STATE OSHA levies record fine after explosion

DALLAS (AP) - BP Products North America Inc., the owner of the Texas City refinery where an explosion killed 15 people in March, was fined more than $21 million Thursday, a record for the government agency that oversees workplace safety.

The Occupational Safety and Health Administration agency also is considering whether to refer some violations to the Justice Department for possible criminal prosecution, said John Miles Jr., regional administrator for OSHA.

Miles said the health and safety culture at the BP plant was lax, which contributed to the blast. Some violations had existed for years, he said.

The OSHA fine was nearly double the previous record levied against a Louisiana fertilizer plant.

BP said it has accepted responsibility and is working on corrective plans. BP has said human error led to the blast.

WORLD Sony to cut 10,000 jobs in restructuring drive

TOKYO (AP) - Sony Corp. said Thursday it will cut 10,000 jobs globally, slash its number of factories and cut costs by $1.8 billion in an ambitious restructuring bid to revive its stumbling electronics business

The Japanese company — under new management since March — said it expected a group net loss of $90 million in the current fiscal year as the plunging prices of consumer electronics products have taken a hefty toll on earnings.

The changes, to be put in place by the end of fiscal 2007, which runs through March 2008, would result in a reduction of 4,000 workers in Japan and 6,000 elsewhere, while factories would be cut from the present 65 to 54, company officials said.

The bold turnaround plan comes under the fresh leadership of Howard Stringer, an American-British dual citizen who was named chief executive of the electronics and entertainment company in March as its first foreign head.

Sony has lost money in its electronics sector for two straight fiscal years, and has relied on its movie division such as the popular "Spider-Man" series and its successful PlayStation consoles in its computer video-game unit to lift profits.

Because of the impending wrath of Hurricane Rita on Texas' Gulf Coast, some Galveston and Houston residents have been brought to Lubbock for safe harbor and medical treatment.

Greg Bruce, division director for University Medical Center Health Sysdivision of the American Red Cross, said UMC agreed to accept 10 burn patients from Galveston, but no more are expected to arrive at UMC.

"UMC has received two burn patients from the University of Texas Medical Branch in Galveston," he said.

Both patients are females in their 30s, Bruce said. One patient suffered 28 percent total body surface burns and the other was receiving treatment for muscle problems at the University of Texas Medical Branch, Galveston burn unit.

"We are not expecting any more burn patients because there are no more burn patients," he said.

The burns the two women suffered are not a result of the hurricane.

UMC is one of five burn centers in Texas, Bruce said. There is one burn center in Houston and one in Galveston as well.

The patients currently being treated in Lubbock were relocated so they could receive treatment in a safe environment, Bruce said. "The decision was made to move them as far inland as possible," he said.

Approximately 138 of the 2,000 expected Hurricane Rita evacuees arrived at 6 p.m. Thursday in Lubbock at the Lubbock Preston Smith International Airport.

THE DAILY TOREADOR

It was still unknown Thursday how many of the evacuees will be considered "special needs" and will require medical treatment or a hospital bed.

"Special needs" patients include tem and chairman of the South Plains are those who are elderly and living in assisted-living situations and retirement homes, Bruce said.

"We're preparing for a worst case," he said.

Lubbock hospitals do not have the capacity to meet all of the needs of patients coming into the city, Bruce said. UMC is working with regional hospitals to better accommodate evacuees with special needs

In the aftermath of this month's first hurricane, which devastated New Orleans, Lubbock residents showed an outpouring of support, Bruce said.

"We've had a tremendous response especially from the student body for Hurricane Katrina," he said.

Bruce encouraged Texas Tech students and the Lubbock community to continue supporting hurricane relief efforts.

"The needs are going to continue for a while," he said.

Hershberger needs to check his facts

Students should ask themselves, "How credible is the information in The Daily Toreador?"

James Hershberger wants readers of The DT to believe that George Bush is responsible for an apparent rise in abortion.

If Mr. Hershberger had really done his research, he would know that the entire study he is basing his argument on was debunked (falsified) by the Guttmacher Institute, which was founded almost 40 years ago, in honor of a former president of the Planned Parenthood Federa- Reader. Reader tion of America.

In addition, Glen Harold Stassen, the researcher behind the study, admitted that he couldn't support his claim.

Moreover, the number of abortions has actually decreased by almost two percent from 2001-2002. We don't know where Mr. Hershberger obtained his information, but we found ours at www.factcheck.org/article330.html, and a simple Google search can find other multiple resources.

But the columnist alone is not solely to blame, where was Jeremy Martin, the opinions editor? As an editor, he has a responsibility to the readers of The DT to ensure that information presented in opinion articles are correct.

If The DT has any integrity left, it should formally apologize to its readers for its irresponsibility in journalism.

Easier football schedule makes sense, so stop complaining about it already

I am sick and tired of hearing everybody whine about the non-conference football schedule, including a few of the writers in this paper.

> Anybody who knows anything about football knows that you don't go and play the likes of Tennessee or Ohio St. when you may have a redshirt freshman, who has taken zero snaps in a college game, as your starting quarterback.

With the Big 12 South being as tough as it is, year in and year out, it's pretty stupid to try and kill yourself with your non-conference schedule when you have to play Texas, Oklahoma and Texas A&M every year.

However, all the naysayers will get their wish next year when we play TCU, SMU and UTEP as our non-conference opponents. I'm sure that even then, somebody will still find something to complain about.

Get used to it people - Coach Leach and his scheduling philosophy aren't going to change. You're just wasting your time complaining about it.

TEXAS TECH FRESHMAN forward Shanna Brown, right, goes for the header in the Raiders contest against Minnesota. Tech is 1-7 this season and opens up conference play at 7 p.m. at R.P Fuller Stadium agianst Iowa State.

Rita moves A&M match to Lubbock

No. 20 Texas A&M and Texas Tech volleyball teams were originally scheduled to play this Saturday at College Station and were then moved to Sunday to make room for Tulane's volleyball team to play at A&M as well.

Last night the match was moved to Friday and then cancelled because of Hurricane Rita, but now the teams will square off in Lubbock at 3p.m. on Saturday. According to a press release by Texas Tech, any students with tickets to the football game on Saturday night will be given free admission into the volleyball game.

Free parking will be available for fans in the north and west lots by the United Spirit Arena.

Linda Gaither, one of the members of Building Memories at WestMark Realtors, a sponsors, said the program is a more personable time with the maestro.

"It's just an intimate time to find out more particulars about what you're going to hear," Gaither said. "We've had great success. I've been thrilled with it."

Gaither said the SoundBites program has grown from about 20 to 30 people in its first year to about 90 to 130 people this year.

The reservation-only catered meal is a comfortable setting to find out more information about each piece that will be directed that evening.

While SoundBites will go on as planned this weekend, Saturday night will feature something different and new for the concert itself.

Kathy Reasoner, the marketing and public relations director for the Lubbock Symphony Orchestra, said the doors open for those people coming to escape Hurricane Rita.

"We want to be a very gracious host to them," she said. "Everyone in our fine city has been very welcoming to those escaping from Hurricane Katrina and now Rita. We want to continue that generosity."

Reasoner said the symphony chose to do this because of the possibility of empty seats Saturday night.

"We want to be hospitable," she said. "We might as well fill them."

Tickets for the concert start at $17 for adults and $10 for students. Tickets may be purchased by calling the Lubbock Symphony Orchestra office at (806) 762-1688, visiting the office at 1313 Broadway Ave. Suite 2 or on the Web site www.lubbocksymphony.org.

Reasoner said students often buy tickets 10 minutes before the concert starts through the Student Rush Club. Tickets are two for $10 at that point, but only cash is accepted.

Lubbock Symphony Orchestra season opens Saturday

By ANNE GEPFORD SENIOR STAFF WRITER

L t took the sibling rivalry of a child pianist to create one of the music director candidates for the Lubbock Symphony Orchestra.

Timothy Hankewich said he became involved in music at age 5, when his sister chose to take lessons, and he, like any younger brother, chose to do the same.

"At that time, music took a hold of me," he said.

Hankewich will conduct the Lubbock Symphony Orchestra tonight and Saturday night, as the season opens.

He recently completed his fifth season as associate conductor of the Kansas City Symphony and was promoted to resident conductor, according to a news release from the Lubbock Symphony Orchestra.

Hankewich said conducting in Lubbock is a pivotal moment in his life.

"I've spent my entire life training for and preparing for an opportunity like this," he said. "It's quite a watershed moment in my life."

Hankewich said the opportunity in my career." is one he could not pass up, not only because of the chance to perform chosen in an ongoing conversation the pieces chosen, but to perform in between him and the orchestra. general.

Rebekah Lilly, a junior retailing and marketing major from Katy, said her family prepared for the worst by getting out the generator and bolting all the windows this morning. She also had a hard time contacting her family on the phone.

"They are making sure everything's going to be okay," she said. "My parents went to go get my grandparents today who live in Houston. It took my dad two hours to get in, and he still hasn't gotten out."

She said she was "very scared" for her family, but did her best to continue life as usual.

"I probably won't keep my mind off it, I can't get my and everybody out there. It's not a good situation for "My mom said there are people just walking on anyone. I'll be watching the news all day Saturday."
