

JIMMY'S WHITE HOUSE

Fishing Carter's favorite activity

SAPELO ISLAND, Ga. (AP) — There can no longer be any doubt that fishing is President Carter's favorite recreational activity. During a week-long vacation, he fished each day, sometimes all day long.

This attack of fishing madness began a week ago when Carter arrived in Anchorage, Alaska, after an exhausting 22-hour stay in Tokyo and an equal number of hours in the air.

It was late at night when Air Force One arrived at Elmendorf Air Force Base. Almost everyone traveling with the president wanted nothing so much as a good night's sleep. But Carter, wanting to go fly-fishing, caught a few hours sleep and set out before dawn to a fishing hole at Clarence Lake.

He was joined by Alaska Gov. Jay Hammond and state fishing director Rupe Andrews. A White House aide, who wished to remain anonymous, later reported that Carter, using a kit he had received for Father's Day, tied all his own flies and caught 24 grayling, much to the chagrin of Andrews, who used professional flies and caught nothing.

Carter later described the journey as "delightful and very successful."

From Anchorage, the president flew to this secluded island. He arrived early Friday and left today and went fishing every day in between. For several days it was fishing for trout in a small boat off the island; on another day it was a daylong deep-sea excursion during which he caught barracuda, mackerels and blues.

Several days before he left, the White House press office on nearby Jekyll Island reported that the president and his wife, Rosalynn, would take an overnight fishing trip to north Georgia, near the South Carolina border, staying in a cabin in the mountains on a farm owned by friends.

Within 10 minutes, White House press secretary Jody Powell issued a correction: Mrs. Carter would not be going.

Powell later gave out a list of Carter's fishing companions, all men. He explained that since the cabin contained only one room, it was obvious why the first lady decided to stay behind on Sapelo Island. Reporters quickly dubbed it a sexist fishing trip.

Carter, like most presidents, has developed a keen sense of privacy. One of his main attractions to Sapelo Island seems to be the fact that reporters are several miles away on Jekyll Island, and there is no ground transportation between the two.

There were even indications that Carter told his staff to leave him alone. Powell, normally reverential when speaking to his boss, hinted as much one day when he received a telephone call from the president. Picking up the receiver, he sneered jokingly, "What makes you think I want to speak to you?"

During a recent visit to his hometown of Plains, Ga., the president participated in what has become a traditional softball game with reporters and his brother, Billy. After pitching nine innings in the 100-degree heat, Carter surprised onlookers by deciding to jog several miles around the field.

Apparently desiring company, Carter yelled to his physician and regular running companion, Rear Adm. William Lukash, to join him. But Lukash, taking what appeared to be the only sensible way out, developed a sudden case of deafness and headed for his car.

Amy Carter will be 13 years old in October, a worrisome age even when you are not the president's daughter. To minimize the normal teen-age crushes, the Secret Service has decided to rotate frequently the agents assigned to protect her.

Heat aid allocated to help poor, elderly

DALLAS (AP) — Texas will receive more than $2 million in emergency aid to help poor and elderly people cope with a scorching heat wave, federal officials say.

Of the $2.3 million allocated by the Community Services Administration, Bexar will receive $159,000, Tarrant County $149,000 and El Paso $120,000, officials said Wednesday.

Dallas County has been allocated $315,000 to share with Collin, Denton, Hunt and Rockwall counties, the agency said.

Federal and state officials were to meet here today to discuss problems created by the high temperatures and to coordinate relief assistance, Blouin said.

The governor's office has waived a 30-day review of the grant and funds should be available by the end of the week, said Mike Blouin, the agency's assistant director in Washington.

President Carter ordered the federal agency Tuesday to make available $6.7 million in emergency aid in Texas and five other states scorched by a heat wave that has taken more than 654 lives nationwide and caused millions of dollars in damage to crops and livestock.

Tourism falls off in Europe

ROME (AP) — Tourism in Western Europe, usually an overbooked crush of sun and culture seekers, is shaping up this summer to be about as dismal as the weather and the economy.

From Brighton, England, to Spain's Costa del Sol to Athens, Greece, hotel vacancy signs are up, beaches are semi-deserted and night clubs are virtually empty.

American tourism, which began declining a few years ago with the fall of the dollar, appears to be further slowing, but Europeans, too, are staying at home or planning alternative vacations, a survey by The Associated Press has found.

"If I knew the season would be like this I wouldn't even have opened," complained a beach club owner in Italy's chic Tyrrhenian resort of Viareggio, pointing to unused beach umbrellas and unrented cabins.

Unseasonably cool and rainy weather has discouraged travelers, but even in sun-soaked Greece alarmed hotel owners are predicting the drop in tourists could reach 15 percent by the end of the year.

Tourist officials say the economic crunch and, in the case of Americans, unease generated by the events in Iran and Afghanistan, are apparently also keeping people home.

"Americans are very sensitive to political events," said Nicola Messina of Italy's national tourist agency. "We understand many have decided to spend the summer touring at home."

Official figures for the first four months of the year in Greece showed an 11 percent decrease in tourists, and agencies dealing with the U.S. market say the number of Americans has dropped by as much as 35 percent.

Don Gilliland, a manager of the luxury American tour company Maupintours, said that nearly half the firm's tours in Greece have been canceled. "But at least this deluxe level of the industry we are suffering much less than other tour operators. I can't complain, I'm working."

Amid one of the rainiest summers on record, the number of visitors to Britain's seaside resorts such as Brighton and Bournemouth has fallen 20 percent this year. But factors also include economic uncertainty, cut-price competition from overseas resorts such as Miami, Fla., and the strong pound sterling which discourages foreigners.

Ninety percent of tourism in Britain is by Britons, but the crisis has also hit London which relies on overseas visitors. Hotels have been cutting prices to draw guests and many theaters are playing to half-filled houses because the traditional American audiences aren't coming.

For more than 15 years, tourism has been Spain's No. 1 industry, but it has been declining and officials are predicting at least another 10 percent drop this year. Although bombings at resorts by Basque separatists have had some effect on the drop, tourist officials blame inflation abroad and the increasing price of gasoline.

"Business has dropped to unbelievable levels," complained Jose Maria Sanchez, who runs a Flamenco show on the Costa del Sol. "For years fun was very important on holidays, but tourists coming in now hardly have money to meet their hotel bills."

Tourist sources said 1.3 million Americans visited Spain in 1979, but the number could drop as much as 12 percent this year.

As hotel prices have shot up — in Italy, for example, many resorts are asking 20 percent more than last year — Europeans have turned to camping or to day-tripping between home and the beach.

One of the few bright spots in the tourist picture is Austria, where despite bad weather a record number of tourists visited the country in May. Officials credit it to Austria's stable price structure as well as to a reflection on strikes and political turmoil elsewhere.

Norway, too, is cautiously optimistic about summer tourism with much depending on the weather.

"Our estimates are that we may do well on all foreign markets except the United States where we had a 10 to 15 percent drop the last two years. This trend is expected to continue," said H. Staugaard, spokesman of the Norwegian Travel Association.

Denmark is also counting on a small increase in tourism, but the bulk will come from neighboring countries as the long-distance traveler, especially the American tourist, is becoming increasingly rare there.

"Clearly, with so many staying at home, livily at home of the traof felt elsewhere, and logically most heavily at some of the traditional Danish destinations in the Mediterranean," said one travel agent. "It's all part of a changing pattern, directly tied to various factors of the economy."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Edmund Muskie says if Ronald Reagan is elected president and implements the Republican Party platform, "the result will be an ongoing arms race" with the Soviet Union that would severely limit prospects of agreements to curb nuclear weapons.

Muskie, in an interview, drew a sharp distinction between the Reagan policies and those of the Carter administration, which he said still hopes for the ratification of the SALT II treaty "or some follow-on agreement."

The GOP platform, he said, "proposes that we achieve military superiority over the Soviet Union. That runs counter to the policies of the last four administrations. It would seem to trigger an arms race," Muskie said.

He said that would not, as the Republicans say, induce the Soviets to accept more favorable arms control terms.

"How can one side, either the Russians or ourselves, expect to achieve superiority and persuade the other side to accept the imbalance to its detriment in a treaty?" Muskie asked. "On the face of it, that isn't human nature. On the face of it, it isn't going to work."

Muskie said he welcomed a campaign debate on the desirability of seeking military superiority over the Soviets.

"If the American people believe that an ongoing arms race in the pursuit of superiority is in their interest, then they have to come to learn the cost of that. The cost of that in budget terms is going to be enormous. The cost of that in impact on the standard of living, in terms of pursuing other important priorities associated with our kind of society and our kind of life, is going to be enormous.

"It's a question which can fuel a useful, comprehensive debate. When it's done, I don't have much doubt in my mind as to how the people would come down," Muskie said.

Muskie gave the interview to reporters from the major news services in his panel office at the State Department.

Although he said he had not read the GOP platform or listened to former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's foreign policy speech, he was quite ready to refute the GOP arguments.

He said he did not intend to be a partisan campaigner, but neither would he ignore important foreign policy issues until the election is held. "What am I going to do, spend the rest of the year in an igloo?" he asked.

He was less specific about the arms control prospects offered by the Carter administration as an alternative to the Reagan policies.

"The votes (to ratify the SALT II treaty in the Senate) aren't there, and I can't conceive of them being there without a change in Soviet behavior. But you don't give up," he said.

He conceded that there seems to be little prospect of a Soviet withdrawal from Afghanistan, but he added that the Soviets also realize that time is running out on the new arms control agreement.

U.S. officials say that because deadlines in the treaty for reducing arms will fall in 1981, it will have to be renegotiated unless it is ratified early next year. If the Soviets want SALT II, as Muskie said he believes they do, they may accept some type of compromise on Afghanistan, he said.

If time runs out on SALT II, "then we'll have to concern ourselves with how we revive or continue the SALT process in the light of that fact. The whole process needs to be ongoing and continuing, with a commitment from both sides," he said.

Conflicting reports continue over shah's condition

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — The failure of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi's doctors to issue official medical bulletins continues to produce conflicting reports about the ailing ex-monarch's treatment and condition.

Pahlavi's spokesman, Mark Morse, denied reports from one of the shah's Egyptian doctors and the semi-official Cairo newspaper Al Ahran that the deposed monarch underwent surgery Wednesday to drain an abscess on his left thigh.

"Up until this moment (the doctors) see no urgent need for an operation," Morse said in a telephone interview, adding that Pahlavi "looked fine."

One Egyptian surgeon on the medical team treating Iran's former ruler at the Maadi military hospital confirmed Morse's statement. This doctor said a French specialist summoned from Paris favored giving Pahlavi antibiotics for two or three days before deciding whether to lance the abscess.

Earlier Wednesday, however, another Egyptian member of the medical team and Al Ahran both said the abscess had been drained.

Morse said the abscess, which Al Ahran said was the size of an orange, developed after doctors took a blood sample from Pahlavi's leg for a routine test. The ex-monarch has been plagued by infection because of the chemical treatment he has been receiving to combat the lymphatic cancer which has spread to his liver after forcing the removal of his spleen and gall bladder. The chemotherapy reduced the level of white blood cells, the natural protection against infection.

Pahlavi returned to the hospital on June 27, and three days later the doctors drained an abdominal abscess that developed following the removal of his cancerous spleen in March. No official medical bulletins have been issued for the past week.

Gulf 'so quiet, it's eerie'

HARLINGEN, Texas (AP) — Meteorologists have few clues on whether a major hurricane will rip through the South Texas coast this year.

"I would have thought by now we'd had some activity in the Gulf, but we've hardly had any clouds forming out there. It's so quiet, it's eerie," said Richard Hagan, chief meteorologist with the National Weather Service in Brownsville.

The lower Rio Grande Valley is overdue for a big storm. The last one was Hurricane Beulah in 1967. Her winds and rain caused $200 million in damages.

Mild winters sometimes signal an active hurricane season to follow and average valley temperatures this winter were the highest in several years, he said.

"The basic ingredient in a hurricane is warm weather. A mild winter means fewer than normal cold air outbreaks will be going out over the Gulf and tropical waters. So the water is warm to begin with," he said Wednesday.

Hagan conducted a hurricane preparedness session with about 120 representatives of local governments, law enforcement, civil defense, hospitals and other agencies in the coastal counties of Cameron and Hidalgo.

Droughts, such as the current one lingering in much of Texas, sometimes are broken by hurricanes, but the connection is "loose," he said.

"The upper high pressure system causing this heat wave has remained so strong that we've seen little air movement over the Gulf," he said.

Experts say the lower Texas coast can expect a major hurricane every 12 years.

Beulah was considered a medium strength storm, compared to Camille of 1979, whose 200 mph winds ravaged the Mississippi coast.

"Neither the population here nor the weather service knows what would happen in this area if we got a category five (Camille-like) hurricane," Hagan said.

Since Beulah, South Padre Island has incorporated and grown into a resort dotted with gleaming condominiums, surf-front hotels and numerous restaurants.

During the summer season, an average of 30,000 people crowd onto the narrow spit of land about two miles across the Laguna Madre from Port Isabel. On labor day weekend, the number swells up to 70,000.

If a hurricane warning is issued for the island, officials there plan to block any traffic headed for the beach by closing the eastbound lanes of the causeway. They plan a house-to-house and condo-by-condo evacuation check.

Anyone refusing to leave after a warning will be asked to sign a form releasing the town from responsibility for that person's safety. Loretta linebarger of the South Padre Island fire department said the form will be signed by two witnesses.

"We won't have a problem with the tourists. They'll want to get out of there," said fire marshal Fred Jacobs. "It's our own people who think they can ride it out."

The prime hurricane period is mid-August to mid-September, also the height of the summer tourist season on the island.

State prepared for any further TMI accidents

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Encouraged by the smooth staging of a simulated crisis at the Three Mile Island nuclear plant, Pennsylvania's emergency chief says the state is fully capable of coping with another nuclear accident.

"Hopefully, this exercise will show that we are 100 percent prepared today," Oran Henderson, head of the Pennsylvania Emergency Management Agency, said Wednesday during the eight-hour drill.

"We hope it will restore public confidence in state government to handle the real thing more effectively than we did on March 28, 1979," he said.

Henderson said that before that time — the date of the nation's worst commercial nuclear accident — a response plan was assumed unnecessary because chances of a nuclear accident seemed remote. It was also assumed that a nuclear emergency would not be unlike a flood or other disaster, he said.

But the accident at Three Mile Island shook those assumptions and prompted development of a statewide nuclear emergency protection plan, to be debated at a public hearing within three weeks. It must then be approved by the Federal Emergency Management Agency.

The Wednesday drill presented authorities with a worsening situation at Three Mile Island, including continuing malfunctions and increasing radiation levels. Observers in seven counties, two townships, two hospitals and the state's Emergency Operation Center were charged with evaluating response.

Henderson said some counties assumed that state police, the national guard, road crews and other personnel and equipment could be mobilized much faster than was actually possible.

He also said inadequate staffing at the EOC caused delays in transmitting county requests to state agencies and state information to county emergency directors.

"We had the information. We weren't getting it out fast enough," he said, adding the problem could be corrected with more workers.

The mock accident resulted in a busy day for state workers at the EOC, a huge underground bunker wallpapered with plastic-covered maps and charts.

Workers scurried between phones and copying machines, and marked wind directions and radiation readings on huge sheets of paper set aside for different counties.

At one point, a woman emerged from the Health Department cubicle and told Henderson, "We have a problem. We haven't received any messages in two hours."

"It's a two-way street," Henderson replied, and suggested she check the easels for updated information. He later said inadequate staffing may have caused the communications breakdown.

Water Wonderland opening in August

Grand opening for Water Wonderland, an amusement park featuring a number of water-related activities, will probably be around August 15, according to Petro Construction Co. spokesman Ken Burkhart.

The park is under construction 2½ miles west of Midland Regional Airport on Highway 80, and is being developed by Sonny Richardson of Odessa.

High point of the park will be a water slide featuring two 420-foot flumes. Go-cart-type skeeter boats that glide over the water, bumper boats and boats controlled by radio will also be included.

The park will also feature Can Am race cars and "crazy cars" on land, as well as a pinball arcade, dressing rooms and a souvenir shop.

The heat wave is the primary reason for the delay in the park's opening, Burkhart said. Grand opening was originally scheduled for mid-July.

"The hot weather has just slowed the men down, and has kept us from getting the work done as fast as we'd planned," he said.

Pregnant teen raped, murdered in Garland

GARLAND, Texas (AP) — Four persons, including a 16-year-old juvenile, have been arrested in the rape-slaying last weekend of a pregnant teenager whose nude body was found in an alley near her home, Garland police say.

Garland Police spokesman John Hamilton identified those arrested as James Earl Miles, 19, James Earl Duckett, 19, Derwin K. Douglas, 20, and the juvenile.

Municipal Court Judge Randall Grubbs arraigned the adults Wednesday and set bond at $150,000 each. The adults remained in jail in lieu of bond and the juvenile was in custody of juvenile authorities today.

Officers said Cynthia Lynne Lowery, 18, was raped and strangled last Saturday night. She was last seen walking the about 10 blocks between her sister's home and her home in this Dallas suburb.

Baseball, boxing, beauty score

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball, boxing and beauty scored in the ratings while programs previewing this week's Republican National Convention fell flat, according to figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co. for the week ending July 13.

ABC won the three-way ratings competition for the second straight week with a boost from the major league all-star baseball game, the highest-rated show, and the heavyweight championship fight between Larry Holmes and Scott LeDoux, rated third.

In between was CBS' broadcast of the Miss Universe beauty pageant, and the two networks split the Top 10. ABC finished the week with a rating of 15.1 to 14 for CBS and 12.4 for NBC.

The networks say that means in an average prime-time minute during the week, 15.1 percent of the homes in the country with television were tuned to ABC.

The victory made it two in a row for ABC, which was beaten by a fraction of a point by CBS in the season that ended April 20.

The rating for the all-star game was 26.8. Nielsen says that means of all the country's TV-equipped homes, 26.8 percent saw at least part of the sports program.

The Major (Scott Morris) punishes Henry (Gary Lyons) for being a bad boy in the Pickwick Players' production of "Peck's Bad Boy," which is showing at Theatre Midland at 2:30 p.m. today through Saturday. Admission is $4 for a season ticket and $2 for an individual ticket. Reservations may be made by calling 682-4111. (Staff Photo)

Area art, camera, silver all on exhibit at museum

Currently on exhibit at the Museum of the Southwest, 1750 W. Missouri St., is the 14th annual Southwestern Area Art Show, the Midland Camera Club Competition and a showing of Old English silver.

The Southwestern Area Art Show is the museum's annual competition, co-sponsored by The Midland Arts Association. All entries are original work completed within the last two years by artists presently living in the Southwest. This year 73 entries were juried into the show from nearly 300 entries. Juror for the show was Elaine Horwich, owner of Elaine Horwich Galleries of Scottsdale, Ariz., and Santa Fe, N.M. The show continues through Aug. 3 in galleries 1-3.

Also on display through Aug. 10 in the upstairs gallery is the Midland Camera Club Competition. Photographs eligible were to be shot by amateurs, but could be commercially processed. An amateur is one who makes less than one-half of his income by photography. Jurors for the show were R.D. Rubin, owner of The Portrait Studio in Midland, Jo Calverley, a member of the art department at Midland College, and Elaine Horwich. Seventy-two entries were juried into the show from nearly 170 entries.

The English silver which is on display is from the 18th and 19th centuries. The collection contains intricately designed serving pieces, an elaborate jewelry box, an ivory handled tea service, an ornately crafted coffee service and other miscellaneous items.

Museum hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday and Sundays 2-5 p.m.

Milsap, The Cates in concert

ATHENS — Ronnie Milsap and The Cates will appear in concert at the 10th annual Black-Eyed Pea Jamboree being held in Athens Friday through Sunday.

The event contains other activities such as pea cooking, shelling, a parade and the National Association of Terrapin Owners' race. For more information contact Wayne Mackley, Chamber of Commerce, at 1-214-675-5181.

Opera directors announce legacy series

HOUSTON — On behalf of Houston Symphony artistic advisor Sergio Comissiona, executive director Michael Woolcock and associate conductor C. William Harwood have announced plans for the Houston Symphony Chamber Orchestra's second Stokowski Legacy series in 1980-81.

Those commissioned to provide new works next season for the Houston Symphony are Bruce Saylor, for the February concert, and Texan Fisher Tull, for the April concert. In addition, the American premiere of a work by the Prix de Rome winner Chester Biscardi will be included in the November concert.

Guest soloists for the second Stokowski Legacy series concert to be in January are the young Americans Elizabeth Pruett, soprano, and Jan de Gaetani, mezzo-soprano, who will both be making their Houston debuts.

Next season's programming will include selections to observe the centennials of Bela Bartok and Ernest Bloch as well as Aaron Copeland's 80th birthday.

A major highlight of the season will be the closing performance of Schoenberg's Chamber Symphony No. 1.

The four Stokowski Legacy concerts, all under the baton of C. William Harwood, will be presented in St. Luke's United Methodist Church at 8 p.m. on Saturday evenings, Nov. 15, Jan. 17, Feb. 7 and April 25. For subscriptions, single-tickets and program information call (713) 224-4240.

Schoenberg Evening set

SANTA FE, N.M. — A Schoenberg Evening is planned by the Santa Fe Opera for July 26, 30, Aug. 7 and 15.

Two of the works to be presented are "Die Jakobsleiter" (Jacob's Ladder) and "Von Huete Auf Morgen" (From Today Until Tomorrow).

"Die Jakobsleiter" was first presented by the Santa Fe Opera in its American premiere in 1968. The crew for this production will be the same, including conductor Robert Baustian.

This will be the American stage premiere of "Von Huete Auf Morgen." Written by Arnold Schoenberg in 1929 and first performed at Frankfurt in 1930, this comedy of manners depicts the efforts of a witty woman to keep her husband's affection.

Phone orders for tickets, using only Visa or MasterCard, are accepted, Monday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. The number is 1-505-982-3855. For more information write the Santa Fe Opera, P.O. Box 2408, Santa Fe, N.M. 87501.

Seven new works highlight ballet

HOUSTON — Seven works new to the company repertoire, two of them full length contemporary works and four of them world premieres, highlight Houston Ballet's 1980-81 season.

Included are works by artistic director Ben Stevenson, Choo San Goh, Ronald Hynd and Richard Munro. The revivals of interest also include two new productions of early 20th century Diaghilev Ballets Russes works.

For more information about tickets contact Rowland Bachman at 1-713-524-8328, or write the Houston Ballet, Jones Hall, 615 Louisiana St., Houston, Texas 77002.

Ray Hubbard to be at Stardust

Ray Wiley Hubbard will be the featured guest performer Friday night at the Midland Stardust, 1008 S. Midkiff Road.

Hubbard is perhaps best for his song "Up Against the Wall, You Red-Neck Mother."

The Stardust opens at 8 p.m. with Pepper Martin and his band performing.

Eddie Jackson, last of old vaudeville trio dead at 84

SHERMAN OAKS, Calif. (AP) — For years after vaudeville passed from the scene, comedian Jimmy Durante talked about his old vaudeville trio of Clayton, Jackson and Durante. Now, the last surviving member of that act — Eddie Jackson — has died.

The 84-year-old entertainer died Wednesday after a massive stroke at Sherman Oaks Community Hospital, a family spokesman said.

Jackson, who was admitted Sunday, had been in critical condition, spokesman Joe Bleeden said. The Brooklyn native got his start in 1914 as a singing waiter in New York City and Coney Island clubs. At the Alamo Club, he met an unknown piano player named Durante.

The duo played a number of clubs in the next eight years before Durante opened his own nightclub in 1924, the Club Durant. Then soft-shoe specialist Lou Clayton joined the others to form Clayton, Jackson and Durante.

Although Club Durant was closed down in 1926, the trio became popular at other New York bistros and was featured in the Florenz Ziegfeld production "Showgirl."

Ford reportedly to pay more than $2 million in Pinto case

PITTSBURGH (AP)— Ford Motor Co. has agreed to payments of an unspecified amount to a woman severely burned when her Ford Pinto sedan was struck from behind, both sides say.

Patricia Ann Oberding, mother of the woman who was burned, confirmed Wednesday that a settlement had been reached, but declined to elaborate.

The Pittsburgh Post-Gazette said it had learned the agreement totaled more than $2 million. However, Ford spokesman Charles Gumushian said the cost to Ford "is going to be considerably less than $2 million." He declined to give any details.

Debra A. Oberding, 22, of New Castle, suffered second- and third-degree burns over 70 percent of her body following the June 18, 1976, accident.

Miss Oberding was trying to restart the stalled 1972 Pinto when it was struck from behind, rupturing the fuel tank, her mother said. Mrs. Oberding said her daughter had undergone a series of skin grafts and faces still more operations.

Louis M. Tarasi Jr. of Pittsburgh, one of Miss Oberding's attorneys, declined to discuss the case, saying the settlement's terms were confidential.

Gumushian described the agreement as a "structured settlement" and said investments and annuity purchases could eventually make it worth more to the recipient than the cost to Ford.

The settlement with Ford is the second in as many months in western Pennsylvania.

The families of two Fayette County children killed in a 1978 rear-end crash involving a Pinto were awarded an out-of-court settlement worth more than $2 million; the plaintiffs' lawyer said.

In March, an Indiana jury found Ford innocent of charges of reckless homicide in the deaths of three young women killed when their 1973 Pinto exploded in flames when it was rammed from behind in 1978.

The trial lasted 2½ months and marked the first time a major corporation had faced criminal charges for alleged defects in a product.

Ford's defense claimed the force of the impact, not alleged defects in the car, caused the explosion.

Ford voluntarily recalled 1971-76 Pinto sedans after the government alleged that gas tank defects made the subcompact cars likely to explode when hit from behind.

The Pinto was modified in 1976 when Ford added a fuel tank shield and lengthened the fuel filler pipe. Gumushian said, however, that the company never acknowledged the auto had a defective system.

Passenger train rams rear of another train

NORTH WALES, Pa. (AP) — A passenger train heading toward Philadelphia struck the rear of another train just south of the North Wales station during the morning rush hour today, a spokeswoman for the regional transit agency said.

"One car was derailed. I don't know about injuries or anything like that," said Karen Hardaker of the Southeastern Pennsylvania Transportation Authority.

The accident on the former Reading Railroad line occurred around 8 a.m. in a light rain about 20 miles northwest of Philadelphia.

Jack Street, manager of North Wales Press, a commercial printing establishment, said it appeared to him that a one-car express train rammed the rear of a three-car local.

Eddie Jackson, top, and Jimmy Durante smile for photographer in this undated file photo. Jackson, a vaudeville era song-and-dance man and long-time partner of Durante, died Wednesday in a Sherman Oaks, Calif., hospital following a massive stroke, a family spokesman said. Jackson was 84. Dr. David John Mallams, an orthopedic surgeon, has recently joined the medical staff at Midland Memorial Hospital and opened an office in Midland.

Originally from Philadelphia, Penn., Dr. Mallams comes to Midland from Lexington, Kentucky.

Dr. Mallams has recently completed a residency in orthopedics at the University of Kentucky Medical Center and is now certified by the American Board of Orthopedic Surgeons. In conjunction with his residency at Kentucky Medical, he also served brief residencies specializing in hand surgery, prosthetics and orthotics at the University of Louisville and Northwestern University.

Before serving his residencies, Dr. Mallams was graduated from SMU in 1968 with a Bachelor of Arts in pre-med and from Temple University School of Medicine in 1975. He interned at the University of Kentucky Medical Center.

Dr. Mallams and his wife have two children.

FORMER MIDLAND HIGH SCHOOL student Glen Harold Doran has accepted a faculty position with Florida State University. He will move with his family to Tallahassee this fall where he will begin teaching courses in anthropology and archaeology. Responsibilities at FSU will include administering research grants in archeology.

A Midland resident until his senior year in high school, Doran studied at the University of Austin, completing undergraduate and master's work. He worked for the Texas Department of Highways and Public Transportation in the Archeological Division. In the fall of 1977, he moved Davis, Calif., to continue graduate study leading to the Ph.D.

Doan is the son of former Midland resident Mrs. Beatrice Doran of San Saba, and the late J. Hill Doran and grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Doran, who had all lived in Midland.

TWO MIDLANDERS have recently entered the career service of Texas State Government through the services of the Texas Merit System Council.

They earned consideration for these positions by participating in the Merit System competitive examination process and scoring well enough for their names to be one of the top ten on the register for the various job classifications.

They are Terri R. Robinson, 1503 N. Main St., who has been hired as a Laboratory Assistant I and Jo T. Routh, 4806 W. Illinois, who is now a temporary interviewer.

Merit System agencies are equal opportunity employers which means that all hiring is done without regard to race, sex, national origin, religion, color, age or handicap.

MIDLAND ROSE SOCIETY will meet at 7 p.m. today in the home of Jimmy and Diana Sparks, 2401 Flare Court.

Program will be "Know Your Friends: Identifying Insects Who are Helping You" by Larry Witten, owner of Boydston-Witten Pest Control. Witten has a degree in entomology from Texas A&M University.

A spokesman advised members to bring a covered dish, a lawn chair, roses for the CRS and a guest.

Supreme Court ruling says that biological test is constitutional

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas law makes it hard for an unwed father to obtain parental rights to his illegitimate child, and the State Supreme Court says that is the way it should be.

In a 6-3 decision, the court said Family Code provisions on voluntary legitimation of children do not unconstitutionally discriminate against men.

The court minority, led by Justice Zolie Steakley, argued the provisions violate the Equal Rights Amendment that was added to the Texas Constitution in 1972.

Under the Family Code, an unwed father may be recognized legally as his child's parent only if the mother consents and a court finds legitimation would be in the best interest of the child.

The issue arose when Catholic Charities of the Diocese of Galveston-Houston, which operates a home for unwed mothers, filed a routine suit to clear the way for adoption of an illegitimate baby.

The baby's 14-year-old mother consented to the suit to terminate her parent-child relationship and had agreed to put the baby up for adoption.

But the baby's 19-year-old biological father filed his own suit to gain custody of the baby, identified only as T.E.T., and to have her declared his legitimate offspring.

A Houston trial court and the 10th Court of Civil Appeals in Waco ruled against the young man, and he appealed to the Supreme Court.

The father contended on appeal the state law requiring the mother's consent as well as a finding that his parenthood would be in the child's best interest unconstitutionally discriminated on the basis of sex.

Mothers face no such requirements.

"The state has a valid objective in requiring the biological father to establish his 'status' as a parent. Otherwise, we would recognize a sperm donor, a rapist, a 'hit and run' lover, an adulterer and the like in the same legal status as a father who had accepted the legal and moral commitment to his family," the court said.

A mother automatically is responsible for a child, the court said, and an unwed mother's wishes for its care should not "be subject to the absolute veto of the biological father."

DEAR ABBY

'Angel' pilots create airline of life

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR READERS: While reading the Sacramento Bee, which carries my column, an interesting item by Max Miller caught my eye. It seems that while Tom Goodwin, a Sacramento businessman, was enjoying the view from his airplane one day last year, he was struck by the notion that pilots who fly for a hobby should be able to use their time, talent and aircraft for something more productive than just flying around, burning up fuel.

Then it occurred to him that many lives have been lost because vital organs and rare blood types wait while physicians and transplant centers try to arrange commercial transportation—a service that is simply not available in many isolated areas of the state.

Goodwin then conceived the idea of mobilizing the skills and aircraft of private pilots to provide a network of air transportation for human organs, tissue and blood—on a volunteer basis.

Thus was born the idea of AirLifeLine, a non-profit organization of pilots working with doctors and hospitals to provide free airfield-to-airfield service in medical emergencies.

So far 35 aviation pilots in Sacramento have enlisted. They donate their time, aircraft and fuel, and are available 24 hours a day. The organization's goal is to enroll 1,000 volunteer pilots for a statewide transportation network.

There is no charge to the patient, donor, physician or medical facility. AirLifeLine, 1005 8th St., Suite 302, Sacramento, Calif. 95814, depends entirely on donations, so if there are any "angels" out there, your tax-deductible contributions would be welcomed with "open wings." And wouldn't it be wonderful if this idea caught on in other parts of the country?—ABBY

DEAR ABBY: My husband of 40 years says I have hang-ups about sex. I say the hang-ups are his, not mine.

Since menopause, my interest in sex is zero. He wants me to go with him to a motel where sexy movies are available on TV. He says if that doesn't turn me on, nothing will.

I think I would respond more to dinner out, a little wine, soft music and sweet nothings whispered in my ear.

What is your opinion?—NO HANG-UPS

DEAR NO: Compromise. First have dinner out, a little wine, soft music and the sweet nothings. And if that doesn't turn you on, go to the motel and turn on the TV.

DEAR ABBY: What do you say to a guy in the following situation? You don't particularly care for him, but he keeps asking and asking for a date, so you finally go out with him. You found him an OK guy but boring. You know for sure you don't want to go out with him again, but when he says good night he asks you for a date for next Friday night.

If you say you're busy, he asks you what you're doing next Saturday, or Sunday, or Monday, and so on. You can't tell him you're busy every night for three weeks. I know this guy really likes me in a way I can't like him.

You hate to hurt his feelings, but you don't want to date him again because you know he would like you to be his girlfriend, but you don't want him for a boyfriend.

Please tell me the exact words to use, because I honestly don't know what to say. Besides, I have no guts.—SEVENTEEN AND NO GUTS.

DEAR SEVENTEEN: Try this: "I'm flattered that you want to date me again, but I can't accept another date with you because it's obvious that you're looking for a girlfriend and I think of you as only a friend. In other words, the chemistry between us isn't right for romance."

Sparkling wine causing showdown in California

Copley News Service

He's been in Sonoma making wine for two decades, and one of his specialties has been sparkling wine — champagne. But Rod Strong's reputation had been for still wine, and his sparkling stuff was usually overlooked, even though it was occasionally terrific.

Now, with the announcement recently that Sonoma Vineyards and Piper-Heidsieck would jointly make sparkling wine in California, Strong is putting his ego where his talents are. He is, in effect, challenging Domaine Chandon to a walk down main street for a "High Noon" showdown.

I wouldn't be willing to bet against Rod.

Details of the Piper-Sonoma venture were initially sketchy, but it was clear that the French Champagne maker, headquartered in Reims, and Renfield, the 51 percent partner in Sonoma, had agreed to produce about 30,000 cases of premium quality sparkling wine made by the methode Champenoise — fermentation in this bottle.

Strong is to be the wine maker for the entire process, and he will choose the grapes off his own land. Piper will provide a large share of the capital for the project, and Strong will consult with Piper master of Champagne Michel La Croix.

Three vintage-dated sparkling wines will be offered by late 1982 — a wine called Piper-Sonoma, a Blanc de Noir, made from Pinot Noir grapes, and a Tete de Cuvée, which is a top of the line blend.

Prices will be high, probably $15 to $20, well above the current $10 to $11 charged by Domaine Chandon, the Napa Valley operation of Moet et Chandon, the Epernay-based Champagne maker.

What's cooking

A true Texan will want to save Jerry Cappadonna's special recipe for Jalapeno Pepper Jelly.

Jerry is a busy housewife (she's married to Mitchell Cappadonna), and mother (to six children), but still finds time to be an active volunteer to the Memorial Hospital Auxiliary and St. Ann's Altar Society.

Mrs. Cappadonna says that the jelly spooned over a block of cream cheese and served with crackers is a delicious appetizer. It's also good served with pork or roast beef.

JALAPENO PEPPER JELLY

- 2/3 cup Jalapeno hot peppers
- 1 bell pepper
- 1 1/2 cup vinegar
- 6 cups sugar
- 1 bottle Certo
- 1 teaspoon green food coloring

Chop peppers and put in blender with vinegar. Add sugar and mix well. Bring mixture to a rolling boil. Strain. Return to stove and again bring to rolling boil. Remove from heat and at once add Certo and food coloring.

One of the many colorful events associated with the Texas Gulf Coast fishing industry is the traditional Blessing of the Fleet which takes place at Galveston, Aransas Pass and other port cities. These events are often accompanied by shrimporees and gumbo or creole cookoffs. For those who cannot attend these events or who have had a bad day at their favorite fishing hole, this Shrimpooree Creole will replace those memories.

Shrimp dish will replace bad memories

You've heard this one before. You've been fishing all day in what is supposedly a "hot spot" and for your efforts you come up with only a sore casting arm. No sooner are you back on the dock when someone says to you, "you should have been here last week!" Well, to help soothe those aching muscles and unfilled stomachs, try this Shrimpooree Creole recipe. Its bound to make any fisherman forget his "luck."

SHRIMPOREE CREOLE
1 lb. cook shrimp, shelled, deveined
3 tbsps. butter or margarine
1/2 cup chopped onion
1/2 cup chopped green pepper
1/4 cup minced celery
2 cloves garlic, minced
1 tbsp. flour
1 lb. can sliced stewed tomatoes
1/2 tsp. dried thyme
1 bay leaf
1/2 tsp. sugar
dash hot pepper sauce

1 tsp. Worcestershire sauce several whole allspice salt and pepper minced parsley
Hot, freshly cooked rice
Cook shrimp. Remove shells. To make creole sauce, saute onion, green pepper, garlic and celery in butter or margarine until limp; add flour and cook and stir until four is light tan. Add all other ingredients except parsley and rice and cook until sauce is thickened. Taste for salt and pepper and add more if needed. over hot, freshly cooked Stir in parsley. Serve rice. Serves 4.

Sugars react differently

Copley News Service

Fructose has been suggested as a super sweetening agent that does not raise blood sugar levels. There are other sugars, too, that also provide sweet tastes but react differently than ordinary table sugar (sucrose). Sorbitol and xylitol and mannitol are often used as sweetening agents in products that are advertised "sugar-free" — and they are free of ordinary sugar. They do provide diabetic people with substitute sweets that usually are tolerated without sudden blood sugar fluctuations. Certainly a blessing for those on sugar (sucrose) free diets. However, like most things in life, moderation should be the key word. Long-term studies are as yet not available but it is known that adding large quantities of these other sugars to the diet can and do have some adverse effects. Abdominal cramping and diarrhea may be the result of consuming too large quantities. Excessive xylitol is suspected of being a tumor-causing agent. Absolute proof is not there, but caution is advised. It has also been reported that the use of these other sugars can raise the blood sugar levels in undiagnosed or out-of-control diabetics. There are some people too, who cannot tolerate fructose, because of an enzyme defect that permits it to accumulate in the blood, rather than being rapidly metabolized in the liver. The resulting fructosemia produces a sudden drop in blood glucose, and severe hypoglycemic (low blood sugar) reactions. Sometimes infants who are started on cow's milk with sucrose (ordinary sugar) become ill when fruit is added to their diet. Their enzyme development may just be immature, or if they are permanently lacking the necessary enzyme, they will have a life-long chronic dietary problem. Older children who develop an aversion to sweets and fruits are usually protecting themselves unwittingly, and parents should not disregard such symptoms. There are over 100 sweet substances commonly described as various sugars, but only sucrose is called "sugar." It is, of course, derived from sugarcane or sugar beets.

Hot dog season is here, and this summer there's more selection than ever. For a new twist to an old tradition, try turkey or chicken hot dogs. As delicious as its pork or beef counterpart, this turkey frank is 30 percent lower in fat.

It's hot dog season again

Summer... baseball... hot dogs... cookouts, the favorite time of year for millions of Americans. Sunny days at the ball park, the crack of wood against the flying leather ball, the sizzle and smoke from backyard barbecues: it's hot dog season again.

Political hopefuls take note. Former vice president Nelson Rockefeller is reported to have said, "No candidate for any office can hope to get elected in this country without being photographed eating a hot dog."

Hot dog lovers come in all sizes, shapes and ages. According to surveys, adults eat more hot dogs than children, women eat more than men and the United States produces enough to give every man, woman and child about 80 frankfurters apiece.

Babe Ruth reportedly once satisfied his hunger between games of a doubleheader by downing 12 hot dogs. Approved by NASA, hot dogs fed the astronauts on Apollo moon flights and Skylab missions.

Forty years ago, a hot issue at the Democratic National Convention centered on whether hot dogs should be sold while the convention was in progress. When the citizen's committee organizing the convention voted no, the opposition organized a "Freedom for Franks" campaign that soon brought franks back to the hungry delegates.

Every region has its favorite hot dog style. Bostonians like the chili dog served with onions and mustard. In California they dip their hot dogs in corn batter and deep fry them to produce the corn dog. Parisians prefer their hot dogs on French bread with Gruyere cheese and Dijon mustard.

Statistics show that very few baseball fans purchase hot dogs after the seventh inning, except at a doubleheader. Yet hot dog sales at the nation's ball parks equal 55 to 75 percent of attendance figures. In the 1979 season alone, Cubs fans at Chicago's Wrigley Field ate one million franks.

What's the single spot that sells the most hot dogs in the world? Chicago's O'Hare International Airport supplies air travelers with around two million hot dogs every year.

Most people eat hot dogs because they're tasty, easy to prepare and inexpensive. But they're also low in calories. The average hot dog contains the same number of calories as three ounces of lean veal or haddock and two-thirds the calories in a cup of yogurt, with 30 times less carbohydrates. With 150 calories per average frank, hot dogs are included on many diets.

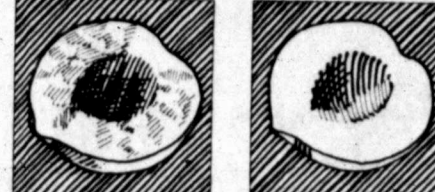

The average hot dog contains five to seven grams of protein, about the same as in one egg, with 90 per cent less cholesterol.

DINING WELL is something that will never go out of style, even though today's homes often do not have the formal dining room. Culinary specialists have long known that the enjoyment of any meal is enhanced by serving it in an attractive manner...and in a pleasant setting. And whether you have a separate dining room or an area at one end of the living room, you can turn it into one of the most inviting areas in your home, where family or guests can savor relaxed, unhurried meals. There are dining room suites available to fit any size dining area, even the smallest dining "L". Handsome, comfortable chairs are an invitation to sit a while. And one of the most important pieces, the breakfast, hutch or china cabinet, is as functional as any piece of furniture you can have, providing storage for china, linens and silverware. Dress up your dining area with light, inviting colors, comfortable furniture, sunny draperies, and perhaps a pull-down lighting fixture...and you'll find guests and family lingering over your meals! From the most functional set for family room or kitchen to the most elegant dining room furniture, our selection is complete. Let us help you dine with the best!

Peach Ice Cream is a longtime favorite of many

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

When I was a little girl, hand-churned ice cream was made at our house on the back porch or lawn on Sundays all summer long. Fresh peach ice cream was always a favorite.

Nowadays making ice cream at home is so easy it might, in bygone days, have seemed sinful. Sometimes I use a 1-quart electric ice-cream maker that needs neither ice nor salt and does its work in the freezer. Or a 2-quart electric freezer that stands by itself on a counter and needs only ice cubes and common salt.

PEACH ICE CREAM

- 6 medium-size fully ripe peaches (about 2 pounds)
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1 tbsp. lemon juice
- 1/2 cup light corn syrup
- 1 tsp. vanilla
- 1/4 tsp. salt
- 1 cup heavy cream
- 1 cup light cream

Peel and pit the peaches. In an electric blender or food processor finely chop peaches—there should be 2 cups. Stir in 1/4 cup of the sugar and the lemon juice. Cover; refrigerate about 30 minutes to allow flavor to develop. In a medium bowl stir together the remaining 1/2 cup sugar, the corn syrup, vanilla and 1/4 teaspoon salt; add the heavy cream and light cream; stir until sugar dissolves. Thoroughly stir in peach mixture.

For freezing, follow manufacturer's directions for your particular ice-cream freezer. (We tested this recipe in a 2-quart electric freezer that uses table salt and ice cubes.) Makes about 1 1/2 quarts.

An important message to Mothers...from Wrigley's.

America's leading dental organization recommends the all-natural sweeteners in Orbit Sugar Free Gum.

Only natural sugar free sweeteners.

America's leading dental organization, like most of America's mothers, is concerned about children's dental health. There is also general concern about the effects of certain sugarless sweeteners. That's why it's important to know that the all-natural, sugar free sweeteners in Orbit have been recommended for use by America's leading dental organization. And that's why they're the only sweeteners in Orbit Sugar Free Gum.

No saccharin in Orbit.

If you're a mother who reads packages carefully, you've probably noticed a warning label on products that contain saccharin. There may even be one on your current brand of sugarless gum. But look at Orbit's package the next time you buy sugar free gum for your family. You'll find no warning label, because Orbit doesn't need saccharin to taste great. Only all-natural, sugar free sweeteners.

Orbit's sweeteners are recommended.

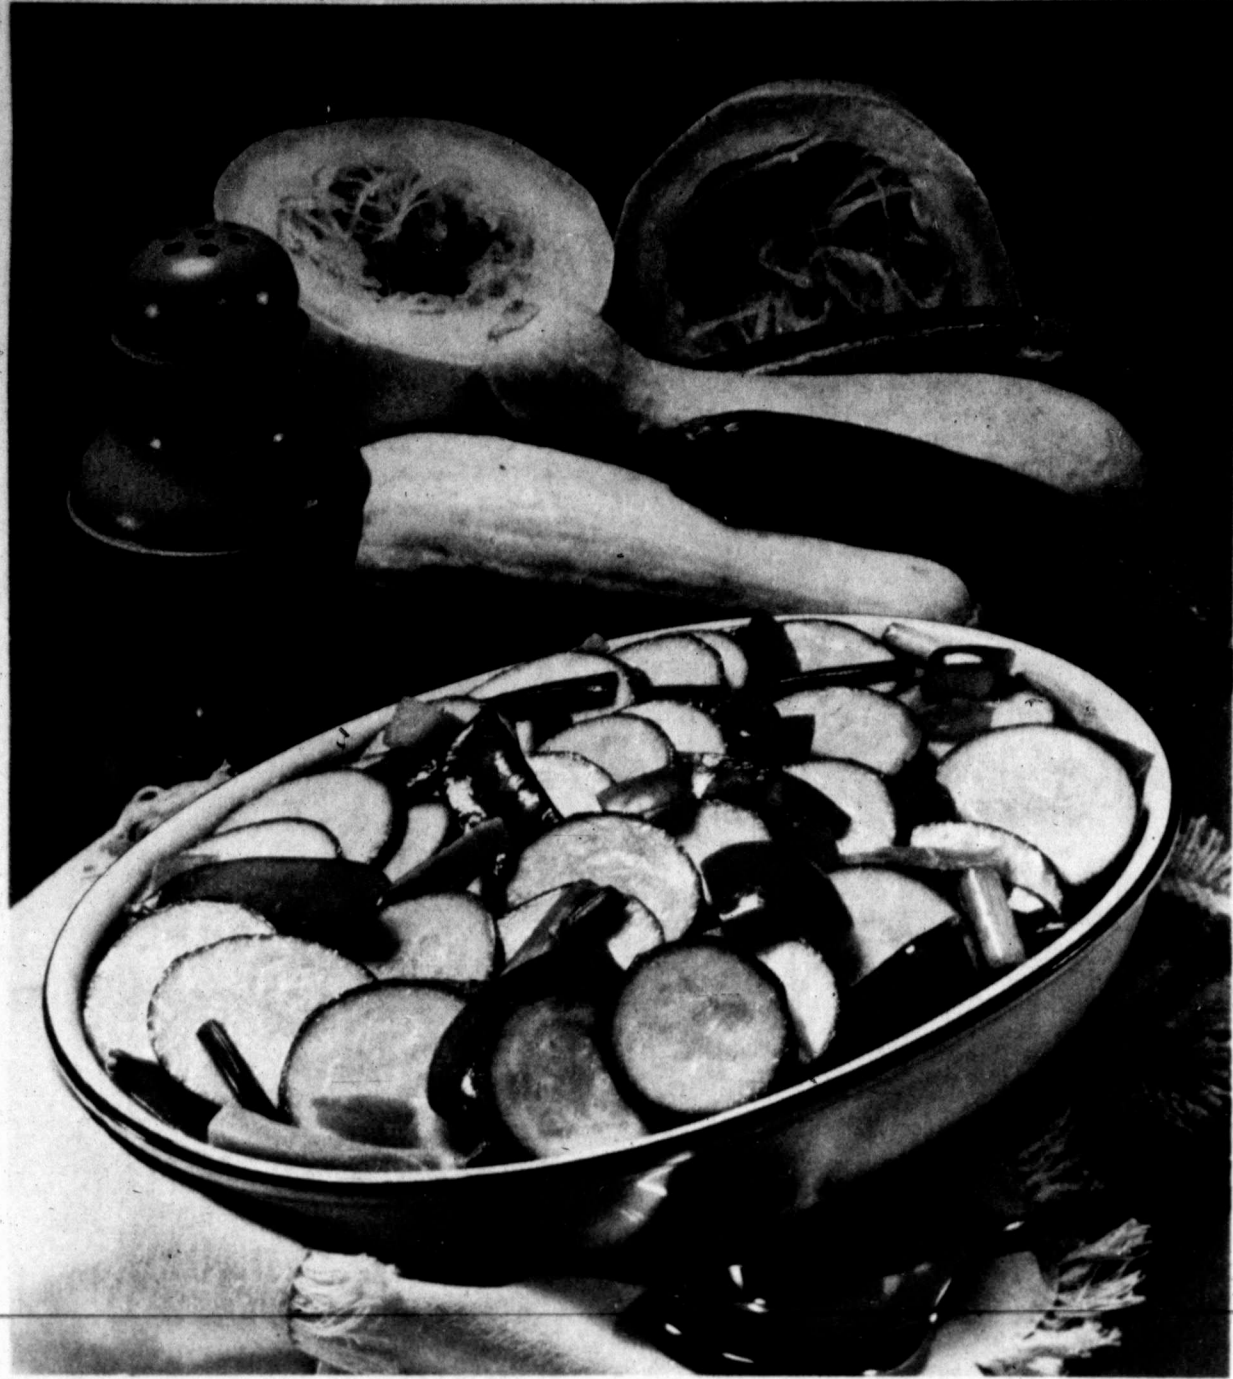

Clearly, America's leading dental organization has good reason for recommending the natural, sugar free sweeteners in Orbit. So if you think good teeth are important, you've got a mouthful of beautiful reasons for chewing Orbit Sugar Free Gum.

Orbit doesn't promote cavities.

If you've always wanted to find a sugar free gum you could trust for your family, now is the time to try Orbit. The sweeteners in Orbit don't promote cavities. And that's something to chew on if your kids chew gum.

Naturally sweet without sugar...or saccharin.

Squash saute is a delightful, stir-fried vegetable melange that will colorfully perk up simple, summery dinners.

Multi-array of 'summer squash' provides adventure to light meals

When you think of "summer squash," are zucchini and yellow the only varieties that come to mind? Years ago, these were the main types of squash available during the warm months. But today, the array takes in a range of colors, shapes and subtly different tastes that can add extra adventure to lighter, summer dinners.

We're all familiar with traditional Italian green zucchini. Did you know, though, two new zucchini varieties have been developed that are sure to become favorites of all? Golden zucchini has a distinctive yellow color and mild taste. Like the green type, when shredded it gives soups, casseroles and even breads a special texture and flavor. Gourmet Globe is a spherical bright green-striped zucchini with a full, sweet flavor. It's especially tempting filled with a meat or fresh vegetable stuffing. Try Squash Saute, a delicious, quickly prepared side dish that utilizes ever popular zucchini in a multi-hued vegetable melange with Parmesan cheese and cooked ham. Use it to perk up simple, no-fuss dinners, like roast chicken, broiled fish or hamburgers. It's perfect for a summer's evening when you want to keep appetite appeal up and time in the kitchen down.

Yellow squash — both crookneck and straight-neck — is another beloved variety. Try it in blender-made Summer Squash Soup, a refreshing opening to any summer supper. Topped with yogurt and alfalfa sprouts, this pale yellow, spicy soup, combines crunch with a delicate smoothness and will awaken your palate for the meal to come.

Scallop or Pattypan squash has an appealing, plump bowl shape with scalloped edges. Within this group also falls the White or Button squash, which is pale green when young, maturing to a creamy white. Steamed or sauteed, these squashes make delectable, easy-to-fix vegetable courses.

"Summer" or soft-shell squashes are now available year-round, but so plentiful through the warm months that they have earned their seasonal name. They are also invitingly low in calories, most having only 14 in a 3 1/2 ounce serving. They're nutritious, too. According to the United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Association, summer squashes are a fair source of potassium, are low in sodium and also supply moderate amounts of magnesium and vitamin C.

Remarkable Spaghetti squash is a new vegetable that's making a big splash in the market. Why is it so unique? Once cooked, the interior separates into long, thin, spaghetti-like strands that can be tossed with fresh tomato sauce just like pasta. One big difference, though: the squash contains only 66 calories in a generous 8-ounce serving.

Whole Spaghetti squash can be boiled (for 20 minutes) or baked (in a moderate oven for 1 1/2 hours). If baking, be certain to puncture the skin with a fork, just as you do for potatoes. After cooking, slice in half, and use a fork to pull the strands out onto a platter.

From zucchini to Pattypan, crookneck to Button, you'll find a splendid array of versatile squashes this summer. If you have trouble finding some varieties at your supermarket, ask the produce manager. Your interest will encourage stocking of an even wider variety of fresh items.

SQUASH SAUTE

- 2 tbsps. olive or vegetable oil
1/4 lb. cooked ham, cut into strips
1 cup diced green pepper
2 scallions, cut in 1-inch pieces
1 cup fresh pea pods
2 large tomatoes, seeded and chopped
2 medium zucchini, sliced
1/4 tsp. dried leaf thyme
1/4 tsp. salt
3 tbsps. grated Parmesan cheese

In a large skillet heat oil, saute ham until slightly browned, remove from skillet and set aside. Saute green pepper and scallions 3 minutes. Add pea pods, tomatoes, zucchini, thyme and salt. Continue to cook over medium heat until vegetables are crisp-tender. Return ham to skillet and heat through. Transfer to serving dish, sprinkle with grated cheese. Makes 6 servings.

SUMMER SQUASH SOUP

- 2 cans (13 1/2 ounces each) beef broth (3 1/2 cups)
2 medium-size yellow squashes, sliced
2 medium onions, sliced (1 cup)
pinch pepper
1/4 cup plain yogurt
fresh alfalfa sprouts or shredded carrot

In a large saucepan, bring broth to a boil. Add squash and onion, simmer until tender, about 15 minutes. Season with pepper. In container of electric blender, combine broth, vegetables and yogurt. Process until smooth. Chill. Serve garnished with fresh alfalfa sprouts or shredded carrot, if desired. Soup may be served hot or cold. Makes 4 servings.

Try refreshing bowl of cold soup

By CLARE BARRETT Copley News Service

What could be more refreshing on a hot summer day than a bowl of cold and delicious soup?

If you haven't eaten cold soups, the idea may sound strange and unappealing. Admittedly, the word "soup" conjures up images of steam rising from a bowl in most people's mind's eye. However, as perfect as hot soups are on cold nights, cold soups are on hot ones.

Many cuisines have established traditions for serving succulent sippables chilled. There is the famed vichyssoise of French cuisine, gazpacho of Spanish origin, and cool fruit soups from Scandinavia.

Scandinavian fruit soups are cooked, and often contain rich ingredients such as onions and garlic and dried fruit. While such hearty fare has its place (in Scandinavia!), light and quick fruit soups can be prepared in a blender. Availability and imagination are the only limitations here. Any kind of fruit can be the basis of a fresh-tasting puree.

The basic blender fruit soup requires, for about six servings, three cups of unsweetened fruit juice, one cup of sour cream, yogurt or buttermilk, about two cups of mixed fresh fruit, and seasoning. Lemon juice, honey to taste, and dried or fresh mint are a great supporting cast. Seasonings can be in the form of your favorite sweet wine, cinnamon, nutmeg or allspice. Blended until smooth and topped with yogurt or sour cream or a whole ripe strawberry, these soups make one of the most versatile and appreciated summer dishes ever.

Pair either a fruit or a vegetable chilled soup with a loaf of crusty French bread and a few chunks of your favorite cheese, and you will have a satisfying but light meal that will be enjoyed as many times as you serve it.

Courage needed to market new wine

Copley News Service

It takes a certain amount of courage to market a new wine, one with which the consumer is unfamiliar, and thus the announcement recently that the German firm of Sichel would market a halbtrocken in the United States was viewed with great interest.

That is because Sichel is the maker of the widely successful Blue Nun, a wine that grabbed a large share of the American market with a clever advertising campaign based around the idea that Blue Nun goes with any food.

Blue Nun, whose impact on the American scene appears to have peaked, is a soft, slightly sweet wine that appeals largely to novice wine drinkers and that's what intrigued me about Sichel's latest foray into the United States.

Halbtrocken is relatively dry and this will appeal to a more sophisticated audience than Blue Nun. But Peter M.F. Sichel noted that, "We have done a lot of market research and we found that a whole segment of the American population thinks German wines are too sweet."

"At the same time, Germans have suddenly decided they like drier wines, too. Up until now, Germans traditionally had beer with dinner, not wine. But now they are seeking dry wines with their meals."

Halbtrocken means half-dry, and under a strict set of rules such wines may have only 1.8 percent residual sugar at an acidity of .8. (There are such things as trocken wines, totally dry, but they are rare in this country.)

Sichel's halbtrocken will be made available in this country in September and should be an interesting experience for those unfamiliar with the style.

Sichel foresees no cut-price campaign to sell this wine, as with Blue Nun.

Use versatile sausage to cut food costs

By MERLE ELLIS

There is no more versatile meat produce in the world than that group of meat products we call, collectively, sausage. There are hundreds, probably thousands of different kinds of sausage, from the all-American hot dog and simple breakfast link to Chinese lop chong, Swiss bratwurst, French bouillon and Mexican chorizo. Every country in the world has a variety of sausage specialties upon which good cooks rely on for good meals at reasonable prices.

In this country, unfortunately, sausage has been somewhat overlooked (with the exception of hot dogs and breakfast links) as the basis for good inexpensive eating. That seems to be changing, if the variety of sausage products that I see in meat cases around the country is any indication.

Checking markets from San Francisco to Sioux City to St. Petersburg, I see more and more case space devoted to sausage of all kinds than ever before in my tenure in the meat business.

Where there used to be only hot dogs, there now are sausage products with national heritages as varied as the people that make up this nation. There are Polish sausages, Italian sausages, German sausages, Swiss and Mexican sausages — all side by side with the hot dog in more and more markets. We can take advantage of that to make some marvelous and inexpensive meals if we learn what to do with all of these different sausage products.

Let's start with Mexican sausage — chorizo, a deliciously spicy sausage that can add a little zip to a breakfast or brunch, or be used in casseroles and stews to feed a small army a delicious dinner at a very reasonable price.

Just in case you can't find chorizo in your market's meatcase, I have included a recipe for making your own, followed by a few of our family favorite recipes for serving them.

CHORIZO

- 2 lbs. coarsely-ground lean pork
- ¼ lb. pork fat, finely ground
- 2 tsp. paprika
- 2 tsp. chili powder
- 1 tsp. coarsely-ground black pepper
- 1/2 tsp. each, cinnamon, ground cloves
- 1/4 tsp. each, coriander seed, ground ginger
- 1 tsp. each, oregano, cumin
- 6 whole garlic cloves, crushed
- ½ cup vinegar (5 percent acid)
- ½ cup sherry or brandy

Mix fat and meat thoroughly. Add other ingredients and mix together, using your hands. Be sure to distribute the vinegar thoroughly through the mixture.

Put the mixture in an earthenware crock or glass jar in a cool place (50 to 60 degrees) and allow the sausage to "cure" for at least 24 hours, preferably for two or three days. Stuff into hog casings and link, then refrigerate. If you wish to keep for extended times, freeze the sausage. This sausage is cooked before eating.

MEXICAN SAUSAGE-NOODLE CASSEROLE

- 1 lb. chorizo or Italian sausage
- 6 oz. vermicelli (skinny noodles), broken
- 4 whole tomatoes, peeled, cut up
- 1 ½ c. chicken broth
- 1 onion, cut up
- 2 cloves garlic, minced
- 1 tsp. salt
- ½ tsp. pepper
- ½ tsp. oregano
- 1 tsp. sugar
- ¼ tsp. dried red pepper
- 3 tbsp. Parmesan cheese
- 1 can chopped green chiles

Brown sausage. Drain, set aside and reserve about 2 tablespoons of the sausage oil. Brown pieces of vermicelli in oil. Put in the tomatoes, chicken stock, onion, garlic, salt, pepper, oregano, sugar and red pepper in blender container and blend well. Pour mixture over vermicelli. Arrange the chorizo on top. Cover and cook for 10 to 12 minutes, until the vermicelli is tender. Garnish with cheese and green chiles. Serves 6 to 8.

MEXICAN BEAN STEW

- 2 ½ c. dry garbanzo beans (or 3 cans)
- 3 qts. water (2 qts. with canned beans)
- 1 lb. beef shanks
- 1 ½ lb. ham shanks
- 1 ½ c. chopped onion
- 1 clove minced garlic
- 2 tsp. salt

layers the same way. Cover; refrigerate overnight. Spoon marinade over the top — mint will have darkened. If you like, turn into a 1-quart container. Serve, drained, on Italian bread.

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY:

Comedian Red Skelton shares your birthday, and a good sense of humor will help you to emerge triumphant from troublesome business and domestic situations this summer. A thirst for knowledge could cause you to enroll in a self-improvement course or take college classes. Friends will play a key role in the resolution of a money problem. Be discreet about past relationships and romance will stay on a smooth track! Tendency to make reckless statements, impulsive moves must be curbed. Young people often look to you for guidance.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Channel energies wisely to achieve optimal results. Unfinished chores should be completed without further delay. Face-to-face meetings are helpful to business finances.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Quiet atmosphere at work is conducive to decision-making. Listen to the ideas of mate, romantic partner. A secret shared with a loved one will bring great joy.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Stick to routine tasks and concentrate on improving the quality of your work. Careless talk could hurt associate, friend. Seek compromise solution to difficult situation.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Someone who offers special assistance may have ulterior motives. Know it and act accordingly. Romance is the topic of much conversation. Be careful when choosing confidants.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Emphasis is on work responsibilities and professional advancement. Seize golden opportunities and make stride forward in career. Financial windfall is a distinct possibility.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Reject secondhand information and insist on dealings with those in charge. Refuse to play games with someone who deserves love, respect. Be honest about goals, desires.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Workload may be lighter now. Show an inexperienced person the ropes and you could gain a valuable new ally. Some emotional ties seem oppressive today. Be aware of your true feelings, intentions.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Postpone important business or career decisions. Review past actions and take steps to correct any wrong impressions a newcomer may have. Mate, spouse may feel threatened by proposed changes.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Set aside more time for relaxation. If weary, your temper is apt to be short. Do not be too proud to admit mistakes to a younger person. Someone who acted indifferent in the past now reveals a special interest in pet project.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Study letter or message very carefully before taking action. Resist temptation to make aggressive statements. Fresh opportunities exist to make extra money. Be choosy if offered several different plans to follow.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): First-class agreement can be finalized today. Vacation or retirement plans command attention. Keep your options open where a financial venture is concerned. Consult expert about investment opportunity.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Co-workers could misinterpret your intentions, leading them to expect too much from you. Travel may be connected to the outcome of creative project. Show that you know how to delegate authority.

There's a great deal of sales resistance to be found in most bridge players. Having been weaned on such ancient bromides as "Always return your partner's suit" and "Lead up to dummy's weakness," it's difficult for them to break with tradition when the need arises.

North-South reached three no trump via simple arithmetic, and West made his natural lead of a low heart. Dummy played low, East contributed the nine and declarer made a feeble attempt at deception by winning with the ace. Not even the most naive defender should be taken in by this falsehood, which is, on the face of it, a shrieking lie. If declarer had no card but the ace that was higher than the nine, he would have tried the queen from dummy at the first trick in the hope that West had lead away from the king. And West would not have led low from a four-card suit headed by the K-J-10.

Declarer ran the queen of Farm export boom to continue

WASHINGTON (AP) — American farmers can expect 12 more months of record grain exports despite the Russian embargo and good crops elsewhere in the world, the Agriculture Department says.

"For the second consecutive year, world coarse grain utilization is expected to exceed world coarse grain production," USDA analysts say.

"Significant deterioration of the grain crop outlook in Canada as well as somewhat reduced grain export availability from that of a year ago in Australia and increased imports by China currently point towards prospects for record U.S. wheat and coarse grain exports," the analysts said Tuesday in the department's monthly World Grain Situation Outlook.

They added, however, that the demand on the U.S. supplies could force the nation's domestic stores of coarse grains to a four-year low.

The report estimated world grain production, including milled rice, at 1.45 billion metric tons during the year that ends June 30, 1981, well within the department's previous forecasts and only 20 million tons below the record 1978-1979 production. A metric ton is 2,205 pounds, equaling 36.7 bushels of wheat and 39.4 bushels of corn.

World demand in the next year is expected to push American wheat exports to a record 39.5 million metric tons and with a record 1980 crop expected the domestic wheat stocks should rise as well, the report said.

The hot weather has led to a selling boom in cattle. These East Texas animals suffer as the heat takes much of the nutritional value from the grass. Some ranchers worry that continued heat may result in cows not giving birth next season and calves born this year may not gain enough to survive the winter. (AP Laserphoto)

Heat boosts sale of beef

Stockyards swamped in Oklahoma

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — The long, hot summer was beefing up sales at the world's largest stockyards this week as more cattle were expected to change hands in two days than normally do so during a heavy week.

The lights burned into the wee hours of the morning today as Oklahoma ranchers, many unable to maintain herds on pastures rapidly turning into desert, swamped the cattle arena at the city stockyards with early sales for feedlots.

The market opened at 8 a.m. Wednesday and as sales notices multiplied, the Oklahoma Stockyards Co. made plans to ride out the sudden boom in sales by staying open until 3 a.m. today.

Some 35,000 head of cattle were expected to be sold before the end of today, more in the two-day period than the company handles during a heavy week.

The company usually sells about 30,000 head "on a real busy week," said Bill McGowan, marketing specialist for the stockyards.

"Cattle are taken off wheat pastures, then put on native grass," he said. "When that starts running out, it's time to come on into market."

When pasture land dries out and burns up, the rancher faces an extra cost of buying grain unless he decides to sell the animals early to feedlots. Feeding cattle, which should be sustaining themselves on pasture, can reduce a cattleman's gross profit considerably.

Heifers and steers normally are sold to feedlots when the animals range in age between 1 year and 14 months.

McGowan said the cattle sold to feedlots in the rush today "are all ready to go anyway" but admitted some of the stock might have been brought in prematurely.

He said the stockyards' sales for the same two days the previous year were just over 22,000.

McGowan said the sudden surge in the cattle market this week does not indicate a crisis situation exists.

"If the weather stays like this another month, we'll have a real critical stress condition," said McGowan.

Other experts agree with McGowan.

John Ikerd, a marketing economist at Oklahoma State University, said a sell-off could occur if the hot, dry weather continues. The sell-off could have an immediate effect of lower beef prices for consumers but less beef and higher prices in the future.

McGowan says that for now, "The market is good and has held all the way through. Prices have stayed real steady."

Anthrax 'outbreak' called under control by vet

UVALDE, Texas (AP) — A veterinarian is optimistic that a "sporadic outbreak" of deadly anthrax has been brought under control and will be confined to the Concan area in north Uvalde County.

Dr. Dusty Huddleston, active in combatting the virulent disease since it was first discovered two weeks ago, said Wednesday area ranchers had quickly vaccinated their cattle against anthrax when presence of the disease became known.

"In a few more days we'll know," Huddleston said.

He said anthrax had cropped up from time to time in the area since the 1930s, but this was the first outbreak in recent years.

"Most owners already have vaccinated and I hope that's the end to it. It's a sporadic outbreak. All the cases have been localized around Concan. We hope it stays that way," the veterinarian said.

However, Uvalde County agriculture extension agent Darrell Smith said he was worried that the deer population could be affected by the disease which is carried by horsesflies and affects all animals, including man.

"Deer cannot be vaccinated," Smith noted.

Second water crisis threatens Texas town

GRAFORD, Texas (AP) — The well is about to run dry again in this small North Texas town that ran out of water three months ago.

The watershed for the community's reservoir is "about 14 inches below normal rainfall" and water is being used faster than expected due to the scorching summer heat, said City Secretary Arlene Howard on Wednesday.

Town officials are awaiting approval of a Farmers Home Administration loan and grant to build a new dam and reservoir on the Keechi Creek.

Ms. Howard said the town, about 45 miles northeast of Fort Worth, has "enough water for maybe three weeks and then we'll have to start hauling again."

The town's 600 residents in late April and early May used water hauled from nearby communities in milk trucks donated by local businesses.

Ms. Harris estimated about 70 percent of the community earns low income or lives on fixed income, making town leaders reluctant to raise taxes to replace its 43-year-old water system.

A great bank to call your own.

THE NEWSPAPER BIBLE

If you know it, do it!

Beware then of your own hearts, dear brothers, lest you find that they, too, are evil and unbelieving and are leading you away from the living God.

Speak to each other about these things every day while there is still time, so that none of you will become hardened against God, being blinded by the glamor of sin.

For if we are faithful to the end, trusting God just as we did when we first became Christians, we will share in all that belongs to Christ.

But now is the time. Never forget the warning. "Today if you hear God's voice speaking to you, do not harden your hearts against Him, as the people of Israel did when they rebelled against Him in the desert."

And who were those people I speak of, who heard God's voice speaking to them but then rebelled against Him? They were the ones who came out of Egypt with Moses their leader.

And who was it who made God angry for all those forty years? These same people who sinned and as a result died in the wilderness.

And to whom was God speaking when He swore with an oath that they could never go into the land He had promised His people? He was speaking to all those who disobeyed Him.

And why couldn't they go in? Because they didn't trust Him.

Immunizations free for school-aged children

Midland City-County Health Department is reminding area parents that immunizations for their school-aged children can be obtained free of charge each Monday, 8-11 a.m. and 1-4 p.m., at the Health Department clinic at 501 Andrews Highway.

A Health Department spokeswoman said the department was reminding parents to get their children immunized before school starts when the department is frequently overrun with requests and often must turn citizens away.

All shots required by the schools for children under 7 — for diphtheria, polio, measles, mumps, rubella and tuberculosis — will be given at the clinic. For children older than 7, diphtheria, tetanus and polio boosters are available.

The free immunizations are available for all students under 18 and students enrolled at Midland College who are over 18.

Students under 18 must be accompanied by a parent or grandparent to sign medical release forms at the clinic.

There are about six Mondays left before classes begin in Midland.

What happened to dream ticket?

DETROIT (AP) — Gerald R. Ford wanted a piece of the presidency, a price Ronald Reagan wasn't willing to pay.

So the deal fell through, after negotiations between a would-be president and a one-time president over how to share the power of the Oval Office.

After weeks of vowing not to make a mistake in his first big decision as nominee, Reagan was left looking like a rejected suitor.

And George Bush was exposed as Reagan's second choice.

What happened?

FORD TELEGRAPHED his decision when he appeared in two television interviews early Wednesday evening.

"If I go to Washington, I have to go there in the belief that I would play a meaningful role," he said. "I would not go to Washington to be a figurehead vice president."

And yet, the eventual decision was not made until 11:15 p.m. when Ford, unaccompanied by anyone other than his Secret Service bodyguard, rode an elevator down from his suite on the 70th floor suite to Reagan's on the 69th.

He and Reagan, antagonists in the 1976 race for the presidential nomination, met for 10 minutes. Ford then returned to his suite and told his aides, then his wife, that it was all off.

"He looked relieved," said one who was there.

At 11:37 p.m. the telephone summoned George Bush. He was offered the brass ring and took it.

Reagan came to Detroit with Bush his personal favorite, despite their brouhaha in Nashua, N.H., over who would get to debate.

BUT LAST TUESDAY night, a handful of Republican party elders were summoned by Reagan. They persuaded him to at least consider teaming up with Ford. Reagan replied they were not the first to advise that no one could do as much to assure his election as Ford.

His guests asked what quality he most sought in a vice president. Reagan said he wanted someone who could serve as president.

They pounced on that. Why not someone who had proven his ability to fill the presidency: Ford?

The participants included Republican National Committee Chairman Bill Brock; Gov. James Thompson of Illinois; Sen. Richard Schweiker of Pennsylvania, who was Reagan's vice presidential choice four years ago; Sens. John Tower of Texas and Bob Dole of Kansas; House GOP leader John Rhodes; and House GOP whip Robert Michel.

Also present were William J. Casey, Reagan's campaign manager, and several others of the Reagan staff.

As the group broke up, Brock slipped a note to Thompson inviting him to a meeting in Brock's hotel room at 8:30 a.m. Arriving there, the Illinois governor found that the same group had reassembled and had been joined by several of Ford's associates — Rep. Richard Cheney of Wyoming, who was Ford's presidential chief of staff; Alan Greenspan, his chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers; Jack Marsh, his counsel; and former Sen. Robert Griffin of Michigan. They went over the arguments yet another time.

EVEN AS THEY MET, word leaked out to the news-hungry delegates that the courtship was under way. Ford went to a scheduled luncheon elsewhere in his hotel and on the way back answered a reporter's single shouted question: "I haven't changed my mind."

But out of the view of reporters and cameras, Ford now met with the Reagan point men. It was essential, they told him, that Jimmy Carter be driven from the White House. He agreed. They recognized, they said, the tremendous sacrifice he would have to make but that he could create a historic ticket that could guarantee victory in November.

An electrifying ticket, they said. He wouldn't say yes. He didn't say no.

He did say, however, he would do everything possible to see Carter defeated, short of becoming vice president. Casey said that as a crack in the granite.

Ford made his first trip of the day to see Reagan.

"The whole purpose of these talks was to find out whether an accommodation could be worked out in a way that would enable President Ford to work into a rather unique and unusual and unprecedented situation," said Edwin Meese, Reagan's chief of staff.

Among other things in their 30-minute talk, Reagan and Ford discussed the constitutional provision which penalizes the ticket if both candidates are from the same state. Reagan and Ford would be denied California's 45 electoral votes, at heavy cost if the election were close.

THEY DISCUSSED whether Ford could get around that problem by changing his address back to Michigan, or to Colorado. Ford thought the American people would look on such an expedient as "something a little cute."

The session broke up with no decision and Ford went public with his agony.

He and his wife sat with Walter Cronkite in the CBS anchor booth as the fourth session of the convention got under way.

"Neither Betty nor myself would have any sense that our pride would be hurt if we went there as No. 2 instead of No. 1," said Ford, who had been both.

"We've been around that city a long time, Walter, and I think we're big enough, we're self-assured enough that that problem wouldn't affect us in any way whatsoever."

He said he and Reagan had established a rapport, a relationship, a friendship, so that was no longer an obstacle. Only last March, Ford was saying that Reagan was unselectable.

And he brushed off the question whether he at 67 was too old to be the stand-in for Reagan, who would be 70 soon after becoming president.

Both with Cronkite and later with Barbara Walters on ABC, Ford said for him to run for vice president "it would have to be a far different structure, a far different role than any of the vice president-president relationships I've known in the last 30 years in Washington, D.C."

AFTER THE INTERVIEWS, Ford went back to the 70th floor to watch the convention with Betty.

The negotiators continued meeting. Now the group had flag rank.

For Reagan: Meese, Casey and pollster Richard Wirthlin.

For Ford: Marsh, Greenspan, former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Bob Barrett, Ford's chief aide.

They would talk for a while, then run back to their principals to report.

Marsh said of Ford: "He had questioned at the outset, it was his intuitive feeling never resolved, whether he ought to do it, and whether it was workable. He felt he could be most effective not in government, but outside. He never retreated from that."

After it was all over, NBC said that Ford laid down three conditions that Reagan could not accept — that Kissinger be given a major foreign policy role in a Reagan administration and that Ford be given a voice in the National Security Council and the Domestic Policy Council.

But Reagan emissary Meese denies as "totally incorrect" that a role for Kissinger was demanded.

"There weren't any conditions," he said. "The whole idea was to try to find out whether you could work out a role in which a former president could operate effectively as a vice president."

AND DREW LEWIS of Pennsylvania, one of the few non-Californians in Reagan's inner circle, said it wasn't really a question of working out an arrangement between the two.

"I just think Ford felt in his heart he didn't want it," Lewis said. Erroneous word flashed across the convention floor that a deal had been struck and that soon the delegates would see standing before them a dream ticket.

Even Bush said later that he believed the reports. In the Plaza Hotel, hundreds crowded together in the lobby and stood for hours in hot, bright television lights, for a glimpse of either man.

A source says Ford wanted guarantees in writing from Reagan that he would play a role so large that it could almost be called a shared presidency if it came to pass.

No dice.

At 11:15, Ford took that elevator ride again. Alone. He and Reagan talked for 10 minutes. Alone.

"He just came in and announced that he told Reagan he wouldn't do it," said Ford spokesman Larry Speakes.

"He said he felt he made the right decision," said Ford's White House photographer, David Hume Kennerly. "He just looked relieved."

A FEW MINUTES LATER, Reagan called Bush. "I told him I would work, work, work, for his election," said Bush, the most persistent challenger Reagan faced in the spring's primaries.

Ford had agreed to take part in the Larry King radio call-in show beginning at midnight. The show originated from a yacht anchored in the Detroit River a hundred yards from the convention hall.

At 11:45, Reagan agents were telephoning delegations with the word: "It's Bush." At the same time, Ford aides cancelled the talk show appearance.

Kemp gained publicity for future

DETROIT (AP) — For all the hoopla and support given Jack Kemp as a possible candidate for vice president on the Republican ticket, his supporters really had their eyes on the 1984 convention.

Nonetheless, Ronald Reagan's choice of George Bush as his running mate Wednesday night was a bitter pill for the Kemp camp to swallow. At the end, they had made stopping Bush almost as important as promoting Kemp.

They will support Bush, because they love Reagan, but they will leave the convention with bitterness toward the Republican Party leadership, which they felt overemphasized Bush's appeal to the electorate.

"We are prepared to accept Governor Reagan's choice," said one supporter, Jim Roberts. "But we want to make certain Governor Reagan gets the facts, and we don't think he gets the facts through the leadership."

Gerald Ford would have been a more acceptable vice presidential nominee, in part because they thought that Ford probably would not want to run again in 1984, which could leave a post open for Kemp, the former football player, who now represents a New York district in the House.

But Bush is younger and if he's elected with Reagan this year, they think Kemp's chances of finding a way onto the ticket next time would be more difficult.

When it became clear on Wednesday that Kemp was fading as a candidate, Kemp's supporters began to talk of the next convention.

Republicans were drooling over prospect of Reagan-Ford ticket

DETROIT (AP) — Reagan-Ford. It was a dream ticket too good to be true.

Until the GOP National Convention awoke Wednesday night to Reagan's selection of George Bush as his vice presidential candidate, delegates were drifting into fanciful thoughts of an invincible team that would not only capture the White House, but help restore Republican rule to the Congress for the first time in a quarter century.

"It would absolutely guarantee their election," Percy exclaimed. "It would be a symbol to the world."

Ford would be demonstrating tremendous nobility by agreeing "to become Avis after being Hertz," Percy said.

Thurmond couldn't agree more. And that, he says, might be the first time he and Percy have agreed on anything. "We think it's a dream ticket," he said.

Even Sen. Jesse Helms, who's a tad to the right of Thurmond, was impressed. "It would be a very potent political ticket. But Governor Reagan would have to assert himself," the North Carolinian said.

Rep. Robert Bauman of Maryland, another arch-conservative, quipped that Ford would be an ideal choice because "he's had a lot of practice being vice president."

Former Michigan Gov. George Romney said Reagan and Ford would provide "the strongest ticket we could present. We need strong leadership, and Ford's experience in national and international affairs would be invaluable to the nation."

Sen. William Roth of Delaware said Reagan and Ford would help the GOP run strongly in the congressional races, with a shot of winning a majority of seats in the Senate, he said the duo also would "blow (independent presidential candidate John) Anderson out of the water."

At least one Republican, however, said he had "grave concerns" about a Reagan-Ford ticket. "One man has got to be boss," said New York Sen. Jacob Javits.

While they lost Ford, gaining Bush seemed ample consolation for the delegates.

The Republicans might have had "an extraordinary ticket," said Illinois Gov. James Thompson. "But we still have a ticket that is great and classy."

Reagan has Chinese worried

PEKING (AP) — China's official news agency reported the presidential nomination of Ronald Reagan today, calling him a "right-wing Republican politician" who wants to protect America's "old friends" on the Nationalist Chinese island of Taiwan.

of the tremendous difficulties in the country's economy and its position abroad. China has repeatedly expressed concern that if elected, Reagan would re-establish some kind of formal ties with Taiwan. Peking's communist leaders demanded and got a severing of U.S. diplomatic ties with the nationalist enclave as a condition for the establishment of relations with China. Reagan has denied he would try to re-establish diplomatic ties with Taiwan. Noting that his nomination was "no surprise," the Xinhua report said: "Ronald Reagan is well-known in this country as a right-wing Republican politician." American newspapers, it said, still call him a "hardliner of the right." Xinhua said Reagan advocates traditional conservative policies on domestic issues. He wants less government interference in the economy, a balanced budget, big tax cuts for companies and less social welfare, the agency said. Reagan wants a "huge" increase in defense spending, as well as "competition with the Soviet Union and arresting Soviet expansion," Xinhua said, adding, Reagan has "professed to protect U.S. overseas interests and support its 'old friends', such as the regime on Taiwan." A profile of the Republican presidential candidate, published Wednesday in the Communist Party newspaper People's Daily, said, "Reagan's image in the eyes of the American public is that of a reckless hawk. The Western allies are afraid that once he comes to power, he will deepen rifts between the United States and (the) West European allies." The article, written by Wang Fei the newspaper's correspondent in Washington, D.C., said Reagan blames the Soviet Union for world problems but opposes Carter administration sanctions against the Kremlin for its military intervention in Afghanistan.

Reagan adventurist, claim Soviets

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union's official Tass news agency, reporting today on Ronald Reagan's nomination as the Republican presidential contender, said he stands for defending big business at home and the pursuit of "an aggressive adventurist course in foreign policy."

However it added, "Any attempt to gain military superiority is doomed to failure. The Soviet Union possesses an adequate economic and military potential and will not allow any change in the existing strategic balance."

The GOP platform "also envisages a refusal to ratify the Soviet-American SALT-II treaty" limiting strategic nuclear arms, Tass said. The news agency quoted American press reports as calling the one-time movie actor's unchallenged nomination "the coronation of Reagan." It said that in his political views Reagan "represents the right-wing of the party, coming out for increasing the arms race, strengthening of the American military presence overseas and an aggressive, adventurist course in foreign policy."

"The domestic political positions of that wing reflect the interests of 'big business' and above all the U.S. military-industrial complex," Tass said. The agency said Reagan's recommendation of former CIA Director George Bush as his running mate "is to be automatically endorsed at the closing session of the convention."

Defense planks in the Republican Party's campaign platform are "aimed at achieving military superiority over the Soviet Union," Tass said.

The government-controlled Soviet press has long shown a strong dislike for Reagan, once labeling him a "doubledyed reactionary" and "an old actor looking for a new role." On Wednesday, the weekly newspaper Literary Gazette said "few people doubt" that Reagan will enjoy an advantage in the highly televised campaign because "no arguments will stand up against his photogenic presence."

George Bush's day was like roller coaster ride

DETROIT (AP) — For George Bush, July 16, 1980 — a day that ended with a telephone call and an opportunity to help take the White House from Jimmy Carter — was an erratic mix of highs and lows. The day included a smashing thunderstorm that severed power lines and left Bush groping through darkened motels to voice his support by candlelight for the policies of Ronald Reagan, the new standard-bearer.

Bush and Reagan were seated next to each other. Ethnically correct food was served. A woman band played Polish songs and Viennese waltzes. Bush spilled something on his sleeve and trousers and appeared ill at ease. Others at the table said the two chatted but not about the vice presidency. Later Bush's good mood waned temporarily. He was asked about reports that the Reagan camp was launching a new campaign to persuade Ford to become Reagan's running mate. "I've not heard any word on that," he said.

"I don't want to discuss it." Let's get out of here," he said to a staff member. Back at the convention the sweep of speculation centered on Ford's apparently rising star. Bush said later that these were "maybe based on a lot of facts." Ford, who previously had declined Reagan's invitation to be his running mate, now let it be known that he might accept if the job were made meaningful. He said he didn't want to be a figurehead. Major political figures said Bush had been pushed aside.

Lebanese fears growing of renewed civil war

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Fears of a renewal of the Lebanese civil war grew today as Yasser Arafat called for a general mobilization of his Palestine Liberation Organization to counter new Christian threats.

Arafat charged Israel and the Phalangists, Lebanon's most powerful Christian party, with a "plot to liquidate the guerrilla movement."

Syria's dominant Baath Socialist Party accused the Phalangists of partitioning Lebanon as a prelude to trying to take over the rest of the country. It indicated the 22,000 Syrian troops in Lebanon would block this.

An aide to Arafat said the mobilization would boost the Palestine Liberation Organization's fighting strength from 12,000 to 40,000 men. There was no indication when it would begin, however.

Phalange party chief Pierre Gemayel's son Bashir and his 20,000 Phalangist militiamen in three days of heavy fighting last week shattered the Tigers militia of ex-President Camille Chamoun's National Liberal Party. This gave the Gemayels undisputed control of East Beirut, the Lebanese capital's Christian half, and much of the 800 square miles of Christian hinterland to the north and northeast. The forces of ex-President Suleiman Franjeh, Lebanon's third Christian warlord, still control the northernmost part of the Christian territory.

After proclaiming a new Christian alliance with the vanquished Tigers and two other lesser Christian militias, the Phalangists on Monday vowed to "crush the dreams" of Arafat.

They accused him of "trying to establish himself as the protector of Lebanon when he should consider himself and all Palestinians only as refugees in this country." They urged all Christians to join the Phalange and "liberate our lands" from the guerrillas.

Expulsion of the Palestinians was one of the chief goals of the right-wing Christian parties in the 1975-76 civil war between them and the left-wing Lebanese Moslems and their Palestinian allies. The Syrian army intervened in 1976 to prevent a leftist victory, and Syria still has 22,000 troops in the country to enforce the armistice. But Lebanon in fact is a divided country, with a powerless government in Beirut, the Christians controlling the eastern half of the capital and the northern half of the country, and the Moslems and Palestinians controlling the rest except for a small strip along the Israeli border held by a Christian militia supplied by Israel.

Arafat, speaking at a guerrilla training base in Syria, charged that the Phalangist attack on Chamoun's forces last week was "the first part of an Israeli Defense Ministry plan to deliver the final blow to us."

He likened Bashir Gemayel to Maj. Saad Haddad, the Christian militia commander on the Israeli border, and said: "Both Gemayel and Haddad are Israeli tools to liquidate us. We have fought Israel for years and certainly we are capable of handling some 20,000 isolationist traitors in Lebanon."

Al Baath, the newspaper of Syria's ruling party, charged the Phalangists with setting up a "breakaway entity" to be used as a "base to extend fascist hegemony to the rest of Lebanon."

"Syria will not stand idly by in the face of attempts to revive partition plans and bring Lebanon under Zionist domination," the paper said.

Zenko Suzuki elected new prime minister of Japan

TOKYO (AP) — Zenko Suzuki was elected Japan's 15th post World War II prime minister today and immediately set about forming a cabinet from opposing factions in the ruling Liberal Democratic Party.

Suzuki, backed by the conservative LDP's strong majorities in both houses of the Japanese Parliament, the Diet, won easily — with 291 of 509 votes cast in the all-important Lower House.

The Upper House, or House of Councillors, was certain to ratify the decision later in the day, when Suzuki's choices for cabinet posts were also expected to be announced.

A 14-term member of the Lower House and a close aide to Masayoshi Ohira, the late prime minister who died of a heart attack last month, Suzuki was assured the post on Tuesday when the LDP voted unanimously to make him party president.

The ruling conservatives, who have governed the nation for the past 30 years, swept to their biggest election victory in almost a decade on June 22, ten days after Ohira died. The LDP majority in the more important Lower House is now 287 to 224 for the opposition parties.

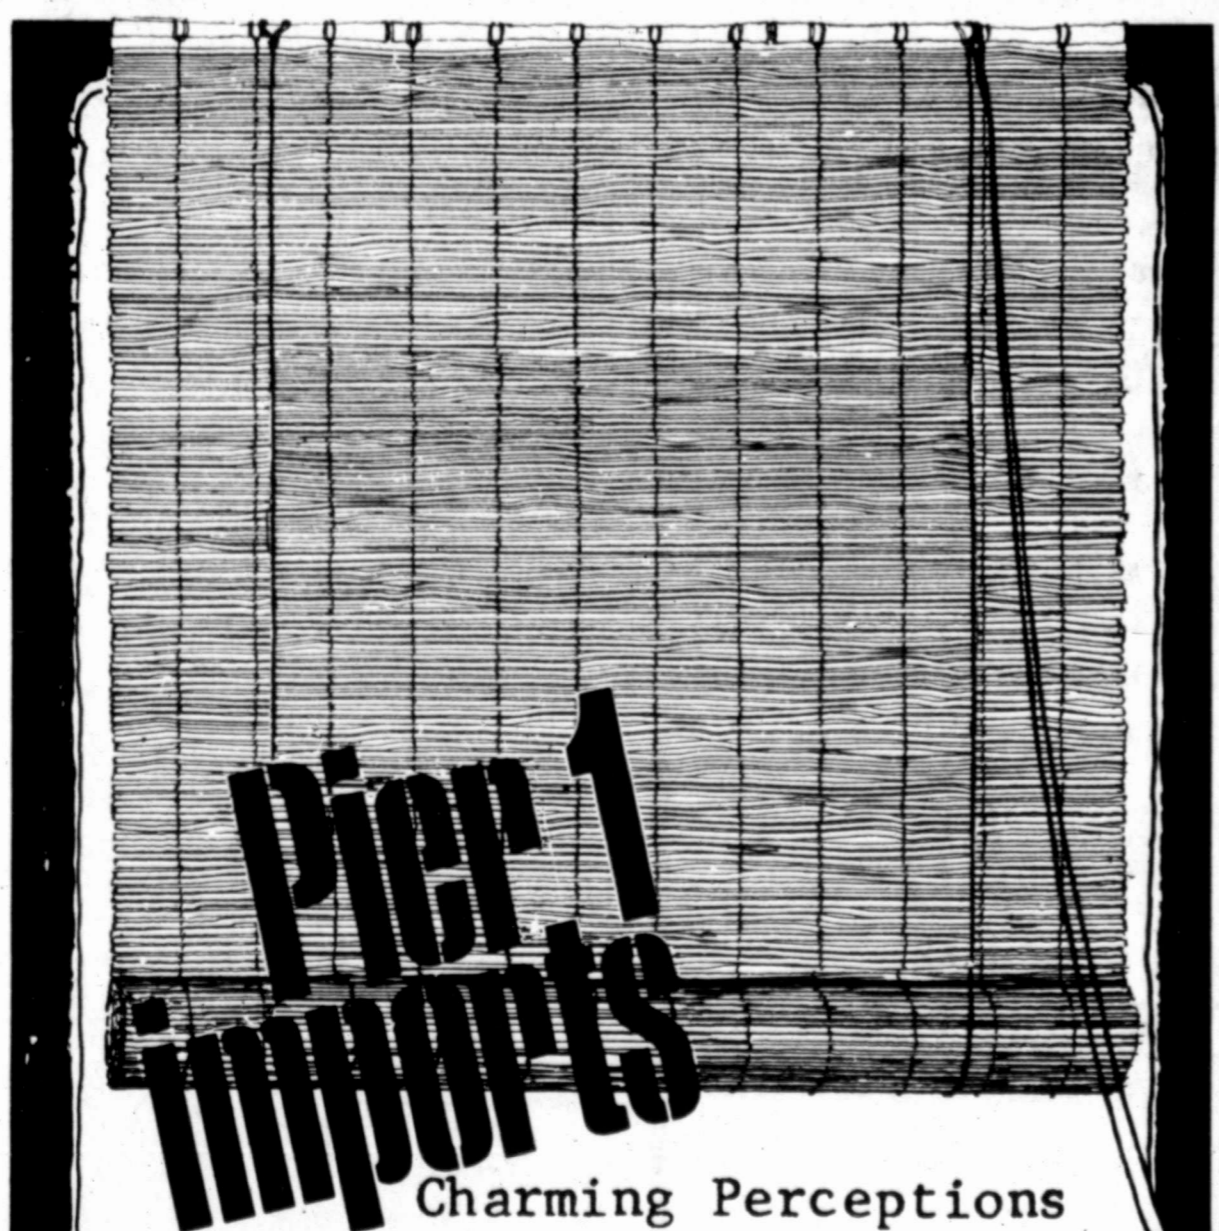

Suzuki bolted ahead as a compromise candidate for party leader after taking over the faction formerly headed by Ohira. As chairman of the party executive council under Ohira, Suzuki was known for his skills in mediating party disputes but has held few major policy-making posts.

The new prime minister is expected to adhere to Ohira's policy of gradually increasing defense spending to counter the growing Soviet military presence in the area.

He is expected to maintain his party's pro-business stance with close economic, political and military ties to the United States.

Much of how Suzuki proposes to manage the Japanese economy remains unclear, but he is believed to follow the basic direction laid out by Ohira and trim spending and bring the deficit-ridden government budget into balance.

Bamboo slat blinds connote "fresh", "cool" and "casual". Their charm comes in part from the patterns of light and shadow they create.

But they embody more, a yin-yang of inside, outside—a sense of mystery from objects partially unseen—a sense of space beyond the field of vision. Perceptions not lost on the ancient Chinese.

Clues to the origins of bamboo blinds exists in 2,000-year old Chinese "books", writings on bamboo slats strung remarkably like our blinds. Perhaps a calligrapher discovered the modern use unfurling a scroll before the morning sun. It's a perception as charming today as during the Chou Dynasty.

The journey: From the vast bamboo thickets of Taipei, craftsmen harvest, split and string the natural blinds. Laded on steamers out of Keelung, they make the passage west to Long Beach. Clearing customs, they move by rail to Pier 1.

U.S. spy center reported in England

LONDON (AP) — The leftist weekly New Statesman claimed today that the U.S. National Security Agency is running a massive "big ear" spying operation on government, corporation and individual telephone and telex lines throughout Europe from a secret telecommunications center in northern England.

There was no immediate comment from U.S. officials, but both the British Defense Ministry and the Post Office denied the claim, saying the facility was a "relay communications center for United States forces in Europe, its main purpose being rapid and secure communications."

Journalists Duncan Campbell and Linda Melvern named the center as the closely guarded, 562-acre Menwith Hill base in remote Moorland in Yorkshire County eight miles west of the spa town of Harrogate and some 170 miles north of London.

They said the center, run in close partnership with the British Post Office, is the largest and most secret civilian listening post maintained by the agency outside America. "Unless the KGB (Soviet security police) has something even bigger, (it) appears to be the biggest tapping center in the world."

Campbell, a communications expert, and Melvern wrote: "The base is so secret that even trivial details of its facilities are a secret from the United States Congress."

The two writers said that more than 800 employees at the center work round the clock "sifting the communications of private citizens, corporations and governments for information of political or economic value to the U.S. intelligence community..."

"From its heavily guarded operations room a special high capacity cable runs underground to the Post Office microwave tower at Hunters Stones five miles away; this provides an umbilical link into the international telephone and telex system running through Britain. A direct tap which is placed on lines to France and elsewhere in Europe has been in operation for more than 15 years."

Campbell and Melvern said the operation plays "a much bigger role" in a "massive exercise in spying on civil and commercial communications."

Among unnamed sources they quoted were:

—An ex-NSA analyst who said he had seen a document giving the base authority for "tapping the telephone lines to Europe;"

—A high ranking intelligence consultant still working for the U.S. intelligence community who "told us that he was aware of Menwith Hill's elaborate telephone and telex tapping facilities;"

—A former British military officer who had visited the center, which he said housed "hundreds of millions of dollars worth of computer, communications and satellite tracking equipment."

Campbell's earlier allegations in the New Statesman that Britain is running its own widespread internal eavesdropping operation embarrassed the government last February.

Campbell, 27, reported at that time that the British secret service and police based in London office buildings use a phone tapping and bugging operation codenamed "Tinkerbell" to spy on embassies, even friendly ones like the United States, and "thousands" of diplomats, lawmakers, union leaders and strike organizers.

He said his sources included published material and "people on the inside."

The government denied charges that eavesdropping has grown so extensive in Britain that it is beyond government control and a threat to civil liberties. But shortly afterwards it appointed a senior judge to act as watchdog on telephone tapping.

Income of Americans increasing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The income of Americans rose $8 billion, or 0.4 percent in June, more than the total increase for the previous three months, the government said today.

The Commerce Department reported that personal income — which includes wages, salaries, rental income, dividends and interest, minus Social Security payments — rose to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $2,086 trillion.

At the same time, the department revised its May figure to an annual rate of $2,078 trillion, a 0.3 percent increase over April. Originally, Commerce estimated only a 0.1 percent rise.

The department also reported today that Americans in June began to spend more of their income, while saving less — a reversal from the trend of recent months as the nation was increasingly enveloped by recession.

People's spending in June rose 1 percent, after falling 0.7 percent and 0.2 percent respectively in April and May, the department said. Spending last month stood at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $1.68 trillion, compared with $1.64 trillion the month before.

Meanwhile, personal savings fell from a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $89.1 billion in May to a $78.2 billion pace in June, a 12.2 percent month-to-month drop. All the figures were not adjusted for inflation.

The Commerce Department also reported that disposable income — what's left after taxes — rose 0.3 percent in June, even though taxes increased by $2.4 billion last month.

Wages and salaries increased $0.8 billion, or about 0.1 percent, in June compared with the $0.1 billion rise in May, the department said.

However, manufacturing payrolls fell by $3.7 billion, or 1.1 percent, in June after declining $4.7 billion the month before — reflecting growing unemployment in auto and related industries, the department said.

Farm income declined by $0.5 billion, or 2.3 percent, last month, compared with a $1 billion, or 4.3 billion, falloff in May.

Rental income was up $0.4 billion last month. The slight spurt in spending and the falloff in savings comes as the nation's inflation rate has eased significantly from an 18 percent annual rate earlier this year to slightly below 11 percent last month.

Moreover, many economists now say that the most precipitous economic slide is over, and the recession — while yet to bottom out — will begin to ease over coming months, with a slow recovery beginning by early next year.

Every man, woman and child in the United States last month had $7,908 of disposable income on average, the department said, compared with $7,889 the month before.

Volkswagen is recalling '75-76 Rabbits, Sciroccos

DETROIT (AP) — Volkswagen of America is recalling up to 100,000 Rabbit and Scirocco models in its second attempt to get acceptable pollution levels from the cars.

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency said Wednesday that VW will ask owners of 1975 Rabbits and Sciroccos with manual transmissions and 1976 models with both manual and automatic transmissions to bring the cars to dealers for free engine adjustments.

The cars had been equipped with catalytic converters to reduce exhaust pollutants. But after the converters began breaking down or melting during normal driving, the EPA said, Volkswagen removed most of them in 1977 and adjusted engines to meet pollution standards.

Joint testing by VW and the EPA revealed that the modified cars were "more likely" to exceed the standards than the original models, the EPA said.

TV programmers facing satellite space shortage

WASHINGTON (AP) — In 1975, a little-known subsidiary of Time, Inc., named Home Box Office took the radical step of leasing space on an orbiting satellite to distribute programs to cable TV systems.

But in five short years, such television programmers have suddenly found they can no longer buy space on the satellite of their choice.

"It's a temporary situation that will probably last another two or three years," says a top regulator at the Federal Communications Commission who asks not to be named. "Everybody got caught by surprise."

The story of how video program companies got locked out of space, and of a growing battle over ways to overcome the problem, is tied to the cable TV industry.

Few people were willing to predict in the early 1970's that cable programmers would become one of the biggest users of satellites.

With a satellite, a programmer could offer his service to any cable system in the country that put up a receiving dish and the cable system could finally offer something more than network television.

Even though a receiving dish can only be aimed at one satellite at a time, the programmers solved that problem by using just one satellite.

Cable's popularity began to soar and cable firms are now offering cities high-capacity systems with up to 125 channels. Programming companies are cropping up everywhere to fill that video void.

There is a cloud, however, over this picture of prosperity. The primary "cable bird," the RCA American Communication Co.'s SATCOM 1 satellite, is full.

Once the nation's biggest cities grant cable franchises, high-capacity cable systems will proliferate and it probably won't be uncommon for them to have two, or even three, antennas.

For now, however, more than half of the existing cable systems in this country offer only 12 channels — which they filled long ago — and the operator isn't worried about buying a second antenna.

RCA's grip over the cable satellite business has thus become tight. But its position is being challenged.

Two companies which have leased space on different satellites are trying to attract enough cable system customers to establish a second network. The battle has even featured offers of free receiving stations.

"We're going to see a real shakeout this fall because most observers wonder if both can make it now," says Jonathan Miller, who edits the Satellite Week newsletter.

The protagonists are: Satellite Syndicated Systems (SSS), the firm that distributes the signal of Ted Turner's WTBS-TV in Atlanta and the Satellite Program Network; and Satellite Communications Network (SCN), which is jumping into the programming business with the Las Vegas Entertainment Network and Cinemerica network for older viewers.

SSS wants the cable community to use one of Western Union's WESTAR satellites, on which it has leased space.

SCN is one of several programmers temporarily using a COMSTAR satellite controlled by the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., thanks to the mysterious disappearance of RCA's newest satellite shortly after launch in December. SCN expects to move to one of RCA's satellites after a replacement is launched next year.

U.S. spy center reported in England

LONDON (AP) — The leftist weekly New Statesman claimed today that the U.S. National Security Agency is running a massive "big ear" spying operation on government, corporation and individual telephone and telex lines throughout Europe from a secret telecommunications center in northern England. There was no immediate comment from U.S. officials, but both the British Defense Ministry and the Post Office denied the claim, saying the facility was a "relay communications center for United States forces in Europe, its main purpose being rapid and secure communications." Journalists Duncan Campbell and Linda Melvern named the center as the closely guarded, 562-acre Menwith Hill base in remote moorland in Yorkshire County eight miles west of the spa town of Harrogate and some 170 miles north of London. They said the center, run in close partnership with the British Post Office, is the largest and most secret civilian listening post maintained by the agency outside America. "Unless the KGB (Soviet security police) has something even bigger, (it) appears to be the biggest tapping center in the world."

Income of Americans increasing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The income of Americans rose $8 billion, or 0.4 percent in June, more than the total increase for the previous three months, the government said today. The Commerce Department reported that personal income — which includes wages, salaries, rental income, dividends and interest, minus Social Security payments — rose to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $2,086 trillion. At the same time, the department revised its May figure to an annual rate of $2,078 trillion, a 0.3 percent increase over April. Originally, Commerce estimated only a 0.1 percent rise. The department also reported today that Americans in June began to spend more of their income, while saving less — a reversal from the trend of recent months as the nation was increasingly enveloped by recession. People's spending in June rose 1 percent, after falling 0.7 percent and 0.2 percent respectively in April and May, the department said. Spending last month stood at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $1.68 trillion, compared with $1.64 trillion the month before. Meanwhile, personal savings fell from a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $89.1 billion in May to a $78.2 billion pace in June, a 12.2 percent month-to-month drop. All the figures were not adjusted for inflation. The Commerce Department also reported that disposable income — what's left after taxes — rose 0.3 percent in June, even though taxes increased by $2.4 billion last month. Wages and salaries increased $0.8 billion, or about 0.1 percent, in June compared with the $0.1 billion rise in May, the department said. However, manufacturing payrolls fell by $3.7 billion, or 1.1 percent, in June after declining $4.7 billion the month before — reflecting growing unemployment in auto and related industries, the department said. Farm income declined by $0.5 billion, or 2.3 percent, last month, compared with a $1 billion, or 4.3 billion, falloff in May. Rental income was up $0.4 billion last month. The slight spur in spending and the falloff in savings comes as the nation's inflation rate has eased significantly from an 18 percent annual rate earlier this year to slightly below 11 percent last month. Moreover, many economists now say that the running through Britain. A direct tap which is placed on lines to France and elsewhere in Europe has been in operation for more than 15 years. Campbell and Melvern said the operation plays "a much bigger role" in a "massive exercise in spying on civil and commercial communications." Among unnamed sources they quoted were: —An ex-NSA analyst who said he had seen a document giving the base authority for "tapping the telephone lines to Europe;" —A high ranking intelligence consultant still working for the U.S. intelligence community who "told us that he was aware of Menwith Hill's elaborate telephone and telex tapping facilities;" —A former British military officer who had visited the center, which he said housed "hundreds of millions of dollars worth of computer, communications and satellite tracking equipment." Campbell's earlier allegations in the New Statesman that Britain is running its own widespread internal eavesdropping operation embarrassed the government last February. Campbell, 27, reported at that time that the British secret service and police based in London office buildings use a phone tapping and bugging operation codenamed "Tinkerbell" to spy on embassies, even friendly ones like the United States, and "thousands" of diplomats, lawmakers, union leaders and strike organizers. He said his sources included published material and "people on the inside." The government denied charges that eavesdropping has grown so extensive in Britain that it is beyond government control and a threat to civil liberties. But shortly afterwards it appointed a senior judge to act as watchdog on telephone tapping.

Volkswagen is recalling '75-76 Rabbits, Sciroccos

DETROIT (AP) — Volkswagen of America is recalling up to 100,000 Rabbit and Scirocco models in its second attempt to get acceptable pollution levels from the cars. The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency said Wednesday that VW will ask owners of 1975 Rabbits and Sciroccos with manual transmissions and 1976 models with both manual and automatic transmissions to bring the cars to dealers for free engine adjustments. The cars had been equipped with catalytic converters to reduce exhaust pollutants. But after the converters began breaking down or melting during normal driving, the EPA said, Volkswagen removed most of them in 1977 and adjusted engines to meet pollution standards. Joint testing by VW and the EPA revealed that the modified cars were "more likely" to exceed the standards than the original models, the EPA said.

TV programmers facing satellite space shortage

WASHINGTON (AP) — In 1975, a little-known subsidiary of Time, Inc., named Home Box Office took the radical step of leasing space on an orbiting satellite to distribute programs to cable TV systems. But in five short years, such television programmers have suddenly found they can no longer buy space on the satellite of their choice. "It's a temporary situation that will probably last another two or three years," says a top regulator at the Federal Communications Commission who asks not to be named. "Everybody got caught by surprise." The story of how video program companies got locked out of space, and of a growing battle over ways to overcome the problem, is tied to the cable TV industry. Few people were willing to predict in the early 1970's that cable programmers would become one of the biggest users of satellites. With a satellite, a programmer could offer his service to any cable system in the country that put up a receiving dish and the cable system could finally offer something more than network television. Even though a receiving dish can only be aimed at one satellite at a time, the programmers solved that problem by using just one satellite. Cable's popularity began to soar and cable firms are now offering cities high-capacity systems with up to 125 channels. Programming companies are cropping up everywhere to fill that video void. There is a cloud, however, over this picture of prosperity. The primary "cable bird," the RCA American Communication Co.'s SATCOM 1 satellite, is full. Once the nation's biggest cities grant cable franchises, high-capacity cable systems will proliferate and it probably won't be uncommon for them to have two, or even three, antennas. For now, however, more than half of the existing cable systems in this country offer only 12 channels — which they filled long ago — and the operator isn't worried about buying a second antenna. RCA's grip over the cable satellite business has thus become tight. But its position is being challenged. Two companies which have leased space on different satellites are trying to attract enough cable system customers to establish a second network. The battle has even featured offers of free receiving stations. "We're going to see a real shakeout this fall because most observers wonder if both can make it now," says Jonathan Miller, who edits the Satellite Week newsletter. The protagonists are: Satellite Syndicated Systems (SSS), the firm that distributes the signal of Ted Turner's WTBS-TV in Atlanta and the Satellite Program Network; and Satellite Communications Network (SCN), which is jumping into the programming business with the Las Vegas Entertainment Network and Cinemercia network for older viewers. SSS wants the cable community to use one of Western Union's WESTAR satellites, on which it has leased space. SCN is one of several programmers temporarily using a COMSTAR satellite controlled by the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., thanks to the mysterious disappearance of RCA's newest satellite shortly after launch in December. SCN expects to move to one of RCA's satellites after a replacement is launched next year.

Our Used Cars Are Sold With As Much Pride As Our New Cars.

Many people are not aware that on many occasions we spend good money and time on the used cars we sell.

Those trade-in cars that do not meet our standards never appear in our used car department. The newer model trade-ins in fine condition, get a quick check, a lick and some polish... while the good older ones do get fixed up, if we feel they are worth the money.

That's why we offer every used car with pride.

The KZ1000 is an unquestionably fast motorcycle. With its legendary 1015cc engine, the KZ1000 has been Superbike Production Champion two years running.
It comes with an automatic cam-chain tensioner, transistorized ignition and three all-weather drilled disc brakes.
The handling is superb and so's the comfort. It's a winner on the track and a winner on the street.

Dick Motta

For Dallas Mavs, it was only a Motta of time

Former Bullets bench boss will direct newest NBA team

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Mavericks today officially named Dick Motta as coach and Bobby Weiss as his assistant for the National Basketball Association's expansion team.

The announcement came after weeks of speculation that Motta, former coach of the Washington Bullets, or Weiss, an assistant at San Diego, would be the head coach. It was also conceded that whoever did not get the head job would be the assistant.

Mavericks General Manager Norm Sonju and Rick Sund, director of player personnel, worked Wednesday to iron out last-minute contract details.

"This is the only time I've campaign to seek a job," Motta told the news conference. "I wanted to work with an expansion team. I look forward to working with people more eager than the normal NBA player.

"The Mavs will be a hustlin', bustlin' team."

Weiss said, "I've been thinking about this for two weeks and I decided I want to be here. I want to be part of trying to build a team."

Motta said that at Washington "I was a caretaker of an established team. I was not having fun and any influence on people. I was looking for young vibrant players. I want to build on something close to the old college atmosphere."

"We are grateful to have what we believe to be one of the strongest coaching tandems in the league to coach our expansion model," Sonju said Wednesday.

"Dick and Bob have 25 years of experience between them. ... If you look at the comparative weaknesses and strengths of the two men, they complement each other well. It's like having our cake and eating it too," Sonju said.

The decisions apparently were made following a round of interviews Sunday. Sonju met Tuesday night with principal owner Donald Carter, vice president Doug Adkins and Sund.

Motta, 48, is a 12-year veteran of NBA coaching, eight with the Chicago Bulls and four with the Bullets.

Motta, expected to be worth about $150,000 a year for three years, is one of the more controversial coaches in the league.

He's known for berating referees, his own players, kicking over 24-second shot clocks and drawing technical fouls.

He left the Washington team this year after he saw it fall apart amid player dissension and his own unhappines last year. Prior to that he took the Chicago Bulls and turned it from a perennial loser into an outfit that would win 50 games in a row four seasons in a row.

"I would say he has more critics than any of our other candidates," Sonju said last week. "This has been very tough. I've had some impassioned pleas against Dick Motta, some people that really more than dislike him. If I hire him, there is going to be some bitterness among some of my closest friends in pro basketball."

Weiss, 38, was an assistant coach last season for the San Diego Clippers.

Pole Fibak beats Fritz

By The Associated Press

TENNIS — Second-seeded Wojtek Fibak of Poland rolled over France's Bernard Fritz 6-4, 6-2 in the second round of the 75,000 dollar Weissenhof Tennis Tournament.

In other matches, Zeljko Franulovic of Yugoslavia fended off West Germany's Wolfgang Popp 6-3, 7-5; Jairo Velasco defeated West Germany's Andreas Maurer 5-7, 6-4, 6-0; and New Zealand's Chris Lewis overcame West Germany's Klaus Eberhard 7-6, 6-4.

Peter McNamara of Australia defeated Mats Wilander of Sweden 7-5, 6-3 in the men's singles second round of the Swedish Open Tennis Tournament.

In other second-round matches, Paul Kronk of Australia beat Jean Francois Caujolle of France 7-6, 2-6, 6-1; Birger Andersson of Sweden defeated Stefan Simonsson of Sweden 3-6, 6-0, 6-4; and Balazs Taroczy of Hungary topped Hans Kary of Austria, 6-0, 6-2.

Joanne Russell stunned No.3 seed Virginia Wade 2-6, 7-5, 6-3, ousting Britain's top-ranked player from the $100,000 Player's Challenge women's pro tennis tournament.

In other matches, eighth-seeded Anne Smith beat Barbara Potter 5-7, 6-4, 6-4; Leslie Allen was a 6-3, 6-4 winner over Marcella Mesker of The Netherlands; sixth-seeded Laura Dupont beat Ana Maria Fernandez 4-6, 6-0, 6-4; and Pam Shriver defeated Yvonne Vermaak 6-4, 6-3.

SWIMMING — Peter Szmidi of Edmonton, Alberta, cracked the world record in the men's 400-meter freestyle with a time of 3 minutes, 50.49 seconds at the Canadian swimming championships.

He surpassed the previous mark of 3:51.20 set by Vladimir Salnikov of the Soviet Union earlier this year.

TRACK AND FIELD — Canada's Diane Konihowski won the pentathlon with 4,670 points at the Liberty Bell Track and Field Classic, one of a series of meets referred to as alternate Olympics for countries boycotting the Olympic Games in Moscow.

Lee Pailles, a U.S. Olympian representing Florida's Athletic Attic Club, led a field of nine after two events in the decathlon.

In second place was Guido Kratschmer of West Germany, who took second place in the 100-meters and was third in the long jump.

Mets handle M-Cubs easily

JACKSON, Miss. — The powerful Jackson Mets wasted little time Wednesday night, striking for four first inning runs and then cruising to an 8-3 Texas League victory over the Midland Cubs.

With the defeat, the Cubs are still able to maintain a slim one game lead in the Western Division while Jackson, with its victory, opened up some room on second place Tulsa.

The victim of Jackson's early onslaught was Randy Clark, who gave the Mets six runs in only 1½-innings of work. Clark was tagged with his fifth loss in 12 decisions despite relief help from five other Cubs hurlers.

Meanwhile, Tom Thurburg notched his fourth victory with a relief stint for starter Bob Lowry, who was labeled for all three Midland runs.

Jesse Arosco notched his first save of the season for the Mets by working the last three frames. The Mets pitchers combined to whiff 12 Midland hitters.

Still, the Cubs banged out nine hits, but left 11 men standing on the bases.

Midland picked up one run in the second and then sent Lowry to the showers in the fourth when three hits and a wild pitch scored a pair. Scott Fletcher, Gary Krug, Joe Hicks and Randy LaVigne collected a pair of safeties each for the Bruins with LaVigne and catcher Mike Shepton producing one run-batted-in each.

Keno Perry, who knocked in four runs on three hits, rapped in a pair with a single in the first and then Randy Rogers delivered a two-run double.

The two clubs meet again tonight.

Daryl Sconiers' home run in the top of the 13th inning Wednesday night powered the El Paso Diablos to a 13-11 Texas League baseball victory over the Shreveport Captains.

In other Texas League action, Arkansas routed San Antonio, 19-3, Amarillo edged Tulsa, 4-3, and Jackson beat Midland, 8-3.

The five-hour El Paso-Shreveport slugfest went into extra innings tied 10-10. Both teams scored a run in the 12th.

Sconiers hit his 12th homer of the season in the 13th and the Diablos added an insurance run later in the inning.

John Reaves likens self to Biblical King David

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Minnesota Vikings quarterback John Reaves likens himself to the Biblical King David who "was knocked down seven times in his life, but he always came back up."

"And when he died, he was up," Reaves said.

Reaves is the former Cincinnati Bengals quarterback who eluded Tampa authorities last week and whose friends say is battling problems with alcohol and drugs. Reaves finally submitted himself for mental tests and passed.

Judge Benjamin Sidwell revoked a court order to commit Reaves but hasn't closed the case. Reaves has agreed to continue consultation with Dr. Gary Arthur, a psychiatrist who informed the court last week that he felt the 30-year-old Vikings reserve quarterback was competent.

Reaves told the Cincinnati Enquirer in a copyrighted story that he met with Vikings General Manager Mike Lynn Tuesday night and asked for a "fair shot" at Tommy Kramer's starting quarterback job. If not, he said he wants to be traded.

"And if that doesn't work out, it's not the end of the world for John Reaves," he said. "I'm well known in the community here. Despite all the bad publicity I've received, I still have a lot of friends witnessed by the phone calls, letters and telegrams I've received in the last 10 days."

Reaves said he's studying for a broker's and contractor's license. He said he will become a realtor and land developer when he can't play football anymore.

"I'll have to admit, this past off-season I've had a 'mad-on,'" Reaves said.

The first-round draft choice of the Philadelphia Eagles in 1972 has served eight NFL seasons as a reserve player, and he says he's angry about his career.

Reaves said his emotional skid began "with Paul Brown using me and Bill Johnson as scapegoats in 1978, then my getting waived and going to Minnesota where Bud Grant and Mike Lynn promised me a shot at the first-string job, and I didn't even play one down."

"When I didn't get a chance to play, I was angry. When we came down to play Tampa Bay last season and I didn't play one down, I was very angry about that," he said.

The mounting frustration and a marital separation led to more frequent drinking. After two driving while intoxicated charges, Reaves said he is attending Alcoholics Anonymous meetings.

Allison Meet do or dive tankers' test

By RICHARD VINCENT Sports Writer

The thirty-third edition of the Allison West Texas Invitational Swimming Meet begins Friday and if there's any similarity between this year's version and last year's star-spangled event, it'll probably be purely coincidental.

The primary reason, according to meet officials, is most top-notch American swimmers worth their weight in chlorine will be resting while the 157 entries in this year's Allison meet are working.

For this, you can thank the Russians, whose invasion of Afghanistan and subsequent refusal to pull out of that country resulted in the United States' decision not to participate in the 1980 Moscow Olympics.

In turn, the American swimming establishment scrapped its Olympic trials, opting instead for a national meet scheduled for two days after the Moscow finals.

So some of the usual national and international flavor of this meet will be lost because of the sour taste of the Olympic boycott.

It all adds up, particularly when counting this year's entries, which are roughly half of last year's number.

Still, John Jordan, City of Midland Swim Team coach, views the situation optimistically. "It's not going to be as strong a meet nationally," he says, "but we should have better local interest."

And among the most interesting of local swimmers could be Andrew Jordan, a dynamo who's moving up to the 13-14 age bracket after winning two events last year in 11-12.

But young Jordan is just one of several Tall City tankers being tabbed for possible titles.

There are Michaela Hasek and Laura Morse, who'll both battle in the girls' 10-under bracket, and Suzi Simpson, who'll brave the girls' 13-14 division. And don't forget Andrea Freeman, Lori Thompson and Carrie Mayes who'll be competing in the jam-packed girls' senior division.

Also worthy of area attention will be the performances of Gay Gathercole, who'll be in girls' 11-12, and Ben Gathercole, who'll be in boys' 13-14. They are from Australia and are the children of Terry Gathercole, a former COM coach.

Two other standouts expected to compete are Perry Corke, of the Space City Aquatics Club (Houston), and Steve Plamondon of Albuquerque.

Although last year's team champion, the El Monte, Calif., Aquatics Club, will not return to defend its crown, the Hurricanes of Miami, Fla., will be here to try to improve a second place finish of a year ago.

Other teams expected to compete are COM, Albuquerque, Las Cruces, El Paso, Oklahoma City and Houston DADS Club, the 1978 team champion.

The meet runs through Sunday at Alamo Park pool, with trials scheduled for 9 a.m. each day and finals set for 6 p.m.

The event is sponsored by Mr. and Mrs. Fred Allison in cooperation with COM, Midland Chamber of Commerce, Midland Jaycees and Jayceettes and Midland Parks and Recreation Department.

Bob Walks over Astros for sixth straight mound victory

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

Several times during the game, Bob Walk felt like a rookie pitcher should — awkward. Unfortunately for the Houston Astros, Walk doesn't run scared.

Walk ran his victory streak to six without a loss Wednesday night, hurling a three-hitter that propelled the Philadelphia Phillies to a 4-2 victory over the Astros.

He yielded only a pair of infield singles to Jose Cruz and a two-run homer to Art Howe in the fourth inning.

"The first two batters in that inning, everything was really smooth, but then all of a sudden I felt awkward," the 23-year-old right-hander said. "That happened to me a couple of times tonight, but now I'm able to ignore those things."

Walk said Howe's homer, which was preceded by a walk to Cesar Cedeno, would have broken his concentration earlier in the season, "but I've learned to just get the ball and go after the next batter."

Phils Manager Dallas Green said he has watched, and helped, the young pitcher mature since he entered the rotation on May 26.

"When he first came up, he thought nobody was supposed to hit him," Green said. "He lived up to his name. He'd walk around the mound and shake his head. He wore me out, so after a couple of games, we talked things over, and he's improved ever since."

Walk struck out three and walked four, hurling his second complete game of the season (he tossed a five-hitter to beat St. Louis 8-1 on July 3).

"Most rookies have a fastball," Astros outfielder Terry Puhl said, "but this guy has the fastball and three other good pitches. And, apparently, he had his good stuff tonight."

In other National League games,

Montreal downed Cincinnati 6-4, Pittsburgh defeated San Francisco 3-1, Chicago whipped Los Angeles 4-1, Atlanta beat New York 5-2 and St. Louis blanked San Diego 3-0.

The Phils got to Houston right-hander Ken Forsch, 8-9, for two runs in the first. Pete Rose doubled and scored on a single by Bake McBride. McBride went to third on a single by Keith Moreland and scored on Garry Maddox's ground ball.

Philadelphia scored once more in the fourth and again in the sixth, both times with the help of Houston errors.

Manny Trillo led off the fourth with a single, stole second and went to third on a throwing error by catcher Alan Ashby. He scored on a single by Lonnie Smith.

In the sixth, Trillo again singled. This time, he made it all the way to third on a throwing error by shortstop Craig Reynolds and scored on a sacrifice fly by John Vukovich.

the Pirates their seventh victory in nine games.

Bert Blyleven and Grant Jackson combined to quiet the Giants on eight hits. Jackson tossed two innings of scoreless relief to notch his fifth save.

Rick Reuschel tossed a seven-hitter, striking out eight for his third complete game of the season, as the Cubs stifled Los Angeles.

The Cubs broke a 1-1 tie with two runs in the sixth. Los Angeles shortstop Bill Russell committed a fielding and throwing error on the same play to allow one run to score. Another run came across on a fielder's choice grounder by Tim Lincecum.

Baltimore's Stone continues to terrorize batsmen

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

"For 75 one ... two ... but where's that of third strike?"

Baltimore's Steve Stone finally found it about a year ago, and he's been almost unbeatable since then.

When the Orioles ripped Milwaukee 10-4 Wednesday night it was Stone's 12th straight victory, his 14th in 17 decisions this year and his 19th in the last 22, dating back to last July 22.

Almost any pitcher would be comfortable with the kind of support Baltimore gave Stone. Asked how long his winning streak might last, he replied: "I think it could go on all year, especially if the team gets 10 runs a game."

Rick Dempsey drove in five runs for the Orioles with a two-run double in a three-run second inning and a three-run homer in the sixth, all off Mike Caldwell. They added two runs in the seventh on Gary Roenicke's third homer of the year and Doug DeCinces hit a two-run double in the ninth.

"We're just trying to catch the Yankees and I'm just thinking about going out and winning No. 15," Stone said.

Blue Jays 5, Mariners 0
"This was by far the best game I've ever had, the best game I've ever pitched, no doubt about it," Dave Steib said after baffling Seattle with a three-hitter. He faced just 28 batters, one over the minimum, and the Blue Jays supported him with four double plays.

John Mayberry ripped a pair of home runs, a two-run shot in the third inning and a bases-empty shot in the eighth, and Roy Howell and Ernie Whitliff also hit solo homers. Mayberry had 17 homers this year, five of them in the Kingdom.

for 29 — in seven games.

He had a triple, double, two singles and a run batted in, and Darrell Porter drove in two runs with a homer and a double in the Royals' victory over the Red Sox.

"When I was hurt in early June, I spent eight days in the hospital," Brett said. "I spent a lot of time thinking about hitting and fundamentals. It's paid off."

Rangers 11, White Sox 3
Texas, not satisfied with scoring five runs in the fourth inning off Richard Dotson, three of them on Dave Robert's homer, scored five more off Ken Kravec and Lamarr Hoyt in the fifth to bury the White Sox.

Rusty Staub went 4-for-4, driving in three runs, to pace the Rangers' 15-hit assault.

That burst chased Darrell Jackson. In came John Verhoeven — and out went Bob Watson's three-run triple that capped the seven-run explosion. Tom Underwood, who had allowed 26 earned runs in his previous 252.3 innings, checked the Twins on three hits in seven innings.

Tigers 7, A's 2
Milt Wilcox limited Oakland to one hit in three innings — a two-run single by Mario Guerrero in the second inning — before pulling a hip muscle, then rookie Roger Weaver came on to complete the Tigers' three-hitter.

Detroit got everything it needed in the fifth inning, scoring five runs, three on a pinch-homer by Lance Parrish.

Indians 6, Angels 2
Wayne Garland pitched a six-hitter and Jorge Orta drove in two runs with a double and a single in Cleveland's triumph. Orta singled home Miguel Dilone to trigger a four-run fourth inning, and they hit consecutive run-scoring doubles in a two-run fifth.

After Reggie Jackson walked to lead off the fourth inning, New York rapped out six straight singles. One of them, by Bucky Dent, drove home two runs.

John Milner cracked a two-run single in the first inning and scored Pittsburgh's third run in the sixth on Bill Madlock's sacrifice fly, giving

New England extends NASL win streak to eight straight

By The Associated Press

The New England Tea Men have stretched their North American Soccer League winning streak to eight games while the Seattle Sounders' eight-game string of success is over. Tony Brown scored his sixth goal of the season at 19:18 — a 30-yard shot that found the upper right-hand corner of the net — to give the Tea Men a 1-0 triumph over the Rochester Lancers Wednesday night.

Meanwhile, Alan Green scored in the 26th minute of the second half to defeat the Washington Diplomats with a 3-2 victory over the Sounders after some first-half heroics by Johan Cruyff.

Cruyff scored a brilliant goal just six minutes into the contest after dribbling through most of the Seattle team. Three minutes later, he stole the ball and set up Tony Crescielli for an easy goal.

Elsewhere, the Philadelphia Fury beat the Cosmos 2-1, the Minnesota Kicks blanked the Houston Hurricanes 1-0, the Portland Timbers defeated the Dallas Tornado 3-2, the Chicago Sting stung the Edmonton Drillers 2-1, the San Diego Sockers socked the Atlanta Chiefs 4-0, the Tampa Bay Rowdies shut out the San Jose Earthquakes 3-0 and the Vancouver Whitecaps edged the Los Angeles Aztecs 2-1.

Fury 2, Cosmos 1
Fran O'Brien scored two first-half goals just under six minutes apart as Philadelphia beat the Cosmos for the first time ever.

Kicks 1, Hurricane 0
Chico Hamilton's goal late in the first half stood as Minnesota goalie Tino Lettieri posted his second shut-out of the season. Hamilton's goal came after teammate Willie Morgan took a free kick and tapped a short pass through teammate Mark Moran's legs to Hamilton.

Timbers 3, Tornado 2
Goalkeeper Mick Poole led Portland to victory in his first start since being benched June 4. Poole made four difficult saves in regulation time, another in overtime and stopped all three Dallas shots in the tie-breaker to snap the Tornado's six-game winning streak. John Bain, Dale Mitchell and Gary Collier made their shots for Portland in the shootout.

Sting 2, Drillers 1
Karl-Heinz Granitz scored his 14th goal of the season at 87:42 to give Chicago the victory. Ingo Petr of the Sting opened the scoring at 18:19 with a booming shot from about 50 yards.

Sockers 4, Chiefs 0
Manu Sanon of Haiti, playing in his first NASL match, scored two goals for San Diego, which played its first game under Coach Ron Newman. Sanon scored at 25:59 on a header and again at 66:34.

Rowdies 3, Earthquakes 0
Oscar Fabiana scored his 10th goal of the season as Tampa Bay moved into first place in the American Conference Eastern Division. San Jose midfielder George Best was ejected in the second half for using abusive language to the officials.

KENNY REDIN'S Fin & Feather

The Texas February of 1978 was unusually cold. Daytime temperatures averaged in the low 30s. Yet, during that frigid period, history was made in the world of catfish angling. Probably the largest stringers of catfish ever were caught on rod and reel.

Several limit stringers of catfish averaging 15 pounds were caught — with 15 catfish on each stringer. Many weighed 18-20 pounds, with the largest a whopping 25-pounder caught by a lady angler. Even though several hundred fish in the 7-9 pound range were caught, the fish weighing ten pounds or less were culled.

The anglers who hit the jackpot that day were chicken blood fishermen, who lived in the Cedar Creek Reservoir area. They were lured by stories of catching large catfish on trotline at nearby Big Brown Lake, a power plant popularly called Lake Fairfield.

Lake Fairfield was one of the many coal-fired power plant lakes then springing up in East Texas, and covers 3,000 acres 50 miles south of Cedar Creek reservoir. Fishing was allowed only between 6 a.m. and 8 p.m.

The power plant discharges water through a canal and over a dam before spilling into the lake. The average winter temperature of this water is 70 degrees, warming the lake considerably and attracting fish. Unfortunately, these areas are "off limits" to anglers.

Charlie Hines, an expert blood fisherman, was the first of the anglers from the Cedar Creek area to check out the stories of huge catfish being caught on trotlines. Charlie was looking for some action to break the monotony of the severe winter months and decided to set a few trotlines in Lake Fairfield.

He baited the lines with live bream, then returned home to wait out the night. When he returned the next day, he realized the icy cold wind was too high to run the trotlines. While biding his time, he decided to scout the lake for some fish activity. Being part Indian, Charlie had that sixth sense about hunting and fishing that has been attributed to his kindred ancestors. He noticed a flurry of activity in the water and moved closer. To his excitement, he discovered some very large catfish rolling in the warm water discharge.

"No Trespassing" signs were in clear view, however, a path along the bank leading to this area indicated other fishermen had been in the area.

Charlie abandoned his boat and walked along the path for a closer look and observed some other fishermen casting into the rolling catfish. They were using minnows, shrimp and other popular catfish baits with limited success.

Charlie returned to his boat to get some chicken blood and casting equipment and began casting the blood into the rolling fish. To his amazement, he realized the waters were filled with fish and some were lunkers of huge proportions.

Charlie caught several fish in the 7-9 pound range and one which weighed 17 pounds. The others noticed Charlie's 20-pound test line snap several times and the men began to question Charlie about the bait he was using. He gave them some of the congealed chicken blood, showed them how to cast it and they began hauling in the catch.

When the wind died down, Charlie decided to run his trotlines before returning home. You could have guessed it — those lines were as naked as the day before when he set them. However, Charlie's excitement was not dulled, and he raced home to announce to his wife and friends the bonanza he had discovered.

Charlie, his wife and some fishing buddies decided to try Fairfield catfishing the following day. By 2 p.m., three anglers posted their 15 fish limits that weighed 350 pounds. The largest was an 18 1/2-pounder.

Charlie and his friends fished only a short period of time the next day before they were arrested for trespassing. The fish they caught amounted to about 20 or 30 10-pound plus monsters. The fines totaled $1,233.

Two lessons were learned. Charlie will not trespass anymore. He didn't enjoy the short-term jail sentence or the steep fine. But he also discovered one of the finest catfishing baits around these days — congealed chicken blood. He's been using this bait ever since and has been most successful on most given lakes and reservoirs.

While Charlie was cooling his heels in the pokey, a judge asked him to send some of the bait he was using. Charlie gladly agreed, thinking this might expedite his release, however, Charlie never sent the chicken blood.

But one of Charlie's fish appeared in the Fairfield News the next day, and it was later learned that the annual Sheriff's department fish fry was a great success.

Derby planned

ODESSA — Cadillac to Continentals are pre-empted in Texas' biggest Demolition Derby Saturday at 8:30 p.m. at the Odessa Speedbowl.

Last year's derby was called by backers as the largest ever with 79 cars thrown into the arena at one time. Another large field is expected this year.

The Odessa Speedbowl is located five miles east of Odessa on Highway 80. General Admission is $3 for adults and gates open at 5 p.m.

Under the established rules, no vehicle can remain stationary longer than five minutes and the derby is scheduled to continue for more than two hours before the winner of the $500 first prize is declared. Cash awards will be given to other finalists. Ladies are welcome to enter.

Drivers in the derby may maneuver forward or backward although rules prohibit deliberate head-on collisions or hitting an opponent's car in the front door on the driver's side.

Stock market rallies

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market continued its rally of the past three months with a moderate advance today.

Gainers outnumbered losers by a 2-1 margin in the mid-day rally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks rose 2.39 to 906.83 in the first two hours.

Analysts said the market continued to benefit from hopes that the economy would begin recovering soon from the recession.

In the economic news, the Commerce Department reported that personal income rose 0.4 percent in June.

Chase Manhattan Bank of New York lowered its prime lending rate from 11 1/2 to 11 1/8, matching a cut posted a few days ago by Citibank of New York.

Public Service Electric & Gas led the active list, off 1/2 at 20. A 703,400-share block traded at that price.

The NYSE's composite index gained 40 to 68.84. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 2.77 at 310.65.

Volume on the Big Board totaled 21.38 million shares at noon, up from 19.64 million at the same point Wednesday.

NEW YORK (AP) — Cotton futures No. 2 were mixed at midday dealings today.

The average price for strict low advancing 1 1/8 to 1 1/8 in spot cotton advanced 14 points to 80.25 cents a pound Wednesday for the New York Cotton Exchange.

California's 'Gates of Hell' now top geothermal facility

By DAVID EINSTEIN Associated Press Writer

THE GEYSERS, Calif. (AP) — This rugged area of Northern California was once called the "Gates of Hell," a fitting name for a spot where steam roared from the earth and filled the air with the stench of fire and brimstone.

But the name was coined a century ago, long before scientists understood — or knew how to use — geothermal power.

Today, The Geysers ranks as the largest geothermal installation in the world, producing power that is relatively inexpensive and environmentally safe.

Steam still jets into the air, but now it is harnessed in power plants that produce about 7 percent of the electric capacity of Pacific Gas & Electric, Northern California's major utility.

A complex and costly system of mufflers and deodorizers stifles the roar of the steam and its stink of hydrogen sulfide.

"It's too much of a resource and has too much of a potential that you can't afford not to be in there," said Roger Wall, staff geologist for Amnolil, the Houston-based energy arm of R.J. Reynolds.

Amnolil supplies steam for Unit 13, which PG&E opened at The Geysers in May. From a cautious beginning — an 11,000-kilowatt plant that went on stream in 1960 — The Geysers has grown to include 14 plants with a capacity of 800,000 kilowatts.

The 135,000-kilowatt Unit 13 looms like a giant's factory amid the brush and trees some 100 miles north of San Francisco. Two 90,000-horsepower turbines each hour gulp some 2.7 million pounds of steam fed through five miles of pipeline from 21 wells.

Once spent, the steam is condensed in a giant tower and reinjected into the ground. Some 20 percent of the steam that is used — 2 million gallons a day — is recycled this way.

Geothermal power is not new. Roman documents 2,000 years old tell of a steam field at what is now Larderello, which was harnessed for industrial heating in the 19th century.

Today, Italy, New Zealand, the Philippines, Russia, Iceland and Japan use geothermal power, while the United States has 24 states where the conditions are right for geothermal energy of some sort. Plants are already in operation or planned in Idaho, New Mexico, Nevada, Utah, Texas and Maryland.

But all other facilities are dwarfed by The Geysers.

Back in 1847, occasional puffs of steam came out of the ground just south of Cobb Mountain in Lake County. Explorer William Bell Elliott told friends after a trip to The Geysers that he thought he had come upon "the gates of hell" themselves.

What he had seen was the result of geological conditions present in only a few areas on Earth, most of them ringing the Pacific Basin.

Here molten rock called magma, which elsewhere boils some 20 miles beneath the Earth's crust, rises to within five miles of the surface. The magma heats the rock above, and if underground water is present, it will sometimes rise to the surface as hot water or, in rare cases, natural, dry steam.

By not having to use other fuel to heat water to make steam, PG&E estimates it will save the equivalent of 1.4 million barrels of oil a year for Unit 13 alone. PG&E estimates the cost of operating and maintaining Unit 13 will be 50 percent less than for a comparable oil or gas-fueled plant.

Indeed, geothermal power is cheaper than oil or gas, although it costs more than hydroelectric or nuclear, according to PG&E. But it becomes economical only when the machinery to exploit it is in place — and that equipment is tremendously expensive.

To make the steam at The Geysers marketable, wells had to be drilled — wells averaging a depth of 8,500 feet and costing $1 million apiece.

The 21 wells feeding Unit 13, the five miles of pipeline needed to deliver the steam and the system to inject used water back into the reservoir were built by Amnolil for about $40 million.

Unit 13 cost PG&E $52.8 million.

Unlike gas and oil exploration, which can lead to profits in a matter of months, geothermal development takes years. And there is also the risk that wells will not produce at all.

Private companies like Amnolil take the risk, but public utilities like PG&E will not.

"As a regulated public utility, we are responsible for providing reliable electric service to our customers at the most economical cost," said PG&E spokeswoman Jan Miller. "Because drilling operations for oil, gas or geothermal are very high risk and big capital investments, we are essentially prohibited from being involved in those ventures."

One factor which makes geothermal power attractive is that a reservoir like that beneath The Geysers is expected to last at least 30 years.

"You can't say that for gas or oil," said Wall.

Amoco announces location for deep Loving prospector

A 23,000-foot wildcat project has been staked 12 miles east of Mentone in Loving County.

The prospector is Amoco Production Co. No. 1 B. E. Quinn, 1,980 feet from north and west lines of section 37, block 29, psd survey.

The drillsite is 1/2 mile northeast of a 5,207-foot dry hole, five miles southeast of the one-well Harrison (Morrow gas) field which produces at 18,853 feet, and 2 2/4 miles north and slightly east of the shallow Meridian field.

DAWSON WILDCAT Aminolil U.S.A. Inc., operating from ENERGY OIL & GAS

Midland, spotted location for a 9,700-foot wildcat 11 miles northeast of Lamesa in Dawson County.

It is No. 1 Greenlee, 660 feet from north and west lines of section 104, block 34, T-7-N. D&SE survey, abstract 770.

The drillsite is 2 2/4 miles northwest of 7,556-foot Sprberry production in the Adcock field and 1.5 miles northwest of a 10,863-foot failure.

LAMB COUNTY Threshold-Blocker Venture of Fort Worth spotted its No. 1 Howard C. Keener as a 7,500-foot wildcat in Lamb County, five miles southeast of Littlefield.

Drillsite is 660 feet from north and east lines of labor 8, league 686, State Capitol Lands Survey.

GARZA EXPLORER Allen B. Leeper of Midland No. 3 J. R. Shelton has been staked as a 4,900-foot wildcat in Garza County, five miles southeast of Southland.

Location is 1,810 feet from south and 985 feet from east lines of section 1245, TTRR survey.

It is one location northwest of Leeper No. 2 Shelton, a well in the PHD (Basal San Andres) field.

Ground elevation is 2,985 feet.

YOAKUM RE-ENTRY Cities Service Co., operating from Midland, announced a re-entry wildcat in Yoakum County, 12 miles east of Plains.

It is the operator's No. 1-A Hart, 1,980 feet from south and 660 feet from west lines of section 36, block K, psd survey.

The old total depth is 13,092 feet and elevation at test site is 3,501 feet.

Operator will plug back to 9,200 feet for tests. It is four miles east of the Owenby (San Andres) pool.

COTLE AREA Bettis, Boyle & Stovall of Graham announced a replacement location for its No. 1 Mack, scheduled 6,200-foot wildcat in Cottle County, 10 miles south of Paducah.

The project, now to be drilled as No. 1-A Mack, is 567 feet from south and 467 feet from east line of MEP&P survey, abstract 174.

SCHLEICHER EXPLORER Amoco Production Co. No. 2 Edwin S. Mayer Jr. "N" has been spotted as an 8,800-foot wildcat in Schleicher County, 20 miles southwest of Eldorado.

Location is 2,400 feet from south and 990 feet from west lines of section 25, block EF, GC&SF survey, abstract 1834.

Canyon sand production is 1 1/4 miles north of the drillsite in the Sawyer multipay field.

UPTON RE-ENTRY Saxon Oil Co. of Midland will attempt to reopen Devonian oil production in the Amacker Tippet, East (Strawn "A" oil) pool of Upton County, 10 miles northwest of Rankin.

The attempt will be made at the former Hunt Oil Co. No. 1-84 V. T. Amacker "D", a 12,420-foot dry hole. Saxon will deepen the hole to 12,430 feet for the completion attempt.

Operators announce NM openers in Chaves; wildcat sites scheduled Eserch Exploration Co., Inc., operating from Midland, No. 1 J. G. O'Brien has been completed as a Fusesman oil discovery in Chaves County, N.M., two miles southeast of Elkins.

The operator reported a daily flowing potential of 286 barrels of oil, gravity and gas-oil ratio not reported, through a 12 1/4-inch choke with flowing tubing pressure of 1,000 pounds.

Completion was through perforations from 6,741 to 6,745 feet.

Total depth is 6,791 feet and 5.5-inch casing is set at 6m791 feet.

Wellsite is two miles northeast of 2,606-foot San Andres oil production in the Railroad Mountain field and 28 miles southwest of 7,949-foot Fusesman oil production in the Peterson field.

Wellsite is 1,980 feet from north and 660 feet from west lines of section 31-75-29e.

SECONO CHAVES STRIKE Coronado Exploration Corp. of Albuquerque, N.M., announced potential test on a San Andres oil discovery in Chaves County, 20 miles northeast of Dexter.

The strike is No. 1 Whitney. It finished for a daily flowing potential of 56 barrels of oil and 14 barrels of water, through a 1/4-inch choke and from open hole at 2,079 feet, where 7-inch casing is set, and total depth of 2,100 feet.

The strike is 2 3/4 miles southeast of 2,112-foot San Andres oil production in the Diablo field.

Location is 1,980 feet from south and 660 feet from east lines of section 34-10s-27e.

EDDY DISCOVERY Perry R. Bass, operating from Midland, announced completion of an Atoka gas discovery 10 miles southeast of Carlisbad in Eddy County.

A re-entry of a former Atoka gas discovery, it finished for the Atok for a daily flow of 3,416,000 cubic feet of gas per day, through various size chokes with tubing pressure of 3,589 pounds.

Total depth is 12,332 feet and 5.5-inch casing is cemented on bottom. It completed from the Morrow in 1979 for a daily flow of 1,732,000 cubic feet of gas per day through various size chokes and perforations from 12,216 to 12,232 feet.

The wellsite is three miles west of the Golden Lane (Atoka gas) field and 1,980 feet from south and east lines of section 3-21s-28e.

EDDY WILDCATS Amoco Production Co. announced location for a 13,100-foot wildcat in Eddy County, five miles southwest of Malaga.

It is No. 1 State "IS", 1,980 feet from north and 660 feet from west lines of section 25-24s-27e.

The drillsite is 3.5 miles southwest of a 12,216-foot Morrow producer in the Malaga, West field.

Amoco also will drill No. 1 Veraguth as a 3,700-foot wildcat four miles southeast of Otis in Eddy County.

Cost put on 'windfall' tax

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — President L. Frank Pitts of the Texas Independent Producers & Royalty Owners Association said today the so-called windfall profits tax would cost the oil industry at least $65 billion during the 1980s.

"Should these funds be available to the producing industry to spend in drilling wells at an average cost of $200,000, there could be an additional 325,000 wells drilled in this state," said Pitts.

"The oil excise tax, the largest of its kind passed in history, is a dangerous, self-defeating measure which should never have been passed," he said. "It sets a serious precedent that will irrevocably harm the nation's energy objectives throughout the remainder of the century."

Pitts' testimony was prepared for delivery to Sen. Lloyd Bentsen's subcommittee on taxing and debt management. Twenty-seven witnesses signed up to testify.

Bentsen, D-Texas, says the 1980 federal tax penalizes millions of individual royalty owners, as well as major oil companies.

He is sponsoring a proposal to exempt royalty owners and independent producers from the tax on the first 1,000 barrels of daily production. Another bill co-sponsored by Bentsen and 30 other senators would exempt the first 10 barrels of daily production from the tax, which went into effect March 1. TIPRO also supports exemptions for independent producers and royalty owners.

The U.S. Senate Finance Committee rented the University of Texas Special Events Center — known as the "Super Drum" — for the hearing.

"Many of the 600,000 to 650,000 royalty owners in Texas are retired couples living in rural areas, or farmers and ranchers who would be unable to stay on their farms and ranches without royalty income," said Bentsen.

"One 62-year-old woman from New Braunfels, no longer able to work, wrote to tell me that she is dependent on her oil royalty payments for income," he said in a statement. "The windfall tax took some $66 from her payment this past April, leaving her with only $128 for the month."

"There has been a tendency to believe" that the tax "is targeted solely at the major oil companies which, according to conventional wisdom, stand to reap huge, unearned profits from oil decontrol," he said.

"But the fact is that the tax also hits the pocketbooks of millions of individual royalty owners who hold title to an average of less than five barrels a day of crude production," he added.

The tax is expected to generate about $6.3 billion for the federal government during the first year, with $1.2 billion to be paid by royalty owners.

"It boils down to the fact that we're shipping our money from Texas to Washington so Mr. Carter can spend more money on his bureaucracy," said President Roy Wheeler of the Independent Cattlemen's Association of Texas.

Department discovers no conspiracy by oil majors

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department said today it found no credible evidence that last year's gasoline shortage was the result of a conspiracy by the major oil companies to raise prices at the pump.

"There is insufficient evidence to justify a finding that antitrust violations contributed to the shortage or that further investigation of this matter is warranted," the department concluded in a 159-page report.

President Carter ordered the investigation on May 25, 1979, to determine whether violations of federal antitrust laws contributed to the gasoline shortages which were causing long lines at gasoline stations at that time.

The investigation by the department's antitrust division concluded that gasoline supplies for the first nine months of 1979 averaged 463,000 barrels a day less than had been predicted by the petroleum industry.

Auto deaths not 'American'

Dear Dr. Solomon: I have been reading some eye-opening statistics on automobile-related deaths in the United States. Is this terrible highway toll in some way related to the personality and character of the American people, or is it a problem in other countries as well? — Mrs. V.K.

Dear Mrs. K.: A report by the World Health Organization indicates that the United States does not hold a monopoly on slaughter on the highway; on the contrary, it seems to be a widespread phenomenon among developed countries.

WHO has published figures comparing automobile deaths during two periods — 1955 to 1959, and 1970 to 1974. Between these two periods, deaths from automobile accidents in Portugal increased by more than 300 percent, and in Canada by almost 120 percent. In fact, in all but two of the 30 countries for which statistics were compiled, such deaths increased by more than 50 percent. The corresponding figure for the United States was 95 percent.

One of the main reasons for automobile-related fatalities among young people is alcohol abuse. In England and Wales, for example, 40 percent of the drivers under 30 years of age who were killed in accidents were legally intoxicated based on the concentration of alcohol in their blood.

Dear Dr. Solomon: My mother was started on lithium therapy about six months ago while in a psychiatric hospital, and has continued taking the drug to the present time.

Although it has had a remarkably good effect on her in relation to what was a serious emotional illness, she complains that it makes her nauseous. In view of this, would you recommend that the lithium be discontinued? — Mrs. D.L.

Dear Mrs. L.: First of all, no drug should be discontinued without the knowledge and approval of the treating physician. Lithium is not some innocuous substance that a patient either takes or does not take as he or she sees fit; the fact that it has proven beneficial in regard to what you describe as serious emotional problems is proof of that.

Secondly, while nausea may be a side effect of lithium treatment, it may also be a symptom of the illness itself. One study of manic-depressive patients (for whom the drug often is prescribed) who were not receiving lithium showed that almost half complained of nausea.

Although lithium generally is well tolerated, there have been reports of cases in which it was discontinued prematurely or not used at all because of concern over the seriousness of side effects. As with any medication, there often must be a trade-off between its benefits and disadvantages. If the lithium is responsible for the nausea, you, your mother, and her physician will have to decide if its benefits outweigh the drawbacks. At the moment, however, you can't even be certain that it is the lithium that is causing the nausea.

Fat at 13, young man runs weight firm

CHICAGO (AP) — At age 13 he weighed 410 pounds, had a 64-inch waist, and was taunted and rejected.

"I always sent out nice Valentines, but all I ever got was the kind that said I was a hippo or an elephant," said Ken Dachman.

Dachman remembers years of torment — a boy trying to find a seat big enough on which to sit down; a boy who couldn't see his feet, who couldn't cross his legs, who could just barely put on his socks.

Now, at age 21, he owns a company in suburban Arlington Heights, selling a system for losing weight and how to prepare psychologically to do it. His 6-foot frame carries 175 pounds and has a 32-inch waist. And he is engaged to be married this fall.

"School was a disaster," he said. "By the 7th grade I really had emotional problems. When the other kids ignored me, I began to think they were right, that I really didn't have any business mixing with 'normal' kids."

Dachman said that after attending the Psychosomatic and Psychiatric Institute at Michael Reese Hospital when he graduated from 8th grade he began meeting people and slowly learned to be an independent individual. He went on a diet and lost 250 pounds in less than a year. It was done by just eating three nutritious meals a day, he said, instead of cases of food.

"On a typical Saturday, when I had all day to eat, I would wake up, turn on the cartoons on television and make breakfast," said Dachman.

"I would cook six eggs or 10 or a dozen, however big the pan was. I would cook them in half a stick of butter and throw maybe half a loaf of bread in. I'd eat maybe eight strips of bacon or a dozen sausages with them."

Dachman said his parents tolerated his eating habits, kept the refrigerator well stocked, and left him money if they were not home. He said as a baby he had been very ill and his mother wanted to protect him. He became a mama's boy.

"When my parents went away for a weekend, I loved it. They left me $20 and a fully-stocked house," he said.
