JULY 1 IS DEADLINE FOR "NEW WHEAT FARM" APPLICATIONS

Farmers who wish to be considered for a "new wheat farm" allotment for 1966 on a farm which does not have a 1965 wheat allotment should get in touch with the ASCS County Office during the next few weeks. Louie Kitchens, Chairman, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation County Committee, said today. Such farmers have until July 1 to file applications for such an allotment.

Producers eligible to file such applications are those with a farm for which no wheat allotment has been established, who have no interest in the wheat allotment on any other farm, and where the farmer expects to receive more than 5 percent of his income from total production on the farm.

The Chairman emphasized that formal application for a "new farm" wheat allotment is made by filing a written application—on a form provided for that purpose—at the ASCS Office prior to the July 1 deadline.

Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Hilton of Pampa and their daughter, Mrs. Rosamund Reeves and her two daughters of Childress visited Mr. and Mrs. Pierce White Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Marion Wilson of Pampa visited relatives and friends here recently.

He will report back to Seattle, Wash. for duty on July 28 and will be sent overseas. A 13-year Marine Corps veteran, he plans to stay for a 20 year career.

SEDIMENTATION TESTS DROPPED FROM 1965 WHEAT SUPPORT PROGRAM

After 3 years of trial, sedimentation values are being discontinued for the 1965 wheat crop as a basis for computing premiums under the price-support program, Louie Kitchens, Chairman Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Texas, Briscoe Committee, said today. He pointed out, however, that premiums on wheat protein are being increased in the continuing effort to encourage quality production. Schedules of premiums and discounts are available at the Briscoe ASCS County Office.

The schedule of premiums for 12 percent or more protein will be applicable to 1965 crops (grading No. 3 or better) of Hard Red Winter, Hard Red Spring, and Hard White wheat of the varieties, Baart, Bluestem, and Burt. No discount will be applied to under-12 percent protein for 1965.

U. S. Department of Agriculture officials have explained that the decision to drop the sedimentation tests made reluctantly since the testing procedures were easier and quicker to use in the field than other tests for bread-making quality, and the program has helped to encourage the production of higher quality wheat. However, the system, introduced as a means of assisting foreign buyers in the purchase of U. S. wheat, has not been used extensively by the export trade and has not been a factor in the expansion of U. S. wheat exports. The Department will continue to work toward higher quality wheat production through improvement of wheat standards, discounts in support prices for undesirable wheat varieties, premiums for protein as a quality measure, and the development of other means to encourage quality production.

Producers who wish the premium added to the loan rate may request protein tests for farm storage loans by paying a fee of $3.50 per bin tested. Final settlement for all farm-

CONGRESSMAN WALTER ROGERS' WASHINGTON REPORT

WEATHER STATIONS IN SPACE

What did the astronauts see across our Texas high plains? Gemini Astronauts James A. McDivitt and Edward White reported observing a curious finger-shaped shadow across the Texas plains—a shadow that appeared to represent either a difference in the soil or in the underlying rock. Solving the mystery they thus posed is a challenge for geologists. What significance may lie in the answer?

Observations by our two astronauts are being sifted not only by scientists interested in space and in furthering our accomplishments beyond the atmosphere but also by men and women whose scientific specialties are closer to home. Just as geologists will seek to unravel the puzzle concerning our high plains shadow, meteorologists will make a close study of approximately 300 photographs taken by White and McDivitt from Gemini 4.

One day, it may well be that the United States Weather Bureau will augment other means of data collection by maintaining astronauts' observers in orbit.

While attention is focused on our manned space program, the U. S. is making good progress toward improved weather forecasting through the TIROS weather satellite program. The U. S. has sent aloft 10 such satellites; three are still functioning, relaying data to earth concerning cloud formations. TIROS was designed to show how we can fill gaps in our knowledge, to make a first step toward developing a fully operational weather satellite capable of reporting global conditions on a continuous, daily basis. Now our weathermen are able to receive weather data by conventional means for less than twenty percent of the surface of the planet. Data from the Earth's vast uninhabited and ocean areas is not accessible by these methods, yet the lack of data is a major problem in accurate weather forecasting. TIROS aims at finding the way to provide that data. And now, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and the Weather Bureau are working to make possible an improved system. When in being, perhaps by early next year, the system will be known as TOS—the letters standing for TIROS Operational Satellite System. TOS will permit observation of the atmosphere each day, and thus measurably enhance the weatherman's ability to deliver accurate predictions of weather conditions.

We who live in the Texas Panhandle and South Plains are more aware than most Americans of the very vital part weather forecasting plays in our daily activities—and of the impact severe weather can have on lives, property, and on agriculture. Violent weather is no stranger to our area. It is no stranger anywhere on earth—and to be able to predict with great accuracy the imminence and consequences would be an enormous boon to mankind. The next generation of U. S. weather satellites will be designed to hasten that day.

TIROS satellites were most helpful in plotting the development and course of hurricanes. Data from TIROS was used to brief the crews of ships and planes as to ocean weather conditions, even to dangerous ice-berg conditions in shipping lanes. The weather system will, I hope, be able to provide data to tell us of developing threats from hurricanes, tornadoes, floods, droughts, and even sudden frosts and unseasonal spells of hot and cold weather which disrupt harvesting and merchandising of produce. Means are being developed to broaden the ability of our meteorologists to provide us with swift and accurate forecasts, and the data collection system being planned will not only be placed aloft aboard satellites, but will also be located on ocean buoys and at land stations in remote areas.

the Subcommittee on Irrigation and Reclamation of the House Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs will convene to consider legislation authorizing the Lower Colorado River Basin Project; saline water conversion programs; and amendments to the Small Reclamation Projects Act.

Mary Helen Dudley and children and Mrs. James Kimbell visited Mrs. Kimbell's sister, Mrs. J. W. McBee of Amarillo at the Medical Center Hospital in Plainview Thursday of last week.

MICRONAIRE FEES REDUCED

Cotton Fiber and Processing Tests Regulations have been amended to reduce the 6 cents micronaire readings fee to 5 cents, and the 10 cents fee to 8 cents.

The USDA Consumer and Marketing Service placed these reductions in effect on June 15, according to C. E. Cox, in charge of the Altus Cotton Classing Office.

The new 5 cents fee applies to micronaire readings on those samples submitted for Smith-Doxey classifications under approved applications. The 8 cent fee applies to certain classifications under the Cotton Standards Act, including samples for Commodity Credit Corporation sales programs.

"Micronaire service on samples classed under the Smith-Doxey program have been available to farmers on a fee basis for the past three years," Cox said. "And we will offer cotton farmers this miking service again this next season."

Cox also pointed out that a revision of the Official Cotton Standards for micronaire readings of fiber fineness and maturity has been announced by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, and the application of these standards will be broadened by the Cotton Division effective June 1, 1966.

He said the effective date conforms with the U. S. Cotton Standards Act, which requires a waiting period of not less than one year for changes in standards.

Since micronaire readings provide an accurate measure of fiber fineness and maturity, they are recognized throughout the cotton industry as an important quality factor in merchandising and processing cotton.

Also, cotton farmers have in

TWO APPROPRIATIONS BILLS SCHEDULED FOR HEARING

WASHINGTON, D. C. (SpI) — Congressman Walter Rogers said today two appropriations bills, including the measure to provide defense funds in the coming fiscal year, are among bills scheduled to be considered this week by the U. S. House of Representatives. The other appropriations measure would provide funds for the Fiscal 1966 public works program.

Also on the agenda is H. R. 3014, the "Federal Cigarette Labeling and Advertising Act" introduced by Congressman Rogers and approved after lengthy hearings in the House Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, of which Congressman Rogers is a ranking member. The bill's principal purpose is to provide adequate warning to the public of the potential hazards of cigarette smoking by requiring the labeling of cigarette packages with the statement: "Caution: Cigarette Smoking May Be Hazardous To Your Health." Congressman Rogers will preside Thursday and Friday as Boating Tips...

ANCHORS

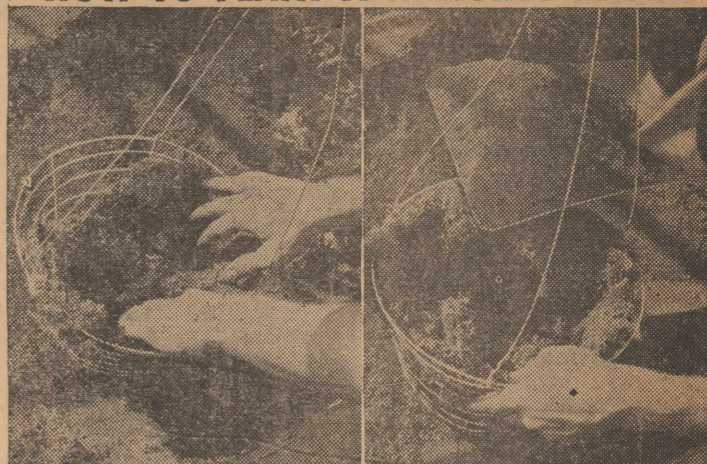

DANFORTH GRAPNEL MUSHROOM

A boat's parking brake is its anchor! Next to life preservers, a good anchor is a small boat's most valuable item of safety equipment, say the Mercury boating experts. Some of the common anchors are the Danforth, the grapnel and the mushroom. The Danforth is most popular, having more holding power for its size in mud, sand and gravel. The grapnel is used for anchoring on rocky and coral bottoms. The mushroom is used chiefly for anchoring in soft sand or mud bottoms. A good line is just as important as the anchor in keeping your boat in place. On quiet, still waters, the anchor line should be four or five times as long as the water is deep. On open, turbulent, windy water, it should be seven to eight times the water's depth.

HOW TO PLANT A HANGING BASKET

Wire baskets may be purchased at greenhouses and flower shops. Line one with sphagnum (sfagnum) moss as shown here. Place 3 to 4 inches of prepared potting soil in the bottom of the mossed basket. Firm soil slightly.

Now set in one or more plants of any hanging variety of petunia like White Cascade and fill more soil around each plant. If grown in peat pots petunias will grow without fail.

micronaire readings a valuable guide to best varieties to grow, management practices, and to the best outlet for their cotton. Mr. Cox pointed out. About 87 percent of the cotton classed for farmers by the Altus and Memphis classing offices last season also received a mike reading, according to Cox.

FLOMOT TEACHER ATTENDS ORIENTATION PROGRAM AT SMU

Mrs. Leona Barron, along with some 1100 other teachers from Texas and Arkansas, attended the orientation program, for the Project Head Start Program. In the Flomot School System this program will be for the Pre-school children or for students who did not pass to the second grade in the 1964-65 school year.

The special kindergarten will attempt to give the beginning child a better understanding of the school program and other cultural advantages. The program will try to correct visual, auditory, and physical problems as well as to give to the child a larger vocabulary. It is to be a happy and fruitful experience for the child, with many simple learning experiences. The child is a very important individual, and the teacher, the volunteers, the assistants, and the parent aids will become his trusted friends. The problem provides for feeding the children because a full stomach aids the learning process. A good nutritional meal stands for good learning.
