Primaries may point to GOP stalemate

BOSTON (AP) — George Bush maintained a minuscule lead today over John B. Anderson in the Massachusetts Republican primary as Ronald Reagan inched to victory in Vermont. The tight New England contests point to the kind of stalemate that might entice former President Gerald Ford into the GOP presidential race.

Sen. Edward Kennedy got a lift for his Democratic challenge with a landslide victory over President Carter in home-state Massachusetts. Carter buried Kennedy by an even more lopsided margin in Vermont.

Kennedy won by better than 2-to-1 in the campaign year's first big state primary, winning enough nominating delegates to offset the lead Carter built up earlier. Carter took Vermont by 3-to-1.

As the final votes were tallied early today, Anderson trailed by margins so tiny that they represented virtual dead heats.

Bush led by less than 900 votes out of more than 380,000 cast in the Republican primary in Massachusetts with 97 percent of the precincts reporting. Reagan's margin was 616 votes with 99 percent counted in a Vermont primary that drew more than 62,000 GOP ballots.

Reagan ran third in Massachusetts, close behind Bush and Anderson.

The results were so close that unofficial morning after recounts were scheduled by News Election Service, which tallies the ballots for news agencies and networks.

The Vermont vote was so close that several news organizations declared either Anderson or Reagan the winner, only to pull back when later tallies showed no one with a conclusive lead. The Associated Press was among them, having given Anderson the victory in early evening.

"I'm up," Bush told CBS News in a morning interview. He said Reagan would be hurt by his third-place finish in Massachusetts.

Tuesday's big surprise was the tandem challenges by Anderson, the white-thatched liberal congressman from Illinois. Anderson said that by coming so close, he had established himself as a major competitor for the GOP nomination.

On NBC-TV's "Today" show, Anderson said his New England success was the start of a "new citizens' coalition" that will catapult him into the White House.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Howard Baker withdrew from the 1980 Republican presidential race today, saying "it's pretty clear the campaign isn't going anywhere."

The Senate minority leader from Tennessee, who finished fourth in the Massachusetts and Vermont primaries on Tuesday, told reporters, "I'm withdrawing from further campaigning and competition for the Republican presidential nomination."

MidTran's first month more successful than hoped

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

It's had its ups and downs, its smooth days and its bumpy days. But all in all, MidTran's first month of operation was more successful than what had been projected, according to Joyce Fisher, director.

The city's specially designed public transportation system started rolling Feb. 4, serving the Midland work force in the mornings and late afternoons and the general public the rest of the day.

Renewal rate on the subscription service — where workers are picked up and delivered to their job and then home again — is more than 90 percent for the second month, said Ms. Fisher.

Of 150 paid subscriptions from February, about 10 didn't renew. New riders were fitted into the schedules from a waiting list which, with 175 names, is longer than the active subscription list.

"WE HAD SEVERAL requests come in for March. We just send the checks back and add the names to the waiting list," Ms. Fisher added.

Operating the system — which is employing the unique combination of subscription with demand-responsive — hasn't been smooth rolling. "It's never dull," Ms. Fisher said with a laugh. "Things are happening all the time."

To cite a few examples, the director recalled the day a driver became sick on the run, the incident last week in which a bus engine caught on fire and, then, just this past Monday, when the electrical systems blew a fuse on all the buses and put them all out of commission.

The last incident was a result of the second mishap, Ms. Fisher explained. When the electrical fire occurred, the driver kept his head and pulled out a cable which had started the flame.

To avoid future problems with the buses' electrical systems, the city maintenance staff installed fuses that would turn off the engines at the first sign of a problem, thus eliminating the fire. These fuses were installed over the weekend, she said.

When the bus drivers started rolling out of the parking lot Monday morning, some of them didn't make it to the gate before the fuses blew. Others didn't complete their runs.

"We were just looking out for the safety of the passengers," she said of the installation.

LARGER FUSES WERE installed, and the bus problems were eliminated.

"When you get a new vehicle, you've got bugs to work out, and it's the same thing with the buses," she said.

Calls for demand-responsive service have exceeded expectations, according to the director. The first day of service, they expected to have about 10 calls; they had 26.

The second day it picked up to 52. And from there it has gone to an average of about 100 demand-responsive calls a day, Ms. Fisher said.

"We could do much more, but we just don't have the buses," she complained. And while MidTran requires a rider call 24 hours ahead for the demand-responsive service to be scheduled, it has reached the point where people now are making arrangements three to four days ahead of the pickup.

MidTran only operates four buses during the late morning and mid-afternoon call-in service, leaving three buses to be cleaned and serviced.

Additional demand-responsive service will start March 17 with runs to and from Midland Regional Airport seven days a week and until late at night. Since that service was approved last week by Midland City Council, Ms. Fisher said she already has received several calls about it.

Iranians continue to be divided

Khomenini's son joins the dispute over hostage visit

By The Associated Press

The young militants holding the American hostages in Tehran refused again today to let the U.N. investigating commission meet with their captives even though Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini gave his implied approval to the meeting.

"Our position has not changed. We will not let the meeting take place," a spokesman for the militants occupying the U.S. Embassy told a reporter by telephone.

The spokesman said Khomeini's agreement to the meeting had not been confirmed.

Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh, who favors the visit, accused "communists and Zionists" of trying to foil the U.N. panel's mission, an apparent reference to leftists among the captors. The foreign minister's comment was in an interview with the Tehran newspaper Azadegan.

Khomeini's son, Ahmad, who in the past has acted as a liaison between the embassy militants and his father, was quoted as saying he believed the meeting would be "useful."

"It doesn't hurt anybody and this was part of their (the commission's) work," he was quoted as saying in an interview with the official Fars news agency.

The five members of the U.N. commission met with Ghotbzadeh to try to nail down arrangements for the meeting with the approximately 50 hostages. They returned to their hotel an hour later, and a spokesman said they still expected to see the Americans.

President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr, who Tehran Radio said left the capital today for an official visit to the western province of Kerman, told reporters Tuesday night that Khomeini had given him and the Revolutionary Council jurisdiction over the matter of the proposed meeting between the U.N. group and the captives.

Bani-Sadr, who heads the council, said it decided the meeting should take place, and it would be held.

But Khomeini, the 79-year-old religious leader of Iran's revolutionary regime, apparently did not issue a direct order to the young militants to permit the meeting on Bani-Sadr's terms. This apparently emboldened them to defy the president and the council, as they have done in the past.

The secretary of the council, Mohammed Beheshti, said earlier today it would seek Khomeini's advice if it ran into further difficulties over the issue of the commission visit.

In another development, the Iranian prosecutor-general pressed his demand today for custody of U.S. diplomat Victor L. Tomseth despite Ghotbzadeh's refusal to hand him over. Tomseth and two other American Embassy officials have been held at the Foreign Ministry since the embassy takeover last Nov. 4.

The prosecutor-general's office says it wants to question Tomseth, the embassy political officer, about documents from the embassy that allegedly link him with the anti-Khomeini terrorist group Forghan. Ghotbzadeh said earlier this week only Khomeini or the Revolutionary Council could decide to hand Tomseth over.

The militants had agreed Monday to a meeting between the U.N. panel and the hostages but only on terms that were unacceptable to the U.N. group, Bani-Sadr and the Revolutionary Council.

The militants said they would let the commission meet with all the hostages to determine their condition only after the panel issued its report.

Afghan rebel leader raps 'unconcerned spectators'

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — An Afghan rebel leader accused the Western and Moslem worlds of "being unconcerned spectators... while our people are floating in their own blood because of Russian atrocities." He denied the rebels are receiving aid from the United States or China.

Professor Burhanuddin Rabbani, head of a coalition of five rebel groups fighting the communist government in Afghanistan, told a news conference here Tuesday that hundreds of his men had been killed in the past four days as Soviet warplanes bombed rebel strongholds in eastern Afghan provinces near the Pakistani border.

The rebels also claimed to have inflicted heavy casualties on Afghan army troops during the fighting, which Western diplomats have said appears to be the start of a major offensive against the rebels by Afghan and Soviet troops.

Rabbani denied the rebels were receiving arms or other assistance from the United States, China or any Moslem nation that pledged support during a foreign ministers conference here in January.

But the Soviet ambassador to Japan, Dmitri Polyansky, charged today that the U.S. and Chinese governments were training "tens of thousands of well-trained guerrillas" and in effect, waging war on Afghanistan.

"The imperialists and their accomplices in Peking, disregarding the protests of the Afghan government, are in reality waging war against Afghanistan without a declaration of war," he said in a speech to Japan's National Press Club in Tokyo.

The Kremlin, which sent an estimated 70,000 troops into Afghanistan in late December, has said it will not withdraw from the neighboring Central Asian nation until what it calls outside interference stops.

Midland man shot during apparent robbery attempt

Being a "good Samaritan" didn't pay off for Paul Young, 23, of Midland.

Young was listed in satisfactory condition this morning in Midland Memorial Hospital after being shot early this morning in an apparent robbery attempt.

A Sheriff's Office spokesman said Young, of 1003 S. Midkiff Road, No. 202, was approached by a man shortly after 2 a.m. The man reportedly told Young that he had run out of gas and needed a ride back to his vehicle. On the way to the man's vehicle, somewhere between Midkiff Road and Holiday Hill Road, the man pulled a pistol and told Young to stop, sheriff's deputies said.

Young told officers he pulled over, whereupon the man threatened to rob Young. A scuffle ensued, and Young was shot in the right side, according to deputies. The man reportedly fled on foot.

Young drove himself to a friend's house, and the friend then drove him to the hospital.

Deputies said Young could only tell them the man used a "large pistol."

Few in Basin show interest in enumerating fellows for decennial census

By BILL MODISSETT
Staff Writer

A lack of applicants for Census Bureau positions in the Midland-Odessa area is causing concern for Lubbock regional census workers who say they "foresee a problem unless we can really step it up."

The search for census workers in this area is going "terribly," according to one Census Bureau official.

The Census Bureau has been conducting testing for enumerators and crew leaders in the Midland-Odessa area nearly a month now, but is far short of the needed 200 qualified applicants. Little more than a month remains before the workers are scheduled to begin their "follow up" duties — after residents mail back their completed census forms on April 1 — and only "about 20" qualified applicants have been located so far, according to Jerry Butler of Lubbock, field operation assistant for employment.

Asked the possible reason for the lack of applicants for the census positions here, Ms. Butler said, "I don't know because we're not having problems in any other areas. Low unemployment I'll bet."

"I would really like to pick up a hundred people there (Midland and Odessa) in the next couple of weeks," she added.

Census workers, needed for the 1980 decennial enumeration, must be at least 18 years of age, but can be 16 if they have received their high school diploma. They must pass a timed written test to determine their ability to perform basic mathematics calculations and to follow written instructions.

They must fill out an application form concerning their physical abilities and background, and they must be able to walk and climb stairs, read the fine print on census forms and to speak and hear normal conversations.

Applicants must have a vehicle and a valid driver's license, Ms. Butler noted. They will work a 40-hour week, including weekends and evenings.

Students are welcome applicants, says Jerry Butler of the Census Bureau, and bilingual individuals particularly are needed. "In order to do the census well we've got to have community participation."

Enumerators are paid $4 per hour and crew leaders earn $4.20 to $4.50 per hour, she said.

Students are welcome applicants, she said, and bilingual individuals particularly are needed.

Ms. Butler stressed the importance of getting an accurate count in this year's census.

"In order to do the census well we've got to have community participation," she stressed.

Noting Midland and Odessa's extremely low unemployment rate, Ms. Butler said, "We realize that in that area the people don't need the work necessarily."

But she also noted that following the 1970 census some individuals complained that the count was not an accurate one. To obtain an accurate count, she said, the necessary workers must be located.

Ms. Butler has gone as far as to put a fulltime recruiter to work in the two cities, making contacts in an effort to find prospective census workers.

She noted that testing will be conducted again next Tuesday in the Texas Employment Commission conference room at 1 p.m. and 4 p.m. and she urged those interested to attend.

An accurate count in the census is needed, Ms. Butler noted, because the census figures will be used for congressional reapportionment, state redistricting and revenue sharing purposes.

About 40 area oilmen to join rally

Forty or more oil operators and royalty owners from the Midland-Odessa area will be flying to the nation's capital this weekend to join in an Oil Field Round-Up to try to prevent U.S. Senators from passing the so-called windfall profits tax.

The Permian Basin push on the Oil Field Round-Up got under way here Friday, when the Permian Basin Petroleum Association and a group led by Oklahoma oilman and U.S. Senator Henry Bellmon staged a rally to seek volunteers to peacefully but persuasively "march" on Washington.

The oilmen will be headquartered at the Skyline Inn in Washington, D.C., said a spokesman for the petroleum association, and will gather there at 9 a.m. Monday before moving into the Capitol area.

Oilmen, royalty owners and others interested in joining in the rally to quench the proposed tax, which Bellmon called the "worst mistake" ever and "a miscarriage of justice," may contact the association in Midland at 684-6345.

Ronald A. Britton

Midlander files for school post

Ronald A. Britton announced today his candidacy for Place 1 on the Midland Independent School District Board of Trustees in the April 5 election.

President of Britton Management Corporation, the candidate has lived in Midland the past 15 years. He has two children in public schools and believes "we must have some strong support for the administrators and teachers in order to encourage them to do their jobs more effectively."

"We must give authority back to the teachers so they may perform their jobs," Britton said. "We also must support the proposed bond issue or the inevitable tax rate increase will be the school board's only solution."

He was referring to the $3 million school bond issue that will appear on the April 5 ballot. When the issue was added to the election, the school board contended the money is needed for making a minimum amount of repairs and renovations.

Britton, in addition to serving as president of the corporation, also is president of OGB Engineering, Inc., Britton Industries, Inc., and Pro-Bro, Inc. He is a member of the Downtown Rotary Club, Midland Chamber of Commerce, Society of Professional Engineers of AIME, Independent Petroleum Association of America, Permian Basin Petroleum Association and Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Association.

He is a registered professional engineer in Texas and Oklahoma. Britton also serves on the task force for Objectives for Midland and is financial director for the Palmer Drug Abuse Program in Midland.

Britton and his wife, Susan, have three children, Andrew, Carolyn and Elizabeth. They reside on Solomon Lane.

Michael Murphy concert canceled

Ed Coppins, assistant manager at Cody Cattle Company, said he is waiting for Murphy's road manager to give him a confirmed date so the concert may be rescheduled.

Carter, winner in three contests, anticipating Georgia primary

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, winner over Sen. Edward M. Kennedy in three out of four Democratic contests in New England, says he looks forward to next week — and his own home-state primary in Georgia.

Carter greeted a Tuesday primary victory in Vermont and a solid setback in Kennedy's native Massachusetts with a statement pointing to a president's manifest strengths in political power, money and geographical reach.

But one unknown in future days was the impact of the administration's admission that it erred in the handling of a United Nations resolution opposing Israeli settlements in occupied Arab territories.

Robert Strauss, the president's campaign manager and himself a Jew, called the U.S. vote against Israel "a terrible mistake" and told reporters, "I was rather shocked by it."

"Obviously, it is a minus," Strauss said. With the Kennedy campaign wending, Carter called attention to his own staying power in a statement Tuesday evening.

"Next week," the president noted, "a total of 418 delegates will be at stake in political contests in 10 states over the country — Alabama, Alaska, Florida, Georgia, Hawaii, Mississippi, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Washington and Wyoming."

Carter's statement, passed out to reporters at the White House less than an hour after the polls closed in New England, began: "I deeply appreciate the expression of strong support from the voters of Vermont, and wish to congratulate Sen. Kennedy and his campaign organization on their victory in Massachusetts."

The president's suggestion that Kennedy owed at least part of his home state victory to the Kennedy "organization" clearly was deliberate. But the ensuing passage about next week's Democratic primaries, conventions and caucuses was far more pointed in underscoring Carter's strengths as a well-financed incumbent and a southerner. Half of next Tuesday's contests will come in southern or border states.

"These important contests," he said, "will continue to provide an opportunity for this nation's voters to express their views on the type of leadership they want for the next four years, and I look forward to those tests."

Before Tuesday's balloting, Carter was pictured as facing a can't-lose situation, even though he expected to do no better than finish second to Kennedy in Massachusetts.

A Carter associate, who asked not to be named, put the White House view of the Massachusetts balloting in these plain, if self-serving, terms: "We don't feel a win for the senator in Massachusetts will do anything for him. He's in a situation where if he wins, 'so what?'"

MidTran's first month termed more successful than hoped has requested information on how it operates, as has a transportation study team at Texas A&M University.

"This is a new system and we (Mid-Tran employees) are all learning. The scheduling should go better as the drivers learn the city," she commented.

"I'm very pleased with the way the system has been accepted. I hope we can get more buses to provide service to more people," Ms. Fisher said.

"Looking at those white and orange buses lined up at the courthouse in the evening waiting for passengers is a very pleasing site," she added. "It's enough to make tears come to my eyes."

What is needed now, said Ms. Fisher, is more buses. And she is starting to work on a grant from the Urban Mass Transportation Administration for another seven buses.

"The 175 on the waiting list justifies this need," she explained, adding that more could be used for demand-responsive through the afternoon.

With inflation, however, the buses have increased in cost. The 20-passenger bus which last year cost $24,000 now runs $30,000. And those with wheelchair lifts which earlier cost $27,000 are now up to $33,000.

REVENUE FOR demand-responsive service for the first month totaled $807.68, which averages to $40.83 a day, Ms. Fisher figured. If that service was handling only elderly and handicapped persons who ride at a reduced rate of 25 cents, that means 161 persons a day took advantage of the service.

With the average hovering about 100 a day, Ms. Fisher said apparently several people are taking the bus at its full fare of 75 cents a ride.

Her last count on paid subscriptions was $2,770 for February; but she cautioned this was before more were added.

Total income for the first month was near $4,000. "I feel very good about our revenues," she added.

Midland's public transportation system is being scrutinized by other cities in the state, and even out-of-state. Ms. Fisher said Heston, Kan.,

Mugabe vows to begin neutral foreign policy, program of fair treatment toward white minority

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Rhodesia's new Marxist leader, Robert Mugabe, promised no confiscation of private property, a neutral foreign policy and fair treatment for the white minority.

The prime minister-designate told the nation in a TV-radio address after his landslide election victory was announced Tuesday there would be "no expropriation of property," and his government would not be aligned with the Soviet bloc or NATO.

"I urge you, whether you are white or black, to join me in a new pledge to forget the grim past," said the co-leader of the seven-year guerrilla rebellion against white rule in which some 20,000 persons were killed.

Mugabe said he would seek the cooperation of his chief political rival and co-leader of the guerrilla armies, Joshua Nkomo, and former Prime Minister Ian D. Smith, the leader of the white minority.

Nkomo, whose party won 20 of the 100 seats in the lower house of Parliament to 57 for Mugabe's party, said he welcomed the renewal of their wartime alliance. There was no comment from Smith, whose Rhodesian Front won all 20 of the seats reserved for whites.

The other three black seats were won by Bishop Abel Muzorewa's party.

"There is no intention on our part to use the advantage of the majority to victimize the minority," Mugabe told reporters in an effort to reassure the 230,000 whites. "There is a place for everybody in this country."

"We cannot practice racialism in reverse... (the whites) are entitled to serve the nation as the blacks are entitled to do so. And hence we would want to see them develop a greater sense of security, a greater sense of confidence, a greater sense of belonging." But tension remained high among whites who viewed Mugabe's elevation to power as the first long step toward a communist state. There were new predictions of an exodus of skilled civil servants, technicians and farmers, the backbone of the economy.

"We are all stunned. Some people are already packing their bags. Others are talking of burning their crops and farms," said the wife of one of the 5,500 white farmers who produce half the nation's income.

Mugabe told a BBC interviewer his first priority would be resettlement of refugees displaced by the guerrilla war, and this "means, of course, acquiring land from the European sector."

"But here I emphasize," he continued, "that there is lots of land which is unoccupied, which is under-utilized, and land under absentee ownership. This is the land we are going to have to acquire, and in doing so, of course, we will be quite systematic and orderly...compensating those whose land we acquire."

He also said Zimbabwe, as Rhodesia will be called after independence, will not provide a haven for black guerrillas seeking the overthrow of the white government of neighboring South Africa.

"I've already said that we're going to follow a realistic policy in relation to South Africa," he said. "Our view is that we cannot avoid South Africa, which is a geographical reality. So a policy of coexistence is the best thing we can do. Our view is that South Africa should avoid interfering in our affairs, and we should avoid interfering in South African affairs."

Mugabe is expected to inform Lord Soames, Britain's interim governor in Rhodesia, of the makeup of his cabinet in the next few days. After that a 40-seat Senate is to be appointed, and it along with the National Assembly will elect a president who will inherit Soames' powers.

Mugabe, evidently worried about the prospects of a flight of skilled whites and money, has urged the governor to remain on after independence in an unspecified role. Soames' spokesman said the British government is eager to "do all we can" to assist Mugabe establish a stable government.

Former Missouri governor, senator Forrest Donnell dies

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Forrest C. Donnell, 95, former Missouri governor and U.S. senator, has died in suburban Manchester.

A private funeral service was planned for today.

Donnell's death Monday was not disclosed until late Tuesday. He had suffered from a heart condition but "died peacefully in his sleep," according to a spokesman at Mari de Villa Retirement Center where he had made his home in recent years.

Donnell ran for his first public office at the age of 56 and won an upset victory in 1940 as a Republican to become governor of Missouri.

Donnell had been asked to run by the St. Louis Republican Committee. He was given little chance of success. Hard-core party workers gave him only token support because he refused to promise jobs for party faithful. He said that there had been too much spoils system patronage.

After concluding his term as governor, Donnell won election to the U.S. Senate in 1944.

He became recognized as one of the ablest constitutional lawyers in the senate, but even his colleagues found his meticulous attention to detail trying.

He earned labor's enmity by backing the Taft-Hartley Act, but he supported federal aid to education, slum clearance and housing measures.

Tito still in grave condition

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — President Josip Broz Tito's doctors said today the Yugoslav leader's grave condition remained unchanged and that he was still receiving intensive care.

The doctors made no further mention of their report a day earlier that there were signs of improvement in pneumonia contracted by the 87-year-old Tito.

Tito began receiving treatment for a circulation problem in his left leg in early January. When the problem did not improve, the leg was amputated Jan. 20. Other problems, including heart and kidney weaknesses and internal bleeding, have developed since then.

An international problem

It's easy not to think about a problem if you simply ignore it. You simply close your eyes and mind, try to think of something pleasant instead, and hope the problem is gone when you open your eyes — and your mind again.

That attempt at a solution, however, isn't very successful. It would be safe to say that such a course of action, in fact, is rarely, if ever, successful.

When Iranian militants seized control of the embassy in Tehran, Iran, in November and began holding some 50 Americans hostage there, there were a number of cries of outrage from the world community.

But when those nations were asked to take action against the Iranians, they merely shrugged and labeled the problem an American one.

Wrong.

Embassy takeovers are no more solely an American problem than were the airline hijackings so prevalent in the 10-year period from the early 1960s to the early 1970s.

During that period, airline hijackings became almost everyday occurrences. What eventually reduced the number of hijackings was decisive action on the part of the United States and Cuba, two of the nations caught up in the throes of the hijacking spree.

When we realized the fact that the hijacking problem was not going to disappear merely because we ignored it, we took decisive steps that led to the end, for the most part, of the problem.

That was in 1973 when the United States and Cuba signed a pact calling for the prosecution and extradition of hijackers. And at that time the United States and Cuba were not on the best of terms, either.

Following that action, the U.S. Congress approved a tough anti-skyjacking law and, on the world scene, The Hague convention on hijacking set out international procedures for dealing with apprehended hijackers.

Now it appears the terrorists have found another interesting game: Embassy takeovers.

Following on the heels of the Iranian situation, terrorists in Bogota, Colombia, are holding hostages in the Dominican Republic Embassy. They're holding the ambassadors of 16 nations and demanding $50 million, the release of political prisoners and safe passage out of the country.

In the wake of this most recent embassy incident, it's quite clear that the problem involving diplomatic missions is not solely an American problem. A solution here, also, will require clear, decisive action.

But it will have to come from more nations than just the United States because international problems demand international solutions.

The Defense Intelligence Agency eventually reached more than 1,000. Ten years ago, a treaty to halt the spread of nuclear weapons went into effect, ratified by 43 nations.

Five years ago, Israeli troops stormed a Tel Aviv hotel and killed the half dozen Arab terrorists holding some 40 guests and employees hostage.

Last year, the Israeli cabinet accepted secret American proposals for a Mideast peace treaty, and President Carter said he'd go to the Mideast in an effort to wrap things up.

Goal of boosting exports easier said than done

SEATTLE — The only way that the United States can maintain its prosperity is to export, export, export. The time is long past when American business can live off the rich American market. Competitor nations are well into our market, and we must compensate by doing better in getting into theirs. It's as simple as that.

The goal of boosting exports, however, is easier announced than accomplished. The dispute reverberating through the Puget Sound over the question of exporting Northwest logs is a good illustration of how interests made up of sincere people can thwart a rational export policy.

About 75 percent of all logs exported from the United States come from the Northwest and Alaska. It makes perfect sense to sell them to Asian nations, principally Japan. There are plenty of logs to export. It costs less to ship them from Seattle to Tokyo than to, say, Long Beach, Calif. The Japanese are happy customers, though the Soviet Union would also like to please. And, after toting up the pluses and minuses, there is an overall economic benefit to the United States. After all, unlike oil, trees can be planted again and harvested.

Still, this issue can raise political tempers. Unions such as the International Woodworkers of America, owners of small sawmills; some homebuilding interests, and environmentalists are strongly opposed to much of the present log-export trade and want to limit it in the future.

The mill owners rely heavily on federal and state timber sales and feel that the price would drop if log exports were stopped. The unions argue that such exports preclude processing of timber and thus cut jobs. Some homebuilders believe that log exports cause lumber shortages and higher prices. Environmentalists suspect the timber companies would harvest even more timber if the log export business really opened up.

This strong opposition found expression in an amendment to the 1979 Export Administration Act authored by Congressman Don L. Bonker (D-Olympia), which phases out export of cedar logs from state and federal lands in the next three years.

The big timber companies fought this amendment because they didn't like the precedent of any ban on log export. Now Bonker is pushing a bill to restrict the export of all species of trees cut on state and federal land. He says that he has no intention to ever extend this concept to private lands, the kind that most timber companies own.

However strong the feelings against log export, the facts indicate that the Northwest must export to keep its timber industry healthy. In 1964 this industry provided 30 percent of the Northeast U.S. lumber market needs; today it's under 5 percent and declining because the East can buy Canadian and Southern lumber cheaper.

By exporting logs, the Northwest timber companies vitalize the entire region's wood industry, and also help create new markets in Asia for processed American timber. The future of the timber market in booming Asia is very good.

Virtually all the criticism of log exports involves Japan, where wood demand is running away from domestic supply. The Japanese are now importing more than half their log needs. The United States is the leading supplier, with the Soviets second.

The Japanese prefer buying logs rather than lumber from the United States because of their unique size requirements and slow-sawing methods. They simply won't buy our standard sizes. So if the United States won't sell them logs, they'll make their wood materials from Soviet or Canadian logs.

Some opponents to log exports claim that the Japanese import our logs and sell lumber back to us. In 1978 the United States imported only .0008 percent of its soft wood from Japan — an infinitesimal amount. The United States did import significant amounts of hard wood plywood from Taiwan, Korea and Japan, but most of it was for decorative use and not competitive with that made in the United States. Besides, much of this imported material was remanufactured and finished here, thus creating many jobs for American workers.

It's too bad that the Jones Act makes shipping logs in American freighters to American ports cost-prohibitive. It's too bad that railroads don't have enough cars, and charge too much for logs to be shipped East. It's too bad that wide fluctuations in the U.S. housing market compare unfavorably with the steady, even booming, housing market in Asia, thus inhibiting expansion of log-processing facilities in the Northwest. Actually, the big timber companies have invested hundreds of millions of dollars in production plants in recent years. Employment in Washington

New Hampshire Futurity became one-horse show

WASHINGTON — You saw it on television, you read it in the newspapers, and it was reported in the polls. The contest in New Hampshire between George Bush and Ronald Reagan was going to be a horse race, and much too close to call.

When over 2,000 newspapermen and pollsters assure you that the New Hampshire Republican primary is a toss-up between two men, you would be a fool to doubt their word. After all, among them they interviewed everyone in the state, not once but three times.

So what really happened? Reagan beat Bush by 2-1.

The days following the results I watched all the newscasts and read all the papers hoping to see someone from the media admit he or she was wrong.

It was not to be.

I decided to go down to Washington National Airport and meet the reporters as they got off the plane from Manchester and ask them why they missed the boat so badly.

Most of them were bitter and a few refused to comment, explaining that they never talk to the press.

The ones who were willing to discuss it at all had various excuses for their bad showing in New Hampshire.

A nationally respected political pundit said, "The citizens of New Hampshire didn't level with us. This is the most outrageous primary I have ever covered.

Are you saying people in New Hampshire lie?

What other conclusion can you draw? We went into their shops, we stopped them on the streets, we drank coffee in their homes. The least they could have done was tell us the truth.

Maybe they were telling you the truth at the time. Perhaps they changed their minds after they talked to you.

That's too simple an explanation. I believe the people who said they were going to vote for Bush were really closet supporters for Reagan. They wanted us to believe it would be a horse race, so we'd all stay around. My next column is going to be an expose on how the citizens of New Hampshire manipulated the press to make us all look like fools.

A TV commentator staggered off the plane and tried to push by my camera. But I stuck a microphone in his face.

You really blew it in Manchester, I said.

He tried to put his coat over his head.

I am innocent of any wrongdoing, he replied. When all the facts are in, the public will realize that we were given the wrong information by the Bush and Reagan campaign managers.

Cox said second-floor after 5 a.m. tainly were

The two v Chicago, an both freshm Both said incident.

The next person I managed to talk to was a leading pollster who said, "Although we came out originally with 41 percent for Bush and 41 percent for Reagan, we have reassessed our data and have concluded it should have been 23 percent for Bush and 50 percent for Reagan. When you're polling a large state like New Hampshire, you always have to allow a 27 percent margin of error."

The last person to get off the plane was the Dean of Political Reporters. All I said to him was "Have you seen any good horse races lately?" and he tried to hit me over the head with his typewriter.

It was a big Kennedy victory in New Hampshire, all right — under the metric system.

Kennedy said he won in New Hampshire because Carter only got 28 percent in '76. This means that today, Teddy can clobber Morris Udall, Fred Harris and Milton Schapp.

Carter got 50 percent in New Hampshire by not setting foot in the state. Perhaps if he had, he would have gotten his old 28 percent.

Carter had the clear advantage of running in the home state of the famous New Hampshire peaches, New Hampshire peanuts and that great NFL team, the Manchester Falcons.

Congress SCAM? I have checked what the congressmen, who are implicated in the ABCSCAM operation, did in return for the money they were paid by undercover FBI agents. It left me wondering: Who was scamming who?

The cash handed over to the lawmakers by G-men posing as Arab sheiks was supposed to buy the introduction of private legislation that would permit the immigration of certain wealthy Arabs. But I have reviewed all the private measures introduced over the past two years by the eight congressmen who were filmed by the FBI's candid camera. None of them offered a bill on behalf of anyone with a name even remotely similar to the Arab pseudonyms used by the Bureau.

Reps. John Murphy, D-N.Y., and Michael Myers, D-Pa., for example, allegedly agreed to introduce private bills in return for cash. But Murphy has not offered any legislation since the beginning of 1978; Myers has introduced only one bill, and it had nothing to do with an Arab, phony or otherwise.

What this indicates is that ABCSCAM's agents were getting little more than empty promises from their congressional friends.

Soviets using gases to kill Afghans

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — In the towering, treacherous mountains of Afghanistan, the Soviet invaders are attacking guerrillas with deadly nerve gases that even Adolf Hitler balked at using.

The implications are so hideous that American analysts don't want to believe their own intelligence, but eyewitness accounts, satellite photos and communications intercepts have verified the terrible truth.

These mountains are called Hindu Kush, meaning "Killer of Hindus." But it's Afghans who are now dying on the craggy, wind-whipped heights. The Russians are using gases to flush the fierce mountain men out of the caves and crevices, where they are holed up.

From the available evidence, intelligence specialists have identified one gas as Soman. This colorless nerve gas has a pleasant, fruity odor but brings agonizing death within 15 minutes. It kills by being absorbed through the skin.

The victims in their final minutes of life, according to a U.S. document, "display the following symptoms: difficulty in breathing; drooling and excessive sweating; nausea, vomiting, cramps and involuntary defecation and urination; twitching, jerking and staggering; headache, confusion, drowsiness, coma and convulsion... followed by cessation of breathing."

The Defense Intelligence Agency

has also picked up references in Soviet communications which indicate the Russians may also be waging germ warfare against the Afghan tribesmen. No civilized nation has resorted to such an inhumane weapon since our colonial French and Indian wars when Indian tribes were deliberately given smallpox-infected blankets.

Even Hitler decided against using nerve gases developed by his Nazi scientists in World War II. But after the Third Reich collapsed, the Soviets quietly moved an entire German nerve gas production plant to Russia and employed former Nazi scientists to develop the dread stuff.

— Pentagon sources now estimate that the Russians not only possess an enormous chemical warfare arsenal but have assigned more than 100,000 specially trained chemical officers to Soviet military units. Intelligence reports claim the Russians tested their chemicals in small amounts against rebellious tribesmen in South Yemen as early as 1964.

Then in 1978, the Soviets used mustard gas to subdue the independent Meo tribes entrenched in the highlands of Laos. Survivors staggered off the mountains mumbling fearfully about "yellow rain." Now the Russians have turned their genocidal weapons against the Afghan rebels.

A key intelligence source told me the Soviets have placed extensive stockpiles of chemical weapons in their Warsaw Pact satellite nations. In the early 1970s, intelligence agencies established that poison gas was stored in Poland and unidentified chemical weapons were kept in Czechoslovakia. They learned later that a Soviet air force division in East Germany possessed a stock of 400 chemical bombs.

A top-secret CIA analysis offers this chilling explanation: "Warsaw Pact doctrine sees chemical weapons as instruments of mass destruction to be used along with nuclear weapons when authorized by high Soviet authorities. The storage of chemical weapons in the Warsaw Pact's forward area would, of course, permit them to be distributed more quickly to combat units."

More ominous, mock military maneuvers in the Warsaw Pact countries, according to intelligence sources, have included "simulated chemical attacks against NATO forces."

One top secret CIA publication, the Weekly Surveyor, includes periodic articles, which update the intelligence on Soviet chemical, biological and radiological capabilities. In one issue, the CIA reported that their counterpart, the Soviet KGB, had been explaining the development of their grotesque weapons to East European authorities with these words: "The U.S.S.R. must maintain a capability in Chemical Warfare because of the demonstrated capability of the U.S., NATO and the PRC (People's Republic of China)."

In the name of humanity, meanwhile, an international commission should be empowered at once to assess the evidence that the Soviets are waging secret chemical and biological warfare against the defenseless but defiant Afghans.

State's forest industry is now at 71,000, the highest since 1951.

These facts of Northwest economic life are often recited by George Weyerhaeuser, president of the company bearing his name. He is proud, not ashamed, that his company is building export facilities.

At first, there will be more logs than finished products shipped from our export facility, Weyerhaeuser says. Over the years, the volume of finished products will steadily increase. But even then there will be a steady volume of export logs. Why? Because that's what our principal customer, Japan, wants to buy.

If Japan doesn't feel she can depend on the United States as a long-term supplier of all kinds of forest products — she has an obvious option. The nearest alternate supplier, with its soft wood surplus, is Soviet Siberia.

There is no reason we should alarm the Japanese, lose this market, harm our trade balance, or further weaken the dollar, lose income and jobs — unless we persuade ourselves it would be a good idea to shoot ourselves in the foot and restrict these exports. I don't think this will happen:

Bush sees 'gains' in Anderson showing

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — Even before the results were known, George Bush congratulated John Anderson for his showing in Vermont and Massachusetts — but said the ultimate gains will be savored by George Bush.

Bush said the results in the two Republican primaries Tuesday established that Ronald Reagan is not invincible, and that is the chief importance of the votes.

"I couldn't be more pleased with what's happening in the East tonight," a buoyant Bush told a hotel ballroom full of supporters Tuesday night.

Bush quickly dismissed Anderson as a non-factor in Republican politics. And Bush's South Carolina strategist, Harry Dent, called Anderson's surprisingly strong showings "a freak" occurrence.

Said Bush: "I give John Anderson credit for winning. But there was a cross-over. He's not even in these southern states. He said, 'what does a state like South Carolina have for a guy like me?' And the answer is nothing."

On Saturday, South Carolina holds the nation's next primary, and the first in the South, and Bush will find out what a state like this has for him.

Even Dent concedes that Reagan is the likely winner here. But Dent thinks Bush can finish a credible second, despite John Connally's all-out bid. Connally has been endorsed by the ever-popular Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., who has won elections in this state as a Democrat, a write-in, a Dixiecrat, and a Republican.

Dent said he has never seen anything like the way Thurmond is working for Connally.

"He's sent computerized letters to every voter in South Carolina," Dent says. "I even got two of them. He's been all over the telephone. If we can get past Strom Thurmond, it'll be a miracle. When he commits himself, he will not stop. He has a scorched earth policy."

Dent advised Bush to "come out swinging and fighting" and Bush took the advice. At sometimes sparsely attended Republican gatherings, Bush denounced unnamed opponents for placing "out-of-state, unsigned" advertisements that accused him of being pro-abortion and in favor of gun control. "No such thing," Bush said; he is dead set against both.

He said he is just as conservative as his rivals — so conservative that, in fact, the Americans for Constitutional Action, a conservative group, twice bestowed on him its distinguished service award.

Anderson measuring his success

By FRED BAYLES

BOSTON (AP) — Rep. John B. Anderson, buoyed by strong second-place showings in the Massachusetts and Vermont Republican presidential primaries, said today his success was the beginning of a "new citizens coalition" that will catapult him into the White House.

Anderson, appearing on NBC-TV's "Today" show after 2½ hours sleep, woke today to find he trailed George Bush in the Massachusetts vote by a scant 800 votes. He was just 600 votes behind Ronald Reagan in the Vermont primary.

The Illinois congressman, who made only a few appearances in Vermont, called his showing in that state "nothing short of astonishing."

He had harsh words for Bush's contention that he was siphoning votes from the former Texas congressman's challenge to front-runner Reagan. "Nobody has announced Mr. Bush to be the alternative to Mr. Reagan," he said. Anderson also criticized Reagan for offering voters "simplistic answers to complicated problems."

Anderson credited his success to "the basic premise that we should pay attention to the problems back home."

He discounted any third-party challenge by his campaign, saying he was "absolutely convinced that we can win this election within the two-party system."

"One of the major aims of the campaign is to get a new citizens' coalition of voters," he said. "We're going on to prove that in the rest of the country."

Anderson said his success in luring independent votes to his campaign would help him woo conservative Republicans who may have trouble with some of the liberal positions the 10-term congressman espouses.

"If I can show the 20 percent of Republicans in this country that I have the capacity to win half the independents in this country, it can't do anything but help," he said. "Republicans are supposed to be pragmatists."

"To be quite frank, this exceeded our expectations," Anderson campaign director Steve MacLeod said of the election outcome.

"The campaign literally exploded," said Jane Fowler, who coordinated the congressman's campaign in Massachusetts.

If anyone took the news of the victory calmly, it was the candidate. "We were just leaving the room when they (CBS television) called Vermont for Anderson," said Maureen Kennary, a classmate of Anderson's son who watched the early returns come in with the Anderson family.

"Everybody else got pretty excited, but he (Anderson) didn't react. He just smiled," she said.

MacLeod said Anderson's performance would force a reassessment of the candidate's "Midwest Strategy" which had originally called for a concentration of efforts for the March 18th primary in his home state of Illinois and a later contest in Wisconsin.

The campaign director, a former executive director of the House Republican Conference, said Anderson's name was on the ballot in at least 20 primaries. He even said the candidate would enter "four or five additional primaries" and might make a last-minute bid for votes in the March 11 Florida primary — a contest Anderson had written off.

"We have the national campaign staff and we're starting to get the money," MacLeod said. "It has always been our strategy to show we are the only candidate that can develop a broad enough base to get elected."

Neither MacLeod, or Mrs. Fowler, was quick to offer explanations for Anderson's showing.

Midlander's dorm room bombed

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — A homemade bomb exploded Tuesday outside the door of a dormitory room at the University of New Mexico, but no one was injured and damage was minor, campus police said.

"It was a homemade device, a little black powder," said Berry Cox, director of the campus police. "It apparently was taped or attached to the door handle to the room."

Cox said the two male students asleep in the second-floor room when the bomb went off shortly after 5 a.m. weren't injured "although they certainly were rudely and rapidly awakened."

The two were identified as Jerry Lathrop, 19, of Chicago, and Carey Carness, 19, of Midland, Texas, both freshmen members of the UNM swim team.

Both said they did not want to talk about the incident.

The bomb blew the door knob and a six-inch section of the door into the room and the doorknob was sent hurtling out the window in the opposite wall, Cox said.

"Apparently it was pretty powerful. We don't know yet if it was a fuse-type thing or what," he said.

Swimming makes 'horse sense,' says vet who developed farm

By LEE LINDER

NEW HOPE, Pa. (AP) — A chestnut thoroughbred named Quillo Wind walked gingerly down a concrete ramp and plunged into the 60-degree water.

But Quillo Wind wasn't just horsing around. The 15-minute swim in the 30-by-40-foot heated pool was expected to improve his condition and make him a better competitor at the race track.

"Pool training won't increase a exactly the way he runs, but puts greater stress on the shoulder muscles as he churns the water with his legs."

Horses are natural swimmers, and the best swimmers usually do better on the race track, but Wessner said one will occasionally resist the walk into the pool.

"Once they're in, though, they love it," he said.

Wessner swims about 20 horses daily — they get only Sundays off — swimming because it helps him keep his wind up, and keeps him in better condition to run.... A horse that hasn't raced for a long time, maybe as long as six months, needs swimming to build up his wind. That way you can bring the horse along slowly and take the strain off his legs," Graci said.

Wessner charges his boarders $18 a day plus veterinarian fees. Most come from Keystone, Liberty Bell, Monmouth, Meadowslands and other tracks in the East.

"There have been horses that have made the best race of their life out of the pool training," Wessner said. "Swim training for 45 days saves 45 days of pounding on the race track. It is the best way to start a horse back into training that hasn't raced for a while, or who had some kind of leg injury."

"Swimming starts body development in the training of a young thoroughbred before strain is placed on the heart and lungs. Often horses on swimming programs are ready for the track as much as 30 days sooner than if training was confined solely to the turf."

"Swimming especially helps horses with sore feet or ankle problems. Remember those skinny legs have to carry more than 1,000 pounds of body, and pool therapy is a perfect place to relieve the strain and cure the hurts."

"Horses, like any human athlete, can't win if they're not in top shape and swimming makes horse sense.... When a horse swims he uses more muscles than when galloping or trotting or pacing."

horse's speed but it will heal leg injuries," said Dr. Gerald Wessner, a veterinarian who built the $80,000 pool on his 88-acre Bucks County farm and began swimming training a bit more than a year ago.

This swim club for horses isn't a fancy spa designed for the horse set's rest and recreation.

Wessner has spent most of his career curing horses of their ills, and there's really more work than play at his equine farm where rehabilitation and therapy beef up muscles, build lung capacity and increase cardio-vascular output needed for stamina in the drive for victory on the race course.

"Horses that are strong competitors can shed their ailments after 45 days' pool training, and then they can run to their potential," Wessner said.

"Horses, like any human athlete, can't win if they're not in top shape and swimming makes horse sense. It can be very important to get them into condition, and often there's no better way."

"When a horse swims he uses more muscles than when galloping or trotting or pacing. Actually, he swims and he works them hard on alternate days.

Handlers standing on a wooden ramp in the center of the pool hold ropes attached to the horse and guide them around in a circle. Sometimes if the horses appear lazy or too relaxed, the handlers spur them on with whips, much as jockeys do in a race.

"They have to swim hard, and steadily, if they are going to get anything out of it," Wessner said.

After the swim, the horses are walked on machines to dry their steaming bodies and tone the circulation.

"Most horses that run have some kind of ailment because any horse that puts out, that tries to win, is going to have a hurt somewhere in the legs," said Joe Graci III, a trainer and breeder who runs a horse farm in nearby Valley Forge.

"So you have to try to keep them in condition without hurting those legs more than necessary, and swimming is the answer."

"A horse that is racing every week should have at least four days of

CRMWD directors to hear Stacy reservoir status reports

BIG SPRING — Status reports on the Stacy reservoir project will highlight a meeting of directors of the Colorado River Municipal Water District at 10 a.m. March 13 at the district headquarters in Big Spring.

Arguments will be heard March 17 by Judge Herman Jones on a form of final judgment to be entered in 53rd District Court in Austin affirming the Stacy permit issued by the Texas Water Commission.

Other matters related to the project, including an application for a U.S. Corps of Engineers 404 permit, and interim steps leading toward construction will be discussed by the board.

The report of O.H. Ivie, general manager, will touch upon completion of work to ensure an additional 10 million gallons of water being available from Lake E.V. Spence for the west end of the district system this summer. Also on tap are several routine matters including a request from the Buffalo Trails Council of the Boy Scouts of America for a lease of land at Lake J.B. Thomas.

New swimming session to cast off at Alamo YMCA, spokesman says

A new swim session at Alamo YMCA is starting Monday, according to Guy Fish, director of health and physical education.

Classes will be designed for people ranging from 6 months through adult. Under the direction of Genie McCartney, Alamo Y's aquatic director, classes for babies 6 months through 3 years will be offered with the mothers and fathers in attendance. Classes for beginners, advanced beginners and pre-schoolers starting at age 3 are slated. For school-age children, classes will be offered starting with the non-swimmer and going up through the advanced level.

Registration for this second session will be from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. and 4:30 to 6:30 p.m. Friday and from 12:30 to 2 p.m. Saturday. There are still openings in the ladies beginner and advanced beginner classes. Fees for youth classes are $4 for Alamo Y members and $14 for non-members. Fees for adult swim classes are $8 for members and $18 for non-members.

Byrne to meet union leader

CHICAGO (AP) — Mayor Jane Byrne has agreed to a meeting that could be the first step toward resumption of bargaining and an end to the three-week Chicago firefighters strike, labor officials say.

William A. Lee, president of the Chicago Federation of Labor, announced Tuesday night at a federation meeting that the mayor agreed to meet today with Frank Palumbo, secretary-treasurer of the International Association of Fire Fighters.

A spokesman for the mayor could not confirm the meeting would take place. Mayor Byrne has refused to talk with striking firefighters since they rejected a temporary agreement worked out Feb. 22 by negotiating teams for the city and the strikers.

Lee, who received a standing ovation from the 750 persons attending the federation meeting, was optimistic about Palumbo's session with Mrs. Byrne. "I feel there is a strong possibility that as a result of the meeting, the mayor and the firemen of Chicago will be back at the bargaining table," Lee said.

No formal agenda for the meeting was set up, but Palumbo said he hoped he would be "able to urge the mayor back to the bargaining table and come up with an eventual agreement between the city and the union."

Michael A. Lass, international representative of the union, said Palumbo would ask the mayor to resume talks with the full bargaining team of the Fire Fighters Local 2, including himself and J. Dale Berry, the union attorney. Both men were excluded from a Feb. 22 meeting when the tem-

Entire Baylor Lariat news staff quits posts

WACO (AP) — News staffers have resigned their posts on the Baylor University campus newspaper to protest the firing of three student editors.

The entire news staff of 18 had resigned by Tuesday, leaving only advertising and production staffers.

The Baptist university's Board of Publications voted Monday to dismiss editors Jeff Barton, Cyndy Slovak and Barry Kolar. The board also suspended publication of the Baylor Lariat for the remainder of the week.

The firing culminated a three-week-long dispute between the editors and the administrators that began when Playboy magazine announced plans for a pictorial, "The Girls of the Southwest Conference."

University President Abner McCall threatened to expel any Baylor female who posed for the magazine, and the Lariat editors opposed him in print.

Associate journalism professor Don Williams, who also supported the editors, said he was told "to pack your bags and get out" when he arrived for classes Monday.

"I'm thoroughly insulted and revolted. I consider (the action) a slap in the face and a betrayal of the students," said Williams, who had submitted his resignation last week to be effective at the end of the current semester.

Board members refused to comment on the decisions.

Barton said he was disappointed in the board's decision to fire the editors.

"I thought the battle could be fought on moral grounds," said Barton. "I'm very disappointed in the university, and today, I'm embarrassed to say I'm a fifth-generation Baylorite."

U.S. may take four battleships, aircraft carrier out of mothballs

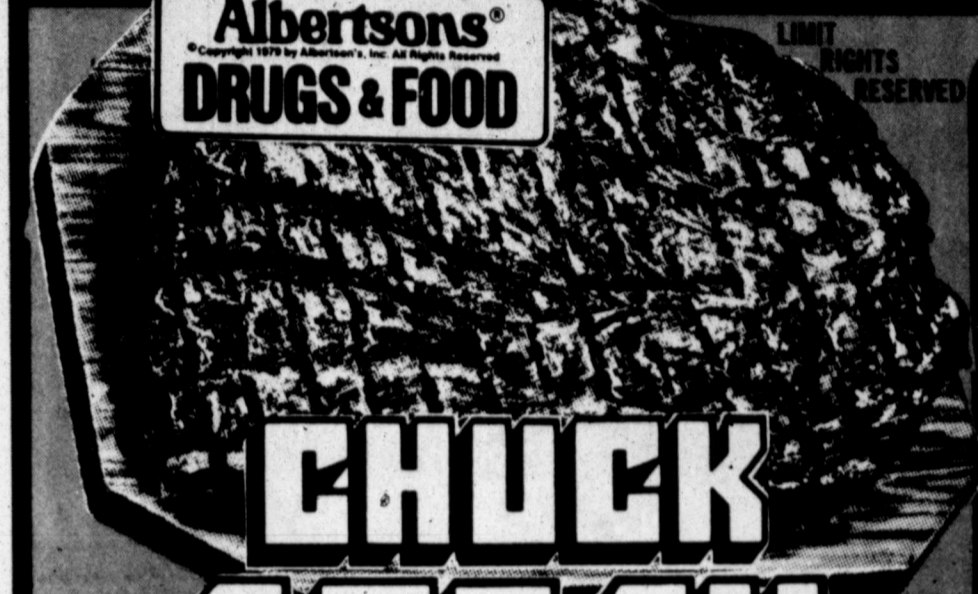

WASHINGTON (AP) — Four huge battleships built during World War II and later consigned to mothballs would go to sea again under a $2 billion proposal being considered by the Defense Department.

The Navy is proposing that the four 54,000-ton battlewagons and an old aircraft carrier be modernized as part of an effort to reinforce the thinly-stretched fleet.

"It's worth looking into," one top official said Tuesday. "There is a good deal of enthusiasm for it."

If approved, the plan would give the Navy four more powerful warships, armed with 16-inch guns and missiles, and an additional aircraft carrier to meet its growing responsibilities in the Indian Ocean and elsewhere.

Former 'Tarzan' Ron Ely will emcee pageant

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Former television Tarzan Ron Ely is going to succeed popular Bert Parks as emcee of the Miss America Pageant, sources say, but he won't be crowning his predecessor's trademark "There She Is" to tearful beauties.

The 42-year-old Ely, now host of "Face the Music," a syndicated TV game show, was to be named as the pageant's new master of ceremonies at a news conference today, the sources said.

Pageant chairman Albert A. Marks Jr., who fired Parks after 25 years as pageant host and took a heap of abuse for doing so, refused Tuesday to discuss the identity of the new emcee.

Sources close to the pageant that has launched the careers of such beauties as Phyllis George Brown and Bess Myerson said Ely will not sing the traditional theme song, and instead a befeud-up orchestra will play the tune as the winner is announced.

At 6-foot-4, Ely was the 14th Tarzan and the first actor to play the role on television, from 1966 until 1969. He did most of his own stunts for the program, but the jungleman's famous yell was the recorded voice of best-known movie Tarzan, Johnny Weissmuller.

Ely played Mike Madison in the CBS-TV series "Aquanuts," later called "Malibu Run," in 1961. He first appeared on television in "Father Knows Best" in the 1950s. He has also performed in several movies.

Born in Hereford, Tex., and a former oilfield roughneck, Ely now lives in Pacific Palisades, Calif.

Parks had no immediate comment, but his wife, Annette, said Tuesday, "We wish he has 25 years of lovely joy the way Bert did — but higher pay, of course."

Parks, who called his firing "a shabby trick," had claimed to have only a passing interest in the identity of his successor. At 65, he's enjoying the sun at his Hollywood, Fla., winter home and the publicity his dismissal triggered.

"I feel great, man. I've never felt better in my life and I've never worked harder in my life," Parks said in a telephone interview.

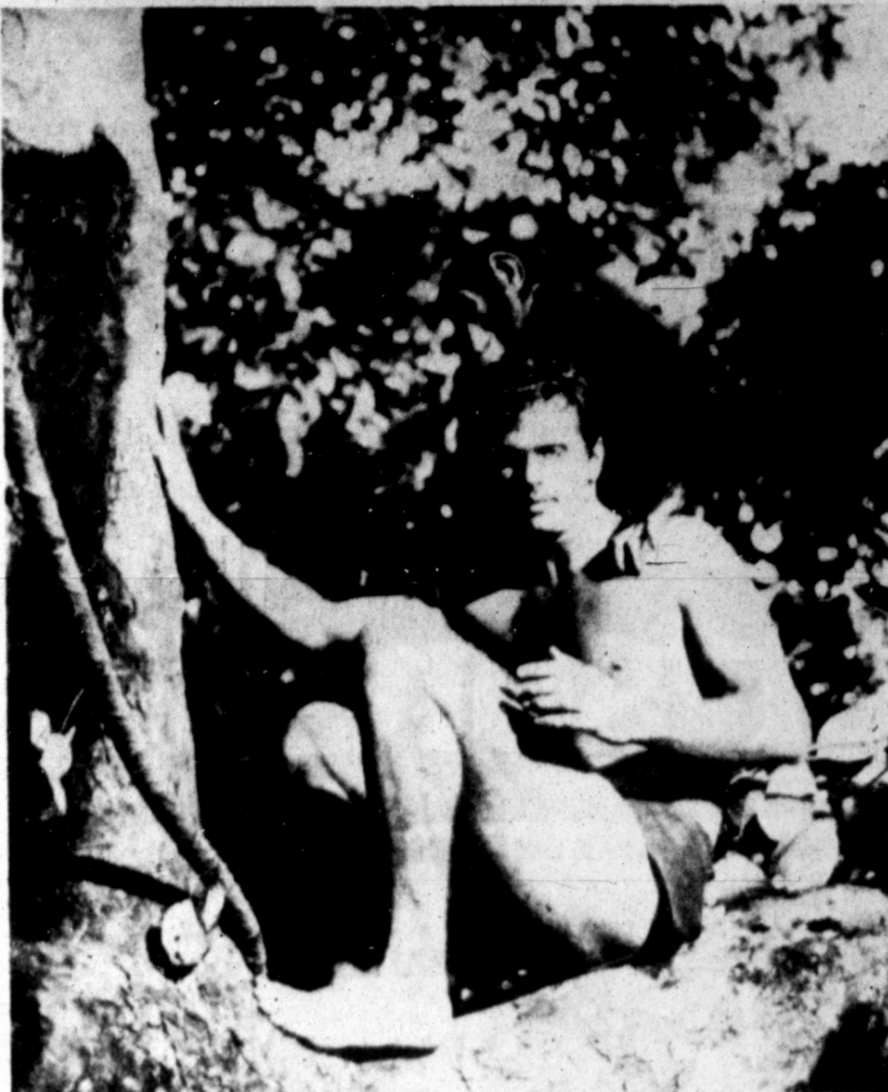

"Have you seen all the specials I've been doing? And it's going to get better and better."

Parks has appeared on "Love Boat," "WKRP in Cincinnati" and "The Peoples' Choice Awards" since his firing was revealed Jan. 2 and is also scheduled to appear on NBC's "Pink Lady" show and other specials.

Parks, 67, was let go because the 59-year-old pageant wanted a new image, Marks said. It was erroneously reported that the reason was age.

"Tonight Show" host Johnny Carson, however, took Parks' side and along with newspaper columnists and radio disc jockeys called for viewers to express outrage. More than 35,000 letters flooded the pageant's offices in January, but Marks held fast.

He had intended to name a successor for Parks by Feb. 1, but said some performers expressed little interest in the job, which paid Parks $18,500. It now promises to pay much more.

Sources in Hollywood and New York said Tuesday that actor Ron Ely, shown above with simian companion "Cheeta" in 1966 when he portrayed the character "Tarzan" on television, will be named master of ceremonies of the Miss America Pageant, succeeding Bert Parks. Ely is now host of a syndicated TV game show in Los Angeles. (AP Laserphoto)

Breach of U.S. budget stalls Carter draft registration plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's draft registration plan apparently is stalled in Congress even though Democratic leaders say they have rounded up enough votes to push it through the House.

The program ran into an unexpected obstacle Tuesday with the discovery that federal spending has breached the budget ceiling set by Congress for the current fiscal year — putting a freeze on new outlays.

The freeze seemingly blocks action on Carter's request for a supplemental appropriation to pay for cranking up the Selective Service system to register young men and women this summer.

The freeze "has closed the window to everything. At least that's what it looks like on the surface," said one congressional aide, who asked not to be identified.

However, he said, "You could get the rules waived. Obviously you can do anything in each body if you have the votes to do it."

Rep. Lawrence Coughlin, R-Pa., said Congress would have to revise the budget ceiling before acting on registration, and that could take weeks.

The latest development came on the eve of today's expected vote by the House Appropriations Committee on whether to give the administration the money it needs to register men. The meeting was put off, and a committee aide said, "We're falling back and regrouping."

Before the budget ceiling problem was announced, House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill said the administration and its allies had found enough votes to have the Appropriations Committee overturn a subcommittee's refusal to approve the registration money.

The subcommittee voted last week to spend only enough money for a standby registration system that would not be triggered until the president ordered a mobilization of new recruits in an emergency.

The subcommittee did not seriously consider the question of registering women, and O'Neill has said Congress would never approve it, anyway.

O'Neill said the full committee's vote on money to register men would be close, but that once the program got to the House floor, it would be passed by a substantial margin.

Dancer Fred Astaire to wed jockey Robyn Smith

NEW YORK (AP) — As in one of his movies where the dashing dancer marries the gorgeous girl, Fred Astaire says that after 26 years as a bachelor he will waltz down the aisle with jockey Robyn Smith.

The 80-year-old song and dance man and Miss Smith, 35, met in 1972 through their mutual interest in horses. At the time, she raced them and he raised them.

Astaire revealed his marriage plans in an interview with ABC-TV's Barbara Walters on Tuesday but said no date had been set.

The entertainer said the 45-year age difference between him and his betrothed "never occurs to me." He added, "I don't even think about it that way. It has nothing whatsoever to do with it."

When Astaire and Miss Smith met and became what he called, "very, very, very good friends," they had more than a mutual interest in horses in common.

Miss Smith had studied acting before she began her successful career as a jockey in 1969.

By 1973, the 5-foot-7, 104-pound Miss Smith was dubbed the world's leading female jockey, with five triumphs in 17 win, place or show finishes.

Astaire, who was married to Phyllis Potter in 1933, has two children from that marriage, Fred Jr. and Ava, a step-son Peter, and seven grandchildren. His wife died in 1954 at age 46 from lung cancer.

The ex-hooper hung up his dancing shoes in 1976, after one last duet with his good friend Gene Kelly in MGM's musical cavalcade "That's Entertainment, Part 2."

Astaire crooned romantic songs to some of Hollywood's loveliest leading ladies during his multi-decade career including, Ginger Rogers, Joan Crawford, Rita Hayworth, Joan Fontaine, Audrey Hepburn, Leslie Caron and Cyd Charisse.

International group warns unchecked competition threat to balanced world ecology

WASHINGTON (AP) — A conservation group representing 100 countries warned today that unrestrained competition for the world's resources is "undermining the very means by which all people can survive and flourish."

The International Union for Conservation of Nature and Natural Resources said its "World Conservation Strategy" was being announced simultaneously by leaders in at least 30 countries.

The program proposes adoption of dozens of specific policies by national governments and international institutions.

It says mankind's relationship with the environment "will continue to deteriorate until a new international economic order is achieved, a new environmental ethic adopted, human populations stabilize, and sustainable modes of development become the rule rather than the exception."

Its lengthy list of priority requirements for national and international action included: —Setting aside prime croplands for agriculture. —Management practices to protect the productivity of cropland, grazing land and forests. —Protection of fisheries. —Pollution control. —Protection of endangered species.

Rep. Wilson gains new base for views

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Texas, has gained a new platform for his generally hawkish views on defense by becoming a member of the powerful House appropriations subcommittee on defense.

Although there are no major defense installations in his largely rural East Texas district, the state is near the top of the list in defense contracting.

Wilson will be the only Texas member of the subcommittee. Subcommittee chairmanships were the price he paid to gain the slot in the appropriations committee realignment prompted by the resignation of Rep. Daniel Flood, D-Pa.

The vacancy was filled by Rep. Vic Fazio, D-Calif., last week, and Democratic members of the committee gathered Tuesday to decide subcommittee assignments.

Wilson gave up his chairmanship of the District of Columbia subcommittee. He also gave up his seniority on the foreign operations subcommittee, diminishing the possibility of ever becoming chairman.

"I lost all chance of becoming chairman," he said.

Now a member of three subcommittees, Wilson said the defense subcommittee's importance "in these troubled times" compensates for the loss of the chairmanship.

Wilson, a graduate of the U.S. Naval Academy, said he generally planned to support President Carter's defense proposals but would like to see the addition of the B-1 bomber and the neutron bomb.

Medical treatment for alcoholism in far future

HOUSTON (AP) — While saying progress has been made in recent years in combatting alcoholism, four research scientists say medical treatment for the disease is a long way off.

"Alcohol as a chemical and a drug interacts with the brain," Dr. John Littleton of Kings College in London said Tuesday. "What is it about alcohol that causes its abuse and addiction?"

Littleton and three other research specialists — Dr. Richard Deitch of the University of Colorado, Dr. Chris Melchior of the University of Illinois in Chicago and Dr. Virginia Davis of the Veteran's Administration Hospital in Houston are in Houston for a meeting of the American Society for Neurochemistry.

Deitch said more than nine million Americans are alcoholics and that the most effective methods thus far for treating the disease are organizations like Alcoholics Anonymous.

He said current research centers on why the brain responds as it does to alcohol and why some persons become addicted.

Melchior has been studying the effects of alcohol on body temperatures and how it makes animals go to sleep, and Davis has focused her attention on the breakdown of brain processes when alcohol is consumed.

DEAR ABBY

Telling off telephonies

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: This is a somewhat belated response to BILL IN LONG BEACH who griped because some "little $700-a-month-coffee-break-secretary" screened her boss's telephone calls. He had a point.

When I call an executive, I don't like being asked, "Who is calling?" This gives me the impression that the boss is "in" to some people, and "out" to others.

Too many secretaries assume an air of self-importance and demand to know, "What is the purpose of your call?"

The purpose of my call is none of her d... business!

I wonder how much business has been lost over the years because of some arrogant little snip who answers her boss's telephone and decides who is important enough to get through to the boss and who isn't. —I'M WITH BILL

DEAR WITH: Now let's hear from a secretary:

DEAR ABBY: I am a $540-a-month no coffee-breaks, no lunch-hour secretary to a busy executive who does not answer his own phone. I do. If he spent his days fielding calls from cut-rate office supply dealers who just got a dynamite deal on ballpoint pens that they can let us have at a price we wouldn't believe, or people who want to know our mailing address, or loan companies running credit checks on employees, or job-hunters asking if we have any openings, or solicitors selling tickets to the policeman's ball, or printers telling us our stationery is ready, and so on, ad infinitum, my boss wouldn't have time to run a business. I would then be out of a job, and so would all the other people who work for him. Want to support us on welfare?

It's my job to type his letters, keep his files in order, keep track of his appointments, screen his mail, pay his bills and remind him to send his grandmother a card on her birthday. But probably the most valuable service I perform is to handle people like you when he says "If Bill from Long Beach calls, tell him I'm out of town. I can't stand the guy!" — V.J. IN BOULDER

DEAR ABBY: Bill in Long Beach complained about haughty little secretaries who screen their boss's telephone calls. It's understandable that a busy executive needs some protection in that regard, but if it's done with finesse it's never offensive.

However, I have a more legitimate gripe; it's the big-shot who asks his secretary to get me on the phone.

I find it very irritating to pick up my phone and hear a secretary say, "Mr. Jones is calling you, please hold." Then I'm kept hanging on the line until Mr. Jones is free to talk to me!

I have a rule. When a secretary gets me on the phone to talk to her boss, if I don't hear HIS voice within five seconds, I hang up. When she calls again, I tell her that when she has her boss on the line to call me—and not until!—

BUSY ATTORNEY

DEAR BUSY: I'm sure you speak for many. (Including me.)

DEAR ABBY: I work with a girl who plans to be married soon. Today she admitted to me that although she really doesn't love the man, she and her mother think this may be her last chance, and she hopes to hook him before he gets out of the marrying mood.

She has four children by three previous marriages. Everyone at work says to keep quiet.

Abby, I don't want to see this man used or hurt, but I don't know him well enough to open my mouth.

I work with the woman, which could cause problems if I were to tip the man off and he repeated my warning.

Please suggest something useful.

Top model dies of cancer

NEW YORK (AP) — Wilhemina Cooper, top fashion model and head of her own world-renowned modeling agency, has died of lung cancer at the age of 40.

Mrs. Cooper, who headed the Wilhemina Model Agency Inc. here and in Hollywood, died Saturday at Greenwich Hospital in Greenwich, Conn., after suffering six weeks with cancer, agency spokeswoman Eileen Block said.

Born in Culeburg, the Netherlands, Mrs. Cooper began her modeling career in Chicago in 1958. During her nine years as a fashion model with Ford Models Inc., the world's largest modeling agency, Mrs. Cooper appeared on the covers of some 300 American and European magazines, a number still unsurpassed, according to Ms. Block.

At the pinnacle of her career in 1967, the 5-foot-11 brunette stopped modeling and opened her own agency. The West Coast branch opened its doors in 1978.

Mrs. Cooper's last photograph appeared on the cover of Fortune magazine on Dec. 3, 1979. She was first fashion model to appear solo on the business magazine's cover.

Mrs. Cooper and her family lived in Cos Cob, Conn. She is survived by her husband, Bruce Cooper, former executive producer of the Tonight Show; two children, and her mother.

Inventor says 'Heimlich Maneuver' may be applied to revive drowning victims

CINCINNATI (AP) — The inventor of the "Heimlich Maneuver" to relieve choking believes he has found another application for the technique — helping revive drowning victims.

"We found that the maneuver is effective in saving the life of a drowning victim by expelling water from the lungs," said Dr. Henry Heimlich, 60, professor of advanced clinical sciences at Xavier University.

"The chief fire surgeon in Washington, D.C., told me he had seen a man who was clinically dead and ... he did the maneuver on him," Heimlich said. "The water gushed out and the man recovered."

The maneuver credited with saving hundreds of lives resembles a bear hug administered from behind the victim. It is intended to force a sudden rush of air up the windpipe to dislodge food stuck in the throat.

Heimlich said the same principle helps force water from the lungs, allowing mouth-to-mouth or other forms of resuscitation to force air into the lungs.

"You can't get air to the part of the lungs where it's absorbed until you get the water out," he said. "Unquestionably we can prove this is what should be done; I've done a very thorough, scientific study."

Heimlich said there are five documented cases in which his maneuver has been used to revive drowning victims.

"Everybody appreciates its effectiveness" in relieving choking, he said, although the so-called back-slap method is still taught.

Heimlich plans to publish a scientific paper within a few months documenting the use of his maneuver in reviving drowning victims. Another paper will detail his success helping stroke victims and other disabled persons learn to swallow.

It occurred to him that people could forget how to swallow after he observed that a 14-year-old boy, who had been fed by a tube in his stomach for seven years, could not eat normally even after his damaged esophagus was repaired.

"So I went into the procedure that is taught to premature infants — suck their finger, so they get the feeling of sucking," Heimlich said. "Then we start them off with liquids, some of them with a nursing bottle, although the guy is 45."

Heimlich, who pioneered a technique of rebuilding the esophagus nearly 30 years ago, said his work with stroke patients, drowning victims and people who are choking is all related, even if it doesn't seem to be.

"I've been in swallowing since the '50s. It all came as a result of my work with swallowing," he said. "I'm a chest surgeon. It's all tied in there."

Woman doctor advises overweight girls

By JANET LOWE
Copley News Service

One of the most miserable things in the world to be an overweight teenage girl. The next most miserable thing to be is the mother of an overweight teen-age girl.

As a mother, you don't have much chance of winning. If you ignore her weight problem you've avoided your responsibility as a parent. If you try to do something about it, you're interfering with her maturation process and are preventing her from taking responsibility for her own destiny.

But there is hope. "The Woman Doctor's Diet for Teen-age Girls" by Barbara Edelstein, M.D., offers practical and honest advice for the teenager, and some hints for the family members.

The statistics alone bring mixed feelings. "Fifteen percent of all teenagers in this country — between five million and six million — are overweight," writes Edelstein. "I would bet that about 80 percent of them are female."

How did the problem get to be so big? How can an unhappy, chunky teen-ager make the problem go away and how can her family help her?

The greatest value of Edelstein's book is its straightforward message. She lays the painful facts right out on the table.

"Boys can grow out of baby fat. Girls do not." So much for the old she'll-grow-out-of-it theory. "Boys can eat twice as much food as girls, burn off twice as much energy doing the same things, and lose weight twice as quickly." Now that isn't fair. But it is reality, and a girl might as well face it and deal with her own biological situation.

"Boys can get away with being fat. Girls cannot." This idea is one that may change, but probably not anytime soon. There's always a place on the football team for the big bruiser with hamhocks for legs. He can even be a hero.

Edelstein is the first to admit that such honesty is sometimes painful for the girl and her parents. She tells of seeing a patient who had gained 25 pounds and only wanted to get back to normal. Normal meant being able to drink soft drinks and eat chocolate bon-bons at movies like the other kids.

When she told the girl that she was fat, and had the potential to get fatter, that there were no miracle diets and no permanent cures, and that if she wanted to be thin she would have to change her habits for the rest of her life, the girl burst into tears.

She went home and cried for days, much to the consternation of her parents.

If there is one fault to the book, and it seems to be a helpful book for teen-age girls, it is Edelstein's attitude about mothers. Apparently in her practice she's never seen a mother who knows much about nutrition, who doesn't try to sabotage her daughter's weight loss, and who can deal with negative emotions.

Mothers may not be perfect people, but I've known a good many of them who have conquered their own excess weight battle and are genuinely interested in helping their girl children do the same. It seems both unfair and unhealthy to encourage teen-agers to once again make their mothers the scapegoat for their problems.

Even so, "The Woman Doctor's Diet for Teen-Age Girls" is thorough, factual and realistic about the issues of women and body weight.

'The Shah' is changing names

MANHATTAN BEACH, Calif. (AP)

The Shah, a local restaurant serving food of Afghanistan, Iran and other areas of ancient Persia has changed its name to The Silk Route.

The Silk Route is the route Marco Polo took through Persia on his way from Italy to China in the 13th century.

Owner Anwar Afzali, a native of Afghanistan, while reluctant to say the recent Iranian crisis caused the name change, remarked:

"The Shah's just not a good name any more."

Midland's Postal Alert Protection System designed to aid individuals living alone

Family members of singles living alone, senior citizens and handicapped individuals should feel more secure with the new Postal Alert Protection System in Midland.

This service is free and interested individuals should call Senior Services at the First Christian Church at 682-7577 or 682-1451.

Starting March 10, the program, which is a combined effort of the Senior Services, and the postal service, involves a daily check of the participants as the postal letter carriers deliver their routes.

This is designed to help those who live alone and who might have fallen, had a stroke, developed an illness or had property disturbances that would cause unusual clues on the outside, such as build-up of newspapers on the lawn, accumulated mail, a broken window, etc.

If the letter carrier has reason to believe that the occupant is physically incapacitated or has had a property disturbance, he notifies his supervisor or Senior Services who in turn notifies the designated individual on the Postal Alert File.

Persons who are on the program must fill out information sheets regarding their name, address, phone number and similar information on relatives, neighbors and close friends. The sheet will be complete then after a personal interview of the participant.

A Postal Alert sticker will be placed on the inside of the participant's mail box and this will alert the letter carrier of the individual's participation.

Four year plague started in Italy

Copley News Service

Did you know that in the 14th century bubonic plague devastated Europe for four years?

The deadly disease is caused by the bacterium Yersinia pestis. Rodents carried the disease called the "black death." It was so called because of blackened blood hemorrhages under the skin, in which the disease takes the form of buboes (swollen glands).

Bubonic plague first broke out in Sicily and then spread inland. In Western Europe alone, 25 million people died and 20,000 villages were decimated. Europe's population was cut by one-fourth. Plague was a word of panic and fear, because when the disease began in any area, it often spread so rapidly, became epidemic and killed so many at once.

New drug may cure herpes

BOSTON (AP) — Scientists say they are ready to test a new drug on humans that they believe will kill a virus which causes everything from cold sores to an incurable venereal disease that has reached epidemic levels and can lead to cancer.

Scientists hope acycloguanosine, also known as acyclovir, will cure diseases caused by the ever-present herpes viruses. They are asking for 100 volunteers with cold sores to volunteer for the tests.

"We want 100 patients, anyone over 18 who has a cold sore that has had no treatment," said Dr. Clyde Crumpacker of Beth Israel Hospital. "We'd like to see them within 24 hours of onset."

He said positive results could be a significant medical breakthrough because a substantial percentage of the population carries herpes in the dormant stage. The virus causes several disabling, very painful diseases that sometimes lead to cancer.

Crumpacker said there are five types of herpes viruses: Herpes Simplex I, which causes cold sores and can lead to an often-fatal type of encephalitis; Herpes Simplex II, known as genital herpes, which can cause cancer of the cervix and prostate gland; Varicella zoster, which causes chicken pox and shingles; Epstein-Barr virus, which causes infectious mononucleosis; and Cytomegalovirus, which causes a disease similar to mononucleosis responsible for deformities, brain damage and mental retardation in newborns.

"No other virus is linked so closely with cancer," Crumpacker said. Researchers do not know if the new drug will be effective with all five herpes viruses.

Fifty of the patients will be given the drug, and 50 will be used as a control group and given a placebo, or ointment not containing the drug. Neither the patients, nor the doctors and nurses will know who receives the drug.

After the test, the coded results will be sent to the National Institutes of Health in Bethesda, Md.

The secrecy is important, Crumpacker said, to isolate the "placebo effect," which occurs sometimes when patients recover just on the belief they have received medication.

The drug was discovered by an American subsidiary of Burroughs-Wellcome.

Mennonite families still await fulfillment of family farm dreams

SEMINOLE, Texas (AP) — Three years after they bought land here, hoping to fulfill their dream of a family farming community, 140 Mennonite families are still waiting for someone to tell them where they stand in this country.

The rural-oriented Mennonites came to this area of the Texas Panhandle from Mexico, moving families to a 6,400-acre ranch they planned to farm. Revenue from their crops were to pay off the annual $250,000 payments.

But three years, $2 million dollars and hundreds of heartaches later, the Mennonites are without land, unable to farm, unable to visit family and friends outside the United States and still unsure of their fate.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, who championed the Mennonites' cause last year, said a bill granting them permanent alien status passed the Senate last summer.

Since August, it has been caught in a sub-committee of the House Judiciary Committee.

A spokesman in the office of Rep. Elizabeth Holtzman, D-NY, and chairman of the sub-committee, said the congressman probably will call a special hearing on the bill "sometime this spring."

But a spokesman at the Mennonite Central Committee office in Pennsylvania, said this week they hope the bill is "on the President's desk by the end of the month."

"None of us ever imagined anything like this would happen," said Peter Bergen, the soft-spoken unofficial leader of the Seminole colony. "We knew there were rules to follow, but it seems like everytime we try to help ourselves, there are only more and more rules to follow. And it seems like everything we do is wrong."

Soon after the Mennonites purchased the farm, they discovered they had only bought water rights to 2,340 acres — less than a third of the purchased land. Without irrigation, the crops did not produce enough money to make the annual payments, and the Mennonites were forced to give up the land.

The previous owner bought it back during an auction, and the Mennonites became displaced farmers.

Most of the 630 Mennonites now work as carpenters, welders or mechanics in Seminole and the surrounding towns.

Under an arrangement between Bentsen and Leonel Castillo, then-head of the Immigration and Naturalization Service, they are temporarily free from prosecution as illegal aliens, even though their temporary visas have expired. If Bentsen's bill passes in the House and is approved by President Carter, the Mennonites would be free to return to farming and to travel between the United States, Canada and Mexico, where many other Mennonites have settled.

Now, they are caught in a bureaucratic limbo, unable to travel, farm, hold an unskilled job, or any job not approved by the U.S. Labor Department.

Police arrest park's employee in seven-year-old kidnapping case

MERCED, Calif. (AP) — A Yosemite National Park lodge janitor was booked today for investigation of kidnapping in the seven-year abduction of Steve Stayner, but police said they have no evidence linking him to the kidnapping of a second boy found with the teen-ager.

Ervin Edward Murphy, 38, night janitor in Yosemite Lodge, was arrested Tuesday and returned to Merced where he was jailed in lieu of $5,000 bail.

Stayner, who was kidnapped on the way to school in Merced in 1972, walked into the Ukiah Police Department on Saturday with 5-year-old Timmy White, who was kidnapped Feb. 14 while walking to school in Ukiah.

Ex-convict Kenneth Parnell, the quiet ex-convict once described by a psychiatrist as a "sexual psychopath," pleaded innocent Tuesday to charges of kidnapping Timmy. District Attorney Pat Hallford said he would be booked in Merced for kidnapping and child stealing in the Stayner case.

"At this point from all indications it appears as though they (Murphy and Parnell) haven't had any contact since the abduction in 1972," said Merced Police Lt. Bill Bailey.

Stayner told police someone named "Murray or Murphy" was involved in his abduction, the officer said, and police had a photograph of the suspect. Bailey said Murphy revealed during interviews with police that he had once worked with Parnell at the lodge.

Hallford said the statute of limitations on kidnappings is only three years and he was unsure if courts would permit a kidnapping trial in the Stayner case. As a precaution, Hallford said he would file additional charges of child stealing and concealment, which he believes is a continuing offense.

Stayner lived with Parnell during a seven-year odyssey that ended Saturday night when Stayner and the White boy hitchhiked 40 miles from Parnell's dilapidated mountain shack to the Ukiah police department.

White also contended a second man took part in his kidnapping as he walked to his babysitter's house after school Feb. 14. Police said they planned to hypnotize the youth in a bid to verify his story.

No sooner had Parnell pleaded innocent Tuesday in Ukiah Justice Court to the kidnapping of White than his attorney said he would move to close a preliminary hearing and request a change of venue.

"I am worried about the pretrial publicity this case has generated," Mendocino County Public Defender Scott LeStrange told a crowd of reporters outside the tiny courtroom. LeStrange said Parnell probably could not get a fair trial in Ukiah because the boy he allegedly abducted has become "a very popular young man. Timothy White is a household word."

The preliminary hearing in the White case was set for March 13.

Ukiah Justice Court Judge James W. Luther imposed a gag order barring attorneys, investigators and court officers from discussing the case with the media.

Stayner has been besieged with movie and tabloid newspaper offers for the exclusive rights to his story and Delbert Stayner, the boy's father, said the family has hired a lawyer to represent the family in negotiations.

Study casts new doubts on balanced budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new congressional study casts doubt on whether President Carter can balance the 1981 budget even if he recommends $20 billion in cuts, an amount currently under review.

Alice Rivlin, director of the Congressional Budget Office, testified today that with no cuts, the $16 billion projected deficit in the president's 1981 budget could balloon to more than $25 billion.

That would mean that even with $20 billion in new reductions the president still could fall short of his goal of a balanced budget in fiscal 1981, which starts Oct. 1.

In prepared testimony, Ms. Rivlin told the Senate Budget Committee the deeper deficit likely would result from higher interest on the public debt, increased spending for benefits tied to inflation, higher fuel costs for defense and increased military pay.

The revised CBO economic forecast also projected higher inflation than an earlier review issued in January. The new estimate is for prices to rise 11.6 percent in 1980 and 9.9 percent in 1981.

However, Ms. Rivlin said, "CBO still does not expect a deep recession in 1980."

The soaring military fuel costs Ms. Rivlin referred to are reflected in what Pentagon sources say is the need to spend $3 billion more on fuel this year than previously estimated.

The unanticipated increase fuel cost is reported to be the major factor in Pentagon plans to ask for permission to spend some $10 billion more than the $127.4 billion originally budgeted for the Defense Department this year and to ask for more than Carter has proposed for 1981.

English brewery worker wins pool twice, but payoff differs this time

BURTON ON TRENT, England (AP) — Brewery worker David Preston, who won a record $2,146,216 on the British soccer pools last week, learned today he had won again. This time it was less — $2,022.

Preston, 47, came to London last Wednesday to collect his double jackpot win from the rival pools companies Littlewoods and Vernons. He staked $14.17 on his pools coupon forecasting the result of British soccer games the previous Saturday and got more right than any other gambler.

But this time he decided to stay at home in this Midlands brewery town and let Littlewoods mail him his latest winnings. It is the third time he has won on the soccer pools. Ten years ago he won $22,500.

The previous biggest pools winner was Irene Powell, 20, a south Wales hairdresser. She won $1,985,688 last March.

Invitation list reads like country 'Who's Who'

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The Who's Who of country music went to the movies to celebrate the opening of Loretta Lynn's life story "Coal Miner's Daughter."

The film, based on Miss Lynn's autobiography, opens Friday around the country. But Tuesday night it was an invitation-only gala at the Belle Meade Theater.

Among the 900 on the guest list were country music entertainers Minnie Pearl, Ernest Tubbs, Tom T. Hall, Hank Snow and Faron Young.

Also on hand were Sissy Spacek, who portrays Miss Lynn in the movie; Tommy Lee Jones, who plays her husband; Phyllis Boyens, who plays her mother, and Levon Helm, who plays her father.

The film opens with Miss Lynn as a 13-year-old bride and impoverished coal miner's daughter in Kentucky and runs through her country music career in the early 1970s.

NEW YORK (AP) — "Ladies and gentlemen, the winner and heavyweight champion for the fourth time — Muuu-haaa-maaaad Allll-eeee," the 38-year-old champ says over the phone from his Pennsylvania training camp.

Well, not quite yet. But the three-time heavyweight champion, out of retirement again, is trying to arrange a bout with 24-year-old Big John Tate, the World Boxing Association champion.

"He who is creative enough to take risks will accomplish anything on life," said Ali, who's ego is already in fighting trim.

"I'm trying to tell you something. I'm going to shock the world. Muhammad Ali is a four-time world champion. People can't imagine how great it is. I'm in a whole new world," he says.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Singer-instrumentalist Charlie Daniels, nursing a broken arm and two fractured fingers, says he'll be playing his fiddle and guitar again in another month or so.

"I'm mendin'," Daniels said Tuesday. "I'm not gonna come back 100 percent — I'm gonna come back 110 percent. This will make me a better musician."

He was injured Jan. 29 when his sleeve got caught in a hydraulic post-hole auger on his farm east of Nashville.

He said his doctor told him Monday he'd be playing "in a month or so."

Daniels and his band won a Grammy award last week for the 1979 hit song, "The Devil Went Down to Georgia."

LONDON (AP) — The new Archbishop of Canterbury, Robert Runcie, will go to Africa in May for his first foreign visit as spiritual leader of the Church of England and head of the world's 65 million Anglicans.

"The trip is for the inauguration of a new Anglican province of Burundi, Rwanda and Zaire on May 11," the primate's press secretary, John Miles, said Tuesday.

He said the new, French-speaking province was formed by the division of the present province of Uganda, Rwanda, Burundi and Boga-Zaire, where baptized Anglican membership soared from 1.3 million to 2.1 million between 1965-75.

Arctic air spreads into Montana

By The Associated Press

A huge mass of frigid arctic air that produced blizzards in the mid-Mississippi Valley has spilled over the Continental Divide, dipping temperatures in western Montana this morning to 14 below zero.

Strong northeast winds funneled through the canyons and picked up as much as seven inches of snow from the valley floors, producing blowing and drifting in the Missoula and Bitterroot Valleys, the National Weather Service reported.

Showers and thunderstorms spread today from the lower Mississippi Valley across the Ohio and Tennessee river valleys to the mid-Atlantic states.

A band of snow stretched from northeast Missouri and eastern Iowa across southeast Minnesota, northern Illinois and much of Wisconsin to western and northern lower Michigan. Snow fell in parts of the northern and central Rockies. Showers and thundershowers spread inland from the Oregon and northern California coasts, with snow in the higher elevations.

Snow was forecast from the Ohio Valley and the central Great Lakes to New England while rain and thundershowers were expected from the Tennessee Valley and the Southeast along the central and southern Atlantic Coast.

Showers were forecast for the West Coast into the central Plateau, with snow in the higher elevations.

Temperatures around the nation at 2 a.m. EST ranged from 14 below zero in Cutbank, Mont., to 69 at the Key West Naval Air Station in Florida.

Some other reports:

Eastern U.S. — Atlanta 48 rain, Boston 34 partly cloudy, Cincinnati 41 rain, Cleveland 35 rain, Detroit 33 snow, Miami 66 cloudy, New York 36 cloudy, Philadelphia 40 rain, Pittsburgh 33 rain, Washington 41 rain.

Citrus growers to 'take stock,' assess damage to orange crop

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — In the coming weeks, Florida growers will be taking careful stock of citrus crops to assess freeze damage to the $2 billion industry that is the nation's supplier of orange juice.

Each year the state harvests about 18 billion pounds of oranges and turns 90 percent of it into juice to stock grocery shelves across the country with concentrate, canned or ready-to-pour orange juice.

When temperatures fall below freezing as they did this week in the state's central agricultural belt, perishable fruit maturing on trees can be damaged. Tiny juice sacks burst, lessening the juice yield if, for instance, the mercury dips below 26 degrees for four hours.

"The juice yield will be down some, but we don't know by how much yet. We know we'll have some loss," says Earl Wells, spokesman for Florida Citrus Mutual, the state's big grower cooperative.

When the product is in shorter supply, and consumer demand remains steady, prices go up.

Contracts for future delivery of orange juice concentrate prices in New York commodity trading jumped 5 cents Tuesday for the second straight day to 95 1/2 cents per pound.

But industry officials say it's too soon yet to determine what the effect of the 20 degree temperature readings Sunday and Monday will have on Florida prices.

"I can't see any immediate price increase," Wells says. "But within six weeks or so there may have to be a price adjustment."

The last time a hard freeze smacked the flat central Florida citrus belt was in January 1977, and it claimed 30 percent of the crop left on the trees.

Prices more than doubled in the aftermath. Before the 1977 freeze, a dozen six-ounce cans of frozen orange juice sold for $1.60 wholesale. After the big freeze, the price climbed to $3.55 a dozen.

Wells says the $1.60 was a depressed price. "Growers were losing their shirts. Since then, the price has stayed at $3.55," he said.

Eight or nine oranges are squeezed into a little six-ounce cap of concentrate, which fills a 24-ounce pitcher when diluted. At the supermarket a can sells from 35 cents to 38 cents for non-advertised brands and up to 50 cents for name brands.

This year's September-through-July harvest prediction is for 200 million 90-pound boxes of oranges — four or five basic types of oranges plus specialties or hybrids such as tangerines, temples or tangelos.

The current freeze hit the lush groves midway through the peak citrus period while 84 million Valencia oranges were still on the trees. Those are the staple of concentrate. It is the Valencia orange that gives the breakfast drink its rich color and taste.

Floridians share theories on why they are so cold

By DAN SEWELL

MIAMI (AP) — Floridians bracing against a rare blast of arctic air have been shaking the mothballs out of winter clothes and dusting the cobwebs off pet theories on why they're so cold when the weather's really not.

A Canadian cold front this week sent area thermometers dipping as low as 32 degrees — the first freezing-level temperatures here since January 1977. While that won't impress anyone north of the Mason-Dixon line, it nearly constitutes a state of emergency in what they call the "Fun and Sun Capital."

People here bristle when you suggest they're less hardy than the rest of the nation. Some claim a person's blood thins after a few years of tropical temperatures.

"Bunk," say biologists.

Another theory is that the ocean adds a moist chill to the air, making 30 degrees on Miami Beach much colder than 30 degrees in Columbus, Ohio.

"That's not true," said Allen Cummings, a National Weather Service forecaster. "Thirty degrees is 30 degrees wherever you are. Actually, the ocean temperature stays about the same, so it should be warmer, if anything."

Meteorologists got strange telephone calls during the cold snap. Some people swore they saw snow. Some were alarmed when cold air hitting warm water caused billows of steam to rise from the Atlantic Ocean.

Why do South Floridians act like this?

"You've heard the saying that being cold is a state of mind, and people here aren't used to getting into this state of mind," said a University of Miami psychologist.

"I think what made it worse this time is that it's so late in the year. Over the weekend it was what, in the 70s? I was out sailing Friday and looking at girls in bikinis. I think people were in more of a spring state of mind," added the psychologist, who didn't want to be identified.

Record power use recorded

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Floridians used record amounts of electricity during this week's two-day cold snap, putting the state in danger of scattered blackouts, according to a Public Service Commission official.

Joe Jenkins, electrical engineering supervisor for the PSC, said Tuesday that the Florida peninsula reached a new record for electrical usage in the morning hours of Monday and Tuesday when temperatures dropped below freezing. He had no usage statistics from the Panhandle.

Jenkins said 19,406 megawatts of electricity were used between 7 a.m. and 10 a.m. both days — close to the state's maximum capability of 20,206.

Mondale calls for unity among Texas Demos

By LEE JONES

AUSTIN, (AP) — Vice President Walter Mondale preached Democratic party unity to Texas labor leaders Tuesday, saying the alternative could be a Republican in the White House in 1981.

Mondale appeared at the Texas AFL-CIO's Committee on Political Education (COPE) convention, many of whose delegates are supporters of Sen. Edward Kennedy.

"Experience is very, very important. If you have a president who is honest, with good values, who is able, who is disciplined, who is caring and compassionate, who has got the courage to do what he thinks is right even though it might be unpopular, keep him there," Mondale said.

The more than 1,200 COPE delegates were to endorse candidates this afternoon for the Texas Railroad Commission, State Supreme Court and Texas Court of Criminal Appeals.

While no endorsement of a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination was expected, many of the unionists will be active in the precinct conventions that will shape the Texas delegation to the party's national convention this summer.

Mondale said dissident Democrats helped elect Richard Nixon in 1968 by turning their backs on Hubert Humphrey after that year's bitter convention in Chicago.

"Let us not make the mistake again of tearing the party apart and then wake up the next day sorry because we didn't keep a unified movement," he said.

Mondale said Carter will sign a bill, if passed, allowing pickets from a single union to close a construction site and would veto any attempt to repeal prevailing wage requirements for federal projects. He said the administration remains committed to a bill protecting labor's right to organize.

"If I have one dream, it is that we will get that bill passed so the workers are protected in their rights," Mondale said.

Railroad Commission candidate Jim Hightower received the warmest reception of any statewide politician appearing before the convention. Unionists cheered and waved placards bearing Hightower's picture.

Autopsy planned in whale's death

MIAMI (AP) — He had it all — a big act, a home in Miami, an adoring public, thousands of fans cheering when he flashed his toothy grin.

But suddenly Tuesday, it was all over. Hugo the killer whale was found floating belly up in his tank at a Miami tourist attraction, dead from undetermined causes.

His 23-foot, five-ton carcass was hoisted onto a flatbed truck for an autopsy and burial at undisclosed locations.

"Probably no one knew him better than I did," said Miami Seaquarium manager Warren Zeiller. "This is always inevitable with all life forms, but it hits especially hard when you've loved an animal that long."

"He was bright, bold and aggressive," Zeiller said. "He truly had a mind of his own. He was quite a guy. He was like a member of the family."

Hugo, who was about 2 years old when he was captured off the Pacific coast of Canada in 1967, may have lived longer in captivity than any other killer whale, Zeiller said. The species is thought to have a life span of up to 65 years in its native Arctic waters.

Patty Hearst's attorney says Bailey had conflict

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Patricia Hearst Shaw's attorney will attempt to overturn her bank robbery conviction next Monday in an appeal involving her former attorney, F. Lee Bailey.

Attorney George Martinez indicated Tuesday he plans to argue that U.S. District Court Judge William Orrick erred by refusing to hold a hearing on Mrs. Shaw's claim that Bailey had an alleged "impermissible and disabling conflict of interest" while representing her.

Martinez alleged in an appeal filed in 1978 that Bailey violated conflict of interest rules by signing a contract during the trial to write a book about it. The appeal claimed he got a $70,000 advance and stood to receive more than $225,000 on the book.

Mrs. Shaw, now a San Mateo housewife married to a San Francisco police officer, was released from the federal prison facility at nearby Pleasanton on Feb. 1, 1979 after President Carter pardoned her.

The newspaper heiress was convicted March 20, 1976, and was sentenced to seven years in prison, although she did not begin her sentence until May 15, 1978.

Hearst — was kidnapped from her Berkeley apartment on Feb. 4, 1974 by members of the terrorist Symbionese Liberation Army. She was convicted of robbing a San Francisco Bank on April 15, 1974 with other SLA members.

Martinez also alleges that the trial court was wrong to rule that his client was not denied effective counsel when she waived her rights under the Fifth Amendment and when there was no investigation of claims that she was forced to take drugs just before the robbery.

Further, Martinez claims that pre-trial publicity damaged her chances for a fair trial and that using tapes made of jail conversations violated due process and equal protection sections of the constitution.

vanced with ease. The Highlanders from Waco whipped Frank Phillips, 66-53, while MC's Chaparrals toyed with Ranger Junior College, 93-70.

McLennan had the day's only close call, nipping Odessa College, which had led most of the way, 69-68 on Tony Moore's 11-foot jumper as the time ran out.

However, it was Western Texas which staged the day's most awesome demonstration, coming at Amarillo College, winner of playoff games Sunday and Monday to advance this far, in lightning quick waves and it all may have been sparked by a 55-point performance by AC's Victor Mitchell against Hill College the night before.

COACH NOLAN Richardson noted before the game that Mitchell had scored 22 and 19 points against his Westerners during regular season games, but the guy who had given them the most trouble was David Bradley.

In any case, he wasn't taking any chances, applying a suffocating full court press from the opening tipoff that caused four turnovers and an 8-0 lead in the first minute of play. And if Richardson had been Red Auerbach, he'd have been lighting up his cigar, because it was obvious no one could stay with the Westerners this night.

"I think we were a little tired after games the previous two nights," said AC Coach Jim Calvin, still dazed by the fury of the WTC onslaught, "but I don't think it would have made that much difference the way they played."

Employing two platoons the first half and with "give me two good minutes" a turn encouragement from Richardson, WTC was ahead 32-14 nine minutes into the half and led 36-18 when the relays of fresh troops really began to take their toll with WTC running off 17 points to two to take a 53-20 lead. By halftime, it was 73-35.

The pace was so furious that midway through the second half Len Shortnacy, one of the officials, called time. Both teams gaped at one another and then at their benches. The coaches gathered around Shortnacy, gulping ice at the scorer's table. "Who called time?" they demanded almost in unison. "I did," puffed Shortnacy. "It's a TV timeout. I need one."

MITCHELL HAD another big night with 42 points, but they were drowned in the Western Texas deluge.

Phil Spradling took 12 field shots before recording his only miss to lead WTC with 24 points as the Westerners made 51 of 82 field shots. What's more remarkable, the first unit was 32 of 40 attempts.

Cooke, now 25-7, trailed 44-35 at half and didn't pull even with OC until James Helmich's 15-foot jumper gave the Highlanders a 67-66 lead with 0:18 left. OC came back to reclaim the lead 68-67 on a 10-footer by Kevin Maddox with eight seconds left.

Cooke threw the ball in and immediately called time with seven seconds remaining. "We wanted to work a shot off the double screen, but didn't

Women's softball sets meeting on Thursday

Women who want to participate for a Midland Softball Association team this spring or summer are urged attend Thursday night's organizational meeting at 7 at the Pioneer Natural Gas Flame Room.

get the one we wanted. But we had the option of a shot from both sides and Tony is a great shot and made it," explained Coach Jim Voight.

"My only reservation about Tony was that he was coming off the bench and it's hard to come into a game cold and make a shot like that."

Voight felt Odessa may have gone into its delay game a little early. "I think it robbed them of some momentum. But it's hard to second guess. If it works, your a genius, if it doesn't..."

MIDLAND COLLEGE, 26-5, jumped out to a 46-26 halftime lead over Ranger, a team it had beaten twice during the regular season, and nailed it down after Ranger had crept back to trail 67-55 with a little over six minutes left.

With the score 73-59, Robert Tate hit three baskets and Kevin Willingham another as the Chaparrals sprinted for the tape. Chucky McGill led MC with 18 points while Tate and Charles Johnson had 14 each and Willingham scored 11. Rodney Parker scored 23 for Ranger.

Frank Phillips gave McLennan, 6-9, 6-10, and 6-7 across its front line, a run for a half, trailing 35-33 at intermission, but with the score 43 all, the Highlanders, 27-5, outscored the Plainsmen 18-6 to sew it up. Lee Anthony led McLennan with 16 while Charles Jones and Chuck Hall had 13 each. Curtis Adams scored 16 for Frank Phillips.

Bum Phillips always has a direct answer

Bum Phillips' reputation as the relaxed, easy-going trail boss of the meanest mavericks this side of the Sabine is enhanced, perhaps, by that wide brimmed cowboy hat that has become his trademark.

He had it with him when he showed up for a press conference in a secluded corner of the High Sky restaurant at Terminal Wednesday morning. And he was carrying it in his hand, since he was taught never to wear a hat indoors, not even in the Astrodome.

BUT BUM may have given himself away. Instead of the Columbian blue of the Houston Oilers, he was wearing a fire-engine bright Red Adair windbreaker with "Bum" stitched over the heart, which may mean he's looking for tips on how to tame the Pittsburgh Steelers any place he can find them, even from the famed oil-well fire-fighter.

Otherwise, there's no difference from the just-plain-folks coach who toiled so successfully for so many years in relative obscurity as a high school coach in the Panhandle and the Bum Phillips who coaches an NFL contender. Ask a direct question and you get a direct answer.

For example, on the most controversial play of the NFL season, the disallowed touchdown pass to Mike Renfro in the playoff game against the Steelers, he admitted he still has some strong views on the decision that Renfro was juggling the ball when he went out of bounds. "I haven't changed my opinion. I've just been told to keep it to myself."

However, Bum adds that there was no guarantee that the Oilers would have won the game, "any more than there was any guarantee that the Steelers would have scored against us if the onside kickoff call that went against them in the game before had been called the other way."

Although many contend the Renfro decision is the strongest argument yet for the employment of instant replay to settle controversial calls by officials, Bum isn't among them.

"I wouldn't want to see it. It would beat in the fourth quarter. They aren't the type team you can let get out ahead of you early. If they do, you'll get killed."

As for the comparison of his "lay back, relaxed" style of coaching as compared to the Dallas Cowboys' bank of impersonal computers, Bum observed, "Different people run their organization in different ways. I happen to believe you can do it my way and I've been doing it that way a long time. Obviously, Tom Landry feels take away the human element involved. There is more to football than winning. You have to learn to live with the other guy's mistakes, as well as your own. If the lessons learned in football aren't valuable, there's no point to the game. You don't give up because one decision goes against you."

HOWEVER, for the playoff games, the Oilers' coach would like to see the same officiating teams kept intact rather picking individuals officials from various teams to work the post season games.

"If a crew is good enough to handle the conference championship game, it should be good enough to work together in the playoffs as a unit."

Phillips thinks it would improve the overall caliber of officiating. "They would live with their own records. They would work better together and assume overlapping responsibilities for calls if they knew they were being graded as a team."

Phillips stamped out talk that the Oilers might acquiesce to reported Dan Pastorini requests for a trade after the 1979 season.

"In the first place, it's not up to him. It's up to the club. No one can trade Dan Pastorini except me and if he were traded it would have to be because we'd feel we'd come out all right in such a trade."

TYPICALLY, Bum shouldered the blame for the playoff game defeat. "I did a poor job of coaching. I should have thrown the ball earlier. We used the same game plan that we did in beating them in the Astrodome. Pittsburgh is a team you've got to play close for three quarters and hope to beat in the fourth quarter. They aren't the type team you can let get out ahead of you early. If they do, you'll get killed."

As for the comparison of his "lay back, relaxed" style of coaching as compared to the Dallas Cowboys' bank of impersonal computers, Bum observed, "Different people run their organization in different ways. I happen to believe you can do it my way and I've been doing it that way a long time. Obviously, Tom Landry feels

Elvin Hayes' 42 paces Washington

By The Associated Press

The Big E has rarely been bigger — or better — than he was Tuesday night.

The Big E, also known as Elvin Hayes, connected on 18 of 27 shots — including 12 straight at one stretch — and scored a season-high 42 points to lead the surging Washington Bullets to a 135-107 rout of the Detroit Pistons. For good measure, Hayes grabbed 10 rebounds and handed out three assists.

The Bullets have won six of their last seven games to move into the Eastern Conference playoff picture. The triumph moved them ahead of Indiana in the race for the final playoff spot.

"With Bobby (Dandridge) out, I feel I have to do more scoring," Hayes said. "I'm the team's leading scorer and it's up to me to make up for his absence."

In other National Basketball Association games, the Boston Celtics crushed the San Antonio Spurs 137-108, the Houston Rockets downed the Atlanta Hawks 93-83, the Los Angeles Lakers shaded the Milwaukee Bucks 127-124, the Seattle SuperSonics nipped the Portland Trail Blazers 98-97, the New Jersey Nets defeated the Indiana Pacers 114-109, the San Diego Clippers trimmed the Cleveland Cavaliers 116-105 and the Golden State Warriors beat the Utah Jazz 111-105.

With Hayes tossing in 13 points, the Bullets bolted to a 33-25 lead at the end of the first quarter and then outscored the Pistons 12-4 in the opening minutes of the second period. The Bullets set a team record with 44 assists, 17 by Kevin Porter, who played only 24 minutes.

Celtics 137, Spurs 108
Larry Bird scored 29 points and Cedric Maxwell added 23 as the Celtics routed the slumping Spurs for their seventh consecutive victory. It was the sixth consecutive loss for the Spurs — worst losing streak since they joined the NBA in 1976 — who fired Coach Doug Moe two games ago.

Rockets 93, Hawks 83
Moses Malone scored 28 points, including a 10-foot jumper that gave Houston the lead, as Atlanta's magic number to clinch the Central Division crown remained at eight. The Rockets built a 66-53 lead before the Hawks scored 13 straight points, eight by John Drew, for a tie. Malone's jump shot then put the Rockets ahead to stay.

Lakers 127, Bucks 124

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar hit two crucial free throws in the final seconds and combined with Jamaal Wilkes for 52 points as the Lakers snapped Milwaukee's five-game winning streak. Milwaukee pulled within 125-124 with nine seconds to go but Dave Meyers fouled Abdul-Jabbar, who made the final two of his 28 points. Wilkes had 24.

SuperSonics 96, Trail Blazers 97

Seattle guards Dennis Johnson and Gus Williams outscored Portland guards Dave Twardzik and Ron Brewer 46-10. The loss dropped the Blazers into a virtual tie with San Diego for the last Western Conference playoff berth. Dennis Johnson led the way with 32 points for Seattle.

Nets 114, Pacers 109

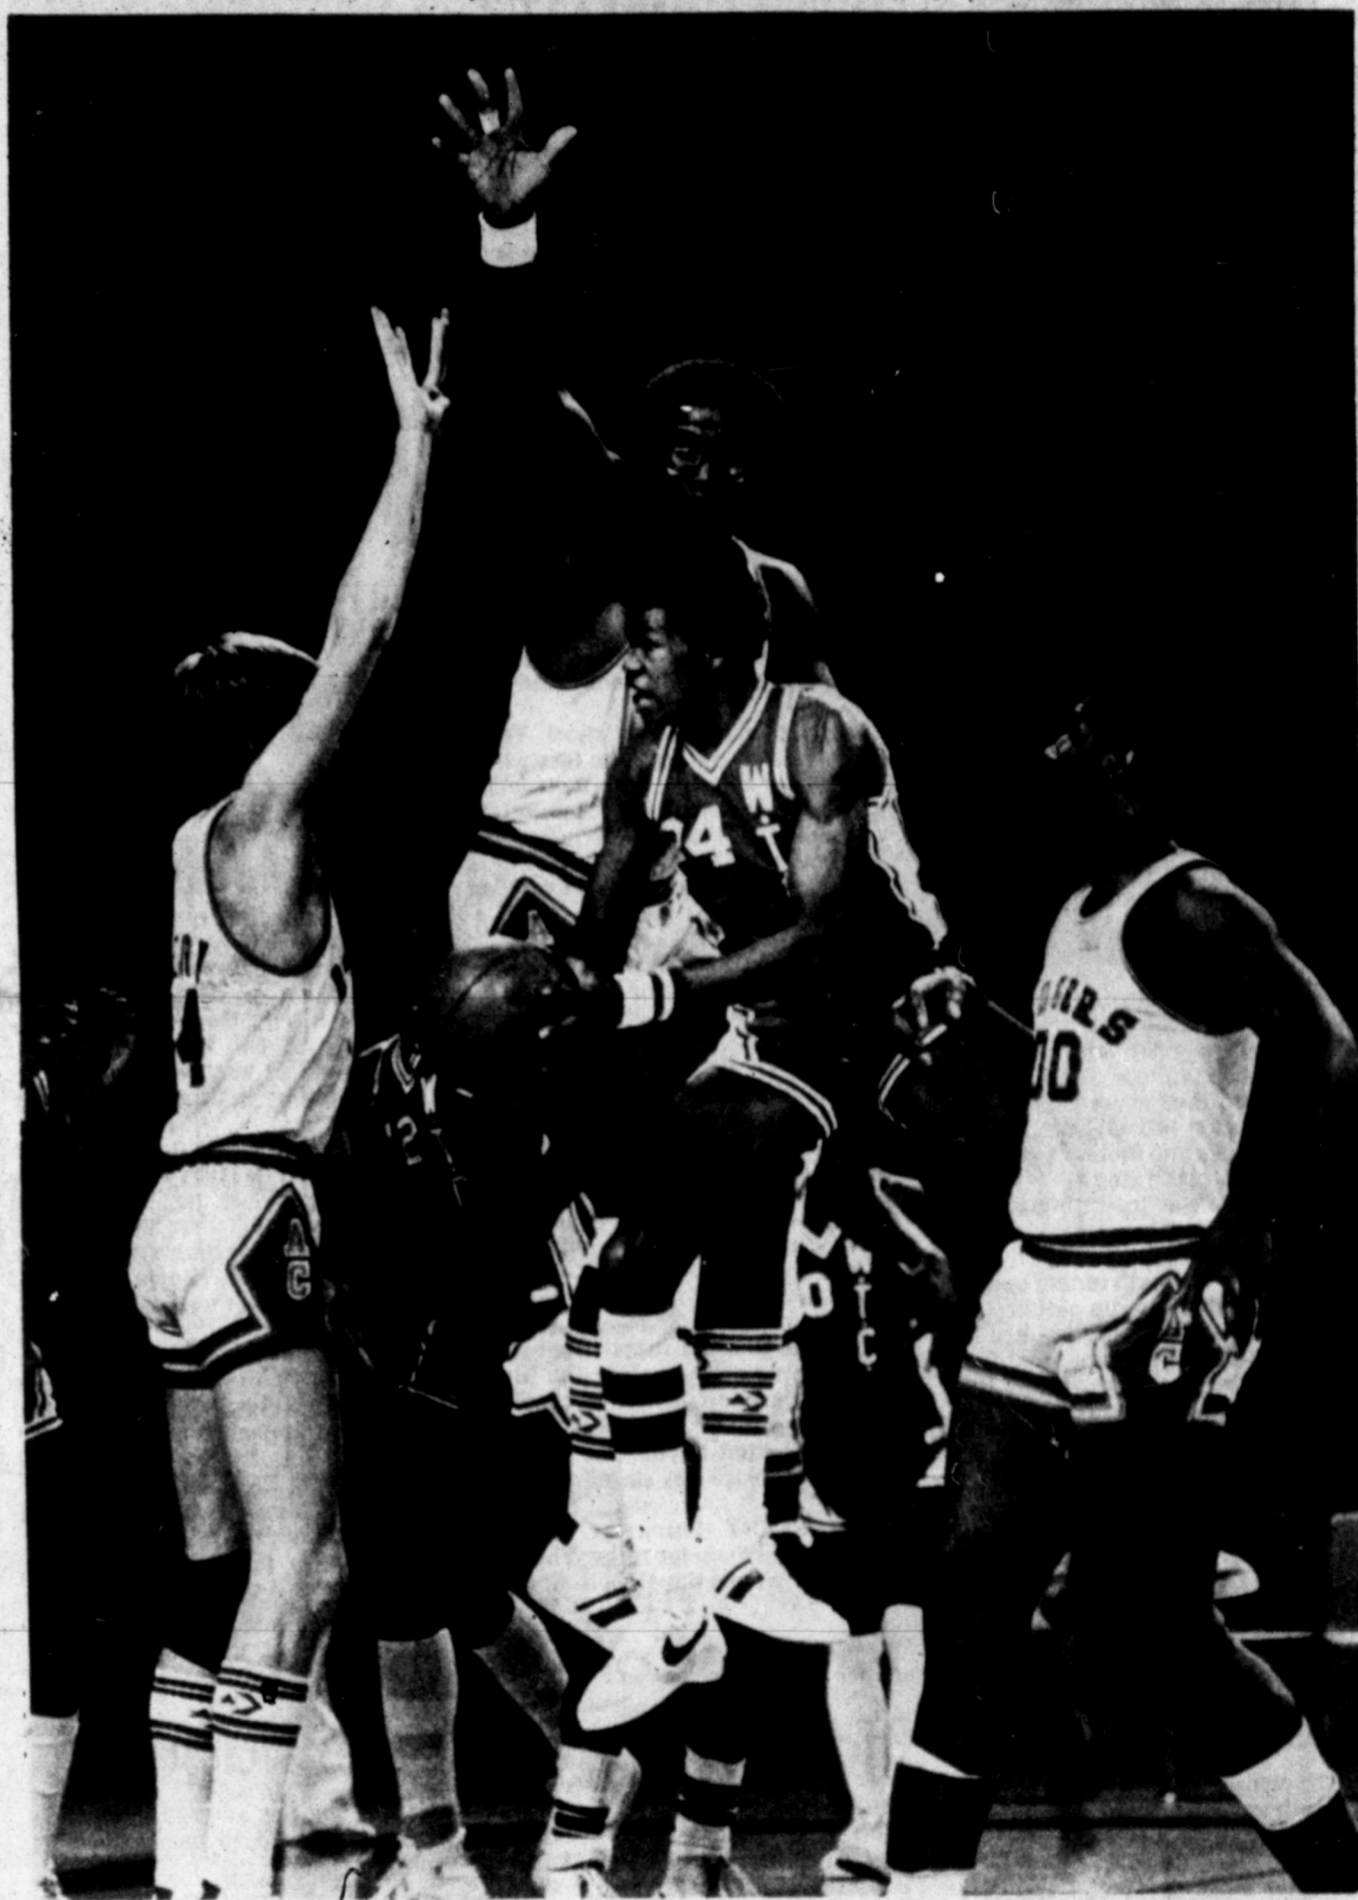

Maurice Lucas scored 25 points as New Jersey handed the Pacers their fifth straight loss, severely hurting their playoff hopes. The setback dropped the Pacers behind Washington in the playoff race. Indiana now has the eighth-best record in the Eastern Conference, three games out of the sixth and final playoff spot.

Clippers 116, Cavaliers 105

Lloyd Free scored 10 points in the third quarter and Brian Taylor added nine to rally San Diego. Swen Nater hauled in 19 rebounds and scored 13 of his 20 points in the fourth quarter to preserve the Clippers' fifth victory in their last 20 games. Free led the scoring with 24 points and Freeman Williams came off the bench to score 21.

Warriors 111, Jazz 105

Robert Parish paced the Warriors with 26 points. Sonny Park added 24 and John Lucas scored five key points in 15 seconds. Utah was ahead 105-102 with 1½ minutes left but Lucas hit a three-point basket, then stole the ball for a layup that put the Warriors on top. Utah's Adrian Dantley led all scorers with 39 points.

Penn gains NCAA while Pepperdine is NIT victim

By The Associated Press

The University of Pennsylvania became the last team into the NCAA tournament and Pepperdine became the first team out of the National Invitation Tournament. And tonight, the postseason action begins in earnest.

Penn edged Princeton 50-49 on James Salters' bucket with 10 seconds left to win a playoff for the Ivy League title at Easton, Pa. The Quakers, who made it to the Final Four last year but lost their other four starters from that team to graduation, thus completed the NCAA tourney field. Penn travels to West Lafayette, Ind., on Thursday to play Washington State in the Midwest Regional.

The NIT opened with Michael Wiley connecting for 31 points in leading Long Beach State to a 104-87 rout of Pepperdine. All five Long Beach starters hit for double figures.

The NIT continues tonight with eight first-round games. St. Peter's visits Connecticut; West Texas State is at Illinois State; Lafayette travels to Virginia; Loyola, Chicago is at Illinois; Penn State takes on the University of Alabama in a game at Birmingham, Ala.; St. Joseph's, Pa., visits Texas; Murray State goes to Jacksonville and Bowling Green is at Minnesota.

There are six more NIT openers Thursday and one more on Friday.

Other NCAA tournament sites Thursday include Greensboro, N.C.; Lincoln, Neb.; and Ogden, Utah. On Friday, opening round contests will take place at Providence, R.I.; Bowling Green, Ky.; Denton, Texas and Tempe, Ariz.

Salters is the lone starter left from Penn's surprising finalists.

"I was in that rhythm," said the captain of the 16-11 Quakers. "Last year we had something to prove; we knew how good we were. This year we don't know how good we are ourselves."

"I was really proud the way the kids hung in," said Penn Coach Bob Weinbauer. "With one senior guard — and we lost three possible starters to injuries — they just kept hanging in all year."

Salters led Penn with 15 points and impressed Pete Carril, coach of the 15-15 Tigers.

"The whole thing came down to a tough shot and he's been making tough shots all year," Long Beach State's Wiley added 12 rebounds to his 31 points and Francois Wise had 15 points and 18 rebounds.

"We played the first 10 minutes about as well as we could play," said 49ers Coach Tex Winter. "In our last five or six games teams held the ball on us and kept us on defense. We were foaming at the mouth to get in a running game, like a racehorse that is trying to get out and run."

"I guess as long as you are in the game, these things are going to happen," noted Pepperdine Coach Jim Harrick. "Long Beach played exceptionally well. We missed some shots we normally should have made, but you cannot take anything away from Long Beach."

The 49ers, second place finishers in the Pacific Coast Athletic Association, are 22-11. Pepperdine, 17-11, were third in the West Coast Athletic Conference and had beaten Long Beach 95-94 earlier this year.

Gaylord Perry warning opposing AL batters

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Gaylord Perry, often accused of throwing a grease ball, but never caught, says the batters can expect his pitches to start doing strange things when they start collecting too many hits.

"See that green fence out there?" asked Perry, pointing toward the outfield wall at Municipal Stadium.

"When the hitters start hitting the ball over the wall, that's when you'll see it."

The 41-year-old Perry, the only pitcher to win the Cy Young award in both the American and National leagues, is back with the Texas Rangers again after a trade with the San Diego Padres.

A little Vaseline or K-Y jelly applied to the ball has a way of making the ball drop at the last moment, turning a potential home run swing into a harmless pop up. It's illegal, of course.

"The thing with the spitter is you've got to use it discriminately," observed Eddie Mathews, a Hall of Famer and now a coach for the Rangers.

"The fun with Gaylord has always been whether he really was doing it or whether he was faking it most of the time. The more the batters complain, the more he goes to his face and cap and messes around before pitching."

Texas catcher Jim Sundberg, perhaps tongue in cheek, guards the percepts well.

"You know, the funny thing is he has never told me for sure if he ever throws a spitter or grease ball," said Sundberg.

But, he added with a grin, "We do have a set of signals for a certain pitch."

Perry discovered the grease ball in 1964 when he was with the San Francisco Giants and has been loading up ever since. At least that's what the hitters will tell you. He admits it one minute and denies it the next. It's all part of the scheme.

"Nobody knows for sure but him and his pharmacist," said Texas Manager Pat Corrales.

In 1977, a Perry delivery was fouled back and struck a press box window, leaving a smudge.

"Must have hit a mosquito on the way," Perry reasoned later.

"The first trick is learning how to get the stuff in the first place," Perry admitted then.

"Then you have to get it into your motion. Some pitchers want to throw it but they're afraid somebody's watching them and will call it to the umpire's attention. That means you've got to go to your cap and face after every pitch. They can never be sure when it's coming."

Mathews adds: "In Gaylord's case, a lot of times he has the batter looking for it so much that it makes his fastball and slider more effective."

Perry's 50 shutouts is third among active pitchers, behind Jim Palmer and Tom Seaver. His 3,141 strikeouts are second only to Walter Johnson's 3,508. He has won 20 or more games five times and has 279 career victories.

Perry mostly is amused about the controversy over his pitches.

"I once called the president of Vaseline and I told him he should use me in a commercial since I use his product all the time. He got a little upset when he found out what I use it for. He said Vaseline is only for babies and fannies."

Coronado topples Lee, 7-2

LUBBOCK — Coach Ernie Johnson is beginning to think that the sixth inning is the kiss of death for his Midland Lee baseball team.

Lubbock Coronado broke open a 2-0 lead in the bottom of the sixth inning here Tuesday at Lowery Field to post a 7-2 victory over the Rebels with a five-run outburst.

The loss gives Lee a 0-2 record going into the Tournament of Champions in Cubs Stadium Friday in Midland.

Lee came back with a pair of runs in the top of the seventh inning, but a 7-0 deficit was too much to overcome.

The Rebels only had four hits in the game with two of those coming in the seventh when they scored their only runs. Jeff Hicks walked, Scott Collins singled in Hicks and Collins scored on Cliff Collyer's pinch single.

Alan Koonce was the losing pitcher for the Rebs. Koonce struck out 11 Mustangs, but three errors by his teammates in the sixth inning opened the gates for the five-run outburst.

Brook was the winning pitcher for Coronado Johnson's double and Castro's triple the bug blows for the Hub City team which is now 1-0 on the season.

Lee faces Carrollton-Turner's Lions in the 10 a.m. tourney opener Friday in Cubs Stadium. Turner was one of the four Class AAAA teams that qualified for the state tournament in Austin last year.

Volpe misses victory

If Midland Lee head track coach Sam Volpe had even the slightest hint that his Rebels were winning the West of the Pecos Relays last Saturday, he would surely have run his car in a ditch somewhere between here and Mississippi.

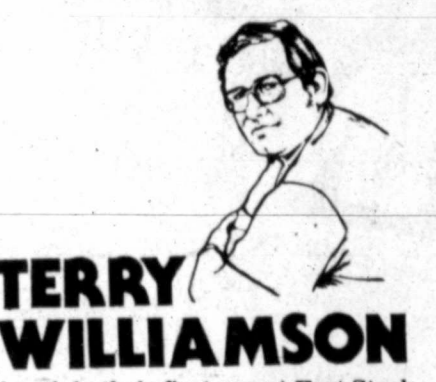

To make a long story short, Volpe had to miss the Pecos run last weekend to take his parents to their home in Mississippi. Meanwhile, his Rebels were pulling a U.S. hockey team-type upset by winning a title. Jimmy the Greek would have lost a bundle on that one.

VOLPE WORKED with his team through the week prior to the Pecos meet, but left the coaching duties over the weekend in the hands of his assistants Eddie Wolski, Earl Miller and Lemmon Boyd.

Saturday, sweat was pouring from the brows of the three coaches despite the near freezing temperatures, but as the meet started, Miller said while pacing the infield, "Everything is under control. I think we know what we are doing."

Wolski was even more confident. He knew Volpe was going to be gone, so he took the chance to make a couple of All-like predictions before the meet. He was geared to throw in a couple of "surprise attacks". This was going to be Wolski's finest hour. The boss was gone and Wolski was standing tall.

THE FIRST "surprise attack" came in the 400 meter relay. This was a race in which the Rebels finished fourth in their first run at Fort Stockton the week before. "We're going to beat Permian this week by putting Arthur and Darrin Williams in the relay with Phil Carleton and Steve Waldron," Wolski stated last week. But this writer was sworn to secrecy in a ceremony befitting a fraternity initiation.

Surprise Attack No. 1 worked like a charm. The Rebels won the race going away. That had Wolski and Miller so excited that they started thinking in bigger terms. They even had Boyd to start keeping track of point totals. They were shooting for the moon.

"Hey, I hope this thing comes down to the mile relay," Wolski said after the 400 relay victory. "Then you will see what real coaching is all about."

WOLSKI'S ENTHUSIASM, however, was tempered somewhat when Surprise Attack No. 2 didn't go exactly according to plan. No. 2 wasn't a disaster, but it didn't have the same results as No. 1. No. 2 was where versatile Carleton was dropped from the 200 meters and placed in the 100 meters. Carleton had placed second at Fort Stockton in the 200, but managed only a third in the 100 Saturday. It could have been fourth if Midland High's Jeff Robnett hadn't come up lame while leading the race. But one out of two isn't bad, Coach. Wolski kept the faith by saying, "Well, we'll probably put him (Carleton) in the 400 meters next week. That kid can run anything."

THAT WAS a good observation by Wolski since Carleton won the 440-yard District 5-4A championship back when he was a sophomore.

Despite No. 2, Lee was still in the thick of the title run thanks to David Piccolo, who won both hurdle events in impressive fashion. And the meet did come down to the mile relay — just like Wolski had hoped.

But by then, the pressure was mounting. It was no longer talk and Wolski was shedding garments faster than a bored stripper. The heat was on.

This writer informed Wolski that the Rebels could win the meet with a victory, and if they didn't win the thing, it would probably be his fault. "They'll win it," Wolski said in a muted tone. "Oh my gosh, they have to have a baton to run this race. Where is it?"

Wolski stormed off looking for a baton. All the while, Waldron had it concealed beneath his warmups. Waldron had pulled off Sneak Attack No. 3 and it almost killed Wolski. Waldron, Carleton, Keevin Harper and Gary Butler (all members of the mile relay) had things under control. They just forgot to tell Wolski and Miller that they knew what they were doing.

THE FOUR Lee runners held the lead from the very beginning and won in a cake walk. Surprise Attack No. 4 had been completed.

"Good coaching, huh," was the way Wolski put it when all was said and done. And all without Volpe having to wreck his car.

Ah — the stuff coaching legends are made of.

CBS wins broadcasting rights to NFL playoffs

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS, with a record bid of $12 million, won the national radio broadcast rights Tuesday to 26 regular-season games and all 10 playoff games for each of the next four National Football League seasons.

The $12 million is the largest ever for a radio sports package, NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle and CBS Radio President Sam Cook Digges said in a statement issued by the league.

CBS Radio, which also broadcast NFL games in 1978 and 1979, won the contract in sealed bidding with ABC, NBC, the Mutual network and the Robert Wold Co.

Jimmy Connors breezes past Bjorn Borg in Copenhagen

COPENHAGEN (AP) — Jimmy Connors breezed to a 6-3, 6-2 victory over Bjorn Borg and Italy's Adriano Panatta upset Vitas Gerulaitis 6-4, 6-4 Tuesday night in the opening matches of the $120,000 Copenhagen Cup, billed as a Europe versus America tennis duel.

Panatta was command throughout with a powerful serve and volley game against Gerulaitis, who appeared to be uninspired.

But Borg, the four-time Wimbledon champion from Sweden, was even easier prey for Connors. Exhausted from a 35-hour flight to Copenhagen from South America and a series of tournaments there, the Swede never got his game going and moved about the court on leaden legs.

Connors, who lost to Borg in their six previous encounters, set a murderous pace from the beginning, attacking and never taking the pressure off.

Borg showed glimpses of his greatness in the first set, but in the second let himself be forced to the base line and frequently was caught flatfooted by Connors' volleys and crossing shots. Towards the end, Borg was so tired he didn't try for some balls he would normally have retrieved.

In the first set Connors broke Borg's serve to go ahead 2-0 and later 5-2. In the second he broke Borg in the third and fifth games for 4-1 after serving two straight games without dropping a point.

In the final game, Borg tried to move to the net at 40-30, only to be passed by a superb forehand volley from Connors.

The two-day Davis Cup style tournament, in which the winning side takes $80,000, was scheduled to continue Wednesday, with Connors against Panatta and Gerulaitis against Borg for a possible 2-2 score that would make the final doubles decisive.

Odessa fighters claim GG wins

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Three defending champions survived first night tests Tuesday in the 44th Texas Golden Gloves boxing tournament.

Heavyweight Charles Hostetter and light middleweight Chato Ramos, both of Odessa, and flyweight Sammy Fuentes of Houston advanced to the second round of this five-night event at Will Rogers Coliseum as a crowd of 7,588 watched. Only one 1979 winner was beaten as Richard Pastran, light flyweight champ competing in the flyweight division this year, was eliminated by Richard Abila of Odessa, 1978 state flyweight champion.

Hostetter used a left jab and left hook to completely dominate his foe, Mark Elliott of Beaumont, who gave away 17 pounds to the 205-pound defending champ. Ramos had little trouble in going the route against Beaumont's Eric Jacob.

Fuentes scored a technical knockout over John Dyer of Wichita Falls at 1:16 of the first round.

The tournament resumes tonight with 29 more fights that will include the debut of Tony Ayala of San Antonio, the national Golden Gloves middleweight champ.

Winners of the 11 weight divisions will advance to the National ODESSA — The Odessa College fencing class will sponsor a fencing tournament March 15 at the OC gym. The event is scheduled to begin at 9 a.m. and there is a $5 entry fee. Participants must bring their own equipment.

There will be two divisions of competition: Beginners, and advanced, which is for those with at least one semester of college fencing.

Registration will take place the day of the event.

A look at America by rearview mirror

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent

CHICAGO (AP) — "There is no poverty in America," observed Avrim Petal, guiding his cab along North Michigan Avenue in the glitter of afternoon sunshine from the lakefront skyscrapers. "No difference between the rich man and the poor man."

Avrim had to come to Chicago by way of Houston from Karachi. This was his third day driving a cab, and he wasn't quite sure where O'Hare Airport was.

"I go there two, maybe three times, if you count coming back," he laughed. "Get lost sometimes. Passengers not very understanding. Always in a directions to the airport. She allowed him to make a U-turn, and we headed back the other way.

"She was rather unpleasant," sighed Petal, "but she has an unpleasant duty, standing there in the wind. Chicago, you know, is the Windy City."

He pronounced it to rhyme with grumpy.

Petal thought women had "much power in America. In the factory where I worked in Houston they were paid the same as the men. They sat around all day drinking coffee, telling bad jokes and talking about whichever one went to the bathroom. In Pakistan, women live in the rear of the house and put on a veil to go in the street."

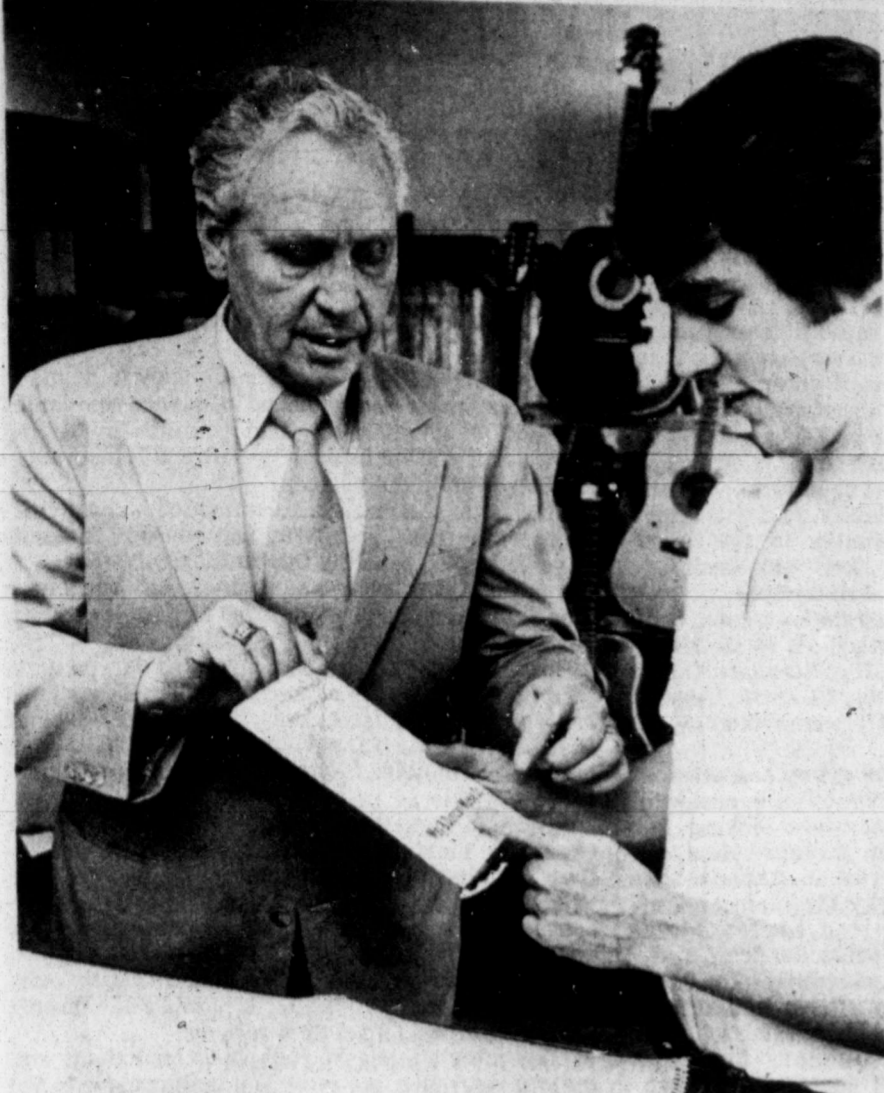

We must have been on the right road to the airport at last, because on a billboard Mayor Jane Byrne was bidding us farewell.

Avrim's first job in Chicago was washing school buses. He lived with an uncle but now had his own apartment on the north side of Chicago. "There is no poverty there," he said. "Everyone has a car and a colored TV. But they steal and kill to get drugs and hashish. I will move to a house when I get married this year."

He said he hadn't found a girl yet, but he was 25, "and that is the year when one should get married? Don't you think?"

Because of his impending marriage to a girl he had yet to meet, he had taken up the better paying job of cab driver.

Avrim said he was saving his money to get married and had never applied for "welfare or anything free for nothing because I do not like filling out papers. In Pakistan no one fills out paper. They don't like to leave their souls at the post office."

Travis Stice, right, Lee High School band captain, discusses advertising rates for the spring concert program with Jerry Duncan of May & Duncan Music Company. Both high school bands are participating in the annual program ad sales campaign which helps finance band scholarships and a May trip to Tempe, Ariz. (Staff Photo)

High school bands launch joint fund-raising ad sale

Midland and Lee High School bands are selling ads for their spring concert programs.

The annual event is a fund raising project to be used for scholarships and to pay for the spring trip in May, said Nancy Irving, publicity chairman for the Lee High Bandoliers.

Both bands will be competing in the Mountain States Band Festival in Tempe, Ariz.

Prices of the ads range from $10 to $100, she said.

The city is divided equally between the two schools and each band must sell within its territory, Mrs. Irving added.

There will be approximately 1,000 spring program books printed and the ads will appear in both schools' programs, she explained.

The ads are tax deductible, Mrs. Irving noted, and businesses can use their logo, business card, letterhead or they can compose their own advertisement in the program booklet.

In addition, there are the "personal ads" which can be purchased, she said.

For more information regarding the ads, call 694-3640 or 694-7363 for the Lee High Band or 682-4753 for the Midland High Band.

hurry. It is the way here in America. In Pakistan, no one is in a hurry. There is no place to go."

Avrim seemed to be headed in the wrong direction, although I do not know Chicago well. "I am a Sind," he continued, lost, but not for words. "I speak Sindhi. My name is Avrim, like Avrim Lincoln, your first president."

I told him George Washington was our first president; Abraham Lincoln had freed the slaves.

"Oh, yes," said Avrim, turning left at a sign that said no left turn. "My father is a slave in Karachi, a slave in the bazaar. We lived in the back of the shop, seven of us. He made brass candlesticks and lamps for the tourists. When I came home from school, I polished the brass until it became too dark. There was no electricity after 8 o'clock in the bazaar."

Avrim told me there were many Petals in Pakistan. "They are like Smiths in America. More Petals than in a rose garden. This is a pun. Do you know what is a pun?"

I said I did. He said his English teacher gave him a gold star, "like a proper schoolboy," for writing in his exercise book: "There are many puns in the Punjab." It was a joke, he pointed out. "My teacher likes jokes. She is a woman. I pay her to learn English."

A lady cop dressed him down for taking his time going through a yellow light when she was trying to hurry traffic along. Lifting his hand from the wheel in a gesture of benediction, he rolled his eyes far back in his head. As I could see from the rearview mirror, his swarthy face projected an expression of saintly innocence. By way of apology, he asked opposite a bust — which partner might have. But that is not the major objection. Since North's opening bid was forcing to game, there is no need for him to act now — the force is still on! South must either bid or double the opponents for penalties, and North will then have a better idea of the hand's potential, no matter what his partner chooses.

When South announced a spade stopper with his bid of three no trump, North realized that a no trump contract might prove safer than a suit game. And slam was not out of the question if his partner had the right values. He invited with four no trump and South accepted on the strength of his diamonds.

West chose the safe lead of the jack of hearts. Declarer ran his tricks, squeezing both defenders down to two clubs. After taking the club finesse, he ended up with all the tricks.

We would not have enjoyed being declarer had West chanced upon a club lead. Not being clairvoyant, we would have eschewed the finesse in the hope of cashing eleven red suit tricks. Now the 5-0 diamond break would have doomed the slam.

Have you been running into double trouble? Let Charles Goren help you find your way through the maze of DOUBLES for penalties and for takeout. For a copy of his DOUBLES booklet, send $1.85 to "Goren-Doubles," c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 259, Norwood, N.J. 07648. Make checks payable to NEWSPAPERBOOKS.

Instinctively, most players would rebid four hearts; but is that correct? First and foremost, North has no guarantee that he can make ten tricks at a heart contract

Stock market mixed

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today in a session marked by continued strength in oil issues.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was up 2.65 at 859.13 at noon.

But losers held a 7-4 lead over gainers in the broad tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Among the oil issues, Gulf Oil climbed 1 1/2 to 35; Mobil 3 1/2 to 89 1/2; Standard Oil of California 3 1/2 to 85; Texaco 1/2 to 41 1/2; and Exxon 1 1/2 to 66.

The oil group has attracted heavy buying recently from investors looking for inflation hedges.

New oil discoveries in Canada and the Rocky Mountain area of the United States have added fuel to the fire.

The government reported Tuesday afternoon that factory orders surged 3.6 percent in January for their sharpest increase in more than a year.

Analysts said that news provided confirmation that the pace of the economy, and inflationary pressures, remained strong.

Norton Simon led the active list, up 1/4 at 13. Blocks of 1,075,000 and 164,000 shares traded at that price.

The NYSE's composite index rose .05 to 64.41. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 3.33 at 303.49.

Volume on the Big Board reached 21.70 million shares by noon, up from 19.27 million at the same point Tuesday.

Kidnap, ransom insurance now major business

CHICAGO (AP) — There's big money to be made in international terrorism. And insurance companies are out to capitalize on that premise by selling kidnap and ransom insurance — or K & R insurance, as it's known in the business.

International terrorism mushroomed in the politically volatile 1960s and 1970s and ransom demands have grown too — easily into millions of dollars.

And the K & R insurance business has burgeoned along with demand. The industry writes an estimated $55 million in premiums annually.

Businessmen are prime candidates for political terrorism because their firms can and will pay huge ransom demands, said Roy Tucker, president of Risk, International. The Alexandria, Va.-based computer firm complies information on political terrorism worldwide.

"Those in biggest danger of being kidnapped are expatriate employees of American corporations — those who have lived in a country for two or three years," Tucker said. "They are prime targets because their habits are established and easily put under surveillance by terrorists groups."

Kidnap insurance is not a new idea, but its existence has been kept quiet for a number of reasons. Some executives cite ethical reasons.

"The more emphasis you place on kidnap and ransom insurance, the more you invite people to act on it," said John R. Cox, executive vice president of Insurance Company of North America.

American International Group, Inc., which has offered K & R coverage for eight years, also has guarded the names of its clients, but for practical reasons — kidnapers are far more likely to collect ransom money from an insured victim, and it's the insurance firm that pays, of course.

Firms in this fiercely competitive industry also refuse to disclose premium rates, although representatives will discuss their services.

"We can insure a corporation for any ransom demand or any extortion monies, for any type of reward which might be offered," said Claude Gallelli, Midwest regional manager for American International Group. He said his coverage can also provide money for expenses for consultants who advise how to negotiate the safe return of executives and when to pay the ransom demands.

Gallelli said ransom insurance of up to $20 million is probably readily available to most corporations. Ransom demands have ranged much higher than that, however. For example in 1977, political terrorists in Argentina asked $61 million in ransom when they kidnapped directors of an Argentine corporation, Gallelli said.

Prices of knives, forks out of sight

By LOUISE COOK Associated Press Writer

A year ago, a typical four-piece place setting of sterling silver flatware at Rich's Department Store in Atlanta cost $134 on sale. Today, the same place setting — again "on sale" — carries a price tag of just over $650.

At Tiffany & Co., on New York's Fifth Avenue, a five-piece place setting in a popular sterling pattern that cost $149.75 in February 1979 is selling for $508.

Retailers in the state of Washington said some manufacturers are quoting prices as high as $1,300 a place setting for sterling. They say the minimum is about $500, and they say engaged couples planning spring and summer weddings are looking for cheaper alternatives to the silver traditionally acquired along with the marriage certificate.

The story is the same all over the country. The price of silver has risen along with the price of gold and the increase has sent the cost of knives, forks and spoons to record levels.

"It's been chaotic," said Jack Ambrose of the Sterling Silversmiths Guild of America. Prices for sterling silver flatware vary widely depending not only on the weight of the pieces, but also on the amount of workmanship involved.

Ambrose said all types of manufacturers' costs have been rising, but added: "The major factor in recent months has been the price of the silver."

In February 1979, the price of silver on world metal markets averaged just under $8 an ounce. By January 1980, the price had leaped to about $50 an ounce and many silverware manufacturers simply stopped taking orders. The price of silver today has dropped to about $33 an ounce and the stores are beginning to restock, but they say that high costs are taking their toll on sales.

Phoebe Brown of Rich's said that the number of customers signing up for sterling at the store's bridal registry has dropped "drastically." She said most young women are listing silver plate or stainless steel instead.

A five-piece setting of silver plate at Rich's averages from $81 to $150. Ms. Brown said that Rich's about one-eighth to one-fourth as much as sterling. And the sterling place setting has one less piece.

Patricia Bakken of Renton, Wash., was married last October. "I didn't register for silver because it was almost $640 a place setting," she said.

Like Ms. Brown, Marilyn Smith who runs the bridal registry for The Bon at the SeaTac Mall in Washington said most young women are choosing silver plate or stainless. When sterling is given, it is "by grandmothers and mothers as heirlooms," she said.

Tiffany doesn't sell silver plate — only sterling, which it manufactures itself. A spokesman, who asked not to be identified by name, said: "So far, there hasn't been any resistance (to the price), but who knows."

Stock market mixed

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today in a session marked by continued strength in oil issues.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was up 2.65 at 859.13 at noon.

But losers held a 7-4 lead over gainers in the broad tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Among the oil issues, Gulf Oil climbed 1 1/2 to 35; Mobil 3 1/2 to 89 1/2; Standard Oil of California 3 1/2 to 85; Texaco 1/2 to 41 1/2; and Exxon 1 1/2 to 66.

The oil group has attracted heavy buying recently from investors looking for inflation hedges.

New oil discoveries in Canada and the Rocky Mountain area of the United States have added fuel to the fire.

The government reported Tuesday afternoon that factory orders surged 3.6 percent in January for their sharpest increase in more than a year.

Analysts said that news provided confirmation that the pace of the economy, and inflationary pressures, remained strong.

Norton Simon led the active list, up 1/4 at 13. Blocks of 1,075,000 and 164,000 shares traded at that price.

The NYSE's composite index rose .05 to 64.41. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 3.33 at 303.49.

Volume on the Big Board reached 21.70 million shares by noon, up from 19.27 million at the same point Tuesday.

Carter's synthetic fuel plan gets big boost in Congress

By MIKE SHANAHAN
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's proposal to spend $20 billion on the development of synthetic fuels to replace the nation's diminishing oil reserves has received a big boost from Congress.

After a three-month standoff, a

N.M., a key figure among the more than 30 conferees.

Synthetic fuels are generally defined as oil and gas extracted artificially from shale, coal and tar sands.

While it has long been known that fuel can be produced from those sources, it is only with the sharp increases in imported oil prices that figuring out ways to do it has become economically feasible.

The new corporation will have authority to dispense billions of dollars in purchase and loan guarantees, loans, and in some cases would put the government directly in the energy business.

Working out differences between the House and Senate versions on how best to dispense financing provided the major conflict among conferees.

The first nine to 15 months of the program would be administered by the Defense Department, which would agree to buy synthetic fuels for defense needs.

The agreement reached Tuesday includes a second stage of development in which the corporation, with a lifespan of 12 years, would be given up to $68 billion in additional financing authority for synthetic fuels.

The Senate version is the most expensive energy bill ever approved by either house of Congress. It includes billions for gasohol development, conservation, aid to poor persons for weatherizing their houses and solar energy development.

The House bill includes none of those provisions and those differences must still be resolved.

ENERGY OIL & GAS

House-Senate conference committee agreed unanimously Tuesday to create a seven-member Synthetic Fuels Corporation to provide financing for a key element of the president's energy program.

Some work remains to be done, but conferees said they have resolved the biggest differences between widely varying synfuels proposals approved last year by the House and Senate.

"We have broken a very big bottleneck," said Sen. Pete Domenici, R-

Clements sympathizes with Mexico

By SALLY CARPENTER
DALLAS (AP) — Mexico has done all it "technically could do" to cap the runaway well spewing crude into the Gulf of Mexico and Americans should have more sympathy for its efforts, says Gov. Bill Clements.

"This is not a unique situation. These blowouts occur frequently," said Clements, the keynote speaker Tuesday at a conference on Mexican energy, industrial development and security.

The Ixtoc, I blowout is costing Pemex, the Mexican national oil monopoly, $1 million a day, said Clements.

Mexicans have "done all that they technically could do" to cap the well, he said. "They have all the American expertise available."

Pemex has said the well is now gushing only 1,000 barrels of oil a day into the Bay of Campeche. Scientists had estimated the flow at between 30,000 barrels and 50,000 barrels a day after the June 3 blowout.

Clements said the uproar over oil that stained Texas beaches last summer resulted from political "breast-beating" that since has subsided.

"Our posture both as a state and as a nation should be one of sympathy for Mexico, a neighbor who needs help," the governor said.

The conference, sponsored by the Dallas Council on World Affairs, drew several hundred students and businessmen to hear U.S. and Mexican officials assess the state of Mexico's development and its relationship with the United States.

In an earlier speech, the director of the Mexican Foreign Trade National Bank said Mexico is undergoing an industrial boom.

Officials are "very determined that Mexico not become an oil country, but a country with oil," Adrian Lajous said. "We want to continue to develop in a balanced fashion."

Clements outlined efforts he and other Southwest governors have made to improve relations with Mexico, and called for the Southwest states to "convince our federal government of the need for a fundamental change in our entire approach as a nation to Mexico."

"Our relations with our friends to the south are in the worst shape they have been in since the mid-1930s," Clements said.

Mexicans, he said, "want us to accord to them a much higher degree of respect and regard they have always accorded the United States."

He said that while Washington officials are "probably doing their best to ignore my recommendations," Mexican officials understand and support his position. He said that he, New Mexico Gov. Bruce King, Arizona Gov. Bruce Babbitt and California Gov. Jerry Brown "are totally in accord" about Mexico.

Eddy test flows gas

W. A. Moncrief Jr. of Midland reported gas flows on two drill-stem tests in his No. 1 Marathon-State Communized, project in the Baldridge Canyon (Morrow) field of Eddy County, seven miles northwest of White City.

The latest test, from 10,510 to 10,630 feet in the Morrow, was open 1 hour and 15 minutes. Gas surfaced in seven minutes and the volume at the end of the pre-flow period was at the rate of 1,250,000 cubic feet per day through a 1/2-inch choke. Surface flowing pressure was 175 pounds.

The volume at the end of the regular flow period was 2,160,000 cubic feet of gas. Recovery was 250 feet of drilling mud. Two-hour final shut-in pressure was 4,426 pounds.

A previous Morrow sand drill-stem test, from 10,270 to 10,451 feet, was open 1 hour and 15 minutes. Gas surfaced in five minutes and the volume at the end of the regular flow period was 7,200,000 cubic feet per day, through a 1/2-inch choke. Flowing pressure ranged from 777 to 1246 pounds. The final shut-in pressure was 3,967 pounds.

At last report, operator was preparing to take a straddle packer drillstem test opposite the Delaware sand from 3,200 to 3,306 feet.

Location is 1,980 feet from south and 1,680 feet from east lines of section 11-24S-24e.

Mining plans submitted

—WASHINGTON (AP) — The Interior Department says 24 states want to regulate strip coal mining in their states under a 1977 federal law.

Monday was the deadline for states to submit their proposals for handling the program. All coal producing states submitted plans except Georgia, Washington and Alaska, which produce relatively small amounts of coal. Interior department officials said Tuesday.

Major portions of that 1977 law have been declared unconstitutional by a federal judge. But Interior Department attorneys plan an appeal to the Supreme Court and have asked Chief Justice Warren Burger to let the law to be enforced while the court decides the matter.

So far, only one state — Texas — has received federal approval of its state plan although Wyoming received partial approval, pending further review, on Feb. 15.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Formula feeding of infants not linked to obese children

Dear Dr. Solomon: I have heard that the reason breast feeding is preferable to formula in that there is less chance of the child being obese later on in life. Is there any truth to this? — Mrs. G.R.

Dear Mrs. R.: A recent report by Dr. Samuel Poman of the University of Iowa indicates no difference in obesity at eight years of age between children who were breast fed and those who were formula fed. However, he did find a relationship between fatness at three and one-half months of age and at eight years of age.

Dear Dr. Solomon: My nine-year-old son is a hyperactive child and is receiving some counseling in school. The school nurse tells me that I could help my son by eliminating from his diet foods which contain additives. I would be willing to try anything that might work. Is this a possibility? — Mrs. G.E.

Dear Mrs. E.: Some researchers do advocate elimination of food additives from the diet of hyperactive children. On the other hand, others, such as Dr. Gordon Millichap, a professor of neurology and pediatrics at Northwestern University Medical School in Chicago, charge that there is no sufficient evidence to prove that an additive-free diet can prevent or correct hyperactivity.

Additionally, Dr. Millichap cautions that until the value of the diet is proved by controlled studies, physicians and parents should recognize that they are treating the child with a remedy that has not been confirmed.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I have been trying to limit my sugar intake but find it difficult. Practically every dry cereal, for example, seems to include sugar among its ingredients. Why is sugar added to so many foods, and what is its nutritive value? Wouldn't it be preferable to use artificial sweeteners in many foods? — Ms. A.S.

Dear Ms. S.: As you indicate, sugar is a widely used food additive; the broader classification under which it falls, "sweeteners," is classified as both nutritive and non-nutritive.

Nutritive sweeteners, which are metabolized by the body to provide energy, include natural sugars such as sucrose (your common table sugar), glucose and fructose. The widespread use of sugar in foods has been criticized because it provides "empty calories" — that is, it does not help meet the daily requirement for vitamins, minerals or protein. In addition, sugar contributes to tooth decay.

Non-nutritive sweeteners, which are not metabolized and therefore are calorie-free, include cyclamates and saccharin. Cyclamates cannot be used in food at present. They were banned by the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) after tests showed that they caused cancer in animals. The FDA has also announced its intention to ban saccharin, but this step has been widely opposed, and the ban will not take effect for several months, at the earliest.

Navy retires sub Nautilus

By DAVID N. ROSENTHAL

MARE ISLAND, Calif. (AP) — After diving more than 2,500 times and traveling a half-million miles in its 25 years, the world's first nuclear-powered submarine has been retired from the U.S. fleet.

The spiritual descendant of the mythical craft piloted by Capt. Nemo in Jules Verne's "20,000 Leagues Under the Sea," the Nautilus was decommissioned Monday in a ceremony at the naval shipyard 35 miles north of San Francisco.

Its last crew bade farewell to the sub and met some of the men who first shipped out on the Nautilus when it left Groton Harbor in Connecticut on Jan. 17, 1955.

"It's kind of like when an old man dies," said Mike Oliver, a petty officer second class, who lowered the ship's flag for the final time. "You're glad because he was old, but you're sad, too."

Chief petty officer Leroy Ingels, who took the sub on its first dive, said, "I wouldn't have missed this for the world. It looks just like it always did. It's a crime to take it out of commission."

But the onetime pride of the Navy, which made a trip under the North Pole in 1958, needed an overhaul, and that would have cost almost as much as it did to build the sub, more than $55 million.

So it came here last May for removal of its atomic core and to be phased out of service.

The ceremony included remarks by Cmdr. Richard Riddell, its last skipper, and Vice Adm. Kenneth M. Carr, commander of the U.S. Atlantic submarine force.

Two Texas experiment stations cooperate in development of weather-saving system

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Most of us can probably remember wondering as children why we couldn't put winter's cold weather in a bottle, and save it for the heat of summer. At Texas A&M University, researchers are learning how to do just that.

The researchers drilled a pair of shallow wells about 400 yards apart, along the Brazos River flood plain near College Station. Water is pumped out of one well, sprayed into the cold air to be chilled, then pumped underground into the other well.

That gives a giant "bubble" of chilled water, insulated by the earth, that can be withdrawn during the summer for lower-cost air conditioning.

The Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, working with the Texas Engineering Experiment Station, is running the test.

The two agencies hope to expand the experiment to withdraw heat from the 70-degree underground water as it heads for the surface, possibly to provide a heating system. Currently that heat is lost into the air when the water is chilled.

Dr. Donald L. Reddell of the agricultural station said air was chilled down to 32 degrees this winter.

He said experimenters hope to hook the system up to buildings within a year, but financing still is pending with the experiment stations, the state and the Energy Department.

The wells now have a capacity of 150 gallons per unit, Reddell said, and can take care of 25 average-sized houses for a year.

While the water and the winter air are free, Reddell said it would cost about $2,000 per house to install the equipment, and operating costs would be about $50 a month.

Another problem is the depth of the water, he said. The wells near College Station are 55 feet deep, but the cost would skyrocket for deeper wells.

The system is "the only one that I'm aware of," Reddell said. "There is one hot water experiment where they're storing hot water with hopes of using it for heating at Auburn (University) in Alabama."

Since chilled water is commonly used to air condition and heat buildings, no research in that area is necessary, he said.

"It's just a matter of getting some chilled water and getting it to the buildings," he said.

How TUSHA BUILDINGS keeps your building from costing too much and taking too long:

Putting up a new building too often means paying more than you expected and taking longer than you thought.

The most frequent reason? No one person is clearly in control. That can cause a basic communication breakdown among all parties involved, resulting in confusion, cost overruns and missed deadlines.

But we offer you a team of construction professionals capable of controlling your entire project...concept to completion.

We can handle all the details—planning, rights-of-way, permits, construction, even landscaping. We'll make sure you get your building on-time and on-budget. And we'll do it using construction methods and building systems that can cut up to 40% off some conventional building timetables.

So if your next building has time and budget limitations, call us. We'll give you both the building and the control you need.

Schmidt, Carter meeting to resolve Afghan differences

WASHINGTON (AP) — West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt and President Carter are meeting at the White House in an attempt to resolve differences over conflicting approaches to the Afghanistan situation.

Diplomats said Schmidt planned to offer Carter's forceful assurances of West German loyalty to NATO today even though he has been reluctant to embrace the measures taken by Carter in retaliation for the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan.

Nevertheless, West German sources said Tuesday night Schmidt was expected to inform Carter that West Germany will not send an Olympic team to Moscow this summer — a position the Bonn government has hinted at for some time.

Schmidt, who arrived here Tuesday night, was to meet with Carter this afternoon after earlier sessions with Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, presidential adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski and Defense Secretary Harold Brown.

According to the West German sources, who asked not to be identified, Schmidt was prepared to urge Carter not to allow his preoccupation with Afghanistan to deflect his attention from what Schmidt considers to be even larger issues in East-West relations.

These, the sources said, include ratification of the SALT II treaty and measures to ensure that Yugoslavia does not revert to the Soviet bloc after the death of President Josip Broz Tito. Tito has been seriously ill for many weeks.

According to the informants, another point Schmidt planned to emphasize was that West Germany's contributions to the Atlantic Alliance at times have compared favorably with those of the United States.

In addition, between 1975 and 1978, when the United States was imposing an arms embargo against Turkey, West Germany was continuing weapons sales to that key NATO country.

More recently, West Germany has taken other measures in support of U.S. initiatives. Schmidt has called for a 3 percent increase in West German defense expenditures and also is joining the United States in offering military assistance to Afghanistan's troubled neighbor to the east, Pakistan.

Direct talks possible today, says official

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — The Colombian government talked by telephone with the guerrillas holding the U.S. ambassador and some two dozen other hostages for a week, and one official said direct talks may resume today.

However, there was speculation President Julio Cesar Turbay Ayala wants to wait until after municipal and regional elections Sunday before coming to terms with the guerrillas, either by force or mutual agreement.

"It would be troublesome for the government to appear to be surrendering to the blackmail of the guerrillas a few days before the election," a government source said. Leaders of Turbay's Liberal Party have asked voters to turn the election into national plebiscite by supporting government candidates.

The government gave an indication Tuesday that talks may drag on for some time by allowing the Red Cross to deliver to the embassy a new shipment of food as well as games, playing cards, letter-writing material and a Koran, the Moslem holy book, presumably by Egyptian Ambassador Salah Al-Aulaba.

HE IS ONE of 15 ambassadors, including U.S. Ambassador Diego Asencio and Monsignor Angelo Acervi, papal nuncio to Colombia, held hostage at the embassy of the Dominican Republic, seized during a diplomatic reception last Wednesday.

The 29 captors, members of Colombia's largest and most violent guerrilla group, Movimiento 19 or M-19, are demanding $50 million in cash, the release of 311 political prisoners, worldwide publication of a guerrilla manifesto and safe-conduct out of the country.

They have threatened to kill the hostages if their demands are not met and say they are willing to wait as long as two months for a settlement.

But a government official said talks with the guerrillas were continuing. "The conversations have never been interrupted for a single moment," said the official.

HE SAID face-to-face talks were likely to resume today and that Mexican Ambassador Ricardo Galan, one of the hostages, was serving as the intermediary between Foreign Minis-Chandelle owners say it best.

"When I first learned of Chandelle, I thought it would be just like living in an apartment... But it's just like living in a house without the yardwork and repairs."

"Chandelle suits my personal lifestyle, and by owning a condominium you get an equity build-up with excellent resale potential."

"Believe me, it's been a pleasure not having to worry about the usual home maintenance problems... Chandelle takes care of that for me."

"At Chandelle you get the same advantages and tax breaks as a home owner, but you don't have the same responsibilities ... for me, it's the only way to live."

"A Chandelle condominium has given me the opportunity for a new and rewarding life style... and I've really enjoyed living here."

"Chandelle customized my condominium for me before I moved in... I got just the arrangement and style I wanted... I love it here."
