THE CRYSTAL GAZER
(Class Prophecy)
By Mildred Foster

Here now I see a glass case, a number of yellowed and worn sheets of newspaper. The heading is "Advice to the Lovelorn" by Polly Pepper. You read the answer to the pathetically foolish questions, and they are sensible answers, although a trifle over-sentimental. The date is 10 years ago. Then you read the card over the glass and it says, First series of the Polly Pepper's "Advice to the Lovelorn" which became the most famous syndicated newspaper article series in the world. Polly Pepper was Othelia Woodruff, graduated from the local high school in 1948.

Now as I gaze in my crystal ball, I see a famous violinist who plays the most beautiful music for us. Yes of course, its Betty Brunson, and she plays better, even better than we always said she would. Her specialty is "The Arkansas Traveler". She has just returned from a concert tour in Europe.

Next I see a collection of silver loving cups and medals of all descriptions. Their inscriptions vary from "High running jump at state track meet" to "Winners of Olympic Games, Greece". The card states simply: "These trophies won by Earnest Barbee, World's greatest athlete".

Again the mists close down. When they rise again, it is 3 o'clock in the morning. A huge truck comes down the city street and pauses at the janitors entrance of each apartment house. A man delivers a rack of milk bottles and drives on down the street. It is Arthur Patrick, proprietor and owner of a huge dairy farm, making the delivery himself, just for fun. I remember that in the old days, he always liked to sit up all night and that undoubtedly explains his choice of occupation. As a milkman he can ride around town all night without fear of inquiring glances from policemen or the night watchman. He is happy at last and making money as well.

The scene shifts to the display room of a large gown establishment. A fashion show is in progress. I watch the manikins strut about the platform. One of them is exceptionally graceful and wears her evening gown well. It is Ima Lee Morris, the chief manikin of the establishment.

The scene changes. It is a large city. We are in the business district. I am looking at a large factory. It has a huge electric sign reading "Ham's Best Toilet Soaps". Thousands of men are leaving for the six o'clock whistle has just blown. Last of all, the owner comes from his office. He has grown portly, and gray about the temples, but he is as immaculate as a toilet soap manufacturer should be. His motto carved above his office door is 'I keep the world clean.' This clean looking man is one we
