Collector Emphatic As To Tax Collections.

Austin, May 30.—Delinquency in filing social security tax returns is going to become increasingly embarrassing to employers, according to a statement issued by Frank Scofield, collector of internal revenue of the first Texas district. With each passing day the excuse of ignorance of the law will become less acceptable to show the absence of willful delay. Ignorance of the law is wholly insufficient to serve as a basis at any time for waiving the lighter ad valorem penalties. But those who fall in the class of willful tax evaders subject themselves to the extreme penalties provided for in the Act.

"For more than a year now," said Mr. Scofield, we have been patiently trying to inform the taxpayers of their responsibility under this law. To this end we have had a staff of approximately fifty deputy collectors in the field, each making dozens of personal contacts every day. In addition my office has sent out thousands of letters and pieces of printed information. During all this time we have been as lenient as possible with delinquents, on the assumption that there was no intent to evade the tax but merely a misunderstanding of the provisions of the law.

"New factors are entering the situation more and more every day, which are proving embarrassing to the delinquents. In the first place, claims are being filed by persons who have attained the age of 65 and who have rendered service in a covered employment since the law went into effect, and by the beneficiaries of employees who have died since January 1, 1937. The estates or beneficiaries of such persons become entitled to three and one-half per cent of the total earnings of the deceased during the time he or she worked in covered employment. When such claims are filed with the Social Security Board, listing the place or places of employment of the deceased and approximate earnings, such claims are then compared with the reports filed by the employers of such deceased persons. When there are no such reports, or when the reports fail to include the name of the deceased, then my field deputies are called to contact such employer, collect the delinquent tax and obtain an explanation of why the tax has not been paid. When a plea of ignorance of the law can no longer be accepted, it is probable the delinquent will have to do his explaining to a higher authority.

"In the second place, my deputies report that occasionally they find instances when an employer agrees with his employees that they will not pay the tax because the employees do not want its benefits and because they do not know that it is compulsory. Such employers do not realize that in doing this they are virtually putting their necks in a noose, so to speak, with the employees holding the rope. At any time in the future such employees, becoming disgruntled or quitting their jobs, are in position to report the employer's failure to file returns. Many such reports are now coming in, and these are given prompt attention.

"I wish to make it clear in this statement that there are no voluntary features under Federal Social Security Act. All taxable employment must be reported and the taxes paid, regardless of whether the employees want the valuable benefits accorded to him under the law or not. Tax and information reports must be filed by every employer regardless of whether or not his employees have social security account numbers or identification number. Failure of employer to file returns without a clear showing of reasonable cause inevitably results in ad valorem penalties ranging from 5 per cent to 25 per cent, and within a short time may subject the employer to charges of Federal tax evasion."

WARM

Sunday was a rather warm day in Quitaque, in fact summer was really bearing down, the temperature registering 106 in the shade. That was a very decided change from the temperature of the several previous days when it seemed old man winter was destined to stage a return to this area.

Graduation Exercises Draw Large Crowds

On Sunday evening, May 29, at 8:30 o'clock, the commencement exercises were held in the school auditorium.

The processional was played by Mrs. C. E. Bedwell after which Rev. J. T. Smithee offered the invocation. The seniors, who were seated on the platform, rendered a group song.

Charles Burgess, the salutatorian of the class, gave an address on "Individuals". This was followed by a talk, "Character", by Edna Young. A trio was sung by Jimmie Payne, Dorothy Dee Sachse and Edna Young.

Orval Graham, the valedictorian of the class, gave an address on, "The Art of Being Friendly." A poem, "Can and Can't", was interpreted by Dorothy Dee Sachse after which the class sang their song.

Superintendent E. W. Scheid awarded a diploma to each senior and medals to the following:

Valedictorian, Orval Graham. Salutatorian, Charles Burgess. Honor Senior, J. D. McCutchen. Honor Junior, La Rue Patrick. Honor Sophomore, Emily Margaret Gardiner.

Honor Freshman, Ava Hasty. Best All Around Boy, Walter Taylor.

Best All Around Girl, Reba Gowin.

The benediction was pronounced by S. T. Bogan.

Tiger Skeleton Is Museum Addition

Canyon—Old razor-tooth, posed snarlingly in the annex to the Panhandle Plains Historical Society museum, is a favorite to visitors this month.

His scientific name is Smilodon Californicus. He's a saber tooth tiger. Every bone is there, dark colored as it came from the famous asphalt beds of the Rancho la Brea. The tiger was huge, larger than the modern Bengal tiger, and stronger, and he is believed to have been the only animal that ever lived which was strong enough to kill the huge Imperial elephants.

The skeleton, one of the few available anywhere, was donated to the museum by the University of California because of the courtesies and favors given University research workers by West Texas State College and Panhandle citizens. Prof. R. A. Stirton and associates of the California institution have done much work in this section.

Sharing in interest lately is Equus Scotti, a fine skeleton of an extinct horse which lived a million years ago. It was as large and well developed as average Texas cowpony, but had the head of a draft horse.

The skeletons were assembled and mounted by Harley Goetsche of Higgins, student assistant in paleontology under the direction of Prof. C. Stuart Johnston, head of the department. The horse was unearthed on the McDaniel ranch in Briscoe county by workers on a WPA scientific project.

7th Grade Graduation Held Friday Evening

The graduation exercises for the seventh grade were held in the school auditorium Friday evening, May 27.

Mrs. Sammie Bryan played the processional for 24 graduates. The sixth grade sang "Have You Ever Been to Texas in the Spring?"

Willadean Owens, the class valedictorian, read a poem, "Our Foundation" composed by Mrs. S. T. Bogan.

Jeanne Hamilton, the class salutatorian, gave the class history.

The address was delivered by Rev. J. T. Smithee after which Prof. O. Dee Lowry awarded the diplomas for graduation.

S. T. Bogan pronounced the benediction.

At The Methodist Church

Where School Faculty Will Spend Vacation

School is out! And the teachers are on various vacations. Mrs. Stewart is in Quitaque and she is beginning an adult class in Homemaking next Monday.

Mrs. Hawkins is still here and Mr. and Mrs. Schied are here for several more days. They will, however, go to Dallas for a short visit this week.

Mr. Bryan has moved back to Ralls for the summer and Miss McCaslin will attend Greeley College in Greeley, Colorado.

After a short stay in Canyon, Miss Bible will attend the Palo Duro Art School at Palo Duro Canyon this summer.

Miss Shelton has not completed her plans this soon and Miss Anderson is moving to San Antonio on or about June 14.

Miss Cooper will vacation and study in California.

Miss Bergner will study in the University of Oklahoma after a stay in Texhoma, Texas.

Baccalaureate Services Held Sunday Morning

The Baccalaureate services for the Quitaque High School were held in the school auditorium Sunday, May 29, at 11 o'clock.

Mrs. C. E. Bedwell played the processional for twenty four graduates and their sponsor, Mrs. Taylor Smithee. The invocation was offered by Rev. J. T. Smithee after which Mrs. Jimmie Stroup led the audience in the singing of "Marching to Zion."

The Ladies Choral Club rendered beautifully, "It Is Well With My Soul", accompanied by Mrs. C. E. Bedwell at the piano.

The address was given by Dr. Z. T. Huff, Dean of Wayland College, Plainview, Texas.

The congregation then sang, "He Leadeth Me." Following this song, A. L. Patterson pronounced the benediction.

Mrs. W. R. Scott and daughter, Jane left Sunday for El Paso to visit their daughter and sister, Mrs. Dee Dodson and husband. They expect to be gone about a month. William Browder of Turkey is assisting in the Post office during Mrs. Scott's absence.

H. J. Bailey and family went to Canyon Thursday to bring Joe Welton home for a brief vacation.

First National Bank Adds New Fixtures

The First National Bank took advantage of the two holidays in succession, Sunday and Decoration Day, and had installed the new fixtures.

The fixtures, purchased several months ago from the defunct First National Bank of Turkey, are of marble base and the tables or desks have marble tops. They take up considerably more floor space than the old ones, and they have been placed on the east side of the building next to the windows, affording better ventilation and giving the employees more comfortable working quarters.

The renovation and improvement has not been completed, but when it is it will comprise a tile floor, a washed air cooling system and an indirect lighting system.

(The same old money will still be used.)

Mrs. Stewart To Hold Classes For Adults

The Homemaking Department of Quitaque High School is offering for the next three weeks a short course to the ladies of the community. The course is to be taught by Mrs. T. H. Stewart and the general subject will be "Improving Home and Family Life."

The course will include table service, meal preparation, foods and health for the family, clothing construction processes, flower arrangements and many other phases of the field in which the modern homemaker is interested.

The meetings will last about one hour each day and the time of the regular meetings will be decided by the class. The class will meet five days a week for three weeks.

Mrs. Stewart is anxious for all women who are interested to meet at the school building on Monday, June 6, at 9 a. m. and plans will be made for further arrangements.

Patterson Dry Goods Installs Conditioner

A. L. Patterson Dry Goods has installed a washed air cooling system in the store and "Pat" says if one machine will not get the job done he will add another unit.

The machine installed by Persons and Sons, has a cylinder type blower and really produces cool atmosphere. It is mounted on a platform at the rear of the building, which was constructed Wednesday.

Joe Bedwell Buys Case Grocery Store

A triple deal was consummated Monday whereby Joe Bedwell became proprietor of the Case Grocery, Clyde Bedwell became owner of brother Joe's truck and wholesale candy route and H. S. Cose came into some cash and ownership of the OK Cafe, which has been operated by Clyde Bedwell. This deal has been under the process of solution for several days.

Bert Grundy, who has been manager of the Case Grocery since its acquisition from Paul Hamilton, will remain with the store, it was stated.

Case stated that his plans are incomplete.

The new owner is no novice to the grocery business, having been "born" in it, as he says, his father, J. L. Bedwell, conducting a store at Gasoline. Clyde (Shorty) Bedwell, conducted a grocery and produce store in Quitaque for several years at the present Tiffin location.

Invoice of the stock was completed Monday night and the new owner assumed charge Tuesday morning, however he had tentative charge Monday.

The stock of merchandise has been rearranged and augmented by the addition of a quantity of new merchandise. Bedwell states that he contemplates carrying one of the most complete, and up-to-date stocks of staple and fancy groceries, fresh fruits and vegetables in this area.

The name of the store henceforth will be Bedwell Grocery.

Culture Club Closes Current Club Year

The last meeting for the 1937-38 Club year was held Wednesday, May 23, in the home of Mrs. J. B. Russell. The lesson was on Opera, with Mrs. Sammie Byran leading. Mrs. J. R. Stroup gave a synopsis of the opera, "Faust", and a brief sketch of the composer's life. This was followed by a piano selection from "Faust" by Mrs. E. C. Price.

A synopsis of the opera, "Thais", and a sketch of the composer's life was given by Mrs. R. B. Persons. A piano selection from this opera was rendered by Mrs. Bryan.

Before adjournment the club stood and read in unison the collect for club women.

A Good Program That Was Reported Late

The following program was reported a bit late to make "news" but just the same it was a good program and deserved publication. First the sponsors forgot to give it to the editor and then the editor neglected to give it to the linotype operator. Then the linotype operator left town but left the story for you and here it is:

The intermediates of the BYPU presented the following program with group No. 1 in charge. The subject of the program was "Isaiah, the Volunteer Witness". Edgar Hatton lead the group through a Bible "quiz" and Group Captain, Charles Burgess, followed with a talk on "Isaiah, the Man".

The Vision and Call, Reba Gowin. A Vision of Self, Earl Patrick. A Vision of Service, Orval Graham. Isaiah's Social Message, Joe King. The Message Concerning Christ, Ophelia Hatton.

A Special Song, "The Old Rugged Cross" by a number of girls.

The sponsors were gratified at the large number of boys in attendance for the program.

The groups are featuring a contest for the largest attendance and ask you not to forget the contest now rating. Come and help your side win.

"Volunteers are needed in Christ's Kingdom today, the work of his church and His kingdom must go on, and God is asking, even now, "Whom shall I send and who will go for us?" There are places of service in our churches for volunteers, there are lost people in our town waiting for some young Christian to lead them to Christ. Come and prepare yourself for Christian service."

Bill King, who is a student at a business at Tyler, is at home for a visit.

Cowboy Reunion Site To Have Bunkhouse

Stamford—After several years of delay, a dream of oldtime Texas cowhands is being realized in the completion of the cowboy bunkhouse at the Texas Cowboy Reunion grounds at Stamford. Construction already is under way and the unique building will be finished before the ninth annual Reunion on July 4, 5 and 6.

Part of the funds for the contract costing around $5,000 already are on hand. More is in sight and it is hoped to complete the final amount through an auction sale of registered Hereford bulls which will be held following the afternoon rodeo performance on July 5. Four bulls have been donated for the sale by prominent West Texas cattlemen and it is expected that others will be given before the date of sale. Entire proceeds of the sale will go to the building fund. Bulls have been donated thus far by John Gist of Odessa; Jack Frost, Sweetwater; the Arledge Stock Farms, Seymour; and A. J. Swenson, Stamford.

The bunkhouse is the property of the Texas Cowboy Reunion Association which has a membership of 1,600 pioneer cowboys who saw service on the ranches 35 or more years ago. The present part of the building was erected in 1934 but funds have not been available to complete it. It is now being finished along the design originally drawn by the architect through the addition of east and west wings to the central part of the structure. Floor space will be increased by 2,000 feet, more than doubling the present size. Part of concrete terrace of the present building will be roofed and wood floor laid over the concrete.

The new part of the building will be of rock veneer, blending with the older part. Scores of cattle brands are carved in the stones of the older part of the building, a feature which makes the bunkhouse unique. The brands were carved in appreciation of original donations made to the building fund, each person giving $15 being entitled to a brand. Additional brands will be carved for persons making donations of that amount.

Besides serving as headquarters for the oldtime cowboys, the bunkhouse is the scene of the cowboy square dances held each night during the Reunion. Income from these dances this year is expected to add $500 to the building fund.

Lewis M. Goodrich Here Last Saturday

Lewis M. Goodrich of Shamrock, candidate for Attorney General, was in Quitaque Saturday in the interest of his campaign, shaking hands with the folks and handing out literature.

Mr. Goodrich stated that his platform was very short and to the point, containing only three planks:

"I have no debts, political or otherwise to pay."

"If elected your Attorney General, the best interest of all the people of Texas shall be represented."

"I shall give all that is within me and shall surround myself with carefully chosen assistants for whose ability and integrity I can vouch."

Speaking of his qualifications for the office Goodrich summed it up in six words—Fair, unbiased, unprejudiced, ambitious, experienced, capable.

Not a lot of oratory and flowery promises, but a comprehensive platform in a nut shell. One other word should be added to those qualifications: "sincerity."

WANTED: ONE MORE GAVEL

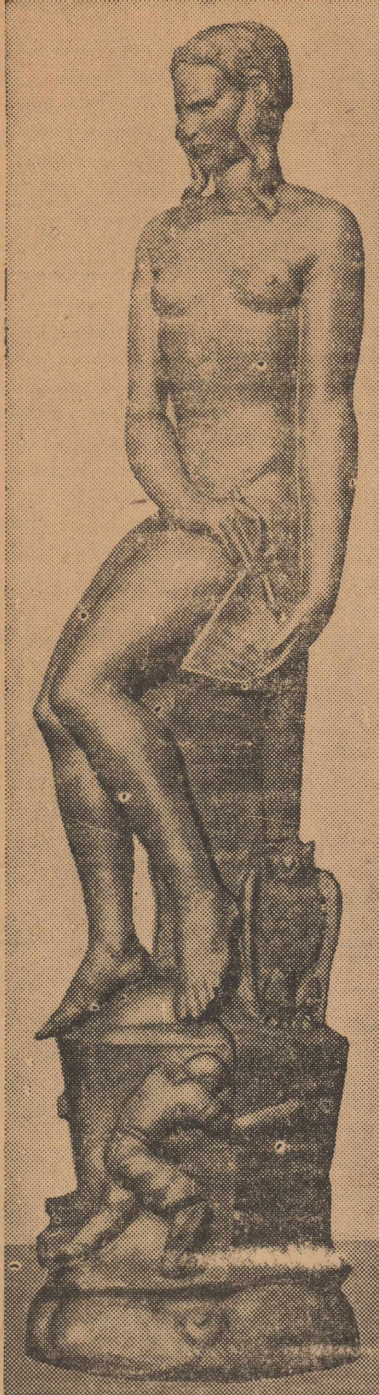

Quitaque Post: Uvalde has a display that no other city in the world can duplicate. In the lobby of the Kincaid Hotel is a huge case filled with gavels that have been presented to Vice-President Garner. The gavels are of every kind of wood, polished and carved, and of gold, bronze, horn and ivory. There is one gavel so huge that a full verse of "My Country, 'Tis of Thee" has been carved on the red, white and blue banner. There is one gavel made of wood from the stairway of an old West Texas courthouse and a bullet is imbedded. There is a paper weight made of wood from a tree that stood on the Shiloh battlefield; with three bullets in the block. And there is also a paperweight made of wood from Sam Houston's law office in Tennessee. Attached is a note, "Use this to hold down the appropriation bills."

One gavel that ought to be there, and isn't, is one taken from the first base of the Possum Trot baseball club. The first base in that case probably has not been preserved, but a cutting from an adjacent thicket might be made to serve the purpose. Mr. Garner was a glistening jewel in the Possum Trot diadem. He played shortstop and played it all over the infield, backfield and between bases. In other words, he covered all the ground allotted to his office and sometimes infringed upon the territory served by his teammates. It has been that way in his public life. He has covered all the ground he represented and many times has fielded for less agile colleagues. When he is through with the vice-presidency Mr. Garner will have more gavels than anybody who has heretofore vice-presidented. He can count them o'er one by one, in default of a beaded rosary, but it would make him happier to heft a gavel hewn from some relic of the Possum Trot club. Isn't there an old bat that was used by the sluggers of the Possum Trot champs? Will some reminiscent citizen of Fullbright, Detroit, Deport, Bogata or Halesboro inquire into this matter? There must be such a bat locked in the archives of some ex-Possum Trotter.—State Press in the Dallas News.

VERSATILITY

Bill Middleton—or rather he was christened Leonidus—was born in Franklin county adjacent to The

Freedom of Press

NEW YORK—Portraying "the unadorned truth," this statue will be dedicated to the constitutional right of freedom of the press in the "Four Freedom" statuary group on the Central Mall of the New York World's Fair 1939.

Free State of Van Zandt. We don't know whether Bill came West or went North and then came South to get to Quitaque, but he landed here by some sort of instinct, premonition or something—and it seems to have been a happy landing for Bill and all the lads comprising this bailiwick. When Leonidus came to Quitaque he was first associated with the light plant, then locally and individually owned. When this concern was sold to the West Texas Utilities company, Bill finally learned that his pay had stopped so he got mad and quit. Since then he has been city secretary and waterworksing.

He put in a machine shop to occupy his spare moments and has one of the best small machine shops in west Texas—or any other area. Bill can make anything, nearly, as far as the size of his equipment will permit.

He doesn't like to make sewing needles or oil well bits, the latter being too heavy for his shop and the former a wee bit tedious. But he can make replacement parts for practically any machine—locomotive, gin plant, linotype machine, job on newspaper press, cams and cog wheels, and most any kind of bearing. Also he is just as good at anything electrical.

In fact Bill is truly a "Flucky Harris," made famous by Amos and Andy—the double genius. He is not a "jack of all trades" but a master of several.

He carries more figures in his head than the ordinary arithmetic textbook—and they mean something. They are not problems to be worked out, they are the answers. Frankly, when advice on any subject is desired Bill Middleton is sought to furnish the answer—and he does.

There are numerous other things we could tell you about Bill, but many of our readers know these already. So we will conclude by saying that now his favorite PASTIME is entertaining his handsome young son, who is just the age to furnish as much entertainment as is provided for his own enjoyment—and Papa Bill (or Leonidus) is not stinting in his parental and entertaining role.

IN THE SHADOW OF THE CAPITOL
By Boyce House

The world is full of "believe-it-or-nots"—and to prove it, here are three from the same county:

Eastland has had four courthouses. The second one was destroyed by fire; the third one was worn out and torn down (remember Old Rip?—he was in the cornerstone) and the fourth one now stands on the square. But just across the street from the beautiful new temple of justice stands the first courthouse of all in the town—and the building is still in use as the location of a drug store and of offices.

Oscar Lyerla was running for county clerk in 1920. He offered a campaign card to a boy in Rising Star. The lad said "I'm not old enough to vote." The humorous Lyerla said, "Well, you may be before I'm elected." Sure enough he lost the race. Fourteen years later, he was running again—this time for the Legislature. A young man asked, "Do you remember me? I'm the boy you gave the card to and I'm going to vote for you."

Ten miles south of Eastland, a town sprang up when the H. & T. C. Railroad built through the county about 50 years ago. Some scientists connected with the railroad gave the town the name of Carbon and named the streets Bituminous, Anthracite, Petroleum and other minerals. Nearly a generation later, oil struck at Ranger, Eastland and Desdemona, and the biggest boom that America ever saw resulted. Strangely enough, Carbon itself has had very little oil, however.

If you want to see a rodeo that provokes the most spontaneous enthusiasm, attend such a one as District Judge Ralph Yarborough addressed briefly in his race for Attorney General not long ago at High Island. The contestants were real cowboys and the stock consisted of real ranch horses and cattle. The ground wasn't exactly level and there wasn't any saw-dust to cushion a fall. There was a clown who had lots of fun asking the boys and girls why a fireman wears red suspenders and who climaxed the day's events with a ride in a bucking flivver. Constable John Payton was here, there and everywhere seeing that all visitors had a good time (which they did). It was the kind of rodeo-with-the-bark on that Will Rogers used to like to perch himself on the top rail of the fence and watch with the other boys from the range.

It seems to me that a swell feature story could be written about the experiences of such a columnist, say, as Fred Massengill at Terrell or Jim White at Brownwood. Theirs and columns of their contemporaries reflect the life of a Texas town—aims, achievements, sorrows and joys—as interpreted by a gifted and sympathetic observer. No metropolitan journal can take the place of a home city paper nor can the radio or television. Each of these media, of course has its sphere.

Pet peeve: The driver who whips around the car I'm driving and then turns in at a filling station one block up the street.

Curtis Hancock, first chairman of the State Highway Commission lives in Breckenridge and is a candidate for the Legislature. J. Monroe Sweeney, former big league umpire, who lives in Mineral Wells, is a candidate for the same office and so is Gabe Thomas, Mineral Wells merchant. If we've overlooked anybody, just rise where you are and let's have your name!

Texas' most famous private citizen: Amon Carter.

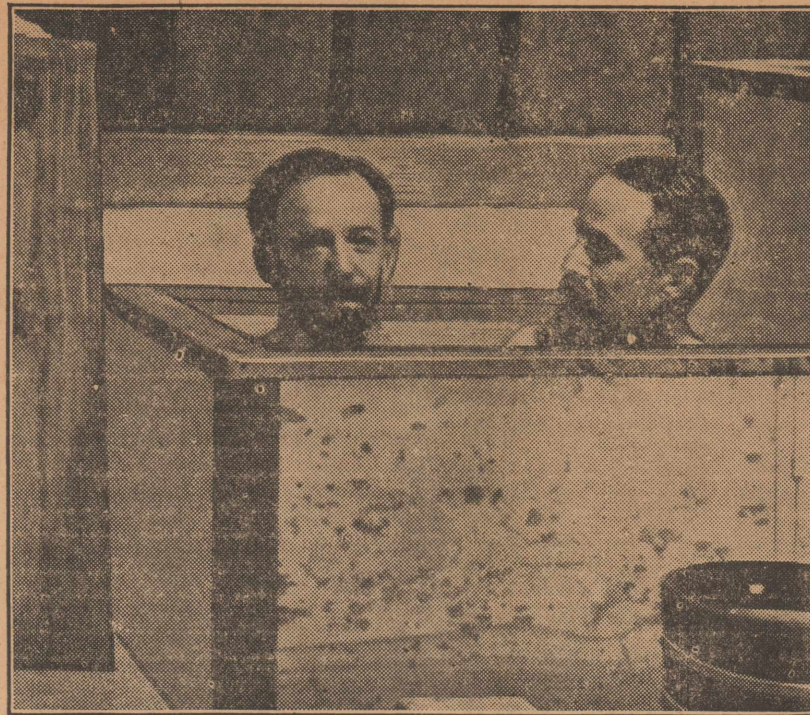

The Fort Worth newspaper publisher, intimate friend of President Roosevelt, Vice President Garner and of the late Will Rogers, is nationally celebrated as a host. The register at Shady Oak Farm is an American "who's who." Two or three hundred guests are not an unusual number. There are a Longhorn steer, a wooden Indian, a "Welcome" sign that flashes on and off, and a pool that (it is humorously narrated) contains a trout which has been caught and then tossed back by innumerable celebrities. Carter has presented enough big white Texas hats to distinguished guests to fill the shelves of a good-sized shop, and, in return, he prizes such head-gear as Lindbergh's flying helmet and a tousled looking hat that somehow seems to suggest the lovable, happy-go-lucky, unpretentious nature of the former owner, a one-time Oklahoma cowboy who won a place in the hearts of millions of people before he fell to death in an Alaskan river.

"Let me have that 7-11 car" says Judge Ralph Yarborough of Austin to parking lot attendants, for the last three numbers of the automobile license of the candidate for Attorney General are the "lucky" figures.

There may be gold in them thar hills but this correspondent wouldn't know gold if he saw it. In windows of assay shops in El Paso, one can see arrays of ores. A sparkling chunk proves to be only pyrites and a drab hunk is gold. In judging human values, too, we are sometimes fooled by mere superficial glitter.

Speaking of best sellers, "Gone With the Wind" wasn't even a ripple as far as sales were concerned, com-

Saturday Night in Japan

"COME on in, the water's fine." Bathing in Japan is on a different plane from ours, as these two American gentlemen can tell you. Tubs are perpendicular there, instead of horizontal, and you stand in the water up to your neck. But we shouldn't laugh at this somewhat primitive scene, according to Consumers Information, which points out that only a hundred years ago, there were only 1,500 bathtubs in the United States, all of them in Philadelphia, where they had a city water system and taxed each tub $3.00. President Fillmore installed the first tub in the White House in 1850. Advertising of the advantages of convenient and sanitary bathing started 31 years later, has continued increasingly ever since, and has made the United States the cleanest nation on earth. Even the most advanced European nations are far behind us in this respect, and the possession of a bathtub in most countries is a sign not only of opulence, but ostentation. The United States is among the few countries generally educated to the knowledge that health and cleanliness go together.

pared to that classic, "Slow Train Through Arkansas."

Remember the sign in the dining room of the Mena Hotel: "To keep our guests from carrying fruit away from the table, there will be no fruit on the table!"

And the man who wanted to commit suicide, so he lay down on the track three miles ahead of the train, but starved to death before it got there.

And the old woman who wanted to be told "when we get to Paragould" and the conductor forgot, so he backed the train seven miles to the town and she thanked him sweetly and explained, "My son told me to be sure to take a dose of my medicine when we get to Paragould?"

Now there was a book, that was a book, my hearties!

Seen in Austin hotel lobbies: Senator J. Manley Head of Stephenville, back from Hollywood, where he appeared in the movies.

Judge Joe Burkett of San Antonio who was youngest district judge in Texas during the Ranger oil rush.

Curtis Hill, former assistant attorney general, now living in Dallas, with a new fund of stories told with an amusing drawl.

And there's Tom Cooper, Lindale editor, another famous story teller. Now all we need is Hick Halcomb—or do we?

Pat Moreland, member of the State Unemployment Commission, who was introduced by an enthusiastic "introducer" in an East Texas oil city during the campaign, two years ago, as "My lifelong friend, whose name is a household word, Mr.—ah—Mr." then, leaning over but in a voice that the microphone carried to all present, he asked, "What in thunder did you say your name was?"

Sidelights, By Marvin Jones
The new works relief bill is now pending before the Congress.

When it was under consideration in the House of Representatives a few days ago, I was fortunate in securing the passage of an amendment which will allow farmers to participate on works projects.

The language of this amendment is as follows: "Farmers in actual need of work but who are not on relief rolls shall have the same eligibility for employment on projects in rural areas as persons on such rolls."

There are many farmers whose property is heavily mortgaged and who have suffered several crop failures because of the drought. They are in need of actual work, but in the past they have not been able to qualify for employment on various projects under the regulations of the administrative officials. In many instances they have teams and equipment that can be used on the projects. There have also been instances of projects in rural area which have been greatly needed but the population has not been large enough to draw sufficient workers who can qualify under the regulations. I am very glad that the new pro-

Commissioner's loans. This measure has now been passed by the House of Representatives.

The interest rate on Federal Land Bank loans is to be continued at 3 1-2 percent, and the rate on Commissioner's loans at 4 percent.

Last year when Congress passed legislation to continue these rates, the President vetoed the measure. It was then passed over his veto. I led the fight in the House for approval over the veto, as I felt that condition justified a continuation of the emergency rates.

I hope the President will sign the new measure so these rates may be continued, as I believe that such action is very desirable.

As the result of a measure reported by the Committee on Agriculture and passed some time ago, the Farm Credit Administration now has the authority to refinance Commissioner's loans in worthy cases over a period of the same length of time as that allowed on Land Bank loans.

These are the lowest farm interest rates that have ever prevailed in this country and are lower than those which prevail in any other country. The Farm Credit Administration is the first institution of its kind that has furnished a method of credit suitable to the needs of agriculture and separate from the commercial credit structure of the country.

I am anxious that the work be continued at the lowest rates that can possibly be obtained.
