ourselves with a bid of two hearts. If partner can't bid again, game will probably not have been missed.

Q.7—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠Q8 ♥AK107 ♦K985 ♣K103
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ 1 ♠ 1 NT Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—By making a free response of one no trump, partner should have about 9-11 points. Your hand is better than minimum, for it has good body and prime cards. We suggest that you extend a cordial invitation to partner to bid game if he is maximum, by raising to two no trump.

Q.8—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠KJ10 ♥QJ106 ♦A105 ♣A63
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 ♥ Pass 2 ♥ ?
What do you bid now?

A.—The auction has developed in a most gratifying fashion—providing you don't interfere with it. Your opponents are about to play in your best suit and the bidding is not yet over. Pass and be content to collect 100 points apiece for each under-trick.

To Your Good Health

By PAUL DONOHUE, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: My doctor says I have "open angle glaucoma." I would appreciate an explanation in terms I can understand.—V.C.

The eyeball contains fluid, which among other things, keeps it in the shape you notice. The eye manufactures this fluid, which is a pretty neat trick in itself.

Because fluid is manufactured continually there has to be a way to drain off excess. If this didn't happen we'd all have glaucoma, which is build up of that eye fluid.

Fluid pressure builds for one of two reasons. Either too much is being made or too little is being drained off. Doctors determine which problem exists by eliminating the other one. If it's not one it has to be the other.

The canal that drains off fluid is located in the corner of the eye (angle, if you prefer geometric terms). If fluid build up is traced to this corner problem, then the glaucoma is called "narrow angle glaucoma." If the pressure builds because of excess production of fluid it is "open angle glaucoma," since the angle (drainage) problem has been eliminated. The drainage system is OK, but is being overwhelmed by the excess fluid—like a drainage ditch during a heavy rain.

If the drainage system is at fault, drugs can be tried to keep it open, or surgery may be necessary to open it up. The other kind (fluid over-production) is more sneaky, and the build up can be gradual and go unnoticed. It is treated with drugs that decrease fluid production.

Periodic eye tests for glaucoma are advised, whether one has symptoms or not.

tion and developing a vaginal yeast infection.

Dr. Donohue: My husband's last blood test showed an abnormally high amount of chylomicrons. Please explain what this means?—Mrs. M.A.N.

I am sure you mean "chylomicrons," and you are the first reader to ask about this.

Chylomicrons are very small droplets of cholesterol and triglycerides (blood fats) that are normally transported in the blood to the liver for further breakdown. By six hours after a meal there should be few if any chylomicrons in the blood. An increased amount may call for a special diet low in fats. The test is significant only when the time of testing and intake of food prior to it is evaluated accurately.

Unless properly treated, both glaucoma and cataracts can lead to blindness. If you are afflicted with either of these ailments, or know someone who is, write to Dr. Donohue, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, for his booklet, "Cataracts and Glaucoma." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

CONTEMPORARY OUTLOOK—The home furnishings color palette is turning away from neutrals to deep, dark colors. Cranberry and chocolate brown oversize floral print fabric is just the bold color statement needed to match the drama of this contemporary three-story living room. The nested end tables and coffee table are all lacquered linen in one color—cranberry—to keep the focal point on sofas. Coffee table accessories are in rich shades of blue, green and cranberry.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am 14 years old. My menstrual period has stopped. I was on a strict diet and lost 30 pounds. I haven't had my period for a year. I don't know why. I'm afraid to go to my doctor because I am worried that something is wrong. Can you please tell me what I should do?—D.D.

Strict, prolonged dieting can affect menstrual periods, even cause them to stop. Young women with anorexia nervosa, a psychological problem in which they diet to the point of starvation, often have great menstrual irregularities.

Why would you go to your doctor if everything was all right? The physician is there to help when something may be wrong. Certainly, a year of menstrual absence can indicate something amiss. You're concerned, and that is enough reason to see your doctor, and that's what you should do. Normal menstruation usually returns after a woman returns to a normal diet.

Dear Dr. Donohue: What is meant by the term "superinfection"?—K.F.

A "superinfection" is one you get while taking a drug to fight off another, different infection. They are not common, but are always watched for, especially in patients getting large amounts of medicine, such as penicillin. The organism causing the superinfection is one resistant to the drug being given. The term "super" doesn't mean the infection is more severe than any other kind, only that it comes "on top" of another one.

An example of a superinfection would be taking antibiotics for a urinary infection and developing a vaginal yeast infection.

Dear Ann Landers: When you read this, you will probably think it is not possible that such a letter could be written in 1979. I assure you I am for real, and there are probably a few more guys around like me.

I am 31 and have never had a girl friend. I am not a homosexual. It's just that I was always shy, never able to get up the nerve to have sex.

I see my friends getting married and having families, and I am becoming increasingly discontented. Recently I met a 40-year-old widow who has two grown children. She is the first woman I have ever been totally at ease with. I have managed to engineer several "casual" meetings, and we always have a terrific time together.

We ran into my aunt two weeks ago and she told my mother. Mother insists the woman is being kind because I look like her eldest son. She also says, "Don't be ridiculous. She's too old to have a baby for you." As a final thrust, Mother added, "Her former husband was a brilliant man. You probably bore her to death."

I have been very unhappy since I have stopped running into her. Please advise.—Shy Guy

Dear Guy: From what you've told me, I could write a book about your mother.

Start running into that widow again as soon as possible. It sounds as if she was helping you break out of your shell—a major achievement. Lucky you!

Dear Ann Landers: Christmas is coming, and I hate the thought of it. My husband and his brothers and sisters were not born with silver spoons in their mouths—it was poker chips.

Every Christmas Eve they gather at our place because we have the biggest house. Nobody says grace before the meal. They die in like animals. (Last year my wrist was actually pierced by a fork.)

There is never any civilized conversation. They rush through dinner so they can get to the poker table. (I don't play.) All I hear is, "You're shy a red Antie up. Put up or shut up. I've got you skunked."

Dear Ann Landers: May I comment on the typist who complained about her boss' handwritten notes "filled with misspelled words and grammatical errors." You told her off but not enough.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

Oswald: "That prolific writer Victor Mollo has come up with a real Christmas present. The book is called 'Bridge Case for the Defense'."

Alan: "It is a collection of problems in reasoning. You are shown your hand and dummy (except for opening lead problems) and asked the correct play. Then he answers the problem and gives his reason why the play he recommends is correct."

Oswald: "Victor uses his British style of bidding that tends to leaps in notrump. But this is a book on play. Thus, if North plays in five clubs he will make the contract unless East opens a heart."

Alan: "You as East play your queen of spades at trick one. Declarer wins with the ace, leads a club to dummy's jack and leads the jack of diamonds. Victor asks: 'What card should East play?'"

Oswald: "Here is the answer. The ace of diamonds. Declarer is sure of six club tricks, the aces of hearts and spades, so that one diamond will be his ninth trick. You must continue by leading the king of spades and hope for the best."

Alan: "Everything is fine. You set him two tricks."

Son Of Iran Holy Man To Take Volunteers To Fight Israel

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — The maverick son of one of Iran's leading holy men said Sunday he will lead more than 1,000 unarmed Iranian volunteers to Lebanon this week to join the Palestinian struggle.

Lebanon has told the Iranians they are unwelcome. Sheik Mohammad Montazeri, son of Tehran's senior religious leader Ayatollah Hosseinali Montazeri, said 6,000 "brothers and sisters" have responded to his independent appeal for 10,000 volunteers, but there had not been time to process everyone yet. Three airplanes will fly the unarmed volunteers, some as young as 13, to Lebanon beginning Monday, he said.

Montazeri said he was unconcerned that the government in Beirut had rejected his plans to send in the force to fight Israelis in southern Lebanon.

For years, Palestinian guerrillas have launched attacks against Israel from across the Lebanese border. Currently the Palestinians in the border area are confronting a Lebanese Christian force backed by Israel.

Villagers Resist Move

JERUSALEM (AP) — Prime Minister Menachem Begin's government ordered work to begin on a new site for the controversial West Bank settlement of Elon Moreh on Sunday, but Arab villagers in the area temporarily blocked the way with a barricade of burning tires.

The new U.S. Mideast envoy, Sol Linowitz, arrived in Tel Aviv, meanwhile, after meeting earlier Sunday in Cairo with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat.

In brief arrival remarks, Linowitz said the American commitment to Israel "was never stronger than it is today. The United States remains steadfast in its determination that Israel will remain free and strong as a trusted ally."

Earlier in Cairo, Linowitz said he was not sure Egypt and Israel could meet a deadline to give autonomy by next May to the 1.2 million Palestinians living in the West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip.

The American diplomats hold talks today with Begin.

A spokesman for the Israeli military government in the West Bank said the Arab demonstration against the new Jewish settlement, near the village of Dir el-Hatab, was broken up after several hours. Israeli bulldozers then began working on a road to the site.

The Israeli Supreme Court in October ruled that the government illegally seized Arab property for the Elon Moreh settlement and ordered that it be evacuated. The government chose another hill six miles away that it says belongs to the state.

It was still uncertain whether the 17 families of Elon Moreh would voluntarily evacuate their outpost. The Israeli news media quoted a group spokesman as saying they would not leave until the government agreed to remove the land issue from the court's jurisdiction.

In another development, Israel Peled, mayor of Ramat Gan and a member of the Liberal Party, part of Begin's coalition government, charged that the prime minister premier was "physically sick and mentally broken."

Other Liberal leaders and Begin's personal physician immediately denied it. Begin suffered a major heart attack in 1977 and a stroke last July.

Begin's government has had to face a number of political threats in recent weeks. The Israeli Cabinet on Sunday said it was turning a forthcoming vote in Parliament on amending an abortion law — one of the most burning issues — into a vote of confidence, thus putting the government's future on the line.

The debate and vote was set for Dec. 17.

After his meeting with Sadat, Linowitz told reporters President Carter had instructed him to assure Sadat and Begin that "aside from Iran, there is no foreign policy issue to which the president gives higher priority than the Middle East."

The message appeared to be aimed at keeping both sides working on their differences on the autonomy issue. The two nations disagree on how much autonomy to grant the Palestinians and on the status of Jerusalem.

Montazeri said "We don't need visas." If the group was refused permission to land in Beirut, he said, "we are going to Syria."

If the volunteers could not be used to fight in southern Lebanon, Montazeri told reporters, there are "other activities" they could perform for the "cause."

Fundamentalist Moslems in Iran accuse Israel and the United States of conspiring to undermine the Islamic revolution here. They blamed "Zionists" and the United States for the recent attack of Islam's holiest shrine — the Grand Mosque in Mecca, Saudi Arabia. The Saudi government, however, identified the attackers as Moslem extremists, mostly Saudi.

Montazeri said his troops had no weapons, but "weapons are not important. The important things are human beings. There are lots of weapons in Lebanon. We'll get what we need there."

Montazeri said the volunteers had "received good training so far" and would need seven to 10 days of training in Lebanon to become familiar with the geography and terrain.

Montazeri said the volunteers would work primarily with Yasser Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization, especially Arafat's Fatah guerrilla group. He said Iran's ruling Revolutionary Council agreed to pay for the mission and had ordered the army to provide clothes and boots, but did not say whether the plane they travel in would be military or commercial.

He was vague about the backgrounds of the volunteers, but said some were being released from the pro-Khomeini revolutionary guards.

In the future, he envisions sending volunteer forces "wherever" they might be needed, including "Europe or the American continent," he said.

"We are trying to liberate masses of people all over the world regardless of their religion or nationality," Montazeri said.

The white-turbaned younger Montazeri, in his early 30s, is well-known in Iran for unusual behavior. Last summer he turned up with 200 armed followers at Tehran's Mehrabad Airport and demanded to be flown to Libya to search for a missing Moslem cleric.

Airport authorities refused a plane, and Montazeri and his followers spent the night in the terminal, praying.

Robert Spence School Relates New Classes, Winter Schedule

"Feeling good about yourself, knowing that you are poised and self-confident and that you are socially effective" is what the courses at the Robert Spence School are all about.

"We recognize that such a process is a very individual one and that you are seeking to develop a sense of style that is comfortable, natural and effective — a sense of style that will let you be your most successful self."

The Robert Spence School, in Terrace Center, 4902 34th St., Suite 15, phone 797-8134, is now making plans for its January session of classes which will begin Jan. 14, 1980. The deadline for registration is Jan. 11.

A variety of classes will be available during this next class session: personal development, exercising, business etiquette and professional modeling. In addition, the Little Princess, the Young Miss and the Classic Woman brief courses will be offered. Enrollment is limited since no more than eight students are assigned to a class so that instructors can devote individual attention to each student.

New Course

A new course, designed for professional women, will be offered beginning in January. The four-lesson course concentrates on posture, poise, make-up, hairstyles, wardrobe and business etiquette for the woman in business. This course is excellent for the personnel of large or small businesses, banks or professional organizations. Class times are flexible to meet the schedules of the various groups.

The Little Princess and the Young Miss are six-week courses designed for girls who are age five to nine and 10 to 14, and cover posture, social etiquette, grooming and personality.

The Classic Woman course is a six-week course designed for the woman who is interested in updating her wardrobe, perfecting her make-up and developing poise so that she will be confident in all situations she may encounter. This course is especially successful for clubs and area groups.

The Robert Spence School now has licensed aestheticians who can assist individuals on make-up application. Facials and mini-facials are available by appointment.

The personal development course, a 26-week course, is designed to help the student look and sound her best. By concentrating on the fundamental elements of movement, skin care and make-up application, hair styling, figure correction, speaking, wardrobe coordination and personality development, the personal development course helps students achieve poise and self-confidence.

For Professional Modeling

Beyond these self-improvement courses, Robert Spence offers an 18-week course of instruction in professional modeling. Such training can open career vistas to many women. The school functions as an agency and has placed many women in modeling jobs in the Lubbock area as well as in Dallas and New York City.

As a modeling agency, Robert Spence makes available its professionally trained models and instructors for occasions such as conventions, grand openings, fashion shows, commercials and photography.

Long Record

The Robert Spence School is owned and directed by Brenda Becknell and is fully certified by the Texas Education Agency. In January, the school will begin its eighteenth year of operation in Lubbock.

All instructors are members of the World Modeling Association and the Modeling Association of America, and they are graduates of the Robert Spence School. They attend workshops and seminars in New York, Utah and Nevada to update their curriculum and keep abreast of the current trends in fashion. In addition, they all have professional experience modeling for advertising, television commercials, and fashion shows as well as being experienced public lecturers.

Instructors are available to give lectures and demonstrations to groups and organizations. They also teach the short courses for groups of eight or more in Lubbock and surrounding towns.

During the next session, classes will be offered with various weekly schedules from 10 a.m. to 12 noon, or 1-3 p.m. Evening classes meet once weekly from 7-9 p.m. Arrangements can be made for private and semi-private sessions as well as for special location classes.

Gift certificates are available for those who want to give a gift that will be appreciated for years to come.

A phone call, remember, will bring complete information about the classes.

Optical Store And Boutique Reveals New Location, 'Just One Door South'

The Optical Store and Boutique has a new home!

Formerly familiar at 5202 Slide Road, this "Our Boutique is Unique" firm has moved just one door south to 5204 Slide Road, into larger, convenient and easier departmentalized quarters.

"We know you'll like the new convenience, and we hope you will visit us at earliest convenience. Let us say 'Merry Christmas.' After all, we're somewhat of a Christmas type store, too! Proof?

"Wouldn't the holidays be a good time to come out, while that student son or daughter is at home and select fashion frames, as example, for a gift and for enjoyment in the new school term or other field of endeavor?"

"And there are live houseplants stocked for sale, also! And silk flower arrangements and other gifts. Likely a gift certificate from the Optical Store and Boutique, now at 5204 Slide Road, would be in order, Right?"

Also, remember that several plus-factors place this firm at the forefront in its field. Such as one-day service on many prescriptions (with its own lab, the firm can act most speedily and efficiently).

And the video that is utilized in frame selection has met with tremendous approval.

It all is a part of the firm's appreciation of its friends and customers and its dedication to finest service possible.

New video tape equipment has been installed to enable one to be photographed with the various frames, then the tape is played back through a color television set to enable one to see exactly how the frames look upon him or her.

Doesn't this make sense?"

"We at The Optical Store & Boutique think so, and we believe we are the first optical company in Lubbock to offer this brand new innovation to optical dispensing."

"We believe it is general knowledge that quality lines in frames and glasses are just as near The Optical Store & Boutique."

Thoroughly in keeping with the firm's consideration of the customer's welfare, the folks there emphasize:

(1) Children should have an eye examination annually.

(2) Adults should take the same step every two years.

(3) Even if one does not wear glasses, eye examination on a systematic schedule is recommended.

(4) See your eye doctor and then when glasses are advised, bring his prescription to us at The Optical Store & Boutique, and we'll prove our uniqueness and capabilities with you benefitting.

"We want to see you keep your frames in good repair, and we'll help if you simply give us the chance!"

Enviably Frame Selection

"And did you realize that The Optical Store & Boutique stocks the complete spectrum in frames, including a utility selection combining style with surprisingly low price?"

A departmentalized arrangement of rooms and areas provides four distinct categories in our service: (1) utility selection, (2) another where quality is the sole consideration, (3) designer frames, and finally (4) the Boutique.

So, whether the attractively priced lines in frames and glasses for the student, as example, or the very finest in choices from the Designer collection or the unusual and expensive lines within the Boutique are preferred, this Lubbock facility is outstanding, in a class by itself.

Also newly arrived are pastel velours in coordinating pants, skirts and tops, by Larch.

There are new arrivals in street dresses, also in midnight royal velvet and holiday burgundy velour.

Select sweaters with matching pants for a great look.

Available at the inimitable Charlene's are many gift items including music boxes, book ends, dresser sets, even Christmas decorated hand towels.

"We try to make wishes come true at Charlene's of Town South, don't you agree?"

"We'll help you with the selections, and we'll gift wrap them, too. Call or come shopping, we're so happy to assist you with your holiday giving."

Shop Charlene's, 10 a.m. until 6 p.m., at 73rd Street and Indiana Avenue (Town South Shopping Center), phones 792-2776 and 792-2777. Visa and Master Charge purchases are welcomed.

Bugs & Bikes' Complete Sales, Parts, Service Simplifies Christmas Gifting

"Featuring Takara and Motobecane bicycles, Bugs & Bikes at 3211-B 34th St. can be quite a Christmas kind of store for you, too, in gift planning or even for meeting bicycle needs the year around."

Though specializing in adult 10-speed bikes, Bugs & Bikes is devoting full attention to the Model 500 bikes for children... the ideal first bike for the 3 to 6 year old, and great for under the Christmas tree! The Takara units for children are of such rugged design and construction that the bikes can be passed down to several kids! In Cherokee Red, it is ideal for Christmas.

Repair, Accessories

Bugs & Bikes is exclusive Lubbock dealer for the prestigious Takara and Motobecane bikes, also stocking a full line of accessories.

Repairs on all makes of bicycles is a specialty.

Owners-operators Preston and Kathy Doughty point out that the Junior 10-speed bikes by Takara and Motobecane are great for teenagers, too.

And for the really serious bike riders, Motobecane is said "in a class by itself," in the top five worldwide.

Preston invites the customer to compare the quality bicycles on the market, comparing feature by feature. Then one will discover just how very much the lines at Bugs & Bikes have to offer!

Mr. and Mrs. Doughty are glad to take time explaining the criteria for selecting the appropriate bicycle for your particular needs, extending professional but personal interest in your selection and enjoyment of a bicycle best for you.

A good stock of motocross models is stocked.

And something new: Bugs & Bikes not only stocks bicycles but has added a special product that could well be the most considerate Christmas present of all: a Minibrute battery-powered chain saw!

12-Volt Chainsaw

This chainsaw, Doughty explains, is the world's first 12-volt battery powered chain saw.

Just clip the power leads on the saw to the terminals of a 12-volt battery, press the switch and make your cut; it is that easy! The saw starts easily and instantly; it is quieter than gasoline-powered saws and is said to require very little service.

Perfect for cutting firewood and for trimming, the Minibrute 14-inch chainsaw can be used for heavy cutting for a period of time, with actual design for light to medium cutting. It is powered by a small but powerful permanent magnet motor, the type used on electric winches and as starters on many small engines.

How long will Minibrute run on a battery? Well, long enough to cut about a pickup load of wood, using a standard auto battery!

For a thoughtful Christmas... Bugs & Bikes can give the big assist! Select now, at 3211-B 34th St., phone 795-5416, and be assured of quality, selection, and consideration by "pros" in the business. For a bicycle for any age, for a bike with all the desired personalized features, for a craftsmanship quality precision unit to enjoy season after season, select from Takara or Motobecane at Bugs & Bikes, the bicycle people at 3211-B 34th.

Little Shoppe Miniatures, Gift Items Aiding Santas

For the hobbyist, for the amateur and avid miniature collector, for folks who simply appreciate the unusual, the pretty and the intriguing, The Little Shoppe comes through, stronger than ever!

Miniatures by the thousands... delightful new arrivals... darling creations... clever kits for one's own construction enjoyment... and with the stock predominately Christmas oriented at this time... this is the provocative picture at The Little Shoppe in Cactus Alley!

Though throughout the year stocking miniatures in almost unbelievable quantity and quality, The Little Shoppe has added more in time for holiday preparation and gifting.

Owner-operator Norma Bartley seems to take delight in stocking miniatures never before seen or presented in this area!

Be sure to see the new doll house kits, the furniture kits, the Victorian and Country Kitchens, with all needed accessories.

And Christmas trees! Select the 3-in. sizes for vignettes or doll houses, with 2-in. and 3-in. trees ideal for shadow boxes and printers trays.

The blank trees are ready for decorating, or in kits Norma is happy to show how it all is done. In fact, this is one of the key benefits at the so-unique shop. Norma Bartley is glad to "tell you how" to bring to finished state any project originating at The Little Shoppe, just for the asking, no added charge!

There is a very good assortment of cut wood, ideal for packages (Nancy's darling packages are already gift wrapped and ready for giving).

And there is beautiful, petite scaled wrapping paper!

Plus Christmas wreaths, ornaments, Sculpt clay for making one's own ornaments, a new arrival of poinsettias, and more (all in miniature, remember).

There are new arrivals from the Bead Garden, there are holiday centerpieces, Della Robbia brandy snifters, bead arrangements etc.

Norma also has stocked the miniature fireplaces to decorate or even use as a house decor item or in vignettes.

For Christmas, the miniature creches for home or for gift packages are something special, these must be seen to be fully appreciated.

See the herringbone or parquet floors also available for the doll house.

The "miniature" selection is reputed to be larger than any in all West Texas.

This year The Little Shoppe, though still in Cactus Alley, moved into enlarged quarters there. With the added room, the stock has been more than doubled, with open display enabled for the thousands of items!

One cannot enumerate all that is The Little Shoppe. Pages could be written describing the miniature cookware, the furnishings for every room of a miniature mansion, greenhouses complete with spring flowers and potted plants, all the Christmas-related stock, etc., but one can only comprehend the completeness of the stock upon personal inspection.

PKM Jewel Salon Meeting Gift Needs With Fullest Stock Ever

Christmas gifts for one you love together delightfully so! PKM Jewel Salon, they all go together delightfully so!

Visits to PKM, at 4509 50th St., are especially advised and invited at this time to solve the Christmas gifting need in your own situation, and in consideration of its many customers, PKM has expanded its hours, its staff and its stock!

Extended Hours
Hours, until Christmas, are 10 a.m. until a late 9 p.m. closing, Mondays through Fridays, and from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m. Saturdays.

Early and astute purchasing by PKM owner and founder Ron Morgan has resulted in a large and selective stock from which gift buying can be most rewarding.

New Arrivals
Be sure and see the new brass items, the new-design jewelry and other daily arrivals that swell the stock in this so-attractive southwest Lubbock store.

PKM truly is a "one-of-its-kind establishment, and if there is any one season during which it could be said to afford special benefit, then that season would be Christmas!

Aside from seemingly "providing it all" throughout the year, even more has been added within every department to serve the enviable and growing list of South Plains customers.

Ron Morgan recently made a buying trip to the South Pacific, and merchandise now being shown reflects his success in securing quality in the unusual, including jade, pearl, coral and lapis jewelry.

Karen Boggs, interior designer, operates the design studio within PKM where "wonderful things" for the home and office design are provided. Karen a few weeks ago made an extensive buying trip to Europe, with so much that is new now offered within the studio in time for Christmas.

"Whether served by Ron, by Karen, by Donna Golightly, Teresa Hall, Nodia Brent, Fred Wooten, Dottie Saeger or Henry Gibson, one may be assured of professional knowledge and a genuine desire to best serve you as a cherished customer at PKM Jewel Salon, a beautiful firm thoroughly worth of its name as a jewel salon with gifts suitable for every person on one's list."

Prater's Holiday Order Schedule Dates Posted

Holiday meal planning certainly accentuates the importance of the following:

"For quality products at their best, buy Prater's smoked turkeys, country cured bacon, brown 'n' serve turkey, fresh dressed turkeys and regular hams, long cured boneless hams and oven-ready dressing.

"If you have not formed the Prater's habit, then a delightful new experience is in store for you."

Important Dates
The following deadlines are of importance in assuring one or more of these birds for you, however:

Reserve orders are encouraged and should be picked up Dec. 17 through Dec. 22.

(If the bird is needed before the 17th, there is no need to call for reserve order.)

Those remaining after the 22nd will be placed in open stock.

Prater's, phone 745-2727, will remain open until noon Christmas Eve.

In Supermarkets, Too
You may buy the Prater products at Prater's (just drive about two miles south of Loop 289 on University Avenue and look for the Prater's sign on the Left) or you can find the special Prater's Label right in your favorite supermarket.

At the Prater plant, clean throughout, there is noticeable attractive decor and ease in shopping.

Check the several products for which Prater's is famous, products that are available for the holidays and for value and goodness at any time.

A delicious smoked turkey roll is one of the members of the Prater's product family. These are breasts that are put in rolls and smoked, and not only are most delicious, but have been appreciated by weight watchers.

Old-fashioned cornbread dressing is available in the customary four-pound size and in two-pound lots. Surely everybody who buys a turkey will want this dressing!

Boneless Hams
The boneless hams are prepared at the Lubbock facility and are completely cooked, ready to eat and have the same sugar-cured goodness of the other hams for which Prater's is so favorably known. The boneless hams are available in 4 to 8 lb. sizes.

Or maybe the choice is brown-and-serve baked turkey fresh, fattened birds. Smoked turkeys, or those long-cured country hams, smoked or spiced.

Bacon, Sausage
Hickory-smoked Canadian bacon, country-cured bacon, smoked sausage, and smoked turkey breasts.

For the small family, Prater's comes through with smoked chickens at a 3 1/2 lb. average size.

It's all at Prater's.

A spacious display room with self-service refrigerated cases makes viewing and selecting especially convenient at Prater's.

For assurance of a Christmas meal unmatched in tasty goodness, depend on Prater's products (that also are great for gifting).

LOOK FOR THE BRIGHT YELLOW BUILDING

Wheel & Tire Center, On 50th, Distinctive In Looks, Values

"Surely you've discovered the bright yellow building at 1506 50th Street, home of Wheel & Tire Center!"
"And if you have visited this center, you have discovered selection, quality and price in tires to your exceptional benefit. Wheel & Tire Center would have it no other way."
Opened in Lubbock in early June, the Wheel & Tire Center here is a second facility of the Amarillo firm of the same name, operating and serving that region well for several years.
Reception in Lubbock has been most gratifying. Lubbock manager Ray Jackson reports, expressing his appreciation to customers who have helped the business grow in a most notable manner since its opening here.

Michelin, Goodrich
Stocked is everything in auto and truck tires by Michelin and B. F. Goodrich, including the performance T/A Radial by Goodrich.
Also there are mag wheels by Western, Cragar, American Racing and Keystone.
As added inducement, Jackson and salesman-assistant manager Dwaine Thomas join in emphasizing that "prices on every Michelin in stock are slashed 25 per cent."
All this would correctly seem to make for ease in the Christmas holiday shopping and travel season for gifting or for readying the family auto for safer holiday excursions.

Wheel & Tire Center mounts and balances, at no charge, all tires sold there. Repair of "flats" and other services are part of the picture, too.
Master Charge and Visa purchases are welcomed, and financing is made available through Dial Finance.
Wheel & Tire Center is open from 9 a. m. until 6 p. m., Mondays through Saturdays.
"May we have the early pleasure of meeting your tire needs, completely and economically?" We believe we can aid in your holiday plans and enjoyment, just check with us at the bright yellow building, 1506 50th St., phone 763-2333, in Lubbock.

Double T Ranch Gallery Tells Added Gifting Merchandise, Extended Hours

Double T Ranch Gallery, at 5302-D Slide Road, is not a limited-inventory shop "far from it." One can select from the most economical gift or jewelry item or from the highest price individual art work, and in a price spread in between. Double T Ranch Gallery is a customer-considering establishment, and a great "find" at Christmas time.
Special Opportunity
Right now, there is a big 30 per cent off marked on all Nambe ware.
And there's free engraving on bill-folds.
There are original Paul Wylie paintings and bronzes.
And Indian things such as rugs, pottery, paintings, sand paintings, and much more.
In selection of Christmas gifts, why settle for less than what you know will be "right" and "appreciated" — a quality Western gift at affordable price?
Why settle for less than gifts from Double T Ranch Gallery, headquarters for Western arts and crafts, 5302-D Slide Road, phone (806) 792-2106.
Western Greeting Cards
Western Christmas cards of distinction are in stock, but hurry.

Store hours are 9:30 a. m. until 6 p. m., Mondays through Saturdays, until 9 p. m. on Thursdays.
Shopping at Double T Ranch Gallery can be one of the most enjoyable experiences ever, with really economical purchases enabled, with one also privileged to see and compare the fantastic selection of investment art brought to Lubbock by this gallery.
The assurance is this: whether selection is from a gift of only a dollar or two, or if from an art work selling for thousands of dollars, value is the rule and certainty.
Among the popular Western gifts are lots of accessories — buckles, Indian jewelry, cuff links, stick pins, knives, and more.
Free gift wrapping for Christmas is featured.
Some 100 styles of Western Christmas cards are provided and now is the time to select.
There are original line drawings on leather, original hand carvings, some of the finest Indian pottery in the nation, blankets, fine copperware, lots of leather accessories, ranch bells, horseshoe desk sets, Remington buckles, etc.

"Isn't it refreshing to find such a large collection that is affordable, yet all of definite quality?"
Owners Mr. and Mrs. Mac Taylor would have nothing less than a top-notch establishment. A lifelong Lubbock resident, Taylor most recently had a very well known Western wear store here, and he and Mrs. Taylor opened the Gallery this past April.
"If it is Western and quality, then likely the Taylors have provided it right here on the South Plains at the outstanding Double T Ranch Gallery."
Gallery Excels
As for the fine oil paintings, with investment art dominating, the best known western artists are featured. Imagine a selection of Alfredo Rodriguez originals, plus scores of other paintings, bronzes, etc. by such familiar names as John Jellico, Sue Lynn, Paul Wylie, James Ralph Johnson, John Cox, Jim Abeita, Lone Wolf (Schultz), Michael Naranjo and others.
"Lubbock and area can well be proud of such an establishment as the Double T Ranch Gallery. Find out for yourself by visiting this source of Western arts, browsing, comparing and selecting."

Don Crow Chevrolet Explains Service Charge Comparisons Often Deceiving

"A lower hourly service rate does not necessarily mean that your auto repair cost will be less."
This is the word from Don Crow Chevrolet, Inc., Slide Road at South Loop 289, where Service Manager Jess Nichols and staff take pride in the ultimate in customer service and "square dealing."
Nichols elaborates upon the statement about hour rates.
"We at Don Crow Chevrolet use Chevrolet factory time in computing time for any job operation. Many other dealers and shops use an industry-popular 'Chilton time' in computing jobs. What is the difference? Note the following and possibly you will discover how first appearance, first figures, first implications may be misleading.
"Suppose we need to perform a repair service involving a particular phase of a brake job. Chevy factory time allocates 6 hour Chilton time, for the same job, is 1.2 hours.

"So, 6/1.2 hour at our $25 per hour rate equals $15.
"Another shop, quoting a lesser $14 hourly rate, but using Chilton's 1.2 hour computation would thus charge $16.80 for the same operation though a lower hourly rate had been posted.
Check It Out
"It pays you to know all the facts; it pays to know and trust Don Crow Chevrolet" is the word and pledge from Manager Don Crow Jr. and the entire service staff at the big and time-proven Don Crow Chevrolet in southwest Lubbock.
"When you consider our honesty in dealing, the dedication of a professional staff with true know-how, our reputation for saving for you in dollars and cents, then why consider anything less than Don Crow Chevrolet for your every auto repair need?

All service work is guaranteed 90 days or 4,000 miles on all General Motors parts and accessories.
More than a dozen technicians and three service advisors are on the job.
Service Manager Nichols is a 25-year Lubbock resident and is especially well known in the Lubbock and Brownfield areas.
"The Service Department of Don Crow Chevrolet invites comparison. We are glad to show you the posted hourly rates and allotted Chevrolet factory time for any job; we are open in our every transaction."

"Finest food, prices to live with, and a service reflecting genuine appreciation of the customer" is the whole story of Southern Sea, founded, owned and operated by Robert and Priscilla Sims, on the Lubbock food service and preparation scene since back in 1974.

Bowman Arranges Santa Visit Saturday, Sunday Afternoons

Two significant situations at the Bowman Garden, Gift & Christmas Center might lead in the scores of reasons for patronizing this center at 8301 S. University.

(1) Santa will be on hand this Saturday, Dec. 15, from 1 p.m. until 4 p.m. Then he will be back on Sunday, Dec. 16, from 1:30 p.m. until 4 p.m. He invites folks to bring the kiddies, free candy canes will be given.

Tree Special
The Bowman Garden Center will be open Sunday from 1:30 p.m. until 5 p.m. as further customer consideration.

(2) Beautiful live Christmas trees are stocked in abundance, with a special selected group of Douglas firs, 5 ft. to 7 ft height, priced at just $8.99! What an opportunity!

Other trees, including Noble fir, Concolor fir and Douglas firs are available in heights 4 ft. to 8 ft., and in a price range from the $8.99 specials to $34.99.

Everything is a-glitter at the Bowman Garden, Gift & Christmas Shop, with scads of decorations, decor and gift items, artificial trees, custom arranging and decorating, a tremendous ribbon selection and more.

See the shell Christmas tree ornaments, plus sea shell graphics, night lights, etc. And handblown glass Christmas ball in the gorgeous decorator colors.

It is a fantastically large, discriminating stock, with new gift lines from throughout the world, that greets one at Bowman's. (Check elsewhere in the big center, also for appropriate gifts for every member of the family. Power tools, art supplies, decorator items and thousands of other needs are stocked to assure your being a Santa long to be appreciated and remembered!

The selection of a ski dealer might seem nothing more than a question of convenience, but take it from us (and a lot of our customers) where you buy your skis is a most important consideration, for the dealer you choose will affect the skis you choose, as well as the boots, poles, bindings and accessories you need to improve your skiing and for full enjoyment of the sport. Finding a dealer who can satisfy you in each of these areas is not difficult... simply depend upon Ski-Lubbock sports where expertise and customer consideration is the rule rather than exception.

Voting Machines In Louisiana Governor's Race Impounded

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Republican Dave Treen, hoping to break the Democrats' 102-year hold on the Louisiana governorship, watched his slim election victory margin dwindle Sunday. A judge impounded the state's 6,400 voting machines. "It serves no useful purpose for me to claim victory," Treen said at a news conference Sunday. "The votes are there. All we're doing is counting them."

Democrat Louis Lambert was in seclusion Sunday. After voting machines in the state's 64 parishes were impounded Sunday afternoon at the request of Treen's campaign, Treen's campaign manager, John Cade, said a "major error" had been found in the unofficial total in one parish, cutting 6,000 votes from Treen's margin.

The error happened in the heart of Lambert's homeland, as figures were apparently reversed in the tally reported by the news election center. With the corrected figures from all the state's 2,899 parishes, Treen was ahead by 11,412 votes with 690,335, or 50.4 percent, to 678,923, or 49.6 percent, for Lambert.

"It is a close election, and until the official results are promulgated I don't want to be boastful or sound that way," he said. "I think we won, but with a large vote we should wait and see."

Treen didn't mention the 6,000 vote switch at his early afternoon news conference, but, when asked about it, he admitted that was one of the reasons for his cautious statements.

"We know about it. It appears to be an honest error. We're checking — and re-checking — all the parishes," said Treen.

Treen, a 52-year-old, four-term congressman from suburban New Orleans, said he wanted his followers to guard against any tampering with vote machines.

Treen's campaign manager urged GOP poll watchers to keep an eye on the state's 6,400 voting machines until they are locked away some time later. The machines are to be opened for the official canvass Tuesday.

Lambert, at 38 trying to become the state's youngest governor, would not concede but acknowledged Treen appeared to be the winner.

"We will know after tomorrow or Tuesday when the results are counted," Lambert said early Sunday. "Until then I want to congratulate Congressman Treen. We have run hard. We have run well. We are not finished."

After the primary six weeks ago, Lt. Gov. Jimmy Fitzmorris, who missed the runoff spot by 2,300 votes, charged the election was stolen through irregularities and vote buying. But after a two-week court battle, Lambert was declared the second-place finisher.

The 17,000-vote margin of victory was nearly a duplication of the primary, in which Treen led a field of nine candidates by 15,000 votes. Saturday's turnout was about 1 percent of the state's 1.9 million registered voters and about 3,000 more than in the primary.

Treen would be the first Republican to occupy the governor's mansion since 1877, when carpetbagger William Pitt Kellogg ended a four-year term beset with dissension.

The election ended the most expensive governor's race in the state's history. Candidates spent a total of $20 million on their campaigns.

Although Democrats outnumbered Republicans 18-to-1, Treen neutralized the imbalance with a strong showing among white voters, a large turnout and strength in the areas dominated by the four Democrats who endorsed Treen after finishing third through sixth in the primary.

"Each and every one of them shares in the victory we have," Treen said.

In the primary, Lambert finished third in the unofficial tally but he gained 4,500 votes to edge into the runoff after the machines were opened.

Treen pledged a bipartisan governorship, although no other top state official is a Republican and he will have only eight Republicans among the 144 members of the Legislature.

Treen is to take office March 10, succeeding popular two-term Gov. Edwin Edwards who was barred from seeking a third consecutive term. Edwards has said he will run again in 1983.

Edwards threw his support to Lambert in the final two weeks of the campaign, and one day before the election, President Carter and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy gave him taped endorsements for broadcast.

These moves, coupled with strong backing from the state's 455,000 blacks and organized labor, nearly overcame Treen's lead, which pollsters had put at as much 22 percent two weeks ago.

Candidates to six other statewide offices, 42 seats in the Legislature and hundreds of local offices also were elected Saturday.

REPUBLICAN CELEBRATION — Louisiana Congressman Dave Treen and his wife, Dodie, wave to the crowd in New Orleans early Sunday while waiting for election returns. If he is elected, he will be the first Republican governor in 102 years in the state. Treen led his Democratic opponent by a slim margin

Hispanic Democrats Support President

DENVER (AP) — The more than 300 delegates to a Hispanic American Democrats meeting unanimously approved a resolution Sunday supporting President Carter's handling of the Iran hostage situation.

And a poll of some of the delegates, meeting in an effort to enhance their political clout in the 1980s, showed more support for Carter as the Democratic presidential nominee than for his opponents.

Twelve states and Puerto Rico were represented at the Hispanic American Democrats' founding convention here over the weekend. The purpose was to forge an alliance of Mexican-Americans, Cuban-Americans, Puerto Ricans and other Spanish-surnamed voters into an effective political unit.

"We must speak with one voice," said David Lazarraga, a Los Angeles director of a community-development organization and chairman of the group. The goal, he said, is to "penetrate the political system and make that system responsive to us."

Although the convention took pains to stay officially neutral in the 1980 presidential race, an informal poll conducted by The Denver Post and verified by a convention spokesman showed that Carter was favored by about 40 percent of the 67 delegates polled.

That compared with 24 percent who support Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass. California's Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. was named by 6 percent, with the remaining delegates surveyed expressing no preference.

Several delegates praised Carter's appointment of Hispanics to important federal posts. "There has been no other president in the past who has done more for the Hispanic than Carter," said delegate Ed Romero, a businessman from Albuquerque, N.M.

The delegates planned to present their political agenda to the national Democratic Party for inclusion in the national platform next summer. Lazarraga said. Another goal is to send 400 to 500 Hispanic delegates to the Democratic National Convention, a number that would be about one-sixth of the total.

Rep. Robert Garcia, D-N.Y., said Hispanics, if organized, can become "a political force that has never been witnessed in the United States before." After decades of "our fighting and feuding," Hispanics are finally recognizing that they need to work together, Garcia said.

Garcia, member of the House subcommittee on census and population, also urged an effort to make sure Hispanics are fully counted in the 1980 census. Many Hispanics have complained that their numbers were drastically undercounted in past census efforts.

Garcia predicted that Hispanics could pick up three or four seats in the House of Representatives and many seats in state legislatures if the census is conducted properly.

The convention delegates included city council members, state legislators, members of Congress and civic activists.

Iran Situation Giving Carter Boost, Campaign Officials Say

AUSTIN (UPI) — Top officials of President Carter's re-election campaign told Texas Democrats during a weekend fund-raiser the Iranian crisis is giving him a unique boost for re-election as the only experienced candidate for the White House.

Two cabinet members, a presidential assistant, Lady Bird Johnson and top Texas Democratic officeholders were among 130 persons at a $1,000-a-head brunch Saturday to raise money for Carter's re-election committee.

Carter originally was scheduled to speak at the brunch and a fund-raising luncheon but canceled the appearance to remain at the White House because of the American hostages being held in Iran. "A lot of people talk about Jimmy Carter's lack of leadership," said Labor Secretary Ray Marshall. "It's obvious to the American people now if it shouldn't have been earlier that that was sheer nonsense."

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, said the consistency, determination and strength Carter has demonstrated in the Iran crisis have earned him respect and proved he passed the leadership test with "flying colors."

"On Oct. 9 when President Carter's future was as dark as it had ever been I became the first member of the United States Senate to endorse him for re-election," Bentsen said.

Time Against Candidate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — At John Connally's campaign headquarters, they're counting the days until next month's Iowa caucuses. And "time" — the one word his people keep bringing up — is the bugaboo.

Time is not on Connally's side in his proclaimed effort to reduce the crowded GOP Presidential field to a two-man race between him and frontrunner Ronald Reagan by year's end.

The former Texas governor spent the first 10 months this year rebuilding his national recognition, then was thwarted by the networks from spending a load of his abundant donations on television commercials.

In early November the one-time Democrat who turned Republican began concentrating on the nitty-gritty of winning convention delegates on a state-by-state basis.

Now he is cutting back a bloated Washington headquarters staff and bringing one of his business buddies and top fund-raisers to crack a whip over those who remain.

The focus is on the early confrontations, starting with the Jan. 21 Iowa precinct caucuses and the Feb. 26 New Hampshire primary, the March 4 Massachusetts and Vermont contests and the March 8 South Carolina primary — the first balloting Connally hopes to win.

Following that is the March 18 Illinois primary, which Connally press secretary Jim Brady flatly says, "We will win."

One of the first orders from the new task master, administrative officer Charles Keating, was, "Keep your desk and quarters organized and clean."

That Dec. 4 memo obtained by UPI indicates the need for Connally's people to organize more than their desktops.

So far 20 persons in the 160-member headquarters staff have been fired and more dismissals are expected, especially in the research department.

Candidate Urges Cutdown Of Embassies

BURLINGTON, Iowa (AP) — Winding up his third Iowa campaign visit in as many weeks, California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. said Sunday the United States should bring its embassy employees home from countries where danger exists.

The Democratic presidential candidate said he does not believe the United States needs an embassy in every country. And, he said, some people think U.S. embassies are indefensible anywhere.

Speaking to a gathering of Des Moines County Democrats, Brown continued his call for a balanced federal budget.

Brown said he knows that a balanced-budget amendment, which he supports, to the U.S. Constitution "isn't perfect." However, he said, "It's a tool to give Congress the guts to do what it hasn't done for a long time and reduce the American deficit."

The candidate said Americans must begin to rely less on foreign marketplaces for cheaper raw materials. The United States used to provide its own raw materials such as steel for cars, he says, but now must depend on foreign countries for those materials.

As a result, American steel mills are closing, automakers are losing money and the prices Americans pay for goods keep rising, he said.

Brown also said President Carter's administration should concern itself more with mass transit, and less with the M-X missile system.

Brown left Burlington Sunday for Chicago and the East Coast, where he will continue his campaign.

Debate Rescheduled To Please Connally

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Des Moines Register, in an apparent response to criticism voiced by John Connally, has decided to reschedule a debate that had been set for the afternoon of Jan. 5 among the Republican presidential candidates.

In a letter to the newspaper's executive editor, James Gannon, Connally had complained that the Republicans were scheduled to debate on a Saturday afternoon while the Democratic presidential candidates are scheduled to debate on the night of Jan. 7.

The GOP debate should be rescheduled, Connally had said, "to place it on an equal footing and viewership with the Democratic event."

McGee Swishes Chaps Through PHS

By DON HENRY

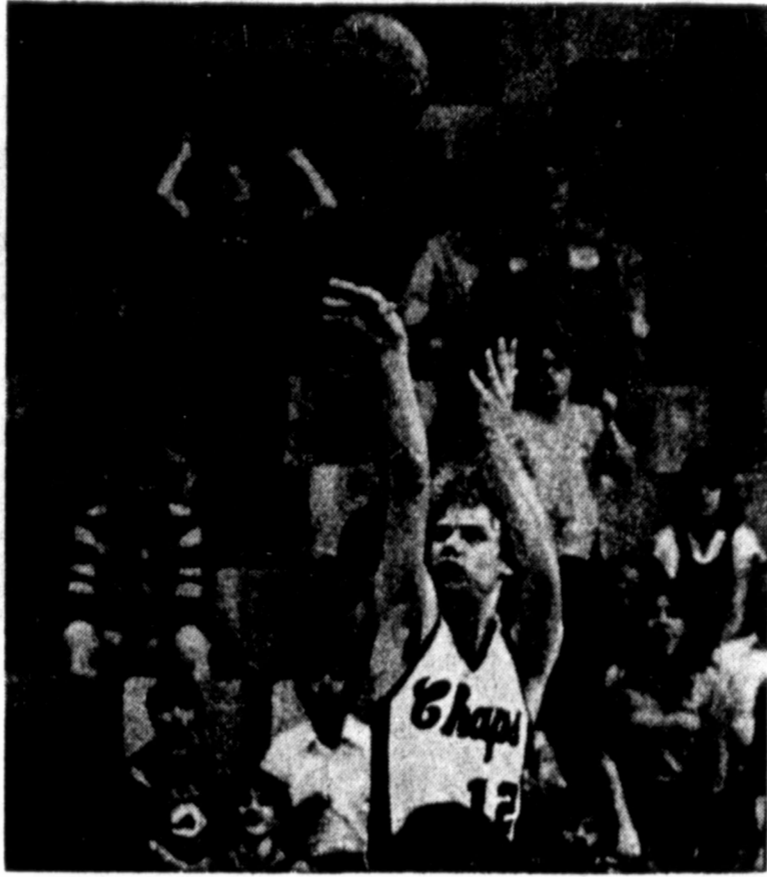

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
Bill McGee wasn't supposed to be the shooter on the play. But, what the heck... If you have the ball and there are only two seconds left.
So, McGee threw up a 25-footer, and even before the basketball hit the floor and the buzzer had sounded, McGee was in orbit, celebrating his and Lubbock Christian College's squeaker over Panhandle State.

LCC, after that early lead, had to come back from a 5-point deficit in the final 1 1/2 minutes.

After guard Bob Waketfield's fast-break bucket with 1:20 remaining put the visiting Aggies up 67-62, the Chaparrals retaliated with McGee's follow shot with 1:08 left.

Playing a tight gambling defense, the Chaparrals regained possession and scored on a 23-footer by Bruce Carver with 52 seconds left. Another turnover, and the Chaparrals slipped in front 68-67 on center Kevin Wharton's layup following a feed by guard Marshall Smith.

Now, with 23 seconds left, Panhandle faced the challenge. The Aggies got a shot, but it was wide and the basketball

THE WINNER — Lubbock Christian College guard Bill McGee, completely unguarded, goes up for a jumper from 25 feet, and the ball fell through the hoop after the buzzer sounded to lift the Chaparrals to a 70-69 victory over Panhandle (Okla.) State Sunday afternoon. McGee's basket capped a 17-point performance for LCC. (Staff Photo By Milton Adams)

Later, he commented, "We wanted to get it to Carver (averaging 17 1/2 points a game and the leading outside shooter) in the corner."

But while Carver was circling to the corner on the right side to try to get open, Wharton, inbounding, saw McGee open on the right side and no defender within three steps.

So McGee caught the ball, took a couple of dribbles and launched the 25-footer. It only slightly disturbed the strings on the bottom of the net on its flight to the court. And at the apex of its flight, the buzzer sounded. By that time, McGee was already leaping in celebration.

"My man got mixed up and didn't know who to guard," McGee said later. "He couldn't get to me in time. I knew there were only two seconds left, and I shot it."

The shot overshadowed a hot first half by the Chaparrals, a patient comeback by the visitors, and a brilliant outside shooting exhibition by the Aggies' Bob Waketfield.

The 6-1 guard hit his — and his team's — first three shots and finished with a 15-for-22 shooting day and 30 points. He had 16 in the second half as the Aggies, playing deliberately against the LCC zone, erased the big Chaparral lead.

Well, we were down — the first time this year we've been behind at the half," said the Panhandle coach, "and when the Oilers face third and one, what do they do? They give it to Campbell. So I told our guys, 'We have a shooter, let's use him.'"

So, we were patient, moved it around, and let Bob shoot."

And Bob shot eight of 11 bullseyes in the last 20 minutes.

Carver was high man for the Chaparrals, with 20 points. McGee had 17, forward Keith Gardner 14 and point guard Smith 11.

Gardner had 11 rebounds to go with his six-for-15 shooting afternoon.

"They played it patient in the last half," commented Hays, "and that is the type of game that hurts us. We were running in the first half."

That running game brought LCC from a 27-24 deficit to a 41-29 lead in 4 1/2-minute stretch in the first half. And Smith capped the running first half with a dunk shot at the buzzer.

The Chaparrals, playing their fourth game in seven days, will have three days of practice and final exams to get ready for Thursday night's home encounter with Wayland Baptist College.

Lubbock Avalanche-Journal Monday Morning, December 10, 1979

Even as he said that, he had to console losing coach Dennis Aye, only Thursday night, the Chaparrals were on the short end of such history, as Howard Payne scored with two seconds remaining in overtime to nip LCC.

McGee's shot lifted the Chaparrals to 5-8 for the year and dropped the Oklahomans to 5-3. It offset a patient comeback by the part of the Aggies who had been down by as many as 12 points in the first half and by 10 at intermission.

But, as it came down to the end, a pair of defensive mistakes first allowed Panhandle to go in front and then the ultimate decider went out of bounds — off LCC.

Eight seconds remained when the Chaparrals' defense left Ron Mims open on the baseline near the goal. The pass went to him, and he dropped it in for a 69-68 lead with six seconds left.

LCC called time out — four seconds showing — and Panhandle coach Dennis Aye, noting that LCC was not in bonus-shooting position, called for a foul shortly after LCC inbounded to both kill time and upset any LCC play.

The foul came with two seconds remaining, and immediately, Hays jumped up, yelling, "Out-of-bounds play, out-of-bounds play."

Tech Will March Against Cadets

By CHUCK McDONALD
Avalanche-Journal Sports

Gerald Myers has a pretty good idea about exactly what happened to the Red Raider basketball team Saturday night in Fort Collins, Colo., when Tech dropped a 73-66 decision to Colorado State.

And no, the Raiders weren't the victims of any home-town officiating either. The Raiders, instead, fell victim to their own mistakes. Myers hopes to have that problem corrected tonight when Tech faces the Air Force Academy just outside of Colorado Springs.

Tipoff for the Tech-Air Force tilt is set for 8:45 p.m. and KFYO radio will broadcast the game.

"We walked out there last night (Saturday) like it was going to be real easy," said Myers in a telephone conversation Sunday evening. "Part of our problem might've been that it was our first road game and part of it was that easy (103-68) win over North Texas."

"But we just didn't play very well. Those 21 turnovers really hurt us. We were just throwing it away, forcing passes and all that stuff."

In general, Myers said, the Raiders played completely unlike the way they had performed at home.

"There just wasn't anything we could depend on," added Myers. "We were just standing around hoping something would happen. We didn't have anybody that played good — I really can't point out anybody."

But there is some good news in the midst of all this despair.

"At least," said Myers, "this will bring us down to reality."

And the Air Force Falcons could well keep the Raiders down at the reality level. The Cadets are 2-2 on the year (Tech is 3-1) and look to rebound from a 73-68 loss against Colorado Saturday night. Among the Falcon victories though is an impressive win over Stanford.

Tim Harris, a 6-6 junior forward, is the leading scorer from last year's Academy team which posted a 12-13 season mark. He averaged 17.2 points an outing for the Falcons.

Manning the other forward spots tonight for Air Force will be either Marc Duncan (6-6, Soph) or Peter McCaffray (6-5, Soph). McCaffray scored 15 points in Saturday's loss to Colorado. At center will be 6-7 Reggie Jones — he also scored 15 Saturday night. The guards should be 5-11 Greg Lewis and Dean Christen (6-3, Soph).

Jones is the Falcons' biggest man at 6-7 and the Academy has three 6-6 men. Obviously they match up pretty well size-wise with the Raiders.

Tech will start 6-8 Ralph Brewster at the post, 6-6 Ben Hill and 6-6 David Little on the wings with 6-5 Kent Williams and 6-4 Jeff Taylor at the guards.

"Air Force is about like us," informed Myers. "They're the same size and they always play well at home."

"It'll be a tough game. I just hope we don't turn the ball over 21 times again."

The Raiders worked out in the Air Force Gym Sunday afternoon, but Myers said that it's hard to get much accomplished on the road.

And no, the Raiders won't have time for any sightseeing or ski trips today either. This basketball is serious business.

"We just don't have time for much between games," said Myers. "But we'll probably go to a movie tonight (Sunday)."

What are they going to see?

"I don't know," he replied. "We'll just have to see what's in the papers."

How about "The Fish That Saved Pittsburgh"? It's about a basketball team that was plagued by turnovers.

Campbell To Run Headlong Into Steel Curtain

HOUSTON (UPI) — Not even Earl Campbell has run up 100 yards against the Pittsburgh Steelers defense, but the fortunes of the Houston Oilers tonight are riding on that barrier being broken.

That chore is not easy. Witness the number of 100-yard rushing games against the Steel Curtain this season: None.

But there are other factors in the key AFC Central battle in the Astrodome which indicate Campbell, the NFL's leading rusher through 14 games with 1,454 yards, can do it. One is the good health of Oilers' quarterback Dan Pastorini, who had a painful right shoulder when he completed 4 of 16 passes earlier in the season at Pittsburgh.

The Steelers won that game 38-7 and held Campbell to 38 yards.

"We knew Pastorini had some arm problems," Joe Greene said. "We knew he'd missed some games. We felt like he couldn't get the ball to his receivers so we just stacked up on Earl. We took away their one weapon."

Since then, however, Houston has marched to six wins in seven games as Pastorini has thrown sharply and backed off defenses.

Campbell, in his second year, got a fast start against the Steelers. At Pittsburgh early last season, he rushed for 89 yards in a 24-17 Houston victory.

"You've got to make sure to cut off his running lanes and not just at the point of attack," defensive lineman John Banaszak said. "People on the back side have got to do their jobs too."

There were other factors in Campbell's favor. His rushing totals in his only Monday night games have been 89, 199 and 120 yards. His rushing totals in his last three games against the Steelers are deceptively low.

He was held to 41, 62 and 38 yards in the three subsequent meetings, all Steelers wins. But two of those were blowouts in which Houston was forced to throw more, and in the other one Campbell was injured after amassing 41 yards in the first quarter.

He still remembers the Donnie Shell blow which separated two ribs last year, and Oilers' tight end Mike Barber can give a graphic description of Mike Wagner's blow to his knee in the AFC Championship game last year. But there does not seem to be any animosity surrounding any recent Oilers-Steelers games.

When they played last year in the Astrodome, 13 players left the field limping, carrying an injured limb or being carried. Two years ago Terry Bradshaw and backup Steelers' quarterback Mike Kruczek were both knocked out of a game in the Astrodome.

The significance of this meeting lends itself to no less violence. Pittsburgh, 11-3, wants to win to secure its seventh straight division title. Houston, 10-4, can assure itself a wildcard playoff berth and keep alive slim hopes of overtaking the Steelers for the title with a victory.

In their final regular season games Sunday, Pittsburgh hosts Buffalo and Houston hosts Philadelphia.

Statisticians have figured that if Houston beats Pittsburgh by more than 19 points the Oilers would win the division even if both teams win their final games.

Dorsett May Miss 'Skins

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas Cowboys star running back Tony Dorsett suffered a "mild shoulder separation" in Saturday's win over Philadelphia and is listed as "questionable" in the Cowboys' regular season finale against Washington, a team spokesman said Sunday.

Dorsett, whose injury had been thought to be more serious Saturday, may be able to participate in non-contact drills as early as Wednesday.

Redskins Win, Create Three-Way Jams

By The Associated Press
Joe Theismann threw for two touchdowns and John Riggins went past the 1,000-yard mark in rushing for the season and collected two TDs as the Washington Redskins whipped Cincinnati 28-14 and moved into a three-way tie for the National Football Conference East Division lead with one game remaining.

"Now we don't have to look to anybody," said Washington Coach Jack Pardee, whose team is 10-5, matching Dallas and Philadelphia. "We're going to Texas. Our destiny is in our hands."

While the arch-rival Cowboys and Redskins pair off next weekend, Philadelphia will be at Houston.

Theismann had one of his finest days against the Bengals, passing for 296 yards and two TDs to Clarence Harmon, who had to wrestle his way into the end zone after each catch.

"We've come to call Clarence 'Kid Clutch,'" said Theismann. "He's made the big play for us all season long."

Coy Bacon, a defensive end dealt to the Redskins by Cincinnati a year ago, put the clamps on his former teammates almost single-handedly by sacking quarterback Ken Anderson four times, with each play stopping a Bengals' drive.

"I just wanted to show them that I'm not through playing football," he said.

Rams 34, Falcons 13

Wendell Tyler scored one touchdown and set up a field goal with a 60-yard run and Jim Youngblood returned an interception 4 yards for another score as the Los Angeles Rams smashed the Atlanta Falcons 34-13 and clinched their seventh straight division title.

It is the first time in National Football League history that a team has recorded seven consecutive division titles.

The Rams, winning their fourth in a row to go 9-6 for the season, put the game on ice with a 28-point outburst in the second quarter, including three touchdowns in less than five minutes.

Tyler rushed for 138 yards on 18 carries, lifting his season total to 968. His scoring run came from 5 yards out, 61 seconds into the second quarter.

The Rams defensive unit set up one other touchdown besides Youngblood's interception return when Nolan Cromwell recovered a fumble at the Atlanta 16.

The Ram defenders produced five turnovers during the game, three of those by Cromwell, and also sacked Atlanta's Steve Bartkowski four times for losses totaling 25 yards.

The other Los Angeles scoring came on Vince Ferragamo's 5-yard pass to Billy Waddy, Cullen Bryant's 4-yard run, and on field goals of 18 at 24 yards by Frank Corral.

Bears 15, Packers 14

Linebacker Tom Hicks scored on a 66-yard interception return with 11:10 to play and Bob Thomas kicked three field goals, leading Chicago to a 15-14 victory over Green Bay as the Bears kept alive their playoff hopes.

The Packers, leading 7-6, had a first down at the Bear 30 when quarterback Lynn Dickey, rushed by Mike Hartenstein, lobbed a screen pass intended for Ricky Patton. The 235-pound Hicks intercepted and raced down the right sideline to score behind a blocking convoy led by Doug Plank and Gary Campbell.

Thomas' extra point attempt was blocked, but Green Bay's Mike McCoy fumbled the ensuing kickoff and Wendell Gaines recovered for the Bears at the Packer 31, setting up a 44-yard field goal by Thomas and a 15-7 lead with 9:25 to play.

Thomas' third field goal was the difference as the Packers struck back to score on a 22-yard pass from Dickey to Paul Coffman with 1:30 to play.

Vikings 10, Bills 3

Inspired by defensive captain Jim Marshall, the Minnesota Vikings defeated Buffalo 10-3 in Marshall's final National Football League game at Metropolitan Stadium.

Marshall, who will be 42 Dec. 30, announced his retirement last week effective at the end of the season. He logged his first two quarterback sacks of the year to spark a Vikings' defensive unit which dominated the high-powered Bills' offense.

Marshall played the Vikings' final series as an offensive tackle and left the field with three seconds remaining with the game ball. He was carried off the field on the shoulders of his teammates.

Minnesota, 7-8, took a 7-0 lead in the first quarter when Tommy Kramer hit Ahmad Rashad with a 19-yard scoring pass.

Cardinals 29, Giants 20

"It will be a showdown the last week of the season," declared Otis Anderson after boosting his bid for a NFL rushing title.

"All the running backs will be giving it their best shot," said the 215-pound St. Louis rookie after leading the Cardinals to a 29-20 triumph over the defensively proud New York Giants.

Everybody's going to be up for the final week I know I am," added Anderson, who galloped for 140 yards on 29 carries and scored two touchdowns to set a league rushing mark for first-year performers.

On his third carry, Anderson shattered a one-year-old standard of 1,450 yards for NFL newcomers set by the Houston Oilers' Earl Campbell. The St. Louis performer had started the day only 24 yards shy of the mark.

Anderson scored on a 9-yard jaunt early in the opening period and capped his production with a 6-yard scoring thrust, helping the Cards mount a 26-6 lead early in the final period.

San Diego quarterback Dan Fouts threw for 253 yards, and reserve running back Hank Bauer scored three touchdowns as the Chargers demolished the New Orleans Saints 35-0.

Raiders 19, Browns 11

The passing combination of Ken Stabler and Cliff Branch gave Oakland an early lead with a 39-yard touchdown play and Jim Breech added four field goals as the Raiders posted a vital 19-14 victory over the Cleveland Browns.

Oakland improved its record to 9-6 heading into the final week of the National Football League season and remained in contention for a playoff berth. Cleveland, also 9-6, fell out of the playoff picture.

The Raiders led the Browns all the way after taking the opening kickoff and driving 63 yards for the touchdown which Branch got with a diving catch at the goal-line. It was the 149th touchdown pass of Stabler's pro career and Branch's 50th touchdown catch.

Oakland built a 13-0 lead when Breech kicked field goals of 25 and 38 yards in the second period.

Chiefs 10, Colts 7

A 43-yard field goal by Jan Stenerud with 11:16 remaining mercifully ended a game between two last-place teams and gave the Kansas City Chiefs a 10-7 victory over the Baltimore Colts.

The game attracted only 25,684 fans to Memorial Stadium, some 60 percent short of capacity, and there were 11,542 no-shows. It was the worst crowd of the season for the Colts, already last in the NFL with a home attendance average short of 38,000.

Lewisville Fumbles Way Into Semifinal

By The Associated Press
Lewisville fumbled four times Saturday night, but one of the miscues rolled into the El Paso Coronado end zone where quarterback Rex Cole pounced on it.

That touchdown gave Lewisville a 15-7 win over El Paso Coronado and a berth in the Class 4A semifinals against Temple. The two teams will meet at 8 p.m. Saturday at Irving's Texas Stadium.

Temple advanced to the next-to-the-last round of the playoffs with a 21-3 win Friday night over Trinity. Quarterback Roby Harris raced for a 14-yard score on the Wildcats' first possession, and Temple held the lead to the end.

Halfback Arnold Balboa rammed 2 yards for his third touchdown of the day to seal Alice's 29-20 4A quarterfinal win

Saturday over San Antonio Wheatle.

The Coyotes will meet Houston Memorial in the Class 4A state semifinals Friday at 7:30 in Corpus Christi.

Quarterback Ricky Matteson threw for one touchdown and ran for another as Memorial edged Baytown Lee, 16-14, in a 4A quarterfinal game Friday night.

Baytown Lee grabbed the early lead on Jim Dippel's 1-yard scoring drive. But Memorial deadlocked the score with 49 seconds left in the first half on Matteson's touchdown connection to Ben Heinrich.

The Houston team took the lead for good on its first possession of the third quarter when Matteson scored on a 1-yard run.

Next week's Class 3A final will feature Bay City — a 7-0 winner over Beaumont Hebert — and McKinney — the victors in a 19-14 come-from-behind win over Lubbock Estacado.

Billy Booker scored the game's only touchdown with a 21-yard run just eight seconds into the second quarter to give Bay City the narrow victory.

Hebert — one of the state's 3A powerhouses this fall — was plagued by 156 yards in penalties.

Next week's championship game marks the first appearance for Bay City in the 3A finals.

In the other 3A semifinal bouts Saturday, running back Cecil Garrett scored two touchdowns, and McKinney held off two fierce fourth-quarter offensive attacks to beat Estacado.

McKinney — trailing 14-0 after the first quarter — battled back with Jaime

Harris' 92-yard interception return for a touchdown and Garrett's 1-yard run for his first score in the second quarter.

Garrett added his second score of the night in the third quarter to give the Lions a 19-14 lead.

Surprising Van advanced to the Class 2A semifinals Friday by beating highly touted Breckinridge on penetrations.

The teams deadlocked, 13-13, but Van earned another week in the playoffs by edging Breckinridge in penetrations, 4-3. Running back Danny Brockaway earned the winning penetration when he crossed the Buckaroos' 20-yard line with 31 seconds to play.

Van meets Childress — which downed Fabens, 19-7, Friday night — in an upcoming semifinal match.

The other 2A semifinal clash will feature MacGregor — a 20-7 winner over Waller — against Edna — which beat Port Isabel, 21-6.

In Class A quarterfinal action, Seagraves tied New Deal, 10-10, but advanced on a 5-2 lead in penetrations; China Spring beat Pilot Point, 20-6; Troup blasted Lovelady, 28-7; and Hull-Daisetta downed Falls City, 14-3.

Seagraves will face New Deal in a semifinal matchup while Troup and Hull-Daisetta will collide Friday at 8 p.m. in Lufkin.

Wheeler will tangle with High Island for all the marbles in Class B.

High Island advanced to the B finals with a 27-0 win Saturday over Salado while Wheeler earned a berth with a 27-7 victory against Valley View.

Rejuvenated Cowboys Hungry For 'Skins

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — File those premature obituaries, boys. The Dallas Cowboys ain't dead yet.

"We're still a fighting football team and we're still capable of having a fine year," says quarterback Roger Staubach.

The Cowboys proved it Saturday, relying on a pair of little-used reserves — rookie running back Ron Springs and wide receiver Butch Johnson — and beating the Philadelphia Eagles 24-17 to clinched their 13th playoff berth in the National Football League's past 14 seasons.

When 1,000-yard gainer Tony Dorsett went out of the game with a separated shoulder, Springs took over and gained 62 yards on 12 carries, second only to Robert Newhouse's 68 yards for the Cowboys, and Wilbert Montgomery's 65 yards that constituted the bulk of the Eagles' ground game.

Springs' carries helped position Dallas for Newhouse's 17-yard, right-side sweep for a third-period touchdown which broke a 10-0 halftime tie, and also helped set up the Cowboys' winning touchdown, a 17-yard diving catch by Johnson of a Roger Staubach pass intended for Tony Hill and deflected into the end zone by linebacker Frank LeMaster.

Johnson was in the starting lineup because of Drew Pearson's antics a week ago. After one of his three TD catches in a 28-7 rout of the New York Giants he leaped into the air, flung the football into the stands and came down hard on his right leg, twisting it and robbing the Cowboys of one of their most potent weapons.

"The last weeks we've been playing very good football," Staubach said, looking back at Dallas' 30-24 Thanksgiving Day loss to Houston and the romp over the Giants.

"We're a very confident team — but we're still in a very precarious situation.

We're in the playoffs but the division is still up for grabs," Staubach added after the Cowboys matched Philadelphia's 10-5 record atop the National Conference East with one regular-season game to go.

"Even when things weren't going well, we believed we could get things going. We knew we could get some momentum. And next week's game against Washington is just as crucial as this week's was."

"We turned it around a little against Houston," said Coach Tom Landry. "It's the first time this year we've played three good games in a row... We were really hanging on a thread. The odds were against us to come in here and beat 'em with Pearson hurt."

The Cowboys will have no trouble getting ready for the Redskins Sunday in Dallas.

"We'll be looking for revenge 'cause they not only beat us but they rubbed it in," said Springs.

Tough Defeat Moves Upchurch To Tears

SEATTLE (AP) — Denver's Rick Upchurch cried and Broncos Coach Red Miller said he felt like crying, too, after the 28-23 defeat to the Seattle Seahawks in a nationally televised National Football League game.

The only other tears among 60,000 fans in the Kingdom Saturday were the Seahawks' tears of joy for Steve Largent, who caught a 43-yard pass from Jim Zorn to give Seattle the winning touchdown with only 1:40 left to play.

Denver used the next 75 seconds to put on a heart-stopping drive that ended with a Craig Morton pass slipping through Upchurch's hands and bouncing out of the end zone. Seattle fell on the ball to run out the clock on the last possession.

After the game Upchurch, who had caught seven passes for 91 yards, sat silently with his head nearly between his knees, crying.

Miller shared the feeling.

"I'm really crying on the inside, believe me," he said. "I guess Seattle played well enough to win. But I never thought they could beat us. We had a lot going for us coming in here, but we didn't measure up."

It was the last home game of the season for Seattle and the first time the Seahawks had beaten the Broncos in their five games. It boosted Seattle to an 8-7 record and gave Denver a 10-5 record, a setback in their drive to the NFL playoffs.

The Seahawks, who gave up a 34-10 lead and lost in their previous game with Denver, savored the victory.

"That was just beautiful," said Seattle offensive coordinator Jerry Rhome. "Denver is a very good team. We're very proud to beat them. It was a super game."

Left-handed quarterback Zorn, who connected on 22 of 39 passes for 308 yards, said, "They're a great team and we had a great time beating them. It was very satisfying."

Denver quarterback Craig Morton, who completed 22 of 40 passes for 245 yards, wasn't talking after the game. He was intercepted twice and sacked four times.

Seattle rolled to a 14-0 lead early in the second quarter on touchdown runs that capped drives of 76 and 75 yards.

The second touchdown pass was set up by a 58-yard missile from Zorn to Sam McCullum.

Bitter Mallory Exits Coaching Job Avenue

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Bill Mallory, passed over for the head coaching job at West Virginia, says he may quit the profession to pursue some business opportunities.

Mallory, the former University of Colorado mentor, was considered the front-runner for the vacancy at West Virginia following the firing of Mountaineer Coach Frank Cignetti last month.

Mallory also was mentioned prominently last summer when it became doubtful that Cignetti, who had serious health problems, could continue as coach. Mallory had agreed to take the job if Cignetti was unable to continue, but the West Virginia coach recovered from cancer treatment to lead the team to a 5-6 record.

On Saturday, Don Nehlen, an offensive backfield coach at Michigan, was named the new West Virginia coach.

"I feel all the speculation concerning my status as a top candidate at West Virginia hurt my chances for other jobs," Mallory said Saturday from his home in Boulder.

"The whole situation kind of irks me. They contacted me and the news was all over the country. It was a job I was really interested in and down deep I thought I had the job. I thought this was my ace in the hole."

Mallory also was one of the leading candidates for the Wyoming job which went to former East Carolina Coach Pat Dye on Friday.

"I think I was kind of a late-comer at Wyoming," said Mallory. "I think they already had the man they wanted in mind when I applied for the job there."

Disappointed and frustrated by the situation, Mallory said he is "probably closer now than I ever have been" to quitting the coaching profession. He said he is considering some business opportunities in Boulder.

"I really enjoy living here," he said. "I know this. I'm not going to take my family and run them all over the country just so I can coach." However, Mallory didn't rule out the possibility of accepting a coaching position if one becomes available in the future.

He said the West Virginia and Wyoming positions were the only ones he applied for following his year-long absence from coaching.

Mallory said he actually was hired at West Virginia last summer and was told to hire two assistants. He didn't take any immediate action because of Cignetti's uncertain status. When Cignetti decided to continue coaching, "I was asked to step aside," Mallory said.

Before Nehlen was named, West Virginia athletic director Dick Martin informed Mallory that he wouldn't be hired. According to Mallory, Martin indicated "a lot of people were upset about what happened last summer."

"Down deep, I thought I was being used as a scapegoat for him (Martin)," said Mallory. "He did a poor job mishandling the situation and should have talked to Cignetti about his condition."

JETS FANS HURT
NEW YORK (UPI) — Two spectators at the New York Jets-New England Patriots game were injured Sunday when a model aircraft plummeted into the stands at Shea Stadium during a halftime show given by a local hobby club. A huge model airplane went out of control and crashed into the stands behind the Patriot bench injuring two men, both of whom were carried from the field with head injuries. Their conditions were not immediately known.

Mustangs Develop New 'Mania', Cage-Style

By The Associated Press
Southern Methodist has done so well in its first four basketball games that even some of its own players are surprised.
"We thought we would come out of these first four games 2-2 or 3-1," said Billy Allen, who scored 17 points in Saturday night's 86-65 win over Colorado. "It's a big lift to be 4-0."
SMU has also beaten Tulane and 19th-ranked Kansas, but the Mustangs' 4-0 record is matched by Arkansas, which SMU meets in the Southwest Conference opener for both teams Jan. 3. SMU Coach Sonny Allen — whose son is Billy Allen — says a lot of work must be done before then.
"Rebounding is our main concern now," he said after the Colorado game. "We were still a little spotty on the boards."

The Baylor Bears also need some time to get ready for the start of the regular SWC season, and Coach Jim Haller says playing tough opponents now is a good way to do it — despite Saturday night's 80-46 trouncing at the hands of fifth-ranked Kentucky.
"There's no doubt we have played the toughest schedule in the country this past week."
Believe it or not, we did our best rebounding of the year (30, compared to Kentucky's 44), but Kentucky outpersonnelled us at very position. Probably only one of our players could make their team, and that's Terry Teagle (who led all scorers with 18)," Haller said. "Kentucky has the makings of one of the greatest teams America has ever had."

SWC teams overall are 20-14 so far against non-conference opponents. Texas, 3-0, will be put to the test tonight when the Longhorns visit No. 10-ranked DePaul.
In some other games this week, Baylor will try to break its losing streak against McMurry. Rice will visit Tulane. Houston will play in the Albuquerque Cage Classic.

Wolves Enroll As 'Superpower'

By The Associated Press
In preseason estimates, such teams as Indiana, Ohio State, Purdue and Iowa were considered strong possibilities for the Big Ten basketball championship, but few ever mentioned that forgotten team from Ann Arbor, Mich.
You know, the Michigan What's-Their-Names.
Since advancing to the NCAA finals in 1976, the Wolverines have practically dropped out of sight in Big Ten basketball.
However, they raised their profile considerably after an artistic 63-60 upset over 16th-ranked Marquette Saturday night.
"I think this shows we have to be considered sleepers," said Michigan's Mike McGee. "People have been underrating us."
The Wolverines did it the hard way against Marquette, coming back from a 13-point deficit, at 52-39, with 10:27 left in the game. Marty Bodnar sank two free throws for the decisive points with 58 seconds left.
"Give Michigan credit," said Marquette Coach Hank Raymond. "Our strength is quickness, but Michigan is quick, too. It was a hell of a comeback."
The Big Ten's so-called "Superpowers" weren't as hard-pressed, as Indiana, Ohio State, Purdue and Iowa all won with relative ease over the weekend.
Indiana, the nation's top-ranked team, routed Texas-El Paso 75-43 in the finals of the Indiana Classic, third-ranked Ohio State walloped Stetson 69-50, No. 12 Purdue hammered Providence 76-44 and No. 20 Iowa crushed Detroit 80-54.
Mike Woodson led a balanced attack with 15 points as the Hoosiers won their home-grown tournament for the sixth straight year. Indiana led the entire game after a 2-2 tie in the opening minutes.
"Indiana is good," said Texas-El Paso Coach Don Haskins. "By far the best we've played. I thought we could have hung in there a little better... maybe not have won, but played better."
Herb Williams scored 18 points, collected 16 rebounds and blocked four shots to lead Ohio State past Stetson.
"Herb was definitely the difference," said Ohio State Coach Eldon Miller. "He was a problem for them inside, he is a problem for most teams we play."
The Ohio State size was also a tall problem for the smaller Hatters.
"When you are trying to play through trees, it is very difficult," said Stetson Coach Glenn Wilkes. "OSU was huge."
Purdue held Providence to merely two field goals in the first 10 minutes of the game and rode Joe Barry Carroll's 32 points to an easy victory over the Friars.
"Joe Barry Carroll is the most dominating player in college basketball today, not only on offense but with rebounds, blocked shots and intimidating the opposition around the basket," said Purdue Coach Lee Rose.
To which Providence Coach Gary Walters added: "With Carroll, Purdue dominated every phase of the game."
Ronnie Lester had 26 points and Kevin Boyle added 14 to lead Iowa's conquest of Detroit.
"Detroit played well in the first half," said Iowa Coach Lute Olsen. "However, we had an excellent second half. In the second half, we got the fastbreak going."
"This is the closest game we've had. Detroit made a good run at us but I didn't see any sign of panic by our guys. When we rebounded from the zone we got into the break better. We need more games like this, concentration-wise."
Elsewhere in college basketball over the weekend, Mike Gminski scored 26 points and keyed a second-half rally that led second-ranked Duke to a 92-73 victory over East Carolina.
Kelly Tripucka scored 20 points, including eight during a burst of 22 straight Notre Dame points, to lead the fourth-ranked Fighting Irish to a 93-65 rout of St. Louis University.
Kyle Macy scored 14 of his 17 points as fifth-ranked Kentucky raced to a 30-10 lead and coasted past Baylor.
"Kentucky has the makings of one of the greatest teams America has ever had when they put it all together," said Baylor Coach Jim Haller. "And I think they will tie together by the end of the season."
Kiki Vandeweghe scored 28 points and grabbed nine rebounds to lead seventh-ranked UCLA to a 92-79 decision over Santa Clara. The Bruins now have a 3-0 record under new Coach Larry Brown.
Mike O Koren scored on a layup with 1:32 remaining to give North Carolina its first lead in more than 10 minutes and the No. 8 Tar Heels went on to a 68-63 decision over Cincinnati. Reggie Carter led four players in double figures with 16 points as No. 9 St. John's defeated Army 84-61.
Roosevelt Bouie scored 22 points and Louis Orr finished with 17 as No. 11 Syracuse won the Carrier Classic with a 72-70 decision over Illinois State. Darrell Griffith's 32 points led 14th-ranked Louisville past Tennessee 77-75. Steve Johnson's 27 points sheltered 15th-ranked Oregon State to a 92-62 victory over Hawaii.
Craig Shelton's 20 points powered No. 17 Georgetown past St. Leo College 116-68. Danny Ainge's 20-foot jump shot gave No. 18 BYU a 76-75 decision over Oral Roberts. Ricky Ross scored 19 points to lead No. 19 Kansas over San Diego State 79-66.

Embattled Lobos Give Strong Account, Lose

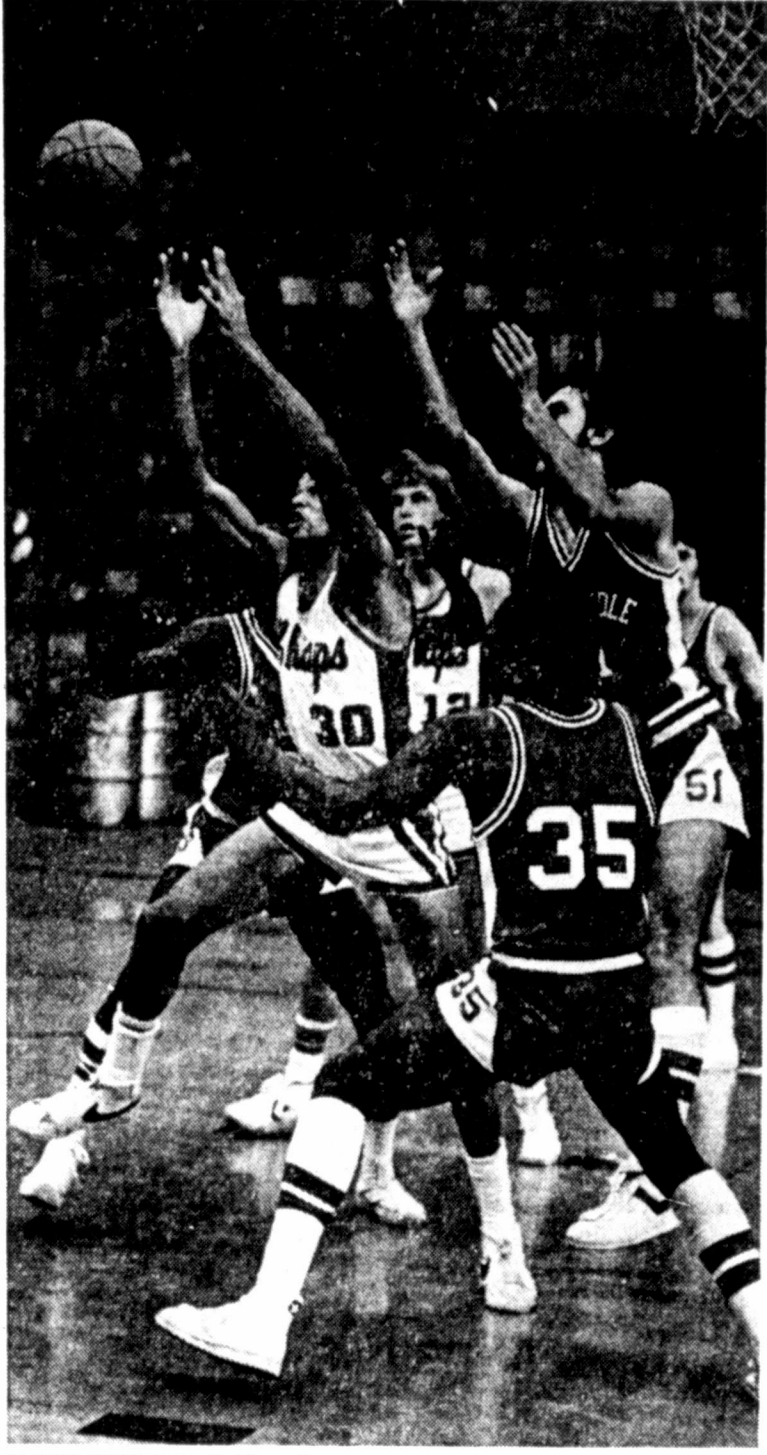

LAS CRUCES, N.M. (AP) — When John Bridgers took over as University of New Mexico athletic director last week, he said the embattled Lobos might have to pull out of the 1979-80 college basketball campaign.
But he was singing a different tune Saturday night after a patched-together New Mexico team of four basketball players, two pick-ups from the football squad and a student trainer took unbeaten New Mexico State to the mat before dropping a 68-58 decision.
"It was a great performance," Bridgers said. "If they stick with it, I think we might slip up on a few people."
Bridgers, who came to New Mexico from Florida State, inherited a mess.
On Nov. 30, the day he decided to accept the UNM job, basketball Coach Norm Ellenberger and his chief recruiting assistant, Manny Goldstein, were suspended after the FBI announced it was investigating for possible mail fraud and bribery in the preparation of junior college transcripts. The case is to go before a federal grand jury Wednesday.
One player also was declared ineligible in the wake of the FBI revelations. And UNM officials began checking the transcripts of other basketball players, which resulted in the team losing six more players last week.
Charlie Harrison, an assistant coach who was named to run the club, found last Thursday he had only two starters, both guards, a back-up forward and a freshman reserve guard. But he picked up a pair of wide receivers from the football team — 5-foot-11 Keith Magee and 6-3 Derwin Williams — and trainer Jim Menning, and went off to battle UNM's arch-rival.

Thomas, Conner Give Lift To U.S. Gymnastics

FORT WORTH (AP) — Daring performances by Kurt Thomas and Bart Conner vaulted the United States into the international winner's circle Sunday with three gold medals, at the 1979 World Gymnastics Championship individual finals.
Thomas, 23, retained the gold medal he won in the floor exercise a year ago by uncorking the famed "Thomas Flair."
However, the Indiana State graduate was forced to share the gold medal with Roland Bruckner of East Germany.
Both received 9.90s for combined totals of 19.800.
Thomas, who won the silver medal in Thursday's all-around competition, also captured the horizontal bar title with his stunning half-in, half-out dismount. He earned 9.90 for a 19.775 total to edge Soviet superstars Alexandre Tkachev and Alexandre Ditiatin.
In the women's individuals, Christi Canary, 16, of Northbrook, Ill., placed highest among the American women with a fifth-place finish in the vault.

Marcia Frederick, 16, of Milford, Conn., the defending champion in the uneven bars, finished sixth. Suzy Kellems, 17, of Westminster, Calif., took seventh in the vault, and national champion Leslie Pyfer, 16, of Eugene, Ore., finished eighth in the floor exercise.
The United States finished sixth in the women's competition behind the Eastern European powers.
"I had the greatest feeling (standing on the winner's platform)," Thomas said. "Our flag has been down at the bottom of the box for so long, it was great to see it up at the top where it belongs."
Thomas captured the silver medal on the pommel horse behind Hungary's Zoltan Magyar and tied for second place in the parallel bars with Tkachev.
Now he said he would start preparing for the 1980 Moscow Olympics where he is favored to meet Ditiatin, the new all-around world champion, in a rematch.
Conner, who finished sixth in the all-around, delivered a crowd-pleasing routine on the parallel bars to win America's third gold medal. He earned 9.90 for a 19.725 total.
Conner, 21 and a University of Oklahoma senior, also won the bronze medal in the vault behind Ditiatin and Nikolai Andrianovo of the Soviet Union and placed fifth in the floor exercise.

"To see us grab all these medals is just great. We always wondered if we could do it," he said. "Now when the Russians go home they're going to be watching films of us. I know I've watched lots of films of the Russians."
The Soviet Union unseated the Japanese for the men's team championship, compiling 587,500 points, to 583,700 for second-place Japan. The United States was third, East Germany fourth, China fifth, Hungary sixth.
West Germany was seventh, followed by Romania, Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, Canada, Switzerland, Cuba, France, Spain, Norway, South Korea, Great Britain, Australia, Brazil, Austria, Israel, Mexico and Italy.
Despite an injured superstar, Nadia Comaneci, Romania beat out the Russians for the women's team title, 389,550 to 88,925. East Germany was third, China fourth, Czechoslovakia fifth and the United States sixth.
They were followed, in order, by Hungary, Bulgaria, Japan, Canada, Poland, South Korea, West Germany, Switzerland, France, Great Britain, Holland, Spain, Norway, Australia, Sweden, New Zealand, Brazil, Mexico, Israel, Austria and Italy.

Romanians Ignore MDs, To Move Nadia

FORT WORTH (UPI) — Doctors treating gymnast Nadia Comaneci said Sunday they felt she should remain hospitalized for at least two more days, but the chief of the Romanian delegation to the World Gymnastics Championships said Comaneci and her teammates would fly home early Monday.
Alexandru Mogos, chief of the Romanian contingent to the championships, signed a release which said he understood he was acting against the advice of the doctors and that he would assume responsibility.
Comaneci underwent minor surgery Saturday to lance and drain her infected left hand, an infection that prevented her from challenging for the all-around gold medal she had been expected to win.
The 75-minute operation was termed a success Saturday, but as a precautionary measure the American doctors on the case felt she should stay in All Saints Hospital until at least Tuesday.
"The American physicians met with the Romanian delegation (Sunday morning) and Nadia's Romanian physician," said hospital administrator Stanley Hupfeld.
"They advised that the wound should not be closed for another 48 hours nor should her intravenous medication be discontinued for 48 hours."
"The Romanian delegation felt, however, they could not go home without Nadia. So she will be prepared very early Monday morning and will return home with her teammates."
Hupfeld said Mogos promised the best care would be given Comaneci and that the American doctors' suggestions would be followed to the letter when Comaneci returns to Bucharest.
"The American physicians will provide medical records and an explanation of the medical treatment she has received," said Hupfeld. "There will be recommendations for treatment when she returns home. She will have oral medication to take during the trip (about a 24-hour journey from Fort Worth to Romania)."
"The Romanians said they would follow the instructions that the American physicians outlined."
"The doctors here stressed that follow-up care is the most important element to future recovery. They emphasized that a great deal. The Romanians expressed satisfaction for the care she has received and expressed their thanks."
"Doctors will again review Nadia's condition Monday morning. The chief of the delegation (Mogos) signed a release. He said he understood what the doctors had told him and that he would assume responsibility."
Comaneci performed in the championships last Tuesday night and at that time took the lead in the individual competition. But on Wednesday afternoon she checked into the hospital, which had a contract with the U.S. Gymnastics Federation to provide care for any athletes that required it during the meet.
At the time the infection was labeled minor, but even though Comaneci left the hospital Thursday afternoon to try to compete again that night, she could conduct only a routine on the balance beam.
That performance, as it turned out, meant the difference in Romania's winning the team gold medal. She returned to the hospital Friday and her doctors quickly determined the operation was needed to prevent the further spread of the infection.

Cuevas Revels In Win, Requests 'Sugar Ray'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Pipino Cuevas, the World Boxing Association welterweight champion, has challenged Sugar Ray Leonard, his rival champion, to a fight that will decide one titlist.
"I want to fight Leonard, because I want just one champion... me," said the 21-year-old Cuevas after disposing of the No. 1 WBA challenger, Angel Espada of Puerto Rico, with a 10th-round knockout.
Leonard, the 1976 Olympic champion, holds the World Boxing Council crown which he won from Puerto Rican Wilfredo Benitez via a 15th-round knockout on Nov. 30.
Cuevas, of Mexico City, knocked Espada down early in the 10th round Saturday night and then referee Jerry Smith stopped the fight as Cuevas pounded Espada in the challenger's corner.
Cuevas weighed 146 pounds and Espada 144½, and for the third time in their head-to-head meetings, the young Mexican was the victor.
Neither boxer knew that outside the Los Angeles Sports Arena, there were units from the Los Angeles Police Department guarding against trouble.
A near-riot had erupted after the 10-round semi-main event when Rand Shields of North Hollywood, Calif., captured a split decision from Auricio Aldana of Mexico City.
Shields, 146, outboxed his 148-pound rival but the latter landed many hard punches and opened a two-inch gash over the Californian's left eye.

Many in the pro-Mexican crowd went wild when the split decision was announced and hurled beer, ice, bottles and even chairs at the ring.
Aldana cried and his handlers held the boxer in the air and refused to leave the ring for several minutes.
When order was restored, Cuevas scored his 10th successful title defense and Espada, a former champ, said he would retire. But it was a close fight through the first nine rounds, bringing fears of another uprising from the crowd of about 16,000 should the Puerto Rican outpoint the Mexico City favorite.

"I was never hurt in the fight although he hit me with some good right hand shots," Cuevas said through an interpreter. "In the eighth and ninth rounds, I went for the body and let him hit me to make him overconfident."
"The fight did go longer than I expected."
At 18, Cuevas won the title from Espada with a second-round knockout and beat him again in 1977 when he broke his foe's jaw in the 11th round even though the latter was leading in points through 10.
Matchmaker Harry Kabakoff, who set up the Cuevas-Espada fight here, says a group has offered Cuevas and Leonard $2.5 million each for an outdoor bout this summer at the Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum. Other promoters obviously

Satellite Conferences Beamed To Micronesia

ATLANTA (AP) — One of the most popular programs in that sprawling area of the Pacific called Micronesia is the branch of two doctors at the national Center for Disease Control in Atlanta.

It is a monthly satellite telephone conference set up with the cooperation of the island government, the disease center and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration — sort of like a giant party line.

The symposium links the medical resources of the more than 2,200 islands between the Philippines and Honolulu now called the Trust Territory. The islands formerly were occupied by Japan.

At 8 p.m. EST once a month, the telephone rings in the home of Drs. Michael Miller and Lee Moore. For them and perhaps a hundred or more physicians and laboratory technicians in the Trust Territory, school is in. In the Pacific, because of the international date line, it is noon the next day.

These satellite conferences take place on the first Tuesday of each month. The center says the conferences do not cost anybody anything, because NASA makes the time available on its own satellite network, which includes six receiving stations in the Pacific islands. Miller and Moore contribute their time.

About three years ago, the center was getting an estimate 300 reports of amebic dysentery a month from Micronesia, which is administered by the United States at the request of the United Nations.

"Actually, they were not confirmed by laboratory tests, so we didn't know what it was," Moore said Friday. "We decided that the doctors out there either didn't know what it was, or what else it might be.

Moore went to Ponape, the capital of the territory, and established a training program. It was found that of these 300 cases a month, only about 30 turned out to be amebic dysentery. The other dysentery cases were caused by a variety of things, but they were not nearly so serious.

Moore and Miller began to realize the real problems of proper diagnosis of disease in far flung corners of the world without proper laboratory techniques. Proper diagnosis relates to proper treatment.

The Pacific island symposiums are an extension of a vast training program available at the disease center designed to keep an estimated 150,000 laboratory technicians in this country informed of the latest research developments.

Dr. John Krickel, director of laboratory training activities at the center said,

"We can only train about 3,000 a year in the field and about 1200 a year here at the CDC. If you look at those 150,000 people out there, there is no way we could reach them individually without such conference training programs."

In the United States, there are 11 networks, many of them designed to reach rural hospitals that have no other training programs.

At present, 191 separate lectures on laboratory procedures are available.

Joan Miller, who is not related to Dr. Miller, keeps track of the lectures and mail material. She said that for the three months ending last Sept. 30, the center gave 206 presentations to 348 different locations and reached more than 33,190 people.

Company With Best Offer To Get Drilling Rights

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP) — Like a poker player holding a pair of aces, the state of Alaska will be gambling with the oil industry Tuesday on the sale of drilling rights in the Arctic Ocean.

Alaska has adopted a "net profits" method for the joint state-federal lease sale to decide who will be awarded the best state-owned tracts on the floor of the Beaufort Sea, the most promising unexplored oil field in the country.

It means the oil company that offers to share the greatest percentage of its profits, after costs and taxes, wins the lease. In previous sales, the lease went to the company that offered the most money up front.

The oil industry, on the whole, opposes the new leasing method. It was adopted, nevertheless, after a spirited, year-long debate in the state capital.

The most promising tracts of the hundreds of square miles in the Beaufort Sea, off the North Slope of Alaska, are near the highly productive Prudhoe Bay. The U.S. Geological Survey estimates there is a 50 percent chance of finding oil or gas in the area. It puts the potential yield at 500 million to 1.25 billion barrels of oil.

"The Beaufort Sea has the highest potential for a major new discovery of any unexplored area in the United States," says Roger Herrera, an official with Sohio Petroleum Co.

Last week, a federal judge in Washington, D.C., turned down a challenge to the lease sale from environmentalists and Alaska villagers. Opposition to the sale was based on fears that the drilling would harm the endangered bowhead whale and disrupt the culture of the native Inupiat, whose villages dot the area.

Alaska owns nearly 63 percent of the 514,000 submerged acres up for bid compared to 1 percent owned by the federal government. Title to the rest will be decided by the U.S. Supreme Court.

In 1969, state politicians and citizens revealed over the $900 million cash bonus bid for Prudhoe Bay. But this time, Gov. Jay Hammond and many legislators do not want a lot of cash up front.

The price of Alaska oil, which is tied to the world market, is expected to fetch the state $2 billion by July 1981, doubling the amount of annual state revenue.

But the state wants the benefits of Beaufort Sea production to come in a steady stream in the five to seven years from now when Prudhoe Bay production is expected to begin dropping about 15 percent a year from nearly 1.5 million barrels a day now.

Many consumer groups have lobbied for use of the net profits system on a national basis, and a coalition of consumer groups and unions led by the Energy Action Educational Foundation have filed suit against the U.S. government for failure to use the method.

Critics of net profits bidding call it fiscal suicide, an imprudent entry by government into risk-taking that should be reserved for private industry, and a wide-open invitation to cost-padding and inefficient operation by the oil industry.

Cash bonus bidding, argues legislative consultant Mason Gaffney, "is for those who are beguiled by the flash of large amounts of cash." He said the method reduces available money for other exploration work and drives smaller companies out of the bidding.

"It's a system where most lose, so some can win big," he said.

In Tuesday's bidding, Alaska is asking the oil companies to offer a share of their profits only on the most-promising Beaufort tracts. The companies also will be required to pay cash amounts varying from $875 an acre to $1,750 an acre, plus an automatic royalty of 20 percent of the value of whatever gas and oil is found.

On less-promising tracts, the state will award leases the same way as the federal government — to the highest cash bonus bidder. But the winners also will have to give the governments a royalty share ranging from about 16 percent to 65 percent. Those percentages vary as the value of production increases or decreases.

Most of the Prudhoe Bay field was sold in the mid-1960s, when little was known about it and the state got only $13 million in bonuses. It was the sale of the rest of the field in 1969, after discoveries had been made, that brought the state its $900 million bonus windfall.

To make up for the low earlier bonus bids, the state enacted a series of severance and income taxes on the industry. But Hammond and the Legislature agree the rules should no longer be change in the middle of the game.

"We don't want another screw-up like Prudhoe Bay," said Rep. Bill Miles.

Medicine Draws Bright Students

BOWLING GREEN, Ohio (AP) — The United States' brightest chemistry students are turning away from test tubes and toward more attractive careers in medicine, according to a national study.

The study conducted by Dr. Douglas Neckers, chairman of the chemistry department at Bowling Green State University, indicates the most capable chemistry students are choosing careers in medicine, leaving less gifted students to remain in chemistry.

Neckers said he thought the reasons for the shift were not just monetary, but included a decrease in federal research funds coupled with an adverse climate of public opinion toward chemicals and chemistry.

"The upshot of all this is that the shine has gone off science's star, in the public's eye, and it's having a deleterious effect on the nation's future scientific potential," Neckers said.

According to Neckers' study, there has been a drop in the number of undergraduate chemistry majors at top colleges and universities who choose chemistry as a career and an increase in the numbers of the best students who are going into medicine.

He also said the academic ability of chemistry students going into medicine increased sharply between 1964 and 1978, while the academic progress of students remaining in chemistry declined.

Academic progress for the study was measured by grade scores, class rank, verbal Scholastic Aptitude Test scores and math SAT scores.

For example, Neckers said, math scores for students remaining in chemistry dropped from better than 660 in 1964 to less than 640 in 1978. During the same period, scores for chemistry students going into medicine increased from 640 to 660.

"The trend is unmistakable and nearly 10 years old. Even if the trend turned around next year, it would be at least eight years or more, likely nine or ten years, before the impact became significant," he said.

The study was financed by the Alfred P. Sloan Foundation of New York.

Spectators Rebel Against Decisions

LOS ANGELES (AP) — More than 65 police officers were called out to the Sports Arena on Saturday night when angry fans began throwing punches, chairs and beer over decisions in a championship fight, authorities said.

Police said a tactical alert was called when fists began flying after a welterweight round before an estimated crowd of 10,000 people. One man was arrested.

"It was a semi-nightmare," said Officer Herbert Zinman of the Southwest Division.

Booked on charges of battery on a peace officer was Raymundo Esquivel, 30 of Carson. An unidentified officer was treated by the jail doctor for hand and possible back injuries, Zinman said.

"Some spectators didn't like the decisions in some fights, so they decided to start their own," said officer Raymond McCabe.

Police had been called to the Sports Arena earlier Saturday when 1,500 people rushed the front door, apparently after tickets sold out, Zinman said.

Steelworkers To Bargain For Contract

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pensioners and workers threatened with layoffs will get top consideration when the United Steelworkers union bargains for a new basic steel contract two months from now, according to the union's president.

Detailing a 52-page list of contract goals, International President Lloyd McBride said the nation's nine largest steel producers will be asked to protect more than 100,000 pensioned workers against inflation. The contract goals were met at a two-day conference last week attended by about 600 USW local presidents.

The current agreement, which expires July 31, covers 286,100 USW members in the basic steel industry. Talks with the Big Nine open here Feb. 5.

Also high on the union's list is a demand for one year's notice of plant shutdowns. The union said plant closings since 1977 "including those which were abruptly announced last week by U.S. Steel" force it to press "diligently forward" for improved protection.

Two of the largest steelmakers — top-ranked U.S. Steel and third-ranked Jones & Laughlin — said they would close 17 plants in eight states, idling 17,000 steelworkers.

The Big Nine say a depressed market, high overhead costs and stiff foreign competition, which dictated the cutbacks, also will force them to be tough negotiators.

The USW is also calling for "a substantial wage increase in order to assure a rise in purchasing power."

Union negotiators will try to boost cost-of-living bonuses to provide workers with a one-cent-an-hour raise for every two-tenths-percentage increase in the Consumer Price Index. Under the current pact, the hourly bonus is one cent for every three-tenths rise in the index.

Nuclear Plant Accident Changes Women's Lives

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Holly Keck just wants to get back to farming, raising her children and milking her goats. Patricia Smith misses spending time with her daughters and competing in golf tournaments.

Both women led contented, nonpolitical lives — until the Three Mile Island nuclear plant malfunctioned last March 28.

On Monday, when the state Public Utility Commission opens hearings to decide whether the owner of Three Mile Island — Metropolitan Edison Co. — stays in business, Mrs. Keck and Mrs. Smith will be active participants.

The hearings will rule on whether to renew Met Ed's operating certificate. The women's presence in the hearing room is only slight evidence of the changes created in their lives and those of their families when radioactivity was released at Three Mile Island.

"Believe it or not, I'm a little shy. I kind of tread lightly. I did feel everything was awesome. I certainly don't anymore," said Mrs. Smith.

Before the accident, Mrs. Smith worked part-time in an employment agency and won two golf championships.

She and her husband, Bruce, 45, a high school English teacher and chairman of the Newberry Township board of supervisors, have lived almost 15 years in a spacious white brick suburban ranch home with a basketball hoop in the driveway.

The house is barely two miles from Three Mile Island.

After the accident, her husband appointed her to the Newberry Township steering committee on Three Mile Island. She no longer golfs and she has less time to spend with Rhonda, 14, and Renee, 11. But she says she is prepared to keep working until she's sure Three Mile Island will never reopen as a nuclear facility.

Since April, she has addressed the New York City Council and the North Carolina utility commission. She fills in for the steering committee's lawyer when he can't get to Nuclear Regulatory Commission hearings on reopening the plant. She is planning a week-long speaking tour of California and a rally for the anniversary of the accident.

She sat in on state Senate confirmation hearings for nominees to the PUC and, notebook in hand, attended every PUC hearing on post-accident rates for Met Ed last spring.

"I was averaging four meetings a week in the spring," Mrs. Smith recalled. "The phone rang so much we got a second line in the house. We felt it was our duty to the citizens."

Now she is an intervenor in the latest PUC hearings. "I want to inject the human element every chance I get," she said.

Mrs. Smith said she is deducting 10 percent from her monthly utility bill to protest a rate increase imposed last June. But she doesn't push that idea or other anti-nuclear activities with some neighbors.

"There are a lot of conservative people here," she said. "We aren't talk about it with certain people. With some people, friends of ours, we cannot bring up the subject. We are very, very divided."

The schism extends even to the Smiths, who are uncertain about their own future should the plant reopen.

"I think Bruce would stay because he enjoys what he's doing. But I think he'd leave if I insist its going to mean our marriage," Mrs. Smith said.

Mrs. Keck, 34, lives on a nine-acre farm 14 miles from Three Mile Island, with her husband, Ted, 9-year-old daughter, Aries, 5-year-old son, Theodore, and an assortment of chickens, cows, cats, dogs, goats, sheep, ducks, turkeys, rabbits and ponies. The Kecks moved to York three years ago from Richmond, Va., where they ran The Scarlet Griffin coffeehouse and a theatrical lighting company.

"We wanted to get the children out of the city and raise them in the country with clean air," said Mrs. Keck, mediating a doll's dress at a big round kitchen table in her 200-year-old red brick farmhouse.

"I feel like we moved them from one place to an even worse place," she said. "I guess we tried to run away from all the environmental problems in the city. But we found out you can't run away from them."

The Kecks said they knew nothing about nuclear power before the accident. Now they belong to ANGRY — Anti-Nuclear Group Representing York. Their solar greenhouse is almost completed and most of their home is heated by a wood-burning stove. The rest depends on electricity from Met Ed.

Air Pollution Plagues Phoenix Area

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Asthmatic children and others are suffering from air pollution trapped over Arizona, state Lung Association executive said Sunday, and no relief was in sight until Monday afternoon.

Jim Guyton, manager of the Arizona Department of Health Services' air monitoring section, said the carbon monoxide level — which led to the issuance Friday of the city's first air pollution alert in four years — remained high Sunday.

People sensitive to air pollution were urged to stay indoors and take life easy, especially in the evening when pollutant levels are high.

Ben Chaiken, director of the Arizona Lung Association, said the association's survey of hospitals showed increased admissions by Friday, "mainly the young asthmatic."

"It usually takes two to three days before the patient with chronic lung disease feels the effects," Chaiken said. "Those with emphysema first, the asthmatic next."

"It's okay to tell adults to stay inside — they settle down and watch TV," he added. "The children are a different matter. Children go to school — they go outdoors and play outdoors."

The pollution stemmed from a high-pressure system that has trapped stagnant, polluted air, the National Weather Service said.

The service predicted the upper atmosphere jet stream would sag southward Monday and that a Pacific weather disturbance nearing the coast Sunday would move inland and help break up the pollution.

The weather conditions were similar to those that stalled dirty air over Arizona in 1969 but this time "have not produced anything like the kind of pollution levels we had 10 years ago," Guyton said.

In 1969, visibility fell to two miles, compared to 10 or 12 mile over the weekend and five miles about the middle of last week, Guyton said.

"We like to think that with cleaner cars and better maintenance, that's the difference," he said. "We have more people and more cars today, and we still don't have as bad a problem as we did then."

Your Personal Biorhythms

Figure your numbers here — For your own permanent biorhythm number for the Physical (P), Emotional (E), and Intellectual (I) cycles, just follow these steps:

Table with columns for Step 1 (Year of Birth), Step 2 (Month of Birth), and Step 3 (Day of Birth) to calculate permanent numbers.

BIORHYTHMS FOR DEC. 10, 1979. Table showing Physical, Emotional, and Intellectual cycles with high and low points.

Step 1 — Year of birth. Read down the left hand column to find the last number in the year of your birth then go across to the appropriate decade. For instance, if you were born in 1947, your number for Physical would be 21, Emotional 17, Intellectual 19. Note whether your numbers are preceded by an A or B; this will be used for Step 2.

Figure chart for Step 1 showing numbers for years 1910-19 and decades 1920-29, 1930-39, 1940-49, 1950-59, 1960-69, 1970-79.

Step 2 — Month of birth. Find the corresponding numbers for the month you were born. If your month is February, and your year numbers were preceded by a B, your month numbers would be 8 for Physical, 3 for Emotional and 31 for Intellectual. Enter your own numbers in the figure chart for Step 2.

Step 3 — Day of birth. Enter your day of birth three times in the figure chart, once each for Physical (P), Emotional (E) and Intellectual (I). Add the three columns to derive your permanent biorhythm numbers for your Physical, Emotional and Intellectual cycles. Now you can refer to today's biorhythm readings.

Man, 71, Runs Ad Looking For New Wife

YADKINVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Robert L. Evans wants a wife. And the retired farmer is pretty specific about his desires.

For the past two weeks he has been advertising his matrimonial specifications in the local paper, the Yadkin Rippler.

"I would like a nice woman, well-built, not particular about age," the advertisement reads. "Should be able to drive automatic (transmission) car... be able to tend large garden, my home has many fruit trees."

Evans, known in the mountain town as Mr. Bob, is 71. His wife died two years ago, and he says he is lonely.

"I'm getting tired of staying by myself," he said in an interview.

"I just want a good woman for a wife," he said, adding, "I do want her to look good, though."

The ad has netted 30 telephone calls.

Somoza Supporters To Be Tried In Nicaraguan Public Trials

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Some 7,000 accused war criminals and collaborators of the Somoza regime face lengthy series of public trials that could start as early as this week.

The star defendant will be the ousted President Anastasio Somoza himself, though his trial on genocide charges will be conducted in absentia. He is living in exile in Paraguay.

The proceedings, which one local newspaper describes as "Nuremberg without the gallows," a reference to the World War II trials of German war criminals, may open as soon as Wednesday, diplomatic sources here say. They could last as long as six months.

Nicaragua has no death penalty and the maximum penalty the defendants face is 30 years in prison. Many of the German war criminals at Nuremberg were hanged.

Sergio Ramirez, a member of the junta that now rules Nicaragua, has said the trials will be public and the government welcomes the attendance of international watchdog agencies such as Amnesty International, the London-based human rights group that won the 1977 Nobel Peace Prize.

An Amnesty spokesman reached in London had not heard of the invitation, but said his group was always interested in observing "political trials."

The proceedings will judge some 4,500 former national guard troops charged with murder and former members of the toppled government accused of fraud, theft, torture, extortion and other crimes. They are all in jails throughout Nicaragua.

Besides the exiled Somoza, hundreds of his supporters who fled the country will be tried in absentia, as will scores of others who currently crowd foreign embassies here in hopes of obtaining asylum. Paraguay has no extradition treaty with Nicaragua.

This Central American nation has been led by a five-member junta since Somoza was forced into exile last July.

The dictator, whose family governed Nicaragua for 40 years, fled after his national guard lost a bloody civil war to the Sandinista National Liberation Front. The Red Cross estimates 45,000 persons were killed from 1978 to the end of the war last summer.

The junta is now selecting nine special tribunals to hear the cases, because the large volume would overload the regular court system.

Each tribunal will be made up of a lawyer or law student and two laymen selected by the junta. If the accused does not name his own lawyer, a public defender will be appointed, said junta member Ramirez.

The junta has appointed a special prosecutor for the trials, Nora Astorga. Under decrees stung up the tribunals, she will have the authority to free a prisoner before trial if it appears evidence in the case is weak.

She has said the trials will start immediately after publication of the laws, naming special state prosecutors and tribunal members.

After the Sandinista victory, members of the junta held their countrymen to refrain from attempts to personally settle scores with th national guardsmen. They also said those charged would not face revolutionary trials or death by firing squad, as did hundreds of supporters of deposed Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi in Iran, for example.

The Sandinistas take their name from a Nicaraguan officer who fought the occupation of Nicaragua by U.S. Marines in the 1920s and 1930s.

CAREERS

By JOYCE LAIN KENNEDY

Dear Joyce: Due to a personality conflict with my supervisor, I am leaving my job. To what degree are references checked?

— Y.S., Cleveland, Ohio

Most big companies today will supply only the scantiest facts: name, rank and serial number. Personnel executives have become adept at fielding reference questions with varnished truths.

To illustrate, a question might be, "How would you describe Joe Doe's attitude?" The on-the-record answer: "He understood his job and worked at it." The actual answer: "He was lazy and avoided work at every opportunity."

Why do employers take such evasive action? To avoid slander and liber litigation is an obvious motivation, even when the employer wins, the hassle is rarely worth it. But here are humanistic reasons too.

A supervisor may feel guilty because not enough guidance was given to help the employee shape up. Or who wants to stigmatize a person for life? — there's a possibility that person could be successful in another setting.

Despite anemic reference auditing, there are no guarantees your work history will remain secret; negative information may be passed through informal networks, if not officially.

So should you reveal to an interviewer that a personality conflict caused your departure when the ability to get along is a key factor in hiring? One school of thought says no, that you should focus on other, more positive reasons for leaving.

The opposite view says that baloney is recognized by the practiced eye, that it's best to establish a surprise-free relationship in case your former supervisor finds a way to blab about the conflict, and that you should give cogent reasons why you disagreed.

Whichever you decide, you probably don't have much to fear from a reference check as you might have once upon a time.

READER SERVICE: Whether you are seeking a white-collar job — or hiring people — here's inside information on the best ways for employers to approach the delicate task of checking backgrounds, and the kinds of questions former employers should be asked to maximize information.

Peter Rabinowitz, executive vice president of Bartholdi & Co., a major executive search firm, has written an eight-page booklet describing new techniques.

Reference Auditing — an Essential Tool for Management. Readers who want a courtesy copy must enclose 28 cents in stamps plus a gummed, self-addressed mailing label with your request to Joyce Lain Kennedy at this newspaper. Survival Kit Pokes Some Fun At Oregon

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — The man who brought you the Oregon "ungreeting" card has a new product — the Oregon Survival Kit, complete with a rust remover.

The kits by James Cloutier of Eugene, like the cards, poke fun at Oregon's misty climate and its reputation of having a "visit but don't stay" attitude toward outsiders. The $4.95 boxes contain, as described by the manual:

•Rock salt to repel Oregon's 200-pound slugs.

•Moss to paste onto one's nose to look like a native.

•Sponge an Oregon state rock to be hurled at an "hostile native who gets all riled up at seeing your out-of-state license plates."

•Garlic to repel jackquitos, the annoying and dangerous cross between the jackrabbit and moquito that frequents eastern Oregon.

•Steel wool to remove rust from the body. The manual cautions that natives don't speak of this as rut, but as "Oregon suntan."

Woman Jailed Claims To Be Princess

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. (AP) — A woman being held in Middlesex County jail on a car theft charge insists she is a Romanian princess, but she hasn't posted $7,500 although her lawyer says she has property worth $450,000.

Records at the Middlesex County Adult Detention Center list the woman as Jeanne de Hohenzollern, 49, a U.S. citizen and resident of Tennessee, but she says she is also Her Royal Highness Princess Jeanne of Romania, the Home News of New Brunswick reported in Sunday's edition.

Despite assurances from lawyer Jack Kershaw of Nashville, Tenn., that Mrs. de Hohenzollern is who she claims to be and that she has both real estate and art works valued at $450,000, the woman with the clipped British accent remains behind bars in lieu of $7,500 bail, the newspaper said.

Mrs. de Hohenzollern has been confined since Wednesday on a charge of receiving a stolen motor vehicle. The station wagon was rented in Stamford, Conn., and reported stolen after it was not returned on time, police said.

Police said Mrs. de Hohenzollern insisted the stolen car report was a mistake and that she had arranged to extend the rental. The newspaper did not identify the rental agency and police said Sunday their records were locked up for the weekend.

Mrs. de Hohenzollern says her husband Charles, who lives in England, is the brother of Michael I, the last king of Romania, who was forced to abdicate in 1947 when Romania was taken over by the communists. Michael I was descended from Germany's royal Hohenzollern family.

Jail officials are skeptical, but a Middesex County probation investigator who talked at length with Mrs. de Hohenzollern and considers her "a very gracious lady" leans toward believing her, the newspaper said.

Following Mrs. de Hohenzollern's arrest, Kershaw reportedly called Municipal Court Judge Martin N. Golden, who first set bail at $15,000, then reduced it to $7,500.

Kershaw assured court officials that Mrs. de Hohenzollern was in fact Princess Jeanne, but that she apparently had insufficient cash to make bail. He called her imprisonment "disgraceful" and said he would try to hire a local attorney to defend her.

Some officials said they believed Mrs. de Hohenzollern had not sought help in gaining her release because she would be embarrassed if friends learned of her predicament, the newspaper said.

Railway Strike To Strand 100,000

NEW YORK (UPI) — Emergency transportation plans were readied Sunday to accommodate 100,000 commuters who will need a Monday morning miracle to get to work on time because of a strike against the Long Island Railroad.

Gov. Hugh Carey Sunday urged President Carter to reconsider his decision not to intervene in the strike against the nation's busiest commuter line.

No new talks were scheduled in the walkout, which began at 12:01 a.m. Saturday and kept weekend travelers as much as two hours behind schedule.

Carey and Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., sent telegrams to Carter Saturday asking him to use his powers under the Railway Labor Act to force the line's 6,200 employees back to work for 60 days.

But Jack Watson, a Carter aide, said the White House ruled out immediate intervention in the dispute. Watson said Labor Secretary Ray Marshall felt both sides were not far apart and preferred a negotiated settlement.

"The governor is disappointed and would hope the president would reconsider his decision," a spokesman for Carey said.

City and Long Island officials readied emergency plans to handle the expected Monday crunch, including increased subway service, park-and-ride facilities, carpool staging areas and added bus service.

Hotels reported they were booked solid as companies reserved rooms for their employees. The city's Visitor and Convention Bureau said the situation was "very tight" and urged commuters to make reservations as soon as possible.

The strike was triggered by the 1,400-member United Transportation Union, which walked out of contract negotiations Friday that were being held at National Mediation Board offices in Washington.

Edward Yule Jr., president of the union, which represents conductors and trainmen, ordered his members to set up picket lines and the railroad's 16 other unions honored them.

After the strike began, negotiations with the other unions continued and the Metropolitan Transportation Authority, which operates the deficit-ridden line, made a new offer.

Bomb Plot Trial Begins Today

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Two brothers are to go on trial Monday for allegedly conspiring to bomb an elementary school attended by the daughter of the black federal judge who ordered city schools desegregated this fall.

Edward P. Gerhardt, 26, and John W. Gerhardt II, 28, were arrested Oct. 10 and charged with conspiracy against the civil rights of citizens, attempting to damage an institution and obstruction of a court order.

Conviction on the federal charges carry maximum penalties of 10 years in prison and a fine of $10,000 each on each of the first two charges and one year in prison and a fine of $1,000 on the third charge.

Both men have been held in the Franklin County jail in lieu of $100,000 bond.

The brothers are charged with plot-ting to bomb Olde Orchard Elementary School on the city's far east side. The school is attended by Tracy Duncan, 11, the daughter of U.S. District Judge Robert M. Duncan, who ordered school desegregation in Columbus this fall.

Prosecutors say their case will focus strongly on the testimony of at least two informants who infiltrated a white supremacist group allegedly organized by the Gerhardts.

The group, the White Nationalist Party, follows the ideology of the American Nazi Party and has anti-Jewish and anti-black sentiments, police said. Police said the group had no formal structure.

One of the informants, known to the defendants as "George Gregory," joined the Gerhardts' organization in 1977, authorities said. He is to testify about several alleged crimes that were being planned.

Packed Theaters, Long Lines Greet Opening Of 'Star Trek'

By ROGER PETTERSON
Associated Press Writer

The millions who formed a cult-like following for a television series that was put to death a decade ago were rewarded for their persistence and loyalty Friday when "Star Trek — The Motion Picture" opened to packed theaters and long waiting lines.

"There were high school kids who apparently skipped school waiting when I got here at 8:30 this morning," said Don Carroll, manager of the Westport Cine in St. Louis.

"We had to open the theater an hour before show time to get them all in," said John Malone, general manager of the El Camino theater in Scottsdale, Ariz. "The phones are just going wild with people wanting to know the show times."

Two theaters in Washington, D.C., where the movie's premier was held, gave up and put recorded messages on their telephones, one saying the volume of calls had become too great for them to answer in person.

"We had to take the phone off the hook for a while," said Ed Roberts, manager of the Markham 1 in Little Rock, Ark.

After 10 years of television reruns watched religiously by loyal fans, popular conventions for "Trekkies" and rumors that the movie version had either gone into production or been canceled, the Paramount Pictures production blasted out of orbit at 900 U.S. and Canadian theaters.

Not all theaters reported sell-out crowds for the production — which cost at least $42 million to make — but for most, business was booming.

"It reminds me of 'Star Wars' in a way, with the people saying they want to come back and see it again," said Mark Holstein, manager of Sunset Hills 1&2 Cinema in St. Louis.

Four or five people in Star Trek costumes were among the crowd that lined up before 6:30 a.m. outside the State-Lake Theatre in Chicago's Loop, where the first show didn't open until 9 a.m., said manager Pat Burns. He estimated that by 3:30 p.m., about 3,000 people — mostly 21 to 30 years old — had already seen the show, four to five times normal business.

At Bellevue, Wash., two boys from neighboring Mercer Island got in line at 3 a.m. outside the John Danz Theatre after walking from their homes because there weren't any buses running, said Rob McQuiston, advertising director for a firm promoting the movie.

Behind them, No. 17 in line, was 42-year-old Kitty Canterbury, who said she was buying 260 tickets for the evening show for fans who couldn't take a day off to stand in line.

"We are having a great time in line, playing games or studying for tests," Miss Canterbury said. "It is a very upbeat and gentle crowd."

A divisional manager for Loew's Theaters in New York City was pulled out of bed at 5:30 a.m. and sent to the Loew's State 1 Theater in midtown Manhattan to control the crowd of waiting Trekkies, said Don Baker, Loew's vice president of public relations. When the first show opened at 9 a.m. the line outside was four blocks long, and all 1,100 seats were sold — at $6 each.

Baker told of a 12-year-old who cut school and got in line at 7 a.m. When the ticket seller wouldn't sell him a ticket until 3:30 p.m. when school got out, Baker said, the youngster walked away mumbling, "And I had to cut class for this?"

The 11 a.m. show at the Salt Lake City theater showing "Star Trek" wasn't sold out, but most of the tickets were sold for a 10 p.m. benefit showing — with tickets going for $15 and $25. Up to 100 teenagers camped out overnight at Mann's Chinese Theater (formerly Grauman's) in Los Angeles. "I've seen all the television episodes of Star Trek at least 30 times and I wanted to see something new," explained one of them.

The first showing in Memphis was a press review, but afterward the reviewers were asked to leave by the back door because of the crowd waiting out front.

"I had some people offer me $5 if I could get them some tickets," said Betty Jackson, manager of the McCain Mall cinema in North Little Rock. Adult tickets for the show were $3.

DIRECTORIAL DEBUT

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Barbra Streisand will make her directorial debut in "Yentl," from the classic story by Nobel Prize winner Isaac Bashevis Singer. The movie will be made next year, and will include several foreign locations.

DISCUSSING GRAPHICS — Sandy-haired Lee Cole, left, confers with NASA consultant Jesco von Puttkamer as they discuss her latest assignment designing graphics for the Starship U.S.S. Enterprise built for Paramount Pictures' "Star Trek — The Motion Picture." Skilled as a graphics designer, Miss Cole worked on America's real-life pioneering Space Shuttle named "Enterprise" after the famed-but-fictional space ship created for the "Star Trek" TV series a dozen years ago. She parlayed her aerospace knowledge into a job in the movies. Miss Cole is also a talented illustrator and artist who conducts Renaissance music concerts and runs a research foundation in behavioral genetics.

Designer Works On Two 'Enterprises'

NEW YORK (Special) — Attractive, short-haired Lee Cole, who in her early 30's well might be taken for a college coed, already has a flock of careers going for her. It might be said without exaggeration that she hops from one enterprise to another, even from enterprise to "Enterprise."

Skilled as a graphics designer, among other things, she worked on America's pioneering Space Shuttle named "Enterprise" after the famed-but-fictional space ship created for the "Star Trek" TV series a dozen years ago. She parlayed her aerospace knowledge into a job in the movies, her latest assignment being to design graphics for the new "Enterprise" space ship built for Paramount's "Star Trek: The Motion Picture" opening today at Showplace Six in Lubbock.

Lee also is a talented illustrator and artist who conducts Renaissance music concerts and runs a research foundation in behavioral genetics.

It was her experience and expertise as a technical illustrator that led her into the aerospace field, first with Bendix doing schematics for a nuclear submarine. Then, during four years with Rockwell International, she worked on the Space Shuttle and B-1 bomber.

"I was in the audio visual and graphics department," she explains. "I did some instrument panels and some technical graphics, and worked on a lot of presentations to Congress."

That background brought her to the attention of moviemakers assembling their technical staff for "Star Trek: The Motion Picture," a dazzling adventure in space

"It really was something of an ambiguity," she says. "When I told my friends at Rockwell that I was going to work on the film, they were very excited about it. When I met with Gene Roddenberry (the producer), and Robert Wise (director) and others regarding the movie, they said, 'Wow! You worked on the Space Shuttle. How exciting to be really in aerospace.'"

"I still can't decide which was the more exciting. The movie, because it is so complex and so different, led to my doing a lot of things."

Graphics, for the uninitiated, cover a wide range of items for a movie so spectacular in scope and concept as "Star Trek: The Motion Picture." Thus Lee became involved in the designing of emblems for uniforms, signs for the walls of the space ship, decals for various other space craft, and the imaginative displays seen on monitor screens throughout the space ship "Enterprise."

"I wound up supervising most of the movies made for the monitor screens," she declares. "We had some 50 of them. Mr. Spock's science station was the most complex, with all its blinking lights, charts and graphs, registering information on what they are approaching in outer space."

"We searched across the country for new, computer-generated graphics. We used some from NASA and some very unusual active graphics from the Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory in New Mexico. But, we assimilated most of them here at the studio."

"Because of the economics and the need for speed, we're still doing our graphics in the primitive way, painting them by hand.

"But, they have the technology now in computer graphics to produce incredible things. The trouble is it's such a complex operation."

Lee began portrait painting when she was 13. Originally from Ogden, Utah, she finished her education at Cal State Northridge and U.C.L.A. with a degree in music. She also spent some time in pre-med and art studies. It was the last that paid off in her present work.

"Aerospace is a great field for artists," she remarks.

While still in college, Lee worked on the wiring of a computer that actually went to the moon. "I was awfully nervous during those early space shots," she recalls. "I was sure if there ever was a failure it would be caused by my wiring."

She admits being a fan of "Star Trek" and its stars — headed by William Shatner, Leonard Nimoy and DeForest Kelley — as a high school student and even more so since "Star Trek: The Motion Picture."

"I noticed that each show seemed to have some interesting new scientific theory as its basis," she remembers. "For example, there was a matter-anti-matter story, just at the time it was becoming a popular new theory. Scientists were speculating about it."

She found working on the movie "Enterprise" for "Star Trek — The Motion Picture" very similar in many respects to working on the real thing.

"They're alike in that they both use such complex instrument panels and both are computer-flown. Both travel at such high speed, they're faster than a hu-

Director Happy Over Movie's Success

PARIS (AP) — Film director Roman Polanski is back where he likes most to be, in his European world, immersed in his art, on a high-wire above his troubled past and uncertain future, filled with anxious bluster and pride over the launching of his latest creation, "Tess."

"I'm alive and well in Paris," the Polish-born director said in a recent interview. His 18 months planning and shooting "Tess," combined with its initial critical and box-office success, have left Polanski feeling "punch-drunk but happy," though in something of a "post-partum crisis."

"And I have the feeling now that everything else doesn't matter," said the fiery 46-year-old director of such other films as "Chinatown," "Rosemary's Baby," "Repulsion" and "Cul-de-Sac."

"I had to do it. I had to make this film. I had to have this success," Polanski said. "It allows me to feel I've achieved something and that is the only thing that matters to me."

In the interview, Polanski talked at length about his rise from the Warsaw ghetto to Hollywood, his methods as a director, and above all, about "Tess."

He also talked about his American legal troubles, his 42 days in a California prison, and of his stated decision to return to the United States "sometime next year" to face sentencing for unlawful sexual intercourse with a minor.

"Tess," a sweeping spectacle faithful to Thomas Hardy's 19th century classic "Tess of the d'Urbervilles," has had several rave reviews and has grossed $2.4 million in its first two weeks in France.

"First I want to enjoy the success of 'Tess' and see the lines in front of the cinemas," said Polanski.

Then, after some Alpine skiing and completion of U.S. and other distribution arrangements for "Tess," Polanski said he will begin planning his return to the U.S., where he said there are "strong chances" he will return to jail.

Polanski, a French citizen, fled the United States and returned to Paris in February 1978.

Benefit To Rebuild Brothel Raises Estimated $5,000

BEATTY, Nev. (AP) — Fran York sold her autograph for $100 at a fund-raising dance. It was on her bra — but that was appropriate because Fran is the madam of the local brothel and the benefit was for her.

The bra was one of a number of items auctioned off Saturday night during the benefit, which raised an estimated $5,000 to help rebuild Mrs. York's Star Ranch, which burned down three weeks ago.

Mrs. York, six prostitutes and two customers escaped injury in the fire. Townspeople took the girls in and donated clothing to replace belongings they lost in the blaze.

About 400 people attended the dance, more than half the population of this tiny mining town 114 miles north of Las Vegas.

"We have some people I've never seen before," said Bill Terry, a Federal Aviation Administration employee and one of the organizers of the dance.

Everyone from ranchers and miners to men from the nearby Nevada nuclear test site — along with local teenagers and children down to ages 5 and 6 — turned out for the dance to help the popular businesswoman.

Mrs. York, a short, bubbly blonde who refuses to divulge her age, was delighted with the large turnout.

"Oh, my God," she said as she arrived to the cheers of the crowd. "I can't believe I have so many friends. It's unbelievable."

She said she knew many of the people, but added "You know, I haven't seen too many of my customers to-night."

It was a typical small town response to a person in need, said Terry, who operates a navigation beacon.

"She's been a good friend. She helps people in town. She donates to everything," said Sandy Sanborn, a Beatty housewife and friend of Mrs. York. "This is for her, not the house per se."

"She contributes to everything," said G.L. Coffey, an area rancher. "Anybody who is in trouble she's always there to help."

The brothel, one of five houses of prostitution in Nye County, was gutted by fire Nov. 20. An investigation by the state fire marshal determined the blaze probably was caused by faulty wiring in the old wood frame structure, about one mile north of town.

Mrs. York said she had been operating the brothel for the past eight years and had bought it only a few days before the fire. But she has been in the business for some time, she said.

"If you want to know the truth, I first got in the business when I was 15," she said. "I ran a couple of places in Deadwood (S.D.), before moving to Nevada."

"I love people and I love the people in this town," she said. "If other people would go by the people in this town it would be a beautiful world. It really would."

"This is the most beautiful thing that's ever happened to me in my whole entire life."

Nevada law prohibits prostitution in the two counties where Las Vegas and Reno are located, but leaves it up to local ordinance in the other 15 largely rural counties. Nye has no ordinance governing prostitution, but county officials are working on one that would require brothels to be licensed.

Program Aids Heart Patients

BOSTON (AP) — Three mornings a week, people with bad hearts jog around an indoor track with portable transmitters hooked to their belts. On the sidelines, a doctor watches the thumping of the runners' chests on a television screen.

The patients are learning clean living habits. The doctors hope it will keep them alive.

The new program, set up by Massachusetts General Hospital, is intended to find the best possible lifestyle for these people so they will have a chance to survive, even with damaged hearts.

So far, about 15 people have enrolled in the experimental project. They are recovering from heart surgery or heart attacks or have been diagnosed as having coronary artery disease.

While a doctor, a nurse and a physical education instructor watch, the patients cautiously lope around an oval track at Harvard. Their small radio senders transmit a continuous electrocardiogram that appears on a television screen and is drawn on a paper strip.

The gadgetry assures the medical people the patients are not hurting themselves as they exercise. Eventually, the doctors believe, they will increase their stamina, improve the function of their hearts and lungs and learn to exercise regularly.

The patients also receive advice on keeping their weight down, improving their diet, avoiding stress and cutting out cigarettes.

No one is sure which combination of these changes is best. So doctors will study the results to find out which patients live longest.

The program is the first project of the hospital's new Center for Health Enhancement. Its director, Alexander Leaf, says their experience may help researchers find a formula for avoiding heart disease before it occurs.

"We hope that we will be able to find ways of altering exercise, diet and such behavior as smoking, rest and alcohol that will reduce the cardiovascular risk factors," Leaf said. "And by doing that, hopefully we will reduce the likelihood that somebody is going to end up at age 55 having a heart attack." The hospital plans to build a dormitory in which people with the warnings signs of heart disease, such as obesity, high blood pressure, diabetes and angina, will learn good living habits.

"If we can get people to stay between three and four weeks on an altered program of diet, exercise and rest, they will feel so much better that they will go back to their homes and continue that kind of program," Leaf said.

Though the number of people taught this way will be small, he said they will publicize their results.

"We hope that we can educate other physicians and medical students," Leaf said. "We think that one can change the whole relationship between the physician and his patients so that the physician doesn't just try to cure somebody after he is already sick. He will advise people and promote well being."

DEAD MAN WINS

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A man who died six weeks ago was elected police juror in west Louisiana's Vernon Parish, but the runner-up will take the office, election officials say. Jack Singletary, the incumbent, died of cancer after the Oct. 17 primary, but his name remained on the general election ballot and garnered 1,259 votes Saturday. The runner up, Ollie James, got 1,042. Vernon Parish voting has been in the spotlight since a 1978 vote buying scandal.

Planes Look For Four Missing

NEW YORK (AP) — Search planes took to the air again Sunday looking for four people whose 50-foot sailboat apparently sunk in heavy seas two days earlier.

Coast Guard spokeswoman Fran Padilla said hopes were high that the two men and two women were still alive because they were thought have taken refuge on a life raft that "is extremely sturdy and fully equipped with a case of vital rations."

The sailboat Shadow was believed to have sunk Friday morning about 240 miles off New Jersey and the crew members sent a "Mayday" message saying they were evacuating by life raft.

Miss Padilla said three planes, from the Coast Guard and the Navy, were searching off the southwest tip of Cape Cod for the missing raft. The air search was temporarily called off Saturday night when the two Coast Guard planes and two helicopters ran short of fuel.

The boat left New York bound for Bermuda on Tuesday but apparently was blown off course Friday morning by whipping winds and 50-foot seas.

The four people on board were identified as boat-owner Gene Weiss of San Francisco; Larry Dane, of Allen Park, Mich.; Roseann Culer of Hull, Mass.; and Kathy Hamilton of Rockport, Mass.

Miss Padilla said Coast Guard officials spotted portions of a sailboat — believed to be the Shadow — and two life rafts Friday when the search first began. One of the life rafts, containing luggage filled with women's clothes, was recovered, but searchers lost sight of the second raft in the rough waves.

It was not known if the Shadow crew members were aboard the second raft but Coast Guard officials believed "there is always hope," Miss Padilla said.

Winds in the area where the boat apparently sunk were about 35 miles per hour on Sunday and wave heights were down to about 11 feet.

Women Doctor Sets Hot Air Balloon Record

MORIARTY, N.M. (AP) — Dr. Carol Rymer-Davis broke another hot air balloon altitude record, but after braving 41-below-zero temperatures to soar 31,500 feet she said the flight was "almost anticlimactic."

Dr. Rymer-Davis, head of the nuclear medicine department at Lovelace Medical Center, said the reason for the slight let-down was that she worked for such a long time to "get the balloon where we thought it should go."

But she said it was "obviously marvelous" to pass the women's overall altitude mark Saturday.

The previous 28,277-foot record was set in England in 1977 by Sue Hazlett of Albuquerque, N.M., she said.

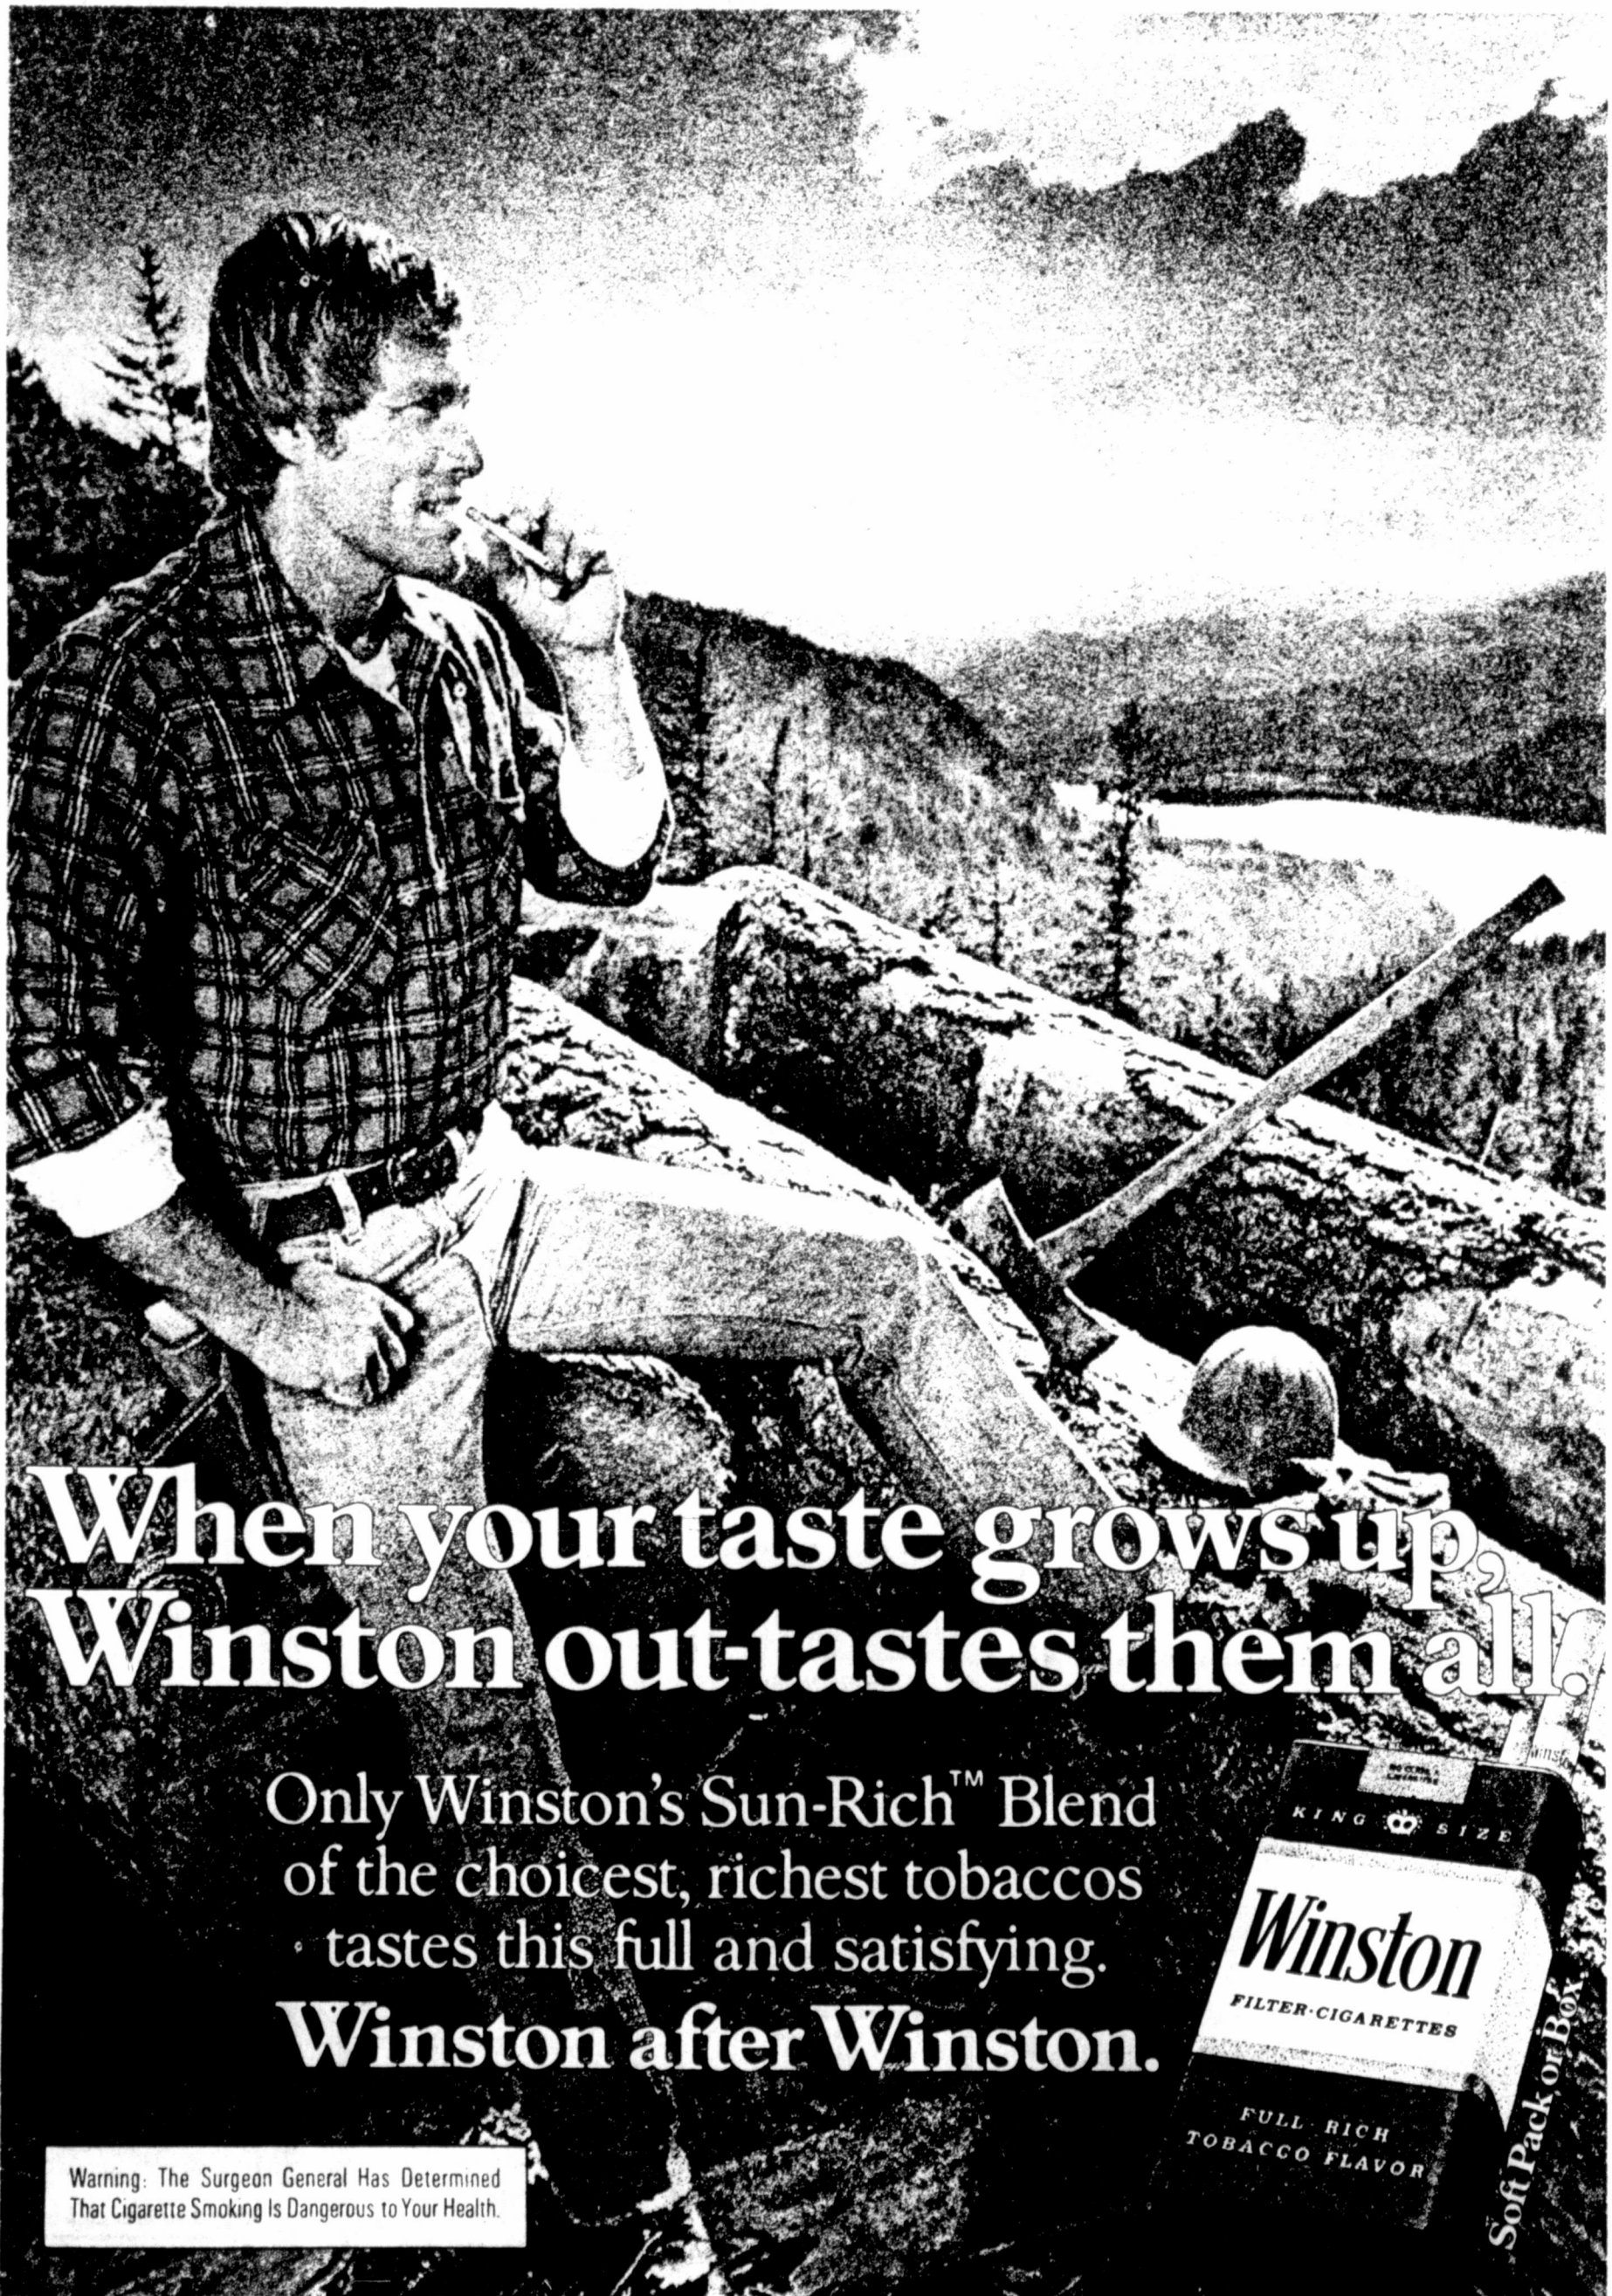

Dr. Rymer-Davis took off just after dawn from a field near this small community about 30 miles east of Albuquerque. She was equipped with oxygen and wearing special clothing. Temperatures on the ground were in the 30s.

It was her second record-setting flight this year. She made a 25,400-foot flight Feb. 19, which was the altitude mark for balloons the size of the one she flew that day.

Now she says she wants to go on to bigger and better things.

"I think we'll try for larger balloon records. The larger the balloon, the higher it will go," she said.

CHICAGO DEMONSTRATIONS
CHICAGO (AP) — Demonstrations are planned to press for more black representation in Mayor Jane Byrne's administration, the Rev. Jesse Jackson said as he charged the mayor with "racist politics." Jackson, president of the self-help group Operation PUSH, told a city hall demonstration Saturday that community meetings, demonstrations and possibly "evil disobedience" would be used to pressure Mrs. Byrne into appointing blacks. Two of the nine school board members are black and one is Hispanic.
