H. R. 10548 (Rogers of Texas) was the number of the legislation which I introduced on February 13, 1960. This measure was the result of much study, research and discussion. It was designed to bring about a partnership operation between the government of the United States and private enterprise, to the end that our philosophy of private enterprise would be fully carried out. Also, it was to provide a bulwark against confiscatory practices that could have come into being. Hence, I am indeed proud to have had the opportunity to author this legislation, to see it pass through the Congress, and to stand up against the onslaughts leveled against it. It is, of course, rewarding to see it being implemented and carried out and to know that its purposes are being fulfilled in all respects. It was my pleasure to address the House of Representatives on the subject recently, and I reprint here a condensation of the speech that I made on the subject.

The long-range program in which industry and government are working together to save helium now lost when natural gases are burned as fuel is one of the most forward-looking and commendable efforts ever made in the field of conservation. When the government acts to curb waste of a limited, irreplaceable resource essential to progress, such action surely is worthwhile. When it attracts private capital at private risk, creates many new jobs for industry, stimulates the economy and brings rapid technical advances, it can be termed praiseworthy. When this same program pays for itself, it must be rated close to ideal. The helium conservation program will accomplish this, and more. It provides an outstanding example of industry and government cooperating in an enterprise beneficial to both and to the entire nation as well. Consider the accomplishments. On Aug. 15, 1961 (12 days after Congress approved funds) the first long-term helium-purchase contract was announced. Within 90 days, three more had been negotiated. Now, little over a year from the date of the first contract, helium from a new plant at Bushton, Kansas, is about to start to the Cliffside gas field at Amarillo, some 350 miles away, where it will be stored to meet future demands. Four other plants are near completion. Phillips Petroleum is finishing two plants, in Sherman County and Dumas, which expect to begin deliveries in December. Two more plants in Kansas are due to go on stream next March. To get the helium to Cliffside at minimum cost, a pipeline is being built from Cliffside to Bushton; designed by an Oklahoma firm, the line was built by Gronger and King of Pampa and R. H. Fulton & Co. of Lubbock. In one year, more than 90 other contracts, worth over $4.2 million, have been awarded, on everything from tele-metering equipment to milepost markers.

It was clear that it would take higher prices to make the program self-liquidating. Accordingly, the Interior Department raised the price from $19 to $35 per thousand cubic feet. This will permit repayment within 25 years, with interest, of all government funds used to buy helium during early years of the program. Thus, the users will pay the costs of guaranteeing the supply. This program is a clear case of acting before an emergency arises. Uses for helium in electronics, nuclear energy, missiles, space and refrigeration have tremendously increased the demand. Requirements were expected to exceed supply by 1985. Hence we took immediate steps to obtain necessary legislation. The entire matter was heard by the Mines and Mining Subcommittee of the House Interior Committee, of which I was a member. We made it clear to the Congress that action was essential. But one strong faction advocated the take-over of all helium, wherever found, by the government under the right of eminent domain. Those of us who have long supported the basic free enterprise theory waged a vigorous battle against this idea and won. The oil and gas business reached its present world leadership position through private initiative; it is logical to assume that proper development of helium resources can come through the same route.

This experience has refuted irrevocably those who malign the natural gas industry as self-interested and profit-hungry. The program has been started more rapidly, more efficiently and at less cost than if the government had tried to do it alone. The dynamic capabilities of a free industry in a free economy have come into full play. Five plants are nearing completion in less time than the government would have taken to build one. And, technical advances are marvelous. Plants built less than 20 years ago could process only 2.5 million cubic feet of gas daily; the new plants can handle 400-500 million cubic feet a day. And, any risk inherent in the new methods is borne by the companies; the government agrees only to pay the negotiated price for the helium it receives. Current agreements give private companies maximum incentive to reach their greatest helium-producing capability, thus encouraging the fullest possible conservation.

PARENT-TEACHER ASSOCIATION TO TAKE PART IN LIBRARY EXPANSION PROGRAM

The Quitaque PTA met in regular session Monday night at the school auditorium with only a small attendance.

Supt. Mason led the Invocation to open the meeting, the congregation then joined in singing a song after which the reports were read. O. R. Stark read the minutes of the previous meeting and Mrs. Berryhill gave the financial report.

In the business meeting, the membership voted to go into the Library expansion along with the school. The school will furnish $500 to the fund, the PTA will also give from their project fund, and worthwhile books and magazines will be accepted from anyone who will give them. It is hoped that the library can be kept open and will be used during the summer months, probably two mornings a week. The use of the library will be available to the public also.

After the business session was completed, Mrs. Delene Tyler, the Program Chairman, had a most interesting period of entertainment lined up.

Cotton harvest picked up momentum last week only to be interrupted again on Friday by rain.

According to Kermit E. Voelkel of the Memphis, Texas, Classing Office, only 2,729 samples have been classed to date as compared with 13,839 classed at the same time last season.

Grades held up moderately well with Middling Light Spotted, 15/16 inch, being predominate in areas that had not defoliated prematurely.

Federal Law On Employing Children On Farms Is Explained

Local farmers are reminded of the child-labor requirements of the Federal Fair Labor Standards Act.

Following are several questions and answers covered in the Federal Fair Labor Standards Act:

1. Do the child-labor requirements of the Fair Labor Standards Act apply to agriculture? They apply generally to farmers whose crops or products go neither directly or indirectly into interstate or foreign commerce.
2. What are these requirements? Farmers may not employ children under 16 years of age in agriculture during school hours. Farmers must also keep certain records required by regulations under the act regarding the minors they employ. These requirements apply to the employment of migratory children as well as local resident children, but not to the employment of a farmer's own children by the farmer on his farm.
3. How old must a child be to work on a farm outside school hours? This act set no minimum age for employment in agriculture before or after school hours on any school day, or at any time on school holidays, and during school vacations.
4. What records must be kept by farmers for minors working on their farms? Every farmer employing minors in agriculture (other than a parent or a person standing in the place of a parent employing his own child or a child in his custody) must keep records containing the following items for every such minor under 18 years of age who works on any day when school is in session for the school district where the minor is living while so employed: (a) name in full; (b) place where minor lives while employed; (c) date of birth. It is not necessary that records be maintained in any particular order or form. They must be kept in a safe and accessible place and be open at any time to inspection and transcription by authorized representatives of the Secretary of Labor. These records must be preserved for at least three years.
5. Is a farmer in violation of the Federal law if the under-age children working on his farm were not hired by him personally? A farmer is responsible for every under-age child working on his farm. This includes children hired either individually or as a part of a family group by labor contractors, processors, or others.
6. What are the penalties for violation? The act provides in case of willful violation, a fine up to $10,000.00 For a second offense, committed after conviction for a similar offense, a fine of not more than $10,000 or imprisonment of not more than six months, or both may be imposed.

Basketball comes to Quitaque next Tuesday night, October 16 as the Panthers and Pantherettes take on the always tough Samnorwood High teams here in the local gym. Game time is 7 o'clock.

No information is available to the Tribune as to what to expect, but Samnorwood is much like Quitaque in that they can always be expected to field a good basketball team and are usually capable of giving most everyone a battle.

Jack Johnson suffered a very painful toe injury late Wednesday and Coach Streun reported Thursday morning that it was impossible to tell yet whether Jack would be able to play in the season opener Tuesday night. They are hoping that he can play.

Area basketball fans will have a special eye on the Panthers, since they are defending district and regional champions and it will be interesting to see what kind of a team Quitaque will come up with this time. Four of last year's starting five were lost by graduation, with only all-district Jack Johnson back to see action again. Jack is a Junior.

Quitaque has a new coach guiding their destinies this year, Joe Streun coming to Quitaque from Kellton, following young James Roberts' untimely death last summer.

Coach Streun will have three boys to go along with Jack Johnson, who saw considerable action last year. They are Jim Saul, Bobo Morrison and Cappy Wise. In addition to these boys are several other boys who are hustling for a starting place on the team and could beat out some of the more experienced lads during the season. Other squad members include Terry Don Woods, Carl Woods, Clyde Dudley, Joe Hamilton, Warren Merrell, Mike Baird, Eddie Monk, Dwight McKay, Jamie Johnson and Phil Barefield.

Coach Streun will not have the height that last year's team had. Jack Johnson, who is now almost 6-6, is the only six-footer on the squad. This year's team will not be the high scoring squad that the Panthers boasted last year, either, but after watching a couple of workouts, we predict that this year's team will be a smoother team, running their patterns and plays and handling the ball better than last year's team did. Much improvement can already be seen.

The reporter has not had an opportunity to see the Pantherettes in action as yet, but they should come up with a good team this year, also. Coach Streun has several of last year's regulars, back and several newcomers that were showing quite a bit of promise as juniors last year.

Back for another year is 2-time all-district, Chlonex Woods, SeReatha Stephens, Judy Colvin, Janice Dudley, Brenda Whittington, Jennifer Whittington and Jerry Faye Elliott. The Pantherettes have good height, and some of the girls move well and might be the surprise team of the district.

Local fans are urged to turn out for the season's opener next Tuesday night.

Next Friday night, October 19 the local teams will take on the Hedley High teams in games here in Quitaque.

WEST TEXAS STATE HOMECOMING WILL BE SAT., OCTOBER 20

CANYON. — Traditional Homecoming activities have been planned for the annual West Texas State College celebration here Oct. 20, when thousands of students and ex-students join for a day on the campus.

Silver anniversary reunion of the Class of 1937 is scheduled, along with a joint reunion of the classes of 1947 through 1951. About 100 members of the 25th anniversary class are expected, and approximately 1000 members of the other five classes will be on hand.

West Texas State students will prepare for Homecoming with a "Western Day" celebration Oct. 19, when the Homecoming assembly is scheduled at 11 a.m. The program will be televised over KGNC-TV. Students will dress "western" on Friday.

OPERATION LEAVES OFF — BIG AID TO MACHINE HARVESTING COTTON

College Station — Last year 64% of the Texas cotton crop was machine harvested — 13% by mechanical pickers and 51% by strippers. The trend is upward for this type of harvesting, says Fred C. Elliott, cotton specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

An important consideration in the machine harvesting of cotton, he says, is the use of either defoliants or desiccants for preparing the cotton plants for the harvesting process.

Defoliants are used to prepare the cotton plants for spindle picking and two groups of material are available — dusts and sprays. Dust defoliants require leaf moisture to activate them and therefore give best results when applied late in the afternoon or early in the morning, says Elliott. Spray defoliants are available as chlorate and organic phosphorus materials. They may be used in the absence of moisture and at lower humidity levels. Thorough coverage of the plant is essential.

With ground sprayers, 10 to 20 gallons of water is recommended as the carrier for the material used, depending upon the type of sprayer and the extent of plant growth, explains the specialist. Applications of the defoliants should be staggered in order to stay just ahead of the harvesting operation and as a means of reducing re-growth, points out Elliott. He emphasizes that only recommended defoliants should be used. When 60% or more of the bolls are open most defoliants can be safely used, he says.

Arsenic acid and pentachlorophenol are the materials commonly used for desiccating purposes, that is preparing plants for stripper harvest. These materials can be used in water as recommended by the manufacturers. Desiccant applications should be made when more than 60% of the bolls are open under dryland conditions and on irrigated cotton when more than 80% of the bolls are open. No fiber damage should occur when recommendations are followed, Elliott says.

 (By Roy G. Davidson)

The First Baptist Church in Quitaque announces that Sunday, October 21 will be George Owens appreciation Day and invites everyone in Quitaque to take part. Mr. Owens resigned as music director of the First Baptist Church here the last Sunday in September, marking more than thirty years of service to the local church and community. He resigned from the place of service several years ago but was never completely out of service even then, being called on when the leader was absent or for other reasons. He came to Quitaque in February, 1930 when the Rev. W. M. Draper was pastor and has served under some 11 other pastors in addition to Bro. Draper. He has led the singing in many revivals in the local Baptist Church, the local Methodist Church and was always ready to help when needed for funerals, or at civic functions or occasions. The First Baptist Church invites everyone in the community to take part in this day. They are invited

NEWS from the High Plains
Research Foundation

A bristle cone pine is the focal point of interest for lawn and garden enthusiasts, visiting the new headquarters at the High Plains Research Foundation. The descendant of this ancient pine has been planted at the northeast corner of the new Killgore Foundation office building, at Halfway.

The keen interest evinced is attributed to the fact that this pine species is the oldest living thing in America. 4,600 years ago, according to the March 1958 issue of the National Geographic Magazine, a bristle cone pine started its growth in the Inyo National Forest in the White Mountains in East Central California. This stunted old tree growing at 10,000 ft. timberline is still alive and occasionally produces one cone bearing seeds. These seeds still produce trees. The old tree has been proven to be 1,500 years older than the oldest known living sequoia. This oldest bristle cone pine has a life line a few inches wide but the rest of the tree is a standing knarled ruin. The small pine at the Foundation is very much alive.

Another interesting feature, among the 35 different trees and shrubs, is a line of ponderosa pine planted west of the Killgore Memorial Building and the Jim Hill greenhouse. It forms the border line between the headquarters and the 1st Baptist Church of Halfway. This pine variety has recent fame through the TV popular program of the same name. The trees and shrubs were labeled for the recent field day by the 4-H Club of Halfway.

The 15 lawn demonstration plots south of the Killgore building and east of the Jim Hill greenhouse are also attracting garden clubs and lawn enthusiasts who desire to compare the various grasses and clovers seen side by side. The trees, shrubs and grasses are gifts of nurseries, seed houses, and individuals in Plainview, Kress and Lubbock.

WHEN TO DEFOLIATE

If and when to defoliate is more than likely one of the problems cotton farmers are considering at this time. Defoliation to the cotton farmer is a very important step in harvesting, but it can also be very costly and damaging if used too early. Maturity of the cotton boll is the prime factor to be considered cautions K. E. Voelkel, in charge of the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture Cotton Classing Office, Memphis, Texas. An Extension Service Bulletin suggests that at least 60% of the bolls on a cotton stalk should be open before applying defoliant. The bulletin gives detailed instructions on defoliating, types of materials available, and conditions under which they are recommended.

Maturity is of prime importance because when the defoliant is applied and becomes effective, the maturity processes are stopped. Then, when the cotton is harvested, which in most cases includes mature and immature bolls, chances are that the classification assigned to the staple length will be Wasty. Wasty cotton is defined as cotton which has a fiber that is weak, irregular and immature, and such cotton carries a price penalty. If too many bolls are immature, the lint turnout is usually reduced, so the farmer that defoliates too early loses in two ways — a reduced grade and less cotton.

Your County Agent has a bulletin which gives specific and detailed information as to when, how, and what of defoliants. It would be wise to study all information available before defoliating your cotton.

WALTER ROGER'S NEWSLETTER

Hundreds of new jobs have been created, in participating companies and supplier industries. Technical advances will greatly benefit the entire natural gas industry. Removal of helium from gas automatically increases pipeline capacity for transporting burnable hydrocarbons. And, consumers will no longer pay for a substance with no fuel value. Had the government conducted this program alone, the Bureau of Mines would have had to expand its staff enormously, for more time would have elapsed, far more helium would have been lost. Through cooperation with industry, it has been possible to conserve even more helium than first considered possible, at extremely low cost. There is work still to be done, but we have achieved our objective—maximum conservation at minimum cost to the taxpayer.
