Primitive weapons wreak havoc

Reporters see destruction in New Mexico prison

By S.J. GUFFEY
Associated Press Writer

SANTA FE (AP) — Inmates who seized the New Mexico State Penitentiary over the weekend didn't have firearms. But the destruction reporters saw after the holdout left no doubt that human rage can wreak havoc with primitive weapons.

About 75 reporters and photographers toured the riot-torn prison Monday with Warden Jerry Griffin. I was one of them.

Inside the door, the magnitude of the 36-hour siege became apparent. It was worse than anyone had thought possible.

Although the inmates didn't have guns, they did have blowtorches, baseball bats, billyclubs seized from guards, flammable liquids from the cleaning supplies, knives and axe handles.

Inmates used all of them to raze the buildings and to kill and mutilate fellow prisoners.

Cell 23 was spattered with blood along one wall, although the mattress remained intact. Most of the mattresses in the prison had been burned.

Next door, nothing was out of place, but we were told the occupant died on the blackened mattress.

Inmates had locked themselves in Cell 24 and several others in an attempt to escape the carnage. It didn't do any good. Other inmates sprayed them through the bars with flammable liquid and set them on fire.

In No. 69, there was a pool of thickening blood on the floor. You could see that someone had been attacked there, dragged from the toilet through the door and apparently pushed over the railing, to land two stories down.

Parts of cellblocks were undamaged.

The bunk in cell 10, cellblock 4, was properly made, the blanket tucked around the mattress. It looked as if it didn't belong in the building.

That cell attracted as much attention as the devastation that surrounded it.

"I wonder whose this was," one reporter said.

The library also was untouched aside from broken glass on the top of the door and some trickles of water coming through the walls. Row after row of books were stacked neatly on shelves. In the study carrels, chairs were on still on top of desks where they had been placed Friday night for cleanup.

There was relatively little damage to the classroom on the third floor of the library.

In other areas the damage was devastating.

It seemed the inmates tried to destroy everything twice. They smashed or ripped up furniture, windows and equipment, then set fires to make sure the damage couldn't be repaired.

"It looked like the prisoners' hatred was directed at certain areas.

The warden pointed out the gutted offices of the deputy wardens of operations and programs.

"They didn't like them very much, did they?" a reporter asked. Griffin replied, "You should see what they did to my office."

Later, we did. It looked like a bomb had gone off inside.

The office had been set afire. Furnishings and records were completely destroyed.

The door was one large piece of charcoal with the doorknob still in place.

In spots along the corridors, the mesh reinforced concrete walls had been pounded and bent in. The heavy iron barred door at the visitors' room was still shut, but a large section of the thick wall next to it had been torn away.

Inmates had ripped out plumbing fixtures, covering the floor with murky water that was ankle deep in some places.

Thick plate glass lay in shards everywhere in the main reception area. The vending machines were damaged and empty.

The smell of smoke still lingered, but it was not as strong as we had expected. The air inside was fairly clear because smoke had escaped through the broken doors and windows.

I just kept wondering what it was like to be a prisoner who didn't want to participate and to be here when this was happening.

One of the two prison instructors serving as escorts for the reporters asked the other as we were all walking out, "Did you ever read 'The Human Zoo' by Desmond Morris? It talks about overcrowding like this and what it does to people."

And as we all left, we hardly heard the comments of prisoners who were shouting at us from along the fence. We just wanted out of there.

Afghan rebels step up attacks in provinces

By The Associated Press

Anti-communist rebels have launched a new series of attacks in eastern Afghanistan, it was reported today in Moscow and New Delhi, but the accounts differed on whether Soviet or Afghan troops were bearing the brunt of the fighting in the snowswept mountain region.

The Soviet news agency Tass said Afghan army units were "liquidating" the "bandit gangs" in three provinces. But an Indian journalist reported from Afghanistan that government troops in the area "do not seem to have the heart" to battle the rebellious tribesmen, and Western diplomats in New Delhi said Soviet units were involved in the new fighting and were suffering casualties.

Tass said the upsurge in attacks coincided with U.S. National Security Adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski's visit to neighboring Pakistan last weekend.

Tass today also denounced as "monstrous misinformation" U.S. reports quoting Afghan refugees as saying that Afghan troops led by Soviet advisers massacred more than 1,000 men last April in an eastern Afghan village whose people were accused of collaborating with the rebels.

According to the refugee accounts reported by the Christian Science Monitor and Newsweek magazine, 200 Afghan troops led by 20 Soviet advisers ordered all men in the town of Kerala to assemble in a field, forced them to line up in crouching positions and then opened fire with machine guns. A bulldozer then plowed the bodies under the ground, the refugees said.

Afterward, the troops went through the town gunning down any other males they found.

In another development, Western diplomats in New Delhi said about 100 shops in central Kabul, the Afghan capital, burned down in the early morning hours Sunday in what might have been an attempt to cover up looting by Soviet troops.

The fire occurred about four hours after the start of the 11 p.m. curfew, when the city is patrolled by Soviet troops and armored vehicles, they noted. One source said there have been recent reports of widespread shoplifting by Soviet soldiers, and that rumors of new looting spread quickly through the Kabul bazaar later Sunday.

The Tass battle report, in a dispatch from Kabul, said the new fighting erupted in the eastern provinces of Nangarhar, Badakhshan and Paktia.

In Nangarhar, bordering on Pakistan, "bandits cruelly slew peaceful people, burned down several schools, blew up bridges and roads," Tass said, and units of the Afghan army "have started liquidating the gangs."

It said similar "liquidations" were under way in Badakhshan and Paktia.

But reliable Western sources in New Delhi said Soviet forces were engaged in the fighting.

Ali patches up tiff with the president

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Muhammad Ali smoothed over his misunderstanding with President Carter about U.S. foreign policy tried to get in a first fight with a lion and added luster to his African mission by meeting today with the President of Kenya.

Ali conferred with President Daniel Arap Moi for 20 minutes, restoring some diplomatic prestige to his tour to seek support for a boycott of the Moscow Olympics. During the session, described by a U.S. spokesman as involving serious discussions, Foreign Minister Robert Ouko and other top Kenyan Cabinet members were present.

Moi told Ali to feel at home in Kenya and the U.S. spokesman quoted Ali as replying, "I am at home."

Ali later conferred with Kenyan Christian and Moslem leaders, and was scheduled to appear at a reception at the home of U.S. Ambassador Wilbert LeMelle. Ali, former heavyweight boxing champion, also went off to Nairobi National Park to square off against wild animals. He chased some, but found no lion.

Until the session with Moi, Ali was a presidential envoy who had not met a president. President Julius Nyerere snubbed him Sunday in Tanzania, where opposition to U.S. contact with South Africa is strong.

Ali leaves tomorrow for Nigeria, Senegal and Liberia on his way to report to Carter in Washington.

Earlier today, Ali tried to get his African assignment back on course by blaming State Department advisers for failing to prepare him for tough questions from African reporters about U.S. dealings with South Africa. He said he was not angry with Carter at all.

Midlander dies after shooting

A 28-year-old Midland man died during surgery late Monday night after having been shot in the back three times.

Police said they were called to 3217 A W. Storey Ave. at 10:38 p.m. Monday on a disturbance with a gun.

When the first officer arrived, he found Rudell Whitley, with three bullet wounds in his back, at the Salgado Munoz residence. According to reports Whitley had run there after being wounded.

He was taken to Midland Memorial Hospital Emergency Room for treatment and later admitted into surgery, where he died at approximately midnight.

His wife, 35, was treated and released from Midland Memorial Hospital for injuries allegedly inflicted by Whitley, according to police reports.

Police said they may wait to file charges against the wife until they can present the case to the grand jury Wednesday.

Mishap kills Iraan resident

IRAAN — An 87-year-old Iraan resident died Wednesday night in a tractor-trailer, pedestrian accident 10 miles west of Sheffield in Pecos County.

According to the Department of Public Safety, Emal Malin, 87, was pronounced dead at the scene at 8:45 p.m.

The accident occurred on a private road. Malin reportedly stumbled and fell under the rear trailer axle of the tractor-trailer being driven by Jackie Lynn Harper of Iraan.

The body was taken to Sheppard Funeral Home in McCamey.

Local ballots are completed

By SUSAN TOTH
Staff Writer

A rash of last-day filings Monday filled out the ballots on nine Midland County races going before voters in the May 3 party primaries.

Republican Party Chairman Bill Shaner, noting this might be the largest Republican slate ever offered in Midland County, said he was pleased with the candidate turnout in both parties. "We have a respectable number of people who've decided to offer themselves for public service in both parties," he added. "And that's the way it's supposed to work in a two-party system."

Democratic Chairman Darrell Smith agreed, adding "it looks like a good year for both parties."

Democrat Pat Baskin Sr. picked up a Republican opponent for the 142nd District Court bench being vacated for the first time since 1954 by Judge Perry Pickett. Pickett announced he would not seek re-election. Jay H. "Timber" Floyd Jr. filed Monday for the Republican nomination to the post.

Neither Baskin nor Floyd has an opponent in his party's primary.

District Attorney Vern Martin will run unopposed in the Republican primary and has no Democratic opponent for the Nov. 4 general election.

Sheriff Dallas Smith has no opposition in the Republican primary for his second term in office, but will face Midland Police Sgt. Joe W. Carr, who is unopposed in the Democratic primary, in the November general election.

Both county commissioners whose terms end this year have filed for re-election. Precinct 1 Commissioner Durward Wright will not be opposed in the Democratic primary, but Precinct 3 Commissioner Jack Leonard picked up a last minute opponent Monday for his renomination bid. C. DeWayne Davis filed for the position in the Democratic party primary Monday.

Each place has attracted at least one Republican opponent.

Jeff Barber has filed for the Precinct 1 position in the Republican primary. Three candidates will try for the Precinct 3 GOP nomination. J.R. Harris joined Gordon W. Casbeer and Alexandra Morris Monday in the primary race for the spot.

While incumbent County Attorney Leslie Acker has said he will not seek a second term this year, two Republicans will vie for his position. Robert Rendall, an assistant county attorney, and Richard Moore, an assistant district attorney, have each filed for the Republican nomination. No Democratic candidate filed for the position.

The Justice of the Peace, Place 1, Precinct 1 post drew three Republican contestants Monday. Charles Sprayberry, A.L. Sisk and Luis B. Salinas filed with party officials for the GOP nomination Monday. Incumbent John Biggs had already filed for a sixth term and will be challenged by fellow Democrat Leroy Stewart.

Three candidates have thrown their hats in the ring for the job of county constable being vacated for the first time in 24 years by incumbent Jack Morrill, who announced he will retire at the end of his current term.

Charlie Jones and Odell Smith filed as Democratic candidates for the office while Thomas McGinnis, who is unopposed in his primary, will carry the Republican banner in the November general election.

Another longtime courthouse employee, County Tax Assessor Collector Elmo Lineberger, also will end his tenure this year. The only candidate for his position is his chief deputy, Frances M. Shuffield, who has filed as a Republican.

Lineberger has been county assessor-collector since 1965.

Kennedy's primary role drawing Carter debate

By DAVID ESPO

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy is still trying to goad President Carter out of the White House and into the campaign, but Vice President Walter F. Mondale contends the voters want him in Washington and at work.

Kennedy tried a couple of new plays Monday.

First, he accepted invitations to 35 debates in 22 states — on the condition that Carter come, too.

Then he waved an invitation to the White House at a campaign rally in Concord, N.H., saying, "I didn't get this, but 300 citizens of New Hampshire did."

istans, was represented Monday by Mondale in Portland, Maine.

The vice president said campaign issues are being debated despite Carter's absence and added, "We have only one president of the United States. We've got this crisis, and I am convinced that at this time, the American people much prefer having their president in Washington, working around the clock on these issues, than they do having him deliver an additional campaign speech."

The vice president was moving on to New Hampshire for more campaigning today.

Kennedy, vying with Carter for the Democratic presidential nomination, says the president devotes plenty of time to campaigning, but does it all by telephone from the White House.

And he continues his effort to press Carter into debate.

In identical letters, Kennedy told those issuing the latest flood of debate invitations that "I am ready to accept them all if the president will do the same. But until Mr. Carter shows his willingness to defend his policies in joint encounters, the Democratic debates cannot take place."

With the Maine caucuses scheduled Sunday, Kennedy and the third man in the Democratic race, California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., arranged to campaign there today.

While Democrats debated their debateless campaign, a crowd of Republicans courted New Hampshire voters, churning criticism of the administration.

Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan was staging a nine-town campaign swing today — the eve of his 69th birthday.

At a Monday night campaign rally, a turnout of perhaps 100 people sang "Happy Birthday" while Reagan beamed.

He said all the discussion of his age didn't bother him a bit.

Reagan said New Hampshire is "a very important state" to him, but avoided calling a victory here essential to his campaign. He said no one state is a make-or-break test.

Former United Nations Ambassador George Bush, who beat Reagan in Iowa's Republican caucuses Jan. 21, said he came to New Hampshire to do it again.

"My main objective is to beat Reagan," he said. "He was clearly out in front and he's the man I must beat."

Bush's triumph in Iowa came in a non-binding straw poll.

He placed a distant third Saturday, behind front-running Reagan and Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee, as Arkansas Republicans selected 12 of their 19 delegates to the Republican National Convention.

After a 14-hour campaign day Monday, Bush wound up before a crowd of 1,100 at Plymouth State College reiterating his contention that he won't make phony promises to get votes.

"Jimmy Carter ruined the campaign promise business for everyone," he said.

Carter, who has not been campaigning on grounds he must devote his time to world problems in Iran and Afghan-

Ninth congressman involved?

By MICHAEL J. SNIFFEN

WASHINGTON — A source close to the FBI's 14-month investigation of political corruption says a ninth member of Congress may be involved in the case.

But this source, who asked not to be named, said that at this time the ninth member does not appear to be the subject of further scrutiny, unlike the seven House members and one senator whose names became public over the weekend. They remain subject to possible grand jury action.

Meantime, House ethics committee members voted in closed session Monday to hire a special counsel to lead their independent inquiry into the case. And the Senate ethics committee chairman informally asked the Justice Department for help with that panel's own investigation.

Department officials said they would await a written request for aid before responding.

Details of the possible involvement of a ninth member could not be learned.

Declining to identify the ninth member, the source nevertheless emphasized that only one member of Congress who met with FBI undercover agents, Sen. Larry Pressler, R-S.D., has been cleared by the government. Sources have reported that Pressler stormed out of a meeting with undercover agents when it was indicated they represented a client willing to pay for political favors.

The source also denied that the ninth member was among three New Jersey congressmen who told reporters Monday they had rejected overtures last year similar to those made during the FBI undercover investigation. Those three were Reps. James Howard, William Hughes and James Florio, all Democrats.

Howard and Hughes said they called the FBI Monday to discuss the overtures. Florio said he did not do that because he felt the FBI already knew of unsuccessful attempts to strike a deal with him.

Howard issued a statement describing what he called "an effort a few months ago by so-called Arab sheiks to set up a meeting with me in regard to their investing money in New Jersey."

Without identifying who approached him, Howard said the possibility of campaign contributions was raised and he rejected the scheme.

Hughes said, "I received a call from an individual who identified himself as Joseph Silvestri and proceeded to tell me in general terms that his group was interested in investing hundreds of millions of dollars and would be very appreciative of any help I could give."

"I just didn't like what I smelled," Hughes continued, adding that the man never showed up for a scheduled meeting.

Florio said a man named Joseph Silvestri visited his office Nov. 7 and said he represented Arabs with a lot of money to invest in Atlantic City. "He said they wanted friends in Congress and would like me to meet with them," Florio said. "I told him I had no interest in becoming involved with him or his Arab friends."

Sources have said the undercover men posed as aides to a wealthy Arab sheik willing to buy favors. The New York Times has reported that a man named Joseph Silvestri was instrumental in implicating a New Jersey state senator.

SHEINWOLD ON BRIDGE

Holding Your Breath

By Alfred Sheinwold

After January 1, 2000, we are told, all suits will break favorably. If you can't hold your breath that long learn to cope with unfavorable breaks.

If you could wait 20 years you'd draw trumps and lead two rounds of diamonds. The missing diamonds would drop, and you'd be home.

This wouldn't work in 1980. You'd lose two diamonds when the suit breaks unfavorably.

Today you should take the ace of hearts, ruff a heart, draw trumps, cash the high clubs and ruff a club.

LEAD DIAMOND

Now lead a diamond. You plan to play low if West puts up an honor, but to put in the nine if West plays low.

If diamonds break well, losing the first diamond is just as good as losing the second. If the diamonds break 3-1 you are delighted to lose the first diamond to a singleton.

Today's East must win with the singleton queen of diamonds. He must return a club or a heart, and you can ruff while dummy discards the last losing diamond.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner bids two notrump (22 to 24 points), and you bid three hearts. Partner bids three notrump, and the opponents continue to pass. You

Don't sell the grain

The potential impact of the United States' grain embargo against the Soviet Union in retaliation for the invasion of Afghanistan has drawn considerable comment from various quarters ever since it was put into effect.

Some analysts have said the Soviets will feel the pinch of the grain embargo. Some have said the embargo will be somewhat effective, but could be more effective with the cooperation of other governments.

Some groups, including many American farmers, have indicated that, perhaps, the grain embargo will prove counterproductive because of economic hardship it will create here at home.

That all goes without saying. There's little doubt the embargo will have an impact on the American economy. We have curtailed a portion of our grain sales which means, in effect, we will not have a portion of our anticipated income coming in.

It is unfortunate that the American farmer, whose income has been declining in recent years anyway, will suffer more than other sectors of the population, at least initially, as a result of the embargo.

But as President Carter noted, in light of the Soviet aggression in Afghanistan we cannot expect to continue "business as usual" with the Soviet Union.

Other analysts also noted recently that embargoes used in the past against other nations — in the tradition of fighting with bread instead of bullets — have proven only minimally successful.

Still, there is a glimmer of hope that the Soviets truly may be feeling the pinch created by expected to be created by the U.S. grain embargo.

Just the other day a news report indicated that the Soviets are urgently attempting to buy fertilizer ingredients from South Africa and they're willing to pay more than $100 a ton above market prices for the materials.

There also is a notation that South Africa may be considering taking the Soviets up on the proposal.

That would indeed be foolish — even if the United States was not one of the nations involved in the grain embargo against the Soviet Union at the current time.

More than 20 years ago South Africa broke relations with the Soviet Union, claiming the Soviets were helping to train and supply black nationalists seeking to overthrow the Pretoria government.

For years now reports have indicated that the Soviets were involved in "proxy" activities adding to the turmoil in South Africa and other Dark Continent states.

Since their break in relations the Soviet Union and South Africa have been involved in some limited unofficial transactions involving diamonds and Rhodesian chrome.

But it does seem strange that South Africa would now consider selling fertilizer materials — obviously intended to be used in growing grain — to the Soviet Union which apparently has been heavily involved in fueling the fires of turmoil and racial strife in that part of the world.

South Africa should let the Russians suffer a little and perhaps the Kremlin would learn to keep its meddling nose out of Afghanistan and other countries.

U.S. armed forces not ready to fight

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Jimmy Carter's saber-rattling in the Middle East has sent a shudder through the Pentagon. The brass hats know better than anyone what a disaster would result if the Russians called Carter's bluff on protection of the Persian Gulf.

The stark truth is that our armed forces are simply not ready for combat, despite the billions that have been lavished on the defense establishment.

According to classified Pentagon reports, only one-third to one-half of our armed forces would be ready to fight at any given moment. Only 13 percent of some of our most sophisticated fighter planes are in a state of combat readiness.

"Many units could not sustain combat for more than a few days because of maintenance problems and munitions and spare parts shortages," one report warns.

Though the Pentagon has been studying the problem for several years, there has been little sign of improvement. The NATO exercises last fall showed our troops were no more prepared for combat than they were three years earlier, sources told my associate Peter Grant.

The reason for our shocking state of unreadiness, insiders say, is the obsession of Pentagon planners and defense contractors with super-sophisticated technological gimmicks designed to improve the performance of our weaponry. The fancy frills on our aircraft, for example, make them far more susceptible to breakdown than the simpler planes in the Soviet air force.

"Soviet fighter design philosophy emphasizes simplicity, reliability and minimum cost," states a secret Defense Intelligence Agency analysis. As a result, "the Warsaw Pact air forces are maintained at a high state of material readiness in peacetime."

What's worse is that high performance doesn't necessarily mean effectiveness in combat. As one congressional critic pointed out, the Pentagon spent hundreds of millions of dollars to develop a fighter plane that can fly two-and-one-half times the speed of sound.

"But there are only a few times you would need to go that fast in a combat situation," he said. "You've used all your fuel to get there. There's nothing to do but go home."

A recent classified General Accounting Office internal analysis concludes that "physical size and numbers of opposing aircraft dominate the outcome of air battles, not the sophistication of airborne radars and missiles...The almost religious faith that technical performance and complexity can be equated to military usefulness is not based on any supportable evidence."

For example, simulated battles conducted by the Air Force demonstrated that our fanciest fighters, the F-15s and F-16s, frequently lost out in encounters with the relatively bareboned F-5s. The F-5 pilots were able to neutralize the super-sophisticated planes' costly equipment with simple devices.

The expensive military toys are favored by Pentagon bureaucrats and defense contractors, who "totally dominate the (procurement) process," the GAO adds. The reason seems to be that "it is easier to define and measure" performance than actual effectiveness, the report explains.

The result of our brass hats' fascination with gimmickry is that weapons sometimes take as long as 20 years to get from the drawing board to the front line. The paperwork is staggering.

"The contract and specifications for the Wright Brothers' airplane was a one-page work statement," the GAO analysis notes. "Just a contract proposal now is often 15,000 to 20,000 pages."

LATE SHOW — House Speaker Tip O'Neill enjoyed one of the more pleasant perks of his high office the other day when he got to meet Sophia Loren at the White House. The Italian film lovely was representing the National Alliance for the Prevention and Treatment of Child Abuse.

O'Neill complimented Loren on her sultry beauty, and the movie star found something polite to say about the rumped, white-maned congressman. The bearded Speaker confessed that he wasn't used to running on his looks, and then admitted apologetically that he didn't go to the movies much. But if Loren was in "The Bridge on the River Kwai," he said, he had seen her.

READY?...TOO LATE! — When the CIA, the Defense Intelligence Agency and the Air Force's own intelligence branch testify on Capitol Hill, each paints a different picture of the Soviet threat. Congressional sources say the Air Force is easily the most alarmist.

As one staff aide put it: "The CIA will say the Russians are about to come. DIA will say they're on their way. And Air Force intelligence will say they're already here."

EARLY WARNING — The State Department has warned American foreign service personnel in Moscow to be on the alert. Bombing of the Soviet mission to the United Nations late last year and the subsequent "bombing" of the Soviet airline office in New York may bring retaliation against Americans in Russia, the department warned.

Even though the bombings were done by anti-government militants, the Kremlin usually purports to believe that such actions are condoned by the U.S. government.

CHARLEY REESE Declining military strength shouldn't surprise anyone

Charley Reese

ORLANDO, Fla. — If you are one of those Americans who's surprised by: (1) the aggression and nastiness of the Soviet Union, and (2) the relative weakness of the U.S. military posture, then you should write your congressman.

Ask him to investigate two areas where the public's right to know has been seriously impaired. One of these is the practice of muzzling the military and the other is the unfair application of the Federal Communications Commission's fairness doctrine.

Both originated in the Kennedy administration. Back in 1961, Walter Reuther, UAW president, and his brother, Victor, called on Attorney General Robert Kennedy. Like most socialists, the Reuthers feared anti-communists more than communists. They had some suggestions on how the new administration should deal with the rising tide of conservatism.

Asked to put them in writing, the Reuthers complied and produced a 24-page memorandum. It suggested: (1) the military be muzzled; (2) that what they called radical right organizations be put on the subversives list; (3) the IRS investigate tax-exempt conservative groups; (4) the FCC be used against stations which carried conservative broadcasts, and (5) that J. Edgar Hoover's activities be curbed.

Liberals who had seizures of self-righteousness during Watergate are understandably not fond of recalling the Kennedy brothers' mis-use of the government, but, sorry, Virginia, the only difference between Watergate and Camelot is the different attitude on the part of a Democratic Congress and Kennedy-loving Washington Post.

To this day, military officers have been muzzled. The valid doctrine of military obedience to civilian rule was extended to mean that the nation's armed forces would no longer talk about the nastiness of the Soviet Union or speak too loudly, even to the Congress, of facts that would cause anyone to question the political line adopted by the politicians.

This is wrong. While the president is the commander in chief of the armed forces, the Constitution explicitly places the responsibility for national defense on the Congress. Therefore, the Congress is entitled to hear the unbiased, non-political professional opinion of the military officers whether the president agrees or not.

Under the present system, political appointees, public relations specialists, and bureaucrats in the Office of Management and Budget make strategic and defense decisions and the professional soldiers are coerced into supporting them. This deprives the Congress and the American people of the wise counsel of men who have spent their lives becoming specialists.

Furthermore, the military people are citizens who swear an oath to defend the Constitution, not of supine obedience to whichever politician happens to be in the White House. It's bad policy to force a man to choose between telling the truth and his career.

If the commander in chief orders troops out of South Korea, they should leave, but if their officers think it is unwise, they should be free to say so because they work for us, the American people, and we are entitled to hear their opinion so that we may judge for ourselves not only whether it's a wise or unwise move but also how well our other employee, the president, is performing his job.

Stifling all dissent within the government is just a bald attempt to manipulate public opinion.

As for the FCC fairness doctrine, it is used to stifle information in this manner. The networks simply refuse to sell time to people who wish to advocate a point of view. Their excuse is that the fairness doctrine would compel them to provide equal time, possibly free, to opponents. Then, they add that public issues are covered fairly in the newscasts which are exempt from the fairness doctrine.

What this amounts to is a license to censor under the guise of news judgment. As study after study has shown, public issues are covered neither fairly nor thoroughly by the network news departments.

Dr. Ernest Lefever made a detailed study of CBS news coverage on defense issues for 1972 and 1973. What he discovered was that it was the news judgment of CBS during those two years that warnings of declining American strength and rising Soviet power were "not news" while racial incidents, drug abuse, and calls for decreasing military spending were "news."

There is a common sense solution. Let the network sell time to advocates and if other advocates disagree, let the networks sell them time at the same rate. This is already the policy of newspapers and the broadcast media should be compelled to adopt it.

In a free society, the goal should always be to encourage the widest distribution of the maximum amount of information and opinions. Certainly, we should demand this of government.

There is no valid excuse for even one citizen being surprised by the state of the nation's defenses or by the nature of its enemies.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Tuesday, Feb 5, the 36th day of 1980. There are 330 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:
 On Feb. 5, 1976, almost 23,000 people died in an earthquake in Guatemala.

On this date:
 In 1811, the insanity of King George III prompted the British Regency Act, whereby the Prince of Wales became prince regent.
 In 1945, American troops under General Douglas MacArthur entered Manila.
 In 1971, the Apollo 14 crew landed on the moon.
 In 1979, thousands of farmers drove their tractors into Washington, snarling the capital's traffic and demonstrating for better farm legislation.

Ten years ago, Sen. Fred Harris of Oklahoma was about to resign as chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

Five years ago, President Gerald Ford urged Congress to reconsider its cutoff of military aid to Turkey.

Last year, the Ayatollah Khomeini named Mehdi Bazargan as Iran's provisional revolutionary prime minister.

Today's birthdays: Former baseball great Hank Aaron is 46. Newspaper publisher Arthur Ochs Sulzberger is 51.

INSIDE REPORT:

Return to Geneva is a low mark for U.S. credibility

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

Evans

Novak

WASHINGTON — An oral directive to proceed at a new "slow pace" on negotiations with the Soviet Union to ban all nuclear tests has been converted into full speed ahead by administration arms controllers, raising new questions about the president's post-Afghanistan sincerity and confusing U.S. allies.

The decision to move along as usual with the Geneva-based comprehensive test ban talks, recessed Dec. 5 before the Soviet takeover of Afghanistan, is the result of strong pressure from the State Department and Arms Control and Disarmament Agency (ACDA). That pressure first diluted, then destroyed the cautious approach advocated by National Security and Pentagon advisers.

The new Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty (SALT II) has been placed on a Senate shelf. The export of American grain and technology has been sharply limited. The U.S. is thumping its nose at the summer Olympics in Moscow. So presidential advisers saw no reason to make a business-as-usual exception for the comprehensive nuclear test-ban talks. Hence the "slow pace" verbal order from a National Security Council staffer to the bureaucrats running the test-ban talks.

But that directive did not survive long in the State Department and ACDA. Bureaucrats there have watched in agony as their favorite projects ("their bread and butter," one official said) have been singed by Carter's reaction to Soviet conduct.

So on Jan. 6 the State Department cabled to its foreign embassies: "We will pursue (the total nuclear test ban treaty) despite the deterioration in U.S.-Soviet relations." That means full speed ahead, with the U.S. negotiating team now ready to leave for Geneva in time to reconvene the talks Feb. 4, the day that had been set at the time of the Christmas recess.

Doubt about Carter's true purpose is compounded when his left hand quietly signals business as usual while his right hand is making punishing gestures out in public against the Kremlin. It is precisely this appearance of contradiction that makes it almost impossible for U.S. allies in Europe and Japan to divine whether the post-Afghanistan Carter is truly a new Carter or just the same old Jimmy wearing election-year hawk's clothing.

Some of the problems with the decision to move ahead with the comprehensive test ban are admittedly endemic. The Joint Chiefs of Staff, for example, have never wanted a complete ban on all testing. They succeeded in reducing the administration's original plan to a three-year treaty, not the five years Carter wanted or, as Moscow wants, a treaty with no time limit.

But the treaty poses other dilemmas for the U.S. growing directly out of the undisguised Soviet drive to build, flex and use its military muscles. For one conspicuous example, the U.S. has persuaded its NATO allies to proceed with a major new weapons program designed to modernize the NATO nuclear force. The total nuclear test ban treaty being negotiated at Geneva would create a nightmare for U.S. scientists and nuclear engineers if weapons testing becomes illegal. The new nuclear warheads to be placed in Western Europe could not be tested.

By the same token, the president's decision to go ahead with the MX missile, a mobile system calculated to preserve America's land-based intercontinental missiles from Soviet destruction, also will require extensive testing of warheads. Lacking that, warheads will have to be drawn from existing stockpiles.

Indeed, an Alice-in-Wonderland mentality pervades the decision to go back to the test-ban table with the Russians at this particular time. If agreement were reached by a sudden twist in Soviet policy that permitted the U.S. to place seismic verification stations on Soviet soil — to enforce compliance — the U.S. would find itself sealed in to an agreement that would deny any way to assure the reliability of new nuclear weapons. Nor would the U.S. know for sure, even with on-site inspection, that the Soviets were not cheating.

That became disconcertingly clear when American nuclear scientists were unable positively to identify the source of a strange, nuclear-like explosion that lit the skies in the South Atlantic Ocean on Sept. 22. Some nuclear experts are certain the brilliant flash was an atmospheric test explosion; others are not certain. Such uncertainty casts a new cloud over the validity of all test bans — atmospheric or underground — and counsels new negotiating caution.

The more compelling need for caution is to prove that Carter's new enlightened look at the Russians is real, not political. On that score the return to Geneva is a low mark for credibility.

Services will be at 4 p.m. Wednesday in the First Christian Church with the Rev. Steve Edwards officiating.

Burial will be in Fairview Cemetery directed by Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home.

Robinson was born Feb. 5, 1904, in Baird. He moved to Midland in 1968 from New Mexico.

He was a member of the Baptist Church in Welch, the Eagles Lodge in Midland and Odessa and the Petroleum Pioneers Club.

Survivors include his wife, Willie Eugene; a son, Tommie Robinson of Cuba, N.M.; two daughters, Leta Richardson of Midland and Bobby Hassard of Hobbs, N.M.

He died Sunday in a Big Spring hospital.

Survivors include a daughter, Mary Kieper of Winnstead, Minn.; two sons, Wiley Madewell Sr. of Big Spring and Don Madewell of Lubbock; his mother, Ima Madewell of Big Spring; and seven grandchildren.

Services for Edna Hazel Kee, 70, 4612 Mercedes Drive, will be at 2 p.m. Wednesday in the First Assembly of God Church with the Rev. Homer Tarkington of the First Assembly of God Church of Plains officiating, assisted by Raymond Shaffer.

Burial will be in Resthaven Memorial Park directed by Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home.

She died Sunday in a Midland nursing home following a lengthy illness.

Pallbearers will be Eldon Kee, Charles Tapley, Louis Phelps, Bertis Diamond, Jerry Mathews, Ed Carroll, Walter Jobe and Henry Starr.

Survivors include a stepdaughter, Fay McClure of Big Spring; a stepson, Odis Burnett of Big Spring; six brothers, O.L. Russell of Seattle, Wash., Pink Russell of Louisiana, O.D. Nolin of Tatum, Joe High of Breckenridge, Ted Russell of Yakima, Wash., and Ray Lee of Cheyenne, Wyo.; and six sisters, Mrs. D.C. (Lucille) Stapp of Breckenridge, Joyce Burlton of Wichita Falls, Georgia Russell, Faye Page and Francis Russell, addresses unknown, and May Perkins of Olathe, Kansas.

Services for Roy Russell, 62, of Big Spring, were to be at 10 a.m. today in Mount Olive Memorial Park directed by Halley-Pickle Funeral Home.

He died Saturday at his home after an illness.

Russell was born July 23, 1917, in Rhine, Okla.

Survivors include a stepdaughter, Fay McClure of Big Spring; a stepson, Odis Burnett of Big Spring; six brothers, O.L. Russell of Seattle, Wash., Pink Russell of Louisiana, O.D. Nolin of Tatum, Joe High of Breckenridge, Ted Russell of Yakima, Wash., and Ray Lee of Cheyenne, Wyo.; and six sisters, Mrs. D.C. (Lucille) Stapp of Breckenridge, Joyce Burlton of Wichita Falls, Georgia Russell, Faye Page and Francis Russell, addresses unknown, and May Perkins of Olathe, Kansas.

Services for Benito Barrera, 40, and his daughter, Susana Barrera, 18, both of Andrews, were to be at 3 p.m. today in Our Lady of Lourdes Catholic Church here with burial in Andrews Cemetery directed by Singleton Funeral Home.

They died Saturday in an automobile accident south of Crane.

Barrera was born Jan. 20, 1940, in Sanderson and was married to Juliana Lopez Feb. 12, 1958, in Pecos. He was a Catholic and was employed in the production department of Kirby West in Andrews where he had lived for six years.

Chevron energy report:

In 1979, Chevron made a nickel on a sales dollar.

But, most people think we made ten times that much.

A recent independent nationwide survey found that people believe, on the average, that oil company profits are about 57¢ on each sales dollar. That just isn't the case.

Actually, Chevron's 1979 profit on each dollar of U.S. petroleum sales was 5.1¢—about a nickel. Worldwide it was 5.3¢. (This compares to a 9-month average of 5.6¢ for all other major U.S. industries.)

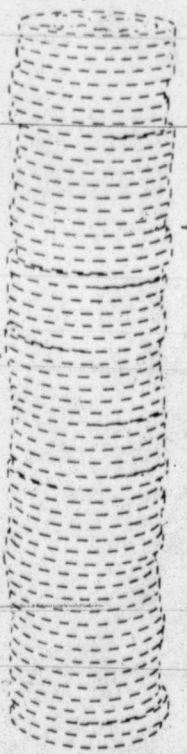

Part of Chevron's profit, of course, went back to our shareholders. The remaining profit and other cash from operations provided the funds for Chevron's expenditures in such areas as exploration and development of oil and gas fields, refineries, and transportation facilities.

In the U.S., these Chevron expenditures were equivalent to 10.7¢ per dollar of U.S. petroleum sales, more than double our U.S. profit.

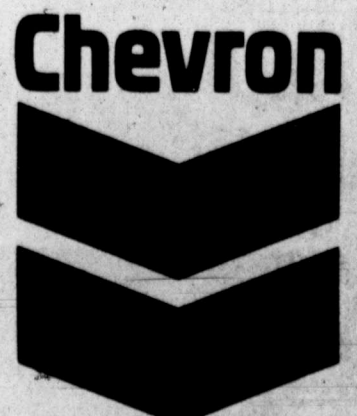

Thank you for listening.

57¢ What most people think is oil company profit on a sales dollar, after taxes.*

5.1¢ Actual 1979 Chevron U.S. profit on a sales dollar, after taxes.

Case being set in five deaths, say detectives

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — The case against a "scrawny looking" man, arrested after a barroom full of people was sprayed with bullets, was being prepared for a grand jury today, police said.

Detectives said they were gathering evidence in the case of Barry Chvarak, arrested after five tavern patrons were killed and three others were wounded just after "last call" early Sunday.

Officers said Monday they plan to present the case to the grand jury when it meets here Thursday.

One of the wounded, 19-year-old Leon Sell, said a man walked by his table and said "Hi" to the girls sitting there. Sell said the man walked out, returned "and the shooting began."

"It was like pow, pow, pow, pow," said Sell, who was shot in the chin.

He said a woman at a table five feet away "was hit in the forehead, right between the eyes."

Police said they believed Chvarak was drunk when he was arrested after being subdued by several customers at the club, described as a "cowboy bar."

Roger Dean Miller said he hit the gunman in the head with a pool stick after the man stood several steps inside the door and fired about 12 shots randomly with a .22-caliber semi-automatic rifle.

Fluoride rinsing good in tooth decay prevention

EDITOR'S NOTE: The 32nd annual National Children's Dental Health Week is being observed this week. As part of the week's activities, The Midland Reporter-Telegram, in cooperation with the Permian Basin Hygienists' Study Group, is publishing six articles on dental health. This is the third in a series.

Thousands of children across the country are participating in these fluoride mouth rinsing programs. The benefits from rinsing with a dilute solution of neutral sodium fluoride have been demonstrated repeatedly by research conducted over the past 10 years. Such studies have shown an approximate 35 percent reduction in tooth decay.

QUESTION: Our seven-year-old recently brought home a form for us to sign permitting him to participate in a school fluoride mouth rinse program. Just what is involved in such a program?

ANSWER: Fluoride is by far the most effective agent known to prevent tooth decay. Persons who drink fluoridated water from birth onward have up to 65 percent fewer cavities than they ordinarily would. However, communities which do not have fluoride in the public water system can protect children's teeth by instituting a fluoride rinse program in the schools.

The actual classroom procedure involves giving every child a disposable paper cup containing a solution of 0.2 percent neutral sodium fluoride. The teacher instructs the children on how to rinse, including how to swish the solution between the teeth. The children are timed for 60 seconds, after which they expectorate the solution into the paper cups which are thrown away.

DEAR ABBY

Stamp out your woes

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: From time to time I read complaints from readers insisting that you didn't answer their letters, even though they sent self-addressed, stamped envelopes.

Well, I have written to you several times, and I have ALWAYS received a prompt, personal and very helpful reply.

DEAR ABBY: I never disclose the writer's name or location without his consent. (Some suggest their own "phony" names; some are dreamed up by me.) Their locations are also changed in the interest of privacy, and to protect the innocent as well as the guilty.

Some published letters must be edited for clarity and length, but I do not alter the contents.

Our newspaper seldom prints your address, so I write in care of the newspaper.

Doesn't it ever occur to people that once in a while the mailman goof ups? Many times honest neighbors will bring us our mail which has been placed in their box by mistake!

Abby, please print your address. I'm sure your readers would appreciate it. — BELIEVES IN YOU IN PA.

There is no charge for a personal reply, but I am NOT obligated to answer letters unless they are accompanied by a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

If you have a personal problem and need my help, write to me. I care.

DEAR BELIEVES: Thanks, I needed that. My address is:

132 LASKY DRIVE
BEVERLY HILLS, CALIF. 90212

Now, for some ground rules:
Unlike "Letters to the Editor," you need not sign your name in order to have your letter answered in my column. But because I receive thousands of letters each week, the chances of being answered in the column are small. However EVERY letter ac-

DEAR CONCERNED: Encourage your wife to get some professional counseling. She needs to learn how to handle the obvious rejection she is getting from her son. I suspect that there is another side to this sad story.

DEAR ABBY: A recent column regarding the son who didn't want his father to visit him because he considered it an invasion of his privacy, struck home with us. We have a similar situation in that our married son, who lives in another city, doesn't want his mother to visit him for the same reason.

Three years ago my wife wrote to our son saying she would like to visit him and his wife. His response was out of this world! He told her in no uncertain terms that she could visit them only when it was convenient for HIM. The tone of his letter caused considerable anguish, and my wife was in tears for several days.

My wife has written him several times, asking when it would be convenient for her to visit, but he keeps putting her off with one excuse after another. Surely in three years there should have been one week for her to visit!

Our son has no use for me, so I stay out of his way, however, I feel very sorry for my wife.

Personally, I don't care if I never see the selfish guy again, but his mother is hurting.

What should I do? — CONCERNED IN CALIF.

AT WIT'S END

Hard to buy for

By ERMA BOMBECK

It's hard to remember when my husband and I became "hard to buy for."

One day we were getting underwear and books and the next we were getting cats in tennis shoes, little monkeys that danced themselves off the table, and a kangaroo with string coming out of his navel.

There doesn't seem to be an end to all the cleverness. We have fought through tissue only to find a best-selling book printed on toilet paper, an Elvis statue that revolves and plays "Love Me Tender," and a swizzle stick of a girl who, when submerged in a drink, loses her outer layer of clothes.

The first time one of my children bought me a whale pillow with varying sizes of fish down his throat that you could pull out until you got to Jonah, he said, "You don't have one, do you?"

I assured him I didn't.

Then he said, "I wanted to get you something you wouldn't buy for yourself."

I assured him I wouldn't.

He took that as a sign of enthusiasm and ever since then I have received nothing from him that has not lived in the sea.

There are octopus finger puppets, ashtrays made of shells (we don't smoke), coral toothbrush holders, and a shark's mouth with a hook in it that holds your car keys.

A walk through our house is like a trip to the zoo. Animals tend to drift in and out of public favor. We've gone from adorable alligators (who crack nuts) to cute bears, to performing monkeys, to winsome unicorns, to regal reindeer, to lovable mice, to grinning cats. This year it was pigs.

We have wooden pig cutting boards, ceramic pigs that hold salt and pepper, pigs in groups that play instruments, glass pigs shaped like pitchers, pigs shaped like pencils, pigs that hold cookies and grow plants, and corn husk pigs that have a Christmas wreath around their necks — not to mention painted pigs that hold hands around the shower curtain.

My husband and I have discussed this. We don't know when we appeared to our children to have everything in this world — except something to dust. One theory is they figured we're too old to be anything but spectators. Another is in the few precious years left, we should lose our practicality and play it for laughs.

My birthday is in two weeks. I NEED a black evening handbag.

It'll be shaped like a pig.

Stock sleuth swamped with certificate inquiries

SKOKIE, Ill. (AP) — To hundreds of people across the country, Jack Lewin is the man who can turn a dusty piece of paper into a fortune. Lewin, 67, is in a unique business — tracing the history and value of old stock certificates. Last month, Lewin gained national attention after tracking down a stock certificate lost for decades. It was worth about $4 million.

Since then, he has been swamped with letters and phone calls from people who have found old stock certificates in attics or rusty safes. It's the slim chance of a windfall that leads people to Lewin. For $15, he will check the certificate and send the owner a report on its history and possible value.

"They have these certificates, but they don't know where to turn," Lewin said in an interview. "They don't think it's possible (to check them out)." Few harbor real hope of fortunes.

"I fully expect that my certificates are worthless," said Herschel Hutsiniller from his home in Lawrenceville, N.J. "I just want to be sure before I burn them."

Hutsiniller, a retired Army officer, said he found the certificates among papers that belonged to his father. He said they appear to be shares in gold and silver mining firms, dating from the early 1900s.

The certificates gathered dust until the combination of soaring gold prices and a news story about Lewin's $4 million discovery jogged Hutsiniller's memory.

News of Lewin's find also sparked the curiosity of Charles Thomason, a retired salesman. He dug out a mining stock certificate he had found years earlier among the belongings of a deceased relative.

Thomason said the certificate was issued by a silver mining firm and appears to be "at least 50 or 60 years old." That's all he knew, so he turned to Lewin.

"We're hopeful that something comes of it," said Thomason, interviewed by telephone at his home in Decatur, Ga. "But we wouldn't be too disappointed if they're not worth a cent. We're more curious than anything else."

To answer inquiries, Lewin uses some sources available in a public library, such as back issues of corporate directories. For older and more obscure stocks and bonds, he depends on a network of private financial libraries and sources cultivated during 13 years of financial sleuthing.

Danna Szuba, bookkeeper at Midland "66", is shown with a display of the new X/C aviation oil, Multiviscosity SAE 20w-50. This new, but fully-tested, aviation oil for year 'round dependable and long-lasting service is available at Midland "66", 1612 Garden City Highway.

Phillips '66' introduces aviation oil SAE 20w-50

Introducing another Phillips first — X/C Aviation Multi-viscosity Oil, SAE 20w-50. A new approach to additive type aviation oil which offers greatly improved cold temperature starting, with quick lubrication plus a full body oil for high temperature, high load operation.

This new oil has been tested and approved by Teledyne Continental Motors, Specification MHS-24B and Lycoming Specification 301F. The additive treatment package meets MIL-L-22851 B, Amendment 1.

X/C Aviation Multi-viscosity Oil, SAE 20w-50, can be mixed safely with other petroleum base, mineral or additive type, aviation oils, but many of the advantages of this oil will be diluted by mixing. X/C Oil has all the fine benefits of the Type A Aviation Oil, plus the now available multi-viscosity benefits. It is the preferred lubricant for all piston aircraft engines, both opposed and radial types.

This oil is formulated to minimize deposit-induced preignition and spark plug fouling. It prevents troublesome deposits in the crankcase, rocker box and on pistons.

This oil is NOT for use in automobile engines.

X/C Aviation Multi-viscosity Oil, SAE 20w-50, is available in 55-gallon drums of the newly designed 24/1 quarts. Both are at Midland "66" Oil Co., 1612 Garden City Highway.

Marine Midland Bank's bid for federal charter approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — Marine Midland Bank's bid for a federal charter has been approved by the Comptroller of the Currency, easing the way for the $314 million takeover of the Buffalo, N.Y., institution by a Hong Kong-based bank.

"The Office of the Comptroller of the Currency finds that regardless of whether the proposed acquisition is consummated, there are no grounds for disapproval of the application, and Marine Midland Bank is entitled to convert to a national bank," Comptroller John G. Heimann said Monday.

Heimann said the bank "if the proposed acquisition should be consummated," seeking to acquire 51 percent interest in Marine Midland Chair-rine Midland, has the "financial and managerial" resources to serve as a comptroller's decision.

Former officer sues RNB

DALLAS (AP) — A former bank vice president who contends she was unjustly fired after a dispute with her superior has joined a five-year-old sex and race discrimination lawsuit against Republic National Bank of Dallas.

Joan Kelley, 41, asked U.S. District Judge Patrick Higginbotham to reinstate her until he rules on the discrimination case. She is the highest-ranking employee or ex-employee involved in the suit.

The judge said last November that he hopes to issue a ruling in the case sometime in March.

The lawsuit could cost Republic as much as $50 million in damages.

Farming filled with risks, chances

As risky as farming is, it's far more than a hit-or-miss proposition.

Farming, like ranching, depends on well thought-out risks, planning, and budgeting for a "go at it."

Still, it's plagued by a gambler's run of luck — good and bad — and has about as many variables as the combination of dots on a pair of dice.

"No telling what the grasshoppers are going to do this year," Marc Traweck said of the unknown.

That's just one variable out of umpteen, including the pesky boll weevil, the blowing sand, the buggy little nematodes, the fickle weather and rain, highly uncertain price of fuel and equipment, unpredictable market, and the inclination of the banker when the farmer drops in for another loan to tide him over for another season.

Traweck was one of 10 Midland County farmers who recently got together with Midland County agent Charlie Green and Texas Agricultural Extension Service agronomist Dr. Ken Lindsey and economist Gary Condra to discuss budget planning for the 1980 cotton crop year.

CONSIDERED WERE gross receipts on cotton lint and cottonseed, plowings, plantings, laying down fertilizers, insecticides and herbicides, hoeings, harvesting, cost of machinery, repairs, replacements of parts and equipment, leasing and land payments, and fuel costs, among others.

Separate budgets were hashed out for dryland and irrigated farming, but the farmers and the professional economist weren't always in agreement, just as farmers don't always agree with one another.

"We need a banker around here to see this," quipped Mike Denny of the budget.

"He will. He will," replied a fellow dirt farmer.

More so than ever before, farmers are looking at the cost per hour of burning diesel fuel for their plow-pulling workhorses.

"THE HIGHER THE PRICE gets, the less a fellow wants to know," Condra said of gallons of fuel a given tractor will burn per hour. Some of the farmers figured about six to seven gallons to the hour if the big workhorse is in A-1 shape.

And talk of burning fuel naturally blended into chat on capital outlay for tractors and other equipment, depreciation and replacement.

"How many years will you keep a tractor?" Condra asked the group.

"From now on, I guess," half-jested Danny Robertson.

Veteran farmer A.C. Teinert offered the pragmatist's view on farm equipment.

"If you take care of it, you don't have to trade it in that often," he said.

Rusty Jones, a cotton and alfalfa farmer in the

ROUSTIN ABOUT with Ed Todd

Valley View community, reckoned that a properly maintained tractor can put in 5,000 to 6,000 hours before it requires major repairs or is about ready to be traded in on another tractor.

YET ANOTHER COST — a sometimes disaster — facing the "gambling" farmer is the havoc weather — via drought, too much rain, or hail, which can be as devastating as a voracious swarm of locusts — pays the farmer.

"I think after this year, a lot more of it (hail insurance) is going to be done," said Robertson.

Some Midland County farmers, such as Vernon Chandler of the Warfield community, sustained heavy losses to waves of hail storms last July. He lost about 1,000 acres of cotton to the plummeting ice.

"I think the government is going to try to get us (farmers) to get (crop) insurance and not have disaster payments," allowed Alvey Bryant of the Greenwood community.

Another considered risk — and overhead — is how much crop insurance to get.

"The insurance companies have got the odds figured," noted Condra.

Chandler, too, was playing the odds, when he speculated: "If they (insurance companies) can make money selling insurance, then why can't I make money not buying it?"

AS IF COTTON farming weren't chancy enough, the farmers speculated on raising grain crops to make alcohol for gasohol and to help keep the nation and themselves in energy and a'going.

Someone even suggested using cottonseed to make alcohol. Condra said that cottonseed would do, but likely not as well as grains. But at present, the cost of setting up a big still, comparable in cost to a cotton gin, and the cost of producing alcohol versus the market price of fuel makes it almost prohibitive. Burrs and other farm debris could be burned to fuel the still.

"It's getting real close to economically feasible" to produce gasohol, however, said Condra, since gasoline and diesel fuel are a dollar a gallon and going higher.

And in that regard, Lindsey had a word or two to offer.

"It's not so simple as going out and setting up a still," the agronomist allowed.

There's much to consider: from growing the grain to setting up a co-operative effort to pool grain, convert it to alcohol at the still and establish a market.

Notwithstanding, "That's not going to solve our (energy) problem," said Lindsey.

Condra and the others agreed.

"AS A SOCIETY, we're going to have to have energy to keep running. We're afraid the American farmer is going to go out on a limb, and it'll be sawed off," Condra speculated on farmers going into a co-operative gasohol effort.

"We're talking about something larger than a gin as far as investments are concerned," the economist said.

Still, Chandler was curious.

"I'd like to know what it'd cost to make a gallon of gasohol with the different types of grains," he said.

Though converting to grain production would entail substantial outlay in new equipment, the farmers did not totally discount going the gasohol route.

"Whatever benefits the farmer, I'm ready to go," said Denny. "If I can make more money, I'm happy."

Still, it's a risk.

Greyhound offering special 'Thank You, Canada' passes

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Greyhound Lines is offering Canadians a special 30-day pass that costs less than a third of the usual fare following that nation's help in rescuing six American diplomats from Iran.

Frank L. Nageotte, chairman of the bus company, announced Monday the "Thank You, Canada" pass will be good for travel by Canadians over Greyhound's entire U.S. route. It is effective Wednesday if the Interstate Commerce Commission approves.

"It was a singular act of courage and gallantry on the part of Canada to spirit out of Iran a group of diplomats who were not even their own citizens," Nageotte said in a telegram to Prime Minister Joe Clark. "I think that says a good deal about the nature of honorable men... that they don't impose national boundaries on their decency."

Carter remains undecided on details of his draft plan

By MAUREEN SANTINI

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite what his wife says, President Carter claims he hasn't made up his mind about the details of his draft registration plan, including whether women will be included.

Last month, Carter said he plans to reinstate registration for the draft, a move he can make without legislative approval. There are no plans to reinstitute the draft itself.

But one of the biggest questions left unanswered is whether women will also have to register. Another undecided point is just which age groups would be affected.

and expects to "let my people know" his decision on Thursday.

Carter has said in the past that registration should include women.

Barry Lynn, chairman of the Committee Against Registration and The Draft, said Monday he thinks Carter's plan will be limited to persons aged 18 to 20.

Lynn's comments Monday came after he was briefed at the White House by a Selective Service official.

Lynn also said he thinks Carter will include women in the program.

Meanwhile, White House press secretary Jody Powell said Monday that Carter didn't tell his aides whether he would recommend registration of women or not.

"He did discuss it to some extent with the senior staff, although he kept his counsel on what his inclinations were at this point on the major questions," Powell said.

Tech upsets Aggies to snarl SWC cage race

Texas A&M's David Britton (10) beats two Texas Tech defenders to hoop, but Red Raiders still managed to deal A&M its first SWC defeat of the season.

By CHARLES RICHARDS AP Sports Writer

Texas Tech put new life into the Southwest Conference basketball race with its 63-53 upset over Texas Aggies in Lubbock Monday night.

"Now we have got to win the rest of them, and that means Arkansas in Arkansas," Texas A&M coach Shelby Metcalf said after the loss before a packed crowd and a television audience.

The defeat was the first in SWC play for the Aggies, who now share first place with the Arkansas Razorbacks, who drubbed TCU 74-47.

"I know it's tough to win up there (Fayetteville), but I'll take my chances with this team. Even if we had won tonight, it would have been a heated race the rest of the way," Metcalf added.

The Arkansas-A&M showdown is next Tuesday night.

In other SWC action Monday night, Texas exploded for 54 points the first half and held on to edge Houston 84-82, SMU defeated Baylor 73-69 and Rice beat Wright State 84-78.

Tech coach Gerald Myers was ecstatic over a second straight topnotch defensive effort from his players. "We had a great effort from everyone. Our inside people played especially well. It was just a great team effort," he said, handing out special tribute to Ralph Brewster, David Little and Ben Hill.

Tech held 6-11 Rudy Woods to 8 points, Vernon Smith to 6 and Rynn Wright to 13.

"We just didn't get the good performance. Tech deserved to win. Tech did an excellent job inside tonight, unlike our first game (at College Station). They had a good game plan and stayed with it all night," Metcalf said.

The teams traded the lead until Tech pulled away with 7 1/2 minutes left and scored 10 straight points to turn a 41-41 tie into a 51-41 lead. After Tech got two baskets, Smith fouled out and also drew a technical foul. The Raiders picked up three free throws on that, went into a delay game and added three more points on Brewster's stuff shot and free throw after he was fouled.

LaSalle Thompson, Texas' 6-10 freshman, scored 13 points and grabbed 14 rebounds in the first half as the Longhorns took a giant 22-point lead over Houston at intermission, 54-32.

But cousins Robert and Kenneth "Juice" Williams led a charge that left the Cougars only a basket short of wiping out the deficit. "This is the craziest game in America. Mercifully, it ended," said Texas coach Abe Lemons.

19-0 DePaul corrals all AP first place votes

By Associated Press

DePaul Coach Ray Meyer waited over 37 years to reach the No. 1 spot in The Associated Press basketball poll, and now that he's there, it appears he may be planning to stay for a while.

Meyer's unbeaten Blue Demons were tabbed No. 1 on all 59 ballots and collected a perfect score of 1,180 points from a national committee of sport writers and broadcasters Monday in easily outdistancing runnerup Syracuse. The vote also marked the third consecutive week DePaul, 19-0, has been the unanimous selection of the board and fourth week overall they have been ranked No. 1.

"There's no monkey on our back anymore," Meyer said last week after victories over Creighton and North Texas State.

But the monkey played havoc on a number of the teams in the Top 20 last week with only two teams managing to remain in the same position they held a week ago.

Syracuse, ranked fourth last week when they posted triumphs over Temple and Providence, replaced Oregon State in the No. 2 position with 1,066 points.

Louisville, ranked No. 7 for the past three weeks, leaped into the No. 3 spot with this week with 1,001 points. It's the highest ranking the Cardinals have held this season and comes just one day after their thrilling 76-71 victory over St. John's on national television.

Oregon State, upset by UCLA last week, fell to fourth with 946 points. Kentucky, No. 3 last week, slipped to fifth with 865 points — five more than No. 6 Louisiana State, which was ranked 10th last week when it upset the Wildcats 65-60 at Lexington.

Up-and-coming Maryland, No. 12 a week ago, skyrocketed into the No. 7 spot with 844 points. The Terps, the surprising leaders of the tough Atlantic Coast Conference — five ACC teams are in the Top 20 — posted victories over Virginia and Duke in action last week.

St. John's and Notre Dame switched positions this week with the Redmen taking over the No. 8 spot with 697 points. The Irish, knocked off by LaSalle last week, were ninth with 660 points — two more than No. 10 Duke.

Chaps win whistle serenade, 110-97

BY TED BATTLES R-T Sports Editor

Midland College whipped New Mexico Junior College at Chaparral Center Monday, 110-97, which may sound like a run-and-gun type game, but in reality it was a stand-around-and-shoot free throws yawner played to an accompaniment of a whistle serenade.

However, Chaparrals' Coach Jerry Stone isn't so much concerned with the artistic merits of a game, just so long as it goes into the victory column and this win enabled MC to keep the heat on pace-setting Western Texas College in the Western Junior College Conference race.

Western defeated Howard College, 105-93, to boost its WJCC record to 11-0 while protecting its No. 1 national ranking with a 23-0 record. The No. 6 ranked Chaparrals stayed a game back at 10-1 and upped their season's record to 21-2. Meanwhile, Odessa College solidified its hold on third with an 88-73 win over Frank Phillips.

It's almost as though the Chaps are marking time until their return dates with OC and WTC, but don't tell Stone that, not with New Mexico Military Institute due into the Center Thursday and a trip to Amarillo scheduled before the games with the WJCC contenders.

Monday's game had its moments of brilliance, but as the second half wore on, the continuity of play took a beating, prompting fans to wonder if "This thing is ever going to end."

Led by Robert Tate's 22 points and 20 by Tim Shelby, the Chaps jumped in front early, 8-0, and never trailed despite the double-barreled NMJC scoring tandem of Jeff Roberson, 29 points, and Ricky Green, 25.

It was never really a contest, but just when the Chaps seemed ready to blast the Thunderbirds into oblivion, they'd creep back to hover just out of reach.

MC led by 10 in the first half and then opened up a 19-point, 69-50 lead in the second half only to watch as NMJC struggled back to trail 73-60. With 4:30 left, it was 92-73, but again the T-birds rallied to close it to 92-82 with three minutes to go.

Tate had a big night from the field, hitting 17 of 19 while Shelby converted nine of 17 floor shots. Also in double figures for MC were Kevin Willingham, 15, Kenneth Young, 12, Chucky McGill, 10, and Ernie Tate, 10.

Abilene ruins Midland's second half 5-4A hopes

ABILENE — The Midland High girls lost any hopes of earning a basketball playoff berth here Monday night with a District 5-4A loss to Abilene High, 76-53.

The loss dropped the Bulldogs to a 2-3 second half record with only two games left in regular season play. MHS can not win a playoff berth under any circumstances now. The Bulldogs are 18-13 on the year. Abilene High, meanwhile, stayed in the second half chase with a 4-1 loop record and a 19-7 mark on the season.

Karen Washington pumped in 21 points and Tracy Hubbard added 20 to lead the Eagles to victory. Midland High's Jana Trölinger was the only Bulldog in double figures with 13 points.

In other 5-4A action Monday, Odessa High took sole possession of the second half lead with a 54-47 win over San Angelo and Odessa Permian defeated Big Spring, 53-51.

Syracuse buries Siena, but by only 35

By KEN RAPPOPORT Associated Press Writer

When they played last year, the Syracuse basketball team buried Siena by 52 points. It wasn't as bad this time. The Orangemen "only" won by 35.

"It was a good opportunity to give everyone a shot to play," said Syracuse Coach Jim Boehm after Monday night's 99-64 rout. "It gave us a chance to work on our defense and positioning, and I thought we did a good job on our defense."

"Roosevelt (Bouie) makes such a difference against a team like Siena. Roosevelt dominates so much, they just give up. They can't handle him."

Last year's 144-92 Syracuse romp which set several all-time school scoring records, by the way, prompted a tongue-in-cheek "Beat Siena Week" on the Syracuse campus. The promotion brought banners, chants and a sea of "Beat Siena" T-shirts to Monday's game.

"Our only regret was that they were making a zoo out of the game," said Siena guard Rod Owens. "We took it very seriously, I think all the yelling and T-shirts got us psyched up a little more."

"I'm not at all embarrassed by our play," Owens added. "A lot of people expected us to get beat by 50. We've got a school of 2,300 and they have I don't know how many thousands."

The victory by the nation's second-ranked team was one of four by Top Twenty clubs Monday night. In other action, No. 3 Louisville whipped Memphis State 88-60; No. 9 Notre Dame trimmed Navy 67-53 and No. 11 North Carolina stopped Yale 85-74.

Bouie scored 19 points as Syracuse won its 57th straight game at home and improved its record to 20-1 this season. Bouie also grabbed 10 rebounds in only 21 minutes of play.

Darrell Griffith scored 31 points to lead Louisville's conquest of Metro Conference foe Memphis State. Eight of Griffith's points came in a 22-2 Louisville spurt midway through the second half that put the game out of the Tigers' reach.

Orlando Woolridge scored 18 points to lead Notre Dame over Navy. The Fighting Irish outscored Navy 29-7 at the foul line in the second half en route to their 15th victory in 18 games.

The Irish played once again without forward Kelly Tripucka, who sat out his fourth straight game with a strained back. He was joined on the bench by Gilbert Salinas, who sprained an ankle Saturday night in Notre Dame's 105-71 victory over Davidson.

Lee girls deck Cooper

By RICHARD VINCENT Sports Writer

There's just so much of the Midland Lee girls' basketball team can do. Monday night at the Lee gym, the first half District 5-4A champion Rebels did what they had to, defeating Abilene Cooper, 63-51.

But, as is often said, it's the waiting that's hardest. And waiting for Odessa High to lose a game may take some time. But that's just what the Rebels, hoping to avoid the nuisance of a playoff, are counting on.

"We have to win all three of our games and depend on somebody to beat Odessa," said Lee coach Shirley Stephenson following Monday's contest.

Well, the Rebels, 4-1 and 23-7 overall, are going to have to put that plan on hold for a moment, because Odessa pocketed a 54-47 nod over San Angelo Monday night to remain unbeaten.

Leshia Watkins, Judy Taylor and Gale Wilson combined for 46 of the Rebels' points, Watkins and Taylor getting 16 apiece. Watkins hauled in 1/3 (15) of Lee's 45 rebounds while Wilson grabbed 11 boards. Also, Wilson handed out four assists.

For Cooper, 1-3 and 12-13 overall, there was a lid on the basket most of the night. The Cougars hit a scrawny 25-percent of their shots from the floor. Perky guard Renee Morgan was the brunt of the attack, scoring 17 points, 13 of which came at the charity stripe.

Stephenson seemed quite pleased with the defensive effort against Morgan, who burned the Rebels for 23 in the first meeting of the two teams. "I thought our defense did an excellent job of containing her," she said.

In the first half, Cooper gave Lee fits with a scrawny full-court press. After one quarter it was 17-8 Lee. But gradually it began to look as if the Rebels had boarded the Screaming Eagle at Six Flags.

By the midway point in the second quarter, Cooper had closed to within two points of the Rebels, 21-19. Only a dynamic effort down the stretch by Watkins enabled Lee to take a 29-19 spread into the locker room.

It was in the third quarter that Lee hit its stride, dominating the backboards and taking full advantage of Cooper's poor shooting. Eight rapid-fire points from Taylor helped the Rebels stake a 47-30 lead.

At that point, the Rebels should've smelled a kill coming. In this case, however, Lee missed Cooper's jugular.

Although they never got within less than 10 points of the Rebels in the fourth quarter, Cooper very much made a game of it. Finally, the depth and strength of Lee prevailed.

Lee won the junior varsity game, 53-45, as Kelly Watson scored 12 and Melinda Hohenberger seven.

Panthers living perilously, but keep lead in 5-4A race

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Sports Writer

The wild, wacky and sometimes wonderful world of District 5-4A basketball resumes tonight, and who knows what will happen during the course of one night's work.

With only two games gone in the second half chase, Odessa Permian leads the pack with the loop's only unblemished record. The Panthers managed to win their first two games while everyone else has found a way to lose at least one.

And Permian's 2-0 mark in the second round is a little shaky. The Panthers had to beat Midland High in overtime at home, and then had to come from six points down to defeat Abilene High on the road in the last 1:37 of play.

Still, Permian has the edge since it shared the first half title with Midland High. And the Bulldogs, owning the best record in the league with a 25-6 record, can only hope that someone finds a way to beat the Black Cats before the next five games come to a close. And that probably won't happen tonight since Permian plays Big Spring, the only team that has failed to win a district game this year.

Meanwhile, MHS has to take care of its own laundry, and it will have to start with today's 8 p.m. game at the Chaparral Center with 1-1 Abilene High, the same team that almost pulled one out over Permian Friday.

Midland Lee, on the other hand, is not out of the second half run by any means despite a frigid night against San Angelo Friday. The Rebs are also 1-1, as is just about everyone in the second half. Lee travels to Abilene Cooper today to face a team they upset when Woody Martin was playing in the first half. There's a little revenge motive there.

Cooper was given up for dead with three straight losses, but the Cougars rebounded Saturday night for a win over San Angelo, a team that crippled Lee Friday. Cooper has also lost to Odessa High this half. Wonders never stop in this league.

In the other league battle, Odessa High and San Angelo tangle in another "who knows how it will come out" affair.

Well, Permian. It's all there for the taking, but somehow one gets the feeling that this thing isn't over yet — by a long shot.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Kurt Thomas named winner of Sullivan Award

GENERAL—Kurt Thomas, the first American to win an all-around medal in world gymnastics competition, received the Amateur Athletic Union's prestigious Sullivan Award as the nation's outstanding amateur athlete for 1979. Thomas, 23, an Indiana State University graduate and a native of Miami, Fla., is now an assistant coach at Arizona State. He was third in the Sullivan Award voting last year. Last year's winner, teenage swimmer Tracy Caulkins presented the award at the annual banquet at the Indianapolis Convention Center.

TENNIS—Sixth-seeded Kathy Jordan defeated Sherry Acker 6-3, 6-4 as the Los Angeles women's tournament got underway. Other winners were seventh-seeded Virginia Ruzici of Romania, who eliminated Renee Richards 6-2, 6-1; eighth-seeded Caroline Stoll, who dunned Terry Holladay 6-1, 6-4; Marita Redondo, who topped Betsy Nagelsen 6-1, 4-6, 6-3; Barbara Potter, who whipped Joanna Durie of England 6-1, 6-0, and Renata Tomanova of Czechoslovakia, who advanced to the second round when Kathy May Teacher failed to appear. Romania led Yugoslavia 2-0 after the first day of singles play in the third round of the European group of the Davis Cup tennis meet. Ilie Nastase beat Zoltan Ilin 12-10, 6-3, 6-3 and Florin Segearcenu defeated Zeljko Franulovic 6-4, 7-5, 7-5.

OLYMPICS—Taiwan no longer can compete in the Olympics under the name "Republic of China" and no longer can use its flag or anthem first time since the Communist take-over in 1949. The attorney for the Taiwanese said he felt they would rather not compete than go to the Games under the conditions imposed by the International Olympic Committee and supported by the courts.

The court decision by a three-man panel of judges, was relayed by mail to both sets of lawyers and confirmed to The Associated Press by Francois Carrard, lawyer for the IOC. Taiwan's athletes still are eligible to participate at Lake Placid or Moscow if they desire. The IOC has asked the Taiwan NOC to present a new design for its flag and anthem.

HOCKEY—The National Hockey League Players Association voted unanimously to retain Alan Eagleson as its executive director through the 1982 season. The decision was announced by Phil Esposito, president of the NHLPA. The association also voted to name a seven-man search committee to find an assistant executive director who would learn the NHLPA operation under Eagleson and, ostensibly, replace the association head when he resigns in 1982.

HORSE RACING—Silver Ice, $3.40, edged Sub Rosa by a neck to win the $19,000 Potomac Purse at Bowie Race Course...What A Lady, $26.40, beat Mary L. by a half-length to win the ninth race at Hialeah...Newsman, $8.20, scored a three-length victory over All Guns in the $25,000 Hicksville Purse at Aqueduct.

Woe beset Sun Devils find that silver lining

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP)—Wulk, now in his 23rd year as ASU's mentor. The loss to Southern Cal occurred in early December during ASU's own Fiesta Classic. But last month, the Devils traveled to the West Coast and knocked off both Southern Cal and UCLA in Pac-10 games. "I thought we would make the rankings after our two wins in California, but didn't do it," said Wulk. "Of course, sometimes the Eastern people don't get the scores." But Wulk also admits that publicity surrounding ASU's athletic ills may also have been a factor. "I would feel that

Tar Heels whip Yale

Mike O'Koren's 20 points paced North Carolina over Yale. The Tar Heels played for the most part without the services of three of their top players — Rich Yonakor, Dave Colecott and John Virgill, all suffering injuries. Elsewhere, Michael Brooks scored a game-high 30 points to lead LaSalle over Lehigh 90-79; Randy Smithson and Mike Jones teamed for 25 points to lead Wichita State over New Mexico State 80-78; Bill Fields scored 23 points as Providence defeated Canisius 88-72; Terry Adolph scored 27 points and dished out 14 assists to pace West Texas State past Tulsa 92-80 and Rosie Barnes hit a jump shot with 20 seconds to go in overtime, lifting Bowling Green to a 79-78 decision over Ball State. Also, Mike Doyle triggered a second-half rally and Jim Strickland scored a career-high 25 points to lead South Carolina over Rhode Island 84-75; Edmond Sherrod and Tim Harris sparked a 16-4 run to help Virginia Commonwealth beat New Orleans 72-64; a 26-point performance by Ricky Pierce led Rice over Wright State 84-78; South Alabama defeated Jacksonville 65-58 as Ed Rains scored 15 points. Sammy Ellis scored 25 points and Carlton Neverson hit two key free throws with 12 seconds left to lead Pitt over Eastern Kentucky 80-78; Jon Hanley's 18 points paced Xavier over Cincinnati 77-69; Rodney Arnold hit four foul shots in the final 18 seconds to lead Florida State past Auburn 73-69; Delmar Harrod's 27 points helped St. Bonaventure beat Detroit 88-86; Lewis Lloyd's 30 points paced Drake over Indiana State 85-80; Richard Wright's two free throws with four seconds left clinched Oregon's 82-81 victory over Southern Cal and Andrew Toney's 26 points paced Southwestern Louisiana over Lamar 75-64.

Ali gives State Department touch of heartburn

By KEN RAPPOPORT AP Sports Writer

Floating like the proverbial butterfly and stinging like a bee with his remarks, Muhammad Ali continued his suddenly controversial tour of Africa today...

U.S. State Department officials say, in fact, that Ali's recent acerbic statements "are giving us a little heartburn."

The well-known boxer, on a five-nation tour of Africa theoretically to drum up support for President Carter's stand against the Moscow Olympics this summer, was anything but diplomatic Monday in Nairobi, Kenya, when he called the United States and Russia "the baddest two white men in history."

The presidential envoy also turned against Carter when he told a news conference that the President had put him on the spot by asking him to defend the U.S. record in Africa.

"I'm not here to take America's whipping," Ali said on the second stop of his tour. "I am totally against South Africa."

Ali appeared to be startled when reporters asked him why the Soviet Union, and not the United States, traditionally has supported African liberation groups fighting against the remaining white colonial regimes.

Ali said he would tell President Carter in Washington next week, "if you make a move against South Africa, then these people will be glad to aid you."

Ali said Africans also resented being asked to stay away from the Moscow Games to protest the Soviets' military intervention in Afghanistan, although the United States refused to join an African boycott of the 1976 Olympics in Montreal to protest western sports links with Africa.

"African people have all the right to say to us: 'If you didn't support us, why should we support you?'" Ali was scheduled to meet religious and sports leaders today before leaving Wednesday for West Africa.

In the wake of Ali's hard remarks, no one at the State Department was anxious to take credit for the idea of sending the former heavyweight boxing champion to Africa.

"It was a corporate decision," one official said.

Meanwhile, other American athletes threw their support behind Carter's proposal to move the Games out of Moscow if the Russians do not withdraw their troops from Afghanistan.

"None of us should go against the wishes of our government," said Kurt Thomas, newly-chosen Sullivan Award winner.

Renaldo Nehemiah, world record holder in the high hurdles, said: "I hope a proposed alternate site comes into effect. It would be a shame to let all that talent go to waste."

IOC meets to ponder fate of Moscow Games

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP)—The harassed International Olympic Committee (IOC) takes up residence in this small mountain ski resort this week to try to save the tottering Olympic Games.

The XIII Winter Olympics, for which this village of 2,700 people has been preparing for six years, opens in eight days and no major problems are expected. But next weekend the IOC will meet in a quaint, rambling timber-built country hotel to ponder over the fate of the threatened Summer Olympics in Moscow next July, and over ways to save them.

As the Russians pour more and more troops into Afghanistan, and President Jimmy Carter presses on with his call for a boycott of Moscow, it appears likely the 1980 Olympics will be dramatically reduced in size or perhaps collapse altogether.

The governments of some 30 countries have supported Carter's call for the Games to be moved or canceled or boycotted if Soviet troops are not pulled out of Afghanistan. National Olympic committees are the bodies to decide ultimately whether to send athletes, but many are expected to fall in behind their governments or be pressured by public opinion.

What can the IOC do in the next week to stem the tide that threatens.

Thus far the vast Olympic family — 140 national Olympic committees and 25 international sports federations — have remained largely faithful to the Olympic ideal and refused to commit themselves to a boycott. But many of them know they will have to bow to public opinion unless the unexpected happens and the Russians pull out of Afghanistan.

One of Killanin's first appointments in Lake Placid will be with Robert Kane and Col. Don F. Miller, president and executive director respectively of the U.S. Olympic Committee (USOC). They have agreed to pass on Carter's request that the Games be moved or postponed, though they know there is little chance of either. Kane has said that if the United States does not compete in Moscow it could mean the end of the Olympic Games.

Julian K. Roosevelt, one of the IOC's two members in the United States, reached Lake Placid Monday — the first of the 89 members to arrive. He has campaigned strongly for the USOC to defy Carter and the public opinion polls and send a team to the Olympics as usual.

Monique Berlioux, the IOC's salaried director, came in Sunday to set the stage for the critical session. Monday she learned one piece of good news for the IOC. The Taiwanese Olympic Committee, fighting in the Swiss courts against the IOC's decision that it must compete at Lake Placid without its traditional flag and anthem, had its appeal rejected.

"We are more concerned over the suit filed at Plattsburg, N.Y.," Berlioux said. That was filed by a Taiwanese athlete and the judge indicated he might rule the Taiwanese can use whatever flag they please. His decision is expected this week.

The dispute is connected with the entry of Mainland China in the Games for the first time since the Communist takeover. Peking has refused to compete as long as the Taiwanese use the old Republic of China flag.

OUR PETROLEUM BANKERS CAN GIVE YOU THE JUMP ON YOUR COMPETITION.

Petroleum financing can be a waiting game. Your banker plays for time until he gets your property evaluation, and his staff's analysis of it. That's expensive. Also, time-consuming. At The Midland National Bank, we'll show you how to get the jump on your competition. We know that financial timing is critical. So our petroleum bankers are also professional petroleum engineers who personally analyze your collateral. We'll use our in-house computer and the latest petroleum evaluation techniques to determine your recoverable hydrocarbons, projected cash flow and the loan value of your properties. Even with only limited data on complex, new areas, we can still make a quick, confidential determination of the maximum value of your collateral. # Sheriff's office receives more calls during 1979

By KAY HORD
Staff Writer

The Midland County Sheriff's Office received 1,190 more calls requesting an officer in 1979 than in 1978, according to the Sheriff's Office annual report released today.

And part of this jump was due to an increase of calls within the city limits, Sheriff Dallas Smith said.

Total for 1979 was 5,203, compared to 4,013 in 1978.

"These are instances where the officer actually went out and contacted someone and talked to them," Sheriff Dallas Smith said. "It doesn't count if someone calls in, and we talk to them over the telephone. The officer must actually go out there."

"WE'VE WORKED real hard to convince people to call us. A lot of times the public thinks there's nothing we can do. But even if he suddenly notices there's some property missing and there's no chance of any physical evidence for us to look at or any fingerprints, we can list the missing property in our files in case it's ever recovered."

"Or their information may help us complete a picture of the criminal, if he's committed any other crimes.

"We're also getting more and more calls within the city limits. In 1976, we rarely got one. We can't refuse to answer those calls because live in the county, too," Smith said.

Total investigations for 1979 totaled 1,387 — 95 more than 1978's 1,292. Totals for 1977 were 1,041 and for 1976, 550.

"This includes everything we looked at and any investigation we made," Smith said.

ARRESTS in the narcotics division of the Sheriff's Office were down 18 from 1978 and 10 from 1977. Thirty-seven arrests were made last year compared to 55 the previous year and 47 in 1977.

"The reason for the drop in narcotic arrests is that 1979 was the year I decided I didn't like the procedures they (narcotics officers) were using. I wanted more effort made on the larger dealers," Smith said.

"That's not to say we didn't want the small user, but I wanted the bulk of our money spent on the bigger guys, and then as we came across the little guys, we could arrest them, too," he said.

The drop in narcotic arrests also affected the figures for number of cases presented to the grand jury and for which indictments were returned.

IN 1979, 123 cases were indicted by the grand jury, down one from 1978. 1979's figure, however, was up 37 from 1977's total of 86.

"If we had had a higher total of narcotics arrests, we would have had a higher rate here," the sheriff said. "It would have made our chart look prettier."

Again, Smith said some of the increase in cases indicted was due to calls within the city limits.

The other numbers that figure into the grand jury indictments are felony offenses investigated.

"The bulk of this is burglaries and thefts," Smith said.

1979 SHOWED a total of 537 felonies investigated by Sheriff's deputies, up 37 from 503 in 1978 and from 415 in 1977.

"This is the same situation of getting people to report it and having a good clear picture of what we really have," he said.

"Instead of trying to build a clearance rate formula, which can mean anything from someone was arrested for that burglary to having the property recovered, I'm going about it a little differently this year," Smith added.

"A clearance rate can be whatever you want it to be. I know one Texas Ranger who says a case is closed when you're putting the last shovel of dirt in and patting it down. And he's right, that's pretty final."

"So I'm trying to build a clear picture of what we are doing. It may not be as impressive, but I think it means something."

PROPERTY RECOVERED by the Sheriff's Office during 1979 totaled $446,976, more than $200,000 more than 1978's $200,399.

Warrants and subpoenas served by deputies were 1,837, just over double 1978's total of 918.

"Now these are warrants and subpoenas actually served," Smith said.

"Even if they spent two days working on one, if they didn't actually find the guy and serve his subpoena, then it doesn't count."

Civil papers served worked the same way, Smith said. If they were actually served, it didn't count on the report.

Civil papers served for 1979 were 4,907; for 1978, 4,488 and for 1977, 4,050.

Cattlemen have until Feb. 19 to register for Beefrendum

Deadline for cattlemen to register to vote in the Beefrendum Feb. 19 through 22 is Wednesday in the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) office in the George Mahon Federal Building in downtown Midland.

Any stock producer who owned at least one head of cattle in 1979 is eligible to vote on the issue, which is a self-help program to promote beef sales and raise beef producers' profits by advertising and other promotional programs.

The Beefrendum — Beef Research and Information Act — would be supported by cattlemen, who would forward to the Beef Board 20 cents per $100 value added on each sale of head and would generate between $40 to $60 million annually.

A similar proposal was defeated by cattlemen in 1977, when a two-thirds vote was required for passage. This year, however, Beefrendum supporters have gotten that requirement down to a simple majority.

Critics of the proposed program say it would evolve into an uncontrollable agency similar to the cotton producers' Cotton Inc. Some cotton producers say they have no voice on the Cotton Board, which they help fund.

A new 'quiet game'?

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Lawyers on Attorney General Mark White's staff are under orders to give reporters the silent treatment and shunt requests for information to White's press secretary.

Only in "exceptional circumstances," such as when buttonholed outside a courtroom, may assistant attorneys general — the title for all staff lawyers — talk to reporters, says a Jan. 21 memo.

But "calls at your office should be referred to Mary Hardesty," White's memo said.

$10,000 bond set in drunk, indecent case against 19-year-old

Bond has been set at $10,000 for James Lloyd Farmer, 19, charged with drunk on acrylics and indecency with a child.

Farmer, of the 1500 block of Colorado, was arrested Saturday afternoon at Dennis the Menace Park, Garfield and Indiana.

According to police, they received a call to investigate a "suspicious person" in the park. On the officer's arrival, he said he saw a man in a corner of the park breathing into a plastic bag. As he approached, the man grabbed a child and attempted to use him as a shield and fondling him at the same time, police reports said.
