Aithough gas prices at the pump seem to have momentarily stabilized, most Midlanders say they will continue to conserve fuel.

In a Reporter-Telegram telephone survey, more Midlanders said they are cutting back their gasoline consumption than are not.

Mary Adams, Tower Road, said she and her family "certainly will" keep conserving gasoline.

"We'll never see cheap gas again," Mrs. Adams explained. "Gas is quite an item now. And we use an excessive amount of gas - not for entertainment, but as a necessity.

As for conserving, Mrs. Adams said, "we're driving nothing but little cars - 20-plus miles per gallon. We try not to make extra trips and we keep to the speed limit: As soon as you go over 60, your gas consumption goes up.

BUT TWO MIDLAND men say the price of gas doesn't determine how much they drive. Gary Holeman, 4400 Pleasant Drive, said "I don't guess we've ever let up. We're probably driving a little less," he added, but "not much."

Tom Rideout, 29 Perrie Lane, agreed with Holeman. His family's fuel usage "never has really slowed down. It's been about the same. (We've) maybe cut out a little bit, but not much. We average about five to six trips to town a day. A round trip from town to our house is about 15 miles. (We're) still paying the price and going on." he said.

Carter now has 1,584 nominating votes. Eighty-two more will put him past the 1,666 majority level needed to win the nomination. He'll get that and a lot more Tuesday night.

Carter also said he will try to accommodate Kennedy and his supporters on the Democratic platform and other convention business, but that he would not support planks embracing such Kennedy proposals as wage and price controls and mandatory gasoline rationing.

Kennedy predicted Saturday he will win Tuesday's primaries in California and New Jersey, but said Ohio looks "more difficult" for him.

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) - A glowing dome of lava oozed Saturday through rock to the crater of Mount St. Helens as Gov. Dixy Lee Ray said she would ask President Carter for at least $2.5 billion to help her state recover from the volcano's devasta-in New York City nine weeks hence.

Meanwhile, authorities announced they had evacuated a 74-year-old man and four dogs from an ash-covered cabin 10 miles south of the volcano. Ray Jennings' cabin was sheltered from the direct northbound blast of the May 18 eruption. He had not been listed as missing.

And the Cowlitz County coroner said a section of lung and liver found Wednesday in the Spud Mountain area north of the volcano had been identified as human tissue. D.F. Winebrenner said the tissue was found by ground searchers near a blown-apart camper in an area eight miles from the mountain.

He said a lymph node contained material consistent with a human who smoked or otherwise breathed smoke and silica.

Ground searchers out of Salkum were to return to the Spud Mountain area Sunday to look for clues that might identify the victim or prove whether the person died from the volcanic explosion.

So far, the death toll from the May 18 blast stands at 22 with 53 persons still missing.

The ground search in the blast area was scheduled to end this weekend.

Officials who rescued Jennings by helicopter said he had refused to leave his cabin before and after the eruption

"We don't know that is going to happen with that mountain," said McDowell, "Finally one of his relatives was able to convince him he'd be better off away from it."

The devastating May 18 eruption of Mount St. Helens lay waste to thousands of acres of forest land, clogged rivers with mud and blanketed six states with powdery ash. Speaking in Spokane, Miss Ray said her request for $2.5 billion would cover only immediate, known costs of cleanup and recovery work.

Crews of U.S. Forest Service planes flying above the volcano's crater Saturday noted seven bright spots about 10 feet in diamenter and three more up to 30 feet in diameter, said Tim Hait, U.S. Geological Survey scientist.

The spots appeared to be on the dome scientists had been watching since Thursday grow on radar photographs since Thursday, Hait said."

> This is thick, pasty rock that builds a mound. As more hot rock comes up from underneath, it breaks the crust and exposes glowing material." he said.

"It's this glowing material that is the spots -- we think. The particular number of red spots is irrelevant."

The volcanic dome could take weeks or even months to form and may rise hundreds of feet into the mile-wide crater.

"It is a result of the especially thick type of lava characteristic of voicanoes in the Cascade Range, which is too thick to flow like liquid but simply piles up on itself as it emerges," Hait

Oil import fee doomed, says Demo leader

WASHINGTON (AP) - Ill will in Congress over President Carter's pressure to hold back defense spending virtually assures the death of the chief executive's oil import fee, Senate Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd said Saturday.

Byrd, who favors the fee, said, "One of the unfortunate results of this budget conflict has been the possible loss of some votes in the Senate." The proposed oil import fee, billed as a conservation measure that would add 10 cents a gallon to the price of gasoline, likely will be rejected in votes beginning as early as this week, Byrd said.

Those negative votes will set off two more negatives, he said: Carter will veto the rejection legislation, and then "my guess is he will be overridden in both houses."

Byrd, D-W. Va., had said in mid-May that Senate opponents of the fee did not have the votes to overturn a veto. But that situation has changed, he said Saturday at his weekly news conference.

Asked if the cause was annoyance over Carter pressure to reduce military spending in a budget compromise worked out by House and Senate negotiators, Byrd said "that is my impression from talking with several senators."

He also noted that imposition of the fee has already been held up by court action that could eventually kill it and make the dispute between Carter and Congress "a moot point."

The House voted last Thursday to reject the $613.3 billion budget compromise which contained more money for defense and less for domestic programs than Carter had wanted.

That vote, backed by House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, seemed to indicate support of Carter's position. But the House then gave a conflicting signal, telling its negotiators to hold the line on the higher defense spending when they resume talks with the senators this week.

"One of the train crew, a conductor or trainman was shot, a woman passenger was shot and an Amtrak policeman who responded to a call and met the train at the New London station was shot," said Sue Stevens, a public relations spokeswoman for the railroad.

The gunman apparently opened fire aboard the train while it was just west of this southeastern Connecticut coastal city, officials said. The train, Amtrak's No. 176, known as "The Merchants Limited" was bound from Washington, D.C., to Boston.

New London police reported they had taken a man into custody in connection with the incident.

"The train was pretty well-packed, a weekend and all," Murphy said, but he had no figures on how many passsengers were aboard when the train arrived at New London. The train was halted at the New London station for about one hour, then resumed its journey to Boston.

Midlanders plan to cut gas use

"We haven't been out of the Midland city limits in six months. I've been threatening to go outside the city limits and play in the dirt just to say I've been outside the city limits."

The Trimbels limit the use of their cars to save gas. "My husband takes one to work every day, but I very seldom go anywhere with the other. There's no more driving around seeing friends all day.

Darryl Menzel, 2806 Fannin Ave., said his family has been conserving gasoline and he thinks they will continue to - at least he will. Being a student at Texas Tech University, Menzel said the reason he conserves is "because I pay my own gas bill." Connie Smith, 1220 Burchill Drive, said her family has cut down their automobile use by using public transportation.

"We're taking advantage of Mid-Tran," Mrs. Smith explained. "My husband uses it to go to and from work. We only use the car to go to the bank and the grocery store for the rest of the week. We're cutting back as much as we can.

"WE WERE IN A smaller town," Mrs. Smith continued. "We were walking a lot there. It's a little further to walk for the groceries now

Kristi Hambrick; 3200 Mariana Ave., said her family hasn't stopped driving as much, but is still conserving fuel. "What we've done is we've bought a smaller car, which uses less gas." she said. "I wouldn't say we go less, but we do use less gas."

However, Mrs. Hambrick added. 'It seems like we are more aware of where we go (now). I plan out when I start in the morning where I have to go. So, if I go pick up my children from school, I'll go to the grocery store or whatever. People I know are pretty much doing the same thing. I think you almost have to."

Joe Pando, 3600 Gaston Drive, said his family has done more planning. Having three cars, he said, his family has had to eliminate using one of them and is careful about how much they use the others.

"I don't drive as much," he said. "As far as gas is concerned, we don't drive that much. We set up a budget for the gas," he explained. "We used to use $130 a month for the (1969) Cadillac alone, and another $80 for each of the others.

"Finally," Pando said, "we set up a system. It saves us a helluva lot of gas. My wife uses (a Pinto) for work. She goes two weeks straight on one tank of gas. And it's the same with me. I use one tank in two weeks.

Parliament, surprised observers Sat-very much any more," he continued, "and I kinda miss it. But, it has a 470 cubic inch engine and it drinks gas like it's going out of style."

If young families have to cut back and stick to a gasoline budget, then persons on fixed incomes have to be even more cautious - at least that's what two retired Midland women reported.

Ester Scurlark, 415 E. Cottonwood Road, said, "We don't go anywhere but to the service station or the grocery store, and it still costs too much for gas. We can't go see nobody, hardly. It's sure rough on us on a set 'income. Whether it's car gas, or Pioneer gas, or any gas, it's hard on a set income.

Kay Sprecher, 1808 W. Michigan Ave., echoed Mrs. Scurlark's feelings.

"I don't use (my car) unless I have to. There are days it just sits in the garage. Since I'm a retired person and haven't had any raise in my income, well, you have to do something "Ldon't make a trip to the grocery store for a bag of oranges, if] forget them," Miss Sprecher said. "I just wait until the next time I go. I try to do three or four errands at a time -I don't just go downtown just to go downtown. It's not just get in the car and go (any more).

Barbara Willingham, 4311 Sentinel Ave., said her family cut down by not "I DON'T DRIVE my Cadillac using one of their cars "We only

"We have not traveled as much as we used to, either," Mrs. Willingham continued. "We used to go to Fort Worth or Houston quite frequently. We haven't been to either place in maybe about a year. We used to go to one or the other about once a month. Then, too, we have a 9-month-old baby and we can't travel as much. I guess that's cheating a little, but any way you can save gas . . .

George Voltin, 2102 Club Drive, said although he and his family have been conserving, he doesn't know if they will continue to cut back.

"I DON'T THINK the prices have stabilized - at least not enough to make a difference," he said." Or at least not long enough. I don't think we'll continue (to conserve gasoline) much more because we've cut down about as much as we can. It's hampered a lot of folks in a lot of ways. Voltin blamed a lot of the gas shortage problem on President Carter.

"If you're a Democrat, I'll say you have a sorry President. He's a botcher. Botches everything up. He botches everything he puts his hands on — and he has a lot of help.

"A Christian man trying to punish people with high prices," Voltin la-mented, then added, "a so-called 'Christian man.' "

FORT WAYNE, Ind. (AP) - National Urban League President Vernon E. Jordan Jr. apparently was hit by a single bullet that was deflected and fragmented by a metal fence, probably saving his life, an FBI special agent said Saturday

Senate conference committee. Republicans later obtained a vote instructing House conferees to insist on keeping the military spending figures.

Rep. Robert N. Giaimo (D-Conn.), chairman of the House budget committee, said he considered the Republican motion to be the will of the House and no attempt would be made to reverse it.

The complete turn-around by the president was simply too much for Sen. Ernest'F. Hollings, (D-S.C.), & chairman of the Senate budget committee, who declared the president to . be a "hypocrite, guilty of outrageous, deplorable conduct.'

The senator has got something there as the president had promised us not only a balanced budget, but one with a $500 million SURPLUS. You can forget the surplus.

You can even forget the balancing bit. Presidential elections years customarily bring forth such pledges from our chief executives and lawmakers. Nothing has happened to reduce the federal bite of your income since Franklin D. Roosevelt pledged in 1932 a "covenant" with taxpayers to knock 25 percent from his $4 billion budget. He failed; as we all know.

The hard facts are these:

Spending in the current fiscal year, ending Sept. 30, will be about $572 billion - about $8 billion more than Mr. Carter was estimating only four months ago.

Expected revenues are estimated at $525 billion - which will give us a. deficit of more than $46 billion. Remember, that's $6 billion more than we have.

Here's something more likely to be closer to the truth:

President Carter alienated many liberal Congressmen with his demand for a balanced budget, along with an increase of $660 million in military

Saturday's record high remains at 102 degrees set in 1969 when compared to a hot 92 degrees. The record low for a May 31 was set in 1947 at 50 degrees, still several notches under Saturday's low of 68 degrees.

"Only one shell casing has been found. It's a very good possibility only one shot was fired," Davis said. Davis said investigators still have no firm suspects in the case, but that the probe has taken a new turn, "Early evidence suggested a possible conspiracy. We're proceeding cially among taxpayers who are concerned over the weakness and growing obsolescence of our military arm, and who thought the suggested increase in spending too small.

So, making a 180-degree turn, he is seeking a retrenchment in military spending levels and an increase in social programs.

Perhaps because of the tough campaigns for the votes of convention delegates, he has re-discovered that the strength of the Democratic party consists of a coalition of urban, labor and minority groups.

Scoffed Sen. Hollings: "He (the president) doesn't want a balanced budget, he wants a campaign budget

How much would you bet that there will be a $500 million surplus of income over outgo?

Alan Abelson, respected feature writer for Barron's, the Wall Street weekly, estimates that the optimists are off by as much as $50 billion.

It should be no mystery in Congress that when business profits fall off, companies send less tax money to the government. So it seems to most non-office-seekers at this time that lower revenues must be expected. Right off the bat that should end the dream of a surplus

When business falls off, an increase in unemployment is a natural consequence. This means, simply, that Uncle Sam will have to pay more for family unemploymentcompensation checks, while the breadwinner looks for another job. After a certain age, success in finding a new job is limited, as you may learn from many people who have been notified of the perimanent closing of the Ford Motor Company plant in New Jersey.

So here's what you may expect: Sometime later this summer, probably before the presidential cam-paigns reach their hottest point, you'll be told, probably by the White House, that a balanced budget must be forgotten because of reasons beyond control.

This past week Federal Reserve Board Chairman Paul Volcker warned that we are about to have the steepest rcession on record. Already the navigators are at work to steer us from the course that will lead to a balanced budget, to say nothing of a budgetary surplus.

$500 million surplus against the more than $72 billion annually it costs companies to keep up with the paper work demanded by the government. From a constitution of some three pages in length, we now have primary federal regulations that fill more than 60,000 pages with small print, laments Charles Gould, executive director of The Hearst Foundation, in a recent speech

The federal bureaus that create most of these rules send out more than 9,800 diferent forms each year. More than 556,000,000 responses are mandated annually under penalty of the law.

The billions - at least $72 billion do not add one whit to the worth of the merchandise you buy. However, such costs must be added to the products that are produced. This is a major contributor to inflation, the handmaiden of the last two recessions.

Gould had some other hair-raising examples. For instance, in 1975, Congress passed 404 new laws. That's a large dose of legislative medicine for a nation to absorb in one year. Yet, while Congress was laboring on the new laws, the regulatory agencies churned out 7,496 new and amended codes.

That's an average of more than 20 new laws each and every day. Companies that can afford it must enlarge their accounting departments, increase their legal staffs. The added cost comes right down to each one of us - the costs to the companies, plus the enormous costs f government.

Balance the budget? Not until the politicians substitute action for hypocritical campaign oratory.

The fire was confined to the room but smoke quickly spread through air conditioning ducts to the rest of the two-story building. Five workers and firemen overcome by heat and smoke were treated and released at Jackson Memorial Hospital.

.T. Willard Fair, the Urban League's Miami director, said the incident seemed to be a reaction to race riots in Miami two weeks ago that left 16 persons dead and some $100 million in property damage. Fair said the fire was "nothing more than part of the overt backlash that's in this community as a response to the events in Liberty City. Violence swept the city's black Liberty City section May 17 after four former police officers were found innocent in the beating death of Arthur McDuffie, a black Miami businessman.

Until a month ago, the Greater Miami Chamber of Commerce occupied the same downtown office building as the Urban League.

Earlier Saturday, Stuart conferred with New Hebrides Chief Minister Walter Lini, 37, and French Resident Commissioner Jean-Jacques Robert over possible police action by France and Britain to retake the island.

Lini, an Anglican priest, said in a broadcast that law and order there had broken down completely. French and British officials were by meet Monday in Paris to consider Stuart's request for help.

Midland Memorial gets poard's accreditation

Midland Memorial Hospital recently received a one-year accreditation from the Joint Commision on Accreditation of Hospitals (JCAH) following a twoday indepth survey conducted April 1-2.

This one-year accreditation gives MMH 25 continuous years of full accreditation by the JCAH whogave the hospital its first stamp of approval in 1955. The JCAH began surveying hospitals across the nation in 1953:

"The Joint Commission considers accreditation maintenance as an ongoing educational activity, to be carried on throughout the accredited period," John E. Milton, FACHA, deputy director of the Hospital Accreditation Program, said in his lettter to MMH Administrator Wayne E. Ulrich.

"The Commission commends the work that you have done," Milton continued, "and we believe that your hospital and medical staffs have the sincere desire to deliver the best care and service possible

The voluntary hospital evaluation program began in 1918 under the auspices of the American College of Surgeons. It was incorporated in 1951 with the support of its present member organizations: the American College of Surgeons, the American College of Physicians, the American Hospital Association and the American Medical Association. In addition to hospitals, the Chicago-based JCAH has programs for the accreditation of long-term care facilities, psychiatric facilities and facilities for the mentally retarded.

An educated person is not necessarily "smart," according to Herbert Mark Stanley III and Karen Lewis, Midland's two valedictorians.

She or he could be someone who knows what is going on in the world even though he is specialized in one area, said Miss Lewis, Lee High School's top student.

Or an educated person could be one with "renaissance values," that is having knowledge in most areas in addition to an understanding of history and current events, noted Stanley, Midland High School's valedictorian.

Both honor students said they did not feel any pressure about being in the limelight or the expectations people may have regarding their honor.

Miss Lewis said people may expect a little more from a valedictorian than others, but that didn't bother her.

There may be some pressure on a valedictorian student to do better in college, Stanley noted, and that pressure has been evident.

As to their expectations of becoming a valedictorian, Miss Lewis and Stanley said they never thought out it until the first quarter of their senior different from regular courses." "There is not that much pressure on a student in a regular course to perform well," he added. Also, an honors course is an outlet for the exceptional student needing a challenge, Lewis explained.

Study for an honor student requires some pressure. "For me, I have to have everything else off my mind," Stanley explained, and usually starts a day or two before the assignment is due, he added

Miss Lewis noted that she can not start to work on a class assignment a week before it is due. Last-minute pressures tend to help her do the assignment better, she explained.

Economics and the environment were cited as the two major concerns, among others, for the class of 1980, the honor students noted.

"If we continue (harming) the environment we may not have a world to live on," warned Miss Lewis. "The water is so bad that one can walk on it instead of drinking it," she noted one ecological problem.

Stanley cited energy costs as the main economic problem his generation would have to solve. "The cost of energy is the mainstay of the nation,' he said, adding, "since we are forced to switch the source (of oil), it is evident there is much turmoil. Independence from foreign oil sources would do much to solve the main economic worry of the United States, Stanley noted. To accomplish this would mean a change in the present government policy brought about by an active citizenry.

year. During that time, both of them had the grade point average and it came down to taking the tests which would determine who would become the head of their class, they said.

Miss Lewis noted her brother and sister were fourth in their class and so she had planned to be at least fourth or better.

The education they received through Midland public schools prepared them for the college level courses, they claimed.

However, Stanley noted that preparation to cope, with the world should combine academics with extracurricular activities.

'You can be a whiz in the classroom, but be lost in the world," the MHS honor student explained.

Regarding the issue of higher grade points for honors courses, both graduates agreed with the status quo - that being five grade points for an earned "A" and four points for a "B."

"The amount of work and the depth of understanding required in an honors course," Stanley said, "is

Deputy's wife released unharmed

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — The wife of a Collin County sheriff's deputy said she was released un-harmed by a kidnapper who forced her into a car in McKinney on Saturday and drove her to Abilene.

Judy Darlene Deffibaugh, 34, wife of deputy Steve Deffibaugh, told Abilene police she was shopping at McKinney's Westgate Center around noon when a man approached her and used threats to force her into his car.

Sgt. Bill Stovall said the man did not display any weapons.

Regarding the draft and its effect on the voting behavior of 18-year-olds, Miss Lewis said that it could cause her age group and their parents to become politically active.

Stanley noted the draft probably would not affect 18-year-olds that much. "In the first place, they (18 year-olds) are too apathetic," he said.

The only way the draft might affect their voting behavior is if the U.S. getsinvolved in another Vietnam-type situation. But, if the draft was for the defense of the country, his age group would be willing to be inducted for military service.

Both honor students plan to study engineering courses in college; Stanley wants to go into mechanical engineering at Rice University while Miss Lewis will opt for petroleum engineering at Texas Tech University.

When asked about the advantages and disadvantages of a woman studying for a field primarily occupied by men, Miss Lewis noted her male counterparts in the oil patch might think a woman shouldn't be doing that work. But she has an advantage

"I have got a job in the bag," she said, "since a woman (petroleum engineer) has a better chance of getting hired because of the quota system some oil companies have adopted."

Police so far have been unable to discover anyone who saw Kristy leave the disco that night, but they believe she must have left with someone since she did not have her car and she was barefoot. Kristy's shoes and coat were left at a table in the disco

Her car had been lent to an acquaintance; it was found February 4 on Rankin Highway where the acquaintance had abandoned it when it quit running. Had the 19-year-old left the disco on foot, officers, who searched the surrounding fields, said they would have found some evidence.

Police say they have followed hundreds of leads and continue to investigate any new information that is reported - even if it means doing so on their own time

So far the four-month search has involved countless hours and cooperation with Midland police, Midland County sheriff's deputies and Texas Rangers

FARM-RANCH ROUNDUP Texan promotes Cotton, Inc. plan

FAUE MA

MULANET (STOCK STOCK)

MEMPHIS, Tenn. - Texas farmer Hans L. Hansen has sound incentive to grow cotton. "The only reason I plant cotton," he said, "is to make a profit. I've either got to get the yield or I've got to cut expenses."

And thanks to a program tabbed Integrated Management Systems, Hansen and other grow-ers are finding that they can increase their profits by scouting their fields and balancing inputs for maximum effectiveness.

IMS, a cooperative effort between Cotton, Inc., and researchers, is aimed at improving grower profits. Research scientists at the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Science and Education Administration in Weslaco in South Texas have been working on the development of a system for Texas cotton producers.

The system, said USDA' soil scientist Dr. Marvin Heilman, takes into account such variables as plant type, fertilizer management, insect populations, weather cycles.

Pecan growers warned

COLLEGE STATION — Pecan growers need to be on the lookout for increasing disease and insect problems, said John Cooper, pecan pest management agent with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

While spraying for the first generation of pecan nut casebearers is generally complete over southern areas of Texas, applications are now under way in Central Texas. Nutlets should be checked for casebearer eggs on trees in northern and western locations.

The "right" spraying time is difficult to determine, as casebearers are hatching both early and late over the state, said Cooper. Sprays should be applied two days after the eggs hatch.

Warmer weather and the rising relative humidity are providing the potential for disease problems in pecan orchards.

Grain rules may be changed

DALLAS - The U.S. Department of Agriculture is proposing to change rules under the U.S. Grain Standards Act which permit fumigation of insect-infested grain during loading aboard ship. If adopted, the change would be effective Sept.

"Insect-infested grain loaded aboard ships other than bulk cargo carriers may now be fumigated for a minimum of 12 days to destroy the insects," said Leland Bartelt, administrator of USDA's Federal Grain Inspection Service."

Cotton loan value may be cut

LUBBOCK - Unless Congress or the U.S. Department of Agriculture can be induced to make changes, the "typical" quality of High Plains cotton for the 1980 crop will carry a Commodity Credit Corp. loan value of about 340 points (3.4 cents) per pound below the loan value assigned in 1979.

The national base loap rate for 1980 will be down 223 points, which computes out to 50.23 cents to 48 cents per pound, according to the Plains Cotton Growers Inc. of Lubbock. The increased grade of staple discount on Strict Low Middling 3-1/32-inch cotton will lower the loan rate 50 points, and a higher penalty for 3.3 to 3.4 micronaire will drop it another 65 points.

PCG is supporting legislation introduced by 19th District Congressman Kent Hance to put the cotton loan value at 65 percent of parity — about 69 cents a pound. And PCG is protesting the "abnormally" large increases in discounts an-nounced for the 1980 loan schedule. USDA in 1980 "arbitrarily abandoned" established procedure in assigning premiums and discounts to the loan, says PCG Executive Vice President Donald Johnson. The USDA action "caused both micronaire and grade and staple discounts to go up ensiderably more than was expected.

PCG stance is that "loan discounts for the 1980 market year should be recalculated (by) using a formula which gives at least 10 times as much weight to the 1979 loan schedule as to the spot market quotes.'

The "severe" spot market discounts in the 1979-80 marketing year are the results of last year's abnormally large supply of low quality cotton.

Farmers' prices up in May

WASHINGTON, D.C. - A "patch of blue" in the otherwise stormy economic sky over agriculture may be in the offing.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture reported Friday that the prices farmers got for their raw goods rose during May after posting monthly declines in March and April.

The increase of 0.9 percent was also more than twice the rise in the prices they paid to meet expenses. That index rose 0.4 percent during the month after remaining unchanged from March to April.

The improvement, however, was not enough to offset previous monthly declines in prices received so that income continued running below 1979 levels for the fourth straight month. Price paid by farmers have been running ahead on year-earlier levels for more than 17 months. The May parity level for farm commodities remained at the April level of 60 percent, the lowest since May 1933 during the depth of the nation's worst economic depression. At 100 per-cent, farmers would theoretically have the same spending power they did in 1910-1914.

The department's Crop Reporting Board said much of May's increase in prices received by farmers was due to higher prices for oranges, hay, corn, broilers and potatoes, although prices for cotton, soybeans and hogs were also ahead of the April averages. Lower prices for eggs, milk and cattle tempered those increases.

Cattlemen to gather

AUSTIN - The Independent Cattlemen's Association's sixth annual convention and trade show in San Antonio June 26, 27 and 28 will be keyed to the theme "1980 - A New Decade for Independent Cattlemen."

Speakers will include former Texas Gov. Dolph Briscoe, U.S. Sen. John Tower of Texas, Dolph Briscoe, U.S. Sen. John Tower of Texas, Texas Animal Health Commission Executive Director Dr. John Holcombe and KTRH-radio Farm Show personality Ben Oldag. The convention will be centered in the San Antonio Convention Center, which is near the convention's hotel headquarters at the Hilton Palacio del Rio.

Proper planting 'must' for trees

By CHARLES W. GREEN Midland County Extension Agent - Agriculture

Midland County farmers have about completed planting, and it has been a difficult time for many of them. Wind, hail and rain in May destroyed as many as two plantings for producers in local areas, partic-ularly in the Greenwood community. Rangelands are responding to the moisture received in May with excellent forage growth, and livestock are generally in good condition.

WE STILL HAVE NOT found evidence of pecan nut casebearer activity in pecans in the Midland area. It appears that cool temperatures this spring have delayed the emergence of the moths. Extension entomologists made a number of inspections in the area this past week and did not detect any egg laying, which indicates that optimum spray date is first eggs are laid. I cannot overemphasize the importance of timing sprays correctly for good control. I know of several persons who had trees sprayed as long as two weeks ago, and this was a wasted effort since the delay in the emergence of the insect. Pesticide will give about seven to 10 days control in the West Texas environment at best.

MY ASSOCIATE, Travis Harney, and I have spent a lot of time the past three weeks in establishing result demonstrations in crop production on Midland County farms. The result demonstration techniques are as old as the Extension Service, having been utilized by Dr. Seaman A. Knapp, Extension's founder, in the early 1900s to help farmers see first hand the advantages of improved plant varieties and fertilizer trials, variety tests, weed control tests and disease (nematode) control trials. Serving as demonstrators this year are Marc Traweek, cotton variety and fertilizer trials; Roy Graham, cotton variety and nematode control; Wilbur Casbeer, fertilizer and cotton variety trials; Jon Whisler, fertilizer trials; Bruce Synatschk, cotton variety trial; Danny Robertson, cotton variety trial, and W.N. Locklar, nenwatode control and cotton variety trial.

Detailed records and observations are kept on these demonstrations throughout the growing season, and production and economic return data taken at harvest. The demonstrations can be visited at any time during the year by any interested producer.

THINGS HAPPEN TO TREES sometimes that are hard for the outsider to diagnose. Many calls come into the Extension Office concerning shade trees that start doing badly a year or two after planting. This can be related to incorrect planting techniques.

The effects of planting too deep are slow to appear. Dead branches may occur in the top of a tree as late as two or three years after planting. It may take longer in sandy soil. Sometimes the tree overcomes this problem by growing a new root just below the surface. Usually, however, the tree finally dies. Before branches die, effects of deep planting cause slower-than-normal growth. A seven year study by F.W. Holmes at the Shade. Tree Laboratory at the University of Massachusetts supports these observations. Sugar maples were planted in both silt loam and sandy loams with roots at 0. 3. 6. 12 and 24 inch. depths. Growth, rates, decreased with increased depth. Less growth was observed in silt loam soils than in sandy soils. Tree roots and the trunk exchange gases with the outside atmosphere. The cells use oxygen and give off carbon dioxide in respiration. The root tissues can stand lower oxygen levels than the trunk. Roots can be smothered or drowned if left in a water-saturated environment too long. But the trunk may be smothered by soil alone if the tree is either surrounded by earth fill or is planted too deep. Whether the problem is caused by trunk smothering or roots too deep in the soil is unclear. Nevertheless, planting too deep or filling around the trunk is damaging to ings and loan associations and homebuyers can look forward to increased savings, reduced mortgage interest rates and more home loans, a lending industry report said today.

The report was prepared for the Texas Savings and Loan League by Kaplan, Smith and Associates of Pasadena, Calif.

Interest rates on six-month treasury bills - a key indicator for sav-~ ings and loan associations - dropped from 15.03 percent in March to less than 9 percent in early May, the report said.

"In the coming months this will mean improved savings flows to the S&Ls, reduced mortgage interest rates and expanded mortgage lending," Kaplan, Smith said.

The report said the drop in interest rates "has been due to a combination of the Carter Administration anti-inflation credit restrictions and the oncoming recession. Although the recession will reduce demand for mortgages, the recession effects of dampening renewed real estate activity should be minimal in the stronger real estate markets of Texas."

Kaplan, Smith said mortgage lending by Texas savings and loan associations totaled $1.1 billion in the first

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Texas sav- quarter of 1980, a 17.6 percent drop from the same period of 1979. But, the report said, this was less than the national decline of 29.8 percent. In some metropolitan areas, mort-gage lending actually increased over the first quarter 1979 figures - Abilene (11.9 percent), El Paso (24.6 percent), McAllen-Pharr-Edinburg (30 percent) and Odessa (140 percent), the report said.

Texas savings and loan associations, contrary to national trends, were net purchasers of loans in the secondary market during the first quarter, with purchases exceeding loans sold by $58 million, Kaplan, Smith said.

According to the report, interest rates in the secondary market - in which lenders sell mortgages to other lenders or federal agencies - was 15.22 percent in April. A league official said that meant the effective rate to borrowers was 15.72 percent.

q. yd. istalled BAGGS, Wyo. (AP) — All the customers of the Valley Telephone Co. of Baggs, a village of 250 nestled in the high country along the Wyoming-Colorado border, can be listed on nine pages of a pamphlet-size book.

But the size of the company in no way compares with the role it plays for residents and businesses along a 30-mile stretch of the Little Snake River Valley at the edge of the Medicine Bow National Forest.

In the snowy Wyoming winters, mountain ranchers and farmers are often isolated by snow-clogged roads, and depend on communications to keep them in touch with the rest of the world. But in the past, Valley Telephone customers haven't depended on the

"What telephone?" queried Baggs' Mayor Chuck White when asked about the telephone service that also has customers in Dixon, population 47; Savery, 25; and Slater, Colo., 10. "Every time it's bad out, the circuits shut off."

The Wyoming Public Service Commission recognized the deficiency, and last fall ordered the family-owned company to come up with a plan for improvement of facilities and services, which it did.

But when the company had taken no action by March, the commission declared an emergency and, in an unprecedented move, issued another order, this time for the company to replace its manager.

That order resulted in Valley Telephone asking for interested buyers, and it found them in Mr. and Mrs. William A. Lamb, who own the Dubois Telephone Exchange Inc., of Dubois. The commission has authorized the Dubois company to acquire the Valley exchange.

"We were approached by the management after the order," Lamb said, "and we've just started to study the problems."

Although Lamb may not be acquainted with the problems, area residents certainly are.

In fact, the mayor says the most reliable way to contact him is to "call for C.W. on Channel 19," on citizens band radio. Most valley residents own CBs and use them like telephones, he said.

White says the company was afflicted with a variety of problems, not just service outages.

"The phone would ring, and you'd say 'Hello,' and you hear some guy trying to get Kansas City," he said. "One time a guy called up, and when he found out he wasn't talking to the people he wanted, he said, 'Well, I may as well talk with you awhile,"" White said.

A restaurant waitress also was less than laudatory of phone service when a reporter asked to use a phone. "It's around the corner and go ahead, if it works," she said.

White said service outages were caused by connectors being located over numerous irrigation ditches in the valley. In bad weather, the connectors got soaked and short-circuited, he said.

White also says most equipment is outdated and needs replacing. A pay phone in a Baggs motel lobby — still costing a dime — looked like a relic from decades ago.

But soon, the commission hopes, residents in the Little Snake River Valley won't have to rely on CBs for communications.

. The Lambs have already hired a new manager — Joseph B. Lunbeck — who has several years' experience operating a small telephone company with the Wyoming Telephone Co. in Pinedale.

And the new owners are already checking out deficiencies. "We're looking things over, to see what we'll need," Lamb said. "We've just come down to take over."

New service offered by Midland Hospice program

Group ministers to needs of terminally ill, their families

By SUE FAHLGREN Staff Writer

She hadn't seen her grandfather in years. In fact, all she'd heard about him these past two years was that he was terminally ill and living in a nursing home. He didn't talk much any more, either. She couldn't believe that the Grandpa who used to recite stories of the war for hours could have stopped laughing, talking in funny voices and teiling his stories. It couldn't be true.

When Uncle Joe had called that day, she knew she had to see Grandpa. She'd driven all night from Tucson and was finally at the nursing home waiting to see the chubby man who used to give her chocolates when her parents weren't looking. "It would be good to see him again," she thought.

She was wrong.

The frail, thin man hooked up to a myriad of wires and tubes bore little resemblance to the strong Grandpa she used to spend her summers with. In fact, the sickly man bore little resemblance to anything living. It couldn't be him.

She edged closer.

"Grandpa?" she whispered.

"Grandpa, is it you?" The old man creaked. "Emily?

Emily, dear?" he groaned. 'Yes, Grandpa, it's me," she said. "Emily," he said, "take me home. Please take me home. I just want to die in peace."

The scenario above is not a new one. Family members of terminally ill patients are frequently begged to take their dying relative home. But the guilt and concern the healthy relative has for the dying loved-one sometimes overshadows what the patient really wants.

"Stay in the hospital, Grandpa," they tell him. "You'll get better care here. They can do more for you here.

Even if the family wants to take the patient home, sometimes the extended care he is receiving at the hospital cannot be duplicated at home. So, patient after dying patient leaves this world from a hospital bed where he has been attached to machines for weeks, or even months, without seeing anthing outside the four walls of his room.

However, a fairly new program for terminally ill patients is springing up world-wide. The program is called Hospice, and Midland is currently establishing its first here.

THE IDEA BEHIND Hospice is providing a way for both the terminhis family to both accept death and to deal with it together. It becomes what some have called "death with dignity." Sharon Holman, president of the Hospice program here, says the Hospice idea is "a really beautiful concept.' The group here -c which will even-tually include professionals in the fields of social work, medicine, religion, pharmacy and psychiatry has not yet been organized enough to handle a full patient load. Current members are still attending workshops and seminars to learn about setting up such a program and maintaining the service in the communicause of the legalities of such a group - like provisions to receive both federal and state funds and stipulations from other groups - the Midland group is still not ready to take on the number of Midlanders that need their services.

The Rev. Sam Hulsey, pastor of the Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity and vice president of the Hospice group, first gave a lecture on the National Hospice program in 1979. Hulsey says he envisions another two years of work on the program before it will be a truly viable service in the community.

Then, doctors will be able to prescribe "the Hospice mixture" to their terminally ill patient so the patient can go home to die with his family, friends and even pets.

Other group members will be able to give support to the family and the patient. Ministers from almost every religious affiliation, nurses, social work counselors and even volunteer laymen will be ready at a moment's notice to help.

Group members teach the family how to care for the patient. Further, they can help with related problems, from finding sources of funds for the family's expenses to teaching potential widowers to cook and clean for themselves. Sometimes, Mrs. Holman says, they can help by just being there Sandy Root, whose husband, Forest, recently died of cancer, was the Midland Hospice group's first customer.

"WE STUMBLED on (Hospice) accidently," Mrs. Root said. She and her husband had been watching "The Phil Donahue Show" one morning and learned about Hospice, but they did not know Midland had such a group. When Mrs. Root asked the doctor if she could learn to give her husband's morphine injections at home, Dr. William McGavran, a Midland neurosurgeon, sent her to a public health nurse, who in turn put the Roots in touch with Hospice.

Another doctor prescribed the liquid "Hospice mixture" for her husband and she began giving it every four hours.

The mixture is one of two types developed to eliminate the daily pain of the terminally ill, whether a cancer victim or a victim of another terminal disease, according to Dr. McGavran. Within the mixture, he says, is morphine and some analgesics. Because the patient receives the medication before he experiences pain and because it is given regularly, the patient usually does very well on the mixture and experiences little pain. Mrs. Root says the mixture worked their loved-one. "It's not a hopeful thing," she says. Although the morphine mixture eliminates the pain, the patient is still dying and nothing changes that, she says. "You have to first face the fact that they're going to die. Although Hospice cannot create the miracle of saving a patient from death, the group can make the patient's last days more enjoyable and more full, Mrs. Root says. Mrs. Holman agrees. "We put an emphasis on the quality of life. We want to do quality care," she says.

It's not important to patients that they live two months longer, for example, if they are in a coma, or have not been able to see their husbands, wives, children or pets during that time.

If the patient is depressed, his outlook on life is not good and generally his physical well-being is worsened, according to Dr. McGavran. HOSPICE WORKS to relieve the patient's depression, McGavran says. "More important than (living a longer life), they would live happier, he says. "Sometimes when they're happier, they do live longer. It's a state of mind. Depression certainly Root says, is that Hospice cannot cure does kill, or it can hasten death," he explains. "When a patient stops trying, his death comes faster."

Mrs. Root said her husband "had a tremendous attitude about the whole thing." And because of Hos-pice, he was able to stay at home to die where he wanted to. "I wouldn't take anything for Forest being at home," Mrs. Root added.

Currently, the Midland Hospice is run on donations. In some places, Hospice receives funds not only from donations, but also grants, Medicare, Medicaid, Blue Cross, insurance benefits, private hospitals, state funds, the Department of Health and Human Resources and payments from families able to afford the services. Presently, the local group is doing

"need survey" on the area. It must obtain a "certificate of need" outlining the number of potential families to be served by such a Hospice group in order to receive federal funds.

Other Hospices currently operating in Texas include the Southeast Hospice in the Beaumont area; the Visiting Nurse Association's Hospital in Dallas; Ann's Haven in Denton; St. Joseph's Hospital, which is a homecare program, in Fort Worth; St. John's Hospital in San Angelo; St. Benedict's Hospital in San Antonio; and Trinity Valley Hospice Association in Tarrant County.

Some Hospice groups are located in separate facilities, or in wings of existing hospitals; others are homecentered programs with visiting nurses and doctors available.

Further information on Hospices and Hospice programs are available through the Trinity Episcopal Church's library, which is open to the public, or telephone the church office, 683-4207.

Woman wins aerobatics crown

By WES COOK

KEARNEY, Mo. (AP) - Nettie Sanchez had a "fire burning down there in her guts that said, 'This is something I want to do."" She went to Lt. Col. John Morrissey for advice and help.

Morrissey, a veteran of almost 20 years in the Air Force and a two-time National Aerobatic champion, explains:

Nettie came to me in February of 1979. She was already a fairly accomplished pilot in the straight and level area. She wanted to get involved in aerobatics. She set her goal pretty high, to be a National Champion by October of 1979, a period of less than nine months ... Herprogress was above average, due to natural ability. But basically, I think, there was just that fire, and, I think it's still there.

Nettie entered the world of flight in 1976 and got her private and instrument ratings. A couple of years later she discovered aerobatics.

A native of Middle Granville in upper New York State, she is a divorcee with custody of her three children, Gon, 12, Nettie, 10, and Peter, 9. She makes ends meet as a registered nurse. She also is a full-time student at Sioux Falls, S.D. College, seeking a bachelor's degree in applied science and eventually hopes to earn a master's in business administration.

"I entered seven aerobatic contests last summer," she relates. "I won three, came in third in two, came in fourth in another and sixth in another.'

Then came October and the National Aerobatic Championships at Sherman, Texas. She won the sportsman category competing against 18 men and one other woman and became, at the age of 34, the first woman National Aerobatic Champion. How did the children react?

"They were very, very proud. Gon was so excited that he took the trophy to show to all of the neighbors and Peter took it to school to show in class," Nettie recalled.

Why did she want to become an aerobatic pilot?

"I like the challenge. I have always been athletic and always been competitive. The aerobatics also gives me an opportunity to compete on an equal basis with men and women. There is a great sense of accomplishment in aerobatic flying." Nettie's next goal is winning the intermediate championship this October.

There are four categories in the national championships: sportsman, intermediate, advanced and unlimited. The first three are flown basically with stock equipment, the kind you fly to the contest and fly home in. The unlimited involves specialized equipment with an emphasis on horsepower. Each requires the performance of specific, precisely executed maneuvers within certain minimum and maximum altitudes.

Nettie is practicing at every opportunity for four aerobatic contests this year, Council Bluffs, Iowa; Ottawa, Kan.; Fond du Lac, Wis the nationals, to be held in Austin, Texas.

Recently, Nettie and Morrissey flew to the the home of Dale and Mona Hoffmeier, east of Kearney in northwest Missouri. They shared in the Hoffmeiers' annual Memorial Day fly-in and pig roast with pilots of more than 50 aircraft, their families and neighbors.

More important, Morrissey spent four days working with Nettie and eight other students who met them there.

Morrissey's custom built Pitts s-2a looks like a hand-carved miniature of a biplane from the barnstorming days of aviation. But the roar of its 200 horsepower engine dispels any thought that 🐡 it is a toy. It's the plane Nettie trained in and flew for the national competition.

A native of Kansas City, Mo., Morrissey, 40, was graduated from the University of Kansas and won his wings as an Air Force jet pilot in 1961. In September 1963 he went to Southeast Asia where he flew F-105s and A-7s for almost nine years. Reassigned as a student at the Army Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kan. in 1973, he became a part of the faculty a year later and served as an academic instructor for three years: He now is in the last year of an assignment as an adviser to the Air National Guard at Sioux Falls.

While at Fort Leavenworth, "suffering withdrawal symptoms from active flight duty,' Morrissey purchased an aerobatic plane and began competing and performing in air shows.

20,000 blacks expected at St. Louis gathering

With BOB TIEUEL

Some 20,000 messengers are expected to attend the National Baptist Congress of Christian Education, auxiliary of the National Baptist Convention, U.S.A., Inc., when it meets in St. Louis in the Kiel Auditorium June 16-29. Edward A. Freeman is superintendent and Dr. J.H. Jackson is president of the convention.

The Congress will celebrate the 200th anniversary of the Sunday School movement, the 100th anniversary of the National Baptist and the 75th anniversary of the National Baptist Congress movment.

JOSEPH E. Lowery, president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, says that SCLC opposes budget cutbacks proposed by the Carter administration. "Balancing the budget is a noble precept but not at the expense of blacks, the poor, senior citizens and other minorities . . Increased unemployment will cost the nation $20 billion in lost taxes, eunemployment compensation, welfare payemnts and less productivity," Lowery said.

The SCLC convention will beheld Aug. 7-10, five days ahead of schedule, in order to allow officials to establish a presence at the National Democratic Convention on Aug. 11 in New York City.

Corpus City Council suing everyone

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) -Thanks to Proposition 14, the city council is suing everybody in town. Thanks to Proposition 14, angry Corpus Christi taxpavers are mounting a recall campaign to heave 'em all out of office.

Thanks to Proposition 14, this scenic coastal city of 240,000 can forget about a nice, quiet summer and gird for a bitter battle some fear could 'tear this community wide open.'

At the heart of the already raging controversy is a new tax-relief amendment approved easily in a hohum April 5 municipal election. In case you haven't guessed by now, it's known as Proposition 14.

people, an order from the taxpayers to the city council that we are tired of big tax increases," said Corpus Christi Taxpayers Association President Lewis Lovelace, who blames the council for the turmoil to hurt the city economically," coun-tered City Councilman David Diaz, who blames everything on the association leaders.

The new measure trims the property tax rate from 74 to 68 cents per $100 evaluation, reduces the maximum rate from $2.50 to 68 cents and limits annual increases in property appraisals to 6 percent.

The 6 percent limit prompted the class action suit against the amendment. Diaz, an attorney, said the limit. contradicts state laws requiring ad volorem taxes to be based on the more rapidly escalating true market value.

City leaders, who unsuccessfully campaigned against the amendment, also fear the new 68 cent tax rate ceiling will make it much more difficult to sell municipal bonds.

The new ceiling could also be illegal, said Diaz, since those who have bought Corpus Christi bonds did so partially because of the $2.50 ceiling. The prestigious Moody Bond Survey has already lowered Corpus Christi's bond rating one notch. Proposition 14 was given as the reason.

Things heated up quickly May 22 when the city filed its court challenge. Diaz said state law requires such a suit to be filed against all taxpayers, residents, property owners and persons claiming a financial interest in Corpus Christi.

For good measure, the city also, sued Texas Attorney General Mark White, who approves bond sales.

The suit was filed just as taxpayers began receiving their 1980 tax bills, some of which reflected 50 percent hikes in evaluations prepared three months before Proposition 14. And to further inflame the situation, the suit was filed 240 miles away in Austin - at city expense.

Diaz said it was filed there to avoid involving local judges in the controversy. Taxpayers association secretary Joe O'Brien calls it "sneaky."

"We feel it is unethical, morally wrong and a misuse of public funds to be suing every citizen in this city with our own tax dollars," said Tom Hunt, the co-chairman of the association's recall petition drive.

"They're using our own money to sue us. I think that's just as illegal as it can be," said 76-year-old Guy Wina stead.

The angry taxpayers view the lawsuit as a challenge of their basic constitutional voting rights, and hope to hire an attorney to fight it.

They unanimously decided Thursday night to seek the removal of Mayor Luther Jones and the other six council members. They also want to fire the city manager and city attorney. We want to throw the bums out. That; in a nutshell, covers the situation," said O'Brien,

To force a recall election, the 400member association must obtain signatures from almost 9,400 registered voters by June 12. The Proposition 14 vote was only 10,049 to 7,405.

We have two weeks to get about 10,000 signatures. That seems to be almost an impossible task," said O'Brien.

"From the enthusiasm of the crowd, I think we can get more than 10,000 signatures," said Lovelace.

"If they keep up the demagoguery, they can be successful," said Diaz.

"I don't think it can be successful, said Jones. "I think there will be enough informed voters in Corpus Christi, if it gets to that stage, to stop it. I don't think they want that group to take over the city.

The taxpayers contend the city leaders must be tossed out because they are trying to overturn the results of a fair-and-square election.

Lovelace also is seeking a U.S. Justice Department investigation of what he feels is a violation of federal voting rights laws.

"The issue now is whether or not our vote last April is any good," said O'Brien.

"I feel they are trying to take the ballot box away from us," said Milton Green, 59.

The bitterness and anger is already evident. Both Diaz and O'Brien said they fear the dispute could "tear this community wide open."

New savings rules: Good, bad news

By EILEEN ALT POWELL

WASHINGTON (AP) - A federal banking committee has some good news and some bad news for the nation's savers.

The goods news is that Americans will be able to earn higher interest on two specialized savings certificates at banks and at savings and loan associations

The bad news is that penalties will be worse for savers who withdraw their money before the savings certificates mature.

In addition, thrift industry experts say, the good news for sayers will translate to bad news for borrowers because loan rates — including mort-gage interest rates — will not drop as low in the future as they have in the past.

THIS IS BECAUSE the more financial institutions pay in interest to savers, the more they have to charge for the money they lend, the experts said.

The Depository Institutions Deregulation Committee, set up by Congress earlier this year to oversee interest-rate issues, on Wednesday changed the way financial institutions determine how much they can pay in interest on six-month money market certificates and 2.5-year savings certificates.

Penalties for early withdrawal will be severe under the new rules; with savers at times required to sacrifice principal as well as interest to get their money out before the certificates mature.

Under the old rules, savers who withdrew their account balances prematurely faced the loss of whatever interest had accrued to the time of withdrawal.

Under the new rules, six-month certificate holders can lose the equivalent of three months' interest. Thus, if a saver withdraws funds after having left them on deposit for only a month, he'd lose the month's interest plus that part of the principle equal to two more months interest.

The penalty for early withdrawal of money from the 2.5-year savings accounts will be the equivalent of six months interest.

AS OF LAST MONTH, Americans had more than $377 billion on deposit in six-month accounts and about $25.6 billion in 2.5-year accounts, according to figures from the Federal Reserve Board and the Federal Home Loan Bank Board.

The rates on both certificates remain tied to federal securities, but with different ceilings and floors. As before, a saver "locks in" to a particular rate on the day the account is opened.

The rate on the 2.5-year certificate - also known as a 30-month certificate - is tied to the average yield on Treasury securities. The current Treasury yield is 9.05 percent.

Under the old system, Americans opening 2.5-year savings accounts starting Monday would earn interest of 8.3 percent at banks and 8.55 percent at savings institutions.

Under the new system, savers will be able to get a maximum of 9.25 percent at banks and 9.5 percent at the savings institutions.

THE YIELD TO SAVERS will actually be higher than the interest rates suggest, because the financial institutions can compound them. But because the financial institutions can use a variety of formulas for compounding, savers will have to shop around to find institution is offering the best return. Commercial banks will be able to offer a maximum interest rate of 9.25 percent whenever the Treasury yield curve is 9.5 percent or below. The thrifts will be able to offer a maximum of 9.5 percent. When the government yield rises to between 9.51 percent and 12 percent, the thrifts will be able to match the rate and banks will be able to offer the yield-curve rate minus 0.25 of a percentage point. - If the Treasury yield rises above 12 percent, thrift institutions will be held to a maximum rate of 12 percent on their 2.5-year certificates, and com-mercial banks will be able to pay a maximum of 11.75 percent.

The popular six-month certificates will work this

The six-month rates are pegged each week to the discount rate on 26-week Treasury bills, which are auctioned by the government on Mondays.

Savers must put a minimum of $10,000 into these special accounts, and banks and thrift institutions are prohibited from compounding the rate of return

Under the old system, financial institutions were allowed to "match" Treasury bill rates of 9 percent or above. When the Treasury bill rate fell below 8.75 percent, banks continued to match the rate but savings institutions could add up to 0.25 of a percentage point in determining their six-month rate.

STARTING JUNE 5, all financial institutions will be able to add 0.25 of a percentage point to the Treasury bill rate whenever the bill rate is 8.75 percent or above.

When the Treasury bill rate falls to less than 7.25 rates.

percent - which it could well do in coming weeks banks and thrift institutions will be able to pay a maximum of 7.75 percent interest.

The complications in determining the savings certificate rates occur when the Treasury bill rates range from 7.26 percent to 8.74 percent.

When the Treasury bill rate are in this range, money market certificates will carry interest rates ranging from 7.75 percent to 9 percent, with thrifts generally offering rates slightly higher than those at banks

'It's going to take a while to get things coordinated," said one banking official who asked for anonymity. "My bet is that there will be real confusion until everyone gets used to the new system.

There is, in addition, another hitch. Commercial banks will be allowed, during the next six months, to offer the higher thrift-institution rate to those savers who are "rolling over" or renewing existing sixmonth certificate accounts at banks. New bank accounts, however, will be held to the lower bank Pair held for spying

BERLIN (AP) - A West Berlin couple have been charged with espionage for allegedly passing copies of the criminal records of West German citizens to communist East Germany, justice officials said Friday.

The information is regarded as highly sensitive because it could be used by the East German state security agency to blackmail West Germans into spying.

Edgar and Petra Arndt were taken into custody on an arrest warrant filed May 16, a West Berlin justice spokesman confirmed.

They apparently were sent into West Berlin five years ago with false West German passports provided by the East Germans. They arrived separately, using different family names, and later martied in West Berlin, the spokesman said.

The 31-year-old woman has been employed at the Federal Registry Office in West Berlin for nearly three years and had access to criminal records stored in computers, the spokesman said.

Trinity Towers marks anniversary with two-phase expansion plans

Ten years after opening its doors to the public, Trinity Towers is celebrating its anniversary this month coupled with the announcement of a twophase expansion, part of which will be a new campus in northwest Midland.

John F. Younger, president of the Trinity Towers board, explained that Phase I calls for construction of a separate health care building to be located at the corner of Ohio and Ward streets.

Trinity Towers currently is licensed for 50 health care beds, and all will be moved into the new structure. Tower officials also are requesting authority from governmental bodies to increase this number. Approval would mean further enlargement of the new facility

The Health Care Center currently is located on the second and third floors of the Tower. When relocated to the newsbuilding, it will release 50 units in the South Tower for retirement living. Phase II calls for the construction of a second campus on a 40-acre tract in northwest Midland, Younger said. The tract lies between Sinclair and Neely avenues and abuts Holiday Hill Road on the east. The new north campus will be designed to cater to the "younger elderly" and will feature security through fencing an employment of security guards. This campus may include duplexes and cottage-type apartments that will be clustered around a community building, Younger explaind. This building will contain a large activity room suitable for parties, catered dinners and special functions. Room dividers will allow several groups to hold functions at the same time. The community building should include a party kitchen as well as a lounge area for general use.

Offices and hobby rooms under the guidance of an activity director are planned. The new complex will have a small infirmary for temporary illnesses with a nurse on duty at all times. The outdoor area will have picnic and recreation facilities.

A new concept that will be tried on the north campus is an "entry fee," program in which a portion of the construction costs will be paid by the resident prior to occupancy, Younger explained. Such programs are proving highly

Such programs are proving highly successful at other similar facilities. It allows the original residents to have a voice in the size, design and decor of the units. Other advantages include less waiting time for availability of units and greater flexibility in individual lifestyles.

Upon completion of these phases, Younger said, Trinity Towers would offer all levels of living to retired persons

The present campus at 2800 W. Illinois Ave. will continue to operate with no entrance fee required and with all units rented as in the past. Phase II won't be started until the first phase is completed. Younger said that persons are welcome to ask questions about Phase II, however.

Younger said a definite time table hasn't been set, but the expansion committee is busy working on finalizing future plans. Since May 24, 1970, when Trinity Towers was first dedicated, it has achieved a statewide reputation of excellence and is recognized for its leadership in the retirement living field, said Younger.

Trinity Towers' success is emphasized by the increasing demand for accommodations that has produced lengthy waiting lists even after the construction of a second five-story tower in 1978. The facility now offers 174 units plus auxiliary areas.

Trinity Towers board credits the facility's success to the support of people in Midland.

Texas loses Concorde GRAPEVINE, Texas (AP) — The Concorde supersonic transport jet, a victim of spiraling fuel costs, took off on its final flight Saturday from the Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport. The departure of the long-nosed craft signaled an end of 16½ months of service from Texas to London and Paris via Washington. Braniff International Airways officials announced last month that "continuing upward spiral in the cost of jet fuel" forced the Dallas-based airlines to discontinue its interchange agreement with Air France and British Airways.

However, an Air France spokesman said the demise of SST service "really doesn't have any overall significance as far as Concorde operation by Air France goes."

Following its arrival here in 1973, the Concorde became the object of environmentalists protests because of its noise and possible destructive effects on the atmosphere.

Federal regulations forced Brannif to fly the Concorde at subsonic, speed on its five weekly Texas to Washington routes.

Officials declined to reveal the number of that flew on the SST in past seven years, but noted fuel costs rose 121 percent during that period.

The Concorde used four times as much fuel as a Boeing 747 on a transoceanic flight, officials said.

In addition to soaring fuel costs, the company cited, passengers paid $1,447 to fly to Paris in May, compared with $1,038 in January 1979. Britain and France inaugurated the joint SST project in 1962. The plane

A workshop for career education personnel will be held from 8: 30 a.m. to 3: 30 p.m. Monday and Tuesday in the Sam Houston Elementary cafeteria.

The two-day session is designed to select and adapt career education activities into all subject areas in kindergarten through sixth grade.

Bertha Starks is chairman of the Career Education Committee Committee members include Ann Donaldson, Wilma Roberts, Terri Evans, Joe Papai, Mary Engler, Lola Nunn and Alma Marshall.

Advisors and consultants are Sherlyn McGibbon, Keller Stamy, Romeo Canales, JoAnn Riggs, Ralph Slagle, Robert Carter, and Manuel Carrasco. BRISTOL, Conn. (AP) — A group of 1,000 motorcyclists gathered Saturday to demand the prosecution of a politican involved in a fatal car-motorcycle accident and then took over the streets of downtown Bristol for an uncontrolled exhibition of daredevil a riding.

Riot-equipped police were on hand nearby but did not move to stop the stunt-riding which continued late into the night.

Only minor accidents were reported and three persons were arrested on charges of disorderly conduct, police said. Bristol Hospital officials said they had treated about 20 to 30 people with injuries ranging from minor cuts to broken bones.

"I'm going to let them burn out," said Police Chief John Oliver.

near the demonstration began closing early at 4 p.m. after it became apparent police could not control the crowd.

About 2,000 motorcyclists and spectators remained in the streets as late as 10:30 p.m., down from a peak of 1,000 cyclists and 5,000 spectators around noon.

The rally apparently had ended earlier in the day as police escorted the motorcyclists, many riding double and drinking beer, out of town.

But it restarted when some motorcyclists returned to the protest scene and word spread that a 20-year-old Bristol woman had been killed when a motorcycle went off a road in another part of this central Connecticut city of 55,000 people. It was not known whether the victim, Cindy Hartney, and the man driving the motorcycle had attended the rally.

Bikers take over

The original rally had been organized to demand action against a state legislative leader whose car was involved in an accident last winter that killed a motorcyclist.

Three dozen riot-equipped police officers briefly tried to block North Main Street when the bikes returned. But they pulled back after hundreds of spectators surrounded them, shouting that the daredevil performance should be allowed to contin-

The motorcylists raced at up to 50 mph through a narrow opening in the crowd pulling "wheelies," riding with the front wheel off the ground. Two protest organizers met with Oliver to demand that state Rep. Andrew Grande, a Bristol Democrat who co-chairs the legislature's General Law Committee, be charged in connection with the fatal accident. In the Jan. 16 accident, Thomas Swingle, 24, of Bristol was killed when the motorcycle he was driving on Middle Street collided with a car driven by Grande.

Police officers who investigated the accident said Grande was "at fault." But Assistant State's Attorney Patrick McGinley said prosecution was not warranted.

Edward Prout, a local motorcycle dealer, said Oliver told him during the brief meeting the police could do no more. Prout said he would try to meet Monday with Chief State's Attorney Austin McGuigan to demand that the case be reopened.

has increased nearly 66 percent in the last seven years. The Tax Foundation also noted that, at the same time, its after-tax purchasing power has declined by more than 8 percent since 1972.

From *1972 to 1979, the median family's money income climbed from $11,152 to an estimated $18,467. After direct Federal taxes both income and Social Security, and inflation take their bite, however, the family's purchasing power, measured in 1969 dollars, has dropped $700-from $8,500 to $7,800-leaving the family richer on paper but poorer at the supermarket.

During this period, Federal individual income taxes jumped 82 percent, from $985 to $1,789, while Social Security taxes soared 142 percent, from $468 in 1972 to $1,132 in 1979. Total direct Federal taxes have more than doubled in seven years.

While after-tax incomes were rising 60 percent, prices went up 75 percent. The result is an 8 percent decline in actual purchasing power.

99 Percent Climb For THE TEN-YEAR PERIOD from 1969 to 1979, the rise in beforetax median family income barely managed to keep pace with the 99 percent climb in prices. Mounting taxes, however, caused an actual drop of 2 percent ($147 in 1969 dollars).

Inflation is the major concern of most Americans, reports the Permian Basin Tax Reform Immediately (TRIM) Committee, "What many sitizens do not sealize, however, is that inflation is caused by the Federal goverment increasing the supply of money and credit. That leads to the rising cost of living, which last year increased by more than 13 percent, and which is now growing at the rate of 18 percent!

The Permian Bain TRIM Committee is enclosing the Spring 1980 TRIM Bulletin as a public service. The cover story of the Bulletin is "Taxes and Inflation Cancel Income Gains," which explains that in spite of higher incomes our money has less purchasing power because the government is destroying the value of the dollar. In short, while many people are richer on paper, they are poorer at the supermarket. The Bulletin also contains articles about the dangers of wage and price controls, President Carter's meaningless effort to balance the 1981 Federal Budget, and the Federal law requiring such a balanced budget.

The regular feature of the Bulletin is a report of how Congressmen's Hance, Loeffler & White voted on major money bills. The current issue discusses nine bills involving $91.3 billion of your taxes, which amounts to $1,234 for each household.

The Permian Basin TRIM Committee is part of a nationwide, nonprofit, nonportisan educational organization whose goal is lower taxes through less goverment. For further inormation about TRIM, please contact The Permian Basin TRIM COMMITTEE.

435, which deals with certain functions of the International Monetary Fund. It- is a short bill. The final sentence is very important, for it states: "Beginning with fiscal year 1981. the total budget outlays of the Federal Government shall not exceed its receipts."

What that sentence means is quite simple: The Federal Government shall not spend more money than it collects. In short, the government' must have a balanced budget! Yet the Administration has proposed a budget for fiscal 1981 with an admitted deficit of $16 billion.

Beginning with fiscal year 1981, the total budget outlays of the Federal Government shall not exceed its receipts."

But there is a growing band of determined Congressmen who intend to see that P.L. 95-133 is obeyed. California Representative Charles Pashayan, Jr., has introduced House Resolution 525, expressing the sense of the House of Representatives. that the Federal Budget for fiscal year 1981 (which runs from October 1, 1980 to September 30, 1981) he balanced!

We urge you to write your Representative and ask him to (1.) send you a copy of P.L. 95-135, and (2.) ask him to cosponsor H. Res. 525 (which already has 100 co-sponsors) if he has not already done so. Congress passed the law, Congress should see that the law is obeyed!

It's time for lower taxes. Because many "hidden taxes" are never seen by consumers, some people find it hard to believe that governments at all levels are now consuming over 45% of an average person's earnings. TAX REFORM IMMEDIAJELY (TRIM), is a nonprofit, nonpartisan, nationwide network of educational committees founded by The John Birch Society to achieve "lower taxes through less government."

BRAHAM was, humanly speaking, the founder of our A Jewish nation. What were his experiences concerning this question of being saved by faith? Was it because of his good deeds that God accepted him? If so, then he would have something to boast about. But from God's point of view Abraham had no basis at all for pride.

For the Scriptures tell us Abraham believed God, and that is why God canceled his sins and declared him "not guilty."

But didn't he earn his right to heaven by all the good things he did? No, for being saved is a gift; if a person could earn it by being good, then it wouldn't be free-but it is! It is given to those who do not work for it. For God declares sinners to be good in His sight if they have faith in Christ to save them from God's wrath.

King David spoke of this, describing the happiness of an undeserving sinner who is declared "not guilty" by God.

"Blessed, and to be envied," he said, "are those whose sins are forgiven and put out of sight.

Is there anything being done by the city or county of Midland or the Chamber of Commerce to prevent Santana Industries from building their proposed plant midway between Midland and Odessa?

If nothing is being done, what can the people of Midland-Odessa do? According to reports, this plant can give off radioactive isotopes. - Mrs. Sherman T. Allenson

ANSWER: Answer Line refers you to a front page article, written by Kay Crites, staff writer for The Reporter-Telegram, which appeared May 27.

This article was headlined "Fight may be brewing over nuclear industry in the Permian Basin."

The article stated, "Although the project (Santana) seems to be halted at least temporarily by the loss of the original site, a company spokesman Said that if the reports were true, the firm would continue to try and locate in the Midland area."

The article goes on to say that "Santana Industries is a new corporation run by the same directors as American Atomics Corp., whose Tucson plant was seized last September by the Arizona National Guard after it was shut down by the Arizona Atomic Energy Commission for repeated vilolations.

By PETER J. BOYER AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Networks, networks, everywhere. News networks, sports networks, religious networks, movie networks - a new communications web, it seems, is born every day.

Next Sunday, Ted Turner's 24-houra-day cable news network begins operation. On June 9, something called Independent Network News takes its place in this world, offering prime time network news to 30 independent TV stations around the country.

Already operating are ESPN, the all-sports cable TV network, Home Box Office and Showtime - entertainment cable networks - and sundry religious networks. On commercial television, there are Operation Prime Time, Golden Circle and other ad-hoc entertainment net-

Each new web, in its way, competes with the The Big Three - ABC, NBC and CBS - for audience.

The proliferation of these networks speaks a challenge to the domination of the three major networks, and the thinking that guides them. The idea that the lowest common denominator must be served -- the bottom line in big network programming philosophy is being refuted with the birth of each new programming system.

This isn't lost on the brass at CBS, ABC and NBC. At their recent affliates meetings here, executives from all three networks spoke of the matter of the new technology and its chillenge to the status quo. Most of

NBC, he said, must "take chances in can't get it anywhere else." going for what truly is different on. television

"And I will tell you right now, our future in this business and our survival in this business depend on it. There aren't just two other networks out there, there is a growing assortment of new technologies, pay cable, subscription television, video disks and all the rest ... "

Such as?

Silverman's examples were the new "David Letterman Show," which begins next month, "Speak Up America" and other components of NBC's coming schedule. The same sort of programming, in other words, that gave rise to the alternative networks in the first place.

The Big Three are stuck. As long as their business is the business of providing the highest possible number of bodies to advertisers, their programming philosophies will remain narrow, their programs broad And at ternative systems that offer something truly different - even if the difference is something so small as the showing of an uncut film -- will prosper.

Rare fit of baseball sanity rescues NBC

THE MIDLAND REPORTER-TELEGRAM, SUN., JUNE 1, 1980

By PETER J. BOYER AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) - The baseball season, owing to the intervention of some unseen benevolent force, procedes as usual. A surprising fit of sanity came over both sides of the dispute just at the edge of a catastrophe, saving the national game.

And, ensuring the equanimity of baseball fans until September or so, when most of the beloved nines are mathematically eliminated from glory.

A strike would have been ugly, and cruel. Baseball, after all, conspired for generations to addict America to its seductive rhythms, employing in its conspiracy unwitting grandfathers and uncles and Moms and Dads, who sunk the baseball hook into innocent children by gradually revealing to them the game's everlasting veri-

Thus, to be a baseball fan is to answer the call of your fathers. An insidious addiction, it is.

But baseball suddenly lost its mind, and fans were left with prospects of a summer of sorrow. Baseball would be gone

For NBC, baseball withdrawal would have been excrutiating. The network's first few weeks of Saturday baseball telecasts rated quite nicely; and 1980 is NBC's turn to televise the lucrative World Series.

Remember, this is a network that has already lost the Summer Olympics. So, NBC had devised an alternate plan, a baseball fix, so to speak. On Saturday, where the Game of the Week used to be, NBC scheduled a dialogue on the baseball crisis to be followed by highlights of the sixth game of the '75 World Series between the Reds and Red Sox, the greatest game ever played.

This Saturday, had the pain persisted (and if advertisers didn't mind), NBC planned to televise the early rounds of the College World Series from Omaha. After that, the network would have televised minor league games and even some Japanese baseball.

As awful as a baseball strike would have been, it may have cured the baseball disease. By July, America may not have needed major league baseball. After a few weeks without a big-league baseball fix, we might have grown accustomed to another brand of the game; different, but in its way more satisfying. How many times have you seen the modern big leaguer go about his job with practiced nonchalance, or heard the grating phrase, "It's just a job, like anything else"

They don't say that in college ball, or in the minors. In baseball's nether reaches, the game is played with enthusfasm, by players who don't arrive at the park with their publicity agents in tow.

Their version of the game might have caught on. Remember what happened when NBC started paying proper attention to college basketball

- viewers tuned out the millionaire businessmen of the NBA and started having fun with the kids. The NBA had to rush out and buy Magic Johnson, whose enthusiasm is chronic, to save itself.

SUNDAY, JUNE 1, 1980

Mahaffey sets up Kemper battle with Trevino

BETHESDA, Md. (AP) — John Mahaffey conquered the course that owes him something with a no-bogey, 3-under-par 67 and moved into the third round lead Saturday in the $400,000 Kemper Open golf tournament.

The excellent effort over the hilly Congressional Country Club course, which the touring pros are playing for the first time in four years, gave Mahaffey a 207 total, three under par for 54 holes. He was one stroke in front of Lee Trevino going into today's final round in the chase for a $72,000 first prize.

"The trouble with tomorrow is that I'm one behind a 30-30 rifle," Trevino said of Mahaffey's deadly accuracy off the tee. "Mahaffey doesn't take a backseat to anybody. I have to shoot a 68 or 69 tomorrow to have any chance.

"If he shoots 68 he'll win it," Trevino said after his 69 had given him a 208 total:

And if Mahaffey does it, if his shoots his 68 and wins the huge purse, a revenge factor will be involved.

It was at this course, in the 1976 PGA national championship, that the hardluck Mahaffey suffered the first of a series of injuries that threatened his playing career.

"It was in the rough on the 13th hole," Mahaffey recalled. An overlyaggressive swing produced a hyperextended left elbow, which knocked him off the tour most of the rest of the year. Other injuries followed in dismal succession and it wasn't until 1978, when he won the PGA, that he really returned to fulltime action.

His steady play Saturday in the hot, humid weather, was climaxed by a double-breaking, 25-foot birdie putt on the final hole -- well after the national television cameras had ended their coverage for the day - lifted him out of a tie with Trevino and into sole control of the top spot.

"I really didn't expect to make it," Mahaffey said. "It had two separate breaks in it and I wasn't sure of the speed. I didn't know it was in untfi it fell in the hole. -"I kind of surprised myself."

The group at 209, and the only others under par for three rounds, were Australian Open champion Jack Newton, Mike Morley and Dr. Gil Morgan. Newton, whos challenged for the Masters title early this spring, shot a 65. Morgan, a non-practicing optometrist, matched par 70 and Morley fought his way to a 71.

Hale Irwin, rounding into the form that won him two U.S. Open titles, and young Jeff Mitchell, a winner at Phoenix earlier this year, were at 210. Irwin shot 70 and Mitchell followed rounds of 71 and 70 with a 69

"I've improved one shot each day," he said. "I'd sure like to do it again tomorrow.

Tom Watson, who has collected five titles and more than $346,000 in money-winnings this year, struggled to an erratic 73 that left him six shots back at 213.

J.C. Snead, the rangy guy who had led or shared the lead through the first two rounds slipped to a 77 and was at 214.

Play was held up for 42 minutes by an early-morning shower that hit the course well before the leaders got away. It softened the rock-hard greens and made them easier to hold. But it also dampened the fairways, eliminating roll on the drives, and made the long, long course play even longer.

SPORTS

"It may have been just a little easier, but it's still a very difficult golf course," said Mitchell.

And Mahaffey, not one of the game's longest hitters, agreed.

"Damn, but that's a long course," said Mahaffey, admittedly weary o from the leg-straining hills and the oppressive 90-degree heat with matching humidity.

But he handled it better than anyone else has this year.

He didn't make a bogey, and he wasn't really close to making one until the run down the stretch.

"I don't know whether it was the pressure of the moment, or just that I was getting tired, but I didn't hit the ball quite so well the last few holes." he said.

In a tie for the lead with Trevino most of the day, he missed the green but played an excellent little chip back to 31/2 feet and made the parsaving putt on the 15th hole

He was long again on the 16th, but this time came back to tap-in distance for his par, then moved in front alone with the putt that "took me by surprise" when it found the cup for the lead on the 18th.

College play gets behind after rains

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) - Rain forced the rescheduling Saturday night of several weekend games in the 1980 College World Series

A two-hour rain delayed the start of the scheduled 5:10 p.m. game between Clemson and Miami to nearly 7 p.m. A severe thunderstorm with one out in the ninth inning of that game forced the games committee to call the contest at that point, giving Miami a 13-5 first-round victory:

The games committee decided that Saturday night's second game, a first-round contest between Michigan and California, would be played at 1:10 p.m. today.

Forty-five minutes after the completion of that game, Clemson will meet the Michigan-California loser.

At 8:10 p.m. today, St. John's will meet Hawaii. Both those teams won their first-round games Friday night

The eighth game of the double eliminftion tournament, originally scheduled for tonight, will be played Monday at 1:10 p.m. That game will match Miami against the winner of the Michigan-California game.

DALLAS (AP) - Coaches are more than willing to support stricter rules concerning recruiting and academics, Grant Teaff of Baylor University told the College Football Association on Saturday.

He urged delegates from 58 of the nations' major football institutions to "put aside your fear that coaches will put in rules that will only benefit themselves.

"Fear," he said, "is a great deterrent to progress. Coaches can and should be trusted. Coaches would without question support more stringent rules on recruiting and academics if they are good for the studentathlete, good for the game of football, and sound financially.

Teaff called the pressure to win 'unbelievable'* and conceded that "the lack of credibility had grown immeasurably in the last few months" because of widespreaad recruiting and academic scandals.

He called for changes in the rules that would reduce the time a coach can recruit away from campus and also cut the number of prospects who may visit a school in one year, which currently stands at 95.

Teaff spoke during a general session of the CFA's fourth annual meeting which ends Sunday. The topic was "College Football in the 1980's."

Terry Francona hit a two-run double and homered as Arizona stopped Florida State 5-3 in the only other game Saturday.

The win kept alive the hopes of the second-ranked Wildcats, who were upset Friday in the opening game by St. John's. Sixth-ranked Florida State ended its season at 51-12, having been sent to the losers' bracket by Hawaii in the first round.

Arizona took a 1-0 lead on a solo home run to right field by Francona with two outs in the first inning.

The Wildcats added to their lead in the third when Clark Crist doubled to left, went to third on a single by Don Hyman and scored when Seminole third baseman Rick Figuerdo misplayed the throw by left fielder Jim Weaver.

Hyman moved to second on the error and advanced to third on a sacrifice bunt by Dwight Taylor. He scored on a sacrifice fly to center by John Moses to make it 3-0 Arizona. Rain then halted play for two hours. The Seminoles scored twice in the bottom of the fourth as Weaver slapped a opposite field two-run homer with Mike Fuentes aboard to pull within one at 3-2. It was his 18th of the year.

In the top of the fifth for Arizona, Dwight Taylor reached on a fielder's choice and Moses walked.

Francona then hit a fly to right field that Mike Yastremzeski appeared able to catch. The son of the Boston Red Sox superstar couldn't make the play, however, and it was scored as a double alleys of New York City's boroughs. RUSSO MADE a gutsy decision when he stuck with sophomore southpaw Frank Viola, who got off to a bad start in the first inning when he walked four batters.

Viola escaped unscathed and went on to hurl a four-hitter, which was marred only by a solo home run by Wes Clements in the third inning.

The Redmen also displayed a strong defense Friday night, somewhat contrary to the popular theory that position players for teams from colder climates don't get enough time during the year to hone their talents. With a season shortened by rainouts, St. John's had the distinction of coming into the series with a record of 29-9 - the fewest victories and defeats of any other team.

"At the start of the year when it's cold, beginning of practice is tough, very tough," said catcher Borriello, who is one of the sparkplugs on the squad. "Some of our fielders don't see a fly ball until the opening game."

BUT HE adds that basic, fundamental baseball is stressed repeatedly by their coaching staff.

"I never even saw a pitching drill until I came to St. John's," Borriello said. "But we practice it all the time and I think we have the best defensive pitching staff around.

"And, we're at our peak right now," he said. "We've been blessed with really good weather recently, so we're in good shape.'

Borriello was part of the Redmen squad that came to Omaha to play in the 1978 College World Series and lost two straight games.

Zachry makes All-SWC

DALLAS (AP) - Texas Tech's surprising Red Raiders, who made their first Southwest Conference post-season baseball tournament, landed three players, including Midland's Jimmy Zachry, on The Associated Press all-league team and Coach Kal Segrist.

Segrist, who had the original idea for the post-season tournament, was picked as Coach of the Year by his fellow mentors.

Red Raiders on the first team included shortstop Brooks Wallace, out-fielder Bobby Kohler, and utillity infielder Zachry of Midland.

Arkansas' power hitter outfielder Kevin McReynolds, who hit .430 with 10 home runs during the SWC season, was named Player of the Year.

Pitcher of the Year was a tie between Arkansas' Steve Krueger and Texas' Keith Creel

Texas A&M's Robert Slavens, who All-SWC baseball team was 7-0 in league games, was the Newcomer of the Year.

Other players on the All-SWC team included Houston first baseman Mike Breslin, who hit .364, second baseman Dean David of Texas, .348, third baseman Fritz Connally, Baylor; .314, Wallace of Tech, .333, catcher Gene de los Santos, Baylor, .416, Zachry, .348, designated hitter Ricky Nixon, Texas, .392, and outfielders McReynolds, Mike Zatopek, Texas, .377, annd Kohler, .374.

The utility outfielder was Texas

Yarborough lacks sympathy

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) - Cale Yarborough of Timmonsville, S.C., may have won the pole position for Sunday's NASCAR 400 stock car race at Texas World Speedway, but he's far back in the field in trying to win the sympathy vote.

Yarborough toured TWS' two-mile oval at 170.709 mph to earn the No. 1 spot for Sunday's $186,700 race but complained of bad luck earlier this season and of rough track conditions at Texas World Speedway.

"Yeah, Cale only qualified three mph faster than he did last year," countered a TWS official. "This track is in fine shape."

Yarborough disagrees but he's getting little sympathy from other drivers. Yarborough goes into Sunday's race in third place in current NA-SCAR point standings behind Dale Earnhardt and Richard Petty.

Yarborough won the Carolina 500 at Rockingham, N.C., March 9 and has seven finishes in the top 10 through 13 NASCAR events this year. A victory Sunday could put Yarborough into the point standings lead.

But Yarborough is crying all the way around the track.

'We should have won five races by now," Yarborough said. "We've been having little things go wrong that normally don't go wrong."

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) - Mike Norris and Bob Lacey combined on a six-hitter and Tony Armas and Wayne Gross both hit run-scoring triples Friday night, propelling the Oakland A's to a 4-3 victory over Texas and extending the Rangers' losing streak to four games.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) - John Wathan greeted Chicago relief ace Ed Farmer with a three-run inside-the-park home run in the sixth inning, helping the Kansas City Royals to a 6-4 victory over the White Sox Saturday night.

With runners at first and third and one run in, Farmer relieved Steve Trout, 2-5, in the sixth. Wathan lashed a drive that right fielder Harold Baines missed on a diving lunge. The ball careened off the wall and rolled towards center field as Wathan circled the bases and scored standing up. George Brett had singled leading off the sixth and

Jackson's blow, his ninth of the season, followed a single by Lou Piniella and made a winner of Yankee reliever Rudy May, 3-1. Joey McLaughlin, 1-3, the fourth Toronto pitcher, took the loss. The Yankees jumped in front in the second when

If you are interested in saltwater fishing off the Texas Gulf Coast, Port Aransas, a sleepy fishing village on South Padre Island, is the place.

Twenty members of the Texas Outdoor Writers Association held a meeting at Fisherman's Wharf only last week, providing an opportunity to meet, fish and exchange ideas.

Port Aransas, long the Tarpon Capitol of the World, no longer lives up to its reputation. Tarpon no longer swim the offshore waters as they once did, but occasionally there will be a tarpon run. Either the currents have changed or Mexico's commericial fishing has all but wiped out the Texas tarpon, but there's still other Gulf gamefish to be pursued.

RED SNAPPER, jewfish, warsaw, sand sharks and jackfish are always available during the winter and in the summer there's no telling what might hit the bait.

Sand sharks to six pounds and jackfish to 25 pounds provided the action this trip as a result of cool waters resulting from recent storms.

Temperatures were 75-78 degrees and migratory ocean gamesters prefer 80-85.

Trolling or drifting ribbonfish baits are the best methods for fishing Aransas. For two days we drifted the sharp-toothed ribbonfish over the sandy bottom 12 miles offshore, but the only responses were from sand sharks and jackfish. However, pound-for-pound the jack crevalle is the strongest battler on the coast. And they do make excellent shark bait.

Anyone rich or poor can fish Port Aransas...bay fishing for redfish and speckled trout, surfing for croakers, reds, trout, small sharks, crabs and pompano. Also popular is fishing the jetties. But charter fishing is the most prominent way

TWO PARTY boats workout out of Fisherman's Wharf, a four-hour trip costing $18, a price that includes tackle. An hour out leaves two hours to fish. From now until fall, chances of catching kingfish, spanish mackeral, blacktip, sand and hammerhead sharks, jackfish, dolphin and bonito are good. These short trips are exciting and can put good eating in the freezer.

Another trip requires three to four hours to fishing grounds and most of the fishing is by electric reels and extra-heavy fods. The system is to rig up five or six hooks on a line and add a pound of lead weight to reach bottom. Feeling a bite at that depth is difficult, but once you do, push the button and up your catch comes. This is the answer for those who want red snapper, although large sharks and amberjacks are an occasional bonus. Best method to get into the finest fishing is to charter a small boat from #330 to 400, not too bad split six or seven ways. By fishing private charter boats, you have a better chance of catching fish and lighter tackle is aboard all boats, making battling a fish much more exciting.

Due to requests about deep sea fishing from Midland, we'll take other looks at the Gulf of Mexico in future columns. But in Port Aransas and Fisherman's Wharf, we did find one good place.

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y. (AP) -Janet Coles, who has captured only one title in four seasons on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour, shot a 69 Saturday and tied veteran Sally Little at 214 for the lead after three rounds of the $125,000 tournament at the Wykagyl Country Club. Little bogeyed the par-5 18th hole, and finished the round with a one-

The big round of the day, however, a 66, was posted by Nancy Lopez-Melton, the two-time defending champion of the 72-hole event that concludes Sunday. The 23-year old golfer shared fourth place at 216 with Beth Daniel, rookie-of-the-year in 1979, who shot a

John Deere' durability does result in satisfied customers. But long life also calls for attention to maintenance. And maintaining the safety equipment on your tractor can be especially important.

For example, the original boot (or cover) for the bat-tery's positive post on Model 60, 70, 100, 110, 112, 120 or 140 Tractors manufactured from 1963 through 1974 may have suffered from age or may have been lost or damaged. And if that positive battery post is not properly covered, there is danger of a spark causing a fire and bodily injury if you accidentally touch a metal gas can to the positive battery post when refueling the tractor. A more serious fire can result if you are not using a safety-approved gas can. If you own one of the above models, John Deere wants you to make absolutely certain that your tractor has the battery's positive post properly isolated. To make it easy-and safer-for you, we will send you a new cover, free. Just fill out the coupon provided below and mail it to the address shown. It comes complete with installation instructions and is not difficult to install. But if you prefer, after you have received your kit, make a date with your John Deere Lawn and Garden Tractor dealer and he'll install it for a small service charge.

Remember, safety and maintenance go hand in hand The operator's manual can help you. Read it again. Keep your tractor as safe as it was meant to be.

It could be the most important thing you do today.

Correa's 299 isn't enough

By RANDY ISENBERG

Arthur Correa rolled a 299 game but it wasn't enough to keep PBA tour member John Denton and teammate Bud Richardson from winning the Air Park Lanes Memorial Day Scratch Doubles Double-Elimination Sweep-

Denton and Richardson advanced through the qualifying rounds unbeaten, one of their victories coming against Correa and his teammate, Brent Gallagher. In that match, Denton stroked games of 248 and 278.

Correa and Gallagher bounced back after the loss, however, winning their next three matches and moving into the finals against Denton and Richardson.

Denton and Richardson finished with a 834 total while Correa and Gallagher notched 828. Gallagher needed a mark in the tenth frame to win the title for his team, but left the 4-6 split.

Sonny Poole and David Martin finished third while Ty Bowling and Bill Theobald were fourth. Theobald had a 279 game and Marlin Hamel of Odessa perked up things with a 491 twogame set, the best game being 254.

In league play, Vern Williams slammed a 279 in Busy Men's.

Steve Masoner won Air Park Memorial Day 175-Under Handicap Tournament, rolling games of 223, 201 and 218. Lee Castleberry was second, Troy Barrington third, Pennie Poole fourth and Silver Bernal fifth.

Feeney to rule on Madlock's appea By The Associated Press Feeney called Phillips' telegram "intemperate" and said the issue

Chub Feeney, president of the National League, said Saturday he will rule Monday on Bill Madlock's appeal of a suspension for striking an umpire, obviating the umpires' threat to "suspend" the Pittsburgh Pirates infielder on their own.

Richie Phillips', the attorney for the umpires' association, sent a telegram to Pirates Manager Chuck Tanner, saying the umps were unhappy over delays by the NL in dealing with the Madlock appeal of a 15-day suspen-sion and $5,000 fine. The umps said they planned to eject Madlock from every game in which he appeared, starting next Friday against the Mets in New York, until the NL resolved the matter.

But Feeney, in a telephone interview from Hanover, N.H., told The Associated Press: "The umpires can put somebody out of a game for just cause, but not because they're upset, even though Richie Phillips says they will. It's not going to happen, as far as I'm concerned."

NEW YORK (AP) - Major League baseball conducts its 16th annual summer free agent draft of high school and college prospects Tuesday with the New York Mets owning three first round selections including the

No. 1 pick. Besides their own choice which will open the draft, the Mets get the No. 23 pick and the No. 24 selections in the first round as compensation for free agent veterans signed by other teams last winter. No. 23 comes from Pittsburgh which signed pitcher Andy Hassler, and No. 24 from Boston, which grabbed pitcher Skip Lockwood.

Atlanta is the only other club with more than one first round choice. The Braves' own pick is No. 3 and they also have Montreal's first round choice, No. 21 in the rotation, as compensation for the Expos' signing of outfielder Rowland Office.

Norman) and Houston's (for second baseman Joe Morgan). Pittsburgh, Minnesota, the Chicago White Sox, and Kansas City each have two second round picks, their own plus a compensation choice.

The compensation concept was the center of controversy during management's collective bargaining with the players association and resulted in a near strike. The clubs are demanding professional player compensation instead of amateur draft choices to replace premier free agents who sign with new teams. The union has balked at that idea. A study committee consisting of two players and two general managers will examine the question as part of the settlement reached in negotiations 10 days ago.

Through the amateur draft choice compensation system, nine clubs own extra picks in Tuesday's draft. They are the Mets, Cincinnati, Chicago White Sox, Atlanta, Baltimore, Kansas City, Milwaukee, Minnesota and Pittsburgh. Seven teams have lost picks with the Los Angeles Dodgers missing three choices. Houston, the New York Yankees and San Francisco have lost two each and Boston, California and San Diego will come out of the draft short one selection each.

Two rounds of the regular draft for players not selected before will be held beginning at noon with the teams linked to Commissioner Bowie Kuhn's office by conference call.

Dogs' owner 'innocent' in biting suit

A 142nd State District Court jury, considering a civil-suit allegation that two pet pit bulldogs viciously attacked a Big Spring man on a Midland's man fenced-in private property, has found Guy Fitzgerald, the dogs' owner, innocent of any acts of negligence.

Plaintiff Raymond Hogg was seeking $26,000 in damages as result of the attack which, he alleged, left him "disfigured and marked for life."

Hogg had contended that the dogs, without provocation, had attacked him after he had entered Fitzgerald's place of business, a welding works called Fitzgerald Enterprises, on the afternoon of July 7, 1979, to buy a used one-ton truck Fitzgerald had for sale. Hogg, who maintained he entered the property through a gate instead of crawling over the fence, said that Fitzgerald knew he (Hogg) was driving over that afternoon to look at the truck

In their findings, the jurors in Judge Perry D. Pickett's court determined that Hogg was not trespassing, that the dogs were vicious and that Fitzgerald should have known that they were vicious.

However, the jurors also decided that Hogg was not negligent in entering the place of business to consider purchasing the truck, that Fitzgerald was not negligent in failing to warn of the dogs' presence and that Fitzgerald was not negligent in causing the injuries to Hogg.

John Hyde, Fitzgerald's co-counsel who contended that "those dogs really aren't that vicious," told the jurors that Fitzgerald was not responsible for the attack of the dogs. Fitzgerald said the dogs were pets he loved rather than guard and attack

Turn it on with

"A person who comes on your property without your permis-sion takes it as he finds it," Hyde said. "Are those dogs vicious?" Hyde rhetorically asked and then answered: "They are not (though)...the bites are there....Dogs and animals are territorial," Hyde said. "They're going to protect it (the territory), but that's not viciousness."

Hyde acknowledged that the pit bulldogs are "oversized pets," but that there is "no evidence that they bit anybody else.... I am indeed sorry for the man (Hogg)," but entering the fenced-in area was "something he should not have done."

Hogg, who was hospitalized for five days following the attack, required more than 400 stitches to his arms, chest and legs to repair the damage.

Bob Miller, Hogg's attorney, maintained that Fitzgerald should have had "Beware of Dogs" warning signs posted. And with those warnings in plain sight, "any man with with any common sense isn't going to go in" to the fenced area.

"Are they vicious?" Miller asked of the dogs. "They killed their mother dog.'

Miller claimed that Fitzgerald committed "gross negligence just to keep those ... dogs" on his property.

Hogg maintained that Fitzgerald knew that the pit bulldogs "would be vicious and ferocious" and were "accustomed" to attacking and injuring people.

Fitzgerald, though, contended the dogs were just pets. Howev-er, he did allow that "the pups killed her — the bitch dog — the mother." Fitzgerald said he was sure the mother dog "had been fought." But he said he does not approve of causing pit bulldogs to fight.

St. Denis, a suburb of 100,000 people 51/2 miles from the heart of Paris has a Communist mayor. The area's nine deputies in Parliament and six senators in the county government belong to the Communist Party.

In his Mass before some 2,000 persons, with many of the women in simple cotton dresses and the men in slacks and open-necked shirts, the pope spoke of the struggle for social justice but warned of "narrow schemes" that forsake "the actual needs of man" for a party or a system.

Ironically, St. Denis also is known as the City of Kings because many of France's kings and queens were consecrated there, and the tombs of most of the country's monarchs are in the cathedral

The 60-year-old pontiff began the second day of his four-day visit to France at a breakfast meeting with 17 French intellectuals, followed by a meeting with representatives of non-Catholic religious groups. This is the first visit of a pope to France since Pius VII was summoned to Napoleon's coronation 176 years ago. Pius made another trip to France a few years later - but not as a guest. Napoleon annexed Rome and the Papal States to the French Empire in 1809 and Pius excommunciated him. Napoleon arrested the pope and had him incarcerated at Fontainbleau castle. He returned to Rome in 1814 after Napoleon's downfall.

In one of the few departures from John Paul's largely religious journey, he went to the Elysee Palace for a private meeting with President Va-lery Giscard d'Estaing and his family. He then chatted briefly with a group of French notables including Communist Party chief Georges Marchais, Socialist leader Francois Mitterrand and Jacques Chirac, Paris mayor and Gaullist Party leader.

RENTAL hours hours in reception rooms at the president's official residence, several people climbed to the ground from a 72 OIL AND LAND L 78 MOBILE HOMES window to escape the stuffy atmo-79 OPEN HOUSE 10 HOUSES FOR SAL 81 SUBURBAN HOM sphere. Several others fainted.

Giscard d'Estaing said later that his discussions with the pope covered the situation in the Middle East, problems in Africa and East-West relations. He said John Paul had expressed "understanding" for Giscard d'Estaing's controversial May 19 meeting in Warsaw with Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev, and that the pope shared the French president's analysis of current East-West tensions.

At St. Denis, as the pope entered the magnificent cathedral, which has some of the most beautiful stained glass windows in the world, and the persons gathered in the church began to sing to guitar accompaniment.

The pontiff then told them: "In coming among you, I want to meet the French working and immigrant world. You are a people who struggle for a better future, who labor and who hope. We are called together to share our faith, to welcome, celebrate and announce together the love of God our father."

The pope walked out of the church, and under a huge red banner bearing the words: "A young worker is worth more than all the gold in the world," he delivered his homily to the thousands of working-class people waiting outside.

He said there was a particularly close relationship between man's work and the family. But he said in working to provide for his family, to assure it a place in the economic order, man risks becoming a mere instrument of production, in which case all dignity is lost.

'Feeling free' on a touring motorcycle

By WANDA MOUTON Lifestyle Editor

Gone are the days of the daredevil motorcyclist, the "Hell's Angel" who arrives in a new town with time to spare and a penchant for trouble.

Fact is, today "you meet the nicest people on a motorcycle." And the greatest percentage of those riding bikes are average citizens who range from blue collar to executive. All fine people to meet along the road or at a coffee shop or wherever their two wheels have taken them.

Throngs of Midlanders have joined the growing number of motorcycling touring fanciers, as evidenced by the larger numbers glimpsed on the road and by the formation of clubs for just that purpose.

In the Permian Basin, the area group of Texas Motorcycle Rider's Association is promoting a grand tour lightening, historical and a bit of a challenge It's the "Eyes of Texas" tour, and hundreds of avid cyclists in Texafor cyclists that promises to be ens have already registered for this first annual tour, said Frank Germo, an area vice president. "We wanted to give bikers a sense of direction on where to spend their vacations," said Germo. "We also sought to encourage historical knowledge of Texas in a fun atmosphere.

The Texas Motorcycle Rider's Association strives to promote motorcycle safety and awareness, and provides rider education services. All of the proceeds from the tour will go into the group's safety fund.

Bikers will be required to stop at 25 selected points in Texas throughout the year. They're located from one end of the state to the other-including the Panhandle in the north, Brownsville in the south, El Paso in West Texas and Texarkana in East Texas.

Included on the checkpoint list are well-known historical sites such as the Battleship "Texas" in San Jacinto, the Alamo in San Antonio, LBJ Ranch in Johnson City and Judge Roy Bean Museum in Langtry.

But bikers will also have the opportunity to see, perhaps for their first time, less familiar points such as Texas' first producing oil well near Nacogdoches, the smokestack in Thurber, the old Railroad Depot in Quanah, Fort Concho in San Angelo, Doan's Crossing near Vernon, the geographic center of Texas in Brady, the Ranching Heritage Center in Lubbock and Empty Saddle Monument in Dalhart.

Over 500 persons, many from this area, have registered for the tour, according to Germo. Theme of this year's Eyes of Texas tour is, appropriately enough, "Lone Star Legends Germo is already working on next year's tour which will have the theme 'Texas' Beauties.'

"Many of the cyclists are checking the Texas calendar of events so that they can attend festivals, fairs, shows, etc., during their weekend travels to these checkpoints," said Germo.

Cycle magazines also publish listings of special events for bikers. The West Texas area has been especially active recently, hosting "poker runs" in Fort Davis and San Angelo and other places here. Cyclists of all ages, shapes and sizes show up in droves. They stay in overnight lodgings, or they camp out. An entire weekend's worth of living-clothes, food, and tool-are packed in one small motorcycle.

Contributing to the growth in popularity of touring bikes is economics, say local motorcycle dealers.

"It's no secret that the gas pumps are hitting the American wallet hard. but a means of fighting back is to ride a motorcycle," said the owner of one motorcycle shop here.

"It costs considerably less to buy and maintain than an automobile; less for licenses, less for upkeep, and a whole bunch less for fuel," he said.

According to another cycle shop manager, "a touring motorcycle, built especially for riding long distances with style and comfort can range from $2,750 for the low-cost model (with no accessories) to $5,000 for the deluxe model, completely dressed with all accessories, such as a fairing (a protective windshield), saddlebags and a trunk (which are mounted on the sides and back)," she said.

A motorcycle easily gets from 30 to 70 miles per gallon, depending on the particular model and its displace-

But, maybe more than anything else, the bikers are taking to the roads on a cycle just because it's fun.

"It's one of the last forms of 'feeling free' an American can enjoy today, said a local cycle dealer, an avid biker himself. "There's an excite-ment about a motorcycle, cutting loose for places unknown and it's a model of travel than can bring a special closeness between two people, or exhilaration, or any one of a half dozen or more kinds of experiences.'

Think safety: Take a course in cycle riding

It's no secret. Gasoline costs are spiraling. More and more motorcycles are being purchased. And the trend suggests cycle usage will continue to increase.

With the largest percentage of usage now for basic transportation-52 percent use motorcycles for commuting to work, another 16 percent for commuting to school-cyclists face a greater risk because the typical motorist, driving a car, tends to "see' what he expects to see ... and that isn't a motorcycle.

"Unfortunately, the motorcycle does not have a designed-in operator or passenger safety devices to protect them in the event of an accident,' said Steve Becker, traffic safety coordinator at Midland College. "Thus, injury and fatal accidents involving cyclists are rising with the motorcy-cle's popularity," he said.

He said that Texas averages over 200 motorcycle accidents a week, resulting in six deaths and 90 percent of the victims requiring medical attention

And, statistics show that approximately 60 percent of these motorcycle accidents involved riders who have ridden for two years or less. More specifically, 25 percent involved riders who have less than six months riding experience, regardless of their age. 1.6

Cyclists can take action to protect themselves from injury through education," said Becker. Midland College is meeting this need by offering a motorcycle rider course, developed by the Motorcycle Safety Foundation, which meets the motorcycle cirriculum specifications of the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, Dept. of Transportation.

"This is a riding course, not a course about riding," emphasized Becker. "Everything the student does will be directly related to developing his riding ability. The 20 hour course is divided into eight classroom hours that help prepare the student before each riding experience. This experience will be 12 hours on a range...away from traffic in a controlled environment.'

From the skills mastered in this environment, the class should know how to better deal with potentially dangerous situations they encounter in an environment of mixed vehicles, added Becker.

He also noted that beginning January, 1981, in Texas, individuals under 18 years of age must participate in and pass a motorcycle course to be licensed as a motorcycle driver. This course fulfills this new requirement areas of safe cycling, including lawsy censed.

every rider must know; familiarity with controls and devices; using protective gear properly; identifying potential hazards; night riding; handling difficult riding situations; riding on different types of surfaces; cycle selection, insurance and maintenance; and riding tips and basic maneuvers.

"This class is geared toward anyone who needs more information about these topics and toward whoever has been riding less than two vears.

Motocycle dealers-Honda, Yamaha, Kawasaki, Suzuki and Harley-Davidson-sponsor the Motorcycle Safety Foundation which developed these courses.

Local dealers have provided cycles and safety gear for the Midland College course.

Participation is available to those who register (fee varies from location to location); complete release and waiver form; present parental per-mission form if a minor; can straddle a 100cc motorcycle with both feet on the ground; have one weeknight and Saturday morning open for three weeks; bring or wear protective clothing ... gloves, jeans, boots, longsleeved shirt and, if possible, goggles and helmet; and intend to become a The cycle course will cover all licensed rider if presently unli-

Primary instructor for the course is loan from dealers, insurance for the course, certified instructors, experience in a controlled situation, an opportunity for a 10 percent insurance discount from selected companies and an opportunity to meet and work with other cycling enthusiasts, according to Becker.

Cyclists without helmets triple risks

By L. EDGAR PRINA Copley News Service

WASHINGTON - The U.S. Department of Transportation yesterday warned that motorcyclists triple their risk of death by failing to use protective helmets.

In a new report to Congress, the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration also asserted that the failure to wear helmets is costing the American taxpayer "many millions of dollars" in added medical care, rehabilitation, and public assistance expenses.

The most significant factor in the increase in motorcycle fatalities in recent years is the repeal or weakening of helmet use laws since 1976, when Congress withdrew the authority of DOT to levy sanctions against states which do not require the use of protective headgear. According to NHTSA administrator Joan Claybrook, 27 states have repealed or weakened their helmet laws in the last few years and motorcycle fatalities, meanwhile, have climbed by more than 40 percent. New motorcycle registrations have gone up less than 1 percent in the period, she added.

"Unfortunately, many states have interpreted the repeal of our authority to impose sanctions as a signal to revoke their helmet laws," Claybrook asserted. "This report makes it clear that many thousands of needless deaths and disabling head injuries have resulted because of the repeal of helmet laws. We believe that each state should retain or re-enact such use laws."

Preliminary data collected by the sates, agency puts the 1979 cyclist toll at 4,850, an increase of more than 6 percent over the 1978 figure of 4,572 and 47 per-cent higher than in 1976 when several states began repealing their helmet laws.

Three states, California, Illinois and Utah, have never had helmet laws, according to the NHTSA.

There were approximately 4,-984,000 motorcycles registered in the United States last year.

The NHTSA report said there was no scientific evidence that helmets cause or increase the severity of neck injuries in motorcycle accidents. Opponents of helmet laws have frequently contended that helmets increase the occurrence of neck injuries. The report also asserted that helmet use does not increase accidents by impairing a rider's vision or hearing, or by causing fatigue or overconfidence.

LITCHFIELD, Conn. (AP) - The floor is dirt and there's only one room. There is no television, no radio, no air conditioner, no refrigerator, no furnace, no kitchen stove, no running water, no toilet.

Welcome to the home of Richard J. Haag, once a nuclear engineer. Now he lives in a wigwam - a hut like the ones used by Indians in the eastern United States.

Since 1967, he has tried to live much like an American Indian of the period before Europeans arrived in North America.

"People say it's uncomfortable. I think they're more uncomfortable worrying about the next oil bill," said Haag, whose calling card announces he is a free-lance provider of "socioenvironmental education."

He makes his living as a guest teacher at schools around Connecticut, where he lectures on the ways of the Indians. Sit down in the wigwam's only chair, next to the narrow bed, and the gray-haired Haag, 50, will offer, in his quiet but emphatic way, his opinions on the contemporary American society he largely rejects. "This place I use as a laboratory. I try to see how little I need to live. how much I can do without. Everybody's been sold more than they need and can afford."

In his home on a south-facing hillside above Smokey Hollow, where the only sound is the rush of the Bantam River below, he paused, and added:

"It's kind of an absurdity, what our culture has done to human values. "I don't expect everyone to live like an Indian. But how much do you really need?" Haag's educational efforts bring a new dimension to the concept of getting back to basics. In 100 to 150 school appearances each year, he talks with students of all ages, first grade to adult, about the meaning he believes Indian life has for the 20th century United States.

DEAR ABBY: I am engaged to marry a very handsome, successful business executive I'll call Mike. Mike hired a secretary about three months' ago. (I'll call her Nora.) I saw Nora only a few times at Mike's office. She's middle-aged, slightly overweight and very plain looking: She's a divorcee. Mike said she was very competent.

Yesterday Mike told me that Nora-had come to his apartment on the previous Sunday afternoon, unannounced, saying she had something very important to talk to him about. He invited her into his apartment, without the slightest idea what she wanted to discuss. She then said she was very nervous and would Mike please pour her a drink. He said he gave her a drink and had one with her to make her feel more comfortable.

Then Nora told him that from the first moment she saw him she had a schoolgiri crush on him, and would he make love to her just once before he got married!

because he had an engagement. What do you think of Nora? And what do you think if Mike?-SPEECHLESS IN ALBANY

DEAR SPEECHLESS: I think Nora is pathetically in need of a man. And Mike has a very big mouth.

DEAR ABBY: At age 76, this is my first letter to you. Ten years ago I had surgery for an enlarged prostate. My doctor told me that it would not affect my desire for sex or my ability to perform.

After the surgery, BOTH were affected. I have no problem because neither my wife nor I miss the sex, but my question is, Was the surgeon wrong, or am I the exceptional case?

I am sure there are many men and women who are interested in knowing, but if you use this letter, sign me...WIMPY FROM PA.

DEAR WIMPY: Much depends on the extent of your surgery. Perhaps the surgery was more extensive than the surgeon thought it would be. There is also the possibility that your inability to function sexually is due more to psychological than surgical

'Marry now ... pay later' not the best offer

By ERMA BOMBECK

I have never underestimated the power of advertising.

Promise people anything squeaky hair, sweet breath, clean laundry or relief from embarrassing itching — and they'll trample you to death on your way to the store. Even in the area of selecting a husband or a wife, advertising seems to be gaining in popularity.

A bachelor in Georgia lettered a big sign that read, "WANTED, GOOD WIFE, NEW OR USED. NO COL-LECT CALLS," and displayed it on Route 137. As far as I know, he's still interviewing. "Another ad, with a little more sophistication, was placed in a newspaper by a man in Wisconsin. He advertised for a woman no taller than 5-5, weighing no more than 115 pounds, a non-smoker, infrequent drinker, frugal, aggressive, studious, a late sleeper who preferred a house temperature of not more than 65 degrees. He preferred an agnostic and was willing to negotiate for not more than two children. His responses were in the hundreds.

Some people feel this is demeaning to an institution like marriage. I disaggee.

The benefits of advertising should be obvious. At least you know where you stand. Better to find out at the top that your husband plans to keep the thermostat at 65 and under than to go through life feeling like you're living in a House of Wax.

How many women would have gotten stuck with ring-around-the-finger had they known their men had terminal-ring-around-the-collar? One-step cameras are fun . . . but a one-step husband to a woman who likes to dance is something to deal with.

Let's stop kidding ourselves. We're grown up. We know what we want out of marriage and should give as much thought to it as we do when we're buying any major purchase like a car or an airline ticket.

My husband said he wished he'd have asked for a guarantee of parts, or at least more extensive insurance to cover me. During the first six months of our marriage, I had my « tonsils out, extensive dental work, mumps and my feet worked on.

Quite mankly, I would have examined the 50-50 clause a little closer. I didn't realize the bathroom and the children were always to be in my part of the house.

If we had both known what "Marry now ... pay later" meant ... maybe we'd have read the ads and shopped a little.

Sobering trends behind oil industry's '79 heady profits

TULSA, Okla. - Behind the heady profits the U.S. oil industry reported for 1979 are some sobering trends. Oil & Gas Journal says in its May 26 issue

The most disturbing is industry's inability to replace produced reserves in spite of record capital spending.

Oil production, crude runs to refinery stills, and volumes of refined products sold by the Journal's group of 27 U.S. oil firms declined last year in line with domestic demand.

The only nondollar Journal performance yardsticks that increased were net wells drilled and net natural gas production.

Why did profits jump by 70.8 percent from a year earlier and return on equity by 6.2 percent, while most operations data sagged?

The main reason is last year's doubling of the global price of crude, which kicked up overseas profits.

Also, many companies reported hefty foreign currency translation gains last year as the dollar strengthened in some countries. And, the Journal said, there were profit gains in some nonpetroleum segments of the industry such as chemicals.

Yet in the industry's bread an but ter operations - production and refining - earnings increased while volumes, except for natural gas production, declined.

There are some hopeful signs, however. Companies are spending more and

Anderson opens office

Anderson Petroleum Inc., an oil and natural gas producing and operating company headquartered in Denver, Colo., has established an office in Midland.

The Midland office will direct exploration and drilling of approximately 90 oil and gas wells in Texas and New Mexico this year, Anderson said. In Sutton and Crockett counties of West Texas alone, the company expects to complete more than 70 wells this year, he added.

The new office is headed by Ron Hogan, vice president. Before joining. Anderon Petroleum in 1977, Hogan, a traduate of the Colorado School of Mines, was chief engineer with Premier Resources Ltd. and production superintendent with The Polumbus Corp., both in Denver. Earlier, he worked for MAPCO Inc. in Billings, Mont., and Chevron Oil Co. in Denver.

more in an attempt to reverse the declines in oil reserves and production. Capital and exploration expenditures by the firms on the Journal list last year increased by 45.6 percent from 1978.

ENERGY

BUSINESS/EDITORIAL

That showed up in a 1.2 percent increase in net wells drilled and was a major factor in this year's sizzling drilling pace.

Oil companies' overall profitability jumped in line with profits and, unlike 1978 returns, exceeded profitability of most U.S. manufacturing firms. Companies on the Journal list earned a total return on stockholders' equity of 19.4 percent, compared with 13.2 percent a year earlier.

Return on total assets rose to 8.6 percent, compared with 6 percent in 1978.

Margins also improved, Journal list companies earned 6.3 cents per revenue dollar last year, compared with 4.9 cents a year earlier.

U.S. companies reported more big profit increases during the first quarter of 1980. But the U.S. excise tax on crude price decontrol revenue gains. will take full effect during the second quarter, a major factor in predictions of most analysts that oil firm profit growth will slow later this gear.

The Journal noted that by any standard, te 1979 jump in oil company profits and returns was impressive. New York's Citibank, for example, reported that total return on equity for the 35 oil firms it tracks exceeds 20 percent for 1979. "Citibank's long-term record of the petroleum industry's return on net worth shows that only six times since World War II has the annual return exceeded 15 percent and only once before 20 percent," the bank said.

But the bank also cautioned that much of that increase is the result of inflation.

Equity, the bank explained, measures values built up over long stretches of time and reflects historic costs. Sales and profits, by contrast, are measured in current prices and reflect inflation in selling prices and inventories

"Thus, the upswing in rates of return tends to reflect the effect of inflation on profits more than it does real profitability," the bank said.

TIPRO makes changes

SAN ANTONIO - The Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners Association (TIPRO) at its recent 34th Annual Meeting in San Antonio, has announced major staff changes, including confirmation of only the third executive vice president in its 34-year history. During that time, 22 presidents have served the Association

He has been TIPRO'S vice president for research and administration for several years.

D.K. Davis, a former natural gas producer from Dallas who joined the TIPRO staff two years ago as vice president of operations, will assume the newly-created post of senior vice president. Discovery announced Rail Oil Co. of Midland announced the completion of its No. 1 Bert in the Giddings field of Burleson County. Through a 16/64-inch choke, the well flowed 320 barrels of oil and 1.6 million cubic feet of gas per day with a flowing tubing pressure of 1,850 pounds.

The well, in which the company's working interest is 60 percent, is the company's first completion in the Burleson County portion of the Gid-dings field and is located in a producing area where the company's leasehold position is approximately 3,000 acres.

Discovery potentials

THE MIDLAND REPORTER-TELEGRAM, SUN., JUNE 1,

DENVER, Colo. - Chaparral Re--sources, Inc., of Denver announced completion of a deep natural gas discovery south of the Madden Deep Gas Field in the northern Wind River Basin of central Wyoming.

The discovery, No. 1-29 Moneta Hills, Fremont Coumnty, was tested for 48 hours at a stabilized rate of 4.7 million cubic feet of gas per day through an 8/64-inch choke.

Flowing tubing pressure was 9,850 pounds.

oil monopoly has begun exporting alcohol fuel because of low domestic demand and to take advantage of the high market price of up to $60 a barrel - almost two times the current price of oil. At the same time, the 474 service stations authorized to sell pure alco-hol have a glut of supplies. The Min-istry of Industry and Commerce says it has information that some people are filling their gas-run engines with pure alcohol to take advantage of the government-subsidized price - about $1.45 a gallon as opposed to $2.25 for regular gas.

That may seem like a good deal for a while, a ministry spokesman said, "but gas cars aren't designed to run on alcohol. Lots of things will go wrong with the engines.

Other people have been tapping the pumps to make a rum-like beverage called cachaca, Brazil's favorite alcoholic drink. The government says it is solving that problem by adding about 3 percent gas to its alcohol to make the sugar-cane fuel poisonous. "If anybody drinks it that way, they'll explode," said the ministry spokesman.

All gasoline sold in Brazil is mixed with up to 20 percent alcohol. Technicians say mixtures higher than that corrode engine parts in cars designed to run on gas.

The trouble with the alcohol program in this nation of 123 million developed in April, just after the government authorized the sale of alcohol cars to the general public. Before that, only taxi drivers and government fleets could buy alcohol cars. Brazil's major automakers -Volkswagen, Fiat, Ford, Chrysler and time when we were gearing up to

General Motors — were hit by a sixweek metalworkers strike that halted production lines.

"It hit at the most critical point in the program," he said.

Even so, Fernandes says he is optimistic about the alcohol program, although the production goals will be moved up from 1985 to 1988. By then, the government hopes to substitute 20 percent of the country's 1.2-millionbarrel daily consumption of oil with alcohol distilled from the nation's vast sugar cane crop, the world's largest, which this year is expected to reach 6.8 million metric tons.

Fernandes says that despite the metalworkers' strike, Brazil will produce 200,000 alcohol-powered cars this year, 80 percent of its goal. Ministry sources, however, say they would be surprised if 100,000 cars are produced. No more than 15,000 alcohol-powered cars are on the road now, according to government and industry sources.

Officials say they will take necessary steps to insure the success of the program, which has attracted international attention. Brazil says alcohol is a key link in its economic program designed to cut a foreign oil bill that may exceed $10 billion this year.

The government has been trying to spur sales of alcohol cars by promising to keep the price low at the pump and by forcing car manufacturers to sell the new vehicles for the same price as cars with conventional engines. Car prices start at a minimum of $3,400.

Some officials claim that industry leaders are using the strike problem as an excuse to avoid the extra expense of making alcohol cars. That, in turn, officials say, creates a lack of confidence among consumer and leads to oversupplies of alcohol at the pumps.

"These are all problems in adjustment during the initial phase of the The strike came exactly at the program," Fernandes said. "Every new program has its problems in the start commercial sales," said Marcos beginning. But our goals will be met."

Land manager of the new office is Ken Gray, formerly with Gulf Oil Corp. and Texas Oil & Gas Corp., both in Midland. Engineering manager is George Tullos, previously with Shell Oil Co. in Texas and Michigan, and Henry Engineering, a petroleum engineering consulting firm in Midland.

Anderson Petroleum has been active with exploration and drilling in West Texas since 1975. The privately held firm also has drilling activity in Colorado, Nebraska and Kansas, and recently launched new exploration in the Williston Basin area of Montana and North and South Dakota.

FORT WORTH - American Quasar Petroleum Co.'s No. 1 First National Farms Inc., on the East Riceville prospect in Vermilion Parish. La., has been tested as a gas/conden-sate discovery in the "A" Sand of upper Oligocene age.

On a six-hour production test, the well flowed gas at a rate of six million cubic feet, plus 24 barrels of 43.3-gravity condensate per day through perforations from 11,832 to 11,852 feet.

The test was on a choke opening of 18/64-inch, with a flowing tubing ressure of 4,338 pounds and a calcuated absolute open flow of 60 million cubic feet of gas per day. American Quasar, along with its Can-Am 1979-3 limited partnership, has 50 percent working interest in the well; General American has 25 percent, Omni 16.67 percent and American Public Energy 8.33 percent.

Museum reports grant

The Permian Basin Petroleum Museum has announced a grant of $3,900 from the Don and Sybil Harrington Foundation of Amarillo.

The funds will be used to complete cataloging of the museum's collection of antique oil field equipment, parts of which are stored at the museum, at a Midland warehouse, and in open storage some 70 miles from the museum

The museum has an inventory of the collection, but has made only small progress in placing all the items under a standardized catalog system of the kind kept by most museums.

, The Harrington Foundation grant will permit employment of a graduate student in museum studies to do the necessary work. Since several thousand items are in the collection, about six months will be required.

Russell J. Ramsland, museum president, expressed gratitude to the Amarillo-based foundation for deciding to fund the project. " "The directors of the Don and Sybil Harrington Foundation have recognized that we and other museums have a special obligation to watch over and conserve items worth preserving. It's a vital job, and we appreciate the foundation's helping us do it in so important a way."

The museum hopes to make ar-rangements for work to begin in September.

The late Don Harrington was himself a prominent oil man in Amarillo with business interests throughout the southwest and elsewhere. He and Mrs. Harrington created the foundation in 1971 as a way to channel their philanthropic giving.

Much of the museum's antique oil equipment was acquired or collected by the Abell-Hanger Foundation of Midland and was given to the museum in 1977.

Lea County, an area which has led in Basin drilling almost a year, was the scene of 48 rigs last week, an increase of five over the previous count

Eddy County, according to Reed, had 32 rigs last week, an increase of three, and Pecos County, the leader in the West Texas side of the Basin, climbed from 24 to 26.

Irion County, an active Spraberry sand and Pennsylvanian area, jumped from eight to 14 to become the second most active area in West Texas.

Let Permian pinpoint your electrical trouble

For 21 years, Permian Battery & Electric has served the Permian Basin area from the same location. Last November, two independent business men of Midland bought the business, and the service will continue in the tradition set by former owners.

Permian has all the necessary diagnostic equipment to pinpoint trouble in an electrical system, hopefully before it becomes a major problem. Anyone who suspects trouble in their wiring or other components is invited to drive in for a free analysis of the difficulty

If the electrical system is faulty, any necessary repairs or replace-ments cap be done correctly and reasonably at Permian Battery and Electric.

Automotive, industrial, truck and tractor electrical systems are serviced here: Alternators, generators, starters are sold, serviced and installed. Batteries are tested and they have new batteries for sale.

If your car will not turn over some morning, or on the street somewhere, you will be glad to know that Permian will make in-town service calls.

Get acquainted with the good men at Permian Battery and Electric. If you need them, you'll be glad they're there for you. 705 South Big Spring, phone 683-4351

Kenneth Ralph Preston has completed 28 years of service with Texaco Inc. and has elected to take early retirement from the Producing-West U.S., Midland Division. He is a native of Ranger and attended Breckenridge High School. He joined Texas at Snyder in 1952 as a roustabout. Subsequently, he pairman and loading rackman at Snyder, and gas tester in Midland. He became district gas man in Midland in 1969.

Mr. and Mrs. Preston plan to continue living in Midland.

Coastal Oil & Gas Corp., formerly Gas Producing Enterprises, Inc., has announced that Tom C."Young has joined the company in Midland as district drilling superintendent. For the past eight years, he has been involved with domestic and foreign drilling operations for Hunt oil Co., most recently as district superintendent of operations with Hunt Energy Corp. in Midland. Young is a graduate of Centenary College.

Coastal Oil & Gas also announced that Jim F. McCormick has joined the firm as district drilling superintendent for the Denver-based operations. He succeeds F. W. Heiser who retired after 40 years with the company.

McCormick was drilling superintendent for Impel Energy Corp. in Denver.

Mitchell plant now onstream

HOUSTON - Mitchell Energy & Development Corp. announced it has put its crude oil processing plant in Bridgeport onstream

The plant, which cost in excess of $6. million, is located adjacent to the company's gas processing plant at Bridgeport, about 40 miles northwest of Fort Worth.

The facility has a capacity of 10,000 barrels per day. Initial output is expected to be about 7,000 barrels daily of products consisting of 40 to 45 percent naphtha, 25 to 30 percent diesel fuel, and 25 to 35 percent residual fuel oil.

Crude breakthrough?

COLLEGE STATION - Heavy crude oil the consistency of peanut butter - once considered a nuisance to oil drilling crews - may provide another opportunity for squeezing a few more drops of energy from the nation's dwindling petroleum barrel.

Scientists at Texas A&M University's Mass Spectrometry Laboratory are using new technology for reducing the complex heavy petroleum molecules into simple organic substances which can then be used for fuels.

Petroleum compounds vary on a spectrum from natural gas on one end to natural asphalt on the other, explained Dr. Ronald Grigsby, a chemist at Texas A&M. Heavy crude is so thick that pumping it out of the ground and throufgh pipelines to a refinery would be like pumping peanut butter through a water line.

More than 6 trillion barrels of heavy crude are known to exist in Canada, Venezuela and 21 states in the United States. Geologists have found heavy crude deposits around conventional oil deposits and thousands of drilling operators have discovered, logged and bypassed heavy crude while seeking the lighter, more easily recoverable conventional

The Department of Energy has given Grigsby the go ahead on a process called probe microdistillation mass spectrometry to analyze the heavy petroleum molecules so that the thick sludge can be broken down.

"The results are meaningful to refining technology for the conversion of heavy petroleum into transportation fuels and other volatile distillates," Grigsby said. "The technique is suited to the types of mixtures present in coal, lignite and heavy crude and, in fact, is how we became involved in the study," he explained.

A report on the process was presented at a recent scientific sympo-sium at Texas A&M on lignite research.

Mass spectrometry determines chemical composition by direct measurement of molecular weight in an instrument called a mass spectrometer. In Grigsby's technique, minute samples are introduced into the instrument by a quartz probe at temperatures up to 600 degrees Celsius.

The structural information learned about the molecules with the technique can then be used to design production and refining processes to turn the crude into fuel, he said.

Conoco announces plan to double explorations

HOUSTON - Conoco Inc. this year is more than doubling its exploration drilling in search of new oil or gas deposits in the U.S.

Overseas, Conoco plans to-participate in drilling 44 exploratory wells in eight countries this year, compared to 21 drilled in. 1979. BUSINESS NOTEBOOK OSHA rules workers can obtain their on-the-job medical records

AUSTIN BUREAU By BILL KIDD

The Occupational Safety and Health Administration, under a new regulation to take effect Aug. 21, has ruled that workers can obtain their on-the-job medical records, including information relating to exposure to dangerous substances.

That new regulation requires employers to furnish medical records within 15 days after they are requested to do so - and also requires employers to furnish such records to unions representing workers (with the comsent of the employees).

Records also must be furnished without prior worker consent - to OSHA investigators?

OSHA head, Assistant Secretary of Labor Eula Bingham, says the regu-

Basically, those laws prohibit discrimination in pay, working conditions, firing, demotion, etc., for "whistle blowers."

Copies of "Procedures for the Handling of Discrimination Complaints Under Federal Employee Protection Statutes," which set out details on the procedures, are available from the Office of Information and Consumer Affairs, Employment Standards Administration, Room C-4331, US Department of Labor, Washington, D.C. 20210.

Treatment of alcoholism under health insurance policies may be shaping up again as a legislative fight in 1981 - just as it was in 1979.

State Board of Insurance Chairman William P. Daves, Jr., told a symposium on alcoholism in the workplace ranking with inflation as a threat to the economy and national stability.

"We need to arouse the employers who provide group health insurance to employees," Daves commented. Employers have plenty of leverage when it comes to select health insurance benefits.

"They can create an immediate demand for alcoholism coverage.

"When this demand is realized in a for-profit, competitive insurance marketplace, like we have in Texas, I am sure you will see a proliferation of alcoholism benefits," he concluded.

At hearings during the last legislative session, support for mandating such coverage came from several alcoholism treatment groups and organized labor - with opposition from some business and insurance interests, who argued that providing such additional benefits would result in an increase in insurance rates for all purchasers. A long-running dispute between insurance agents and savings and loan associations over attempts by lenders to require a "certificate of insurance" showing a mortgaged property to be insured appears to have been settled.

Secretary Miller believes 'worst may be behind us'

NEW YORK (AP) - Treasury Secretary G. William Miller declared this past week that "the worst may be behind us" in the current economic slump slowing of consumer buying and decline in industrial output do appear to signal a reduction in major forces that pushed consumer prices up at an 18 percent annual rate in the, first three months of the year.

The latest report showed inflation in April running at an 11.5 percent annual rate. And most economists expect that easing to continue as slackening demand for goods and declines in interest rates are reflected in the inflation index.

Mortgage rates, a part of the index, have fallen by 2 to 3 percentage points since mid-April, and that will show up as one source of reduced inflation pressure in the May consumer price index when it comes out in late

But the outlook on the depth and length of the recession is cloudy.

Secretary Miller, in comments to the congressional Joint Economic Committee, conceded that the nation's slide into a recession has been "quite steep" but he said the nation should follow a steady economic poli-

"It seems quite probable ... that the economy is already experiencing its sharpest fall during the current quarter," he said, "The worst may be behind us."

Only two days after he made those comments, the government's index of leading economic indicators - its chief economic foreeasting tool showed the biggest monthly drop in its history.

The drop of 4.8 percent in April showed 10 components of the index falling, only the second time in two decades that a decline has been so broad. The index measures economic activity, ranging from the layoff rate

Economists in and out of government cited that drop as evidence that the economy's output in the current quarter will fall sharply.

But Courtenay Slater, chief economist at the Commerce Department, said the drop "tells us little about the more distant future" for the nation's economic output.

Charles L. Schultze, the chairman of President Carter's Council of Economic Advisers, refused to say whether he agreed with Secretary Miller's assessment that the worst may be over when he was asked for comment this pasteweek. But he joined other @ economists, private and public, in predicting the recession will be more severe than the relatively mild and short one the administration predicted in March.

Still, some private economists tend to see a relatively short but steep decline consistent with Miller's view that the current April-June quarter will be the worst for the economy.

Those forecasts are based not only on the economic indicator data but on recent reports showing housing starts off in April for the seventh consecutive month, industrial production down a big 1.9 percent last month and retail sales weak for three consecutive months.

"It's going to be a V-shaped recession, a sharp drop and a quick turnaround. We think that by fall the economy will stabilize," predicts Otto Eckstein, president of Data Resources Inc, a Lexington, Mass., forecasting company.

He expects the nation's Gross National Product, or real output of goods and services, to drop at an annual rate of at least 8 percent and perhaps as much as a record 10 percent in the current quarter.

By comparison, the economy grew at a weak 0.6 percent, at an annual rate, in the first three months this year. The biggest quarterly drop on record was 9.1 percent in the first guarter of 1975 when the nation was in its last recession.

Generally, a recession is defined as at least two consecutive quarters of declining GNP.

Lawrence Chimerine, chairman of Chase Econometrics in Bala Cynwyd. Pa., said his forecasting company was predicting "a sharp, compact recession."

The April drop in the leading indicators, he said, "is consistent with what we have been expecting, namely a very sharp downturn likely to continue for several more months."

Chimerine said he expects about that he will encourage the insurance industry to provide coverage for treatment of alcoholism as a disease under health policies.

That sort of assistance "may be the most viable solution" to the problem, Daves said, noting alcoholism costs Texas business and industry an estimated $1.2 billion yearly.

Alcoholism, Daves said, should be handled under insurance policies on the same basis as any other organic disease - and that has been the position of the medical profession.

But insurers, Daves noted, have been reluctant to cover the treatment because of a lack of reliable data on what treatment - and what amount of treatment - may be needed.

That is changing, Daves said - and noted that in many states, statutes provide for such coverage.

Daves said earlier that he sees alcoholism and alcohol abuse as perhaps

Refugee Vietnamese senior citizens continue tradition of honoring elders

By DONNEL NUNES The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - The old man eyed the gently sloping field of grass, his greying hair wafting in the soft breeze. There was a field beyond. Good. And trees. Good. And, at one end, a small stream. Very good. Phan Van Thom, 70, an expert in the art of determining the proper sites for burial, turned to the little group of aging Vietnamese standing silently behind him in the Cedar Hill Ceme-" tery in Maryland's Prince George's County. It was a perfect location, Thom said. I approve.

The elderly Vietnamese refugees, struggling to hold onto cultural traditions that attach a great importance to death and ancestors, were making plans to die in their new homeland. The block of 500 gravesites they had chosen will provide a resting place for many of them, their tombstones overlooked by a modern high-rise apartment complex and the rush-hour traffic of blue-collar workers and bureaucrats on nearby Pennsylvania Avenue.

"You in America, you neglect the fine art of dying," said Vu Khac Thu, one of the leaders of the Vietnamese Senior Citizens Association here. "But we cannot forget it, not even here, in this land, so distant from the land of our birth.

COMING FROM a country where death anniversaries are far more important than birthdays the simple lack of a cemetery where the 1,500 elederly Vietnamese here can be buried alongside their fellow countrymen triggers an uneasiness that most Americans have difficulty in understanding.

It is but one of several problems the Iderly refugees experience here. Immigration Service and resettlement officials say that many of them may never fully adjust to their new country. Some are simply too old or unsure of themselves to learn Eglish, others too old to learn new trades or find employment. Still others are too old to emotionally withstand the assault on the ancient traditions and familial relationships that results from the relentless Americanization of their children and grandchildren. "Some wish they had not come," said Hanh Minh, 58, a member of the senior citizens group. "This is a very nice country. But their life in Vietnam was everything to them."

MRS. MINH is one of the fortunate few who can speak English. She came with the first wave of Vietnamese refugees in 1975, most of whom were from the educated classes. Many of those were able to flee with some of their wealth.

Yet, even for those such as her, the can find them," said Jackie Bong Wright, 39, a refugee who heads Indochinese Refugee Social Services, a refugee resettlement organization. "So they live all over the area. They cannot drive so they cannot visit friends. They cannot speak English so they cannot visit their neighbors. In Vietnam, they lived in the same community all their lives, and they knew everyone. But they know no one here."

THE RULES and regulations of their new country can have®a huge impact on their lives, too, said Wright, who is married to an American.

"Zoning regulations and health odes restrict the number of people that can live in one apartment or house," she said. "In my country, the grandparents, the parents and the grandchildren all live together. The younger family members take care of the older ones. But sometimes here, the parents and grandparents must live in different apartments. Then the old people are even more lonely."

The elders suffer loneliness as well because many family members inevitably remain behind in Vietnam through choice or because they were not able to leave at the same time. Others are caught in huge waiiting lists in refugee camps in Thailand and Malaysia. Still others disappear in their efforts to escape.

But in the end, the most devastating blow is the erosion of tradition that inevitably begins with the young who adapt to the new culture more readily. Many youngsters are even refusing to speak Vietnamese to their elders or are embarrassed by their grandparents' adherence to tradition. The isolation that results within the family, the central unit of Vietnamese society, leaves the elders with no place to turn.

IT WAS PARTLY for that reason that the Vietnamese Senior Citizens Association was founded here in 1977, according to Chu Ngoc Lien, 70, president of the group. It was the first such organization in the United States.

"The old people are very home-sick," said Lien, 70. "They love their country very much. That is why they still live in the past. It makes their adjustment very difficult.'

The association, he said, is dedicated to "retaining the culture. That is the most important thing, to retain the traditions. But it is also there so that we may come together and find friends, and to teach the language to our children and grandchildren whomight otherwise forget.'

Three times a year, he said, on Vietnamese holidays such as the lunar new year, the association performs traditional Vietnamese celebrations, complete with gongs, altars and colorful clothing. At every chance, the association enlists young people to aid in the pageantry. It was the association that was reseponsible for the creation of the cemetery, the nation's first for Vietnamese refeugees.

Shortly after he and his family arrived here in 1975, his mother, long suffering from cancer, died at age 75. He searched for a cemetery, even-tually settling on Cedar Hills. But there were problems. She would have to be buried without any Vietnamese nearby. And the cemetery at first balked at allowing him to put his mother's full name, Trinh Thi Chuc, on the tombstone as tradition required, when cemetery rules permitted only last names.

While the cemetery allowed him his wish in the end, Trinh and others saw the need for a separate section just for Vietnamese.

Last November, after Thom's visit, the association signed a contract with Cedar Hills reserving 500 spaces in one section. The association named the section, Lac Canh Vien, the Vietnamese Paradise Garden, and elder Vietnamese began buying the lots. Now, 100 of them have either paid the $180 price to reserve a gravesite in full or are paying $5 a month towards the eventual purchase of one, Lien said.

LESS THAN a dozen miles away from the cemetery, Vo Thi Hai, 64, sits in the two-bedroom Arlington apartment she shares with four of her 31 still-living grandchildren, waiting for the day when the 14 members of her family in a Malaysian refugee camp can gain permission to join

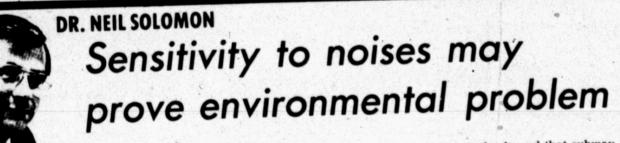

Her heart troubles her, she tells an interpreter, but because she has not yet qualified for Medicaid, having arrived in the United States only two months ago, and because she has no money, she has not yet seen a doctor. Now and then her thoughts turn to death, and though it holds no terror for her, the prospect of being buried in the cemetery next to Americans with no fellow Vietnamese nearby makes her uneasy. "I am not afraid to die," she said earnestly. "But I would like to have enough money to be buried in the (Vietnamese Senior Citizens) ceme-tery. I would feel comfortable there. LIf I were buried elsewhere, I would not be able to talk with the Americans next to me because I do not speak English."

She laughs at the thought. "I am going to learn English," she says. Then the smile slowly fades.

"There is no more Vietnam country now," she says at last. "We can die any where now."

Dear Dr. Solomon: I recently moved from a small town to a large city to attend graduate school, and my apartment overlooks a heavily trafficked street. I don't know if I'm unusually sensitive, but since coming here I have difficulty sleeping because of the constant noise outside my window. Trucks, buses, banging garbage cans and loud radios are affecting my health. Do other people who live in large cities have these complaints? - Gabe.

Dear Gabe: Sensitivity to noise varies with the individual. Many people accustomed to the banging and clatter of which you complain would have difficulty falling asleep in a much quieter rural setting. Moreover, a person may find one kind of noise irritating yet be able to tolerate another even though both have the same average sound level. The individual's response to noise also will vary with such factors as the length of exposure to the sound and the distance from the source of the sound.

These individual differences do not mean that exposure to noise is without ill effects. Noise as an environmental hazard has been a neglected subject, possibly because most people look upon it as an annoyance and feel that nothing can be done about it. Moreover, although noise has been linked with a number of illnesses, the relationship is difficult to prove. Unlike other environmental pollutants that leave some trace on the human body, noise does not, and it is virtually impossible to separate its impact on people from that of other factors. Many people exposed to an excessive amount of noise also may be subject to other stress factors attributable to a lower socioeconomic status.

Noise is suspected of being associated with lowered resistance to viral disease, a higher incidence of cardiovascular disorders, harmful effects on the fetus, the development of ulcers; arthritis and mental illness, among other diseases. The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) estimates that almost half the population of the United States may be subject to noise levels that could be injurious to health.

In the workplace, more people complain about noise than about any other enrivonmental pollutant. One effect of excessive noise is hearing loss, and the EPA suggests that at least 20 million Americans are exposed to noise levels that have the potential for causing permanent damage. A New York City study showed that subway riders have a temporary hearing loss lasting one-half hour after they complete the ride.

The harmful effects of noise are not limited to hearing loss. Dr. David Lipscomb, director of the University of Tennessee Noise Research Lboratory, says that sound at about a level of 70 decibels (a decibel is a unit of hearing) can raise cholesterol , blood pressure and heartbeat, as well as affect the digestive and respiratory systems. Seventy decibels is the noice level of highway traffic.

In industry, approximately 15 million workers are exposed each day to levels ranging from 85 to 100 decibels. The Occupational Safety and Health Administration limits noise in the workplace to 90 decibels for an eighthour period, but there is question about whether this standard is enforced.

(If you have a medical problem, see your doctor. If you have a medical question, write to Neil Solomon, M.D., 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Md. 21208. Dr. Solomon cannot give personal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.)

GIs opt for Danish style weddings

By BRYAN WILDER

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP) -"By the power vested in me by the city of Copenhagen, I now pronounce you husband and wife. Next : ... "

On 52 Thursdays a year, the lan-guage spoken in the Florentine wedding chamber of Copenhagen's City Hall shifts from Danish to English or more precisely, to American.

A little before 2 in the afternoon, couples begin to saunter in until all the seats under the frescoed arches are filled. They look apprehensive, speaking in whispers.

There are no best men or maids of honor; no moist-eyed mothers or solemn fathers. No hats and tails, no white veils or flowing trains. The brides wear slacks and simple dresses, the grooms, jackets and blazers. West Germany's national railroad, Deutsche Bundesbahn, calls its matrimonial travel packet "Marriage -Danish style." But whether the couples join the tour or not, American GIs have made this city their marriage capital of Europe.

For the past four years, the wedding office at Copenhagen's City Hall has registered up to 40 U.S. couples a week year-round, nearly all of them American GIs — male and female — stationed in West Germany.

"It really went smoother than I thought it would," whispered Army Sgt. Marvin Kelker of El Paso, Texas, waiting with Pfc. Orlanza Walker of Hazlehurst, Miss., to take their vows.

For 572 deutsche marks - about $310 - the couple boarded a train from their duty stations in Frankfurt for the five-day trip that may last a lifetime.

Leaving Germany on Sunday night, the couples arrive at Copenhagen's main station early Monday morning, in time for the half-hour registration procedure when the wedding office opens at 9: 30.

If the couples have valid birth certificates and passports - and no previous marriages — they can be mar-ried free of charge the following Thursday.

Cpls. Jack Fiamoncini of Atlas, Pa., and Jayne Sain of Ramsey, Mich., avoided the train fare and up to four weeks' advance booking by driving up from Stuttgart with friends. "It went good," said Fiamoncini, a few minutes into being a husband. 'We couldn't believe how quick and simple it was."

Why Copenhagen, with its $50-a-night hotels and $2-a-bottle beer?

Though German wedding fees, roughly 500 marks, are still cheaper than a trip north, the couples save months of waiting and spools of red tape.

West German authorities, the GIs report, require personal documents translated into German, blood tests and permission from American base commanders. Waits of up to six months are not uncommon for Americans in the Federal Republic. For smitten U.S. soldiers, miles seem to be more tolerable than months.

In Copenhagen, the time between Monday registration and Thursday marriage is usually spent with typically tourist pastimes.

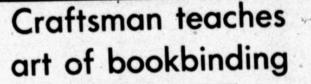

Many feel obliged to visit the diminutive little mermaid statue at the mouth of Copenhagen Harbor. Wedding rings wink from shop windows lining the old city's maze of pedestrian malls.

By CHRISTOPHER CORBETT

BALTIMORE (AP) - John Dean is a studiouslooking Englishman who quietly teaches one of the world's oldest professions — hand bookbinding. "Bookbinding is an old, old craft. It predates printing by a long time and much of it hasn't changed," said Dean, collection and maintenance officer and bindery supervisor at Johns Hopkins University.

It is a craft practiced long before the birth of Christ.

According to Dean, the five-year apprenticeship program in bookbinding by hand offered at Hopkins is the only one of its kind in the country.

At the Hopkins bindery in the Milton Eisenhower Library, Dean's apprentices are taught the age-old craft much in the manner they would have been in Europe, where a strong tradition of craft bookbinding still exists.

'I don't think there's anything like it in the country," said Dean of his program, adding, "And it's in a craft where there's a desperate need of training, there's a tremendous shortage.'

Hand bookbinding never caught on in the United States, according to Dean, and although skilled bookbinders were brought here from Europe, no effort to perpetuate their craft was made.

There are no schools for bookbinding in this country and there were no long-term training programs established," he said.

A little over a decade ago, Dean was recruited to come to the United States by officials at the Newberry Library, a respected research library in Chicago. From there, he came to Baltimore and set up his program of training bookbinders.

'What makes what we're doing here unique is that we're trying to establish a European system of apprenticeship. We're getting as close as it's practical to do," said Dean, who served a much more rigorous apprenticeship in his native England in the early 1950s

"I was a bound apprentice, which means that my father posted a bond of 50 guineas to say that I wouldn't run away from my master," Dean recalled. "I don't think that's done any more."

Dean served a six-year apprenticeship.

"The wages were very low," he said. "You reached the age of 21 with a great sigh of relief."

The regimen here is not as severe, but Dean is a serious man who stresses hard work, admonishing his few, carefully chosen students not to take shortcuts.

"The only way we could get what we wanted was to train people up to the standard we had set," he said

Dean's apprentices not only learn the craft in a professional bindery from a skilled craftsman, but they perform needed work, actually binding and repairing books, many of them rare and valuable, from some of Hopkins' 47 libraries.

The majority of the books worked on are from before 1850, some reaching back to the 15th and 16th centuries.

ART BUCHWALD Muskie needs a lesson in French psychology

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State Edmund Muskie has a lot to learn about diplomacy, and there is no better place to start than with the French

Last week he made a boo-boo by attacking President Giscard d'Estaing for meeting with Leonid Brezhnev in Warsaw without first telling the United States. What irked Muskie most is that he had just received a dressing-down from the French foreign minister because the United States was failing to consult with France.

The other item that got the secretary's dander up was France's decision to go to the Olympics in Mo-SCOW

What Muskie must learn is what any tourist who has been to Paris knows, and that is, if you want to get the French to do something, you have to indicate that you desire them to do the exact opposite.

For example, when the secretary was in Brussels, he should have taken Foreign Minister Jean Francois-Poncet aside (the French love to be taken aside and whispered to), and said, "Mr. Minister, I must tell you this in the strictest confidence. We want the French to go to the Olympics in Moscow because we believe that your athletes are the only ones who can beat the Russians. President Carter has asked me to instruct you that no matter what he says publicly, he believes privately it is in the best interest of the West if you compete."

Francois-Poncet would have said, "Of course, we want to do what's best for the West. We will send a team." Then he would have excused himself and got on the scrambler line to President Giscard.

"Monsieur le President, I have just spoken to Secretary of State Muskie, and he informs me that the U.S. wants France to go to the Moscow Olympics.'

"Alors. This means, of course, we cannot go. Are you sure they want us to attend?

"Yes. Monsieur Muskie took me aside, and told me it is in the best interests of the Allies if the French appear at the Games."

We shall see what is in the best interests of the West. If Carter thinks we will go to Moscow just because he wants us to, then he will be very disappointed. Frankly Jean, I intended to send our team, but now if I wanted to I couldn't, as we would only be playing into American hands."

"Exactly my thoughts, Monsieur le President. Muskie must take us for fools.

'What did you tell him?" "I told him we would gladly send a eam to the Olympics if the U.S. thought it was the right thing to do."

'Good: Tomorrow I will announce that we have no intention of sending one and never did. I shall say France intended to boycott Moscow long before the United States thought of 'the idea.

"I can't wait to see Muskie's face when you do it. Do you intend to meet with Leonid Brezhnev in Warsaw, Monsieur le President?'

"I haven't made up my mind yet. What do the Americans want me to

"I will find out and report back." Francois-Poncet would then go back to the foreign ministers' meeting and take Muskie off into a corner (the French always like to take people off into corners), and say, "I have just spoken to Giscard and he wants

That brings us to this question: Who are the terrorists attempting to please and to whom do they answer?

The appearance of Soviet missiles in Cuba in 1962 brought a nuclear showdown between Nikita Khrushchev and John F. Kennedy. intelligence experts, after painstakingly putting together bits and pieces of evidence, informed the White House last year that there was a Soviet combat brigade in Cuba.

President Carter, with his eye on public opinion polls showing that he was regarded as a weak, ineffectual leader, rushed off half-cocked and announced with chest thumping bravado that the presence of 2,600 Russian troops in Cuba was "unacceptable.

The Kremlin disdainfully dismissed Carter's saber-rattling as empty rhetoric, and when the Soviet combat brigade suddenly became "acceptable," Soviet strategists were confirmed in their suspicion that Carter was no tiger, but a pussycat.

The president's humiliation over the Soviet brigade issue was lost sight of by the American public within a matter of weeks, swallowed up in the greater crisis over the hostage seizure in Iran.

Now, less than a year after the combat brigade fiasco, U.S. intelligence analysts have compiled truly alarming evidence that the Soviets are secretly developing a nuclear capability in Cuba - may, in fact, already have introduced nuclear weapons into their satellite outpost 90 miles from Florida.

suggest a nuclear presence in Cuba. The pragmatic men in the intelligence agencies fear the disclosure would touch off another international crisis - one which Carter is illequipped to handle. There is, of course, the possibility that the evidence is misleading - that the bits and pieces of incriminating information all have an innocent explanation. But the accumulation of data from various sources points to a "worst-case" projection that the Russians are indeed creating a nuclear arsenal in Cuba - and worst-case scenarios are the only safe ones to assume when dealing with the Krem-

Some of the evidence I have already reported. Other information has only recently been interpreted by intelligence analysts.

One of the most disturbing developments was reported by a high-level Cuban defector, who until recently was being trained by the Russians to command a SAM-2[®] (surface-to-airmissile) site. He told his intelligence de-briefers that the Soviets have modified their Cuban missiles by adding three booster rocket motors that increase their range threefold.

Intelligence sources told my associate Dale Van Atta the Cuban defector had been informed that the purpose of hints that the missile warheads were nuclear. What he didn't know was that the Soviets had tested nuclear warheads of up to 25 kilotons on SAM-2s as long ago as 1961, and that there are SAM-2s deployed in the Soviet Union which are nuclear-armed.

Intelligence sources also noted gloomily that the Russians routinely describe their nuclear weapons as simply "immensely powerful" to disguise their nuclear reality from the troops who handle them. So the defector's reports add up to the distinct possibility that Soviet nuclear missiles are in position in Cuba at this very moment.

Another recent development adds to the ominous overall picture. In 1978, President Carter expressed concern at the appearance of 20-odd Soviet MiG-23s in Cuba. But the intelligence experts determined that they were for Cuban defense only.

What the American public was never told was that the Russians can rewire a MiG-23 to carry nuclear weapons in approximately two days. Furthermore, I can report also that the Soviets have constructed about 50 hardened shelters for the MiGs in Cuba — an unusual precaution for a climate as mild as Cuba's. Analysts suggest that the strong shelters are intended to protect the MiG force from surveillance and-or attack by U.S. aircraft and missiles

Perhaps the most alarming evidence of Soviet military preparations in Cuba is the construction that has been taking place at Matanzas, not far from Havana. I reported in April that large holes in the Matanzas area were "strikingly similar" in size, shape and construction to those that are known to house missiles in the Soviet Union.

The intelligence analysts have learned more since that first report, and it's not encouraging. Initially, the activity around Matanzas was nearly dismissed as "suburban construction." But it now appears that what the Soviets are building there is indeed an underground bunker and-or silo for surface-to-air missiles. With the known nuclear capability of Soviet SAM-2s, and the threefold increase in the missiles' range reported by the Cuban defector, this adds up to another Cuban missile crisis.

Almost as a footnote, it should be mentioned that the Soviet brigade itself was interpreted by some Pentagon experts as possibly constituting a 'special mission" force. One of the special missions the Russians use such brigades for is protection and security for nuclear weapons installations.

to know how the Americans would feel if he met privately with Brezhnev in Warsaw? Muskie should have said, "An excellent idea. It's best to keep communications open, and who would be better at it than Giscard. Tell your President to arrange a meeting as quickly as possible.'

Once again, Francois-Poncet would excuse himself, and get on the line to Giscard.

The French foreign minister would say, "They want you to meet Leonid as soon as possible."

Giscard would say, "What gall! How dare the Americans tell the head of the French Republic who and who not to meet with! I will go to Warsaw, but I will turn my back on Brezhnev, and refuse to so much as shake his hand."

"Well said, Monsieur le President. It may be a slap in the face to the Russians, but it will be a better slap in the face for the Americans. Vive la France!'

"Vive la France to you, Jean."

So there you have it, Secretary Muskie. This is your first lesson in dealing with the French. If you tell them what you don't wish them to do, they'll do it every time. That's why they're called French.

McCarthy says his third party effort in 1976 was to: (1) continue the case against the Federal Election Law; (2) raise issues like energy, unemployment, tax policy and excessive defense spending, which McCarthy claims Carter and Ford never treated seriously

It seemed that Republican-dominated boards or courts ruled that McCarthy should have been on that ballot, and Democratic counterparts ruled contrary, and prevailed. AUSTIN NOTEBOOK The right to know: Political season brings out varied questions.

By BILL KIDD Austin Bureau

AUSTIN - During the early part of the current political season, a colleague from one of the nation's large, newspapers called to ask about George Bush.

He had, he reported, been traveling with Bush for several weeks, and was getting ready to write a profile of the grapitude, both parties agreed. candidate. And he had a favor to ask

'Have you ever,'' he enquired somewhat embarassedly, "heard anything bad about George Bush?"

He needed to ask, he said, because after being with Bush, and talking to those around Bush, the impression that he'd built up was that Bush was a nice guy, and that everybody thought Bush was a nice guy, and nobody could think of anything particularly bad to say about him.

About the only contribution which could be offered from the Austin end of the conversation was that the writer's wife, after meeting Bush, indicated she hoped that Bush, if elected President, would avoid using of the word "golly" - an expression she felt did not suit a chief executive.

Not exactly evidence of moral tur-

The reason for all the interest in his character wasn't any desire to roast Bush in print - but rather the feeling that the public should be informed about a man who was seeking the highest elected office in the nation.

And reporters have a natural reluctance to say anything nice about politicians, having learned that as soon as any compliment goes onto the printed page, chances are the officeholder who's being praised will turn up in some South American country with suitcases full of taxpayers' money. But every once in a while, fortunately, it's possible to admit to feeling respect for a politician, even if one doesn't agree with all his policies and positions.

Bush's announcement that he was dropping his presidential bid was made with his usual upbeat style which could be surprising, in view of the amount of time, effort and money he spent for the opportunity of being away from his work, his home and his family, in what was perceived - and admitted by Bush to be - from the start as an uphill fight.

And in announcing his withdrawal from the race, Bush insisted that it was worth the sacrifices - that he felt he addressed the issues and strongthened the political process. That process may have been his biggest problem - especially the primary system, which, like other political institutions, comes in for periodic criticism during election time - and which then is allowed to continue just as before.

One major criticism of the primary process is that it allows candidates with large amounts of funds better chances of winning by "media blitz" tactics - although John Connally's experience this year shows that may not always be the case.

Another major criticism is that voters in late primary states are frustrated and often cannot vote for the candidate they'd prefer because results in early primaries have caused candidates to drop out.

Texas' experience with presidential primaries has been somewhat limited, and not altogether inspiring with the Legislature indicating more interest in using such primaries to further the interests of particular candidates rather than actually finding out if voters have a preference for someone.

Many State Democratic Party leaders haven't liked the idea of a presidential primary at all, arguing that selection of delegates to national conventions through the caucus system strengthens the party process.

Letting people vote for presidential nominees "sounds more democratic," as one party leader put it, but because of the national primary system, Texas (and other late primary states) end up with the remnants of the early primaries.

At least that's the argument, and certainly by the time the Texas Republican primary rolled around, most political observers had pretty much counted Bush out - and Reagan in as the GOP nominee.

Bush gave Reagan a scare - although not really a hair-whitening one - in that primary, but it wasn't nearly enough, and after holding out for a while longer, Bush decided it was time to call it quits.

It's not the first time Bush has gone through the process of winding down an unsuccessful campaign - he's lost two Senate races (and he's also had two victories in congressional races.)

And whatever he may have said in his heart of hearts, publicly he was saying it was worth the effort, because he believes his country - our country - is the greatest nation in the world, and can be made better.

Not the attitude of a loser - because Bush isn't a loser.

Hopefully, Bush will stay in politics because it could use more nice

Taking the time

To The Editor:

Not being acquainted with Angie-Whittington, the junior student at Lee High School, I wish to take this means of thanking her for taking the time to write her "Letter to The Editor" of last week. This was on the question of. exempting the students from exams, in the Midland Schools. It is nice to know that we do have young people that are aware and concerned with the problems that face our School Board.

When I read in the newspaper that Mrs. Sherrod was in the minority vote of 5-1, to do away with the exam exemption for high school students, I wondered why she appeared to be the loser. Instead of being the loser, it looks as if Mrs. Sherrod was the winner, as it is most gratifying to find that Mrs. Sherrod was concerned enough about this question, that she took time to visit the schools, talking to students and teachers alike, in order to vote her convictions when this question was placed before the School Board. Without Angie Whittington's letter, Mrs. Sherro cere dedication to her job as a member of our School Board, would not have been called to our attention. In today's society we tend to be critical of our youth and those in places of authority who are faced with decisions. Not being acquainted with Miss Whittington or Mrs. Sherrod, I wanted to take time to let them know that sincere efforts on everyone's part is appreciated. From our youth of today come the leaders of tomorrow. Honest dedicated leadership can only come from an honest dedicated society. Ed A. Vogler Midland

To The Editor:

I was pleased to note that during the time Tuesday night when two persons were holed up in a house on Rankin Hwy. that one of the points in question was whether they were to be put into the county or city jail.

It was not true in this case, but hopefully, if more people realize our jails are not country clubs, it will be a further deterrent to crime.

Road through historic valley offers glimpses of grace, great leaders POSITIVE THINKING

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

Every now and then I like to drive down the Senandoah Valley in Virginia. It is the valley road of history where the very town names - Culpepper, Winchester, New Market ---are reminiscent of famous battles.

I went by Antieram. Here a great uncle of mine distinguished himself for bravery and was made a captain. Also, he carried a limp the rest of his

Under hazy summits of the Blue Ridge Mountains one traverses the Lee-Jackson country. Up and down this valley, as far as Gettysburg, surged the armies of both North and South under their great command-

Many noble traditions came out of the War Between the states and linger in our history. Some of the most inspiring involve two remarkable men: Leenand Jackson. The lost cause would have been lost much earlier had it not been for their military

As my wife and I drove through Virginia the other day, down the valley and along the Skyline Drive to Lexington, on on to the Greenbrier at White Sulphur Springs, my thoughts went to these men, not as great generals, but as men of rare and superior qualities. Believe me, we could use their kind today. Somewhere along this historic route" down the valley one night long ago, Jackson was planning a daring sortie with his generals. It was a brilliant strategy. The odds against success were high, but the gains of a success were considerable. Only a genius could conceive it and carry it through. One of Jackson's generals timorously said, "But, General Jackson, I'm afraid of this. I fear we can't carry it off."

Jackson arose, put his hand on his subordinate's shoulder and said, "Never take counsel of your fears, General. Never take counsel of your fears."

Unfortunately that is precisely what many men do, and that is precisely why they never succeed never do big things. They take counsel of their fears and never move never act with decision.

A fair amount of caution is right and proper. Only a fool would be without it, but to listen to one's fears for guidance is quite another thing. Consider caution, but take counsel (that is, get guidance) from your beliefs, not from your fears, and you will do a lot better in this life.

Lexington, Va., is still one of the most charming little towns in America. The facade of its Washington and Lee Uniersity, designed, so they say, by George Washington himself, has few equals in architectural loeliness. The sight of stately white pillars against ancient red buildings, their patina softened by twilight, leaes an unforgettable impression of beauty. Both Jackson and Lee lived here. One day when a great battle was in progess the village people gathered anxiously at the post office for news. A letter came in from General Jackson addressed to the local pastor. Eagerly everyone gathered 'round to hear the word from the general. But he simply reminded the pastor that on the coming Sunday the annual offering for missionary work was to be taken and he enclosed his gift. Robert E. Lee was president of Washington and Lee University and is buried on the campus. He died in the house now occupied by the college president. It was a small, poor and struggling college in the hard years just following the war and Lee had only a meager compensation.

He was offered the presidency of an insurance company at a large salary and was assured he needed to know nothing aout insurance, that only his name was wanted. He replied, "My name is not for sale," and stuck by the enterprise of educating young country. No man has been so venerated in the South as he, and the North honors him as well. He had a particular kind of greatness that grew directly out of his religious life. It made of him a gallant, cultured gentleman, the like of which has been all too rare in America.

I am staying at the Greenbrier, an extraordinarily beautiful spot nestling in the West Virginia hills. Once called the Old White, it has been a resort place since long before the Civil War. Here came the people of the old south in the romantic days of ante-bellum culture. Lee often vacationed here. Indeed, the old cottage he occupied may still be seen. After the devastation of war and the South had begun to recover, Lee came back to the Greenbrier.

A group of United States commissioners dealing with Southern rehabilitation was staying at the hotel but was being completely snubbed by the Southerners who filled the house. At dinner time, so the story goes, Lee entered, the dining room late. At hs entrance the diners stood en masse. Tears filled the eyes of many at the sight of the old connamder. All of the men present had followed him through four years of war. He took his seat beside a beautiful young woman. Then he noticed the Northern commissioners sitting ostracized in a corner of the dining room. "Has no one spoken to these men? he inquired. "Certainly not, General," spoke the young woman bitterly. "They are our enemies."

Lee arose and in a deep silence went to the table of the hated Northerners and shook hands with each one, giving then a word of welcome.

Returning to his table he addressed the young lady in true Southern sytle," 'Honey, we must love our enemies, hard as it may be. We are Christians. At least we must always be polite."

Little wonder that the glory of this man's life still abides in the great annals of the United States.

My walls are painted with enamel paint and I've tried a lot of brand name cleaners, and a few homemade ones, to try to remove the black wax pencil marks from the walls when I tire of my silliness. None of them worked.

very "good" accident.

I had a blouse that had some grease spots on it. I took it to the bathroom to apply a prewash laundry spray. When I did, some of the spray hit the wall.

Well, my graffiti started to run, but a clean cloth and a bit more laundry spray took all the grease pencil markings right off.

Here is a tip for kids who like to bake and their mothers get 'mad' at them for getting the recipes dirty. Mom gave us a photo album to put the recipes in and we use it all the time. When we are finished with our baking, all we have to do is wipe the plastic page off. No more dirty recipes.

He blew the glove up like a balloon and the fingers all popped out. Much simpler than trying to push or pull them out!

CANNY IDEA DEAR HELOISE:

Yesterday I had unexpected visitors who requested a tomato juice base drink. To my dismay I had not even one can.

Inspiration struck, though, and I grabbed a can of Italian style tomatoes, put 'em in the blender with appropriate mixings, blended, and it tasted fine. All agreed it made on her hands without waste or spillage. Convenient to carry in a handbag, too.
