Bani-Sadr 'amazed at American naivete'

By The Associated Press

Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr today lauded the young militants holding the American hostages in Tehran and rejected the label of "moderate" applied to him in the United States.

A Tehran newspaper published what was said to be a letter from one of the approximately 50 U.S. Embassy hostages calling for return of the ex-shah to Iran because it "means our freedom."

The U.N. investigative commission on Iran began its second day of work, meeting at the U.N. office in Tehran to plan its schedule. Iranian authorities insist the panel's mission is not linked with release of the hostages.

and revolutionary leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini has indicated the Americans will not be freed before April.

Bani-Sadr, in an interview with the Hong Kong Star newspaper, said the United States "attributed the seizure of the hostages to what they described as 'fanatical' Iranians. They then interpreted my election as a victory for a 'moderate' against the clergy."

"They are wrong on both counts," he continued. "They must understand that the students' action and my election constitute two faces of the same coin, namely the Iranian people's wish for independence and an end to United States' domination."

"I am amazed at the naivete of the American authorities."

Bani-Sadr called the embassy militants "young patriots whose sincerity and revolutionary sentiments are above all suspicion." He reiterated that his government would "never resort to violence" against them but added, "They must respect the lawful authorities in the country. They cannot do things independently."

Bani-Sadr repeated his three demands on the United States for the release of the hostages, "namely an admission of past wrongs, a pledge not to interfere in our internal affairs in the future and agreeing not to block our efforts to get back the shah and the wealth of Iran he embezzled."

The Carter administration already has refused to profess guilt for past actions in Iran.

The English-language Tehran Times today published a letter said to have been handwritten by embassy hostage Bruce German, a 43-year-old State Department budget officer from Kensington, Md.

The letter, addressed "To the American people," notes that the militants holding the embassy believe the shah was a tyrant guilty of many crimes, and says, "We wish to repeat our urgent request that the shah be returned to Iran as soon as possible, by whatever means. His return means our freedom."

Early in the 3½-month-old embassy standoff, the militants released a letter said to have been signed by about half the hostages supporting the Iranian demands.

Along with the Feb. 13-dated letter, the Times published a photograph identified as one of German — wearing glasses, smiling, clean-shaven, his hair neatly cut.

On Sunday, as the U.N. commission to investigate Iranian charges against Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi and the United States prepared to go to work, an Iranian Foreign Ministry spokesman and Iran's U.N. ambassador denied any connection between the work of the commission and the release of the hostages.

"There was no linkage between the formation of the commission and release of the hostages, if by linkage you mean a deal. Ayatollah (Ruhollah) Khomeini, who has the ultimate authority over the crisis, does not make deals," U.N. Ambassador Mansour Farhang said on CBS-TV's "Face The Nation."

Khomeini said Saturday that the fate of the hostages should be decided by the new Iranian Parliament, which will be elected March 14 and April 3. This contradicted an understanding in Washington that the hostages, who today began their 114th day in captivity, would be freed simultaneously with the completion of the commission's work in Tehran, or about March 8.

President Carter told reporters in Washington Sunday he would have preferred a different statement from Khomeini, but he cautioned against going "from the extreme of optimism to extreme pessimism."

Afghan workers continue strikes

Soviet-backed government appears to have broken down

KABUL, Afghanistan (AP) — Soviet and Afghan troops and bands of heavily armed civilians patrolled the Afghan capital today, but President Babrak Karmal's Soviet-backed government appeared to have virtually broken down.

Government ministries were paralyzed for a third day by a strike of civil servants and office workers, who ignored repeated broadcasts ordering them to return to work, and a general strike of shopkeepers continued for a fifth day.

The martial law proclamation issued at the start of last week's general strike placed government authority in the hands of the Soviet military commander, an unidentified army general, and Soviet and Afghan troops apparently were placed under a joint command in the face of the continuing rebellion throughout the country.

That gave the Soviets the last word on all military and civilian matters affecting Afghanistan.

(Reports reaching New Delhi today said gunfire rattled through the streets of Kabul through Sunday night.

A Frenchman in Kabul told a Paris radio station during a telephone interview that shots could still be heard on the outskirts of the city but that the center of the city was calm. The wife of a French official said, "We cannot move about. We are constantly being stopped. There are streets we cannot enter and all the shops are still closed. There is no way of buying provisions or even to communicate with food merchants.")

Reliable medical sources said more than 300 civilians died in six hours of bitter street fighting that began Thursday. An unknown number of Soviet and Afghan soldiers also were killed, but most of the dead were believed to be anti-communist Islamic "Moudjahidines" (holy warriors).

Radio Kabul called them "mercenaries, saboteurs and imperialist agents."

At the height of the battle, involving Soviet and Afghan tanks, armored cars, helicopter gunships and MiG fighter bombers, the government proclaimed martial law and threatened the death penalty to anyone found in unauthorized possession of firearms.

Following the martial law proclamation, Kabul television announced an important speech by Karmal, but viewers were shown a week old speech on Afghan farm policy.

Karmal has not been seen in public for three weeks. Unconfirmed reports said he took refuge in the heavily guarded Soviet embassy during the fighting.

Official attempts to order the storekeepers to end their strike have been ignored. The only stores opened Sunday in this city of 600,000 persons were those selling perishable foodstuffs.

Russian soldiers with heavy T 55 and T 62 tanks stood guard at the airport, at key bridges over the Kabul River, at the Russian civilian "ghetto" of Microrayon and at the approaches to the Soviet Embassy. Afghan tanks and armored cars patrolled the streets and stood guard at the main intersections.

Thousands of Afghan civilians filled the sidewalks in the city center under the watchful eye of soldiers armed with automatic rifles. The martial law proclamation banned gatherings of more than four persons.

Several Afghan armored cars were seen cruising slowly with their heavy machineguns trained directly at the heads of pedestrians only inches away.

Civilian members of the ruling Khalq (People's) Party armed with Kaloshnikov submachineguns helped to control the crowds, set up road blocks, searched private homes for arms and made many arrests. Reliable informants said the government appeared to have little control over members of the Khalq militia.

One Afghan official said rebels overran three police stations in the city early Friday.

Reforms proposed in El Salvador

By GARY R. PEDERSEN

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Anna heard the tank rolling down the street at 6 a. m. She jumped out of bed and saw soldiers hiding behind trees in her front yard.

"There was a man delivering bread in the neighborhood," she said later. "Everyone thought it was war and bought all his supplies in a few minutes, and I was scared to go to my office in the morning."

It was not war, just one of the brief skirmishes that happen every week as the left steps up its fight to seize power and the military tries to stay on top.

El Salvador's second military-civilian junta in four months has proposed agrarian reforms, nationalization of banking and other changes to lessen the wide gulf between the nation's tiny rich community and the huge poor one. Military rightists and some influential civilians oppose the reforms. The violence continues.

Early Saturday, Attorney General Mario Zamora Rivas, a Christian

Democratic Party leader accused by the right of links with the left, was killed by unidentified gunmen who burst in on a party at his home Saturday night, three men abducted a photographer for a leftist Mexican newspaper and put him on a plane for Guatemala. On Sunday, Archbishop Oscar Arnulfo Romero accused rightists of killing 50 persons in rural areas during January.

"If this government can muddle through for a few months, make some of the changes that are needed here, and hold power, then it can survive," said one diplomatic source here.

"But if it can't implement the reforms, because the military and the right won't let it, there will be all-out war. It could be worse in some ways than the one in Nicaragua."

"The small middle class does not want to give up what it has worked for and neither does the rich," said another diplomat. "They will oppose the reforms and are doing so. But if those reforms are not implemented, the government will fall. Maybe a coup from the right, or maybe from lack of support, and right now it does not have a lot of support."

"If the military takes over, the left will be more committed than ever to war. The right will have to hold its ground and there will be a bloody war."

All factions have plenty of arms.

"The left has good arms, but it is not ready for war," the diplomat said. "That would take some time. But our information is that more guns are flowing into guerrilla camps daily and there is no telling how long it will be before they are ready to mount a real offensive."

The military has been in charge since 1933 while a few families have held on to the wealth of the country, its fertile farmland. Their huge ranches grow coffee, cotton and sugar for export. Labor is cheap — about $3 a day — and profits are high.

Most of the country's 4.8 million people are poor, and many are illiterate. Almost 70 percent of the children are undernourished. The middle class is small and most of it seems to live in San Salvador, the capital.

Some sources say the country is near bankruptcy.

The inflation rate is nearly 20 percent. Occupations of embassies and offices have chased foreign investors from the country. Lower coffee prices, coupled with terrorism that reduces harvesting, are costing the country up to $80 million a year. Cotton and sugar production is off an estimated $20 million to $40 million this year.

About half the labor force is out of work, and that gives the jobless more time to think about the left's promises of a better deal.

Leftist organizations — such as the 50,000 to 70,000-member Popular Revolutionary Bloc, the Feb. 28 Popular Leagues, the United Popular Action Front and the National Democratic Union, a front for the Communist party — have united. They hold demonstration marches, occupy embassies, public and private buildings and fill walls with slogans and posters.

Church groups also call for reforms.

Candidates completing pre-primary efforts

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — George Bush accused fellow Republicans of working in league to cut him down, while Sen. Edward M. Kennedy battled to stay within hailing distance of President Carter on the eve of New Hampshire's presidential primary election.

After one final bid for votes today, Kennedy left the last-minute efforts to his organization, family campaigners and house-to-house canvassers.

A poll published by the Boston Globe said Carter was preferred over Kennedy by New Hampshire Democrats, 55 percent to 30 percent.

Vice President Walter F. Mondale, campaigning for Carter, said the race, nevertheless, would be very close. "We're taking nothing for granted," said Mondale, making a final appearance today in Berlin.

Kennedy has said for days that he trails the president, the better to brace his campaign in case he does lose in the state next door to his Massachusetts home.

Except for a speech in Nashua, Kennedy was doing his election-eve campaigning in Massachusetts, preparing for its March 4 primary.

California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., rated a far-back third in the poll, worked his way across New Hampshire in a 12-hour campaign windup. He says Carter cannot win re-election, insists that Kennedy has flopped as a challenger, and argues that he should be the choice of Democrats dissatisfied with the president.

Seven Republicans are running in New Hampshire, and Bush said the others were getting together to try to head off his bid for the nomination. The Globe poll rated Bush and Ronald Reagan almost dead even.

Bush, a former U.N. ambassador, won earlier Republican outings in Iowa and Puerto Rico.

The current Republican debate is about debating Bush's rivals fumed that he had barred four of them from his confrontation with Reagan in Nashua Saturday.

They called it raw politics, arrogant and high-handed. Reagan, who invited the other four to join the debate, said the whole thing "was kind of a fiasco."

Bush spent Sunday and today at his

Houston home, saying he didn't want to distract his organization from get-out-the-vote efforts. He insisted all he had done was play by the rules set by the debate sponsor, the Nashua Telegraph.

Reagan, however, paid the bills — about $3,500 — because of the federal ban on corporate campaign contributions. He said that entitled him to invite the others. Under pressure from them and the Republican National Committee, he did.

"For some political reason, at the very last minute, he shifted the rules," Bush said Sunday.

"I'm inclined to feel as the other candidates see us doing better, they get together to try and pull us down," he said.

At least six dead as rebel army sergeants take Surinam

PARAMARIBO, Surinam (AP) — Rebel army sergeants took control of this former Dutch colony in South America today after an eight-hour battle in which at least six persons were reported killed, witnesses said.

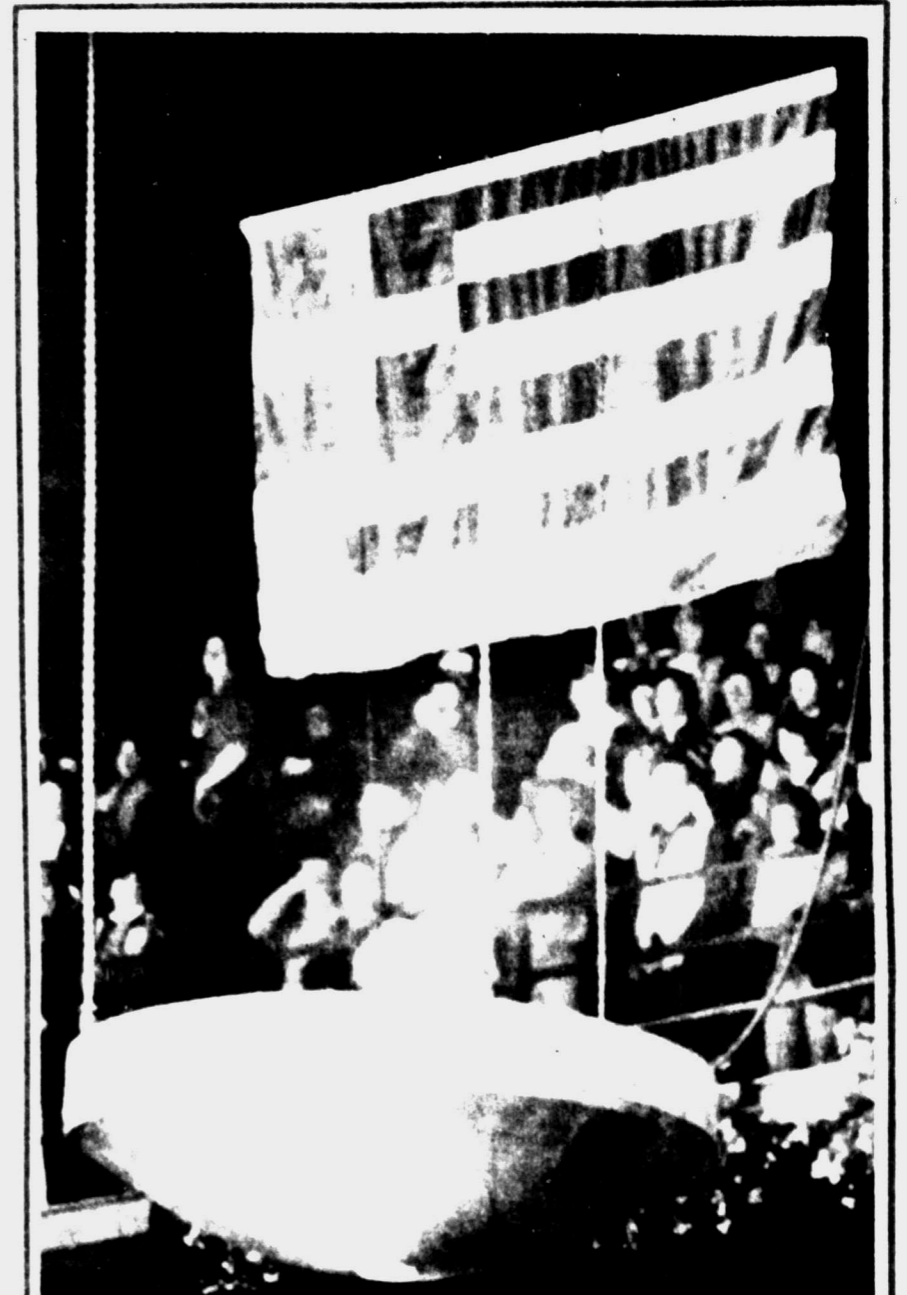

Automatic weapons and bazooka fire broke out at about 3 a. m. at the headquarters of the nation's 800-man army, one witness reported.

He said a patrol boat, apparently controlled by rebel non-commissioned officers, fired what appeared to be mortar rounds at the police headquarters, destroying part of it and setting neighboring buildings afire.

Outgoing communications abroad were cut.

Shortly after 11 a. m. the firing subsided, the source said, and within a half-hour the insurgents issued the following communique by telex:

"The National Military Council states that the democratic principles of the lawful state of Surinam will be respected fully. We, the National Council, solemnly declare that the national interests of the total Surinam population are central in all measures we will take. All of the people are appealed on to follow orders strictly."

U.S. savors winning of six gold medals

By HAL BOCK

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — The 1980 Winter Olympics — 13 days that belonged to a speed skater named Eric Heiden and a U.S. hockey team that played over its head and with all its heart — now belong to the record books. Today Americans are savoring the golden moments.

The 20 young hockey players, a motley collection of college kids and minor leaguers who never played together until last September, travel today to Washington and a White House meeting with President Carter.

"This is just a team of destiny," said defenseman Bill Baker. "It just seems things were supposed to happen this way."

Carter phoned Coach Herb Brooks right after the Americans defeated Finland 4-2 on Sunday to clinch the gold medal — the first for the United States hockey team since 1960.

"We're so proud. We were trying to do business, and nobody could do it. We were watching TV with one eye and Iran and the economy with the other," the president told Brooks, the last player cut on the 1980 squad that won a gold medal at Squaw Valley, Calif.

Vice President Walter Mondale, who attended the game, jumped up and down during the contest, slamming his fist in the air after each American goal. "This is one of the greatest moments I've been through in my life," he said later in the locker room.

Fans snaked-danced their way through the streets of this Adirondack village, singing patriotic songs after the U.S. team overcame three penalties in the final period to beat the Finns.

Goalie Jim Craig was draped with an American flag after the victory, and later said his unbeatable net play — 15 goals in seven games — was a tribute to his mother, who died three years ago of cancer.

In New York, the crowd at Radio City Music Hall sang "The Star Spangled Banner" when the win was announced. In Kansas City, Mo., the cheering throng interrupted a Kansas City Kings-Milwaukee Bucks basketball game for the anthem. And in Memphis, Tenn., demonstrators picketed the local ABC-TV affiliate which opted to carry a religious program rather than the hockey game.

In Minnesota, where more than half of the American players live, people honked their horns as they drove along the highway, and cheers erupted in most bars and restaurants.

The U.S. victory followed its 4-3 upset Friday of the highly touted Soviet team, which defeated Sweden on Sunday 9-2 to gain a silver medal. Sweden took the bronze.

East Germany finished the Games with 23 medals, nine of them gold, to 22 medals and 10 golds for the Soviets. The United States was third with 12 medals and six golds, matching its best winter production ever.

The sudden, startling success of the U.S. hockey team erased much of the sour taste of the Games that were often plagued by problems of transportation and politics.

The Games began with Taiwan losing a series of court fights and withdrawing from competition rather than participate under a name, flag and anthem dictated by the International Olympic Committee.

Then came the IOC's rejection of Carter's call for transfer, postponement or cancellation of the Summer Games in Moscow in retaliation for the Soviet Union's occupation of Afghanistan.

But through all the politics, Heiden of Madison, Wis., kept tearing around the speed skating oval, setting record after record. He won the 500, 1,000, 1,500, 5,000 and 10,000-meter tests, becoming the first athlete to claim five gold medals in a Winter Games.

Mud, water 'all over the place'

By The Associated Press

The Army Corps of Engineers is clearing an overflow channel — unused for more than half a century — to carry continuing floodwaters away from Lake Elsinore, Calif.

In Phoenix, Ariz., commuters were eyeing emergency rail service as a way to beat the traffic jams caused by bridge closings over the flooded Salt River.

The deluge ended in both California and Arizona last Thursday, but flood damage — estimated at $500 million — and continuing runoff posed problems in both states.

Mexican authorities said at least nine people were dead in northern Baja California and 20,000 homeless following the six storms over nine days that deposited 12.75 inches of rain in Los Angeles.

Officials said "masses of homes" could be wiped out if the lake was permitted to rise substantially more.

The work will damage streets and utilities, and it will cost $2.5 million — the city's annual budget — to repair them, Pace said.

Meanwhile, tourists trying to inspect the damage hampered relief efforts, Pace said.

Northwest of Lake Elsinore, San Jacinto residents — forced to flee their homes last Thursday — faced "mud all over the place" as they returned, said police spokesman Dorothy Cudd.

6,000 pounds of marijuana confiscated

Ector County Sheriff's officers made the largest drug bust in the county's history early today, netting more than 6,000 pounds of Columbian marijuana with an estimated street value of $5 million to $9 million, said Ector County Sheriff Elton Faught.

Four people were in custody today after an all night stake out on a bladed off landing strip near the Midland County line, he said.

Crane County sheriff's officers were notified about 7:30 p.m. Sunday by a truck driver that a large plane was seen going down in the vicinity.

Ector County Sheriff's officers who converged on the area arrested three men in a rental truck which reportedly contained cans of aviation fuel and traces of a substance thought to be marijuana, according to Faught.

After obtaining search warrants, Ector County officials staked out all night a dirt landing strip where a DC-3 airplane apparently had just landed and a trailer home thought to contain the drugs, according to Faught.

About daybreak, a fourth man was arrested and 106 sacks containing 6,332 pounds of a substance thought to be marijuana were confiscated, he added.

U.S. Customs officials in Houston said the plane had come from South America, Faught said.

Noting the bust was the largest ever in Ector County, Faught added "This is the mother load we've been looking for."

Clear skies are expected for Midland

Clear skies and spring-like temperatures are on tap for Midlanders through Tuesday, the weatherman said.

Fair tonight and Tuesday and warmer Tuesday is the official forecast from the National Weather Service office at Midland Regional Airport.

Tonight's low should be in the still-chilly low-30s range, but Tuesday's high is expected to be in the mid-60s.

Winds should decrease to 5-10 mph by tonight and shift to the southeast.

Sunday's high was a sunny 58 degrees, still a far cry from the record high temperature for the date of 84 degrees set in 1956. The overnight low dipped to 27, but was still warmer than the record 11 degrees measured in 1960.

No rain is mentioned in the forecast, so the monthly total should remain .29 inch with the annual accumulation at 78.

'Kramer,' 'Jazz' leaders Each gets nine Oscar nominations

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Kramer vs. Kramer," a touching story of a child custody battle, and "All That Jazz," a musical about a director's brush with death, captured top honors in the 52nd Academy Award nominations today with nine apiece.

"Apocalypse Now," a searing account of the Vietnam War, followed with eight nominations.

The modestly budgeted "Breaking Away" was nominated in five categories. "The China Syndrome," "Norma Rae" and "The Rose" followed with four each.

"All That Jazz" was the surprise of the nominations. The Bob Fosse film had aroused controversy, with some calling it a masterpiece and others considering it self-indulgent.

Two-time winner Jane Fonda was nominated for the fifth time as best actress for "The China Syndrome." Also named: Jill Clayburgh, "Starting Over"; Sally Field, "Norma Rae"; Marsha Mason, "Chapter Two"; and Bette Midler, "The Rose."

Another two-time winner, Melvyn Douglas, was among the nominees for supporting actor; he was named for "Being There." Others for supporting actor: Robert Duvall, "Apocalypse Now"; Fredric Forrest, "The Rose"; Justin Henry, "Kramer vs. Kramer"; and Mickey Rooney, "The Black Stallion."

Meryl Streep was considered by many critics to have played a starring role in "Kramer vs. Kramer" but she was nominated for best supporting actress. Others in the category: Jane Alexander, "Kramer vs. Kramer"; Barbara Barrie, "Breaking Away"; Candice Bergen, "Starting Over"; and Mariel Hemingway, "Manhattan."

The nominees for best picture were "All That Jazz," "Apocalypse Now," "Breaking Away," "Kramer vs. Kramer" and "Norma Rae."

The preliminary skirmishing, which saw studios spend hundreds of thousands for trade paper ads and other attention-getters, now is over. Competition will be focused on five nominees in each category.

Who does the voting? Nominations are made by each category — actors vote for acting achievements, writers for writing, etc. All 3,604 voting members submit their nominees for best picture, and all cast their ballots for the final awards in all categories.

Actors comprise the largest category of voters: 1,045. They are followed by writers, 345; producers, 271; musicians, 219; executives, 217; directors, 213. There is also a catch-all "at-large" category with 253. Producers, executives and at-large members nominate only for best picture.

The Directors Guild will announce its choice for best director at its annual dinner March 15. Usually the choice coincides with the Academy winner. The favorite this year appears to be Robert Benton for "Kramer vs. Kramer."

"Kramer vs. Kramer" has already collected the lion's share of pre-Academy awards — Golden Globes, New York and Los Angeles film critics, etc.

Johnny Carson will return as emcee for the 52nd Academy awards at the Los Angeles Music Center April 14. ABC will telecast the ceremonies starting an hour earlier this year — 9 p.m. EST.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is conducting an "accelerated, thorough review" of his administration's economic policies, but key aides are ruling out mandatory wage and price controls.

The president returned to the White House from Camp David ahead of schedule Sunday to confer for two hours with senior members of his economic team in the wake of continuing bad news on several economic fronts.

Charles L. Schultz, chairman of the president's Council on Economic Advisers, and another participant in the meeting said wage and price controls were not a topic of discussion.

"They are not being considered and that can be ruled out flatly," said one participant, who asked not to be identified by name. "Our primary concern on that issue is that the talk and speculation and concern about them contributes to inflation."

Details about the Sunday meeting, which lasted until 8 p.m., were so tightly held that even top aides to senior White House staff members were not informed about it beforehand and had trouble learning it.

In addition to Schultz, the participants were Treasury Secretary G. William Miller, Energy Secretary Charles Duncan, domestic policy adviser Stuart E. Eizenstat, and Alfred Kahn, chairman of the Council on Wage and Price Stability.

One White House official, who asked not to be identified further, said there would be no sudden shifts in the administration's anti-inflation policies.

The official said the meeting did not reflect an emergency situation. But he said the January increase of 1.4 percent in the Consumer Price Index, fueled by a new surge in gasoline and heating oil costs, and the 1.6 percent increase in wholesale prices made an economic re-examination appropriate.

If the Consumer Price Index rate for January, made public Friday, continues throughout the year, prices will increase 18 percent in 1980. They rose 13.3 percent in 1979, the biggest gain in 33 years.

The increase in wholesale prices was the worst in more than five years and signaled even higher consumer prices in coming months. Shortly after the inflation rate was announced, several banks lifted the prime lending rate to a record 16 1/2 percent.

The White House official said the latest economic figures confirmed what "we had been seeing for the past several weeks — that we were beginning to get a greater spill-over from the energy price increases (of last year) into other areas of the economy."

The administration's inflation fighting policy has been based primarily on voluntary action. That program called for holding wage increases last year to no more than 7 percent and price increases to about 1 percent more than the previous year.

The wage guidelines are under review, but Carter reportedly has ruled out mandatory controls on wages and prices.

The president's economic policies have been attacked by Republicans and his Democratic opponents, with Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, Carter's chief rival for his party's presidential nomination, calling repeatedly for wage and price controls.

On Sunday, Kennedy said of economic controls, "the last resort is now our only resort" to halt inflation.

Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr. of Tennessee, a Republican presidential candidate, suggested Sunday the convening of an economic summit conference to enlist Republican and Democratic leaders and candidates in a drive against inflation.

"I think we're skating on the very edge of economic disaster," he said on NBC-TV's "Meet the Press."

Martin Neill announces for hospital board post

Martin Neill, a longtime Midland resident, announced today he will file for a position on the Midland County Hospital Board of Directors in the April 5 election.

The two positions which are up for election are currently held by Mrs. Pat Estes and Frank Cowden Jr.

Until today, Mrs. Estes was the only candidate who has filed.

Neill, president of Martin Neill Co., a Midland-based mechanical contracting firm, was a member of the Midland City Council during 1968-1972 and 1974-1977.

He has served as a trustee of the Baptist Geriatrics Hospital of San Angelo and as vice chairman of the coordinating board for Texas Baptist Hospitals and Children's Homes.

He is a member of the Midland Chamber of Commerce, Associated Builders and Contractors, Inc. and the American Society of Heating, Refrigeration and Air Conditioning Engineers as well as other civic and fraternal organizations.

Neill and his wife, Genell, are active in the First Baptist Church where he has served as chairman of deacons.

Miami superintendent suspended by board in 'gold plumbing caper'

MIAMI (AP) — The "gold plumbing caper," which began with an order for deluxe bathroom fixtures, has led to the suspension of Dr. Johnny L. Jones, superintendent of the nation's fifth-largest school system and one of Miami's most respected black leaders.

Meeting in an unprecedented emergency session on Sunday, the Dade County School Board voted 6-1 to suspend Jones and unanimously to suspend MacArthur High School Principal Solomon Barnes pending resolution of the case.

The board also voted to conduct its own investigation.

Clear skies are expected for Midland

Clear skies and spring-like temperatures are on tap for Midlanders through Tuesday, the weatherman said.

Fair tonight and Tuesday and warmer Tuesday is the official forecast from the National Weather Service office at Midland Regional Airport.

Tonight's low should be in the still-chilly low-30s range, but Tuesday's high is expected to be in the mid-60s.

Winds should decrease to 5-10 mph by tonight and shift to the southeast.

Sunday's high was a sunny 58 degrees, still a far cry from the record high temperature for the date of 84 degrees set in 1956. The overnight low dipped to 27, but was still warmer than the record 11 degrees measured in 1960.

No rain is mentioned in the forecast, so the monthly total should remain .29 inch with the annual accumulation at 78.

Most residents of the Permian Basin were enjoying the same clear skies and cool temperatures Midlanders saw early today.

Martin Neill

Filing deadline for the two positions on the Midland County Hospital Board of Directors is March 5.

DEATHS

Josefa Flores

OZONA — Services for Josefa Ramon Flores, 65, of Ozona were Sunday in Our Lady of Perpetual Help Catholic Church in Ozona. Burial was in Lima Cemetery directed by Sheppard Funeral Home of Ozona.

She died Friday in an Ozona hospital. Mrs. Flores was born March 19, 1914, in Ozona. She was married Dec. 8, 1932, to Leandro Flores Sr. in Ozona. She was a member of the Catholic Church.

Chavez suggests new objectives

SAN JUAN, Texas (AP) — Texas farm workers must lower their sights from collective bargaining rights to grass roots organizing until their political strength grows, says United Farm Workers President Cesar Chavez.

"The most important things is to organize. We're doing very well," Chavez told reporters Sunday at the state UFW legislative convocation.

Farm workers could risk passage of a bad agricultural labor law if they pushed for collective bargaining rights too soon, he said.

Hostages freed unhurt by gunman in Ohio bank

BEREA, Ohio (AP) — A gunman who took six persons hostage in a BancOhio National Bank branch over the weekend surrendered peacefully to police and FBI agents after a nearly 24-hour ordeal.

The last three hostages were released at 10:58 a.m. Sunday after Earl Ellery Wright, 51, handed his gun through a drive-up window to an FBI negotiator outside.

Wright was charged with bank robbery and was held at an undisclosed location for appearance today before a U.S. magistrate in Cleveland, the FBI said.

He is wanted as a parole violator and on another bank robbery warrant issued in connection with a $20,000 robbery last Dec. 4 at the First National Bank of Kenova, W.Va., according to the FBI.

No shots were fired and no one was harmed during the episode that began at 12:45 p.m. Saturday, when police responded to a silent alarm in the bank.

About 50 FBI agents and policemen surrounded the bank, setting up headquarters in a fast-food restaurant 100 feet away.

After the hostages emerged, Wright came out with bowed head. He was embraced by his girlfriend, Marla Longworth from the Louisville, Ky., area, who was with FBI negotiators.

"We just want to forget the whole thing," said David Valentine. His wife Bonnie is a teller at the bank and they were taken hostage when he came to pick her up.

There were seven people in the bank when police trapped the gunman inside, FBI agent John Dunn said. One woman slipped out in the confusion, leaving four women and two men.

Authorities refused to identify them. The Valentines and branch manager William Fletcher were identified through other sources.

One woman was released at 4 p.m. Saturday, and Fletcher emerged about 8 p.m. Another woman was released early Sunday.

The FBI sent in food for the gunman and hostages and talked to Wright by telephone several times until 2:30 a.m. Sunday when he refused to answer the phone. Negotiations at the drive-up window began shortly after 7 a.m. Sunday.

Strong quake hits areas of California

SPRING CREST, Calif. (AP) — A strong earthquake rolled through a wide area of Southern California early today, sparking a fire and apparently triggering desert land slides.

No injuries were reported, but residents from Mexico to Los Angeles and from the desert to the sea — an area with a population of about 10 million — were jolted awake by the quake. There were several aftershocks.

An unoccupied duplex in the desert community of Rancho Mirage was damaged when the quake broke a natural gas line to a water heater and the pilot light set off a blaze, authorities said.

There were no reports of additional damage to several desert levees that broke and caused flooding in last week's string of Pacific storms. Dams in the San Diego area, which geyflowed during the same storms last week, also appeared stable.

John Schaffner, spokesman for the state Department of Forestry in Hemet, 30 miles west of the resort community of Spring Crest, said fire officials had left their station to check on reports of rock slides. Otherwise, he said, damage was "nothing to speak of — some people's china falling off the wall and a few things like that."

The quake, which registered 5.1 on the Richter scale, struck at 2:47 a.m. and was centered 65 miles northeast of San Diego and 15 miles southeast of Lake Hemet near Spring Crest, 120 miles southeast of Los Angeles in the Santa Rosa Mountains, according to Jim Black, a spokesman at the California Institute of Technology seismology lab in Pasadena.

"It doesn't appear to be an aftershock of anything recent, so I think we'll have to call it a quake of its own," said Kate Hutton, a seismologist at the lab.

She said it appeared to be part of the San Jacinto fault system. Hemet police Sgt. Brad Hough called the quake "pretty decent."

School trustees to consider calling bond election Tuesday

Midland Independent School District trustees may call for a bond election during the Tuesday afternoon meeting in the Administration Building's board room, 702 N. N St.

In the Feb. 12 meeting, trustees discussed the possibility of calling for a bond election during the April 5 general election to pay for repairs and maintenance.

It is believed the total cost of the bond election would be in the $2 million range.

Also, during the 1:30 p.m. meeting, the textbook committee will present its recommendations to adopt textbooks for the 1980-81 school year.

The subject areas chosen for adoption are beginning and advanced typewriting for high school, health education, civil government and automotive trades.

The board will consider approval of federal Title II funding for the early childhood center at Bunche Elementary.

The center will house the Headstart program as well as other pre-school programs.

Other actions include accepting bids for lockers at Midland High School, public address systems and athletic tickets, discussing personnel matters and changing dates for the March and April board meetings.

Two Midland thefts investigated

Two reported thefts were investigated Sunday by the Midland Police Department.

Maxwell Munoz, 1406 S. Loraine St., reported a burglary at the Fina service station, 400 E. Florida Ave., to police. According to Munoz, the theft occurred Saturday.

He told police entry to the building was gained by breaking a window. An assortment of auto supplies, valued at $1,374, was taken.

Exit was through a back door, according to Munoz. W.C. Kenan, 402 E. Shandon Ave., reported a theft from Faith Temple Church, 1605 N. Terrell St. Entry to the church was gained through a south door and $300 in cash was taken.

Governors greeted with conciliatory messages on revenue sharing

WASHINGTON (AP) — On the eve of the presidential primary in New Hampshire, the Carter administration wants to avert a blowup with the nation's governors over the formula for continued revenue sharing.

Administration officials sent conciliatory signals to the states Sunday on the revenue sharing issue as the governors opened their annual winter meeting.

Revenue sharing, a generally unrestricted return of federal tax money to state and local governments, is the most popular form of federal aid. President Carter has pledged to continue it, but details of his plan have caused complaints from state officials.

The Carter bill had been scheduled to go to Congress last week. But it has been pulled back after the state officials objected to having special councils, appointed from state and local governments, pass on joint revenue sharing ventures.

At Sunday's meeting with the governors' executive committee, Gene Eidenberg, deputy assistant to the president for intergovernmental affairs, said he was sure the administration and the states will find "areas of common ground" and move ahead with the matter.

Sources, who asked not to be named, said state officials had let it be known that if the matter was not reconsidered there would be "a political explosion right before the New Hampshire primary...."

One party to the negotiations reportedly told Stuart Eizenstat, the president's domestic policy adviser, the Carter proposal was "a state humiliation act" and unacceptable to the governors.

The Carter draft would create councils with nine local members and eight state members, who would pre-empt coordinating councils already in place in about 30 states.

The main objection relates to numerous deadlines in the Carter bill for council action on various federal payments.

"If the council doesn't complete its work on time, the state could lose its revenue sharing money," said one official. "This would give local governments a tremendous club over the states. For reasons totally unrelated to revenue sharing, they could hold up the state's money."

While Eidenberg told the governors' executive committee he did not want to make any promises he couldn't keep, he said the administration is now "disposed to retain maximum flexibility." He indicated one concession might be recognition of many of the existing councils.

Shirley M. Hufstader, the nation's first secretary of education, also assured state education leaders and governors she is "very firmly committed to the proposition that the primary of control of education... rests with the states."

Crisis felt in relations with France

By PAUL TREUTHARDT

PARIS (AP) — The crisis in Afghanistan has pushed relations between France and the United States into another chilly phase.

France has condemned the Soviet action and publicly pledged its total loyalty to the NATO alliance. But it has avoided any steps that might impair its somewhat privileged relations with Moscow.

More broadly, U.S. officials, as Ambassador Arthur A. Hartman said in an unusually frank speech, are worried at talk in French political circles of a "third road" between the two superpowers.

"It seems to me important not to forget what side you're on," he said. The "third road" is not official French policy.

It is also a policy that appeals to the still-influential Gaullists, led by former Premier Jacques Chirac, and Georges Marchais, whose Communist Party still polls about 20 percent of the vote in France.

The United States does not expect France to match American embargoes on exports to the Soviet Union since that would harm vital French interests.

The French exported more than $1.75 billion worth of goods to the Soviet Union last year. Although this was only about 2 percent of France's foreign trade, the exports were largely from such domestically important employment areas as heavy engineering.

The United States is asking for "parallel" actions, but "it is hard to see any concrete actions from France at all," one diplomat said.

Ambassador Hartman was clearly alluding to France when he said: "Some in Europe criticize our actions as inappropriate. I'm still waiting for a list of appropriate actions."

Four hours of intensive talks last Thursday between Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and Foreign Minister Jean Francois-Poncet did nothing to ameliorate the situation.

"There was agreement to disagree," said one official. "There was no major shift of positions."

France's hedging over the Olympic boycott was, despite the attention paid to it, only a minor issue apparently. Vance said on leaving the meeting that "we touched on it briefly," and sources said that was almost an overstatement.

Hartman's hard-hitting speech was delivered on the eve of Vance's visit at a dinner arranged long before. The ambassador addressed deep-seated problems between the two nations; not such temporary things as France's refusal to attend a publicized Western meeting with Vance in Bonn, which Paris saw as "provocative" to Moscow.

Washington admitted its arrangements for the meeting were at-fault. But initial anger with France led President Carter to say there are times "when we get aggravated and displeased by the French, and there are times when the French get aggravated and displeased with us."

Saying Europe's "vital interests are engaged," Hartman said: "We do not ask Europe mindlessly to align itself with us; but we have a right to expect Europe not to distance itself from us simply to show its independence."

"We simply ask Europe not to take the United States as the point of reference but to define its own interests and act upon them."

Hartman said because European nations feel weak alongside the United States, "Europeans — and particularly the French — have a tendency to want to stay clear of gatherings where they feel domestic political enemies may accuse their leaders of bowing to U.S. pressures."

But the United States actively wants Europe's "advice, counsel and participation" to parry Soviet attempts to divide the West, he added.

500 British bobbies doing duty in Rhodesia

By ROBERT WELLER

CHIMIMBA, Rhodesia (AP) — "I can run real fast if the bullets start flying," said British bobby Colin Johnstone as he got ready to patrol his new beat in a Rhodesian village in guerrilla country.

About 500 British policemen, all volunteers and all unarmed, arrived during the weekend for duty at polling stations during the parliamentary elections that start Wednesday.

Johnstone and two other Scots were headed for Rusambo, a small village in an area heavily infiltrated by guerrillas before the cease-fire in the seven-year war.

The bobbies were not brought in to serve as policemen.

"They will be an additional force to make sure that voters are not in any way intimidated by people from any party or by polling staff themselves," said the assistant election commissioner, Malcolm Carruthers. "But they won't have any actual power to stop intimidation. That will be the job of the local service."

"We'll watch out for them," said Jock Mitchell, the police superintendent for the area. A Scot himself, he served two years as a British policeman. The bobbies were warned that conditions would be rough, and they didn't have to wait long to confirm it. Johnstone was one of 11 who were flown to nearby Mount Darwin at treetop level.

"I just left my stomach at the end of the runway," said one of the 11 as he wobbled off the Royal Air Force C-130.

Then the Land Rover that was to carry Johnstone and his two partners into the bush wouldn't start. The bobbies pushed until the motor caught.

Asked why he volunteered for this duty, Johnstone said: "Someone had to do it, and I thought it would be interesting. Of course, my girl friend wants to clobber me."

Back home, Johnstone, 24, patrols in Keith, a town of 4,200 people 45 miles northwest of Aberdeen.

"It's a town that is not so big that we don't know just about everyone by name," he said. "There's not much crime, and when there is we usually know who did it right off."

He seemed right in his element in Rhodesia, passing out candy to black children while black soldiers armed with automatic weapons stood guard.

Mugabe will seek coalition with Nkomo

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Marxist guerrilla leader Robert Mugabe said today that he would invite rival guerrilla chief Joshua Nkomo to join him in a coalition government after black members of Rhodesia's new Parliament are elected this week.

"It does not matter how many seats we win or what level of seats we secure. We will form a coalition with (Nkomo's party)," Mugabe said in an interview with the Argus Africa News Services of South Africa.

It was Mugabe's first firm offer of a coalition with Nkomo. The latter has not said whether his party, the Patriotic Front, would accept a coalition with Mugabe's Zimbabwe African National Union (Patriotic Front Faction), which in the voting Wednesday through Friday is expected to win the largest share of the 80 seats reserved for blacks in the 100-seat Parliament.

The 20 seats reserved for whites were won by Former Prime Minister Ian Smith's party in voting last week. Mugabe warned the white minority, which ruled Rhodesia's black majority for nine decades and now controls the armed forces, against staging a coup to overthrow the new government.

Two persons were killed Sunday by a bomb in the town of Gwelo that blew up the office of a newspaper that supported Mugabe's party.

The King

The "funny-looking kid" singing "funny-sounding rockabilly songs" is soon taken very seriously and hailed as "The King" when Kurt Russell stars as Elvis Presley in "Elvis," an affectionate biography of the American hero which will have a special encore showing on ABC's "The ABC Monday Night Movie," Monday, Feb. 25.

Elvis Presley has been the subject of numerous portraits since his death. While there has been much speculation about his private life, "The King" celebrates his fame, his style and primarily his musical talent.

DEAR ABBY

Unconfined confinement

BY ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I have never needed advice so badly in my life, and you are the only one I can turn to. My married daughter is pregnant with her second child and is planning to have natural childbirth this time. She and her husband have been going for "lessons." It sounds very far out to me, but if that's their choice, it's all right with me. But, Abby, she plans to have her 3-year-old son watch the delivery! Her husband will be present at the birth, and she also has invited her 19-year-old unmarried sister to witness the whole business! Lord help me! I had all I could do to keep from getting hysterical when she told me this.

Abby, do you think a 3-year-old child can handle something like this? Even a 19-year-old unmarried girl might not be able to handle it. I get sick at the thought of it.

We are conservative people, and I have raised my daughters to be modest, so this is a terrible shock to me.

What do you think of this whole business? — APPALLED IN K.C.

DEAR APPALLED: There is no better way to learn about the miracle of life than to witness childbirth. I see nothing shocking or immodest about it. And a 3-year-old child should find it a fascinating and educational experience.

DEAR ABBY: Remember me? I'm Abe Puchkoff (age 83) from Brooklyn. Ever since my name appeared in your column last summer, I've had letters and phone calls from all over the country.

How's this for a story? When I was a 27-year-old bachelor, a pretty girl caught my eye. I called her for a date, but she played hard to get, so that ended that.

Well, last Saturday my phone rang, and this very same lady (only 56 years later) said, "Is this Abe Puchkoff?"

I said, "Yes, that's me."

When she told me who she was, I nearly fainted. Then she said, "I saw your name in Dear Abby's column. I've been a widow for 20 years. How would you like to take me out to lunch?"

I very politely said, "It's not good for us to see each other so often." Then I added, "Besides, with God's help, my wife and I will celebrate our 50th this June." — ABE PUCHKOFF

DEAR ABE: Thanks for another day-brightener. And mazeltov!

DEAR ABBY: I am making plans for my wedding. My father has cancer and I would like to put a note in the wedding invitations: "Send no gift, but give a donation to the Cancer Society."

Do you think this would be all right? I trust your judgment. — DADDY'S GIRL

DEAR GIRL: I know you mean well, and I sympathize. But I think such a note would be inappropriate.

Wedding bells in your future? Whether your lifestyle is bridal gown or blue jeans, Abby lays it all out for you in her booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents) self-addressed envelope to Abby in care of this newspaper.

SWAT Squads in food places for their own safety

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — Sanitary SWAT Squads are sweeping down on restaurants, fast-food stands and bars here, in an effort to turn this tropical South American metropolis into a safe eating and drinking place for its own citizens.

Another goal is to avoid sending foreign tourists home with queasy stomachs or outright food poisoning. Twenty-one special teams of "Cleanliness Commandos" are now patrolling this city of 5 million around the clock, bursting in unannounced on its 35,000 hotels, restaurants, bars, lunch counters, bakeries, butcher shops and supermarkets.

The general idea is to make sure that what is served to the public won't put anybody in the hospital.

"We want to guarantee the consumer that behind the facade of the dining salon or the display counter, things are in perfect shape from a health standpoint," said Max Sztajn, one of Rio's regional administrators — or assistant mayors — and the man in charge of the commandos.

"And," he said, "we want to ensure foreign visitors that in Rio they'll find health standards in public eating and drinking places as high as in any other major world city."

Last year the cleanliness commandos made 82,634 inspections of food-related establishments. They found 5,904 sanitary violations and levied fines of around $1 million. Thirty places were ordered closed, because of gross filthiness.

Results of initial inspections in 1980 indicate the cleanup crackdown is working. Infractions have gone down 60 to 70 percent, according to Sztajn, based on comparisons of cleanliness checkups of the same places this year and last.

The commando teams — each of which consists of seven to 10 persons, including veterinarians, City Health Department inspectors, municipal tax and public works officials, plus personal representatives of mayor Israel Klabin — make sanitation-control inspections of everything from shabby neighborhood taverns to luxurious international-class hotels.

Older women need help to cope with changing times

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP) — Women 55 and older need help to cope with the changing marketplace, says an Oklahoma State University specialist in family resource management.

What are needed are consumer education programs, Bonnie Braun of the university's Cooperative Extension Service, concluded from her research toward a doctorate in home economics education, family economics and management at the University of Missouri-Columbia.

She based her findings on information obtained from 220 Extension Homemakers or senior citizen center participants who answered a 66-item consumer economic knowledge test. These women 55 years or older lived in three Oklahoma counties — Oklahoma, Cleveland and Lincoln.

During most of their lives, she explains, these women dealt on a personal basis with a salesperson. And when something went wrong, they went back to that person.

"But think how many changes have taken place in the marketplace over the years. With so much self service in markets today, many older people often wonder what to do when a problem shows up with a product or service," Dr. Braun says.

She notes that one of the greatest challenges increasingly larger numbers of older women face is responding to rapid, complex changes affecting their personal or family finances.

She limited her study to women 55 and older because women outlive men and have less income. "Many of these older women living alone because they never married or were divorced or widowed have very limited incomes and need to know how to function in the marketplace at a time when prices are continually rising," she says.

She suggests three ways to ease financial plights of many aging adults whose incomes now barely pay food and utilities:

—Increase incomes through Social Security, Supplementary Security Income, family member contributions, or by the individuals going to work.

—Provide services or income in kind, such as food, that older persons do not have to spend money for to extend their resources.

—Conduct consumer education programs to help people learn to manage and use their resources more effectively than before.

She says, "Of those options, I believe consumer education is the most cost-effective method of helping older persons, especially those on fixed incomes, cope with rising prices."

"Since women 65 and older averaged lower scores in consumer economics knowledge than those 55 to 64, I'd urge educators to make an effort to reach older women during the initial consumer education programs."

Dr. Braun believes her research will help home economists and other program planners develop relevant consumer education programs to help older adults become more competent consumers.

She represents the Cooperative Extension Service on the Oklahoma Alliance on Aging and she is on a task force for retirement living, helping to develop an information referral system.

Students in Iowa learning by telephone to help fight rising gasoline costs

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa (AP) — An Iowa community college is using teaching by telephone to help students combat rising gasoline costs.

Kirkwood Community College is sending telephone instruction into small towns — even into a penal institution — with growing success, says Bill F. Stewart, Kirkwood president.

The Kirkwood experiment is significant in an area where population is thinly spread and rising gasoline prices have a great effect on lifestyles, he points out.

"This is country where people have thought nothing of driving one or two hundred miles on a Saturday for a college football game, or a performance by a touring symphony group," Stewart says. "It's a way of life that faces destruction from rising oil costs."

The same people often commute great distances to attend college classes. Kirkwood, for example, serves a seven-county area covering 4,292 square miles of mostly rural farm land and small towns. The college has no dormitories and no resident students.

Stewart says the school's two-year experiment with a telephone "telenetwork" has proven its effectiveness and popularity with students. He says the college now views telephone instruction as a "bridge" to more sophisticated methods, such as two-way microwave television instruction.

Here's how the telephone system at Kirkwood works:

On the college's central campus in Cedar Rapids, a single classroom is outfitted with sending-receiving equipment for telephone communications. Instead of regular telephones, there are microphones and speakers that carry telephone signals.

Six classrooms are similarly equipped in smaller cities and towns throughout the Kirkwood service area. Students are invited to attend classes near their home, rather than driving to the central campus. The instructor can teach from any of the seven sites.

The telephone system provides for multisided discussions as well as lectures by instructors. It's not a lot different from a telephone party line. Kirkwood faculty members were given special training on how to make effective use of the medium.

One obvious question about the new system was whether it was too impersonal. To help overcome this, instructors were encouraged to teach from different telenetwork sites on alternating weeks, allowing all of their students to get to know them.

Some subjects were found to be better suited to telephone methods than others. Good results have been obtained in social science, agriculture and criminal justice, and in personal development subjects such as career decision-making and lifestyle planning courses. Subjects such as science and pure mathematics are more difficult to teach by telephone, Stewart notes.

"One of the big advantages of Kirkwood has been the ability to bring college instruction to small groups in rural areas," Stewart says. Previously, the college had difficulty organizing extension-type classes in smaller towns and cities. The telenetwork method makes it economically feasible to teach groups of two or three students at each class site.

During the first five quarters of experimentation, the average telenetwork class size was 27.1 students, including 8.2 students at the central campus site and smaller numbers in the outlying sites. The state men's reformatory at Anamosa, about 25 miles from the campus, enrolled an average of 7.2 students in each class.

"The telephone system has given new life to the reformatory education program, making it feasible for inmates to earn their two-year associate degrees almost exclusively by telephone instruction," says Stewart, adding that Kirkwood provides professional counseling and other services through a staff employed inside the reformatory.

Even during the first year of operation in 1978-79, the telenetwork system generated tuition income greater than costs. More than 39,000 contact hours of instruction were delivered via the system.

The Iowa college now has plans for something more sophisticated — a microwave system providing two-way color television communication throughout the college's seven-county service area. The college has received the first in a series of expected grants from the Public Telecommunications Facilities Program of the U.S. Department of Commerce to construct microwave links between the central campus and outlying cities and towns.

"Up to this point, the telenetwork has not made a profound impact on campus life at Kirkwood. Most of the college's 4,700 students still drive to class, filling large asphalt parking lots.

"But the telephone and television set may play a big part in the future of students like them," Stewart says. "And it may provide some insurance against sagging college enrollments in rural America."

Newest hairstyle, '10', gaining popularity throughout U.S.

CHICAGO (AP) — Is it a lasting fashion or just a fad? The newest hairstyle look that's gaining popularity in beauty salons is the "10," similar to ancient African cornrow styles and currently popularized by Bo Derek's headful of braids, beads and feathers in the movie, "10."

Hairstylists report a big response from young, fashion-conscious women. And the Helene Curtis Hairstylists Advisory Board, a panel of 12 stylists from across the country, agree that many salon clients want the tiny rows of braids.

"It's a terrific 'wet look' for winter vacations," says Darlene Hakola in Portland, Ore. "With a '10,' you don't have to look like yourself. You can look trendy for just a week or two."

She and other stylists warn that

"10" braiding can be time-consuming — and costly. The tiniest braids, may require four or more hours, with one or two stylists working at the same time on different parts of the head.

At Ms. Hakola's salon, the minimum cost is about $35. Chicago stylist Jerry Gordon reports that "on the average, the cost runs about $70 to $75" at his salon. And the price may well run over $100, depending on braiding time and individual salon rates.

Caring for the style can be a knotty problem, so the Advisory Board offers these 10 tips for "10s":

—Have a professional salon stylist do the braiding, for a long-lasting and properly plaited effect. A professional can analyze hair type and condition, and counsel a client on whether to opt for the tiniest cornrow braids or larger braids in various patterns.

—Frequent shampooing can loosen the braids. To cleanse hair, try diluting 1 part shampoo in 4 parts water. Pour the solution over hair, and rinse thoroughly. Use this technique to shampoo about every 3 days, and condition in the same way once a week.

—Avoid dyed feathers; the colors can "run" when you shower, shampoo, swim or get caught in a rainstorm.

—Tight braids shouldn't harm healthy hair, if worn for only a week or so, because the braids "relax" after a few days. But, if hair is dry, brittle, bleached or otherwise damaged, try looser, bigger braids instead.

—If you intend to stay plaited for a long time, hair breakage is a possibility. Don't keep the braids for months on end, and, as a precaution, use hair oil or brilliantine to lubricate hair and scalp.

—At night, pin up hair ends, beads and all. Cover with a hair net to keep the braids from loosening and the beads from scratching your face.

—Skip beads and feathers out of the plaits to change colors, to alter the overall look, or for more comfortable sleep.

—On the beach, or in other sun-filled places, be careful not to burn exposed scalp. Your scalp, unused to the sun's rays, may be unusually sensitive to burning.

—After letting the braids out, give hair a deep moisturizing conditioner treatment. Hair tends to lose elasticity when tightly cornrowed; a deep conditioner will help restore resilience.

—Thin hair? Avoid the "10" look! Tight braids need all the hair they can get.

Few people ignore almost completely covered house

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — In a warm months, architect Bill Fuller likes to sit on the deck atop his midtown house, play his guitar and watch motorists react as they pass by. Few ignore Fuller's home.

"I watch the people as they watch the house as they go by and there are so many near-wrecks," Fuller said in an interview. "It's almost entertaining."

Fuller's house, which he designed and built himself, is almost completely covered with dirt fashioned into slopes and planted with grass.

"The sloped earth is called a berm and acts as an insulator," said Fuller, a graduate of Auburn University. "It's the first underground or dirt or sod house in Memphis."

Fuller, 32, in business for himself after several years working for architectural firms, paid $12,350 for the corner lot on which the house is located. He built it at night and on weekends for a year before moving in about five months ago.

"The normal price per square foot for a regular builder's house is about $33. If you want a custom house, you're talking $50 or $60 per square foot. This house cost me under $20 a square foot."

Into 2,400 square feet, Fuller has packed three bedrooms, two baths, a bar, a living room-dining room-kitchen-garden-foyer area, dressing rooms, a patio, decks, storage areas, a pantry and laundry room. And he's not finished. This spring he'll add a pool.

To illustrate how efficient dirt is as an insulator, he'll show visitors utility receipts. "The average utility bill for 2,400 square feet has been about $45, maybe $50. In the summer, my first utility bill was $8." He heats with a forced air natural gas system.

The inside of Fuller's house is almost as arresting as the outside. A curved brick walk leads down to the sunken living room with its huge curved sofa and fireplace made of corrugated metal. The living room, dining room, kitchen, garden and foyer are combined in one 800-square-foot area that's the core of the house.

The house, Fuller said, is an expression of his lifestyle.

"It works like a charm. When I come home, the first place I go is to the kitchen. If you entertain, most people go to the kitchen and they stay there. If you can pull them into the living room, you're doing real good. So I said, 'Well, I'm not going to have a wall there, I'm going to open it up.'"

Inside, he's left the structural system and mechanical system exposed.

"In our profession it's called truth in architecture. Where it's normal to cover it up and say it's ugly, I've exposed it and said it's pretty, because it's a very truthful expression of its function."

Children should discover early in life that reading is fun

NEW YORK (AP) — Because reading skills are so important throughout life, children should discover as early as possible that learning to read is both feasible and fun, Peter K. Shreck believes.

"If parents can teach their children to speak at home, which is a more complex process, then they can teach them to read," says Shreck, who has a master's degree in experimental psychology and has worked extensively with teaching machines and other educational aids.

With this conviction in mind, the 43-year-old father of two has developed a series of books to help parents teach their children to read. The "Acorn Magic Readers" use sprightly pictures of animals and birds to introduce words, which are added to the child's reading vocabulary by gentle repetition.

Shreck, who at one time developed remediation materials to deal with problems already encountered in second- and third-graders, decided to shift toward emphasizing the fundamentals and thus to forestall such reading problems.

"There used to be a strong feeling that one shouldn't meddle with teaching at home," he says, but he notes several factors have served to change that view:

"Programs like 'Sesame Street' have opened up preschool education; the average age of parents is increasing and these older parents are more concerned with education; and problems with reading after children reach school are escalating."

Shreck tested each book at the University School of Nova University, Fort Lauderdale, Fla. "I'd go to school and read it to the children and continue to redo it until it worked," he recalls, adding that he had to go back and completely rewrite the first book "because the children didn't understand what a word was."

"The first step," he explains, "is to bring children to the point where they know what a word is and are able to recognize words as distinguished from other words. It's a matter of repeating until they comprehend that one word is different from another — you can almost see it happen."

"I wouldn't promote trying to get a child to read too early," says Shreck, who believes 3½ is a point at which interest develops. He feels it should take at least four or five months to go through the 15 little books in progression. "There's no hurry. I want parents to have a good time and children to have a good time and to understand that reading is feasible and fun."

Shreck is working on and testing an additional series of 15 books, the first five dealing with phrases, the second five with sentences and the third group with little stories.

"It's the same sequence as in learning speech," he points out. "First, the single word, then short phrases, which are used to build sentences. Put the sentences in sequence and the child will be able to read stories. The most important step is giving the child the self-confidence that reading is not so difficult that only adults can do it."

The last 20 books of the 50 that will eventually make up the set will be on phonics. "Once the child has gotten the confidence that he can read, then I give him the key by which he can decode lots of words through phonics."

"I'm not doing anything different than anyone else," he says of the word identification process usually called look-say. "The difference is that in the preschool marketplace only two categories have existed; charming pictures with words underneath and story books. There's been nothing that actually allows a parent who is not an expert in teaching reading to present in a systematic fashion a method by which a child can learn how to actually read words."

Won't the kids be bored when they get to school?

"Reading is the single most important element in later education. I would risk their becoming bored," Shreck says. "As time goes by, we're going to have to be more worried about their not being able to read than about their being bored when they go to school."

Shreck, who was born in Vienna, Austria, now lives in Cornwall, England, on a 125-acre farm with his wife, Sheila, an elementary school teacher, and sons, age 2 and 3.

Clear Fork discovery takes potential

Boone & Moore Oil Co. of Lubbock finished the No. 8 Amoco-Collier Estate as a Clear Fork oil discovery in the Ridge, South field of Crosby County, 14.5 miles south of Ralls. It finished for a 24-hour pumping potential of 62 barrels of 36-gravity oil and 70 barrels of water, through perforations from 3,778 to 3,818 feet. No treatment was reported. Drilled to 3,990 feet, 4.5-inch casing was landed on bottom. Location is 660 feet from south and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 10, block 2, D&E survey.

KENT WORKOVER
Loco Oil Corp. of Snyder will re-enter the No. 1 Connell and plug back to 7,190 feet for test in the Polar, East field of Kent County, three miles northeast of Polar. Originally drilled by Pauley Petroleum Inc., it was finished in 1963 as a Strawn "B" & "C" producer, bottomed at 7,834 feet. Location is 1,980 from north and east lines of section 4, block 5, H&G survey.

staked location for the No. 3 Harris as a 5,900-foot test in Coke County, four miles south of Silver. The site is a 1,500-foot south stepout to a 3/4-mile extension to the Lyggy oil field. Location is 3,150 from north and 1,300 from east lines of section 4, D.H. & J.W. Snyder & William Von Rosenberg survey.

HOCKLEY EXPLORER
Conoco, Inc. of Midland staked location for the No. 1 C.B. Reed as a 10,600-foot wildcat in Hockley County, five miles northeast of Levelland. Drillsite is 660 feet from south and east lines of labor 22, league 723, State Capital Lands survey. Ground elevation is 3,441 feet. The explorer is 1.75 miles northeast of the lone producer of the Van Mac (Clear Fork Lower) field.

FISHER PROJECTS
R.L. Adkins of Sweetwater will drill the No. 1-D Hogan as a 5/8-mile northwest stepout to the Wickham (Palo Pinto gas) field of Fisher County, four miles west of Noodle. Drillsite is 4,360 from north and 467 from east lines of George Creath survey No. 221.

UPTON PRODUCER
John L. Cox of Midland finished the No. 1 Cities-Neal as a 2 1/2-mile northwest extension to the Benedum (Fusselman) field of Upton County, 17 miles northeast of Rankin. It completed to flow 68 barrels of 45-gravity oil and no water, through a 12/64-inch choke and perforations from 11,322 to 11,399 feet, which were acidized with 500 gallons. Gas-oil ratio is 4,735-1. forces could be deployed," he said. Jackson, acting chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said neither Israeli nor U.S. military forces would be deployed in such a regional security arrangement. "The basic requirement... is that they be Islamic forces," Jackson said. He said, however, that Israel and Egypt would play a major role in persuading other countries in the Middle East to look out for their mutual interest. Jackson, who is also chairman of the Senate Energy Committee, argued that traditional enemies in the Middle East could be submerged because of an aggressive Soviet effort to gain direct or indirect control of oil reserves. "They are looking at the Russian gun barrels," he said. For the United States, Jackson said, "foreign policy, national security policy, how they are managed will determine our price and supply of

Jackson wants new military alliance

WASHINGTON (AP) — To protect America's energy supplies, Sen. Henry M. Jackson suggests the United States organize a new Middle East military alliance including Israel and friendly Arab nations. Jackson also predicted in a week-end interview that by the end of the year gasoline prices will hit close to $2 a gallon. The senator's previous gasoline price predictions, including one his forecast early last year of $1 a gallon prices by the end of 1979, were right on the mark. The Washington Democrat called for the United States to build a string of military bases, manned by Islamic forces, to offset threats to the oil fields, mainly from the Soviet Union. "It is an attempt to overthrow a regime that is vital to our security interest and we have signed an agreement to come to their aid... then those oil) for the next 10 to 15 years." Jackson said that President Carter appears to have no long term Middle East policy and has received few fresh ideas on the subject from his advisers. On domestic energy issues, Jackson said by year's end gasoline prices "shouldn't reach $2 but it should be close to $2." And he said by spring he expects some spot shortages and possibly some long gas lines. "As prices go up and supply becomes tight, the need for some kind of rationing solution will become far more acceptable and palatable. A person is going to say, well, I just like to know how much I'm entitled to have and I'd rather have that and know I can get it," Jackson said. "Much will depend on the situation in the Persian Gulf," he continued. "By that I mean whether the United States will be smart enough to negotiate security agreements with the oil-producing countries."

New tests, wells reported in Basin

Sayers Operating Co. of Midland will drill the No. 1 Helen as a 8,950-foot Fusselman oil test in the Coahoma, North field of Howard County, four miles east of Coahoma. # IMF believes United States should hike gasoline taxes

By R. GREGORY NOKES
WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and other industrial nations should try to reduce consumption of imported oil by imposing sharply higher taxes on gasoline, says a new study by the International Monetary Fund. The IMF study appears highly critical of U.S. policy-makers for failing to use higher taxes to reduce gasoline consumption. It had an answer for every objection raised by policy-makers to a higher tax — except the political implications of such a move. Although the study is couched in the polite terminology of economists, the IMF appeared to say that if the United States was really serious about conserving energy, it would give high priority to enacting a big increase in its tax.

R-III, is on record as favoring a gasoline tax increase. Anderson has introduced legislation for a 50-cent increase with part of the money used to reduce Social Security taxes. The United States currently has the lowest gasoline tax of any major industrial nation, and the federal tax has not been increased for years. Even counting state taxes, the average tax is only about 12-13 cents a gallon. The IMF study dealt with gasoline tax policies in seven countries — the United States, the United Kingdom, Canada, Japan, Germany, France and Italy. None of them are doing what they could, it concluded. "In the United States and the United Kingdom, the real revenue from the gasoline tax (after discounting for inflation) actually fell from 1970 to 1978," it said. "In all countries reviewed except Italy, gasoline taxation relative to other sources of government tax revenue became less important. There is also substantial evidence that none of the countries, with the possible exception of Italy, has fully exploited the potential of gasoline taxation either as a revenue-generating instrument or as a policy for promoting gasoline conservation."

The IMF is an organization of 140 nations, including the United States, which supervises the world monetary system. Lately, its influence has grown, and it has had considerable success in getting its member countries to agree to its policies. In the new study, the fund said oil-importing nations should consider the "new and important role for gasoline taxation ... in supplementing market forces to promote reduced reliance on imported oil. ... Indeed, one view is that higher taxation by the oil consuming governments might eventually lead to a situation where consuming governments would have the power to preempt most or all of the profit of the oil exporting countries," it said. One major advantage of a gasoline tax is that it keeps the money at home, whereas relying on market prices to restrain consumption results in a transfer of much of the money to foreign producers, the IMF said. Another is that it can be an important source of revenue. It said U.S. gasoline taxes, as well as those in most other industrial countries, have not kept pace with market prices, which is a big mistake. "They are transferring potential revenue to the producing countries — and relieving the gasoline consumer at the expense of other taxpayers — thus at the same time inducing budgetary difficulties, worsening their balance of payments and sacrificing the objective of reduced dependence on oil imports," it said. But the IMF did not address the political implications of higher gasoline taxes. The ouster of Joe Clark as Canadian prime minister last week was partly blamed on his proposal to sharply increase Canada's gasoline tax.

Mobil Producing Tx & NM, Inc., No. 1 John B. O'Reilly (formerly Mobil Oil Corp. No. 1 John B. O'Reilly), was finished one mile south of production in the Tedbit (San Andres) field. The well finished from the San Andres for a 24-hour pumping potential of 16 barrels of 32.5-gravity oil and 21 barrels of water, through perforations from 5,072 to 5,112 feet. Gas-oil ratio is 375-1. Total depth is 5,205 feet and the plugged back depth is 5,190 feet. Five and one-half-inch pipe is cemented on bottom. The pay was acidized with 5,000 gallons. The top of the Yates is at 3,146 feet and the San Andres was entered at 4,600 feet on ground elevation of 3,173 feet. The San Andres porosity came in at 5,073 feet. Location is 1,980 feet from north and 660 feet from east lines of section 79, block H, D&W survey and 18 miles northeast of Seminole. SCURRY WELL

Terra Resources, Inc., of Houston No. 1 W.H. Jones has been completed as a 3/4-mile northwest extension to the Fluvanna, Southeast (Strawn) pool of Scurry County, two miles southeast of Fluvanna. On 24-hour potential test it pumped 60 barrels of oil and 385 barrels of water, through perforations from 7,816 to 8,852 feet after a 250-gallon acid treatment. Gravity was not reported. The gas-oil ratio is 415-1. Total depth is 8,295 feet and 5.5-inch pipe is set on bottom. The plugged back depth is 8,030 feet. Wellsite is 1,820 feet from south and 1,782 feet from east lines of section 484, block 97, H&TC survey.

Carter blitzing voters with pre-primary TV

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, concerned that his status as an absentee candidate could spawn resentment among New Hampshire Democrats, is trying to defuse the situation with a pre-primary blitz of TV commercials.

Reagan criticizes plan to register men, women

DURHAM, N.H. (AP) — Ronald Reagan is criticizing President Carter's call for registering men and women for the draft in advance of a national emergency.

It said that after an emergency was declared, the first draftees would be inducted within 10 days under the Carter plan. It would take 17 days if the Selective Service system waited until an emergency was called, it said.

An Equal Opportunity Employer

ENGINEERS

GULF SCIENCE & TECHNOLOGY, one of the operating companies of the GULF OIL CORPORATION, has a job opening for an engineer desiring to join a reservoir and formation characterization group. This group provides special well and reservoir evaluation services to GULF's worldwide production operations.

The position requires a degree in Petroleum, Mechanical, Electrical or Chemical Engineering.

Responsibilities for the job include maintaining and operating custom designed logging units, and performing unique transient pressure tests. The successful candidate would be in charge of designing, conducting, analyzing and reporting the test projects. Onsite work at worldwide locations may consume up to one half of the engineers time.

The group is based at our Southwest Houston Location, away from the Downtown congestion.

Qualified applicants are invited to submit their resumes to the address below. The interviews will be conducted in Odessa, Texas.

U.S. comes from behind to beat Finland

It's so, We're No. 1

By LEONARD SHAPIRO
The Washington Post

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. — Team America's coach, Herb Brooks, calls his players "a gang of people who startled the athletic world. Not just the hockey world, the athletic world."

And now, the world calls them champions, this United States Olympic hockey team, a rag-tag melange of peach-fuzz kids and knockaround minor leaguers who beat Finland Sunday, 4-2, and won the hockey gold medal of the 13th Winter Olympics.

Two days after their staggering 4-3 victory over the mighty Soviets, America's Team twice rallied from one-goal deficits against the Finns, scored three goals in the last period and won Hockey gold for the United States for the first time since 1960.

"This is the team of destiny; you can't explain what's happened here," said defenseman Bill Baker. "It just happened."

It happened because Mark Johnson, the son of the coach of the 1976 team and the mar who scored two goals against the Soviet Union never stopped digging for the puck, hustling into the corners and rushing down ice.

He assisted on the game-winner, Rob McClanahan's close-in shot at 6:05 of the third period, and scored his team's final goal — a short-handed goal — on a backhand rebound of his own shot that gave the Americans a 4-2 lead with 3:55 left.

It happened because Jim Craig, the American goalkeeper who started and finished every one of America's six Olympic victories and one tie, kept his team close, or ahead, time after time with so many scintillating saves.

It happened because America's defense managed to kill off three third-period penalties, one only six seconds after the expiration of another just after the U.S. had taken its first lead of the day. And during their third penalty the Americans scored a goal.

And it happened, too, as captain Mike Eruzione said "because we knew what we had to do, and we went out and did it. Even before the game, and last night, too, we talked to each other, and we realized what was ahead for us."

"We knew if we took the right course, justice would take care of us."

The Americans started off on the wrong course Sunday, as they had so often in this two-week tournament. They found themselves behind, 1-0, early, on a thundering 40-foot slap shot by Finland's Jukka Porvari at 9:20 of the first period.

And when Finland's Mikko Leiononen stuffed a perfect crossing pass from teammate Mannu Haapalainen past Craig for a 2-1 lead at 6:30 of the second, few in the crowd of 8,000 could have been bullish on American gold futures.

In the locker room after the second period, with his team trailing, 2-1, Brooks said little, according to defenseman Mike Ramsey. "All he said was that we've been a third-period team all year. He just said suck it up and do what you've done all year. We knew that, and we did it."

Phil Verchota tied it at 2:2 for the United States when he came down the left side, took a crossing pass from Dave Christian and shot the puck low from 10 feet, past flopping Finnish goalie Jorma Valtonen at 2:25 of the third period.

Two minutes later, many in the crowd began chanting, "We want gold," and so, obviously, did the American players.

Christian, whose father, Billy, played on the 1960 championship team, sent in a long shot that Valtonen deflected behind the net. From there, Johnson fought off two Finns and poked the puck out front to McClanahan, who waited for Voltonen to go into a split and then drove the puck through the goalie's legs.

"I just saw him about four to five feet to the right of the net and he knocked it in," Johnson said. "Yeah, it was a very big lift for us."

There was a very big letdown 33 seconds later when Neal Broten was sent off for hooking Kari Eloranta. Over the next two minutes, the Finns got off five stinging shots on the U.S. goal, all of them blocked by Craig or another American.

Craig hardly had time to catch his breath before the next U.S. penalty six seconds after Broten came back on the ice. This time, Christian was sent off for tripping Jukka Koskilahti, and once again Finland had six skaters to five.

And once again, America's defense flustered and frustrated the Finns, trying desperately to knock in a tying goal. It never happened.

The final test came with 4:15 remaining. This time, Verchota was called for roughing, a penalty Ramsey later said "never should have been called, not for what he did, not at that point in the game."

Czech referee Vladimir Subry ruled that Verchota had been a little too physical in disengaging himself from a headlock at the boards behind the Finnish net, and sent him off for roughing.

Still nursing that one-goal advantage, the Americans, incredibly, attacked. They controlled the puck and didn't allow Finland a shot in the first 30 seconds of the penalty. And then Johnson went to work again.

A Finnish defender failed to clear the puck from behind his net, and Steve Christoff threw it out to Johnson, who shot from 20 feet, pounced on his rebound and backhanded it past Valtonen for the clincher with 3:35 to play.

Killanin closes XIII Winter Olympic Games

By GEOFFREY MILLER

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — Lord Killanin, president of the International Olympic Committee, cast protocol aside at the closing of the Winter Games Sunday night and urged the world to "avoid the holocaust" by using the Olympics.

A sell-out crowd of 8,500 at Lake Placid's ice arena cheered for 40 seconds after Killanin spoke of the peace and understanding of the Games.

"I feel these games here have proved that we can do something to contribute to mutual understanding in the world what we have in common and not what our differences are," he said.

"If we can all come together, it will be for a better world, and we can perhaps avoid the holocaust which will be upon us if we are not careful."

The 65-year-old official made no reference to President Carter, or to the Summer Games in Moscow, which Carter wants the United States to shun because of the Soviet military action in Afghanistan. But his remarks were an obvious allusion to the threatened boycott.

The crowd, keyed up by the American hockey victory earlier in the day, cheered Killanin wildly.

Amid the applause one man

shouted, "Which way to Moscow?"

Killanin went out of his way to make a longer speech than usual. The Olympic Charter strictly lays down the procedure of the closing ceremony and directs that the President simply thanks the host country and city and calls upon the youth of all nations to meet again at the next games in four years' time.

Midland or Montreal, it's hard to tell

Midland doesn't qualify as your basic hockey hotbed. Let's face it. No one has ever mistaken Midland for Montreal, but you'd never guessed it Friday night at the Reporter-Telegram where the phones rang like it was Saturday night in the middle of football season.

"How did the U.S. come out against Russia?" they asked with monotonous regularity, even though a tape of the game was in progress on TV.

A lot of fans apparently took a leaf from the book of the Hawaiians, who clap their hands over their ears whenever the score of the Monday Night NFL game might be mentioned, rather than spoil the suspense.

But after what must have been a wild first period, U.S. fans were watching with their hearts rather than their common sense and many just couldn't wait.

No one really expected the U.S. to beat Russia, a team that could and has given NHL teams more than they can handle. If there were any doubts about the Soviets' superiority, they were dispelled before the Games even started when the USSR mopped up Madison Square Garden ice with the fuzzy-cheeked campus lambs assembled by the U.S.

TED BATTLES

It was like throwing Boston University in against the Canadiens, Slippery Rock against USC in football or maybe the NCAA baseball champion against the Pittsburgh Pirates. It was as ridiculous as matching an Olympic champion against the world heavyweight champion...which once happened.

It was a case of a game amateur against a seasoned, battle scarred pro. There was simply no way.

But hope springs eternal, regardless of the odds, which is part of what upsets are made. And after the USA tied the Swedes, upset Czechoslovakia, the team given the best chance to stop the Russians, and swept through the remainder of their divisional games, maybe, just maybe, it could be 1960 all over again.

So the R-T switchboard lit up like a disco on Saturday night for a U.S. hockey team that had infected the imagination and stirred the emotions of the American sports fan even more than the incredible five gold medal sweep by Eric Heiden.

Perhaps that isn't the way it should have been, but it was understandable in view of the uneasy world situation in which the U.S. was calling Russia's bluff. Even without that, a showdown meeting between the two countries is always a lapel grabber that can't be ignored. Besides, the U.S. was challenging Russia in what has become the USSR's own game.

One lady called in and excitedly asked for the score.

"I'm not going to tell you," she was kidded in grave voice. "You are going to have to watch the entire game."

Surprisingly, she seemed willing to accept the decision without protest, prompting a twinge of guilt at the other end of the line.

"If I told you," she was informed, "it would just spoil the thrill of the finish, but if you really must know..."

"Oh, is there a thrill to come? Well, don't tell me then," she cut us off hastily.

With Russia leading 3-2 throughout the second period, perhaps the game retained its suspense for the woman, despite the giveaway clue. In fact, she may have even wonder what if the guy on the phone might have a perverse view of thrills or was a communist.

As it turned out, the scriptwriter for Sunday's final game with Finland looked like he might be the one with the perverse streak. The Finns led 2-1 going into the final period and it looked as though the emotion, which compensated for the supposed lack of U.S. ability, might at last betray the Americans, spilling a marvelous Cinderella story to be retold for future generations.

Finland was ahead on a Power Play goal resulting from a thoughtless retaliation punch by a U.S. player during a pileup in front of the goal mouth.

In fact, every time a U.S. player was flagged toward the penalty box, he became a potential goat. But in the end emotion prevailed. And the final goal was an emphatic exclamation point to the importance of that emotion, coming in the fading stages of the 4-2 win while the U.S. was short-handed.

Chaps face big test against WTC

If Midland College is to cling to its hold on second place in the Western Junior College Conference standings, all it has to do is beat Western Texas College, the No. 1 team in the nation at 8 p.m. tonight in the Chaparral Center.

That's something the Chaparrals haven't been able to do in two previous tries and, for that matter, it's something no one else has been able to do this season, which is the reason Coach Nolan Richardson's bunch is 28-0 for the season.

MC's hopes of catching WTC in the stretch run evaporated last week when the Chaps lost to Frank Phillips, 65-63, and Odessa College, 61-59, on the road, dropping to 13-3 in WJCC play with only two games to go.

Still, the Chaps would like to slam the brakes on their worst stretch of the season and prove Western Texas, contrary to the prevailing belief, is mortal, too.

WTC beat Midland in the ABC Classic at Big Spring in early January and then repeated the feat at Snyder in a league game, so this is the first time MC has enjoyed homecourt advantage. They hope it makes a difference.

After tonight's game, MC finishes up the regular season against Clarendon on the road. Regardless of how Coach Jerry Stone's 24-4 Chaps fare this week, they have already earned a berth in the Regional Tournament to be held at the Chaparral Center next week.

Tonight's game will mark Midland's first homecoming celebration and festivities will be complete with a queen and athletic team sweethearts and beans.

Paul Pressey, who Richardson regards as NBA potential, proved the man the Chaps couldn't stop in both previous games. In the 87-82 win at Big Spring, he pumped in 24 points while in the 83-74 win in league play he scored 29. Robert Tate was the Chaps' big scorer in both games with 22 and 17 points.

Pressey ranks No. 3 in WJCC field goal percentage with .658 and among the leaders in free throw shooting with .765. Midland's Robert Tate has an 826 free throw percentage, which ranks No. 3.

Averaging close to 100 per game, Pressey, averaging 14.4 per game, is only the No. 2 scorer on the Westerners to Greg Stewart, 16.4. Bill Spradling, 13.3, and Phil Spradling, 12.5, are other threats.

For MC, Tate ranks fifth in the WJCC with an 18.5 average while Charles Johnson, 12.6, and Kenneth Young, 11.6, are in double figures.

In addition to his scoring, Pressey proves his all-around value with 8.9 rebounds per game and his 91 steals ranks behind only the 107 of OC's Craig Ehlo.

Hubby's tip pays off for JoAnne Carner

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — JoAnne Carner credits a putting tip from her husband for the turnaround on the back nine that gave her a 1-stroke victory over Sandra Post in the Ladies Professional Golf Association $100,000 Bent Tree Classic.

Carner had trouble putting early in Sunday's final round, touring the front nine in 1-over par. But she fired three birdies on the back side to finish with a 3-under 69 and a tournament total of 280. The victory was worth $15,000.

"I made a slight putting change on that green (No. 10) and that's what got me going," she said. "My husband is a fabulous putting teacher so I had him look at me and he said I had my hands too far in front of the putter. On the 10th, I put my hands way to the right and it really felt good," she said.

But Carner, who has won nearly $700,000 in her career, said it was on the ninth hole where she made her move.

Macy's clutch shot gives Kentucky SEC cage crown

By KEN RAPPOPORT AP Sports Writer
Kyle Macy gave it his best shot — and it couldn't have come at a more appropriate time for the Kentucky Wildcats.
It occurred in the final second of overtime against Louisiana State Sunday and gave them the regular-season Southeastern Conference basketball championship.
"Kyle had trouble with his shooting all day," Kentucky Coach Joe Hall said after the pulsating 76-74 victory. "But you don't lose faith in a player like Macy. We wanted to get the ball to him and we wanted him to have that last shot."
Macy got the ball as the clock wound down. He came off a double screen and unleashed a 20-foot jumper that swished through as the buzzer sounded.
Ironically, Macy's game-winner was the only field goal attempt for both teams in the overtime period. A misfired free throw by Kentucky's Sam Bowie was the only other shot taken in that time.
In other Sunday games involving the nation's ranked teams, No. 2

Louisville whipped Florida State 83-75 and Marquette upset No. 10 Notre Dame 77-74.
Saturday, top-ranked DePaul beat Loyola of Chicago 84-87; No. 4 Syracuse trimmed Boston College 85-77; No. 6 Oregon State routed Stanford 85-57; No. 7 St. John's defeated Providence 68-62; No. 8 North Carolina blasted 17th-ranked Duke 96-71 and ninth-ranked Maryland whipped Virginia 82-71.
Also, No. 11 Ohio State nipped Iowa 70-69; 12th-ranked Clemson stopped North Carolina-Ashville 38-27; 13th-ranked Missouri edged Kansas State 67-65; No. 14 Brigham Young trimmed Wyoming 39-30; No. 15 Purdue turned back Illinois 72-69; No. 16 Weber State whipped Idaho State 81-67; No. 18 Arizona State defeated Arizona 78-72; No. 19 Indiana defeated Michigan 65-61 and No. 20 Washington State beat Southern Cal 69-67.
Bowie's field goal with 1:14 left in regulation had sent the Kentucky-LSU game into overtime tied at 74. After Bowie missed his free throw try, Durand Macklin rebounded for LSU and the Tigers stalled for three minutes. But LSU held the ball too early and didn't lose their poise."

Notre Dame Coach Digger Phelps said of Marquette. "They continued to play to their strength the entire game."
Darrell Griffith's 29 points paced Louisville past Florida State. Griffith continuously had key points for Louisville everytime the Seminoles pulled close.
"Whenever a guard can dominate a game like that, you've really got something," said Louisville Coach Denny Crum. "It's hard for a guard to dominate."
Sam Worthen scored a career-high 30 points, including 10 straight during a second-half burst that carried Marquette past Notre Dame. The loss was only the second at home in 15 games for the Fighting Irish this season. "They displayed a lot of intensity

Mark Aguirre scored nine of his career-high 41 points in a two-minute span late in the second half to lead DePaul over Loyola, the 26th straight victory for the Blue Demons. Aguirre's total came within two points of the Alumni Hall mark of 43 set by DePaul's Howie Carl in 1960.
Louis Orr scored 23 points to lead Syracuse past Boston College. The Orangemen finished in a tie with St. John's and Georgetown for first place in the Big East Conference and subsequently won a coin toss for a first-round bye in the league playoffs, which start Thursday.

Mark Radford and Ray Blume scored 23 points apiece in Oregon State's rout of Stanford. Frank Gilroy scored 13 of his 15 points in the second half, leading St. John's past Providence.
North Carolina routed Duke with a balanced attack that included 18 points by Mike O'Koren and 16 by John Virgil. Greg Manning and Ernest Graham scored 12 points apiece in the second half to break open a tight game and lead Maryland past Virginia.
Herb Williams' basket with eight seconds remaining lifted Ohio State over Iowa. Billy Williams scored 12 points as Clemson defeated UNC-Ashville in the Tigers' lowest-scoring point total in 10 seasons. John Sundvold's 13 points paced Missouri over Kansas State.

Danny Alnge hit six free throws in the final two minutes as Brigham Young beat Wyoming and clinched the Western Athletic Conference championship.
Joe Barry Carroll scored a game-high 28 points to lead Purdue past Illinois. Bruce Collins became the all-time career scorer for the Big Sky Conference, collecting 30 points as Weber State beat Idaho State. Collins needed 15 points to surpass Idaho State's Steve Hayes, who had 1,933.
Byron Scott and Kurt Nimphius combined for 61 points to lead Arizona State past Arizona. Mike Woodson's 24 points paced Indiana over Michigan and Washington State whipped Southern Cal as Terry Kelly sank two free throws with six seconds left.

A&I, SWTS in finals

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Abilene Christian will make the NAAIA District IV playoffs, but not by winning the Lone Star Conference post-season basketball tournament as expected.
Texas A&I and Southwest Texas State meet in the tournament finals tonight, after posting upsets over the pre-tourney favorites Sunday.
A&I got 34 points from Ed Turner to beat second-seeded Howard Payne in the first game, 82-78. Then Southwest Texas upset top-seeded ACU in the nightcap, 61-57, with four players in double figures.
Since Abilene Christian won the regular-season title, it will represent the LSC in Saturday's NAAIA playoffs, along with tonight's winner.
Charles Spurlin and Jim Rosebrock each had 14 points for SWT in the win over ACU, while Jeff Kelley and James Patrick had 10 each. Turner hit on 14 of 19 field goals and teammate Mike Escalante canned 24 points, including a tournament record 16 of 17 free throws to seal the A&I upset over Howard Payne.

SMU, Tech picks to advance tonight

By DENNE H. FREEMAN AP Sports Writer
Houston, Southern Methodist, and Texas Tech were favored to advance to the quarterfinals of the Southwest Conference post-season basketball tournament tonight but not without some stern opposition.
Coach Guy Lewis of the Houston Cougars knows Rice is no longer the patsy it was in the 1970s. The Owls jumped on Houston just a week ago for their first victory over Houston in the history of the two schools.
Rice must visit Hofheinz Pavilion where the Cougars are always tough.
Texas Tech, the biggest mystery team in the conference, entertains much-improved Texas Christian in Lubbock where the Red Raiders have risen to such heights as to upset Texas A&M then dropped to such depths as to lose to Rice.
SMU's team is in shock after Coach Sonny Allen announced Friday he would not return next year. Allen was under pressure from Mustang Athletic Director Russ Potts for a big winning year.
Potts is now charged with finding a new coach and he is strong for Maryland Coach Lefty Driesell whose team won the Atlantic Coast Conference championship.
"Head put SMU on the map in a hurry but that's jumping ahead," said Potts. "I'll be flying around the country talking to a lot of people."

Memphis fans protest Games hockey blackout

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — The local ABC-TV affiliate drew a slap shot from irate viewers Sunday because of its decision to pre-empt the USA-Finland Olympic hockey game with local religious services.
"Police were called but there were no arrests. The peaceful demonstrators moved on to Bellevue after learning Lewis was there. The program director spoke with the group at the end of service.
Bill Robinson learned of WHBQ's decision by reading it in the newspaper. "I couldn't believe it," said Robinson, 32, owner of Whirlybird Helicopters Inc., a helicopter leasing firm.
The decision spurred a demonstration at WHBQ, which later moved to Bellevue. And one irate "non-hockey fan" staged an air-borne protest, pulling a banner from a helicopter.
Lewis later explained his station's position. "Our thinking is that there had been 24 hours of Olympic broadcasting and we owed it to the people who don't give a flip about the Olympics to air the church services," he said. "But we didn't have any idea it would create such a storm."

Betty Lynch, Bob Spears, Jane Thomas and Bill Thomas combined for a net 58 to win the Midland Country Club Ladies Golf Association Low Ball Foursome golf event at Midland Country Club Sunday.
Bobbie Jean McDaniel, Gene McDaniel, Sylvia Roberts and Phillip Roberts took second with a net 60 while Jean and Tom Welch combined with Janice Higgins and Homer Adams for a third place 62.
The winner of the TCU-Tech game will play the Baylor-SMU survivor Thursday night in the quarterfinals of the SWC post-season tournament in San Antonio.
In the other bracket, the winner of the Rice-Houston game will play the Texas Longhorns, who finished third in the regular season to earn a bye to the quarterfinals.
The regular season champion Texas Aggies and No. 2 Arkansas gained byes to the semi-finals Friday night.
The Aggies are in the top bracket and will meet the survivor of the TCU-Tech and Baylor-SMU round-robin.
Arkansas will play either Rice, Houston or Texas.

Former MHS coach dies

Gary Hinds, 43, who coached Midland High to the Class AAAA state baseball championship in 1973, died Monday morning in Odessa.
Hinds, who had heart surgery Feb. 21, 1972, came to Odessa for a routine checkup last Friday and suffered a heart attack. A rib injury suffered in a semipro football game in San Antonio when Gary was 32 started his heart problems.
Hinds came to Midland High as baseball coach in the fall of 1970 and his 1973 team defeated Houston Westchester for the state championship.
Westchester, with pitcher David Clyde leading the way, was a heavy favorite to win the title.
Hinds graduated from Odessa High in 1954 where he played under Julian Pressley. He played ball at Odessa College before going to Sul Ross State, where he received his master's degree.

Nude Playboy feature already has stirred up controversy at Baylor

WACO, Texas (AP) — As far as anyone knows, not one Baylor University coed has peeled even so much as a glove for a Playboy photographer.

Yet But in a controversy rapidly engulfing the Central Texas campus, President Abner McCall and editors of the student newspaper, The Baylor Lariat, already have donned some hefty boxing mitts.

The issue, it seems, is not whether a student should pose. Both sides agree it is not the height of modesty to bare publicly, even for Playboy. The battle is over McCall's right to promise expulsion for Baylor women who appear in the buff and the newspaper's right to question that threat.

Last month, Playboy announced a planned layout on "The Girls of the Southwest Conference." McCall quickly stated that any Baylor women posing for the magazine would be immediately expelled.

An editorial advocating personal choice in the decision, signed by three of the newspaper's editors, appeared in Tuesday's editions of The Lariat, alongside a guest editorial encouraging students to decline the magazine's offer.

"To pose or not to pose: That is the question — a clear and simple issue now buried somewhere under a mudslide of moralism precipitated by a new rain of fundamentalist politics," read a portion of the staff editorial.

Wednesday morning, McCall said he told The Lariat's faculty advisers and student staff that editorials "attacking any position that emanates from the basic nature of Baylor as a church-related university" would not be tolerated.

"I told them that the university is the publisher of The Lariat and the publisher for any publication sets the policy for that paper," McCall said this weekend. "It (the Tuesday editorial) says not to pay any attention to the administration taking a dim view of our students posing in the nude for a pornographic magazine."

"It's clear they're advocating defiance of university policy and one way or another, we'll stop it."

Lariat editor-in-chief Jeff Barton said Sunday night the 30-member staff voted "almost unanimously" to resign if McCall halted further stories on the Playboy issue.

According to Barton, McCall said he would not censor news, but would not tolerate similar editorials in the 5-day-a-week paper.

"We decided to cover the news as if none of this had happened," Barton said. "If there comes a point where our advisor (Ralph Strother) says we should check with McCall, out of deference to him and the journalism department, we will call McCall."

"But we will not accept any prior restraint."

Staffers may have a chance to "test the waters," next week, Barton said. The staff is planning to interview women who have decided to pose, he said, "though the story will include interviews with women who are opposed (to the Playboy visit)."

McCall said he had no objections to news stories as long as they do not "advocate" issues that go against accepted Baptist positions. "If they have doubts, I don't mind looking at a story. I'm not going to shoot someone over a borderline matter, but we have a policy that is going to be followed," he said.

If push comes to shove, Barton said, "we will have to re-assess the situation and I'm not sure if the staff is willing to stay on."

McCall said he would rather the staff not quit over the issue.

"But if it's a question of keeping a policy or quitting, we're not going to change."

"The reaction of Baylor would have been the same any time, any place in the last 50 years," McCall said. "We've never wanted to encourage our students to participate in a pornographic publication."

"You know Baptists."

Barton said he and his staff do not disagree with "standard Baptist beliefs. We don't have any quarrel with the Baptist faith or the ideals of this university, but there are the ideals, too, of a good liberal arts university. There's intellectual curiosity and a willingness to expose yourself to new and different ideas."

"We respect McCall. He's just wrong."

So what else is new? Middle class pays most tax, official says

By GARTH JONES

AUSTIN (AP) — Check your gross income while making out your federal income tax.

If you are making between $10,000 and $25,000, you are paying more state taxes, percentage-wise, than any other class of income earners in Texas.

That's according to the state comptroller, based on U.S. Census figures. And there won't be any relief in the next two years.

According to the comptroller's estimates, expected state revenue in the 1980-81 business period will be almost $21.9 billion, a 26.5 percent increase over 1978-79 revenue of $17.3 billion.

"Of the total estimated income, tax collections account for more than 60 percent and federal funds another 25 percent," said a recent comptroller's report.

The average Texan will be interested most in the data that three major state taxes will account for 61 percent of the projected collections in the next two years. These are the sales and natural gas and oil production taxes.

The tax rates of these levies will not increase, but increased prices caused by inflation will take more away from the taxpayer and provide more to the state.

The sales tax, which skims four cents per $1 off many things that Texans buy will grow by 28 percent. One cent local sales taxes, collected at the same time as the state tax, will take another bite out of the pocketbook.

The natural gas production tax will be up 26.6 percent and affect household bills for heating and cooking.

The oil production tax, which has a direct influence on gasoline prices, is expected to show a 44 percent gain in 1980-81.

There is considerable argument who pays the most in taxes, individuals or business, but sooner or later most of the tax cost gets back to the individual consumer.

"Unlike individuals, businesses cannot bear the final burden of a tax," said the comptroller's report. "They have no taxpaying capacity apart from their owners, workers and customers. The taxes businesses pay must be shifted to individuals — to consumers in higher prices, to owners in lower profits or to workers in lower wages."

According to the comptroller, individuals bear 41.2 percent of the initial impact of the sales tax while 58.8 percent falls on businesses. Individuals pay 66.2 percent of the cost of motor fuel taxes and business 33.8 percent. On the other hand, business pays 100 percent initially for natural gas and oil production taxes. They also pay 100 percent of the corporation franchise tax, but individuals pay 100 percent of alcoholic beverage taxes.

In order to figure the distribution of state tax payments according to income brackets, the comptroller's department assumed the business portion of state taxes eventually was paid 50 percent by consumers, 25 percent by workers and 25 percent out of profits.

These figures show that 23.2 percent of all Texans make less than $1,000 but pay only 11.7 percent of the state taxes. Only 6.2 percent of Texas' population makes more than $25,000 but they pay 13.2 percent of the taxes.

The biggest taxpayers are in the $10,000 to $25,000 income class.

Taxpayers who make $10,000 to $14,999 make up 20.3 percent of the state's income earners but pay 23.6 percent of state taxes.

Those making $15,000 to $24,999 total 16 percent of the population but pay 27.7 percent of the taxes.

The smallest contribution to state taxes, 6.3 percent, comes from the $4,000 to $5,999 income class which has 11.7 percent of the state's income. Next comes the $6,000 to $7,999 class which makes up 11.8 percent of the population but pays only 8.3 percent of the state's taxes.

The $8,000 to $9,999 income class has 10.8 percent of the state income and pays 9.2 percent of the taxes.

Neighborhood pals cut boy from chain

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A 9-year-old boy was in protective custody today after his young neighborhood friends cut him loose from a chain that family members sometimes used to tie him to a yardpost "when he was bad," authorities said.

Two members of the boy's family were being held for investigation Sunday night and another was being sought, police said.

No charges were immediately filed pending a full investigation, said police Sgt. William Duffy.

"When he was bad" is one of the suspects here at the station — I've never seen a 9-year-old child cover so," Duffy said. "He apparently was terrified of those people."

The boy's name was not released. He told police that "when he was bad" his parents and an older brother had punished him by chaining him either to his bed or to posts in the yard or garage, Duffy said.

"He would be chained with a padlock to the boy's ankle or wrist and with another padlock to a post in the yard, in the garage or to his bed — like dog on a leash," the officer said.

The boy apparently was also severely beaten, Duffy said. An examination at Morningside Hospital revealed scars on his back, legs, and buttocks, and the child told police he had been beaten with lamp-cords and ropes with knots tied in them, the sergeant said.

Duffy said the boy was cut free from the chain, which was wrapped around his ankle but not attached to a post at the time, by some neighborhood children. They removed the chain with a hacksaw after taking the boy to the home of a neighbor, who summoned police.

Duffy said the boy would be placed in a foster home pending court action. At the police station Sunday night, Duffy said the child was "rather enjoying himself," after being treated to dinner and ice cream by police officers.

SHEINWOLD ON BRIDGE

Play It Right

By Alfred Sheinwold

"Bridge is like the piano," Abram Chasins remarked during a recent game. "You have to play it right. In biography you have to say it right."

A reformed concert pianist and author of the new best-selling biography of Leopold Stokowski, Chasins can also pick the right play. See if you can do as well as three no-trump today.

If South starts diamonds at the second trick, West wins and continues hearts. South must later lead clubs in search of his ninth trick, whereupon West takes the ace of clubs and runs the hearts.

JUST AS BAD

It's just as bad if South leads the jack of clubs at the second trick. West wins and clears the hearts. He gets in with the ace of diamonds in time to defeat the contract.

Chasins played it right by leading the deuce of clubs at the second trick. If West took the ace, Chasins would need no diamond tricks. When West actually played low, declarer won a club trick and switched to diamonds to make his contract.

Inmates share writing awards

NEW YORK (AP) — Two inmates of a Louisiana prison share honors with journalists of leading newspapers in this year's George Polk Awards in journalism.

The prison inmates, Wilbert Rideau and Billy Sinclair, who edit a news-magazine, The Angolite, at Angola State Prison in Louisiana, were named Sunday as winners in the special interest reporting category for features on capital punishment and prison rape.

Another special award went to Alden Whitman, retired chief obituary writer of the New York Times, for setting "new standards of excellence at what had been considered a routine assignment."

Another Times reporter, John Kifner, won the foreign reporting award for his coverage of the Iranian crisis and for the first interview with American hostages inside the American Embassy compound in Tehran.

Iranian coverage also brought the news photography award to United Press International for a photograph showing Iranian executioners mowing down Kurdish rebels and former police officers of the shah. The photographer's name was kept secret "because of the continuing situation" in Iran.

The Polk awards were established by Long Island University in 1949 in memory of the CBS correspondent killed while covering the Greek civil war. A panel of 126 advisers submits recommendations to a committee of LIU faculty members and alumni who name the winners.

Other awards announced Sunday were:

National reporting — Brian Donovan, Bob Wyrick and Stuart Diamond of Long Island's Newsday for a series on gasoline lines last summer.

Regional reporting — Jim Adams and Jim Detjen of the Louisville Courier-Journal for exposing serious health and environmental hazards from illegal dumping of chemical wastes in Brooks, Ky.

Metropolitan reporting — Walt Bogdanich and Walter Johns Jr. of the Cleveland Press for exposing corruption and profiteering at a suburban hospital.

School for illegal aliens in Dallas so popular a second one is planned

DALLAS (AP) — The popularity of Dallas' first school for children of illegal aliens has led to plans to open a second school, possibly as early as next month.

Celeste Guerrero, coordinator for Proyecto Educacion (Project Education), said the school at First Christian Church in East Dallas is full with 115 students and almost 130 more on a waiting list.

"We are limited by space in our present school," she said. "Our feeling is it would not be healthy to enroll any more students than we already have."

Mrs. Guerrero said officials are talking to three churches in the Oak Cliff area of South Dallas about space for Proyecto Educacion II.

She expressed confidence private donations once again would come through for the project, the creation of 35 religious and civic organizations.

Eight persons convicted in Midland area released from prison on parole

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Five persons convicted of crimes in the Midland area have been paroled by Gov. Bill Clements on recommendations of the Texas Board of Pardons and Paroles.

Larry D. Alves, convicted of burglary of a building and burglary in Ward County March 27, 1979, was paroled to Ward County after serving and earning one year and nine months of a four-year sentence.

Mack Jones Jr., convicted of possession of marijuana in Midland County July 16, 1979, was paroled to Midland County after serving and earning six months of a two-year sentence.

Harriet Mitchell, convicted of two counts of forgery in Midland County Jan. 15, 1979, was paroled to Midland County after serving and earning one year and eight months of a five-year sentence.

Robert L. Phipps, convicted of burglary of a building with intent to commit theft in Midland County Jan. 26, 1979, was paroled to Hale County after serving and earning 10 months of a four-year sentence.

David Glen Harkins, convicted of possession of a controlled substance in Midland County March 10, 1978, was paroled to Midland County after serving and earning four years of a four-year sentence.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON
Dyslexia may be neurological condition, not psychological

Dear Dr. Solomon: My 12-year-old daughter has been in psychiatric treatment for almost a year because she has dyslexia, but this treatment does not appear to be helping her, as she still has great difficulty with her reading. Would you suggest that treatment be ended if she shows no improvement by the end of a year? — Mrs. C.B.R.

Dear Mrs. R.: I believe you should clarify with the therapist the reasons for your daughter's treatment. Is it for help with the dyslexia, or is it because the condition has resulted in emotional problems with which she needs help? If the therapy is for a continuing emotional problem, she should probably remain in treatment regardless of a lack of improvement in her ability to read.

However, if the psychiatric treatment is directly related to the dyslexia alone, some re-evaluation may be in order. At one time the condition was thought to stem from psychological problems. But according to Dr. Albert M. Galaburda, a neurologist at the Beth Israel Hospital in Boston, it actually may be due to a neurological abnormality. Studies of the brain of an accident victim who had dyslexia revealed actual differences in his anatomy. The abnormalities were found in the cell structure of the left cerebral hemisphere, where language functions are believed to be located.

Whether these findings are applicable to all dyslexia patients is yet to be determined. But, the evidence does suggest that there may be a neurological, rather than a psychological, basis for the disorder.

Because dyslexia takes on many forms, Dr. Galaburda cautions that it would be a mistake to generalize in an individual case. An understanding of the anatomical basis of the problem, however, may lead to a clinical correction of it.
