

Firemen's Strike Brings In Guardsmen

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Gov. Joseph Teasdale declared a state of emergency Thursday, and ordered 500 National Guardsmen to help provide fire protection in Kansas City during a growing "sickout" by city fire fighters.

He said city officials could no longer guarantee the public safety, and the troops went on duty late Thursday.

Police have been pressed into duty to bolster a fire fighting force depleted by firings, suspensions and sickouts as fire fighters pressed demands for higher pay.

The governor took the actions after a 45-minute closed-door meeting with Mayor Richard Berkley and a telephone conversation with the head of the fire fighters union.

At a news conference, Teasdale called on firefighters "to stop this illegal strike."

He also urged both sides to resume bargaining, and said he would help mediate if asked. "How long do you expect the city to take this?" he said. "In the name of the law, in the name of the people, go back to the table."

As of Thursday afternoon, police working 12-hour shifts were manning 15 of the city's 33 fire stations and providing protection at five others operated by battalion chiefs. Two stations were closed Wednesday night and early Thursday when firemen failed to arrive for work.

By noon Thursday, 33 of the city's 900 firemen had been dismissed and more than 200 were given three-day suspensions, with the suspensions to be served after the emergency is over. Those suspended refused to work overtime and will be fired if they refuse again, city officials said. The "sickout" began Wednesday and 232 firemen had joined in by Thursday.

All police personnel have been on 12-hour shifts since Friday when the fire fighters' contract expired and the work slowdown began. At first, the fire fighters refused to work non-emergency overtime. The dispute escalated on Wednesday when fire fighters refused to do inspections and attend training classes.

There have been no major fires since Friday in the city of 500,000 people. Deputy Fire Chief John Hamilton said Thursday that the city had "less than half the protection we had yesterday." Asked if the city could handle a major fire, he snapped: "Hell no."

The work slowdown is in defiance of a temporary restraining order issued Monday.

Firemen had not responded to City Manager Robert Kipp's ultimatum that the union accept the city's final contract offer by 5 p.m., according to David Olson, assistant city manager.

John Germann, president of Firefighters Local 42, called Kipp an "absolute dictator," adding: "If he could get rid of all of us (fire fighters), that's what he's going to do. He doesn't care how many citizens lose their lives or how much it costs."

Kipp could not be reached for comment.

Police spokesman Jim Treece said 300 police officers had volunteered to help man the stations. About 500 to 700 of the police department's 1,183 personnel were involved in the fire operations in some fashion.

"We hope it gets better, but the forecast doesn't look like it will," Treece added. He said the police were not trained fire fighters but had "tons of guts." He said the 12-hour shifts were "bound to wear you slick after a while."

"They're firing themselves out of a fire department for some stupid reason," said John Finn, a member of the executive board of Firefighters Local 42.

The union and the city have been at odds over a new contract for months, with firemen seeking an immediate 20 percent pay raise to go with a city plan for a 48-hour work week. The city has offered a 19.3 percent raise over the next two years. Base pay for firemen now ranges from $12,132 to $17,982 for a 40-hour week.

Afghanistan's Coup Praised By Russia

New Leader Called Soviet 'Puppet'

By The Associated Press
RADIO KABUL reported a coup in Afghanistan Thursday by former Deputy Prime Minister Babrak Karmal, who is described as even more friendly to the Soviet Union than the man he overthrew. A U.S. official called him a "puppet" of Moscow.

The British Broadcasting Corp. quoted Radio Kabul as saying ousted President Hafizullah Amin had been executed.

The coup came after a massive buildup in Afghanistan of Soviet troops, who have been helping fight anti-Marxist rebels who want to restore a Moslem government and rid the country of Soviet influence. U.S. officials estimate there are 10,000 Soviet troops in Afghanistan.

A few hours after the coup was announced, the Soviet Union praised the takeover. It called Amin's regime a dictatorship and an agent of American imperialism.

Washington officials, who declined to be identified, said there were fragmentary reports of "some involvement of Soviet military personnel" in street fighting in the capital, and 35 Americans at the U.S. Embassy were told to "stay put."

"If the report is true it would be the grossest form of international behavior," one official said.

The official said the Soviets could be using their military might to install "a puppet" in Karmal, a leader of one faction of the Afghanistan Communist party, to help in the war against the rebels. Soviet troops and equipment have been pouring into this nation of 21.4 million people to put down the revolt.

Soviets 'Moving In'

"It is my information that there are Soviet personnel in groupings and that they are moving in the city," another U.S. official said.

Radio Moscow and the official Soviet news agency Tass gave quick coverage to Karmal's speech. Despite strong Soviet support for Amin in the past, foreign diplomats had spoken of unpublished strains between Amin and Moscow.

Diplomats in New Delhi, India, said Karmal is in his 50s, the son of an army general, and a confirmed Marxist. He was vice president, deputy prime minister and ambassador to Czechoslovakia under President Nur Mohammad Taraki, who ousted Afghanistan's nonaligned regime in April, 1978 and turned the country toward the Soviet Union.

Refused To Return

Karmal was ordered home from Czechoslovakia after Taraki's overthrow and death in September, apparently to face arrest and trial, but he refused to return and was given asylum in Czechoslovakia.

The Iranian news agency Pars quoted Karmal as saying in a Kabul radio broadcast, "We would like to be on friendly terms with our neighbors." The Soviet Union, Iran and Pakistan have common borders with Afghanistan.

The Washington officials said fighting was reported near the radio station in Kabul, and at Durulaman Palace. Asked whether Soviet troops were involved in the street fighting, one official said, "they may be, yes, but our reports are so recent and so fragmentary."

Freedoms Promised

The broadcast said Karmal promised "democratic freedoms for all the masses, the release of all political prisoners and the creation of jobs for the unemployed."

"We want to announce to the whole world that the last chains of imperialism, fascism and dictatorship in the heart of Asia have been broken," Pars quoted Karmal as saying.

Before the coup there was an unprecedented show of Soviet military strength — daylight flight of hundreds of Soviet troops into Kabul Airport, before the eyes of startled foreign and Afghan airline passengers.

The Soviet Union apparently has committed more troops to Afghanistan, despite warnings by the United States, in an effort to avoid having another fundamentalist Moslem state, besides Iran, on its southern border.

Diplomatic sources said they feel the Soviets fear a "ripple effect" of unrest among Soviet Moslems — Tajiks, Uzbeks and Turkmen who remain far from assimilated in Soviet society.

Moslems are expected to make up a majority of the Soviet population by early in the next century.

Karmal referred to his coup as a "holy war" and appealed for support to all classes of the population, including "honest Moslems."

Radio Moscow said Karmal had called for "the unity of all national and progressive forces to bring about final victory."

Karmal's statement, as carried by Tass, said Afghanistan's "long-suffering countrymen" were subjected to "intoler-

Militants Deny Release Plan

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — A government spokesman said Thursday some members of the ruling Revolutionary Council are pressing for release of three American hostages despite opposition by militants holding the U.S. Embassy compound.

The Associated Press got word from a Foreign Ministry spokesman of an official "suggestion" that three hostages of Mexican, Indian and Portuguese descent be released. A spokesman for the militants holding the hostages reacted angrily when told of the report, insisting such information would have to come from them. They would neither confirm nor deny it.

Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh repeated the hard line he took Wednesday, declaring the hostages will be tried as spies if the United Nations Security Council imposes an economic embargo on Iran.

Emerging from a Revolutionary Council meeting, Ghotbzadeh accused the United States of interpreting Iran's every "good gesture" as a sign of weakness.

He told reporters if the United States continued pressure on Iran, especially seeking a U.N.-enforced economic blockade, he would scrap a proposed international grand jury to investigate Iranian grievances and go ahead with a spy trial.

"If the United States continues to put pressure on us... I don't see any usefulness in having this grand jury," the minister said. "It is better to have the normal trial of the hostages."

In Washington, a White House official expressed optimism the United States will be able to get United Nations authorization for economic sanctions against Iran, and that the Soviet Union will not veto the resolution. "I think there is some optimism that the Soviet Union will simply abstain," said the official.

who asked not to be identified.

Sources at the United Nations said a preliminary draft of the resolution calls for an embargo on all Iranian exports carried in Iranian ships and an embargo on all Iranian imports except medicine and food. It also would forbid U.N. member nations to let Iranian ships or planes enter their territory or to grant Iran credit.

One of the three hostages who could be released might be Marine William Gallegos of Pueblo, Colo., whose filmed interview was televised this month by NBC. Another possibility, judging by surnames on a list of hostages compiled from unofficial sources, is Marine James Michael Lopez of Globe, Ariz.

There has been no official explanation of the choice of the three by ethnic background, but Mexico's refusal to readmit the deposed shah after his medical treatment in New York pleased Iran.

Another candidate for release could be hostage Frederick Lee Kupke, from Meers, Okla., who is part Kiowa Indian. The Kiowa tribal council has called on Iran to release him.

Three American clergymen who conducted Christmas services for the captives told reporters as they ended the three-day mission that compromise was needed in the U.S.-Iranian crisis.

"If one side gets a little more tough it tends to make the other side a little more tough," the Rev. William Sloane Coffin said. "If one side decides to be a little more gracious, the other side has the freedom to be a little more gracious."

Coffin and the Revs. Thomas Gumbleton and William Howard flew home with messages from some hostages to their families.

Snow Threat Remains In Area Today

By RAYNIE HARDESTY

Avalanche-Journal Staff
GRAY clouds that hung low over the South Plains on Thursday and hinted of an oncoming storm, are expected to powder parts of West Texas with light snow by sunrise today.

As a massive cold front rolls out of eastern New Mexico and across the Panhandle, 4 to 6 inches of snow may pile up on parts of the northwestern Panhandle.

South Plains residents, however, may only get a glimpse of the white substance, although forecasters say there is an 80 percent chance South Plains residents will see some precipitation by this morning.

Possibly pre-empted by light rain Thursday night, light to moderate snow in the South Plains could create hazardous road conditions throughout the region by this morning. Weather officials have posted a travelers advisory for persons in the southeastern portion of the Panhandle and northwestern South Plains.

A heavy snow warning is in effect for the northwestern section of the Panhandle.

The frontal system dumped between 1 and 2 feet of snow on parts of New Mexico and Colorado on Thursday as it shoved eastward.

Although an 80 percent chance for

Iranian Review Upheld

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's authority to order deportation proceedings against Iranian students who are in the United States illegally was upheld Thursday by a federal appeals court.

The president's order of Nov. 10 was in retaliation for the seizing of the U.S. Embassy in Iran and its employees six days before.

The U.S. Court of Appeals said the order was a fundamental element of Carter's "efforts to resolve the Iranian crisis and to maintain the safety of the American hostages in Tehran."

The ruling by a three-judge panel freed the Immigration and Naturalization Service to resume deportation actions held up since Dec. 11, when a lower court judge found such actions discriminatory and unconstitutional.

As of Dec. 24, the INS had interviewed 54,486 Iranian students and found that 6,444 did not have valid visas. Of the students in this country, 463 have requested asylum, 857 left rather than face deportation, 50 others left voluntarily and 10 have been deported.

The judges of the appeals court, Edward Tamm, Roger Robb and George MacKinnon, said the seizure of the U.S. Embassy denied American citizens "the protection to which they are entitled."

The appellate judges chided U.S. District Judge Joyce Hens Green for trying to evaluate the policy reasons behind Carter's order.

"The court went beyond an acceptable judicial role," the judges said. "Certainly in a case such as the one presented here it is not the business of courts to pass judgment on the decisions of the president in the field of foreign policy.

"Judges are not expert in that field and they lack the information necessary for the formation of an opinion," the ruling said. "The president, on the other hand, has the opportunity of knowing the conditions which prevail in foreign countries."

Judge Green had ruled that Iranian students had equal protection of the laws and could not be singled out for visa checks.

"Here again we must differ," said the appeals court. "Distinctions on the basis of nationality may be drawn in the immigration field by the Congress or the executive (the president). So long as such dis-

'Buying Fever' Sends Gold Beyond $518

NEW YORK (AP) — The price of gold rocketed past $518 a troy ounce Thursday as worries over strife in Afghanistan and Iran caused what one trader called "a buying fever."

As gold soared, the value of the dollar plunged against all major currencies but the Japanese yen and Swiss franc in very tight foreign exchange trading.

Gold, which had reached as high as $510 an ounce in New York Wednesday, rose to $518.50 during the day in Zurich before falling back to close at $514. The close was $39 higher than the Zurich closing price last Friday, the last trading day on the Swiss market before the Christmas holiday.

Gold closed at $511 in London, up from $485.50 Monday, the last trading day there. In New York, gold for January delivery jumped $9.20 to $515.50 on the Commodity Exchange Inc., while Republic National Bank quoted gold at $513 an ounce, up $11.

"Nobody in his right mind will sell at these levels," said one New York dealer. "They're afraid they'll never be able to buy it back."

Another said, "it looks like these high levels are here to stay. If the price of gold will break eventually and drop $10 or $20 or so, but then it will continue to rise."

Analyst David Fitzpatrick at Merrill Lynch & Co.'s London branch said, "investors are worried about a new military factor in the Middle East."

"Now the Russians are building up in Afghanistan at the same time as the U.S. Navy fleet is getting closer and closer to Iran," he said.

The day's currency and bullion price swings were accentuated by the thinness of Thursday's market, dealers said.

The dollar was moved around very

Well Spewing Poison Gases

BRISCOE (AP) — Poisonous gas spewing from a blown-out gas well near this Panhandle community Thursday night forced Hemphill and Wheeler county officials to evacuate residents, authorities said.

Deputy Joe Reyna said the well blew out about 8 p.m. Thursday and was discharging poisonous hydrogen sulfide gas. He said there were no reports of injuries.

Reyna offered no estimate of how many persons had been evacuated but said that efforts were being made to clear the immediate area of the well blowout.

Wheeler County officials said about 30 to 40 families had been evacuated from ranches along a strip about 15 miles long and seven miles wide and that residents were being housed at a school in Briscoe. Another report said about 100 persons had arrived at the school.

Sailing Cargo Ship Reported Sinking; Captain, Crew Rescued

WESTHAMPTON, N.Y. (AP) — The John F. Leavitt, the nation's first sailing cargo ship in four decades, was sinking Thursday 150 miles southeast of Cape Cod in what was its maiden voyage, the U.S. Coast Guard in New York said.

The nine persons aboard the 97-foot vessel, reportedly including its captain, Ned Ackerman, and a film crew, were rescued by Air National Guard helicopters from Westhampton Beach on Long Island.

A Coast Guard cutter Chase was headed from Boston to the scene of the disabled ship. Coast Guard spokesman Fran Padilla said the cutter would "do what it can to save the vessel."

There were 10-foot seas and 20 knot winds in the area of the ship, the Coast Guard said.

The wind-powered ship left Quincy, Mass., about 10 days ago, according to the Coast Guard, which reported the vessel was loaded with oversized lumber bound for Haiti.

The Leavitt messaged distress calls late Thursday morning saying it was taking on water and two helicopters and one plane left the Air National Guard base at Westhampton Beach at about 12:30 p.m., said Maj. Richard Weissbard, a spokesman for the Air National Guard. Those aboard the Leavitt were evacuated to life rafts and hoisted into helicopters at about 4:40 p.m. Weissbard said the crew was being taken to the guard base at Westhampton Beach. It was not immediately known if any of those aboard had been injured.

The wooden, twin-masted schooner was the dream of the 36-year-old Ackerman, who had envisioned the Leavitt as a way to beat the energy crunch by recreating the age of sail.

After three years of work, the Leavitt was launched with great fanfare from Thomaston, Maine, in August.

Ackerman, a former medieval scholar and former English instructor at Merrimack College in North Andover, Mass., named the vessel after maritime scholar John F. Leavitt, who wrote "In the Wake of the Coasting Schooner."

Ackerman's optimism was portrayed by the figurehead on the Leavitt's bow — a grinning fox with a large feather protruding from its mouth.

Modeled after 19th century prototypes, the red-and-white-hulled Leavitt was powered by wind pressing against its 6,440 square feet of canvas sail rigged fore and aft atop 80-foot masts.

Capsized Ore Freighter Runs Aground Off Coast Of Alaska

KETCHIKAN, Alaska (AP) — A capsized ore freighter went aground off the Alaska coast Thursday as near hurricane force winds whipped waves to 25 feet. Little hope remained for the vessel's 30 Taiwanese crewmen.

The Coast Guard said, however, the 741-foot Lee Wang Zin was in no immediate danger of breaking up and might free itself at high tide.

The vessel, which capsized Tuesday in stormy waters off British Columbia, became grounded at Kendrick Bay, about 50 miles south of Ketchikan, after drifting about 25 miles. The crew of a Canadian tugboat was unable to keep the ship in deeper water.

A 25-member U.S. Navy diving team was waiting for the winds gusting up to 60 knots to subside before searching for victims. The storm also hampered efforts to contain an oil slick measuring 1½ miles and up to 18 miles long. Petty Officer Phillip Franklin said

Thursday there is "some hope" crewmen could be alive, trapped in the freighter's battered hull. But Coast Guard Lt. Cmdr. Terry Bills said, "If we find somebody alive, he's going to be very lucky."

Franklin said a man without a survival suit could be expected to live only half an hour in the 35-to 40-degree water.

Coast Guard Cmdr. Ray Spoltman, federal on-scene coordinator, said divers would try to enter the ship from below. If no one is alive, he said, "present plans are to take it out to sea and sink it."

Plans called for the divers to use the recently overhauled 180-foot Coast Guard buoy tender Laurel as a diving platform.

One body was recovered and two empty life rafts were sighted Wednesday near the mouth of McLean Arm, a small inlet on Prince of Wales Island. Franklin said the body of the unidentified crewman was clad only in a life jacket, wind-breaker and light slacks.

The crew of a Canadian tug also reported spotting a second body, but were unable to recover it, officials said.

The 378-foot Coast Guard cutter Munro, equipped with booms and other oil spill control devices, was trying to contain the slick caused by 10,000 to 20,000 gallons of fuel that spilled from the freighter.

The Lee Wang Zin was carrying 300,000 gallons of heavy bunker fuel as well as 72,000 gallons of diesel fuel for maneuvering, said Spoltman. He said bunker fuel is nearly solid at the water's temperature and would not easily spread.

Don Kelly, a biologist for the Alaska Department of Fish and Game, said the spill did not pose a severe threat immediately. He said McLean Arm is fed by only five salmon streams and the slick would be potentially more dangerous elsewhere on the island.

Spoltman said the ship's owner has disclaimed responsibility for the oil cleanup and is not interested in salvaging the vessel.

Doug Ensley, from the Coast Guard's marine safety detachment in Ketchikan, said the freighter "looked like 741 feet of red hull." He said damage appeared to be confined to the forward area.

Three gashes have been spotted in the vessel's side, but officials say there's no way to determine what caused the ship to capsize.

The Panamanian vessel, chartered to a Japanese firm, had left Prince Rupert, British Columbia, on Christmas Day with 54,000 tons of pea-sized iron pellets when it ran into the storm packing 90 mph winds. Coast Guard Lt. Cmdr. Terry Bills said the cargo was dangerous in rough weather because the pellets could shift easily.

"The wind and seas probably had a part," said Franklin. "The load of iron could have shifted, but it's hard to say at this point what the actual cause was. Ships of that size can go through pretty rough seas. It should have been able to take that punishment."

Two Companies In Violation Of Program

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two Dallas-based companies appear to be violating the nation's anti-inflation program, the Council on Wage and Price Stability said Thursday.

The council, which oversees the voluntary controls program, said it would ask that future government contracts be withheld from a unit of the Gifford Hill & Co. Inc., a major manufacturer of building materials.

It also said National Gypsum Co., the nation's second-largest manufacturer of gypsum products, would have seven days to appeal the council ruling or face denial of future government contracts.

Both companies were cited for price violations.

Richard Beadle, vice president of administration for Gifford-Hill, said there would be no immediate comment because company officials had not yet reviewed the council's action.

National Gypsum released a statement saying it was studying the council's decision but had not yet reached a decision on what its next step might be. "This all came as kind of a surprise," said Jim Thompson, director of public relations. "We did comply with what we thought was correct and then they came back and said we didn't."

The council said that price increases for one of Gifford Hill's four units exceeded the standards in the first year of the anti-inflation program.

The company "contended that they were justified on grounds of historical business practices," the council said. Gifford Hill also said its price increases were in compliance with the limits for the first 18 months of the program.

National Gypsum, meanwhile, argued that its price increases were within the guidelines. But the council said the company "calculated its price increases improperly."

The guideline for the first year of the program called for price increases a half a percentage point below 1976-77 increases. The guideline for the second year, which began Oct. 1, calls for price increases no greater than the 1976-77 increases in the 24 months ending Sept. 30, 1980.

The council does not release specific price data in announcing its decisions.

The council said that the ruling on Gifford Hill brought to seven the number of companies that the council has asked to deny future government contracts for price guideline violations. Seven unions and companies also have been cited for wage guideline violations.

Basque Organization Financially Secure

MADRID, Spain (AP) — An "expert on terrorism" was quoted as saying in a magazine interview Thursday that the financial situation of ETA, the Basque separatist organization, "is solid it needs to make robberies no longer."

The expert, unidentified by the police news magazine Tribuna Policial, was quoted as saying ETA finances its activities through a "revolutionary tax." Scores of Basque industrialists have said they pay such a tax to ETA regularly.

The magazine quoted him as saying ETA commandos receive military training in France, and other nations he did not name permit ETA to use their soil and even their police academies for learning terrorist and urban guerrilla techniques.

No Quick End Predicted For 'No-Ceiling' Oil Price Situation

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — The open oil market has sidelined OPEC and taken control of world petroleum prices, creating a no-floor, no-ceiling situation, industry sources said Thursday. They warned things could get worse in the new year.

Predictions of a modest oil glut in 1980 had bolstered hopes of a stabilization but Iranian Oil Minister Ali Akbar Moinefar has warned, "In the name of God Almighty, there won't be an oil glut early next year" — And sections of the industry agree with him.

One Middle Eastern analyst explained, "When the oil market is slack, OPEC has to act with a degree of unanimity to set a benchmark price which all producers can agree to hold and none will undercut."

"But when the market is full of steam — as it is now — OPEC becomes a spectator. It doesn't have to worry about a floor price, because the floor is always rising. It can't set a fixed ceiling because someone is always desperate enough to pay that extra dollar to assure himself of a supply."

It was this economic rationale which made it impossible for the 13 OPEC producers to forge a unified market price at Caracas earlier this month for the 84 percent of the world's traded oil which they control. The failure earned them the nickname DOPEC — the Disorganization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

But despite the multiplicity of prices being charged by OPEC Members in their new everyman-for-himself phase, two basic trends are still apparent.

1980 Pricing Of Oil To Be Announced

By The Associated Press

Amid speculation that it is planning an 8.3 percent price hike, Venezuela announced Thursday that it would post its 1980 oil prices on Friday. A price hike by Venezuela could kick off similar increases by other oil-exporting countries.

Energy Minister Humberto Calderon Berti, speaking to a lunch held in Caracas by the state oil company Petroleos de Venezuela, refused to say what his country's new price would be.

But Calderon Berti, in an interview after the close of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries oil ministers' conference in Caracas last week, said the new price "may be $26" a barrel.

Venezuela, supplier of 3.5 percent of U.S. oil needs, had joined with Saudi Arabia and two other moderate OPEC members before the cartel's meeting in announcing their base price was rising by $6 to $24 for a 42-gallon barrel.

The rise failed to keep Iran, Libya, Algeria and Nigeria from going their own way during the meeting and announcing prices as high as $30. The increases announced before and during the oil ministers' session may add up to a dime to the price of a gallon of gasoline or heating oil in the United States.

Venezuela's expected increase may give other OPEC members an excuse to boost their own prices in the name of unity within the cartel, and some reports have said the Saudis would follow any increase by the Venezuelans.

But Saudi Arabian Oil Minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani denied in Paris Thursday that his country has decided to raise its price by $2 in February.

"No decision has been taken," Sheikh Yamani said.

Yamani had pledged in Caracas to keep his country's $24-a-barrel price "at least through January." On Thursday, however, he told reporters "oil price increases are determined by the market, and Saudi oil prices are currently below those prevailing on the international market."

Yamani, whose country produces one-third of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries' 30 million barrels-a-day output, spoke to reporters after he met with French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing.

Yamani predicted world oil supplies would exceed demand in the mid-1980s — provided Iranian output did not decline — and said, "there will undoubtedly be a surplus on the international market."

He also said France and Saudi Arabia had concluded a major oil supply contract for the next three years. He did not give any details.

Sears Announces Danger Of Shock

CHICAGO (AP) — Sears, Roebuck and Co. said Thursday that 2,800 of its homeowners' airless paint sprayers present a potential shock hazard.

The company said the internal motor wires could be cut or scraped by the blades of the cooling fan, causing a shock if the sprayer is not properly grounded. Sears said there have been no reports of injuries.

The sprayers, identified by the model number 165-155571 on the front label, were sold under the Sears brand name for about $300, primarily last March through May.

Sears said in a statement owners should contact a Sears store or service center to arrange repairs without charge.

The dominant trend in OPEC is made up of a loose coalition of price "doves" who believe their rates must rise gradually to the cost of alternative energy resources. These producers realize that too sharp a price boost could send Western economies into a tailspin, which would not only harm their own investments abroad but would sap the strength of the countries upon which they are most dependent politically and militarily.

With Saudi Arabia trying to hold down the floor at $24 per barrel, the other "doves" have priced their crudes at nearby levels depending on their quality and their proximity to the markets they serve.

The United Arab Emirates pegged its oil at $27.56 per barrel and its Gulf neighbor, Qatar, at $27.42. Oil industry sources said Kuwait and Iraq, who have not yet formally announced their new prices, will hold the line around $27 and $26 respectively.

OPEC's two moderate Latin American producers, Venezuela and Ecuador, were expected to charge around $26 in the near future. The cartel's only Far Eastern member, Indonesia, has fixed the rate for most of its crude exports at $25.50 and Gabon's latest price ranges between $24.50 and $25.

The minority trend in OPEC is dominated by the "hawks" — Iran, Libya, Algeria and Nigeria. These countries produce some of the highest quality crudes and they believe the West is able and willing to pay for them at $30 or more.

Libya has hiked its crude to $30 and may go higher depending on the customer and the market. Algeria and Nigeria also are resting for the moment at the $30 level.

Iran has raised its official contract prices to $28.50 but has been exporting substantial amounts at higher prices on the spot market and to contract customers. Japan said Wednesday Iran has offered it 460,000 barrels a day of oil in 1980 for $30 per barrel.

Saudi Oil Minister Sheikh Ahmed Zaki Yamani predicted that a slowdown in world economic activity and improved energy conservation in 1980 would create a small surplus in the market and force the hawks to shave a few dollars from their prices in order to maintain their market shares.

Some analysts believe Yamani's prediction was little more than wishful thinking. A variety of forces, they say, are working against a "mini-glut" in mid-1980.

U.S. Urged To Establish China Security Link

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — The Soviet Union will be the major source of future trouble in Asia and therefore the United States should develop a security relationship with China, according to a Rand Corp. report scheduled for release today.

The report says the first basic element of its recommended strategy for the United States is "developing a security relationship with China in a manner which establishes a stabilizing balance in Asia, yet which is not gratuitously provocative to the Soviet Union, or threatening (to) the interests of America's traditional allies and friends in the region."

The report, commissioned by the Defense Department and titled "Asian Security in the 1980s," was the product of a conference of Asian and U.S. government analysts held by the "think tank" last January.

It concludes that in the 1980s Asia is likely to polarize around the Sino-Soviet feud, giving as an example China's February border war with Soviet-backed Vietnam.

"Should the Soviet Union continue its efforts to encircle China with political and military bases, countries such as Japan, the United States and the states of Western Europe will come under greater pressure to ally themselves with the People's Republic of China to counter Moscow's increasingly assertive foreign policy," the report says.

Conference chairman Richard H. Solomon said a continued growth in the Soviet threat in Asia would bring great changes for security affairs in the region. He said a loose coalition that already exists among the western nations and China might acquire the characteristics of a defense alliance.

Conference members said there is still considerable distrust of China's motives, but that the Soviet Union has the concerns, capabilities and the record of initiatives that make it the country to most likely challenge Asian security in the next decade.

Asian leaders fear the Soviet Union may soon be able to threaten the security of their sea lanes and that it could acquire bases in Vietnam, the report said.

The report said another area that could cause tension and conflict in the 1980s is the continuity of leadership, dramatized by the recent assassination of South Korea's president, Park Chung-hee.

According to the report, only three non-Communist Asian countries — Japan, Australia and New Zealand — have political systems capable of smooth transitions. The report singled out South Korea, Taiwan, the Philippines, Indonesia and Thailand as countries particularly vulnerable to disruptive leadership crises.

The report said other problems for the region are the enduring military confrontation between North and South Korea, territorial disputes and rivalry for the resources of contested offshore areas, trade imbalances and social instabilities in the world's most rapidly developing region, and the impact of Islamic fundamentalism on such multi-ethnic states as Malaysia, Indonesia and the Philippines.

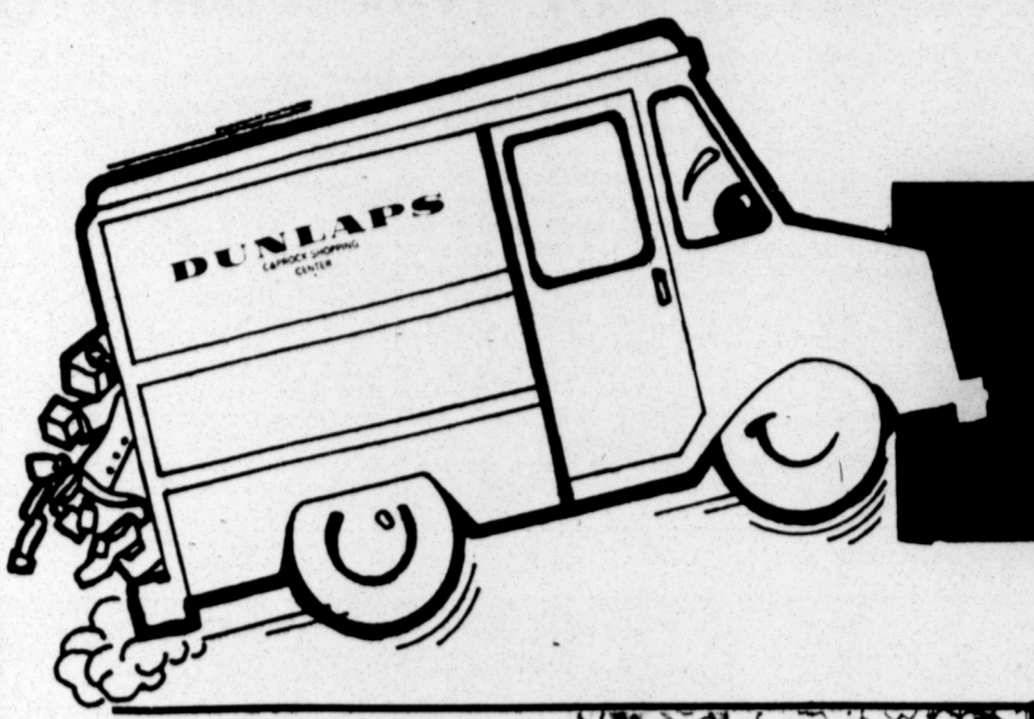

Mahon ordered Dallas to implement an 8-3 plan, with eight councilmen elected from single-member district and three elected at large. That plan was rejected by an appeals court but recently upheld by the U.S. Supreme Court.

Oil Workers Union Rejects Companies' Offers

DENVER (AP) — The Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union has rejected all oil company offers made in contract reopening negotiations, union president Robert F. Goss reported Thursday.

Goss said offers from a number of major oil companies were rejected unanimously as "unsatisfactory" by the union's National Oil Bargaining Policy Committee. The negotiations began in November.

Last January, the union settled with major oil companies on a two-year contract providing for a 73-cent-an-hour increase, an average of 8 percent. The contract provided for reopening negotiations after a year. The union announced Nov. 1 it would exercise that option.

Goss said preliminary meetings were held with oil company officials in November and all offers were made last week. He said the companies had offered Oil Companies Have Less Available Fuel

NEW YORK (AP) — Exxon USA announced Thursday it expects to supply motorists next month with 90 percent of the gasoline it made available in January 1979, while Sun Co. Inc. said it will have 93 percent of last January's supplies available next month.

The January supplies were about the same as were available in December, when oil companies made approximately 93 percent of December 1978 supplies available for sale.

U.S. gasoline use is running about 5 percent behind last year's level, due in large part to prices which have risen past $1 a gallon.

The cutbacks accelerated in the second half of 1979.

raises of 8 percent plus increased contributions toward hospitalization and medical insurance.

"All groups will continue to bargain in an effort to arrive at a satisfactory settlement," Goss said. The first year of the current contract expires on Jan. 8. Following that date the union has the right to strike, Goss said.

Approximately 60,000 oil refinery and petrochemical plant workers are involved in the negotiations. They are covered by more than 400 contracts and are employed by 100 companies including all of the major oil companies in the United States.

Sloppy Work Claim Not Substantiated

DALLAS (AP) — Claims of sloppy and defective work at the Comanche Peak nuclear power plant "either have no merit or could not be substantiated," the Nuclear Regulatory Commission said in a report released Wednesday.

The panel said four investigators talked to George Clancy, the former quality assurance inspector who made the allegations. Clancy worked at the plant from November 1977 until last March for Brown & Root, which is building the plant.

In an article in the University of Texas at Arlington newspaper, Clancy had said there was "across-the-board shoddy workmanship, lack of supervision on Brown & Root's part and waste of construction materials."

The commission, however, said Clancy could not provide first-hand knowledge of uncorrected defects, except for waste of construction materials.

Corporation Announces $300 Million Loan From Saudi Arabia

NEW YORK (AP) — International Business Machines Corp. announced Thursday it has borrowed $300 million from the Saudi Arabian government.

The company said the funds will be used for construction of manufacturing facilities and to finance equipment IBM rents to its customers.

The loan came in the form of a private placement of notes paying 10.8 percent.

Demands For Loans Rose

Only Modestly Last Week

NEW YORK (AP) — Commercial and industrial demand for loans from major New York City banks rose by a modest $100 million in the latest reporting week, the New York Federal Reserve Bank said Thursday.

That was down sharply from the previous week, which was considered exceptional, but in line with modest increases for most periods in the past two months.

cent. They were bought by the Saudi Arabian Monetary Agency, the central bank of the oil-rich Middle Eastern nation.

An IBM spokesman said the Saudi agency was considered "just another source of funds for a debt offering of this size at favorable terms."

Saudi Arabia has long been known as one of the most conservative of the oil producing countries in terms of investments. It has invested heavily in U.S. government securities but has put relatively little money into corporate investments.

It was the second major financing of the last three months for IBM, which last October sold $1 billion in notes and bonds in a public offering.

IBM has long been considered one of the richest companies in the world, but this year it has developed a need for extra cash to finance development and production of a new generation of computers.

In addition, IBM's cash flow has been hurt by a trend toward renting, rather than buying, new computers. Prices have dropped on computers, and customers have feared being stuck with equipment worth less than they are paying for it.

IBM is still far from being out of cash. As of September 30, before the bond offering, it had $3.17 billion in cash and marketable securities on hand.

IBM said the notes sold to the Saudis will have an average maturity of 5 1/2 years and will all be paid off within seven years.

Exxon Corp. Completes Reliance Merger

NEW YORK (AP) — Exxon Corp., the world's largest oil company, on Thursday completed its merger with Reliance Electric Corp., the Cleveland-based manufacturer of electric motors.

The final cost of the merger was $1.242 billion, including lawyers' fees, an Exxon spokesman said. Earlier reports had valued the merger at about $1.17 billion.

Completion of the merger followed approval of the move by Reliance's shareholders. Exxon, through its Enco Inc. subsidiary, controlled stock entitled to 94 percent of the votes of Reliance shareholders.

Exxon said it acquired the balance of the outstanding Reliance shares for $72 each for common stock, $201.97 apiece

The 10.8 percent interest rate is substantially below what it would cost IBM to borrow from banks, where the prime rate is now 15 percent to 15 1/4 percent.

The private placement was IBM's first since 1967, when it placed $200 million of short-term notes with a group of banks.

The investment bankers for the note offering were Salomon Brothers and Merrill Lynch White Weld Capital Markets Group, the same firms which handled the $1 billion issue in October.

Exxon had sought the merger to further promote an energy-saving motor speed control device it had developed.

Exxon and Reliance said the motor maker would continue to operate under its current name and management as an Exxon subsidiary.

The Federal Trade Commission had tried to block the merger, saying the combination could lessen competition in the motor-drive industry. Until a pending FTC administrative case is resolved, Exxon is under order to keep Reliance's systems and drives group as a separate unit that could eventually be sold.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q. My niece was given securities some years ago. The securities are still registered in the "Uniform Gift to Minors Act" form — in an adult's name, as custodian for our niece.

My niece recently became 18, the legal age in our state. Is it necessary for the securities to be turned over to her, in her name alone with subsequent tax liability? Or can things be left as they are, until she reaches 21?

A. The best source I know of for this subject is the booklet: "Gifts of Securities or Money to Minors, A Guide to Laws in 50 States." Copies are available at $1 each from the Securities Industry Association, 20 Broad St., New York, N.Y. 10005.

The booklet states, emphatically, that the custodian must turn over to the minor all custodial property when the minor reaches the age of majority.

The age of majority is anywhere from 18 to 21 — depending upon the state. In some states, a young person becomes an adult for such purposes as voting and drinking at 18, 19 or 20 but does not reach majority for ownership of securities until 21.

Because this column appears in newspapers in many states around the country, there is not enough space here to list the age of majority for every state. Since you asked the question, however, it's only fair to say that in your state — California — it's 18.

Many of the IBM bonds had not been sold to investors before the Federal Reserve acted, and prices were cut to sell them. The underwriters said they lost about $10 million on the deal, the largest loss ever on a single bond issue.

I don't understand what you mean by the words "subsequent tax liability." The transfer of securities out of gift to minors custodian form into the young adult's name doesn't result in any taxes.

Those securities have belonged to your niece since the time they were given to her and registered in gift go minor act form. Any income — in dividends or interest — paid on the securities have also belonged to her.

The transfer will simply put securities she has owned all along directly in her name.

Q. Please define "ex-dividend." If I buy a stock on which a dividend is scheduled to be paid, when must I buy in order to get the dividend? If I want to sell the same stock and still get the dividend, when should I sell?

A. OK, one more time, on probably the least understood thing in the stock market and the most frequent question to this column.

In the simplest terms, "ex-dividend" means "without dividend."

In order to receive a dividend you must own the stock on which the dividend is scheduled to be paid before it goes ex-dividend.

So, if you BUY BEFORE the ex-dividend date, you'll get the dividend. But if you buy on or after the ex-dividend date you won't.

And, if you SELL ON OR AFTER the ex-dividend date, you'll get the dividend. But if you sell before the ex-dividend date you won't.

But it's usually a mistake to time your purchase or sale to get the dividend. When a stock goes ex-dividend, the amount of the dividend is automatically deducted from the market price of the stock.

Q. When I retired last July 1, I took my company pension as a lump-sum settlement of $43,000 and put that money into an Individual Retirement Account (IRA) rollover account, so that I would not have to pay income taxes on it at that time.

The IRA pays 8 percent annual interest. I am thinking about closing that account and putting the money in six-month savings certificates, which now pay close to 12 percent. I realize I would have to pay federal and state income taxes on the entire $43,000. But by using the 10-year-averaging method of reporting this, the tax bite — as I calculate it — would be around $8,000.

Is my idea a good one?
A. A much better idea would be to transfer your IRA account from where you have it to an IRA at a money market mutual fund. As I put this through the typewriter, many of the "money funds" are now yielding 12 percent or a shade more.

That's even better than you can get in six-month savings certificates.

Doyle welcomes written questions, but he will be able to provide answers only through the column.

Order Keeps Stock Broker From Selling

NEW YORK (AP) — An unregistered stock broker who allegedly made overblown promises to investors in a Texas natural gas company has agreed to a court order barring him from selling securities in the state.

Eugene Leonard Coleman, president of Petro Natural Resource Corp. of 211 West 56th St., consented Wednesday to the injunction granted by state Supreme Court Justice Orest V. Maresca.

The Manhattan man is accused of selling unregistered securities in the form of tax-sheltered limited partnership interests in the Navidad Natural Gas Program, a Texas company, from July to September, 1979.

Court papers allege that Coleman solicited some 300 investors and made false statements misrepresenting his prior experience in the field and the risk involved in the investment.

The prospectus of the Texas company outlines a "high degree of risk" which Coleman allegedly represented as "very low," according to Attorney General Robert Abrams.

Abrams said that through a joint investigation with the Securities and Exchange Commission, it was learned that Coleman ran his nearly two-year-old corporation out of a one-bedroom apartment and advertised that salesmen could make $50,000 during a single month in August.

The salesmen in turn lured investors by promising a 141 percent tax write off, according to Abrams.

Coleman is accused of violating federal and state laws regarding the sale of securities and the injunction sought to bar him from future violations.

12 Candidates Fielded For New Hampshire

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — Republican Sen. Robert Dole squeezed in just before Thursday's deadline for entering New Hampshire's presidential primary, bringing the field of candidates who will appear on the ballot to 12.

The final count was five Democrats and seven Republicans, who each came up with the required 1,000 signatures and $500 filing fee. The nation's earliest state primary is Feb. 26.

Dole's daughter, Robin, presented 1,500 signatures for the senator from Kansas at the secretary of state's office 20 minutes before the 4 p.m. CST deadline.

About 45 minutes earlier, Republican Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina became the only candidate to file for the vice presidential primary. His executive campaign director, David Stover of Raleigh, N.C., presented 1,200 signatures.

But frantic efforts to complete petitions for Mississippi Gov. Cliff Finch failed. The Democrat, who announced his candidacy for the presidential nomination Monday, said earlier he would seek write-in votes if he failed to get on the New Hampshire ballot. He could not be reached for comment after the filing period closed.

Also failing to make the deadline was California economist Benjamin Fernandez, who had said earlier that he would be among candidates.

Late Wednesday night, volunteers being paid $50 a day by Finch's organization were prodding people in shopping centers and on street corners to sign the nominating ballot.

Write-In Candidate

Early Thursday Finch said he didn't know how many signatures he had collected, but added, "If I don't get enough, I'll run as a write-in candidate."

Secretary of State William Gardner said Fernandez had sent in the $500, and "we'll return his money and he'll have to wait until next time to run up here."

The first dropout from New Hampshire's 1980 race was perennial contender Harold Stassen.

Although Stassen hired "volunteers" from an employment agency in a last-minute effort to collect signatures, the eight-time challenger said Wednesday his campaign efforts would be better spent in other primaries.

Just hours before the deadline, South Dakota Sen. Larry Pressler, 37, also dropped out of New Hampshire's Republican race.

Run In Florida

We have decided that the senator's initial primary effort should be in Florida," Paul Arneson, Pressler's national campaign director, said Thursday.

A New Hampshire Draft Ford Committee said the group would not present signature petitions to the secretary of state's office to enter former President Gerald R. Ford in the primary.

Instead, the committee said in a statement it was switching to a write-in campaign for Ford.

The first candidate to file on the final day was Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn.

President Carter, Sen. Edward M.

Kennedy, D-Mass., California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., Cleveland lawyer Richard Kay and former U.S. Labor Party chairman Lyndon LaRouche have filed on the Democratic side. On the GOP side of the ballot, former California Gov. Ronald Reagan, Rep. Philip Crane of Illinois, former CIA Director George Bush, former Texas Gov. John Connally, Rep. John Anderson of Illinois, Dole and Baker are the candidates.

World Population Grows 700 Million

WASHINGTON (AP) — The world's population grew by some 700 million people during the decade of the 1970s, it was asserted Thursday.

The Population Reference Bureau, Inc., a nonprofit research organization based in the nation's capital, said the population is expected to expand by an even greater margin in the 1980s. Bureau demographers estimate that 900 million people will be added to the world population in the decade beginning on Jan. 1.

Soviet Involvement Reported In Kabul

able violence and tortures from the bloody apparatus of Hafizullah Amin and his henchmen, those agents of U.S. imperialism."

He called on the Afghan people to "unite in the name of freedom, honor and conscience of the motherland."

"At last, after terrible sufferings and tribulations the day has come of freedom and rebirth of all the fraternal peoples of Afghanistan," the message said.

"Today is the breaking of the machine of tortures of Amin and his henchmen — wild butchers, usurpers and murderers of tens of thousands of our countrymen — fathers, mothers, brothers, sisters, sons and daughters, children and old people."

Karmal issued the message "on behalf of the Central Committee of the People's Democratic Party, the Revolutionary Council and the government of the Democratic Republic of Afghanistan," Tass said.

The statement listed among the victims of the Amin regime "virtuous clergy, believers, honest Moslems, Sunni and Shiite" in an apparent peace offering to Afghanistan's Moslems.

Better Politician

Diplomatic sources in New Delhi, India, said Karmal is a soft-spoken son of an army general, firm friend of the Soviet Union and a better politician than the man he ousted.

An Asian diplomat familiar with Afghanistan's politics said Karmal, who is in his 50s, is closer to Soviet leaders than his predecessor but probably would be more willing to modify the Marxist economics Amin was forcing on the country.

Anti-communist Moslems have been fighting government and Soviet forces, now said by Washington sources number more than 10,000.

Sources in Washington, Moscow and New Delhi say the Soviet Union engineered the coup because of unpublicized disagreements with Amin.

Role In Coups

Thursday's coup would be Afghanistan's fourth since 1973 and Karmal has had a role in all of them. He was known to diplomats as a Marxist in 1966, when as a member of the Afghanistan parliament he was involved in a fight that landed him in the hospital.

His Parch Party was the only Afghan Marxist group that supported the 1973 overthrow of King Zahir Shah by non-aligned President Mohammed Daoud, but his followers joined forces with Marxist Nur Mohammed Taraki, when Daoud banned political parties in 1977.

Taraki and Karmal formed the underground Democratic Khalq Party, a pro-Moscow Marxist-Leninist group whose military commissar, Amin, successfully recruited key elements of the armed forces. These officers led the April, 1978 coup, which apparently was a response to Daoud's arrest of Taraki, Karmal, Amin and other Khalq leaders who protested the killing of a party official.

Karmal served two months as vice president and deputy prime minister under Taraki, who sent him to Prague as ambassador to Czechoslovakia in July, 1978. The Taraki regime was marked by numerous purges.

Several weeks later, Karmal and other ambassadors were ordered home, apparently to face arrest and trial. None returned and Karmal was given asylum in Czechoslovakia, diplomatic sources said.

The out-of-favor Afghans apparently preferred comfortable exile in East Europe where the Soviets considered them a possible second string to replace the Kabul leadership, discredited by mass arrests, poorly implemented reforms and a harsh counter-insurgency campaign, diplomatic sources said.

Karmal was present in Moscow at a meeting between Taraki and Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev, according to a diplomatic report in New Delhi. This was in September, shortly before Taraki was shot and killed in Kabul and replaced by Amin.

Garbage Gift Arrest Produces Hate Mail

CHERAW, S.C. (AP) — Authorities have received a barrage of hate mail and telephone calls from people protesting the arrest of a trash collector who took discarded items from a dump to use as Christmas gifts for his family.

But County Administrator Clayton Caldwell said Thursday he has no intention of dropping the case against Raymond L. Sansbury Jr., a $112-a-week garbage truck driver and the father of seven children.

"The whole thing was to point me and Chesterfield County as a bunch of Scrooges," Caldwell said of news accounts. "I'm amazed that the whole country would believe a twisted, blown-up story like that."

Sansbury was arrested on Dec. 19 after a landfill operator reported seeing him take discarded clothing from a dump here.

A hearing originally scheduled for Thursday was delayed until Jan. 24 at the request of Sansbury's attorney. He faces a maximum penalty of a $100 fine or 30 days in jail on a misdemeanor charge of trespassing.

State law prohibits the taking of items from a landfill because of the danger from heavy machinery and other health hazards.

Since his arrest, Sansbury and his family have received clothes, toys and an estimated $5,000 in cash, checks and money orders. And the packages and letters were still arriving Thursday at their four-room clapboard house in Darlington, S.C.

Chesterfield County area officials — some of whom are not involved in the case — are also getting a response.

"I've got 27 letters laying here on my desk ... from all over the United States," said Cheraw Police Chief O.G. Campbell, although county, and not city, officials are handling the case.

Some letters contained money, about $30 in all, for the Sansburys.

"Several of them say I won the 'Scrooge of the Year Award,'" he said. One, from Boston, contained a poem that began, "You Southern rednecks are all the same." Another read, "I am originally from the South, and I hope I never have to come back."

Dispatcher B.J. Allman at the sheriff's department said, "We have been swamped by literally hundreds of calls, most of them belligerent."

"They would say, 'Who's this?' ... (and) just right off they would start cursing," Allman said.

Caldwell said many news accounts failed to mention a key part of the county's version of the incident, that Sansbury was asked to leave the landfill and was arrested when he refused.

Sansbury said earlier that he asked the landfill operator if he could have the items. "He shrugged his shoulders and sort of shook his head. I thought that meant 'yes,'" Sansbury said. "He didn't tell me I had to put them back."

quoted as saying he did not think much progress could be made before the Iranian presidential elections set for next month. "In any case it will be very difficult."

In Washington, the State Department had no comment on Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's latest prediction of war between the United States and Iran.

In a speech Wednesday, Khomeini said, "Now we are at war, a political and economic war. It is likely that the military war will also come along."

An Iranian militant spokesman, meanwhile, added a new figure to a discrepancy over the number of American hostages seen by the clergymen — 43 — and the 50 persons the State Department says are being held.

The spokesman told the English-language newspaper Tehran Times that 49 hostages are being held, but some of them did not want to attend Christmas services conducted by the visiting clergymen and were not seen by them.

Another militant, reached by telephone at the embassy and asked to confirm the newspaper report said, "We cannot at present give out any information on the number of hostages." However, he did say some of the captives did not attend the Christmas services.

Meanwhile, Iran reported the second heavy-armorment cross-border attack by Iraq in two weeks.

The official news agency Pars said Iraqi forces firing mortars and heavy artillery attacked an Iranian border post near Qasr-e Shirin early Thursday.

Border incidents are reported frequently between the two countries and relations often are strained. Iran claimed Dec. 14 that Iraqi forces firing heavy artillery attacked an Iranian border post, but withdrew within 15 minutes. An Iraqi official called the report "fabricated and untrue."

The British Embassy, like embassies of other Security Council member nations, began to cut back its embassy staff. It is withdrawing all but seven of its already drastically reduced British staff, citing reduced workload as the reason.

Bishop Says Hostages Relaxed But Confused

LONDON (AP) — An American bishop who visited the hostages at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran said Thursday they seemed "relaxed and in very good spirits," but "confused about what is happening and when they might get out."

Roman Catholic Auxiliary Bishop Thomas J. Gumbleton of Detroit spoke to reporters at Heathrow Airport during a five-hour stopover on the way back to the United States with two Protestant colleagues, the Revs. William Sloane of Princeton, N.J., and William Howard Coffin Jr. of New York.

The three conducted Christmas services for the hostages, held by Moslem militants since the embassy was seized Nov. 4.

"The two groups that I saw seemed relaxed and in very good spirits," Gumbleton said before flying to New York with the other clergymen. "But they were confused about what is happening and when they might get out. They did not appear to be under any stress."

The bishop said he spoke at length with the Iranians holding the hostages and found the "students are very firm" in their demand for the extradition of deposed Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, now in Panama.

"They want the shah back and they seem determined that they are going to hold the hostages until they get him back," Gumbleton said.

But he added "They are super-conscious about protecting the hostages because they know that if anything happens to them they will be in a bad position." He did not elaborate.

Commenting on the discrepancies in the number of hostages held at the embassy, the bishop said: "We did not have any list when we went in and we did not know precisely how many there were."

"I've never heard an official number anywhere and as far as I'm concerned we only saw 43 people. We identified 43 people definitely, and on the basis of the names we have the State Department should be able to work out who is there."

U.S. officials previously reported that 50 hostages are being held.

The three clergymen brought out back individual messages for the families of many of the hostages in the United States.

"They are just intimate greetings and personal messages that anyone would give to a mother, father, husband or wife," Gumbleton said.

Jail Fire Kills 10 In South Carolina

LANCASTER S.C. (AP) — A fire broke out Thursday night on the top floor of the Lancaster County jail, killing 10 inmates and injuring four other persons, authorities said.

Deace Jones, president of Elliott White Springs Memorial Hospital, said the 10 prisoners were dead on arrival at the hospital.

A firefighter and an inmate were hospitalized in stable condition, Jones said, and a second firefighter and a policeman were treated at the hospital for injuries suffered in the fire.

The blaze began at about 6 p.m. on the top floor of the historic brick building. By 7:30 p.m., it was believed that everyone had been evacuated, a Lancaster County sheriff's deputy said.

Officials said the dozen other jail inmates were being held outside the building in this central South Carolina community about 50 miles north of Columbia.

Diplomat Staff Cut Back In El Salvador

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration has cut back the U.S. diplomatic staff in El Salvador, it was confirmed Thursday.

State Department officials, declining to be identified, said the staff reduction was not intended to show displeasure with the new Salvadorean junta. The United States has been supportive of that group since it seized power on Oct. 15.

Before and after the coup, however, El Salvador has been plagued by killings and terrorism by extremists of both the right and left.

The owner of a Lubbock motel told police Thursday that someone had forced his way into several rooms and had stolen four portable color television sets valued at $2,000.

John Paul Batrice, owner of the Johnson House Motel at 4801 Ave. Q, told officers that between 3:30 a.m. and 7 a.m. Thursday, someone used a screw driver-like tool to pry open the doors to six rooms and remove the television sets from four of the rooms.

Batrice said about 2:15 a.m. an alarm sounded in one of the rooms, but after two checks of the room proved fruitless, the alarm system was turned off.

Minimum Hourly Wage Hike To Raise Five Million Salaries

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some 5 million low-paid workers will get fatter paychecks beginning in January, thanks to a rise in the minimum wage scale that was authorized by Congress in 1977.

Effective Jan. 1, the wage goes up to $3.10 an hour.

The Labor Department reminded employers Thursday that those who work for the minimum wage, currently $2.90 an hour, will be entitled to a raise as a result of the law.

Based on a regular 40-hour week, the change means a worker's weekly pay would rise from $116 to $124. The law requires workers to be paid at Congress amended the Fair Labor Standards Act to raise the wage floor in four annual steps that began in 1978. The last increase occurs on Jan. 1, 1981, when the minimum wage rises to $3.35 an hour.

Prior to the congressional action of 1977, the minimum wage was $2.30 an hour.

Business groups had pressed Congress and the Carter administration early this year to defer the scheduled increases on the grounds that they would worsen inflation, which currently is running at a 13 percent annual rate.

President Carter, after giving the proposal consideration, decided against asking Congress for such a delay.

Labor Secretary Ray Marshall, who opposed delaying the increases, said Thursday the minimum wage law continues to protect workers at the low end of the wage scale by providing a minimum standard of living and also by preventing these workers from shouldering an unfair burden in the fight against inflation.

Small businesses with annual gross sales of less than $275,000 do not have to pay the minimum wage to their employees. Next July 1, however, the gross sales exemption figure rises to $325,000.

For employees who receive tips, the law will allow less of the tips to be counted toward the employees' hourly wages beginning Jan. 1. The percentage of a tip that can be counted toward the minimum wage will decline from a current 45 percent to 40 percent, with the employer required to make up the difference in direct wages. A tipped employee is defined as someone who regularly earns more than $30 a month in tips.

Confessed Killer Says Casual Chat Led To Spree Of Rape-Murders

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Kenneth Bianchi, who confessed to five of the Hillside Strangler killings, has told psychiatrists that the series of rape-murders that stymied authorities for more than a year originated in a casual conversation with his cousin, Angelo Buono.

"I asked Angelo if he ever killed anybody," said Bianchi, supposedly under hypnosis. "He said, 'I don't know, why do you want to know?'"

"I said, 'Well what does it feel like?'" He said, "I don't know." I said, "Well, we should find out some time." He said,

Inmate's Injuries To Draw Scrutiny

AUSTIN (AP) — FBI officials have confirmed they have begun a preliminary investigation into injuries suffered by Travis County Jail inmate Larry Jones.

Jones, 28, has been in Brackennridge Hospital for two weeks with a broken vertebra in his neck.

He told his relatives and a lawyer he was injured in a fight with jail guards after witnessing or taking part in a heroin transaction in jail — a charge Sheriff Raymond Frank and the jail director have denied.

"Sure, OK." And we did." The account of the conversation and other details of the grisly 1977-78 slayings first emerged in videotaped interviews with Bianchi, who sometimes identified himself as "Steve Walker," purportedly a second personality.

Portions of the tapes were released Wednesday on Los Angeles radio station KNX and television stations KNXT and KNBC. Excerpts were also published in Thursday's editions of the Los Angeles Times.

Buono, a Glendale automobile upholsterer, has pleaded innocent to murder charges in the 10 Hillside Strangler killings and to charges of pumping, pandering and extortion.

Buono's attorneys have challenged Bianchi's credibility. They point out that only two of the six psychiatrists who examined Bianchi in Bellingham, Wash., believe he is a genuine multiple personality. Two say he is faking and the other two are undecided.

Some 56 hours of interviews were taped over a six-month period in Bellingham, where Bianchi was arrested last Jan. 12 in the murders of two Western Washington University coeds.

In the early sessions, a soft-spoken and polite Bianchi disclaimed any knowledge of the killings. But "Steve" boasted of them in harsh, rapid and often profane words.

"What a team we were," he said of himself and Buono. "Steve" said the pair alternated at pulling cords around the victims' necks.

Asked why Buono took part in the murders, "Steve" replied, "He was just an easy guy to get with the program, you know. I gave him the idea and he went with it all the way."

"He's my kind of person. We should have more people like that in this world and we'd have less problems."

In some interviews, a third personality named "Billy" emerged and talked about the activities of Buono and "Steve."

About the end of April, Bianchi said he started remembering the killings without hypnosis. He later pleaded guilty to five of them and, in return for not receiving the death penalty, agreed to testify against his cousin.

Lubbock Man Sought In False ID Case

By JEFF McCASLIN
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Lubbock police Thursday were searching for a 19-year-old city man wanted for allegedly using the birth records of a dead man to obtain a driver's license, an ID card and open a checking account at a local bank.

Michael Alan Moore of 5520 58th St., Apt. 219, has been charged with tampering with government records for allegedly using the name of 24-year-old Carroll Landon Peters to get the license, identification card and open the account, according to police detective Tommy Wilbanks.

Peters was killed in a truck accident near Fort Stockton Oct. 28.

The charge of tampering with government records is a third degree felony and could result in a penitentiary sentence of from two to 10 years and/or a fine of $5,000, according to a spokesman with the criminal district attorney's office. The spokesman said the punishment could be enhanced if the person accused has a prior conviction record.

The case was brought to the attention of authorities on Dec. 18, when Peters' mother, Mrs. Glenn Peters, was called by the Merchants Check Alert about several checks that had been written and signed in her son's name. There were un-sufficient funds in the account at the time.

Mrs. Peters told Merchants' Check Alert that her son had been killed in a truck accident Oct. 28 about 9.5 miles north of Fort Stockton. She told Merchants' Check Alert that her son didn't even have an account at Southwest Lubbock National Bank.

Mrs. Peters called police and authorinumber. On Nov. 13, a person who authorities said was later positively identified as Moore went to the Department of Public Safety office in Lubbock to apply for a Texas Identification card, which he received because he was holding a birth certificate and Social Security number.

The next day, Nov. 14, Moore is alleged to have opened a checking account from Merchants Check Alert to Mrs. Peters, Wilbanks contacted Sgt. D.L. Buckner of the Department of Public Safety drivers license division and a computer check on the Texas Identification card and the drivers license was sent through the computer in Austin.

Wilbanks said a human error in Austin threw authorities off the track momentarily, because a computer printout showed the person who received the ID card to be a female.

On Dec. 19, after authorities learned of the error and it was corrected, Wilbanks said he went to the address listed on the checks, found Moore living there, and asked him to come to the police department, where Moore voluntarily took a DPS writing test and was fingerprinted.

On Dec. 21, with the help of DPS writing test, also known as the London Letter, and computer checks through Austin, authorities said they were able to make a positive identification of Moore and a warrant was issued for his arrest.

Wilbanks said a nationwide alert is out on Moore, who told Wilbanks at their last meeting that he might be going to Oregon to spend the Christmas holidays.

When contacted by The Avalanche-Journal, Carroll Peters mother said she was quite upset about someone using her son's name to forge checks and said she wanted the person caught and punished.

ties began checking into the case that unfolded a month later in the charge against Moore.

Here is a synopsis of what authorities believe happened:

When Carroll Landon Peters was burned to death in the truck accident Oct. 28 near Fort Stockton, someone lifted Peters' identification cards at the scene of the mishap. From Peters' IDs, that person learned he was a native of Lamesa, and went to the district clerk's office in Dawson County to obtain Peters' birth certificate and Social Security

Utilities Company Studying Coal Plant

DALLAS (AP) — Texas Utilities Co. sees the day when Texas' supplies of petroleum, natural gas and coal may not be enough for the state known for its energy production.

So the company is studying the feasibility of building a power plant using coal "imported" from strip mines in Rocky Mountain states.

Some Texas electric companies already are importing coal from the area, but have become embroiled in court cases and regulatory disputes from the rapidly rising cost of rail transportation.

Texas Utilities hopes to bypass part of that problem by building a plant as close to the Rockies as possible — in Ward County, just west of Midland-Odessa in the heart of oil country.

Although the company has huge reserves of lignite in East Texas, officials say that supply may not be enough in the late 1980s.

"We already have a considerable amount of lignite committed to other plants," said Ray Ward of Dallas Power & Light, a Texas Utilities subsidiary. "In the long range, you just have to be prepared."

While figures now show electricity from out-of-state coal is more expensive than lignite or nuclear power now, Ward said that may not hold true in another decade.

And unlike other companies, Texas Utilities has one built-in supplier in Chaco Energy Co. of Albuquerque, N.M., a Texas Utilities subsidiary.

Chaco hopes to begin mining at one site in 1983, and is obtaining permits for another site, said president B.G. Bradley.

Eventually, Chaco expects to mine 12 million tons of coal a year — enough for three or four large power plants.

But Bradley said Chaco would not necessarily sell coal to Texas Utilities, and Texas Utilities officials say they may not buy coal from Chaco.

The one problem Ward County may present is its water supply. The size of the plant — and whether the plant would even be feasible — will depend on the amount of water available, Ward said.

Two companies will begin feasibility studies on the water supply and other environmental factors in January, he said.

A problem Texas Utilities apparently won't have is opposition from residents.

Officials in Monahans, the county seat with a population of 8,000, say they hope the plant is built in Ward County.

"I'd like to see it," said Sheriff John T. Ashcraft. "There'll be jobs... and a lot of electricity."

Ashcraft isn't worried about pollution, either. "I'll bet they've got ways to keep it from polluting the air," he said. Mayor Richard Hoyer said the energy crisis is very real and he sees coal as the answer.

"As their mayor, I'm very definitely for it in every way," he said. "The only chance I see is for us to convert to coal in this country. This town is surrounded by 10,000 producing oil wells and the product is going down. It is not going up."

"I think it is ridiculous that the electric customers of this state have to pay a higher electric bill because of the pollution requirements that are put on the coal-fired plants," he added.

Dick Aker, news director of radio station KVPM, said response to the station's reports on the plant have been positive.

"What little discussion I've heard is they are all for it," he said.

Ward was pleased, but not surprised at the residents' reaction.

"Opposition to new power plants is more unusual," Ward said. "They are pretty much one industry out there with the petroleum. The diversification would help their economy. I think it would be welcomed because of the new families and money that it would bring to the town."

Document Asks Denial Of Damages

By LISA PAIKOWSKI
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The Lubbock Civil Liberties Union should be denied money damages requested in its suit against Lubbock public schools because all LCLU members have not been injured by alleged school officials' actions, school attorneys state in a document filed in federal court.

The document, which includes a statement by school district superintendent Ed Irons, supports the school district's earlier motion to deny the LCLU approximately $115,000 in compensatory and exemplary damages.

After that motion was filed, LCLU attorneys submitted a brief reasserting its right to the damages requested.

The LCLU civil rights lawsuit, brought against the schools in September, seeks a ban on all forms of religious exercises in the schools.

The plaintiffs also ask for $35,000 in damages from the superintendent and board of trustees as a body and $10,001 from each defendant. School attorneys contend the plaintiffs lack the standing in court to receive money damages because "an action for damages requires individualized proof."

The schools' document contends that all members of the LCLU have not been injured and that injuries are not shared by each of the members equally as claimed by the plaintiff in its suit.

In support of their contention, school attorneys also submitted a statement by Irons saying that prayers and Bible readings are not conducted in all schools in the district.

Irons states that in interviews with school principals and teachers at all grade levels, he was told that some schools have never conducted such exercises and that "there are many classes where no prayer or Bible reading occur in schools where prayer and Bible reading have taken place in the past."

Attorneys contend, "Since it is almost certain that some children of the individual members of the plaintiff association have attended schools where no religious activities have been carried out, the claim that all of its members share injury in equal degree cannot be substantiated."

"In fact, it is very possible that many members of the plaintiff association have no children attending any schools within the defendant school district," the document adds.

School attorneys acknowledge that the LCLU could have the standing to sue for monetary damages for injuries suffered by the association itself "as an entity."

But they state that "the complaint of the plaintiff does not set forth any pleadings alleging that the association itself has been injured by the activities of the defendants."

The document adds that the individual participation of each injured party is "indispensable to the proper resolution of this cause" and that the school district "can not be expected to defend against damage claims when it does not even know who the injured parties are."

Figures Show Unemployment Holding Steady

Unemployment in the Lubbock area held steady at an even 3 percent for the period between mid-October and mid-November, the Texas Employment Commission reported Thursday.

The latest figures, well below the national average, show a slight improvement over the 3.3 percent noted here in November 1978.

TEC officials said they expect the rate will remain about the same for the remainder of the year.

Student At Meadow Wins Annual Design Contest

By RAYNIE HARDESTY
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A young man attending Meadow High School has won $500 worth of home furnishings from Montgomery Ward as a regional winner of the annual Design-Your-Room contest, co-sponsored by Co-Ed magazine and the department store.

Danny Gilliam, 16, is one of four regional winners selected from among 2,000 entrants across the nation for a design that incorporated "original ideas, and accommodations for present and future needs, interests and tastes."

Although the Meadow sophomore says he doesn't know exactly how he came up with the idea for his entry, "Arizona Desert," he said it took him about a month and a half to come up with a final draft.

"I just did it the way I wanted it done and the way I thought it should be," he said. "I named it after I designed it."

The young man added that many of his ideas came "from pictures of furniture I'd seen and always wanted."

Gilliam's room features a rustic look for a casual lifestyle. It uses adaptable furnishings, such as a combination bench/storage chest. The item can provide extra seating and storage as well as an in-the-closet dressing and shelf area, combined with a hanging lamp and wicker stool.

After drawing his room to scale, designing it and adding versatile furniture, Gilliam felt confident he would win. "I felt like I would win," he said, adding that his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Virgil R. Gilliam, remained skeptical until it was announced that their son had won.

Kathy Dyer, a Meadow home economics teacher who encouraged Gilliam to enter the contest, will receive $300 worth of home furnishings for her classroom.

The youth, who said he likes to be creative with his hands, also participates in high school plays and is manager of the high school's basketball team.

The other three regional winners selected from across the nation in the contest are Jennifer Lynn Merriman of Okanogan, Wash., Mary Kay Fazzino of Houston, Cindy Moling of Madison, Wis., and Patti McCarthy of Stratford, Conn.

The first place winner of the contest is 14-year-old Debbie Davenport.

Hints From Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

You asked readers to keep sending in hints for the handicapped. Here are a few that we use for my husband. I hope they will help someone else:

At the dining table, a chair with wheels makes it much easier to get the chair "legs" under the table.

Place a small dinner bell at bedside, next to the chair where a handicapped person sits, and in the bathroom too.

Put a rail around the "john." It helps them to pull themselves up.

Install a lift chair in the bath tub. It's handy if you don't have someone to help you.

My husband couldn't take the full force of the shower so we got a hand spray and hooked it to the faucet in the tub.

Another important thing: A handicapped person should have a good, comfortable chair to sit in during the day.

A good gadget is a bike for the handicapped that hooks onto a chair, so they can get the exercise that's needed daily.

A hand exerciser for a paralyzed hand is excellent too as is a homemade pulley to pull and exercise arms.

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

Women! You say you hate crowds? You say you yearn to have time for yourself to get in touch with your feelings?

You say there are always kids underfoot and demanding husbands and you never have the house to yourself?

Have I got a solution for you. Take down the Christ mas tree.

You'll never know what isolation is until you stand in the middle of wall-to-wall pine needles and announce, "This tree has to go."

Your husband will return to work two days early. The children will return library books, visit a shut-in, get a paper route, or sign up for a meat-packing plant tour. The dog will go outside and shiver for four hours.

It's the same every year. I stand it as long as I can. Then one day I walk across the floor and realize that a careless spark from my knees rubbing together could send the entire living room up in flames.

It's amazing how, in just one short week, a Christmas tree can go from a "religious experience" to the "pits."

Those soft green branches that you buried your face in for the pine scent are now Acupuncture City. The needles that turned brown and fell to the carpet went to that big forest in the sky...taking the smoking vacuum cleaner with them.

The bird that chirped when you plugged it in, giving a light-hearted sound to Christmas, was choked to death by a mob during the first eight hours. What is left of it hangs limply from the branches, strangled by its own plug.

The cranberries and the popcorn have dropped collectively into the carpet where they take root and will continue to reproduce themselves into the shag long into summer.

The string of lights that your husband carefully placed on each bough now has no beginning or end. It has simply lost its plug and fused itself into one long strand.

Nothing comes off as easy as it went on. Even the little hooks on the bulbs cling to the branches while you are left with a hookless bulb in your hand.

Suddenly, there is a crunch under your foot. It's a pulverized candy cane. From out of the woodwork come five people all wanting a share of it.

They don't have to know it's five years old.

DEAR HELOISE:

To make chocolate chip cookies, follow the recipe on the package only add one half the chips called for instead of the full amount. (This can be done with any size package.)

I asked my kids which they'd rather have — cookies once every couple of months with lots of chips or oftener with fewer chips. I'm sure you guessed their choice!

With the cost of "real chocolate" chips, this is a surefire way to please your children and your budget at the same time.

In our area, we have many fresh produce-natural food stores. At one of them, I found a one-pound package of miniature chocolate chips ("real chocolate"). I got double batches from those at one sixth the cost of "full-size" chips. — S Nelson

Working Wives Studied

By JOY STILLEY

NEW YORK (AP) — The steadily growing number of wives who work is changing life in America, affecting not just women but also men, the family, and the business world itself, says writer and lecturer Caroline Bird.

Not only are more than half of married women in the work force, but 45 percent of mothers of preschool children are working, "and that's an impressive statistic," adds Miss Bird, whose most recent book, "The Two-Paycheck Marriage," examines its impact on individuals and on society as a whole.

"These young mothers are apt to be college educated, and education is a bet-ter prediction of whether a wife will work than the presence of small children," the author explained in an interview.

It isn't that the women's movement has made wives discontented with being home, she says, but rather that the jobs are there — especially jobs in the area of health, education and welfare, which used to be performed by mothers at home and which have gradually become outside jobs.

"Women did at home what's now done by restaurants, hotels, hospitals, social agencies, the garment industry, laundries," Miss Bird enumerates. "The exodus from home to paid employment has been going on for 150 years, and there's no reason why it won't continue to go on."

"Today's volunteer work is always the paid employment of the future," says Miss Bird, who claims the women's movement is the consequence of the increase in the employment of women, not the cause of it.

"Women go to work earlier, stay longer, come back sooner after their children are born. An increasing number of women see the need for the goals of the women's rights movement — equality in the workplace — where they didn't before."

"The women's movement is important only because it articulates what women who now work and expect to work all their lives feel," she says.

Miss Bird, who has written such previous best sellers as "The Invisible Scar" about the Depression and "Born Female," researched her current book for several years, drawing on material that included matching questionnaires filled out by husbands and wives, interviews, and discussions following her college lectures.

To Your Good Health

By PAUL DONOHUE, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I awoke one morning with a chest pain. It was diagnosed as a collapsed lung. I was hospitalized for a day, then released. I was given oxygen at the hospital. X-rays later showed my lungs OK. My questions:

I had no prior chest injuries, so how can a lung just collapse? Also, I sleep on that side (where the pain was). Does that have anything to do with the problem? Finally, I continue to have discomfort. Should I after six months? — M.S.

It will help to know how a lung collapses. A frequent cause is "spontaneous pneumothorax."

The lung is surrounded by a two-layered envelope. You can think of it as a two-layered "baggie." It's called the "pleura" (PLOOR-uh). The space between its layers is normally air-free, what you would call a vacuum. It does act as a kind of "vacuum seal" for the lung, allowing it to expand easily.

Now imagine pushing your fist into this vacuum space. Your lung is the fist. If there is a weak spot air will escape from the lung into the vacuum space. The seal is broken and the lung begins collapsing. In fact, a variation of this process is used by doctors to purposely collapse a lung.

The most common medical cause is the bursting of a tiny air-filled blister that might be on the lung surface. One might have this potential trouble spot for years with little discomfort — until the bubble bursts.

I'm not sure if this is what caused your problem, but it is a likely explanation. Sleeping on the side has nothing to do with it.

Pneumothorax—responds well when air is removed from the pleural space so that the lung can re-expand to normal. Your discomfort may persist until the pleura has healed completely. However, the condition can recur, so I'd say that if you have pain after six months you should report it and be re-examined.

CONFIDENTIAL TO WORRIED —

The rubbing alcohol you used when you were 18 most likely did not do any permanent damage to the lining of your uterus. Only a small amount would have gotten to the uterus. I don't believe that is contributing to your present problems of infertility. To find out the cause for this, both you and your husband need to be examined. You don't need to go into all past details with your doctor. You could mention that as a teen-ager you inadvertently took a douche with the rubbing alcohol.

Dear Dr. Donohue: My husband and I are trying to start a family. My doctor told me to have relations every day from day 10 to day 20 of my cycle. I am very regular.

We did that and then some. We failed. I was wondering if it is possible that we had relations too often. I wonder if by the time I was fertile his sperm was less potent. Is that possible? — R.M.

If your husband's sperm count were on the low side, frequent intercourse might diminish the numbers of sperm. If his sperm count is normal, frequent relations should not affect fertility.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I'm 55 and have the problem of large protruding veins in my hands. I believe they are caused by hard work, but is there anything such as exercise to help the condition. — Mrs. R.F.M.

Well, if hard work caused them to be big (which it might) exercise would not help reverse the situation. Keeping the hands elevated whenever possible might, just as leg elevation would for varicose veins in the legs.

I suspect that, like most people with large hand veins, it is something you inherited in your genes. With loss of tissue as one ages, the veins in the hands appear more prominent.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am 31 and have an unusual problem, an uncontrollable urge to eat raw sugar. I was wondering if this could mean a deficiency in my diet. — Mrs. M.W.

I suggest you (1) have a physical examination, and (2) if that is OK and if you are unable to break your habit on your own, seek psychiatric attention.

Compulsive sugar eating does not, however, indicate low blood sugar or diabetes, if that is why you are concerned.

Emphysema can be controlled. To learn how to live with this serious lung problem, write to Dr. Donohue for a copy of his booklet on "How to Control Emphysema," P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611. Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: This is a difficult letter to write, but I have no one else to turn to.

Several years ago I had an abortion and have paid a high price in guilt. Now I am faced with a new horror. I recently discovered that according to canon law a Catholic is excommunicated for having an abortion.

After the operation I finally got up the courage to go to confession. I received a lecture and the deserved penance. I was not told, however, about the law concerning excommunication.

Please, Ann, check this out for me and let me know as soon as possible. I am so ashamed I can't bear to sign any kind of name. — From Pennsylvania

Dear Pennsylvania: To the rescue, Father Ted Hesburgh, that great president of the University of Notre Dame! He said: "The lady has no problem. One cannot incur a penalty, according to church law, unless one knew the penalty when he or she committed the sin. In any event, since the woman has already been to confession, there is nothing to worry about."

Dear Ann Landers. The woman next door had surgery three weeks ago. She came home from the hospital after 10 days. "Mrs. K" never told anyone what the operation was for, but we all think she had a hysterectomy.

The woman's doctor has a fine reputation in the community — or I should say, "he HAD" a fine reputation until recently.

His car has been parked in front of "Mrs. K's" house four different times since she came home from the hospital. We're wondering if this kind of attention is necessary. It was my impression that most patients go to the physician's office for their check-ups.

If nothing out of the way is going on, both the woman and her doctor are letting themselves in for a lot of loose talk. Should I speak to my neighbor, as a friend, and tell her what is being whispered around town? I'm sure if she knew she would arrange to see the doctor at his office and cut down on the gossip. — Concerned Person

Dear Concerned: I'm all for cutting down on gossip. Why don't you start with yourself, and mind your own business?

Dear Ann Landers: Recently you had a letter in your column about a woman who got roaring drunk on one drink. The person who wrote to you said, "I don't understand it."

Well, I understand it because the same thing used to happen to me. Finally I went to a doctor and discovered that my system simply cannot tolerate stimulants in any form. This means no coffee, tea or cokes — let alone alcohol.

Since I have learned to stick with fruit juices at cocktail parties and refuse wine at dinners it has made a tremendous difference in my life. I am sure everyone who saw me after one drink thought I was a lush.

Your column has helped so many people — including me. Keep up the good work. — Your Friend In Scottsdale

Dear Friend: Thanks for the input, as well as the warm compliment. I hope the readers who see themselves in your letter will do as you did — get a medical checkup and find out if perhaps they belong on the same wagon.

Photoflood Bulbs Boost Level Of Light In Room

By SANDY COTTON
Associated Press Writer

So you've taken a picture by the light of a match. Big deal! Also ... big grain, high contrast, fuzziness caused by camera movement or subject movement, or your inability to focus in the dim light.

Oh, maybe you were lucky and did get a sharp picture. And, maybe, it was interesting, different, unusual. But why is it that so many people today are taking pictures in very dim light, settling for just getting an image on film when they could, with very little effort, get well exposed pictures?

Why rely on lenses that are less sharp when wide open, or forced development of high-speed films that result in grainy pictures? Are we getting lazier or have we forgotten a few of the tricks of yesteryear?

Not so many years ago press photographers carried a large case containing a Speed Graphic camera, film packs or cut film holders, a battery-powered flash unit with plenty of flash bulbs, extra extension flash units, an extra lens or two and a focusing cloth. A few smart ones also carried with them two or three 250-watt photoflood bulbs. The case, when loaded, could weigh as much as 35 to 40 pounds.

Today's photographer carries two or three 35mm cameras, lenses, a small strobe unit or two and, if he's smart, a few photoflood bulbs. His bag weighs in at around 10 to 15 pounds, a fraction of what his brother-in-arms carried only a couple of decades ago.

Consider that the average amateur photographer carries even less! Then why should another pound of equipment be such a big headache? Or is it that everyone has become so brainwashed with the idea of taking pictures in natural light, no matter how bad, that quality has been kicked out the window?

Why not boost the light level in a room with photofloods?

Try screwing two or three of these into the sockets of table lamps or overhead lights. It can boost the light level by two or three stops.

If you need more light than that there are adapters on the market that screw into a regular lamp socket into which you can plug a small 650-watt quartzlite. That will boost the light level another stop or two.

Porter's Camera store, P.O. Box 628, Cedar Falls, Iowa, 50613, lists such an adapter in its latest catalog for $12.50, if you are unable to get one through your local electrical store.

Just in case there are no lamps available in a room, make your own. Make up a light socket attached to a spring clamp that can be attached to something high, such as the top of a door. I don't use reflectors. I like the light to scatter evenly around the room.

Any photoflood or quartzlite will do when shooting black and white film. If you want to shoot color, make sure you're using the right lamp and the right film. Each lamp has a color temperature rating, called kelvin. Type B tungsten color film needs a lamp with a 3200K rating.

Now, if you're one of those people with an expensive camera and big lenses, try going the photoflood or quartzlite route: switch to a slower film and see how much sharper your pictures are. Stop playing with matches. You might start a fire.

Victoria Doll Reminiscent Of Days Gone By

The Victorian era seems especially popular with the designers of today. In the time of Victoria, America changed from a rough agricultural country to one of great industrial powers with many families experiencing, for the first time, new affluence and leisure time. The women of the household took advantage of this new-found leisure and crafted all manner of elegant hand-made items for their homes and families.

In the Victorian era, a proper household contained a suitable supply of embroidered, knitted, and crocheted doilies, tablecloths, bedcovers and such. Homes were decorated to the inch with delicate handwork of all types, crafted in many different techniques.

Although the key to today's contemporary decor is a bold, clean look with large, open spaces, you can still capture a bit of the past with a few strategically placed accessories. Display a favorite family photograph in an elegantly embroidered or needlepoint frame. Hang a vintage quilt as an innovative wall hanging. Group a collection of antique toys, trinkets, or photographs on an occasional table for a nostalgic display.

Reminiscent of those days gone by, the Victoria doll shown here is a unique decorating accessory. Or you can make this 22-inch doll as a treasured gift for a special child.

This old-fashioned doll is a snap to make. Simply cut out the basic body and dress pieces from cotton fabrics and

Landscaping Of Lake Placid For Olympics Began Early

By EARL ARONSON
Associated Press Writer

Almost three years before the 1980 Olympics will open in February at Lake Placid in New York's Adirondack Mountains, preparation of the grounds began.

Since then, a 70-acre area of reforested, second-growth trees was cleared and graded for the Athletes' Village. It will be landscaped. More than 100 acres have been seeded with grass. Some areas had to be sodded, especially around the tall ski jumps where steep slopes wouldn't hold seed during heavy rain pressure. Seeding had to be repeated and in some instances sod was put down.

Also taken into consideration in the type of grass, shrubs and trees planted was the cold weather which Philip G. Wolff, chief of staff of the XIII Olympic Winter Games Committee, says "routinely goes to the 20s below zero Fahrenheit and last winter hit 44 below."

The major effort, however, according to Wolff, has been to discourage erosion that would sully rivers and other waters of the region.

The 70-acre cleared tract now contains the buildings to house athletes from many nations during the two weeks of competition. Grass and landscaping also beautify other new structures, the 90 and 45 meter ski jumps, the bobsled and luge runs. And the new $16.5 million federally-funded field house-indoor skating center.

Slopes have been terraced. Several ponds were established as sediment basins for run-off water from hillsides. These ponds mean, Wolff said, that only clean water will reach brooks in runoff. In dry weather the pool water will evaporate. The sediment will be at the bottom.

Ground for Olympic construction was broken in May 1977, hampered right off by heavy rain.

"Thousands of trees were taken down, fed to machines that made them chips, and used as mulch to control slopes," Wolff says. "Most of the area involved is hilly and getting good grass to grow on steep pitches was a problem."

"Except for a few buildings designated for temporary use, every one of the facilities will be permanent. The Olympic Village will become a federal minimum correctional facility for young adults and youthful offenders. After-use is the secret of the whole thing. The facilities of the 1932 Lake Placid Olympics were all used until they were worn out."

The new skating center, attached to the 1932 one, will remain for big competitions. The center track at the high school has been refrigerated and resurfaced for the outdoor skating events. It will be used later for public skating and possible national and international competition. Both areas have been landscaped.

The tree plantings, Wolff said, include sugar and Norway maples, some ash, white and red pine, white and Norway spruce. Not many were needed because few were felled outside the Athletes' Village area and the hills around with trees. Shrubs planted for landscaping mostly were red stem dogwood, high bush cranberry, mugo pines, low bush juniper and ewes.

Wolff, who studied landscape architecture at Cornell and who is a town judge, said grass seed sown was chewing and creeping fescue and Canadian blue grass, anticipating heavy "athletic field usage."

Socket Extensions Lift Lamp Shades

By ANDY LANG
Associated Press Writer

Q — We recently bought two old lamps at an antique show and like them very much. They came without shades. We bought shades, but when we got them home we discovered that they fit down too low. We have figured out several ways in which the shades can be lifted a bit. But all of them look kind of homemade. Is there some professional way these shades can be made to sit up a little higher so that they seem to be part of the lamps?

A — The solution to such a problem is easy. Merely buy what is called a socket extension. This extension fits right into the bulb socket. The bulb then is screwed into the extension. When the bulb sits up higher, the shade then will seem to be made for that particular lamp.

Q — To settle an argument, does a single 200-watt electric bulb produce as much or less light than two 100-watt bulbs?

A — Everything else being equal, the single larger bulb will give more light than two other bulbs with the same total wattage.

Q — I sometimes see advertisements for facing brick. I can't find the term in my dictionary. Just what is facing brick?

A — As the name implies, it is brick used primarily where the face of it will be highly visible. Facing brick may be used either inside or outside, but there are variations in grade and types, so don't judge them solely by price. When making price comparisons, be sure the bricks are of the same grade and type and are suitable for your intended purpose.

Q — We intend soon to refinish our attic, doing most of the work ourselves, but getting professional help for the electricity and the plumbing. We plan on having a small bathroom upstairs, one that will serve the two bedrooms we will be making. My husband and I agree on everything except the location of the bathroom. He thinks it should be directly over the kitchen, because he says it will be less expensive that way. I think the extra cost will be worth it if the bathroom is placed where it will be an equal distance from both bedrooms rather than near one and some distance from the other.

New Polish Stamp Pays Tribute To Astronaut Neil Armstrong

By SYD KRONISH
Associated Press Writer

It isn't often that countries behind the Iron Curtain issue stamps to honor the United States or its citizens. However, this rare occasion has been revealed on a set of five new stamps from Poland dedicated to "Space Research 1979." The highest value in the set is a tribute to Neil Armstrong, the first "Man on the Moon."

The one-zloty marks the first anniversary of the space flight of the first Polish cosmonaut Miroslaw Hermaszewski. It shows the space craft, Hermaszewski and Soviet spaceman Piotr Klimuk. The 1.50-zloty depicts the Soviet research craft of the Intercosmos, Kopernik 500 Series, and the U.S. orbiting astronomical observatory Copernicus, which have been sent off to commemorate the 500th anniversary of the birth of Nicolaus Copernicus.

The 200-zloty illustrates the Soviet unmanned moon space craft "Lunnik 2" and the American unmanned space craft "Ranger 7." The 4.50-zloty features Yuri Gagarin, the first man in space. The 6.90-zloty pictures Armstrong and the lunar module with space craft Apollo 11.

Poland has also issued a single stamp which features the monument to Kosciuszko in Philadelphia. The statue was a gift of the Polish people to the United States in honor of the 200th anniversary of American independence. Kosciuszko fought for the American colonists in the Revolutionary War.

Austria has announced an ambitious stamp program for 1980. According to the Austrian Postal and Telegraph Administration, the following postage stamps are scheduled for the first half of the year: a special stamp marking the 500th anniversary of the town of Baden, a stamp promoting Austrian exports, a stamp for the centenary of the Austrian Red Cross, a special stamp for the 750th anniversary of Hallein, a series of stamps commemorating the bicentennial of the death of Empress Maria Theresa, and a stamp honoring the 1,000th anniversary of the town of Steyr. Also, a stamp marking 50 years of oil production in Austria, the 800th anniversary of the city of Innsbruck, a special adhesive for the 10th International Congress of the International Organization for the Study of the Old Testament, and another in the Austrian landscapes series of definitive stamps.

The first North American edition of "Collect British Stamps," a mini-catalog checklist of British postal items, is now on the market. The listings are in U.S.

Car Care Stresses Rust Prevention

WASHINGTON (AP) — An automobile is a major investment for most Americans, and protecting that investment from the ravages of rust should be a major consideration.

Once you have that new, undercoated, car on the road one of your early stops should be a car wash, say the experts at the National Highway Safety Administration.

That trip will help you find any body leaks or leaks around windows. Have these fixed promptly.

When you get the car home, spray the underside forcefully with a hose to make sure there are no openings allowing water inside, under the floor mat or carpet. Caulk any openings you find.

If you are considering buying a used car, examine the vehicle carefully for rust.

Also listed are first-day covers, presentation and souvenir packs and Post Office picture cards.

The booklet is available for $3 at your local dealer or you may order from Stanley Gibbons Ltd., Publications Dept., 601 Franklin Ave., Garden City, N.Y. 11530.

NEW STAMP — The U.S. Postal Service has announced it will issue the W.C. Fields commemorative stamp in Beverly Hills, Calif., on Jan. 29, 1980. The date is the 100th anniversary of the comedian's birthday. (AP Laserphoto)

Tech's Dean Bennett Gets High Ag Honor

Named Thompson Professor Of Finance

Dr. J. Wayland Bennett, associate dean of the College of Agricultural Sciences, has been named the first Charles C. Thompson Professor of Agricultural Finance at Texas Tech. Texas Tech Vice President for Academic Affairs Charles S. Hardwick made the announcement.

The chair honors Charles C. Thompson, president of the City National Bank of Colorado City since 1938 and chairman of the board of that institution. Because of his long interest in farm credit, stemming from the Depression era, Thompson is known as "Mr. Farm Credit." He also is an attorney, a rancher and a farmer.

Bennett is a director of the Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas. He has taught in the Department of Agricultural Economics at Texas Tech since 1948. He has served on numerous agriculture and university committees and is a past president of the National Association of Colleges and Teachers of Agriculture. For several years he has coordinated Texas

Tech's annual Banker's Agricultural Credit Conference.

Bennett earned his bachelor's degree from Texas Tech and served on the faculty for two years before going to Louisiana State University for his advanced degrees. He joined the Tech faculty in 1953 and has served the university as an assistant vice president for academic affairs, as head of the Department of Agricultural Economics and as acting dean and interim dean of the College of Agricultural Sciences. He also has been acting chairman of the Department of Agricultural Engineering. As associate dean of the college he is in charge of industry relations.

His primary professional interests involve problems dealing with agricultural credit and credit systems, agricultural cooperatives, agricultural policy related to the development of agriculture, the market structure for agricultural products, market development and efficiency, consumer problems and agricultural prices.

He is cited in American Men and Women of Science, Who's Who in Texas Today; Dictionary of International Biography and Who's Who in the South and Southwest.

At Texas Tech he has served as chairman of the Administrative Deans' Council and as member and chairman of numerous committees. He has been chairman of the Agricultural Economics Section, Southwestern Social Science Association, member of a four-man team appointed by Gov. John Connally to study the European Common Market and Texas Agriculture, and he has been a consultant to the U.S. Feed Grains Council for Grain Sorghum Market Potential in Egypt, to the Federal Land Bank of Houston, the Tennessee Higher Education Commission and resource consultant to the Natural Fibers Committee of the Texas House of Representatives.

The National Association of State Universities and Land Grant Colleges has cited him for his work on the Agricultural Business Committee, Resident cited him for his work on the Agricultural Business Committee, Resident Instruction Committee on Policy.

Bennett has served on the Board of Directors of the Texas Professional Agricultural Workers, the West Texas Water Institute, and the Southwest Lubbock Rotary International and the Workshop for the Blind.

Thompson, member of the Texas Tech Board of Directors from 1937 to 1957 and chairman from 1977 to 1956, is remembered on the Texas Tech campus by the residence hall named in his honor. He lives now on a 6,000-acre farm and ranch near Colorado City and practices law as a partner of the firm of Thompson and Rees. He has served on the board of the Texas Electric Service Company for the past 20 years and is a former Mitchell County judge.

He has a leading role in passage of the Farm Credit Act of 1971, and he honorary doctorate awarded by Texas Tech.

Researchers Focusing On Miracle

By ROBERT L. HANEY

Texas Agricultural Experiment Station Imagine the possibilities of a high efficiency crop that would furnish us with food for humans, feed for livestock, fuel for vehicles, and fiber for pressed wood or paper.

Plant breeders at Texas A&M University say such a miraculous crop is perfectly feasible, and they're working on it right now.

The project, being conducted by scientists with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station at College Station and Welsch, will have five statewide testing sites in the spring of 1980.

The Department of Energy through Batelle, Columbus Division, is funding the research being done by Drs. Richard Creelmann and Fred Miller.

The appeal of a source of renewable energy, along with production of food, feed and fiber, is irresistible to a nation having to import more than half of the energy it uses.

Though a number of present crops can be used to manufacture industrial alcohol, the yield over and above the energy used to produce the crop, is too low. Such plants have been developed primarily to produce grain, sugar, wood, or some other special product.

All plants capture solar energy, and through a process called photosynthesis, convert it and the nutrients it has absorbed from the soil solution into sugar or forms of starch.

But plants vary widely in their efficiency as solar factories. Sugarcane and sorghum are among the most efficient at the conversion of solar energy and are being studied as sources of renewable energy.

Sorghum has several attractive characteristics that make it an obvious choice for development as our multi-purpose crop.

Sorghum hybrids, first developed by Experiment Station scientists in Texas, have already demonstrated the ability to produce grain that can be used for food or feed.

Their present short stature was deliberately developed by Station scientists for convenience in mechanical harvesting. But they can readily change the plant so it will grow as much as 10 or 12 feet tall if needed, and greatly increase the total amount of plant material produced per acre. But present plans envision a 6.5-to-7-foot plant in order to utilize present harvesting equipment.

And from the sweet sorghums developed in recent years, the scientists can add the ability to produce a large yields of sugar and starch that can serve as a source of industrial alcohol.

In addition, sorghums have a much wider area of adaptability than sugarcane so they can be grown in most areas of the state.

The potential exists to develop a sorghum that has both high stalk sugar content and yields of 6,000 to 7,000 pounds of grain per acre.

Whole-plant utilization would result in high energy yield. Stalks could be crushed and the extract used for production of crystalline sugar and molasses for animal feed or for fermentation for energy.

The grain could be used for human consumption (presently world's fifth leading food grain), livestock feed, or, through enzymatic breakdown of starches and fermentation to alcohol, for energy.

The residue of stalks could be used for production of fiberboard and paper.

"Because of the long growing season in South Texas, high energy sorghum will be rotated with soybeans and other suitable crops," Creelmann says.

"The second crop is expected to contribute nitrogen it removes from the air and increase the organic buildup in the soil, in addition to serving as a cash grain crop," Miller concluded.

Big Year Looms For Hard Winter Wheat

Red Variety Tops List Of U.S. Bread Grains

By RODERICK TURNBULL
Kansas City Board of Trade

KANSAS CITY — This is a big year for hard red winter wheat — the biggest ever.

Of course, it is a big year for most other crops, too, with a record corn harvest and record soybean yields and so on.

Hard red winter wheat is the kind that is grown over what is generally described as the Great Plains, from Kansas City west. It is an area of from moderate to low rainfall. To the east of Kansas City mostly soft red winter wheat is grown. The rainfall is better and this area is known as the Corn Belt.

The world over, it is hard to grow a good hard wheat that makes quality bread where there is ample rainfall. The lack of moisture causes the wheat plant to struggle and the end result is a kernel higher in protein quality.

Many visitors to the Kansas City Board of Trade say they always supposed what was wheat, they didn't know there are five kinds of wheat produced in the U.S. and each has its own uses.

The biggest crop always is hard red winter. Next in total yield comes hard spring, raised in the northern states, followed by soft red winter, produced mostly in the Corn Belt.

Fourth in total yield is white wheat which is grown mainly in Washington, Oregon and Idaho with a relatively small quantity in Michigan. Fifth in total yield is durum and the big production state is North Dakota.

Ordinarily, about half or almost half of the nation's wheat crop is hard red winter. Also, ordinarily, about half of the total exports are hard red winter.

In 1979, the total wheat crop in the United States at 2.11 billion bushels was the third largest ever, but the average yield per acre at 34 bushels was a record. In other words, the reason we didn't have the largest crop in history was that not so many acres were harvested as in some previous years.

But the hard red winter crop at 1.1 billion bushels was a new record and it reflected record harvests in three big wheat states, Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas. Not too many years ago a total wheat crop of a billion bushels was considered pretty good.

The quality on the 1979 hard red winter crop was good with protein averaging about 12 percent.

Demand for this kind of wheat appears to be exceptional this year.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture is projecting total wheat exports in this marketing year, which ends next June 1, at 1,400 million bushels, which would be a new record by far. Significant is the fact that hard red winter wheat exports are projected at 785 million bushels, considerably more than half the total.

It is interesting how the export demand has been rising. Hard winter wheat exports in the 1976-77 year amounted to 418 million bushels. In 1977-78 the total was 535 million bushels, in 1978-79 it was 610 million bushels and, as mentioned, the projection for this marketing year, 1979-80, is 785 million bushels.

Domestic use of hard red winter, which includes uses for seed and food, is projected at 372 million bushels. Exports and domestic use, therefore, come to 1,157 million bushels as compared to the record harvest of 1,091 bushels. Obviously, if total use comes out as projected, there will be a drawn-down in the carry-over and that is exactly what the USDA is predicting. The carry-over on June 1, 1979 was 420 million bushels on hard red winter.

The carry-over estimated for next June 1 is 354 million bushels. Smaller carry-overs also are estimated on hard spring and durum with the carry-over on all wheat estimated at 851 million bushels as of next June 1 compared with the carry-over of 925 million on last June 1.

The export demand for all U.S.

wheats is good this year, but the major share of the increase over last year will be in hard red winter.

Hard red winter is recognized as a standard bred wheat around the world. Great Plains Wheat, a national growers' organization, in a chart on the various wheats produced in the USDA describes hard red winter as "high in protein, strong in gluten. Use for quality wheat breads and hard rolls."

The description on hard red spring is "highest in protein for use in quality yeast breads and hard rolls."

Durum: "Used for macaroni and spaghetti."

White: "Used for quick breads, pastries, crackers and noodles."

Soft Red Winter: "Used for quick breads, cookies, cakes and crackers."

Each wheat has certain characteristics which appeal to bakers with their individual specific requirements. Hard spring with its high protein can be blended with lower protein wheat for many uses. While it has been explained that both hard red winter and hard spring are bread wheats, the hard red winter is a little more versatile and used also for "all-purpose" flour.

An illustration of the special for certain kinds of wheat is seen in the wheat grown in Michigan and that produced in the Northwest. A Kansas City miller says the Northwest white wheat is preferred for making ice cream cones over the Michigan variety.

The point is, all the wheats produced in the U.S. have their good uses, providing a variety to meet the specifications of almost any processor. But it does appear that over the last few years the export demand has been growing most on the hard red winter kind.

Research Group Reports Doubling Of Production

WASHINGTON (AP) — A research group says the United States has more than doubled its food production in the past 25 years, but will not be able to continue expanding crop production indefinitely.

Lester Brown, president of the non-profit Worldwatch Institute, said there is a diminishing crop return from the use of chemical fertilizers. In addition, he said, land used for grain every year is eroding instead of being rotated into hay crops or grass.

Brown, in a copyrighted interview with U.S. News & World Report magazine, said world grain reserves are expected to drop from 226 million tons to 195 million tons because of poor harvests this year in the Soviet Union, China and India.

Soil Conservation Plan Fundamental For Farmer

Just as a person can not build a good house without a plan, a farmer cannot maintain or improve his basic asset of soil without a conservation plan, according to John Tate of Lubbock, soil conservationist.

"Besides managing and conserving soil and water for future use and future generations, conservation practices can also help cut down on farm expenses and increase yields," Tate said.

Soils and slopes not only vary from farm to farm, Tate pointed out, but many vary in different fields on the same farm. Also, the way farmers manage individual farms and the equipment and tools used varies greatly.

But one thing almost all farmers do alike is plan how to produce crops in a more efficient manner, Tate said.

"The main role of a soil conservation district is to encourage and assist landowners and operators to make and carry out conservation plans," he said.

"Each conservation plan is made especially to fit a particular farm or field on that farm."

Included in the plan, Tate said, is a conservation map, a soil classification map, an engineering plan map and a plan of operations.

The plan of operations includes such things as cropping systems, crop residue use, designed irrigation systems and irrigation water management plans when needed, he noted.

"The farm owner or operator and the soil conservationist can discuss the problems on a particular farm and discuss alternatives and improvement opportunities," the soil conservationist said.

Tate urged any farmer in need of conservation plan to contact one of the soil conservationists at Soil Conservation Service offices located in each county.

"A local farmer said it all when he said 'I have to take care of my land so it will take care of me,'" Tate said.

Livestock Futures Close Lower As Mart Turns Down

By Reuters
CHICAGO — Cattle futures closed 15 to 17 points lower with January under the most pressure after slipping 112. Sales totaled 21,370 cars Thursday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange. The market turned downward following an early gain of 32 in August.

sale beef was unchanged at 108 1/2 cents a pound, f.o.b. river points. Cash cattle were off 50 cents to firm with the best top $70.25 per hundredweight at Indianapolis. Slaughter was 120,000 head. About 2,600 head are expected today at the major terminals.

Beef Supplies Reduction In 1980 Forecast

WASHINGTON (AP) — Shoppers will see a further reduction in beef supplies in 1980, the American Meat Institute said Thursday.

But the industry group said the beef crunch will not be as severe as in 1979 and that because of increased supplies of pork and poultry, "prices for meat will be reasonable" next year.

Stock Mart Ends Mixed

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market yanked in a mixed stock market for the third consecutive session Thursday as the price of gold continued to climb.

Strength in gold and oil issues helped nudge the American Stock Exchange market value index up 1.73 to a new high of 244.88, surpassing the previous record of 244.15 set 10 days before.

On the New York Stock Exchange, the Dow Jones Average of 30 industrials eked out a 1.96 gain to 840.10.

Big Board volume increased to 31.41 million shares from 24.96 million Wednesday.

While the Dow shows a gain of only about 5 percent for 1979 with two sessions left in the year, the Amex index is up by better than 60 percent, thanks in large part to a bull market in independent oil and gas stocks.

Some of those issues made their presence felt again Thursday — Dome Petroleum, for example, which was up 2 1/4 to 45 1/2 as of the 4 p.m. close in New York, and Kirby Exploration, which rose 3 1/4 to 46 1/4.

New York (AP) — Thursday's national price index for 1979 closed at 157.97, down from 158.12 on Wednesday.

Judge Orders Trial For Director Of Mental Health Centers

By KIMBERLY PALMER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

After a preliminary hearing Thursday in Hobbs, N.M., a Lea County magistrate ruled the former director of Mental Health and Mental Retardation centers in Lubbock and Corpus Christi should be brought to trial on a fraud charge.

Magistrate Drayton Wasson found probable cause for Ronald V. Whittington, 36, of Hobbs, to be tried on the charge of fraud in excess of $2,500. Whittington, a special education counselor for the Hobbs municipal school system, probably will be arraigned in two to three weeks, according to Ernie Carroll, senior assistant district attorney in Lovington.

Whittington, who remained in Lea County Jail Thursday evening in lieu of $25,000 bond, was arrested Nov. 26 by Lea County officials on the fraud charge after being arrested earlier in the day by Curry County officials on the charge of possession of stolen property in excess of $2,500. Curry County officials had released Whittington on $5,000 bond.

The Lea County district attorney's office filed the fraud charge against Whittington after a search of his Hobbs residence uncovered items the psychologist had reported stolen in an Aug. 8 burglary, Carroll said. Reports indicate Whittington had filed insurance claims in Hobbs totaling between $4,000 and $5,000 to recover his alleged loss.

Clovie District Attorney Bill Bonham said Thursday that any action his office takes depends on what Waco authorities decide to do.

"According to New Mexico law, we cannot prosecute a person for possession of stolen property," Bonham said. "We would have to prosecute them for the actual theft of the property, which in this case, reportedly happened in Waco."

"I would have no problem in letting Waco authorities prosecute Whittington," Bonham said.

But Randall Rogers of the Waco District Attorney's office said any action his office would take against Whittington would depend on the outcome of Lea County proceedings. Whittington was director of Corpus Christi's MHRM center from 1975 to 1977, and headed Lubbock's center from August 1977 to 1978.

New Mexico law enforcement officials have recovered more than $250,000 worth of property in connection with the incident. Several of the items, which include a first printing of the United States Constitution valued at more than $150,000, two copies of the 1787 "Federalist Papers," a hand-written joke reportedly written by Abraham Lincoln, as well as a silver tea service and several guns, match the description of items reported as stolen from Waco and Austin.

Two oil paintings, valued at $15,000 a piece, also were among the items police have recovered.

One of the paintings, a Porfirio Salinas masterpiece entitled, "Texas Cactus," was reported stolen from the Student Union at Baylor University in Waco in 1976. The other landscape, a Robert Wood original of the Guadalupe River was reported stolen sometime in the early 70s from Southwestern University in Georgetown, Bonham said.

Don Svet, assistant U.S. Attorney in Albuquerque, said his office currently was reviewing the case and would decide sometime in the next two weeks whether federal officials would join the investigation.

Family Claims Letters Received Not Written By Hostage In Iran

HOMER, Ill. (AP) — The relatives of Paul Lewis, one of the Americans held hostage in Tehran, Iran do not believe letters they received the day after Christmas were written by the 22-year-old Marine sergeant.

"It's not his printing," said his father Phil Lewis. "It was his signature and he did address the envelopes, but he didn't write the letter."

The letters, sent to Paul's parents and his grandmother, Edna Lewis, were the first the family has received since Lewis was taken hostage when the U.S. Embassy was stormed by militant students Nov. 4 — the day after he arrived in Iran.

"There's some parts that just don't sound like Paul," said Edna Lewis. She said parts of the letter to Paul's parents were worded the same way as the letter she received. It said:

"Dear Grandma,
 "Thought I'd send you a line to let you know I'm fine and have been treated very well — much better than I possibly could have expected.

"They make every effort within reason to make us comfortable. The many students I have been in contact with here seem to be good people and are very religious. Islamic beliefs and religion are very similar to our own.

"It may sound funny, but the other night they were joking to us about sharing with them the profits we will make from the books we may write about all of this.

"Really, no matter what is being said, I had no reason to be concerned about my safety or my health. I don't want you at home to worry. I don't think any harm will come to us by these people.

"The conditions that Cpl. Gallegos described to NBC are accurate. We were allowed to read the text of the interview that was printed in the paper.

"By the time you receive this, it will be almost Christmas. Have a Merry Christmas and I hope to be home soon.

"Take care.
 "Love, Paul."

Parents Suing Nuclear Plant Over Death

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — A York County couple, convinced their stillborn baby was killed by radiation from the Three Mile Island accident, filed suit in U.S. District Court on Thursday against the nuclear power plant owners and designers.

Edward and Perri Kiick of Manchester are seeking more than $20,000 in compensatory and punitive damages from Metropolitan Edison, operator of the Three Mile Island nuclear plant; General Public Utilities, the plant owner; and Babcock & Wilcox, the plant designer.

Kiick, a self-employed salesman, and his wife have a 21-month-old son. Mrs. Kiick, 32, was about four months pregnant on March 28 — the day of the worst accident in the history of commercial nuclear power.

She had a stillborn daughter, Tracey, on Aug. 29.

Mrs. Kiick contended many people in her area lost children after the accident. Her rural home is 3.2 miles from the plant, which is about 10 miles from Harrisburg.

Mrs. Kiick said she called Met Ed one day after the emergency began and was told not to worry. The next day, the reactor released several bursts of radiation, and Gov. Dick Thornburgh advised pregnant women and preschool children to leave the area.

The suit contends Met Ed, GPU and B&W "knew at the time of the nuclear leak that the high doses of radioactive gases would directly and adversely affect the vital organs of any child in the womb."

Judith Botvin, a spokeswoman at Met Ed headquarters in Reading, said the company will not comment until it receives a formal complaint.

An ad hoc federal committee has said the radioactive releases will not have a significant impact on public health.

But the couple's attorney, Joseph Shein of Philadelphia, said "We have enough evidence to establish a prima facie case right now."

Mrs. Kiick said: "My physician was always concerned about the radiation. 'Everything within the child was normal, but everything stopped functioning at one time.' Mrs. Kiick said.

The suit says Met Ed "improperly permitted Perry C. Kiick to return to her home and thereafter permitted additional large amounts of radioactive gases to leak into the atmosphere."

In their suit, the Kiicks — who are Met Ed customers — contend nuclear power generation is "an abnormally dangerous activity," and Met Ed is "strictly liable" for all harm resulting from it.

The suit further contends Met Ed violated federal safety regulations, did not train its plant employees properly, and failed to take safeguards to prevent a nuclear leak.

The judge in the case, Sylvia Rambo, has ordered a halt to any further pre-trial discussion of the case.

Escape Artist Back In Jail On Christmas

BOCHUM, West Germany (UPI) — Helmut Pflueger has successfully escaped from West German jails many times, but he found himself back in the cells this Christmas. Police found him celebrating the holidays in a brothel.

Pflueger's latest escape ended when police in the Ruhr industrial town of Bochum found him in a local brothel, authorities said Wednesday. He tried to avoid arrest by giving a false name, police said, but officers recognized Pflueger by the tattoos on his arm.

The convict, 29, who broke out while serving a 7-year sentence for robbery, escaped from a psychiatric institution at Haina, near Kassel, early in November after doctors gave him permission to walk in the grounds. He fled in a car waiting outside.

Police said later the driver of the car had been released from the Haina institute some weeks before.

Pflueger has escaped from jails all over West Germany during his criminal career, police said.

Elmer A. Sperry, inventor of gyroscopic flight instruments, was born in 1860.

Fidel's Castro government, a former political prisoner said Thursday.

The State Department later confirmed the account, and said the two are serving 24-year terms on various counts, including "distributing counter-revolutionary propaganda." The two could have faced death sentences, the department added.

Emilio A. Rivero, who was freed Oct. 13 after spending 18 years in Cuban prisons, said the two ministers are being held at Coubinado del Este outside Havana.

"They came to the prison about one month before I left," Rivero told a news conference at the American Security Council, a conservative, defense-oriented lobbying group. "How long they were at the security headquarters (before that), I don't know."

"They were young people, no more than 30 years old," he said. Rivero said the two told him their names, but he could not remember them. He said he also could not remember their denomination, although he said they were Protestants.

The State Department said later that Rivero's account was substantially correct and that the department has been aware of the incident.

State Department spokesmen, who asked not to be identified by name, said the two ministers had Cuban permission to fly over the Caribbean island nation last May and used the opportunity to drop some 60,000 religious pamphlets.

"The leaflets apparently tried to compare Jesus Christ and Marxism, with Marxism coming out unfavorably," said one spokesman.

The spokesman said the plane landed in Cuba, and the ministers were arrested.

"It wasn't shot down," the spokesman said. "Whether it was forced down, I do not know."

The spokesmen said the two ministers worked for a California-based religious organization, but said release of their names was barred by the federal privacy act.

The ministers were given a four-year term for violating Cuban airspace and a 20-year term for "crimes against the integrity and stability of the nation, distributing counter-revolutionary propaganda." The department said the latter charge could have resulted in the death penalty under Cuban law.

The spokesmen said there is little the United States can do in the situation other than encourage the Cubans to treat their prisoners fairly and humanely. "We have to abide by the local laws," one said.

Rivero said he believed the two ran out of fuel during their flight and thus were forced to land.

Chuck McDonald Records And Wishes

IT WAS BOUND TO HAPPEN sooner or later. And apparently this was the Christmas for me to receive a copy of Tomlinson's Texas Records — the fourth edition of a chronology of the Lone Star State's most memorable accomplishments. After all, it's the perfect gift for the man who has nothing.

And at $2.95, the paperback edition is a steal. To be honest, for the last three Dec. 25's it always came as a shock to discover that no one had blessed me with the little storehouse of information.

But it's mine now — all mine — and for the last three nights I've stayed awake memorizing trivia that'll probably never amount to anything.

DO ANY OLDTIMERS REMEMBER the Spur versus Lorenzo football game of 1930? Boy, it was a dandy. Spur crushed Lorenzo 186-0. Honest, it's right there on page 381 under the heading "Highest Score In A Single Game." Incidentally, Spur scored 748 points in 15 games that year — an average of over 49 a game.

In the collegiate football section, Texas Tech gets brief mention under one of the more bizarre sports headings — "Shortest Official Collegiate Football Game." In the 1965 season opener, with Tech leading the University of Kansas 26-7, the officials at Jones Stadium called the game early in the fourth quarter because of a tornado alert.

As far as the Lorenzo Hornets were concerned, that alert came about 35 years too late.

Former Tech standout Rick Bullock dominates the SWC basketball category as the San Antonio native is listed under four different headings. Bullock, who played for the Raiders from 1973-76, owns the career scoring mark (2,118 points in 107 games) and also scored more field goals (842) than any other SWC cager.

And you think that the Houston Cougars and the Texas A&M Aggies don't like to slug it out? In 1977, those two hooked up to set a free-throw record that still hasn't been touched.

But then, '77 was a banner year for the Coogs. In 16 SWC games, they were whistled 370 times — that's 23 fouls a game.

IN BASEBALL, TEXANS CAN BOAST the world's only "rain-in." On June 15, 1976 10 inches of rain flooded the Houston area — virtually wiping out the area around the Astrodome. Only the Astros and the visiting Pittsburgh Pirates made it to the "Dome and the game was called.

There were a few times when those Houston Cougars might have hoped the officials wouldn't show... but they always did — rain or shine.

Here in Lubbock, we may be in the process of establishing a record of our own. The 21st Annual ABC Caprock Holiday Classic (currently in progress at the Municipal Coliseum) features a nine-team bracket.

Basic math would indicate that a nine-team tourney is difficult to arrange. Said one long-time basketball follower Wednesday, "I've never seen or even heard of a nine-team tournament."

Well, you have now. Somebody check the record books.

Nothing can match the mark set by Fort Worth's Carl G. Engle, though. In 1973, he hurled a cow chip 291 feet and seven inches at the State Championships in Odessa.

For the last seven years, Texas' finest have tried in vain to match that feat, and never even sniffed a throw of Engle's magnitude.

BUT RECORDS ARE MADE TO be broken. And there are a few Texas records I'd like to see set as we head into the 1980's.

1. The Texas Tech football team manage to go an entire season without having its No. 1 quarterback injured.

2. Speaking of quarterbacks, could Roger Staubach survive the next season without suffering a concussion, two or three?

3. A Texas Longhorn basketball game where coach Abe Lemons does NOT discuss how bad the officiating was. ("That 'two blind mice' line is getting old.")

4. A press guide that doesn't claim great things are ahead even though its team was 0-11, 1-10, 2-9, etc. (No, I didn't say 3-6-2.)

5. To somehow live through 1980 without ever seeing the phrase "Mustang Mania" in print.

6. That the Texas Longhorns do not go to the Sun Bowl for a record third straight time. UT players and coaches looked, at best, hopelessly bored during their 14-7 loss to Washington in this year's fun-in-the-sun bash.

7. A SWC football race not dominated by Texas, Arkansas and Houston.

8. See a few of those 10,000 folks that own Red Raider basketball season tickets show up for an occasional game in 1980.

9. See the Estacado Matadors, who've been eliminated in the Class AAA semifinals the last two seasons, bring home the football championship that seems inevitable.

10. Learn to: punktoate and spell...

Plucky Matadors Gain Semifinals

By RUSS PARSONS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

By now the word has got to be out. The only way to put the Estacado Matadors out of a basketball game is to take a big stick to their heads.

The Mats trailed by as many as 14 points in the third period of Thursday night's Caprock Holiday Tournament game with Wichita Falls, but somehow managed to come back and take a 61-58 victory.

That win earned them a berth in today's semifinals at 9 p.m. against District 1-AAA foe Canyon, a 76-63 winner over Coronado. In other large school division games, Lubbock High edged Odessa High 59-58 and Dunbar and Monterey were facing off as The Avalanche-Journal went to press.

The catalyst for Estacado in its comeback was John Jones. The 6-2 Matador teamed with a couple of his buddies, notably Tim Williams and Bruce Williams, to spark the rally.

Trailing 42-28 with 4:04 remaining in the third period, Estacado outscored Wichita Falls 15-3 the rest of the quarter. Jones netting six points, Tim Williams four and Bruce Williams three.

That made the score 45-43 going into the final quarter, but Jones stole the ball and raced the length of the court for a slam dunk to tie.

He was called for a technical foul for hanging on the rim and Ricky Cobb, who scored 20 points in the first half but finished with only 24, made the free shot.

But that was about all Wichita Falls got for a while as the Matadors outscored the opposition 13-2 for the next three minutes to take a 58-48 lead at 4:06.

The Coyotes made a final run, netting eight straight and sneaking within 60-58 with 34 seconds showing, but James Barnett controlled a jump ball to Tim Williams and Preston Davis made a free throw to put the contest on ice.

In today's consolation bracket action for the big schools, San Angelo Central will play Odessa at 9 a.m. and Wichita Falls and Coronado will play at 1:40.

Monterey staked a 45-36 lead through the first three quarters, then held off a furious San Angelo Central rally to earn a 60-56 win and advance to the late contest with Dunbar.

The Plainsmen were led by Trav Clardy and Steve Wooten, who scored 14 points each in the early-morning clash. Gary Hodges added 11.

Charles Bishop led all scorers with 24 points in a losing Central cause. Two other players, Hercules Miller and Paul Hayes, chipped in 12 points each.

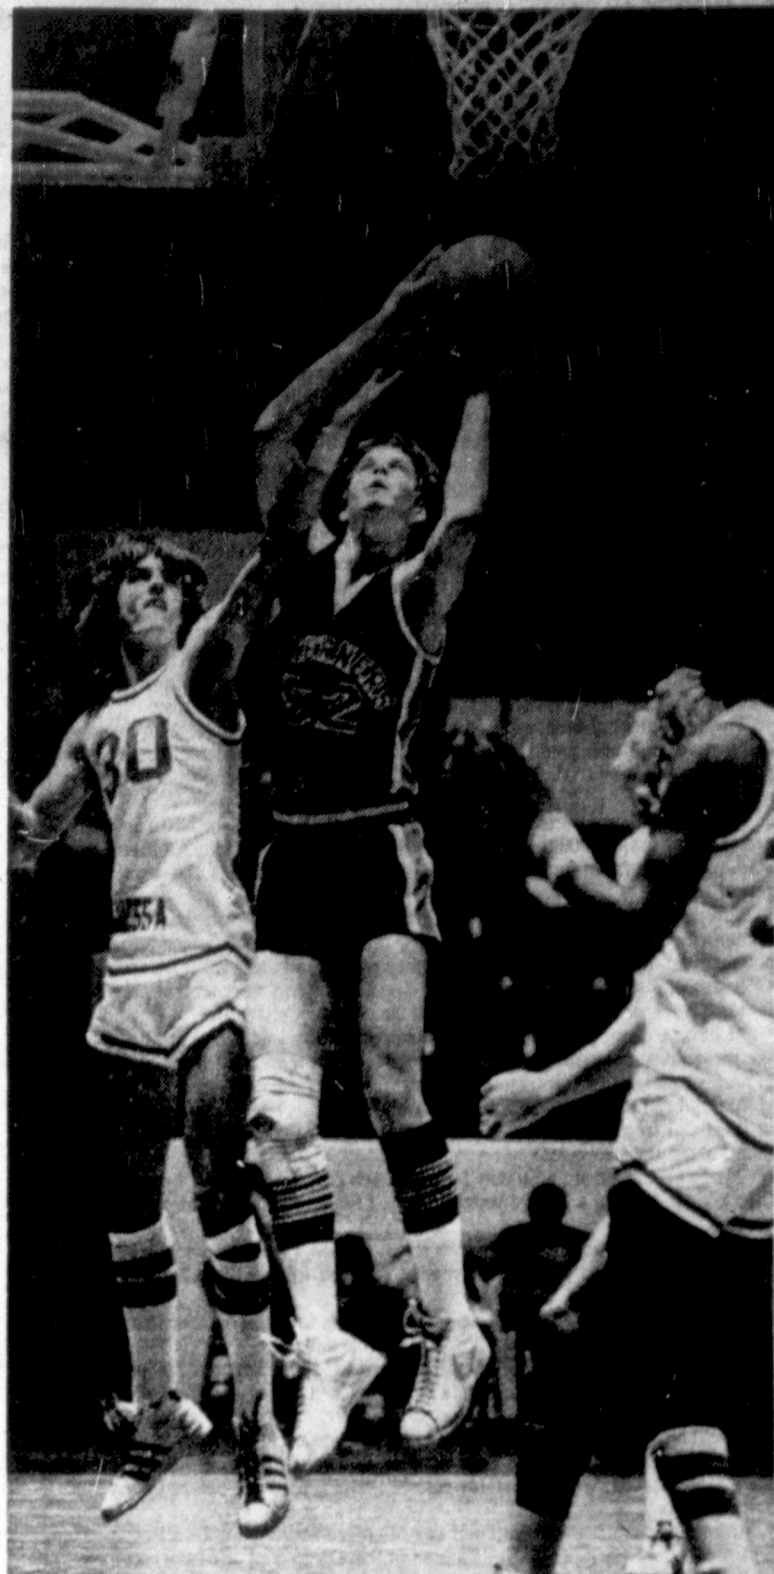

In the small school division, Tulia romped past Spur 85-22 to earn a berth against Dimmitt, a 51-45 victor over Tahoka, in today's 6 p.m. game.

Five players scored in double figures for Tulia with Kirk Thompson taking high-point honors with 14.

Kevin Cleveland and Gary Naylor scored 13 each to lead victorious Dimmitt while Kenny Scott notched 13 and Charles Bryson 12 for Tahoka.

Today's other winners' bracket game pits Lubbock Christian High, a 93-52 winner over Crosbyton, and Morton, which edged Abernathy 64-63. That game will

Clemson Whips Tech

PORTLAND, Ore. (Special) — The Texas Tech Red Raiders, plagued by turnovers and simply outmaneuvered by the taller Clemson Tigers here Thursday night dropped a 79-68 decision in the opening round of the Far West Classic.

The Raiders are now 6-2 on the year, Clemson is undefeated at 6-0. The Raiders will now meet Oregon at 5 p.m. (CST) tonight.

The Raiders were unable to generate any consistent offense throughout the contest. Only Kent Williams, who scored 19 points in the contest, was able to keep Tech even close in the game. Clemson scored four unanswered points to start the second half and led by as many as 15 points in the final half.

John Campbell led Clemson with 19 points. Ralph Brewster had 15 points for Tech, but he was shut-out for most of the game, compounding the Raider woes. Jeff Taylor and David Litte each had 10 for Tech.

Tech had its share of problems in the first half but managed to trail only 33-28 at the intermission. Ben Hill picked up three quick fouls and spent most of the opening half on the bench.

About the only consistent offense that Tech could generate came in the person of Kent Williams — who scored 12 first half points. The Raiders had four other players score four points in the first half.

In Wednesday's first round games, BYU defeated Penn State 58-50 and Oregon State crushed Idaho 100-58. In the opening game Thursday night the University of North Carolina at Charlotte nipped Oregon 69-64.

Oiler Injuries Mount

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Oilers' injury picture blackened further Thursday when running back Rob Carpenter tripped over a blocking dummy, sprained his ankle and was listed as questionable for Saturday's National Football League playoff game against San Diego.

The Oiler lineup already had been weakened with injuries to key offensive threats Earl Campbell, Dan Pastorini and Ken Burrough. All three players are doubtful for Saturday's game with grain strains.

Carpenter had been working out in the No. 1 running back position ahead of Campbell, hobbled by a groin strain in last week's 13-7 victory over Denver. Carpenter, the Oilers' No. 2 rusher during the regular season, tried to leap over a blocking dummy while returning to the huddle after a play. His cleats caught the dummy and he tripped.

That left the Oilers with only three healthy running backs on their depth chart, little used Ronnie Coleman and Boobie Clark and starting fullback Tim Wilson.

Campbell, who has won the NFL rushing title his first two years in the league, reported to workouts in warmups Thursday and jogged on the sidelines along with wide receiver Burrough. Pastorini did not work out with the team.

Colts Fire Marchibroda

BALTIMORE (AP)— Coach Ted Marchibroda, who fell from favor when the Baltimore Colts couldn't win without off-injured quarterback Bert Jones, was fired Thursday by the National Football League.

"I hate to have it happen, but it was not totally unexpected," Marchibroda said calmly after being informed by General Manager Dick Szymanski of owner Robert Irsay's decision. "Everything happens for the best."

"Ted did not appear to be bitter," observed Ernie Accorsi, Szymanski's assistant. "He took it like the class individual he is."

Marchibroda directed the Colts to American Conference East championships in his first three years with the Colts and survived a power struggle which led to the firing of Joe Thomas, the man who hired him.

But the 48-year-old coach couldn't survive the past two 5-11 seasons as Jones played in only seven games while battling a series of injuries to his right shoulder.

Although the Colts, under Marchibroda, had posted a 36-16 record with Jones as the starting quarterback and were 5-20 without him, the fans weren't ready to accept Jones' absence as the sole reason for the team's demise.

The spectators contended Marchibroda was too conservative, with an unimaginative, dull and predictable offense. He was also blamed for recent poor draft picks, and the trading of running back Lydell Mitchell and tight end Raymond Chester.

Home attendance during the past season was the worst in the NFL, an average of fewer than 37,000 that was about 60 percent of the capacity for Memorial Stadium. The turnout for the season finale on Dec. 9 was 25,684, the worst in 25 years.

The number of no-shows in 1979 totaled almost 50,000, and those who did turn out booed Marchibroda, the players, the play selections, and even an announcement that 1980 season tickets would make a good Christmas gift.

Irsay, who said he agonized over his decision for two weeks, mentioned the fans in a brief, prepared statement issued through the Colts' office.

"I have a deep, personal affection for Ted," Irsay said, "and gratitude for the three division championships he brought to Baltimore. But there are times in professional sports that the public voice must be heard."

Marchibroda agreed with an observation that it was strange he got the word of dismissal from Szymanski, instead of Irsay, had a couple of needling comments about the statement.

"They all have deep affection for you when they let you go," he said, and then added: "In the next five years I coach, I hope to win three more championships."

Marchibroda, who has three years remaining on a contract which calls for $150,000 in salary and deferred payments, referred frequently to Jones during the past season.

"What keeps me going," he said recently, "is knowing how we can play when we're healthy and have our No. 1 quarterback in there."

"The fan reaction and the lack of response were factors, but not the only ones considered," Accorsi said while admitting a coaching change won't be a cure-all.

"We'll have to win, and win quickly to get the fans back," he said.

The Colts are expected to begin screening candidates immediately to replace Marchibroda, who served 14 years as an NFL assistant before taking the Baltimore post.

Among those already mentioned are offensive coordinator Dan Reeves of Dallas, assistant head coach Jim Hanifan of San Diego, and offensive coordinator Jerry Rhome of Seattle.

A longshot possibility is John Unitas, a former Colts' quarterback and recent Hall of Fame inductee who lives in the area.

Unitas is listed by the Colts as a consultant, but he said at a recent public gathering: "They never consult me."

NFL Countdown Resumes

By The Associated Press

Philadelphia and Houston, seeking Super Bowl berths the hard way, via the wild card round, continue their quest when the National Football League playoffs resume Saturday.

The Eagles, winners of the NFC wild card berth after eliminating Chicago last Sunday, visit Tampa Bay to play the NFC Central Division champion Bucs. The banged-up Oilers, who eliminated Denver for the AFC wild card spot, play the AFC West champion Chargers at San Diego.

In Sunday's games, Miami's East Champions play Central Division champion Pittsburgh in an AFC game and Dallas, winners of the NFC East, host NFC West champion Los Angeles.

Since the current playoff system was adopted, only one wild card team has made it all the way to the Super Bowl. That was Dallas, which lost to Pittsburgh 21-17 in the 1976 title game after weaving past Minnesota and Los Angeles in its first two playoff games.

The winners this weekend advance to the conference championship games scheduled for Sunday, Jan. 6. Philadelphia and Houston know that if they win on the road Saturday, they'll be back on the road a week later, because wild card teams lose home field rights during the playoffs.

The oddsmakers expect the Eagles back next week. Philadelphia has been installed as a four-point favorite over the Bucs, who lost three straight games before staggering to the division crown with a 3-0 victory over Kansas City in their final game of the regular season. Houston, however, is a seven-point underdog to the Chargers, after the Oilers' three most potent offensive players—running back Earl Campbell, quarterback Dan Pastorini and wide receiver Ken Burroughs—all were hurt in the game against Denver.

Pittsburgh is a 9½-point choice over Miami and Dallas is favored by eight over Los Angeles in Sunday's games.

Campbell and Pastorini both suffered groin injuries while Burroughs reinjured his lower back against Denver. All three are listed as doubtful for Saturday. In the NFL's injury lexicon, that means there is a 75 percent chance that they will miss the game.

San Diego also has some health problems with wide receivers John Jefferson and Charley Joiner both subpar. Jefferson is nursing sore ribs and Joiner has a bruised hip. Both are listed as probable, meaning there is a 75 percent chance that they'll play against the Oilers.

The only significant injury status change reported Thursday was Dallas safety Randy Hughes, who was upgraded from questionable (50-50 chance of playing) to probable (75-25 chance of playing). Hughes has a sore shoulder.

The Philadelphia-Tampa Bay game renews a coaching rivalry between the Eagles' Dick Vermeil and John McKay, boss of the Bucs. They had some memorable meetings in Los Angeles when Vermeil coached at UCLA and McKay was working across town, at the University of Southern California.

The teams have played only once before with Philadelphia taking a 13-3 decision in 1977 when the Bucs were in the midst of their memorable 26-game losing streak.

Cowboys' Cole Loses Anonymity

DALLAS (AP)— If only Pat Toomay and Blaine Nye could see "Bubba" Cole now.

Larry Cole was once such an anonymous member of the Dallas Cowboys that he formed the Zero Club.

The club demanded immediate expulsion for any member who was interviewed by a broadcaster or got his name in the newspaper.

Charter members Toomay, Nye and Cole, who used to hold club meetings and go to sleep, were true to their code.

Toomay was eventually traded and Nye retired.

Now Cole has become one of the mainstays on a ragged Dallas defense crippled by injuries and retirement.

It was Cole who made a critical sack of Joe Theismann and a vital third-down tackle of John Riggins that led to the Cowboys' 35-34 National Football League victory over Washington two weeks ago. He got the defensive game ball.

Cole has played so well that even Coach Tom Landry cracked recently. "I don't know whether Cole can handle all this publicity...it's catching up with him in one year."

Cole started the year at end and moved to tackle after the arrival of John Dutton.

When Dallas meets Los Angeles Sunday in a first-round National Conference playoff game, Cole will be playing in his 23rd NFL playoff game, tying the record of former teammate Jethro Pugh.

"He (Cole) has been playing unbelievable," said Cowboys linebacker D.D. Lewis. "He is an inspiration to everyone."

The 33-year-old Cole, a 16th-round pick out of Hawaii in 1968, is a 12-year veteran who had fleeting fame as a rookie, scoring two touchdowns on a fumble return and an interception.

Cole has never been a boat rocker even when he was sitting on the bench. "I've learned to be happy with whatever situation I'm in," said Cole. "I think I could do a better job if left in one position. The older a guy gets, the more need there is to settle down in one position."

Cole said the Cowboys desperately needed a week off after successive "must" games against Philadelphia and Washington.

"We were emotionally drained," said Cole. "Now, we'll be OK for the Rams."

The low-key Cole was asked if he actually got excited during the Washington comeback and he answered, "Yes...I'm getting too old for this. I like dull football games where we win 35-7."

LCC Comebacks Fall Short In OT Defeat

DALLAS (Special)— The Lubbock Christian College basketball team lost 72-69 in overtime to East Texas State University in the first round of the fourth annual Dallas Baptist Classic Thursday afternoon.

East Texas, 5-2, built 10-point leads in each half and had a five-point margin in overtime only to see the Chaparrals come back each time.

ETSU led 60-50 with 5:14 remaining in regulation but Kevin Wharton and Bill McGee got key buckets down the stretch as the Chaparrals caught up with 28 seconds to go. Wharton missed the front end of a two-shot foul with 28 seconds left and the Chaps trailing 63-62 and missed the second, but former Morton standout Mike Williams was called for goaltending and the score was tied.

Marshall Smith got a steal but was called for charging with 14 seconds left and then senior Tom Goski, who scored 22 points for East Texas, missed a shot at the buzzer.

In overtime, ETSU's Learnt Simmons hit the first of a two-shot foul, Bruce Anderson added two free tosses and Goski one for a 70-65 lead with 26 seconds remaining.

Keith Gardner's three-point play with 10 seconds remaining brought the Chaps to within a point 70-68 and they had possession and a chance to tie in the game's closing moments. McGee turned the ball over, however, to end LCC's opportunity.

The Chaparrals carry a 7-10 record in today's loser's bracket game at 4:30.

'Terrified' Fan Files Suit Against Barry

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. (AP) — Houston Rockets forward Rick Barry was one of 11 defendants named in a suit filed by a woman who claimed he assaulted her as he tried to get at a heckling fan last year at the Rutgers Athletic Center.

Renee Brenner, 32, of West Orange, said in her lawsuit, filed Dec. 19, that Barry jumped into the stands after the Rockets defeated the New Jersey Nets on Dec. 20, 1978. Barry allegedly pushed Brenner's head down on his way through the stands, causing injury to her neck.

The woman also received injuries to her face and shoulder, the suit alleged, when Barry's teammates Moses Malone and Calvin Murphy tried to restrain him.

Malone and Murphy were named in the suit, along with Basketball Venture Inc., which owns the Rockets. Rockets Coach Del Harris, the Nets, the National Basketball Association, Rutgers University, NBA Commissioner Lawrence O'Brien, Nets General Manager Charlie Theokas and Jack Joyce, the NBA director of security were named because the suit claims they failed to assure Mrs. Brenner's safety.

Harry J. Franzoni, representing Mrs. Brenner, said his client suffered severe medical and psychiatrist problems resulting from the incident.

"She has a terrible terror of the whole incident," Franzoni said. "She's a woman of rather delicate frame and she really got banged up bad. She's been going to a psychiatrist because of it. She won't go near the place again, she thinks Rick Barry is going to jump on her."

"The NBA investigated the thing, but they did the usual whitewash. Barry has previous patterns of this," he said. "It seems the level of violence on the floor has been extended to the fans."

Franzoni said he will seek punitive and compensatory damages. Mrs. Brenner refused comment while Barry, contacted in Atlanta where the Rockets play the Hawks Thursday night, also refused to comment.

After the incident last year, Barry said: "I was trying to teach a youngster who had no manners a lesson and I wound up doing something I shouldn't have done. I regret it. I certainly didn't want to hurt anybody."

Theokas said the Nets had not been notified of the suit.

"You've introduced me to something very new," Theokas said. "The club hasn't been officially notified of anything. I would guess everybody who might be involved, their name gets in. I was probably named as a representative of the club."

Injury Shelves Woodson

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Indiana University basketball star Mike Woodson underwent surgery Thursday to repair a ruptured disc in his back and probably will be lost to the 10th-ranked Hoosiers the rest of the season.

Woodson, the team's leading scorer and co-captain and an All-Big Ten selection a year ago, was reported in fair condition at Methodist Hospital here after the operation.

Team officials were unavailable for comment, but the Indianapolis News quoted an unidentified doctor as saying Woodson would be "out at least four months."

Pistons Lose

Bob Lanier

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — The Detroit Pistons, sporting the worst record in the National Basketball Association, received another jolt Thursday when veteran center Bob Lanier was placed on the injured reserve list with a fractured left hand.

Lanier, the Pistons' captain and all-time leading scorer, will be out indefinitely, team doctor Ben Paolucci said. Lanier fractured his hand in a collision with another player in the second half of Detroit's 98-97 loss to the Indiana Pacers at the Silverdome Wednesday night.

He played the remainder of the game, but missed seven of his last eight shots, as the Pistons fell to 9-28 and deeper into the NBA Central Division cellar.

The 10-year veteran has started all 37 of Detroit's games this year, averaging 21.7 points and 10.1 rebounds.

Lanier's scoring average is eighth in the NBA this year and his 55 percent shooting has placed him sixth in the league. He is the 25th on the NBA's all-time scoring list with 15,488 points, a seven-time all star and earlier this season passed Dave Bing as Detroit's all-time leading scorer.

Last week, Lanier asked to be traded to a contending team. Detroit General Manager Jack McCloskey said he would try to accommodate the 6-foot-10, 250-pound Lanier, but only if the Pistons could receive "fair value" for him.

But team spokesman Bill Kreifeldt said Thursday that Lanier's injury would probably put trade talks "on the back burner."

Finley Offers Same Salaries

OAKLAND (AP) — Team owner Charles O. Finley has sent his Oakland A's players 1980 contracts, and it seems no one has been offered a raise.

"That's exactly what I expected. I'm not surprised a bit," said Rick Langford, one of the few players who had good seasons with the team which finished last in the American League West and drew only 306,000 fans to home games.

Langford, who was named American League Pitcher of the Month in August, was just facing the facts of life with baseball's most troubled team, one which Finley may sell before the 1980 season.

Langford, Mitchell Page and several other players contacted by the Oakland Tribune said they received offers for the same money they received last season.

Langford won in a salary arbitration face-off with Finley last winter and can take that route again this winter. Page is among the players eligible for the first time to go to arbitration, but many A's have not been in the major leagues long enough to exercise that option.

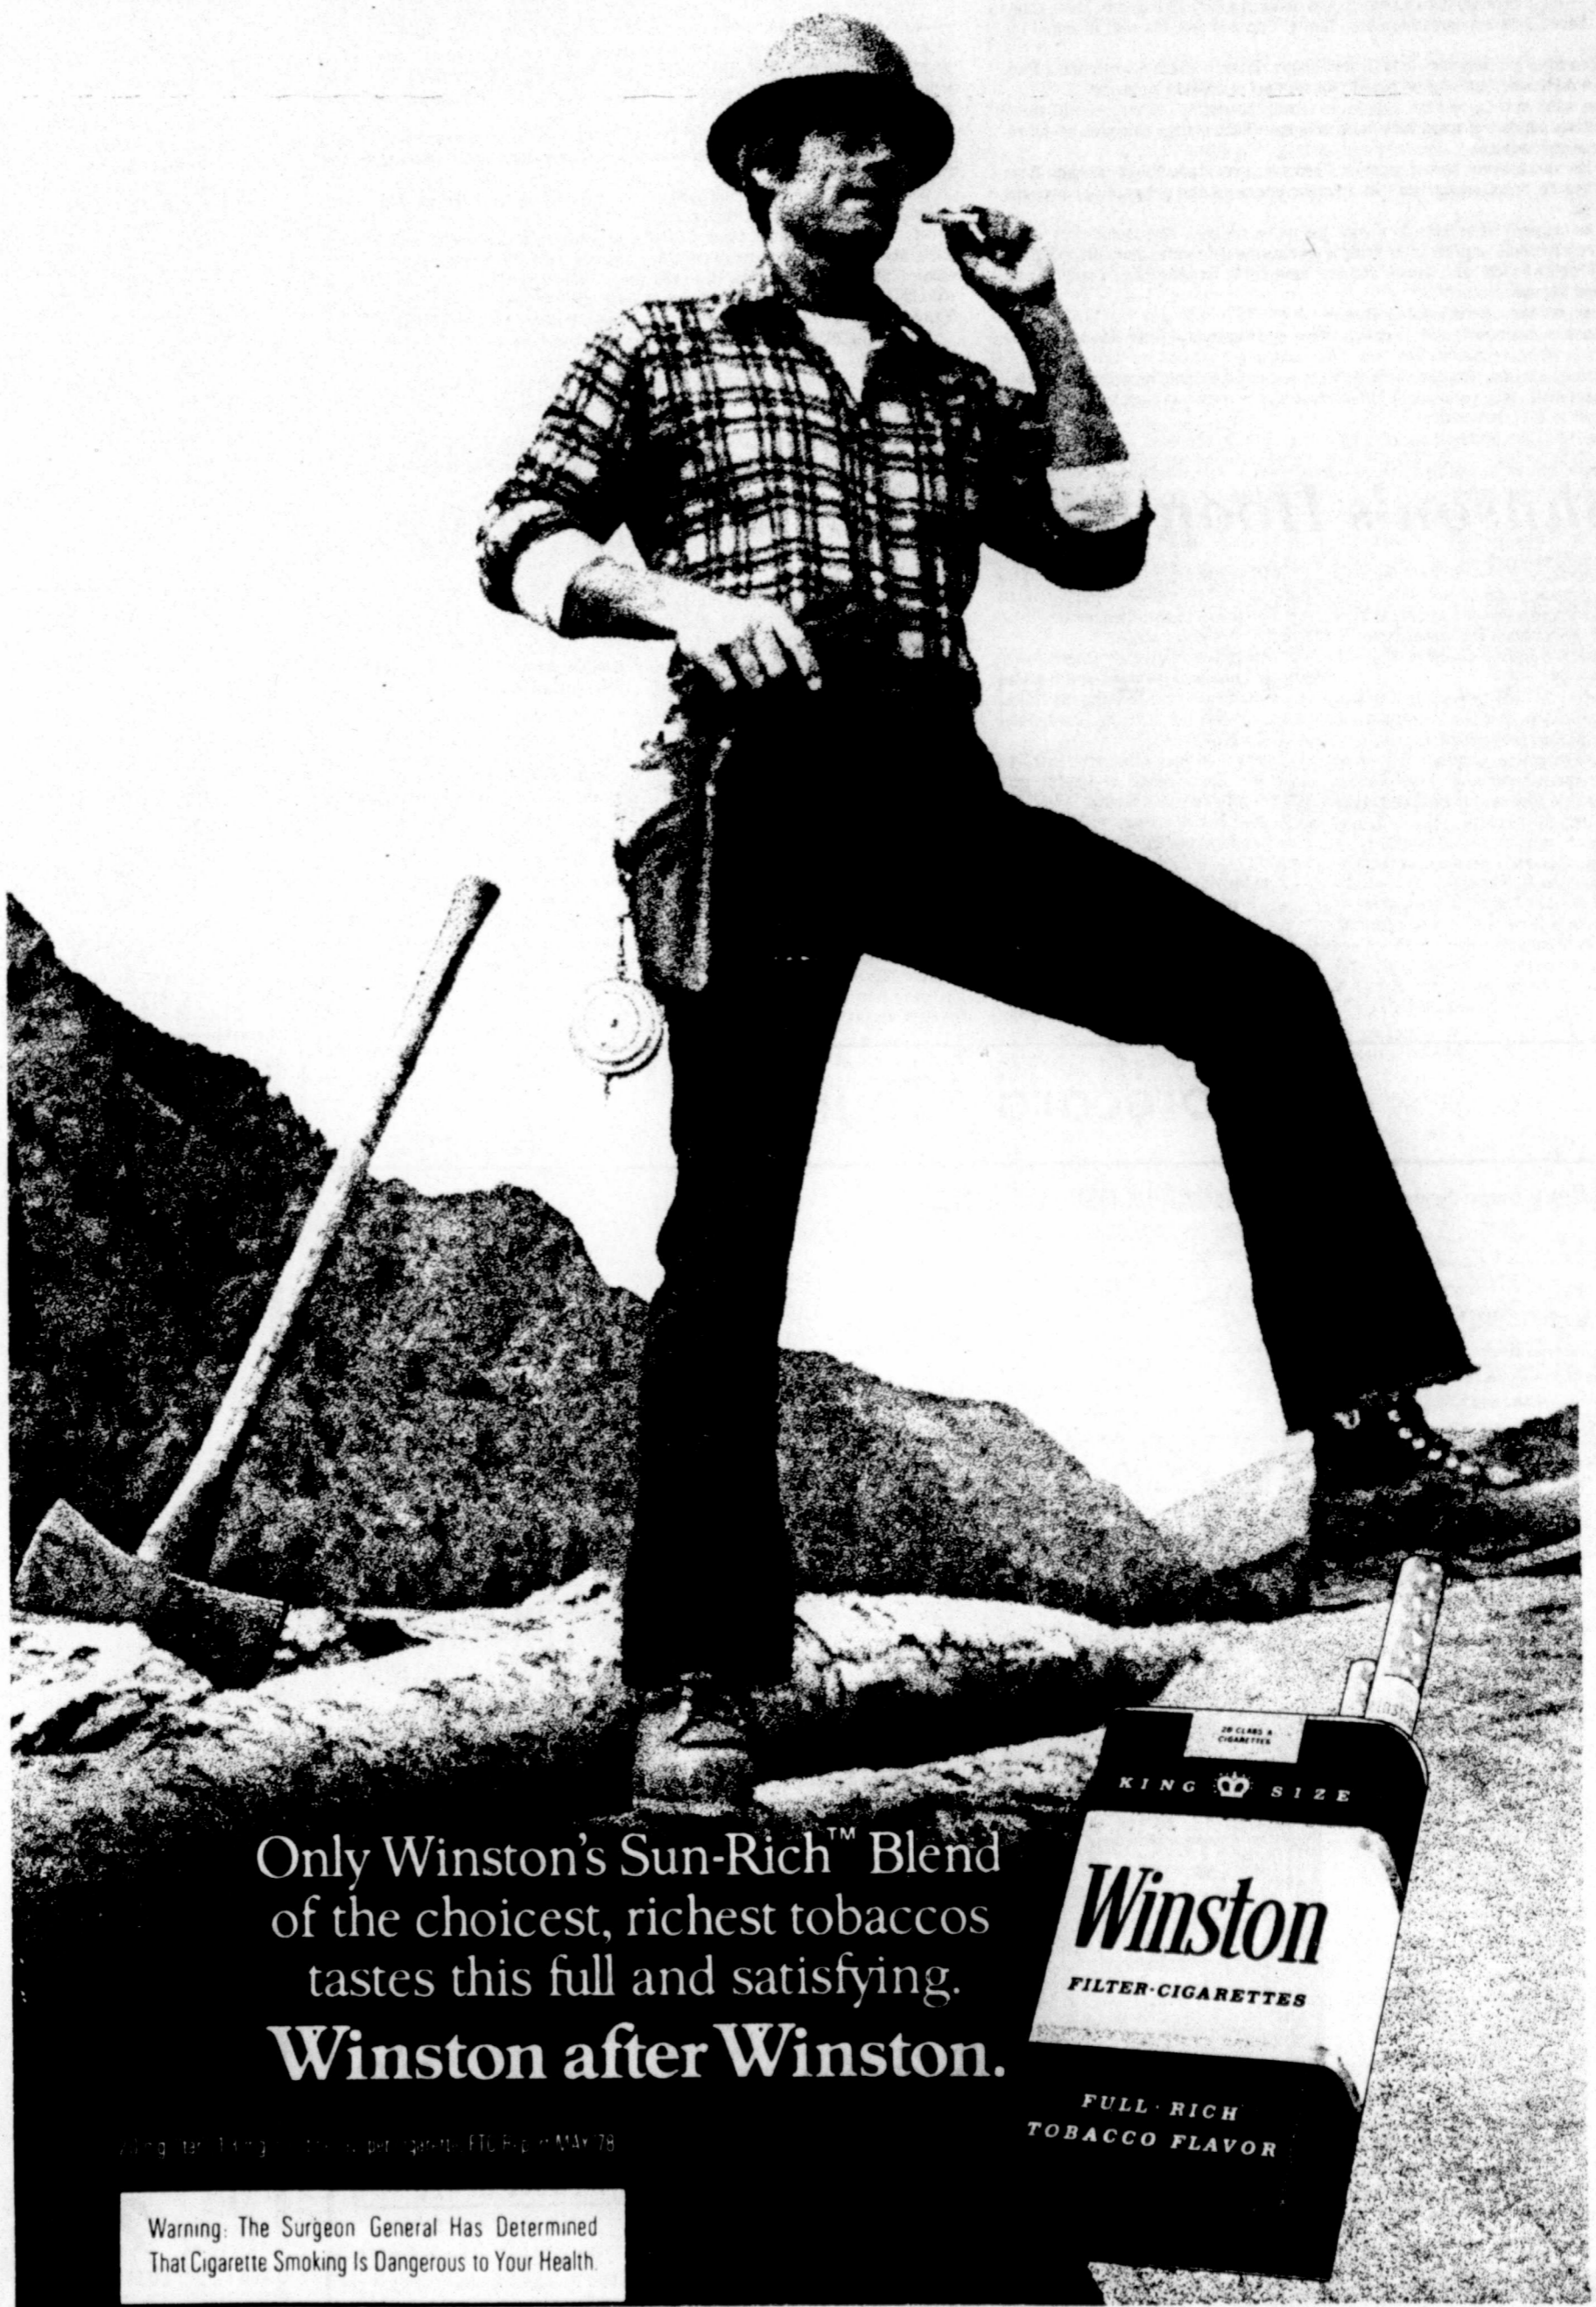

A proposed meeting for Jan. 3, when American League owners hoped to vote on a sale and shift of the A's franchise, has been called off, according to league president Lee MacPhail. But MacPhail said negotiations between Finley and Denver oilman Marvin Davis are continuing.

Nebraska's Miller Comes Home To Play

TUNING UP — Nebraska tight end Junior Miller is aided in a Cotton Bowl drills Thursday in Dallas. The Huskers will meet stretch exercise by Cornhusker trainer George Sullivan during Houston on New Year's Day. (AP Laserphoto)

DALLAS (AP) — For the first time in his college football career, Nebraska tight end Junior Miller is getting a chance to play in his home state.

And Miller, a powerfully built young man who hails from Midland, wants to make the best of the opportunity.

Miller and his Nebraska teammates will play Houston in the Cotton Bowl on New Year's Day. In his four seasons at Nebraska, Miller's travels have taken him all over the Midwest, to Tennessee and to Miami, but never to Texas.

"I've very excited about getting the opportunity to come back to Texas and play in front of my family and friends," Miller said Thursday, following a practice at the Cotton Bowl.

"I'm looking forward to playing back in Texas. We've got one of the best teams in Texas to play against in Houston. They've got one of the finest defensive teams in the country."

Midland sits in the wide open spaces of west Texas, 300 miles from Dallas. Despite the distance, Miller expects to have a sizeable cheering section next Tuesday, when the 10-1 Cornhuskers seek to become only the third Nebraska team in history to win 11 games.

"Right now, my uncle is here and a bunch of my brothers and sisters will be coming down," he said. "I also heard some other people from Midland may be coming."

"They're coming to see me, but they're also coming to see Nebraska play. It's going to be exciting to have them all here watching me play." Miller was the tight end on every major All-American team this year. At 6-feet-4 and 245 pounds, he has the size and strength of an offensive tackle, but the speed, hands and agility of a wide receiver.

Whether he's running a pattern, smothering a cornerback with a block or just standing on the sidelines, Miller cuts an imposing figure.

"I started gaining weight after I got to Nebraska," he said. "When I got out of high school, I only weighed 205."

How did he add the weight? Lifting weights helped. "I also ate a lot," he said, a wide grin lighting up his face. "They really feed you well at the training table."

Miller is a big play man in the Cornhusker offense, averaging a touchdown for every three receptions. He caught 21 passes for 409 yards and seven TDs and also gained valuable yardage running the ball.

On seven tight end reverses, Miller averaged 11.3 yards per carry. It usually took a brave defensive back, along with two or three others, to bring him down.

"I don't care what they have me do, just as long as I get the football," Miller said. "I'll do anything — run short patterns, deep patterns, a reverse, anything that gets me the ball."

"I don't really care how I get it, just so it gets there."

There's no question the Nebraska coaches will try to see that Miller gets his wish on Tuesday.

Carnesecca Takes Stock Of Big-Time Athletics

By The Associated Press

"Maybe basketball is too important to leave to the coaches? Who else would throw out a line like that but Lou Carnesecca?"

I mean," says the outspoken St. John's basketball coach. "Coaches always want to control things. But maybe like government, they shouldn't control all things. A lot of coaches have a tendency to come in with inflated egos. Many times I see these supposedly great coaches — they get up and talk like they invented the game."

"You have a different type individual today. Today's coach dresses like a Park Avenue dilettante. But is he prepared? No, he's not really fully prepared."

Just wind him up and the loquacious, straight-shooting Carnesecca will speak out on any number of important items concerning the college game, as he did recently in an interview.

In his unabashedly honest manner, Carnesecca covered subjects ranging from recruiting to "professionalism" in amateur sports to the pressures of big-time coaching.

"The majority of schools do a good job on recruiting," says Carnesecca. "But some coaches build a program overnight and maybe take some shortcuts along the way. They give kids cars, houses and get them ready for Sing Sing. Really, it's no different than government."

On professionalism in amateur sports:

"Professional sports are so much more cleaner than college sports because they're being more honest. They say, 'We want to get you and we'll give you, etc.' The dollar is the bottom line. Well, why are we hiding behind the word, 'amateur' in college ball? When you give a kid a scholarship — room, tuition, books, laundry expenses — isn't that money?"

"So it's really professional, let's be honest. And by the way, why should there be anything wrong with that? If you were a great piano player and I wanted you to come to the Juilliard School of Music, is there anything wrong for me to give you a scholarship? Is there anything wrong, at the same time, if I take you while you're in school and pay you to give a concert at Carnegie Hall? Aren't you just rewarding a guy for his talent?"

On the pressures of big-time coaching:

"You can never satisfy the crowd. That's why some people get afraid. The crowds want victory and after that, they want more victories. A coach has to be able to take the pats and raps. I've been serenaded, 'Louie, go home.' I've had all that stuff. That's part of it. Just like the opera singer. She's been hissed. She's been whistled down. The Great Verdi, first opera he did in Italy, they threw everything at him."

"Coaches coach with their bags packed. They have to be ready to leave at any moment. What a traumatic experience that is! They don't know whether they're coming or going."

Another of Carnesecca's pet subjects is what he calls the negative impact that agents have on college basketball players:

"I'm concerned about some of the emphasis some unscrupulous agents can have, how they influence youngsters. See, gamblers used to first start just with the money, then it was the girls, then the drugs. Now, the agents come in and they start taking care of a kid in high school. The agent suddenly has control of a kid. You know: 'Here's a thousand dollars — go out and get yourself some clothes.'"

"Later, he might want the kid to do a little business for him on the court — throw a game. Now if you're a young kid, you can't withstand that type of pressure. I've had some dealings with great guys, but I've also had some guys who've told me, 'What the hell do you care about the kid? Come on, we'll split the difference.'"

About dumping games, Carnesecca is of the opinion that it might be once more around the corner, as in the 1950s when the gambling scandals shook college basketball.

"It's there, you better believe it. It's right there, right in the street. You have to pray that you are never tainted by that and the kid has to be strong enough to resist the gamblers who want to shove points. And who knows? If the temptation is that strong and the need that great at the time, you just hope and pray to God that your kids have the guts to turn down any money to dump a game."

While a dean of college coaches, Carnesecca did at one time have a fling at the pros, with the New York Nets in the defunct American Basketball Association. Admittedly, it wasn't the happiest time of his life, but the philosophical Carnesecca did find positive aspects in it.

"When I first started to coach in the league, I used to put the players on the couch and I was the guy talking. After three years, I was the guy on the couch and they were talking to me."

"Cutting players in the pros was the toughest thing. Wives would come in and cry. I'm glad I don't have to do that again. I always say that I will now go to heaven. I have served my time in purgatory. The voyage I took, I'm glad I made the trip. But I'm glad I got home safely."

NFL HITS HIGH

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Football League topped 13 million fans in total attendance for the first time during the 1979 season, while registering the second-highest per-game average in league history, the League reported Thursday. An NFL spokesman said that the unaudited total for the 224-game regular season was 13,182,039, an all-time league record. The previous high was 12,771,800, set last season as the league extended the schedule to 16 games per team.

Johnson's Hoop Leaves Rockets Gasping

ATLANTA (AP) — Eddie Johnson's 15-foot fadeaway jump shot with three seconds left propelled the Atlanta Hawks to a 112-110 National Basketball Association victory over the Houston Rockets Thursday night.

The Rockets' last-gasp attempt to win died when Rudy Tomjanovich missed a three-point field goal as time ran out.

The victory was Atlanta's first over Houston this season after three losses, and keeps the Hawks atop the Central Division with a 24-15 record.

Johnson, who scored 20 points, hit a 10-foot jumper with two minutes remaining to give the Hawks a 106-105 lead. On the next play, he forced Moses Malone to fumble the ball out of bounds, returning the ball to Atlanta.

Johnson came down the court and scored on a layup, giving the Hawks a 108-105 lead with 1:12 remaining.

A three-point play by Malone tied the game at 108-108 with 55 seconds remaining. The teams then traded baskets to set up Johnson's game-winning.

Steve Hawes ignited an Atlanta fourth quarter comeback, scoring seven points in a two-minute span to bring the Hawks into their first tie since the first quarter at 97-97 with 4:58 left.

Hawes then gave Atlanta its first lead since the first quarter at 102-101 with 3:24 left on a three-point play.

Malone led all scorers with 34 points. Tom Henderson added 19 and Tomjanovich had 17.

Tom McMillen added 20 for Atlanta.

Bullets 117, Bucks 108
Greg Ballard scored a career-high 27 points to pace the Washington Bullets to a 117-108 victory over the Milwaukee Bucks.

Ballard, starting his fourth consecutive National Basketball Association game in place of the injured Bobby Dandridge, sank 10 of 17 shots and grabbed 13 rebounds in another excellent effort.

The struggling Bullets, who have lost six of their last 11 games, broke on top 29-14 late in the first quarter as Ballard tossed in 11 points.

Roger Phegley came off the bench to score 14 points in nine minutes and help the Bullets build their lead to 71-55 at intermission.

Junior Bridgeman triggered the Bucks' fourth-quarter comeback by scoring 11 straight points and bringing his team within four, 93-89, with 8:58 left to play.

Cavaliers 125, Knicks 110

Mike Mitchell poured in 34 points, 12 a pivotal third quarter rally that sparked the Cleveland Cavaliers to a 125-110 victory over the New York Knicks.

Campy Russell added 24 and Randy Smith 23 for the Cavaliers, who now have won 13 of their last 14 home games. The Knicks were led by Toby Knight with 30 and rookie Bill Cartwright with 26.

The Knicks opened up a 34-28 lead at the end of the first quarter, but Cleveland trailed just 59-56 at the half. The Cavaliers then took the lead for good, 77-75, on a jumper by center Dave Robisch with 4:33 left in the third quarter.

With Mitchell scoring 10 points, the Cavaliers then ran off an 18-10 spurt to lead 95-85 at the end of the period.

Cleveland built the margin to 14 points, 101-87, and New York never was able to cut the margin to less than eight the rest of the way.

The loss ended New York's winning string at a modest two games and gave the Cavaliers a two game winning string.

Austrian Slopes Beckon Americans

By KAY BELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Imagine a small, centuries-old village, its multi-colored pastel buildings standing alongside baroque-style churches in a downtown traversed by streets not much wider than the cobblestone sidewalks.

Now surround that tiny town with mile-high mountains and you have a fairy tale scene reminiscent of the Brothers Grimm.

A nice childhood fantasy. And a wonderful adult reality, especially if you enjoy the excitement of alpine skiing.

For the picturesque village just described is the flourishing European resort of Kitzbuhel, Austria, a valley hideaway surrounded by 94 miles of ski slopes in the spectacular Austrian Alps.

And just 62 miles to the west is still another beautiful and even more challenging alpine ski area — Innsbruck, twice host city for the Winter Olympic Games.

Both Kitzbuhel, a ski town of 8,300 inhabitants with much of its Middle Ages charm untouched, and the more industrialized city of Innsbruck are in the Austrian state of Tyrol, the region where a great many of the alpine (downhill) skiing techniques practiced today were developed at the end of the 19th century.

But while Kitzbuhel and Innsbruck are favorite winter sport resorts for European skiers, many Americans overlook the opportunities afforded skiers in the Austrian Alps.

In an effort to familiarize Americans with the region, Braniff International Airline and the Austrian National Tourist Office sponsored an expense-paid, eight-day trip to Kitzbuhel and Innsbruck earlier this month for a group of skiers, both beginners and experienced, from Texas and New England.

As one of the beginning skiers, I immediately realized one of the major reasons behind the apparent lack of American enthusiasm toward skiing the Austrian Alps.

Upon first glance (and gasp) at the towering Alps, the idea of skiing down such steep mountains is indescribably terrifying.

And while it's true many of the Austrian Alps trails shouldn't be attempted by skiers less than expert, the resort areas' most popular runs, and those clearly marked, offer the excitement of skiing a different terrain without excessive danger.

Of the 62 marked ski slopes featured in the Kitzbuhel region, four have vertical drops of more than a mile: the Hahnenkamm at almost 1 1/2 miles and the Kitzbuheler Horn, Bichlalm (about two-thirds of the way up Mt. Stuckogel) and Pengestein, all with drops of approximately 1.3 miles.

Twenty-seven other Kitzbuhel slopes are marked with runs dropping between .5 and 1 mile. And if the change in terrain is not enough to satisfy an adventurous skier, a local ski guide will gladly (for a small fee) help you through the steeper unmarked, but skiable, areas.

Or, if you'd rather, just catch the train westward and stop about two hours later at Innsbruck, where the lowest marked vertical drop is 7,000 feet at Tulleinalm.

Tulleinalm is one of five mountains in the Innsbruck region, which features a total of 61.5 miles of marked ski trails. And only Tulleinalm lacks what the Austrian ski specialists term a "difficult" run.

Tulleinalm does, however, offer the longest single ski trail — a 6 1/4 mile course that is recommended by local skiers as an ideal area for ski-touring.

On the other hand Innsbruck Axamer Lizum, with the region's highest vertical drop (7,810 feet) and the site of the 1976 Olympic slaloms and giant slaloms for men and women, offers three "difficult" and three "medium" runs among its 20 miles of marked slopes.

Future Olympians also can test their skills at the men's Olympic downhill run on Mt. Patscherkofel, near the village of Igls and just north of Innsbruck.

But beginners and somewhat cautious skiers are not forgotten in the Austrian Alps.

The Innsbruck ski areas of Seegrube-Hafelekar, Patscherkofel and Tulleinalm offer beginners' slopes and five "easy" runs are provided at Axamer Lizum.

And the nearby town of Mutters provides a portion of its mountain, Mutteralm, solely for use by beginning and intermediate skiers.

At Kitzbuhel, the ski runs are not as clearly marked from "beginner" to "difficult" as at Innsbruck; but there really is little need to do so.

The mountains surrounding Kitzbuhel are on the eastern edge of the Alps and not as steep as those towering above the "Olympic City." And the summer occupation of the Kitzbuhelers, dairy farming, also benefits beginning skiers during the winter season.

Rather than narrow woodland trails (which incidentally are rarer in the Alps than in the United States because of the lower timberline), skiers of many Kitzbuhel slopes are able to work their ways back and forth across the meadows cleared by farmers so that cows can graze in the summer.

And it is not unusual to find along even Kitzbuhel's steeper slopes large ledges or plateaus which provide easier skiing on gently rounded tops.

Because of these meadowlands and ledges, Kitzbuhel is an ideal place for a beginner to learn. And the smoother terrain makes it possible for novice skiers to learn on the same mountain where expert downhill racers are running trails nearby, rather than be isolated on a "baby slope" away from the action, as at Innsbruck.

Kitzbuhel, in fact, is the home of Austria's most acclaimed ski school, "The Red Devils."

Given their name because of their bright red sweaters and, as one member of the team put it, "Because we ski like hell down the mountains," Kitzbuhel's elite corps of 250 instructors (male and female) also thrills spectators with group skiing exhibitions throughout the season, which begins Dec. 20 and lasts through the end of March.

Ski schools also are available at most of Austria's 18 other ski resorts and, unlike American ski areas, each Austrian ski instructor is certified by the government after taking a standardized course that employs the same techniques. That way, a beginning skier can visit several ski regions during a stay in Austria without being forced to relearn basics a different way at each stop.

At the present rate of exchange (dollars to shillings), six days of group (10-15 members) ski lessons totals about $52 at both Kitzbuhel and Innsbruck.

Ski equipment rentals in Kitzbuhel and Innsbruck generally are comparable to American rates. But, as in any tourist area, it is advisable to shop around before renting. Businessmen near hotels in any country are not shy about charging a bit more because of the convenient location.

However, skiing the Austrian Alps can be more economical than American slopes in the area of ski lift passes if you plan to ski (or try!) for at least six days.

Whereas most American resorts require a separate lift ticket for each facility taking you to a different slope, for about $78 (again, at present exchange rates and at the high season maximum cost) you get a six-day ski pass at Kitzbuhel. That averages to about $13 per day — but it entitles a skier to use any of the 56 lifts in Kitzbuhel for the duration of the pass.

The pass also entitles the skier to free skibus service between lifts in different parts of the valley as well as entrance to the town's indoor swimming pool-sauna-recreation center.

The same system is applied throughout the Tyrolean Alps, generally costing a skier with an extended ski pass less than $15 a day for the use of between 30 and 60 lifts.

Three-day passes offering the same advantages also are available, but slightly more expensive than the six-, seven- and 14-day passes.

Two final tips: don't dress too warmly and learn a bit of German.

Although the altitude is high, Austria's latitude and low humidity produce temperatures that usually stay in the 20-degree range during the day. Additionally, the many small valleys — as well as regions between the peaks — tend to "trap" warmer air. And the wind rarely blows.

When you're out on the slopes exerting energy to maneuver the turns of the trail, ski clothing usually worn for late season American ski trips should keep you plenty warm.

As for the German, fluency is not necessary for an enjoyable stay. Most of the Austrians know a smattering of English (or someone who does). And even when the spoken word fails, it's amazing how much can be communicated by a pointed hand and puzzled look.

Most of the ski instructors also know English, having taken it as one of the two required foreign languages necessary for graduation from the Austrian ski instructors certification school.

But by knowing at least a bit of the native tongue, you may be able to pick up an invaluable but "it-loses-something-in-translation" ski tip as well as find out about that special little cafe just perfect for apres-ski in the Austrian Alps.

ALPINE VIEW — At lift station Alpenhaus, halfway up the Kitzbuheler Horn in the eastern Tyrolean Alps, skiers taking a break at the restaurant are afforded a magnificent view of the Austrian horizon. To the left of the bottom lift house, center, is an ideal beginning skiers slope accessible by T-bars, while more experienced skiers can continue past the lift house and ski on into the medieval town of Kitzbuhel.

DISCOVERY

CHAMPION INSTRUCTOR — Former world professional ski champ Hugo Nindl takes a break from the Axamer Lizum slopes and accompanying blizzard and heads for some refreshment at the lodge. Nindl, who won the 1974 skiing title — and $93,000 — is the head of the Axamer Lizum ski school near Innsbruck.

Braniff Offers Ski Package

Braniff International Airline now has a special ski package for those who always wanted to tackle the Austrian Alps.

In addition to a special reduced air fare via one of Braniff's non-stop Boeing 747 flights to Europe, the package makes it possible for you to spend a week in Kitzbuhel for as little as $130 or a week in the Olympic City of Innsbruck for only $139, under the package's economy plan.

Week stays in those cities under the deluxe package cost $530 in Kitzbuhel and $285 in Innsbruck.

Two-week visits in Kitzbuhel range from $222, economy plan, to $1,010, deluxe plan, and from $235 to $525 in Innsbruck.

Both packages include accommodations (with or without baths depending on which of six price categories chosen); hotel service charges and taxes (including waiters' and chambermaids' gratuities); roundtrip transfers between airports and Kitzbuhel or Innsbruck; continental breakfasts in all price categories and also dinners in some categories; the services of Europacar Tours' office in Innsbruck (also for visitors to Kitzbuhel); a program of optional sightseeing tours and excursions to other ski resorts; and an information kit and other travel information.

BEST FRIENDS — Introduced by the Austrian National Tourist Office in 1975, the American Skiers' Best Friends program is a network of volunteer hosts and advisers in 16 Austrian ski resorts. Upon arrival to one of the resorts, a visit to the local tourist office will tell you where you find a "best friend" who will provide you with tips on local ski spots, ski instruction, entertainment, shopping and many other attractions.

Provocative Foreign Film Big Hit With Homosexual Group

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Recently after shopping at Bloomingdale's in New York City, Ugo Tognazzi was startled when a female stranger recognized him, threw her arms around him and planted a kiss.

"I don't know whether she thought I was a homosexual or a heterosexual," said the actor. Either way, he was pleased.

The woman's reaction seems typical of fans of "La Cage aux Folles," a French-Italian confection that has been marking up amazing business in America's theaters. The latest figure from United Artists is $5 million in only 70 playdates. A 360-seat Manhattan theater grossed almost $900,000 in 30 weeks, claiming a new record for a foreign-language film. The world-wide gross: $35.7 million, with many markets scarcely touched.

The plot seems to translate into laughs in any language. It concerns a pair of middle-aged homosexuals who operate a transvestite nightclub in St. Tropez. The son of one of them brings his bride-to-be and her straight-laced parents for a get-acquainted dinner. Chaos results.

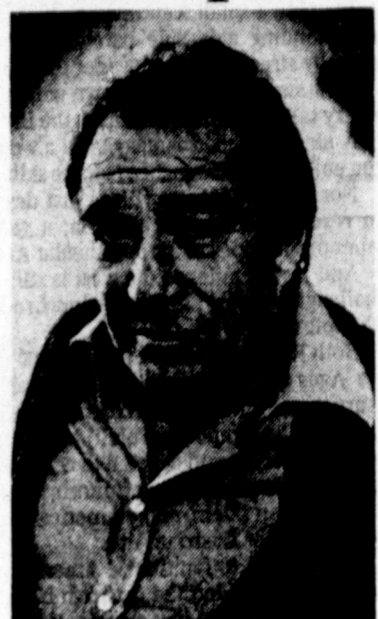

Why the success of "La Cage" (also called "Birds of a Feather")? "First of all, it's a lot of fun," theorized Tognazzi, who plays Renato, the boy's father. "Secondly, because of the fun, the audience is liberated from prejudices they normally would have."

The Cremona-born actor admitted he had concern about how homosexuals would react to the film. Several years ago he had portrayed a transvestite entertainer as a marginal, tormented member of society. The film was attacked by homosexuals.

"Not so 'La Cage,'" he said. "As soon as it opened in Italy, the homosexuals were ready to campaign against it," said Tognazzi. "Not only did they like it, the president of their organization appeared on television with me and said it was sympathetic to their members."

Ugo Tognazzi, without the mustache and greyed hair, looks younger than in the film, also younger than his 57 years.

He resembles a Roman Darren McGavin, if that's possible. He has had three wives and each has bore him a son; he also has a daughter by his present wife, who accompanied him on his first trip to Hollywood.

UGO TOGNAZZI

His impressions after a few days' visit? "A great sense of space, which leads to peace of mind, not to boredom. It looks familiar, as though I have seen it before."

Tognazzi made his observations through an interpreter, since his facility in English is minimal. He visited this country once before, traveling from Albany, N.Y., to Amarillo, to film "An American Wife," concerning an Italian man seeking a mate. The movie was critical of American women, some of whom picketed its showing in Rome, he recalled.

Until "La Cage," most of his 120 films have been aimed at the Italian audience. Although he is one of Italy's most important stars, he admitted that he is not the highest-paid. The reason: "I refuse to be a slave to the commercial film." He has produced four films on his own, all aimed at the thinking audience.

Will there be "La Cage Aux Folles II"? "Of course. Film makers on any continent can't resist trying to repeat a hit. Tognazzi reported that a sequel will be filmed in the spring, employing director

O.J. 'Back In Action' In NBC-TV Movie

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — O.J. Simpson's last game as a pro football player was Dec. 16, but he'll be back in action on TV Sunday night, the star of a two-hour movie which he produced for NBC.

Simpson plays the part of an unknown boxer who makes it big, thanks to a round-house right called his "Mary Lou" punch, and an 11-year-old orphan girl who befriends him when his luck is down.

Television Not Frivolous To Poor Woman

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Donna Dodson has no job, no car and stretches a $151-per-month welfare check to support herself and two small children.

But she's not a pauper, a federal judge says, because she spends more than a third of her income — $54 a month — to rent a color television set.

Some people may consider television frivolous, says Suzanne Bass, Mrs. Dodson's Tidewater Legal Aid lawyer. "To Donna Dodson, it's obviously very important."

Mrs. Dodson has filed suit in federal court asking $311 reimbursement, a quarter of the price and the maximum allowable under the Truth in Lending Act, from Remco TV Rental. She says the firm failed to adequately inform her of the financial consequences when she signed a contract calling for $1,242 in payments over 23 months in return for the use of the 25-inch color set.

Miss Bass said Mrs. Dodson knows she could have bought two or three sets for the 23-month price but had no cash and no credit.

So Miss Bass asked U.S. District Judge Richard B. Kellam to waive the standard $60 filing fee and allow Mrs. Dodson to file as a pauper.

Such motions are frequently granted. But Kellam ruled: "A person who can afford to pay $1,242 for rental of a color TV set for 23 months is able to pay the cost of filing a suit."

So Legal Aid tapped its litigation fund emergencies to pay the fee and other incidental costs.

Miss Bass said her client already has plans for the money if she wins. "She hopes to use it to buy a TV set."

It's generally light-hearted family fare — sort of a cross between the Shirley Temple classic "Little Miss Marker" and a low-budget "Rocky."

As a running back, Simpson was at the top of his profession before knee injuries and age — his age is now his uniform number, 32 — caught up with him. But he has a lot to learn before he'll be a polished acting pro, and he's the first to admit it.

I made mistakes. I have a long way to go as an actor," Simpson said at a preview screening of "Goldie and the Boxer," which is the first offering under his new NBC contract.

The film also features a number of well-known faces, including Phil Silvers, Ned Glass and Vincent Gardenia. One of the lesser knowns is Tim Rossovich, a Hollywood stuntman who played tackle on the same USC football squad with Simpson a dozen years ago.

But the outstanding performance is by Melissa Michaelson, who plays Simpson's young pal, "Goldie." She has appeared in numerous commercials, but this is her first movie and she exhibits the kind of bubbling personality that indicates she will become a first-rate actress.

Since his college football days, Simpson has dabbled in acting. He has appeared in many commercials, most notably those for Hertz, the car rental people, TV series like "General Hospital," and a half-dozen feature films — including "The Towering Inferno," "The Klansman" and "Firepower."

He said he has no regrets about leaving sports. "I feel good about my athletic career. Fulfilled. I had a good career and I'm glad it's over. It's time to go on. I'm just grateful that now that football is over for me, I have something to turn to."

Simpson is closing out his 10-year National Football League career with the San Francisco 49ers, his hometown team. Knowing his football days were numbered, Simpson spent the last year lining up a movie and sports commentary contract with NBC and formed his own company, Orenthal Productions. Orenthal is the O in O.J.

Another two-hour Simpson film, "Detour," will be shown later on NBC. In it, he stars as the driver of a tour bus which is hijacked by dune buggy hoodlums in the desert.

Actor's Role On Popular TV Series Fits Like 'Old Saddle'

HARRY MORGAN

LOS ANGELES (AP) — After four years on "M-A-S-H," the role of Col. Sherman Potter fits Harry Morgan like an old shoe. Or, in Potter's case, an old saddle.

"I think I'm a lot looser now, less military," said Morgan, who became head of the combat zone hospital when McLean Stevenson left the CBS series in 1976.

"There's much more of a flow between me and the other characters now. It's good. We have so much fun sitting around off-camera that it really doesn't change when we get on-camera. There's a lot of affection flowing around there."

Morgan said he felt a little uncomfortable at first when he joined the show. He was a little worried about replacing a comic like Stevenson and about how he would fit in with the rest of the cast.

"Our relationships just get deeper and deeper the longer I'm with the show."

But they were great even from the beginning."

The essential difference between his approach to the role and Stevenson's is that Stevenson's Henry Blake seemed to be a man only temporarily in the Army. He was just waiting to get back to his private practice.

Col. Potter, on the other hand, looks like he was born in the Army. He was in the cavalry once, and ever since has considered the horse as man's best friend.

You know he's a professional soldier, but he doesn't take the rules and regulations too seriously. I was in the Army with a colonel very much like Potter. He had been a country school teacher and had a crusty charm.

Since it came on the air in 1972, "M-A-S-H" has undergone as many personal changes as a real Army unit.

Stevenson and Wayne Rogers, who played Trapper John, were the first to leave. Rogers' character has since been spun off into "Trapper John, M.D." on CBS, with Pernell Roberts playing Trapper 28 years after the Korean War.

Mike Farrell replaced Rogers, joining Alan Alda in the Swamp as B.J. Hunnicutt. Larry Linville (Ma), Frank Burns left and was replaced by David Ogden Stiers (Ma). Charles Emerson Winchester.

Gary Burghoff, as Radar O'Reilly, the only actor who was also in the movie, left early this year. He wasn't replaced, but Jamie Farr's portrayal of Cpl. Kluger became more important, as did William Christopher's role as Father Mulcahy.

Alda's Hawkeye Pierce remains essentially a cutup, but Loretta Swit has guided Maj. Margaret "Hot Lips" Houlihan through a remarkable transformation. In the beginning, she was a bed-hopping harpy carrying on a torrid affair with Frank Burns. She has since been married and divorced and has mellowed considerably.

Undoubtedly, these changes helped keep the show fresh and stimulating. They introduced new personalities that inspired the writers to find new stories and situations.

Prior to joining the series as Col. Potter, Morgan had made another appearance on the show. He played a crazy general.

Asked how he landed his regular role, he said, "I'm not sure. But I've known Gene Reynolds for a long time. Among Gene's first directing was for 'Pete and Gladys,' which I did years ago."

Gene Reynolds produced "M-A-S-H" during its early years and is now producing "Lou Grant." He still has connections with the show as a creative consultant.

"I did the general in the first show of the season when they knew McLean Stevenson was going to be leaving," he said.

"I didn't know it at the time. They called me back two or three months before starting the next season. We went to lunch and they asked me if I'd do it. I said, 'Are you kidding?' I jumped at it."

Joining "M-A-S-H" after it had been on a few years was a new experience for Morgan. "I've always been with a show from the beginning," he said, "but this was easier than starting some of those shows from the beginning."

"M-A-S-H" is Morgan's eighth starring role in a series, which is believed to be a record. His other shows were "December Bride," "Pete and Gladys," "Kentucky Jones," "The Richard Boone Show," "Dragnet," "The D.A." and "Hec Ramsey."

The Human Adventure Is Just Beginning.

Saudi Government Official Rejected In Bid To Purchase Swiss Chalet

GSTAAD, Switzerland (AP) — Elizabeth Taylor, Julie Andrews, David Niven and 282 other non-Swiss real estate owners in this exclusive resort will not have Abdullah Mahdi as a neighbor.

And Mahdi won't have the $1.25 million chalet he wanted.

The Saudi Arabian government official was the first foreign buyer to find out how Switzerland's legal machinery works to stop rich foreigners from buying up the countryside.

The law permits town councils to hold votes on applications by foreigners to buy real estate in their town. The law was enacted in 1961 but had not been invoked until Wednesday, when citizens of Saanen, the commune of which Gstaad is part, voted 221-97 to reject the purchase by Mahdi, president of the Saudi Arabian Civil Aeronautics Board.

"A Clearcut No to Petrodollars" was the headline of a local newspaper after the vote, which was viewed as a triumph for those trying to stop what opponents of the Mahdi sale called, "the sellout of

Author Files Copyright Suit Against Another

NEW YORK (AP) — Author Joseph C. Goulden has filed suit claiming material from his 1972 book "The Superlawyers" was copied and used in Enrique Hank Lopez's new book "The Harvard Mystique."

The suit was filed Wednesday in U.S. District Court charging Lopez, of Boston, and his publisher, Macmillan Publishing Co., with copyright infringement.

Goulden, of Washington, D.C., is seeking unspecified monetary damages and an injunction against further sale of "The Harvard Mystique," which was published this year.

Court papers contained no description of the material Goulden claimed was copied from his book.

our homeland."

"The citizens of Saanen have shown they cannot be bought," a Zurich newspaper said in an editorial.

Foreigners have purchased an estimated $6 billion worth of Swiss land in the past two decades, driving up prices and gaining control of some of the country's prettiest scenery.

The chalet Mahdi wanted to buy is a few hundred yards from the swanky Gstaad Palace Hotel, a hangout for the famed and titled.

Some Saanen residents argued that Mahdi should have been permitted to buy the chalet because he had been a "valuable guest" at the hotel.

Werner Raaflaub, Gstaad citizen who led the fight against Mahdi said, "We felt that a line had to be drawn somewhere and that Gstaad has had its share of foreign owners of real estate."

Arms Control Praised

BRANDT, West Germany (AP) — Former Chancellor Willy Brandt says the 1980s must be a decade of arms control and of struggle against world hunger.

In an article distributed on Thursday by the Social Democratic Party, of which he is chairman, Brandt said détente cannot succeed unless it includes efforts to break "the arms spiral."

Brandt, a Nobel Peace Prize winner, said armed conflict could erupt between rich and poor nations "if no serious efforts are undertaken toward an equalization of North and South."

Brandt is chairman of the North-South Commission, a group that seeks ways to remedy the economic disparity between wealthy nations, generally of the northern hemisphere, and poor lands of the south.

WILLY BRANDT

Unconventional Proposal

WEST DEPTFORD, N.J. (AP) — Frances Ann Conrad always assumed her boyfriend would propose marriage to her in an unconventional way. But she never expected him to use a newspaper advertisement.

Jody Roberts of West Deptford proposed to Miss Conrad in an advertisement published in the Christmas Eve edition of the Gloucester County Times.

The advertisement, which cost $65.70 and was adorned with two wedding bells in one corner, read: "Dear Frances Ann. Through this ad I'm asking you on bended knee to share my life by marrying me. Please! I'll love you always. Jody."

"She accepted the proposal. Miss Conrad, 20, of Clarksboro, said she first saw the advertisement at the dinner table that evening when her parents handed her a copy of the newspaper."

"I started to cry," she recalled. "I said he was crazy. He said he was not going to do it in the conventional way."

Later that evening at a party she found a diamond engagement ring in the bottom of a glass of champagne.

Roberts, 22, said he had thought about placing the advertisement for the past eight months. "I had wanted to do something a little different," he said.

They plan a Jan. 24, 1981, wedding.

Cards Express Sentiment

HIGHLAND HEIGHTS, Ohio (AP) — Outgoing Mayor Roy W. Mayes, who lost a re-election bid on Nov. 6, left Christmas cards for the 1,840 families in this Cleveland suburb.

"Xmas Greetings From A Has-Been Santa," the cards read. "I tried to fill each of your stockings with the very best gift the city could afford. I gave it the best I had but it wasn't good enough. The Lord Himself couldn't please some of you..."

Patience Pays Off For Woman

LONDON (AP) — Yvonne Miller spent her Christmas camped outside a London department store for four days.

But on Thursday she got her reward: a mink coat reduced from $2,200 to $200.

Mrs. Miller, a 39-year-old civil servant from south London, sipped champagne after snapping up the post-Christmas sale bargain at a posh Kensington store and said: "I feel like a million dollars. I feel marvelous, like the champagne, fizzy and bubbly. It was worth queuing in freezing temperatures over Christmas."

During her four-day stint outside the store, she wrapped in a continental quilt, a mountaineer-type sleeping bag and four blankets. Mrs. Miller enjoyed Christmas turkey dinner provided by an anonymous donor.

Each year dozens of Britons line up early for after-Christmas sale bargains in the big London department stores, although numbers were down this season.

"We have had bigger queues but I think the weather put people off," said one store official.

Man Hopes For 'No-Shows'

NEW YORK (AP) — John J. Kenny says he hopes "nobody shows up" for the New Year's Eve party that he's planning to attend.

Kenny, a city policeman, is planning security for this year's welcome to 1980 at Times Square. Some 50,000 revelers are expected.

This year, using barricades, the police will try to divide the crowd that traditionally jams Seventh Avenue and Broadway from 42nd to 46th streets, instead of letting the partygoers form a single throng.

But Kenny still says: "I wouldn't tell my friends to come." Last year, he says, one person was stabbed, 40 people were robbed, and 40 more lost purses and wallets.

'Pit' Claims Another Victim

PARMA, Italy (AP) — Another soprano has become a victim of "The Lions Pit," the Parma opera where the critical audience is noted for booing performers off the stage.

This time the boos chased away Italian soprano Elena Mauti Nunziata, who gave up in the fourth act of Giuseppe Verdi's La Traviata.

The incident led to the suspension of the opening gala of the opera season Wednesday night and triggered screams involving members of the company, the maestro and the theater management.

Opera fans of Parma, in the region where Giuseppe Verdi was born, are reputedly the most keen experts of bel canto in Italy.

Their critical attitude toward singers often leads to the suspension of performances.

Father, Son Serve As Judges

CINCINNATI (AP) — Maurice A. Niehaus and Richard A. Niehaus have become the first father and son in Ohio to serve on the same bench at the same time.

Richard, 35, officially dons his robes as a judge of the Hamilton County Municipal Court on Jan. 1. His father, Maurice, 64, retires from the same court at midnight Dec. 31, after 26 years as a judge.

But the two men wanted to serve together — even if only briefly. So Frank D. Celebrezze, chief justice of the Ohio Supreme Court, issued a special order, authorizing Richard's early appointment as a "temporary substitute" judge to serve without compensation.

"It was something we both wanted," said Maurice after the swearing-in ceremonies on Wednesday.

Hardware Company Drops Ads With TV Star

OAK BROOK, Ill. (AP) — Ace Hardware Corp. said Thursday it will stop using TV actress Suzanne Somers in its advertisements because Playboy magazine photographs of the actress in the nude could embarrass the company.

A letter to dealers from Ace President Arthur H. Krausman said, "This article includes photos that could be potentially embarrassing to your — our Ace dealers — and also to us."

The photo layout of Miss Somers, who stars in the ABC television show "Three's Company," appears in the February issue of Playboy magazine. She had posed for the photos in 1970 when she was a model, and they never had been published previously.

John J. Cameron, corporate communications director, said, "We're distressed about the whole article and that they would use pictures 10 years old. If she hadn't developed into a star, they probably wouldn't be using those photos."

Cameron said the company was pleased with the response to Miss Somers' work thus far, but no decision had been made on whether future ads will include the actress, who has a contract through March 1981.

He said the company will honor its contract with the star.

Jay Bernstein, Miss Somers' personal manager, said the actress was surprised and hurt to learn that Ace dropped her commercials.

Her attorneys are considering a suit against Ace and Playboy magazine, he said.

Playboy photography Director Gary Cole said, "Nobody thought Ace would do what they're doing. It surprised me a little bit."

He said Miss Somers had signed an unconditional release when she modeled, and said her agent had been notified the photos would be used. He added that neither Miss Somers nor her agent made any attempt to stop their use.

Continuous Sale Advertising To Stop

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Sears, Roebuck & Co. will stop an advertising practice that shows merchandise as continuously being on sale, the state attorney general said Thursday.

Attorney General William J. Brown said Sears consented to cease the practice after he charged that the retailer had violated a 1977 court order that specifically prohibited the advertising of a product on continuous sale.

Among evidence presented by the attorney general was a Sears advertisement for sale prices on wheel alignments and other auto services that ran for six consecutive months.

"At some point in time the sale price becomes the real price," Brown said.

YOUR PERMANENT NUMBERS

Step 1 — Year of birth. Read down the left hand column to find the last number in the year of your birth then go across to the appropriate decade. For instance, if you were born in 1947, your number for Physical would be 21, Emotional 17, Intellectual 19. Note whether your numbers are preceded by an A or B; this will be used for Step 2.

Step 2 — Month of birth. Find the corresponding numbers for the month you were born. If your month is February, and your year numbers were preceded by an A, your month numbers would be B for Physical, 3 for Emotional and 31 for Intellectual. Enter your own numbers in the figure chart for Step 2.

Step 3 — Day of birth. Enter your day of birth three times in the figure chart, once each for Physical (P), Emotional (E) and Intellectual (I). Add the three columns to derive your permanent biorhythm numbers for your Physical, Emotional and Intellectual cycles. Now you can refer to today's biorhythm readings.
