Weather fatal to two

Deaths occur in Texas, Oklahoma

By The Associated Press

A family of storms spawned at least 15 tornadoes that hit communities in nine states Monday and early today, destroying scores of homes and businesses, killing at least two persons and injuring at least 75 others.

The National Weather Service said that since noon Monday, 14 tornadoes had touched down in Arkansas, six in Wisconsin, four in Missouri, three in Oklahoma, three in Texas, two in Illinois, one in Kansas, one in Tennessee and one in Mississippi.

Thunderstorms this morning were scattered from lower Michigan into Texas.

These thunderstorms are part of the family of storms which left injuries and damage over a large area, the weather service said.

One of the latest tornadoes hit this morning at Corinth, Miss. It came along a path 300 yards wide, destroying a house and a barn, toppling a boxcar from its tracks and damaging a funeral home, a steak house, a beauty salon, an automobile dealership and a motel. No injuries were reported.

A 15-month-old baby in Beaver Dam, Wis., was found face down but uninjured Monday in a pile of broken glass after a tornado struck a trailer park. A woman living in the area was pulled from a pile of rubble — what was left of her home — as a tank of liquefied petroleum gas leaked nearby.

In Arkansas, a man said his $300 nest egg was scattered by the wind.

The tornadoes were spawned in a atmospheric battle between temperatures of 101 in Texas and the low 30s in North Dakota, where as much as 6 inches of snow fell Monday.

In the St. Louis suburb of Florissant, 15 persons were hospitalized, one in serious condition, after a tornado struck shortly after 10 p.m., extensively damaging 60 homes.

"We heard the noise. My husband and I each reached for a kid to head for the basement, but the pressure was so strong we just couldn't move," said Janet Eisele. Her house was damaged, but the family was not hurt.

The tornado flattened some houses, leaving only piles of rubble and empty shells. Most houses in northwest Florissant sustained roof damage.

In central Texas, one man was killed, another was injured. 15 houses were destroyed and 12 were damaged as tornadoes struck Round Rock, Lund and Elgin. The man died in his home. "The building collapsed down on him," said Police Lt. Wesley Wolff.

In Oklahoma, a 9-year-old boy drowned when a boat on Foss Lake in the west-central part of the state capsized in high winds.

Bermeo and Ketchum, both northeast of Tulsa, with populations of about 300 each, had property damage estimated at $2 million with four injured and as many as 10 homes demolished.

former California governor, told a banquet audience in Greensboro the captives, shouldn't have been there six days, let alone six months.

He said the president's handling of the crisis is "bordering on appeasement" regardless of the moves, announced earlier in the day.

"It's just more of the same, and it's been wrong from the first," Reagan said. "The drop in trade since this began has been so great that there really will be no impact," he added. As for expelling Iranian diplomats, Reagan noted that some had been ordered home earlier in the crisis, prompting little result.

Reagan refused to discuss what steps he would take instead, saying he might tip an option that otherwise might not occur to Iranian leaders. In the past, however, Reagan has said he would have allowed only 48 to 72 hours for diplomatic efforts to resolve the hostage crisis. After that, he said, he would have privately ordered Iran to turn the Americans over to a neutral government "or something very unpleasant is going to happen to your country." Reagan has not specified the unpleasantry he had in mind.

In Los Angeles, Anderson said he agreed with the president's actions, but felt Carter had politicized the Iranian issue — by calling it at one point the worst crisis since World War II. As for Reagan, Anderson said the former governor's approach to foreign policy is this: "Arm to the teeth and replace cooperation in any form with confrontation."

Kennedy, embroiled in a make-or-break campaign in Pennsylvania, reversed his once-steadfast opposition to sanctions against Iran. In January, Kennedy had said "The administration continues to call for economic sanctions I oppose them. They will only propel Iran toward the Soviet orbit. They will do nothing to free the hostages."

Iran may face an 'emergency'

By The Associated Press

Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, angrily bidding good riddance to the "bloodthirsty" United States, told his people today the break in relations was actually a "good omen" for Iran. But Iranian leaders conceded they may have to declare an economic emergency, including rationing, to deal with the new U.S. sanctions.

Khomeini and Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh both said the moves announced Monday by President Carter, including a break in diplomatic ties and an almost total U.S. economic embargo against Iran, would not change Iran's position on the U.S. Embassy hostages.

The 30 captive Americans were in the 15th day of confinement at the hands of Moslem radicals occupying the embassy.

Although some Iranian officials dismissed the impact of Carter's moves, Iran's governors general met with the ruling Revolutionary Council in an extraordinary session and proposed declaring a state of economic emergency.

Afterward, the council issued a statement saying "certain decisions" had been made in meetings Monday night and today and would be announced later.

President Abolhassan Bani Sadr and other council members met with Khomeini at his Tehran residence in late afternoon, and it was announced that Bani Sadr would make a national radio television address tonight.

The council statement said Iranians should be prepared for steadfastness, self sacrifice and action. Bani Sadr warned Iranians in an interview earlier today. "If you want to be alive, produce and work."

Council spokesman Hassan Habibi said an economic "holy war" under consideration would mean rationing consumer goods, putting a lid on salaries and overtime, and clamping down on hoarders and others causing domestic shortages in a number of industries.

Revolutionary leader Khomeini said the U.S. actions were a "good omen" because they meant the United States had lost all hope of controlling Iran.

Breaking relations with Iran was the one thing in all his life Carter has done in the interests of the oppressed, because it marked an end to ties between a risen country and a world-outraging plunderer," Khomeini declared.

"This is the beginning of the dawn of final victory of a nation against the bloodthirsty superpower which was forced to cut relations," he said, and now the United States will be forced to end its pillaging in Iran.

Khomeini also called on "noble Islamic nations" to kill Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Iraqi President Saddam Hussein, and urged the Iraqi people and army to overthrow their leaders. Sadat has given refuge to the deposed Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, and the Hussein government is

Iran alerts army in wake of Iraqi moves

By The Associated Press

Tension between Iran and Iraq increased today as Iran's revolutionary regime charged its neighbor with attacks across the border and wholesale expulsion of Iranians, put its army on full alert and ordered its diplomats home from Baghdad.

Pars, the official Iranian news agency, reported 70 Iraqis attacked oil installations and a border police post in the southwestern Iranian border province of Kermanshah Monday. It said an oil tank was damaged but there were no casualties, and Iranian forces recaptured the post.

Tehran Radio said Iraqi helicopter gunships made rocket runs on the post and Iraqi artillery opened fire in the area afterward. It said four Iranian army helicopters ferried in reinforcements, and the troops returned the fire.

embroiled in new hostilities with Khomeini's regime.

Bani Sadr, in an interview broadcast by Tehran Radio, said Iranians must realize Carter means business with his latest economic and diplomatic reprisals. "I tell the nation, it is a war," he said.

"These are not their last weapons at Persian Gulf naval and air bases.

It said revolutionary guardsmen were told to report to their stations in the southern Gulf provinces of Fars and Bushehr and on Kharg Island, and declared that the Iranian people have announced their readiness to fight and sacrifice their lives.

Khomeini ruled Monday that the American hostages would remain in the custody of the embassy militants until the new Parliament meets to decide their fate. The decision overruled Bani Sadr's plan to transfer the hostages to the custody of the council.

Hours later Carter announced new retaliatory measures against Iran, adding that "other actions may become necessary."

In addition to breaking diplomatic relations with Iran and expelling the remaining 35 Iranian diplomats from the United States, Carter ordered: a complete trade embargo, excluding food and medicine; invalidation of all visas held by Iranians for future travel to the United States; and the beginning of a process that could allow the hostages, their families and American businesses to claim some of the $8 billion in Iranian assets frozen in the United States.

Girl kidnapped, held three days in Midland home

A young girl is safe today after being kidnapped Friday and held in bondage for three days by the use of wire, ropes, tape and plastic handcuffs.

Police are not commenting on her exact age, saying only that she is under age, and are referring to her only as a young white female.

Midland police first were alerted to the situation at 10:09 a.m. Monday, when they received a call from a man on the west end of town, according to Detective Lt. Earl Luckey.

The man told officers that a young girl had run to his house requesting that he contact the police. She said she had been tied up and held captive for the past two days.

But as the man attempted to call the police, a white male in his mid-20s came to the house, forced his way inside, pushed the man aside and began looking in closets. He found the girl in a bathroom.

He grabbed her by the hair and dragged her from the house, police were told. He continued to drag her across the alley to a house and then disappeared.

During the scuffle, the man lost a set of keys — keys which fit the door of the house directly across the alley from where the girl had run for help.

No one was in the house when police checked it, and the only furniture was a mattress on the floor, said Luckey. The house didn't appear to be lived in at the time.

Officers later discovered that the man had rented the house 2 1/2 months earlier.

Further investigation by police officers revealed signs that a person had been restrained in that apartment by the use of plastic handcuffs, wires, ropes and tape. Other evidence of possible bondage were found in the house, according to the lieutenant.

About an hour later, a Midland County resident contacted a police officer and told him that a young white female had arrived at the resident's house and had asked for a ride to a Midland restaurant, where she was employed.

"She was very frightened," said Luckey, "and apparently was injured."

An officer contacted personnel at the restaurant and located the girl. At this time, police learned she had been captive in the house since Friday, according to Luckey.

She told officers she managed to escape after her captor had left the house.

But just as she managed to free herself and run out the back of the house, the white male returned and saw her leaving. He followed her and recaptured her.

He then carried her to an adjacent county and then back to Midland County, where the girl was able to get out of the vehicle and contact a woman to bring her back to town, according to Luckey.

The man was driving a company vehicle, police were told. Midland police officers later found the vehicle abandoned behind a tavern on Rankin Highway.

Felony charges have been filed against the alleged captor, said Luckey, but he is not in custody at this time.

According to police, the man was identified by various items, including a billfold, which were found in the house.

School bonds will be sold May 27, trustees decide

The $3 million school bond issue approved by voters Saturday will be sold May 27. Midland school trustees agreed today.

While the final interest rate the district will pay for the $3 million package won't be set until the final bid is accepted, the rate probably will be under 9 percent.

"When you start trying to guess the market, you shouldn't be in the business," noted Bob Davis, a representative of Fred Baker & Associates, the district's bond underwriters, "but I don't think Midland will see 9 percent."

School officials will accompany Davis to New York April 30 for a round of talks with bond rating firms. Midland currently has an AA rating, and school officials expect to maintain that level, but "every time you add some bonds, you change the financial condition of the district," Davis said.

If the bonds are sold May 27, the district can expect to receive the proceeds by July 10, Davis said. The money will be used to make repairs and improvements at most of the schools in the district.

In a formal canvass this morning, trustees confirmed the tallies from Saturday's election in which voters approved the bonds and elected two new school trustees.

Ronald Britton displaced incumbent James Ramsoure 5,362 to 3,700 for the Place 1 spot and Bill Jackson defeated Worthy Gilbert Jr. 6,050 to 1,824 for Place 2. Jackson will replace long time board member Joe Dominicy, who chose not to run for reelection.

Sadat opens talks with Carter

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vowing to put the Palestinian problem "on the road to a just settlement," Egyptian President Anwar Sadat opened talks today with President Carter on how much self-rule Arabs are to have in Israeli-held territory. Passing up formal arrival ceremonies, the two leaders posed quietly for photographs in the White House Rose Garden before entering the Oval Office. They made no statements.

Guarantees for Israel's security were the likely focus of the White House sessions. At the same time, the Egyptian leader was expected to push for creation of a Palestinian legislative council and a rollback of Israeli forces on the West Bank of the Jordan River and in Gaza.

As a gesture to Israel, which is concerned that this could lead to a Palestinian state threatening its very existence, Egyptian sources indicated Sadat would suggest demilitarization of the territories for five years and either a neutral peacekeeping unit or a mixed Egyptian-Israeli patrol.

Whatever is hammered out by Carter and Sadat over two days will be submitted to Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin when he calls at the White House next week. Then, if there is agreement, the Egyptian and Israeli negotiating teams will try to translate the principles into a settlement by the May 26 target date.

If key issues remain unresolved, however, U.S. and Egyptian officials said Carter might hold a three-way summit meeting with Sadat and Begin along the lines of the Camp David sessions in September 1978. These produced the framework for a peace treaty between Egypt and Israel and the current negotiations over Palestinian autonomy.

The peace treaty between Egypt and Israel was the first step on the road to a comprehensive peace, of which all nations benefit," Sadat said Monday as he arrived at Andrews Air Force Base.

"Together with that, we all pledged ourselves to work tirelessly to put the Palestinian problem on the road to a just settlement. Without the help and active involvement of President Carter, it would have been impossible to realize this achievement."

Beset as he is with a stalemate over the American hostages in Iran, the tribute to Carter undoubtedly was appreciated at the White House. The president is eager to build on his successes in the Middle East to at least balance his setbacks in Iran and on other foreign fronts.

Sadat's own prestige is boosted, meanwhile, by acclaim from the administration. His ties with the United States also have paid off in new weapons, economic aid and international renown.

Having broken ranks with anti-Israeli forces in the Arab world by signing a peace treaty, Sadat is the target of condemnation and death threats.

Security is tight. Anti-Sadat demonstrators marched on the White House Monday to protest his visit. "Death to Sadat," they shouted. "Death to Begin."

Some of the demonstrators carried placards portraying Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, the Iranian leader, who has moved into the forefront of Israel's implacable foes.

County Commissioners work on mortgage plan

Midland County Commissioners Monday hammered out most of the fine points in the planned county-wide low-interest mortgage bond program.

Fate of the program, to be patterned after the successful plan sponsored by the city last year, depends on a bill pending before the U.S. Senate which would effectively kill bond programs like this one.

The bill passed the House in March without the "grandfather clause" which would have allowed the Midland County program to continue, but commissioners were told Monday the Senate version could include it.

Commissioners still have not determined how large a bond issue they could pass to provide mortgage money, but they authorized a feasibility study to set an upper limit. Estimates on the size of the issue ranged up to $40 million.

The proposed county program will differ from the city's plan in at least two ways.

FHA and VA financing will be allowed in the county's bond plan while those government-sponsored insurance plans were prohibited in the city's efforts.

Half the money will be reserved for those making $22,500 and under for the first 90 days. The city's program had three income divisions.

Commissioners chose the law firm of Dumas, Huguenin, Boothman and Morrow to be bond counsel and selected Fred Baker and Associates to be underwriter for the bonds.

County Judge Bill Ahders was elected president of the Midland County Housing Finance Corp., the non-profit corporation which will administer the program.

Commissioner Durward Wright was elected vice president and County Clerk Rosnelle Cherry was chosen to be secretary-treasurer.

The officers are only temporary designations until the fate of the program is known, commissioners said.

Once the final legislative roadblocks are removed, commissioners plan to appoint members of the board that ran the city's program to help with the county bonds.

Man accused in Peoples Temple tragedy died to five years

GEORGETOWN, Guyana (AP) — One of two persons charged in connection with the Peoples Temple tragedy was sentenced today to five years hard labor for the attempted murder of a 9-year-old girl.

Charles Edward Beikman, 44, a cook and shoemaker for the Jones town community, had pleaded guilty to that charge but innocent of slaying a top cult member and her three children on Nov. 18, 1978.

Court sources said the state is not expected to pursue charges that Beikman murdered Sharon Amos, an aide to cult leader Jim Jones and public relations officer for the Peoples Temple.

On the same night that Mrs. Amos and three of her children died in Georgetown, their throats slashed ear to ear, Jones led more than 900 of his followers to their deaths in a mass murder suicide in Jonestown, 150 miles to the northwest.

The mass killings followed the slaying by cult members of Rep. Leo Ryan, D-Calif., three journalists and a defecting cult member on a jungle airstrip near Jonestown.

Another cult member, Larry Layton, 33, a former Marine, is charged with the murder of Ryan and the others. His trial has been delayed until May 5.

Beikman had pleaded guilty to the attempted murder of Stephanie Jones, no relation to the cult leader, who was in a bathroom of the house where the Amos family died.

The five-year sentence means Beikman could be out of prison three and a half year from now, with time off for good behavior. The maximum sentence for attempted murder is life imprisonment.

In passing sentence, Judge Cecil Kennard said he took into account that Beikman had been in custody since Nov. 23, 1978, and had shown some contrition by pleading guilty in the Stephanie Jones case. The judge also said the girl had suffered only a superficial wound with a kitchen knife — not with the butcher's knife used in the murders.

Four bodies pulled from plane's wreckage

HOUSTON (AP) — The bodies of a man, a woman, a young girl and a toddler — still strapped in their seats — were pulled from the submerged wreckage of a light plane that apparently crashed in the San Jacinto River during heavy fog this weekend, authorities said.

Divers using heavy generators to power lights worked into the morning today to recover parts of the plane.

The young girl's body was found during the night, several hours after authorities had theorized they would find the body of a young child in the plane because they found baby bottles in the wreckage.

Harris County Sheriff's Sgt. Warren Kahle said the names of the victims were being withheld pending notification of relatives.

Mild weather should return to Basin, weatherman says

Winter took one last slap at the Permian Basin this morning as the mercury plunged to 32 degrees, but the weatherman said mild weather will return.

The forecast, issued by the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport, is calling for fair skies through Wednesday. The mercury should fall to near 40 again tonight, but will climb into the middle 70s again on Wednesday.

The northerly winds that blew today at 10 to 15 mph should become light and variable tonight.

Permian Basin area communities this morning were reporting fair skies and cool temperatures.

Monday's high temperature was a warm 83 degrees, still far short of the record 92 degree reading set on that date in 1946.

This morning's 32 degree reading — although cool — was not a record. The record low reading for this date is 28 degrees, set in 1938.

Elsewhere, one man was killed and property damage was heavy Monday in Central Texas after tornadoes touched down at Round Rock, Lund and Elgin.

Most of the turbulent weather calmed down during the night although thunderstorms continued early today in Southeast Texas.

Forecasters called for clear to partly cloudy skies and cooler temperatures statewide today. Highs were to range from the 60s in the north to the 70s and 80s in South Texas.

Police at Round Rock said a tornado struck their town, about 20 miles north of Austin, shortly before 6 p.m., killing one person and injuring another when their house blew down in the storm. The victim, identified as Mijim Ortega, 52, died when the building collapsed on him, said Lt. Wesley Wolff.

A nursery was unroofed, several other businesses at Round Rock had part of their roofs blown off and about a dozen houses were damaged by the twister, which hit another town moments later.

Officers said the tornado traveled southeast to the small farming community of Lund and destroyed at least 15 houses, knocking down power and telephone lines and injuring seven, three of them seriously.

"You want to know what it (Lund) looks like? It looks like somebody went in there with a bomb and set it off. It's a disaster," said Sgt. Claude Riggs of the Travis County sheriff's office.

One house was damaged when a twister struck the Bastrop County town of Elgin, about 25 miles east of Austin.

The other day I was driving through a drive-in bank facility. A woman in the lane next to where I was parked to transact business was on foot and contacted a teller, only to be told she could not do business at the drive-in unless she was in a car.

I would like to know why a person cannot do business at a drive-in bank without a car? — Mrs. R. K.

ANSWER: A spokesman for the bank you refer to said that persons on foot are not allowed to do business in a drive-in lane because of safety precautions. There also is a state regulation concerning the distance from the main bank building to the drive-in service. In the case of the bank you mentioned, the drive-in facility is beyond the distance where persons can walk through a drive-in teller's station.

I lent a friend of mine $5,000 to meet a payroll deadline at his business.

He signed a note agreeing to pay me the money. Three months later he went bankrupt. Is this loss to me deductible in one lump sum or is there proration? — J.K.

ANSWER: The State Bar of Texas says before a bad debt can be deducted from federal income taxes, a determination must be made as to whether it was incurred in the taxpayer's trade or business.

A debt in the course of a taxpayer's business can be deducted as a loss in full in the year in which it became worthless.

A non-business bad debt can be deducted as a short term capital loss. Only the difference between the bankruptcy dividends received and the amount of the debt may be deducted.

The loss is deductible in one lump sum subject to the rules for treatment of a short term capital loss.

After I die, my wife will be receiving benefits from my life insurance policies.

Will she also be able to collect full Social Security payments? — K.L.

ANSWER: The American Council of Life Insurance says yes, she will.

According to law, life insurance benefits do not count as "earnings" regardless of the size of the payments.

This means a widow will be receiving her full Social Security payments.

Federal courthouse renamed for slain Judge John Wood

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The U.S. courthouse here has been formally renamed for assassinated U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr. It is believed to be the first time a federal courthouse has been named for a judge.

The renaming was formalized Monday in a dedication ceremony attended by 17 federal judges and warily watched by armed federal marshals.

Wood, 63, known as "Maximum John" for his stiff sentences in his numerous drug cases, was cut down by a sniper last May 29 outside his townhouse as he left for work.

There have been no arrests in that assassination or the 1978 attempted assassination of a federal prosecutor from the Western District of Texas. Authorities feel both attacks were drug-related.

While Wood's widow, two daughters and four grandchildren looked on, Deputy U.S. Attorney General Charles Renfrew pledged to the crowd Monday that the Justice Department would continue its massive investigation of the assassination.

"We will continue our tireless efforts to bring to justice these assassins and see they get their just deserts," vowed Renfrew, a former federal judge.

U.S. District Judges Adrian Spears, D.W. Suttle, William Sessions and Jack Roberts of the Western District have been constantly guarded by federal marshals since the assassination. They attended the dedication ceremonies Monday with their guards.

Thirteen other federal judges from across Texas and the nation were introduced at the dedication.

Officials said additional marshals were utilized for the ceremony.

All visitors to the circular courthouse have been screened by metal detectors since the Nov. 21, 1978 attempted assassination of Assistant U.S. Attorney James Kerr. Monday's visitors were also screened. Kerr, who longer works for the U.S. attorney's office here, attended the dedication ceremony.

Wood was eulogized as a "man of integrity and courage" by U.S. Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, U.S. Rep. Tom Loeffler, R-Texas, and other dignitaries at the ceremony.

Tower and Loeffler helped pass the legislation renaming the San Antonio courthouse that is the headquarters for the sprawling judicial district. Officials say they know of no other federal courthouses that have been named for judges.

"His death must lead the nation's jurists and law enforcement officers to rededicate themselves to stand firm against intimidation and uphold and enforce the law of the land," eulogized Suttle. "His courage and conviction will not be forgotten by a grateful nation. His death will not be in vain."

Corpus Christi attorney Hayden Head, Wood's close friend for 44 years, recalled that he and Wood had discussed the possibility of assassination a few months before Wood died.

Another look needed

The fact that more than 11,000 Iranians have legally entered the United States since the Nov. 4 takeover of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran, Iran, should cause alarm for more than a few federal officials.

The Iranian revolution has been violently anti-American in nature. In that regard it shows no signs of moderating in future weeks.

One would think that the Carter Administration would approach the migration of Iranians to this nation with a little more caution. President Carter said not long ago that Iranians entering the United States are "screened very closely."

Without question, many of the Iranians entering the United States have legitimate reasons for being here. More than a few of them were associated with U.S. interests and could have anticipated imprisonment had they chosen to remain in Iran.

But another possibility for the influx exists, too.

The FBI specifically has warned both the State Department and the Immigration and Naturalization Service of the possibility of Iranian terrorists infiltrating the United States. According to one of the news services, several immigration inspectors have said the service is operating under State Department and INS policy to avoid any incident that might anger the terrorists holding the embassy in Tehran.

The news service also reported not long ago that INS agents checking the luggage of a young Iranian entering the U.S. on a student visa at John F. Kennedy Airport in New York found a military manual with instructions on making bombs and mines, and field-stripping an Israeli UZI sub-machine gun.

How many such potential terrorists have entered the United States without being detected? The number could range high.

In light of the violence associated with the Iranian revolution and the anti-American sentiment apparently running rampant there, we wonder if the United States' open-door policy in regard to Iranians is a wise one.

We don't believe it is. The Carter Administration would do well to reconsider this particular matter before it is too late.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Carter reacting to economy with alarm

WASHINGTON — As living costs have kept rocketing up, President Carter has progressed from a state of confusion to a state of alarm.

His earnest but futile attempts to grapple with the economy are chronicled in secret minutes which he has distributed to Cabinet members only, with orders "that no copies or distribution be made and that they be kept for your eyes only."

A review of the minutes makes distressingly clear why Carter doesn't want outsiders to read them. The minutes show he is largely responsible for the worst inflation in modern times. His policies have brought trying times for most Americans and desperate times for the 24 million people living below the government's poverty level.

The savings and loan industry is close to financial collapse. The home builders are going through the worst period since the Great Depression. The bond market is in dire trouble. Thousands of small businesses face bankruptcy, and millions of workers are in danger of losing their jobs.

Yet the U.S. economy is basically sound; it has simply been mismanaged. The United States, after all, is the wealthiest nation in human history, with greater resources, more advanced technology and higher industrial and agricultural production than any other nation.

One of Carter's early priorities was to reduce unemployment. He set out in 1977 to stimulate the economy and create more jobs. The best way to achieve this, he decided, was to provide more money for Americans to spend.

He wanted to rebate $50 to every taxpayer. Congressional leaders talked him out of this wild idea, which would have cost the taxpayers just about as much in paperwork as they would have gotten back. He succeeded, nevertheless, in reducing taxes and hyping the economy.

Jack Anderson

At the first Cabinet meeting in 1978, his chief economic adviser, Charles Schultze, reported that "the economy was on the up-beat during the last months of 1977 and the beginning of 1978." This was accomplished, he said, "by increased consumer demand and the continued effects of the administration's economic stimulus program."

A beaming Carter said he was "proud of the Cabinet and predicted a good year in 1978." But the consumer demand he had helped to create gave prices a rocket boost. The Jan. 8, 1978, minutes reveal the first move to raise interest rates.

This was supposed to tighten the money supply and discourage people from spending — at the same time that the president's economic stimulus program was encouraging people to spend. In other words, Carter was stepping on the accelerator and the brake simultaneously.

In the weeks ahead, he continued to apply both the accelerator and the brake with even more pressure. The Jan. 16, 1978, minutes describe as his "general goals" an intention "to stimulate purchasing power" and "to fight inflation."

He called for a massive $25 billion tax cut to stimulate spending. The ensuing rush to the marketplace, however, could be expected to push up prices. The president naively thought he could talk business and labor leaders out of it. According to the secret

The American people have been misled for so long about the Soviet Union and its intentions and capabilities that most Americans have no idea of the real danger they are facing right now.

I wouldn't either, frankly, if it had not been for a chance encounter that led to my having the privilege of doing some mechanical chores for Gen. Lewis Walt, a retired four-star Marine, in the preparation of his book, "The Eleventh Hour."

General Walt is one of the greatest Americans, greatest Marines and greatest human beings I've ever met and you can take that from a guy not easily impressed, least of all by rank. But General Walt is a separate story.

The point is that this association exposed me to more than I really wanted to know about our military posture and that of the Soviet Union. My life hasn't been the same since.

Let me give you a quick summary of some of what I learned.

First, the Soviet Union, in the 1950s, adopted a strategy based on the premise that a nuclear war could be fought and won. To win it requires the capability to make a pre-emptive first strike; to have a strong strategic defense structure; and to have sufficient numbers to make a first strike, absorb a second strike, make another strike and still have enough left over to handle China.

This is the opposite of what the American people have been told. We have been told by our leaders that because of world War II losses, the Soviet leadership was fearful of war. We have been told that Soviet military moves were only reactions to ours and were purely defensive. We were told the Soviet Union wanted only nuclear parity, not nuclear superiority. Everything we were told is dead wrong.

The Soviet Union, at the highest level, adopted an offensive strategy and set about methodically to achieve the military capability to carry it out.

They have achieved it or will have achieved it by 1982. It's impossible to know for sure. Our CIA, long before recent politicians gutted it, has been a failure. It has consistently been wrong about Soviet intentions and Soviet capability. The CIA admitted finally in 1976 that its estimates of Soviet military spending had been wrong a decade and it doubled all its previous estimates.

The truth of the matter is that the CIA doesn't have a single spy inside the Soviet Union and what it knows, it knows from satellite photography and Soviet publications. That's why it has been consistently wrong and frequently surprised.

Since the beginning of the SALT process, the Soviet Union has increased its military capability tremendously. It has added, to cite just one example, more men to its army since the first SALT agreement than we have in ours.

In every category — strategic nuclear, tactical nuclear, and conventional — the Soviet military capability is superior to ours. It is now plain that the Soviet Union's military and diplomatic moves dovetailed perfectly to achieve the Soviet objective of military superiority.

Diplomatically they sought to lull us into relaxing our guard. They succeeded. They duped us into banning the anti-ballistic missile system, the one area where our superior technology threatened their goal of achieving first strike capability. They even duped us into financing and providing the technology for their military buildup.

Historians 100 years from now will be dumbfounded by the stupidity and gross negligence of American political leadership in the 1960s and 1970s.

I believe that when all the facts are known to the American people and they realize how close they are to doomsday, there will be lynch mobs looking for the politicians and bureaucrats responsible.

As Dr. Edward Teller said recently, the United States will need a miracle to survive the next two or three years.

Mark Russell says

Credit card mania has changed the nation. Kids-used to brag to each other that, "My father can beat up your father." Today, they say, "My father has more clout than your father."

Or, in very ritzy neighborhoods they say, "My father has a higher yielding stock portfolio than your father."

Curtailment of credit cards has this advantage — now I won't have to fake nonchalance and start whistling while the clerk makes the phone call to see if I'm paid up.

Watch for this commercial on TV: "Hi, do you know me? I was a great general in the Civil War, but even though I was a lousy President, my picture is on the $50 bill. This is Ulysses S. Grant for American Cash. Don't leave home without it."

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Tuesday, April 8, the 99th day of 1980. There are 267 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On April 8, 1513, Spanish explorer Ponce de Leon landed in Florida, searching for the fabled fountain of youth.

On this Date:

In 1826 Secretary of State Henry Clay fought a duel with Sen. John Randolph of Virginia. Neither man was injured.

In 1907, Britain and France signed a statement confirming the independence of Siam, which is now Thailand.

In 1964, India released Sheik Abdullah, former premier of Kashmir.

In 1970, an Israeli air attack on Bahr El-Bakr in Egypt killed 30 schoolchildren.

Also in 1970 the Senate rejected President Nixon's nomination of G. Harold Carswell to the Supreme Court.

Five years ago, North Vietnam launched coordinated ground and shelling attacks in the upper Mekong Delta in an effort to cut off Saigon's supply of rice.

And last year, 5,000 people near Crestview, Fla., were evacuated following the derailment and explosion of several railroad tank cars.

Today's birthday: Former Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith is 61.

Thought for today: An honest man is the noblest work of God. — Alexander Pope (1688-1744)

INSIDE REPORT:

Sen. Kennedy may attempt a procedural ploy to win

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — If Sen. Edward M. Kennedy can topple President Carter in the remaining big-state primary elections, his meager prospect for capturing the Democratic presidential nomination depends on a classic ploy in American party politics: a procedural fight on the convention floor.

Carter's political operatives are confident they will have more than enough delegates even if Kennedy wins in Pennsylvania, Michigan, Ohio and California. What worries Carter's men are the tricks that Rick Stearns, Kennedy's canny delegate counter, might have up his sleeve.

He has some. Kennedy might seek a floor vote to repeal the present party rule enabling a candidate to expel delegates who abandon their legal commitment to him. If Kennedy enters the New York convention with a string of primary wins, such a procedural vote could break the convention open for him just as the so-called "fair play" amendment did for Dwight D. Eisenhower in 1952.

FORD FOR VP?

Assuming that the answer will surely be "no," several of Ronald Reagan's political advisers want him to offer the vice presidential nomination to a man he holds in minimum high regard: Gerald R. Ford. Since Ford did not offer second place on the ticket to Reagan in 1976, turning the tables on the former president would make Reagan seem the more conciliatory Republican. Such a widely-publicized gesture would also make it easier for Reagan to select a conservative he wants for vice president (such as Rep. Jack Kemp) instead of a moderate he does not want (such as Sen. Howard Baker).

But what if Ford does to Reagan what Lyndon B. Johnson did to John F. Kennedy in 1960 and accepts the offer? "That's what worries me," confided one Reagan insider.

LIZ OPTS OUT

A campaign fund-raiser for Rep. Steven D. Symms, who is running against Sen. Frank Church for the Senate from Idaho, was abruptly cancelled when the star attraction — Elizabeth Taylor Warner, wife of Virginia's Republican Sen. John Warner — decided not to help Symms against Church.

Miss Taylor's reason: Church is perhaps the single best friend that Israel has in the U.S. Senate. Miss Taylor, who adopted Judaism as her religion years ago and regularly raises money for Israel, was warned by close friends in the American Jewish community that any help for Church's opponent would be interpreted in Israel as an unfriendly act.

So the fund-raiser, scheduled for the Easter recess, was cancelled with the "official" reason that Miss Taylor was too busy in Hollywood. Symms is now edging into the lead against Church in their classic conservative-liberal confrontation, and Warner will issue a strong endorsement wherever Symms wants it.

ANDERSON'S THIRD PARTY

National liberal political operatives with no love for Jimmy Carter are pleading with liberal activists not to promote a third-party bid by Rep. John Anderson on grounds it will surely top Ronald Reagan in the White House.

That is the word being put out by Russell Hemenway of the National Committee for an Effective Congress (NCEC) and Leon Shull of the Americans for Democratic Action (ADA). Both back Sen. Edward M. Kennedy over Carter, but argue Carter is vastly preferable to Reagan. Hemenway has been pleading, with mixed success, for money men to keep their funds out of Anderson's pockets.

A footnote: Kennedy's unexpected wins in New York and Connecticut kept liberal activists in Pennsylvania, site of the critically-important April 22 primary, from abandoning him in favor of an Anderson third-party bid.

BUDGETARY POLITICS

President Carter's budget revision was the last straw that persuaded Jerry Wurf to lead his huge government workers union (AFSCME) into Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's corner.

The reason given by AFSCME officials is the revised budget's abandonment of counter-cyclical aid to communities, a pet project of Wurf's. Beyond that, the government employees have an obviously vested interest in keeping government expenditures at a high rate.

Wurf was one of the first prominent labor leaders to endorse Jimmy Carter's 1976 campaign. Wurf hardly knew who Carter was then but, like many United Auto Workers (UAW) chieftains, backed him in the Florida primary to stave off George Wallace.

Don't call this driller an 'old-timer'

STANTON — It's a rare time, outside of sleeping, when Harry Doshier isn't kicking around in his cowboy boots, hat and khaki garb.

ROUSTIN ABOUT with Ed Todd

"I've not worn a shoe in 45 years," said Doshier, who had good cause to be out of his cowboy footwear and into slippers. "I don't know what a shoe is."

Doshier, a water-well driller who has been eating and breathing West Texas sand for 76 years, finally got too much sand in his craw, pulled off his boots and got himself laid up at the Martin County Hospital in Stanton.

He was out of sorts for the time being and was sporting loose-fitting, colorfully striped pajamas and cozyhouse shoes.

"I've been here (at the hospital) mostly for rest," said Doshier, who had been "out breathing and fighting that sand.... The sand was blowing, and I couldn't breathe." So his physician, Dr. Thomas Miller, got him to spend a week holed up in the hospital.

But Doshier didn't seem to mind the respite from work; it's his due — sort of a vacation from work — though "I'm busy. I've got more work now than I can do." His work has been drilling water wells with a cable-tool rig since he was 14 and, except for occasional rest spells, he hasn't let up.

"I've drilled all over the world, for that matter." His world takes in a fair chunk of West Texas — from Denver City and Lubbock down to Lamesa, and over to St. Lawrence, Midland and Odessa.

Though he doesn't know how many hundreds or thousands of water wells he has drilled in six decades, Doshier does know how many dry holes he has drilled: four.

When he's ready to drill, he plunks his one-man rig at a likely site, determined by his instinct and by the terrain — the lay of the land — and starts probing into the earth. He bypasses dowers and their forked twigs.

"Well, that (finding water) just depends. You can take some old sticks and witch. And you're just as likely to get water as sand," he figured.

"We go mostly by the lay of the land, (but) we run into water witches all the time." A hospital stay can tend to be a bit boring, especially for a man such as Doshier, who has been working most of his life — from rodeoing and drilling for oil as a young fellow to running water-well rigs in early and later years. But he entertains himself by "chewing the fat" and otherwise whiling away the time.

About an hour before suppertime, for instance, Doshier wandered from his room, and down and up the corridors to the front desk, where Lillian Brantley was shuffling papers and playing receptionist in the stead of the regular help, Wanda Smith, who was on vacation.

"Here's an old-timer," spouted out Mrs. Brantley. Doshier took kindly exception to that.

"Don't call me an old-timer," the gray-haired fellow admonished. "When I'm 200 years old, then I'll be an old-timer. I'm only a kid."

Now, no one would claim that 76 years is a mark of longevity, but it, plus a goodly measure of health, is worth bragging about. And Doshier figures that being a testotater and ex-smoker may be a favorable omen for many years to come.

"The reason I quit (smoking) was the price...." said the old-timer. "No, I quit 25 years ago."

And quitting for him wasn't all that difficult.

"People who say they can't quit can. It's in the noodle," he said, as he lightly tapped his head.

And it's his druthers that no one smokes around him.

"I had just as soon as a man comes around with a mad rattlesnake as with a lit cigarette," Doshier said.

Doshier stopped smoking after he and Teen, his wife of some 40 years, settled down in Stanton in the late 1940s and raised a family. "That's too long to live with one woman," he jested.

However, Doshier has vowed not to boot out his spouse. But, despite his habit of working, he may chuck his water-well drilling one of these days.

"I don't water witch. I've been at that (drilling) for 63 years, and I've got to quit that one of these days."

He didn't say when...if ever.

Harry Doshier, relaxing in his pajamas and with his Western felt hat at the ready, takes respite from his water-well drilling work while he's laid up at the hospital at Stanton — his home for more than three decades. "I like Stanton. I don't deny it," says the old-timer. (Staff Photo by Ed Todd)

Retaliatory raids feared after attack on kibbutz

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israeli raids on Palestinian camps in southern Lebanon are expected in retaliation for the terrorist attack on a kibbutz nursery in which three Israelis and five terrorists died.

Defense Minister Ezer Weizman said the Israeli army would "weigh measures and actions" but gave no hint of plans for retaliation.

However, all such previous Palestinian attacks on Israel have been followed quickly by large-scale Israeli attacks by land, sea or air on Palestinian camps which the Israelis claimed were operational or training bases for the terrorists.

Usually the retaliation results in far greater Palestinian casualties than those suffered by the Israelis in the terrorist attack.

In the attack early Monday, the kibbutz leader, a 2½-year-old boy and an Israeli soldier were killed and four children, an adult civilian and 11 soldiers were wounded after five Palestinians slipped through the frontier fence between Lebanon and Israel and invaded Misgav Am, a collective farm settlement in the northern panhandle that juts up between southern Lebanon and Syria.

The kibbutz leader, Sami Shani, 38, was shot at the door of the children's dormitory as, unarmed, he tried to push the Palestinians back.

The raiders held six small children and a man hostage on the second floor of the nursery building for nine hours while they threw grenades, fired their weapons and by bullhorn demanded the release of 50 imprisoned Palestinians and a plane to fly them out of the country.

One army attempt to rush the building failed, and the angered Palestinians shot their adult hostage, Meir Peretz, in the leg.

"The children started screaming hysterically, and one of the terrorists shouted, 'We'll kill them all,'" Peretz told reporters.

Weizman and Lt. Gen. Raphael Eytan, the chief of staff, arrived four hours after the initial Palestinian attack, and five hours later the army stormed the building. It took "three or four minutes," Weizman said, and the five Palestinians and an Israeli soldier were killed. It was not clear when the child died.

The Iraqi-supported Arab Liberation Front, one of the radical guerrilla groups in the Palestine Liberation Organization, claimed it was responsible for the raid.

Tito suffering lung inflammation

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Doctors treating President Josip Broz Tito said today he was again suffering inflammation of his lungs.

"After several days of abatement, signs of an inflammation process have again appeared on the lungs," the eight-doctor medical panel said.

The doctors had said Sunday it appeared the 87-year-old Yugoslav leader had almost been cured of pneumonia. Outside medical sources said Monday his condition appeared to have stabilized.

Tito, in his 88th straight day of hospitalization, is also suffering from kidney failure, heart weakness and a tendency toward internal bleeding. His left leg was amputated Jan. 20.

Midland man's condition 'satisfactory' after mishap

A 26-year-old Midland man was listed in satisfactory condition this morning in Midland Memorial Hospital following a three-vehicle collision Monday morning.

Tony Golson, 26, of 2613 Fannin Ave., was admitted with a broken leg.

The accident occurred at 7 a.m. at the intersection of the 2400 block of South Rankin Highway and the south service road to Interstate Highway 20.

According to police, a vehicle driven by James Chambers of 1101 Hamby St. was westbound on the south service road. A second vehicle driven by Jessie H. Vickery of Diana was eastbound on the service road.

Golson was southbound on Rankin Highway.

The Chambers' and Golson vehicles collided at the intersection of Rankin Highway and the I-20 service road. After the impact, Chambers' vehicle continued on, colliding with Vickery's vehicle, which was stopped at a stop sign on the west side of the intersection.

Two persons hospitalized following Monday accident

An 8-year-old boy and a 72-year-old man were admitted to Midland Memorial Hospital Monday afternoon with injuries received in a three-vehicle accident.

Paul Smith, 72, of 1604 N. J St., was listed in satisfactory condition this morning with two broken ankles, a broken leg and numerous contusions and abrasions. Smith was pinned in his vehicle after the accident and was freed with the Jaws of Life.

Kevin Edwards, 8, a passenger in a vehicle driven by his father, James Richard Edwards of Route 5, Box 1000, was listed in satisfactory condition.

According to police, Joe Allen Bradley of 1510

S. Goode St. was westbound in the 4000 block of West Wall Avenue around 2:45 p.m. Monday. Smith also was westbound on Wall, in front of Bradley. Edwards, 33, was eastbound on Wall.

Smith apparently slowed to avoid hitting a car which had pulled across to the median and was waiting to cross the other lane. Bradley's vehicle collided with Smith's, knocking Smith's vehicle across the median into the eastbound lane where it collided with Edwards' car. Smith's car also knocked down a reflector pole on the median.

WITHOUT OUR TRUST EXPERTISE, YOUR NEST EGG MAY BE A LOT LESS THAN IT'S CRACKED UP TO BE.

Life has a way of hatching some nasty surprises every once in a while. Like plucking the nest you worked so hard to feather to its bare bones.

If you haven't gotten around to planning your estate yet, your family could be left out in the cold, without the things you worked so hard for.

They may not be able to bank on bonds or other fixed income securities.

Taxes could rob you of your wealth.

And, with inflation, the money you put aside for your children's education may not make the grade.

In fact, your nest egg may be a lot less than it's cracked up to be.

At Midland National Bank, our trust officers will work with your lawyer, accountant or insurance planner to help you protect and preserve what's yours, with professional estate planning.

We can also show you how to set up corporate profit sharing and pension plans and management trusts; how to reinvest income from asset holdings; and how to utilize tax shelters. To let us show you how, call: 683-2751.

It takes more than just another big bank to keep your nest egg intact.

your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Wednesday, April 9, 1980

YOUR BIRTHDAY TO-DAY: Actor Ward Bond, long-time star of TV westerns, shares your birthday. Remember the determination he showed in moving west with one "Wagon Train" after another. It is that type of perseverance you now need to achieve real financial security in this year's inflationary economy. Do all possible to consolidate past gains and then build on them for the future. Employment opportunities offer you added pay, prestige. Romance promises happy days and late nights. Married life can have its stresses, but nothing you can't handle! Your luck in all areas improves after September.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Joining club or association may help advance career goals. Beware of unsolicited business opportunity. Investigate thoroughly before becoming involved. Romance is favored tonight.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You have better luck today with project that faltered earlier. Try to streamline methods, procedures so you can increase productivity. Attractive associate offers assistance.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Some important changes may be underfoot at your place of employment. You may speculate about future. Keep confidential information to yourself or you might endanger your position.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Take your time about financing complex business transaction. Obtain advice from professionals. Distant affairs might be quite complicated. Mull over plans in connection with a personal project.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Acquaintance may be trying to put one over on you. Guard your reputation. Tension may arise at home due to conflicting attitudes on family needs. Make your peace with mate or spouse. Plan romantic weekend together.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Stuck to routine tasks at office or place of business. Others may try to add to your workload, in order to reduce their own. Surprise development occurs when you begin to see certain person in a romantic light.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You handle many different jobs and enjoy a variety of assignments. Money management may come under scrutiny. Make every effort to insure that all is as secure as it appears on surface.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov.

21): Be noncommittal and give work-mates a wide berth today. Devote more attention to family affairs. Promises of support may be suddenly withdrawn without any reason. Look for other avenues of access.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You are due for good luck in new business relationships. Just do not try to move too fast. Haste can make others nervous. Gains are slow but sure. Discuss sensitive problem with loved one.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You may not feel much like sharing a personal worry with others. Yet talking things out with close friend could be very wise. Discuss priorities with mate or spouse before making up mind about employment matter.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Highly productive day for those dealing in services. Associates are in cooperative mood. Take advantage of offer to help and close out a lot of pending projects.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You may have to deal directly with strong-willed, independent person. Put your best foot forward, and then stand firm. If dealing with children, answer their questions honestly.

Whether to hold up or not,

and if so, for how long, are problems that seem to bewilder many bridge players. There are times when you should grab

the first trick even though you hold only one stopper in the suit, and others when it's right to hold up with two stoppers. How's a poor fellow to know? Well, here's a simple rule of thumb that can be of great help.

When defending against a no trump contract, and there are two key cards to be diamonds first. East won and returned a spade. Now

declarer elected to hold up,

but West overlooked the spade and continued the suit to force out the ace. When he gained the lead with the ace of hearts, he cashed two spade tricks to defeat the game.

True, declarer could have made the hand had he chosen to play on hearts first, but that observation is strictly

Monday morning quarterbacking. Had he followed our rule, he would have made the contract regardless of which suit he attacked at the outset.

Declarer must drive out two defensive cards—the red aces. Even though he has two stoppers in the spade suit,

our rule tells us that he should hold up on the first trick. Spades are continued.

Declarer wins and attacks diamonds. When East wins

the ace, either he has no

spade to continue or, if he does, the suit will break 4-3 and pose no threat. Either way, declarer can then knock out the ace of hearts and make his contract with the aid of a club finesse. The opponents will not be able to get more than two spade tricks and the two aces.

Your play to the first trick could decide the fate of the contract! A writer once remarked: "There's no such

THE NEWSPAPER BIBLE

Is this the messiah?

Some of the people who lived there in Jerusalem said among themselves, "Isn't this the man they are trying to kill?"

But here He is preaching in public, and they say nothing to Him. Can it be that our leaders have learned, after all, that He really is the Messiah?

But how could He be? For we know where this man was born, when Christ comes, He will just appear and no one will know where He comes from."

So Jesus, in a sermon in the Temple, called out, "Yes, you know Me and where I was born and raised, but I am the representative of one you don't know, and He is Truth. I know Him because I was with Him, and He sent Me to you."

Then the Jewish leaders sought to arrest Him; but no hand was laid on Him, for God's time had not yet come.

Many among the crowds at the Temple believed on Him. "After all," they said, "what miracles do you expect the Messiah to do that this man hasn't done?"

When the Pharisees heard that the crowds were in this mood, they and the chief priests sent officers to arrest Jesus.

But Jesus told them, "[Not yet!] I am to be here a little longer. Then I shall return to the one who sent Me. You will search for Me but not find Me. And you won't be able to come where I am!"

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Lobar pneumonia hits lung's lobes

Dear Dr. Solomon: I am a serviceman, home on leave while recuperating from what I have been told was a case of lobar pneumonia. I would appreciate information about what this means and the cause of the disease. Ron

Dear Ron: Lobar pneumonia means that entire lobe, or more than a lobe, of a lung is involved. It is caused by bacteria which probably are present in all healthy throats. However, when a person's resistance is lowered — as, for example, by a severe cold, poor health habits or alcoholism — the bacteria, most often pneumococci, leave the throat and enter the lungs. The germs infect the air sacs and the infection is then carried through the bloodstream to all parts of the body.

Lobar pneumonia may strike anyone, regardless of age or physical condition, but is most common among people 15 to 40 years old. While not a highly contagious disease, outbreaks occasionally are reported in places like barracks or hospital wards.

Dear Dr. Solomon: My doctor has recommended that I have a glucose tolerance test. What is involved in taking such a test, and what is its purpose? — Mr. L.J.

Dear Mr. J.: The glucose tolerance test is used to diagnose diabetes. In the healthy individual, the sugar (glucose) contained in the foods consumed is metabolized, stored and used by the body as needed. The glucose tolerance test shows how efficiently the body metabolizes the glucose.

To take the test, the patient drinks a liquid containing a stipulated amount of glucose; the amount in the blood is then measured at intervals of one-half hour, one hour, one-and-a-half hours, two hours and two-and-a-half hours. With some patients, these same determinations are also made at intervals of four, five and six hours.

Standards have been established for "normal" blood sugar levels at these various times after the ingestion of glucose. A patient who has a higher-than-normal blood sugar level on the glucose tolerance test is said to be diabetic. One with very low values is called hypoglycemic.

Recently, question has been raised about the validity of the test for older people. The National Institute on Aging reports that older individuals do not seem to handle glucose as well as younger persons. In one study, for example, 50 percent of the subjects over 60 years of age would have been diagnosed as diabetic on the basis of the glucose tolerance test; yet, many of them never had any of the common diabetic symptoms of excessive weight loss, general weakness or coma. The NIA concludes that in elderly individuals, at least, the glucose tolerance test should not be used as the sole diagnostic criterion for diabetes.

The NIA now recommends the establishment of a realistic standard for elderly people, who are given the test. That standard would recognize the normal changes that occur with age, and which do not necessarily indicate the presence of disease.

Man won't accept conditional pardon

SOMERS, Conn. (AP) — Ever since he was convicted of killing a deputy sheriff during a robbery 44 years ago, John J. Palm has maintained his innocence.

On Monday, the 68-year-old inmate at the state prison refused a conditional pardon because it would have placed limits on his freedom. He probably will spend the rest of his life behind bars unless he accepts conditions laid down for his release by the State Pardons Board.

"I want to be free on the outside, like Nixon or anybody else," Palm told the pardons board, speaking in almost a whisper.

The board had told Palm last October he would be pardoned April 1 if he agreed to enter a West Hartford convalescent home. He is in frail health and lives in the prison infirmary.

But Palm said Monday he didn't want to go to a convalescent home. He said he wanted an absolute pardon so he could go to his home town of Mount Kisco, N.Y.

Palm originally told the board he would not accept the conditional pardon because there was no statement attached to it that he was innocent.

But he told the board Monday he would accept the pardon if he could walk out the prison gates and go where he pleased.

"I can be on my own," he told the board. "It wouldn't be the first time I was released from an institution."

Dr. Jacob van Der Werff, who provides psychiatric services for the state Department of Correction, testified at the hearing that Palm is afraid of life outside prison.

Van Der Werff said Palm might "deteriorate" without a structured environment, "and what he might do then, I just don't know."

Palm could have been pardoned more than 20 years ago but never applied for parole because he said that would have been an admission of guilt.

THE 90 DAY WONDER.

Introducing the $1,000 Certificate That Earns 13% Annual Interest After Just 3 Months. (8% If You Withdraw Early!)

If you really want your eyes opened, read this ad, then compare with other ads by banks and savings and loan associations. You'll see why we believe "The 90 Day Wonder" just may be the finest thrift package in America today.

The key is an unbeatable combination of benefits. Short 3 month term. Low $1,000 minimum. High 13% interest with an effective annual yield of 13.64% when compounded quarterly.* Plus an extremely liberal penalty for early withdrawal, which means you still earn a big 8%.

Look at what others offer and you'll see how they compare. With their 30 month certificates, your money is tied up at today's interest rates for 2½ years! And if you withdraw early you forfeit 6 months' interest.

Their six month certificates require $10,000 minimum...with forfeiture of 3 months' interest for early withdrawal.

So for the first time you can get certificate size rates with the freedom to use your money where it can do you the most good. To take advantage of higher rates. To invest in opportunity when it knocks.

To withdraw in an emergency without undue penalties.

And with passbook accounts, maximum interest is just 5½% compared to 8%, which is the lowest interest our certificate earns, even after penalty.

If you'd like to see your money begin earning what it's really worth, without having it hopelessly tied up...send this coupon with your check or money order and start earning interest from the post-marked date. Or, for more information, call us.

New spring you with Diet Center

Spring is here and summer is due soon — summer weather, at least. Are you going to feel secure and at your best in sleeveless, brief clothes?

If you are a bit too heavy to answer that question happily, this is good news for you.

Diet Center can give you a taste of the good life.

The foods and recipes outlined by Diet Center are safe, physician-recommended and healthful in the extreme. But, having said that first — for it is of primary importance to the intelligent weight-loser — we must hurry to assure you that it is not grim and boring.

The diet is either plain or complex. You choose. The whole family will benefit from the fine food you will prepare. Cuisine fit for the gourmet or simple country fare may be adapted by you to suit your taste.

As inflation rages and makes all we buy, including clothes, more expensive, as you DEFLATE, you will find that some nice things in the closet you've become too large for will fit again, making your wardrobe more versatile.

The Diet Center counselors are good friends. They have dieted the Diet Center way, have been successful, and can identify with their dieters.

Is this the time to do something about your weight? Have you promised yourself "someday" to change your eating habits for the better? Then call Afton Wilson at 864-5081 or Letty Craft at 694-3421.

Protection against rising crime rate available at Midland Lock & Safe

Crime is a subject we do not like to think about. The facts do point, however, to a rising incidence in crime against property as well as against persons.

L.G. Simmons, locksmith and owner of Midland Lock & Safe Service, 611 N. Big Spring St., understands and sympathizes with the fears and insecurity people feel in the face of these trying realities. Better than this, however, he knows what to do about keeping valuables safe from fire and theft.

Safes come in many sizes and specifications. They range from the inexpensive portable firebox for small items and important papers to large vaults.

Money chests or in-the-floor safes give good burglary protection and some fire safety, if correctly installed. Correct installation is assured when Midland Lock & Safe Service does the job right.

Think over your security position. Make note of what you need to protect. L.G. Simmons of Midland Lock & Safe Service will tell you HOW. Do it today!

He's appealing $25 goat fine

FRUITVALE, Texas (AP) — Bill Hamby says no one is going to get his goat, and he may go all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court in his appeal of a $25 fine.

The fine was for letting goats get out of a fenced lot and onto a road. But Hamby says his position as chairman of the Fruitvale Citizens' Committee for Equal Taxation — and the ads the group ran criticizing the judicial system in Van Zandt County — are the real issue.

The citizens' committee has attacked the district attorney's office and the school system.

The goats are gone now, but "this harassment and discrimination will be challenged," Hamby says.

The Hamby group's pressure has resulted in one indictment and a civil law suit against the school district.

Midland Lock & Safe Service provides our community with security for home and business. L.G. Simmons, owner and locksmith, is an expert who can provide dependable advice regarding any security needs. Safes of all sizes and types are available. Come by 611 N. Big Spring St. or call 682-4202.

Kirby schedules 7,000-foot exploration in Garza County

A 7,000-foot wildcat has been spotted in Garza County by Kirby Exploration Co. of Houston.

It is No. 1-106 Boren, six miles east of Justiceburg and 660 feet from north and 750 feet from east lines of section 106, block 5, H&GN survey.

Ground elevation is 2,322 feet.

Drillsite is one and five-eighths miles southeast of the Curt Roy (San Andres lower) field, one and one-quarter miles east of the depleted 22,480-foot Justiceburg field and 3/4

Location is 687 feet from south and 2,065 feet from east lines of section 16, block 2, JK&T survey. Elevation is 2,836 feet.

The same operator announced plans to re-enter and deepen to 8,576 feet the former Wood, McShane & Thams No. 1 Windham Estate, an 8,544-foot dry hole. It will be operated by St. Clair as the No. 2 Windham.

Location is 660 feet from south and east lines of section 16, block 2, MK&T survey and 14 miles northwest of Rankin.

Indian Wells Oil Co. of Ozona will re-enter and plug back to 5,500 feet for tests of the Cisco 5600 gas pay in the Brooks, South field of Irion County, six miles southeast of Mertzon.

It is the former Tucker Drilling Co., Inc., San Angelo, No. 1 J. M. Winterbotham, a 7,995-foot wildcat failure.

It will be operated by Indian Wells as No. 1-30 Winterbotham.

Locations 467 feet from north and east lines of section 30, GC&SF survey, abstract 1130. Ground elevation is 2,253 feet.

The project was abandoned by Tucker in October 1972.

CROCKETT AREA

James L. Lamb Jr. of Midland announced plans to re-enter No. 1-47 Todd and deepen to 1,600 feet for completion attempt in the 1165-foot San Andres pay in the Howard Draw, Northeast field of Crockett County.

The project, a former 1,165-foot gas well in the same field, and more recently a Grayburg-San Andres well in the Howard Draw field, is 16 miles northwest of Ozona.

The location is 1,938 feet from south and 467 feet from west lines of section 47, block WX, GC&SF survey.

ENERGY OIL & GAS

mile southeast of a 2,642-foot dry hole.

NOLAN WILDCAT

Grand Banks Energy Co. of Midland spotted a 4,500-foot wildcat in Nolan County, 7.5 miles south of Sweetwater.

Scheduled as No. 1 Wight, it is in the depleted Trammel, East multipay pool and 2,312 feet from south and 1,030 feet from east lines of section 94, block 22, T&P survey.

The field produced from the Ellenburger, Strawn, Canyon reef and Canyon sand.

NOLAN FIELD TRY

Texas Pacific Oil Co. Inc. No. 4 William George is a new test in the three-well Withers (Ellenburger pool) of Nolan County, four miles south of Sweetwater.

Scheduled on a 6,600-foot contract, it is 753 feet from north and 885 feet from west lines of section 73, block 22, T&P survey.

It is a twin to Roark & Hooker No. 1 George, a 6,485-foot failure which was plugged in 1958.

RUNNELS WILDCAT

James K. Anderson of Dallas spotted No. 4 Vancil as a 4,550-foot wildcat eight miles southwest of Winters in Runnels County.

It is 467 feet from north and 2,600 feet from east lines of ETRR survey No. 170. Ground elevation is 1,844 feet.

The drillsite is 1/2 mile west of a well in the Winters, Southwest (Gray) pool. The field also produces from the Canyon, Capps, Jennings lime and Palo Pinto.

RUNNELS DISCOVERY

Hameo Exploration & Development Co. of Dallas No. 1 R. H. Hord has been completed as a Goen oil discovery six miles northwest of Winters in Runnels County.

The operator reported a daily pumping potential of 42 barrels of 41-gravity oil and 51 barrels of water, with a gas-oil ratio of 476-1.

Completion was on open hole at 4,508 feet, where 4.5-inch casing is set, and total depth of 4,512 feet after a 250-gallon acid treatment.

The strike, 3/4 mile south of a Fry well in the Jim Adams field, is 1,700 feet from south and 4,400 feet from east lines of B. M. Walker survey No. 401, abstract.

The Goen was topped at 4,508 feet on kelly bushing elevation of 1,980 feet.

COKE REOPENER

Ike Lovelady Inc. of Midland No. 1 Featherhorn has been completed to reopen the Green Mountain (Canyon reef) field of Coke County, nine miles west of Robert Lee.

The well, one location south of the pool's original opener, was finished for a 24-hour flowing potential of 134 barrels of 43-gravity oil and 11 barrels of water, with a gas-oil ratio of 836-1.

The flow was gauged through a 14/64-inch choke and was from pay being perforations from 5,930 to 5,937 feet and 5,946 to 5,955 feet. The pay was treated with 250 gallons of acid.

Total depth is 6,050 feet, 5.5-inch pipe is set on bottom and plugged back depth is 5,980 feet.

Wellsite is 1,980 feet from north and west lines of section 233, block 2, H&TC survey.

The Canyon reef was topped at 5,930 feet on kelly bushing elevation of 2,011 feet. The Coleman Junction was entered at 2,670 feet.

FISHER PROJECT

Roark & Hooker of Abilene No. 1 Boyd Lakey is to be dug as a south offset to one of the three wells in the Royal Gail (Canyon) field of Fisher County, 3 miles southwest of Hamlin.

Location for the 4,650-foot test is 467 feet from south and 2,330 feet from east lines of section 195, BBB&C survey.

UPTON RE-ENTRIES

D. W. St. Clair of Midland will re-enter the Wolfcamp discovery well of the Amacker-Tippett, South multipay field of Upton County and plug back from 13,050 to 8,500 feet for tests of the Wolfcamp.

It is the former N. B. Hunt No. 1 Windham, 14 miles northwest of Rankin.

Insulated heat exchangers are designed to save energy at Exxon USA's Baytown refinery. Energy conservation efforts taking place throughout the company's operations will save the equivalent of about one billion gallons of crude oil annually or enough energy to provide electricity to more than 1 million homes for a year.

Accept our terms or go home: OPEC

By WILLIAM GLASGALL
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Algeria has suspended shipments of liquefied natural gas to its largest U.S. customer amid a dispute over prices, while Kuwait has cut its sales of crude oil to Gulf Oil Corp. by 85 percent.

The actions were unrelated, but each reflected growing militancy by some Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries members who have been telling Western customers to accept their terms or go home with empty tankers.

The cutoff of Algerian gas shipments to El Paso Co. of Houston came after the company's agreement to buy 700 million cubic feet of gas a day for $1.95 per thousand cubic feet expired last week.

Algeria, supplier of about 1.5 percent of U.S. natural gas needs, has been demanding $6.11 per thousand cubic feet from European buyers after watching the world price of crude oil double to around $30 a barrel in the past year.

The Algerians have failed to reach agreement on a new price with El Paso, and the current situation is "no price, no gas," Vice President David Mackie said in an interview Monday.

El Paso sells the liquefied natural gas (LNG) to three Eastern gas distribution companies. The companies — Columbia Gas System Inc. of Wilmington, Del., Consolidated Natural Gas Co. of Pittsburgh, and Southern Natural Gas Co. of Birmingham, Ala. — have said they don't expect the cutoff to have a major impact on operations.

Algerian officials, meanwhile, told El Paso over the weekend that the plant which liquefies the country's gas prior to shipment has been closed because of unspecified "operational difficulties" in gas fields, Mackie said.

While Algeria has not directly linked the plant shutdown to the price dispute, "there's a remarkable coincidence between those two occurrences," a source close to the situation said.

Kuwait's oil cutback leaves Gulf, the nation's fifth-largest oil company, with 75,000 barrels a day of Kuwaiti oil. A barrel contains 42 gallons of oil.

Gulf had been buying 500,000 barrels of Kuwaiti oil a day under its former contract, but had been selling 90 percent of the supply to other companies, spokeswoman Dorothy Brown said.

She said Gulf now expects to keep its entire 75,000 barrels-a-day allotment. Gulf also said it told independent customers overseas, including Korean Oil Corp., it is terminating oil deliveries as a result of the new contract with Kuwait.

Sun making offer for Seagram Co.

By WILLIAM GLASGALL

NEW YORK (AP) — Sun Co. Inc., the nation's 10th-largest oil company, said Monday it was offering $2.3 billion in cash and floating-rate notes for substantially all the U.S. oil and gas properties owned by a division of The Seagram Co. Ltd. of Montreal.

The properties are owned by Texas Pacific Oil Co. Inc., a Dallas-based subsidiary of the world's largest liquor distiller, and are largely in Texas and Oklahoma, said Kurt Van Vladren, Sun's director of corporate public relations.

Seagram said in a statement that it would "consider the offer carefully," and would "consider any other offer received." While "other companies have expressed an interest" in the oil and gas holdings, no other bids have been made, Seagram said.

Van Vladren said the offer, which expires Friday, is a "friendly" one. "We became aware some time ago" that the Texas Pacific properties were for sale, and Seagram "invited us to take a look," he said in a telephone interview from Sun headquarters in Radnor, Pa.

Van Vladren said Sun and Seagram have not agreed on what part of the offer would be in cash and what would be in notes. Floating-rate notes carry interest rates adjusted to money-market conditions.

Texas Pacific has some 3 million acres of unexplored oil and gas properties in the United States, Sun said.

While oil and gas accounted for nearly one-quarter of Seagram's operating profits last year, "the oil business is not Seagram's basic business," said Van Vladren. "We can probably devote more money, people and technology than they have available" to developing Texas Pacific's resources, he said.

In a prepared statement, Theodore Burtis, Sun's chairman and chief executive, said its offer is a "tangible expression" of the company's commitment to develop U.S. energy resources.

Sun said it "contemplates retention" by Seagram of a 25 percent interest in Texas Pacific's producing properties and a 49 percent interest in the company's unexplored acreage "once certain criteria are achieved."

Post says 1977 ruling to benefit Texaco Inc.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texaco Inc. will receive a $373 million windfall as the result of a 1977 ruling by the federal government in which the company agreed to "pay back" a huge amount of natural gas it had diverted from interstate pipelines, the Washington Post says.

The Post, in a story in Monday's editions, said that according to the ruling, Texaco agreed to "pay back" 208 billion cubic feet of gas that it had held back from public lands. The amount would supply 1.7 million homes for a year.

According to unnamed experts quoted by the Post, the extra money will result because Texaco's price that it can charge for the gas is several times higher than the price of natural gas during the diversion period between 1967 and 1977.

The higher price comes as a result of a 1978 law permitting sharp increases in gas prices.

In addition, the Post said, the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission has apparently removed the possibility that Texaco might be criminally prosecuted for the diversion.

Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, chairman of the Senate Antitrust Committee, protested the settlement last week in a letter to FERC Charles B. Curtis.

Metzenbaum said Texaco's "clear violation of the law" didn't lead to the imposition of "any meaningful sanctions" by the FERC. Instead, Metzenbaum said, the FERC is allowing Texaco to "keep hundreds of millions of dollars that belong to the consumer."

RRC shuts down system

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Railroad Commission has ordered Tenaha in East Texas to shut down its municipal natural gas system until the commission decides it is safe enough to resume service.

Hearing Examiner Michael George told the commission Monday the Shelby County town had major gas distribution problems, including a large concentration of gas beneath the Tenaha school.

Large concentrations also were found beneath a gas station and washateria, George said.

He said the gas distribution system was badly deteriorated, the town had inadequate odorization procedures and practices and no maps of the distribution system.

The commission said Tenaha asked the agency on Jan. 24 to assist the town in evaluating its distribution system.

"Hazardous conditions were discovered during the evaluation," the commission said, and the "combination of these hazardous conditions pose an imminent threat to persons and property within the city."

On March 4 the Gas Utilities Division directed Tenaha to shut down the system, but city officials refused to comply with the order. The commission then scheduled a March 20 hearing.

The commission said Mayor George Bowers testified at the hearing that the city had obtained a temporary restraining order blocking the commission's order because city officials felt no hazardous conditions existed.

The commission said Tenaha officials were not able to explain discrepancies in a gas leak study conducted by a firm hired by the city and the commission's study.

"The city has failed to take adequate remedial action," the commission said.

Commissioner Mack Wallace said the commission views the Tenaha situation "with utmost seriousness." The order directs Tenaha to notify all customers of the shutdown.

...May has been designated as Older Texans Month by Gov. William P. Clements Jr.

Texas has "almost two million senior citizens," the Governor said. "We are deeply indebted to this rapidly growing segment of our population for the rich heritage they have created for us."

"In recognition and appreciation of that heritage, it is important that we encourage older Texans to remain active so that Texas can continue to benefit from their experience and wisdom," Clements said.

He urged Texas communities to honor senior citizens during Older Texans Month by "encourage their continued participation in the decision-making process..."

...TOBACCO SMOKERS who really want to "kick the habit" have more than just a prayer to help them cast those cigarettes, cigars and pipes aside forever.

Help for smokers who want to put the puffing-and-hacking habit into their past is coming in the form of a free Stop-Smoking Program beginning at 7 p.m. Friday in the Flame Room of Pioneer Natural Gas Co. Building at 511 W. Missouri Ave.

"There are people out there who want to quit smoking," said Tom Buford, who will be heading up the program, sponsored by the American Cancer Society.

Through "facilitators" such as ex-smoker Buford, the step-by-step program helps the smoker analyze and understand why he started smoking in the first place, why smoking developed into a habit and not an addiction, and then shows him psychological reasons and ways to get un-hooked.

"I tried to quit many times," said Buford, who smoked for years. "It took me a long, long time to do that (getting around to quitting), but when I threw them (cigarettes) down, that was it."

Smokers who wish to sign up for the eight-session program may register at the American Cancer Society office at 601 S. Main St. At the first session, smokers may determine when to meet for subsequent sessions.

Smoking breaks will be offered in each two-hour session. The program is for such smokers as Mary Lou Harvel, who has smoked for 17 of her 31 years and who is signing up for the program.

"I sure need something," said Mrs. Harvel, "because I can't quit by myself. I've tried many years."

AT WIT'S END Everyone Else

By ERMA BOMBECK

All my life I've heard about "Everyone Else's mother." Every time I told my kids they had to have the car home by 11, I was informed, "Everyone Else's mother said they could stay out until 2."

When I stood firm that they could not have a phone of their own or a separate listing, they grumbled, "Everyone Else's mother lets them have their own phone."

No bathing suit was too revealing for Everyone Else's mother to put her stamp of approval on. No allowance was too generous for her to shell out. She was the Good Queen of children everywhere.

My friends and I used to talk about this mother a lot. Was she a myth created in the minds of children who wanted to be free from parental decrees, or did she really exist?

All I really knew was that she was always with us... following us around from city to city, school to school, year in and year out.

You cannot imagine my surprise recently when I met Everyone Else face to face. She called herself Jan, but I knew from the moment she opened her mouth she was "Everyone Else" with the famous mother.

From the moment she was born she got to do whatever she wanted to do. She went to bed when she felt like it, and got up the same way. If she craved jelly beans and coffee for breakfast, she got it. No one nagged her to shut the door, sit up straight, clear the table, or make her own bed. She could drink out of everyone's glass at parties... if she wanted to. She drank milk out of the carton and no one yelled at her. She was rude to people and never had to apologize. She made mistakes and never had to be accountable for them.

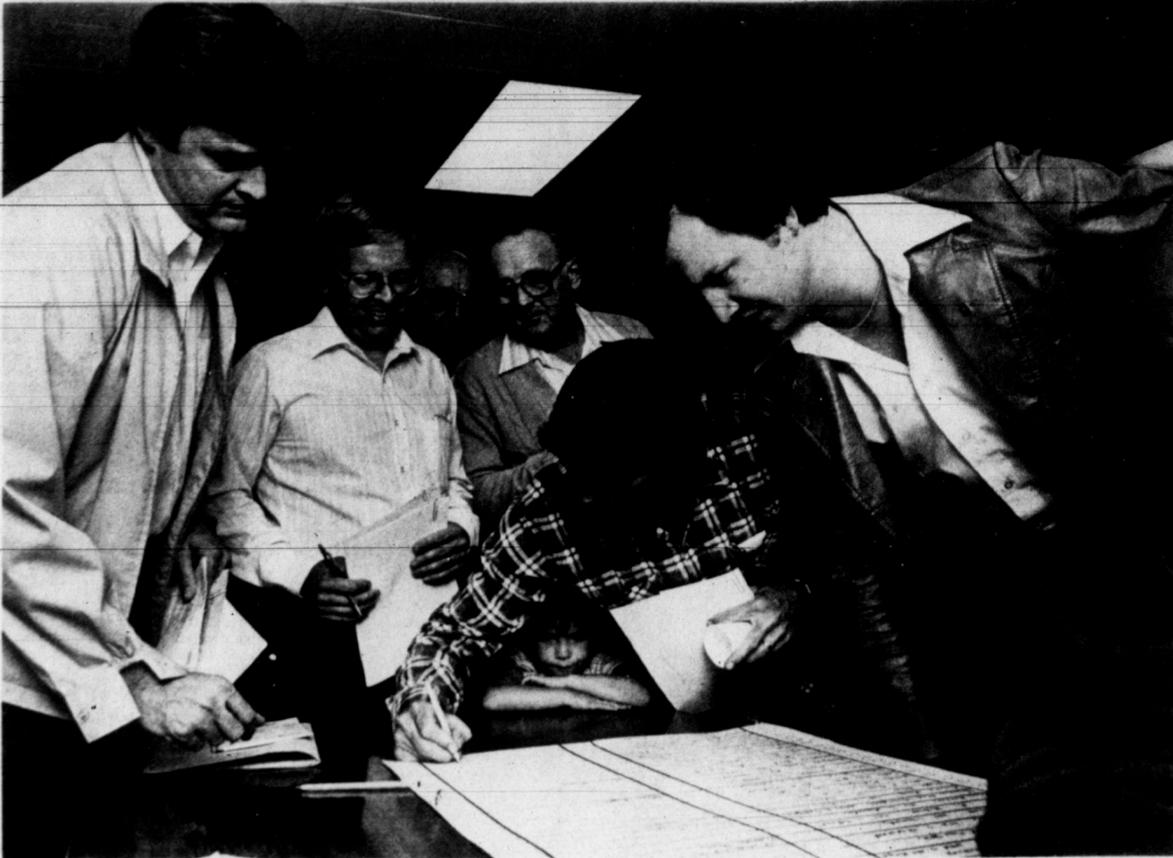

She picked her own clothes, her own schools, her own friends. She was the envy of all her contemporaries. Finally, I could stand it no longer. "Jan, for years I've heard about your mother. Somehow, she's the perfection that none of us has been able to touch. I would love to meet her."

"Everyone Else" just looked at me and slowly repeated the word, "love." You'd have thought it was the first time she had ever heard it.

Pam Culbert of Midland will speak on the role of the parent as a teacher in the home tonight at 7:30 at the Boy Scouts of America Building, 111 N. D St. This meeting is in conjunction with the Week of the Young Child held through Saturday in Midland. All interested parents are invited to attend.

DEAR ABBY

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Ours is a sticky family problem. Grandma loves to knit, and she gives her handiwork to members of the family for Christmas. She never asks anyone's size—she guesses. And Abby, some of her creations are unreal! She'll start knitting a sweater, and if she runs out of yarn, she finishes it with another color.

She made one nephew who loves to ski a scarf about five yards long. ("Just keep wrapping it around your neck," she told him.) The colors she puts together are atrocious and the styles are from 30 years ago. But her knitting is flawless; it's a pity nobody can wear what she knits.

We don't want to hurt her feelings, but we don't know what to say when she asks why none of us ever wears one of her presents. Any suggestions? Grandma is already knitting our gifts for next Christmas, and if that orange and purple sweater she's making is for ME, I'm in trouble. — LOVES GRANDMA.

DEAR LOVES: The solution is so obvious, I'm amazed you didn't think of it yourself. Anyone whose knitting is "flawless" can make things people can wear. The family should provide Grandma with yarn and patterns. (Obviously she can use them.) She will appreciate the guidance, and in return "the family" will receive wearable gifts they can enjoy. (Problems? You'll feel all right if you get them off care of this newspaper.

Ma Bell gets OK for data service

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission, unlocking a door to the computer age, is restructuring the telecommunications industry to give the telephone company new freedom to offer data processing and other computer services.

While freeing the telephone company to get into the business of marketing computers, the FCC ruling would require it to set up subsidiaries to handle sales and leasing of equipment ranging from conventional home telephone sets to advanced data terminals.

The net effect would be separate bills for the average phone user: one for use of the line coming to his home and another for the equipment, however sophisticated.

The broad-ranging decision takes into account rapidly emerging technology that allows for what the FCC calls "enhanced" telecommunications. This service covers instances where the information being transmitted is changed in some fashion, such as when one computer "talks" to a different type of computer. The "enhanced" service would not be regulated.

That also would cover expanded use in the future of more sophisticated equipment such as the so-called "smart" telephone, which can dial a number on its own, complete a coast-to-coast call almost instantly or screen out unwanted callers.

Basic telephone service for communications between people will still be regulated.

The ruling, on a 5-2 vote Monday, would completely deregulate the telephone equipment market, effective March 1, 1982, and require the nation's largest telephone companies — American Telephone & Telegraph and General Telephone & Electronics — to compete with independent manufacturers in offering equipment to the public.

To spur that competition, the agency adopted rules that will allow customers to know for the first time exactly how much it costs to lease a phone and help them decide whether they want to buy one, instead.

The new computer service means AT&T will be able to compete for the first time with such firms as IBM in offering data processing services over the telephone. A 1956 federal court consent decree limited Bell to computer technology directly related to telephone communication.

Now the Bell System may be able to offer in the 1980s such items as home and office computers, computerized school instruction, "teleconferencing," remote-meter reading and control of lighting, heating, cooling and other services.

Such private companies as IBM and Xerox Corp. would be able to offer their own versions of high-speed data transmission systems and various services to connect computers.

The most immediate effect will be on businesses, educational institutions and government agencies that rely on high-speed exchanges of information between computers, data processing power and information retrieval systems.

"Today we have removed the barricades from the door to the Information Age," said FCC Chairman Charles D. Ferris. "Government will no longer be a barrier that prevents or delays the introduction of innovations in technology."

The FCC said the separate, financially independent subsidiaries are intended to prevent AT&T and GTE from using money from regulated telephone rates to subsidize the cost of unregulated products and services.

That means Americans no longer will be able to lease their phones directly from their telephone companies.

Although there are more than 1,600 telephone companies in the United States, more than 80 percent of the nation's phones are served by AT&T and its Bell System operating companies. Because Bell offers direct service and maintenance, most customers don't exercise their option to buy equipment from an independent manufacturer and receive credit on their monthly bill from Bell.

Under the new rules, the Bell operating companies will be able to install phone lines and jacks, and the consumer then will get his receiver either from the new Bell subsidiary or from an independent manufacturer.

The commission also voted to stop approving telephone company rates that combine both equipment and service fees into one charge.

High-speed train service may be tested on highways

COMMERCE, Texas (AP) — Japanese railroad officials would like to send passenger trains speeding down Interstate 45 between Dallas and Houston at 300 mph, a spokesman said.

Arthur B. Shenefelt, a Japanese National Railway consultant, said the Japanese rail service would like to test the high-speed train service in Texas, if cooperation with state and federal agencies could be worked out.

Shenefelt told the 6th Annual Sam Rayburn Symposium that the I-45 right-of-way from Dallas to Houston would make a good site for testing the trains, which he said are in the experimental stage.

He said the Japanese expect to have the trains in full passenger operation by 1987.

Earlier in the symposium, Dr. B.H. Cooper Jr. of the University of Texas Center for Energy Studies proposed converting railroads from diesel fuel to electricity for inter-city freight transportation in Texas.

"The United States is facing an increasingly serious problem of decreasing availability and increasing costs of energy supplies," said Dr. B.H. Cooper Jr. of the University of Texas Center for Energy Studies in Austin.

"The problem is particularly serious for petroleum, where the United States is importing from 8 to 8.5 million barrels per day," he said.

"The oil import level is expected to drastically increase in the future in the absence of stringent conservation measures and by development of alternative energy supplies," Cooper said.

FBI will assure diplomats leave

WASHINGTON (AP) - FBI agents kept watch today over Iranian diplomats in the United States to make sure they obey President Carter's order to leave the country by midnight tonight. The State Department placed precise limits on travel for the 35 diplomats affected by Monday's expulsion order, allowing them to travel no more than two miles from home or work. The around-the-clock surveillance was aimed at avoiding a repetition of the episode last December when 108 Iranian diplomats disappeared after Carter told Iran to reduce its ranks in the United States. "We have taken precautions to take care of that problem" this time, said Justice Department spokesman John Russell.

Iranian students in U.S. critical of sanctions

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Iranian students have reacted critically to President Carter's latest sanctions against Iran, charging that his actions largely were motivated by domestic politics.

"When he lost the New York primary, he started pulling legs," said Mohammed Tashooji, a 25-year-old engineering student at the University of Southern California. "So before the Wisconsin primary, he said he'd take 'tough action.' It paid off; he won. "Now with 20 percent inflation, he knows the average American is waking up," Tashooji said. "He needs something to divert their attention."

The reaction of Mansour Modarres, a UCLA engineering student, was typical: "Does Carter have a primary election tomorrow?" On Monday, Carter broke diplomatic relations with Iran, ordered Iranian diplomats to leave the United States, cut off virtually all trade and warned that "other actions may be necessary" if the 50 Americans who have been held hostage in Tehran since Nov. 4 are not promptly released.

Additionally, Carter ordered an inventory of outstanding claims of Americans against the government of Iran with the aim of seizing assets of the Iranian government in the United States to finance settlement of claims.

Most of the Iranian students in Southern California, where well over a quarter of the more than 50,000 Iranian students in the United States go to school, were suspicious about the timing of the newest sanctions but expressed little fear that the escalation would affect their personal safety.

"We're not scared," said Kazem Iptchilar, a 25-year-old engineering student at USC, where more than 900 Iranian students are enrolled. "Sure, maybe a little (frightened) by angry truck driver t; pes, but not on campus."

"Even when (California's Republican Sen. S.I.) Hayakawa wanted to put us all in camps, fine - send us to the Grand Canyon or Yosemite," he joked. "It's the people who want to stay here are the one who are frightened."

Fred Assef, a 29-year-old architecture graduate student at USC, said the sanctions don't scare him. "I feel a little more like a tourist, that's all."

Another USC student, Saman Ahmad, said his only fear was "for his financial safety." "We're being sacrificed," USC graduate student Toraj Ahmadi said. "Yet I've spent a lot of money here for three years and was going to take my Ph.D. But now I don't know what will happen - whether or not I'll be able to get the money to stay."

UCLA engineering graduate student Massoud Abolhoda said he wasn't worried at all. "Big deal. Why should I worry about not staying here?" he said. "The whole earth is not the U.S. After all, we are Iranian. We can go back home."

Wife of hostage plans to sue Iran

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) - The wife of an American hostage in Iran plans to file a $1 billion lawsuit against the Iranian government in federal court this week, her attorney said today.

Angela Belk, wife of hostage William Belk, will sue for damages on behalf of her husband and herself for kidnapping, false imprisonment and mental distress, said her attorney, J. Leeds Barroll.

Iranian military trainees preparing to leave U.S.

By The Associated Press

Iranian military trainees at three Texas Air Force Bases today are packing their bags and preparing to leave the country in the wake of President Carter's diplomatic break with Iran.

"The 97 trainees in Texas - almost half of the 203 in the United States - were notified of their expulsion Monday afternoon.

A statement released from Randolph Air Force Base in San Antonio said the trainees have until Friday to leave the country. The spokesman did not say whether or not the trainees would be allowed to ask for political asylum.

He said all the trainees arrived in the United States before the Shah of Iran was deposed one year ago.

The trainees have been taking only ground school classes since Nov. 23 when they were grounded by the U.S. Air Training Command.

"Following the presidential announcement that we have broken off diplomatic relations with Iran, all Iranian military students engaged in training at Air Force installations were notified that their training is terminated immediately," said the Randolph statement.

"The hostage situation in Iran has made it impossible to continue training at this time. Students have been given until Friday to leave the country," the statement concluded.

Paul Zimmerli at Sheppard Air Force Base in Wichita Falls said arrangements were being made for the 38 Iranians who had been training there. Zimmerli said he was not sure how long the students had been stationed at Sheppard, but most had been studying the ground school training at a "self pace" program.

Harry Carroll, public affairs officer at Laughlin Air Force Base in Del Rio, said all 56 students there had been notified of the termination.

"The way the colonel (wing commander Col. Chris Divich) put it, the hostage situation has made it impossible to continue training at this time," Carroll said.

Bill Tynan, public spokesman at Reese Air Force Base said officials Monday night were working on how to get the three students there out of the country.

"There is a contingency funds for things like this," Tynan said. He said he is not yet sure when the students will leave or where they will go.

The Pentagon spokesman said the other Iranian trainees were located as follows:

Seventy at Columbus Air Force Base, Mississippi; 24 at Mather Air Force Base in California; 11 at Keesler Air Force Base in Mississippi and one Naval trainee at the Whiting, Fla., Naval Air Station.

Scheduled strike hangs over baseball
But season will get underway with two games Wednesday

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

The baseball season opens Wednesday as tradition dictates, in Cincinnati, as more than the usual on-the-field concerns intrude on major league baseball's 112th year.

Hanging over the heads of the 26 major league teams is the worry of a general players' strike called for May 23, a month and a half into the season, unless owners and players can agree to a new basic agreement.

The first game of the season pits Atlanta, which finished last in the National League West with a 66-94 record last season, against the Reds, who won the division with a 96-71 record.

last season after recovering from a lower back strain, will pitch for the Reds against Atlanta Braves knuckleballer Phil Niekro, 21-20. Starting time is 2:30 p.m. EST, and a capacity crowd of 52,392 is expected at Riverfront Stadium.

The other Wednesday opener has the Toronto Blue Jays, baseball's worst team last season with 109 losses, at Seattle under the Kingdome at 10:35 p.m. A pair of right-handers will do the pitching — Dave Lemanczyk, 8-10, for Toronto and Mike Parrott, 14-12, for Seattle — before an estimated opening-night crowd of 20,000.

Most of the other teams begin the season Thursday. In the National League, Chicago is at New York, Pittsburgh plays in St. Louis, Los Angeles is at Houston and San Francisco is at San Diego. The American League has Baltimore at Chicago, Boston at Milwaukee, New York at Texas, Detroit at Kansas City and Minnesota at Oakland.

On Friday, the remaining four teams open their seasons. In the AL, Cleveland is at California, and Philadelphia hosts Montreal in the NL.

Parties to the negotiations resumed talks today with the help of a federal mediator. The Major League Players Association has set midnight, May 22 as a deadline for reaching agreement. If there is no new contract, the players will walk out the next day.

"We don't want to strike, and we don't feel there will be one," said Reds third baseman Ray Knight, the team's player representative. "They set a series of negotiations meetings, and we feel they're going to get together."

Off the field, the hottest issue is compensation for free agents. Owners want a player instead of a draft choice in return for a free agent. Players like things the way they are.

On the field, the main concern could be whether cancellation of 92 exhibition games has allowed players to get fat and lazy.

"If guys can take three or four days off and still perform, that's up to them," said Boston Red Sox Manager Don Zimmer. Zimmer will start right-hander Dennis Eckersley, 17-10 last season, against Milwaukee on opening day. Because of the strike, Eckersley threw only 18 innings in four appearances in spring training.

"My legs are in good shape, my arm is OK, but my mind is not on top of the game," Eckersley said. "One game, though, can take care of the mind."

M-Cubbies endure pitching scramble

By TED BATTLES
Sports Editor

MESA, Ariz. — Manager Randy Hundley was a day away from breaking camp and still wasn't certain of the pitching staff that would accompany him to Midland for the Texas League opener against San Antonio Thursday night at Cubs Stadium.

Going into the final few days of camp, Wichita's Aeros of the American Association had a 14-man pitching staff and would trim to nine or 10 before departing. But Chicago Cubs Farm Director C.V. Davis said, "We are waiting for Chicago to decide what it is going to do before we begin shuffling pitchers between the AAA and AA clubs. By waiting we can do it all at once and avoid moving people back and forth."

Wichita also is carrying five outfielders and will trim to four, which means Midland could pick up a fly-chaser before leaving here.

HUNDLEY HAS BEEN working with a young staff that shows lots of promise here, but most of the pitchers have only Class A experience. So a trim down by Wichita means Midland could pick up some of the hurlers who worked in the Texas League last year.

Among 1979 Cubs pitchers on the Aeros' roster are Mike Allen, 4-3; Bill Earley, 13-6; Jack Ledbetter, 4-6; Henry Mack, 10-4; Mark Parker, 11-8; Herman Segelke, 13-8; and Lee Smith, 9-5.

Parker pitched for Wichita against Seattle's triple A club and looked good as the Aeros got a three-run triple from Steve Macko and three-run homer from Mike Turgeon to win.

"Parker has a slider now and a better curve," said Davis. "And he should be a better pitcher."

SMITH HAS BEEN working in relief roles this spring and has been looking good while Earley, most effective as a starter for Midland, has been doing double duty as a starter and out of the bullpen.

Jon Perlman, who joined Midland at mid-season out of Baylor, is the lone pitcher on the Midland roster with AA experience. However, there are several who appear capable of making the jump from A ball, including Steve Viskas, 14-6 at Quad City; Mike Wright, 8-7 at Quad City; Tom Spino, 9-9 at Quad City; and Robert Maddon, 8-6, also Quad City.

Randy Clark was invited to spring camp with Chicago this spring after compiling a 16-5 record with a 2.53 ERA at Quad City last year, but suffered an injury, never threw a ball and it's still questionable as to when he'll pitch again.

BRUINS' BREWIN'S — The Cubs arrive in Midland at 8:04 p.m. today and will hold a pre-season workout at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday at Cubs Stadium. GM Bill Rigney, Jr., will announce the winner of the Name-The-Mascot contest. The mascot is a big blue bear in western garb who will appear at most Midland home games and other ballclub functions. The promotion is a joint venture of the Cubs and First National Bank. The Cubs open against the San Antonio Dodgers, with whom they battled for the West Division pennant last year. The Dodgers won the first half by .002 percentage points and Midland won the second half with San Antonio winning the playoff before bowing to Arkansas in the championship series.

Players, owners still separated by battle lines
as Miller complains about a lull in negotiations

NEW YORK (AP) — Marvin Miller hasn't been optimistic so far over the baseball contract talks. "We haven't discussed anything substantive since I don't know when," says the executive director of the Major League Players Association.

Miller hoped things were better today as he met with club owners negotiators and a federal mediator in the talks over a new basic agreement.

"The mediator is still in the picture," said Miller about Kenneth Moffett, who joined the talks two sessions ago in Palm Springs, Calif. "These meetings are under the auspices of the Federal Mediation Service. Last week, both parties (owners and players) agreed to more meetings — and that's where we stand."

Talks were recessed last Thursday when negotiators agreed to a timetable for seven more meetings over the next three weeks. The first two of the meetings were scheduled for today and Thursday.

The players and owners still present hard-line positions on several issues, including the highly-controversial area of free agent compensation. Management, represented by the Major League Player Relations Committee, wants a player rather than a draft choice as compensation for a team which loses a player as a free agent. Players have resisted the proposal, saying it would restrict their movement from one team to another and reduce the value of the free agent marketplace.

"There's a job to be done," said Miller. "The players association is willing and able to complete the job. We have to see whether the owners are in a similar frame of mind."

Moffett felt the tone of the last meeting was positive. He called the session "fruitful" because both sides agreed to keep talking for at least seven times more.

After weeks of bitter disagreements, the players association on April 1 struck the remaining 92 exhibition games. The association decided that the players would begin the season on schedule Wednesday, but set a midnight deadline on May 22 to negotiate a new agreement. If that agreement is not reached, then a strike would begin with games of May 23, the players association said.

Miller and attorney Don Fehr have been representing the players, while the management side has included Ray Grebey of the Player Relations Committee and league presidents Lee MacPhail of the American League and Chub Feeney of the National

Black Hawks want to snap postseason nosedive

By The Associated Press

April has been a predictable month for the Chicago Black Hawks the last four years. They have made the National Hockey League playoffs each season, only to bow out in the minimum number of games.

They have lost their last 16 postseason contests, but this season, a different atmosphere resides in the Chicago clubhouse.

"We've got the better team," said right wing Grant Mulvey as the Black Hawks prepared to host the St. Louis Blues Tuesday night in the opener of their best-of-five preliminary round playoff series. "I've got to think that way."

"They've got a lot of good forwards," added Chicago defenseman Greg Fox, "but their defense isn't as good as ours."

But the Blues, who improved 32 points over last season — the biggest upswing in a one-season span of any NHL club ever — defeated the Black Hawks twice in the last five days of the season. St. Louis goalie Mike Liut beat Chicago 5-4 in the season finale Sunday and ended up with the most victories (32 of the 34 games the Blues won) in the league —

one more than Black Hawks net-minder Tony Esposito.

The St. Louis-Chicago clash is one of eight series that will get underway. In the others, Edmonton is at Philadelphia, Vancouver is at Buffalo, Hartford is at Montreal, Pittsburgh is at Boston, Los Angeles visits the New York Islanders, Toronto is at Minnesota, and the New York Rangers host the Atlanta Flames.

Henry Aaron attacked, slurred

MANGONIA PARK, Fla. (AP) — A 61-year-old man has been charged with pulling a gun on home run king Hank Aaron and making a "racial slur," police said Monday night.

Howard Foster Hunt of near-by West Palm Beach was charged with aggravated assault following the Monday evening incident, Mangonia Park Police Chief Jack Welsh said. Hunt was released from the Palm Beach County Jail after posting $1,000 bond. Aaron, now minor league director for the Atlanta Braves, was seated at a restaurant with Pedro Gonzalez, manager of the Bradenton Braves of the Gulf Coast rookie league.

The incident began, Welsh said, when Hunt tripped near Aaron's table on his way to the restroom.

The Aaron party "didn't say a thing," Welsh said, but Hunt made "racial slurs."

The man pulled out a loaded Colt .45-caliber revolver, pointed it at Aaron and Gonzalez and then left the restaurant, the police chief said. He said the pair got the license plate number from Hunt's car.

FBI will assure diplomats leave

WASHINGTON (AP) — FBI agents kept watch today over Iranian diplomats in the United States to make sure they obey President Carter's order to leave the country by midnight tonight.

The State Department placed precise limits on travel for the 35 diplomats affected by Monday's expulsion order, allowing them to travel no more than two miles from home or work.

The around-the-clock surveillance was aimed at avoiding a repetition of the episode last December when 108 Iranian diplomats disappeared after Carter told Iran to reduce its ranks in the United States.

"We have taken precautions to take care of that problem" this time, said Justice Department spokesman John Ruskell.

Carter broke diplomatic relations with Iran on Monday and ordered Iran's diplomats to leave the country in retaliation for 53 Americans held hostage in Tehran since Nov. 4.

Officials said 35 diplomats at the Iranian Embassy in Washington and consulates in Chicago, New York, San Francisco and Houston, as well as their families and staffs, were affected by the eviction notice. The embassy and the consulates also remained under guard after being shut down Monday.

Iranian students in U.S. critical of sanctions

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Iranian students have reacted critically to President Carter's latest sanctions against Iran, charging that his actions largely were motivated by domestic politics.

"When he lost the New York primary, he started pulling legs," said Mohammed Tashooji, a 25-year-old engineering student at the University of Southern California. "So before the Wisconsin primary, he said he'd take 'tough action.' It paid off; he won.

"Now with 20 percent inflation, he knows the average American is waking up," Tashooji said. "He needs something to divert their attention."

The reaction of Mansour Modarres, a UCLA engineering student, was typical: "Does Carter have a primary election tomorrow?"

On Monday, Carter broke diplomatic relations with Iran, ordered Iranian diplomats to leave the United States, cut off virtually all trade and warned that "other actions may be necessary" if the 50 Americans who have been held hostage in Tehran since Nov. 4 are not promptly released.

Additionally, Carter ordered an inventory of outstanding claims of Americans against the government of Iran with the aim of seizing assets of the Iranian government in the United States to finance settlement of claims.

Most of the Iranian students in Southern California, where well over a quarter of the more than 50,000 Iranian students in the United States go to school, were suspicious about the timing of the newest sanctions but expressed little fear that the escalation would affect their personal safety.

"We're not scared," said Kazem Iptchilar, a 25-year-old engineering student at USC, where more than 900 Iranian students are enrolled. "Sure, maybe a little (frightened) by angry truck driver t; pes, but not on campus.

"Even when (California's Republican Sen. S.I.) Hayakawa wanted to put us all in camps, fine — send us to the Grand Canyon or Yosemite," he joked. "It's the people who want to stay here are the one who are frightened."

Fred Assef, a 29-year-old architecture graduate student at USC, said the sanctions don't scare him. "I feel a little more like a tourist, that's all."

Another USC student, Saman Ahmad, said his only fear was "for his financial safety."

"We're being sacrificed," USC graduate student Toraj Ahmadi said. "Yet I've spent a lot of money here for three years and was going to take my Ph.D. But now I don't know what will happen — whether or not I'll be able to get the money to stay."

UCLA engineering graduate student Massoud Abolhoda said he wasn't worried at all.

"Big deal. Why should I worry about not staying here?" he said. "The whole earth is not the U.S. After all, we are Iranian. We can go back home."

Wife of hostage plans to sue Iran

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — The wife of an American hostage in Iran plans to file a $1 billion lawsuit against the Iranian government in federal court this week, her attorney said today.

Angela Belk, wife of hostage William Belk, will sue for damages on behalf of her husband and herself for kidnapping, false imprisonment and mental distress, said her attorney, J. Leeds Barroll.

Iranian military trainees preparing to leave U.S.

By The Associated Press

Iranian military trainees at three Texas Air Force Bases today are packing their bags and preparing to leave the country in the wake of President Carter's diplomatic break with Iran.

The 97 trainees in Texas — almost half of the 203 in the United States — were notified of their expulsion Monday afternoon.

A statement released from Randolph Air Force Base in San Antonio said the trainees have until Friday to leave the country. The spokesman did not say whether or not the trainees would be allowed to ask for political asylum.

He said all the trainees arrived in the United States before the Shah of Iran was deposed one year ago.

The trainees have been taking only ground school classes since Nov. 23 when they were grounded by the U.S. Air Training Command.

"Following the presidential announcement that we have broken off diplomatic relations with Iran, all Iranian military students engaged in training at Air Force installations were notified that their training is terminated immediately," Bill Tynan, public spokesman at Reese Air Force Base said officials Monday night were working on how to get the three students there out of the country.

"There is a contingency funds for things like this," Tynan said. He said he is not yet sure when the students will leave or where they will go.

The Pentagon spokesman said the other Iranian trainees were located as follows:

Seventy at Columbus Air Force Base, Mississippi; 24 at Mather Air Force Base in California; 11 at Keester Air Force Base in Mississippi and one Naval trainee at the Whiting, Fla., Naval Air Station.

Harry Carroll, public affairs officer at Laughlin Air Force Base in Del Rio, said all 56 students there had been notified of the termination.

"The way the colonel (wing commander Col. Chris Divich) put it, the hostage situation has made it impossible to continue training at this time," Carroll said.

"My legs are in good shape, my arm is OK, but my mind is not on top of the game," Eckersley said. "One game, though, can take care of the mind."

M-Cubbies endure pitching scramble

By TED BATTLES
Sports Editor

MESA, Ariz.— Manager Randy Hundley was a day away from breaking camp and still wasn't certain of the pitching staff that would accompany him to Midland for the Texas League opener against San Antonio Thursday night at Cubs Stadium.

Going into the final few days of camp, Wichita's Aeros of the American Association had a 14-man pitching staff and would trim to nine or 10 before departing. But Chicago Cubs Farm Director C.V. Davis said, "We are waiting for Chicago to decide what it is going to do before we begin shuffling pitchers between the AAA and AA clubs. By waiting we can do it all at once and avoid moving people back and forth."

Wichita also is carrying five outfielders and will trim to four, which means Midland could pick up a fly-chaser before leaving here.

HUNDLEY HAS BEEN working with a young staff that shows lots of promise here, but most of the pitchers have only Class A experience. So a trim-down by Wichita means Midland could pick up some of the hurlers who worked in the Texas League last year.

Among 1979 Cubs pitchers on the Aeros' roster are Mike Allen, 4-3; Bill Earley, 13-6; Jack Ledbetter, 4-6; Henry Mack, 10-4; Mark Parker, 11-8; Herman Segelke, 13-8; and Lee Smith, 9-5.

Parker pitched for Wichita against Seattle's triple A club and looked good as the Aeros got a three-run triple from Steve Macko and three-run homer from Mike Turgeon to win.

"Parker has a slider now and a better curve," said Davis. "And he should be a better pitcher."

SMITH HAS BEEN working in relief roles this spring and has been looking good while Earley, most effective as a starter for Midland, has been doing double duty as a starter and out of the bullpen.

Jon Perlman, who joined Midland at mid-season out of Baylor, is the lone pitcher on the Midland roster with AA experience. However, there are several who appear capable of making the jump from A ball, including Steve Viskas, 14-6 at Quad City; Mike Wright, 8-7 at Quad City; Tom Spino, 9-9 at Quad City; and Robert Madden, 8-6, also Quad City.

Randy Clark was invited to spring camp with Chicago this spring after compiling a 16-5 record with a 2.53 ERA at Quad City last year, but suffered an injury, never threw a ball and it's still questionable as to when he'll pitch again.

BRUINS BREWIN' — The Cubs arrive in Midland at 8:04 p.m. today and will hold a pre-season workout at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday at Cubs Stadium. GM Bill Rigney, Jr., will announce the winner of the Name-The-Mascot contest. The mascot is a big, blue bear in western garb who will appear at most Midland home games and other ballclub functions. The promotion is a joint venture of the Cubs and First National Bank... The Cubs open against the San Antonio Dodgers, with whom they battled for the West Division pennant last year. The Dodgers won the first half by .002 percentage points and Midland won the second half with San Antonio winning the playoff before bowing to Arkansas in the championship series...

Players, owners still separated by battle lines

as Miller complains about a lull in negotiations

NEW YORK (AP) — Marvin Miller hasn't been optimistic so far over the baseball contract talks. "We haven't discussed anything substantive since I don't know when," says the executive director of the Major League Players Association.

Miller hoped things were better today as he met with club owners negotiators and a federal mediator in the talks over a new basic agreement. "They hope to avert a general players' strike set for May 23."

"The mediator is still in the picture," said Miller about Kenneth Moffett, who joined the talks two sessions ago in Palm Springs, Calif. "These meetings are under the auspices of the Federal Mediation Service. Last week, both parties (owners and players) agreed to more meetings — and that's where we stand."

Talks were recessed last Thursday when negotiators agreed to a timetable for seven more meetings over the next three weeks. The first two of the meetings were scheduled for today and Thursday.

The players and owners still present hard-line positions on several issues, including the highly-controversial area of free agent compensation.

Management, represented by the Major League Player Relations Committee, wants a player rather than a draft choice as compensation for a team which loses a player as a free agent. Players have resisted the proposal, saying it would restrict their movement from one team to another and reduce the value of the free agent marketplace.

"There's a job to be done," said Miller. "The players association is willing and able to complete the job. We have to see whether the owners are in a similar frame of mind."

Moffett felt the tone of the last meeting was positive. He called the session "fruitful" because both sides agreed to keep talking for at least seven times more.

After weeks of bitter disagreements, the players association on April 1 struck the remaining 92 exhibition games. The association decided that the players would begin the season on schedule Wednesday, but set a midnight deadline on May 22 to negotiate a new agreement. If that agreement is not reached, then a strike would begin with games of May 23, the players association said.

Miller and attorney Don Fehr have been representing the players, while the management side has included Ray Grebey of the Player Relations Committee and league presidents Lee MacPhail of the American League and Chub Feeney of the National

Is Nicklaus ready for third life?

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

Jack Nicklaus already has experienced two lives as a professional golfer. Is he ready to go for a third?

Perhaps. That certainly is the expectation of many of the more knowledgeable Bear-watchers and the fervent hope of legions of others as the game's international elite prepare to tee it up Thursday in the 44th Masters.

A healthy and eager Nicklaus adds vibrancy and excitement to a sagging sport.

BIG JACK will be shooting for his sixth Masters title — an incredible thought — at an age when golfers tend to tremble at the sight of a 6-foot downhill putt and athletes in more strenuous sports get their exercise hiking to the mail box to retrieve their pension checks.

Jack is 40. For 10 years now, he has been bombarded with questions such as "Do you think you have reached your peak?" "When do you think you will hang it up?" "Which of the new young lions on the tour do you pick as your

Jack Nicklaus, now 40, will be shooting for his sixth Master's title when play begins Thursday in Augusta, Ga. Nicklaus, shown in Master's play in 1963, left, 1970, center, and 1978, has not won a tournament since 1978. (AP Laserphoto) successor?" Nicklaus has been a patient man. He doesn't jar easily.

BUT HE STILL is the king, winner of more major championships and more money than any golfer who ever lived, and he insists he isn't ready to abdicate just yet — not by a long shot.

The "Golden Bear," stung by the ignominy of failing to win a tour event last year for the first time since he turned professional 20 years ago, acknowledged that had allowed himself to lapse into some bad swinging habits. He sought out his old teacher, Jack Grout and spent much of the early winter and spring rediscovering his truant groove.

He worked for hours on the practice tee. He drove, he pitched, he chipped — hundreds of balls — until finally he felt his old confidence oozing from his arches — through his massive legs and hips, right up to the top of his disheveled blond head. "It was like a kid with a new toy," he told his friend, Dick Taylor of Golf World.

NICKLAUS WAS still experimenting when he played the Crosby and Los Angeles Open on the West Coast and he was just getting it together when he shifted to the Florida circuit, coming within a hair's breadth of breaking his victory famine in the Doral.

He played superbly at Miami, like the Nicklaus of old, but it wasn't his destiny. A tough, unyielding Ray Floyd beat him on the second playoff hole by chipping in from somewhere north of Duluth, Minn.

They have been writing Nicklaus' golfing obituary for at least 15 years, predicting he would burn himself out before he was 30. "You can fire yourself only so many times," Sam Snead once said. "Jack has been winning since he was 14." A hefty kid of 220 pounds with a crewcut hair style, thick legs, unusually small hands, plus heel and back ailments, Jack faced what critics called "six obstacles to greatness."

Big Jack, in his rookie year as a pro, proceeded to beat the revered Arnold Palmer in a playoff for the U.S. Open title. Before he was 30, he already was challenging Bob Jones' record of 13 major golf crowns, amateur and pro.

IN THE LATE 60s, Jack began questioning his own dedication and incentives. He won no major events in 1968, 1969 and 1970. Flying back from the Ryder Cup matches in England in 1969, he vowed to his wife, Barbara, that he would lose weight. He went on a rigid diet. He took on the image of a Hollywood matinee idol. Then in 1970 his father, Charles, a faithful booster, died.

It was a new Nicklaus that tackled the decade of the 70s — thinner, more relaxed, more resolute. Titles cascaded. He boosted his cache of major crowns to 17, his tour victories to 66, total world conquests to 84, collecting more than $3.4 million in prize money.

Whereas Bob Jones had amassed all his records by the time he was 28 and Ben Hogan did not win his first Open until he was in his mid-30s, Nicklaus has swept through both of those eras, enjoying two lives.

And he's still going strong. Don't count him out.

Los Angeles can't wait to begin NBA playoff action

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

After nine days on the outside looking in, the Los Angeles Lakers are getting a little itchy for their first taste of playoff action.

"We're anxious to play," said Coach Paul Westhead, whose Lakers will host the Phoenix Suns tonight in the opener of their best-of-seven series. "It's been a long wait. I'm excited and ready to get in there and get it going."

While the Suns were beating the Kansas City Kings in a three-game mini-series, the Lakers have been off since March 30. They earned a bye through the first round of the National Basketball Association playoffs by winning the Pacific Division title during the regular season with a 60-22 record. Phoenix came in third, behind Los Angeles and Seattle, at 55-27.

"The rest is advantageous to us," said Lakers center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, who missed three practices last week because of severe headaches but worked out with the team Monday and looked fine. "It gives us time to heal up and focus. I know we are in good condition emotionally and physically."

Westhead has been scrimmaging his team under game conditions and feels the Lakers are "ready to play," but concedes, "Each day off hurts. Once we get a game under our belts, we'll be okay."

According to the form charts, the Lakers are lucky that first game is at home. Los Angeles compiled a 37-4 record at the Forum during the regular season, equalling the best home mark ever posted in the NBA. And in the last six years, Los Angeles holds a 17-2 edge over Phoenix on its home floor.

The Suns, however, hold an 18-1 mark over Los Angeles in games played in Phoenix during that span. Even though the Lakers have the home-court advantage in the series, Westhead is anxious for them to take at least one game at Phoenix.

"As a potential challenger to Seattle's NBA title, it is necessary to show you can win on the road in the playoffs," he said. "I think we can. So long as the same team shows up, we'll be all right."

That team, led Jabbar and guards Norm Nixon and rookie Earvin "Magic" Johnson, finished the regular season with a rush, winning 21 of its final 26 games. Whether that momentum will hold up through the nine days off remains to be seen.

The Milwaukee Bucks find themselves in the same situation as they head into tonight's opening game at Seattle.

Milwaukee was the second hottest team at the close of the regular season, winning 20 of its last 26 games since acquiring center Bob Lanier from Detroit at the All-Star break. But the Bucks have been sitting for nine days, having won the Midwest Division title and earning a first-round bye. Seattle, meanwhile, opened defense of its crown by beating Portland in a three-game series.

"Maybe we won't be favored, but with the big man we can win it," said Milwaukee guard Quinn Buckner, referring to Lanier, who will do battle with Seattle's Jack Sikma in the pivot.

"Lanier gives them a whole new dimension," said Seattle Coach Lenny Wilkens. "He's a smart player and a much better defensive player than people give him credit for."

The first two games of the series, tonight and Wednesday night, as well as the seventh game if needed, will be played at the 14,098-capacity Coliseum instead of the mammoth Kingdome, where the Sonics have drawn crowds in excess of 35,000 and where they established an NBA attendance record this season with an average of 21,725. That's because the baseball Mariners have first rights to use of the Kingdome.

Henry Aaron attacked, slurred

MANGONIA PARK, Fla. (AP) — A 61-year-old man has been charged with pulling a gun on home run king Hank Aaron and making a "racial slur," police said Monday night.

Howard Foster Hunt of nearby West Palm Beach was charged with aggravated assault following the Monday evening incident, Mangonia Park Police Chief Jack Welsh said.

Hunt was released from the Palm Beach County Jail after posting $1,000 bond.

Aaron, now minor league director for the Atlanta Braves, was seated at a restaurant with Pedro Gonzalez, manager of the Bradenton Braves of the Gulf Coast rookie league.

The incident began, Welsh said, when Hunt tripped near Aaron's table on his way to the restroom.

The Aaron party "didn't say a thing," Welsh said, but Hunt made "racial slurs."

The man pulled out a loaded Colt .45-caliber revolver, pointed it at Aaron and Gonzalez and then left the restaurant, the police chief said. He said the pair got the license plate number from Hunt's car.

Black Hawks want to snap postseason nosedive

By The Associated Press

April has been a predictable month for the Chicago Black Hawks the last four years. They have made the National Hockey League playoffs each season, only to bow out in the minimum number of games.

They have lost their last 16 postseason contests, but this season, a different atmosphere resides in the Chicago clubhouse.

"We've got the better team," said right wing Grant Mulvey as the Black Hawks prepared to host the St. Louis Blues Tuesday night in the opener of their best-of-five preliminary round playoff series. "I've got to think that way."

"They've got a lot of good forwards," added Chicago defenseman Greg Fox, "but their defense

isn't as good as ours."

But the Blues, who improved 32 points over last season — the biggest upswing in a one-season span of any NHL club ever — defeated the Black Hawks twice in the last five days of the season. St. Louis goalie Mike Liut beat Chicago 5-4 in the season finale Sunday and ended up with the most victories (32 of the 34 games the Blues won) in the league —

one more than Black Hawks net-minder Tony Esposito.

The St. Louis-Chicago clash is one of eight series that will get underway. In the others, Edmonton is at Philadelphia, Vancouver is at Buffalo, Hartford is at Montreal, Pittsburgh is at Boston, Los Angeles visits the New York Islanders, Toronto is at Minnesota, and the New York Rangers host the Atlanta Flames.

White says Cowboys not favorites in NFC East

DALLAS (AP)—Danny White says the Dallas Cowboys shouldn't be favored to win the National Conference Eastern Division championship again this year, but adds "I'll be disappointed if we don't."

White, who is expected to replace the retired Roger Staubach as the Cowboys' No. 1 quarterback, said "I have one weakness—I'm a bad loser. I'm just like Roger in that regard. I have a lot of pride and I hope to prove it over the next 10 years."

"I could see where we might not be favored because of the retirements, the changes and the injuries. But I think we'll surprise a lot of people. I think things have been blown out of proportion about all of our troubles."

He said he thought he could handle the pressure of replacing a National Football League legend.

"You have to expect to be criticized in this business but I'm not going to worry about it unless it comes from the coaches or my teammates," said White. "I'm going to do things my own natural way. If that's not good enough, I'm not going to apologize."

White said he would not mind a dual role of punting and quarterbacking. "I'd be glad to keep on doing it," said White who hasn't heard from Coach Tom Landry on the punting matter.

White has been the No. 2 Cowboy quarterback behind Staubach, and also has been one of the top punters in the National Football League, averaging some 40 yards per punt over the past four years.

"I've heard the talk about a punter being susceptible to injury but I can't imagine it being more dangerous than dropping back to pass 30 times a game," said White. "Quarterbacking and punting comes natural to me."

"Actually, I punt better when I'm in the game all the time. I'm loose and I'm warm. Sometimes I have added adrenaline if things don't go well and take it out on the ball."

White punted and quarterbacked at Arizona State and did the same thing for Memphis in the defunct World Football League.

"I've done both all my life and it sure would save us a spot on the roster," said White.

Another potential change in 1980 involves assistant Coach Danny Reeves' larger role on offense.

"Coach Reeves is the most underrated member of our organization," said White. "He has a lot of knowledge and I'm real anxious to work with him. He'll be calling the plays in the exhibition games for sure but I'm not certain right now whether he will be on the sidelines. Nothing is set in concrete right now although Coach Landry will be working more with the defense."

White said he would like to call his own plays but added "I'm not arguing with success."

White said one thing was certain, the Cowboys would be running the ball more.

"I ran into Tony (Dorsett) at the practice field yesterday and I told him I was glad to see him because he is going to get those 30 carries per game that he has been wanting," said White. "Our running game will be taking a good deal of the load until we get our passing game smoothed out."

Other winners included Mima Jausovec over Kathy Horvath, 6-4, 6-2; Joanne Russell over Glynis Coles, 6-2, 3-6, 7-5; and Renata Tomanova over Dana Gilbert, 3-6, 6-4, 6-4.

Martina Navratilova, the defending Wimbledon champion, scored a mark of 93.78 points and earned $10,000 for being the top computer-ranked women's tennis player of 1979.

AUTO RACING — Kenyan businessman Shekhar Mehta became the second man in 28 years of the Safari Rally to win the event three times, driving his Datsun 160J to a comfortable half-hour margin over Rauno Aaltonen of Finland.

MOTORCYCLING — Kenny Roberts won one race and finished second in another to lead the United States to a 442-370 victory over Britain in the Transatlantic Trophy motorcycle series.

BASEBALL — The American League board of directors has delayed until this summer any action on guaranteed payments to visiting clubs, AL President Lee MacPhail announced.

MacPhail said all league clubs would continue to pay 20 percent of their gross receipts to visiting clubs until further action is considered at baseball's annual summer meeting in August.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL — University of Arizona football Coach Tony Mason resigned following completion of an internal investigation into newspaper disclosures alleging misuse of football recruiting money, the school's president's office disclosed.

GENERAL — Fred Lebow, director of the New York City Marathon, denied a published report that "under-the-table" money totaling some $50,000 was paid to the top finishers in the 1979 race.

HORSE RACING — Advan, $111.20, scored an upset, 1 1/4-length victory over Crowned Music in the $55,950 San Jacinto Stakes as the 77-day Santa Anita meeting drew to a close.

Denim Gal, $3.80, won her third stakes race in a row with a 3 1/4-length decision over Weber City Miss in the $34,450 Flirtation Stakes at Pimlico.

Dusky Duke, $5.80, drew off to an eight-length victory over Wrangle in the $19,500 Joey Bob Purse at Sportsman's Park.

Harvest Hero, $44.20, scored a 3 1/2-length victory over Royal Rouge in the ninth race at Gulfstream.

Avenging Gossip, $30.40, posted a one-length upset over Be A Prospect in the $56,900 Bachelor Stakes at Oaklawn Park.

Rivalero, $3, was an easy 5 1/4-length winner over Lead Lad in the $30,000 Alanesian Purse at Aqueduct.

Joe B. Hall has contract extended

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—University of Kentucky basketball Coach Joe B. Hall has signed a five-year contract extension, according to a statement by Athletic Director Cliff Hagan.

Hagan said Monday that UK President Otis A. Singletary would recommend approval of the extension by the Board of Trustees.

Jack Perry, assistant sports information director, said approval was considered a formality.

Prep star Walker casts lot with Georgia Bulldogs

WRIGHTSVILLE, Ga. (AP)—Herschel Walker, the most sought-after high school football player in the nation, will play for the University of Georgia Bulldogs this fall.

As Georgia Coach Vince Dooley and two assistants waited anxiously outside in compliance with NCAA rules, the Johnson County running back signed a national letter-of-intent at his home here Sunday night, ending weeks of speculation, rumor and the most intensive recruiting effort in state history.

Walker received scholarship offers from virtually every major college in the country. But he turned down such powers as the University of Southern California and Ohio State to go to the Athens, Ga., school, which finished 6-5 last year, 6-0 in the Southeastern Conference. "I felt real nice at Georgia," Walker explained Sunday night. "And I didn't want to go too far from home. I wanted my family to be able to come and see me play. It's only about 94 miles from my house to Athens."

The 18-year-old Walker ran for 6,137 yards, an average of 7.8 yards per carry, and scored 86 touchdowns during his incredible high school career. He was a starter all four years, playing defensive end as a freshman before switching to running back.

In his senior year, the 6-foot-2, 216-pounder ran for 3,167 yards and scored 45 touchdowns while leading Johnson County to the state Class A title.

Walker was an All-American last fall and made the all-state team two years running. The Washington Touchdown Club named him its National Athlete of the Year in 1979, and Parade Magazine named him the top high school football player in the nation.

He was an A student and is interested in a law enforcement career. A native of Johnson County, Walker also stars in track and is one of the state's top sprinters.

His abilities brought dozens of college recruiters, coaches and anxious alumni to Wrightsville, a farming community of about 2,500.

Despite intense pressure, Walker refused to be rushed by the school officials or the reporters conducting their daily "Herschel checks."

"It was yesterday and today when I really sat down and started thinking about it," Walker said. "It was spring holidays, and I knew if I didn't come up with a decision, people would start thinking I wasn't serious about going anywhere."

He is the fifth of seven children, most of whom have been involved in high school athletics. An older sister, Veronica, attends Georgia on a track scholarship.

Walker's father is a plant foreman in Wrightsville, and his mother is a factory supervisor.

Dooley, who doubles as athletic director at Georgia, was unavailable for comment.

Dooley and his assistants were forced to wait outside the Walker home until after the signing because they already had used up their three allowable contacts with Walker and his family. Afterwards, they entered the house and offered their congratulations.

Paterno excited as he begins 15th campaign

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—"I'm kind of excited," Joe Paterno said today as he started his 15th season as head football coach at Penn State with spring drills.

"I'm pleased with the way the squad worked during the winter to keep in good physical condition," Paterno noted.

"And I think the squad is excited," Paterno observed.

What's all the excitement about? What makes this spring different than any other spring?

Paterno didn't use the word, but he intimated that both the coaching staff and the players realized that the Lions' image as a football power with student athletes was at stake.

Paterno had a number of disciplinary problems last season, uncommon to his program. Still, he produced an 8-4 team, which went to the Liberty Bowl and beat Tulane 9-6. But State missed the nation's Top 10 list for the first time in many years.

"I think the staff is better prepared," said Paterno, who since last season has taken on the added duties of athletic director. "We're not confused as to what offense we want to use."

"And we had a good recruiting year despite the adverse publicity (in 1979)," Paterno said.

"That's why we're really excited. We have the toughest schedule since I've been here but I think we can have a good football team. We face a tough job, a challenge...We've got to be more aggressive, tougher physically and mentally," Paterno said.

The schedule starts Sept. 6 with Colgate and runs through Texas A&M, Nebraska, Missouri, Maryland, Syracuse, West Virginia, Miami (Fla.), North Carolina State, Temple and Pittsburgh.

Paterno explained that he had adjusted to handling the dual role of athletic director and coach. He explained that he had ample help and didn't have to bother with the nuts and bolts operation of the athletic department. He would, however, formulate the policy.

Paterno's biggest problems this spring are finding replacement for defenders Bruce Clark, Matt Millen and Lance Mehl, and offensive stars Matt Suhey, Mike Guman and Tom Donovan. The coach believes he has the "horses."

Methodist Church staying at Tres Rios were unharmed, and no structures were affected by the blaze, believed to have been started by an untended smoldering campfire. (Staff Photo by Bruce Partain)

New York City transit strike enters second week; Punishment pondered

NEW YORK (AP) — New Yorkers entered their second week without subways and buses today, as a judge in Brooklyn pondered whether to punish leaders of the strike that has shut down the nation's largest mass-transit system.

Meanwhile, talks to settle the walkout by 35,000 workers continued, and tempers were reported wearing thin as commuters stretched the morning and evening drive time to five hours to avoid a traffic-snarling crunch.

Traffic Department officials reported today that the morning rush appeared to be starting later than on Monday and that light rain and fog might be keeping some workers at home. There were no unusual traffic delays.

"You're starting to hear horn-blowing again — you didn't hear that last week," said police officer Anthony Cichon, as he directed traffic at 42nd Street and Ninth Avenue.

"People are starting to get worn out. The first few days were a novelty. Now it's a chore."

The transit system handles 5.5 million fares daily. Its shutdown has forced millions to walk, car-pool and bicycle to work.

Union leaders were due in the state Supreme Court in Brooklyn today to hear if Justice John Monteleone would find the Transit Workers Union in contempt for violating his no-strike injunction.

Monteleone could impose open-ended fines on the TWU and the Amalgamated Transit Union, and maximum penalties of 30 days in jail and a $250 fine on each union official.

City and state officials have opposed any imprisonment.

Union lawyers, expecting an unfavorable ruling, already had prepared notices of appeal. A stay of any penalty also was expected.

"There won't be any fines this week," said one lawyer.

Public employee strikes are illegal under the state's Taylor Law. Metropolitan Transit Authority workers have been told they face automatic penalties of two days pay for each day on strike.

It would take an act of the Legislature to repeal the Taylor Law penalties, and some legislators say "it's not going to happen."

Meanwhile, Edward Kresky, a member of the mediation panel trying to bring the two sides together, said Monday's talks produced little progress.

"I would not say we went backward today, but I would not say we've had since the strike began... sort of let your hair down."

Kresky denied reports that the union had agreed to reduce its salary demand from 25 percent to 20 percent over two years. The MTA last offered 12 percent over two years. Its union workers now earn an average of about $18,000 per year.

Elsewhere, Walter Gellhorn, chairman of the three-man mediating panel, met for two hours with the executive board of TWU Local 100.

He said the union members were "eloquent and forceful. They argued forcefully against dealing with any management demands that they called 'givebacks.'"

The MTA, which is faced with a $250 million deficit next year, has asked the union to make productivity concessions to help finance a settlement.

Meanwhile, Mayor Edward I. Koch urged the strikers to return to work, charging that the walkout is hurting the city's poor.

And commuters were handed another setback when engineers on the Port Authority's express trains between Pennsylvania Station and the World Trade Center via New Jersey refused to work overtime, forcing the authority to cancel that PATH service today.

The city was also bracing for the reopening of public schools on Wednesday, when 957,000 students will try to get to class, adding to the congestion. High schools will open an hour later than usual, but will end their day at the normal time.

Some movement was reported in the dispute between the Long Island Rail Road and seven operating unions, whose 4,000 workers struck the nation's busiest commuter railroad for 31 hours last week.

Peru seeks help with flood of Cubans seeking asylum

LIMA, Peru (AP) — The Peruvian government turned to its Latin American allies in the Andean Pact for help in finding asylum for the estimated 10,000 Cubans jamming its embassy in Havana in a desperate attempt to escape communist rule.

The United States said it would take some of them if the Peruvian government would let the refugees come to Lima. But so far the Peruvians were admitting none of them because they had no definite assurances from other countries that they would take them.

"Peru cannot take charge of 10,000 refugees, no country can do that individually," Foreign Minister Arturo Garcia said.

Garcia and the foreign ministers of the other four Andean Pact nations — Bolivia, Colombia, Ecuador and Venezuela — scheduled an emergency meeting in the Peruvian capital Wednesday to review the situation and discuss what might be done.

In Miami's Little Havana, thousands of Cuban-Americans marched in support of their compatriots. Leaders called for a revolution to overthrow President Fidel Castro and led chants of "War! War!"

"How can we admit 150,000 Hungarian freedom fighters and 150,000 Vietnamese and Cambodians and not admit the 10,000 Cubans?" asked Miami Mayor Maurice Ferre, a native of Puerto Rico. "Either we admit them or we take down the Statue of Liberty."

Sen. Richard Stone, D-Fla., told several thousand Cuban exiles in Tampa: "The 10,000 will live. The 10,000 will be able to leave."

The State Department said it would consider applications from those Cubans who could reach the Peruvian capital.

Havana Radio described the throng that descended on the Peruvian Embassy last weekend as "vagrants and bums" and said they were welcome to leave the country.

"If the government of Peru wishes to receive in their country all the anti-socials and bums, we will be glad to authorize them to leave our country and also those who are ideologically in disagreement with the revolution and socialism," said the broadcast.

Peru's foreign minister said the five members of the embassy staff were not able to cope with the crowd jamming the suburban estate and asked the International Red Cross to provide food.

The crowd poured into the 20-acre embassy compound after the Cuban police guard was withdrawn because a policeman was killed when six Cubans seeking asylum crashed a bus into the compound gate. Eighteen other Cubans had been inside the embassy since Jan. 1 trying to leave the country, and 16 Cubans have been at the Venezuelan Embassy for months.

Castro's government on Saturday said the 24 could not leave the country because they were criminals, but the rest could go. It restored the police guard on Monday, sealing off the surrounding six blocks. Radio Havana said the government would provide medicine and sanitation facilities and was trying to reduce the size of the crowd.

Oman rejects weapons bid

KUWAIT (AP) — Sultan Qaboos Bin Said of Oman has rejected a U.S. proposal to station tactical nuclear weapons in his nation at the southeastern tip of the Arabian Peninsula, a Kuwaiti newspaper reported today.

Quoting "well informed sources" which it did not identify, the newspaper Al-Anbaa said the sultan's rejection came during recent negotiations on the establishment of a U.S. military base on Oman's Masira Island, strategically located near the entrance to the oil-rich Persian Gulf.

The sources said the sultan agreed to allow the United States to use an existing airbase on Masira for the next five years in return for $800 million in improvements to the facility.

Al-Anbaa also quoted the sources as saying that U.S. officials were trying to persuade the sultan to allow a U.S. naval base on the Omani coast to service American ships in the Arabian Sea and Indian Ocean.

A U.S. military mission traveled to Oman, Somalia and Kenya in February and reached agreements allowing the United States to store military equipment and fuel at military bases in those countries. The stockpiles would support an increased U.S. naval presence in the region following the fall of the pro-Western monarchy in Iran in February 1979 and massive Soviet military intervention in Afghanistan last December.

Water percolating in the crater at Mount St. Helens may be controlling the volcano's behavior, say two geologists who got the first good look into the mouth of the volcano since it began belching gas and ash nearly two weeks ago.

Water from melting snow and ice runs into two ponds in the 1,700-foot-long crater, James Moore and Peter Lipman of the U.S. Geological Survey said Monday.

They believe the water percolates down under the crater until it encounters magma-heated rock hot enough to flash it into steam, causing an eruption of mud and rock.

It rains back into the ponds, and the cycle starts over again in percolator fashion, the geologists said.

"We think the water, caused by melting of the ice and snow, is controlling the behavior of the volcano," said Moore of Menlo Park, Calif.

"The mountain seems to have settled into a steady state (of behavior)," said Moore, with eruptions caused by steam explosions about every half hour.

"As far as we can see, we expect it will continue to perk along as it has for the past few days," he said.

Scientists flying over the volcano Monday said the massive crater on the summit had enlarged from about 1,500 feet long to about 1,700 feet long and 1,200 feet wide, according to Jim Unterwagner of the U.S. Forest Service. At a news conference in Vancouver, about 50 miles southwest of the peak, he said the crater appeared to be about 500 feet deep.

Meanwhile, avalanches of ice, snow and rock raked the north side of the mountain Monday, sliding down Ape and Goat canyons from large cracks across the peak.

The 9,677-foot peak that began erupting March 27 continued spewing small amounts of steam and ash and shaking with regular earthquakes, said Don Mullineaux, a Survey geologist.

ENGINEERS

GULF SCIENCE & TECHNOLOGY, one of the operating companies of the GULF OIL CORPORATION, has a job opening for an engineer desiring to join a reservoir and formation characterization group. This group provides special well and reservoir evaluation services to GULF's worldwide production operations.

The position requires a degree in Petroleum, Mechanical, Electrical or Chemical Engineering. Responsibilities for the job include maintaining and operating custom designed logging units, and performing unique transient pressure tests. The successful candidate would be in charge of designing, conducting, analyzing and reporting the test projects. Onsite work at worldwide locations may consume up to one half of the engineers time.

The group is based at our Southwest Houston Location, away from the Downtown congestion. Qualified applicants are invited to submit their resumes to the address below. The interviews will be conducted in Odessa, Texas.
