Militants will keep U.S. hostages until they get a hearing

By The Associated Press

The Moslem militants holding the U.S. Embassy in Tehran said today they would not turn their American hostages over to Iran's ruling Revolu tionary Council as promised until the militants are given a hearing before the Iranian people.

This new condition was disclosed by a spokesman for the young radicals in a telephone interview with a reporter in the Iranian capital

He said they now demand "that the Iranian people know what we have to say" before the council, as requested by the militants Thursday, take over responsibility for the approximately 50 Americans

Another spokesman said earlier the group would like to appear "on a television and radio program to explain the truth to the nation." The militants are opposed to the council's intention to have the U.N. investigative commission on Iran visit the

The statements appeared to throw a roadblock into plans announced earlier today by Iranian Foreign Minis ter Sadegh Ghotbzadeh to transfer the hostages out of the embassy compound, probably Saturday.

It was not clear whether the latest statements from the militants had been communicated to government authorities, who were not immediately available for comment.

The new demand was disclosed after Tehran Radio reported that Iranian protesters, in the second day of demonstrations in support of the militants, marched past the embassy shouting slmgans calling on them not to give up the hostages to the Revolutionary Council.

The demonstrators have demanded that Iran not compromise with the

They said such a visit, favored by Bani Sadr and the rest of the council, was not consistent with the "Imam's line," that is, with the thinking of revolutionary leader Avatollah Ru hollah Khomeini. But they said they would give up the hostages because of pressure put on them by the Bani sadr government.

Bani Sadr says Khomeini gave the council authorization to decide on a U.N. commission visit if it saw fit.

County wants to be ready

First mortgage program steps taken

Staff Writer

Midland County Commissioners today voted to take an "insurance policy" for county residents by taking preliminary steps to approve a low-interest mortgage bond program for the

The county's program, if it is enacted, would be similar to the $30 million bond program recently sponsored by the city of Midland.

The program is still in the "iffy" stage because of pending federal legislation which, if passed in its present form, would effectively kill the bonding program by overly restricting the people eligible for the low-interest money, according to a Lubbock bond underwriter who presented the county's options in a special meeting called for 10 a.m. today

There are three possibilities for the future of the bonding programs, which were approved for Texas cities and counties by the last Legislature, according to Bill Carpenter of the bond underwriting firm of Fred Baker and Associates

-If the bill passes in the U.S. Congress, the programs will effectively be killed and no low-interest bond money could be issued. -If the bill passes with an amend-ready under way before passage to proceed. Midland County could participate if it has taken the necessary

If the bill fails to pass before Congress adjourns after the November elections, the bonding plan could proceed without restrictions

At best, the county would be unable to begin the program until about 45 to 60 days after the bill passed, possibly in May or June, Carpenter said.

The program passed by the state legislature allows a county or city to create a non-profit corporation which will issue tax-free municipal bonds and use the proceeds to provide lowinterest mortgage money for low- and moderate-income residents.

The program recently sponsored by the city of Midland was "spectacularly successful if a little on the small side," Carpenter said.

The Midland Housing Finance Corp. took only 45 days to process some $29 million in bond-backed mortagage money at an interest rate of 91/2 percent for about 500 residents, Harry Clark, president of the MHFC, told the commissioners.

While the county now has only about 10,000 to 15,000 residents outside the city limits, real estate brokers attending the meeting today told commissioners the county housing market was potentially huge and virtually untapped because of current restrictions on loans.

The county program also could include residents within the city, if the City Council approves, commissioners were told.

Commissioners agreed to incorporate a Midland County Housing Finance Corp. As part of the "insurance plan" to make sure Midland County's program is allowed if the federal legislation is passed with an amendment, the corporation will meet to name a bond attorney and underwriting company and place a maximum size on the potential bond issue.

Setting up the corporation does not obligate the county to issue the bonds even if federal roadblocks are re-

"We're not suggesting you rush onto the market with a big bond issue," Carpenter said, "we suggest you might want to take out an insurance policy on behalf of the citizens of

Grocery chains announce move to help in Carter's inflation fight

By The Associated Press

Safeway Stores Inc. and the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co. Inc. two of the nation's largest supermarket chains - say they are freezing prices on some products in response to a plea from the Carter administration for help in fighting inflation.

About 50 of the nation's largest food chains were asked to participate, but few had announced their decisions by Thursday Company officials said prices on private label products were frozen for 30 days, effective immediately at the 2,500 Safeway stores and 1,500 A&P groceries nationwide.

Ford says he still needs a push before entering campaign waters

By the Associated Press

Former President Gerald R. Ford says he still needs a push from his friends before taking another plunge in the Republican presidential campaign waters, but old foe Ronald Reagan thinks the former president is already wading in the wings.

"He really has more than his toes in the water," Reagan chided after a day that saw the unveiling of a national draft-Ford committee and a welling of other activity pointing to an almost inexorable if not imminent declaration of candidacy.

Ford himself was virtually begging to be begged. Winding up a golfing and speechmaking visit to Florida, he allowed that if enough people "put their names up front" and ask him publicly, "I'd have a hard time saying

Still, on Thursday night, Ford reminded an audience at St. Petersburg, Fla., that he said last October he would not be a candidate barring "unforeseen developments."

"As of tonight, no unforeseen developments have taken place to change my mind, but we'll wait and see."

Former Air Force Secretary Thomas C. Reed announced the creation of the draft-Ford group, saying the former president "offers the best alternatives to the bankrupt policies" of the Carter administration.

Arafat reportedly due invitation from Giscard

KUWAIT (AP) - French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing has promised Kuwaiti leaders he will give full recognition to the Palestine Liber ation Organization and invite PLO leader Yasser Arafat to Paris, a Kuwait newspaper reported today

Quoting "high ranking Kuwaiti offi cials," the daily Al-Siyassah said the French president's pledge was regarded here as one of the outstanding results of his visit to Kuwait last weekend.

The officials were quoted as saying Giscard d'Estaing "prefers Arafat's visit to Paris to take place as part of an overall political action so that the visit will have more positive repercussions and benefits to the Palestine question than if it were a courtesy

French officials have insisted there are no plans for such a visit.

Wholesale prices up 1.5 percent

But unemployment declined in February

WASHINGTON (AP) - Wholesale prices soared 1.5 percent in February, nearly matching January's surge, but unemployment declined slightly to 6 percent, the government reported

February's increase in the Labor Department's Producer Price Index showed little improvement from January's 1.6 percent rise, in good part because of near-record increases in gasoline and home heating oil

WASHINGTON (AP) - A new congressional report questions whether the proposed MX mobile missile program, designed to hide American warheads from a surprise attack, would work. And if it did, the report says, the cost might be prohibitive.

Insurance panel issues its rules for advertising

AUSTIN (AP) - Long-awaited truth-in-advertising rules have been issued by the State Insurance Board, which wants particularly to crack down on deceptive sales tactics for Medicare supplement

The board called an April 10 public hearing and will take a final vote on the rules after that.

Former board chairman Joe Christie put the state agency's staff to work on the rules in mid-1977. But action stalled for a number of reasons, including rapid turnover in the membership of the three-man

Insurance ads that include application blanks must spell out policy terms that would delay, deny or reduce benefits. These include waiting periods before a policy takes effect and exclusions of health insurance protection for illneses a customer had when he or she bought a policy.

For the first time, advertisements for health maintenance organizations (HMOs) and prepaid legal services plans would come under board regulation.

At hearings in November and December, old persons complained that many policies advertised as paying "everything that Medicare doesn't pay"

Labor leader backs increase in taxes

WASHINGTON (AP) - Organized labor's chief spokesman says he would endorse a government drive to balance the 1981 budget if Congress boosted taxes rather than cut an estimated $16 billion to $25 billion in federal spending.

"If we can get the value (from government programs), we're willing to pay the price," AFL-CIO resident Lane Kirkland told the House Budget Committee on Thursday

However, in a written proposal submitted to the committee, Kirkland suggested that billions of dollars in increased tax revenues should come from the nation's businesses, not individual Americans.

Separately, the head of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, Richard Lesher, told the House committee that the country faces a repeat of the Great Depression unless the government moves quickly to slash federal spending.

Kirkland said he strongly opposes balancing the budget by cutting social programs, arguing that workers and the poor should not be forced to make the biggest sacrifices while the rich continue to

The Carter administration and growing numbers of lawmakers are pressing to balance the budget for fiscal 1981 in response to a worsening inflation rate. But government officials are trying to accomplish that goal through budget cuts, and there appears to be no political support for increasing revenues, as Kirkland proposed.

Protesting workers fired by college

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — San Antonio Community College District officials have fired 32 maintenance workers — virtually the entire maintenance staff - because of a Feb. 29 work stoppage. The district is one of the largest in the state.

The district's entire 33-man maintenance staff refused to work for a day to protest the firing of their popular supervisor and poor working conditions. One of those workers had resigned earlier this week.

District officials said Thursday's mass firings were prompted by the employees' "unlawful participation in an organized work stoppage at all three campuses last Friday (Feb. 29).

But Linda Ramirez, who heads union in which the workers are members, said the firings are illegal. She said the workers were all rehired last Monday when they ended the walkout and returned to work. District authorities allowed the workers to return

Realistic treaty needed

The controversial SALT II treaty, it appears, now has little chance of ever being approved by the U.S. Senate.

Even before forces from the Soviet Union poured into Afghanistan, the new strategic arms limitation pact faced what some critics termed insurmountable odds in order to reach ratification.

The problems are inherent; the treaty contains fatal flaws that make it an unacceptable risk to the security of the United States.

Ironically, the day after the president formally asked that the treaty be withdrawn from active consideration in the Senate, he told the State Department to announce that the United States would abide by the treaty and that this nation expected the Soviets to do the same thing.

A naive move on Carter's part, perhaps, and the result has been as expected - cold silence from Moscow

The Soviets cannot be trusted to abide by a treaty that hasn't even formally been accepted and, due to its controversial provisions, may never be. To abide by such a treaty would constitute a "gentlemen's agreement." The Soviets do not recognize such agree-

But even if we were to assume that the Soviets would resist the temptation to do anything other than to exploit the loopholes and ambiguities contained in SALT II, those provisions would give them strategic superiority over the

Now, contained in SALT II, are both a first-strike capability for the Soviet Union and possibly an incentive to contemplate a nuclear attack on the United States.

With the Soviet Union's invasion of Afghanistan and its recent aggression, the two nations once again stand on the threshhold of a renewal of the costly and dangerous arms buildup of the cold war of a decade ago.

Reports from some quarters recently that the Soviet Union may be using nerve gas against Afghan rebels in Afghanistan — a step even declined by Germany's Adolph Hitler in World War II emphasizes the need for a SALT pact with the Soviet Union, but a treaty based on honest equality.

That's what a strategic arms limitation treaty is really all about and why the two nations must, somehow, again start moving toward an agreement.

But this time it must be realistic. It must be based on actual strategic figures and not lopsided in favor of the Soviet Union.

Without such a treaty, a new arms race will come and the hints of a return to the cold war era will become reality.

DARK HORSE?

CHARLEY REESE

U.S. leaders created motivational problem

The hot shots who generally run the United States government and dominate its intellectual establishment have outsmarted themselves.

This became clear to me recently when I debated a college professor or the subject of the draft. The general drift of comments and questions from the students were that: (1) they felt no particular allegiance to the U.S. government and (2) wars were fought mainly to protect corporate inter-

I argued against both points, but what the encounter really shows is that our leadership establishment has made a grave tactical error.

People, any people, can rally behind a clear, simple concept which associates their welfare with a larger goal and which implies a need for action on their part.

The most common such concept is nationalism. For a long time, nationalism was taught in the United States. People in the past were no more better informed about foreign affairs than we are, but in their homes, in their schools, in the books, movies and public forum, they were constantly being sold on nationalism.

In those days, American leaders had only to invoke the national interest and Americans responded instantly. Nationalism provided the consensus necessary to effective action by a democratic government.

Even the communists learned this. In World War II, Stalin had to appeal to Russian nationalism, not to communism, to rally his people against the Germans. Today, communists talk about national liberation, not about international communism

But what did we do? Our intellectuals and governing elites downplayed nationalism and preached internationalism. Unfortuantely, internationalism, as the communists discovered, requires too great a level of sophistication to be useable as a rallying concept.

Consequently, as each generation of Americans became less nationalistic, concensus became more difficult to reach. The politicians rejected anti-communism, primarily because they wanted to reach an accommodation with it rather than defeat it. They tried "peace," but that does not fit the definition. You can have peace by surrendering as well as by fighting and defeating an enemy.

Peace, as a motivational concept, is too open-ended. We found that out in the Vietnam War. Having down-graded both American nationalism and the concept of anti-communism, the leadership had a difficult time justifying a war which was so expensive but the objective of which was never clear.

The American people may not be sophisticated foreign policy analysts, but they have plenty of common sense. If the objective in Vietnam was to defeat communism, then why were we protecting it in Cuba and trading with it in Eastern Europe? If the war was part of an East-West conflict, then why were our Western allies opposing us? If the objective was to preserve South Vietnam, then why did we not destroy the source of the aggression, North Vietnam? If the objective was peace, why not simply come home?

The problem with the United States is not the American people as both President Carter and former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger have claimed. The problem is with the leadership, which is apparently morally bankrupt and devoid of

The American people are idealistic. They will rally to defend their ideals or, as the Iranian crisis proved, each other, but you cannot rally them to sacrifice for a new world economic order, regardless of whether that is or is not a desirable goal.

Nor can you reasonably expect our youth to risk their lives in confrontation with communism after you have assiduously taught them that communism is merely an alternative economic system.

Yes, our leaders and intellectuals have outsmarted themselves. They rejected nationalism, anti-communism and moral crusades, and now they are stuck with a generation they don't know how to motivate.

Gasohol development starts rolling

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON - President Jimmy Carter is belatedly posing as a pioneer spirit dedicated to the development of a gasohol industry that could help the United States weather the energy crisis. But unfortunately, consigned much of the pro gram to bureaucrats who would rather dawdle than drive.

For three years, I have been urging the government to get behind a crash gasohol program that could reduce U.S. dependence on oil imports and ease the Arab-imposed fuel crunch. But the White House and the Energy Department, under former Secretary James Schlesinger, ignored evidence that an alcohol-gasoline mixture could provide a domestically produced substitute for the high-octane gas used by American motorists.

During the past year, Jimmy Carter finally became a convert. He named a new energy chief, Charles Duncan, who has reversed the antigasohol stand of his hidebound predecessor. Yet the dismal fact remains that some of Carter's energy stewards are producing more hogwash than gasohol. The bureaucratic block in the gasohol project can be traced to the Agriculture Department, where Secretary Bob Bergland is dragging his feet on programs designed to extract ethanol from grain. Farmers and motorists throughout the country favor gasohol development, but Bergland and his stand-pat Agriculture Department advisers are obstinantly balking at any innovation that might cut into grain exports or drive up the prices of farm products.

Thought for today: Our sweetest 'It's always one step forward and songs are those which tell of saddest two steps backward with the Agriculthoughts. - Percy Shelley (1792ture Department" a congressional supporter of gasohol told my associate Peter Grant. "We got rid of Schlesinger and now the Energy Department is really moving. All we have to do now is get rid of Bergland."

Here is some of the sorry history of how Bergland and his subordinates have undercut the gasohol program:

In 1977, Congress authorized the Agriculture Department to guarantee $15 million in loans to set up four pilot plants that would extract fuels from farm products. The department backed only one loan to a gasohol test project run by an individual who had testified publicly against the whole concept. The borrower eventually backed out, and the department withdrew the loan guarantee.

The Agriculture bureaucrats have provided scant assistance to farmers who wish to set up their own small alcohol stills. Agriculture Department studies on the potential of gasohol are at best unenthusiastic, at worst pessimistic. One 1977 report inaccurately stated that ethanol did not raise the octane level in gaso-

Energy Department experts fought a backstage battle with their Agriculture counterparts over gasohol production goals. The Energy Department experts eventually prevailed and persuaded the president to aim for a 1981 target of 500 million gallons. Bergland and his advisers wanted to produce less.

Bergland has postponed the distribution of $100 million in loans to finance small gasohol stills until they can be "tested and proven." The fact that gas stations in all 50 states are presently stocking their tanks with gasohol and are reporting a high demand from satisfied customers apparently means little to the procrastiand the way he helped the families of his two assassinated brothers, acting as surrogate father for the children of record has nothing to do with public disdain for Kennedy's conduct after the Chappaquiddick affair, as national polls available to President Carter

Those polls put Carter ahead of

Kennedy as "a good family man" 70 percent to 7 percent. Those last-minute New Hampshire commercials had no apparent impact in reducing nators at Agriculture.

Bergland's boss in the White House has finally joined the move to gasohol and is claiming credit for proposals which were offered in Congress three years ago when his voice, like the turtle's, was nowhere heard. Meanwhile, scores of farmers, fed up with waiting for federal help, have built their own alcohol stills, and thousands more have applied for state permits.

Footnote: Weldon Barton, director of the Agriculture Department's energy office, said he and his colleagues have an "emerging policy" on gasohol which must be balanced with other priorities.

FUNERAL FLAP: A San Antonio mortician, Dr. James Reveley, has never spoken ill of the dead, but he did make the mistake of speaking ill of his fellow funeral directors while testifying before a congressional hearing four weeks ago.

Two days after his appearance as a witness, Reveley was cut off by his local supplier of caskets. A representative of the Royal Casket Co. of San Antonio informed him the company didn't approve of his testimony about price-gouging by the undertaking industry. "It's bad for the profession" the casket supplier told its customer of two years' standing. The rejection of Reveley - who is also a dentist - is typical of the high-handed tactics practiced by the funeral industry. The undertaking lobby has also succeeded in clamping a congressional ban on a move by the Federal Trade Commission to impose modest consumer protection regulations on the nation's funeral homes. The Capitol Hill onslaught was led by Rep. Marty Russo, D-Ill., a staunch defender of the undertakers, who quoted $50 million as the cost for extra paper work that would be required to produce FTC-mandated price lists for burials and cremations. It appears he juggled the figures to arrive at this inflated figure. A reading of the industry's own publications, meanwhile, reveals that morticians are willing - albeit reluctantly - to accept the FTC rule. And the April 1979, issue of one trade publication commeted editorially: While it is too early for judgment, we believe it to be more than likely that the rule ultimately proposed by the FTC commissioners will not be too difficult for funeral directors to accept and endure.'

INSIDE REPORT:

Aaron's error left Washington and Bonn smoldering adviser confided to us, "Reagan was being praised for his love of children

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON - The failure of a senior White House national security aide to tell West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt how angry President Carter was over the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan led to the dangerous split between Washington and Bonn that still smolders. David Aaron, deputy director of the National Security Council under Zbigniew Brzezinski, failed to make clear to Schmidt that Carter was not just considering a boycott of the summer Olympics in Moscow but was insisting on it. Schmidt was, therefore, unaware of the depth of Carter's fury at the Soviet military takeover and the anti-Soviet response planned inside the Oval Office. He later reacted with surprise and anger when Carter publicly announced the Olympic boycott, the grain embargo and the cutback in technological trade.

Carter sent Aaron to Western Europe soon after the Afghan invasion to explain exactly how U.S. policy would shape up following Carter's admitted shock at discovering how villainous Soviet policy could be. But Aaron did not get that point across strongly enough when he talked to Schmidt.

Nightmare odyssey' ends for Stayner, but not for Parnell

By JOHN HOWARD Associated Press Writer

He roamed the West in a nightmare odyssey, bitterly lonely and tortured by a past of imprisonment, masochism and homosexual rape. When Kenneth Parnell sought the love of children to warm his home, authorities say, he kidnapped them.

Parnell has been accused in two abductions seven years apart - the kidnapping of 5-year-old Timmy White on Feb. 14 in Ukiah, Calif., and the 1972 Merced, Calif., abduction of then-7-year-old Steven Stayner.

The balding 5-foot-7 Parnell pleaded innocent Tuesday to kidnapping White and was held on $12,000 bond. Authorities said they would file charges against Parnell in Stayner's abduction. They also said a second man was being sought in the abductions.

Sandwiched between official records - medical reports, court reports and hospital documents - are the still-mysterious gaps in Parnell's life that investigators are trying to piece together.

But the records show Kenneth Eugene Parnell - abandoned by his father at the age of 5 in Amarillo, Texas - lived a twilight existence for much of his 48 years, an existence that saw a journey through mental institutions and prisons.

"HE HAS SHOWN A PECULIAR TENDENCY to search for trouble and punishment," reported Dr. Richard D. Lowenberg, a psychiatrist who examined Parnell in 1951 at the behest of the Kern County Superior Court.

Lowenberg, now deceased, was appointed to paint a pyschological profile of the then-19-year-old Parnell, who was sent to San Quentin Prison for three years for the one-day abduction and sexual molestation of an 8-year-old Bakersfield boy.

The attack on the youngster occurred only four days after the birth of Parnell's only daughter by a teen-age girl he had married two years earlier. The marriage ended in divorce four years later, said his mother, Mary Parnell, because his wife "found someone else." Parnell's life was a litany of tragedy and self-hatred, extending from his years as a Texas waif through his adolescent bouts with the law and beyond, according to Lowenberg.

At the age of four, Parnell tried to yank out four of his own teeth with his fingers although they were not loose, Lowenberg said. At 8, after he came to California and three years after his father, a cook, deserted him and his mother, the youth shined a bright light into his eyes for so long he required treatment. At 9, Lowenberg reported, the boy was "considering

ONCE, THE BOY SHOT HIMSELF in the abdomen in an apparent suicide attempt, Lowenberg reported, while in another incident he jumped off the roof of a barn onto a large plank with nails jutting up.

"The end is only a step away," the report says Parnell yelled before jumping. He escaped, however, with only a single nail wound.

At 13, in an incident still clouded in mystery, Parnell was the victim of a homosexual rape. Two years later, he was accused in an airson fire, allegedly torching some grass on the outskirts of town. Parnell, a registered sex offender who lived in various parts of Northern and Southern California, escaped twice from a state mental hospital.

Lowenberg said Parnell had developed "an attachment to a younger boy with whom he had no affair, but for whom he felt a real liking." Following one of his escapes, that attachment drove Parnell to seek out the boy and enabled authorities to apprehend him.

DURING THE MID-1966S, PARNELL served six years in Utah State Prison on robbery and grand larceny convictions. When he was released from the Utah penitentiary on March 21, 1967, he was given 24 hours to leave the state in what authorities there said is routine procedure for inmates who of Northern California, according to authorities.

Their whereabouts from 1972 to 1975 are unclear, but on Sept. 2, 1975, Stayner - renamed Dennis Parnell - was registered in a Fort Bragg elementary school where he attended the fourth grade.

Authorities said the youth's parents were listed as Kenneth Parnell and Barbara Parnell. The latter name was apparently fictitious, investiga-

Later, the two moved on to Comptche, Calif., where Stayner took the bus to a middle school in nearby Mendocino to attend the fifth and

IN 1978 AND 1979, THE BOY went to upper level school in Mendocino, then transferred to high school in Point Arena. From there, the pair moved to Manchester near Ukiah.

Authorities said Parnell did not mistreat or molest the boys. Some people who knew Steven as "Dennis" said the boy who called Parnell 'Dad'' never gave a hint of being held against his will or wanting to leave.

"I thought it was a father and son all the time," said Leslie Stornetta, who owns the sheep ranch. "They came in here as father and son and got along well."

"It seemed he (Parnell) wanted to build a family for himself without going to the trouble of getting married," said Mendocino County District Attorney Joe Allen.

And Timmy's mother, Angela White, said she believed that Parnell Since the Merced abduction, Parnell and Stayner lived in various parts had no malicious intent, that he just "wanted a little boy."

WASHINGTON (AP) — A group of Vietnam War veterans, backed by congressional support, is proposing construction of a "rustic" memorial to honor the 57,661 Americans who died in Vietnam.

The memorial would be located in a grove of trees within easy sight of the Lincoln Memorial - where thousands of demonstrators gathered often during the 1960s to protest U.S. involvement in Indo-

The proposed memorial, described by proponents as more of a landscaped park than a traditional monument, would be the first in Washington to specifically honor those who died in Vietnam.

'We are planning it as a rustic garden retreat," said John P. Wheeler, one of four Vietnam veterans serving as directors of the effort to raise money and seek support for the project.

"It is not going to be a big block of granite," said Wheeler, a lawyer and West Point graduate.

At a news conference, Wheeler said the memorial would include a listing of the names of all 57,661 who died in Vietnam. Jan C. Scruggs, director of the Vietnam Veterans

Memorial Fund, estimated the memorial would cost $2 million, all of it to be raised through private contributions Scruggs said it would be appropriate to locate the

The authors of legislation setting aside the land are Rep. John P. Hammerschmidt, R-Ark. and Sen. Charles Mathias, R-Md.

Among non-congressional members of a sponsoring committee are comedian Bob Hope, Veterans Administration chief Max Cleland, Rocky Bleier, who was wounded in Vietnam but returned to become a star running back for the Super Bowl champion Pittsburgh Steelers, sports commentator Howard Cosell, and James Webb, author of the Vietnam novel "Fields of Fire."

Don't double for the sake of increasing the penalty by 50 or 100 points. The information you give away could prove costly if an experienced declarer is at the helm.

West's double was excessively greedy, for he certainly couldn't expect more than a one-trick set. Sitting South was Gabriel Chagas of Brazil, one of the world's great players. He realized that West's double had to be based on the expectation of making two trump tricks, so he planned the play on that assumption. * If clubs were 5-0, or if West held the king of spades as well as a trump stack, there was little hope for the contract. Therefore, declarer ruffed the opening lead, entered dummy with a heart to the nine and immediately took the spade finesse. When that succeeded, things began

Declarer cashed the ace of spades and ruffed a spade low. He returned to his hand with a diamond ruff and ruff ed his last spade with the eight of trumps. His card reading was vindicated when East discarded on this trick.

Only one more hurdle had to be cleared-guessing West's red suit distribution. Chagas guessed right by cashing two heart tricks, ending in dummy. That reduced his hand and West's to nothing but trumps. New he simply led a red card from the table and took care to ruff with the jack of trumps. Whether West overruffed or not, he could score only one trump trick.

Had West abstained from doubling and been satisfied to collect only a small profit, Chagas would certainly have gone down. With three discards available on dummy's red winners, the slam would have been safe if he lost only one trump trick. Whether he won the opening lead in dummy and finessed in trumps or simply led a club to his ace, he would have had to lose two trump tricks for controversial vote in favor of a United Nations resolution critical of Israel may be a key issue among Jewish voters of south Florida in next week's Democratic presidential primary.

Backers of President Carter are trying to minimize the effects of the Carter administration vote, which the president has labeled a mistake.

Meanwhile, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., has attacked Carter for the vote, saying the action jeopardized Israel's security. Kennedy backers have seized on the issue to help them with South Florida's high-turnout, heavily Jewish condominium bloc of voters.

"There's a good deal of skepticism, a good deal of questioning, a good deal of discomfort over this," said Anne Ackerman, a Carter supporter and the 66-year-old political leader of the Point East condominium complex in North Miami Beach. "Don't ask me how it will affect what happens next Tuesday, but it will

The Carter administration has called the vote a mistake that resulted from a breakdown in communications among the White House, State department, and U.N. Ambassador Donald McHenry. Secretary of State Cyrus Vance has personally accepted responsibility for the mistake.

Administration officials say the United States didn't intend to vote for the resolution unless a specific reference to Jerusalem was dropped.

Kennedy has charged that the action "has managed to jeopardize the security of Israel, damaged the peace process in the Middle East, undermined our relations with other friends and made American foreign policy the laughing stock of nations throughout the world."

The issue has blossomed in the Jewish community here, particularly in the high-rise condominium complexes in which about 500,000 retirees, most of them Jews, live in Dade, Broward and Palm Beach counties. They are heavily organized, have unusually high turnout in elections and frequently make Israel and the Middle East the litmus test in national elections.

Mrs. Ackerman, who has been to Israel 10 times in the last 20 years with her husband Irving, a retired Chicago insurance executive, said she was angry about the vote, but accepted Carter's explanation that it was a mistake.

Other members of the South Florida Jewish community apparently had a similar reaction. Carter campaign manager Jay Hakes said "there's some effect showing up in our phone calling" even though he believes the controversy ultimately will have only negligible effects.

Mrs. Ackerman has suggested that Commerce Secretary Philip M. Klutznik, a former president of the World Jewish Congress, campaign more in South Florida. He visited Point East Wednesday and met with Palm Beach and Broward County condo leaders Thursday.

The Kennedy camp is trying to capitalize on the controversy in several ways. It has told Kennedy surrogate Allard K. Lowenstein, a former deputy U.S. ambassador to the U.N., to hammer away at the issue in his campaigning among South Florida Jews this week.

Kennedy coordinator Tim Hanan said the campaign would begin distributing thousands of flyers highlighting the U.N. issue to Jewish condo-dwellers today.

Aide says Bush will use 'competency' as an issue

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) - George Bush's political director says the Bush campaign is going to attack Ronald Reagan sharply on the question of whether Reagan is competent to handle the presidency.

As Bush intensified his campaigning Thursday in his competition against Reagan in four southern primaries, David Keene, Bush's chief political adviser and a former Reagan aide, said Bush will start attacking Reagan on ground that the former California governor tends to be trig-

'We want to raise certain questions about whether the governor is giving a lot of thought to some of the things he's saying and whether he's really prepared to handle some of thse problems we're going to face in the 80s," Keene said in an interview Thursday.

"We agree with the goals that Gov. Reagan is trying to reach, but we wonder whether he's really thought out his programs. We may have to point out that it was Reagan who didn't know the name of the president of France in an interview, for example," Keene said. In 1976, Keene, a former president of the conservative group Young Americans for Freedom, was Reagan's chief southern strategist. Bush, who says Reagan is his only real obstacle to winning the Republican presidential nomination, has added an attack on Reagan to his standard campaign speech.

Bush cites Reagan's frequent call for a naval "blockade" of Cuba in retaliation for the Soviet military intervention in Afghanistan.

A blockade, says Bush, goes further than the "quarantine" imposed by President John F. Kennedy during the 1962 Cuban missile crisis and the word blockade "connotes war."

As for the possibility that former president Gerald Ford may enter the race, Bush, who served Ford as CIA director and envoy to China, says he's "disinclined to believe that Ford will get into the primaries, but if he does, welcome — the water's fine.

Bush says a Ford candidacy would complicate his own race, "but it doesn't mean the end of the road for me or anybody else."

During a speech Thursday in an Orlando convention center, Bush stripped off his suit jacket and pounded a lecturn until his shirt was soaked with sweat.

Behind him, separated by only a glass wall, sunlovers in bikinis paddled in a swimming pool, oblivious to the politics of 1980.

Reagan says Ford would be a 'formidable' opponent

ATLANTA (AP) - Republican presidential candidate Ronald Reagan says former President Gerald Ford's entry into the race for the GOP nomination now appears "a distinct possibility" and that Ford would make a formidable opponent.

"It seems like he's gotten the itch," Reagan told the Atlanta Jaycees Thursday night, adding that "Maybe he's developed a slice" in his golf

It wasn't the first time Reagan had used that joke about Ford's newfound interest in the campaign. So far, it's kept 'em laughing. Reagan found himself bombarded with questions on Ford as he campaigned through the South in the re-maining days before the first series of southern primaries.

The former California governor was to take a bus tour today through North and South Carolina before heading to Florida. South Carolina's GOP primary is on Saturday, fol-lowed by ones next Tuesday in Florida and Georgia. At a news conference in Marietta, Ga., a suburb of Atlanta, Reagan said of talk of a Ford candidacy: "I think it's a distinct possibility. He certainly is making noises that way ,... and he'd have to be considered a formidable opponent."

However, Reagan contended that if Ford were to enter and steal votes from other GOP contendels, "it's more likely they would come from the others than from me." He did not elaborate.

Later, Reagan told the Atlanta Jaycees' audience, "If I thought there was anyone in the race who had a better chance of winning than I, then I would quit and campaign for them."

Reagan told reporters he hoped to spend most of the remaining time between now and next week's primaries "bus-touring around and meeting as many people as possi-

Part of this strategy included a scaled-down campaign both in terms of budget and travel.

In one of the first major budget-cutting decisions since his campaign staff shakeup last week, Reagan campaign officials on Thursday canceled his scheduled, charter cam-

Reagan instead began traveling on smaller charter aircraft, sending aides and reporters scurrying to make their own arrangements for following the candidate.

Neil Bush speaks out with young candor

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) - Neil Bush, son of Republican presidential contender George Bush, told a University of Florida fraternity Thursday night his father would "kick ass" in the state's primary Tuesday.

And the 24-year-old Bush got a dig in about Ronald Reagan's age, breaking the "11th commandment," a prohibition proposed by Reagan against criticizing fellow Republicans. "We're going to kick ass in this state but we need your help," the young Bush told members of the Signma Chi fraternity on the university's fraternity row.

The former California governor is "not bad if you like a 69-year-old president," he told the same group. Bush later told reporters he should not have made either remark.

"The 11th commandment doesn't apply to No. 3 sons," George Bush said later, apologizing for his son's comments.

Anderson stumps in his home state by attacking draft

CHICAGO (AP) - While other Republicans campaign in the South, Rep. John Anderson is back home in Illinois, trying to duplicate his strong showing in two New England presidential primaries by mustering support for his "new coalition" among students

The 58-year-old Illinois congressman, a dark horse for the GOP presidential nomination until his second-place finishes in Massachusetts and Vermont this week, was cheered like a rock 'n' roll star Thursday when he arrived at the University of Chicago.

There, before several hundred students, and earlier at another school he stressed his opposition to draft registration.

Attacking President Carter for his registration proposal, Anderson said "it is more out of a desire to create that image of a strong leader, that he has offered us merely a symbol and not the substance of what a truly creative and constructive foreign policy

Anderson said the nation should continue with "a tradition that I think is compatible with the Democratic spirit and that is that in time of peace, you simply do not resort to a forced draft."

He said the nation should stop and think carefully about the reasons "before we send the young men, and possibly the young women, of this country to fight and die on the shores of the Persian Gulf."

The University of Chicago crowd applauded wildly. Some of the students shouted, "Right on!" The 1960s flavor of his campaign was also evident later at the Chicago Press Club when he quoted a quip about New Hampshire from former Democratic Sen. Eugene McCarthy. At practically every stop, he quotes Adlai Stevenson, the late Illinois governor two-time

Democratic presidential candidate. Anderson urged the students to work in the March 18 Illinois primary for his coalition of Republicans, independents and "disaffected Democrats." Surveys in Massachusetts after that primary indicate large numbers of independents voted for Anderson, who is clearly the most liberal contender in his party.

Genetically speaking, columnist looking for bank

Everyone knows his breed is witty, erudite, quite knowledgeable

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

RIDGEFIELD, Conn. (AP) - All weekend long I waited for that call from the Repository for Germinal

Choices, but it never came. I figured that once that California sperm bank had worked its way through the Nobel Prize winners, we columnists would be next in line among the intellectual elite

Genetically speaking, we've got the right stuff to produce a new race of whizz kids: erudition, poise, charm, wit, elegance of diction, encyclopedic knowledge of a wide variety of subjects from the advent of the Arabian abaciacus to the 19th century decline of zoetropes and zymurgy in Zurich, plus the uncanny knack of distilling all this wisdom into delightful little essays suitable for framing three days a week.

Ever since my Christmas Club ran out and mortgage rates zoomed out of sight, I have been shopping around for a bank that would safely husband (can that be the word?) my diminishing resources. The Repository for Germinal Choice set up by 74-year-old Robert K. Graham, an Escondido, Calif., businessman and sometime optometrist who pioneered plastic lenses, appeared to be the answer. California's friendly neighborhood sperm bank seemed to offer everything the discriminating depositor would expect when opening a Swiss account with the gnomes of Zurich (no relation to the zoetropes): dignity, discretion, a high class clientele. None of this drive-in window, free balloons for the kids and pop-up toasters for opening new accounts hoopla that has turned so many of our local banks into playpens with gilded bars. No peepie-creepie-catchee-thiefee hidden TV cameras either

lities with the news vendor cradling the sack of coins in his arms or the haberdasher ahead of you with a fistful of checks to be entered.

Graham confided in an interview that three U.S. Nobel Prize scientists, including Shockley, had made donations to his sperm bank. At least one Nobel laureate, Dr. Francis Crick, a British physiologist now working at the Salk Institute in San Diego, Calif., had been asked to give sperm to the bank but according to his spokesman refused to have anything to do with

The bank's founder said he had no notions of creating a Nazi-style master race, but his sole intention was "to increase the number of offspring of our most creative scientists and to give bright, young healthy women a choice from among three Nobelists which they would have as the father of their child, provided their husbands agreed also.'

In the past two months, Graham revealed, three women responded to the offer and have been successfully inseminated, but none is certain as yet whether she is pregnant.

Well, when they get around to offering a choice of three brilliant columnists to heir splitting, intelligent, healthy young women, the geneticists might do well to follow the breeding techniques of thoroughbred horse

In the brood barns of Kentucky and Virginia, where tomorrow's champions are bred, the idea is to match a mare with early foot, a sprinter, with strong, durable stallion who has demonstrated stamina and speed at distances of a mile and a half or better - or the other way around

Columnists, by nature, are slow, deep thinkers and quick, bright writers - or the other way around, if they do the financial stuff.

It might be well to mate a quick thinking, slow-writing economics pundit with a lady zither player or an Olympic gymnast to increase the dexterity factor in the offspring.

On the other hand, your average everyday agile human interest columnist, a torrent at the typewriter but a laggard in the library chair, might be matched with a lightning intellect from the ranks of the Las Vegas croupiers (whatever is the feminine designation for this deft profession) or the quick calculating queen of a supermarket checkout counter.

Some disappointments with their offspring are in store for the intelligent healthy young women who volunteer to conceive a new generation of columnists, dedicated as they may be to the proposition that the likes of Art Buchwald, Red Smith, George Will, Mike Royko, Arthur Hoppe, et al shall not perish from the earth. Columnists as a class tend to be moody, paranoid, malingering procrastinators who go around talking to themselves and are known to become violent when approached with a sentence beginning "why don't you write a column on..." Solitary in their habits, schizoid in combining a massive ego with a gnawing inferiority complex, they are fit company at best, as John Barrymore once observed, for none but bartenders, prizefighters and priests. There is a large, loafing dignity about them which is often mistaken for diligence of mind but in reality is just basic brooding over what is to be written tomorrow, or in cases of a deep funk, today. Their charm is the charm of Paris as Henry James described it: "an iridescence of idle-

An abaciacus, in case any young lady in line at the columnar heir bank should enquire, is a square of tile in a mosaic pavement. How many kids today know that? A zoetrope is a mechanical toy for precocious children, like those fathered by columnists, that consists of a revolving cylinder in which pictures are whirled to give the effect of motion. Zymurgy is the practice of home brewing, as in bathtub gin, which sustained many brilliant columnists in the bad old days.

Future-minded ladies of intelligence and understanding seeking a donation should enclose a photograph of themselves. By appointment only.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) - Johnny Mullins, the 56year-old song-writing janitor whose "Blue Kentucky Girl" made the finals in the Grammy awards, is back behind his broom at Wilder Elementary School.

His song didn't win last week, but Emmylou Harris, who revived it, won top honors for female vocalist. And Mullins left a cassette of his songs with her and was told she might include some on an upcoming album.

A janitor at the school for 23 years, Mullins has had 41 songs recorded, with seven hitting the charts and four making it into the top ten. He's hoping his trip to Hollywood for the Grammys may help him become a full-time song

'Songwriting is my first love," he said. "But it would also be a sad day for me when I had to say goodbye to my kids. The students helped raise money to send him to the awards and gave him a hero's welcome when he got back.

Environmentalists will fight Carter coal conversion plan

WASHINGTON (AP) - Environmental groups are vowing to defeat President Carter's $10 billion program to convert utilities to coal because the proposal does not impose the safeguards they consider essential to protect against a growing acid rain prob-

Carter, in sending his proposal to Congress Thursday, said it represents a "sound investment in the nation's energy future" and is vital if the country is to meet his goal of halving foreign oil

But environmentalists charged the proposal could undo all the gains made in the last decade in cleaning up the air.

The program would provide $3.6 billion in federal grants to pay up to 50 percent of the costs of converting 50 power plants, primarily in the Northeast, to coal by 1985.

Besides these mandatory conversions, the program would provide another $6 billion for voluntary conversion programs by utilities nationwide away from oil and natural gas. Utilities could qualify for these funds by converting to coal, nuclear power, synthetic fuels or "renewable resources" such as hydroelectric

Environmentalists are unhappy that the coal conversions will be allowed under existing state air standards, which weren't designed with widespread coal conversion in mind. The Environmental Protection Agency had fought a losing battle inside the administration for setting tight pollution controls as a condition or allowing a utility to convert.

EPA officials said that without the tighter standards, the levels of sulfur dioxide and nitrogen oxide, the two prime causes of acid rain, would increase 25 percent in the Northeast.

The pollutants mix with atmospheric moisture to form a weak acid that falls as precipitation — the acid rain that is killing fish in American and Canadian lakes.

Robert Rauch, an attorney with the Environmental Defense Fund, said he believed environmental groups would be able to defeat the measure in Congress

"I think a lot of people are going to realize this is the kind of economic program we don't need. By going back to coal and by failing to limit emission levels, we stand to lose air quality gains made in the last 10 years," he said.

The proposal includes $400 million to provide more pollution control equipment for coal plants, but Carter conceded that the bill did not "resolve" the acid rain problem. He called on Congress to work with the administration to develop an overall strategy for dealing with the condition.

The administration lined up a formidable group of supporters of the legislation. Senators from various coal states, including Majority Leader Robert Byrd of West Virginia, and United Mine Workers Union President Sam Church Jr. were on hand when the legislation was unveiled. Church said the proposal was needed to put 20,000 unemployed miners back to work.

The administration said the mandatory conversions would save 400,000 barrels of oil daily and put the savings from the voluntary conversions at 600,000 barrels a day. Carter's energy program calls for the country to slash its dependence on foreign oil by 5 million barrels a day by 1990.

Originally the administration said 62 power plants would be picked for the mandatory conversions in a $12 billion program. But that proposal was scaled back in the last month as part of Carter's overall effort to limit the federal budget to fight

The 50 plants now scheduled for the mandatory conversions are in Connecticut, Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, New Jersey, New York, Delaware, Maryland, Pennsylvania, Virginia, Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Michigan and Arkan-

Accomplice hunted in kidnap of boy

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - Armed with the vivid description of a face revealed while a 5-year-old boy was under hypnosis, police in Ukiah, Calif., today hunted an accomplice of the ex-convict drifter accused of kidnapping young Timmy White after living with another abducted youth for seven years.

'We have a couple of leads, a couple of indications that Kenneth Parnell may have had someone help him in Timmy White's abduction," said District Attorney Joe Allen of Ukiah.

He said investigators do not have a name to match the face, but "he was here two weeks ago." Allen declined to discuss details.

The Ukiah youngster, who disappeared Feb. 14, was returned to his home Saturday by 14-year-old Steven Stayner, who had lived with Parnell since his own abduction seven years before. Parnell, a 48-year-old drifter, remained jailed in

Ukiah today in lieu of $20,000 bail, charged with kidnapping the White child. Parnell, who may not be arraigned here until next week, also faces possible charges in the 1972 abduction of Stayner, who has been reunited with his family in Merced, 200 miles

Ervin Edward Murphy, 38, night janitor in a fosemite National Park lodge, was to be arraigned Merced today on a kidnapping charge in the Stayner case. He appeared in court Thursday but his attorneys obtained a delay. He is being held under $50,000 bond.

Police have said Murphy, who apparently had no contact with Parnell since a telephone conversation n 1975, was identified by Stayner but was not a suspect in the White case.

White told his parents a second man helped Parnell. Allen said the boy was hypnotized by an investi-gator from the district attorney's office for about 45 inutes Wednesday.

White's mother, Angela, said he "did very well" during the session at the grammar school he attends. She said police were "pleased" with the information

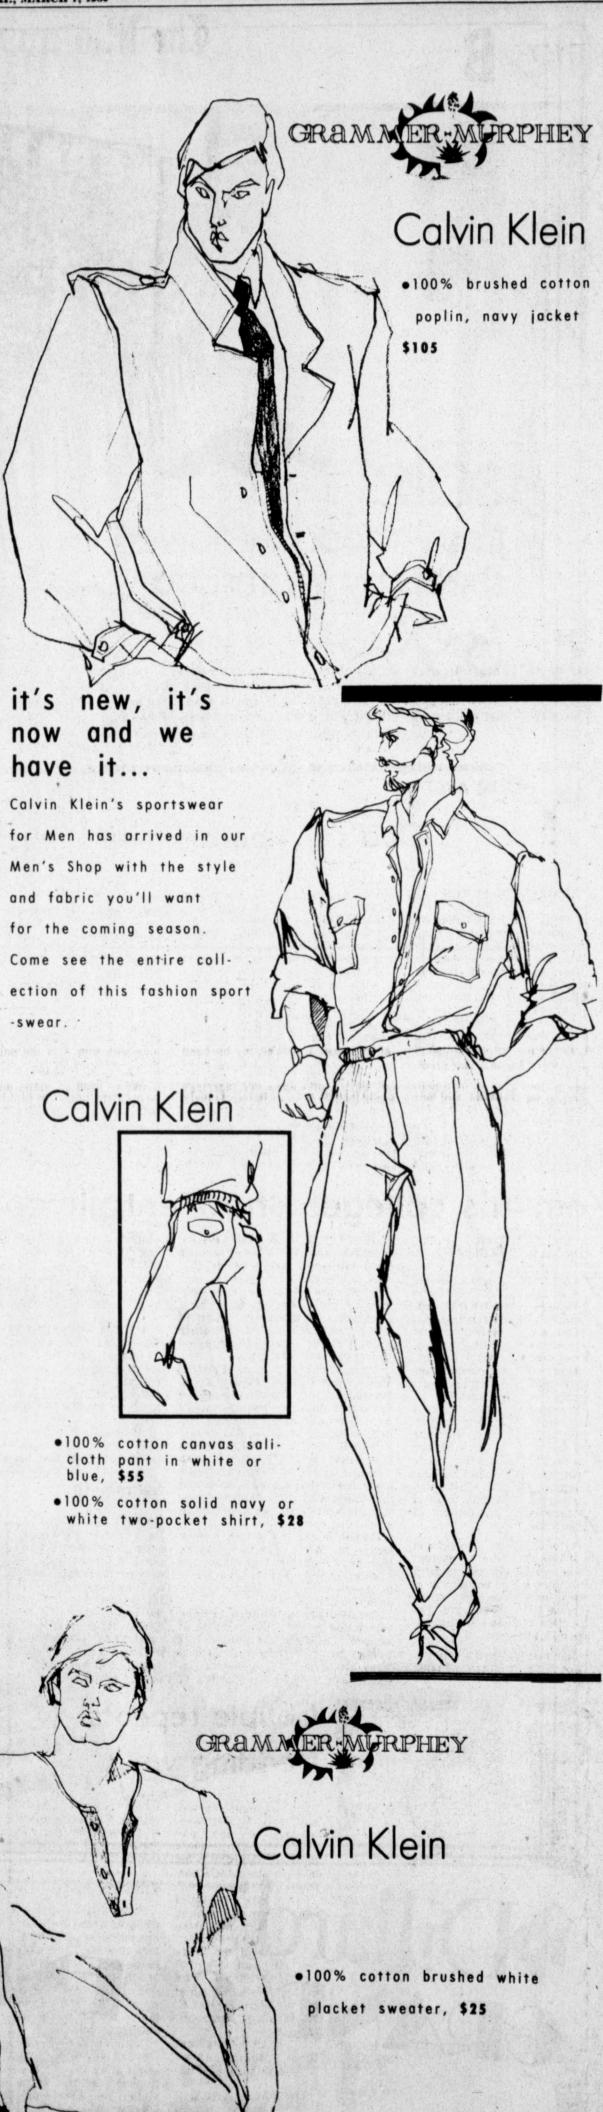

"We're working on this very hard," Allen said

Meanwhile, authorities remained stumped about a ossible motive for Murphy's alleged participation in the Stayner kidnapping. Murphy and Parnell once worked together at Yosemite Lodge.

"What we have here is two very lonely people, both with night jobs, no girlfriends, no homosexual connection in the usual sense of a gay lifestyle, both physically unattractive types of people," Allen

Authorities said apparently neither White nor tayner was molested.

New colors, styling in men's spring jeanswear

NEW YORK, N.Y. - There is a great deal of excitement in jeanswear styling for men for Spring/Summer 80, according to Jeanswear Communications, a division of the Men's Fashion Association.

The Western influence continues to be extremely important with a unanimous vote for the traditional fivepocket, straight legged jean. Denim remains the number one fabric choice. However, fashion is seldom static and the newer looks in jeans are fabrics like sheeting, chintz, chambray and seersucker. There has been an explosin of color and a host of new styling influences.

ACTIVE SPORTSWEAR has influenced about every other area of sportswear and jeanswear is no exception. Comfort styling and bold, hi-voltage colors synonymous with active wear look just as sensational in jeanswear. Bold red, bright yellow, clean green and electric blue all stand out in any spectator crowd!

Hi-tech has become the handle for workwear fashion. Hi-tech began a few seasons ago when young people discovered uniforms. Overalls, carpenter's jeans, painter's paints and other workday garments, staples in the uniform trade for over 45 years, to honor artist are showing up on the fashion scene, authentic in many details with one exception: color! Hi-tech's popularity relates directly to comfort, something young people have known about for some time.

This past year, the baggie jean took women's wear by storm. Baggies for men have been somewhat modified...just a hint of ease at the waist, fuller throgh the hip and thigh, nar-rowing at the ankle. Whether a fad or a trend, the baggie's influence should be felt for some time to come.

Comfort has been the key to jeanswear' success. There has been a general easing and re-shaping of the jean, giving thought to that older, more mature man who spent his growing-up years in jeans and now finds those same jeans no longer fit. For him, the introduction of stretch will be one of the most important influences.

DESIGNER JEANS have placed their emphasis on status and on fit. Those who have discovered the comfort of jeans no longer have just one pair of jeans in their wardrobe; and will certainly reach for a pair of designer jeans for that special occasion in their life.

Watch for the return to patterned jeans. Small checks, shadow stripes and muted plaids are on the scene for Spring. A popular jeanswear fabric, called railroad stripe, was once sold exclusively to the uniform trade for railroad workmen's uniforms. Iridescent color continues to be very imporcant. Patterning is a trend that will be felt more strongly in the Fall season. Some specific detailing that is very strong: The look of white in hi-tech styling, electric colored cottons, boatneck sweater accompaniment, and the traditional straight-legged jean, but in hi-voltage color.

Look for a variety of interesting fabrics on the scene, such as cotton

JEANS HAVE BECOME an attitude, a way of life. They've captured the very spirit of an easy-going, more relaxed American lifestyle. Each year over 650 million square yards of denim alone go into the making of jeans. Over one-half billion pairs of jeans are sold. That's 16 pairs a second, nearly 60,000 pairs an hour, 365 days a year.

DEAR ABBY

Dad's temporary visit turns permanent

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Help! Last year my husband asked if I would mind having his recently widowed father come to stay with us "for a while," giving him a chance to meet new friends, become familiar with our area, and get a fresh outlook on life away from sad memories of an ill wife and her death. I agreed.

It has been a year since Dad arrived, and he makes no mention of finding a place of his own. Our privacy is gone, a child gave up his room, Dad expresses no gratitude, and he's not all that clean! In fact, his room is smelling up the house.

I've told my husband that I'm very unhappy with this setup. Our family law who expressed his gratitude ocdoctor savs Dad is healthy and casionally and didn't smell up the strong, and we as a young family deserve our privacy. I know deep down that my husband feels as I do, but he refuses to do anything about it because he feels sorry for him.

I sometimes question my right to want Dad out of our house; I came into this marriage with children from a previous marriage. My husband adopted them and has become a wonderful provider. Now I feel guilty because I can't do the same in his father's case. However, my husband knew I had children when he married me, but I didn't know our marriage would include a father-in-law. Is there a solution? — MISERABLE

DEAR MISERABLE: Would a marriage that included a father-inhouse be tolerable? If so, your husband should speak frankly to Dad. If your resentment at having lost your privacy is what is really gnawing at you, you must discuss it calmly and candidly with your husband. Unre-solved anger seldom disappears with time. Women's colleges show enrollment increase

By URSULA VILS
The Los Angeles Times

During the 1960s, women's colleges fell prey to rising costs, declining birth rates and competition from public institutions. Then the notion that coeducation was a better way for women to advance led to the disappearance of many women's colleges. Some colleges turned coeducational; some merged with men's schools; some simply closed their doors.

Now, as higher education faces a dwindling number of students and an escalating inflation rate, women's colleges seem to be bucking the trend: In each of the last five years, enrollment rates at women's colleges have increased, and so at substantially higher percentages than those of other independent institutions of higher education.

A survey of 53 women's colleges in the fall of 1978 showed a 2.5 percent increase in enrollment, as against a 1.6 percent increase in enrollment at independent institutions and a 7 percent decrease at public colleges. The freshman class at these women's colleges was up 3.4 percent.

The nation's 117 women's colleges educate about 110,000 undergraduates numbers, women's colleges retain a loyal following among students, parents, alumnae and educators. Further, they are bolstered by data gathered by two respected researchers, Professor Alexander W. Astin of UCLA and Professor M. Elizabeth Tidball of the George Washington University Medical Center.

Astin's study, "Four Critical Years," was a 10-year survey of 200,-000 students and 300 institutions. Astin found that single-sex colleges, men's as well as women's, "facilitate stu-dent involvement in several areas: academic, interaction with faculty, and verbal aggressiveness.'

He also found that women's colleges foster leadership among women and that students are more likely to develop high aspirations and to persist to graduation.

Tidball, in examining 1,500 women named in "Who's Who of American Women," found that graduates of women's colleges were twice as likely to become achievers as those of coeducational institutions.

She also found a significant positive correlation between the numbers of women achievers and numbers of women faculty members at the colleges attended. Since women's colleges have a higher proportion of

The research statistics come as no surprise to those who administer women's colleges, and who are determined to see them survive as such.

lot of sick animals, or are these just preventive doses Dear Ms. W .: Diseases of the heart are the leading the animals are getting? Either way, it sounds risky Dear Dave: Almost 40 percent of all antibiotics used in the United States goes into animals; it is included in their feed as a method of promoting growth but not because the animal is sick. The practice has created some controversy. On the one hand, many scientists contend that the use of antibiotics in the absence of specific indications poses a threat to human health by creating resistant strains of bacteria. Cattle and poultry farmers, on the other hand, claim there is no clear evidence that their use of antibioties in animal feed is harmful. Meat producers also point out the prices for their product would rise substantially is the use of antibiotics were limited. The controversy will not soon be settled but the House of Representatives has authorized a grant to the National Academy of Science to begin a study of the issue in conjunction with the Food and Drug Administration. Meanwhile, the use of antibiotics in animal feed continues.

Dear Dr. Solomon: My nine-year-old son recently was struck on the cheek while playing ball, causing a cut on the inside of his mouth, which bled profusely. Fortunately, it stopped bleeding after I had him rinse his mouth several times with water. However, I was wondering what I should have on hand for an injury of this kind in case there should be a need for it in the future. — Mrs. T.F.

Dear Mrs. F.: According to a panel of experts established by the Food and Drug Administration, peroxide is the only product that is safe and effective in cleaning injuries of the mouth and gums. The panel evaluated all of the ingredients contained in over-the-counter drugs, whose stated purpose is the cleaning and healing of such injuries. Incidentaly, no ingredients were found to be effective in promoting

Kids not slaves to TV, says study

WASHINGTON (AP) - Tests with scores of young children indicate they are selective television viewers who can tune it out or turn it off when it doesn't interest them, according to

Dr. Daniel R. Anderson of the University of Massachusetts in Amherst said Thursday he has found that most children do not begin serious TV watching until they are about 2 or 21/2

When they are old enough to watch, they look at what interests them or what they understand, Anderson said. And when they are not interested, they will change channels to find something else or even turn the set off if they can, he added. 'The notion that children become slaves to television is overblown," Anderson said in a telephone interview. "I see television as one element in a complex web of relationships. It's given far too much credit for being psychology, said two studies with a total of 130 children aged 1 through 5 years s'now the complex and sophisticated way in which young children watch television.

The research, sponsored by the National Science Foundation, showed that children younger than 21/2 years do not watch TV in a deliberate manner, although their attention is attracted occasionally by the sights and

At 3 years or older, they show a sharp increase in attention and seem to watch TV as something to do in

"Many parents have noticed this before, but it has not been documented scientifically," Anderson said.

The psychologist said most studies have been concerned with the impact of TV upon children, such as the effects of viewing violence. But little work has been done on how or why a child watches TV, he added. Anderson said the older children

Anderson, an associate professor of watening iv in a living room setting tended to do other things at the same time, such as playing with toys or other children.

If these other options were available, they watched TV about 50 percent of the time. If there was nothing else to do, they watched 90 percent of

But in either case, the watching was not random, mindless viewing, Anderson said.

'The children distribute their attention throughout the program and pay attention to only what is poten-tially understandable," Anderson said. "The kids learn quickly what is of value to them.

When not watching the screen, children often listen to the sounds of the set. When they hear certain sounds, which serve as cues that something interesting may be on, they look up.

The preschoolers respond to the sounds of women's and children's voices, but not those of men, the researchers found.

Anderson speculated that they interpret the voices of females and other children as preludes to things they can understand. Men's voices on TV signal abstract things children aren't interested in, such as newscasts or adult programs.

The researcher noted that children also were not too interested in nature films depicting animals in their habitat, something frequently seen by adults as children's programming. This is because children see little or no connection between themselves and the animal scenes, he said. "Kids are not the victims of their own attention," Anderson said. "The theory that children are locked into television by its lights, sounds, lines and images is simply untrue."

"If a kid is in a situation of appearing to be 'glued to the tube,' then you have to look at the environment outside the TV - such as his home life, relationships and the alternatives he has - to find the problem," Anderson

Dr. James Cavanaugh, director of the Isaac Ray Center for psychiatry and law at Rush Presbyterian-St.Luke Medical Center, said that in his opinion Gacy is legally sane and would not qualify for treatment in a state mental institution.

Prosecutors are seeking the death penalty. The defense contends Gacy is innocent by reason of insanity.

Cavanaugh said he did not think Gacy, who has acknowledged the killings, would benefit by being in a mental hospital if he were found innocent by reason of insanity, adding Gacy "would not meet the standards of admittance and if the law was followed he would have to be released."

Circuit Judge Louis B. Garippo excused the jury and witness temporarily, then told the attorneys they were going off the track. "We can't open up a whole issue of civil law....I can't sit back and allow this to get into the trial and be off on a mental health case.'

When the jury and witness returned, he told them both sides "have made commentaries about the future of the defendant in event you would find him not guilty by reason of insanity....You are to disregard any testimony of the witness or comments by any of the attorneys" on this aspect of

Jury to get triple murder case today

PURCELL, Okla. (AP) - After 11 days of testimony, jurors in the triple-murder trial of Roger Dale Stafford were going to court today to hear rebuttal and final arguments.

Deliberations were expected to begin today in the case against the convicted mass killer, who is charged here with killing Air Force Sgt. Melvin Lorenz, 38; his wife, Sgt. Linda Lorenz, 31; and son Richard, 12, of San Antonio, Texas, during a June 1978 robbery.

If convicted of the killings, Stafford could face three death sentences. The 28-year-old Alabama high school dropout currently is appealing six death sentences he received in October for the July 1978 murders of six Oklahoma City steakhouse workers.

Stafford's wife of nearly eight years, Verna Stafford, was the star prosecution witnesses against her husband in both trials. She testified here she watched her husband gun down the family when Lorenz refused to turn over his money.

MIAMI (AP) — Puzzled police and FBI agents were searching today for a shipment of $750,000 worth of scrap gold and silver that disappeared from Miami International Airport.

Authorities believe the precious metals - 1,259 pounds, packed in a large aluminum container - are stashed in the same truck that brought them to the airport Thurs-

"There is an individual that is missing with the truck, but I don't know if this individual is involved," said FBI agent Joe Usher. "We're trying to locate the truck and the party driving it."

The gold and silver, bound for a refinery in Peacebridge, Ontario, were to be loaded aboard Air Canada Flight 915, said investigators who gave this account of the incident:

Three cargo containers were hauled from the airport warehouse of Air Agency Inc., a freight handling company, by a driver for Aircraft Services Inc., another freight handler using Air Agency's trucks.

held the metal, another reportedly contained tropical fish and the contents of the third were unknown.

Shortly before noon, the driver dropped off the boxes at a loading area and drove away. When a loading crew supervisor counted the cargo and came up short, employees began

Authorities said the missing truck apparently had been leased from Air Agency and had no license plate because it was used only on airport grounds with a permit. Its scheduled driver was reported missing.

FBI agents said their preliminary investigation shows the containers were left unattended after they were removed from the truck.

KHAO I DANG, Thailand (AP) - They are called the "land people" - those who make a dangerous escape across Cambodia from Vietnam on foot, bicycle, ox cart and even horseback. Sometimes they stow away on trucks among sacks of rice, sometimes disguised as soldiers.

WANT ADS reach thousands daily, WORK FAST. Dial 682-6222

About 1,650 have reached Thailand, and one recent group of 950 was moved from this Cambodian refugee camp near the border to the Si Kew camp 110 miles northeast of Bangkok, the Thai capital.

The refugees, about half of whom are ethnic Chinese, say many refugees died, lost their way or were caught by Cambodian and Vietnamese soldiers during the trek.

In a series of interviews before their departure from Khao I Dang, the refugees said it has become prohibitively expensive and difficult to escape by boat - as so many Vietnamese did before - since the government cut off legal

Most said they spent about two ounces of gold to hitch rides and bribe times as much.

numbers of "boat people" escaping by sea has remained relatively low.

As few as 3,000 Vietnamese have arrived in Thailand by sea this year, a small fraction of the rate at this time last year. Most of the refugees in Khao I Dang came from southern Vietnam, their Vietnamese organizers in the camp said. They included some deserters from the Vietnamese armed forces deployed throughout Cambodia. Nguyen Manh Tri, 39, a former South Vietnamese army major, said he left his wife and two children behind on Feb. 1 when he dressed in the uniform of a Vietnamese soldier and paid his way aboard a troop transport truck that took him through dozens of checkpoints as far as Battambang, more than 200 miles

After being sheltered by a friendly Cambodian for one night, he paid a guide to take him through the last dangerous miles of war-torn western Cambodia to even small boats that took them up the Mekong River.

Nguyen Thanh Thoai, 37, a former South Vietnamese first lieutenant, paid

Le Dinh Thiem, a former Boeing 747 pilot for Air Vietnam, said he fled by car, bicycle and on foot after being caught and imprisoned for six months for attempting to escape by sea. Nguyen Cong Hiep, 29, of Ho Chi Minh City (formerly Saigon), said he traveled by truck, by bicycle, by ox cart, by horse and by foot on a seven-day journey across Cambodia to the Thai border, where he was captured by the "Free Khmer," beaten, robbed, tied to a tree and finally escaped into Thailand.

The "Free Khmer," a non-communist group, are one of the factions opposed to the Vietnamese-backed communist regime now in control in Phnom Penh.

The Vietnamese are moving from the border to Khao I Dang, seven miles inside Thailand as fast as they arrive, although the border has now been closed to most Cambodians, and then are sent to begin processing for resettlement in the West. Very few Cambodians have begun to move from Khao I Dang to the

Stock market loses

NEW YORK (AP) - The stock market lost more ground today as the recent barrage of bad news on inflation and interest rates continued.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, off 28.41 points in the last two days, was down another 1.45 at 826.62 at noontime. Losers outnumbered gainers by about a 3-1 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The government reported this morning that producer prices of finished goods rose at an 18 percent annual rate in February. That represented a slight decline from the 19.2 percent rate recorded for January. But analysts said it hardly qualified as good news. Several large banks, meanwhile, raised their prime lending rates from 171/4 to 173/4 percent, and Harris Trust of Chicago went to 18 percent. Only three weeks ago the basic charge on blue-chip loans stood at 15½ percent.

In the oil group, Exxon was down 1 at 62½; Mobil 1¼ at 81½; Standard Oil of California 11/4 at 77, and Standard Oil of Indiana 2% at At the American Stock Exchange, Houston Oil & Minerals dropped 1/2 to 25%; Gulf Canada 4 to 15234, and Imperial Oil 1% to 43%. The NYSE's composite index lost .38 to 61.56. The Amex market value index fell 4.32 to 281.94.

Volume on the Big Board totaled 22.87 million shares at noontime, against 19.54 million at the same point Thursday.

BUSINESS MIRROR Not everyone hurt by inflation

By JOHN CUNNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) - Not everyone is hurt by inflation. A person can obtain a $1,000 credit card loan here and then invest it for six months in a unit trust at a rate exceeding 15 percent a year.

True, the gain will be diminished so long as inflation exceeds 15 percent, but a person still will benefit from the spread, which results from the inflation-induced confusion in the marketplace. Holders of home mortgages also are benefitting. Some homeowners hold mortgages on which they pay as little as 7 percent. With inflation at least double that, they actually get paid for borrowing. Borrowing costs, moreover, are tax-deductible. Every bit of interest on loans is deductible, meaning the return of $340 for every $1,000 of interest paid by a borrower in a 34 percent tax bracket.

It doesn't matter that, because of inflation, the mortgage borrower is effectively paying no interest. Those who devise the tax laws never have dealt with that illusion, or with a few others either. If the property is income-producing, for instance, the owner may also deduct for depreciation. An

$80,000 property (excluding the lot), for instance, might provide depreciation of as much as $8,000 a That $8,000 is deductible on the owner's tax return, just as are costs of doing business, even though the market value has soared, because of inflation, rather than fallen, as in Internal Revenue Service theory. Many other examples of inflation's benefits can be listed, but as the pace of price increases turns higher the list grows smaller. Fewer and fewer people are now benefitting than was the case in the mid-1970s.

At that time, with inflation still down in the single digits, millions of Americans were able to raise their incomes at a fast rate. If inflation was 7 percent, they were able to get pay raises of 9 percent.

In fact, the existence of inflation became one of the strongest arguments for substantial pay raises, and unions never let management forget it. Why, they asked, should workers work for less than before?

Last year inflation simply rolled over labor, rising by 13 percent. Take-home pay of hourly workers fell by about 6 percentage points. Living standards fell, and they're falling more this year.

No wonder, is it, that many workers sought relief at the loan window. Why not? They needed cash; they could borrow it with few questions asked and repay with cheaper dollars; and get a tax deduction Who paid for it? Anyone with a savings account and forces responsible for it, raided the value of savings accounts, bonds, insurance policies and They were the first to be hurt, but now they are joined by millions more. As inflation spreads like a prairie fire, the numbers of refugees grows, but the knows the answer to that. Inflation, and the factors

there is less and less refuge and security for them. Workers, of course, can't keep pace. Businesses that once passed on costs are finding consumers haven't the means to pay. Landlords hit by rising fuel bills find tenants unable to pay an equivalent rent increase. Even free-spending politicians are

As inflation grows the number who benefit shrinks and the number who are hurt grows. And perhaps that is why, belatedly, the battle against inflation might finally begin.

House panel discovers difficulties in drafting spending cuts in budget

WASHINGTON (AP) - The House Ways and Means Committee, which has jurisdiction over 43 percent of federal spending, is living proof that Congress will have a tough time balancing next year's budget. Despite mounting pressure for spending cuts as a weapon against inflation, the committee said Wednesday that it wants to increase its share of the spending in 1981 by $801.7 million. The panel was unable to envision sizable cost savings in most of the programs under its jurisdiction, which range from Social Security, foreign trade and health to the national debt. In some cases, the lawmakers went even further and proposed to expand some existing programs. The decisions were made as the panel prepared a formal report to the House Budget Committee on its spending and taxing plans for fiscal 1981, which begins next Oct. 1. Carter's $616 billion proposed budget included about $262.2 billion to be spent for programs under the committee's jurisdiction. Ways and Means subcommittees proposed to raise that by $2.2 billion - to $264.2 billion — but the committee's action Wednesday would hold the total to $263 billion, an increase of $800 million. The committee's spending plan would be even more out of line with Carter's except for what Rep. Sam Gibbons, D-Fla., called "a little sleight-ofhand. The committee achieved what looked like a $715 million saving by lopping off a planned increase in money to help low-income Americans cope with higher energy costs. In fact, the panel simply decided that program is not in its jurisdiction - and shifted the cost to the Education and Labor Commit-If other committees of Congress followed the lead of Ways and Means, balancing the 1981 budget would be impossible. But panel members insisted they were handicapped in many cases because Carter's budget was unrealistic. For example, the president's budget assumed

Congress would impose mandatory controls on hospital costs, which would save an estimated $680 million. But Congress has rejected that proposal twice and the committee refused to budget the $680 million saving. Instead, it anticipated that voluntary controls will save $340 million. COMMERCIAL

Austrian Ambassador Edgar Selzer leaves the Domminican Republic Embassy in Bogota Thursday after he was released by guerrillas so he could fly to Austria to be with his dying wife, according to a Colombian official. (AP Laserphoto)

Colombian leftists still demanding prisoner release

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) - The guerrillas holding the U.S. ambassador and other hostages insist on the release of 311 leftists from jail but virtually abandoned their demand for $50 million, a government official re-

On Thursday, the guerrillas released Austrian Ambassador Edgard Selzer because his wife is gravely ill in Vienna. Arriving there today, Selzer said the hostages remaining in the embassy of the Dominican Republic were in "an extremely dangerous situation" and called on all to work for a peaceful solution. Otherwise, he said "Everything else in my opinion can only end in a catastrophic massacre.

Direct negotiations between the government and guerrillas are to resume today, Foreign Minister Diego Uribe Vargas told reporters following a meeting with President Julio Cesar Turbay Ayala. Talks were held Sunday and Wednesday in a beige van parked near the embassy and have also continued intermittently by tele-

A high-level government official said Thursday that negotiations have centered on the guerrillas' demand that 311 alleged political prisoners be released.

The official, who asked not to be identified by name, said the guerrillas "have practically abandoned" their demand for $50 million in ransom in exchange for the safe release of the hostages, seized 10 days ago today during a diplomatic reception.

"They won't give in on their demand that their comrades be given freedom. But the government cannot give in without violating the constitu-

The government denies it holds any political prisoners and says any guerrillas in jail are there for crimes they committed and not for political beliefs. Colombia's constitution permits the president to issue pardons only for political prisoners.

A military source said the armed forces support the government's stand against the guerrillas, who belong to M-19, or Movement 19, which takes its name from the April 19, 1970 presidential elections the group claims were rigged.

Along with the ransom and prisoners, the leftists also originally demanded publication of a guerrilla manifesto in major newspapers around the world and safe passage out of the country.

Sources close to the government say it has offered to fly them to either Libya, Syria or Algeria, although there has been no official confirmation of the offer.

The guerrillas, who have released 24 persons since occupying the embassy Feb. 27, still hold 14 ambassadors or acting ambassadors, including U.S. Ambassador Diego Asencio.

The estimated 29 guerrillas, including one woman wounded during the takeover, also hold five lower-level diplomats, two Colombian Foreign Ministry protocol officers and an undetermined number of other hos-

U.S. Embassy sources said Asencio usually telephones out a couple of times a day and seems to be in good health and spirits. They said he has received packages containing clothes, pipe tobacco, cookies, candy

Junta seizes land for peasants

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — El Salvador's ruling junta seized nearly 620,000 acres of farmland from 244 landowners in the first step of a land reform program to appease the restive peasants of this Central American nation.

Col. Adolfo Majano, one of the two military members of the junta, announced the expropriation program in a broadcast Thursday. He said the land would be distributed within the next few days to some 70,000 peasants, most of whom have been working the properties they will get.

The announcement was coupled with a declaration of a state of siege, a limited form of martial law. Political gatherings and demonstrations were outlawed, press censorship was imposed, and the police were empowered to make arrests and search premises without warrants.

Majano in his broadcast said the land seizure was the first step in a six-month plan designed to put up to 1.5 million acres of the nation's 4 million acres of agricultural land into the hands of the peasants.

The junta did not say how much land each peasant farmer would get, but if the total is distributed equally it would work out to about seven acres apiece. The government estimates there are about 300,000 farm families in El Salvador who own no land.

In the first phase, the government said it was taking over 376 farms of 1,250 acres or more. A government spokesman said troops occupied most of the expropriated estates to prevent the owners from removing equipment or damaging the properties. The owners will be allowed to claim 250 acres for themselves and will be reimbursed for the rest in government bonds, issued on the basis of 1976 tax assessments, the government

One U.S. source said most large landowners "are already out of the country and most of them won't want to return to 250 acres.'

'We have affected some 240 families to help 70,000 persons," Antonio Morales Ehrlich, one of the two civilian members of the junta, told report-

Majano said the 240 families owned 25 percent of the country's arable land and 40 percent of the best land. The second phase is to redistribute farms of from 250 to 1,250 acres before government bonds. The government said 200 teams of three persons each would fan out across the countryside to explain to the farmworkers that they are now responsible for the cotton, coffee and sugar crops that form the nation's the end of the year. Owners of those farms will receive 25 percent of the assessed value in cash and the rest in economic base: Majano said they would be told to concentrate on producing food for local consumption rather than export crops as they have been doing.

'We are not taking the road toward communism," he said. "We are trying to find the way to a true democracy, the path to justice and liberty."

There was no immediate comment from the landowners who for generations have dominated El Salvador's economy and, through their military allies, the government. Nor was there any reaction from the militant leftist and rightist groups that have been at odds with the junta since Col. Majano and Col. Jaime Abdul Guiterrez overthrew Gen. Carlos Humberto Romero last October.

Majano criticized rightist and leftist extremists, who have been waging a bloody war of terror, and called on them to join the political process.

A few hours after his broadcast. leftist guerrillas seized control of three western districts of San Salvador and fought briefly with police before withdrawing. The police said a number of guerrillas were killed but they didn't know how many.

Brother of assassinated Mafia chief seriously wounded by masked men

ROME (AP) - Two masked gunmen ambushed and seriously wounded the brother of an assassinated Mafia chieftain in Sicily today, just a day after Italy's interior minister warned Parliament of an explosion of Mafia violence that he said threatens the nation's institutions. Interior Minister Virginio Rognoni said Mafia gangs in Sicily and the southern Italian region of Calabria are further developing international links and cooperating with political terrorists.

In today's assassination attempt, Angelo di Cristina was gunned down in Caltanisetta, central Sicily, apparently in a continuing underground war between rival Mafia rings for leadership of Caltanisetta province. His brother, Giuseppe, was assassinated in Palermo, the Sicilian capi-

Rognoni, addressing the Chamber of Deputies Thursday, said Mafia murders rose to 284 in 1979, from 270 the previous year and 240 in 1977.

The Mafia gangs "also struck public powers and the press, in a violent challenge to institutions," he said.

Mafia assassinations, allegedly backed by terrorist groups, included those of two Christian Democrat members of the regional government in Sicily.

Rognoni said the Mafia's funds, organizing ability and international links were all growing. He said in-creasing employment in depressed Sicilian and Calabrian areas, as well as fiscal checks on properties of Mafia suspects, would help in uproot-ing crime syndicates.

Outsiders see China prison

By VICTORIA GRAHAM

Associated Press Writer SHANGHAI, China (AP) — Prisoners' written confessions vie for attention with a potpourri of propaganda slogans and a host of painted flowers on the walls of Shanghai City Prison, a dimly-lighted fortress built by the British in 1906.

We do not forget we are criminals and we will never disobey the law," reads a statement written by three prisoners. It hangs on a billboard draped with a garland of paper flow-

"Reform yourself in a down-toearth way" and "Become a new man" are among the slogans that appear everywhere in the prison, recently spruced up for visits by foreigners, including Mayor Ed Koch of New York City.

The prison has 2,600 inmates, including more than 200 women. Segregated by sex, they are crowded by twos and threes into six-by-eight-foot cells at night and spend their days working without pay in the prison's factories.

We will actively participate in labor programs to reach targets set by the government. We will love the government property, keep up sanita-tion and keep ourselves clean," says one posted confession.

One of the prisoners is Chen Yudi, a woman of 35 dressed neatly in a dark blue jacket with pale polka dots.

Big Bend has crowd problems

PANTHER JUNC-TION, Texas (AP) - In the old days, visitors to the vast wilderness of the Big Bend National Park worried about getting lost. Today the main concern seems to be getting

The park covers more than 708,000 acres, but park officials say lately certain areas have become downright crowd-

AS A RESULT, new restrictions have be imposed, according to chief naturalist Frank Deck-

"We did this in anticipation of the usual spring break crowds. Normally the spring break period and Easter are our biggest times of the year," he said Wednesday.

From now on, no more than 20 campers will be allowed at a time into any one of the 10 zones of the higher Chisos Mountains, one of the most popular areas of the rugged park, Deckert said.

He said visitors must come by the headquarters here to get free permits to use the park.

Deckert said 11 percent fewer people are coming to the park this year, but they're covering more territory and staying longer. Most of them are backpackers, and Park Superintendent Robert Haraden said the new rules were aimed at protecting the hikers against one another.

"We want not only to reduce the impact of concentrated campers on park resources but also prevent over-crowding that can diminish enjoyment of these resources," he said.

PARK OFFICIALS also imposed new rules outlawing overnight camping in several areas, banning dogs from the backcountry, and restricting any group to no more than 20

Despite the increase in usage of the park and rangers patrolling on horseback, Deckert said two or three "major searches" must be conducted each year for people who get lost.

"We discourage visitors from entering certain areas of the park if we feel they are not prepared. But people still get lost," he said.

Deckert said more people ought to hike into the desert regions of the 1,100-square-mile park, which is 98 percent desert and grassland.

"That's where you can go and not find anyone else at all," he said. He said attractions of the desert included springs, cactus, arroyos, wildlife including javelinas, and slick rocks polished by water.

"It's not a flat area of sand dunes," he said. "There are 60 species of cactus and this is the time of year when they'll be blooming."

Airlines suing to halt D-FW airport bond sale

DALLAS (AP) - Three airlines have filed suit in federal court in an attempt to block the sale of $112 million in bonds for expansion at the Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport.

The suit was filed in U.S. District Court Judge Robert M. Hill's court Thursday by Delta, Ozark and Fron-

The bonds scheduled to be sold March 17 are to be used to pay for expansion of terminal facilities at the airport for Braniff and Texas International airlines.

The "use" agreement requiring all airlines to pay a proportionate increase in rent at the airport to pay for the bonds is at the heart of a long conflict between the airlines and the

The airlines filing the suit claim the "use" agreement violates the U.S. Constitution, federal anti-trust laws and state laws regarding airports.

In their suit, the airlines contend that their rent would increase by about 100 percent if the bonds are sold and the rent is increased. That would mean a payment of about $1 million per year for Delta and about $200,000 each for Frontier and Ozark, according to the papers filed in the

In a statement Thursday, Delta Vice President Rex McClelland said, "Delta has long objected to these actions and contends that the facilities and improvements are not public necessity projects, but are instead in the private interest of Braniff and Texas International.'

Lawyers for the airport board and the two cities have urged Delta not to go to court to attempt to block the bond sale, McClelland said.

"Deadline after deadline has been extended by Delta, unfortunately to no avail," McClelland said. He said the airline filed the suit "to protect the interest of its passengers and its stockholders.'

Delta first served notice that it did not approve of the bond sale about a year ago, he said.

Chandelle owners say it best.

"When I first learned of Chandelle, I thought it would be just like living in an apartment...But it's just like living in a house without the yardwork and repairs."

"At Chandelle you get the same advantages and tax breaks as a home owner, but you don't have the same responsibilities ... for me, it's the only way to live."

"Chandelle suits my personal lifestyle, and by owning a condominium you get an equity build-up with excellent resale potential."

"Believe me, it's been a pleasure not having to worry about the usual home maintenance problems... Chandelle takes care of that for me."

"A Chandelle condominium has given me the opportunity for a new and rewarding life style... and I've really enjoyed living here.'

"Chandelle customized my condominium for me before I moved in... I got just the arrangement and style I wanted... I love it here."

WTC Westerners take region crown

By TED BATTLES Sports Editor

The Midland College Chaparrals should have slept like babies after the game. Western Texas College had beaten the Chaps three times before Thursday's Region V tournament championship game, but the losses were so close there was always that nagging, gnawing, lingering doubt that ate at the Chaparrals' insides. They just knew, given one more chance, they could beat the nation's No. 1 team.

The Chaps gave it all they were worth, but before a roaring crowd of 3,500 fans in the Chaparral Center, the Westerners applied the beyond-allreasonable-doubt convincer, earning a berth to the national tournament with a 101-80 crusher that raised their record to a glossy 33-0.

The Chaps battled the Westerners on even terms for the first 14 minutes as WTC, harried and hurried by Midland's active, forcing defense, missed an uncharacteristic 13 of its first 19

BUT SAY what you will about TWC's impressive point totals of 121, 83 and 101 in the three-day tournament, it's an aggressive, hard-working defense that is the trigger that makes the Westerners go. And that's unusual for a team coached by a kid who came out of high school in El Paso as a shot-happy, point-hungry teenager who thought defense was something you did to catch your

"You don't play for Don Haskins at UTEP unless you play defense and he altered my entire view of the game. I found out under him that you could have a terrible night offensively and still win if you played sound, aggressive defense," said a reformed Nolan Richardson.

"Defense is the key to our success. That's what I sell them on and it has paid off for us," he added in perhaps the understatement of the year.

"It eventually wears down the other team and tonight it was what enabled us to get into our transition game that broke it open."

IN THE hallway under the stands after it was over and the players silently filed by after dressing, Midland Coach Jerry Stone was still dazed as he said, "There was a period there where it was almost as if someone had opened the door. They stole, stole and stole and scored, scored and scored. It really knocked our kids down for a while. But the best thing was that they came back...We cut the lead to what, nine points, before they pulled away in the closing minute."

There was cheering and clapping outside in the arena and Stone asked,

"What's that all about?" "That's Midland fans out there waiting for you and the team," he was informed. The Chaps may have lost, but to their fans, they were still No.

"They have it all," Stone said of the champs. "You've got to play an almost perfect game to stay with

DESPITE the slow start, the Westerners wound up with some remarkable shooting percentages. Six- footeight Greg Stewart led the way with 30 points, finding bottom of 13 of 16 field attempts while Bill Patterson, the one Richardson said "got us going", scored-25 points, hitting 12 of 15 attempts after missing his first two shots. Phil Spradling was nine of 15 for 18 points.

For Midland, Robert Tate scored 18 while Charles Johnson and Kenneth Young each had 13.

However, 6-foot-5 Paul Pressey was named the tournament's Most Valuable Player, which pleased Richardson. "That's eight out of nine tournaments in two years that he has made MVP. The only one he missed was last year's nationals," an oversight he'll have a chance to rectify.

Joining Pressey on the all-tournament team were teammates Greg Stewart and Phil Spradling while MC center Charles Johnson, Robert Tate and Chucky McGill were Chaparrals named to the team.

Others picked were Ben Bijoe of Frank Phillips, John Savie of Odessa, Victor Mitchell of Amarillo, Dennis Mays of Cooke, and Kevin Parker of Ranger.

Midland took the lead 13-12 on a shot from the corner by Tate just past the five minute clocking and an inside layup by Kevin Willingham, a free throw by Johnson and McGill's twopointer gave the Chaps an 18-13 lead and there were visions of upset dancing like sugar plumbs in the heads of Midland fans. WTC was making mistakes and missing shots, but they rallied as Patterson pumped in four baskets and a pair of free throws and Stewart supplied a pair of baskets and free throws to take a 35-28 lead with 5:09 left in the half, the kind of edge Stone, who warned "You can't let them get you down", didn't want to

Patterson and two each by Spradling and Stewart sent the Westerners roaring off to what should have been a demoralizing 67-47 advantage. However, the Chaps kept battling and with a couple of field goals and a pair of free throws by Kenneth Young whittled the lead to 85-74 with 3:07 to go, but that was as close as the Chaps

FROM THE LINE - Midland put in a bid for next year's tournament, but it was awarded to Brownwood. A disappointed Delnor Poss, MC athletic director, said "We made a better bid, but it was put in the bylaws that starting this year, the other (Northern) Conference would pick the site every other year..."It's disappointing because everybody said this was the best tournament with the best media coverage they've ever had"...Northern defeated Western 89-83 in the All-Star game between the conferences that preceded the championship tilt. Major college coaches | Missouri trims San Jose in NCAA drool over Vic Mitchell

The prime object of the affections of college coaches attending the Region V Junior College tournament this week was a guy whose team didn't even reach the semifinals, but in scoring 55 points in a playoff game Monday and 42 in the losing effort against Western Texas Tuesday, Victor Mitchell, a mountain of a man, became the most wooed player around.

North Texas State University Coach Bill Blakeley reveals he already has signed Mitchell. We were the only major college to make him an offer when he came out of high school two years ago. Of course, he was 6-7 and 200 pounds then. Now he is 6-10 and 240. But his father, who died three weeks ago, was sick, he was the last child at home and he wanted to stay close.'

Blakely claims signing Mitchell again would turn the Eagles' program around, a sentiment that is echoed by the Guy from Houston.

Houston's Guy Lewis isn't too optimistic about his chances of signing Mitchell, but says, "Mitchell would make us a national power immediately." The Cougars coach who hasn't had a losing season in 21 at UH came to Midland looking for "a 6-9" and confesses Victor is all he wants and more.

Mitchell's Coach Jim Calvin intimates that Mitchell "right now is leaning toward South Alabama, Louisville and Texas, but who knows what can happen before he signs."

ANOTHER player who has had a great impact on coaches, who were wondering aloud if any team in Texas could beat WTC after that 121-point performance against Amarillo, is the Westerners' Paul Pressey. "If he weren't so unselfish, he could average 30 points a game,' comments Lewis...

Western Texas College Coach Nolan Richardson confirms that he could be leaving the WJCC after this season. He is among the prime candidates for the Tulsa University and suddenly strong California-Fullerton program coaching vacancies and admits he would take either one, if offered.

"I've paid my dues," says the personable El Pasoan who played for Don Haskins at UTEP and coached successfully for many years in El Paso high school ranks before coming to WTC in 1978 where he has won three WJCC championships. You can't blame him if he feels his WTC mission has been accomplished.

"I'd rather go into a program that's down and would take some rebuilding," he notes. "I like the Tulsa atmosphere for living. I have boys 15 and 18 and if I had a choice, I'd just as soon not get into the California

Asked if he felt the SWC was short-changed in the NCAA pairings, in view of the fact that five ACC teams and four each from the WAC and Big 10 were issued invitations while only Texas A&M and Arkansas were picked from the SWC, Lewis said, "With a 48-team field, Texas deserved to be in the field. They finished strong and lost by only five to DePaul at Chicago and DePaul was No. 1 in the country.".

COACHES from colleges all shapes and sizes were on hand for the five days at the Chaparral Center, the big colleges courting the super stars while the small colleges probed deeper, hoping to find that diamond in the rough.

Steve Sheiron, whose Dallas Baptist team was 24-11, would like to find a couple of point guards and "a good big man."

Wisconsin's Bob Gottlieb, who flew into Midland from a scouting mission in North Carolina. pumped Archie Myers, Midland assistant, and Howard College Coach Harold Wilder as to whether it would be worth his while to fly into Mississippi for its state high school tournament this weekend.

"Do you think I could find a sleeper?" he asked Myers, who is from Mississippi, and Wilder, who knows Mississippi basketball enough to recruit a Myers. Former Midland College Coach Chester Story, in his first year at Howard Payne, says it may not receive the publicity of the SWC, but folks in the Lone Star Conference do take their basketball seriously, comparing playing Southwest Texas at San Marcos to a football Saturday night in Baton Rouge. 'The students line up on the floor in two aisles wearing SOB (Support the Bobcats) T-shirts and welcome the visiting team as it comes on the court, pointing at them and shouting as they go by, "You can't win, you can't win."

McGee sparks Michigan to narrow NIT triumph

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD AP Sports Writer

You can't go home again, as the saying goes, so Michigan brought the home team to Mike McGee.

"I wanted to do well, playing against my home team," the 6-foot-5 University of Michigan junior from Omaha said after he scored 25 points in the Wolverines' 76-69 victory over Nebraska Thursday night in a firstround National Invitation Tournament game in Ann Arbor. blocked five shots as Missouri, the highest ranking team in action on the tourney's opening night, roared from behind and prevented an embarrassing upset by pulling out a 61-51 victory over a team making its first postseason appearance in 29 years.

Eight games were played Thursday, one doubleheader in each of the four regions. In the Midwest opener, Kansas State thrashed Arkansas 71-53. On Saturday, Missouri meets nintn-ranked Notre Dame while Kansas State faces second-ranked Louis-

The West regional at Ogden, Utah, produced a pair of thrillers but 17thranked Weber State, playing on its home court, became the first member of The Associated Press Top Twenty to be bumped from the 48-team tour-

The Wildcats, down by 22 points with 5:08 left, put on a furious rally only to fall one point short, losing to Lamar 87-86. In the opener, Clemson held off Utah State 76-73. Saturday's pairings match Lamar against fifthranked Oregon State and Clemson with No.12 Brigham Young.

In a Mideast doubleheader at West Lafayette, Ind., 20th-ranked Purdue, also playing at home, turned back LaSalle 90-82 behind 7-foot-1 All-American Joe Barry Carroll's 33 points while Penn's Ivy League's champs, last year's Final Four Cinderella team, stunned Washington State 62-55.

Purdue's Saturday opponent will be No.13 St. John's while Penn goes against No.14 Duke.

The East regional at Greensboro, N.C., produced a pair of yawners. Tennessee cruised past Furman 80-69 and will meet eighth-ranked Maryland on Saturday while Iowa trounced Virginia Commonwealth 86-72 and will oppose North Carolina State.

San Jose pulled ahead of heavily favored Missouri behind the hot shooting of Wally Rank and Mickey Jackson. Dore ended that nonsense in the second half, taking control inside that ignited a 16-3 burst. Missouri's Ricky Frazier topped all scorers with 24 points. "Dore did a heck of a job," said Missouri Coach Norm Stewart. "He's a smart kid who's been with us a long time and come up with several big games. I'm very happy for him." "I just kept working so I could make the best of my chance when it came," said Dore. "I don't feel I did it alone. Any win is a team effort."

Rolando Blackman scored 15 points to lead a balanced Kansas State attack against Arkansas. The Wildcats led throughout - they held Scott Hastings, Arkansas' leading scorer, without a point in the first half - and broke it open with a 17-4 spurt that began with 13½ minutes left.

Lamar's Mike Olliver scored 37 points and the Cardinals needed every one of them to outlast Weber State. With Bruce Collins taking charge, the Wildcats roared back in the final five minutes while Lamar suddenly went cold.

Ray Grebey, director of Major League Baseball Player Relations Committee, ponders a question Thursday relating to recent negotiations. (AP Laserphoto)

Owners don't expect strike

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Baseball club owners greeted their players' sword-rattling strike threat with a soft-soap approach Thursday and said they could see no reason for a walkout.

The players had their inning Tuesday when the Players Association's executive board asked the rank and file for authorization to call a strike on or after April 1 if a new collective bargaining agreement isn't

The season is scheduled to open April 9. Both Ray Grebey, chief negotiator for the owners, and Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn said they see no reason for a strike and believe an agreement can be reached.

Grebey held a meeting with the owners' player relations committee Thursday, which was attended by Kuhn. Both took a low-key response to the strike threat, insisting there was no crisis or emergency at this point in the 17-week-old negotiations.

Both agreed, however, that the free agent compensation problem was the thorniest issue in the 24 negotiating sessions held. The owners demand a change in the system that now gives them an amateur draft pick for losing a player in the re-entry draft.

"It is the most serious issue on the table," Kuhn said.

Grebey explained the owners' proposal on the re-entry draft. It was long and complex, but the bottom line is that the owners want to protect 15 players and then allow a team losing a topranking free agent to pick any player from those on the 40-man roster left unprotected.

"We're not seeking to eliminate the free agent draft," said Grebey. "We're not seeking a rule similar to football or basketball or hockey. We are seeking (more compensation)

Grebey elaborated by saying that if a player of free agent status is selected in the re-entry draft by less than four teams, there would be no compensation. If four to seven clubs pick a player, the injured team would get the same amateur draft pick now provided.

If the free agent is drafted by eight to 13 teams, the club losing the player would get the amateur choice and another minor or major league player left unprotected. If a club does pick an unprotected player he must be included on its 25-man playing roster until at least the next All-Star Game, or unless released for a lack of ability or is

Kuhn described the players' strike threat as routine, the kind of thing to expect at this stage of negotiations.

"I really don't want to speculate, but I don't anticipate a strike," Kuhn said. "... I think we have the ability to make a deal. Both (players and owners) want to play ball ... I think they can work it out."

The commissioner said he had no plans to intervene in the negotiations as he did four years ago when he forced owners to end a spring training camp lockout. The four-year pact that was then negotiated ended last Dec. 31 and created the free agent draft.

Kuhn also confirmed that baseball had an insurance plan ready in the event of the strike he doesn't forsee.

"I don't feel there should or will be a strike," Kuhn said. "I don't feel it is in the cards. We can keep on negotiating and play like any other sport under the old contract."

the old contract."

Grebey said baseball has proposals on the table increasing pension, insurance, World Series minimums and higher minimum salaries amounting to $26 million over four years.

He also said he did not know of any contracts that assured a player of being paid in the event of a strike.

Grebey and Marvin Miller, the executive director of the Players Association, were scheduled to negotiate today in Sarasota after Miller visited with the Chicago White Sox in his tour of spring camps seeking ratification of the strike authorization. He already has the unanimous support of the Philadelphia Phillies and Pittsburgh Pirates.

Contrary to the optimism of Grebey and Kuhn, Miller has said the negotiations are dragging and no agreements have been reached on any issue. His attitude is diametrically opposite to the no-crisis, no-emergency, productive and on-schedule viewpoint of Grebey.

Bullets still in playoff chase

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — Coach Dick Motta knew Washington's belated bid for a National Basketball Association playoff spot would be difficult, but he wasn't quite prepared for what happened.

After winning six of their previous seven games, improving their chances for a 12th consecutive year of playoff competition, the Bullets were crushed 122-96 by the New Jersey Nets Thursday night.

"You're going to have nights like this," Motta said of the performance that touched off booing by the home fans. "It doesn't kill us, but we needed

The Nets are 30-40 with 12 games left, but Coach Kevin Loughery figures they can still survive a six-team battle for the last three spots.

"It's a long shot, I don't deny that," Loughery said, "but the teams in

The Nets broke open a close game by outscoring Washington 30-21 in the third quarter, and then made it a runaway as Cliff Robinson tied a Capital Centre record by scoring 23 points in the final period.

Dantley's second-half surge was aided by Terry Furlow and Ben Po-

The Jazz led by just four, 106-102, with two minutes remaining before Bristow scored four straight points and Poquette clinched the victory with a driving layup.

Longhorns break U.S. record in 400 medley relay during SWC swimming tournament

DALLAS (AP) — The University of Texas set an American record in the 400-yard medley relay Thursday night to stake the Longhorns to first place after the first day of the Southwest Conference swimming and diving championships.

Cla Britt, Scott Spann, William Paulus and Kris Kirchner teamed for a 3: 16.57 clocking, which broke the old record of 3: 17.62 held by Auburn. Before transferring to Texas, Spann swam on the Auburn team that set the record.

Texas took an early lead in the 3-day meet over Southern Methodist, which is seeking its 24th consecutive conference title. Texas had 195 points and SMU 159 after the five events that were held Thursday.

The Longhorns opened the night with a 1-2 finish from Andy Schmidt and Joe LaJoie in the 500-yard freestyle, with Schmidt clocked in 4:28.61.

Spann then defeated SMU's Steve Lundquist by a fifth of a second—
1:50.49 to 1:51.09— in the 200-yard individual medley. Kirchner won the 50-yard freestyle for Texas in 20.55, and Rick Tennant helped keep SMU close with his win in the one-meter diving.

The meet will continue through Saturday at Perkins Natatorium on the

Dallas finally gets spot in the NBA

CHICAGO (AP) — It's official: Dallas will have a team in the National Basketball Association in the 1980-81 season, competing in the Midwest Division.

Commissioner Larry O'Brien made the announcement in Chicago Thursday after a one-hour meeting with the league's 22 owners.

The news was expected. The league owners had given their approval last month for Dallas to get a franchise if the team's investors would go along with some last-minute changes in the entry fee structure, and last week the Dallas group said it would meet the new requirements.

O'Brien called Dallas, the third city from Texas to be awarded a league franchise, "a strong addition to the NBA." He also said that no other applications for new franchises were before the board.

The Dallas franchise was awarded to a consortium of 24 investors, among them Norm Sonju, a former general manager of the NBA's now-defunct Buffalo franchise; actor James Garner; and singer-songwriter Willie Nelson.

Dallas Mayor Robert Folsom, a previous part-owner of the Dallas Chaparrals of the now defunct American Basketball Association, appeared before the NBA board on behalf of the Dallas group. The former Dallas ABA team moved to San Antonio and became the Spurs.

The board said Dallas would be allowed to select players in an expansion draft in May after all of the 22 existing NBA franchises protected eight players on their rosters. The Dallas franchise was also given the 11th spot in the June 10 collegiate draft.

The team, which will be named in a contest this spring, has signed a lease to play its home games in Dallas' new Reunion Arena, which opens April 28 and is expected to seat between 16,000-18,000 for basketball.

The expansion necessitated a realignment of the league. Dallas will be in the Western Conference's Midwest Division, along with San Antonio and Houston, who are being shifted from their old spots in the Central Division of the Eastern Conference.

"It was important to me that the three Texas teams be kept in the same division," Sonju said. Milwaukee and Chicago, now in the

Dave Bliss expected to join Ponies

DALLAS (AP) — Dave Bliss, who resigned Thursday as head basketball coach at Oklahoma University, was expected to sign a 5-year contract today at Southern Methodist University.

The formal announcement was scheduled to come at an 11 a.m. press coonference today on the SMU campus, Athletic Director Russ Potts of SMU announced.

Bliss will succeed Sonny Allen, who resigned under fire after the Mustangs finished with a 15-11 regular season record, sixth in the Southwest Conference. SMU paid him off on the two years he had remaining on his contract.

Bliss, 36, was twice cited as Big Eight coach of the year during his five years at Oklahoma.

Potts met three times with Bliss to persuade him to come to SMU, and Bliss said he made up his mind Wednesday night.

"I asked my wife, Claudia, if my decision was okay with her and she said yes. I've already told the people at SMU and the people I care most about. That's my family and my wife, in particular," Bliss said Thursday.

pion is looking forward to a fight with former champ Muhammad Ali, but first he must dispose of challenger Mike Weaver.

Ace Miller made the comment Thursday, a day Ali's manager and promoter Bob Arum of Top Rank, reached agreement on a deal that would bring the 38-year-old Ali out of retirement to fight Tate in late June.

But that Tate-Ali fight would be off, and, according to Arum, would likely become an Ali-Weaver bout if Tate loses his title to Weaver in their March 31 fight here.

And Weaver was very much on Miller's mind Thursday. "Sure we want Ali, but we're more interested in Weaver," Miller said during a telephone interview. "We've got to beat him before we fight any-"Weaver's a fighter a lot of people could overlook. He's a rangy boxer with a long reach," Miller said. "Nobody can judge his distance. He's got

"It's not unusual to sign until after negotiations are made with an opponent," he said. "Arum has our full confidence.'

Arum said Thursday the date and location of the Tate-Ali fight would be worked out in about a week. Although he wouldn't confirm rumors that the fighters would split $14 million, he did say it would be a record purse. Miller said Tate was disappointed when Ali announced his retirement in

"We always wanted to fight him. I doubt that his layoff will affect him too much. Ali's a remarkable athlete. He was off 31/2 years and came back.

But we think we can win. We think we can put him into retirement for good.

Arum said Thursday in New York that while he had reservations about Ali being able to get back in shape by the end of June, Ali, who now weighs 248, had assured him he could.

"And who am I," asked Arum, "to to the greatest fighter who ever lived that he he's wrong?"

Arum confirmed that if Ali finds that he cannot get in shape, the Tate fight will be called off. "I would never let him disgrace himself," Arum said.

Spinks continues on comeback trail

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) - Leon Spinks predicts a "war" Saturday when he meets Eddie "Animal" Lopez in a heavyweight bout and, if there's one thing both he and Lopez agree on, it's that one of them will be on the canvas before the scheduled

10-rounder is over. Spinks, a former heavyweight champion although having only 11 professional fights, is on the comeback trail, but could find the going tough against Lopez. The 24-year-old Lopez, ranked No. 10 by the World Boxing Council, calls himself the "Barrio Brawler" and has the scars from East Los Angeles street battles to prove it.

And, with a 13-2-1 record, including a loss to World Boxing Association titlist John Tate, Lopez is a confident fighter coming into the bout against

"I'm going to win or lose by knockout and I didn't come to lose," said Lopez. "I respect Leon, but then I can fight a lick too."

Spinks, whose last Las Vegas fight saw him take a stunning decision over Muhammad Ali on Feb. 15, 1978 to claim the undisputed title, must fight his way up from No. 9 in the WBC ratings after a pair of losses almost devastated his once bright career.

Spinks, now 8-2-1 with six knockouts, has a new manager since his brief spell as a champion, and seems to be more mellow since the turbulent months following his defeat of Ali.

"I got no headaches, no worries or problems," the 26-year-old Olympic gold medal winner said. "All I think about is what I have to do."

Following his defeat by Ali in New Orleans, Spinks lost to Gerrie Coetzee of South Africa in the first round of a fight in Monte Carlo last year. But he scored a fifth-round knockout over Alfredo Evangelista in Atlantic City

Nevada Athletic Commission fears upcoming Jones fight another dud

LAS VEGAS (AP) - The Nevada Athletic Commission, fearful a proposed heavyweight bout between Ed "Too Tall" Jones and Yaqui Meneses would damage the state's boxing reputation, has voted not to allow the bout as a nationally televised attraction.

At an emergency meeting Thursday, the commission rescinded its earlier approval of the 10-round bout, which was scheduled to be televised by CBS from the Aladdin Hotel on March 22.

The commission, however, left the door open for Jones to fight, but only with another opponent replacing Meneses and the bout being downgraded from the 'main event' of the card. If another main event is televised, a Jones fight could also be shown but only if the first fight ends in an early knockout, the commission decided.

After ruling out the Jones-Meneses bout, commissioners were still not happy with having Jones fight in Nevada but approved him with the two stipula-

Commission member Sig Rogich said commissioners reconsidered their earlier approval of the bout after studying films of their first fight and reseaching Meneses' 4-5 record. Meneses lost an earlier bout to Jones, the former Dallas Cowboys football star.

Little Miss Alcott does things in a very big way

By JIM MURRAY The Los Angeles Times

When Amy Alcott first burst on the national golf scene in 1971, the establishment couldn't have been more amused if it were Louisa May. She had these green eyes and freckles, everything but pigtails. She chewed gum and looked as if she had just put her Popsicle down. She was just 14 years old and, while that's all right for tennis or swimming, women's golf runs more to people with calluses on their fingers than braces on their teeth. Hardly any of them wear aprons. What's the matter, kid, Disneyland closed? they would ask Amy, not unkindly.

Amy had just seen too many movies or television shows, they concluded. She just thought she knew the game. How can you learn to play golf in a nice little suburban lot with a barbecue and rose trellis and picture windows? You have to be brought up on a golf course, not a patio. Amy had to make do putting into sprinkler-heads in the ground. She had to learn to pitch out of ivy, and across a sidewalk. The little pitch-and-putt in Holmby Hills is not exactly Pebble Beach -- in fact, it's not even a good

The first time Amy ever got to take a full swing at a ball was into a net at Walter Keller's golf shop., The proprietor, a crusty old party who was to become her mentor, spoke his first words to her there. They were: Get off that carpet, young lady, that thing cost me $1,000!

Minutes later, after he had seen her smash a few drives into his net,

Danny Edwards of Edmond, Oklahoma, tees off on the 18th hole

at Inverrary during opening round of Inverrary Golf Classic

Keller softened. Kid, where'd you learn to swing a golf club like that? he asked. From watching TV, Amy told him honestly. In effect, Sam Snead and Gary Player had taught her. For nothing.

The Pro from 'Little Women' spent so many hours canning two-foot putts into sprinkler-heads, and hitting 20-foot drives into a net that, when she got a chance to play at nearby Riviera Country Club, and she had a 6:30 a.m. tee-off time, she got up at 3 in the morning. Not to fix her hair, to

When Amy won the USGA national junior championship in 1973, the laughter rattled to a stop. But when she teed it up on the pro tour, the first tee announcer, after announcing, say, Joanne Carner, playing out of Lake Worth, Fla., would introduce Amy as playing out of Walter Keller's driving net and electric putting green.

The pros were unimpressed. They thought Amy should go back to making fudge or sewing wall mottoes. If you couldn't learn golf out of a book, how could you learn it off a 19-inch screen? Little Miss Alcott showed them. She won $26,798 in her first year on the tour, a record for a rookie. She won the third tournament she ever saw, never mind played in. She improved by the hour.

Women's golf, now a 39-event, $5-million jackpot, swings through Los Angeles this week with the third annual Sunstar Classic at Rancho Park. Nancy Lopez is supposed to win it. She always has.

But the tour can't rule out The Little Woman. The site is not too far from where Amy used to sink sprinkler-head chip shots. It's only a 2-iron away from where she broke her mother's kitchen windows and about a fairway away from where her family turned the barbecue pit into a sandtrap for her. Now that she's a blooming, robust women of 24, no one thinks Amy should go back to knitting afghans or pressing flowers in a book anymore. She's won 10 tournaments, she was third on the money list last year, and little girls dreaming of golf careers now copy her swing on

Nor is she apt to choke with the championship on the line, a short chip to the green. She just closes her eyes and imagines she's pitching across San Vicente Blvd. with a 9-iron, and trying to keep the shot out of her mother's roses for once. As for her drives she makes believe that there's one of Walter Keller's nets 20 feet in front of the tee, and all 10-foot putts are on an electronic track.

Roy Peden advances in tourney

HARLINGEN, Texas (AP) - A repeat champion is assured in today's finals of the Life Begins at Forty golf tournament.

A pair of West Texans - Jack Williams of Plainview and Roy L. Peden of Kermit - turned in 2-under-par performances Thursday for semifinal victories and were paired in today's 1:15 championship match.

Peden won the LBA 40 title in 1976 and Williams captured it in 1977.

Williams, 52, advanced Thursday with a 2-and-1 victory over 41-year-old Bobby Lackey of Weslaco, while Peden, 60, breezed to a 4-and-3 win over 68-year-old Web Wilder of San Anto-

Williams sank a 10-foot eagle putt on the 508-yard, par-5 14th hole and birdied three holes, but also bogeyed three. "I putted real well, and that was the difference. Bobby also played well, but his putting let him down," said Williams. "I played real well around the green, but I couldn't buy a putt," said Lackey, at 41 one of the youngest players in the tournament. The former University of Texas quarterback was even par when Williams eliminated him on the 17th hole. Peden made a 16-foot birdie putt on the first hole and came back with a 12-footer for another birdie at No. 5. He had a tap-in for another birdie on No. 12 after the 408-yard 11th hole had given him his only bogey for the day. Wilder was five holes down at the turn before winning holes 11 and 14 to cut Peden's lead to three. But Peden killed Wilder's rally by sinking a short putt on 15 to end the match.

Williams will be bidding for his 108th tournament victory Friday. Peden, a former catcher on a Texas A&M baseball team, has 33 career

Two losses in one week, a common occurrence for most National Hockey League teams, qualifies as a slump for the Philadelphia Flyers.

The Flyers, who earlier this year went 35 games without a loss, lost 5-2 to the New York Islanders Thursday night on the heels of a 5-1 defeat by the Montreal Canadiens Sunday. The latest setback was only the seventh of the season for Philadelphia, which now has to go undefeated in its last 16 games to better Montreal's 1976-77 NHL record of only eight losses in a season.

Saxon Oil Co. of Midland will drill

Gasohol gets big push

TULSA, Okla. - Gasohol, a mixture of 90 percent gasoline and 10 percent ethyl alcohol, is getting a big push from the federal government as a means of reducing oil imports but mixed reviews from oil companies and scientists, the Oil & Gas Journal reports.

Virtually unavailable to to motorists 15 months ago, gasohol now is being marketed by more than a dozen oil companies and is receiving tax breaks from the federal government and at least 16 states.

As a fuel extender, gasohol can provide some help in meeting motor fuel demands and serving as an octane booster. But company and government officials war, the Journal says, that it should be viewed as no more than a small fraction of the solution to the nation's energy

In fact, some contend that the gasohol movement may diminish oil and natural gas supplies faster than necessary if ethanol producers of the future continue to burn oil or gas in the processing of grains and other feedstocks into ethanol. In this situation, gasohol is a marketing plus, but an energy zero - or less, the Journal says.

Gasoho proponents argue this situation can be changed via new, more-efficient plants. Critics respond that even with new plants, continued burning of oil and gas would defet the purpose of the entire gasohol

The Journal said most gasohol observers agree that the dispute over wheter ethanol production is a net energy loser will be academic if ethanol producers switch to more abundant processing fuels such as coal. But coal, too, has its problems, both with environmental restrictions and the price ethanol producers would have to pay to meet those restric-

Companies marketing gasohol include such large refiner/marketers as Texaco Inc., Amoco Oil Co., Atlantic Richfield Co., Phillips Petroleum Co., Cities Service Co., Chevron U.S.A. Inc., and Gulf Oil Corp.

Most oil companies, even those which have jumped in the gasohol business with both feet, are quick to point out the drawbacks of gasohol, including the limitations on current ethanol supply.

The Journal says current production of alcohol for fuel use is estimated at 80 million gallons per year. That could yield a maximum of 800 million gallons of gasohol. But Carter Administration officials hope to raise the ethanol output figure to 500 million gallons a year by the end of 1981, which could put 5 billion gallons a year of gasohol on the market. That compares with a 1980 domestic gasoline demand forecast of 105 billion gallons a year.

None of the oil companies has actually become an ethanol producer though Texaco plans to do so. Most potential ethanol producers are awaiting the outcome of energy legislation in Washington, which will carry further gasohol incentives beyond the current 4 cents per callon motor-fuel excise-tax exemption at the service station, the oil trade

While they are waiting, major oil company marketers and small retailers are buying the ethanol from the current producers and mixing it with gasoline - primarily unleaded - at fuel terminals and service

Texaco Inc., one of the gasohol leaders, no sells the product at 1,100 of its 26,000 stations. Gasohol accounts for 20 percent of the sales volume of those stations which offer it, but less than 1 percent of Texaco's total volume at all of its stations.

48 Iranian students arrested in Louisiana

MONROE, La. (AP) — Forty-eight persons were arrested Thursday night at Northeast Louisiana University when demonstrators, identified by authorities as Iranian students, tried to break up a speech by the former Iranian ambassador to the United Nations, school officials said.

The disturbance occurred as Fereydoun Hoveyda was speaking to about 400 persons at Brown Auditorium, police said. Hoveyda was ambassador during the regime of the deposed Shah Mohammad Reza

The first sign of protest came when a member in the audience challenged Hoveyda's claim that Iran's gross national product grew from $2 billion in 1972 to $56 billion in 1977.

When the student began shouting, "That man is a murderer. His brother killed my father," about 25 police officers standing outside the auditorium entered the room, police said.

Campus authorities were reinforced by Monroe city police, state police and Ouachita Parish deputies.

After a second interruption, police escorted Hoveyda out of the auditorium where some 40 protesters stood, demanding the release of the demonstrator arrested during the speech.

When the demonstrators refused to disperse, more arrests were made, police said.)Tom Murphy, dean of students at Northeast, said only nine Iranians are enrolled at Northeast. Captain A.L. Moore of the Monroe Police Department said 35 students were taken into custody.

"When they wouldn't disperse, we had to take some of them into custody," he said. "We arrested 35 of them. They aren't students at Northeast: they're from different places.' Officials later revised the arrest figure and said 48 persons had been taken into custody. Moore said all were being charged with trespass, but that additional charges of resisting arrest were lodged against a number of them who refused to give any information to officers. Last month, an address by Hoveyda was interrupted at Columbia College in Columbia, Mo. There were no arrests and no injuries reported

By JEFFREY ULBRICH

PARIS (AP) - From the moment the first train pulled out of Paris, bearing Queen Marie-Amelie on the 13-mile trip to St. Germain on Aug. 27, 1837, the French knew they were on to something.

The intervening 142 years have done little to change that view, and France now possesses one of the finest rail systems in the world.

"The railroad is, and must remain, an essential factor in our system of transportation," says Transport Minister Joel le Theule. "The government, for its part, believes in the future of the railroad and shows it by its enormous subsidies.'

The state-run railroad, the Societe Nationale des Chemins de Fer Francais, commonly known as the SNCF, had total operating expenses in 1978 of $8.35 billion.

The government picked up the tab for some fare reductions and to continue service on some unprofitable lines. It also pays for the railroad's huge retirement program. That comes to an additional $3.75 billion in subsidies

IN FACT, France spends as much on the railroads as it does on building and maintaining its highways.

When a Frenchman thinks of going somewhere, particularly if it is more than 300 kilometers, it is sure he will think of the train," said Jean Albertini, an SNCF official. "In each town there is a station, and the railroad is something that is always there, with precise schedules.'

Apart from a reputation for serving the worst food to be had in this, land of gastronomes, French trains are comfortable and nearly always on time and offer a wide range of services and fare reductions.

The trains have a computerized ticket and reservation system hooked into most major travel agencies, facilities to rent a hotel room, a car or even a bicycle. Some ines can carry cars. The SNCF will pick up baggage at home and deliver it to a destination. It offers special help to the handicapped and even provides companions for children traveling alone.

The list of special fares is almost endless, some reductions ranging up to 75 percent and including price cuts for soldiers, retirees, veterans, large families, families traveling together, even couples in some cases.

THERE ARE special weekly and monthly rates for people who travel often, once-a-year reductions for vacationers and low income people and special prices for very long trips.

The trains even welcome dogs and cats - if owners are willing to buy their pets second-class tickets at half price.

Most major European nations have some sort of fare reduction plan. In West Germany and Sweden, almost everyone qualifies in some way or another for special fares. In Britain, where fares were raised by 20 percent last month, pensioners and families still get price breaks.

Contrary to the United States, where the railroad was a part of the conquest of the West, rail transport in France developed to connect established towns inside existing borders. It thus became an integral part of French life early on. By 1900, the 21,875-mile system was essentially com-

Emphasis now is on speed. The SNCF is laying 1,000 yards of track a day for what will be the country's "train of the future," a 165-mph run between Paris and Lyon, France's second-largest city. The new line will cut traveling time almost in half, from three hours and 45 minutes to about two hours.

"WE ARE reaching a point where we don't think in distance any more, we think in time, said Albertini. The move toward highspeed trains in Europe is not unique to France. British rail has 32 highspeed passenger trains, with top speeds of 125 mph, most of them linking London with other major cities.

In West Germany, where some lines already permit speeds of 125 mph, two routes are being built to carry trains at speeds of 155

After 10 years of steady increase, the number of riders on French trains was stagnant in 1979 in spite of another oil crunch, according to Pierre Gentil, SNCF director-general.

That contrasts with Britain, West Germany and Sweden, all of which report ridership increases. Officials of the West German federal railway estimate that 10 percent of their ridership increase was due to people leaving their cars at home in favor of taking the train.

RAILROADS throughout Europe can haul more passengers than they do now, particularly in non-peak hours and during the week. These are the periods officials are trying to fill by using fare reduction schemes.

In spite of the fare increases, British rail has launched a huge advertising campaign, urging people to "Let the Train Take the Strain." SNCF officials say oil problems so far have played a relatively small role in the growth of passenger service. With 17 million cars on French roads, there's still no evidence the crunch has reached crisis propor-

'People are still attached to their cars,' said Albertini. "The cost of gasoline (now $3.10 per gallon for premium) is still not dissuasive. It's beginning to be. ... If rationing ever comes, we'll certainly benefit from it. But we are not there ONCE AGAIN... PAINT DAUBERS of MIDLAND

Farmers Union backs re-regulation' of rails

Motorcycles sell faster with WANT AD. Dial 682-6222

DENVER (AP)-Farm delegates from around the nation have elected new officers and drawn up a policy statement that includes proposals for "re-regulation" of railroads and for federally sponsored irrigation projects partitioned into family-size farms.

The 78th annual convention of the National Farmers Union adjourned Thursday after electing George Stone, 60, Choctaw, Okla., its new president. He replaces retiring Tony Dechant, who has headed the 300,000-member group for the past 14 years. New vice president for the organization is Stanley Moore, of Dickey County, N.D.

Stone, president of the Oklahoma Farmers Union and former vice president of the national farmers group, defeated John Stencel, president of the Denver-based Rocky Mountain Farmers Union by a vote of 165,351 to 88,889. Moore, president of the North Dakota Farmers Union, defeated Dale Lyon, president of the Kansas Farmers Union, 155,754 to 98,485.

During a press conference, the new president vowed to work to stimulate farm income and increase lobby efforts for passage of equitable farm legislation.

Stone said he would continue to push for 100 percent of parity for farmers instead of the current 64 percent, because "the more you shoot for, the better the possibility of getting closer to what you want. Highest priorities on Stone's list in performing his new job are to strengthen farm income and strengthen membership in the organi-

Stone blamed President Carter, the Agriculture Department and Congress for failure to pass legislation beneficial to farmers and indicated he would push for stronger lobbying efforts for farm bills.

He said policy approved at the 1980 convention poses a greater sense of urgency on a number of points, including the grain embargo and its effects. Stone said he will plan strategy to get the most urgent recommendations of convention delegates to legislators in Washington, D.C.

That statement, which was drawn up by delegates from a draft prepared by a special committee, calls for re-regulation of railroads to insure rural areas will not be denied adequate service, citing a crisis in the nation's rail system. The group further proposed federal legislation to create rural transportation cooperatives and to nationalize the nation's rail beds and called for a moratorium on all rail-line abandonments.

The National Farmers Union reaffirmed support for a national, comprehensive, universal pre-paid health insurance program. During the longest policy debate of the convention, delegates urged federally sponsored irrigation project benefits be limited to family-size farm operations. The group called for both residency requirements and acreage limitations for reclamation lands.

In other actions, the delegates called for closing tax loopholes being used by off-farm investors in agriculture; opposed the proposed federal value-added tax; urged state Farmers Union organizations to scrutinize 'relationships between land grant colleges and universities and large agri-business corporations.'

The policy statement also called for revision of Social Security laws to provide "equal treatment for women workers and to protect widows" and opposed proposals to tax Social Security benefits. Delegates called for increased funds for public housing with special emphasis on rural areas and urged re-enactment of the 2 percent interest loan program for rural electric cooperatives.

The group recommended enactment of a national no-fault motor vehicle insurance law and supported partial public financing of campaigns for federal elections.

Thomas Donahue, secretary-treasurer of the AFL-CIO, who spoke at the closing banquet of the convention Thursday, told a news conference the solidarity between the American labor movement and the family farmers' movement will always have close ties built on mutual inter-

He called the reliance on high interest rates to control inflation 'foolhardy," adding that family farmers are adversely affected by high interest rates which decrease productivity because they create wealth without creating any products.

'When farmers must borrow money," said Donahue, "they should not have to compete with speculators or giant corporations." He proposed that the president and the Federal Reserve Board move to allocate credit to areas such as housing, agricultural and public invest-

Donahue said that while the AFL-CIO supports suspension of grain sales to the Soviet Union, "we will support legislation and appropriations to make certain family farmers do not suffer unfairly." He told farmers they should receive the full price their grain would have

Calling for a return to price controls on oil and natural gas, Donahue said there should be rationing based on needs - not price. He added that supplies should be allocated equitably.

The rich should not be able to buy as much gasoline as they want for pleasure driving, when farmers don't have enough to harvest their crop,'

Donahue said he doesn't think escalation of interest rates can get much worse. "But I said that at 13 percent and now it's more than 17 percent." He added that he believes the problem now is that no one knows how to come down from a 17.25 percent interest rate.

He stressed that inflation is not being caused by increased wages. "A quick fix is to call for wage control and that just won't take care of the problem," he said. "There's no argument to be made that inflation is wage-induced."

The GM president said American car makers were not well prepared for an almost-overnight surge of demands last spring for fuel-efficient, compact cars that stemmed in part from a shaky energy situation. Japanese car makers are "well suited to take advantage" of the new situation, Estes said in a press Asked conference at a hotel in Tokyo.

Estes is here on a four-day visit for talks with officials of Isuzu Motors Co., of which GM is the top shareholder. He will also meet with other major Isuzu shareholders and Japanese government officials. A spokesman said Estes is scheduled to leave for Singapore Saturday.

Dairymen get higher supports to cover higher production costs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dairy farmers will get a demand for dairy products." hefty boost in federal price supports on April 1, an But at this time, officials sa automatic increase designed to help offset rising

The automatic increase, provided by law, is among a number of procedures Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland says he is looking at as part of the administration's budget review. Dairy supports are examples of "indexing" procedures used in many federal programs, also including Social Security benefits. The term, borrowed from the Consumer Price Index, refers to the practice of boosting benefits as costs of living go up.

Disclosed Thursday by the Agriculture Department, the boost in milk supports would be equal to about 2 cents a quart at the farm.

But the impact on consumers was not clear. Officials said retail prices of dairy products across the board are expected to rise 8 to 10 percent this year, unchanged from earlier estimates. Those went up 11 percent last year.

Food prices overall are expected to rise 7 to 11 percent in 1980, with the increase "most likely" to be around 8 or 9 percent, the department says. Food prices rose about 11 percent, on the average, in

The increase in dairy price supports is mandatory under current law that requires adjustments twice a year, on Oct. 1 and on April 1.

In a summary of a forthcoming "dairy situation" was lower than in 1977, report, officials said, the April 1 adjustment "will when 1,256 cases were probably increase the support price of milk about 85 cents" per 100 pounds.

Since last fall the support has been $11.22 per 100 cent problem. Only 125 pounds, based on milk used to make butter, cheese cases were recorded in and nonfat dry milk. An 85-cent increase would raise the support this spring to $12.07 per 100 pounds.

Milk production "will show substantial" increases in the first six months of 1980 from the first half of that primarily affects last year, the report said.

Consequently, the added supply will put downward presssure on market prices of milk and trigger 'considerably greater" purchases of surplus dairy products by the government to carry out its price support operations, it said.

The government does not pay farmers directly, but it does buy surplus butter, cheese and nonfat dry milk at prices high enough so that dealers can pay producers at least the minimum rates specified in the support program.

"The outlook for the second half of the year is much less certain at this time," the report said. "Key factors will be 1980 crop developments and the effect feed prices, weather conditions and cow numbers have on milk production, and the strength of

JIMMY'S WHITE HOUSE

Billy would vote GOP if Kennedy nominated

WASHINGTON (AP) - Billy Carter, a White House visitor more often than many suspect, was back here this week with a characteristically pointed observation about the political scene.

The president's kid brother, he of the unfettered tongue, confided to a reporter that if Sen. Edward M. Kennedy wins the Democratic presidential nomination, "I believe I'd vote Republican."

Like some other presidents before him, Jimmy Carter sometimes has seemed uncertain about how he should respond to blunt questions reporters often shout at him on the fly. Perhaps the president has sought outside advice on the matter. Or maybe he decided on his own to try a different approach. Whatever the reason, Carter is earning a new reputation as a pixie or tease in handling out-of-the-blue inquiries. On Friday, for example, a broadcaster shouted as the president was leaving an East Room ceremony, "Anything new on Iran?"

"Yes," Carter replied as he marched out without missing a step.

"Well, what is it?" the broadcaster demanded. "Not much," the vanishing president responded over his shoulder.

On Monday, as Carter returned from a weekend at Camp David, Md., a reporter called to him, "Are you going to cut $20 billion from the feder-

"I don't know yet," the president replied. "Do you know anything yet?" he was asked.

"Yes," he said without elaborating.

On the evening of his victory in New Hampshire's Democratic primary, Carter took the nation's governors and their ladies to the Kennedy Center to watch an award-winning play, "The Elephant Man. As the presidential motorcade formed outside the White House, appointments secretary Phil Wise loaded a large portable television set into a waiting limousine. Once at the Kennedy Center, Wise ignored the play and took the TV set to a small room where he kept watch for New Hampshire returns.

Between this week's Democratic primaries in Massachusetts and Vermont and last week's New Hampshire balloting, White House press secretary Jody Powell turned up in Springfield, Ill., as featured speaker at a Democratic fund-raiser.

Invitations soliciting contributions from prospective diners had held out the promise of an evening with Jimmy Carter, who hasn't left the Washington area in more than four months' - since U.S. hostages were taken in Tehran on Nov. 4.

But Democratic money-raisers repeatedly have held out possible presidential appearances as bait for contributors, then announced substitute speakers a few days before the events.

With the president observing a moratorium on personal campaigning until the hostages are released, his frequent stand-ins have been wife Rosalynn and Vice President Walter F. Mondale. But Powell?

Asked why he had gone to Springfield instead of Mrs. Carter or Mondale, Powell said, "In my case, all I need is a plane ticket and a motel

'Law of Shame' plan proposed by Sadat

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) - At the urging of President Anwar Sadat, his political party is drafting a law that seeks to control public behavior and legislate personal belief in God.

The law, which has become a subject of deep controversy, is aimed at curbing opposition to Sadat's policies, which persists despite previous laws and regulations generally aimed at critics of the left and right

Among other things, the law would prohibit offenders from holding a job and allow sequestration of personal funds. Violators would be brought before a special "Court of Shame" whose composition is still being discussed. A maximum prison sentence of five years could be imposed.

Publication of the proposed law known as the "Law of Shame" - in the government-controlled press has brought outcries from lawyers, journalists and other intellectuals.

"It gives dictatorship a new form," said novelist Ihsan Abdel Kodous. A member of Sadat's National Democratic Party, who declined to be identified, maintained, "It blesses the creation of concentration camps." Critics claim the law is so sweepingly worded that it would give proscutors wide latitude of interpretation, perhaps enlarging the scope of enforcement beyond its intended targets. Decisions by the court are not subject to appeal at least for one year. The law is "an aggression on the freedom of every Egyptian anywhere," said Momtaz Nassar, an independent member of the People's Assembly, Egypt's national legislative body. Sadat first suggested the law last year when he was being attacked by exiled Egyptian journalists and internal opponents for his peace policies with Israel.

"It is time that we tell these people that what you are doing is a shame, there should be a limit," he said in an address to the People's Assembly.

Since publication of the draft, Sadat has told a gathering of journalists that the law is aimed at "a limited number of persons." Similar mea-sures enacted last year after a referendum resulted in a handful of journalists being called in for questioning. None was arrested.

To balance some of the measures in the "Law of Shame," officials of the National Democratic Party included provisions spelling out when and how a president, his deputy or Cabinet ministers can be tried for treason.

The penalty would be death.

Nevertheless, some critics say, if the law goes into the books it would be subject to harmful interpretations.

The draft says it would be a crime "to advocate any doctrine which implies a negation of divine teachings or which does not conform with the tenets thereof." It also forbids "allowing children or youth to go astray by advocating the repudiation of religious, moral or national values or by setting a bad example in public

It also would prohibit "advocating opposition to, hatred of, or contempt for the state's political, social or eco-nomic system," forbid publishing or broadcasting of "false or misleading news which inflames public opinion, generates envy and hatred." In addition it would be forbidden to use 'gross or scurrilous words, pictures or cartoons which offend public sensibilities or undermine the dignity of the state ...

It would bring people to account for such offenses as endangering public property, squandering state funds, abusing power, influencing directly or indirectly the prices of essential commodities or accepting bribes.

An original Horatio Alger hero

By JULES LOH AP Special Correspondent

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) - William E, Walkup is retiring as chairman of the board. The kids in the mail room have a special reason to sing Auld Lang

Walkup is one of those Americans who writers of boys' novels years ago liked to picture as typical but who actually were a rare species, and in today's business world, are even rarer.

The mail room was where he started; the board room, where he finished. Even Horatio Alger would be impressed.

"I never set out to become chairman of the board," he said. "In fact, I never set out to go to work for this company. A job was open and I took it. I had intended to become a writer."

That was 1939, the tag end of the Depression, when a 21-year-old man with a wife and baby and two years of college took what work he could find. The pay was $75 a month, lowest on the company scale. The work was 10 hours a day.

"Ph.Ds were doing the same kind of work," Walkup said. "I was just glad to have a paycheck.'

The company he joined, Signal Oil & Gas, had been founded 16 years earlier by a man named Sam Mosher with $4,000 in borrowed money and a truckload of scrounged pipe.

Those were swinging times in California. Oil seemed to flow endlessly from a coastal knoll called Signal Hill. Big deals were concluded with a handshake, big money made overnight. When Walkup hired on, the company was struggling up the back slope of the Depression to regain that lost bounty.

For nine years, Walkup sorted mail, clerked, worked the switchboard, loaded cement sacks. Then, out of the blue, Mosher summoned him to try out as his administrative assistant.

"I assumed he called on me tecause I could type and take shorthand," Walkup said. For whatever reason, from that day on Bill Walkup found a home

Largely through his efforts and ideas, the company became The Signal in the executive suite. Companies Inc. — companies, plural, a conglomerate no longer in the oil business but with a raft of other subsidiaries. Nowhere along the way had the young Bill Walkup rescued the boss's wife, or found any other dime-novel shortcut to the top, but, looking back on 41 years, he does have some thoughts for today's boys in the mail room. "I will not say that I haven't been lucky," he said. "On the other hand, I have always assumed that moderate success was somehow, in some way, going to happen to me. I just felt it. "Many times I took on jobs that I was ostensibly not equipped to do simply because I felt I could nonetheless get them done. I believe it was Shakespeare who said, 'If you don't have a virtue assume one.' In a sense, that's what I have

"We have all heard of instances of people performing incredible feats of physical strength in an emergency. "Cerebrally, maybe a similar condition prevails. Under the stress of the emergency, use of our brain capacity expands, since under normal conditions we supposedly use only a fraction of our potential. So don't be afraid to jump in over your head." Considering that Bill Walkup abandoned his dream of becoming a writer, has he really been successful, been true to himself? "I am working on a novel," he said. "I have been working on it for several years. It is a business novel, about companies raiding other companies, pretty

"I am a retired man now. I'll have the time to finish it." The betting around Signal is that, in his new career, Bill Walkup is not jumping in over his head.
