On Federal-State-Local Government Relations

One of the important reasons the Federal Government needs to adopt a greater sense of fiscal responsibility — in curbing excessive spending and holding down the burden of taxation — is that State and local governments also must look to the same citizens for support of their operations. When a clear delineation is lost as to the proper role of Federal, State, and local govts., a trend I have opposed, a clear delineation is also lost as to sources of revenue each level should rely on.

It seems apparent from the growth of the Federal budget that more and more Americans want and expect more from the Government in Washington. A theory of centralization in government activity has become more and more accepted as the years have passed, and its advocates are not limited to any one political party. But at the same time as Federal activity has expanded, so has that of the State and local governmental bodies. They, too, have attempted to deal with heavy demands for more, better and costlier services. The extent to which the States and local governments have met these requirements is often overlooked. A new report of the Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations, a body set up by Congress to study the intricate relationships among levels of government, makes the point that there has been a 300 percent post-war increase in State-local general government spending.

Between 1948 and 1964, the annual level of State and local government's spending for general purposes increased by $52 billion compared with a $14 billion increase in Federal general expenditures for civilian domestic purposes, according to Commission figures. The number of State-local government employees increased by 90 percent compared with a 22 percent increase in Federal civilian employment. The per capita debt of State-local governments increased $355 while Federal per capita debt actually declined by $91.

Some States and city governments — particularly those in huge metropolitan areas — have been looking more and more to Washington because their own ability to finance such rapid expansion has become jeopardized. Grant-in-aid programs have increased enormously. A publication of the Congress entitled "Catalog of Federal Aids to State and Local Governments" contains 154 pages in the initial document and 257 pages in supplements to it. Together they list the myriad of Federal grants in-aid and other forms of assistance to States and their political subdivisions. Many of these programs were enacted to assist revenue-short State and local governments — at their request. Others came as a part of the centralization of Federal activity and were forced into the States, whether they wanted the programs or not. Some programs in this latter category have, despite the Federal contribution, forced States into activities they'd have preferred to avoid.

At its command, the Federal Government has a vehicle for raising revenue — the personal income tax — that from modest beginnings now has grown to produce some $50 billion a year. Because the income tax is directly tied to the degree of prosperity, meeting requirements quickly in an expanding economy. State governments have been more and more attracted to it — and now 33 States collect income taxes to raise more than $3.5 billion. Texas, as you know, does not levy a State income tax. But because of the growing conflicts in taxation, we are certain to hear more about proposals that the Federal Government share more of its Federal income tax revenue with the States, and this is a controversy that will not easily be solved.

News From the Co. Agent's Office

TIME IS NEAR FOR CONTROL OF OVERWINTERING BOLL WEEVIL

It will soon be time to control overwintered boll weevils, according to County Agricultural Agent Leon Grosdidier. Early season boll weevil control is based upon the destruction of overwintered weevils before they are able to reproduce. Weevils which survived the winter will begin laying eggs as soon as one-third grown squares (approximately one-quarter inch diameter) are available.

Grosdidier says that recommendations call for two applications of insecticide to control the overwintered weevils. The first application should be made when small squares first appear and the second about 7 days later, just before squares reach one-third grown stage. If the majority of the overwintered weevil population can be destroyed before egg laying begins, the seasonal buildup will be smaller. A properly timed program on a community basis should result in greatly reduced in-season boll weevil control cost.

Timing must be correct if the program is effective. Insecticides applied for overwintered weevil control will also control fleahoppers which are often a problem during the same period. All early season control efforts should be ended by the one-third grown stage so that beneficial insects can re-establish their populations before mid-season.

CENTURY PLANT BLOOMS AT PETE CLARKS

Pictured above is a sight seldom seen — that of a century plant in bloom.

The plant pictured above is growing at the Pete Clark residence south of town. Mrs. Clark has had the plant about five or six years. Her cousin, Mrs. Reece Kell of Flomot, gave the plant to Mrs. Clark to get it dug up and moved out of her yard. Mrs. Clark said that she did not know how long the plant had been in Mrs. Kell's yard. The plant pictured above is 15 feet high and has 20 branches. The flowers of the century plant are greenish white.

Some kinds of century plants bloom every year, some less often, according to World Book Encyclopedia. However, none bloom so rarely as once in a hundred years. The plant has thick, fleshy leaves with sharp-spined edges. The leaves die after the plant has blossomed, although the roots remain alive to produce a new plant.

JULY FOURTH TRAFFIC COUNT — 1966

What will this July Fourth bring traffic wise? If it is similar to the ones in the past it will be deadly, injurious, and destructive. Our forefathers thought back in 1776 after declaring Independence that future generations would be free from wanton deaths and destruction. However, they were greatly mistaken to what the future would bring. During the last 190 years since our nation declared its Independence there have been eight major wars claiming 1,130,393 American lives. The automobile has been in existence for about 65 years, claiming 1,559,950 lives. Thus, the battlefield has been a safer place than the "homefront."

The 1965 July Fourth holidays covered a period of three days in which there were 19 persons killed and 372 persons injured in rural traffic accidents in Texas. The 19 persons killed were involved in 14 fatal accidents. These fatal accidents involved 21 hazardous violations and one pedestrian violation. The 372 persons injured were involved in 178 injury accidents. The injury accidents involved 167 hazardous violations and 11 vehicle defects. There were 395 property damage hazardous violations, 28 vehicle defects, and one pedestrian violation.

On the rural highways in this DPS Region there was one fatal traffic accident claiming one human life. This fatal accident involved two hazardous violations. There were 20 injury accidents involving 48 persons. These injury accidents involved 19 hazardous violations and four vehicle defects. There were 51 property damage accidents involving 40 hazardous violations and two vehicle defects.

Exchange Wedding Vows At Snyder Sue Ann Burgess, Phillip Floyd

Mrs. Phillip Floyd

Miss Sue Ann Burgess became the bride of Phillip Lynn Floyd on Friday evening, June 17 at 7:30, in the Colonial Hill Baptist Church at Snyder. The Rev. Miller Robinson, pastor, read the double ring ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Burgess of Snyder are parents of the bride, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Floyd, Sr., also of Snyder.

The altar of the church was centered with a brass arched candelabra holding tall white cathedral tapers. Matching tree candelabra and single candelabras with green foliage were used in the background. Candles were lighted by Miss Lynda Rae Burgess, cousin of the bride and Miss Sharon Floyd, the groom's niece. They wore dresses of pale blue nylon chiffon over taffeta and wore white carnation wristlets with blue trim.

Mrs. Jim Stegall of Austin, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, and bridesmaids were Miss Linda Scott of San Angelo, Miss Sue Wiman of Arlington, and Miss Georganne Demotes of Abilene. The attendants wore street-length dresses of blue nylon chiffon over taffeta. The necklines were accented with draped chiffon, and the headpieces were miniature pillboxes with short veils of blue net; they carried crescent bouquets of blue and white chrysanthemums with accents of English Ivy.

A. C. Floyd, Sr., father of the groom, was best man. Groomsman were A. C. Floyd, Jr., and Dean Floyd, brothers of the groom, and Bill Wiman, all of Snyder. Ushers were Jim Stegall of Austin, brother-in-law of the bride, and Rodney Kelly of Abilene.

Escorted and given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of silk organza fashioned with long sleeves, detailed with buttons. Chantilly lace encircled the sabrina neckline, fitted bodice, and front sheath skirt. Dual lace roses accented the back waist, to which was attached a bouffant sweep train. The veil of illusion was applied with lace to match the gown, and was attached to a pillbox, lace-covered crown flecked with seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of white bridal roses and stephanotis atop a white Bible.

Traditional wedding music was played by organist Ralph Wesson, and soloist Jim Casey sang "How Do I Love Thee?" and "The Wedding Prayer."

The bride's mother was attired in a pink sheath dress with lace jacket, and she wore white accessories. The groom's mother wore a beige sheath dress with a jacket which was embroidered with pastel colors. Their corsages were of pink cymbidium orchids.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the Fellowship Hall of the church. The bride's table was covered with a white organdy tablecloth, with a ruffled skirt, and applied with handkerchief linen. The centerpiece was a memory candle surrounded by greenery. The bride's cake was three-tiered, separated by columns and decorated with roses. The groom's table was covered with an ecru tablecloth and the centerpiece was an arrangement of shasta daisies in a copper-colored container. Coffee was served from a copper coffee service. Presiding at the bride's table were Mrs. Dean Floyd and Mrs. A. C. Floyd, Jr., the groom's sisters-in-law. Mrs. Rayburn Burgess, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Dale Jeffreys of Graham presided at the groom's table. Mrs. Douglas Halverson of Abilene presided at the bride's book.

For a wedding trip to Cloudcroft, N. M., the bride chose a mint green, linen and lace suit with bone accessories. Her corsage was taken from the bridal bouquet. The couple is at home in Abilene, following their wedding trip.

The bride and groom are graduates of Snyder High School, and both will resume studies at Hardin-Simmons University in Abilene, where Mr. Floyd is a ministerial student.

Out of town guests attending the wedding included Mr. and Mrs. Orlin Stark of Quitaque.

COTTON INSECTS IMMUNE won't do the job this year if there is a high insect population. Newton said it means farmers should follow Extension

insecticides to use.

He said the Extension recommendations this year for bollworms are: Strobane - DDT-
methyl parathion, Toxephene-DDT-methyl parathion, Sevinmethyl parathion, Endrin-DDT-methyl parathion or Azodrin.

At A&M, researchers have combined several insecticides in an attempt to come up with a winning combination to effectively control the pests.

In the 1965 tests, results indicate methyl parathion mixed with endrin, Sevin, strobane-DDT or toxaphene-DDT show promise for controlling the two species. Azodrin alone was a potent killer of bollworms and tobacco budworm larvae when used in suitable dosages.

This year, no doubt, insects
may be even more resistant—cotton growers are going to have to be wide-awake to stay ahead
in the battle.
