Important Changes Noted In Income Tax Legislation

College Station — During the last session of Congress important legislation relating to income tax payments was passed. Among the changes were depreciation and tax credit on certain types of assets used in farm and ranch operations as well as other businesses, reports C. H. Bates, extension farm management specialist.

The investment credit provision is a tax credit of 7 percent, computed on the purchase or investment in depreciable, personal property during 1962 and thereafter. Livestock, including race horses, are excluded from the list of eligible items, Bates points out. The credit is given only for the tax-year in which the business asset is acquired and includes such items as tractors, combines, trucks, cotton harvesters and new fences, explains the specialist.

Here is an example of how the investment credit provision works. Assume a tractor is purchased in November 1962 for $5,000 with no trade-in. The useful life of the asset determines the amount of tax credit allowed. If the tractor is set up on a life of 8 years, a full 7 percent of the purchase price or $350 is credited on the tax due from the taxpayer for 1962 business operations. If the asset has a determined life of 5 years, only a third of this amount is allowed as a tax credit. Assets having a 6 or 7 year life entitle the purchaser to two-thirds of the $350 tax credit, explains Bates.

Used equipment items get the tax credit, too, but are reported separate from new assets, says Bates. In case of "trade-ins," the portion of the purchase price eligible for tax credit is computed differently on new and used equipment.

Because this provision is new some taxpayers may overlook the requirement that the tax credit is compulsory on eligible assets. The basis or remaining cost for depreciation purposes must be reduced by the credit taken. If the taxpayer fails to take the credit for items purchased in 1962, he simply loses the amount involved and it cannot be recovered in future years, says Bates. All farmers are urged to get a copy of the 1963 Farmers Tax Guide at the office of county agents or Internal Revenue when it is available.

Effort Will Be Made To Expand Veteran Program

An effort to increase and expand the pension program for veterans of the First World War is the major objective of the Veterans of World War I, Inc., when the new Congress convenes January 7.

Edward J. Neron, of San Diego, California, National Commander of the Veterans of World War I, urges all eligible veterans to contact the National Headquarters of the VWWI at 40 G Street, N. E., Washington 2, D.C., in order to be informed on just what plans are being made for the proposals which will be presented to the new Congress. Neron asks that all men who served in 1917 and 1918 forward their names, addresses and serial numbers to the headquarters and in return they will be supplied with complete and specific information concerning the legislative program of the Veterans of World War I.

The latter organization is a comparatively new veterans group but on December 31 had enrolled over 225,000 members. It was given a Congressional charter by the Congress in 1958 and now ranks as the third largest veteran organization in the country.

The cotton harvest in the Quitaque area will be brought to a finish if the weatherman will cooperate for just a few more days. Harvest was interrupted again last weekend when snow fell on the area on Sunday night.

The local gins have ginned a total of 6,331 bales of cotton this season. Some cotton will be left in the fields after the first of the year but the majority of it has been harvested. March of Dimes Scientists Find Armadillo Helpful in Twin Study

An oddball research animal that looks like a cross between an anteater and an armored tank is causing scientists to wonder if "identical" human twins are so identical after all.

The nine-banded armadillo, which is a native of Texas and points south, has several child-bearing characteristics that are similar to those of humans.

For this reason, Dr. Kurt Benirschke and colleagues at Dartmouth Medical College, Hanover, N. H., are using armadillos for studies of pregnancy and birth defects under a National Foundation-March of Dimes research grant.

It takes about the same length of time—nine months—for baby armadillos or baby humans to develop in the womb. And in both species, the placentas are structurally similar.

But a quirk of nature has made this odd mammal even more useful for medical research. It always has a litter of four. The four baby armadillos come from the same egg and are therefore always of the same sex.

What has this to do with human twins? For years, scientists have believed that identical twins—those who develop through division of the same egg—are exactly alike down to the very last gene. They've assumed that it was this genetic similarity that permits successful transplants of skin or of organs between identical twins.

If this theory were wholly correct, it should be easy to exchange skin grafts between identical young of the same armadillo litter since they all came from a single egg.

But Dr. Benirschke and his associates, Dr. Alastair H. Imre and Dr. John Anderson, have found that such grafts often fail to "take."

This paradox has led them to suspect that the answer to graft tolerance cannot be found solely in genetic make-up. The March of Dimes researchers think the key may lie, at least in part, in the relationship of the embryo to the placenta—the material which nourishes the unborn infant.

Each armadillo quadruplet has its own isolated segment of placenta. This means that each gets a slightly different supply of nutrients, hormones and blood elements. While such differences are minute, they may be just enough to individualize each animal's development so he won't accept grafts and transplants from his own littermate.

Human twins, on the other hand, sometimes share a common placenta—each getting exactly the same nutrients for development. Thus they become favorable candidates for any necessary organ exchange or skin graft in later life.

If graft acceptance in twins is related to their sharing—or not sharing—the same placenta, some other puzzles of pregnancy may also be a little closer to solution.

Why, for example, doesn't a pregnant animal "reject" its own embryo, which is actually a "foreign" substance made up of cells quite different from her own? Or does she, in some in-

Evening Worship: "How To Exist In A World of Chaos" Matt. 10:28

It is the hope of the Church that you may find the new year full of opportunities and a newness of life through our Lord Jesus Christ. May we not falter as we look to the coming new year. We note the words of the Psalmist: (Psalm 102: 25-27. R.S.V.)

Of old thou didst lay the foundation of the earth, and the heavens are the work of thy hands.

They will perish, but thou dost endure; they will all wear out like a garment.

Thou changest them like raiment, and they passed away; but thou art the same, and thy years have no end.

Let our prayer be:

Almighty God, who has been the dwelling place in all generations, and who in mercy has brought us to the close of another year; we praise thee for all the way by which thou hast led us, and we humbly beseech thee to continue to us thy lovingkindness. Help us to cast our weakness on thy strength, that amid all the changes of time we may rest ourselves on thy unchanging love; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

Sixteen persons enjoyed a turkey supper and musical entertainment at the Colonial House at Floydada Friday evening. They were members of the Young Adults Sunday School Class of the Flomot Baptist Church and their guests. Those attending were Messrs. and Mmes. Leon Cloyd, Wayne Mackey, Clayton Bond, Wesley Couer, L. E. Shorter, Joe Edd Helms and Jack Terrell. The children of these couples enjoyed a party at the church and were entertained in the Nursery and Beginners rooms with Mrs. Art Green, Mrs. L. D. Bilberry and Mrs. L. B. Turner as the sponsors and were assisted by the older girls in attendance.

FUTURE OF TEXAS, ECONOMICALLY RELATED TO DEVELOPMENT AND EXPANSION OF INDUSTRY

It is generally agreed that the future of Texas, economically, is now related to the development and expansion of our industry.

Historically, we began as farmers and ranchers, and we prospered. Then some of us turned to oil and gas, which rewarded us richly for a time. More recently a segment of the population has earned a livelihood in the aircraft industry. But none of these sources, nor all of them combined, is sufficient to support Texas' burgeoning population today and tomorrow. That is why we are turning to industry, especially space-oriented industry.

Fortunately for us, the way to get industry here is no secret. Our first need is to provide excellence in education — which we do not now have.

To discover what the situation really is, all we have to do is look around us. California is bursting at the seams with private industry and defense contracts — and California has Cal Tech and other that industry demands in the space schools to provide the brainpower age. New York and New England are happily buzzing with new industry. In the area — providing the brainpower — are Harvard, M.I.T., Princeton.

The Texas Industrial Commission has reported, after a survey, that the number of jobs in Texas plants can be doubled by 1977 — but only if our higher education is upgraded. Said a recent Commission report: "The space-oriented industries are seeking brainpower and will go anywhere to get it."

The evidence appears to be ample. In Texas, we do not want to lag behind, economically or any other way. The desirable alternative can obviously be obtained by achieving excellence in our institutions of higher learning.

The time for action is now. Tomorrow we may be too far behind to catch up.

SECRET KEPT FOR OVER A CENTURY

One of the most closely guarded secrets in this country—dating back to Civil War days—is not military, but rather, culinary. In 1861 a former tinsmith, Gilbert Van Camp, and his wife opened the Fruit House Grocery in Indianapolis. Since they catered to the "carriage trade" they often found that on rainy days their store was piled high with unsold perishable produce.

The economy-minded Mrs. Van Camp hit upon an idea to save this stock. While Gilbert experimented with canisters, she started canning at night. Along with the fruits and vegetables she canned her husband's favorite dish—pork and beans, made with her own secret sauce. The following winter, when they filled their shelves with "out of season" foods, included were the pork and beans.

News of this excellent fare spread quickly and when the demand exceeded the supply, Gilbert went into canning on a larger scale. By 1890, six million cans of pork and beans were being put up annually.

Now, over one hundred years later, with the 15 billionth can of Van Camp's pork and beans due to come off the production line, the recipe remains unchanged. Only four men—one in each generation—have been entrusted with the contents of the now famous "Secret Savory Sauce". All the present custodian will reveal is that the sauce is made basically of plump red tomatoes, sugar, spices and rare oils imported from the South Seas. And in this day of automation—just as in Mrs. Van Camp's time—the pieces of pork are still dropped into each can by hand.

Household Hints

BY JOAN MARCH WORDEN

Director, Pine Cleaner Information Center.

New arrival in your house? The littlest bundle of joy means an extra bundle of housework for mother. Here are some shortcuts aimed at less work for mother, so she can spend more time with baby.

1. Babies are not the neatest eaters. Often there is more food on baby than in him. So as soon as he's through with one of his many meals, dunk his bib and kimona in cool water, then into a solution of pine cleaner and hot water. This quick action keeps the inevitable yellow formula and cereal stains to a minimum. You can rinse and hang up his tiny garments later on. If stains are stubborn and have been allowed to set, try scrubbing them with full-strength pine cleaner and a household cleansing pad. If it's bathtime, save time by soaking the baby clothes in the bath water — after the baby's out, of course — then add your pine cleaner. Mom and dad often get their share of baby's food on their clothes. Treat stains on washable clothes quickly with a sponge soaked in pine cleaner.

2. For diaper wash and general baby laundry add a high percentage pine oil cleaner-disinfectant to the wash water in machine or washtub. This addition gives added cleaning power and banishes many germs —leaves baby's wash smelling pine clean.

3. Borrowing for baby is standard operating procedure for mother. If you've borrowed a crib, bassinet, plastic seat or other item of furniture or layette, make sure it's clean and reasonably germ-free by giving it a once-over with a pine oil cleaner disinfectant. Always give baby gear a good rinse.

For a set of six free "Household Hints" leaflets, write to Dept. CR, Pine Cleaner Information Center, 205 East 42nd Street, New York 17, New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Bud Rowell of Lubbock spent Friday evening with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. P John Monk.

Mr. and Mrs. Grady Tyler and children spent Saturday night in Clarendon with her mother, Mrs. Ermine Blair.
