Carter considering sanctions against Iran

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter met with key advisers for 21/2 hours thid morning and planned "further consultations" later in the day as he weighed new economic and diplomatic sanctions against Iran

Carter conferred with top national security and diplomatic aides after Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini blocked the latest effort to transfer control of U.S. hostages in Tehran to the Iranian government

White House press secretary Jody Powell announced plans for addition al talks during the afternoon and indicated he might have more to say later about an announcement of presidential decisions.

Talking briefly to reporters after he returned from an Easter weekend at Camp David, Md., a grim-looking Carter was asked whether he was about to invoke new sanctions.

'We'll be deciding that in a few minutes," Carter replied.

The president went directly to his Oval Office, then to the nearby Cabi-

At one point, Carter remarked that the hostages' captors — he called them "terrorists" - had agreed to release their prisoners to the Iranian government "but the government re fused." He did not elaborate.

Spokesman Powell said he did not know if the White House meeting would lead to an immediate announcement of U.S. retaliatory moves. But he suggested it might take some time to prepare to implement net Room for the session with most, some unspecified decisions, indicatmembers of his National Security ing that could delay an announce-

Powell said he knew of no plans for a presidential address to the nation. Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and other officials spent part of their Easter Sunday preparing the list of potential sanctions for presentation to the president.

One official, who asked not to be identified, said in advance of today's meeting that, barring a sudden change for the better in Tehran, there was little doubt a package of sanctions would be adopted. The decision, he told The Associated Press Sunday afternoon, could come "within 24 hours.

Building a hole new world

Developer to provide a pit-full of fun

By LANA CUNNINGHAM Staff Writer

It's amazing the imagination some people have Whoever would have thought that out of a caliche pit could come a 15 acre family fun park? One day last year a dreamer took a look at a caliche pit on the west side of Midland and saw not an empty useless hole. but the setting for a swimming lake, river ride, picnic areas and small car race track. And that's just for

Wild River Canyon is slowly taking shape and no longer does the caliche pit resemble its former self Like an ugly caterpillar that undergoes a metamorphosis to become a beautiful butterfly, the park project is past the halfway point toward completion The pit has been cleaned out and dug deeper, and concrete poured in numerous places to form swimming holes and fishing lakes. The hard part is finished, said Nance Densmore, a spokesman for the project When completed, the hole no longer will look like it belongs in West Texas. Between all the rides and entertainment will be trees, grass and flowers - more like a little bit of heaven on earth A wall of trees will cover the area. It (the canyon) will be landscaped so it will be nice to look at with flowering trees and shrubs," said Ms. Densmore

Some of the "natural" surroundings will remain to add a touch of realism. For example, jutting out into the Little Baja Raceway are piles of large stones. This raceway, by the way, will feature Can-American race cars and drivers will have to be at least 14 years old,

said the spokesman

From the road - either Andrews Highway or Holiday Hill Road - the only visible sign of activity on the canyon project is a dirt hill that has grown over the past few months: On top of that is being constructed Baby-Doe, a miniature mining camp copied from a camp in Colorado. Ms Densmore explained

This hill will be the send-off for park-goers trying out the river ride. Children and adults will lie on rubber mats and slide down three flumes to a splash pool in the bottom of the canyon

The spiash pool will be part of - but separated from a swimming lake. This lake will have a water slide. T bar rides, water volleyball court and rope walks. By the time a sandy beach is added, it may be enough to make West Texans believe that for a short while they have escaped the dry desert for a coastal area

If they get thirsty while dreaming on the sand, a Hawaiian pavilion is adjacent to the beach to serve food and soft drinks

A fishing lake on the south side of the canyon will be stocked with catfish and bass. A boating lake for motorized bumper boats will add more excitement for the strong at heart

The very small children haven't been forgotten, said Ms Densmore as she outlined plans for a playground in the center of the canyon for the youngsters. It will be decorated with brightly colored animals and "is designed to provide healthy exercise and hours of fun." Walkways and footbridges will connect the play

Rabies local, statewide problem

As population grows, outbreaks of disease increase

Staff Writer

Rabies increasingly is becoming a health problem in Texas and is particularly evident as the population expands into areas formerly reserved for wildlife. Dr. Foy V. McCasland, chief of the Texas Department of Health's Bureau of Veterinary Public Health, said here Monday.

"Rabies is not a local problem Rabies is a problem that is general throughout the state," Dr. McCasland told about 50 people attending a West Texas Conference on Animal Control in Midland Center We are well on the way to rables being a major health concern," he said of the often-fatal disease which attacks the central nervous system. The outbreak of rabies in Texas since 1978 is the most widespread since the early 1950s when the viral disease reached its peak. But unlike today with skunks the most common carriers of the disease. rabid dogs were the dominant carriers in the 1950s. The number of verified rabies cases in the peak year almost 30 years ago was about 1,400. But in 1979, the number fose to 1,195 — double that of 1978 and signs indicate that the number will be even higher in 1980

'Texas has the 'honor' of having more rabies than any state in the nation," McCasland said "We like to brag about being 'biggest and best,' but I hope this is one case where we don't end up biggest and best.

Of the laboratory verified rabies cases in Texas, 80 percent were in noctural skunks. The remaining cases were mostly in bats, canines and cats, he said. And skunks accounted for 85 percent of the rabid cases in wild-

However, McCasland noted that the 'dog-to-dog cycle of rabies" particularly is acute along the United States Mexican border.

The rise in skunk-associated rabies seemed to coincide with:

-The growing population and the increasing encroachment of civilized man on areas habitated by wildlife

-The decrease in population of furbearing animals, such as foxes and raccoons, which are being trapped for their skins. "They (skunks) have a tendency to multiply as the food supply increases," he said.

McCasland said a solution to the skunk problem would not be the wholesale extermination of the skunk, such means would only increase the population of other animals, as the food supply becomes more abundant. And in the extermination, more animals than just skunks would be victims. Rather, McCasland recommended that people shun skunks and "let wildlife run its course.

Any time a skunk is showing abnormal behavior, that's reason enough to stay away from it," he said. Abnormal behavior in skunks, for example, would be the day-time prowling of the nocturnal animal and any wildlife that shows a loss of fear of man. The viral disease is usually passed via bites.

McCasland said that in Texas there is no law probibiting skunks kept as pets. But "we very vigorously discourage people" from trying to domesticate the skunk. He said that no pharmaceutical company is marketing a vaccine that inoculates skunks against rabies.

The best thing is to leave a skunk in the wild," he said.

Skunks, which the old-timers called throughout the history of Texas, McCasland said.

"The old trail-drivers had a deadly fear of the old 'polecat,' and it wasn't the smell they were afraid of," he

In turning to animal control in both urban and rural areas, McCasland that "a good animal-control program in Texas takes a back seat to everything else.

Nevertheless, an animal control program is "not just the control of stray animals" and domesticated pets, but also must include a program to "educate the people...about rables and what to do about it." The two-day conference will resume at 8: 30 a.m. Tuesday in Midland Center. Speakers include animal-control specialists, Humane Society investigators, public health veterinarians, news persons and zoonosis investigators.

The conference is sponsored by the Texas Department of Health and is hosted by the city of Midland's Animal Control Department.

Flower shop destroyed

A fire early this morning destroyed the Monterrey Flower Shop, 1507 N. Big Spring St., according to fire department reports responded to the 2:16 a.m. alarm and found the brick and wood structure in flames. Eight firemen used 1,750 gallons of water to bring the fire under control, according to fire department reports. The business, owned by Philip Mar-areas, with the focal point being a wooden suspension bridge leading to the river ride For a good look at the whole operation, park-goers will be able to take a quarter-scale train that will encircle the canyon rim. The track already is being laid for this ride.

Entrance to the park will be through Canyon Point, a three-story building that will contain a pizza restaurant, game arcade, dressing room facilities and souvenir shop. One story has been built and workers are constructing it adjacent to an outdoor amphitheater.

If Hawaiian food or pizza doesn't interest the palate, the park-goer isn't lost. He can try Mexican food from a Cantina or fried chicken from another pavilion

Admission charges haven't been settled, said Ms. Densmore, but she did hint that visiting Wild River Canyon might be cheaper than going to a movie.

Currently hidden behind businesses scattered along Holiday Hill Road. Wild River Canyon should emerge in late May or early June in the completed form dreamed last year by its signer, L.W. Bryant.

Making sure that dream is realized is the owner of the caliche pit and now developer of Wild River Canyon, T.J. Melton III & Associates, Inc.

Building fire being probed

Investigators for the Midland Fire Marshal's office are still probing the cause of a fire which destroyed a storage building outside the city Sunday

The fire, reported at 9:32 a.m. Sunday, engulfed and caused heavy damage to a storage building located at the intersection of County Road 1180 South and County Road 120 East, fire reports indicated.

The building is owned by Henry Cobb, 2902 Mariana Ave.

When firemen arrived at the scene, they found the building blazing, reports indicated. Five firemen used 1,300 gallons of water to bring the fire under control.

According to fire department reports, the fire caused heavy damage to the storage building.

Fair, cooler forecast tor area

More near-perfect weather is in store for Permian Basin residents Tuesday, the weatherman said.

Skies should be fair and temperatures a little cooler Tuesday, according to the National Weather Service office at Midland Regional Airport. High Tuesday is expected to be in the low 40s. Northwest winds should be blowing only about 5-10 mph tonight, accord-

the mid-70s with the overnight low in ing to the forecast. Easter Sunday dawned bright and clear and ended with a recorded high of 83 degrees, well below the record temperature for the date of 99 degrees set in 1972.

The overnight low was recorded at 46, very comfortable when compared to the record low of 23 degrees recorded in 1939

No rain is expected to mar the spring-like weather, so the annual total likely will remain at .78 inch. Area cities were enjoying the same clear cool morning Midlanders saw early today.

Murdered attorney's wife lived in fear of strangers

DALLAS (AP) - For most of her life, Debera Martinson lived in fear of strangers - hiding behind locked doors and refusing to open them to visitors she did not know

The 28-year-old nurse and mother pushed furniture against the doors at night and often slept under the bed when her husband, Don, was away, according to neighbors.

Friends said they had to telephone in advance if they wanted to drop by to visit her. She was taught from childhood to let no strangers in her house, and she grew up determined to make herself safe from intruders.

My daughter would not admit a total stranger to her home," said Debera's father, John Monroe Woodson. "She would not open a door (to a caller) unless she could see him or knew him.

Her precautions were wasted. Last week, she was found dead on the floor of her bedroom, a macrame plant holder wrapped tightly around her

A message had been scrawled on her mirror in rosy pink lipstick. It said: "Now we are even Don."

An autopsy showed she died of strangulation, there was semen in her mouth and her hands and wrists probably had been bound.

Her clothes had been folded neatly, and placed to form a trail leading to her nude body.

There was no sign of forced entry 'She had a horror of dying like this," said a close friend who requested anonymity. "Debbie Martinson would open a door to nobody.

Police probe two burglaries

Midland police this morning were investigating two burglaries in which more than $1,400 in jewelry, stereo equipment and a gun was taken. Apolonio Rodriquez, 1701 E. Oak Ave., reported the burglary of his residence to police Sunday. According to Rodriquez, the burglary occurred between 12:30 a.m. Friday and 4:30 p.m. Sunday.

Taken was a man's gold watch valued at $500, a man's gold ring with diamonds valued at $275 and a $3 bottle of hair conditioner.

Entry to the residence was gained through a bedroom window, according to police department reports. Doris Giles, 1100 E. Pennsylvania Ave., reported the burglary of her residence to police Sunday. She said the burglary occurred between 1 p.m. Friday and 7:30 p.m. Sunday.

Taken was stereo equipment valued at $600 and a .22 caliber pistol valued at $100. Police department reports indicat-

Sadat arriving for talks on Palestinian self-rule

 Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's arrival today touches off a new round of Mideast summitry over granting some form of self-rule to more than 1 million Palestinian Arabs who live under Israeli control. President Carter is stepping into the lagging West Bank-Gaza Strip autonomy talks with all major issues still unresolved. He is not only trying to get his own Mideast policy moving again, but struggling to maintain U.S. control over the sputtering peace process. If the May 26 target date for an agreement on self-rule is not met. Western European countries are expected to launch their own initiative in behalf of the Palestinians. The tight control the United States has maintained over settling the Arab-Israeli dispute tiations centered in the near-isolation in the United Nations.

This, in turn, might give the Soviet Union and radical Arab regimes new leverage to use against Israel and even Egypt. And Carter's election-year claims of successfully arranging peace between the two countries could be overshadowed by a serious foreign policy setback. Sadat's ceremonial late-afternoon arrival marks the return of the only Arab leader to rely totally on the United States. This relationship has brought Egypt peace with Israel, top-notch American weapons and

Commuter traffic heavy

NEW YORK (AP) — Warned of a potential traffic nightmare, commuters began streaming into the city in cars earlier and jamming aboard available trains to get to work in the seventh day of the city's massive bus and subway strike.

"It's definitely heavier than last week," said Transportation Department spokesman Victor Ross shortly before 5:30 a.m. At 6 a.m. there was heavy pedestrian traffic reported at the Brooklyn Bridge. By 6:30 a.m., bumper-to-bumper traffic was reported on several expressways, bridges and in tunnels leading into Manhattan.

Early Conrail trains on the lines from Westchester County to the north carried nearly double the load of last week, when up to 21/2 times the normal number of passengers rode the trains.

City officials had braced for a possible "Nightmare Monday," but Traffic Commissioner Thomas Guthrie said, "We think we have an orderly system. It takes two to three hours, but it's not a nightmare. We'll get you there safely, but it certainly won't be a speedway.

Mayor Edward Koch vowed anew on Sunday that the 35,000 striking transit workers would not bring New York's 5.4 million daily commuters to their knees.

Authorities said that if many more than 550,000 cars - more than double the normal number - tried to enter Manhattan, it could create a traffic knot that would take hours to un-

Meanwhile, negotiators for the city's Metropolitan Transportation Authority and the Transport Workers Union met briefly Sunday night and there were reports of some progress. 'We are managing to discuss the issues fairly steadily, and that's a good sign," said chief mediator Walter Gellhorn. "I do believe that an interchange, even if it is repetitive, is better than a rupture.' John Lawe, president of TWU Local 100, said Sunday he saw hope for a settlement this week. "But I wouldn't bet on Monday," he added.

A three-man mediation panel scheduled separate meetings with the union and management for this morning. Later in the day, Gellhorn holds an important session with the 46-member TWU executive board, the first since last Tuesday when the walkout began.

In Brooklyn, Supreme Court Justice John Monteleone was to hear more testimonyltoday on an MTA request that the TWU leadership be punished for disobeying a contempt of court order forbidding a strike. The state's Taylor Law forbids strikes by public

The TWU is demanding a 25 percent salary increase over two years, and opposes the MTA's demand of "givebacks" of perquisites gained in past contracts. Management last effered 12 percent over two years. Subway and bus workers earn $18,000 annual

At the same time, talks were scheduled between the Long Island Rail Road and seven operating unions that walked out for two days last week. The 4,000 workers returned to work at the urging of a federal mediator but have threatened to walk out again if talks do not progress.

Police wound sniper after four-hour siege

(AP) — A man equipped with an "arsenal" of weapons was wounded in a shootout with police after he held police off for about four hours this morning. Authorities said the man shot and killed his parents. The siege ended when police wounded the alleged sniper, identified as William Jennings. about 36, said Police Chief Edward Palardy.

Jennings, who was shot several times, was taken to a hospital. His condition was not immediately available.

Police said the bodie of Jennings' parents, James and Louise Jennings, were found dead in a first floor bedroom in this community about 15 miles from New York City. Palardy said they had been shot with a high-powered rifle.

Meanwhile, to the south in Pleasantville, a Pennsylvania man held off police for more than seven hours before critically wounding his lover and taking his own life today. The woman was hospitalized with bullet wounds in the stomach. pelvis and back.

Palardy said Jennings' sister, 19-year-old Meg, escaped through a second floor window during the standoff. She was not injured.

Police said they knew of no motive for the siege, which began just after 4:30 a.m. At one point, tear gas was fired into the home

Offer worth considering

Diego Garcia is small comfort when considering the potential for disruption of the shipping lanes upon which the United States must depend for its supply of oil from the Persian Gulf.

The developing base in the Indian Ocean, however, is the nation's most forward installation in monitoring the Soviet Union's effort to nail down its takeover of Afghanistan. Somalia is not likely to risk Soviet wrath by permitting construction on sites coveted by the United States nor is Saudi Arabia prepared to outrage its Arab neighbors by inviting U.S.

But Washington is not the only capital to acknowledge concern over the Russian invasion of Afghanistan.

Australia is nervous about the vulnerability of its remote and sparsely populated west coast.

Prime Minister Malcolm Fraser has offered the United States permanent base facilities sued.

The lonely American outpost on on Australia's Indian Ocean coast in return for help in improving his own country's defense.

The proposal makes sense for both countries.

Australia's west coast is not the ideal location to establish a permanent Indian Ocean presence. It is, however, much closer to the current action arena than the Philippines bases from which President Carter ordered a carrier force to show itself in the Persian Gulf area - an order later countermanded.

Even during ongoing congressional efforts to trim the federal budget in the war on inflation, funds for defense apparently will remain intact. The House Budget Committee, in fact, even considered briefly an increase of $1.5 billion to construct a new naval fleet for the Indian Ocean.

throughout the Lone Star State.

When you stop to think about it, business and industry really is the backbone of this state's economy. The diversified industrial base in Texas has helped to "protect" Texans from many of the severe recessionary problems suffered elsewhere in the nation during recent years.

Texans also enjoy a high standard of living and one of the lowest unemployment rates in the nation. That fact, along with the state's other features, continues to attract new businesses and industries. Those firms, too, are learning that Texas is a good place to call home.

Business and industry one of the state's most important

It's entirely fitting that we should honor business and industry, and recognize its importance to our state.

WASHINGTON-MERRY-GO-ROUND

Carter's tirade won't bring prices down

WASHINGTON - No amount of jawboning from the White House has been able to keep Big Oil from going its merry buccaneering way, ripping off the American consumer for gasoline and home heating fuel. Even the Mobil will probably have no chastening effect on the recklessly greedy oil companies

The trouble, as Jimmy Carter's top inflation fighters admitted in a memo late last year, is in the administration's voluntary anti-inflation program itself. The Council on Wage and Price Stability (COWPS) is a paper tiger as far as Big Oil is concerned, they explained to the president.

The confidential memo, written by presidential advisers Stu Eizenstat and Alfred Kahn, boasts that "price guidelines have been remarkably successful in restraining price increases in most other industries," but concedes that the White House effort has not produced a "similar restraint ip petroleum products. Eizenstat and Kahn explained that "even if through sophisticated accounting methods it turns out that most individual companies are in compliance with the letter of the standard, the aggregate data leaves no doubt that the industry as a whole has not complied with its spirit. In other words, with a little effort by their accounting departments, the oil companies can rake in enormous profits and still be technically within the COWPS guidelines. The basic problem is that only refining - a small part of the oil industry's operations - is covered by the guidelines. Crude oil production, distribution and marketing are not. 'The extent of COWPS authority can at best be expected to affect only a relatively small portion - the refiners' margin - out of the total retail price of gasoline, home heating oil and other refined petroleum products," explains an unpublished analysis of the guidelines prepared by the General Accounting Office. And even in this limited area of supervision, COWPS has been letting the oil companies get away with murder. In one recent report, for example, COWPS disclosed that there had been an average 4.5 cent per gallon increase in the refiners' margin during the first year the voluntary guidelines were in effect. That was almost a 45 percent rise in the margin.

A standard under which such an excessive increase can occur for reasons other than noncompliance must surely be considered suspect," the GAO study observes.

The trouble is that the president's voluntary program relies on the patriotism and moderation of industry and labor, and there are apparently few born-again Christians in the boardrooms of Big Oil. The chief executive of Exxon, for example, was paid $977,-993 in salary and bonuses last year while the price of gasoline soared over $1 a gallon. The No. 2 man drew

With motivation like that, it's small wonder the oil moguls shrug off the administration's pitiful, helpless giant steps to control inflation.

The only weapons COWPS has against those who exceed the guidelines are the withholding of government contracts and the spreading of bad publicity. And these are singularly unsuitable weapons with which to belabor Big Oil.

The government-contract stick works only if there isn't much demand in the private sector for goods the government refuses to buy. Obviously, this is not the case with oil.

As for bad publicity, the GAO analysis notes, "To be effective, publicity would have to have the potential for damaging a company's image. Oil companies are subjected almost daily to a barrage of bad publicity in the 40 percent of the doctors needed; less than 25 percent of the nurses and less than half of the enlisted medics. It would require 110 days to get the then, reasonable to believe that neither of the sanctions available for enforcement of the COWPS price standard are (sic) likely to have substantial effect on the oil industry's behavior.

It's too soon to assess the impact of the administration's blasts at Mobil. But the smart money didn't seem worried. In late February, COWPS accused Mobil of violating the price guidelines, and the firm's stock jumped $4.50 per share. After President Carter's blast, the price of Mobil's stock went up $1.75 the next

The Kremlin has more skillfully utilized another animal from childhood fable - the wolf in sheep's clothing - to manipulate a worldwide network of interlocking front groups that lend respectability to Soviet policy goals abroad, according to secret CIA

The front organizations include such high-sounding groups as the International Institute for Peace, the World Peace Council, the World Federation of Democratic Youth, and even, with particular irony, the Christian Peace Conference and the International Federation of Resistance Fighters.

"These organizations profess non-Communist goals," one CIA report states, "and for that reason are, under certain circumstances, more operationally useful to the Soviet Union than groups of Communist sympathizers.

The CIA estimates that the Kremlin funds 13 of these international organizations to the tune of $63 million a year. Some of the biggest, the CIA reports, have "reached a level of sophistication qualifying (them) for official status with United Nations organizations.'

WATCH ON WASTE: The Veterans Administration spent about $100 million on a computer system that it claimed would cut down on the agency's personnel. That it did, but the system broke down so often last year that more money was spent on additional overtime than was saved by reducing the staff.

three months late getting there. Murder? You darned right it is. From start to finish, defense decisions have been made strictly on the basis of domestic politics with a wan-ton disregard for the consequences.

Former President Nixon opted for a volunteer army, not because it was militarily feasible, but because he wanted to cool the campuses and take the fire out of the anti-war demonstra-

The Ford and Carter Administrations have maintained the pretense because it is politically unpopular to advocate a draft. The Congress has refused to vote the necessary funds for the same reason - domestic politics. Most of the Carter appointees in the Defense Department are either ideologically anti-military or totally ignorant of military affairs. The President and the Congress have the constitutional duty to provide for the nation's defense. Beyond that, though, they have the moral obligation to see to it that every American youngster they ask a uniform has the best weapons, the best training, the best logistics, and the best medical care money can buy. It's not too much to ask in exchange for our children risking their lives. Neither the President nor the Congress has fulfilled that obligation. There are many fine, dedicated young Americans in the Armed Forces. They are the ones who will stand and fight even if some of their companionscut and run, even if their equipment malfunctions, even if their reinforcements don't arrive.

We owe them our support. After they die, it will be too late to be sorry, too late for excuses, and I think, as parents, we should put the politicians on notice now that this time they will not get off the hook nor be forgiven and that they will be held personally accountable for every needless cas-

For too long we have allowed the politicians and the bureaucrats to escape the consequences of their mistakes and negligence. It's time to take names and make plans.

Only a cynic would say that the Administration's goal was to get the hostages out in time for the Wisconsin primary. That's ridiculous. It's the Pennsylvania primary.

The White House also emphatically denies that any sort of conciliatory message was sent to Iran. "As a matter of fact," said a spokesman, "It was the strongest worded Candygram we have ever sent."

President Bani-Sadr, dressed in his most authoritative golf shirt, is using his wide influence to transfer the hostages from the militants' control to the Iranian government's control. This means that the militants will get new uniforms.

And this just in - President Carter has told the families of the hostages that they won't have to pay their income taxes by April 15. And THAT I didn't make up.

INSIDE REPORT:

Letter Carter denied writing signalled a retreat

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON - Brief hours after Reuters flashed the text of a purported top-secret message from Jimmy Carter to Ayatollah Khomeini, the Lebanese ambassador to the U.N. commented quietly to friends at a Manhattan party: "It is really disgraceful, but I can believe he wrote

That snap reaction by so sophisticated a diplomat to the letter President Carter insists he never wrote or even underwrote - is shared by those here who have watched frantic Oval Office maneuverings in the hostage affair. Trusted officials who have served under Carter see the letter the Iranian government claimed it received from Carter as reflecting the style of the president and his closest political aides.

With foreign affairs specialists supplanted by Carter's political inner circle in managing the hostage crisis, there has been unseemly haste in trying to retrieve not only the hostages but the president's fading fortunes by whispering to Tehran what it wants to hear. The word "disgraceful" used by the diplomat in New York is echoed in Washington, where a sense of shame is growing.

Nobody disputes the White House claim that the "letter" never was written as such. Surely, it includes some rhetoric more familiar to Soviet communism than the Carter White House. But not all parts of the letter. One longtime Carter student who has worked closely with him sees phrases

Novak as "pure Carter, vintage Carter from way back. No one in a foreign country could have dreamed that up."

What in the letter is "vintage Carter"? It attacks U.S. involvement in Chile as a "serious example of American intervention." It notes that these actions by earlier administrations have been condemned by Carter. That sounds unmistakably like Carter statements of the past.

So does the charge that "my government inherited a very delicate international situation, product of a different policy, of other circumstances which have led us all to commit errors in the past." To knowledgeable colleagues of Carter, that recalled the president's 1977 declaration at Notre Dame that the West should no longer have "an inordinate fear of Such subtle expressions of Carter's convictions about the contemporary world could not have emenated from national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski. Carter associates strongly suggest that Hamilton Jordan, on his mysterious trips to Paris, Panama and perhaps elsewhere, has specifically emphasized this aspect of Carter's world view to persuade the Iranians to free the hostages.

Although Brzezinski's National Security Council staff pulled the early bureaucratic strings in the hostage crisis, Brzezinski now is out on the fringes. The string-pullers today are Jordan and the other intimate political aides brought from Georgia by Desperation of the Jordan inner circle peaked after Sen. Edward M. Kennedy broke through in the New York and Connecticut primaries. Moving toward the next primary in Wisconsin last Tuesday, the president engaged himself in a sudden test of will with the Iranian revolutionaries.

With the clock ticking away toward the Wisconsin test, a Paris-based Argentine lawyer named Hector Villalon was clearly encouraged to put on paper what he had been hearing, directly or indirectly, from Carter mediators - including Jordan about Carter's innocence in the long friendship with the deposed The White House has acknow ledged that Villalon was the intermediary who put on paper the words that the Iranians claimed were Carter's. But neither the president nor his Georgia insiders wanted either Carter's thoughts (as conveyed to Tehran) about past U.S. sins or his commitment to revolutionary Iran to get into the headlines. When they did, the literally correct denial was made. To hammer the point home, the president conducted an unprecedented personal lobbying campaign among senior journalists here. The president's frustrating struggle to free the hostages by disavowing America's past goes beyond the "letter" that revealed so much about his true view of the world. In desperately trying to separate Carter from the past, White House political aides ordered the State Department not to invite New York lawyer-statesman John J. McCloy, a pillar of the old foreign policy establishment, to man Chancellor Helmut Schmidt. McCloy's sin: failure to repent his country's alliance with the fallen shah and his pressure on the administration to admit the shah for medical treatment last year. Moreover, as an old cold warrior, McCloy does not accept Carter's edict against "inordinate fear of communism.

Carter's state dinner for West Ger-

It was the first White House party for a West German chancellor missed by McCloy, the postwar U.S. high commissioner to Germany. That blackball was no less symbolic than the "letter" the president never wrote - the letter viewed here as signaling a "disgraceful" retreat.

Bystander killed as motorists shoot it out

CLEVELAND (AP) — A 41-year-old Cleveland man was shot to death when struck by crossfire between two other persons fighting over a minor traffic accident, police said.

Homicide detectives said the victim, Jimmie Anderson of Cleveland, was an innocent bystander as the gun duel began Sunday.

According to Detective James R. Bistricky, a woman parked beside a curb pulled her car into traffic, hitting the passenger side of a passing car. The other motorist, a man, pulled a gun and confronted the woman.

When the woman got out of her car, the man with the gun started shooting, Bistricky said, and another man, believed to be a passer-by, began returning fire with a gun.

When the shooting stopped, Anderson's body was on the street. He had been shot once in the throat. The motorists drove away, and the second gunman fled, officials said.

Witnesses provided descriptions and license numbers of both cars to police. Bistricky said a man and a woman, believed to be the drivers of the two cars, were apprehended and held for questioning Sunday night.

Shah's presence fuels students' campaign against Anwar Sadat

— by rigid adherence to Islamic doctrine. Now they are using Sadat's welcome to the deposed Iranian monarch as a pretext for anti-government demonstrations in the name of Islam.

The government has reacted so far with restraint. There has been only one clash between police and demonstrators and only a few scattered arrests. But the demonstrations vex Sadat, coming at a time when talks with Israel on Palestinian autonomy are deadlocked, most other Arab countries are still boycotting Egypt and economic problems are piling

The militants are a minority among Egypt's 500,000 university students, and the mainstream of Egyptian Moslems appear much more in tune with Sadat's devout but tolerant views. But the fundamentalists' following appears to have grown in re-

The call for Islamic reform attracts urban youths from the lower middle class who are frustrated between them and the rich. It also strikes a chord among those from deeply religious families in rural areas where religion is a pillar of hope.

The extremists call themselves "The Islamic Groupings" and have branches in most of the country's 17 universities. Last week their leader, a 25-year-old medical student named publicized appearance.

Helmi El-Gazzar who styles himself The Prince of Princes, made his first

He spoke to reporters at Assyut University, 230 miles south of Cairo, where student demonstrators clashed with riot police earlier this month when the police barred them from the streets. The students claimed one of their number was killed, their first "martyr," but the government denied there were any fatalities.

Slight, with a curly beard and spectacles, Gazzar spoke in a quiet, even voice as he outlined his movement's platform.

Uillermo Triana Ayala, undersecretary of protocol for the Colombian foreign ministry, rounds a corner on his walk to freedom Sunday, when he was released by M-19 guerrillas at the Dominican Republic Em-

Colombians reject freedom in money-making attempts

Republic's Embassy on Easter Sunday, but two Colombians among the 20 remaining were reported to have rejected freedom because they expect to make money by staying where they are.

The two reluctants were photographer Jorge Guzman and Luis Valencia, one of the city's best-known gate crashers who puts out a free, irregularly pub-lished paper called Diplomatic World.

Guzman, who sold seven rolls of film he took in the embassy for $22,000, anticipates more pictures and more sales. Valencia, who crashed the embassy's independence day reception and was caught there when the leftist guerrillas also came uninvited, is reported planning to write a book on the siege.

The 18 other hostages who today went into their 41st day of captivity were U.S. Ambassador Diego Asencio, 12 other ambassadors or charges d'affaires

After freeing 26 hostages during the first month of the siege, the guerrillas said they would release all who were not diplomats during Holy Week because of the Roman Catholic Church's fight for the oppressed" in Latin America.

Two were turned loose on Palm Sunday, two on Holy Thursday and two on Good Friday. The three who emerged on Easter were Albert Byfield, the BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — Leftist guerrillas honorary Jamaican consul; Tito Livio Tiburcio, a freed three more hostages from the Dominican Dominican, and Guillermo Triana Ayala, a protocol officer of the Colombian Foreign Ministry.

Among the diplomats held is the papal nuncio, or ambassador, to Colombia, Monsignor Angelo Acerbi. He celebrated Mass on Easter for the captives and their captors, as he does every day.

The guerrillas and the government scheduled their 11th negotiating session this afternoon. A government spokesman said the negotiations "are entering a clearer phase as both parties begin to examine each other's proposed formulas, which have been obtained in writing."

The guerrillas, who are members of an organization called Movement 19, or M-19, have given no indication of reducing their demand for the release of 28 jailed leftists in exchange for the hostages.

Although the guerrillas reduced their list of leftists whose freedom was demanded from 311 to 28, the government has never retreated from its position that is is not constitutionally able to free any of them by executive order because they are held for common crimes, not for their political beliefs.

Informed sources say the government has made two alternative proposals.

One is to transfer the trials of some of the 305 suspected guerrillas from military to civilian courts. Along with giving the defendants the additional safeguards of civilian justice, this would mean the mmediate release of those who have been held six

More than 20 of the youngsters were taken to a hospital. An ambulance service spokesman said most of the casualties were motorbike riders who had been "well and truly thumped and kicked, and some have had beer glasses smashed in their

Police said "numerous" arrests were made Sunday night, adding to 101 made when the youths ran wild Saturday night, smashing shop windows, setting fire to beach chairs and injuring three policemen.

Citizens find problem hard to understand

ADRIAN, Mich. (AP) - The mainly Mexican-American working class people of Sunnyside are struggling to understand that they must wear shoes in the summer and keep dust outside because of a substance they cannot see and have no Spanish word for.

The substance is Curene 442, a synthetic chemical that makes plastic unbreakable. Scientists say its yellow particles have permeated the air and soil in Sunnyside, a neighborhood on the outskirts of Adrian.

The Curene in Sunnyside comes from the Anderson Development Co., the only U.S. manufacturer of the chemical. Chemist Amos Anderson founded the firm in Adrian in 1967 and has made Curene for the past 11

Residents are mystified by the public debate over Curene - which has caused tumors in rats and dogs. While it has yet to make any person yick, scientists say Curene may also produce cancer in humans.

But Curene is a small worry in the lives of people in Sunnyside, who felt isolated by poverty and municipal neglect long before they heard of the chemical. They say they've complained for years about foul industrial odors, the lack of running water in many homes, inadequate sewers and unpaved streets.

Many houses are little more than tarpaper shacks. Dozens of windows are broken or covered with card-

The mistrust of government and industry has been sharpened as lawyers; scientists, politicians and bureaucrats squabble over cleaning up Curene 442.

'Nobody cares about Sunnyside," said Maria Gonzalez, a recently elected county commissioner. "Politically speaking, if it were where the rich people live, there would have been some immediate attention.

"These poor Chicano and white people don't have the political clout that it takes to get something done."
Sunnyside didn't even learn of the potential chemical dangers until so-cial workers successfully urged the county to print flyers in Spanish and hire a Spanish-speaking employee, she says. Ms. Gonzalez went to the state for help. She claims city officials ignored Curene because Sunnyside is on the fringes of Adrian, and the county lacks the money. The state responded with a neverbefore-tried "decontamination" plan that could cost taxpayers up to $6

Cleaning men swathed in protective paper coveralls and boots have been scrubbing threadbare carpeting and the dirt or wood slat floors of Sunnyside homes.

The state-hired industrial cleaning firm finished the Sunnyside project last weekend, scrubbing 243 homes. The cleaners are now moving on to almost 100 other homes in six other Michigan cities where plants have Eventually, all workers who han-dled the product will have their homes, furniture, draperies, clothing and cars thoroughly scrubbed.

Traces of the chemical turned up in the city's sewage system six years ago. But it wasn't until 1978, when a federal report identified more of Curene's potential dangers, that state environmental regulators become in-

Last year they asked Anderson to halt Curene production — it was stopped in February 1979 - and started looking for the tell-tale yellow specks everywhere. Curene 442 was found in sandboxes, playgrounds and gardens, in the air and in the urine of Sunnyside children and Anderson workers.

The company has sued the state, charging harassment. The state has sued Anderson to force the cleanup. Jonathan Raven, Anderson's law-yer, says the state has unfairly attacked the company.

"The publicity has had a bad effect," Raven said. "We have been a civically responsible and responsive business. I don't think anyone has found a real reason for an immediate "There's not been any showing that there's any human health poblems

YOUR BIRTHDAY TO-DAY: You who were born on this date are strong-willed and energetic and know exactly how to enjoy life to the fullest! gor look to you for direction Success in year ahead depends mainly on meeting basic business obligations on time and widening your circle of acquaintances, contracts. Loved ones lend strong support and encouragement for your efforts. You know how to make best use of opportunities that appear. A romantic relationship grows in importance and you have to make big decision regarding future lifestyle.

with your heart! ARIES (March 21-April 19): Argument could put your nerves on edge. You may feel criticized for way you have handled work assignment. Make sure you really know what is being said. Lie low for awhile

TAURUS (-April 20-May 20): Atmosphere is favorable for laying groundwork for development of idea you cannot promote right away. Keep busy. What looks like a setback is blessing in disguise.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Problem concerning mate or partner may not prove as easy to resolve as you think. Business activities are likely to demand more time. Work to achieve better balance in daily

Q.1-Both vulnerable, as South you hold: ♦A1072 ○ AQ1072 ♦KJ83 The bidding has proceeded: North East . South West Pass 2 0 Pass Pass 3 + Pass 3 NT Pass

What action do you take? A. – Your void in hearts is a distinct liability, so we would accept a pass. Nevertheless, you have such a fine hand opposite a partner who has made a jump rebid, we would make one more effort to get to slam. Bid four clubs. This will complete the description of your hand pattern and allow partner to make the final decision. Of course, if he signs off in four hearts or four no trump, you must pass.

Q.2-Neither vulnerable, as +1092 ♥ A865 ♦ AK105 +Q6

South you hold: The bidding has proceeded: North East South West 1 ♦ Pass 2 ♦ Pass 2 + Pass

What do you bid now? A. - With an opening bid facing an opening bid, you want to be in game. Since partner has shown a rebiddable spade suit, you have adequate support. Jump to four spades. Don't waste time with a "clever" bid of three hearts. When you later support spades, partner might think that you were trying to show a singleton club in an effort to get to slam.

Q.3-As South, vulnerable,

you hold: ♦ KQJ76 ♥6 ♦832 ♦ AK92 The bidding has proceeded: South West North East 1 + Pass 1 NT Pass

What action do you take? A.-Since you have an un-balanced hand, there is no reason why you should want to play no trump. But don't make the mistake of rebidding your spades - that suggests a six-card suit. Show your club suit. After all, partner could have a singleton spade and five or six clubs on this auction.

Q.4-Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♦QJ5 ♥ AJ ♦ AKQ62 ♦1054 Your right-hand opponent opens the bidding with one spade. What action do you take?

A .- An overcall of two diamonds would not be grievously wrong. That is certainly a better choice than a double, which would leave you awkwardly placed if partner responds two hearts. But the best action is to overcall one no trump. At that contract you are a favorite even if partner has next to nothing, and it describes your hand perfectly.

Q.5 - As South, vulnerable, you hold:

A .- While you have the high-card values for a takeout double, your shortness in spades makes that action most unappealing. For the moment, content yourself with a simple overcall of one heart. You are not going anywhere unless partner can act freely over your overcall.

Q.6-As South, vulnerable,

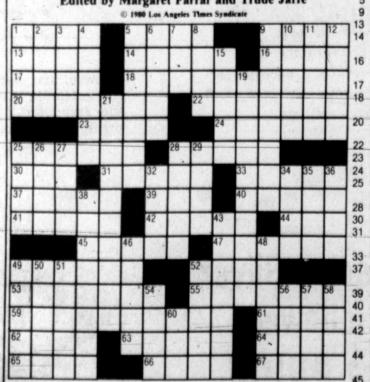

you hold: ♦72 ♥95 ♦KQ9842 ♦965 The bidding has proceeded: North East South West 1 + 2 + Pass Pass 1 + 2 + 3 + Pass

What do you bid now? A. - By cue-bidding, partner has told you that he is interested in game even though you might have nothing. Your hand has suddenly become quite respectable. To advise partner that you have an excellent suit and are quite willing to participate in whatever goals he might have for the hand, you should jump to four

With 56 percent of the popular vote, the president collected 29 delegates to 12 for Kennedy, who garnered 22 percent of the vote.

Eleven percent of the Democrats who cast ballots in Louisiana chose to vote uncommitted, while the remainder of the vote was scattered among Califoria Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., former Mississippi Gov. Cliff Finch and minor candidates.

The president increased his delegate strength to 891, well over half the 1.666 votes needed for nomination at the Democratic National Convention in a state outside the South this summer in New York.

On the Republican side, Reagan overwhelmed Bush by 74 percent to 19 percent, running his delegate total to 372 of the 998 needed for nomination. The former CIA director failed to garner any delegates because he didn't achieve the necessary 25 percent threshold in any of the state's eight congressional districts. Two of

Referring to the Pennsylvania primary, Baker said "this is something we've been looking forward to since we got into this thing.

Rep. John Anderson didn't compete in Louisiana and he failed to get on the ballot in Pennsylvania.

The campaign stirred little interest in Louisiana, even though election day weather was ideal. The 20 percent voter turnout among the state's 2 million registered voters was even less than the 25 percent to 30 percent participation predicted by Secretary of State Jim Brown.

The Reagan campaign asserted that the former California governor's vote total would have been even higher if the state hadn't banned crossover voting by Democrats.

Terrorists' presence in community questioned

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — Authorities are still trying to learn what 11 suspected Puerto Rican terrorists were doing in this quiet lakefront community when they were arrested with a cache of weapons, including loaded rifles, pistols and shotguns.

The group was arrested by Evanston police on Friday and officials said Sunday that three of the suspects have been identified as participants in the March 15 raid on President Carter's campaign headquarters

The Chicago Sun-Times reported today that the arrests may have thwarted plans by the group to disrupt the Republican and Democratic national conventions this summer.

The five women and six men — including the FBI's "most wanted criminal," Carlos Alberto Torres — are all believed to be members or associates of the Puerto Rican terrorist group, Fuerzas Armadas de Liberacion Nacional (FALN).

The FBI said five persons, including Torres, have been identified through fingerprint records and a sixth identified through other means. The five unidentified persons have refused to cooperate with author-

The 11, held in lieu of $2 million bail each on weapons charges, were scheduled to be arraigned today.

An FBI spokesman, who did not want to be identified, said Sunday the suspects will be tried first on the local charges stemming from Friday's arrest. He said the federal government then will pursue its case against those who have federal charges pending against them.

House and Senate budget committees already have approved similar budget cuts on their own, causing most LEAA officials to abandon hopes of a rescue.

Hundreds of state, city and county law enforcement agencies would be among the first to feel the impact if the proposed cuts are finally approved by Congress later this year. During its 12 tumultuous years, LEAA has funneled $7 billion in feder-

Dozens of agencies, for instance, have developed undercover "sting" investigations with LEAA money, training and advice. The tactic involves assigning investigators to work undercover, posing as criminals themselves to gather evidence of crime. LEAA now is financing about 40 undercover investigations and has spent about $6.4 million on 93 other stings in 47 cities over the last six years. Those investigations have produced indictments against 7,130 individuals, and the conviction rate in cases that have gone to trial has been at least 90 per cent, according to James O. Golden, director of LEAA's criminal conspiracies division.

"Under the administration proposal, the sting money would go," said LEAA spokesman Joe Krovisky.

Carter's revised budget proposal also would kill a variety of other

LEAA projects, ranging from paid tuition for police officers attending college, training for arson investigators, and programs to organize neighborhood anticrime efforts. Carter's first budget for fiscal 1981 listed $570 million for LEAA. He has now sliced the request to $140 mil-

The Carter proposal would do away with LEAA as an agency but would leave intact its programs to combat juvenile delinquency and to collect and analyze crime statistics and would continue sponsoring, on a reduced scale, research into crime problems. Those programs presumably would be carried out by small offices which are now part of LEAA and would continue to exist on their own, although it would be up to Congress to decide the administrative structure.

Carter's biggest cut in the crimefighting budget - the cut that virtually ends the program — would wipe out the entire $297 million he listed in his first budget proposal for block grants to states.

It is that money which goes directly to state planning agencies, much of it to be passed on to cities and coun-

Early in its life, LEAA was criticized for giving local police depart-ments too much money for arms and other hardware. Since then, the agen-cy has been accused of being poorly managed and of failing to measure the results of the projects it has fin-

LEAA has survived such repeated threats to its existence largely be-cause of effective lobbying from the groups that depend on it for money.

But the past threats stemmed as much from dissatisfaction with LEAA's work as from efforts to cut the budget. This time around, there is less unhappiness with the agency itself but apparently much more fervor about cutting costs.

If the budget-cutting plan goes through, agency operations would be phased out gradually during the fiscal year that begins Oct. 1.

Pope John Paul II, extending Easter greetings to the Christian faithful in 33 languages and apologizing to those whose tongue was not included, urged the builders of society to accept God and warned that to proclaim God's death is to proclaim the death of man

Speaking to a festive Peter's Square in Rome on Sunday, the Polish pontiff wished a "happy, blessed and peaceful Easter" in 16 eastern European languages, Chinese, Japanese, Swahili, Arabic and, for the first time, Hebrew.

He said his holy day greetings were intended for "all the other languages which even if they are not on my lips are in my heart."

Sonics, Rockets, Suns advance to 2nd round

By ALEX SACHARE AP Sports Writer

"Nobody blows out the world champions," said Seattle's Dennis Johnson, responding to a prediction made by Portland's brash Billy Ray Bates regarding Sunday's deciding game of their playoff mini-series, and he was right. The Sonics, defending National Basketball Association champions, raced to a 25-point thirdquarter lead and breezed to a 103-86 victory over the Trail Blazers to win their first-round series

Next on the agenda for the Sonics, who are bidding to become the NBA's first repeat champions since the Boston Celtics of 1968-69, are the Midwest Division champion Milwaukee Bucks. That best-of-seven second-round set opens in

"Milwaukee has a much better outside dimen-sion than Portland," said Sonics Coach Lenny Wilkens. "We're gonna have to be ready for

At least one Seattle player is already ready. "That's our bread and butter," says forward John Johnson. "We're a solid defensive team." One second-round series got under way Sun-day, with the Philadelphia Flyers rallying behind Julius Erving in the final period to beat the

The other second-round matchups were determined Sunday when the Phoenix Suns and Houston Rockets won the third games of their respec-

Atlanta Hawks 107-104.

Sonics 103, Blazers 86
Gus Williams led Seattle's balanced attack with 21 points as the Sonics took command early and never relinquished it. Seattle led 71-46 early in the third quarter and 80-65 going into the final period, saw Portland close within nine but turned aside that challenge with a 12-2 spurt in a span of 31/2 minutes for a 94-75 lead.

Bates led Portland with 26 points, while John Johnson added 18 points for Seattle, Fred Brown 17, Jack Sikma 15 and Dennis Johnson and Wally Walker 11 apiece.

Wilkens said his team wanted "to prove we're a good ball club. We knew it was a big game, that we would have to come out and do it. We went out and played good defense. We made good switches and it was difficult for them to get

'We were not consistent in getting the open shot," said Blazers Coach Jack Ramsay: "You have to be able to shoot the ball and we failed to do that. We were not patient enough. We were a little overanxious and that's a credit to Seattle. They deserved to win it.'

76ers 107, Hawks 104 Philadelphia scored 37 points off its fast break, compared to 10 for Atlanta, in winning the series opener. Julius Erving led the Sixers with 28 points, including 11 in the final period.

The Sixers trailed Atlanta 87-81 with nine minutes to play, but Erving drove for a threepoint play that started a 12-0 surge that put Philadelphia ahead to stay. But the Sixers did not clinch the victory until, with 20 seconds to play and Atlanta trailing by one, Erving hit Bobby Jones with a lob pass for a layup and the

"Did I get dominant?" asked Erving, smiling. "I guess I asserted myself a little more. I wanted to involve myself a little more. After I got that three-point play we were all right.

"Hey, after three quarters, it's time to make a few plays," he added.

Suns 114, Kings 99 Center Alvan Adams had 19 points and 20 rebounds, making up for the absence of power forward Len "Truck" Robinson because of a knee injury, as Phoenix beat Kansas City.

Adams said he had watched a videotape of Friday's 106-96 loss to the Kings, "looking for ways I could help out. From what I saw, I knew I could do the job on the boards if I took the middle lane and went to it.

Rockets 141, Spurs 126
Moses Malone, who was hampered earlier in the series by a sprained ankle, scored 37 points and grabbed 20 rebounds for Houston, which pulled away from San Antonio with a 17-2 burst starting the second half for a commanding 75-56 lead.

"Mo is a money player," Houston Coach Del Harris said of Malone. "I've seen that look of determination in his face a few times before and he had it tonight.'

Calvin Murphy added 31 points for the Rockets while three-time NBA scoring king George Gervin had 37 for the Spurs.

Stadler likes prospects in Masters

By BOB GREEN GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) Craig Stadler, a six-shot winner of the Greater Greensboro Open golf tour-nament, turned his attention to Augusta, Ga., and this week's Masters. And Stadler liked his prospects.

"My confidence couldn't be higher," said the chunky man who carries 215 pounds on a 5-foot-10

"I know I'm playing well. I know I can score well. I just want to get out there on the golf course and play more golf right now. I just want to keep it going. I want to work on this string as long as I can."

He goes to Augusta with credentials he wouldn't have dreamed of possessing four months ago.

Midland, Lee clash in key 5-4A tilt

By BOB DILLON

It's been a long time since Midland defeated Midland Lee in baseball.

The Bulldogs get their chance Tuesday when they tangle with the Rebels at the Lee diamond in a very important District 5-4A battle at 4 p.m.

Coach Ernie Johnson's Rebels have beaten the Purple Pack 14 straight times and that dates back to the 1975 Tournament of Champions when MHS last won. So, it has been a five-year drought for Midland.

THE GAME is more important to Lee than Midland, because the Rebs currently share first place with Abilene Cooper with a 5-1 record going into the Tall City shootout. MHS, meanwhile, is 3-3 and can play the part of spoilers as far as the first half of the race is concerned. The second half of the race begins on Saturday when Lee entertains Odessa High and Midland travels to Odessa to take on Anyway, back to Tuesday's game. It is a must for Lee and the Rebs find themselves in the same position as Midland was in last year when Lee polished off the Bulldogs in the finale of the first half race.

THE BEST thing that could happen

Tuesday to Lee would be for the Rebels to beat Midland and Abilene upset Cooper, thus handing the first half title to Johnson's crew outright. But if both Lee and Cooper win, they will wind up sharing the first half title. Then, of course, if Lee loses and Cooper wins, the Cougars win the first half outright.

Another interesting twist is the fact that Abilene could share the first half title with Lee and Cooper, if the Eagles beat the Cougars and Midland beats Lee. That would make all three

Even a strike can't wipe

By JOHN JEANSONNE

Newsday
Baseball season? It's been done. Many times. And once something is done really well - Rocky Colavito's bat-pointing, Nellie Fox' chaw, Rip Sewell's eephus, Frank Robinson's high stirrups — why, what's to shoot for? Only takes one. Do you really think that Craig Swan can keep the ball on the black part of the plate any better than Eddie Lopat? Or that Ruppert Jones can roam the outfield better than Terry Moore?

See there. Already, we're out of the ballpark and in the friendly confines of the mind. There is more good baseball in one fan's mind than could reasonably be crammed into the 1980 season. A players' strike can't wipe out those memories any more than the traditional early-season weather

(N.Y.at Chi., ppd., snow). The conventional wisdom which so emphasizes history in baseball ("This is the last year Dal Maxvill is eligible to be voted into Cooperstown ...") would likewise indicate that we can live without this season. Let 'em strike; we still haven't settled whether Willie Mays was better than Mickey Man-

A strike would rob us of such expendable routines as Conferences at the Mound. The Ride in From the Bullpen. Scoreboard Messages "Welcome Quogue Shriners"). Intentional walks with two men on (Booo!). It's true that we also would lose some far more flavorful and valuable routines such as batting prac-tice and third-base signs. But the really important stuff already is stored safely in back copies of The Sporting News, safely between the ears (and under the cap of his team) of the fan.

IF THERE'S a strike, we could treat it as one huge rain delay. So, while the grounds crew is putting down the tarp and we have a little time here, think of how much time there is to kill around a baseball game. And how killing time adds to the status of souvenir stands, radio announcers, those of you keeping score at home, organists, going to the resin bag, scoreboard messages ("Welcome Fishers Island Cub Scouts"), country music (Dizzy Dean singing the "Gray-Speckled Bird"), rhythmic clapping, dusting off home during the Game of the Week, bellowing down to the Yanks' Frank Crosetti as the third-base coach meandered to his position: "Hey, Frankie. Frankie! Up here." Remember the shadows spreading deep and long across the playing fields of parks so easily identifiable: The terrace in Crosley Field, Cincinnati; the Green Monster in Fenway Park, Boston; the Screen in the Coliseum, Los Angeles; the win-asuit sign in Ebbets Field, Brooklyn;

Killing time? Can o' corn. Remember Dizzy Dean, right on air

the ivy in Wrigley Field, Chicago. On such diamonds would Minnie Minose bash into outfield walls, and Jimmy Piersall circle the bases backwards. The 1980 season isn't necessary because it couldn't possibly bring us these things again, just as it couldn't bring native New Yorkers the Dodgers and Giants again. As far as lots of fans are concerned around here, you could've called a strike in 1958 and nothing would've been lost. And there are plenty of other things 1980 couldn't bring us again, like Jackie Robinson, either in terms of social or baseball significance.

It's been done

CHANCES are, when you were 11 years old, you were most susceptible to baseball. Bet you knew what everybody was hitting then. Bet you knew uniform numbers. 53? That's easy. Don Drysdale. 11? Come on. Luis Aparicio. In 1959, the transplanted Dodgers called up a fellow in danger of becoming a career minor leaguer and gave him No. 30, a number Bob Lillis had made slightly noticeable the previous September with a series of pop-fly homers over that ridiculously close leftfield screen. Maury Wills. In the Series that fall, the Chisox won the first game, 11-1, when Ted Kluszewski hit two homers. The Dodgers won the second game, 4-3, when a veteran infielder equaled Kluszewski's one-game show of power. Bet you guessed Gil Hodges. Hah. It was Charley Neal. And he spelled the Charley with "ey," not 'ie." And his number was 43. more Ah, yes, Ted Kluszewski. Bare biceps. He'd cut the sleeves off his uniform shirts and not wear the colored sweatshirt underneath. He was a real picture in the batter's box. And so was Musial, all coiled up in a stance like no other ever had. And so was Orlando Cepeda, with his back foot about 10 inches behind the end line of the batter's box.

Think of Aaron's wrists. Gus Triandos' immense glove (for handling Wilhelm's knuckler). Brooks Robinson's tailored batting helmet, with the almost non-existent bill. Jesus Alou's odd twitch in his neck.

At age 11, you remember these details like never again. Good eye, good eye. By the time you're in high school you care more about the foothall or basketball team, and in college you're engrossed in pep rallies and the alma mater's homecoming. Baseball never goes away, of course, but it is at age 11 that the real foundation is put down. In that sense, the fans most damaged by a 1980 strike would be those who are 11 years old this year. Then again, 11-year-olds today are not like 11-year-olds in the '30s, '40s, '50s and even '60s. Eleven-year-old did not used to have a local pro roller-disco team to follow. Or indoor soccer. Or whatever is passing through - like team tennis or box

BASEBALL, therefore, may need this year's 11-year-olds more than this year's 11-year-olds need baseball. But for everyone older than 11, baseball had made its impression because, for them, there is something to fall back on. Records. Records aren't made to be broken, by the way; they're made to be recalled. Nobody'll even break Joe D.'s 56 straight. Nobody'll ever hit .400 again

Just as importantly, nobody's hat will fall off the way Jim Bouton's did. Nobody will run out walks and slide head first quite the way Pete Rose did. Nobody will perfect the "insideout" swing the way Wally Moon did, because nobody will again have a screen 251 feet distant staring in from the opposite field. Nobody will hit the rightfield facade above rightfield in Yankee Stadium the way Mantle did (they've moved the facade halfway to Shea Stadium now). Even some of the old Mets say that the big events will never happen again; Swoboda. Charles, Agee - all those guys - play computer baseball in a beer commercial with a clear melancholy longing for the past.

Baseball still being a radio game, the Vin Scullys and Harry Careys and Bob Princes may be missed during a strike as much as the Dave Parkers and Carlton Fisks. Really, the players can strike if they want as long as they play ball again by next year. There'll be a whole new set of 11- year-olds by then. And by then, the strike will be history, baseball lore.

Some academic programs also will be trimmed, he said. Of SMU's $6 million cumulative deficit, about $2.5 million is attributable to the athletic budget, he said. The athletic program itself carries a deficit of $400,000 to $500,000 a year. "...we have a program of intercollegiate athletics that is too big for us to support. Masters skips electronic hijinks, sticks to business

By WILL GRIMSLEY AP Special Correspondent

The golf tour moves to Augusta and the magnificent Masters this week and, thank goodness, there will be no electrical apparatus attached to the shirts of the birdie-chasing elite.

The Masters always has been content to just run a golf tournament, the best in the world. It doesn't need gimmicks to sell its product. It shuns fanfare and folderol. Times change; the Masters, never.

The setting is incomparable — an exacting course fashioned among the statuesque pines, flowering dogwood and azalea of a onetime Georgia nursery. The cast: All the fairway VIPs, there by invitation only.

This microphone business is a bit bush, as witness last weekend in the Heritage Classic at Hilton Head, S.C. It's a TV idea designed to add a little razzmatazz to a sport suffering in the ratings.

Who cares, anyway, what a group of pro golfers may say on the tee? Nobody much, but in this case John Schroeder cared a whole lot. John is a serious young pro tourist whose father, Ted, played tennis on the U.S. Davis Cup team and won

YOUNG Shroeder was fit to be tied - rightfully so - when he found out that a trio of his contemporaries, Tom Kite, Lanny Wadkins and Bruce Lietzke, equipped with microphones, had bad-mouthed him about slow play on national television while they were waiting on a tee in Saturday's round. era, all three joined in the criticism. Wadkins quipped that Schroeder would realize he was slow "when a pigeon landed on him." Kite said Schroeder should be "fined and fined and suspended." Lietkze agreed.

The whole country was listening. Schroeder was livid. Admitting he was slow but always within time bounds, the Californian went on the air to give a rebuttal. "It shows no class," he said, "the poorest kind of judgment."

Kite, Wadkins and Lietzke all were personally embarrassed. The incident is bound to leave scars.

SWC likes two-man ref crews better than three

DALLAS (AP) - Eddie Sutton of Arkansas likes it the way it is, and Texas' Abe Lemons says he doesn't

But a majority of the other seven Southwest Conference basketball coaches say they want a return to two-man officiating crews for next

"I was a very big advocate for the three-man crews," said Rice Coach Mike Schuler, "but three just aren't doing the job.'

The Atlantic Coast Conference originated the use of three officials in 1978, and six conferences — including the SWC - followed suit the next year, along with the National Basketball Association and the National Collegiate Athletic Association's postgame tournament.

But the NBA and Big Eight conference have already returned to the two-man system, and the SWC apparently is not far behind.

"It just hasn't worked out," Schuler said of the three-man crews.

"Three officials seem to work well in the Big Ten," said Shelby Metcalf, coach at SWC Champion Texas A&M but I think in our case two would be best.'

"Two-man crews are fine," said new Southern Methodist Coach Dave Bliss. "College basketball is a tremendous sport. We don't need a shot clock or extra officials to improve But Lemons said he would be satisfied with any number of officials from zero to five. Most of the SWC coaches who criticized the new system said there are not enough good officials available to make up the necessary number of high-quality crews.

"I still believe in the concept of three officials," said Sutton, "but I'd be the first to acknowledge that perhaps in our league there aren't as many quality officials as we'd like to

Sweet Lou turns sour on Yankees

By The Associated Press

As usual, the owner and manager of the New York Yankees are at odds with one of their outfielders ... but this time the cast includes a couple of new

Don't go looking for Reggie Jackson in this brouhaha. Owner George Steinbrenner is the only constant. The manager these days is Dick Howser, not Billy Martin, and the outfielder in question is, of all people, Sweet Lou

After reversing themselves twice on the subject of intrasquad games when the Major League Baseball Players' Association struck the last week of exhibitions, the Yankees finally agreed to some intrasquad con-

Howser left it up to the individual players and Piniella was one of those who declined to play. That was okay, but Piniella also sounded off about it and that didn't sit well.

"I told Lou if he didn't want to play, he didn't have to, but I didn't want him bitching about it," Howser said.

The manager said he told Piniella: 'The man wants us to play, so we're playing. Shut up about it. If you don't want to play, then go home, but don't say anything. He signs the checks; the least you can do is play if he wants you to play."

Piniella went home. "I'm disappointed in Piniella," Steinbrenner said. "Wait until he comes to me and asks me to do him a favor.'

The Yankees also weren't sure if they would be able to work out in Arlington Stadium on Wednesday, the day before their scheduled opener against the Texas Rangers.

'I hear now that we can't," Howser said. "We were scheduled to leave Tuesday and work out Wednesday. But if can't work out on the Rangers' field, I'd rather stay here (Fort Lauderdale) and work out here Wednesday. The situation changes every hour.

Elsewhere, two pitchers currently on the disabled list tested their ailing shoulders with positive results.

Dennis Martinez, a member of the Baltimore Orioles' starting rotation, threw for 20 minutes and reported no

"I felt much better today," said Martinez, who is eligible to come off the disabled list April 17. "I threw the fastball, curve and slider and will try the changeup next time and see what happens. I felt loose and was able to throw nice and easy."

Meanwhile, reliever Bill Campbell of the Boston Red Sox, who is on the 60-day disabled list, threw for the second day in a row. "He looks good," said pitching coach Johnny Podres. "He threw pretty fair and looks if he's on his way back. He's beginning to let it hang out, extending his arm."

Stock market gains

NEW YORK (AP) - Stock prices moved broadly lower today amid indications of a worsening hostage situation in Iran and new evidence that the economy is slipping into a recess-

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials fell 8.19 to 775.94 in the first two hours of trading as declining stocks led advancers by a margin of 3-1 in New York Stock Exchange trading. In Washington, President Carter indicated he would announce new steps against Iran after Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini decided to leave the hostages under control of the militants holding the American embassy.

The new recession indication came from a survey of corporate purchasing managers indicated they were more pessimistic about the economy's future and that new orders were down sharply.

On Friday, the government reported producer prices rose 1.4 percent in March and unemployment rose to 6.2 percent. Analysts found some reasons to hope inflation will slow in the months ahead and said the unemployment rise could signal the economy is International Business Machines led the NYSE most active list and was down ¾ at 54 %. Pan Am was up ¼ to 41/2 after the Civil Aeronautics Board tentatively decided to allow it to keep a London-Miami route.

Oil and auto stocks were both broadly lower. Atlantic Richfield fell 21/4 to 841/4, Getty dropped 11/4 to 72, Standard of California was down 21/4 to 631/4 and Texaco slipped 11/4 to Ford Motor was down 11/4 to 261/4 General Motors fell % to 44 and Chrysler slipped % to 61/2.

At the Big Board, volume was 13.30 million shares during the first two hours of trading, compared to 14.50 million at the same point on Thursday, the last day of trading prior to the Good Friday holiday.

By The Associated Press

The Cuban government has taken 'proper measures of protection' around the Peruvian embassy in Havana, where thousands have sought asylum, and will allow Cubans wanting to leave their country to do so, Radio Havana said today. It did not elaborate on the measures taken.

The broadcast, an editorial mo tored in Miami, Fla., said most of the more than 10,000 who mobbed the embassy Sunday hoping to escape President Fidel Castro's communist rule were "common delinquents, anti-socials, vagrants and bums.' In Lima, the Peruvian government called the massive plea for asylum "an unprecedented human tragedy." Peru has said it cannot take all of the Cubans who want to leave Castro's rule. Many are expected to seek asy lum in the United States. In Miami, thousands of Cuban-

Americans demonstrated in the streets in support of their fellow refugees; chanting "guerra," which means "war." Groups of Cubans in Miami have been trying to arrange to fly food and medicine to the group at the Peruvian embassy.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Oblivious to the big decisions about Iranian sanctions being made in the big mansion behind them, thousands of children assembled on the lush South Lawn of White House today to roll Easter eggs. Among them was Sheri Ann Galladora of Damascus, Md., who at 12 months old was attending her second egg roll on the White House grounds. She came last year in an Easter basket when she was only two weeks old with her grandmother, Madge Johansen, who has been bringing children and grandchildren to the annual event since the Eisenhower adminis-

Sheri sat in a stroller decorated with a big sign saying, "President Carter: I'm pitching for you." But aside from that, the annual event was strictly non-political. In fact, rolling eggs was only the half of it. Youngsters spent a good deal of time standing in line so that they could pose for a parental photograph under an egg-shaped dome marked, "Welcome to the White House. And those who were able to free themselves from adults discovered exam by the National Board for Resanother activity - climbing the only hill on the White House grounds and rolling themselves down it from the

Hunt brothers not only ones hurt in silver game

By ROXINNE ERVASTI

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) - Nelson Bunker Hunt and his brother W. Herbert aren't the only ones who got hurt when the price of sliver collapsed. A lot of small investors looking for a quick profit also are in pain.

The Hunt brothers, usually described as Texas oil billionaires, haven't said how much they lost when prices slid from more than $50 an ounce in January to about $14.50 this week. But I know my investment now is worth less than a third of what it cost me.

I've always been one to turn my head to get-rich-quick schemes and to be continually amazed by those who fell prey to them. As a kid, I stayed away from the nickel toss and shooting galleries at the carnivals, preferring the guaran-teed return of a thrilling ride or cotton candy to the risk of winning trinkets and stuffed animals. As an adult, the closest I've gotten to spreading my money around was buying a few financial advice books supposedly aimed at the wage earner. But they don't give cut-and-dried answers. And I never had any money So in December, when another reporter in the pressroom at Alaska's Statehouse got off the telephone and announced he'd arranged to buy several thousand dollars worth of silver, I took the bite.

I'd been reading about how silver prices were soaring, how they'd multiplied eightfold in just a few months time, but it all seemed so far away. My colleague's decision to buy brought home the possibility that yes, inflation-battered and exasperated, I too could jump on the bandwagon.

"You have to look at it as a longterm thing," he said. "It can't go down, and even if it does, it'll go back up. What are you earning, 51/4 percent interest? At an inflation rate of almost 20 percent?"

My assets amounted to $2,500, all in savings. I contemplated, reasoning that if I ever needed to go into the savings, $2,500 wouldn't be worth anything anyway. Inflation WAS gnawing at the savings. I told him to arrange to buy about $2,000 worth

I figured I would just hang onto the silver for a few months, let it go up a little bit, then cash in and perhaps have a little more money for an investment not so speculative.

"I almost feel unpatriotic," I said as we left for the bank that afternoon. I referred to a feeling that somehow I was abandoning the good old dollar because of greed.

At the bank, I handed over a check for 40 ounces of silver - at $47.75 an ounce - and was told the two 20-ounce bars would arrive in about a month.

By the time I got back to the office, The Associated Press wire reported that silver had closed for the day at $46 and change.

It's gone down steadily. I got to the point where I refused to even read the daily silver price reports. But, somehow, I was able to laugh

Until the stories broke about the Hunts' misfortunes - and the plunge in silver prices to $11.60.

Those 40 ounces that cost me $1,910 now are worth a little less than $600. Now, it's only knowing that there are others in the same boat that keeps me joking that I'll have the bars hammered into a beggar's cup or take them with me on my next trip to the

Then, midway through the festival, Jesus went up to the Temple and preached openly

The Jewish leaders were surprised when they heard Him. "How can he know so much when he's never been to our schools?" they asked.

So Jesus told them, "I'm not teaching you My own thoughts, but those of God who sent Me. If any of you really determines to do God's will, then you will certainly know whether My teaching is from God or is Anyone presenting his own ideas is looking for praise

None of you obeys the laws of Moses! So why pick on Me for breaking them? Why kill Me for this?"

The crowd replied, "You're out of your mind! Who's Jesus replied, "I worked on the Sabbath by healing a man, and you were surprised. But you work on the Sabbath, too, whenever you obey Moses' law of circumcision (actually, however, this tradition of circumcision is older than the Mosaic law); for if the correct time for circumcising your children falls on the Sabbath, you go ahead and do it, as you should. So why should I be condemned for making a man completely well on the Sabbath?

Think this through and you will see that I am right."

ODESSA - Application deadlines for new classes in Odessa College's allied health programs have been set, according to Don Huff, division chairman of science and health occupations at OC.

Five of the six allied health programs have application deadlines. They are: nursing, May 1; radiologic (X-ray) technology, May 30; respiratory therapy, June 15; operating room technology, June 15; and medical lab technology, June 15. There is no deadline for emergency medical technology.

New claasses in nursing begin in the fall. Nursing students can enroll in a one-year program to become licensed vocational nurses, or LVNs, or in a two-year program to earn associate degrees and be certified as registered nurses, or RNs. Radiologic technology is a 24-month program which leads to an associate in applied science degree and certification by the American Registry of Radiologic Technologists. New classes begin with the second summer Respiratory therapy classes begin in the fall. Following a 24-month program, students earn associate degrees in applied science and are eligible to take the national registering piratory Therapists.

New classes in operating room technology (ORT) begin with the fall semester. The ORT program lasts 101/2 months, and students completing the gical Technologists.

The medical lab technology program takes 22 months, and students completing the program are then eligible for the national registering exam given by the Registry of Medical Technologists of the American Society of Clinical Pathologists. New classes begin in the fall.

Students in the emergency medical technology (EMT) program have the choice of a one-year certificate program or a two-year program that leads to an associate in applied science degree with a specialization in EMT. The basic course in EMT lasts only one semester, with students who complete the study eligible to take the examination for registry with the Texas Department of Health Resources, Texas . Emergency Medical Services.

The EMT program begins each semester, and there is no deadline for application.

Persons interested in any of the allied programs should contact Huff at OC for details.

Minister says prices may stay split

KUWAIT (AP) - Iranian Oil Minister Ali Akbar Moinfar said Sunday that crude oil prices would remain split if Saudi Arabia failed to raise its prices to the Iranian level of $35 a

"We are not going to accept any restrictions on our oil-pricing policy after we scrapped the pattern of dictating and imposing prices at (the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries) Caracas conference last December," Tehran Radio quoted Moinfar as saying.

Saudi Arabia, America's leading supplier of imported oil, charges $26 a barrel for its crude. President Carter banned oil imports from Iran last Nov. 12, eight days after Americans were taken hostage at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran.

Tehran Radio said Moinfar was commenting on a statement by Saudi Oil Minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani last week that a special meeting of OPEC oil ministers will be held in Taif. Saudi Arabia on May 5 to discuss unifying oil prices.

"The meeting is designed to discuss OPEC's long-term pricing policy and has nothing to do with deciding prices in the short run," Moinfar was quoted

"If Yamani means that Iran should reduce its crude oil price to the level of Saudi Arabia or the average of the two prices, it is another matter, and I should say that Iran rejects such an idea," Moinfar was quoted as say-

Moinfar announced Thursday that Iran raised the price of its oil from 32.50 to $35 a barrel as of April 1.

Meanwhile, Tehran Radio quoted an Oil Ministry spokesman as saying fire broke out early Sunday at an oil storage area near Kermanshah, in western Iran, after it was hit by a rocket-propelled grenade.

Duncan keeps his friends during first eight months

By STU HENIGSON Dallas Times Herald

WASHINGTON — In his first eight months as secretary of energy, Charles W. Duncan Jr. has accomplished a remarkable feat — he hasn't made many enemies.

Opinions vary on why that is. His supporters contend that the plain-spoken, unpretentious Texan is far better suited to the political demands of the job than his predecessor, James R. Schlesinger. Others argue that Duncan is a manager, not a policymaker, and has avoided ruffling feathers by doing little that is controversial. But Duncan is almost uniformly praised for having steered the Energy Department away from the adversarial attitudes that marked its relations with Congress, the oil industry and the oil-producing nations under Schlesinger. In Congress especially, Duncan has won kudos for his cooperative approach toward achieving legislative goals. And he has benefitted from the backlash against Schlesinger, whose abrasive, haughty attitude antagonized so many people that he was forced to step down. "Most everybody likes Duncan," says Rep. Jim Collins, R-Texas, who has observed both energy secretaries as a member of the House energy and power subcommittee. "With Schlesinger, you either liked him or you

Duncan also is widely credited with progress in bringing the unruly Energy Department to heel, diminishing its reputation as the champion disorganized bureaucracy.

Even his supporters, however, question whether Duncan has the ability to contribute much to the energy program that was formulated under Schlesinger.

And many observers wonder how well he will perform when first confronted with a serious energy emergency, such as Iran's oil cutoff last year or the coal strike in 1978.

"The time of testing is not at hand," says James Bishop, a public relations consultant who served as Schlesinger's press secretary

A former president of the Coca-Cola Co., Duncan, 53, is a Houston native who worked as a roughneck in the oil fields during his days at Rice University. He moved to the Energy Department job last September from the post of deputy defense secretary.

Duncan's four years as president of Atlanta-based Coca-Cola, which bought out his family-owned Duncan Foods Co., coincided with Jimmy Carter's tenure as governor of Georgia from 1971 to 1974, but Duncan was not known as an adviser or political supporter of Carter.

Duncan's style, repeatedly labeled "low key," differs fundamentally from Schlesinger's high-profile, nocompromise approach, which so polarized Congress.

'It's like comparing an ICBM with a tugboat," quipped one the head of one consumer advocacy group. 'Schlesinger had to get a number of things done quickly. He was very successful at bludgeoning the energy policy through Congress, but he antagonized people doing it."

An Energy Department official explained it succinctly: "Schlesinger is a talker; Duncan is a listener."

Duncan has avoided the publicitysoaked confrontations in congressional hearing rooms that marked Schlesinger's tenure, opting instead for private talks with congressmen. And when Duncan does testify he usually sticks to the mechanics of implementing a policy, rather than the policy itself.

Several oil industry officials say the industry "is being treated with better manners these days," in the words of one, but they differed over how much credit Duncan deserves. The most widely noted of Duncan's contributions so far is his reorganization of the department, which was fashioned from the parts of several other departments in October 1977 and now employs 20,000 persons on an annual budget of around $11 billion.

In contrast to the department under Schlesinger, which one industry executive called "totally free form," Duncan has set up the agency along energy resource lines.

Now one person is in charge of coal development, with policy, research and development, contracting and other functions below him. The same structure is used for nuclear power, solar power, conservation and petro-

"DOE is much better managed now," says Gramm, adding that the department's presentations to Congress are more complete and information is provided more quickly.

An official of one major oil company agreed that "things are organized a bit better," but he said some offices are still known in the industry as "black holes" because requests go in and nothing emerges.

"But at least our letters are acknowledged now," he added. "When Schlesinger was there, we would write and never hear another word." As a policymaker, however, the jury is still out on Duncan. "Duncan probably knows how to pay his gas bill. That's it for his energy knowledge," said Ed Roths-child, the head of Energy Action, a Washington-based consumer group. "But he was not brought in as an energy thinker; he was brought in as a manager."

Duncan's role in policy matters is limited because of Schlesinger's legacy. The major features of the nation's energy policy - crude oil decontrol, the windfall profits tax, the natural gas pricing policy and coal and synthetic fuel development — were chis-eled out under Schlesinger's tenure first as Carter's energy "czar" and then as the first energy secretary.

Most observers believe that Duncan, a "company man," has been well-chosen to pursue those policies. While Duncan officially heads the energy policy-making groups within the Cabinet, the White House took over control of some policy matters from the Energy Department in a muchpublicized transfer of power during the final days of Schlesinger's re-

"He (Duncan) is the handmaiden of Carter far more than anything Schlesinger approached," said one oil industry official.

But Energy Department officials, avowed partisans of Duncan, contend that he has put his stamp on the nation's energy policy in several important areas. He has steadfastly opposed gasoline rationing, likening it to

"open heart surgery," and pushed instead for the voluntary state gasoline conservation targets that the administration is relying on to cut con-Duncan also has tried to improve relations between the energy ministers of the producing and consuming nations. The effects of the policy already are evident in the more conciliatory tone the United States has taken recently with producing na-

On a recent trip to Saudi Arabia, for example, Duncan agreed to halt plans to fill the nation's Strategic Petroleum Reserve (SPR) in Louisiana's salt domes at the request of Sheik Ahmed Yamani, the Saudi oil minister. The Saudis are opposed to filling the SPR because they don't believe the oil market is stable enough, and they are uneasy about how the United States would use the potential one-billionbarrel reservoir.

Although Duncan got no formal concessions in return from the Saudis, Energy Department sources argue that Saudi goodwill is worth far more than the stored oil.

"The SPR isn't worth much," said one source. "We'd like to fill the SPR, but what we really want is for them to keep pumping their oil."

OSLO, Norway (AP) - An oilfield platform, being readied to replace the floating hotel that sank in the North Sea 10 days ago, tilted slightly in Stavanger Harbor on Sunday and 57 persons aboard were evacuated, offi-

The floating platform, the Henrik Ibsen, is to replace the Alexander Kielland hotel platform that capsized in the Ekofisk field March 27 with the loss of 123 lives in the world's worst offshore oilfield disaster. Officials at Stavanger said a valve jammed open as one of the Henrik Ibsen's five legs was being filled with water ballast, and the leg became overloaded with ballast and dropped to the harbor bed.

The platform tilted 20 degrees from its horizontal position, but remained above the surface because the leg was resting on the bottom only 65 feet below, the officials reported. They said the 57 workers on board were removed as a precautionary mea-

The Henrik Gibsen, like its 10,000-ton sister rig Alexander Kielland, is owned by Norway's Stavanger Drilling Co. and has been chartered by Phillips Petroleum Co., based in Oklahoma. It has not yet been certified for North Sea operations. Phillips spokesman Per Erik Bjoerklund told a Norwegian radio station that officials of the two companies will confer on how the rig can be balanced. A spokesman for Det Norske Veritas, an organization that classifies ships and oilrigs, told Norwegian television the oil rig would not have cap sized even if it had tilted 40 degrees at
