Mr. and Mrs. Jack Stroup of Pampa spent Christmas Day with his mother, Mrs. Dora Stroup and his sister, Gladys Stroup.

Basketball Games Monday & Tuesday

Basketball resumes here in Quitaque next week after the time out for the Christmas holidays.

The Junior High teams go to Flomot Monday night to tackle the Longhorns and Longhornettes on their home floor. The local Pantherettes Juniors hold two wins over the Flomot youngsters, but on both occasions the Quitaque girls won by a two-point margin and the home court advantage might be the difference for the Flomot girls. The games should be good ones and will get underway at 6:30.

On Tuesday night of next week the Flomot High School teams come here for a pair of district games.

The next week-end, the local high school teams will be playing in the Claude Tournament, on Thursday, Friday and Saturday. The Panthers are defending champions of that tourney and would love to repeat as champions.

Mr. and Mrs. Seburn Neatherlin has as guests at their home for Christmas Eve dinner their children and their families: Mr. and Mrs. Barney Joe Martin and family, Plainview; Mr. and Mrs. Alton Lane and children of Rupert, Idaho; and Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Hammons of Canyon. ## Luci Baines Johnson Will Head March of Dimes Teen Program

Luci Baines Johnson, America's most famous teenager, will be honorary chairman of the 1965 March of Dimes Teen Age Program against birth defects. Luci, who has some very strong opinions about young people and their place in society, is leading a task force of thousands of young people in the fight against birth defects.

LUCI BAINES JOHNSON, the President's younger daughter, at her desk in the White House, as she began her duties as honorary chairman of the Teen Age Program of the 1965 March of Dimes.

"There are a lot of good and useful things we can do right now—without waiting to turn 21," she says.

Her opinion is confirmed by March of Dimes spokesmen. "Teen-age volunteers are among our most dedicated workers. Their interest, their contribution of time, talent and energy has been impressive. There can be no doubt that they have played a significant role in the conquest of polio."

Cites New Hope
 "The victory over polio gives us heart and hope that answers can be found in an infinitely more complex disease area—birth defects. It is a problem in which young people have a special stake—not only because of the large percentage of babies born to mothers under 20 but because of the relationship of the health of teenagers to that of their future children," Luci points out.

More than a quarter of a million seriously defective infants are born in this country each year—one every other minute—700 a day. The problem of birth defects is far greater than polio ever was.

Young people who have joined the Teen Age Program of the 1965 March of Dimes fight against birth defects will shoulder many responsibilities.

Many are helping to carry out the public education program against birth defects. Others are assigned to help in various ways with the Mothers' March for the March of Dimes. Some help out at one of the more than 3,000 local chapters of The National Foundation-March of Dimes.

The purpose of the Teen Age Program (TAP) of the March of Dimes is to acquaint teenagers with the problem of birth defects—a major health problem which affects them, their families and their communities in which they live.

TAP also gives young people the opportunity to help solve these problems through year-round programs of education, service and fund raising.

Most TAP volunteers work through school or club groups, teaming up to work on planned projects or to initiate programs of their own.

Help Plan Programs
 March of Dimes educational programs provide material for club and organization meetings. Films, publications and exhibits on the subject of birth defects are available for meetings. Local chapters can help plan a program and supply a speaker to discuss the problems of birth defects, new treatment techniques and research breakthroughs.

Through a program of Health Career Awards, many chapters of The National Foundation offer March of Dimes scholarships to attract students to the health fields. Ranging from $100 to $500 per year, these awards are "starter incentives" to help students begin their first year of professional study in the fields of medical social work, medicine, physical therapy, occupational therapy and nursing.

TAP service projects range from helping to distribute literature to being of service to patients and to helping raise funds for research and patient care.

Dances, Games Help
 Teenagers have raised money for the March of Dimes by putting on dances, basketball games, contests of all sorts and sales of everything from balloons to garden seeds. Much of this money has gone into the establishment of 50 March of Dimes birth defects centers throughout the country.

These birth defects centers make diagnosis, evaluation and treatment available to their communities. So great is the birth defects problem, however, that the nation needs triple that number of centers, according to Dr. Daniel Bergsma, medical director of The National Foundation-March of Dimes.

As energetic members of The March of Dimes Teen Age Program, young people have proved that they are capable and eager to take greater responsibility in public service. With marriage and a family in their future, teenagers have a great personal interest in solving the problem of birth defects—these "accidents of nature" which add up to the biggest child health problem in this country today.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Berryman of Matador spent Christmas Eve and Christmas Day with their daughter, Mrs. O. V. Johnson and her family, Mr. and Mrs. Johnson and family went to Haskell on Saturday to visit his mother, Mrs. W. E. Johnson. They returned to Quitaque Monday.

TACKLE TALK
BY Y. A. TITTLE
New York Giants Football Club

As a professional football fan you can easily see the tremendous following that the sport has. Today, thanks to you and other football fans, it is one of the most popular spectator sports in America. Today's sandlot football player dreams of the day when he can "take" the gridiron in a National Football League uniform and display his athletic prowess each week before thousands of avid sports fans. He considers that diving goal-line catch he made last week no less important than a crucial catch by one of our own top ends . . . and it is just as important to him.

However, with all the talk about the popularity of pro football, it wasn't always that way. The game was slow in its development. It was 1920 before the professional pigskin game came into prominence, with the appearance on the "pro" scene of one of its early stars - Red Grange, "the galloping ghost" who made football history at the University of Illinois . . . and later with the Chicago Bears.

Records show that the first professional football game was played in Latrobe, Pa. in the summer of 1895. The teams involved were from Latrobe and Jeanette, both in Pennsylvania. Players were believed to have received less than $10.00 each for that afternoon's efforts.

Strangely enough, with all the prominence attached to playing pro football today, professional playing in the early days was not considered as glamorous as it is now. Yet, such great all-american college stars as Jim Thorpe, Red Grange, and Knute Rockne entered the "pro" game. It was in 1925 when Red Grange left the University of Illinois to join the Chicago Bears that the fans followed and their interest in the game increased. Two years earlier, in 1923, a crowd of only 80 fans, witnessed a game between the Chicago Bears and the New York Giants, the same two teams that in last year's NFL championship game drew tens of thousands of sports fans. Today millions of fans attend National Football League games each year.

Now that you have a background on professional football, are you ready for a Tackle Talk quiz on professional football history? Who was the first player drafted by a professional team and by which team was he drafted? You're right if you said Jay Berwanger, drafted in 1936 by the Philadelphia Eagles from the campus of the University of Chicago.

Ready for a second try? What was the purchasing price for the first National Football League franchise? If you wanted to start a professional football team in the early 20's, it would have cost you around $50. A franchise today is worth well over $5,000,000.

If someone had induced you to buy a NFL franchise in the early days, you would later have thanked him for the good advice. I recently gave some good advice to my son, Mike, who is at that age when good grooming is as important to a young man as being a good football player.

It seems that Mike was having a grooming problem - one that most young men experience in their teenage years. Acne pimples and blackheads are a somewhat common occurrence among young males. Fortunately, I had heard about Tackle, a medicated clear gel acne remedy that goes on like an after-shave. I was worried that Mike would use a "girlie covering up" so I felt safe in recommending this masculine product.

You know what? Mike said, "Thanks, Dad, for the good advice. It really works." I felt as if I'd just thrown a 60-yard touchdown pass!

If you'd like to try Tackle, send 25c to me: Y. A. Tittle, % Tackle, P.O. Box 10, Chicago, Illinois 60655.
