USOC backs Carter Will propose moving Olympics

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — The United States Olympic Committee voted unanimously Saturday to support President Carter in his request that the Summer Olympic Games in Moscow be transferred, postponed or canceled because of the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan.

After hearing from Lloyd Cutler, White House general counsel in the morning, and discussing the issue for the rest of the day, the USOC executive board approved a resolution saying "pursuant to the request of the President of the United States, the United States Olympic Committee directs its officers and staff to propose to the International Committee that the 1980 Summer Games be transferred to another site or multiple sites, or be postponed or canceled for this year."

The executive board also said the USOC should meet after any action by the IOC "to consider appropriate action to be taken... under such circumstances that may exist at that time."

The board also said the U.S. committee should continue to select and prepare an Olympic team, whether or not the U.S. participates in the Summer Games "in order to recognize the athletes who have been training as Olympians."

A USOC official told reporters that 68 members of the 86-member executive board attended the meeting and voted for the resolution. Bad weather prevented the other board members from attending.

President Carter proposed last Sunday that the Games be transferred, postponed or canceled if the Soviets did not withdraw their troops from Afghanistan by Feb. 20.

In Ottawa, meanwhile, Canadian Prime Minister Joe Clark said Saturday he will ask Canadian athletes to boycott the Games if Soviet troops are not removed from Afghanistan by Feb. 20.

Clark said he asked Canadian Olympic Association officials to convey the government's position to a meeting of the international Olympic governing body next month.

Dick Pound, president of the Canadian Olympic Association, told reporters after meeting with Clark that it was too early to say whether the association would recommend a boycott.

The Canadian government cannot force the association to boycott the Games, but Clark said he expected the COA would be influenced by the government's position.

Cutler and other White House aides were the first speakers at the morning meeting. Heavy snows prevented many of the board members from attending, although a spokesman said the organization had a quorum.

USOC President Robert J. Kane said after the vote that if the IOC rejects the USOC's proposal, "We will call a special meeting to decide the question. We will have to wait until the IOC deals with the questions raised in this resolution."

Lord Killanin, president of the IOC, said last week that the Summer Games cannot be moved from Moscow. "This is a time for cool heads and quiet voices," he said, adding that the 1980 Games were awarded to Moscow in 1974, and unless the Soviets break the terms of the agreement, the Games cannot legally be moved.

Carter's big week

By WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST JR.

Editor-in-Chief, The Hearst Newspapers

NEW YORK — President Carter must look back on the week just ended and realize that it was one of the most victorious weeks of his career. He must also wish that it could be repeated in the days ahead.

Success began on Monday with his overwhelming defeat of Senator Ted Kennedy in the Iowa caucus. It reached a summit on Wednesday night when he addressed the 96th Congress and assembled dignitaries in what had been billed as a State of the Union message.

It far exceeded the promise of its advance notices. Instead of a "State of the Union" message it was a "State of the World" message, in which he vowed to resist any challenge to all of the American values.

He defined our territorial areas and drew a vague line around western Europe, the Middle East and China, and let it be known that we would brook no incursions by the Soviet Union in these areas. In effect, he threw down a velvet gauntlet.

By Thursday and Friday of this past week almost all Americans had acquired a new confidence about America, its future and its presidency. The ever-surprising Carter had turned us around in two days.

He seemed to be a slow learner from the first three years of his presidency, and he seemed especially naive in world affairs while the Communists gobbled up large sections of Africa and created foment in South America.

But Jimmy Carter has learned some lessons and seems at last to have become a statesman. He may be far from the type of leader that we

Afghans expel network crew

KABUL, Afghanistan (AP) — A sniper felled a Russian soldier in the Afghan capital of Kabul, the first violence against the Soviet army that Western reporters have witnessed since Moscow began pouring troops into its southern neighbor late last month.

Afghan authorities, meanwhile, initiated a new crackdown on the Western press in the rugged Asian country, expelling the three members of an ABC-TV crew and warning that persons who photograph prohibited objects face "legal and revolutionary rules."

Delayed reports from the Afghan capital said two rifle shots cracked through the frigid air Friday at an army Jeep whose occupants, Russian soldiers, had stopped to buy fruit from a street vendor.

A photographer who drove by seconds later saw the jeep's window shattered and a wounded man inside. A Kabul policeman and two other witnesses confirmed the shooting in the Parwan quarter of northwest Kabul, but it was not known how seriously the soldier was hurt.

Western diplomats said there has been a spate of shooting incidents in Kabul in the past week, but had no information on casualties.

The night before the sniper incident, machine-gun fire rattled over Kabul for a few seconds. A week earlier, the city was rocked by a series of what sounded like artillery explosions coming from outside Kabul.

As many as 100,000 troops moved into Afghanistan in late December and backed the coup that toppled Hafizullah Amin as president and installed another pro-Moscow leader, Babrak Karmal. The troops since have supported Afghan forces battling Moslem rebels in the mountainous countryside.

In Islamabad, Pakistan, an Islamic foreign ministers' conference gets under way Sunday, discussing a common stand on the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan. It also is likely to consider severing diplomatic relations with Moscow, conference sources said.

On Saturday, Afghan officials expelled ABC-TV's remaining film crew for taking pictures in a restricted area. Authorities earlier detained producer Jacques Grenier, cameraman Barry Fox and soundman Richard Hull, telling them they were in danger because the area 25 miles west of Kabul in which they were filming was frequented by Moslem rebels. An official later told them they could not leave their hotel except to depart the country.

Grenier told a reporter upon arrival at the airport in New Delhi, India, that Afghan authorities "caught us in a place where we shouldn't have been — in a rebel stronghold."

Grenier and Hull, who are Canadians, and Fox, who is British, had remained in Afghanistan following the expulsion of U.S. journalists earlier this month.

Also on Saturday, an Information Ministry official posted a notice at the hotel where most Western correspondents are staying which said: "If pictures or films are taken of prohibited areas like military spots, ministries, etc, without official permission, legal and revolutionary rules will be implemented." It did not explain what those rules entail.

The notice also said a special press center had been set up to help journalists meet with government officials and visit prisons.

In other developments elsewhere:

-Belgium said it will no longer "exchange official visits at the ministerial level" with the Soviet Union because of the Soviet action in Afghanistan, and will curtail travel by Soviet citizens to Belgium. It took no position on a possible boycott of the Olympic Games, which are to be held in Moscow this summer.

City attorney studying issue in local election

By KAY HORD
Staff Writer

A recent election controversy over a city employee seeking a county office has prompted Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. to ask City Attorney Joe Nuessle for a legal opinion.

"The mayor asked for an opinion on whether or not one of our police sergeants could run for sheriff and still be a city employee, and that is what I am working on," Nuessle said.

He added that he hoped to have the opinion ready this week.

"There seems to be a conflict between the personnel policy for the city that was adopted by the City Council a year ago," and old rules and regulations adopted for the police department by a previous chief in the '60s, he said.

Basically, the city's personnel policy states that employees will not engage in political activities which include campaigning for any political city office, soliciting funds for any candidate for any city office or encouraging any other city employees to vote for any candidate for city offices.

The police regulation in question simply states that officers shall not engage in political activity on any level.

Since the city rule refers only to city elections, the controversy concerns which regulation is to be enforced. Under city regulations, the sergeant in question can remain an employee while seeking county office. Under police regulations, he would be forced to resign.

"The police regulation addresses all elections and all types of political activity, not just running for office," Nuessle said. "The city-wide policy addresses itself to political activity in relation to city elections, in other words, the City Council.

"You can't very well be working for the city and be on the City Council, too. You'd be in the position of working for yourself," he added.

Nuessle said several things would affect his decision.

"There are a number of factors, including federal court decisions, regarding these types of regulations — looking at not only our regulations but what the courts have said in recent years about the validity or invalidity of these regulations," he said.

Nuessle said he assumed Angelo would make any statements he wanted to concerning the matter once the opinion is finished.

Other related questions have referred to a municipal court judge who remained in office while seeking county office.

"I don't think that really has anything to do with it," Nuessle said.

"Some people may think it does, but he (the municipal court judge) wouldn't be under police rules and regulations in the first place. And in the second, I don't think anybody ever raised the question at the time."

"I don't see how you would have any real precedent set by a thing like that (the judge running for county office). All you can do is rule on it (the question) at the time it arises, and the fact that similar questions could have been raised prior to that has nothing to do with it," he concluded.

Draft-age Midlanders favor registration action

By DAVID CAMPBELL
Staff Writer

The person who is the most likely candidate for the draft also happens to be willing to serve his country — the male high school student.

Several local male students interviewed said they favored President Carter's action to reinstate registration for the draft, noting the action is a necessary move to protect the nation's vital oil interests in the Middle East.

However, female students said women should not be drafted, and they were undecided about serving in the military if called.

Larry Collins, a senior at Midland High School, said he feels the draft is a necessary action considering the United States is facing perilous times.

He agreed the cause the U.S. would be involved in — protecting oil interests in the Middle East and stopping Soviet aggression — is worth fighting.

Tom Hurt, another senior at MHS, wondered what those vital interests are should the U.S. have to intervene with military force.

Hurt admitted he didn't hear the president's State of the Union speech, but "Carter did not interpret what our interests are in the Middle East. As far as we know, anything can become our interests," he said.

Hurt noted the boycott of the Olympic Games in Moscow and the embargo on grain, sale of high technology machinery and fishing grounds is "too passive."

Collins

"We had better fight now while the U.S. still has the oil to do so," Hurt said, referring to the possibility of a military conflict with the Soviet Union.

If drafted, Hurt said he would serve in the Air Force.

Renee Seay, a Lee High School student, said she did not believe in the draft, fearing the strong possibility that women would also be drafted.

"Girls shouldn't have to fight. They are supposed to be feminine," she said.

"Guys are supposed to fight since they are the stronger of the species," she added.

When asked if she would serve when drafted, Miss Seay said she was unsure, but indicated she wouldn't like it.

Miss Seay said she thought boycotting the Olympic games and the economic sanctions against the Soviets are good ideas.

Another MHS student, Renee Guest, said women should not be drafted because she believes they are the weaker sex.

Seay

However, she added, if women wanted to be drafted, they should be.

"Women should not have to serve in front-line combat roles because the United States is not that weak," Miss Guest said.

Should the Soviets and U.S. go to war, Miss Guest said she feels the Soviets will go to the extent of using nuclear weapons to win the confrontation.

Michael Wakefield, a senior at Lee High School, said he would serve if military inscription is reinstated.

He noted that a lot of people would change their minds about going to college if a war and the draft resurfaced. Wakefield predicted that college enrollments probably will double when the selective service is reactivated.

The LHS senior foresees military intervention with the Russians as inevitable.

And probably necessary, he added, "to show the Russians what power the United States has."

Old U.S. silver coins head for melting pot

By JUDY GIBBS
Associated Press Writer

In Salt Lake City, you can buy a color television set for $26.70; in Seattle a haircut is two bits; and in the Milwaukee suburb of Wauwatosa, you can eat two prime rib dinners for $1 — if you have the right change.

The right change is dimes, quarters, 50-cent pieces and silver dollars minted before 1965, when the government stopped making all-silver coins.

Many people have the coins stashed away in safety deposit boxes or kitchen cupboards, and they're taking advantage of soaring silver prices to cash them in for merchandise or money — a trend that worries some coin dealers.

"The sad part is, many of these coins are going to the refiners" to be melted down, says Peg Davies of the Silver Institute in Washington. "Their numismatic value is lost forever."

Bert Hewes, a coin dealer in Salt Lake City, says the high prices may drive coin shops out of business because "as the price continues to increase, collectors won't be able to afford" them.

But those with a few silver coins aren't grieving. Milo Ross, of Ogden, Utah, bought a case of salmon for six silver dimes he'd saved in a cupboard. Ross says the tradeoff "didn't bother me any."

And merchants aren't complaining either. Jim Smith, of Ogden, Utah, says he thought his father was getting senile when he suggested taking silver coins at 15 times face value for merchandise at their store, which sells a variety of items. Later they allowed 20 times face value, and Smith now calls his father "a far-sighted man."

Even at 20 times face value, the Smiths were making a profit. At the closing price of $36.50 an ounce for silver Thursday in New York, the silver in a dime would be worth $2.64.

But some goods-for-silver promotions failed to spur deals. Darrel Miller, an attendant at a Union 76 gasoline station in Columbus, Ohio, says his boss began offering gas for 15 cents a gallon in silver coins Monday, but there were no takers.

H.M. "Smitty" Smith of Upper Marlboro, Md., says his 10-cent-a-gallon offer has been more successful, but he adds, "No one with $200 to $300 worth of silver coins is going to come in here and turn it into gas. It is designed for the guy with five dimes."

Stephen Richards, a Salt Lake City furniture store executive, says his store got into the silver swapping business when a customer offered to buy a $2,800 bedroom set for a handful of silver dimes.

The store turned down the offer. But a salesman, acting on his own, took the coins and cashed them in for 15 times face value — the going rate at the time — and made the sale.

"That gave us the idea there must be a lot of people around with silver coins who don't want to go to a coin shop to trade them in," Stephens said. The 70-year-old furniture store reversed its decision and business boomed, he said.

Coin dealer Myrna Roennebeck of Salt Lake City doesn't understand why people swap silver coins for merchandise. "They can get a lot more money by selling to a coin dealer," she says.

Last September I had a home repair service company do the necessary work to correct wind and hail damage to my roof and water damage to the living room ceiling, because of the leaking roof. All this cost more than $4,000.

Since that time, after each rain or snow, the roof continues to leak and the ceiling is again damaged. There was a verbal agreement that should the roof leak they would return and correct it.

I have called the company's members listed in the Midland paper, but get no return call. Is there any recourse? — H.L. Beckmann

ANSWER: I think your recourse is to contact the Better Business Bureau of the Permian Basin, 563-188, and report the company's name and situation.

A teen-ager in our neighborhood was stopped by the police for driving while intoxicated, but no DWI charges were filed against him. Does the DWI law extend to someone under the age of 17? — Mrs. D.W.

ANSWER: The State Bar of Texas says that under Texas law, a person under the age of 17 cannot be held criminally liable for driving while intoxicated.

This means that a juvenile stopped by the police and suspected of driving while under the influence of alcohol or drugs cannot be arrested as an adult, and, therefore, does not face the possibility of having his license suspended.

The police, however, may turn the young person over to juvenile court as a child in need of supervision.

I am a senior citizen. I would like some information for older persons seeking courses and educational programs. Thank you. — Mrs. R.F.

ANSWER: The U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW), says that "Older persons seeking to continue their formal education, attain new skills and explore the ever-widening fields of knowledge, can find opportunities through a variety of sources — adult education programs sponsored by local public school systems, courses and special activities in vocational, technical and high schools and courses in community colleges and universities for modest fee or without charge."

Hobby study indicates West Texas senatorial districts near 'ideal' size

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — West Texas senatorial districts may be slightly under the "ideal" figure when they are due to be redrawn in 1981, according to a study released Friday by Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby.

Hobby's study on the redistricting question, of which copies were sent to Senate members, shows District 25, now represented by Sen. W.E. "Pete" Snelson of Midland, would be within 2 percent of the projected 435,255 population with 98 percent of that figure.

District 28, represented by Sen. E.L. Short of Tahoka, would have 96 percent of the "ideal," needing another 16,000 people.

District 24, Sen. Grant Jones of Abilene, misses the ideal by 10,000, while the North-North Central Texas District 22 of Sen. Tom Creighton, Mineral Wells, is some 16,000 over.

District 30, Sen. Ray Farabee of Wichita Falls, is under by 41,000, with only 91 percent of the expected ideal figure, while District 31 (Sen. Bob Price of Pampa) is off by 42,000.

The far West Texas District 29 of Sen. Tati Santiesteban, El Paso, which includes El Paso and Hudspeith counties, apparently will have enough population in El Paso County alone to support a senatorial district.

Young artists earn top honors

Seven young musicians were named top winners in the final phase of the 1980 National Young Artist Competition held at Midland College Saturday night.

Named performing winners in the national contest were Kenneth Bookstein, Eugene Tripetsky, Andres Cardenes and Karina Eberl. Those four will return to Midland-Odessa in March to perform with the Midland-Odessa Symphony.

Other top winners named Saturday were Liz Moore, Michi Siguira and Robert Cole.

The seven top winners were selected from a dozen gifted young musicians who were named finalists in this weekend's prestigious contest.

The 18th annual event, sponsored by the Midland-Odessa Symphony and Chorale, drew 77 outstanding instrumentalists and vocalists enrolled in secondary schools and in colleges, universities and conservatories throughout the nation.

The finalists, named as a result of preliminary auditions held Friday and Saturday in Allison Fine Arts Building at Midland College, participated in the final auditions which took place Saturday night in the college recital hall. The event was open to the public.

The auditions before a panel composed of outstanding musicians and music educators continued until near midnight Saturday.

Performing winners chosen Saturday night are those students who will return here in March to perform with the Midland-Odessa Symphony and Chorale in subscription concerts in the two cities.

In addition, there are winners who will not return to play with the symphony, and there are other finalists who are not designated either winners or performing winners. All will be sharing in about $7,000 in prize money contributed by Mrs. A.A. Bradford, Mr. and Mrs. D.A. Ross and Mrs. Raiford H. Burton, all of Midland, and Mr. and Mrs. W.D. Noel of Odessa.

Finalists selected following preliminary auditions are as follows:

COLLEGE PIANO:
Boris Slutsky, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leri Slutsky of Forest Hills, N.Y., a freshman student at the Juilliard School in New York City.

Slutsky was a performing winner in secondary schools piano in the 1979 NYAC held last year at Odessa, and played with the Midland-Odessa Symphony last spring.

Karina N. Eberl, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D.H. Eberl of Sea Cliff, N.Y., a sophomore student at the Juilliard School in New York City.

COLLEGE STRINGS:
Andres J. Cardenes, 22, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andres M. Cardenes of Culver City, Calif., a graduate student at Indiana University.

Thomas A. Demer, 21, son of Louis J. and Mary O. Demer of Tucson, Ariz., a senior student in the School of Music of the University of Arizona.

COLLEGE WOODWINDS:
Eugene Tripetsky, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Tripetsky of Long Island City, N.Y., a freshman student at the Juilliard School in New York City.

Valerie Gawenda, 21, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Gawenda of Lemont, Ill., a senior student at Austin College, Sherman.

COLLEGE VOICE:
Robert Allen Cole, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Cole of Gainesville, a senior student at North Texas State University in Denton.

SECONDARY SCHOOLS PIANO:
David Mattingly, 17, son of Dr. and Mrs. Glen E. Mattingly of Huntsville, Tex., a senior at Huntsville High School, who studies piano with Dr. John Paul of Sam Houston State University.

Kenneth Bookstein, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bookstein of La Jolla, Calif. The young man is a senior at LaJolla High School and studies piano with Aube Tzerko of Los Angeles.

SECONDARY STRINGS:

Michi Siguira, 16, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Masahisa Siguira of Silver Spring, Md., a 12th grader at the Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia, where she studies violin with Ivan Galamian and Yumi Ninomiya.

Richard L. Chang, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Chang of Pittsburgh, Pa., an 11th grade student in the Juilliard School's pre-college division.

SECONDARY WOODWINDS:
Liz Moore, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Moore of Amarillo, a senior at Amarillo High School. She studies flute with Sally Turk, a member of the music faculty at West Texas State University in Canyon.

Officials study hijacker's concealment of weapon

ATLANTA (AP) — Federal officials on Saturday were trying to determine how a convicted bank robber and self-proclaimed Muslim allegedly smuggled a .45-caliber pistol on board a Delta Air Lines jet and forced the pilot to fly to Cuba.

The 61 passengers and crew members arrived in New York late Friday night, 18 hours late, after managing to escape the hijacker in Havana.

A State Department spokesman said 29-year-old Samuel Alden Ingram Jr. of Atlanta was taken into custody by Cuban authorities who refused to provide a plane for him to fly on to Tehran.

The hijacking began early Friday over North Carolina after Ingram boarded the Atlanta-to-New York flight with his wife and two infant daughters.

The hijacker surrendered after passengers sneaked off the plane about 13 hours after the plane departed Atlanta. It landed in Cuba at 4:03 a.m.

Some officials speculated Ingram eluded the security check at Hartsfield International Airport in Atlanta by hiding a pistol in his baby's clothes.

"That is the theory advanced," said spokesman Jack Barker of the Atlanta Federal Aviation Authority in Atlanta. "I really don't know. It's just too soon to give you any results at this point. We've had security inspectors at the airport since Friday morning." NBC News reported the FBI was checking into the possibility the hijacker got the idea on how to smuggle in the pistol from a recent "Dick Tracy" comic strip, in which a would-be hijacker hid her weapon on a portable baby seat carried onto a plane by Tracy.

"There is nothing to support that theory any more than any other one," Barker said. In Charlotte, N.C., where Ingram was convicted of bank robbery, officials said he told them he once had eluded a police search for stolen money by hiding the money in a plastic baby seat.

Dole soon to decide fate of his presidential campaign

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — Sen. Bob Dole said Saturday night that he will decide within a few days whether to give up his campaign for the Republican presidential nomination.

"The people of Kansas will be the first to know what I decide," Dole told about 750 Republicans attending the annual Kansas Day dinner.

Dole finished last, with less than 3 percent of the vote, among seven Republican candidates in the Iowa precinct caucuses last week.

He said that even if he does drop out, "I have no intention of withdrawing from the great national debates of the '80s."

Dole told the Kansas Republicans "you have been steadfast in your support, constant in your encouragement and heartwarming in your friendship," and asked them to "take heart" now that his chances in the presidential nomination race look dim.

Dole met for long hours Saturday with key advisers, who said they "laid it all out for him."

"I brought two speeches with me and I'm writing a third one," Dole quipped afterward.

"I frankly think I'm the best qualified candidate the Republicans have for president," he said. "But if you don't have the money..."

Dole said what has hurt him so far is a lack of time to spend out on the campaign trail. He attributed that to his work on the "windfall profits" tax bill now in conference committee.

AA members gather in Midland

Groups characterized as 'spiritual fellowships'

By ED TODD Staff Writer

Alcoholism shares a strange kinship with pregnancy, says a woman who has experienced both conditions. "It's an over-simplification, but alcoholism is very much like pregnancy: You either are or you aren't," said Eve M., an alcoholic who has been a teetotaler for 35 years.

Eve M. is one of several hundred Alcoholics Anonymous members from across the nation in AA's 10th annual Midland Mid-winter AA Conference this weekend in the Midland-Hilton.

Alcoholism, Eve M. said, is a "devastating illness" from which the alcoholic can only recover after recognizing his problem, coping with it through total abstinence, spiritual strength and, in the case of AA members, fellowship.

But the downfall of many unprofessed alcoholics is their failure to recognize and admit that they have a drinking problem.

"That's the problem with alcoholics — denying its existence," said Eve M. "The alcoholic denies its existence because he can't think of living without his booze.... It's his 'coping medicine.'"

But thousands of former alcohol abusers across the nation have survived the challenge of total abstinence. With the help of a "Higher Power" and encouragement from fellow alcoholics in AA, they have remained sober.

"That's the main objective of our (AA) conference: sobriety," said another alcoholic, Irene D. Instead of finding friends by sitting in bars and imbibing, the AA members are "finding fellowship in AA," she said.

Though spiritual in nature, AA is not a religious group. "In church, they say if you go to church, you can find God and sober up. And AA says, 'If we sober up, we'll find a Higher Power.'"

That Higher Power helps the alcoholic to abstain and "be responsible for me," said Eve M.

Another alcoholic, Bob N., noted that AA, with a membership exceeding a million, "is the world's fastest-growing fellowship, because it's a spiritual (not, religious) program."

Bob N. indicated that alcoholism is a compulsion, saying that drinking becomes a way of life and puts the alcoholic into a fantasy — a temporary escape from reality.

"The drinking non-alcoholic imbibes because he likes the taste of the beverage, whether it be beer, wine or liquor. He prefers to stick with reality and stops drinking before becoming intoxicated or otherwise adversely affected by booze."

"He respects the effects" of alcohol, Bob N. said. The effect of alcoholism "is very debilitating" and can age a person 10 to 15 years beyond his chronological age.

The mainstay of the AA conference is "sharing experiences," said Eve M. "We dislike the word 'testimonials.' We call it 'sharing experiences,' because it gives alcoholics hope for solutions to their problems."

Bani Sadr claims election victory

By The Associated Press

Finance Minister Abolhassan Bani Sadr, the overwhelming leader in early returns in Iran's presidential election, Saturday claimed victory and was quoted as saying the American hostage situation in Tehran is a "minor affair" that can be easily solved.

"I've definitely won," said Bani Sadr, the former foreign minister who was dismissed from the post three weeks after Islamic militants seized the U.S. Embassy and hostages. The dismissal appeared to be the result of his efforts to find a way out of the crisis.

Bani Sadr, 46, a close associate of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, was outdistancing his closest competitor by a margin of nearly four to one in many towns and cities, leading a field of eight candidates in early returns of Friday's vote, Interior Ministry officials said.

As night fell in Tehran, ministry officials said they had counted about 6.7 million of an estimated 22 million votes cast. Of those counted, they said, initial tabulations from around the country gave Bani Sadr 5,164,771 votes.

His closest competitor, Adm. Ahmad Madani, the former navy commander and governor of oil-rich Khuzestan province, had 1,116,186 votes and Culture and Education Minister Hassan Habibi received 397,931, the ministry officials said.

Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh, who replaced Bani Sadr when he was dismissed from his post Nov. 28 and has made strongly anti-American statements, shared the remaining votes with other candidates.

Two specialists from Switzerland examined Khomeini in a Tehran hospital where he is receiving treatment for a heart ailment and reported his condition was good, Tehran radio reported. The two doctors also approved medical treatment given Khomeini so far, the radio said in a broadcast monitored in London.

An Iranian military helicopter crashed in Alawiye, near the central Iranian city of Isfahan, and all 11 persons aboard were killed, Tehran radio said in a broadcast monitored in Kuwait. The cause of the crash was not known, it said.

Two black ministers from Houston, Texas, planned to return to the United States Sunday after failing in their mission to visit the Embassy hostages or meet Khomeini. The Revs. Bobby Mills and Don Lee said they had established good relations with Iranian officials and would return in February to participate in celebrations of the first anniversary of the Iranian revolution.

The oil ministry announced that saboteurs blew up two oil pipelines Friday night in Khuzestan. The amount of damage was not reported.

An Interior Ministry representative speaking about the elections said voting took place in all regions except Kurdistan in the western part of Iran, where the autonomy-seeking Kurdish ethnic minority boycotted the election. The Kurds had also boycotted the vote last December that passed the new Islamic constitution for Iran.

Carter administration officials have said they hope a new Iranian president will be a "better negotiating partner" than Iranian officials have been so far. Iran continues to demand deposed Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, now living in Panama, be returned to Iran before the Americans are set free.

On Saturday, the hostages' 84th day in captivity, Bani Sadr said the shah's extradition would quickly resolve the hostage situation.

In an interview published Saturday in the French newspaper Le Matin, Bani Sadr was quoted as discussing the program he would institute if he won the election: "With regard to the United States, there are many problems, but the affair of the hostages can be solved almost naturally."

"From the moment when the people give me their confidence, there will be no major difficulties because this is a minor affair," he was quoted as saying.

In other words, detente is still ineffective in the president's mind, but the Persian Gulf is off-limits and the Soviets will have to get out of Afghanistan or face certain sanctions.

I thought the president overlooked the chance to give the big lie to the Soviet claim that it is because American, Chinese and Egyptian troops are massed in Pakistan that the Communists overrun Afghanistan to protect it. No other country in the world believes this nonsense and it would have been a good place for the president to further expose the Soviets in their lust for colonialization.

Carter had the added advantage of starting a decade with its first major address. The fact that it also launched his own campaign for reelection may or may not be germane.

However, he accomplished one enormous change in foreign policy. At last the United States is seeking the respect of the world rather than the love of the world, which we have learned we cannot buy.

had in Harry Truman, Franklin Roosevelt or Theodore Roosevelt, but should he become our leader for the next four years we can feel more confident that we will be adequately guided.

It must be remembered that not since our revolution has this country initiated a war against a foreign power. We have conventionally allowed ourselves to be dragged into other peoples' wars, usually to be accused of isolationism and coming in too late.

By some of the threats that Carter made to the Soviets, we come perilously close to announcing our intention of going to war.

In his zeal as a new member of the "you can't trust Russia" club, he should avoid getting too far out front with unilateral ultimatums.

After all, France, Germany, Japan, Italy, et al., are more dependent on Middle East oil than we are, so let's hope Carter speaks not for America alone, but rather for the entire Free World.

Only together can we pool a sufficient amount of military equipment to confront the Soviets seriously. No other ally except Britain's Mrs. Thatcher has sent warships to the Persian Gulf to support us in our stand. Let's not forget that.

Consider the strong language used by Carter as he spoke with the greatest authority he has ever mustered in his entire presidency: The Soviet invasion of Afghanistan is the most serious threat to world peace since the second world war, he said; the Soviet Union must pay a concrete price for its aggression; any Soviet attack in Pakistan will be repelled by any means necessary including military force; the colonial conquest by the Soviets must be stopped; the Persian Gulf region is vital to the United States of America; and let no one doubt our commitment to the security of Israel.

Though the president would require approval by the Senate to send this nation into war, this powerful message puts us — let's be frank — at the brink.

The request to revitalize Selective Service for registration (only) of our young and the call to remove restrictions and grant a new charter for our intelligence agencies expressed further the will of the American People in dealing with the continuous incursions by the Soviets.

BIG SPRING — A Big Spring man died just after 8 p.m. Saturday in a car-motorcycle accident here.

The man, whose name was being withheld pending notification of relatives, was pronounced dead at the scene by Peace Justice Lewis Heflin. According to reports, a motorcycle driven by the victim and a car collided at the corner of Wasson Road and Carl Street.

There were no other injuries in the incident.

The accident was investigated by Officer Troy Hogue of the Big Spring Police Department.

Midland police Saturday were investigating the theft of a $70,000 Cessna 206 airplane from Midland Air Park.

The theft was reported to Midland police at 9:15 a.m. Saturday by Terrie Gay, 4510 Lanham, according to police reports.

New quake hits near nuke plant

Thursday's damage alone placed at $1 million

LIVERMORE, Calif. (AP) — Even before Saturday's earthquake, nuclear officials were saying it would take a month and at least $1 million to put the $25 million Shiva Laser complex — which was damaged in a smaller earthquake Thursday — back into operation.

Saturday's tremor — centered near the laboratory — measured 5.6 on the Richter scale and prompted new checks for damage at the nuclear weapons facility.

The Thursday quake, which measured 5.5 on the Richter scale, knocked the facility off its pins at the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory.

According to the California Division of Mines and Geology, an earthquake measured at 5.5 is equivalent to the detonation of 1,000 tons of dynamite. The epicenter of this quake was 10 miles north of Livermore.

A laboratory official said he doubts repairs can be made for less than $1 million.

The laboratory officials said the quake sheared bolts that hold down the metal frame of the 132-foot-long laser facility, along with its 60-foot-high target.

That discovery came in the wake of four major aftershocks that followed within hours of the 11 a.m. earthquake. There were two tremors early Friday and more than 100 smaller jolts.

The laser facility occupies a 4½-story building that takes up more space than a football field. It is used in fusion and thermonuclear weapons research. The University of California operates the facility for the government. It employs nearly 8,000 persons.

Lab officials also were dealing with what they called a harmless leak in a 30,000-gallon tank of radioactive water containing tritium. They reported the contaminated water was trickling into a concrete catch basin.

David Myers, a radiation safety supervisor at the laboratory, said about 50 gallons of the fluid leaked into catch basin within 24 hours after the quake.

Tritium is a radioactive isotope of hydrogen used as targets in laser fusion, Myers said.

The officials said the radioactive content of the water was about half the concentration permitted to be discharged into public sewers under federal regulations and the escaping tritium posed no health hazard.

Workers returned Friday to clean up after the tremor, which left shattered windows, upended furniture and broken bottles of chemicals littered on office and laboratory floors at the square-mile laboratory complex.

The quake registered 5.5 on the Richter Scale as it rumbled across a broad area of northern California. There were no fatalities and no reports of serious injuries.

The quake cracked buildings and roads and shattered windows, while a half dozen strong aftershocks — measuring between 3.6 and 5.2 on the Richter scale — rocked the area late Thursday and early Friday.

While Livermore was the hardest hit, the tremor was felt from Monterey about 150 miles south of San Francisco to Santa Rosa, 50 miles north. It also was felt as far as 260 mile east in Reno, Nev.

Some 28 persons were treated at the lab for cuts and bruises, officials said, and one man had a heart attack later in the day.

The Richter scale is a measure of ground motion as recorded on seismographs. Every increase of one number means a tenfold increase in intensity.

Egypt confirms U.S. offered big arms deal

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — The United States has offered Egypt a major arms package that could bring more than $5 billion in weapons to this Arab country, Defense Minister Kamal Hassan Aly said Saturday.

"It will be mostly fighter planes, tanks and missiles," Aly told The Associated Press in confirming reports from Washington on the deal.

He hinted the arrangement, stretching over five years, could go as high as $6 billion, but indicated the final figure had not yet been set.

Aly said Egypt and the United States had almost identical stands on the threat to world peace caused by the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan and Egypt had demonstrated that it would support the United States in any move to defend the oil-rich Persian Gulf.

"America and Egypt see the same danger in the area, and we (Egypt) know our responsibilities. America has good relations with this country and the sources of oil are vital to the United States," Aly said.

Aly spoke with reporters at the Cairo police club where annual police day celebrations were being held.

The offer of military aid credit, presented to Egyptian Vice President Hosni Mubarak during his visit to Washington earlier this month, includes F-16 fighter planes and M-60 tanks.

Meanwhile, Egypt has balked at Arab demands for the return of $2 billion banked here, arguing it has the right to forestall politically motivated attempts to wreck the economy.

But top Egyptian officials interviewed by The Associated Press said the government has not permanently frozen or seized the petrodollar ac-

The officials contend that for national security reasons the money cannot be released now.

Saudi Arabia, Kuwait and Iraq complained to the International Monetary Fund in Washington, D.C., last fall that the accounts were blocked and called on the IMF to take action.

At Egypt's request, the IMF last week delayed consideration of the Arab complaints until March. Denying Egypt intend-

AFL-CIO local organized for Texas college professors

AUSTIN (AP) — The American Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO, announced creation of a statewide local for Texas college and university professors Saturday.

Local 4033, called Texas United Faculty (TUF), will operate through chapters called "guilds" on each campus where it has members.

"We will be visiting faculty senates. We will be visiting professors in their offices," said Louis Bolieu, coordinator of the organizing effort.

Robert Nielson, special assistant to the president of the American Federation of Teachers (AFT) for colleges and universities, said a strike was "inconceivable" in Texas.

This, he said, is because state college teachers do not have collective bargaining rights in Texas, and strikes normally arise from a breakdown in bargaining.

Faculty union locals have struck in New Jersey and in Chicago, Ill., but there have been more "strikes" by professors affiliated with the non-union American Association of University Professors (AAUP) and National Education Association, he added.

Marines assault on tiptoe so to not damage beach

SANDWICH, Mass. (AP) — About 1,700 U.S. Marines assaulted Cape Cod in tanks, jeeps and amphibious personnel carriers on Saturday — and then tiptoed ashore so as not to disturb the sand dunes and beach grass.

The Marines invaded Scusset Beach State Reservation as part of a cold-weather training exercise that was supposed to mirror an actual wartime assault.

But rolling, grass-covered dunes are as much a symbol of Cape Cod as fried clams and sunburns, and state officials made the military promise that the scenery would not be mangled.

"They won't disturb any dune grass or any of the dunes whatsoever," said Stephen Nicolle, superintendent of the state park. "We've made a big point of this."

The maneuvers, carried out in windy, 20 degree weather, were a tune-up for NATO war games later this winter.

The Marines conceded the ecology considerations would have made the mission suicidal in wartime.

Thirty amphibious personnel carriers carried the Marines about a mile to shore from three Navy troop ships. As the tank-treaded vehicles crawled onto the frosty beach, helicopters buzzed overhead.

If this were war, the personnel carriers would have hit the land 11 at a time in a long string down the beach. But to keep from tearing up too much frontage, the vehicles came in only five at once, all on one narrow swath of sand.

In combat, tanks carried ashore would have raced immediately into the countryside to weed out enemy soldiers. But on Saturday, the big machines lumbered cautiously along the water's edge and then turned onto a road that meandered through the dunes.

"We didn't want to harm the general look of the area," said Maj. Thomas Hayden. "We wouldn't want to knock over any trees or tear up any of the grass. We don't want it to look as though a whole bunch of tanks had run over the countryside."

About 1,000 people stood in a roped-off section of the beach to watch the Marines come ashore. The rifle-toting soldiers leaped out of the landing craft and scampered for cover in the nearby dunes.

As they hid in the grass from imaginary gunfire, news photographers sidled up to them. Park employees raced to and fro ordering the photographers to get off the dunes.

Then the Marines attacked the bathroom parking lot and freed it from the non-existent enemy.

The Government IS Inflation Culprit

The root cause of inflation, as everyone should know, is deficit spending. Since there have been but two balanced federal budgets in two decades, the National Debt mounts toward a trillion dollars. By 1980 just the interest on the Debt will account for a full twelve percent of all federal spending. Meanwhile the debased American dollar is today worth nineteen cents on the 1939 base. If one paid twenty-five dollars a week for food in 1967, it will take more than fifty-five dollars to buy the same food today.

This is deliberate. For money is being created to fund deficits at a faster and faster rate while our production of goods and services is being purposely thwarted. As the venerable Henry Hazlitt has explained, soaring expenditures and deficits have been "... accompanied by an enormous increase in the stock of money — from $113 billion of demand deposits plus currency outside of banks in 1947, to $357 billion in August 1978. In other words, the active money supply has been more than tripled in the period. The effect of this increase in money has been a dramatic increase in prices. The consumer price index in 1946 stood at 58.5. In September 1978 it was 199.3. Prices, in short, more than tripled." (Economics In One Lesson, Revised Edition, New Rochelle, Arlington House, 1978.) Your money is worth less because of deficit spending as the graph shows.

A recent survey shows that the Federal Government received 70.2 percent of the cash income of the top 48 oil companies. The government gets 14 times as much out of the investment of the private oil business as a shareholder receives.

ANOTHER GOVERNMENT WINDFALL

The Tax Foundation has observed: "The proposed Windfall Profits Tax, a new and major tax, will not solve the energy problem. In fact, if enacted, the Windfall Profits tax can only worsen an already bad situation and further increase our dependence on foreign oil."

However, it would appear that the main purpose of the Windfall Profits Tax, the hidden agenda as it were, is not energy independence; it is to use higher petroleum prices as a new and major source of Federal government revenues both to finance still larger Federal government budgets and to moderate the embarrassingly large Federal deficits President Carter has pledged to eliminate.

ABOUT THE VOTES ON PAGE FOUR

TRIM chooses final votes on bills involving a billion dollars or more of your taxes. On a few occasions we discuss bills which do not have a precise dollar figure, but which nevertheless will have a significant economic impact.

The general public is little interested in how Congress decided to spend billions of tax dollars, but that it did so. The general public is interested in results. They can and do understand that Congress passes laws. In short, they are especially interested in votes on final passage.

Please study these votes, and then let your Representative know whether or not you agree with the way he voted.

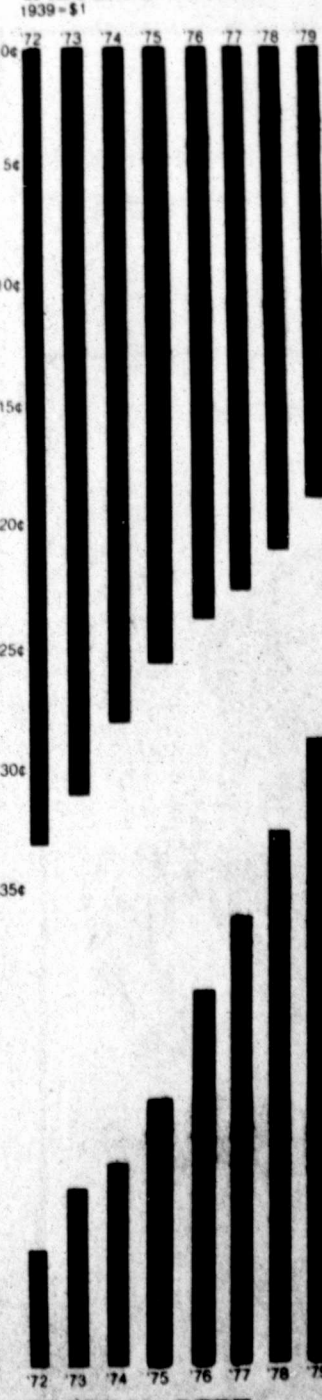

TRIM is a non profit, nonpartisan, educational organization. This information is taken from the Congressional Record.

1. CONGRESSIONAL PAY RAISE/CONTINUING APPROPRIATIONS, FISCAL 1980. H.J. Res. 404. The money in this bill for the pay raise was much less than one percent of the total appropriations. It is illegal in many states for a sitting legislature to vote itself a pay raise, but a majority who voted ignored that principle and the bill passed 208-203. (Congressional Record 9/25/79, p. H8462.) Total Cost: $62 billion.	$815	★		★			X
2. DEBT LIMIT INCREASE. H.R. 5369. For the 19th time in the last 8 years the House approved a "temporary" increase in the National Debt. The bill was written so that a separate vote on further increases in the future will no longer be required! The vote was 219-198. (Congressional Record 9/26/79, p. H8537.) Total Cost: $49 billion.	$644		X	★			X
3. TREASURY, POSTAL SERVICE, GENERAL GOVERNMENT APPROPRIATIONS, FISCAL 1980. H.R. 4393. This bill appropriated funds for the two agencies mentioned, plus such others as the White House, the Internal Revenue Service, the Customs Department, etc. The vote for passage was 344-49. (Congressional Record 7/16/79, p. H5985.) Total Cost: $8.8 billion.	$115		X		X		X
4. FISCAL 1979 SUPPLEMENTAL APPROPRIATIONS. H.R. 4289. This bill contained over 450 individual appropriation accounts, and affects virtually every federal department and agency. The need for the bill indicates either poor planning when budgets were set, or over-spending by the bureaucrats. The vote was 284-132 to accept the Conference Report. (Congressional Record 7/17/79, p. H6046.) Total Cost: $13.8 billion.	$181	★		★			X
5. INTERIOR DEPARTMENT APPROPRIATIONS, FISCAL 1980. H.R. 4930. This bill included $4 billion for the Department of Interior, $3.4 billion for the very inept Department of Energy, plus $5 billion for other programs. The bill breezed through the House. 344-42. (Congressional Record 7/30/79, p. H6888.) Total Cost: $10.2 billion.	$134	★			X		X
6. FOREIGN ECONOMIC AID. H.R. 3324. This bill authorizes over $1.9 billion in fiscal 1980 for bilateral economic aid programs and the Peace Corps. The House voted 223-181 to accept the Conference Report. (Congressional Record 8/2/79, p. H7081.) Total Cost: $1.9 billion.	$25	★		★		★
7. EDUCATION DEPARTMENT. S. 210. The House passed its version of this bill, H.R. 2444, by only 4 votes on July 11. It was different from the Senate version, but the differences were dropped by the conference committee. Yet the House still voted, 215-201, to accept the Conference Report. (Congressional Record 9/27/79, p. H8608.) Total Cost: $14 billion.	$184	★		★		★
8. PANAMA CANAL TREATIES IMPLEMENTATION. H.R. 111. Again, the House had a second chance, this time to vote down the treasonous giveaway of our Canal in Panama. The House rejected the Conference Report on September 20, 193-203. But it did a major turnaround six days later and voted 232-188 to accept the Conference Report, thus "legalizing" this tragic chapter in the history of our country. (Congressional Record 9/28/79, p. H8523.) Total Cost: $4 billion.	$53	★		★		★

Lower Taxes Through Less Government

Higher Taxes — and Prices . . . Government Regulation Strangling U.S.

"Americans are paying an additional $121 billion each year in taxes and higher consumer prices because of a dramatic increase in government regulation of business." So begins an article released by United Press International on October 27, 1979. That figure amounts to $500 for every man, woman and child in the country. Murray L. Weidenbaum, Director of the Center for the Study of American Business at Washington University in St. Louis, Mo., went on to explain that there has been a six-fold increase in the budgets of 56 federal regulatory agencies since 1970. In 1970 those regulatory agencies cost taxpayers $866 million a year. Today, their annual budgets are more than $6 billion.

Contrary to the perception that government is moving toward deregulation of business and industry, "the pace of regulation is continuing on an upward trajectory," Weidenbaum said in a report to the House Commerce Committee. "The number of agencies, regulatory programs, and authorizing statutes — and the budgets to carry them out — are all growing rapidly," he said. "Because many laws passed in recent years are only in the early growth stages of implementation."

The costs of increased regulation are paid through three primary routes: the direct cost, borne by taxpayers, of running each agency; the costs, passed on to consumers, of compliance by business, and the "induced effects of regulation" that inhibit innovation, capital formation and productivity.

Goodyear Grips
Dr. Weidenbaum is not the only person expressing alarm at the devastating effects of government regulation. According to Charles J. Pilliod, Jr., chairman of Goodyear Tire and Rubber, complying in 1977 with the regulations of just seven federal agencies cost Goodyear $46 million — which was substantially more than the entire net income of the world's largest rubber company for either the third or fourth quarter of that year. EPA regulations alone accounted for 31.8 percent of everything Goodyear spent "above and beyond" what was necessary to control emissions adequately.

Chrysler's Woes
Four consulting groups have independently reported that too much government regulation has caused the Chrysler Corporation to suffer its current woes. One of the consultants, Harbridge House, found that regulation "has magnified existing differences between U.S. automakers by applying equally difficult rules to unequal companies." Chrysler's chance to continue to exist is "extremely small" unless "regressive regulatory bias" is removed, said H.C. Wainwright & Co. Chrysler Vice President S. L. Terry commented: "Regulations force everyone to do the same research, buy the same tools, and perfect the same technology before anything goes into the first car." As a result, Chrysler must add $620 to the cost of a car, compared to only $320 for General Motors, because of excessive government regulations.

It's time for lower taxes.

Because many "hidden taxes" are never seen by consumers, some people find it hard to believe that governments at all levels are now consuming over 45% of an average person's earnings. TAX REFORM IMMEDIATELY (TRIM) is a nonprofit, nonpartisan, nationwide network of educational committees founded by The John Birch Society to achieve "lower taxes through less government."

Small Business and Regulation
The effects of government regulations on small businesses are many times greater because the costs of compliance are disproportionately higher. So much so that a small businessman in Baltimore was driven to suicide not long ago because he went bankrupt trying to satisfy hordes of government bureaucrats who accosted him with a multitude of often contradictory rules and regulations.

Estimates show that approximately 130 million man-hours of work are required by business to fill out some 9,800 individual forms issued by the government. Remembering that 97 percent of American firms are classified as small businesses, is it any wonder that these companies are having problems?

What Can Be Done?

The solution to the economic quagmire caused by government over-regulation is — get involved. Pennsylvania Representative Richard T. Schulze says: "If the present mushrooming rate of over-regulation continues, the small business community faces extinction. However, it has within its power the strength that is necessary to make changes. The small business community must get involved directly in the political process of this nation, and get involved right now!"

TRIM Government

One way to get involved is to join the TRIM Committee nearest you and support it in every way you can. For, as Rep. Richard Kelly recently told a Florida audience, "TRIM is grim. This group is following the only course that can turn this country around!" So fill out the coupon on this page, send it to the TRIM Committee mentioned at the top of page one, and help us bring about less government regulation — and lower taxes.

This summer, Midland's senior citizens to have meeting place

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

When the grass reaches its greenest, when the flowers have their fullest blooms, when the bees float lazily through the air... that's when the new Midland Senior Citizens Center should be ready to open its doors.

June is the earliest date the abandoned fire station at Circle Drive should have its remodeling and additions completed, according to Wayne Kohout, director of Parks and Recreation Department.

Delays in the form of funds and redrawing the architectural plans have pushed back a completion date several times, he said.

City officials have counted on using that building for a Senior Citizens Center since the taxpayers approved constructing a new Central Fire Station in Crier Park and a new substation at Haynes Drive.

The center will involve not only the fire station but also three lots to the west of it that will be converted into a parking lot. The only jag in the continuity of that tract will be a house separating the center from the parking lot, Kohout said.

THE PARKING LOT is designed with shrubbery surrounding it to give neighboring houses privacy. "We're hoping to have some of the senior citizens take care of it," he added.

Getting together enough funds to undertake the remodeling job proved to be a problem for awhile, said the director. Most of the money will be revenue sharing funds amounting to $219,000. Midland County is pitching in an additional $51,000 for a total of $270,000.

Estimated cost of construction is $221,000, Kohout advised Midland City Council. That figure doesn't include the cost of buying the three lots and the architect's fee, he said.

Because of the federal monies, Kohout said they must follow some government guidelines in constructing the center, such as ramps and wide doors for handicapped persons. "But we were planning on those, anyway," he added.

Drawing the plans for converting that old fire station hasn't been easy.

The building, which is about 20 years old, "was the cheapest building to put up," Kohout said. "It has no insulation. The lighting is at an absolute minimum. There are no wall receptacles."

LOOKING AT WHAT was wanted for the building, what additions should be built and how it needed to be brought up to standards almost made the staff scrap the building and opt for a new one. But the architect finally demonstrated that some money could be saved by using the old structure and still give the senior citizens what they wanted.

Some of the Recreation Department staff gathered material on what senior citizens centers in area cities had and incorporated their suggestions into what Midland should build.

Part of the old structure will have to be torn down first, Kohout said of the remodeling. "But we will salvage everything and use as much as possible," he said.

The drawings show a drive circling up to the front door with a canopy covering the entrance so senior citizens, especially those who are handicapped, can be let out at the door and not have to face inclement weather.

A receptionist will sign in the senior citizens, according to Kohout. This is to keep out people — such as neighborhood youths — who shouldn't be in the center. The director's office will be at the end of a hallway.

A library-lounge off the vestibule will serve as a quiet area where people can play a game of chess or read a book, Kohout described. A men's lounge should serve as a drawing card "because it's hard to get men to come," Kohout said. In this room will be a smoking area, pool table and television.

THERE WILL BE a sound-proofed woodworking shop, ceramics room and area for a kiln. A multi-use room can accommodate sewing or quilting classes and serve as a meeting room for small groups.

The main activity room will hold about 125 persons, according to Kohout. It will have a vinyl floor covering with two shuffleboard courts stamped into one area.

"In this main room we'll try to accommodate as much as we can. We will serve meals, have exercise classes and meetings here," Kohout noted. A kitchen next to this room will be able to serve a noon meal each day.

Currently, senior citizens meet in the First Christian Church and gather for a meal once a week.

"The meal is one of the primary focal points for senior citizens," he said.

Collapsible tables and stackable chairs will allow a variety of activities in the center, including dances. And a stage at one end of the main room will be set up for skits, a small combo or a film-showing, Kohout explained.

When finished, the center will have slightly more than 5,000 square feet of space, he said. "This is the smallest size of senior center that we could build," he added.

Suggestions as to what should be included were made by those attending the center at First Christian Church and members of local panels on aging.

And senior citizens' help will be required in making the center a completed project.

ONE WALL IN THE front vestibule will be left blank for the painting classes to finish. And when they tire of that design in a few years, the painting class can go over it and do another mural, Kohout said.

Cabinets and shelving will be made by senior citizens in the woodworking shop "giving us custom-made cabinets."

Currently, the meeting place in the church sees about 900 senior citizens a month, according to Kohout's figures. With the new center, he hopes to see that figure tripled.

"We anticipate reaching far more people than we do now," he said. "The room at the church can't accommodate any more. And some senior citizens think they have to be a member of that church to participate."

"This center will give the people their own place to go. We'll make it available to the people for a greater length of time and open it at night for activities," Kohout pointed out.

"As the demand calls for it, we would like to accommodate it."

Klan leader visits riot-torn Oklahoma town

IDABEL, Okla. (AP) — Two hundred mourners gathered at a country church Saturday for the funeral of a 15-year-old black youth whose slaying last week sparked racial violence.

Imperial Wizard Bill Wilkinson of the Ku Klux Klan, trailed by Oklahoma law officers, who drove through Idabel at about noon without stopping, returned to the racially troubled town Saturday night.

There were no reports of trouble. Meeting with reporters Saturday night, Wilkinson said he intended to leave Idabel after an hour's stay and head back to Oklahoma City "in a roundabout way."

Wilkinson is the Imperial Wizard of the Invisible Empire, Invincible Knights of the Ku Klux Klan. Oklahoma State Bureau of Investigation agents followed Wilkinson to nearby DeQueen, Ark., late Saturday afternoon, said OSBI agent Al Abernathy.

Abernathy was reluctant to disclose details of Wilkinson's travels. He said the surveillance was undertaken "for public safety" reasons in hopes of preventing violence involving Wilkinson.

He said he didn't want area whites "to take up his (Wilkinson's) cause" if something happened to Wilkinson.

Wilkinson, 37, of Denham Springs, La., said after his first pass through Idabel on Saturday he "made contact with a couple of representatives" of potential klansmen in Broken Bow, a small town north of here. He predicted the Klan would "have a klavern here very shortly — within two weeks."

Wilkinson's visit came after hundreds of persons attended the funeral of Henry Lee Johnson, who was shot to death behind a whites-only nightclub eight days before. The killing triggered a riot a week ago that left two dead, four wounded and about $100,000 in damage.

About 100 mourners filled the tiny Springhill Baptist Church about four miles outside town for Johnson's funeral, and another 100 persons stood outside. The Rev. Jesse Washington eulogized Johnson in the brief service.

AREA REPORT

Andrews group to hear music

ANDREWS — The Andrews County Chamber of Commerce will be departing from a tradition Thursday when live music, and not a guest speaker, will be the featured attraction at the chamber's 27th annual banquet in the Civic Center.

Performing at the 7:30 p.m. event will be Buddy Winfield of San Angelo and Richard Campbell of Nacogdoches. Louie Cure, chamber manager, described the musicians as "two impressive young singers."

Speakers in past years have included humorists and other notables, such as seer Jeane Dixon.

A highlight of the banquet will be the recognition of the chamber's 1980 "Community Service Award" recipient.

McCamey voters OK bonds

McCAMEY — McCamey voters have approved a $4.85 million school bond issue for renovating the school system's primary school, upgrading the middle school gymnasium, building a new band hall and renovating the school cafeteria.

The issue was passed 327 to 250.

Last year, a similar but higher-priced bond issue was defeated.

Crane High wins trophy

CRANE — Crane High School's mathematics and science team has captured the sweepstakes trophy at the Lubbock Math and Science Contest in which more than 48 schools from Class B to Class AAAA vied for academic honors.

The Crane students, who competed in mathematics, number sense, calculator and science contests, won the number sense and mathematics trophies in the small-school division for Class B, A and AA school.

Students competing in the contest were Jeff Adams, Clint Barrett, Pernel Jones and Thomas Murphy, freshmen; Jimmy Bacon, John Conlee, Douglas Head, Tim Lowe, John Saldana and Danny Williams, sophomores; Julie Everett, Gloria Gonzalez, Chuck Hurst, Tu Nguyen and Missie Thompson, Juniors; and Wayne Chisum, senior.

The students' sponsors were Ken Largent, calculator; David Smith, science; and Raymond Roycroft, number sense and mathematics.

Wichita Falls' Rider High School and Andrews High School teams placed second and third in their bid for the sweepstakes trophy. The contest was sponsored by Monterey High School in Lubbock.

Lombardo to play McCamey

McCAMEY — The Guy Lombardo Royal Canadian Orchestra, conducted by Bill Lombardo, nephew of the late band leader, will be in concert at 8:30 p.m. March 4 in the McCamey High School Auditorium.

The concert is being sponsored by the McCamey Chamber of Commerce. Tickets will be selling for $6 each.

Andrews' champs named

Jimmy Slatton to run

LAMESA — Jimmy Slatton, 42-year-old farmer and businessman who declared "it's time for a change," is challenging J.E. Airhart for commissioner of Dawson County's Precinct 1.

Slatton said that he's a friend of Airhart but feels the incumbent has "had the job long enough."

Crane Demo to run

CRANE — Gene Clack, chairman of Crane County's Democratic Party since 1978, has filed for the county attorney's post, now held by James McDonald, in the May 3 Democratic party's primary race.

Clack has practiced law here since 1976. McDonald, who has been a practicing attorney for 8½ years, is seeking his second term of office.

In another race, Dean Mann is seeking the Precinct 3 commissioner's post.

Farmers Union
raps check-off

WACO — The nation's cattle producers will be asked to "fork over some hefty outlays of cash" if the proposed beef promotion program is approved, says the National Farmers Union.

The "value added tax" — 20 cents per $100 value on each head of cattle sold — would generate upwards of $60 million during the first year of operation.

Texas cattle producers annually would pay about $7 million in assessments to the National Beef Board, which would be made up of 60 members, including six Texans, selected by cattle-men's organizations and appointed by the U.S. Secretary of Agriculture.

The mandatory check-off, which will be voted on by cattle producers in February, would apply to cattle at time of their sale.

"The bottom line for any program is 'Will it increase producer income?'" said Jay Naman, president of the Texas Farmers Union. "We have analyzed the proposed beef-promotion program very carefully and have concluded that it will not."

Though the farm organization opposes the plan, a segment of the cattle industry called Texas Beefeferendum is waging a campaign to gain approval of the program.

Texans to trim crop acreage

AUSTIN — Texas farmers had planned to decrease their 1980 acreage in major field crops, including cotton, before the grain embargo, Texas Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown has reported.

Exceptions to the forecast are corn and grain sorghum, which are expected to be on the increase, indicated a survey by the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

Corn growers who were surveyed indicated that their acreage would be up 21 percent over 1979, but "with the embargo on Russian exports and the supplies that will be available in the U.S., that percentage will probably not hold up," the commissioner said.

"Most farmers are just waiting to learn more specific details on the federal storage plans and on the possible set-aside program," he said. Sorghum acreage is forecast to be up to 5.2 million acres and slightly over last year's planting.

In view of the 1979 bumper crop, cotton planting in 1980 is expected to be down 1 percent to 7.6 million acres.

Other crops expected to be decreased in acreage are barley at 100,000 acres; flaxseed, 4,000; oats, 1.5 million; rice, 545,000, and soybeans, 850,000.

Management control praised

COLLEGE STATION — Cattlemen must accept "management control" as a means to more profitable beef production, says cattle specialist L.A. Maddox of Texas A&M University's Extension Service.

He describes management control "for a rancher to set a goal on the kind of cattle he wants to raise, plan to do it and then do it."

By and large, ranchers in West Texas already are under self-imposed management to stay in business and make a buck.

Some time ago, Maddox prepared a set of management controls for use in small, large and breeding-cattle ranch operations. The performance-testing system was not readily accepted in the 1950s when it was first introduced as a replacement for "eyeballing" to determine the value of an animal.

"Practices unacceptable 20 years ago are now standard procedure in cattle breed associations," Maddox said.

Fort Worth show on

FORT WORTH — The Southwestern Exposition and Fat Stock Show and rodeo will be held through Feb. 3 in Will Rogers Coliseum in Fort Worth.

The rodeo, billed as the World's Original Indoor Rodeo, is being held in conjunction with the 84th annual Southwestern Exposition and Fat Stock Show.

Guest entertainer at each of the rodeo's performances will be Red Steagall, a leading country music composer, entertainer and record producer.

Directing the rodeo will be Neal Gay of Mesquite. Cowboys are vying for a purse exceeding $150,000.

PROPERTY LOCATION

What would cost more...a lot on Manhattan Island or a similar sized lot in the middle of the Gobi Desert? "Every one knows the New York lot would cost more!" But do they know this? One still hears many stories of people dazzled by get-rich-quick schemes who go ahead and buy investment property a hundred miles from nowhere.

Real estate-including commercial investment properties-in and near population centers are more expensive for a reason that can be summed up on one word...people. They want to work near, be with, and interact with other individuals. One would think that location is basic in this choice of commercial real estate. Yet many Realtors can tell almost unbelievable stories of beautiful office buildings and shopping centers with the finest of features-modern structures that SHOULD be fully occupied. But they sit there practically empty for one reason...they're in the wrong place!

LYNDEN, Wash. (AP) — Fire raged through a one-story wood-frame house early Saturday, killing five children, officials said.

Firefighters said a cigarette smoldering in a sofa may have been the cause of the blaze.

Dead were five of the eight children of Valentine and Zella Zamora. Only their 17-year-old daughter escaped the blaze.

The victims were identified as Lydia Diana, 12, Elena Lea, 7, Samuel Richard, 4, Thomas, 1, and Israel Daniel, 8.

George Archer

BIG SPRING — George M. Archer Sr., 66, of Big Spring died Friday in a Big Spring hospital.

Services were Saturday in the 14th and Main Street Church of Christ. Burial was in Trinity Memorial Park directed by Nalley-Pickle Funeral Home.

Archer was born Oct. 24, 1913, in Hansford County. He had received a bachelor's degree from West Texas State University and a master's degree from the University of Texas at Austin. He was married May 17, 1936, to Gladys Stewart in Canyon.

He moved to Big Spring in 1955 from San Saba County. He had taught at schools in Midway and Gay Hill in Howard County. He had been a principal of the Gay Hill school. He later became associated with the Big Spring Independent School District, the Park Hill school and was assistant principal at Marcy Elementary. He retired in 1968 from the Big Spring school system.

After retiring, Archer managed Moran Real Estate in Big Spring. He was a member of the Church of Christ, Lions Club and Texas State Teachers Association.

He was born in Asherton and moved to Tulia from Olton in 1954. He was a night watchman for the Tulia Feedlot.

Other survivors include his wife, two daughters, five sons, 25 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Midlanders won't vote until May, but time short for candidates to file

By SUSAN TOTH Staff Writer

Midland voters won't begin the election process until May, but for those citizens who plan to make a bid for one of nine county offices to be filled in the November general elections, time is running short.

Filing deadline for the May 3 Republican and Democratic primaries is 6 p.m. Feb. 4.

With only eight days remaining in the filing period, eight of the nine offices have attracted at least one potential candidate.

The only incumbent who has not announced his political intentions is County Tax Assessor-Collector Elmo Linebarger, and, so far, no one has indicated a desire to run for his office.

Midlanders will select two county commissioners in the general election Nov. 4. Both incumbents, Precinct 1 Commissioner Durward Wright and Precinct 4 Commissioner Jack Leonard, have filed for re-election in the Democratic primary.

While neither has attracted an opponent in the primary so far, each has drawn a Republican challenger.

Jeff Barber has filed for the Precinct 1 position and Gordon W. Casbeer has filed for the Precinct 4 place in the Republican Party primary.

The Republicans so far have a solo shot at the 142nd District Judge's bench being vacated by Perry D. Pickett. Pickett announced earlier this month he will not seek another term in the office he has held since 1954, the longest tenure of any judge in Midland County.

Pat Baskin Sr., who said he will file in the Republican primary, is the only announced candidate for the post.

Incumbent District Attorney Vern Martin is the only announced candidate so far for his post. He has indicated he will file for a ballot position in the Republican primary.

County Attorney Leslie Acker has said he will not seek a second term this year, but an assistant in his office, Robert Rendall has announced he will seek the Republican nomination for the office.

Midland County Sheriff Dallas Smith has said he will seek the Republican nomination for a second term in his office. His opposition so far consists of Joe W. Carr, who has filed in the Democratic primary for the sheriff's spot.

A Democratic primary battle is shaping up for the Place 1, Precinct 1 Justice of the Peace post. Incumbent John Biggs has filed for a sixth term and will be challenged by fellow Democrat Leroy Stewart.

Three candidates have thrown their hats in the ring for the job of county constable being vacated for the first time in 24 years by incumbent Jack Merritt, who has announced his retirement at the end of this year.

Charlie Jones has filed as a Democratic candidate for the office. Odell Smith and Thomas McGinnis also have announced their intention to run for the post.

All announced candidates have designated campaign treasurers in papers filed with County Clerk Rosenell Cherry.

By late Friday, however, only two of the announced Republican hopefuls had paid the necessary filing fees to be included on their party's primary ballot.

The two Republican candidates for county commissioner, Casbeer and Barber, had paid the $300 filing fee with County Republican Party Chairman William T. Shaner.

"Candidates have until 6 p.m. next Tuesday to pay their fees," Shaner said, adding he planned to spend the last afternoon at GOP headquarters, 407 E. Illinois Ave., to accept any late filings.

All announced Democratic candidates have paid their filing fees to County Democratic Party Chairman Darrell Smith.

The sheriff and commissioner candidates have paid $300 each, while candidates for constable and peace justice have paid $200 fees.

Unrepentant Paul returns to Britain

LONDON (AP) — Ex-Beatle Paul McCartney returned to Britain on Saturday and went into seclusion, apparently unrepentant after his 10-day stay in a Tokyo jail for allegedly taking marijuana into Japan.

A spokesman for the district prosecutor's office in Tokyo said it was decided not to bring charges against the 37-year-old British singer-composer, adding: "We always give some weight to clear signs of repentance in these cases. McCartney appeared to have learned a lesson from his stay with us."

But before boarding a private jet to complete the journey to Britain that began with his expulsion from Japan, McCartney told reporters in Amsterdam: "I think we should decriminalize it and get some really unbiased medical reports about it. I can take it or leave it. It's silly to say it's wicked."

He added: "I have been in jail for 10 days and I did not go crazy because of not having it. I don't think it's a terribly serious thing... I think cigarettes are far worse."

He appeared to have undergone a change of heart since talking to British reporters on the plane to Amsterdam.

Smoking a cigarette, he had been quoted as telling them: "I've made up my mind. I've been smoking marijuana more than 11 years and I'm never going to touch the stuff again."

McCartney, his American-born wife Linda, and their four children, arrived at the tiny Lydd airport near the English Channel coast southeast of London.

It was a quiet arrival, in contrast with the mob scene of his departure from Tokyo on Friday.

They were met only by a man delivering a limousine.

The family cleared customs quickly and McCartney drove them off to their remote Sussex County farm estate, where they went into seclusion.

A spokesman for the star in London said: "He just wants some sleep and to spend some time alone with his family."

McCartney, who reportedly earned $50 million in 1978, bought the estate last year.

Annette Hopkins, an air traffic control assistant at Lydd, said McCartney looked happy when the family arrived.

Two Scouts, four adults given awards at Recognition Banquet

Two Scouts were cited for saving the lives of two other youths, and four adults received Scouting's highest award Friday night during the 56th annual Recognition Banquet of the Buffalo Trail Council, Boy Scouts of America.

K.D. Van Horn of Midland, Austin Ferguson of Big Spring, Edith Harrington of Odessa and Thelma Deere of Snyder received the Silver Beaver Award for "noteworthy service of exceptional character to boyhood by registered Scouters within the jurisdiction of the Buffalo Trail Council.

Van Horn also was installed as council president. Production manager for Cities Service Oil Co. in Midland, Van Horn has served in almost every council position, including assistant scoutmaster, Explorer advisor, district chairman, camping chairman, council vice president and member of the development committee.

Ferguson has held positions as assistant advisor, advisor, assistant scoutmaster and scoutmaster and serves on the district roundtable committee, Order of the Arrow and District Committee. He holds Eagle Scout rank, Silver Award for Exploring, Scouting Award, District Award of Merit and Wood Badge.

Mrs. Harrington was cited for her work as assistant den mother, den leader and Cub roundtable training team member, advancement clerk in the council office and member of the district commissioner staff.

Mrs. Deere was noted for serving as den leader and district Cub chairman. She has received the district award of merit.

Alpine Scouts Benny Muniz and Christopher Bow were presented with lifesaving awards by the National Council and credited with saving the lives of Jessie Howard, 6, and Jameo Reys, 7, also of Alpine.

On Aug. 27, 1979, the two youths fell off a raft into 7-foot-deep water in a straight-sided tank at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gus Lines of Alpine. Neither boy knew how to swim.

Having passed their swimming merit badge at Buffalo Trail Scout Ranch, Second Class Scouts Muniz and Bow, of Troop 41, were able to rescue the drowning youths.

The Scouts received a citation and medals of merit.

Also during the banquet, new council officers were elected and installed. Installed along with Van Horn were Don Jones of Midland, treasurer; Charles Ross of Odessa, council commissioner; and vice presidents Robert M. Leibrock, Rudy Wright, John Crosby Jr., and Ed Weyman, all of Midland; J. Arnold Marshall of Big Spring; and Homer Stewart and Gary Watkins of Odessa.

District chairmen for the council are Larry Speck of Big Spring for the Lone Star District; Norman Henry of Midland, Chaparral District; Richard Miller of Odessa, Comanche Trails District; Halley Brookshire of Pecos, Sand Hills District; Dr. Tom Scannicchio of Snyder, Lone Buffalo District; and Ray Potts of Alpine, Big Bend District.

New adult members of the executive board for the council are Don Wagoner and Joe Connally of Odessa.

About 300 adults from throughout the 18-county Buffalo Trail Council attended the banquet. Featured speaker was Merle Krulsh from Dallas, director of the South Central Region, Boy Scouts of America. Master of ceremonies was Oley Hedrick of Midland.

Refugees confused by man's attempt to hang self, children

By MARGY McCAY

FAIRFIELD, Iowa (AP) — The few Laotian refugees in this south-east Iowa farming community are "having trouble inside" themselves, trying to understand why a fellow refugee and his four children were hanged from twine nooses in the basement of their home.

Prosecutors, in the meantime, plan to take the case to a grand jury. Police say Theng Pao Yang, 29, apparently hanged his children and then hanged himself. One of the children died.

Yi Ly, 25, told police she found her husband and their four children hanging in their basement on Tuesday. She quickly cut them down, but their only son, 8-year-old So Yeng Yang, died of strangulation.

Theng Pao was hospitalized in good condition Saturday. His 6-year-old daughter, Bay, was listed in fair condition. Two younger daughters, 3-year-old Chu and 1-year-old Mai Yai, were with their mother in Fairfield.

The other five Laotian families who have come here in the past year are confused by it all.

"They feel very sad," said Barbara Hill, who teaches English to the refugees. "They call it 'having trouble inside.' They can understand a man wanting to take his own life; this happens in their country. But they do not understand why he would kill the boy or why he would try to hang his whole family."

Authorities are just as confused about what happened, and why. Jefferson County Attorney Edwin Kelly said Friday he would call a grand jury to investigate the death of the boy.

Kelly said his investigation had been hampered by the language barrier and having to work through interpreters.

"There have been some discrepancies," he said.

Honored for years of service to Boy Scouts of America by receiving the Silver Beaver Award are, from left, Edith Harrington of Odessa, Thelma

POSITIVE THINKING

Take a break, pour yourself some inspiration

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

The coffee break seems to have established itself as a basic feature of American business life. New office buildings and factories set aside special rooms for this daily ritual, symbolized by great, shining urns. Coffee breaks are written into union contracts, and employers who refuse to permit them are regarded as hopelessly old-fashioned.

Now, I'm not opposed to coffee breaks, but a friend of mine tells me that he has come across a better idea. He suggests adding to the coffee break what he calls an "Inspiration Break."

It's an excellent suggestion, and I presented the idea in some speeches. One man tells me that he made up his mind that instead of going out and chatting idly with his associates over a cup of coffee for 15 minutes or so, he would spend that 15 minutes in his office, reading the Bible. He also had his cup of coffee there, but the important thing for him was to spend that time reading the Bible.

Reading fifteen minutes a day, five days a week, he managed to cover each of the Psalms and all of the New Testament in a very short time. He reports that the result has been quite remarkable.

When he started his "Inspiration Break," he's had a lot of difficulties and there were conflicts and problems he couldn't resolve. But as he filled his mind with the great words of the Bible, his problems began to come into better focus.

He finally decided that there are four great principles which he had acquired from this reading and which gave him a power to solve his problems as he had never had before.

The first was belief. He learned to believe that through God's help he could do what he had to do. He learned really to believe in God, and as a result, also in himself, in his work, in other people.

Next, he learned to think in an atmosphere of calm and quiet. You can't think successfully without inward calm and quiet. When he achieved that, his mind worked better.

Third, he regained a belief in his power to work. Instead of scattering his energies and leaking away his power, he was able to apply himself with concentration. He learned to work effectively.

And last, but not least important, he discovered that you must give yourself to have yourself. He found the creative importance of sharing as a life principle. He began to tithe, that is, to give 10 percent of his income to his church, and to give generously to help other people. But he also tithed or shared his time and abilities. He gave himself, and in so doing found himself.

These then are the four great principles of power this man discovered in his daily reading of the Bible: believe, think, work and share. It was the application of these principles in his own life that lifted him over his difficulties. His daily "Inspiration Break" showed him the way.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Smoking habit hard one to kick

Dear Dr. Solomon: When I thought my husband's smoking resulted only in dirty ashtrays, burned carpets and a foul odor throughout the house, I did not like it but was able to tolerate it. Now that it has been established that his two-pack-a-day habit is a form of suicide, I've lost all patience. Why would anyone take poison unless he really wants to kill himself? — Mrs. A.J.

Dear Mrs. J.: Although I've firmly advocated an end to smoking for some time, I think it is important for nonsmokers to try to understand the hold cigarettes have on their victims. We cannot ignore the fact that smoking provides the habituated person with some form of satisfaction — physiological, psychological or social.

Smokers develop a strong addiction to the nicotine in tobacco, a substance that can act as a stimulant, depressant or tranquilizer, depending on the dosage. The smoker who is really hooked will unconsciously consume cigarettes at a rate that provides the needed level of nicotine to the brain. The nicotine is absorbed from the lungs almost immediately after the tobacco smoke is inhaled. Pipe or cigar smoking and chewing tobacco provide a slower rate of absorption.

The best way to deal with smoking obviously is never to start. Very few people are occasional smokers; once they start, most become regularly dependent on the habit.

You may want to remind your husband that smoking by one or both parents presents an undesirable example to their children. While teenagers are subject to other influences with regard to smoking — for instance, peer pressure and a desire to act "grown-up" — the example set by parents should not be underestimated.

The American Cancer Society has found that the reasons people smoke fall into six categories. Some smokers are stimulated by tobacco and require it to get started in the morning and to keep going during the day. Others enjoy manipulating the cigarette — lighting it, holding it and flicking the ashes. A third group finds smoking a pleasurable experience and obtains a sense of well-being from it. These three categories of smokers may be helped to kick the habit by substituting some other enjoyable activity for it.

However, many smokers continue the habit not because it enhances their feeling of well-being, but as a crutch. These people use tobacco as a sedative or tranquilizer when in an uncomfortable or pressure-laden situation. The solution is to help the person resolve the situations that produce the tension, thus eliminating the need for cigarettes.

The remaining two categories listed by the American Cancer Society include people who are psychologically addicted, and those for whom smoking has become a habit even though it may not provide any actual pleasure.

I can understand your impatience with your husband's smoking, but try to realize that the habit, when deeply ingrained, is not easily broken. Possibly he can be helped to cut back on his two packs a day, even if, for the moment, he can't give it up completely.

Compare prices, GAO urges hospitals

By JANET STAIHAR

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hospitals throughout the nation could save thousands of dollars if they compare the prices they pay for medical supplies, says a General Accounting Office study.

The GAO surveyed the prices of supplies routinely purchased by 37 hospitals in six cities and found wide differences in the prices paid for similar items.

Sen. Herman E. Talmadge, D-Ga., chairman of the health subcommittee of the Finance Committee, released the report Saturday. He had asked the congressional watchdog agency to do the study.

In Atlanta, the GAO said, 100 tablets of penicillin were purchased by one hospital for $18.52, while another hospital in the city paid only $3.92.

In other cost comparisons around the nation, there was a price range of more than 600 percent for aspirins; 100 percent for trash can liners; and 100 percent for fluorescent lamps.

Medicaid and Medicare programs include payment to hospitals for a lot of medical supplies.

The GAO concluded that compilation and distribution of price information by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare to hospital administrators and government health officials would help avoid excessive payments for routine purchases.

"This study documents what I have been saying for years," Talmadge said. "That hospitals need positive incentives to improve their cost-efficiency."

He said such incentives are in his Medicare-Medicaid Administrative and Reimbursement Reform bill which is awaiting action in the Senate.

It includes a system of incentive payments for hospitals that meet certain efficiency standards. On the other hand, it would penalize hospitals for inefficiency.

Talmadge estimates his bill would save Medicaid-Medicare $9 billion over five years.

"With inflation rampant and huge budget deficits, we absolutely must improve efficiency in the $55 billion Medicare and Medicaid programs — including federal payments of about $4.3 billion for hospital supplies alone," Talmadge said.

The GAO surveyed hospitals in Atlanta; Cincinnati and Columbus, Ohio; Miami; Pittsburgh, Pa.; and Seattle.

Water district solvent despite sales drop

The Colorado River Municipal Water District sold substantially less water than estimated for 1979, but it ended the year with revenues sufficient to exceed bond coverage and to come fairly close to other budget targets. Coverage was 1.20 against a 1.15 requirement.

Total expenses of $7,441,501 were $155,761 or 2.61 percent more than estimated in the budget.

Debt service aggregated $3,876,342, which included $2,200,000 repayment of principal and $1,676,342 in interest.

Operating expense of $3,598,884 was $1,890,487 or 5.56 percent over budget estimates. The breakdown is as follows: Source of water supply, $591,198 ($447 or .75 of 1 percent under estimates); pumping expense, $2,489,827 ($175,720 or 7.05 percent more than the budget); administration and general, $431,452 ($21,229 or 5.18 percent over budget); recreation, $85,624 ($3,769 or 2.72 less than budget estimates).

Among operating expenses, the chief overrun was in electric energy costs, which totaled $2,048,410, or $138,829 more than budgeted. This was in the face of the fact that the district pumped about a billion gallons less water than it had projected — 285,000,000 less for cities and the remainder for oil companies.

Sheriff sees need for new training programs

Staff Photo

Midland County Sheriff Dallas Smith has plans for his officers this year, but some may not make him a candidate for "Most Likeable Guy in the Office" this year.

They include a physical training course, which could mean the difference between having a job or not, and a firearms training program on an obstacle course. Both programs are mandatory.

The only voluntary program — and perhaps the only popular one — is a plan to send the chief deputy and captains to a four-month administrative FBI school at Quantico, Va.

The physical training course began earlier this month.

"It will force someone to have some degree of a proper weight," Smith said. "He's not going to be 30 pounds overweight and be able to run this program. Or he can, but he will be in good shape. We'll take him either way."

THE COURSE WILL include quarterly tests, and any deputy who fails will be dismissed, according to Smith.

"We're setting up minimum standards and each officer with this agency must meet those standards, and that includes me," he said.

These standards have been derived from the experience of a local cardiologist, a book on aerobics written by Dr. Kenneth Cooper and charts on running devised by the United States Air Force Academy at Fort Collins, Colo.

A large part of the quarterly examination will center around running, according to Smith. Each deputy will have to run 1 1/2 miles in 12 minutes.

"And jogging won't quite get him there," Smith said.

OTHER PARTS of the quarterly test will include sit ups, push ups and the fireman's carry, where someone must carry another person of equal weight.

"Total cost will be on the testing day. It will take several hours of that work day and will be a special assignment," said Smith. "But we are not providing training for the tests. We won't be renting gym space. It will be up to the individual officer to pass the tests."

"The point of this is that if he (the officer) is not preparing for this and running on a weekly basis, he cannot pass the test."

There will be an age exemption at some point, Smith added, but for the 40-, 50- and early 60-year-old commissioned officers, it will be mandatory. Smith also said there are some who, for medical reasons, could not run. For these, an alternate program, such as swimming, will be worked out.

"I expect the officers to be in better shape than the general public, and I want them to be able to perform as I and the general public expect them to. We're not trying to create supermen out of them," said the sheriff.

"It's the same thing as a deputy not learning his law or qualifying on the range. It's part of the job."

SMITH SAID a specialized program will be worked out for those failing the test to bring them up to standard. But that if it doesn't work, the officer will be dismissed.

"Reaction will vary. There are bound to be men who don't want to do it. Of course, when I'm sitting there saying 'don't you think police officers should be in good shape?' they're all sitting there and shaking their heads 'yes.'"

"But getting there takes some physical requirements and work, and it's hard for anyone to want to do anything that creates additional work."

If nothing else, the physical fitness program should help them with the firearms training course.

"The firearms training course is to improve the safety and qualifications of the officer shooting," Smith said, describing the program as an obstacle course that will be expanded to include shooting at night.

"THERE WILL BE obstacles they will have to run through," Smith said. "They'll stop, fire at a silhouette target and have a certain amount of time to reach the next target, reloading somewhere on the way," he said.

While running from target to target, the officer will have to overcome such obstacles as barbed wire, rocks, mesquite and cactus.

Smith said the barbed wire will be regular barbed wire fences such as a deputy might have to climb while chasing someone.

"Most firing ranges have nice clipped lawns, where the officer lies down and aims at a target, and a bucket to dump your brass in."

"But that's not real life," Smith said. "In real life, it's usually night and cold and raining. Some guy's running from you, and you don't know what he looks like. If you don't catch him there's no chance of getting him. After running through a muddy field for awhile you begin to wonder if you shouldn't have worn boots, and after awhile longer you begin to wonder if you shouldn't have worn track shoes."

"If an officer can shoot in these situations, I'm not going to worry about his ability to fire on a warm, sunny afternoon on clipped grass," Smith said.

IDEAS FOR THE course are being taken from the FBI Tactical Firearms Course in Quantico, Va., Smith added.

Smith has been looking at several sites for the course, including a few caliche pits.

"One of these would be just right. It's just miserable. It has cactus, mesquite and rocks," Smith said.

The men could climb the caliche pit walls and targets could be placed against the walls to control the shooting.

"Now, not many officers will volunteer to go through something like this. So, like the physical training course, this is mandatory," he added.

"A firing range is excellent for initially training officers, but for the officer who has completed that series of courses, I want them to move into the more realistic range."

THE PROGRAM WILL include some shotgun training and demonstrations on how difficult some maneuvers, such as shooting out tires on a moving vehicle, can be, according to Smith.

The only cost for the course will be constructing the frames, he said. No land will be purchased for the site.

Smith hopes to have the course constructed and working during the first half of this year.

"It's a discouraging and tragic thing when an officer winds up in a deal where he finds himself dead or he kills a member of the general public who had nothing to do with it (the situation). If I can get a guy to shoot in these conditions and be able to control it, I will have improved his ability somewhat," Smith said.

ATTACKING FROM a slightly different angle, Smith has succeeded with another plan for improving his officers.

The County Commissioners have approved sending members of the Sheriff's Department to the FBI administrative school at Quantico.

The school lasts for three to four months and is basically for supervisory personnel. Smith said the chief deputy and captains will be sent. However, only one person will go this year due to the length of the school.

"The most we could ever send is two," Smith said.

He added that the FBI conducts a background investigation into each officer proposed for the course, and can reject an officer if he doesn't meet certain standards.

"These are the same programs used for cardiology patients, and I would like for the average police officer to at least be able to run as far as the average cardiology patient."

— Sheriff Dallas Smith

Watson leading San Diego Open

SAN DIEGO (AP)—Ray Floyd and Lon Hinkle realize they have their work cut out for them. They trail the formidable Tom Watson by 2 shots going into today's final round of the $250,000 Andy Williams-San Diego Open Golf Tournament.

Like Hinkle, Watson didn't make a bogey in his effort over the 7,002-yard South course at the Torrey Pines Golf Club. It was the only "5" on his card in a no-bogey round.

Tom Purtzer and Forrest Fezler were another shot back at 208. Purtzer had a 66, Fezler 69. Tied at 209, 4 shots back, were Bobby Wadkins, Buddy Gardner and Keith Ferguson.

Duke captures 78-69 win over Pittsburgh five

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Third-ranked Duke hit 14 of 14 free throws in the final two minutes, six of them by center Mike Gminski, to secure a 78-69 college basketball victory over the University of Pittsburgh Saturday night.

But with 1:57 to go, the 6-foot-11 Gminski hit two foul shots that gave Duke the lead to stay at 66-65. Moments later, Gminski was fouled again and made both shots to up the advantage to 68-65.

Bulldog golfers record 697 total

SAN ANGELO—The Midland High boys golf team wound up with a 697 total here in their first golf competition of the year.

Paul Minnix recorded a 163 total with rounds of 84 and 79 for the best showing for MHS while Jerry Howes was next with 177.

Pacers nip Cavaliers, 115-114

RICHFIELD, Ohio (AP)—The Indiana Pacers' Mike Bantom was credited with the winning basket on a goaltending call with 13 seconds to play to boost the Pacers to a 115-114 National Basketball Association triumph over the Cleveland Cavaliers Saturday night.

Mickey Johnson scored 37 points to pace the Pacers. As Cleveland tried to come back, Willie Smith lost the ball out of bounds with eight seconds to play.

Computer age arrives in schools

System offers fun, self-paced instruction

By DAVID CAMPBELL Staff Writer

Students staying after school to do homework? Sounds impossible, especially when many adults can recall doing almost anything to avoid confronting the unpleasant task of homework.

But, then again, there wasn't the computer. Midland Independent School District is examining the feasibility of using computer-assisted instruction in Midland schools.

A federally-funded pilot program at Alamo Junior High School for Title 1 students is the testing ground for such a project.

And the students are staying after school to do 10 minutes of additional "homework."

Computer-assisted instruction is a program which individualizes learning. Students use a computer to develop skills in mathematics, reading and language arts.

Lessons are designed for each student's ability. Each lesson is difficult enough to challenge the pupil, but not so difficult as to frustrate him.

Computer programs utilize a concept called strands structure. A strand is a "graduated sequence of exercises within a skill area," said Reita Olmstead, a consultant with Computer Curriculum Corporation of Palo Alto, Calif., the company which designs the program.

"During the first lesson, the student is exposed to all strands within his or her grade level," she said. "Then, if the student is having difficulty with a level of challenge, the computer automatically lowers the level of challenge to the student's ability."

"When the student improves his skills through practice within a certain level of challenge, the computer presents more difficult exercises and moves the student to another level of difficulty," she explained.

Individuality is the program's drawing card. Students compete with themselves, and they can see how well they are doing.

The computer tells the student if the answer is right or wrong. It also sends encouragements to the student to "Try Again," if he gets a wrong answer.

This is a far cry from being yelled at or embarrassed by a human teacher for a wrong answer.

"The teacher benefits from the computer in that she does not have to spend so much time trying to diagnose a student's learning problem," said Bryant Saxon, director of programs and research for MISD.

The computer reports the student's progress through a printed record. Problem areas are pinpointed and the teacher can prescribe certain remedial lessons to help the student, Saxon said.

Schools in Odessa, Pecos and Big Spring have incorporated the program in their system, he said. Pecos reported adding terminals to service more students in the high school, Ms. Olmstead said.

"The most impressive item about the project is the 'software' or type of program the company is selling," Saxon said. "Most companies will try to impress schools with the hardware aspect (the computer)."

Saxon noted the district's objective in the pilot program is to see if the computer can help the learning disabilities of the Title 1 student.

A Title 1 student is a child that is one or more years below his grade level, Saxon explained.

"We are seeking some kind of learning program which will help the learning disadvantaged student," he said.

Each student who participates in the program will spend at least 10 minutes in each session, Saxon explained.

"Those 10 minutes will be the most intense period of study because the student is timed by the computer to work as many problems as he can," the director said.

"Hopefully, the student will spend at least two sessions of 10 minutes each with the computer," he added. "This way, the student should be able to drill and practice with the concepts he was taught early in the day by his teacher."

The computer won't replace the teacher in the classroom, Saxon said. However, it should make learning a more pleasant and rewarding experience for the students.

New price index may quiet opponents

By OWEN ULLMANN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The folks who've been crying that the Consumer Price Index exaggerated the real rate of inflation last year by a percent or two should be silent this year. That's because the index may understate the real rise in the cost of living for 1980.

The index has become the center of a raging controversy because of last year's high inflation rate. As officially measured by the CPI, inflation reached a 33-year high of 13.3 percent in 1979.

Critics argued that the index inflated inflation because of the way it computes increases in home prices and mortgage rates, which jumped sharply last year.

If that is so, then the CPI likely will deflate inflation this year, because home prices are expected to level off and mortgage rates are expected to decline, economists say.

The controversy over the index is not simply a matter for debate by economists. Nearly every American is touched directly or indirectly by the index, which affects cost-of-living raises, pensions, Social Security checks and a variety of government programs.

Economists estimate that a 10 percent rise in the CPI triggers an additional $10 billion in government spending and provides an average 6 percent cost-of-living raise for some 9 million workers.

So, if the index put a little extra money in workers' pockets last year, then it could be short-changing them this year.

The leading critic has been Alfred E. Kahn, President Carter's chief inflation adviser. "The way we measure inflation can itself aggravate inflation," Kahn told a congressional committee last week.

But Kahn also has acknowledged that the index will distort the real inflation rate on the low side as the costs of home mortgages begin to decline in a few months, as he expects.

That view is shared by many economists, including Janet Norwood, commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, which produces the index.

Last week, Mrs. Norwood released five alternative, but still experimental, ways to measure housing costs. All five would have lowered the inflation rate, from a 0.1 to 2.1 percentage points.

The alternative measures essentially try to determine the cost of shelter without including the investment gains from home ownership.

But Mrs. Norwood said these measures might exaggerate inflation in years when mortgage rates decline. Defending the current CPI as the most reliable index, she said the bureau has no plans to change it now.

The CPI, the official measure of U.S. inflation for six decades, is a monthly survey of retail prices for a fixed "basket" of goods and services, ranging from food to fuel, tobacco to transportation, appliances to apparel.

At the end of 1979, the index stood at almost 230. That meant that the basket of goods costing $100 in the base year of 1967, cost $230 today, thanks to inflation.

Two of the fastest rising items in the 1979 price survey were houses and mortgage rates, which increased 15.8 percent and 27.5 percent, respectively.

The CPI measures the cost of a home as if it were purchased and paid for entirely, including interest costs, in one year.

Kahn and other critics complain that the index fails to take into account that many people buy a home as an investment and tax advantage. They also note that only 6 percent of Americans buy a house each year, while most live in houses they bought years ago at far lower interest rates.

Organized labor is among the leading defenders of the CPI. AFL-CIO research director Rudy Oswald said this week that the present measure of home ownership is superior to the alternatives, which he labeled as "cures that are worse than the disease."

Oswald, suggesting that political motives may be behind criticism of the CPI, said many of the alternatives would create an "imaginary index" and open up the possibility of "manipulation in behalf of some preferred rate of inflation."

Inflation a 'symptom,' group says

By GLENN RITT

WASHINGTON (AP) — Inflation is less a disease that can be cured by monetary and fiscal policy than it is a symptom of deeper problems whose roots extend from the Pentagon to Madison Avenue, a private research group said Saturday. A study by the World-watch Institute says the chronically high inflation rate that grips most nations reflects the shrinking of global resources.

"We can no longer turn the fiscal and monetary dials to correct it," said Robert Fuller, author of the study. It will take an entire generation "if we're looking to get at (inflation's) sources," he added.

Fuller said inflation is being fed by an explosion in defense spending, too much trade protection, excessive consumption that is stimulated by Madison Avenue's advertising industry, and too much reliance on high-priced exports.

The study, entitled "Inflation: The Rising Cost of Living on a Small Planet," said that societies can no longer simply increase supply to meet demand. "We are reaching that historic point where many resources are peaking," Fuller said.

The study disdains many of the conventional proposals to solve inflation, taking views that reflect Fuller's background as a physicist and the nonprofit organization's role as viewer of global problems from energy to population control.

It advocates changes in people's behavior more than it supports tight money policies by the Federal Reserve Board.

"Controlling inflation will require a shift away from consumerism, away from the materialistic orientation," Fuller said.

He chastised the advertising industry for encouraging unnecessary consumption and supporting annual style changes in automobiles and clothing.

Fuller also said people's dependence on "professional experts, whether medical, educational, legal or mechanical...creates conditions for subsequent exploitation by excessive charges."

Fingerprint, witnesses' statements lead to arrest in 1978 death case

ODESSA — A bloody fingerprint and the statement of witnesses led to the arrest of a Pasadena man Friday in connection with the death of a 20-year-old truck driver found stabbed in an Odessa motel room almost 15 months ago.

Harold Loyce Shell Jr. was charged with first-degree murder after he was arrested Friday at his Pasadena residence by Odessa Detective Jerry Smith and Pasadena police.

Jimmie Wayne Keen Sr. was found dead Nov. 2, 1978, in his room at the Hospitality Lodge in Odessa with 10 shallow knife wounds and a deeper wound to the heart, according to police reports.

Odessa police said they found a bloody fingerprint on the facing of the motel room which officers said they believe match that of Shell.

Witnesses who saw Keen and a man walking to Keen's room the night of the stabbing identified a picture of Shell as Keen's companion that night, police said.

MAINTENANCE ENGINEERS AND TECHNICIANS

World's largest oil-producing company needs experienced professionals to plan, supervise and perform overhaul and repair work for Aramco's huge network of petroleum and gas facilities in Saudi Arabia.

Aramco has immediate openings for experienced Maintenance Engineers and Maintenance Technicians. The Engineers will supervise and execute scheduled and emergency overhaul and repair activities. The Technicians will perform the vital overhaul/repair work. All of Aramco's facilities will be involved: major equipment, operating systems, support utilities, and ancillary items.

Job is massive in scope

As the principal company developing the energy resources of Saudi Arabia, Aramco has a sprawling complex of plants, processing units, pumping stations, pipelines and terminal facilities to maintain and keep in continuous operation. Some of the projects are the world's biggest—staggering in scope, complexity and the wide application of advanced technology. Here are some of the specialized talents we need NOW.

Maintenance Engineers

- Plant Maintenance Engineers
- Electrical Engineers
- Rotating Equipment Engineers
- Industrial Plant Engineers
- Contracts/Cost Engineers
- Planning & Scheduling Engineers
- Materials Engineers

We require an engineering degree or applicable degree, with a minimum of 5 years' experience in your area of specialization in and around the petroleum and chemical industries, or heavy industrial complexes.

Maintenance Technicians

- Mechanical Maintenance Technicians
- Electrical Maintenance Technicians
- Instrumentation Technicians
- Outside Machinist Technicians
- Senior Specialists—All Crafts
- Supervisors—All Crafts

We require a high school diploma, or equivalent, with a minimum of 5 years' experience in your area of specialization in and around the petroleum and chemical industries, or heavy industrial complexes.

Excellent combination of benefits offered

As a Maintenance Engineer or Technician with Aramco, you can earn a very competitive salary, plus a cost-of-living differential. In addition, you get a tax-protected premium for overseas employment which can amount to as much as 40 percent of your base salary.

Beyond that, Aramco offers you a comprehensive benefits package which includes 40 days' paid vacation every 12½ months (this gives you the opportunity to travel in Europe, Asia, Africa); comfortable housing for singles and families; and an American school system for your children.

Interested? Call Pat Wagner toll-free: 1-800-231-7577 ext. 4154. In Texas, call collect: (713) 651-4154. Or send your resumé in confidence to: Aramco Services Company, Department MRT0127PWWA, 1100 Milam Building, Houston, Texas 77002.

MIDLAND IS NOW 95 YEARS OLD. A few years prior to 1880, Lum Medlin, a hunter who was traveling alone, made what was later to become Midland his home. Local history tells us that Lum was one of the first white men to settle in the area. Early in 1880, R. N. Garrett arrived here with a herd of sheep destined for market. Like so many of those who followed, Garrett took an immediate liking to the surroundings and made it his home. Soon, thereafter, his California family joined him.

In those early days the railroad people dropped off a box car to serve the growing community as a depot, post office and general store. On February 2, 1885 Midland County was established; 26 days later the City of Midland became a reality.

The old, middle-aged and young enterprises of Midland have contributed immeasurably to the progress, pride and prosperity of our city. You will be interested in reading this list of leading firms and organizations whose names have been arranged by the number of years they have served Midlanders and other West Texas residents.

THE REAL LOG HOME LIFESTYLE

A BRAND NEW VERY OLD IDEA . . .

Arkansas Log Homes, America's largest producer of Real Log Homes, invites you to consider the many natural advantages of low home living: energy efficiency, low maintenance, ease of construction and affordability. Practical value complimented by the beauty and rustic atmosphere of natural wood.

The Real Log Home exudes the quality of their craftsmanship you'd expect from a log manufacturer who has been perfecting their product for 15 years. Cut from full debarked logs, the thick pine walls provide a durable, warm, attractive home designed to meet today's stringent insulation standards and national building codes.

Choose from over 30 professionally designed and engineered models to match your lifestyle and budget.

Real Log Homes may be built by you, with some technical assistance from us, or built by us, partially or turnkey, as you prefer.

We have a complete line of cataloged floor plans and dealers drawings for showing or for purchase.

Chandelle is a Nice Place to Call Home...

WHY BUY A "CHANDELLE" CONDOMINIUM? *

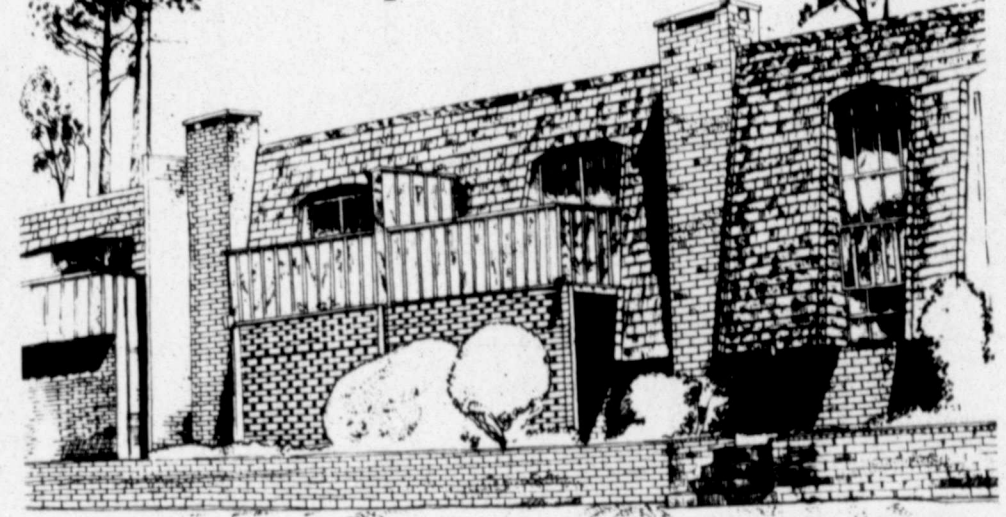

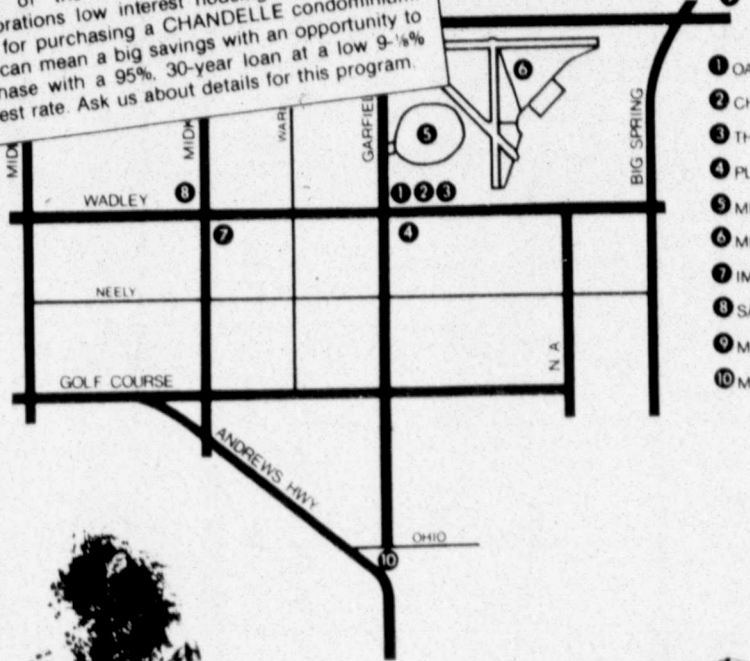

"CHANDELLE's" location at 2100 West Wadley is within minutes of downtown, theatres, recreational areas, shopping, restaurants, schools, churches, the college, and Airpark. At "CHANDELLE" you get an equity investment, the same tax breaks as a home owner, and greater control of your housing costs. "CHANDELLE" is the only real alternative people have to get away from the maintenance problems - of home owning, and doing it with style.

Come out to 2100 West Wadley or call 684-7884 to find out why "CHANDELLE" is a nice place to call home.

A 2 bedroom-2 bath studio "J" model can be yours for $7500 down and monthly payments of approximately $719. This $719 includes your monthly mortgage charge, taxes, insurance, water, sewage, and association fees. Models open daily, except Monday, from 12:00 noon until 6:00 p.m.

EXTRA! WE, TOO, ARE ELIGIBLE FOR THE NEW MHFC LOW INTEREST LOANS WHICH CAN RESULT IN GREAT SAVINGS FOR YOU!

Some of the new Midland Housing Finance Corporation's low interest housing monies can be used for purchasing a CHANDELLE condominium. This can mean a big savings with an opportunity to purchase with a 95% 30-year loan at a low 9 1/4% interest rate. Ask us about details for this program.

Sheriff on hot seat in witch trial

By SALLY CARPENTER

PLAINVIEW, Texas (AP) — The first week of testimony in Loy Dean Stone's murder trial centered on Castro County Sheriff Granville Martin, who testified he could not remember many details of the investigation.

Martin spent much of the week in the hot seat, telling defense attorney Travis Shelton that no one read Loy and Louise Stone their rights or told them a teen-age girl had been killed on their property the night of Oct. 31, 1977.

Stone, 50, is accused of the shotgun slaying of Roxanne Casas, 15, as she sat in a truck in his driveway near Dimmitt in the Texas Panhandle. Mrs. Stone, 49, has been granted a separate trial.

The Stones, both high priests in the Church of Wicca, a witches' group, have pleaded innocent.

The trial was moved 45 miles away to Plainview after the murder caused an uproar in Dimmitt's Hispanic community.

Martin said he had driven past the Stones' house 10 minutes before he was alerted to the shooting. On his return, he said, Stone approached him with a shotgun in his hand. He said Mrs. Stone also was outside, pointing to two cars and a pickup on the highway that she said had been harassing them.

Martin and a Texas Department of Public Safety trooper then confiscated a shotgun and three unspent shells from Stone. A later search netted five spent shells and a rusty old shotgun.

A DPS chemist who analyzed pellets taken from the girl's head said he believed they were fired from the shotgun he examined. Glen Johnson also testified the five spent shells found on Stone's property were from the same weapon.

Although the shotgun was not tagged, Martin said he could identify it as the one he took from Stone, even though he agreed 100 to 500 such guns existed in the county.

Two other passengers in the pickup in which Roxanne Casas was slain testified, but only one was an eyewitness to the slaying. Carlos Garza was taken off the stand after testifying "they killed Roxanne." Attorneys said they would bring Garza back to testify another day.

Maria Trevino said she saw a large man in a gold shirt standing in front of the truck before Garza pushed her from his lap onto the floorboard. She testified that afterward, she heard and saw nothing of note until the truck was on its way to the hospital.

A teen-ager who was in the car that led the pickup to the Stones' house testified he heard a woman warning the youths to "get the hell out of here or I'll shoot you" as the car cruised back past the house. Emilio Sandoval said he had omitted the incident from two written statements because he was "scared." Two other passengers in the car testified they heard nothing.

Cronkite calls Iran 'humiliating experience'

By KEN HERMAN

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Veteran newsman Walter Cronkite rattled off a gloomy list of national and world dilemmas and crises and asked a simple question.

"How the hell did we get here?" he said.

Cronkite, asked to deliver the opening speech at a symposium on the 1980s, offered a depressing maze of current global problems.

"The 1980s have not gotten off to an auspicious beginning. Indeed, the decade promises to be one of those interesting times the ancient Chinese used to wish on those they cursed," he said.

Cronkite made the keynote speech at the symposium at the University of Texas' Lyndon B. Johnson School of Public Affairs.

He blamed the less-than-auspicious beginning on a "backward old fanatic... hell-bent for the dark ages."

"It has been a humiliating experience," Cronkite said of the Iranian crisis.

But the anchorman said the Ayatollah Khomeini's brazen jabs at the United States may help break down the "me first" attitude Cronkite perceives in this nation.

"They call it a new meanness; a stinginess of spirit as well as of purse. And we do seem less open these days, less generous, less willing to help the needy, to right social wrongs, to get involved in other people's problems.

"We may be developing what someone has called the 'life boat ethic,' a tendency to take care of ourselves and let the rest swim, or whatever," he said, adding the "rest" tend to be members of minority groups.

Cronkite said the life boat ethic leaves little room for individual sacrifice and responsibility. The attitude also leads to single-issue politics, which he said "may be the most corrosive force in American political life today."

"To that extent, the Ayatollah and the commissars may have done us a great service. Not only have they united us as nothing has done in 20 years, they have weakened us. They slapped us in the face just as the country seemed to be slipping into a narcissistic stupor, bemused by the illusion that there were such things as purely domestic issues on which we could focus our attention and our politics," he said.

"If the mess in Central Asia does not produce catastrophe, we may one day be able to say, with the people in those commercials, 'Thanks, we needed that.'"

U.S. issues most endangered species list

WASHINGTON (AP)

The government has a new list of the Ten Most Wanted and it includes the birdwing pearly mussel, the lotis blue butterfly and the Kemp's Ridley sea turtle.

And, oh, the Kauai oo — pronounced KOW-ah-ee-oh-oh.

Obviously this is not the FBI's Most Wanted List, which features only dangerous people in flight.

This is the Interior Department's list of endangered species.

For the first time this year, the department is publishing a list of the 10 animals and plants that its wildlife experts consider the most endangered in North America.

"It isn't that we have gone Hollywood or even FBI," said department spokesman Harmon Kallman. "We just wanted to try to present this program in an attractive way so people would know why we are bothering with snails and funny-looking fish."

On the list released Saturday were:

—The dusky seaside sparrow, which inhabits the marshlands near the nation's spaceport at Cape Canaveral, Fla. Only 13 of the reclusive birds are known to be alive.

—The black-footed ferret, a night-prowling weasel that once ranged across the Plains States. It faces extinction because of the decline of its primary source of food, the prairie dog.

—The red wolf, a smaller cousin of the gray wolf, which is making its last stand in the remote coastal marshes of Texas and Louisiana.

—The snail darter, listed as the most endangered fish, is the most famous species on the list because of the battle environmentalists unsuccessfully fought on its behalf to block construction of the Tellico Dam in Tennessee.

—The birdwing pearly mussel, a freshwater clam, is now found only on a small part of the Duck River near Columbia, Tenn.

—The lotis blue butterfly lives in a few peat bogs under a power transmission line near Mendocino, Calif., biologists say.

—The Kauai oo, a native of Hawaii, faces extinction because of loss of its habitat to commercial development. There may only be one or two pairs of the sparrow-size birds left.

—The Houston toad is being threatened by development in its living areas of southeastern Texas. Housing developments are encroaching on its breeding ponds.

—The clay-loving phacelia, a violet-blue wildflower, which grows along a railway line in Utah County, Utah.

Post offices soon to push 'The Dollar of the Future'

By SUSAN TOTH
Staff Writer

Beginning Feb. 1, patrons making purchases at Midland's post offices likely will be getting a few more coins than they expect.

It's not that the postal employees will be returning more money when changing large bills. They simply will be taking part in a nation-wide cooperative effort by the U.S. Treasury Department and Postal Service to circulate the Susan B. Anthony dollar.

The almost-quarter-sized dollar coin has not gained the public acceptance the Treasury Department wants. So, in a spirit of intra-governmental cooperation, the U.S. Postal Service will begin using the coin routinely at customer service windows.

Patrons who prefer paper dollars can request them, but everyone else will get the Anthonies, according to Midland Postmaster D.E. Holster.

Government planners hope the postal push will get the dollar coins rolling.

Most banks and stores do not routinely use the coin for a number of reasons, ranging from customer resistance to the confusion factor to a lack of space in normal cash registers.

Midland National Bank, for instance, gives customers the Anthony dollars only when they are requested, according to Mary Jane Upham, MNB's head teller.

"A bank's a little different from a place of business or even the post office. Here people request the type of change they want," she said.

And the Anthony dollar has met a lot of customer resistance, she said.

"Most people don't even want them in their purse," she noted, because they are easily confused with quarters.

Long-developed habits of workers who make change is another strike the Anthony dollar must overcome, she said, since reaching for the bills is second nature to many.

Midland's branch of the postal service, however, will cooperate with the new effort to circulate the coins to the fullest — within reason, Holster said.

"Many times customers use $20 bills for small purchases," he noted. Customers making a $2 purchase with a $20 bill, for instance, would receive three Anthony dollars, a $5 bill and a $10.

"We wouldn't attempt to give a customer $17 in those. We want to cooperate, but we wouldn't want to abuse it," Holster said.

The postmaster noted he had once been paid in silver dollars while stationed in Reno, Nev.

"Those things can get heavy," he remembered.

As an added incentive to customers, posters and brochures will be displayed advertising "The Dollar of the Future — The Susan B. Anthony Dollar Coin."

Most customers are expected to be receptive to the coins, he said, but for the few who refuse them, dollar bills will be available.

"Good customer relations demand we give them what they want," he said.

Even if they are the only postal service in town.

Trial board urges firing policewomen

DETROIT (AP) — A police trial board has recommended that two Detroit policewomen be fired for cowardice for failing to assist a police sergeant who was under attack by a naked man. Detroit Police Chief William L. Hart said the board recommended last week that officers Glenda Rudolph and Katherine Perkins be dismissed. It would be the first time in the department's history that any officers have been fired as cowards. The recommendation even surprised the prosecutor. Hart, who must make the decision, could ask the police board to reconsider the charges. After hearing witnesses on Jan. 14, the board concluded that the two female officers failed to aid Sgt. Paul Janness when an unidentified naked man knocked him down and started punching him. The two female officers said they saw the man burning his money on a street on Detroit's west side and tried to help Janness when he was attacked, but were unable to subdue the assailant. Officer Perkins testified she and Ms. Rudolph could not pull the man off Janness. Ms. Rudolph

Keith Wright still jailed in Midland
Keith Wright was still in Midland County Jail late Saturday despite having his bond for the capital murder charge against him reduced from $50,000 to $25,000. Wright is accused of killing Leona M. White during a robbery as she was closing Price's Bar, 903 E. Illinois Ave. Sept. 27. His bond was reduced Friday by District Judge Perry Pickett after defense attorneys argued it was impossible for Wright to meet the $50,000 bond.

said she struck him several times with her flashlight to no avail. However, when Prosecutor Geoffrey Taft reminded Ms. Rudolph that her report did not indicate she used the flashlight, she was unable to explain the discrepancy. The officers also were found guilty of filing a false report. Officers Lawrence Estell and Vicki Hubbard arrived at the scene just as Janness regained his footing, according to testimony. They told the board the two women were "standing by the man, doing nothing." If Hart upholds the firing, the women can appeal to the city's Police Commission or can have the dismissals arbitrated through the Detroit Police Officers Association. If fired, the women will lose all pay and benefits. "If I determine the charges are incorrect, it's my duty to recommend that they apply the proper charges up or down," Hart said Friday.

Museum of Southwest hosts 'new wave' ceramics show

An intriguing ceramics show is one of the current exhibits at Midland's Museum of the Southwest. In recognition of the "new wave" in ceramic design, the museum has invited four ceramicists — Gloria Graham, Ben Katz, Herman Soon and Melissa Zink — to display their work in a show titled "Ceramics: New Dimensions."

Each of these artists has a unique style, but they all have one thing in common — they are seeking innovative ways to express themselves through ceramics, museum spokesmen explained. The public is invited to see the unusual exhibit in forthcoming weeks. The museum at 1705 W. Missouri Ave., will be open are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. today from 2 until 5 p.m. There is no admission Weekday visiting hours fee.

Flu-like illness hospitalizes 13 U.S. Steel men

ROGERS CITY, Mich. (AP) — A flu-like illness that has hospitalized at least 13 workers at U.S. Steel's calcite plant does not appear to be spreading, a federal health official said Saturday.

Dr. Ronald Waldman of the Atlanta-based national Center for Disease Control said the nature of the illness or its cause is still unexplained. "But most of those patients including the ones in the hospital seem to be improving day by day," he said.

Mame due in Midland

Mame, everybody's favorite auntie, is due in town this week.

The indomitable lady with her unquenchable thirst for life is the stellar attraction in the hit musical, "Mame," which initiates the 1980 season of Midland Community Theatre.

"Mame," one of the longest-running musical hits on the American stage, will have its first MCT performance at 8:30 p.m. Friday in Theatre Midland, 2000 W. Wadley Ave. A second performance is scheduled for 8:30 p.m. Saturday, and there will be additional presentations on Feb. 3, 7-10, 12, 17, 19-24, 26-29 and March 1.

Seating for all performances may be reserved through MCT's box office, 682-4111.

The unforgettable Auntie Mame first arrived on the scene in the 1950s as the zesty subject of a best-selling book by Patrick Dennis. The novel became a play, a film starring the late Rosalind Russell, and finally a Broadway musical starring Angela Lansbury.

before pouring straight gin into the glass.

She describes true friendship with her "bosom buddy," Vera Charles, as they cattily tick off the irritating qualities each finds in the other by singing "Who else but a bosom buddy would tell you how rotten you are?"

The plot hilariously follows her adventures in trying to hold one job after another in the early depression days, for which her life as a social butterfly had hardly prepared her.

After Mame ruins an operetta performance by almost falling off a cardboard moon in the middle of the show, nephew Patrick soothes her with "You were very good, Auntie Mame, everybody noticed you."

SHE CAN'T manage to hold on to a job as manicurist but captures herself an aristocratic Southern gentleman in the process. The gentleman not only marries her, but shortly afterwards leaves her an affluent, stylish widow.

Later, as Mame is introduced to the family that now-grown-up Patrick is about to marry into, she finds them dreadful snobs — and racist bigots to boot.

Leave it to Mame to circumvent them in her most subtle form — and to steer Patrick toward a girl he will be most happy with.

In the MCT version, the indescribable Mame is portrayed with flair by Coila Morrow, who has had roles in such past MCT productions as "Life With Father" and "The Prisoner of Second Avenue."

Mame has no leading man in the script, but the men in her life include David Slaughter as young Patrick, Mark Scrabacz as the adult Patrick and Richard Vivion and Bill Holm sharing the role of Beauregard Jackson Pickett Burnside, Mame's suitor and husband.

Susanne Martin Brien portrays Mame's trusty, unlucky secretary, Agnes Gooch, while Fredda Durham has the role of bosom buddy

Vera Charles. Mana Ratanasavetavada will be seen as Ito, Mame's servant and loyal friend.

Other members of the lady's entourage include Bill Cook, John Taylor, Sumner Boyd, Jim Galvay, Karen Freeman, Peggy Howell, Marg Samples, Kelly Patterson, Susie Hitchcock, Dean McLain, Julie Hafer, Sherry Elliott, Mark Solewin, Farley Poulund, Scott Hafer, Jerry Rauterkus and Whit Whitley.

SINGERS and dancers also include Scott Wood, Oza Whitten, Mike Morgan, Rhonda Hicks, Peggy Jacobs, Beth MacCurdy, Nancy Martin, Christy Pompey, Mark Andrade, Christie Hill, Patricia McElwrath, Barbara Coons, Alice Bledsoe and Tammy James.

MCT executive director Art Cole has designed and directed "Mame," with Max Howard stage-managing the production. Shirley Hansen is musical director and Cherry Jones Allison is the choreographer.

Zurich musician to play piano recital at Andrews

ANDREWS — Acclaimed concert pianist Hanni Schmid-Wyss of Zurich, Switzerland will play a recital this afternoon in Andrews.

The 4 p.m. program will be in the Little Theater of Andrews High School. The event is sponsored by local business firms and individuals with no charge for admission.

Mme. Schmid-Wyss has been a West Texas visitor this weekend to serve as a judge for the 18th annual National Young Artist Competition sponsored by the Midland-Odessa Symphony and Choral. The NYAC was held Friday and Saturday on the campus of Midland College.

The pianist, who has made several American concert tours in the past, has won honors at the Academy of Zurich and the Staatliche Musik-hochschule in Cologne, Germany, where she received a master's diploma in piano. In 1967, she was a medalist at an international piano competition in Geneva.

'Fidelio' to be aired

NEW YORK — Beethoven's only opera, "Fidelio," will be broadcast Feb. 2 over the Texaco-Metropolitan Opera Radio Network, to continue the 1979-80 season of Met broadcasts.

The performance will be aired over Station KWMJ in Midland, Texas beginning at 1 p.m.

Singing principal roles in "Fidelio" will be soprano Hildegard Behrens as Leonore, tenor Jon Vickers as Florestan, baritone Franz Ferdinand Nentwig as Don Pizarro, bass Paul Plishka as Rocco, soprano Catherine Malfitano as Marzelline, tenor James Atherton as Jacquino and bass James Morris as Don Fernando. Erich Leinsdorf will be on the podium to conduct the Met orchestra.

THE MUSICAL "Mame" was written by the talented team of Jerome Lawrence and Robert E. Lee, whose theatrical collaborations also resulted in such stage hits as "Auntie Mame," "Inherit the Wind" and "The Night Thoreau Spent in Jail."

Jerry Herman, of "Hello, Dolly!" fame, wrote the memorable music and lyrics, including "We Need a Little Christmas," "Bosom Buddies," "My Best Girl," "If He Walked Into My Life" and, of course, the title song, "Mame."

As nearly everybody knows, Mame is a high-spirited Manhattan lady of the 1920s, wealthy and ingratiatingly unfettered by convention, who inherits a young nephew from her deceased brother and shortly afterward inherits the depression.

But stock market crashes and unemployment lines don't faze Mame. Pregnant, unwed secretaries waddling down spiral staircases don't lift her eyebrows in the least. Mame teaches her 10-year-old ward to mix a cocktail by pouring vermouth into a glass, swirling it around a bit, then throwing it out

Judge cites three jail guards for contempt after 'sick-out'

CHICAGO (AP) — A judge cited three jail guard leaders for contempt of court Saturday after about 80 percent of the Cook County Jail's 1,400 correctional officers continued a "sick-out" despite his back-to-work order.

Cited by Circuit Judge Joseph Wosik were Lt. Adolphus L. Bailey, president of Lodge 20 of the Fraternal Order of Police; Phillip Morris, FOP vice president; and Thomas White, FOP spokesman.

The judge gave the three until 2 p.m. Thursday to show why the contempt order should not apply to them. Wosik issued a back-to-work order last week.

Cook County Sheriff Richard J. Elrod said in court, "I don't want to lull anyone into a false sense of security that they can continue this job action until Tuesday."

Later, Elrod said mailgrams were sent to the 150 probationary correctional officers warning they will be fired if they do not return to work by Tuesday. Probationary officers, he said, have been with the department less than a year.

Elrod said mailgrams were sent to the other 1,250 guards telling them they will be de-deputized, or not allowed to carry weapons while off duty, if they don't return to work by Tuesday.

He said jail operations are "running smoothly" and he did not anticipate asking the governor to call in the National Guard. "That would be a last resort," he said.

Despite an absentee rate among Cook County Jail guards estimated Saturday at as high as 80 percent, officials said enough experienced guards were on duty to keep matters in hand "until 1990."

Phillip T. Hardiman, executive director of the county Department of Corrections, said 265 sheriff's police officers were replacing the guards, many of whom began calling in sick last Sunday. About 60 of the replacements are former corrections officers, he said.

Corrections Department officials have expressed concern that close confinement of some 4,000 prisoners in the jail could lead to riots.

Undersheriff James E. O'Grady said Friday that since sheriff's officers have been assigned to guard duty, the ratio of prison personnel to inmates is 1 to 8 instead of the normal 1 to 4.

Authorities have said Illinois National Guardsmen could be summoned to give the sheriff's policemen assigned to the jail some rest.

O'Grady said inmates were upset because they are unable to visit the law library or gymnasium, view movies or receive visits from family members and attorneys.

David Andre, a sheriff's spokesman, said 40 guards showed up for duty at noon Friday, and it was viewed by authorities as a sign that more would follow.

Five Soviet artists cancel U.S. tours

MOSCOW (AP) — U.S. tours scheduled by at least five Soviet artists have been canceled in the deepening freeze of relations over the Soviet military intervention in Afghanistan.

An agent in New York estimated as many as a dozen other Soviet performers also may be affected.

Pianist Lazar Berman said Saturday he had been told by officials of Goskontsect, the Soviet concert scheduling agency, that his tour of New York, Chicago, California and other U.S. locations would not take place.

A tour of the United States and Canada by another Soviet pianist, Mikhail Pletnyov, was canceled earlier.

Berman said no reason was given for the cancellation of his six-week tour, which was to have started early next month. He said he will leave Moscow on Monday for a tour of West Germany as scheduled.

Carter announced earlier this month that "most of the cultural and economic exchanges currently under consideration" with Moscow would be deferred because of the Soviet move into Afghanistan.

In New York, tour promoter Jacques Leiser said he received a cable from Goskontsect Jan. 24 saying five Soviet artists he represents in the United States, including Berman and Pletnyov, would not be coming for their tours as planned.

He quoted the message as saying, "In connection with the American side's refusal to sign a new agreement of the contract of exchange and cooperation and a three-year program of exchange in which there would be a chapter providing for the security of the artists during the tour... of the United States, we would not consider it possible to confirm the forthcoming tours in the U.S."

In addition to Berman and Pletnyov, Leiser said the cable named pianist Rigoi Sokolov, trumpeter Timosei Dokshitzer and Bolshoi tenor Zurab Sotkilava. All were scheduled to arrive in the United States this week for tours of various lengths.

Leiser said he interpreted the cable as a general policy for all scheduled American tours by Soviet performers that could affect up to a dozen Russian artists represented by other U.S. theatrical agents.

"A notable exception is Makvala Kasrashvili, a leading soprano of the Bolshoi, who presently is in New York as an understudy for the principle role in 'Un Ballo in Maschera,'" Leiser said. She apparently will be allowed to remain for the opera, which is scheduled to be performed at the Metropolitan Opera throughout February.

He said Miss Kasrashvili arrived in New York Jan 11 and is not scheduled to leave until March 8. She also is represented by Leiser.

TAX TIPS

It can pay to figure those expenses

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the tenth in a series of tax tip articles provided by the Permian Basin Chapter of the Texas Society of Certified Public Accountants.

Spending hard-earned money to maintain or improve job skills sometimes can be disturbing. However, you might be able to "cash in" those credits for a reduction in your income tax bill.

If you think you can claim a deduction on this year's tax return, check the following guidelines. Education may either be required by your employer or voluntary on your part. The key is that it cannot fulfill minimum requirements for a position. Nor can it prepare you for a position in another field. However, courses taken as a result of promotion can be claimed as an expense.

Only expenses in excess of reimbursement may be claimed. If you paid for books, fees, tuition and supplies you must file on Schedule A, Form 1040 and must itemize deductions. You cannot take the deductions on Form 1040A.

Expenses relating to transportation, travel (trips), tolls and parking fees can be deducted as adjustments to income whether or not you itemize deductions. Figure your expenses, using Form 2106. Then, list the total amount on line 24, Form 1040.

These and other questions concerning your 1979 tax return will be answered in the Taxpayer Education course to be held Feb. 5 and 7 from 7 to 10 p.m. at the Allison Fine Arts Building at Midland College and at Wilkerson Hall, Room 108, Odessa College.

To register for the program, send your name, address and location preference to Taxpayer Education, Box 870, Midland 79702. Registration fee is $1 per person or $1.50 per couple. Mailing deadline is Feb. 1. You may also pick up registration forms at the Administration Building, Room 156, Midland College.

San Angelo honors polio researcher

By ROBERT L. SHAFFER

CLEVELAND (AP) — In 1949 the town of San Angelo in West Central Texas had what Dr. Ralph Chase says was perhaps "the worst polio epidemic in the United States."

"There were 420 cases that year in a town of 50,000," said Chase. "We had 30 to 40 times the national average. It was frightening to people because we couldn't do anything about it."

This year, the people of San Angelo are inviting Dr. Frederick C. Robbins, who received a Nobel prize in 1954 for his part in developing an anti-polio vaccine, to Texas to "show their appreciation," Chase said in a telephone interview.

"If it had not been for Dr. Robbins and his associates this would have become a ghost town because no one would have moved in," the Texas pediatrician said.

He referred to Dr. Jonas Salk as an "opportunist who modified the vaccine and got credit at that time from the National Foundation."

The foundation "sponsored Salk when the scientific community knew it was Weller, Enders and Robbins" whose work was primarily responsible for developing the vaccine that virtually wiped out the crippling disease in this country, said Chase.

"We wanted to get the person who really deserved the credit,"

Robbins, dean of the Case Western Reserve University School of Medicine, shared the 1954 prize with Drs. John F. Enders and Thomas H. Weller. He will go to Texas April 21-22 as the Angelo State University's Roy E. Moon Distinguished Lecturer in Science.

Chase said he hopes all the people of San Angelo, many of whom "really escaped with their lives because of (elimination of) the threat of polio ... will join in showing their appreciation to Dr. Robbins.

"Dr. Robbins also is one of the outstanding research scientists ... a very outstanding educator in the field of pediatrics," said Chase, who is one of the sponsors of the Moon lecture-series.

Robbins, who collaborated with Enders and Weller at Boston's Children's Hospital, has been dean at Case since 1966. He has never been to the one-time frontier town in Texas, but Chase said he thought it would "be fun for him to see something different from the shores of Lake Erie."

DIRT, SQUIRT, QUIRT Meeting scheduled on grape growing

By CHARLES W. GREEN
Midland County Extension Agent — Agriculture

Around one-half inch of moisture was received in most areas of Midland County last week. Moisture conditions are good at this season of the year and will greatly facilitate land preparation activities on cropland. While the subsoil storage is not yet at full field capacity, the stored reserve does greatly improve range and crop outlook for the coming season.

THERE SEEMS TO BE a lot of interest in growing grapes in the Midland area, whether it be a home planting situation or for possible commercial operation. We have learned quite a lot about grape culture since 1975 in working with John Crosby and his Michael Brandon Vineyard and backyard growers, considering all uses — wine, table, juices, jellies and raisins.

There are several persons who have developed considerable expertise in various aspects of grape culture, and we are going to utilize this talent, along with that of Dr. Richard Kilby, area Extension horticulturist, and present a program on grape growing to help all persons desiring to learn more about grapes. We have planned a meeting for 7 p.m. Tuesday in the County Extension Office, 218 W. Illinois Ave. Our program and procedure will be as follows:

Grape Varieties Adapted for Various Uses for West Texas, Dr. Kilby and John Crosby; Planting Grapes, Site Selection, Spacing, Pruning, Training, etc., Bruce Landrum, Midland grower; Irrigation, Fertility and Pest Control, Rick Green, manager of Michael Brandon Vineyard; Backyard Grape Production, Wine, Table and Raisins, Felix Vinklarek, Midland grower.

This will be an interesting program which will benefit anyone desiring to learn more about grape culture and use. The public is invited to attend.

BEEF CATTLE PRODUCERS will soon vote on whether they want a beef research and information program. The upcoming referendum was announced by Assistant Secretary of Agriculture P.R. Smith, and the USDA's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service will conduct it. Beef producers must register for the referendum between Jan. 28 and Feb. 6 and then vote by secret ballot Feb. 19-22.

The order issued by the USDA authorizing the program provides for a beef board of up to 68 producers to administer the program. There would be as many as five non-voting consumer advisors on the board. Each state or geographic area would be represented on the board in proportion to its share of the U.S. cattle industry. USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service would monitor the program. It would be funded by assessments based on the value of cattle sold.

All sellers of cattle in the marketing chain would be assessed. The buyer at the point of slaughter would deduct the total assessment and forward it to the board. Any producer could request and receive a refund of the assessment paid.

During the first two years of the program, assessments would be up to two-tenths of one percent of the value of cattle sold (20 cents per $100). After two years, the board could recommend an increase up to one-half of one percent of the value of cattle sold.

Cattlemen will have 10 day (eight working days) to register and a four-day waiting period. They must register during the Jan. 28-Feb. 8 period in order to be eligible to vote. Producers must register and vote in the county where the cattle are located. Registration and voting will be done at local ASCS offices, and can be completed by mail if information and ballots are requested in advance. The Midland ASCS office is in the Federal Building.

Remember — register and vote. If only 10 cattle-men vote, they can determine your future.

In 1967, the league sponsored puppet shows with educational value for children in the elementary schools. Working on their puppet-making project are Mrs. Jerry Fullinwider, Mrs. Jordan Braun and Mrs. Roger Kemp.

They've been around for 30 years and are still going strong.

The Junior League of Midland Inc. will celebrate 30 years of existence Feb. 11 at the annual Southern Nights Ball at the Midland Country Club.

Events for the benefit affair will include cocktails, dancing to the music of several big name groups, and a buffet breakfast.

The Junior League has contributed thousands of dollars and many hours of manpower to local civic projects over the past 30 years.

They opened the Next-to-New Shop, a secondhand store, which is a continuing source of revenue to fund these many projects. Just a few of these include support with money and volunteers at the Museum of the Southwest, the Pre-natal Clinic, and the Midland Children's Theatre. They have also provided support in the schools through cultural programs, and medical help by providing dental health care for needy children.

The League has also initiated many projects and turned them over to other agencies for permanent operation.

We salute those members, some of whom have died, and many of whom are still volunteers today.

Martin Allday and Mrs. Harry Hinkle look over the Directory of Community Services in 1968, a service which the Junior League still provides today.

The Provisional Class of 1972 included, seated from left, Mrs. Curtis Phillips, Mrs. Stanly Beard, Mrs. Art Donnelly and Mrs. George Lindsey. Holding the sign are Mrs. Tom Cradick and Mrs. Frederick Byrom. Back row includes Mrs. Powers McCrary, Mrs. John Woodside, Mrs. Robert Spears, Mrs. Rodney Satterwhite, Mrs. Kenneth Nordeman and Mrs. Reynolds Foster. The Provisionals are new members who go through a year's training and orientation about the league and the community.

The League at one time provided layettes for the city-county health clinic. Working on this project in the early fifties are, from left, Mrs.

XI ALPHA MU CHAPTER, BSP

Members of the Xi Alpha Mu Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi voted on their chapter sweetheart during a meeting held recently.

The sweetheart will be announced and presented at the sorority's Valentine Ball to be held from 8:30 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. Feb. 9 at the VFW Hall.

Also during the meeting Melinda Gray presented a program on the different types of floors that can be installed in homes today.

The chapter's next City Council will be at 7 p.m. Feb. 4 at the First National Bank Room. The next regular meeting will be at 8 p.m. Feb. 5 at the home of Helen Tinnen, 1901 McDonald.

Gathering registration forms for the Reality Therapy-Family Violence workshop will be held from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Friday and 9 a.m. to noon Saturday at the Permian Basin Center for Battered Women and Children; Ruby Freeman, vice president of the center's board of directors, and James Bramlett, director of community services at Midland College. Registration fee is $10 and will be accepted until the workshop gets underway in the Allison Fine Arts Building on the campus of Midland College. (Staff Photo)

Violence seminar slated

The Permian Basin Center for Battered Women and Children and Midland College are co-sponsoring a Reality-Therapy and Family Violence Workshop Friday and Saturday in the Allison Fine Arts Building at Midland College.

The workshop will be held 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Friday, while the Saturday session will take place from 9 a.m. to noon.

Director of Volunteers, will be featured at the workshop. She is a member of the Board of Directors of Texas Council Family Violence and is volunteer coordinator of the Houston area battered women centers.

The workshop will begin with legal aspects of domestic violence. Ralph Noyes, an attorney in Midland, will speak and also answer any questions concerning the legal aspects of domestic violence.

Crisis intervention is the next topic in the workshop. This will be conducted by Bill Mims, M.S., emergency coordinator with Mental Health-Mental Retardation in Midland. During this session, types of crisis will be identified and methods of intervention ways to assist the victim in working through crisis will be shown.

Glen Walton, M.Ed., a local certified reality therapist and educational director with the Texas Department of Human Resources, will conduct a session on reality therapy starting in the morning. Reality therapy teaches that everyone is responsible for their own behavior.

Following lunch, Ms. Eggart will discuss volunteer training. Volunteers are the heartbeat of most social service agencies and this session should upgrade their expertise and knowledge.

"Till Death Do Us Part" is the topic of Steve Thomas', M.A., session. Thomas is a marital and family counselor in Midland. He is also employed at Midland College in the psychology and sociology department. This session will deal with the psychological approach and therapeutic alternatives for persons involved with child abuse and marital violence.

The rest of the workshop will center on reality therapy. Certificates will be presented Saturday morning following the conclusion of the session on reality therapy.

Anyone interested in attending the workshop is encouraged to contact Sue Stephens at The Permian Basin Center for Battered Women and Children at 683-1300.

DEAR ABBY

She has Titanic sinking fears

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My friend Alice has been terrified of water all her life. She wants to take some cruises, so Alice consulted a therapist to help her overcome her fear of water.

She said that her therapist hypnotized her and learned that in a previous life Alice had been a passenger on the Titanic and was drowned when it sank, and that is why she has such a terrible fear of water!

I am beginning to think my friend is bonkers, and her therapist is either a nut or a fraud.

Abby, what do you make of all this "previous life" business? — PUZZLED

DEAR PUZZLED: I wouldn't say that Alice is bonkers, nor would I call her therapist a nut or a fraud. Some very knowledgeable and intelligent people buy the theory that we have all lived previous lives and will return after this life to live many more.

I don't buy it. And until there is evidence that I can understand and accept, I remain, very truly yours, — UNCONVINCED

DEAR ABBY: My problem is my 14-year-old daughter. She's a tall, pretty girl, but her posture is terrible! I keep reminding her to hold her shoulders back and to sit and stand straight, but every time I look at her she's all hunched over and stooped-shouldered. (She sits in a crouched position with one leg curled under her.)

She says maybe she would improve if I quit nagging her. How can I quit? I love her and want her to have a lovely posture. I'm afraid it's too late already because she's made a habit of slouching. I just hate to see a young, beautiful girl look like a hunchbacked old lady. Can you help me? No names, please. She's hostile enough as it is. — WELL-MEANING MOM

DEAR MOM: Poor posture can be due to a growth disturbance of the spine. Untreated, it becomes a permanent hunchback, but if treated early it can be corrected. Ask your daughter to remove her clothes and bend forward. If there is a noticeable "hump" on her back, or if her ribs are more prominent on one side than the other, she has an actual deformity, and should be examined by an orthopedic surgeon.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a rather large woman, 55, neat, well-groomed and far from ugly. I've been married for 35 years to a handsome man who neither drinks nor smokes, but he loves to dance. I love to dance, too, but I have arthritis in both knees, so my dancing days are over.

I have no money worries, live in a nice home, own my own car, so I can come and go as I please. I play bingo about three times a week.

My problem is that my husband goes dancing every Friday and Sunday, while I'm playing bingo. Different friends have told me that I'm a fool to let my husband go dancing without me, but it's no fun to go and sit while he dances with other women. He tells me that all the women he dances with know he's married. He always wears his wedding band and is usually home before I am. I could make things miserable by telling him I would rather he didn't go dancing since I can't dance, but why should I begrudge him the pleasure of doing something I know he enjoys so much?

Abby, I'm so afraid that one day he will come home and tell me he has found someone else. I don't nag him about it, but do you think I'm a fool for letting him go dancing without me? — WORRIED WIFE

DEAR WORRIED: Yes, as long as you feel threatened. Go with him for a while. It may not be "fun," but it may clear up some of those doubts. It's usually the fear of the unknown that creates uneasiness and worry.

CONFIDENTIAL TO K.D. IN K.C.: To paraphrase an old Chinese saying, "The tongue is the sword that slits the throat." Keep your lip zipped.

Teens: Are there some questions you just can't ask anyone about sex, drugs, your own feelings? Get Abby's new booklet, What Teenagers Ought to Know. Send $2 to Abby in care of this newspaper.

Senior citizens lead active lives at 'community' retirement home

By SANDI BREENEN Lifestyle Writer

The women were dressed in fashionable skirts and blouses. Some wore dresses and some wore slacks. The men looked nice in their suits, slacks and sport shirts.

All of them were either sipping wine, sherry or apple juice and nibbling on cheese, crackers and pretzels.

Their feet kept beat with the loud, lively piano music, and some even sang the popular tunes coming from the keyboards.

All were obviously having a good time.

SENIOR CITIZENS ARE one of the United States' most valuable resources, and a visit to Trinity Towers, a Midland retirement home, proves why.

Every Wednesday afternoon the tower has a social hour, and it is often like the above description. It is always a high point in the residents' week.

The social hour is not the only activity the senior citizens have to look forward to, however. According to Clyde Haden, administrator, Trinity Towers has an active auxiliary and a good activities director and personnel which provide the many programs the residents enjoy. Helen Luff is auxiliary president and activities director is Leona Armentrout.

The weekly social hour usually lasts for an hour or so. Billie Hood, who is on the waiting list to be admitted to Trinity Towers, usually plays the piano for the social and Haden plays a snare drum. The two often lead the senior citizens in some well remembered tunes. At times Ben Dansley, a resident, accompanies them on the harmonica.

Often special programs, such as speakers and singing groups, are offered during the social hour.

ANOTHER ACTIVITY THE senior citizens enjoy is the monthly birthday party held for residents whose birthdays are in that particular month. Various organizations in Midland donate flowers and the cake.

A ceramics class is another activity offered to residents. Haden said many of the residents made Christmas presents in the class.

Weekly shopping trips are made and through Midland County Library many books with large print are available on a check-out basis on the bottom floor of the retirement home.

The retirement home stays full, according to Haden, and has a waiting list of 119 for rooms in the Tower buildings and 175 people on a waiting list for apartments.

Construction on the new tower (South Tower) was completed in 1978 to help alleviate part of the waiting list. However, no new apartments were built due to lack of property space.

IN AN AUGUST board of directors meeting, members discussed the possibility of having a second "campus" that would also be a self contained retirement village. No decision has yet been made.

Board of directors officers are president, John Younger; vice president, P. F. Bridgewater; secretary, Ted Kerr and treasurer, Mrs. J. H. Pittman.

Cost of living in Trinity Towers is cheaper than one might think. Rooms in the North Tower, the first unit built, cost $405 per month and South Tower rooms rent for $415.

Suites are also available in both towers. A large suite rents for $595 and a small suite rents for $570.

HEALTH CARE ROOMS and Helpful Living rooms are also available. The Health Care Rooms are on the second floors of both towers. In the new tower the rooms rent for $715 and rooms in the North Tower rent for $705 per month. The second floor apartments rent for $1,080 per month.

According to Haden, Trinity Towers must be licensed to run the 50-bed Health Care Unit. The unit must meet the same requirements as a nursing home.

The Helpful Living rooms are in an area where nurses aides are on duty for 24-hours a day. All of these rooms are located on the third floor of the new tower and rent for $650 per month.

The dining room available for residents and their guests is in a family-type setting.

Free washer and dryer service is available for all residents as is a beauty shop, located within the towers.

SHOULD RESIDENTS GET sick, limited nursing care is furnished in the infirmary when needed for minor illnesses or injury. The monthly charge includes four free days in the infirmary each six months.

Each residents' room has drapes and carpet and also has a private bath and private balcony overlooking the grounds, with an emergency call switch located in each bedroom. All rooms are unfurnished so that residents can use their own furniture, which they usually prefer. Bed linens are also supplied for residents' rooms.

One-and two-bedroom apartments are also part of Trinity Towers. One-bedroom apartments rent for $260 and the two-bedroom apartments rent for $315. Some apartments are available on the first floor of the towers and they rent for $650. These prices include all utilities except electricity.

The apartments have a small yard area with the Trinity Tower's staff doing the maintenance work. However, a small area is provided for residents to grow flowers or a garden if they desire.

Also included is an emergency call switch in the bedroom and bathroom of the apartments which connects to the nursing station in the main building.

REQUIREMENTS FOR ADMISSION to Trinity Towers are quite simple. The requirements say that the person must be at least 65 years old; must be ambulatory (be able to take care of personal needs without any outside assistance). Those needing some assistance may be eligible for admission in the Health Care Unit.

Tall City residents are obviously proud of their retirement community proven by their donations to Trinity Towers. "The support of the people of Midland has been great," said Haden, who has been administrator of Trinity Towers since it opened in 1970. "The new tower was built solely on donations," he added.

"We are a non-profit corporation," said Haden. "We are an organization that is not owned by anyone and no one can ever get any (monetary) gain from the organization."

However, if a person tried, he could gain a lot of priceless knowledge from those residents whose lives are entwined with the organization.

"You get a line and I'll get a pole, honey," the words to the music goes while Billie Hood, on the piano, and Ben Dansley, on the harmonica, provide the music to the popular tune during a weekly social hour at Trinity Towers, 2800 W. Illinois. The lively pianist is on the waiting list to become a resident at Trinity Towers and Dansley already lives there. (Staff Photo by Brian Hendershot) MIDKIFF — Margaret Whorton was hostess to the Midkiff Bridge Club Monday. Patricia Barrett was high scorer.

Sue Winters was second.

New member Evelyn Melear won the round of bingo.

Housewife gets huge bequest

LONDON (AP) — A housewife's years of kindness to an elderly neighbor have been rewarded with a gift of $110,000.

Retired factory worker Jim Wilkinson, who died in August at the age of 98, made the bequest to Marjorie Kennedy, who gave up her job to look after him when his wife died four years ago.

Kelly C. Campbell is pageant finalist

Kelly C. Campbell

Kelly C. Campbell, 15, daughter of Mrs. Beatrice Campbell, 4812 W. Storey Ave., and the late Billy G. Campbell, has been selected to be a finalist in the 9th annual 1980 Miss Texas National Teen-Ager Pageant slated June 6-8 at Texas Christian University in Fort Worth.

This pageant is the official state finals to the Miss National Teen-Ager Pageant to be held in August in Atlanta, Ga.

Holly Roberts of Corpus Christi will crown her successor.

There will be contestants from all over Texas competing for the title of Miss Texas National Teen-Ager.

Each contestant accepted will be asked to participate in the national pageant's Volunteer Community Service Program. The program teaches teen-agers to share and to participate in school and civic affairs. A mini-modeling charm course will be given during the weekend of the state pageant.

The winner of the Texas pageant will receive a $500 cash scholarship, a modeling scholarship to Barbizon, other prizes and an all-expense paid trip to compete in the nationally televised Miss National Teen-Ager Pageant.

$20,000 in cash scholarships will be awarded at the national pageant.

Contestants will be judged on scholastic achievement-leadership, poise-personality and appearance.

Each contestant will recite a 100 word "Essay" on the subject, "What's Right About America."

Miss Campbell, a sophomore student at Lee High School, is one of six children. Her hobbies are art and roller skating. According to her mother, she "jitterbugs" and waltzes on skates and wants to major in art in college.

The finalist is being sponsored by Huddleston Equipment Co. and Malone Business Systems, Inc. here.

There is no talent or swimsuit competition.

Two prisoners commended

BATH, England (AP) — Two prisoners who were part of an unsupervised work crew are being commended for their initiative in breaking into an elderly widow's cottage.

The men, working in a churchyard, heard an alarm buzzer coming from a nearby church house. They broke in and found Florence Gilson lying in her bed in pain and unable to move.

Couple lives ordinary lives in spite of handicap

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Bob and Geri Evans lead ordinary lives. She watches soap operas; he works the night shift, operating a drill press and making parts for aircraft machine guns.

They argue about money. They enjoy making up. The story of their lives is a success story.

Bob and Geri are mentally disabled. Bob is borderline retarded. Geri is retarded and also has a degenerative nervous disorder, Friedreich's ataxia, which confines her to a wheelchair.

Bob and Geri's story is a success story because they are doing what they want to do, because they are happy in a world where being satisfied with life can be quite an accomplishment.

They appreciate being the folks who carry brown-bag lunches, being the people next door, because they've had to fight so hard to get there. And every day they work to stay there.

Four years ago, Bob and Geri became the first developmentally disabled couple allowed to marry and leave Fergus Falls State Hospital to begin a life of their own.

Until a few years ago, they would probably have spent their lives in institutions at a cost of more than $3,600 a month. Now they say the only aid they receive is $233 a month in Social Security and food stamps.

Bob makes $2.50 an hour as a drill-press operator in a sheltered workshop. Geri would like to work and has some office filing experience, but can't find anyone who will hire her.

It's not always easy. At the grocery store they shop the bargains. They buy their clothing at discount stores. They can tell you to the penny what their sofa cost and how many payments they had to make before they could call it their own.

But when Geri shakes her head and says, "It's hard; it's hard for everyone," there is triumph in her voice, triumph in being a part of "everyone."

It's a price Bob and Geri don't mind paying for a life that isn't one sanitized hallway after another, one perfectly balanced meal after another, one rule after another.

Now they can cook their own meals or go out for Chinese dinner. They can plan their own menus, pick their own friends, own their own furniture. And when winter comes, Bob can race Geri's wheelchair along the sidewalk and they can both tumble into the snow laughing. And there's no one to say, "Don't do that."

The new life has other advantages. Geri says in the past two years she has noticed that her nervous disorder has stabilized.

"I think I'm getting better instead of worse," she says. "Maybe you could say it's because I like life more...I feel good about myself."

Frozen foods

KUTZEBUE, Alaska (AP) — Brigham Young University is lending a hand to the Eskimos of Kutzebue in the tundra regions not far from Russia.

In an effort to help increase production in family gardens, fertilizer, irrigation equipment and know-how have been brought into areas that previously were dependent upon hauling water by hand.

Tony Schuerch, a BYU graduate who lives in Kutzebue, directs the project and, when necessary, travels by air to aid individual families.

This is the first time many of them have been able to grow fresh vegetables or, for that matter EAT THEM. Purchased vegetables often cost as much as $2.05 for a head of lettuce.

Check your door from the bottom

By AL CARRELL

Many times a door sticks because of moisture that gets inside and causes the wood to expand. A properly painted door is sealed against moisture, and so won't have that problem. Many doors that look painted will have areas around the edges that are not sealed. If you're having a door problem from swelling, inspect the edges, including the top and bottom. For the bottom, rather than taking the door off the hinges, take a pocket mirror and place it on the floor under the door. You should be able to move it along the bottom and spot any bare places. If you do, you can wait until the humidity is low and seal out the moisture. If you don't wish to remove the door for the paint job, back a strip of carpet scrap with something paint-proof and use this as a paint applicator with the backing against the floor. We also have a free sheet on other door problems. Just include a self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Dear Al: You recently passed along a hint about wearing wide rubber bands cut from an old inner tube around the knees as a slip-proof pad for roof work. That's similar to what I've done for many years. I have a pair of these bands that I slip on around my thighs, and they serve as tool holders. The tools are held securely against my legs. The bands are loose enough so that I can even slip a hammer in there. — Uncle Pete

Be sure not to put any sharp tools in such a holder, and don't use bands that would be tight enough to cut off the circulation to the legs.

Dear Al: You once asked about whether that black sticky friction tape was called "tar tape" or "tire tape." I never know what you found out, but I do know that it will last longer if you wrap it in aluminum foil. This prevents it from drying out, and it can be stored indefinitely until you need it for tires. — M.M.

Most people said they thought it was "tire tape."

ative moved into town recently, and during the unpacking process, I noticed a phone book from the other city was included. I thought it was a useless item to move until I got the picture. The phone book would provide addresses for doctors and dentists so the new doctors here could write for medical records. To re-establish credit, the book will provide addresses of department stores and banks. Then the Christmas card list will be a snap to work up. And after a few years, the directory can add to the waste paper drive.

Dear Super: You once had a hint from a reader for converting a child's swing set into a sort of greenhouse. We converted ours into a swing set for adults. The sturdy A-frame will support the weight of two adults, so we took down the kid's swings and put up an old-fashioned porch swing. Then we planted vines so they grow up the legs and across the top. We also put hooks from the cross piece and from the horizontal braces on the side for hanging baskets. We enjoy the swing, and with all the greenery the "adult" swing set really looks good. — "An Old Swinger"

How lightning strikes

Copley News Service

Did you know that lightning strikes earth 360,000 times every hour?

Our earth has about 44,000 storms each day. We're told that lightning is pushed rather than pulled in strokes to the ground. The instant it strikes the ground, a return stroke travels upward along the same path, an average of eight times during each storm.

It is this return stroke that we see as a lightning flash. A bolt of lightning is an electric current carrying up to 200,000 amperes, which may heat the air around it to temperatures as high as 54,000 degrees Fahrenheit, ... hotter than the sun's surface.

The flash of light is seen when atmospheric electricity between parts of a cloud or between a cloud and earth discharge. This is triggered by cosmic rays which may have traveled through space for millions of years.

mortar joints could do the same thing.

ABWA chapter talks citizenship project

Tall City Charter Chapter of the American Business Women's Association held a monthly casserole dinner meeting in the Flame Room of the Pioneer Natural Gas Building.

Plans were discussed for a project during February's Citizenship Month. The group also discussed the Southwest Regional Conference which will be held March in Lubbock. In other business, Faye King was appointed chairman for the March membership tea.

Program was presented by Sally Bramer and Sue Stephens, representatives from the Permian Basin Center for Battered Women and Children.

Ms. Bramer is director of the center.

Ms. Stephens, president of the board, said that the program is concerned with caring for abused wives and their children. The center offers counseling, moral support, shelter and temporary housing, and a program to help the abused woman grow in human dignity.

She informed the group that the center receives no federal or state funding and operates only through private and individual donations.

Ms. Stephens added that the center will sponsor a Workshop Agenda Feb. 1-2 at Midland College. The workshop will focus on the Reality Therapy form of counseling, and emphasize family violence and its solution, crisis intervention, psychological approach and volunteer training.

"Reality Therapy is a common sense approach to responsible living where irresponsible behavior is not tolerated," said Ms. Stephens.

Persons who are interested in the workshop can contact Ms. Stephens at 683-1300 or by writing her at P.O. Box 2942.

A pregnant woman never drinks alone

AUSTIN — Kate looked out the window to the sandbox in the backyard where little Cody was playing.

The child, small for his four years, peered intently through his thick glasses, but nevertheless the sand he scooped up with his shovel missed the pail he was aiming for as often as it went in. Losing interest, he listlessly surveyed his surroundings.

A tear trickled down Kate's cheek as she thought of her dreams for her baby before he was born. Now, the prospect of even being able to toilet-train Cody looked dim. And though Kate knew she wasn't responsible for her ignorance, she still felt to blame for Cody's condition, because it was her behavior which had caused it.

When Kate had found out she was pregnant, her husband and she had shared a bottle of champagne that night to celebrate. Further celebrations with friends and family followed on subsequent weekends, not to mention parties and holidays later on.

Cody was born with fetal alcohol syndrome (FAS), the most common identifiable birth defect after Down's syndrome and spina bifida, and the only one which is totally preventable. There has never been a baby with FAS born to a mother who did not drink during pregnancy.

But Kate didn't know she should have curbed her drinking during pregnancy. Only recently has FAS been identified and publicized. This year, Jan. 21-27 was designated as Fetal Alcohol Syndrome Awareness Week in Texas by Gov. William P. Clements — the first time such a week has been observed in the state. Rita Clements, the governor's wife, was honorary chairperson for the event.

Not until 1973 did researchers give the name fetal alcohol syndrome to a pattern of physical, mental and behavioral problems they observed in infants born to women who drank too much during pregnancy. FAS symptoms may include lowered birth weight, slowed growth after birth, a small head, facial irregularities, heart defects, joint and limb irregularities and mental retardation.

Behavioral symptoms such as hyperactivity, extreme nervousness and short attention spans are also common. Some FAS infants are born with all of the above characteristics, while others display only some less severe aspects of the syndrome. Certain experts believe, for in-

The ability to give life is a miracle. Pregnancy can be a great time of anticipation, joy and concern. The health of a baby is related to the way the mother takes care of herself. Many babies born to women who drink excessively have a recognizable pattern of physical and mental birth defects: "The Fetal Alcohol Syndrome." Though the amount of alcohol which must be consumed to harm a baby is unknown, do you (the mother) want to take an unnecessary risk which may affect your child forever? — TEXAS COMMISSION ON ALCOHOLISM stance, that alcohol may be a major cause of minimal brain dysfunction and hyperactivity, from which 5-10 percent of the school-aged population suffers. Even now, pregnant women may not find out the information on drinking and pregnancy they need to know. Dr. Roger W. Perry of the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology at the Texas Tech University School of Medicine has observed that sometimes even generally well-informed young obstetricians either lack knowledge of current research and findings on alcoholism and pregnancy and who can be affected, or for some reason or another they do not believe current claims being made.

One dangerous misconception is to think that only alcoholic mothers place their unborn babies at risk. It is a matter of degrees of risk.

No one knows yet just how much alcohol is "too much," and the National Council on Alcoholism recommends that expectant mothers not drink at all. The National Institute of Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism says that if an expectant mother does drink, she should limit herself to no more than 12-ounce beers, two 5-ounce glasses of wine or two ounces of hard liquor on any occasion.

Two pregnant women, exposing their unborn babies to the same amount of alcohol may affect them differently. Genetic influences may be at work — weaknesses that make a particular fetus more susceptible. In addition, whether the alcohol was consumed all at once or spread over a period of time may be significant. Occasional binge drinking is believed more detrimental than daily or near-daily consumption at low levels.

At what point in the pregnancy the alcohol was consumed may also be critical. Excessive alcohol consumed during the early part of pregnancy may produce malformations, but during the latter stages is more likely to result in retarded growth.

For more information about FAS or about other alcohol programs contact your local council on alcoholism (look under "Alcoholism" in the Yellow Pages), or the Texas Commission on Alcoholism, 8th Floor, Sam Houston Building, Austin, 78701 (512-475-2577).

Or contact the Midland chapter of the March of Dimes or your physician — but make that call.

Discourage weight gain by limiting portions

The Hearst Newspapers If you've vowed to greet the 1980s as a thin person but your grapefruit-only diet causes late-night binges and the mere sight of cottage cheese makes you cringe—give up!

Give up the mythical notion that dieting means deprivation.

You can eat well yet discourage weight gain by simply limiting your portions, says Italian cooking teacher and author Giuliano Bugliatti in the February issue of House Beautiful. "Pasta? I'm always ready to eat pasta! Even at midnight. But, the secret is, three ounces make a good serving. It's quality in food, not quantity, that counts," he says.

How do other famous chefs stay slim? House Beautiful asked three food experts, who are constantly surrounded by food temptations, to share their personal secrets and recipes. "Learn to shop wisely," says chef and cookbook author Perla Meyers. "Go to the small butcher, fish market, farm stand, rather than to the bakery. Stock up on fresh fruits and vegetables in season, then make them interesting."

BROCCOLI IN YOGURT SAUCE
2 pounds fresh broccoli Sauce:
3 egg yolks
1/2 tsp. cornstarch
1 1/2 cups plain yogurt
2 tps. Dijon mustard
1 large clove garlic, crushed salt and freshly ground black pepper

Remove the tough outer leaves of the broccoli and cut one inch off the base. Quarter the branches lengthwise. Peel the broccoli stalks with a vegetable peeler all the way to the flower buds and set aside.

Prepare the sauce. In the top of a double-boiler, combine the yolks and cornstarch, and whisk until well-blended. Add the yogurt, mustard and garlic, and place the pan over simmering water. Whisk the mixture until it thickens and heavily coats a spoon. Do not let it come to a boil. Season with salt, pepper and a large dash of lemon juice. Keep covered over warm but not boiling water.

In a large casserole, bring salted water to a boil. Add the broccoli and cook for 5 to 6 minutes, or until just tender. Drain and immediately rinse under cold water to stop cooking.

gagement of her daughter, Vonda Lee, to David Joseph Colley, 808 Kansas St., son of Mr. and Mrs. Troy Colley, 2607 North N. St.

The wedding is planned for 7 p.m. March 15 in the chapel of the First Baptist Church.

The bride-elect is a 1975 graduate of Lee High School and attended Midland College. She is employed as a bookkeeper for Lewis B. Burleson Inc., and Robert H. Hannifin, Indep.

Colley is a 1971 graduate of Lee High School and a 1975 graduate of Texas Tech University. He is employed as an accountant with Union Oil Co. of California.

Baptist singing group entertains

The Sonshiners, a singing group of women from First Baptist Church, performed at the monthly birthday party held Tuesday at Trinity Towers for residents celebrating birthdays during January.

The singers were directed by Doris Bruce and accompanied by Sharon Wright at the piano. Clyde Haden, Trinity Towers administrator, acted as master of ceremonies.

Honorees were Bonnie Welch, Ina Mitchell, Loraine Duvall, Mary McNamara, Elizabeth Chriesman, Thelma Walker, Alma Gibson, Lila Carter, Annie Kate Gilbert and Beatrice Wadley.

Attending as guests were John and Donna Mitchell and John and Charlene Younger.

Flowers were furnished by the auxiliary, and the Circle L Sunday School Class of the First Presbyterian Church provided the cake.

Try champagne for a Valentine tete-a-tete...

CHICAGO (AP) — For a new twist on an old favorite this Valentine's Day, say "I love you" with a customized candy box that will be cherished long after the goodies inside have been eaten, suggests the National Confectioners Association.

A novel, handmade gift box that reflects the recipient's personality and special interests is a token of affection that shows extra thought and effort went into its creation, the NCA points out. Start with any size or shape container — DEPARTMENT STORE GIFT BOX, SHOE BOX, COFFEE CAN — and add some imaginative covering materials; then fill with appropriate confections.

Some sweet ideas for making one-of-a-kind candy boxes that speak volumes of love are offered by the NCA:

—For the business executive, a box covered in pinstripe fabric, complete with a paper necktie designed with cutout hearts, and inside, foil-wrapped chocolate "dollars."

—For the art deco fanatic, a box covered with silver foil paper and diagonal stripes of gold paper layered in narrowing widths, to hold flavored hard candies (since chocolate was hard to come by during the art deco-war years).

—For the Americana collector, a keepsake box covered with remnants of calico and a tack cotton lace border, containing old-fashioned pastilles, cinnamon sticks and other country-store treats.

—For the music lover, a box covered in sheet music—perhaps your loved one's favorite tune—and within, the musical notes of black licorice sticks and white and dark chocolate drops.

—For the sports fan, a box covered with the sports pages of a local newspaper or sports magazine, opening to caramel popcorn, chocolate-covered peanuts and raisins, and peanut nugget bars.

—For the disco freak, a box wrapped in gold or silver foil, with hearts made of glue and glitter, revealing red-hot cinnamon candies, foil-wrapped chocolate "kisses," and "records" to keep the beat—chocolate covered coconut and peppermint patties.

—for the teen in your life, a coffee can covered in blue denim, complete with pocket for your card, containing an assortment of miniatures of today's most popular candy and chocolate bars.

For the romantically inclined, Valentine's Day takes on added meaning this time around. It's leap year and women, in theory at least, are supposed to take the initiative in the ritual of courtship.

An ancient Scottish law dating back to the 13th century gave women the prerogative of proposing during leap year. According to the old custom, the lady signals her intentions to the chosen male by wearing a scarlet petticoat and perhaps serving pink champagne. And if the swain looks reluctant, he can be warned that refusal makes him liable for a fine.

Champagne has always been regarded as the wine of romance, especially the pink or rose variety. It was immortalized by the words of Madame de Pompadour, "Champagne is the only wine that leaves a woman still beautiful after drinking it."

To make Valentine's Day complete, serve a tete-a-tete dinner and set the stage for the romance that true French champagne and fine Gallic cuisine can evoke.

Whether serving pink or golden champagne, it is wise to choose a brut, which is the most versatile. It makes a fine aperitif, a wine to accompany the meal and a drink for after dinner.

A Valentine Dinner for two should have a certain elegance, and what better way to achieve that than by cooking the main dish in champagne?

A good choice would be Poussin au Champagne (baby chicken or Cornish hen with champagne), served with buttered rice and slivered almonds.

To cap off the meal you can serve Champagne Sabayon, a dessert consisting of egg yolks, sugar, champagne and fresh or frozen, strawberries.

Here's the recipe that should entice the most reluctant swain or shy maid.

- 2 Cornish hens or 1 small frying chicken
- Salt and pepper to taste
- 4 ounces butter
- 1 1/2 ounces cognac
- 1/2 bottle brut champagne
- 12 ounces fresh mushrooms
- 4 ounces melted butter
- 3 egg yolks
- 1/2 pint light cream
- Watercress

Wash fowl thoroughly and pat dry. Sprinkle cavities with salt and pepper. Using Dutch oven, melt 4 ounces butter. Add fowl, turning till skin is evenly golden. Pour cognac over all and ignite. As flames die down, add champagne, salt and pepper to taste. Cover and simmer about 30 minutes.

Cut mushrooms into slices and add to birds, cooking about 5 minutes. Remove birds and keep warm. Add melted butter to sauce. Combine egg yolks and cream and stir into sauce. Heat but do not allow to boil. Arrange birds on heated platter with garnish of watercress. Serve sauce separate.

Serves 2. Serve with chilled brut French champagne.

Genes findings said important to researchers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The control systems that regulate the hereditary genes of plants and animals appear to be very different from those of bacteria, a finding that could move genetic research into a new era, a scientist says.

Dr. Donald D. Brown of the Carnegie Institution of Washington said Wednesday that he and colleagues found that the control center of a gene from a frog-like animal is in its center.

This contrasts with the control systems of bacteria, which are located at the ends of genes.

Brown said the finding has no immediate application for nonscientists, but is important because it should spur a change in thinking among genetic scientists.

"What we have done here is enter a new phase of genetic research," Brown told a news briefing.

Genes are the basic units of heredity that transfer the characteristics of living organisms from one generation to the next. These microscopic units present in every cell are made up of DNA (deoxyribonucleic acid) molecules.

Mrs. George H. Glass named Charta Dames regent

Midland Colony Magna Charta Dames met Wednesday in the home of Mrs. Kingdon Hughes, retiring regent of the colony.

Officers for 1980-82 were elected, including Mrs. George H. Glass, regent; Mrs. R.D. Hanley, vice regent; Mrs. Hughes, secretary; Mrs. Bruce Pearson, treasurer; Mrs. Warren Faller, registrar, and Mrs. John E. Cross, chaplain.

The State Parliament of Magna Charta Dames will assemble March 6-8 at the Houston Oakes Hotel in Houston. Mrs. Glass and Mrs. Hanley were elected delegates from the Midland colony.

Mrs. Glass will serve on the Texas Division of the National Society Magna Charta Dames as seventh vice regent. Vice regents at the state level are regents of their local colonies.

Magna Charta Dames is a hereditary order composed of members who are lineal descendants of one or more of the barons of England who, in or before the year 1215 rendered actual service toward securing and who, after many defeats, did secure the articles of constitutional liberty, properly called Magna Charta, from their sovereign John, King of England, on June 15, 1215.

Lunch Bunch attracts over 120 brown baggers

Midlander Harrell Feldt, in reviewing Henry Kissinger's book, "White House Years," gave an "insider's" view of the years Kissinger was associated with the Nixon White House to more than 120 brown baggers who braved ice and snow to attend the first of weekly Lunch Bunch programs sponsored by the Friends of the Library.

Introduced by Jack Swallow, Feldt, a local attorney and past president of the Midland Chamber of Commerce, described an insecure Nixon who bypassed established bureaucracy to achieve his ends, who used John Haldeman to handle unpleasant tasks and who, even in triumph, needed reassurance from Kissinger.

The book deals with personalities on the Nixon cabinet and describes how government policies and plans originated at the ubiquitous Washington cocktail party.

Feldt also touched on the reason for government leaks of high level decisions. Foreign policy decisions are also covered, as are the seemingly casual discussions between world leaders.

The next meeting of the Lunch Bunch will be at 11:45 a.m. Tuesday at 206 S. Colorado St., the old American Legion Hall. A film, "Football Follies," a comedy on pro football, will be shown.

United Methodist Women observe special day

St. Luke's United Methodist Women met Sunday for observance of the annual UMW Call to Prayer and Self Denial in conjunction with some 15 million Methodist women nationwide.

As the primary church organization whose purpose is missions, the UMW presented a Quiet Day service, "The Life Divine," under the leadership of Sarah Slover, chairman of the Christian Personhood area.

Marydel Watkins gave the scripture, Marge Daniels, Helen Clemmer and Jewell Sparks were readers and Mona Ruth Dickson provided special music. Ira Watkins showed slides of God's glorious skies, "His divinely free gift to all men."

As Christ said, "Preach as you go, saying 'the kingdom of heaven is at hand.' 'Heal the sick...cleanse lepers, cast out demons. Freely ye have received, freely give.' In keeping with this year's theme, "Ministries By and With Women," the offering will be directed toward distressed women the world over. In the U.S., women in prison will be assisted through educational courses and legal services; help will be given battered women, prostitutes, displaced homemakers, single parents and teenage mothers and investments in women's health and employment will be made.

The offering also will be used internationally in organizing action-reflecting women's groups, in assisting women and children in the slums of Peru and Argentina, disseminating agricultural knowledge to women in Tanzania and leadership training in Angola and India.

Enjoy preserves by making your own

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Editor

Among the foods on supermarket shelves whose prices have climbed are pure fruit preserves.

But there's a way to enjoy such preserves and save money: Make your own.

APPLE GINGER MARMALADE

1/4 pound fresh ginger root (peeled and coarsely chopped)

1 1/2 pounds green apples (pared, cored and coarsely chopped)

2 small lemons or limes (unpeeled, seeded and finely chopped)

1 small orange (unpeeled, seeded and finely chopped)

1 1/4 cups water
3 1/2 cups sugar

Into a large saucepot turn ginger, apple, lemon, orange and water. Bring to a boil; simmer, covered, until fruit and ginger are tender — about 40 minutes.

Add sugar and stir until dissolved; bring to a boil; boil gently uncovered, stirring often toward end of cooking time, until thick — about 1 hour. Cool completely. Turn into freezer containers or freezer jars to within 1/2-inch of tops. Cover tightly and freeze.

Press women dinner scheduled Saturday

ODESSA — Two Odessa College professionals will be featured speakers for Texas Press Women District 2 annual dinner meeting here Saturday.

The group will meet at 7 p.m. in Manuel's Restaurant, 1404 E. Second St.

Barbara McArthur and Gayle Noll will give the talks. Ms. McArthur is working as a counselor at Odessa College on a 10-month grant to place women in non-traditional careers. She will discuss the ins and outs of her program.

Ms. Noll, who is public information officer at the college, will discuss the role of the media in projects and how media coverage affects their successfulness.

New officers for 1980 will be introduced. These include Karen Johnson of Odessa, president; Shelley O'Neil of Odessa, first vice president; Susan Toth of Odessa, second vice president; Marian Rodgers of Monahan, treasurer; Elly Hochman of Odessa, secretary; and Wanda Mouton of Midland, historian.

Guests are invited to attend this meeting. Persons planning to attend may call Shelly O'Neil at 332-6711 or Susan Toth, 682-5311 by Tuesday. Cost of the dinner will be $6 per person.

District 2 of Texas Press Women covers a 17-county area of West Texas. Any woman working in the field of journalism — and this includes radio, television, newspaper, magazine, advertising, public relations and freelance — is eligible for membership.

The organization promotes professionalism among women in journalism. Highlight of the year is the spring convention with workshops, speakers and announcement of contest winners.

TPW has a state membership of 300. It is affiliated with National Federation of Press Women. Members receive a bi-monthly TPW newsletter and a monthly NFPW magazine.

Further information about the organization can be obtained by telephoning Karen Johnson in Odessa, 332-8189, or Susan Toth or Lana Cunningham in Midland, 682-5311.

Fantasy of long, fat hair

By ERMA BOMBECK

In my fantasy, I always have long, fat hair.

It cascades down my back, catches in my collar, and falls in my eyes. It hangs down over the bed, blows in the faces of people near me, and bounces with every step I take.

Sometimes I tuck it under a yellow construction hard hat, but it fools no one. When I take off the hat, my hair tumbles down and men are unable to keep their footing.

Jaclyn Smith asks me what shampoo I use. It annoys me. I fiddle with my hair constantly, impatiently running my fingers through it, trying to give it some direction. It only becomes more sensuous and breathlessly provocative. It's like trying to housbreak a raccoon. It remains as wild and as free as the spirit that wears it.

When I return to reality, I run my fingers through my own wash-and-wear hair that's as practical as arch supports and as sensuous as a bowl brush.

When you think about it, what's so terrific about fat hair?

It's not practical, you know. Babies pull it, combs can't get through it, it takes five years to dry after you wash it, and if anyone finds a 62-inch hair in anything, you get blamed for it.

It's hot on your neck in the summer, has enough static electricity in the winter to fly you to Pittsburgh, and when you have an upset stomach, it gets in your way.

I guess that's why for the last decade, short hair has been "in" and long hair has been "out."

You have to feel sorry for Farrah Fawcett. If she had had short hair she'd probably have sold six million posters instead of five. Poor Cheryl Tiegs might have made the cover of Business Week instead of the other 30 major magazines.

Pity Dolly Parton. Don't tell me her long hair hasn't caused back pains. Not to mention poor, misguided Mario Thomas and Loni Anderson.

And just think about the out-of-step Charlie's Angels. I read the other day where the producers spend $80,000 a year just to keep all of their tresses long, shining, and flowing. That breaks down to $26,667 each a year — or $11,000 a pound.

I say to myself, "Is it worth it?" and I answer myself, "Yes."

CLUB NEWS

CALICO EXTENSION HOMEMAKERS

Midland County Extension Agent Sharon Hillis presented program ideas for the new year-book at the Calico Extension Homemakers club meeting.

Ten members were presented at the meeting held in the home of Yoyo Ketter. After a business meeting conducted by President Janet Watson, a salad luncheon was enjoyed.

New members welcomed to the club were Barbara Hitt, Margie Barton, Vicky Buffer and Jackie Hatfield.

AAUW INTERNATIONAL GROUP

Helen Childers presented a program on her native country of Greece at a meeting of the American Association of University Women International Group.

The meeting was held in the home of Maxine Hannifin. Violet Smyers was co-hostess.

She showed slides of the country and an Orthodox church in Los Angeles, Ca.

Next meeting is a luncheon given by Jung-Ja Simpson, 2409 Goddard St., at 11:30 a.m. Feb. 20.

MOONLIGHTERS EXTENSION CLUB

The Moonlighters, a newly formed nighttime extension homemakers club, elected officers during their first meeting held recently.

Officers elected were: Francis Luccous, president; Sarah McGinley, vice president and program chairman; Laverne Bell, secretary-treasurer; Coleen Michael, council delegate, and Carolyn Edmiston, reporter.

Sharon Hillis, Midland County Extension Agent, outlined programs for the members to choose from during the meeting. Lavern Lindsey of the Chaparral Extension Club, presented the organization with a $10 check.

CORNER

By MARILYN DYER

One person's trash is another person's treasure. That's the total concept of the national craze (now institution) of the garage sale.

I'm not positive, but I think they were actually started by people who were moving and needed to rid themselves of excess baggage.

Of course, by now, they have come a long way in their evolution and some people have one every year. It goes along with spring or fall house-cleaning and gives neighbors a chance to nose through each other's discards and judge each other according to the discards quality.

With some folks, the Saturday trek to sales has become a way of life. They harbor the new junk awhile and then have a garage sale of their own and hope someone else is silly enough to buy it.

Women's magazines often print articles on "How to Turn Your Discards Into Dollars" and they make it sound so easy. But if a person has ever had one, they know it's a lot of work and bother for no more than they realize in cash.

I had one once — and never again. When I'm ready to part with something, no one else would have it either. The clothing is either ready to become dust cloths, or is just about ready to come back into style.

I always have a lot of old cider or vinegar jugs, old wine bottles, coffee cans and gift boxes. I read one time that old Avon bottles were collector's items, but the people who spotted them in my junk must not have heard about it.

Sentiment enters into the game also. I was about to sell a large, white enamel pan which had served as a bathtub for both of our babies. I had priced it at $2 and when a man offered $1, my husband took it back into the house and said he wouldn't sell his children's bathtub for any price.

The cat's basket-bed was also a difficult sale. Our Siamese cat, Mr. Samuel P. Pusseycat, Esq., would have no part of that basket from the day we bought it. Instead, he walked disdainfully past it and went to the bedroom where he curled up on the pillows on top of the new bedspread.

When I finally put it among the sale items, a lady begrudgingly gave me $1 for it saying, "I'm not sure my cat will like it and then I'll be stuck with it." I just smiled and took the dollar and made sure our cat was incommunicado!

A young man asked if I had any old phonograph records — 78's or 45's. I assured him I did, but they weren't for sale. People kept looking at other old things in the back of the garage which weren't for sale and I felt guilty.

The day ended with a total income of $2.50; a gift of six Chianti bottles to a lady who said she belonged to a club which put flowers in them and gave them to hospital patients; a visit from a neighbor who had never even returned our greetings in a year's time; a budding case of neuralgia from sitting in a cold garage doorway all day; and a phone call to the Salvation Army to "come and get it" — which is what I should have done in the first place!

Spending disagreement blocks tax action

By JIM LUTHER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Disagreement over how to spend a half-trillion dollars is blocking congressional action on President Carter's "windfall" tax on the oil industry.

Unable to settle disputes over Social Security tax cuts, incentives for savers and tax credits for energy conservation, Senate and House conferees threw up their hands Friday and postponed consideration of the tax bill until Wednesday at the earliest.

"We're obviously in an impasse," said Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., chairman of the House conferees.

His Senate counterpart, Russell B. Long, D-La., compared the stalemate to "when you're up to your ears in alligators." But Long added he is not discouraged at all and said he sees no reason the conferees cannot work out their differences quickly.

The conferees' job is to work out every difference between the tax bill passed by the House last June and the version approved by the Senate last December.

The only major unresolved issue on the oil tax itself is how quickly the levy should expire. And on that point, Senate insistence that the tax end as soon as the $227.3 billion revenue goal is reached hardened Friday.

Forty of the 41 Senate Republicans signed a letter urging Senate conferees to stick to that position. And Long cautioned the House delegates, "I honestly don't believe I can sign a ... (compromise) that didn't have a meaningful phase-out" of the tax.

At the White House, press secretary Jody Powell said it was "ironic but not surprising" that as the oil industry reports new profit increases, "an effort is made to eviscerate" the tax by proposing to end it after $227.3 billion has been raised.

Powell said "perhaps the most mischievous aspect" of the phase-out approach would be to give oil companies a motive "to raise prices as much as possible in order to get rid of the tax as soon as possible."

But there is more than $227.3 billion at issue in the debate. While the "windfall" tax would produce that much money in the 1980s, an additional $300 billion or so would come to the federal government in other taxes because of higher oil industry earnings stemming from removal of federal price controls from crude oil.

"I'm not prepared to proceed one step further until we decide what's going to happen to all that money," Rep. Sam Gibbons, D-Fla., told other conferees. "I don't want it out there to be used in expanding the government."

In general, however, the House conferees want to earmark a portion of the tax revenues for helping lower-income Americans cope with rising energy costs and leave other spending ideas for later consideration by Congress. The Senate delegates favor spending for several other purposes.

In addition to the dispute over when the tax should end, here are other major unresolved differences:

—The Senate measure earmarks $18.7 billion in income taxes to block for one year the Social Security tax increase due to go into effect next Jan. 1. House conferees fear that pouring income taxes into Social Security would gradually turn the pension system into another welfare program.

—The Senate bill would allow a couple to avoid income taxes on up to $400 ($301 for a single person) worth of interest and dividends earned each year. Some House members appear willing to accept a lower tax exemption, but nothing has been settled.

—While the Senate voted for $25 billion worth of income tax incentives to encourage individuals and business to conserve energy and switch to non-oil fuels, the House conferees oppose most of the package.

Another issue was avoided temporarily when conferees agreed that programs for helping lower-income Americans with rising fuel prices should be separated from the tax bill to avoid jurisdictional problems in the House.

That will require passing a separate bill through both houses before the conference completes its work on the tax. A similar aid program for welfare families already is in effect for this winter.

Still to be considered is another section of the Senate bill that creates a new income tax credit of up to $200 a year to help families with annual incomes as high as $22,000 pay for home heating.

Carter proposed the new tax to take back from the oil industry part of the estimated $1 trillion consumers will pay over the 1980s because of his decision to end price controls on U.S. crude oil. The $227.3 billion tax on which the conferees are working would, when combined with existing state and federal taxes, take nearly 80 percent of that "windfall."

62,376 miles of pipeline to be laid during 1980

TULSA, Okla. — Pipeline construction under way or planned for this year and beyond amounts to 62,376 miles in the non-Communist world, the Oil & Gas Journal reports.

Construction during 1980 alone will total an estimated 35,536 miles of new line.

The Journal estimates that 1980 construction will cost $15.943 billion. The price tag for pipelines to be laid this year and planned for 1980 and beyond is $35.488 billion.

Mileage and costs for 1980 and beyond involve some competing projects, so not all of what's projected will materialize. Likewise, there will be some construction that hasn't yet been announced.

The U.S. has by far the most mileage on the drawing boards. Projects announced for 1980 or beyond total 21,102 miles, followed by Africa with 10,124 miles.

Second highest is Canada with 10,571 miles, followed by Africa with 10,124 miles.

The U.S. also leads in 1980 construction — 14,695 miles. Runnerup for 1980 construction is Latin America with 7,532 miles. Western Europe is third with 5,768 miles.

Canadian and U.S. mileage projections for 1980 and beyond include several major pipelines, not all of which will be laid because they are competing proposals.

To isolate 1980 construction, the Journal counted only projects under way when the year began or projects that probably will begin this year. It added only those mileages that likely will be completed before year-end.

In projecting costs, the Journal assumed that 90 percent of projected pipeline construction would be laid onshore and 10 percent offshore. The Journal said total onshore construction during 1980 should be $13.22 billion; total onshore construction during 1980 and beyond, $30.183 billion; total offshore construction during 1980, $2.723 billion; and total offshore construction during 1980 and beyond, $5.306 billion.

The Journal said the biggest project proposed worldwide took a step forward early this month when the U.S. Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) approved construction of 160 miles of the western U.S. leg of the 4,800-mile Alaska Highway gas pipeline. The western leg eventually is to involve 911 miles in the U.S. and 106 miles in Canada.

Early construction of the U.S. Lower 48 and southern Canada segments of the pipeline would enable the U.S. to receive surplus Canadian gas while other parts of the system are under construction.

Former Midlander, J. Hugh Liedtke, says oil hunt like catching measles

By MAX B. SKELTON
AP Oil Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — J. Hugh Liedtke says exploring for oil is like catching the measles.

"The more often you are exposed, the better the chances of finding something," said the Pennzoil Co. chairman and chief executive officer.

"There have been years when we couldn't find oil in a filling station. And then there are years when you drill the least likely prospects and come up with good discoveries."

Liedtke, a former Midlander, and Pennzoil directors huddled this past week to finalize an oil and gas operations budget he anticipated would fall in the $300 million range, up a bit from 1979.

"The emphasis will be on wildcatting and tertiary, a form of wildcatting in my opinion," Liedtke said.

Tertiary methods of producing crude oil involve injection of such stimulants as chemicals and carbon dioxide into reservoirs.

"To Pennzoil and the entire industry, tertiary is going to be a great thing," Liedtke said.

"It is very expensive but cheaper than foreign crude if they don't tax it all away."

Figuring prominently in Pennzoil's tertiary plans is the old Bradford Field in Pennsylvania, an 1871 discovery that became the world's first billion-barrel oil field.

Pennzoil now headquarters in Houston but it traces its history to the 1880s and the old South Penn Oil Co., an exploration and production firm that held a 60 percent interest in Bradford.

Pennzoil's 1978 annual report said the Bradford Field, like many of the fields of the Appalachian Basin, has long since reached the stage where primary production has been exhausted and traditional secondary waterflooding has been used extensively. It said new field tests were being conducted to develop more cost-effective chemical systems to apply to less permeable oil sands.

"This process, coupled with increasing oil prices, could eventually permit a portion of this 'possible' oil to be economically recovered," the report said. "Pennzoil believes this technique may be applicable in a number of other areas."

Liedtke told newsmen Bradford's current tertiary needs can be traced in part to early day operations when operators wasted natural gas that was vital to the flow of reservoir oil to the field's wells.

He said the gas was worthless then but its loss probably curtailed oil production sharply.

1972. Following graduation, he served as business manager at Sul Ross until he joined Ortloff.

University board sets lease sale

The Board for Lease of University Lands will hold a sale of oil and gas leases Sept. 17 in the Midland Hilton. Persons who want certain tracts to be considered for offering at the sale should submit their requests by April 21 to University Lands, Manager-Oil, Gas and Mineral Interests, P.O. Drawer 553, Midland, 79702. The envelopes should be marked "Request for Tracts for 69th Auction Sale."

The leases will be on Permian Basin area lands and will be for five years and carry a 1/4 royalty.

The minimum acceptable bid will be $3,000 for a quarter section, $6,000 for a half section and $16,000 for a section.

Annual rentals will be paid by the successful bidder on a sliding scale.

Terms of leases on lands in Hudspeeth and El Paso counties will be considered separately by the board.

The selection of tracts to be offered will be based on designation of preference as far as practicable and possible. Operators should designate first, second and third choices on the tracts they submit. Bob Armstrong, commission of the General Land Office and chairman of the Board for Lease of University Lands.

The board will review the tracts requested at its first meeting after April 21, and a brochure showing the tracts selected will be distributed to prospective bidders.

Center slates courses

A pair of oil industry-related courses have been scheduled by the Permian Basin Graduate Center, 105 W. Illinois St., Midland.

"Rights in Property," in relation to oil and gas law, will be held from 7 to 10 p.m. Tuesday.

Harrell Feldt of Midland, attorney with Stubbeman, McRae, Sealy, Laughlin & Browder, will be the instructor. The course will deal with rights and duties between mineral owners and surface owners when owned separately; rights of co-tenants, and regulated control of otherwise private rights.

"Petroleum Geology for Non-Geologists" will begin Feb. 6. The classes will be for six consecutive weeks from 7 to 10 p.m. Wednesdays.

Dr. Edwin C. Kettenbrink of Midland will be the instructor.

The course is designed for landmen and engineers with no geological background, geological technicians and secretaries. It will cover the elements of petroleum geology.

Fee for the course is $125.

Dr. Kettenbrink received his B.S. and M.S. degrees in Geology from the Missouri School of Mines and the University of Missouri, and his Ph.D. from the University of Iowa. He was an assistant professor of Geology at The University of Texas of the Permian Basin from 1973 to 1975 and worked as exploration geologist with General Crude Oil Co. in Midland from April 1976 until he became a consultant in 1978.

Loffland to relocate office

ODESSA — Loffland Brothers Co. has announced plans to move its Mid-Continent Division headquarters from Odessa to expanded quarters in Oklahoma City.

The division, headquartered in Odessa more than 40 years, will occupy a new office building, shop facility and equipment yard now nearing completion in Oklahoma City.

"The move from Odessa to Oklahoma City reflects the shift in Loffland's deep drilling activities from the Permian Basin to western Oklahoma and the Texas Panhandle," W. E. Schultz, Loffland president, said.

Schultz added that "Odessa is an important oil field supply center and Loffland's facilities in the city will continue to be used as support for operations in the Permian Basin."

He said the equipment repair center of Loffland Brothers also will continue in Odessa where it serves as a major base for overhaul and repair work, rig fabrication, and rig-up service.

vice for all of Loffland's North American operations.

The Mid-Continent Division's 18 rigs currently are on contracts averaging about 18,000 feet. Loffland's Rig 32 has drilled the world's two deepest wells, to 30,050 feet and 31,441 feet.

MGF applies for sale okay

AUSTIN — The State Securities Board has received 12 applications to register a total of $26,583,725 in securities for sale in Texas, including one application by a Midland company.

MGF 80 Ltd., has applied to sell $5 million in securities.

MGF 80 Ltd. was among three Texas companies that filed applications with the board.

Slight rig drop reported in Reed's Basin survey

Drilling activity in the Permian Basin of West Texas and southeast New Mexico showed a decrease in operations last week as Reed Rock Bit Co. recorded 313 units working in the two-state area.

The tally the previous week showed 315 rigs going, while a year ago the Reed survey counted 255 active rigs.

Lea County, N.M., led the last week's survey with 40 operations, three less than the prior count.

Eddy County reported a gain of four from last week's tally, reporting 23 rigs making hole.

Pecos County, the West Texas leader, picked up one rig, bringing its total to 24.

Ward County logged 16 rotaries, the same as the previous count, while Crockett County gained four rigs, climbing to 15.

Upton County gained one rig, reporting 12. Andrews and Hockley followed with 11 each. Andrews had 12 on the previous count, and Hockley had 10.

U.S. businesses depending on 1980 Moscow Olympics

NEW YORK (AP) — American companies have been counting on the Moscow Olympics to sell everything from beer to blue jeans. But President Carter's threatened boycott of the Games could change all that — and thwart hundreds of millions of dollars worth of business strategies.
 The National Broadcasting Co. would make no where near the $20 million to $25 million it expected to earn televising the Games if American athletes withdraw. Coca-Cola, the official soft drink of the Olympics, would have little chance of breaking Pepsi-Cola's monopoly in the Soviet Union. Millions of dollars' worth of souvenirs and novelties would not be sold.
 And some money already spent would not be recovered. NBC is insured for all but $6.3 million of what it has paid to broadcast the Games. About $7 million in deposits for hotel rooms and tickets has been sent to Moscow, and the Soviet Union could refuse to return it.
 Companies would have to redesign advertising, television and radio commercials and, in some cases, product labels and wrappers. More than $200 million is being devoted to Olympics-related promotions.
 Carter has said he will ask U.S. athletes to boycott the Olympics if by mid-February the Soviet Union still has troops in Afghanistan and the International Olympic Committee has refused his request to move, postpone or cancel the Summer Games.
 "The promotional tie-ins are the ones that will suffer," said Bob Purcell, vice president for public affairs of the American Association of Advertising Agencies.
 Scores of companies support the U.S. Olympic Committee by bidding for Olympics merchandise promotional rights. Advertising experts estimate $80 million in promotions are tied to such endorsements.
 For example, Image Factory Sports of Hollywood, Calif., has the U.S. licensing rights to the Summer Olympics' official symbols, including Mishka the Bear. The company had licensed the symbols to 58 firms to make souvenirs and novelties expected to sell for $50 million to $100 million. Now, business has practically ceased, the company says.
 Life Savers Inc. has an 18-month campaign tied to last summer's Pan American Games, the Winter Olympics in Lake Placid, N.Y., and the Moscow Games. First prize in one promotion was a free trip to Moscow — but the winner can receive the cash equivalent, said William Mack Morris, president of Life Savers.
 Otherwise, a boycott of the Summer Olympics "won't be a financial disaster," Morris said. Life Savers would have to redesign package labels to remove Olympic seals but Morris said the company's ads "are usable regardless of what happens."
 Purcell said much of the Olympics advertising was finished but probably could be modified at little expense to remove references to the Summer Games.
 Rod Brooker, director of corporate communications at Jos. Schlitz Brewing Co., said that although Schlitz is "the beer of the Summer Olympics," the company's $5 million overall marketing campaign stresses the Winter Games.
 Meanwhile, archrival Miller Brewing Co., reportedly NBC's biggest advertising customer for the Summer Olympics, said it would re-examine its advertising commitment.
 Other major advertisers, including Levi Strauss & Co., Wm. Wrigley Jr. Co. and the Gillette Co., said their Olympics-related campaigns were sufficiently independent of the Summer Games to withstand a U.S. boycott.
 NBC has paid about $63 million of a total $87 million for the right to broadcast 150 hours of Olympic events. It has sold 96 percent of the advertising time available in its Olympic coverage when the boycott controversy erupted. Sources in the advertising industry said ads would have provided about $150 million in advertising revenues.
 Coca-Cola also could lose a valuable opportunity. The company refuses to disclose how much money it paid to be the exclusive supplier of soft drinks at the Games in hopes of breaking the soda monopoly held by Pepsi since the early days of detente.

Two digit inflation prompts TCUSCB to urge more funds

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Financial erosion from double digit inflation has prompted the finance committee of the Texas College and University System Coordinating Board to recommend a whopping 22 percent increase in 1982 funding for the state's institutions of higher learning.
 The committee also voted to recommend that 1983 funding be raised 12.1 percent above the 1982 level.
 The recommendation will be acted on by the full board, and the board action will be the subject of public hearings before it goes to the next session of the Legislature.
 "I share with you the shock you must feel at my recommendation," said Commissioner Kenneth Ashworth. "But I've never had to bring recommendations to you in a year when we faced 12.6 percent inflation."
 Committee action on tuition hikes was deferred to the full board, but Ashworth said he will recommend an increase. He said the Legislature would determine the amount of the hike.
 Ashworth said the spending increase includes 12.6 percent to meet the current inflation rate and a 7.5 percent "catch-up" for past inflation not reflected in salaries.
 The 22.3 percent overall 1982 increase includes the inflation factor and the "catch-up," and "fine tuning" in various areas.
 "My recommendation today is to increase funding to try to keep higher education somewhere in the ballgame with the inflation we are facing," Ashworth said.
 The biggest increase is in organized research. The committee recommended a 247 percent increase that Ashworth said reflects the Legislature's unwillingness to grant increases in the past.
 Beryl Buckley Milburn of Austin, a Clements appointee and board chairman, spoke against the proposal. She said the 7.5 percent "catch-up" is not needed. She said she favored a 12.6 percent increase in salaries, and increases in other areas that would not exceed the 9.5 percent hikes suggested in President Carter's wage and price guidelines.
 "I don't understand why the formulas came down simply to the inflation factor," she said.

Auto layoffs to decrease, say companies

DETROIT (AP) — Auto industry layoffs will fall sharply next week, dipping below 200,000 for the first time in two weeks, according to company announcements.
 The improvement is due to restarting plants temporarily idled to work down inventories, and will show up in layoff totals which include temporary and indefinite layoffs. However, the number of workers on indefinite layoff will creep upward slightly, partly because of revisions in company figures.
 Meanwhile, a trade publication reported Thursday that this week's auto production will be 24 percent above last week's but down 35 percent from the same week last year.
 Total auto industry layoffs next week will be slightly more than 173,000 compared with 201,600 this week. Of the totals, 153,600 will be without a recall date compared with 149,800 this week.
 The rest were scheduled for one-week or two-week shutdowns, except for eight Ford Motor Co. plants idled by a supplier strike which already forced five closures this week.
 General Motors Corp. said it would operate all but one assembly plant and all Chrysler Corp. plants will run for the second straight week.
 GM said it would shut the van plant at Lordstown, Ohio, for two weeks, idling 1,300. This week, GM had 19,400 on temporary furlough.
 Additionally, the No.1 automaker has 71,200 on indefinite layoff.
 Chrysler raised the total reported on indefinite layoff from 35,900 to 38,700.
 Ford said it would have 18,175 workers temporarily laid off. The company did not say how many were the result of the strike at Budd Co. Last week, Ford had 32,400. Ford's indefinite layoffs total 38,000, up 500.
 American Motors Corp. raised its total of indefinitely laid off workers from 1,200 to 1,700 because of the earlier ending of production of the Pacer model.

Status of women in draft not clear

WASHINGTON (AP)—Will women be required to register for the draft? Is an actual draft imminent? Where will draft registration be conducted and how much will it cost taxpayers?
 President Carter's decision to resume draft registration left Americans guessing about those and other details.
 Top-level government officials parried questions about the president's plans Thursday, indicating that a number of key decisions have not been made.
 The central question — whether women will be required to register for military conscription — will be decided within the next month, officials said.
 Contributing to the impression that the answer would be "yes" was the observation of one official that such a decision would be consistent with the president's philosophy of equal treatment for men and women.

Permian Basin Briefs

Employees and spouses of the Brownfield location of Halliburton Services recently were recognized for driving their company vehicles a million miles without an accident.

They operated their cars, pickup trucks and heavy trucks an average of 143,000 miles per month during the seven months it took to accomplish their safe-driving feat. Their last vehicle accident occurred in April and the million-mile plateau was reached November 30.

This is the fourth time the group has achieved membership in the exclusive club for safe drivers.

Their first membership was gained in 1956, with the second coming in 1973 which continued into a Two Million Mile Club membership in 1974. A plaque was presented by Rolan W. Gay, Halliburton services safety manager in Duncan, Okla. Bruce Stubbs, Brownfield district superintendent accepted the award in behalf of the employees.

H.L. Pearce of Odessa, president of Air Machinery Co., has announced the association of Erich Hardaway of Midland as a special sales representative for Bear automatic drillers and weight indicators used in oil field drilling.

Hardaway, a native of Monahans, previously had served as safety director for FWA Drilling Co., Wichita Falls. He attended SMU in 1966 and 1967, earning letters in football and track. He was graduated from Sul Ross State University in 1971, with a B.S. degree in Biology. At Sul Ross, he became NAIA All-America in both the shot-put and discus events. He attended graduate school at The University of Massachusetts.

Samedan Oil Corp. has announced the addition of three persons to its staff in Midland, including the transfer of one man from its Houston office.

Cliff Osburg joined the company as division geologist.

He is a graduate of West Texas State University in 1969 and has been active in oil and gas exploration in West Texas and southeast New Mexico since that time. He is a member of the American Association of Petroleum Geologists and the West Texas Geological Society.

Frank Millwood joined Samedan as division accountant. He formerly was employed by Automated Financial Systems of Midland as an accountant.

Millwood received a bachelor's degree in Business at the University of South Carolina.

Samadén announced the transfer of Clifford N. Hair Jr. from its Houston Division to the Midland Division.

Hair replaces Larry R. Snyder as division landman. He is a graduate of San Jacinto College and is a member of the American Association of Petroleum Landmen and the Permian Basin Landmen's Association.

Valero Hydrocarbons Co., a subsidiary of Valero Energy Corp. of San Antonio, has awarded an $11 million turnkey contract to the Midland Division of The Orloff Corp. for the engineering, fabrication and installation of a large single-train cryogenic processing plant near Corpus Christi, reports Verne E. Griffith, Midland Division president.

Work will begin this month, and completion is scheduled for the third quarter of 1980.

Texas Oil & Gas Corp. has announced the addition of two geologists and a production engineer to the staff of its West Texas District office in Midland.

Norman Lovan is one of the district's new geologists. He earned his M.S. degree in Geology from Western Michigan University in Kalamazoo in 1977. He is a member of the American Association of Petroleum Geologists.

The other new geologist is Ronald Grant. He received a B.S. degree in Geology from Hardin Simmons University in 1977. His professional memberships include the American Association of Petroleum Geologists, the Society of Economic Paleontologists and Mineralogists and the West Texas Geological Society.

The new production engineer is Billy Helms. He is a 1979 graduate of Texas Tech University where he earned a B.S. degree in Petroleum Engineering.

Floyd Rountree has been appointed Oklahoma sales coordinator by Sivalis, Inc., of Odessa.

Rountree's duties consist mainly of coordinating activities between outside salesmen and the fabrication department, serving as liaison between the customer and the plant.

Rountree holds a B.A. degree from New Mexico State University.

The company also announced the promotion of Odessa sales coordinator Royce Maynard to assistant manager of domestic sales. Maynard joined Sivalis 14 months ago.

Maynard's principal duties include technicalities involved in quotations and customer relations.

He holds a B.S. degree from Pan American University.

Andrews man earns award

J. T. Cox of Andrews, a head maintenance operator with Conoco Inc., recently received an American Petroleum Institute Meritorious Safety Award for saving the life of Jose Ramos.

He was presented the award by F. E. Ellis, vice president, North American Production Division.

The API award is given to members of the petroleum industry for performing exceptional acts of heroism or for saving another person's life.

Cox was honored for saving the life of Ramos, who was a member of a contract roustabout crew on a lease near Andrews last April.

Jose Ramos inhaled hydrogen sulfide fumes, lost consciousness, and fell to the ground from the stairway of a heater-treater he was repairing.

Cox restored Ramos to consciousness by administering mouth-to-mouth resuscitation until help arrived.

Microscopic-life study starts

BARTLESVILLE, Okla. — Scientists at the University of Oklahoma have begun laboratory study to determine if microorganisms — microscopic life forms — might be used to help recover more oil from aging oil fields.

The study is a cooperative project funded by a contract between the university and the Department of Energy's Bartlesville Energy Technology Center (BETC.) BETC is providing $69,778 of the estimated cost of $101,000.

The work is concentrating on a search for microorganisms that have the ability to produce polymers and surfactants.

These types of chemicals now are being used experimentally to recover additional oil from some types of reservoirs. Such reservoirs usually have produced as much oil as possible by primary and secondary recovery methods, which include natural flow, pumping and waterflooding.

The next recovery process, enhanced oil recovery, includes chemical flooding which involves the injection of chemicals such as polymers and surfactants into an oil formation.

Polymers and surfactants used are produced by commercial manufacurers. Although the chemicals have been shown to be effective in recovering additional oil from some types of reservoirs, chemical and injection costs often are prohibitively expensive, even at today's high oil prices.

The University of Oklahoma scientists are attempting to identify and isolate microorganisms that, once injected into an oil formation, will biologically produce polymers or surfactants directly in the formations.

Gulf Oil reports $3 billion budget

PITTSBURG, Pa. — Directors of Gulf Oil Corp. have approved record expenditures of $3 billion for capital and exploration projects during 1980, with virtually all of the funds earmarked for energy projects.

This represents a 50 percent increase from the initial budget of $2 billion for 1979 approved a year ago, and a 25 percent increase from the estimated $2.4 billion actually spent last year.

"This action is in keeping with our commitment to plow back into our business — and primarily our oil and gas business — the benefits of increased earnings," Jerry McAfee, Gulf's chairman and chief executive, said.

McAfee noted that no funds have been included in the 1980 budget for offshore lease sales. "If we are successful in future bidding — as we fully expect to be — our spending will increase accordingly." In addition, McAfee said the company is considering several United States oil and gas development and production projects which will be submitted for board approval later in the year unless earnings are adversely affected by harsh terms of the proposed "windfall profits tax" legislation.

"In short, we are prepared to spend considerably in excess of $3 billion this year if an acceptable political and economic climate prevails," McAfee said. Gulf intends to finance this program primarily from internally generated cash flow and from a drawdown of cash reserves built up during 1979.

Over 60 percent of the 1980 effort, or an estimated $1.8 billion, will be directed toward oil and gas production projects around the world. More than half of this will be spent in the U.S. as the company maintains its aggressive search for new reserves. Major increases in expenditures are slated for Canada and West Africa, where large oil and gas development projects are under way.

The greatest increase in overall spending this year will occur in refining and marketing — where a refinery modernization program was initiated in the U.S. last year — in coal and uranium development in the U.S., and in chemicals.

The 1979 spending included approximately $200 million in offshore lease acquisitions in the U.S. and the $121 million acquisition of Amalgamated Bonanza Petroleum, Ltd. In 1977, the company's previous record year for capital investments, expenditures of $3 billion included $314 million in offshore leases in the Gulf of Mexico and the acquisition of Kewanee Industries, Inc., for $455 million.

DOE coal program begins

BARTLESVILLE, Okla. — Anticipating the time when coal-derived liquid fuels will provide substantial amounts of energy in the U.S., the Department of Energy's Bartlesville Energy Technology Center (BETC) has begun a new research and development program.

The near-term objective is to assess the technical feasibility of using coal-derived fuels and other low-grade fuels in slow-speed, stationary diesel engines, according to Richard W. Hurn, director of BETC's division of utilization research.

Fuel furnished from coal-liquefaction pilot plants now is being tested in such engines by several contractors. The fuel is produced in the SRC-II (solvent refined coal) process, one of the two primary coal-derived fuel production processes that DOE is studying extensively. Sometime within the 1980s one or both processes eventually may provide significant quantities of alternate liquid fuels.

BETC spokesmen for the project say the contractor tests now underway will provide technical information on the feasibility of operating stationary diesel engines on such fuels. Major markets for the slow-speed engines include commercial-residential and industrial power plants and small electrical generating utilities.

Large-bore, slow-speed engines are logical candidates for using coal-derived liquid fuels because the engines typically permit broad latitude in fuel characteristics.

To date, three contracts have been awarded by BETC to companies to test SRC-II fuel in various sizes and brands of engines. Contractors conducting tests and their DOE contract amounts include Arthur D. Little, Inc., Cambridge, Mass., $188,121; General Electric Research and Development, Schenectady, N.Y., $246,694; and Transamerica Delaval, Inc., Oakland, Calif., $474,480.

Oil Industry Notes

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn.—Dyco Petroleum Corp. has announced the appointment of Jennifer N. Hayes to corporate communications director. She has been a communications specialist since joining Dyco in 1978. Previously, she was an assistant public relations director for the National Ataxia Foundation.

TULSA, Okla. — Terra Resources, Inc., has announced the promotion of Floyd Price to manager of Terra's Mid-Continent Exploration District in Oklahoma City. He was assistant district exploration manager in Terra's Gulf Coast District in Houston. Before joining Terra in 1977, he was with Texaco in Bellaire, Tex.

Jon Jeppesen succeeds Price in the Houston office. He joined Terra in 1977 as an exploration geologist after working for Texaco.

HOUSTON — Coastal Congo Exploration, Ltd., a unit of The Coastal Corp., has signed a three-year agreement with the People's Republic of the Congo for onshore oil and gas exploration and development on approximately one million acres along the Atlantic coastline of the Congo. The area is covered by a permit held by Hydro-Congo, the government-owned national oil company.

Coastal's partners are two U.S. companies, Agri-Petco International, Inc., of Tulsa, Okla., and Ladd Petroleum Corp. of Denver, Colo.

HOUSTON — John G. Nikkel, president and chief operating officer of Cotton Petroleum Corp., the oil and gas exploration and production subsidiary of United Energy Resources, Inc., has been named president and chief executive officer of Cotton Petroleum.

Nikkel succeeds Doyle W. Cotton Jr., who continues as chairman of the board of Cotton Petroleum and as a director of United Energy.

A.R. Reed has joined Cotton as vice president of production.

Prior to joining Cotton, Reed was associated 18 years with Standard of Indiana. He joined Standard in 1962.

His most recent assignments were as manager of production, Amoco International Oil Co., and as West Texas Division manager, Amoco Production Co.

PITTSBURGH, Pa. — John W. Stinson has been named director — career planning and development in the Human Resources department of Gulf Oil Corp. He is responsible for developing and implementing career planning and development programs for the corporation.

HOUSTON — Blair James, president of Intrepid Drilling Corp. announced the purchase of six heavy duty land rigs from National Supply Co. The rigs will be ready for service in the second quarter of this year. The addition of these rigs gives Intrepid a total of 12 rigs.

James announced that Ben R. Bourland has joined Intrepid as manager of sales and contracts. Bourland was formerly with N.L. Baroid Petroleum Service.

Also joining Intrepid is Michael D. Peery as administrative assistant to the president. Peery was with National Supply Co.

DALLAS — The Geological Information Library of Dallas, in response to numerous requests the last year for geological and geophysical information relating to the Fort Worth Basin, has compiled an annotated bibliography of the basin.

It is available at the library, One Energy Square, 4925 Greenville Ave., Dallas, 75206. The bibliography is designated GILD Publication No. 2 and costs $10 plus 50 cents tax and $1.50 for postage and handling.

AUSTIN — The Railroad Commission has scheduled a mid-February hearing to determine efforts of operators to minimize the venting or flaring of gas in the expanding Giddings (Austin Chalk) field that stretches through Lee, Bastrop, Burleson and Fayette counties in Central Texas.

The hearing will convene at 10 a.m. Feb. 12 in the main auditorium of the commission's headquarters building in Austin.

Commission orders prohibit the venting or flaring of casinghead gas in oil fields in which gas processing plants are situated or connections to markets or other legal uses of gas are available.

The Giddings field is regarded as one of the most active areas in oil development in the country. Forty operators have completed more than 200 wells there in recent years.

All operators of gas pipelines in the vicinity of the field received notice to appear at the hearing with the operators.

OWENSBORO, Ky. — Texas Gas Transmission Corp. announced that W. M. Elmer will retire as chairman of the board May 1 and that F. K. Radar, vice chairman, will succeed him.

Elmer will continue to serve as a member of the board of directors. Dennis Hendrix, president and chief executive officer of Texas Gas since May 1978, will remain in that position.

Elmer has been with the company 33 years.

HOUSTON — Houston Oil & Minerals UK, Inc., announced the signing of an agreement with Ultramar Exploration Ltd. for the performance of certain operational activities on Block 13/29 in the UK North Sea, 70 miles northeast of Aberdeen, Scotland. Under the agreement, Houston Oil & Minerals UK will act as general contractor for the drilling of one or more wells on the block. Plans call for drilling to commence in the fall of 1980. Ultramar is the operator for a group owning the production license on the 55,000-acre tract. Other participants include Houston Oil & Minerals UK, Canadian Pacific Oil & Gas of Canada, UK, and the British National Oil Co.

FORT WORTH — Union Pacific Corp.'s fully-integrated oil subsidiary, Champlin Petroleum Co., has purchased an 80 percent interest in 13 wells and 16,500 acres on the Cotton Valley Trend in Harrison, Rusk and Gregg counties from Tomlinson Interests, Inc., Houston, and its partners.

Eleven of these wells are producing gas at a total rate of 10.3 million cubic feet per day, and two other wells await completion. Champlin plans to continue development of these properties.

Nation's oil production continues decline

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Crude oil production from U.S. wells continued to decline in 1979, and deliveries of gasoline from primary storage also dropped, the American Petroleum Institute reported.

According to year-end API estimates, gasoline deliveries from primary storage (refineries, pipelines, and large bulk terminals) totaled 7,033,000 barrels per day during 1979, a drop of 5.1 percent when compared to 1978.

Explaining the drop in gasoline deliveries, the API's Monthly Statistical Report said:

"Initially, supply disruptions resulted in a lower level of deliveries but substantial price increases proved to be the major factor in sharply lessened consumer gasoline demand for the remainder of 1979.

"The decrease in gasoline demand over the past several months has been consistently in the range of 7 to 10 percent from what would have been expected based on prior-year growth trends. One of the signs of this mainly price-induced conservation has been the acceleration in demand for small, more fuel-efficient automobiles in contrast with a substantial decline in the sales of standard and intermediate-size models."

The report showed that crude oil production from U.S. wells continued to decline in 1979. Total daily crude production was estimated to be 8,515,000 barrels per day, a drop of 2.2 percent from 1978.

Total imports of petroleum (crude oil and petroleum products) amounted to 8,169,000 barrels per day in 1979, a drop of 4 percent from 1978. The report also showed a drop in deliveries of distillate fuel oil (home heating oil and diesel.) Deliveries during 1979 totaled an estimated 3,342,000 barrels per day, a drop of 2.6 percent from 1978.

Total petroleum deliveries in the U.S. during 1979 were estimated to be 18,522,000 barrels a day, a drop of 1.8 percent from the previous year.

Museum sets deadline for Hall of Fame

The Permian Basin Petroleum Museum has set April 10 as the deadline for submitting names for consideration for induction into its Hall of Fame.

Guidelines and other assistance for persons wanting to propose candidates are available on request from the museum, 1500 Interstate 20 West, Midland.

A special committee appointed from the museum's boards of trustees and executors will screen candidates and make nominations to the full boards.

The next election will be in October.

Kenneth M. Jastrow of Midland is chairman of the Hall of Fame Committee for 1980-81.

The committee will consider candidates proposed since June 1, 1977, as well as later ones reaching the museum before April 10.

No more than four persons can be elected at one time, and elections cannot be held more often than every two years, Russell Ramsland, president of the museum, said.

Fifty-six persons have been inducted in the Hall of Fame.

Individual Retirement Accounts at First Savings are the sure way to build for a secure retirement, and get a tax break at the same time.

If you're working for a company that does not have a retirement plan and you feel unprotected, then an Individual Retirement Account (IRA) at First Savings is the thing for you.

With an IRA, you save for the future at the impressive current interest rate of 8% (effective annual yield 8.33%). Deduct whatever you save - up to $1500 - from your gross income, and defer every penny in taxes on your IRA until you withdraw it, normally after retiring. Then, you'll probably have less income and possibly be in a lower tax bracket.

(NOTE: There are severe penalties for withdrawals before age 59 1/2.)

Here's an example of what an IRA can do for you. If you start an IRA at age 30, and deposit the maximum of $1500 per year until age 65, at the current interest rate, your IRA will be worth over $300,000. That's a tidy sum to start retirement, if you want to retire that young. By the way, your IRA is in addition to standard Social Security benefits. But remember, the deadline for starting or adding to your IRA is the date your taxes are due.

So stop by either First Savings office . . . downtown at 500 West Wall or San Miguel Square . . . and let the "FISCAL FITNESS PEOPLE" show you the sure way to save for retirement. It's getting later than you think . . .

Government figures show $1 item now goes for $2

By FLOYD NORRIS
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The final price numbers for the 1970s are in, and the government figures the average item that cost $1 when the decade began now costs $2.04.

That increase was somewhat larger than the increase in after-tax earnings for the average family, bringing home the reality that for most Ameriwas energy. Those prices were not considered important enough to both- er reporting in 1969, but the govern- ment later went back to compile them.

For the 1970s, overall energy prices went up 559 percent, according to the government. By that standard, gaso- line was relatively cheap at the end of the decade, rising just 199.6 percent.

Consumer prices rose faster in 1979 than in any year since 1946, when World War II price controls came off and prices surged. Comparable fig- ures are hard to obtain, but there apparently was never a decade when prices rose as fast as in the 1970s.

In the 1940s, prices rose about 72 percent, but during the next two de- cades the increases were well under 30 percent as inflation ceased to be of major public concern.

Inflation may not, however, have been as bad as most people think during 1979. Some economists think the rise in housing costs was given too large a weight in the CPI, since most people don't buy a new home in any given year. They note the gross na- tional product deflator, which at- tempts to measure inflation through- out the economy, was 8.8 percent, high but much lower than 13.3 per- cent.

Most analyses trace the resurgence of inflation to President Lyndon John- son's decision in the late 1960s to neither raise taxes or cut back social programs to fund the Vietnam War. The two huge oil price hikes — in 1973-74 and 1979 — administered a jolt to the economy that was partially dealt with by increasing the size of the federal budget deficits.

Most economists think inflation will abate this year as the economy slows into a recession. But those predictions got a minor jolt this past week by President Carter's State of the Union address.

Carter's plans for increased mili- tary spending and for the government to buy grain that was to have been shipped to the Soviet Union caused some economists to estimate that the federal deficit for the current fiscal year will rise by as much as $10 billion.

That spending is likely to provide additional inflationary pressures, al- though Carter's decision not to seek a tax cut is likely to help the inflation fight.

Other major business develop- ments of the week included: —Major oil companies reported large gains in profits, largely as a result of the surge in world oil prices. The gains more than kept up with inflation and left the industry's profit- ability somewhat higher than that of most industries in recent years.

Exxon became the first industrial company to earn more than $4 billion in a single year and seemed all but certain to pass General Motors as the largest industrial company in the world, ranked by sales. But it is still smaller, in both sales and profits, than American Telephone & Tele- graph Co., which is considered a utility rather than an industrial compa- ny.

Work has started on Oak Tree Plaza, a new medical office building being built by HBF Corp. at the southwest corner of Louisiana and Mogford streets. The 16,000-square-foot building will cost more than $1 million and will be completed this fall. HBF is the general contractor, with interim financing through The Midland National Bank. The parking lot will accommodate 60 cars.

Consumer prices rose 13.3 percent during the year and were up 103.6 percent during the decade, according to the Consumer Price Index released Friday by the Labor Department.

Not all prices rose by the same amounts, of course. Residential rents rose just 69.8 percent during the decade, but overall housing costs climbed by 114.4 percent, reflecting skyrocketing interest rates and home prices.

Medical care was up by 116.7 per- cent, slightly more than the overall increase. Food prices rose 114.3 per- cent.

The big gainer, to no one's surprise,

Campaign announced

Rauscher Pierce Refsnes, Inc., has announced an aggressive recruiting campaign to attract securities salesmen and trainees.

Joe P. Liberty, manager of the Midland office of RPR, said the firm has expanded its training program and the 1980 training classes will be expanded to 30 trainees.

Liberty says the career outlook for brokers has never been better.

Adobe will pay quarter dividend

MHMA officers elected

Hotel operator Jim Stahlbaum has been elected president of the newly-organized Midland Hotel and Motel Association, and Andy Graham, vice president and general manager of the Midland Hilton, has been elected vice president.

Stahlbaum is general manager of the Sheraton Inn of Midland.

Elected secretary-treasurer was Marvin Todd, general manager of the Best Western.

The association was formed to "en- courage and foster better business ethics and practices and to assist in the solving of mutual problems rela- tive to the hotel-motel industry in the Greater Midland area."

The organization, which currently is into a membership drive, will meet at noon on the third Thurs- day of each month at various restaurants.

The association, which is linked to state and national hotel-motel orga- nizations, will have far more "clout" in dealing with problems than would an individual innkeeper, Stahlbaum ex- plained.

Elcor sales show gain

Elcor Corp.'s sales for the second quarter ending Dec. 31 increased 33 percent over the sales for the same quarter a year earlier.

Roy E. Campbell, president of the Midland-headquartered firm, said sales increased to $48,365,000 from $36,302,000, and income before ex- traordinary items increased 31 per- cent to $1,988,000 or 49 cents per share from $1,516,000 or 37 cents per share.

Net income of $2,314,000 or 57 cents per share was down from $2,849,000 or 70 cents per share because of a lower extraordinary federal tax carry-forward benefit of $326,000 or eight cents per share compared with $1,333,000 or 33 cents per share in the prior year quarter, Campbell said.

For the six months ended Dec. 31, sales of $88,226,000 were up from $71,997,000 and income before extraordi- nary item of $3,564,000 or 88 cents per share was up from $2,931,000 or 72 cents per share in the same period last year. Net income of $4,091,000 or $1.01 per share was down from $5,593,000 or $1.38 per share because of the lower extraordinary federal tax carry-forward benefit.

PBGC slates seminar

The Permian Basin Graduate Center has scheduled a seminar Feb. 4-5 on "Tax Sheltered Investments" at its Midland headquarters, 105 W. Illi- nois St.

Lewis G. Mosburg Jr., senior partner in the law firm of Mosburg & Berry, Oklahoma City, will be the seminar instructor.

The two-day session is designed for investors, attorneys, accountants, brokers and investment advisors as well as individuals who need insight into the sophisticated investment areas.

Mosburg will discuss investments in oil and gas, including wildcat and development wells; real estate; cat- tle and commodities, and "exotic" investments.

The seminar will be from 9 a. m. to 4:30 p.m. each day. The fee is $250, including books and a social hour.

BUSINESS NOTEBOOK

Big Texas banks reporting large earnings

By BILL KIDD
Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Large banks in Texas are reporting large earnings for the final quarter of 1979, with increases of 24 percent in some cases compared to the prior year — and are showing annual earnings of as much as 27 percent over 1978.

Those nationally re- ported figures are based on the reports of several large holding companies, and while the Texas De- partment of Banking won't have its year-end figures completely pro- cessed until the end of February or early March, Banking Com- missioner Robert Stewart says he'd agree profits should be up. "I don't know any percentages," Stewart says, but reports that his review of the December 31 "call" figures "indicate profits are up — particu- larly the metropolitan area banks."

Smaller rural banks aren't likely to have fared as well as their bigger city cousins, Stewart adds.

But, he says, "loan de- mand in most sections of the state is pretty heavy."

In fact, "the banks are loaned up about as far as we like to see them go," in relation to deposits and loans ratios, Stewart reports.

Higher interest rates are the major factor in the profits picture, he says, with most types of loans in demand.

"Business loans are still pretty strong. There is probably a slow-down in the real estate sector, as you'd expect. Con- sumer credit is up. Agri- cultural credit goes up all the time because it gets more and more ex- pensive to farm."

One factor cited in the growth in bank profits was the change in the usury law allowing busi- ness loans to individuals to go to 18 percent from 10 percent on loans in excess of $250,000.

However, some indus- try officials discount the effect of that change, contending that such loans were being made at higher rates by re- quiring potential bor- rowers to incorporate so that rates over 10 per- cent could be charged.

Heavy activity in en- ergy-related industries, including oil and gas, is seen as another factor, particularly for multi-bank holding compan- ies.

Among the earnings reports from such hold- ing companies was that of First International Bancshares, Inc., largest in Texas with $11.5 bil- lion in assets, which re- ported fourth quarter earnings up 19 percent, with 1979 income up 20 percent.

The Texas Credit Union Commission has approved regulations on community charter cred- it unions and deposit ac- counts other than share- draft accounts — the controversial checking account type instru- ments which have result- ed in a lawsuit (decided in favor of the credit unions at the district court level) between the Texas Bankers Associa- tion and Government Employees Credit Union, San Antonio.

Commissioner John Parsons notes "the only question raised on any of these regulations was in connection with share drafts," so no action was taken on those propos- als.

Better safe than sorry

It's not the most popular stance an American president can take, but President Jimmy Carter is absolutely correct in his decision to revive registration for the military draft.

Undoubtedly there will be many Americans who will take exception with the president's request. That's understandable; nobody particularly likes the idea of having young Americans register for the draft.

After all, the military draft hints of war and at this particular time in history many Americans are nervous about the prospect of being involved in another military action.

But Carter's decision was a wise one. Rebuilding the draft machinery would result in much quicker action in the event it does become needed again. World events have taken a sharp turn for the worse in recent months and now the prospect of war looms much larger than it did in the recent past.

Of course, the draft should not be used now. But the United States can knock the mothballs off the machinery for the draft, get it oiled up and ready for use.

To use it at this time, however, would be as much of a mistake as not preparing the machinery for possible use.

Congratulations are in order for the Rev. Steve A. Edwards, senior minister of Midland's First Christian Church.

During the Midland Jaycees' annual Distinguished Service Award and Bosses Night Banquet Wednesday evening, Rev. Edwards was announced as recipient of the 1979 Distinguished Service Award.

From his list of accomplishments, it's easy to understand why Rev. Edwards was chosen as the "Outstanding Young Man" of Midland for 1979. He obviously has worked diligently for the betterment of this community and the work of God.

Iowa caucuses show American voters are worried

DES MOINES — Judging how Iowans performed their civic duties this week, 1980 should be a good, lively political year. By caucus measurements, the turnout was enormous. People are worried about America's world position and their pocketbooks. Though Carter trounced Kennedy, the ultimate beneficiaries of the Iowa caucuses could be the Republicans.

There are more Democrats than Republicans in Iowa, and in 1976 participation in Democratic caucuses was much greater than in Republican. But this year there were six times as many people of the GOP caucuses here than in 1976, even though Democrats more than doubled their attendance.

Now attending a caucus is not like going to a polling place in a primary or a general election. Any interested person of voting age can appear at a Democratic or a Republican caucus in the precinct where he or she resides, manifest an interest in that political party, and then get into the sometimes confusing and lengthy procedure of voting a preference for a presidential aspirant. Coffee is served. A good citizen can spend two or three hours in the process.

A person has to be motivated to exercise such civic duty, and Iowans sure were motivated. Some 225,000 took part, with the Republicans showing the most excitement for a change. No question that the recent debate sponsored by the Des Moines Register and Tribune stimulated Republicans and a large number of Independents (by count, they equal Democrats in Iowa) to jam into schools, church basements, town halls, auditoriums, farm and city homes where the 2,531 caucuses were held.
Democrats were pleased with the big turnout generated by the Kennedy blitz and Carter's relentless, long-staying campaign. Democrats scoffed at GOP claims for a party resurgence, charging that many In-

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Tito's grand plan may foil the Kremlin

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — The old men who rule most of the communist world spend a lot of time patiently watching and waiting for each other to die. In recent years, none of the aging, ailing communist leaders has been the subject of more watching and waiting by the Kremlin bureaucracy than has President Josip Broz Tito of Yugoslavia.

The Soviet hierarchy obviously has been hoping to use Tito's demise to restore their hold on his strategic Balkan stronghold. But the old partisan fighter — a thorn in the Russian bear's paw for virtually the entire three-and-a-half decades of his rule — may have succeeded in dashing the Kremlin's high hopes one last time.

Several secret U.S. intelligence reports describe the apparatus set up by Tito in the past 10 or 12 years to prevent Soviet domination of Yugoslavia after his death. If his plans work out — and our analysts think there's a good chance they will — the maverick communist leader will give his antique adversaries in Moscow a posthumous poke in the eye.

The heart of Tito's grand plan is the assurance that an Afghanistan-style adventure by the Kremlin would exact a fearful toll. This assurance, in Tito's view, will be enough to dissuade the Soviets from embarking on such an adventure.

One secret report, prepared by the Defense Intelligence Agency, analyzes Tito's overall strategy this way: "Tito has continued a two-faceted policy toward the USSR...which reflects a sensitivity to Soviet interests in Yugoslavia without yielding Yugoslav independence. Tito appeared, for example, to want to balance dependence on foreign weapons sources between the U.S. and the USSR. At the same time, Yugoslav military exercises...clearly advertise resolve and capabilities to defend the homeland."

A top-secret CIA report notes that the Yugoslavs at one point took their concerns directly to the U.S. ambassador in Belgrade. "Senior military officers told the U.S. ambassador that Yugoslavia is interested in closer military relations," the report states. "One officer played down the regime's occasional assertions that the West posed a threat to Yugoslavia as merely a political maneuver."

As for the effect of Tito's strategy on the Kremlin, the DIA analysis says: "Such careful orchestration of Yugoslav-Soviet relations (by Tito) probably reduces the likelihood of overt Soviet meddling in Yugoslavia, but not Soviet desires to increase its influence there."

Here's how the defense intelligence experts assess the chances of Soviet domination after Tito's death: "Without Tito's guiding hand, the Soviets might expect a larger measure of success...but we estimated that: — The Yugoslav Federation will survive in spite of internal problems that will seriously threaten it.

— The USSR is unlikely to invade a cohesive Yugoslavia, and the Yugoslav military will serve as an effective and possibly the primary unifying force."
In recent years, Tito worked feverishly to strengthen his nation's military capability. His success in this crucial venture was measured in a U.S. intelligence document whose title says it all: "Yugoslavia's Strategy Is to Make Any Invader Pay a Heavy Price."

Yugoslavia has a standing army and air force of 250,000 bolstered by more than a million trained reservists known as "territorials." U.S. intelligence analysts had this to say about the role of the reserves: "Yugoslavia's defense system places great emphasis on the territo-

Communists can't know super thrills, agonies

Dear Diary:
This is how I spent Super Sunday. I woke up in the morning and felt Super. My wife wanted to surprise me, so she gave me a Super breakfast in bed. "Honey," I said, "you're really a Super person for doing this." She kissed me on the forehead, "Super Sunday only comes once a year."
After breakfast, I shaved with a Super blade and went downstairs to make a cheese dip for a Super bunch of boys I had invited over to watch the game with me. I didn't invite any Super girls, because even on Super Sunday my wife doesn't like Super women around the house. She says she doesn't mind the other kind.

When I finished making the cheese dip, I went to a Supermarket where they were having a Super sale on potato chips, candy and popcorn. Then I found a service station and filled up my tank with Super Premium gasoline.

I came home and watched "Meet the Press" with Jimmy Carter, who said he was doing a Super job against Super odds.

The kids had been out all night, so they were Super quiet as I sat by the set in the afternoon watching highlights of other Super Bowl games.

After the highlights they had a show with some of the great Super football stars of the past. Unfortunately, by this time I had eaten up all the potato chips, so I had to go out to a store and buy some more. But the Supermarket was closed so I found a Super drugstore which sells everything from Super pantyhose to Super toothpaste. I bought the potato chips and since they had a soda fountain I decided to have a Super sundae because it was such a special day.

When I got back at three o'clock I found my kids making breakfast. "How was your evening?" I asked my son.

"It was just Super."
"Where did you go?"
"To a Super party where I met a Super Chick."
"What did you do?"
"We went to an all-night joint and had four Super hamburgers."

At this moment my wife walked in and said, "This kitchen is a Super mess, and if you don't clean it up immediately you can all make your own suppers."

"Mom," my daughter said, "you're being Super-sensitive. This is Super Sunday and we should be allowed to do anything we want to."

I left the kitchen because TV cheerleaders featuring a film of Super Bowl leaders. During the program I got a call from a brother-in-law of mine asking me if I wanted to take 10 1-2 points and bet on the Los Angeles Rams. He thinks I'm a Super patsy when it comes to football. I told him, "No way," and then asked how my sister was. He said, "She has a Super cold and is in bed. I hope she doesn't give it to me."

By this time, it was 5:30 and my Super friends started arriving. They expressed disappointment that I didn't have a Super screen to watch the game on.

I gave them each a beer and told them to shut up. We all grabbed chairs and sat around the set. The moment he had waited for was upon us. As they played the Star-Spangled Banner we sat quietly, thanking the Super-being in our own way for the blessings He had bestowed on us during the past football year.

George from Georgetown summed the day up the best when he said, "The difference between us and the Commies is that they don't believe in Super Sunday, so they'll never know the thrill of victory or the agony of defeat."

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Sunday, Jan. 27, the 27th day of 1980. There are 339 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On Jan. 27th, 1973, the Vietnam cease-fire went into effect with the signing of the peace accords in Paris. They ended the American role in the Vietnam War.

On this date: In 1756, Composer Wolfgang Mozart was born.

In 1880, Thomas Edison was granted the patent for the light bulb.

In 1950, the United States agreed to provide arms to members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

In 1967, Three Apollo astronauts — Gus Grissom, Edward White and Roger Chaffee — died in a flash fire aboard their unlaunched space capsule. On the same day, the United States, Soviet Union and 60 other countries had signed a treaty to limit military activities in outer space.

Ten years ago, the resort community of Grand Isle, La., was cleaning up from a 15-mile oil slick that had blackened beaches two days earlier.

Five years ago, the stock market, in what at the time was record-heavy trading, posted a sharp rally. It didn't last: the same day, the government announced the nation's second-highest trade deficit in history.

Last year, Iranian Prime Minister Shahpour Bakhtiar said he'd go to Paris to consult with the exiled Ayatollah Khomeini, but he would not yet allow Khomeini back into Iran. Khomeini rebuffed the offer.

Today's birthdays: Dancer Mikhail Baryshnikov is 32. Admiral Hyman Rickover is 80. Skitch Henderson is 62. And William Randolph Hearst Jr. is 72.

Thought for today: Toleration is the best religion. — Victor Hugo (1802-1885)

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Note of thanks

To The Editor:
On Tuesday, January 15, our son was bitten by a strange dog while at school. Before anyone knew what had happened to him, the dog had left the school grounds. The bite he received on his forearm was not serious, or very noticeable, however it was enough to warrant his receiving rabies shots.

The next few days were very trying on everyone. We would like to take this opportunity to acknowledge some of the individuals who helped us during this tense situation.

We would like to thank Jan Sickles of the Animal Control Department for the time and effort she showed. True, this is her job, but we felt she really extended herself in the time and support she gave.

Also, Mr. Jack Francis, principal of West Elementary School. He showed great concern and spent much of his time in trying to locate the missing dog. Mrs. Judy Everett and Georgianna Baze were also instrumental in finding and identifying the animal.

There were others who helped in different ways and we appreciate all of them. In times of trouble, it's very gratifying to know there is always someone who can help and offer support.

Again, we would like to thank everyone who had any part in helping us locate the dog. At least if our son has to receive these injections, it will be because the dog is sick and not for a precautionary measure.

JA success

To The Editor:
It is the start of another fiscal year for the Junior Achievement program in Midland. This is a learning experience that will touch several hundred high school students. If there is enough financial support.

Our family has had six years of experience with JA in Hobbs and Midland. Through association with several JA companies, many dedicated advisers, and sales campaigns, it has been a rewarding experience for our daughter and son. They have been the recipients of several awards, trips, and scholarships. Naturally they enjoyed the honors, as any teenager would among their peers, but their parents feel the long-term benefits are much greater than the honors.

The problems associated with electing a marketable idea or service must have been traumatic in their company meetings, they certainly were at home. They learned that brilliant ideas may be difficult to sell, but their adult advisers let them make their mistakes, and learn.

The association with the volunteer advisors, usually young and always enthusiastic, gave them contacts in the local business community with whom they could identify. The JA companies, small for the most part, have provided many young people with organizational experiences, manufacturing and sales skills, and exposure to financial reports, the bottom line.

Our children have experienced the business package from start to finish, not once but several times. We are prejudiced of course, but we think it has given them a very mature view of the business world.

The Midland Junior Achievement program has provided excellent leadership and opportunities open to all interested high school students. JA is a non-profit organization teaching free enterprise and it needs and deserves community support at this time.

Now if we could just work out a similar successful program for training for marriage.

As it was written

To The Editor:
To witness the fulfillment of biblical prophecy is always interesting. Recent events in Southeast Asia plainly qualify. Remember the huge crowds of militant Moslems surrounding the U.S. Embassy in Tehran, shaking their fists and pouring out their fierce hatred for the United States?

See then chapter 16 in the book of Genesis, written about 1913 B.C. Remember that Ishmael was the father of the Moslems. His father was Abraham, his mother was Hagar, an Egyptian maid. An angel appeared to Hagar in the wilderness (verse 10) "and the angel of the Lord said to her, 'I will multiply thy seed exceedingly so that it shall not be numbered for multitude.'" (v. 11) "and the angel of the Lord said to her, 'Behold, thou art with child and shalt bear a son and shall call his name Ishmael.'"

V. 12 — "and he will be a wild man, his hand will be against every man and every man's hand against him, and he shall dwell in the presence of all his brethren."

The Spanish version seems equally prophetic. (Verse 12) "y el sera hombre fiero!" (he will be a fiery man!) All quite fitting today.

A current related event in the Middle East should command attention. Following the entry of Soviet troops into Afghanistan, a horde of Moslem militants stormed the Soviet embassy in Iran (?) or Pakistan?

But they did not get inside. It seems that the Russian soldiers guarding the embassy had real bullets in their guns — not tear gas only! The soldiers were firing over the mobsters' heads, but the deadly sound of bullets whistling past one's ears tends to induce retreat — on the double! No telling when a Russian might accidentally lower his aim just a trifle!

No smoky rooms

To The Editor:
Operate a factory or drive an automobile that pollutes the air and you can receive a stiff fine. Dump your garbage on someone's front lawn, and you may go to jail for littering. Spit on someone's home or office floor, and you may get punched in the nose. Why, then, does this society tolerate cigarette smokers who sit in restaurants and other public places and blow filth into common air space?

I see little difference between spitting on the floor and blowing obnoxious foul-smelling, lung-burning smoke into the air. Both are offensive, inconsiderate, unsanitary and unhealthy acts and ought to be prohibited. If a factory were to do for the air of a community what cigarette smokers do for the air in restaurants, it would be shut down in a moment. Smokers, however, seem to be immune to all laws of public health and common decency.

Yes, I am one of those radical reformed smokers. But I am not such an evangelist for non-smoking that I want to save the smoker from "demon tobacco." All I want to do is save myself from his bad manners. The poison with which a man chooses to kill himself is his business, but when his poison burns my eyes and nose, makes me sneeze and endangers the health of my children, it becomes my business, and the business of a lot of us.

Smokers ask us non-smokers to be understanding of their affliction since they have this uncontrollable habit and get very nervous when they can't blow smoke across a table. Hogwash! If smokers can go to a movie or church without blowing smoke, they can go to a cafe without smoking. Frankly, my allergy to cigarette smoke is causing my understanding of the poor, afflicted smoker to wear a little thin.

I am not alone in this frustration. About 80 percent of all adult allergy sufferers are allergic to cigarette smoke and the percentage is probably even higher for children. How much longer must we suffer from this historic inequity that permits such an offensive and unhealthy habit to be practiced in public places? I would be willing to concede the bars as drinking and smoking establishments, but I want cigarette smoking out of public restaurants, supermarkets, elevators and airlines. No line across the room can do the job.

We non-smokers outnumber smokers two-to-one, and if we would only stop being so passive, we could get some laws passed to clean up the air. But laws wouldn't be needed if smokers would only do the sensible, sanitary thing and keep their habit to themselves.

'Tune in Terry'

To The Editor:
The appearance of troubled times which surround us as a nation and, more importantly, as individuals, provides an excellent opportunity to closely examine our basic values, our belief systems, and determine for ourselves the reasons why our lives and our world may not appear to be working as well as we would prefer. Personally, I do not believe that things should be labeled as "right" or "wrong," they simply either work or they don't.

As a suggestion to get some of us back on track, centered if you will, may I recommend your readers tune in the "Terry Cole-Whitaker Show" which presently airs on Channel 2, KMID-TV, Sunday evenings at 10:30 p.m.

Terry Cole-Whitaker is not only a Religious Science Minister, but she is one of the nation's leading motivational speakers for many of our larger corporations. She is a dynamic, caring young woman with something to say. (The fact that she is a former Miss California doesn't hurt her image any, either!)

Whether or not you choose to agree with her is your business. The important thing is that you will use your mind which is the highest gift that God has given us. Each of us has the personal responsibility to "clean up" our own little drop in race consciousness. When this happens, world-wide, the peace we all desire will be ours. For it is indeed done unto us as we believe. That which we fear does come upon us, so it is incumbent upon each of us to take a good look at what we really do say, think, and do — for each of us is creating our own reality. If we do not like what we see, we have no one to blame but ourselves.

In case there is any doubt, God is alive and doing well. He is neither sick, poor, lonely, frustrated, bored, or unsure of Himself. As we are made in His image, why should we settle for any less?

If you "Tune in Terry" and like what you hear, you might stop by the Permian Church of Religious Science, 3400 N. A St., noon on Sundays. You, too, can transform your life by the renewing of your mind. What have you got to lose?

Big price to pay

To The Editor:
Here's a bill everyone should be greatly concerned about. It's a proposed amendment to the Social Security foster care program (S. 966). This bill, if passed, will cost $80 million in 1980 and $110 million in 1981. The one sponsoring this bill is Sen. Alan Cranston (D-Calif.), the same one who proposed "The Child Care Act of 1979," which received such strong criticism that he was compelled to drop it.

His idea is to do away with institutional foster care as the people know it today by replacing it with federally assisted "home" foster care. It sounds good, but is it? Actually it seems to be no better than what we have now. Here's how it would work. You would be paid by the government to house a child in your home. The government will also instruct you on how to raise the child and it will pay you or someone else to cook and clean the house.

So the government, while giving you "counseling" on how to raise your foster child, what's to stop them from giving you "advice" on how to raise your own children? Cranston's idea is to move the institution into your own home — in such a way as to make an institution out of your home.

Write to your senators today, telling them that you certainly do not favor such a bill, not merely because of its tremendous cost but because it will socialize the family. Says Dr. Castiglione (Prof. of the University of New York City), "The family's future is literally threatened by the self-perpetuating character of these professional institutions performing family functions." Once these professionals get started on a program they don't easily give up.

The kind of man

To The Editor:
It doesn't take much of a man today to look at the world and determine that we are living in perilous times, nor to see that it's man that put us there. Many of us blame it on other men. We'll say, "Well, if it wasn't for those Democrats, the world would sure be a better place," or "Mohammed is killing us," or "Them yahoos up in Congress are sure selling us down the road."

I submit that the world's problems begin right here at home with you and me. Since we as men are responsible, let's ask ourselves, just what is a man?

To some a man is one who can sip whiskey and run women all night, and still be at work the next morning. To others he is one who has acquired great knowledge, and can discuss many topics in depth. To some a man is one who can provide for the family. The measure of a man differs among men.

There is a measure of a man that many of us have overlooked. He was the kind of man that founded this nation. He was a man who could think and work with his hands. But more importantly, he was a man who could swallow his pride, get down on his knees, and humble himself before the Lord his God. He taught his children how to work and to pray. He taught them responsibility to other people and their Creator. He was a man who could give thanks in all things (Ephesians 5:20). He recognized that sin was a real problem, and must be dealt with (Romans 3:10, 23, 6:23).

He did not try to disguise it with pretty names. Those who practiced free love were FORNICATORS. Alcoholics were DRUNKARDS. Malicious gossips were REVILERS. The man with a mistress was an ADULTERER, none of these having an inheritance in the kingdom of God. (1 Corinthians 6:9, 10). He was a lover of God more than a lover of pleasure, inclining his ears not unto fables, but ever seeking after the knowledge of truth and God's righteousness (read 2 Timothy 3). He was a man who would take a stand, leading his family physically, mentally, and spiritually, not playing second fiddle to his wife's cat. Did you ever wonder why women want to be liberated. Maybe it's because they haven't got men who will take a stand. He was a man who obeyed God, and then trusted God to meet his needs (Matthew 6:33). Even so, he was a kind, gentle, patient man who experienced a certain peace (Galatians 5:22). He was a CHRISTIAN.

Keep them home

To The Editor:
And now we come to the Moscow Olympics...should we or should we not let our country's participants go to the Olympics in Russia or should we boycott or possibly obtain an alternate site?

Our president has asked that we find an alternative to going to Moscow unless the Russian forces are withdrawn from Afghanistan by mid-February. Very good...I guess. But many of the prospective athletes and supporters for the world Olympics insist that the games should not become a political "toy." With their thought we would also have to agree.

But it makes us wonder how and why the games can claim "political immunity" when this country is so close to war and why we, you and I, cannot claim "political immunity" also. I am not inferring that we should turn our backs on the things that are going to happen in the next few weeks, but wonder what it would take to let all of the citizens of the United States and the citizens of Russia, together, claim a kind of political immunity from all of the abuses that are being created by the politicians in both countries.

I feel that to send the political hell raisers from both the United States and Russia to some deserted place and let them fight the wars for themselves would be a life-saving and soul-saving venture because the odds are very good that the people of Russia don't want war any more than any of us do. Likewise, I think that possibly the absence of the Ayatollah, Castro, and many others in comparable positions in their self-selected appointees and puppets would solve most of our — the people who have to fight the wars — problems. "Political immunity" for us...why not?

And let's ask for that immunity on behalf of the others in the world who just want to live as they see fit and not as a small group of "so-called" representatives want us to.

Or...to put it more concisely: I frankly don't believe the Moscow Olympics can be free of politics. Let's keep our athletes at home and send our politicians home. It's time we showed the world and our leaders that we're mad as hell and we won't stand for any more of their using us for their personal satisfactions.

Support JA

To The Editor:
In the coming weeks, local businessmen will be asked to support Junior Achievement projects in Midland, and I am writing this letter in support of these projects.

Now, as never before, the free enterprise system needs to be presented to the public in an honest manner. Particularly it needs to be explained to the young people of the community who will be helping to decide national policy and attitudes towards business in the very near future. The best way to understand any system is to participate within that system. Junior Achievement is an accurate simulation of the free enterprise environment because high school age people are able to operate their own small businesses and observe many phases of this business, and have the opportunity to deal with a variety of problems associated with operating a business.

I participated in the Junior Achievement program when I was in high school almost 20 years ago. Not only did I learn to understand the problems of business, but I became excited and enthusiastic about the American economic system. The initial spark that was generated through this program has developed to a strong desire to see our economic system perpetuated. As an independent businessman, I have received many financial, cultural and spiritual benefits which were similar to those first experienced during Junior Achievement.

This program can benefit you, the community, and the country. Please support it.

A better example

To The Editor:
An article in the Washington Post dated Jan. 8, 1980, outlines details for the sale of 127,465 barrels of crude oil per day from the Elk Hills Petroleum reserve in Kern County, Calif. by the U.S. Government. Prices will range to $41.12 per barrel, approximately double the current controlled price ceiling.

Among the buyers of this oil are C. Itoh, Ltd., a Japanese trading company, and Oasis Petrol Energy, which markets in Saudi Arabia and Denmark as well as the U.S.A.

By federal law, domestically produced crude oil is prohibited from being sold or traded abroad, and prices are strictly controlled at approximately half the $41 per barrel figure. It appears that our federal government, which regularly and stridently denounces profiteering by the oil industry, is in the anomalous position of violating its own pricing and export rules. During these days of high prices and crude oil shortages, surely our government can set a better example for the industry and the public than was done in this instance.

More on JA

To The Editor:
Junior Achievement of Midland is entering a fund raising campaign which prompted this letter.

My son, Steve, participated in JA for three years while attending Lee High School. He graduated in 1978 and is currently attending Texas A&M. While in JA he was president of his company and participated in all the activities, including several out-of-town conferences. The knowledge he gained and the lessons he learned while in JA were invaluable and will help him in business the rest of his life. He learned how to organize a small business including capitalization, producing a product, selling, keeping records, balancing financial books, presiding over company meetings, solving business related problems and liquidation of the business. He actually had the incentive and know-how to start a small business when he graduated from high school.

Junior Achievement is especially beneficial to students who are not active in sports or other school activities. It gives this type of individual a place of leadership and responsibility and a chance to "be somebody." Also available to the achiever is free admission to a $500 Carnegie course. Junior Achievement fulfilled many basic needs in Steve's high school life and we will always be grateful for the organization.

'The wagon man' visits again with letters to farflung friends Back in May of last year, a young bearded fellow imparting friendship and showing stamina and independence moseyed through Midland in a covered wagon. He was from another age — an adventuresome, pioneering age fraught with freedom, woes and thrills and quiet moments.

This friendly traveler was Jean Lemay, a Canadian who journeyed 7,000 miles in 1½ years, traveling the length and breadth of this fair land. He's back in his native country, the Province of Quebec, to "hibernate" before continuing his "voyage" with his two horses, Flagosse and Didyme.

Lemay, a studious, no-nonsense fellow who's blessed with a sense for the humorous, just recently mailed out a letter to the many friends he made in his travels.

In Midland, he and his team and his canine companion spent awhile with Joe and Elizabeth Thorp in a pastoral setting just west of Midland. Lemay was impressed with the Texas hospitality. And he was quite proud of the citizens' band radio Joe and other friendly sorts in Midland gave him free-will and "for greater security in the mountainous roads."

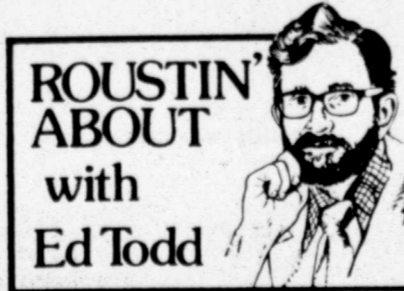

Lemay saw and partook of the countryside as few — very, very few — have or will ever.

Lemay's thoughtful letter is a travelogue which vividly gives accounts of some of his experiences, including those in Texas and in his layover in Midland.

"Spring brought us on the Mexican Gulf, with our first night in Texas," wrote Lemay.

That night, he and his horses were witness to a downpour accompanied by an electrical storm.

"My horses and I felt very small in the middle of nowhere." And it was at Galveston, where he "met this friendly dog who followed us and protected

ROUSTIN' ABOUT with Ed Todd

"the Hill Billy Country" and the Virginias, where the "narrow green valleys, the sheep and the beautiful fields hemmed by mountains added a special outlook to the scenery."

He offered more accounts of Dixie Land.

"It was in Tennessee that I started feeling and smelling the South; often at night, people would come to my campfire with their guitar and would play and sing for hours.

"In Alabama, I met this Red Neck who refused to water my horses, but upon leaving him, his dog followed us down to Louisiana, where he died..."

In Mississippi, a sheriff and his deputies, outfitted in Western garb and firearms, got themselves photographed aboard the wagon.

In Louisiana, an 86-year-old blacksmith, Albert Westmoreland, who had shod horses in France in World War I, helped Lemay get his wagon into good running order.

After passing through Texas, Lemay was invited to a pow-wow on the Mesquero Apache Indian Reservation.

Lemay expressed much thanks for the hospitality he enjoyed along the way.

"Without your help and friendship, I could never have travelled this difficult but marvelous road," he wrote to his friends. "I thank you so very much."

"In all classes of society, from the poor hobo to the rich rancher, from Christian communities to company managers, everyone of you sympathized with this unusual traveler passing through, awakening old dreams of freedom and making you share the company of friendly ponies always preceded by a little dog's wagging tail."

It was good knowing you, Jean Lemay.

Much later, he journeyed through

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — When the U.S. Military Academy wanted to sell four old horses, it turned them over to the Defense Property Disposal Service to do the job.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration did the same when it decided to sell a surplus Deep Space Network Computer System at Cape Canaveral.

Whether it's flashlights or computers, timber, tanks or aircraft carriers, if it is surplus property of the U.S. Department of Defense, the Defense Property Disposal Service may get it.

The agency has sold 37 acres of standing timber at Ft. Devens, Mass.; lawn trimmings advertised as hay and mulch from Fort Riley, Kan.; surplus missile equipment, and spoiled food unfit for human consumption but with salvage value for livestock feed.

Some merchandise is transferred to the Department of Defense for use by other military units or to the General Services Administration for other government agencies, government subdivisions or charities. Some is transferred to foreign governments. But much goes to the disposal service for sale to the general public by sealed bid, spot bid, through retail stores or auction, and occasionally negotiated sales.

Among items currently advertised are nearly 3,000 escape and evasion kits known to wartime combat troops as barter kits. They include coins and trinkets containing a total of about one ounce of gold. Soldiers trapped behind enemy lines used them to trade for food, medical attention or aid to escape.

The market price of gold on bid opening day will influence the minimum acceptable bid, but officials expect the kits to bring in excess of $3 million.

Robert J. Yuhas, commander of the Columbus regional disposal service office says the agency is a bureaucratic rarity. It makes money for the taxpayer. The worldwide operations turned a profit of $24 million — $3.2 million in the Columbus region — in fiscal year 1979. It cost $94.2 million to operate the agency that took in $118.3 million from various sales.

The disposal service functions world-wide with a staff of less than 1,000 people, mostly civilians. With systemwide headquarters at Battle Creek, Mich., it has three domestic regional offices, two regions outside the contiguous 48 states, and a network of offices extending from Hawaii to Newfoundland and Germany; Duluth, Minn., to Key West, Fla., and Guantanamo Bay, Cuba.

The Columbus region covers 23 states from Maine to Nebraska and Virginia. It also is the headquarters for the agency's experts on military watercraft disposal.

For disposal purposes, ships are classed as combatant or non-combatant. Combat ships are either transferred to other governments under the Military Assistance Program or stripped of usable equipment and sold for scrap. Those offered to the public are totally demilitarized.

The disposal service recently sold 76 small watercraft, many of them World War II vintage troop and equipment landing and utility ships. All listed in poor condition and many missing vital parts and scattered among a dozen military installations from Rhode Island to Hawaii. There were more than 200 bidders on one or more boats. After President Carter took office the agency sold the presidential yacht Sequoia, a 104-foot motor ship that had been in government service since 1931 and used extensively by former President Nixon. Hustler magazine owner Larry Flynt was among serious bidders but didn't measure up to the final sale price of $186,000 offered by a group in New England.

About the same time, the agency sold the aircraft carrier USS Roosevelt to a U.S. salvage firm for scrap. The price was about $1.5 million after it had been stripped of usable equipment. The buyer had to tow it from the Philadelphia Navy Yard, cut it up and ship the scrap to mills for reuse.

hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:
Many mornings I put on my shirt, tie and jacket only to discover my collar sticking out like steer horns. And no collar stays around! All stolen by the "Collar-stay Gremlin"!

So, guys, when you plant those spring and summer flowers, save the white plastic sticks that are used to label the plants in those pony-packs and other containers.

Cut them in half lengthwise and trim with scissors. Each marker makes a pair of "free" collar stays.

A stockpile of these will not be stolen by the gremlin, as he will be completely confused by Latin labels, such as "Lampranthus Spectabilis" (Red Iceplant), and he'll leave them alone!

Alan in Escondido
Now aren't you a smartie to stay one step ahead of a gremlin — just hope one doesn't read your hint and decide to get a higher education...

Hugs, Heloise RUST AWAY!

DEAR HELOISE:
I've just removed the rust and repainted the screws on my toilet seat with clear finger nail polish to slow down the rust build-up on the porcelain finish.

Barbara Westrick BOWL 'EM OVER

DEAR HELOISE:
Waxed milk cartons may be used as "pins" for a bowling game.

Use a soft foam ball and the children will have a great time.

FOR FRESH COOKIES

DEAR HELOISE:

To keep cookies fresher longer when stored in a cookie jar, line the jar with a plastic bag.

When the cookies are put into the jar the bag can be closed and secured with a twist-tie.

This way cookies stay fresh down to the last crumb.

IT'S A GIFT

DEAR HELOISE:

Here's an inexpensive gift a child could make.

Ask a car mechanic for a used distributor cap.

When it's washed and inverted, it will hold nine pens or pencils.

A piece of felt could be glued on the bottom to protect furniture.

Carolyn Green

DEAR READER:

SHAKE THAT TAMBOURINE

DEAR HELOISE:
I love music and have wanted a tambourine for ages. I found one that I liked but it cost too much, so I decided to make one.

I used two aluminum pie plates, a lot of little pebbles and some glue. Masking tape would work too.

First I put the pebbles in one pan. I put glue along the rim of it. Then I placed the other plate on top. If using masking tape, you'd seal the edges of the two plates together.

The plates should be facing each other with the bottom sides facing out.

This makes a perfect tambourine.

STAND-UP HAIR'S A PROBLEM

DEAR HELOISE:
I read your column every day. I have a problem. Every time I brush my hair in the morning, it gets all full of static and I can't control it.

What should I do? I'm counting on you for an answer.

All Staticky, Age 10

Boy, I know how you feel. My hair's long — clear down to my waist — and when it gets static, it gets static!

Hair gets static because the air is dry, right? So if you slightly dampen your brush and comb before using them, it will help.

Or, if Mom's got any of those fabric softener sheets around, grab one and run it over your comb or brush — even give your hair a couple of swipes.

Hope this helps you keep those locks in place.

WHAT'S FOR DINNER?

DEAR HELOISE:
As cook of the house, have you ever wished someone would tell you what to make for dinner? Sometimes it can be a chore.

My husband came to my rescue with a great idea — to put my 30 favorite recipes on cards in the order most convenient.

Each day I pick the first card and, after using it, put it in the back of the stack. There's no guesswork.

Of course, we still have our super favorites more often. Before shopping, I check my recipe cards for the week to see what I need.

This gives me — you too, I hope — incentive to seek out new recipes to add to old favorites from time to time. Try it, you may like it!

E. Curcio

THE COOKIE JAR

DEAR HELOISE:
I started making cookies one afternoon and the recipe called for rolling them out on a pastry sheet — which I didn't have.

Instead, I got the bright idea to use one of my old but clean, plastic place mats until I could go and buy the real thing.

Well, it turned out the old plastic place mat was the real thing for me.

Works great!
B.P.

STEAM 'EM HOT

DEAR HELOISE:
Like many others, I live alone.

I find that leftovers can be steamed in the final stages of meal preparation.

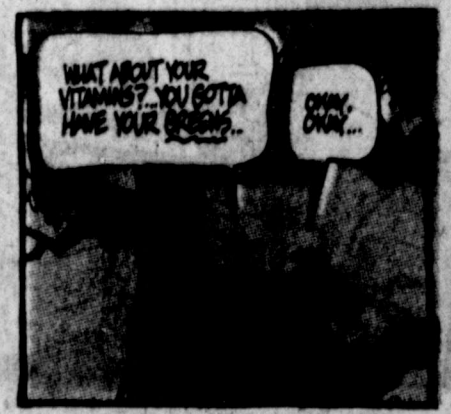

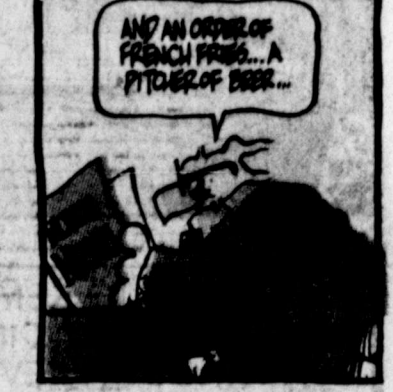

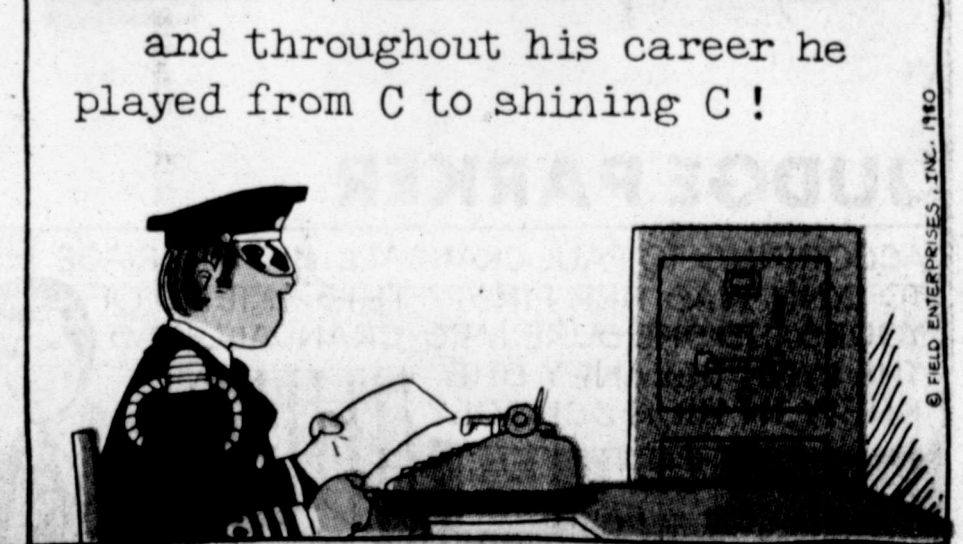

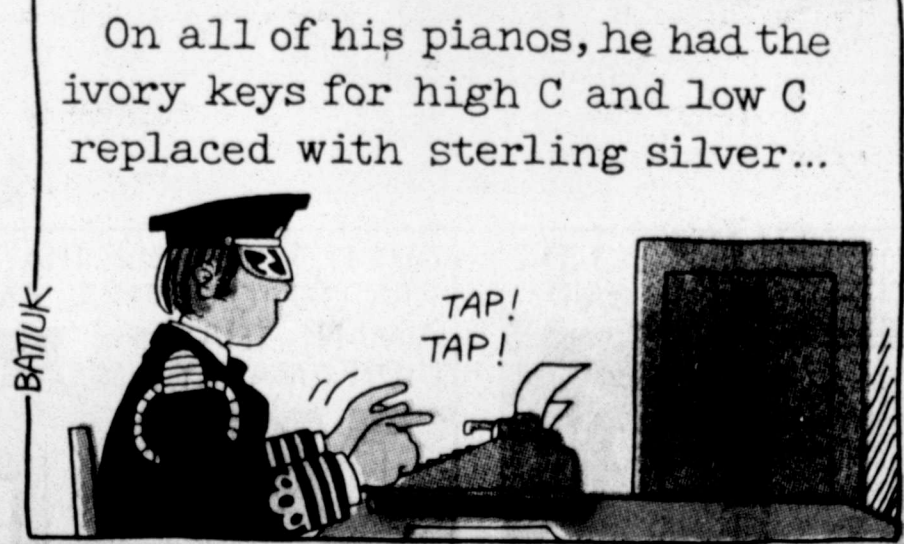

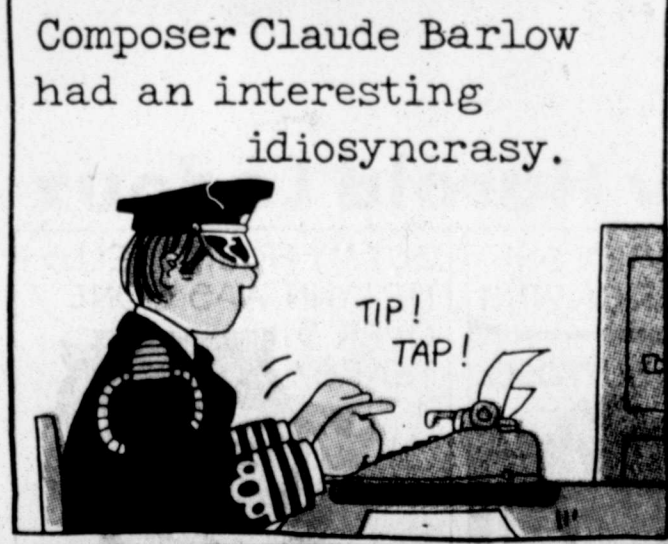

I place the rack from my pressure cooker over a pan of cooking food or boiling water, and then put the precooked food on the rack. I cover it with a lid and steam it until hot.

When the freshly cooked food is done, the leftovers are hot — no extra energy needed — or wasted.
