A miscellaneous shower honoring Mrs. Ernest Reagan, the former Sherril Barlow of Amarillo, was given in the Community Room at First National Bank Monday afternoon, July 19.

A very nice assortment of gifts was presented to the young couple.

FINAL PLANS CONCLUDED FOR WITNESSES' LUBBOCK CONVENTION

Final plans have been concluded by the Quitaque Congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses who are leaving this week to attend their four-day regional convention at Lubbock.

According to V. D. Tiffin, presiding minister for the congregation, the "Word of Truth" District Assembly at Lubbock is expected to draw some 6,000 delegates from parts of Texas and 20 other states as well as two foreign countries.

Mr. Tiffin discussed the subject of "How Many Days Do You Plan to Attend?" at the local Kingdom Hall meeting in preparation for the delegates' departure. The discussion was held in conjunction with a series of programs developed by the congregation to stimulate pre-convention anticipation.

The portion discussed by Tiffin lent itself well to the assembly at Lubbock. "Assembling to worship God with persons of like precious faith is a joyful event for lovers of Bible truth," he pointed out, "and this one is no exception."

Although several local representatives will be attending, not all were leaving at the same time and date, nor returning the same day. Because of this, Tiffin gave final instructions to the group regarding local meetings. He announced all sessions at the Kingdom Hall will be suspended for the week during the Lubbock convention.

Tiffin stressed the invitation local Witnesses will be extending both here and in Lubbock for interested Bible students to attend any or all of the sessions to be conducted at the Fair Park Coliseum. The featured address at the convention will be at 3 p. m. Sunday, July 25 and entitled "World Government on the Shoulder of the Prince of Peace."

GOOD COTTON INSECT CONTROL DOESN'T JUST HAPPEN

Good cotton insect control just doesn't happen. It must follow a plan. And, according to County Agent Leon Grosdidier, the planned program must include use of the right insecticide at the right time, in the right amount, and in the right way. Then when you are right all the way, you can't be wrong, he adds.

In order for cotton producers to have the latest available information on insect control methods and recommended insecticides, Experiment Station and Extension entomologists at Texas A&M University working with their U. S. Department of Agriculture counterparts annually provide this current information.

The information was recently released by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service at L-218, "Texas Guide for Controlling Cotton Insects." Also, in order to further localize the recommendations, guides have been prepared for certain specified areas in Texas. Grosdidier said, including a combination for the High Plains and Trans-Pecos.

Copies of the publications containing information needed by Briscoe County growers are available at the First National Bank Lobby, he said.

He also suggested that growers pick up a copy of B-933, "Cotton Insects." This publication contains valuable information on the life history of cotton insects and how to identify them. The county agent also stated that he has other publications available on many subjects relating to cotton production. They are available for the asking, he said.

KEEPS COWS COOL

Modern asphalt roofing helps increase farm production by making livestock more comfortable in summer. White and pastel colored shingles keep barns cooler in summer by bouncing away the sun's hot rays. Greater comfort results in better eating and increased productivity, studies show.

Therefore will we also serve the Lord, for he is our God.—(Josh. 24:18).

We can meet any change in our life and affairs by holding steady with God. We can look to Him for inspiration and guidance and He will lead us in ways that bring success and soul-satisfaction.

GAME WARDEN TURNS THE BEAR LOOSE

The game warden towed the bear high up into the mountains about twenty miles from the place he was captured and turned him loose. A scarcity of natural food is forcing the bears to hunt for extra food and they are making real nuisances of themselves and creating a certain amount of danger for they are wild animals. One was reported to have bitten a small boy in the hand a few nights ago as the bear was raiding their camp.

BEAR UPSETS GARBAGE CANS

This is how the garbage cans look every morning at the White's Lodge. However, this picture was snapped about noon Friday, the first time the bears had come raiding that time of day. There were two of them.

It was a new and exciting experience for the Owens family, since it was the first time they had ever seen a real live bear outside of a zoo or circus.

NEWS from the High Plains Research Foundation

Water Conservation Through The Use of A Hormone
Farmers have searched for years for ways to produce crops on less water. This may be just around the corner for Texas farmers due to research at the High Plains Research Foundation at Halfway, Texas.

Laboratory, greenhouse, and field experiments currently underway at the Foundation may disclose the possibility of securing the same yield from cotton on one-fourth to one-half of the irrigation water now used. A hormone applied in research by Dr. Arthur F. Gohlke, Assistant Director and Senior Soil Scientist for the Foundation, has been found to produce cotton plants with shorter stems, thicker stems, and thicker, darker green leaves than untreated plants. This change of the plant inhibits the evaporation of water through the leaves of the plant.

Treated plants undergo a great change, but this change does not reduce the yield or the quality of harvested cotton. Application of the hormone in sufficient amounts shortens the internode distance between the leaves and stem. This, in turn, produces a short dry weather cotton plant capable of possibly producing from one to two bales of cotton per acre on less irrigation water.

The Plains of Texas grows 16 percent of the nation's cotton on 1.6 million irrigated acres. Water alone has made this possible. It is hoped that by the full utilization of this chemical hormone, the productivity of the land can be maintained.

It is thought that yields on dryland cotton may be obtained, through the use of this hormone, similar to those now being harvested off irrigated acres. On irrigated land, the reduction of up to 50 percent of irrigation needs might not be too far in the future. Due to the dwarfing effect on the plant caused by the hormone, it is also thought that yields may be increased in some instances by closer planting of the crop.

At this time, Dr. Gohlke reports that his research will be complete on this project in about 3 years. The results of the 1964 hormone research showed an increase in lint of from 16 to 50 percent per acre. Quality was unaffected with some indication of a stronger fiber.

This is one more area of research underway at the High Plains Research Foundation to conserve the underground irrigation water supply and increase crop yields.
