Questions still remain open in shah probe

By The Associated Press

"Open questions" remain in arrangements for the United Nations investigation of the ex-shah of Iran, U.N. officials said today, and the five-member investigatory panel delayed its departure for Tehran.

U.N. officials in New York would not disclose the nature of the problems or how long a delay could be expected in the mission to the Iranian capital. One member of the U.N. commission, which was standing by in Geneva, Switzerland, said a delay of at least one day was possible.

Another member earlier today said there was a "gentlemen's agreement" the hostages at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran would be released as a result of their mission. But he denied reports that a deadline for their freedom had been set.

Tehran Radio today announced that Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr had sent a cable to U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim giving approval to the mission.

At U.N. headquarters in New York, Waldheim spokesman Rudolf Stajduhar said the U.N. chief had received a message but that "some clarifications" were needed and Waldheim would make an announcement at a late morning news briefing. But a short time later Stajduhar canceled the briefing.

"We have just been informed that there are still open questions concerning the commission of inquiry to go to Iran," Stajduhar explained.

"We hope to make a further announcement later today. Meanwhile, the commission is remaining in Geneva."

There was a flurry of rumors in Geneva that the Iranians had set new conditions for the arrangement, but

U.N. officials had no immediate comment.

The commission members had been standing by at the airport in Geneva for a 1 p.m. (7 a.m. EST) departure aboard a chartered flight, but at about 2 p.m. they left the airport and went to the Algerian U.N. mission in the Swiss city. One of the panel members is Mohammed Bedjaoui, the Algerian U.N. ambassador.

Commission member Edmond Pettiti, a French lawyer, said it was possible they would stay in Geneva overnight.

The Tehran Radio broadcast, monitored in London, quoted the Bani-Sadr message to Waldheim as saying:

"Now that the demand of Imam Khomeini and the Iranian nation has been conceded regarding the convocation of a court of inquiry and investigation into past American intervention in Iran's internal affairs, through the regime of the former shah, and the investigation of their treacheries, crimes and corruptions, the commission, whose convocation and scope have been agreed by the Imam and the Iranian Revolution Council, may come to Iran."

Earlier, commission member Bedjaoui, speaking with a reporter on the tarmac at the airport in Geneva, said there is "a gentlemen's agreement for the release of the hostages." He added: "It is not true that any deadline has been set" for their release.

Reports published in the United States Tuesday quoted U.N. officials as saying the hostages would have to be released by Feb. 27 or the panel would stop its inquiry.

Curnow said part of a 10-man U.N. support staff would travel with the five commission members in the 12-seat chartered plane with the rest to follow aboard a commercial flight.

Four-wheel drive vehicles, motorcycles, dirt bikes and dune buggies spread out across a field in north Midland in a systematic search for missing 19-year-old Kristy Booth. Hope dwindles for Kristy Booth

Volunteers comb fields near north Midland disco

By KAY HORD
Staff Writer

Hopes of finding 19-year-old Kristy Booth alive are beginning to dwindle.

"The situation is looking rather bleak," Det. Capt. Billy Ray said Tuesday. "I don't know what her chances are at this point — they're slim."

And today approximately 30 to 40 police officers, sheriff's deputies and Texas Rangers volunteered their time and personal vehicles for a systematic search of the fields around the Dimensions Club, 411 Air Park Lane, where Kristy was last seen.

The search included the area between Big Spring and A streets and from Wadley Avenue to FM 868.

Vehicles participating included four-wheel drive vehicles, motorcycle, dirt bikes and dune buggies. Two of the police department dogs also were used.

As of 10:30 a.m., the search had revealed nothing but tumbleweeds and jackrabbits.

"We have to search this area because this is the last place we can place her. I hope she isn't dead; but at this stage of the game, if she hasn't done this before and hasn't contacted her parents, I am afraid she has met with some problem," a Texas Ranger said.

As searchers neared the end of one field, word arrived that an anonymous telephone call had placed Kristy in California with a man. The caller was to call again with her exact location. Previous rumors placed the 19-year-old in Long Beach, Calif., with an ex-boyfriend, but police have ruled out that possibility.

Kristy disappeared Feb. 2 while dancing at the Dimensions Club. She left her coat and shoes with friends at a table and never returned.

"It's amazing that with this many potential witnesses, no one saw anything," said a Texas Ranger involved in the search.

Police have placed at least one person under hypnosis and have asked others to submit to polygraph examinations in an attempt to learn more about the last few minutes Kristy was seen.

A reward fund has been started as an incentive for anyone with information.

Searchers today were divided into two "spotters" and a driver in each vehicle.

Sheriff Dallas Smith, who was coordinating the search, said Kristy was wearing levis, white blouse and purple checked vest when she disappeared.

Smith warned the men that, since several weeks had passed, dust and tumbleweeds might cover a body in the fields. He also said she might have wandered out and died of exposure.

"If so, there's a good possibility she may have tried to crawl up under something," he said.

"Let's do this so that we can say everything behind us has been covered and is clear and we can say there's nothing out there," Smith told the searchers.

Police don't even know when Kristy left the club.

Friends said they thought she had stepped out of the club for a breath of fresh air. Officers are still trying to identify the man with whom she was last seen dancing — a white, muscular male with goatee and moustache.

"Someone knows something about this," a Ranger said, "and maybe someday they'll tell us."

U.S. definitely won't be in Moscow Games

BONN, West Germany (AP) — The United States will not participate in the Moscow Olympics since there is no sign the deadline imposed by President Carter for a Soviet troop withdrawal from Afghanistan will be met, State Department spokesman Hodding Carter said today.

The U.S. Olympic Committee, which will have to decide whether or not a team is sent, declined immediate comment on Carter's statement, but has said in the past that it would go along with whatever the government wants it to do.

During an interview on NBC's "Today" program, White House counsel or Lloyd Cutler noted that the USOC said it will "of course" abide by the president's decision, and he added: "We expect the USOC to proceed to formalize what they said last week."

"We don't think the question of the government's power to force the athletes not to go will ever come up," Cutler said. "We're quite clear in the light of what the US committee said — that they, like the athletes, will abide by this very strong showing of public and congressional opinion that they should not go."

In Bonn, the State Department spokesman told reporters: "The United States set a deadline for its decision on whether to participate, a decision to be contingent on the withdrawal of Soviet troops. Today is the day on which that decision was going to be based. It is clear there is no sign of a Soviet withdrawal."

He continued: "The president has made clear that our decision is therefore irrevocable. We will not participate in the Olympics in Moscow."

Carter made the announcement following talks between Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and West German Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher on the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan.

Vance also met with Chancellor Helmut Schmidt and said they had "extensive discussions on the steps to be taken," but he added that West Germany has not endorsed the boycott and is not likely to join it soon.

The deadline imposed by President Carter passed without comment in Moscow.

But in Lake Placid, N.Y., Willi Daume, the IOC member from West Germany, said neither his government nor ruling athletic bodies support the U.S. call for a boycott.

British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher has said she would ask British athletes not to attend the Games. She said that going to Moscow would be seen as support for the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan.

California rains cause $350 million damage

By the Associated Press

A Malibu home toppled into the Pacific Ocean and others were overrun by mud or threatened by pounding surf as Southern California braced today for its sixth rainstorm in a week and the toll of property damage from foul weather in the West climbed past $350 million.

When this happens, the Wadley Avenue access to Midland College campus will be opened, he said. This road currently is closed.

Other accesses to the campus would be the Ward Street-to-Maxwell Drive-to-Garfield Street; the Whitney Drive-to-Maxwell Drive-to-Garfield Street; or the Big Spring Street-to-FM 868-to-Garfield Street, Baker noted.

For some time, the city has been wanting to update the northwest Midland drainage channel which borders the southern part of the MC campus.

The ditch would be widened by 30 feet and deepened by five feet, Baker told the trustees.

Trustees voted to approve the traffic plan. (See TRAFFIC, Page 2A)

More than 4,000 persons were forced to flee as mudslides and walls of water up to 15 feet high destroyed or threatened homes. Nearly 100,000 in Northern California were without power.

At least 27 deaths have been attributed to the storms that began a week ago today.

As water cascaded over the tops of dams in Utah and levees crumbled in Southern California, a tornado struck near an airliner taking on passengers in Fresno, Calif. Two persons received minor injuries.

Pounding surf and rain-softened bluffs threatened more homes along the Malibu beaches, where at least one home was lost to the storm, according to Los Angeles County officials.

Food shortages were reported north of downtown Los Angeles in the Topanga Canyon, where a 15-foot wall of water gushed through the exclusive neighborhood.

Traffic jams stretched for 10 miles in Phoenix, Ariz., after the usually dry Salt River flooded even more, cutting the number of crossings from ten to two.

State Emergency Services Director Alex Cunningham estimated $252 million property damage in Southern California, where the rain forced farmers to leave crops rotting in soaked fields. Crop damage so far in the fertile region that supplies much of the nation's winter lettuce and citrus was estimated at $26 million.

Arizona officials estimated damage at $90 million; and Utah officials, more than $1 million.

Pacific Yankees

By WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST JR.

Editor-in-Chief, The Hearst Newspapers

CHRISTCHURCH, N.Z. — New Zealand, a beacon of Anglo-Saxon culture in the South Pacific, is one of the most pleasant countries I have ever visited.

Retaining many of the virtues of Old England, it was settled chiefly by representatives of English middle and lower middle class country families who were encouraged for evangelical as well as economic reasons to colonize the far-off islands of the then rather savage warrior race of Maoris.

Their descendants remain a religious, practical, hardworking people with the traditional British qualities of sportsmanship, fair play, modesty, discipline and courage. There is an easy-going good fellowship about their warm friendliness, and most of the young women are tall, fair and quick to smile.

The development of New Zealand followed that of the United States and a resemblance in the characteristics of the early settlers of both countries and their descendants has long been recognized. In 1903, an American historian, Frank Parsons, wrote that the New Zealanders were "the Yankees of the South Pacific."

Like the people of Scandinavia, the New Zealanders are jealously protective of the relatively good life they enjoy. Both are well along the road to socialism. Both severely limit immigration. While they attribute this to a desire to preserve their way of life and avoid importing unemployment, a collateral reason is that they intend keeping the population white. As a result, one rarely sees dark-skinned people here.

Traffic signals scheduled at Midland College entry

By DAVID CAMPBELL
Staff Writer

Midland College trustees were told Tuesday that the campus traffic problem will be handled by traffic signals and not by a new access road.

The board also officially set the date for the general election as April 5 and approved several teaching positions.

The president of Midland College, Dr. Al Langford, reported the City Council did not take action on the proposed access road to the campus near the intersection of Garfield Street and Haynes Avenue.

Instead, the city said an actuated traffic signal at the entrance on Garfield and Maxwell Drive could handle the college's traffic needs.

Fred Baker, director of public works for the city, explained the Garfield Street traffic signal would remain green until a car traveling east on Maxwell Drive triggers an actuator. Then the traffic signal facing Maxwell turns green for a minute.

This signal would eliminate the residents' concern about waiting too long for a signal to turn green during periods of no traffic, he said.

Cost of the traffic signal would be about $18,000, with the city and the college each paying half of the cost.

Baker also told trustees the city plans to close part of Garfield Street between Midland College and Wadley Avenue, tear down the bridge over the drainage channel and convert the street to a low water crossing some-

Traffic signals slated at MC

Langford announced three positions on the Midland College board of trustees would be up for election April 5. Candidates have until March 5 to file in the MC president's office.

Those positions up for election are currently held by Reagan Legg, Fred Wright Jr. and John Cooper.

Trustees approved establishing four professional positions. Two will be fulltime teaching positions in English-foreign language and English-architecture.

An assistant director of community services also will be added to help with the community services programs offered by the college.

However, adding the position of director for the college's nursing program is uncertain, Langford said.

In the past, applications to the Texas Education Association for an associate degree of nursing program at Midland College have been denied because of existing programs at Odessa College and Howard County Junior College in Big Spring, Langford reported.

If such a program was approved by the TEA, funding of the program would be handled entirely by local sources for two years before the college could get state financial assistance, he said.

Salary for the nursing director would be in the range of $24,000 — $28,000 a year, Langford noted, and the initial costs in personnel salaries for the first year would amount to about $100,000.

Midland Memorial Hospital requested the college initiate an associate of nursing degree program, he said, because of a need for nurses in the Midland area.

Bids for an instructional computer to be used in the data processing program were reported to the trustees.

Texas Instruments presented the lowest bid of $82,720 which also met the college's qualifications, Langford said.

Other actions taken by the trustees included approval of tax roll collections and financial vouchers for the college.

Charity collection OK'd

WASHINGTON (AP) — Communities may not prohibit door-to-door solicitations by charities who do not use a specified percentage of the money they collect for charitable purposes, the Supreme Court ruled today.

By an 8-1 vote, the justices struck down such an ordinance in Schaumburg, Ill., a Cook County suburb of Chicago.

The village ordinance outlawed all solicitations by charities unless 75 percent of the proceeds went directly to charitable purposes.

Legg seeks re-election as trustee

Reagan Legg, Midland College trustee, announced today he is a candidate for re-election to Place 1 on the Midland College Board of Trustees.

Legg was the first president of the college board and has been a Midland attorney since 1949. In 1970, he was elected a member of the board of regents for the Permian Junior College System and served in that capacity until the Midland College district was formed in 1973.

He was then appointed to the initial Midland College board and was elected to the post in 1974. Legg seeks a second elective term in the April 5 election.

"We have come a long way since Midland College was first begun and we are well on our way to becoming the best community college in Texas," Legg said. "We shall not be satisfied until that goal is achieved and recognized."

Legg also serves as a member of the board of directors for the National Association of Community College Trustees and is frequently a speaker at national, state and regional meetings of educators and trustees.

In 1977 he was named the "Outstanding Community College Trustee in the United States and Canada."

During the 30 years he has lived in Midland, Legg has been active in community and church affairs.

He is presently serving as chairman of Leadership Midland, a leadership development organization; director of the Midland Chamber of Commerce; member of the board of directors for the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission, and a member of the Permian Basin Council on Human Resources.

Legg is also a member of the Urban Design Task Force of Objectives for Midland.

A former County Attorney, he has also served as president of the Midland County Bar Association and as committee chairman for the State Bar of Texas.

The Midland Legal Secretaries' Association named him "Boss of the Year."

Legg was also the chairman of the committee which secured the establishment of the federal court in Midland.

He is a former president of the Board of Governors of Midland Community Theatre, past president of the local ex-students association for the University of Texas, board member of the Multiple Sclerosis Society, regional chairman for the Muscular Dystrophy Association and is a trustee of the Midland College Foundation.

As a member and former chairman of the official board and the board of trustees for St. Luke's United Methodist Church, Legg has also served in many official positions with the Northwest Texas Conference of the United Methodist Church.

He is a teacher of an adult Sunday School class for 25 years and presently is a member of the Lay Advisory Council, Perkins School of Theology of Southern Methodist University.

"I am very proud to have a part in building Midland College," Legg said in his announcement, "and I look forward to working with our fine board members and the people of Midland in making it an even finer institution."

He lives at 2005 Boyd Ave.

Editor's Report

the hustle and bustle of an urban metropolis.

The first English settlers of Christchurch came to New Zealand in four ships in 1850. Known as the Canterbury pilgrims, they landed at the port of Lyttelton and made an historic trek over steep hills to the fertile plains around this area. The older Canterbury families proudly trace their lineage to the "first four ships," just as New Englanders claim for bears who came on the Mayflower.

Although Christchurch is the South Island's largest city, a population of over 300,000 and the hub of what is called the Canterbury district, it is a quiet, peaceful and beautiful place.

It hasn't been dubbed the "Garden City" of New Zealand for nothing. Within its confines are about 1,000 acres of parkland and gardens. Seven out of every 10 homes in the country are occupied by the owner, with a flower garden in its front yard. Prizes are given annually for the most beautiful, well-kept garden in the block, which are tended to by the owner and his family since domestic servants are practically unknown in New Zealand.

MOST HOUSES ARE only one story high. There are no skyscrapers and few apartment houses. Many of the buildings and houses are reminiscent of Old English country towns, with neo-gothic brick and stone architecture for the former and wooden Victorian-style for the latter.

Christchurch was settled under the auspices of the Church of England for English people belonging to the Anglican Church. In its center stands a beautiful cathedral of gothic design. Its bells duplicate the Upper Ten of St. Paul's Cathedral in London.

Through the city meanders the small and restful Avon River, along whose banks are willow and other trees brought from England years ago. It's a miniature of the Upper Reaches of the Thames River on the outskirts of London.

MY MOST EXCITING experience in New Zealand was a trip to Mt. Cook. Towering to 12,349 feet, it is the country's highest mountain around which are 17 other peaks, all exceeding 10,000 feet. It is in the very heart of New Zealand's most spectacular mountain range.

As we left Christchurch for the short commercial airline flight, we first passed over a vast checkerboard of green and brown cultivated fields of the Canterbury plains. Soon we were flying along the permanently snow-capped summits of the southern Alps. As far as the eye could see, a jumbled mass of rocky white peaks.

At the Mount Cook airport, we squeezed into a six-seater, single engine, American made Cessna equipped with retractable skis, and began one of the most spectacular and thrilling flights I have ever made. The cliffs rose all around us as we climbed to 7,500 feet and then made a ski landing on a snowy flat bit of land. Even though our young pilot, Allan Brown, had a lot of experience in that type of mountain flying, and I have flown a lot — mostly low in small planes — I had a couple of scary moments.

THE CLARITY OF THE air made the mountains seem even closer as we made our way back after a brief stretch on the snow covered plateau. It is a never-to-be-forgotten experience, and if you can keep your mind on your camera and scenery, your pictures will be great for entertaining your friends.

This is a land of startling scenic contrasts. The North Island has geysers and bubbling mudpools in an area that is literally a hotbed of subterranean geothermal activity, like our Yellowstone National Park. At Rotorua, which we visited, underground steam sizzles through cracks in the earth and rises in every direction you look. Geysers send boiling water to a height of 80-100 feet. The Maori natives, whose biggest settlement is in this area, still heat and cook with the steam, just as their ancestors did centuries ago.

The South Island, on which Christchurch is located, has the breathtaking beauty of its alps, fjords, forests, rivers and lakelands. Lying almost halfway between the equator and the South Pole, the climate ranges from subtropical in the north to temperate in the south. Although that's upside down for us, the climate reminds me very much of central and northern California.

IT IS VERY VERDANT with countless different kinds of trees and birds, of which one of the most unusual is the wingless, nocturnal curved-beak Kiwi. This species is believed to be at least 70 million years old. It has no tail and it cannot fly, but its powerful beak, legs and sharp claws make it a formidable enemy.

In Wellington, the capital, we found Prime Minister Robert D. Muldoon, a typical sturdy, stocky, ruddy-faced Irishman. His grandfather immigrated to New Zealand from the Emerald Isle, and he was born in Auckland. During World War II he served four years with the 2nd New Zealand Expeditionary Force in the Pacific and Italy, so he certainly did his bit for the allied victory in both the Pacific and Europe.

A FORTHRIGHT, outspoken, and strong-willed gentleman, he has the reputation of being rather gruff when his dander is up, but he has a ready smile and sense of humor and was very friendly with us.

Noted for his pro-American attitude, he has supported President Carter's stand against the Soviet occupation of Afghanistan and shares the president's view that it constitutes a serious threat to world peace.

Like British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, Mr. Muldoon is one of the few allied leaders who back their rhetoric with firm action in support of the United States.

Although New Zealand sells $100 million worth of lamb annually to Iran, Prime Minister Muldoon authorized the New Zealand Embassy in Tehran to assist the Canadian Embassy in sneaking six American diplomats out of the country. He is keeping secret exactly what assistance was rendered, but I gathered it was substantial and had something to do with communications.

When we asked him if he had not taken a considerable risk in view of the importance of New Zealand's trade with Iran, he replied:

"WE DID TAKE A considerable risk, but it was handled very delicately."

Asked if he had taken the risk because of New Zealand's close alliance with the United States, he said:

"I would have to say we would have done it with another country. We are something of a great sporting country and we have great regard for the rules in international affairs. If someone violated the rules, we will be against them."

"However, we are, and have always been as far back as you can go, a close and staunch friend of the United States."

In expressing concern about the lack of continuity in American foreign policy, he said the shifts in policies that occur under successive administrations tend to "worry us a little down here."

tion defeat in history, carrying only one state in the union.

It was gratifying to note that my conviction was confirmed by last week's Time magazine poll, which showed the country rallying behind President Carter's handling of the Afghanistan crisis in overwhelming numbers. Eighty-six percent of those polled approved the embargo on the technical equipment to the Soviet Union. Only 10 percent disapproved. Eighty-eight percent favored increasing the defense budget to only eight percent opposed. What particularly impressed me was that young voters between the ages of 18 and 24 favored draft registration by 64 percent to 12 percent. Those figures show the inherent patriotism of our people.

IN ADDITION to the mutual defense pact that New Zealand and Australia have long had with us, called ANZUS, Mr. Muldoon said loose associations have been developed with other Pacific and Asian groupings of free nations. He disclosed, for example, that for the first time Japan will participate this year in joining naval and air maneuvers with Australia, New Zealand, the United States and Canada in something called RIMPAC.

In response to our question, he agreed that eventual establishment of a Pacific Security Alliance similar to NATO, which would include Communist China and Japan, "must be regarded as a possibility."

So these Pacific allies of ours are ready to move ahead with us in stronger defense measures to deter further Soviet aggression in the Pacific, Asia and the Middle East.

As Alexander Solzhenitsyn, Russia's greatest living writer, said in another Time article, which everyone should read:

"Communism will always present a mortal danger to mankind. There is no help to be found in the illusion that certain countries possess an immunity to communism. Any country that is free today can be reduced to prostration and complete submission."

"There is hope. All oppressed people are on the side of the West: The Russians, the various nationalities of the U.S.S.R., the Chinese and the Cubans. Only by relying on this alliance can the west's strategy succeed."

"Communism stops only when it encounters a wall even if it is only a wall of resolve. The west cannot avoid erecting such a wall in what is already its hour of extremity."

Take those words to heart, they are worth remembering.

True Story

Timothy Bottoms and Kay Lenz (left) star as Dwight and Barbara Worker (right) in "Escape," a new motion picture-for-television based upon Dwight's escape from Lecumberri Prison in Mexico City. It will be presented on "The CBS Wednesday Night Movies," Wednesday, Feb. 20, on CBS.

"Escape" was filmed in La Princesa Prison in Puerto Rico. La Princesa was built about the same time as Lecumberri, and like Lecumberri if no longer houses prisoners. But there are rooms still crammed with cots, the walls are dingy and peeling, water leaks from faulty shower heads, and the steel bars are still ominously prevalent.

I would like some information on organizations concerned with the killing of baby seals. — Helen Cumbie

ANSWER: One such organization against the killing of baby seals is the Greenpeace Foundation of America, 2440 Ft. Mason St., San Francisco, Calif., 94123.

CORRECTION: The correct telephone number for the Permian Basin Center for Battered Women and Children is 683-1300, instead of 682-1300, as reported in an earlier Answer Line.

INFORMATION: A few weeks back someone wrote in asking about Mothers' Day Out programs, and you mentioned a few of the churches which provide this program.

The St. Paul United Methodist Church, located at 4501 Thomason Drive, started its program in October 1979.

At this time we have openings available for the ages of three to four years.

If anyone would like information concerning our program, I will be happy to answer any of their questions.

Please call the church at 694-2545 on Tuesday or Thursday of each week. Thank you. — Judy Chandler

I got a divorce in May and remarried. My ex-husband sends the child support payments only when he wants to. My new husband supports my children and I feel he should be their father instead of my ex-husband.

Is there a way he could adopt them? If I die, would my ex-husband gain custody of them? — Mrs. F.K.

ANSWER: The State Bar of Texas reports a child cannot be adopted by a stepfather unless the natural father consents or loses his parental rights by order of a court.

Persistent non-payment of child support is one ground for seeking termination of parental rights. A natural father who retains parental rights cannot be denied possession and control of his children if his former wife dies, unless the court finds that he is an unfit parent and that the children's best interest would be served by having them become wards of the state.

Defense claims confession made under drug influence

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Defense attorneys for Edward Stephen Hollomon attempted to show the defendant was suffering from the effects of various pain killers when he confessed to killing a Brownwood woman last summer.

Joanne McGeehe, the defendant's sister, testified Tuesday that her brother "seemed to be falling apart, and was under medication for back pains" several months prior to the alleged slaying.

The 28-year-old Houston man is accused in the rape and shooting death of Merlina Marie Shippey, 18, on June 24. Her body was found along a highway near Manor in Central Texas.

Mrs. McGeehe, also of Houston, told the jury Tuesday Hollomon was taking 23 assorted prescriptions to relieve back pains.

In early 1979, Mrs. McGeehe testified, Hollomon seemed to be having problems managing the family's dry cleaning business and was unable to do simple things such as placing an advertisement in a newspaper.

Hollomon also had complained about hearing people walking around in the attic of his home, she said.

Upon his arrest June 25 in Hempstead, Hollomon gave a statement to Texas Rangers, but later said he was coerced into making the confession.

Defense attorneys claimed Hollomon was suffering from the effects of the various pain killers when he confessed to the slaying.

'Extrasensory empathy' suit over sister's death rejected

NEW YORK (AP) — A federal judge has refused to award damages to a woman who complained that because of "extrasensory empathy" she suffered agonizing pain while her twin sister was being killed in the world's worst aviation disaster.

In dismissing the suit, U.S. District Judge Robert Ward said Tuesday that he found no grounds for damages to Martha Burke who was at home in Fremont, Calif., when two 747 jetliners collided while taking off in the Canary Islands on March 27, 1977.

The Burke woman's twin sister, Margaret Fox, was one of 580 victims of the airport runway collision between Pan American and KLM jetliners on Santa Cruz de Tenerife island.

The plaintiff claimed that shortly after she suddenly woke up in her California home, she began to "feel nervous and upset."

"She then purports to have felt, at the precise time of the Tenerife crash, a painful burning sensation inside her chest and abdomen, and sensations of being 'split' and of emptiness 'like a black hole' within her body," wrote Ward in a five-page opinion.

In ruling on the case, Ward did not dispute the Burke woman's contention that "pain-sharing" was a documented phenomenon. But he concluded that her argument ignores the specific liability guidelines established under law.

Almost all the damage suits claiming wrongful death in the disaster have been settled after both airlines agreed to share liability.

The Burke woman's suit was one of about 100 damage claims which required further litigation. The cases, originating all over the country, were consolidated and assigned to Ward for adjudication and most of them have been settled.

Storms cause $26 million crop damage

LOS ANGELES (AP) — With much of Southern California sodden by five storms in seven days, agricultural officials said Tuesday that damage to crops from Ventura County to the Mexican border totals at least $26 million.

The brunt of the damage was borne by Ventura County, northwest of Los Angeles, where $23 million in crops were reported destroyed.

"We were doing fine through Friday's rains," Agricultural Commissioner Earl McPhail said from his office in Santa Paula. "But Saturday's storm killed us. Then the levee broke."

McPhail was referring to an earthen levee along the normally tranquil Calleguas Creek that burst Sunday under the stress of torrential mountain runoff, sending muddy waters racing

LSD, bomb victims to be reimbursed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is considering measures to compensate two men who suffered physical and mental injuries as the result of military accidents and secret drug testing.

One man would get $1 million because the Army gave him the drug LSD without his knowledge while he was in the service and the other would get $18,000 a year for life because of a World War II bombing accident.

The Senate Judiciary Committee voted Tuesday to give $1 million to James R. Thornwell, of Spartanburg, S.C.

Thornwell said he suffered physical, mental and economic damage as a result of the LSD experiment in 1961.

Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., who sponsored the bill to aid Thornwell, said: "He has suffered tremendously. The Army recognizes the wrong it has done him and supports the action taken today."

The bill now goes to the full Senate for consideration. If passed there, it would go to the House.

The House voted Tuesday to give Isaac David Cosson, of Clermont, Fla., an $18,000 annual income as a result of an accident in 1944. Cosson, 12 years old at the time, was severely injured and four members of his family were killed when an Army Air Corps bomber accidentally dropped fragmentation bombs near his home.

In supporting that aid proposal, Assistant Army Secretary Alan J. Gibbs said the government should act to relieve Cosson "of part of his burden by removing him from the poverty existence in which he was placed life."

The bill to aid Cosson, who lives on a $196 monthly welfare payment, now goes to the Senate for action.

Burglar sentenced

Marvin Don Bryson, 21, was assessed a three-year sentence in the Texas Department of Corrections after pleading guilty Monday to burglary of a building.

The sentence was assessed by 142nd District Judge Perry Pickett.

Pickett also sentenced Edwardo Silva Olgin to five years probation after Olgin pleaded guilty to burglary of a building with intent to commit theft.

Aaron Bundage received a four-year deferred judgement and was required to make restitution after pleading guilty Friday to forgery by passing. Bundage made his plea in Pickett's court also.

Defensive driving course set

Preregistration for a three-day short course in defensive driving is offered by Midland College's department of community services.

Students can register in room 156 of the MC administration building between the hours of 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. weekdays.

The course will be held Feb. 25-27 and is limited to 35 students.

Class will meet at 7 p.m. Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Course fee is $15.

"Many people like to renew their certificate in defensive driving," said James Bramlett, department director.

The college is certified to teach the course, he noted. A certificate of completion entitles the student to a discount on car insurance with most insurance companies, Bramlett added.

More information may be obtained by calling 684-7851, extension 147 or 216.

Next war won't match nostalgic World War II

WASHINGTON — There is entirely too much talk about going to war these days. Strangers have been asking me lately, "Do you think there is going to be a war?" in the same tone they used not long ago to inquire if I thought there was going to be a recession.

I don't have any idea if there is going to be a war or not. But if there is one, it's not going to be like any other war we've ever seen. The war we keep talking about these days has to do with another nuclear power and, therefore, it probably isn't going to live up to the nostalgia we all seem to have for World War II.

Before everybody gets too excited about us getting into another world war, I believe they should at least know what one could be like.

Hello. Give me Bob Hope. Bob, how would you like to do a show for our troops in Yemen this Christmas? "BBBBBBBBRRROOOOMMMM!" Never mind, Bob — there is no Yemen.

Frank, I just wrote this great World War III song with Jimmy. Listen, Ivan, you SOB Ivan don't mess with me. You may throw your weight around, but we will get up off the ground, Ivan...

"BBBBBBBBRRROOOOMMMM!" Mrs. Miniver, I know this will be tough to take, but your son and husband were lost at sea. It's harder for those of us on the home front. "BBBBBBBBRRROOOOMMMM!"

Art Buchwald

Elrod, I want you to know that all of us here at Four Corners are proud that you are going off to serve your country. Four Corners has always been the first to answer the bugle call when the enemy is at the door, and while we are safe and sound, there isn't a man here who wouldn't rather be in your shoes if he had the choice. "BBBBBBBBRRROOOOMMMM!" Hi, guys. Welcome to the Stage Door Canteen. Now who is the first sailor who's going to dance with me? Come on, don't be bashful — I may be the last girl you'll see for a couple of years. Anyone here from Oklahoma? "BBBBBBBBRRROOOOMMMM!" And now, an important message for all Americans: Don't throw away your tin cans and scrap metal. Uncle Sam needs every bit he can get. Become a soldier on the home front, and give our boys everything they need. "BBBBBBBBRRROOOOMMMM!" My sakes and land-a-goshen! It's George, Paw, George is home. George, let me look at you. What are all those medals for? "BBBBBBBBRRROOOOMMMM!" Men, here is where we are, and over there is where they are. Now we know they have tanks and machine guns. What we don't know is if they have tactical nuclear weapons. Fischetti, Goldberg, O'Brien, Nickapoulos and Hangdog. Your job will be to... "BBBBBBBBRRROOOOMMMM!" I am here today to ask everyone as a patriotic duty to buy as many warbonds as he possibly can. I have been to the front and I have seen our boys. Their morale is high and every one of you would be proud of them. I asked our brave lads what they wanted most of all and they said just keep buying warbonds so they can get home as soon as possible. Now, let's have a show of hands of those who will buy $100 worth of bonds — I want to see a lot more hands than... "BBBBBBBBRRROOOOMMMM!" Oh, Lawrence, before you go, I want to have your baby. Are you sure? Yes, Lawrence, I'm sure. Gertrude, did you feel the earth move? Yes, Lawrence, I did. "BBBBBBBBRRROOOOMMMM!"

Another symbolic move

President Carter's decision to send an amphibious warfare unit, including a battalion of U.S. Marines, into the Indian Ocean next month is another symbolic gesture to the Soviet Union that the United States has every intention of backing up — with force, if necessary — its pledge to defend the Persian Gulf's oil corridors.

In reality, however, the decision was exactly that — a symbolic gesture. No more. No less.

Even when the president established the new Soviet containment policy last month he noted that the United States does not now have the capability to defend the policy.

What President Carter is hoping for, of course, is to convince the Soviets that despite our apparent military weakness in the Persian Gulf region at the current time, we are prepared to bolster our capability through military preparedness. Thus, the call for reinstating registration for the draft in the United States.

A Marine battalion represents only slight military strength for the United States. That battalion strength is far outweighed by the Soviet Union, which is estimated to have some 95,000 troops now in Afghanistan and many thousands more in divisions inside the Soviet Union along Iran's northern border.

It doesn't take a mathematical genius to determine who would be on the losing side in the Persian Gulf should the Soviet aggression lead to open conflict with the United States.

The 1,800 Marines being sent to the Persian Gulf region are far outnumbered by both Soviet troops and military vessels.

The Soviet Union reportedly has 26 navy ships in the Indian Ocean.

However, the United States does boast a force of some 20 ships in the Arabian Sea off Oman. Additionally, the aircraft carriers Nimitz and Coral Sea have the capability of launching more than 150 warplanes, according to reports.

The Soviet Union doubtless has all this information through its intelligence sources. The Russians know that we would be hard-pressed to back up President Carter's tough talk on defending the Persian Gulf.

During the past year the Carter administration has made a number of symbolic gestures in the Indian Ocean-Persian Gulf region. Those gestures have included the dispatching of a dozen unarmed Air Force F-5 fighter planes briefly to Saudi Arabia and a flight of B-52 bombers from Guam over the Indian Ocean in what was termed a surveillance mission.

There's little question that the Soviet Union has gotten the message.

The future actions of the Soviet Union in the Persian Gulf region will be indicative of their intentions.

If their intent is hostile, Carter had better be ready to back up his tough words with real action instead of symbolism.

If the Soviets intend to take control of the Persian Gulf, it'll be time to put up or shut up.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Congress investigating RFE episode

WASHINGTON — Radio Free Europe (RFE), which gets $85 million from American taxpayers each year for beaming propaganda to the communist world, has touched off a congressional investigation by broadcasting a lengthy interview with an alleged Nazi war criminal and then firing two employees who blew the whistle on the outrageous program.

To make matters worse, the RFE official directly responsible for the broadcast has not even been reprimanded, possibly because he has a close friend and former RFE colleague on the staff of the president's national security adviser, Zbigniew Brzezinski. It is also possible that the Carter administration simply saw nothing wrong with the interview.

Chairman John Gronouski of the Board for International Broadcasting, which supervises RFE, has appointed a special counsel to look into the matter. Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti has asked Gronouski to report any violations of law turned up by the in-house probe.

The interview, last May 1, gave a sympathetic airing to the views of Valerian Trifa, Justice Department documents charge that Trifa, as a leader of the Nazi-oriented Iron Guard in his native Romania, was personally responsible for the deaths of 4,000 Jews in a bloody 1941 pogrom.

He eventually came to this country, settled in Detroit, and became a bishop of the Romanian-American Orthodox Episcopate. The Justice Department is trying to deport him on grounds that he lied about his past when he became a U.S. citizen.

This is the man Radio Free Europe saw fit to put on the air in a 45-minute interview. Congressional investigators, for Rep. Elizabeth Holtzman, D-N.Y., have received evidence that "the broadcast was not simply an inadvertent judgmental error, but represented a conscious management decision made over staff objections." It was, said the investigators, "part of a pattern of such questionable decisions with respect to both substance and personnel made over the past several years."

The investigators also found that RFE employees "have been harassed and threatened for attempting publicly to expose what they consider to be the facts of this case." Indeed, two employees in the Romanian Broadcast Division, Edgar Rafael and Jacob Popper, have been fired, apparently because they told Holtzman about the Trifa situation. RFE President Glenn Ferguson ignored a specific directive from Gronouski not to fire the two men.

Noel Bernard, director of the Romanian Service, is still riding high at RFE. Sources say he is an old pal of Paul Henze, a veteran CIA operative who is now a member of Brzezinski's White House staff. The two served together at RFE's Munich station in the 1950s.

Here's how the White House man treated his friend's decision to dignify a suspected Nazi war criminal with a U.S. propaganda broadcast, according to the secret transcript of a meeting of RFE's governing board, obtained by my associate Gary Cohn.

Henze said it was "silly" to be concerned about Trifa's interview.

Board member Walter Roberts snapped: "It's not so silly."

Henze: "It certainly isn't serious from the point of view of the White House."

Roberts: "Well, it's very serious from the point of view of this board."

Henze: "Let me state the White House position on this issue. Bishop Trifa, as an American citizen, represents an important American ethnic group."

Rep. Holtzman has asked President Carter to fire Henze because of this exchange. Instead, the 55-year-old Brzezinski aide has been given even more responsibility for the Carter administration's foreign broadcasts.

Interestingly, a National Security Council official stated that Henze's disgraceful remarks were taken out of context. The transcript proves otherwise.

Footnote: Rep. Dante Fascell, D-Fla., will hold hearings on the RFE situation, scheduled for tomorrow. Holtzman has also asked the Justice Department and General Accounting Office to investigate.

COME ON-A MY HOUSE: Asst. Secretary of State Richard C. Holbrooke has irked many members of Congress for his condescending lectures on international affairs. Foreign policy experts on the Hill say he treats them like ignorant schoolboys.

Recently, Holbrooke infuriated Rep. Lester Wolff, D-N.Y., by canceling at the last minute an appearance before Wolff's subcommittee on Asian affairs and sending an ill-informed assistant in his place. Holbrooke claimed he had to get ready for a trip to Singapore the next day.

But the next morning's newspaper carried a photograph of Holbrooke, drink in hand, at a State Department party honoring George Stevens Jr., founder of the American Film Institute. The caption quoted Holbrooke as welcoming Stevens to "our house."

Wolff observed caustically in a letter to the veteran diplomat, "Earlier in the day you would have been welcomed to our house, the House of Representatives, to give key testimony concerning human rights in Asia."

WATCH ON WASTE: Rep. George Danielson, D-Calif., interrupted a three-week congressional junket to the Far East for a two-day trip to Los Angeles and back. The first-class tickets from South Korea to California and back to Tokyo cost the taxpayers $1,624. Although Danielson refused to disclose what official business prompted his side trip, sources report that he went to Los Angeles solely to be interviewed for a federal judgeship. By joining the Far East junket from the beginning, instead of waiting till after the interview, Danielson got to take his wife along on the military plane for free.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Wednesday, Feb. 20, the 51st day of 1980. There are 315 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On Feb. 20, 1962, astronaut John Glenn became the first American to orbit the Earth. His "Friendship Seven" capsule circled the Earth three times and made a safe splash-down in the Atlantic.

On this date: In 1437, King James of Scotland was murdered in the city of Perth.

In 1792, President George Washington signed an act creating the Post Office.

In 1895, a revolt against Spain broke out in Cuba.

In 1972, President Richard M. Nixon arrived in Peking for a historic meeting with Chinese leaders.

Ten years ago, work began on a bridge to link Istanbul to Uskudar across the Bosphorus.

Five years ago, the Greek Cypriot government called on the United Nations to fix a deadline for the withdrawal of 40,000 Turkish troops from Cyprus.

One year ago, labor leader George Meany accused President Carter of lacking a coherent foreign policy and bungling the American response to events in Iran.

Today's birthdays: Fashion designer and socialite Gloria Vanderbilt is 56. Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin is 76. Attorney Roy Cohn, one-time assistant to Sen. Joseph McCarthy, is 53.

Thought for today: Everybody thinks of changing humanity, and nobody thinks of changing himself. — Leo Tolstoy (1828-1910)

Presidential hopeful Bush is Gregg's current hobby

NASHUA, N.H. — Why would any sane person undertake the ordeal of running a presidential aspirant's campaign, as, say, Hugh Gregg is for George Bush, if it weren't for money, political ambition or fame?

In Gregg's case, it's none of these. "It's a vacation I take every four years and enjoy," says Gregg of the exhausting grind which leaves most such managers ready to plop on a Caribbean beach afterwards.

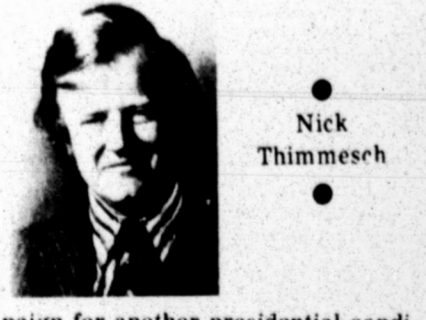

Everybody in New Hampshire knows and respects Hugh Gregg, and he knows every corner of the state. That's why presidential aspirants compete to sign on the Hugh Greggs of the primary circuit. But this local pol is different.

Hugh Gregg, 62, ramrod straight and pure Yankee, is former governor, mayor and alderman. He ran primary campaigns here for Nelson Rockefeller and Ronald Reagan before he took on Bush.

Gregg's roots here date to 1718 when Capt. James Gregg, a Puritan dissenter, landed at Casco Bay and settled at Londonderry, 10 miles from Gregg's lifelong home. For generations Greggs have been soldiers, legislators and businessmen.

Perhaps because he's wealthy, Gregg says that he never took a dime of compensation or expenses from any candidate he managed. "I feel people who have the resources and the time should do this as a community responsibility" is Gregg's almost anachronistic explanation.

He's a bit fussy about whom he'll work for and when. When he himself holds public office, he won't cam-me. "Gregg, if I can work 9 to 5, why do I have to jog?" I know from my experience in 1976 that Reagan doesn't have the stamina for the Presidency. In 1976 he told people he was digging fence holes. Now in 1980 he's supposed to be putting the poles in."

Not long after Gregg agreed in 1979 to run Bush's campaign, he pushed him into the most intensive schedule of any GOP candidate. Bush was a long shot. But his win in Iowa got him identification and now he's hot.

"Three months ago, in Derry, seven people showed up," Gregg says. "The other night, it was 1,000. Last week, a businessman asked me to send Bush through his plant. I told him he went through last June. Was that George Bush?" the guy said. "I didn't remember him."

The biggest mistake an outside candidate can make in New Hampshire, Gregg says, "is to talk down to the people as though we were a bunch of hicks. Actually, because of the privilege and pleasure of being guinea pigs, people here are sophisticated."

"Connally is a good example of how not to run here. He makes a big splash by coming in Hollywood style with a white helicopter and all those guys who look like Secret Service agents. He gives a good speech and then quickly goes away. It doesn't fool the people of New Hampshire. He has the leaders of industry and business and their money, but he skims the top and doesn't get votes. Connally plays up the big-shot image too much."

Through years of campaigning, Gregg was available to the press, but now he's sore that "the media, not the voters, decide who wins up here. The media proclaim who should win and by how much, and if the candidate doesn't, then he's a loser."

"In 1976, by any measure, Ford should have beat Reagan. When Reagan came so close, the media decided he was a real loser. When Gene McCarthy came close to defeating Lyndon Johnson here in 1968, the media decided McCarthy was the winner. It's stupid."

Turned down ambassadorships and says that if Bush wins, he will likely refuse to take any job outside his state.

"I am basically a New Hampshire businessman," he says. "I just want to see a man become President who can listen to the facts, use good judgment and make a decision. So this is my hobby. I suppose, subliminally, it's a sense of duty. I don't want to leave New Hampshire."

Mark Russell says

Taiwan is doing well in the Olympics — they've already won a gold shaft.

The officials have asked the Taiwan team to give up their nationalities for two weeks and become honorary citizens of the village of Lake Placid, N.Y.

As Lake Placidians, the ex-Taiwan athletes are entitled to a free oil change at Irving's Texaco as well as a hot chocolate on the house at the Adirondack Diner.

This year the dumping of Taiwan has a new twist. The officials rescue the Taiwan flag, run it across the field and give it to the team of the People's Republic of China — as a reward for boycotting the Games for 30 years.

Wildcat Committee honors Moore

Stanley C. Moore, founder of the Midland Wildcat Committee, was honored with a reception Tuesday in the Petroleum Club of Midland, along with officers and directors of Smith International, Inc., a company he once headed. Moore announced at the reception he would retire April 24 as a director of Smith International. He said he would continue to make his home in Midland. Moore was the founder of Drilco in 1949 in Midland and Houston. That firm was merged into Smith International, Inc., in 1967 and continues to operate as Drilco Division of SI with headquarters in Houston. Moore has served as a director or chairman of the board of Smith since the merger. He was chairman of the board from 1975 to 1976. Drilco Industrial, another division of SI, is headquartered in Midland, and another division, Smith Tools is headquartered in Newport Beach, Calif. Jerry W. Neely of Newport Beach, chairman of the board and president of Smith International, was among the guests of the Midland Wildcat Committee Tuesday. Directors here for the event were A. M. Birnie, South Laguna, Calif.; Robert L. Flynne, Laguna Niguel, Calif., a former chairman of the board of Smith International; Basil P. Kantzer, Beverly Hills, Calif.; James W. Roche, Englewood, Colo.; E. O. Rodeffer, Coronado del Mar, Calif.; Harold H. Smith, Laguna Niguel, and H. S. Voegelin, Newport Beach. Joe Kloesel, president of Drilco Industrial, was among the Wildcat Committee guests. Robert L. Wood, chairman of the executive committee of the Midland Wildcat Committee, presented Moore a plaque recognizing his founding of the committee. Neely pointed out that huge sums of money have been spent at the Drilco Industrial plant in Midland during the last two years. The division manufactures tools for the mining industry. "We will continue to improve and enlarge the Midland plant as the prices for industrial metals such as copper continue to increase causing an increase in mining activities," Neely said. Neely said more than 300 persons are employed in Midland by Drilco Industrial. "We are very proud of the way many of our employees here take the time to participate in civic and professional activities in the Permian Basin," he said. Kloesel is the past president of the Midland Chamber of Commerce.

Dingell attempting to stall action on energy committee

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., already a power in the House on energy issues, says he'll seek the chairmanship of the full House Commerce Committee next year upon the retirement of longtime chairman Harley O. Staggers. At the same time, Dingell is seeking to stall House action on a proposal to create a new single House Energy Committee that would strip the Commerce Committee of much of its energy jurisdiction. House Democrats were caucusing for a single energy committee, Dingell said. House sources say chances for creation of a new energy panel seem slim — partly because of the strong opposition of Dingell and other senior Democrats to moving ahead with it at this time. Staggers, meanwhile, said he plans to spend his retirement traveling, seeing more of his family, writing and enjoying life on his farm in Keyser, W.Va. A former high school and college football coach, Staggers was first elected in 1948 after serving a term as sheriff of Mineral County, W.Va. His House service spans seven presidents and "I think I got along with all of them all right," although he was most impressed by Harry S. Truman and John F. Kennedy, Staggers said. "My life in Washington has been very fulfilling," he said, "but I've been contemplating retirement for some time."

ENERGY OIL & GAS

Staggers, D-W.Va., announced Tuesday that he is stepping down after 32 years in the House. "I think the time has come that I should just stop," Staggers, 72, told a news conference. In an interview, Dingell confirmed he wants to be Staggers' successor as head of the committee, which has one of the widest-ranging jurisdictions of any panel in Congress. "I've always had an ambition to be chairman of the Commerce Committee," Dingell said. Besides energy, the panel oversees health and consumer issues, the communications industry and many federal regulatory agencies besides having its own traditionally aggressive investigative unit. Dingell is the second-most-senior Democrat on the panel after Staggers. Despite Dingell's seniority, his ascension to the committee chairmanship is not automatic and must be voted upon by the full House Democratic membership. Dingell said Tuesday, however, that he does not anticipate a challenge. Staggers, too, said he foresees Dingell taking over the committee reins. Dingell also disclosed that he may seek to retain his chairmanship of the energy and power subcommittee — where most major House energy legislation either originates or is referred. That would put Dingell in a position of unusual influence over energy legislation. It is atypical — although not unprecedented — for a committee chairman to also be chairman of one of his subcommittees. Dingell has been a leading opponent of the proposal to put energy jurisdiction now in the Commerce Committee and scattered over a number of other House panels into a new unified Energy Committee. In a "Dear Colleague" letter, Dingell urged fellow Democrats to vote today for a resolution by Rep. Jonathan B. Bingham, D-N.Y., to postpone all consideration of a revamped energy committee until other House procedures have been streamlined. Dingell denies his expectations of becoming Commerce Committee chairman are behind his move to stall work on the proposed panel. "I see a lot of imperfections in the proposal"

Deep wildcat staked in Lea

Lea County, N.M., gained location for a 13,800-foot wildcat, while six field tests were spotted. The Superior Oil Co. will drill the 13,800-foot wildcat as the No. 1 Bondurant-Federal Communitized, 5/8 mile southwest of Tonto, West (Morrow gas) production, 7/8 mile northwest of Morrow oil production, 42 mile east of Carlsbad. Drillsite is 1,980 feet from south and 660 feet from east lines of section 1-19S-32E. Gulf Oil Corp. will drill the No. 1-4 Federal Communitized as a 13,100-foot Morrow test in the Lusk, North field of Lea County, 1/2 mile west of production, 34 miles west of Hobbs. Location spots 1,980 from south and west lines of section 4-19S-32E. Dinero Operating Co. of Midland filed application to drill the No. 1 Eidson as a 12,900-foot Morrow test in the Townsend field, 1.25 miles west of Morrow gas production, eight miles northeast of Buckeye. Ground elevation is 4,011 feet. Amoco Production Co. staked location for four 10,800-foot Wolfcamp tests in the Airstrip field of Lea County, six miles south of Buckeye. The No. 1-AI State will attempt to extend Wolfcamp production 1/2-mile southwest, located 660 from north and west lines of section 36-18S-34E. Ground elevation is 3,975 feet. Amoco's No. 4-FU State will extend Wolfcamp production 3/8-mile northeast, with location of 1,980 from north and east lines of section 25-18S-34E. Ground elevation is 3,965 feet. Amoco's No. 2-HR State is scheduled 3/8 mile southwest of Wolfcamp production, separated by Bone Springs production, 330 from north and 660 from east lines of section 36-18S-34E. Ground elevation is 3,955 feet. Amoco will drill the No. 2-HQ State 1/2-mile west of Wolfcamp production in an attempt to extend production, located 1,780 from south and 480 from east lines of section 26-18S-34E. Ground elevation is 3,975 feet.

Sunshine, warm temperatures encourage crowds

'Pretty tame' Mardi Gras celebration reported

By BILL CRIDER

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — More than 1 million people, encouraged by sunshine and 70-degree temperatures, turned out for what was billed as "the biggest free party in the world" — Mardi Gras.

The revelers were making up for last year when the big Mardi Gras street parades and much of the accompanying bacchanalia were canceled or moved to the suburbs because of a strike by New Orleans police.

This year, police in New Orleans and suburban Jefferson Parish guessed that 1.5 million — perhaps more — turned out for the big Fat Tuesday bash that precedes Ash Wednesday and the beginning of Lent.

It was a state holiday. Bus and trolley service stopped on parade routes. No mail was delivered anywhere in New Orleans and its suburbs. A policeman who worked from 6 a.m. Tuesday to the stroke of midnight in the district which covers the mile-square French Quarter said the 600,000 to 700,000 persons who turned out for Mardi Gras 1978 couldn't hold a candle to Tuesday's downtown crowds.

"The crowds were unreal," said the officer, who asked not to be identified. "One guy was stabbed in the eye when he and his lady friend resisted two holdup men, but otherwise it was the usual Mardi Gras purse snatchings, auto burglaries, drinking and fighting — serious enough, but fairly tame stuff for Mardi Gras."

Lt. Don Borne of the Jefferson Parish Sheriff's Department guessed the crowd at Metairie's Krewe of Arġus parade — singer-actress Connie Stevens was queen — easily topped the record 700,000 last year.

Before the party ended in New Orleans, the all-black Zulu parade was first to roll down historic St. Charles Avenue with its floatsmen selectively awarding sought-after gilded coconuts. Woody Herman and his big-band Herd blew jazz for the Zulu Ball, the first white band to do so.

After Zulu came Rex, the only Carnival king on Mardi Gras day. And parade crowds from Canal Street to the Garden District cavorted in their gorilla suits, clown outfits and painted faces.

At one French Quarter bar, a man entered in the annual drag queen contest flirted with sailors from a visiting British aircraft carrier.

The police officer estimated there wasn't a vacant first-class motel or hotel room within 20 miles. But hotel officials had not rolled back their estimate that 500 of the area's 20,000 rooms would go begging because of inflation and fears that police might strike again.

Former agent ordered to give up book profits

By RICHARD CARELLI

WASHINGTON (AP) — "I'm shocked. I'm now facing abject poverty," ex-CIA agent Frank Snepp said after being ordered by the Supreme Court to give the government all the profits from a book he wrote without the spy agency's approval.

Interviewed by telephone hours after the court's decision was announced Tuesday, Snepp said the shock had not worn off.

"I'm stunned that the court acted without even hearing arguments," he said. "I've been waiting for some word in the case but I never expected this."

Snepp wrote "Decent Interval," a book highly critical of U.S. involvement in Vietnam. The book was published in 1977 without first being submitted to the CIA — in violation of contracts Snepp signed when joining the agency.

By a 6-3 vote Tuesday, the justices ruled that because Snepp violated his contractual obligation he's not entitled to any of the profits reaped.

"This remedy is the natural and customary consequence of a breach of trust," the court said.

Snepp said the ruling means he must return about $118,000 to the government — most of which already is spent.

Noting that he is in debt to his publisher for $10,000 — "money to live on" — Snepp said his total debt is about $130,000.

"I don't know how I'll go about paying this off," he said.

Snepp's free-speech arguments — contending that the contracts covering even non-classified information imposed unconstitutional prior restraints — were rejected in a footnote to the court's unsigned opinion.

"This court's cases make clear that ... the CIA could have acted to protect substantial government interests by imposing reasonable restrictions on employee activities that in other contexts might be protected by free-speech rights," the opinion said.

Justice John Paul Stevens, in a dissenting opinion for himself and Justices William J. Brennan Jr. and Thurgood Marshall, called the ruling "unprecedented and drastic."

Returning from a four-week recess, the court announced orders and decisions in some 500 other cases Tuesday, including these actions:

— Ordered the federal government to pay for most abortions wanted by women on welfare — at least until the justices decide on the validity of a Medicaid spending restriction imposed by Congress. Shortly after the decision was announced the government agency that oversees Medicaid abortions sent out notices saying it was complying with the decision and lifting abortion restrictions.

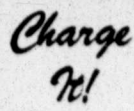

— Agreed to decide whether a Jehovah's Witness from Gary, Ind., is entitled to state unemployment benefits after quitting his job at a weapons factory because of his religious opposition to war.

— Refused to limit how far the Federal Election Commission can go in determining whether a presidential candidate qualifies for taxpayer matching funds.

Courtney school: Former students still remember

COURTNEY — Loyace B. Hazlewood can just glance across the sandy road and see visions of school days long since past.

He lives on farmland within hollering distance of the place where he got his education.

"When I was going to school out there, we had to play (basket) ball on that dirt court. It was dusty and cold, and sometimes it was sleeting," Hazlewood recalled.

Well, the weather is still here, but the school building is gone.

It was razed in the 1970s — some 20 years after the Courtney school and other consolidated rural Martin County schools were absorbed by encroaching Stanton. Grady took in other rural schools, such as those at Lenora and Tarzan. And gone, too, are rural schools such as Valley View, South Plains and Brown.

About all that's left of the former Courtney school is the old gymnasium, which still has good hardwood floors, albeit covered by dust and speckled by droppings from roosting birds.

And the old gym, which was built in 1939, today is no more than a storage house for J.T. and Midge Britt. They bought the place awhile back for both have an affinity for the serenity of rural life.

Though certainly in ill repair, the old gymnasium-auditorium still is a substantial building. The wood that makes up the skeletal structure is in top-notch condition.

"Yeah," said Hazlewood, 63, after he had returned from work late in the afternoon, "there's good lumber in that thing. It's No. 1 stuff."

Hazlewood's last year at Courtney High School was 1934, about five years before the gym was built. His sentiment persuaded him to hang on to his old sport sweater, which he keeps tucked away and only occasionally brings out. It's marked by a big C.

"I had to sell a sheep to get it," Hazlewood recalled. "I got $6 for the lamb; I think that's what the sweater cost."

The demise of the rural schools in the 1940s and 1950s spelled the reluctant death of "old" Courtney, where the school was the center of community activities. Folks gradually moved into town — Stanton — and brought their memories with them.

Peggy Cross, Class of 1951, did. She's now Peggy Creech.

"We were just sick about it," she said of the death of Courtney High School, where blue and gold were the school colors and the lofty Eagle was the mascot. "But they didn't ask us about it. We were just little ol' Courtney school, and we gave way to the big school" — Stanton.

Though Mrs. Creech may go back to the community where she grew up and to the former school grounds where she studied and played, she can never really "go back" in time except through the mind's eye.

If and when she does, she may stumble upon mind-jogging sights, such as an old circular bloop of concrete, which bears school kids' markings from 1948.

Names, printed by finger or stick in the "wet" cement 32 years ago, include Bobby Creech, Shirley, Hubert, Johnny, James Rhodes, Dorothy, Virginia and the heart-outlined names of Lanell and Deloris.

"Lanell and Deloris were two good friends," Ms. Creech reminisced. "Whenever I think of them I think about how they giggled... They giggled constantly."

It's what's not seen that thrills and pains the memory.

Mrs. Creech recalls a comment her late brother, Taylor Cross, made in the 1970s just after the old school building had been torn down and the contents scattered to the winds or dumped by some insensitive soul.

"That makes my heart hurt," he had said in his sadness. Others share his sentiment.

Farmers using different approach to Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers seeking higher crop prices and continued incentives for gasohol are approaching Congress without the tractors or the anger that marked last year's visit — and it's paying off.

"They're glad to see us come just with our hats and nothing else," Marvin Meek, chairman of the American Agriculture Movement, said Tuesday.

"We put 50,000 farmers up here the first year and 30,000 farmers and 1,200 tractors last year," Meek reminded hundreds of AAM members at the opening of their two-day convention.

Meeks said the tractors, which snarled traffic and caused about $3.6 million damage to the Mall between the Capitol and the Washington Monument, got the attention of the public.

"But they (the congressmen) haven't listened," Meeks said. "So now we're going to try to slide in. We're going to work with them, lobby them, answer their questions."

CORRECTIONS:

The description of the pants that fit on page 3 of our Bargain Days, supplement in Tuesday's newspaper is incorrect.

The correct description is "Polyester double knit pants with elastic pull on waistband. PermaPress, fashion colors, Misses proportioned sizes."

The men's sweat shirts on page 1 are not available. We regret any inconvenience this may cause.

Customers should bear cost of mishap, legal experts say

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Regardless of who was responsible for the nuclear accident at Three Mile Island, two legal experts say utility customers should bear most of the resulting costs.

"It's a blind alley to question whose fault it was," George Avery, a Washington lawyer, told the Public Utility Commission on Tuesday.

"If there were insurance that insurance would cover an accident... regardless of whether there was fault or not," added Guido Calabresi, a Yale University law professor.

The comments came during PUC hearings stemming from the March 28, 1979 accident that shut down the nuclear plant operated by Metropolitan Edison Co. The PUC is investigating whether Met Ed should stay in business and, if so, how much it should earn.

Avery and Calabresi said customers of Met Ed and the other utilities that own Three Mile Island should be charged the equivalent of retroactive insurance rates to cover the accident costs. Stockholders should pay the equivalent of "a reasonable insurance deductible" to provide an incentive for safer service, they added.

BEFORE YOU FILE YOUR TAX RETURN... WAIT!

If you have not yet filed your 1979 Federal Income Tax return, you could be on your way to securing your own retirement as well as deferring until your retirement up to $1500 of your 1979 income tax. How? By opening or adding to your Individual Retirement Account (IRA) at First Savings and Loan in Midland. IRAs permit employees not now covered by a company retirement program to contribute to their own retirement up to 15% of their annual salary not to exceed $1500 each year. The amount you set aside each year can be deferred until age 59½ or until you retire.

But to take advantage of the tax deferral for 1979, you must open or add to your IRA at First Savings before you file your tax return. Don't miss this golden opportunity to benefit from First Savings high interest savings and a deferral of your federal income taxes. See one of the Fiscal Fitness People at either First Savings location soon...at any case before you file for 1979.

If you have already filed for 1979, there is time to start your IRA for 1980.

Teamsters union considering invitation to join AFL-CIO

BAL HARBOUR, Fla. (AP) — The Teamsters union, an outpost from the mainstream of American labor for the past 23 years, is considering an invitation to return to the AFL-CIO.

Teamsters and AFL-CIO officials disclosed Tuesday that the nation's largest union has set up an exploratory committee to review a possible reconciliation with the 13.6-million member labor federation.

The late George Meany, the AFL-CIO's only president until last year, expelled the 2-million member Teamsters from the federation in 1957 on charges of corruption. Meany remained a bitter critic of the Teamsters leadership and ethical standards ever since, and opposed the union's reaffiliation right up until his retirement in November.

But Lane Kirkland, Meany's successor, immediately broke with his mentor on the issue upon his election as federation president by urging the Teamsters to return under a single house of labor. Kirkland also invited two other independent unions — the United Auto Workers and United Mine Workers — to return to the AFL-CIO.

At a news conference in this oceanside resort, where the federation's executive council is holding its winter meeting, Kirkland announced that the Teamsters leadership appointed a committee to meet with AFL-CIO officials.

AFL-CIO leaders predict there would be no opposition within the Executive Council if the Teamsters were to agree to return.

The UAW broke away voluntarily from the AFL-CIO in 1968 because of policy differences.

Bulldogs drop Lee; Force playoff

By BOB DILLON
Sports Writer

It's showdown time in District 5-4A.

Coach Jack Stephenson's smooth-working Midland Bulldogs took an impressive 65-41 victory over the Midland Lee Rebels while Odessa Permian was destroying the Odessa High Bronchos, 103-77 Tuesday night to bring about a two-way tie between the Bulldogs and Panthers for the second half title.

Midland and Permian also tied for the first half crown with 6-1 readings, the same as the second half, so they will square off at 8 p.m. Friday in the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum in Big Spring for the 5-4A boys championship and a berth in the Class AAAA state playoffs next Tuesday against either Wichita Falls or Wichita Falls Rider. Wichita Falls took a 56-55 win Tuesday night over Rider and the two Red River rivals meet again today at 7:30 p.m. on the Midwestern University campus to determine the 6-4A championship and a berth against either Midland or Permian in the bi-district playoffs.

THE BULLDOGS threw up a tremendous defense to chalk up their 30th victory of the season against six losses, to give them another shot at Permian.

Herbert Johnson, Perry Bolger and Anthony Carroll led the way for Stephenson's talented crew which has been playing awfully well in recent games.

"The youngsters played tremendous defense for us tonight," shouted Stephenson in a happy Bulldog locker-room afterwards. On the blackboard was the 30-6 record as Midland High celebrated its big triumph. The win gives Midland a 21-19 edge in the overall series.

Johnson sprained his ankle Monday in workouts, but played probably his best overall game of the year Tuesday night. "We were really worried about Herbert and even afraid that he couldn't play, but he came up with his best performance of the year for us," said Stephenson.

STEPHENSON COULDN'T say enough about his defense. "We were concerned at the start of the season over our defense, but I feel like we have the best in this part of the state and against Abilene Cooper and Lee, we proved that," said a happy Stephenson afterwards.

Johnson pumped in 18 points while Bolger added 14 and Carroll 12 more as the Purple Pack took a 17-12 first period lead and never looked back. In fact, in the second half, Stephenson used his second string a lot after piling up leads of 20 points.

BOLGER GOT Midland off to a great start in the opening period, hitting four baskets and Horace Brown, a 6-foot-2 junior who has improved a great deal during the season, hit two key baskets for the defending 5-4A champions.

MHS increased its lead to 37-21 at halftime and after outscoring the Rebels, 10-5 in the third period, it was all over for the gutty Rebels, who just couldn't find the basket enough in the second half.

Tim Fisher and Tim Walker led the Lee attack with 14 and 10 points, but the Pack was not going to be denied in this one.

ATHLETIC DIRECTOR Gil Bartosh said that MHS and Permian will flip for home and visiting uniforms sometime today. Tickets for the championship game in Big Spring Friday night are $2 for adults and $1 for students.

Midland hit 11 of 15 free throws while Lee connected on nine of 16 charity tosses before the crowd of more than 3,000 fans.

The Bulldogs chose to slow it down a lot in the second half, but they came up with the easy or sure basket enough to post a 47-26 lead going into the final period of action.

In the final quarter, the Pack outscored Lee 18-15 to ice the victory.

LEE PLAYED without the services of senior guard David Keys who was out with the flu, but the Bulldogs, playing very well in recent games, just outmanned their cross-town rivals in this big game.

Permian takes a 23-9 mark into Friday's showdown battle. Midland beat Mojo, 78-70 in the first half of the race and Permian came back to post a 75-66 overtime victory in the second half.

LEE AND MHS split games in the sophomore and junior varsity tilts with Midland winning the sophomore contest, 63-35 and the Lee JV posting a 68-65 victory to go unbeaten in the second half of 5-4A play.

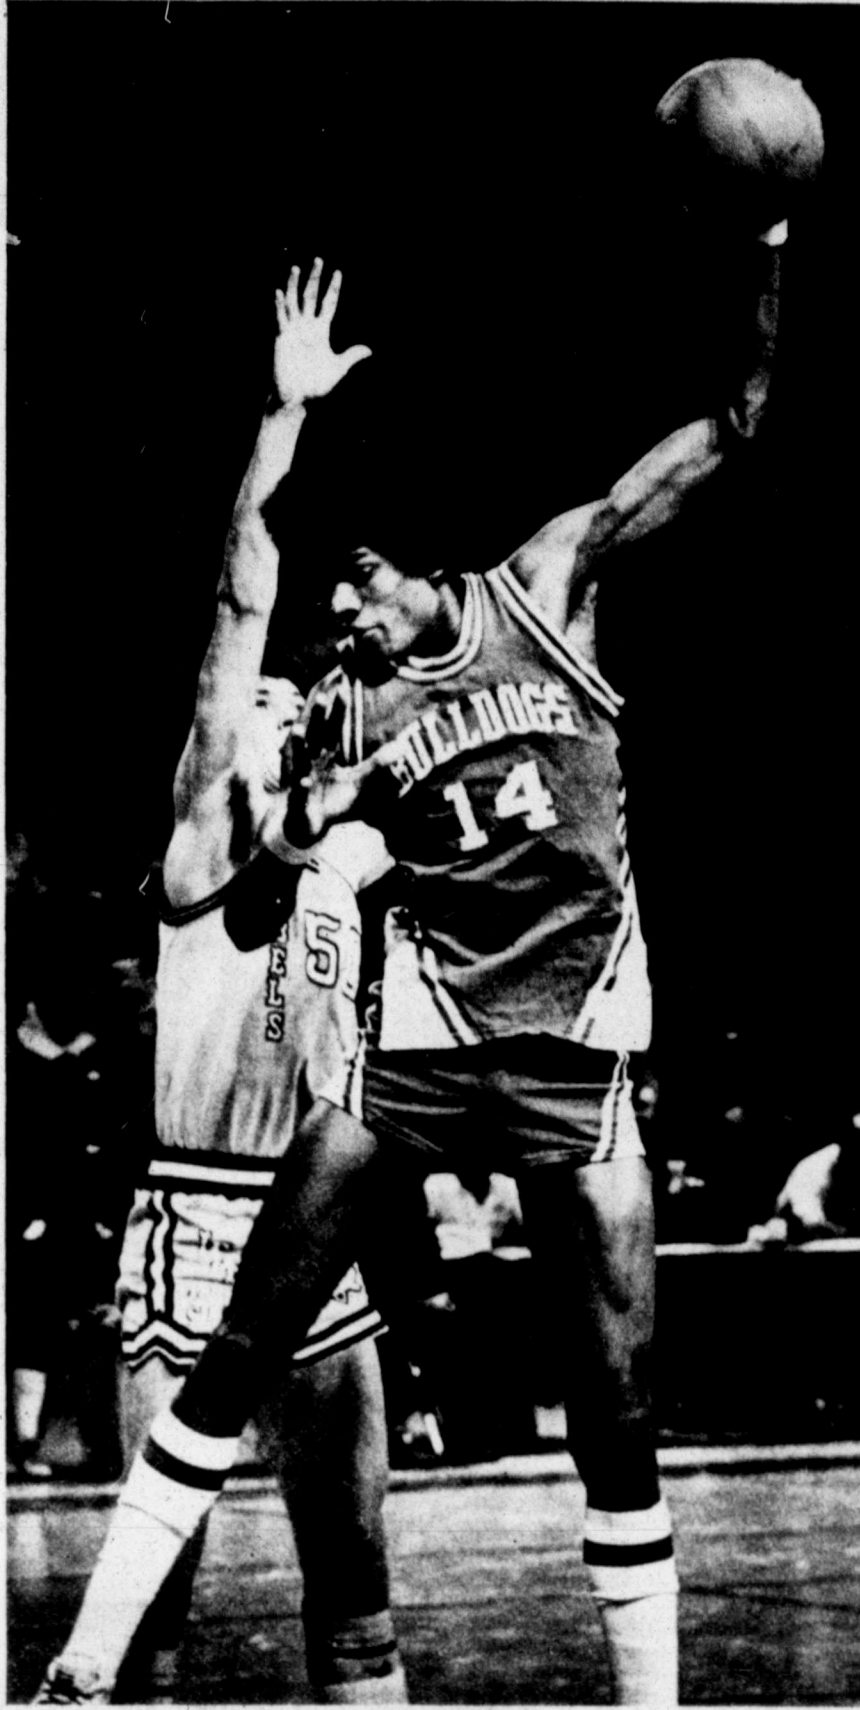

Scott Sears and Pat Dixon led the MHS sophos with 15 and 12 points while Lee didn't have anybody in the double figures.

Alvin Dunson's 15 points led the Lee JV while Don Sharnowski netted 16 for the Bullpups and Mike Velasco had 15.

Don't look now, but baseball spring training is just around the corner

By The Associated Press

While most of America and the world concentrates on the skiing, skating and sledding of the Winter Olympics in Lake Placid, major league baseball will quietly begin spring training.

The Atlanta Braves, who finished last in the National League West in 1979, were first in official camp openings when pitchers and catchers reported to their West Palm Beach, Fla., site.

The New York Yankees' camp in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., opened last Thursday and four more camps — the Cleveland Indians in Tucson, Ariz., the Oakland A's in Scottsdale, Ariz., the Detroit Tigers in Lakeland, Fla., and the Minnesota Twins in Orlando, Fla. — Friday.

The last of the 26 major league teams to set up shop will be the Milwaukee Brewers, March 1 in Sun City, Ariz. Technically, workouts prior to March 1 are "by invitation only," with player participation not required until then.

The exhibition season opens March 7 with the Indians visiting the Mexico City Red Devils. It is one of nine spring training games being played outside the United States.

Two of them — March 24-25 between Detroit and St. Louis in Puerto Rico — make up the Roberto Clemente Series, with proceeds going toward construction of the sports complex named after the late Pittsburgh Pirates star. This is the first time since the series began in 1974 that the Pirates, last year's world champions, are not participating in it.

The exhibition season also includes six games between major leaguers and collegians. One of them — March 28 at Tallahassee, Fla. — will send the New York Yankees against Florida State University. Dick Howerer coached FSU last year, before being named to succeed Billy Martin as manager of the Yanks.

Permian destroys Odessa; Cooper handles Warbirds

Odessa Permian, Abilene Cooper and San Angelo posted District 5-4A basketball wins Tuesday night.

Permian gunned down Odessa High, 103-77 with Brad Kerley ripping the cords for 22 points and Duane Adams 20 more. Teammate Scott Wynne added 19 to give Permian a 6-1 record, the same as Midland to force a playoff game between the Panthers and Bulldogs in Big Spring Friday night.

Big gun for OHS was Mike Cobb with 24 points.

Cooper downed Abilene, 61-50 and Central took a 73-45 victory over winless Big Spring.

Ken Henry scored 26 points for Cooper while P.K. McGee had 13 for Abilene. In the Central-Big Spring game, Charles Bishop led the Bobcats with 21 points. High point man for the Steers was Dick Wrightsil with 11 points as Big Spring wound up 0-7 in the second half of the race.

No doubt about it: Skater Eric Heiden is U.S. star

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — Skating with pure power and awesome ability, Eric Heiden has emerged as the unquestioned individual star of the 1980 Winter Olympics, an ice and snow festival that is becoming a one-man showcase of brilliance for the 21-year-old from Madison, Wisc.

Heiden claimed his third gold medal in as many races and stayed on target for an unprecedented five-event speed skating sweep, shattering another Olympic mark in winning the 1,000-meter test Tuesday.

And while Heiden dominates his events as few athletes ever have, these Olympics also are developing as the Get Even Games — one more chance for champions to claim the gold medals that have eluded them until now.

It was super skier Ingemar Stenmark's turn for vindication Tuesday, and the Swedish star came through, capturing the men's giant slalom with a stirring second run down Whiteface Mountain that propelled him from third place to the gold medal he has been waiting four years to claim.

STENMARK'S victory marked the second time this week that Whiteface's frozen slopes have surrendered Olympic gold to a veteran skier. Earlier, Austrian ski queen Annemarie Moser-Proell ended years of frustration by winning the women's downhill race.

East Germany dominated Tuesday's results, claiming three more golds and moving into a 16-16 tie with the Soviet Union in total medals. The Soviets have won seven gold medals, the East Germans six. The United States has three gold medals, five total. Austria has three gold, six total.

Tuesday's East German golds went to veteran Ulrich Wehling, who captured his third straight Olympic Nordic Combined crown, Frank Ullrich in the 10-kilometer biathlon and Hans Riin and Norbert Hahn, who successfully defended their two-man luge title.

The ice dancing gold medal was won by the Soviets' world champions, Natalia Linichuk and Gennadi Karponosov in a narrow and unpopular decision over Krikszina Regoczy and Andras Sallay of Hungary. Irina Moiseeva and Andrei Minenkov of the Soviet Union took the bronze medal.

Heiden and Stenmark were decisive winners in their events, overwhelming the opposition with performances that were tributes to their abilities.

All but flying over the speed skating oval, Heiden blazed to a time of 1 minute, 15.18 seconds for the 1,000 meters on Saturday. Then Heiden, a four-time world champion, may turn to other pursuits. Roenning, for one, hopes so.

"That's what we're waiting for," the Norwegian skater said. "There's no excitement to racing now. The medals are delivered before the races are won."

Like Heiden, Stenmark has been pointing to these Games for some time, searching for Olympic re-venge.

In 1976 at Innsbruck, Stenmark, then 19, was the gold medal favorite but managed only a disappointing bronze in the giant slalom. That gave him four years to prepare for Lake Placid and the gold he missed the first time around. This time, he got it.

Stenmark, who has won an amazing 14 consecutive World Cup giant slaloms, captured the Olympic race by three-quarters of a second over Andreas Wenzel of Liechtenstein, the first heat leader. And, as he has in 10 of those World Cup races, Stenmark charged from behind to claim the gold.

Heiden's powerful legs have delivered golds at 500, 1,000 and 5,000 meters. Still ahead are the 1,500-meter race Thursday and the 10,000 meters on Saturday. Then Heiden, a four-time world champion, may turn to other pursuits. Roenning, for one, hopes so.

"That's what we're waiting for," the Norwegian skater said. "There's no excitement to racing now. The medals are delivered before the races are won."

In 1976 at Innsbruck, Stenmark, then 19, was the gold medal favorite but managed only a disappointing bronze in the giant slalom. That gave him four years to prepare for Lake Placid and the gold he missed the first time around. This time, he got it.

Stenmark, who has won an amazing 14 consecutive World Cup giant slaloms, captured the Olympic race by three-quarters of a second over Andreas Wenzel of Liechtenstein, the first heat leader. And, as he has in 10 of those World Cup races, Stenmark charged from behind to claim the gold.

Heiden's powerful legs have delivered golds at 500, 1,000 and 5,000 meters. Still ahead are the 1,500-meter race Thursday and the 10,000 meters on Saturday. Then Heiden, a four-time world champion, may turn to other pursuits. Roenning, for one, hopes so.

"That's what we're waiting for," the Norwegian skater said. "There's no excitement to racing now. The medals are delivered before the races are won."

Like Heiden, Stenmark has been pointing to these Games for some time, searching for Olympic re-venge.

Bobsledders are a very different breed

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — They are a tough, steely-eyed breed whose virtual anonymity has drawn them into a tight, fiercely loyal family that resents outsiders.

Bobsledders look with disdain on skiers swishing down the mountain-side, speed skaters cruising monotonously around a flat, glazed track and figure skaters doing their pirouettes to the strains of romantic music.

"Is this sport?" scoff the sledders, spitting tobacco juice in the snow.

Now controversy is swirling about the heads of these daredevils who make up the U.S. four-man bobsled teams in the XIII Winter Olympic Games.

The guys on sled No. 2 glare at the guys on sled No. 1. There is an obvious edginess among these leathery, middle-aged competitors who risk life and limb every time they send their half-ton of steel and flesh hurtling down the chute of ice on the Olympic bobsled run.

Is it Willie Davenport's fault?

Are there, as some have reported, racial prejudices — stoutly denied by all the principals concerned? Or is it a simple case of jealousy or resentment of intrusion from a new and outside force?

Would such resentment, if such exists, be the same if Willie were white instead of black or just an ordinary man from Baton Rouge, La., who had not won an Olympic gold medal in another sport in the summertime. And established himself as a special celebrity — an attempt to become the second man in history to win gold medals in both the Summer and Winter Games?

Or is it, as all the principals insist, a case of over-reaction by an aggressive press, an insignificant issue blown all out of proportion?

"It's all implied," said an angered Davenport, who had been pictured in some newspapers as the source of dissention on the team. "People are twisting things around. They are fooling with our minds."

The issue surfaced Monday when the team coach, Gary Sheffield, and members of the No. 2 sled appeared at a formal press conference. Davenport and his sled mates failed to attend. Sheffield admitted he wanted to make a last minute change in the No. 1 sled (apparently by replacing Davenport and Jeff Jordan, each with less than a year's experience) but reneged when Bob Hickey, the driver, refused to go along.

Absence of Davenport and the apparent edginess of the sledders triggered festering rumors. Wasn't it true that some of the team resented the fact that Davenport was getting so much newspaper attention? Didn't the sledders get sore because Davenport went home to Louisiana for 10 days prior to opening of the Games? Weren't there racial problems?

Such queries gained credence when Howard Siler, driver of the No. 2, sled, asked, "Are we here to win a medal... or be loyal to our friends?" He added, "What fried our minds was that Willie said bobsledders are white and rich."

Willie, a gold medal hurdler at Mexico City in 1968, woke up Tuesday to see his name in the headlines as a sore spot on the team.

"That made me damned mad," he said. "I still am."

He went on to explain that on Feb. 5 after the team had been selected he was asked by a reporter: "Willie, bobsledding is a white rich man's sport, how did you get into it?" "I replied that I wasn't rich," he said.

Both he and Sheffield strongly denied any racial conflicts. "Blown all out of proportion," they insisted.

But how did such a disturbance erupt in the first place?

Lake Placid has the only bobsled run in the country. Most bobsledders are rugged characters, many former military men, who come from this neck of the woods — Malone, Saranac Lake, Plattsburgh, Keene, Brushton. They have carved their initials in ice a thousand times without fanfare or recognition.

Now a new group is moving in, like Davenport and guys from as far away as Virginia, Ohio and Phoenix, Ariz. Only Davenport has come with his own press entourage.

It's unsettling to the men who have given their lives and blood to the sport. But they are hardy bunch. They can survive it and, if their sport goes national, they can give ol' Willie a vote of thanks.

League champ Lee dominates girls' All-District team

Bulldogs place two on 5-4A unit; Watkins is MVP

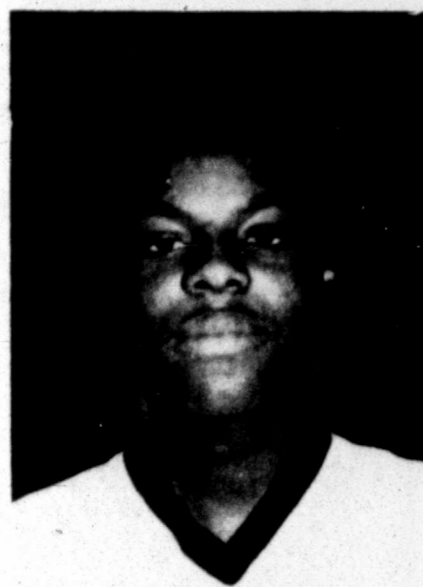

Midland Lee's Leshia Watkins was named Tuesday as District 5-4A's most valuable player for the 1979-80 girls basketball season after coaches selected the All-District team.

Lee, the three-time district champions, dominated the selections with junior Gale Wilson and senior Judy Taylor also being named to the first team. Senior Tanna Parrish was given honorable mention.

The Midland High Bulldogs placed seniors Jana Trolinder and Margaret Christian to the first team while Sandra Rock was named as an honorable mention selection.

Abilene High's Tracy Hubbard was picked as the sophomore of the year and Odessa Permian coach Nan Barber was selected as coach of the year.

Other first team selections were Renee Morgan, Abilene Cooper, senior; Karen Washington, Abilene High, senior; Debra Grant, Abilene High, senior;

The District 5-4A girls league has only been in existence for three years and the Lee Rebels, under the direction of coach Shirley Stephenson, have won all three league championships. The Rebels fell to Lewisville in the bi-district round of the playoffs Monday in Abilene.

Midland's Jana Trolinder

Future of Olympics clouded by many problems ...

By JOE STEIN
Copley News Service

While the pressure builds for an American boycott of Moscow — an action that undoubtedly would spell doom for the 1984 Olympics in Los Angeles — the power brokers in Los Angeles act as if the Games are a sure thing four years from now.

The Los Angeles theory is that what happens in 1980 shouldn't have any effect on 1984, that the Afghanistan crisis undoubtedly will be forgotten by then. Perhaps, but you don't suppose that the Russians would merely shrug off having their Olympics undermined, do you?

The first threat to the Los Angeles Games would come from the International Olympic Committee, which isn't taking kindly to talk of a boycott this summer. Should President Carter's threats become reality, the IOC just might strip Los Angeles of the Games out of spite.

Then there's the potential of Russian mischief in 1984 — everything from boycotting Los Angeles outright to leading a last-minute pullout of nations within the Soviet sphere of influence.

Now, there's nothing wrong with Los Angeles hoping that all will be sweetness and light in the future and making tentative plans. There's a great deal wrong with spending the profits from something that might never take place and, if it does, probably will run deeply in the red.

But that's exactly what's happening in Los Angeles, where millions of dollars that supposedly will come from 1984 Olympics receipts are being promised to the Oakland Raiders in hopes of luring that club into the Coliseum.

Oh, well, even if the Los Angeles Games don't come off, the taxpayers always can pick up whatever tab the big spenders run up. The Los Angeles power brokers don't really require a means to pay the bills. They just need on 1980 costs.

There can be no accurate estimate of profits when, for example, no one knows what the cost of security will be. In view of the unsettling conditions in the world today, can you imagine how impossible the task

...but things could be much worse...

The trouble with the controversy over whether we attend the 1980 Moscow Olympics this summer is that it has degenerated into a dove-hawk debate.

The hawks want to get at Russia any way they can and, since we're incapable militarily, this will have to do for the time being.

The doves are afraid this will only solidify enmity on the part of Russians not yet committed because, as the world well knows, hell hath no fury like a host or hostess scorned.

I think we can find a way to attend the Olympics and please both factions, still satisfying those who want to "teach the Russians a lesson." It will require only a slight modification of the competitions. Such as:

THE JAVELIN THROW — It would no longer be enough to have the spear merely penetrate the earth on landing to be a legal throw. It would have to stick in someone to make it count. Distance would no longer be the critical factor, only accuracy. For instance, when the U.S. team is throwing, the Russian team would take a position no more than 200 feet away and have to try to catch the spear in flight. Points would be awarded on the basis of 10 points for hitting the heart or jugular, 9 for a fatal stomach wound, dwindling down to 8-7-6 for non-lethal sticks.

THE SHOT PUT — The shot put would be armed and ticking, and a pin would have to be pulled as the putter let go of it. It should be thrown into a simulated machine-gun nest 60 feet away, populated with Soviet shot putters, or, if the Kremlin prefers, with Cuban "volunteers."

DISCUS — Why throw a plate? Let's have rocket-launching, and not by beefy collegians. Let's have it a contest between their captured German scientists and ours. They will see who can hit London the most accurately, recalling what the screenwriter Herman Mankiewicz had to say when asked to do the screenplay on Werner Von Braun's biography, "I Aim For The Stars." Herman, said he would do it with one slight title change: "I Aim For The Stars — but sometimes I hit London." Not all Olympic venues are in the same place. The yachting is in Tallinn, for instance. The rocket launch could be at Peenemunde.

STEEPLECHASE — You know the water jump in this event? Mine it.

HURDLES — We could do one of two things: Make the tops of the hurdles an upside-down guillotine — or move the competition to East Germany and have all the contestants try to jump over the Wall from East to West Germany. Just use the regular border guards. Only don't tell them these are Olympic athletes. Make them wear business suits so the patrol will think they're just ordinary desperate fugitives, not Olympians. On second thought, it wouldn't make any difference to them.

SMALL BORE RIFLE, PRONE — This would be OK, except why target-shoot? Let's have firing squads with real victims. I'm sure the Russians could furnish them. They would like this event. They would be prohibitive favorites for the gold on the basis of experience alone.

20,000-METER WALK — Who cares about a bunch of guys bucking for fallen arches? We'll change this event to prisoner interrogation between the CIA and the KGB. Fingernail-pulling or lighted-cigarettes-against-the-soles-of-the-feet will be out, but gold medals will be awarded on the basis of who can evoke the loudest screams or elicit the most detailed confessions through application of subtle terror. Since the event will require a set of pre-broken characters already on the verge of hysteria, finals will be held in the cellar of Lubinka prison.

an excuse to toss around the money.

The Olympics has given them carte blanche.

In face of the withering inflation, it's impossible to know what financial conditions are going to be 12 months from now, let alone 48 months in the future. Yet, most of the planning for the 1984 Olympics is being predicated would be to protect the athletes and fans if the Olympics had been scheduled in Los Angeles this summer?

In face of the withering inflation, it's impossible to know what financial conditions are going to be 12 months from now, let alone 48 months in the future. Yet, most of the planning for the 1984 Olympics is being predicated on 1980 costs.

A totalitarian state such as the Soviet Union is in a position to provide much tighter security for the Olympics than that which a free society could offer because the Russians don't have to concern themselves with civil rights. Anyone who even looks half way suspicious in Moscow is in big trouble.

In the United States, suspicions aren't enough. Complicating matters even more is the fact persons of all nationalities, with myriad grudges, move about freely. You can be sure the Russians know who is coming and going in the Soviet Union.

The crackdown on Iranian students in this country underscored how lax our immigration service is at keeping track of aliens. If terrorist networks aren't already active in the United States, what's to stop the gradual infiltration of foreign dissidents as the Los Angeles Olympics grow nearer?

If the Games are to live on, they should be designated for a permanent site, a nation such as Greece, where the facilities are standardized and security methods can be imposed and perfected over the years. Besides the political advantages and added safety, there would be a practical athletic advantage if the Games were held in the same site every four years.

The efforts of athletes competing under the same Olympics conditions could be weighed against each other more accurately. Can we really compare marks achieved in Mexico City with those in Munich or Montreal? Of course not.

A permanent site for the Olympics is the only way to go if the Games are to survive.

M-Cubs Boosters gather tonight for first meeting

The Midland Cubs Booster Club will hold its first meeting at 7:30 p.m. tonight at the Coors Service Center on West Highway 80. Applications for membership will be accepted. Dues are $15 per year.

The money is used for Booster Club functions. The Chicago Cubs 1979 highlight film and a slide presentation of the Boosters' trip to Scottsdale, Ariz., last spring will be shown.

Former WJCC standouts star for 4-year colleges

Cullen Mayfield, the former Midland College standout guard who was one of the top five schoolboy players in Texas in his final season at South Oak Cliff, stepped right into a starting guard berth at Midwestern University...

Another former WJCC star, Lewis Lloyd, has been, as promised on the scouting report last year, "the Franchise" for Drake University. Midland fans remember him as the game-wrecker for New Mexico Military Institute last year.

Lloyd attended Overbrook High in Philadelphia, same alma mater as Wilt Chamberlain, but dropped out of school. As a result, he was forced to make up a lot of academic work to gain entrance to NMMI, the strait-laced military school in Roswell. Lloyd drew so many demerits in his first year, 250 hours of marching, he needed a governor's pardon, to get a clean slate. The Pardon was no special favor, it's something that happens to all offenders whenever the governor visits NMMI. Lewis, however, thought it was worth it. "I left a man..."

Pat Culpepper, Midland High's new football coach, doesn't plan to waste any time in finding out what he needs to know about his first Bulldog team. The Purple Pack will face Brownwood, the perennial Class AAA power, in its preseason scrimmage. "Gordon (Wood, Brownwood coach) and I will meet at coaching school and decide where it will be."

That sounds like the kind of scrimmage they could throw open to highest bidders...

Midland Cubs Manager Randy Hundley spent two days apartment hunting while in Midland for the Sports Banquet recently, but came up empty handed. The Cubs Boosters hold their first meeting tonight at the Coors Hospitality room on West Highway 80. A highlights film of the Chicago Cubs' season will be shown, which means Dave Kingman's king-sized home runs and clutch pitching performances by Bruce Sutter, the National League's Cy Young winner, who learned how with the Midland Cubs...

If you are wondering, 15 former Midland Cubs will be reporting to the Chicago Cubs' spring camp in Mesa, Ariz., if they can find a rapids-skimming raft that will take them down the Salt River to the flood stricken area...

Odessa College's string of three straight national junior college women's tennis titles has ended before the season started. The Wranglers simply won't have a team this year as a result of departures in recent weeks that have left first-year Coach Susie Girard with only one player, Sheri Wechel from El Paso Eastwood.

Athletic Director Barry Rodenhaver emphasizes, "We're not dropping women's tennis..." Midland College Coach Brian Gilley knows the feeling, losing a team in midterm. It happened to his men's team this year, but Brian has managed to come up with replacements who will carry on...

Longhorns hammer Texas Tech

Lemons and Myers exchange words during heated game

By JOE STROOP
Associated Press Writer

The most exciting moment in Tuesday's Southwest Conference basketball action came when Texas coach Abe Lemons got into a shouting match with Texas Tech coach Gerald Myers.

As for the games themselves, there was little suspense — the closest contest was a seven-point Rice win over Houston.

Texas A&M moved a full game in front of the conference standings with its 57-48 win over Texas Christian. Texas moved into sole possession of third place with its 76-63 trouncing of Tech, and Rice guaranteed it would not slide into the league cellar with its 81-74 surprise win over Houston.

The Aggies now must get past the slumping Cougars in Houston on Friday to wrap up the regular-season SWC title and gain a bye into the final rounds of the post-season tournament.

The Lemons-Myers face-off erupted when Lemons protested a foul call against one of his players midway through the second half. Players from both benches crowded around the gang of coaches and officials until an orderly settlement was agreed, and Texas cruised on to the 13-point win.

"This game came close to getting out of hand," Lemons said afterward. "We could have had a real donnybrook out there. But I apologized to Gerald (Myers) and he apologized to me. There wasn't much to it."

Myers, though, believed Lemons' outburst fired up the Longhorn players.

"When we had that little fracas they got emotional," he said. "I didn't want him (Lemons) to intimidate the officials and we both lost our self-control and got to hollering at each other... when the game is over it's forgotten."

At College Station, the Aggies slumbered through the opening minutes against TCU until guard David Britton and center Rudy Woods found the hoop and helped A&M shoot away from the outmanned Horned Frogs. Britton later conceded the Aggies might have taken the cellar-dwelling Frogs a bit lightly.

"I think we celebrated a little bit before the game started," he said. "Now we can think ahead to Friday and the championship."

Rice's win at home was its first-ever basketball win over cross-town rival Houston, and the Owls did it at the foul line, sinking 27 of 33 free throws while the Cougars got just eight points on 17 charity tries.

"Yes, I would do some things differently," moaned Cougar coach Guy Lewis. "If I could do it over, I'd make some more free throws."

The SWC winds up regular-season play this weekend, with three games Friday and one on Saturday.

Friday, Baylor visits TCU, A&M travels to Houston and Rice is at Texas. Saturday afternoon, second-place Arkansas will host Texas Tech in a regionally televised game.

Redding sparks Redmen to victory against Owls

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

For some time now, Curtis Redding has been saying that he belongs in St. John's starting lineup.

With Reggie Carter benched by the flu Tuesday night, Redding made some points for his argument against Temple.

The player they call "Hollywood" for his flamboyant court manner scored 17 points, including a crucial field goal in overtime, to lead the nation's seventh-ranked college basketball team to a 63-58 triumph over the Owls.

"St. John's was ripe to be beaten," said Temple Coach Don Casey, referring to a possible letdown after Saturday's tough 72-71 loss to Syracuse.

"But you have to make the kill, and we didn't. We outscored them in field goals (21-19), and we held the game in the low scoring range. But we did what we've been doing — making the key mistake at the end."

St. John's did appear to be a bit off its game, and Coach Lou Carnesecca gave credit to Temple for playing aggressive, yet patient basketball.

"We just made some shots at the end and some fouls," he said.

Redding's field goal in the first 17 seconds of overtime gave the Redmen a 55-53 lead and Temple never caught up. Wayne McKay led the St. John's scoring with 18 points while Alton McCullough had a career-high 23 points for the Owls.

The St. John's Temple game was the opener of a doubleheader at Philadelphia's Palestra. In the second game, Bryan Warrick hit a 12-foot jump shot with eight seconds remaining to give St. Joseph's (Pa.) a 54-52 victory over Providence.

St. John's, incidentally, was the only Top Twenty team in action Tuesday night.

Greenwood girls capture Bi-District; Crane boys topple Kermit in 7-2A

The Greenwood Rangerettes are on their way to the region tournament, defeating Sanderson 93-25 Tuesday night at Crane in a girls' Bi-District contest.

Greenwood, 26-7 overall and the champions of District 13-B, will play Follett at 4 p.m. Friday in Levelland in the first round of region.

Nancy Ortiz paced a balanced Greenwood attack with 18 points while Charlotte Pitcock added 16, Lisa Mobley 14, Missy Duke 12 and Renvy Evans 10.

MC golfers renew play this week

First golf action of the spring semester for the Midland College men's team comes this weekend at the Western Texas College Invitational in Snyder.

The event will be held Saturday and Sunday at the Snyder Country Club.

MC coach Delnor Poss said the Chaps will hold qualifying rounds for most of the week with Poss selecting six players from among the eight team members.

Battling for positions are Craig Day, freshman from Fort Worth; Grant Spencer, freshman from Midland; Jeff Lutke, freshman from Midland; Alan Coe, sophomore from McCamey; Jeff Butler, sophomore from San Antonio; Richard Minnix, freshman from Midland; John Sconiers, freshman from Iraan; and Pat Ward, freshman from Sioux City, Iowa.

"We really need to get in some competitive rounds," Poss said. "The weather has really held us back this semester, so we haven't been able to get nearly as much work as we need. This tournament will give us a chance to see what our players can do after a long layoff."

Following the tourney in Snyder, the Chap golfers will compete with the senior colleges at two tournaments in March.

In boys' action, Crane stormed back from nowhere Tuesday night at Andrews and defeated Kermit 78-75 to win the District 7-2A boys' basketball championship.

In a Bi-District tuneup, Reagan County, District 9-A champs, dropped a 63-52 decision to Seminole. Byron Bitner scored 14 for the Owls, 24-6 overall.

Also, Stanton defeated Balmorhea 84-32. The Buffs are awaiting Friday night's game with Seagraves that will determine the District 5-A champion.

March 24-26. In April, the golf team will compete in three conference tournaments in Hobbs, N. M., Snyder and Roswell, N. M.

Philadelphia Flyers only their fifth setback 8-6.

Elsewhere, the Buffalo Sabres dominated the Quebec Nordiques 3-1, the Minnesota North Stars and Atlanta Flames tied 4-4, the St. Louis Blues defeated the Vancouver Canucks 3-1, the Toronto Maple Leafs beat the New York Islanders 6-4 and the Hartford Whalers trimmed the Edmonton Oilers 6-2.

Robert Picard, who was struck in the face during the pregame warm-ups and required 12 stitches, scored Washington's first goal midway through the second period on a blast from the right point through a maze of players. Montreal's Pierre Mondou evened the count 1:50 later with a soft shot under goalie Wayne Stephenson's stick.

Rockies 8, Flyers 6
 The loss was the first of the season for rookie Philadelphia goalie Pete Peeters, who had won 22 games and tied five. The Rockies jumped to a 3-1 first-period lead and both teams scored four times in a wild second period.

With 46 seconds left in the game, Steve Payne shoved the puck into the net for the tying goal while straddling the goal line early in the final period. Payne, who scored his 31st and 32nd goals of the season, became only the eighth player in North Stars history to score more than 30 goals in a season.

Blues 3, Canucks 1
 The surging Blues got second-period goals from Wayne Babych, Blair Chapman and Brian Sutter and moved within two points of first place in the Smythe Division.

Maple Leafs 6, Islanders 4
 Newly acquired Rick Vaive scored twice in his Toronto debut and Darryl Sittler got two goals and his 750th National Hockey League point. Bill Derlago, who came with Vaive from Vancouver in a Sunday night trade, picked up a pair of assists as the Maple Leafs posted a three-game winning streak for the first time this season and snapped the Islanders' 13-game home unbeaten streak after 11 wins and two ties.

Whalers 8, Oilers 2
 Mark Howe scored two goals as Hartford controlled the game from the beginning, picking up goals by Bernie Johnston and Gordie Roberts in the first two minutes.

Slumping Bulls finally combine for victory

By The Associated Press

Coach Jerry Sloan was at a loss to explain the Chicago Bulls' performance Tuesday night, but this time he wasn't complaining.

"We did some positive things tonight for the first time in many games," Sloan said after the lousy (21-42) Bulls defeated the defending National Basketball Association champion Seattle (45-17) SuperSonics 115-106. "But I am frustrated and at a loss to understand how we can play so well against the best team in the NBA and most of the time can't get any phase of the game together."

In a couple of other surprises, the Cleveland Cavaliers crushed the Phoenix Suns 128-109 and the New Jersey Nets whipped the San Diego Clippers 123-113, while in the only other game the New York Knicks downed the Portland Trail Blazers 113-103.

Reserve forward Dwight Jones and center Artis Gilmore contributed six points apiece in the final 2:43 as Chicago broke Seattle's eight-game winning streak.

"I have reached the point where my injured leg appears to be completely healed," said Gilmore, who led the Bulls with 23 points. "I did a lot of things tonight, but I have played well in other games."

"The one thing that stands out, however, is that I was doing a lot of passing to (Reggie) Theus. (David) Greenwood and (Ricky) Sobers and letting them shoot while I was crashing the boards."

Gus Williams led the Sonics with 33 points.

Cavaliers 128, Suns 109
 Dave Robisch scored 28 points for Cleveland and Kenny Carr added 22, including 12 in the fourth quarter. The Cavaliers had to stave off a furious fourth-quarter rally by the Suns, who were led by Walter Davis 32 points. Cleveland led 100-78 entering the final period but Phoenix ran off 15 straight points and cut the margin to 108-99 with seven minutes to play. Carr then scored four points and Cleveland was never seriously threatened thereafter.

Nets 123, Clippers 113
 George Johnson scored a season-high 22 points and pulled down 16 rebounds to lead New Jersey, who got a game-high 25 points from Mike Newlin and 21 from rookie Cliff Robinson. The game was delayed twice for a total of 49 minutes — at the start because of a power outage and at halftime because of a leak in the San Diego Sports Arena roof. Lloyd Free, the NBA's second-leading scorer, was held scoreless in the first half and finished with only seven points, his lowest total since joining the Clippers in the 1978-79 season.

Knicks 113, Trail Blazers 103
 Michael Ray Richardson scored 26 points, including two three-point shots, Ray Williams had 21 and Bill Cartwright added 20 as the Knicks won for the eighth time in their last 11 games. The Trail Blazers have lost five of six. Late in the third quarter, the Knicks ran off 12 straight points in 2½ minutes to go from a five-point deficit to an 82-75 lead.

GOLF — Jim Colbert shot a final-round, 3-under-par 70 and scored a 4-stroke victory over Canadian Dan Halldorson in winning the $300,000 Tucson Open.

Colbert began the final round of the rain-delayed tournament with a seven-stroke advantage over Halldorson and three others. He finished at 270, 22-under-par for the 72-hole tournament and earned $54,000.

Allen Miller closed with a 67 and finished third at 275, while Tom Purtzer was fourth at 276, after a final-round 68.

TENNIS — Bjorn Borg and Jimmy Connors scored opening-round victories during the $200,000 WCT Invitational Tennis Tournament at the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center.

In the first session of a round-robin, Borg defeated Vijay Amritraj, 6-4, 7-6, 6-3, while Connors beat Eddie Dibbs 6-4, 6-4.

Ilie Nastase downed John Alexander 7-6, 6-2 after surviving in the first set tie-breaker, 10-8.

Unseeded Terry Holladay defeated fourth-seeded Virginia Wade 6-3, 4-6, 6-3 in the first round of a $200,000 professional women's tennis tournament.

In other matches, top-seeded Evonne Goolagong Cawley advanced to the second round with a 6-1, 6-1 victory over Renee Richards. Andrea Jaeger beat Kim Sands, 6-1, 6-2 to move into the third round, and Susan Mascarin was eliminated by Virginia Ruzici 7-5, 6-7, 6-1.

Vincent Van Patten upset Tom Gorman 6-4, 6-3 in the first round of a $125,000 men's tennis tournament.

In other matches, Victor Amaya of Ecuador defeated Steve Denton 7-5, 5-1; Eliot Teltscher lost 6-4, 6-4 to Fritz Buehning; Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia was beaten by Bill Scanlon 6-4, 6-4, and Andres Gomez defeated Bernie Mitton of South Africa 5-3, 7-6.

WORLD BRIEFS

Priest dies after attack

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Attackers shot and bayoneted to death a Swiss priest, the second missionary to be slain in Rhodesia since the cease-fire went into effect Jan. 4. Authorities said the Rev. Kilian Huesser, 38, a member of the Swiss Mission Society of Bethlehem, was killed Tuesday by 15 armed men who attacked his mission 40 miles south of Fort Victoria and led away several hostages. Another priest was killed in the area two weeks ago, allegedly by guerrillas loyal to black leader Robert Mugabe, whose party is expected to take most of the 80 seats reserved for blacks in parliamentary elections next week. The other seats are expected to go to followers of former Prime Minister Abel Muzorewa and Joshua Nkomo, Mugabe's co-leader in the guerrilla alliance that fought Ian Smith's white minority government for seven years.

Leftists protest junta

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Thousands of leftist protesters marched through San Salvador, keeping up their pressure for the ouster of the four-month-old junta. Some 5,000 members of the Popular Revolutionary Bloc, the country's largest leftist group, organized the demonstration Tuesday, the seventh march protesting government policy in as many days. The group has led a leftist alliance to press for social reforms and eventually, establishment of a Marxist government. Many shopkeepers closed their stores in anticipation of violence, but none was reported.

Earthquakes jolt Italy

COSENZA, Italy (AP) — Two strong earthquakes jolted an area around this southern Italian town in the Calabria region early today, leaving one person dead, scores in shock and causing minor damage, police reported. The person killed was an old woman who suffered a heart attack as she was fleeing in panic with hundreds of residents, police said. Her age was not given. Authorities said the quakes registered 5.5 on the Richter scale and that they were centered about 30 miles north of here.

Embassy sieges continue

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The occupation of the Belgian and Danish embassies went into a third day today with leftist militants vowing to remain until their demands are met. Sources close to the situation said negotiations were continuing between government officials and the occupiers, members of the National Democratic Popular Front who seized both embassies Monday morning. Inside the embassies, located about a mile apart in exclusive residential neighborhoods, the militants continued to block front entrances to the main offices. Police including riot squads armed with clubs and tear gas were camped in force near both buildings.

Tito's condition grave

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — President Josip Broz Tito's doctors said today the 87-year-old Yugoslav leader felt better, but his actual condition remained grave and without change. "Comrade President spent the night peacefully and subjectively feels better," Tito's medical panel reported in a brief midday advisory. But it said the general state of Tito's health, grave since the onset of complications in early February, was without change.

Eight dissidents indicted

TAIPEI, Taiwan (AP) — Eight executives of the political magazine Formosa were indicted today and will face a court-martial soon on charges of sedition, the Taiwan garrison command said. It said the eight were legislator Huang Hsin-chieh, the publisher of Formosa, Lu Hsiu-lien, the vice president, Shih Ming-teh, the general manager, Yao Chia-wen, a legal counsellor, and four other executives.

King Khaled improving

RIYADH, Saudi Arabia (AP) — The health of King Khaled of Saudi Arabia is improving steadily and he is only staying in a hospital "for a few days rest," the country's minister of health said today. Dr. Hussein Al-Jazairi said the 67-year-old monarch was admitted to the King Feisal Hospital here Monday for a medical checkup after feeling slightly indisposed, "the result of over exertion while he was on a picnic."

Pope attends own play

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II for the first time attended a performance of a play he wrote 20 years ago under a pseudonym in his native Poland. He seemed pleased. "Thank you for the high artistic quality of interpretation. Until tonight's performance I had always feared the play was boring," the pope said Tuesday night as he shook hands with the cast. During the 90-minute play, the pontiff sat in a beige velvet armchair in the front row of a makeshift theater beneath the blue-frescoed ceiling of the Consistory Hall, as eight Italian actors gave a command performance of "The Goldsmith's Shop," a play about love and marriage written when he was a bishop.

Thais to go to Guyana

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — A team of Thai officials will leave next week for Jonestown, Guyana, where they will survey a possible site for an Indochinese refugee resettlement, the Interior Ministry said today. It said Guyana approached the Thai government regarding Jonestown on the condition that the United Nations finance the costs. A ministry spokesman said two leaders of a Laotian hill tribe will accompany the Thai officials on the trip to look at the living conditions in Jonestown.

Chicago firemen's strike threatening to spread

CHICAGO (AP) — Talks between city labor leaders and Mayor Jane Byrne broke off early today with no reported progress toward ending a week-long firefighters strike — a walkout that threatened to erupt into a general shutdown of city services. The mayor reiterated the city's position that negotiations can resume only when the firefighters return to work. "We gave those firefighters every possible way out," she said early today. The mayor added that the Chicago Fire Fighters Union had rejected for a second time a city proposal for a 90-day cooling-off period in which firefighters would return to work while a fact-finding team explored the issues involved. There was no immediate comment from labor leaders on the latest breakdown in talks. Labor officials, including President William Lee of the Chicago Federation of Labor, reportedly had attempted to persuade Mrs. Byrne to resume bargaining with the union, despite her vow not to do so until its members returned to work. Earlier Tuesday, a Circuit Judge John Hechinger ordered city and union officials back to the table. Mrs. Byrne's press secretary and husband, Jay McMullen, told reporters the mayor had ordered city negotiators "not to engage in any negotiations or make any concession or anything." He said they had returned to the bargaining table "with the mayor's consent, but not with her blessings." Meanwhile, The Chicago Tribune quoted an unidentified adviser to Lee as saying the situation was "dynamic." The federation's executive board, in a resolution Monday supporting the strike, said its members would not cross firefighters' picket lines — in effect threatening a general strike by city employees as the city continued hiring recruits as permanent replacements for some of the strikers. If other union members — including the city's truck drivers, sanitation workers, plumbers and carpenters — were to refuse to cross the lines, the city's ability to operate would be jeopardized. The first strike ever by Chicago firefighters, who are demanding the city issue a written contract, began four days after public school teachers returned to work following a two-week walkout. That came six weeks after a four-day strike by public transit workers. There was no indication whether teachers or transit workers might observe picket lines. As the firefighters continued their walkout, they received the support of the AFL-CIO Executive Council. The council issued a statement condemning the city for what it called refusal to engage in responsible collective bargaining. Negotiations began weeks ago over the contract for the firefighters to replace a traditional handshake agreement. The talks broke down over the city's insistence on a no-strike clause. Other differences include whether officers should be union members and how many men should operate certain pieces of equipment. Money was not a major issue.

Who uses census? Lots of folks do

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID

WASHINGTON (AP) — People deciding where to build a restaurant or hospital, planning new bus and subway routes or even looking for a boyfriend have all turned to the Census Bureau for help.

The bureau is gearing up for the national head count scheduled to begin March 28, and what it learns will affect, in some way, virtually every American.

The first and most obvious use of census information is, of course, in deciding how many seats each state gets in Congress. As many as 14 could shift from one state to another, according to the latest estimates.

Census information, and in fact a whole industry has grown up analyzing and interpreting this mass of data for its clients. The Census Data Users Service says it answers some 6,000 requests for information monthly.

That doesn't mean an individual or company can learn what you personally answer on your census form, 80 million of which will be mailed to American households. It's against the law for the bureau to disclose individual information.

Information on individuals doesn't even go into Census Bureau computers, only the totals area by area.

AND THAT'S what the users of the information want as they analyze the population in a given area.

BUT THERE are dozens of other uses for

A school board, for example, wants to know what neighborhoods are growing and where young couples of child-bearing age live so it can plan school construction.

Anti-poverty agencies have a similar need, plus the amount of federal aid they get depends on how many people in a community live below the poverty line.

IN ILLINOIS, a real estate firm uses census information to give prospective clients a quick profile of neighborhoods where they may be considering settling.

A chain of pizza restaurants in Detroit consults census data when it is considering where to locate a new restaurant.

A men's clothing store planning to mail a circular to potential customers consulted income data down by zip code to select areas with a high percentage of families and individuals in the appropriate income range.

THIS YEAR the bureau is offering cities a breakdown of census information by neighborhood rather than for whole cities.

These statistics can be used in federal programs such as community development block grants as well as in helping local planners put together programs aimed at specific areas.

If all this still seems somewhat impersonal, the bureau reports the case of a Denver woman who phoned to ask how she could find out the number of unmarried men in her city.

A BUREAU employee said he could supply that information; broken down by neighborhoods if she liked.

Neglected in Play

By Alfred Sheinwald

Pity the fate of a nine or a ten. Nobody counts points for it, and it is all too often neglected in the play as it is ignored in the bidding.

West opened the six of diamonds, and declarer promptly put up dummy's king. East took the ace of diamonds and returned the queen of clubs to the ace. South drew trumps and led another club from dummy.

The clubs were badly placed, and South had to lose two clubs and a spade. Down one.

VITAL NINE

At the first trick South should play dummy's low diamond. East must play the jack to win the trick, thanks to South's vital nine.

East returns the queen of clubs to the ace. South draws trumps and leads dummy's king of diamonds. East cannot gain by playing low, since South would just discard. When East plays the ace of diamonds, South ruffs.

Now South leads a trump to dummy and can discard either two spades or two clubs on the queen and ten of diamonds.

ANSWER: Pass. You have only 4 points in high cards, not enough for a response. You could respond to an opening bid of one spade since then you could count points for the two doubtons and also for the fifth spade.

Nancy Reagan denies reported racial slight

CHICAGO (AP) — Nancy Reagan denied Tuesday that she was guilty of a racial slight at a weekend political reception in Illinois while speaking to her husband in a telephone hookup to New Hampshire.

The wife of Republican presidential hopeful Ronald Reagan, speaking on NBC-TV's "Today" Show, was asked about the incident Saturday, which occurred while she was substituting for her husband at a reception in suburban Rosemont.

Mrs. Reagan was quoted as telling her husband in a telephone conversation carried by loudspeakers to about 200 persons that she wished he could have been there to see "all these beautiful white people."

Reporters said she hesitated, turned pale, and then added, "beautiful black and white people."

A reporter for the City News Bureau of Chicago who was present said there were no blacks in the audience, but possibly a few Latinos.

Mrs. Reagan told the interviewer on "Today" that she made the comment after her husband mentioned that he was looking down and marveling at a 16-inch snowfall in New Hampshire.

She said she replied that she was "looking down at beautiful white faces, and beautiful black faces, supporting you here."

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

All special diets need total nutrients balance

Dear Dr. Solomon: My son plays basketball for his high school team and has hopes of playing in college and even professionally. He recently decided that he wants to be an egg-fish vegetarian, and I wonder whether this will affect his strength and ability to play competitive sports. — Mr. C.A.

Dear Mr. A.: There are many athletes, even on a professional level, who are vegetarians. However, it is important for your son to balance his diet and combine foods carefully in order to provide all of the protein and additional nutrients that his body needs.

Dear Dr. Solomon: Are sugar alcohols safe for use on a diabetic diet? — Mr. D.H.

Dear Mr. H.: The sugar alcohols are chemical variants of natural sugar. Some food processors advertise them as low-calorie substitutes for sugar, and as less likely to cause food decay. However, it would be an error to assume that foods containing sugar alcohols are low in calories, or that they are diabetic "free" foods, since they lead to the production of some blood sugar.

There are a number of different sugar alcohols. Sorbitol is the one which is most widely used, and it can be found in chewing gum, mints, candies and ice cream. If consumed in large amounts it may have a laxative effect, but otherwise it is quite safe. Another sugar alcohol, xylitol, was used in gum and dietetic foods until a few years ago, when a question was raised about its safety. Some manufacturers have since stopped using it.

Still another sugar alcohol, mannitol, is now used only as a powdery coating on some chewing gums because even relatively small amounts can cause diarrhea.

Dear Dr. Solomon: What are emulsifiers, and what is their purpose in food? How safe are they? — Dot.

Dear Dot: An emulsifier is a food additive which is used in order to cause the ingredients in a product to stay mixed together longer. For example, it oil and vinegar are mixed together, they immediately separate some fresh air.

NBC Radio acquires Peter, homeless pigeon

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — Bowser and Peacock move over — NBC Radio has just acquired Peter the Homeless Olympic Homing Pigeon.

Peter was resting on a windowsill outside NBC's Olympic office at the local high school Sunday afternoon when the broadcasters decided to get some fresh air. "He looked at us for a while and flew in," said Jack O'Rourke, here from New York City for the XIII Winter Games.

While Peter, as the NBC crew dubbed him, settled in atop a fluorescent light with the roof of a broadcast booth below, the NBC crew called the humane society.

"They said as soon as he warms up he'll fly away," O'Rourke said. "He's got a band on his leg, so he's certainly a homing pigeon."

O'Rourke and his off-camates put out bread-crumbs and popcorn for their guest, leaving a window open for his convenience, but Peter hadn't moved much by evening, except to preen his feathers once.

"We think he's one of the 2,500 pigeons that got released at opening ceremonies," said William Malcolm. "We hear quite a few of them may have died from the cold."

rate. An emulsifier, however, enables the ingredients to remain mixed longer, which is an important consideration in the preparation of a product such as salad dressing. In other products, the emulsifier can help to disperse flavor or to make it easier to handle batter and dough in the preparation of baked foods.

Many emulsifiers are derived from natural sources; for example, lecithin, which is a natural ingredient of milk and egg yolks, keeps fat and water together and is used in ice cream and mayonnaise in order to improve their texture.

Not all emulsifiers are completely safe, however; the Food and Drug Administration has removed brominated vegetable oil (BVO) from its list of "generally recognized as safe" foods and has set specific levels for its use. BVO keeps oils in suspension, thus maintaining the cloudy appearance of citrus-flavored beverages.

LEE CHATTER

English, ICT team sweep district

By KAREN FIDLER, GINA BARD and LEIGH ANNE JONES

Well, everything came up roses and sunshine last Thursday as we once again shared our feelings with the ones we love. A great big thanks to Mrs. Buttery, Mr. Cason and all of our hard-working NHS members who contributed their voices, time and a lot of hard work to make this Valentine's Day something to remember throughout the years.

A NEW RECORD was set by our Lee High School Industrial Cooperative Training Program (ICT) as they swept the district meet in Odessa Saturday. Not only did the parliamentary team take first place, but every member that our spectacular coordinator chose to enter placed high enough to travel to Fort Worth to enter the state competition. Way to go, Mr. English and members. It took a lot of hard work, but there's more to come. So look out, Fort Worth, here we come.

Friday night, our Mighty Rebel Roundballers faced a disappointingly close game with Abilene. The final score was a frustrating 59-61, but nevertheless, our Mighty Men fought it out to the very end, continually shining through with Rebel Pride. You played a tremendous game, guys, and we're proud of you.

Also, congratulations to our Superb Rebel Swimmers, who swam away with the district meet Friday and Saturday with a final score of 95-55. We're proud of you. You once again kept up the reputation that Rebels are not only strong on land but in the water as well.

This week our Mighty Women Roundballers shone throughout the city and the district as they stole the show and drove their way to the sparkling new district championship. But don't go away; the story continues Monday as they play for bi-district. Good luck, girls. Keep on smiling, 'cause you've got something to smile about.

CONGRATULATIONS to our 1980 Rebel Court: Mr. and Mrs. LHS, Lee Andrews and Roxi Barrett; Mr. and Mrs. Talented, Steve Waldron and Debra Steel; Mr. and Mrs. Academic, Gary Butler and Karen Gravitt; Mr. and Mrs. Courteous, Warren Kyle and Phyllis Pete; Mr. and Mrs. Integrity, Tim Fisher and Gina Bard; Mr. and Mrs. Congenial, Eddie Ellis and Jennifer Rankin; Mr. and Mrs. Valuable, Eddie Pleasant and Melinda Cravens.

Congratulations to a few of the many outstanding students at Lee. Once again, as usual, our Court of Crystal will reign throughout RebelLand for another year. "As we go sailing on our way to new and future plans," congratulations again.

Well, Rebs, with Valentine's being over, everybody is sitting back and relaxing, but nevertheless, don't stay too long or you'll never get up. We need you and your support to cheer our Revolutionary Rebels on to victory. So get up and get ready, 'cause the South is risin' again.

Until next week,
Karen, Gina and Leigh Anne
P.S. — Bradley, were you surprised?

Historic island

NEW YORK (AP) — Ward's Island in the East River originally belonged to the Manhattan Indians, who sold it to the Dutch in 1637. It was later seized by the British before becoming part of New York City following the American Revolution.

The island is named for a family who farmed the land in the late 1700s. It was subsequently used as an immigration center, a sanatorium for tubercular patients, and a prison camp.

The island is now the site of the Manhattan Psychiatric Center, which serves adult residents of Manhattan.

West 'second rate in marketplace,' Anderson says

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

The West, which produces the nation's oil, has been considered second-class citizens while the East takes the oil, sets the regulations and complains about high prices, said Robert O. Anderson in describing the country's situation.

Anderson, chairman of the board for Atlantic Richfield Co., was keynote speaker today during the "Free Enterprise Day" at Chaparral Center.

The bow tie-clad Chicago native who makes his home in Roswell, N.M., reviewed the history of the oil industry before launching into his predictions for the 1980s.

"WE'RE SECOND RATE citizens in the market place," Anderson said of the West. "For years our resources have gone East. For years, prices and regulations have been set to the advantage of those in the Eastern states."

"And then they say, 'Why can't we have it (oil) for less?'" Anderson said, predicting that the East Coast states will make even greater demands on the Western states.

"I hope we will move into an era where contributions of the West are recognized and we are given equal treatment," he said optimistically.

Speaking to the estimated 500 students attending the day-long session, Anderson said those who want to stay in Midland will need job opportunities.

"The government can't do that for you," said the oilman who also owns cattle and livestock companies.

"The system here is that West Texans have to generate it (jobs),"

Anderson said, explaining that the oil industry will be the primary factor behind the economic growth.

"They will look for oil here for years to come. They will re-drill old fields and develop better exploration techniques. They will provide enough economic activity for those who live in the Permian Basin."

THE PETROLEUM INDUSTRY is the single largest industry in the world, in Anderson's view. "This industry is so large it can't be compared to any other. The flow of energy in the world is intimately linked with the flow of money," he said.

There is $10-$15 million a day in checks on energy purchases flowing through banks in the world. And because of its enormous size, the petroleum industry is in the limelight, he added.

The petroleum industry is the largest taxpayer in the world, according to Anderson. The producing countries pay a tax on the oil at the wellhead while the consuming countries force the gas user to pay a high tax at the pump.

The world played with an overabundant supply of oil from the time it was discovered until the 1970s when experts began to realize the supply was running short, he said.

At the rate petroleum is being consumed today, the supply won't last through the 80s, in Anderson's view. "There are only 30 or 40 really large oil fields left, and the last one found was Prudhoe Bay in Alaska, and that was 11 years ago. The other fields are getting old and worn out."

Anderson sees the world's oil production at its peak today with the decline expected to start soon. This decline he attributes to nationalization of oil in countries throughout the world.

"Nationalization of oil operations around the world is forcing production downward," he charged. The bureaucrats and administrators in charge of the oil are only waiting for their retirement.

"AS WE LOOK AHEAD, we must realize the bulk of the oil industry is in the hands of government, and they go very slowly," Anderson said. "Development (of the industry) throughout the world will be slowed down."

Anderson, citing Arco's experience in Iran, said a year ago oil production in that country was hitting 6 billion gallons a day. Now, that level is down to barely 2 billion gallons.

"They (Iranians) have no organization. Iranian production is going backwards. I expect it to drop to the point they (Iran) can't take care of their own internal needs."

Saudia Arabia is the leader in world oil production and holds the key to the future, according to Anderson. The Soviet Union has even replaced the U.S. as a leading producer of oil, he added.

The U.S. energy policy to tax local production but not imported oil was compared to a scenario of George Washington when he was holed up one winter at Valley Forge and had a shortage of firewood.

Following the current thinking, "Washington would have subsidized those who burned the most wood and taxed those who went out and found more firewood," he said.

"They (government) see a chance to take $220 billion from us in 10 years. They will take the money away that you gave the oil companies to find and replace the oil you purchased," he contended.

"THE NATIONAL ENERGY policy was designed for a country to go out of business."

To change today's situation, the long-range political planning in Washington must be changed, Anderson said. "We need to develop a new mentality in politics."

Two years for a congressman isn't enough to accomplish anything. Nor is six years for a senator or four years as a president, according to the Arco leader. "We need to plan 20 to 30 years ahead."

Burglar takes stereo

A fast-moving burglar made off with $1,175 in stereo equipment from a Midland residence Tuesday.

Bryan Hughen of 3608 W. Boyd told police the equipment was there when he left for work at 11 a.m. Tuesday. However, when his father arrived at the house at noon, the equipment was missing.

Reported missing were AM-FM tuner-amplifier, turntable and sleeping bag with work clothes in it.

According to police, entry was through the garage overhead door and then through the garage-kitchen door. Exit was through a back sliding door.

Edgar Wayne Sturgill

He's 100 years old today

By WANDA MOUTON
Lifestyle Editor

"If I can just get well, I can still set the world on fire."

His legs aren't very sturdy these days, his hearing is poor and his eyesight is near gone, but his thinking is razor-sharp and the enthusiasm of 100-year-old Edgar Sturgill grows everyday.

He celebrates a century of living today in his home on South Marshall St. He says he's happy here in Midland where he's lived for the past nine years in the home of his niece, Mrs. Lonnie Taylor, and her husband.

He thinks positive. "Oh, I'll probably still be around 16 to 18 years from now—I've got plenty left to do," he says.

A deeply religious man, he has visions of regaining his health completely, renting an empty church and opening a "healing service."

He's been into faith healing since World War II when he obtained long lists of names of boys in his Kentucky county who were going into the service. He prayed each day for every one on the list. "I've prayed for millions, I guess, in my lifetime," he said.

His niece admits that he can quote nearly anything in the Bible from memory, "and he knows all of the gospel songs by heart."

"I do some high singing all day long," he said.

Sturgill also spends a lot of time these days sitting close to the television, watching the wrestling programs, which he particularly enjoys. His all-time favorite program was The Dating Game, "mainly because of all those pretty girls," he said.

Sturgill was born in Deer Creek, Kentucky, the seventh of nine children. He lived in Kentucky until 1971.

"Kentucky living mostly meant farming," he said. He has lots of memories as a barefoot boy in Carter County.

There was the time, he said, at about 13 years of age, when he battled a mountain lion.

"I had a date with a real pretty girl," he remembers. They were on their way home from a prayer meeting and had stopped at his friend's farm. They were sitting beneath some shade trees beside a big bluff.

"I remember my lady friend was carrying this parasol," he said. "We sat down to talk and, all of a sudden, there was a thrashing of bushes and out came the meanest-looking lion you ever seen. I had my gun in my shirt and busted the buttons getting the gun out, and then I dropped it.

"My friend jumped up, screamed, dropped her umbrella and ran off. That umbrella was just laying there and I grabbed it and got it between me and that lion. I hit it on the head and that parasol scared that lion to death. So he run off. By the time all the neighbors arrived with their axes and guns, the excitement was over. They all expected me to be dead after what my friend had told them."

His tales get a little taller, though, as he remembers his encounter with a genuine Kentucky bear and even a snake that he claims was bigger than he was.

He doesn't talk much about those sad years in Kentucky. When, during the Depression, he lost his job. When his seven month old son and two year old daughter died of pneumonia within two weeks of each other. Or when his wife Nannie died in 1963.

Or even when, at the ripe old age of 60, he was told he only had seven months to live from a severe abdominal injury at the steel plant where he worked.

He lived, but he says he never fully recovered from that accident. He never quit working, either.

Sturgill thereafter worked in a clothing store, managed a hotel and helped in building churches. Before that, he had farmed, worked on the railroad and in a cola plant.

Some of his happiest memories, he claims, are of being a banjo picker at lots of Kentucky bluegrass country dances. And of raising his brother's children. "Oh, I've probably raised three or four families in my lifetime," he says.

Nowadays, he confines most of his activity to listening to his niece read from the Bible, watching television and spending lots of time on the back porch, pitching a rubber ball outdoors for the family's pet dogs to chase and retrieve.

He never misses a Sunday church service at Travis Baptist Church. And, in honor of his birthday, the church hosted an open house Sunday.

Despite the bad weather, relatives and friends from throughout Texas, Florida, New Mexico, Oklahoma and California were present.

The family had made a poster pinned with pictures of Sturgill since he was 16 years old. A letter of congratulation from President Carter to Sturgill was read to the group. And the notation that he, some years ago, had been awarded the rank of Kentucky colonel by the state's former Gov. Bert Combs was announced.

He says there's no secret to his long life. He has never had to watch his diet and, to this day, particularly enjoys Kentucky fried chicken and poached eggs. He smoked until he was 91, and then decided to give it up. "I don't drink now, but sure wouldn't refuse a little offer now and then," he added.

"There's no secret to what I do—I just enjoy life," he said.

Reception scheduled Friday

A reception for newlyweds Mr. and Mrs. Ronald E. Gratzinger will be from 8 a.m. to 10 a.m. Friday at the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, 2101 Tarleton St.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roger D. Holst of Midland. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Ronald G. Gratzinger.

CLUB NEWS

TWENTIETH CENTURY STUDY CLUB

The Twentieth Century Study Club met at Tom's Tree House. Mildred Burkitt and Ruby Daugherty were hostesses.

David Laresen, landscape architect, presented a demonstration on hanging baskets. He said that hanging baskets are used as landscape accents, in decorating the home and, in some cases, for miniature gardens.

He added that it is important to have sufficient overhead support for the baskets, as well as to place them in a convenient spot for watering. Other useful hints are to choose a plant that suits the container, display the basket to the advantage of the plant, arrange in staggered groupings, and use imagination in the choice of the container. He also demonstrated potting.

Guests attending were Naomi Glover, Virginia Nanley, Alamarzie McCoy and Neely Parsley.

MIDLAND GARDEN CLUB

Erma Underwood presented a program on her world travels during a recent meeting of the Midland Garden Club held at the Midland Woman's Club.

Mrs. Underwood, who is also a photographer, has made a major trip each year since 1958. In 1979, she spent 22 days in The People's Republic of China.

Colored slides of Kensington Gardens in London, Eng., and of the 200-year-old frame house in Denmark belonging to Mrs. Underwood's mother's family, highlighted the program. She also presented a film on "How to Plan and Plant Flower Gardens."

Also during the meeting, members voted to donate $100 to the Midland Rose Society. This money is to be used for the Rose Society's master plan of the rose garden to be planted along Texas Ave. at the Central Fire Station.

The group will meet with members of the Yucca Garden Club April 3 for their pilgrimage, visiting Mrs. Charles Ice's gardens in Odessa.

Mrs. W. T. Henderson, master judge, will present a program on "Flowers of Bermuda" at the next meeting at 9:30 a.m. March 6 at the Midland Woman's Club.

Mrs. Henderson will present slides of arrangements at the 1979 International Flower Show of Bermuda.

CHAPTER BS, P.E.O.

Mrs. Clark J. Matthews entertained Chapter BS, P.E.O. in her home recently.

Dr. Patricia A. Smith, assistant principal of Midland High School and member of Chapter BS, presented a program entitled "Insights." The program was conducted as a workshop with group participation and covered the requirements and responsibilities of Dr. Smith's position.

Students assisting Dr. Smith in the presentation were Amy Davenport, Susan Cowden, Milby Hartwell, Laura Wettstein, Shelly Paxton, Tricia Jewell, Claire Aldridge and Dru Perry.

NEWTIMERS BRIDGE

The Newtimers Bridge Club met at Ranchland Hills Country Club.

First prize was won by Mary Renton, second by Helen Hewes and third by Helen Owens.

OLDTIMERS BRIDGE

Winners of the Oldtimers Bridge Club in a recent meeting at Allison Bridge Building were Naomi Boswell, first; Inez Jefferies, second; and Elouise McCraw, third.

Special prize was won by Helen Owens.

Court members include Valerie Gravitt, front, and Anthony Flunder, left, crownbearers; Francie Myers, sitting center, and Tracy Tierce, sitting right, trainbearers; and, standing, Carol Mathews and Paul Raymond, mistress and master of ceremonies.

The Lee High School Rebelee Court was presented at a coronation ceremony Saturday in the LHS Auditorium.

The "Gone With the Wind" theme was featured in a stage setting of graceful white columns and magnolias. Tara's Theme was the musical processional played by organist Mrs. Gary Hall.

Serving as master and mistress of ceremonies were Paul Raymond and Carol Mathews.

Among those receiving court honors were Warren Kyle and Phyllis Peete, Mr. and Miss Courteous. Warren is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Kyle and Phyllis is the daughter of Edward O. Peete and Sandra K. Butler.

Mr. and Miss Talented are Steve Waldron and Debra Steele. They are the children of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Waldron and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Steele.

Ed Ellis and Jennifer Rankin are the new Mr. and Miss Congenial. They are the children of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Ellis and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence H. Rankin.

Eddie Pleasant and Melinda Cravens earned the title of Mr. and Miss Valuable. They are the children of Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Pleasant and Mr. and Mrs. Dee Cravens.

Selected for the honor of Mr. and Miss Integrity were Tim Fisher and Gina Bard. Tim is the son of Mrs. Bernie Brown. Gina is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Keith Morgan.

Gary Butler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jim T. Butler, and Karen Gravitt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. V. Gravitt, won the title of Mr. and Miss Academic.

Gary has a grade point average of 4.3. He was winner of the Lena Douglas Award, with the highest grade average of the 1979 senior football players. He is a quarter-back.

Karen's grade point average is 4.2. She is an officer in the National Honor Society.

The crowned heads of the court, Lee Andrews and Roxi Barrett, were named Mr. and Miss LHS. They represent a culmination of all of the above qualities.

Andrews is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. An-draws. His talents run from membership in the Origin, a select musical group, to showing livestock in the Vocational Agricultural program. He is vice president of the Student Council.

Roxi, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Barrett, was president of the sophomore and junior classes at LHS. She is presently Student Council president, and is a member of the NHS Band and Varsity Girl's Golf Team.

Crownbearers at the coronation were Valerie Gravitt and Anthony Flunder. Trainbearers were Francie Myers, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Myers, and Tracy Tierce, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tierce.

Music was presented by Origin, composed of members Lee Andrews, Rob Knox, Mark Lloyd, Eddie Pleasant, Ravona Smith, Debra Steele, Laura Walters and Jeff Woods. They were accompanied by Melinda Corley.

A coronation ball was held in the Youth Center following the program.

DEAR ABBY

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Why is so much emphasis placed on sex these days? Like eating and sleeping, sex is just another bodily function. Some people require more than others. And there are a lot of folks who hardly ever think about it.

actually going to specialists to get instructions on how to make love.

Let's be realistic, Abby. The average person falls in love once (maybe twice) in a lifetime. Unfortunately, some people never fall in love, but they find other things in life that are equally fulfilling and rewarding.

Maybe if we stopped talking about sex so much, we'd have fewer hookers, rapists and sex-crazy people. Right? — LEVELHEADED

DEAR LEVELHEADED: Wrong! Hookers have always been with us. (Isn't prostitution known as the oldest profession?)

And it's time that myth about rape is put to rest. The rapist is more interested in degrading and humiliating women than he is in achieving sexual gratification.

Finally, sex between two people who love each other does not always insure mutual satisfaction nor does it come naturally. Our early training has conditioned many of us to regard sex as nasty and sinful. But thanks to therapy ("lessons," if you will), we can be taught to overcome our inhibitions and hangups, and enjoy sex without guilt.

DEAR ABBY: I have some standard answers for nosy people who ask me how old I am. I always say, "Plenty nine."

And when I'm asked how much I weigh, I say, "One hundred and too much." — HAZEL IN PIKETON

DEAR HAZEL: Ain't it the truth! DEAR ABBY: I am a 31-year-old woman, divorced for four years, and have no children.

The man I've been dating for five months has asked me to marry him. He has already bought the ring. I told him I wanted to wait until I know him better. I think I love him, but I want to be sure my feelings are real.

There are a few things about him that bother me. He is 27, and has had only one semester of college. This certainly isn't going to set well with my family because we are all college graduates and have professions. The age difference isn't going to set too well with them either.

He is mature, responsible, hard-working and earns $35,000 a year, but it's only a job — not a profession.

My parents have met him once, briefly, and they don't now he's only 27, and not a college graduate.

Something else bothers me: I don't like the ring he bought for me. — VIRGO

DEAR VIRGO: Don't say yes until you don't give a hoot what your family thinks about his age, his non-professional job, or anything else. And should you ever reach that point, if the ring still bothers you enough to influence your decision — say no!

CONFIDENTIAL TO WASHINGTON STAR READER: You can either EARN it or MARRY it. But if you marry it, you will more than earn it. (How far can we go and still be safe? AREA NEWS

RANKIN — Mrs. Louise Hall and infant son Wade were honored at a baby shower given at the home of Mrs. Shank Bloom.

Odessa College site of prenatal workshop

Permian Basin Planned Parenthood will host a prenatal workshop Friday at Odessa College from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Purpose of the workshop is to inform all participants of the prenatal support services in the Permian Basin area. Representatives from Medical Center Hospital, LaLeche League, Childbirth With Preparation, Continuing Education for Girls and Maple House will speak on the services available for expectant mothers.

The public is invited to attend this event. Lunch will be catered at $4 per person. Reservations must be made by calling the Planned Parenthood executive offices at 563-2530.

Permian Basin Planned Parenthood is a private, nonprofit agency which provides community education, counseling and medically supervised clinic services for birth control and family planning in 17 counties of the Permian Basin. Films, speakers and programs can be arranged for student groups, workshops and classes.

American music featured

The Musicians Club, Texas Federation of Music Clubs, met at Memorial Christian Church for a program on American music.

Mrs. Paul Hanssen presented a brief history of American music and introduced a series of songs by American composers. The program closed with a square dance, accompanied by a hoedown ensemble.

Performers were Mrs. Richard Schmickrath, Mrs. Keith McSorley, Mrs. Manton Jones, Mrs. Henry Page, Mrs. Joel Smith, Mrs. Mark Bertram, Mrs. John Hammett, Mrs. Dillard Anderson Jr., Mrs. John Hyde, Mrs. Howard Parker, Mrs. George Harley, Mrs. R. A. Estes, Mrs. Robert Steelman and Mrs. Wayne Matthews.

During the business session, Mrs. Steelman reviewed plans for a clinic for Goddard Junior High string students. Clinic is set for April 11. Pat Jones of Amarillo will be guest clinician.

Mrs. Robert Ward will be chairman of a Sunday afternoon "Opera Preview" session which the club at Midland College will sponsor April 13.

Mrs. Robert Wise, Mu-daughter Deb Bloxom of Midland, her daughter-in-law Mrs. Tom Bloxom of Big Lake; Mrs. Doug Smith of Hobbs, N.M.; Mrs. Bill Winters and Mrs. Ray Barrett Jr., both of Midkiff, and Linda Arledge of Midland.

The honorees were presented with a hostess gift.

Wade and his mother Lynn are visiting from Houston in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Son Jackson of Midkiff. They formerly visited Wade's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Pat Hall of San Angelo.

RANKIN — Pansy Peterson will be among 20 who will graduate Thursday from the 1980 Class of the Vocational School of Nursing.

The service will be at 7 p.m. at the Harris Avenue Baptist Church in San Angelo.

Pansy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ruben (Cat) Peterson.

She began her nursing career as a member of the Candy Stripe program sponsored by the Rankin Hospital Auxiliary and continued work at the local medical facility.

MIDKIFF

MIDKIFF — Mr. and Mrs. Ray R. Barrett Jr. have two children at Texas A&M University who have both received distinguished honors.

Sarah Barrett, a senior accounting major, has been invited to join Beta Gamma Sigma, the national scholastic honor society in the field of business administration.

She is a 1976 graduate of Rankin High School. A student must rank in the top ten per cent of his or her senior class to be eligible for Beta Gamma Sigma membership. Sarah is also a member of Alpha Lambda Delta, freshman honor society, and Beta Alpha Psi, national accounting society.

Richard Barrett, a freshman student, has been designated Distinguished Student based on his first semester's grades.

INSIDE SALES MANAGER/$20,000

The outstanding and continued growth of our nationally known company has, once again, created a most unusual inside sales and management career opportunity. Since all our customers come to us with a pre-established need and a desire to do business, you the professional will have to work hard, but the money and career advancement opportunities will make it worth while.

The qualifying professional should have a minimum of 5 years direct sales experience and 2 years management experience, but a Smart, Aggressive, Enthusiastic and industrious sales professional who has a little sales experience will also be considered.

You will receive a starting salary of $3000 per week. After an initial training period of approximately 60 days, you will receive weekly paid commissions. Bring your total income into the $20,000 year per range. Liberal fringe benefits also included.

This is a permanent position in the automotive repair service field where you will be able to practice your selling skills without the disadvantages of travel, cold canvases or evening appointments. If you feel your talents and your present sales position are not being recognized, check into this opportunity.

For more information and interview appointment call 683-9716 or 333-9494
