An Iranian flight student who was being trained as a helicopter pilot near Pensacola, Fla., extends a tearful goodbye to his girlfriend from the window of a bus which carried him and other trainees to board a plane for Iran. The student was one of many Iranians ordered to leave the United States by President Carter. AP Wirephoto.

Some Iranian trainees seek asylum, others return

By The Associated Press

Twenty-three Iranian military pilot trainees stationed in Texas have asked for political asylum, claiming their lives would be in danger if they returned to their homeland, immigration officials say.

The trainees have been granted temporary asylum and will not be forced to leave the United States by midnight tonight, said D.E. Powell, regional director of the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

If we conclude that there is a good likelihood that their personal safety would be jeopardized by returning to Iran, we will then classify them as refugees, Powell said.

The Air Force has assigned liaison officers to help any Iranian student pilots who may choose to stay.

More than 10 Iranian military pilot trainees stationed in Wichita Falls and Lubbock have flown from their temporary homes in Texas, some reportedly en route to Iran.

Air Force spokesmen said 38 trainees stationed at Laughlin Air Force Base in Del Rio were to leave Texas later today.

The Defense Department set the mandatory deadline for all military trainees to leave the country after President Carter severed diplomatic ties Monday with Iran's revolutionary government. More than 700 trainees were stationed in the United States undergoing flight training at Air Force and Navy bases when the break in relations occurred.

The movement of 38 trainees stationed at Sheppard Air Force Base in Wichita Falls was kept under official wraps. But a reporter for the Wichita Falls Times and Record-News said all had departed by noon Thursday, some leaving in their own cars.

Col. Richard A. Ingram at Reese Air Force Base in Lubbock said the three pilots stationed there left Thursday for Houston where they would catch a plane for London, then Tehran.

Most travel plans were kept secret at the request of the Iranians, said Lt. Col. Ali Jan Sarcazi, the ranking Iranian air force officer in the United States. He said it would be out of the U.S. by today's deadline.

I regret that we're leaving the country under these circumstances, said Sarcazi. I'm deeply concerned about the welfare of the people under my command and I want to get them home as quickly and safely as possible.

Therefore, I must decline to make public our departure schedule or travel plans.

The pilots were grounded Nov. 23 and have been taking only ground school since that time.

Fourteen student cadets at Texas A&M University who were in the U.S. under the same diplomatic agreement as the pilots, also were ordered out of the country.

Powell said. There have been indications we will give perhaps a few more requests for asylum.

He said the 23 trainees who have requested asylum have been placed classified as "voluntary departure status," meaning concerns about their personal safety are being taken seriously.

After one year, he said, each may apply for permanent residency.

Restrictions imposed on Iranian diplomats

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The United States imposed travel restrictions on the movements of Iran's U.S. diplomats Friday, barring them and their families from going more than 25 miles from New York City without special permission.

The restrictions are in line with the break in U.S. diplomatic relations with Iran and the expulsion of Iranian diplomats elsewhere in the country, said a spokeswoman for the U.S. mission to the United Nations, Jill Schuker.

more goods could be put on the shelves at a cheaper price.

However, Bentsen continued, there would have to be a modernization of machinery in the country before this could come about.

Citing examples of Japan, Germany and France, Bentsen noted that those countries update their mechanical hardware once every 10 years, whereas the U.S. changes machinery once every 30 years. Because of modernization, he said, productivity has increased in those countries while declining in the U.S.

Regarding the present Iranian situation, Bentsen warned that it would be a serious mistake for the U.S. to "telegraph our next move in this stage."

He said every effort should be made to get our allies to participate in economic sanctions against Iran. The cutting of diplomatic ties with Iran was a step which should have been done earlier, the senator suggested.

Iran threatens Iraq, Israel, U.S. allies during massive rally

By The Associated Press

Iranian President Abolhassan Bani Sadr today threatened war on Iraq and battles against Israel and warned America's oil-thirsty allies they won't get "so much as snake's poison" from Iran if they back President Carter's sanctions to free the 50 American hostages seized 160 days ago.

Accusing Iraq of "dancing to any music that America played," Bani Sadr warned "we will go to war" if there is a worsening in the scattershot border hostilities.

He spoke at a massive anti-Iraq and anti-U.S. rally in Tehran. Tehran Radio claimed the crowd numbered 3 million — two-thirds of the city's population — but Western reporters in the Iranian capital put the figure in the hundreds of thousands.

In an interview made public today, Bani Sadr also sought to end his personal role in the hostage crisis.

I do not want and cannot involve myself further in the hostages affair, having already done "everything in my power," he was quoted as saying in the interview with the Italian weekly magazine L'Espresso.

If Carter did not understand this and believes he could resolve the crisis following the traditional policy methods of a superpower, it is not my fault," he reportedly said.

In Moscow, Iran's Ambassador Mohammed Mokri asked the Soviet Union to cease supplying arms to Iraq. Western sources say Iraq has nearly 2,000 Soviet-made tanks and that most of its military aircraft are Soviet-made.

In his speech, which was broadcast by Tehran Radio, Bani Sadr said, "If Iraq forces stepped onto Iranian soil, the Iranian government would not be able to stop the Iranian armed forces from pouring into Iraq."

Bani Sadr said he was confident the Iraqi people would topple the government of President Saddam Hussein. He warned Hussein that his own troops "would not fight against Iran, but would turn their back on him and join the army of the imam," Iran's revolutionary leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

His address was the sharpest volley yet in the bristling war of words between Iran and Iraq. Khomeini's regime poured truckloads of shouting, fist-waving supporters into Tehran for the mass demonstration.

However, in his address Bani Sadr urged Iraq to cease hostilities toward Iran so the two Muslim neighbors could devote themselves to fighting Israeli forces in southern Lebanon, where Israel has deployed about 360 men to head off possible Palestinian guerrilla attacks.

Bani Sadr also declared that Iran was prepared to stop making direct deals with Japan, which relies on Iran for 10 percent of its oil needs, and Europe, which gets 5 percent of its petroleum from Iran, because they are under "U.S. domination."

"Not only shall we not give orders to governments which wish to attach themselves to America, but we shall give them so much as snake's poison," said Bani Sadr, using a Persian language expression that means "less than nothing."

"If we widen our horizons and look around more, we shall be able to transform Europe, too. We have this ability," he added, without elaboration.

On Thursday, Tehran Radio said Iranian and Iraqi gunners and helicopters traded fire across the border again, an Iraqi bomb killed one person and wounded 20 in the oil refinery city of Abadan, and Iranian navy ships steamed into the northern Persian Gulf to offset any more Iraqi "aggression."

Iran accuses Iraq of launching the latest round of border attacks against it at the direction of the United States, which has hinted it will blockade Iran's sea routes or mine its ports if Carter's new sanctions fail to speed the release of the American hostages.

Annexation OK'd by City Council

Midland City Council members today officially validated the results of Saturday's city elections and agreed on a first reading of an ordinance to annex more than 4,000 acres in North Midland.

The first reading of the annexation ordinance went without major controversy, despite protests from residents in the area at earlier meetings.

The council agreed to annex the more than six square miles under study north of the city with the exception of the Greentree Country Club golf course and clubhouse areas.

Most, but not all the land, will be added to the city under Agricultural-Estate zoning, according to Richard Hennessy, director of planning and community development.

The city's recommendations on which parcels should be rezoned will be presented to the Planning and Zoning Commission Monday, Hennessy said.

Landowners who will face zoning changes will receive notice of a public hearing to be held within the next 30 to 90 days, he added.

The city council also will hold a public hearing on any zoning in the area before the final reading of the annexation ordinance so land can be formally added to the city and rezoned in the same meeting.

In other business, the council reviewed the results of Saturday's city elections for Places 4 and 5 on the council.

Results of the mayoral race already had been checked closely during a recount finished Thursday.

Incumbent Tom Sloan and newcomer Steve Davidson were elected to the council Saturday.

Bentsen suggests 'discreet' aid to Afghans in fight against Soviets

By DAVID CAMPBELL
Staff Writer

Should the United States supply the Afghans financial aid to fight the Soviets?

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen suggested in a Thursday press conference that "it should be one of those situations where you (the U.S.) should do so as discreetly as you can."

Bentsen avoided discussion of whether he would approve of such "discreet" actions, because a public discussion would not be needed in this situation.

However, other topics such as the national economy, the Iranian crisis and the windfall profits tax on oil were discussed at length by the senator during his stop at Midland Regional Airport.

He suggested that a balanced budget, reduced federal spending, increased spending in the private sector and productivity would help "break inflation." (One) of the problems we have is that every group comes up and says, "we want a balanced budget, but (don't cut) our programs," Bentsen said. Congress would have to ensure that all areas sacrifice equally in the fight against inflation, he noted.

President Carter's cuts in the federal budget were considered by the senator as a "step in the right direction," but he should have submitted a balanced budget in the beginning, Bentsen added. Most of the cuts in the budget should be made without a new tax, he said.

Although it is possible that cuts without a new tax could be done, "there will be a new tax added, but that ought to be used to bring about a tax cut," Bentsen noted.

Half of the cut would go to individuals and half of it would go to increase productivity which is necessary to defeat inflation, he continued. Through increased productivity, he said, more goods could be put on the shelves at a cheaper price.

However, Bentsen continued, there would have to be a modernization of machinery in the country before this could come about.

Citing examples of Japan, Germany and France, Bentsen noted that those countries update their mechanical hardware once every 10 years, whereas the U.S. changes machinery once every 30 years. He said every effort should be made to get our allies to participate in economic sanctions against Iran. The cutting of diplomatic ties with Iran was a step which should have been done earlier, the senator suggested.

You are dealing with a totally irresponsible government, a government which is not in control of its own destiny and a government which does not think as we do," Bentsen explained.

The windfall profits tax on oil would become a "nightmare of regulations," he predicted. But the "Bentsen amendment" provides a tax break for the independent oil producer where there would be a $24 billion tax instead of a $57 billion tax. He admitted the windfall tax was still too much, but was much better than what the House of Representatives wanted to impose.

An exemption for Texas public lands included in the amendment would provide some $500 million for Texas education after decontrols are ended. He noted that it was a very tough and emotional fight to get this exemption because Northern consum-

Volkswagen planning 2nd assembly plant in America

WOLFSBURG, West Germany (AP) — The supervisory board of the West German automaker Volkswagen AG today endorsed plans to build a second car assembly plant in the United States.

Bentsen suggests 'discreet' aid to rebels in Afghanistan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Bill Bentsen today suggested that the federal government should provide "discreet" aid to the Afghan resistance against Soviet forces.

The senator's visit to the area was for two purposes. According to Bentsen, he was using the Easter recess to visit various parts of the state and inform Texans as to what is happening in Washington.

Lee teacher wins WTCC cash award

ABILENE — Mary Crymes of Midland, a government and free enterprise instructor at Robert E. Lee High School, has been awarded first place in a West Texas Chamber of Commerce cash awards program.

The award will be presented during the West Texas Chamber of Commerce's 62nd Annual Convention to be held in San Angelo Wednesday through next Friday. Ms. Crymes was recognized for excellence in the teaching of free enterprise. Her entry, according to WTCC Executive Vice President Edward H. Coltharp, represented the development and implementation of a well-balanced and in-depth course of study relating to teaching Fundamentals of the Free Enterprise System.

Deadly virus hits dogs in Midland

It's such a new disease the experts don't always agree. But I'd say with symptomatic treatment the mortality rate is closer to 10 to 20 percent," said Boyd.

The disease, called Parvovirus, and was discovered in May of 1974 by the Texas Veterinarian Diagnostic Lab at College Station. In the same year, it spread to the East Coast of the United States and then pretty well over the United States and also into the Austria Belgium area, said a spokesman at the diagnostic lab at College Station. In 1979, the lab confirmed 133 cases, and already this year there have been 45 cases.

Although the disease is primarily found in dogs at pet shows, kennels or anywhere there are a large number of dogs, Dr. T.W. Green, a Midland veterinarian, said the disease is rapidly spreading into the pet dog population. He added that all dogs are susceptible, they have no immunity to the virus. During the past week, Green has seen three cases in his clinic. All three died. Midland veterinarian Robert Boyd recently attended a clinic on the virus. The disease is caused by a virus which is very, very similar to the sort that causes feline distemper, Boyd said.

The awards will be presented by Fred Barrington, chairman of the WTCC's Private Enterprise Development Committee. The awards program, which recognizes West Texas public school teachers for free enterprise teaching efforts, was made available by a grant to the WTCC from the West Texas Chamber Foundation.

states argued that the profits from the decontrol of public lands should go to all children and not just those from the oil producing states. In addition, an amendment to the windfall profits tax provided a tax-free status on interest income for people who save money in a bank, he said. The first $200 of interest income would be exempt from taxes for single individuals, while married people would get a break on the first $400, the senator explained.

Legislation was approved by the U.S. Congress early this month to pave the way for Volkswagen's takeover of the missile plant.

Volkswagen's first assembly plant has been building Rabbit cars at New Stanton, Pa., since 1977. The Sterling Heights assembly line would have a capacity of 800 cars a day, according to Volkswagen plans.

Our patience grows thin

When the Americans in the U.S. Embassy in Beirut were taken hostage last Nov. 4, there was an outcry from the people in this country unlike any heard during recent years.

The mutterings from the lips of Americans were hostile. There was talk of bombing the Iranian oilfields, of sending a naval fleet to mine the harbors of Iran, of forcefully bringing our people home. And there were acts of violence against Iranians present in this country.

Since that time, President Carter has talked with the American public several times, each time urging continued patience in the hostage situation, each time expressing the hope that some day they'll be set free to return to this country.

Now it appears as though even the infinite patience exhibited by President Carter is growing thin, restricted to the limit by the militant Ayatollah Khomeini and the revolutionary council.

Why wouldn't our patience grow thin? It has been five months since the Americans were kidnapped by terrorists and imprisoned illegally in our own embassy. The incident has become a mockery of international law and of everything that is just and humane.

Meanwhile, we've been forced to sit idly by and to listen as promises are made and broken, rules are changed at the whim of Iranian President Bani-Sadr, the ayatollah and the band of terrorists holding our people, and our nation and people are mocked and ridiculed before the world.

President Carter has responded most recently by increasing the economic sanctions against Iran, and breaking diplomatic relations with that country. Additionally, there have been whispers of a naval blockade or mining of Iran's ports if the prior actions do not result in release of the hostages.

The Moslem militants holding the Americans have responded to the Carter actions by threatening to burn the hostages if the United States takes any military action against Iran.

Those are fighting words. There appears to be growing in this nation a second swell of anti-Iranian sentiment, one which may rival the anti-American sentiment portrayed so vividly in Iran.

Perhaps Khomeini, Bani-Sadr and others in Iran have miscalculated the fiber of Americans. We can accept a lot of verbal abuse, injustice and hatred. The patience exhibited by President Carter and the people of this nation stands as a monument to this country's maturity.

But our patience — tested by lies, broken promises and unfounded accusations witnessed in Iran — grows thin.

Beware, Iran. The second swell of anti-Iranian sentiment growing in the United States may well make the first look like a ripple on a pond.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Friday, April 11, the 102nd day of 1980. There are 264 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On April 11, 1961, President Harry Truman relieved Gen. Douglas MacArthur of his command in the Far East.

On this date: In 1814, Napoleon Bonaparte abdicated unconditionally as emperor of France and was banished to the island of Elba.

In 1899, the Philippine Islands were transferred from Spain to the United States.

In 1971, World War II Nazi official Martin Bormann was officially declared dead and taken off West Germany's "most wanted" list.

In 1978, Israeli forces began withdrawing from part of southern Lebanon in the first move toward compliance with United Nations call for complete withdrawal.

Ten years ago, New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller signed a liberalized abortion law for his state.

Five years ago, the United States announced the closing of its embassy in Phnom Penh and the evacuation of hundreds of Americans and Cambodians from the communist-encircled Cambodian capital.

Last year, rescue workers began sifting through the near-total devastation of Wichita Falls, Texas, caused by a tornado the day before.

Today's birthdays: New York Gov. Hugh Carey is 61. Ethel Kennedy is 52.

INSIDE REPORT:

Carter reshapes positions to his political needs

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — President Carter's disavowal last week of his three-month-old confession that the invasion of Afghanistan changed his view of "ultimate" Soviet goals followed a familiar pattern of reshaping positions to his political needs, a syndrome newly apparent in his treatment of germ warfare charges against Moscow.

In an interview with the Washington Post's Meg Greenfield, Carter denied he had ever admitted changing his own mind about the Soviets' "ultimate goals" as a result of Afghanistan. In fact, on Dec. 31, following the Soviet invasion, Carter declared over ABC television that Afghanistan "made a more dramatic change in my opinion of what the Soviets' ultimate goals are than anything they have done" during his administration.

Thus, Carter's syndrome: What he says for immediate political impact one day, he denies the next under the stress of changed political needs. The result is that U.S. policy becomes hostage to instant political requirements. That has infuriated U.S. allies, confounded U.S. enemies and consigned Carter's real policy to the murky world of make-believe.

The Carter syndrome has been tripping him and his country in foreign policy for three years, but never so consistently as in these days of the Soviet global offensive and the Carter re-election drive. On Jan. 23, one month after Afghanistan, the president sounded a call to arms in his State of the Union message. It is "imperative," he said, that Congress approve a 1981 defense bill equal to "a 5 percent real growth in authorizations, without any reduction."

Evans

When Carter's budget revisions reached the House Armed Services Committee March 31, he called for a 2 percent real growth. In just three months, the president's perception of political reality had caused him to downgrade drastically what he had told Congress was an "imperative" of military preparedness.

The case of alleged Soviet violations of the 1972 treaty banning biological (germ) warfare also has triggered the syndrome. When the allegations about violations were first heard by Carter last spring, he turned a deaf ear. He did so not because the suspicions had been disproved, but be-

WASHINGTON-MERRY-GO-ROUND

Bomb report brings another Mideast worry

WASHINGTON — In the furor over Afghanistan and the Soviet threat to neighboring Pakistan, the American intelligence community is carefully monitoring what could be another job in progress in the Middle East — the imminent development of a nuclear bomb by Pakistan.

Recent top-secret intelligence reports predict that the Pakistanis — who scoured the offer of conventional U.S. military weapons as "peanuts" — may explode their first atomic device by the end of the year. Asian and European intelligence sources who have shared their information with the United States, are convinced of the Pakistanis' early success in achieving nuclear capability.

The prevailing view among U.S. analysts, chiefly the State Department's Bureau of Intelligence and Research, is that the Pakistanis would not perfect a nuclear bomb before the summer of 1983 at the earliest. But these sources now concede that they could have been over-optimistic, since they were unaware of the Pakistanis' clandestine, top-speed efforts.

Although Pakistan has repeatedly denied it is working on a nuclear bomb, intelligence analysts dismiss these protestations as patently ridiculous. The heavily guarded uranium enrichment plant being built at Kahuta, 25 miles south of Islamabad, will give the Pakistanis enough fissionable material to build a bomb. All the experts agree it was only a matter of time. The alarming development is that the time period is being shortened drastically.

In Dr. Abdul Qader Khan, the Pakistanis already have the technological expertise for nuclear capability. Khan is a Western-trained Pakistani who had access to the secret designs and technology of a super-sophisticated uranium enrichment plant in the

Jack Anderson

Netheerlands.

He allegedly stole some of the Dutch plant's blueprints, plus a list of contractors. Using dummy corporations, Pakistan has been quietly buying the materials needed for its own enrichment plant on the Dutch model. Though evidence against Khan presented in international forums last year was overwhelming, Pakistan has refused even to admit he exists.

Under Khan's guidance, and with the help of 1979 Nobel Prize-winning physicist, Dr. Abdus Salam, the Pakistanis are so far along the nuclear trail that military-scientific teams have already been looking for suitable desert expanses for an underground test explosion.

When Pakistan does get its nuclear bomb, the world will enter a new and more dangerous era. A shaky dictatorship like Gen. Muhammad Zia's, armed with a nuclear arsenal, is frightening enough. What makes the situation far worse is that Pakistan will likely share its nuclear know-how with even less responsible Arab nations, like the fanatic Gen. Muammar Qaddafi's Libya who is a protector of terrorists and an implacable foe of Israel.

Intelligence sources explained that Pakistan is obligated to share its nuclear capability with Libya and Saudi Arabia, which have provided finan-

CHARLEY REESE

Dear King Khalid, go take a swim, chump

Charley Reese

If I were President, I would send the following message to King Khalid of Saudi Arabia:

"Dear King, I hear from reliable sources that you are bragging around that you control 40 percent of the world's wealth and will soon control 80 percent. I hear from those sources that you are bragging that you will control the United States government and use us to bring Israel to her knees without firing a shot.

"You are about to make a big mistake. We will pay you a high price for your oil. After all, we took advantage of you for years before you finally wised up. But, King Bubu, you are not the President of the United States and you will not dictate to this country how we shall run our internal affairs or what kind of relationship we shall have with other nations.

"You and your Arab friends are big boys. If you have any differences with Israel, you and the Israelis can settle them between yourselves. If you really hate the Israelis, why don't you declare war on them. I'm sure they can take care of themselves and frankly, after they whipped you good, we'd rather buy your oil from them anyway. Furthermore, I know they'd like to pay you back for all the millions of dollars you have given the PLO so they can shoot school children and blow up old ladies.

"As for us, the United States intends to remain firm and true to our allies. Israel is an ally. Saudi Arabia is not. Saudi Arabia is only a greedy and unpleasant trading associate. We owe you not even the sweat off former President Nixon's upper lip. Your greed has caused great hardship and some suffering among our people. You have financed terrorism against our allies and against us (your PLO friends have murdered two of our ambassadors.) You have tried to sabotage the peace process. You have arrogantly attempted to interfere in our internal affairs.

"To be perfectly honest, there is nothing admirable about you or your country. You wouldn't even fight for your own independence until the British bribed you with gold. Your nation is backward. You are raping the Third World nations you claim to value as friends. You can't defend yourself, and your contribution to humanity is zip.

"Before your delusions of grandeur lead to disaster, let me spell out for you, in plain and undiplomatic language, the position of the United States. I suggest you pass this along to the other Arab nations and to Iran.

"We are not your friends nor do we wish to be. We buy and sell from a lot of people we don't like. Our patience with your greed, treachery, and the flouting of international standards of decency was exhausted last week.

"The United States does not intend to help you destroy Israel. On the contrary, our support for allies is not for sale at any price. The Palestinian problem is your problem, not ours. For over 30 years, the Arab states have refused to assimilate the refugees from a war they started. Frankly, we don't give a damn what you do or don't do about the Palestinians.

"The really important thing for you to understand is that we do not intend to endure one more insult, let alone an assault on our people. If you cannot control your mobs, I assure you we can. Furthermore, we do not intend to tolerate attempted blackmail. An attempt to cut off our oil supply or to wreck our banking system will be considered an act of war.

"Nor should you delude yourself that you can divert your oil to the Soviet Union. It's time you faced facts. You have oil in spades, but we have a trump in bombs and rockets. I promise you that if we are not allowed to buy your oil, nobody will buy your oil for the next 500 years.

"And you can put that in your books and smoke it."

Mark Russell says

Here is a possible scenario for the months ahead. Jimmy Carter fails to convince the American people that cutting off relations with Iran will help — so the American people threaten to cut off relations with Jimmy Carter.

This causes Carter to resign but President Mondale doesn't get the nomination because, although we don't recognize Iran, the Democrats at the convention don't recognize Mondale — even though he is wearing a red carnation.

Meanwhile, the Republicans reject Ronald Reagan for telling a group of insurance salesmen that he doesn't know the meaning of the word "policy."

The race between Teddy Kennedy and Gerry Ford is so close, it is thrown into the House of Representatives. The deciding vote for the next President is cast by Rep. Charles Biggs of Michigan, an appealing man.

USDA resumes spot checks for DES in slaughter houses

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department, concerned that dozens of cattle feedlots are still using a banned cancer-causing growth stimulant, is resuming spot checks of slaughter houses.

The department's Food Safety and Quality Service announced resumption of the national DES sampling program — suspended four months ago — in a memorandum sent this week to regional directors.

Meanwhile, a separate federal effort continues to track down feedlots suspected of violating the DES ban.

Use of DES on cattle has been banned since November, but the department announced last week it had held up slaughter of cattle from 30 feedlots after learning of continued use of the drug.

Since then, the Food and Drug Administration has identified more than

Elizabeth Miller

AUSTIN — Services for Elizabeth Miller, 90, of Big Spring were to be at 3:30 p.m. today in Wilke-Clay Chapel here with burial in the Masonic cemetery.

She died Thursday in a Big Spring hospital.

She was born May 30, 1889, in Austin. She was a retired civil service employee and had worked in veterans' insurance for more than 40 years. Ms. Miller had lived in Big Spring for the last four and a half years. She was a Baptist and a member of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Survivors include a sister, Mrs. Ward C. Parks of Big Spring, and a number of nieces and nephews.

Milton Wagner

OZONA — Graveside services for Milton Wagner, 59, of Ozona were to be at 2 p.m. today in Cedar Hill Cemetery directed by Sheppard Funeral Home of Ozona.

He died Wednesday in an Ozona hospital.

Wagner was born Nov. 21, 1920, in Junction. He was married to Edna Dena Coats Nov. 21, 1946, in Ozona. He was a veteran of World War II and was a heavy equipment operator for Crockett County for several years.

Survivors include his wife and a son, Thomas Woodruff of Ozona.

Cuban evacuation plans move along

LIMA, Peru (AP) — Plans for the evacuation of thousands of Cubans from the Peruvian Embassy in Havana moved ahead as 6,300 were registered and other governments began to offer asylum.

Peru's foreign minister, Arturo Garcia y Garcia, said his nation would take 1,000 refugees and that offers of asylum had been made by countries outside the Andean Council — Ecuador, Peru, Bolivia, Venezuela and Colombia, but he would not elaborate. The council is the political arm of the Andean Group, a regional common market.

"Each country will make its own announcement," Garcia said Thursday after an overnight council session designated him evacuation coordinator.

Garcia said the staff of the Peruvian Embassy, doubled this week from five to 10, had registered 6,300 of the estimated 10,000 Cubans packed inside the 20-acre compound, asking for their names, backgrounds, and the reasons they want to flee the communist regime of Fidel Castro.

"For humanitarian reasons, we are immediately initiating actions aimed at complying with their desire to leave Cuba now that it appears the Cuban government will grant them the right to leave," Garcia said.

Garcia said he was coordinating evacuation details with two international agencies, the office of the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees and the Inter-governmental Committee for European Migration.

The U.N. agency's regional representative, Gullherme L. da Cunha, said he had transmitted assistance offers to both Peruvian and Cuban authorities, but had received no Cuban response.

"It can't be done in five minutes, but we are trying to do it as quickly and efficiently as possible," Alfredo Pareja, Ecuador's foreign minister who is also president of the Andean Council, said.

Pareja told reporters that Peru would not necessarily be the first country to receive Cubans. Sources in Peru's Foreign Ministry said Costa Rica and Canada had agreed to accept Cuban refugees, but Canadian officials in Ottawa said they had reached no decision.

Puerto Rican governor Carlos Romero Barcelo said the U.S. commonwealth would welcome some of the Cubans. "We open our doors to our brothers who need help," he said.

A spokesman for the U.S. interest section in the Swiss Embassy in Havana said earlier this week that the Cuban government was providing food and sanitation for those inside the 20-acre compound, and had allowed the Red Cross to set up a field clinic there.

The Cubans flocked to the embassy over the weekend after the government withdrew its guards from the compound because one guard was killed April 1 when a bus carrying six people who sought political refuge crashed into the embassy gate. Tight security was reimposed early this week to prevent more from entering the crowded embassy grounds.

President Carter has expressed sympathy for the Cubans inside the embassy but made no public offer to help. State Department officials have said they would consider applications by Cuban refugees able to reach Lima.

Texans demonstrate supporting Peru's aid to Cuban refugees

HOUSTON (AP) — Flanked by Cuban-Americans carrying signs saying "Thank You, Peru," about 100 trucks lumbered past the Peruvian consulate to show their support for Peru's efforts to help thousands of Cubans seeking political asylum.

"We are demanding freedom for the Cubans in Havana," Monsignor I. Testa of the Immaculate Heart of Mary Church and one of the demonstration organizers, said Thursday.

Testa, a Cuban, praised the truckers for taking a day off from work to make the six hour drive from Eagle Lake, Texas, where the truck convoy originated, to downtown Houston.

The demonstration was organized to thank Peru for helping thousands of Cubans seeking political asylum who swarmed into the Peruvian embassy in Havana over the weekend.

Four other South American countries have also agreed to help the Cubans trying to escape their country.

"Bravo Peru. We want your help — Don't listen to Castro," said one of the posters carried by the crowd, which waited for about three hours Thursday afternoon before the trucks arrived at the consulate.

The trucks arrived in downtown Houston with lights flashing and horns blaring, the grinding of gears counterpointed by the pealing of bells from nearby Annunciation Church.

Raul Enriquez, a truck driver from Eagle Lake, said through an interpreter he wanted the voices of the demonstrators to be heard "all over the world."

He said he fled Cuba about three years ago because of Castro's communist regime. "People are dying for freedom," he said. "I am happy to be an American."

About 25 of the demonstrators presented a letter from the Houston Cuban Association to Peruvian consul general Eduardo Carrillo.

Carrillo said he would forward a copy of the letter to the Peruvian embassy in Washington and to the president of Peru.

Nixon says Soviets supreme over West

LONDON (AP) — Former President Richard M. Nixon, in a book excerpt published here today, said World War III has already begun and the Soviets are on the "verge of decisive supremacy over the West."

"In the 1980s, America will confront two cold realities for the first time in modern history. The first is that, if war were to come, we might lose. The second is that we might be defeated without war," Nixon wrote in an excerpt from his forthcoming book, "The Real War," published in the British weekly newsmagazine "NOW."

The excerpt deals primarily with superpower rivalry but touches on Iran, the Middle East, Africa, NATO and South America.

Nixon wrote that since he resigned the presidency in 1975, "The military position of the United States relative to that of the Soviet Union has seriously worsened and the peril to the West has greatly increased."

He said the Carter Administration's 1977 decision to cancel production of the B-1 bomber, designed to counteract the Soviet Union's Backfire bomber, "may have been one of the greatest strategic blunders this nation has ever made."

Actress dead at 59

NEW YORK (AP) — Actress Kay Medford, best known for her role as Barbra Streisand's mother in the Broadway and film versions of the musical "Funny Girl," has died of cancer at the age of 59.

Miss Medford died Thursday in her Manhattan apartment.

Born Kathleen Patricia O'Regan in the Bronx, Miss Medford began her career in 1939 as a standup comic and five years later appeared in her first movie, "Undercover Man," starring Glenn Ford.

She made her Broadway debut in Harold Clurman's 1950 production of "Bird Cage."

Her television credits included character parts on the "Kraft Suspense Theater," "Dragnet," "Naked City," "Playhouse 90," "Barney Miller," and "Starsky and Hutch."

Anderson thinks he can win in California, if...

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — John Anderson will win California's Republican presidential primary if his supporters can register 750,000 Democrats, independents and non-voters as members of the GOP, says his California campaign chief.

"I think anything's possible," said Carolyn Stewart, California campaign coordinator for the liberal Illinois congressman. "California has done some unusual things. It has elected Jerry Brown twice."

Ms. Stewart conceded Thursday the odds are against Anderson's upsetting Ronald Reagan in the former governor's home state.

But Anderson was "tremendously encouraged" by the large crowds he saw in California earlier this week, she said, adding that "he will spend a lot more time here than originally expected" because he now believes he has a chance of winning the state's June 3 primary.

Ms. Stewart said Anderson will start a television campaign next week to sign up his supporters as Republicans before the May 5 registration deadline.

She said her prediction that Anderson needs 750,000 new Republicans to defeat Reagan is based on Reagan's victory in California's 1976 Republican primary. Reagan defeated then-President Ford by 1.8 million votes to 845,655.

"Look at the Ford base. People who didn't vote for Reagan (in 1976) probably won't vote for him again. We can build on that base," Ms. Stewart said.

Although 750,000 voters represent only 5 percent of the 15 million Californians eligible to vote, their registration by the GOP would be the greatest shift in California voter registration since the Democratic Party gained 705,000 registered voters during the first two years of the Depression.

If Reagan does win California's winner-take-all primary, there is "a very real possibility" Anderson will challenge the seating of that delegation, Ms. Stewart said.

Such a challenge would be based on the California primary's conflict with national Republican Party policy, which favors proportional division of delegates based on the percentage of votes won by each candidate in each state primary, she said.

Hijacker identified by Cubans

MIAMI (AP) — The man who hijacked an American Airlines jet to Cuba has been described as a dental school dropout and Moslem convert who was trying to escape racial and religious prejudice in the United States.

Prensa Latina, the official Cuban news agency, identified the hijacking suspect Thursday as Muhammad Jalal Deen Akbar, formerly Gerald Leland Meritt.

Officials at the University of California-San Francisco said a man by the same name quit their dental school last year.

Havana radio broadcasts monitored in Miami identified the man as a "former student of odontology born in Minneapolis, Minn."

It quoted him as saying that he "abandoned his studies at the University of San Francisco late last year because of political and religious conflicts with university authorities."

"He said that he left the United States for religious and political reasons because any leader that shows the Negroes the way is exposed to being destroyed, blackmailed or assassinated," the broadcast said.

"He added that in the United States the Negroes are in a vicious circle without any hope of breaking the circle, and in that country slavery formerly ceased a little more than 100 years ago but it is still maintained informally."

Officials at UC-San Francisco said Akbar, 35, first registered at the School of Dentistry in the fall of 1977. The school said Akbar, who gave his hometown as Minneapolis, withdrew voluntarily at the beginning of the current term and had no record of disciplinary problems.

A quiet man described as a black in his 30s scaled a wall at the Ontario, Calif., airport Wednesday morning and forced his way aboard an American Airlines Boeing 727.

Midland, Texas

Letter to Midlanders:

The election for Mayor of Midland has been a spirited one and a unique experience for me and my family.

Now it is over. I would like to thank the citizens of our city who participated - both those who voted and those who worked so hard for all the candidates.

Elections sometimes become divisive but there are few communities that can accomplish as much as Midland is capable of doing when its people are working together. So it is my hope and prayer that we now rejoin forces and face the challenges of the 80's with a unified citizenry -- anxious to get on with the job of making our city a place that we can all say with honesty -- "I'm for Midland, and proud of it."

Bert Parks may make return to Boardwalk

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Put out to pasture by the Miss America Pageant, Bert Parks may be going up the Boardwalk to work for a new casino hotel.

The 65-year-old Parks confirmed Thursday he is close to an agreement to promote the 500-room Brighton Hotel & Casino. The $65 million Brighton is scheduled to open as Atlantic City's fourth casino around May 31.

"Aren't you proud of Daddy?" Parks said in a telephone interview from his winter home Hollywood, Fla. "I'm coming home to Atlantic City. But, hey, I never left those lovely people. You just don't throw away 25 years just like that."

Meanwhile, officials said that Campbell's Soup Co. has withdrawn its eight-year sponsorship of the Miss America spectacle.

Parks said his contract, which has not been signed, calls for him to make guest appearances, radio and television commercials for the Brighton. "I fervently hope the deal goes through," Parks said. "But until you write your name down, it doesn't mean a thing."

Brighton officials could not be reached for comment.

Parks, who sang "There She Is" to tearful Miss Americas since 1955, has made several television appearances and commercials since pageant officials confirmed Jan. 2 that they would not renew his one-year contract.

Pageant officials announced that Ron Ely, television's first Tarzan and now a Los Angeles game show host, would replace Parks.

Albert A. Marks Jr., executive officer of the pageant, and Campbell's Soup spokesman Scott Rumbaugh confirmed Thursday that the company would end its sponsorship. Marks said Nestle Co. would join Gillette, a 22-year sponsor, and Kellogg's, a 12-year sponsor.

Rumbaugh denied Parks' firing had anything to do with Campbell's decision. "This decision is the result of new marketing directions by the company and was not precipitated by recent changes in the Miss America television production," Rumbaugh said.

At the peak of January's furor over Park's firing, Rumbaugh said Campbell's received about 300 protest letters from consumers saying they would stop buying its soup products.

Annoyed Campbell's officials wrote to Marks expressing "distress" at the pageant's "handling of its decision." But sources have told The Associated Press and the trade magazine Advertising Age that the three sponsors played a major role in the decision to oust Parks.

Symphony Chorale's spring concert to feature guests, Lee High Choir

The Midland-Odessa Symphony Chorale's spring concert today at 8 p.m. at First Methodist Church, 305 N. Baird St., will feature guest soloists and the Lee High Concert Choir.

Cynthia Valentine of Jacksonville, Fla., will be the guest soprano soloist for the evening's concert. Miss Valentine holds a bachelor of arts in music from the University of North Florida. Her early vocal training was with Mildred Koger of Jacksonville and she is currently a student of vocal coach Jack Funkhouser.

Miss Valentine is a frequent soloist with the Jacksonville Symphony, the University of North Florida, the Orange Park Community Chorus in Florida, the Lakeland Community Orchestra in Florida and the North Florida Regional Opera Company. In addition to the soprano solos in Mozart's "Vesperae Solennes de Confessore" and "Exsultate, Jubilate," she will sing a solo movement in the "Deus in Adjuvium Domine" by Vivaldi.

Rodney Miller of Midland will be bass soloist for the performance. Miller has a bachelor of music degree from West Texas State University in Canyon, a master's degree in music from Indiana University and is a graduate of the Academy of Vocal Arts in Philadelphia. He has performed in a number of operas in Texas, Indiana, Illinois, Ohio, New York and Pennsylvania. He has also performed extensively in Germany and Australia and has made several professional recordings.

Tenor soloist for the concert will be Prentice Loftin of Odessa. Loftin, director of music at Odessa's First United Methodist Church, received his bachelor of music degree in voice from The University of Texas at El Paso and his masters of music degree in conducting and voice at Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in Louisville, Ky. He has appeared as a guest soloist with the Chorale previously and is a member of the Chorale da Camera.

The contralto solos in the Mozart "Vesperae Solennes de Confessore" will be sung by Midlander Elaine Berman. A native of New Albany, Ind., Mrs. Berman received her earliest musical training as an instrumentalist playing both piano and flute. At the age of 15, she became the contralto soloist for the Louisville Youth Choir and the youngest member of the Louisville Bach Society. Mrs. Berman studied voice at Indiana University and during that period toured through Europe singing in Germany, France, England, Denmark, Switzerland and Australia. She is a regular member of both the Chorale and the Chorale da Camera.

The Lee High Concert Choir will join with the Chorale in the presentation of two works for double choirs by Croce, a Venetian Renaissance composer. The works to be presented are premiere editions by Stanley Engbreton, the Chorale conductor.

The free concert will be accompanied by the Midland-Odessa Symphony Chamber Orchestra and organist Bob Poer.

He wanted to do something different

BRIDGEWATER, Mass. (AP) — Glenn D. Poole, a 22-year-old steelworker, came into his regular watering hole, Lucy's Lunch, and drank for about an hour the other night.

But something got his dander up and he stormed out, saying he'd be back.

He returned, behind the controls of a bulldozer, and dragged the front section of the lounge and restaurant behind him.

Down at the police station, Poole told police he had intended to drive up the bar and have another drink.

"I just wanted to do something different," he told police.

Police charged him with larceny, malicious damage to private property and assault.

U.S. launches probe of imported steel prices

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government, beginning an inquiry into a complaint it had tried to discourage, is investigating U.S. Steel's charge that European competitors are "dumping" steel on the American market at unfairly low prices.

Commerce Secretary Philip Klutznick announced Thursday that his department was launching the investigation into import pricing policies, which U.S. Steel, the nation's largest producer, says have cost 100,000 American jobs.

The department's eventual ruling could have the effect of either shutting all steel imports out of the country or crippling the unsteady American steel market, steel analysts predict.

If the Commerce Department decides in favor of U.S. Steel, the country's largest producer, stiff duties would be levied against the offenders. That could lift the price of imported steel so high it would be shut out of the American market, according to government economists.

A small plane passes over the 1,700-foot crater atop Mount St. Helens Thursday morning. The volcano, located 45 miles northeast of Portland in Washington, has been active since March 27. Prior to the plane's flight over the crater the volcano erupted. (AP Laserphoto)

Volcano strains budget of Geological Survey

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — Mount St. Helens' cantankerous steam-and-ash show has left giant craters in the budgets of the U.S. Geological Survey and other agencies active in the volcano watch.

The USGS, which sent 25 scientists to the mountain, estimates it is spending $2,000 a day for room and board. That figure does not include salaries, which range from $25,000 to $45,000 a year, or $300-an-hour helicopter service.

The agency had budgeted $1 million for volcanic hazards, said Robert Tilling, the geochemistry chief at USGS headquarters in Reston, Va.

"We budget three years in advance, but we sure didn't budget for the Mount St. Helens eruption," Tilling said.

Frank Forrest, another USGS official, noted that federal budget cutters may not be as excited about the volcano as the scientists.

"Scientists may be saying 'God, this is great,' but congressional budget analysts might be saying 'tough luck,'" he said.

Other expenses reported by agencies since the volcano started erupting March 27:

—The Forest Service says it has spent more than $157,000 — that's more than $9,000 a day. Much of the money has gone for aerial surveillance and flying scientists and equipment to the area.

—The Washington National Guard has spent about $3,800 a day since Saturday when 60 guardsmen were called up to help man roadblocks.

—Skamania County has spent an estimated $17,000 for overtime pay and transportation costs to man roadblocks.

—Cowlitz County has spent at least $10,000 in overtime and fuel costs for deputy sheriffs to man roadblocks.

—The state Department of Emergency Services has been spending about $750 a day to cover the extra cost of staffing its operations center around the clock.

—The Washington State Patrol has spent more than $5,000 helping man roadblocks.

The Forest Service began cutting back this week on aerial reconnaissance and closed its media center for the volcano watch.

"We must maintain the monitoring of the volcano as long as contingency plans depend on it," said Don Mullineaux, a USGS expert on the hazards of Mount St. Helens. "But it will have to be on a lesser scale."

Businesses stuck with forged bills

During the past two days, three businesses on Lamesa Road have received forged $10 and $20 bills, according to police officials.

In each instance, the bill was actually $1 with the corners off $10 and $20 bills taped over the 1 on the dollar bill.

The first instance was reported to police Wednesday morning. Juanita Rodriguez told officers she started to buy an article at the Next to New Shop at 509 E. Illinois when she noticed the bill.

According to reports, she received the $10 from Carter's Food Market at 1411 N. Lamesa Road as change for a $20.

Clerks at the market did not remember who gave them the $10 bill.

Then, around 5:45 p.m. Thursday, two women in a yellow car pulled up to Bill's Grocery Store at 1308 N. Lamesa. One of the women entered the store and handed a clerk what appeared to be a $20 bill folded in half. The clerk gave her change for $20.

After the women left, the clerk noticed the bill was actually $1 with the edges of a $20 bill taped on.

The last incident occurred sometime Thursday at the Jumburrito Restaurant at 1301 N. Lamesa Road. Jose Cuevas Jr. told police that as he was closing, he noticed that one of the $20 bills in his money was "not quite right."

Upon checking, he found the bill had been altered from $1 to $20.

He did not know who gave him the bill or when Thursday it was given to him.

Council session leads to brawl

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Democratic state Rep. Milton Street has been arrested for allegedly kneeling a police officer in the groin during a brawl that broke out in a City Council meeting, police said.

Street's brother, City Councilman John Street, and two supporters, Moses Franklin, 25, and Charles Chadwick, 63, were also arrested in connection with the incident Thursday, police said.

Police officer Fred Ludy and City Councilman John C. Anderson were slightly injured during the melee.

The dispute centered on a bi-partisan effort to repeal the council's "gag rule," a measure aimed at silencing Councilman Street who had been speaking about the implication of Council President George X. Schwartz, Councilman Louis C. Johanson and Majority Leader Harry P. Jannotti in the FBI's Abscam operation.

Councilman David Cohen accused

Schwartz of trying to cut off discussion about the gag rule.

Shouting erupted between Cohen and Johanson. As other council members and spectators became aroused, Johanson grabbed Cohen by the lapels and the two wrestled to the floor.

After Schwartz called in police to clear the 100 spectators, Milton Street tried to get past officers into the council chamber, according to witnesses. The legislator was arrested for allegedly kicking officer Fred Ludy in the groin.

Ludy was treated and released from a nearby hospital.

Milton Street was charged with aggravated assault, disorderly conduct, resisting arrest, criminal conspiracy, obstructing justice and two counts of simple assault, police said.

John Street was charged with simple assault, disorderly conduct and obstructing justice, police said.

Franklin, an aide to Milton Street, allegedly struck Ludy in the neck as the officer wrestled with the state representative. Franklin was charged with aggravated assault and simple assault, disorderly conduct, resisting arrest, obstructing justice and criminal conspiracy, police said.

Chadwick, who police said was a supporter of the Street brothers, was charged with aggravated assault, resisting arrest, obstruction of justice, conspiracy and two counts each of simple assault and disorderly conduct.

Anderson said his neck was injured when he was hit while trying to break up the melee involving Milton Street and police. He did not require treatment.

All four were released on their own recognizance.

The meeting resumed after a 50-minute recess. Schwartz' order to clear the room and his refusal to reprimand Johanson for grabbing Cohen by the lapels, provoked Councilman Street to begin a speech against Schwartz that lasted more than three hours.

Negotiators push for N.Y. transit strike agreement

NEW YORK (AP) — Reports of a deal to settle the 11-day transit strike are "entirely speculative," a mediator said, but he added negotiators were pushing today for a solution to the walkout that put 3.5 million commuters on the sidewalks and streets of New York.

Walter Gellhorn said "no packages, deals or conclusions" were reached in negotiations Thursday to end the strike by 35,000 bus and subway workers.

But he added: "As you can see, things have not been at a standstill ... and an effort will be made (today) to reach a conclusion."

Talks were resuming today as Gov. Hugh Carey asked for $50 million in federal aid for small businesses, and total business losses reached an estimated $1 billion.

Meanwhile, a federal mediator reported a "major breakthrough" in contract talks between seven unions and the Long Island Rail Road.

Richard O. Harris said an agreement could be reached in two days. Employees of the nation's busiest commuter line struck for 31 hours last week and had threatened to walk out again if they did not win a contract to replace the one that expired 15 months ago.

Word of progress in the LIRR dispute came Thursday as warm and clear skies over Manhattan made walking, biking and skating to work a little easier for thousands of commuters. But flooded streets from a record 3.4-inch rainfall Wednesday slowed traffic on major arteries.

A striking bus driver was arrested and accused of faking a car breakdown to obstruct the path of a private bus. Another bus was hit with shots from a pellet gun and the tires of a third were slashed.

Metropolitan Transportation Authority chairman Richard Ravitch said there had been some movement in talks and "this means progress."

Brooklyn State Supreme Court Justice John Monteleone, who has fined the unions $1 million, had said there appeared to be a good possibility for a settlement soon.

His comment came after he put a contempt hearing against the Transport Workers Union on hold at the request of state officials who said it might adversely affect the talks.

Monteleone said his optimistic word came from Gellhorn, but the mediator, while not disputing the accuracy of the remarks attributed to him, said discussion of an impending settlement must be regarded "as rumors and entirely speculative."

According to sources involved in the talks, bargaining has centered on increased productivity and cost-reducing proposals that the MTA has insisted be tied to any new pay offer for the union members, who earn an average of $18,000 a year.

The union is demanding a 25 percent wage increase over two years. The MTA offered 12 percent.

The city has estimated businesses are losing $100 million each day due to the strike. Carey, in a telegram to the Small Business Administration seeking low-cost federal loans, said an estimated 40 percent of the city's small businesses had sustained economic damage.

A volunteer directs bicycle traffic in New York's Herald Square Thursday morning as the city entered the tenth day of a mass transit strike. Widespread road flooding after heavy rains Wednesday added to the obstacles facing commuters. (AP Laser-photo)

Texas' 36th Airborne Brigade disbanded

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Army National Guard announced Friday it has disbanded the 36th Airborne Brigade, which carried the name and flag of the famed 36th Infantry "Arrowhead" Division.

The Arrowhead division was the all-Texas unit that was hailed in World War II for its assault on Salerno, Italy, the Rapido River crossing and its march into Paris and Rome.

The 36th Airborne was the second largest command in the Texas Army Guard. Replacing it will be three new units — an airborne ranger company, a combat engineer battalion and an armored cavalry squadron.

Houston and Austin will be the dual locations of Company G, 143rd Infantry, an airborne ranger company that is being transferred from Puerto Rico.

The 386th Combat Engineers, which disbanded in 1968, will be reinstated as a support unit for a corps, the level above a division. It was part of the original 49th Armored Division, which was formed in World War II and is now the largest military command in Texas.

Two of the five companies in the engineer battalion will return to the same cities they left in 1968. Brenham once again will host Company B, and Company C will return to Pasadena.

The 3rd Squadron of the 163rd Armored Cavalry Regiment will have its headquarters in Dallas. The squadron is one of three under command of the 163rd Regiment in Bozeman, Mont., which was originally formed in 1867 as the 1st Montana Volunteers.

Although the reorganization will eliminate the 36th Airborne and two transportation units, total troop strength will increase slightly, the guard said.

Most of the 35 units affected will change from one type of unit to another. New units will be formed in Waco and Marshall.

China hopes U.S.-Iran break won't be benefit to Russians

PEKING (AP) — China's senior vice premier, Deng Xiaoping, said today he hopes President Carter's break in relations with Iran won't benefit the Soviet Union. He implied this could happen by drawing world attention away from the Russian intervention in Afghanistan.

The 75-year-old Chinese leader said he recognized that Carter was placed "in a very difficult position" by Iran's refusal to free the American hostages in Tehran and that breaking relations was a hard decision to make.

"As to the consequences of his action, we will have to wait and see. Anyway, we hope that this measure of the U.S. government in severing relations with Iran will not give rise to an even more complicated situation which would be of more benefit to the Soviet Union," he said in an exclusive interview with The Associated Press.

Though Deng described Chinese-American relations as good, he said "we have our differences" over Iran and that China is disappointed over the amount of military aid Washington offered Pakistan.

Carter offered Pakistan $200 million in military aid to offset the Soviet drive to crush the Moslem rebellion against neighboring Afghanistan's communist regime, but Pakistani President Mohammed Zia ul Haq called the sum "peanuts."

Asked whether he also believed the U.S. offer was too little, Deng replied: "We do have that feeling."

He said it was up to each country to make its own assessment of the danger in the area and to act accordingly.

Deng castigated the Soviet Union for what he called its expansionist policies, but refused to rule out the resumption of Chinese-Soviet normalization talks, ruptured in January following the Afghan intervention.

"Of course, at an appropriate time when it is necessary, there may still be some discussions," he said.

In an expansive mood and looking fit, Deng ranged over a wide spectrum of international and domestic issues in his 70-minute interview in the Great Hall of the People.

He was particularly anxious to make clear that the Chinese-American relationship, begun on a formal basis Jan. 1 1979, was a long-term strategic one and not for China's immediate advantage.

"So far as I am concerned personally, I am satisfied," he said in assessing China-U.S. ties. "And I also feel more and more politicians and statesmen in the United States are coming to realize the importance of Sino-American relations."

They recognize, he said, that these relations "are no tactical move, no matter of expedience or short-term duration but a major strategic decision."

What he said he meant, in simple terms, was that they are based on common anxiety over the expansionist policies of Moscow.

Deng said it was China's firm conviction that the old Czarist policy of driving southward to the Persian Gulf remains unchanged under the Soviets.

He added that various moderate proposals to resolve the Afghan crisis "are not realistic because they will not change Soviet policy."

But he also said there was little that China could do militarily in the circumstances.

"China can only give moral support to these people," he said. "The Russians have been saying they sent their troops into Afghanistan because of foreign intervention there. They mean first of all you and then China. How could China engage in intervention there?"

City sales tax rebates decline

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A drop in city sales tax rebates in April led State Comptroller Bob Bullock to comment Friday that the Texas economy needs to be closely watched over the next few months.

Bullock said Friday city tax rebates for April totaled $24.1 million, about $10 million less than in April 1979.

Bullock said, however, it is too early to say whether the lower monthly payment reflects a downward trend in taxable sales or is simply a seasonal adjustment.

"The next couple of months bear special attention and may give us a clear X-ray about what's happening and what to expect from the Texas economy," Bullock said in a statement.

He said rebate payments of the optional 1 percent city sales tax since January total $182.8 million, an increase of $27.6 million over the first four months of last year.

King Ranch a landmark, South Texas attraction

By WILLIAM G. JACKSON
Copley News Service

Everything comes big in south Texas, but nothing as large as the storied King Ranch which is so huge it all won't fit around the operation's headquarters at Kingsville.

Actually, the King Ranch is a group of farming and cattle spreads located four places in south Texas and in seven countries on five continents. Close to a million acres of land are under its control, making the ranch the largest in the world.

Headquarters outside Kingsville is on the original Santa

Descendants of the Kings and the Klebergs have kept the ranch operation abreast of the times, expanding their interests into animal husbandry, plant development, petroleum, and whatever else appeared essential. Perhaps the most famous contribution to agriculture from the ranch is the development of the Santa Gertrudis breed of cattle recognized in 1940 as the first new breed of cattle developed in the Western Hemisphere.

Gertrudis spread established by Capt. Richard King in 1853 on 75,000 acres purchased from the holders of a Spanish land grant issued in the 18th century.

King died in 1885 and the ranch operation was continued and expanded by his widow and Robert J. Kleberg, his son-in-law. At one time the King-Kleberg operation controlled an eighth of a billion south Texas acres, presently reduced to a mere $25,000.

Descendants of the Kings and the Klebergs have kept the ranch operation abreast of the times, expanding their interests into animal husbandry, plant development, petroleum, and whatever else appeared essential. Perhaps the most famous contribution to agriculture from the ranch is the development of the Santa Gertrudis breed of cattle recognized in 1940 as the first new breed of cattle developed in the Western Hemisphere.

Two years earlier the ranch purchased the 1936 Kentucky Derby winner, Bold Venture, and entered Thoroughbred horse breeding. Today King Ranch horses are known throughout the racing world.

Horses have always been a major part of the King activities since the founder paid more for one quarter horse stallion than he had spent for the entire ranch — $600. The first horse registered by the American Quarter Horse Association was a King Ranch stallion named Wimpy.

Horses are still used on the ranch to work cattle. In cutting a calf from the herd, it takes an animal with a lot of both horse and cow sense to get the job done. Old Sorrel, the granddaddy of all King quarter horses, was such an animal and his descendants can still be seen in the hundreds on the ranch today.

Part of the King Ranch is open to the public along a 12-mile loop road beginning at the entrance off Highway 141 immediately west of Kingsville. Recreational vehicle owners can easily navigate the tour with their rigs.

There is no charge for the tour but visitors must register at the entrance gate. Paul Kimberly was on duty as we entered and he offered a tape-recorded history and guide of the ranch for $5, a four-color magazine for $1, or, "you can go in without either and it won't cost you a cent — you're still welcome."

Visitors may stop virtually anywhere along the way to see the sorrels, Thoroughbreds and cattle. All phases of the operation are visible, including pens, barns, stables, offices and residential areas. Up near the headquarters one can imagine being on an old military base with storage buildings and quarters clustered around the beautiful old stable.

Varied forms of wildlife can be observed along the loop road and with luck a visitor may spot a javelina, wild turkey or bobcat. Through spring and summer many wildflowers bloom along the route. Lining the entrance road are rare Athel pine and ebony trees and much of the range is dotted with Kleberg grass, a hardy forage discovered and developed on the ranch.

The King Ranch has left its mark on south Texas.

Despite the odds against it, Barbette Davidson of Larkston, Washington, is still enjoying life with her pet — a tomcat named Buddy. Buddy was thought killed in an accident and Barbette, 8, buried him in her family's back yard. Five days later, she heard muffled meows and unearthed the box to find a wobbly, but otherwise unharmed, kitten. Seems he had used up only one of his proverbial "nine lives." (AP Laserphoto)

Day of fun, games planned at Saturday's MC round-up

A day of fun, entertainment and games is in store at Chaparral Round-Up Saturday for Midland College students and prospective high school students.

Sponsored by the Midland College Student Senate, the events will start at 10 a.m. and conclude at 6 p.m. with activities centered around Beal Plaza.

"We know that many MC students will come out, but we particularly want to invite all area high school students to attend this event," said chairman Judy Karcher. "This is an opportunity for the high school students to look around the campus and get acquainted with some of the college students," she said.

There will be food booths and music all day on the Beal Plaza with games and contests starting at 1 p.m.

The first contest is a pie-eating contest where contestants try to consume entire cream pies without using their hands in the shortest possible time.

A roller skating contest is on tap at 1:30 p.m. with the cow chip throwing contest following at 2 p.m. and a co-ed three legged race at 2:30 p.m.

A talent showcase is scheduled to start at 3 p.m. with cash awards to winners.

For those with the stomach to enter, a jalapeno-eating contest is slated at 3:30 p.m. with the winner being the person who can gobble ten of peppers in the shortest time.

Other contests in the Round-Up include a watermelon eating contest, tug-of-war, 440-yard dash, 880-yard run and two-mile run.

How to buy suits

NEW YORK (AP) — Buying a suit is a major investment these days, says an expert in the men's clothing field who cautions that the choice should be made on the basis of quality as well as style.

Durability is an important factor in selecting a suit, adds Marvin A. Blumenfeld of April-Marcus Inc., a merchandising consulting firm which represents more than 140 men's clothing stores around the country. He offers these tips on shopping for a suit:

—Check your appearance by standing in front of a triple mirror. If the garment doesn't look good on you, don't consider it, no matter what its other positive aspects.

—Check the fit. If the suit needs major alterations, reject it. It will be too costly and you will probably not be satisfied with the results.

—Consider the style and color. Deep, darker tones, subdued patterns and stripes help make you look taller and slimmer.

—Note the seams. Are they puckered or do they lie smooth? Do the seams in the trousers hang straight or are they jagged? Better-made garments do not have puckered or jagged seams.

—Examine the collar. Does it lie flat or curl up? Collars on better garments lie flat because more care is given to the tailoring.

DEAR ABBY

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Last summer my doctor told me I have multiple sclerosis. He says there is no way of knowing how fast this disease will progress, but eventually I will be paralyzed and in a wheelchair.

Sometimes I am fine; at other times I can hardly do for myself. We have three children. The oldest is 13, and I need her help in caring for the younger ones. She knows that I am not well, but she doesn't know what is wrong with me. My husband says we shouldn't tell her yet because it would be putting too heavy a burden on a 13-year-old.

I think if she knows I have multiple sclerosis she will be more understanding and cooperative.

What do you think, Abby? Perhaps some of your readers have been down this road. — PREPARED FOR THE WORST

DEAR PREPARED: I disagree with your husband. At 13, your daughter could be well able to handle the truth, and I think she should be told. And please don't accept your doctor's gloomy prognosis so readily. Faith, and a more optimistic attitude, could keep you out of a wheelchair for a long time — and maybe forever. I hope so. God bless.

DEAR ABBY: I know they call a person who has had a sex change operation a "transsexual." But what do they call a nun who has had a sex change operation? — CURIOUS IN WINONA

DEAR CURIOUS: A transsister?

DEAR ABBY: I am 18 and have this problem with my boyfriend. We've been going together for nearly two years, and when we go to a movie or out to eat, he thinks I should pay my own way. I suppose it's only fair because I'm working too; but this is what bothers me. He asks me for the money in private and then pays for both of us in public so it won't make him look bad. He says it's embarrassing for a guy to be with a girl who lays down her own cash.

Well, it makes me feel bad to see him pretending to be a big shot. But on the other hand, when a girl pays her own way, it makes her look like she couldn't get a guy any other way.

What do you think Abby? should a girl pay her own way? And if she does, should she be up-front about it? Or should she slip it to the guy so he won't look cheap? — DIXIE THE SHIXTE

DEAR DIXIE: If the girl wants to pay her own way, and her date has no objections, why not? But if she pays, she should do so openly. And the guy who would accept a girl's money privately and then make a big show of "treating" her is a phony.

(Do you wish you had more friends? Get Abby's booklet, "How To Be Popular: You're Never Too Young or Too Old." Send $1 with a long, self-addressed, stamped (28 cents) envelope to Abby in care of this newspaper.

Former attorney general featured at meeting

ODESSA - Permian Historical Society's spring meeting will take place Saturday in the First Presbyterian Church here.

Registration and coffee begins at 9 a.m., followed by a business meeting at 9:30.

Keynote speaker at the luncheon

'Georgia O'Keeffe' to be reviewed

On Monday, the reviewer for the Book Review Unit of the Midland Woman's Club will be Dorothy H. Perkins. Her subject will be "Georgia O'Keeffe," the Viking book on her life and paintings, including a series of color slides of Miss O'Keeffe's works.

Miss O'Keeffe, a 93-year-old artist who still lives a productive life in the red hills of New Mexico, has been called "a national treasure."

Miss Perkins, a retired English teacher, has been a Midland resident since 1946. She is a graduate of Texas Woman's University and holds a master's degree from Middlebury College in Vermont. She held the position of chairman of the English Department at Midland High School, and has been active in educational and community affairs.

will be John Ben Sheppard of Odessa, former Attorney General of Texas. His topic will be "Permistitions." Other speakers during the day include Sonia Lusk of Big Spring, who will address the society on "Water Sources in Early West Texas," and Noble H. Smith of Van Horn, who will speak on "Evelyn Scarborough Line-bery History Awareness Program: The Present and Perspective." Bobbie Jean Klepper of Odessa will talk on "The White-Pool House," and Ruth Fleck Briley of Odessa will discuss "Painted Canyon."

Noble H. Smith of Van Horn will present the Permian Pioneer Award to Rosa Lee Wylie of Van Horn and Oso W. Pool of Odessa will receive the same award from Commissioner J.E. Pressly of Odessa.

A reception for honorees will be held immediately following the meeting. Ms. Klepper is secretary and treasurer of the society. Other officers are Dr. Roger Olien of Midland, president; Dr. J. Tillapaugh, first vice president, and Nancy R. McKinley of Midland, second vice president.

Lear to donate $500,000 to ERA

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Television producer Norman Lear plans to donate $500,000 to help promote the Equal Rights Amendment as part of a memorial fund commemorating the death of Edith Bunker, Archie Bunker's long-suffering wife in Lear's popular "All in the Family" television series.

Edith, the very model of an oppressed housewife, called "the dingbat" by her husband, is supposed to die before the new season begins in September. Jean Stapleton, the actress who played Edith, is not making any more appearances because she wants to pursue other roles.

Lear and his wife, Frances, will present the check for $500,000 from his Tandem Productions to the National Organization of Women and the National Women's Political Caucus in New York today, Lear said Wednesday.

"We hope that just as people send donations to charities in memory of their loved ones, they will continue to send in donations to build this into a $2 million or a $3 million fund," Lear said.

Ironically, Edith Bunker probably would not have supported amendment, says Ms. Stapleton, herself an avid ERA supporter.

"She couldn't have understood it," the actress said. "The world began to touch her, the writers brought a gradual and honest growth, but we didn't get that far."

Long involved in political activities, Lear recently spent more than $70,000 on newspaper ads for the presidential campaign of Rep. John B. Anderson. Mrs. Lear has organized a fund-raising event in Los Angeles Saturday for the campaign of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy.

"Sometimes you throw it away," Lear says of his contributions to political causes. "But I'm not giving to the individual candidates, I'm giving to the process. We have to set an example, those of us who can."

It's Barbara Larsen of Midland, and the two are discussing the upcoming annual Iris Show slated by the society April 20 at Lancaster Garden Center. The doors will be open to the public from 1:30 to 5 p.m. and entries can be submitted between 7:30 and 10:30 a.m. ...rested person can enter the show. Jones is president of the society and Mrs. Larsen is vice president. Not shown is Willadene Henderson, show chairman, and Ann Carroll, co-chairman. Theme of the show just happens to be "Good Grief Charlie Brown, That's an Iris." (Staff Photo)

Ex-resident to speak to city Woman's Club

Continuing the theme of the club president, Mrs. W.W. Smith, for this club year, "Women and Changing Times, the Midland Woman's Club will have as its speaker Thursday Mary Barnett, widely recognized batik artist from Santa Fe, N.M., and a former Midlander.

Mrs. Barnett taught art for many years at Midland High School, and holds a bachelor's degree in art from Texas Woman's University, as well as a master's degree in art education from Texas Tech University. The artist has been seriously producing batiks for the past 10 years, during which time she has explored and developed many new approaches to the age old technique of using wax resist and dye on cloth to create compositions. One of the new approaches is the addition of stichery and quilting to her large custom designed decorative pieces.

Mrs. Barnett's batiks will be exhibited at the Midland Woman's Club from May 1 to May 31 and may be viewed and purchased there. A reception will be held at 11:30 a.m. Thursday, followed by the luncheon at noon and Mrs. Barnett's presentation at 12:30 p.m. Reservations must be made through a Woman's Club member or by calling 684-6811.

Men select furnishings

By BARBARA MAYER AP Newsfeatures

There is a new home-furnishings customer on the horizon. In a word, it is men. Although women still make most of the buying decisions, today's soaring divorce rate and the growing number of single, male households are causing the home-furnishings industry to recognize the importance of men on their own as customers. For example:

—A consumer decorating magazine devoted most of a recent issue to men's decorating problems and a showing of homes of men who live alone.

—A manufacturer of traditional American furniture is sponsoring a national ad in which a man who lives alone discusses his interest in good quality, moderately priced, un-faddish furniture.

—And in countless retail-store model rooms and magazine layouts, there is a growing emphasis on studio apartments and on ideas for converting space to accommodate children who visit only on weekends.

"Census figures show that the number of men living alone has almost doubled in less than 10 years," says Joann Barwick, editor of House Beautiful, which devoted its April issue to decorating for men.

Ms. Barwick, who estimates that about 15 percent of the magazine's readers are men, said House Beautiful planned a special issue for men because of a recent increase in letters from men requesting decorating help and "a gut feeling" that men were not being satisfied by the type of material usually found in decorating magazines.

"Men are definitely less knowledgeable than women on decorating. But they are learning fast," she said. And after talking to men across the country, the magazine's editors came to the conclusion that the stereotyped bachelor pad is not what most men aspire to in home decor. "The men we interviewed prefer a comfortable, homey atmosphere," she said.

Men on their own are most likely to buy sleep sofas, wall systems and modular seating, according to Joe Ruggiero, advertising director for Ethan Allen

Inc., a maker of traditional American furniture. A current Ethan Allen ad talks about buying furniture from a single man's point-of-view.

Are single men different from single women as a market? Ruggiero doesn't know for sure, since his company has not done any research along these lines. "But we do know that a single market exists and is growing. People don't get married so quickly. Today, male singles are feathering their nests just like their female counterparts," he said.

Among retailers, Bloomingdale's was an early spotter of the male home-furnishings market. "As a New York retailer we have always had a large contingent of single, career men as customers," said Carl Levine, senior vice president. As early as 1971, Bloomingdale's began merchandising to this type of customer with a series of model rooms for singles.

"Nevertheless, we find that single men who come here to shop often seek help. Sometimes they have a girl friend or a decorator in tow. And a high percentage of the customers who use our design service are single men," he added.

While some who cater to singles see no difference between men and women customers, Carleton Varney, a New York designer, has found some differences he views as significant.

"Men are more likely to be interested in a lighting system, in wall washers and mood lighting. They are not really lamp people. Women, on the other hand, are into lamps. Women buy the thing; men buy the concept," he said.

Varney has noticed that men will rarely buy wall-to-wall carpeting, while women do not on it. Men spend as much, often more, but they have different priorities, he said.

Color preferences also differ. Women often choose pastels and soft hues while men prefer stronger colors such as navy blue and rust. However, certain colors such as deep red and neutrals are chosen by both men and women.

"But if I say to a client, 'Let's get the chests out of the bedroom and build them into the closet,' a man will often go for it. But a woman usually will not. Women clients often ask for a bathroom closet to be fitted out to store all their lingerie. Men never do," said Varney.

Some famous last words

AMHERST, Mass. (AP) — Tallulah Bankhead muttered "codeine bourbon."
 "The show looks great," enthused The Great Ziegfeld.
 "Damn!" cried Joan Crawford. "Don't you dare ask God to help me."

 They all were on their death beds, speaking their last words. Such is the stuff of "Exits," a new book by two Massachusetts men who thought for years that it would be interesting to write about people's dying moments and final words.

Reaction to their project ranged from "weird" to "It'll sell a zillion copies," recalls Scott Slater, a 27-year-old Hampshire College senior who collaborated on the project with former high school classmate Alec Solomita. But the opinion that counted was E.P. Dutton's, and the publishing house offered the two men a contract for the book after one meeting in New York in 1978.

Slater and Solomita eagerly headed for Harvard's Widener Library to begin research on what they conceived as "an entertainment." Almost immediately, they became depressed.

"It was nice outside," recalls Slater, "and we'd be reading about all these deaths: from disease, injuries, constipation... but after a while we got a detachment that doctors and nurses must develop."

They also found that, as Samuel Johnson noted years before, "When a man knows he is to be hanged in a fortnight, it concentrates his mind wonderfully."

Electrical impulses can cure fractures

CHICAGO (AP) — The federal government has recognized what researchers have claimed for years — that electrical impulses can stimulate bone growth and cure fractures that won't heal otherwise, the Journal of the American Medical Association reports.

Researchers won U.S. Food and Drug Administration approval for three devices that heal fractures with electric current, an article in the April 11 issue of JAMA says. The current stimulates the bones to grow and repair themselves, the article says.

The treatment is an alternative to a bone graft. Both techniques have an 80 percent to 90 percent successful healing rate, the article says. "To put it bluntly, electricity works," said Dr. Carl T. Brighton, professor and chairman of orthopedic surgery at the University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine.

However, the article said doctors are not certain why electricity works to stimulate bone growth, except that it appears to trigger certain chemical processes that normally take place during bone development.

About 100,000 people in the United States each year suffer a bone fracture that does not heal in three months with normal treatments, the article says.

Since 1970, when he began clinical trials, Brighton has used electricity on 210 patients whose fractures had been unhealed for an average of 2.6 years. With the therapy, nearly 85 percent of the patients were healed in 12 weeks or less.

Brighton's device, one of the three approved, involves installing an electrical circuit beneath the patient's cast. A small battery in the plaster emits a steady electric signal to a cathode electrode surgically implanted near the fracture. The current is applied 12 hours a day for up to 12 weeks, and the electrode is later removed.

Another device approved by the FDA was developed by Dr. C. Andrew L. Bassett, professor of orthopedic surgery at Columbia University's College of Physicians and Surgeons.

Mrs. Kopechne favors Kennedy

SWIFTWATER, Pa. (AP) — Gwendolyn Kopechne, whose daughter Mary Jo died in Sen. Edward Kennedy's sunken car at Chappaquiddick Island, favors the Massachusetts Democrat in the 1980 presidential race, her husband said Thursday. He said that he was undecided.

In a rare breach of the couples' guarded privacy, Mrs. Kopechne said through her husband, Joseph, that she thinks President Carter is too conservative.

Mrs. Kopechne does not blame Kennedy for her only child's death on July 18, 1969, Kopechne said.

Miss Kopechne was a passenger in Kennedy's car when it went off a bridge into a tidewater basin on the small island off Cape Cod, Mass., after she and Kennedy left a party of Kennedy friends and staff. Miss Kopechne drowned. The accident was not reported for 10 hours, and Kennedy later pleaded guilty to leaving the scene of an accident and received a suspended two-month jail sentence, a year's probation, and had his driver's license revoked for a year.

Kopechne said he has not made up his mind yet who will receive his vote in Pennsylvania's April 22 primary.

"But I will say this. I won't be voting for the man who is president at the present time," Kopechne said.

Kopechne, a tall, rothin man with long, combed-back hair, agreed to be interviewed only briefly.

He excused his wife, saying she had not been feeling well lately and that she suffered from arthritis in her hand.

Kopechne, however, agreed to ask his wife whom she favored in the presidential race and expressed surprise that she said she was leaning toward Kennedy.

"So that's how she feels," he said. "We've never talked about it ... I'm glad she got that off her chest."

In an interview in the kitchen of the couples' secluded mountain home, Kopechne said he holds no anger toward Kennedy, despite the accident, and added that his wife feels the same.

"I was bitter for a long time," Kopechne said, his voice trailing off. And now? "Not really," Kopechne said.

Kopechne said his wife does not blame Kennedy for the accident.

"She has a brother, who has had a similar accident," Kopechne said. "He's a Republican, and he mentioned to me that he had a similar reaction to Kennedy's. She was quite surprised that he felt that way."

Kopechne said his wife remains bitter about the behavior of Kennedy's cousin, Joseph Gargan, and Kennedy's friend, Paul Markham, who knew about the accident but did not immediately report it to authorities.

"She feels Gargan and Markham, they're the ones who possibly could have done something and didn't," Kopechne said.

Kopechne did not say why he opposes Carter's re-election. "He (Carter) may turn out to be a great president, but the way things are going, at this moment, it doesn't seem so."

A long-time Democrat, Kopechne said in recent years he has become "more of an independent."

The Kopechnes, who received some money in a settlement stemming from their daughter's death, moved to this wooded, Pocono Mountains resort area in Monroe County five years ago.

They live in relative isolation in a handsome brick-faced home atop a mountain that features a commanding view of the area.

Stepping stones lead from the driveway to the couple's front door, but a visitor is directed to the back. There, a sign refers inquiries to the Kopechnes' Wilkes-Barre lawyer, Joseph Flannigan.

A neighbor, asking not to be identified, said the Kopechnes never speak of their daughter's accident. Local residents, respecting the couple's privacy, do not bring up the subject, the neighbor said.

Marriage wrecked by tornado

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — One year ago, Ron and Mona Brake were a happy, healthy young married couple, driving toward a homemakers' class at a shopping center in the southern part of town.

Today, Ron has had 16 operations on his left leg, Mona has lost both legs and their marriage is coming to an end.

Their pain began the night of April 10, 1979, when a triple-tailed tornado roared through their city, killing 46 persons, injuring thousands more and leaving permanent scars — physical and emotional — with Ron and Mona.

THE BRAKES DROVE right into the path of the tornado. Ron, 24, is still on crutches after four bone grafts and a dozen skin grafts for his damaged left leg, plus the removal of his spleen.

Mona, 22, his high-school sweetheart and wife of almost five years, lost both legs. She also has moved in with her parents after filing for divorce.

"It was a marriage like any other marriage," she said. "It had some pressures, some problems. This (the tornado) just triggered it. We still talk and everything. It's just not the same."

Mona had several operations after her legs were crushed during the tornado. For days, doctors gave her little chance to live.

But she has been fitted for artificial legs, gone through six months' rehabilitation at a Dallas medical center, bought a new car and taken a full-time job as a secretary at a bank.

"I just didn't know how she was going to make it," said her mother, Wanda Brockman. "I thought she'd be dependent on us for everything, but she's not. She's so independent."

RON IS TRYING to work his way back, also. His crutches hamper his ability to carry things, so he had to give up his shipping clerk's position for a desk job, but said that suits him.

"I've always done pretty much whatever they wanted me to do," he said, referring to his employers at G.H. Foster Co.

But he misses Mona, and said her family is partially to blame for the breakup. "They seemed to change towards me after the tornado," he said. "Me and Mona could probably get along, but no way I can get along with her family and she's living with them now."

The Brakes are trying to rebuild separate lives from wreckage the tornado left behind, but they can't escape the memory of last year's terrible storm.

Last week, dark clouds again came boiling out of the west toward Wichita Falls, and the tornado alert sirens sounded.

Anderson creating little stir

...but there's some talk around the White House

By JAMES GERSTENZANG

WASHINGTON (AP) — The possibility that Rep. John Anderson may run an independent presidential campaign is stirring little outward concern at the White House, although conventional wisdom says the congressman would draw from President Carter's support.

There is "some" informal talk, in passing, about what impact a third-party campaign would have on Carter, should he win the Democratic presidential nomination and face Republican front-runner Ronald Reagan in the November election.

Even if there is no sign that Carter's political assistants are trying to head off a third-party run by Anderson, the president's campaign organization has taken one step tied to an Anderson campaign: it reportedly is researching the laws in the 50 states governing third party races to understand how a third party candidate can get on the ballot.

"But there is surprisingly little," said one White House aide who asked not to be identified by name. "It's sort of pointless for us to worry about it. There's nothing we can do about it."

Presumably, the apparent lack of concern will change as Carter gets closer to the nomination and an Anderson bid looks more certain, and the White House source said: "We'll deal with it when and if we need to."

But even if there is no sign that Carter's political assistants are trying to head off a third-party run by Anderson, the president's campaign organization has taken one step tied to an Anderson campaign: it reportedly is researching the laws in the 50 states governing third party races to understand how a third party candidate can get on the ballot.

Anderson has made no commitment about running as an independent if he fails to wrest the GOP presidential nomination from Reagan. On Thursday, the congressman told the American Society of Newspaper Editors he will remain in the GOP, even if he decides to run against the party's presidential nominee this fall.

Liberal supporters have been urging Anderson to challenge both Reagan and Carter for the presidency if he loses the primary fight.

The White House official, generally a good barometer of political thinking in the Carter camp, acknowledged that it was conventional wisdom that because of his support in the liberal wing of the Republican Party, Anderson, an Illinois congressman, would hurt Carter more than Reagan.

But the official said there were some indications that Anderson has been drawing equally from Carter and Reagan supporters.

When the president of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers visited the White House for a few minutes on Wednesday to endorse Carter, the following events occurred:

— A Labor Department aide distributed the union official's press statement;

— A White House official made sure reporters knew the union leader, Charles H. Pillard, would be available for a news conference in the White House driveway;

— The same White House official asked a truck driver, blocked by reporters and television technicians, to wait until Pillard's news conference was done — a switch from normal protocol, under which the reporters would be told to move.

Asked whether he had suggested to the Carter political operation that he might want to publicize his endorsement, or whether the suggestion was made by the White House and Labor Department, Pillard said: "Let's say it was a mutual meeting both ways."

The union has about 1 million members, including 60,000 in Pennsylvania, where the next presidential primary election will be held, on April 22.

Asked how the union members would demonstrate the union's support for Carter, Pillard said:

"We'll use phone banks, we'll use money, and we'll use our members to get out and vote."

These are the months of the crises — Iran and Afghanistan — of visits by Sadat of Egypt and Begin of Israel, of the rewritten budget, of inflation and the oncoming recession. But you'd never know it from a look at the White House the other day.

One afternoon, the first in which the cleared sky, the balmy temperatures, and the sweet smell of blossoms all confirmed the arrival of spring, the White House press rooms were all but busy.

At different times that day, one of press secretary Jody Powell's midweek days off, one normally active reporter busied herself by viewing a silent movie on television. Another reporter amused himself listening to the snores of a television technician.

One White House spokesman spent the day monitoring the debate at the annual meeting of the American Society of Newspaper Editors.

Two technicians invented a new form of paddleball in a corridor.

And another reporter just went for a 50-minute walk, during which, he related later, he spoke to no one.

YMCA plans 10th summer of camping, director says

Another summer of YMCA camping will begin June 2, David Graunke, camping director of the Midland YMCAs, announced today.

"This year marks the 10th year of Y camping in Midland and the 97th year since the first YMCA camp in the world opened in upstate New York," he said.

Last year more than 1.7 million people participated in YMCA camping across the United States. In Midland, camp attendance reached an all-time high in 1979 with 356 campers in the day camp program.

Highly skilled, well-trained counselors and a dynamic program are two reasons for the camp's popularity, Graunke said. The Y's safety record also ranks Y camps high on parents' popularity lists, he indicated.

"Certainly the variety of camp programs play a major role in our camp success," Graunke said.

The Midland YMCAs will operate five camps this summer, with kinder camp for children aged 4 to 6 and day camp for those 6 to 12. Six sessions for each age group will be offered running from June 2-6, June 9-20, June 23-27, July 7-18, July 21 to Aug. 1 and Aug. 4-15.

The caravan camp sessions will include a Florida trip from June 16-26, a Smokies trip July 7-16 and a Rocky Mountain trip July 28 to Aug. 6. Graunke at 682-2551 or dropping in at the Y at 800 N. Big Spring St.

Marlin's hot waters still draw visitors

MARLIN, Texas (AP) — Marlin once drew thousands of visitors who swore by the curative powers of the town's bubbling mineral waters. Now, geologists and government officials are flocking here to observe an achievement in geothermal energy.

By next winter, the Torbett-Hutchings-Smith Memorial Hospital is scheduled to begin heating its water and air with energy from the famous mineral waters that run beneath the town.

A geothermal well on the hospital parking lot will pump the naturally heated water, which is expected to reduce the hospital's natural-gas use by about 85 percent. Experts say the project has "enormous" potential for use in industry.

The water that will be used by the hospital is pumped from a well that reaches deeper into the rock strata than those wells that produce the bathing waters. The deeper well produces hotter water; the hotter the water the greater its efficiency for the project. And water from the deeper rock formations does not contain as many minerals as water used for bathing, reducing its corrosive effect on pipes and pumps.

At 3,885 feet, the water is measured at 153 degrees. With a small pump, the artesian flow accelerates from 75 to 300 gallons a minute.

"We think the well is capable of producing 425 gallons per minute," said J.D. Norris, hospital administrator, project director and chairman of the Chamber of Commerce energy conservation committee.

Norris, after watching the hospital's gas bill rise tenfold, was largely responsible for obtaining $662,000 in funds from the Chamber, the U.S. Department of Energy and the Texas Energy Development Fund for the experiment.

The hospital was selected for a grant in 1978 after U.S. Rep. Bob Poage of Waco asked the hospital to apply for a federal program of field experiments in geothermal energy.

Locomotive successfully moved

QUINCY, Ill. (AP) — As a freezing rain whipped spectators on the river bank, Jesse Wade coaxed a 253-ton antique steam locomotive over a condemned bridge, accomplishing the trickiest part of a 52-mile rail odyssey that some said was impossible.

"Well, we made it," the 62-year-old maverick tycoon shouted jubilantly from the cabin after the engine inched its way across the span from a Mississippi River island where it had rested for two decades.

"I'm very happy," he said. "It's hard to enter into this kind of thing with so many people saying it can't be done. But I never had any reservations."

Wade is attempting to move the 1906 black and silver iron horse from a park on Quinsippi Island to his Purple Martin Junction nature museum in Griggsville, 52 miles away.

His plan to lay temporary track and winch the engine over a landfill to a Burlington Northern spur has caused quite a stir.

The city's big professional mover predicted the stone bridge, closed to rail traffic for 20 years, would collapse. The local American Legion post fought the move from the Quincy park and the Burlington Northern Railroad feared the old engine would lock up and destroy some of its track.

To reach the spur, Wade and a crew of amateurs started laying 4,000 feet of temporary track last week. Now that the locomotive, a third the length of a football field, is on shore, workers will lay an additional 800 feet of temporary track in hopes of linking to a spur so a diesel can pull the engine the rest of the way.

"If we don't have any big hangups, we should turn it over to the Burlington Northern on Friday," Wade said.

Between 50 and 100 persons gathered at the river bank in freezing temperatures and rain to watch Wade cross the span.

"Wouldn't have missed it," said Jim Martin, a factory worker from Decatur who drove 130 miles. "You don't get to see good old individualism much anymore these days."

The locomotive, old No. 3007, was retired two decades ago from the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad, now the Burlington Northern. Railroad buffs estimate the engine traveled 1 million miles on passenger runs between Chicago and Kansas City.

When the Quincy Park District decided to get rid of the engine, which had suffered at the hands of weather and vandals in the island park, Wade decided it would be the perfect addition to the 34 purple passenger cars he arranged over the last nine years as a museum to house his art and Indian relics.

Wade, who started his fortune with the manufacture of television antennas, intends to restore the engine and replace the missing parts. The cost of the venture is expected to be several thousand dollars, including $2,000 offered the park board as payment for the engine. But he is reluctant to say how much the total cost will be.

"That's one of the big questions," said Wade, who is footing the bill himself. "The first question was whether we could move it at all. The second question was whether the bridge would collapse. Now the third question is how much is this whole thing's going to cost."

Entebbe-style raid possible?

LONDON (AP) — American troops might be able to launch an Entebbe-style raid to free the 50 U.S. hostages in Tehran, a veteran British defense correspondent said today, but their problem would be getting back out.

Clare Hollingworth of the London Daily Telegraph said paratroopers could spring a surprise attack by dropping into the U.S. Embassy compound in the early hours of the morning.

But "the vital problem of evacuation would remain."

"The Turks will not allow the American NATO bases in southeastern Turkey to be used. Nor, of course, would any Moslem Arab country cooperate. The only safe place from which U.S. carriers could mount a rescue operation would be the Indian Ocean, which would bring the range for evacuation of the hostages up to 700 miles — an unthinkable distance," she wrote.

"Harrier vertical take-off aircraft can be refueled in flight, but the American compound is so covered with shade-giving trees and shrubs that no more than two aircraft could land at the same time — some experts say only one — and their passenger load would be a maximum of two adults per plane.

"If a major military operation were mounted, which also took control of Tehran airport with the object of ferrying the hostages by helicopter from the embassy to the airport during the night, Iranian soldiers would be able to rouse themselves in time to shoot down the helicopters.

Bike makers not ready to ride to work

By TED KNUTSEN
The Washington Post

CHICAGO — Oak Park

suburbanite Jay Townley wouldn't commute by bicycle to work every day to save energy even if the president asked him to.

Even if that president's name were Schwinn.

Which it is at Townley's company.

The reluctance of those — such as Schwinn's marketing vice president — who have the greatest personal financial stake in the growth of the bike industry to mount their own products in the battle for energy conservation bodes ill for the Department of Transportation's expected announcement May 1 to peddle the bicycle as the next big gas saver.

Estimates are that the nation could save 87,000 barrels of oil a day if 1 million commuters took to the streets on bikes. And Phil Burke of the Bicycle Manufacturers Association says "long range, the bicycle has to be perceived as a viable transportation alternative."

But this opinion isn't shared universally within the industry, much less within the government and the public.

"I do not think the bicycle will ever be used for transportation," said Thomas Albers, vice president of finances for Huff Manufacturing, which claims to be the largest domestic producer, with 35 percent of the bicycle market.

After a five-year recovery from the 47 percent decline in sales that followed the bike boom in 1975, the industry faces its share of potholes.

And not just the kind that literally can throw you for a loop.

The credit crunch already has begun to hurt. Most bikes in this country are sold through mass-market retailers, and Albers sees sales softening at K Mart, Penny's and Montgomery Ward's, which sell Huff-made bikes under their own brand names.

Murray, Ohio, which supplies Sears, reportedly is experiencing a slight dip in sales after a strong first quarter this year.

The privately owned Schwinn company may not be hit as hard by the credit squeeze, though.

Schwinn always has sold through its own small franchised outlets where the straight-cash sales is more common.

The big question for the industry today is whether the public will look at the bicycle as a pleasure purchase that can be deferred or as a necessity to get from place to place without paying through the nose at the gas pump.

And compounding that is the suggestion that as people spend more of their leisure time at home, they might see the bicycle as a cheap way of spending their time without taking a vacation.

Last year's gasoline shortages and price increases led to a 20 percent increase in domestic bicycle sales and the industry's first billion-dollar year. Spring sell-outs of the year's production were common in the six major companies in the market.

Although industry observers foresee some growth, they don't believe the momentum of 1979 will continue this year. It is generally agreed that the sales rise was caused more by the shortage of gasoline than by the price increases.

Some people were buying bicycles and storing them for emergencies just like gas cans, according to Townley.

Still, he saw a strength in last year's market because of the increased activity in repair shops. People were bringing their vehicles to be reoled and to have flats fixed. Which to Townley meant, that bikes bought during the boom were being, well, recycled.

The numbers of early teens will be declining in this decade but they remain the bread and butter of the industry. It was the 12 to 15-year-olds who were purchasing multi-speed, lightweight bikes during the boom and they still are buying. The two-bike teen is common. The big growth in this age group is in Moto-cross, the bicycle version of motorcycle racing.

Townley says Schwinn just "can't make enough" of those bikes, which retail for nearly $500.

For whatever reasons — energy and low-cost labor being the most likely — Oklahoma seems to be the center of the manufacturers' efforts in any bike boom.

Last June, Schwinn announced it was buying land in an industrial park outside of Tulsa City. Three days after the United Auto Workers won a certification vote at Schwinn's factories in Chicago, a press officer for the company, would say only that there is no construction "currently" on the site.

Over in Ponca City, Okla., Huff will be opening a plant this summer capable of producing 1 million bicycles a year, a move that causes some recessionary shivers in at least one analyst.

"The timing of the opening of the plant could be better," said Hal Vogel, who watches the leisure industries for Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith. He tempered this pessimism by noting that Huff plans to open the plant gradually and will need the capacity for 10 years from now when construction costs likely will be significantly higher.

Huff was listed on the New York Stock Exchange last year for the first time. From Vogel's viewpoint, it hasn't done much.

Merrill Lynch is rating the company as neutral now and a buy for the long term.

Whatever President Carter might say and do on May 1, his first officially declared bike day, the feeling is that local and state governments will have a much greater role in determining how much the bicycle will be used as a transportation alternative and how this could affect the fortunes of the industry.

Polio: Once its very name conveyed hopeless terror

25 years ago vaccine was developed that marked the beginning of its end

By ROBERT LOCKE
AP Science Writer

LA JOLLA, Calif. (AP) — Polio. The word once conveyed the same hopeless terror that cancer does today.

Every summer for years the polio virus raced about the country, leaving behind shriveled arms and legs, shiny steel braces and the metal cylinders called iron lungs. Most of its victims were children.

The annual terror was lifted 25 years ago.

In Ann Arbor, Mich., on April 12, 1955, results of a nationwide test of a vaccine against polio were revealed: "The vaccine works."

That spring, youngsters lined up in schools and clinics, even on street corners, for the vaccination shots that marked the beginning of the end of polio as a major health threat.

Within seven years, the incidence of all types of polio had fallen 97 percent from a 1950-54 average of 38,727 cases a year.

The world was lavish in its praise and gratitude for the 40-year-old scientist-doctor who was credited with the conquest.

Dr. Jonas Edward Salk, then of the University of Pittsburgh, was toasted by presidents and kings. A generation of parents still calls him a saint.

Newsweek magazine called his work "probably the most important medical story of the century." Life magazine said: "A Hero's Discovery Is Put to Work ... A Nation Thanks Dr. Jonas Salk."

Demands and requests poured in after the announcement in Ann Arbor. Salk recalled in a recent interview at his beloved Salk Institute for Biological Studies near San Diego. "The public relations chap from Pittsburgh lost his voice in those few days," he said.

"There was suddenly a release from this great fear — the dread that occurred each summer," he continued. "People had prayed for it and they saw it in the realm of the miraculous. From my point of view, it was an exaggeration of what we did. I didn't take it seriously."

Salk, his gray hair curling at his shirt collar, looked back across the years: "I simply built upon the contributions of others and added my own. In a way, I was in the right place at the right time and I had the capacity to pull it all together."

Hikers gathering for start of 4,500-mile 'HikaNation'

SAN FRANCISCO

(AP) — Dozens of hikers are heading for San Francisco from across the country for the start of "HikaNation," a one-year, 4,500-mile trek to Washington, D.C. which begins this weekend.

Mike McReynolds, trek organizer, said more than 80 hikers are signed up to go the full distance. They will gather on the Polo Field in Golden Gate Park on Saturday morning and hoof

Work planned near six flags it to the foot of the San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge for a night's encampment.

"Anyone who wants to walk is welcome," said McReynolds. "The reason for the event is to bring the American public the fact that hiking is a healthy outdoor activity and to demonstrate that we need more trails, not only in the rural and wilderness areas, but in urban centers."

McReynolds said the state Department of Transportation agreed to open two lanes of the bridge, which connects San Francisco and the East Bay, to foot traffic for a couple of hours after the hikers begin about 6 a.m.

"We expect more than 25,000 people to show up to cross the bridge, in addition to the 80 hikers on the Hikaathon," he said.

McReynolds said the transcontinental hikers will carry backpacks and camp at night. They will be supported by a van, bringing up the rear with food and other necessities. He estimated it will cost each hiker about $3,000 for the trip.

"Some people have quit their jobs to make this hike," he said. "They've taken a leave of absence. One kid down in Sunnyvale, Steve Haskell, has sold off virtually everything he owns to raise money for this event."

Nobel Laureate Glenn T. Seaborg, 67, is a member of the HikaNation organizing committee.

McReynolds said those finishing the long hike to the nation's capital in May or June, 1981, will present to "whoever the President is," a scroll with "the name of every mayor of every town, village and city that we pass through."

Some cities on the planned route include Tonopah, Nev.; Monticello, Utah; Independence, Mo.; and Harper's Ferry, Penn.

infection. About once in several million vaccinations, the immunized child or someone he or she contacts comes down with polio. There is still no cure.

Salk cited these cases and said, "Some regard that as a significant problem — primarily the victims. And some regard it as a trivial problem: the price we have to pay for the vaccine. But some of us have raised the question of whether we have to pay any price for the eradication of polio."

No cases of paralytic polio are blamed on the Salk vaccine, which is no longer produced in this country, although small amounts are imported.

Salk returned to polio research a few years ago, trying to improve his vaccine, defending its performance and reporting its impact in countries such as Sweden, Finland and the Netherlands where it is used exclusively.

New polio cases turn up periodically around the world and they are appearing by the thousands in developing countries.

"There is ... satisfaction that a solid piece of work had been done," Salk said. "But I know it is possible until this piece of work is carried to its logical conclusion, I will feel not quite satisfied — not quite fulfilled."

"There is a way of eliminating the disease — of avoiding the occasional vaccine-associated cases. A method exists. Why have we not gone all the way?"

"But," he added, "it required an enormous amount of courage — faith if you like — based upon a conviction. And my convictions were based upon very solid experimental data."

The research was funded by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. The foundation, probably the only such organization ever to conquer its disease, found a new target in birth defects and is now called the "March of Dimes — Birth Defects Foundation."

Not all the world saw Salk as a hero.

"I felt immediately the resentment and bitterness on the part of many of my colleagues," he said.

Salk said some objected to the media event the 1955 announcement became and "felt I had received from the public an undue amount of credit."

Others, he said, resented his having challenged a medical dogma — the belief that only a weakened but living virus could be an effective, long-lasting vaccine against a disease such as polio.

The Salk vaccine is made of polio virus killed under precise conditions. "We destroyed its capacity to multiply (and attack the body) without destroying its ability to immunize," Salk said.

But when a live-virus polio vaccine developed by Dr. Albert Sabin was licensed in 1962, it quickly replaced Salk vaccine in the United States. A new national campaign was launched and children were given the new vaccine, not with a needle but in a sugar cube.

"I had no objection to the introduction of another way to immunize," Salk said. "What I objected to was the way in which it was promoted, as if it was necessary to change."

When the Sabin vaccine was introduced, polio already was on its way out in the United States. By 1956, the number of paralytic cases had dropped to 7,911. The next year it was less than 2,500. By 1961, only 988 cases were reported.

Now, said Dr. Marjorie Pollack of the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, "We are bouncing between 10 and 20 cases a year."

Researchers agree that more than half the current U.S. cases are caused by the live-virus vaccine, which is designed to induce a very mild polio

Book review editor now facing reviews of own work

By LESLIE HANSCOM
Newsday

NEW YORK — Nobody realizes what superfluity means quite as emphatically as a book review editor. As the man in that job for The Baltimore Sun, Stephen Hunter knows from experience what it is like to contemplate the almost daily cartload from the publishers and wonder why authors won't relent from writing more books. He also knows that a good book is never one too many, which has emboldened him to write one of his own.

So far, nobody has suggested that Hunter's first novel, "The Master Sniper" (Morrow, $10.95), belongs in the superfluous category. On the contrary, the early reviews have indicated that Hunter must have learned something from all those books he has read as a reviewer. In his first effort — a suspense thriller with a World War II setting — he has been praised for mature craftsmanship, and the Book-of-the-Month Club has chosen his gripping tale as half of its dual offering for May.

THANKS TO HIS SPECIAL post-

tion as editor of a book review page, however, Hunter describes himself as "sitting on tenterhooks." He imagines "The Master Spy" crossing the desks of other editors and meeting the indifference he understands all too well.

"I see 400 Steve Hunters," he says, "worrying about their mortgages or their tennis games and letting my book slip through their fingers just because it's so hard to keep up."

Knowing the odds against him as very few authors do, Hunter all the same never had the choice, he says, of letting himself be scared out of entering the stakes. "I've always thought of myself as a writer," he explains. "Editing a book page was a way of filling my days interestingly and making a living, but I never felt I was engaged in my real business."

Hunter is 34, which means that World War II is history for him and that writing about it required extensive research. At the same time, much of what he needed to know was already in his head because he had studied the lore of the period as a hobby. "The war, with its heroism and cynicism all wrapped together, has always had a peculiar fascination for me," Hunter says. "I don't know why. I was a rotten soldier. If I had ever been in combat, I would have been the first one killed."

THE NOVELIST'S MOST VIVID memory of his own military service in the late '60s is of camping near the Metroliner tracks between Washington and New York during maneuvers at Fort Meade, Md. Wet, dispirited and hating the life, he looked on the tracks as the road to freedom. "I can't tell you," he says, "how poignantly I daydreamed about being on that train, traveling to New York to consult with my publisher."

It was another decade before the dream came true. Meanwhile, deciding to stay in Maryland, to which the Army had transplanted him from his native Middle West, he took a job as a copy editor at The Sun. Seven years ago, he was appointed editor of the book page. It was in line of duty that he happened to be thumbing through The Rand McNally Encyclopedia of World War II one day in the newsroom when he was blitzed by inspiration.

"I came to the 'I's," Hunter relates, "and to infra-red. I happened on an explanation of the Vampir sighting system which enables a marksman to hit a man in the dark. I didn't know the Germans were working on a weapon like that. I thought, 'Somebody could build a book about that — you could!' All of a sudden, I knew the situation and the characters. It was a Friday, the day I read proofs for the book page. I'd hate to go back and look at the way the page came out."

That night, Hunter went home to suburban Columbia, babbling, as he puts it, to his wife. After dinner, he got out a bottle of Wild Turkey to keep the inspiration from fading. "I sat up until 5 in the morning," he says, "working on a plot outline and making a bibliography of the books I'd need. Eventually, the books cost me $100 in library fines. I got out of the neighborhood car pool so I could ride the bus and used the extra time to read."

OF THE ACTUAL WRITING, Hunter says that, "At first, it was murder. My fictional reflexes were sluggish, and the first chapter was weak. The chapter took what seemed like months, but after I got the last words written, the book went very well. It seemed to work by an eerie predestination. I look back on the writing as the most pleasant part of my life, although I've probably forgotten the technical problems and the moments of despair."

Setting aside an hour each evening to keep in touch with his infant son, Hunter strove to turn out six pages, six nights a week. At the paper, he guarded the secret of his other job. Begun in January 1978, the novel was accepted in September by Morrow on the basis of 126 pages of the third draft with an outline of what was to come. "No human eye except mine," Hunter says, "has ever seen the first two drafts."

Encouraged by the reception of his first published novel, Hunter looks forward to the time when he will be professionally involved with nobody's books but his own.

He is already at work on another thriller, a genre whose expressive powers he takes seriously. "You can do a lot with a thriller," he says, "so long as what you're writing is still a thriller and people want to keep turning the pages. I want to write a series of books that are gripping and at the same time — I hate to say 'respectable,' but up to a certain standard of literary accomplishment."

Writing a novel hasn't simplified Hunter's work as a book editor. "It's much easier to review a book," he says, "if you don't think of the writer sitting in his popcorn (litter of crumpled pages). I find that I'm kinder than I used to be and more careful about the kind of review in which you can't strongly praise or condemn but have to describe a book by using some subtle shadings."

In his dual role as novelist and editor, Hunter now has to face the problem of how he will review his book in his own paper. "Do you think I should punish myself for being an editor and not review it?" he asks. He admits that he has made inquiries outside his usual pool of talent to find an impartial reviewer. "If I find somebody to do it," he says, "you might ask if I would run a bad review of my own book. The answer is, yes, I would."

Texas Monthly wins top magazine award

NEW YORK (AP) — Mother Jones and Texas Monthly have won the top reporting and public service awards of the American Society of Magazine Editors.

Texas Monthly won the public service award for "Why Teachers Can't Teach" by Gene Lyons. The award citation said the article had "broader implications for the future of our entire public education process."

The reporting award to Mother Jones was for "The Corporate Crime of the Century," an article by Mark Dowie that was described by the judges as "a meticulously researched and cleanly written expose of large-scale dumping in Third World countries, often with United States government aid, of hazardous products declared illegal within the U.S."

Antaeus, GEO, Natural History, Saturday Review, Scientific American and Spectrum, a publication of the Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers, also were winners in the 15th annual ASME awards announced Wednesday.

The fiction award went to Antaeus for Joy Williams' story "The Farm," about a woman alcoholic "who kills a boy in a car accident and is increasingly haunted by the mishap."

GEO won the design award for "its unparalleled achievement in the art of photographic essay," and the single-topic issue award went to Scientific American for an issue on "The Brain."

The award for essays and criticism went to Natural History for Stephen Jay Gould's "consistently excellent column on evolutionary biology."

The prize for service to the individual was won by Saturday Review with Susan Schiefelbein's "Children and Cancer."

The engineering publication Spectrum was given an award in specialized journalism "for its diligent and comprehensive analysis of the Three Mile Island nuclear accident" and for "the intelligence of its editing and acuity of its reporting" on nuclear power issues in general.

The awards were established in 1965 under a grant from the Magazine Publishers Association and are administered by the Columbia University Graduate School of Journalism.

In addition to a silver plaque, each winner received a reproduction of the Alexander Calder sculpture, "Elephant."

The magazine editors also held their annual meeting and elected Sey Chasser, editor-in-chief of Redbook, as their new president.

Muniz to be paroled

Chagra guilty

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — The government spent six months looking for Jamie A. "Jimmy" Chagra when he fled after being convicted of drug charges.

It took less than six hours Wednesday to convict him of bail jumping.

Chagra disappeared last August after he was convicted of continuing criminal enterprise in the smuggling of large amounts of cocaine and marijuana from South America to the United States.

Federal agents found him Feb. 21 in Las Vegas, Nev.

Chagra faces a five-year prison term for bond jumping. He was sentenced March 28 to serve 30 years without parole and was fined $125,000 on the drug conviction.

Witnesses at the bond jumping trial testified Chagra leased a home on three acres of land in Kansas City, Mo., while he was free.

Federal agents also testified identification papers found in his wallet showed a Milwaukee, Wis., address.

Chagra's lawyer, Oscar Goodman, centered his defense on a legal technicality.

Goodman contended the bond his client was accused of jumping had been revoked two days before Chagra's scheduled Aug. 23 court appearance. He said Chagra could not be in violation of the $400,000 bond if it did not exist and asked for an acquittal.

U.S. District Judge Harry Lee Hudspeth set the acquittal motion hearing and possible sentencing for April 30.

venson said Wednesday the national appeals board of the U.S. Parole Commission granted the parole for Muniz, 34, who is now serving his sentence at the Federal Correctional Institute in Memphis, Tenn.

Stevenson said any decision to move Muniz to a federal prison in Texas before his parole would have to be made by the Bureau of Prisons.

There had been reports that Muniz would first be sent to an institution at Seagoville, near Dallas, and later to a halfway house for prisoners about to be released on parole.

Muniz was the third party's gubernatorial candidate in 1972 and 1974, losing both times to Gov. Dolph Briscoe.

In February 1977, Muniz plead guilty to a charge of conspiring to smuggle marijuana into the United States and was sentenced to five years in prison.

Muniz was a line-backer for Baylor's football team and later graduated from law school, but lost his license following the conviction.

Before the conviction, Muniz practiced law at Corpus Christi and Robstown.

Carter not tough enough

NEW YORK (AP) — Fifty-one percent of Americans sampled in the latest Harris poll said the United States should take military action against Iran if any of the 50 hostages are put on trial as spies — even if the action might endanger their lives.

The poll, taken April 8, questioned 900 adults across the nation in an effort to sample opinion on Carter's latest sanctions against Iran. The sample had a 3.5 percent margin of error, according to Harris.

The poll was taken before militants holding the Americans at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran said they would kill the hostages if the United States attempted any military action.

Sixty-eight percent of those surveyed agreed with the statement, "What President Carter is doing is too little and too late and not tough enough." Twenty-eight percent disagreed.

Asked how effective the president's steps would be in persuading Iran to release the hostages, 12 percent said very effective, 40 percent said somewhat effective, and 45 percent said not very effective at all.

Asked their opinions of four Carter proposals, the group sampled gave the following response: —Seventy-seven percent favored a break in diplomatic relations with Iran; 19 percent were opposed.

—Seventy-eight percent favored an end to all trade with Iran, except for providing some food and drugs; 19 percent were opposed.

—Seventy-seven percent favored halting visas for Iranians; 17 percent were opposed.

—Seventy-four percent favored working out a way for Iranian funds deposited in American banks and frozen last November to be used to pay claims by the families of the hostages and other Americans with claims against Iran; 15 percent were opposed.

—Seventy-seven percent said it was "a big mistake not to give Iran an ultimatum in the first 72 hours after the hostages were seized." Eighteen percent disagreed.

Hasidim ineligible federal aid victims

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Small Business Administration has ruled that even though an ultra-religious Jewish sect known as Hasidim are victims of discrimination, the group is not eligible for federal aid to "socially and economically disadvantaged" minority businesses.

"The evidence of prejudice and discrimination suffered by the Hasidim is overwhelming and is essentially unrefuted," said an SBA ruling issued Thursday.

But the agency also found that "serious constitutional questions" about the separation of church and state would be raised in singling out an essentially religious group to enjoy advantages of government programs.

The ruling makes it more difficult, but not impossible, for individual Hasidim-owned businesses to participate in programs which give minorities preferential treatment in the awarding of certain government contracts.

The SBA received 151 comments on the controversial Hasidim request, many of them from black groups and leaders of the black community. The blacks argued, among other things, that the Jews would cut into the funds available to them.

There are about 150,000 Hasidim in the United States, most of them living in tightly-knit communities in the poorer neighborhoods of Brooklyn. They are recognizable by their beards and untrimmed sidelocks, black frock coats and wide-brimmed hats. Married women of the group save their heads and wear wigs.

They claimed — and the SBA agreed — that their appearance, their religious customs and their use of the Yiddish language caused them to be shunned in the business world.

Assertions were made during the SBA's consideration of the case that Jews in general were wealthy and that the Hasidim in particular had been successful in the diamond trade and did not need government help.

The SBA ruling called Jewish wealth "a timeworn stereotype," and said, "While the wealthy diamond merchant is probably the most visible of all Hasidic entrepreneurs, it would appear his numbers are small and that he is not representative of the larger Hasidic community."

While the SBA accepted the Hasidic assertions, it said there were legal problems with giving the entire group blanket eligibility for its programs. Among the problems was doubt that Congress ever intended religious groups to be included in those programs.

"The absence of a statutory reference to a religious-based cultural group indicates congressional disinterest in, or disapproval of, such a designation," the SBA said.

But the SBA said in its 25-page decision: "Denying their request for a group designation will not alone deny them access to these programs. It will only deny them the procedural shortcut to the programs which Congress has authorized for traditional minority groups."

It noted that individual Hasidic businessmen who could show they were "socially and economically disadvantaged," could still qualify for the programs on their own. A group designation would have saved them much of that process.

"While this consequence might seem burdensome to individual Hasidic firms ... it may be the inevitable price which must be paid to ensure the separation of church and state," the ruling said.

Lance loaned money on customer's character

ATLANTA (AP) — Former U.S. Budget Director Bert Lance, accused in a bank fraud case of misstating his collateral to obtain loans, told a federal court jury that as a banker he "lent people money on their character rather than collateral."

Lance's own character, meanwhile, got a high rating from President Carter's mother, Lillian Carter, who called him "quite a man."

Lance and Mrs. Carter were the first two witnesses Thursday as the defense launched its case.

The president's long-time friend, on trial here with three associates for nearly three months, is charged with 10 counts alleging misappropriation of funds in loans to friends and family and two counts alleging false statements to a bank where Lance borrowed money.

Twenty of the original 33 counts in the indictment remain to be decided by the federal court jury.

Mrs. Carter, 81, who was on the witness stand only for a few minutes, called herself a "housewife and campaigner." She said she had known Lance since 1970, when her son won election as governor of Georgia with help from the north Georgia banker.

Defense attorney Nicholas Chivvis asked Mrs. Carter if she knew Lance's "reputation for honesty, integrity and truthfulness."

"I think he has more of them than anyone I know," she said. "I think Mr. Lance is quite a man."

Lance was Carter's first budget director. But after eight months, controversy about his practices as head of two Georgia banks forced him to step down.

Prosecutors questioned 159 witnesses and brought tens of thousands of bank records into court before resting their case Wednesday. At that point, two counts were withdrawn by the government and 11 others were dismissed by U.S. District Judge Charles A. Moye Jr.

For the first time since the trial opened, the courtroom was packed with spectators, reporters and members of Lance's family as the 48-year-old former budget officer was questioned by his attorney.

He denied any wrongdoing and scoffed at government testimony about the importance to bankers of collateral and financial statements.

"I got my experience in a country bank in Georgia where you lend people money on their character rather than collateral," he said. "Given a choice between a secured loan to someone with not so good a character and an unsecured loan to someone with excellent character, I'd take the unsecured loan anytime."

An early banking experience with a cow named "Spot" was a further lesson, Lance said. The cow was collateral on a loan the borrower was unable to repay. One day, the woman arrived at the bank with her collateral and said, "Mr. Lance, here's your cow."

"I made a decision right then and there that collateral wasn't all it was cracked up to be, because I didn't need that cow and the bank needed it less," Lance said.

Widow among four women charged in skillet murder

MELBOURNE, Fla. (AP) — Four women, including his widow and mother-in-law, have been charged with murder in the death of an optometrist who was bludgeoned to death with a skillet and another kitchen utensil at his home.

The four, who also included two of John Young Bradford's employees, were arrested Thursday, according to acting Melbourne Police Chief Jake Miller.

Bradford's widow, Priscilla Hadley Bradford, 36, claimed her 53-year-old husband repeatedly beat her during their 3 1/2-year marriage. Bradford was married previously.

The day before Bradford's death on March 28, his wife appeared at the Melbourne police station, her face bruised from what police described as "a number of blows." She filed a complaint against Bradford for battery.

Miller said her claim of being beaten was "still being explored."

The other women charged in the case were identified as Mrs. Bradford's mother, Mildred Hadley, 69, of Melbourne Beach; Joyce Cummings, 18, of Palm Bay, and Janice Gould, 34, of Melbourne, who both worked for the doctor.

Mrs. Bradford and the two employees were being held without bond in the Brevard County Jail in Titusville. Mrs. Hadley was released on $20,000 bond.

Mondale to address Games group

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — President Carter, having issued his strongest statement to date concerning his proposed boycott of the Summer Olympics in Moscow, has dispatched his personal envoy, Vice President Walter Mondale, to Colorado Springs to address a meeting of the U.S. Olympic Committee House of Delegates.

Mondale, scheduled to arrive here tonight, will address the delegates at the regular business session Saturday. Following the address, the delegates will conduct a closed-door session at which a vote is expected on participation in the Games.

Carter, in a speech to the American Society of Newspaper Editors in Washington on Thursday, said he is prepared to take legal action if that is the only way to prevent American athletes from participating in the Moscow Olympics. The president called for the boycott in February, after the Soviets invaded Afghanistan.

"If legal actions are necessary to enforce the decision not to send a team to Moscow, I will take them," Carter said.

The president did not specify what legal actions he might take, but he could revoke the passports of American Olympians or stamp them invalid for travel to the Soviet Union.

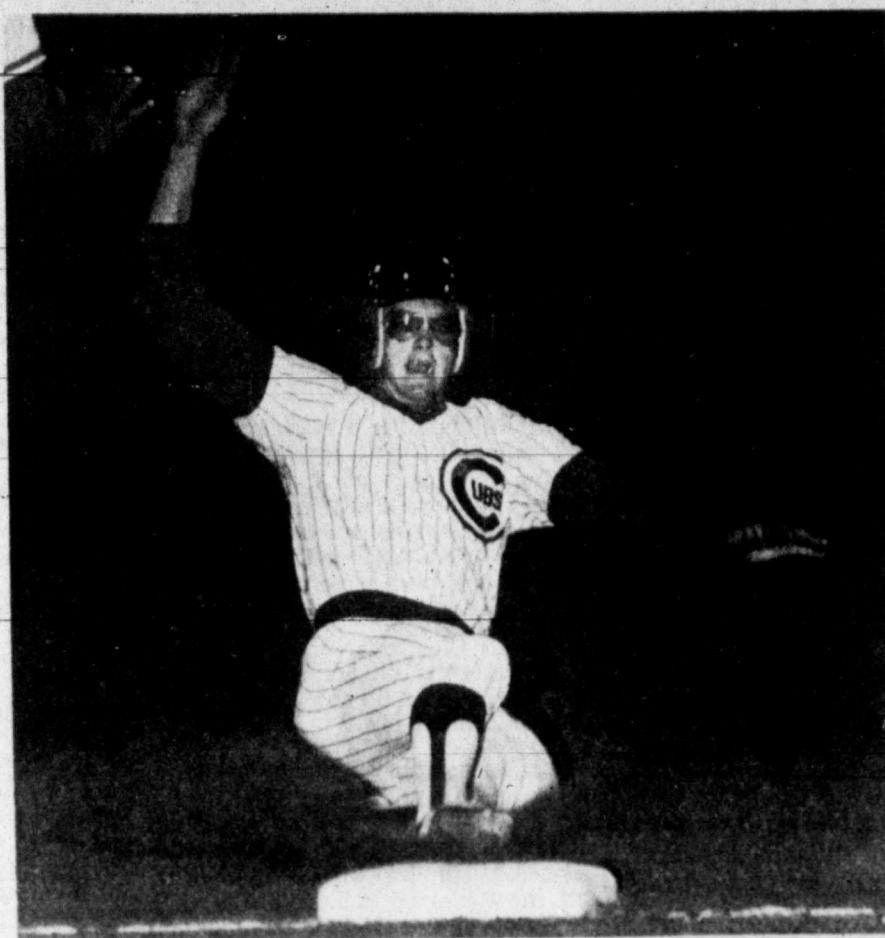

Carter compared the Moscow Olympics with the 1936 Games in Berlin, which he said "were used to inflate the prestige of the ambitious dictator Adolf Hitler." The Soviets, Carter said, also would like to exploit the Games to win a propaganda victory.

Carter also found an unlikely ally in his bid to enlist support for the boycott — Iran. Tehran Radio said today that the Iranian government has decided not to send a team to the Moscow Games.

The state radio said Iran's Revolutionary Council reached the decision Thursday night. There was no elaboration of the reasons for the decision but Iran has been strongly critical of the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan.

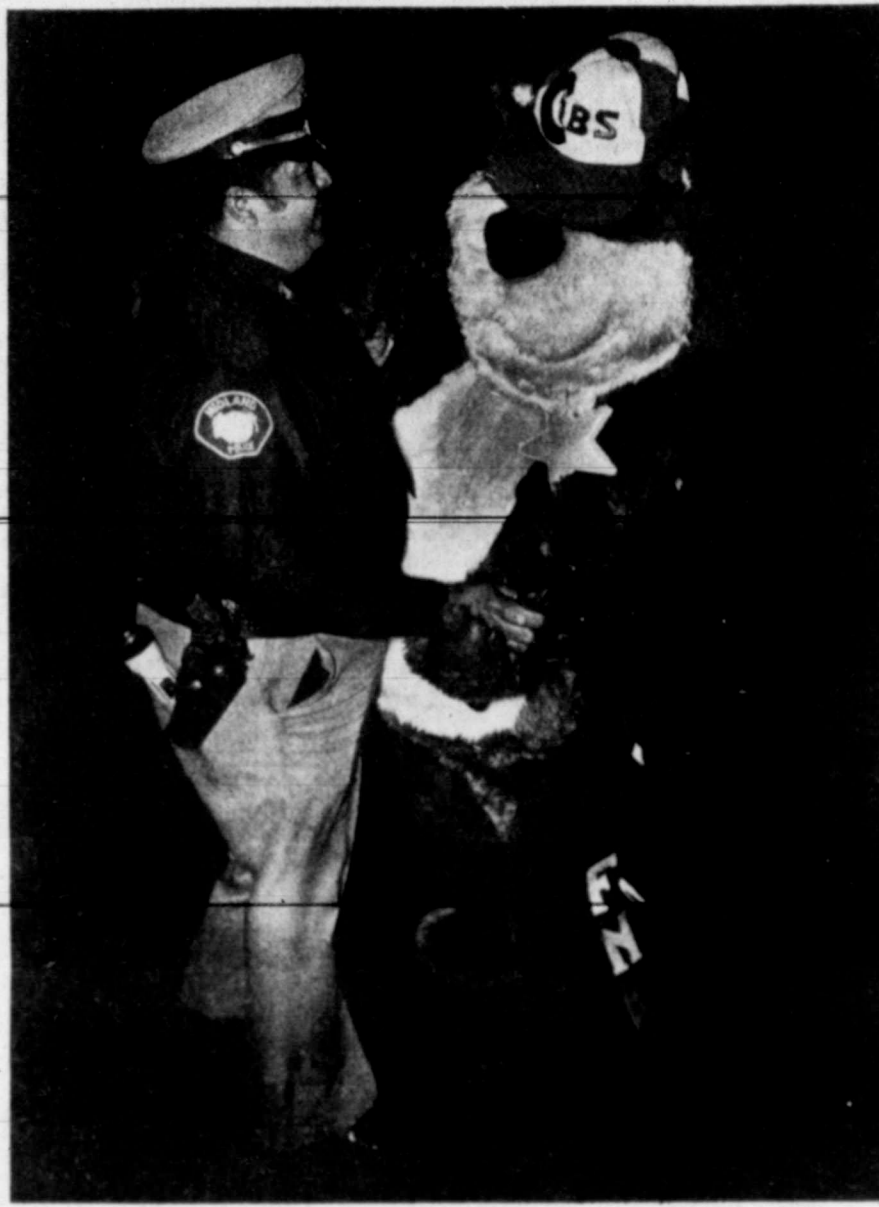

And another voice was heard Thursday echoing Carter's views. Soviet dissident Alexander Ginzburg urged the United States to boycott the Games, saying "the idea of the Olympics is too important to allow the use of propaganda to advertise one of the most terrible regimes in the world."

Ginzburg, a poet-journalist who came to the United States a year ago in exchange for two Soviet spies after having been sentenced to eight years in a labor camp for alleged "anti-Soviet agitation," said a boycott by the American athletes would prove embarrassing for the Soviet government.

Dodgers outslug Cubs

Midland's 9th inning rally falls short, 17-15

BY TED BATTLES R-T Sports Editor

Score 15 runs and a team ought win. Knock-in seven runs with two homers, two doubles and a single and a guy should be carried off the field on his teammates' shoulders, the game's hero.

Instead the Midland Cubs were hanging their heads trying to figure out what happened in the 17-15 loss to the San Antonio Dodgers in the Texas League opener at Cubs Stadium Thursday night and rookie outfielder Tom Grant, instead of celebrating the biggest day of his still young pro career, was just another bat in the lineup.

Still, the young Midland team displayed remarkable resiliency. Every time the Dodgers placed a foot on the conquered Cubs' ribs and beat their own chests with fists, the Cubs got up and stormed back.

Facetiously asked when he thought he had it wrapped up, Dodgers' manager Ducky LeJohn said, "when we were ahead 12-4 in the fourth, we should have had it won. But I've been in this league three years now and I know you never have enough runs. That's true in any game, but it's especially true here and in El Paso."

The game was a prime example of what can happen in the spring when the West Texas wind blows.

The Dodgers had the Cubs down 12-4 and after Midland trimmed it to 12-10 after seven, Mike Bradley walloped a three-run homer and Alex Taveras followed with a solo job to make it 16-10 against Kent Hunkler, who had relieved starter Jon Perlman in the fourth and pitched superbly until he ran out of gas in the eighth.

San Antonio scored another run in the ninth when Leo Hernandez tripled and Bob Blyth barked in the tally to make it 17-10. As it turned out it was just barely enough.

"We made mistakes, but we never quit battling," Cubs Manager Randy Hundley said proudly and the ninth was a good illustration of what he meant.

Midland erupted for five runs in the on two hits, including Grant's second double, a couple of walks and a couple of errors before lefthander Jim Nobles finally came in to get the final out. In fact, Nobles got the final out three times before it stuck. One run scored when left fielder Dale Holman dropped Mel Hall's liner and then another tally came home when second baseman Larry Fobbs misjudged Mike O'Berry's pop up, but O'Berry was cut down trying for two bases.

It was a three-run homer by Fobbs in the fourth that gave San Antonio a 12-4 lead, but the Cubs kept coming back, thanks largely to Grant, who hit a solo homer in the third, doubled home two runs in the fourth, hit a two-run homer in the sixth, and singled in another run in the seventh.

Grant, who hails from Medford, Mass., and holds a degree in psychology from the University of New Haven, admitted, "I've never had a night like that in my pro career." Of course, it has been a short career. He signed out of college last June. And strangely, enough it was a night that didn't start out too promisingly. Grant whiffed the first time up against starter and winner Brian Holton.

Hall also had a big night with a double, triple and single while Joe Hicks homered in his first Texas League at bat. But the difference was that San Antonio's homers accounted for seven rbi while Midland's produced only four.

It started out like a terrible night for the Cubs. By the fourth inning every batter in the Dodgers' lineup had a hit. Centerfielder Tom Beyers, who made the defensive play of the night, a sliding, diving catch to nab Dave Stockstill's sinking liner in the third, had a single, double and triple after only three innings.

Herman Segelke, 13-8 for Cubs even tonight at 7:30 p.m. in the Two-Bit Beer Night game while Ricky Wright, the rookie who was 10-3 at the University of Texas last year, goes for the Dodgers.

BRUIN BREWIN'S—Boomer Bear made his Midland debut as the team took the field, climbing over the center-field fence... Mayor G. Thane Akins threw out the first pitch, a ball low and outside... Former Midland Cubs GM John Cox, now assistant GM at Chicago, was on hand for the opener and flew to Denver today for the Wichita opener in the American Association... Shortstop Dave Owen had the singles his first three times up for the Cubs...

Pro baseball fans outspoken, but they're pusseycats compared to a college crowd. Karl Pagel's kid brother Mike is leading off as DH for ASU and batting .353, not a bad trick since he's also participating in spring football workouts as the first string quarterback.

ASU has a walk-on named Mike Brennan, who carries a 3.9 grade average and a 1.273 slugging percentage, but can't even get his name in the program, let alone the lineup, because he doesn't have a scholarship. Still, he has won two games in the ninth inning with homers and on another occasion an outfielder had to climb the fence to get save a homer and make the put out. Three of his five hits are homers...

Self-taught Mitchell forges lead in Masters with 66

By ED SHEARER

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Jeff Mitchell, a self-taught player who got his start on a 9-hole course with a $10 set of used clubs, was cast in the unlikely role of America's standardbearer Thursday.

The long-hitting Texan became the only U.S. player to break a foreign trianglehold in the opening round of the 44th Masters golf tournament when he claimed a share of the lead with a 6-under par 66.

It came at the end of a day dominated by tricky, swirling winds that apparently had been conquered by only two players — Australian David Graham, the PGA champion, and Spain's Seve Ballesteros, the British Open winner — who had fashioned their 66s much earlier in the day.

Mitchell, a strapping 25-year-old, gained his share of the lead over the 7,040-yard Augusta National Golf Club course with the best putting of his career and the advice of his veteran caddy, Robert "Cigarette" Jones. "It's almost like a dream come true," said Mitchell, who was a fourth-year Monday morning qualifying "rabbit" until he won a Masters invitation with his first tour victory in the Phoenix Open earlier this season.

"This has to be one of the best putting rounds I've ever had," added Mitchell, who had an impressive nine 3s on his scorecard. "If I keep putting like I putted today, I'd say I have a real good chance."

He called Jones, his tour caddy, "the best caddy in Augusta. He's been here a long time. I think he's the honorary caddy master around here. He told me all about this course. He's been helping me read the greens a lot."

Mitchell foresaw an outstanding putting round when he salvaged a par with a 20-footer on the second hole. He had birdie putts of 18, 12 and 30 feet on the frontside and came back with a pair in the 1-5-foot range before knocking in a 25-footer on the final hole in the final playing group of the day.

The trio of leaders enjoyed a 2-shot advantage over Jack Newton, another Australian, and former U.S. Open champion Hubert Green, who appeared to be carrying the American banner at 68 until Mitchell's late heroics.

There were two other Americans deadlocked in sixth place at 69, Tom Kite and Larry Nelson, but the biggest story had been the collapse of some of the game's top names. Jack Nicklaus, on the comeback trail at age 40 trying to regain his form as golf's top performer, hit one shot in the water and used 37 putts in his round of 74.

"I don't enjoy shooting 74, particularly when there are some good scores," said Nicklaus, a five-time Masters champion. "But the first year I won here, I started with a 74."

Then there was Tom Watson, Player of the Year in each of the last three seasons, who had a had a 73 and declared, "There were no highlights. I didn't play well at all.

But, Watson wasn't giving up. "Your feel comes and goes from day-to-day," he said. "I can get back on track."

And, Tom Weiskopf, a four-time Masters runner-up, set an unwanted Masters record when he plunked five shots into Rae's Creek along the par 3 12th green, taking a 13 on the hole a finishing with a fat 85 for the day.

"It is extremely embarrassing," he said. "But I'll be there to tee off tomorrow."

Homers mark Texas League baseball opener

By The Associated Press It was home run night as the Texas League season opened with homers figuring in the outcome of all four games.

A grand slam homer by Rich Goss provided four of Shreveport's 6 runs in a 6-5 victory over Arkansas Thursday night.

In other Texas League action, San Antonio beat Midland, 17-15, in a game where 6 balls went sailing out of the park, Tulsa beat Jackson, 7-1, and Amarillo slipped past El Paso, 5-3.

Goss' homer came in the second inning and Shreveport wound up its scoring for the night in the third inning when catcher Jeff Ransom had a two-run double. Arkansas got a three-run homer from catcher George Bjorkman and a solo homer by Fred Tisdale. Mark Calvert, who struck out 6 and gave up 5 hits, was the winning pitcher. Starter Al Olmstead, who gave up all 6 runs, was the loser.

Mel Barrow had a homer for Tulsa in the 7-1 victory over Jackson, but Phil Klimas added offensive power to the Drillers with a triple and a double. Jerry Don Gleaton was the winning pitcher. Tim Leary was the loser. Gary Ashby had a solo home run and Joe Hicks had 3 hits in 4 trips to the plate as Amarillo beat El Paso, 5-3. Mike Bishop had a solo homer for El Paso in the seventh inning.

Steve Fineovid was the winning pitcher. Joel Crisler was the loser.

DALLAS (AP) — Aaron Kyle, the 26-year-old starting right cornerback for the Dallas Cowboys, will undergo surgery May 1 to remove bone spurs from his left knee, according to Coach Tom Landry.

"We won't know for sure how much he'll be able to do during camp," Landry said. "He'll have to take it easy, but it looks like he'll probably be ready for the season opener. It's hard to say."

"I was looking for the strikeout and then the ground ball, in that order."

As it was, Manager Dick Howser of the New York Yankees didn't get either from Rich Gossage Thursday night.

All he got was a wild pitch with the bases loaded from his ace reliever and a number in the loss column.

"What a way to break in," said the rookie Yankee manager after a tough 1-0, 12-inning loss to the Texas Rangers in the opener for both American League baseball teams.

Gossage came into the game in relief of Tom Underwood in the 12th with one out and proceeded to throw his only pitch and away from catcher Rick Cerone. The ball bounced to the backstop, allowing Mickey Rivers to race home from third with the only run of the game.

"Boy, I can find a way to mess them up," said Gossage. "I wanted to get the ball down. If he (Richie Zisk) did hit it, I wanted him to hit it on the ground. I don't think Rick even had a chance at it. He hadn't caught me all spring and that might have had something to do with it. I'm not saying that was the problem, though."

If anything, Gossage blamed himself. "I might have tried to throw the ball too hard," he noted. "I felt great — maybe too great."

Said Cerone of the pitch: "I should have caught it. I got my glove on it. In warmups, he was throwing down the middle."

Rivers had led off the Ranger 12th with a hard shot which handcuffed Yankee third baseman Graig Nettles, who threw the ball away. Rivers was safe at second on the hit and error. Bump Willis sacrificed Rivers to third and Howser elected to intentionally walk Al Oliver and Buddy Bell and bring on Gossage.

Starting pitchers Jon Matlack of the Rangers and Ron Guidry of the Yankees duelled brilliantly for nine innings before turning the game over to relievers.

Matlack yielded only three hits and retired the last 18 hitters he faced before giving way to Jim Kern in the 10th. Matlack, who struck out five and walked none, retired 25 of the last 26 batters he faced.

Guidry allowed only two singles, retiring the final 12 batters and 20 of the last 21. He struck out four and permitted no walks before he was relieved by Underwood in the bottom of the 10th.

Orioles 5, White Sox 3—Eddie Murray's two-run double keyed a four-run first inning that carried Baltimore and Jim Palmer over Chicago. Palmer, an eight-time 20-game winner, posted his 25th career victory with late relief help from Tim Stoddard.

Palmer worked seven innings, allowing two runs on six hits, striking out four and walking four. White Sox starter Steve Trout was the loser in the game played in 40-degree weather under cloudy Chicago skies.

Tigers 5, Royals 1—Rookie Kirk Gibson hit a home run and a triple, and Jack Morris tossed a three-hitter to lead Detroit over Kansas City. Gibson, the former Michigan State football star, smashed a solo homer to tie the score in the fourth, and tripled off loser Dennis Leonard to ignite a three-run uprising in the sixth.

Morris, coming off a 17-7 season, gave up two doubles and a single.

"I wasn't scared, but I was a little overanxious, really psyched up," said Gibson after his first official major league game. "When I heard the National Anthem, I got that feeling I usually get just before a football game."

Brewers 9, Red Sox 5—Sixto Lezcano hit a two-run homer in the fourth inning and a two-out, grand slam blast in the ninth to lead Milwaukee over Boston.

With the score tied at 5-5, Paul Molitor singled leading off the Brewer ninth off Dick Drago, Boston's third pitcher. After a sacrifice, Dick Davis fouled out, but Ben Oglivie was intentionally walked and Gorman Thomas walked on a 3-2 pitch to set the stage for Lezcano's shot into the right field bullpen.

Oglivie, Molitor and Don Money added bases-empty homers for the Brewers.

Twins 9, A's 7—Roy Smalley and Rick Sofield hit solo homers in the 12th to lead Minnesota over Oakland in Billy Martin's first game as the A's manager. Martin was greeted before the game with a two-minute standing ovation by the A's biggest home crowd in two years, 24,415.

Smalley led off the Twins' 12th with a homer to right field off Steve McCatty after going hitless his first five at-bats. Sofield homered with two outs for his third hit of the game.

The A's had gone ahead 7-5 with a seven-run seventh capped by Rickey Henderson's three-run homer before the Twins tied the game in the ninth on a two-run single by pinch-hitter Willie Norwood.

Everybody shows up but the baseball team

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—The fans were there, some even carrying "Come on Sox" signs. So was the team's general manager. And even Glens Falls' mayor showed up.

But the plane didn't.

Three vans of Eastern League baseball faithful drove 40 miles to welcome the first-year Glens Falls White Sox to Albany Airport here Thursday morning on their 10:17 flight from spring training in Florida.

But the plane was actually due to arrive at 10:17 p.m., not 10:17 a.m. The mixup, blamed on Chicago's office of minor league development, left about 30 fans, including General Manager Jack Tracz and Mayor Ed Bartholomew, with a party and no guests of honor.

A noon reception at a hotel in Glens Falls also had to be postponed until midnight.

Most of the fans appeared undismayed, however, and said they would return for the midnight party.

JIM MURRAY Cards' Griffith proves rare bird

By JIM MURRAY
Los Angeles Times

At the recent dinner honoring Darrell Griffith as the John R. Wooden college basketball player of the year, almost the entire UCLA basketball team showed up in fascination. They wanted to get a look at Darrell Griffith at ground level.

In the NCAA playoffs this year, they got about the view of him a New Mexico state policeman gets of a UFO. They knew he was there because points kept going up on the scoreboard. But they'd be cussed if they could see where.

Like the snow leopard, the Abominable Snowman and the California condor, Griffith is rarely found at low altitudes. He could hire out as a balloon at Macy's parade. He's as rarely at sea level as the big horn sheep. He doesn't play the game, he orbits it. He's not a guard, he's a satellite.

He was playing on the American team in Sofia, Bulgaria, last year, and, as he was driving in for a layup in a key game, a Belgian forward stepped in for his path. Now, this fellow was 6'5", 230 pounds, 32 years old, and experienced. And he had position on Darrell. So, Griffith just took off ceilingwards. Griffith's coach, Denny Crum, recalled the sight the other night, how a photographer on courtside had one of those multiple-exposure cameras, and took a series of shots showing the astonished Belgian, looking up, then, neck-on-a-swivel, following the flight of Griffith to the basket, looking as if he had just seen a flying saucer.

"The crowd went wild," Denny Crum recalled. "Darrell came walking back to the bench just as unconcerned as if he had only just picked up a loose ball. One of the guys said, 'Hey, man, you just jumped clear over that big dude out there!' Griffith looked up. 'I did? I didn't notice.'"

AFTER the game an Iron Curtain coach came up to the Americans. "Tell me," he said, "does Griffith fly home with the rest of the team or just go on his own?" Another official announced he was willing to accept what his eyes had seen, but warned that, the minute he saw Griffith step into a phone booth and come out with a cape and boots, he was protesting the game.

But the leagues in America are used to the "It's a bird! It's a man! It's Super-Darrell!" Griffith has enacted rafters in gyms all over the Midwest. "If there weren't a roof, Darrell would come down with snow on him," his high school coach used to tell recruiters. "He's the only guy I ever saw who needed landing flaps." Memphis State's Coach Dana Kirk once said.

The ability to leap, while effective, is not crucial. Great leapers have been only moderately successful in the NBA. Darrell Griffith won the John Wooden Award because of what he did with the ball once he went up and got it. Only 6'4, he was the only player in University of Louisville history to score over 2,000 points. He had more lifetime steals than Jesse James. He delivered the ball where he wanted it more often than Warren Spahn. His best technique was to hover, to wait till everybody else came down, and then dunk the ball in the basket.

"He's the best guard in the country," pro scout Marty Blake said. "When he's aloft, you can't reach him, and when he comes down, you can't catch him."

BEST of all, Darrell Griffith is a rare specimen for Louisville, the home of the once and future heavyweight champion of the universe, Muhammad Ali. Griffith calls people older than himself "Mister," not "Chump." He is not given to boasting. At sea level, he is as unassuming as a church usher, which he also is. "In four years, I have never had one bit of trouble with Darrell Griffith," his coach boasts. He is graduating with his class, which is one dunk shot not many basketball players can make.

MC golfers see action

Midland College men's golf team resumes action today in Western Junior College Conference action Friday. At the close of fall play, MC was third, two points behind league leading New Mexico Junior College and a half point back of Western Texas College while Odessa College was a half point behind the Chaparrals.

"With the next two conference meets at NMJC and WTC, we are going to have to have super efforts from our players to successfully defend our conference title," coach Delnor Poss said.

The WJCC wind up comes at NMJC, one day before the Region V tournament at the Roswell, N.M., course.

On a night when he came within 2-3 innings of joining the likes of Bob Feller and Leon Ames in baseball's history books, uppermost in J.R. Richard's mind was not walking anyone.

Richard, the National League's strikeout king, breezed through 6 1-3 innings of perfect ball Thursday night before yielding a hit as he pitched the Houston Astros to a 3-2 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

The 6-foot-8 Richard struck out 13 before getting relief help in the ninth from Joe Sambito, but more importantly he did not walk a batter. Including spring training, the hard-throwing right-hander has gone 20 innings without yielding a free pass.

"I think this was the best night I've had since I was in the major leagues," said Richard, who walked 98 batters last season after passing 141 the year before. "Just getting the ball over the plate was my secret."

Richard said he couldn't avoid thinking about a no-hitter, "but I couldn't let it worry me. I just concentrated on getting those guys out."

Rudy Law ended Richard's bid for a no-hitter, grounding a single between first and second. Reggie Smith followed with a double, and the Dodgers scored their runs on a throwing error by Astros third baseman Enos Cabell and Dusty Baker's sacrifice fly.

"He's one of the greatest pitchers in the major leagues," Law said of Richard. "I don't look forward to facing too many more like him."

Until the seventh, Richard had a shot at becoming only the third man in baseball history to begin the season with a no-hitter. Ames, of the New York Giants, did it in 1909, but he yielded a hit in the 10th and the Giants lost 3-0 to the Brooklyn Dodgers in 13. Feller did it with the Cleveland Indians in 1940 when he beat the Chicago White Sox 1-0 on opening day, 1940.

The Astros scored in the first inning on a solo homer by Terry Pugh off right-hander Burt Hooton. Houston took a 3-0 lead in the third when Jose Cruz homered, and Alan Ashby cracked an RBI single.

Astros Manager Bill Virdon was happy with Richard's fast start. "That's the way he's pitched all spring, so I wasn't at all surprised," Virdon said. "But today, he had better stuff than I've seen all spring. He's ahead of where he's ever been at this time."

Cards 1, Pirates 0—Pete Vuckovich tossed a three-hitter, and George Hendrick drove in the only run of the game as St. Louis spoiled the World Series champions' opener. Vuckovich retired 16 in a row until Phil Garner singled with one out in the sixth.

The Cards got their only run in the second when Bobby Bonds walked and scored from first when Hendrick lined a double over third.

Cards pitching coach Claude Osteen said Vuckovich's strength was in his off-speed pitches. "You just don't know what to look for. I don't think there's anybody that has that many pitches under control," Osteen said.

Richard masters LA

control," Osteen said.

Mets 5, Cubs 2—New York won on opening day for the sixth straight year behind the pitching and hitting of right-hander Craig Swan. Swan scattered seven hits in seven innings and drove in two runs with a bases-full single in the Mets' four-run sixth inning. Jerry Morales also knocked in a pair of runs for the Mets.

The Cubs got their runs in the sixth on Dave Kingman's run-scoring single and in the seventh when Len Randle singled home a run.

Padres 6, Giants 4—Dave Cash, Gene Richards and Dave Winfield each drove in a pair of runs to give rookie manager Jerry Coleman, San Diego's former radio play-by-play man, his first victory.

San Diego trailed 4-3 before scoring three runs in the fifth off Bob Knepper. Lefty Randy Jones worked the first seven innings for the Padres, allowing seven hits and walking two before he was replaced by Bob Shirley, who got the save.

Larry Herndon homered for the Giants.

Mets step on toes as search begins for 2 million fans

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

The Battle For New York is under way, choreographed by Jerry DellaFemina, a Madison Avenue advertising man, who fired the first salvo directly at Yankee Stadium.

DellaFemina's agency has been retained by the New York Mets to launch a search for some 2 million fans who seemed to have lost their directions to Shea Stadium in the last decade or so. But instead of selling the Mets, the ad man opened by putting the knock on the Yankees, saying some uncomplimentary things about Bucky Dent and Reggie Jackson.

First, DellaFemina suggested that Lee Mazzilli is as handsome as Dent and not only that, but he can hit, too. And, the ad man added, New York has had to settle for Jackson as a folk hero, simply because it hasn't discovered Maz yet.

George Steinbrenner, who has been known to flourish in the arena of social criticism now and then, fired back immediately — a reaction that is not at all unusual for the owner of the Yankees. Mazzilli, said the Yankee owner, might be the second best player of Italian descent in New York, behind Yankee catcher Rick Cerone. And, he added, let's see where those bigmouth Mets are on Labor Day.

Then Jackson, who is entirely comfortable moving in Madison Avenue circles, announced that he had never even heard of Jerry Whattishname.

Additionally, Steinbrenner expressed outrage at the Mets behaving so boorishly, especially after he had warmly welcomed the new ownership when they took over in January.

AT THAT point, Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, who has been maintaining a low profile lately, stepped boldly into the Battle For New York, cautioning both sides to knock off the sniping and play nice.

The Mets, however, have been playing nice for too long. They won New York once before by being aggressive, by hiring Casey Stengel and George Weiss when both were put out to pasture by the Yankees, by making noise instead of sitting passively in the corner and letting the seasons slide by.

When Nelson Doubleday, Fred Wilpon and Co. plunked down a cool $21.1 million last winter to purchase this slumbering franchise, there were opportunities for making some instant noise. Among the city's hard core unemployed at that time were Alfred Manuel Martin, a baseball manager of some note, and Roy White and Ed Kranepool, two players who had toiled with distinction in New York for the better part of two decades.

The dormant Met situation cried for the pizzazz of Billy the Kid, if not as manager then in some other visible role. The man, after all, sells tickets and may be one of the most popular baseball figures ever to work in New York. With DellaFemina orchestrating it, they could have had Billy jump out of a giant marshmallow on Opening Day. Alas, however, Mr. Martin will be managing the Oakland-Denver franchise this season.

White has been exiled farther away than that, sent off play out the final years of his baseball career in Japan. And Kranepool, as familiar a figure around Shea Stadium as the team's logo, was ignored entirely and allowed to slip out of baseball completely.

THERE ARE whispered rumors around baseball that Steinbrenner made sure Martin and White would not wind up wearing Met uniforms. That certainly makes sense.

He couldn't, however, have blocked the New Mets, as DellaFemina has labeled his clients, from getting Kranepool. But the club passed on that option.

So the New Mets returned to New York this week with the same old, tired faces who've finished last three straight seasons. The major new names are outfielder Jerry Morales, infielder Phil Mankowski and utilityman Mike Jorgensen, and that seems to be awfully light ammunition with which to wage a war for the city.

DellaFemina will press on, though. His campaign was launched with full page ads in the city's newspapers, with the message constructed around one of the most memorable moments in New York baseball history — Bobby Thomson's pennant-winning home run in 1951. There were a couple of detail mistakes in the copy but the Mets are accustomed to errors.

The Battle For New York is just beginning. Stay tuned for further reports from the front.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Maltbie seizes Magnolia golf lead with torrid 65

GOLF—Roger Maltbie covered the Hattiesburg County Club course in 65 strokes to grab the first round lead in the $50,000 Magnolia Classic golf tournament. Maltbie was five under par and one shot ahead of Lee Carter, who was alone in second place with 66. A group of 10 golfers, including two-time Magnolia champion Dwight Nevil, were tied at 68, and 17 more were tied at 69.

the Tulsa Grand Prix tennis with a 4-6, 6-3, 6-3 victory. Of eight seeded players, only No. 3 Bob Lutz and No. 6 Bruce Manson remained alive in singles competition after the third day of action at Shadow Mountain Racquet Club. Lutz defeated Francisco Gonzalez of Puerto Rico, 6-3, 6-4, in an elimination match.

BOWLING—With victories in his last six match games, Ernie Schlegel charged into a 37-pin, fourth-round lead over Wayne Webb in a $90,000 PBA tournament. Schlegel began the round in fifth place and slipped to eighth after losing his first two games with scores of 191 and 171. He then fired 764 over his next three games on scores of 269, 247 and 248, and finished the round by winning his last three with 200, 204 and 227. Bob Handley held third place with 5,762. Charlie Tapp was fourth with 5,759 and Jimmy Certain fifth with 5,697.

TRACK—Tony Hale of the Athletic Attic used first-place finishes in the shot put and high jump to take the early lead in the decathlon at the Dogwood Relays. Hale compiled 3,812 points in five events at the University of Tennessee's Tom Black Track, where the final five decathlon events were scheduled for this morning. John Mascolo of the Fisk Track Club was in second place with 3,791 points and Bruce Bower of Tennessee was third with 3,638.

HORSE RACING—Carlisle Jim, $5.60, scored a two-length victory over China Bound in the feature at Pimlico Race Course.

Panel urges college heads to handle all transcripts alike

WASHINGTON (AP) — College presidents were urged Thursday by a special panel to handle the transcripts of athletes and non-athletes in the same manner in order to avoid scandals with doctored grades.

Bruins beat Penguins, 4-1, to even NHL series

BOSTON (AP) — It all began a bit ominously for the Boston Bruins.

As in Tuesday night's 4-2 playoff loss to the Pittsburgh Penguins, Thursday night's first period was scoreless, the Bruins had twice as many shots on goal, and Penguin goalie Greg Milen was hot.

But Rick Middleton wasn't worried. "The other night we hung back a little and didn't pressure enough in the first period. Tonight, there were no holds barred and we took off after them. We didn't score in the first period, but I think it set the tone for the game," said Middleton.

He made sure of it when he notched the critical first goal at 1:42 of the second period that started the favored Bruins toward a 4-1 victory and a split of the first two games of their best-of-five National Hockey League series.

The goal opened the doors and Don Marcotte and Brad Park added second-period goals. Wayne Cashman gave Boston a 4-0 lead midway through the third period before Rod Schutt spoiled Gerry Cheevers' shutout bid about a minute later.

Milen, in his second NHL season, has been the surprise of the series. He turned away 36 of 38 shots in the opener and was peppered with 42 shots Thursday night. Both he and Cheevers are expected to start Saturday night's third game in Pittsburgh.

The seven other playoff series all are to resume tonight, with six teams needing one victory each to clinch a berth in the best-of-seven quarter-finals.

Playgirl wants 'Ivy League' men

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — Playboy magazine's nude photo essay on Ivy League women is to be matched by Playgirl, the 7-year-old women's magazine featuring pictures of nude men.

"Hey Princeton Men — Here's Your Chance," announced an advertisement Wednesday in the Princeton University newspaper. "Playgirl magazine is looking for Ivy League men to photograph in early May. If you are interested, willing to pose nude and are over 18, send photo (clothed and/or unclothed) ..."

Technology produces balm to soothe spirits

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two days ago, television technology and a bit of good luck worked to produce something lovely and near magical, a healing balm that soothed a spirit beaten down by talk of baseball troubles.

Opening Day in Cincinnati, the Reds vs. the Atlanta Braves.

I'd never seen the very first pitch of a baseball season because tradition has forever banished Open-carries the Braves' games. WTBS, you may know, is the "superstation" whose signal is sent out by satellite to cable companies around the country, one them being the one to which I subscribe.

So, there it was: Genuine, official, regulation, every-game-from-here-on-counts, major league baseball. Even the awful shadow of the black subject of this spring, the players' strike, couldn't darken the reality of this happy scene.

On the mound for Cincinnati: Don Pastore, substituting for flu-bitten Tom Seaver. Behind the mike: Ernie Johnson, the voice of the Braves, who noted that Seaver's illness was "the first break for the Braves of this season." Sorry, Ernie. Pastore rose to the occasion and held the Braves to three hits, while Cincinnati's famed stick-men pelted 41-year-old Atlanta knuckleballer Phil Niekro and an ensuing parade of Atlanta pitchers for nine runs.

It wasn't pretty baseball, perhaps, but it was momentous. Foremost was the undeniable fact that baseball had come, after all. And the shutout was the first Opening Day shutout in Cincinnati since Johnny Vander Meer blanked the Cardinals in 1943.

Yes, this is what America needed. Not ugly, frightening talk about Basic Agreements and free agency and player compensation and million-dollar salaries, but this:

Ernie Johnson sending his best wishes "to all the shut-ins out there across the country whose only way of following baseball is to see the games on TV." Cincinnati outfielder George Foster hitting a Niekro pitch into the thickly populated left field stands. Johnny Bench striking out, and cussing himself.

And this weekend, NBC gets back in the game with its fine Saturday afternoon coverage (Houston against the Dodgers). Joe Garagiola telling Yogi Berra stories in between pitches and Harry Coyle, maestro director, up in the NBC video control trailer conjuring replays and new nifty angles.

I hope the players think twice before disrupting baseball with their threatened May 22 strike. It's the best television of the summer.

'La Gioconda' on PBS Sunday

NEW YORK (AP) — John Guberman is convinced that beyond the hardcore audience that would not miss an opera broadcast on public TV, "there is a much, much larger group of intelligent, interested people who would like to like opera."

"The problem," says Guberman, creator of public television's "Live from the Met" series as well as other major cultural programs, "is that the larger audience is not reached, because programming has been set up for the core audience."

One solution to that programmer's dilemma may be an unusual six-night presentation of Ponchielli's "La Gioconda," beginning Sunday at 10 EST, with "Opening Night — The Making of an Opera," a behind-the-scenes look at preparations up to curtain time.

That will be followed by an act-by-act presentation of the opera, each evening at 10, Monday through Thursday, and a full-encore production Saturday night at 8.

As with most Public Broadcasting Service programs, air date and time may vary.

"This idea of running the opera as a sort of miniseries," Guberman says, "is aimed at reaching people who might not otherwise watch."

"During the act-by-act presentation, we fill out each hour with documentary material on the making of that act. You see things that you would not see in a full presentation of the opera, and you are theatrically involved in the act that you are about to see."

The foundation for the innovative series is a San Francisco Opera production of "La Gioconda," broadcast live by PBS Sept. 16, 1979. It was the first American opera production to be fed live to Europe.

The production stars Renata Scotta and Luciano Pavarotti.

As with "Live from the Met," Guberman recognizes what television can do for opera — and what it cannot do.

"I've watched an awful lot of opera films," he says. "I saw an 'Aida' on the screen that looked like Sophia Loren and sounded like Renata Tebaldi.

"You can't create 'La Boheme' for the tube," he says. "It's been tried a dozen-zillion times. What you can do is take advantage of the magic of television, which is to provide a window on what is taking place on the stage."

The innovative aspect of the series comes with the weeknight portion, "Opera from San Francisco: La Gioconda Act by Act."

"Take Act II," Guberman says, "about 30 minutes long, and we have an hour to work with."

"We start with some backstage stuff, then Tony Randall, who is host for the series, comes on to introduce documentary material on the making of that act. You see how they explode the ship at the end of the act."

"Then Randall is back with a brief synopsis of the act, and we roll the tape."

Taking the series as a whole, Guberman says, "I would say it is a new way, and frankly an experimental way, of presenting opera on television. The purpose is to reach a general audience, and engage them in wanting to see this opera, and opera in general."

Guberman says success — or failure — in attaining that goal comes with the mail. "Do people write in about it? That's more important than the ratings, because it tells you the depth of their interest."

"My favorite response," he says, "would be, 'Really?' That tells you they're hooked."

First election deadlocked

RAVINIA, S.D. (AP) — The first board election in memory was held this week in tiny Ravinia and the result — a tie — had local officials befuddled.

"We haven't had an election as long as I've been here and it had to turn out like this," said Ethel Krenke, clerk of the town of Ravinia, population 109.

Harold Cavier and Vilas Sorenson tied with 20 votes each in Tuesday's town board election.

"I don't know what to do," said Mrs. Krenke, who was appointed to her job in 1969. "I don't think we've ever had a board election — not that I can recall."

Juvenile's name can't be used even if it has been made public

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — A federal judge has refused to allow the name of a suspect in a 1978 slaying to be used during a trial, even though the defendant's name has already been made public.

U.S. District Judge Fred Daugherty has ordered that the Chillicothe Indian School youth be referred to only as "the defendant" or by his initials, "C.M.G.," because of federal laws protecting juveniles.

Daugherty dismissed a motion Wednesday brought by the Oklahoma Publishing Co. that challenged his directives not to identify the defendant. The judge ruled his directive was not a gag order, but a notice to reporters that they could be held in contempt for violating the federal juvenile secrecy statute.

The defendant's name had been published before the start of the federal trial when he was charged with murder in a state court.

Witnesses testified Wednesday that the youth, now 17, used his feet, broom handles and a heavy mop wringer to beat 20-year-old Steven Voight to death Jan. 15, 1978, after a night of heavy drinking. The youth is charged with delinquency in the federal case.

Witnesses and lawyers in the case have also been warned not to use the defendant's name in court. Some witnesses have mentioned the name in testimony and reporters have been warned that they can be held in contempt for reporting the slip-ups.

"C.M.G." was first charged with murder in

Jury in Pecos awards $650,000 to widow

FORT STOCKTON — A Pecos County jury deliberated two hours before awarding $650,000 Wednesday evening to a widow whose husband was killed two years ago while working on a survey crew.

The award was the largest granted in the Permian Basin in recent memory for a death case.

Olga Nunez, 27, a telephone operator was granted the award from Community Public Service Co., an electric service company. She brought suit for herself and for her 8-year-old daughter, Michelle.

Her husband, Florencio Gomez Nunez Jr. was killed Sept. 27, 1977, while working on a survey crew.

He was holding a 15-foot aluminum survey pole when it came into contact with a 69,000-volt power line owned by Community Public Service Co. Measured the next day, the line was 15 feet above the ground. The national electric safety code calls for a 17-foot minimum height for power lines.

The jury in 83rd District Court in Fort Stockton awarded $48,500 to Mrs. Nunez and $162,500 to her daughter.

Attorneys for the power company have indicated they plan to appeal the judgement.

your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Saturday, April 12, 1980
YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Men and women born on this date like to keep very busy—which may be why long-time film star Ann Miller has agreed to do a Broadway show with Mickey Rooney.

Ann will continue to benefit from an adventuresome outlook, as will all who share this birthday with her. In 1980, think BOLD! You continue to get great enjoyment out of life, even if you feel your employment situation does not completely suit your talents. Serious romance is featured and could lead to more enduring relationship. Monetary gains are slow but steady. Meet all work responsibilities in a highly professional manner. Late summer presents golden opportunity for career advancement.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You have time today to ponder why someone tried to slow progress at work this past week. Rest and relaxation help restore zest for life. Relative is eager to help, if you will allow it.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Avoid being drawn into argument with family member. Keep any strong political views to yourself or you could jeopardize a valuable relationship. Journey by car is best postponed. If you must take trip, be sure to stop frequently.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Pressure is off and you find this a most enjoyable weekend. Romance gets needed assist now. Exercise great patience in dealing with parent-child problem. Set good example by controlling your temper.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Think carefully before making major commitment. Keep your distance from someone who has toyed with your feelings in the past. You have no time to associate with people who do not make you feel good about yourself!

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Money worries will haunt you if you are a spendthrift. Comparison shopping can cut down cost of purchasing essential items for home. Outdoor outing can provide exercise and entertainment at little cost.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Take care of household chores early in day. New idea can mean more money. Find time this weekend for study, research that can lead to increased employment opportunities. Keep diet and exercise resolutions.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Accent is on being practical. If in doubt, make a personal investigation. Money can be involved. Member of opposite sex plays pivotal role. Do not give something away before you have a replacement for it.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Economic factors dictate your personal plans today. You feel pressed to make major concession to mate, spouse. Both of you must be willing to compromise, however.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): If watching weight, keep diet nutritious as well as light. Maintain contact with business associates who live and work far away. Connections could pay off in increased earnings at future date.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Be alert to sensitivity on the part of those who may not be as practical or efficient as you. You may have difficulty in concentrating at work. Try to deal with easy, routine tasks until your mind returns to business.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Enjoy yourself, but avoid depletion of energy or money reserves. Invite friends to share a day of recreation and pleasure with you. Keep conversation in positive vein and steer clear of politics.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Mate, partner gives you all the support you need to make important personal decision. Accent is on relaxing and having a good time with those who mean most to you.

If declarer had started with four clubs, the contract looked unbeatable. But if declarer had only three clubs, it was vital to find an entry to the East hand for a club return through declarer's marked king.

Declarer's play of a diamond to the ace provided the critical clue. If he held the ace-jack of diamonds, he might have tried to finesse in an effort to pick up East's king. Therefore, it seemed probable that East held the jack of diamonds. In addition, it was a virtual certainty that the jack was twice guarded; otherwise declarer would have played the hand differently—East—off lead. So West jettisoned the king of diamonds under the ace!

Declarer had no way of coming to nine tricks without the diamond suit. But he could not set up the diamonds without allowing East to gain the lead. When he did so, East returned a club, and West cashed five tricks in the suit to defeat the contract two tricks.

Your play to the first trick could decide the fate of the contract! A writer once remarked: "There's no such thing as a blind opening lead; only deal opening leads!" # 'Rites of spring' now big business

By JOHN CUNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Spring isn't what it used to be. Ask any baseball fan or corporation president. Each will tell you some of the fun is gone from their spring pastimes. The rites, duties and goals have changed.

At the ballpark, the players we once thought of as athletes rather than paid performers are torn between the buck and the ball, and, unwilling to accept management's dictates, they threaten a strike.

At the corporate annual meetings, which reach a peak this month, the once-odious shareholder is raising the dickens about trading with South Africa, and about environment and radiation and the communists.

For the corporate chairman, president and other officers the annual meeting once was like a ball game — or even better, like the reunion of the class of 1947. No problems, just good fellowship and fun.

Always there were gadflies that briefly irritated management and entertained shareholders, but now they really sting, and you can't turn off their microphone, as bored chairmen were once inclined to do.

The files have organized. Not only do they control voting shares, but they have learned how to vote them. They might sound to the chairman like a bug in his ear but he has to listen to them. And suffer.

The Council on Economic Priorities, which monitors corporate activity, reports at least 140 important, non-management resolutions have been introduced for voting, and probably for considerable discussion too.

All, or certainly the vast majority, will be defeated, but even in defeat some issues may force management to reconsider policies.

Approval of just 5 percent of shareholders, says Alice Tepper Marlin, the council's executive director, almost always forces management to respond. Approval by that percentage, she says, tells officers that a much larger percentage of customers and the public supports the measure.

Issues pursued by non-management groups fall into a pattern. Anti-nuclearism is foremost this year. Opposition to doing business in South Africa is common among church groups. Antagonism over corporate gifts to colleges employing Marxist professors is a big conservative issue.

For conservatives, the forcing of shareholder votes on pet issues is a relatively new tactic, and so also, says the council, is the activity of individual shareholders. Unions, too, seem to be more aggressive.

Marlin believes the activities of individuals, as opposed to groups, indicates a growing awareness that one person can do something on his own — that a shareholder's power isn't limited to voting shares.

"People are tremendously more aware that problems might be caused by corporations and resolved by them too," she said. "And," she continued, "they realize they can have a real impact by acting."

That impact seldom if ever overturns corporate policy, simply because management controls voting power. But well-organized efforts hardly can be ignored by companies, especially those that sell to consumers.

It isn't at all like the old days, when an annual meeting was as relaxing as a spring day at the ballpark. Back then, that is, when a day at the park was a retreat from the real world of strikes and such.

Stock market rallies

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market posted a moderate gain today, helped by hopes for an impending peak in interest rates.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 3.75 to 795.22 in the first two hours.

Gainers outnumbered losers by about a 5-2 margin in the mid-day tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

As the market opened, New York's Citibank announced that it was keeping its prime lending rate at 20 percent.

But analysts said hopes persisted that the basic rate on blue chip loans might soon start to descend from that record level. Those hopes were buttressed by recent signs of a slowing economy.

American Telephone & Telegraph, a stock which is often sensitive to interest rate expectations, rose 1/4 to 50 1/2 in active trading today.

Among banking issues, Citicorp was up 1/4 at 19 1/4. J.P. Morgan rose 1/4 to 46, and Chase Manhattan added 1/2 to 40 1/2.

The NYSE's composite index gained 27 to 59.32. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 1.21 at 249.10.

Volume on the Big Board totaled 14.35 million shares at nontime, against 15.00 million at the same point Thursday.

Ad cost significant part of family's food outlay

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Agriculture Department analyst says about 94 cents of every $100 that shoppers spend for food goes for mass media advertising, not counting many of the local ads in newspapers.

"If your family spends $3,000 a year on food, your share of the mass media advertising bill comes to about $28 a year," says Anthony E. Gallo, a USDA economist.

"Of that, $24 goes to television and $2.50 to magazines," he said. "The rest finances radio, newspaper supplement and billboard advertising. Most of this advertising is image-creating. It gives little price information."

Gallo said a survey based on 1978 information showed that the food industry spent about $1 billion in daily newspaper advertising, which was excluded from the survey "because it tends to be local, rather than national."

Excluding the newspaper advertising, manufacturers, retailers and service companies spent $2.5 billion on food advertising in 1978, more than twice what the second-largest users spent — automobile and gasoline advertisers, he said.

"In addition," Gallo said in his report, "another $3 billion was spent for nonfood items such as health and beauty aids, alcoholic beverages, smoking materials and pet foods, largely sold in grocery stores."

Gallo said "highly processed" foods get the largest share of total media advertising.

"About $260 million — 13.3 percent of food industry advertising — was spent on soft drinks alone during 1978," he said.

"Perishables or relatively unprocessed foods take a small portion of the budget. The food industry gives the least advertising to unprocessed meats, poultry, fresh eggs, dairy products and fruits and vegetables."

Put another way, Gallo said perishables account for about half of what families spend for food but only 8 percent of the food advertising expenditures.

Gallo also said: "Ninety percent of the money spent for mass media advertising is for television. In 1978, $1.7 billion, or about 22 percent of television advertising revenues, came from food."

—Advertising is more important to the marketing of food than nonfood items. Although food accounted for 16.2 percent of disposable personal income in 1978, 21.5 percent of all media advertising expenditures was for food.

Midwesterners ignore Northeast's problems

WASHINGTON (AP) — To the frustration of delegates from the Northeast, coal-producing states in the Midwest are rejecting pollution controls to stop acid rain on the grounds the problem doesn't affect them directly.

Representatives from Illinois, Ohio and Indiana told a conference on acid rain Wednesday that they don't want additional pollution controls, even though their states have been identified as major sources of the pollutants that fall as acid rain in the Northeast.

The responses frustrated delegates from Canada and the Northeast, where acid rain has been held responsible for killing the fish in hundreds of lakes.

"The role that was outlined today by Illinois and Ohio does lend credence to the idea that we sit at opposite ends of the pole," said Robert Flacke of New York. He said he could not understand the "Land of Oz-like attitudes" of the Midwest.

"We should have an equality of sacrifice," argued Stanley Pac of Connecticut. "We're all Americans. Let's share the burden. The natural resources of this country belong to all of us."

Jerry Fitzgerald English, representing New Jersey, said the sulfur dioxide emissions of Ohio alone almost equal those of New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania combined.

"New Jersey and the rest of the Northeast have reached the limit," she said.

Acid rain contains solutions of sulfuric acid and nitric acid, formed from sulfur and nitrogen oxides released in the burning of fossil fuels, principally coal.

While it is best known for its effect on northeastern lakes, scientists now say the acid may have serious effects on crops and forests. In the long run, they say, it also may affect some drinking water supplies.

And residents of the Northeast, where the airborne pollutants tend to drift, complain they must impose harsh pollution controls on their own industries to compensate for the incoming pollutants from the Midwest.

But Ohio and Illinois, both of which mine high-sulfur coal and burn it in their power plants, said they don't see the effects of acid rain in their states. They said their citizens won't pay to clean up someone else's air, and their miners need the jobs of digging the high-sulfur fuel.

"The United Mine Workers and the coal operators don't agree on many things, but they do agree that further environmental restraints represent serious threats to their position," said Illinois' delegate to the conference, Daniel J. Goodwin.

In addition, he said, citizen groups protesting high electric bills before state regulatory bodies would be a factor in determining who would pay for the controls.

"One can no longer assume that cost increase (for pollution control) will automatically be passed through to the customer," he said. "Whatever hope there may be ... lies in convincing the coal industry that its economic interests will be well-served" by bringing acid rain under control.

Ohio's delegate to the conference, Dr. T. Craig Weidensaul, went even further, saying "some very beneficial effects" have been attributed to acid rain in the short run because of the nitrogen it returns to the soil.

Despite the objections of the coal-producing states, the federal government appears ready to press forward with some new efforts to control the emissions. EPA Administrator Douglas Costle said earlier that existing federal laws are being examined to see how they can be applied on a regional basis.

Grain embargo working, says agriculture secretary

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's embargo of U.S. grain sales to the Soviet Union is working, despite Moscow's attempts to find other foreign suppliers, Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland has said.

Bergland also criticized those he called "rocking chair warriors" and "sunshine patriots" who have failed to support Carter's embargo action against the Soviets.

"Because of the suspension of our grain exports, the Soviets have had to change their import plans for the period between January and June in order to carry them until the harvest of 1980-81 crops," he said.

Consequently, Bergland told the American Society of Newspaper Editors, the Soviet Union is being forced to draw upon its own meager grain reserves, reduce feeding of livestock and slaughter some animals in order to get by.

"To me, this means the suspension is working," Bergland said in his prepared speech text. "The Soviets are beginning to feel the pinch."

The Soviet Union, according to Agriculture Department reports, has been able to obtain some grain from other countries by paying premium prices for it. But analysts say the Soviets still are not able to make up the entire shortfall.

Carter on Jan. 4 embargoed further sales of U.S. grain in retaliation for the Soviet occupation of Afghanistan. The action suspended 17 million metric tons of U.S. wheat and corn that the Soviets were expected to import in 1979-80.

Bergland said he thinks the "essential part of the whole story" is that despite some leakage in the Soviet Union is working, in which other major grain exporters, including Canada, Australia and the European Community pledged support — the pinch is being felt by the Soviets.

"Yet the emphasis in many news stories seems to be on the lack of cooperation by our trading partners or Soviet success — however limited — in replacing the grain they counted on getting from us," Bergland said.

Bergland criticized GOP presidential frontrunner Ronald Reagan for advocating "a tougher line on Iran when the president was giving patience and restraint the opportunity it deserved." And he said "we can ask more than we're getting" from Reagan and other critics of Carter.

"It wasn't enough for Ronald Reagan to predict that the actions the president took this week would be ineffective," Bergland said. "And it isn't enough for Ronald Reagan to dodge the question of what he would do differently by saying he doesn't know enough about the situation to be specific."
